The four cases present a novel legal argument and complex procedural concerns in that each of the four cases had been referred to a different Arbitrator. As identical motions would have been filed in each case, there was the likelihood of four different outcomes, beginning with the question of whether each individual arbitrator would have entertained a Motion To Dismiss or would have addressed Respondents' legal argument only after a hearing on the merits. Depending on the Arbitrators' rulings on the motion or on the ultimate issue of whether the tenure charge should be sustained, the parties would have been faced with the decision to appeal each case individually or to consolidate the cases for appeal. The possibility of different motion and hearing procedures and of different outcomes hardly presented a model of judicial economy and efficiency.

For that reason, the parties wisely agreed to consolidate the Motion To Dismiss before one Arbitrator. And for that reason, Petitioner's procedural objections to the Motion are misplaced. If the Motion To Dismiss is denied for procedural reasons, Respondents still have the opportunity to raise the substantive challenges asserted in the Motion at the tenure hearings before each Arbitrator. Respondents would argue to the Arbitrators that the tenure charges "were defective and premature in that such charges were not based on a two-year evaluative cycle pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and were not preceded by the issuance of a corrective action plan as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5." The parties would once again be faced with the possibility of four separate outcomes related to a common issue in each of the four cases – the very result they were trying to avoid by consolidating the Motion before one Arbitrator.

For that reason alone, I find that the Consent Order waives any procedural argument to the Motion To Dismiss.

Moreover, the Petitioner's procedural objections are without merit. Respondent Mashore's Motion To Dismiss was, in effect, a motion for summary decision since he had already filed an Answer. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides that the Commissioner may decide a motion for summary decision prior to referral of the case to an Arbitrator. Respondent Mashore filed his Motion on November 7, 2014, three calendar days before receiving notice of the Commissioner's referral of the case to Arbitrator Gerber. The Motion and referral may have "crossed in the mail," but at least at the time Mashore filed the Motion, he had not been advised that his case had been referred to an Arbitrator. Accordingly, his motion was not untimely.

As Petitioner has agreed to consolidate the remaining three cases with the Mashore case for purposes of deciding identical motions that would have been filed in each case, it cannot now argue that the Motion is untimely in those three cases.

Finally, the AAA Labor Arbitration Rules may not specifically provide for dispositive motions; but it is within the Arbitrator's discretion to allow such motions. In the present tenure cases, the four Arbitrators acknowledged and, in effect, affirmed the parties' agreement to allow the Mashore Motion to Dismiss to be applicable to all four cases.

For these reasons, the Petitioner's procedural objections are without merit.

State Intervention Statute and TEACHNJ

The State Intervention Statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, first effective January 1988, allows the state to essentially take over a school district that is not providing a "thorough and efficient" education for its students. The state-appointed officials are charged with making sweeping changes to reverse the failed course of the district. To that end, the State District Superintendent is authorized to remove administrators and supervisors after s/he has the opportunity to evaluate their effectiveness or lack thereof.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(b) requires principals and vice-principals to be evaluated a minimum of three times within the first 18 months after the state-operated school district has been established. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(c) provides, in relevant part,

> "Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the State district superintendent, after the completion of an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months, may dismiss any tenured building principal or vice-principal for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause as defined by the criteria for principal or vice-principal performance in districts under full State intervention established by subsection a. of this section...

Accordingly, principals and vice-principals in a state-operated school district can face tenure charges after a minimum of three evaluations in an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(a) requires that the evaluations be based on criteria adopted by the Commissioner of Education.

As Respondents note, neither the statute nor the current regulations provide defined criteria for the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in a state operated school district. In the present case, Timothy Matheney, Chief Intervention Officer for the New Jersey Department of Education, was tasked with approving an evaluation instrument and criteria for principals and vice-principals in the Camden City School District after it became subject to state intervention. The evaluation instrument developed under his supervision "was intended to comply" with the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria, i.e., the four cited domains – instructional leadership, cultural leadership, organizational leadership, and effectiveness of teacher evaluation – on a 1 to 4 scale from "ineffective" to "highly effective." The New Jersey Department of Education's Office of Evaluation approved the evaluation instrument and criteria.

Respondents seize upon the District's use of the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria to argue that evaluation of principals and vice-principals in a state-operated school district must be governed by TEACHNJ and its requirement for a two-year assessment cycle and a corrective action plan.

TEACHNJ, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117, et seq., effective August 2012, revised the process for removing ineffective teachers from the classroom. Under TEACHNJ, districts could file tenure charges against ineffective teachers after a two-year evaluation period and a corrective action plan. In the case of I/M/O Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Sandra Cheatham and the School District of the City of Newark, Agency Dkt. #226-8/14, Arbitrator Bluth held that the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.1 applied to teachers in all districts, including state-operated school districts. Respondents contend that the TEACHNJ evaluation process must be extended to principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

TEACHNJ does not specifically reference the State Intervention Statutes as it applies to the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts. By its terms, it does not supersede the State Intervention Statute. Respondents nonetheless argue that TEACHNJ replaces the evaluation process outlined in the intervention statute for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

The State Intervention Statute requires three evaluations and an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts, "notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract." The legislature chose not to specifically override that provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 when it passed TEACHNJ. Accordingly, the State Intervention Statute and TEACHNJ have to be read in concert.

One of the goals of the State Intervention Statute was to allow the State District Superintendent to remove ineffective administrators and supervisors early in the process of rebuilding and revitalizing the failing district. Extending the assessment cycle for principals and vice-principals from "no less than 12 months" to 2 years would be a significant departure from the goal of the intervention statute. It is unlikely the legislature would enact such significant change without clearly stating so in the TEACHNJ statute.

Arbitrator Bluth found that the 2-year TEACHNJ evaluation period applied to teachers in state-operated school districts. The State Intervention Statute does not address the evaluation of teachers, so the Arbitrator's ruling was not an affirmation that TEACHNJ supersedes the intervention statute. Further, TEACHNJ dramatically revised teacher evaluations in a way that the new criteria allowed for more effective removal of ineffective teachers. Applying the 2-year assessment cycle to principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts would result in an arguably less effective removal process than currently permitted by the State Intervention Statute. Again, if the legislature so intended, it would be expected to specifically reference such a significant change in the evaluation process.

Absent specific language in TEACHNJ superseding N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, one must conclude that the legislature did not intend to change the evaluation process for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

Petitioner's utilization of an evaluation instrument intended to comply with the TEACHNJ criteria to evaluate principals and vice-principals does not mandate that Petitioner adopt all aspects of the TEACHNJ evaluation process, such as the 2-year assessment cycle. The intervention statute instructs that the Commissioner adopt the evaluation criteria. In the present cases, the Commissioner adopted the criteria from TEACHNJ. The adoption of criteria developed pursuant to another statute does not remove the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts from the State Intervention Statute, particularly when the legislature has not expressly overridden the provisions of the intervention statute.

For these reasons, I find that Petitioner properly brought tenure charges against Respondents for inefficiency pursuant to the provisions of the State Intervention Statute as it relates to the number of evaluations and the length of the assessment cycle.

Corrective Action Plan and Alleged Non-Compliance with the 12-Month Assessment Cycle

Respondents also argue, either in their brief and/or reply brief, that Respondents were not trained in the evaluation rubrics as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.2 and were never given a correction action plan as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5. Petitioner counters that Respondents had notice of the criteria by which they were to be evaluated as early as June 25, 2013 and were provided feedback and the opportunity to improve.

Additionally, at oral argument and in their reply brief, Respondents argue that Petitioner violated the requirement in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 that tenure charges of inefficiency may only be filed after "not less that a 12 month assessment cycle." Respondents assert that Petitioner filed charges before the 12-month period had lapsed. Petitioner first objects to Respondents raising this matter for the first time in their reply brief, and it counters the argument by asserting that it has complied with the 12-month assessment cycle requirement.

These issues – notice of the evaluation criteria, the imposition of a corrective action plan, if required, and/or the opportunity for feedback and improvement, and compliance with the timeline for filing tenure charges after an assessment period – raise genuine issues of material fact that can only be resolved through an arbitration hearing on the merits of the charges. As the parties dispute the facts giving rise to their arguments, the arguments cannot be disposed of through the present Motion To Dismiss.

Award

Respondents' Motion To Dismiss tenure charges is denied. The cases shall proceed to hearing before the assigned Arbitrators. Pursuant to the parties' Consent Order, the undersigned hereby withdraws from the Gay S. Brown case, and the Department shall appoint a new arbitrator to hear the matter.

SYNOPSIS

The petitioner herein was imprisoned on May 16, 2002 and released in 2013 after the Supreme Court found that – based on new evidence that would likely change the jury's verdict – a new trial for Mr. Nash was essential. In April 2013, the Judgments of Conviction against petitioner were vacated, and the indictments against him dismissed in their entirety upon motion from the Essex County Prosecutor. In the instant matter, petitioner seeks indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1 for legal fees and costs expended between 2001 and 2003 relating to his criminal trial and subsequent application for a new trial following his conviction in 2002.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner bears the burden of demonstrating his claims under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1 by a preponderance of the evidence; it is undisputed that the criminal charges against petitioner arose from his employment as a teaching staff member in respondent's school district, that his convictions have been reversed, and that the Essex County Prosecutor's Office has dismissed the indictments. The initial decision also recited that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1 provides a board of education shall reimburse a staff member for the reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the "original hearing or trial and all appeals," the respondent's argument that petitioner is unable to demonstrate the reasonableness of the counsel fees that he incurred, and is therefore ineligible for reimbursement, is without merit and that under the circumstances present in this matter, petitioner has demonstrated that the fees paid to his attorneys were reasonable and subject to reimbursement by the district. Certain other documented fees clearly related to petitioner's defense, which were raised at hearing, are also subject to reimbursement, but other fees claimed by petitioner for which inadequate documentation was provided, or which were first raised in a post-hearing brief, are not subject to reimbursement. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner demonstrated that the legal fees and costs specifically delineated in the Initial Decision are reasonable and should be reimbursed by the school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The respondent was ordered to reimburse petitioner in the amount of $44,112.00, representing the reasonable fees and costs expended for his defense.

RESPONDENT.	:

This matter involves the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 and whether the counsel fees expended between 2001 and 2003 for which petitioner sought reimbursement – following lengthy criminal proceedings, appeals, and ultimate dismissal of the indictments[1] lodged against him – are reasonable.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 provides, in pertinent part: "Should any criminal or quasi-criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals."[2] (emphasis added)

Based upon the testimony and certifications of Felix Lopez Montalvo, Esq. and Jonathan Gordon, Esq. – the two attorneys who represented petitioner between 2001 and 2003 – as well as the extensive trial and new-trial-motion transcripts, the Administrative Law Judge

[1] Because the Initial Decision contains a detailed recitation of the procedural history in this matter, which spans over 13 years, it will not be reiterated here. On April 29, 2013, the Judgment of Conviction entered against petitioner was vacated, and the indictments were dismissed by the Essex County Prosecutor. (Initial Decision at 4)

[2] It is uncontroverted that petitioner is eligible for reimbursement. (Initial Decision at 14)

(ALJ) determined that the record contains sufficient evidence to demonstrate that the costs and fees incurred by, and on behalf of, petitioner were reasonable under all of the circumstances.[3]

In his exceptions, petitioner seeks modification of the Initial Decision to include reimbursement for $1,546.44 in outstanding fees and costs due to the Office of the Public Defender, but concedes that reimbursement of same was not sought during the proceedings until the submission of post-hearing briefs – and after the record was closed. Respondent maintains that, because the judgments memorializing said costs were recorded against petitioner sometime between 2003 and 2006, petitioner could have included this request for reimbursement in his petition of appeal. In addition, respondent contends that because the relevant evidence was not presented at the hearing, petitioner is precluded from discussing it in his exceptions per N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Additionally, in its own exceptions, respondent argues that the ALJ erred in finding that petitioner demonstrated the legal fees and costs incurred through representation by attorneys Montalvo and Gordon were reasonable, and therefore reimbursable, under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. In essence, respondent asserts that petitioner failed to provide sufficient information for calculation of the lodestar (i.e. the number of hours an attorney reasonably devoted to the case multiplied by a reasonable hourly rate), thereby rendering it impossible for the ALJ to determine whether the fees incurred were reasonable. Because respondent's contentions as to reasonableness were asserted below, and thoroughly addressed by the

[3] Because Montalvo and Gordon represented petitioner more than 11 years ago, neither attorney could provide a copy of their retainer agreement or detailed hourly billing records. As noted by the ALJ, however, "the applicable ethics guidelines only require an attorney to retain a file for seven years after the file has been closed." See Advisory Committee on Professional Ethics Opinion No. 692, http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/ethics/acpe/acp692_1.html (Initial Decision at 17)

ALJ in her Initial Decision, the Commissioner will not recapitulate them here. (Initial Decision at 16-20)

Upon independent review of the record[4] and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), plus the parties' exceptions and respondent's reply to petitioner's exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Petitioner has demonstrated, by a preponderance of evidence, the reasonableness of the legal fees and costs incurred as delineated in the ALJ's comprehensive Initial Decision.

The ALJ's findings in this regard are adequately supported by the record, and consonant with the purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 – to require the Board to reimburse the legal expenses of an employee successful in defending against a criminal action that arose out of the course of his or her employment. See Bower v. Board of Educ., 287 N.J. Super. 15, (App. Div. 1996), aff'd 149 N.J. 416 (1997). Montalvo, who had been in private practice for more than 10 years when he represented petitioner, "provided both testimony and a certification as to the fees he was [sic] charged, the fees he received, and the reasonableness of his fees." (Initial Decision at 14) Gordon, who was also in private practice for more than 10 years when he represented petitioner, "provided both testimony and a certification as to the fees he received (i.e., that he had been 'paid in full' for his services), and to their reasonableness." (Initial Decision at 14) Furthermore, "the work performed by both attorneys is self-evident from the extensive trial and new-trial-motion transcripts." (Initial Decision at 14) Finally, in accordance with Rendine v. Pantzer, 141 N.J. 292 (1995), the ALJ's analysis included the calculation and comparison of appropriate lodestar amounts – taking into account that, here, counsel for petitioner both charged flat fees – in an effort to ensure the reasonableness of the recommended fee reimbursement under the unique circumstances presented here. (Initial Decision at 19-20)

As to the additional monies requested by petitioner in his exceptions, the Commissioner declines to award $1,546.44 due to the Office of the Public Defender at this time since – as recognized by the ALJ – petitioner did not request reimbursement of same in his petition, nor did he raise the issue during the hearing.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent shall reimburse petitioner in the amount of $44,112.00 ($9,220/Montalvo + $30,700/Gordon + $2,392/transcripts + $1,800/expert) representing the reasonable fees and costs expended for his defense.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about March 31, 2004, petitioner Askiaa Nash filed the Verified Petition in this matter, seeking indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1 for legal fees and costs expended between 2001 and 2003 relating to a criminal trial and subsequent application for a new trial after his conviction. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 19, 2014.

The hearing was scheduled for and held on December 15, 2014, and January 21, 2015. The parties requested an opportunity to submit post-hearing briefs. Following receipt of the last reply brief, the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In 2000, petitioner was employed as an educational media specialist by the Newark School District in the library at the Morton Street School. On October 12, 2000, he was arrested and charged with the sexual assault of two students, J.B. and K.L. The assaults were alleged to have taken place at the Morton Street School, during school hours. He was indicted on January 16, 2001, and a trial took place in Essex County in May 2002, at which petitioner was represented by Felix Lopez Montalvo, Esq.

At his trial, petitioner testified, and denied having any inappropriate contact with either student. He explained that J.B. was a special-needs student, with disciplinary problems, and had an aide assigned to him, Crystal St. Louis. Specifically, petitioner testified that either an adult or a non-special-needs student would accompany J.B. to the bathroom. Petitioner insisted that he never escorted a student to the bathroom, and stated that J.B. was always escorted by an aide throughout the school building.

Carl Gregory, the principal of the school, testified on rebuttal for the State. He claimed that J.B. was not assigned a "personal aide," which he defined as a person who "work[s] with a particular student throughout the day." Neither the prosecutor nor the defense attorney asked Mr. Gregory whether J.B. was assigned any other type of aide who shadowed him during the day. This testimony had "devastating consequences" for the defense. State v. Nash, 212 N.J. 518, 530 (2012). On May 16, 2002, petitioner was convicted of the assaults, and he was imprisoned on that date.

Following his conviction, petitioner filed a motion for a new trial, and retained a new attorney, Jonathan L. Gordon, Esq., to represent him. After a three-day evidentiary hearing, the motion for a new trial was denied. Petitioner, represented by Mr. Gordon, also appealed his convictions and portions of the denial of his new-trial motion. His convictions were affirmed on appeal.

In 2005 petitioner filed another motion for a new trial, which was denied. In May 2006 he filed a petition for post-conviction relief, which was denied by the trial court; however, the trial court's decision was reversed by the Appellate Division in August 2009. In February and March 2010 the court conducted a post-conviction-relief hearing.[1]

The trial court again denied petitioner's petition for post-conviction relief, which denial was affirmed by the Appellate Division. The Supreme Court granted his petition for certification, and reversed.

The Supreme Court found that the evidence demonstrating that J.B. was closely monitored throughout the school day was the sort of evidence "'that would probably change the jury's verdict if a new trial were granted.'" Id. at 552 (citation omitted).

The Supreme Court found that a new trial must be conducted on all charges, including those involving K.L., since Principal Gregory's misleading trial testimony shattered Nash's credibility, "branding him as a liar." Id. at 553. There were "no

[1] At that hearing, Crystal St. Louis testified that Principal Gregory had ordered her to act as a one-on-one aide to J.B. after he attempted to jump off the roof of the school building. She further testified that whenever J.B. went to the bathroom, she would send another student into the bathroom with him, while she stood outside. She testified that after petitioner was arrested, Principal Gregory issued a "gag order" and told her not to respond to questions concerning the matter. Id. at 535–36.

Saundra Sharpe-Conte also testified that Principal Gregory had issued a "gag order" preventing staff from answering questions about the allegations or cooperating with Mr. Nash's counsel. She confirmed that Ms. St. Louis monitored J.B. throughout the school day. She further testified that J.B. was a "pathological liar" who "made up stories." She explained that she had never informed the Prosecutor's Office that Ms. St. Louis was a full-time aide to J.B. because she was never asked a question on the subject. Id. at 536.

In December 2004, Carl Gregory executed a Certification clarifying the testimony he had provided at Mr. Nash's criminal trial. Specifically, he certified that, while J.B. did not have a "personal" aide, he did, in fact, have a "classroom aide," Crystal St. Louis, whom he had instructed to accompany J.B. throughout the school day. He explained that he was not asked any questions about "classroom aides" during Mr. Nash's criminal trial, nor was he asked any questions that would have given him the opportunity to clarify Ms. St. Louis's role vis-à-vis J.B. Id. at 532–33.

witnesses and no physical evidence to support either K.L.'s charge or Nash's denial. The case was a simple credibility contest. Gregory's misleading testimony cast Nash as untrustworthy, and that alone was enough to tip the scales unfairly against Nash." Id. at 554.

On April 29, 2013, the Judgments of Conviction entered against petitioner were vacated, and the indictments against him dismissed, in their entirety, upon the Motion of the Essex County Prosecutor. (See P-B.[2])

Petitioner was imprisoned on May 16, 2002, the date of his conviction, and was released from prison in 2013.

On or about March 31, 2004, Mr. Nash filed the Verified Petition in this matter, seeking reimbursement of the costs and fees expended on his behalf in the defense of the criminal charges. A plenary hearing was held on December 15, 2014, and January 21, 2015.

COSTS AND FEES SOUGHT

TESTIMONY

Felix Lopez Montalvo

Mr. Montalvo testified that he is an attorney and has been in private practice since 1987 or 1988. He knows Mr. Nash, as he was retained to represent him in a criminal matter.[3] When shown the transcript of the trial (P-C), Montalvo testified that the charges against petitioner were aggravated sexual assaults of minors. He stated that he prepared for months with petitioner. He had difficulty with witnesses, including one who had left the state and refused to speak to him even when threatened with a subpoena, and another who came in drunk, and so a determination was made not to use her.

Regarding the agreement he had with petitioner, Mr. Montalvo testified that at that time he handled cases like this for $20,000 or $25,000. He recalled that petitioner was low on funds at the time, and also had been referred by a friend of Montalvo's from Seton Hall University, and so he agreed to reduce the fees charged. He testified that petitioner paid a portion of the fee, but he is still owed $4,800 to this day. He has never represented Mr. Nash in any other matter. Mr. Montalvo testified that the client ledger in this matter indicates that a fee of $14,000 was quoted. A deposit of $6,500 was made; however, that check bounced, and a $10 overdraft fee was added. Thereafter, the petitioner made a payment of $6,010, another payment in the amount of $300, and another in the amount of $1,700. He then made a payment of $1,210, leaving a balance of $4,800, which was never paid. Mr. Montalvo did not recall and could not produce any written retainer agreement that may have been in place, and he said that he would not have his records now in any event from 2002. He also agreed that there was no certification of services available detailing what he did to prepare or during trial and no record of the number of hours spent at trial. He agreed that the flat fee of $14,000 was quoted and that his ledger shows that he received $9,220 of that amount.

Mr. Montalvo did not recall whether there were any efforts to collect the balance due, and he no longer has the entire file, as it is more than ten years old. There was also animosity on the part of petitioner, which he understood completely; however, he wanted to collect the balance due, and so he informed petitioner's mother that the balance was still due and owing. Montalvo indicated his preference to be paid in full before trial or during trial, but he agreed that he never sued for the balance due. The next time he saw petitioner was when petitioner was released from jail.

Jonathan L. Gordon

Mr. Gordon is a self-employed attorney who was admitted to practice in December 1990. He was retained by petitioner's father to represent him in a motion for a new trial, which his family wished to pursue following petitioner's conviction of aggravated-sexual-assault charges. The motion was filed and at least one hearing was held on the motion; however, it was ultimately denied. (P-I; P-J; P-K; P-L.) In connection with that motion in which Mr. Gordon represented petitioner, an expert, Dr. Frank J. Dyer, was retained. Dr. Dyer's fee was paid by petitioner's father, with whom Mr. Gordon indicated he had several meetings. Mr. Gordon testified that he could have had a retainer agreement with petitioner, and believes he did, but the file is long gone. He never represented the petitioner in any other matters, and all fees he was owed were related to this case.

Mr. Gordon identified his certification (P-N) and identified copies of three checks paid out of his attorney trust account related to transcript fees. Mr. Gordon indicated that he received checks from petitioner's mother; however, due to the passage of time he does not recall any specific checks in specific amounts from specific people. He believes he was paid in full the approximate amount of $30,700. Mr. Gordon currently has no details as to motion preparation, the appeal to the Appellate Division, or specifics as to the time spent, services performed or total hours; however, he does recall spending significant preparation time, especially initially, when he was reviewing transcripts and preparing the case with family members and communicating with the prosecutor. He and petitioner's father, James Nash, had many lengthy discussions, and he visited two different residences at times to speak to him and other family members. Mr. Gordon recalled that there was an issue that arose right away regarding an aide at the school who may not have testified, and also an issue regarding the failure to challenge the credibility of at least one of the child witnesses. Gordon stated that he was surprised in reviewing the transcripts that Montalvo had not aggressively cross-examined one of the alleged victims. He remembers those issues in the motion, and he retained Dr. Dyer to assist with the motion for a new trial. He does not recall the specifics, but recalls that the motion was denied and an appeal was filed in the Appellate Division. The appeal was denied, and the matter was not appealed to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Gordon identified several checks (P-N). The first check discussed was number 1055 dated June 30, 2003, made payable to his trust account in the amount of $1,000. The back of the check is not shown. Check 1056 in the amount of $13,000 was made payable to Jonathan L. Gordon, and again the back of the check is not depicted. No proof was provided that either of these checks was deposited.[4] The next checks addressed by the witness were numbered 1058 in the amount of $1,000, 1059 in the amount of $2,000, and 1062 in the amount of $700. Check 1059 is made payable to Jonathan L. Gordon and is dated May 30; check 1058 is made payable to Mr. Gordon's trust account and is also dated May 30; and check 1062 is dated July 9, 2003, and is also made payable to Mr. Gordon's trust account. No copies were provided of the back of any of the checks and no proof was offered that the checks were deposited. Check 1061 is also depicted, but only the front of the check, which is in the amount of $13,000 made payable to Mr. Gordon.[5]

[5] At this juncture the petitioner handed his attorney what were purported to be copies of the backs of several checks. Mr. Cridge, representing petitioner, indicated that he had asked his client for all the documents relevant to the matter and had produced what he thought was all the documents to Mr. Herman. He represented that he had learned the previous week that petitioner's sister might be in possession of copies of the backs of additional checks, and when that was confirmed to be the case, those were provided as well. During the cross-examination of Mr. Gordon the petitioner handed his attorney what appeared to be copies of the backs of several additional checks, which petitioner purportedly told his attorney he had located that morning. Counsel agreed those should have been provided long ago to Mr. Herman; however, his client had just provided them to him. Mr. Cridge argued

Mr. Gordon agreed that check 1061 contained no reference to Mr. Nash, and no proof was offered that he received it or deposited it, and the same was true of check 1062. Mr. Gordon testified that he also had no idea how many hours he spent preparing and no idea how many hours he spent in court in this matter, on any of the appearances. Mr. Gordon testified that there was no other reason for Anita Nash to write him a check, and that he spent many hours over many days in extensive preparation for this matter. He then estimated that it was likely over 100 hours.

Anita Nash

Anita Nash has been a library technician at Kean University for twenty-seven years, and petitioner is her brother. In October 2000 her brother was arrested, and she helped with his criminal defense and gave him funds for transcripts. She testified that the checks she wrote included those in Exhibit P-N, including the following:

that the checks were simply overlooked, and that under the circumstances they should be accepted into evidence, notwithstanding that it was halfway through the hearing, because they appeared to the attorney to contain the signatures of Mr. Gordon, and that newly discovered evidence was appropriate to move into evidence. Mr. Herman, however, referred back to the discussion prior to commencing the hearing where three issues were discussed, one of which addressed bank records, and said that he found it curious that now, halfway through the day, copies of the backs of checks are being handed by petitioner to his attorney. There were multiple document requests, and halfway through the cross-examination of the second witness the petitioner should not be able to offer new documentation. Mr. Herman said petitioner insisted throughout the pendency of this matter that everything he had, had been provided as of day one, and that all discovery requests had been complied with and any documentation related to Mr. Gordon's fees had been submitted. Mr. Herman added that notwithstanding the discovery request in August, four months in advance of the hearing, ten days before the commencement of the hearing they received a CD with thousands of pages of documents on it. Moreover, the Friday before the hearing Mr. Herman received from opposing counsel a certification from Dr. Dyer, because he was not available to testify, and thereafter checks for transcription companies and for Dr. Dyer followed. After asking for copies of checks throughout the entire discovery period to substantiate petitioner's request for reimbursement, documents are continuing to arrive at the last moment, and Mr. Herman sought to bar the backs of any checks not previously produced. He also requested that all copies of checks relating to Mr. Gordon be stricken from the record as a sanction. Mr. Herman also asked that the record be preserved, articulating that if petitioner had provided these documents, and believes that they might prove his case, prior to the hearing, the matter may well have been resolved.

Mr. Cridge reiterated that he had an obligation to provide documents up to the last moment, and when he realized the case would not settle he provided the additional CD counsel referred to.

Based on the arguments of the parties, the request to admit the copies of backs of checks purporting to be the backs of the same checks in the exhibit binder was denied because there was no indication exactly what checks they were the backs of. There was nothing to connect them to the checks already discussed by Mr. Gordon.

Check 2366 in the amount of $238, about which she does not remember the details, dated April 9, 2001

Check 1055 to Mr. Gordon's trust account in the amount of $1,000 dated June 20, 2003

Check 1056 to Mr. Gordon in the amount of $13,000 dated June 30, 2003

Check 1021 to Susan Scardilli, a court reporter, in the amount of $290 dated June 19, 2002

Check 1059 to Mr. Gordon in the amount of $2,000 dated May 30, 2003

Check 1058 to Mr. Gordon's trust account in the amount of $1,000 dated May 30, 2003

Check 1062 to Mr. Gordon's trust account in the amount of $700 dated July 9, 2003

Check 1061 to Mr. Gordon in the amount of $13,000 dated May 30, 2003

She also discussed checks written by her father (P-B), numbered 523 and 527, both for trial transcripts. Check 523 was written on January 9, 2004, in the amount of $600, and check 527 on January 19, 2004, also in the amount of $600, both payable to G & L Transcripts. She also testified that she wrote four other checks to Frank J. Dyer and others as follows:

Check 1038 to Frank J. Dyer in the amount of $800 dated December 23, 2002

Check 1044 to Frank J. Dyer in the amount of $1,000 dated February 11, 2003

Check 1020 to Susan Scardilli in the amount of $900 dated June 30, 2002

Check 1032 to Vanessa Johnson to reimburse her for money she advanced to Gordon in the amount of $3,000

She agreed that she had no substantiation to indicate what Vanessa Johnson was paid for other than a notation of "legal fees." While the checks were from her parents' account she had seen them previously, because she took care of her father's account, as well; however, she has no documentation, bills, letters or any other writing from Mr. Gordon to indicate the hourly rate for the total fee charged. Ms. Nash agreed that she had no idea what checks were for which services and what each check was specifically for, other than the ones that were for transcripts.

Frank J. Dyer

Dr. Dyer has been a self-employed psychologist since 1979. He holds a bachelor's degree from Upsala College, a master's degree from Montclair State University and a Ph.D. from New York University. His practice currently consists of forensic work only, and he was asked to review records provided by petitioner's attorney twelve years ago and testify at the hearing for a new trial.

Dr. Dyer indicated that he reviewed a large volume of records submitted to him pertaining to one of the complaining witnesses, and subsequently testified at the hearing regarding a number of psychological aspects. The doctor identified his testimony within P-I, and indicated that he was paid the sum of $1,800 to review the record and appear at the hearing. He submitted a bill (P-O), and he was paid. He provided no services to Mr. Nash other than those rendered in connection with this matter.

His recollection is that the record review he conducted at the time was at a $200-per-hour fee and it took approximately four hours, and the trial appearance for half a day was at a flat rate of $1,000.

Askiaa J. Nash

Mr. Nash testified that he is currently unemployed. In 2000 he was employed at the Newark Public Schools, where he started on September 1, 1993, as an educational media specialist. He spent eight years working at the Morton School.

In the year 2000 he was arrested and alleged to have had inappropriate conduct with students at the Morton Street School. He was indicted and a trial was held in May 2002 in Essex County Superior Court. Petitioner identified Exhibits P-C, P-D, P-E, P-F, P-G and P-H as his trial transcripts. He testified that Mr. Montalvo represented him at trial and was paid $9,400. He was convicted and sentenced to twenty-two years in State prison, and thereafter filed a motion for a new trial, represented by Jonathan L. Gordon. Exhibits P-I, P-J, P-K and P-L are transcripts from his motion for a new trial. Nash testified that his convictions were ultimately overturned by the Supreme Court, and he identified the copy of the Supreme Court decision as Exhibit P-A.

The indictments against petitioner were dismissed after the reversal of his convictions. Nash testified that neither Mr. Gordon nor Mr. Montalvo represented him in any other capacity at any time. Petitioner now seeks to recover the costs and fees for his trial and motion for a new trial. Mr. Nash agreed that he had no documentation indicating whether a retainer agreement was entered into, nor what Mr. Montalvo's hourly rate was in 2002, and no documents reflecting the number of hours spent by the attorney either preparing or at trial. He testified that he made installment payments to Montalvo, including a check for $6,500 that bounced, but which he ultimately "made good on." He is aware that Mr. Montalvo asserts that he is still owed $4,800, but he testified that Montalvo has never tried to collect it. Petitioner was released from prison in 2013.

Nash agreed that he also had no retainer agreement with Mr. Gordon, and he does not know if his father did, because he was in prison when his father retained Gordon. He has no documentation related to the time spent by the attorney or the hourly rate, but indicated that his father paid Mr. Gordon through his sister, and that his sister handled their father's business. Petitioner also detailed at length his basis for his belief that Mr. Montalvo did a poor job in representing him at trial, and that he was wrongly convicted.

Petitioner also testified that numerous matters that Mr. Gordon could have raised were not argued on his behalf. Sometime later, in 2005, a public defender represented petitioner in another motion for a new trial, prior to petitioner's pro se petition for post-conviction relief in 2006. His motions and appeals were denied up to the Appellate Division, and then the matter ultimately went to the Supreme Court, by virtue of the petition for post-conviction relief.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner seeks reimbursement for the legal costs and fees associated with the defense of the criminal charges against him pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, which provides:

> Should any criminal or quasi-criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals. No employee shall be entitled to be held harmless or have his defense costs defrayed as a result of a criminal or quasi-criminal complaint filed against the employee by or on behalf of the board of education.

The applicability of the statute was described by our Supreme Court in Bower v. Board of Education of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416, 423 (1997):

> N.J.S.A. 18A:16–6.1, read in connection with the [complementary] provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16–6, prescribes a two-part standard for determining whether board of education employees are entitled to indemnification of counsel fees and expenses incurred in the defense of criminal charges: (1) any act or omission on which the criminal charges are based must arise "out of and in the course of the performance of the duties" of the position held by the employee, and (2) the charges must either be dismissed or result in a final disposition favorable to the employee.

Pursuant to Bower, the right of a board of education employee to reimbursement or indemnification accrues when the criminal charges result in an acquittal or otherwise are dismissed. Bd. of Educ. of Florham Park v. Utica Mut. Ins. Co., 172 N.J. 300, 308 (2002).

In Bower, the Court described the circumstances under which an employee makes the required showing that the criminal charges "arose out of" his employment:

> Where the record in the criminal proceeding reveals no evidence of any conduct other than the employee's performance of his lawful duties, the factual basis for the indictment becomes inextricably linked with the employee's duties as a teacher.
> [Bower, supra, 149 N.J. at 431.]

As the Bower Court explained, where there are no adjudicatory facts, and where the only undisputed facts are that the alleged events took place in school, during school hours, while the employee was required to be engaged in performing his duties, the employee will have met his burden in demonstrating that a lawsuit arose from a duty-related act. Ibid. Indemnification cannot be denied merely because the alleged criminal or tortious acts, if committed, would have been beyond the scope of an employee's lawful duties. Indeed, such an interpretation of a "duty-related act" would exclude all allegedly criminal conduct from reimbursement, and frustrate the express intent of the Legislature. See Powers v. Union City Bd. of Educ., 124 N.J. Super. 590, 595 (Law. Div. 1973).

Moreover, the Court in Bower explained:

> The State Board [of Education] correctly perceives that the statute may mandate indemnification in cases in which, despite a favorable disposition of the criminal charges, doubts may persist about the actual innocence of the teacher seeking reimbursement. The State Board may question the soundness of that legislative judgment but it cannot disregard the statute's clear mandate. To the extent that the State Board may conceive that the statutory requirements could be more effectively implemented through rulemaking that might address prospectively and more specifically the scope of the evidentiary hearing and the > requisite burden of proof required to implement the legislative will, we foresee no obstacle to the adoption of regulations consistent with the statute and specifically designed for that purpose. We hold only that the imposition of proof requirements specific to Bower's claim in the adjudicatory proceeding instituted by Bower was impermissible.

It is undisputed that the criminal charges against petitioner arose from his employment as a teaching staff member with the District. It is also undisputed that his convictions have been reversed, and that the Essex County Prosecutor's Office has dismissed the indictments. As such, pursuant to Bower and Florham Park, petitioner has met his burden to establish his eligibility for reimbursement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

Petitioner bears the burden of demonstrating his claims under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 by a preponderance of the evidence.

The procedural history of petitioner's arrest, indictment, trial, conviction, and all post-conviction efforts are set forth by our Supreme Court in State v. Nash, supra, 212 N.J. 518, and are uncontroverted. Felix Lopez Montalvo, Esq., who had been in private practice for more than ten years when he represented Mr. Nash, provided both testimony and a certification as to the fees he was charged, the fees he received, and the reasonableness of his fees. Likewise, Jonathan L. Gordon, who had also been in private practice for more than ten years when he commenced representation of Mr. Nash, provided both testimony and a certification as to the fees he received (i.e., that he had been "paid in full" for his services), and to their reasonableness. Both attorneys credibly explained that they no longer possessed their entire client files pertaining to Mr. Nash due to the age of those files, indeed, there is no requirement that files of that age be maintained. Moreover, the work performed by both attorneys is self-evident from the extensive trial and new-trial-motion transcripts.

The District argues that petitioner cannot recover the fees paid to Felix Lopez Montalvo, Esq., because of the allegations raised by petitioner in post-conviction proceedings that Mr. Montalvo's representation was ineffective. The District further argues that petitioner is not entitled to recovery of Mr. Gordon's fees, since Mr. Gordon's representation of petitioner "centered around attacking Mr. Montalvo's legal representation of Petitioner during the criminal trial." The District's position ignores both the findings of the Supreme Court in State v. Nash, 212 N.J. 518 (2012), and the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

Notwithstanding the arguments raised by petitioner during his appeals, the Supreme Court determined that Mr. Montalvo had not been ineffective in his representation of Mr. Nash:

> In light of our constitutional jurisprudence and deferential standard of review, we concur with the PCR court's determination that Nash's trial counsel did not render constitutionally deficient performance. . . . Here, according to defense counsel, his investigation was thwarted by the lack of cooperation of school officials. Witnesses, such as classroom aide St. Louis and Principal Gregory, refused to talk to defense counsel, and Vice Principal Torelli refused to return his calls and letters. Likewise, J.B.'s special-education classroom teacher, Sharp-Conte, did not return calls and declined to be interviewed. From the beginning, Nash told his attorney that an aide followed J.B. everywhere. Nonetheless, defense counsel could not corroborate this important fact through his own investigatory efforts. As we now know, Gregory's gag order had the probable effect of interfering with trial counsel's investigation and defense.
> When the State presented its case-in-chief, defense counsel did not question Sharp-Conte about an aide, fearful that he might elicit an answer that would undermine his defense. Gregory's rebuttal testimony that J.B. did not have a personal aide came from the principal—the foremost authority figure in the school. That testimony evidently caught defense counsel flat-footed. Not knowing the difference between a classroom and personal aide, counsel made the strategic decision not to reinforce testimony that proved damning.

> The PCR court heard defense counsel's extensive testimony. The court concluded that, even with limited financial resources, counsel made a reasonably diligent investigation. Defense counsel cannot be faulted if he was stonewalled. Courts are cautioned to avoid looking at events through the distorting lens of hindsight and second-guessing reasonable decisions made by counsel. There is sufficient credible evidence in the record to support the PCR court's conclusion that defense counsel's performance was not constitutionally deficient.

Accordingly, there is no basis for the District's claim that the quality of Mr. Montalvo's representation precludes Mr. Nash from recovery of his fees. Indeed, it was the District's agent—Principal Gregory—whose actions were found to have interfered with Mr. Montalvo's investigation and defense.

Furthermore, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 provides that a board of education shall reimburse a staff member for the reasonable counsel fees and expenses of "the original hearing or trial and all appeals." On its face, the statute contemplates that a teacher may have to appeal a conviction, and that the teacher will be entitled to the costs and fees associated with the trial that resulted in the conviction if the appeal is successful. This is precisely what happened here. Accordingly, the fact that petitioner argued in post-conviction proceedings that Mr. Montalvo's representation was ineffective is irrelevant to his claims under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.

The District argues that petitioner is unable to demonstrate the reasonableness of the counsel fees that he incurred, and that he is therefore ineligible for reimbursement under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. This claim is based upon the fact that neither attorney was able to produce a retainer agreement, evidence of the hourly rate at which he billed petitioner, nor hourly billing records detailing the work that he performed on petitioner's behalf. Contrarily, under all of the circumstances, there is sufficient evidence in the record to demonstrate that the costs and fees incurred by and on behalf of petitioner were reasonable.

Mr. Montalvo testified that he was retained on a flat-fee basis. Similarly, Mr. Gordon certified that he represented petitioner on a flat-fee basis, both for the motion for a new trial, and later the subsequent appeal. Both Mr. Montalvo and Mr. Gordon certified that they no longer had copies of their files, having represented petitioner in 2002 and 2003—more than eleven years ago. The applicable ethics guidelines only require an attorney to retain a file for seven years after a file has been closed. See Advisory Committee on Professional Ethics Opinion No. 692, <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/ethics/search.php>. Accordingly, the fact that their files are no longer available is the fault of neither Mr. Montalvo nor Mr. Gordon, nor petitioner. The purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 is to protect a person who is a defendant in a criminal action from being asked to absorb the financial loss of the defense of that action when the defense has secured a final favorable disposition. Sekuler v. Montgomery Twp. Bd. of Educ., App. Div. Dkt. No. A-01-96T1. That goal would be eviscerated if petitioner's claim were to be denied based upon a destruction of records over which he had no control, which took place during his lengthy incarceration.

Notwithstanding this, the record is clear as to the nature and extent of the services performed by Mr. Montalvo and Mr. Gordon. Mr. Montalvo testified as to the extent of the pretrial efforts he undertook for Mr. Nash:

> We were in preparation for this trial for months with Mr. Nash. We were attempting also to contact some prospective witnesses. We had occasion to make an appointment with one witness who came to the office and after speaking with her we decided not to use her, because she was inebriated at the time she came to my office. There was another witness that had relocated out of state which we attempted to bring back and question her. She refused to speak to us. . . . We spent a lot of time in preparation for this case. . . . We didn't know [about Principal Gregory's "gag order"] until the hearing, but it just made our job of preparing for trial that much harder.

The pretrial efforts undertaken by Mr. Montalvo were also described in State v. Nash:

> According to Nash's trial attorney, Nash said that he could not have committed the crime because an aide—St. Louis—> escorted J.B. everywhere in the building. The presence of an aide shadowing J.B. became the main defense. Nash provided the defense attorney with the names of St. Louis, Vice Principal Torelli, and Ida Jenkins as potential witnesses. Although the defense attorney recognized that retaining an investigator before trial is "extremely important," Nash did not have the resources to do so, and therefore the attorney or his staff made contact with the witnesses. The attorney contacted St. Louis but "she did not want to get involved." She imparted that, if subpoenaed, "I'm going to say things about your client that you're not going to like." For that reason, he decided not to chance calling her as a witness. On the other hand, the defense attorney acknowledged that had St. Louis stated before Nash's criminal trial that she was J.B.'s one-on-one aide, as she did in her 2004 certification, that would have been his "ace in the hole." In that circumstance, he would have presented the information to the prosecutor's office, and then "[the prosecutor] may have walked away from the case."

>
> The defense attorney contended that he did not call Ida Jenkins because Jenkins had complained about Nash taking students out of the classroom. He did not call Vice Principal Torelli as a witness because he was unable to contact her, either by telephone or mail. Likewise, Sharp-Conte did not return any of his telephone calls, and he was not able to interview her before trial. The defense attorney, moreover, did not cross-examine Sharp-Conte about whether J.B. was assigned an aide because he was uncertain how she would respond. He declined to call as a witness Johnson-Shavers, who assisted Nash in the library, because she told him during an interview that she did not escort children to the bathroom, but rather she gave them a pass. Last, the defense attorney did not challenge Principal Gregory on cross-examination because the attorney did not know about the distinction between personal and classroom aides and because he was afraid that questioning Gregory would open the door to unfavorable testimony, including testimony about Nash's presence with students alone in the hallways and calling students to the library.
> [State v. Nash, supra, 212 N.J. at 537–38.]

Beyond the pretrial preparation undertaken by Mr. Montalvo, the record of Mr. Montalvo's trial work on behalf of petitioner is self-evident from the trial transcripts (400 pages), which record Mr. Montalvo's appearances in the Essex County Superior Court for trial proceedings on May 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, and 16, 2002.

Likewise, Jonathan Gordon testified as to the nature and extent of the services he undertook on behalf of Mr. Nash:

> I couldn't give you a specific hour number, but I could tell you that I spent a significant amount of time on the Nash matters in preparation, especially initially in gathering information and understanding the case, reviewing the trial transcripts, other information that I was able to get through his family members, speaking to people in the courts, the court staff. I was familiar with the Prosecutor Nicole Amato (phonetic) and speaking to her generally about the case. So there was a—a significant amount of time.

While Mr. Gordon could not state with certainty the number of hours spent, he did estimate that it was "more than 100 hours." Moreover, his court appearances are recorded in 437 pages of transcripts generated in handling the motion for a new trial on petitioner's behalf.

Both Mr. Montalvo and Mr. Gordon were experienced private practitioners who had been practicing law for fourteen years (Montalvo) and twelve years (Gordon) by the time they represented Mr. Nash. Mr. Montalvo certified that the time and effort that he expended in preparation for the trial was considerable, and commensurate to the length of the trial and the severity of the charges faced by Mr. Nash. He further certified that his fees were fair and reasonable. (P-M.) Likewise, Mr. Gordon certified that his fees were fair and reasonable, given the amount of time expended in preparation for and during the hearing in connection with the motion for a new trial, and the subsequent appeal of Mr. Nash's convictions. (P-N.)

Finally, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Montalvo and Mr. Gordon represented Mr. Nash on a flat-fee basis, a comparison of their efforts and fees to the hourly rate accepted by the Commissioner for counsel of similar experience demonstrates that those fees were reasonable. In Salaam v. Board of Education of Irvington, Essex County, No. A-5592-11 (App. Div. February 4, 2014), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>, the court, affirming the Commissioner of Education, addressed fees sought for the defense of disorderly persons[6] offenses in 2008 and 2009 and determined that an hourly rate of $250 per hour was reasonable. The court further recognized that this rate was reasonable, even though Mr. Salaam's counsel had been paid at the "volume discount rate" of $142 to $145 per hour through the teacher's union. As the court stated:

> We reject the Board's argument that the Commissioner erred in awarding a higher hourly rate than that allowed by the NJEA legal services program through which Salaam procured Smith's representation. The NJEA legal fund allowed payment of Smith's fees at a "volume discount rate" of $142 to $145 per hour. However, as noted, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 mandates the reimbursement of "reasonable" counsel fees. As the ALJ aptly stated, the fact that a third-party finances the defense does not relieve the Board of its statutory obligation to pay those reasonable fees. We agree with the ALJ that the purposes and policies of the statute are advanced by allowing a school employee to rely upon his union's insurance policy as a means to fund his legal representation, and thereby "protect himself from the potentially ruinous defense costs," which in turn "cannot inure to the benefit of the Board."

An application of this hourly rate ($250) to the scope and extent of the work performed by Mr. Montalvo and Mr. Gordon demonstrates that it is more likely than not that the fees charged by these counsel were reasonable. At that rate, the $9,220 paid to Mr. Montalvo would have been satisfied after only 36.88 hours, while Mr. Gordon's $29,650 in legal fees (accounting for the $1,050 in checks written from his trust account for transcripts) would be met after 118.6 hours, a time commensurate to the "more than 100" hours that Mr. Gordon estimated he spent on the case.[7]

Under all these circumstances, Mr. Nash has demonstrated that the fees paid to Mr. Gordon and Mr. Montalvo were reasonable, and subject to reimbursement by the District.

[6] Charges far less serious than those faced by Mr. Nash.

[7] Even calculated at a significantly lower rate ($200), the evidence demonstrates that it is more likely than not that Mr. Montalvo's and Mr. Gordon's fees were reasonable, since the hours required to meet that rate would be only 46.1 and 148.25, respectively.

Petitioner also seeks reimbursement in the amount of $3,000 purportedly paid to a Vanessa Johnson, based upon a personal check written from Anita Nash to Johnson. The check contains no reference to petitioner or his case. Anita Nash testified that the check was issued to repay Ms. Johnson for funds advanced to Mr. Gordon on petitioner's behalf, yet no documentation was offered and no explanation tendered as to who Ms. Johnson is. Accordingly, petitioner has not demonstrated that any of the $3,000 allegedly paid to Ms. Johnson is even related to his legal defense, and as such, he is not entitled to reimbursement for this amount.

Moreover, the check from Anita Nash to Marlin LLC in the amount of $238 also bears no reference whatsoever to petitioner or his legal defense, and no invoice or any documentation was produced. Anita Nash testified candidly that she did not know who Marlin LLC was and did not recall what the payment was for. Finally, the check is dated April 9, 2001, and as petitioner's trial commenced thereafter, on May 7, 2002, it appears unlikely that this check was written in payment for a transcript, and, as such, petitioner has not demonstrated entitlement for reimbursement of this amount. The remainder of the checks claimed to be for transcripts do reference petitioner or his case, and, as such, are eligible for reimbursement.

Finally, in or about 2005, representation of petitioner was assumed by the public defender, including the work undertaken on behalf of Mr. Nash before the Supreme Court. By letter of April 27, 2015, petitioner was notified by the State of New Jersey, Office of the Attorney General, that he owes approximately $1,546.44 to the New Jersey Office of the Public Defender. Mr. Nash received this notice in connection with his settlement of a case brought against the State of New Jersey under the New Jersey Mistaken Imprisonment Statute, N.J.S.A. 52:4C-1 et seq., captioned Nash v. Treasurer, State of New Jersey, Docket No. MER-L-2399-13.

These fees were not addressed during the hearing in this matter, and are raised now for the first time in a post-hearing brief, and, as such, are not now subject to reimbursement.

CONCLUSION

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated that the legal fees and costs as specifically delineated above, expended on his behalf in defense of the foregoing criminal charges, are reasonable and should be reimbursed by the District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE	:
CERTIFICATE(S) OF JACQUELINE BORDON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The Edison school district filed a petition requesting that the teaching certificate(s) of respondent be suspended for unprofessional conduct in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for failure to honor the terms of her employment agreement with the district. In September 2014, an Order to Show Cause was served upon respondent – a non-tenured teacher – requiring her to show cause why her teaching certificate should not be suspended for resigning her position as a teacher of World Languages without providing adequate notice. The respondent contended that she only resigned because an injury prevented her from performing the duties required by her teaching assignment for the 2014-2015 school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the respondent herein suffered a debilitating injury to her right leg when she was chased by goats while on a trip in May 2014; medical records support respondent's contention that her injury left her unable to drive or climb stairs; the central purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is to provide notice to the school district that a member of its teaching staff will not complete the terms of his or her teaching contract, thereby allowing the district time to arrange for a suitable replacement without adversely impacting students; the decision to suspend a teaching certificate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is discretionary and the Commissioner has historically evaluated all circumstances specific to each case; here, although petitioner did leave her contracted teaching position to accept another at a school closer to her home; she did not change jobs for a salary increase; rather, the new job resolved problems related to her reduced mobility; nonetheless, her abrupt departure in August 2014 was unprofessional conduct within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's conduct was not motivated by personal gain, but rather by a medical crisis, and – under the circumstances – the Board had an obligation to discuss accommodations with petitioner and should have shown her a modicum of compassion. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that petitioner's teaching certificate(s) be suspended for a period of three months.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Accordingly, respondent's certificate was suspended for a period of three months from the date of the filing of this decision – a copy of which was forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating this order.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE	:
CERTIFICATE(S) OF JACQUELINE BORDON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision – that the respondent's certificate(s) should be suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 because she resigned without providing the Board with the requisite notice required by her contract. The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that – based on the mitigating circumstances in this case – a three month suspension of the respondent's certificate(s) is the appropriate penalty.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The respondent's teaching certificate(s) is suspended for a period of three months from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 12810-14
AGENCY DKT. NO. 281-9/14

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF JACQUELINE BORDON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

Ari Schneider, Esq., for petitioner, Edison Board of Education (The Busch Law Group, attorneys)

Liam Jones, Esq., for respondent, Jacqueline Bordon (Guillermo Arango, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 9, 2015 Decided: June 18, 2015

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, the Board of Education of the Township of Edison (the Board), seeks an order suspending respondent's teaching certificate for a period of one year contending that she resigned from her teaching position with inadequate notice. Respondent, Jacqueline Bordon, replies that she resigned only because an injury dated June 3, 2015, that "[b]ased upon the complete disability with inability to use the right leg Jacqueline underwent a course of platelet rich plasma injection on 10/16/14 followed by Graston therapy . . . ." (R-11.) Bordon's condition slowly improved, and she was cleared to begin driving on March 4, 2015.

At the time of her injury, there were several weeks left in the 2013-2014 school year, and Bordon completed her duties. Her husband drove her to school and back home; she testified that the trip took about one hour and fifteen minutes each way. Additionally, Bordon had committed to teach a summer ESL course. She kept that commitment as well, with her husband driving her daily to Edison. Bordon urged that she loved working in Edison; loved her students; and was passionate about her involvement with several student clubs. But the record is clear that even before her injury, Bordon had begun to explore other employment opportunities. She admitted that she had made application to a charter school in Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley Charter High School of the Arts, in or about February, 2014. She likewise admitted that she had made application to at least one other school prior to her injury. Importantly, however, I heard no evidence that would lead me to find that, had Bordon been offered alternative employment prior to her injury, she would have necessarily accepted it or would have left Edison without notice.

Bordon received her teaching schedule for the 2014-2015 school year in early August and immediately became concerned that her health would preclude her from fulfilling her professional responsibilities. She was slated to teach four classes at the high school, and one class at the middle school. Bordon would have to navigate several classrooms at the high school, and then travel by car to the middle school. She noted that her direct supervisor, Virginia Santoro, was well aware of her physical limitations as she had observed Bordon finish out the prior school year from a wheelchair. Bordon felt helpless and uncertain how to proceed. She testified that suddenly a solution presented itself, in the form of an offer of employment from Lehigh Valley Charter, where she had applied for a teaching position earlier in the year. This school was only twenty-five minutes from her home. Bordon conducted a demonstration lesson at the school on August 13, 2014, and signed a contract of employment on August 25, 2014. Although the contract employs her effective August was not entirely credible. A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness' story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Bordon's testimony was a bit evasive, nonresponsive, and inconsistent. Indeed, the emails with Santoro were not produced, and despite inquiry by me, no explanation for their nonproduction was offered. Bordon urged that she had attached the email exchange with Santoro to the answer she filed with the Department; but when I shared the answer with her, she was forced to admit that they had not been attached.

Moreover, the contention that she asked to explore other options is inconsistent with the tenor of Bordon's letter of resignation, which is vague about her reasons for leaving, and unequivocal in its expression of her intent to leave at once. Bordon does not invite a discussion of options that would permit her to remain in Edison, either for the whole year, or long enough to secure a suitable replacement. I FIND that Bordon was struggling to commute to Edison each day, and that once she was injured continuing to do so presented a terrible hardship to her and her family. I also FIND that once she was offered employment closer to home, Bordon promptly accepted that employment; viewed it as the best solution to her problem; and made no effort to work out a compromise of any sort that would allow her to fulfill her contractual obligations. Indeed, the job at Lehigh Valley so better met her needs at the time that she was willing to take a significant cut in pay to work there.

But there is blame to go all around. Bordon forwards her letter of resignation to Santoro and cites her health as the reason for her abrupt departure. Bordon credibly testified that Santoro knew of her injury, and had witnessed her confinement to a wheelchair. Bordon's email notes that she has thought and "prayed" for a while, a clear indication to Santoro that Bordon had struggled with a solution to her concerns. Santoro simply forwards the email on to Pitucco; neither of them inquire further about Bordon's health; nor do they invite a conversation about helping her to remain in Edison. If there are emails that reflect anything other than a somewhat cold and callous

Here, Bordon did walk off the job, and did so to take a position at another school. She did not do so because she was going to earn more money; rather, because the new position resolved a personal crisis for her. Once Bordon was injured, she did initially conduct herself with professionalism. She could have immediately called in sick, but instead, finished the year, and even kept her promise to provide instruction during the summer. Nonetheless, her abrupt departure in August was "unprofessional conduct" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. Clearly, her conduct impaired the quality of instruction for Edison students. She could have and should have, at a minimum, explored solutions to her situation that might have accommodated both her needs and those of her students in Edison, and she did not. But I likewise CONCLUDE that the Board, through its administration, had a concomitant obligation to discuss accommodations with her, and to talk through a difficult situation with a previously reliable employee who was struggling with a debilitating injury and was likely overwrought under the circumstances. I CONCLUDE that the Board, through its administration, should have showed Bordon a modicum of compassion.

In determining an appropriate penalty, the Commissioner's decision in In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rogers, 1989 S.L.D. 1962, is instructive. There, a certificate was suspended for only three months, in part because fortuitously, the board had located a replacement within a week. But the judge noted that her paramount consideration for reducing the penalty was the employee's motivation for his early departure; there it was to work with severely disabled students in an environment where it was difficult to secure and keep talented staff.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW UNIT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a school bus driver – appealed the respondent Department's determination to suspend her school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29(a) of the School Bus Safety Act ("Act") after an incident in which O.S. – a kindergarten student at the Drew School – remained on the school bus as petitioner drove toward the bus depot without realizing the child was still on board. Petitioner contended that she did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 as she remained within the vicinity of the bus at all times, and that the customary understanding of the meaning of "the end of the route" is the return of the bus to the bus depot. The respondent filed a motion for summary decision, which was denied, and the matter was heard at the OAL on May 29, 2015.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the rules by which petitioner's conduct must be judged are ambiguous, as the statutes use various terms such as "the end of transportation route," "the end of the route," and "vicinity of the bus," which are not defined; petitioner credibly testified that the union custom requires a visual inspection at the bus depot before securing the bus, and that this is the industry's standard implementation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28; student transportation regulations provide that "[a] student is considered to have been left unattended on the school bus at the end of the route when the driver has left the vicinity of the bus." N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)(1); respondent's argument that the law requires the visual inspection at "the end of the route" to be interpreted to mean "after each drop-off point" is inapplicable in the instant case, as petitioner herein never left the vicinity of the school bus; therefore, petitioner did not leave a student unattended on the school bus. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's actions did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 and, accordingly, reversed respondent's decision to suspend petitioner's school bus endorsement.

Upon review, the Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision, concluding instead that petitioner did violate the Act by admittedly failing to visually inspect the school bus before leaving her final student drop-off point, which was the end of her transportation route. In so deciding, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the interpretation of specifically when the Act requires a school bus driver to visually inspect the bus has been addressed in Klein v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, Commissioner Decision No. 68-12, decided February 21, 2012, and – more recently – in Vickery v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, Commissioner Decision No. 234-15, decided July 9, 2015; and the ALJ improperly relied on N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)(1) in excusing petitioner's failure to visually inspect the bus at the end of her route at the Drew School. Accordingly, respondent's decision to suspend petitioner's school bus endorsement for six months was affirmed, and the petition was dismissed. Respondent was directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of the suspension of petitioner's school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., and to notify petitioner's employer that she is ineligible for the period of suspension for continued employment as a school bus driver.

SUSAN J. HERMAN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW UNIT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

This matter concerns interpretation of the School Bus Safety Act (the Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26 et seq., and specifically when the Act requires a school bus driver to visually inspect the school bus to determine that no pupils remain on the bus. Having previously addressed this issue in Klein v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, Commissioner Decision No. 68-12, decided February 21, 2012, and more recently in Vickery v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, Commissioner Decision No. 234-15, decided July 9, 2015[1], the Commissioner rejects the recommended Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law and instead concludes that petitioner violated the Act by failing to visually inspect the school bus before leaving the Drew School – at the end of her transportation route – and prior to arrival at the bus depot.

The Act requires that a school bus driver "visually inspect the school bus to which he is assigned at the end of the transportation route to determine that no pupil has been left on the bus." N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29, if "after notice and opportunity to be heard, a school bus driver is found to have left a pupil on the school bus at the end of his route, his school bus endorsement shall be: a) suspended for six months, for a first offense; or b) permanently revoked, for a second offense."

At the heart of this controversy are the parties' differing interpretations of the phrase "end of the transportation route" – which is not defined in the statute or the regulations. While petitioner maintains that the "end of the transportation route" is signified by arrival at the bus depot or bus yard, respondent cites the Commissioner's decision in Klein to support its contention that the "end of the transportation route" is "the point where all of the children in that group leave the bus to enter their school and the bus is empty of riders, and before the driver moves on to her next route. At that point, the driver shall inspect the bus for any remaining students." Klein, supra, at 2.

The facts are not in dispute. Petitioner is a school bus driver for the East Windsor School District, which operates a half-day kindergarten program at the Drew School. (Initial Decision at 2) Petitioner's mid-day bus route initially involves transporting the "AM" Kindergarten students from Drew School to their respective bus stops at the conclusion of the "AM" session. Next, petitioner transports the "PM" Kindergarten students from their respective bus stops to Drew School for the "PM" session. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 1)

On March 21, 2014, when petitioner arrived at O.S.'s bus stop following the "AM" session, no adult was present to meet him. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 2) As a result, petitioner contacted her dispatch and was advised to return O.S. to Drew School with the "PM" Kindergarten students. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 3) When petitioner returned to Drew School, the "PM" Kindergarten students departed the bus; evidently, O.S. remained on the bus. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 5) Next, without having visually inspected the bus to ensure that all students had departed, petitioner exited the bus to deliver a student's misplaced backpack to a teacher, and returned to the bus shortly thereafter. (Initial Decision at 2) Petitioner admits that she did not visually inspect the bus while at the Drew school; instead, she subsequently drove toward the bus depot without realizing that O.S. was still on the bus. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 4) Once petitioner received a call from her dispatch inquiring about O.S., she then called out his name to confirm his presence on the bus and drove him back to the Drew School. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 5)

Respondent, the Department's Criminal History Review Unit ("CHRU"), issued a decision dated March 24, 2014 finding that a child was left on petitioner's school bus, "notwithstanding [petitioner's] obligation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq. to conduct a visual inspection at the end of your transportation route to assure that no pupil has been left on the bus." Because this incident was petitioner's first offense, CHRU's decision indicated that petitioner's "S" endorsement on her driver's license (which allows her to operate a school bus) was to be suspended for six months pursuant to the Act. Petitioner appealed CHRU's determination.

Following a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law on May 29, 2015[2], the Administrative Law Judge concluded that: 1) petitioner, at all times, remained in the vicinity of the school bus and therefore did not leave a pupil unattended on the bus; 2) "the custom of the industry" requires compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 by a visual inspection at the bus depot when the bus driver leaves the vicinity of the school bus; 3) respondent's argument that the law requires "the end of the route" to be interpreted as after each dropoff is inapplicable to the current factual determination since petitioner did not leave the vicinity of the school bus; and 4) petitioner's actions did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28. (Initial Decision at 9)

Respondent filed exceptions with the Commissioner claiming that the ALJ misapplied the relevant statutes and case law to the factual record. In particular, respondent argues that whether petitioner remained within the vicinity of O.S. after having left him on the school bus at the end of the route is irrelevant because the Act does not require such an inquiry to be made. (Respondent's Exceptions at 6) Rather, the only relevant inquiry is whether "a school bus driver is found to have left a pupil on the school bus at the end of his route." N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29. In support of its contention, respondent cites to Klein, wherein the Commissioner defined "end of the transportation route" as "the point where all of the children in that group leave the bus to enter their school and the bus is empty of riders, and before the driver moves on to her next route. At that point, the driver shall inspect the bus for any remaining students." Klein, supra, at 2. As to the ALJ's reliance upon "the custom of the industry", respondent asserts that industry custom is irrelevant to a proper application of the Act and emphasizes that "a prevailing union custom or district policy for its bus drivers cannot supersede New Jersey statutes." (Respondent's Exceptions at 7)

In response, petitioner contends that the factual circumstances here are completely different than those described in Klein – where a child left unattended on the bus became distressed when the driver exited to visit the restroom – and that, therefore, the ALJ appropriately distinguished Klein. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 1) Additionally, petitioner asserts that respondent's "rigid" interpretation of the Act would unfairly result in assessment of the same penalty to petitioner as that assessed in Klein, and other more egregious cases "when the child's interests and welfare were at significant risk." (Id. at 2) For these reasons, petitioner seeks to disregard Klein and its holding while maintaining that the "end of the transportation route" occurs when the bus is parked at the bus depot. Under this interpretation of the Act, petitioner argues that she was under no obligation to visually inspect the bus while at the Drew School, or at any time prior to arrival at the bus depot.

Upon review of the record, the Initial Decision, and the parties' submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the respondent and rejects the ALJ's recommended conclusions. Instead, the Commissioner concludes that petitioner violated the School Bus Safety Act when she admittedly failed to visually inspect the school bus at the end of her route – i.e., following the departure of the "PM" Kindergarten students from the bus, and before returning to the depot. As a result of petitioner's failure to perform the required visual inspection, O.S. was left on the bus as petitioner departed the Drew School and traveled to the bus depot. Therefore, petitioner is subject to a mandatory six month suspension of her school bus ("S") endorsement, as per N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29.

The ALJ's analysis is flawed for a number of reasons. Initially, the ALJ improperly excused petitioner's failure to visually inspect the bus at the end of her route at the Drew School by finding that she remained in the "vicinity" of the bus at all times and, therefore, never left O.S. unattended. In excusing petitioner's failure to visually inspect the bus before leaving the Drew School, the ALJ cited N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)1 which provides that "a student is considered to have been left unattended on the school bus at the end of the route when the driver has left the vicinity of the bus." Even if petitioner remained in the vicinity of the bus when she delivered the misplaced backpack to a teacher, that fact does not exempt petitioner from completing the required visual inspection before her departure to the bus depot. Notably, the Act itself does not require a finding that a student was left unattended on the bus in order to impose a penalty; rather, the stringent provisions of the Act and its mandatory penalties seek to prevent students from being left unattended and placed at risk of harm. N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3, which sets forth reporting requirements, should not be viewed as limiting the scope of the Act's plain language – especially when the stated purpose for the rules governing student transportation "is to ensure the safe and efficient transportation of students to and from school and school-related activities." (emphasis added) N.J.A.C. 6A:27-1.2.

The Commissioner's recent decision in Vickery reinforces the Act's requirement that the visual inspection of the school bus should have occurred before departing the Drew School at the end of the transportation route – when all of the other children had exited the bus – and makes clear that the remaining pupil need not be left unattended by the driver in order for violation of the Act to occur. In Vickery, a sixteen-year-old foreign exchange student, who was returning home from school, fell asleep on the school bus and therefore failed to exit at his designated stop. Following his arrival at the last bus stop on the route, and after all of the other children had exited, Vickery failed to complete the required visual inspection. As a result, the sleeping student – who was never left unattended – remained on the bus as Vickery proceeded to the bus yard.

Vickery asserted – as does our petitioner – that he complied with the statute because he did not leave the student alone on the bus and he conducted a visual inspection at the bus yard. Nevertheless, the ALJ concluded that Vickery's failure to inspect the bus before returning to the bus yard and immediately following his last stop on the route violated N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28. As a result, the ALJ appropriately recognized that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 mandated a six-month suspension of Vickery's "S" endorsement.[3] Vickery v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, OAL Dkt. No EDU 83-15, Agency Dkt. No. 338-11/14, Initial Decision at 7, adopted, Commissioner Decision No. 234-15, decided

The mandatory nature of the sanction may fairly be read as an indication of the Legislature's strong reaction to any such act on the part of someone entrusted with the care and safety of students, who in many instances are of tender years." Garner v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6655-08, Initial Decision at 3, adopted, Commissioner Decision No. 132-09, decided May 1, 2009.

July 9, 2015. In so doing, the ALJ aptly noted that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 "does not permit me to consider mitigating circumstances, or to consider the fact that, gratefully, this student was unharmed. The statute speaks in the imperative." (Vickery, supra, Initial Decision at 8) The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ in Vickery and upheld the six-month suspension.

Furthermore, the ALJ's erroneous reliance upon N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)1, coupled with irrelevant testimony concerning industry custom, was an inadequate basis upon which to adopt petitioner's definition of "end of the transportation route" and cast aside the well-reasoned definition provided by the Commissioner in Klein. It is the Commissioner, and not the school bus industry, who is tasked with the oversight of school bus transportation for hundreds of thousands of students. Any supposed industry custom in this context is neither controlling nor persuasive and simply cannot supersede New Jersey law.

Finally, the ALJ's rejection of the Commissioner's holding in Klein undermines the purpose and intent of the School Bus Safety Act. As the Commissioner stated in Klein, "Accepting petitioner's argument that the inspection did not have to take place until the bus returned to the depot at the end of the day defies reason and eviscerates the fundamental purpose of the statute – to protect our children and ensure their safety." Klein, supra, at 2. To hold otherwise would excuse – if not promote – inefficiency (by endorsing needless rides to the bus depot for our students) and place children at unnecessary risk of harm. It is nonsensical to delay visual inspection of the school bus until arrival at the bus depot when, in fact, any heightened safety risk to the children can be avoided altogether if they are discovered on the bus while still present on school grounds or prior to leaving the route. While it may be true that O.S. was never left unattended, and it is not known from the present record whether he suffered any harm or distress, the visual inspection required by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 should have occurred prior to departing the Drew School at the end of the transportation route – when all of the other children had exited the bus.

Accordingly, the decision of the Criminal History Review Unit is hereby affirmed, and the petition is dismissed. Respondent is directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., to suspend petitioner's school bus "S" endorsement on her driver's license for six months and to notify petitioner's employer that she is ineligible – for the period of suspension – to continue employment as a school bus driver.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 168-7/14

SUSAN J. HERMAN,
Petitioner,
v.
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW UNIT,
Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for petitioner (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

Kyle Gruber, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (John J. Hoffman, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: May 29, 2015 Decided: June 23, 2015

BEFORE JOSEPH A. ASCIONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Susan J. Herman (petitioner), appeals a decision by respondent State of New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), Criminal History Review Unit (CHRU), to suspend the "S" endorsement on her driver's license, which permits her to drive a school bus. On March 24, 2014, the CHRU notified Herman that it intended to suspend her "S" endorsement to operate a school bus, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29(a). Herman filed an appeal with the Commissioner of Education, and on August 14, 2014, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The respondent moved for summary decision, and on September 19, 2014, the undersigned issued an Order denying the motion and directing a hearing on limited testimony. A hearing was held on May 29, 2015; the parties provided oral closing arguments; and the record closed on that date.

ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED

Petitioner challenges the proposed suspension of her "S" endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 for her alleged failure on March 21, 2014, to check her school bus at the end of her route, leaving a child on the bus. Petitioner denies any violation of the statute, as she remained within the vicinity of the bus at all times, and the customary understanding of the meaning of "the end of the route" means the return of the bus to the bus depot.

TESTIMONY AND FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The parties filed an executed stipulation of fact (J-1), which sets forth the underlying facts.

Petitioner testified to twelve years of contracted service with the East Windsor school district as a bus driver and to the events of March 21, 2014. She specifically testified that after dropping off the East Windsor afternoon-kindergarten students, she had discovered a backpack left on the bus. The backpack did not belong to O.S., but to one of the other kindergarten students. Petitioner said that she took the bus key out of the ignition, and went to deliver the backpack to an East Windsor school teacher. She was within twenty feet of the bus at all times, and was away from the bus for less than a minute. She then returned to the bus, and departed to the bus depot. The depot is about an eight-minute ride from the school. She received a call from dispatch when she was about halfway to the depot inquiring whether O.S. was on the bus, and after she discovered O.S. on the bus, she turned the bus around, returned to the school, and dropped O.S. at the school, eventually returning to the bus depot.

Maureen Antoniello, petitioner's coworker, testified that on March 21, 2014, she was operating the school bus behind the petitioner's at the East Windsor dropoff. She remembered wanting to complete her dropoff promptly. When she noticed the petitioner walking away from the bus with the backpack, she contemplated where petitioner was going. However, no sooner had petitioner left the bus than she returned to it, and departed the school location. She estimated petitioner's time out of the bus as less than a minute. Antoniello testified that she saw the petitioner depart and return to the bus. Petitioner at all times was in the vicinity of the bus.

Carl Carabelli, the manager of the CHRU, testified to his employment for over twenty-seven years with the CHRU and his management of numerous investigators. This matter had an assigned investigator, who is still employed by the CHRU. That investigator did not testify at the hearing. Carabelli testified to the policy of the CHRU to seek to enforce N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 as requiring a visual inspection at each dropoff of students at a school, not at the bus depot. He offered no factual testimony regarding the specific incident in question, or the recommendation of the initial investigator.

Petitioner also has stated that she followed the district policy regarding visual inspection of the bus. That policy was not provided, but petitioner maintains that the policy requires a visual inspection at the bus depot. Antoniello also testified that this is the understanding of both her and the union. Antoniello is a union representative, and she testified that the prevailing custom required a visual inspection at the bus depot.

Respondent's November 17, 2014, brief claims that petitioner entered the school to return the backpack that had been left on the bus. However, there is no factual certification for this assertion, nor did respondent present any evidence to support that position. This tribunal is required to accept petitioner's version of the facts, as respondent offered no testimony to contradict her or Antoniello's statements.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

For the purposes of this Initial Decision, I FIND as FACT the items set forth in J-1, the factual stipulation agreed to by the parties, and the testimony of the witnesses, all of whom were found to be credible. Additionally, the following factual findings from the previous motion were not disputed by the parties:

1. Petitioner possesses an "S" endorsement on her commercial driver's license that allows her to operate a school bus. She has operated a school bus for twelve years without incident.

2. On March 21, 2014, petitioner carried a student, O.S., on her school bus. Her intention was to return that student to his home dropoff after the student attended the morning kindergarten class.

3. Upon arriving at the stop to leave O.S., no parent or guardian appeared to receive O.S. Petitioner contacted dispatch. Dispatch advised petitioner to keep O.S. on the bus, pick up the afternoon kindergarten students, and return O.S. to the school.

4. When petitioner arrived at the school, upon the teacher's approval, petitioner turned off the bus engine, keeping the bus key in her hand. The afternoon kindergarten students departed the bus as their names were called, and were received by the teacher. Petitioner observed a backpack in the rear of the bus and retrieved it. Petitioner called out twice to determine if anyone still existed on the bus. The result, no answer.

5. Petitioner closed the door, secured the bus, and brought the backpack to the teacher, the delivery point within twenty feet of the school bus. Within less than a minute petitioner returned to the bus. At all times petitioner had view and remained in the vicinity of the bus. Petitioner did not enter the school building.

6. Petitioner departed the school and headed for the bus depot, when she received a call from dispatch inquiring as to the presence of O.S. on the bus. On petitioner's voice inquiry, O.S. responded on the third attempt. Dispatch directed petitioner to return O.S. to the school. Petitioner did this.

7. The union understands required compliance at the end of the route when at the bus depot.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The School Bus Safety Act (2007), N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26 to -30, is designed to prevent the potential harm that could come to a child who is left unattended on a school bus. The paramount consideration is the safety of the child. There are few facts that must exist to form the basis for CHRU action under the statutes and regulations that control this matter, and the statute countenances limited defenses.

N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 requires that "[a] school bus driver shall visually inspect the school bus at the end of the transportation route to determine that no pupil has been left on the bus. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 requires a six-month suspension of the "S" endorsement if "a school bus driver is found to have left a pupil on the school bus at the end of his route."

The implementing regulations provide:

> Where a school bus driver has been notified by the Department's Criminal History Review Unit that a determination has been made that suspension or revocation, as the case may be, of the driver's school bus endorsement is warranted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq. because a child was left on the school bus to which the driver was assigned notwithstanding the driver's obligation to conduct a visual inspection at the end of the transportation route to assure that no pupil is left on the bus, the driver may contest such determination through the filing of a petition of appeal according to the procedures set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(a).]

The following aspects of the Department's determination may be contested:

> 1. That a pupil was left on the bus at the end of the driver's route;
> 2. That the incident in question was the driver's second offense;
>
> 3. That the pupil was harmed as a result of foreseeable danger; and
> 4. That the driver acted with gross negligence.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(b).]

Student-transportation regulations provide that "[a] student is considered to have been left unattended on the school bus at the end of the route when the driver has left the vicinity of the bus." N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)(1).

The statutes and regulations use various terms such as "the end of the transportation route," "the end of the driver's route," "the end of the route," "the end of his route," and "vicinity of the bus," yet none of these terms is defined. Petitioner and Antoniello credibly testified that the union custom requires a visual inspection at the bus depot before securing the bus. That is the industry's implementation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28.

Respondent argues that the "end of the route" has to mean at every dropoff point, as the safety of the child is the underlying intent of the Act. To require a visual inspection only at the depot when the school bus is placed out of service places children at risk.

Respondent cites Laxo v. New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 12143-10, Initial Decision (August 10, 2011), adopted, Comm'r (September 26, 2011), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. In that case, the bus stopped at another school before returning to the depot. The district in Laxo specifically had directed that an inspection be done prior to a departure from the school in question. The facts are different here.

Respondent also cites Firman v. New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 02278-09, Initial Decision (July 26, 2010), adopted, Comm'r (September 8, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. In that case, the judge granted summary decision. However, the facts were not disputed. The driver wanted the right to cross-examine the witnesses against him. In the instant case, neither petitioner's verified certification attached to the petition nor her subsequent certification provides sufficient evidence to find that she had an obligation to visually inspect the bus at a time prior to O.S.'s departure from the bus, or that her departure from the bus to turn over a backpack was out of the vicinity of the bus.

Respondent also cites McKenney v. New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 09833-11, Initial Decision (December 28, 2012), adopted, Comm'r (February 5, 2013), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. In McKenney, the driver acknowledged leaving the child on the bus when he departed the depot. This case also is factually distinguished from the present matter. Here, petitioner denies that she violated the law, as she always remained in the vicinity of the bus and had not yet concluded her route.

Respondent cites Graham v. New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 08439-11, Initial Decision (December 15, 2011), adopted, Comm'r (January 30, 2012), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. This case also is factually distinguished from the present matter. The driver in Graham acknowledged leaving the child on the bus when he departed the bus depot, and was looking for leniency for the unfortunate circumstances, blaming the incident on his aide, claiming he had performed a visual inspection. These are not acceptable defenses that warranted a hearing.

Of note, respondent cites Klein v. New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 00852-11, Initial Decision (January 5, 2012), rejected, Comm'r (February 21, 2012), in support of its position that the Commissioner has determined that an inspection at the "end of the route" means an inspection at the point where all of the children in a particular group leave the bus to enter their school and the driver moves on to her next route. In that case, the ALJ determined that the driver had not left the vicinity of the bus, despite locking the bus to go for a restroom visit in the school. On the driver's return to the bus, the driver found that a child was on the bus, in tears, locked in. The Commissioner reversed.

Factually, the Klein case is different from our case, where petitioner claims, and no credible contradictory evidence has been submitted, that she had visual contact with the bus at all times and was not more than twenty feet away. There has been no evidence that the child came to any harm or distress. In reality, the system worked. Within minutes of petitioner leaving the school grounds, the dispatcher had contacted petitioner regarding O.S.'s whereabouts. Petitioner thereafter informed the dispatcher that O.S. was on the bus and received direction to keep O.S. on the bus. Petitioner returned to the school, where O.S. was then dropped off. This must be weighed against N.J.A.C. 6A:27-12.3(a)(1), which provides, "[a] student is considered to have been left unattended on the school bus at the end of the route when the driver has left the vicinity of the bus." Klein is supported by the facts of that case. In Klein, the bus driver left the bus and went inside the school building to use the restroom. It is hard to accept that Klein stayed within the vicinity of the school bus without an expanded view of "vicinity." Here, though, petitioner constantly remained within what reasonably can be deemed the vicinity of the school bus and of O.S. She left the bus only to deliver a forgotten backpack to a teacher who was outside the school; she secured the bus; and she stayed within sight range of the bus and was back on the bus in less than a minute.

A reasonable bus driver under circumstances similar to those of this case should have the expectation that so long as he or she has not left the vicinity of the bus, the route has not ended, and the visual inspection will be performed at the point that the driver is preparing to depart the vicinity of the bus, in this case at the bus depot.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that at all times petitioner remained in the vicinity of the school bus and therefore did not leave a pupil unattended on the school bus.

I CONCLUDE that the custom of the industry required compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 by a visual inspection at the bus depot when the bus driver leaves the vicinity of the school bus.

I CONCLUDE that respondent's argument that the law requires "the end of the route" to be interpreted as after each dropoff is inapplicable to the current factual determination, as petitioner did not leave the vicinity of the school bus.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner's actions did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the petition be GRANTED in all respects.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." B.B. o/b/o M.B. Petitioners, v. ESTELL MANOR BOARD OF EDUCATION Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF NEW JERSEY OAL Docket No.: EDU 16345-14 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Settlement Agreement and General Release (the "Agreement") is entered into by and between B.B. o/b/o M.B. ("Petitioners") and the Estell Manor School District Board of Education (the "Board" or "District"), with its mailing office located at 128 Cape May Avenue, Estell Manor, New Jersey 08319, (the Board and Petitioners collectively referred to as the "Parties").

WHEREAS, M.B. is a student who attends the District; and

WHEREAS, a dispute arose regarding the findings of a Harassment, Intimidation, and Bullying investigation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15; and

WHEREAS, the parties in good faith have negotiated concerning this matter and have a desire to settle this matter in an amicable way, hereby agree as follows:

1. Petitioners will withdraw the Petition of Appeal that was filed before the New Jersey Commissioner of Education on November 24, 2014 within fifteen (15) days of the date of this agreement.

2. The school counselor shall meet with M.B. once every other week, and the school counselor or administration shall be made available to M.B. at any time upon M.B.'s request. The school counselor shall discuss with M.B. how M.B. is doing at the school and whether or not other students are treating her appropriately. Any statements or reports by M.B. to the school counselor indicating that M.B. is being, or believes she is being, mistreated, harassed, intimidated or bullied by other students will be shared by the counselor in writing to both the school principal and M.B.'s parents within 24 hours of the counselor's receipt of such information.

3. In consideration of the terms herein, Petitioners hereby release the Board, its employees and agents from all possible claims they may have or have had against the Board relating to anything that has happened up until now, regardless of the forum in which such claims may have been pursuable. In addition, Petitioners voluntarily, willingly and expressly release and hold the Board and its officials, officers, employees, agents and attorneys (collectively the "Board") harmless from any and all claims and demands for compensatory, incidental and punitive damages, attorneys' fees, costs or any other damages that may arise under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. 791 et seq. the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. 2101 et seq. and any regulations promulgated under any aforementioned laws, 42 U.S.C. 1983, or any other State or Federal Law, statute, rule or regulation or common law, contract, policy or directive, relating to anything that has occurred through the date of this agreement.

4. The Parties agree that they will not communicate the terms of this agreement to any persons or entities other than their attorneys, accountants, tax advisors, agents and/or any other individuals necessary to effectuate this settlement, and, but only with the written agreement of the other party, others whom a party may desire to advise except any evaluators, medical providers, or treating professionals. The parties may, however, produce or disclose this agreement as required by operation of law or lawful subpoena or order of Court pursuant to official discovery proceedings. If the parties are required to produce or disclose this agreement it will first advise the other parties as soon as practical. Nothing in this paragraph shall limit a party from disclosing the terms of this agreement to any evaluators or medical providers.

5. Petitioners hereby state that they are signing this Agreement voluntarily of their own free will and not under duress or coercion of any kind.

6. This Agreement is subject to Petitioners continued domicile within the District.

7. Each party shall be responsible for their own attorney's fees and expert costs and no party shall be deemed a "prevailing party" as a result of this Agreement.

8. This Agreement shall be construed fairly according to the plain language of its terms and not for or against any party hereto.

9. All parties are bound by this Agreement and each of its provisions. Anyone who succeeds to their rights and responsibilities, such as their successors and assigns are also bound. This agreement is made for the benefit of all parties hereto and all who succeed to their rights and responsibilities, and expressly includes their officials, representatives, employees, agents, attorneys, successors or assigns.

10. This Agreement constitutes the full and complete agreement of the parties hereto with respect to its subject matter, it supersedes any prior or contemporaneous representations, whether oral or written, and it may not be modified or amended except by a written instrument signed by all parties hereto.

11. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey. The Parties agree that the courts of the State or District Court of New Jersey shall be the sole forum in which any legal action concerning or relating to this agreement shall be brought.

12. In the event that any provision of this contract is held to be void or unenforceable by any court or regulatory authority having jurisdiction thereof, such ruling will not affect the validity of this contract; the remaining provisions shall continue to be in full force and effect.

13. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement of the Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and supersedes all prior written or oral and all contemporaneous oral agreements, understandings, and negotiations.

14. This Agreement may be executed in one or more original, emailed or telecopied counterparts, all of which together shall be one instrument, and all of which shall be considered duplicate originals.

15. This Agreement may only be amended in writing by way of a document signed by all Parties and counsel.

IN WITNESS HEREOF, the parties have set their hands this____ day of_____ 2015.

The Irvington School District filed tenure charges against Joseph Trawick, Respondent, on February 23, 2015, alleging conduct unbecoming. I, Edmund Gerber, was appointed arbitrator in accordance with the procedures of the New Jersey Department of Education. An arbitration hearing was scheduled to for May 4, 5 and 6 2015. On May 1, 2015 Counsel for the Petitioner and Respondent jointly requested that the hearing be adjourned as the parties had entered into a tentative Settlement Agreement which was subsequently ratified by the School District on July 28, 2015. See Attachment.

The charges against the Respondent alleged that:

The Respondent holds the certification of a Teacher of Health and Physical Education.

On or about Friday, October 10, 2014 the mother of student C reported that her son was attacked by his classmates during gym class. Allegedly, Respondent had told his students to "get him" as C was running in circles around the gym. The students chased C, took his shoes and socks and one student bit him.

The District conducted an investigation into the complaint and ultimately filed the instant tenure charges.

CONSENT AWARD

Accordingly, in exchange for the mutual agreements, promises and covenants set forth herein and as contained in the attachment to this Award, the Tenure Charges brought by The School District of the Irvington, Essex County and issued against Respondent Joseph Trawick are hereby dismissed. I am satisfied that the settlement and dismissal of this matter complies with the public interest, including the welfare of the students of the Irvington School District. This Consent Award is final and binding upon the petitioner and Respondent.

SEPARATION OF SERVICE AGREEMENT

This Agreement is hereby made this 28 day of July, 2015, by and between JOSEPH TRAWICK (hereinafter "Mr. Trawick") and the IRVINGTON BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter the "Board") (collectively the "Parties").

WHEREAS, the Board is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, and is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of the Irvington Public Schools District (hereinafter "District"); and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick is employed by the Board as a tenured Physical Education; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick has been on administrative leave since Feb 19 2015 and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick shall retire from employment with District effective December 31, 2015; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick and the Board have engaged in good faith discussions concerning Mr. Trawick's future separation from employment with the Board and have reached an agreement, which they wish to memorialize herein; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick and the Board wish to fully and finally resolve any and all claims, complaints, charges and actions of any kind whatsoever, whether known or unknown, which either party may have against them as provided herein; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Trawick has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of teaching certificates; and

NOW THEREFORE, Mr. Trawick and the Board, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the Parties, agree as follows:

1. RETIREMENT: Mr. Trawick agrees to sign and submit to the Board, simultaneously with this Separation of Service Agreement, an irrevocable letter of retirement from all employment with the Board effective December 31, 2015. The letter of retirement and this Agreement shall be subject to Mr. Trawick's right to rescind pursuant to the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. 626(F)(1)(G), within seven (7) calendar days after the signing of this Agreement. If Mr. Trawick does not rescind his letter of retirement and this Agreement within seven (7) calendar days of the signing of the Agreement, his retirement and this Agreement shall be binding and irrevocable. The Board shall accept Mr. Trawick's letter of retirement simultaneously with the acceptance of this Agreement via resolution at a regular meeting of the Board.

2. CONTINGENCY: This Agreement is contingent upon immediate receipt by the Board of an irrevocable letter of resignation from Mr. Trawick effective December 31, 2015.

3. CONSIDERATION: In consideration of Mr. Trawick's retirement, the Board agrees to withdraw the tenure charges it filed against him and to take no disciplinary action against him as a result of the alleged conduct that gave rise to the tenure charges. Further, the Board agrees to provide Mr. Trawick with uninterrupted medical insurance coverage through the date of his retirement, effective December 31, 2015.

4. MEDICAL LEAVE OF ABSENCE: Upon execution of this Agreement, Mr. Trawick shall be placed on a medical leave of absence through the date of his retirement, effective December 31, 2015. During the leave period, Mr. Trawick will be compensated for any sick, vacation, and/or personal days he has accumulated as of the date of the execution of this Agreement. He will also be compensated for the sick, vacation, and/or personal days allocated to him at the start of the 2015/16 calendar school year. Once Mr. Trawick's sick, vacation, and/or personal days are exhausted, his medical leave of absence shall be "unpaid," although he will continue to receive medical benefits as specified in Paragraph 3 of this Agreement.

5. WAIVER: The Parties agree to waive any and all claims or demands which they now have or may have had against each other as of the date of the execution of this Agreement.

6. OLDER WORKER BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT OF 1990: To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990, this Agreement advises Mr. Trawick of the legal requirements of the Act, and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference to this Agreement as follows:

   a. Mr. Trawick fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement;

   b. Mr. Trawick has been advised to consult with an attorney to review the Agreement;

   c. Mr. Trawick specifically waives his right to pursue any claims under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act;

   d. Mr. Trawick does not waive any rights or claims under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act that may arise after the date of the execution of this Agreement;

e. Mr. Trawick is receiving consideration above and beyond anything of value to which he is already entitled;

f. Mr. Trawick has been given at least twenty-one (21) calendar days within which to consider this Agreement; and

g. Mr. Trawick has seven (7) calendar days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it.

7. CONFIDENTIALITY: This Agreement shall remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law and neither party shall disclose the terms of this Agreement to third parties. However, Mr. Trawick may disclose the terms of this Agreement to his immediate family, union representatives, tax advisors and attorneys, and the Department of Education, the Division of Pension and Benefits, and the Department of Labor and Workforce Development of the State of New Jersey and any related government agencies.

8. EMPLOYEE PERSONNEL FILE: The Board agrees that a copy of this Agreement will not be kept in Mr. Trawick's employee personnel file. Moreover, the Board agrees that no documents, notes, or records will be kept in employee's personnel file that relate to the tenure charges filed against him, or the underlying allegations and circumstances that gave rise to the charges.

9. GOOD FAITH AND NONDISPARAGEMENT: The Parties expressly agree that they shall act in good faith to ensure implementation of this Agreement. The Parties mutually agree to refrain from making any derogatory comments, written or oral; retaliation or disparagement, in any manner, against the other party or their families, family members, agents, officials, administrators, representatives and employees.

   The Board agrees that in the event it receives any inquiries or reference requests for Mr. Trawick, its responsive comments shall be limited to an acknowledge of his position, length of employment, salary history, and effective resignation date.

10. ENTIRE AGREEMENT: This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding between the Parties and constitutes a full and final agreement in any and all issues relating to this matter, except that the Parties reserve their right to enforce this Agreement, if necessary.

11. CHOICE OF LAW: This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

12. SEVERABILITY: If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

13. BINDING EFFECT: The Parties shall be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

14. APPROVAL: The terms and conditions of this Agreement and Mr. Trawick's irrevocable letter of retirement are subject to ratification and approval by the Board.

15. VOLUNTARY AGREEMENT: The Parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a full understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement.

16. ADMISSION OF LIABILITY: The Parties' entry into this Agreement shall not constitute nor shall it be interpreted as an admission of wrongdoing or guilt, or liability in any manner on either of the Parties' party. Any such obligation or liability on either Party's part is expressly denied. The Parties have entered into this Agreement solely to compromise disputed claims.

17. OPPORTUNITY TO CONSULT WITH COUNSEL: The Parties acknowledge that each has been given the opportunity to consult with an attorney or a representative of their own choosing with respect to this Agreement and reviewed with their attorney or representative all the terms and conditions of this Agreement prior to executing this Agreement. Each Party signs this Agreement freely and voluntarily and without coercion or duress. The Parties further acknowledge that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein and have been informed of their legal rights and obligations.

18. BREACH: If either party breaches this Agreement, the breaching party shall bear the costs of the non-breaching party of any litigation or efforts to have such breach corrected or compensated for, including, but not limited to, reasonable attorneys' fees.

19. RATIFICATION: The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

20. COBRA: Nothing contained within this Agreement shall alter Mr. Trawick's rights to continuation of health insurance through federal law, i.e. the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA") upon separation from employment with the Board, which coincides with the date that the Board shall cease providing Mr. Trawick with health insurance coverage, December 31, 2015.

21. MODIFICATIONS: This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except in writing, signed and duly authorized by all Parties.

22. EXECUTION IN COUNTERPARTS AND FACSIMILE SIGNATURES: This Agreement may be executed in two (or more) counterparts, each of which, when executed and delivered, shall be deemed to be an original, and of which counterparts, taken together, shall constitute one and the same agreement. An original signature transmitted by facsimile shall be deemed to be an original for purposes of this Agreement and for the accompanying letter of retirement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties hereunder set their hands and seals to this Agreement effective on this 1st day of June, 2015.

Introduction

This matter arises from tenure charges of inefficiency, conduct unbecoming and other just cause by the State Operated School District of the City of Newark (the District) and a May 11, 2015 referral of the tenure charges to the undersigned by the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes pursuant to P.L. 2112, c. 26.

The Tenure Charges

The Tenure Charges against Respondent contain two Charges: (1) Inefficiency and (2) Conduct unbecoming and other just cause.

In regard to the first charge, the District asserted that Respondent has:

a. Failed to implement curricular goals and objective(s).

b. Failed to design, monitor and implement systems to improve instruction.

c. Failed to evaluate teacher performance.

d. Failed to implement professional development plans for teachers.

e. Failed to effectively manage talent to improve instruction.

f. Failed to improve instructional practice through cycles of assessment and collaboration.

g. Failed to foster academic achievement.

h. Failed to create an environment of respect and rapport.

i. Failed to attain student achievement that meets or exceeds performance benchmarks or focus on achieving same.

j. Failed to contribute to the School and District.

k. Failed to grow and develop professionally.

l. Failed to demonstrate promptness and attendance.

m. Received a Partially Effective rating for the 2012-2013 School year in an annual evaluation.

n. Received an ineffective rating for the 2013-2014 School year in an annual evaluation.

In its second Charge the District restated the allegations contained in the first charge and further asserted that Respondent has demonstrated conduct unbecoming in the following manner:

a. failed to create an environment of respect and rapport within the school.

b. Failed to manage student behavior.

c. Failed to manage teaching staff employees.

d. Failed to establish and adhere to an attendance strategy for his school.

e. Was excessively absent from his school.

f. Failed to attend training sessions and professional development meetings scheduled by the District for all principals.

g. Failed to properly evaluate teaching staff employees as required by TEACHNJ, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117, et seq., and the District's policies and procedures.

h. Failed to efficiently lead the operation of the school and complete necessary administrative tasks in a timely manner, or at all, i.e. budget, lesson plans and strategic plan.

i. Failed to establish a culture of learning and mastery of the common core standards.

j. Was insubordinate and failed to follow instructions and District' policies and procedures when reporting the injury of a student.

k. Failed to abide by the District's rules and regulations regarding the administering of school.

l. Violated the District's notion of good behavior and professional conduct as a school administrator.

m. Failed to act professionally in his role as an educator and administrator.

n. Has acted in a manner that demonstrated conduct unbecoming for an administrator.

Respondent Motley filed a timely answer to charges denying the District's two Tenure Charges.

Settlement

The hearing in this matter began on June 16, 2015 in Newark, New Jersey, at which time the parties notified the undersigned of their proposed settlement of the Charges, the terms of which settlement were stated on the record. The parties thereafter provided the undersigned a copy of their fully executed Settlement Agreement for my review and approval.

At the June 16, 2015 hearing the Respondent Tony Motley (the "Charged Party") testified under oath that he understood the terms of, and freely entered into, the Settlement Agreement. The Settlement Agreement (attached) settles all of the outstanding charges filed against Respondent by the District, the Agreement – executed by both parties - reflects that Respondent entered into the Agreement with a full understanding of his rights; and that each party consented to the Settlement. Additionally, the Settlement Agreement reflects the approval of the Settlement by the District as indicated by signature of the District's General Counsel.

Approval of the Settlement is in the public interest as the parties have voluntarily entered into the Settlement and its approval avoids the expenditure of limited public resources.

Based upon such considerations, I find that the Settlement meets the standards established by the State Board of Education in the matter of In re Cardonick, State Board Decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846).

Conclusion

The Settlement of the instant Tenure Charges is Approved.

Dated: July 31, 2015

In the Matter of	:	AGENCY DKT. NO. 46-3/15
TONY MOTLEY	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX	:

The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (the "District"), whose principal office is located at 2 Cedar Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102, and its successors, assigns, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively, "School District"), and Tony Motley, residing at 1053 Bertram Terrace, Union, New Jersey 07083 ("Respondent") (collectively, the "Parties") have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following Stipulation of Settlement, which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between them in full and complete settlement of all outstanding issues as detailed below.

WHEREAS, Respondent is a tenured Principal employed by the District as a Principal; and

WHEREAS, the State-District Superintendent of the School District ("State-Superintendent") certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming to the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey, captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tony Motley and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("Tenure Charges"), primarily based upon allegations that Respondent had engaged in conduct unbecoming and inefficiency, and such charges were assigned Docket No. 46-3/15; and Respondent filed an answer opposing the charges; and the Commissioner of Education, having reviewed the charges and Respondent's answer, determined that the charges were sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in compensation, and accordingly referred the matter to Arbitrator Timothy Brown ("Arbitrator") for a hearing; and

WHEREAS, the District is an Abbot District, with stringent budget limitations and due to the uncertainty of the outcome of arbitration as well as the expenditure of resources due to multiple days of hearings with numerous witnesses, and the concern that school personnel will be removed from their educational duties and responsibilities during that time, the Parties wish to resolve this matter in accordance with the terms set forth herein rather than proceed with arbitration; and

WHEREAS, the proposed Stipulation of Settlement is in the best interest of the Parties and the public because Respondent resigns from his employment without further litigation and it avoids an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly proceedings at the expense of the public;

NOW, THEREFORE, subject to approval by the Arbitrator, in consideration for the premises and mutual covenants set forth herein, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Concurrent with the execution of this Stipulation, Respondent shall submit an irrevocable letter of resignation to the District, which shall provide for his permanent resignation from his tenured position with the District effective December 31, 2015 ("Effective Date"). (See Exhibit A to the Stipulation, a copy of Respondent's signed letter of resignation).

2. Upon final approval of the signed Stipulation by the District, and its receipt and acceptance of the Respondent's irrevocable letter of resignation, the District shall and hereby does withdraw the instant Tenure Charges. The District agrees to not pursue the subject Tenure Charges against Respondent as long as this Stipulation remains in effect and is not voided by any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction. In the event the Stipulation is voided, the District retains the right to file and consider for certification, tenure charges against Respondent, including those tenure charges which have been previously filed against him by the District, and Respondent reserves the right to defend same, except that Respondent is waiving any claims of statute of limitations.

3. Upon final approval by the Arbitrator of the signed Stipulation by the District and Respondent's irrevocable letter of resignation, Respondent will be restored to paid administrative leave effective March 4, 2015. Respondent will be paid all salary and benefits from March 4, 2015 through September 30, 2015, which shall include payment for the period of unpaid suspension (a maximum of 120 days' salary), minus all applicable taxes, withholdings and deductions.

4. The Respondent will then be placed on an unpaid leave from October 1, 2015 to December 31, 2015 and receive health benefits. On December 31, 2015, Respondent's resignation will become effective and his health benefits will cease. If at any time Respondent obtains employment with health benefits during this time, he will immediately notify the District. The District will pay Respondent all accumulated time (39 days, which is approximately $18,614.36) within 30 days of his resignation minus all applicable taxes, withholdings, deductions, and health benefit contributions.

5. This Stipulation is based upon the understanding that Respondent's separation from employment with the District, effective December 31, 2015, will be deemed a voluntary resignation in good standing. Upon inquiry from any third party to authorized employees or representatives of the District; those employees or representatives will provide no information other than to confirm Respondent's employment, position, salary and dates of employment, and state that the reason for his separation from employment was his voluntary resignation.

6. Motley also agrees to dismiss with prejudice any and all claims, law suits and/or litigation that he is a party to against the District and the State-Superintendent that are still pending in any and all courts and/or before any and all administrative agencies, execution of this Stipulation of Agreement, including but not limited to the following matters: City Association of Supervisors & Administrators v. State Operated School District of City of Newark, Case No. 01-14-0002-2372, Grievance No. 1371; Motley et al. v. State-Operated School District for the City of Newark and Anderson, Docket No. 2:14-CV-00504; City Association of Supervisors & Administrators v. State Operated School District of City of Newark, Case No. 01-14-0002-2369; and In the Matter of Tony Motley v. Newark Public School – EEOC Charge No. 524-2014-00951. Motley also agrees to file a stipulation of dismissal with any court within 14 days of approval of this Agreement by the Arbitrator. This Settlement is intended to be the final resolution of all outstanding matters and/or litigations between the District and Motley and dismissals of all actions with prejudice is a material term of this Stipulation of Agreement. If Motley fails to comply, this Stipulation of Agreement will be void.

7. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.4, et seq., Respondent has been advised that the District must refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners and that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 this matter may be referred by the Commissioner to the State Board of Examiners. Respondent has also been advised that the District is legally required to participate in any proceedings therefrom and cooperate with the State Board of Examiners. Any referral by the District to the State Board of Examiners or any participation in proceedings therefrom will not be construed by Respondent to be a violation of the terms of this Agreement.

8. As of the Effective Date, all of Respondent's rights of employment with the District, including but not limited to accrued salary, benefits, tenure and seniority, will permanently end. This paragraph will not affect, limit or preclude the Respondent from seeking or receiving any accrued salary and/or pension benefits to which she is entitled or becomes entitled by the Effective Date.

9. Respondent shall not apply for reemployment with the District at any time. If Employee does apply for reemployment with the District and is approved for employment, the terms of this Agreement shall control and shall be grounds for immediate termination of Respondent's employment.

10. Except as noted above, Respondent waives all claims of any nature against the District with regard to his employment with and/or separation from the District including fees, or other monetary relief, with the exception of workers' compensation claims.

11. Respondent expressly warrants that he will cooperate with the District, the State-District Superintendent, and counsel for defendants in defense of the matter captioned Hawthorne v. State Operated School District of the City of Newark et al., Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Essex County, Docket N. ESX-L-9150-13. The term "cooperate" in this paragraph means executing any document; providing any information, data, documents and/or testimony (deposition and/or trial) when requested by counsel; attending meetings with counsel upon request; and appearing at trial. Respondent acknowledges that the District is meeting its statutory obligation to indemnify him and provide him with a defense in the Hawthorne matter; that all defendants in that matter have a common interest in defeating the plaintiff's claims and obtaining dismissal of the action; that representation of all defendants by the same counsel serves his interests as well as those of his co-defendants; and that the waiver, release and discharge set forth is paragraph 12 below specifically applies to any claim he may have against the Released Parties or any of them, including counsel, in connection with the Hawthorne matter.

12. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 3 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Respondent hereby waives, releases and discharges any- and all claims or rights that he has or may have against the District, the State District Superintendent, its Advisory Board of Education and its Advisory Board members, and any and all other District officers, employees, representatives, agents, successors and assigns (collectively, the "Released Parties") including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief. This waiver, release and discharge includes, without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Respondent's employment with the District or separation from employment with the District. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Respondent may have regarding tenure, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, any federal or state civil rights law, any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; tile New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wages and Hours Law, unemployment compensations laws, disability benefits laws, retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law; the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution; and/or any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance; any claim based on contract, implied contract, collective bargaining agreement, tort law, personal injury, or public policy, having any bearing whatsoever on her employment by and/or termination of her employment with the District, including but not limited to any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wages, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss, except for workers compensation claims,

13. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 9 or this Agreement, it is understood and agreed that the parties are not prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commissioner, or any other federal, state or local law agency. However, should any entity, agency commission or person file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the District based upon any of the above-released claims in Paragraph 9, Respondent agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

14. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 9 of this Stipulation, Respondent does not hereby waive any right he may have to workers compensation benefits or pension benefits.

15. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, if applicable, this Stipulation of Settlement advises Respondent of the legal requirements of the Act and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Stipulation of Settlement. Accordingly, by executing this Stipulation, Respondent acknowledges that he: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Stipulation of Settlement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Stipulation of Settlement; (iii) specifically waives his right to pursue any current claims he may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given sufficient time within which to consider this Stipulation of Settlement; and (v) has 7 days from the date of the execution of this Stipulation of Settlement to revoke it. Respondent understands that he may rescind this Agreement within 7 calendar days of signing and such rescission must be in writing and delivered to counsel for the District either by hand or by certified mail within the 7 day period.

16. This agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other District employees.

17. This Stipulation, and all of its terms, are and will remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law. Respondent is expressly forbidden from discussing this Stipulation with any person, other than his accountant, tax advisor and attorney ("permitted disclosures") and any other individual or entity as necessary to implement the Stipulation or to which it is legally obligated to respond ("legally-required disclosures"). In making any permitted disclosure, Respondent agrees that it will inform the person to whom it is making the permitted disclosure that the existence and substance of this Stipulation, the settlement giving rise to this Stipulation and the sum of money paid pursuant to this Stipulation are to be held strictly confidential to the fullest extent permitted by law. Respondent specifically agrees not to discuss the nature, terms, conditions of this Stipulation with others, any representative of the media, or any past, present, or prospective employee of the District, or its agents or attorneys. Respondent understands that this provision is not a simple recital but is an important, integral part of this Stipulation. The District agrees that it will keep this Stipulation confidential to the extent permitted by law.

18. The Parties each acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Stipulation and that each is signing this Stipulation freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party, with full understanding of its terms and conditions and consents to the terms contained herein.

19. Motley agrees that he has been given a reasonable period of time of at least twenty-one (21) days within which to review and consider this Agreement prior to executing this Agreement, but Motley may waive this twenty-one (21) day period by signing the space provided at the end of this Agreement.

20. Each signatory to this Stipulation understands, acknowledges and agrees that this Stipulation constitutes the full agreement of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified, or otherwise changed in any respect whatsoever except by a duly executed writing signed on behalf of both Parties.

21. This Stipulation shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law. The Commissioner of Education and/or federal and state courts of the State of New Jersey, as applicable, shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising from, in connection with, or related to this Stipulation and that Respondent consents to both personal and subject matter jurisdiction in the aforementioned courts or before the Commissioner of Education.

22. This Stipulation may be executed in counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures hereto and thereto were upon the same instrument. Each counterpart will be deemed an original, which taken together shall constitute a single instrument. Facsimile signature or signatures in electronic Portable Document Format ("PDF") shall be construed and have the same force and effect as original signatures.

23. This Stipulation or any uncertainty or ambiguity therein shall not be construed against any party, but shall be construed as if both Parties to this Stipulation jointly prepared this Agreement.

24. Each party acknowledges that this is the entire agreement of the parties concerning the subject matter of the foregoing paragraphs, and that there are no written or oral representations, understanding or agreements directly or indirectly connected with this Stipulation.

25. Both parties agree that they will not make any statement that has, have or can be expected to have the effect of disparaging the District, the State-Superintendent, current or former District employees and the Respondent.

26. If any provision of this Stipulation is held by a court of competent jurisdiction or determined under applicable law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue and remain in full force and effect.

27. This Stipulation of Settlement is subject to the final approval of the State-District Superintendent of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark and will only become effective upon the final approval of the Superintendent. Any disapproval by the Superintendent shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter.

28. This Stipulation is subject to approval by the Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(c), and will become effective only upon approval by the Arbitrator. Counsel for the Parties shall request the Arbitrator's approval of this Agreement and each shall take any and all necessary steps to effectuate dismissal of the Tenure Charges.

This matter was initially referred to me on November 7, 2015. On November 10, 2104 the Respondent Mashore filed a Motion to Dismiss. The motion was consolidated with three other matters and referred to Arbitrator Walt DeTreux. The consolidated motion was denied in an Opinion and Award of Arbitrator DeTreux, December 23, 2014 (Dkt no. 505/14). The procedural history of this matter is set forth in that award; it is attached as Appendix A and is incorporated herein.

The matter was then referred back to me and arbitration hearings took place on June 4, 9 and 10, 2015. On July 18, 2015, both parties submitted briefs. In addition, the Respondent submitted the arbitration award of Arbitrator Scott Buchheitt, The State Operated School District and the City of Camden and Gay Brown, Agency Dkt. # 300-10/14 to me for my consideration and on July 20, 2015, the Petitioner, Camden City School District, filed a letter response urging that the Buchheitt award be disregarded by me.

FACTS

The Respondent, Leon Mashore, is a tenured Vice Principal employed by the Petitioner. His employment in the Camden School District began in September of 1992 as a seventh grade math teacher and in September of 1997 he became a Vice Principal assigned to Veterans Memorial Middle School. He remained there as a Vice Principal until August 1, 2010 when the Respondent was reassigned as a Vice Principal of the Hatch Middle School. He served as Vice Principal there through the 2010-2011 school year. In August 1, 2011, the Respondent was reassigned as Vice Principal of the Yorkship Elementary School for the upcoming school year, but ten days later he was reassigned to a Vice Principal position at the H.B. Wilson Family School and remained there for the duration of the 2011-2012 school year. Respondent was again transferred to serve as Vice Principal of Cream Elementary School for the 2012-2013 school year. In July of 2013, Respondent was once again transferred and was assigned to the Davis Elementary School and served as Vice Principal for the 2013-2014 school term effective August 2, 2013.

Prior to the Respondent's assignment to the Davis Elementary School, the State of New Jersey, pursuant to the State Intervention Statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, assumed control of the Camden City School District effective June 25, 2013. Immediately prior to the State's assumption of control of the school district, Peggy Nicolosi was appointed as the Interim Superintendent of Schools.

Beginning August 19 2013, the District conducted a convocation of principals and vice principals and on August 21, 2013, the District conducted a training session at which the Respondent was present. At this session, new evaluation rubrics used to evaluate teachers, principals and vice principals were discussed. The District presenters distributed a document describing the framework for the evaluation of principals and vice principals titled, "Attachment 1: Vice Principal Evaluation and Support in Camden City Schools 2013-2014" (Attachment 1). The document explained the new evaluation system that was to be used to evaluate principals and vice principals. It states in pertinent part:

> At the end of the school year, the Vice Principal's evaluator will review data collected during the course of the observations. The following are minimum requirements:
> Additional observations or walkthroughs may occur at any time.
> - All vice principals are required to have at least three observations a year;
> - Vice principals on corrective actions plans receive additional support and must have at least one additional observation per year;
>
> The document also states that:
> Any principal or vice principal who is rated ineffective or partially effective on the evaluation will receive additional support through a CAP (Correction Action Plan) with targeted areas of improvement and professional development for the subsequent year. Vice Principals identified as struggling at any time may be placed on a CAP. The CAP will include timelines for corrective plan and clearly delineate responsibilities of the vice principal versus the district in implementing the plan.

Further, under the heading "Summative Evaluation," Attachment 1 provides that all vice principals will receive individual professional development plans or corrective plans based upon their ratings.

Respondent testified that the presenters emphasized that if a vice principal was rated partially effective or ineffective at the end of three evaluations, he would receive a CAP.

The new evaluation instrument was approved by the Department of Education through its request for qualification process. The rubric for the evaluations had four domains: instructional leadership, internal leadership, organizational leadership and effectiveness of teacher evaluations. Each domain had sub-domains. For each sub-domain, a vice principal received one of four possible scores (ineffective, partially effective, effective or highly effective) followed by narratives entitled Evidence and Recommendations. The ratings for each sub-domain, which earn scores of 1 for ineffective to 4 for highly effective, had an overall score for each domain and ultimately an overall score for the entire evaluation. At the conclusion of the evaluation form was a section entitled Evaluator's Summary Comments.

Two former school administrators were assigned to evaluate the Respondent, Dr. Victor Gilson and Mr. Cleve Bryan. Both men had advanced educational degrees and had served as superintendents of school boards. Both men received training on how to conduct the evaluations and the specific evaluation rubric used by the District.

The Respondent's first evaluation was conducted by Gilson on January 14, 2014. Respondent's overall rating was 1.51 - Ineffective. Gilson had a post-evaluation conference with the Respondent at which Gilson stressed that the Respondent should focus his efforts on completing teacher evaluations with specific recommendations as to data utilization and the District's walkthrough form.

The Respondent's second evaluation was also conducted by Gilson and occurred on March 24, 2014. Respondent received a score of 2.24 - Partially Effective. The evaluation included summary comments as to how Respondent could be more effective and Gilson had a post-evaluation conference with Respondent in which Gilson gave advice to the respondent as to how he could be more effective.

The Respondent's third evaluation was conducted by Bryan on June 12, 2014. The Respondent received a score of 2.36 - Partially Effective. Bryan and the Respondent had a post-evaluation conference on June 12, 2014 and a summative evaluation conference on June 24, 2014 in which the scores for the three evaluations were reviewed and both Dr. Gilson and Respondent signed the summative evaluation.

Although the Respondent was never evaluated higher than partially effective he never received a Corrective Action Plan or a fourth evaluation as per Attachment 1.

Nicolosi testified that the recommendations in the Respondent's three evaluations contained substantive advice as to how to become more effective and were effectively a CAP. However, Bryan testified that, at the evaluators meetings with the District's administrators, the evaluators were told that they could include recommendations for corrective action in their evaluations but were not to prepare Corrective Action Plans (CAPs). Although an ineffective or partially effective evaluation would warrant a CAP (T2, P419 L1-11) someone else was going to do the CAP (T2, P 417, L1-10 & T2, P 437, L1-13).

On July 31, 2014, the District served the Respondent with tenure charges for inefficiency pursuant to the State Intervention Law. On August 27, 2014, the Respondent submitted an answer to the charge. On October 21, 2014, the District certified the charges to the Commissioner of Education and on October 27, 2014, the Respondent submitted an answer to the certified charges.

ARGUMENTS

Position of the Petitioner

The Instrument and Process Used to Evaluate Respondent Produced Fair, Unbiased and Reliable Results. The instrument used to evaluate principals and vice principals in the school district was fair, unbiased, reliable and had the tendency to produce actionable feedback. The Respondent offered no credible evidence to discredit the instrument and process used to evaluate vice principals during the 2013-2014 school year.

The inefficiency charges against Respondent were timely filed under the State Intervention Law. The assessment cycle did not conclude until the charges were certified to the Commissioner on October 8, 2014, 16 months after the cycle began on June 25, 2013.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(c) only requires a State District Superintendent to wait until after a 12 month assessment cycle to dismiss a tenured administrator for inefficiency. Pursuant to the unchallenged testimony of Dr. Fisicaro, in June 2013, immediately around the time of the State intervention, the school graded the office of evaluation which was a unit designated to assess principals and vice principals in the District. Accordingly, the Camden Office of Evaluation was the assessment unit referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(b). The creation of that assessment unit marked the commencement of the assessment cycle for principals and vice principals in the school district.

The State Operated School District evaluated the Respondent three times throughout the school year. Not until after those three evaluations as well as a summative evaluation did the Sate District Superintendent serve Respondent with inefficiency charges on July 21, 2014. The assessment cycle did not conclude until the State District Superintendent certified the charges to the Commissioner on October 13, 2014, 16 months after the commencement of the assessment cycle. Accepting Respondent's argument to the contrary regarding the extent of the assessment cycle would negate the intent of the State Intervention Law. The continuity of instruction for students would have been significantly disrupted if the school district had been forced to wait until sometime in the middle of the 2014-2015 school year to file inefficiency charges against the Respondent. The District would have been forced to keep an inefficient vice principal in a school for part of the school year and then find a new vice principal in the middle of the school year. The framers of the State Intervention Law could not have intended for such an absurdly harsh and detrimental interpretation of the time requirements. There are no regulations presently in effect guiding the interpretation of the State Intervention Law, nor is there current pertinent case law that can be used as guidance. The only reasonable interpretation is that the assessment cycle commenced upon creation of the Camden Office of Evaluation and concluded upon certification of the charges against Respondent to the Commissioner of Education.

A formal corrective action plan was not required. The State Intervention statute is silent on the issue of Corrective Action Plans. Moreover, although the TEACHNJ procedural evaluation requirements do not apply to this matter, formal corrective Action Plans under TEACHNJ are required only for the staff member who will be employed the following school year. See N.J.A.C. 2A:10-2.5(a). An individual cannot be placed on a Corrective Action Plan for the next year if he is dismissed under the State Intervention Statute. In regards to the document entitled Vice Principal Evaluation and Support in Camden City Public Schools 2013-2014 (Attachment 1) which was distributed to the Respondent and other vice principals, it makes no mention that a formal Corrective Action Plan would be implemented during the 2013-2014 school year. The section entitled Corrective Action Plan specifically states:

> Any principal or vice principal who is rated ineffective or partially effective on the evaluation will receive additional support through a CAP with targeted areas for improvement and professional development for the subsequent year. VPs identified as struggling at any time may be placed on a CAP. The CAP will include timelines for corrective action and clearly delineate responsibilities of the VP versus the District in implementing the plan. If a Vice Principal is dismissed pursuant to the applicable State Intervention Law.

As Ms. Nicolosi indicated, obviously the Respondent could not be placed on a CAP for the subsequent year. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the recommendations contained in Respondent's evaluations equate anything that would have been in a formal Corrective Action Plan. Thus, a formal CAP would have been superfluous.

Respondent was provided with multiple recommendations which if implemented would have placed him in the effective or highly effective range by the time of his third evaluation. He simply chose to ignore them. The inefficiency charges against Respondent must be sustained as the school district has proven he is both unwilling and unable of being an effective vice principal. The law requires prompt removal of ineffective principals and vice principals. One of the goals of the State Intervention Statue was to allow the State District Superintendent to remove ineffective administrators and supervisors early in the process of rebuilding and revitalizing the failing school district. Respondent failed woefully in all categories of an effective vice principal. Respondent's inability and lack of effort as a vice principal were apparent from the start. Respondent's inefficiency warrants termination which is the only appropriate remedy. The State Intervention Statue provides that the State District Superintendent may dismiss any tenured building principal or vice principal for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(c). The policy behind the statue is to allow the efficient removal of incapable administrators to reform a failing school district. It does not contemplate any penalty short of dismissal.

Here, the Respondent knew or should have known the expectations for the 2013-2014 school year and failure to meet those expectations could result in termination. He was notified early in the process that he needed to do more to support teachers and implement data driven instruction but failed to do so. The Respondent has been a Vice Principal since 1997. At this point in his career, there is no reason he should be learning on the job. It is unacceptable to allow a barely partially effective vice principal to hold a school back from implementing the high level instructional practices the students of Camden so desperately need. A change in leadership is necessary. Respondent must be dismissed.

Respondent's Argument

The Petitioner failed to implement a CAP as required by its own process and by TEACH NJ and its implementing regulations. Arbitrator DeTreux set out the legal framework under which this matter must be examined in his decision on the consolidate motions to dismiss. Arbitrator DeTreux concluded that the intervention statute N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 and TEACHNJ N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117, et. seq. both apply. They must be read in concert. If this were not a State Operated School District, under TEACHNJ the tenure dismissal proceedings could only have occurred upon the completion of an evaluation cycle encompassing two full school years. However, because the Petitioner is a State Operated School District, Arbitrator DeTreux concluded that tenure dismissal may occur after the completion of an evaluation cycle of not less than twelve months prior to the filing of any dismissal action on the grounds of inefficiency. As determined by Arbitrator DeTreux, the criteria referenced in the Intervention Statute are those found in TEACHNJ.

A former regulation in N.J.A.C. 6:7-1.1 which authorized a state District Superintendent to establish an assessment unit which shall conduct onsite evaluations. The regulation stated that members of the assessment unit were to carry out no less than three evaluations within an assessment cycle of not less than twelve months. The Respondent argues that the assessment unit is in place only when the assessors are in place as held in State Operated School District of the City of Newark v. Brownlee, 1998 WL 665, 967 decided January 7, 1998 OAL Dkt. # EDU3634-97.

The Respondent cites the language of the handout given to the Respondent in the summer of 2013 entitled Attachment 1: Vice Principal and Support in Camden City Public Schools, 2013-2014. The document expressly states that a corrective Action Plan (CAP) will be given to any principal or vice principal who is rated ineffective or partially effective and the CAP will include timelines for corrective action and clearly delineate responsibilities of the vice principal versus the district in implementing the plan. It further provides that vice principals or principals identified as struggling at any time may be placed on a CAP. The last paragraph of the document states: "the State District Superintendent, after completion of an evaluation period of not less than 12 months may dismiss any tenured principal or assistant principal for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause as defined by the criteria for principal and vice principal performance." The Petitioner has offered no explanation as to why this last provision obviates the rest of the document which is what the Petitioner has contended. It has not offered any explanation as to why the corrective action component of Attachment 1 does not apply; why the requirement that principals and vice principals who received less than satisfactory evaluations not be given additional support as set forth in Attachment 1.

The Petitioner seeks to rewrite the history of the document. It wants to ignore the history of its own people who insist that the State take over authored the document with the purpose of advising principals and vice principals about the evaluation process during the State takeover. If the rest of the document is inapplicable as the Petitioner asserts, why was it distributed to the principals and vice principals at the completion of explaining the new evaluation process for the 2013-2014 school year, the first year of the takeover? Why not state clearly and unequivocally that neither the CAP, nor professional development on rubrics, nor additional evaluations matter?

The process that the Petitioner set out for itself in Attachment 1 comports with the process in TEACHNJ N.J.S.A. 18A:6-128. Part of TEACHNJ, speaks to the need to provide professional development, as well as corrective action plans, both of which are intended to foster better student achievement through better teaching practices. Subsection (b) of the statute provides that additional professional development is to be offered to any teaching staff member who "fails ... to meet the performance standards established by the Board, as documented in the teaching staff member's annual summative evaluation." The additional professional development is "designed to correct the needs identified in the annual summative evaluation." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-128(b). The statute mandates that when an employee is rated ineffective or partially effective, a corrective action plan be provided that includes "timelines for corrective action and responsibilities of the teaching staff member and the school district for implementation of the plan." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-128(b). N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5, part of the TEACHNJ regulations, also addresses the need for a CAP for teaching staff members rated ineffective or partially effective on their annual summative evaluation. The regulation states that a CAP shall be developed jointly by the teaching staff member and his or her supervisor. The CAP can be implemented at any time, even after one evaluation.

The tenure charges are procedurally defective requiring dismissal. It is clear that for a teaching staff member to achieve tenure, he or she must meet the precise conditions set forth in the statute. If the precise conditions of the statute have to be met to achieve tenure, it follow that the same requirements must be met to remove tenure.

The charges must be dismissed because the Petitioner did not provide Respondent with a CAP or an additional evaluation or additional professional development or support as was required under its own framework of the evaluation process as set forth in Exhibit R-11.

Both Ms. Nicolosi and Dr. Gilson testified that the recommendations listed in the evaluations constituted the CAP. However, that argument does not comply with the requirements of Exhibit R-11, nor does it comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-128 or the regulations found in N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5. The burden is upon the District to provide a CAP. See The Tenure Hearing of La Rhonda Ragland and the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Dkt. # 285-9/14, February 2, 2013.

The Petitioner failed to provide an assessment of not less than 12 months before it filed the within charges.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 states in part that:

> Upon appointment, the State district superintendent may establish an assessment unit to conduct on-site evaluations of each building principal and vice-principal in accordance with the criteria established by the commissioner and render evaluation reports to the State district superintendent. No less than three evaluations shall be performed for each building principal and vice principal within 18 months following the establishment of the school district under full state intervention.

The statute provides State operated school districts up to 6 months from State takeover to establish an assessment unit comprised of assessment evaluators over an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months prior to the filing of tenure charges for inefficiency against a principal or vice principal. In State Operated School District of the City of Newark v. Brownlee, supra, the administrative law judge held that if an assessment unit was not in place for a minimum of twelve months, the statutory requirement could not be fulfilled. It was specifically held that the appointment of the first assessor evaluator triggered the start of the twelve month cycle.

Respondent argues that the State takeover occurred on June 25, 2013 but the district superintendent was not appointed until August 21, 2013 and the District did not hire Dr. Gilson, Respondent's lead and primary evaluator, until December 2013. The Respondent first was notified by an email on December 5, 2013 that Dr. Gilson would be his evaluator. An evaluation did not take place until January 14, 2014. The District served the Respondent with tenure charges of inefficiency and placed him on suspension on July 31, 2014. The District certified the tenure charges for inefficiency on October 9, 2014. Even assuming arguendo that the assessment cycle completed on the date that he District certified the charges, October 9, 2014, the District still did not provide the Respondent an assessment cycle of not less than twelve months. That cycle could not have begun until Dr. Gilson, his lead and primary evaluator was hired which did not occur until December 2013. Evening assuming the assessment cycle began with the hiring of Dr. Bryan. That hire did not occur until November 2013, so the District would still be out of compliance. Accordingly, the charges must be dismissed.

DISCUSSION

Although the Petitioner argues that since the District is subject to the state intervention statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, the procedural requirements of TEACHNJ do not apply in this matter, Arbitrator DeTreux ruled that the intervention statute 18A:7A-45 and TEACHNJ 18A:6-117, et. seq. both apply. It is the law of the case that they must be read in concert. Significantly, the State intervention statute makes no mention of procedures for evaluations but N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.2 which defines my authority as arbitrator makes specific reference to Corrective Action Plans.

N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.2. "Considerations for arbitrator in rendering a decision" provides in pertinent part:

> 23. a. In the event that the matter before the arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of this act is employee inefficiency pursuant to section 25 of this act, in rendering a decision the arbitrator shall only consider whether or not:
> (1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere to the evaluation process, including but not limited to providing a corrective action plan
> (4) the district's actions were arbitrary and capricious.
> b. In the event that the employee is able to demonstrate that any of the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (4) are applicable, the arbitrator shall then determine if that fact materially affected the outcome of the evaluation. If the arbitrator determines that that it did not materially affect the outcome of the evaluation, the arbitrator shall render a decision in favor of the board and the employee shall be dismissed.

No distinction is made in 18A:6-17.2,23. a(1) as to whether the employee is in a state administered school district. By the statute's plain language, a district's failure to provide a CAP is a failure to adhere to the evaluation process and may be grounds to deny a charge of inefficiency.

A CAP was never provided to the respondent. Although Nicolosi testified that the recommendations and comments included in the Respondents three evaluations effectively constituted a CAP, the District's own evaluator, Cleve Bryan testified that the evaluators were told not to prepare CAPs. Someone other than the evaluators were going to do CAPs for those vice principals who failed to attain an effective rating. The comments and recommendation contained in the evaluations were only to be used to help construct a CAP.

Further, the Board promulgated Attachment 1 which states several times that vice-principals who were rated as less than effective would be given a CAP and further, if necessary, those employees would be evaluated a fourth time. The Respondent was never afforded a fourth evaluation.

In the State's apparent haste to assume control of the school district, Attachment 1 was prepared with several inconsistencies; it drew from portions of Title 18 and the Department of Education's regulation which contemplate a two year cycle in which to bring tenure charges against vice principals, even though, as a State controlled District, the evaluation period is a twelve month cycle. It is evident that the District's own administrators did not understand what procedural rights are enjoyed by vice principals and what is required of administrators.

By both the terms of Section a (1) and the failure of the District to follow its own published procedures, the Petitioner failed to adhere to the evaluation process within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2. Section 23, a (1). I must therefore determine if this failure, "materially affected the outcome of the evaluation" as per N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2. Section 23, b.

I don't question the findings of the District's evaluators that the Respondent was not an efficient administrator, but I cannot say that, even if the respondent would have been provided with a CAP, such assistance would not have materially affected his performance to the extent that he would have been rated effective. Looking at his evaluations during the 2013,-2014 school year, the Respondent went from a ratings of 1.51 (ineffective) on January 14, 2014 to 2.36 (partially effective) on June 12, 2014, five months later. A score above 2.70 would have given the respondent an overall "effective" evaluation. The responded made demonstrable improvement in his performance during the evaluation period, so granting him additional guidance through a CAP might have enabled him to sufficiently improve his performance to achieve an effective rating, but it is impossible to say with certainty. Nevertheless, the burden is upon the District to demonstrate that full adherence to the evaluation process would not have materially affected the outcome of the Respondent's final evaluation; the Petitioner failed to do so.

See also, The Matter of the State Operated School District and the City of Camden and Gay Brown, Agency Dkt. # 300-10/14, Arbitrator Scott Buchheitt failed to sustain tenure charges and found that this same Petitioner's failure to adhere to its own evaluation and support system (as set forth in Atachment1) prior to bringing tenure charges against Gay Brown was arbitrary and capricious.

It is also noted that, as argued by the Respondent, the strict accountability standards that are required of teachers, must be reciprocal. The District cannot promulgate rules and procedures and then simply choose to ignore them. Such action is arbitrary and capricious. There was clear confusion among the administrative staff as to the procedures for evaluations and the burden is upon the Employer to follow its own promulgated plan.

Based upon all of the foregoing, the Petitioner failed to prove its case. I will dismiss the tenure charges against the Respondent. I will also order that he be reinstated with all back pay and emoluments owed. [1]

AWARD

The tenure charges against the Respondent are dismissed. He will be reinstated with all back pay and emoluments owed.

Introduction and Statement of Relevant Facts

On June 25, 2013, the State of New Jersey assumed operation of the Camden City School District pursuant to the State Intervention Statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45. As part of the takeover, the State District Superintendent directed an evaluation of each building principal and vice-principal during the 2013-14 school year. The State-appointed officials employed an evaluation instrument, approved by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, that was intended to comply with the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act ("TEACHNJ") evaluation criteria, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123, and its related regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:10-1.1 et seq.

The principals and vice-principals were evaluated in four domains – instructional leadership, cultural leadership, organizational leadership; and effectiveness of teacher evaluation. In each area, the administrators were scored "ineffective," "partially effective," "effective," or "highly effective." The ratings earned a score of 1 ("ineffective") to 4 ("highly effective"). The scores were averaged for a total score on the 1 to 4 scale with a corresponding rating.

During the 2013-14 school year, principals and vice-principals in the Camden City School District were evaluated three times. Respondents Mashore, E. Brown, G. Brown, and Medley received ratings of "ineffective" or "partially effective." After the conclusion of the school year, the State District Superintendent brought tenure charges against Respondents, seeking their removal for inefficiency. The Commissioner of Education found that the charges, if proven, are sufficient to warrant dismissal and referred the case of each Respondent to an Arbitrator for a tenure hearing.[1]

On November 7, 2014, prior to receipt of the Commissioner's assignment of the Mashore case to Arbitrator Edmund Gerber, Counsel for Respondent Mashore filed a Motion To Dismiss, arguing that the tenure charges "were defective and premature in that such charges were not based on a two-year evaluative cycle pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and were not preceded by the issuance of a corrective action plan as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5." In short, Respondent asserted that the District did not comply with the legal requirements of TEACHNJ regarding evaluations.

[1] The tenure case of Brian Medley was referred to Arbitrator Joseph Licata; the case of Edward Brown to Arbitrator James Mastriani; the case of Leon Mashore to Arbitrator Edmund Gerber, and the case of Gay Brown to Arbitrator Walt De Treux.

The Commissioner's referral of the Mashore case to Arbitrator Gerber overlapped Respondent Mashore's motion. Counsel for Respondents Medley, E. Brown, and G. Brown indicated their intention to file similar motions in each Respondent's case, leading to several discussions between Counsel for Respondents and Petitioner, the four assigned Arbitrators, and the Commissioner's office.

For purposes of judicial economy and efficiency and to achieve uniformity regarding the resolution of what would be identical motions in four separate cases, Respondents and Petitioner agreed to treat the Mashore Motion To Dismiss as a consolidated motion, applicable to each of the four tenure cases, to be decided by one Arbitrator. The parties executed a consent order encompassing that agreement and submitted it to the Arbitrators and the Department of Education's Division of Disputes and Controversies.

The parties submitted written briefs in support and opposition to the Motion To Dismiss. Oral argument was heard on the motion on December 2, 2014, and Respondents filed a reply brief and Petitioner a sur-reply brief soon thereafter. The Motion was then submitted to the Arbitrator for a decision.

Issue

Should Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the tenure charges be granted or denied?

Analysis and Decision

Procedural Objection

In its Brief In Opposition to Respondents' Motion To Dismiss, Petitioner raised several procedural objections. First, it argues that the motion is untimely in that the Mashore motion was not "filed with the time allotted for the filing of an Answer." (citing N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(a)(1)) Second, it contends that a motion to dismiss cannot be filed after the Commissioner has referred the charges to an Arbitrator. Finally, it asserts that the American Arbitration Association Labor Arbitration Rules do not allow for submission and consideration of dispositive motions.

The four cases present a novel legal argument and complex procedural concerns in that each of the four cases had been referred to a different Arbitrator. As identical motions would have been filed in each case, there was the likelihood of four different outcomes, beginning with the question of whether each individual arbitrator would have entertained a Motion To Dismiss or would have addressed Respondents' legal argument only after a hearing on the merits. Depending on the Arbitrators' rulings on the motion or on the ultimate issue of whether the tenure charge should be sustained, the parties would have been faced with the decision to appeal each case individually or to consolidate the cases for appeal. The possibility of different motion and hearing procedures and of different outcomes hardly presented a model of judicial economy and efficiency.

For that reason, the parties wisely agreed to consolidate the Motion To Dismiss before one Arbitrator. And for that reason, Petitioner's procedural objections to the Motion are misplaced. If the Motion To Dismiss is denied for procedural reasons, Respondents still have the opportunity to raise the substantive challenges asserted in the Motion at the tenure hearings before each Arbitrator. Respondents would argue to the Arbitrators that the tenure charges "were defective and premature in that such charges were not based on a two-year evaluative cycle pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and were not preceded by the issuance of a corrective action plan as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5." The parties would once again be faced with the possibility of four separate outcomes related to a common issue in each of the four cases – the very result they were trying to avoid by consolidating the Motion before one Arbitrator.

For that reason alone, I find that the Consent Order waives any procedural argument to the Motion To Dismiss.

Moreover, the Petitioner's procedural objections are without merit. Respondent Mashore's Motion To Dismiss was, in effect, a motion for summary decision since he had already filed an Answer. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides that the Commissioner may decide a motion for summary decision prior to referral of the case to an Arbitrator. Respondent Mashore filed his Motion on November 7, 2014, three calendar days before receiving notice of the Commissioner's referral of the case to Arbitrator Gerber. The Motion and referral may have "crossed in the mail,"

but at least at the time Mashore filed the Motion, he had not been advised that his case had been referred to an Arbitrator. Accordingly, his motion was not untimely.

As Petitioner has agreed to consolidate the remaining three cases with the Mashore case for purposes of deciding identical motions that would have been filed in each case, it cannot now argue that the Motion is untimely in those three cases.

Finally, the AAA Labor Arbitration Rules may not specifically provide for dispositive motions; but it is within the Arbitrator's discretion to allow such motions. In the present tenure cases, the four Arbitrators acknowledged and, in effect, affirmed the parties' agreement to allow the Mashore Motion to Dismiss to be applicable to all four cases.

For these reasons, the Petitioner's procedural objections are without merit.

State Intervention Statute and TEACHNJ

The State Intervention Statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, first effective January 1988, allows the state to essentially take over a school district that is not providing a "thorough and efficient" education for its students. The state-appointed officials are charged with making sweeping changes to reverse the failed course of the district. To that end, the State District Superintendent is authorized to remove administrators and supervisors after s/he has the opportunity to evaluate their effectiveness or lack thereof.

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(b) requires principals and vice-principals to be evaluated a minimum of three times within the first 18 months after the state-operated school district has been established. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(c) provides, in relevant part,

> "Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the State district superintendent, after the completion of an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months, may dismiss any tenured building principal or vice-principal for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause as defined by the criteria for principal or vice-principal performance in districts under full State intervention established by subsection a. of this section...

Accordingly, principals and vice-principals in a state-operated school district can face tenure charges after a minimum of three evaluations in an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45(a) requires that the evaluations be based on criteria adopted by the Commissioner of Education.

As Respondents note, neither the statute nor the current regulations provide defined criteria for the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in a state operated school district. In the present case, Timothy Matheney, Chief Intervention Officer for the New Jersey Department of Education, was tasked with approving an evaluation instrument and criteria for principals and vice-principals in the Camden City School District after it became subject to state intervention. The evaluation instrument developed under his supervision "was intended to comply" with the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria, i.e., the four cited domains – instructional leadership, cultural leadership, organizational leadership, and effectiveness of teacher evaluation – on a 1 to 4 scale from "ineffective" to "highly effective." The New Jersey Department of Education's Office of Evaluation approved the evaluation instrument and criteria.

Respondents seize upon the District's use of the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria to argue that evaluation of principals and vice-principals in a state-operated school district must be governed by TEACHNJ and its requirement for a two-year assessment cycle and a corrective action plan.

TEACHNJ, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117, et seq., effective August 2012, revised the process for removing ineffective teachers from the classroom. Under TEACHNJ, districts could file tenure charges against ineffective teachers after a two-year evaluation period and a corrective action plan. In the case of I/M/O Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Sandra Cheatham and the School District of the City of Newark, Agency Dkt. #226-8/14, Arbitrator Bluth held that the TEACHNJ evaluation criteria set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.1 applied to teachers in all districts, including state-operated school districts. Respondents contend that the TEACHNJ evaluation process must be extended to principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

TEACHNJ does not specifically reference the State Intervention Statutes as it applies to the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts. By its terms, it does not supersede the State Intervention Statute. Respondents nonetheless argue that TEACHNJ replaces the evaluation process outlined in the intervention statute for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

The State Intervention Statute requires three evaluations and an assessment cycle of not less than 12 months for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts, "notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract." The legislature chose not to specifically override that provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 when it passed TEACHNJ. Accordingly, the State Intervention Statute and TEACHNJ have to be read in concert.

One of the goals of the State Intervention Statute was to allow the State District Superintendent to remove ineffective administrators and supervisors early in the process of rebuilding and revitalizing the failing district. Extending the assessment cycle for principals and vice-principals from "no less than 12 months" to 2 years would be a significant departure from the goal of the intervention statute. It is unlikely the legislature would enact such significant change without clearly stating so in the TEACHNJ statute.

Arbitrator Bluth found that the 2-year TEACHNJ evaluation period applied to teachers in state-operated school districts. The State Intervention Statute does not address the evaluation of teachers, so the Arbitrator's ruling was not an affirmation that TEACHNJ supersedes the intervention statute. Further, TEACHNJ dramatically revised teacher evaluations in a way that the new criteria allowed for more effective removal of ineffective teachers. Applying the 2-year assessment cycle to principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts would result in an arguably less effective removal process than currently permitted by the State Intervention Statute. Again, if the legislature so intended, it would be expected to specifically reference such a significant change in the evaluation process.

Absent specific language in TEACHNJ superseding N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, one must conclude that the legislature did not intend to change the evaluation process for principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts.

Petitioner's utilization of an evaluation instrument intended to comply with the TEACHNJ criteria to evaluate principals and vice-principals does not mandate that Petitioner adopt all aspects of the TEACHNJ evaluation process, such as the 2-

year assessment cycle. The intervention statute instructs that the Commissioner adopt the evaluation criteria. In the present cases, the Commissioner adopted the criteria from TEACHNJ. The adoption of criteria developed pursuant to another statute does not remove the evaluation of principals and vice-principals in state-operated school districts from the State Intervention Statute, particularly when the legislature has not expressly overridden the provisions of the intervention statute.

For these reasons, I find that Petitioner properly brought tenure charges against Respondents for inefficiency pursuant to the provisions of the State Intervention Statute as it relates to the number of evaluations and the length of the assessment cycle.

Corrective Action Plan and Alleged Non-Compliance with the 12-Month Assessment Cycle

Respondents also argue, either in their brief and/or reply brief, that Respondents were not trained in the evaluation rubrics as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.2 and were never given a correction action plan as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5. Petitioner counters that Respondents had notice of the criteria by which they were to be evaluated as early as June 25, 2013 and were provided feedback and the opportunity to improve.

Additionally, at oral argument and in their reply brief, Respondents argue that Petitioner violated the requirement in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 that tenure charges of inefficiency may only be filed after "not less that a 12 month assessment cycle." Respondents assert that Petitioner filed charges before the 12-month period had lapsed. Petitioner first objects to Respondents raising this matter for the first time in their reply brief, and it counters the argument by asserting that it has complied with the 12-month assessment cycle requirement.

These issues – notice of the evaluation criteria, the imposition of a corrective action plan, if required, and/or the opportunity for feedback and improvement, and compliance with the timeline for filing tenure charges after an assessment period – raise genuine issues of material fact that can only be resolved through an arbitration hearing on the merits of the charges. As the parties dispute the facts giving rise to their arguments, the arguments cannot be disposed of through the present Motion To Dismiss.

Award

Respondents' Motion To Dismiss tenure charges is denied. The cases shall proceed to hearing before the assigned Arbitrators. Pursuant to the parties' Consent Order, the undersigned hereby withdraws from the Gay S. Brown case, and the Department shall appoint a new arbitrator to hear the matter.

Dear Counsel:

I have considered the papers filed in connection with the respondents' request for interlocutory review of Administrative Law Judge Joan Bedrin Murray's July 24, 2015 discovery order and July 27, 2015 denial of Respondents' motion for summary decision. Upon full consideration of all of the submitted materials, I have determined to grant the respondents' request for interlocutory review of ALJ Bedrin Murray's July 27, 2015 denial of respondents' motion to dismiss/motion for summary decision.

Please be further advised that I have determined not to grant interlocutory review of ALJ Bedrin Murray's July 24, 2015 discovery order, pursuant to my discretion under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10. Accordingly, the respondents' request for interlocutory review of the July 24, 2015 discovery order is hereby denied.* The discovery order shall remain stayed until a ruling on interlocutory review is issued.

* Pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1), Commissioner decisions are appealable to the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

Any party opposed to the grant of interlocutory review may, within three days of receipt of this notice, submit in writing arguments in favor of the order or ruling being reviewed. N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(d).

Thereafter, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(e), I will issue a ruling no later than 20 days from receiving the request for review.

APPEARANCES

FOR THE BOARD

Brenda C. Liss, Esq., Riker Danzig Scherer Hyland Perritti, LLP

FOR THE RESPONDENT

Kathleen Naprstek Cerisano, Esq., Zazzali Fagella Nowak Kleinbaum & Friedman, PC

BACKGROUND

On November 19, 2014, the undersigned issued his decision I/M/O/ Tenure Charge Neil Thomas, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District") (Agency Docket No. 244-9/14) dismissing a Charge of Inefficiency brought under Section 25 of TEACHNJ. On or about March 24, 2015, the School District filed an Amended Charge of Inefficiency with the Commissioner under Section 8 of TEACH NJ.

On April 8, 2015, the Respondent filed a Motion for Summary Judgment. On April 10, 2015, the District submitted its preliminary response to the motion. On April 13, 2015, the Commissioner referred the charge to the arbitrator "to handle as he deems appropriate."

Subsequently, on May 19, 2015, the District filed its Opposition to the Motion for Summary Judgment. At the same time, the District filed a motion with the Commissioner requesting a stay of this matter pending its appeal to the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, challenging, inter alia, the assignment of the Amended Inefficiency Charge to arbitration. On May 28, 2015, the Respondent submitted his letter-brief in Opposition to the Motion for a Stay of the Commissioner's Decision to refer the instant matter to the undersigned arbitrator. On June 1, 2015, the District submitted a reply to the Respondent's letter- brief.

By letter dated June 4, 2015, the Commissioner determined that he "lacks jurisdiction to hear and decide petitioner's Motion for Stay Pending Appeal. This determination shall not preclude the parties from seeking the desired relief before the arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b)."

On June 15, 2015, the Respondent submitted his reply to the District's Opposition to Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment.

On June 17, 2015, the District renewed its request that the arbitrator "hold this matter in abeyance pursuant to N.J.A.C 6A:3-5.5 (l)(b) until our appeal of the Commissioner's action, referring this matter to arbitration is resolved ..." On June 22, 2015, the Respondent submitted his Opposition to the District's request to stay the matter.

On July 2, 2015 the District advised the Arbitrator that it "hereby withdraws the tenure charge of inefficiency against Respondent Neil Thomas in its entirety." By letter dated July 8, 2015, the District was "advised that N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 requires the approval of the arbitrator for withdrawal."

By letter dated August 3, 2015, the District requested the approval of the Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 to withdraw the tenure charge filed against Neil Thomas. (See attached.).

I have reviewed the District's request in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, Withdrawal, settlement or mooting of tenure charges, and the standards set forth in the matter entitled In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990) School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846 and found that the District's request meets the statutory criteria.

The District has delineated the circumstances that have persuaded it that Respondent can effectively perform his duties as a teacher, having "received an annual summative evaluation rating of 'effective' for the 2014-2015 school year." Given this rating, "the School District has determined that these circumstances justify withdrawal of the tenure charge, and that withdrawal of the tenure charge is in the public interest.

The District also has addressed additional criteria for the withdrawal of tenure charges to the satisfaction of the arbitrator. The District has affirmed that "the withdrawal is not the result of a settlement; the School District has neither sought or obtained any agreement by Respondent in exchange or withdrawal of the tenure charge against him; the withdrawal does not involve any terms that would restrict access to information or records deemed public by law or result is misrepresentation of the reason for Respondent's separation from service (no such separation will occur as a result of the proposed withdrawal."

Finally, the District notes that "the facts underlying the tenure charge of inefficiency against Respondent do not constitute grounds for disciplinary action or penalty imposed on Employee and do not give rise to any obligation on the part of the school District to notify the State Board of Examiners or Division of Pension. The School District does not intend to seek suspension or revocation of Employee's teaching certification."

Based on the foregoing representations of District Counsel and pursuant to the criteria for withdrawal of Tenure Charges set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A; 3-5.6, the District's Motion to withdraw the tenure charges filed against Neil Thomas is granted

Very truly yours,

Robert T. Simmelkjaer

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a resident of the Township of Washington – filed a pro se residency appeal challenging the respondent Board's determination that she was not the legal guardian of J.A.J., and therefore J.A.J. was not entitled to a free public education in the Board's school district. Petitioner provided the Board with a sworn statement from her daughter, signed on January 5, 2014, which gave guardianship and care of J.A.J. to petitioner, who is J.A.J.'s maternal grandmother. In February 2014, the Board notified petitioner that she needed to file court/custody paperwork proving that she had legal custody of J.A.J. Petitioner contended that in order to gain legal custody of her granddaughter, she was required to travel to South Carolina to file the appropriate paperwork, and she made the trip to do so as soon as it was logistically possible – in June 2014, after school ended for the year. The Board asserted that J.A.J. was not legally domiciled in its district during the 2013-2014 school year, and filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and this matter is ripe for summary decision on the issue of domicile; the evidence shows that petitioner did not obtain a court order giving her custody of J.A.J. for the 2013-2014 school year until August 2014, and did not allege that J.A.J. came to live with her as a result of hardship; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the affidavit from J.A.J.'s mother did not give petitioner custody, though that was the intent; although petitioner made earlier efforts to obtain a custody order, she was unable to make the necessary trip to South Carolina until after school ended in June 2014; she did, however, make the trip immediately after the end of the school year, and did make a good-faith effort to obtain custody. The ALJ determined that the portion of the Board's motion for summary decision pertaining to domicile must be granted, but factual issues existed regarding the assessment of tuition, and therefore that portion of the motion was denied. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that special circumstances warrant an equitable determination waiving the recovery of tuition from January to June 2014.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that J.A.J. was not domiciled in the district until her grandmother, J.J., obtained an Order of Temporary Custody from South Carolina in August 2014. The Commissioner, however, is also in accord with the ALJ's determination – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that the special circumstances in this case warrant an equitable determination waiving the recovery of tuition from January through June 2014.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4708-14
AGENCY DKT. NO. 43-2/14

J.J. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD J.A.J., Petitioner,
v.
WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,
Respondent.

J.J., petitioner, pro se

Daniel J. Rosenthal, Esq., for respondent (Capehart & Scatchard, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 12, 2014 Decided: June 24, 2015

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner J.J., on behalf of minor child J.A.J., appeals the determination of the respondent Washington Township Board of Education (Board) that she was not the legal guardian of J.A.J. and therefore J.A.J. was not entitled to a free public education in the Washington Township School District.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about February 4, 2014, the Board notified petitioner that she needed to file court/custody paperwork proving that she had custody of her grandchild J.A.J. no later than February 25, 2014. Petitioner filed her appeal of the Board's notice with the Commissioner of Education on February 24, 2014. The Board filed an answer on April 21, 2014. The Board did not counterclaim for tuition owed for the time that J.A.J. attended school in the Washington Township School District when J.A.J. allegedly was not domiciled there. The case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on April 21, 2014. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, petitioner was entitled to an expedited hearing. On September 3, 2014, the Board filed a motion for summary decision. I gave petitioner until October 3, 2014, to respond. On October 29, 2014, I received petitioner's letter in opposition to the motion for summary decision. The letter was dated September 24, 2014, and had a fax date of October 1, 2014, to the office of Mr. Rosenthal, so I accepted it after the deadline. On October 7, 2014, the Board filed a reply to petitioner's opposition. I reserved decision on the motion. A hearing was scheduled for November 12, 2014. On that date, I heard the case and closed the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following:

On January 5, 2014, J.A.J.'s mother signed a sworn statement to give guardianship to petitioner, J.A.J.'s maternal grandmother. J.A.J. moved to New Jersey from South Carolina. Petitioner took the sworn statement to the Board's registration office on January 13, 2014, and attempted to enroll J.A.J. in the school district. J.A.J.'s biological mother lives in South Carolina and lived there at all times relevant to this petition. According to Janice Giel, student registration, data and information manager, and an email of that date (P-1), Barbara Lacca, another employee in the registration office, asked petitioner if there was a hardship that made J.A.J.'s mother send J.A.J. to live with the petitioner, and she said there was not. Petitioner confirmed that there was no hardship or abuse, and J.A.J. wanted to leave South Carolina and live in New Jersey with her grandmother. Ms. Lacca told petitioner that they could not enroll J.A.J. in the District because her mother was not a resident of Washington Township.

As noted in the email, petitioner had spoken to Anna Ambrosio at the Department of Education, who had told her that she should be able to enroll J.A.J., as it would be against the law to deny her education. Ms. Lacca wrote the email to Deborah Sebastiani at the Department of Education to seek clarification. (P-1.)

Petitioner was informed by Ms. Lacca that her documentation was insufficient because she needed an order from a court granting her custody of the student in order for J.A.J. to be eligible to attend school within the District. Ms. Giel told her that she would have to go to the court in Woodbury to gain custody of J.A.J. Alternatively, J.A.J. could attend school in the District if petitioner showed that there was a hardship. Ms. Giel informed petitioner that if she did not provide sufficient documentation, J.A.J. would be deemed ineligible for attendance and J.J. would be responsible for tuition for the student's attendance during the period of ineligibility.

Petitioner called the Department of Education again and spoke to James McBee, who explained the law to her. Petitioner then went to Woodbury to file the application. However, a courthouse staff member told her that she had to go to South Carolina to obtain guardianship. Petitioner knew that she would have to take J.A.J. out of school to go to South Carolina, as she could not leave J.A.J. home alone. She informed Ms. Lacca that she would have to go to South Carolina, and that is when petitioner received an extension to file paperwork until February 25, 2014. The Board gave her a letter stating that if she did not provide the court/custody paperwork by February 25, 2014, then J.A.J. would be removed from the District rolls. The letter stated that the only way to keep J.A.J. in school was to file an appeal. (R-3.)

Petitioner called the courthouse in South Carolina and was told that she would have to physically present herself there and would need an attorney. She said she would have gone down during spring break, but the spring break was taken away due to snow days. As soon as school let out on June 25, 2014, petitioner headed to South Carolina. She arrived in South Carolina on June 28, 2014. Petitioner acquired the Order of Custody from South Carolina on August 15, 2014, and provided the Order to the District on August 23, 2014.

Although the Board did not counterclaim for tuition in its answer, the Board submitted with its motion the certification of Janice Giel, which states that the daily rate at which tuition is assessed is $79.81. Both in the certification and in testimony, Ms. Giel said that the tuition owed for J.A.J.'s attendance during the 108 days in the 2013–2014 school year is $8,619.48.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Motion for Summary Decision

Summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Additionally, if no response is filed within twenty days, summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered. (Ibid.)

The New Jersey Supreme Court has modified and clarified the analysis required when considering a motion for summary decision or judgment. In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the Court adopted the summary-judgment standard utilized by federal courts:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." [Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, > 212 (1986).] . . . If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S. Ct. at 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.

The burden is on the moving party to exclude all reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact, and all inferences of doubt are drawn against the moving party and in favor of the non-moving party. Saldana v. DiMedio, 275 N.J. Super. 488, 494 (App. Div. 1994). The critical question therefore is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533 (citation omitted). If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied. See Bowles v. City of Camden, 993 F. Supp. 255, 261 (D.N.J. 1998).

The present case is ripe for summary decision on the issue of domicile. Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). A child is also entitled to free attendance at a public school under the following circumstances:

> A non-parent or non-guardian domiciled in the school district signs a sworn statement that the child lives with her, she will support the child gratis as if he were her own child, and will assume all personal obligations for the child with respect to school requirements, and the parent signs a sworn statement that she "is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(a). A child entitled to attend school under such circumstances is known as an "affidavit student."

The child is placed in the home of a resident of the school district by court order. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-2; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(e).

A school board may remove a child if, after a hearing, the board determines that the child is ineligible to attend school for free in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). However, the board's decision may be appealed to the Commissioner of Education. Ibid. If the evidence adduced at a hearing before the Commissioner or the Office of Administrative Law does not support a finding that the child is entitled to a free education in the district, the Commissioner "shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district." Ibid.; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2. Yet, "[n]othing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). Conversely, State regulations do not preclude "an equitable determination by the district board of education or the Commissioner that tuition shall not be assessed for all or part of any period of a student's ineligible attendance in the school district when the particular circumstances of a matter so warrant," including a situation in which "the ineligible attendance was due to a school district's error." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3(b).[1]

In the present case, petitioner did not have a hearing before the Board. She filed an appeal based on the Board's letter saying that her granddaughter would be removed from the rolls if petitioner did not provide a court order of custody by February 25, 2014. Petitioner does not base her case on this procedural fact, however. Also, petitioner has never alleged that J.A.J. came to live with her as a result of a hardship. The fact that doing so would have been much easier, but it would not have been the truth, bolsters her credibility. The evidence shows that petitioner did not obtain a court order giving her custody of J.A.J. for the 2013–2014 school year until August 2014. The argument petitioner presented was that petitioner's daughter had given her custody on January 5, 2014, as evidenced by the daughter's signed affidavit. In addition, petitioner tried in good faith to get a court order from Woodbury, but was told that she had to obtain such an order from South Carolina. Petitioner obtained that court order when she was able to do so, as her granddaughter's attendance at school was paramount.

[1] The Department of Education recently amended N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3(b). 45 N.J.R. 1209(a) (May 20, 2013); 45 N.J.R. 2551(a) (December 16, 2013). In so doing, the Department declined to list specific examples under that provision, because "[t]he current rule is designed to provide maximum flexibility without being overly prescriptive." 45 N.J.R. 2551(a). However, the Department "add[ed] language that states neither a school district nor the Commissioner should assess tuition for a student found ineligible to attend a school if the ineligibility was due to school district error," in order to "ensure students are not penalized for a school district's misunderstanding of the student's circumstances or of applicable laws." 45 N.J.R. 1209(a).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, petitioner's daughter's affidavit did not give petitioner custody of J.A.J., although that was the intent. The Board gave petitioner until February 25, 2014, to obtain an order of custody from the court. In trying to comply, petitioner went to the Superior Court in Gloucester County to obtain the order, but was told that she would have to go to South Carolina, where the daughter resided. Petitioner was willing, but she could not do so until the end of the year without making J.A.J. miss school. Petitioner noted that there was no spring break that year due to all of the snow days in the district. I can take judicial notice of a very snowy winter 2014. The Board did not dispute that spring break was nonexistent that year. Petitioner went to South Carolina to obtain the Order of Temporary Custody as soon as the school year ended. As there is no factual dispute that petitioner was not J.A.J.'s legal guardian until she obtained the order in August 2014, I CONCLUDE that summary decision must be GRANTED on the issue of domicile. However, there is a factual issue as to whether equitable considerations exist such that a determination may be made by the Commissioner that tuition shall not be assessed for all or part of any period of a student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Thus, summary decision is DENIED on the issue of tuition.

Recovery of Tuition

The Commissioner has determined that the good faith of a parent is an appropriate consideration for reducing the amount of tuition owed for a student's period of ineligible attendance. For example, in S.Y. ex rel. E.Y. v. Board of Education of Wyckoff, EDU 9946-09, Initial Decision (October 28, 2014), adopted, Comm'r

(December 15, 2014), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, the Commissioner adopted Chief Administrative Law Judge Sanders' equitable determination that tuition should not be assessed for the first few months of the two-year period of an ineligible student's attendance at a public school because the parents had shown a "good-faith intent to move" to a new house in the school district at the start of the 2007–2008 school year. However, the parents experienced an unanticipated construction delay, and the school board did not notify the parents of their potential liability for tuition until February 2008.[2]

The Commissioner has also equitably determined that certain circumstances did not warrant the assessment of tuition before the date on which a caretaker was awarded custody of a theretofore ineligible student. In Board of Education of Absecon v. M.L.G. and L.G.-P. ex rel. B.G., EDU 10944-99, Initial Decision (April 18, 2000), reversed, Comm'r (July 13, 2000), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, the Commissioner held that not only was tuition not owed from the date the caretaker obtained custody of the child, but also that, "in light of the circumstances particular to this matter, an order for tuition from October 13, 1999, when [the resident aunt] sought to enroll [the child] in the Absecon school district, to December 2, 1999, the date upon which she acquired legal custody, is not warranted."[3] While it is not entirely clear to what circumstances the Commissioner was referring, the caretaker had argued in her exceptions to the ALJ's decision that > [u]nder these circumstances, where there is no allegation that the child lives with the district resident solely to obtain an education in the district's schools; where the resident acted as the sole custodian and de facto guardian of the child for 21 months prior to obtaining legal custody; and where the resident obtained custody as soon as she understood the requirements of the school residency statute, it would be unfair and contrary to the purpose of the school residency statute to assess tuition against [the resident].

[2] However, the parents were assessed tuition from the time they received notice through the 2008–2009 school year.

[3] In a footnote, the Commissioner stated that "[t]he record reveals that [the aunt] applied to the Superior Court of New Jersey for custody of [the child] on November 17, 1999."

There are also instances in which a school board has equitably determined to not assess tuition for a portion of an ineligible student's school attendance. For example, in J.A. and M.C. ex rel. M.A. v. Board of Education of Belleville, EDU 5138-02, Initial Decision (February 21, 2003), adopted, Comm'r (April 11, 2003), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, the ALJ explained that > although the student was not a legal resident of Belleville at the beginning of the 2001–2002 school year in September 2001, [the superintendent] determined in light of the family's financial situation not to request tuition reimbursement for any period prior to the end of November 2001 when the district first learned [the student] was not living in Belleville. Thus, tuition reimbursement is sought for 41 days only, five (5) school days in November, fifteen (15) school days in December, and twenty-one (21) school days in January 2002. As of February 2002, the child became a legal resident of Belleville when custody was granted to . . . her aunt.

Also, while the Commissioner has consistently held that "as of the date that a resident of a district takes legal control of a child, entitlement to attend school free of charge is no longer to be examined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), the 'affidavit student' provision," and that instead, the question simply becomes whether the child and the guardian were domiciled in the district in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), it is also possible to obtain a retroactive custody order that would obviate the need for an "affidavit-student" analysis for the period before the date on which a custody order is actually obtained. L.D.M. ex rel. T.D. v. Bd. of Educ. of W. Orange, EDU 3590-00, reversed, Comm'r (May 11, 2001) (citing L.A. v. Bd. of Educ. of W. Orange, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 266, aff'd, St. Bd., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 554), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. Thus, in L.D.M., the Commissioner found that "[t]he record clearly demonstrates that on February 7, 2001, [the child's sister, who was a resident of the district,] was granted legal custody of [the child], retroactive to January 27, 2000," and that, "[c]onsequently, the ALJ's analysis of this matter under the affidavit student provision, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), is inapplicable," and the school board was not entitled to the tuition it sought for the period from February 23, 2000, to February 7, 2001.

A final consideration in residency appeals is whether the school district misinformed a parent or caretaker with respect to residency requirements. Of course, regardless of whether a district misinformed a parent or caretaker, the petitioner still bears the burden of showing on appeal that a child was eligible for free attendance under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), or N.J.S.A. 18A:38-2, or under a combination of these provisions. There is no evidence that such a consideration applies in the present case, although petitioner may have misunderstood the Department of Education's representation to her that J.A.J. was entitled to be enrolled in the District to mean that she was entitled to attend free of tuition.

Similar to the case in S.Y. v. Wyckoff, supra, EDU 9946-09, Initial Decision (October 28, 2014), adopted, Comm'r (December 15, 2014), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, petitioner made a good-faith effort to obtain custody of J.A.J., first getting the affidavit from J.A.J.'s mother before she tried to enroll J.A.J. and then going to the court in Woodbury after being told the affidavit was insufficient and she had to obtain a court order. She then went to South Carolina as soon as she could do so without J.A.J. missing school. Similar to L.D.M. v. West Orange, supra, EDU 3590-00, reversed, Comm'r (May 11, 2001), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, petitioner probably could have obtained a retroactive order of custody if she had known to ask for one. Unfortunately, she would have no way of knowing of that possibility. Based on facts indicating petitioner's attempts to obtain guardianship prior to actually obtaining it, I CONCLUDE that special circumstances warrant an equitable determination waiving the recovery of tuition from January to June 2014.

ORDER

For the reasons cited above, the motion for summary decision as to domicile is GRANTED. As factual issues existed regarding whether an equitable determination could be made regarding the portion of the motion for summary decision related to the assessment of tuition, that portion of the motion is hereby DENIED. Upon consideration of special circumstances demonstrating the good faith of petitioner, the request to recover 108 days of tuition at $79.81 per day from January to June 2014 is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner challenged the discipline imposed upon her by the respondent Board as a result of an altercation that she was involved in on school grounds. Specifically, petitioner sought an order reversing the discipline and allowing her to participate in her senior prom and graduation activities in June 2014. Her original petition for emergent relief was denied following a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and petitioner subsequently filed an amended petition which included, inter alia, a request to have her disciplinary record cleared. The Board filed a motion to dismiss, contending that the relief sought by petitioner could not be granted and that the discipline that had been imposed was appropriate because petitioner had been involved in a fight at school in January 2014, which behavior was contrary to the school's code of conduct. On September 11, 2014, the ALJ issued an Initial Decision which found that the relief petitioner sought is unavailable, that the issues are moot, and that petitioner is barred by collateral estoppel and res judicata; the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss. Subsequently, in a decision dated November 20, 2014, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's Initial Decision and remanded the matter to the OAL for consideration of the petitioner's request to have her disciplinary record cleared.

On remand, the ALJ considered the issue of whether the Board's decision to give petitioner a long-term suspension was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner misbehaved and exhibited inappropriate behavior multiple times from October 2013 through February 2014, acting as the perpetrator and/or aggressor in five separate incidents during that time period; the Board's decision to impose the long-term suspension was based on valid and reasonable concerns about petitioner's tendency to be aggressive and pugnacious, placing herself and others at risk of harm or serious injury; and the Board's determination to suspend petitioner was appropriate. The ALJ concluded that the Board's action was supported by evidence properly adduced and presented and was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that petitioner's claim be dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Accordingly the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MORRIS SCHOOL DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY, AND THOMAS FICARRA,	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, Destiny Jackson – a former student in respondent's school district – and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto. This matter was remanded to the OAL for a hearing to determine whether the Board's decision to give the petitioner a long-term suspension was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and if her disciplinary record should be modified. After a hearing at the OAL, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) determined that the Board's decision to give her a long-term suspension was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner concurs – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – with the ALJ's determination that the Board's decision to give the petitioner a long term suspension was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and as a result the petitioner's disciplinary record should continue to reflect the long-term suspension. The record clearly demonstrates that the petitioner exhibited inappropriate behavior on various occasions between October 2013 and February 2014, and that her aggressive tendencies placed herself and others at risk of harm or serious injury. Notwithstanding petitioner's contentions to the contrary, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record – which includes a transcript from the hearing held on May 11 and 12, 2015 – to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or her factual findings. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the various witnesses who appeared before her and made findings of fact based upon their testimony and the evidence in the record.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition of appeal is dismissed.

D.J., petitioner, pro se

Marie Laurence Fabian, Esq., for respondent (Porzio, Bromberg & Newman, attorneys)

BEFORE CARIDAD F. RIGO, ALJ:

Record Closed: June 1, 2015 Decided: June 23, 2015

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner D.J., a student, appeals her suspension by the respondent, the Morris School District Board of Education (Board).

On or about May 15, 2014, petitioner filed for emergent relief seeking an order reversing the imposition of a school suspension, participation in senior prom, and graduation ceremony in June 2014. The case was dismissed after petitioner's presentation of her arguments and subsequent to respondent's Motion to Dismiss.

On November 24, 2014, this matter was remanded back to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and this Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) pursuant to the Commissioner of Education Bureau of Controversies Final Decision.

In person and telephonic pre-hearing conferences were held on March 23 and April 8, 2015, a plenary hearing was held on May 11 and 12, 2015. Upon receipt of written closing arguments the record closed on June 1, 2015.

ISSUES

The issues on remand are: Was the respondent Board's decision of March 11, 2014 to give petitioner a long-term suspension arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable?

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Petitioner was a senior at Morristown High School during the 2013–2014 school year. Petitioner was involved in verbal and physical altercations on October 3, 2013, and on January 15, 2014. Petitioner was warned by the school administration after the October 3, 2013, incident not to engage in physical altercations. As a result of the January 15, 2014, altercation the respondent school board on March 11, 2014, conducted a disciplinary hearing. As a result of that hearing the school board voted to suspend the petitioner from attending school and participating in all extra-curricular school and graduation activities for the remainder of the 2013-2014 school year.

Arguments of the Parties

Petitioner argues that the respondent Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable by giving her such a long-term suspension. The long-term suspension was in effect excluded her from attending her senior prom, graduation ceremony, and all other senior activities. Petitioner further argues that she did not receive due process. Petitioner was subject to harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) from other students but the respondent never did anything about it.

Respondent argues that its actions were not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable because petitioner was involved in fights in violation of school regulations. Petitioner could not be calmed down once she began lashing out at students and school personnel. It presents that it had no choice but to remove petitioner from the school in order for it to maintain order, discipline, and safety.

Summary of the Testimony

Mark Manning

Mark Manning was called to testify by the petitioner. He is the principal of Morristown High School. He became the principal in December 2013.

Manning testified that there was an incident in October 2013 between D.J. and another student when D.J. became aggressive and had to be restrained. During this incident D.J.'s brother tried to restrain her from attacking the other student. This incident took place in the school cafeteria. Initially, the school staff thought D.J.'s brother was acting inappropriately and managed to separate the siblings. However, once unrestrained D.J. proceeded to climb on top of the cafeteria table and walk over to the student she was fighting with to confront her. Security guards had to physically separate her from the other student. As a result of this altercation both students were suspended for the remainder of the day.

Manning stated that he tries to have corrective measures before suspending or expelling any student. He had a re-entry meeting with D.J. and her mother when they discussed D.J.'s inability to control herself and keep her hands to herself. He said he suggested she receive counseling and also made himself available to her. The HIB officer and D.J.'s case manager were also present at this re-entry meeting.

Under cross-examination by counsel for respondent Manning defined the difference between a short-term and long-term suspension. He said a short-term suspension is less than ten days. Before the actual imposition of such a suspension the student is provided with due process in that they are provided with all investigation reports, the parents are called and notified about what happened. A long-term suspension can only come about after a disciplinary hearing before the board of education. In this situation the parents are informed in advance and in writing about the hearing. Formal notices are giving as to when, where, and what will occur at the hearing. The hearing is recorded and a transcript is provided to the student and parents. The student and the parents have an opportunity to request and provide discovery.

Manning explained that an HIB investigation was initiated because D.J. complained that she was a target. On or about February 21, 2014, a harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) investigation took place. Manning said that after this HIB investigation it became clear to him that D.J. had little control of her emotions and outbursts. He said in altercations D.J. remained volatile and agitated.

Leonard Posey

Leonard Posey is the Morris School District School Board president. He was president from 2014-2015. He was called to testify by the petitioner.

Posey testified that he was involved in the recommendation to expel D.J. He said the Board meeting convened to hear D.J.'s case. The board meeting was attended by nine out of the ten Board members. He said the Board discussed D.J.'s case for thirty minutes.

Under cross-examination by respondent's counsel, Posey said the Board discussed D.J.'s removal because she had shown numerous violent tendencies.

Peter Gallerstein

Peter Gallerstein was called to testify by petitioner. He is a member of the Board and has been for the last thirteen to fourteen years. He was present at the Board meeting on March 24, 2014, when during a closed session the recommendations that came from the disciplinary hearing that was held March 11, 2014, were discussed. He said he listened to what the two Board members who were present at the disciplinary hearing had to say. The Board at that meeting voted to follow the recommendations of the members of the disciplinary hearing board. And, that recommendation was to suspend D.J. on a long-term basis.

Francine Rossoff

Francine Rossoff was called to testify by petitioner. She has been on the Board for three years. She is a registered nurse. She stated that during a closed session of a regular Board meeting D.J.'s case was discussed. She stated that the Board received a summary of the disciplinary hearing. She did not look at the investigation reports. She attended the actual disciplinary hearing on March 11, 2014. She heard the testimony of all that testified at the disciplinary hearing.

Under cross-examination by respondent's counsel Rossoff said the school's recommendation to suspend D.J. was discussed. She stated that D.J.'s lack of understanding of how inappropriate her actions were and why she was at a disciplinary hearing convinced her that keeping D.J. in school was unsafe and that the school's recommendation was reasonable. She said it was the school principal that made the recommendation to suspend D.J. She said the entire Board agreed with the recommendation that came out of the disciplinary hearing.

Debora Engelfried

Debora Engelfried is a supervisor at Central Office at the Morristown High School. She is the HIB district coordinator. She is responsible for making sure that the district follows HIB policy and procedures. She does not do any HIB investigations; they are done by someone in the school. In this case it was Dave Gelber who did the investigations for the Morris High School and then gave her the results. After receiving the results of the investigations she presented the information to the board that then decided if there was an HIB claim.

There had been multiple HIB claims filed by D.J.; however, in each case it was determined that D.J. was not a victim of HIB. Hence, her claims were unfounded. There were multiple HIB claims filed against D.J., where she was the perpetrator, and those claims were deemed to be substantiated resulting in D.J.'s suspensions. (See Exhibits R-5, R-8, R-13, R-14 and R-17.) She attended the disciplinary hearing but took no part in the hearing or in the decision or recommendation.

Michael Bruchac

Michael Bruchac is the vice principal at Morris High School and has been for eleven years. He was called to testify at the instant by D.J.

He knows D.J. because she was a student at the high school. They met in mid-September 2013 when a name-calling incident was reported to him and the incident involved D.J. D.J.'s mother brought the matter to his attention. He said all was well for about two to three weeks when D.J. returned to him complaining that the other girls started up again calling her names

Bruchac was involved in investigating an incident that occurred in the school cafeteria on October 3, 2013. During this incident D.J. had an argument with another female student that was about to turn physical and violent but for security personnel getting involved and separating them. Bruchac reported that it was reported to him that D.J. climbed over a cafeteria table in order to reach the other female. And that the security guards had to physically separate D.J. from the other female student. He did not recall the specifics of that incident. However, he did recall speaking with D.J. and the other students and tried to mediate. The mediation meeting occurred with D.J., her mother, the other two students and their mothers', and Ms. Still, a student support counselor. He thought the meeting concluded in the positive. He asked Ms. Still to monitor the situation. He also said he explained to D.J. and her mother the HIB complaint process. He acknowledged that Exhibit R-5 is a written report about this incident. D.J. served a one-day suspension for this incident.

After an HIB investigation it was concluded that the HIB claims were unfounded.

On January 15, 2014, another incident took place in that D.J. had a fight with another student in the atrium of the high school. The security guards were again called. D.J. refused to calm down, was uncooperative, verbally abusive, and spit on the security guards. D.J. attempted to strike a security guard during this incident. Bruchac stressed that everyone was concerned over the fact that D.J. became uncontrollable, violent, and aggressive. After discussing this incident with the principal, Mr. Manning, he gave D.J. a four-day suspension.

On January 29, 2014, he suspended D.J. again because it was substantiated that D.J. had committed an act of HIB against a female student.

On February 21, 2014, he was told by his principal to suspend D.J. again because of HIB violations. He did not remember the specifics of why Mr. Manning told him to suspend D.J. that time. Essentially, D.J. was suspended numerous times because of the anger and aggression she displayed.

Thomas Ficarra, Ph.Ed.

Dr. Ficarra was called by the petitioner. Thomas Ficarra, Ph.Ed., is the school superintendant and had been for twelve years before he retired. He had thirty-nine years of experience in schools. Morris High School has 5,700 students. He gets involved with student discipline and disciplinary hearings upon the request or recommendation from the school principal, Mark Manning. When getting involved he receives a packet of information about the student, grades, discipline record, and attendance. He also listens to what the principal has to say.

In this case he actually attended the disciplinary hearing on D.J. He was struck that during the hearing D.J. did not seem to take the situation seriously—D.J. was snickering. He said D.J. showed anger. He said D.J. showed no remorse. He heard the testimony of the security guards that related that D.J. could not be calmed down. He said that after hearing the testimony of five to six people who described D.J.'s behavior, aggression, and volatility, he came to his own conclusion that D.J. should be suspended.

He testified that he believed D.J. should have been suspended for the January and October incidents for safety reasons. He said the October 2 incident was a very dangerous situation that could have turned into something very bad.

He opined that D.J. showed a pattern of behavior over a period of time that was beyond the usual disruptions. The disruptions displayed by D.J. were too serious.

After attending the disciplinary hearing he scheduled a Board meeting to discuss the recommendation that D.J. be suspended. Board members Nancy Bangiola and Fran Rossoff were at the disciplinary hearing and they too relayed what they heard and saw at the hearing to the board members.

Suzanne Olimpio

Suzanne Olimpio was called to testify by the petitioner. She is the director of pupil services who oversees special education programs, the health programs and the child study team. She has been in this field for twenty years, a director for six years, and a supervisor for three years. She has been with Morris High School since February 2014. She has a Master's degree in school counseling and a certificate in school administration.

Ms. Olimpio explained that there was a Manifestation Determination meeting held on March 5, 2014, to determine whether D.J.'s behavior was or was not a manifestation of her disability. D.J. was classified with a specific learning disability (SLD). She said D.J., her mother, D.J.'s case manager, a special education teacher, a general education teacher, and herself attended the meeting. Olimpio testified that upon a review of D.J.'s file, assessments, evaluations, IEP, along with the interviews conducted, teacher observations, and the information provided by the parent the group determined that D.J.'s behavior was not a manifestation of her disability. (See Exhibit R-19.)

Nancy Bangiola

Nancy Bangiola is a Board member of the Morris School District and has been a member for ten years. She was called by the petitioner.

Ms. Bangiola stated she was asked by the Board members to attend D.J.'s disciplinary hearing. She did not know D.J. before the hearing. Prior to the hearing she received D.J.'s records. She acknowledged that Fran Rossoff also attended the disciplinary hearing as a representative of the school board. She said the hearing took about one hour. She heard the testimony of Mr. Manning, the three security guards, D.J. and her mother, and Mr. Ficarra, the superintendent who gave instructions on the hearing procedures. At the hearing she heard about the two fights. She describes the incident of October 2, 2013, and January 16, 2014, as fights.

Ms. Bangiola specifically recalled the testimony of the security guards, she said they stated how they had to restrain D.J. and get her off of another girl. She said she observed D.J. throughout the hearing and noted that D.J. smiled and laughed. D.J. showed no remorse. Bangiola said she concluded that D.J. did not recognize her inappropriate behavior. After hearing the statements of the people that testified at the hearing she was very much in favor of and supportive of Mr. Manning's recommendation to suspend D.J.

Bangiola furthered that the Board does not always go along with the recommendations of the administration. Bangiola said the Board discussed the discipline hearing and some of what happened at the hearing.

D.J.

D.J. testified on her own behalf. She is now nineteen years old, is employed, and wants to attend college.

As to the October 2, 2013, incident D.J. stated that it was not a fight, it was an argument. She said the other girl told her not to fight over "penis." She defines a fight as physical. She defines an argument as talking loud. She acknowledged that the security guard(s) separated her from the other girl but it was because they were loudly arguing.

D.J. further described the incident of October 2, 2013, by stating that she was standing at one end of a long rectangular table in the cafeteria, with the other person was at the opposite end and other students were sitting in between. The other girl said let's fight, so she got on the table and walked towards her, while other students were sitting at the table. The security guards came and took her away to the principal's office.

D.J. described what occurred at the incident of October 29, 2013. During this incident, D.J. said she was in English class she had her phone on her desk when a text came in. The teacher asked her for the phone and she refused to give it to her.

D.J. also stated what happened on January 16, 2014. D.J. said she was in class with a substitute teacher when she asked to leave the classroom to see another teacher when a security guard caught her on the stairs talking to another student.

Also on January 16, 2014, in an OSA class, she did not get along with the girls in this class. One girl said to her "stop twurking" when her boyfriend went to talk with another girl who was twurking. The same girl told her "you are supposed to fight me." D.J. stated she went to fight the girl but a security guard broke it up.

D.J. further testified that on January 29, 2014, she was again disciplined for no reason. She said she was accused of calling another student "rachet" but she had not.

Under cross-examination D.J. admitted that during the incident in the cafeteria her brother tried to stop her from fighting and told her not to do it.

D.J. acknowledges that she received a letter from the school dated March 3, 2014, providing her with the details of the disciplinary hearing. (See Exhibit R-17.) She agreed that she chose not to bring anyone to testify on her behalf.

D.J. agreed that it was inappropriate to climb on the lunch table and walk towards another student. D.J. acknowledged that on January 29, 2014, the "rachet" incident occurred and she was disciplined with a suspension.

D.J. acknowledged that on February 21, 2014, she was involved in an altercation in the stairway with another student. She was heard calling a student "fucking idiot."

D.J. acknowledged that she was suspended for ten days in the 2010-2011 school year for assaulting another student.

REVIEW OF DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

I reviewed the transcript of the disciplinary hearing held on March 11, 2014. The transcript starts out with an outline to everyone present on how the hearing would take place. Everyone was advised that the witnesses will be sworn that D.J. and/or her mother C.W. will be able to ask questions of everyone that testified. Everyone was told that it was a disciplinary hearing and that at the end of the hearing a recommendation was going to be made to the Board of Education as to D.J.'s suspension or continued attendance at the high school.

The transcript contained the testimony of the security guards that witnessed and or were involved in the fights that D.J. was in. All of the security guards testified as to D.J.'s pugnacious behavior and attitude. One security guard testified that D.J. struck and spit on him. He stated that D.J. did not intend to spit on him but on the other student she was fighting with but the projectile of her spit hit him and another guard. All of the guards testified as to how difficult it was to calm or control D.J. even long after the heat of the moment.

It also contained a summary of a series of incidents and/or events that involved D.J.'s violations of the school's rules of conduct. The transcript contained testimony referencing incidents or events occurring on October 2, 2013, October 16 and 15, 2013, October 29, 2013, January 29, 2014, and February 21, 2014; all of these incidents or events constituted some violation of a school rule or policy. It was based on this record that the hearing committee accepted the principal's recommendation to suspend D.J. on a long term basis.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The issue to be determined is whether or not the respondent school board acted arbitrarily, capricious and unreasonable. It is widely recognized that local school boards have been charged by the Legislature with the orderly conduct of public schools and are vested with broad discretion in matters involving pupil discipline. K.O.H. ex rel. R.H. v. Edison Twp. Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 275, 276. When a local board has acted within its authority, its actions carry a presumption of validity and will not generally be disturbed absent an affirmative showing that its judgment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. When a local board has acted within its authority, its actions carry a presumption of validity and will not generally be disturbed absent an affirmative showing that its judgment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581 (1966). In matters involving the exercise of a local board of education's discretion, the scope of the Commissioner's review is not to substitute his/her judgment for that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for making the conclusions and decisions they made.

With the above as a basis I FIND that respondent's determination to suspend D.J. was appropriate. I FIND D.J. misbehaved and exhibited inappropriate behavior multiple times from October 2013 through February 2014. Specifically, she was the perpetrator and/or the aggressor on or about October 2, 2013, October 29, 2013, January 16, 2014, January 29, 2014, and February 21, 2014. I FIND that respondent provided D.J. with counseling, mediation, and re-entry counseling all in an effort to help D.J. have a positive experience in high school. I FIND the school administrators investigated each of D.J.'s HIB complaints against others and determined that they were unfounded. I FIND that one HIB claim was substantiated against D.J. I FIND that D.J. was repeatedly disciplined or admonished and she did not pay any heed. I FIND that respondent provided D.J. with appropriate and timely notice with respect to the disciplinary hearing of March 11, 2014. I FIND that the school provided D.J. with all of the paperwork it was going to use at the disciplinary hearing. I FIND that D.J. was provided the opportunity to present witnesses and documents at the disciplinary hearing. I FIND D.J. was provided the opportunity to cross examine all of the witnesses that testified at the disciplinary hearing.

Based on my reading of the transcript of the disciplinary hearing that took place on March 11, 2014, I FIND that the respondent Board did not act in a manner that was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

I FIND the respondent Board's decision to impose the suspension as one that was based upon valid and reasonable concerns about D.J.'s tendencies to be aggressive and pugnacious placing herself and others at risk of harm or serious injury. I FIND poignant the description of the witnesses on how lengthy and difficult it was to get D.J. to calm down and de-escalate.

Therefore based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the respondent Board's action was supported by evidence properly adduced and presented and was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's claim be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. A.H., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, B.H.G.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the respondent Board's determination that her child, B.H.G., was not entitled to a free public education in the Township of West Orange schools during the second half of the 2014-2015 school year. Petitioner asserted that although she had recently signed a residential lease in another school district, her family had owned property and paid taxes in West Orange for twenty years; B.H.G. had attended West Orange schools for seven years, and was a graduating senior; therefore, in the interest of fairness, B.H.G should be allowed to graduate and finish the year with her friends and teachers. The Board contended that the results of a residency investigation showed that petitioner was not domiciled in West Orange, and that she was therefore liable for tuition reimbursement for the period from January 16 through June 19, 2015.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals aged 5 to 20 years who are domiciled within the school district; the domicile of an unemancipated child is that of her parent or guardian; although there is a so-called "senior rule" whereby a parent of a graduating senior could petition the Superintendent for a waiver to remain in the district through graduation, the Board's residency investigator testified that B.H.G. was classified as a detained junior; A.H. testified that she had moved to an apartment in Newark in January 2015 due to family issues, but asserted that B.H.G. remained at A.H.'s mother's home in West Orange except on weekends until March 2015, when she moved to Newark with A.H. full-time; L.H. – A.H.'s mother – testified that B.H.G. had lived with her mother at L.H.'s house in West Orange until A.H. moved to Newark, and occasionally stayed with L.H. in West Orange after January 2015. As it is uncontested that A.H. moved to Newark in January 2015, the ALJ concluded that the determination of the Board that A.H. was not domiciled in West Orange during a portion of the 2014-2015 school year should be upheld and the petition should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4. Further, the Board is entitled to reimbursement for tuition for the period of A.H.'s ineligible attendance in the amount of $10,366.72.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner found that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of West Orange during the period in question. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petitioner was dismissed. Petitioner was directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $10,366.72.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter[1] and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of West Orange Township between January 16, 2015 and June 19, 2015. In fact, A.H. testified that she moved to Newark as of January 2015 "due to an influx of family issues." (Initial Decision at 2) Although A.H. further testified that B.H.G. remained in West Orange during the week – at A.H.'s mother's home – until March 2015, A.H.'s mother testified that B.H.G. only stayed with her "occasionally" after A.H. moved out. (Initial Decision at 3) As a result, B.H.G. was not eligible to receive a free public education in West Orange during the time period in question. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $10,366.72 ($92.56 per day for 112 days) – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b – as detailed in the Initial Decision.

[1] The record did not include transcripts from the hearing,which occurred at the OAL on June 29, 2015.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $10,366.72 for tuition costs incurred during the time period that B.H.G. was ineligible to attend school in West Orange.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

A.H., petitioner, pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for respondent (West Orange Board of Education, attorney)

Record Closed: June 29, 2015 Decided: July 10, 2015

BEFORE TIFFANY M. WILLIAMS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner, A.H., appeals the determination by the Respondent, West Orange Board of Education (Board), that she is not domiciled in its district. The Board counterclaims for tuition reimbursement.

Petitioner filed an appeal with the Department of Education on May 1, 2015. The Board filed an Answer on May 7, 2015, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on May 8, 2015. A hearing was scheduled for June 10, 2015. On June 9, 2015, A.H. requested an adjournment due to the unavailability of her primary witness. A hearing was conducted on June 29, 2015, and the record closed at the conclusion of the testimony.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

At the hearing, the Board offered testimony of its residency investigator, Gerard Drappi, in support of its claim for tuition reimbursement. Based on the documentary and testimonial evidence presented to me, I find the following FACTS:

Mr. Drappi has served as a residency investigator for the West Orange Board of Education for the past four years. Prior to his employment with the Board, Mr. Drappi served as a police officer for thirty years. He retired as lieutenant of the Investigations Unit for the West Orange Police Department.

On or about January 12, 2015, Mr. Drappi received information from the security division of the West Orange High School that student, B.H.-G., did not reside in West Orange – but rather resided in Newark. On or about January 16, 2015, Mr. Drappi commenced an investigation, which began with surveillance of the home address listed for the student – 9 Whitman Street, West Orange.

Mr. Drappi performed surveillance on approximately twenty occasions and never saw the student or her mother, A.H., enter or exit the property. On at least two occasions Mr. Drappi monitored New Jersey Transit bus route #71, which originated in Newark and stopped across the street from the high school. Mr. Drappi observed B.H.-G. alight from the bus prior to school hours. Mr. Drappi confirmed that 12 Whitman Street is located approximately a half mile from the high school and is not on a school bus route.

During his investigation, Mr. Drappi also discovered a social media profile and professional biography noting that A.H. was a resident of Newark. At the conclusion of his investigation, Mr. Drappi authored a report summarizing his investigation. (R-3.) Mr. Drappi calculated corresponding tuition costs from January 16, 2015, through June 19, 2015, to include $10,366.22, based on per diem rate of $92.56. Mr. Drappi advised the Board of his findings and drafted correspondence that the Board later finalized and sent to A.H., notifying her of its determination.

Mr. Drappi was also familiar with the so-called "senior rule" whereby a parent of a graduating senior could petition the Superintendant for a waiver to remain in the district through graduation. Based on his investigation, he was aware that B.H.-G. was classified as a detained junior and had no communications from the Superintendant's office that a waiver had been requested or granted.

A.H. testified and admitted that she had moved out of the district into an apartment in Newark as of January 2015, due to an influx of family issues. She testified that her daughter remained at her mother's home at 9 Whitman Street in West Orange, except on weekends until March 2015 when her daughter moved to Newark full-time with A.H. A.H.'s mom, L.H., testified that she was the owner of 9 Whitman Street. She confirmed that A.H. had always lived there until she moved to Newark. However, she indicated that B.H.-G. was not staying at her house nightly after January, but occasionally. L.H. testified that although she maintained guardianship of her grandson, she did not monitor or provide guardianship over B.H.-G.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION OF LAW

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of her parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K.

ex rel minor child E.Y. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001).

Where a local board determines that a child is not properly domiciled in its district, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) provides a right of appeal to the parents as follows:

> The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection.

Here, it is uncontested that A.H. moved to Newark in January 2015. Regardless of whether her daughter spent the night at her grandmother's West Orange home, her daughter's domicile is that of her mother's – and there is no dispute that A.H. moved to and remained in Newark during the school year. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the determination of the Board that A.H. was not domiciled in West Orange during a portion of the 2014-2015 school year should be upheld and the petition of appeal should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4.[1]

The Board asserts that it is entitled to be reimbursed for tuition for the period of A.H.'s ineligible enrollment in its schools. Where, as here, the evidence does not support the claims of the resident, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a), which provides as follows:

> If an appeal to the Commissioner is filed, where the appellant does not sustain the burden of demonstrating entitlement to attend the schools of the district, or abandons the appeal through withdrawal, failure to prosecute or any means other than settlement agreeing to waive or reduce tuition, the Commissioner may order assessment of tuition for any period of a student's ineligible attendance in a school district, including the 21-day period for filing of an appeal and the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending.

[1] Additionally, A.H. argued that as a student classified as requiring special education, she kept B.H.-G. in West Orange to assist with her educational needs. However, the regulation governing residency requirements fail to distinguish between regular and special education students.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) requires that tuition be calculated on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per-pupil cost to the district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

The Board's proofs are convincing and its calculations are consistent with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a). Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board has demonstrated an entitlement to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $10,366.72. (R-5.)

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the petition of appeal be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. I further ORDER that the Board's application for tuition reimbursement is GRANTED in the amount of $10,366.72.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter, the parties' revised settlement agreement, and the Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. On June 19, 2015, the Commissioner remanded this matter to OAL based upon a determination that the prior settlement agreement recommended for adoption by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") did not include a copy of Exhibit A, which was referenced in Paragraph 4 of the Settlement Agreement.

Upon review of the revised agreement and the record on remand, the Commissioner finds that the deficiency identified in the prior agreement has been corrected. Accordingly, the settlement is hereby approved and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

These consolidated matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 19, 2015, as a remand, for inclusion of Exhibit A of settlement agreement and for determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties prepared and submitted a Settlement Agreement and General Release and Resolution from the Vineland Board of Education indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy filed with Commissioner of the Department Of Education and the Public Employment Relations Commission and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I ORDER that in compliance with the Joint Order on Consolidation and Determination of Predominant Interest dated November 26, 2013, this Initial Decision Settlement is to be filed simultaneously in both agencies.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision Settlement with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION who by law are authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education and the Public Employment Relations Commission do not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

A separate order dated June 29, 2015, approves this settlement relative to EDS 17206-14 and has been filed with the Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

This matter having come before the Department of Education and the Office of Administrative Law on the two petitions filed by the Petitioners Chi Fu and Ping Fu (hereinafter referred to as "Petitioners" or "C.F. and P.F."), on behalf of their minor son, A.F. (DOB August 13, 2008), against the Respondent, Nutley Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "Respondent" or "Board"), seeking, inter alia, relief under the New Jersey HIB statutes and the federal IDEA, the parties herein state as follows:

WHEREAS, Petitioners filed a Petition challenging the Respondent's determination of a substantiated HIB violation; and

WHEREAS, Petitioners filed a Due Process Petition challenging the Respondent's earlier decision to declassify A.F. under the IDEA, the provision of FAPE in-District, prospective program and placement, as well as reimbursement for evaluations and therapies, compensatory education, attorneys fees, consultant costs, etc.; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent Board maintains that the HIB finding was appropriate and the IDEA claims are unfounded; and

WHEREAS, both matters have been assigned to the Honorable Ellen Bass, and while only one hearing will be conducted, separate decisions for each proceeding will be issued as their avenues for review and appeal differ; and

WHEREAS, the Parties, without alleging or admitting any liability and without waiving any position either party has in litigation, have since agreed to amicably resolve the pending actions bearing OAL DKT. NOS. EDU 11339-2014N and EDS 17206-2014N, and Agency Reference Numbers 175-7/2014 and 2015-22053.

WHEREFORE, THE PARTIES HEREBY AGREE THAT:

1. A.F.'s educational placement will remain in-District schools pursuant to his most recent IEP for the 2014-2015 school year.

2. Reference to and all documentation regarding the Respondent's HIB investigation and findings will be deleted from A.F.'s student records. The Superintendent will notify Petitioners in writing confirming that the HIB records have been deleted from A.F.'s student records.

3. Respondent will reimburse Petitioners a portion of the amounts expended for evaluations, attorneys fees, consultant fees, related service therapies, and the like, in the amount of Twenty Four Thousand Dollars ($24,000.00). Payment will be issued to the Attorney Trust Account of the Warshaw Law Firm within sixty (60) days of the approval of this Settlement Agreement and Release into a Final Decision as set forth in Paragraph 11 below.

4. This settlement is the compromise of disputed claims and does not constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by either party, and neither party shall be deemed a prevailing party for any purpose.

5. On behalf of themselves and A.F., Petitioners waive and release any and all claims they may have against the Board, its employees and agents, arising out of or relating to A.F.'s education which were or could have been raised in any petition, complaint, or other filing related to A.F.'s education through the 2014-2015 school year. Petitioners specifically waive any and all claims under State and federal education laws, anti-discrimination laws, civil rights laws, and the like, including but not limited to under the IDEA, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans With Disabilities Act, the Civil Rights Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; and this waiver and release shall apply to all claims including, but not limited to, claims for damages, compensatory education, expert/consultant fees, and attorneys fees (except as set forth in Paragraph 3 above).

6. This Settlement Agreement and Release constitutes the entire agreement of the Parties with respect to all claims and supersedes all prior written or oral and all contemporaneous oral agreements, understandings, and negotiations related to the two petitions specifically identified above.

7. Petitioners represent that they have reviewed the terms of this Agreement with counsel and that they understand the terms contained in each of the paragraphs of this Settlement Agreement and Release. Petitioners represent that they are satisfied with the services of counsel.

8. This Settlement Agreement and Release may be executed in two (2) counterparts, each of which shall be an original but of which, taken together, shall constitute one and the same instrument. This Settlement Agreement and Release cannot be modified or amended except in writing signed by both parties.

9. The parties and their attorneys agree that the terms and the existence of this Settlement Agreement and Release are confidential, and that neither the parties nor their attorneys may disclose the terms contained herein, or the existence of this Settlement Agreement, to any person except as may be required by a Court of law, by a State or federal agency, or by the party or attorney's tax preparer or auditor. In response to any inquiry, the parties may only state that "the matter has been resolved."

10. This Settlement Agreement and Release is subject to the approval of the Nutley Board of Education.

11. This Settlement Agreement and Release will be incorporated into a Final Decision of the Honorable Ellen Bass.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – who was employed in the respondent Board's buildings and grounds department from 1999 to 2012 as a plumber – contended that the Board violated his tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 when it did not renew his contract for the 2012-2013 school year. Petitioner argued that tenure status was conferred upon him in 2007 when the Board entered into a Collectively Negotiated Agreement (CNA) wherein it was agreed that all maintenance and grounds employees who had completed three consecutive years of employment in the district would be entitled to tenure protections pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3; accordingly, the Board's termination of his employment was improper. The Board asserted that petitioner was employed as a plumber and not entitled to the tenure protection conferred by the CNA upon custodial/maintenance and grounds employees.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the primary issue in this matter is whether petitioner's position as plumber fell within the category of custodial/maintenance and grounds employees; an examination of the Board's job descriptions reveals that a "plumber" is a custodial employee who may obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3; once statutory tenure has been achieved, it cannot be waived; the waiver of tenure in the 2010-13 CNA had consequences for those in the bargaining unit who had not yet attained it, but petitioner had achieved tenure and could not be removed unless in a manner sanctioned by the tenure statute. Accordingly, the ALJ granted petitioner's appeal.

The Commissioner determined that the ALJ appropriately granted the petition, but found, inter alia, that: the Initial Decision does not address the consequences of declaring petitioner a tenured employee – such as his entitlement to immediate reinstatement in the district – and outstanding issues concerning back pay and emoluments; and these issues must be determined in order to fully resolve the controversy. Accordingly, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

This dispute concerns whether petitioner obtained statutory tenure protection under the terms of a collective negotiation agreement (CNA) during the course of his employment as a plumber in respondent's district and, if so, whether his tenure rights were violated when the district decided not to renew his employment for the 2012-2013 school year.

The record of this matter[1], along with the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), have been reviewed. Additionally, respondent's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were also considered by the Commissioner. While reflecting its obvious disagreement with the findings and conclusions contained within the Initial Decision, respondent's exceptions are unpersuasive and, essentially, recast and reiterate the arguments made below – which were adequately addressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ).

Upon full and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's comprehensive findings, legal analysis and well-reasoned conclusion that petitioner – a buildings and grounds department employee – gained statutory tenure protection pursuant to Article X of the 2007-2010 agreement[2], which provides: "[a]ll custodial/maintenance and grounds employees who have completed three consecutive years of employment in the school district shall be entitled to tenure protection offered by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3." (Initial Decision at 2) Noting that tenure rights cannot be waived once established, the ALJ further concluded that the subsequent 2010-2013 CNA – which sought to remove the tenure protections awarded by Article X – could not strip petitioner of tenure rights he already possessed, although the new agreement would impact those who had not yet attained tenure. (Initial Decision at 10) Due to petitioner's status as a tenured employee, the district can only lawfully terminate his employment through the means provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 – a reduction in force, or the filing of tenure charges against him. Neither scenario has occurred here.

Although the Commissioner finds that the ALJ appropriately granted the petition, the Initial Decision does not address the consequences of declaring petitioner a tenured employee – particularly in light of the district's ultra vires decision not to renew his employment for the 2012-2013 school year – such as his entitlement to immediate reinstatement in the district, and outstanding issues concerning back pay and emoluments.[3] These determinations are required in order to fully resolve this controversy.

Accordingly, the matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10839-12

AGENCY DKT. NO. 205-7/12

KEVIN GARIFINE,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for petitioner (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

J. Peter Sokol, Esq., for respondent (McOmber & McOmber, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 21, 2014 Decided: June 30, 2015

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter petitioner Kevin Garifine (Garifine) contends that the respondent Board of Education of the City of Long Branch (Long Branch) violated his tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 when it did not renew his contract for the 2012-2013 school year.

Petitioner filed his appeal of Long Branch's decision not to renew his contract with the Office of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education on July 25, 2012, and on August 13, 2012, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. The parties submitted cross motions for summary decision, and on October 23, 2013, the motions were denied. The matter was heard on June 2, 2014, and the record remained open for post hearing submissions. The record closed on August 21, 2014, and the time was extended for the filing of the Initial Decision.

General Facts

Garifine had been employed as a plumber by Long Branch from March 1, 1999 to June 30, 2012. Throughout his employment, Garifine worked under successive one-year contracts as a member of the Building and Grounds Department. According to the job description for "plumber," his responsibilities include ensuring "the safe condition of pipes, drains, and plumbing fixtures" and "[i]nstruct[ing] custodians and maintenance workers on proper methods of procedure and proper use of tools and equipment in plumbing repair work and such other duties as he may be assigned." During each year of his employment, Garifine received a salary increase on a list of "non-affiliated" staff members prepared by the Board. In July 2007, the Board and the Long Branch School Employees Association (LBSEA) entered a collective negotiation agreement (2007-2010 CNA), which was effective until June 30, 2010. According to Article X of the 2007-2010 CNA, "[a]ll custodial/maintenance and grounds employees who have completed three consecutive years of employment in the school district shall be entitled to tenure protection offered by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3." Ibid.

At the end of the 2007-2010 CNA, the Board and Association entered another CNA for 2010-2013 (2010-2013 CNA). According to Article X of the 2010-2013 CNA, "[c]ustodians, matrons, maintenance and grounds employees shall not be entitled to receive or obtain tenure pursuant to this Agreement. Custodians, matrons, maintenance and grounds employees waive any previously obtained tenure status pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement and its predecessor agreements." Ibid.

On March 1, 2012, Garifine was making repairs in the boys' bathroom at Gregory Elementary School. Certain boys reported that Garifine and another Board employee taped the boys' mouths shut and hands together. The Long Branch Police Department, Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, and the Division of Child Protection and Permanency conducted investigations, but declined to bring charges against Garifine. However, after the incident, the Board decided not to offer Garifine a new contract for the 2012-2013 school year. Therefore, Garifine's employment with the Board ended on June 30, 2012. The Board did not file tenure charges against Garifine, and his loss of employment was not the result of a reduction-in-force.

Testimony

In support of his case, petitioner testified, along with Brian Furey, a representative of the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA). Garifine also placed Exhibits P-1 through 5 in evidence. Petitioner first presented the testimony of Furey. From his review of NJEA membership records, he found Garifine to be a full member of the Long Branch School Employees Association (LBSEA) (P-1 and 2).

Garifine testified that he started work in Long Branch in 1999 as a plumber. He was evaluated by and reported to the Building and Grounds Manager and was listed under Maintenance on the district's internet site (P-4). He stated that his duties did not include just plumbing. At the start of his work day he would check his mailbox for the day's work orders which could include snow plowing and shoveling, masonry work and work on the heating and air conditioning systems. His duties also included making and setting up props for the school plays and repair work on auditorium seats. Additionally, if custodians were not available he did custodial work as directed. He testified that he received a base salary as Building and Grounds staff member with a stipend for plumbing.

On cross examination, Garifine was questioned regarding his job description (R-1). He did not disagree that his job title was that of "plumber," but did not waiver in his assertion that his job duties included other work assigned to him on a regular basis by his building and grounds supervisor. He agreed that he had never been part of the tenure recognition ceremonies at Board meetings, but said he was unaware that such ceremonies occurred. He acknowledged that his pay schedule differed from that of other buildings and grounds employees.

Respondent presented the testimony of Janet Dudick, Long Branch's Administrator for Human Resources. She reviewed respondent's job descriptions for Plumber, Maintenance Worker and Custodian (R-1, 2 and 3), as well as the Resolution non renewing Garifine's contract in 2012 (R-4). Dudick identified petitioner's annual contracts with Long Branch and noted that he was denominated in each as a "non-certificated" staff member (R-5), and that custodial and maintenance staff were compensated on a "step" basis as set forth in a custodians' salary guide (R-16). She presented examples of board minutes wherein tenure certificates were awarded noting that Garifine was not one of them. Positing that Garifine was" non affiliated staff" (R-8), she did admit that at times his salary increases were in line with "affiliated" staff.

With regard to the tenure provision at issue here, she reviewed the waiver of tenure in the 2010 agreement between Long Branch and LBSEA. Under cross examination, she agreed that the 2007-10 CNA granted tenure to custodian, matrons, and maintenance and grounds employees. Dudick defined "non-affiliated" employees as those not recognized in the bargaining agreements, acknowledging that plumber was not excluded from the bargaining agreements.

A review of the record and testimony in this matter shows that Garifine was a full member of the LBSEA. Both he and Furey were credible in their testimony that petitioner was a full member of the association. Garifine also was credible in his description of his daily job duties as a member of the Buildings and Maintenance Department at Long Branch. His duties were broader than those of just a plumber and he performed maintenance related functions on a regular basis as directed by his supervisor.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The ultimate issue in this matter is whether Garifine obtained tenure under the 2007-2010 CNA such that the Board violated his tenure rights by terminating his employment through a resolution to non-renew his employment contract. If Garifine was not covered by the 2007-2010 CNA, the Board could not have conferred tenure on him under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and, thus, the Board could have properly resolved to non-renew his contract for the 2012-2013 school year. However, if Garifine was covered by the 2007-2010 CNA, and he was a custodial employee, then he would have obtained tenure in 2007 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. However, whether the Board then violated his tenure rights by non-renewing his contract is complicated by the fact that the tenure conveyed by the 2007 agreement was then explicitly waived in the ensuing 2010 contract.

Before determining these issues, however, it must be acknowledged that the Department of Education, in transmitting this matter to the OAL, noted a "[p]ossible jurisdictional issue, as petitioner relies on a Memorandum of Agreement for his tenure claim." While the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction over all matters arising under the school laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, such jurisdiction does not extend to disputes that are purely contractual in nature. Archway Programs, Inc. v. Pemberton Twp. Bd. of Educ., 352 N.J. Super. 420, 424-25 (App. Div. 2002) (citations omitted). However, the Commissioner has incidental jurisdiction to interpret a contract if necessary to resolve a dispute arising under the school laws, New Jersey Educ. Ass'n v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 481, and this school law claim requires an incidental interpretation of the CNA to determine whether Garifine obtained tenure.

Turning to the issues arising out of Garifine's claim to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, "Tenure of janitorial employees," provides:

> Every public school janitor of a school district shall, unless he is appointed for a fixed term, hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except as the result of the reduction of the number of janitors in the district made in accordance with the provisions of this title or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by [the Tenure Employees Hearing Law.]

Under the 2007-2010 CNA, the Board and Association agreed that "[a]ll custodial/maintenance and grounds employees who have completed three consecutive years of employment in the school district shall be entitled to tenure protections offered by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3." At the time of the agreement, Garifine had been employed for eight consecutive years. Thus, the question becomes whether Garifine, a plumber, was a "custodial/maintenance and grounds employee" who could gain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.

While Board documents show Garifine as a non affiliated employee, he was clearly a full member of the LBSEA, as well as a staff member of the Buildings and Grounds department. "All custodians, matrons, maintenance men and groundsmen" employed in that department were part of the LBSEA bargaining unit. As he was not specifically excluded from the unit, it is necessary to determine if his position comes within the purview of custodians, matrons, maintenance men or groundsmen.

It is, of course, true that "[t]he duties performed rather than the title of the position must be controlling in determining whether a position is protected by tenure." Barnes v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Jersey City, 1963 S.L.D. 240, 247, State Bd. of Educ. (December 4, 1963) (quotation omitted), aff'd, 85 N.J. Super. 42 (App. Div. 1964), certif. denied, 43 N.J. 450 (1964). Here, the Board argues that its job description for "plumber" is so different from that for "custodian" that Garifine, a plumber, was not granted tenure under the 2007-2010 CNA because a plumber is not within the purview of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. However, an examination of the Board's job descriptions reveals that a "plumber" is a custodial employee who may obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.

The Board utilizes separate titles for custodians, maintenance workers, and plumbers. The essential function of a custodian is "custodial work involving independent activity to keep the school clean, sanitary, and in orderly condition[.]" A maintenance worker "[p]erforms inspections, maintenance, and general repairs to ensure that all students, staff and the community are provided a safe, attractive and clean, and healthy environment for learning and work." And, a plumber must "maintain the physical school plant in a condition of operating excellence[.]" A plumber "[d]etermines which repair jobs may be performed by plumbers, custodians, and maintenance workers on the staff[,]" and "instructs custodians and maintenance workers on proper methods of procedure and proper use of tools and equipment in plumbing repair work."

Thus, while different titles are used for custodians, maintenance workers, and plumbers, and these employees do not perform all of the same tasks, each is generally responsible for custodial work necessary to keep a school in orderly condition. Indeed, these three categories of workers must work together at times as a plumber "instructs custodians and maintenance workers on proper methods of procedure and proper use of tools and equipment in plumbing repair work."

While there are separate titles for custodians, maintenance workers, and plumbers, the Board, in effect, acknowledged in the 2010-2013 CNA that it considers all of those positions to fall under the general category of "custodians," as that term, when used in the CNA, refers "to all matrons, custodians, maintenance men and groundsmen[.]" Even though "plumber" is not specifically listed, the type of work performed by a "plumber" certainly qualifies Garifine as maintenance personnel, and thus a "custodian" as that term is defined in the CNA.

The conclusion that a "plumber" may obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 is supported by both judicial and administrative decisions. In Barnes, the Appellate Division noted that R.S. 18:5-66.1 and 18:5-67, the precursors to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and 17-4, "extend tenure to any janitor, janitor-engineer, custodian or janitorial employee," and held that "[o]ur consideration of the statutes in light of the principle of liberal construction satisfies us that the Legislature used the terms janitor, custodian, etc., in a generic sense with the intent to include all janitorial and custodial employees."[1] Barnes, supra, 85 N.J. Super. at 45-46.

In Keaney v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Bloomfield, EDU 5881-03, 2005 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 415, Initial Decision (July 28, 2005), adopted, Comm'r (August 31, 2005), ALJ Springer found that a "carpenter" qualified for tenure protection as a janitorial employee under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. In that case, the judge noted that the school board "organize[d] its building support staff into two subdivisions: custodians (who clean buildings and do routine janitorial tasks) and maintenance/trade workers (who perform more skilled types of labor. Trade workers are further divided into various specialized categories, namely carpenters, electricians, plumbers, and painters." Id. at 3.

According to ALJ Springer, "[c]ourts broadly construe the term 'janitor' [under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3] to extend to all school employees generally engaged in cleaning, upkeep or repair functions." Id. at 17-18 (citing Barnes, supra, 85 N.J. Super. 42). The judge also noted that "the Commissioner has uniformly treated the current janitorial tenure statute as affording tenure rights to a wide range of janitorial-type job titles, such as maintenance man." Id. at 18 (citing Lauffer v. Bd. of Educ. of Leonia, 1984 S.L.D. 1290; Atlantic City Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Atlantic City, EDU 10335-98, Initial Decision (Aug. 19, 1999), adopted, Comm'r (Oct. 7, 1999), aff'd, St. Bd. (March 1, 2000); Reinersten v. Bd. of Educ. of East Brunswick, EDU 10328-97, Comm'r (July 8, 1998); Brunner v. Bd. of Educ. of Camden, 1960 S.L.D. 155). As such, the judge concluded that the carpenter, Keaney, "was eligible for tenure in a janitorial or custodial position." Id. at 18-19. The Commissioner adopted ALJ Springer's decision as the final decision, stating that "the ALJ provided an accurate and comprehensive presentation of existing law in reaching each of his conclusions, with which the Commissioner fully concurs." Thus, under the reasoning of Keaney, if a tradesman such as a carpenter may qualify for protection under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, the same is true of a plumber.

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 provides,

> No board of education shall reduce the number of janitors, janitor engineers, custodians or janitorial employees in any district by reason of residence, age, sex, race, religion or political affiliation and when any janitor, janitor engineer, custodian or janitorial employee under tenure is dismissed by reason of reduction in the number of such employees, the one having the least number of years to his credit shall be dismissed in preference to any other having a longer term of service and the person so dismissed shall be and remain upon a preferred eligibility list, in the order of years of service, for reemployment whenever vacancies occur and shall be reemployed by the board in such order and upon reemployment shall be given full recognition for previous years of service in his respective positions and employments.

Contrary to the Board's assertion, it was possible for Garifine to attain tenure pursuant to the 2007-2010 CNA despite the fact that he worked under successive fixed term contracts. While the Board correctly points out that N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 provides tenure for janitorial employees who are hired for an indefinite period, and not fixed terms, the Appellate Division and Supreme Court decisions in Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of East Orange, 194 N.J. Super. 181 (App. Div. 1983), aff'd, 99 N.J. 112 (1985), recognized another method by which a school board could grant tenure to a janitorial employee. In Wright, a janitor had worked for a school board for seven years under successive one-year contracts when the school board and his union entered a collective bargaining agreement in which it was agreed that "[a]ll members of the bargaining unit shall receive tenure after three years of employment." Wright, supra, 194 N.J. Super. at 183-84. A year after the CNA went into effect, the school board terminated the janitor's contract. Id. at 183. The school board argued that the CNA provision was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, because under the statute a janitor cannot obtain tenure if he is employed for fixed terms. Id. at 184. The Appellate Division disagreed, holding that,

> [B]ecause N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 clearly affords a school district the option of deciding whether it wishes to grant tenure to a janitor, we do not accept respondent's contention that the collective bargaining agreement is in derogation of that statute. The manner in which a school district may grant tenure under the statute is by appointing a janitor for an indefinite term. Therefore, the provision in the contract that "[a]ll members of the bargaining unit shall receive tenure after three years of employment" obligated respondent to appoint Wright for an indefinite term after he had completed three years of employment.

The Supreme Court affirmed, explaining that under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, "a janitor employed without a fixed term contract will gain tenure immediately upon beginning employment" and that, "[o]n the other hand, the statute allows an employment board to deny tenure to all custodians, as an appointment for a fixed term is an appointment without statutory-mandated tenure." Wright, supra, 99 N.J. at 119. But, the Court held that school boards have "flexibility" to choose an alternative between these two extremes, stating that the CNA provision in question, "which grant[ed] tenure after three years of employment, is but one example of a clause that falls between N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3's outer limits without derogating the statute's intent." Id. at 119-20.

Of particular note is the Court's acknowledgement that "[e]ven the acquisition of tenure under a negotiated labor agreement is not a promise of continued employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 still safeguards the boards' right to dismiss custodians because of a reduction in force or due to misconduct, inefficiency, and other good cause." Id. at 122. Thus, a school board may grant statutory tenure to janitorial employees through a CNA, but once granted, the school board may only dismiss a tenured janitorial employee through the means provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, which provides that a tenured janitorial employee can be dismissed through a reduction-in-force or in accordance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law.

Here, like in Wright, the Board chose to grant tenure to janitorial employees, like Garifine, who had served for three years. And, like in Wright, once Garifine obtained tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, the Board could only remove him pursuant to the Tenure Employees Hearing Law or a reduction-in-force. While, the tenure granted in the 2007-2010 CNA was waived in the subsequent 2010-2013 CNA, the tenure originally granted specifically referenced the statutory tenure countenanced by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. As conceded by respondent in its post hearing submission, once statutory tenure has been achieved, it cannot be waived. While the the waiver of tenure in the 2010-13 CNA had consequences for those in the bargaining unit who had not yet attained it, Garifine had achieved tenure and therefore could not be removed unless in a manner sanctioned by the statute. K.I., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, A.M.,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the respondent Board's determination that her child, A.M., was not entitled to a free public education in the Township of West Orange schools during the 2014-2015 school year. Petitioner asserted that her legal domicile is with her parents in West Orange, but that for security reasons she was temporarily living with her boyfriend in Orange. Petitioner contended, however, that A.M. stayed with her grandparents in West Orange during the week. The respondent Board argued that a residency investigation had revealed that K.I. and A.M. were not domiciled in West Orange, but instead lived in Orange. The Board sought reimbursement for tuition from the beginning of the residency investigation on February 26, 2015, through the date of notification to petitioner on April 20, 2015 that the Board had voted to remove A.M. from its schools, as well as for the balance of the 2014-2015 school year. A hearing in the matter was held at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 2, 2015.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: during the respondent's residency investigation, repeated surveillance at petitioner's purported West Orange address failed to detect petitioner or A.M. leaving the residence to go to A.M.'s school, which is around the corner from the house in question; petitioner and A.M. were observed multiple times leaving an address in Orange in the early morning hours; a residency hearing was conducted by the respondent Board on April 13, 2015; K.I. credibly testified that she had been staying in Orange with her boyfriend during the period of the residency investigation because of a restraining order against A.M.'s father; no further investigation was conducted subsequent to the April residency hearing; and following that hearing, A.M. resided with her parents for the rest of the school year. The ALJ concluded that petitioner did not live in West Orange from February to April 2015, but did reside in the district after the April residency hearing, since the Board submitted no proof to find otherwise. Accordingly, the ALJ determined that the Board is entitled to recover tuition for the thirty-two school days A.M. attended school in West Orange from February to April 2015, and ordered petitioner to pay the Board the amount of $2,738.24. The petition was dismissed.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter[1] and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of West Orange Township between February 26, 2015 and April 20, 2015. In fact, petitioner testified that she and her daughter left the West Orange residence (where petitioner's parents reside) and were residing in Orange, New Jersey throughout the time period in question. (Initial Decision at 2) As a result, A.M. was not eligible to receive a free public education in West Orange during this time.[2] Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $2,738.24 ($85.57/day for 32 days) – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b – as detailed in the Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the

[2] Although the Board sought tuition reimbursement through the end of the 2014-2015 school year, the Initial Decision suggests that petitioner and her child returned to West Orange after April 20, 2015 for the remainder of the school year and further indicates that the Board did not submit any proofs in support of its claim for tuition costs incurred between April 21, 2015 and June 19, 2015. Stephen J. Christiano, Esq, for respondent

Record Closed: July 2, 2015 Decided: July 9, 2015

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALAJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 8, 2015, petitioner, K.I., filed a residency appeal on behalf of her child, A.M., a kindergartener at the Redwood school. On May 15, 2015, the Township of West Orange Board of Education (BOE or respondent) filed an Answer with the State Department of Education (DOE) seeking reimbursement from petitioner for the costs of tuition incurred by the attendance of her minor child in the BOE's school district from the beginning of the investigation on February 26, 2015, through the date of respondent's vote on April 20, 2015, at a cost of $2,738.24 and for the remainder of the school year until June 19, 2015, at a total cost of $ 6, 503.32. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 18, 2015, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The parties appeared and were heard on July 2, 2015, on which date the record closed.

Gerard Drappi, a retired West Orange Police Department lieutenant and respondent's investigator for the past four years, testified on behalf of respondent. Drappi submitted a report of the investigation commencing February 26, 2015, and ending on or about April 8, 2015, to which I FIND as uncontroverted FACT. (R-3.)

In the morning hours of February 26, February 27, and March 2, 2015, Drappi conducted surveillance at 39 Woodland Avenue, West Orange, and did not observe petitioner or her daughter, A.M., leave this residence to go to school, which is around the corner. Drappi observed petitioner and her daughter drive to the West Orange address after school on March 4, 2015. K.I. parked in the driveway with emergency flashers on and Drappi left the area at 5:00 p.m. On March 9, 2015, at 7:50 a.m., Drappi observed petitioner, her daughter, and an adult male enter her vehicle at a residence on Lincoln Avenue in Orange. On March 10, 11, 13, 16, 17, 18 (A.M. was absent from school), 19, 20, 23, 24, 26 (A.M. was absent from school), 27, 30, and 31, 2015, Drappi observed petitioner and her daughter leaving the Orange residence between the hours of 7:45 and 8:20 a.m. The vehicle was also observed at the Orange address during Spring break. No other investigation was conducted. A residency hearing was conducted by the respondent on April 13, 2015.

K.I. credibly testified that she had been staying in Orange with her boyfriend during that time because of a restraining order against the father of her child and she was afraid. She had moved out of her Lodi residence and moved in with her parents in West Orange. Petitioner provided her driver's license, court document, Capitol One Auto Finance statement, Geico insurance card, 2014 W-2, and student loan statement, all with the West Orange address dating back to 2014. There was no investigation conducted after the April residency meeting and A.M. resided with her parents for the rest of the school year.

I therefore also FIND that A.M. did not reside in West Orange from February to April 2015 as indicated by Investigator Drappi but resided in West Orange after the April meeting with K.I and respondent, since there is no proof submitted by respondent to find otherwise.

The individual cost to the BOE for the period of time for K.I. from February 26, 2015, through April 20, 2015 (thirty-two days), is $2738.24. (R-4.) This was calculated upon the daily cost for one student at the rate of $85.57. These costs are undisputed.

BOE has sustained its burden of proof with respect to its counterclaim for tuition as to K.I. for the thirty-two days of attendance at the public schools of BOE. They did not prove, however, eligibility for tuition cost after April 20, 2015. There are no proofs submitted to prove non-residency after that date.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The issue in this appeal is whether A.M. was a domiciled student during the thirty-two days she attended school in West Orange.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years in certain circumstances, including individuals who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is the domicile of the parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). Thus, a child would routinely attend school in the district where his or her parents live.

Based upon the facts adduced, I CONCLUDE that A.M. was not domiciled in West Orange during the thirty-two school days she attended school in West Orange.

The Board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). "Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance . . . ." Ibid. Drappi testified that the per diem rate is $85.57 per day. A.M. was ineligible to attend school in West Orange during part of the 2014-2015 school year and she has accumulated thirty-two days of ineligible attendance.

BOE's proofs as to ineligibility for attendance and as to the tuition rate are convincing and satisfy its burden of proof for the counterclaim from February 26, 2015, through April 20, 2015. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that K.I. must pay BOE tuition calculated at the rates previously referenced for her child as to her attendance at BOE's public school during their ineligibility period. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the total due the Board as is $2,738.24.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition of petitioner, K.I., be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. It is further ORDERED that K.I. reimburse respondent the total sum of $2,738.24 for tuition costs associated with the attendance of her child A.M. in West Orange from February 26, 2015, through April 20, 2015.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. CITY ASSOCIATION OF SUPERVISORS AND ADMINISTRATORS,

PETITIONER,

V.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, the City Association of Supervisors and Administrators (Association), asserted that the respondent District violated the tenure rights of seven Association members by transferring them to positions at the District's central office. The Association sought the reinstatement of its members to positions as building principals, together with reimbursement for lost benefits and emoluments of employment. The respondent contended that the positions to which these principals were transferred are within the scope of their certifications and that, accordingly, their tenure rights were not violated. In an Initial Decision dated August 27, 2014, the ALJ agreed with the Association that its members' rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 had been violated, and ordered the District to restore them to positions as building principals in accordance with their tenure entitlements. In a decision dated January 12, 2015, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a more fully developed record relative to the District's arguments that its actions should be upheld pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b)(2) and N.J.A.C. 6A:33-1.1(b)2.

On remand, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: since the issuance of the OAL's August 2014 Initial Decision, only two of the administrators on whose behalf the Association had filed its claims – Zakiyya Razzaq and Gerald Samuels – remain employed by the District; for the five administrators no longer working in the district, this matter is moot; this case was returned to the ALJ for further consideration regarding the District's obligations to "turn around" failing schools under No Child Left Behind (NCLB), and whether those obligations include a concomitant right to remove the principal of a failing building, without concern for the principal's tenure rights; at no time did the District contend that Gerald Samuels was transferred to the central office as part of a larger plan to rehabilitate failing schools, but rather his transfer was an executive decision made to replace Samuels as the leader of his school building; regarding Zakiyya Razzaq, N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b) grants the Commissioner the authority to direct staff reassignments in failing schools, but contains no language that would permit such reassignments to violate employee tenure rights; and the law remains clear that "all teaching staff members and other employees of a district under full State intervention shall retain and continue to acquire all rights and privileges acquired pursuant to Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes," N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-40(b). The ALJ concluded that the actions of the District in assigning Samuels and Razzaq to central office positions violated their rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the District to restore Samuels and Razzaq to positions as building principals in accordance with their tenure entitlements.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, the Commissioner noted that only Gerald Samuels continues to be employed by the District, which was accordingly directed to restore Samuels to a building principal position in accordance with his tenure entitlement.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The City Association of Supervisors and Administrators (CASA) contends that the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (the District) improperly transferred seven of its members to positions at the District's central office. In an Initial Decision dated August 27, 2014, I agreed with CASA that its members' rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 had been violated. This matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by way of remand by the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner). In a decision dated January 12, 2015, the Commissioner asked for a more fully developed record relative to the District's arguments that its actions should be upheld pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b)(2) and N.J.A.C. 6A:33-1.1(b)(2).

CASA filed its appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on November 2, 2012. An answer was filed on behalf of the District on January 16, 2013, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on January 17, 2013. Hearings were conducted on March 26, 2014, April 30, 2014, and May 15, 2014. At the close of petitioner's case, the District made several motions to dismiss. A motion to dismiss the petition in its entirety was denied on the record. I reserved decision on a motion to dismiss the petition as to Donna Marable on timeliness grounds, and invited counsel to more fully brief this issue post-hearing. A motion to dismiss the petition as to Lavonne Pack was granted on the record, as she had retired from the district, did not appear at the hearing, or present any proofs in support of her claims.

Upon remand, the matter was returned to the OAL on January 13, 2015. The District supplemented the record with certifications and briefs on May 15, 2015, and CASA replied on June 16, 2015, at which time the record closed.

ISSUE PRESENTED

The Commissioner has presented the issue on remand as follows:

> . . . the Commissioner is not persuaded that the district's position with respect to the authority granted to him pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b)(2) and N.J.A.C. 6A:33-1.1(b)(2) was fully explored and considered. Accordingly, he hereby remands this matter to the OAL for further development of the record and recommendations with respect to the arguments raised by the District [in this regard].

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts which gave rise to this dispute are as set forth in the Initial Decision, (C-1.) Since the issuance of that decision, only two of the administrators on whose behalf CASA had filed its claims remain employed by the District: Zakiyya Razzaq and Gerald Samuels.

Razzaq was moved from her position as a building principal at Cleveland School and reassigned to the central office in the aftermath of an extensive initiative by District administration to reorganize failing schools. Cleveland School was designated a "renew school" at the time of Razzaq's transfer. By contrast, Samuels was removed from Speedway School; but, per the testimony of Assistant Superintendent Roger Leon, this transfer was based upon an "executive decision" to change principals at Speedway.

A certification submitted by Leon in support of the District's position on remand amplifies the factual record with additional details regarding the "action taken by the School District with respect to schools 'in need of improvement'." Under the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB), 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 6301 et seq., these are schools that have repeatedly failed to make adequate yearly progress in meeting state academic standards. In Newark, these failing schools were designated "renew schools." Leon urged that this designation was "an educational policy decision made in light of the urgent need perceived by the State District Superintendent for drastic change in those schools to improve student achievement." The school from which Samuels was removed ultimately was designated a "renew school" as well, but not until 2014.

Leon reviewed the measures that the District took to attempt to improve instruction at these failing schools. He notes that the "renew school" model was taken from guidance provided to school districts by the Department of Education in connection with School Improvement Grants (SIG) available for use in schools eligible for Federal Title I funds. Interestingly though, Leon nowhere advises that Newark either applied for such a grant, or was the recipient of such a grant. Schools that did receive an SIG were required to implement one of four school intervention models. In Newark, "renew schools" implemented the "turnaround model" described in the Notice of Grant

Opportunity (NGO). Leon stresses that, under the "turnaround model," the NGO requires that a district

> Replace the principal and grant the new principal sufficient operational flexibility (including in staffing, calendars/time, and budgeting) to implement fully a comprehensive approach in order to substantially improve student achievement outcomes and increase high school graduation rates.
> [Exhibit A to Leon certification (emphasis supplied).]

But it bears reiteration that Leon did not indicate that Newark received an SIG or thus was specifically bound by any provisions of the NGO.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

As to five of the principals whose rights were analyzed in my first Initial Decision, I CONCLUDE that this matter is moot, to include Joann Gilmore, James Carlo, Roy Wilson, Donna Marable, and Lavonne Pack. An action is moot when it no longer presents a justiciable controversy because the issues raised have become academic. For reasons of judicial economy and restraint it is appropriate to refrain from decision-making when an issue presented is hypothetical, judgment cannot grant effective relief, or the parties do not have a concrete adversity of interest. Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J. Super. 432, 437 (Ch. Div. 1976); Fox v. Twp. of E. Brunswick Bd. of Educ., EDU 10067-98, Initial Decision (March 19, 1999), aff'd, Comm'r (May 3, 1999), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; S.J. v. Bd. of Educ. of Mountain Lakes, EDU 07081-03, Initial Decision (October 7, 2003), aff'd, Comm'r (Nov. 17, 2003), aff'd, St. Bd. (Feb. 3, 2004), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

My earlier decision in this matter determined that, notwithstanding the violation of the rights of the transferred principals, there was no salary, nor any benefits or emoluments of employment, to which they were entitled. My order directed only that the petitioning principals be transferred back to positions of employment that fell within the scope of their tenure protections. But having resigned from the District, there would now be no relief available to these former building principals. Any decision that I would render in regard to the rights of the principals who resigned would be purely academic.

The concern that brought this matter back before me for further consideration centers on the District's obligations to "turn around" failing schools under NCLB, and whether those obligations include a concomitant right to remove the principal of a failing building, without concern for his or her tenure rights. Relative to Samuels, my earlier determination is thus unaffected whatsoever by the issues raised by this remand. At no time did the District contend that Samuels was transferred to central office as part of a greater plan to rehabilitate failing schools, which included closing schools and creating "renew schools." Rather, an administrative determination was made to replace Samuels as the leader of his school building. While the District may surely exercise its discretion in this fashion, it may not do so without regard to Samuels's tenure rights. Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in my Initial Decision, I CONCLUDE that the action of the District in transferring Samuels to a central office position violated his tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

The Commissioner's remand decision thus requires only that I further analyze the District's actions as they pertain to Zakiyya Razzaq. I remain unpersuaded that the District's obligations to rehabilitate failing schools allow it to abrogate Razzaq's tenure rights. The District unsuccessfully renews it arguments that NCLB mandates a different result. It points out that the United States Department of Education has viewed changes in leadership as vital in turning around academic achievement. 74 Fed. Reg. 59776 (Nov. 18, 2009). Under NCLB, the corrective action needed to rehabilitate a failing school may include "restructuring," and the implementation of "alternative governance arrangements." See 20 U.S.C.A. § 6316(b)(8)(B). These arrangements may include "replacing all or most of the school staff (which may include the principal) who are relevant to the failure to make adequate yearly progress." 20 U.S.C.A. §6316(b)(8)(ii) and (v). Consistent with Federal mandates, recent New Jersey regulations include "staff retraining or reassignment" among the appropriate responses if school improvement efforts fail. See N.J.A.C. 6A:33-2.5(b)(2)(ii).

But the fact that both state and federal law require drastic measures to improve failing schools, to include the possible removal of the building principal, begs the question of what rights the principal retains once she is so removed from her position of employment. Neither the federal nor the state statutory schemes for school improvement expressly abrogate statutory tenure rights. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b), grants the Commissioner the authority to direct staff reassignments in failing schools, but contains no language that would permit such reassignments to violate employee tenure rights. The District points to comments offered during the regulatory adoption process that question if a local district would be compelled to file tenure charges against the principal of a failing school. The District notes that the Department of Education assured the public that tenure charges would not be needed because nothing in the rule requires the dismissal of a principal, rather than reassignment. See 45 N.J.R. 1637(a), comment 19 and response. But a review of that agency response nonetheless indicates quite clearly that, "the Commissioner has the flexibility to reassign the removed principal to another position within the school district, consistent with applicable State law and regulation." Ibid. (emphasis supplied).

Petitioners point out, correctly so, that N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-6(b) grants the Commissioner broad powers to take the steps needed to repair failing schools, to include restructuring curriculum or programs, directing staff training or retaining; and, "notwithstanding any provisions of [N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.] to the contrary, reviewing the terms of future collective bargaining agreements." Thus, they urge, quite persuasively, that if the legislature had intended to allow the Commissioner to remove a principal from a failing school "notwithstanding his or her rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5," it would have expressly said so.

Leon's certification amplifies the challenges facing a district with failing schools, and indeed, it is those very failures that resulted, years ago, in a takeover of the Newark schools by the Department of Education. Nonetheless, the law remains clear that "all teaching staff members and other employees of a district under full State intervention shall retain and continue to acquire all rights and privileges acquired pursuant to Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-40(b); see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-43.

Federal law and regulation likewise do not specifically abrogate state tenure entitlements, and like the New Jersey Department of Education, the federal education agency noted during commentary on the regulations implementing NCLB as follows:

> Finally we wish to clarify that the requirements for the turnaround model do not require "blanket firings" of staff. The Department agrees that staff should be carefully evaluated before any replacement decisions are made and has added new language requiring LEAs to use "locally adopted competencies to measure the effectiveness of staff who can work within the turnaround environment to meet the needs of students." If required by State laws or union contracts, principals and staff may have to be reassigned to other schools as necessary.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, and expressed in my earlier decision bearing docket number EDU 09217-10, I CONCLUDE that the action of the District, in assigning Razzaq to a central office position, violated her rights under N.J.S.A. 18A: 28-5.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the District restore CASA members Samuels and Razzaq to positions as building principals in accordance with their tenure entitlements. As to the remaining principals represented by CASA, their claims are DISMISSED as moot.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3311-15, Agency Dkt. No. 48-3/15

Dear Counsel:

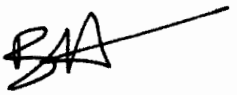
I have reviewed the submissions filed in connection with Administrative Law Judge Joan Bedrin Murray's oral denial of Respondents' motion to dismiss.[1]

Upon full consideration of all of the submitted materials, I have determined that because the decision was made orally without any explanation, I cannot determine from the record whether the ALJ properly denied the respondents' motion to dismiss. It appears from the parties submissions that there were certain procedural arguments raised by the respondents – including whether the action is barred by the entire controversy doctrine – that should be decided prior to the continuation of this matter.

[1] The respondents contend that their motion to dismiss should have been converted by the ALJ into a motion for summary decision. The petitioner maintains that no motion for summary decision has been placed under consideration because the ALJ did not appear to determine to treat the respondents' papers as a motion for summary decision, nor do the papers submitted by the respondents independently satisfy the requirements for same.

Accordingly, the ALJ is directed to issue a decision on the respondents' motion to dismiss that addresses the procedural arguments advanced by the respondents.[2] The discovery order shall remain stayed until a ruling on the motion to dismiss is issued.[3]

Sincerely,



William Haldeman
Acting Commissioner

[2] It remains at the discretion of the ALJ as to whether the respondents' motion to dismiss should be converted to a motion for summary decision. Once the motion to dismiss is decided by the ALJ, the parties may again seek interlocutory review.

Arbitrator's Decision

By the May 21, 2015 appointment letter from the Department of Education of the State of New Jersey, I was appointed Arbitrator in the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Arnold Anderson, School District of the City of New Brunswick, Middlesex County, Agency Docket No. 96-4/15.

Following extensive interlocutory briefing and argument by the parties, I granted Respondent's Motion to dismiss the inefficiency charges. My Decision is incorporated herein by reference.

The balance of this proceeding involves Respondent's chronic tardiness as conduct unbecoming. The Roosevelt School Principal meticulously tracked Respondent's cascades of tardiness, none of which is plausibly explained by Respondent. At most, Respondent uses micro-quibbles of a few unpersuasive explanations, with a macro-default position that even when he is late he nevertheless delivers a superb educational experience to his grateful students. In a recent period of chronic tardiness in the 2013—2014 academic year, Respondent was late "49 times after 8:40 a.m. and 16 late punch-in times of five or more minutes".... "for the 2014---2015 school year 40 times after 8:40 a.m. and six additional late punch in times of 5 or more minutes as of March 20, 2015."

I find that the parties' extreme positions are untenable, going forward. There is no doubt that the District has proven conduct unbecoming chronic tardiness. Assuming arguendo that Respondent is "all business" once he arrives, his self-serving inflated characterization of his substantive abilities misses the essential point. His students are fully entitled to receive Respondent's very best efforts for the entire period, and not merely for that remaining portion of the period following Respondent's chronically late arrivals.

I am intrigued by Respondent's innovative legal argument that Respondent's notorious tardiness record does not somehow warrant a severe sanction. Ultimately, however, abstract theory does not carry the day for Respondent. He offers no credible explanations for his proven tardiness record. Withholding increment increases does not seem to have captured Respondent's attention sufficient to dramatically improve his punctuality. Nevertheless, Respondent is entitled to due process and fundamental fairness. Due process is best understood as that which is due under the circumstances. With a decade and a half of service, progressive discipline and due process sufficiently militate against summary discharge in this case. Once charges are so well proven, I believe that the Employer is usually entitled to the imposition of the penalty sought. This is the established Elkouri principle. This case presents the rare exception to the general rule, and is also in full accord with the Elkouri principle.

DECISION

RESPONDENT SHALL RETURN TO WORK IN FULL PAY STATUS ON THE FIRST DAY OF SCHEDULED CLASSES FOLLOWING JANUARY 1, 2016.

He shall be in a no-pay disciplinary status for the proven conduct unbecoming of chronic tardiness, until he returns to full pay status as set forth above.

So Ordered,

David L. Gregory

I, David L. Gregory, affirm that I have executed this document as my Decision as Arbitrator in this matter on this 19th Day of August, 2015.

TATBIT COMPANY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION ON
MIDDLESEX REGIONAL EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION, MIDDLESEX COUNTY; MTBE ELECTRIC, LLC; AND REDMANN ELECTRIC CO., INC.,	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.[1] Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.[2]

[1] The exceptions submitted by the petitioner were not considered because there is no regulation that provides for exceptions on emergent relief.

[2] On August 6, 2015, the ALJ submitted an "Amended Order" on Emergent Relief wherein she indicated that the petitioner only sought emergent relief and that there were no further issues left to be determined. However, there is no indication in the record that the parties have agreed that there are no further issues to be determined.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Mailing: 8/21/15

Additionally, a matter cannot be closed out by an Order on Emergent Relief unless the ALJ recites that the judge and the parties agree there are no further issues for determination, in which case the Commissioner will request that the Clerk return the file pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3. Otherwise, an initial decision is necessary for OAL to close and return the file.

[3] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

EMERGENT RELIEF
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 09888-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 157-7/15

TATBIT COMPANY,

Petitioner,

v.

MIDDLESEX REGIONAL EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION; MIDDLESEX COUNTY; MTB ELECTRIC, LLC; & REDMANN ELECTRIC CO., INC.,

Respondents.

Stephen Bialkowski, Esq., and Alexandra Litvin, Esq., for petitioner

Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., for respondent Middlesex Regional Educational Services Commission (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl, attorneys)

Gerald Salerno, Esq., for respondent Redmann Electric Co., Inc. (Aaronsohn Weiner Salerno Bremer & Kaufman, attorneys)

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

In this request for emergent relief, petitioner Tatbit Company (hereinafter "Tatbit") seeks an order enjoining respondent the Middlesex Regional Educational Services Commission (hereinafter the "Commission") from awarding bids to respondent MTB Electric, Inc. (hereinafter "MTB") and respondent Redmann Electric Co., Inc. (hereinafter "Redmann"), and/or in the alternative invaliding the bid awards to MTB and Redmann. Respondents Commission and Redmann assert that Tatbit has not satisfied the requirements necessary to obtain emergent relief.[1]

Tatbit, an electrical contractor, was a bidder to the Commission, which operates as a lead agency of a cooperative purchasing system. The Commission solicits bids for various goods and services on behalf of its members, which include in excess of 920 New Jersey public entities. On June 23, 2015, the Commission accepted multiple bids from potential vendors for electrical services.

The Commission awarded the bid for eight counties (Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Morris, Passaic, Somerset, Sussex and Union) to MTB, and for one county (Middlesex) to Redmann. Though Tatbit submitted bids in all nine of these counties, the Commission did not award Tatbit any of its bids. By letter dated June 26, 2015, Tatbit was advised that its bid response was found to be non-responsive.[2]

Tatbit disputes the determination of the Commission, denies that it was a non-responsible bidder and asserts, as the lowest bidder, that it should have been awarded the eight bids awarded to MTB and the one bid awarded to Redmann. Tatbit further asserts that the Commission failed to comply with public bid law. As detailed above, Tatbit seeks to enjoin and restrain the Commission from awarding the bids for the nine counties to MTB and Redmann or, in the alternative, to invalidate the award for the nine counties to MTB and Redmann. Further, Tatbit seeks to compel the Commission to award the contract for the nine counties to Tatbit, as the lowest responsible bidder. Tatbit also seek counsel fees, interest and costs of suit.

[2] "Responsive" is defined to mean conforming in all material respects to the terms and conditions, specifications, legal requirements, and other provisions of the request. N.J.A.C. 5:34-1.2.

In opposing emergent relief, the Commission argues that Tatbit's motion for emergent relief is moot since the nine contracts at issue were already awarded to MTB and Redmann on June 23, 2015. The Commission further argues that there is no basis upon which to allow a recovery for damages for lost profits arising out of an alleged bidding violation. In the alternative, the Commission states that its decision was not "arbitrary and capricious."

The Commission sought bids on behalf of its approximately 920 members located throughout the state. The Commission did not represent or guarantee that any of its individual members would in fact enter into a contract with the successful bidder. Individual co-op members make contract decisions independently. As expressly stated in the bid document, the Commission reserved the right to reject any or all bids in whole or in part, to waive any formalities or irregularities in any bids, and to accept the bids which, in its discretion, within state law, are for the best interest of the Commission.

Among other things, the bid document requested that bidders provide hourly rates for electrical journeymen, foremen and apprentices. The bid documents specifically identified the obligations on the part of all bidders to adhere to New Jersey prevailing wage law. The proposal submitted by Tatbit provided a rate of $21.99 for journeymen, a rate of $98 for a foreman and a rate of $.01 for an apprentice (whose wages should be a percentage of a journeyman rate, adjusted for experience). Tatbit was not a successful bidder in any of the counties where it placed a bid.

Every contract for the provision or performance of any goods or services, the cost of which in the aggregate exceeds the bid threshold, shall be awarded only by resolution of the board of education to the lowest responsible bidder after public advertising for bids and bidding therefor, except as is provided otherwise in this chapter or specifically by any other law.[3] The board may disqualify a bidder who would otherwise be determined to be the lowest responsible bidder if the board of education finds that any board or, in the case of a contract for a school facilities project, the New Jersey Economic Development Authority, has properly reported that it had prior negative experience with the bidder within the past ten years. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4(a).[4]

Prior negative experience can be defined in a number of ways, including the following:

> (1) the bidder has been found, through either court adjudication, arbitration, mediation, or other contractually stipulated alternate dispute resolution mechanism, to have: failed to provide or perform goods or services; or failed to complete the contract in a timely manner; or otherwise performed unsatisfactorily under a prior contract with a board of education or, in the case of a school facilities project, with the New Jersey Economic Development Authority;
> (2) the bidder defaulted on a contract, thereby requiring a board of education or, in the case of a school facilities project, the New Jersey Economic Development Authority, to utilize the services of another contractor to provide the goods or perform the services or to correct or complete the contract;
>
> (4) the bidder is debarred or suspended from contracting with any of the agencies or departments of the executive branch of the State of New Jersey at the time of the contract award, whether or not the action was based on experience with a board of education or, in the case of a school facilities project, with the New Jersey Economic Development Authority.

> [N.J.S.A.18A:18A-4(b).]

If a bidder is being considered for disqualification, the bidder shall be furnished with a written notice (a) stating that a disqualification is being considered; (b) setting forth the reason for the disqualification; and (c) indicating that the bidder shall be accorded an opportunity for a hearing before the board of education if the bidder so requests within a stated period of time. At the hearing, the bidder shall show good cause why the bidder should not be disqualified by presenting documents and testimony. If the board of education determines that good cause has not been shown by the bidder, it may vote to find the bidder lacking in responsibility and, thus, disqualified. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4(c)(3).

The purpose of requiring contracts for the performance of public work to be let upon competitive bidding is to secure competition and to guard against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance, and corruption. Statutes directed toward these ends are for the benefit of the taxpayers and not the bidders; they should be construed with sole reference to the public good. Bokey, Inc. v. Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 118; Hillside Twp. v. Sternin, 25 N.J. 317, 322 (1957). It is well settled that a bidder claiming to be entitled to the award of a contract for public work has sufficient standing to challenge the rejection of the bid or letting of the contract to another bidder, and to compel the award of the contract to him. But such standing was granted simply and solely in order that the public interest might be served by compelling the lax or erring public official to properly perform his public trust. It was not intended to create or establish in the bidder entitled to the award of the contract a right which, if violated, would render the public agency liable in damages to the bidder. Bokey, supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 118; M.A. Stephen Const. Co. v. Borough of Rumson, 125 N.J. Super. 67, 74 (App. Div. 1973). Further, it is expressly noted that "[n]o action for damages shall lie against the State board, any State official, or any board of education or any of its officers because of any action taken" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59, including for any bid rejection, even a bid rejection that was in violation of the Public School Contract Law. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46; Bokey, supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 118; M.A. Stephen Const. Co., supra, 125 N.J. Super. 67.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

> A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

Emergent relief should not be granted except "when necessary to prevent irreparable harm." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132. The moving party bears the burden of proving irreparable harm. More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated. "The requisite for injunctive relief has been characterized as a 'clear showing of immediate irreparable injury,' or a 'presently existing actual threat; [emergent relief] may not be used simply to eliminate a possibility of a remote future injury, or a future invasion of rights, be those rights protected by statute or by the common law.'" Cont'l Group v. Amoco Chems. Corp., 614 F.2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980) (citations omitted).

After hearing the arguments of petitioner and respondents and considering all documents submitted, I make the following conclusions:

The Commission has already awarded the nine bids at issue to MTB and Redmann. Since it is impossible to enjoin what has already occurred, I CONCLUDE that Tatbit's request to enjoin the Commission from awarding the nine bids at issue is moot.

In addition, I further CONCLUDE that Tatbit has not met all three of the four prongs necessary for any alternate emergent relief.

I CONCLUDE that Tatbit has not presented any credible evidence that it will suffer any irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted. Neither MTB nor Redmann was awarded any specific jobs as a result of being the successful bidder in a county or counties. Each of the 920 members is free to contract with any company, including Tatbit, regarding work below the bid threshold and to put their jobs, if any, above the bid threshold out to bid, where Tatbit can be the successful bidder. While members may prefer to contract with the entity that the Commission determined, in its discretion, presented the lowest bid within State law, each member is free to contract with any company, including Tatbit, which was the former successful bidder in numerous counties for several years.

While Tatbit acknowledges that it can seek work from any of the 920 members, for work above or below the bid threshold, Tatbit asserts that many of the 920 entities will prefer to deal only with the company to whom the Commission awarded the bid. Further, Tatbit states that the Commission placed Tatbit in a negative light by noting on the Commission's website that the reason for the rejection of the bid from Tatbit was that Tatbit was not a responsible bidder. However, at best, I CONCLUDE that Tatbit has asserted a possible future injury, not a present existing threat sufficient for emergent relief.

I CONCLUDE that Tatbit has not proven the likelihood that it will prevail of the merits of its claim. There are numerous facts in dispute, and the parties' arguments of application of the law to their facts lead to conflicting conclusions. To cite a few examples, the Commission argues that Tatbit's bids, wherein Tatbit provided a $.01 wage for an apprentice, were not responsive to the details required in a bid. The Commission notes that an apprentice had to be paid a percentage of a journeyman's wage, adjusted for experience. Tatbit argues that it is not obligated to provide a wage for an apprentice, since it had not used in past years, nor did it intend to use in the future, apprentices on its bidded work. Tatbit further argued that as long as it pays its employees in accordance with prevailing State wages, Tatbit could detail any amount as an employee rate on the bid. Tatbit also argues that the Commission awarded bids to entities whose bids did not provide wages compliant with New Jersey prevailing wages. Redmann, one of the successful bidders at issue, asserts that its bid was compliant with New Jersey prevailing wages, and, accordingly, such an argument is not on point to their bid. The Commission argues that Tatbit's bid was not rejected because the company was not a "responsible bidder," and thus the law cited by Tatbit regarding a factual basis for determination of a "responsible bidder" is not on point. In essence, at this time Tatbit cannot meet this prong.

In addition, I CONCLUDE that when the interests and the equities of the parties are balanced, Tatbit will not suffer greater harm than the respondents will suffer. First, Tatbit had the opportunity to avoid any harm. Tatbit was the successful bidder in the past. The bid documents specifically identified the obligation of the bidder to adhere to New Jersey prevailing wage law. If Tatbit wanted to indicate that it would not have any apprentices on the job, it had the ability to so indicate on its bid rather than indicate a wage of $.01, which certainly is not reasonable as an hourly rate. Further, as noted above, Tatbit has not suffered irreparable harm or even a specific injury. Tatbit can bid in the future, without prejudice, and can presently solicit work from any of the Commission's 920 members. On the other hand, the 920 Commission members on whose behalf the Commission sought bids would be prejudiced by any ambiguity as to the identity of the awarded bidder.

Finally, in order to provide the alternate relief requested by Tatbit, that is, to revoke the awarded bids and award the bid to Tatbit, a determination of the merits of the claim and as to the Commission's right to reject any bid, in whole or part, would have to be made. Such relief is not properly the subject of emergent relief.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and is not entitled to emergent relief.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the Tatbit's request for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

On July 8, 2015, representatives of the School District of the City of Plainfield [the "Petitioner"] and Margaret M. Leonard [the "Respondent"] met to commence hearing on the tenure charges served on Respondent. At that hearing, the parties reached an agreement in principle to resolve the tenure charges filed by the Petitioner with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education on April 28, 2015. The terms of settlement were approved by Petitioner on August 4, 2015 and by Respondent on August 7, 2015.

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, the arbitrator is required to issue a brief decision approving the settlement of tenure charges and explaining why the arbitrator is approving the terms of settlement. I have approved these terms for the following reasons.

I am persuaded that the issues that were raised in the Statement of Tenure Charges and Specifications filed by the Petitioner and the Answer to Tenure Charges filed by the Respondent have been fully reviewed and discussed by all parties and that the issues raised therein have been satisfactorily addressed by the terms of settlement. The terms of settlement reflect an appropriate resolution of the charges leveled against the Respondent. The settlement will allow both parties to move forward without using valuable educational time as well as the avoidance of protracted and costly proceedings at the public's expense. The Respondent's determination to tender her resignation in exchange for a monetary settlement will allow the Board to continue to provide a thorough and efficient education to the Board's students. The Respondent has been advised and understands that by accepting this settlement and tendering her resignation the Commissioner of Education has a duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in a loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. I believe that the settlement terms properly balance all of the parties' interests and provide a satisfactory basis for the resolution of any concerns that were raised by the Statement of, and the Answer to, the Tenure Charges that were set forth in the record of this proceeding. A copy of the Settlement Agreement is attached.

Accordingly, and based upon all of the above, this will serve as the arbitrator's approval of the parties' settlement agreement.

SEPARATION OF SERVICE AGREEMENT

This Separation of Service Agreement (hereinafter "Agreement") is hereby made on this ___ day of _____, 2015, by and between MARGARET LEONARD (hereinafter "Ms. Leonard") and the SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, UNION COUNTY (hereinafter the "District") (collectively referred to as the "Parties").

WHEREAS, the District is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, and is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of the District; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard is employed by the District as a tenured Nurse; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard has been on administrative leave with pay since September 26, 2014; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard shall resign from employment with the District effective September 1, 2015; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard and the District have engaged in good faith discussions concerning Ms. Leonard's future separation from employment with the District and have reached an agreement, which they wish to memorialize herein; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard and the District wish to fully and finally resolve any and all claims, complaints, charges and actions of any kind whatsoever, whether known or unknown, which either party may have against them as provided herein; and

WHEREAS, Ms. Leonard has been advised of the Commissioner of Education's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position, including by way of resignation, to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificates; and

NOW THEREFORE, Ms. Leonard and the District, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the Parties, agree as follows:

1. RESIGNATION: Ms. Leonard agrees to sign and submit to the District, simultaneously with this Separation of Service Agreement, an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the District effective September 1, 2015. The letter of resignation and this Agreement shall be subject to Ms. Leonard's right to rescind pursuant to the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. 626(F)(1)(G), within seven (7) calendar days after the signing of this Agreement. If Ms. Leonard does not rescind her letter of retirement and this Agreement within seven (7) calendar days of the signing of the Agreement, her resignation and this Agreement shall be binding and irrevocable. The District shall accept Ms. Leonard's letter of resignation simultaneously with the acceptance of this Agreement via resolution at a regular meeting of the District.

2. CONTINGENCY: This Agreement is contingent upon immediate receipt by the District of an irrevocable letter of resignation from Ms. Leonard effective September 1, 2015.

3. WITHDRAWAL OF CHARGES: In consideration of Ms. Leonard's resignation, the District agrees to withdraw the tenure charges it filed against her (Agency Dkt. No.: 114-5/15) and to take no other disciplinary action against her as a result of the alleged conduct that gave rise to the tenure charges.

4. SEPARATION PAY AND BENEFITS: By or before September 1, 2015, Ms. Leonard shall receive a lump sum severance payment of $34,400, equivalent to four (4) months' salary payment, less the required deductions provided by law, in consideration of her years of service as a District employee. This severance payment does not include Ms. Leonard's deferred summer salary, which she is entitled to receive during the summer of 2015, irrespective of this Agreement.

   Ms. Leonard shall continue to receive health benefits from the District until October 31, 2015, but she will be required to continue making contributions towards the cost of her health benefits in accordance with P.L. 2011, Ch. 78. However, if Ms. Leonard obtains new employment and receives health benefits from her new employer prior to October 31, 2015, she will notify the District of same within ten (10) calendar days of her receipt of such benefits, at which time the District may discontinue providing her with health benefits.

5. UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE: As further consideration for Ms. Leonard's resignation, the District agrees not to challenge or dispute any claims she may have for unemployment benefits through the Department of Workforce Development, Division of Labor.

6. WAIVER: The Parties agree to waive any and all claims or demands which they now have or may have had against each other as of the date of the execution of this Agreement.

7. OLDER WORKER BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT OF 1990: To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990, this Agreement advises Ms. Leonard of the legal requirements of the Act, and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference to this Agreement as follows:

   a. Ms. Leonard fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement;

   b. Ms. Leonard has been advised to consult with an attorney to review the Agreement;

c. Ms. Leonard specifically waives her right to pursue any claims under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act;

d. Ms. Leonard does not waive any rights or claims under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act that may arise after the date of the execution of this Agreement;

e. Ms. Leonard is receiving consideration above and beyond anything of value to which she is already entitled;

f. Ms. Leonard has been given at least twenty-one (21) calendar days within which to consider this Agreement; and

g. Ms. Leonard has seven (7) calendar days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it.

8. CONFIDENTIALITY: This Agreement shall remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law and neither party shall disclose the terms of this Agreement to third parties. However, Ms. Leonard may disclose the terms of this Agreement to her immediate family, union representatives, tax advisors and attorneys, and the Department of Education, the Division of Pension and Benefits, and the Department of Labor and Workforce Development of the State of New Jersey and any related government agencies.

9. GOOD FAITH AND NONDISPARAGEMENT: The Parties expressly agree that they shall act in good faith to ensure implementation of this Agreement. The Parties mutually agree to refrain from making any derogatory comments, written or oral, retaliation or disparagement, in any manner, against the other party or their families, family members, agents, officials, administrators, representatives and employees.

10. EMPLOYMENT REFERENCES: Responses to any inquiries as to Ms. Leonard's employment with the District, whether verbal or written, including but not limited to job reference inquiries, shall be limited to an acknowledgement of her position, length of employment with the District, salary history, and effective resignation date. The provisions of this section of the Agreement shall not apply in the event that Ms. Leonard provides the District with a signed statement authorizing the release of information protected by this provision. Ms. Leonard agrees not to seek re employment with the district in the future

11. ENTIRE AGREEMENT: This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding between the Parties and constitutes a full and final agreement in any and all issues relating to this matter, except that the Parties reserve their right to enforce this Agreement, if necessary.

12. CHOICE OF LAW: This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

13. SEVERABILITY: If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

14. BINDING EFFECT: The Parties shall be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

15. APPROVAL: The terms and conditions of this Agreement and Ms. Leonard's irrevocable letter of resignation are subject to ratification and approval by the District.

16. VOLUNTARY AGREEMENT: The Parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a full understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement.

17. ADMISSION OF LIABILITY: The Parties' entry into this Agreement shall not constitute nor shall it be interpreted as an admission of wrongdoing or guilt, or liability in any manner on either of the Parties' part. Any such obligation or liability for either Party is expressly denied. The Parties have entered into this Agreement solely to compromise disputed claims.

18. OPPORTUNITY TO CONSULT WITH COUNSEL: The Parties acknowledge that each has been given the opportunity to consult with an attorney or a representative of their own choosing with respect to this Agreement and reviewed with their attorney or representative all the terms and conditions of this Agreement prior to executing this Agreement. Each Party signs this Agreement freely and voluntarily and without coercion or duress. The Parties further acknowledge that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein and have been informed of their legal rights and obligations.

19. BREACH: If either party breaches this Agreement, the breaching party shall bear the costs of the non-breaching party of any litigation or efforts to have such breach corrected or compensated for, including, but not limited to, reasonable attorneys' fees.

20. RATIFICATION: The undersigned representatives of the District hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the District to sign this Agreement and bind the District to its terms.

21. COBRA: Nothing contained within this Agreement shall alter Ms. Leonard's rights to continuation of health insurance through federal law, i.e. the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA") upon separation from employment with the District, which, for the purposes of this section of the Agreement, coincides with the date that the District shall cease providing her with health insurance coverage, October 31, 2015.

22. MODIFICATIONS: This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except in writing, signed and duly authorized by all Parties.

23. EXECUTION IN COUNTERPARTS AND FACSIMILE SIGNATURES: This Agreement may be executed in two (or more) counterparts, each of which, when executed and delivered, shall be deemed to be an original, and of which counterparts, taken together, shall constitute one and the same agreement. An original signature transmitted by facsimile shall be deemed to be an original for purposes of this Agreement and for the accompanying letter of retirement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Parties hereunder set their hands and seals to this Agreement effective on this _____ day of _____, 2015.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ARBITRATION OF THE TENURE CHARGE	AGENCY DOCKET NO. 53-3/15

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT, CITY OF NEWARK,	ON
Petitioner,	MOTION TO DISMISS
-and-
LINDA KELLY-GAMBLE,

BEFORE: MICHAEL J. PECKLERS, ESQ., ARBITRATOR

DATE OF ORAL ARGUMENT: June 8, 2015

DATE OF AWARD: August 24, 2015

APPEARANCES:

For the Petitioner:

Ramon E. Rivera, Esq., (Of Counsel & On the Brief(s))
Shana T. Don, Esq., (On the 6/8/15 Oral Argument)

For the Respondent:

Robert T. Pickett, Esq., PICKETT & CRAIG, ESQS.

I. BACKGROUND CONSIDERATIONS

Linda Kelly-Gamble is a tenured instructor with the State-Operated School

District City of Newark ("the Newark School District"). On August 22, 2014, Principal Maria Ortiz executed a NOTICE OF INEFFICIENCY CHARGES against the instructor. Paragraph 2 indicated that the tenure charges were being filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. CHARGE ONE: INEFFICIENCY submitted that "[d]uring the period from December 21, 2012 to the present, Respondent has demonstrated an inability to completely and responsibly execute her duties as a teacher in the following ways: a. the Respondent was rated as 'ineffective' and/or 'partially effective' in 2 consecutive annual evaluations...."

The STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE identified Respondent's perceived inability to satisfactorily perform her instructional duties and responsibilities from December 21, 2012 to the point of the filing, and additionally referenced in part: "¶ 3. The Formal Observation Form dated December 21, 2012, wherein Respondent was rated 'Partially Effective;' ¶ 9. An Evaluation Summary Form dated February 20, 2013 wherein Respondent was rated 'Partially Effective;' ¶ 11. The Formal Observation Form dated April 15, 2013, wherein Respondent received an 'Ineffective' rating; ¶13. An Observation Form dated April 16, 2013, wherein Respondent was rated as 'Ineffective' in Tailored Instruction; ¶ 17. An Annual Evaluation Summary Form dated June 7, 2013, wherein Respondent was rated 'Partially Effective;' ¶27. Corrective Action Plan ('CAP') prepared by Respondent in collaboration with Maria J. Ortiz, Principal, dated November 25, 2013; ¶ 29. A Short Observation Summary Form dated December 6, 2013, wherein Respondent was rated as 'Ineffective;' ¶ 45. A Long Observation Summary Form, dated May 9, 2014, wherein Respondent was rated 'Ineffective;' ¶ 47. A Short Observation Summary Form, dated May 15, 2014, wherein Respondent was rated 'Ineffective;' ¶ 49. An Annual Evaluation Summary Form dated May 15, 2014, wherein Respondent was rated 'Ineffective.'

On September 18, 2014, then-State District Superintendent Cami Anderson issued a CERTIFICATE OF DETERMINATION, with the tenure charges and accompanying documentation filed with David C. Hespe, Acting Commissioner of Education on September 19, 2014. These were received by DOE on September 22, 2014. On September 23, 2014, the Agency acknowledged receipt of the certified tenure charges in a letter to the parties.

Upon referral of the tenure charge to me for hearing, Petitioner thereafter filed a motion for a default judgment which was premised upon the belief that Respondent had filed an Answer to the tenure charge out of time. This application was denied by ORDER dated November 24, 2015, which substantially found that: the tenure charges were forwarded to the undersigned designated Arbitrator by the DOE, following review and assessment; Petitioner's case law was inapposite and factually distinguishable; it is well settled that our tenure laws were originally enacted and designed to establish a competent and efficient school system, and to protect teaching and other staff members from dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons, and that the statutory status of a tenured individual should accordingly not be lightly removed. Citing, Linda Kelly-Gamble, DOE Docket No. 266-9/14 (Pecklers, 2014 at pp. 6-7).

On December 4, 2015 Respondent filed a MOTION TO DISMISS, with a December 19, 2014 REPLY. Petitioner submitted a brief IN OPPOSITION TO RESPONDENT'S MOTION TO DISMISS on December 12, 2014, and a SUR-REPLY on December 31, 2014. Oral argument on the motion was conducted on January 5, 2015, with an AWARD dismissing the tenure charges subsequently issued on January 30, 2015.

In doing so, I found inter alia that: full implementation of the new inefficiency standard governing teacher evaluations came into existence during 2013-2014; the comprehensive guidance published by the Department of Education itself severely undercuts the position of the Petitioner Newark School District; adopting Petitioner's position would require that I ignore the guidance from the very agency tasked with implementation as well as other critical components of TEACHNJ, such as N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(d), which mandates that "[t]he only evaluation which may be used for purposes of this section are those evaluations conducted in accordance with a rubric adopted by the board and approved by the commissioner pursuant to P.L.2012 C.26 (18A:6-117 et al.); it would also eviscerate the remedial safeguards of the Act such as the School Improvement Panel, that are designed to assist an educator whose evaluations have been less than stellar; the 2011-2012 Pilot Program in which the District participated preceded the August 6, 2012 adoption of TEACHNJ, with the regulatory guidance of Title 6A only coming into effect in 2013; how then can the instant tenure charge encompass the period from December 21, 2012 forward, because 2012-2013 was designed to be a pilot year within the State of New Jersey and the Newark School District; Petitioner's consideration of the same in connection with the subject tenure charge renders it infirm. Citing, I/M/O Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Sandra Cheatham and School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 226-8/14 (Bluth, 2014). See, Kelly-Gamble Award, supra, at 47-53. On those bases, the tenure charges were dismissed with prejudice, with Ms. Kelly-Gamble immediately reinstated to her teaching position with full back pay and seniority and made whole for the loss of any contractual or statutory benefits during the interim period. Id. at 60.

On January 14, 2015, Principal Ortiz initiated an AMENDED NOTICE OF INEFFICIENCY CHARGES ("Amended Notice") against Ms. Kelly-Gamble. This indicated that the charges were based upon inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The Amended Notice went on to include the solitary charge of inefficiency and provided:

> During the period from August 6, 2012, to the present, Respondent has demonstrated an inability to completely and responsibly execute her duties as a teacher in the following manner:
> a. The Respondent has failed to implement curricular goals and objective(s).

b. The Respondent has failed to design coherent instruction.

c. The Respondent has failed to assess student learning.

d. The Respondent has failed to create an environment of respect and rapport.

e. The Respondent has failed to manage student behavior.

f. The Respondent has failed to manage classroom procedures.

g. The Respondent has failed to establish a culture of learning.

h. The Respondent has failed to communicate clearly and accurately.

i. The Respondent has failed to use questioning and discussion techniques with flexibility and responsiveness.

j. The Respondent has failed to engage students in learning.

k. The Respondent has failed to provide feedback to students.

l. The Respondent has failed to attain student achievement that meets or exceeds performance benchmarks.

m. The Respondent has failed to reflect on teaching.

n. The Respondent has failed to contribute to the School and District.

o. The Respondent has failed to grow and develop professionally.

p. The Respondent has failed to demonstrate promptness and attendance.

q. The Respondent has received a partially effective rating for the 2012-2013 School Year in an annual summative evaluation.

r. The Respondent has received an ineffective rating for the 2013-2014 School Year in an annual summative evaluation.

The above charge is supported by the Statement of Evidence previously submitted under oath by Maria J. Ortiz dated August 22, 2014, and filed with the Commissioner of Education on or about September 22, 2014.

On January 15, 2015, Superintendent Anderson sent a correspondence to Ms. Kelly-Gamble, which informed Respondent that Charges of Inefficiency previously filed against her had been amended to include N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, and that the amended tenure charges were based upon the STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE previously filed with the Commissioner of Education on September 22, 2014. Respondent was further advised that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, she was granted the opportunity to submit a written Statement of Evidence under oath in opposition to the charges within 15 days of the date of receipt. Following the filing of Ms. Kelly-Gamble's response and Statement of Evidence, on March 17, 2015, Superintendent Anderson executed the CERTIFICATE OF DETERMINATION.

On March 19, 2015, the tenure charges were preferred to the Commissioner of Education. Respondent eventually answered the same after receiving extensions until April 15, 2015. Ms. Kelly-Gamble concomitantly filed a NOTICE OF MOTION TO DISMISS TENURE PROCEEDINGS, which was received by the DOE Controversies & Disputes on April 16, 2015. On April 22, 2015, Director Duncan responded to Petitioner's April 21st request for a default judgment which was denied, notifying the parties that the amended tenure charge including Respondent's motion were being referred to me. That same date, I was notified of my appointment by Ms. Duncan under separate cover, with an additional correspondence to the parties confirming that the captioned tenure charges had been docketed as new charges, which were being processed with respect to Section 8 inefficiency charges only.

Following a briefing schedule that was contained in my initial April 27, 2015 letter to the parties which was modified during a May 14, 2015 conference call, Petitioner timely filed a letter brief in opposition to Respondent's MOTION TO DISMISS. Reply and Sur-reply briefs were later filed, with oral argument on both the motion and the merits conducted on June 8, 2015. The latter satisfied the initial 45 day requirement under the Act. In a letter that same date, I advised that the AWARD on Respondent's motion was due on or before July 23, 2015. On July 15, 2015, Director Duncan wrote to counsel by way of clarification of her April 22, 2015 letter, stating inter alia that "[t]he arbitrator shall review those charges – which are not dismissed as a result of a motion – under the preponderance of the evidence standard."

On June 19, 2015, Petitioner filed a NOTICE OF MOTION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF with supporting letter brief with the Commissioner of Education. This sought an Order staying the arbitration before me, pending the District's appellate appeal filed on June 12, 2015. This application argued that: "[t]he Commissioner of Education transferred the tenure hearing to the same Arbitrator who heard the parties' previous tenure charge, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1; the Commissioner of Education transferred this matter to arbitration without addressing the legal sufficiency of the tenure charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16." In a June 23, 2015 correspondence, Director Duncan acknowledged the receipt of Petitioner's motion on the 22nd, and fixed a schedule for Respondent's response to the motion, if any, along with Petitioner's reply.

On June 29, 2015 Respondent Kelly-Gamble submitted a response in opposition to Petitioner's motion with accompanying letter memorandum. This substantially argued that: it appears Petitioner has filed its motion under the wrong regulation in that there was never any "Petition of Appeal" filed with the Division of Controversies and Disputes; the Crowe factors have not been established on the District's emergent motion, and the granting of a stay or preliminary injunction would be improper; the Commissioner has previously ruled on Petitioner's "emergent relief" or "stay request" in both the Thomas and Cheatham-Powell matters on June 4, 2015 and June 9, 2015 respectively, that he lacked the jurisdiction to hear and decide Petitioner's motion for an emergent stay pending appeal before the Appellate Division.

Petitioner's July 7, 2015 letter brief in reply reiterated the District's position that: the Notice of Appeal with the Appellate Division questions the assignment of the Arbitrator before whom the matter is currently pending; this particular appeal is one of approximately nine which involve the same issue and are pending before the Appellate Division; at this time there is a MOTION TO DISMISS pending before Arbitrator Michael J. Pecklers, which raises legal rather than factual challenges to the inefficiency charges; it seems that Respondent's motion is premised in part, upon the lack of clear direction from the Commissioner's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, which should have instructed the randomly assigned Arbitrator to review the facts under specific standards; the June 15, 2015 correspondence from Director Duncan does not appear to have clarified the initial instructions transferring this matter to Arbitrator Pecklers to "handle as he deems appropriate;" the District is not seeking a stay of the Commissioner's decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15 but as clearly stated in its moving papers per N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6; the Commissioner's decisions in I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Sandra Cheatham-Powell, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 68-3/15 and I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Neil Thomas, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 59-3/15, finding that the Commissioner lacked authority to hold an arbitration in abeyance, rather than citing N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b) is too narrow a reading of that administrative provision; allowing the Arbitrator here to decide a procedural matter was not contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended by P.L. 1998, c.42 (the TEACHNJ Act).

In a July 14, 2015 letter to the parties, Commissioner Hespe denied Petitioner's application for emergent relief. In material part, the Commissioner determined that:

> [u]pon review of the parties' submissions, relevant sections of Title 18A, and the corresponding regulations, it is apparent that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to hear and decide petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief requesting an order staying the arbitration pending appeal to the Appellate Division since the matter is presently before an arbitrator for final determination. Under these circumstances, and in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b), the parties are free to direct requests to hold the matter in abeyance to the assigned arbitrator.

> Once a tenure matter is before an arbitrator for final determination, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to determine whether a stay should be granted. In this instance, the Commissioner referred the matter to an arbitrator via letter dated April 22, 2015. Subsequently, petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief requesting a stay of the arbitration was filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on June 19, 2015.
>
> In its reply, petitioner insists that its request for relief is made pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and not N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5 – although its Notice of Motion for Emergent Relief clearly requests 'an Order staying the arbitration.' N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(a) provides, in relevant part, that 'where the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education or any other party subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner,' a petitioner can move for emergent relief 'pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case,' [emphasis added in original]. Because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 grants an arbitrator – not the Commissioner – jurisdiction to 'hear and make a final determination' on controversies and disputes arising under the tenure laws, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 is inapplicable here.
> For the foregoing reasons, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to hear and decide petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief. This determination shall not preclude the parties from seeking the desired relief before the arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b).

Notice is taken that no such application was made by the Petitioner to me, and that motion is therefore deemed abandoned. Upon receipt of the correspondence from the Commissioner, on July 17, 2015, Director Duncan was contacted and advised that a request was being made for an extension of time until August 24, 2015 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1g, based upon the delay caused by the filing of Petitioner's motion on June 19th, as well as pending vacation plans. This was memorialized in a July 20, 2015 letter to the director. The request was granted by Ms. Duncan in a July 22, 2015 letter. The instant AWARD on Respondent's MOTION TO DISMISS is accordingly issued within the prescribed time period.

II. RELEVANT STATUTORY & REGULATORY LANGUAGE

NEW JERSEY STATUTES ANNOTATED TITLE 18A

18A:6-10 Dismissal and reduction in compensation of persons under tenure in public school system. No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,

(a) If he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state or

(b) If he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teacher or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner, except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

18A:6-16 Proceedings before commissioner; written response; determination

* * *

If, following receipt of the written response to the charges, the commissioner is of the opinion that they are not sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall dismiss the same and notify said person accordingly. If, however, he shall determine that such charge is sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall refer the case to an arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of P.L. 2012 Ch. 26 (C.18A:6-17.1) for further proceedings, except that when a motion for summary decision has been made prior to that time, the commissioner may retain the matter for purposes of deciding the motion.

18A:6-17.1 Panel of arbitrators

* * *

b. The following provisions shall apply to a hearing conducted by an arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:6-16, except as otherwise provided pursuant to P.L. 2012, c. 26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.):

(1) The hearing shall be held before the arbitrator within 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case;

* * *

(3) Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely, including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employing board of education or its representative. The employee shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses.

Discovery shall not include depositions, and interrogatories shall be limited to 25 without subparts.

c. The arbitrator shall determine the case under the American Arbitration Association labor arbitration rules. In the event of a conflict between the American Arbitration Association labor arbitration rules and the procedures established pursuant to this section, the procedures established pursuant to this section shall govern.

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-25 or any other section of law to the contrary, the arbitrator shall render a written decision within 45 days of the start of the hearing.

e. The arbitrator's determination shall be final and binding and may not be appealable to the commissioner or the State Board of Education. The determination shall be subject to judicial review and enforcement as provided pursuant to N.J.S. 2A:24-7 through N.J.S. 2A:24-10.

f. Timelines set forth herein shall be strictly followed; the arbitrator or any involved party shall inform the commissioner of any timeline that is not adhered to.

g. An arbitrator may not extend the timeline of holding a hearing beyond 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case without approval from the commissioner. An arbitrator may not extend the timeline for rendering a written decision within 45 days of the start of the hearing without approval of the commissioner. Extension requests shall occur before the 41st day of the respective timelines set forth herein. The commissioner shall approve or disapprove extension requests within five days of receipt.

18A:6-17.2 Consideration for arbitrator in rendering decision. a. In the event that the matter before the arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of this act is employee inefficiency pursuant to section 25 of this act, in rendering a decision the arbitrator shall only consider whether or not:

(1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including, but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;

(2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;

(3) the charges would not have been brought but for considerations of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by State or federal law; or other conduct prohibited by State or federal law;

(4) the district's actions were arbitrary and capricious.

(b) In the event that the employee is able to demonstrate that any of the provisions of paragraph (1) through (4) of subsection a. of this section are applicable, the arbitrator shall then determine if that fact materially affected the outcome of the evaluation. If the arbitrator determines that it did not materially affect the outcome of the evaluation, the arbitrator shall render a decision in favor of the board and the employee shall be dismissed.

(c) The evaluator's determination as to the quality of an employee's classroom performance shall not be subject to an arbitrator's review.

(d) The board of education shall have the ultimate burden of demonstrating to the arbitrator that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met.

(e) The hearing shall be held before the arbitrator within 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case. The arbitrator shall render a decision within 45 days of the start of the hearing.

18A:6-17.3. Evaluation process, determination of charges. a. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-11 or any other section of the law to the contrary, in the case of a teacher, principal, assistant principal, and vice principal:

(1) The superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency whenever the employee is rated ineffective or partially effective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated ineffective in the annual summative evaluation;

(2) If the employee is rated partially effective in two consecutive annual summative evaluations or is rated ineffective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated partially effective in the annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency, except that the superintendent upon a written finding of exceptional circumstances may defer the filing of tenure charges until after the next summative evaluation. If the employee is not rated effective or highly effective on this annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file a charge of inefficiency.

b. Within 30 days of the filing, the board of education shall forward a written charge to the commissioner, unless the board determines that the evaluation process has not been followed.

c. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-16 or any other section of law to the contrary, upon receipt of a charge pursuant to subsection a. of this section, the commissioner shall examine the charge. The individual against whom the charges are filed shall have 10 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. The commissioner shall within five days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges, refer the case to an arbitrator and appoint an arbitrator to hear the case, unless he determines that the evaluation process has not been followed,

d. The only evaluations which may be used for purposes of this section are those evaluations conducted in accordance with a rubric adopted by the board and approved by the commissioner pursuant to P.L.2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-117 et al.)

18A:6-120 School improvement panel. A. In order to ensure the effectiveness of its teachers, each school shall convene a school improvement panel. A panel shall include the principal, or his designee, an assistant or vice-principal, and a teacher. The principal's designee shall be an individual employed in the district in a supervisory role and capacity who possesses a school administrator certificate, principal certificate, or supervisor certificate. The teacher shall be a person with a demonstrated record of success in the classroom who shall be selected in consultation with the majority representative. An individual teacher shall not serve more than three consecutive years on any one school improvement panel, In the event that an assistant or vice-principal is not available to serve on the panel, the principal shall appoint an additional member to the panel, who is employed in the district in a supervisory role and capacity and who possesses a school administrator certificate, principal certificate, or supervisor certificate.

Nothing in this section shall prevent a district that has entered a shared services agreement for the functions of the school improvement panel from providing services under that shared services agreement.

b. The panel shall oversee the mentoring of teachers and conduct evaluations of teachers, including an annual summative evaluation, provided that the teacher on the school improvement panel shall not be included in the evaluation process except in those instances in which the majority representative has agreed to the contrary. The panel shall also identify professional development opportunities for all instructional staff members that are tailored to meet the unique needs of the students and staff of the school.

c. The panel shall conduct a mid-year evaluation of any employee in the position of teacher who is evaluated as ineffective or partially effective in his most recent annual summative evaluation, provided that the teacher on the school improvement panel shall not be included in the mid-year evaluation process, except in those instances in which the majority representative has agreed to the contrary.

d. Information related to the evaluation of a particular employee shall be maintained by the school district, shall be confidential, and shall not be accessible to the public pursuant to P.L. 1963, c.73 (C.47:1A-1 et seq.) as amended and supplemented.

18A:6-122 Annual submission of evaluation rubrics. a. A school district shall annually submit to the Commissioner of Education, for review and approval, the evaluation rubrics that the district will use to assess the effectiveness of teachers, principals, assistant principals, and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members. The board shall ensure that an approved rubric meets the minimum standards established by the State Board of Education.

b. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection a. of this section, a school district may choose to use the model evaluation rubric established by the commissioner pursuant to subsection f. of section 17 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C.18A:6-123) to assess the effectiveness of its teachers, principals, assistant principals, and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members. In the case in which the district fails to submit a rubric for review and approval, the model rubric shall be used by the district to assess the effectiveness of its teachers, principals, assistant principals, and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members.

18A:6-123. Review, approval of evaluation rubrics. a. The Commissioner of Education shall review and approve evaluation rubrics submitted by school districts pursuant to section 16 of P.L. 2012, c. 26 (C.18A:6-122). The board of education shall adopt a rubric approved by the commissioner.

b. The State Board of Education shall promulgate regulations pursuant to the "Administrative Procedure Act," P.L. 1968, c. 410 (C.52:14B-1 et seq.) to set standards for the approval of evaluation rubrics for teachers, principals, assistant principals, and vice-principals. The standards at a minimum shall include:

c. A board of education shall adopt a rubric approved by the commissioner by December 31, 2012.

d. Beginning no later than January 31, 2013, a board of education shall implement a pilot program to test and refine the evaluation rubric.

e. Beginning with the 2013-2014 school year, a board of education shall ensure implementation of the approved adopted evaluation rubric for all educators in all elementary, middle and high schools in the district. Results of evaluations shall be used to identify and provide professional development to teaching staff members. Results of evaluations shall be provided to the commissioner, as requested, on a regular basis.

f. The commissioner shall establish a model evaluation rubric that may be utilized by a school district to assess the effectiveness of its teaching staff members.

NEW JERSEY ADMINISTRATIVE CODE, TITLE 6A EDUCATION

6A:3-1.5 Filing and service of answer

* * *

(g) Nothing in this section precludes the filing of a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer to a petition, provided that such motion is filed within the time allotted for the filing of an answer. Briefing on such motions shall be in the manner and within the time fixed by the Commissioner, or by the ALJ if the motion is to be briefed following transmittal to the OAL.

* * *

6A:3-5.1 Filing of written charges and certificate of determination

* * *

(c) If the tenure charges are charges of inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, except in the case of building principals and vice principals in school districts under full State intervention, where procedures are governed by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 and such rules as may be promulgated to implement it, the following timelines and procedures shall be observed:

* * *

5. Upon receipt of the charge, the Commissioner or his designee shall examine the charge. The charge shall be served upon the employee at the same time it is forwarded to the Commissioner and proof of service shall be included with the filed charge. The individual against whom the charge is filed shall have 10 days to submit to the Commissioner a written response to the charge.

6A:3-5.3 Filing and service of answer to written charges

(a) Except as specified in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(5), an individual against whom tenure charges are certified shall have 15 days from the date such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges. Except as to time for filing, the answer shall conform to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(a) through (d).

1. Consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(g), nothing in this subsection precludes the filing of a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer to the charges, provided the motion is filed within the time frame allotted for the filing of an answer. Briefing on the motions shall be in the manner and within the time fixed by the Commissioner, or by the arbitrator if the motion is to be briefed following transmittal to an arbitrator.

6A:3-5.5 Determination of sufficiency and transmittal for hearing

(a) Except as specified in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 (c) within 10 days of receipt of the charged party's answer or expiration of the time for its filing, the Commissioner shall determine whether such charge(s) are sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Where the charges are determined insufficient, they shall be dismissed and the parties shall be notified accordingly. If the charges are determined sufficient, the matter shall be transmitted immediately to an arbitrator for further proceedings, unless the Commissioner retains the matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.12.

III. CONTENTIONS OF THE PARTIES

Respondent Linda Kelly-Gamble

The Petitioner School District in its opposition to Respondent's MOTION TO DISMISS has attempted to erect illusory arguments to defeat the Motion. However, on closer review and assessment, the arguments fail miserably and are contradicted by Petitioner School District's prior assertions in this proceeding with the Respondent Kelly-Gamble. On the issue of the "timeliness" of the filing of the "Amended Tenure Charges", the Respondent's assessment is based on two assumptions: (1) That there is no record or admission by the Petitioner that it had "filed" Section 8 inefficiency charges against the Respondent simultaneously with the filing of the Section 25 charges; and (2) That Section 8 inefficiency charges were filed by the Petitioner simultaneously with the Section 25 tenure charges in the prior proceeding.

The three-month time period within which the District could have moved to vacate your Arbitration Opinion and Award – but did not – expired on or about April 30, 2015. What did the District do following the dismissal of the charges against Respondent Kelly-Gamble? For nearly three (3) months – it did nothing. And now, long after the timeframes set forth by applicable statute and regulations governing the filing of tenure charges have expired, and long after its timeframe to move to vacate your decision has expired, the District simply seeks a "do-over" of the case and served notice of what it, disingenuously, refers to as "new" charges on Respondent Kelly-Gamble. Of course, the charges are not "new" (if that word is to have any meaning at all). Rather, they rehash the same charges of "inefficiency," previously dismissed by you, as the Arbitrator, complete with the same STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE and exhibits.

Whether the instant charges are brought pursuant to Section 25 of TEACHNJ, Section 8 of that statute, or both, is of no moment. It is simply too late for the charges to be brought at all. The District is now far beyond the time periods contemplated by law for either the certification of tenure charges, or the amendment of same (if such an amendment were even possible, seeing as how there is no procedure for amended tenure charges set forth in TEACHNJ, nor does the District cite to one in its opposition to the MOTION TO DISMISS.

In its submission in opposition to Respondent's Motion To Dismiss, the Petitioner School District continues to insist that the Amended (Section 8) Charges filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 18, 2015, were filed in a timely manner consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 without ever addressing Respondent's contention that (1) the amended Section 8 Charges were filed "late" in that it, again assuming that it could be filed with the implementation of TEACHNJ Act, should have been filed at the same time the Section 25 tenure charges were filed with the Commissioner in September 2014, especially since the Section 8 Charges are exactly the same as the advanced Section 25 Charges; and (2) with the dismissal of the prior inefficiency charges, both Section 25 and Section 8 charges as pled by the Petitioner, the Petitioner cannot now resurrect those same charges as "amended charges" in light of your dismissal in the prior proceeding in contravention of the principles of doctrine of the law of the case, collateral estoppel and res judicata.

What the Petitioner has ignored in echoing that it has filed the Amended Tenure Charges in a timely fashion is that it knew, again assuming that it was appropriate under the TEACHNJ ACT, that Section 8 charges were available to it in the alternative at the same time it had filed Section 25 Charges against the Respondent. The Respondent's argument on the issue of timeliness is quite simple: The Petitioner should have filed the Section 8 Charges at the same time it filed the Section 25 Charges on or about September 24, 2014 and having failed to explicitly do that it is now too late to file those same charges as amended charges some six (6) months later on March 18, 2015. As we noted in our prior submission, assuming no simultaneous Section 8 filing with the Section 25 filing, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 is very exacting in its time requirements for filing of tenure charges. Filing essentially the same tenure charges it filed under Section 25 in the prior proceeding at this "late" stage is fatal to the Petitioner's efforts to resurrect, if you will, charges that were deemed "dismissed" by you in your earlier arbitration ruling in this proceeding.

Likewise, if the Section 8 inefficiency charges were joined and pled in the prior proceeding with Section 25 inefficiency charges, those charges must now also be deemed "dismissed."

Specifically, under Section 25, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, the District was required to file charges against Respondent Kelly-Gamble with the Commissioner of Education within 30 days of filing with the State District Superintendent. See also N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. In this case, the District certified the charges in September 2014. The charges filed were based on the identical series of facts and allegations as the instant amended charges, and thus the District was under an obligation to file the tenure charges against Respondent Kelly-Gamble within 30 days thereof. Clearly, the current charges are filed well outside that time period, and thus the charges are untimely under TEACHNJ and must be dismissed.

Alternatively, if the charges are deemed to be filed pursuant to Section 8, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the charges are still untimely. Once charges were filed with the State District Superintendent, Respondent Kelly-Gamble could submit a statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath within 15 days of receipt of the charges. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Upon receipt of the position statement or expiration of the 15 days, the State District Superintendent had 45 days to decide on whether to certify the charges to the Commissioner of Education. Id.; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13. It had 15 days to file written charges with the Commissioner after making a decision. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Once again, in this case, the District filed the original inefficiency charges with the State District Superintendent in September 2014. The charges filed were based on the identical series of facts and allegations as the instant amended charges, and thus the District was under an obligation to vote on whether to file charges under Section 8 within 45 days of receiving Respondent Kelly-Gamble's response to the charges, and then was required to file the charges with the Commissioner within 15 days of making its decision. Clearly it did not do so, and the charges were filed outside the applicable timeframe. Thus, they are untimely filed under TEACHNJ and must be dismissed.

The statutory and regulatory time frames set forth above exist for a reason – to protect the due process rights of educators subject to tenure revocation charges. The District's conduct in belatedly amending its prior charges makes a mockery of due process. Under the District's theory, it is unbridled by any time constraints at all when faced with the dismissal of its inefficiency charges, rendering the strict procedural time-frames set forth above a nullity. File a charge, lose on the merits, refuse to seek vacation of the award, and simply file again under a new theory – an amendment to the original inefficiency charges. Perhaps if the instant amended charges are dismissed (and they should be), the District will simply file another amended charges again . . . this time under some new meritless theory. Such an indefinite and arbitrary approach runs directly contrary to the applicable statutory and regulatory guidelines for the commencement of tenure charges against educators set forth in TEACHNJ and its implementing regulations, as well as Respondent's right to due process.

The Petitioner throughout its arguments against the earlier motion to dismiss in the prior proceeding constantly asserted that it had filed Section 8 charges simultaneously along with the Section 25 charges. We note the following statements taken from the Petitioner's submission in opposition to Respondent's earlier Motion To Dismiss in the prior proceeding:

- "I hereby file charges based upon inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1." (See Exhibit A at Certification of Shana T. Don, Esq., hereinafter "Don Cert."). These charges were filed based upon both the "new" inefficiency standard of TEACHNJ's N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, encompassing two consecutive annual evaluations for poor performance and the "old" inefficiency of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. Id." At pages 1-2 from Petitioner's Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Motion To Dismiss in prior proceeding (Docket No. 266-9/14) and at page 36 of the Arbitration Award of Respondent Kelly-Gamble. [Emphasis Added].

- "Additionally, the documents listed below were described in, and appended to the Statement of Evidence in support of the Inefficiency charges, both "old" and "new" in support of Respondent's inefficient teaching performance:" At page 10 from Petitioner's Memorandum of Law in opposition to Motion To Dismiss in prior proceeding (Docket No. 266-9/14) [Emphasis Added].

- While N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 provides for mandatory charges brought on the basis of two consecutive annual ratings of ineffective or partially effecting; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides for charges when those specific conditions have not been met but dismissal is nonetheless warranted on the basis of inefficiency or any of the other grounds specified in the statute, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Here, the District pled tenure > charges under both statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 17.3. At page 25 from Petitioner's Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Motion To Dismiss in prior proceeding (Docket No. 266-9/14) [Emphasis Added].

> - Accordingly, even if the Arbitrator here concludes, notwithstanding the facts and argument presented herein, that the requirements for inefficiency tenure charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 have not been met, the inefficiency charge against Respondent should not be dismissed. Instead, the charge must be evaluated under NJ.S.A. 18A:6-16, as initially pled, and the case must proceed to hearing. At page 29 from Petitioner's Memorandum of Law in Opposition to Motion To Dismiss in prior proceeding (Docket No. 266-9/14), and at page 43 of the Arbitration Award of Respondent Kelly-Gamble. [Emphasis Added]. (See, Exhibit C attached to submitted Memorandum of Law in Support of Motion).

As noted by you in your arbitration award in the prior proceeding in this matter:

> Petitioner's contention that it has pled an alternative statutory basis under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 to entitle a hearing on the sufficiency of the inefficiency charges under the "old" [Section 8] tenure law also is unpersuasive. Rather, a cursory reference in a pleading does not obviate the fact that the solitary tenure charge of INEFFICIENCY and the accompanying STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE make it abundantly clear the instant charges were brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. At page 55 of the Arbitration Award of Respondent Kelly-Gamble. [Emphasis Added]. (See, Exhibit C)

If we are to accept the Petitioner's admissions in its pleadings and submissions in the prior proceeding that it had "pled" the Section 8 inefficiency charges, then the dismissal of the tenure inefficiency charges (both Section 25 and Section 8), by you in the prior proceeding now precludes the Petitioner from resurrecting amended inefficiency tenure charges in a new tenure revocation proceeding that were previously dismissed along with the Section 25 charges by you in your arbitration ruling on January 30, 2015.

Accordingly, for the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that the instant tenure charges – whether construed as amended or new, are simply out of time and should be dismissed. The dismissal of the tenure charges against Respondent Kelly-Gamble is now the "law of this case," and the District's amendment of those charges is constrained Respondent believes by that doctrine. Specifically, the amended inefficiency charges rely on the exact same facts and the exact same evidence as presented in the initial charges. Further action by the District herein seeking to amend tenure charges that have already been dismissed is, frankly, absurd, fundamentally unfair, in clear violation of Respondent Kelly-Gamble's due process rights, and should not be permitted to proceed in clear defiance of your Arbitration Award and Ruling.

The Law of the Case doctrine "[r]equires judges to respect unreversed decisions made during the trial by the same court or a higher court regarding questions of law." Sisler v. Gannett Co., 222 N.J. Super. 153 (App. Div. 1987) (citing State v. Reldan, 100 N.J. 187, 203 (1985). The policy behind the doctrine is that "[o]nce an issue is litigated and decided in a suit, re-litigation of that issue should be avoided if possible." Id. (citing State v. Hale, 127 N.J. Super 407, 410, 317 A.2d 731 (App. Div.1974)).

Thus, because this issue has already been decided in this case in a prior arbitration proceeding with a definitive award and ruling by you, as the Arbitrator, the amended charges are bound by the law of the case in that regard. Specifically, it is undisputed that the initial charges filed against Respondent Kelly-Gamble were unequivocally dismissed by you in your January 30, 2015, Opinion and Award granting Respondent Kelly-Gamble's motion for dismissal of the tenure revocation proceeding. In opposition to Respondent Kelly-Gamble's motion to dismiss the original inefficiency tenure charges, the District specifically sought to proceed under Section 8 of the TEACHNJ Act. Your assessment in your arbitration award and ruling on the Petitioner School District's Section 8 effort echoed the same sentiment as articulated by Arbitrator Bluth In the Matter of Sandra Cheatham. That request was unequivocally rejected by Arbitrator Bluth. In doing so, Arbitrator Bluth held as follows:

> Finally, I reject the District's contention that if a teacher is exonerated under Section 25, that does not preclude a similar procedure under Section 8 by which a teacher may be dismissed under the conditions that are delineated under that Section. The District insists if I find Respondent not culpable of the charges against her in Section 25, I should treat the charges as if they had been filed under Section 8. I reject this notion completely. The fact is the District chose to file under Section 25. It now asks if it loses in that forum I should convert it to a Section 8 matter. To acquiesce to that request would give the District the proverbial "two bites at the apple." The District made a choice. That choice was Section 25. The fact it has been unsuccessful in achieving its goal does not give it a sound basis to ask for a "do-over." For all of the reasons delineated herein, I find the District erred when it discharged Respondent when it used 2012-13 as one of the two evaluation years. Accordingly, I determine the appropriate remedy is reinstatement with full back pay and benefit. It is so ordered.

(See, Exhibit "F") (Emphasis Added).

To be candid, the Law of the Case Doctrine should put an end to this proceeding. Although the District's untimely effort to amend the charge is meritless and, indeed, frivolous for a plethora of other reasons discussed above, the mere fact that the District's theory has already been rejected in this case and not appealed via petition to vacate is, respectfully, enough to end this legal dance and charade. Accordingly, for the forgoing reasons, as well as those that follow, the amended charges against Respondent Kelly-Gamble should be dismissed.

If we assume that Petitioner School District could under the TEACHNJ Act file Section 8 inefficiency charges simultaneously with Section 25 inefficiency charges, as it apparently did, then we must assess the impact of your arbitration dismissal order on those same charges as of January 30, 2015, the date of the dismissal, on any effort to amend the same charges anew under the Section 8 inefficiency umbrella in this current proceeding. It is Respondent's posture that the Petitioner can no longer assert the so-called amended inefficiency charges in light of your dismissal of all charges filed in the prior proceeding by you. As a result of that dismissal by you, the Petitioner can no longer assert those same charges as "amended" charges in an amended proceeding based on the concepts of "law of the case doctrine", "entire controversy doctrine", "collateral estoppel" and "res judicata" as fully set forth in Respondent's memorandum of law in support of this Motion.

Even if the charges are treated as "new" charges —— which they obviously are not —— the "new" charges are, nonetheless, barred as a matter of law pursuant to the doctrine of Res Judicata. Res Judicata is "[a]n ancient judicial doctrine which contemplates that when a controversy between parties is once fairly litigated and determined it is no longer open to re-litigation." Lubliner v. Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control for the City of Paterson 33 N.J. 428 (1960). Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel rest upon policy considerations which seek to guard the individual against vexatious repetitious litigation and the public against the serious burdens which such litigation imposes on the community." Id.

As Respondent noted in her earlier submission, Res Judicata is a mandatory doctrine that a tribunal must apply to bar a party from re-litigating in a new case an issue already fully disposed of. For Res Judicata to bar the re-litigation of a claim, the following three elements must be met:

> (1) the judgment in the prior action must be valid, final, and on the merits; (2) the parties in the later action must be identical to or in privity with those in the prior action; and (3) the claim in the later action must grow out of the same transaction or occurrence as the claim in the earlier one.

Therefore, regardless of whether or not the instant inefficiency charge is properly characterized as "amended" or "new" charges, the result is the same since the very issues the District seeks to litigate in its amended filed charges has already been litigated, the parties are the same and the amended charges arise out of the same transaction and/or occurrence as the dismissed inefficiency charges.

Thus, the doctrine of Res Judicata compels, in Respondent Kelly-Gamble's view, dismissal. The doctrine of Res Judicata applies to arbitration awards. See Chattin v. Cape May Green, Inc. 216 N.J. Super 618 (App. Div. 1987); Nogue by Nogue v. Estate of Santiago, 224 N.J. Super. 383 (App. Div. 1988). Not only do our courts recognize the binding and preclusive effect of arbitration awards, but arbitrators, when appropriate, will apply the doctrines of Res Judicata, as well as the related concepts of Collateral Estoppel, Stare Decisis, etc., where appropriate to bar re-litigation through arbitration of a prior arbitration award. See Elkouri & Elkouri, How Arbitration Works, p. 578- 579 (6th Ed. 2003).

Therefore, regardless of whether or not the instant inefficiency charges are properly characterized as "amended" charges or as "new" charges, the result is the same since the very issue the Petitioner School District seeks to litigate in its amended/new charges has already been litigated — the parties are the same, and the amended charges arise out of the same transaction and/or occurrence as the dismissed inefficiency charges. Thus, even if the Law of the Case Doctrine somehow does not bar re-litigation of the issue and the charge, the Doctrine of Res Judicata compels dismissal. Accordingly, for the forgoing reasons, as well as those that follow, it is respectfully submitted that the amended charge against Respondent Kelly-Gamble should be dismissed. Bondi v. Citigroup, 423 N.J. Super. 377 (App. Div. 2011). See also, Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576 (1975).

Assuming that somehow the District can overcome the doctrines of Law of the Case and Res Judicata, the untimeliness of its amended charge, and the entire controversy doctrine, its amended charge nevertheless remains substantively subject to dismissal because Section 25 of TEACHNJ is the exclusive means through which a district can bring charges of inefficiency. A brief review of the history underlying the passage of TEACHNJ and its implementing regulations, the statutory and regulatory language itself, as well as arbitral precedent, makes clear that charges of "inefficiency" are now defined by and required to proceed pursuant to Section 25, and only pursuant to Section 25, of the TEACHNJ Act.

As we noted in our earlier submission, the Petitioner School District was well aware that the new Section 25 under the TEACHNJ Act now defined "inefficiency", as confirmed by the terms of the statute itself as well as Department of Education regulations and authoritative guidance (See Exhibit D attached hereto). Section 8 clearly remains available for other charges such as "incapacity" or "conduct unbecoming." However, Section 8, for purposes of charges of inefficiency, is now a hollow tenure charge option and relic as Section 25 now defines that charge.

As you noted in rendering your ruling, Arbitrator Pecklers, you specifically and unequivocally rejected the Petitioner School District's arguments by quoting Arbitrator Simmelkjaer In The Matter of The Tenure Charge of Inefficiency Against Neil Thomas, Agency Docket. No. 244-9/14 (Exhibit Q) approvingly on his conclusion on the issue:

> [I]n the Arbitrator's [Simmelkjaer's] opinion, had the legislature intended that a teacher charged with inefficiency for two consecutive years of ineffective or partially effective ratings on their annual summative ratings be evaluated utilizing two different and asymmetric evaluation procedures – one consistent with Section 25 of TEACHNJ and the other consistent with Section 8. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 – it had the wherewithal to provide the appropriate statutory language. In the absence of such language, the Arbitrator is compelled to dismiss the charges.

Indeed, the Petitioner School District affirmed that it had filed in the prior proceeding under both Section 25 and Section 8 as you noted in your Award and Ruling when citing the "arguments" of the Petitioner District on Section 8 inefficiency charges in which the Petitioner School District argued that:

> Importantly, as a distinction in the Thomas case, this matter was initially [pled] under both sections of the Tenure Law - the old and the new. (The Arbitrator in Thomas provided '[s]ince the District's Inefficiency charge was not pleaded in the alternative, but rather based on TEACHNJ, it cannot amend its pleading at this juncture." While N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 provides for mandatory charges brought on the basis of two consecutive annual ratings of ineffective or partially effective, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides for charges when those specific conditions have not been met but dismissal is nonetheless warranted on the basis of inefficiency or any other grounds specified by statute. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Therefore, because the District pled > tenure charges under both statutes and the Arbitrator has jurisdiction to decide this matter of inefficiency under either N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 or N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 of the TEACHNJ Act this case should proceed to hearing. [Emphasis Added]

> (See, Arbitrator Pecklers' Award and Ruling at page 41 as Exhibit C attached hereto).

In Ursula Whitehurst and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 282-9/14, Arbitrator Robert T. Simmelkjaer determined unequivocally that this District could not pursue an inefficiency charge under Section 8 despite the District's claims that it could pursue such a charge if it was not successful under Section 25. Arbitrator Simmelkjaer concluded as follows:

> The Arbitrator is not convinced that having dismissed the inefficiency charge against Ms. Whitehurst based on the District's non-compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, through its utilization of the Respondent's annual summative evaluation for the 2012-2013 school year, he can now proceed to a hearing under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.
> Since the one charge of Inefficiency filed with the Commissioner alleges that over a two year period "from September 2012 to the present..." encompasses the two consecutive years of ineffective or partially effective annual summative ratings under section 25 and the Statement of Evidence reinforces the charge, the District is bound by the procedural requirements of section 25.

Id. at 48. (See Exhibit "M").

Additionally, Arbitrator Simmelkjaer unequivocally held that:

> [i]t is undisputed that the District may proceed against the Respondent on statutory grounds other than Inefficiency by filing such charges in accordance with the requirements of section 8. However, the District can not file inefficiency charges on alternative grounds or once its filing under section 25 has been found deficient rehabilitate these insufficient charges under section 8 and then proceed to arbitration of this basis. Clearly had the Legislature in enacting TEACHNJ intended this outcome, it would have written the appropriate language.
> In the Arbitrator's opinion, had the Legislature intended that a teacher charged with inefficiency for two consecutive years, with ineffective or partially effective ratings on their annual summative ratings, be evaluated utilizing two different and asymmetrical evaluation procedures — one consistent with section 25 of TEACHNJ and the other consistent with section 8, N.J.S.A 18A:6-16— it had the wherewithal to provide the appropriate statutory language. In the absence of such language, the Arbitrator is compelled to dismiss the charge.

Id. at 50 [Emphasis Added] (See Exhibit "M").

Similarly, In the Matter of the Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Neil Thomas, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket. No.: 244-9/14, Arbitrator Simmelkjaer addressed this issue again against this same District, concluding that inefficiency tenure charges could not be brought under Section 8:

> [T]he Respondent logically argues that the District, having brought the charges pursuant to Section 25, is bound by the procedures in that section of the statute . . . less "[f]ailure to adhere to these requirements [ ] result in the tenure charge being dismissed."

Moreover, on this point, the District cannot rehabilitate charges found to be deficient under Section 25 by proposing that they be reconsidered under Section 8 as a default position. As the Respondent reasonably argues:

> The District cited absolutely no language in Section 25 of the Act - - any other authority - - which would indicate that the Legislature intended for deficient inefficiency charges to simply proceed to arbitration via Section 8 of the Act. Indeed, if the District's flawed and unsupported argument is adopted, it would render the language in Section 25 superfluous.

Id. at 47 [Emphasis Added]. (See Exhibit "Q").

Further, Arbitrator Simmelkjaer concluded that:

> [h]ad the Legislature intended that a teacher charged with inefficiency for two consecutive years of ineffective or partially ineffective ratings on their annual summative ratings be evaluated utilizing two different and asymmetric evaluation procedures - - one consistent with Section 25 of TEACH NJ and the other consistent with Section 8, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 - - it had the wherewithal to provide the appropriate statutory language. In the absence of such language, the Arbitrator is compelled to dismiss the charges.

Id. at 51. (See Exhibit "Q").

And likewise, in In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Elena Brady, State-Operated School District for the City of Newark, Docket. No. 270-9/14, Arbitrator Joyce M. Klein addressed this issue brought on behalf of the same District:

The notice of "charges based upon inefficiency > pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1" against the Respondent charge her with inefficiency under Section 25 N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17 rather than under Section 8 N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 which covers tenure charges other than those of inefficiency under the provisions of TEACHNJ. The District's efforts to proceed under Section 8 are limited by the charges themselves, which include N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and not N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 at this juncture. As there is no basis for proceeding under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, I do not address whether such a proceeding would be warranted based upon the record in this case.

Id. at 25. [Emphasis Added] (See, Exhibit "G").

In a decision only recently issued and after the District filed amended charges against a teacher pursuant to Section 8 of TEACHNJ, in In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Rinita Williams, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket Nos. 241-8/14 & 17-1/15, Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg, citing to the arbitration decisions in Whitehurst and Thomas, flatly rejected the District's pursuit of charges of inefficiency under Section 8 as well. (See Exhibit "M").

Lastly, in the prior arbitration proceeding In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Linda Kelly-Gamble, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket No. 266-9/14, you, as the assigned Arbitrator, specifically concluded that Section 25 was the exclusive avenue for pursuit of charges of inefficiency:

> As argued by the Respondent, the new inefficiency standard of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 with attendant regulations represented wholesale changes to > inefficiency cases heard under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, among them the elimination of the 90 day improvement period. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 limited the discretion of the arbitrator when considering an inefficiency charge. Nothing convinces me that the Legislature intended inefficiency cases filed during and after the 2013-14 School Year to be heard under both.

Id. at n. 5, p. 56. [Emphasis Added] (See Exhibit "C").

The District apparently believes that through Section 8 it does not need two years of ineffective or partially ineffective ratings to bring charges. If the Legislature had intended for deficient Section 25 inefficiency charges to proceed to arbitration via Section 8, it would have so stated. Instead, as discussed above, it specifically and clearly revamped the entire process of bringing inefficiency tenure charges against a teacher, removing them from the general framework of Section 8 and creating an entirely new and specific process under Section 25. Section 25 separated out inefficiency from all other charges with its own statutorily and regulatory provisions concerning unique timeframes, procedures and requirements, all of which are different from the requirements set forth in Section 8, which involve charges brought on grounds other than inefficiency. It is a well-settled tenet of statutory construction, that "where one statute deals specifically with a subject and another statute deals with that subject only generally or inferentially, the specific statute is controlling." City of East Orange v. Essex County Register of Deeds and Mortgages, 362 N.J. Super. 440, 444 (App. Div. 2003) (citing Wilson v. Unsatisfied Claim & Judgment Fund Board, 109 N.J. 271, 278 (1988)).

If the District wished to proceed against Respondent Kelly-Gamble on statutory grounds other than "inefficiency" – such as "incapacity," "unbecoming conduct," or "other just cause" – it was free to do so last fall by filing such charges against her in accordance with the requirements of Section 8 of the Act when it filed the original charges. It chose not to do so. What it cannot do is file Section 25 charges and lose, and then attempt to re-file the exact same charges under Section 8. TEACHNJ Act clearly dictates that all inefficiency charges must be filed, if at all, pursuant to the requirements set forth in Section 25. There is no "alternate" filing method for inefficiency charges. If the Legislature had intended for deficient inefficiency tenure charges to proceed to arbitration via Section 8, it would have so provided. It did not. That being the case, the amended charges filed by the Petitioner School District must be dismissed consistent with your prior arbitration Award and ruling on January 30, 2015.

The Petitioner School District has raised one last issue that needs to be addressed briefly. The Petitioner has complained to you, as the Arbitrator in this proceeding, that the Respondent's Motion To Dismiss is "untimely". As you know, the Commissioner of Education has the authority to address any "defects" in the tenure revocation proceeding, including failure of responding party to file an appropriate answer in tenure proceedings. Respondent admits that she was given an extension of time to file her formal answer in this proceeding by April 15, 2015. But for a shipping error in the Fed Ex delivery to the Division of Controversies and Disputes in the Commissioner of Education's Office in the Department of Education, the Answer would have been filed in a timely manner. Respondent, through counsel, advised the Division of the shipping error and the "excuse" was accepted with the Motion following the next day on April 16, 2015.

It is apparent that the Commissioner accepted the Respondent's Answer and Motion by the transfer and assignment of the tenure revocation proceeding along with the MOTION TO DISMISS. I am attaching a copy of the transmittal letter from the Hon. Kathleen Duncan, the Director of the Division within the Commissioner's Office. As a result, there is no dispute regarding the filed Answer and Motion. Again, this is another example of the Petitioner School District creating an issue where there is none. See, Letter from the Division Of Controversies and Disputes transmitting the tenure revocation proceeding to you as the assigned Arbitrator.

Petitioner State Operated School District City of Newark

At the outset, it should be clear that the District Certified and filed the Amended Tenure Charges of Inefficiency with the Commissioner of Education on or about March 17, 2015. These Tenure Charges expressly address the "old" or "Section 8" inefficiency charges of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. The underlying Arbitration Award dismissed Tenure Charges filed against the Respondent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:6-17.3, brought pursuant to the "new" provisions of Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act ("TEACHNJ"), N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, et seq., as adopted August 6, 2012. Following the Arbitrator's decision and directive the District Amended the Tenure Charges to include the "old" or "pre-Act" inefficiency standard as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. A new docket number was assigned by the Commissioner of Education, who noted that these charges were to be considered only under this section.

Further, it is of no moment that the District has not moved to vacate this Arbitrator's Award of January 30, 2015. Here, the Respondent has likewise not filed any action to confirm the Award in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, which provides that "[t]he arbitrator's determination shall be final and binding and may not be appealable to the Commissioner of Education or the State Board of Education. The determination shall be subject to judicial review and enforcement as provided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:24-7 through N.J.S.A. 2A:24-10." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 expressly refers to the mechanism of enforcement of arbitration awards through the process set forth in N.J.S.A. 2A:24-7. Therefore, the Award is binding as per TEACHNJ, unless and until it is confirmed, modified or vacated in superior court via summary action pursuant to R. 4:67-2. Id.

Tenure arbitrations are individual matters, each addressing a unique set of circumstances. Each must be adjudicated separately and on their own merits. TEACHNJ was implemented in order to address the individuality of these matters providing for arbitration rather than an administrative law hearing, which focuses on the facts of the case rather than a body of case law. Here, the underlying matter was dismissed and no final decision on the merits was reached. For the reasons discussed further below, once a matter is transmitted to arbitration by the Commissioner, the arbitrator must proceed to a hearing on the merits. As such, this matter should proceed to a hearing on the merits of the tenure charges against the Respondent.

These Amended Tenure Charges were filed subsequent to the decision In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Linda Kelly-Gamble, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 266-9/14 (Pecklers, January 2015). Following the dismissal, the District submitted the instant Amended Tenure Charges, adding a charge of inefficiency pursuant to Section 8 of TEACHNJ (the "old" statute) to that previously alleged pursuant to Section 25 of TEACHNJ. Simply put, the evaluations for Respondent during the 2012-2013 school year were poor, and should not be ignored. Respondent should not get a "free pass" for her performance during this time period. However, this is precisely the result which will be achieved should the instant matter be dismissed because the District will be unable to pursue tenure charges for Respondent during this time period under either Section 8 or Section 25 of TEACHNJ.

The Amended Tenure Charges of Inefficiency were brought against the Respondent based on her consistent lack of improvement and receipt of poor evaluation ratings of "ineffective" and "partially effective." Based upon this performance, the District filed Amended Tenure Charges for Inefficiency against Respondent, a tenured teacher within the District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b) with the Commissioner of Education. The Amended Tenure Charges must proceed to a substantive hearing to determine the question of whether they are sufficient to warrant the Respondent's dismissal or reduction in her salary by a preponderance of the evidence, which, as discussed more fully below, is an entirely different standard from that delineated under the "new" TEACHNJ Act. The Amended Tenure Charges must therefore be evaluated under the "preponderance of the evidence" standard, rather than as argued by the Respondent under the evaluation criteria of the new Act.

Respondent here is seeking to have her cake and eat it. She alleges in her Motion to Dismiss that the inefficiency charge pursuant to Section 25 of TEACHNJ, should be dismissed because the charges were premature. Specifically, Respondent alleges that the evaluations for the 2012 - 2013 school year should not "count" for tenure decisions. Respondent further asserts that the inefficiency charges can only be brought pursuant to Section 25 rather than Section 8 of TEACHNJ and therefore the District's amended charges must be dismissed. Here, the Respondent is arguing that the tenure charges of inefficiency are both too early and too late. The former argument entirely ignoring the legislative history and effective date of TEACHNJ, the latter holding the District to an impossible standard of predicting the future. As explained in more detail below, the Arbitrator has jurisdiction to determine the inefficiency charge under either N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, implemented by Section 8, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as well as Section 25, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. As in this case, the Arbitrator has dismissed the charges under Section 25, they must now proceed and be evaluated under Section 8.

In addition, the Amended Tenure Charges were filed timely as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Here, the Amended Tenure Charges were initially served on the Respondent after their being submitted to the State-District Superintendent on or about January 15, 2015. (See, Exhibit C). As the Amended Tenure Charges addressed Section 8 charges, the Respondent was afforded the statutorily mandated time period of fifteen (15) days rather than the ten (10) day response time as prescribed for charges brought under Section 25. (Cf. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(3) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(3). The Respondent filed a written response to the Amended Tenure Charges with the District on January 31, 2015. Thus, the District had 45 days from January 31, 2015, to make a determination as to the probable cause in the amended tenure charges pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(4). In accordance with this regulation, the District did determine that there was probable cause to the amended charges and the State-Appointed District Superintendent completed the Certification of Determination on the 45th day, March 17, 2015. (See, Exhibit D).

This matter was subsequently received by the Commissioner of Education, who acknowledged receipt of the tenure charges for which an Answer was to be timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:5-5.3 noting that, "the tenure charges will not be evaluated under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.13 because a decision pursuant to that section has already been reached." (See, Exhibit E). As such, the amended tenure charges were properly brought pursuant to Section 8 of TEACHNJ alleging Inefficiency. The Respondent is clearly seeking a free pass from the tenure law and this explicitly was not provided by the Legislature when TEACHNJ was enacted. For the reasons set forth more fully below, the Motion to Dismiss should be denied and the matter should move forward towards a hearing on the merits of the Section 8 Tenure Charges.

The question under Section 8 inefficiency charges is whether the District has met its burden under the long-established preponderance of credible evidence standard. See I/M/O Owen Newson and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. 276-9/12 (Pecklers, 2013) (evaluating a tenure charge filed after the effective date of TEACHNJ, but relying on evaluations performed before the effective date under the "preponderance of the evidence" standard.). Pursuant to the older standard, the burden is on the District to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In Re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). This requires that the District offer evidence that would lead a reasonably prudent person to conclude that the Respondent is an ineffective educator. I/M/O Zinznewski, School District of Twp. of Edison, Middlesex County, OAL Docket No. EDU 4727-08 (May 5, 2010).

This standard is separate and apart from that as statutorily defined for Section 25 charges. Under the rubric of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2, governing Section 25 charges, the question is whether the Respondent has rebutted the presumption set forth by the Commissioner that the District has followed the Evaluation Process pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 based on tenure charges, having been determined by the Commissioner to be sufficient, the arbitrator's authority is confined to determine based on the evidence presented at a hearing whether or not:

> (1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including, but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;
> (2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;
>
> (3) the charges would not have been brought but for considerations of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by State or federal law, or other conduct prohibited by State or federal law; or
> (4) the district's actions were arbitrary and capricious.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2.

For the charges preceded above regarding inefficiency under Section 25, the Arbitrator can only make a determination on the above-listed four elements. Contrary to the Section 25 standard, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the issue before the arbitrator here is whether the evidence in the record presented supports the charge of inefficiency. See I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Lawrence E. Hawkins, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. 243-10/13 (March 10, 2014) *39-43; I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Gerald Carter, State-Operated School District of the City of Camden, Docket. No. 269-12/12, (July 18, 2013) *24-27; and I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Felicia Pugliese, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. 272-9/12 (February 15, 2013) *8-10. The only issue for the arbitrator is whether the record supports a finding that the charges are true. See, Chavez, supra, *11-12. Without developing the record at a hearing and considering the District's evidence, which goes beyond the summary Statement of Evidence, it is impossible to make this determination.

In keeping with the Arbitrator's prior determination, the evaluations conducted during the 2012–2013 school year are not the sole basis for the inefficacy charges. Nor was there a "free" year without evaluation. These evaluations and the relevant testimony that will be adduced should be considered along with the remainder of the evidence to be presented in assessing the totality of the circumstances. TEACHNJ was enacted on August 6, 2012, by the New Jersey Legislature and went into effect prior to the start of the 2012-13 school year. P.L. 2012, c. 26, §28. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117. The effective date of adoption of TEACHNJ is provided below N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117 and states the following regarding the effective date: "Adopted L. 2012, c.26, §1, approved August 6, 2012, in the 2012-2013 school year." Each statute provided thereafter, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-118 through 129 provides that it was adopted "August 6, 2012, in the 2012-2013 school year." In addition, the statutes that established the procedure for adjudicating tenure charges, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 through 17.5 also cite that same was approved "August 6, 2012, in the 2012-2013 school year."

school year, not 2012-2013 as asserted without support by Respondent. Thus, evaluations conducted in the 2011-2012 pilot did not "count" for official purposes, but the experience of that pilot program informed the development of the teacher evaluation process adopted, approved and implemented in subsequent school year 2012-2013. It is indisputable that the Legislature purposefully adopted and approved TEACHNJ "August 6, 2012, in the 2012-2013 school year." As such, there is no question that the evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year were to be used towards determining if tenure charges were warranted, if not as the sole basis.

TEACHNJ required school districts to institute pilot programs to test their new evaluation rubrics by, January 31, 2013, at the latest. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123(d) ("Beginning no later than January 31, 2013, a board of education shall implement a pilot program..."). [Emphasis Added]. It also required school districts to implement their evaluation rubrics by the beginning of the 2013-2014 school year at the latest. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123(e) ("[b]eginning with the 2013-2014 school year, a board of education shall ensure implementation of the approved, adopted evaluation rubric"). [Emphasis Added]. Neither the Legislature nor the Department of Education required school districts to wait a year to implement their evaluation rubrics if the rubrics had been adopted and approved earlier. Further neither entity would require New Jersey school districts to treat the 2012-2013 school year, and only 2012-2013, as a "pilot" year. The cited provisions provided the latest dates by which districts were required to test and implement their new rubrics; they did not prohibit implementation of approved rubrics earlier than the stated deadline. Nothing in TEACHNJ or any regulations provides that evaluations performed in 2012-2013 in accordance with an adopted, approved rubric are to be treated differently from those performed in 2013-2014, for purposes of triggering tenure charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3.

Moreover, the Commissioner of Education has upheld tenure charges for inefficiency under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 based upon annual summative ratings for the consecutive years of 2012-2013 and 2013-2014. I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Renee Pulliam-Newell, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket. No. 276-9/14, where the Commissioner entered default judgment for charges under TEACHNJ Act based upon evaluations conducted during the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years, for inefficiency.

Furthermore, in the recent decision of I/M/O LaRhonda Ragland and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket No. 258-9/14 (Arbitrator Timothy Brown, Esq.) (February 2, 2015), the Arbitrator concluded that he had the authority to review the tenure charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 (new inefficiency law) and that once the Commissioner transferred the matter, the Arbitrator was required to hear the merits of the case. The Arbitrator concluded that the "the Commissioner's referral of this matter to me was specifically pursuant to TEACHNJ Section 25 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(c)) and no other Section of the Act, and grants me the narrow authority to determine the case under the provisions of Section 23 and no other."

Similarly, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Edward Newton, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 276-9/14 (Arbitrator Timothy Brown, Esq.) (March 23, 2015), the Arbitrator concluded that the District met its burden to warrant dismissal under Section 25 of the Act pursuant to the tenure charge of inefficiency. For all of these reasons, the teacher evaluations conducted within the District in 2012-2013 were valid, effective, and "counted" for all purposes, including: to support tenure charges such as this one. Respondent's contention to the contrary should be rejected.

Respondent argues that the instant charges must be dismissed because the parties are barred from re-litigating in a new case an issue already disposed of. However, this is a mischaracterization of the facts here. A party asserting the defense of collateral estoppel has the burden of demonstrating that the issue was litigated in a prior proceeding. State v. Kelly, 201 N.J. 471, 488 (2010). The merits of the Amended Tenure charges against there were never adjudicated, and as such, the defense does not apply.

The District previously filed an inefficiency tenure charge against Respondent (Docket No. 266-9/14) under Section 25 of TEACHNJ, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. In response to Respondent's claim that the charge asserted there was defective because of the inapplicability of Section 25 (because evaluation ratings obtained in 2012-13 did not "count" toward the two years' ratings required under that provision), the School District requested that the Arbitrator consider the charge under both Section 25 and Section 8 of TEACHNJ, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, to avoid the necessity of filing a Section 8 charge later, in a separate proceeding. The Arbitrator denied the School District's request and dismissed the charge on the basis of Respondent's contention pertaining to Section 25 (the inapplicability of the 2012-13 evaluation rating). See, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Linda Kelly-Gamble, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, supra, Therein, this Arbitrator did not reach the merits of the charge under Section 8 – i.e. he never addressed whether the School District had met its burden of proving inefficiency. As such, the Section 8 charge was not adjudicated. Therefore, even if the School District is "bound by" the Arbitrator's decision in the previous matter, it is not precluded by that decision from bring the instant charge, as the Arbitrator's decision did not address the charge now presented pursuant to Section 8.

As stated above, Respondent cannot meet the burden of demonstrating that the issue was litigated in a prior proceeding. While the two charges of inefficiency against her have been predicated on the same facts, if viewed only from the position of the statement of evidence, they are supported by different statutory authority, as Respondent acknowledges. Moreover, the decision dismissing the previous charge was based on statutory grounds inapplicable to the instant charge, specifically the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123(d), which are applicable only to charges brought pursuant to Section 25. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(d). As the Section 8 charge was not addressed in the previous case and the only issue decided there was inapplicable to the Section 8 charge, the issue of Respondent's inefficiency has not been decided, and the Section 8 charge against her is not precluded by res judicata.

In the instant matter, the law of case doctrine is clearly inapplicable. In the first instance, the initial tenure charges for Respondent were dismissed on a procedural issue regarding Section 25 of TEACHNJ. Here, the Arbitrator did not review any evidence in support of the charges in coming to his determination, nor did he analyze the legal sufficiency of the District's position. Therefore, the issue regarding the substance of the District's underlying charges was never litigated, and no legal determination was made in this regard. Should this matter proceed to a hearing and heard on the merits, it will be the first time the parties have an opportunity to argue their positions with regard to the substance of the allegations against the Respondent. This issue has yet to be argued -- let alone re-litigated.

The law of the case doctrine sets forth that unreversed decisions made during the trial by the same court regarding questions of law should not be disturbed. State v. Reldan, 100 N.J. 187, 203 (1985). The policy for such a doctrine is that "once an issue is litigated and decided in a suit, re-litigation of that issue should be avoided if possible." State v. Hale, 127 N.J. Super. 407, 410 (App.Div.1974). However, the law of the case doctrine is discretionary. State v. Reldan, supra, 100 N.J. at 205.

Additionally, the application of this doctrine is discretionary, and "should be applied flexibly to serve the interests of justice." State v. Reldan, supra, 100 N.J. at 205. Here, the interests of justice would not be served by a procedural dismissal. As stated above, if the evaluations for the 2012-2013 school year do not "count" for purposes of tenure charges under Section 25, and the District's request to charge Respondent under Section 8 was denied, Respondent simply gets a free pass for his poor performance during this time period. This was clearly not the intent of the drafters of TEACHNJ. Essentially, the District would be unable to pursue any charges against any teachers for their poor evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year. The interests of justice would be served by permitting this matter to proceed to a hearing on the merits. Consequently, the law of the case doctrine is inappropriate in the instant matter. Therefore, this is not a "second bite at the apple" as Respondent asserts, and this matter must proceed to a hearing for a determination on the merits of the inefficiency charge under Section 8.

Codifying the entire controversy doctrine, New Jersey Court Rule 4:30A requires all claims against all potential defendants be brought in one encompassing litigation. The threefold objectives behind the doctrine are (1) to encourage the comprehensive and conclusive determination of a legal controversy; (2) to achieve party fairness, including both parties before the court as well as prospective parties; and (3) to promote judicial economy and efficiency by avoiding fragmented, multiple and duplicative litigation. Cogdell v. Hospital Ctr. at Orange, 116 N.J. 7 (1989).

Respondent asserts that the District is re-litigating the tenure charges against her because these charges have already been brought before an arbitrator and the District lost. However, that decision was not based upon Respondents evaluations or the merits of the District's case demonstrating the Respondent's inefficiency based on a preponderance of the evidence at a hearing. The Arbitrator dismissed the previous charges against Respondent based on his interpretation of TEACHNJ which he determined does not allow for evaluations from the 2012-2013 school year to be considered in tenure charge matters. This is not a conclusive determination of the legal controversy presented between the parties. Further, a dismissal of the instant charges would not achieve an equitable result because the District would essentially be unable to bring tenure charges against any teachers based upon their poor evaluations from the 2012-2013 school years. Lastly, the instant tenure charges do not constitute a duplicative litigation because the merits of the charges have yet to be heard. This is not a case where the District lost on the merits of the previous tenure charges and now wishes to re-file. Accordingly, in recognition of the underlying principles of the enforcement of the entire controversy doctrine, the District's tenure charges against Respondent should proceed to a hearing and determination on the merits.

The Arbitrator has jurisdiction to determine the inefficiency charge under either N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, implemented by Section 8, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as well as Section 25, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. See, Chavez, supra. The contention that an inefficiency charge cannot proceed on any basis other than N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.3, and that a charge cannot proceed on that basis either until all applicable requirements are met – essentially, that the Legislature intended to hand poorly performing teachers a "free pass" for two years after the Act's effective date – has been rejected by TEACHNJ arbitrators. In I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Henchey, Agency Docket No. 8-15 (January 3, 2015), for example, the arbitrator stated the following:

> I am not convinced ... that there was a moratorium on filing a Section 8 tenure charge alleging inefficiency insofar as the 2012-13 school year is concerned.

Id. at pg. 24.

Henchy concluded that since the effective date of TEACHNJ, "the applicable statutory provisions serving as vehicles for processing tenure charges" have included both Section 8 and Section 25. Id. at p. 26. See also, I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Henchey, Agency Docket No. 9-15 (Jan. 6, 2015) at p. 4. Similarly, the Arbitrator in I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Pugliese, Agency Docket. No. 272-9/12 (February 15, 2013), confirmed, Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Essex County, Docket. No. C84-13 (Sept. 16, 2013), appeal pending, Docket. No. A-000857-13, stated that "[t]o hold otherwise would be to usurp the power of the legislature." Id. at pg. 8-9.

Arbitrators in several cases in which Section 25 charges have been dismissed have suggested that dismissal might not have been required if the charges had been pled, in the alternative, on the basis of Section 8 as well as Section 25. See, I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Yarborough, Agency Docket No. 509-14 (December 29, 2014); I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Williams, Agency Docket No. 501-14 (December 20, 2014); I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Brady, Agency Docket No. 478-14 (Dec. 7, 2014). Thus, these Arbitrators have read TEACHNJ to allow inefficiency charges to proceed on grounds other than Section 25, contrary to Respondent's contention here.

The statements in Pugliese, Henchey, Yarborough, Williams, and Brady also represent a sensible reading of TEACHNJ that is consistent with the legislative intent. In cases such as this, where Section 25 of TEACHNJ is inapplicable because it was held that a charge cannot be based on two years of "ineffective" or "partially effective" ratings, a school district must nevertheless be permitted to proceed with an inefficiency charge in an appropriate case. More importantly, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides the statutory basis to do so.

As discussed supra, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 requires that once a matter is transmitted to arbitration by the Commissioner, the arbitrator must proceed to a hearing on the merits. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the question before the arbitrator is whether the evidence in the record presented supports the charge of inefficiency. See, Hawkins, supra, *39-43; Carter, supra, *24-27; Pugliese, supra, *8-10. The only issue for the arbitrator is whether the record supports a finding that the charges are true. See, Chavez, supra, *11-12.

On or about March 27, 2015, the Respondent's counsel requested an extension of time to "file a written response." (See, Exhibit H). An extension of time from April 2, 2015, until April 12, 2015, was granted. (Id., see, NJ DOE Controversies and Disputes Extension noted on Correspondence). Subsequently, on April 13, 2015, the day after the extended time to answer, the Respondent's counsel again requested an additional extension, until April 15, 2015, this time to file an "Answer and Motion." (See, Exhibit I). An additional extension of time, until April 15, 2015, was granted by the Division. (Id., see, NJ DOE Controversies and Disputes Extension noted on Correspondence). The Division expressly noted that "No further extensions will be granted". Id. [Emphasis Added].

Despite the two extensions, the Respondent did not file an Answer on April 15, 2015. Moreover, the Respondent unilaterally announced an additional extension of time to file a Motion by April 16, 2015, an additional two days after the extended deadline. (See, Exhibit J). In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3, any request for an extension of time to answer can only be granted by the Commissioner. Further, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(1) permits "the filing of a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer provided the motion is filed within the time allotted for the filing of an answer." Id. [Emphasis Added]. Even assuming that the Division could accept an answer filed outside the extended deadline, the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss, filed in addition to rather than in lieu of an Answer, submitted a further two days after the twice extended deadline should be rejected.

Respondent recasts three (3) arguments in support of her reply. Her primary, averment is that the Arbitrator's dismissal of the District's prior tenure charges based on Section 25 constitutes an adjudication on the merits, triggering the various equitable doctrines she cites. Respondent additionally asserts that because, as she would have it, Section 25 is now the only mechanism by which tenure charges can be brought and it was previously found that Section 25 omits the 2012-2013 evaluations, the skipping of an entire academic year for purposes of tenure decisions is appropriate and even legislatively condoned. Finally, Respondent reiterates her position that the District's Amended Tenure Charges were untimely. None of these arguments are meritorious.

Contrary to the Respondent's allegations, the tenure charges at issue in this proceeding were timely filed. The Respondent, in a series of confusing arguments claims that the tenure charges should be dismissed as untimely because the District has made some kind of "assessment" based upon two flawed "assumptions". See, Respondent's Letter Brief in Reply to the District's Opposition to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss, dated May 22, 2015, at *2. In this connection, it must be noted that both assumptions are entirely without merit and wholly fabricated by the Respondent and ascribed to the District without any legal or factual basis. The Respondent alleges that the District is assuming: "(1) that there is no record or admission by the Petitioner that it had 'filed' Section 8 inefficiency charges against the Respondent simultaneously with the filing of the Section 25 charges; and (2) that section 8 inefficiency charges were filed by the Petitioner simultaneously with the Section 25 tenure charges in the prior proceeding." Id. The District made no such assumptions and has not made any argument that would lead to the conclusion that the District had not previously contended that the tenure charges, initially filed in August 2014, were and did comprise N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, or "Section 8 inefficiency charges."

In making such allegation, the Respondent overlooks the Arbitrator's prior decision I/M/O the Tenure Charge of Linda Kelly-Gamble and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Docket No. 266-9/14 (January 30, 2015), and the record in this case. This argument is somewhat undercut by her alternate argument that these tenure charges must be dismissed under the inapplicable "law of the case doctrine" – where the Respondent argues that the Arbitrator's prior decision dismissing the Section 25 charges only and to proceed based upon the perfection of new charges under Section 8. See, Respondent's Brief at *7.

Here, the initial tenure charges, were brought pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. During the prior proceeding this Arbitrator clearly determined that the initial tenure charges had been filed "pursuant to Section 25 of ...TEACH NJ... N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(a)(2)", addressed only those charges and dismissed that charge of inefficiency with prejudice. This was made clear in Arbitrator Pecklers' direct rejection of the District's contention that it had plead an alternate statutory basis under N.J.S.A.

18A:6-16, holding that the Initial Tenure Charges had been plead, and were to be considered, under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. I/M/O the Tenure Charge of Linda Kelly-Gamble and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Docket. No. 266-9/14 (Pecklers, January 2015). The Arbitrator ruled that the initial tenure charges failed under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, and therefore "if Petitioner [the District] wishes to proceed against Respondent on an alternative statutory basis, it must do so via the perfection of new tenure Charges before the Commissioner of Education." Id., at 56. [Emphasis Added] This is exactly what the District has done.

The Tenure Charges at issue in this proceeding, the Amended Tenure Charges, were submitted to the State-Appointed Superintendent by Principal Maria Ortiz on or about January 14, 2015. The Amended Tenure Charges, which added the citation to the relevant statutes N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, were filed in accordance with the procedure and timelines set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3. These tenure charges were subsequently served on the Respondent, who submitted an answer to the District on January 31, 2015. These Tenure Charges were then reviewed and Certified by the State-Appointed District Superintendent and filed with the Department of Education for on March 17, 2015. The Department of Education then reviewed the Tenure Charges after receiving the Respondent's own untimely Answer and transmitted the tenure charges to Arbitrator Pecklers as new tenure charges. In transmitting the tenure charges to an Arbitration proceeding the Department of Education clearly stated that:

> Please be advised that, following receipt of respondent's answer on April 15, 2015, the above-captioned tenure charges which have been docketed as new charges and which are being processed with respect to Section 8 inefficiency charges only, are being referred to Arbitrator Michael J. Pecklers as he deems appropriate.

See, correspondence from M. Kathleen Duncan, Director, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, dated April 22, 2015. [Emphasis Added].

Also in regard to Respondent's position that the District's filing of the Amended Tenure Charge was untimely, the District again refers the Arbitrator to the opinion recently issued in I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Marie Ebert, Agency Docket No. 49-3/15, dated May 21, 2015. There, addressing the same issue Arbitrator Denenberg stated that:

> A review of the applicable statutes and regulations, along with the court's decision in Cowan [224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988)], demonstrates that: (1) once tenure charges are filed with the district, the tenured employee has 15 days to submit a written statement of position and evidence; and (2) upon receipt of the employee's statement of position and evidence, or upon expiration of the allotted 15-day time period, the district superintendent shall determine within 45 days whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether such charges are sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction in salary. Here, the record demonstrates that the determination of probable cause was made within 45 days of the respondent's response to the amended tenure charges. Accordingly, I reject the respondent's claim and find that the filing of amended tenure charges was timely.

See, Exhibit 1 to the Supplemental Certification of Shana T. Don Esq., the Opinion issued by Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Marie Ebert, Agency Docket No. 49-3/15, dated May 21, 2015, at *2 [Emphasis Added].

The District urges the Arbitrator in this matter to reach the same and proper conclusion. As to this issue, the District also wholly disagrees with the Respondent's implication that, because the time periods under the law were "designed to protect the due process rights of educators subject to tenure revocation charges", see Respondent's brief at *5, her own due process rights have somehow been violated in any manner in this process. Respondent has now been aware of the charge and the evidence supporting the charge for many, many months. To suggest that Respondent's (unarticulated) due process rights were violated, or even that she has been in any manner prejudiced by the timing of the service of the tenure charges levied against her, is without basis in fact.

Further, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") is solely authorized to determine legal challenges to tenure charges. Pugliese v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. A-0857-13T2 and Chavez v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark., Docket. No. A-1012-13T2 (App. Div. May 19, 2015). N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, which governs this proceeding provides that the Commissioner has the authority to determine the sufficiency of a tenure charge "to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged" and is required to refer the case to an arbitrator for further proceeding, if such a finding is made. Id. Further, the Commissioner is only prohibited from referring a matter to an arbitrator "when a motion for summary decision has been made prior to that time, the commissioner may retain the matter for purposes of deciding the motion." Id.

The Commissioner determined that the charge was sufficient to warrant a penalty and transmitted it to the Arbitrator for a hearing. This vested authority has been recognized by arbitrators in tenure hearings under TEACHNJ. See, I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Edward Newton, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Docket. No. 276-9/14 (March 2015) (An arbitrator recognized the Commissioner statutory authority and provided that "[b]ecause the charges have been deemed sufficient by the Commissioner, I find I need not determine whether or not the District complied with claimed controlling procedures and process, or whether the District was required to comply with a tiered evaluation system or other issue…").

Moreover, the role of an arbitrator in a tenure proceeding is set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1. Under TEACHNJ, tenure charges were no longer transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law and instead the charges are submitted to an arbitrator under strict time lines. See, Exhibit 2 to the Supplemental Certification of Shana T. Don Esq., Pugliese v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. A-0857-13T2 and Chavez v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket. No. A-1012-13T2 (App. Div. May 19, 2015). Once a tenure charge is transmitted to an arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 based on tenure charges alleging that the employee was inefficient an arbitrator is required to make a determination of fact. Here, the Respondent did not file a Motion for Summary Decision with the Commissioner. Thus, the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss is not properly before the Arbitrator and this matter must proceed to a hearing.

With respect to the bringing of charges pursuant to Section 8, versus Section 25, for tenure charges based in part on evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year, the District draws to the Arbitrator's attention the conclusion on this issue by an arbitrator in another tenure matter:

> In this instance, however, the tenure dispute arose during the transition to Section 25 as the designated procedure for resolving a charge of inefficiency, and the charge was originally based on both Section 25 and Section 8. Although a charge involving 2012-2013 evaluations may not be brought under Section 25, no similar impediment prevents the district from seeking removal according to the requirements of Section 8.

See, Exhibit 1 to the Supplemental Certification of Shana T. Don Esq., the Opinion issued by Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Marie Ebert, Agency Docket No. 49-3/15, dated May 21, 2015, at *3. [Emphasis Added].

Here, as in the Ebert matter, the tenure dispute arose during the transition to Section 25 and the District's initial tenure charge was based on both Section 25 and Section 8. Simply because Section 25 may have been found to be procedurally unavailable as the vehicle in which to analyze 2012-2013 evaluations, there is no impediment to the District seeking removal of the Respondent under the legislative scheme of Section 8.

In light of the accelerating trend of Arbitration Decisions under the TEACHNJ Act, the District anticipated that the tenure charges in the prior proceeding would be dismissed, and began proceeding to amend the tenure charges to cure the defect ultimately cited by the Arbitrator in dismissing the charges in his January 30, 2015 Opinion and Award. Further, in accordance with the Arbitrator's instruction, Amended Tenure Charges were perfected before the Department of Education adding the comprehensive and preexisting charge of "inefficiency" to be assessed on a "preponderance of the evidence" standard rather than the more limited two annual evaluations of the TEACHNJ Act.

For all of the foregoing reasons, the State-Operated School District for the City of Newark respectfully requests that the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss be denied in its entirety and the matter proceed to hearing on the merits.

IV. STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner preliminarily urges that the instant motion is procedurally defective, as Respondent filed the same late after failing to perfect Ms. Kelly-Gamble's answer to the amended tenure charges in timely fashion. This argument was previously raised before the commissioner in an April 21, 2015 MOTION FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT and denied in an April 22, 2015 correspondence from Director Duncan indicating that she was forwarding the file including the motion to me for resolution. On this basis, a finding is made that the motion is properly before me.

As the moving party and the proponent of this affirmative defense which as a practical matter operates as a threshold consideration, Respondent Kelly-

Gamble assumes the burden of making a prima facie showing by a preponderance of the credible evidence. If that is satisfied, the burden of persuasion shifts to the Petitioner to attempt to rebut this prefatory showing through its affirmative defenses. Following a careful analysis of the respective positions and case citation, and with any facts in dispute viewed in a light most favorable to the non-moving party District, I find that the subject amended tenure charge of inefficiency must be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE, as the District has been unable to rebut Respondent's prima facie presentation.

I note at the outset that as Respondent has correctly submitted there is no procedure set forth in TEACHNJ or the enabling regulations that were subsequently promulgated that provides for the amendment of tenure charges. Petitioner has in fact failed to cite any authority for this legal fiction, and relies upon the identical STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE and exhibits which Principal Ortiz proffered in support of the District's prior N.J.S.A. 6:17.3 charge of inefficiency, which was dismissed with prejudice on January 30, 2015.

The District initially advances an equitable argument, insisting that if the amended tenure charge is not permitted to proceed on the merits, it would be unable to bring tenure charges against Ms. Kelly-Gamble or any other instructors for that matter, based upon their poor evaluations for the 2012–2013 School Year. Such a suggestion of course, ignores the fact that Petitioner was fully able to plead and proceed under alternative Section 8 grounds when the initial tenure charges were filed. See e.g., I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Yarborough, Agency

Docket No. 509-14 (Gerber, December 2014); I/M/O/ Tenure Hearing of Williams, Agency Docket No. 501-14 (Gregory, December 2014); I/M/O/ Tenure Hearing of Brady, Agency Docket No. 478-14 (Klein, December 2014); I/M/O/ Tenure Hearing of Henchey, Agency Docket No. 9-15 (Licata, January 2015); I/M/O/ Tenure Hearing of Pugliese, Agency Docket No. 272-9/12, confirmed, Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Essex County, Docket No. C84-13 (September 16, 2013), appeal pending, Docket No. A-000857-13. While the District staunchly maintained that it had pled both inefficiency statutes in the first case, I discounted that claim at page 55 of my AWARD, finding that:

> Petitioner's contention that it has pled an alternative statutory basis under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 to entitle a hearing on the sufficiency of the inefficiency charges under the 'old' tenure law is also unpersuasive. Rather, a cursory reference in a pleading does not obviate the fact that the solitary tenure charge of INEFFICIENCY and the accompanying STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE make it abundantly clear the instant charges were brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3.

And while Petitioner has seized upon my stray comment regarding the filing of new tenure charges, this was taken out of context and referred to those that were non-efficiency based. It must also be seen that Principal Ortiz's filing of the purported "amended tenure charge" preceded my AWARD by roughly two (2) weeks. It is then not possible that the District was merely relying upon my directive when it filed this charge.

These facts undercut any notion that ineffective teachers have been afforded a "free pass" for 2012 – 2013 substandard evaluations, as the District posits. Moreover, Section 8 inefficiency charges based upon evaluations conducted before the effective date of TEACHNJ may be heard under the preponderance of the evidence standard. See generally, I/M/O the Tenure Charge between State-Operated School District, City of Newark and Owen Newson, Agency Docket No. 276-12 (Pecklers, 2013). Subsequent inefficiency charges based upon evaluations performed in accordance with a rubric adopted by a board and approved by the commissioner per N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(d) arising during the 2013–2014 School Year when the TEACHNJ Act was fully implemented and thereafter, are then heard under N.J.S.A. 18A:17.3, with the arbitral considerations of N.J.S.A. 18A:17.2 applied.

In so finding, I categorically reject for a second time the District's repackaged argument that nothing in TEACHNJ or any regulation provides that evaluations performed in 2012–2013 in accordance with an adopted, approved rubric are to be treated differently from those performed in 2013–2014, for purposes of triggering tenure charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. Rather, and without repeating all my prior findings on this issue, such a conclusion overlooks the clear guidance provided by DOE itself (which indicated inter alia that all teaching staff members must be trained on the district's evaluation rubric by July 1, 2013) and ignores the procedural and other due process safeguards guaranteed under the Act, e.g. the School Improvement Panel, which was not in place during the 2012 – 2013 School Year.

From my perspective, what clearly may not happen therefore, is for Petitioner to have its premature N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 inefficiency charges dismissed with prejudice, then turn around and "amend" the original inefficiency charges to include the statutory cause of action that should have been brought in the first place, in an attempt to "cure" this fatal defect. In so finding, I do not believe that it is a material consideration that the DOE docketed this under a new number, or that Director Duncan counseled in her July 15, 2015 clarification correspondence that any charges not dismissed were to be heard under the preponderance of the evidence standard.

Nor has the Petitioner provided any evidence based upon the legislative history of the TEACHNJ Act or its plain language, for its position that once a matter is transmitted to an arbitrator by the commissioner, that arbitrator must proceed to a hearing on the merits of the charge. Rather, such a notion is at odds with the avalanche of awards by Panel arbitrators dismissing inefficiency charges filed by this District under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, which relied in part upon summative evaluations conducted during the 2012–2013 School Year.

Parenthetically, I credit the position of my colleague Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg, that "[n]othing in the relevant statutory provisions limits an arbitrator's ability to resolve motions before holding a hearing. Indeed, demanding a full evidentiary hearing before ruling on potentially dispositive motions could unnecessarily prolong tenure disputes, ignoring the express desire of the Legislature to expedite them." See, I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Marie Ebert, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 267-9/14 (January, 2015).

In so finding, I respectfully but firmly disagree with the contrary ruling of my colleague Arbitrator Brown in I/M/O/ the Tenure Hearing of Edward Newton, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No.276-9/14 (Brown, March 2015) which Petitioner has cited, as it relies upon an unduly narrow interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 & N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3; see also, I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of LaRhonda Ragland, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 285-9/14 (Brown, February 2015).

It is also simply not true as the District argues, that the commissioner has upheld N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 inefficiency tenure charges based on evaluations conducted during the 2012–2013 School Year. Instead, that case was disposed of by a default judgment after respondent failed to file an answer in opposition to the tenure charge and not on the merits. See, I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Renee Pulliman-Newell, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 276-9/14.

In conclusion, the foregoing considerations stand for the cumulative proposition that all inefficiency charges filed against New Jersey educators as a result of evaluations performed during the 2013–2014 School Year and beyond must be brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, which operates as the exclusive means of doing so and not concurrently under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. At page 55 of my previous Kelly-Gamble Award, I stated:

> > [i]n the Arbitrator's opinion, had the legislature intended that a teacher charged with inefficiency for two consecutive years of ineffective or partially effective ratings on their annual summative ratings be evaluated utilizing two different and asymmetric evaluation procedures – one consistent with Section 25 of TEACHNJ and the other consistent with Section 8, N.J.S.A, 18A:6-16 – it had the wherewithal to provide the appropriate statutory language. In the absence of such language, the Arbitrator is compelled to dismiss the charges.

See also, I/M/O the Tenure Charge of Inefficiency against Ursula Whitehurst filed by State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 282-9/14 (Simmelkjaer, January, 2015); I/M/O the Tenure Charge of Jodi Thompson, Agency Docket No. 240-8/14 (Brent, June 2015).

Accordingly, based upon the totality of the foregoing considerations, Respondent has presented an un-rebutted prima facie case that the subject amended inefficiency tenure charge should be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. IT IS SO ORDERED. In light of this finding, Respondent's arguments related to the law of the case, collateral estoppel and res judicata need not be reached.

V. CONCLUSION

Respondent Kelly-Gamble has demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the instant MOTION TO DISMISS must be granted.

AWARD

THE INSTANT AMENDED TENURE CHARGE IS DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. MS. KELLY-GAMBLE SHALL BE IMMEDIATELY REINSTATED TO HER TEACHING POSITION WITH FULL BACK PAY AND SENIORITY, MINUS INTERIM EARNINGS AND OTHER APPROPRIATE OFFSETS, AND MADE WHOLE FOR THE LOSS OF ANY CONTRACTUAL OR STATUTORY BENEFITS DURING THE INTERVENING PERIOD.

NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS:

SYNOPSIS

Pro-se petitioner contended that the respondent State Board of Examiners (SBE) improperly denied her application for a standard educational services certificate with a school counselor endorsement. Petitioner acknowledged that she lacked the required credits in a supervised counseling practice, but requested that her 15 years of experience as a school clerk, her six month practicum as a mental health counselor/educator, and her six months internship as a mental health counselor be accepted as alternative experience or education in lieu of the required six credits in a supervised counseling practice in a preschool through grade twelve school setting. The SBE asserted that petitioner lacked the required six semester-hour graduate credit supervised practicum in a preschool through grade 12 setting, and failed to establish a one-to-one correspondence between the licensure deficiency and her experience and education. The SBE filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no genuine issue as to material fact, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the SBE appropriately determined that petitioner failed to meet her burden of proving that the SBE improperly denied her application; petitioner has not proved that the SBE's determination to deny her application was inconsistent with the statutory and regulatory provisions for issuance of a school counselor certificate; and that the SBE's refusal to accept her education and work experience in lieu of six credits in supervised counseling was consistent with statutory and regulatory provisions and within its discretion. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the SBE's motion for summary decision.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION	:	COMMISSIONEROF EDUCATION
OF LORRAINE GEORGE-BITTINGS,	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS	:

This matter concerns petitioner's request for issuance of a standard educational services certificate with a school counselor endorsement[1] from respondent, New Jersey State Board of Examiners ("Board"), which would authorize her to perform school counseling services in grades preschool through 12. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-12.8. The record, along with the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed with the Commissioner under N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's determination, for the reasons expressed within the Initial Decision. Petitioner lacks the required six credits for a school counselor endorsement, which must be earned through a "supervised counseling practicum in a preschool through grade 12 school setting." N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-12.8(b)(2)(vi). Although petitioner requested substitution of her experience as a school clerk, along with her practicum and internship as a mental health counselor – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.13 – in place of the six credits she admittedly lacks, the Board reasoned that petitioner "did not provide compelling and cogent evidence of a one-to-one correspondence between the licensure deficiency, i.e., a school counseling practicum in a school setting, and her experience and education."[2] (Board of Examiners Decision, at 3) In conclusion, the Commissioner finds that the sufficient, credible evidence in the record adequately supports the Board's determination that petitioner has not satisfied the requirements for issuance of a standard educational services certificate with school counselor endorsement, and further finds that the Board's determination is consistent with relevant statutory and regulatory provisions.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein. Respondent's motion for summary decision is granted and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION
SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 01448-15

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF LORRAINE GEORGE-BITTINGS,
NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

Lorraine George-Bittings, pro se

Lauren A. Jensen, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (John J. Hoffman, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: June 29, 2015 Decided: July 22, 2015

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Lorraine George-Bittings, challenges the denial of her application for a school counselor certification by respondent, the New Jersey Department of Education State Board of Examiners (Board).

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, on January 30, 2015. Pursuant to the deadlines detailed in the Prehearing Order of February 25, 2015, the pending Motion for Summary Decision was received on February 27, 2015. Opposition was received on May 12, 2015. Reply papers received on June 8, 2015. Oral argument was heard on June 22, 2015. Supplemental submissions were received on June 29, 2015, at which time the record closed.

STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Summary Decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issues to the trier of fact. R. 4:46-2:

The standard for granting Summary Judgment (decision) is found in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Supreme Court adopted a standard that "requires the motion judge to engage in an analytical process essentially "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Id. at 533 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 251-252, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 214). To send a case to trial, knowing that a rational jury can reach but one conclusion, is indeed worthless and will serve no useful purpose." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 541.

The Court stated that the motion judge is to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. at 540 (quoting Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 251-252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214).

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

A review of the factual assertions submitted by the parties indicates that the following material facts are not in dispute:

1.) Petitioner applied for a school counselor certificate on March 6, 2014.

2.) On April 3, 2014, petitioner was advised that an evaluation of her credentials was completed and that she had not met all the certification requirements. The Board noted that petitioner had not satisfied the requirement that she receive a minimum of six credits in a supervised counseling practice in a preschool through grade twelve school setting. The Board advised petitioner when she completed this requirement she needed to submit, along with her official transcript an original letter from the school counseling department Chairperson at the college or university that supervised her practicum in a school setting. The Board advised petitioner that a practicum in a clinical setting would not meet the certificate requirement.

3.) On April 24, 2014, petitioner appealed the denial of her application.

4.) The Office of Licensure and Credentials provided her with the procedures to appeal an adverse credentials evaluation to the Board and how to request a review of alternative education and/or experience to complete the requirements for a school counselor certificate. Petitioner was advised that the Board does not waive requirements but rather would determine if the applicant's alternate experience would demonstrate the required one-to-one relationship.

5.) On May 30, 2014, petitioner submitted her appeal papers, with supporting documentation. Petitioner acknowledged that she satisfied all of the necessary requirements to obtain a school counselor certificate except to obtain the minimum credits in a supervised counseling practice. She requested that her fifteen years experience as a school clerk in the Jersey City School District, that her six months practicum as a mental health counselor/educator and that her six months internship as a mental health counselor be accepted as alternative experience or education in lieu of six credits in a supervised counseling practice in a preschool through grade twelve school setting. She submitted documentation that indicated how she was able to develop meaningful relationships with students while employed as a school clerk, how she assisted with guidance department tasks and how she wanted to "sustain the qualities of an effective school counselor." Petitioner also submitted numerous letters of recommendation from various school administrators praising her job performance, stating that she was "more than a school clerk," and opining that she "would be excellent counselor." She further submitted certificates recognizing her scholastic and professional excellent.

6.) The Board determined that the alternate education and experience detailed by petitioner did not provide compelling and cogent evidence of a one-to-one correspondence as to the licensure deficiency. The Board noted that "petitioner did not demonstrate a relationship between her roles and responsibilities as a school clerk and those of a school counselor, and did not proffer a detailed-one to-one correspondence between the practicum/internship experiences and the licensure deficiency." The Board noted that the adverse determination did not involve a question of character but rather a licensure deficiency or non-compliance with regulation.

7.) The Board further stated that the practicum experience in a school setting serves as a culminating experience for potential school counselors who are completing professional preparation to meet the demands of a school or district. Its purposeful content and orientation to the school's culture, including, but not limited to testing, scheduling, academic advisement, child and adolescent counseling enhances the knowledge and skills of the school counselor in his/her professional growth and development. For these reasons, the Board finds that Ms. Bittings would benefit from this structure and suggests that she seek to fulfill this requirement to familiarize herself with the breadth of roles, responsibilities, and age groups in order to serve the public school children of New Jersey.

8.) The Board again denied petitioner's request for issuance of a school counselor certificate, without her completion of a minimum of six credits in a supervised counseling practice in a preschool through grade twelve school setting.

9.) The Board decision was mailed to petitioner on September 25, 2014.

10.) Petitioner filed the present petition to appeal on December 12, 2014.

11.) In lieu of filing an answer to petition, on January 28, 2015, the Board filed a Motion to Dismiss.

12.) On February 25, 2015, a prehearing conference was conducted. The Motion to Dismiss was converted to a Motion for Summary Decision. Dates for the filing of opposition and reply papers were scheduled.

13.) During Oral Argument, counsel for the Board adamantly stated that the Board had not accepted any of petitioner's offered alternate education in lieu of six credits in a supervised counseling practicum experience in a preschool through grade twelve school setting. In contrast, petitioner noted her belief that she had received documentation from the Board in which the Board accepted part of her offered alternate education—giving her three credits toward the required six credits.

14.) The parties were permitted to submit supplemental documentation on point.

15.) The only documentation submitted by petitioner was a letter from Walden University confirming that, as part of the school's master's program in mental health counseling, petitioner completed a three-credit practicum at Hoboken University Medical Center, which provides direct services to school districts in school settings. Petitioner submitted no documentation in which the Board stated that it was giving petitioner some credit for her offered alternate education.

16.) In contrast, the Board submitted the Certification of Dr. Robert R. Higgins, Secretary for the State Board of Examiners and the Director of Certification and Induction within the New Jersey Department of Education. Dr. Higgins detailed the review of petitioner's application and her request for credit for alternate experience. He affirmed that the Board had not accepted any of petitioner's offered alternate credit toward the mandatory six credits in a supervised counseling practicum in a school setting. He expressly noted that the three-credit practicum offered by petitioner was as a mental health counselor, not a school counselor, and, thus, was not evaluated to be a "one to one" equivalent. The Board also provided its letter to petitioner dated April 3, 2015, where it was noted that petitioner had not completed six credits in a supervised counseling practicum in a school setting and that a clinical setting would not be accepted. Further, it provided its Decision of July 15, 2014, wherein it affirmed that, in order to qualify for a school counselor certificate, petitioner needed to complete a six-credit supervised counseling practicum in a preschool through grade twelve school setting and that after careful consideration, it did not find that the alternate experience offered by petitioner was "one on one" to the required counseling practicum needed for a school counselor certificate.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The legislature has designated the Board as the body responsible for the issuance and revocation of appropriate certificates to teach or to administer, as well as the direction or supervision of the teaching, instruction or education guidance of students in public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. A decision of the Board denying a request for the issuance of a certificate will not be disturbed as long as the decision "is consistent with the applicable statutory and regulatory provisions." Walder v. N.J. State Bd. of Exam'rs, EDU 08530-14 Initial Decision (Nov. 10, 2014), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/. A petitioner bears the burden of showing, by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board improperly denied her application.

An applicant, who receives an evaluation, identifying areas of deficiency, may provide the Board with evidence of alternate education or experience. The Board has the discretion to discretion to accept the alternate education or experience if it determines that the experience establishes a one to one correspondence with the statutory requirements. The Board cannot waive statutory requirements. Farrar v. State Bd. of Exam'rs, EDU 13763-08, Initial Decision (Sept. 9, 2009), adopted, Bd. of Exam'rs (July 26, 2010), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-12.8,[1] to be eligible for the standard educational services certificate with a school counselor's endorsement, a candidate must hold a master's degree or higher degree from a regionally accredited college or university and successfully complete one of the following:

1.) A Departmental-approved graduate program in school counseling; or

2.) A minimum of forty-eight graduate semester-hour credits in the following areas:

i. Counseling: minimum of eighteen semester-hour credits that must include study in theory and procedures or individual and group counseling, counseling and interviewing techniques, and career counseling;

ii. Testing and evaluation: minimum of three semester hours;

iii. Psychology: minimum of six semester hours in study related to child and adolescent psychology, psychology of exceptional children and psychology of learning;

iv. Sociological foundations, minimum of six semester-hours that must include study in community agencies, organizations and resources and multicultural counseling;

v. Statistics and research methods: a minimum of three semester-hour credits;

vi. Supervised counseling practicum in a preschool through grade twelve school setting: minimum six credits; and

vii. The remaining six semester hours of study may be chosen from among the topics listed in (b)(2)(i) through (vi) above or education.

As detailed above, by regulation, one of the requirements to obtain a school counselor certificate is a minimum of six credits in supervised counseling practicum in a preschool through grade twelve school setting. Petitioner applied for a school counselor certificate. After the Board reviewed her application and noted that she did not have six credits in a supervised counseling practicum, it declined to provide her with a school counselor certificate until she obtained six credits in supervised counseling.

Petitioner requested that the Board accept her education and work experience in lieu of the six credits in supervised counseling. The Board's refusal to do was consistent with statutory and regulatory provisions and within its discretion as the entity designated by the legislature as the body responsible for the issuance and revocation of appropriate certificates to teach or to administer, as well as the direction or supervision of the teaching, instruction or education guidance of students in public schools.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not proved, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the Board improperly denied her application.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not proved, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the Board's determination to deny her application was inconsistent with the statutory and regulatory provisions for issuance of a school counselor's certification.

Under the circumstances, there is no basis for a rational fact-finder to resolve the disputed issue in favor of petitioner. Therefore an evidentiary hearing is not warranted as the Board is entitled to summary decision in its favor.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's Motion for Summary Decision be GRANTED; and

It is further ORDERED that the respondent's determination that petitioner has not satisfied all requirements to qualify for a school counselor certification is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

PHILIP A. JOHNSON, JR. Petitioner, v. LIVINGSTON BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY Agency Ref No.: 42-2/1 OAL Docket No. EDU-04301-2014N STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties involved herein have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following Settlement Agreement (the "Settlement") that fully disposes of all issues in controversy between Philip Johnson ("Johnson") and the Livingston Board of Education (the "District"):

WHEREAS, Johnson is a non-tenured ~~custodian~~ maintenance employed by the District; and P.J. 6/23/15

WHEREAS, on or about April 1, 2011, Johnson was purportedly injured in a work-related accident; and

WHEREAS, Johnson missed time from work after the purported April 1, 2011 work-related accident; and

WHEREAS, Johnson claims he was charged 47 sick days for time missed from work as a result of the purported April 1, 2011 work-related accident; and

WHEREAS, the District disputed whether Johnson missed those 47 days from work as a result of his purported work-related injury; and

WHEREAS, Johnson filed a petition with the Division of Workers' Compensation, seeking compensation for his work-related injuries, under Claim Petition No. 2011-14932; and

WHEREAS, on or about November 25, 2013, the Division of Workers' Compensation entered an Order Approving Settlement with Dismissal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-20; and

WHEREAS, Johnson subsequently filed the instant petition of appeal seeking that he be credited for the 47 sick days that he was charged for time missed from work after April 1, 2011; and

WHEREAS, the parties engaged in settlement discussions regarding this issue and seek to amicably resolve this matter.

NOW THEREFORE, the parties hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. The District agrees to credit Johnson with thirty (30) accumulated sick leave days.

2. This Settlement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other employees.

3. Johnson waives all claims of any nature against the District with regard to this matter, including fees, or other monetary relief, with the exception of workers' compensation.

4. In exchange for the good consideration set forth in Paragraph 1 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, Johnson releases and discharges the District, Board of Education, and its Superintendent and any and all other officers, employees, agents, representatives, successors and assigns of the District (the "Released Parties") with respect to all claims or rights that he may have against the District and the Released Parties relating to his employment with the District up to this point in time. This includes, without limitation the waiver of any and all claims, charges, or demands, known or unknown, that have arisen or that may arise relating to Johnson's employment with the District up to this point in time, including but not limited to any and all rights or claims he may have regarding discrimination on any basis, or any federal or state civil rights law, or any alleged violation under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Family Leave Act or Family Medical Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law (and including any and all amendments to the above), the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution and/or any other federal, state, or local statute or common law relating to employment, wages, hours, or any other terms and conditions of employment as well as any other alleged violations of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance, and/or contract or implied contract or collective bargaining/contractual claim or tort law or public policy or whistleblower claim, having any bearing whatsoever on his employment with the District up to this point in time, including but not limited to, any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, front pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wage, commission or bonus payment, attorneys' fees, costs and/or future wage loss, except for workers compensation claims. Johnson agrees to hold harmless and indemnify the District and the Released Parties for any costs or expenses associated with the enforcement of this Settlement Agreement and the covenants and representations contained therein should enforcement of this Settlement Agreement become necessary.

5. Notwithstanding Paragraph 9 of this Settlement Agreement, it is understood and agreed that the parties are not prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, or any other federal, state or local law agency. Should any entity, agency commission or person file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the District based upon any of the above-released claims in Paragraph 4 for any act which may have occurred up to this point in time, Johnson agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

6. The parties respectively acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Settlement and that each is signing this Settlement freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

7. This Settlement constitutes the full agreement the parties, and shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law.

8. If any provision or portion of a provision of this Settlement Agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction, or determined under applicable federal or state law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions or portions of the provision will continue and remain in full force and effect.

9. This Agreement shall remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law.

10. This Agreement and General Release and Waiver contain the entire Agreement and understanding between the Parties and constitutes a full and final agreement in any and all issues relating to this matter, except that the Parties reserve their right to enforce this Agreement, if necessary.

11. If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

12. The Parties' entry into this Agreement shall not constitute nor shall it be interpreted as an admission of wrongdoing or guilt, or liability in any manner on either of the Parties' part. Any such obligation or liability on either Party's part is expressly denied. The Parties have entered into this Agreement solely to compromise disputed claims.

13. This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except in writing, signed and duly authorized by all Parties.

14. This Settlement Agreement is subject to ratification by Livingston Board of Education and will only become effective and binding on the District upon the approval of the Livingston Board of Education.

Antionna Robinson, Petitioner, v. Trenton Board of Education, Shelly Jallow, Brenda Torrence, and Mary Scott-White Respondents.	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 17623-2013 S AGENCY REF. NO. 184-8/13 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

1. Petitioner Antionna Robinson has filed a petition before the Commissioner of Education under Agency Reference number 184-8/13 and docketed as EDU 17623-2013 S, requesting that the Commissioner of Education direct the Board of Education of the City of Trenton ("Trenton") to issue to her a high school diploma.

2. Ms. Robinson believes that she has fulfilled all state and local requirements for graduation from high school. She indicates in her petition that she has taken and passed all required courses and the AHSA, has earned a satisfactory grade point average in those requirements, and has fulfilled her attendance obligations so as to be eligible for graduation.

3. Ms. Robinson states that while she completed the vast majority of her academic requirements via daily classroom attendance, she also supplemented her traditional classroom coursework through an internet based academic program called Advanced Academics. Ms. Robinson further asserts that Advance Academics and the courses they offer have been approved by Trenton as part of the regular curriculum.

4. Trenton disputes that Ms. Robinson has fulfilled the necessary coursework to earn a high school diploma. Trenton acknowledges the fact that Ms. Robinson has a grade point average and attendance sufficient to meet graduation standards. However, Trenton disputes that Ms. Robinson has completed the necessary coursework to fulfill her graduation requirements.

5. State graduation requirements for 2012 required that Ms. Robinson successfully complete 20 academic credits in the general course of English. Ms. Robinson's transcript demonstrates that she has currently fulfilled 17.5 of those 20 credits.

6. State graduation requirements for 2012 required that Ms. Robinson successfully complete 15 academic credits in the general course of Science. Ms. Robinson's transcript demonstrates that she has currently fulfilled 12.5 of those 15 credits.

7. The parties acknowledge that Ms. Robinson attended Advance Academics during the Fall of 2012; successfully completing Part A of Biology and Part B of English IV. These courses and the equivalent credits are reflected on Ms. Robinson's current transcript.

8. The parties agree that in order to earn a diploma, Ms. Robinson must enroll in Advance Academics and successfully complete Part B of Biology and Part A of English IV.

9. If the required courses are unavailable through Advance Academics, Ms. Robinson may utilize another approved online course provider. However, Trenton shall approve any alternate provider before Ms. Robinson enrolls in classes.

10. Trenton agrees that the only remaining requirements for graduation are those listed in this settlement agreement. Upon proof of completion of the above two courses with a passing grade of 60% or higher in each class, Trenton shall issue a high school diploma to Ms. Robinson.

11. Ms. Robinson agrees to dismiss all claims that were or could have been raised based on the facts underlying this petition. This dismissal shall be with prejudice, meaning that Ms. Robinson shall be prohibited from initiating litigation to seek her high school diploma in the future. The dismissal shall include all parties and employees of the board of education and board members.

12. The parties agree that this agreement may be signed in one or more counterparts.

Re: Board of Education of the Township of Springfield, Union County and Board of Education of the Borough of West Cape May, Cape May County v. New Jersey Department of Education, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4191-14, Agency Dkt. No. 49-3/14.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the parties' submissions in connection with the New Jersey Department of Education's (Department) request for interlocutory review of Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Miller's August 4, 2015 order requiring disclosure of documents that the Department contends are subject to the deliberative process privilege.

The longstanding justification of the deliberative process privilege acknowledges an interest in protecting government advisory opinions, recommendations and deliberations that would reveal the process by which its decisions and policies are formulated, as well as "the desire to prevent disclosure of proposed policies before they have been fully vetted and adopted by a government agency." Ed. Law Ctr. v. Dep't of Ed., 198 N.J. 274, 285-86 (2009); Ciesla v. Dep't of Health, 429 N.J. Super. 127, 140-41. "Without such protection, policy advisers would be reluctant to express on paper or a computer screen their tentative thoughts on a pending issue, lest their words be prematurely launched into the public domain." Ciesla, supra, 429 N.J. Super. at 140-41.

In order for the deliberative process privilege to apply, the document at issue must be pre-decisional, or "generated before the adoption of an agency's policy or decision." IMO Integrity Ins. Co., 165 N.J. 75, 84 (2000). Next, the document must be considered "deliberative." Id. at 84. Deliberative documents often contain "opinions, recommendations or advice about agency policies." Id. at 84-85. In addition, "factual material that reveals the nature of the decision-making process" also warrants protection under the deliberative process privilege. Ed. Law. Ctr., supra, 198 N.J. at 297. When analyzing a document, "the deliberative nature of the material sought must be functionally determined based on the document's nexus to the decision-making process and its capacity to expose the agency's deliberations during that process." Ibid.

Upon review of the parties' submissions, and all of the documents at issue, I find that the following pre-decisional, deliberative e-mail messages exchanged between Department employees – which were deemed not privileged by the ALJ – contain advisory opinions and recommendations about its decision-making process and policies and are therefore subject to the deliberative process privilege: DOE155-156, 157-158, 159-160, 162-166, 167-172, 306-307, 310-313, 314-317, 321-325, 326-332, 338-348, 349-360, 363-375, 376-392, 395-396, 397-399, 400-403, and 404.[1] With the exception of DOE404, the release of these materials would expose the agency's deliberations leading up to its October 3, 2013 and December 12, 2013 policy decisions concerning School Choice Program enrollment caps. As to DOE404 – which was authored on December 13, 2013 – it is pre-decisional and deliberative in the sense that it discusses further review and potential revision of School Choice Program target enrollment numbers for 2014-2015.

I also find that the following pre-decisional, deliberative e-mail attachments – which were deemed not privileged by the ALJ – contain drafts, spreadsheets, charts, projections, and other manipulated data that reveal the nature of the Department's decision-making process as to School Choice Program target enrollment numbers for 2014-2015: 178-190, 233-287, 290, 361-362, and 405-409. These documents bear a significant nexus to the decision-making process and are discussed among Department employees within the e-mail conversations listed above. If released, the documents – created to aid the Department's deliberations – have the capacity to expose the agency's deliberations as to development of its policies regarding School Choice Program target enrollment. Therefore, these documents are likewise subject to the deliberative process privilege.

I further find that DOE 393-394 – an October 31, 2013 internal memorandum to the Commissioner from a Department employee discussing School Choice Program funding and target enrollment for 2014-2015 – is a pre-decisional, deliberative document containing opinions and policy recommendations subject to the deliberative process privilege.

[1] According to page 11 of its brief, the Department redacted the deliberative content ("email conversations between NJDOE employees") from DOE155-156, 162-166, 338-348, 349-360, 363-375, and 376-392 and provided the remainder of the documents to petitioners. Because these documents contain – in part – opinions, recommendations, or advice about agency policies subject to the deliberative process privilege, the Department's redaction of its internal conversations from the documents prior to disclosure was appropriate. See Gannett N.J. Partners, L.P. v. County of Middlesex, 379 N.J. Super. 205, 220 (App. Div. 2005) (discussing redaction of deliberative entries prior to release of documents).

Once the privilege is invoked, the presumption of confidentiality afforded to deliberative materials can only be overcome "upon a showing that the need for the materials overrides the government's interest in confidentiality." Ed. Law Ctr., supra, 198 N.J. at 286-87. "Only in 'exceptional' cases will it be deemed consistent with the public interest to compel an agency to produce inter- or intra- agency advisory opinions." Ciesla, supra, 429 N.J. Super. at 146. Among the factors to be considered are "the importance of the evidence [to petitioners], its availability from other sources, and the effect of disclosure on frank and independent discussion of contemplated government policies." Integrity, supra, 165 N.J. at 88. While petitioners' brief generally asserts that the documents at issue are important to this "contractual dispute", petitioners have failed to demonstrate a substantial need for the deliberative materials listed above that would override the Department's interest in confidentiality.

Therefore, the ALJ's determination ordering disclosure of the documents listed above is rejected as the documents are protected by the deliberative process privilege, and petitioners have not demonstrated a substantial need for the documents that would warrant disclosure. The Commissioner concurs with the balance of the ALJ's letter order of August 4, 2015.

Accordingly, the ALJ's August 4, 2015 order is modified as indicated herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Sincerely,

Peter Shulman
Acting Commissioner of Education

RESPONDENT.	:

The record, Settlement Agreement and Release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that the Settlement Agreement is not signed by the Board attorney, who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation. Furthermore, the file does not contain a copy of the Board's resolution approving the Settlement Agreement and designating the Interim Director to sign the agreement on its behalf, as required – under these circumstances – by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13, nor is the resolution attached to the Settlement itself. Without either the Board attorney's signature or the appropriate Board resolution and signature of its designee, the Commissioner cannot approve the within Settlement Agreement. Additionally, a true and exact redacted copy of "Exhibit A" – as referenced in Paragraph 1 – is not attached to the Settlement Agreement, nor is it contained within the file.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement and Release consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to hearing.

1. The District agrees to remove the document entitled "Disciplinary Hearing Student Data Sheet" from M.W.'s student record. A true and exact redacted copy of that document is attached hereto as Exhibit A for reference.

2. This Agreement shall constitute full and complete settlement regarding any and all claims the Parents and/or student have or may have against the District through June 4, 2015, including but not limited to procedural rights, compensatory education, and/or compensatory damages, as well as withdrawal of the instant matter, OAL Docket No. EDU 09802-2014N, with prejudice.

3. The parties acknowledge and agree that they have entered into this Agreement freely, willingly, and voluntarily, without duress or coercion, and with the opportunity to consult with counsel of each party's choosing and option. Petitioners acknowledge that they were able to review the contents of this Agreement with counsel of their choosing, namely Denise Lanchantin Dwyer, Esq., and that they were able to ask any questions they had about the Agreement. The parties acknowledge that they were represented by competent counsel, that they understood the contents of this Settlement Agreement and Release, and that each party hereto will be responsible for bearing the costs of their own attorneys' fees and costs, and any other costs pursuant to 20 U.S.C.A. §1415 or any other Federal or State Statutes. It is further agreed that neither party is considered a "prevailing party" for any purposes.

4. This Agreement shall be governed by the Laws of the State of New Jersey and constitutes a legal release of all claims that were or could have been raised as set forth herein.

5. This Agreement shall be incorporated into a Final Order by the Honorable Tiffany Williams, the Administrative Law Judge assigned to this matter.

ARBITRATOR — GERARD G. RESTAINO, ASSIGNED BY NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION IN ACCORDANCE WITH CHAPTER 26, P.L. 2012, AND 18A:6-17.1

APPEARANCES:

FOR THE PETITIONER

RAMON RIVERA, ESQ.	COUNSEL FOR PETITIONER
SHANA T. DON, ESQ.	COUNSEL FOR PETITIONER

FOR THE RESPONDENT

NANCY OXFELD, ESQ.	COUNSEL FOR RESPONDENT

BACKGROUND

On August 27, 2014, Lynn Irby-Jackson, employed by the Petitioner as the Principal of Arts High School, filed a Notice of Inefficiency against the Respondent. That Notice of Efficiency included twenty-one (21) separate counts of an inability of the Respondent to "completely and reasonably execute her duties as a teacher for the period of October 12, 2012 to the present."

On January 17, 2015, the undersigned rendered an Award, docket 289-9/14,in the matter of The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark and Toni Lenz. The Respondent was charged with inefficiency and I accepted the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the Tenure Charges in their entirety and returned Ms. Lenz to her teaching position with full back pay and benefits.

On March 6, 2015, the Petitioner filed Amended Tenure Charges against the Respondent. Those charges are the same charges that were filed against the Respondent in 2014. The only difference is that in 2014 under subsection G, "the Respondent has failed to establish a culture of learning is also repeated in subsection H." Except for that typographical error, the charges are the same. In fact, the statement of evidence submitted for the Amended Charges is dated August 27, 2014, the same date as in docket 289-9/14.

On March 19, 2015, counsel for the Respondent submitted answers to the tenure charges of inefficiency, which included ten separate defenses and asked that the tenure charges be dismissed.

On April 30, 2015, I was appointed to the instant matter by the Department of Education identifying this case as docket 97 4/15.

On June 5, 2015, the Arbitrator had a conference call with Shana Don, representing the Petitioner and Nancy Oxfeld, representing the Respondent.

On June 17, 2015, Kathleen Duncan, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes for the Department of Education, sent a letter to Ms. Don and Ms. Oxfeld, with a copy to the Arbitrator. In that letter, she indicated that the above-captioned tenure charges (97 4/15) are being "processed with respect to Section 8, inefficiency charges only – were reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, subject to determination by the Arbitrator of Respondent's defenses and any motions to be filed with the Arbitrator." She further indicated that the Arbitrator is to utilize the preponderance of evidence standard in this matter.

On June 19, 2015, Ramon Rivera, also counsel for the Petitioner, submitted a motion to the Commissioner of Education for emergent relief. The Petitioner argued that the application for interim relief of staying the tenure matter must be granted because the District satisfies the requirement set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6. Additionally, the Petitioner has filed a Notice of Appeal with the Appellate Division on the following issues:

"1. The Commissioner of Education transferred the Tenure Hearing to the same Arbitrator who heard the parties' previous tenure charges, Gerard Restaino, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1; and

2. The Commissioner of Education transferred this matter to arbitration without addressing the legal sufficiency of the tenure charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16."

On July 15, 2015, Commissioner of Education, David C. Hespe, denied the Petitioner's request for emergent relief. The Commissioner determined that he lacks jurisdiction to hear and decide Petitioner's motion for emergent relief. This determination shall not preclude the parties from seeking the desired relief before the Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b). The section of N.J.A.C. provides, "Where a party to a tenure matter requests, the Commissioner may agree to hold the matter in abeyance at any time prior to transmittal to an arbitrator. Thereafter, requests to hold the matter in abeyance shall be directed to the Arbitrator."

The parties and the Arbitrator had agreed upon the following briefing schedule: Respondent's Motion to Dismiss and supporting briefs to be filed on July 10, 2015. Petitioner's reply to the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss and Motion to Compel Arbitration Hearing and supporting brief is to be filed on July 17, 2015. Respondent's reply to the Petitioner's Motion to Compel Arbitration is to be filed on July 27, 2015. The record reflects that the Respondent did not submit a reply to the District's response to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss. Those dates were also transmitted to the Department of Education.

On July 10, 2015, the Respondent submitted a brief in support of the Notice of Motion for Summary Judgment. On July 17, 2015, the Petitioner submitted its brief in opposition to the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the Tenure Charges.

These are the essential uncontroverted facts in the mater at bar and the matter now comes to me for resolution.

RELEVANT STATUTORY PROVISIONS:

5. N.J.S. 18A:6-11 is amended to read as follows:

Written charges, statement of evidence; filing; statement of position by employee; certification of determination; notice.

18A:6-11. Any charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the secretary of the board in writing, and a written statement of evidence under oath to support such charge shall be presented to the board. The board of education shall forthwith provide such employee with a copy of the charge, a copy of the statement of the evidence and an opportunity to submit a written statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath with respect thereto. After consideration of the charge, statement of position and statement of evidence presented to it, the board shall determine by majority vote of its full membership whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge and whether such charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary. The board of education shall forthwith notify the employee against whom the charge has been made of its determination, personally or by certified mail directed to his last known address. In the event the board find that such probable cause exists and that the charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary, then it shall forward such written charge to the commissioner for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:6-16, together with a certificate of such determination. The consideration and actions of the board as to any charge shall not take place at a public meeting.

8. N.J.S. 18A:6-16 is amended to read as follows:

Proceedings before commissioner; written response; determination.

18A:6-16. Upon receipt of such a charge and certification, or of a charge lawfully made to the commissioner, the commissioner or the person appointed to act in the commissioner's in the proceedings shall examine the charge and certification. The individual against whom the charges are certified shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. Upon a showing of good cause, the commissioner may grant an extension of time. The commissioner shall render a determination on the sufficiency of charges as set forth below within 10 days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges.

If, following receipt of the written response to the charges, the commissioner is of the opinion that they are not sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall dismiss the same and notify said person accordingly. If however, he shall determine that such charge is sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall refer the case to an arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C.18A:6-17) for further proceedings, except that when a motion for summary decision has been made prior to that time, the commissioner may retain the matter for purposes of deciding the motion.

C. 18A:6-17.3 Evaluation process, determination of charges.

25. a. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-11, or any other section of law to the contrary, in the case of a teacher, principal, assistant principal and vice principal:

(1) the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency whenever the employee is rated ineffective or partially effective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated ineffective in the annual summative evaluation;

(2) If the employee is rated partially effective in two consecutive annual summative evaluations or is rated ineffective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated partially effective in the annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency, except that the superintendent upon a written finding of exceptional circumstances may defer the filing of tenure charges until after the next annual summative evaluation. If the employee is not rated effective or highly effective on this annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file a charge of inefficiency.

b. Within 30 days of the filing, the board of education shall forward a written charge to the commissioner, unless the board determines that the evaluation process has not been followed.

c. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-16 or any other section of law to the contrary, upon receipt of a charge pursuant to subsection a. of this section, the commissioner shall examine the charge. The individual against whom the charges are filed shall have 10 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. The commissioner shall, within five days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges, refer the case to an arbitrator and appoint an arbitrator to hear the case, unless he determines that the evaluation process has not been followed.

d. The only evaluations which may be used for purposes of this section are those evaluations conducted in accordance with a rubric adopted by the board and approved by the commissioner pursuant to P.L. 2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-117, et al).

C. 18A:6-122 Annual submission of evaluation rubrics

16. a. A school district shall annually submit to the Commissioner of Education, for review and approval, the evaluation rubrics that the district will use to assess the effectiveness of its teachers, principals, assistant principals and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members. The board shall ensure that an approved rubric meets the minimum standards established by the State Board of Education.

b. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection a. of this section, a school district may choose to use the model evaluation rubric established by the commissioner pursuant to subsection f. of section 117 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-123) to assess the effectiveness of its teachers, principals, assistant principals, and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members. In the case in which the district fails to submit a rubric for review and approval, the model rubric shall be used by the district to assess the effectiveness of its teachers, principals, assistant principals and vice-principals and all other teaching staff members.

C. 18A:6-123 Review, approval of evaluation rubrics.

17. a. The Commissioner of Education shall review and approve evaluation rubrics submitted by school districts pursuant to section 16 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-122). The board of education shall adopt a rubric approved by the commissioner.

d. Beginning no later than January 31, 2013, a board of education shall implement a pilot program to test and refine the evaluation rubric.

e. Beginning with the 2013-2014 school year, a board of education shall ensure implementation of the approved, adopted evaluation rubric for all educators in all elementary, middle and high schools in the district. Results of evaluations shall be used to identify and provide professional development to teaching staff members. Results of evaluations shall be provided to the commissioner, as requested, on a regular basis.

POSITION OF THE PARTIES

For the District

The District argues that these amended tenure charges, "alleging inefficiency were brought against the Respondent, Toni Lenz, based upon her deficient teaching performance, consistent lack of improvement and receipt of negative evaluations. For these reasons, the Petitioner filed amended tenure charges for inefficiency against the Respondent with the District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3; and N.J.A.C. 6A:3.5.1(b) with the Commissioner of Education." Furthermore, the Respondent argues that inefficiency charges can only be brought pursuant to Section 25, rather than Section 8 of Teach NJ and therefore, the Petitioner's charges must be dismissed. However, the Petitioner argues that that argument is wrong because it is either too early or too late. More importantly, that position overlooks "the Commissioner's directive that these charges have been docketed as new charges and which are being processed with respect to Section 8, inefficiency charges only – were reviewed and deemed sufficient to either warrant dismissal or reduction in salary."

The Petitioner contends that the Respondent's reliance on I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Leonard Yarborough and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 69-3/15, I/M/O Tenure Charges of Jodi Thompson and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 24-8/14 and I/M/O Tenure Charges Against Sandra Cheatham and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 226-8/14 is seriously flawed because each one suffers from the same fundamental weaknesses: the arbitrator exceeded his or her statutory authority in the absence of clear legal mandates from the Commissioner. The same is true in the instant matter, and this issue is currently pending before the Appellative Division.

The Petitioner argues that in the prior case, "The Respondent's Motion to Dismiss was granted based upon the Arbitrator's determination that Section 25 tenure charges were premature, based upon a theory of collateral estoppel, without expressly addressing the tenure charges under Section 8 and without any hearings or findings of facts. The prior decision did not address the issue of Section 8 Tenure Charges. Following this holding, the Petitioner submitted the instant amended tenure charges adding an additional charge of inefficiency pursuant to Section 8 of Teach NJ."

Furthermore, the Petitioner contends, "The Amended Tenure Charges were initially served on the Respondent after being submitted to the State-District Superintendent on or about January 14, 2015. These charges were drafted in light of the then-building trend of arbitrators dismissing Section 25 tenure charges of inefficiency as premature and refusing to consider the alternate basis of Section 8 as un-plead. Because the Amended Tenure Charges address Section 8 charges, the Respondent was afforded the statutorily mandated time period of fifteen (15) days rather than the ten (10) day response prescribed for charges brought under Section 25."

The Petitioner contends that the School District did determine that there was probable cause, and the State-appointed District Superintendent completed the Certificate of Determination on March 3, 2015, which was then filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 6, 2015. Therefore, the tenure charges were timely filed with the Commissioner on the 42nd day after the District's receipt of the Respondent's answer, which was within the 45 day time limitation to same.

The Petitioner contends that "they are seeking its first bite at the apple to have the merits of this teacher's inefficiency charges heard by the fact-finders required by applicable law." Furthermore, the motion for summary decision should be denied as there are significant disputed facts, and the matter should move forward toward a hearing on the merits of the Section 8 Tenure Charges.

Additionally, the Petitioner contends that the Arbitrator has jurisdiction to decide this matter for inefficiency under Section 8 of Teach NJ.

The Petitioner references specific arbitration awards (see, I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Edward Newton and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 276-9/14), and I/M/O Marie Ebert and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark docket 49-3/15. In the Ebert matter, Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg determined that, "Although a charge involving 2012-2013 evaluations may not be brought under Section 25; no similar impediment prevents the District from seeking removal according to the requirements of Section 8."

The District contends that they anticipated that the tenure charges in the prior proceeding would be dismissed and began proceeding to amend the tenure charge to cure the defect ultimately cited by the Arbitrator in dismissing the charges in the January 17, 2015 Opinion and Award. The amended tenure charge was perfected before the Department of Education adding the comprehensive and pre-existing charge of inefficiency to be assessed on a preponderance of the evidence standard rather than the more limited two annual evaluations of the Teach NJ Act. Furthermore, the Petitioner argues that, "The contention that an inefficiency charge cannot proceed on any basis other than N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, and that a charge cannot proceed on that basis either until all applicable requirements are met – essentially, that the legislature intended to hand poorly performing teachers a free pass for two years after the Act's defective date has been rejected by Teach NJ Arbitrators."

Additionally, in I/M/O Jodi Thompson State-Operated School District of the City of Newark docket 240-8/14 and 16-1/15, Arbitrator Daniel Brent stated, "Nothing in the provision of the Teach NJ statute explicitly created a two-year, much less a four-year hiatus during which ineffective teachers were immune from evaluation of their performance resulting in discipline or discharge." Moreover, arbitrators in several cases in which Section 25 charges have been dismissed have suggested that dismissal might not have been required if the charges had been plead, in the alternative, on the basis of Section 8, as well as Section 25. See, I/M/O Rinita Williams and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark and, docket 504-14, I/M/O Elena Brady and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark docket 478-14. These arbitrators have read Teach NJ to allow inefficiency charges to proceed on grounds other than Section 25, contrary to Respondent's contention here.

The District contends that in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, once a matter is transmitted to arbitration by the commissioner, the arbitrator must proceed to a hearing on the merits. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the question before the Arbitrator is whether the evidence in the record presented supports the charge of inefficiency.

The District strongly argues that the evaluations of the Respondent for the 2012-2013 school year are valid as Section 25 of Teach NJ was in effect and in full force in the 2012-2013 school year and may be considered under a preponderance of the credible evidence standard. The question under Section 8, inefficiency charges, is whether the District has met its burden under the long-established preponderance of credible evidence. In support of the preponderance of credible evidence standard, the District contends that inefficiency has been defined as a charge against an employee that he/she has failed to reasonably perform the duties of his/her title, an inability to maintain classroom decorum and discipline, an inability to teach a prescribed curriculum and a failure to submit required information on time, even after constant written reminders.

The Petitioner references the four standards in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 governing Section 25 charges. Those four standards are:

"(1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including to, but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;

(2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;

(3) the charges would not have been brought but for consideration of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by federal and state law, or other conduct prohibited by state or federal laws; or

(4) the District's actions were arbitrary and capricious."

The Petitioner strenuously argues that the only issue for the Arbitrator is whether the record supports a finding that the charges are true. Without developing the record at a hearing and considering the District's evidence, which goes beyond the summary statement of evidence, it is impossible to make this determination.

In support of its position that the 2012-2013 evaluations are valid and may be considered under the preponderance of credible evidence standard, the Petitioner contends, "The District piloted a new teacher evaluation system in the 2011-2012 school year, not 2012-2013 as asserted without support by Respondent. Thus, evaluations conducted in the 2011-2012 pilot year did not count for official purposes, but the experience of that pilot program informed the development of the teacher evaluation process adopted, approved and implemented in subsequent school year 2012-2013. It is indisputable that the legislature purposely adopted and approved Teach NJ August 6, 2012 in the 2012-2013 school year. As such, there is no question that the evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year were to be used toward determining if tenure charges are warranted, if not as the sole basis."

As stated by Arbitrator Brent in Thompson, supra, "Nothing in the new Teach NJ statute precludes a school district that had been designated pilot district in 2011-2012 and successfully implemented a rubric approved by the Commissioner in 2012-2013 from evaluating its teachers under the approved Teacher Performance Assessment Criteria."

The doctrines of res judicata and double jeopardy do not apply to preclude the instant charges. The Respondent's argument that the instant charges must be dismissed because the parties are barred from re-litigating in a new case an issue already disposed of "is misplaced and is a mischaracterization of the facts that exist in the instant matter." Furthermore, a party asserting a defense of collateral estoppel has the burden of demonstrating that the issue is litigated in a prior proceeding. Nevertheless, the amended tenure charges were never adjudicated, and as such, that defense does not apply. I/M/O Leonard Yarborough and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 69-3/15 the Arbitrator Gerber did not reach the merits of the charge under Section 8, i.e., he never addressed whether the School District had met its burden of proving inefficiency. As such, the Section 8 charge was not adjudicated. Therefore, even if the School District is bound by the Arbitrator's decision in the previous matter, it is not precluded by that decision from bringing the instant charge as the Arbitrator's decision does not address the charge not presented pursuant to Section 8.

The Petitioner contends that the Respondent cannot meet the burden of demonstrating that the issue was litigated in a prior proceeding. The decision dismissing the previous charge was based on statutory grounds and applicable to the instant charge, specifically the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123(d), which are applicable only to charges brought pursuant to Section 25. Accordingly, this is not a second bite at the apple as the Respondent asserts; this matter must proceed to hearing for a determination on the merits of the inefficiency charge under Section 8.

The entire controversy doctrine is not a bar to the tenure charges in the instant matter. The three-fold objectives behind the doctrine are (1) to encourage the comprehensiveness and conclusive determination of a legal controversy; (2) to achieve party fairness, including both parties before the court, as well as respective parties; and (3) to promote traditional economy and efficiency by avoiding fragmented, multiple and duplicative litigation.

The Respondent's argument that the District is re-litigating the tenure charges against her because these charges have already been brought before an arbitrator in a District loss is not the fact pattern in the matter at bar. In the prior decision, the determination was not based upon the Respondent's evaluation or the merits of the District's argument. Arbitrator Restaino dismissed the previous charges against the Respondent based upon the theory of collateral estoppel. This, respectfully, is not a conclusive determination of the legal controversy presented for the parties.

Furthermore, a dismissal of the instant charges would not achieve an equitable result because the District would essentially be unable to bring tenure charges against any teacher based upon their poor evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year. Lastly, the instant tenure charges do not constitute a duplicative litigation because the merits of the charges have yet to be heard. Therefore, the issue regarding the substance of the District's underlying charges was never litigated, and no legal determination was made in this regard.

Should this matter proceed to a hearing and be heard on the merits, it will be the first time the parties have had an opportunity to argue their positions with regard to the substance of the allegations against the Respondent. This issue has yet to be argued – let alone re-litigated. This is not a case with a District loss on the merits of the previous tenure charges and now wishes to refile.

Accordingly, in recognition of the underlying principles of the enforcement of the entire controversy doctrine, the District's tenure charges against Respondent should proceed to hearing on determination of the merits.

The tenure charges were timely filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The District argues that the fact-pattern in evidence establishes without reservation that the amended charges were filed in accordance with the statute and were done so within 45 days as required by the statute.

For all of the foregoing reasons, the State-Operated School District for the City of Newark respectfully requests that Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment be denied in its entirety and the matter proceed to a hearing on the merits.

Preliminarily, the Respondent argues inefficiency charges can only be brought under Section 25 of Teach NJ. Additionally, the entire controversy doctrine gives credence and support to the Respondent's position that the instant charges should be dismissed. This is the second time that the Petitioner has brought the same tenure charges against the Respondent based on the same statement of evidence of Principal Lynn Irby-Jackson dated August 27, 2014. The Respondent argues that she is being subjected to double jeopardy. Furthermore, "an employer, whether in a disciplinary arbitration governed by a collective bargaining agreement or a disciplinary arbitration pursuant to a statute, does not have the option of continually filing charges against an individual based on the same facts in the hopes that the Employer will, if it tries hard enough, succeeding in imposing discipline on the individual."

The Respondent argues, "Three arbitrators have now ruled that the Petitioner in this matter cannot do what it is doing herein, refile under Section 8 of the tenure laws a charge based on the same underlying factual allegations on which charges have previously been dismissed by an arbitrator pursuant to Section 25, i.e. Yarborough, supra; Thompson," Additionally, I/MO/ Sandra Cheatham and State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 69-3/15 Arbitrator Bluth reached the same conclusion.

In Yarborough, supra, Arbitrator Gerber found that, "The District was obligated, pursuant to the entire controversy doctrine, to bring all possible claims based on the same set of facts in one proceeding." In Cheatham, supra, Arbitrator Bluth found, "The doctrine of res judicata prevented the District from refiling charges based on the same set of facts under different legal theory." In Thompson, supra, Arbitrator Brent determined, "There is no valid basis in the statute to afford the District two separate, sequential opportunities to litigate identical charges arising from the same set of facts by citing two different sections of the statute in two separate tenure hearings." The three Arbitrators all arrived at the same conclusion that the employer cannot rewrap the identical factual charges against an employee which have been dismissed in a new wrapping and be allowed to proceed.

The Respondent further argues, "The fact pattern in evidence further shows that this is the second time the Petitioner has brought tenure charges based on the same factual allegations against the Respondent. A careful review of the two charges shows that they are essentially identical. The first charge (Oxfeld Certification, Exh. A) and the second charge (Oxfeld Certification, Exh. D), contain one charge of inefficiency. There are only two differences in the two sets of charges against the Respondent. The first difference is that the initial charge, the charge from August 2014, includes one tenure charge of inefficiency with subparts A-U (Oxfeld Certification, Exh. A), while the second tenure charge contains one tenure charge of inefficiency, with subparts A-T." The difference between the two charges is that there has been a typographical correction. The first tenure charge had an identical allegation in subparagraph G and subparagraph H, where it stated the Respondent has failed to establish a culture of learning. The second tenure charge only has that allegation once so there is one less specification. The only other difference is that in paragraph 2 of the first charge, Principal Irby-Jackson indicates that tenure charges have been brought pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. In the amended notice of inefficiency charges, Ms. Irby-Jackson adds N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1.

The statements of evidence relied upon by Principal Irby-Jackson are identical, wherein in the first tenure charges she states, "The above charge is supported by the attached statement of evidence under oath by Lynn Irby-Jackson annexed hereto (Oxfeld Certification, Exh. A, to which is annexed Ms. Irby-Jackson's August 27, 2014, statement of evidence; Oxfeld Certification, Exh. B)." The date of the amended notice of inefficiency charges signed by Principal Irby-Jackson is August 27, 2014, and is the identical date of the first charges under Section 25 of the statute. The Petitioner did not even re-date the statement of evidence (Oxfeld Certification, Exh. B and Oxfeld Certification, Exh. F).

The Respondent again argues that an inefficient tenure charge can only be brought under Section 25 of Teach NJ and, therefore, the District's charge must be dismissed. The Respondent argues, "A brief review of the history underlying the passage of Teach NJ and its implementing regulations, the statutory and regulatory language itself, as well as arbitrable precedent makes clear that charges of inefficiency are now defined by and required to proceed pursuant to Section 25 and only pursuant to Section 25 of the Teach NJ Act."

Moreover, by eliminating the 90 day notice of inefficiency required prior to Teach NJ and replacing it with a new procedure, with all its specific requirements, "The legislature clearly meant to allow only one method of pursuing tenure charges of inefficiency against a tenured teacher. Had the legislature intended to simultaneously allow the pursuit of tenure charges of inefficiency with no procedure required of the District, the legislature would have so stated."

The Respondent also argues, "The applicable law and its implementing regulations were a part of a larger quid pro quo of which the new Section 25 of Teach NJ lies at its very heart. The radically transformed system of teacher evaluation and accountability provides that teachers are more readily subject to removal based only on two years of inadequate performance, subject to a speedy and formidable limited review and defenses available under prior law. (See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2). That was the quid, but the quo in exchange for that stream-lined discharge procedure was well-defined, transparent, and uniform observation and evaluation guidelines, processes and procedures and the transparent and uniform tenure removal procedure for claims of inefficiency outlined in Section 25 of the Teach NJ Act."

Additionally, the legislature, for the first time created a specific and inclusive definition of teacher inefficiency. In doing so, "they substantially revised existing statutes, principally Section 8, while creating a new Section 25 governing inefficiency charges. Gone from the law was the prior requirement that teachers receive notice of the 90 day improvement period prior to the commencement of inefficiency charges. In its place the legislature crafted Section 25 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17-3) entitled, Filing with the Secretary of the Board of Education Notice of a Charge of Inefficiency Procedural Requirement."

It should also not be overlooked, "that in enacting the new Section 25 of Teach NJ and specifically defining inefficiency, as well as revamping the entire teacher evaluation process, the legislature substantially curtailed the defenses available to educators subject to tenure charges. Thus, the legislature concurrently enacted Section 23, which applies to inefficiency charges brought pursuant to Section 25 and substantially limits the scope of review of employee evaluations and defenses which may be raised by the teacher."

The limited scope of review of teacher evaluations and the limitation on defenses set forth in Section 23 of Teach NJ (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2) directly flow from the concurrent overhaul of the evaluation process and procedures. Teachers may no longer challenge an evaluator's determination - but, only so long as the determination is based on evaluations which comply with applicable procedures.

The Respondent contends that the District is, "Effectively saying that both N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 17.3 are simply optional and that it may comply with statutory and regulatory procedures, or not. The District apparently believes that if it fails to comply with applicable procedures necessary to bring charges under Section 25 – as was previously determined in this case – it may simply ignore Section 25 altogether. In that case, the limitations on review of evaluations were predicated on compliance with statutory evaluation requirements and procedures. Under this bizarre theory, the efforts of the legislature to streamline tenure proceedings are rendered a complete nullity. That simply was not the intent of the legislature in revamping the State's tenure laws."

The Respondent continues to argue that, "The terms of the applicable statute and regulatory provisions all confirm that the exclusive means to which to bring inefficiency charges against a teacher is through Section 25 and only Section 25."

In support of its argument that inefficiency charges can only be brought under Section 25 of Teach NJ, the Respondent refers to I/M/O Ursula Whitehuirst and State-

Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 282-9/14, where Arbitrator Simmelkjaer addressed this issue once again against the same Petitioner, concluding that inefficiency charges could not be brought under Section 8. He stated, "The Arbitrator is not convinced that having dismissed the inefficiency charge against Ms. Whitehurst based on the District's non-compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, through its utilization of the Respondent's annual summative evaluation for the 2012-2013 school year it can now proceed to a hearing under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16." Furthermore, Arbitrator Simmelkjaer stated, "Since the charge of inefficiency filed with the Commissioner alleged that over a two year period from September 22 to the present, the teacher was determined to be either ineffective or partially effective in her annual summative ratings under Section 25 and the statement of evidence reinforces the charge, the District is bound by the procedural requirements of Section 25."

Additionally, the Respondent contends that the Williams, supra; Whitehurst, supra; and Thompson, supra arbitration determinations flatly rejected the District's pursuit of charges of inefficiency under Section 8.

The Respondent argues, "The District has not provided, and cannot provide, any reason to deviate from these consistent and persuasive arbitration opinions and awards. They are firmly grounded in not only the legislative of the Teach NJ Act, but also the language of the statute itself, its regulations and authoritative guidance issued by the Department of Education."

The Respondent contends, "In what appears to be a desperate bid to rehabilitate its previously dismissed charges against the Respondent, the District has pressed forward with its already discredited effort to pursue charges of inefficiency pursuant to Section 8 of Teach NJ. For purposes of pursuing charges of inefficiency, Section 8 now stands as little more than a legal relic supplanted by Section 25."

The Respondent contends that the Petitioner apparently believes that through Section 8 it does not need two school years, beginning with the 2013-2014 school year of ineffective or partially effective ratings to bring a charge of inefficiency. The Respondent continually argues, "If the legislature had intended for deficient Section 25 inefficiency charges to proceed to arbitration via Section 8, they would have so stated."

Moreover, if a district could "simply file an inefficiency tenure charge under the other charges section of Section 8, it would render the entire legislative overhaul of the tenure system, as set forth in Teach NJ and the creation of Section 25 framework and procedure for inefficiency charges, meaningless and unnecessary."

Section 25 imposed an obligation upon the District to comply with the new evaluation system. Absent from Section 25 or any other authority is any language that the legislature intended for a deficient Section 25 inefficiency charge to proceed to arbitration via Section 8 as a fall back or alternate means through which to pursue inefficiency charges.

The Respondent argues that the Petitioner's charge is barred by the entire controversy doctrine, which is equitable in nature and is fundamentally predicated upon judicial fairness and will be invoked in that spirit. In this case, the Petitioner had the opportunity to raise all legal bases for its tenure charge of inefficiency against the Respondent based upon her evaluation and conduct for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years when it filed charges in August 2014. It could have chosen to bring those charges simultaneously under Section 8 based upon the same facts or series of transactions or occurrences. It did not do so and it cannot now re-litigate the case.

The action of the District clearly violates the entire controversy doctrine, as well as the principle of judicial finality and efficiency. No less importantly, it violates the Respondent's due process rights to not be subject to the same charges repeatedly and indefinitely by the Petitioner. This matter has been litigated, and it has, concluded.

The Respondent continues to rely upon prior arbitration decisions in Yarborough, supra, Cheatham, supra, and Thompson, supra. In Yarborough Arbitrator Gerber stated, "The entire controversy doctrine embodies a principle that the adjudication of a legal controversy should occur in one litigation at which all of the claims and defenses of the parties should be presented. When an action is brought, alternative causes of action should be included in the initial pleadings. There was nothing to prevent the District from alternatively pleading a count of inefficiency under Section 8 in its initial papers." In Thompson, Arbitrator Brent stated, "The second tenure charge did not amend the first charge by the introduction of new facts, nor was a second theory raised in a timely manner. The second set of tenure charges simply alleged a second cause of action under a different statutory standard in order to prove that the Respondent's teaching was legally unacceptable to the extent that her tenure should be rescinded." In Cheatham, Arbitrator Bluth stated, "Moreover, I find that the doctrine of res judicata is relevant in this matter. This is so because I have examined both the first and second set of charges and observed the charges for January 2015 were virtually identical to the charges I had previously dismissed. Further, I reject the District's claim that the matter raised in the second set of charges are not the same matter and, thus, do not fall under res judicata. In my opinion this is pure nonsense: just because the charges were filed under a different section of the law does not render the matter indifferent."

In conclusion, the Respondent asks that the tenure charges against Toni Lenz be dismissed with prejudice and she be returned to work with full salary and benefits.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The unique facts of each case can and do control how a particular disputed action by a school district might be adjudicated if a claim is submitted to arbitration pursuant to c.26, P.L. 2012. I have included extensive positions of both parties concerning whether and not N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 or N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 is controlling in the instant matter.

The Department of Education, by way of a letter dated June 17, 2015, sent to counsel for both parties indicating that the above-captioned tenure charges – which have been docketed as new charges (see Agency docket number 97-4/15) and are being processed with respect to Section 8, inefficiency charges only were reviewed and deemed sufficient if true to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. "The Arbitrator shall review those charges which are not dismissed as a result of a motion under the preponderance of evidence standard."

Counsel for the Petitioner submitted a motion to the Commissioner of Education for emergent relief dated June 19, 2015, and indicating that "The District had demonstrated irreparable harm if the application for emergent relief is not granted."

On July 17, 2015, the Commissioner of Education denied the application because he stated he "lacks jurisdiction to hear and decide the Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief. This determination shall not preclude the parties from seeking the desired relief before the Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5(b)."

Due to the fact that the Department of Education has required me to make a determination in the instant matter using a preponderance of evidence standard, it is appropriate to quote the preponderance of evidence standard into the record. Black's Law Dictionary , 9th edition, defines preponderance of the evidence as, "the greater weight of the evidence, not necessarily established by the greater number of witnesses testifying to a fact, but by evidence that has the most convincing force, superior evidentiary weight, though not sufficient to free the mind wholly from all reasonable doubt, is still sufficient to incline a fair and impartial mind to one side of the issue rather than the other."

Additionally, other legal terms have been utilized in various arbitration hearings dealing with tenure charges against teachers and in particular, with the State-Operated School District, City of Newark. The following legal terms will be utilized in my Award:

Res judicata: an affirmative defense barring the same parties from litigating a second lawsuit on the same claim, or any other claim arising from the same transaction or series of transactions and that could have been – but was not – raised in the first suit. The three essential elements are (1) an earlier decision on the issue; (2) a final judgment on the merits; and (3) involvement of the same party or parties in privity with the original parties.

Collateral Estoppel: a doctrine barring a party from re-litigating an issue determined against that party in an earlier action, even if the second action differs significantly from the first one.

The Entire Controversy Doctrine: this doctrine embodies the principle that adjudication of a legal controversy should occur in one litigation at which all of the claims and defenses of the parties should be presented. When an action is brought, alternative causes of action should be included in the initial pleadings.

Additionally, in support of its arguments to sustain the tenure charges, the District, "has filed a Notice of Appeal with the Appellate Division on the following issues: (1) the Commissioner of Education transferred the Tenure Hearing to the same arbitrator who heard the parties' previous Tenure Charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, and (2) the Commissioner of Education transferred this matter to arbitration without addressing the legal sufficiency of the Tenure Charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16."

Moreover, Exh. A of the Petitioner's Motion to the Commissioner of Education for emergent relief, is a Notice of Appeal to the Superior Court/Appellate Division and on that form the NJ Department of Education is referenced as well as Agency Number 97-4/15, which is the Agency number assigned to the amended Tenure Charges. The first decision I rendered on January 17, 2015, docket number 289-9/14 was not appealed by the District.

One of the defenses raised by the Petitioner is that the amended charge of inefficiency was not timely filed. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 establishes the procedure for implementing the 45 day limitation set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13. The Respondent filed a written response to the amended tenure charges dated January 23, 2015, and the District had 45 days from that date to make a determination as to the probable cause and the amended tenure charges pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(4). The Petitioner did determine there was probable cause to the amended charges and the State-appointed District Superintendent completed the Certification on the 42nd day, March 6, 2015, which was well within the 45 day limitation. I find the argument raised by the Respondent in this area to be absurd to say the least. The charges were accepted by the Department of Education, and on April 30, 2015, the undersigned was appointed arbitrator in the instant matter.

The Respondent's argument that the amended charge had to be effective August 27, 2014, is unrealistic. That is the date that the first set of charges were filed. Below is my rationale for my determination in the instant matter, but suffice it to say, the charges were timely filed.

The Petitioner argues, "The evaluation of Respondent for the 2012-2013 school year are valid as Section 25 of Teach NJ were in effect and in full force in the 2012-2013 school year and may be considered under a preponderance of the credible evidence standard." Section 25 or N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 is the evaluation process, and determination of the charges. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 is the considerations for arbitrators when rendering a decision and there are four areas an arbitrator is required to review to determine if the charges filed by any board of education are to be sustained or dismissed. Section B of that statute states, "If the arbitrator determines that the four factors did not materially affect the outcome of the evaluation, the arbitrator shall render a decision in favor of the Board and the employee shall be dismissed."

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, also known as Section 8, is the section of the statute utilized by the Department of Education in referring this matter to me. All provisions of a statute must be read harmoniously. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123, 17.e. states, "Beginning with the 2013-2014 school year, a board of education shall ensure implementation of the improved, adopted evaluation rubric for all educators in all elementary, middle and high schools in the District. Results of evaluations shall be used to identify and provide professional development to teaching staff members. Results of evaluations shall be provided to the Commissioners as requested on a regular basis." The Petitioner's argument that the evaluations of the Respondent for the 2012-2013 school year is misplaced because of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123, 17.e.

The standards for an arbitrator to review inefficiency charges are found in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. It is not found in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 c. specifically states, "Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 or any other section of law to the contrary, upon receipt of a charge pursuant to subsection a. of this section, the Commissioner shall examine the charge." There is nothing in Section 25 that would allow a charge of inefficiency to be heard under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. However, it is important to review the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. That section, commonly referred to as Section 8, refers to conduct unbecoming such as, but not limited to, excessive absenteeism, insubordination, misuse of school equipment/property, egregious conduct, open and notorious disrespect for management authority, physical altercation with other staff member(s), corporate punishment, theft, etc. This is not an exhaustive list, but a list of the type of charges that could be addressed with this section. Nothing can be found in Section 8 that would grant a board of education the right to process inefficiency charges.

In contract construction or construction in creating a statute, the Latin phrase expressio unius est exclusio alterius is controlling in the instant matter. That Latin phrase simply means that to express or include one thing implies the exclusion of the other or of the alternative. Here, the legislature clearly established that Section 25, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 17.3 are to be utilized. They specifically reference inefficiency. They did not reference conduct unbecoming such as those enumerated above. Therefore, to attempt to extend Section 8 to inefficiency charges was never contemplated by the legislature and that action by the Employer must be rejected.

It is a subterfuge for Petitioner to argue that even if Section 25 inefficiency charges are determined to be without merit, those charges can be re-cast and proceed to arbitration under Section 8.

Most importantly, nothing can be found in Section 25, or any other provision of Chapter 26 of the Legislative intent to allow for amended tenure charges of inefficiency to be brought against the Respondent.

The arbitration decisions in Yarborough, Thompson, Cheatham, Williams and Whitehurst clearly establish without reservation that the Board is attempting to get two bites at the apple, which is not allowed under these proceedings. The Arbitrators in those cases determined that Section 25 was the applicable section for inefficiency cases and not Section 8 and, therefore, denied the State-Operated School District, City of Newark's position to sustain the tenure charges. The Board presented tenure charges in all of those cases and when they came back for a second bite at the apple, they were rebuffed and rejected by the Arbitrators.

The Board references the Felicia Pugliese and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark docket 272-9/12 and I/M/O/ Edgard Chaves and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, docket 269-9/12 cases as support for its argument that I have jurisdiction to decide the instant matter under Section 8 of TEACHNJ. In those two cases, both teachers appealed the determinations of the Arbitrators Brent and Brown respectively, because they believed the Arbitrators' decisions to sustain the tenure charges didn't address the fact pattern in evidence. Those matters were argued before the Appellate Division of Superior Court on March 17, 2015, and a decision was rendered on May 19, 2015. The panel consisting of Judges Koblitz, Has and Higbee stated in an opinion delivered by J.A.D. Koblitz as follows: "Thus, we remand both matters to the Department of Education to determine the validity of those legal defenses raised by each teacher deemed appropriate by the Agency for resolution by the Agency, so that a uniformed educational policy will be promulgated. The Agency should determine the appropriate standards to be used by arbitrators when adjudicating tenure hearings, thus determining a consistent procedure for teachers in a position similar to Chavez and Pugliese who have received tenure charges after the effective date of Teach NJ alleging poor performance that occurred prior to the implementation of the statutes new standards." Those two cases do not offer any support for the Board's position in the instant matter.

The Certifications of Nancy Oxfeld, counsel for the Respondent, dated July 10, 2015, are both informative and illuminating. Exh. A are the 21 components of the inefficiency charge signed by Arts High School Principal, Lynn Irby-Jackson on August 27, 2014. Additionally, the statement of evidence has 51 separate components and is also signed on August 27, 2014. It should be noted for the record that subsections G and H, which are part of the inefficiency charge are the same. Apparently, it appears to be a typographical error. Therefore, there are only 20 charges. Exhibit D is the amended notice of inefficiency charges signed by Principal Lynn Irby-Jackson. There are 20 parts of the inefficiency charge and the interesting fact is that there is a paragraph that states, "The above charge is supported by the statement of evidence previously submitted under oath by Lynn Irby-Jackson dated August 27, 2014, and filed with the Commissioner of Education on or about September 29, 2014." That has a notation of December ___, 2014, with the Principal's signature. Accordingly, I do not know if it was actually signed in December. However, it was notarized on January 14, 2015. The statement of evidence (see Exh. E) has the exact same 51 components and is signed August 27, 2014, which is exactly the one which was filed for the first tenure charges of inefficiency against the Respondent. Those charges were adjudicated by the undersigned on January 17, 2015.

The Petitioner did not even change the dates of the charges of inefficiency with all of the subcomponents or the statement of evidence. They are all dated August 27, 2014. That in itself is outrageous to say the least. To advance such an document and expect the Arbitrator to accept it expands the boundaries of believability to beyond any recognizable limit.

The charges are exactly the same, the dates are critical and that is why I use the word illuminating, because they illuminate that the District did not do anything different. The charges are identical. I determined that the amended petition was timely filed, but that amended petition is the same petition that was filed for the first set of charges. Accordingly, the District has not added any new charges; there are no amended charges. If there are, I didn't find them.

The District's action in the instant matter in filing the amended tenure charges is violative of res judicata and collateral estoppel. It also violates the entire Controversy standard when the District had the opportunity to include N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as the basis for the tenure charges. In fact, the Petitioner stated, "Even if the Arbitrator here concludes, notwithstanding the facts and arguments presented herein, that the requirements for inefficiency tenure charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 have not been met, the inefficiency charges against Respondent should not be dismissed. Instead, the charges must be evaluated under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 and the case should proceed to hearing." Unfortunately for the District the utilization for evaluations for the 2012-2013 school year were violative of Chapter 26 and, therefore, could not be included. Even though the District established a pilot program with the Commissioner of Education, that pilot program could not set aside N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123, 17.e. No matter how this matter is reviewed, the evaluations for the 2012-2013 school year are inappropriate to be utilized for inefficiency charges based on the above-referenced section of the statute.

The District has not met its burden to have a hearing in the instant matter. The District's appeal to the Appellate Court was based upon the following:

"1. The Commissioner of Education transferred the Tenure Hearing to the same Arbitrator who heard the parties' previous tenure charges, Gerard Restaino, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1; and

2. The Commissioner of Education transferred this matter to arbitration without addressing the legal sufficiency of the tenure charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16."

Moreover, Exh. A attached to the Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief references only DOE docket 97-4/15. It does not reference DOE 289-9/14, my award in the first case. Therefore, DOE 289-9/14 is final and binding on the parties, which unequivocally establishes that res judicata and collateral estoppel are alive and controlling in the instant matter. When the Entire Controversy Doctrine is factored into this award enhancing res judicata and collateral estoppel, it exposes the Petitioner's arguments and establishes that the District has not met its burden of having a hearing in the matter at bar.

Utilizing the preponderance of evidence standard, it is clear and without reservation that the District's actions in the instant matter violated the statute and, accordingly, must be dismissed.

AWARD

In accordance with the preponderance of credible evidence standard, the Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment to dismiss the tenure charges against Toni Lenz is hereby granted. The Petitioner's motion to compel a hearing in this matter is denied.

The Respondent, Toni Lenz, shall be returned to work with full back pay, benefits, and seniority. The Petitioner shall also reimburse the Respondent for any documented medical expenses she incurred while she was under suspension.

IN THE MATTER OF TENURE CHARGES OF ADELA CAMPOS and the STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK	AGENCY REF. NO. 99-4/15 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (the "District"), whose principal office is located at 2 Cedar Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102, and its successors, assigns, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively, "School District"), and Adela Campos, residing at 1250 E. Front Street, Plainfield, NJ 07062 ("Respondent") (collectively, the "Parties") have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following Stipulation of Settlement, which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between them in full and complete settlement of all outstanding issues as detailed below.

WHEREAS Respondent is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the District as a teacher; and

WHEREAS the State District Superintendent of the School District ("Superintendent") certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming to the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey, captioned In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Adela Campos, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County ("Tenure Charges"), primarily based upon allegations that Respondent had engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher's staff member and such charges were assigned Docket No. 99-4/15; and Respondent filed an answer opposing the charges; and the Commissioner of Education, having reviewed the charges and Respondent's answer, determined that the charges were sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in compensation, and accordingly referred the matter to Arbitrator Walter DeTreux ("Arbitrator") for a hearing; and

WHEREAS, the District is an Abbott District, with stringent budget limitations and due to the uncertainty of the outcome of arbitration as well as the expenditure of resources due to multiple days of hearings with numerous witnesses, and the concern that school personnel will be removed from their educational duties and responsibilities during that time, the Parties wish to resolve this matter in accordance with the terms set forth herein rather than proceed with arbitration; and

WHEREAS the proposed Stipulation of Settlement is in the best interest of the Parties and the public because it avoids an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly proceedings at the expense of the public;

NOW, THEREFORE, subject to approval by the Arbitrator, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Upon final approval of the signed Stipulation by the District, the District shall and hereby does withdraw the instant Tenure Charges. The District agrees to not pursue the subject Tenure Charges against Respondent as long as this Stipulation remains in effect and is not voided by any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction. In the event the Stipulation is voided, the District retains the right to refile and consider for certification, tenure charges against Respondent, including those tenure charges which have been previously filed against her by the District, and Respondent reserves the right to defend same. Any future action by the District against Respondent must be based upon new allegations, and these withdrawn charges shall not be used to support any new charges.

2. Upon final approval by the Arbitrator of the Stipulation signed by the District, Respondent agrees not to make any claim for the 120 days salary which was withheld during her suspension beginning April 27, 2015. Her right to resume salary only begins on or about September 1, 2015. The District agrees to return Ms. Campos to her appropriate level of medical coverage as soon as this matter is completed and no later than 9/1/15.

3. Respondent agrees that any pension payment and medical contribution and/or premium payment during the period of suspension starting 4/27/15 shall be her sole responsibility.

4. Respondent will be assigned to a position, in the discretion of the District.

5. Except as noted above, Respondent waives all claims of any nature against the District with regard to her employment with the District including fees, or other monetary relief, with the exception of workers' compensation claims for the term of her prior employment until the date of this Agreement.

6. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 3 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Respondent hereby waives, releases and discharges any and all claims or rights that she has or may have against the District, the State District Superintendent, its Advisory Board of Education and its Advisory Board members, and any and all other District officers, employees, representatives, agents, successors and assigns (collectively, the "Released Parties") including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief. This waiver, release and discharge includes, without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Respondent's employment with the District up to the date of this Agreement. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Respondent may have regarding tenure, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, any federal or state civil rights law, any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wages and Hours Law, unemployment compensations laws, disability benefits laws, retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law; the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution; and/or any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance; any claim based on contract, implied contract, collective bargaining agreement, tort law, personal injury, or public policy, having any bearing whatsoever on her employment, including but not limited to any claim for back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wages, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss, except for workers' compensation claims.

7. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 10 of this Agreement, it is understood and agreed that the parties are not prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, or any other federal, state or local law agency. However, should any entity, agency commission or person file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the District based upon any of the above-released claims in Paragraph 6, Respondent agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

8. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 6 of this Stipulation, Respondent does not hereby waive any right she may have to workers compensation benefits or pension benefits.

9. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other District employees.

10. This Stipulation, and all of its terms, are and will remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law. Respondent is expressly forbidden from discussing this Stipulation with any person, other than her accountant, tax advisor and attorney ("permitted disclosures") and any other individual or entity as necessary to implement the Stipulation or to which it is legally obligated to respond ("legally-required disclosures"). In making any permitted disclosure, Respondent agrees that it will inform the person to whom it is making the permitted disclosure that the existence and substance of this Stipulation and the settlement giving rise to this Stipulation are to be held strictly confidential to the fullest extent permitted by law. Respondent specifically agrees not to discuss the nature, terms, conditions of this Stipulation with others, any representative of the media, or any past, present, or prospective employee of the District, or its agents or attorneys. Respondent understands that this provision is not a simple recital but is an important, integral part of this Stipulation. The District agrees that it will keep this Stipulation confidential to the extent permitted by law.

11. The Parties each acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Stipulation and that each is signing this Stipulation freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party, with full understanding of its terms and conditions and consents to the terms contained herein.

12. Each signatory to this Stipulation understands, acknowledges and agrees that this Stipulation constitutes the full agreement of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified, or otherwise changed in any respect whatsoever except by a duly executed writing signed on behalf of both Parties.

13. This Stipulation shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law. The Commissioner of Education and/or federal and state courts of the State of New Jersey, as applicable in accordance with such law, shall have jurisdiction over any dispute arising from, in connection with, or related to this Stipulation.

14. This Stipulation may be executed in counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures hereto and thereto were upon the same instrument. Each counterpart will be deemed an original, which taken together shall constitute a single instrument. Facsimile signatures or signatures in electronic Portable Document Format ("PDF") shall be construed and have the same force and effect as original signatures.

15. This Stipulation or any uncertainty or ambiguity therein shall not be construed against any party, but shall be construed as if both Parties to this Stipulation jointly prepared this Agreement.

16. Each party acknowledges that this is the entire agreement of the Parties concerning the subject matter of the foregoing paragraphs, and that there are no written or oral representations, understandings or agreements directly or indirectly connected with this Stipulation.

17. If any provision of this Stipulation is held by a court of competent jurisdiction or determined under applicable law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue and remain in full force and effect.

18. This Stipulation of Settlement is subject to the final approval of the State District Superintendent of the State-operated School District of the City of Newark and will only become effective upon the final approval of the Superintendent. Any disapproval by the Superintendent shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter.

19. Additionally, this Stipulation is subject to approval by the Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(c), and will become effective only upon approval by the Arbitrator. Counsel for the Parties shall jointly request the Arbitrator's approval of this Agreement and each shall take any and all necessary steps to effectuate dismissal of the Tenure Charges.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HIGH POINT REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION ON
v.	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTAGUE, SUSSEX COUNTY and PORT JERVIS CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, ORANGE COUNTY, NEW YORK,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that the petitioner has demonstrated entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

The Commissioner finds that petitioner has demonstrated a likelihood of irreparable harm absent emergent relief. The continuity of education for the children of Montague for the 2015-2016 school year and the potential for withholding of Montague's State aid pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:55-2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-5.1 demonstrate that irreparable injury will result if Montague is permitted to enter into send/receive relationship with Port Jervis for those students who would otherwise be required to go to High Point. The Commissioner finds that Montague has intentionally defied a Commissioner's decision and may not be permitted to continue to do so. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has met the remaining factors set forth in Crowe, supra, and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is rejected. Montague is enjoined from entering into a send/receive relationship with Port Jervis for those students who would otherwise be required to go to High Point, pursuant to the send/receive relationship currently in effect. This case shall proceed at the OAL to a plenary hearing, or such other proceedings as the ALJ and the parties determine, to resolve the underlying claim on the merits.[1]

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, the Board of Education of the High Point Regional High School District (hereinafter High Point), seeks an order enjoining students from the Township of Montague (hereinafter Montague) from enrolling in Port Jervis City School District, Orange County, New York (hereinafter Port Jervis), except as permitted by approved transition plan and other related relief. Opposition was filed on behalf of Montague. Both High Point and Montague appeared for oral argument on August 31, 2015, and submitted supplemental papers on September 1, 2015.

Port Jervis was not represented at oral argument. Both counsel for High Point and counsel for Montague indicated at oral argument that they had not received any papers from counsel for Port Jervis regarding the Petition for Emergent Relief. Today, on September 1, 2015, I received a fax from Thomas Scapoli, Esq., indicating that it was faxed August 31, 2015. Counsel, on behalf of Point Jervis, opposes High Point's request for emergent relief. The fax does not indicate that it was served upon either Montague or High Point and accordingly was not considered by me. However, based upon my determination, Point Jervis is not prejudiced.

The underlying facts relevant to this decision are not in dispute. For perhaps eighty-five years Montague has provided educational programs for its elementary students and has sent its seventh- through twelfth-grade students to other schools, including those in Port Jervis. A Sending-Receiving Tuition Contract Agreement, between Montague and Port Jervis, dated September 19, 2000 (hereinafter Montague/Port Jervis Agreement), provides among other things that Port Jervis will provide educational services on a nonexclusive basis to some of Montague's students. The Montague/Port Jervis Agreement expressly notes that some students may attend private, vocational-technical, charter, parochial, or other public schools rather than attend school in Port Jervis. The term of the Montague/Port Jervis Agreement is perpetual, with cancellation upon a minimum of five years written notice by either party. The agreement is expressly noted to be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey. (Perez Certification, Exhibit A.)

In late 2012/early 2013, Montague and High Point began to communicate regarding the possibility of a sending/receiving relationship. Montague's counsel wrote a letter to the New Jersey Commissioner of Education on March 4, 2013. Counsel advised the Commissioner that, while Montague had been in a long-term relationship with Port Jervis, the goal of the Montague Board of Education was "ultimately to return all of its students to New Jersey for grades pre-K to 12." Counsel asked for guidance as to the ability to withdraw from a sending/receiving relationship with an out-of-state district upon reasonable notice. Counsel inquired if it would be possible for the Commissioner to withdraw consent for the out-of-state relationship, and, if not, what process should Montague follow in replacing an out-of-state sending relationship with a sending/receiving relationship in-state. Copies of the March 4, 2013, letter sent to the Commissioner were forwarded to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Business Administrator, and Sussex Executive County Superintendent. (Perez Certification, Exhibit F.)

Approximately three months later, Montague's counsel wrote a second letter to the Commissioner, on June 18, 2013, regarding Montague's long-term sending relationship with Port Jervis. Counsel noted that the district and the community had continued concerns about paying tuition to an out-of-state district with an inability to provide a New Jersey diploma to Montague students and a district that relied upon New York assessments and educational standards. The Commissioner was informed that Montague and High Point had agreed upon terms for a sending/receiving agreement that they were interested in memorializing within a month or two. Counsel made "an application to the Department of Education to facilitate the withdrawal of consent and potential return of its [Montague's] high school age students to New Jersey beginning as of September 2013" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10. In particular, it was noted that the initial decision to seek permission to contract for out-of-state educational services was first signed over sixty year ago. Since then the New Jersey County roads at issue were developed, maintained, and upgraded for safety. In the event of inclement weather, Montague and administrators of the nearby schools consulted with each other regarding inclement weather closings or delayed openings. In the case of inclement weather, two routes were available between the High Point and Montague Districts. The shorter route involved travel over "the mountain" and was 14.48 miles in length. The longer route did not involve travel over "the mountain" but was 21.29 miles in length. Counsel also provided the Commission with details regarding mileage between Montague and other relevant schools that Montague students were attending. Copies of the June 18, 2013, letter sent to the Commissioner were also forwarded to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Secretary/Business Administrator, and the Interim Executive Sussex County Superintendent. (Perez Certification, Exhibit F.)

On June 24, 2013, the Commissioner of Education wrote a letter to Montague's counsel stating as follows:

> Please be advised that the application submitted on behalf of the Montague Board of Education, dated June 18, 2013, requesting that the Commissioner withdraw his consent for the attendance of pupils in grades 9 through 12 at the public schools of Port Jervis, New York, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10, is hereby granted. After carefully considering the information submitted, including a historical description of the circumstances that led to the creation of the out-of-State send-receive relationship and an explanation of the improved road and travel conditions in the geographic area served by the Montague Board of Education and the surrounding school districts, I conclude that the reasons for the initial consent now cease to exist. As such, the Montague Board of Education may enter into a send-receive relationship with the High Point Regional School District for the education of its students in grades 9 through 12.

The Commissioner also was forwarded copies of his determination to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Secretary/Business Administrator, and Interim Executive Sussex County Superintendent. (Perez Certification, Exhibit F.)

Thereafter, High Point and Montague executed a Sending-Receiving Agreement, dated August 13, 2013 (Montague/High Point Agreement). This Agreement was signed on behalf of High Point by the Vice President of the High Point Board of Education and on behalf of Montague by the President of the Montague Board of Education. The Montague/High Point Agreement concerned the provision of educational services only to Montague pupils in grades nine through twelve and was effective only for ninth-grade students beginning last September 1, 2014. (Perez Certification, Exhibit E.)

On November 12, 2013, Montague made a further application to the Commissioner requesting that he withdraw his consent for Montague seventh- and eighth-grade students to be educated at Point Jervis pursuant to the Montague/Point Jervis Agreement. Counsel forwarded copies of this application to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Secretary/Business Administrator, and the Interim Executive Sussex County Superintendent. (Verified Petition of Appeal, Exhibit E.) On November 19, 2014, the Commissioner granted Montague's request to terminate its send-receive relationship with Port Jervis for its seventh- and eighth-grade students. The Commissioner also forwarded copies of his determination to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Secretary/Business Administrator, and the Interim Executive Sussex County Superintendent. (Verified Petition of Appeal, Exhibit F.)

By letter dated April 10, 2015, High Point sought confirmation from Montague that Montague students would be attending High Point, in according with the Montague/High Point Agreement. (Verified Petition of Appeal, Exhibit G.) By letter dated April 20, 2015, the Interim County Executive for the Sussex County Board of Education advised Montague that it had come to her attention that several Montague parents were intending to enroll their children in Port Jervis. In fact, the Interim County Executive was advised that the Montague Board President may have indicated at Port Jervis Board Meetings that Montague students should be able to continue to attend schools in Port Jervis. The Interim County Executive advised Montague that such actions were not in compliance with the Commissioner's prior decisions and the Montague/High Point Agreement, by which Montague was obligated to abide. The Interim County Superintendent stated that she had unsuccessfully attempted to meet with the Montague Board President and Montague school administration on several occasions and remained willing to meet with them. A copy of her letter was sent to the Assistant Commissioner, the Deputy Chief Legal and External Affairs, the Executive County Business Office, the Montague Superintendent, the Montague School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, the High Point Superintendent, the High Point Business Administrator/Board Secretary, the Port Jervis Superintendent, and the Port Jervis Assistant Superintendent for Business. (Verified Petition of Appeal, Exhibit H.)

A Notice of Motion for Emergent Relief was filed by High Point on August 19, 2015, seeking to enjoin Montague from enrolling any students in Port Jervis, except as permitted by the transition plan. Emergent relief is opposed by Montague who asserts that injunctive relief is inappropriate.

LEGAL ARGUMENT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

> (b) A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Emergent relief should not be granted except "when necessary to prevent irreparable harm." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132. The moving party bears the burden of proving irreparable harm. More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated.

"The requisite for injunctive relief has been characterized as a 'clear showing of immediate irreparable injury,' or a 'presently existing actual threat; [emergent relief] may not be used simply to eliminate a possibility of a remote future injury, or a future invasion of rights, be those rights protected by statute or by the common law.'" Cont'l Group v. Amoco Chems. Corp., 614 F.2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980) (citations omitted). Injunctive relief is only appropriate where money damages are not readily calculable. United Board and Carton Corp. v. Britting, 63 N.J. Super. 517, 533 (Ch. Div. 1959).

After hearing the arguments of High Point and Montague and considering their documents submitted, I CONCLUDE that the law regarding High Point's Claim is settled. There is a statute on point as to a sending/receiving agreement between a New Jersey district and out-of-state district. Such an agreement must be approved by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, who may withdraw his consent upon reasonable notice, wherever the reason or reasons for the consent shall cease to exist.

I CONCLUDE that High Point is likely to prevail on the merits of its underlying claim. As detailed above, approximately eight months prior to execution of the Montague/High Point Agreement, an inquiry was made to the Commissioner of Education regarding the possibility of educating Montague's students in New Jersey rather than New York State, where they would receive a New York diploma that relies upon New York assessments and standards. Subsequently, after being provided with more of a factual basis for the request, the Commissioner withdrew his consent for Montague's ninth- through twelfth-grade students to enroll in Port Jervis. Thereafter, Montague made a further request to be able to terminate its send/receive relationship with Port Jervis as to its seventh- and eighth-grade students. After the review of that supplemental request and with the input of the County Superintendent, the Commissioner then withdrew his consent for Montague's seventh- and eighth-grade students to be enrolled in Port Jervis. All of the determinations were made pursuant to transition plans. All requests and determinations, including those made by Montague's then counsel were carbon copied, among others, to the Montague Board of Education and County Superintendent. No appeal of either determination of the Commissioner was ever filed.

The cited cases by Montague are not on point. In both matters, the decision of the Montague Board was affirmed, against a parent of Montague student. In this case, a current Montague Board of Education is seeking to act in opposition to the actions of a former Montague Board of Education. Further, both decisions were made some time ago—one in 1994 and one in 2000.

Despite the foregoing, High Point has not met all four prongs necessary for any emergent relief. Essentially, in determining its staffing needs, High Point has relied upon the High Point and Montague Sending/Receiving Agreement, dated August 13, 2013, which provides a schedule for the sending/receiving relationship that began in September 1, 2014. The parties agreed upon a flat per pupil rate from 2014 to 2024. The per pupil rate for the 2015-2016 school year is $14,796. Thus, the damage at issue is the monies that would have been paid to High Point for the education of Montague students who are presently enrolled to attend school in Port Jervis for the 2015-2016 school year. Based, solely for purposes of this Petition, upon the representations of High Point in their supplemental papers, High Point's damage is the loss of seventeen pupils (6 - 47 = 17) times the per pupil rate, or $251,532. (Ripley Certification, Paragraph 5, and Exhibit A.) Thus, I CONCLUDE that High Point has not presented any credible evidence that it will suffer any irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted, with the exception of calculable monetary damages.

While the equities favor High Point, I further CONCLUDE that neither party will suffer greater harm than the other if emergent relief is denied. As noted in detail above, after many years of a sending/receiving relationship with Port Jervis, the Montague Board of Education, sitting in 2012-2013 asked the New Jersey Commissioner of Education to determine if he would withdraw his consent to have Montague pupils educated out of state in Port Jervis. Subject to transition plans, the Commissioner withdrew his consent. All correspondence at issue, though at times addressed to or by Montague's counsel, was carbon copied to the Montague Board President, the Montague Chief School Administrator, the Montague Secretary/Business Administrator, and the Interim Executive County Superintendent, who did not object to the substance of the communications nor to the determinations of the Commissioner. In fact, the Commissioner's determinations were never appealed. The Montague/High Point

Sending/Receiving Agreement took effect last year, September 2014. In equity, it is reasonable for High Point to believe that Montague should act in accordance with the Montague/High Point Agreement's terms. In equity, it is unreasonable for the current Montague Board of Education and Montague citizens to not be obligated to comply with an Agreement entered by a former Board. No evidence was presented by Port Jervis that Port Jervis objected to the implementation of the Montague/High Point Agreement last year. Further, documentation was presented at Oral Argument that indicates that the Port Jervis Board Of Education was aware, at least as early as July 2, 2013, of a transition plan for Montague pupils to begin being educated at High Point as of September 2014. (Port Jervis City School District, Board of Education Meeting Minutes, July 2, 2013.)

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that High Point has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and is not entitled to emergent relief.

I further CONCLUDE and the parties have confirmed and I AGREE that there are no further issues left to be determined.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the High Point's request for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Re: Board of Education of the High Point Regional School District v. Board of Education of the Township of Montague, Sussex County and Port Jervis City School District Board of Education, Orange County, New York, Agency Dkt. No. 228-8/15

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the Montague Board of Education's (Montague) Motion to Stay the September 2, 2015 decision enjoining Montague from entering into a send/receive relationship with Port Jervis for those students who would otherwise be required to go to High Point, pending appeal of this decision to the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), a motion for stay is considered an extraordinary remedy that may only be issued upon a finding that petitioner has met each prong of the four-pronged standard for the granting of interim relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Thus, a stay may be granted where necessary to prevent irreparable harm, where the legal right underlying the movant's claim is settled, where there is a likelihood of success on the merits and where the relative hardship to the moving party favors granting such relief. Id. at 132-134.

Upon review of the papers submitted, I find that Montague has failed to meet the standard required for a stay of the September 2, 2015 decision. Accordingly, Montague's request for a stay of the September 2, 2015 decision is hereby DENIED.[1]

DECISION APPROVING SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Agency Docket No. 127-6/15

Before
Robert C. Gifford, Esq.
Arbitrator

Appearances:

For the Petitioner:
Frank P. Cavallo, Jr., Esq.
Tracey L. Schneider, Esq.
Parker McCay

For the Respondent:
Barbara E. Riefberg, Esq.
Shimberg & Friel

On July 20, 2015, I was assigned as the arbitrator for the above referenced matter. Settlement discussions took place on July 22nd. The hearing commenced on July 29th, but the parties agreed to continue their settlement discussions in lieu of proceeding on the evidentiary record. I agreed to cancel the hearing scheduled for July 30th. A drafted settlement agreement was executed by the Respondent on August 10th during a settlement conference. The Board's next meeting was scheduled for August 27th.

On August 27, 2015, the Clearview Regional Board of Education [the "Petitioner"] formally executed and adopted the settlement resolving the tenure charges it filed with the State of New Jersey, Department of Education on June 12, 2015. A fully executed settlement agreement was forwarded to me on September 4, 2015. The terms of settlement are included in the settlement agreement attached hereto.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 requires the arbitrator to issue a brief decision approving the settlement of tenure charges and explaining why the arbitrator is approving the terms of settlement.

The parties' settlement agreement expressly details the basis for resolution. I have thoroughly reviewed and considered the parties' reasons for settlement set forth therein. Having considered the stated reasons in conjunction with the issues raised in the Statement of Tenure Charges and the Statement of Evidence filed by the Petitioner and the Response to Tenure Charges filed by the Respondent, I am persuaded that the parties entered the settlement agreement knowingly and willingly and that the terms of the settlement agreement represent a reasonable basis for settlement that will serve the public's interest and are consistent with the public good.

Accordingly, and based upon the foregoing, I approve the parties' settlement agreement.

Docket No. 127-6/15

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CLEARVIEW REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, COUNTY OF GLOUCESTER (hereinafter "BOARD") with offices located at 420 Cedar Road, Mullica Hill, New Jersey and LISA MASSING (hereinafter "MASSING") hereby agree as follows:

WHEREAS, MASSING has been employed in the Clearview Regional School District as a Teacher since the April 3, 1997; and.

WHEREAS, MASSING has been on a worker's compensation based leave of absence during the 2013-2014 School Year, from Mid-January 2014 through June 2014 and on worker's compensation leave/sick leave/Family Medical Leave/personal leave during the 2014-2015 School Year through March 9, 2015; and.

WHEREAS, the BOARD certified and filed Tenure Charges against MASSING on May 28, 2015; and.

WHEREAS, MASSING served an Answer to the said Tenure Charges on or about July 13, 2015 contesting the allegations contained in the Tenure Charges; and.

WHEREAS, MASSING submitted an application for retirement with the State of New Jersey, Division of Pensions, prior to the certification of tenure charges; and,

WHEREAS, the initial Hearing as to those Tenure Charges was conducted on July 29, 2015; and,

WHEREAS, the PARTIES, with the advice of their respective counsel entered into settlement discussion and desire to settle all aspects of MASSING'S employment rights and benefits by executing this SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE ("AGREEMENT");

IT IS HEREBY AGREED by and between MASSING and the BOARD, as follows:

1. MASSING, for and in consideration of the undertakings of the BOARD set forth in paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 and herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge the BOARD and its officers, members, employees and agents, its and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which she ever had, now has, or hereinafter may have, or which her heirs, executors or administrators hereinafter may have with respect to her employment relationship with the BOARD, however specifically excluding any claims under the Workmen's Compensation Laws of the State of New Jersey.

2. MASSING has submitted a Letter of Resignation (Exhibit "A").

3. The BOARD, for and in consideration of the undertakings of set forth herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge MASSING and her heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which it ever had, now has, or hereinafter may have, or which its officers, members, employees and/or agents, and its respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors or administrators hereinafter may have with respect to her employment relationship with the BOARD, except for claims arising from the breach of this AGREEMENT.

4. The BOARD has requested, based upon the terms and conditions of this AFREEMENT, that the Tenure Charges be dismissed.

5. The BOARD agrees to provide any prospective employers with the following information: MASSING was hired on April 3, 1997 and remained employed until her resignation on August 1, 2015.

6. MASSING hereby agrees and recognizes that her employment relationship with the BOARD will be permanently and irrevocably severed as of June 30, 2015, and that the BOARD does not have any obligation, contractual or otherwise, to hire, rehire, or re-employ her in the future.

7. By signing this AGREEMENT, the Parties certify that they have had the opportunity to discuss this AGREEMENT with counsel. They are fully satisfied with the services of their counsel with respect to both this AGREEMENT and all other aspects of this case and they enter into this AGREEMENT knowingly, willingly and without any coercion or improper inducements.

8. The parties agree that this AGREEMENT may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the same force and effect as original signatures.

Intending to be legally bound hereby, MASSING and the BOARD execute the foregoing AGREEMENT dated August ___, 2015.

RE: Letter of Resignation

Dear Mr. Horchak:

In accordance with the Settlement Agreement reached in connection with the pending tenure case, I am submitting my letter of resignation from my position as a teacher with the Clearview Regional High School District, effective immediately. Unfortunately, the injuries that I sustained in the accident of January 10, 2014 have compelled me to make this very difficult decision.

I thoroughly enjoyed my years of service to the students in the District and I wish my health would have allowed me to continue my career.

Very truly yours,

Lisa Massing

Docket No. 162-7/15

BEFORE: Ernest Weiss, Arbitrator

APPEARANCES: For the Respondent: Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq.

For the School District: Louis J. Greco, Esq.

Issue: Did the Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District Board of Education meet its burden of proof to justify the tenure termination of Respondent, and if not, what shall be the remedy?

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Having been selected in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended by P.L. 2012, c.26, on August 19, 2015 I conducted an arbitration hearing at the offices of the Greater Egg Harbor Regional Board of Education, 1824 Dr. Dennis Foreman Drive, Mays Landing, NJ, at which time the parties were offered a full opportunity to present evidence and argument in support of their respective positions. At that time, both the Respondent and the School District submitted exhibits that were admitted, along with joint exhibits. Post hearing briefs were submitted by counsel and considered herein.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Joint Ex 1, the case history record, was submitted and marked for identification and taken into evidence. Both sides waived making opening statements.

The Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District ("the District") brought tenure charges based on "conduct unbecoming" against its employee, Carol Zepralka ("Zepralka" or "Respondent"). Prior to the hearing, it was established that the Respondent had been employed with the District during the 1995-96 school year, had worked since 2000 as a computer operator/secretary and continued in that role in the 2014-15 school year. On March 4, 2015, Zepralka consumed alcohol during school hours in the work place, when students were present. The District chose to seek termination rather than the more usual practice when a long serving employee has an unblemished record, citing its zero-tolerance policy and its concern over the potential harm to "young and impressionable children (who were high school students in this case – emphasis mine) in the public school setting." The employee had daily contact with the students and parents in the course of tracking student attendance, which was part of her duty.

It is undisputed testimony that the Respondent voluntarily entered an inpatient employee assistance program on March 29, 2015, continuing for eighty days and was discharged by the facility's Medical Director (see Ex. R-1) and on June 22, 2015, was cleared to return to work without restriction, and determined fit for duty. The Superintendent did not have first hand knowledge of the March 4, 2015 incident and acknowledged that this was the Respondent's only incident of misconduct in the workplace.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

The District called John J. Keenan ("Keenan"), the District Superintendent, to testify. He testified that he had been employed as the District Superintendent since July 1, 2014 and had been a school district superintendent for the previous five years elsewhere in New Jersey, and had taught for nine years, and had been an educator for twenty-eight years, all those roles having certificates issued by the State of New Jersey.

Keenan testified that he first met Zepralka at the beginning of July 2014 and stated that on March 15, 2015, Dr. Gatto, (the Principal of the Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School) was advised by an assistant principal that there was a strong smell of alcohol coming from the attendance office, and that she was concerned that the Respondent was believed to be under the influence of alcohol during school hours on March 14, 2015. Ultimately it was documented that there was a strong odor of alcohol coming from the attendance office and the Respondent was the only person using that office. Following several procedural steps, the Respondent was interviewed and the outcome of that investigative interview was reported to Keenan, who testified that he reviewed everything that had occurred to that point, including Zepralka's personnel file, which included her prior performance evaluations.

Keenan testified that after reviewing all the evidence, he came to the decision that he would recommend tenure termination to the Board of Education, which in turn reviewed, authorized and certified that his recommendation be followed. There followed a delay in the proceedings due to a requested and approved leave of absence sought by the Respondent for the purpose of entering a rehab facility. Further, he testified with respect to the tenure termination, that the hearing in question proceeded upon completion of the leave of absence. Keenan explained that he pressed for tenure termination because of his concern and responsibility for the safety and security of the District, together with the students and staff. He stated that "zero tolerance is self explanatory." He went on to explain that alcohol is an ongoing issue and concern and that not enforcing the Policy would amount to enabling such behavior in his part. He noted that the Respondent's office is in the main lobby of the high school and is the first office one sees upon entering the school.

On cross-examination, Respondent's attorney began by identifying Exhibit R-1, the letter of clearance of the Respondent by the rehabilitation facility, and offering it into evidence. Keenan acknowledged having seen the letter previously and that he understands that the Respondent has a "medical condition." Keenan expressed concern about future failures in job performance by reason of this condition. He acknowledged that the statute gave him the right to require that the Respondent be examined for a fitness for duty determination by an independent medical examination which must be complied with under the statutory scheme, but that neither he nor the District made such a request. Thus, the only medical determination of the Respondent's fitness for duty was from the Medical Director of the rehabilitation facility.

He testified that he reviewed the Respondent's personnel file as part of the process is determining the discipline for so serous a charge with its potential consequences. Keenan stated that absent this incident there was nothing in the record that indicated any unfitness for duty. He testified that there may have been individual items requiring improvement, but overall the record was satisfactory, if Average. Average is one of five categories of evaluation, being the middle category and Superior being the top.

Respondent's counsel then requested Keenan to review Exhibit R-2, which was Zepralka's entire record of performance evaluations, and it was marked and entered into evidence. Keenan had reviewed this performance record prior to making his recommendation, including the fact that the evaluators were her different supervisors over the course of her employment.

Since the fact of the Respondent's having imbibed alcohol in school during school hours was the "primary," reason for the recommended tenure termination, Respondent's counsel pressed Kennan for any "secondary" reasons. There was a difficult series of exchanges around that question, the only answer that the Arbitrator received was that Keenan had many years of experience, including experience with substance abuse, which should not be discounted.

Zepralka's counsel then inquired as to Keenan's use of the phrase ". . . under the influence of alcohol," and Keenan acknowledged that there was no record or indication of behavior that appeared to be "under the influence of alcohol," and that he had not observed the Respondent on March 4, 2015.

He stated that he was aware of and had resources readily available with respect to the State's definition of "under the influence," as well as available testing for it.

On redirect, the District's counsel elicited from Keenan that the medical clearance letter was neither directed to the school nor included any knowledge that the Respondent was a public school employee with close contact with students. The letter in question was addressed to the Human Resources Department at the school and somehow found its way to the payroll supervisor.

On re-cross, it was determined that the "letter" had been in the District's possession prior to its determination to pursue tenure termination.

The District closed its case in chief.

Zepralka's attorney offered for identification an amendment to R-2, an original copy of the Respondent's personnel evaluation which has not been part of the original submission of R-2. It was marked for identification as R2B. With that, the Respondent's counsel closed her case.

The parties agreed to submit letter briefs by close of business of August 31, 2015 in order to meet the parties' separate tight timeframe needs.

DISCUSSION AND OPINION

This case is an appeal of a certification and subsequent disciplinary action of termination sought by the Respondent.

Both parties agree that prior to this arbitration full due process was observed in this case. I am reviewing the case based on the credibility of the witness before me, together with the exhibits and documents presented.

The District's sole witness, Superintendent Keenan, has been the Districts Superintendent for about a year, but brings twenty-eight years of experience as a teacher, principal and superintendent

He had, however, no first hand knowledge of the incident that occurred on March 4, 2015, and relied on the report of his subordinate principal, Dr. Gatto, on whom he had no reason not to rely. He was familiar with the Respondent, who he met from time to time since her office was the first that one encountered upon entering the high school.

He acknowledged that this was the Respondent's only incident of misconduct in the workplace. He testified to having reviewed the Respondent's personnel record as part of his normal practice before reaching any decision of such magnitude. Of the five categories used for performance evaluation over the twenty-plus years of Zepralka's employment, Keenan concluded that her performance was average or slightly above average, with areas in need of improvement. In fact, on cross- examination, he acknowledged that there were years where most or all of her evaluations, performed by her various supervisors, were superior. He further acknowledged that the District had in its possession the medical clearance letter, issued after 80 days of voluntary inpatient rehabilitation, stating that she was fit for duty without restriction. Finally, he testified that the primary reason for his and the Board's decision to pursue tenure termination was his concern for and his responsibility for the safety of his students and staff, and indicated that to not enforce the zero tolerance policy would be enabling unacceptable behavior on his and the Board's part.

In the letter brief submitted by the Respondent's attorney, several cases were cited to show how public employers should deal with an employee who can be considered an alcoholic (a medical condition). In these cases, where the employees had either been cross-addicted and/or had multiple instances of being under the influence, were given multiple chances to return to work following a successful rehabilitation program.

As a condition for continued employment, the employer can monitor the employee's performance closely and may require random testing to insure compliance.

The conclusion of Respondent's counsel is that in appropriate circumstances, as in this case, the courts would favor multiple chances for an employee to rehabilitate his/herself and return to work subject to employer monitoring.

Given her twenty years of otherwise unblemished behavior, I was not persuaded by Superintendent Keenan's testimony regarding the possibility of repeated future behavior. There was no showing that her rehabilitated status would not hold under a last chance agreement.

I have thoroughly considered Superintendent Keenan's testimony and the arguments of the parties herein and also I considered the evidence in the Record. Having thoroughly considered all the evidence, including the arguments and allegations of both parties, I have determined for the above stated reasons that the District has not met its burden of proof to justify the tenure termination of the Respondent after twenty years of otherwise unblemished service.

I have included here a copy of a "last chance agreement," provided by Respondent's Counsel, with minimal modification, and directed herein as binding upon the parties and mutually executed the "last chance agreement" upon receipt of the instant Arbitration award.

LAST CHANCE AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into the date last written below, by and between GREATER HARBOR REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTREICT BOARD OF EDUCATION (the "Employer"), a body politic of the State of New Jersey, having its principal office at 1824 Dr. Dennis Foreman Drive, Mays Landing, New Jersey 08330 and CAROL ZEPRALKA (the "Employee"), having an address of 8 Franklin Drive, Somers Point, New Jersey 08244.

W I T N E S S E T H:

WHERAS, the Board is the governing body of the GREATER EGG HARBOR REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTREICT BOARD OF EDUCATION; and

WHEREAS, the Employee is a computer operator/secretary and has been employed by the Board in different positions since on or about the 1995-1996 school year or for approximately twenty years; and

WHEREAS, on or about March 4, 2015, the Employee, a tenured secretarial staff employee, consumed some alcohol during school hours and while on school premises; and

WHEREAS, as a result of her behavioral health medical condition she became enrolled in a full time treatment program at the Recovery Institute of South Florida, with her admission being on March 29, 2015 and her fit for duty discharge with no restrictions occurring on June 22, 2015; and

WHEREAS, the District by and through their Board of Education certified Tenure Charges based on unbecoming conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-51 et seq.; and

WHEREAS an Arbitration took place on August 19, 2015 at the Greater Egg Harbor Regional District Offices.

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree to the terms of this Last Chance Agreement as follows:

1. Employee agrees that she shall never again imbibe in the consumption of alcohol during school hours or on school property, and at any and all times any testing, as set forth in subparagraph 2 below cannot yield over a .02% blood alcohol content (BAC) or there will be immediate unilateral termination under this agreement, with the only due process right of the Employee if a test should come back over a .02% BAC is the propriety of the test.

2. Employer shall be entitled under minimum probable cause to ask the Employee to submit an alcohol test either by blood or urine sample at its cost. Again, if the Employer requests the Employee to take a blood alcohol level test and it yields more than .02% BAC, or if the Employee refuses the request, there shall be immediate termination without bringing tenure charges and subject only to the Employee's right to see that the test was properly performed.

3. In this case the Arbitrator has decided the tenure charges and orders the District and the Respondent to enter into this last chance agreement, both sides shall sign this Last Chance Agreement and be bound by the language herein.

4. So long as the Employee complies with the terms herein, she shall return to her regular status and regular job with all benefits and emoluments.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MARIA TAYLOR,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board certified tenure charges of chronic absenteeism, incapacity, and conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured teacher – and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and overwhelmingly warrant the termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner, dismissed the respondent from her tenured position in petitioner's school district, and forwarded a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as that body deems appropriate.

AGENCY DKT NO. 200-7/15

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MARIA TAYLOR,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioner, J. Peter Sokol, Esq.
No appearance by or on behalf of Respondent, Marie Taylor

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on July 27, 2015, through tenure charges of chronic absenteeism, incapacity and conduct unbecoming certified by JanetLynn Dudick, District Administrator for Personnel of the Long Branch School District, together with supporting evidence against Maria Taylor, a tenured teacher in the petitioner's employ. The petitioner provided respondent with written notice of such certification at the respondent's last known address on July 23, 2015.

On July 28, 2015, the Commissioner directed the respondent – via both certified and regular mail – to file an answer to the charges. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would – absent granting of an extension for good cause shown – result in the charges being deemed admitted. The certified mail return receipt card indicates that the July 28, 2015 notice was delivered on August 7, 2015. No reply to the tenure charges was received from or on behalf of respondent.

The certified tenure charges and statement of supporting evidence filed by the petitioner in this matter indicate that respondent was absent from her teaching assignment between September 3, 2012 until June 30, 2013 because of her worker's compensation claim, her use of sick days and her use of urgent business days. The charges also contend that the petitioner was absent from her teaching assignment the entire 2013-2014 school year because of her worker's compensation claim and her use of sick days. Additionally, the charges state that the respondent was absent from her teaching position for the entire 2014-2015 school year because of her medical leaves and absences without permission. Finally, the charges maintain that the Board has made several inquires to the respondent about her health and her ability to return to her teaching position, and – since August 2014 – the respondent has failed to communicate with the Board.

Deeming the allegations to be admitted and noting that respondent has failed to respond to the charges certified against her, the Commissioner finds that petitioner's charges of chronic absenteeism, incapacity and conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member have been proven and overwhelmingly warrant the respondent's dismissal. Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the petitioner, and the respondent is dismissed from her tenured position with the District. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

On or about August 22, 2014, the District served a Notice of Inefficiency on Respondent. With that Notice, Debora R. Weaver, Principal at the State Operated School District for the City of Newark's (District) Lincoln School, filed notice of charges based on inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 against Respondent Elena Brady (Respondent). Then District Superintendent Cami Anderson certified tenure charges against Respondent and filed those charges with the Department of Education on September 18, 2014.

On December 7, 2014, I dismissed those charges in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c). In doing so, I found:

> For the reasons stated herein, I determined that Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the inefficiency charges is properly before me for decision. The Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the tenure inefficiency charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 is granted. Respondent has established that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 does not provide for consideration of her 2012-2013 year summative evaluations for purposes of tenure revocation. The timeline established by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123(c), (d) and (e) specifically requires full implementation of the new evaluation rubric "[b]eginning with the 2013-2014 school year." The regulatory scheme that became effective in March of 2013, as well as guidance issued by the Department of Education supports the finding that the 2012-2013 school year summative evaluations using the evaluation rubric required by TEACHNJ may not be used for purposes of tenure revocation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. The District's pleadings do not include a basis for considering the tenure inefficiency charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.

On March 31, 2015, Debora R. Weaver, Principal at the District's Lincoln School, filed "charges based upon inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 against Respondent. The District served Respondent with an Amended Notice of Inefficiency Charge on or about March 31, 2015. This notice provided in part:

> The above charge is supported by the Statement of Evidence previously submitted under oath by DEBORA R. WEAVER dated August 22, 2014 and filed with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education on or about September 22, 2014.

Respondent filed a written response on April 20, 2015. On May 29, 2015, then District Superintendent Cami Anderson certified amended tenure charges against Respondent and filed those charges with the Department of Education. No new evidence or factual allegations were submitted with the Amended Tenure Charges.

On June 19, 2015, Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss or for Summary Decision with David Hespe, Commissioner of Education. Also on June 19, 2015, Respondent filed an answer to the tenure charges. On June 23, 2015, M.

Kathleen Duncan, the Director of Bureau of Controversies and Disputes advised the parties that:

> ... following receipt of respondent's answer and motion for summary decision or to dismiss on June 19, 2015, the above-captioned tenure charges – which have been docketed as new charges and which are being processed with respect to Section 8 inefficiency charges only – were reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, subject to determination by the arbitrator of the motion for summary decision/to dismiss, and should it be denied, subject to determination by the arbitrator of respondent's defenses and any motions which may be filed with the arbitrator. The arbitrator shall review those charges which are not dismissed as the result of a motion under the preponderance of the evidence standard.

On July 14, 2015, the District filed a brief in Opposition to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss or for Summary Decision. On July 27, 2015, Respondent filed a brief in response to the District's Opposition to its Motion to Dismiss or for Summary Decision.

DISCUSSION

Respondent seeks dismissal of the tenure charges filed against her by the District asserting initially that it is bound by the Opinion and Award dated December 7, 2014 which barred the District from proceeding against her based on Section 8 or any other section of the TEACHNJ Act. Respondent emphasizes that the inefficiency charges here rely upon the exact same facts and the exact same evidence as was included in the initial charges, which were dismissed. Respondent emphasizes that the District has not sought to vacate the December 7, 2014 Award and the time for vacating that Award is long since past.

The District asserts that it filed amended tenure charges for inefficiency against Respondent based upon her "consistent lack of improvement and receipt of poor evaluation ratings of 'ineffective' and 'partially effective.'" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b).

The District emphasizes that when Respondent's Motion to Dismiss was granted, the Motion was limited to the District's then filed tenure charges pursuant to Section 25 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3) and prohibited the District from advancing the charges to arbitration under Section 8 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16) as part of the same proceeding. Now, the District emphasizes the amended tenure charges invoking Section 8 are not part of the same proceeding and that issue was not addressed in the December 7, 2014 Opinion and Award.

As a result, the District has filed these amended tenure charges based on a charge of inefficiency under Section 8 of TEACHNJ because Respondent's evaluations for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years were "ineffective" and "partially effective." The District argues that if it is unable to pursue tenure charges for Respondent or any teacher for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years, Respondent and other similarly situated teachers would get a "free pass" for her performance during this time period.

Initially, Respondent asserts that the District's amended charges are untimely and thus must be dismissed. Assuming for the sake of argument that the District filed new charges, Respondent asserts that those charges have not been filed in a timely manner under either Section 25 or Section 8 of TEACHNJ and thus they must be dismissed. Specifically, Respondent argues that neither the statutory nor the regulatory scheme includes a procedure for the amendment of tenure charges, whether for inefficiency or for conduct unbecoming. Respondent asserts that by its amendment of previously dismissed charges, the District ignores the procedural protections outlined in both the statutory and regulatory scheme and is essentially attempting "an end run" around those procedures. Respondent emphasizes that the notice of tenure charges was initially proffered pursuant to Section 25 in August of 2014 and she filed a statement of position with the State District Superintendent in response in September of 2014. Respondent's Motion to Dismiss was granted on December 7, 2014. The District then had a three month period of time which was consensually extended for three weeks within which the District could have moved to vacate the Award but did not do so and that period expired on or about March 30, 2015. At this juncture, the District has filed "new" charges, that Respondent maintains, are simply a rehash of the same charges of "inefficiency" complete with the same statement of evidence and exhibits despite the fact that those charges have been dismissed.

Respondent argues that whether the current charges are filed pursuant to Section 25 of TEACHNJ or Section 8 of TEACHNJ or both is irrelevant because it is too late for the charges to be brought at all. Because the charges were certified in September of 2014, and the District was required to file charges against Respondent with the Commissioner of Education within thirty (30) days of filing with the State District Superintendent, the current charges are outside that time period and are thus untimely under TEACHNJ.

Respondent asserts further that if the charges are deemed to be filed under Section 8 of TEACHNJ, they are still untimely because the District filed charges with the State District Superintendent on May 29, 2015 based upon the identical facts and allegations as in the previous charges and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13, the District was obligated to vote on whether to file charges under Section 8 within forty-five (45) days of receiving Respondent's response to the charges and then subsequently was required to file those charges with the Commissioner within fifteen (15) days of making its decision. Because it did not do so, Respondent asserts the charges were filed outside the applicable timeframe and thus were untimely. Respondent asserts that the statutory and regulatory timeframes are designed to protect the due process rights of those subject to tenure charges and by belatedly amending its earlier charges, the District violates Respondent's due process rights.

The District contends that the tenure charges were timely filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Noting that Respondent concludes that the State-appointed District Superintendent completed a Certification of Determination outside of the applicable time limit for tenure charges filed under Section 8, the District points out that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13 addresses a board of education's obligation to make a probable cause finding within forty-five (45) days and provides "[i]f the board does not make such a determination within 45 days after receipt of the written charge, the charge shall be deemed to be dismissed and no further proceeding or action shall be taken thereon." The District notes that N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 provides that this time limitation does not begin until Respondent has filed a response to the notice of tenure charges or until the fifteen (15) day time period in which to do so has expired. In this instance, the District points out that Respondent filed a written response to the amended tenure charges on April 20, 2015 so, according to the District, under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(4) the District had forty-five (45) days from April 20, 2015 to make a determination as to the probable cause as to the amended tenure charges. The District points out that it determined that there was probable cause and the State-appointed District Superintendent completed the certification on May 12, 2015, well within the forty-five (45) day limitation.

The TEACHNJ Act does not include an express provision for the amendment of tenure charges filed under Section 8 or Section 25. Respondent would base all time limits on the initial certification of charges in September of 2014. Absent a provision addressing the time for filing amended charges, such amendments must be viewed under the circumstances of their filing. The Commissioner of Education referred the charges to me with the direction that they "have been docketed as new charges." Regardless of the merits or other procedural issues that have arisen out of these charges, they were docketed as if they were new charges and shall be treated as such for purposes of evaluating timeliness.

In this instance, an Amended Notice of Inefficiency Charges was filed on March 31, 2015. Respondent filed a written response on April 20, 2015. The District Superintendent certified those charges and filed the amended tenure charges with the Department of Education on May 29, 2015. This is within forty-five (45) days after the Respondent's response as provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(4) for a probable cause finding. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(6) permits the State District Superintendent an additional fifteen (15) days to file charges with the Commissioner of Education. In this instance, the District's Superintendent filed charges with the Commissioner of Education within the permitted forty-five (45) days. Accordingly, I find the amended tenure charges of inefficiency timely.

Respondent raises three alternate theories revolving around the fact that Respondent's initial tenure charges for inefficiency were dismissed in the December 7, 2014 Award. Respondent argues that the Law of the Case Doctrine, the doctrine of res judicata and the Entire Controversy Doctrine all require dismissal of the District's amended charges.

Respondent would rely upon the Law of the Case doctrine which "[r]equires judges to respect unreversed decisions made during the trial by the same court or a higher court regarding questions of law." Sisler v. Gannett Co., 222 N.J. Super. 153 (App. Div. 1987) (citing State v. Reldan, 100 N.J. 187, 203 (1985)), Respondent emphasizes that the Law of the Case doctrine avoids re-litigation of the same issue. In this instance, Respondent emphasizes the issue has already been decided so the amended charges should be controlled by the December 7, 2014 Opinion and Award.

Respondent argues that the District's effort to proceed under Section 8 of the TEACHNJ Act was rejected unequivocally in the December 7, 2014 Award. Nonetheless, Respondent asserts that the District has disregarded this ruling and certified amended charges against her based upon the same facts and occurrences that were initially rejected. Respondent argues that the fact that the District's claim has been rejected in this case and has not been challenged through an action to vacate should be sufficient to end this case.

In the event that the charges are treated as "new" charges, Respondent argues that they are barred as a matter of law under the doctrine of res judicata. Noting that res judicata contemplates that once a controversy has been "fairly litigated and determined", it may not be re-litigated. Respondent emphasizes that res judicata is a mandatory doctrine that must be applied to bar a party from re-litigating an issue that has already been fully disposed of in a new case. Citing Elkouri and Elkouri, How Arbitration Works (6th Ed. 2003), Respondent notes that the "issuance of an arbitration award generally bars any subsequent court or arbitration action on the merits of the same event." In this instance, since the charges have been dismissed, Respondent argues res judicata requires that the new charges be dismissed because the underlying facts have not changed. Further, Respondent argues whether the current charges are characterized as "amended" charges or "new" charges the issue has been litigated, the parties are the same and both sets of charges arise out of the same transaction or occurrence as the dismissed charges, thus requiring their dismissal under the doctrine of res judicata.

Respondent also argues that the District's amended charges are barred by the entire controversy doctrine, which bars the District from bringing "amended" or "new" charges based upon the same facts and occurrences at this point in the proceedings. Emphasizing that the entire controversy doctrine requires that courts determine an entire controversy in a single judicial proceeding whenever possible including the joinder of related claims and persons, Respondent emphasizes that New Jersey Court Rule 4:30-A provides in pertinent part:

> [n]on-joinder of claims required to be joined by the entire controversy doctrine shall result in the preclusion of the omitted claims to the extent required by the entire controversy doctrine.

Because the District has fully litigated the tenure charges based upon Respondent's evaluation for 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years, Respondent asserts it cannot now re-litigate the case. Citing Arbitrator Gerber's decision in In the Matter of Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Leonard Yarborough and School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 69-3/15 (June 8, 2015, Arb. Gerber), Respondent emphasizes that he held that when tenure charges based upon Section 25 were dismissed, the entire controversy doctrine precluded the District from filing new charges based upon Section 8.

Turning to the question of whether inefficiency charges for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years may be brought under Section 8, Respondent argues that under TEACHNJ inefficiency tenure charges may be brought only under Section 25. Therefore, the District's charges must be dismissed. Respondent cites the guide to the TEACHNJ Act issued by the Department of Education, which it contends provides that "inefficiency" charges are governed exclusively by Section 25. Among the dramatic changes to the tenure revocation process recounted by Respondent, the substitution of the former ninety (90) day improvement period during which teachers were provided notice of "inefficiency" and an opportunity to improve was replaced with a new Section 25 specifically addressing charges of inefficiency where teachers receive ineffective or partially effective annual summative ratings in two consecutive years. As a result of this statutory change, Respondent emphasizes the new regulatory framework was developed and partially implemented during the 2012-2013 school year and finalized with the beginning of the 2013-2014 school year. Respondent asserts that the tradeoff which provides teachers who may be subject to removal based upon only two years of inadequate performance with a quick and more limited review in exchange for a well-defined, streamlined discharge procedure, transparent and uniform observation and evaluation guidelines, processes and procedures and transparently uniform tenure removal procedures for claims of inefficiency.

Respondent asserts that under TEACHNJ, the legislature created a specific and exclusive definition of teacher "inefficiency" and provided a detailed statutory scheme for the filing of tenure revocation charges based upon that definition. At the same time, when the Department of Education implemented new regulations under TEACHNJ covering the filing and processing of tenure charges, it created a track for "inefficiency charges" and a separate track for other charges including "conduct unbecoming" and other misconduct charges. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Respondent emphasizes that there is no provision for the filing of inefficiency charges under Section 8 rather than under Section 25.

Respondent cites the guidance issued by the Department of Education regarding the impact of the new law on "tenure decisions" addressing whether the summative ratings for the 2012-2013 year would count towards tenure decisions. Respondent cites the guidance, which provides "no evaluation outcomes in the 2012-2013 school year will impact tenure decisions. 2013-2014 is the first year when the statewide system will be in place and the first year when the summative rating "clock" (i.e.: teachers needing to be rated at least effective for two of three years) will start." Respondent emphasizes that under the new limited scope of review of teacher evaluations and the limitations on defenses included in Section 23 of TEACHNJ, teachers are no longer able to challenge an evaluation which complies with the proper procedures. Respondent argues that by seeking to file under Section 8, the District would interpret N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 17.3 as optional. In other words, Respondent asserts that under the District's theory, if it fails to comply with the applicable procedures required to file charges under Section 25, it may ignore that section completely. Respondent suggests that if this is the case, the legislature's efforts to streamline tenure proceedings are ineffective because in creating TEACHNJ the legislature eliminated the ninety (90) day improvement plan previously included in Section 8 for purposes of providing teachers with notice and an opportunity to cure their performance. Respondent points out that a ninety (90) day improvement plan is superfluous with the new "corrective action plan" required by TEACHNJ. In other words, using Section 8 to process inefficiency charges would allow the District to ignore its obligation to have a CAP without affording the teacher a ninety (90) day notice period and opportunity to improve their performance.

Turning to arbitral precedent, Respondent notes the District's efforts to amend charges dismissed under Section 25 in order to pursue them under Section 8. Respondent emphasizes that the majority of arbitrators have rejected this argument. Respondent cites In the Matter of the Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Ursula Whitehurst and the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No.: 282-9/14, (Arbitrator R. Simmelkjaer), In the Matter of the Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Neil Thomas, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Dkt. No.: 244-9/14 (Arbitrator R. Simmelkjaer), In the Matter of the Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Sandra Cheatham, School District of the City of Newark, Docket No.: 226-8/14 (Arbitrator

S. Bluth October 16, 2014), In the Matter of the Tenure Charges Against Elena Brady, State Operated School District for the City of Newark, Dkt. No. 270-9/14 (Arbitrator J. Klein, December 7, 2014), In the Matter of the Tenure Charges Against Linda Kelly-Gramble, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket Nos. 226-9/14 (Arbitrator M. Pecklers).[1]

Relying upon the principle of statutory construction that where two statutes address a subject and one statute addresses the subject with specificity and the other statute deals with the subject generally, the specific statute controls, Respondent asserts that the purpose of TEACHNJ is to separate inefficiency charges from other types of charges and keep them procedurally and substantively distinct from charges brought under Section 8. Respondent points out that Section 25 requires the District to comply with the new evaluation system. Respondent asserts that there is no provision for inefficiency charges to proceed to arbitration under Section 8 as a fallback or alternative or for a district to disregard the requirements in Section 25. Giving meaning to all words and phrases, Respondent points out that there is no evidence that the legislature intended to revamp the tenure revocation system for inefficiency and then allow school districts to bring charges under Section 8 if they were unsuccessful under the revamped Section 25.

Respondent emphasizes that is the District sought to file statutory tenure charges against her on statutory grounds other than inefficiency, it was free to do so last year in accordance with the requirements of Section 8 but it did not do so. Respondent contends that the District is not free to file Section 25 charges, lose and then seek to re-file the same charges under Section 8.

The District argues that the Law of the Case doctrine is discretionary and does not apply in the case of an "ambiguous or uncertain decision" and applies usually only "where a judge must decide whether a ruling made during one stage of the action is binding throughout the remainder of the trial." Sisler v. Gannett Co., Inc., 222 N.J. Super. 153, 159 (App. Div. 1987), cert. denied, 110 N.J. 304 (1988) (citing Procanik v. Cillo, 206 N.J. Super. 270, 293 (Law Div. 1985)). In this case, the initial tenure charges against Respondent were dismissed on a procedural issue regarding Section 25 of TEACHNJ without review in support of the charges or analyze the legal sufficiency of the District's legal position. Further the Opinion and Award in this matter was ambiguous with regard to using the authority of Section 8 to bring charges, holding only that the charges could not proceed to an analysis under Section 8 in this proceeding. Because the substance of the District's underlying charges has not been litigated, if the matter proceeds to a hearing on the merits, it will be the first opportunity for the parties to argue their positions with respect to the subject of the allegations against the [1] Respondent provided additional examples of awards issued in August of 2015. Because the District did not have an opportunity to address those more recent awards, I do not address them.

Respondent. Accordingly, the District asserts that this issue has not been argued let alone re-litigated. For these reasons, the District asserts that the Law of the Case doctrine is inappropriate and should not be applied in this case.

The District asserts that the doctrine of res judicata does not apply to preclude litigation of the current charges because the issue has not been litigated in a prior proceeding and the doctrine of res judicata applies only to a valid and final adjudication on the merits of a claim. Restatement (Second) of Judgments, § 27, (1982). Because the merits of the amended tenure charges against Respondent have not been adjudicated, the defense of res judicata does not apply, according to the District. Because the charge under Section 8 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16) was not addressed on the merits, the District maintains that the Section 8 charge has not been adjudicated. The District argues that even if it is bound by the December 7, 2014 Opinion and Award, that decision does not preclude it from bringing the amended tenure charges because that decision did not address the charge now presented under Section 8.

Assuming for the sake of argument that the merits of Respondent's inefficiency charge had been litigated, pursuant to § 28 of Restatement (Second) of Judgments, supra., re-litigation of the issue in a subsequent action between the parties is not precluded in the following circumstance:

> The issue is one of law and (a) the two actions involve claims that are substantially unrelated, or (b) a new determination is warranted in order to take account of an intervening change in the applicable legal context or otherwise to avoid inequitable administration of the laws...

The District argues that unless it is able to proceed with tenure charges under Section 8, the evaluations during the 2012-2013 period cannot be used at all for purposes of tenure charges. This result, according to the District, would result in an inequitable administration of TEACHNJ, which was promulgated to streamline the tenure charge process. The District also notes that absent TEACHNJ the District would simply have charged Respondent under Section 8. As a result of the enactment of Section 25, the District points out that the evaluations of 2012-2013 are rendered meaningless. So, the District argues that pursuant to Restatement (Second) of Judgments, supra., § 28, this matter must proceed to a hearing even if the issues presented here have already been litigated and received a final judgment.

The District asserts that the entire controversy doctrine does not apply to preclude the amended tenure charges. Emphasizing that the previous charges against Respondent were dismissed based upon the arbitrator's interpretation of TEACHNJ, which she determined does not allow for evaluations from the 2012-2013 school year to be considered in tenure charge matters under Section 25.

The District maintains that this is not a conclusive determination of the legal controversy between the parties and dismissal of these charges would not achieve an equitable result because the District would be unable to bring tenure charges against any teachers based upon their poor evaluations in the 2012-2013 school year. Further, the District asserts that the tenure charges do not constitute duplicative litigation because the merits of the charges have not been heard. The District maintains that this is not a situation where the District lost on the merits of the previous tenure charges and now seeks to re-file.

The District asserts that the arbitrator has jurisdiction to decide this matter for inefficiency under Section 8 of TEACHNJ and inefficiency tenure charges are not limited to being filed only under Section 25 of TEACHNJ. The District asserts that the contention that the legislature intended that inefficiency charges can proceed only under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 is tantamount to arguing that the legislature intended to hand poorly performing teachers a "free pass" for two years after the effective date of the Act. The District notes that this has been rejected by several arbitrators. (IMO the Tenure Hearing of Henchey and the School District of the Borough of New Milford, Bergen County, Agency Dkt. No. 8-15 (January 3, 2015)).

The District also notes that arbitrators who dismiss charges under Section 25 have suggested dismissal might not have been required if the charges had been filed under Section 8. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Williams, Agency Dkt. No. 501-14 (December 20, 2014)). Citing the Henchey and Williams awards, the District asserts that where Section 25 of TEACHNJ is inapplicable, a school district must be permitted to proceed with an inefficiency charge in an appropriate case and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 provides a statutory basis to do so. The District points out that since TEACHNJ's adoption, arbitrators have considered charges of inefficiency in non-mandatory cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. IMO Tenure Hearings of Lawrence E. Hawkins and the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Dkt. No. 243-10/13 (March 10, 2014). The District points out that under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 the arbitrator is required to determine whether the evidence in the record presented supports the charge of inefficiency and the Commissioner had the authority to determine procedural issues pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. To that end, the District cites Pugliese v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Dkt. No. A-0857-13T2; Chavez v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Dkt. No. A-1012-13T2 (App. Div. May 19, 2015), which held that the Commissioner must determine the appropriate standards to be used by arbitrators when adjudicating tenure hearings. In this instance, the District points out that on June 23, 2015 the parties were advised that the matter was to proceed based upon Section 8 inefficiency charges only.

The Law of the Case doctrine is a discretionary principle of law designed to prevent parties from relitigating issues that have already been decided. In the December 7, 2014 Award, I found that Section 25 did not allow the District's revocation of tenure charges to go forward based upon summative evaluations for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years. In this amended charge, the District seeks to move forward on the same inefficiency charges, but under Section 8 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16). The December 7, 2014 Opinion and Award provided that there was "no basis for proceeding under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16" based upon the pleadings, thus did not reach the question of whether the District could have proceeded under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 had that been included in the initial proceeding. Because the question of whether the District could proceed to bring tenure charges for inefficiency against Respondent under Section 8 was not directly addressed, I find that the Law of the Case doctrine does not apply to preclude a discussion of its application to the inefficiency charges brought against Respondent.

The doctrine of res judicata provides an affirmative defense that prohibits the same parties from "litigating a second lawsuit on the same claim...that could have been—but was not—raised in the first suit." Elkouri & Elkouri, How Arbitration Works (6th Ed. 2003) p. 387. Res judicata applies where the claim is fully disposed of in the first case. Here, the issue previously decided was whether the tenure charges of inefficiency for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years could proceed under Section 25. Now, the District seeks to address the same charges under Section 8. Since the initial case decided only whether the charge of inefficiency could proceed under Section 25, the matter has not been fully decided and is not subject to dismissal under the doctrine of res judicata.

New Jersey Court Rule 4:30a provides, "[n]on-joinder of claims required to be joined by the entire controversy doctrine shall result in the preclusion of the omitted claims to the extent required by the entire controversy doctrine." The Entire Controversy Doctrine requires that courts determine an entire controversy in a single judicial proceeding whenever possible. Arbitrator Gerber addressed the application of the Entire Controversy Doctrine to instances where the District has amended initially dismissed tenure charges to seek tenure revocation based upon inefficiency under Section 8.

> The Entire Controversy Doctrine embodies the principle that the adjudication of a legal controversy should occur in one litigation at which all of the claims and defenses of the parties should be presented. When an action is brought, alternative causes of action should be included in the initial pleadings. There was nothing to prevent the District from alternatively pleading a count of inefficiency under Section 8 in its initial papers.

IMO Tenure Charge of Inefficiency of Leonard Yarborough and School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No. 69-3/15 (June 8, 2015, Arb. Gerber), p. 16.

In this case, during the initial pleadings, the District argued that it should, in the alternative, be permitted to proceed under Section 8, but did not include it in its pleadings or amend its pleadings to include tenure revocation under Section 8. With the amended charges, the District seeks a second chance to pursue the exact same charges of inefficiency against Respondent as were dismissed under Section 25. The charges of inefficiency were dismissed pursuant to Section 25 in large part because the statute did not contemplate that such charges would be brought before the new procedural process to evaluate tenure charges for inefficiency was implemented. In this instance, the District seeks to apply those same standards pursuant to Section 8. The District points out that the December 7, 2014 Award was not a "conclusive determination of the legal controversy" and thus the doctrine does not apply here. As noted previously, the District could have included Section 8 in its initial pleadings. The District has not proffered a reason why it did not do so. As the District has pointed out, the objectives of entire controversy doctrine include encouraging "the conclusive and comprehensive determination of a legal controversy" and promotion of "judicial economy and efficiency by avoiding fragmented, multiple and duplicative litigation." Under these circumstances, the District's amended tenure charges have not met the objectives of the entire controversy doctrine. By not including Section 8 in its initial pleadings, the District deprived the parties of the opportunity to receive a conclusive and comprehensive determination of whether the tenure charges of inefficiency against Respondent could properly proceed to hearing. Instead, when its initial charges pursuant to Section 25 were dismissed, it filed amended charges under Section 8, seeking a second chance to pursue the same charges of inefficiency against Respondent. Accordingly, I find that the entire controversy doctrine precludes further consideration of the amended tenure charges against Respondent.

The District asserts that unless it is allowed to pursue tenure charges pursuant to Section 8, it is between a proverbial rock and a hard place with respect to its ability to pursue charges of inefficiency for the 2012-2013 school year. The December 7, 2014 Award found that the 2012-2013 school year could not be used to pursue charges of inefficiency under Section 25. According to the District, if it cannot pursue inefficiency charges against Respondent for the 2012-2013 school year pursuant to Section 8, it has no vehicle for addressing Respondent's poor performance for that school year and Respondent will be given a "free pass." The District did have the opportunity to address Respondent's alleged inefficiency for the 2012-2013 school year under Section 8, together with any other alleged performance issues under the standards for inefficiency that were in effect prior to the implementation of TEACHNJ in the 2013-2014 school year. As Arbitrator Licata observed, "boards of education still had the ability to take action prior to the commencement of the 2013-2014 school year for inefficiency under Section 8." IMO Tenure Charges Against Lawrence Henchey and the School District of the Borough of New Milford, Bergen County, (Arb. Licata, January 6, 2015) p. 4. That the District did not pursue such a charge under Section 8 at the time does not mean that it was deprived of its ability to charge Respondent with inefficiency for the 2012-2013 school year.

Accordingly, for all of the reasons discussed above, I enter the following:

AWARD

Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the charges is granted in its entirety. Respondent Elena Brady shall be reinstated to her teaching position with the State Operated School District of Newark with full back pay, benefits and seniority.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 13, 2015, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13. This matter was initially transmitted to the OAL under docket number EDU 17178-13. An initial decision was rendered under that docket number on January 13, 2015. However, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL "for complete development of the record, and a determination of petitioner's tenure and seniority rights as of the RIF in April 2013.

A telephone prehearing was conducted on May 14, 2015. A status conference was held on June 2, 2015 during which time the parties advised the matter was resolved. On July 30, 2015 the parties submitted a copy of the signed Settlement Agreement and Board Resolution, which is attached hereto for reference.

Having reviewed the contents of the attached Settlement Agreement and General Release, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures and/or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this settlement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the stipulation should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

On May 14, 2015, the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth ("Board") referred certified tenure charges against teaching staff member Ebrahim Haddad. On May 29, 2015, Respondent Haddad answered the tenure charges. After review, the Department of Education appointed the undersigned, pursuant to P.L. 2012, c.26 to hear and evaluate the tenure charges.

The parties, determining to amicably resolve all disputed claims and severe their employment relationship entered into a

Stipulation of Settlement, Resignation and Release, attached hereto as Exhibit 1. Attached hereto as Exhibit 2 is the Resolution adapted by the Board at its meeting on August 20, 2015 approving the settlement and resignation, certified by School Business Administrator/Board Secretary Harold E. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST EBRAHIM HADDAD,	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
	AGENCY DKT. NO.: 111-5/15
BY THE ELIZABETH BOARD OF EDUCATION, UNION COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.	BEFORE CAROL F. LASKIN, ESQ., ARBITRATOR
	TENURE HEARING
	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT, RESIGNATION AND RELEASE

This Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is entered into and effective as of the 20th day of August, 2015 (the "Effective Date"), by and between the Elizabeth School District Board of Education ("Board") and Ebrahim Haddad ("Mr. Haddad" or "Employee").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, the Board is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, which is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of said school district; and

WHEREAS, the Board has its administrative offices located at 500 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey 07028; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Haddad, a tenured teacher employed by the Board, has his current address located at 47 Woodland Avenue, North Brunswick, New Jersey 08902-2974; and

WHEREAS, on or about April 15, 2015, Olga Hugelmeyer, Superintendent of Schools, filed Sworn Tenure Charges against Mr. Haddad, together with a Sworn Statement of Evidence in support of the charges, with the Board; and

WHEREAS, the parties, wishing to resolve the tenure charges presently pending against Mr. Haddad without the need for further litigation, hereby stipulate to settle the same, subject to the terms and conditions as set forth herein; and does not wish for the Board to consider and/or certify the subject tenure charges but intends to resign effective April 13, 2016 in furtherance of retirement; and

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereby agree, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, as follows:

1. TENURE CHARGES TO BE ABANDONED/NO FURTHER BOARD ACTION

The Board agrees that upon execution of the within Agreement by the parties and Mr. Haddad's fulfillment of the obligations as set forth herein, that the subject tenure charges shall be abandoned and that no further action shall be initiated by the Board regarding the underlying charges. The Board fully reserves all rights in the event this Agreement is breached by Mr. Haddad, as well as with respect to any third party claims that may be made against the Board as a result of any acts and/or omissions by Mr. Haddad during his employment with the Board.

2. IRREVOCABLE RESIGNATION FROM EMPLOYMENT

Mr. Haddad has tendered his irrevocable resignation effective April 13, 2016, a copy of which is attached hereto as Attachment A, from all employment with the Board, subject only to the Board's fulfillment of its obligations as set forth herein. In the interim, Mr. Haddad shall be on an administrative/medical leave, with pay and benefits, through April 13, 2016. Mr. Haddad will be required to supply, periodically throughout this leave, the necessary medical documentation necessitating the need for same. Mr. Haddad agrees that he will not seek any future employment or consultant relationship with the Board in perpetuity and that the Board has no obligation, contractual or otherwise, to re-hire or re-employ him.

3. RELEASE

In exchange for the above consideration, Mr. Haddad, his heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, up until the date of execution of the instant Agreement by both parties, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Board, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers and administrators, its attorneys, agents and employees, personally and officially, as well as their successors, and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys' fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this Agreement, and any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions; Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act; the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Equal Pay Act; the Workers' Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the Employer-Employee Relations Act; any collective negotiations agreement; any common law claim and any and all other claims, that could be initiated in any venue, for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim. Specifically exempted from this release are any claims arising under the Workers' Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq., and for health insurance continuation coverage under and pursuant to Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (referred to hereinabove as "COBRA"). This release does not limit Mr. Haddad's right to seek indemnification, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, with respect to a claim filed against him for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as an employee of the Board. The parties are not aware of the existence of any such claims. Mr. Haddad represents that as of the date of this Agreement he has not filed and does not intend to file a Workmen's Compensation or disability claim.

It is expressly understood that the arrangement herein is predicated exclusively upon the special circumstances of this matter and shall not be construed to represent any policy or procedure of the Board.

4. NO ADMISSIONS

The execution of this Agreement does not constitute an admission or acknowledgement by Mr. Haddad or the Board of any wrongful or otherwise improper conduct, nor as to the liability of any party. The parties mutually acknowledge that this matter has been resolved in good faith, and that this Agreement is entered into solely for the purpose of avoiding the time and expense attendant to any further litigation.

5. COMPENSATION/BENEFITS

The Board agrees to pay to Mr. Haddad his regular salary, less all normal payroll deductions and withholdings, through April 13, 2016. Mr. Haddad agrees that he will remain on administrative/medical leave through that date, and that his accumulated sick days will be utilized during this period. Mr. Haddad agrees that he will not seek reimbursement for any remaining unused personal, sick and/or vacation days. Mr. Haddad waives any right he may have to any other compensation from the Board of any kind.

Upon the effective date of Mr. Haddad's resignation, he shall be entitled to no further compensation, emolument of employment or fringe benefit of any kind and specifically waives his right to same, with the exception of any benefits to which he may lawfully be entitled to under the Workers' Compensation Act or COBRA.

Upon the effective date of Mr. Haddad's resignation in furtherance of resignation and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Mr. Haddad shall be entitled to purchase, at his own cost and expense, the insurance coverage then in effect for teachers in the school district.

6. NON-DISPARAGEMENT

The parties and their agents shall refrain from public negative comments regarding each other, and each other's employees and/or agents. However, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to limit the Board and its agents' obligation to provide accurate information in response to legitimate requests for public information, nor to provide information requested by various State Agencies, including but not limited to the State Department of Education; the State Board of Examiners and its agents, including copies of the Tenure Hearing documents, witness list and information, proposed exhibits and work-product related thereto; the Division of Pensions and Benefits; and the Unemployment Compensation Board and/or their agents.

7. INQUIRIES

The Board agrees, through its Administration, to respond to post-employment inquiries regarding Mr. Haddad by providing basic work history such as confirming the dates of Mr. Haddad's employment within the school district, the amount of Mr. Haddad's salary in the final year of his employment, the positions that Mr. Haddad held within the District, and the date of Mr. Haddad's resignation. However, nothing herein shall be deemed to limit the Board's actions in compliance with the Open Public Records Act, or its obligation to respond fully and accurately to any and all inquiries from State agencies such as, without limitation, the Public Employees Retirement System ("PERS"); TPAF; for example.

8. REQUIREMENTS PURSUANT TO N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6

A. Mr. Haddad was charged with conduct unbecoming based on inappropriate interactions with students.

B. Both parties have freely consented to the within Agreement, as evidenced by their respective signatures below.

C. Both parties have had the benefit of independent legal counsel and have been fully apprised of their rights and obligations, and have indicated their full understanding and acceptance of same, by their respective signatures below.

D. The within settlement will serve the public interest by avoiding the cost of further litigation guarantying the desired result.

E. Mr. Haddad has been advised by his attorney that the Commissioner of Education and the Superintendent of Schools may refer the within matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of his certification.

F. The parties agree that nothing in the within Agreement shall restrict access to information or records deemed public by law or result in misrepresentation of the fact that Mr. Haddad's separation from service was incident to the prosecution of Tenure Charges against him by the Board. The Board and its agents shall cooperate fully and honestly in responding to requests for information from government agencies and in response to requests from the public for information that it is legally required to provide.

G. The Board has formally approved this Settlement Agreement, subject only to approval by the Arbitrator. A certified resolution is annexed hereto as Attachment B.

9. NO RETALIATION

Mr. Haddad shall take no retaliatory action of any kind against any student, parent, staff, Board member or agent of the Board, and shall cooperate fully and in good faith regarding any inquiries from colleges and/or employers that may be addressed to him regarding his former students.

10. ENTRY ONTO BOARD PROPERTY

Mr. Haddad may enter Board Property when working with a private entity that has Board approval for use of a facility for a particular event, or attendance at a venue or event that is open to the general public. In all other instances, Mr. Haddad shall first receive prior permission from the Superintendent of Schools before entering onto Board Property.

11. SURRENDER OF BOARD PROPERTY

A. Mr. Haddad shall surrender all school keys and property in his possession to the Superintendent of Schools or her designee.

B. The Superintendent of Schools shall arrange an appointment for Mr. Haddad to retrieve his personal property, if necessary.

12. BOARD APPROVAL

This Agreement is subject to Board approval. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.

13. ASSENT TO TERMS

A. Mr. Haddad hereby acknowledges that he entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of his rights and that he does so without duress and of his own free will and volition, and that he has consulted with independent legal counsel prior to executing same.

B. Mr. Haddad acknowledges that he was given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement for a period of at least twenty-one (21) days, and was given seven (7) days from the execution of this document to revoke this Agreement by delivering written notification to Stephen M. Bacigalupo, II, Esq., Schwartz Simon Edelstein & Celso, LLC, 100 South Jefferson Road, Whippany, New Jersey 07981.

14. SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS

This Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective successors and assigns.

15. ENTIRE AGREEMENT

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matters herein, and supersedes and integrates any and all prior representations, negotiations, discussions, understandings and agreements, whether oral or written. This Agreement shall not be amended, changed or modified except in a writing signed by all parties. Each party acknowledges that the other party, nor any agent or attorney of the other party, have made any promise, representation or warranty whatsoever, express or implied, not contained in this Agreement to induce it to execute this Agreement.

16. SEVERABILITY

In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, then the remaining portions of this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect, except that the provisions of Paragraph 1 hereinabove shall be deemed to be material and of the essence of this Agreement. Should the provisions set forth in Paragraph 1 be compromised, then the entire Agreement shall be deemed to be null and void and the Board shall be free to proceed with appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including the further prosecution of Tenure Charges.

17. GOVERNING LAW

This Agreement and all provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the signatures and/or seals of the parties or their duly authorized representatives have been set forth on the dates indicated below:

N.W., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, T.W.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PINE HILL, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the residency determination of the respondent Board that his son, T.W., was ineligible for continued enrollment in Pine Hill schools. Respondent's determination was based on information provided by T.W. and his mother during a disciplinary hearing in February of 2015. Both T.W. and his mother advised the Board that T.W. and his father – N.W. – resided in Philadelphia, and took a train to New Jersey each morning to board a school bus at a relative's house. Petitioner contended that he has custody of his son from Wednesday to Sunday, and that he and T.W. share a room at his brother's home in Pine Hill. The Board sought to have T.W. removed from Pine Hill schools, and sought reimbursement of tuition for the period of his ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that he is domiciled within the school district; in this case, N.W. failed to produce any evidence that he was domiciled in Pine Hill; petitioner's driver's license lists his home address as Philadelphia; and, during a disciplinary hearing, both T.W. and his mother told Pine Hill's superintendent that T.W. lives in Philadelphia and takes the train to New Jersey every day for school. The ALJ concluded that the weight of the evidence indicates that during the period in question, N.W. and his son resided in Philadelphia. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed the determination of the Board that T.W. was not domiciled in the Pine Hill school district, and ordered that petitioner reimburse the Board tuition at the rate of $84.24 per day for the period from February 6, 2015 through the remainder of the 2014-2015 school year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion that the petitioner's son was not entitled to a free public education in Pine Hill schools. The Commissioner ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $7,160.40 for tuition costs incurred during the 85 days of T.W.'s ineligible attendance in Pine Hill schools. The petition was dismissed.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PINE HILL, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1] The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of Pine Hill for the 2014-2015 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during this time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Pine Hill. The ALJ ordered that petitioner reimburse the Board in the amount of $84.24 per day from February 6, 2015 for the remainder of the 2014-2015 school year. Although the ALJ did not calculate the total amount of tuition owed to the Board, a review of the record indicates that there were 85 days of ineligible attendance by the minor child from February 6, 2015 through the end of the 2014-2015 school year. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $7,160.40 ($84.24 per day for 85 days), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $7,160.40 for tuition costs incurred during the time period that T.W. was ineligible to attend school in Pine Hill. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

For Respondent:

Dr. Kenneth Kozcur, Superintendant of Schools for Pine Hill School District, has been employed by the Pine Hill School District for thirty-two years. He testified that there was a disciplinary hearing involving T.W. in February of 2015. T.W. and his mother appeared before the Board in connection with the disciplinary matter. At that time, T.W.'s mother advised Dr. Kozcur that neither T.W. nor his father live in Pine Hill and that they reside in Philadelphia. She told Dr. Kozcur that they leave Philadlephia at 5:00 a.m. every day and take the speedline to New Jersey to get on a school bus at a relatives house. Dr. Kozcur testified that T.W. told him that he lives in Philadlephia and takes the train to get to school every day. He testified that the cost of attending school in the district is $84.24 per day.

Kathleen M. Klemick, is the principal at Pine Hill Middle School, where T.W. attended school. She testified that the District initially had some concerns regarding T.W.'s residency, but she recived a letter from Christine Barksdale in September of 2014 advising her that T.W. and his father N.W. reside with her and her husband in Pine Hill. The letter further advised that N.W. has custody of T.W. from Sunday to Wednesday. She testified that when an issue arose with respect to the disciplininary matter with T.W., the mother came forward and advised them that the child did not live in the District. The father did not provide any evidence of residency in response to their letter seeking to discontinue T.W.'s enrollment in the District.

For petitioner:

N.W. testified that he lives with his brother and sister-in-law, in Pine Hill, N.J. He testified that he has custody of his son, T.W. from Wednesday to Sunday and T.W.'s mother, who lives in Philadelphia, has custody from Sunday through Wednesday. He testified that his driver's license contains an address in Philadelphia and that "he just never changed it." He testified that he is an apprentice in Philadelphia, and uses his employer's address for employment purposes. He testified that he does not pay any taxes so he does not list a home address on a W-2 or anything else for tax purposes. He had no proof of residency at the purported Pine Hill residence. He stated that he and his son share a room at his brother's home in Pine Hill. He testified that he often stays with his girlfriend in Philadelphia. He stated that T.W. was expelled from the charter school he was attending in Philadelphia and T.W.'s mother does not like him going to school in New Jersey, so she told the District that he and T.W. did not reside in Pine Hill, N.J. He had no other testimony or evidence of residency in Pine Hill, New Jersey.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACTS in this matter:

1. The Pine Hill Board of Education had good cause to question the residency of T.W. after T.W.'s mother told the superintendent that T.W. and his father lived in Philadelphia, PA.

2. During a meeting regarding a disciplinary issue with T.W., T.W., who is twelve-years-old told the superintendent that he is living in Philadelphia and takes the train to school in New Jersey every day.

3. The appellant was unable to produce any evidence that he and his son do in fact live in Pine Hill, New Jersey.

4. The appellant's driver's license lists his home address as Philadelphia. The appellant had no documentation which indicated a mailing address or residency for him or his son in Pine Hill, New Jersey.

5. I FIND that neither T.W., nor his son live in Pine Hill, N.J.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

A student is eligible to attend a school free of charge if the student is domiciled within the school district. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it after being absent from the home and has no present intent of moving from the home, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). Domicile may also be defined as a residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

Consideration in proving residency for purposes of establishing eligibility for school district placement is found at N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4(a),

> (a) A district board of education shall accept a combination of any of the following or similar forms of documentation from persons attempting to demonstrate a student's eligibility for enrollment in the school district:
>
> 1. Property tax bills, deeds, contracts of sale, leases, mortgages, signed letters from landlords and other evidence of property ownership, tenancy or residency;
>
> 2. Voter registrations, licenses, permits, financial account information, utility bills, delivery receipts, and other evidence of personal attachment to a particular location;
> . . .

> 4. Receipts, bills, cancelled checks, insurance claims or payments, and other evidence of expenditures demonstrating personal attachment to a particular location, or, where applicable, to support of the student;
>
> . . .
>
> 6. Affidavits, certifications and sworn attestations pertaining to statutory criteria for school attendance, from the parent, guardian, person keeping an "affidavit student," adult student, person(s) with whom a family is living, or others as appropriate;
>
> . . .
>
> 8. Any other business record or document issued by a governmental entity.
>
> (b) A district board of education may accept forms of documentation not listed in (a) above, and shall not exclude from consideration any documentation or information presented by a person seeking to enroll a student.
> (c) A district board of education shall consider the totality of information and documentation offered by an applicant, and shall not deny enrollment based on failure to provide a particular form of documentation, or a particular subset of documents, without regard to other evidence presented.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) sets forth the right of a student to a free public education, which in pertinent parts states:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under twenty years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]
>
> . . .
> (a) A student over five and under twenty years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

CONCLUSION

Based on all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the weight of the evidence, which includes portions of appellant's testimony, indicates that during the 2015 school year, appellant and his son resided in Philadelphia, PA and did not reside in Pine Hill, NJ.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the determination of the Pine Hill Board of Education that T.W. is not domiciled in the Pine Hill School District for the 2015 School Year, is AFFIRMED.

It is further ORDERED that the Pine Hill Board of Education be entitled to tuition reimbursement from appellant T.W. from February 6, 2015 for the remainder of the school year in the amount of $84.24 per day.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Re: G.A., on behalf of minor child, N.P. v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY, AGENCY DKT. NO. 202-7/15

Dear Parties:

Upon review of the Petition of Appeal filed in connection with the above captioned matter – and based upon the Board's failure to submit an Answer to the petition – I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioner.

On July 31, 2015. G.A. filed a Petition of Appeal in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1 et seq. claiming that her minor child, N.P., was entitled to attend school in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq., as both she and her child have continued to reside at the same address in the city of Elizabeth since 2010. A copy of the Petition of Appeal was served upon the Board Secretary via facsimile as per N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1(a)2 on July 31, 2015, together with an acknowledgment of filing and notice that an Answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because the Board failed to respond to the initial notice, on August 21, 2015, a second and final notice was sent to the Board Secretary via certified and regular mail. The second and final notice clearly indicated that, absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition of Appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and the matter may be decided on a summary decision basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). Having received no response from the Board, an amended second and final notice – with a copy to the Board attorney – was sent to the Board Secretary via certified and regular mail on September 2, 2015. Although both return receipt cards were returned to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes with signatures confirming delivery of the notices, the Board has failed to respond to the Petition to date.

Accordingly, petitioner's claim that her minor child, N.P., is entitled to attend school in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. is deemed admitted by the Board. The Board is hereby ordered to continue to admit N.P. into its public school system, free of charge, so long as there is no change in circumstances that would alter that entitlement.*

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 18, 2012, a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. On December 19, 2012, the matter was assigned to the Honorable Mumtaz Bari-Brown, ALJ and hearings were scheduled for dates in 2013, 2014 and 2015, but postponed pending the outcome of a related complaint filed in Essex County Superior Court that asserts claims similar to the within increment withholding matter.

In June 2015, ALJ Bari-Brown retired and the matter was reassigned to the undersigned with testimony to commence on September 29, 2015. On July 29, 2015, Sandro Polledri, attorney for respondent informed the undersigned that the within matter was resolved amicably by and between the parties, as evidenced by a "Stipulation of Dismissal With Prejudice" that is dated and signed by both counsel and attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PARAMUS, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to remove her daughter, C.R., from Paramus High School because she has moved out of the school district. The Board contended that C.R. is not entitled to attend Paramus for her senior year free of charge pursuant to its Policy 5118, which in part provides that a student in her junior year of high school may remain in district for her senior year if she moved out of district during the final marking period of eleventh grade – which in this case began on April 2, 2015. It is undisputed that petitioner moved to Franklin Lakes in February 2015, and that C.R. was therefore no longer domiciled in Paramus as of the end of that month. The petitioner averred that she was not familiar with Policy 5118 and did not understand its meaning; further, she contended she was not properly informed of the consequence of moving when she did. The Board filed a motion for summary decision; sought payment of tuition for the 2015-2016 school year, in the event that petitioner sends her daughter back to Paramus High School for her senior year; and waived tuition reimbursement for the final marking period of the 2014-2015 school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and this matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals aged 5 to 20 years who are domiciled within the school district; in this case, it is undisputed that C.R. no longer resides in Paramus, and moved before the start of the fourth marking period in her eleventh grade year; the Board's determination was not arbitrary or capricious as C.R. did not meet the requirements of Policy 5118 for attending Paramus High School tuition-free in her senior year. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the Board properly removed C.R., there is no tuition due and owing to the Board for the remainder of C.R.'s junior year, and C.R. is ineligible to attend Paramus High School on a tuition-free basis for her senior year. The ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the appeal.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter, for the reasons expressed therein.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that C.R. is no longer domiciled in the district and that the Board's decision denying C.R. the ability to attend school in the district as a tuition free student was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

D.R. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, C.R,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PARAMUS, BERGEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

D.R., petitioner, pro se,

Cherie Adams, Esq. for respondent, (Adams, Guitierrez & Lattibourdere, LLC)

Record Closed: July 24, 2015 Decided: August 13, 2015

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, D.R. appeals the decision by respondent Borough of Paramus Board of Education (respondent/Board) to remove her daughter, C.R., from Paramus High School (Paramus) because she had moved from the district. On or about February 23, 2015, petitioner moved from Paramus to Franklin Lakes, New Jersey. C.R. was in the third marking period of her eleventh year at Paramus on that date. The third marking period ended April 2, 2015. The Board determined that C.R. was no longer domiciled in Paramus at the end of February 2015 and D.R. filed an appeal with the Commissioner requesting an over ride of Board Policy 5118 which addresses residency. The Board denied the request at its meeting on May 11, 2015. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on July 14, 2015 as a contested case.

On July 14, 2015, the Board filed a motion for summary decision, characterizing the matter as a residency appeal wherein there is no genuine issue as to the only material fact, C.R.'s non-residency under terms of Board Policy 5118. The Board is seeking an Order dismissing this appeal and for petitioner to be responsible for tuition for the 2015-2016 school year in the amount of $18,246.00 should D.R. decide to send her daughter back to Paramus for her senior year. The Board has waived tuition reimbursement for the fourth marking period of C.R.'s junior year and need not be addressed here.

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits which may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995).

And even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted).

In the present matter, it is not disputed that C.R.'s residency was outside of the district prior to the start of the fourth marking period of April 2, 2015. The question is whether the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), "[a]ny person who is domiciled within the school district" is entitled to a free education from that district.[1] However, "[i]f the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district . . . , the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). "A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). "Domicile" has been "defined as 'the place where [a person] has his [or her] true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has an intention of returning.'" See D.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Princeton Reg'l Sch. Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273–74 (App. Div. 2004) (quoting T.B.W. v. Bd. of Educ. of Belleville, EDU 5959-96, Initial Decision (April 30, 1998), adopted, Comm'r (June 18, 1998), <http://www.njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

The parents may contest a local school board's decision regarding the student's right to attend school in the district to the Commissioner of Education and "shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence" to prove domicile in the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). Here the parent contends that she did not know of or understand what the policy meant and she was not informed properly of the consequence of moving when she did.

The Board avers that C.R. is not entitled to attend Paramus for her senior year free of tuition since pursuant to its Policy 5118, which provides in part that a student may remain in district if they moved out of district during their final marking period without having to pay non-resident tuition, she moved during her third marking period and is therefore not eligible.

It is undisputed that C.R. no longer resides in Paramus, and moved before the start of the fourth marking period of her eleventh grade. The policy undoubtedly restricts the attendance that petitioner seeks to students who move during their final marking period, here being April 2, 2015. Thus, C.R. does not fall within that aspect of the District's policy with respect to the 2015–2016 school year, and petitioner has not set forth specific facts raising a genuine issue in this regard. Even though the district does not have to allow C.R. to remain in the district under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a) that grants such discretion, even if her parents are willing to pay tuition, it has offered to do so and has waived tuition reimbursement for the remainder of her junior year after her move to another district.

Finally, the Board did not act arbitrarily when it met and determined that J.R. would not be allowed to attend Paramus as a tuition free student under the policy. It clearly states the student must be in her final marking period of her junior year to be permitted to attend her senior year tuition free. Again, the Board had the discretion to admit J.R. as a tuition student, but determined that she did not meet the requirements of Policy 5118, and that decision therefore was not arbitrary or capricious. Even assuming petitioner was not informed of the meaning of Policy 5118, the language is clear as to non-resident students.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law. I CONCLUDE that Paramus Board of Education properly removed J.R. I further CONCLUDE that, there is no tuition reimbursement due to the Board based upon the Board's waiver of tuition for the remainder of J.R.'s junior year.

ORDER

Accordingly, I hereby ORDER that the respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is hereby dismissed.

I further ORDER that there is no tuition due and owing to the Paramus Board of Education for the remainder of J.R.'s junior year and that J.R. is ineligible to attend Paramus High School for her senior year tuition free.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Stephanie Hale, State-Operated School District of the City of Camden, Camden County. Agency Dkt. No. 251-9/15.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the correspondence filed by the parties seeking to withdraw the tenure charges against respondent, Stephanie Hale, based on resignation, along with the respondent's letter of resignation from the District. Upon review of the submissions, I find that since the respondent has resigned from the District, there is no need to proceed with the tenure charges.

Accordingly, the withdrawal of the tenure charges is approved pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, and this matter is hereby dismissed. Additionally, this matter is being forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for such action as that body deems appropriate.

Sincerely,

David C. Hespe

SYNOPSIS

Pro se petitioner challenged the respondent Board's determination that his children, M.S. and Z.S., were not entitled to a free public education in the City of Linden schools. Petitioner asserted that he owns two houses, one in Linden and the other in Roselle, and that the children spend much of their time in the Linden house. The Board maintained that a residency investigation found that M.S. and Z.S. are domiciled in Roselle, and therefore not eligible to attend Linden schools free of charge. The Board sought tuition reimbursement for the period of M.S. and Z.S.'s ineligible attendance, from February 9, 2015 through June 23, 2015.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals aged 5 to 20 years who are domiciled within the school district; the domicile of unemancipated children is the domicile of their parent or guardian; the results of the Board's residency investigation show that the children herein were domiciled in Roselle during the time period in question; petitioner failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that his children were entitled to a free public education in Linden; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), a school board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend school it its district; the daily tuition cost in Linden schools is $103.22 per child; and petitioner's two children attended Linden schools for a total of eighty four days from the beginning of the residency investigation until the end of the school year. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that M.S. and Z.S. were not entitled to attend school in Linden free of charge, and the Board is owed tuition for the period of the children's ineligible attendance. The ALJ dismissed the petition with prejudice and ordered E.S. to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $17,340.96.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner found that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of Linden during the period in question. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter and petitioner was directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $ 17,340.96. The petition was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by petitioner and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto.[1]

In his exceptions, petitioner argues that because the Board only conducted surveillance of his Roselle home, and not at his Linden home, the Board did not observe that his minor children resided at the Linden home. In reply, the Board argues that petitioner failed to meet his burden of establishing that M.S. and Z.S. resided in Linden. The Board noted that it conducted surveillance on the Roselle property on approximately twenty dates between January and April 2015, which showed petitioner leaving the Roselle home and driving his minor children to school in Linden, and that petitioner's father also told the Board's attendance officer that petitioner lived in Roselle, and not at the Linden address.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of Linden for the 2014-2015 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor children were, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during this time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $17,340.96 ($103.22 per child per day for 84 days) for the time period from February 9, 2015 through June 23, 2015, during which petitioner's minor children were ineligible to attend, as detailed in the ALJ's Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $17,340.96 for tuition costs incurred during the time period that M.S. and Z.S. were ineligible to attend school in Linden. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,
Respondent.

E.S., petitioner appearing pro se,

Steven R. Nevolis, Esq. for respondent (Weiner Lesniak, LLP)

Record Closed: August 3, 2015 Decided: August 13, 2015

BEFORE: JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALAJ

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 27, 2015, petitioner, E.S., filed a residency appeal on behalf of his two children, M.S. and Z.S., grades six and three, respectively. On March 6, 2015, the Township of Linden Board of Education (BOE or respondent) filed an Answer with the State Department of Education (DOE) seeking reimbursement from petitioner for the costs of tuition incurred by the attendance of his two minor children in the BOE's school district from the onset of the investigation.

The DOE transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 9, 2015, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was held on August 3, 2015, on which date the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a consideration of the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS:

Jim McCullough, the district attendance officer, gave compelling and credible testimony as confirmed by his report which reads and I accept as FACT:

1. On January 29, 2015, McCullough conducted a residency check at 1100 Middlesex Street, Linden. He spoke with E.S.'s father who advised that E.S. does not live there any longer. The father stated that his son moved to Roselle and provided him with their current address of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle. The tax records revealed they have owned 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle since at least 2010.

2. On January 30, 2015, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and at approximately 0800 hours, two blue car which was parked in the driveway. They drove small children (male and female) exited the house with an adult male and entered small into Linden to Passaic Street, turned and drove back to 104 Kennedy Drive. Small female re-entered the house then returned to vehicle. Vehicle drove back to Linden directly to school 4 where the two children exited the vehicle and walked into school (video). E.S. owns a business, "Goodness Transportation LLC" and uses the address of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle. A tax record check of 1100 Middlesex Street in Linden, shows that E.S. also owns that property since July 2, 2011.

3. On February 2, 2015, McCullough sent a letter to the parents advising them that their children will receive a transfer card to the Roselle school district since the family is domiciled in Roselle.

4. On February 3, 2015, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Street in Roselle and observed the small blue vehicle parked in front of the house. Approximately 0810 hours, an adult male, E.S. and two small children exited the house and entered the vehicle. They proceeded directly to School 4 and at approximately 0821 hours (video) and the children exited the vehicle.

5. On February 3, 2015, McCullough received a telephone call from E.S. advising that he and his family live at 1100 Middlesex Street in Linden. McCullough advised E.S. that it is board policy that where the children sleep determines their eligibility of where they go to school.

6. On February 11, 2015 at 0750 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed the same blue small car parked in front of the house with an SUV parked in the driveway. At approximately 0800 hours E.S. exited the house and entered the vehicle and drove the two children directly to School 4. The vehicle pulled in to the lot and the two children exited the vehicle and entered the school at approximately 0807 hours, (video).

7. On February 12, 2015 at 0759 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed a blue vehicle parked in the street in front of the house. E.S. and two children exit the house at 0754 hours and drive directly to School 4 to drop the children off at 0802 hours, (video).

8. On February 18, 2015 at 0745 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed a gray SUV in the driveway. At 0813 hours, an adult female and two small children exited house and entered the SUV and drove directly to School 4. The children were dropped off at 0825 hours (video).

9. On February 19, 2015 at 0755 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed the blue vehicle parked in front of the house. At approximately 0801 hours, E.S. and two small children exited the house and entered the vehicle and drove directly to School 4. The children were dropped off at School 4 at approximately 0807 hours, (video).

10. On February 23, 2015 at 0740 hours, McCullough did a drive by to 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle, and observed a SUV parked in the driveway and the blue car parked in street.

11. On March 2, 2015 at 0750 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle, at observed E.S. exiting the house with two small children and enters his blue car at approximately 0820 that's parked in street. They drive directly to School 4 where the children are dropped off at approximately 0829 hours, (video).

12. On March 3, 2015 at 0742 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by to 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed the blue car parked in the street in front of the house. The SUV was not seen.

13. On March 4, 2015 at 0735 hours, McCullough conducted another drive by to 104 Kennedy Drive in Roselle and observed the blue car parked in the street in front of the house. The SUV was not seen.

14. On March 10, 2015 at 0745 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle and observed only a Yellow cab parked in front of house. E.S. and the children exited the house at 0754 hours and entered the yellow cab and exit area, arriving at School No. 4 at 0810 hours and dropped off both children (video).

15. On March 11, 2015 at 0746 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by to 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle and observed a Nissan SUV in driveway (photo).

16. On March 18, 2015 at 0741 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle and observed the blue vehicle parked in the street in front of the house. He proceeded to School No. 4 to set up surveillance. At 0806 hours, McCullough observed the same blue vehicle approach School No. 4 parking lot and drop off the children (photo and video).

17. On March 25, 2015 at 0744 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle. The blue vehicle was parked in the street in front of the house (photo). McCullough went back to the Roselle address at 1:18 p.m. and observed the blue Nissan SUV in driveway.

19. On March 30, 2015 at 0742 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle, and observed the blue Nissan SUV parked in the driveway (photo).

20. On March 31, 2015 at 0740 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle, and observed the blue vehicle parked in the street.

21. On April 13, 2015 at 0745 hours, McCullough conducted a drive by of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle, and observed the Blue SUV parked in driveway (photo).

22. On April 20, 2015 at 0742 hours, McCullough conducted a surveillance of 104 Kennedy Drive, Roselle. At 0758 hours, McCullough observed E.S. and two children exit the house and enter the blue vehicle parked in the street in front of the house. At 0806 hours, E.S.'s blue vehicle pulled in front of School No. 4 and children exited the car and entered the school (video).

23. The parents own a two-family in Linden and a home in Roselle. I FIND the primary residence to be in Roselle.

24. The individual cost to the BOE for the period of time for the two children is calculated upon the daily cost for each student at the rate of $103.22 per diem per child for a total of eighty four days from February 9, 2015 to June 23, 2015. The combined total cost for both children to attend school in Linden for the eighty four days was $17,340.96.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The issue in this appeal is whether M.S. and Z.S. were domiciled students during the eighty-four days they attended school in Linden.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years in certain circumstances, including individuals who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is the domicile of the parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). Thus, a child would routinely attend school in the district where his or her parents live.

From the evidence submitted, it is clear that both children were domiciled in Roselle during the time they attended school for eighty-four days in Linden. E.S. failed to demonstrate, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that his children were entitled to a free public education in Linden. To the contrary, the BOE has proven that they were not since they were not domiciled there. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) provides:

> A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose > permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.

Thus, domicile is what is regarded as an individual's true and permanent home. In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977). The question of domicile is one of fact and must be determined on a case-by-case basis. Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1, 7 (1955). Intent is the touchstone of domicile, and the manifestation of a person's intent converts residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). A person may have multiple residences, but may have only one domicile at a time; as such, the residence may coincide with domicile, but does not alone determine domicile. Ibid.

Based upon the facts adduced, I CONCLUDE that M.S. and Z.S. were domiciled in Roselle during the eighty-four school days they attended in Linden. The children were observed leaving their Roselle address early in the morning over the course of several days and driven to Linden to attend school. Accordingly, they were not entitled to attend school in Linden and given a free public education there pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

A school board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). M.S. and Z.S. were not entitled to a free public education in Linden based upon the above. Accordingly, respondent is entitled to reimbursement from E.S. in the sum of $17,340.96 for the cost of providing a public education to both children from February 9, 2015 until June 23, 2015, and I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition of petitioner, E.S., be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. It is further ORDERED that

E.S. reimburse respondent the total sum of $17,340.96 for tuition costs associated with the attendance of his children, M.S. and Z.S., in Linden from February 9, 2015 until June 23, 2015.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, the Learning Center for Exception Children (LCEC) -- a private school for the disabled, which had been approved by the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) to receive public school students on a tuition basis – challenged the Department's action in placing LCEC on conditional approval status. LCEC asserted that there is no factual or legal basis for the Department's action, and sought an order restoring full approval of its educational program. The Department contended that LCEC is not operated in accordance with applicable agency regulations. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts in dispute, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the Department's action in placing LCEC on conditional approval status was reasonable, warranted, and effectuated in accordance with the law; the only remaining issue for consideration in this case is whether improper mainstreaming of special needs students continues to occur at LCEC; it is uncontroverted that some students at LCEC were educated for at least a part of their day in mainstream settings, which in many cases was not stipulated in the students' Individual Education Program (IEP); therefore, the action of the Department in March 2014 in placing LCEC on conditional approval because children were improperly mainstreamed was appropriate and consistent with law and regulation; and the record offers no cause to question the Department's continued belief that LCEC must remain on conditional approval. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Department's motion for summary decision, denied petitioner's motion, and dismissed the petition.

Upon comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, Learning Center for Exceptional Children (LCEC), and the Department of Education's (Department) reply thereto.[1] In this matter, LCEC, an approved private school for students with disabilities, challenges the Department's decision placing LCEC on conditional approval status.

In its exceptions, LCEC maintains that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously granted summary decision in favor of the Department. Specifically, LCEC maintains that the ALJ wrongfully stated in the Initial Decision that is was "uncontroverted" that the mainstreaming of LCEC students with students at Today's Learning Center[2] was not approved. Although LCEC maintains that it is no longer mainstreaming students, it contends that the Department actually approved the practice of mainstreaming its students when the Department granted its program application in 2011. LCEC also takes exception to the ALJ's determination that there was "no competent evidence" showing that the mainstreaming had ended, arguing that the school has in fact provided ample evidence to the Department proving that the school is not mainstreaming students. Finally, LCEC argues that the ALJ erroneously treated the ongoing IEP/scheduling issues as if they are the same as mainstreaming issues. Therefore, LCEC requests that the Initial Decision be rejected and that the Commissioner issue an order releasing LCEC from conditional approval status.

In reply, the Department maintains that the ALJ properly rejected LCEC's argument that it had satisfactorily addressed the mainstreaming issue and upheld the conditional approval status. The Department also contends that LCEC did not offer anything in its exceptions to justify the modification of the Initial Decision. The Department emphasizes that LCEC is only authorized to operate special class programs, and LCEC's argument that the Department approved the mainstreaming of student's at LCEC should be rejected.[3]

[2] Today's Learning Center is a private, regular educational program that is located alongside LCEC.

[3] Special class programs are defined as programs that "serve students who have similar intensive educational, behavioral, and other needs related to their disabilities in accordance with their individualized education programs."

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision – that the Department's decision to place LCEC on conditional approval status was appropriate and consistent with the law and governing regulations. Moreover, despite the fact that LCEC has rectified the Department's concerns regarding the full-time principal and inappropriate rental space, LCEC has yet to provide enough evidence to prove that it is no longer mainstreaming students. Finally, the Commissioner is not persuaded by LCEC's suggestion that the conditional approval should be removed based on its argument that the Department approved the mainstreaming of its students in 2011 when the program application was granted. LCEC was approved to operate special class programs only, and its practice of mainstreaming is in violation of its approval under N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.7.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Learning Center for Exceptional Children (LCEC) is a private school for the disabled, which had been approved by the New Jersey Department of Education (the Department) to receive public school students on a tuition basis. The Department has placed LCEC on conditional approval status, and contends that the school is not being operated in accordance with applicable agency regulations. LCEC asserts that there is no factual or legal basis for the Department's action, and seeks an order restoring full approval for its educational program.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arose with the filing of a petition of appeal and motion for emergent relief by LCEC on March 4, 2014, through which LCEC sought to stay the effects of a February 14, 2014, decision by the Passaic County Supervisor of Child Study denying LCEC's "Request to Establish a Special Education Program or Service" at its facility on Scoles Avenue in Clifton, New Jersey. The Department opposed the motion on March 31, 2014, and it was denied by the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on May 12, 2014. The contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 14, 2014. (EDU 05929-14)

In the interim, via letter dated March 18, 2014, LCEC was advised by the Department that it was being placed on conditional approval. On May 21, 2014, LCEC filed a motion for emergent relief seeking to immediately lift its conditional approval status. A second petition of appeal was filed on June 17, 2014. (EDU 07995-14). The request for emergent relief was transmitted to the OAL, where it was heard and denied on July 3, 2014, by Judge Michael Antoniewicz, ALJ. The two pending petitions of appeal were consolidated for hearing before me via order dated July 15, 2014.

A motion for summary decision was filed by LCEC on May 1, 2015. The Department filed a cross-motion on May 18, 2015, and oral argument took place that day. LCEC was granted leave to file an additional brief and did so on June 9, 2015. The parties thereafter renewed their efforts to amicably resolve this matter, and at their request the record was held open until July 14, 2015.

ISSUE PRESENTED

At oral argument the parties agreed that the issues raised by the petition of appeal filed on March 4, 2014, are now moot. That petition (EDU 05929-14) is DISMISSED, and accordingly, the sole issue for determination is whether the action of the Department in placing LCEC on conditional approval per its March 18, 2014, letter was consistent with applicable law and regulation. The Department's monitoring of LCEC and its programs is ongoing, and appears to continually give rise to new concerns that prevent the Department from lifting LCEC's conditional approval. To the extent that these latter issues post-date the filing of LCEC's second petition of appeal, they are not before me for review or adjudication.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Established in 1978, LCEC is a private not-for-profit school that educates students with special needs ages three through twenty-one. Housed alongside LCEC is a private, regular education program, Today's Learning Center (TLC). Students who attend LCEC are classified by their local public school districts as eligible to receive special education and related services pursuant to the Individuals with Disabilities Act, (IDEA), 20 U.S.C.A. § 1415 et seq., and the New Jersey regulations that implement Federal law. See: N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1. et seq.

Peggy McDonald is the Director of the Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP). Her office is responsible for implementing state and federal laws governing special education to ensure that students with disabilities receive a free and appropriate education (FAPE). In February 2014, McDonald grew concerned that LCEC was placing special needs children and typically developing children in the same classroom. Notwithstanding the statutory preference for mainstreaming, she viewed LCEC's practice as violative of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.7(a) because the school had been approved to operate only special education programs. McDonald also was disturbed about LCEC's facility. It included rental space, and she felt insufficiently assured that tenants using this space would "not compromise the health, safety, and welfare of LCEC's students." Finally, OSEP expressed concern that LCEC did not employ a full-time, certified non-teaching principal, as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:14-7.6(d). On March 18, 2014, for these three reasons, McDonald advised LCEC that it was being placed on conditional approval.

Mainstreaming

In correspondence dated December 19, 2013, counsel for LCEC confirmed that the school places "special needs children and typically developing children in the same classroom." In a letter dated April 17, 2014, counsel for LCEC disputed that such mainstreaming was improper, but nonetheless reconfirmed that "[s]tudents in the Speer program are mainstreamed to the extent required by their IEPs." Counsel moreover noted that students in the Speer program at LCEC may be integrated with typically developing peers for lunch, recess and assemblies. I FIND that LCEC admitted that it was mainstreaming some of its students for at least a part of their day.

To resolve the conditional approval status, OSEP indicated that it required written assurances that no children would be mainstreamed.[1] LCEC was directed to provide daily schedules for all currently enrolled students, as well as schedules for their teachers. The Department additionally requested IEPs for every student enrolled for the 2014-2015 school year. LCEC promptly began the process of supplying the requested IEPs and other documentation, but OSEP found its submissions inadequate.

[1] The parties note that LCEC filed a separate action in Federal Court pertaining to E.M., an LCEC student. They successfully obtained an injunction allowing E.M. to continue receiving an educational program that included mainstreaming. But, of course, this suit is a further admission that mainstreaming took place at LCEC.

Some student IEPs had not been supplied; IEPs that were supplied exacerbated the Department's concerns. Via letter dated December 17, 2014, OSEP reiterated its concerns about programming at LCEC. The following statement is representative:

> In addition, a review of student schedules and IEPs provided by you raises questions about the types classes you are providing within LCEC. For example, the IEPs of students in one class describe the same program as "self-contained," 'inclusion," "in-class support," "self-contained" Language Arts and Math and all other subjects as "general education." These descriptions, which include general education, cannot all be delivered simultaneously in one single classroom.

The agency review of LCEC's submissions revealed missing information, and revealed that the proffered IEPs were inconsistent with student schedules, "thus calling into question how, or whether, LCEC is implementing its students' IEPs." The OSEP letter noted that LCEC's submission of its teachers' schedules was likewise unsatisfactory, and that the submitted schedules "failed to include very basic information, such as the teacher's name, assignment and a roster of all students in each class period." McDonald reiterated that her office needed this information to verify that students are receiving FAPE via their IEPs.

In response to the December 17, 2014, letter, LCEC supplied yet additional, voluminous documentation for OSEP's review. But according to McDonald, its submissions continued to insufficiently assure OSEP that the school was operating in accordance with agency regulations. Indeed, McDonald notes that upon reviewing what was sent by LCEC, "OSEP [continued to observe] a number of discrepancies between students' IEPs and their LCEC schedules." OSEP directed LCEC to correct these discrepancies. LCEC again provided additional information regarding students who were previously mainstreamed. But again, its submissions only served to further heighten OSEP's concerns. Indeed, in a February 6, 2015, letter LCEC admitted "deviations" existed "between certain students' IEPs and their current schedules." At site visits conducted on February 18, 2015, and March 4, 2015, OSEP officials still found discrepancies between the student schedules that LCEC had provided the month before and the actual classes that were in session. On March 27, 2015, McDonald's office sent non-compliance letters to the sending school districts of students who were identified by LCEC as having discrepancies between their IEPs and the services actually delivered at LCEC. McDonald explained that such letters are sent as a matter of policy when her office becomes aware that IEPs are not being implemented as written.

LCEC correctly points out that an April 28, 2015, letter from the Deputy Attorney General states that "when OSEP representatives visited LCEC in March 2015, it appeared that LCEC had, nearly a year after being placed on conditional approval, finally stopped 'mainstreaming' its students with TLC students." But it is noteworthy that although counsel argued vigorously in his brief and at oral argument that no such mainstreaming persists at LCEC, I received no certification from a representative of LCEC that so states, definitively. Moreover, as late as May 13, 2015, lingering concerns surrounded the documentation being supplied by LCEC. McDonald again communicated with LCEC, directing it to create schedules that conform with the services mandated by student IEPs, and to do so no later than June 30, 2015, in order for conditional approval to be lifted. I FIND that these concerns persist to date.

Full-Time Principal Issue

McDonald's March 18, 2014, letter states that "OSEP has received information from the county office that the school does not have a full-time, certified non-teaching principal...and has not received county office approval for a waiver of the full-time principal status." Her letter references a representation allegedly made by Elizabeth Yeager that she served both as principal of LCEC and TLC; Yeager vigorously denied having made such a representation. Counsel for LCEC clarified that Yeager's only affiliation with TLC was as a consultant who worked before or after the LCEC school day. She did so for a total of 65 hours during the entirety of the 2013-2014 school year. The parties continued to communicate in regard to this issue, and LCEC even unsuccessfully applied for a waiver, without prejudice to its contention that one was not required.

In a letter dated March 12, 2015, the Department advised, via counsel, that it would accept LCEC's representation that Yeager was not serving as principal of both LCEC and TLC, and that accordingly, LCEC had a full-time principal as required by regulation. That letter noted that the LCEC website still appeared to reflect otherwise; this concern persisted and was raised when counsel appeared before me for oral argument. In a certification dated June 8, 2015, Linda Buonauro, Director of LCEC, confirmed that the website had been adjusted some time ago to reflect that Yeager served only as principal of LCEC. Noting that she has "no control over what old versions of the website appear using various search terms," she indicated that the entire website has been taken down, to insure that there is no further confusion in regard to Yeager's role.

I FIND that Liz Yeager is not currently serving as the principal of any school or program other than LCEC, and that this issue does not continue to be a basis for LCEC's conditional approval status.

Rental Space

This concern was articulated in the Department's March 18, 2014, letter as follows:

> The OSEP has also conducted a review of the documents submitted with the December 19, 2013 correspondence, which included a "first floor plan" of the building. The floor plan identified an area which is labeled "rental space" with no further description of the space provided. The OSEP is requesting information as to the use of that space to ensure that the health, safety and welfare of the students are not being compromised by the use of that space.

Thereafter, in his April 17, 2014, letter, counsel for LCEC advised that the rental space is leased to the New Jersey State Opera, which uses it via a separate entrance, and only when school is not in session. The March 12, 2015, letter from the Deputy Attorney General confirms, and I FIND, that the issue of allowing outside parties to use space at LCEC has been resolved to the Department's satisfaction, and does not continue to be a basis for conditional approval status.

The Effect of Conditional Approval on LCEC

A certification submitted by Mary Bawarski, the accountant for LCEC, outlines the financial difficulties the school's continued conditional status has created. She advises that, "[b]ased on...30 years of experience as an accountant for approved private schools for disabled children, it is my opinion that, under the circumstances, LCEC may run out of cash on or about August 1, 2015." Her concerns were echoed by Yeager, who submitted a certification that emphasized her consternation after OSEP sent its March 27, 2015, letter to LCEC's sending districts. The following comment by Yeager is representative of the tone of her certification, and she writes:

> ...[b]ased on my conversation with representatives of the Passaic School District, it is my understanding that the DOE's March 27th letter has caused the district to demand compensatory education for its students – which LCEC cannot afford and would not even have to discuss but for the DOE's inflammatory letter.

Yeager moreover stressed that the Department's correspondence failed to advise the sending districts about ongoing efforts between the local child study teams and LCEC staff to ensure that students were receiving the programming promised by their IEPs.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The parties have cross-moved for relief under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Our regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that "if the opposing party . . . offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, 'Fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,' he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (citing Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The "'judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.'" Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 251–52, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material facts in dispute, and the Department is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

As a recipient of federal funds, the Department is required to ensure that all New Jersey special needs students receive FAPE. 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a). One way that educational programming is delivered is via contract with private schools for the disabled, such as LCEC. See: 20 U.S.C. §1412(a)(19)(B). The Department correctly points out that "state oversight and monitoring is an essential component of a [private school for the disabled's] relationship with the State and its ability to educate public students." Consistent with this obligation, our State regulations provide for the monitoring of approved private schools for the disabled. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-7.10. See also: N.J.A.C. 6A: 14-9.1.

As part of the monitoring process, the Department "may issue a conditional approval status when noncompliance is demonstrated with State or Federal statute or rules and/or implementation of the corrective action plan." N.J.A.C. 6A: 14-7.10(b)(1). When placing a school on conditional approval, the Department's actions "must be warranted under the circumstances and effectuated in accordance with applicable law." All Can Excel (A.C.E.) Academy v. New Jersey Dep't. of Educ., Office of Special Educ. Programs, EDU 1240-07, Final Decision (May 16, 2008), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. I CONCLUDE that the action of the Department here was reasonable; warranted under the circumstances; and effectuated in accordance with law.

No further analysis is required relative to the issues of rental space and assignment of a full-time principal. Both areas of alleged noncompliance have been resolved to the Department's satisfaction. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the claims raised relative to these two justifications for conditional approval are moot. For a claim to be justiciable, petitioner must have suffered a distinct injury or harm that can be remedied by the Commissioner. See e.g. :New Jersey Turnpike Auth. v Parsons, 3 N.J. 235, 240 (1949). It is not the role of the Commissioner to function in the abstract or to enter rulings that are advisory. See: N.J. Civil Serv. Ass'n v. State of New Jersey, 88 N.J. 605, 611 (1982); Crescent Park Tenants Assoc. v Realty Eq. Corp. of New York, 58 N.J. 98,107. There is no further action that can be taken by this tribunal relative to the full-time principal and floor space issues.

Moreover, throughout the time that LCEC has remained on conditional approval, a third area of noncompliance, mainstreaming, would have kept the school conditionally approved regardless. It is uncontroverted that LCEC is approved only to operate special class programs. These are defined as programs that "shall serve students who have similar intensive educational, behavioral, and other needs related to their disabilities in accordance with their individualized education programs." N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.7. There is a strong statutory preference for educating children in the "least restrictive environment," and for including them, to the extent appropriate, with typically developing peers. 20 U.S.C.A. § 1412(a)(5). Oberti v. Board of Education, 995 F.2d 1204 (3d Cir. 1993). Thus, the Department's position may, at first blush, appear to flout this statutory requirement. But LCEC is a private entity, and not a public school. The parameters of its approval to provide services to New Jersey public school children is as determined by the Department; and it has been approved exclusively to serve those children who are not able, due to the severity of their disabilities, to enroll in integrated settings. Indeed, notwithstanding its preference for inclusion, the IDEA contemplates a continuum of placement options, ranging from mainstreaming in a regular public school as least restrictive to enrollment in a non-approved residential private school as most restrictive. 34 C.F.R. § 300.115 (2009); N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.3.

It is uncontroverted that some students at LCEC were educated for at least a part of their day in mainstream settings, and that indeed, some were accepted to the school with IEPs that so stipulated. I CONCLUDE that the action of the Department in March 2014, placing LCEC on conditional approval because children were improperly mainstreamed, was appropriate and consistent with law and regulation. The record reveals that it took close to a year to even begin to assure the Department that mainstreaming was no longer taking place. LCEC has offered no competent proof, in certification form, that its students are no longer being mainstreamed. Conversely, McDonald has certified that the discrepancies in student IEPs and schedules that were revealed when LCEC responded to the mainstreaming issue remain ongoing concerns. This record thus offers no cause to question the validity of OSEP's continued belief that LCEC must remain on conditional approval.

Finally, certifications from LCEC staff attest to the financial ramifications of conditional approval status, and these certifications were credible and compelling. But my focus, and that of the Department, must be not on LCEC's financial liquidity, but rather, on its appropriateness as an environment to deliver services to New Jersey's most educationally needy children.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the Department's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and the petitions of appeal are DISMISSED. LCEC's motion for summary decision is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

On August 28, 2014, petitioner – the tenured Athletic Director at Old Tappan High School – filed an appeal of the determination of the respondent Board to withhold his salary increment for the 2014-2015 school year. The Board had notified petitioner by memorandum on May 8, 2014 that his salary increment would be withheld for the coming year based on his alleged poor performance with respect to his role in personnel matters. The petitioner acknowledged that his appeal was filed outside of the 90-day rule set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, but claimed that extraordinary circumstances justified the relaxation of the 90-day limitation period in this case. Specifically, the petitioner detailed a medical diagnosis and hospitalization from June 22 through July 11, 2014, and an at-home recuperation period from July 12 through July 25, 2014, concluding that his month-long illness was the reason his petition was late-filed and that it would be a gross injustice if the 90-day limitations was not relaxed. The Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: boards of education may withhold salary increments for good cause pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14; appeals to the Commissioner must be filed within 90-days pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3; prior case law has determined that without a showing of circumstances amounting to genuine incapacity, relaxation of the 90-day rule is not warranted; in the instant matter, there is no evidence that petitioner was rendered mentally incapacitated by his condition; and by his own assertions, petitioner had two weeks after he was fully recuperated to file his petition. The ALJ concluded that the circumstances in this case do not warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision was granted and the petition was dismissed.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the within petition is appropriately dismissed because it was filed outside the 90-day limitation period, and that the petitioner failed to set forth any compelling reason to relax the timely filing requirement.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), along with the parties' exceptions filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, have been carefully reviewed.

In essence, petitioner's exceptions contain an unpersuasive reiteration of the arguments he advanced at the OAL. Because the Administrative Law Judge thoroughly addressed those arguments in the Initial Decision, further discussion herein is unnecessary. While recognizing that unfortunate personal circumstances contributed to the late filing of petitioner's appeal, respondent maintains that – absent a showing of exceptional circumstances – the 90-day rule should be strictly enforced by the Commissioner.

Upon full consideration of the record and the parties' submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the instant petition is appropriately dismissed because it was filed outside the 90-day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Additionally, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to set forth any compelling reason to relax the timely filing requirement.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein; respondent's motion for summary decision is granted; and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Tom Kaechele, appeals the determination of the respondent, Board of Education of Northern Valley Regional High School District, Bergen County, that would withhold his salary increment for the 2014-15 school year.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following facts as undisputed, thus they are adopted as the FACTS herein:

Petitioner, Tom Kaechele ("Kaechele" or "Petitioner") is employed by the Board of Old Tappan High School as the Athletic Director. As Athletic Director, Kaechele supervises teachers who serve in curricular and extra-curricular positions, such as, advisors, coaches, chaperones, etc. Kaechele evaluates them and recommends them to the school principal for contract on an annual basis. Ultimately, however, the appointments are made by the Superintendent with Board approval.

On May 8, 2014, Kaechele was notified by memorandum that his increment would be withheld for the 2014-15 school year. The denial of a salary increment was based on Kaechele's alleged poor performance, miscommunications and misrepresentations related to his recommendation for a soccer coach position. (Brisman Cert. Ex. B.)

On May 9, 2014, the Superintendent emailed Kaechele a Rice notice of the scheduled May 12, 2014 Board meeting, where his increment withholding would be addressed. On May 12, 2014, at 11:19 a.m., Kaechele emailed the Superintendent an acknowledgement that simply stated "I am in receipt of the letter." (Brisman Cert. Ex. D.)[1] Later that day, the Board approved Kaechele's salary, at $178,385.28, the maximum step of the salary guide, with the loss of the annual increment.[2]

The next day, on May 13, 2014, the Board sent Kaechele formal written notice of the approval of his placement on the salary guide, and the decision to withhold his

[1] In opposition to the Board's motion for summary decision, Kaechele asserts that he first received notice on May 13, 2014. (See Pet'r's Opp'n to Summ. Decision 1.) Nevertheless, for the reasons discussed below, that factual distinction is legally immaterial.

[2] Counsel for the Board mistakenly writes that "[o]n May 12, 2014, the Board approved Petitioner's increment (See Pet. Ex. A.)." (Reps't's Mot. for Summ. Decision.) Obviously, the Board did not approve Kaechele's increment; that is the basis for this appeal. See ibid. Indeed, the cited document expressly states "Loss of increment 2014-2015." Ibid. Accordingly, counsel's statement appears to be an unfortunate typographical error.

increment. (Pet. Ex. A.) Kaechele signed the notice, but wrote that "[i]n signing this contract, I notify the [Board of] my desire to continue as Athletic Director. However, my signature should not in any way be taken as my agreement with the Board's decision to withhold my salary increment for the 2014-2015 school year." Ibid.

On August 28, 2014, one-hundred seven (107)[3] days after Kaechele received notice of the Board's decision to withhold his increment, Kaechele appealed to the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner). In his Petition, Kaechele fully "acknowledge[d] that the Petition was being filed more than ninety days following his notice of the Board's action to withhold his salary increment. However, Kaechele claimed that extraordinary circumstances existed for a relaxation of the 90-day limitation period." (Pet. ¶ 6.)

Specifically, Kaechele noted that on June 21, 2014, he "went to Pascack Valley Hospital, suffering from a 104 degree temperature. The following day, June 22, 2014, through on or about July 11, 2014, he was hospitalized at Englewood Hospital and Medical Center, and was eventually diagnosed with Polyarteritis Nodosa." (Pet. ¶ 7.) Polyarteritis Nodosa is a serious blood vessel disease in which small and medium sized arteries become swollen and damaged. (Pet. ¶ 8; Pet. Ex. B.) After his hospitalization, on July 12, 2014 through July 25, 2014, he was recuperating at his home. He was that time. (Pet. ¶ 9.) Kaechele does not explain why or how his condition rendered him unable to communicate with his attorney. He concludes that due to his month-long illness and recuperation period, a gross injustice would result if the 90-day limitations period were not relaxed. (Pet. ¶ 10.)

Kaechele attached a description of Polyarteritis Nodosa from the National Institute of Health to the Petition. (Pet. Ex. B.) That description states that symptoms of Polyarteritis Nodosa include

Abdominal pain
Decreased appetite
Fatigue
Fever

[3] The Board incorrectly calculated the period between May 13, 2014 and August 28, 2014, as one-hundred seventeen days (117), rather than one-hundred seven days (107). Again, for reasons discussed below, that factual distinction is legally immaterial.

Joint aches
Muscle aches
Unintentional weight loss Weakness

[Ibid.]

The aforementioned description does not include any mention of the effect of Polyarteritis Nodosa on a patient's mental capacity.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

The New Jersey school laws provide that boards of education "may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education." N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Within ten days, the board of education must provide "written notice of such action, together with the reasons therefore . . ." Ibid. The employee may appeal the increment holding to the Commissioner. Ibid.

However, appeals to the Commissioner must be filed with ninety-days, aka "the 90-day rule". N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3. Specifically, a petitioner must file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. Ibid.

Our Supreme Court has held that "[t]he limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between the teachers and the administration." Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). Indeed, the Kaprow decision noted that education disputes often implicate a remedy of back pay, so the 90-day rule "gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements." Ibid.

Accordingly, the 90-day rule is strictly enforced, in the absence of a compelling reason, "such as the presence of a substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties . . . [or] that strict adherence to the time limitation would possibly result in an injustice, except for the loss of [a petitioner's] claim." Portee v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 381, 384.

Here, petitioner fully acknowledges that he filed this appeal outside of the 90-day limitation. However, he argues "that, at a minimum, the ninety (90) day limitations period should have been tolled during the period of his twenty-one (21) day hospital stay. To not toll this period, when Mr. Kaechele was fighting a possibly fatal disease, would be highly inappropriate and would surely result in gross injustice." (Pet'r's Br. 2.) However, Kaechele cites no authority for the proposition that the 90-day rule should be relaxed under similar circumstances, and acknowledges that he "is not aware of any case that has addressed this discrete factual issue." Ibid.

The Board argues that the 90-day rule is strictly applied, and "[a] petitioner's genuine personal problems occurring within the 90-day period that do not completely deprive a petitioner from filing an appeal do not qualify for a waiver of the rule." (Resp't's Br. 4 (citing Bland-Carter v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Newark, EDU 1505-00, Initial Decision, (June 15, 2000), adopted, Comm'r. (September 14, 2000) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.)) In Bland-Carter, a teacher was notified on September 1 that her increment would be withheld. Initial Decision at 2. At that time, the employee's "father, who had been diagnosed several years earlier with lung cancer, was hospitalized. He remained in the hospital until his death on October 8, 1999." Ibid. During this period, the employee "went to the hospital on a daily basis to support and assist in his care. [She] later arranged and attended her father's funeral, held on October 13, 1999." Ibid. Though she resumed work on October 18, "[s]ubsequent to the funeral, [she] had to put her father's affairs in order." Ibid. Finally, she "was left to care for her mother, who [had] Parkinson's disease." Ibid. In light "of these unfortunate stresses [she] did not file the subject petition within 90 days of receipt of the notice of the District's decision." Ibid.

There, the presiding ALJ recognized that "[e]ven when the 90-day rule applies, the Commissioner may relax the rule when appropriate. The Commissioner has the discretion to dispense with any general rule of practice 'where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result injustice.'" (quoting N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.) She noted that "[t]he 90-day time limitation has been relaxed to resolve a dispute or delay attributable to the Board of Education or to consider a substantial constitutional issue or a matter of significant public interest." Ibid. (Citations omitted). Mee v. Bd. of Educ. of Village of Ridgewood, 1990 S.L.D. 663, 668). However, the ALJ explained that "[n]o recorded cases have been located . . . that show that the rule was relaxed due to personal circumstances of petitioner that occurred several weeks or months prior to the 90th day." Id. at 2-3. While she recognized that the employee "was clearly under a great deal of personal stress, especially in September and early October . . . [she] had almost two months after the death of her father during which time she could have timely filed the petition." Id. at 3. Rather, the employee "returned to work on October 18, 1999 and thus must have been able to function in the workplace." Ibid. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that though the employee "had genuine personal problems . . . there is no evidence that [her] circumstances rendered her unable to function." Ibid. Therefore, "holding her to the 90-day time period would not be inappropriate or an injustice." Ibid. In affirming, the Commissioner adopted the decision dismissing the petition, and noted that "[n]o constitutional issues are involved nor does it present issues of significant public interest beyond the parties." Bland-Carter, supra, EDU 1505-00, Final Decision at 2.

Similarly, in Unangst v. Bd. of Educ. of Fredon, EDU 9828-98, Initial Decision, (March 13, 2003), adopted, Commissioner, (May 1, 2003) http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, was found that a teacher's extreme personal problems did not warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. There, a teacher was involved in a severely abusive domestic relationship with a convicted murderer, and eventually procured protective orders and a contempt order incarcerating the abuser to extricate herself from the relationship. Unangst, supra, EDU 9828-98, Initial Decision at 3-7. After the teacher attempted to leave the abuser, in a campaign of intimidation and harassment, the abuser went to the teacher's superintendent's home, and apparently spoke with her superintendent. Id. at 5. The next day, the superintendent instructed the teacher to resign, and she tendered her resignation that week. Ibid. Two weeks later, the teacher sought and obtained domestic violence counseling services. Id. at 6-7. It was held that > [u]ndeniably, [the teacher] was under extreme emotional distress at the time of her resignation due to constant threats and continued harassment by her boyfriend. Whether or not her condition amounted to 'battered woman's syndrome' cannot be derived from the proofs because [the teacher's] only expert lacked adequate qualifications to make a definitive diagnosis. Nevertheless, the factual pattern clearly presents many of the attributes commonly associated with battered woman's syndrome, including physical or psychological coercion, episodes of severe abuse, and periods when her abuser expresses remorse and seeks forgiveness. It cannot be doubted that these conditions put [the teacher] in genuine fear for her own safety and that of her family.

However, it was further noted that the teacher > was able to function remarkably well under the circumstances. She had the presence of mind to obtain a preliminary and final protection order . . . Throughout her difficulties, she received outside support from her counselor at a women's advocacy group, an attorney retained to enforce her legal rights and her own family. By her own admission, she felt much better by mid-May 1998, when she discontinued going to counseling. During this same time, she managed to prepare lessons plans for her replacement at school, search diligently for a new job and take care of her grandchildren.

The ALJ explained that "If the rule were relaxed every time that a harsh result occurred, then the rule and its salutary public policy of encouraging prompt resolution of disputes would be nullified." Id. at 10. The teacher argued that the 90-day rule should be relaxed "on the basis of battered woman's syndrome." Id. at 11. Indisputably, "a potential litigant can always argue that the running of the limitations period should be tolled because she was incapable of understanding her legal rights or because she acted under duress." Id. at 12. However, the ALJ reasoned that "[e]ven if battered woman's syndrome were deemed relevant to such an inquiry, the evidence presented is insufficient to sustain [the teacher's] burden. Proofs demonstrate that the teacher possessed the mental capacity to make meaningful decisions." Ibid. Accordingly, he concluded that "[e]motional distress alone, without a showing of circumstances amounting to genuine incapacity, is not enough to toll the time limit for bringing an appeal to the Commissioner." Id. at 13.

Similarly, here, I FIND that there is no evidence that petitioner was rendered mentally incapacitated by his condition. While petitioner was hospitalized, and later spent approximately two weeks recuperating in his home, he does not explain how or why his condition prevented him from communicating with his attorney during that period. (See Pet. ¶ 7, 9.) Moreover, as in Bland-Carter, petitioner offers no reason to relax the 90-day rule "due to personal circumstances of petitioner that occurred several weeks or months prior to the 90th day." Bland-Carter, supra, EDU 1505-00, Initial Decision at 2-3. Here, the ninetieth day from the May 12, 2014 notice was August 10, 2014. According to petitioner's own assertions, he had finished recuperating by July 25, 2014. (Pet. ¶ 9.) Thus, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner had two weeks after he had fully recuperated to file his petition.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not alleged any circumstances that warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Board's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and the Petition is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – formerly employed as a School Library Media Specialist – challenged the Board's decision terminating her employment because she entered into a Pretrial Intervention (PTI) program, a condition of which was that she forfeit her current employment. On October 23, 2013, petitioner was found guilty by a jury of theft by deception and falsifying or tampering with records; however, the trial judge did not enter a judgment of conviction, but instead – in December 2013, post-trial – granted the petitioner's request for PTI. The respondent Board notified petitioner – by letter dated October 30, 2013 – that her conviction qualified as an automatic job forfeiture pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-5, and did not file tenure charges based on the jury verdict and the forfeiture statute. The petitioner asserted that she was already terminated before she entered into PTI, and therefore had no "current employment" to forfeit; she sought to be rehired to her former position. The Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: although the Board's conclusion that petitioner had been convicted after her trial was technically incorrect because the trial judge did not perfect the jury verdict pursuant to R. 3:21-5(b), the respondent Board clearly anticipated that the trial judge was going to enter a judgment of conviction, and equated the jury verdict as the legal equivalent to a judgment of conviction and forfeiture, negating the need for tenure charges; since petitioner had not been terminated by either statutory forfeiture or statutory tenure proceedings, she was technically and legally still employed by the Board on December 6, 2013, when she entered into PTI; and therefore all the terms of the PTI Order were applicable and petitioner agreed to forfeit her employment with the Board, which she remained entitled to on December 6, 2013. The ALJ concluded that petitioner, pursuant to the PTI Order, was terminated from her employment with the Board effective on December 6, 2013, obviating the requirement for tenure charges or hearings. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, and dismissed the petition.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY, AND DONNA HAYE, SUPERINTENDENT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, Kimberlynn Jurkowski, and the Atlantic City Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto. The petitioner, a tenured School Library Media Specialist, is challenging the decision of the Board terminating her employment because she entered into Pretrial Intervention (PTI) where a condition of PTI was that she forfeit her current employment.

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that the Initial Decision should be rejected because the matter should not have been decided on summary decision as there are material facts in dispute. The petitioner maintains that at the time she entered into the PTI program, she had already been terminated from her position with the Board and as a result she had no "current employment." The petitioner further asserts that the PTI Order does not reference the Atlantic City Board of Education but simply states "current employment" and the sentencing Judge never questioned the petitioner to ascertain that she understood each condition of PTI. If a condition of the PTI was to forfeit her right to appeal the termination of her employment with the Board or the forfeiture of her employment with the Board, the petitioner stresses that she would not have entered into the PTI Order. Therefore, the petitioner contends that a hearing must be held to ascertain the intent of the parties who entered into the PTI Order.

The petitioner also argues that to the extent there was ambiguity or uncertainly as to what the petitioner was agreeing to as a condition of PTI, all inferences should be resolved in her favor as the non-moving party. Instead the ALJ wrongfully stated that he addressed the motion solely on the legal side to avoid a trial by affidavit. Finally, the petitioner points out that the Board failed to respond to interrogatories served on the Board in April 2015. As a result, the petitioner maintains that based upon these facts it cannot be determined that petitioner agreed to forfeit her employment with the Board, and her petition seeking reimbursement and back pay should be granted. In the alternative, the petitioner argues that fundamental fairness suggests that she should be given an opportunity to withdraw her consent to the terms of PTI.

In reply, the Board contends that the ALJ properly granted summary decision to the Board based on the application of the relevant law to the material facts necessary for his determination. Although the petitioner may have raised contested factual issues, those facts were not material. The Board stresses that the petitioner's intention or understanding regarding her entry into the PTI program is irrelevant because she voluntarily forfeited her position with the Board and her claim that she agreed to give up a position she thought she did not have is disingenuous. The ALJ found that the Board could not have legally terminated the petitioner on October 30, 2013, and as a result she was employed by the Board when she entered into the PTI Order in December 2013. Therefore, when she agreed to "forfeit her current employment" as a condition of PTI, she forfeited her employment with the Board. Finally, the Board claims that it is of no matter that the discovery responses were not produced because the ALJ's decision was based solely on the undisputed material facts.

The resolution of this case turns on the impact of the Board's October 30, 2013 letter terminating the petitioner's employment and whether the petitioner was employed by the Board when she was admitted into PTI. Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's determination – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that the Board properly terminated the petitioner's employment as a result of the condition of PTI requiring her to forfeit her "current employment." Although the timing of the events in this case has resulted in a convoluted scenario, the Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that the material facts are not in dispute.

On October 23, 2013, an Atlantic City jury found the petitioner guilty of third degree theft by deception and fourth degree falsifying or tampering with records.[1] For unknown reasons, the jury verdict was not recorded by the presiding judge. It is undisputed that – had the verdict been recorded – the petitioner would have been required to automatically forfeit her employment with the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2.[2] Based on the jury verdict alone, by letter dated October 30, 2013, the Board wrongfully informed the petitioner that her employment was terminated effective October 23, 2013.

On December 6, 2013, a PTI Order was entered granting the petitioner admission into the PTI program – despite the jury verdict – with one of the conditions being that she forfeit her "current employment." In light of the fact that the Board wrongfully issued the petitioner a termination letter on October 30, 2013, the Commissioner finds that when the petitioner entered into the PTI program in December, 2013, she was then currently employed by the Board. The Commissioner is not persuaded that the exceptions submitted by the petitioner dictate a different result, as the arguments advanced by the petitioner in her exceptions were considered and fully addressed by the ALJ in the Initial Decision. Further, the petitioner's contention that the forfeiture of her "current employment" did not include her employment with the Atlantic City Board of Education is not supported by the record.[3]

It is important to recognize that the Commissioner only has jurisdiction to determine whether the petitioner was lawfully terminated by the Board. The bizarre circumstances surrounding the jury verdict and petitioner's subsequent entry into PTI, coupled with the Board's erroneous termination letter, have complicated this matter. Nonetheless, the resolution of the case before the Commissioner is dictated by the fact that the petitioner agreed to forfeit her "current employment" as a condition of PTI,

[1] The complete procedural history related to the petitioner's arrest and the actions taken by the Board are outlined in the Initial Decision and will not be repeated here.

[2] Under N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(1), forfeiture of public employment is mandatory for a conviction of crime of the third degree or higher.

[3] Despite the fact that petitioner contends she believed she was already terminated by the Board when she agreed to forfeit her current employment as a condition of PTI, a review of the parties' submissions indicates that the parties agree that the Board did not properly terminate the petitioner effective October 23, 2013, because a judgment of conviction was not entered against the petitioner.

and her current employment at the time of the entry of the PTI Order in December 2013 was with the Board.[4] Therefore, the petitioner's employment with the Board was terminated after the PTI Order was entered. To the extent that the parties involved with the PTI Order – including the Atlantic City Prosecutor's Office and the Superior Court Judge – may have had different intentions concerning the terms and conditions of PTI, that analysis is beyond the scope of the Commissioner's jurisdiction. Further, if the petitioner wishes to withdraw her consent to the terms of PTI at this juncture, those efforts must be commenced in Superior Court – to the extent authorized by law – as the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction over the PTI program.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition of appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

[4] It should be noted that the petitioner has pointed to no other employment that the PTI could have been conditioned upon and the petitioner did not file a petition of appeal after the Board issued the October 30, 2013 letter but instead filed a petition in November 2014 when the Board refused to reinstate her following her completion of PTI.

[5] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

KIMBERLYNN JURKOWSKI,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY, AND DONNA L. HAYE, SUPERINTENDENT

Respondents.

Elizabeth Zuckerman, Esq., for petitioner, Kimberlynn Jurkowski, (Zuckerman & Fisher, LLC, attorneys)

James J. Panzini, Esq., for respondent Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City, Donna L. Haye, Superintendent, (Jackson Lewis, P.C., attorneys)

Record Closed: June 4, 2015 Decided: June 29, 2015

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Kimberlynn Jurkowski was found guilty by jury of theft by deception and falsifying or tampering with records. On October 30, 2013, respondent, Atlantic City Board of Education (Atlantic City BOE or district) through its Superintendent Donna Haye, notified petitioner, after learning of the announcement of the jury verdict, but before the verdict was recorded and filed by the Criminal Court, that she was terminated from her position as a School Library Media Specialist due to her conviction of a disqualifying offense under the criminal forfeiture statute. N.J.S.A. 2C:51-5. No tenure charges were initiated by the district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. Petitioner was granted admission into Pretrial Intervention (PTI), before the jury verdict was entered and recorded by the presiding Judge. Indeed, PTI was expressly conditioned upon petitioner forfeiting her current employment as stated in the PTI Order dated December 6, 2013.

Petitioner seeks her position as a School Library Media Specialist back because she claims to have had "no current employment" when the PTI Order was executed on December 6, 2013. She was already fired by the Atlantic City BOE on October 30, 2013. Thus the PTI condition of employment forfeiture was inapplicable.

The Commissioner determined to treat the matter as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on October 23, 2014.

The Atlantic City BOE filed a motion for summary decision with supporting certifications and exhibits setting forth the undisputed history and facts. For the reasons discussed below, the motion for summary decision is GRANTED in favor of the Atlantic City BOE.

UNDISPUTED BACKGROUND

The September 12, 2014, petition for relief and the motion briefs contain the following undisputed facts. Petitioner was/is employed as a School Library Media Specialist by the Atlantic City BOE. Petitioner attained tenure in that position in 2008.

On July 24, 2012 a warrant was issued for petitioner's arrest on charges of conspiracy, theft by deception, falsification of records and forgery. On August 7, 2012, petitioner was informed by the Atlantic City Superintendent of Schools that she was suspended due to the indictment. On January 10, 2013, the Atlantic City Superintendent of Schools recommended to the Board of Education that petitioner be suspended without pay.

On February 4, 2013, petitioner was offered PTI. However, the County Prosecutor's Office reversed course and eventually opposed petitioner's PTI application because the victim, Hamilton Township School District, strongly opposed petitioner's participation in PTI. Petitioner conspired, by signing and approving falsified tutoring invoices worth $20,000 for her daughter's tutor. The tutor was paid by the Hamilton Township District resulting in theft from the district. Since petitioner was herself a school employee in Atlantic City, her participation in the fraud in Hamilton Township justified her denial into PTI. Consequently, on May 10, 2013, petitioner's PTI application was rejected by the Court.

The criminal trial was held on October 22, 2013, and October 23, 2013. Petitioner was convicted on two counts of the indictment. The jury found petitioner guilty of theft by deception and falsifying or tampering with records. A judgment of conviction was not entered by the trial judge pursuant to R. 3:21-5.

By letter dated October 30, 2013, the Atlantic City Superintendent of Schools notified petitioner that her conviction qualified as an automatic job forfeiture pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-5; also citing, State v Eroclano, 335 N.J. Super. 236 (App. Div. 2000). Petitioner was provided notice that a board meeting was scheduled for November 28, 2013, to ratify the Superintendent's position. Petitioner was informed she could attend the meeting. The Atlantic City BOE did not file tenure charges against petitioner, based upon the jury verdict and the forfeiture statute.

On December 6, 2013, the trial judge reconsidered petitioner's request for the PTI program, after the jury verdict. The trial judge granted petitioner's request for PTI, post trial but before the entry of the judgment of conviction pursuant to R. 3:21-5.

The PTI agreement provides, inter alia, that petitioner shall "forfeit current employment" (Petition; Exhibit C).

Petitioner creatively asserts that she sought and was accepted into the PTI program, knowing that her employment had already ended with the Atlantic City BOE when PTI began. Her plan was to assert that the PTI Agreement/Order regarding forfeiting employment was moot so she could seek reinstatement with the Atlantic City BOE by claiming the PTI condition was inapplicable since she had no "current employment." In other words, the employment forfeiture language in the PTI Order did not apply because she was already terminated.

Petitioner's criminal defense attorney, H. Robert Boney, Jr., submitted a certification dated May 11, 2015, that contradicts petitioner's understanding of the PTI agreement. Therein, Boney states that:

> 4. I fully explained in detail to Jurkowski that by accepting the conditions to enter PTI, she was no longer entitled to reinstatement to seek her position with the Atlantic City Board of Education. Instead she could seek employment with the Atlantic City Board of Education or any other School District but the Board of education was not required to hire her into her prior position or any other position.
>
> 5. It is my understanding that Jill Houck ("Houck"), PTI director for Atlantic County, also explained the general and special conditions of the entry into PTI to Jurkowski. This included specifically advising Jurkowski that she was agreeing to forfeit her position with the Atlantic City Board of Education and not seek reinstatement to that position.

CONCLUSIONS

Forfeiture of public employment is embodied in N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a) and it provides, in relevant part:

> a. A person holding any public office, position, or employment, elective or appointive, under the government of this State or any agency or political subdivision thereof, who is convicted of an offense shall forfeit such office or position if:
>
> (1) He is convicted under the laws of this State of an offense involving dishonesty or of a crime of the third degree or above or under the laws of another state or of the United States of an offense or a crime which, if committed in this State, would be such an offense or crime;
> (2) He is convicted of an offense involving or touching such office, position or employment. . . .

Conversely, tenure is intended to protect teachers from dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 71 (1962)). Accordingly, a tenured teacher may be dismissed for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, only after a hearing in compliance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to-30.1. In order to dismiss a tenured teacher, the underlying charges must be filed with the local board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1. The teacher is given an opportunity to submit a written statement in defense. Ibid. After the board considers the charges, it must determine by majority vote whether there is probable cause to believe the charges are true. If so, the Board must decide whether the charges warrant dismissal or a reduction in salary. Ibid. If the board determines the charges warrant either of those penalties, it must certify and forward the charges to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing. Ibid.

In 2012, the Legislature passed the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey (TEACHNJ). The Act provides at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 that; > upon certification of any charge to the commissioner, the board may suspend the person against whom such charge is made, with or without pay, but, if the determination of the charge by the arbitrator is not made within 120 calendar days after certification of the charges, excluding all delays which are granted at the request of such person, then the full salary (except for said 120 days) of such person shall be paid beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day until such determination is made.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 states:

> Upon receipt of such a charge and certification, or of a charge lawfully made to the commissioner, the commissioner or the person appointed to act in the commissioner's behalf in the proceedings shall examine the charges and certification. The individual against whom the charges are certified shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. Upon a showing of good cause, the commissioner may grant an extension of time. The commissioner shall render a determination on the sufficiency of charges as set forth below within 10 days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges.
> If, following receipt of the written response to the charges, the commissioner is of the opinion that they are not sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall dismiss the same and notify said person accordingly. If, however, he shall determine that such charge is sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall refer the case to an arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of P.L.2012, c.26 (C.18A:6-17.1) for further proceedings, except that when a motion for summary decision has been made prior to that time, the commissioner may retain the matter for purposes of deciding the motion.

The forfeiture language found in N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(g) supersedes the tenure rights of a teaching staff member, if exercised by a court with the power to impose forfeiture. The Commissioner and the local board are relieved of their roll under TEACHNJ if procedural requirements in the forfeiture statute are perfected. To be perfected, a criminal conviction must be signed by the trial judge and entered by the clerk of the court. R. 3:21-5(b); Sassano v BLT Discovery, Inc., 245 N.J. Super. 539 (App. Div. 1991). In Sassano the Court observed:

> As we pointed out in State v. Moore, 178 N.J.Super. 417, 427, 429 *A.*2d 397 (App.Div.), certif. denied, 87 N.J. 406, 434 *A.*2d 1083 (1981), "under R. 3:21-5, a judgment of conviction occurs when the judge signs the sentencing order and it is entered by the clerk." See State v. Womack, 206 N.J.Super. 564, 570, 503 *A.*2d 352 (App.Div.1985), certif. denied, 103 N.J. 482, 511 *A.*2d 658 (1986) (stating that "the judgment is prepared by the clerk and signed by the judge and provides 'finality'"); State v. Robinson, 198 N.J.Super. 602, 603, 487 *A.*2d 1304 (Law Div.1984) (holding that "the judgment is entered following sentencing forthwith by the clerk"); State v. L.R., 167 N.J. Super. 364, 367-368, 400 *A.*2d 877 (Law Div.1979) (stating that "[a] 'conviction' is merely an intermediate step. It is that stage in a criminal proceeding at which a finding of guilt is made by the court or jury as a result of a trial on the merits or the defendant's entry of a plea of guilty. . . . A 'judgment of conviction' is a formal document which includes the defendant's plea, the verdict and the court's sentence"); cf. State v. Pratts, 145 N.J.Super. 79, 93-94, 366 *A.*2d 1327 (App.Div.1975), aff'd o.b., 71 N.J. 399, 365 *A.*2d 928 (1976) (holding that having signed the judgment of conviction, the judge thereafter had no authority to increase a legal sentence).
> Sassano, 245 N.J. Super. at 546.

It's obvious that the Atlantic City BOE anticipated that the trial judge was going to enter a judgment of conviction after the (guilty) jury verdict on October 23, 2013. The Atlantic City BOE equated the jury verdict as the legal equivalent of a judgment of conviction and forfeiture, negating the need for tenure charges. In a letter dated October 30, 2013, the Superintendent of Schools stated that "your employment with the Atlantic City Board of Education (Board) was automatically terminated effective October 23, 2013, the date on which you were convicted . . ." This conclusion was incorrect because the trial judge did not record (perfect) the jury verdict pursuant to R. 3:21-5(b).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner was never subject to a tenure proceeding resulting in her termination up to and until the PTI Order was entered. Nor was the criminal jury verdict ever perfected by the trial judge triggering the forfeiture of her public employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2. Therefore, when petitioner accepted the terms of PTI on December 6, 2013, she was still legally employed by the Atlantic City BOE, because the tenure process was not completed. And as a condition to her admission into PTI, petitioner had to forfeit her "current" employment (i.e. her rights to a hearing under tenure law). Since petitioner was not "already" terminated by either statutory forfeiture or statutory tenure proceedings, she was technically and legally employed with the Atlantic City BOE on December 6, 2013. Therefore, all the terms of the PTI Order were applicable on December 6, 2013, and petitioner agreed to forfeit her "current employment" with Atlantic City BOE, for which she remained entitled to, on this date. The Superintendent's October 23, 2013, letter stating petitioner was terminated due to forfeiture law was null and void because the guilty verdict was not perfected by the trial judge. The superintendent, in the absence of a perfected judgment of conviction/forfeiture, had no right to dispense with the statutory tenure protections afforded teaching staff members. Therefore, the superintendant's October 30, 2013, termination letter was ineffective in discharging petitioner because she retained tenure rights (until the PTI order was signed).

STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

The OAL rules governing motions for summary decision are found at N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These provisions mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 and the Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant summary decision should be based on the papers presented as well as any affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

I am mindful that petitioner claims that she was already terminated before she entered the PTI program, thus she had no "current employment" to forfeit. Indeed, her own attorney and apparently the director of the PTI program informed petitioner that she was not entitled to "legal" reinstatement with the Atlantic City BOE under the terms of the PTI order.

While the above-mentioned arguments by petitioner might present contested factual issues, I have addressed the motion solely on the legal side to avoid a trial by affidavit. Petitioner was not fired at the time she entered PTI and thus she had a legal right to "current employment" under title 18A and her title 18A tenure rights were forfeited pursuant to the PTI Order.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is granted. Petitioner, pursuant to the PTI Order dated December 6, 2013, was terminated from her employment with the Atlantic City BOE effective on said date, obviating the requirement for tenure charges or hearings.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re: Shane Matthews & Ethan Matthews

Dear Mr. Matthews:

On behalf of the Hamilton Township Board of Education ("Board"), please be advised that the Board approved the settlement in this matter. Pursuant to the agreed upon terms, the Matthews's shall pay $100.00 for tuition reimbursement and withdraw their petition challenging the Board's residency determination (OAL Docket No.: EDU 11337-2014 S; Agency Ref. No.: 231-8/14). This payment shall resolve any and all issues between the Matthews's and the Board relative to residency existing prior to and on the date of November 7, 2013. The parties shall have and retain any and all rights and remedies relative to any future residency issues occurring on or after November 7, 2013.

The aforementioned payment of $100.00 shall be due and payable within thirty (30) days. Please make a check payable to "Hamilton Township Board of Education" and deliver same to my office at the above address. Please execute below and return an original signed copy to me in the envelope provide. The Board President, Anthony Celentano, shall execute on behalf of the Board and a fully executed copy will be provided to you.

Very truly yours,

Record Closed: September 10, 2015 Decided: September 10, 2015

BEFORE MICHAEL ANTONIEWICZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, L.C. and P.C., the parents of L.C., a student who is currently serving a long-term suspension from the Sayreville Memorial High School, have filed a petition for emergent relief, challenging the actions of the Sayreville Board of Education for failing to hold a hearing regarding L.C.'s long term suspension from the Sayreville Public School System. Petitioners seek to have all school charges dismissed against L.C. and immediately reinstate him into school with all rights and privileges as a student in good standing and to permit L.C. to return as a member of the football team and to immediately be allowed to participate with the football team. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on September 3, 2015 for emergent relief. Oral argument was held on September 10, 2015, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the underlying facts as set forth in the verified complaint, answer and certifications and supporting documents filed for and in opposition to the application, I FIND:

Student L.C. is currently serving a long-term suspension that was confirmed by the Sayreville Board of Education (Board) on October 23, 2014. On October 10, 2014, L.C. was charged with Conspiracy to Commit Aggravated Criminal Sexual Contact, Aggravated Assault and Hazing by the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office.

On October 13, 2014, L.C. was suspended from school and charges with violating the Student Code of Conduct by engaging in acts of disruptive behavior, malicious mischief, physical misconduct, assault, threatening violence and harassment/intimidation/bullying. On October 16, 2014, petitioners were advised that the Board would be conducting a hearing on August 21, 2014. On October 21, 2014, petitioner's attorney, Kevin Flood, Esq., postponed the hearing "indefinitely pending the outcome of the proceedings against him" via a letter on that date by further stating: "By requesting this indefinite adjournment, we hereby waive the mandatory thirty (30) day requirement pursuant N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(a)10.iii, regarding time limitations of such hearings on long-term suspensions and ask that educational services continue until a hearing on said long-term suspension can be conducted after final disposition on the matters instituted by the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office. Finally, it is important to note that by making this adjournment request, L.C. is in no way waiving any due process rights under the Code of Student Conduct with regard to his long-term suspension from the Sayreville Public School System."

On August 17, 2015, L.C.'s criminal matter was fully resolved whereby he was found guilty of simple assault and disorderly conduct. On August 13, 2015, the Board scheduled a hearing on this matter to take place on August 31, 2015. The parties appeared for the hearing, based on the petitioners' attorney's position that use of certain evidence would result in criminal charges against a Detective as a witness and the Board's attorney. The hearing was adjourned until an unscheduled date as the Board sought an Order from Judge Hyland, who heard the underlying criminal matter, to permit the Board to elicit testimony from Detective witness and to use Middlesex County Prosecutor's office investigation materials during L.C.'s disciplinary hearing. It has been represented that Judge Hyland will render a decision on this motion on Tuesday, September 15, 2015.

It was the position of the Board to schedule L.C.'s disciplinary hearing soon after the issuance of the ruling on the motion by Judge Hyland. Attorney for petitioners had no complaints regarding the educational services being provided to L.C. during oral argument and instead raised issues regarding L.C.'s lack of social interaction and his inability to participate in varsity football.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted "where authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case . . . ." My determination in this matter is further governed by the standard for emergent relief set forth by our Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 102 N.J. 50 (1986), as follows:

> The judge may order emergency relief . . . if the judge determines from the proofs that:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted.

2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled.

3. The petitioner has a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the relief is not granted.

The moving party must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe v. DeGioia standard to establish an entitlement to emergent relief. Id. at 132-35. I CONCLUDE that petitioner cannot meet their burden under the Crowe v. DeGioia standard. In fact, petitioners address this standard only in passing and with no specificity.

Harm is irreparable when there can be no adequate after-the–fact remedy in law or in equity; or where monetary damages cannot adequately restore a lost experience. Nabel v. Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, EDU 8026-09 (June 24, 2009); Tomlin v Lower Cape May Regional Board of Education, EDU 4952-09. Petitioners view L.C.'s participation in varsity football as jeopardizing his ability to obtain a football scholarship to attend college. There is little debate that a monetary claim could be made to obtain funding to make up the potential loss of a scholarship although the petitioners' counsel seem to raise a delay in time as a barrier to obtaining such relief. I FIND that the issues raised by the petitioners as "irreparable harm" can be addressed through a claim for monetary damages, if necessary. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that petitioners have not met their burden of demonstrating irreparable harm.

Furthermore, petitioners cannot demonstrate that the law is settled in their favor, or the likelihood of succeeding on the merits of their claims. Furthermore, the law is well settled in favor of the Board, which has broad discretion to take the actions needed to effectively operate its public schools. The Commissioner will not overturn the decision of a local board in the absence of a finding that the action below was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. T.B.M. v. Moorestown Bd. of Educ., EDU 2780-07, Initial Decision (February 6, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, citing Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581(1966). The Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the board of education, whose exercise of its discretion may not be disturbed unless shown to be "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Our courts have held that "[w]here there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached." Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199–200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974). Thus, at the hearing petitioners will have to demonstrate that the Board acted in bad faith, or in utter disregard of the circumstances before it. T.B.M. v. Moorestown, supra, EDU 2780-07, Initial Decision (February 6, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>.

With my finding as fact that August 17, 2015 is the proper date for the final disposition on the criminal matters, the Board has until September 16, 2015 to hold the disciplinary hearing on L.C. As was admitted by L.C. at oral argument, with my acceptance of the August 17, 2015 date, this application for emergent relief is not ripe on this date.

I cannot find that the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(10)(iii) because as of the time the petitioners filed their application for emergent relief, there was still time available to the Board to hold a hearing within thirty (30) days of the final disposition of L.C.'s criminal matter, i.e., August 17, 2015. In fact, the petitioners must shoulder at least some of the blame for the delay of the disciplinary hearing by raising the issue of criminal liability to the Detective witness and the Board's counsel pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60h. It was prudent for the Board's attorney to seek an order via motion from Judge Hyland once this issue was raised.

I CONCLUDE, based on the record developed for this emergent application, that petitioners are not likely to be able to demonstrate that the actions of this Board were induced by improper motives, or were taken in utter disregard of the circumstances before it.

Finally, a balancing of the equities militates against granting the relief sought by the petitioners. The rights of this petitioner are less weighty than those of the Board because participating in football is a privilege. See M.A.A. v Edison Bd. of Educ., EDU 4134-98, Initial Decision (May 29, 1998), aff'd, Comm'r (June 12, 1998), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; N.B. v Gloucester Bd. of Educ., EDU 6740-11 Initial Decision (June 14, 2011) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. Although I entirely appreciate why he so strongly wishes to participate, L.C. has no right to participate prior to a disciplinary hearing which I find the Board still has time to conduct, and for this reason petitioners cannot demonstrate harm weighty enough to tip the balance in favor of a grant of extraordinary relief. Conversely, the Board has a strong and valid interest in the effective and orderly operation of its schools.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the request for emergent relief must be denied.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' request for emergency relief is hereby DENIED.

This decision on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days, this recommended decision shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals the determination of the respondent, Orange Board of Education (the Board), that she is not domiciled in its district. The Board seeks to remove petitioner's nephew, S.B., from its schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), and demands tuition reimbursement.

Petitioner filed an appeal with the Department of Education (the Department) on June 16, 2015. The Board filed an answer and counterclaim on July 10, 2015. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on July 13, 2015. A hearing was conducted on August 26, 2015, at which time the record closed.

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

There are no facts in dispute and I FIND as follows:

1. D.R. is the legal guardian of her nephew, S.B., who is a rising senior.

2. S.B. has attended the Orange Schools for his entire educational career.

3. D.R. is no longer domiciled in Orange. She understands that, as a result, her nephew is no longer eligible to attend the Orange public schools.

4. D.R. has agreed to withdraw S.B. from the Orange schools, and transfer him to the school district where she will now reside, but she reserves the right to reenroll him in Orange as an affidavit student, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 38-1(b)(1). D.R. indicated that a family member who is domiciled in Orange may be willing to keep S.B. in her home gratis, and may be willing to execute an affidavit to that effect.

5. If the proper affidavits are filed, and S.B. in fact resides with the family member "gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term," as required by the statute, the Board agrees to accept his reenrollment and permit S.B. to attend the Orange public schools.

6. In view of D.R.'s willingness to withdraw her nephew, and in view of her clear understanding that he is not presently eligible to attend the Orange schools, the Board has agreed to withdraw its counterclaim for tuition.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of her parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). During an on the record conversation, D.R. indicated that she fully understood that he nephew is not presently eligible to attend the Orange schools, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The parameters of a legally proper affidavit arrangement under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) was explained to D.R. on the record. Both parties reserve their rights under law in the event of a dispute regarding the validity of the affidavit arrangement.

In light of the foregoing, the parties asked that I reduce their understandings to an ORDER, and I additionally FIND as follows:

1. D.R. and the Board, via counsel, have voluntarily agreed to settle the within matter and have disclosed the settlement terms orally on the record, per N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(a)(2). These terms are as set forth herein.

2. This settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

MICHAEL AZZARA, STATE MONITOR,	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This case shall proceed at the OAL to a plenary hearing, or such other proceedings as the ALJ and the parties determine, to resolve the underlying claim on the merits.

Michael Inzelbuch, Esq., appearing on behalf of intervenor Mekor Hachinuch School

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood (Board), alleges that respondent, State Monitor Michael Azzara (Monitor or Azzara), improperly overturned the Board's decision to award a contract for in-class resource programming (ICRP) services to Catapult Learning, LLC (Catapult).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 28, 2015, the petitioner filed a petition for emergent relief with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education (DOE). The respondent filed a reply on September 7, 2015.

On August 31, 2015, Catapult filed a motion to intervene. On September 9, 2015, Mekor Hachinuch School, a nonpublic school, filed a motion to intervene.[1]

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on September 1, 2015, to be heard as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Oral argument was heard on the emergent application on September 9, 2015.

FINDINGS OF FACT[2]

In June 2015 the Board sought requests for proposals (RFP) pursuant to the competitive contracting process authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.1 et seq. from interested vendors for the provision of ICRP services to be provided to eligible nonpublic school students in accordance with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). The Board indicated that contracts could be awarded to multiple vendors.

[1] Counsel for the proposed intervenors were permitted to argue at the hearing on emergent relief.
[2] These facts were taken from the parties' briefs, as no testimony was taken on the date of the hearing on emergent relief.

Three vendors submitted proposals for services: Tree of Knowledge Learning Center, Inc. (TOK); Tender Touch Educational Services (TT);[3] and Catapult.

The school district convened a selection committee[4] to review the proposals and ensure they were consistent with the specifications set forth in the RFP. After evaluation, the committee scored the proposals. While deficiencies were noted in all of the proposals, all proposals scored within five to six points of one another. The committee issued an evaluation report reflecting the scores, and recommended that two of the vendors (TT and TOK) receive contracts. Catapult, a previous service provider, was advised that due to a number of identified material deficiencies in its proposal, it would not be awarded a contract.

Catapult responded with a full explanation of the RFP and indicated that many of the identified deficiencies were inaccurate. The Board's attorney advised the Monitor that the remaining issues in Catapult's response were not material and were subject to cure through the provisions of a contract.

The Board meeting was scheduled for August 5, 2015. The contract awards to TOK and TT as vendors for the ICRP were placed on the agenda, but the meeting was canceled due to a lack of a quorum. The Monitor exercised his authority to approve items on that evening's agenda, including the ICRP contract awards to TT and TOK.

In the interim before the next Board meeting, the Board became concerned that TT and TOK would not be able to perform because Catapult advised that many of the specialized instructors in its employ had signed non-compete agreements and would therefore not be available to TT or TOK to provide the services those companies said they could provide for the upcoming school year.[5] The Monitor discounted this conclusion and indicated that the two approved vendors had stated that they could perform. In addition, the Monitor felt that the non-compete agreements were not enforceable.

[3] Neither TT nor TOK appeared at the hearing, although counsel advised that they had received notice of these proceedings.
[4] The Committee included the supervisor of related services, the supervisor of special education, and the supervisor of Lakewood Early Childhood Center.
[5] The Lakewood nonpublic schools started on August 31, 2015.

The Board met again on August 26, 2015, at which time a motion was made from the floor to award a contract to Catapult in addition to the contracts awarded to TT and TOK.[6] The motion carried by a majority of the Board. The Monitor overrode the motion.[7]

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Special Monitor

The School District Fiscal Accountability Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-54 to -60, was passed to address the problem of some school districts' failure to correct serious deficiencies identified in their annual audits. The Act authorizes the Commissioner to appoint a monitor "to provide direct oversight of a board of education's business operations and personnel matters." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-55(a). Once appointed, the Monitor shall

> (1) oversee the fiscal management and expenditures of school district funds, including, but not limited to, budget reallocations and reductions, approvals of purchase orders, budget transfers, and payment of bills and claims;
>
> (5) have authority to override a chief school administrator's action and a vote by the board of education on any of the matters set forth in this subsection, except that all actions of the State monitor shall be subject to the education, labor, and employment laws and regulations . . . .

[6] As of September 9, 2015, neither TT nor TOK had executed contracts for the ICRP services. Counsel indicated that TOK had received a contract, and that TT had signed a letter of intent to perform until the contract was executed.

[7] The Monitor expressed concern whether a contract awarded to Catapult would have violated the Public Schools Contracts Law, and also expressed concern over possible litigation from TT and TOK if an additional vendor were approved that had not met selection criteria. The Board expressed its concern over possible litigation threatened by Catapult if it were not awarded a contract.

The Monitor is subject to the supervision of the Commissioner and provides oversight until such time as the Commissioner determines that "the necessary local capacity and fiscal controls have been restored to school district operations." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-55(e).

In Board of Education of Pleasantville v. Riehman, EDU 11454-10, Initial Decision (May 31, 2011), rejected, Comm'r (July 13, 2011), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, aff'd, No. A-5928-10 (App. Div. February 11, 2013), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>, the school board had rejected the advice of its counsel to settle a pending whistleblower lawsuit. The Monitor overturned the Board's decision and the Board appealed. The administrative law judge (ALJ) agreed with the Board that the Monitor had exceeded his statutory authority because the enabling legislation, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-55, did not expressly authorize him to settle lawsuits. The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's analysis and upheld the Monitor's authority to override a school board's refusal to settle a lawsuit that, in the Monitor's reasonable estimation, could have significant financial exposure for the Board. The Appellate Division affirmed the Commissioner's decision, finding that a history of fiscal instability by a board warrants the limits of exercise of those powers through oversight by the Monitor.

In Rankins v. Board of Education of Pleasantville, EDU 6819-09, Initial Decision (August 3, 2010), rejected, Comm'r (October 26, 2010), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, aff'd, No. A-1662-10 (App. Div. October 22, 2012), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/>, the Monitor terminated an employee over the objection of the Board of Education. The ALJ vacated the Monitor's action, which was rejected by the Commissioner, who took an expansive view of the Monitor's powers. While a Monitor does not have "unfettered power" to make decisions for the district, he must "have fiscal or financial concerns or motivations in order to appropriately overturn a Board's decision." In affirming, the Appellate Division also noted the Broad powers of the State Monitor conferred by statute and rejected the argument that the Monitor has no authority to override a board's exercise of its own power because no statute permits that action.

The conclusion to be drawn is that the Monitor exercises broad powers of oversight of a Board's actions wherever fiscal considerations are a concern. The standard to be used in determining whether a Monitor's decisions are ultra vires, as the Board suggests, is whether the Monitor acted "arbitrarily and capriciously." Arbitrary and capricious means acting without rational basis, a willful and unreasoning action without consideration of and in disregard of circumstances. J.P. and M.P. ex rel M.P. and J.P. v. Bd. of Educ. of South Brunswick, EDU 4969-01, Initial Decision (December 17, 2002), adopted, Comm'r (February 3, 2003), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

Intervention

Catapult has filed a motion to intervene in this matter, and, indeed, the Board and the Monitor have expressed no objection to Catapult's intervention. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1(a) provides that "any person or entity not initially a party, who has a statutory right to intervene or who will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome of a contested case, may on motion, seek leave to intervene."

Catapult claims that it has a legitimate interest to protect in this matter which is not the same as the interest of the Board. It contends that the action of the Monitor resulted in its being deprived of economic benefit, as well as the students being deprived of continuity of services. Catapult contends that the Monitor acted ultra vires in depriving it of the opportunity to correct any deficiencies in its bid, if indeed there were in fact any significant deficiencies from the other bids that were accepted. To that extent, Catapult has a different position from the Board: the Board does not contend that there were errors in the bidding process; rather, it contends that any deficiencies in the bidding process could be corrected by the contracts offered to all three successful bidders. Catapult, on the other hand, argues that it is in a superior position to provide the services required by the Board, having adequate personnel to meet the demands of the student population.

Accordingly, I will permit Catapult to intervene.

Mekor Hachinuch School, a nonpublic school, has also filed a motion to intervene. It contends that it will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome of this case, in that its students will be deprived of the specialized instructors, aides and teachers previously assigned to the school. It contends that the school year has started and that no services are being provided to the students of the school. At this time, the school has presented no sufficient reasons that would permit it to intervene. The Board is actively protecting the interest of students within the district, including students of this school, by seeking to expand the number of vendors who provide services to the students. Nothing has been presented to indicate that the school's interest is so disparate from the Board's or so unique as to require intervention at this time.

Accordingly, the school will not be permitted to intervene at this time.

Emergent Relief

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 provides for emergent relief or stay as follows:

> (a) Where the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education or any other party subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner, the petitioner may include with the petition of appeal, a separate motion for emergent relief or a stay of that action pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case.
>
> (b) A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
> [See also N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6.]

For emergent relief to be granted, the petitioner must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe test by clear and convincing evidence, a "particularly heavy" burden. Rinaldo v. RLR Inv., LLC, 387 N.J. Super. 387, 396 (App. Div. 2006) (quoting Punnett v. Carter, 621 F.2d 578, 582 (3d Cir. 1980)); see also Guaman v. Velez, 421 N.J. Super. 239, 247–48 (App. Div. 2011).

The Board seeks injunctive relief in the form of a determination that the Monitor acted arbitrarily and capriciously when he overruled the Board's decision to offer a contract to Catapult. The effect would be a return to the "status quo" of the three vendors being given contracts for the provision of ICRP services.

As to the first requirement, that the petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted, the Board contends that students' educational programs will be harmed if the Monitor's decision is permitted to stand, because it has received information that Catapult had entered into non-compete agreements with its individual service providers, thus making them unavailable to be hired by TT or TOK.[8] After receiving this information, the Board endeavored to award a third contract to Catapult, contending that any deficiencies noted in the bid could be corrected in the contract, only to be denied by the Monitor.

The Monitor contends that he followed the recommendation of the selection committee in awarding the contracts to TT and TOK, and finding deficiencies in Catapult's proposal. No evidence has been presented that TT and TOK will be unable to perform. Indeed, at this point it is conjecture, based upon allegations that Catapult will attempt to enforce non-compete agreements.

[8] This position essentially assumed that TT and TOK would default on their contract requirements because of the unavailability of personnel held to their non-compete clauses with Catapult.

The Board also contends that the actions of the Monitor in overruling the Board are harmful to it because the Board will be "forced to abide by an illegal and capricious action." The Monitor contends that his action in overruling the Board is not harmful in and of itself. The Board's positon assumes that what the Monitor did was arbitrary and capricious, but this can only be determined after a full hearing.

Catapult contends that it will be irreparably harmed if the Monitor's decision is not vacated, as it will be denied economic profits as the result of its not being able to enter into a contract with the Board to provide services. However, loss of anticipated profits is not a basis for emergent relief. Contracts are not a guarantee; any business must recognize the risk that it will not be awarded every contract for which it applies. See Pritchard Industries, Inc., v. State-Operated School District of Paterson, EDU 9297-09, Order (September 25, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

As to the second requirement, that the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled, both parties correctly note the dearth of cases regarding the power of the Monitor to overrule school-board decisions. The Monitor has authority in fiscal affairs, but, as noted above, it is "not unfettered." While the Board is correct that the New Jersey Constitution provides that students within this state are entitled to a thorough and efficient education, and that the IDEA provides that students with special needs have a right to services designed to meet those needs, that is not the legal standard to be used in determining whether the Monitor misused his authority when he overruled the Board. Indeed, given past rulings of the Commissioner as affirmed by the Appellate Division, the Monitor's authority is broad and wide-ranging when a matter has fiscal involvement, such as prevention of costly litigation.

As to the third requirement, the petitioner's likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim, it has not been established. The law in this area is sparse, but it does provide the Monitor with a broad range of authority in fiscal matters. The Board and Catapult must demonstrate that the Monitor acted ultra vires when he followed the recommendations of the Selection Committee and overruled the Board by declining to alter the bidding process to permit a third vendor access to the same contracts. Such proof of arbitrary and capricious action can only come after a hearing in this matter.

Based on the information provided by the petitioner and Catapult, it cannot presently be concluded that the petitioner and Catapult have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

As to the balancing of the equities of the situation and the interests of the parties, the Board and the Monitor have an interest in seeing that the children of Lakewood receive the education and special services they are entitled to by law. They both have an interest in ensuring that these educational services are timely provided in a financially sound manner in accordance with the bidding and selection process. There is no indication that either the Board or the Monitor did not attempt to act in the best interests of the students and the district in reaching their separate conclusions about the acceptance or the rejection of the bids.

Catapult has a financial interest in obtaining a contract from the Board so that it may continue to provide services and obtain the economic benefit of the contract.

Balancing the equities at this juncture, there is no indication that the two vendors approved by the selection committee and the Board cannot perform in accordance with the proposed contracts. If they cannot meet the demands of the contracts, then indeed, the matter may yet become emergent and the petitioner may then re-apply for emergent relief.

In conclusion, neither the Board nor Catapult has demonstrated that it is entitled to emergent relief. The application sought—to overrule the decision of the Monitor on the basis that he was without authority to so act—is denied.

ORDER

Having concluded that the Board has not satisfied the four requirements for emergent relief, the petitioner's request for emergent relief is DENIED.

The matter shall be scheduled for hearing forthwith.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

NATURE OF DISPUTE

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b), on April 21, 2015, Petitioner, Elizabeth Board of Education filed with the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies & Disputes, tenure charges against Respondent, Philip Gomez, seeking to dismiss him from employment as the Principal of Elmora School No. 12 for conduct unbecoming, insubordination and/or other just cause warranting dismissal and/or reduction in salary, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et. seq. On or about April 27, 2015, Counsel for Respondent filed an Answer with the Bureau of Controversies & Disputes.

By correspondence dated May 7, 2015, Kathleen Duncan, Director, Bureau of Controversies & Disputes notified the parties' respective legal representatives of the undersigned Arbitrator's appointment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as amended, P.L. 2012, c. 26. On June 12, 2014, Petitioner filed a Motion to Suppress Respondent's Defenses/Evidence. The Motion was resolved by way of adjourning the June 16, 2015 hearing and commencing the hearing on June 24, 2015. The hearing continued and both parties completed their respective case-in-chief on July 29, 2015. The hearing was held open for rebuttal testimony.

However, on or about August 24, 2015, the parties' legal representatives informed the undersigned via email that a settlement of the dispute was apparent. Subsequently, on September 22, 2015, the parties' legal representatives submitted for my approval a Stipulation of Settlement, Resignation and Release executed by and between the parties' authorized representatives on September 14, 2015 (Petitioner) and September 17, 2015 (Respondent) (attached hereto and made a part hereof).

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

The undersigned has carefully reviewed the terms of settlement and the record evidence. I hereby find and conclude that the criteria governing the approval for a settlement of a tenure proceeding have been met pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D., 842, 846). The nature of the charges filed against Respondent does not warrant a determination on the merits in order to protect the public interest. Both parties will mutually benefit from the settlement in terms of avoiding the additional costs of litigation and without prejudice to the education of students at Elmora School No. 12 or to Respondent's potential desire to seek employment in another school district. For all these reasons, I hereby approve the September 17, 2015 settlement of this matter, thereby closing the record in Agency Docket No. 84-4/15.

Respectfully submitted,

Joseph Licata

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST PHILIP GOMEZ,	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
	AGENCY DKT. NO.: 84-4/15
BY THE ELIZABETH BOARD OF EDUCATION, UNION COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.	BEFORE JOSEPH LICATA, ARBITRATOR
	TENURE HEARING
	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT, RESIGNATION AND RELEASE

This Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is entered into and effective as of the 20th day of August, 2015 (the "Effective Date"), by and between the Elizabeth School District Board of Education ("Elizabeth Board of Education") and Philip Gomez ("Mr. Gomez" or "Employee").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, the Elizabeth Board of Education is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, which is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of said school district; and

WHEREAS, the Elizabeth Board of Education has its administrative offices located at 500 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey 07028; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Gomez, a tenured principal employed by the Elizabeth Board of Education, has his current address located at 23 Iris Circle, Glen Rock, New Jersey 07452-3428; and

WHEREAS, on or about March 26, 2015, Olga Hugelmeyer, Superintendent of Schools, filed Sworn Tenure Charges against Mr. Gomez, together with a Sworn Statement of Evidence in support of the charges, with the Elizabeth Board of Education; and

WHEREAS, the parties, wishing to resolve the tenure charges presently pending against Mr. Gomez without the need for further litigation, hereby stipulate to settle the same, subject to the terms and conditions as set forth herein; and Mr. Gomez intends to, and by executing this Agreement, hereby does resign effective June 30, 2016; and

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties hereby agree, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, as follows:

1. TENURE CHARGES TO BE ABANDONED/NO FURTHER BOARD ACTION

The Elizabeth Board of Education agrees that upon execution of the within Agreement by the parties and Mr. Gomez's fulfillment of the obligations as set forth herein, that the subject tenure charges shall be abandoned and that no further action shall be initiated by the Elizabeth Board of Education regarding the underlying charges. The Elizabeth Board of Education fully reserves all rights in the event this Agreement is breached by Mr. Gomez, as well as with respect to any third party claims that may be made against the Elizabeth Board of Education as a result of any acts and/or omissions by Mr. Gomez during his employment with the Elizabeth Board of Education.

2. IRREVOCABLE RESIGNATION FROM EMPLOYMENT

Mr. Gomez has tendered his irrevocable resignation effective June 30, 2016, a copy of which is attached hereto as Attachment A, from all employment with the Elizabeth Board of Education, subject only to the Elizabeth Board of Education's fulfillment of its obligations as set forth herein. In the interim, Mr. Gomez shall be on an administrative leave, without pay and benefits, through June 30, 2016. Mr. Gomez agrees that he will not seek any future employment or consultant relationship with the Elizabeth Board of Education in perpetuity and that the Elizabeth Board of Education has no obligation, contractual or otherwise, to re-hire or re-employ him.

3. RELEASE

In exchange for the above consideration, Mr. Gomez, his heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, up until the date of execution of the instant Agreement by both parties, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Elizabeth Board of Education, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers and administrators, its attorneys, agents and employees, personally and officially, as well as their successors, and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys' fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this Agreement, and any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions; Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act; the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Equal Pay Act; the Workers' Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the Employer-Employee Relations Act; any collective negotiations agreement; any common law claim and any and all other claims, that could be initiated in any venue, for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim.

Specifically exempted from this release are any claims arising under the Workers' Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq., and for health insurance continuation coverage under and pursuant to Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (referred to hereinabove as "COBRA"). Mr. Gomez represents that he has not filed and does not intend to file a Workmen's Compensation claim related to his employment with the Board. This release does not limit Mr. Gomez's right to seek indemnification, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, with respect to a claim filed against him for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as an employee of the Elizabeth Board of Education. The parties are not aware of the existence of any such claims.

It is expressly understood that the arrangement herein is predicated exclusively upon the special circumstances of this matter and shall not be construed to represent any policy or procedure of the Elizabeth Board of Education.

4. NO ADMISSIONS

The execution of this Agreement does not constitute an admission or acknowledgement by Mr. Gomez or the Elizabeth Board of Education of any wrongful or otherwise improper conduct, nor as to the liability of any party. The parties mutually acknowledge that this matter has been resolved in good faith, and that this Agreement is entered into solely for the purpose of avoiding the time and expense attendant to any further litigation.

5. COMPENSATION/BENEFITS

Mr. Gomez shall receive a one (1) time lump sum payment of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000.00). Mr. Gomez acknowledges that the Elizabeth Board of Education will not deduct or withhold any amounts from the payment as set forth in the preceding paragraph, but the Elizabeth Board of Education will issue him an IRS form 1099. It is expressly understood and agreed by Mr. Gomez that the Elizabeth Board of Education does not represent or guarantee that taxes should not be paid on any portion of this settlement payment. Mr. Gomez further acknowledges that it is his responsibility to make the necessary tax payments, if any may be required, and he agrees to indemnify and hold the Elizabeth Board of Education harmless with respect to any amounts which should have been paid by him.

Besides the one (1) time lump sum payment and upon the effective date of Mr. Gomez's irrevocable resignation, he shall be entitled to no further compensation, emolument of employment or fringe benefit of any kind and specifically waives his right to same.

The Board shall send this payment to Hyderally & Associates, P.C., counsel for Mr. Gomez, no later than 30 days from the date of Mr. Gomez's execution of this Agreement.

6. NON-DISPARAGEMENT

The parties and their agents shall refrain from public negative comments regarding each other, and each other's employees and/or agents. However, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to limit the Elizabeth Board of Education and its agents' obligation to provide accurate information in response to legitimate requests for public information, nor to provide information requested by various State Agencies, including but not limited to the State Department of Education; the State Board of Examiners and its agents, including copies of the Tenure Hearing documents, witness list and information, proposed exhibits and work-product related thereto; the Division of Pensions and Benefits; and the Unemployment Compensation Board and/or their agents. Further, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as affecting the Parties' ability to testify truthfully or fully.

7. INQUIRIES

The Elizabeth Board of Education agrees, through its Administration, to respond to post-employment inquiries regarding Mr. Gomez by providing solely basic work history such as confirming the dates of Mr. Gomez's employment within the school district, the amount of Mr. Gomez's salary in the final year of his employment, the positions that Mr. Gomez held within the District, and the date of Mr. Gomez's resignation. However, nothing herein shall be deemed to limit the Elizabeth Board of Education's actions in compliance with the Open Public Records Act, or its obligation to respond fully and accurately to any and all inquiries from State agencies such as, without limitation, the Public Employees Retirement System ("PERS"); TPAF; for example. However, the Board would add to the extent such an inquiry and exchange occurs, that the tenure charges were contested by Mr. Gomez, who denied any misconduct and that the Parties resolved the matter during the process wherein the Board abandoned the Tenure Charges and Mr. Gomez resigned.

8. DUE DILIGENCE

Mr. Gomez has indicated that he will file an application for disability retirement benefits ("disability application") with the Division of Pensions and Benefits. Mr. Gomez agrees to file his disability application in accordance with the provisions of Section 1 of this Agreement. Mr. Gomez shall cooperate fully with the Pension Board and/or any other State or Local governmental body and comply promptly and completely with all requests and requirements. The Board too agrees that it will cooperate fully with the Pension Board and/or any other State or Local governmental body; will comply promptly and completely with all requirements and requests; and will not oppose Mr. Gomez's application.

Mr. Gomez acknowledges that the Elizabeth Board of Education has no decision-making authority with regard to his disability application and that his resignation is not contingent upon its approval. Mr. Gomez further acknowledges that his employment with the Board shall terminate no later than July 1, 2016, whether or not his disability application is approved by the State. In the event that it is approved with an effective date that is earlier in time than July 1, 2016, then he shall immediately advise Harold E. Kennedy, Jr., Business Administrator/Board Secretary to the Elizabeth Board of Education, and his administrative leave and employment shall terminate as of the effective retirement date. Mr. Gomez shall have an ongoing duty to keep the Board fully and timely apprised of all developments regarding his disability application.

9. REQUIREMENTS PURSUANT TO N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6

A. True copies of the Tenure Charges are annexed hereto as Attachment C.

B. Both parties have freely consented to the within Agreement, as evidenced by their respective signatures below.

C. Both parties have had the benefit of independent legal counsel and have been fully apprised of their rights and obligations, and have indicated their full understanding and acceptance of same, by their respective signatures below.

D. The within settlement will serve the public interest by avoiding the cost of further litigation guarantying the desired result.

E. Mr. Gomez has been advised by his attorney that the Commissioner of Education and the Superintendent of Schools may refer the within matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of his certification. However the Board represents that no such referral has been made as of the date of this Agreement.

F. The parties agree that nothing in the within Agreement shall restrict access to information or records deemed public by law or result in misrepresentation of the fact that Mr. Gomez's separation from service was incident to the prosecution of Tenure Charges against him by the Board. The Elizabeth Board of Education and its agents shall cooperate fully and honestly in responding to requests for information from government agencies and in response to requests from the public for information that it is legally required to provide. However, the Board would add to the extent such an inquiry and exchange occurs, that the tenure charges were contested by Mr. Gomez, who denied any misconduct and that the Parties resolved the matter during the process wherein the Board abandoned the Tenure Charges and Mr. Gomez resigned.

G. The Elizabeth Board of Education has formally approved this Settlement Agreement, subject only to approval by the Arbitrator. A certified resolution is annexed hereto as Attachment B.

10. NO RETALIATION

Mr. Gomez shall take no retaliatory action of any kind against any student, parent, staff, Elizabeth Board of Education member or agent of the Elizabeth Board of Education, and shall cooperate fully and in good faith regarding any inquiries from colleges and/or employers that may be addressed to him regarding his former students.

11. ENTRY ONTO BOARD PROPERTY

Mr. Gomez may enter Elizabeth Board of Education Property when working with a private entity that has Elizabeth Board of Education approval for use of a facility for a particular event, or attendance at a venue or event that is open to the general public. In all other instances, Mr. Gomez shall first receive prior permission from the Superintendent of Schools before entering onto Elizabeth Board of Education Property.

12. SURRENDER OF BOARD PROPERTY

A. Mr. Gomez shall surrender all school keys and property in his possession to the Superintendent of Schools or her designee.

B. The Superintendent of Schools shall arrange an appointment for Mr. Gomez to retrieve his personal property, if necessary.

13. BOARD APPROVAL

This Agreement is subject to Elizabeth Board of Education approval. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Elizabeth Board of Education.

14. ASSENT TO TERMS

A. Mr. Gomez hereby acknowledges that he entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of his rights and that he does so without duress and of his own free will and volition, and that he has consulted with independent legal counsel prior to executing same.

B. Mr. Gomez acknowledges that he was given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement for a period of at least twenty-one (21) days, and was given seven (7) days from the execution of this document to revoke this Agreement by delivering written notification to Stephen M. Bacigalupo, II, Esq., Schwartz Simon Edelstein & Celso, LLC, 100 South Jefferson Road, Whippany, New Jersey 07981.

15. SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS

This Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective successors and assigns.

16. ENTIRE AGREEMENT

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matters herein, and supersedes and integrates any and all prior representations, negotiations, discussions, understandings and agreements, whether oral or written. This Agreement shall not be amended, changed or modified except in a writing signed by all parties. Each party acknowledges that the other party, nor any agent or attorney of the other party, have made any promise, representation or warranty whatsoever, express or implied, not contained in this Agreement to induce it to execute this Agreement.

17. SEVERABILITY

In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, then the remaining portions of this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect, except that the provisions of Paragraph 1 hereinabove shall be deemed to be material and of the essence of this Agreement. Should the provisions set forth in Paragraph 1 be compromised, then the entire Agreement shall be deemed to be null and void and the Elizabeth Board of Education shall be free to proceed with appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including the further prosecution of Tenure Charges.

18. COUNTERPARTS

This Agreement may be executed simultaneously in two (2) or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which, when taken together, constitute one and the same document. The signature of any party to any counterpart shall be deemed a signature to, and may be appended to, any other counterpart.

19. GOVERNING LAW

This Agreement and all provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the signatures and/or seals of the parties or their duly authorized representatives have been set forth on the dates indicated below:

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :

OF JANET SAITO, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

THE TOWN OF WEST NEW YORK, : DECISION

HUDSON COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and incapacity against respondent, a tenured teacher, and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and are sufficient to warrant termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner, dismissed the respondent from her tenured position in petitioner's school district, and forwarded a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as that body deems appropriate.

AGENCY DKT NO. 221-8/15

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF JANET SAITO, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
THE TOWN OF WEST NEW YORK,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioner, John G. Geppert, Jr., Esq.
No Answer filed by or on behalf of Respondent, Janet Saito

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on August 17, 2015 through tenure charges of conduct unbecoming and incapacity certified by Clara Brito Herrerra, Assistant Superintendent of the West New York School District, together with supporting evidence against respondent Janet Saito, a teaching staff member in the petitioner's employ. The petitioner provided respondent with written notice of such certification at her last known address, via Federal Express and U.S. Mail on August 14, 2015.

On August 18, 2015, the Commissioner directed respondent – via both certified and regular mail – to file an answer to the charges. This communication provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would – absent granting of an extension for good cause shown – result in the charges being deemed admitted.

Thereafter, on September 2, 2015, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes ("Bureau") received a letter from respondent dated August 29, 2015, with no evidence of service upon petitioner, indicating that she was "responding to the tenure charges" against herself and tried to reach her attorney "to no avail" but would keep trying. Via correspondence dated September 3, 2015, the Bureau informed respondent that her letter was an insufficient answer to the tenure charges as she failed to admit or deny any of the allegations contained in the petition. Further, respondent was advised that if she needed additional time to file an answer that comports with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(a) through (d), she must request an extension of time in writing from the Bureau. Respondent was also reminded that, before making her request for an extension, she should contact counsel for petitioner to ask him whether he consents. The Bureau informed respondent that she could fax in her written extension request.

Additionally, the Bureau's September 3, 2015 correspondence to respondent stated: "If you choose not to submit a written request for an extension of time to this office by September 10, 2015, and we do not receive an answer to the tenure charges from you or your attorney that comports with the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(a) through (d) by September 10, 2015, the charges brought against you will be deemed admitted and the Commissioner may decide the matter on a summary basis." Respondent was reminded that she was required to serve a copy of any documents submitted upon counsel for petitioner. She was further advised to call the Bureau with any questions.

As of today's date, respondent has not replied to the Bureau's September 3, 2015 correspondence. No answer has been received on her behalf, and no request for an extension of time has been made.

The certified tenure charges and statement of supporting evidence filed by the petitioner in this matter indicate that respondent returned to work following a Workers'

Compensation leave in the Spring of 2013 and – despite the District's efforts to provide reasonable accommodations – her incapacity is directly affecting the educational and/or instructional program of the District and has implicated serious concerns about the safety and hygiene of the school. On or about August 18, 2014, an orthopedic surgeon concluded that respondent is not fit for return to duty as a Special Education teacher. As a result, respondent has not reported to work since on or about September 16, 2014. Her inability to return to work has had and continues to have a negative impact on the school district. Furthermore, the certified charges and evidence also indicate that respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism within the last three years (not including her Workers' Compensation leave) has adversely affected the proper operation of the school, and that respondent failed twice to appear for a psychological evaluation requested by petitioner, despite having been offered transportation.

The charges and supporting evidence also indicate that respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct, including inappropriate classroom behavior, unprofessional comments to students, insensitivity toward students, lack of responsiveness to students, failure to follow school fire drill procedures, repeated failure to report her absences by telephone (which thwarted the District's ability to obtain a substitute teacher and resulted in cancellation of classes on multiple occasions), and failure to file lesson plans, student assignments, student objectives, and grades in a timely manner.

Deeming the allegations to be admitted and noting that respondent has failed to file an answer that comports with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(a) through (d), the Commissioner finds that the charges of incapacity and conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member have been proven and warrant respondent's dismissal from employment.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the petitioner, and respondent is dismissed from her tenured position with the District. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

WHEREAS, the Middlesex Regional Educational Services Commission ("the Board") is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51, which is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of the Middlesex Regional Educational Services Commission; and

WHEREAS, Richard Grillo is employed by the Board as a tenured teaching staff member; and

WHEREAS, certain disputes have arisen between the Board and Mr. Grillo and the parties hereby stipulate to resolve said disputes subject to the terms and conditions set forth herein.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, they agree as follows:

1. Transfer

   Mr. Grillo shall be transferred to a Commission non-public school position effective September 1, 2015. There has been no break in his service with the Commission.

2. Increment Witholding

   The Board will withhold Mr. Grillo's employment and adjustment increment for the 2015-16 school year.

3. No Admissions

   The parties agree that this Agreement does not constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by either party.

4. Withdrawal of Charges

   In exchange for the above consideration, the Board shall withdraw the charges filed with the Commission of Education in or around June, 2015.

5. Employment Status

   Both parties agree that Mr. Grillo shall remain employed by the Commission and further agree that no report to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.4 or any other statute or regulation is required with respect to Mr. Grillo's employment with the Board and no such report is being made. However, upon request, the Board shall provide fully and truthfully all information it may be legally required to provide to any State agency or officer.

6. Non-disparagement

Mr. Grillo and his agents and the Board and its agents shall refrain from any private or public comment regarding each other, and each other's employees and agents.

7. Assent to Terms

The parties hereby acknowledge that they have entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of their rights and obligations and that they were fully informed of the implications of this Agreement by their respective attorneys, and they do so without duress, of their own free will and violation.

8. Entire Agreement

This Agreement represents the entire understanding of the parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record, Stipulation of Settlement, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed – mindful of the Commissioner's July 30, 2015, determination that the prior Stipulation of Settlement submitted did not comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13, as it was neither signed by the Board's attorney, nor contained a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating the Superintendent to sign the Stipulation of Settlement on its behalf. Since the Stipulation of Settlement now contains the signature of the Board attorney, the Commissioner can approve the within Stipulation of Settlement in its present form.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision recommending approval of the parties' settlement as the final decision in this matter is hereby adopted, and the matter is dismissed subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

Record Closed: August 27, 2015 Decided: August 31, 2015

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 12, 2014, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties prepared and submitted a Settlement Agreement and General Release indicating the terms thereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

B.B. o/b/o M.B. Petitioners, v. ESTELL MANOR BOARD OF EDUCATION Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF NEW JERSEY OAL Docket No.: EDU 16345-14 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Settlement Agreement and General Release (the "Agreement") is entered into by and between B.B. o/b/o M.B. ("Petitioners") and the Estell Manor School District Board of Education (the "Board" or "District"), with its mailing office located at 128 Cape May Avenue, Estell Manor, New Jersey 08319, (the Board and Petitioners collectively referred to as the "Parties").

WHEREAS, M.B. is a student who attends the District; and

WHEREAS, a dispute arose regarding the findings of a Harassment, Intimidation, and Bullying investigation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15; and

WHEREAS, the parties in good faith have negotiated concerning this matter and have a desire to settle this matter in an amicable way, hereby agree as follows:

1. Petitioners will withdraw the Petition of Appeal that was filed before the New Jersey Commissioner of Education on November 24, 2014 within fifteen (15) days of the date of this agreement.

2. The school counselor shall meet with M.B. once every other week, and the school counselor or administration shall be made available to M.B. at any time upon M.B.'s request. The school counselor shall discuss with M.B. how M.B. is doing at the school and whether or not other students are treating her appropriately. Any statements or reports by M.B. to the school counselor indicating that M.B. is being, or believes she is being, mistreated, harassed, intimidated or bullied by other students will be shared by the counselor in writing to both the school principal and M.B.'s parents within 24 hours of the counselor's receipt of such information.

3. In consideration of the terms herein, Petitioners hereby release the Board, its employees and agents from all possible claims they may have or have had against the Board relating to anything that has happened up until now, regardless of the forum in which such claims may have been pursuable. In addition, Petitioners voluntarily, willingly and expressly release and hold the Board and its officials, officers, employees, agents and attorneys (collectively the "Board") harmless from any and all claims and demands for compensatory, incidental and punitive damages, attorneys' fees, costs or any other damages that may arise under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. 791 et seq, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. 2101 et seq, and any regulations promulgated under any aforementioned laws, 42 U.S.C. 1983, or any other State or Federal Law, statute, rule or regulation or common law, contract, policy or directive, relating to anything that has occurred through the date of this agreement.

4. The Parties agree that they will not communicate the terms of this agreement to any persons or entities other than their attorneys, accountants, tax advisors, agents and/or any other individuals necessary to effectuate this settlement, and, but only with the written agreement of the other party, others whom a party may desire to advise except any evaluators, medical providers, or treating professionals. The parties may, however, produce or disclose this agreement as required by operation of law or lawful subpoena or order of Court pursuant to official discovery proceedings. If the parties are required to produce or disclose this agreement it will first advise the other parties as soon as practical. Nothing in this paragraph shall limit a party from disclosing the terms of this agreement to any evaluators or medical providers.

5. Petitioners hereby state that they are signing this Agreement voluntarily of their own free will and not under duress or coercion of any kind.

6. This Agreement is subject to Petitioners continued domicile within the District.

7. Each party shall be responsible for their own attorney's fees and expert costs and no party shall be deemed a "prevailing party" as a result of this Agreement.

8. This Agreement shall be construed fairly according to the plain language of its terms and not for or against any party hereto.

9. All parties are bound by this Agreement and each of its provisions. Anyone who succeeds to their rights and responsibilities, such as their successors and assigns are also bound. This agreement is made for the benefit of all parties hereto and all who succeed to their rights and responsibilities, and expressly includes their officials, representatives, employees, agents, attorneys, successors or assigns.

10. This Agreement constitutes the full and complete agreement of the parties hereto with respect to its subject matter, it supersedes any prior or contemporaneous representations, whether oral or written, and it may not be modified or amended except by a written instrument signed by all parties hereto.

11. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey. The Parties agree that the courts of the State or District Court of New Jersey shall be the sole forum in which any legal action concerning or relating to this agreement shall be brought.

12. In the event that any provision of this contract is held to be void or unenforceable by any court or regulatory authority having jurisdiction thereof, such ruling will not affect the validity of this contract; the remaining provisions shall continue to be in full force and effect.

13. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement of the Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and supersedes all prior written or oral and all contemporaneous oral agreements, understandings, and negotiations.

14. This Agreement may be executed in one or more original, emailed or telecopied counterparts, all of which together shall be one instrument, and all of which shall be considered duplicate originals.

15. This Agreement may only be amended in writing by way of a document signed by all Parties and counsel.

WHEREAS, the Warren County Technical School District Board of Education ("the Board") is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, Title 18A, which is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the Warren County Technical School; and

WHEREAS, Virginia Bush ("Ms. Bush") was employed by the Board as a tenured secretary; and

WHEREAS, the parties, now wishing to resolve all matters between them amicably without the need for further disputes, while achieving the goals of both parties, hereby agree and stipulate to resolve such matters;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, they agree as follows:

1. Upon signature by Ms. Bush and approval by the Board at a regularly constituted Board meeting (anticipated to be on August 26, 2015), the Board will issue a check to Ms. Bush in the amount of $48,635.77. This sum is in complete and total satisfaction of any and all claims of whatever nature that Ms. Bush has or could have had against the Board. Said check will be issued and sent to Ms. Bush within 30 days of the Board's approval of the herein Settlement and Release. Upon receipt of the herein above described check, Ms. Bush will withdraw the above captioned matter with prejudice.

2. No Admissions

The parties agree that neither Ms. Bush's nor the Board's approval of this Agreement, constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by either party.

3. Release

In exchange for the above consideration, Ms. Bush, her heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Board, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers, agents, attorneys, administrators, and employees, personally and officially, as well as their successors and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this settlement; any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions, Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Equal Pay Act, the Workers' Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the New Jersey Family Leave Act, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law, the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law, the Employer-Employee Relations Act, any collective negotiations agreement, any common law claim and any and all other claims for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim. Specifically exempted from this release are any claims for health insurance continuation coverage pursuant to Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (referred to hereinabove as "COBRA").

4. Non-disparagement

Ms. Bush and her agents and the Board and its agents shall be precluded from any and all public and private negative comment regarding each other, and each others employees and agents. Upon inquiry from any legitimate source, the Board will provide Ms. Bush's dates of employment and confirm her previous employment.

5. Both parties have freely consented to the within Agreement, as evidenced by their respective signatures below

6. Both parties have had the benefit of independent legal counsel and have been fully apprised of their rights and obligations, and have indicated their full understanding and acceptance of same, by their respective signatures below. For this purpose, Ms. Bush has consulted Ty Hyderally, Esq., and/or Jennifer Vorih, Esq.

7. Assent to Terms

The parties hereby acknowledges that they have entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of their rights and obligations and that they were fully informed of the implications of this Agreement by their respective attorneys, and do so without duress, of their own free will and volition.

Ms. Bush further acknowledges that she was given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement for a period of up to twenty-one (21) days and was given seven (7) days from the execution of this document to revoke this Agreement, by delivering written notification via her attorney to Allan P. Dzwilewski, Esq., 100 South Jefferson Rd., Suite 200, Whippany, New Jersey 07981.

8. Entire Agreement

This Agreement represents the entire understanding of the parties.

9. Severability

In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, then the remaining portions of the Agreement shall remain in full force and effect to the extent that they do not materially impair the consideration upon which the parties have mutually relied.

10. Governing Law

Y.C., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, E.C.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FAIR LAWN, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the residency determination of the respondent Board that his son, E.C., was ineligible for continued enrollment in the Fair Lawn school district. Respondent's determination was based on the results of a residency investigation which indicated that E.C. was domiciled with his mother in Garfield, New Jersey. Petitioner thereafter asserted that E.C. was moving with him to a house in Fair Lawn, which is owned by petitioner's nephew. The Board sought tuition reimbursement for the period from December 8, 2014 through the end of the 2014-2015 school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner's testimony was not credible; although petitioner argued that the house in Fair Lawn was his permanent home because he had no present intent of moving from it, Y.C.'s actions in establishing an address in Fair Lawn in December 2014 were calculated to allow E.C. to attend Fair Lawn schools; the totality of the circumstances indicates that Y.C. is not a permanent resident of Fair Lawn; petitioner purchased a house in Saddle Brook in June 2014, where his girlfriend lives and where he leaves his second vehicle; the house in Fair Lawn is a single family home owned by petitioner's nephew, who resides there with his wife and two young children; and petitioner and his son rent a single room within his nephew's house, which rental did not commence until after petitioner received notice that his son would no longer be eligible to attend Fair Lawn schools because he did not reside within the school district. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that E.C. was eligible for a free education in Fair Lawn schools and, accordingly, Y.C. owes the Board tuition for the 121 school days between December 8, 2014 and the end of the school year on June 24, 2015, in the amount of $10,030.90.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion that the petitioner's son was not entitled to a free public education in Fair Lawn schools for the period in question. The Commissioner ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $10,030.90, representing 121 days of E.C.'s ineligible attendance in Fair Lawn schools at a cost of $82.90 per day. The petition was dismissed.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FAIR LAWN, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1] The petitioner filed exceptions which were received in the Department of Education on September 18, 2015.[2]

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of Fair Lawn for the 2014-2015 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during this time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Fair Lawn. Although the ALJ found that the Board was entitled to reimbursement in the amount of $82.92 per day from December 8, 2014 through the remainder of the 2014-2015 school year, a review of the record indicates that the appropriate reimbursement amount is $82.90 per day. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $10,030.90 ($82.90 per day for 121 days), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b.

[1] The Commissioner was not provided with a transcript of the April 13, 2015 hearing at the OAL.

[2] Petitioner's exceptions were not timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Additionally, there was no indication that petitioner's exceptions were served upon the Board or the Administrative Law Judge. Accordingly, they were not considered by the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL – as modified herein – is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $10,030.90 for tuition costs incurred during the time period that E.C. was ineligible to attend school in Fair Lawn. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the action of the Board of Education of the Borough of Fair Lawn (Board) removing his son from the Fair Lawn School District.

By letter dated December 12, 2014, Superintendent of Fair Lawn Public Schools notified the parent(s)/legal guardian(s) of E.C. that at the December 11, 2014, Board Meeting, the Board adopted a resolution disenrolling and removing E.C. from the Fair Lawn School District. On December 29, 2014, petitioner filed a Pro Se Residency Appeal with the Department of Education. The Board filed its Answer with Separate Defenses on January 23, 2015. On January 28, 2015, the Department transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the office, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, and the rules of procedure established by the Department of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to -1.17. Jurisdiction is conferred under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The case was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 28, 2015.

The hearing was scheduled for March 16, 2015, but was adjourned at petitioner's request, due to the unavailability of a witness. The hearing was rescheduled and held on April 13, 2015. The record was left open for post-hearing submissions. The record closed on June 28, 2015.

TESTIMONY AND FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner, petitioner's nephew, A.L., petitioner's niece, D.A., and petitioner's friend, V.S., testified on behalf of petitioner. Joseph Tedeschi and Thomas Bauernschmidt testified on behalf of the Board.

Preliminary Facts

After due consideration of the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following preliminary facts:

Y.C. and X.C.[1] are the parents of E.C. E.C. is presently seventeen years old, and a junior in high school. E.C.'s birthday is in November. E.C. has a provisional driver's license.

Y.C. and X.C. divorced in 2008, and E.C. and his older sister, A.C., resided primarily with X.C. In 2008, X.C. registered E.C. in Fair Lawn Public Schools, where E.C. has since attended school continuously. Included with the registration package was a portion of the settlement agreement wherein X.C. was named the parent with primary custody. In 2012, X.C. submitted documentation for a change of address to 111 Alpha Street[2] in Fair Lawn. The documentation did not include Y.C.'s information.

In 2010, Y.C. began living with his girlfriend, S.H., at 222 Beta Street[3], Ridgefield, New Jersey, which property is owned by S.H. (Ridgefield property). On June 17, 2014, Y.C. purchased a two-family home at 333 Charlie Street[4], Saddle Brook, New Jersey (Saddle Brook property) for $345,000. (P-10.) Title is held solely by Y.C., but the mortgage on the Saddle Brook property reflects Y.C. and his sister, B.Z., as borrowers. (P-11.) S.H. rented out the Ridgefield property. After some work was completed at the Saddle Brook property, Y.C. and S.H. moved into one of the apartments. Y.C.'s girlfriend continues to live at the Saddle Brook property but does not pay rent because Y.C. did not pay rent when he lived with her. The other apartment is occupied by a tenant, and Y.C.'s sister collects the rent.

Joseph Tedeschi has been employed by the Fair Lawn Board of Education as the director of student registration for approximately twelve years. His job is to insure that every student registered in Fair Lawn has provided the appropriate documentation and verifications that the student is a bona fide resident of Fair Lawn. On November 11, 2014, Tedeschi received a call from Joanne Wilson, the School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, requesting that E.C.'s residency be verified. Tedeschi pulled the documentation from August 19, 2012, wherein X.C. had submitted documentation that she was residing at 111 Alpha Street, and an investigation commenced.

Thomas Bauernschmidt is a private investigator employed by the Fair Lawn school district since 2012. Bauernschmidt is also the investigator for other school districts, and he was previously employed as a police officer for thirty-six years, his highest rank being chief of police. On November 11, 2014, Bauernschmidt was instructed to verify the residency of X.C. and E.C. Bauernschmidt initially observed 111 Alpha Street and determined that E.C. was not living there. On November 21, 2014, Bauernschmidt responded to 444 Delta Street[5] in Garfield, New Jersey (Garfield property), where he observed X.C.'s vehicle and a black Ford pickup truck registered to Y.C. parked in the driveway. Bauernschmidt also observed E.C. exit the home and get into the pickup truck. He followed the pickup truck to Fair Lawn High School. On November 24, 2014, Bauernschmidt returned to the Garfield property and observed E.C. exit the house, get into the black pickup truck and drive to Fair Lawn High School. On November 25, 2014, neither X.C.'s vehicle nor the pickup truck was at 111 Alpha Street.

On December 3, 2014, Tedeschi had a meeting with X.C. because he was unable to verify that she was a Fair Lawn resident. Tedeschi thereafter provided the documentation to Wilson. On December 4, 2014, Wilson sent a letter addressed to the parent/legal guardian of E.C. at 111 Alpha Street, reflecting that E.C. did not meet the criteria prescribed by law to attend the Fair Lawn Public Schools and advising that at the December 11, 2014, Board meeting application would be made to remove E.C. (R-1.) The letter further advised that a hearing should be requested by Monday, December 8, 2014. (R-1.)

On December 5, 2014, at approximately 10:45 a.m., Y.C. contacted Tedeschi's office and told Kristin Campanile that E.C. was moving in with him at 555 Echo Street[6], Fair Lawn, New Jersey. When Tedeschi received this information from Campanile on December 5, 2014, he instructed Bauernschmidt to verify residency at 555 Echo Street.

[5] For confidentiality reasons, a fictitious address is used.
[6] For confidentiality reasons, a fictitious address is used.

555 Echo Street is owned by Y.C.'s nephew, A.L., who purchased the single-family home in May 2014, and has since been residing there with his wife and two young daughters.

On December 8, 2014, after first driving past the Garfield property to verify that the pickup truck was not there, Bauernschmidt conducted surveillance of 555 Echo Street. He arrived at 6:15 a.m.; the pickup truck was not there, but A.L.'s two vehicles were parked in the driveway. He noticed activity inside the home at approximately 7:15 a.m., so he approached and knocked on the door. A.L. answered the door. Bauernschmidt identified himself and showed his badge. He told A.L. he was there to establish the residency of Y.C. and E.C. A.L. invited Bauernschmidt inside. Immediately inside the front door is a door to a flight of stairs. A.L. opened the door and asked E.C. if it was okay to come up. A.L. and Bauernschmidt went upstairs where E.C. was getting ready for school. The room contained two beds and some furniture. Bauernschmidt asked E.C. and A.L. about Y.C., and was advised that Y.C. had not slept there last night.

Bauernschmidt notified Tedeschi's office of his findings. After Tedeschi was notified that Y.C. had not slept at 555 Echo Street on December 7, 2015, Tedeschi contacted Y.C. at approximately 11:30 a.m. or 12:00 p.m. on December 8, 2014. Tedeschi explained to Y.C. that he had a problem, because despite having a lease, he had to physically occupy the home and live there, and that needed to be rectified. Y.C. told Tedeschi that he works long hours and that he had come to the school between 7:30 a.m. and 8:00 a.m. one day, but there was no one available to do the registration. Tedeschi offered to come in early to complete the registration, because it was essential that Y.C. complete and return documentation to prove he was living at 555 Echo Street. Tedeschi did not tell Y.C. about the December 11, 2014, public meeting of the Board.

On December 9, 2014, Y.C.'s truck was not at 555 Echo Street between 5:30 a.m. and 6:30 a.m. However, Bauernschmidt did observe E.C. leave the home and walk to the high school.

On December 18, 2014, at approximately 11:00 p.m., Bauernschmidt did not observe Y.C.'s pickup truck at the Saddle Brook property. On December 19, 2014, at 4:15 a.m., Bauernschmidt observed Y.C.'s pickup truck in the driveway of 555 Echo Street. The pickup was remotely started at 5:18 a.m., idled in the driveway, and then shut off at 5:35 a.m. At 5:38 a.m., Y.C. exited the home and left in the pickup truck. (P-14.)

On December 18, 2014, Y.C. went to the school with registration forms and residency documentation. Tedeschi advised him that he was unable to accept the registration because the matter had gone before the Board and Y.C. would have to take it to Wilson at the Board office. Y.C. went to see Wilson, but was told the Board had already decided.

On December 19, 2014, Bauernschmidt arrived at 555 Echo Street at 4:15 a.m. Y.C.'s pickup truck was in the driveway. At approximately 5:45 a.m., Y.C. got in the pickup truck and drove away. On December 23, 2014, Bauernschmidt went to the Saddle Brook property and observed two Mercedes Benz in the driveway; one was covered. At some point that morning, Bauernschmidt observed Y.C.'s pickup truck parked in the driveway of 555 Echo Street. (P-13.)

On January 20, 2015 at 5:45 a.m., the pickup truck was not at the Saddle Brook property. At 6:00 a.m., A.L.'s two vehicles were parked side-by-side at 555 Echo Street and tire tracks were observed crossing the sidewalk in front of the home. On February 23, 2015 at 6:00 a.m., Bauernschmidt observed Y.C.'s pickup in the driveway at 555 Echo Street. At 7:45 a.m., both Y.C. and E.C. exited the home and left in the pickup truck. E.C. was dropped off at school. (P-15.) On March 12, 2015, at 6:20 a.m., Y.C.'s pickup truck was in the driveway of 555 Echo Street with A.L.'s two vehicles. When Bauernschmidt returned at 7:40 a.m., the pickup truck was gone. On March 13, 2015, at 6:30 a.m., Y.C.'s pickup truck was not at 555 Echo Street. A

An undated, unentered Order for Change of Custody (Custody Order), signed by Y.C. and X.C. reflects that the parties' Separation and Property Settlement Agreement was amended to reflect that Y.C. would be the parent of primary residence for E.C., and X.C. would be the parent of alternate residence. (P-1.) The Custody Order further reflects that Y.C. was not seeking the payment of child support. (P-1.)

A Basic Rental Agreement or Residence Lease, dated December 1, 2014 (Lease), for the property located at 555 Echo Street in Fair Lawn, New Jersey reflects the tenant/lessee as Y.C. and landlord/lessor as A.L. (P-2.) The lease further reflects that the rent is $1,000 per month, water and utilities are paid by the landlord, and that the occupants are Y.C. and E.C. (P-2.) The PSE&G bill for gas and electric at 555 Echo Street is presently in Y.C.'s name. (P-3.)

Y.C.'S driver's license, issued on December 6, 2014, reflects 555 Echo Street. (P-4.) The registration for both of Y.C.'s cars, a Mercedes and a Ford pickup truck, reflect 555 Echo Street. (P-5.) A duplicate vehicle registration for the Ford reflects 17-555 Echo Street. (P-5.) A United States Postal Service (USPS) change of address confirmation letter reflects that Y.C.'s mail will be forwarded from the Saddle Brook property to 555 Echo Street, effective December 1, 2014. A letter from Chase, dated December 20, 2014, and addressed to 555 Echo Street, reflects that it is confirming an address change. (P-7.) A Chase statement, for the period November 14, 2014, through February 10, 2015, reflects 555 Echo Street. (P-8.) Y.C.'s check #117, dated January 1, 2015, payable to A.L., in the amount of $1,000 with the notation "rent" was posted on January 22, 2015. (P-9.) Y.C.'s check #118, dated February 1, 2015, payable to A.L., in the amount of $1,000 with the notation "January rent" was posted on February 6, 2015. (P-9.) Y.C.'s check #119, dated March 3, 2015, payable to A.L., in the amount of $1,000 with the notation "rent" was posted on March 4, 2015. (P-9.)

The 2013-2014 per pupil cost for grades 9-12 was $14,536. (R-2.)

Testimony

Y.C.

Y.C.'s divorce from X.C. was not smooth, and X.C. does not speak with Y.C. X.C. never keeps Y.C. apprised of any issues with the children. All communication with X.C. is through E.C., but E.C. tries not to give information back and forth between the parents. Y.C. rarely sees A.C., who presently attends college and does more with her mother.

Previously, Y.C. had visitation with E.C. at school activities, every Wednesday, and every other weekend. Y.C. went to teacher meetings and went on the internet to get email notifications from school for activities and assignments. Before E.C. got his driver's license, Y.C. would pick him up and drop him off. Y.C. had previously picked up E.C. in Fair Lawn and in Garfield at E.C.'s grandparent's house. After E.C. got his driver's license, Y.C. encouraged him to be independent and gave E.C. his pickup truck. Many times E.C. drove himself.

Y.C. decided to move from Ridgefield to Fair Lawn long before December 2014. E.C.'s participation in Fair Lawn schools was Y.C.'s introduction to Fair Lawn. Since 2008, Y.C. has been going back and forth to Fair Lawn. Y.C. started to like it more and more for its location, culture, population, schools, and everything around it. E.C. grew up there and Y.C. thought it was a good town to live in. Y.C. had helped A.L. find his home in Fair Lawn. Y.C. decided to live in Fair Lawn before he had any information about X.C. moving out of Fair Lawn. Y.C. was never notified that X.C. intended to move or that she had moved. He did not know how long X.C. lived in Fair Lawn or when she moved. He suggested that maybe X.C. moved out of Fair Lawn when X.C. saw that Y.C. was moving to Fair Lawn.

Y.C. wanted to make sure the environment he chose to live in was close to school and suitable for his need; there are apartments, but they are not always attractive. In November 2014, Y.C. had a conversation with A.L. about moving to Fair Lawn. Y.C. has been living with A.L. at 555 Echo Street, and thinks the first time he slept there was on December 4, 2014. E.C. came to live with Y.C. the first week of December 2014. When asked how it came about that E.C. went to live with Y.C., Y.C. testified that it has been an ongoing process. Y.C. had agreed that it was better for his son to reside with X.C. while he was a baby, because she could provide more of everyday chores, like cleaning and feeding. Now, as E.C. grows stronger and is more able to do things, Y.C. feels that E.C. likes Y.C. with him. Y.C. goes to sports events and teacher meetings. The kind of encouragement that he tries to give E.C. has made E.C. very close with Y.C.

Y.C. found out about the residency issue at the time he was moving into Fair Lawn. At the end of the first week of December 2014, E.C. verbally told Y.C. that the school has a problem with him, and thinks X.C. is leaving and not going to stay in Fair Lawn. Y.C. told E.C. that it did not matter and that he would call the school to change his address. Around December 3, 2015, Y.C. tried to go to the school to complete a change of address. He went at 7:30 a.m., but the doors did not open until 8:30 a.m. Y.C. was not in a rush and thought he would stop by another day because he thought he had thirty days to notify the school of a change of address. Y.C. later testified that when E.C. told him there was a problem, Y.C. told E.C. to contact the school and tell the school that he had moved and was living with Y.C.

During the weekend of December 5 to December 7, 2014, Y.C. had stayed at 555 Echo Street on Thursday night and Friday night, but did not sleep there on Sunday night. He went to his girlfriend's apartment at the Saddle Brook property, spent time there, and felt it was not necessary to go home. On December 8, 2014, Y.C. spoke to Tedeschi about it. He was not aware that Tedeschi had recorded the conversation. Y.C. started a polite conversation with Tedeschi, and tried to tell him to change the address for E.C. Tedeschi was rude, and his tone and interruptions caused a wrong turn in the conversation. Tedeschi was pressuring Y.C. and trying to make him out to be a liar. Tedeschi told him they would prove he is not living in Fair Lawn.

Since December 8, 2014, Y.C. sleeps in Fair Lawn every Sunday night. He makes sure he goes home because E.C. has to be ready for school on Monday. Y.C.'s schedule is very inconsistent. If he has a chance, Y.C. drives E.C. to school on Monday. Y.C. prepares E.C. for school and checks his assignments on Sunday night. There are nights E.C. does not sleep in Fair Lawn. E.C. misses his mother, and on Saturday or Sunday morning he is allowed to go to X.C. When E.C. is with X.C., Y.C. goes to family or to the Saddle Brook property. If Y.C. sleeps at a family member's home or his girlfriend's home at the Saddle Brook property, it is his intention to return to Fair Lawn because that is where all of his necessities and things are located.

Y.C. could not afford to buy a single-family home, so he and his sister bought the two-family in Saddle Brook together. They believed the market was going up and it was suitable for both of them. Y.C. is the sole person on the deed, so when the time comes to sell they do not need two parties to sign. Y.C.'s girlfriend has been residing in the two-bedroom apartment at the Saddle Brook property since October 2014, or maybe earlier. She rented out her home in Ridgefield. In November 2014, Y.C. lived in the Saddle Brook property with his girlfriend. Y.C.'s girlfriend does not have any children, does not want any children, and does not want any children around. She is okay with E.C. visiting and spending a few hours, but not with him living there full-time. She said that at the beginning of their relationship and Y.C. accepted that. It was never Y.C.'s intention to live in the Saddle Brook property with E.C. Y.C. likes Fair Lawn and really wants to buy something there if he can. Y.C. moved into Fair Lawn in December 2014. Y.C. continues to see his girlfriend in Saddle Brook.

In Fair Lawn, Y.C. and E.C. have a huge room with two desks, dressers, and everything else on the second floor. They share the kitchen and living room television. He has a good relationship with his nephew and his nephew's wife, and he does not spend much time home due to his job. They share common areas. Y.C. purchases his own food. He has his own section where he places his goods. Y.C. takes E.C. out to eat, and E.C. knows how to make himself a sandwich. They can have a meal together. Sometimes when Y.C. gets home late, if his nephew's wife has cooked something, she will offer him a dish. Y.C. pays the PSE&G bill at 555 Echo Street. There is only one meter. Y.C. thought he had spent a lesser amount for gas and electric, so he and A.L. had a conversation about it and agreed that it was better for Y.C. to have control over the utility bill.

Y.C. owns a small business and a pickup truck. He is contracted by another company to handle overflow with his truck, mostly for seasonal and holiday work to supply stores with merchandise. December 2014 was a crazy work time because that was the Christmas holiday. He left at 5:00 a.m. and sometimes did not return until 9:00 p.m., 10:00 p.m., or 11:00 p.m. He had no time to deal with the change of address for E.C.

Y.C. also has an old Mercedes convertible that is paid off. He typically uses it seasonally in the summer time because it is very low and not good in snow. He keeps it parked at Saddle Brook property with a snow cover on it.

Y.C. never knew that there was going to be a meeting on December 11, 2014, or that he had a right as a parent to attend the meeting. Had he attended, an appeal would not have been necessary. There is no other place where he and E.C. can live. If E.C. is expelled, he will have to stay home and watch TV all day because Y.C. has no money to send him to another school. Y.C. lives in Fair Lawn and that is where E.C. should go to school.

A.L.

Since December 2014, Y.C. and E.C. have been residing with him at 555 Echo Street. Sometime in November 2014, Y.C. came to A.L. about moving to Fair Lawn. When Y.C. brought up renting, A.L. told Y.C. he could rent from him, even though it was not a two-family house. A.L. and his wife were both okay with the arrangement. A.L. proposed the living arrangement, and he did not know that E.C. had any residency issue until late December. A.L. also testified that Tedeschi stopped by his home in the first week after Y.C. and E.C. moved in, but he still did not understand if there was a problem or not.

In January 2014, A.L. started looking to purchase his first home. He was looking in all different towns, but Y.C. specifically compared other towns with Fair Lawn and convinced A.L. that Fair Lawn was one of the best options in Bergen County. Y.C.

participated in searching for the house until April 2014 when A.L. made an offer on his current home. His realtor and the seller's realtor know that Y.C. helped him in searching for a home. Since then A.L. feels that it is Y.C.'s house to come to any time and he is happy that Y.C. helped him make that choice. Y.C. always wanted to buy in Fair Lawn, but bought the Saddle Brook property because he could not afford Fair Lawn.

Y.C. and E.C. started moving in on December 1, 2014. A.L. obtained a security deposit and first month's rent from Y.C. A.L. requested that the security deposit and first month's rent be in cash.

With respect to the utilities, A.L. had become familiar with the average of his consumption of electricity, so he thought that it would not add much for Y.C. and E.C. to live there and he could absorb that in the rent. However, it was wintertime, and their preference was different from A.L. as far as how warm they wanted to keep the environment. Y.C. told A.L. that he wanted to participate in paying the electric because it was becoming too expensive. They agreed that they would pay the electric bill together. To decide how they were going to split the payments, A.L. suggested that he knew from previous bills how much his bills were averaging monthly, so anything beyond that would be due to Y.C. and E.C. A.L. gave Y.C. responsibility to pay the bill and Y.C. could control the temperature of the house and keep it as high as he wanted and A.L. would just pay what he had been paying before. A.L. moved the bill into Y.C.'s name in December 2014. Y.C. pays the bill and A.L. pays Y.C. what he used to pay before. He changed the bill to Y.C.'s name because his time is valuable and rather than receive the monthly bill, do the calculations, and collect the money, Y.C. does it. The bill changed because of Y.C. and E.C., so Y.C. deals with it. The heat is one zone. The temperature is now warmer than A.L. had kept it.

A.L.'s wife continues to shop and cook meals for his family. Y.C. purchases his own groceries and has his own dedicated space in the refrigerator and kitchen. A.L. and his wife always invite Y.C. and E.C. to participate in meals if they are home. A.L. has a good relationship with E.C., and approximately 1.5 years ago he tutored E.C. for exams. A.L. encourages E.C. to spend time with his family in the common areas, even though E.C. has a room upstairs. Y.C. and E.C. do spend time in the common areas.

A.L. and his wife go to bed by 9:00 p.m. because their daughters get up early. If Y.C. arrives at the home before 9:00 p.m. they sometimes spend time together in common areas. Sometimes E.C. is in common areas. A.L. and Y.C. do not have the same schedule, so A.L. does not really know when Y.C. comes and goes. Sometimes Y.C. has very busy days, but occasionally sees Y.C. leaving the house as early as 5:00 a.m. or if A.L. is taking out the garbage late at night, he notices that Y.C. is not yet home. He has sometimes called Y.C. and Y.C. advises he is still at work.

A.L. noticed that Y.C. was there when he woke up on Saturday, December 6, 2014, and they had coffee together. That is the first night A.L. can say for certain that Y.C. was there, though Y.C. and E.C. each have had a key since December 1, 2014. A.L. would not know if Y.C. was there prior.

On December 8, 2014, a school investigator with a badge knocked on his door at 7:00 a.m., and said he was there to verify that Y.C. and E.C. lived there. A.L. was surprised. A.L. told him they were in the process of moving there. He asked to see the area where they live, so A.L. took him upstairs to the room. The beds were already there and A.L. told him that more furniture was coming. After that day he did become aware that E.C. was having a situation in school, and he did notice that there was a car in the street that would be there for several hours. The first time, it did not strike him as something wrong, but after it happened several times he thought maybe someone was observing them. At times Y.C. left early, but at least one time Y.C. was there, in January or February, when the car was outside.

A few hours after A.L. let the investigator in, his wife called him and said that someone came by again. She told him what A.L. had previously said and that they were in the process of moving in. She was asked if Y.C. had slept there that night, and she told them he had not. A.L. did not know any further specifics, because that is all his wife told him. Since December 8, 2014, nobody has come to his home again.

A.L. testified that most nights, five to six per week, Y.C. is there and that only maybe on Saturday nights he does not sleep there. There is no on-street parking, so his agreement with Y.C. was that he could only park one car at his home. Y.C. owns more than one car. Since Y.C. always leaves early, both of Y.C.'s cars are parked forward in the driveway.

A.L. testified that he had known Y.C. to live in Ridgefield, and A.L.'s grandparents live in Garfield. He did not know that Y.C. had at any point moved to Saddle Brook.

A.L. runs into Y.C. maybe two to three times per week because of their schedules. Sometimes there is already food cooked for E.C. Sometimes A.L. has seen Y.C. cook. Sometimes E.C. prepares his own food, or sometimes he goes out with school friends for pizza.

D.A.

D.A.'s father is the brother of Y.C. and of A.L.'s mother, so E.C. and A.L. are her cousins. She knows Y.C. lives in Fair Lawn because she visited Y.C. there on December 10, 2014. She also saw Y.C. there on December 26, 2014, February 10, 2015, and April 10, 2015. A.L. was also there on December 26, 2014. D.A. usually calls ahead, but sometimes just stops by. In December, she just stopped by. She once visited Y.C. in Saddle Brook with her mother, she believed near the end of October 2014, but the Saddle Brook property was still under construction and she did not believe Y.C. was living there at that time. She just went there to tell Y.C. congratulations on the house.

On April 10, 2015, she called ahead of time. She had not seen Y.C. and A.L. in some time. A.L. was still awake. Most of the time when she has gone there, A.L. has been sleeping. She had previously visited A.L. in Fair Lawn before Y.C. was living there, and she had visited Y.C. in Ridgefield.

V.S.

V.S. is a longtime friend of Y.C. He knows Y.C. is living in Fair Lawn, because he has picked Y.C. up in Fair Lawn a couple of times when Y.C. invited V.S. to go out for coffee. V.S. was out of the country for approximately one month beginning in October 2014. The first time V.S. went for coffee was in the last week of December 2014. V.S.'s wife was working in Fair Lawn, close to Y.C. V.S. went for coffee other times after that, most recently two or three days ago. He and Y.C. got coffee and talked. Maybe two or three times per month he invited Y.C. to go for coffee. Y.C. would tell him he was at his home in Fair Lawn and V.S. would pick him up. They went for coffee around 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m., while V.S.'s wife was at work. V.S.'s wife is afraid to drive in the snow, so he would drop her off and get coffee with Y.C. V.S. has been inside the Fair Lawn home twice; once to see the second floor, and the other for coffee inside the home. V.S. had been to Y.C.'s girlfriend's home in Ridgefield once.

Joseph Tedeschi

Tedeschi denied that he went to 555 Echo Street to pressure the landlord, and testified that he went there to hand-deliver the landlord form letter and only spoke to A.L.'s wife.

Thomas Bauernschmidt

When at A.L.'s home on December 8, 2015, Bauernschmidt asked E.C. if Y.C. had slept there last night. E.C. said that Y.C. lived there with him, but that Y.C. had not slept there last night. Bauernschmidt asked A.L. the same question and A.L. said that Y.C. had started a big job in Saddle Brook and spends a lot of time there and was in the process of moving in. Bauernschmidt told A.L. that he would have to sign an affidavit and that it is taken very seriously. A.L. said he is just doing this for a friend so that his son can remain in school. Bauernschmidt told him that is a red flag, and that he would be back periodically to confirm Y.C. is residing there.

Factual Discussion

A credibility determination requires an "over-all evaluation of the testimony in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with other evidence." Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). For "testimony to be believed, it must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but must be credible in itself." Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954). It must be "such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances." Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1, 5 (App. Div. 1961). "'The interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.) (citation omitted), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952).

Although Y.C. denies knowledge of the residency issue prior to the first week of December 2014, which is when he testified that E.C. verbally told him about it, the timing and circumstances of his move to Fair Lawn suggest otherwise. E.C. had not lived with Y.C. since 2008 and he initially testified that E.C. was "around 17 to 18 year[s] old." The record reflects that X.C. had moved out of Fair Lawn prior to November 11, 2014, when the investigation commenced, and it is not credible that Y.C. had no knowledge of where E.C. was living. Additionally, Y.C. testified that he thought he had thirty days to complete a change of address, yet also testified that he attempted to complete the change of address on December 3, 2014, before he even began sleeping in Fair Lawn.

Since 2010, Y.C. had been residing in Ridgefield with his girlfriend, and in June 2014, he purchased the Saddle Brook property. Y.C.'s girlfriend rented out her home in Ridgefield and the couple moved into an apartment at the Saddle Brook property. Y.C. changed his address to Saddle Brook, as evidenced by the United States Postal Service change of address confirmation. Y.C.'s other vehicle remains parked at the Saddle Brook property. Despite that Y.C.'s girlfriend does not have children, want children, or want E.C. to live with them, she remains Y.C.'s girlfriend and continues to live rent-free in the Saddle Brook property they both had moved into.

Further, 555 Echo Street is owned by Y.C.'s nephew. The home is a single-family home, now purportedly shared by Y.C., E.C., his nephew, nephew's wife, and their two children. Although Y.C. testified that not all apartments in Fair Lawn are nice, his living arrangements with his nephew suggest that Y.C. is attempting to establish residency in Fair Lawn without actually residing in Fair Lawn.

The record suggests that until becoming aware of the residency issue, Y.C. had no intention of living in Fair Lawn. Rather, the testimony and documents reflect that the actions taken by Y.C. in December 2014 were calculated to make it appear as though he resides in Fair Lawn when he does not. Specifically, despite having recently moved into the Saddle Brook property he purchased, he obtained a lease from his nephew, changed the address for his driver's license, automobile registrations, mail, Chase account, and had the PSE&G bill changed to his name. However, there is no evidence that he was moving to Fair Lawn in advance of December 2014. His driver's license was changed on December 6, 2014; the Custody Order was not signed until March 18, 2015; the lease was dated December 1, 2014, but the first record of a cashed check was not until January 22, 2015.

Additionally, the explanation as to how the utility bill came to be put in Y.C.'s name, when the lease provides for the landlord to pay the utilities, was not credible and further suggests that it was calculated to obtain additional documentation at 555 Echo Street with Y.C.'s name on it. If A.L.'s utility had bill increased from what it had been, though it is noted that A.L. had only been residing there since April 2014, Y.C. could easily have just paid A.L. the difference, rather than pay the entire bill and then be reimbursed by A.L. Further, given Y.C.'s testimony that he works long hours and is rarely at 555 Echo Street, it seems unlikely that A.L. would leave the thermostat as a temperature selected by Y.C. or that the bill would have increased more than nominally.

Y.C. testified that he leaves for work early, before Bauernschmidt begins his surveillance, but there were days when Y.C.'s pickup truck was at 555 Echo Street past 7:30 a.m. Y.C. also testified that he sometimes stays with family or his girlfriend. There is no dispute that during some of the investigative checks, Y.C. and/or E.C. were at 555

Echo Street and during some checks they were not. However, Y.C. was aware that there was an active investigation, and from the evidence, his actions and presence at 555 Echo Street again appear contrived to try to establish residency.

Petitioner's testimony did not hang together with the other evidence, and was not probable or credible under the circumstances. Accordingly, I FIND that Fair Lawn is not Y.C.'s permanent home.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Per the Superintendent's December 12, 2014, letter, the Board voted to disenroll and remove E.C. from the Fair Lawn School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 for failure to meet the residency requirements.

Public schools are free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are domiciled within the school district or are kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). If the school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by such person gratis as if the child was the person's own child, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). The parent or guardian is entitled to a hearing before the board and, if in the judgment of the board, the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported gratis, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. Ibid. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the Commissioner within twenty-one days of the date of the decision and is entitled to an expedited hearing. Ibid. The parent or guardian has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in the statute. Ibid.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1), a student is eligible to attend a school district if he or she is domiciled within the school district, and a student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district.

> "Domicile" is defined as "the place where [a person] has his [or her] true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has an intention of returning." T.B.W. ex rel. A.W. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Belleville, 1998 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 122, Agency Dkt. No. I 159-5/96, 1998 WL 668678 (N. J. Adm. June 18, 1998). As the court noted in Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 520-21 (Law Div. 1959), a person may have several residences or places of abode, but only one domicile at a time. Ibid.
> [D.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Princeton Reg'l Sch. Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273-74 (App. Div. 2004).]

Petitioner argues that a home is permanent when the parent intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it. However, Y.C.'s actions were calculated to allow E.C. to attend the Fair Lawn Public Schools and he failed to establish that Fair Lawn is a true, fixed permanent home.

Certainly, a tenant may be domiciled in the municipality where he rents, notwithstanding that he owns real property elsewhere, and living with a relative does not in and of itself make the living arrangements suspect. However, in this case, the testimony presented by petitioner was not probable or credible, and the totality of the circumstances reflects that Y.C. is not a resident of Fair Lawn. Y.C. had been living for four years with his girlfriend in Ridgefield, then moved with her into the Saddle Brook property in 2014; she continues to live at the Saddle Brook property rent-free while Y.C. visits and stays over; Y.C. leaves his second vehicle at the Saddle Brook property; Y.C. failed to provide any documentation that he had at any point prior to December 2014 requested a change in the custody arrangement, which change does not appear to have affected child support or any other terms of the Separation and Property Settlement Agreement; and the living arrangement at 555 Echo Street is a room in his nephew's single-family home where his nephew also resides with his wife and two young children.

Y.C. did not purchase a home in Fair Lawn in 2014, and he remains with a girlfriend who does not want E.C. to reside with them.

Understandably, Y.C. wants his son to continue in the school system where he has been educated and involved in athletics since 2008. However, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed in his burden to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he is domiciled in Fair Lawn. A.L.'s home is not Y.C.'s true, fixed permanent home, and there was no credible evidence that he would have any intention of making Fair Lawn his permanent home absent the pending residency dispute. Accordingly, I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that E.C. was eligible for a free education in Fair Lawn.

Tuition is sought by the Board for the period of December 8, 2014, through the end of the 2014-2015 school year. Where, as here, the evidence does not support the claims of the parent or guardian, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district, and tuition is computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). There were 121 school days from December 8, 2015, through and including the last day of school, June 24, 2015. The applicable per pupil cost for the 2014-2015 school year was $14,922, or $82.92 per day. 121 days at $82.92 per day totals $10,030.90.

In view of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner should pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $10,030.90 for E.C.'s period of ineligible attendance during the 2014-2015 school year. I further CONCLUDE that E.C. should be disenrolled from the Fair Lawn School District.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner's Petition of Appeal be and hereby is DENIED.

It is further ORDERED that Y.C. pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $10,030.90 for the period of ineligible attendance of E.C. in the Fair Lawn Public School District during the 2014-2015 school year and E.C. should be disenrolled from the Fair Lawn School District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in *Crowe v. BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 6, 2015, Janine Rodriguez filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education contending that her transfer from the position of Principal of New Brunswick High School to the position of Principal of McKinley Community School, a Kindergarten through Eighth Grade school, was a demotion with the potential of a $10,000 reduction in pay in violation of the Tenure Statute and TEACH NJ.

On August 6, 2015,, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education transmitted the emergent relief application to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13, for determination as a contested case. Counsel for petitioner requested an adjournment of the August 17, 2015, hearing date because she was scheduled to begin a trial in Superior Court on that date. The matter was rescheduled for and heard on September 24, 2015.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner asserts the following:

The New Brunswick Board of Education (Board or District) hired her into the position of Vice Principal at New Brunswick High School in 2010, where she remained for two years. She was promoted to Principal at the High School in 2012 and became tenured as a Principal. She has received satisfactory observations and evaluations have been designated as "effective." As Vice Principal and Principal, petitioner has made significant improvements in the lives of students and staff as evidenced by an increased student graduation rate; the elimination of a violent school designation; a rise in the attendance rate; and an improvement in HSPA test scores. After Aubrey Johnson replaced retiring Superintendent of Schools, Richard Kaplan, on July 1, 2015, Johnson transferred petitioner to the McKinley Community elementary school effective August 1, 2015, without her consent. Petitioner contends that she is tenured and trained as a high school Principal and has no tenure or experience to work in the position of elementary school Principal; the transfer is viewed as a demotion; and there is a potential for a reduction in pay since high school Principals are paid more. Petitioner argues that an employee who has tenure and has received an effective evaluation cannot be transferred to a different position or demoted unless there is cause. Petitioner demands that the Board immediately reinstate her to her position as Principal of its High School and return her to the High School.

Respondent asserts the following:

The Board has the authority to transfer a Principal from one Principal's assignment to another Principal's assignment so long as there is no reduction in salary. No disciplinary grounds or pre-transfer due process is required. It does not matter whether petitioner was a good or bad administrator or whether she did anything wrong. A Board may base the transfer solely upon its determination that an individual school may benefit by such transfer. Contrary to petitioner's fear of a reduction in salary, the Board has not reduced her salary. Salary and benefits remain the same. Johnson transferred four Principals within the District as lateral moves which the Board determined to be in the best interest of the District's students. Petitioner holds the tenured position of Principal, and there is no separate title of "High School Principal."

For a request for interim relief or stay, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 requires as follows:

(b) A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

These four standards are in the conjunctive, and petitioner must satisfy all requirements in order to be entitled to the requested relief.

I have heard the arguments of all parties and read their submissions. I CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to emergent relief in that she has not satisfied all of the four requirements.

The seminal case bearing on the issues here, cited by neither party, is Williams v. Bd. of Educ. of Plainfield, 176 N.J. Super. 154 (App. Div. 1980), certif. denied, 87 N.J. 306 (1981). A tenured high school Principal challenged her transfer to a position as an elementary school Principal without a reduction of salary. The Court affirmed the decision of the State Board of Education that > ". . . petitioner's transfer to the elementary school principalship was a proper transfer to a position of equivalent rank and could occur without appellant's consent. As long as the salary is not reduced, a transfer from the position of high school principal to that of elementary school principal is not a demotion; the certification required is the same, tenure can be acquired in both positions and the duties to be performed are of no less importance from an educational standpoint."

> [Id. at 158]

The services of a Principal, which requires the holding of an appropriate certification issued by the board of examiners, shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency, and he/she shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for certain enumerated reasons. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Tenure is acquired after employment in a given position for the period of time specified in the statute. Ibid. Petitioner erroneously tries to make a distinction between the certificate of a high school Principal and the certificate of an elementary school Principal. There is but a single certificate for the position of Principal. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-11.5.

It is undisputed that petitioner is tenured in the title of Principal and remains so after her transfer to McKinley. Her reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 for the proposition that she was transferred to a different position without her consent is misplaced. She was simply transferred to a different location rather than to a different position for which consent is not statutorily required. Neither her tenure nor her certified position changed. She is wrong to characterize her tenure as just in the position of high school Principal or that her transfer is a demotion. Her tenure is in the position of Principal.

Additionally, although petitioner expressed a concern that her salary would be reduced because the Collective Negotiations Agreement for administrators provides for a $10,000 differential in the salaries of high school and elementary school principals, representatives of the Board have certified that there was no reduction in salary as a result of petitioner's transfer.

Based on Williams, the law is settled but in a manner that is contrary to the position of petitioner. Petitioner does not have a likelihood of success on the merits, since her transfer was merely to another school rather than to another position requiring a different certificate and since there has been no reduction in pay and no adverse effect on her tenure. For the same reason, petitioner's reliance on Sanchez v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Camden, EDU 23-03, State Bd. of Educ. (June 4, 2003), http://nj.law.rutgers.edu/collection/oal/ is misplaced. The State Board of Education in that case noted that the petitioner was entitled under the tenure laws to be placed in an assignment within her tenured position of "Principal," but that the Camden Board had improperly transferred her to the position of "Vice Principal" which is a separately tenurable position. Also, without a reduction of pay associated with the recent transfer of school locations, concern regarding future salary increases or adjustments does not change the calculus. The Court in Williams was very clear that, under applicable statutes, " . . . there is no suggestion much less an express statement, that future salary increases or adjustments are to be considered in determining the validity of a transfer which is otherwise proper. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 merely prohibits 'reduc[tion] in compensation' except for the reasons stated and in the manner prescribed therein." Williams, supra, 176 N.J. Super. 154 at 162. I am unconvinced that any aspect of TEACHNJ (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-118 et. seq.) has altered N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or the case law thereunder with regard to the issues in this matter.

There is no harm, no less irreparable harm, since petitioner's tenure has not been affected or jeopardized, nor has there been any loss of pay. I also disagree that her reputation is irreparably harmed because the transfer is viewed as a demotion. As stressed in Williams the duties to be performed in the elementary school are of no less importance from an educational standpoint. Finally, the equities and interests of the parties do not balance in petitioner's favor. The Board has exercised its discretion to transfer petitioner, while she maintains her same position, to a location which, within its discretion, best meets the needs of the children of the District.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's application for emergent relief be DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Re: Darcy Kolodziej v. Board of Education of the Southern Regional High School District, Ocean County, Agency Dkt. No. 188-7/07.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the petitioner, Darcy Kolodziej's Motion for Reconsideration of the Commissioner's decision dated June 19, 2015, in which it was determined that – at the time of the reduction in force in 2007 – the petitioner had acquired 3.9 years of seniority credit with the Southern Regional High School District (District). As a result, the petitioner was entitled to retroactive back pay, less unemployment benefits received by the petitioner, in the amount of $137,212.00 for the 2007-08, 2008-09, and 2009-10 school years. The petitioner was also awarded seniority credits for the 2007-08, 2008-09, and 2009-10 school years as if she had actually been employed. In the June 19, 2015 decision, the Commissioner declined to address the petitioner's claim for damages stemming from the District's decision to rescind the petitioner's contract for the 2013-2014 school year because the action taken by the District in 2013 was a separate matter that was not pending before the Commissioner.[1]

[1] Following the remand of the Commissioner's May 16, 2013, decision from the Appellate Division, the parties were afforded an opportunity to submit their respective positions in connection with the petitioner's seniority rights. Specifically, the Appellate Division suggested that the Commissioner evaluate whether the petitioner is entitled to 30 days of seniority credit for the 2005-2006 school year under N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b), in light of the fact that the petitioner was out on unpaid maternity leave for the entire school year. It was at this juncture that the petitioner first argued that she was entitled to damages in connection with the District's action which occurred in 2013. Until the instant motion for reconsideration, the specific circumstances of petitioner's 2013 termination by the District were not addressed by either party. Whether the District's action was a reduction in force or just a rescission of her contract is not material to the Commissioner's conclusion that it presented a different cause of action.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)2., a motion for reconsideration shall be considered based upon the following:

i. claim(s) of mistake, provided, however, that disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake" for purposes of this section;
ii. newly discovered evidence likely to alter the outcome of a matter, where such evidence could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;
iii. newly ascertained misrepresentation or other misconduct of an adverse party, where such misrepresentation could not have been previously known; or
iv. reversal of a prior judgment on which the present matter is based.

Upon full review and consideration of the parties' submissions, I find that the petitioner has failed to satisfy any of the requisites for granting such relief specified in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)2. Petitioner is seeking reconsideration of the Commissioner's determination that the issue of potential damages – in the form of lost wages and other benefits stemming from the District's action in 2013 – was not before the Commissioner. In her papers, the petitioner has not pointed to any of the elements necessary for reconsideration, but simply disagrees with the Commissioner's failure to consider potential damages stemming from a separate cause of action which has not been pled or litigated. Although this case has a protracted procedural history, this matter originated as a petition of appeal challenging the District's decision not to renew the petitioner's employment for the 2007-08 school year due to a reduction in force. The District's decision to rescind the petitioner's contract for the 2013-2014 school year is a separate cause of action that required a new petition of appeal.

Accordingly, the Motion for Reconsideration is hereby DENIED.[2]

David C. Hespe

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of her children, challenging the Board's determination that petitioner and her family do not reside in the City of Orange. Petitioner asserted that she is domiciled in Orange, and submitted bills and notices bearing a City of Orange address. The Board contended that a residency investigation had revealed that petitioner's family was residing in Bloomfield, New Jersey. A hearing in the matter was held on August 24, 2015; petitioner did not appear at the hearing. Counsel for the Board did appear and presented – on the record – a Motion to Dismiss, based on petitioner's failure to litigate her appeal.

The ALJ held the record open for twenty-four hours following the hearing, but petitioner failed to make contact with the OAL and the record was closed. Respondent's counsel informed the OAL that the Board would not pursue tuition reimbursement. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the respondent's Motion to Dismiss. The matter was dismissed with prejudice.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination to dismiss the matter based on petitioner's failure to litigate her appeal. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

K.L., appellant, filed a petition challenging the determination of respondent Orange Board of Education that petitioner and her family do not reside in the Orange New Jersey School District (District). K.L. contends that the Orange registrar lists the family's address as 500 South Harrison Street in Orange, New Jersey. K.L. wrote on her Pro Se Residency Appeal that the discrepancy in address is between the housing complex address and her unit address. Appellant submitted bills and notices bearing an Orange address.

Respondent contends that appellant's two children, a boy born on February 7, 2001 and a female born April 16, 2003 attended Orange Public Schools from October 17, 2014 to February 9, 2015. Respondent's investigation revealed that as of February 2015 appellant's family resides in Bloomfield, New Jersey. Respondent argues that appellant did not provided sufficient proof of residency in Orange and has failed to follow through with litigating her claim.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 8, 2014, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to B-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. The undersigned assumed responsibility for the matter on December 10, 2014. Testimony was scheduled to commence on April 21, 2015, however neither party appeared. The case was called, but not dismissed because OAL personnel were informed that respondent had not assigned an attorney to the case and that it was unknown as to whether the Love and Randall Law Firm that filed an Answer to the Petition would be continuing with the case. On July 20, 2015, OAL rescheduled a hearing date for August 24, 2015 and mailed notice of the hearing to appellant and to Cristina Mateo, President of the Orange Board of Education. The Machado Law Group, LLC submitted a letter to OAL indicating that the firm would serve as respondent's legal counsel going forward.

On August 24, 2015 appellant did not appear for the hearing nor did she contact OAL. On August 24, 2015, respondent appeared for the hearing and presented on-the-record a Motion to Dismiss based on appellant's failure to litigate her appeal. The undersigned entered the procedural history of this case on the record and made inquiries of the OAL Clerk's Office personnel and the judicial secretary assisting on the case, as to whether the notice of hearing had been returned and whether appellant had made any contact with OAL; both responses were negative. The record remained open for twenty-four hours without appellant making any contact with OAL by 5pm on August 25, 2015, when the record was closed. On August 26, 2015, respondent's counsel informed OAL that respondent would not be pursuing tuition reimbursement.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that respondent's Motion to Dismiss is GRANTED. I ORDER that the DISMISSAL IS WITH PREJUDICE based on appellant's failure to appear and/or pursue an action.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MERCHANTVILLE, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

In so concurring, however, the Commissioner is compelled to clarify that petitioner has not demonstrated that irreparable harm will occur if the requested relief –enrollment of J.W. at Haddon Heights High School instead of Pennsauken High School – is not granted. Both high schools are capable of providing enrolled students with the thorough and efficient education to which they are entitled.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This case shall proceed at the OAL to a plenary hearing, or such other proceedings as the ALJ and the parties determine, to resolve the underlying claim on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

S.J.W., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, J.W.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MERCHANTVILLE, CAMDEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

S.J.W., petitioner, pro se

Kerri A. Wright, Esq., for respondent (Porzio, Bromberg & Newman, P.C., attorneys)

Record Closed: September 29, 2015 Decided: September 29, 2015

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director & Chief ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

S.J.W. (petitioner) seeks emergent relief directing the Board of Education of the Borough of Merchantville (the Board or Merchantville) to enroll her son in the sophomore class at Haddon Heights High School, pursuant to the Board's new sending-receiving agreement with Haddon Heights High School. The Board contends that the petitioner does not meet the requirements for emergent relief, in part because the Board has the authority to determine to direct S.J.W.'s son to enroll at Pennsauken High School under the agreement with the Pennsauken Board of Education. The matter is emergent, as both sides agree that J.W. has not been attending any school since the beginning of this school year, pending resolution of this dispute.

The Commissioner of Education forwarded the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on September 18, 2015, and heard on September 25, 2015. On September 29, 2015, the record was closed on receipt of additional exhibits, which were marked as P-2 through P-7, and R-5 through R-12.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

S.J.W. testified on behalf of her son, J.W., explaining that she and her husband bought a home in Merchantville and moved on August 10, 2015. Although their former home had a Merchantville zip code, it was actually located in Pennsauken. Her son, J.W., attended Camden Catholic High School for his freshman year of high school. She was aware that the Commissioner of Education had approved the termination of a sending-receiving agreement between the Merchantville and Pennsauken boards of education and the creation of a new sending-receiving agreement with the Merchantville and Haddon Heights boards of education. In June, S.J.W. contacted the Camden County executive superintendent's office, and was advised that as Merchantville transitioned its students, all new students would be going to Haddon Heights. On June 16, Haddon Heights allowed her son to do a shadow day at its high school. Preparatory to enrolling J.W. with Merchantville, S.J.W. withdrew her son from Camden Catholic on August 28, 2015. On August 31, 2015, J. Scott Strong, chief school administrator of the Merchantville Board of Education, advised her that J.W. would be required to attend Pennsauken High School. Although Strong represented that this requirement was imposed by Board policy and by the contract with Pennsauken, he did not produce either of these documents. As her second son, now in eighth grade, will be attending Haddon Heights beginning next year, S.J.W. objects to the inconsistency of having her sons in two different high schools. However, on August 31, 2015, she contacted Pennsauken High School, and was told the school was not accepting new students from Merchantville. A further call to the County superintendent resulted in advice as to her fair-hearing rights, and a clarification that Merchantville was only sending freshmen to Haddon Heights. Personnel at Haddon Heights High School have told her they have room in the sophomore class for her son, and that adding him to the bus run is not a problem, but Merchantville needs to agree. The slot at Camden Catholic has been lost; she cannot simply re-enroll her son there.

She further testified that she attended the September 8, 2015, meeting of the Merchantville Board of Education, arguing before the Board that her son should not be viewed as an existing student but rather as someone new to the district and, therefore, someone who could and should be directed to Haddon Heights. The Board agenda for September 8, 2015, (P-1) included a recommendation for formal approval of a "student procedure for the 2015–2016 school year, as mandated in the PBOE/MBOE Send/Receive Agreement: All Merchantville residents in the 9th grade will attend Haddon Heights High School and All Merchantville residents, whether existing or new, in 10th, 11th, or 12th grades, will attend Pennsauken High School." The resolution was not considered in open session.

The Board contends that plans for transition have been public since April, when the Commissioner of Education issued the final decision approving the change of sending-receiving agreements. The Board's minutes reflect that "the 8th grade students can choose to attend Haddon Heights. Each year, another grade will be phased into the Haddon Heights system . . . ." (R-5.) The Board also points to this statement from its website:

> We are excited to work with Haddon heights and to phase in our students into their high school. The students will be phased into Haddon Heights High School. The current graduating 8th graders (Merchantville Class of 2015) will be able to attend Haddon Heights High School under the send/receive agreement. However, students that are already attending Pennsauken HS or other high schools will not qualify to attend under the new send/receive agreement. Instead every year for four years, a new class > will be sent to Haddon Heights until all of our students are phased into Haddon Heights.

> [R-1 (emphasis added).]

The Board states that this notice was on its website in April, and has been there continuously since that time. (R-11, Strong certif. para. 7.) Strong's certification points out that at the May 12, 2015, Board meeting, there was public discussion of possible attendance at Haddon Heights for upper-class students through the School Choice Program, where availability is determined by lottery. (Id., para. 11; R-7.)

With regard to the level of knowledge available to S.J.W., the Board raises credibility issues based on information that became available after oral argument on September 25. (R-12, Supplemental Wright certif.) Based on minutes from the Pennsauken Board of Education on five dates between January 2012 and January 2015, the Board contends that S.J.W. served as a member of the Pennsauken school board during the time that the districts were litigating before the OAL, and was vice president of the board in 2013. (R-10.) Therefore, the Board contends, she had more than an average citizen's knowledge about the litigation. In response, S.J.W. stated (P-2) that her status as a board member did not make her privy to the details of the transition plan being offered by Merchantville to the OAL. She further noted that the litigation was not concluded until April, well after she left office in December 2014, and so she had no better access to information than anyone else. She points out that the Board had four months to formulate a policy, and only began consideration of one after she challenged its absence.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Under Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted if the judge determines that:

1. the petitioner will suffer substantial, immediate and irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;

2. the legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled within the principles of law;

3. the petitioner has a likelihood of eventually prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Emergent relief is not appropriate unless all four of the above requisites are satisfied. The burden of proving each of these factors rests with the party seeking emergent relief. Garden State Equal. v. Dow, 216 N.J. 314, 320 (2013) (citation omitted). "Each of these factors must be clearly and convincingly demonstrated" by the moving party. Waste Mgmt. of N.J. v. Union Cnty. Utils. Auth., 399 N.J. Super. 508, 520 (App. Div. 2008). Thus, the burden here is upon S.J.W.

Irreparable Harm

"Irreparable harm" is defined as the type of harm "that cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132–33. In addition, the irreparable-harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Commc'ns v. Day, 299 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). However, pecuniary damages may sometimes be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or the right affected. Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 133. For example, in Crowe the Court determined that neither an unwarranted eviction nor reduction to poverty could be compensated adequately by monetary damages awarded after a distant hearing. Ibid.

J.W. has missed the first three weeks of school, and that delay in starting the school year already has caused damage—he will start a new school already well behind in every class.

The Board contends that there is no evidence J.W. will suffer any harm from being enrolled at Pennsauken High School. It acknowledges that it is in the odd position of having expended great effort in winning approval to move its students to a different school, only to argue now that the education offered by the existing school is fine. It also argues that it was and is willing to direct J.W.'s enrollment at Pennsauken at any time.

Having missed the first three weeks in a new school, J.W. now faces the question of how to catch up. Missing school events such as graduation have been held to be "once in a lifetime opportunities" that qualify under the irreparable-harm standard (Nabel v. Bd. of Educ. of Hazlet, EDU 08026-09, Initial Decision (June 24, 2009), modified, Comm'r (June 24, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/> (Commissioner found irreparable harm where student prevented from attending graduation because there is no adequate after-the-fact remedy that can adequately redress the intangibles of a lost experience after the event is over and "dismissal of an emergent application on this criterion alone would effectively insulate a school district's actions in matters of this type from any meaningful review.") Therefore, I FIND that missing the first three weeks of the sophomore year of high school, which is also a once-in-a-lifetime event, meets the standard for irreparable harm.

Is Petitioner's Right to Claim Well-Settled and is Petitioner Likely to Prevail?

As the Board observes, it has broad general authority to set policy for the school district. When a local school board acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas v. Bd. of Educ. of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581 (1966). Thomas involved an instance in which the Commissioner and the State Board of Education overturned a school board's action terminating a working-test-period contract and essentially granting a superintendent tenure, because it was done "without full and open consideration and discussion, with timely opportunity for all members of the board and the public to be heard," citing Cullum v. Bd. of Educ. of N. Bergen Twp., 15 N.J. 285 (1954)). Id. at 331.

Petitioner does not dispute the Board's general authority to set policy; rather, her argument centers on the absence of a policy. As of August 31, 2015, the date she sought to enroll her son, Strong did not provide her with a copy of the Board's policy, most likely because it had not voted on one. On September 8, the Board agenda shows an item to "formally approve the following high school student procedure for the 2015–2016 school year . . . . All Merchantville residents, whether existing or new, in 10th, 11th, or 12th grades will attend Pennsauken High School." On September 22, 2015, the Board voted to formally approve the policy. (R-9.) Board counsel conceded that even during the litigation over the sending-receiving district in 2014 and 2015, no one could locate a written agreement between Pennsauken and Merchantville, and apparently none exists even today. All that exists is an April 15, 2015, letter from Kerri A. Wright, Esq., advising counsel for Pennsauken that, "in accordance with the representations made during the [OAL] hearing, Merchantville will be phasing out its students from Pennsauken one grade-level at a time over the next four years." (R-3.)

The Board further argues that its decision to start freshmen in Haddon Heights, while leaving existing students in Pennsauken High to complete their high-school years, was part of the case that was approved by the Commissioner, even though his approval does not specifically address the transition process. (See R-2, the Statement of Undisputed Facts, submitted as part of the record to the Commissioner in Bd. of Educ. of Merchantville v. Bd. of Educ. of Pennsauken, EDU 01927-12, Initial Decision (March 2, 2015), adopted, Comm'r, April 10, 2015. The section of the Statement of Undisputed Facts that was Entitled "Proposed Educational Plan for Merchantville's 9–12 Students" states that Merchantville would phase its students "out of Pennsauken High School as follows: a. Year one: Grades 10, 11 and 12 remain at Pennsauken High School; grade 9 matriculates at Haddon Heights High School".)

As terminations of sending-receiving agreements are relatively rare, it cannot be said that cases involving the rights of students in transitioning districts are numerous and well-settled. Three of the more prominent examples, Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Boonton v. Bd. of Educ. of Town of Boonton, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 235, Bd. of Educ. of Winfield v. Bd. of Educ. of Rahway, EDU 7138-98, Initial Decision (Jan. 18, 2000), adopted, Comm'r (March 2, 2000), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, and Saddle River Bd. of Educ. v. Ramsey Bd. of Educ. and N. Highlands Bd. of Educ., 1998 S.L.D. Aug 28, do not appear to have generated case law with regard to how particular subgroups of students were handled during transition.

Although here, petitioner argues that action without a policy that was thoroughly discussed at an open public meeting should be deemed arbitrary and capricious, the Board has demonstrated that at some point, it approved a representation to the Commissioner on how transition would be handled, should the Commissioner approve the termination of the Pennsauken agreement and the creation of a Haddon Heights agreement. The plain language of that representation was that students would be moved based on class year, with no mention of any special provision for students entering the district, either as new residents or as students returning from another placement. Nor did any of the subsequent public discussions or notices suggest that anyone but incoming freshman would be attending Haddon Heights. Thus, petitioner's insistence that a special provision should be inferred into the Board's statements is at odds with a plain reading.

Therefore, petitioner's arguments do not fall within well-settled case law, and it is not clear that there is a likelihood of success on the merits.

The Balance of Equities and Interests of the Parties

As for the fourth requirement for granting emergent relief, the petitioner avers that when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than will the school district if emergent relief is not granted. The petitioner contends that having her two sons at different high schools when they live in the same sending district causes internal inequities in the family that cannot be resolved. She contends that treating new residents as part of the school population moving into Haddon Heights High School will cause no harm at all to the district, because new taxpayers were never part of any revenue calculation. She also points out that Pennsauken initially said it could not enroll her son, while Haddon Heights said it could, provided Merchantville agreed.

The Board argues that the need to avoid a flood of returning students played a large role in crafting the transition plan, because only 30 to 35 percent of Merchantville's high-school-age population has been attending Pennsauken High School; the rest have been schooled through other, private arrangements made by their parents. The district contends that a flood of returning students would make it virtually impossible to live within the required 2 percent cap on annual increases. The Board also pleads the equities for students district-wide, and asks why it should distinguish between long-time residents and new residents. It offers the argument that treating all students the same, with attendance based on high-school levels—freshman through senior—is the fairest. It also argues that petitioner has not shown any harm, as her son has exactly the same educational opportunity that all other Merchantville sophomores have available to them.

As the Board has noted, in matters involving the exercise of a local board of education's discretion, the scope of the Commissioner's review is "not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296 (App. Div. 1960). "Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached." Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dep't of Envt'l Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199–200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974).

It is unfortunate that S.J.W. received erroneous information from many quarters earlier this year, when she and her husband were making important decisions about buying a home, moving, and educating their sons. However, the standards for the award of emergent relief are high, and here, particularly with regard to the absence of well-settled case law making it likely she would prevail in a more lengthy hearing process, the petitioner has not met the four-pronged test for emergent relief.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the petitioner's request for an Order immediately placing her son J.W. in Haddon Heights High School pending a full hearing on the merits is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Gilda Nicole Harris, Pro Se

BEFORE: HOWARD C. EDELMAN, ESQ., ARBITRATOR

BACKGROUND

Respondent, Gilda Nicole Harris, a tenured Elementary teacher in the Jersey City Public Schools, was served with two sets of charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18.A. The first set of charges was served on Respondent on or about September 23, 2014; the second set on or about November 21, 2014. The charges were properly certified to the Commissioner of Education in accordance with appropriate regulations.

Another arbitrator was previously assigned to this matter and held a hearing on April 23, 2015. That arbitrator recused himself on April 28, 2015. Pursuant to the selection process under State law I was assigned to hear and decide the charges. Hearings were held before me on May 29, 2015, June 5, 11, and 23, 2015. Thereafter, the parties submitted briefs. I received the District's brief on or about August 14, 2015. Respondent's brief was received on or about August 21, 2015.[1] The District's Reply was received on or about August 28, 2015 whereupon I closed the record. This Opinion and Award follows.

THE CHARGES

I. The charges served on or about September 23, 2014 (342/11/14) read, in relevant part, as follows:

[1] Respondent's brief was submitted late. I accepted the brief over the District's objection, but allowed the District an additional week to respond.

CHARGE ONE: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. Ms. Harris, a tenured teaching staff member, was hired by the District on or about September 1999. She has worked in the recent past as a Grammar School Teacher at the District's James F. Murray School (School #38) and as a head teacher at the Adult Evening Program located at PS#11.
b. During the 2013-14 school year, Ms. Harris was assigned to teach fourth grade students.
c. On April 4, 2014, Ms. Harris demanded that all her fourth grade students who were either struggling and/or receiving failing grades stand up in front of the entire class.
d. Ms. Harris' contemptible conduct served to humiliate and demean several fourth grade students in her class.
e. Ms. Harris improperly utilized her authority as a teacher to intimidate and disparage several fourth grade students in front of the entire class.
f. Ms. Harris' conduct was intentionally cruel and abusive.
g. Ms. Harris' deprived her students of the right to attend school without fear that their teacher will seek to bully and embarrass them.
h. As a teacher, Ms. Harris is entrusted with the care and custody of children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of children. However, Ms. Harris breached her obligations by engaging in intentional inappropriate, irresponsible and unprofessional behavior.
i. Ms. Harris' conduct violates District policy and law.
j. Ms. Harris' conduct violates the tenets and policies that the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools uphold.
k. Ms. Harris' conduct placed her students at risk of harm.

l. Ms. Harris' completely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
m. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just causer to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE TWO: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegations set forth above.
b. In addition to the conduct described in Charge One, Ms. Harris, on April 4, 2014, also required her fourth grade students to form two lines in the classroom.
c. Ms. Harris demanded that the African American and/or other students with dark skin to line up on one (1) side of the room.
d. Ms. Harris demanded that Caucasian and/or other students with light skin to line up on the other side of the room.
e. Ms. Harris then proceeded to make statements comparing both lines of students.
f. Ms. Harris' conduct in separating her class on the basis of race is outrageous and shocks the conscience.
g. Ms. Harris' conduct made her students feel humiliated and degraded because of their race, ethnicity and/or color of their skin,
h. Ms. Harris deprived her students of the right to attend school without the fear that their teacher will harass, intimidate or bully them on the basis of race, ethnicity or any other characteristic.
i. As a teacher, Ms. Harris is entrusted with the care and custody of children with the hope that this trust will result in maximum educational growth and development of children. However, Ms. Harris breached her obligation by engaging in intentional inappropriate, irresponsible and unprofessional behavior.

j. Ms. Harris' conduct was intentionally cruel and abusive.

k. Ms. Harris conduct was repugnant and offensive.

l. Ms. Harris exercised exceptionally poor judgment and failed to act as a role model for her students.

m. Ms. Harris failed to exercise self-restraint and controlled behavior which is required and mandated for a teaching staff member entrusted with the care and custody of children.

n. Ms. Harris' deplorable and unprofessional conduct violates the District policy and law.

o. Ms. Harris' conduct violates the tenets and policies that the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools uphold.

p. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct placed students at a risk of harm.

q. Ms. Harris' absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.

r. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE THREE: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegations in all the charges set forth above.

b. On April 4, 2014, Ms. Harris also yelled at her students and told them that they betrayed her.
c. Ms. Harris then proceeded to tell a student that she would be moved to another classroom.
d. Ms. Harris inappropriately spoke to her class about other District employees.
e. Ms. Harris' conduct served to embarrass her students.
f. Ms. Harris failed to exercise self-restraint and controlled behavior which is required and mandated for a teaching staff member entrusted with the care and custody of children.
g. Ms. Harris' inappropriate conduct violates District policy and law.
h. Ms. Harris' conduct violates the tenets and policies that the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools uphold.
i. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct placed students at a risk of harm.
j. Ms. Harris' absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
k. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE FOUR: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

d. District Policy 5145.4 also defines "harassment" as "any gesture that demeans or insults a student or group of students in such a way to cause substantial disruption or interference with the orderly operation of the school."
e. Ms. Harris' deplorable and unprofessional conduct as set forth above violates District policy.
f. Ms. Harris' actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
g. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE NINE: CONDUCT UNBECOMING (EXCESSIVE ABSENTEEISM)

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming and Excessive Absenteeism by way of the following:

a. During the 2007-2008 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately thirty-nine (39) occasions.
b. During 2008-2009 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately twelve (12) occasions.
c. During the 2009-2010school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately fourteen (14) occasions.
d. During the 2010-2011 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately thirteen (13) occasions.
e. During the 2011-2012 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately thirteen (13) occasions.
f. During the 2012-2013 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately seventeen (17) occasions.
g. During the 2013-2014 school year, Ms. Harris was absent from her employment on approximately ten (10) occasions.
h. Ms. Harris' conduct has negatively impacted her students by consistently interrupting the continuity of instruction.
i. Ms. Harris' conduct violates District Policy.
j. Despite warnings, memoranda and counseling, Ms. Harris' attendance has not improved.
k. Ms. Harris' conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming.

Ms. Harris' excessive absenteeism as described above has had a profoundly negative impact upon the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools Community, and requires that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE NUMBER TEN: OTHER JUST CAUSE

Ms. Harris is guilty of Other Just Cause by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegation in all the charges set forth above.

Ms. Harris' conduct as described above has had a profoundly negative impact upon the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools Community, and requires that her employment with the District be terminated.

II. The charges served on or about November 21, 2014 (379/12/14) read, in pertinent part, as follows:

CHARGE ONE: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. Ms. Harris, a tenured teaching staff member, was hired by the District on or about September 1999. She has worked in the recent past as a Grammar School Teacher at the District's James F. Murray School (School #38) and as a head teacher at the Adult Evening Program located at PS#11.
b. During the 2013-14 school year, Ms. Harris was assigned to teach fourth grade students.
c. On September 23, 2014, Ms. Harris was served with Tenure Charges alleging Conduct Unbecoming and Other Just Cause.
d. The aforementioned Tenure Charges allege that on or about April 4, 2014, Ms. Harris demanded that all her fourth grade students who were either struggling and/or receiving failing class stand up in front of the entire class.

e. The aforementioned Tenure Charges also allege that on April 4, 2014, Ms. Harris required her forth grade students to form two lines in the classroom demanding that African American and/or other students wit dark skin line up on one (1) side of the room and that Caucasian and/or other students with light skin to line up on the other side of the room. The aforementioned Tenure Charges also allege that Ms. Harris proceeded to make statements comparing both lines of students.
f. The aforementioned Tenure Charges allege that Ms. Harris' conduct violated law and District policy, and that her absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
g. In accordance with N.J.S.A 18A:6-11, Ms. Harris submitted a Statement of Position in response to the Tenure Charges to the District on or about October 9, 2014.
h. Along with her Statement of Position in response to the Tenure Charges, Ms. Harris included an Appendix of Exhibits, which includes approximately forty-seven (47) documents.
i. Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits improperly includes un-redacted confidential pupil records and public information.
j. The un-redacted confidential pupil records and pupil information included in Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits sets forth, among other things, pupils' full names, pupil's grade levels and classes attended.
k. The un-redacted confidential pupil information included in Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits includes documents dated between 2005 and 2014.
l. Ms. Harris intentionally misappropriated and disclosed pupil records and pupil information.
m. Ms. Harris did not obtain consent from any of the pupil's parents or guardians prior to utilizing the confidential pupil records and information in connection with her Tenure Charges.

n. Ms. Harris did not obtain consent from the District prior to utilizing the confidential pupil records and information in connection with her Tenure Charges.
o. The un-redacted confidential pupil records and pupil information included in Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits are not even relevant to the allegations in the underlying Tenure Charges that she demanded that all her fourth grade students who were either struggling and/or receiving failing grades stand up in front of the entire class or that she required her fourth grade students to form two lines in the classroom, demanding that African American and o/or other students with dark skin line up on one (1) side of the room and that Caucasian and/or other students with light skin line up on the other side of the room.
p. Ms. Harris' intentional inappropriate and unprofessional conduct in submitting un-redacted confidential pupil records and pupil information violates Federal and State Law, including but not limited to, the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, 20 U.S.C. sec. 1232G and the New Jersey Pupil Records Regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.1, et.seq.
q. Ms. Harris violated the confidentiality of her pupils.
r. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct in submitting un-redacted confidential pupil records and pupil information violates District policy.
s. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE TWO: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegations in all the charges set forth above.
b. Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits includes several statements from pupils purportedly written on or about February 15, 2013.
c. Ms. Harris took significant time away from her pupils' educational day and had her pupils write negative statements about another teaching staff member with whom Ms. Harris was apparently having a conflict.
d. Ms. Harris elicited and/or encouraged her pupils to write that the other teaching staff member was gossiping, was unprofessional and was a bully.
e. Ms. Harris also elicited and/or encouraged her pupils to write that the other teaching staff member was constantly late, was not responsible, and did not teach the class anything.
f. Ms. Harris also elicited and/or encouraged her pupils to write that the other teaching staff member was spreading lies.
g. Ms. Harris even elicited and/or encouraged one pupil to write the following statement about the other teaching staff member: "I have to not do art. In stead, I have to hear all of that CRAP&TRASH she's talking to a bunch of 10 year olds about."
h. The aforementioned writing assignment was not part of the curriculum or any lesson plan approved by the District.
i. Ms. Harris failed to exercise self-restraint and controlled behavior which is required and mandated for a teaching staff member entrusted with the care and custody of children.
j. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct violates District policy and law.
k. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct placed students at risk of harm.
l. Ms. Harris' absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.

m. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE THREE: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegations in all the charges set forth above.
b. Ms. Harris' Appendix of Exhibits includes several statements from pupils purportedly written on January 8 2014.
c. Ms. Harris took significant time from her pupil's educational day and had her pupils write negative statements about their study habits and home life.
d. Ms. Harris had each of her pupils begin the written statements with the following paragraph: "We are halfway through the fourth grade. Since the beginning of the school year in September, you have stressed the importance of daily study habits and hard work. We have discussed the reasons why I get the grades I do in school. I want to be completely honest with you and explain my study habits at home."
e. Ms. Harris elicited and/or encouraged one student to write, "[w]hen I am home I get disturbed. The reason I get disturbed is my sister. My sister bothers me by ask (sp.) me for thing and I don't get help very much. This is why I don't' do homework."

i. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct placed students at risk of harm.
j. Ms. Harris' absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
k. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGE SIX: CONDUCT UNBECOMING

Ms. Harris is guilty of Conduct Unbecoming by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegations in all the charges set forth above.
b. The Pupil Rights Amendment ("PPRA"), 20 U.S.C. sec. 1232h, also governs the administration of student surveys and is intended to protect the rights of parents and students.

c. The PPRA mandates that written consent be obtained from parents and/or guardians prior to students being asked about certain topics, such as "illegal, anti-social, self-incriminating and demeaning behavior," and "critical appraisals of other individuals with whom a Respondent has a close family relationship."
d. Although Ms. Harris asked her students to openly and outwardly answer questions concerning the aforementioned topics, Ms. Harris never obtained, nor attempted to obtain, written consent from her students' parents and/or guardians.
e. Ms. Harris willfully violated PPRA.
f. Ms. Harris failed to exercise self-restraint and controlled behavior which is required and mandated for a teaching staff member entrusted with the care and custody of children.
g. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct violates District policy and law.
h. Ms. Harris' inappropriate and unprofessional conduct placed students at risk of harm.
i. Ms. Harris' absolutely unacceptable actions demonstrate that she is not fit to serve as a teaching staff member.
j. Ms. Harris' conduct was sufficiently flagrant and egregious to warrant termination.

Ms. Harris has engaged in conduct unbecoming that provides just cause to require that her employment with the District be terminated.

CHARGES NUMBER SEVEN: OTHER JUST CAUSE

Ms. Harris is guilty of Other Just Cause by way of the following:

a. The District repeats and reiterates the allegation in all the charges set forth above.

Ms. Harris' conduct as described above has had a profoundly negative impact upon the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools Community, and requires that her employment with the District be terminated.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

A. District

The District asserts that it has proven the first set of Tenure Charges, Docket 342-11/14, preferred against Respondent, Gilda Nicole Harris.

Charge One and Charge Two concern consecutive actions which took place in Respondent's classroom on or about April 3, 2014 when Respondent was returned to her fourth grade classroom after a three-month assignment to the Central Office stemming from an unrelated matter. The evidentiary record demonstrates that during the afternoon of April 3, 2014, Respondent did demand that her fourth grade students, who were either struggling and/or receiving failing grades, stand up in front of the class. Respondent then called the names of her students and had them stand in one of two lines. One line was for light skin or white students and the other for darker skin or black students. Respondent compared the two lines, indicating that the white or light skin line was going to pass fourth grade while the black or dark skin line would not pass.

In support of the charges, the District offered the testimony of student witnesses,[2] who it claims offered consistent and credible testimony detailing Respondent's inappropriate actions.

Student J.N. testified how on the day Respondent returned to the classroom, Respondent separated the class into two lines. "One line was like depending on the skin color, one line was black people and the other line was white people." (T. 4/23, 22:2-5). J.N. continued that Respondent told the class that "the white people has more better behavior than the black people." (T. 4/23, 22:7-8).

Student X.R. explained that Respondent "lined [the class] up in blacks and whites." (T. 4/23, 38:17). XR explained that Respondent "put people on the white side and she put people on the black side." (T. 4/23. 38:19-20). X.R. understood from Respondent's actions that historically "white kids or white people were always the richest, the black and other slaveries were like stupid or they couldn't like get higher grades [and] usually get left back." (T. 4/23, 39:8-11). Respondent's behavior and comments made X.R. feel " a little mad or sad because [his] skin color is black so [I] thought it was offensive." (T. 4/23. 39:17-19).

Student E.B. testified that Respondent directed the class to form two lines. E.B. testified, "There were people on my line that had the same skin tone as me. And on the other line, there were other people

[2] Due to the ages of the students, I did not swear them in. I determined through voir dire of each student that he/she had the capacity to differentiate what is the truth and is not the truth and was able to give competent testimony.

darker, like a lot darker than me. And [Respondent] was saying that a woman [E.B's] color to her to pass [E.B.] and her line because we work hard and the others don't." (T. 4/23, 51:1-6).

Student D.H testified that Respondent "…just came back and she put--she said everybody who was failing in the class to stand up and she said some people to sit down and they were doing better at the time. And she was putting us in two lines." (T.5/29, 90:19-23). D.H. explained there was one black line and one white line. D.H. was placed in the black line. (T. 5/29, 90:24-25 and 91:1-6). D.H. explained she felt "kind of sad" to be separated into one of the lines.(T. 5/29, 92:4-7).

Melissa Chismar (Chismar) was assigned to take over Respondent's class in January 2014 and again in April 2014. Chismar testified that when she was reassigned to Harris' classroom on April 4, 2014, the students immediately advised her that on the previous day Respondent "lined [the students] up according to race" and "told [the students] this is why black children fail." (T. 4/23, 115:7-25, 116:1-2). Chismar testified that there was never any list of students created based upon race and no list containing student names was placed on any classroom wall or bulletin board. (T. 4/23, 118:1-20). The District's Chief Academic Officer, Jason Bing (Bing), testified that it is never appropriate for a teacher to separate a class based on race. (T. 6/5, 15:7-10).

Respondent offered the testimony of student, J.M., whom she called as a witness. J.M. testified that Respondent had shown the class a video on April 3 and that they had discussed race as a result of the video (T. 6/5. 236:4-22). Respondent was not able to produce this video. The District argues that Harris' proffered excuse - that the students were separated by race as a result of watching the video - fails. The District contends Respondent did not present any credible evidence disputing the fact she lined students up by their race on that date.

The District argues that Respondent's outrageous conduct caused the students to feel humiliated and degraded because of their race and skin color. In light of the evidence it is clear that Respondent acted in an inappropriate and deplorable manner. Respondent's action of separating the children by skin color constitutes conduct unbecoming and removal from her tenure position is the only proper penalty.

The District argues this is not the first time Harris has separated students. In addition to the April 3, 2014 incident, the District contends that the credible evidence supports Respondent having seated the students based on their grades during the 2013/14 school year. Respondent organized the classroom into four groups of tables, which were named after various colleges, and the students were assigned based on their grades.

Chismar testified that upon arriving in Respondent's classroom in January 2014, she observed groups of desks, along with two desks facing the blackboard and one desk facing the window. The students advised Chismar that Respondent made student J. face the window and two boys face the blackboard (T. 4/23, 108:1-10). The students further advised Chismar that they were seated according to their reading grade levels. (T. 4/23, 111:14-16). Chismar testified that children should not be seated according to their reading grade levels because it has a negative impact upon them, preventing them from helping each other and harming their self esteem. They would also know who was passing and failing. Chismar changed this arrangement so all the students could work together. (T. 4/23, 110:13-22). She explained that the students were afraid of Harris and thought every time the phone rang Respondent was going to return. (T. 4/23, 113:1-3).

Student J.N.'s testimony corroborates that Respondent organized the classroom into four (4) groups. The students were assigned to one of the groups based upon their grades, (T. 4/23, 19:5-10), with all the "A" students together, all of the "B" students together, the "C" students together and all of the "F" students together. (T. 4/23, 19:11-18). Respondent named the tables after colleges. The "A" table was Princeton University, the "B" table was Rutgers University, the "C" table was New Jersey City University and the "F" table was "Drew University." (T. 4/23, 19:21-25 and 20:1-6). J.N. was a "B" student and sat at the Rutgers Table. (T. 4/23. 19:19-20). Other students such as J, X and D, who received bad grades, sat at the "F" table. (T. 4/23. 20:12-20) One female student, J, was not in a group at all and was forced to face the wall. (T. 4/23. 23:9-20).

Student E.B. testified similarly that during the 2013-14 school year, Respondent organized the classroom into groups of tables named after universities (T. 4/23, 48:16-18). When Chismar took over the class, the students were assigned to rows with all students facing the front of the classroom and the smart-board. (T. 4/23, 49:17-23). When Harris returned on April 3, 2014, she rearranged the rows back to the university groups. (T. 4/23, 50:21-23).

The District argues that Respondent acted in an inappropriate and unwarranted manner. Her actions, which involved separating children by their academic performance, constitute conduct unbecoming. Respondent's actions served to embarrass the students and violate their privacy rights, as each student was aware if his/her classmates were "A", "B", "C" or "F" students.

In support of Charge Three, the District offers the Statement of Student T.N. (D2 and D4) who in addition to describing the separation of students based upon race, indicates that Harris had asked where the picture of President Obama that she kept in the class was placed. Respondent then yelled at the students and said they betrayed her. T.N. alleged Respondent told another student, J, she was going to be moved to another class.

The District asserts that Respondent's actions violated the District's non-discrimination and Equal Educational Opportunity Policies. Charge Four alleges violations of District Policy 6121, "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action", (D-6) which provides, "No student enrolled in the Jersey City School District shall be excluded from participation in, denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination in any educational program or activity of this district on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin..."

The District argues that Respondent is guilty of Charge Five, Charge Six, Charge Seven and Charge Eight, which constitute violations of District Policy 5145.4, "Equal Educational Opportunity." (D-7).

District Policy 5145.4 provides, "The Jersey City School District shall provide equal and bias-free access for all students to all school facilities, courses, programs, activities and services and give them maximum opportunity to achieve their potential regardless of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry..."

The District contends that staff members are required to maintain wholesome and constructive relations with students, regard each as an individual and accord each student the rights and respect that are his/her due. Staff members are obligated to promote a learning environment that encourages fulfillment of each student's potential, consistent with district goals. The goals are achievable by adapting instruction to individual needs by insisting on standards of scholastic accomplishment for all students and creating a positive atmosphere in and out of the classroom, extending the same courtesy and respect expected of students and treating all students with fairness. (D-7).

Policy 5145.4 prohibits harassment by staff members against students which is defined as "any gesture that is perceived as being motivated by an actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color...that will have the effect (actual or perceived) of harming a student...or any gesture that demeans or insults a student or group of students in such a way as to cause substantial disruption in or interference with the orderly operation of the school. (D-7).

The District maintains Respondent's actions of separating the students into two lines based on race and skin color, and then advising them that the white students would pass and the black students would not, is shocking. The students attended Respondent's class to learn math and language arts, not to be discriminated against and humiliated by their teacher. Respondent made her students feel inferior, stupid and ashamed because of their race and skin color, it submits.

Bing testified Respondent's actions were a blatant violation of District Policy 6121 and 5145.4 (T. 6/5, 15:19-25 and 16:1-3). Respondent committed a discriminatory practice, which impeded educational improvement and also denied equal access to educational opportunities. (T. 6/5, 16:4-9). Respondent failed to create a positive classroom atmosphere and failed to treat all students with fairness. The District argues that Respondent's actions violated all aspect of Policies 6121 and 5145.4 and cannot be tolerated.

Respondent is guilty of Charge Nine, conduct unbecoming and excessive absenteeism according to the District. It insists that the Commissioner of Education has sustained tenure charges and ordered dismissal when an employee is culpable of excessive tardiness and absenteeism, even where the absences are for legitimate medical or health reasons. Despite a teacher's performance being sufficient in the classroom and, even if the absences were approved leave or sick days, they may be considered material to the issue of excessive absenteeism and can justify removal of the teacher. Excessive or chronic absenteeism of a tenured employee, even if related to legitimate medical or health problems, has been held to constitute "incapacity," "unbecoming conduct," and/or "just cause," within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, to warrant dismissal from employment, it urges.

The District contends there is no dispute that Respondent was absent on 118 occasions over the course of seven school years. (D-10). Respondent's absence records demonstrate she was absent as follow:

2007-2008, thirty-nine (39) occasions
2008-2009, twelve (12) occasions
2009-2010, fourteen (14) occasions
2010-2011, thirteen (13) occasions
2011-2012, thirteen (13) occasions
2012-2013, seventeen (17) occasions
2013-2014, ten (10) occasions

Respondent's poor attendance negatively impacted her students by consistently interrupting the continuity of instruction. Despite warnings, memoranda and counseling, her attendance has not improved (D-11). Respondent's excessive absenteeism between 2007 and 2014 had a negative impact upon the James F. Murray School and the Jersey City Public Schools community and warrants termination, according to the District.

The District asserts that it has proven the second set of Tenure Charges preferred, Docket 379-12/14.

It argues Respondent was guilty of Charge One, conduct unbecoming, when she violated students' privacy rights by distributing un-redacted student records. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, Respondent submitted to the District a Statement of Position in response to the First Tenure charges. Along with this document, Respondent included an Appendix of Exhibits, which included approximately forty-seven (47) documents with un-redacted confidential pupil records and information. (T. 6/23, 78:12-15). The information included in Respondent's Appendix contained documents dated between 2005 and 2014 and set forth pupils' full names, grade levels and classes attended (T. 6/23, 79:11-25).

Respondent intentionally misappropriated and disclosed these confidential records and information without consent from the students' parents or guardians, the District avers. Respondent did not obtain consent from the District prior to utilizing the records and information in connection with her Tenure Charges. A school board employee has a duty to safeguard these student documents and cannot share them with a third party. The District proffers that Respondent's intentional, inappropriate and unprofessional conduct in submitting un-redacted confidential pupil records and information violates Federal and State Law, including the Family Education

Rights and Privacy Act, 20 U.S.C. sec. 1232g (FERPA) and the New Jersey Pupil Records Regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.1, et. Seq. FERPA protects the privacy of student education records and prohibits dissemination without written permission of the student's parent or guardian, except under limited circumstances involving legitimate educational interests, such as a school official reviewing the record to fulfill his/her professional responsibility. This was not the case with Respondent, whose disclosure of the records was to defend against her tenure charges. Respondent ignored her role and responsibility under FERPA to protect the records and uphold the parents' and students' right to privacy.

The District argues Respondent is guilty of Charge Two, conduct unbecoming, in that she encouraged and solicited her pupils to write letters about another teaching staff member alleging that this staff member was always late, spreading lies, did not teach the class anything, was gossiping and a bully. Respondent had one student write: "I have to not do art. Instead I have to hear all of that CRAP & TRASH, she's talking to a bunch of 10 year olds about." (emphasis in the original, D-8). These writing assignments were not part of the curriculum or lesson plan approved by the District. Bing testified that the letters, which seemed to be prompted by an adult, were not an appropriate exercise or activity for fifth grade students. (T. 6/5, 18:2-11 and 21:8-16).

Respondent denied prompting the students to write letters; yet, her own witness, Student S.Y.'s mother, N.M, testified concerning her own belief in writing letters "when you feel you need to get something off your chest." N.M. was glad Respondent reinforced what N.M. taught her son. (T. 6/11, 88:12-21). This supports the conclusion that Respondent encouraged and/or solicited her students to write these letters.

Respondent is guilty of Charge Three, conduct unbecoming, for having students write negative letters concerning their study and home life. (D-9) Respondent had the students write similarly worded statements: "We are halfway thought the fourth grade. Since the beginning of the school year in September, you have stressed the importance of daily study habits and hard work. We have discussed the reasons why I get the grades I do in school. I want to be completely honest with you and explain my study habits at home." (D-9). The letters all contain various reasons or excuses concerning the students' failure to do homework such as, "I don't do my homework because my dad has to work, my grandma has to help my sister, so I don't do homework because I have to do it by myself, my mom use (sic) to help me but now I have to do by myself." (D-9). The District argues that the writing assignment made the students feel humiliated and embarrassed. The writing assignment also required Respondent's students to disclose negative, private and personal information about their families. The assignment was not part of the curriculum or any lesson plan approved by the District. Bing testified concerning the letters.(D-8). Bing proffered that these letters were not an appropriate exercise or activity as they lacked any educational value. (T. 6/5, 23:2-3).

The District argues that Respondent's actions of soliciting her students to write the negative letters for Respondent's personal use in Charge Two and the letters detailed in Charge Three took away from the students' educational day and are a breach of her professional responsibilities. Accordingly, Respondent is guilty of Charge Four.

The District did not address Charge Five or Charge Six in its brief, but did present evidence related to these charges concerning the content of the letters in Charge Three. The District argues that the letters were negative and contained critical appraisals of family members.

The District insists that conduct unbecoming is conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the agency of which the employee is a member, which has a tendency to destroy public respect for government employees and confidence in the operation of government services, or which violates an implicit standard of good behavior. Such a finding does not require that any specific rule or regulation has been violated but may be based on the violation of the standard of good behavior. Educators must be held to an enhanced standard of behavior. Teachers are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior not normally found in other types of employment.

The District argues that this case does not involve an isolated incident; but, rather, involves a pattern of unacceptable conduct culminating in a racially discriminatory incident. Respondent is not a role model or a mentor for the students of the Jersey City Public Schools. Her actions constitute conduct unbecoming and are sufficiently flagrant and egregious as to warrant termination. Respondent engaged in conduct which placed her students at undue risk of harm. The District concludes that it has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that there is just cause to terminate Respondent. One incident in the charges alone would warrant termination. The combination of charges demonstrates through un-refuted evidence offered by the District that Respondent is unfit to be a teacher and must be removed from her tenured teaching position.

B. Respondent

Respondent testified she is a tenured teacher in the Jersey City Public Schools and was hired as a Teacher Assistant in 1997. She is currently an Elementary Teacher assigned to the James F. Murray Elementary Public School No. 38, a position Respondent has held since 1999. Prior to these proceedings Respondent has had an unblemished disciplinary record. She recounts her career, which contains many notable achievements.[3] However, Respondent did not respond to most of the Charges in her brief. Her defenses are contained in the opening argument and testimony she gave during the Hearing.

[3] Respondent's career history was not in question. Respondent was advised multiple times during the hearing to address the facts of what happened, (T. 6/23, 27:21-23, 29:14-18) which she does not do in depth in her brief.

Respondent testified as to her actions on April 3, 2014, which serve as her response to the allegations in Charges One through Eight of Tenure Charges, Docket 342-11/14. She maintains she did not do what the District claims and the charges should be dismissed.

Respondent testified that in January 2014, she was placed in an alternative assignment with the Jersey City Public Schools Human Resource Department. Respondent remained assigned to the Human Resources Department until April 3, 2014. Upon her arrival that day, Respondent was unexpectedly directed to report to School 38 and return to her previous assignment. Despite her belief that proper protocols were not followed, she left the Human Resources Department at approximately 8:30 A.M. and reported to PS 38. Between her arrival at PS 38 and 10:30 A.M. she waited in the main office. (T. 6/23, 31: 9-25 and 32:1-16). Respondent testified that she emailed several staff within the Jersey City Public School that she was no longer assigned to PS 38. She referred to emails to demonstrate the times she was not actually in the classroom. Respondent was not performing instructional duties when she returned. (T. 6/23, 33:14-18). During this time she had discussions with the Principal's Clerk, Camillo, about her direct deposit pay stub. She did not have a record of her salary. On April 4, Respondent testified she returned to the "rubber room" and was advised her payroll stubs were shredded. Respondent continued to detail issues that she had with her pay stub, which she had discussed the morning of April 3. (T. 6/23 34:7-17). At approximately 10:30 A.M. on April 3, she was called into a meeting with Principal Jones, Ileya and Chismar. (T. 6/23, 35:3-6). Respondent was directed by Jones to complete marking period three electronic report cards by April 9. Respondent was to obtain the information from Chismar who advised the administrator that all grades for marking period three were completed and ready for report cards. (T. 6/23 35: 13-18).

Harris testified that she asked what information had been given to the students concerning her absence. Anticipating the students would query her as to her absence, she wanted her response to be consistent with what the students might have been told. She stated that after a contentious reply from Jones, the meeting concluded. She stated she was reprimanded for having her lunch in her hand when she exited the principal's office and responded she did not have time to unpack personal items or put things away. (T. 6/23, 36:1-11).

Approximately 10:45-11:00, Ileya escorted Respondent to Room 218, her fourth grade classroom. He introduced Respondent as a new teacher and reminded the students that he was available if they needed to talk to him and asked if they were ok. (T. 6/23 36:12-18). Ileya, and another teacher who was present, then left the room.

Respondent stated that other staff entered the room: Joseph Romano, the Fourth Grade teacher in the next room; Cassandra Bronson, the security guard with whom she worked and Chismar. Benjamin DiFranco (DiFranco) was allegedly in the room and Respondent testified DiFranco discussed loyalty with the children as part of an early morning tutorial vocabulary. He wrote on the black board: Loyalty and Betrayal. (T. 6/23 36:23-25 and 37:1-12). Respondent testified that DiFranco informed the students he kept Respondent up-to-date on their progress. The students reacted to Respondent's return. Some cried, "Oh, my God, where have you been?" (T. 6/23 37:16-18). Student E.B. stated, "I'm going to have to transfer" (T. 6/23 37:18-19). Student D.H. said, "I am getting left back." (T. 6/23 37:20). Respondent testified some students hugged her and asked about her absence. The students allegedly told her that students E and J claimed to have gotten her fired and that another, who was at-risk, had been suspended. (T. 6/23 38:1-15). Harris denies this allegation. (T. 6/23 38:16-19). The children told Respondent they were upset because she failed them on their report cards and had not given them extra credit. Respondent advised the students she completed all the second marking period report cards but that the extra credit was still on the table. (T. 6/23, 39:5-16). They told her that they were passing now but had bad behavior and could not go to field day. Respondent testified how, during her absence, she tried to keep up with the students' activities during her reassignment and submitted anything she could to help them. She also told them she had continued to study for her doctorate.

Respondent stated, "I instructed the students to line up into two lines, girls and boys, common. Take coats and lunches in case we were running late." (T.

6/23 42:7-10). Respondent submitted her schedule with her evidence. The students had what was called a special activity, which would also be referred to as her teacher prep or lunch. Jones had assigned certain of her duties to DiFranco who was there again to walk with her and the students to the gym. (T. 6/23, 42:6-17).

Respondent testified DiFranco returned these students to the classroom. Respondent indicated she was disappointed in the students' progress and behavior during her absence. She stated she had organized them into cooperative group seating arrangements of which the District, as well as Jones, were aware. (T, 6/23, 44:1-12).

Respondent claimed to have named all of her students as scholars and told them they were all going to college. She testified she did not put them as tables one, two, three, four or use the terms "a", "b", "c" and "d" as all the students would not understand what this meant. She told them what the numerical grades related to during the time of report cards. (T. 6/23. 44:14-25). Respondent, upon her return, reorganized the cooperative groups' seating arrangement and reactivated what was called Peer Leader and Study Buddies, one of each at every table. Respondent inquired if the students had retained their on-line academic accounts, which the students said they did not use. (T. 6/23, 45:1-9).

Harris stated Ileya returned again to the classroom to ask the students if they need to tell him anything. The students did not; but Respondent wanted to know why a particular student was returned to the classroom when Ileya had removed her. She was advised to inform him in writing of the issue. Respondent then testified she completed a Closed Reading activity in review for a test. (T. 6/23, 45: 10-22). Respondent had the students organize desks and restructure the classroom into what she believed to be a functional and organized environment that existed previously.

Respondent testified she then began to distribute school picture packets. Since she had not been there previously, she had to use a bunch of lists that remained in the classroom. She went through the shortest lists first. Some of the lists were those who ordered pictures, school T-shirt, who sold candy or student identified items. (T. 6/23, 46:17-23). Respondent stated there was a final list that was longer and was posted on the bulletin board, which was previously her Vision Board. Only positive things went on her Vision Board. (T. 6/23, 46:24-25 and 47:1).

Respondent stated, "With the last list, as we prepared for the close of the day, I announced that if-since it was a longer list-I announced that if I call your name, please stand, thinking it was another distribution list as well. I called the names on the list. And when I looked up, many students were standing. And I asked, what was this? And several students offered several explanations." (T. 6/23, 47:13-23).

Respondent testified she inquired of the students, "what was wrong with this picture?" as the students stated their reasons for the unknown list of those with recurrent behavior problems. There were few students who were not on the list or who were not standing." (T. 6/23, 48:11-16). Respondent proffered that Student T.N., who is African American, repeatedly insisted that students who were listed were black. Respondent pointed out that not all were black and that simply because a person's complexion or skin color is brown does not make him or her black. The fact a person is fair-skinned complexion doesn't make him or her white. (T. 6/23, 48:19-25 and 49:1). Harris stated this was a theme she had to teach students in an urban school many times and she reiterated it that day. Every student in Respondent's Fourth Grade 2013/14 classroom was a person of color. (T. 6/23, 49:1-5). Respondent testified repeatedly on cross-examination that she did not line anybody up because of his or her race. (T. 6/23, 68:18-22). She did not tell African-American or darker skin students that they would not pass; nor did she tell lighter skin students they would pass. As an African American woman she was offended by the accusation. (T. 6/11, 68:8-16).

In support of this assertion, Harris offered the testimony of Teacher Assistant Corinne Decker-Gingles (Gingles). Gingles testified that she came into Respondent's classroom a few times during the 2013/14 year. When she entered, the children were always engaged and working. There was always something new on the bulletin board and the children were well mannered. (T. 6/11, 25:17-23). On the days she came into Respondent's classroom, she did not observe any groups or lines in the classroom.(T. 6/11, 25:24-25; 26:1).

Respondent did not contest her absences in Charge Nine. Nor did she offer direct testimony on this charge. Respondent did argue that her use of contractual days throughout her tenure does not constitute excessive absenteeism. (T. 6/23, 20:10-12). She admitted taking a leave from the District in 2007 and 2008 for a medical procedure of which the District was aware weeks in advance. Respondent argued further that on many days she was absent, if she was not hospitalized and able to visit, she did return to the school at some point in the day even though she was marked absent. She communicated with the school staff on those days and used technology to communicate with the substitute teacher and the students.(T. 6/23, 21:8-16).

In Tenure Charges, Docket 379-12/14, Charge One, Respondent admitted submitting, as part of her defense, a 200-plus page packet of student letters. She acknowledges that none of the student names were crossed out. (T. 6/23 78:12-15). Her understanding was that these proceedings are private. Respondent argued she did not violate FERPA.

Respondent's former fifth grade student, S.Y., testified on her behalf concerning the February 2013 complaint involving letters sent about an art teacher, which is the subject of Charge Two of the second Tenure Charges. S.Y. felt that the manner the art teacher spoke of Respondent was unprofessional and he disagreed with what was being said. He testified he and the whole class decided to write to Principal Jones. (T. 6/11, 69:20). He testified that the art teacher left him and the other students and she did not teach them anything. (T. 6/11, 70:14-16). When learning of this issue, Respondent asked her students what they did when they have a problem. They responded they write a letter and that's how they got the idea. (T. 6/11, 71:1-4). S.Y. testified Respondent did not force them to write a letter. (T. 6/11, 71:7-14).

S.Y.'s mother, N.M., also testified on Respondent's behalf. She confirmed that her son related the incident with the art teacher to her. (T. 6/11 84:1-17). She stated she loved that Respondent had a chance to teach her child and that Respondent taught the children skills as well as education and wished there were more teachers like her. (T.6/11 88: 6-12). N.M. believes that when someone does something wrong, it should be written down and documented. N.M. testified she was glad Respondent reinforced what N.M. taught her son. (T. 6/11, 88:14-22).

On cross-examination, Respondent maintained that she did not require the students to write the letters related to what another teacher said about her. She recalled that the Principal provided her with copies of the letters. (T. 6/23 82:18-19). She testified the students had reported that another teacher said bad things (T. 6/23 82:23-24). There was no evidence that the letters were written during school, Harris insisted. (T. 6/23 84:11-12). She saw no reason the students couldn't do journal writing or any other type of writing at any time if the statements are truthful. (T. 6/23, 84:16-19). Students can write during recess and journal writing time. Since this occurred in February, the students would spend most of their free time indoors, which constitutes a denial of Charge Four as the letter writing did not take away from instructional time.

Respondent does not address Charges Three, Five or Six which are related to the letters concerning the students' writing about their home environment.

Respondent argued that she has been involved in community activities, chaired committees and embraced the servant leadership work ethic. (T. 6/23, 13-18) In her overall defense, Respondent stated, "To insist that the students fail, contribute to an environment in which they would fail, would be like suicide to me. As the District and the State now has a policy that students' progress is tied to teacher progress, it serves no benefit to undermine, humiliate, embarrass, or do anything to students." (T. 6/23, 22:10-16). Respondent insists that she has not done what the District alleges she did. (T. 6/23, 23:22).

Respondent argues the following as an appropriate remedy.[4]

1) All tenure charges brought against her by the District of the Jersey City Public Schools should be dismissed and/or denied; her suspension be permanently removed and expunged from the State of New Jersey and District's files and her personnel records; and,

[4] Respondent's brief contained lengthy discussion related to the settlement conferences. While one was held, issues and offers discussed at that conference are inappropriate for inclusion in the arbitration hearing or this decision.

2) She should be immediately reinstated to a tenured position in the Jersey City Public Schools with full back pay and seniority, including stipends and extra compensatory income that supplemented her regular income for the entirety of her employment as a tenured teacher and quasi-administrator for District programs, and made whole for any and all loss of benefits suffered during her suspension without pay from the District from November 19, 2014 to the present.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Several introductory comments are appropriate. Respondent has raised procedural issues in her brief and during the hearing related to due process, back pay concerns, and issues related to the removal of her attorney by the former arbitrator.

The former arbitrator did not remove Respondent's attorney. By letter dated April 8, 2015, Respondent's attorney advised the former arbitrator that the law firm was declining to represent her and that the original April 14, 2015 hearing should be adjourned for Respondent to obtain new counsel, with whom they would cooperate, before the April 23, 2015 hearing date.

On June 3, 2015, I answered Respondent's concerns related to due process issues which had been raised. I assured Respondent that her due process rights were not affected if I were to review the transcript, which I did, of the individuals who testified before the previous arbitrator, thus negating the need to start the process over. Respondent was assured she had the same due process rights as she did with the previous arbitrator. She was advised she could call any witness who could give relevant testimony regarding the charges preferred against her.

On June 11, 2015, I issued an award in response to Respondent's motion for back pay and restoration to the payroll. I granted Respondent full pay for the period of April 28, 2015 through May 29, 2015. In all other respects, I denied Respondent's motion for restoration to the payroll.

Other issues Respondent raised in her brief concerning the Board's procedures are not relevant to this hearing. Accordingly, I turn to the merits of this dispute.

There are two sets of Tenure Charges which have been joined in this action. Tenure Charges 342-11/14 were served on or about September 23, 2014 and certified to the Board on November 19, 2014. Tenure Charges 379-12/14 were served on or about November 21, 2014 and certified to the Board on December 16, 2014. Each set will be analyzed independently.

Tenure Charges 342-11/14

Charges One and Two arise from the same events and are discussed together. The record reveals that Respondent did demand on April 3, 2014, that her fourth grade students, who were either struggling and/or receiving failing grades, stand up in front of the class. The record further indicates that Respondent then separated her students into two lines according to race. Students from Respondent's fourth grade class of 2013/14 testified credibly as to the manner in which Respondent asked the students to stand up and form two lines based upon skin color. One line was for black or dark skinned students; and, the other line was for white and/or light skinned students. For example, Student D.H. described how Respondent said that everyone who is failing should stand up and she told certain others to sit down. (T. 5/29, 90:19-23). Respondent then separated the students into two lines, one line with black students and one line with white students. D.H. was placed in the line with black students.(T. 5/29, 90:19-25 and 91:1-5) D.H. testified further that everyone who got F's had to stand up. Respondent then separated the students into two lines.(T. 5/29, 91:10-14).

The students also testified consistently concerning Respondent's comments comparing the two lines, indicating that the white or light skin students would pass fourth grade while the black or dark skin students would not. The students expressed various forms of discontent and anger at Respondent's actions. Several students advised their parents which led to inquiries concerning the possible racial segregation of the class. Student D.H.'s comment characterizes the students' feeling when she stated she felt "kind of sad." (T. 5/29, 92:4-7). Student X.R. felt "a little mad or sad because skin color is black so [I] thought it was offensive." (T. 4/23, 39:17-19). I do not credit Respondent's testimony that the lines were formed based upon her reading of a large list posted on the classroom bulletin board. This testimony was contrary to testimony provided by Chismar that no list containing student names was placed on any classroom wall or bulletin board. (T. 4/23, 118:1-20). I concur with the testimony of Chief Academic Officer Bing that it is never appropriate to separate a class based upon race, (T. 6/5, 15:7-10).

The April 3, 2014 incident was not the first time Respondent separated her students. The students' testimony also demonstrated that they were separated in class according to their academic ability. Respondent organized the classroom into four specific seating tables with the students assigned based upon their grades. The record supports the conclusion that she created "A", "B", "C" and "F" tables and named the tables Princeton University, Rutgers University, New Jersey City University and Drew University respectively. Melissa Chismar, Respondent's replacement during her reassignment to Human Resources, testified the classroom was separated into the aforementioned groups and that she returned them to rows. Chismar testified that Respondent's seating method did not provide an opportunity for students to work together or help each other out.

Such an arrangement affects the student's self-esteem, as all the students know who is passing or failing. The testimony of the students supports the potential negative effect of this arrangement on self-esteem. Respondent testified credibly that she believed she was forming cooperative groups and, when Respondent returned from the Human Resources assignment, she again restructured the classroom into what she believed to be a functional and organized environment that previously existed. Her testimony demonstrates she was not cognizant of the negative impact such an arrangement might have on her students and did not seek to cause intentional harm. Respondent's action of separating students by their academic ability supports Charge One and Charge Two to the extent it demonstrates a continued pattern of separating students into categories by racial categories.

There is insufficient factual evidence to refute the students' testimony stated above. I concur with the District's argument that Respondent's conduct was inappropriate and demonstrated exceptionally poor judgment. I do not find, however, that Respondent's conduct was intentionally cruel and abusive or that she intended to create racial animus. Rather, I am convinced, she wanted students to feel the sting of discrimination so they would know how not to act in potentially racially charged situations.

Teachers often attempt to impart an understanding to their students concerning racial issues. Respondent testified that she explained to her students that simply because a person's complexion or skin color is brown does not make him or her black. The fact a person is fair-skinned complexion does not make him or her white. (T. 6/23 48:19-25 and 49:1). Respondent stated this was a theme she had to teach students in an urban school many times and she reiterated it that day. Every student in her Fourth Grade 2013/14 classroom was a person of color. (T. 6/23, 49:1-5). Respondent, an African American teacher, apparently was attempting to teach her students a lesson concerning race, but should have chosen a more suitable methodology.

Accordingly, based upon the record, I find Respondent culpable of Charge One, items c, d, e, g, h, i, j, and k; and, I find Respondent culpable of Charge Two, items b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, k, l, m, n, o, and p.

The record does not support by a preponderance of the evidence that Respondent yelled at her students, saying they betrayed her, nor that she openly disparaged other teachers to the students. While one student, T.N., did include this in her written statement (D-2), there is insufficient testimony or other evidence to support the statement. Further, Respondent testified credibly that DiFranco had been discussing loyalty in an early morning vocabulary tutorial of April 3, 2014, and the words "loyalty" and "betrayal" were written on the board (T. 6/23, 37:5-12), which raises doubt as to Respondent's culpability. I find that Respondent is not culpable of Charge Three.

District Policy 6121 provides in part that no student may "...be subject to discrimination in any educational program or activity of this district on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin, ancestry..." The actions of Respondent in separating the students by race, as sustained in Charge Two, are discriminatory in nature and technically violate District Policy 6121. As such, I find Respondent culpable of Charge Four, items b and c.

Charge Five relates to that part of District Policy 5145.4 which provides for equal and bias-free access for all students to all school facilities, courses, programs, activities and services regardless of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry. The record does not establish by a preponderance of the evidence that Respondent's actions on April 3rd affected the students in such a manner. No child was deprived of access to any facility, course, etc., as a result of what she said. Thus, I find the Respondent is not culpable of Charge Five.

District Policy 5145.4 provides that "staff members shall maintain professional relationships with students at all times and develop wholesome and constructive relationships with them." The record does not support Charge Six by a preponderance of the evidence. The credible testimony suggests that some students were pleased to see Respondent return while others were fearful of not passing, suggesting only that Respondent might be very demanding of her students. N.M., the parent of student S.Y., testified she was pleased that Respondent taught her child and wished there were more teachers like her. (T. 6/11, 88:6-12) Teacher Aide Gingles testified that when she came into Respondent's classroom, the children were always engaged and working. There was always something new on the bulletin board and the children were well mannered. (T. 6/11, 25:17-23). The record does not contain credible evidence that the Respondent did not maintain a professional manner with her students. I find that Respondent is not culpable of Charge Six.

District policy 5145.4 states, "…staff members shall be expected to regard each student as an individual and to accord each student the rights and respect that are his/her due." Having sustained Charge

Two, I found Respondent culpable of separating her students into two lines based upon race on April 3, 2014. The students testified about their anger and humiliation at this action. Such action denies the students the rights and respect which are due him/her. Further, I find Respondent's separating students into university groups allowed students to know which were passing and which were failing, and did not protect students' right to privacy regarding grades. Respondent's actions, even if unintended, failed to treat all students with fairness. Hence, they violate this section. Accordingly, I find Respondent culpable of Charge Seven, items b and c.

District Policy 5145.4 prohibits any act of discrimination or harassment against any member of the school community. It further defines harassment in part as "any gesture that is reasonably perceived as being motivated by an actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin…that will have the effect (actual or perceived) of harming a student." It is also defined as "any gesture that demeans or insults a student in such a way to cause substantial disruption or interference in orderly school operation." Students are members of the school community.

While the record does not reveal that Respondent intended to cause harm, Respondent's action of separating the students into two lines based on race, sustained in Charge Two, is a discriminatory act, which had a harmful effect. The students testified that it made them feel bad, sad or angry about themselves with the resulting effect of harming their self-esteem. Respondent's misconduct demeaned the students, caused anger amongst the parents with a resulting investigation and reassignment of Respondent and another teacher assigned to perform her duties. I find Respondent culpable of Charge Eight, Items b, c, d, and e.

The Record supports the charge of excessive absenteeism. Respondent does not contest that she was absent on 118 occasions during the seven-year period. This amounts to an average of approximately seventeen (17) days per year which I find, is excessive. Respondent errs in her belief that because an absence is contractually permitted it cannot rise to the level of being excessive. I concur with the District's argument that it is well established that excessive or chronic absenteeism, even if related to legitimate or health problems, could be grounds for disciplinary action. Excessive absenteeism by a teacher can have a negative impact on the students by disrupting the continuity of instruction. Accordingly, I find the Respondent culpable of Charge Nine.

Charge Ten is a summary allegation and need not be addressed here.

I find, therefore, that Respondent is culpable of Charge One, Items c, d, e, g, h, i, j, k; Charge Two, Items b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, k, l, m, n, o, p; Charge Four, Items b, c; Charge Seven, Items b, c; Charge Eight, Items b, c, d, e; and Charge Nine of the charges preferred against her on or about September 23, 2014. Respondent is not culpable of the remaining allegations and charges preferred against her on or about September 23, 2014.

Tenure Charges: 379/12/14

In response to the Tenure Charges 342/11/14, Respondent submitted a Statement of Position, which included approximately forty-seven (47) documents. Respondent's Appendix of Exhibits included documents that set forth the students' full names, grade levels and classes attended. The District maintains this violates Federal and State law, including the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) and the New Jersey Pupil Records Regulations.

Schools must have written permission from the parent or eligible student in order to release information from a student's records, except for legitimate educational interests, of which, the District argues, Respondent's defense of her tenure charge is not one. Respondent admits submitting the documents and admits she did not obtain consent from any of the students, students' parents or the District in transmitting these documents. She argued that her understanding of FERPA is that it is between the government and institutions. (T. 6/23 18:7-8.). Respondent believed that these proceedings are private and the use of the documents would be permissible.

While I find Respondent did provide the un-redacted information, based on Respondent's testimony, I do not find that Respondent intentionally misappropriated and disclosed confidential student records and information. Respondent's actions are still a technical violation, however. Accordingly, I find Respondent culpable of Charge One, Items g, h, i, j, k, m, n, q, and r.

The District argued that Respondent is culpable of Charge Two in that she encouraged or elicited her pupils to write letters complaining about another staff member. I concur with this position. There is sufficient evidence from students that the Respondent told them that if they had a complaint they knew what to do. Respondent's former student, S.Y., testified on behalf of Respondent. S.Y. testified it was the students in February of 2013 who informed Respondent that an art teacher was speaking inappropriately about her. He testified that the students took it on their own initiative, not as a homework assignment, to write the complaint letters. However, on direct and cross-examination, S.Y. admitted that Respondent asked the students what they usually do when they have a problem. S.Y. admitted that the students responded that they write a letter. (T. 6/11, 71:1-4 and 75:10-17). Testifying for the District, Bing stated the letters were inappropriate and looked as if prompted by an adult. (T.6/5, 182-11). I concur with the District's position that Respondent, as a teacher, plays a leadership role for her students. While she did not order the students directly to write the letters, through her actions she did elicit and encourage their production. I concur with the District's argument that, in this instance, Respondent acted unprofessionally and failed to exercise the restrain that is expected of a professional by using her students for her own devices. There are other methods Respondent could have utilized to bring another teacher's inappropriate comments to the school administration. However, the record does not reveal that Respondent's conduct in having the students write these letters rises to a level of placing the students at risk of harm or causes her to be unfit to be a teacher. Accordingly, I find Respondent culpable of Charge Two, Items d, e, f, h, i, and j.

District Exhibit 9, which was accepted into evidence, contains a series of letters which Respondent's students wrote to explain why they did not complete their homework and is the basis of Charge Three. The letters do contain information regarding the students' home life. Respondent included these letters as part of her response to the Tenure Charges. Bing testified that he believed the letters lacked educational value and that such discussions of teachers having issues with a student and homework should be held with a parent present on a one-on-one basis. (T. 6/5, 23:2-11). The District argued that the letters are not part of the curriculum. I concur with the District's position that this writing assignment caused students to disclose private and personal information about their families and that this information was often negative. However, there has been no showing that students were placed at a risk of harm from these letters or were humiliated because of them. The record does not demonstrate that the letters were punitive in nature, that Respondent failed to exercise self-restraint and control behavior, or that the assignment made the students feel humiliated and embarrassed. Thus, to the extent discussed herein, I find that Respondent is culpable only of Charge Three, Items d through p, s, and t.

There has been no showing by a preponderance of the evidence that Respondent intentionally ignored her educational responsibilities and took significant time from her pupils educational day in their writing the letters which are the subject of Charges Two and Three. Nor is there evidence that Respondent neglected her teaching duties and responsibilities. Prior to the instant matter, the record contains no evidence of complaints concerning Respondent's ability. There is some evidence in the record to suggest that some parents were pleased with Respondent's educational approach. (Testimony of N.M., T. 6/11, 88:1-22). Further, Respondent testified on cross-examination that the February 2013 letters were written as part of journal writing and during recess. Since it was February, students would spend most of their free time in the classroom. (T. 6/23, 84:25 and 85:1-3). There is no evidence to the contrary. Accordingly, I do not find Respondent culpable of Charge Four.

Charge Five references N.J.S.A. 18A:36-34 and Charge Six references The Pupils Rights Amendment (PPRA), 20 U.S.C. section 1232h. The pertinent language of both mandates that written consent be obtained from parents and/or guardians prior to students being asked about certain topics such as "illegal, anti-social, self-incriminating and demeaning behavior" and "critical appraisals of other individuals with whom a respondent has a close family relationship." While not specifically arguing these sections in its brief, the District has demonstrated that Respondent required her pupils to write statements about their home life. Each letter began with a similarly worded paragraph. (D-9). The students wrote about their home and family circumstance, resulting in the students providing negative information about their personal lives and family members. The record does not contain evidence that Respondent had the permission of a parent or guardian for this assignment. While technically violating both these sections, there is no evidence that Respondent's action was willful, placed the students at a risk of harm, or demonstrated she is unfit to be a teacher. In this light, I find Respondent technically culpable of Charge Five, Items b, c, d, g, h; and Charge Six, Items b, c, d, f, and g.

Charge Seven is a summary allegation and need not be addressed here.

As indicated above, I find Respondent culpable of Charge One, Items g, h, i, j, k, m, n, q, r; Charge Two, Items d, e, f, h, I, j; Charge Three, Items d through p, s, t; Charge Five, Items b, c, d, g, h; and Charge Six, Items b, c, d, f, g of the charges preferred against her on or about November 21, 2014. Respondent is not culpable of the remaining allegations and charges preferred against her on or about November 21, 2014.

Having found Respondent culpable of the charges on Agency Docket Numbers 342/11/14 and 379/12/14 to the extent stated above, I turn to the appropriate penalty for these infractions.

The District argued vigorously in its brief, and reiterated in its reply brief, that Respondent must be terminated. The District proffered that Respondent's conduct is sufficiently egregious that even one incident in the charges is sufficient to warrant termination.

While I find a significant penalty is warranted, Respondent's termination is not. Respondent is a long-term employee who has no prior discipline. The record demonstrates that Respondent is a highly credentialed instructor and, prior to the instant matter, had participated in a myriad of positive school and community activities. The record does reveal she exercised poor judgment in her actions and is culpable of the charges to the extent discussed above. However, Respondent did not act in a manner that was willful, vindictive, or with malicious intent. The record does not support the allegation that Respondent is not capable of returning to her position as a teacher. There is testimony that parents are pleased Respondent taught children and that when entering Respondent's classroom, the students were always engaged and working and that the students seeming well mannered. I believe Respondent is aware of her mistakes and will conform to the District's rules and standards.

Concerning excessive absenteeism, while Respondent was warned concerning attendance, there is no indication in the record that Respondent previously received any discipline for this infraction. While some discipline is now warranted, termination is not the appropriate penalty. A lengthy suspension should sufficiently place Respondent on notice concerning her need to improve her attendance.

Accordingly, I find that Respondent shall be restored to her teaching position effective September 8, 2015. Respondent's record shall reflect a "time served" suspension from the period when she was first suspended on November 19, 2014 until her restoration to the payroll on September 8, 2015, less the period for which she was awarded back pay pursuant to my June 11, 2015 decision. Further, Respondent is given a final warning concerning time and leave violations. It is so ordered.

AWARD

(Agency Docket Nos. 342/11/14 and 379/12/14)

1. Respondent Gilda Nicole Harris is culpable of Charge One, Items c, d, e, g, h, i, j, k; Charge Two, Items b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, k, l, m, n, o, p; Charge Four, Items b, c; Charge Seven, Items b, c; Charge Eight, Items b, c, d, e; and Charge Nine of the charges preferred against her on or about September 23, 2014.
2. Respondent is not culpable of the remaining charges preferred against her on or about September 23, 2014.
3. Respondent is culpable of Charge One, Items g, h, i, j, k, m, n, q, r; Charge Two, Items d, e, f, h, I, j; Charge Three, Items d through p, s, t; Charge Five, Items b, c, d, g, h; and Charge Six, Items b, c, d, f, g of the charges preferred against her on or about November 21, 2014.
4. Respondent is not culpable of the remaining charges preferred against her on or about November 21, 2014.
5. The appropriate penalty for Respondent's culpability in (1) and (3) above is a "time served" suspension for the period of November 19, 2014 until Respondent's restoration to the payroll on September 8, 2015, less the period for which she was Awarded back pay pursuant to my June 11, 2015 award. Respondent is given a final warning concerning attendance.

NATURE OF DISPUTE

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b), on August 26, 2015, the Hillsborough Township Board of Education ("Petitioner" or "Board") filed with the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies & Disputes, tenure charges against Respondent, Nancy Mastriana, seeking to dismiss her from employment from her position as a Special Education/Resource Center Teacher at Hillsborough Middle School. The Charges were brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3a(2) because Respondent received partially effective ratings in two consecutive years. On September 4, 2015, Respondent filed an answer to the Tenure Charges. On Wednesday, September 9, 2015, by overnight mail, the Director referred the case to the undersigned pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as amended by P.L. 2012, c. 26 and P.L. 2015, c. 109. However, the referral letter, transmitted by the Director to the parties by way of regular mail, was not received by the Board Attorney until Friday, September 11, 2015 at approximately 3:00 p.m.

On September 11, 2015, at 4:23 p.m., less than 90 minutes after the Board received said correspondence from the Director, the Board provided Respondent with a list of witnesses together with summaries of their testimony. On September 23, 2015, Respondent filed the within motion, arguing that the Board allegedly failed to comply with the procedural requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) by failing to provide Respondent with a list of witnesses and summaries of their testimony upon referral of the matter from the Director to the undersigned on September 9, 2015. On October 2, 2015, Petitioner filed a letter brief in opposition to Respondent's motion for summary decision.

THE POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

Respondent

Respondent argues that the District failed, "upon referral of the case to arbitration," to provide her with a list of its witnesses, and with a complete summary of the anticipated testimony of any such witness. As such, Respondent contends that the District is now statutorily precluded from proffering witness testimony at the hearing in this case. Respondent refers the undersigned to IMO Tenure Hearing of Charles Coleman, Agency Dkt. No. 169-7/14 (Arbitrator David Gregory). In that matter, Arbitrator Gregory opined: "the law is largely the history of procedure. It is indubitable----procedure matters." Respondent next summarizes the statutory scheme establishing the mandatory timeframes that govern TEACH NJ arbitration disputes. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) provides that:

> Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employing board of education or its representative. The employee shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses....[emphases added].

According to Respondent, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(f-h) reinforce the importance placed on these timelines:

> (f). Timelines set forth herein shall be strictly followed; the arbitrator or any involved party shall inform the commissioner of any timeline that is not adhered to.
> (g.). An arbitrator may not extend the timeline of holding a hearing beyond 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case without approval from the commissioner. An arbitrator may not extend the time line for rendering a written decision within 45 days from the start of the hearing without approval from the commissioner...
> (h.). The commissioner may remove an arbitrator from an arbitration case or an arbitration panel if an arbitrator does not adhere to the timelines set forth herein without approval from the commissioner.

In construing the aforementioned statutory provisions, Respondent asserts "the arbitrator has no discretion to extend timelines, and an arbitrator who unilaterally extends a timeline can be removed from the case by Commissioner of Education."

Perhaps most definitive, notes Respondent, the statute contains no provision allowing for the extension of Petitioner's obligation to provide a list of witnesses upon referral of the case to an arbitrator under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), even with the Commissioner's approval. Although, according to Respondent, no reported decision has yet addressed the application of the statute or the definition of the phrase "upon referral" as used therein, the plain meaning rule must govern. That is, unless the legislative intent instructs otherwise, the words and language at issue must be given their plain and ordinary meaning. Citing, Township of Pemberton v. Berardi, 378 N.J. Super. 430, 437 (App. Div. 2005). "Upon" is a preposition which has substantially the same meaning as "on". Webster's New World Dictionary, Third College Edition, p. 1466. (1988). In the temporal sense, "on" is defined as "at or during the time of". Id. at 946.

Given the plain meaning of the word "upon" and the strict timelines mandated by the statute, it is clear that the language "upon referral" means "simultaneous to" or "at the time of" the referral. If this were not the case, the statute, as it does with every other timeline, would undoubtedly have included a fixed time after the referral date for the submission of the District's statement of evidence. As such, Respondent contends that the District cannot present any evidence that is not furnished "upon referral of the case for arbitration." Here, the parties were notified by correspondence dated September 9, 2015 that the case had been referred to arbitration as of that date. Notwithstanding this, the District did not provide its witness list or testimony summaries until September 11, 2015. Accordingly, the Respondent urges the Arbitrator to issue an order barring the District from proffering witness testimony in support of the tenure charges at any hearing in this matter.

Perhaps in anticipation of Petitioner's opposition, Respondent opines that its' interpretation of the statute is not unfair to the District, nor impossible for the District to anticipate. The District was aware, as of September 3, 2015, that Respondent had filed an Answer to the Tenure Charges. The District also knew that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(c), that the Commissioner of Education was required, "within five days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges, refer the case to an arbitrator and appoint an arbitrator to hear the case, unless he determines that the evaluation process has not been followed." As set forth in the referral letter from Director Duncan, the Commissioner received Respondent's Answer on September 4, 2015, and referred the case to arbitration in conformance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(c).

Therefore, having received Respondent's Answer, the District knew that referral to arbitration was imminent, and was charged with providing its witness list and testimony summaries "upon" the September 9, 2015 referral date. It failed to do so.

Additionally, Respondent observes that the District is given as much time as it wants, prior to filing the tenure charges, to marshal its resources and prepare its evidentiary materials. If the District was not prepared to meet its obligations under the statute, it should have refrained from filing the tenure charges until it was prepared to do so. Conversely, notes Respondent, the statutory scheme provides an extremely limited window of time for the recipient of the tenure charges to prepare his or her defenses after receiving the District's statement of evidence. The statute cannot be interpreted to allow a board of education to shrink that window by failing to adhere to the strict timelines of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). To do so would eviscerate the procedure which has been implemented to protect the due process rights of teaching staff members defending tenure charges under the extremely expedited timelines of the TEACH NJ Act.

In light of the foregoing, Respondent asks the Arbitrator to conclude that Petitioner is barred from presenting witness testimony. Since Petitioner has the burden of proof, Respondent further reasons that Petitioner cannot shoulder its burden in the absence of witness testimony. Therefore, Respondent seeks Summary Decision in its favor dismissing the tenure charges.

Petitioner

It is the Board's position that Respondent's interpretation of the statute is misguided as it fails to consider that "the fundamental requirement[] of procedural due process and administrative fairness... [is] adequate notice." In re Consider Distribution of Casino Simulcasting Special Fund (Accumulated in 2005), 398 N.J. Super. 7, 21 (App. Div. 2008) (emphasis added); see also High Horizons Dev. Co. v. Dep't of Transp., 120 N.J. 40, 53 (1990); George Harms Constr. Co. v. N.J. Tpk. Auth., 137 N.J. 8, 19–20 (1994); In re Dep't. of Ins.'s Order Nos. A89–119 & A90–125, 129 N.J. 365, 382 (1992); Cunningham v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 69 N.J. 13, 22 (1975). Essentially, Respondent argues that the Board failed to act when it had no notice whatsoever of its alleged obligation to act. If the Arbitrator were to interpret the statute in accordance with Respondent's contentions, the Board would be deprived of the fundamental requirement of procedural due process, which is "adequate notice."

The Board was first notified of the referral to an arbitrator at approximately 3:00 p.m. on September 11, 2015. Less than 90 minutes after the receipt of the referral for arbitration, the Board provided Respondent a list of witnesses and summaries of their testimony.[1] Although Respondent contends that the Board was required to furnish the list of witnesses and summary of their testimony on September 9, 2015, neither Respondent nor the Board were aware of the referral on September 9, 2015. Respondent's interpretation of the term "upon," as used in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), would render the statute unconstitutional, as it would eviscerate the Board's fundamental right to due process.[2] As such, Respondent's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) is clearly erroneous and Respondent's motion should be denied, as the Board fully complied with the statutory requirement.

[1] The Board does not concede that same-day transmission is even required after receiving notice, but did so simply because it was able and this issue has been discussed previously.

The Board respectfully requests the Arbitrator to employ "the oft-cited rule of statutory construction which holds that the purpose and reason for the legislation, considered as an integrated whole, should control rather than its literal terms." City of Newark v. Essex Cnty., 160 N.J. Super. 105, 113 (App. Div. 1978), aff'd, 80 N.J. 143 (1979); see also Loboda v. Clark Tp., 40 N.J. 424, 435 (1963); Schierstead v. Brigantine, 29 N.J. 220, 230-231 (1959); Westinghouse Elec. Corp. v. Board of Review, 25 N.J. 221, 226-227 (1957); Palkoski v. Garcia, 19 N.J. 175, 181 (1955); Caputo v. Best Foods, 17 N.J. 259, 264 (1955). In Alexander v. N. J. Power & Light Co., 21 N.J. 373 (1956), the Court aptly articulated the judicial role in interpreting legislative enactments:

> The statute is to receive a reasonable construction, to serve the apparent legislative purpose. The inquiry in the final analysis is the true intention of the law; and, in the quest for the intention, the letter gives way to the rationale of the expression. The words used may be expanded or limited according to the manifest reason and obvious purpose of the law. The spirit of the legislative direction prevails over the literal sense of the terms. The particular words are to be made responsive to the essential principle of the law. When the reason of the regulation is general, though the provision is special, it has a general acceptation. The language is not to be given a rigid interpretation when it is apparent that such meaning was not intended. The rule of strict construction cannot be allowed to defeat the evident legislative design. The will of the lawgiver is to be found, not by a mechanical use of > particular words and phrases, according to their actual denotation, but by the exercise of reason and judgment in assessing the expression as a composite whole. The indubitable reason of the legislative terms in the aggregate is not to be sacrificed to scholastic strictness of definition or concept. Wright v. Vogt, 7 N.J. 1, 80 A.2d 108 (1951). It is not the meaning of isolated words, but the internal sense of the law, the spirit of the correlated symbols of expression, that we seek in the exposition of a statute. The intention emerges from the principle and policy of the act rather than the literal sense of particular terms, standing alone.[Id. At 378-379.]

[2] Even assuming for the sake of argument that the Arbitrator would accept Respondent's interpretation of the statutory timeline requirement (which he should not), Respondent fails to provide a single justification as to how she was prejudiced by receiving the list of witnesses and summary of their testimony 42 days as opposed to 44 days prior to the date of the previously scheduled October 23, 2015 hearing date in the within matter (which will now not even take place on that date).

Additionally, Petitioner observes that a statute should not be interpreted in a manner that leads to absurd results. See Griffin v. Oceanic Contractors, Inc., 458 U.S. 564, 575 (1982). Here, Respondent's interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) indisputably violates that fundamental canon of statutory construction, and leads to nothing other than an "absurd result." The Legislature could not have intended to deprive the Board of its fundamental right to due process by imposing upon it an obligation to act without notice. As such, the only sensible construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 that would serve the apparent legislative purpose would be to provide the Board with a reasonable opportunity to furnish the requisite documents to Respondent after notice of the case's referral to arbitration.

Additionally, Respondent's interpretation of the term "upon," as used in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), becomes unequivocally erroneous upon closer examination of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes, which frequently provides for the use of "immediately upon" when the urgency of immediate or simultaneous action is required. Some of the numerous examples include:

> Notwithstanding any provision of P.L.1968, c. 410 (C.52:14B-1 et seq.) or any other law to the contrary, the commissioner may adopt, immediately > upon filing with the Office of Administrative Law, such rules and regulations as the commissioner deems necessary. [N.J.S.A. 18A:37-32.1 (emphasis added)].

>
> Upon the appointment of a former police officer of an educational institution, the appointing educational institution, county or municipal law enforcement agency, State law enforcement agency or the New Jersey Transit Corporation shall notify the former educational institution immediately upon the appointment of a police officer formerly with that institution and shall reimburse the institution within 120 days of the receipt of the certified costs. [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-4.12 (emphasis added)].
> A member of the board of trustees appointed to the board of governors pursuant to subsection b.ii. of N.J.S.18A:65-14 shall cease being a member of the board of trustees immediately upon taking the oath of office as a member of the board of governors. [N.J.S.A. 18A:65-15 (emphasis added)].

According to Petitioner, the above statues demonstrate that when the Legislature intends for the action to be taken "at the time of" or "immediately" with another action, it explicitly provides for such a requirement. In contrast, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) merely states "upon referral of the case to arbitration" and not "immediately upon referral to arbitration," thereby providing for a reasonable opportunity, upon notice, for the Board to furnish the list of witnesses and summary of their testimony once the case is referred to arbitration.

Notably, the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, in United States v. Carson, 969 F.2d 1480, 1487 (3d Cir. 1992), interpreted the phrase "immediately upon" as used in 18 U.S.C.A. 2518(8)(a)[3] to mean "'as soon as was practical' and not instanter." (citing United States v. Vastola, 915 F.2d 865, 875 (3d Cir. 1990)). The Court proceeded to reason that "[i]f tapes are not sealed immediately, i.e., as soon as administratively practical, they must be suppressed at trial...." Carson, 969 F.2d at 1487 (citing Vastola, 915 F.2d at 870)(emphasis added). In Carson, the Court discounted weekend days where a taping order expired on a Wednesday and the tapes were sealed the next Monday, and where order expired on a Thursday and the tapes were sealed the next Wednesday; in both instances, the Court held that the tapes were sealed "immediately." Id. at 1498.[4] As such, a delay of three to four days was interpreted to be in compliance with the statutory requirement of "immediately upon." Herein any "delay" was arguably two days long, and the statute in question does not even contain the term "immediately." If the Court of Appeals permitted a three to four day delay—plus a weekend—in a criminal case, where an individual's liberty and freedom are in jeopardy, to be in compliance with the term "immediately upon," an arguable delay of two days in an administrative proceeding such as this should unequivocally satisfy the requirement of "upon" as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3).

Petitioner reasons further that the Legislature clearly intended to provide the Board with a reasonable opportunity to provide Respondent with a list of witnesses and summary of their testimony after the referral of the case for arbitration, without setting a strict time limitation. Again, the Legislature has shown that it uses the phrase "immediately upon" when it seeks immediate action and it did not do so here. It was more than diligent in its efforts to timely provide Respondent the list of witnesses and [4] While there were other tapes that were suppressed, with significant delays, the relevant part of the ruling in Carson applies to the tapes where the delays were only a few days long.

summary of their testimonies on the same day of receipt, which is not even required, thereby warranting denial of Respondent's motion.

Respondent also argues that the Board should have anticipated the charges would be referred to arbitration by September 9, 2015, in light of the fact that Respondent's answer was filed on September 3, 2015. However, such an argument clearly disregards the language of the statute which provides that "[t]he commissioner shall, within five days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges, refer the case to an arbitrator and appoint an arbitrator to hear the case, unless he determines that the evaluation process has not been followed." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3(c) (emphasis added). The language of the statute grants the Commissioner five days after the period provided for a written response, which is 10 days, not the time the answer was actually filed by Respondent. Since the 10th day for Respondent's answer fell on a Saturday, September 5, 2015, and September 7, 2015 was a national holiday, Respondent's answer was not due until September 8, 2015. See New Jersey Court Rule R.1:3-1. Therefore, the Commissioner was not obligated to refer the case to arbitration until September 14, 2015. It is disingenuous for Respondent to suggest that the Board should have anticipated that the Commissioner would refer this case for arbitration on September 9, 2015, when the Commission could have waited until September 14. Further, Respondent completely disregards the possibility (albeit remote) that the Commissioner might not have referred the case to arbitration,[5] and there can be no obligation to furnish the witness list or documents until referral actually takes place. Respondent has presented no valid argument that would warrant dismissal of this case, and therefore, Respondent's motion must be denied in its entirety.

Lastly, the Board submits that Respondent's attempt to have this case dismissed on alleged technicalities is against the public policy of this State. "Unquestionably it is the policy of our courts to decide cases on the merits." Essex Cnty. v. City of E. Orange, 214 N.J. Super. 568, 576 (App. Div. 1987); see also Dole v. Arco Chem. Co., 921 F.2d 484, 487 (3d Cir.1990)(discussing strong policy for deciding claims on the merits as opposed to technicalities); see generally, Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil §§ 2369, 2370 (1971). As such, in consideration of public policy and Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act ("TEACHNJ"), the goal of which is to raise student achievement by improving instruction, the Board respectfully requests that the Arbitrator decide this case on the merits and deny Respondent's motion for summary decision.

Initially, I have decided to address the motion in an exercise of discretion. The instant motion is treated as one for summary decision because an Answer, as opposed to a Motion to Dismiss, was filed. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3. Additionally, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 allows for a motion for summary decision – filed with the Commissioner -- to be transmitted to an arbitrator or to be decided by the Commissioner. In this matter, Respondent did not meet the prerequisite filing with the Commissioner, but instead filed the motion after transmittal of the case to the undersigned. No relief is forthcoming from the Labor Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association, which does not provide a party with the right to file a dispositive motion. Lastly, in light of the relatively stringent restrictions imposed on arbitrators under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 b., it is evident that an arbitrator must cautiously exercise discretion in deciding whether to address any motion filed after referral of the case from the Commissioner. This notwithstanding, in this case, I have elected to exercise discretion in favor of deciding the motion due to the novelty of the challenge raised.

Summary decision may be granted if the pleadings, discovery and affidavits show "that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.S.A. 1:1-12.5. Contini v. Bd. of Educ., 286 N.J. Super. 106 (App. Div. 1995). In ruling on summary-decision motions, administrative agencies follow substantially the same standard as the standard governing motions for summary judgment in civil litigation. The essence of the inquiry is whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to the trier-of-fact or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 536 (1995). I have carefully considered Respondent's moving papers and the opposition filed by the Petitioner. Because the parties' respective positions do not raise a genuine issue of material fact, I am satisfied that summary decision is appropriate. For the reasons that follow, however, I must deny Respondent's motion for summary decision.

In my opinion, an examination of the relevant statutory text does not unambiguously answer the question as to when an initial referral, appointment, or assignment of an arbitrator is deemed effective in connection with a board of education's simultaneous obligation to provide the prescribed evidence to a respondent. It is true that certain timeframes clearly commence from a discrete point in time or the occurrence of an event (illustrated by underlined italics below). This includes timeframes commencing "upon receipt" of a document. Since that language is not attached to the introductory sentence of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) there is support for Respondent's motion based on the premise that the Legislature knew how to express such an intent and did not do so here. However, not all triggering points of pertinent timeframes are clearly expressed by the text of the statute. Obviously, where the legislation does not unambiguously fix a triggering point in relation to other timeframes, in my view, there is room for judicial or arbitral interpretation based on traditional canons of statutory construction (all timeframes deemed to lack a precise triggering point are set forth in boldfaced type).

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 (c) states:

c) If the tenure charges are charges of inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, except in the case of building principals and vice principals in school districts under full State intervention, where procedures are governed by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 and such rules as may be promulgated to implement it, the following procedures and timelines shall be observed:

1. When the conditions described in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3.a(1) or (2) have been satisfied, the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the district board of education a charge of inefficiency.

2. The charges of inefficiency shall be transmitted to the affected tenured employee and the employee's representative, if known, within three working days of the date they were filed with the secretary of the district board of education or the State district superintendent. Proof of mailing or hand delivery shall constitute proof of transmittal.

3. The affected tenured employee shall have an opportunity within 10 days of receipt to submit to the district board of education or the State district superintendent a written statement of position under oath demonstrating how the school district failed to comply with the evaluation procedures.

4. Within 30 days of the filing, the district board of education or State district superintendent shall forward a written charge to the Commissioner unless the district board of education or superintendent determines the evaluation process has not been followed. Such determination shall be made by a majority vote of the district board of education's full membership or by the State district superintendent.

5. Upon receipt of the charge, the Commissioner or his or her designee shall examine the charge. The charge shall again be served upon the employee at the same time it is forwarded to the Commissioner and proof of service shall be included with the filed charges. The individual against whom the charge is filed shall have 10 days to submit to the Commissioner a written response to the charge.

6. Within five days of the individual's deadline to submit a written response to the charge, the Commissioner shall appoint an arbitrator to hear the case and refer the case to the arbitrator, unless he or she determines the evaluation process has not been followed.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 states:

b. The following provisions shall apply to a hearing conducted by an arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S.18A:6-16, except as otherwise provided pursuant to P.L.2012, c. 26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.):

(1) The hearing shall be held before the arbitrator within 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case;

(2) The arbitrator shall receive no more than $1250 per day and no more than $7500 per case. The costs and expenses of the arbitrator shall be borne by the State of New Jersey;

(3) Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employing board of education or its representative. The employee shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses.

Discovery shall not include depositions, and interrogatories shall be limited to 25 without subparts.

c. The arbitrator shall determine the case under the American Arbitration Association labor arbitration rules. In the event of a conflict between the American Arbitration Association labor arbitration rules and the procedures established pursuant to this section, the procedures established pursuant to this section shall govern.

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S.18A:6-25 or any other section of law to the contrary, the arbitrator shall render a written decision within 45 days of the start of the hearing.

e. The arbitrator's determination shall be final and binding and may not be appealable to the commissioner or the State Board of Education. The determination shall be subject to judicial review and enforcement as provided pursuant to N.J.S.2A:24-7 through N.J.S.2A:24-10.

f. Timelines set forth herein shall be strictly followed; the arbitrator or any involved party shall inform the commissioner of any timeline that is not adhered to.

g. An arbitrator may not extend the timeline of holding a hearing beyond 45 days of the assignment of the arbitrator to the case without approval from the commissioner. An arbitrator may not extend the timeline for rendering a written decision within 45 days of the start of the hearing without approval from the commissioner. Extension requests shall occur before the 41st day of the respective timelines set forth herein. The commissioner shall approve or disapprove extension requests within five days of receipt.

h. The commissioner may remove any arbitrator from an arbitration case or an arbitration panel if an arbitrator does not adhere to the timelines set forth herein without approval from the commissioner. If the commissioner removes an arbitrator from an arbitration case, the commissioner shall refer the case to a new arbitrator within five days. The newly-assigned arbitrator shall convene a new hearing and then render a written decision within 45 days of being referred the case.

As can be gleaned, the statutory text governing the triggering date for important timeframes is clear in some respects, but not so clear in others. Additionally, while I agree from a practical standpoint with Respondent's suggestion that the Board could have supplied the information prior to receiving notice of the referral to arbitration, in my opinion, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), though ambiguous in some respects, plainly does not require a board to act prior to the referral. As to the ambiguity noted in boldfaced type above, it is presumed that there likely exist decisions of the OAL, Commissioner and/or Courts clarifying the timelines in question. To the best of my knowledge, the instant challenge under TEACH NJ presents a case of first impression. Having said this, however, with respect to TEACH NJ, one would surmise that the Legislature intended for both parties to be fully informed as to their respective rights and obligations under the relatively new law. One would also be specifically inclined to conclude that the Legislature intended for both parties to have clear notice of the triggering date or event for the commencement of intertwined or reciprocal procedural timelines.

For example, a respondent knows that within ten (10) days of the date of the hearing, he or she must provide all evidence to the board's representative. Since the initial hearing date can be adjourned within (or, at times, outside of) the initial 45-day timeframe it is not uncommon for the 10 day window to be adjusted as well, thereby providing a respondent with even greater notice and opportunity. As such, it is hard to imagine that the Legislature intended to keep a board of education in suspense as to the effective date of referral, especially when the board must act upon that date or else be precluded from introducing evidence at arbitration. As Petitioner aptly observes, a statute should not be interpreted in a manner that leads to absurd results. See Griffin v. Oceanic Contractors, Inc., 458 U.S. 564, 575 (1982). Therefore, I am not inclined to conclude that the Legislature intended for a board of education 's obligations to provide evidence to commence on a date when it had no notice of the referral of the matter to arbitration.

The principle of reciprocity noted above would militate in favor of a conclusion that a board's obligation to provide the prescribed evidence must logically commence upon receipt of the notice of referral, especially where administrative practice is to mail the notice of referral (as opposed to facsimile or email) thereby making it impractical, if not impossible for a board to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 (b)(3). To rule otherwise would be tantamount to placing a ball and chain around the ankle of a board of education at the start of each and every case, making it even more difficult to remove a teacher for inefficiency under the new statutory schematic, as compared to the old -- which runs contrary to the core purpose of the new legislation. Thus, I find, an examination of the parties' respective arguments in light of the purpose of the new legislation supports the Board's interpretation.

Nonetheless, the lack of precise drafting concerning the language of 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) led to my examination of legislative history. As originally introduced on February 6, 2012 by Senator Ruiz, Senate Bill No. 1455 provided:

> Notwithstanding N.J.S.18A:6-17 or any other section of law to the contrary, any tenure charge transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.18A:6-16 shall be adjudicated in an expeditious and timely manner as follows:
>
> a. The initial hearing on the charge shall commence within 30 days of its transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law.
>
> b. Upon transmittal of the charge, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence to the employee or the employee's representative. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely to the employing board of education or its representative. Both parties shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses.
> c. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S.18A:6-25 or any other section of law to the contrary, the final determination on the controversy or dispute shall be rendered within 30 days of the start of the hearing by the administrative law judge.

The preference for arbitrators in lieu of administrative law judges came about in a "The Senate Committee Substitute for Senate No. 1455" on June 18, 2012 (more than four (4) months after introduction by Senator Ruiz and less than two (2) months before Governor Christie's signing of the Bill). The Substitute repeals section 1 of P.L.1998, c.42 (C.52:14B-10.1), which outlines the procedure when cases were referred to the Office of Administrative Law.

After reviewing the relevant legislative history, it is the opinion of this Arbitrator that the linguistic change from "upon transmittal of the charge" (to the Office of Administrative Law) to "upon referral of the case for arbitration" does not represent a legally significant change regarding the subject of notice or, as Petitioner phrases it, "due process." An examination of predecessor statutes and OAL regulations governing the transmittal of a contested case from the Commissioner of Education is suggestive of the legislative intent concerning the exchange of discovery in this matter, i.e., that "upon referral" was intended to mean upon receipt of the notice of referral. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1. "Adjudication of cases under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law" is directly on point:

> Any statute, rule or regulation to the contrary notwithstanding, all contested cases, as defined in section 2 of P.L.1968, c. 410 (C.52:14B-2), except those cases in which criminal charges are also filed, arising under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, article 2 of chapter 6 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes, and referred to the Office of Administrative Law shall be adjudicated pursuant to the "Administrative Procedure Act," P.L.1968, c. 410 (C.52:14B-1 et seq.), in an expeditious and timely manner except as follows:
> > a. The discovery process shall begin immediately upon the notice of the referral of the case to the Office of Administrative Law and a discovery request shall be initiated by transmitting the request to a receiving party within 30 days of receipt of the notice of referral. Answers to a discovery request shall be made within 30 days of the receipt > of the request, except that if the discovery is available only by motion, the answer shall be due within 30 days of receipt of an order granting the motion. Additional discovery shall be permitted by motion or upon the consent of the parties, but shall be filed with the administrative law judge within 10 days of the filing of the answers to interrogatories. The administrative law judge may extend discovery time by no more than 30 days for disputes over sufficiency, completion or other just cause.

N.J.A.C. 1:6B-10.1, the time period for exchanging discovery, commences upon "receipt" of the notice of referral.

> (b) A party may notify another party to provide discovery by one or more of the following methods: written interrogatories; production of documents or things; permission to enter upon land or other property for inspection or other purposes; and requests for admissions. These discovery requests shall be initiated by transmitting the request to the receiving party within 30 days of receipt of the notice of referral.

As the predecessor statute and regulation implicitly recognize, a party cannot assume responsibility for meeting a legally significant discovery timeline absent notice of the event that triggers the timeline. Therefore, it is not the Commissioner's referral of the case to the OAL that triggers the timeframes governing the parties' respective discovery obligations, but rather it is the receipt of notice of referral that governs. Because nothing in the legislative history underlying N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) suggests that the drafters would have had a reason to obliterate such a fundamental principle of due process, I am inclined to conclude that the predecessor notice requirement was intended to continue in the new legislation. Therefore, logic, statutory purpose, and legislative history favor the Board's interpretation that it was not obligated to comply with its discovery obligations until it received notice of the September 9, 2015 referral letter on September 11, 2015.

Finally, I take notice that the Commissioner or Director can always change the method of transmittal of the notice of referral to both the arbitrator and the parties from regular mail to email and/or facsimile in order to reconcile any discrepancy between the operative statutory language and internal administrative practice. Certainly, the Legislature could not have intended to severely handicap a board of education's ability to present its case to an arbitrator based on the method of transmittal used by the Commissioner. In contrast, if the delay in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17(b)(3) could be attributable to a board representative, then an opposite conclusion would be warranted. In the case before me, however, it is not disputed that the Board acted immediately upon its' September 11, 2015 receipt of the Director's September 9, 2015 notice of referral.

Based on the foregoing, I deny Respondent's motion to bar Petitioner from presenting the evidence that it submitted to Respondent on September 11, 2015.[6] I correspondingly deny Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision.

[6] In light of the facts of this matter, I need not determine whether a board of education is entitled to an additional "reasonable period of time" following receipt of the notice of referral to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1 (b)(3).

AWARD

Based on the foregoing, I deny Respondent, Nancy Mastriana's motion to bar Petitioner, Hillsborough Board of Education from presenting the evidence that it submitted to Respondent on September 11, 2015. I correspondingly deny Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision.

MY COMMISSION EXPIRES AUGUST 22, 2016

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 13999-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 260-9/15

C.H., on behalf of minor child, L.H.,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION ON
BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE NEWARK PREP CHARTER SCHOOL ESSEX COUNTY,	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. In this case, the petitioner is appealing the decision of the Board of Trustees of the Newark Prep Charter School (Newark Prep) to expel L.H. from Newark Prep Charter School for causing an extensive computer outage at the school. The petitioner is also seeking an Order requiring Newark Prep to immediately admit L.H. while the matter is pending at the OAL. The ALJ denied the petitioner's request for emergent relief.[1]

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), a grant of emergent relief is considered an extraordinary remedy that can only be issued upon a finding that petitioner has met the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). The party seeking such relief must demonstrate the existence of each of the following: 1) the movant will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted; 2) the legal right underlying the movant's claim is settled; 3) the movant has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and 4) when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the movant will suffer greater harm than the other party if the requested relief is not granted. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).

In the instant case, the petitioner has failed to show that L.H. will suffer irreparable harm if he is not immediately permitted to attend Newark Prep. It is undisputed that L.H. is entitled to attend school in the Irvington School District, which is L.H.'s home district. Therefore, in light of the fact that all of the Crowe prongs must be met in order for emergent relief to be granted, it is not necessary to analyze the three remaining factors.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Jennifer Roselle, Esq., for respondent (Genova Burns, LLC, attorneys)

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

THIS MATTER having been brought before this tribunal by C.H. on behalf of her minor child L.H., upon motion for emergent relief; and having considered the papers submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion; and having heard oral argument; and having concluded that petitioner failed to demonstrate any of the standards for emergent relief; and for good cause having been shown;

It is on this 25th day of September 2015,

ORDERED that petitioner's application for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COREY LOWELL,	:
COMPLAINANT,	:
v.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GENEVA SMALLWOOD AND FELICIA SIMMONS, ASBURY PARK BOARD OF EDUCATION, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

This matter involves appeals of the School Ethics Commission's March 24, 2015 determination that respondents – Geneva Smallwood, Board President, and Felicia Simmons, Board Member, Asbury Park Board of Education – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when they conducted a site visit to assess a candidate for interim Superintendant, without Board authority and without approval of the State Monitor, and by advancing the possibility of his employment.[1] The Commission recommended a penalty of censure for the violation. Having carefully reviewed the Commission's decision and the record in its entirety, the Commissioner finds that the Commission's decision is supported by sufficient, credible evidence, and that respondents failed to establish that the decision is arbitrary, capricious or contrary to law. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1(a). Additionally, the Commissioner finds that a penalty of censure is appropriate.

In her appeal to the Commissioner, respondent Smallwood argues that the Commission's decision was arbitrary, capricious and contrary to law because the evidence presented to the Commission does not support a finding that she violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-demonstrated that she was in attendance during executive session at the March 18, 2014 Board meeting. [2] (Complainant's brief at 1) While reflecting their obvious disagreement with the Commission's findings and conclusions, respondents' arguments on appeal are unpersuasive.

[1] The Commission dismissed the allegations that respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.21(a), (d), and (g).

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the decision of the Commission as to a determination of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e) is supported by sufficient credible evidence, and the respondents have not established that the Commission's decision is arbitrary, capricious or contrary to law.[3] N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a). First, as to the violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), the evidence in the record fully supports the Commission's determination that respondents took action beyond the scope of their authority when they conducted a site visit without Board approval. The complainant testified as to her personal knowledge of the March 18, 2014 Board meeting – which was found to be credible by the Commission – during which respondent Smallwood made statements that she and respondent Simmons attended a site visit with administrators and the Board of the Pleasantville School District to discuss the candidate's qualifications for employment.[4] (Testimony of Corey Lowell, T at 30-31)[5] Complainant's testimony was supported by respondent Smallwood's email and respondent Simmons' Answer, in which both, respectively, admit to attending the site visit.

[2] Complainant references her testimony in Lesinsky v. Smallwood, Asbury Park Board of Education, Monmouth County, SEC Dkt. No. C14-14, October 28, 2014, and included an un-redacted copy of the executive session Board minutes from March 18, 2014. (Complainant's brief at 1-2) Respondents objected to the inclusion of this additional documentary evidence. Although the transcript of the September 23, 2014 School Ethics Commission hearing for docket number C14-14 is included in the Statement of Items Comprising the Record, it has no impact on the Commissioner's decision. The un-redacted minutes of the executive session of the Board's March 18, 2014 meeting was not entered into evidence at the hearing and is not a part of the record on appeal. Accordingly, it will not be considered by the Commissioner. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.5.

[3] The Commissioner is also in accord with the Commission's determination that the respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (d) and (g).

[4] Such statements are exceptions to the hearsay rule, as they are admissions of respondent Smallwood. N.J.R.E. 803(b).

[5] This citation refers to a transcript of a hearing held before the School Ethics Commission on February 24, 2015.

(Complainant's Exhibit C-1; Respondent Simmons' Answer) Additionally, complainant offered testimony that she did not authorize respondents to conduct a site visit and the Board directed the personnel committee to meet with the State Monitor to discuss the possibility of hiring an interim superintendant. (Testimony of Corey Lowell, T at 29) The fact that three other Board members confirmed to complainant that they did not authorize respondents to conduct a site visit, and that the State Monitor did not object at the meeting, offer support for complainant's testimony, which went uncontradicted.[6] (Id. at 31; SEC' Decision at 15) For the reasons expressed in the Commission's comprehensive decision, respondents' conduct was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

Second, as to the violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), the evidence in the record fully supports the Commission's determination that respondents took action beyond the scope of their authority – with the potential to compromise the Board – when they attended the site visit, and that the promise of future employment was also a personal promise that had the potential to compromise the Board. In addition to respondents conducting the site visit, respondent Smallwood also participated in an email exchange with the candidate in which she said, "I'm doing everything I can to resolve this CSA [Chief School Administrator] situation." (Complainant's Exhibit C-1) Both the site visit and the email exchange had the potential to compromise the Board because they implied that respondents where acting on behalf of the Board when there was no authorization for a site visit or to communicate with the candidate about the position. For the reasons expressed in the Commission's comprehensive decision, respondents' conduct violated of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

[6] In administrative matters, the trier of fact is permitted to draw an adverse inference from the silence of a party who declines to testify. State Dep't of Law and Public Safety v. Merlino, 216 N.J. Super. 579 (App. Div. 1987), aff'd 109 N.J. 134 (1988).

The Commissioner also accepts the Commission's recommendation – for the reasons expressed in the Commission's decision – that a censure is the appropriate penalty in this matter. In so ruling, the Commissioner finds that issuance of a censure here is consistent with penalties in prior cases involving violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e).

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that Geneva Smallwood and Felicia Simmons each be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint, filed on April 7, 2014, by Asbury Park Board of Education (Board) member Corey Lowell, alleging that Board President Geneva Smallwood and Board member Felicia Simmons violated the School Ethics Act (Act). N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. By letter of April 28, 2014, the complainant was advised that her submission was deficient. On May 5, 2014, the complainant filed an amended complaint, correcting all deficiencies. Specifically, the complainant alleged that the respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (c), (d), (e), and (g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code). The Commission served the respondents with the Complaint on May 6, 2014 by certified and regular mail, advising them that they had 20 days from receipt of the Complaint to file a responsive pleading.

Newly retained counsel for Respondent Smallwood requested and received an extension of time until June 13, 2014 to file a responsive pleading. Respondent Smallwood filed her Answer to the Complaint on June 10, 2014. On May 22, 2014, Respondent Simmons requested and received an extension of time until June 18, 2014 to file her responsive pleading. On June 18, 2014, newly retained counsel for Respondent Simmons requested and received an additional extension of time until July 8, 2014 to file an Answer on her behalf, and on July 7, 2014, Respondent Simmons filed her Answer, alleging that the Complaint was frivolous, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(e). In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.2(b), Complainant Lowell filed her response to the frivolous allegation on July 30, 2014.

By letter dated July 31, 2014, the parties were notified that the Commission would review this matter at its August 26, 2014 meeting. At its meeting on August 26, 2014, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.8(a), the Commission determined the Complaint was not frivolous and voted to retain the complaint, docketed as C16-14, for a hearing at a later date.

The Commission notified the complainant and respondents by letter of December 2, 2014 that at its meeting on January 27, 2015, it would conduct a plenary proceeding to hear testimony and consider evidence in support of their respective positions. Prior to the hearing, the Commission denied the adjournment request of counsel for Respondent Simmons, who advised the Commission that due to a new appointment, he would not be able to fulfill his obligations to represent Respondent Simmons. When new counsel requested a delay, the Commission adjourned the matter for one month.

On January 23, 2015, the Commission confirmed that the matter was scheduled for plenary hearing on February 24, 2015 and so advised the parties. Prior to the hearing, on February 3, 2015, counsel for both respondents sought a stay of the hearing, pending the outcome of an appeal before the Commissioner of Education on a related matter, Lesinski v. Smallwood, SEC Dkt. No.C14-14. By letter of February 11, 2015, the Commission denied the request, ruling that the gravamen of the instant matter, i.e., the site visit, was not before the Commission at the time it heard Lesinski. In that matter, the Commission heard testimony from Respondent Smallwood and admitted documents, which evidenced that she and Ms. Simmons conducted the site visit without approval of the State Monitor. The Commission determined that Complainant Lesinski met her burden to prove the violations alleged in her complaint, for which Respondent Smallwood was sanctioned for disclosing confidential Executive Session discussions to third parties and for making those disclosures without Board approval in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 (e) and (g) of the Code. Knowledge of the site visit was raised before the Commission by Respondent Smallwood; however, the site visit was not at issue in the Lesinski matter. The site visit was part of the Commission's decision solely because it demonstrated that Respondent Smallwood engaged in greater disclosure of confidential matters than she admitted. The Commission did not find Respondent Smallwood in violation of any provisions of the Code based on the site visit.

On February 18, 2015, prior to the day of the hearing, counsel for Respondent Simmons filed a Motion for Interlocutory Appeal on Emergent Relief for a Stay before the Commissioner of Education asserting, as he had before to the Commission, that it had previously made certain findings of fact and certain conclusions arising from the site visit which is the subject of this complaint as part of the Lesinski matter. The Commissioner denied counsel's request for a stay of the Lowell matter finding, inter alia, that the request failed to satisfy all of the standards set for in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), which require a showing of irreparable harm, that the legal right underlying claim is well settled, the probability of prevailing on the merits, and a balance of hardships. On March 6, 2015, the Commissioner affirmed the Commission's findings and conclusions of law in Lesinski and accepted the recommended penalty of reprimand. Lesinski v. Smallwood, Asbury Park Board of Education, Monmouth County, (10/28/14), SEC Dkt. No.C14-14 (Lesinski). (See Barbara Lesinksi v. Geneva Smallwood, Board Member, Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, Monmouth County, 3/6/15, (#83-15A).

Following the Commissioner's denial of the stay, the matter of Corey J. Lowell v. Geneva Smallwood and Felicia Simmons, Asbury Park Board of Education, Monmouth County, SEC Dkt. #C16-14 was heard as scheduled by the Commission at its February 24, 2015 meeting.

The complainant, Corey Lowell, appeared pro se. Respondent Smallwood appeared with her attorney, Joshua S. Sklarin, Esq., and Respondent Simmons appeared with her attorney, Carl N. Tripician, Esq. The Commission heard only Complainant Lowell's testimony on all Counts of the complaint on direct and cross examination, and the Commission further questioned the complainant and accepted the documentary evidence she presented, as well as the documentary evidence presented by Respondent Simmons' counsel. Respondents Smallwood and Simmons decided not to testify or call any witnesses after the complainant rested. Based on the testimony and evidence, as summarized below, the Commission determined that the complainant had established a prima facie case and met her burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible, uncontested evidence. The tribunal voted during the public portion of its meeting on February 24, 2015 to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 (c) and (e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code), and to dismiss the allegations that the respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (d) and (g) of the Code and to recommend the penalty of censure for Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Simmons.

SUMMARY OF THE RECORD

Before opening statements, counsel for the respondents renewed their Motion for a Stay of the proceedings, pending the outcome of the appeal of the Lesinski matter before the Commissioner, or to refer the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, asserting that the determination of the matter on appeal may affect the case at bar. Counsel for Respondent Smallwood affirmed that the language in the case on appeal regarding the site visit was heard before the Commission in the earlier matter. The complainant maintains that the matter should not be stayed as she was not at the Board meeting on February 25, 2014 when the telephone call, which was the issue in Lesinski, was discussed, and maintains that the matter involving the site visit is a separate matter, and subject to a subsequent complaint which includes an additional respondent who was not a party to the Lesinski matter.

As it held previously, the Commission determined that this matter was not before it in the earlier matter and the allegation was, therefore, not adjudicated at that time. The Commission denied respondents' Motion for a Stay.

OPENING REMARKS AND PROCEDURAL ISSUES

In her opening remarks, Complainant Corey Lowell stated that her Complaint concerns five Code violations involving the respondents' personal actions without Board authorization and disclosure to third parties of confidential material discussed in Executive Session. Complainant Lowell further states that the respondents acknowledge that they did attend this site visit but argue that the Board had authorized them to do so. She maintains that as a Board member, she was not advised of this site visit for a potential Assistant Superintendent candidate nor did she grant her approval. Moreover, three other Board members have told her that they too did not have such knowledge nor did they authorize Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Simmons to schedule and attend the visit.

The complainant maintains that the Board minutes, submitted by respondents' counsel, did not indicate by motion or action that it authorized the respondents to conduct such a visit. Thereafter, complainant Lowell objected to the calling of Gregory Allen as respondents' witness as he should have no knowledge of confidential Executive Session discussions and his presence before the Commission could compromise the Board. When asked by counsel for the Commission the identity of Gregory Allen, Respondent Smallwood's counsel explained that he was the candidate whose selection the State Monitor overturned. Respondent Smallwood's attorney then explained, over the complainant's objection, what Mr. Allen's testimony would be, and stated that he would ask Mr. Allen what occurred at the visit and if any confidential matters were discussed. Since Mr. Allen had not yet appeared for the hearing with the other subpoenaed witnesses, the Commission tabled the objection until Mr. Allen was called by the respondents.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Sklarin, counsel for Respondent Smallwood, stated that this matter before the Commission is just one of several matters brought by Complainant Lowell's faction on the Board against Respondent Smallwood's faction, and that the repetitive nature of these filings is tantamount to harassment of the respondents. As to the present case, he argued that Complainant Lowell would not be able to meet her burden under the Act and that the evidence will not support a finding against Respondent Smallwood.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Tripician, counsel for Respondent Simmons, recommended that the Commission limit the issues to the "four corners" of the complaint and no more. In doing so, he maintained that complainant's testimony and evidence will not be sufficient to support the complaint's burden of proof in light of the residuum rule, which requires that hearsay testimony be supported by competent, credible evidence. He also advised that he would make a motion for sanctions against the complainant since the allegations are not based on fact or any reasonable law.

Mr. Tripician also made the complainant and Commission aware that he had not received any documentation or the Verification of Attendance for the complainant's list of witnesses. Mr. Sklarin also claimed that he too did not receive the complainant's Verification of Attendance nor could he be certain that he received her total information packet. Complainant produced the certified mail receipt and the green cards reflecting prior counsels' receipt of complainant's documents. Although respondents' counsel did not oppose introduction of the complainant's documents, they did oppose the calling of her witnesses since she did not provide a certification of mailing to counsel and the Verification of Attendance. In the interest of fundamental fairness and due process requirements, the Commission barred the complainant's witnesses on direct, but she would be allowed her to call them on rebuttal.

COMPLAINANT: Corey Lowell—Board Member

Corey Lowell was sworn in and testified that in November 2013, prior to joining the Board as a member, she kept abreast of the Board's activities regarding the search and selection of Mr. Gregory Allen's appointment as Superintendent and the reversal of the appointment by the fiscal State Monitor assigned to the District on the grounds that Mr. Allen was not qualified for the position. The Board then sued the Monitor for her action in overturning the appointment. The suit was subsequently withdrawn in September 2014. Complainant Lowell further testified that, having joined the Board as a member, she was present at the Board meeting on February 11, 2014, when Respondent Smallwood discussed with the Board her idea of appointing Mr. Allen as Assistant Superintendent "to see if he would work out." The Board then directed her and the Personnel Committee, comprised of Respondent Smallwood, Respondent Simmons and Ms. Angela Abhez-Anderson, to meet and to discuss her plan with the State Monitor, who had the statutory authority to hire and fire within the District. (CD File 2, 02:05—02:30)

At the Board meeting of March 18, 2014, Complainant Lowell laid the foundation that she was in attendance that night as recorded in the minutes, and that during Executive Session that evening she personally heard Respondent Smallwood state that she and Respondent Simmons conducted a site visit on Mr. Allen's behalf and met with several Pleasantville school officials and co-workers to discuss Mr. Allen's work ethic, qualifications for performance, and his candidacy for the position of Assistant Superintendent in Asbury Park. Respondent Smallwood also stated that although Mr. Allen's contract was not renewed in Pleasantville because the fiscal State Monitor, assigned to the Pleasantville School District, had pulled his name from consideration, the Business Administrator spoke highly of him. Complainant Lowell further maintains that the visit took place without her knowledge, and when she asked three other Board members—Connie Breech, Barbara Lesinski and Angela Abhez-Anderson—whether they knew of the visit, they told her that they did not nor did they give their consent to the visit. Complainant Lowell asserts that Respondent Smallwood stated that the meeting was scheduled over the weekend of March 8, 2014.

Complainant Lowell states as fact that, based on Respondent Smallwood's discussion at the Board meeting of March 18, 2014, the site visit took place, without the knowledge of the full board or during a meeting of the Board and that no the authorization was given to meet with the Superintendent candidate and his past employers. Moreover, there was no evidence in the Executive Session minutes or regular meeting minutes of March 18, 2014 to demonstrate that a site visit was ever discussed, who should be present at this visit, or what the appropriate criteria or rubric would be to conduct the visit.

Ms. Lowell affirmed that she was in attendance at the Board meeting in February when Respondent Smallwood was advised that she and the Personnel Committee had the Board's authority only to contact the State Monitor regarding her plan and in attendance at the March 18, 2014 meeting when Respondent Smallwood disclosed that she and Respondent Simmons conducted the site visit on behalf of Mr. Allen, whose appointment had already been overturned by the State Monitor.

On cross examination, counsel for Respondent Simmons introduced R-1(Simmons), the Executive Session minutes for the meeting of March 18, 2014, for the purpose of demonstrating that Ms. Lowell's name was not recorded among the names of those in attendance. She firmly stated in response that she definitely was in attendance during Executive Session that evening and the full minutes of the meeting support her attendance and role in the proceedings that evening.

Ms. Lowell did admit that she had no first-hand knowledge of what took place during the site visit, that she had no idea who else was present besides the respondents, and that she had no knowledge of the substance of the conversations which were exchanged during the visit. All that she learned about the visit came from Respondent Smallwood's account of the session. Upon further cross examination, Ms. Lowell also admitted that she had produced no documentary evidence yet to prove the violations she alleged, or to support her testimony regarding her first-hand knowledge of Executive Session discussions, the entire March 18, 2014 minutes, or respondents' Answers.

On cross-examination by counsel for Respondent Smallwood, Ms Lowell said that she has not produced documentary evidence that would prove a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (c), (d), (e), and (g), but she stated that for some allegations documentary evidence was not available, but that she expected to prove the alleged violations on redirect. In consideration of the Commission's time, counsel ended his cross-examination as it would have repeated the same issues raised by Respondent Simmons' counsel.

When questioned by the Commission, Ms. Lowell testified that she was present during Executive Session at the Board meeting on March 18, 2014 and that at the Public Session after the closed portion of the meeting only two member of the audience remained, one of whom was a security guard and that to the best of her recollection the meeting ended between 9 pm and 10 pm, but could not remember how many Board members were present. Ms. Lowell was not able to confirm whether the March 18, 2014 minutes in evidence were the same as those at the March 25, 2015 meeting. In responding to a question regarding the State Monitor during the February 11, 2014 meeting[1], the Ms. Lowell confirmed that the Board asked the Personnel Committee to meet with the State Monitor to discuss the notion of creating an Assistant Superintendent position, but nothing more.

Ms. Lowell settled the question that the current State Monitor is the same Monitor who overturned the appointment of Mr. Allen, and that she was present at the March 18, 2014 meeting. When Ms. Lowell was asked how she responded to the revelation that the respondents conducted a site visit without authorization, she testified that she said, "You did what? That's an ethics violation!" To which Board counsel responded, "Now hold on now. You're not qualified to make that statement."

When questioned if she had any documentary evidence to support her assertions that the site visit took place sometime before the March 18, 2014 meeting, Ms. Lowell responded that she learned of the meeting from Respondent Smallwood at the meeting of March 18, 2014 and that based on the dates in an email exchange between Respondent Smallwood and Mr. Allen which she acquired from Respondent Smallwood's then counsel during the hearing of Lesinski v. Smallwood, C14-14. Based on the email, Ms. Lowell calculated that the meeting took place on the Thursday after the weekend of March 8-9, 2014 but before the meeting of March 18, 2014.

Counsel for Respondent Simmons objected to the admission of the email into evidence on the grounds that Ms. Lowell did not establish the proper foundation, nor could she attest to its authenticity, even though it was Respondent Smallwood's own document. In response to counsel, Ms. Lowell countered that both respondents acknowledged that the visit did take place, asserting that they had the Board's authorization. Counsel for the Commission asked if Simmons' counsel believed that the email exchange did not take place. He said his only objection was that Ms. Lowell did not lay the proper foundation for its admission. After deliberation, the Commission overruled the objection and admitted the Smallwood-Allen email as Complainant's Exhibit C-1.

Thereafter, a lengthy conversation ensued regarding R-1, the redacted Executive Session minutes, including a discussion about the process of minute distribution to the Board members. The minutes, both public and closed session, are distributed to the members at the meeting for adoption, but the Executive Session minutes are returned to the Business Administrator for safekeeping. Ms. Lowell stated that if a Board member were absent for the meeting at which the minutes were adopted, the public session minutes would be emailed to the member, but not the closed session minutes.[2] Thus, she had to make an OPRA request for the closed session minutes, which were intentionally redacted to preserve the confidentiality of the Executive Session discussions. After examining the various copies of R-1, the parties and the Commission agreed that they were all dealing with the same redacted document.

[1] A review of the Asbury Park Board of Education meeting minutes reveals that Ms. Lowell was present for the February 11, 2014 meeting but not the February 25, 2014 meeting. http://www.asburypark.k12.nj.us/site

While still under oath and before she rested her case, Ms. Lowell testified that she did not recall Respondent Simmons making statements at the March 18, 2014 meeting regarding the site visit, but she did recall Respondent Smallwood statement that Respondent Simmons accompanied her on the visit. Ms. Lowell then requested that the full minutes of the March 18, 2014 meeting be admitted into evidence as Complainant's Exhibit C-2. The Commission so admitted the document and Ms. Lowell rested.

Counsel for Respondent Simmons made a Motion to Dismiss based on Ms. Lowell's lack of first-hand knowledge of the Executive Session discussions as the minutes of that session reflect that she was not present, and that she was not present at the site visit. Counsel relied on the determination in Steven Hoh v. C.B., Mine Hill Board of Education, Morris County, C50-10, 7/26/11, in which the Commission found that the complainant did not sustain his burden of proof as he failed to factually establish the violations alleged in his complaint. More to counsel's point here, the complainant in the Hoh matter shaped his entire case on hearsay evidence, having no personal knowledge of the facts to support his allegations. Although N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5 allows for the admission of hearsay evidence, there must be some residuum of competent credible evidence to support the hearsay evidence. Without actual proof, the hearsay evidence cannot stand alone. Counsel argues that such is the case in the Lowell matter. He asserts that the complainant here lacks personal knowledge of the facts and has only hearsay to support the claims that the respondents violated the Code. He further argues that the complainant was not present at the meeting on March 18, 2014, or at the site visit, or had knowledge of the exact day the meeting took place. Counsel concluded that because the complainant's case relies strictly on hearsay evidence and has not provided the residuum proof to support her allegations, the Commission must dismiss her complaint.

Counsel for Respondent Smallwood then addressed the Commission to join in the Motion to Dismiss and remarked that the complainant has offered no proof that either respondent violated the Code "one way or the other." He further re-argues the application of the residuum rule and affirms that Ms. Lowell did not present any witnesses with personal knowledge of the facts or documentary evidence to successfully meet her burden of proof.

[2] The Commission has determined that Executive Session minutes are confidential and would not be available to any third party who would not be admitted to the Executive Session. It would seem appropriate that Executive Session minutes would not be distributed by email as the confidentiality of their contents would be breached. See Messner & Condo v. Gray, Deptford Twp. Board of Education, Gloucester County, C16-13, 12/19/13 and Berglund v. Gray, Deptford Twp. Board of Education, Gloucester County, C22-13, 12/19/13 (Consolidated), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 243-14ASEC, decided June 9, 2014.

In response, the complainant contends that the Smallwood-Allen email exchange set the schedule for the site visit, the topics to be discussed, and who would be present. Moreover, she argues that both respondents in their respective Answers state that they did attend the site visit and with the full knowledge of the Board. The complainant again states that she, as a member of the Board, had no knowledge of the site visit and that three other members told her that they had no knowledge of it either. Finally, the complainant maintains that these documents are sufficient, competent, documentary evidence to meet the requirements of the residuum rule, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5, and as such she has met her burden of proving the allegations in her complaint.

After a short recess to deliberate, the Commission advised the parties that it will reserve on the decision on the Motion to Dismiss until the respondent's present their case.

Upon return from the lunch recess, both counsel for the respondents elected not call witnesses and rested.

In summation, counsel for Respondent Simmons contends that the Smallwood-Allen email does not mention Respondent Simmons at all, that her Answer does not admit to a violation in any way, and further reiterated his arguments as he did in his Motion to Dismiss, directed that the Commission consider only the "four corners" of the complaint. Counsel concluded that the Commission would have to "twist itself into a pretzel" to decide other than to dismiss the complaint for failure to establish a violation of the Code.

Similarly, counsel for Respondent Smallwood contends that there is no documentary evidence or testimony from anyone with first-hand knowledge to establish a violation of the Code as alleged in the Complaint. He avers that there is no testimony whether the site visit was or was not authorized by the Board, and that the site visit was not in and of itself a violation. He maintains that the holding in Hoh requires first-hand knowledge to prove a violation of confidentiality and that the Commission would have to "go through some significant legal gymnastics" to find a violation of the Code. Moreover, he argues that the respondents where members of the Personnel Committee and that Respondents Smallwood's Answer did not admit any violation of the Code.

In her summation, Complainant Lowell contends that the lack of documentary evidence is telling that the visit was not planned or authorized. As a Board member she was not presented with any notes regarding the site visit and the Board never developed a list of questions or a scoring rubric, and three other Board members told her that they had no knowledge of the site visit. She reiterated the fact that the respondents took private action without authorization from the Board when they arranged for and conducted a site visit, which had the potential to compromise the Board, and demonstrates that the respondents violated the Code.

Finally, counsel for Respondent Simmons made a Motion for Sanctions against Ms. Lowell for filing a frivolous claim, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(e) and the determination in Valdes v. Morejon, Union Cty. Bd. of Ed., Hudson County, C39-10 (February 22, 2011.

FINDINGS OF FACT

As the trier of fact in this matter, the Commission had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witness and to judge her credibility. As such, the Commission found Corey Lowell to be a credible witness who offered consistent testimony which was not weakened by an often contentious cross-examination. When faced with the loss of her ability to call witnesses,[3] Ms. Lowell did not falter or waver, and was able to testify convincingly, with conviction and honesty. Her testimony was further supported by the documentary evidence upon which she relied. As neither Respondent Smallwood nor Respondent Simmons offered testimony or documentary evidence in their defense, except for R-1, the testimony of Complainant Lowell stands undisputed and unopposed. The Commission found the complainant's testimony to be credible and uncontroverted.

Accordingly, based on the pleadings, documents in the record, and credible, relevant testimony, the Commission makes the following factual findings on the issues of whether the Asbury Park Board Education authorized Respondents Smallwood and Simmons to conduct a site visit for the position of Assistant Superintendent on behalf of a candidate whose appointment had already been overturned by the fiscal State Monitor and whether they actually attended the visit.

1. At all times relevant to this matter, the complainant and respondents were members of the Asbury Park Board of Education (Board).

2. The Board has been subject to the oversight of a fiscal State Monitor, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-54 et seq., since September 2013.

3. The Board's search for a new Superintendent since early 2013 has been unsuccessful.

4. In November 2013, the State Monitor overturned the Board's appointed candidate, Gregory Allen, for Superintendent citing, inter alia, his lack of experience and concerns about his qualifications for the position.

5. The Board meetings at the center of the controversy were held on February 11, 2014 and March 18, 2014.

6. The minutes of the February 11, 2014 meeting, published on the Asbury Park website reveal that Complainant Lowell was in attendance at that meeting.

[3] Although the complainant produced the green cards proving delivery of her documents on the prior attorneys, succeeding counsel for both respondents prevailed in striking her witnesses, limiting her only to questions on rebuttal. Since counsel for the respondents rested after the complainants case, Ms. Lowell had no opportunity to question witnesses.

7. At the meeting of February 11, 2014, the Board authorized the Personnel Committee, comprised of Respondent Smallwood, Respondent Simmons and Angela Abhez-Anderson, to only contact the State Monitor to discuss the plan to create a position of Assistant Superintendent.

8. Between March 9, 2014 and March 12, 2014, Respondent Smallwood engaged in an email exchange with Gregory Allen, the candidate for Superintendent whose appointment was overturned by the State Monitor, for the purpose of arranging a site visit to support his candidacy for the Assistant Superintendent position.

9. After the meeting, Mr. Allen and Respondent Smallwood again emailed each other stating that the meeting went well and that Respondent Smallwood would report to the Board on Tuesday night.

10. In that same email, Respondent Smallwood wrote to the unsuccessful candidate saying, "I'm doing everything I can to resolve this CSA situation." (Complainant's Exhibit C-1)

11. At the Board meeting on March 18, 2014, Respondent Smallwood reported that she and Respondent Simmons conducted a site visit on behalf of Gregory Allen.

12. Respondent Simmons' Answer admits to attending the site visit but states the she did so with the full knowledge of the Board,

13. The Public Session minutes of the March 18, 2014 meeting clearly show that Complainant Lowell attended the entire meeting.

14. The redacted minutes of the March 18, 2014 meeting are not competent to demonstrate that Complainant Lowell was not at the meeting. (R-1)

15. The complainant testified that she heard Respondent Smallwood's account of the site visit and was surprised that it had taken place, as were three other Board members who told Complainant Lowell that they never authorized the visit. One of the three was a member of the Personnel Committee—Angela Abhez-Anderson.

16. The State Monitor attended the March 18, 2014 meeting.

17. There is no evidence, by either testimony or documentation, that the State Monitor corrected Ms. Lowell's objection upon learning of the site visit.

18. At the August 26, 2014 meeting, the Commission reviewed Respondent Simmons' allegation of frivolous complaint and voted to find this complaint not frivolous.

19. Respondent Geneva Smallwood rested without testifying or calling witnesses to rebut Complainant Lowell's testimony and documentary evidence.

20. Respondent Felicia Simmons rested without testifying or calling witnesses to rebut Complainant Lowell's testimony and documentary evidence.

21. Complainant Lowell's testimony and documentary evidence are unchallenged and uncontroverted by any competent, credible evidence by either respondent, and she has established her prima facie case against the respondents.

22. Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Felicia Simmons conducted the site visit without Board approval in violation of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 et seq.

ANALYSIS

MOTION TO DISMISS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-8.1(d), upon completion of the complainant's case, and prior to the respondent's testimony, counsel for Respondent Simmons moved to dismiss the Complaint.[4] After hearing arguments from counsel, the Commission asked the parties to leave the room so that it could deliberate. It is the complainant's burden to factually establish violation(s) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. In considering a motion to dismiss, the Commission considers the facts in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. The question before the Commission was whether the complainant alleged facts and provided testimony which, if true, could support a finding that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (c), (d), (e), and (g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. The Commission determined to reserve its decision on the Motion pending presentation of respondents' respective cases.

Both respondents elected not to testify or call witnesses on their behalf and rested.

During his closing arguments, counsel for each respondent renewed the earlier Motion to Dismiss on the grounds that the complainant had failed to meet her burden to prove the allegations in her Complaint by a preponderance of credible evidence. In support of their joint motion, counsel rely on the determination in Steven Hoh v. C.B., Mine Hill Board of Education, Morris County, C50-10, 7/26/11 (Hoh). In that matter, the complaint was dismissed for failure of the complainant to meet his burden since his complaint was based on hearsay and he had no personal knowledge of the incident which gave rise to the filing. He learned of the event at issue from someone else and was not present when the episode occurred. Counsel for the respondents argue that Ms. Lowell's Complaint should suffer the same fate since her testimony is all based on hearsay as demonstrated by her nonattendance of the Executive Session portion of the March 18, 2014 Board meeting as shown in the March 18, 2014 Minutes of Executive Session, and she has not provided the residuum proof in support of her hearsay testimony as required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. They proffered Respondent Simmons' Exhibit R-1 to show that Complainant Lowell was not in attendance during Executive Session when Respondent Smallwood revealed to [4] N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.9(c) provides that all hearings shall be conducted in accordance with the rules of the OAL. Such rules permit a party to make an oral motion during a hearing and to state the grounds for the motion. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.1(a)1 and 2.

the Board members that she and Respondent Smallwood conducted a site visit on behalf of the same candidate whose appointment the State Monitor overturned. Counsel assert that Complainant Lowell could have no first-hand knowledge of the disclosure. According to the Executive Session minutes, the seven members in attendance were Ahbez-Anderson, Hall, Harris, Lesinski, Saunders, Simmons, and Smallwood. Also present was the State Monitor.

In response, Complainant Lowell asserted that she was present for the entire meeting and proffered Complainant's Exhibit C-2, the minutes of the entire Public Session, which reflect that she was present at roll call to open the meeting, and was mentioned in two other agenda items as either seconding a motion or voting "nay" on the Motion to go into Executive Session. Thus, Ms. Lowell asserts that she was present for the entire meeting.

The Commission agrees and determines that application of Hoh is inapposite to the facts in the instant matter. When R-1 and C-2 are read in pari material, R-1, the Executive Session minutes, reflects two critical inconsistencies when compared with C-2, sufficient to render R-1 unreliable to prove Ms. Lowell was absent from Executive Session.

First, the Public Session minutes show Ms. Lowell present for roll call at the outset of the meeting and specifically mentioned in the activity of two other agenda items, including the vote to go into Executive Session. There is no entry that she departed. However, Mr. Saunders is marked "absent" at initial roll call; yet, his name appears on the Executive Session minutes as in attendance, but Ms. Lowell's name notes she is absent. There is no entry that Mr. Saunders arrived late to the meeting nor is his name mentioned on any other Board initiative that evening. Further, there is no indication that Ms. Lowell left.

Second, at the opening roll call, eight Board members were in attendance and every vote thereafter reflected eight members voting; however, Executive Session roll call shows Mr. Saunders present when he was not before, and the number of members reduced to seven. While there may be some explanation for these irregularities, none were offered at the hearing by the respondents; therefore, R-1 is unreliable to prove that Ms. Lowell was not present during Executive Session, and the Commission accords it no weight. In contrast, C-1 demonstrates that Ms. Lowell was in attendance that evening, and when coupled with her credible testimony that she was present at all times, the Commission accorded greater weight to C-1 as evidence to prove that Ms. Lowell was present to hear Ms. Smallwood's account of the site visit, which she and Ms. Simmons conducted.

The Commission further determines that there is also independent evidence that the site visit took place. First, Ms. Smallwood's email conversation (Complainant's Exhibit C-1) with Mr. Allen is evidence that after he contacted Ms. Smallwood she planned the visit, gathered the necessary participants, and emailed Mr. Allen concerning the perceived success of the visit after the fact and advised him that she would report to the Board that Tuesday and that she would do "everything I can to resolve this CSA situation". Second, Ms. Simmons' Answer to the Complaint in which she admits that she attended the site visit with the full knowledge of the Board.

For the reasons stated above and based on the Findings of Fact, supra, the Commission determines that the residuum rule requirement does not apply in this setting as Ms. Lowell has met her burden of proof by providing credible evidence, which does not rely on hearsay, that Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Simmons violated the Code. The joint Motion to Dismiss is hereby denied.

MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

After closing argument, counsel for Respondent Simmons made a motion to impose a monetary sanction on Ms. Lowell for filing a frivolous complaint, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(e). To succeed at such a request, the movant must show that that the complainant filed the Complaint in bad faith solely for the purpose of harassment, delay or malicious injury. Counsel has provided no evidence of bad faith nor has he provided information to suggest that the complainant should have known that the Complaint was without any reasonable basis in law or equity, or that it could not be supported by a good faith argument for an extension, modification or reversal of existing law. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2. Moreover, at its August 26, 2014 meeting, the Commission reviewed Respondent Smallwood's allegation of frivolous complaint as alleged in her Answer and voted to find this Complaint not frivolous. The allegation once decided cannot be raised again, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.2(b)(1). Consequently, based on the foregoing, the Commission denies counsel's request for sanctions.

CODE VIOLATIONS

The relevant, credible testimony in the case now before the Commission revealed that the respondents took board action beyond the scope of their authority and in violation of the Code when, without Board authority and without the approval of the State Monitor, they conducted a site visit to assess a candidate for Assistant Superintendent. They further violated the Code when they made personal promises to the candidate by advancing the possibility of his employment with the District, and promising to resolve the CSA issue for the Asbury Park District, which had the potential to compromise the Board. Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Simmons conducted a site visit without necessary approval. Consistent with this foregoing reasoning, the Commission reviewed these actions to determine the manner in which the respondents violated the Code.

The Commission again notes that the complainant bears the burden of factually proving any violations of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in accordance with the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a). See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(b). The complainant asserts that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (c), (d), (e), and (g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

The Commission first considers the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), which states:

> I will uphold and enforce all laws, rules and regulations of the State Board of Education, and court orders pertaining to schools.

> Desired changes shall be brought about only through legal and ethical procedures.

The Commission's regulations require that:

> Factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) shall include a copy of a final decision from any court of law or administrative agency of this State demonstrating that the respondent(s) failed to enforce all laws, rules and regulations of the State Board of Education, and/or court orders pertaining to schools or that the respondent brought about changes through illegal or unethical procedures. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)1.

The complainant did not produce a copy of a final decision from a court of law or administrative agency of this State which demonstrates that this respondent failed to enforce all laws, rules and regulations of the State Board of Education, and/or court orders pertaining to schools or that the respondents brought about changes through illegal or unethical means. See, David Hollander v. Judith Millman, et al., Springfield Twp. Board of Education, Union County, C33-07 (January 22, 2008); Denise Bouyer v. Rita Owens and Oscar McCoy, Willingboro Board of Education, Burlington County, C37-09 (December 15, 2009); Martha Oramas-Shirey v. Peter Gallo et. al., Bethlehem Twp. Bd. of Ed., Hunterdon County, C43-10 (March 22, 2011). Accordingly, the complainant failed to establish that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a).

The Commission next considers the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), which states:

> I will confine my board action to policymaking, planning, and appraisal and I will help to frame policies and plans only after the board has consulted those who will be affected by them.

The Commission's regulations require that:

> Factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) shall include evidence that the respondent(s) took board action to effectuate policies and plans without consulting those affected by such policies and plans, or took action that was unrelated to the respondent's duty to:
>
> > i. Develop the general rules and principles that guide the management of the school district or charter school;
> > ii. Formulate the programs and methods to effectuate the goals of the school district or charter school; or > > iii. Ascertain the value or liability of a policy. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)3.

The complainant alleges that the respondents took action beyond the scope of their authority when they conducted the site visit without Board approval and without authorization of the State Monitor. Ms. Lowell testified that at the Board meeting of February 11, 2014, the Board gave approval to the Personnel Committee only to contact the State Monitor to discuss the notion of creating a new Assistant Superintendent position. At that time, the Personnel Committee was comprised of Respondent Smallwood, Respondent Simmons, and Angela Abhez-Anderson. Four times during the course of her testimony, Ms. Lowell stated that three other Board members told her that they did not authorize the respondents to conduct a site visit, and those statements were never once challenged by the respondents. Most importantly, one of the three who advised Ms. Lowell that she did not approve the visit was Ms. Anderson, the third member of the Personnel Committee. She was left out of the decision.

Moreover, the State Monitor was in attendance at Executive Session on March 18, 2014 when Respondent Smallwood recount hers and Ms. Simmons' experiences on the site visit and would have heard Ms. Lowell respond, "You did what? That's an ethics violation!" To which Board counsel responded, "Now hold on now. You're not qualified to make that statement." It is reasonable to conclude that had the respondents actually discussed the creation of the new position and received authorization to conduct the site visit, the State Monitor would have taken this opportunity to defuse the situation to avoid litigation or for any of the other Board members who were present, who could have explained that authority was previously granted at the earlier February 25, 2014 meeting which Complainant Lowell was not in attendance. But that did not happen because the respondents neither sought approval nor received authorization. Instead, the respondents acted unilaterally to plan and arrange the site visit. Moreover, if they had the requisite approvals, they would have included that fact in their respective Answers, but they did no. Further, they would have testified to that fact or had others testify on their behalf, which they did not. Accordingly, based on the preponderance of the credible testimony and evidence, the Commission finds that because Respondent Smallwood and Respondent Simmons failed to secure the necessary Board approval and/or State Monitor authorization prior to conducting the site visit, they violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

The Commission next considers the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), which states:

> I will carry out my responsibility, not to administer the schools, but together with my fellow board members, to see that they are well run.

The Commission's regulations require that:

> Factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) shall include, but not be limited to, evidence that the respondent(s) gave a direct order to school personnel or became directly involved in activities or functions that are the responsibility of school personnel or the day-to-day administration of the school district or charter school. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)4.

Based on the testimony and in accordance with the Commission's findings of fact, the Commission finds insufficient evidence to conclude that the respondents gave a direct order to school personnel or became directly involved in activities or functions that are the responsibility of school personnel or the day-to-day administration of the school district. Accordingly, the complainant failed to establish that the respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d).

The Commission next considers the complainant's allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), which provides:

> I will recognize that authority rests with the board of education and will make no personal promises nor take any private action that may compromise the board.

The Commission's regulations require that:

> Factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) shall include evidence that the respondent made personal promises or took action beyond the scope of his or her duties such that, by its nature, had the potential to compromise the board. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)5.

In finding a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), it is not necessary for the Commission to find that the respondent's action, in fact, compromised the Board. Rather, it is sufficient that the action was of such a nature that it might have compromised the Board. See, Tony John et al. v. Ken Gordon, Willingboro Bd. of Ed., Burlington County, C34-08 (October 27, 2009), aff'd Commission of Education Decision No. 102-10ASEC, decided March 30, 2010.

Respondent Smallwood continued to pursue Mr. Allen as a candidate for the Assistant Superintendent position and enlisted the assistance of Respondent Simmons to attend and conduct the site visit. The Commission determines that actually conducting a site visit on behalf of and in the presence of Mr. Allen, whose appointment the State Monitor overturned in November 2013, was the next step in the hiring process for which the respondents had no approval. As such, the action they took in attending and conducting the site visit was private action beyond the scope of their authority. This site visit had the ability to compromise the Board. In further violation of the Code, Respondent Smallwood held out a promise to Mr. Allen in her email reply to him when she stated, "I'm doing everything I can to resolve this CSA[5] situation." This promise of future employment also had the potential to compromise the Board, despite the fact that she had no authority to bring the promise of employment with the District to fruition.

Accordingly, the Commission finds that based on the preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence, Respondents Smallwood and Simmons took private action and made a personal promise of possible future employment with the District, when they attended the meeting. These actions were of such a nature that they had the potential to compromise the Board in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

The Commission last considers the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), which provides:

> I will hold confidential all matters pertaining to the schools which, if disclosed, would needlessly injure individuals or the schools. In all other matters, I will provide accurate information and, in concert with my fellow board members, interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.

The Commission's regulation requires that:

> Factual evidence of a violation of the confidentiality provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) shall include evidence that the respondent(s) took action to make public, reveal or disclose information that was not public under any laws, regulations or court orders of this State, or information that was otherwise confidential in accordance with board policies, procedures or practices. Factual evidence that the respondent violated the inaccurate information provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) shall include evidence that substantiates the inaccuracy of the information provided by the respondent(s) and evidence that establishes that the inaccuracy was other than reasonable mistake or personal opinion or was not attributable to developing circumstances. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)7. The purpose of executive session is to allow the Board to openly deliberate on select issues without the public being privy to those discussions. It is clear that the topics discussed during that portion of the meeting were confidential and it fell upon those individuals present in executive session ensure those discussions remain confidential.

The Commission confines its review to the first portion of this regulation, which requires evidence that the respondent took action to make public, reveal or disclose information that was not otherwise public. The complainant has provided no testimony or evidence that either respondent actually disclosed confidential information to the individuals attending the site visit. Although Ms. Lowell testified that Ms. Smallwood referred to Mr. Allen's "candidacy" in her discussion with the group, there is no corroborating evidence to support the allegation that she shared confidential information. Complainant's Exhibit C-1, the Smallwood-Allen email[6], does

[6] The Smallwood-Allen email was admitted into evidence by Respondent Smallwood in a prior matter as R-3 and was only used in that matter to corroborate that Ms. Smallwood divulged Executive Session conversations and shared far more information, including her "out of the box" proposal in her telephone call in greater detail than simply gauging the candidates' interest and disclosed confidential matters discussed in Executive Session in not demonstrate that Respondent Smallwood or Respondent Simmons disclosed confidential information to the group during the visit. While it is reasonable to conclude that a discussion regarding Mr. Allen's candidacy could only mean Ms. Smallwood's intention to appoint Mr. Allen to the Assistant Superintendent position, a finding that she had actually breached the Code would be based solely on conjecture. Accordingly, the complainant failed to establish that respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g).

DECISION

The Commission finds that the complainant has proved by a preponderance of the relevant, credible evidence that Respondent Geneva Smallwood and Respondent Felicia Simmons violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members, and the Commission dismisses the allegations that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (d), and (g) of the Code.

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of censure of each respondent, as it did in matters where similar violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e) were found and a comparable violation was endorsed. In recommending the penalty, the Commission notes that a censure was the appropriate penalty when it found that a Board member violated (c) and exceeded her authority to appraise the resumes of candidates for Superintendent when she went in search of the resumes for her review. I/M/O Marlene Polinik, Wayne Township Board of Education, Passaic County, C45-06 1/22/08, Commissioner of Education Decision No. 112-08 SEC, decided March 10, 2008. A censure was also the penalty for a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) inter alia for taking private action by attending a meeting the Board had not authorized the member to attend. Brown, et al. v. David Matthews, City of Englewood Bd. of Education, Bergen County, C13-07, 10/27/08, Commissioner of Education Decision No 123-09A, decided April 14, 2009. Here, where the respondents were found to have violated both N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (e), the Commission finds that the penalty of censure is appropriate.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention:

violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g). The Commission did not have the issue of the propriety of the site visit before it at that time.

Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal, pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4, within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Shelia Slappy, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Dkt. No. 137-6/15, Commissioner Decision No. 242-15

Dear Counsel:

Ms. Slappy's July 29, 2015 motion to "reconsider, vacate and reopen" this matter has been reviewed, along with the District's opposition brief and movant's reply thereto.

By way of background, this matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 19, 2015 through tenure charges of conduct unbecoming certified by the State District Superintendent of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, together with supporting evidence against Ms. Slappy, a teaching staff member in the District's employ. The charges and supporting evidence indicated that Ms. Slappy engaged in a pattern of chronic and excessive absenteeism since the 2011-2012 school year that adversely affected students, and was absent without leave ("AWOL") for months at the time of the filing – despite having been deemed fit to return to work by a physician as of December 4, 2014.

On June 19, 2015, the Commissioner directed Ms. Slappy – via both certified and regular mail – to file an answer to the charges. This communication clearly provided notice that, pursuant to

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would – absent granting of an extension for good cause shown – result in the charges being deemed admitted. Although the certified mailing sent to Ms. Slappy was never claimed, the letter sent to her via regular mail was not returned to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. Ms. Slappy failed to file a timely answer to the tenure charges, and failed to request an extension of time to file an answer during the 15-day answer period.

Subsequently, the Commissioner deemed the allegations against Ms. Slappy to be admitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(c) and found that the charges of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member were proven and warranted Ms. Slappy's dismissal from employment. Summary decision was granted to the District on July 16, 2015 and Ms. Slappy was dismissed from her tenured position.

Later that same day, on July 16, 2015, counsel for Ms. Slappy submitted an untimely answer to the tenure charges and requested "an extension of time under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(b)1 to make this filing." Following notification from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that the matter had been decided and was closed, the instant motion to "reconsider, vacate and reopen" was filed on July 29, 2015.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds that Ms. Slappy is not entitled to reconsideration of the July 16, 2015 final decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)2, a motion for reconsideration shall be considered by the Commissioner based upon the following:

i. Claim(s) of mistake, provided, however, that disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake" for purposes of this section;
ii. Newly discovered evidence likely to alter the outcome of a matter, where such evidence could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;
iii. Newly ascertained misrepresentation or other misconduct of an adverse party, where such misrepresentation could not have been previously known; or
iv. Reversal of a prior judgment on which the present matter is based.

In her motion, Ms. Slappy does not argue that she has satisfied any of the prerequisites set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)2; rather, she expresses disagreement with the Commissioner's granting of the District's motion for summary decision. Additionally, Ms. Slappy indicates that her inability to answer in a timely manner resulted primarily from her husband's release from an acute care facility on June 29, 2015 and her attendant ongoing responsibilities as his in-home caregiver. The District notes in its brief opposing Ms. Slappy's motion that, sadly, her husband's serious health issues are recurrent and have affected her ability to report to work. Faced with those circumstances, however, Ms. Slappy provides no specific reason as to why she was unable to request an extension of time to file an answer pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(b) at any point prior to July 6, 2015 (the expiration of the 15-day answer period); no request for an extension of time was made until submission of the untimely answer on July 16, 2015.[1]

As to the request to vacate the Commissioner's July 16, 2015 decision and reopen the matter, the Commissioner finds Ms. Slappy's arguments to be unpersuasive. The Tenure Act authorizes the Commissioner to extend timelines in the tenure charge process "upon a showing of exceptional circumstances." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.4. As stated above, Ms. Slappy was provided an opportunity to respond to the tenure charges, but failed to do so in a timely manner. Furthermore, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3(b)(1) provides that "A request for extension that is received after the 15-day period allotted for answer to tenure charges...will be considered only in the event of demonstrated emergency or other unforeseeable circumstance such that the request could not have been made within the requisite filing period." Although Ms. Slappy's ongoing challenging personal circumstances related to the care of her husband and five year-old child are noted, there is no specific reason given why those circumstances would have prevented her from requesting an extension of time to file her answer prior to expiration of the 15-day answer period if she intended to respond to the tenure charges and required additional time.

Accordingly, the Commissioner is constrained to deny the motion in its entirety.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Sincerely,

David C. Hespe
Commissioner of Education

[1] Mr. Stewart, Esq. provided an affidavit indicating that – although he met Ms. Slappy on or about May 7, 2015 – he was not formally retained to represent her in this matter until July 11, 2015. Mr. Stewart's affidavit further indicates that Ms. Slappy had been unable to provide him with the information necessary to prepare an answer to the tenure charges "because of her overarching need to manage the medical situation of her husband...and care for her five year old son."

For Respondent, Board of Education of the Toms River Regional Schools:
Stephan R. Leone, Esq. (Carluccio, Leone, Dimon, Doyle & Sacks, LLC)

Petitioner, the Board of Education of the Borough of Seaside Park ("Seaside Park") – a non-operating, elementary school district – having applied pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1[1] to the Commissioner of Education for authorization to enter a sending-receiving relationship with the Board of Education of the Borough of Lavallette ("Lavallette"), while maintaining its already established sending-receiving

[1] The proposed change in allocation of Seaside Park students could, if authorized, result in at least a partial withdrawal – if not a complete withdrawal – of Seaside Park students from Toms River. Therefore, the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1 are applicable. See Board of Education of the Township of Mine Hill v. Board of Education of the Town of Dover, Commissioner's Decision No. 510-04, decided December 15, 2004, at 9 (Commissioner determined standards for evaluating requests to withdraw from high school sending-receiving relationships are applicable when evaluating requests to withdraw from elementary school sending-receiving relationships).

relationship with the Board of Education of the Toms River Regional School District ("Toms River");[2] and

The Commissioner having recognized that the ultimate creation of a dual sending-receiving relationship would allow Seaside Park's Kindergarten through Grade 6 students to continue attending school at Toms River (Washington Street Elementary through Grade 5 and Toms River Intermediate East for Grade 6)[3] or to attend at Lavallette (Lavallette Elementary through Grade 6) instead; and

The Boards of Education of Lavallette and Toms River not having opposed Seaside Park's request;[4] and

Seaside Park having conducted a feasibility study in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1, analyzing the educational, financial and racial impact – on all affected districts – of establishing a dual sending-receiving relationship between Seaside Park and the Boards of Education of Toms River and Lavallette;[5] and

The feasibility study having recommended that Seaside Park be permitted to enter into a dual sending-receiving relationship, as its establishment would not have a substantial negative educational, financial or racial impact on any of the districts involved; and

[2] In or around 2009, Seaside Park closed its elementary school and entered into a sending-receiving relationship with the Toms River Regional School District, wherein Toms River agreed to educate Seaside Park's elementary students. Seaside Park's Grade 7 through 12 students are educated at the Central Regional School District, along with students from Berkeley Township, Island Heights, Ocean Gate, and Seaside Heights.

[3] As of March 2015, 22 out of 387 students enrolled at Washington Street Elementary were from Seaside Park, and just 2 sixth-grade students out of over 1350 students enrolled at Toms River Intermediate School East were from Seaside Park.

[4] Lavallette expressed its support for establishment of the dual sending-receiving relationship – and passed a Board resolution indicating its readiness to receive and educate students from Seaside Park in Grades K through 6. Toms River did not file a formal objection to the petition.

[5] The Toms River Regional School District, a K-12 school district, educates students from Seaside Park, Toms River Township, Beachwood Borough, Pine Beach Borough, and South Toms River Borough. The Lavallette School District educates its Pre-K through 8 students at its only school, Lavallette Elementary.

The parties having complied with the public notice and comment provisions outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1(b); and

There being no dispute amongst the parties as to certain relevant facts, including that no substantial negative educational, financial or racial impact will incur to any of the school districts upon establishment of the proposed sending-receiving relationship between Seaside Park and Lavallette; and

The feasibility study having established to the Commissioner's satisfaction that the withdrawal of some or all of Seaside Park's students from Toms River, and the entry of those students into Lavallette, would cause no substantial negative impact on the educational programs of the school districts or on the quality of education received by the pupils in each of the school districts; and

The feasibility study having further established to the Commissioner's satisfaction that establishment of a sending-receiving relationship between Seaside Park and Lavallette would benefit the residents and students of Seaside Park from an educational perspective by allowing parents and guardians to select from two educational programs which provide students with a thorough and efficient education; and

The feasibility study having further established to the Commissioner's satisfaction that there would be no substantial negative impact on the financial conditions of the affected school districts, even if all Seaside Park students who currently attend school in Toms River decide to enroll at Lavallette at the same time; and

districts, and that there exists no evidence of any aggravating circumstances that would exacerbate any minimal change in racial composition at the affected districts;[6] and

The Commissioner having also considered the public comments[7] received pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1(b); now, therefore

IT IS ORDERED on this 20th day of October, 2015 that – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1 – Seaside Park's application for authorization to enter into a sending-receiving relationship with Lavallette while also continuing its sending-receiving relationship with Toms River, as set forth in its petition of appeal, is APPROVED, thereby establishing a dual sending-receiving relationship that will permit Seaside Park students in Grades Kindergarten through Six to attend school at either district.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[8]

Date of Decision 10/20/15

[6] The feasibility study indicated that the racial composition of students at Toms River and Lavallette is similar and would remain so even if Seaside Park's petition is granted. If all Seaside Park students had been removed from Washington Street Elementary between 2010 and 2014, the percentage of white students enrolled would have decreased by 0.26 to 1.66 percentage points over the four-year time period; and, if all Seaside Park students had been removed from Toms River Intermediate School East during the same time period, the percentage of white students enrolled would have decreased by only 0.03 to 0.18 percentage points. Finally, if all Seaside Park students had attended Lavallette between 2010 and 2014 (a district which had only 137-168 students enrolled during this time period), the percentage of white students enrolled at Lavallette would have decreased by 2.42 to 4.80 percentage points over four years. It is considered unlikely that all Seaside Park students would enroll at Lavallette at the same time if given the opportunity; thus, any resultant change in racial composition to the districts could be even less than those hypothesized above. Due to Seaside Park's relatively small K-6 student population (Seaside Park Elementary School "graduated" six students in its last year of operation), a decrease or an increase in Seaside Park's population in either Toms River or Lavallette will not result in a negative impact on any of the students.

[7] The Commissioner received written comments from the following individuals: 1) William Akers, Mayor of the Borough of Seaside Heights (opposed); 2) Triantafillos Parlapanides, Superintendent of Schools, Central Regional School District (opposed); 3) Kevin O'Shea, Business Administrator and Board Secretary, Central Regional School District (opposed); and 4) Walter G. LaCicero, Mayor of the Borough of Lavallette (in favor).

J.C., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, J.C.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her daughter, J.C., is not domiciled in the Linden School District and therefore not entitled to a free public education in Linden schools. The respondent Board contended that petitioner and J.C. reside at a home in Roselle, New Jersey, which petitioner and her husband purchased in 1993, and consequently owe tuition for the period of J.C.'s ineligible attendance in Linden schools. Petitioner asserted that she is no longer domiciled at the Roselle house because she is separated from her husband. A hearing in the matter was conducted on September 9, 2014, and an Initial Decision was issued on May 29, 2015, in which the ALJ concluded that petitioner and her daughter are not domiciled in the respondent's school district; the ALJ ordered the petitioner to reimburse the Board at the per diem rate of $85.67 for the period of J.C.'s ineligible attendance in its schools. Subsequently, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for calculation of the exact amount of tuition due and supplementation of the record as warranted.

On remand, the ALJ determined that the petitioner owes the respondent Board a total sum of $ 20,453.44 in tuition costs for the period of J.C.'s ineligible attendance in the district's schools during the 2013-2014 and 2014-2015 school years.

The Commissioner adopted the recommended decision of the OAL with modifications to correct typographical errors in the Initial Decision's calculation of the tuition due to the respondent Board. The petitioner was directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $20,453.44 for tuition costs incurred during the period of J.C.'s ineligible attendance in Linden schools.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record in this matter – including the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) dated May 29, 2015, as well as the Initial Decision of the OAL dated September 17, 2015, issued pursuant to the Commissioner's remand – has been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

On July 8, 2015, the Commissioner determined that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of Linden during the 2013-2014 school year; thus, the minor child was not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools. As a result, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for calculation of tuition due to the Board. See Board of Education of the Township of Cranford v. A.McG. and L.McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, aff'd 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 140, rev'd and remanded, App. Div., February 10, 1998, A-4742-95, slip opinion at pp. 8-10 (initial decision requires, where applicable, calculation of tuition due).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Linden. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2 indicates that – where an appeal has been filed – tuition may be assessed "for the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending, and for up to one year of a student's ineligible attendance in a school district prior to the appeal's filing and including the 21-day period to file an appeal."

The Board notified petitioner on May 7, 2014[1] of its determination that the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Linden, as it appeared petitioner resided elsewhere. Petitioner appealed the Board's determination on June 2, 2014. According to the record, the minor child continued to attend school in Linden subsequent to the Board's determination and during the appeal's pendency, i.e., for the remainder of the 2013-2014 school year and for the entire 2014-2015 school year.

On remand, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) ordered petitioner to pay tuition costs in the amount of $20,453.44. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2, tuition is hereby assessed to petitioner in the amount of $20,453.44 for the following days of ineligible attendance:

- May 7, 2014 through May 30, 2014 (ineligible attendance prior to the filing of petitioner's appeal) and June 2, 2014 through June 20, 2014[2] (period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending):

  (32 school days in 2013-2014 x $85.67/day[3] = $2,741.44)

- September 3, 2014 through June 23, 2015 (period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending):

  (180 school days in 2014-2015 x $98.40/day = $17,712.00)

  TOTAL: $2,741.44 + $17,712.00 = $20,453.44

[1] Although the May 7, 2014 Final Determination of Ineligibility states that tuition would be charged to petitioner at a per diem rate of $80.21, the Certification of Kathleen Gaylord, Business Administrator/Board Secretary contained in the record indicates that the per diem tuition rate for students in grades 9-12 for the 2013-2014 school year was $85.67.

[2] While the ALJ found on Page 2 of the Initial Decision that June 2, 2015 was the last day of school for the District's students – perhaps due to reliance upon the Affidavit of JoAnn Hamilton, Director of Pupil Personnel Services/Guidance, which appears to contain several typographical errors – the school calendar contained in the record confirms that the last day of school was June 20, 2015.

[3] While the ALJ found on Page 2 of the Initial Decision that the per diem rate of $85.67/day was applicable to the 2012-2013 school year – again, likely due to reliance upon the Affidavit of JoAnn Hamilton – the aforementioned Certification of Kathleen Gaylord and supporting exhibits confirm that this per diem rate actually applied to the 2013-2014 school year.

Accordingly, the recommended Initial Decisions of the OAL are adopted, as modified herein. The Board's claim for payment of tuition is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $20,453.44 for tuition costs incurred during the time period that the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Linden.

J.C., petitioner, pro se

Margaret A. Miller, Esq, for respondent Linden Board of Education, Union County (Weiner Lesniak, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 28, 2015 Decided: September 17, 2015

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals the decision of the respondent that determined that her daughter was not eligible to attend the Linden Public Schools because she is not a resident of the District. A hearing was held and concluded on September 9, 2014. An Initial Decision issued on May 29, 2015. On July 8, 2015, the Commissioner of Education issued a Final Decision which affirmed the findings and conclusions as set forth in the Initial Decision, but remanded the matter for calculation of tuition due.

On August 28, 2015, the respondent provided the affidavit of Joanne Hamilton, Director of Pupil Personnel Services/Guidance for the Linden School District at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

I FIND the following undisputed FACTS:

1. On May 7, 2014, J.C. was sent a "Final Determination of Ineligibility for Residency" advising that the District determined that her daughter, J.C. was ineligible to attend school in the District. The notice further advised petitioner of her appeal rights and that tuition would be assessed for each day that J.C. improperly attended school in the District. (Exhibit A)

2. The Certification of the District's School Business Administrator, Kathleen A. Gaylord, provides the District's 2012-13 annual per pupil tuition rate was $15,421 or $85.67 per day.

3. Between May 7, 2014 and June 2, 2014, (the last day of school for the District's students there were thirty-two (32) school days for which J.C. was ineligible to attend school in the District. Therefore, J.C. is assessed $2,741.44 in tuition for the 2013-14 school year. (Exhibit B).

4. J.C. attended school in the District for the entire 2014/15 school year.

5. The per pupil annual tuition rate for the 2014/15 school year was $17,712.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner owes the District, $2,741.44 for the 2013/14 school year and $17,712 for the 2014/15 school year.

And it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner shall pay the District a total sum of $20,453.44.

It is so ORDERED that the District's claim for payment of tuition for 2013/14 and 2014/15 is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BURLINGTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that his daughter, N.P., did not reside within the school district, and was therefore not entitled to a free public education in Burlington Township schools. The Board contended that N.P. was not residing at the Burlington Township address provided by the petitioner, and sought repayment of tuition for the period of N.P.'s ineligible attendance. Petitioner claimed that his daughter lives with him at his apartment in Burlington Township. The Board asserted that a residency investigation confirmed that N.P. lives with her mother, R.P., in Willingboro. A hearing in the matter was conducted on August 11, 2015.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: it is undisputed that R.P. is a resident of Willingboro; although B.P. has clearly been a resident of Burlington Township since February 2015, and may have shared joint legal custody of N.P., the evidence demonstrated that N.P. continues to live with her mother in Willingboro; a significant amount of surveillance was conducted during the residency investigation, and failed to observe N.P. spending even one night at B.P.'s apartment. The ALJ concluded that, based on the credible testimony and documentary evidence, N.P. is not domiciled in Burlington Township, and must be considered as having been domiciled with her mother, R.P., in Willingboro for purposes of school attendance from March 17, 2015 to June 18, 2015. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed the Board's determination that N.P. was not eligible for a free public education in Burlington Township, and ordered that petitioner reimburse the Board for the cost of tuition in the amount of $9,230.38.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, but determined that the matter must be remanded to the OAL for the proper development of the record with respect to the amount of tuition due, as there are inconsistencies in the record regarding the last day of school for the 2014-2015 school year, and the Board failed to submit an affidavit outlining the tuition costs. Accordingly, Commissioner remanded the case to the OAL for calculation of tuition due and supplementation of the record as warranted.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BURLINGTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, B.P., and the Board of Education's reply thereto.[1]

Upon a review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that N.P. was not domiciled with her father in the Burlington Township School District (District) between February 2, 2015 and the end of the 2014-2015 school year. The Commissioner finds the petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments previously raised before the ALJ and taken into account by her in weighing the testimony and in concluding that N.P. resides with her mother in Willingboro, New Jersey. The Commissioner also finds no basis in the record to reject the ALJ's determinations of witness credibility. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the various witnesses who appeared before her and made findings of fact based upon their testimony.

With respect to the amount of tuition owed to the District for N.P.'s ineligible attendance, the Commissioner finds that this matter must be remanded to the OAL for the proper development of the record. Although it appears from the record that N.P.'s ineligible attendance in the District began on February 2, 2015, the ALJ ordered tuition to be reimbursed in the amount of $9,230.38 for the period from March 17, 2015 through June 22, 2015. It should be noted, however, that if the per-diem tuition rate was $107.33 for the 2014-2015 school year, the total tuition amount order by the ALJ in the Initial Decision could not possibly add up to $9,230.28 for the period of March 17, 2015 through June 22, 2015.[2] There are also inconsistencies in the record regarding the last day of school for the 2014-2015 school year. The Initial Decision indicates it was June 18, 2015, but then went on to order tuition costs through June 22, 2015. The District's submissions provide no clearer indication as the one correspondence in the record that was authored by the District references tuition costs through June 30, 2015. In light of the fact that the District did not submit an affidavit outlining the tuition costs and the record does not contain a transcript from the hearing at the OAL where the Business Administrator testified to the tuition costs, it is impossible to ascertain the correct tuition amount that is owed to the District.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for the calculation of tuition costs owed to the District for N.P.'s ineligible enrollment in the District during the 2014-2015 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 08697-15
AGENCY DKT. 119-5/15

B.P., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, N.P, Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BURLINGTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,
Respondent.

B.P., on behalf of N.P., petitioner, pro se

David M. Serlin, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: August 11, 2015 Decided: September 10, 2015

BEFORE SARAH G. CROWLEY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, B.P., the father of the minor child N.P., appeals the determination of the Burlington Township (Burlington County) Board of Education (the District) that N.P. did not reside within the District and that tuition reimbursement was required. The District alleges that the minor child N.P. was not residing at the Burlington Township address provided by the petitioner and seeks repayment of tuition. At issue is whether N.P. is entitled to be enrolled in the District for purposes of receiving a thorough and efficient public education free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 17, 2015, the district notified B.P., the father of N.P., that the child was ineligible to continue to attend school within the Burlington Township school district. The petitioner filed a timely notice of appeal on or about May 27, 2015. The District filed an answer on June 10, 2015. On June 15, 2015, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on August 11, 2015, 2014, and the record closed at that time.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

R.P. and B.P, are married, but separated and shared custody of N.P., although there is no formal agreement with respect to the child's residential custody. Prior to January 8, 2015, N.P. lived with her mother, R.P. in Willingboro, N.J., and was enrolled in school in that district. The parents have been separated for a number of years, and B.P. has lived in Brooklyn, N.Y. or Monmouth County, N.J. B.P. works in New York City as an electrician for the union. B.P. moved to Burlington Township in January of 2015. He rents a one bedroom apartment at 413 Dominique Court, in Burlington, New Jersey. B.P. claims that N.P. lives with him at his apartment. B.P. leaves Burlington at 4:30 a.m. every day to get to work in New York City. He claims that he drops his daughter off at his wife's home in Willingboro at 4:00 a.m. every day, and she drives her from there to his home to get the bus to school. The district claims that the child continues to live with her mother in Willingboro and that their residency investigation confirmed that she lives in Willingboro.

TESTIMONY

B.P. is the father of N.P. He testified that he and R.P. have been separated for many years. B.P. testified that after they were separated, he moved to New York City, where he is employed. He is employed as an electrician for the union. He testified that in January 2015, he moved to Burlington Township to be could be closer to N.P. He realized he was missing so much of her childhood and that R.P. agreed that N.P. would live with him, and attend school in Burlington. He signed a lease on January 26, 2015, and enrolled N.P. in school in Burlington on January 29, 2015.

B.P. testified that he catches a 4:35 a.m. bus to New York City every day for work. He wakes R.P. up at approximately 4:00 a.m. and drives her to her mother's house in Willingboro. He testified that she goes back to sleep and her mother gets her back to the bus at his house in Burlington. He testified that she gets off the bus at his house and he arrives shortly after she does. She has a key and lets herself into the apartment. His work hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. He testified that he is in the city by 6:15 a.m., and usually starts work by 7:00 a.m. His foreman lets him leave in time to get a bus that gets him home by 3:30 p.m. and N.P. is only there by herself for a short time. He identified some photographs of his home and indicated that he sleeps on the couch in the living room every night and N.P. has the bedroom. He testified that he believes that the residency challenge is related to the IEP for his daughter. He provided a copy of the lease which listed N.P. as an occupant of the residence.

R.P. is the mother of N.P. She testified that she and B.P. have been separated for several years. She testified that N.P. had been living with her in Willingboro until January 2015, when N.P.'s father moved to Burlington Township. She testified that they agreed that N.P. would live with him, since he has not seen her much in the last few years. She also testified that she is going back to school and she will not be home after work for N.P. R.P. testified that B.P. gets home from work in time to get N.P. off the bus in the afternoon. She testified that B.P. is home when N.P. gets off the bus. This is inconsistent with B.P.'s testimony that the bus from New York gets him home after N.P. and she has to let herself into the apartment. R.P. testified that she thinks she is being "targeted" because people didn't like her when she was on the school board in Willingboro. She further testified that she thinks the request for an IEP for their daughter in Burlington Township prompted their investigation into her residency. She testified that she does not think one district is better than the other, but that N.P. is living with her father in Burlington Township. However, R.P. claims N.P. as a dependant on her federal tax return.

Alfred Nagle is been employed by the District as a residency investigator. He took over the investigation into the residency of N.P. after Robert Cox retired. He went through the notes from the surveillance that was conducted on N.P. He testified that the District received an anonymous tip that N.P. lived with her mother in Willingboro. The surveillance began in February 2015. The surveillance notes from February and March, which included at least thirteen separate days of surveillance, indicated that the mother drove N.P. from her home in Willingboro to the bus stop in Burlington or directly to school from her home in Willingboro. He testified that the foregoing surveillance was conducted by his predecessor and he picked-up on the investigator at the end of April. He testified that they had difficulty contacting either R.P. or B.P. and they sent notes home in the N.P.'s backpack since the letters regarding the residency issues were not being responded to. Eventually, he spoke to B.P. and he was advised of the Board of Education meeting regarding the residency issue which was scheduled for May 20, 2015

R.P. and B.P. appeared at Burlington Township Board of Education meeting on May 20, 2015. Mr. Nagle testified that the parents claimed that the child slept in Burlington and was driven to the mother's house early in the morning since B.P. had to get an early bus to work. Mr. Nagle conducted additional surveillance in the evening and in the early morning to see if the child was being transported early in the morning from B.P.'s home. Mr. Nagy testified that on June 2, 2015, he conducted surveilance at 413 Dominique Court, in Burlington Township. He testified that at approximately 9:40 p.m. he observed B.P. arrive home and enter the resident alone. There was no sign on N.P. he continued his surveillance that evening and between the hours of 3:00 a.m. and 4:00 a.m. no one entered or exited the home. Mr. Nagy testified that at 8:00 a.m. R.P. arrived at the bus stop with N.P. where she proceeded to board the school bus. The child was not observed at the Burlington home the next day and the child was dropped off for the bus again by R.P. at 8:00 a.m. Mr. Nagle noted that she was not transported by her father earlier in the morning. He further observed that B.P. appeared to be in the home by himself. The following day, N.P. she got off the school bus at approximately 3:25 p.m. and was greeted by her father. They got into B.P.'s car and left the area. Later that evening B.P returned alone and entered the apartment. The next day, between 3:00 a.m. and 4:00 a.m. no one entered or exited the home and R.P. was observed dropping the child off at the bus stop at the end of Dominique Court. Mr. Nagy concluded from his observations during his surveillance that N.P. did not live at the residence at 413 Dominique Court, Burlington, N.J.

MaryAnn Bell is the Interim Superintendent of Burlington Township School as well as the Business Administrator. She testified that the per diam tuition in Burlington township is $107.33 per day. The notice was sent to the district on March 17, 2015 and the last day of school was June 18, 2015, for a total of $9,230.38.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACTS in this matter:

1. The Burlington Township Board of Education had good cause to question the residency of N.P. after receiving an anonymous tip regarding the child residing in Willingboro.

2. B.P. and N.P. were provided notice of the District challenge to residence on March 17, 2015.

3. Surveillance of B.P.'s home at 413 Dominique Court in Burlington Township revealed that N.P. did not reside with her father in the apartment. The surveillance and the testimony demonstrated that the child was transported by her mother to and from the bus stop in Burlington Township.

4. N.P. resides with her mother in Willingboro, N.J.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The issue in this matter is whether N.P. was entitled to a free education under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), which provides that public schools shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are "domiciled within the school district." See V.R. ex rel A.R. v. Hamburg Bd. of Educ., 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 287 (1980), aff'd, State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds sub nom. Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 550 F. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (New Jersey requires local domicile, as opposed to mere residence, in order for a student to receive a free education). A student may attend school in a district in which he is a non-resident, with or without payment of tuition, at the discretion of the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-2.2.

The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374–76 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed.2d 518 (1999). A person may have many residences but only one domicile. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001).

N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) provides that a student is considered eligible to attend a school district if he or she is domiciled within the school district. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). The regulation further provides:

> i. When a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year. This subparagraph shall apply regardless of which parent has legal custody.

ii. When a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis so the student is not living with one parent or guardian for a majority of the school year and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student resided on the last school day prior to the October 16 preceding the application date.

(1) When a student resided with both parents or guardians, or with neither parent or guardian, on the last school day prior to the preceding October 16, the student's domicile is that of the parent or guardian with whom the parents or guardians indicate the student will be residing on the last school day prior to the ensuing October 16. When the parents or guardians do not designate or cannot agree upon the student's likely residence as of that date, or if on that date the student is not residing with the parent or guardian previously indicated, the student shall attend school in the school district of domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student actually lives as of the last school day prior to October 16.

iii. When a student is living with a person other than a parent or guardian, nothing in this section is intended to limit the student's right to attend school in the parent or guardian's school district of domicile pursuant to this chapter.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1).]

The acts, statements and conduct of the individual, as viewed in light of all circumstances, determine a person's true intent. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 521 (Law Div. 1959). The parent/petitioner has the burden of proving domicile by a preponderance of the evidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

Where a person has more than one residence, the following factors are useful in determining his domicile: the physical characteristics of each place, the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude towards each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return. Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39–40 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). "[A] choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." In re Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 374.

In this matter, an analysis must be applied to the residency and domicile of the child and each parent. It is undisputed that R.P. is a resident of Willingboro. B.P. is clearly a resident of Burlington Township, where he commenced living in February 2015. While B.P. may have shared joint legal custody of the child with R.P., the evidence demonstrated that N.P. continues to live with her mother in Willingboro. There was a significant amount of surveillance that was conducted and the child was never observed spending even a single night at B.P.'s apartment. Indeed the parents were aware of the investigation and the allegation by the Township that she was not residing there, and even after notice of such investigation, N.P. was not observed at her father's home overnight. While B.P. may have moved to Burlington to spend more time with N.P., clearly she did not reside in Burlington Township on a full-time basis, nor could she be considered a domiciliary of Burlington Township.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that N.P. is not domiciled in Burlington Township, and must be considered as having been domiciled at the residence of her mother, R.P., in Willingboro for purposes of school attendance from March 17, 2015 to June 18, 2015.

Tuition Reimbursement

The Board asserts that it is entitled to be reimbursed for tuition for the period of N.P.'s ineligible enrollment in its schools. Where, as here, the evidence does not support the claims of the resident, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a). Tuition shall be assessed as follows:

> If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).]

In this matter, the respondent testified that the per-diem rate for school year 2012–2013 was $107.33. Ms. Bell calculated the amount due to the board to be $9,230.38.

Based upon the evidence and testimony presented in this matter, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner, B.P., failed to carry her burden of proof that his daughter, N.P., is domiciled in the Burlington Township, thereby entitling her to a free public education in the district during the relevant time periods. I further CONCLUDE that the respondent is entitled to reimbursement from the petitioner for the costs of audited tuition in the amount of $9,230.38, representing the amount due from March 17, 2015, through June 22, 2015, based upon her daily attendance record.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the respondent's determination that N.B. is not domiciled with her father, B.P. in Burlington Township, New Jersey, and was not so domiciled within its school district during the period of March 17, 2015, through June 22, 2015, is hereby AFFIRMED. It is further ORDERED that respondent is entitled to reimbursement from petitioner for the cost of audited tuition in the amount of $9,230.38, representing the period from March 17, 2015 through June 22, 2015.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patrick Joseph, School District of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, Agency Dkt. No. 305-10/15.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the record in the contested case entitled In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patrick Joseph, School District of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, Agency Dkt. No. 305-10/15. The record includes the District's request to withdraw the tenure charges filed in this matter, as well as the respondent's formal resignation filed with the District on October 2, 2015. In light of this information, I find that no purpose would be served by further proceedings in this matter.

Accordingly, I approve the dismissal of the tenure charges with prejudice and dismiss the matter as a contested case before me. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

Sincerely,

Re: Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County v. O.B. and D.L., on behalf of minor children, N.B. and K.L., Agency Dkt. No. 284-11/13.

Dear Parties:

Upon review of the Petition of Appeal filed in connection with the above captioned matter, and based upon the respondents' failure to submit an Answer to the petition that complies with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5, I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioner.

On November 18, 2013, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1 et seq. claiming that minor children N.B. and K.L. were not entitled to attend school in the District in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. A copy of the Petition of Appeal was served upon both O.B. and D.L. on November 19, 2013, together with an acknowledgment of filing and notice that an Answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because O.B. and D.L. failed to respond to the initial notice, on December 12, 2013 a second notice was sent to the respondents – via certified and regular mail – clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition of Appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter may be decided on a summary decision basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). The certified mail return receipt card indicates that the December 12, 2013 notice was delivered to O.B. on December 23, 2013. The certified mail return receipt card for D.L. was returned because the certified mail form contained the wrong zip code for D.L.[1] The December 12, 2013 notice that was sent via regular mail with the same zip code was not returned.

[1] The Office of Controversies and Disputes used the zip code for D.L. that was provided by counsel for the petitioner.

New Jersey Is An Equal Opportunity Employer • Printed on Recycled Paper and Recyclable

Based on the fact that the certified mail return receipt card for D.L. indicated that the wrong Trenton zip code was used, the office of Controversies and Disputes directed the petitioner to re-serve the petition of appeal on D.L. at 16 Oak Lane, Trenton, New Jersey 08618. On April 15, 2014, the petitioner served the petition of appeal on D.L. via regular mail. On April 22, 2014 an Amended Acknowledgement was sent to the parties providing notice that an Answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because D.L. failed to respond to the April 22, 2104 notice, on May 19, 2014 a second notice was sent to D.L. – via certified and regular mail – clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition of Appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter may be decided on a summary decision basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). Although the copy sent via certified mail was returned indicating that the notice was unclaimed, the notice sent via regular delivery was not returned as undeliverable.

In the meantime, on December 30, 2013, O.B. personally delivered a handwritten letter to the Office of Controversies and Disputes in connection with this matter. This letter did not include proof of service on the petitioner in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(d), nor did O.B. provide a phone number where he could be reached. In the December 30, 2013 letter, O.D. stated that D.L. – the mother of N.B. and K.L. – lives at 16 Oak Lane in Trenton.

On January 6, 2014, a letter was sent to O.B. informing him that he was required to provide proof of service on the petitioner, and that he had to provide a phone number where he could be reached. O.B. did not respond to the January 6, 2014 notice. Because he failed to respond to this notice, the Office of Controversies and Disputes sent another notice to O.B. on January 30, 2014, informing him that he was required to provide proof of service on the petitioner and that he had to provide a phone number where he could be reached; further, if he failed to supply that information within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter may be decided on a summary decision basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e).

To date, no Answer has been filed on behalf of D.L., and O.B. has failed to file an Answer that is in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3. Accordingly, petitioner's claim that N.B. and K.L. were not entitled to attend school in the District in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. is deemed admitted. It is hereby ordered that O.B. and D.L. reimburse the petitioner $16,407.60 in tuition costs for N.B.'s and K.L.'s ineligible attendance in the District from December 12, 2012 to June 20, 2013.[2]

AGENCY DKT. NO. 265-9/15

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF BARBARA SHANLEY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, the parties' proposed Settlement Agreement, and the signed acknowledgment of respondent that the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners, have been reviewed.

The Commissioner finds that the proposed Agreement – a term of which is respondent's resignation from employment in petitioner's district – is consistent with the established standards governing settlement of tenure matters contained within In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, and as incorporated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the proposed Settlement Agreement as the final decision in this case – with one caveat. Several sections of the Agreement indicate that certain actions by the parties may have already taken place and, therefore, preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

Accordingly, the Commissioner's adoption of the proposed Settlement Agreement as the final decision in this case is contingent upon the parties' successful implementation of the settlement terms, or their agreement to mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement. A copy of this decision and its underlying record shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as that body deems appropriate.

Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Geoffry Portale, School District of the City of Bridgeton, Cumberland County, Agency Dkt. No. 285-9/15.

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the record in the contested case entitled In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Geoffry Portale, School District of the City of Bridgeton, Cumberland County, Agency Dkt. No. 285-9/15. The record includes the District's request to withdraw the tenure charges filed in this matter based upon the fact that the respondent pled guilty to possession of paraphernalia, and has been disqualified from employment with the District. In light of this information, I find that no purpose would be served by further proceedings in this matter.

Accordingly, I approve the dismissal of the tenure charges with prejudice and dismiss the matter as a contested case before me. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

Sincerely,

David C. Hespe

BEFORE JOHN F. RUSSO, JR., ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 4, 2014, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures on the settlement agreement.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

This Agreement is made by and between Petitioner, Kirk Ponton, and the Respondent, Ewing Board of Education ("Board").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about October of 2014, Respondent Ewing Board of Education determined that, based on the results of a residency investigation, minor student N.C. was not domiciled in the Ewing School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District and passed a resolution ordering the removal of the students from the District; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner thereafter commenced an administrative action to challenge the Board's residency determination with regard to N.C.; and

WHEREAS, this administrative action is captioned K.P. o/b/o N.C. v. Ewing Board of Education, and is presently pending before the Commissioner of Education in the Office of Administrative Law and docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDU 15887-14, Agency Dkt. No. 328-

11/14 ("the Litigation"), the allegations of which are detailed more fully in the Petition of Appeal served and filed in the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, in order to avoid the expense, inconvenience, distractions and inherent uncertainties associated with continuation of this dispute, and the fees and expenses that inevitably would result therefrom, the Parties, by this Agreement, herein agree to adopt a full and final settlement of any and all claims, lawsuits, complaints, and/or disputes between Petitioners and Respondent in connection with any and all damages and losses arising from the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. The Parties mutually agree that, during the pendency of the residency investigation, N.C. was found by the Board not to be domiciled in Ewing, but rather, in Trenton, New Jersey.
2. Petitioners shall pay the Board the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00), representing back tuition due and owing for the period of N.C.'s ineligible attendance in the District during the 2013-2014 and 2014-2015 school years and which shall constitute a full and final settlement of the claim for back tuition asserted against Petitioners by Respondent Board of Education in the Litigation.
3. The amount of $1,000 is to be paid in the form of a check made payable to the "Ewing Board of Education," hand-delivered or mailed to the office of Dennis Nettleton, School

4. The payment shall become due immediately, and will be paid within 30 days of the date of this Agreement, or upon approval of the Agreement by the Administrative Law Judge and Commissioner of Education, whichever is later. Payments received by the School Business Administrator after the 30th day following the payment due date shall incur a late fee of $50.00. Any payment and late fee not received by 30 days thereafter shall constitute a default by Petitioner and a breach of this Agreement. Petitioner will receive receipts for the payment from the School Business Administrator.

5. Petitioner, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agree to a withdrawal and/or dismissal, with prejudice, of their Petition of Appeal in this matter.

6. Petitioner further understands and agrees that, if they fail to make a payment in accordance with this Agreement, the entire remaining unpaid amount shall immediately become due and owing, payable in a single lump sum.

7. Petitioner further agrees to indemnify Respondent for any and all costs, including court costs and attorneys fees, associated with any action instituted by Respondent to enforce the terms of this Agreement should Petitioner breach the Agreement and/or fail to adhere to the agreed-upon payment plan.

8. The terms of this Agreement shall in no way constitute acceptance or assent by the Board that N.C., nor any other child of Petitioner, as may be applicable, is automatically entitled to a free public education in the District at any point in the future, and the Parties understand and agree that Respondent reserves the right to investigate N.C.'s and/or Petitioner's residency status in the District at any time should same become necessary to do so, in order to determine whether or not Petitioner and/or his child(ren) remain domiciled in the District.

9. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Ewing Board of Education. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.

10. In exchange for the above consideration, Respondent Ewing Board of Education agrees to release Petitioner from any and all claims, cross-claims, counterclaims, demands, liabilities, damages, indebtedness, costs, attorneys' fees, actions or obligations of any nature, which solely arise out of or are related in any way to this Litigation, through the date of this Agreement and agrees to the withdrawal/dismissal of any counter-claim for tuition payments, through the date of this Agreement.

11. This Agreement shall not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by any party and no party shall be considered to be a prevailing party for any purpose.

12. This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

13. Petitioners hereby represent that he is freely entering into this Agreement, that he was advised of his right to obtain counsel of his choosing and has knowingly waived that requirement, and that he has read and fully understand the contents and effects of this Agreement.

14. This Settlement may be subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that such approval is necessary, the terms of this Agreement shall not be binding until said approvals are received.

15. This Agreement shall be binding upon all parties hereto, and shall inure to the benefit of each of them, as well as their respective estates, heirs, legal representatives, successors, predecessors, parent companies, subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, directors, officers, shareholders, members, employees, agents and assigns.

16. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement by the parties with respect to the subject matter of this Agreement, and there are no agreements, undertakings, restrictions, representations or warranties as between the parties other than those set forth herein. This Agreement supersedes all previous arrangements or understandings, whether written or oral, and contains the entire agreement of the parties with respect to its subject matter. This Agreement may be modified or amended only by written agreement jointly executed by the Petitioners and Respondent.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Agreement, consisting of six pages, effective on the day and year first above written.

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DOCKET NO. 1314-208
AGENCY DOCKET NO. 3-4/15A

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION	:
OF THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
JENNIFER CORNINE BY THE	:	DECISION
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS.	:

Order of Suspension by the State Board of Examiners, March 12, 2015

For the Respondent-Appellant, Stephen B. Hunter, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Frederick H. Wu, Deputy Attorney General (John Jay Hoffman, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey)

Appellant challenges the determination of the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (Board) that her actions warranted the suspension of her Teacher of Television Production Technology Certificate of Eligibility and Teacher of Television Production Technology certificate for three years. On appeal, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to suspend her certificates was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Specifically, the appellant argues that the Board acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner when it failed to consider mitigating factors, as set forth in In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). (Appellant's brief at 2-14) For example, the appellant contends that if her teaching certificates are suspended, she "is facing the loss of her employment career because of the effects of a bipolar disorder that was not diagnosed until several months after the February 15, 2013 incident that resulted in the [a]ppellant being charged with endangering the welfare of a child by driving under the influence of alcohol." (Id. at 9-10) Appellant offers a comparison between herself and another case that she contends is analogous to hers, in which the Board withdrew its Order to Show Cause upon completion of probation – thus imposing no punishment on the teaching staff member. (Id. at 10-13) Additionally, the appellant asserts that she had never previously been the subject of any disciplinary action and consistently received excellent evaluations and observations during her fifteen-year teaching career. (Id. at 8-9) Appellant further points out that Timothy McCorkell, Superintendant of Monmouth County Vocational School District, submitted a certification that praised the quality of appellant's teaching and supported the continued employment of appellant within the District. (Id. at 14)

Moreover, the appellant argues that if she had been afforded a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), she would have had the opportunity to present testimony as to the mitigating circumstances related to her arrest and mental health condition, as well as to the status of her probationary period. (Id. at 15-19) Therefore, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to suspend her certificates for three years should be reversed, or in the alternative, the Commissioner should remand the matter for a full hearing before the OAL. (Id. at 20)

In opposition, the Board maintains that the decision to suspend the appellant for three years was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and it should be affirmed by the Commissioner. (Board's brief at 15-19) The Board stresses that its decision to suspend appellant's teaching certificates for three years was grounded in competent evidence and warrants deference. (Ibid.) The Board further maintains that the appellant was afforded due process, as appellant's underlying conduct was not in dispute, and she was given the opportunity to present evidence as to her sanction both in writing and in person. (Id. at 9-15) Moreover, the Board contends that the appellant's appeal is untimely and should be dismissed.[1] (Id. at 8-9)

[1] Following the Board's meeting on January 23, 2015, appellant became aware that her teaching certificates would be suspended for three years, and subsequently filed a motion for a stay and an appeal on February 12, 2015. See

In reply, the appellant submitted new information indicating that after the Board issued its decision, her three year probationary period ended in July 2015 – approximately a year and a half early – and that her charges had since been dismissed. (Appellant's reply brief at 1-2) Appellant also explains that she was selected to represent the State of New Jersey at a program held by the National Council for Behavioral Health. (Id. at 2) Appellant asserts that this additional information should be considered in addition to the mitigating circumstances that were previously presented to the Board. (Id. at 3)

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).

Initially, the record reflects that the appellant was afforded the necessary due process throughout the proceedings before the Board. Although the matter was not transmitted to the OAL,[2] the appellant was given an opportunity to submit a written brief for the Board's consideration and she also appeared before the Board to present evidence on mitigating circumstances in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c).

After full consideration of the record and all submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct. It is undisputed that the appellant drove while intoxicated with her minor daughter in the car, hit a parked car, and

N.J.A.C. 6A:4-3.3. The Board's decision was issued and stayed on March 12, 2015. Although the appeal preceded the Board's March 12, 2015 written decision – rather than being filed within thirty days after issuance of the Board's decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2 – the notice of appeal necessarily accompanied appellant's motion for a stay, which appellant sought to file prior to the implementation of the Board's decision. Considering the circumstances, a relaxation of the rules is warranted, and the Commissioner will consider the instant appeal. See N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.4.

[2] The Board exercised its discretion under N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.7 and determined that it was not necessary to transmit the matter to the OAL because there were no material facts in dispute.

was accepted into a Pretrial Intervention program after being charged with endangering the welfare of a child. The Board's determination in connection with the characterization of appellant's behavior as unbecoming conduct is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law. There is nothing in the record to suggest that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and as a result the Commissioner finds no basis upon which to disturb the decision Board's decision that appellant is guilty of unbecoming conduct.

With respect to the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner remands the matter to the Board for consideration of the additional information provided by appellant, specifically the early completion of appellant's probation. Such information is relevant to the Board's determination of the appropriate sanction, but was not available at the time of the Board's decision.

Accordingly, the decision of the State Board of Examiners is affirmed in part for the reasons expressed therein and remanded to the Board for the limited purpose of determining the appropriate penalty, as indicated herein.[3]

DECISION STAYED

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
JENNIFER A. CORNINE	:	ORDER OF SUSPENSION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 1314-208

At its meeting of July 15, 2014, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed information received from the Criminal History Review Unit (CHRU) and the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office regarding Jennifer A. Cornine. In December 2013, Cornine was accepted into a Pretrial Intervention program (PTI) for three years after having been charged with Endangering the Welfare of a Child-Duty for driving under the influence of alcohol with a child in her car. Cornine currently holds a Teacher of Television Production Technology Certificate of Eligibility, issued in December 1997 and a Teacher of Television Production Technology certificate, issued in August 2002. Upon review of the above information, at its meeting of July 24, 2014, the Board voted to issue Cornine an Order to Show Cause as to why her certificates should not be revoked.

The Board sent Cornine the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on July 24, 2014. The Order provided that Cornine must file an Answer within 30 days. The certified copy was returned as "Undeliverable as Addressed" and the regular mail copy was not returned. After securing a new address for Cornine, the Board re-sent the Order by regular and certified mail on August 14, 2014. Cornine responded on September 15, 2104. In that Answer, Cornine stated that she taught Television Production in the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District from 2000 until 2006 and had been a teacher in the Monmouth County Vocational School District since September 2006. (Answer, ¶¶ 2, 3). She noted that she had received consistently positive observations and performance evaluations and had many accolades as a television production educator. (Answer, ¶¶ 3, 4). Cornine recounted that, in the fall of 2012, she began to experience severe agitation and depression. (Answer, ¶ 6). She sought out treatment and began seeing a doctor who diagnosed her with depression and prescribed Zoloft. (Answer, ¶ 8). Cornine noted her condition worsened and the doctor continued to increase the dosages of her medication and also prescribed something to calm her. (Answer, ¶ 9). She was hospitalized on February 11, 2013 as she was trying to find another doctor to treat her. (Answer, ¶ 9). Cornine noted that the combination of the two medications seriously affected her health and judgment. On February 15, 2013 she stated that she was severely agitated and had consumed several alcoholic beverages to calm her nerves. She decided to exercise hoping to alleviate her anxiety and drove to the Manasquan River Reservoir to go running with her 12-year-old daughter. (Answer, ¶ 10). Cornine admitted that this was an act of "gross negligence" and added that she now recognizes she was in "a hypomania state." (Answer, ¶ 10). On the drive home, Cornine turned into a side street and hit a parked car. She had her daughter call home and while waiting for her husband to arrive, Cornine said a man came out of his house and called the police to report the accident. (Answer, ¶ 11). Cornine failed the field sobriety test and was brought to the police station. She was later transferred to the hospital and then released to her husband later that night. (Answer, ¶ 12). Cornine then entered a residential treatment facility and later directly enrolled in outpatient treatment where she was correctly diagnosed with Bipolar 2 and placed on medication that completely alleviated her symptoms. (Answer, ¶¶ 12-14). She added that she was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention program (PTI) and added that she has abided by all of the terms of PTI, including visits with her psychiatrist for medication management and her community service, which she also continued even after the PTI requirements were satisfied. (Answer, ¶¶ 16-17). Cornine took full responsibility for her actions and offered the extenuating circumstances for her lapse in judgment. (Answer, ¶ 19). She added that her Superintendent allowed her to continue teaching and she did so without incident for the remainder of the 2012-2013 school year and the 2013-2014 school year as well. (Answer, ¶ 14). Cornine noted that the revocation or suspension of her certificates would have a devastating financial impact on her family and be disruptive to her students. (Answer, ¶¶ 23, 24). Cornine also submitted letters of support/reference with her Answer.

Thereafter, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.7(e), on October 3, 2014, the Board sent Cornine a hearing notice by regular and certified mail. The notice explained that it appeared that no material facts were in dispute. Thus, Cornine was offered an opportunity to submit written arguments on the issue of whether the conduct addressed in the Order to Show Cause constituted conduct unbecoming a certificate holder, as well as arguments with regard to the appropriate sanction in the event that the Board found just cause to take action against her certificates. It also explained that upon review of the charges against her and the legal arguments tendered in her defense, the Board would determine if her offense warranted action against her certificates. Thereupon, the Board would also determine the appropriate sanction, if any. Cornine submitted a Hearing Response on November 3, 2014.

In her response, Cornine argued that one incident, which did not involve her employment and was the product of a previously undiagnosed psychological disability that had since been properly treated and remediated, should not form the basis for adverse action against her certificates. (Hearing Response, p. 8). Cornine added that she had not been convicted of any criminal offense and was not required to surrender her teaching certificate as a precondition to entering PTI. She added that she had had an exemplary teaching career and had the full support of her Superintendent and her family. (Hearing Response, p. 11). Accordingly, Cornine asked that the Board take no adverse action against her certificates. Cornine also asked to appear before the Board and offer testimony.

In testimony before the Board, Cornine's attorney stated that in the summer of 2012, before the incident happened. Cornine was happy with her life: she had outstanding teacher evaluations and wonderful relationships with her students. He added that a childhood trauma had affected her relationships with family members, but it was remarkable how she had responded. In her testimony, Cornine noted that in October 2012 she developed anxiety and depression as her daughter reached the same age she had been when she was sexually assaulted as a child. She reiterated much of her history as noted in her Answer and Hearing Response regarding the incident at issue. Cornine acknowledged that she could not go back in time but she could learn from this and help others. She claimed she was a better educator with more empathy. Cornine added that she had students depending on her guidance for college applications and that the television studio was under renovation. She also noted that health insurance was vital to her condition and a suspension or revocation of her certificates would end her career. She argued that "when we make mistakes we can choose another path and make amends-it is never too late to start over."

The threshold issue before the Board in this matter, therefore, is whether the conduct underlying Cornine's admission into PTI constitutes conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. At its meeting of January 23, 2015, the Board considered the allegations in the Order to Show Cause, Cornine's Answer, her Hearing Response and her testimony. The Board determined that no material facts related to Cornine's offense were in dispute since she never denied that she had engaged in the conduct charged. Thus, the Board determined that summary decision was appropriate in this matter. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.7(h). It is therefore ORDERED that the charges in the Order to Show Cause are deemed admitted for the purpose of this proceeding.

The Board must now determine whether the conduct underlying Cornine's charges, as set forth in the Order to Show Cause, represents just cause to act against her certificates pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5. The Board finds that it does.

The Board may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5. "Teachers... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. Moreover, the Commissioner has long held that teachers serve as role models for their students. Cornine's conduct in driving while intoxicated and medicated with her daughter in the car demonstrates behavior that falls short of the role model status expected of teachers.

Furthermore, a teacher's behavior outside the classroom may be relevant in determining that person's qualifications and continued fitness to retain her certificate. In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 30 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd. 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). Moreover, unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). Accordingly, the Board finds that Cornine's indictment for Endangering the Welfare of a Child-Duty provides just cause to take action against her certificates. However, because the court saw fit to allow Cornine entry into PTI, with a resulting dismissal of her conviction upon its successful completion, the Board believes that a suspension of her teaching certificate, rather than revocation, is appropriate. Nonetheless, due to the serious nature of Cornine's actions, a three-year suspension of her certificates is warranted here.

Accordingly, on January 23, 2015, the Board voted to suspend Cornine's certificates for a period of three years. On this 12th day of March 2015 the Board formally adopted its written decision to suspend and it is therefore ORDERED that Jennifer Cornine's Teacher of Television Production Technology Certificate of Eligibility and her Teacher of Television Production Technology certificate be suspended effective this day. It is further ORDERED that Cornine return her certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure and Certificates, PO Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

ORDER ON EMERGENT RELIEF
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 14813-15
AGENCY DKT. NO. 294-9/15

A.S. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD M.S., Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOMERSET HILLS REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,
Respondent.

A.S., petitioner, pro se

Cherie Adams, Esq., for respondent (Adams, Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, LLC, attorneys)

BEFORE ROBERT BINGHAM II, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner A.S. applies for emergent relief seeking a stay and reversal of the decision of respondent, Somerset Hills Regional School District, Somerset County, (the District) to move his son, M.S., from eighth-grade algebra to seventh-grade algebra. On September 22, 2015, petitioner filed an appeal of the District's action with the Commissioner of Education, along with an application for emergent relief. On September 23, 2015, the emergent-relief application was filed with the Office of Administrative Law. On September 29, 2015, the parties filed written briefs and proposed exhibits.[1] On September 30, 2015, oral arguments were heard and the record for petitioner's emergent-relief application was closed.[2]

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

M.S. is newly enrolled in the District (2015–16 school year) and currently attends seventh grade at the District's Bernardsville Middle School, having attended sixth grade in the Warren Township School District (Warren), where he was enrolled in a pre-algebra math course.[3] At or about the time of enrollment, petitioner requested that M.S. be placed in an eighth-grade algebra course because he had done exceptionally well, receiving straight A's, in the sixth-grade pre-algebra course (P-4; P-11)[4] and there was no need for him to repeat pre-algebra in seventh grade.[5] On or about September 2, 2015, petitioner met with the District's superintendent and assistant superintendent relative to M.S.'s placement. Consequently, it was understood between the parties—if not agreed—that (1) M.S. would begin matriculating in the eighth-grade algebra course, (2) he would be administered a math assessment to determine his math proficiency and preparedness for the eighth-grade algebra course, and (3) he would be "dropped down" or placed in a seventh-grade honors math course if he did not receive a score of at least 80 percent. (R-1; Resp. Cert. of Jennifer Shouffler.)

[1] In submitting his legal brief, petitioner combined his legal argument with a notarized statement of facts (styled Amended Petition and Motion for Emergent Relief, and referred to here as "Pet. Cert. of A.S."), which was accepted in lieu of a certification in support of his (original) emergent-relief application.

[2] Petitioner submitted a pre-marked exhibit packet, organized by page numbers, which was appended to his notarized statement of facts/legal brief. All of petitioner's exhibits were entered in evidence but references were to the actual page numbers. The exhibits, as marked and referenced herein, correlate to those page numbers, as reflected in the Appendix.

[3] Petitioner became a resident of the District in or about July 2015 and, despite an initial issue regarding enrollment and petitioner's notice of potential legal action (P-5), M.S. was enrolled in the District in September 2015.

[4] P-4 and P-11 are at pages 5 and 21, respectively, of petitioner's exhibit packet.

[5] According to documentation in the record, the District does not offer algebra in the seventh grade.

On or about September 15, 2015, after being granted a week to prepare (R-1), M.S. took the assessment and received a score of 74.4 percent.[6] Therefore, the District decided to place M.S. in seventh-grade honors math, effective September 24, 2015. On or about September 16, 2015, petitioner again met with the superintendent, who indicated that the District "would be willing to move [M.S.] back up [into eighth-grade algebra]" if he does well in seventh-grade honors math. Based upon the meeting, petitioner had the view that the parents could submit written input as to "how to move forward." (Pet. Cert. of A.S.)

On Sunday, September 20, 2015, the parties exchanged emails regarding M.S.'s status. (P-8.)[7] On that morning, Superintendent Wood notified the parents that M.S. would be placed in seventh-grade honors math beginning Tuesday, September 22, based upon his score of 74.4 percent, rather than the 80 percent needed for placement in the algebra class. Later that afternoon, petitioner responded, advocating (1) continued placement in eighth-grade algebra, with tutoring if necessary, (2) additional testing for eighth-grade standards to best determine any supplemental education required, and (3) monitoring of M.S.'s performance in eighth-grade algebra through the first semester, with a downgrade to seventh-grade math and supplemental instruction if there was insufficient performance. On September 21, 2015, petitioner received confirmation that the seventh-grade honors math placement would occur the next day.

Accordingly, on that evening petitioner explained to M.S. that he would be moved into the seventh-grade math class. By the following morning, petitioner observed that M.S. was tired and quite upset, and petitioner decided to take him to a hospital emergency room.[8] But there is no evidence that he required medical treatment, either

[6] Petitioner questions the objectivity and accuracy of the testing and has not yet had the opportunity to have the test evaluated by a mathematics expert.

[7] P-8 is at page 17 of petitioner's exhibit packet.

[8] According to petitioner, M.S. had slept poorly, felt nauseous and anxious, and petitioner perceived that M.S.'s heart was "racing." Out of an abundance of caution, petitioner took him to the emergency room.

as a result of his academic status or otherwise. On the same day, September 22, petitioner filed his appeal and the instant application for emergent relief.

In the current placement, seventh-grade honors math, M.S. is exposed to both seventh- and eighth-grade math skills through a "differentiated instruction" methodology, used in advanced-level and honors courses, that offers pedagogical flexibility to afford more sophisticated levels of instruction according to students' respective levels of learning. (Resp. Cert. of Jennifer Shouffler.) As indicated above, the District is willing to review M.S.'s progress in the current class and advance him to matriculate in algebra if he demonstrates adequate mathematical proficiency.

Having reviewed and assessed the documents in evidence, I FIND the above relevant FACTS.

Petitioner challenges the Board's placement decision and seeks placement in eighth-grade algebra, together with costs and fees. The issue is whether, based upon the evidence in the record, petitioner is entitled to the emergent relief sought, namely, placement in eighth-grade algebra, together with costs and fees.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted "[w]here authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case." Further, the standard for emergent relief was set forth by our Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132–35 (1982): The judge may order emergency relief if the judge determines from the proofs that (1) the petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted, (2) the legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled, (3) the petitioner has a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim; and (4) when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the relief is not granted. The moving party must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe v. DeGioia standard to establish an entitlement to emergent relief.

The New Jersey Constitution guarantees a fundamental right to a free public education, Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). The Commissioner has consistently held that local boards of education may promote or place students in public-school grade levels according to their own rules and regulations. Shenkler v. Ho-Ho-Kus Bd. of Educ., 1974 S.L.D. 772, aff'd, 1975 S.L.D. 1157; Boulogne v. Bd. of Educ. of Jamesburg, 1964 S.L.D. 107.

Petitioner contends that he meets all of the criteria for emergent relief. As to the first prong, M.S. will be irreparably harmed if allowed to "languish" in seventh-grade math class because his health, social status (freedom from ridicule), self-esteem, and once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for adequate education will be adversely impacted. Second, the legal right underlying his claim is well-settled because (1) M.S. is entitled to a thorough and efficient education, (2) transfer students must be treated the same as "similarly situated pupils" and (3) regulations governing the education of gifted-and-talented students require the provision of "appropriate instructional adaptations and services." Third, there is a substantial likelihood of prevailing on the merits because (1) the District's decision was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, and improperly motivated,[9] (2) policy and practice equitably estops the District's action,[10] and (3) M.S.

[9] On this point, petitioner first contends that the District unreasonably disregarded pertinent facts regarding: M.S.'s demonstrated excellence in math, including pre-algebra grades and "perfect" N.J. ASK scores; unavailability of a natural progression to algebra in seventh grade; teacher input; and the ability of petitioner's older daughter to naturally progress in the District without repeating pre-algebra. Second, the District's action is retaliatory based upon on related legal and ethical proceedings, including petitioner's notice of claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress, as well as a proposed ethics complaint against Board members. Third, the District's treatment is based upon improper motive because, in addition to the foregoing: (1) the District rushed to demote M.S. rather than wait a few days until the outcome of the instant proceeding; (2) the District demoted M.S. without an educational enrichment plan; (3) District staff made inappropriate comments relative to petitioner's residency status and requested his tax-return information from the Board; (4) District investigators generated a report that was intentionally misleading or grossly negligent regarding his residency status; (5) the District improperly considered the anticipated reaction of other parents; (6) the District likely sought to avoid compensatory education for its lack of programming in the seventh and eighth grades; and (7) the math assessment test taken by M.S. was graded by the assistant superintendent who, essentially, was subjective, and the District has not afforded an opportunity for petitioner to have the test graded by his own math expert.

[10] On this point, petitioner contends that transfer students (like M.S.) must be treated the same as similarly situated pupils, citing school policy/practice based on the experience of his other children, who were not tested on enrollment after having previously taken pre-algebra. Additionally, transfer students seeking to enroll in algebra after successful completion of pre-algebra do not take a test, as evidenced by the District's initial placement of M.S. in the eighth-grade algebra class.

is entitled to academic enrichment as a "gifted and talented" student.[11] Fourth, in balancing the equities, M.S. would sufferer the greater harm if not granted the relief requested because of the harm to M.S. stated above versus the fact that there is no cost or adverse impact to the District.

Respondent contends that there is no likelihood of irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted. Further, petitioner can establish neither a well-settled legal right underlying his claim, nor a likelihood of prevailing on the merits, because (1) the District has broad discretion and authority to develop curricula and determine the appropriate program and placement for its students, and (2) regulations governing the District's responsibility to provide "gifted and talented" students with appropriate instructional adaptations and services is irrelevant to the relief sought, and, in any event, the current placement does not violate that requirement. Finally, a balance of the equities and interests of the parties does not weigh in favor of petitioner.

Irreparable harm

Harm is irreparable when there can be no adequate after-the-fact remedy in law or in equity, and monetary damages cannot adequately restore a lost experience. Nabel v. Bd. of Educ. of Hazlet, EDU 8026-09, Final Decision (June 24, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>; Tomlin v. Lower Cape May Reg'l Bd. of Educ., EDU 4952-09, Final Decision (June 22, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. Notably, the irreparable nature of the harm and the degree or severity of the harm are two separate factors. See, e.g., M.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Ewing, EDU 4949-09, Final Decision (June 15, 2009), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

Petitioner contends that M.S. will be irreparably harmed if allowed to "languish" in seventh-grade algebra because time spent there cannot be recouped. Any compensatory instruction in a subsequent grade would impede him even more at that point and disrupt the natural progression of his education. Further, there is an emotional harm and injury to self-esteem, as M.S. takes great pride in his work and has been the target of ridicule by school peers. Additionally, his health suffered when, after sleeping poorly, he felt nauseous and anxious on the morning that he was to begin honors math, and petitioner—who perceived that that M.S.'s heart was "racing"—cautiously took him to the emergency room. However, petitioner admits that "the extent of harm remains unknown." (Pet. Cert. of A.S.) What is more, the District has indicated that if M.S. shows sufficient proficiency in seventh-grade honors math, he can be placed back into the eighth-grade algebra class.

Clearly, the degree to which M.S. has suffered any harm at all does not foretell the irreparable nature of any such harm, proof of which must be imminent and concrete, not speculative. I therefore CONCLUDE that the evidence is insufficient to show that M.S. will suffer irreparable harm if the relief sought is not granted.

Settled law underlying petitioner's claim and likelihood of success on the merits

The law is well-settled that the District has broad discretion to take the actions needed to effectively operate its public schools. Indeed, "the well established rule [is] that action of the local board which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of W. Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) (citations omitted). Thus, the Commissioner will not overturn the decision of a local board in the absence of a finding that the action below was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. T.B.M. v. Moorestown Bd. of Educ., EDU 2780-07, Initial Decision (February 6, 2008), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> (citing Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581(1966)). Our courts have held that "[w]here there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached." Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199–200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974). Thus, the petitioner must demonstrate that the Board acted in bad faith, or in utter disregard of the circumstances before it. T.B.M.

v. Moorestown, supra, EDU 2780-07, Initial Decision (February 6, 2008), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>.

Petitioner has failed to show that M.S. has a legal right to be placed in the eighth-grade algebra class or that he has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of this claim, because the District has broad discretion and there is insufficient evidence that it acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in exercising its discretion not to place M.S. in the eighth-grade algebra class. As noted above, generally, a school district "may promote or place pupils enrolled in the public schools for its district according to the prescription of its own rules." Shenkler v. Ho-Ho-Kus, supra, 1974 S.L.D. at 776–77 (citations omitted). While it is unclear whether the Board has a specific written policy regarding the promotion of a student to a particular course of study at a higher grade level, the exhibits show that petitioner acceded to the Board's decision to base M.S.'s math placement on the outcome of his performance on a "Math Grade 7 – End of Course Assessment," and that both parties further understood that M.S. would be placed "in Algebra for the start of school with the understanding that he will be dropped down [to pre-Algebra] if he does not properly assess" at 80 percent or above. (Resp. Cert. of Jennifer Shouffler; R-1.)

Petitioner has not proved that the District improperly exercised its discretion in declining to promote M.S. when he scored a 74.4 percent on the math assessment. Instead, petitioner makes numerous speculative allegations, without competent corroborative evidence, regarding the arbitrariness of the Board's decision to place M.S. in the seventh-grade math class due to his failure to attain a score of at least 80 percent on the assessment.

Likewise, petitioner has failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits based upon his equitable-estoppel claim because he has not presented sufficient evidence of an established District policy or practice to promote students to a higher-grade math class, without a test, or that he relied on this alleged practice to his detriment. In order "[t]o establish a claim of equitable estoppel, the claiming party must show that the alleged conduct was done, or representation was made, intentionally or under such circumstances that it was both natural and probable that it would induce action," and "the conduct must be relied on, and the relying party must act so as to change his or her position to his or her detriment." Miller v. Miller, 97 N.J. 154, 163 (1984) (citations omitted). With respect to this claim, petitioner again makes a number of allegations without competent evidential support. For example, he has not offered any proof beyond mere assertion that the District's policy or practice allows higher-grade placement.[12]

Finally, petitioner has failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits based upon his claim that M.S. is entitled to enrichment as a gifted-and-talented student and the District merely placed him in an honors math class based on an assessment of his math skills. Again, there is insufficient proof that M.S. is entitled to placement in eighth-grade algebra and that the District's decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has established neither a well-settled legal right underlying his claim, nor a likelihood of success on its merits.

Balancing of the equities

Finally, a balancing of the equities militates against granting the relief sought by the petitioner. Though M.S. clearly has a fundamental right to a free public education, the District bears a heavy responsibility for the design and delivery of appropriate educational curricula and instruction. That responsibility includes working to ensure that, considering State educational standards, there are no gaps in a student's education. Indeed, M.S. will have the opportunity to take eighth-grade algebra next year, or perhaps even this year. Further, the parties had a clear understanding—if not an agreement—that M.S. would be placed in seventh-grade honors math if he did not achieve a score of 80 percent. Where, as here, the student has not yet clearly demonstrated the proficiency required to sustain matriculation in a higher-grade's course, it cannot be said that a balance of the equities weighs in favor of granting the relief sought by petitioner, particularly when he acceded to an arranged demotion for an insufficient score. Under these circumstances, the District stands to suffer the greater harm because it has a strong and legitimate interest in the effective operation of its schools and the delivery of appropriate educational services with which it is tasked.

[12] Petitioner's assertion is that his other children were similarly situated to M.S. and were placed in a higher-grade math class without having to test prior to that placement.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that a balance of the equities and interests of the parties does not indicate that petitioner will suffer the greater harm if the requested relief is not granted.

Based upon all of the above, and considering that petitioner must meet all four of the applicable criteria for emergent relief, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's motion for emergent relief must be DENIED.

ORDER

Therefore, it is hereby ORDERED the petitioner's request for emergent relief is DENIED.

This Order disposes of only the issues raised in petitioner's application for emergent relief.

The matter will be scheduled for a telephone prehearing in the near future regarding the plenary hearing. Notices will be sent to the parties under separate cover.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with the Petition for Declaratory Ruling in the matter captioned Clara Brito Herrera v. Board of Education of the Town of West New York, Hudson County and Monica Tone, Interim Executive County Superintendent, Hudson County, Agency Dkt. No. 296-9/15. Therein, petitioner seeks: a declaratory ruling that a lifetime tenured assistant superintendent cannot have her salary reduced upon promotion to superintendent in the same school district; an order directing the Executive County Superintendent to approve a new contract for petitioner with an annual salary equivalent to the one she had as assistant superintendent; and an order directing the Board to restore petitioner's annual salary to the prior amount.

Please be advised that I have determined not to consider this matter as one for declaratory ruling, pursuant to my discretionary authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a). I find, instead, that this matter should proceed as a Petition of Appeal.

Accordingly, this matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioners have failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in *Crowe v. David B. Rubin, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: October 26, 2015 Decided: October 28, 2015

BEFORE JOHN P. SCOLLO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, L.C. and P.C. are the parents of L.C., a teenager, who while attending Sayreville Memorial High School, was charged with various criminal offenses, which eventually resulted in an adjudication of delinquency, with L.C. being found guilty of downgraded charges of simple assault [N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1 (a) (1)] and disorderly conduct [N.J.S.A. 2C:33-2 a].

Petitioners, L.C. (father) and P.C. (mother) previously filed a petition for emergent relief, challenging the actions of the Sayreville Board of Education for failing to hold a hearing regarding L.C.'s long term suspension from the Sayreville Public School System. That petition (EDU-13570-2015) was heard and decided by Michael Antoniewicz, ALJ on September 10, 2015. On September 28, 2015 the Commissioner of Education adopted Judge Antoniewicz Order and found that the parties should proceed at the OAL to a plenary hearing, or such other proceedings as the ALJ and the parties may determine, to resolve that claim on the merits.

In the petition before the court at this time the Petitioners, whose son, L.C., has transferred into Piscataway High School, seek emergent relief by way of a proposed Order compelling the Piscataway Board of Education to immediately rescind its decision to preclude L.C. from participating in sports at Piscataway High School.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on October 15, 2015 for emergent relief. Oral argument was held on October 26, 2015, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the underlying facts as set forth in the pleadings, certifications and supporting documents filed for and in opposition to the application, I FIND:

(1) L.C. is currently living with his uncle, Jeffrey C., in Piscataway, NJ under a Custody Order wherein L.C.'s parents remain as custodians of L.C., but with the addition of Jeffrey C. as an additional custodian of L.C. By virtue of being a resident of his uncle's household in Piscataway, L.C. attends Piscataway High School.

(2) On October 10, 2014, L.C., along with at least five other teenage boys, was charged with Conspiracy to Commit Aggravated Criminal Sexual Contact, Aggravated Assault and Hazing by the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office. On August 7, 2014 L.C. was found guilty of downgraded charges of Simple Assault [N.J.S.A. 2C: 12-1(a)(1)] and Disorderly Conduct [N.J.S.A. 2C: 33-2a] by Superior Court, Chancery Division, Juvenile Part Judge James F. Hyland, J.S.C.

(3) During the process of L.C. transferring from Sayreville Memorial High School to Piscataway High School, officials (Assistant Superintendent Frank Ranelli and Superintendent Teresa M. Rafferty] of Piscataway High School became aware that an incoming transfer student named L.C. was a former Sayreville Memorial High School football player. When the normal two-week time for L.C.'s academic and discipline records was exceeded, Superintendent Rafferty conferred with Piscataway High School's legal counsel, David Rubin. Attorney Rubin contacted the legal counsel for Sayreville Memorial High School and learned from Sayreville's legal counsel that L.C.'s disciplinary records sent by Sayreville to Piscataway were not the complete records. Subsequently Sayreville's legal counsel sent Rubin a copy of an October 14, 2014 letter by which Sayreville informed L.C.'s parents that L.C. was on suspension from school and from extracurricular activities and sports due to allegations of various criminal behavior against fellow students, including assault.

(4) On September 30, 2015 Superintendent Rafferty issued her decision to enroll L.C. as a student at Piscataway High School, but to preclude L.C. from participation in Piscataway High School's sports programs. Superintendent Rafferty's decision was based on a number of factors, including possible action against Piscataway High School's NJSIAA eligibility in light of L.C.'s convictions on charges of Simple Assault and Disorderly Conduct. To date, L.C. remains precluded from participation in sports at Piscataway High School.

(5) As a result of Superintendent Rafferty's September 30, 2015 decision, the Petitioners requested a hearing before the Piscataway Board of Education.

(6) During an exchange of e-mails on October 1, 2015 between Petitioners' counsel and Respondent's counsel regarding the format of the upcoming October 8, 2015 hearing, Petitioners' counsel were told that they "will be given an opportunity to present whatever information you wish the Board to consider". There were no restrictions written in the e-mails regarding witnesses and the ability to ask questions.

(7) On October 8, 2015 L.C.'s attorneys presented arguments on his behalf as to why he should be permitted to participate in the school's sports program. L.C. himself made a brief presentation to the Board. Superintendent Rafferty was present at the hearing.

(8) Petitioners, in seeking to lift the preclusion of L.C.'s participation in Piscataway High School sports, also rely in part upon an August 1, 2015 letter from the football coach of Temple University, which grants an athletic football scholarship to L.C. I FIND that the scholarship grant contains conditions, which go beyond the issues of this case.

PETITIONERS' CONTENTIONS AGAINST PISCATAWAY B.O.E.

Petitioners' counsels' contentions against the Piscataway Board of Education and its officials (notably Superintendent Teresa M. Rafferty) [hereinafter "Piscataway", "BOE", or "Rafferty"] are, for the most part, as follows:

(A) Petitioners are entitled to emergent relief from Rafferty's September 30, 2015 decision, which precluded L.C. from participation in high school sports.

(B) Piscataway was wrong to preclude L.C. from participation in high school sports on account of accusations made against him while a student in Sayreville, especially since Sayreville was apparently willing to sign transfer papers.

44(C) Piscataway's decision to preclude L.C. from high school sports was a decision that was arbitrary and capricious because it was based on speculation, innuendo and was otherwise lacking in reliable, factual support.

(D) Piscataway's preclusion of L.C. from high school sports was a penalty which went beyond the penalties prescribed in Piscataway's Code of Conduct, and thus was unreasonable.

(E) Piscataway's decision to preclude L.C. from high school sports directly interferes with L.C.'s ability to obtain an athletic scholarship for college.

(F) The October 8, 2015 Piscataway BOE Hearing did not afford L.C. due process in that L.C. bore the burden of proving his innocence rather than Piscataway bearing the burden of proving that its decision was reasonable.

RESPONDENT'S CONTENTIONS

(A) Respondent contends that in order for the Petitioners to be granted emergent relief, they must satisfy all four "Crowe" prongs. See Crowe v. DiGioia, 102 N.J. 50 (1986).7

(B) Respondent challenges the factual and legal underpinnings of Petitioners' arguments.

(C) Piscataway's decision to preclude L.C. from participating in high school sports is permissible under Piscataway's Code of Conduct due to L.C.'s conviction on an assault charge.

(D) Petitioners are collaterally estopped from re-litigating the issues of irreparable harm and interference with L.C. ability to obtain a college athletic scholarship.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The applicable standard for the grant of emergent relief was summarized by Judge Bass in L.A., o/b/o R.A. v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 14241-11, Agency Dkt. No. 347-11/11 (Order Denying Emergent Relief, December 1, 2011), a case that also involved exclusion from participation in high school football. In that case Judge Bass said:

> In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted "where authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case . . . ."

I will deal first with the issue of whether this case calls for emergent relief. This case is governed by the standard for emergent relief set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 102 N.J. 50 (1986). Again referring to her decision in L.A., Judge Bass said:

> The judge may order emergency relief . . . if the judge determines from the proofs that:
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted.
>
> 2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled.
>
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim; and
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the relief is not granted.

The moving party must satisfy all four of the above-listed "prongs" of Crowe v. DeGioia in order to establish an entitlement to emergent relief. Id. at 132-35.

In regard to the first of the Crowe "prongs", harm is irreparable when there can be no adequate after-the–fact remedy in law or in equity; or where monetary damages cannct adequately restore a lost experience. Nabel v. Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, EDU 8026-09 (June 24, 2009); Tomlin v Lower Cape May Regional Board of Education, EDU 4952-09. Petitioners view L.C.'s participation in high school sports as interfering with his ability to obtain a college athletic scholarship. As Judge Antoniewicz observed in Petitioner's prior application for emergent relief, L.C. and P.C. on behalf of L.C. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County, filed under OAL Docket Number EDU-13570-2015, the Petitioners could assert a monetary claim to recoup the loss of a scholarship. Thus the harm, if any, is not irreparable.

In regard to the second of the Crowe "prongs", petitioners must demonstrate that the law is settled in their favor. In this case there are competing merits (i.e. issues of fact) that prevent petitioners from demonstrating that they are entitled to a ruling in their favor. At the hearing an oft-made accusation from the petitioners against Piscataway was that Superintendent Rafferty made her September 30, 2015 decision based on innuendo, on unreliable accounts of alleged misconduct by Sayreville football players gleaned from newspapers. Petitioners also took Rafferty to task for having Piscataway's legal counsel contact Sayreville's legal counsel rather than contacting Sayreville school personnel herself. Petitioners also took Rafferty to task over her alleged refusal to speak directly with L.C.'s family. The Respondent took issue with the petitioner's allegations, factually and legally, leaving the matter unsettled.

In regard to the third of the Crowe "prongs", the petitioners must demonstrate that there is a likelihood, not merely a chance, that they will succeed on the merits of their underlying claim. At the hearing, however, the petitioners produced little factual evidence to support their allegations that Superintendent Rafferty reached her decision because she wanted to punish L.C. for his alleged involvement in criminal conduct in Sayreville, or that Rafferty had no reasons grounded in fact to preclude L.C. from participation in high school sports in Piscataway. Respondent, for its part put forth the protection of Piscataway's athletic program from possible accusations of NJSIAA eligibility rule violations as her primary reason for precluding L.C. from participation in Piscataway High School's sports program. Superintendent Rafferty also stated, as a reason for precluding L.C., that L.C.'s family claimed that L.C. had been "fully exonerated" of all criminal charges, only to find out that he was, in fact, found guilty of Disorderly Conduct and Simple Assault. Rafferty stated that if a Piscataway student had been found guilty of an assault arising out of his participation in Piscataway High School's sports program, she would have precluded him from participation. All this indicates that the petitioners cannot assuredly say at this time that they have a likelihood of success on the merits.

In regard to the fourth of the Crowe "prongs", the equities and interests of the parties must be weighed. In order for the petitioners to prevail on their claim for emergent relief, they must show that they will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the emergent relief is not granted. The petitioners produced an August 1, 2015 letter from the Temple University football team's head coach conditionally offering L.C. an athletic scholarship and they emphasized that the coach needed to know more about L.C. actual playing experience in order to fulfill the conditions placed on the scholarship offer. Petitioners' claim for emergent relief largely hinges on this point. Petitioners made their point that if L.C. doesn't get the opportunity to play football during the current, ongoing season and to participate in other sports later on, L.C. loses his opportunity to obtain the athletic scholarship. Over against this argument is the respondent's argument that if Piscataway were to let L.C. participate in sports, the danger can and would arise that the NJSIAA might find Piscataway in violation of its rules and thus the school's entire school sports program could be penalized and with it the hopes and dreams of other Piscataway High School athletes would be jeopardized.

From all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Petitioners have not satisfied the four "prongs" of the Crowe case. First, petitioners have not demonstrated irreparable harm since they may recover monetarily and thus the harm would not be irreparable. Second, the petitioners have not demonstrated that the legal rights underlying their claims are settled. Rather, there is sufficient evidence that the facts are unresolved. Third, both sides have honest differences to put forth and it cannot be said that there is a likelihood, not a mere chance, that petitioners will succeed on the merits. Fourth, while both sides seek to safeguard their own respective interests, the petitioners have not demonstrated that the potential for harm is greater for L.C. than it is for the Piscataway sports program as a whole. It cannot be said at this time that the petitioners have established that Piscataway acted arbitrarily or capriciously or with improper motives when Superintendent Rafferty issued her September 30, 2015 decision. I further CONCLUDE that emergent relief cannot be granted at this time.

The petitioners contend that L.C. has been denied due process in that at the October 8, 2015 hearing, L.C. had the burden of proving his innocence rather than the BOE having the burden of providing reasons for his preclusion from the sports program. In order to establish a violation of due process claim, the petitioner would first have to establish that a fundamental right exists. The respondent points to well-settled case law that stands for the proposition that playing interscholastic sports is not a constitutionally-protected right. Angstadt v. Midd-West School Dist., 377 F.3d 338, 344 n.2 (3d Cir. 2004); Palmer v. Merluzzi, 689 F. Supp. 400, 405-412 (D.N.J. 1988), af'd, 868 F.2d 90 (3d Cir. 1989); Hardy v. University Interscholastic Athletic League, 759 F.Supp. 1233 (5th Cir. 1985). Moreover, Respondent asserts that there is no right to a prior hearing before a school board. Dennis v. Holmdel Board of Education, 1977 S.L.D. 388 (1977). I CONCLUDE that the petitioners have failed to set forth a valid violation of due process claim.

The petitioners contend that Superintendent Rafferty's September 30, 2015 decision was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and punitive. As mentioned above, the respondent set forth its reasons underlying Rafferty's decision. Again referring to the L.A. case, Judge Bass, in denying emergent relief to another set of high school football players, said:

> The law is well settled in favor of the Board, which has broad discretion to take the actions needed to effectively operate its public schools. The Commissioner will not overturn the decision of a local board in the absence of a finding that the action below was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. T.B.M. v. Moorestown Bd. of Educ., EDU278007, Initial Decision(February6,2008)<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, citing Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581(1966). The Commissioner will not substitute his > judgment for that of the board of education, whose exercise of its discretion may not be disturbed unless shown to be "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

I CONCLUDE that the main reason stated by Superintendent Rafferty for precluding L.C. from the sports program, namely her concern that L.C.'s participation in the sports program could affect the school's NJSIAA eligibility, was a valid factor in her decision-making process. It was not arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, nor punitive.

The petitioners contend that under the Piscataway BOE's Code of Conduct, L.C.'s convictions for violation of N.J.S.A. 2C: 12-1(a) (1) (Simple Assault) and N.J.S.A. 33-2a (Disorderly Conduct) warrant only "a one-week suspension and up to a fifteen-day suspension from the athletic program." [Attorney Howard's Reply Certification, dated October 22, 2015] Attached to that Reply certification are Exhibit 'A' and Exhibit 'C', which are taken from the Piscataway BOE's Code of Conduct.

A review of the aforementioned sections of the Code of Conduct reveals that for a first Disorderly Conduct offense by a high school student the consequences include only "Parent notification" and "Detention".(See Exhibit "A".) However, for a first Assault offense by a high school student the consequences include "Parent notification", "Long-term suspension", "Police notification", and "Possible expulsion". (See Exhibit "C".) Moreover, at the top of Exhibit "C" we read the following:

> "These consequences are the minimum for the infraction listed; however, the building principal or Administration may enhance the penalty as necessary, in the reasonable exercise of their discretion, to reflect the severity of the offense. In exercising discretion whether to enhance the minimum penalty, the Administration may consider the entirety of a student's disciplinary record throughout his or her enrollment in the school system, to the extent relevant to the proper consequence for the infraction at hand."

I see, therefore, that the Code of Conduct contemplates more than what counsel has asserted. It is also noteworthy that the language of the Piscataway BOE's Code of Conduct reaches to the student's disciplinary throughout the school system. It would be only logical, in the case of students who transfer-in from another district, that records from the sending district would be used in the disciplinary process of the receiving school. Therefore, the Code of Conduct contemplates officials of the receiving school to take into consideration a student's prior conduct at a prior school. Applied to the case at bar, Piscataway would be within its rights to consider L.C.'s disciplinary record from Sayreville High School when exercising its discretion regarding his participation in the school's sports program.

I CONCLUDE that Piscataway could validly consider L.C.'s disciplinary record from Sayreville High School when deciding whether he could or could not participate in the Sports program at Piscataway High School.

For the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner's request for emergent relief, namely the immediate recession of the September 30, 2015 decision of Superintendent Rafferty, must be denied.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' request for emergency relief is hereby DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioners in this matter – members of the Board of Education of the City of Englewood, elected in April 2013 – filed an appeal challenging both a July 2013 advisory opinion from the School Ethics Commission (SEC) that asserted the existence of various conflicts of interest based upon the petitioners' current and former employment, and the alleged actions of the Board in restricting the petitioners from participating in various Board-related activities subsequent to the issuance of the SEC advisory opinion. Petitioners filed their appeal with the Commissioner in September 2013, but were notified in October 2013 that the petition was deficient as it failed to name a respondent. Subsequently, petitioners filed an amended petition on September 23, 2014 – approximately one year after filing the original petition. The Board contended that the petition was late filed, and no reasonable explanation exists that would warrant the relaxation of the 90-day limitation period for the filing of an appeal.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, an appeal must be filed within ninety days day from the receipt of the notice of a final agency action; petitioners argument that their amended petition "relates back" to the original petition, thus tolling the ninety-day rule, is without merit; on its face, the amended petition filed in September 2014 continues to be defective as it speaks only to the fact that petitioners disapprove of the Advisory Opinion of the SEC, but contains no specific allegations against the Board; and if petitioners wish to submit another petition, only alleged instances of actions taken by the Board within the previous ninety days from the filing date of the new petition may be pleaded. The ALJ concluded that the within appeal was untimely, and accordingly granted the respondent Board's motion to dismiss. Further, the ALJ ordered that any new petition filed by petitioners must contain "specific allegations" and "essential facts" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4, and focus only on acts that occurred within 90 days of the petition.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the instant petition is appropriately dismissed as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), and found that the issue raised by the ALJ in his Initial Decision regarding the sufficiency of the factual allegations within the petition – and any amendments thereto – need not be ruled upon in the final decision. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

CAROL FEINSTEIN AND JUNIUS CARTER III,	:
PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record in this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the parties' exceptions – filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – have been reviewed.

Upon full consideration of the record and the parties' submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that the instant petition is appropriately dismissed because it was filed outside the 90-day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). The regulation provides, in pertinent part: "The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education...which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing."

In Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, the Supreme Court discussed the importance of the 90-day rule as a means to prevent litigation of stale claims, to penalize late claims, and to lend a sense of "security and stability to human affairs." Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1992). The Court further emphasized: "When a plaintiff knows or has reason to know that he has a cause of action against an identifiable defendant and voluntarily sleeps on his rights so long as to permit the customary period of limitations to expire, the pertinent considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar his action." Ibid. (quoting Farrell v. Votator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1973)).

Feinstein and Carter filed a Petition of Appeal naming the Board as a respondent[1] in September 2014 - thirteen months after the alleged Board action at issue – i.e., the restriction of petitioners' participation at Board meetings[2] – first occurred. (Feinstein Certification in Opposition to Motion to Dismiss, ¶ 8, March 11, 2015 and Carter Certification in Opposition to Motion to Dismiss, ¶ 9-10, March 11, 2015.) Here, it is not the School Ethics Commission's release of Advisory Opinion A13-13 that triggered the beginning of the 90-day filing period, but rather the first instance of Board action adverse to petitioners. According to petitioners' own certifications, the alleged restriction of petitioners' participation by the Board began in August 2013.

Petitioners deemed their September 2014 submission an "Amended Petition of Appeal" in a long overdue attempt to relate it back to a defective petition first received September 17, 2013; however, the 2013 petition was never opened or docketed, as it failed to name a respondent.[3] Instead, petitioners were notified of the filing deficiency via letter from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes dated October 7, 2013 and advised of the need to amend their petition to include a respondent. Contrary to what is asserted in petitioners'

[1] Petitioners also named Robert W. Bender, Chairperson of the School Ethics Commission, as a respondent. However, prior to transmittal of this matter to the OAL, the Commissioner granted Bender's motion to dismiss the allegations against him for lack of jurisdiction.

[2] The Board denies the allegations.

[3] The defective Petition took issue with the substance of Advisory Opinion A13-13, issued by the School Ethics Commission at the request of respondent Board.

exceptions, the Director had no obligation to remind counsel of the applicability of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) to these circumstances. Since the instant Petition naming the Board as a respondent was not received until almost a year after the deficiency letter was sent, it is appropriately viewed as a stand-alone, new petition without any relation back to the defective 2013 submission. See Gringeri v. Bd. of Educ. of Ramapo-Indian Hills Reg. High Sch. Dist., 88 S.L.D. 158 (1988). Therefore, the Commissioner finds the instant Petition to be untimely.

The Commissioner further finds that petitioners failed to set forth any compelling reason for relaxation of the timely filing requirement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16. Although petitioners asserted before the ALJ – and again in their exceptions – that the continuing violation doctrine is applicable here, the Commissioner disagrees as the instant matter does not concern a statutory or contractual entitlement. Bd. of Educ. of Borough of Alpha v. Alpha Educ. Ass'n, 190 N.J. 34, 43-48 (2006). Furthermore, petitioners offer no explanation for the failure to amend their defective 2013 petition in a timely manner. And while petitioners' exceptions posit that – as a matter of public policy – the voters of Englewood who elected petitioners are also suffering harm in light of petitioners' alleged inability to participate in certain Board activities, and that, therefore, the Commissioner should be dissuaded from dismissing the petition, said argument is undercut by petitioners' inexplicable delay in filing a petition naming the Board as a respondent. In addition, any person – including a concerned voter – may file a complaint with the School Ethics Commission if he or she believes that a Board member's conduct has violated the School Ethics Act. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.; thus, the public is not without an appropriate remedy.

Finally, petitioners misinterpret the applicability of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.7 to the present circumstances; that regulation does not grant petitioners carte blanche to amend their petition at any point in time – and in complete disregard of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) – nor does it require the Commissioner to deem dilatory amendments as "relating back" to defective petitions filed twelve months earlier.[4] See Gringeri, supra, 88 S.L.D. 158 (1988).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as modified, only insofar as the issue of timeliness is concerned.[5] Consequently, respondent's motion to dismiss is granted, and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[6]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 11/09/15

Date of Mailing: 11/09/15

[4] Had petitioners chosen to amend the defective petition within a reasonable timeframe, the Commissioner could have exercised discretion in permitting the amendment to relate back to the original submission for purposes of determining a filing date. Nonetheless, the circumstances presented here do not warrant such a result.

[5] Because the Commissioner has determined to dismiss the Petition of Appeal for failure to comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), the issue raised by the ALJ in his Initial Decision concerning the sufficiency of the factual allegations within the petition, and any amendments thereto, need not be ruled upon herein.

[6] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1) and applicable Appellate Division rules.

AGENCY REF. NO. 293-9/14

CAROL FEINSTEIN AND JUNIUS CARTER III,
Petitioners,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for Petitioners (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Mark A. Tabakin, Esq., for Respondent (Weiner, Lesniak, attorneys)

BEFORE LELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was originally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 29, 2015, as a contested case. This matter arises from an appeal filed by petitioners with the State of New Jersey Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). Petitioners were both elected to the Englewood Board of Education (Board) by the citizens of the district. Upon being sworn in, the Board requested an advisory opinion from the School Ethics Commission (SEC), in an attempt to detect any conflicts of interest that may exist, given petitioners' current and former employment. An advisory opinion was subsequently issued, asserting that various conflicts of interest did in fact exist, and that petitioners should therefore be barred from participating in a multitude of essential Board-related activities.

Petitioners filed an appeal challenging both the advisory opinion and the actions of the Board, who had allegedly restricted petitioners from participating in various Board-related activities, subsequent to receiving the advisory opinion. The Director of the New Jersey Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (Director) notified petitioners that their appeal was procedurally deficient and required that it be modified prior to being processed. Petitioners did not file an amended petition until a year later. Both the Board and the SEC moved to dismiss the amended petition. The Commissioner granted the SEC's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction. However, the Commissioner transmitted the Board's motion to the Office of Administrative Law on January 29, 2015, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15.

On February 23, 2015, the Board filed a Motion to Dismiss, on the grounds that the petition violates the ninety-day rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). On March 17, 2015, petitioners filed a Brief in Opposition to the Motion. On July 10, 2015, the undersigned directed the parties to submit supplemental briefs specifically addressing the issue of jurisdiction, and directing petitioners to state where in the Amended Petition specific claims were alleged against the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4, or to provide a legal basis for the undersigned to retain jurisdiction.

FACTS

The following facts are undisputed: petitioners Carol Feinstein (Feinstein) and Junius Carter (Carter) were both elected to serve three-year terms on the City of Englewood Board of Education (Board), and they were sworn in as board members in April 2013. At the time of her swearing in, Feinstein was employed by the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA), and she currently holds the position of "field representative." Additionally, Feinstein had taught for several years in the Englewood school system, and is a past president of the Englewood Teachers Association. At the time of his swearing in, Carter was employed by Bergen County Special Services (BCSS), and he retains the position presently. In April 2013, petitioners were allowed to participate fully in all Board-related matters.

On June 14, 2013, the general counsel for the Board contacted the Chairperson of the SEC and requested that they issue an advisory opinion in an attempt to identify any possible conflicts of interest that may exist, given both Feinstein's and Carter's employment. Both Feinstein and Carter were aware of this request. The SEC then issued an advisory opinion, which recommended, inter alia, that both Feinstein and Carter should be forbidden from being involved in numerous school board functions, given their employment status. The SEC determined that:

> [T]he new members' employment positions may severely diminish the Board's ability to conduct much of its business. In many ways, we cannot now know all of the conflicts the Board may confront. For the present, however, the new Board members' involvement in the ongoing negotiations while still employed by the NJEA and BSS, respectively, violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a), (c), (d) . . . . Even if the new Board members were to resign from their positions and divest themselves of all connection with their employers, they would still be prohibited from involvement in the instant negotiations and a great deal of future activity. The prohibition includes, but is not limited to, labor relations, issues with the Association, grievances, teacher contracts, salary guides, and development.
> [Advisory Opinion, Tabakin Cert. Ex. D.]

The parties disagree, however, as to what the effects of the advisory opinion actually were. Petitioners argue that during subsequent Board meetings they have been forced to leave the room on numerous occasions, and have been restricted from voting on several Board-related issues. (Feinstein Cert. ¶ 10; Carter Cert. ¶ 10.) The Board vehemently denies these allegations, and insists that "[T]he board has not in any way acted to exclude petitioners." (Resp't's Br. 7:10-11 (March 20, 2015).)

In September 2013, petitioners appealed both the SEC's advisory opinion and the Board's alleged actions to the New Jersey Commissioner of Education. Petitioners aver that "the opinion is fundamentally unconstitutional and undemocratic." (Petition of Appeal, Tabakin Cert. Ex. E.) They therefore requested that "the Commissioner reverse the opinion of Chairperson Bender dated July 31, 2013, and authorize both Feinstein and Carter to participate fully in all discussions and voting, unless there exist a specific, direct and current violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24." (Ibid.)

On October 7, 2013, the Director informed petitioners that the petition was deficient, since it failed to clearly name a respondent. ("Letter of Dispute," Tabakin Cert. Ex. F.) Although no deadline for filing the appeal was given, the Director informed Petitioners, via the letter, that "[T]his matter will not move forward until the requested amended petition is received." (Ibid.)

On September 23, 2014, petitioners filed an amended petition approximately one year after filing the original petition. The amended petition against the advisory opinion was dismissed by Commissioner, who explained that "advisory opinions are only opinions and do not amount to final agency decisions that are appealable," and therefore even if the Board did act upon the recommendations of the advisory opinion, that act "does not render such opinion a final decision of the School Ethics Commission which is appealable to the Commissioner." (Ibid.) The Board's Motion to Dismiss, which claims a violation of the ninety-day rule, was not granted nor addressed, though the Commissioner confirmed that the matter is in fact litigable, by stating that:

> With respect to the claims made against the Board in the petition of appeal, I find that those claims are properly before the Commissioner of Education. It is clear from the record that there is a factual dispute as to whether the Board is limiting the petitioning board members' ability to participate in certain Board discussions and votes. Therefore, those claims arise under the school laws – which are squarely within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education . . . the motion to dismiss filed by the Board is hereby denied and that portion of the case will be transferred to the Office of Administrative Law.
> [Commissioner's Letter, Tabakin Cert. Ex. H.]

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Generally, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, the Commissioner of Education has the authority to hear and determine "all controversies and disputes arising under school laws." Prior to the Commissioner deciding a contested issue however, a petitioner must create a petition of appeal that meets specific requirements, which are delineated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4. The petitioner must additionally serve the petition upon each named respondent, as per N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(a). Critically, the petitioner must file the appeal within ninety days "from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3. This rule has become colloquially known as the "90 Day Rule," the application of which has been asserted in the instant matter.

Ninety-Day Rule

The Board contends that the lack of the word "timely" or a specific stated deadline in the letter of deficiency is not dispositive, and that petitioners are still bound by, and have violated, the ninety-day rule. The Board argues further that the Supreme Court of NJ held that there is a two-pronged public policy approach regarding the ninety-day rule. First, the ninety-day rule is meant to "stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims." Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993) (quoting Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co., 90 N.J. 108, 112 (1982)). Further, the ninety-day rule is intended "to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose by giving security and stability to human affairs." Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 587 (quoting Farrell v. Votator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1973)). The Board argues that not applying the ninety-day rule here will violate both of these public policy purposes, since allowing the amended motion to proceed will in turn allow the litigation of "stale claims" to occur, and it will additionally fail to penalize the petitioner's "dilatoriness," in filing the amended petition.

The Board additionally references E.G.M. ex. rel J.M. v. Board of Education of Mahwah, EDU 02119-13, Initial Decision (April 9, 2013), affirmed, (Commissioner of Education May 21, 2013), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, and De Mario v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, EDU 6991-10 Initial Decision (April 17, 2013), affirmed, (Commissioner of Education May 11, 2013), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, to support its contention that petitioners should be barred from filing the amended petition, as per the ninety-day rule. In both cases, Petitioners initially filed a deficient appeal, and failed to submit the perfected appeals within the requisite ninety days, as per N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Both petitions, respectively, were summarily dismissed for being untimely, and the Board contends that the instant matter should therefore be dismissed as well.

Petitioners in the instant matter contend that this case is factually unique, and thus their amended petition should not be subject to the ninety-day rule. Petitioners attempt to distinguish the present facts from E.G.M. and De Mario since when the respective petitioners in those cases were notified that their initial petitions were deficient, the letters of notification each stated that "the necessary filings must be timely submitted." E.G.M., supra, EDU 02119-13; De Mario, supra, EDU 6991-10(emphasis added). In the instant matter, in the October 7, 2013, letter from the Director informing petitioners of their deficient appeal, there was no mention of the appeal being "timely," nor was there any deadline given for a proper submission. Petitioners therefore assert that this fact distinguishes those cases from the instant matter, and thus exempts them from the ninety-day rule.

The Board opines that no reasonable explanation exists which would warrant a relaxation of the rules. In regard to school law, the Commissioner of Education has discretion, and has the ability to "relax" the rules, if he/she feels that applying them in a particular set of circumstances might be unjust, as per N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16. The Board contends that since the original and subsequent amended petitions are nearly identical, aside from a few insignificant words, and request indistinguishable prayers for relief, that a relaxation of the rules in this case is not appropriate.

Petitioners counter, inter alia, that given the facts of the case, the procedural history, and the "absence of any prejudice to the board," relaxation of the ninety-day rule is warranted in this circumstance. Petitioners additionally reference the Supreme Court's decision in Ridgefield Park Education Association v. Ridgefield Park Board of Education, 78 N.J. 144 (1978), which exhibited the importance of the public's involvement in running successful public schools. Petitioners claim that the Board is interfering with this vital system, and that a relaxation of the rules is therefore necessary, due to pressing public policy concerns.

The Board contends that the instant matter is analogous to Gringeri v. Board of Education of Ramapo-Indian Hills, 88 S.L.D. 158, 166 (1987), and thus the amended petition cannot "relate back" to the original petition. In Gringeri, a citizen of a particular county was attempting to bring tenure charges against the school's superintendent, filed a deficient petition, and failed to file the amended petition for 128 days, which violated the ninety-day rule. Gringeri argued that his amended petition "relates back to his earlier submissions," and therefore the ninety-day rule was not violated. Administrative Law Judge Weiss dismissed that argument, and explained that although courts should be liberal regarding amendments, the "relate-back" doctrine "should not be used to overcome deficiencies which are patent on their face." Id. at 166. The Board therefore argues that petitioners should also therefore be barred from use of the relate-back doctrine.

Petitioners insist however that their amended petition "relates back" to the original petition, thus tolling the ninety-day rule. Petitioners additionally distinguish the precedent set by Gringeri, arguing that it "does not contain a general bar on amended pleadings 'relating back,'" and that the instant matter is distinguishable. (Pet'r's Br. 6:2-3 (March 16, 2015.).)

Lastly, the Board fervently denies ever taking any action to prevent petitioners from fully participating in the Board meetings, and alleges that the "petitioners have failed to advance even one scintilla of proof to corroborate their self-serving statements." (Resp't's Br. 6:10-11 (March 20, 2015.).) The Board additionally posits that Board of Education of Alpha v. Alpha Education Association, 190 N.J. 34 (2006), cited by petitioners, is distinguishable from this case, since the former dealt exclusively with issues involving collective bargaining, and has no relation to the instant matter.

In their brief, petitioners contend that ever since the SEC's advisory opinion was issued, the Board has forcibly removed them from every meeting that has taken place, and additionally prohibits them from voting on Board-related issues. Since these actions have allegedly taken place at nearly every board meeting, petitioners argue that such actions constitute a "continuing violation," and thus the ninety-day clock is in essence "reset" after every board meeting. Petitioners cite to Alpha, which they say provides the precedent for the "continuing violation" doctrine.

The Board posits that given both of the public policy considerations in Kaprow and the cases that strictly apply the ninety-day rule, petitioners' amended appeal should be dismissed, despite the letter of deficiency which lacked the word "timely," and failed to provide a deadline for submission. Generally, the ninety-day-rule clock is set in motion by a "ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). The Board's alleged actions which prohibited petitioners from participating in numerous Board meetings would therefore likely have triggered the ninety-day countdown. However, since the petition fails to reference a specific occasion or date upon which such alleged behavior occurred, the ninety-day rule was never triggered.

Under the relevant school laws, petitioners have generally been allowed to freely amend their pleadings

> Unless precluded by law or constitutional principle, pleadings may be freely amended when, in the judge's discretion, an amendment would be in the interest of efficiency, expediency and the avoidance of over-technical pleading requirements and would not create undue prejudice.
>
> [N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2(a)]

This principle was additionally evident in Roberts v. Keansburg Board of Education, 5 N.J.A.R. 208, 250 (1983) in which Administrative Law Judge Glickman held that "it is clear that under our own rules, a pleading may be amended at anytime, even after presentation of proofs." .

In this matter, the Commissioner of Education did not rule on the Board's motion to dismiss the amended petition as a violation of the ninety-day rule. The Commissioner dismissed the part of the petition which appealed the SEC's advisory opinion. Further, the Commissioner opined that "[w]ith respect to the claims made against the Board in the petition of appeal, I find that those claims are properly before the Commissioner of Education . . . those claims arise under the school laws – which are squarely within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education." (Commissioner's Letter, Tabakin, Ex. H. (emphasis added).)

I CONCLUDE that no specific allegations were claimed in the petition against the Board. I further CONCLUDE that if petitioners wish to submit a new petition following this Order, only alleged instances of actions taken by the Board that occurred within the previous ninety days may be pleaded. This follows the Kaprow directives, by ensuring that no "stale claims" will be litigated, and that blatant "dilatoriness" will not go unpunished. This course will additionally be consistent with the directive of the Commissioner.

Pleadings

On its face, the Amended Petition of Appeal filed by petitioners continues to be defective. A proper petition of appeal has several required elements, all of which must be completed for the matter to proceed. One of these criteria is that the petitions provide "a statement of the specific allegation(s) and the essential facts supporting them which have given rise to a dispute under the school laws." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4. Within the four corners of both the original and amended appeals, however, petitioners failed to identify any "specific allegations" against the Board. At no point in the petition of appeal do petitioners expressly allege that the Board prohibited them from participating in any Board-related matter, nor does it state that the Board forcibly removed petitioners from a board meeting, as asserted in their brief. However, the petitioner's brief does contain these allegations:

> The Board relied on this opinion in taking action to severely restrict the participation of Feinstein and Carter in Board activities and discussions, starting with the first meeting after the opinion was issued, in August 2013. Whereas prior to the advisory opinion Feinstein and Carter were able to fully participate in Board matters, subsequent to the opinion they have been required to leave the room and are prohibited from participating or voting on all personnel matters and negotiation issues, among other topics . . . . The most recent regular Board meeting during which the Board prohibited Feinstein and Carter from participating fully and required them to leave the meeting during personnel and other discussions was held on February 12, 2015.
> [Pet'r's Br., 2:12-17; 3:9-11 (March 16, 2015).]

The rules however require the petition to have these "specific allegations," and "essential facts." See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4. The fact that the allegations are listed in the brief is legally irrelevant. Thus, the petition is not grounded in anything substantive, as there are no specific allegations listed. Even the petition's specific request for relief makes no mention of the allegations against the Board:

> Wherefore, it is prayed that the Commission reverse the opinion of Chairperson Bender dated July 31, 2013, and authorize both Feinstein and Carter to participate fully in all discussions and voting, unless there exist a specific, direct and current violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.
> [Petition of Appeal, Tabakin Cert. ¶ 6, Ex. E.]

The entire petition speaks only to the fact that petitioners disapprove of the Advisory Opinion penned by School Ethics Commission Chairperson Robert Bender. At no point does it reference any of the specific actions allegedly taken by the Board, or dates on which such actions were taken. This is mirrored in the closing prayer for relief, in which no specific action of the Board is mentioned, much less dates on which any such action was taken.

Attached to petitioners' supplemental brief filed on July 28, 2015, was a "Proposed Second Amended Petition of Appeal," which fails to allege specific actions taken by the Board to prohibit them from participating in Board-related activities. They continue to assert that "[a] key issue that must be understood about this matter is that the harm suffered by petitioners due to the Board's prohibition on petitioners' participating in certain Englewood Board of Education ("Board") matters flows directly from the advisory opinion issued by the School Ethics Commission and Chairperson Robert W. Bender dated July 31, 2013." (Pet'r's. Br., July 24, 2015.) The fact is that if the Board sought and received an "opinion" from a contracted attorney, and thereafter rendered a decision based upon that opinion, there is no automatic claim against attorneys pursuant to rules governing the Commissioner of Education's authority to hear and determine "all controversies and disputes arising under school laws." A claim would have to be made against the Board based upon specific factual allegations asserted in the petition of appeal. Petitioners' focus on the SEC opinion is misplaced. Further, they may not circumvent the decision of the Commission dismissing their claim against the SEC by asserting that the decision of the Board is inextricably connected to the SEC opinion.

Finally, I am persuaded by respondent's argument that petitioners should not be allowed to benefit from the "relate-back" doctrine because the deficiencies in the original petition of appeal, the amended petition of appeal, and the proposed second amended petition of appeal were and are patent on their face.

For the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that respondent's Motion to Dismiss should be granted.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that respondent's Motion to Dismiss is hereby GRANTED.

I further, ORDER that if petitioners file a new petition regarding these facts, it must contain "specific allegations" and "essential facts" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4, and it must be limited to acts that occurred within ninety days of the petition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Before MELISSA H. BIREN, Esq., Impartial Arbitrator

ORDER

The Orange Township Board of Education ("Board") certified tenure charges against the Respondent, Dr. Patrick C. Howell, Jr., a tenured assistant principal in the Orange Township School District, on June 29, 2015. Jessika Kleen, Esq. (Machado Law Group, LLP) filed the tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey on July 8, 2015. On August 31, 2015, the charges were referred to the undersigned Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as amended by P.L. 2012, c. 26. A timely request for an extension of time for the hearing and decision was granted. Respondent, Dr. Patrick Howell, appeared pro se.

A hearing was scheduled for October 22, 2015. By letter dated October 19, 2015 to the Board, Dr. Howell advised the Board that he was resigning his position with the Orange School District, effective October 31, 2015.

By reason of the foregoing, the tenure charges against the Respondent, Dr. Patrick Howell, are moot.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record, the proposed settlement agreement and release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed – mindful of the Commissioner's May 12, 2015 determination that the prior settlement agreement did not comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13, as it was neither signed by the Board's attorney, nor contained a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating the Interim Superintendent to sign the settlement agreement on its behalf. Since the settlement agreement now contains the signature of the Board attorney, the Commissioner can approve the within settlement agreement in its present form.

To the extent that Paragraph 7 of the settlement agreement provides for strict confidentiality, the parties are reminded that the settlement agreement may be subject to disclosure pursuant to the Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1, et seq.

Subject to the foregoing, the Commissioner approves the parties' settlement and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, which is hereby dismissed subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: October 5, 2015 Decided: October 15, 2015

BEFORE JOHN F. RUSSO, JR., ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 13, 2015, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

(J-1) Also, attached is a letter from the Board of Education attorney dated October 1, 2015 regarding the need for Board Resolution. (R-1)

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures on the settlement agreement.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Judge Russo:

This office represents the Washington Township Board of Education ("Board") in the above matter. Please allow this correspondence to serve as a follow up to the recent conversation between my office and your chambers concerning the Settlement Agreement submitted on August 27, 2015. In response to your chambers' inquiry, please be advised that the Board has not issued a resolution concerning this Settlement Agreement, and therefore none was included with the revised Settlement Agreement filed on August 27, 2015.

The Commissioner of Education's Decision issued on May 12, 2015 states that the previous Settlement Agreement could not be entered because "neither the file nor the settlement agreement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating the Interim Superintendent to sign the agreement on its behalf, nor, in the alternative, is the agreement signed by the Board attorney – who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation...." (emphasis added). The Settlement Agreement submitted on August 27, 2015 is signed by the Board's attorney, which is one of the two options outlined by the Commissioner. The Commissioner's concerns regarding the Board's approval of the Settlement Agreement have been obviated by the inclusion of the Board's attorney's signature.

I trust that the above clarifies any issues that you may have had concerning the documents submitted. Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, the parties request that this Petition of Appeal be dismissed with prejudice. George Singley, Esq., counsel for the Petitioner, and I jointly thank you for your time and consideration.

Very truly yours,

Dear Judge Russo:

This office represents the Washington Township Board of Education in the above matter. On March 26, 2015, Your Honor entered an Initial Decision recognizing and approving a Settlement Agreement jointly entered by the parties. On May 12, 2015, the Commissioner of Education entered a Decision in which he did not approve the Settlement Agreement because there was no indication that the Board of Education had authorized the settlement. The Commissioner advised that the Board either had to pass a resolution permitting the Interim Superintendent to act on its behalf, or the agreement itself must be signed by the Board's attorney, who may act on its behalf. The Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, and instructed the parties to enter a modified agreement. I am enclosing copies of both Your Honor's Initial Decision, and the Commissioner's Decision for your reference.

Attached for Your Honor's consideration is a new Settlement Agreement and Release that meets the Commissioner's criteria. The Settlement Agreement is signed by the Petitioner, M.R. o/b/o minor child, M.R., Interim Superintendent Thomas Flemming, and Joseph F. Betley, Esq., the Board's attorney. The terms of the Settlement Agreement, which had met with Your Honor's approval when previously submitted, are unchanged. The enclosed Settlement Agreement represents the full and complete agreement of the parties. Pursuant to the Agreement, the parties request that this Petition of Appeal be dismissed with prejudice.

George Singley, Esq., counsel for the Petitioner, and I jointly thank you for your time and consideration.

Very truly yours,

M. R., individually and on behalf of M. R. Jr., Petitioners, vs. WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW DOCKET NO.: EDU 13729-2014S AGENCY REFERENCE NO.: 311 10/4 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is entered into by and between M. R., individually and on behalf of his son, M. R. Jr. (collectively referred to as "Petitioners") and the Washington Township Board of Education ("Board") to resolve and settle all outstanding issues involved in this matter between the Petitioners and the Board.

WHEREAS, the Board is a local public board of education organized under Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes with its principal offices located at 206 E. Holly Avenue, Sewell, Gloucester County, New Jersey 08080; and

WHEREAS, M. R., Jr. ("the Student") attended the Washington Township High School as a freshman for the 2013-2014 school year; and

WHEREAS, the Student's father is M. R., senior; and

WHEREAS, as a result of a July 29, 2014 disciplinary hearing before the Board arising from the Student's violation of the Washington Township High School Student Code of Conduct, the Board placed the Student in an alternative educational setting, specifically the Gloucester County Alternative School ("GCAS"), for the 2014-2015 school year; and

WHEREAS, on or about September 9, 2014 Petitioners filed a Petition of Appeal and Request for Emergent/Expedited Hearing ("September 9, 2014 Petition of Appeal") challenging the Board's placement of the Student at GCAS; and

WHEREAS, on or about September 18, 2014 Petitioners withdrew the September 9, 2014 Petition of Appeal; and

WHEREAS, on or about September 23, 2014 Petitioners reinstated the September 9, 2014 Petition of Appeal and Request for Emergent/Expedited Hearing, bearing Agency Docket No. 311-10/14 and OAL Docket No. EDU-13729-2014S (the September 9, 2014 Petition of Appeal and September 23, 2014 Petition of Appeal, along with the requests for Emergent/Expedited Hearings, are hereinafter collectively referred to as "Petition of Appeal"); and

WHEREAS, on or about November 24, 2014 the Board filed an Answer to the Petition of Appeal; and

WHEREAS, after extensive negotiations, and in order to resolve any and all disputes between the Parties without resorting to time-consuming and costly litigation, the Petitioners and the Board have agreed to a full and final settlement of all claims and matters asserted in the Petition of Appeal and any claims that could have been asserted in a state or federal court proceeding that relate directly or indirectly to the Petition of Appeal; and

WHEREAS, this Agreement, and the execution and implementation of same, shall not be construed or considered an admission of liability by the Board, its present and former Board members, officers, employees, agents and servants, and said liability being expressly denied.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises and agreements contained herein, the Petitioners and the Board AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

1. The Student will continue in his placement at GCAS for the remainder of the 2014-2015 school year. Consistent with the terms of his removal from the Washington Township High School and his placement in the GCAS, the Student will not be allowed to participate in or attend any extra-curricular activities at the Washington Township Public Schools, nor will the Student be allowed on Washington Township Public Schools property, during his placement at the GCAS. Provided, however, that the Student will be allowed on School District property upon proper notice and approval of the High School administration for purposes of securing any documentation related to his anticipated re-entering Washington Township Highs School, including his participation in extra-curricular activities.

2. The Student will be eligible to return to the Washington Township High School for the 2015-2016 school year, and the Board's Administration shall recommend such return, at the conclusion of his placement at the GCAS if:

   a. The Student successfully completes his coursework at GCAS for the 2014-2015 school year;

   b. The Student successfully completes final examinations at GCAS for the 2014-2015 school year;

   c. The Student has no major attendance or disciplinary issues at GCAS during the 2014-2015 school year; and

d. The Student receives a positive recommendation from the staff at GCAS for his return to the Washington Township High School.

It is the understanding of the Parties that if the Student continues to perform at his current level of functioning at GCAS, he will meet the criteria for return to the Washington Township High School as set forth in this Agreement.

3. If the conditions set forth in Paragraph 2 of this Agreement are satisfied, the Student will have access to and be eligible to participate in summer activities at the Washington Township High School leading up to any fall sports for the 2015-2016 school year.

4. During the Student's placement at GCAS, he can submit medical and other documentation/information to the Washington Township High as required for his anticipated participation in any extracurricular activity offered by the Washington Township High School for the 2015-2016 school year.

5. Release and Waiver: The Petitioners agree to the following RELEASES AND WAIVERS:

a. For good and valuable consideration, the Petitioners RELEASE, WAIVE AND FOREVER DISCHARGE the Board (its former, present and future board members, officers, employees, agents, and servants) from any and all claims and causes of action, in law or in equity, whether known or unknown, whether asserted or unasserted, contingent or otherwise, arising from or relating directly or indirectly to M. R.'s education, placement, proposed placements, discipline, counseling, safety, and/or attendance within the Washington Township School District and any out-of-district placement. This Release and Waiver shall run from the beginning of time through the date of full execution of this Agreement.

This Release and Waiver includes, but is not limited to: (a) any and all claims asserted or which could have been asserted in the Petitioners' Petition of Appeal; (b) any and all claims asserted or which could have been asserted under the New Jersey Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act; (c) compensatory education; (d) reimbursement of any medical, behavioral, or education evaluations; (e) transportation; (f) expert witness fees; and/or (g) attorney's fees.

b. By way of further illustration, this Release and Waiver also includes, but is not limited to, any claim relating to the education of the Student in the Washington Township Public Schools and/or alleging a denial of FAPE, a denial of his safety, discrimination, state or federal constitutional rights violations, state or federal civil rights violations, monetary damages, pain and suffering, personal injury, property damage, reimbursement, attorney's fees and costs, and expert fees, claims or causes of action arising under state or federal statutes, regulations, or common law, including but not limited to the New Jersey statutes and regulations pertaining to special education, including N.J.A.C. 18A:46-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:14 et seq., the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.A.C. 10:5-1 et seq., the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C. § 1400 et seq., Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, 29 U.S.C. §701 et seq., the American with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §12101 et seq., the New Jersey Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.2 et seq., the New Jersey Constitution, the United States Constitution, and the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. §1983, §1985, and §1988, the New Jersey Civil Rights Act, and the New Jersey Tort Claims Act N.J.S.A. 59:1-1 et seq.

c. This Release and Waiver does not limit any rights or obligations herein or bar an action to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

6. Within five (5) days of full execution of this Agreement, Petitioners agree to submit said Agreement to the New Jersey Office of Administrative Law and/or the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes for dismissal of the Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

7. Miscellaneous:

a. The Parties agree to refrain from taking any actions or making any statements, oral or written, critical or otherwise, in any medium whatsoever, relating to or concerning this dispute, which have the purpose of injuring each other's reputations or causing any person or entity to refrain from or cease any employment or business relationship with each other.

b. The Parties hereby verify, affirm and represent that they have each had the opportunity to discuss the terms of this Agreement with counsel, that they understand its contents and are entering into this Agreement voluntarily and with a full understanding of its meaning.

c. M. R. represents that he has the sole authority to enter into this Agreement, and that it shall be binding as if entered into by any other parent and/or guardian of the Student not a party hereto.

d. The terms and conditions of this Agreement shall be kept strictly confidential and will not be disclosed to any individual that is not acting directly on behalf of any party.

e. The provisions of this Agreement are severable and, if any part is found to be unenforceable, the other portion shall remain fully valid and enforceable.

f. This Agreement shall be governed and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

g. This Agreement constitutes the full and complete agreement of the Parties and may not be changed or modified absent mutual written agreement of the Parties.

h. This Agreement is binding upon the Parties and their respective heirs, assigns or successors in interest.

DECISION AND AWARD ON MOTIONS TO DISMISS CHARGES I-IV

For the Respondent:

This matter comes before me on the Respondent's twin motions to dismiss with prejudice respectively Charge II and Charges I, III and IV, which, together, represent all of the tenure charges pending against Respondent. The tenure charges at issue here were filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on September 22, 2015. I was appointed the arbitrator to adjudicate this matter on October 16, 2015.

The Respondent filed two Briefs in support of its motions on October 5, 2015; Petitioner filed a Brief in opposition on November 2, 2015; and Respondent filed a Reply Brief on November 6, 2015. In the preparation and issuance of this Decision and Award I have given careful consideration to the extensive briefing by the parties including the legal authorities cited therein. For the reasons set forth below, Respondent's Motion to Dismiss Charge II is denied. Her Motion to Dismiss Charges I, III and IV is granted in part and denied in part.

MOTION TO DISMISS CHARGE II

In Charge II, consisting of two Counts, the Board charges Respondent with "Neglect, Misbehavior or Other Offense, Including But Not Limited To Unbecoming Conduct Or Other Just Cause Related to Respondent Falsifying Her Child's Residency." Specifically, in Count 1, the Board charges Respondent with falsely declaring, including in a document she executed under penalty of perjury, that during the period from July 1, 2014 to July 30, 2015 she placed her child in the care of a temporary guardian residing within the City of Elizabeth when, in fact, she and her child resided together in a home in Edison. In Count 2, the Board charges that the same facts constituted theft by deception of tuition costs in an approximate amount of $17,283.00.

Respondent moves to dismiss these charges on the basis that the Commissioner and this Arbitrator have no jurisdiction to adjudicate charges regarding student residency because the legislature provided an exclusive administrative procedure to determine these issues in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. In her briefs, Respondent makes the following additional points: (1) By failing to follow the mandatory procedures in residency cases, the Board has deprived Respondent of due process of law; further, since the process mandated by the statute provides greater procedural protections than TEACHNJ, the Board was required to provide those procedural protections to Respondent; (2) The Board failed to exhaust its administrative remedies regarding the residency violations and thus is barred from filing tenure charges based upon those issues; (3) The Board abandoned and waived its right to pursue residency claims against Respondent when it chose not to pursue statutory charges; (4) The Board admits that it exercised its discretion not to pursue residency charges against Respondent and her child because the child was in the senior year of high school; the Board has accordingly waived its rights and is estopped from taking any action against Respondent now; (5) Having decided not to invoke the state residency process, the Board cannot claim that Respondent has deprived it of tuition; the theft of service charge based upon a charge of obtaining free educational services she was not entitled to must therefore be dismissed.

In response, the Board argues that it is entitled to pursue tenure charges for conduct unbecoming for filing false statements and for theft of services, because those charges are separate and distinct from the issues of whether the Board had a right to remove Respondent's child from the school or obtain tuition for the child's year of education. In its brief, the Board makes the following additional points: (1) The statute invoked by Respondent deals with the process for determining whether a child is entitled to a free education in a particular district and, if not, whether the child will be removed or whether tuition must be collected; the statute does not concern the question at issue here, which is whether a tenured employee lied to the District, an act which is conduct unbecoming a tenured employee; further, there was no obligation on the part of the Board to pursue or exhaust administrative remedies regarding the residency issue before pursuing these entirely separate tenure charges; (2) Respondent has not been deprived of any property interest with regard to the residency issue without due process; rather, the Board exercised its discretion not to pursue those charges and permitted Respondent's child to complete its senior year without charge; (3) Respondent is now receiving all of the process to which she is due as a tenured employee; the Board never abandoned its right to bring tenure charges based upon false declarations; the Commissioner and this Arbitrator have full authority to decide whether there were false declarations and, if so, whether they constitute unbecoming conduct meriting removal of tenure.

Having considered all of these arguments and having reviewed the residency statute and the other authorities cited by the parties, I must agree with the Board that the issue of whether Respondent made false statements – and whether those false statements constitute conduct unbecoming – is properly before me. While there is certainly some factual overlap between the question of whether Respondent's child actually lived in Elizabeth and hence was entitled to a free education, and whether Respondent falsely made such a claim, the legal issues are separate and distinct. I have no jurisdiction over the question of the child's residency for the purpose of determining if it was entitled to complete its senior year without tuition. Yet, certainly the Board is entitled to pursue tenure charges based upon any tenured employee making false declarations, particularly false declarations related to the business of the Board. Here, the alleged false declaration concerned where the child resided, but whatever the subject matter of the declaration, the Board may consider that the making of false declarations is conduct unbecoming. Whether she in fact made a false statement and whether that conduct warrants the termination of her tenure are issues clearly within my purview. Accordingly, I deny Respondent's motion with respect to Charge Two, Count 1.

The count related to theft of service provides a similar, but not identical, issue. The Board appears to claim that if it proves Respondent filed a false declaration, it will also be proving that she was stealing services in the form of tuition. However, the Board actually must take some additional steps: it must prove that Respondent received services to which she was not entitled and that she did so knowingly. Theft of services could constitute conduct unbecoming an employee. It might also be a criminal offense, as, of course, filing a false statement might be. But it may require more proof than simply whether Respondent made a false declaration.

I am reluctant to dismiss any charge at this early stage if proofs may be yet presented to sustain it. Accordingly, I will not dismiss Count 2 of Charge I. Respondent may renew her motion to dismiss either or both of the counts of Charge I if the Board fails to sustain its burden going forward.

MOTION TO DISMISS CHARGES I, III AND IV

In Charges I, III and IV, the Board charges Respondent with acts of "insubordination, neglectful, flagrant and defiant refusal to comply" with Board policies, regulations and directives from supervisors over a ten-year period "commencing with the 2001-2002 school year and through the 2010-2011 school year." (Board Charges, Background Information Common to All Charges, p. 3.) In addition, the Board charges Respondent with a "longstanding pattern of chronic absenteeism and tardiness." (Id. p. 4.) Specific instances of these behaviors is set forth in the Charges over the course of ten pages, the earliest dating from November 2001 (p. 4) and the latest from June 2011 (p. 13). In June 2011 the Board adopted a Resolution adjusting Respondent's salary by withholding the 2011-2012 increment for "performance and/or attendance." Respondent filed a grievance on November 8, 2011 challenging the Board's decision to withhold her increment; the grievance was assigned to Arbitrator Jeffrey Tener for binding arbitration. However, the parties reached a settlement of this grievance, and the Board restored Respondent's increments and adjusted her salary to make her whole at its meeting on October 17, 2013.

In Charge I, the Board charges Respondent with "Neglect, Misbehavior or Other Offense, Including But Not Limited To Unbecoming Conduct or Other Just Cause Related to Repeated Acts of Dishonesty Arising From Respondent Falsifying a Document and Altering a District Records Without Authority." The specifics are spelled out in two counts: Count 1 recites an incident on or about November 4, 2010; and Count 2 an incident on or about March 18, 2011. Both of these incidents pre-date and were part of the June 2011 increment withholding decision.

In Charge III, the Board charges Respondent with "Chronic Absenteeism." There are 18 Counts within Charge III, all specifying absenteeism. Counts 1 through 14 cover the years 1996 through 2011 and were part of the June 2011 increment withholding decision. Counts 15 through 18 concern absences during the 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14 and 2014-15 school years. Those matters were not addressed in the 2011 increment withholding.

In Charge IV, the Board charges Respondent with "Insubordination, Neglect, Misbehavior and/or Other Just Cause for Dismissal, Related to a Pattern of Conduct." This charge incorporates all of the facts and charges in Counts I, II, III and IV and asserts that the conduct alleged "manifests a pattern of numerous infractions over an extended period of time" and therefore warrants a termination of Respondent's tenure and employment.

The Respondent argues that all of the charges that were addressed prior to and as part of the increment withholding in 2011 may not be the subject of further disciplinary action because (1) the doctrine of double jeopardy applies in labor relations and bars penalizing an employee for incidents that were previously the subject of discipline; (2) the Board's subsequent decision to revoke the increment withholding is an admission that the conduct did not constitute misconduct; further the revocation constitutes a waiver of the right to impose discipline; the Board is now barred and estopped from seeking discipline based on the matters raised in its pursuit of an increment withholding; the doctrines of waiver and estoppel apply in labor relations matters; (3) the principle of res judicata bars the Board from seeking further discipline based upon matters it previously settled. As to the charges of misconduct in Count III that allegedly occurred after 2011, Respondent argues that those "are extension of the recycled allegations" previously made by the Board: they are "nothing more than the Board's attempt to veil its intent to impose a double punishment" upon Respondent. (Respondent's Reply Brief, p. 13.)

The Board, on the other hand, argues that it is not barred from seeking discipline for the matters that were the subject of the increment withholding because: (1) the concept in industrial relations of double jeopardy does not preclude this tenure proceeding; as the NJ Commissioner of Education has previously held, the Board is not precluded from certifying tenure charges based upon the same conduct for which an increment was withheld; (2) the Board never issued written reprimands for the conduct referred to in Counts I, III or IV, it merely sought to withhold an increment; hence the Board may proceed with tenure charges based upon that conduct now; (3) the older charges demonstrate that Respondent's behavior did not improve after the increment withholding, that is, she has not responded to progressive discipline; (4) the decision to reverse the increment withholding was a business decision, made to avoid the expense and uncertainty of litigation; it was not a disavowal of the Board's position; accordingly it does not constitute waiver or estoppel; (5) the concept of res judicata does not apply, since there was never a final adjudication of Respondent's grievance protesting the increment withholding; (6) certain of the allegations, in any event, occurred after the increment withholding and cannot be barred; the events prior to that show a pattern of continuing misconduct meriting the loss of tenure.

I cannot agree that the Board is entitled to pursue tenure charges based upon misconduct allegations that formed the basis of an increment withholding that was subsequently settled and withdrawn. I hold the Board is barred from seeking discipline now for any of the matters that predate June 2011 and were the subject of the original decision to withhold Respondent's increment. The Board asserts that it made a business decision to settle those charges, which does not preclude it from pursuing the same factual allegations now. But that is not how settlement works. I do not know, nor am I entitled to know, why the Board settled those charges – perhaps it was a business decision, as the Board now asserts, or perhaps it was because the Board expected to lose the arbitration and wanted to save face, or perhaps some other factors came into play. The nature of a settlement is that the reasons each side has for entering into settlement are off limits in future proceedings.

Nor do I accept the Board's argument that because it sought an increment withholding, rather than wrote up formal reprimands for the same conduct, the conduct may now be the subject of tenure charges. The Board sought to discipline Respondent in 2011 for ten years worth of alleged misconduct, including insubordination, incompetence and poor attendance. The vehicle chosen for the discipline was an increment withholding. When the Respondent challenged the discipline by filing a grievance, the Board decided to settle, rather than litigate. By so doing, the Respondent was deprived of the opportunity to clear her name. Of course, the Respondent, too, could have refused to settle, but in the event, both parties, as they were entitled to do, chose settlement. That closed the matter.

Accordingly, I dismiss with prejudice all of Charge I, and those counts of Charge III, namely Counts one through 14, that predate and were included in the increment withholding proceeding of 2011. I will take judicial notice that the earlier charges put the Respondent on notice that her conduct was judged unsatisfactory by her supervisors in the matters alleged in 2011. However, I will not entertain any evidence regarding the events and charges themselves: I will not allow the Board to prosecute those claims, nor will the Respondent be required to defend herself against them. As to Count IV, to the extent that it restates and incorporates matters prior to 2011, it is also dismissed.

To be clear, the Board may proceed with Charge II, counts 1 and 2, and Charge III, counts 15 through 18. To the extent that the Board is able to prove a pattern of conduct over time based upon the remaining charges, it may proceed with Charge IV as well.

AWARD

For the reasons set forth above, the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss Charge II is denied. The Respondent's Motion to Dismiss Charges I, III and IV is granted in part and denied in part. Charge I is dismissed in its entirety, as is Charge III, counts one through 14. Respondent's Motion to Dismiss Charge III, counts 15 through 18 is denied, as is its Motion to Dismiss Charge IV as to those matters subsequent to June 2011.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

On August 11, 2015, Edwin Reyes, Principal of Technology High School, in the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, filed a Notice of Inefficiency, (tenure charges) against the Respondent. That Notice of Inefficiency included thirty-five (35) separate counts of an inability of the Respondent to "completely and responsibly execute her duties as a teacher" for the period of September 2013 to the present. Those charges were filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3. On or about August 14, 2015, the above charges were served on the Respondent.

On September 8, 2015, Christopher Cerf, Superintendent of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, filed a Certification of Determination in support of the Tenure Charges filed by Principal Edwin Reyes. That Certification was filed in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 Superintendent Cerf also determined that, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-39 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Respondent is to be suspended without pay for one hundred-twenty (120) days effective September 9, 2015.

On September 25, 2014, Jerrold Wohlgemuth, counsel for the Petitioner, filed the tenure charges with David Hespe, Commissioner of Education. That filing included Notice of Charges, Statement of Evidence in Support of Charges, Supporting Documents, Certification of Determination and Proof of Service.

On September 21, 2015, the Respondent filed an answer to the tenure charges. On September, 28, 2015, M. Kathleen Duncan, Director of New Jersey Department of Education's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, sent a letter to Messrs. Wohlgemuth and Poberezhsky in which she indicated that the tenure charges and Respondent's answer were reviewed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 c, and upon review "the Commissioner is unable to determine that the evaluation process has not been followed. The arbitrator's decision with regard to those charges shall be made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2, subject to determination by the arbitrator of Respondent's defenses and any motions which may be filed with the arbitrator." Additionally, Ms. Duncan stated that the arbitrator "shall review those charges brought pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 which are not dismissed as a result of a motion – under the preponderance of evidence standard."

Accordingly, on this date, the case is being referred to Arbitrator Gerard G. Restaino. On October 16, 2105, a conference call was held to establish a briefing schedule. Both parties indicated they would need two (2) days to present their case in chief. On October 21, 2105, Respondent, with supporting letter memoranda, Certification and exhibits, submitted a motion to the arbitrator seeking to have the tenure charges dismissed because they were improperly derived, filed pursuant to incompatible provisions of the TEACHNJ Act, as well as the N.J.A.C. thereby rendering them defective.

On November 6, 2015, Petitioner submitted a letter brief in Opposition to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the tenure charges accompanied with Certification and numerous exhibits. On November 10, 2015, Respondent submitted a reply letter to Petitioner's brief in Opposition to the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss.

On November 13, 2015, Petitioner submitted a letter in opposition the Respondent's November 6, 2013, reply letter alleging that the parties did not agree that any reply letters, briefs would be filed. Petitioner also addressed why the Motion to Dismiss should be rejected. However, during the October 16, 2015, conference call the Arbitrator asked if there were going to be any reply briefs. Mr. Herman co-counsel for Petitioner stated he did not see a need for a reply brief. Mr. Poberezhsky stated he was not sure if he would file a reply brief, but at that time he did not want to preclude the filling of a reply brief.

Therefore, reply briefs are acceptable and will be made part of the record.

RELEVANT STATUTORY PROVISIONS:

N.J.S. 18A:6-11 is amended to read as follows:

Written charges, statement of evidence; filing; statement of position by employee; certification of determination; notice.

18A:6-11. Any charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the secretary of the board in writing, and a written statement of evidence under oath to support such charge shall be presented to the board. The board of education shall forthwith provide such employee with a copy of the charge, a copy of the statement of the evidence and an opportunity to submit a written statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath with respect thereto. After consideration of the charge, statement of position and statement of evidence presented to it, the board shall determine by majority vote of its full membership whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge and whether such charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary. The board of education shall forthwith notify the employee against whom the charge has been made of its determination, personally or by certified mail directed to his last known address. In the event the board find that such probable cause exists and that the charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary, then it shall forward such written charge to the commissioner for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:6-16, together with a certificate of such determination. The consideration and actions of the board as to any charge shall not take place at a public meeting.*

8. N.J.S. 18A:6-16 is amended to read as follows:

Proceedings before commissioner; written response; determination.

18A:6-16. Upon receipt of such a charge and certification, or of a charge lawfully made to the commissioner, the commissioner or the person appointed to act in the commissioner's in the proceedings shall examine the charge and certification. The individual against whom the charges are certified shall have 15 days to submit a written* response to the charges to the commissioner. Upon a showing of good cause, the commissioner may grant an extension of time. The commissioner shall render a determination on the sufficiency of charges as set forth below within 10 days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges.

If, following receipt of the written response to the charges, the commissioner is of the opinion that they are not sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall dismiss the same and notify said person accordingly. If however, he shall determine that such charge is sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary of the person charged, he shall refer the case to an arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C.18A:6-17) for further proceedings, except that when a motion for summary decision has been made prior to that time, the commissioner may retain the matter for purposes of deciding the motion.

18A:6-17.2 Considerations For Arbitrators In Rendering A Decision.

23.a In the event that the matter before the arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of this act is employee inefficiency pursuant to section 25 of this act, in rendering a decision the arbitrator shall only consider whether or not:

(1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including to, but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;

(2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;

(3) the charges would not have been brought but for consideration of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by federal and state law, or other conduct prohibited by state or federal laws; or

(4) the District's actions were arbitrary and capricious."

b. In the event that the employee is able to demonstrate that any of the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection a. of this section are applicable, the arbitrator shall then determine if that fact materially affected the outcome of the evaluation. If the arbitrator determines that it did not materially affect the outcome of the evaluation, the arbitrator shall render a decision in favor of the board and the employee shall be dismissed.

c. The evaluator's determination as to the quality of any employee's classroom performance shall not be subject to an arbitrator's review.

d. The board of education shall have the ultimate burden of demonstrating of the arbitrator that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met.

18A:6-17.3 Evaluation Process, Determination Of Charges.

25. a. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-11, or any other section of law to the contrary, in the case of a teacher, principal, assistant principal and vice principal:

(1) the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency whenever the employee is rated ineffective or partially effective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated ineffective in the annual summative evaluation;

(2) If the employee is rated partially effective in two consecutive annual summative evaluations or is rated ineffective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated partially effective in the annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency, except that the superintendent upon a written finding of exceptional circumstances may defer the filing of tenure charges until after the next annual summative evaluation. If the employee is not rated effective or highly effective on this annual summative evaluation, the superintendent shall promptly file a charge of inefficiency.

b. Within 30 days of the filing, the board of education shall forward a written charge to the commissioner, unless the board determines that the evaluation process has not been followed.

c. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-16 or any other section of law to the contrary, upon receipt of a charge pursuant to subsection a. of this section, the commissioner shall examine the charge. The individual against whom the charges are filed shall have 10 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. The commissioner shall, within five days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges, refer the case to an arbitrator and appoint an arbitrator to hear the case, unless he determines that the evaluation process has not been followed.

d. The only evaluations which may be used for purposes of this section are those evaluations conducted in accordance with a rubric adopted by the board and approved by the commissioner pursuant to P.L. 2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-117, et al).

18A:6-123 Review, Approval Of Evaluation Rubrics

17. a. The Commissioner of Education shall review and approve evaluation rubrics submitted by school districts pursuant to section 16 of P.L. 2012, c.26 (C. 18A:6-122). The board of education shall adopt a rubric approved by the commissioner.

d. Beginning no later than January 31, 2013, a board of education shall implement a pilot program to test and refine the evaluation rubric.

e. Beginning with the 2013-2014 school year, a board of education shall ensure implementation of the approved, adopted evaluation rubric for all educators in all elementary, middle and high schools in the district. Results of evaluations shall be used to identify and provide professional development to teaching staff members. Results of evaluations shall be provided to the commissioner, as requested, on a regular basis.

SUBCHAPTER 5. CHARGES UNDER TENURE EMPLOYEES' HEARING ACT

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 Filing of written charges and certificate of determination

(a) N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, Filing and service of petition of appeal, shall not apply in a case of tenure charges filed with the Commissioner against an employee of a district board of education or of a school district under full State intervention. In place of the usual petition, the district board of education or the State district superintendent shall file written charges and the required certificate of determination with the Commissioner, together with the name of the attorney who it is anticipated for administrative purposes will be representing the district board of education or State district superintendent and proof of service upon the employee and the employee's representative, if known. Such service shall be at the same time and in the same manner as charges are filed with the Commissioner.

(c) If the tenure charges are charges of inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.3, except in the case of building principals and vice-principals in school districts under full State intervention, where procedures are governed by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45 and such rules as may be promulgated to implement it, the following procedures and timelines shall be observed:

1. When the conditions described in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3.a(1) or (2) have been satisfied, the superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the district board of education a charge of inefficiency.

2. The charges of inefficiency shall be transmitted to the affected tenured employee and the employee's representative, if known, within three working days of the date they were filed with the secretary of the district board of education or the State district superintendent. Proof of mailing or hand delivery shall constitute proof of transmittal.

3. The affected tenured employee shall have an opportunity within 10 days of receipt to submit to the district board of education or the State district superintendent a written statement of position under oath demonstrating how the school district failed to comply with the evaluation procedures.

4. Within 30 days of the filing, the district board of education or State district superintendent shall forward a written charge to the Commissioner unless the district board of education or superintendent determines the evaluation process has not been followed. Such determination shall be made by a majority vote of the district board of education's full membership or by the State district superintendent.

5. Upon receipt of the charge, the Commissioner or his or her designee shall examine the charge. The charge shall again be served upon the employee at the same time it is forwarded to the Commissioner and proof of service shall be included with the filed charges. The individual against whom the charge is filed shall have 10 days to submit to the Commissioner a written response to the charge.

6. Within five days of the individual's deadline to submit a written response to the charge, the Commissioner shall appoint an arbitrator to hear the case and refer the case to the arbitrator, unless he or she has determined that the evaluation process has not been followed.

7. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, all deliberations and actions of the district board of education with respect to such charges shall take place at a closed meeting.

N.J.A.C* 6A:10-2.1 Evaluation Of Teaching Staff Members

(a) A district board of education annually shall adopt evaluation rubrics for all teaching staff members. The evaluation rubrics shall have four defined annual ratings: ineffective, partially effective, effective, and highly effective.

(b) The evaluation rubrics for teachers, principals, vice principals, and assistant principals shall include all other relevant minimum standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-123 (P.L. 2012, c. 26, § 17c).

(c) Evaluation rubrics shall be submitted to the Commissioner by June 1 for approval by August 1 of each year.

N.J.A.C* 6A:10-2.2 Duties of district boards of education

(a) Each district board of education shall meet the following requirements for the annual evaluation of teaching staff members, unless otherwise specified:

1. Establish a District Evaluation Advisory Committee to oversee and guide the planning and implementation of the school district board of education's evaluation policies and procedures as set forth in this subchapter;
2. Annually adopt policies and procedures developed by the chief school administrator pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.4, including the evaluation rubrics approved by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.1(c);

N.J.A.C.* 6A:10-2.4 Evaluation Procedures For All Teaching Staff

a. This section's provisions shall be the minimum requirements for the evaluation of teaching staff members.

c. The annual summary conference between designated supervisors and teaching staff members shall be held before the written performance report is filed. The conference shall occur on or before June 30 of each year and shall include, but not be limited to, a review of the following:

3. Available indicators of scores of student achievement or growth, when applicable such as student growth objective scores and student growth percentile scores; and

4. The preliminary annual written performance report.

d. If any scores for the teaching staff member's evaluation rubric are not available at the time of the annual summary conference due to pending assessment results, the annual summative evaluation rating shall be calculated once all component ratings are available.

N.J.A.C 6A:10-4.2 Student Achievement Components

(e) Student growth objectives for teachers shall be developed and measured according to the following procedures:

5. Adjustments to student growth objectives may be made by the teacher in consultation with his or her supervisor only when approved by the chief school administrator or designee. Adjustments shall be recorded in the teacher's personnel file on or before February 15.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

Respondent argues that for the following three (3) reasons the Tenure Charges of Inefficiency must be dismissed:

1. Respondent's summative evaluation for the 2014-2015 school year was improperly derived, thereby rendering the tenure charges defective. Respondent contends the "Petitioner woefully failed to meet its legal obligations with respect to the Respondent's 2014-2105 summative evaluation by not factoring in the appropriate SGO[1] into her final evaluation." Moreover, she also states that "it appears that Petitioner skewed the evidentiary record to make it appears as if these obligations were met, which is remarkable". Respondent further alleges "that Petitioner fabricated the evidentiary record to overcome its shortcomings."

Respondents CAP[2] for the 2014-2015 school year, "which was implemented on October 8, 2015, listed diagnostic test as the assessment metric, and even provided the results of the diagnostic exam when it was administered at the start of the school year.

[1] SGO Student Growth Objective
[2] CAP Corrective Action Plan

Unbeknownst to Respondent, the CAP was apparently edited by an administrator to include the words April 2015 following diagnostic test."

Respondent acknowledges that Petitioner submitted a version of the October 8, 2014, CAP with handwriting on it as part of its record of evidence. Nevertheless, on page 3 of the CAP, someone circled the words "diagnostic exam and wrote post April 2015 above it, drawing a line connecting the two phrases. (see Respondent's Certification, Exh. F)

Respondent further argues that "[L]ow and behold, the CAP that was included with the Statement of Evidence attached to the instant charges listed [diagnostic test] April 2015 as its assessment metric in regular print with no handwriting." (see Respondent's Certification, Exh. F). Respondent asserts that the data used by the Petitioner to factor her SGO was "based on classroom quiz results, not the diagnostic exam." In fact, "the documents containing the students" grades were actually labeled as quizzes." (see Respondent's Certification, Exh. G)

Respondent contends that the "implication is clear. In an effort to correct the deficiency in her summative evaluation – namely, failing to factor the appropriate, agreed to SGO scores, therein – Petitioner may have retroactively changed the assessment metric in her CAP to justify the otherwise premature issuance of her 2014-2015 summative evaluation." Most importantly, Respondent never had the opportunity to re-administer the diagnostic exam to her students, which is the "appropriate assessment metric to determine whether she met her SGOs."

Respondent alleges that even if Petitioner was not acting in bad faith and the CAP was not retroactively changed "following her annual summative conference, the instant tenure charges are facially effective and must be dismissed." Respondent argues that the "Partially Effective overall rating she received in 2014-2015 is not valid and without two (2) consecutive ineffective or partially effective summative ratings, tenure charges based on inefficiency may not be filed." Moreover, in accordance with 18A:6-17.3 et al, Petitioner may not submit any additional evidence to correct this deficiency.

In her Certification (see ¶ 7) Respondent stated "[I] never requested to adjust my CAP, including the SGOs and corresponding assessment metrics, at any point during the 2014-2015 school year. It was always my understanding that the terms of my CAP would not be changed unless I personally requested adjustments to it. I signed the CAP during the follow-up meeting on October 14, 2014, but it was not explained to me that adjustments were made to the original CAP terms we agreed to."

2. Respondent asserts that Petitioner may argue that "even if the 2014-2015 summative evaluation was erroneously derived, thereby rendering the tenure charges based on inefficiency (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 6-17.3) defective, they may still be heard on the basis of conduct unbecoming (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11). Even though Petitioner filed its tenure charges pursuant to both provisions of TEACHNJ Act, the inefficiency provision (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 6-17.3) commonly referred to as Section 25 of the Act, is the only appropriate basis here." Furthermore, there was "absolutely no rational for Petitioner to being the charges under the conduct unbecoming provision (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11). That section of the statute refers to [a} charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency."

Respondent questions "[H]ow can Petitioner justify bringing tenure charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, which is only applicable to efficient employees, and also Section 25 which is predicated on inefficiency".

In support of her argument, Respondent references the arbitration awards of arbitrators Stephen Bluth, I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Sandra Cheatham, State-Operated School District, City of Newark, Agency Docket No, 68-3/15 and Daniel Brent I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Jodi Thompson, State-Operated School District, City of Newark, Agency Docket 240-8/14 and 16-1/15. Arbitrator Bluth dismissed the tenure charges filed under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 because "they were based on the same facts that gave rise to charges previously filed under Section 25. Arbitrator Brent dismissed the Petitioner's tenure charges because "there was no valid basis in the statute to afford the District two separate, sequential opportunities to litigate identical charges arising from the same set of facts by citing different sections of the stature in two sets of tenure charges."

3. Respondent also contends that Petitioner violated the terms of N.J.A.C. 6-10-2.4(4)(d), and her 2014-2015 summative evaluation was legally defective. That provision of the Administrative Code prevents the Petitioner from factoring "Respondent's annual summative rating until her student assessment results were available." Petitioner's Framework for Effective Teaching (see Petitioner Exh. 1) states that the "annual evaluations for teachers on a CAP should be completed by May 15th, but also notes that the required state deadline to complete annual evaluations is the end of the school year."

Therefore, "Petitioner was not required, even by its own policies, to calculate Respondent's summative rating for the 2014-2015 school year by May 15, 2015." Petitioner never afforded Respondent an opportunity to re-administer the diagnostic exam, "even at the time of the annual conference. By then, she was told that her evaluation rating was already calculated, and she was deemed ineffective."

Accordingly, Respondent strongly argues that the 2014-2015 annual summative rating was legally defective, improperly obtained and cannot be used in these proceedings. Most importantly, because there are not two (2) consecutive partially effective or ineffective annual summative ratings, the instant tenure charges must be dismissed.

For the Petitioner

Respondent was assigned as a math teacher at Technology High School for the 2013-1014 and 2014-2015 school years. For the 2013-2014 school year her annual summative evaluation rating was "partially effective." (see Exh. 1, ¶ 3). Therefore, Respondent was placed on a CAP for the 2014-2015 school year. (see Exh. 1, ¶ 4) On September 30, 2014, Respondent met with her supervisor, Vice Principal Milagros Ortiz, for a goal setting conference to discuss Respondent's CAP for the 2014-2015 school year. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 4, and Exh. A) The goal setting conference had to be adjourned and re-scheduled for October 8, 2014, because Respondent failed to submit her CAP form by September 26, 2014. (see Ortiz Certification ¶¶ 5-7, and Exh. A)

During the October 8, 2014, meeting, Vice Principal Ortiz gave Respondent a draft CAP "along with Ms. Ortiz's handwritten notes and comments, so that Respondent could incorporate same into her final CAP." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 8). One of Vice Principal Ortiz's handwritten note on the CAP form stated that "Respondent was to administer a follow up diagnostic math test to her students in April 2015." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 9, and Exh. B) The Respondent had already administered a diagnostic math test to her students in September 2014, and the follow up was to measure student growth. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 10). Petitioner strongly argues that subsequent to the October 8, 2014, meeting, Ms. Ortiz emailed the draft CAP with her handwritten notes to Respondent along with various suggested action steps, and Respondent was asked to update her CAP on the Bloom Board system. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 12)

As a tenured teacher a CAP Respondent's annual evaluation was required to be completed by May 15, 2015. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 11, and Exh. C). Moreover, the "Framework For Effective Teaching, Newark Public Schools Teacher Performance Evaluation, A Guidebook for Teachers & Administrators, 2014-2014" specifically states that for tenured teachers on a CAP, annual evaluations should be completed by May 15, 2015. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 11, and Exh. C)

Only teachers such as Respondent have the ability to modify and finalize their actual CAP document through the Bloom Board system. Accordingly, on October 14, 2015, Respondent made her final edits to the CAP for the 2014-2015 school year on the Bloom Board system. (see Ortiz Certification ¶¶ 13-14, and Exh E and F). One of the edits made by the Respondent to her 2014-2015 CAP "was to specify that the diagnostic test was to be given in April as required. Thus, on the third page of the CAP under the heading [Assessment/Metric] Respondent herself typed ...Diagnostic test - April 2015." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 15, and Exh. E). After Respondent made her final edits to the CAP on October 14, 2015, including the insertion of the phrase "...diagnostic test April 2015," Respondent and Vice Principal Ortiz signed the CAP that same day. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16, and Exh. E)

Petitioner argues that "no adjustments were made to the CAP after October 14, 2015." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 20).

Respondent did not administer the diagnostic tests to her students in April, May, and June 2015. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 19). Petitioner acknowledges that during the May annual evaluation conference Respondent submitted quiz results, but "those quiz results could not, and were not utilized as part of her SGO." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 21). Petitioner was "unable to determine Respondent's SGO because she failed to administer the diagnostic test to her students in April 2015 as required." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 22). As Respondent was rated partially effective in 2013-2014 and ineffective in 2014-2015, the two (2) consecutive school years standard as set forth in N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.3 was implemented by Petitioner.

Respondent failed to comply with the requirement in her CAP that she was to administer the diagnostic math test to her students in April 2015. Petitioner strongly asserts that Respondent's argument that Petitioner failed to meet its obligations by not factoring in the appropriate SGO scores into her 2014-2015 annual evaluation is fundamentally flawed for the reasons set forth above and below.

As previously indicated, Respondent administered a diagnostic math test to her students in September 2014 "in which 23 of her 26 students were unable to answer questions about circles, and in which 20 of her 26 students were unable to make geometric constructions and express geometric properties with equations. As such, as a result of the goal setting conference, Respondent's CAP identified two student learning goals for the 2014-2015 school year: (a) understanding and applying theorems about circles; and (b) make geometric constructions and express geometric properties with equations. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16, and Exh. E) Moreover, "Respondent's CAP made clear that she was to administer the same diagnostic test in April 2015, as a measure of student growth in these two areas." (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16 and Exh. E)

Petitioner asserts that Respondent acknowledged Vice Principal Ortiz's recommendation, and the Respondent herself incorporated and typed the April 2015 date into her CAP using the Bloom Board system. Once signed by both Respondent and Vice Principal Ortiz, Respondent was "expected to ensure that her students met their learning objectives, which were then to be measured when Respondent's students retook the follow up diagnostic test in April 2015."

Furthermore, Petitioner argues that it "is without any knowledge as to why Respondent ignored her responsibilities and decided not to retest her students. To the extent the Respondent had fallen behind with her lesson plans, Respondent had the ability to adjust her SGOs by February 15, 2015. (see N.J.A.C. 6a:10-4.2(e)4. Respondent, however, never requested or made any attempt to adjust her SGOs."

Petitioner contends that the Respondent's summative evaluation was not issued before she had an opportunity to re-administer the diagnostic test. More importantly, the Respondent's argument that the Petitioner "did not factor the appropriate SGO scores into her final evaluation, incredibly overlooks the fact the she did not re-administer the assessment within the time unequivocally set forth in the October 14, 2014, CAP."

Additionally, Petitioner "did not surreptitiously speed up the date of Respondent's final evaluation. Respondent was fully aware of the fact that she was on a CAP, that her CAP stated she was to administer the diagnostic test in April 2015."

Petitioner strongly argues that the record clearly and unequivocally establishes that in October 2104, "Respondent was made aware of her SGOs and her obligations to retest her students in April 2015 in order to determine if her class experienced growth in its knowledge of circle theorems and geometric constructions and properties." It certainly appears to the Petitioner that Respondent intentionally disregarded the unambiguous and agreed-upon obligations in her CAP.

Petitioner asserts that Respondent completely ignores the reality of how her CAP for 2014-2015 school year was created. She conveniently overlooks the fact that she herself put into her Cap using the Bloom Board system "April 2015." The record clearly established that only Respondent can edit, delete, or make changes to her CAP using the Bloom Board system. Administrators or supervisors cannot make any changes to a teachers CAP in the Bloom Board system.

Petitioner asserts that Respondent's motion to dismiss is baseless, must be denied and the hearing on the tenure charges should proceed as scheduled.

OPINION AND ANALYSIS

Respondent's arguments in support of her Motion to Dismiss Tenure Charges are based upon three (3) significant components. Preliminarily, Respondent has a high level of comfort in her arguments that Petitioner violated N.J.A.C. 6A 10. 2.1, 2.2, 2.4, N.J.S.A.18A:6-123, and Petitioner's Framework for Effective Teaching, Newark Public Schools Teacher Performance Evaluation concerning her May 14, 2015, annual summative evaluation. As set forth below, that comfort level has a short life expectancy.

Respondent judiciously avoids addressing the Certifications of Vice Principal Ortiz and the progeny of events that developed after the October 8, 2014, conference. It is important to recall that in September 2014, Respondent had already administered a diagnostic math test to her students, and the follow up was to measure student growth. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 10). The results of that diagnostic test revealed 23 of Respondent's 26 students were unable to answer questions about circles, and in which 20 of her 26 students were unable to make geometric constructions and express geometric properties with equations. As such, as a result of the goal setting conference, Respondent's CAP identified two student learning goals for the 2014-2015 school year: (a) understanding and applying theorems about circles; and (b) make geometric constructions and express geometric properties with equations. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16, and Exh. E) Moreover, Respondent's CAP made clear that she was to administer the same diagnostic test in April 2015, as a measure of student growth in these two areas. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16 and Exh. E) (emphasis supplied)

Respondent's bold assertions concerning the development of her CAP and her signature dated October 14, 2014, clearly and unequivocally establish for the arbitrator that her arguments are part of Harry Potter type of wizardry.

At the October 8, 2014, goal setting conference to establish Respondent's CAP, the uncontradicted certifications of Vice Principal Ortiz, show without blemish that Ms. Ortiz gave Respondent a draft cap with her handwritten notes and comments to incorporate into Respondent's CAP. Additionally, subsequent to the October 8, 2014, meeting, Vice Principal Ortiz emailed Respondent the draft CAP with various recommended performance steps and asked Respondent to update her CAP via the Bloom Board system.(see Ortiz Certification ¶ 8, 9, 12,and Exh. D)

The record lucidly shows that only Respondent can make any additions, deletions to her CAP via the Bloom Board system. Yet somehow after Respondent signed her CAP, the same day Vice Principal Ortiz signed it, an unknown individual used the Bloom Board system and changed the CAP to insert April 2015. Candidly, that position of the Respondent defies credulity.

Respondent is a professional individual who has been employed approximately twenty-three (23) years as a math teacher in the Newark Public Schools and signed her 2014-20105 CAP without reading and/or objecting to specifics in the CAP and insists Petitioner "skewed and fabricated the evidentiary record to overcome its shortcomings"

To advance such an argument and expect the arbitrator to accept it expands the boundaries of believability to beyond any recognizable limit. Respondent has not offered any proof that she was coerced, forced or manipulated into signing her 2014-2015 CAP on October 14, 2014. Her entire argument on the CAP and April 2015 is nothing more than bold assertions without any substance.

Respondents' argument on the improper application of Petitioner's Framework for Effective Teaching, Newark Public School, belies the following excerpts from that document:

Frequently Asked Questions

Why do we have to participate in a goal-setting conference?

"The goal-setting conference ensures that goals are established collaboratively between teachers and administrators*. Once the teacher and* administrator have finalized the teacher's student learning goals and IPDP or CAP, the goal-setting process is complete....The IPDP or CAP provide teachers and administrators with a shared tool for consistently communicating about goals and anticipating growth areas, and they will serve as a reference document for other evaluation conferences, feedback discussions, and professional development over the course of the year." (emphasis supplied) (see page A11)

What is the responsibility of a teacher on a CAP?

"A teacher on a CAP is responsible for the development of goals outlined in his or her CAP with the principal." (see page A12)

The above cited sections give the arbitrator a ringside seat at the goal setting conference. The key word collaboratively renders all of Respondent's arguments about the development of 2014-2015 CAP ludicrous to say the least. If there is one clear absolute in the record, it is that Respondent developed the 2014-2015 CAP collaboratively or in concert with Vice Principal Ortiz. To deny that the CAP was created in collaboration with Vice Principal Ortiz is to deny reality.

Respondent contends that Petitioner violated the May 15, 2015, date found on page A 12 of the Framework for Effective Teaching, Newark Public School for the annual evaluation of a tenured teacher on a CAP, because she never had the opportunity to re-administer the diagnostic exam to her students, which is the appropriate assessment metric to determine whether she had met her SGOs.

The Respondent's own words set aside her accusation about the May 15, 2015, date. Respondent stated in her Certification " I was instructed to bring data demonstrating student growth at the annual summary conference, but because the diagnostic exam was not administered by then, and my students were still learning circles, the only somewhat-appropriate artifact I could think to bring was a spreadsheet consisting of my students' scores on exit slips and tests from December 2014 and January 2015 relative to geometric shapes." (see. Thomas Certification ¶ 9, and Exh. C) (emphasis supplied) ¶

January 2015 was four months away from April 2015, the date in Respondent's CAP and yet she still had not administered the diagnostic exam. Respondent admits that at the time of the annual summative conference "her students were still learning circles." Nevertheless, as a result of the goal-setting conference Respondent's CAP identified two student learning goals for the 2014-2015 school year: (a) understanding and applying theorems about circles; and (b) make geometric constructions and express geometric properties with equations. (see Ortiz Certification ¶ 16 and Exh. E)

Frankly, as of May 14, 2015, Respondent still had not met the goal of understanding and applying theorems about circles, yet she insists the Petitioner rushed to administer the annual summative evaluation without the results of the diagnostic exam that she blatantly refused to administer in April 2015.

Respondent's lack of administering the diagnostic test cannot be held against the petitioner. Even if the May 15, 2015, summative evaluation conference was adjourned, Respondents Certification showed a remarkable lack of adhering to her 2014-2015 CAP. She stated, "On or about May 14, 2015, I was called into the office to meet with Vice Principal Ortiz for my annual evaluation conference, during which time we discussed my summative evaluation. At this Point I did not have an opportunity to re-administer the diagnostic exam. My students haven't even completed the unit on circles yet, so it would not have been appropriate to re-administer the diagnostic exam even if I had chosen to do so." (see Thomas Certification ¶ 8)

When Respondent met with Vic Principal Ortiz she knew that she had not complied with her 2014-2015 CAP. She had the opportunity to request that the evaluation not be held until she had completed the diagnostic exam. She chose not to do so and incredibly blames the Petitioner for not adhering to the permissive date for evaluating a tenured teacher on a CAP. Nothing can be further from the truth. Candidly, Respondent could have admitted she did not administer the diagnostic exam which was in violation of her 2014-2015 CAP and ask for more time. The record shows she did not take advantage of that opportunity.

More importantly, Respondent's reply brief does not address the mysterious manner in which she alleges "April 2015" appears in her CAP. To bolster her unsupported assertions Respondent in her reply brief strongly contends that under " the laws of our State, it is the duty of the school board employer – not the tenured employee – to ensure the statutory requirement, of annual evaluations are complied with."

Yes, but teachers tenured or not have a professional obligation to cooperate with those laws and make sure their intent is carried out. Her argument about the May 15, 2015, date for completion of her annual evaluation segues into her contention that the Petitioner violated N.J.A.C. 6-10-2.4(4)(d), and her 2014-2015 summative evaluation was legally defective.

N.J.A.C. 6-10-2.4 is the evaluation procedure for all teaching staff. Section (4)(d), states: If any scores for the teaching staff member's evaluation rubric are not available at the time of the annual summary conference due to pending assessment results*, the annual summative evaluation rating shall be calculated once all component ratings are available.* (emphasis suppiled)

There was no pending assessment result because Respondent did not administer the diagnostic exam in April 2015. Respondent placing blame on Petitioner because Respondent did not comply with her 2014-2015 collaboratively agreed upon CAP is another example of her refusing to take responsibility for her actions or lack thereof. It defies logic to pass blame on the Petitioner when Respondent did not do her part in having completed the diagnostic exam so it could be addressed in her annual summative evaluation.

There is nothing sufficient or compelling in Respondent's arguments about the CAP and its progeny including the Petitioner's alleged violation of N.J.A.C. 6-10-2.4(4)(d), to dismiss the tenure charges.

Respondent's arguments about the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, and N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.3 is misapplied. The seminal case in addressing inefficiency charges utilizing two (2) distinct separate sections of Ch. 26 is Arbitrator Simmelkjaer I/M/O Neil Harris, State-Operated School District, City of Newark Agency Docket 244-9/14. Arbitrator Simmelkjaer determined that :[H]ad the Legislature intended that a teacher charged with inefficiency for two consecutive years of ineffective or partially ineffective ratings on their annual summative ratings be evaluated utilizing two different and asymmetric evaluation procedures – one consistent with section 25 of TEACHNJ and the other consistent with Section 8 – it had the wherewithal to provide appropriate statutory language."

Section 8 refers to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 and Section 25 refers to N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.3. Arbitrator Simmelkjear dismissed the tenure charges because the evaluation process had not been followed.

In the Cheatham award, supra arbitrator Bluth dismissed the tenure charges because the Petitioner (same Petitioner as in the instant matter) filed amended tenure charges of inefficiency under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. However, the above award was the second award with the same parties. In the first award I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Sandra Cheatham, State-Operated School District, City of Newark, Agency Docket No, 266-8/14 Arbitrator Bluth rejected the Petitioner's argument that if he "found that Respondent was not culpable under Section 25, he should treat the charges as if they had been filed under Section 8." That determination places the Cheatham awards supra, in context with the fact pattern in the matter before me. The standards for an arbitrator to review inefficiency charges is found in N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.3 and not in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 c. specifically states, "Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 or any other section of law to the contrary, upon receipt of a charge pursuant to subsection a. of this section, the Commissioner shall examine the charge." There is nothing in Section 25 that would allow a charge of inefficiency to be heard under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 informs the parties, and in particular, a board of education as to what is required in the filing of tenure charges such as written charges, statement of evidence, statement of positon by employee, and certification of charges, and that any hearing will not take place at a public meeting. It is acted upon in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A 3.5-1 (c).

Nevertheless, it must be acknowledged that the Petitioner is not contending that if they are not successful under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, I am to review the tenure charges of inefficiency under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

For the foregoing reasons, and having heard the proofs and allegations of the parties, I AWARD the following:

AWARD

The Respondent has not met its burden of proof for the tenure charges of inefficiency filed against Sherlene Thomas to be dismissed.

Therefore, we shall proceed to hearing with the agreed upon dates starting with December 7, 2015.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ANTHONY IBIDA,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF PATERSON,	:
PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, along with the parties' proposed Settlement Agreement and General Release, have been reviewed. The Commissioner finds that the proposed Agreement – a term of which is respondent's resignation from employment in petitioner's district – is consistent with the established standards governing settlement of tenure matters contained within In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, and as incorporated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

To the extent that Paragraph 13 of the Agreement provides for strict confidentiality, the parties are reminded that the Settlement Agreement may be subject to disclosure pursuant to the Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1, et seq.

Accordingly, the parties' settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the Agreement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Agreement") is made by and between the STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, with an address at 90 Delaware Avenue, Paterson, New Jersey 07503, and its successors, assigns, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively, the "School District"), and ANTHONY IBIDA, residing at 2840 Debra Way, Union, New Jersey 07083 ("Employee") (collectively, the "Parties").

WHEREAS Employee is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the School District as a teacher;

WHEREAS the State District Superintendent of the School District ("Superintendent") certified a tenure charge of Anthony Ibida, State-operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County ("Tenure Charge"), and the charge has been assigned Agency Docket No. 256-9/15;

WHEREAS, because of the cost and expense of prosecuting the charge and the uncertainty of its outcome, the Parties wish to resolve this matter in accordance with the terms set forth herein rather than proceed with arbitration; and

WHEREAS the proposed settlement is in the best interest of the Parties and the public because it avoids an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly proceedings at the expense of the public;

NOW, THEREFORE, subject to approval by the Commissioner, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Immediately upon execution of this Agreement, Employee will resign from his employment in the School District, effective 82 school days from the Effective Date of this Agreement as set forth below ("Resignation Date"). Attached as Exhibit A is a copy of Employee's signed letter of resignation.

2. Between the Effective Date and the Resignation Date, Employee will receive the following compensation:

(a) For the first seventy-seven school days after the Effective Date, salary at a prorated rate equivalent to one-half of his current annual salary, minus all applicable withholdings and deductions, payable in accordance with the School District's normal payroll procedures;

(b) For the seventy-eighth through eighty-second school days after the Effective Date, salary at his current annual salary rate, minus all applicable withholdings and deductions, payable in accordance with the School District's normal payroll procedures; and

(c) All employee benefits due to him from the Effective Date to the Resignation Date, at the benefit levels and in accordance with all terms in effect on the Effective Date.

3. In exchange for Employee's resignation, the School District agrees to dismissal of the Tenure Charge, and further agrees not to pursue a tenure charge so long as this Agreement remains in effect and is not ruled invalid or void by any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction. However, if this Agreement is ruled invalid or void, the School District retains the right to pursue action against Employee, including but not limited to tenure charges and termination from the School District.

4. This Agreement is based on the understanding that the facts underlying the Tenure Charge do not constitute grounds for disciplinary action or penalty imposed on Employee and do not give rise to any obligation on the part of the School District to notify the State Board of Examiners or Division of Pensions. The School District agrees not to seek suspension or revocation of Employee's teaching certification or license and not to challenge his right to apply for or receive pension benefits on any grounds related to the Tenure Charge or his resignation pursuant to this Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Employee understands that this Agreement is not intended to affect the possibility of any proceedings that may be pursued by the State Board of Examiners relative to his teaching certificate.

5. The School District will not contest any application for unemployment compensation that Employee may make relative to his separation from employment with the Paterson Public Schools.

6. As of the Resignation Date, all of Employee's rights of employment with the School District, including but not limited to salary, benefits, tenure and seniority, will permanently end.

7. Employee will not apply for reemployment with the School District at any time. If Employee does apply for reemployment with the School District and is approved for employment, the terms of this Agreement shall control and shall be grounds for immediate termination of Employee's employment. Additionally, Employee shall not enter onto the premises of any school in the School District without express written permission of the principal. If Employee does enter onto the premises of any school in the School District without such permission, all of the School District's obligations under this Agreement shall cease immediately.

8. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 2 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Employee hereby waives and releases any and all claims of any nature against the School District, including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief, and hereby releases and discharges the School District with respect to any and all claims or rights that he has or may have against the School District. This waiver, release and discharge includes, without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Employee's employment with the School District or separation from employment with the School District. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Employee may have regarding tenure, seniority, compensation in any form, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, and any and all claims of violation of Employee's rights under any federal or state civil rights law; any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; disability benefits laws; retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law; the United States Constitution and the New Jersey Constitution; any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance; and any claim based on contract, implied contract, collective bargaining agreement, tort law, personal injury, or public policy, having any bearing whatsoever on his employment by and/or termination of his employment with the School District, including but not limited to any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wages, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss.

9. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 8 of this Agreement, Employee does not waive any right he may have to workers compensation benefits or pension benefits. Moreover, notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 8, Employee is not and shall not be prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Should either such agency file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the School District based upon any of the claims in Paragraph 8, Employee agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

10. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, if applicable, this Agreement advises Employee of the legal requirements of that Act and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Employee acknowledges that he: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives his right to pursue any current claims he may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given sufficient time within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has seven (7) days from the date of his execution of this Agreement to revoke it. Employee understands that he may rescind this Agreement within seven (7) calendar days of signing it, and that such rescission must be in writing and delivered to counsel for the School District either by hand or by certified mail within the seven-day period.

11. This Agreement shall not be effective, and the School District shall have no obligation hereunder, until seven (7) calendar days from the date of Employee's execution of this Agreement or the date of the School District's receipt of approval by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to paragraph 22 below, whichever is later ("Effective Date").

12. Employee's separation from employment will be deemed a voluntary resignation in good standing. Upon inquiry from any third party to authorized employees or representatives of the School District, those employees or representatives will provide no information other than to confirm Employee's employment, position, salary and dates of employment, and state that the reason for his separation from employment was his resignation.

13. Except as set forth herein, Employee shall keep the terms of this Agreement strictly confidential. Employee is expressly forbidden from discussing this Agreement with any person, other than his accountant, tax advisor and attorney ("permitted disclosures") and any other individual or entity as necessary to implement the Agreement or to which they are legally obligated to respond ("legally-required disclosures"). In making any permitted disclosure, Employee agrees that he will inform the person to whom he makes the permitted disclosure that the existence and substance of this Agreement, the settlement negotiations giving rise to this Agreement, and the sum of money paid pursuant to this Agreement are to be held strictly confidential to the fullest extent permitted by law. In the event of any breach of this confidentiality provision, all of the School District's obligations under this Agreement shall cease immediately. The School District agrees that it will keep the terms of this Agreement confidential to the extent permitted by law.

14. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other employees.

15. The Parties each acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Agreement and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

16. Each signatory to this Agreement understands, acknowledges and agrees that this Agreement constitutes the full agreement of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified, or otherwise changed in any respect whatsoever except by a duly executed writing signed on behalf of both Parties.

17. This Agreement shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law. The Commissioner of Education and/or federal and state courts of the State of New Jersey, as applicable in accordance with such law, shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising from, in connection with, or related to this Agreement.

18. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures hereto and thereto were upon the same instrument. Each counterpart will be deemed an original, which taken together shall constitute a single instrument. Facsimile signatures or signatures in electronic Portable Document Format ("PDF") shall be construed and have the same force and effect as original signatures.

19. This Agreement and any uncertainty or ambiguity therein shall not be construed against any party, but shall be construed as if both Parties jointly prepared this Agreement.

20. Each party acknowledges that this is the entire agreement of the Parties concerning the subject matter hereof, and that there are no written or oral representations, understandings or agreements directly or indirectly connected with this Agreement.

21. If any provision of this Agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction or determined under applicable law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue and remain in full force and effect.

22. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, and will become effective only upon approval by the Commissioner. Counsel for the Parties shall jointly request the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement and each shall take any and all necessary steps to effectuate dismissal of the Tenure Charge.

T.H., on behalf of minor child, K.H.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE UPPER FREEHOLD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the discipline imposed upon K.H. – a student athlete – by the respondent Board based on conduct that occurred away from school grounds. Specifically, K.H. posted two pictures on Instagram that appeared to show K.H. and another student – who was wearing an Allentown High School sweatshirt – drinking alcohol. K.H. was, inter alia, suspended for thirty days from the basketball team and barred from participating in athletic events or practices for thirty days; the discipline was not, however, recorded in K.H.'s permanent file. Petitioner also contested a one-day detention that K.H. served on February 19, 2014 for an unrelated social media infraction. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, asserting that K.H. violated school policy when she publicized drinking behavior through a post on Instagram. The Board further asserted that petitioner's claim regarding the one-day detention was filed beyond the 90-day window for the filing of appeals. The petitioner filed a cross-motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the facts in this matter are substantially undisputed; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5, in order for a school district to assert control over student behavior away from school, there must be a clear nexus between the behavior and student health or safety, and the district must then establish that the behavior materially and substantially interferes with the orderly operation of the school; underage drinking is a potential problem and if the within behavior had occurred on school grounds or at a school related function, there would be no question as to the Board's jurisdiction, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2; the facts of the within case – unlike G.D.M. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills School District, 426 N.J. Super 246 – are not aggravated by further inappropriate behavior that could be considered substantial interference; and K.H.'s one-day detention was issued on February 19, 2014, but the within appeal was not filed until May 27, 2014, which date is beyond the 90-day period for the filing of appeals. The ALJ concluded that petitioner is entitled to have any record of the event eliminated or marked as having been reversed. Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision as to the drinking incident was denied; the Board's motion as to the one-day suspension was granted; the petitioner's motion seeking reversal of the Board's decision regarding the drinking incident was granted, and was denied as to the one-day suspension. The petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Accordingly the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE UPPER FREEHOLD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the Upper Freehold Regional Board of Education (Board). In this case the petitioner is challenging the Board's decision imposing a 30-day suspension from participation in extracurricular activities on K.H. based on conduct that occurred away from school grounds. K.H. posted two pictures on Instagram that appear to show K.H. and another student – who was wearing an Allentown High School sweatshirt – drinking alcohol.[1] Petitioner also contests a one day detention that K.H. received for an unrelated social media infraction. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the challenge to the Board's decision regarding the unrelated social media infraction was barred by the 90-day rule in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3. The ALJ also found that the Board overstepped its authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5[2] when it gave K.H. a 30-day suspension from extracurricular activities for the conduct that occurred off-school grounds.

[1] K.H. neither admitted nor denied that she was drinking alcohol. The student in the picture with K.H. admitted to school officials that the two were drinking alcohol.

[2] N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5 was re-codified from N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 effective March 17, 2014.

The Board takes exception to the ALJ's determination that it overstepped in disciplining K.H. for her inappropriate conduct. The Board argues that the facts in this case are different from the circumstances in G.D.M and T.A.M., on behalf of minor child, B.M.M. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, 427 N.J. Super. 246 (App. Div. 2012) because in that case the Ramapo Indian Hill's Board sought to penalize any off campus conduct without the requisite nexus to the school. Here the Board maintains that the nexus between K.H. and the school was supplied through the use of an Allentown High School sweatshirt worn by the student posing with K.H. and the "sophomore sensation" hashtag utilized on Instagram. The Board stresses that the "requirement of appropriate discipline" in the school was implicated by the use of school athletic apparel and the social media hashtags that inexorably link the school to inappropriate and illegal conduct. Therefore, the Board contends that it reacted appropriately and responsibly to K.H.'s conduct, and the 30-day suspension from extracurricular activities should be upheld.

After consideration and review, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's determination that the Board's decision to suspend K.H. from extracurricular activities for 30 days was arbitrary capricious and unreasonable because the off-school conduct did not materially and substantially interfere with the orderly operation of the school required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)2. The Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ's determination – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that K.H.'s challenge to the Board's decision to give her a detention because of the unrelated social media infraction was barred by the 90-day rule.

There is no doubt that under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5, a board of education has the authority to "impose a consequence on a student for conduct away from school grounds … that is consistent with the district board of education's code of student conduct." The board of education, however, can only exercise that authority when:

1. "it is reasonably necessary for the student's physical or emotional safety, security and well-being or for reasons relating to the safety, security and well-being of other students, staff or school grounds pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-2 and 18A:37-2" [N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)1] and

2. "the conduct that is the subject of the proposed consequence materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school." [N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)2.]

As a threshold matter the Commissioner finds that Board Policy 5600, "Pupil Discipline", complies with the requirements outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5 relating to the Board's authority to discipline students for conduct that occurs away from school grounds.[3]

In order to evaluate whether the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in suspending K.H. from participating in extracurricular activities, it must be determined whether the discipline for K.H.'s off-school conduct was reasonably necessary for K.H.'s safety, security and well-being – or for the safety, security and well-being of other students – and whether the conduct materially and substantially interfered with the orderly operation of the school. Although the student athletes at Allentown High School are required to sign the Athletic Participation/Permission Form and expressly agree to adhere to the student code of conduct, the crux of the analysis here involves what the regulations permit as a consequence[4] for a violation of the code of conduct that occurs away from school grounds. When N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a) was adopted, it clearly created an express distinction between a board of education's authority to impose any consequences for conduct that occurs off-school grounds as opposed to conduct that occurs on school grounds or at school functions. M.W., supra, Commissioner Decision No. 386-12 at 4-5.

[3] Although participation in extracurricular activities is a privilege, and not a right, it does not negate the fact that a board's decision to revoke a student's ability to participate in extracurricular activities amounts to a form of discipline. Therefore, student conduct policies must comply with the requirements relating to discipline for conduct away from school grounds that is outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. G.D.M., supra, 427 N.J. Super at 261, 262 ; M.W., on behalf of minor child, C.W. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield, Camden County, Commissioner Decision No. 386-12, decided September 24, 2012.

[4] "Giving the terms used in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 their 'common meaning,' a consequence is any result that follows from a student's violation of the code of conduct." G.D.M., supra, 427 N.J. Super at 261.

With respect to the first prong of the dual requirements enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a), the Commissioner finds that it was reasonable for the Board to determine that imposing discipline on a student for posting pictures on Instagram which potentially glorify underage alcohol consumption by student athletes is necessary for the student's well-being and the well-being of other students. The underlying purpose of the student conduct code is to promote proper behavior, including the deterrence of underage drug and alcohol use. The Board's concern that published evidence of apparent alcohol consumption by a prominent student athlete could influence other students to engage in such behavior is reasonable and consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)1.

Although the discipline imposed on K.H. satisfied the first prong of the analysis outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)1, the off-school conduct did not materially and substantially interfere with the discipline of the school as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)2. It is without question that K.H. exercised very poor judgment by posting pictures on Instagram that appear to depict alcohol consumption by minors, but as the ALJ explained in the Initial Decision, the off-school conduct "was not aggravated by further misdeeds or circumstances that might draw the matter across the substantial interference threshold." (Initial Decision at 3) There is no evidence indicating that the Instagram post caused any disruption to the school environment or impacted the orderly administration of the school. In order to meet the material and substantial impact requirement under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a)2 there must be evidence of more than merely a risk or fear of an impact on the school environment. In G.D.M., supra, the Appellate Division emphasized that a board of education may only exercise its authority to discipline a student for off-campus conduct when the conduct materially and substantially interferes with the orderly operation of the school. G.D.M, supra, 427 N.J. Super. at 259. The Commissioner is not persuaded by the Board's argument that – because the student in the picture with K.H. was wearing an Allentown High School sweatshirt and the "sophomore sensation" hashtags were used – the necessary nexus to the school was established. Simply because there was a connection to the school via the sweatshirt and the presence of two student athletes, the conduct did not rise to the level of materially and substantially interfering with the discipline of the school. Therefore, the Board's decision to impose a 30 day suspension on K.H. for the off-campus conduct was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. However, as the ALJ pointed out in the Initial Decision, there is no relief available to the petitioner since the 30 day suspension was already served by K.H. in March 2014, and the Board never put anything involving the suspension into K.H.'s record.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8021-14

AGENCY DKT. NO. 134-5/14

T.H. on behalf of minor child, K.H.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE UPPER FREEHOLD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY.

T.H. on behalf of K.H., petitioner, pro se

Patrick J. Madden, Esq., for respondent (Madden and Madden, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 25, 2015 Decided: July 16, 2015

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ t/a:

This matter arises out of a decision by the Upper Freehold Regional Board of Education to discipline K.H. for certain conduct away from school. Petitioner sought review before the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et. seq. The parties have filed cross-motions for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Amer., 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

The facts are substantially undisputed. During the 2013-14 school year, K.H. was a sophomore at Allentown High School. She was a student athlete involved in a number of sports. In February 2014, during the girls' basketball season, the school principal Constance Embley received two photos in the mail anonymously depicting K.H. and another Allentown sophomore apparently drinking alcoholic beverages. In one of these pictures the companion is wearing an Allentown High School sweatshirt. Both photos had been posted on Instagram with the tag "Sophomore sensations."

Ms. Embley made inquiry with the two students. K.H.'s parents advised her not to answer questions concerning drinking; the companion acknowledged they were drinking beer. K.H. acknowledged posting the photos on Instagram. As a student athlete K.H. signed various forms indicating that she would conduct herself in a manner befitting her standing as a role model within the school. The student handbook reminds student athletes that they are in the public eye and will be subject to scrutiny. Therefore, they must among other things, remain drug- and alcohol-free.

The consequence imposed by the District was suspension for thirty days from the basketball team, no participation in athletic events or practices for thirty days, including weight room, and no year-end banquets or awards for basketball. As it develops K.H. did receive her varsity letter, certificate and pin for the 2013-14 basketball season. The discipline imposed was not recorded in K.H.'s permanent file so as not to impact college prospects.

Petitioner also contests a one-day detention for a social media infraction. During a basketball game on February 15, 2014, K.H. and an opposing player went for a ball and there was what looked like a kicking incident. Later K.H. re-tweeted a derogatory tweet from someone about the opposing player. This was brought to the District's attention by the opposing player's mother and deemed unsporting. The discipline was issued on February 19, 2014; the petition before the Commissioner was filed on May 27, 2014. This is the substance of the record.

Although boards of education enjoy wide latitude in the conduct of school affairs, Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. Of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960), a more circumscribed regulatory scheme has developed around student behavior away from school, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5; G.D.M. v. Bd. Of Educ., Ramapo Indian Hills Sch. Dist., 427 N.J. Super. 246 (App. Div. 2012). To exercise control over such conduct the District must first show a nexus to student health or safety and then establish that this materially and substantially interferes with the orderly operation of the school. During the period in question, the Board had a written policy on the subject, since revised, which attempted to track this regulatory scheme. In Ramapo Indian Hills, the court was faced with a facial attack against a school rule purporting to generally regulate off-campus conduct. The thrust of the District's interest was in drinking or drug use that resulted in arrest. Interpreting the Department's regulations the court found the school rule overbroad and without the required nexus.

The tenor of Ramapo Indian Hills, suggests that the Board here has overstepped. Underage drinking is a potential problem and school authorities are wise to be alert to it. Had these events transpired on school grounds or at a school related function there is no question as to the Board's jurisdiction[1], N.J.S.A. 18A: 37-2. From the administration's perspective a prominent student publicized drinking behavior, which has some potential to influence others and sully the school's reputation. These connections are plausible, but insufficient in the context of rules that require a material and substantial impact on school order. The trigger for district involvement in Ramapo Indian Hills was arrest for illicit use of intoxicants or drugs. That is at least as public as two photos on Instagram. The facts here are not aggravated by further misdeeds or circumstances that might draw the matter across the substantial interference threshold. It appears that this display was no more than an impulsive teenage moment.

[1] Petitioner's brief continues to maintain that K.H. neither confirms nor denies drinking. That posture is discouraged in the context of summary decision. Equivocation is an acknowledgement for purposes of the motion, Brill, supra.

Petitioner seeks various forms of relief, including monetary damages, an apology, an investigation, dismissal of responsible officials and an order enjoining Ms. Embley from further contact with K.H. Some of the remedies sought are simply unavailable under the statutory scheme, others are beyond the scope of this inquiry, and more generally any substantive remedy against the District or any specific individual overreaches. The Board perceived that it was acting in the interest of the student body. That it exceeded its mandate does not vindicate the conduct. Petitioner is entitled to have any record of this event eliminated or marked as having been reversed.

The one-day detention question is in this instance controlled by the 90-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i); Kaprow v. Bd. Of Educ. Of Berkeley, 131 N.J. 572 (1993). From this record K.H. received notice of detention on February 19, 2014. The petition was filed with the Commissioner on May 27, 2014. The 90-day filing rule is typically adhered to strictly. Nothing in petitioner's papers address any basis for exception.

Based on the foregoing, the Board's motion for summary decision is DENIED as to the drinking incident and GRANTED as to the one-day detention. Petitioner's motion seeking reversal of the Board's decision regarding the drinking incident is GRANTED and is DENIED as to the one-day suspension. This concludes the proceeding and it is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF DANIELLE BRODO, STATE-OPERATED	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent – a tenured employee of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark – and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and warrant the termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner, dismissed the respondent from her tenured position in petitioner's school district, and forwarded a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for review and action as that body deems appropriate.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

AGENCY DKT NO. 314-10/15

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF DANIELLE BRODO, STATE-OPERATED	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioner, Robert M. Tosti, Jr., Esq.
No appearance by or on behalf of Respondent, Danielle Brodo

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on October 15, 2015 through tenure charges of conduct unbecoming certified by Christopher Cerf, State District Superintendant of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, together with supporting evidence against respondent Danielle Brodo, a tenured teacher in the petitioner's employ. The petitioner provided respondent with written notice of such certification at her last known address, via Federal Express on October 15, 2015. The petitioner also served a copy of the tenure charges on the respondent's union representative.

On October 16, 2015, the Commissioner directed respondent – via both certified and regular mail – to file an answer to the charges. This communication provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the date such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would – absent granting of an extension for good cause shown – result in the charges being deemed admitted.

The certified tenure charges and statement of supporting evidence filed by the petitioner in this matter indicate that respondent has engaged in a pattern of chronic and excessive absenteeism since the 2014-15 school year, and also in prior years. Specifically, respondent has been absent from work since the afternoon of November 18, 2014. Although respondent submitted a request for a medical leave on January 15, 2015, such request was denied as it was unsigned and contained insufficient medical documentation. Respondent failed to respond or submit further medical records and – to date – remains absent without leave ("AWOL").

The charges and supporting evidence also indicate that respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct, including failure to prepare her classroom for the academic year, failure to prepare lesson plans, failure to comply with building procedures and requirements, failure to act honestly and professionally with parents, failure to respond to emails, failure to improve attendance, failure to supervise students, and failure to be prepared for class.

Deeming the allegations to be admitted and noting that respondent has failed to respond to the charges certified against her, the Commissioner finds that petitioner's charges of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member have been proven and warrant the respondent's dismissal from employment.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the petitioner, and the respondent is dismissed from her tenured position with the District. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

HEARING OF KAREN MACK,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF PATERSON,	:
PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, along with the parties' proposed Settlement Agreement and General Release, have been reviewed. The Commissioner finds that the proposed Agreement – a term of which is respondent's resignation from employment in petitioner's district – is consistent with the established standards governing settlement of tenure matters contained within In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, and as incorporated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

To the extent that Paragraph 13 of the Agreement provides for strict confidentiality, the parties are reminded that the Settlement Agreement may be subject to disclosure pursuant to the Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1, et seq.

Accordingly, the parties' settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the Agreement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 11/19/15

Date of Mailing: 11/19/15

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Agreement") is made by and between the STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, with an address at 90 Delaware Avenue, Paterson, New Jersey 07503, and its successors, assigns, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively, the "School District"), and KAREN MACK, residing at 480 Valley Road, Montclair, New Jersey 07043 ("Employee") (collectively, the "Parties").

WHEREAS Employee is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the School District as a teacher;

WHEREAS the State District Superintendent of the School District ("Superintendent") certified a tenure charge of inefficiency to the Commissioner of Education of New Jersey, captioned In the Matter of Karen Mack, State-operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County ("Tenure Charge"), and the charge has been assigned Agency Docket No. 250-9/15;

WHEREAS, because of the cost and expense of prosecuting the charge and the uncertainty of its outcome, the Parties wish to resolve this matter in accordance with the terms set forth herein rather than proceed with arbitration; and

WHEREAS the proposed settlement is in the best interest of the Parties and the public because it avoids an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly proceedings at the expense of the public;

NOW, THEREFORE, subject to approval by the Commissioner, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Immediately upon execution of this Agreement, Employee will resign from her employment in the School District, effective 15 school days from the Effective Date of this Agreement as set forth below ("Resignation Date"). Attached as Exhibit A is a copy of Employee's signed letter of resignation.

2. Between the Effective Date and the Resignation Date, Employee will receive the following compensation:

(a) For the first ten school days after the Effective Date, salary at a prorated rate equivalent to one-half of her current annual salary, minus all applicable withholdings and deductions, payable in accordance with the School District's normal payroll procedures;

(b) For the eleventh through fifteenth school days after the Effective Date, salary at her current annual salary rate, minus all applicable withholdings and deductions, payable in accordance with the School District's normal payroll procedures; and

(c) All employee benefits due to her from the Effective Date to the Resignation Date, at the benefit levels and in accordance with all terms in effect on the Effective Date.

3. In exchange for Employee's resignation, the School District agrees to dismissal of the Tenure Charge, and further agrees not to pursue a tenure charge so long as this Agreement remains in effect and is not ruled invalid or void by any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction. However, if this Agreement is ruled invalid or void, the School District retains the right to pursue action against Employee, including but not limited to tenure charges and termination from the School District.

4. This Agreement is based on the understanding that the facts underlying the Tenure Charge do not constitute grounds for disciplinary action or penalty imposed on Employee and do not give rise to any obligation on the part of the School District to notify the State Board of Examiners or Division of Pensions. The School District agrees not to seek suspension or revocation of Employee's teaching certification or license and not to challenge her right to apply for or receive pension benefits on any grounds related to the Tenure Charge or her resignation pursuant to this Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Employee understands that this Agreement is not intended to affect the possibility of any proceedings that may be pursued by the State Board of Examiners relative to her teaching certificate.

5. The School District will not contest any application for unemployment compensation that Employee may make relative to her separation from employment with the Paterson Public Schools.

6. As of the Resignation Date, all of Employee's rights of employment with the School District, including but not limited to salary, benefits, tenure and seniority, will permanently end.

7. Employee will not apply for reemployment with the School District at any time. If Employee does apply for reemployment with the School District and is approved for employment, the terms of this Agreement shall control and shall be grounds for immediate termination of Employee's employment. Additionally, Employee shall not enter onto the premises of any school in the School District without express written permission of the principal. If Employee does enter onto the premises of any school in the School District without such permission, all of the School District's obligations under this Agreement shall cease immediately.

8. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 2 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Employee hereby waives and releases any and all claims of any nature against the School District, including any claim for attorneys' fees, costs or other monetary relief, and hereby releases and discharges the School District with respect to any and all claims or rights that she has or may have against the School District. This waiver, release and discharge includes, without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Employee's employment with the School District or separation from employment with the School District. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Employee may have regarding tenure, seniority, compensation in any form, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, and any and all claims of violation of Employee's rights under any federal or state civil rights law; any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; disability benefits laws; retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law; the United States Constitution and the New Jersey Constitution; any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance; and any claim based on contract, implied contract, collective bargaining agreement, tort law, personal injury, or public policy, having any bearing whatsoever on her employment by and/or termination of her employment with the School District, including but not limited to any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wages, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss.

9. Notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 8 of this Agreement, Employee does not waive any right she may have to workers compensation benefits or pension benefits. Moreover, notwithstanding the terms of paragraph 8, Employee is not and shall not be prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor or the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Should either such agency file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the School District based upon any of the claims in Paragraph 8, Employee agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

10. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, if applicable, this Agreement advises Employee of the legal requirements of that Act and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Employee acknowledges that she: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives her right to pursue any current claims she may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given sufficient time within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has seven (7) days from the date of her execution of this Agreement to revoke it. Employee understands that she may rescind this Agreement within seven (7) calendar days of signing it, and that such rescission must be in writing and delivered to counsel for the School District either by hand or by certified mail within the seven-day period.

11. This Agreement shall not be effective, and the School District shall have no obligation hereunder, until seven (7) calendar days from the date of Employee's execution of this Agreement or the date of the School District's receipt of approval by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to paragraph 22 below, whichever is later ("Effective Date").

12. Employee's separation from employment will be deemed a voluntary resignation in good standing. Upon inquiry from any third party to authorized employees or representatives of the School District, those employees or representatives will provide no information other than to confirm Employee's employment, position, salary and dates of employment, and state that the reason for her separation from employment was her resignation.

13. Except as set forth herein, Employee shall keep the terms of this Agreement strictly confidential. Employee is expressly forbidden from discussing this Agreement with any person, other than her accountant, tax advisor and attorney ("permitted disclosures") and any other individual or entity as necessary to implement the Agreement or to which they are legally obligated to respond ("legally-required disclosures"). In making any permitted disclosure, Employee agrees that she will inform the person to whom she makes the permitted disclosure that the existence and substance of this Agreement, the settlement negotiations giving rise to this Agreement, and the sum of money paid pursuant to this Agreement are to be held strictly confidential to the fullest extent permitted by law. In the event of any breach of this confidentiality provision, all of the School District's obligations under this Agreement shall cease immediately. The School District agrees that it will keep the terms of this Agreement confidential to the extent permitted by law.

14. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other employees.

15. The Parties each acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Agreement and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

16. Each signatory to this Agreement understands, acknowledges and agrees that this Agreement constitutes the full agreement of the parties and may not be altered, amended, modified, or otherwise changed in any respect whatsoever except by a duly executed writing signed on behalf of both Parties.

17. This Agreement shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law. The Commissioner of Education and/or federal and state courts of the State of New Jersey, as applicable in accordance with such law, shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising from, in connection with, or related to this Agreement.

18. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts with the same effect as if the signatures hereto and thereto were upon the same instrument. Each counterpart will be deemed an original, which taken together shall constitute a single instrument. Facsimile signatures or signatures in electronic Portable Document Format ("PDF") shall be construed and have the same force and effect as original signatures.

19. This Agreement and any uncertainty or ambiguity therein shall not be construed against any party, but shall be construed as if both Parties jointly prepared this Agreement.

20. Each party acknowledges that this is the entire agreement of the Parties concerning the subject matter hereof, and that there are no written or oral representations, understandings or agreements directly or indirectly connected with this Agreement.

21. If any provision of this Agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction or determined under applicable law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue and remain in full force and effect.

22. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, and will become effective only upon approval by the Commissioner. Counsel for the Parties shall jointly request the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement and each shall take any and all necessary steps to effectuate dismissal of the Tenure Charge.

Re: N.C., on behalf of minor child, D.C. v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, Agency Dkt. No. 245-9/15.

Dear Parties:

Upon review of the Petition of Appeal filed in connection with the matter entitled N.C., on behalf of minor child, D.C. v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, Agency Dkt. No. 245-9/15, and based upon the Board's failure to submit an Answer to the petition, I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioner.

On September 4, 2015, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1 et seq. claiming that D.C. was entitled to attend school in the District in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. A copy of the Petition of Appeal was served upon the Board Secretary via facsimile on September 8, 2015, together with an acknowledgment of filing and notice that an Answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because the Board failed to respond to the initial notice, on September 29, 2015, a second notice was sent to the Board Secretary – via certified and regular mail – clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition of Appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter may be decided on a summary decision basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). The Board also failed to respond to the second notice. On October 23, 2015, a final notice was sent to the Board Secretary – via certified and regular mail, with a copy to counsel for the Board – again clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition of Appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter may be decided on a summary decision basis.

New Jersey Is An Equal Opportunity Employer • Printed on Recycled Paper and Recyclable

To date, no Answer has been filed on behalf of the Board. Accordingly, petitioner's claim that D.C. is entitled to attend school in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. is deemed admitted by the Board. The Board is hereby ordered to continue to admit D.C. into its public school system, free of charge, so long as there is no change in circumstances that would alter that entitlement.*

Record Closed: October 7, 2015 Decided: October 8, 2015

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Melinda Heuschneider filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the non-renewal of her employment contract for the 2013-2014 school year by the Board of Education of the Borough of Fort Lee. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 12, 2013, for determination as a contested case.

Prior to hearing, the parties agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and submitted a written Stipulation of Settlement. Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND as follows:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of the settlement, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

MELINDA HEUSCHNEIDER, Plaintiff, v. FORT LEE BOARD OF EDUCATION, Defendant.	Docket No. EDU-9790-2013N Agency Docket No.: 143-6/13 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The Fort Lee Board of Education ("Board") and Melinda Heuschneider hereby enter into the following Stipulation of Settlement:

1. Ms. Heuschneider was an employee of the Fort Lee Board of Education;

2. Ms. Heuschneider was non-renewed for the 2012-2013 academic year;

3. Following her non-renewal, an action was commenced by Ms. Heuschneider;

4. After good faith negotiations between the Board and Ms. Heuschneider, a settlement has been reached and the matter is resolved;

5. The Board agrees to provide Ms. Heuschneider with a Letter of Recommendation and in consideration therefore, Ms. Heuschneider agrees to the following:

6. Ms. Heuschneider hereby releases, waives, and discharges the Board, and its present and former board members, officers, employees, and representatives, and their estates and/or heirs thereof from any and all claims, which she, her estate and/or heirs may have against any of them;

7. This releases and waives all claims, known and unknown, resulting from anything which has happened up to now, including claims for attorney's fees arising up to the date of the execution of this release;

8. Without limiting the scope of the foregoing provision in any way, Ms. Heuschneider specifically releases all claims, which were or could have been asserted by her;

9. Ms. Heuschneider also releases and waives all claims relating to or arising out of any aspect of her employment to date with the Board, including but not limited to, all claims under Title VII of The Civil Rights Act; The Civil Rights Act of 1991 and the laws amended thereby; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Employee Resignation Income Security Act of 1974; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Act, and any related federal, state or local law claims, and any claims of discrimination based on race, age, sex, religion, color, creed, handicap or disability, citizenship, national origin, and any other factor prohibited by any federal, state or local law, rule, regulation or guideline; any claim for wrongful discharge; any contract of employment, express or implied; any provision of the Constitution of the United States or the State of New Jersey; and any other law, common or statutory, of the United States, the State of New Jersey or any other state; any claims for the negligent and/or intentional infliction of emotional distress or specific intent to harm; any claims for attorneys' fees, costs and/or expenses; any claims for unpaid or withheld wages, severance pay, benefits, bonuses, deferred compensation, and/or other compensation of any kind; and/or any other federal, state or local human rights, civil rights, wage and hour, wage payment, pension or labor laws, rules and/or regulations, and all claims growing out of any legal restrictions on the Board's right to hire and/or terminate its employees, including all claims that were asserted and/or that could have been asserted by Ms. Heuschneider.

10. Specifically excluded from this general release is Ms. Heuschneider's right upon cessation of employment by the board to obtain continued medical coverage at her own expense under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1986 (COBRA); any rights she may have arising under the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) and related statutes and regulations; any rights she may have for indemnification by the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and -6.1; and any rights she may have under the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1, et seq.

11. Ms. Heuschneider also promises not to sue and waives all claims against the Board covered by this Stipulation of Settlement. If one party breaches this promise by suing the other for any such claims, the breaching party will pay all costs and expenses the other party incurs defending against the suit, including reasonable attorney's fees and costs. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Parties reserve their right to enforce the terms of and this Stipulation of Settlement.

12. This Agreement shall not constitute and/or establish any past practice or precedent for any proceeding, and may neither be cited nor relied upon in the event of any future dispute between the District and its Employees.

13. The Parties understand and agree that this Agreement is the compromise of disputed claims and that the consideration set forth herein is not to be construed as an admission of any allegation and/or of liability on the part of any Party hereto.

14. This Agreement contains the entire agreement between the District and Ms. Heuschneider with respect to the subject matter and supersedes all prior agreements or understandings dealing with the same subject matter. There is no agreement on the part of the District to do anything other than as is expressly stated in this Agreement. This Agreement shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed by the Laws of the State of New Jersey.

15. Ms. Heuschneider acknowledges that she was advised to consult with an attorney regarding this Stipulation of Settlement; and that she has read this Stipulation of Settlement and fully understands it and agrees to be bound by it. Ms. Heuschneider also acknowledges that she has been given a reasonable period of time within which to consider this settlement and the terms of this Stipulation of Settlement prior to executing it.

BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES

In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of John Costello:

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NORTHFIELD

Case No. 150-7/15

OPINION

JOHN COSTELLO

Before:
Edmund Gerber, Arbitrator

Appearances:
For the School District of the City of Northfield
John G. Geppert, Jr., Esq.
Syrion A. Jack, Esq., on the Brief
Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso

For the Respondent:
Michael B. Berman, Esq.

The Northfield Board of Education filed tenure charges against Respondent John Costello on July 1, 2015. On July 20, 2015, the State of New Jersey Department of Education deemed the tenure charges sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary and the charges were referred to me, Edmund Gerber, as arbitrator. Hearings were conducted by telephone on August 17, 2015 in the offices of the Northfield Board of Education in Northfield, New Jersey on September 11, 18, 28 and October 5, 2015 and by telephone on October 8, 2015. Both parties examined and cross-examined witnesses and introduced evidence. Both parties submitted briefs which were received by November 4, 2015.

CHARGES

The charges filed by the Board of Education consisted of the following:

Charge 1

The charges allege unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause for dismissal including but not necessarily limited to insubordination and incompetence related to failure to discharge responsibilities in caring for students who have suffered injury or illness.

Count 1

Specifically, Count 1 alleges that Costello violated the School's standing order concerning the protocol for administering to students suffering seizures on or about November 5, 2014.

Count 2

Count two alleges that the Respondent violated standing orders on November 10, 2014 when he was summoned to attend to a third grade student who he was informed had passed out by failing to promptly respond to a student and taking less than thirty seconds to assess the student's health status and failed to evaluate the child or ask her questions before escorting her to the nurse's office.

Count 3

On or about January 16, 2015, Respondent failed to follow standing orders when he called the School's Principals to the nurse's office where they found a third grade student crying by the Respondent's desk. The student stated she did not feel well and was going to throw up. The Respondent failed to care for the student and was visibly upset, stating that he was upset because the student was sent to his office by the teacher without a nurse's pass. The Respondent continued to state he was upset with how he was being treated. The Principals directed the Respondent to call the student's parent and sent the child back to her classroom.

Charge 2

Charge 2, Conduct unbecoming and/or other just cause for dismissal, including not necessarily limited to insubordination and incompetence related to failure to perform duties. The foregoing counts facts alleged are incorporated by reference into this charge.

Count 1

Board Policy No. 5141, Health, requires that the nurse assist with physical examinations; conduct biannual scoliosis screenings, and conduct audiometric screening. On or about May 7, 2015, Mr. Costello failed to update the referral forms needed to be sent home regarding students who failed their annual health screening performed in the nurse's office.

Count 2

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.2(H)(1)(ii)(1), prior to participation in a school sponsored athletic or intramural athletic team or squad for students enrolled in any grades from 6 to 12, the report of health findings or medical examination for participation shall be documented on forms approved by the Commissioner of Education. Respondent was required to update the newly approved sport physical forms. Despite the foregoing, during the period prior to May 7, 2015, Respondent failed to update the newly approved sport physical forms.

Count 3

Pursuant to Board policy, all medications prescribed by a physician for particular students as well as all over the counter medications shall be securely stored and kept in their original labeled container. On or about May 7, 2015, the Respondent's personal prescription medication was discovered in an unlocked drawer within the health office together with a number of unlabeled prescription medicines.

Count 4

Board Policy 5141.21 also requires that "all medications brought to school by the parent or guardian shall be picked up at the end of the school year or at the end of the period of medication." However, on or about May 7, 2015, expired, unmarked medications were discovered in the closet of the nurse's office and in the active medication cabinets.

Count 5

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3), the responsibilities of the certified school nurse shall include the maintenance of student health records as well as, based upon a parent's failure to provide evidence of a child's immunizations, recommendations to the school principal students who shall not be admitted or retained in the school building. Further, the nurse shall annually review student immunization records that any exemption from immunization continues to be applicable to any student. On or about May 7, 2015, student vaccination records maintained by the Respondent were discovered in the health office in an unmarked folder.

Count 6

The Respondent also failed to enter vaccination records into the electronic computer system.

Count 7

Pursuant to Board of Education Policy No. 5141.21, Administering Medication, Mr. Costello is required to maintain a copy of physicians' standing orders in the nurse's office and record the name of the student to whom medications may be administered, the prescribing physician, the dosage and timing of medication and a record of each instance of administration. On or about May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain the physicians' standing orders for medication administration and emergency medication administration.

Count 8

Pursuant to Board Policy, the Respondent was charged with the responsibility of maintaining the District's Automated External Defibrillators (AED), on or about May 7, 2015, Respondent had failed to connect an AED box to the alarm, failed to update the pads and batteries and failed to maintain the log in both the AED box and in a binder in the health office.

Count 9

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b) (3) (iii), it is the responsibility of the nurse to maintain student health records. Access to and disclosure of information in the student health records shall meet the requirements of the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). On or about May 8, 2015, bills for an AED and a letter dated back to 2004 regarding a student's health issue were kept in a box used to store feminine products which is located by the reception desk in the nurse's office.

Count 10

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6A:32-7.4(b), school districts may store all documents either electronically or in paper format. Prior to May 8, 2015, the Respondent failed to complete the electronic version of each student's health history and appraisal form and failed to merge the information with the student's current electronic vaccination records. The lack of continuity between the paper and electronic form of each student's health history cause the District to be incompliant when running a Vaccination Compliance Report.

Count 11

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.1(a), each school district shall ensure immunization records shall be reviewed and updated annually. Moreover, pursuant to Board Regulation 5141.3, Health Examinations and Immunization Procedures, every school shall maintain in its health office a State of New Jersey immunization record for every student. The record shall include the date of each immunization and shall be separated from the child's other medical records for purposes of immunization record audit. The nurse is responsible for annually reviewing student immunization records. On May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain up to date student vaccination records as it was discovered that the student vaccination records and student vaccination certifications were not entered into the electronic form of a student's health and history appraisal.

Count 12

Despite the fact that Board Policy 5141.3 requires every school to maintain official State of New Jersey immunization records for every student and that this record shall be separated from the child's other medical records for the purpose of immunization record audits, on or about November 24, 2014, Respondent's actions were deficient on approximately 37 occasions due to the Respondent's failure to collect and record sixth grade immunizations as required by the Atlantic County Department of Human Services following an immunization audit of the Northfield Community School.

Count 13

Board Policy 5141, Health, provides that the school nurse shall have the primary responsibility for the administration of glucagon to a student with diabetes who is experiencing severe hypoglycemia. Despite the foregoing, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain a glucometer in accordance with the aforementioned policy and regulation in the nurse's office in order to evaluate for hypoglycemia of students or staff.

Count 14

Board Policy 1541.21, Administering Medication, provides that the Board shall permit the school nurse or school physician to administer epinephrine via epi-pen or other prefilled auto-injector mechanism in emergency situations. On or about May 8, 2015, it was discovered that the Respondent allowed the epi-pen and epi-pen juniors located in the nurse's office to expire. Accordingly, no emergency epi-pens would have been available in the event of an anaphylaxis reaction of a student or staff member.

Count 15

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-12.7, each public school in the State shall have and maintain for the use of pupils at least one nebulizer in the office of the school nurse or other accessible location. Moreover, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6A:16-2.1(a)(5)(i), the treatment of asthma in the school setting shall include but shall not be limited to the requirement that each school nurse shall be authorized to administer asthma medication through the use of a nebulizer. Despite the foregoing, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain nebulizer tubing, stock albuterol, and/or masks or wands in the nurse's office.

Count 16

Pursuant to the District's Nursing Services Plan for the 2014-2015 school year, 12 students were identified as "Level II: Medically Fragile"; that is, students with complicated healthcare needs that each day face a possibility of a life-threatening emergency requiring the skill and judgment of a professional nurse. Examples may include but are not limited to severe seizure disorder requiring medication. Yet, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent had no initialized healthcare plan available for a student who experienced a seizure in school and no seizure log where pertinent information regarding all seizure students could be readily identified and treated in the event of an emergency.

Count 17

On or about May 6, 2015, the Respondent failed to update a student's electronic medical record with a neurologist note detailing the treatment protocol of a student with a history of seizures when the student presents with a headache, despite the fact that the documents had been sent into the nurse's office on January 2015, stamped and marked received on January 9, 2015 and stored within the student's paper file.

Count 18

Although pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3)(i), the nurse is required to carry out written orders of the medical home and standing orders of the school physician, on or about May 8, 2015, the Respondent maintained written protocols in the nurse's office. No standing orders were available, nor were there any signed copies in the nurse's office. The binder marked standing orders located within the nurse's office only included protocols for care.

Count 19

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3), the responsibility of the certified school nurse shall include assisting in the development of and implementing health care procedures for students in the event of an emergency and "writing and updating at least annually the individualized healthcare plans and individualized emergency plans for students' medical needs and instructing staff as appropriate." Yet, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain any plans regarding health issues in the nurse's office.

Count 20

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3)(xii), the nurse shall update in writing at least annually individual healthcare plans and individualized emergency healthcare plans for students' medical needs and instructing staff as appropriate. Nevertheless, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent failed to maintain any staff instruction file or lesson in the nurse's office.

Count 21

Board Policy 5141, Health, provides for the implementation of procedures for cardiopulmonary resuscitation and AED use, specifically stating that the Chief School Administrator shall oversee the development and implementation of a District emergency action plan that establishes guidelines for the use of the AED. The emergency plan shall include a list of no less than five school employees, team coaches or licensed athletic trainers who hold current certifications recognized by the Department of Health in Pulmonary Resuscitation and the use of a defibrillator. The list shall be updated as necessary at least once in each semester of the school year. Further, detailed procedures on responding to a sudden cardiac event including the identification of the persons in the school who will be responsible for: responding to the person experiencing the sudden cardiac event, calling 911, starting cardiopulmonary resuscitation, retrieving and using the defibrillator and assisting emergency responders in getting to the individual experiencing the sudden cardiac event. However, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent has failed to maintain an AED log in the nurse's office, document monthly checks of the machine and make the emergency action plan readily available in a clearly marked binder within the nurse's office.

Count 22

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3)(iii), it is the responsibility of the school nurse to maintain student health records in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4. N.J.S.C. 6A:16-2.4(c) provides that access to and disclosure of information in the student health record shall meet the requirements of FERPA and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7. Despite these requirements, on or about May 8, 2015, Respondent stored confidential student and staff health information in an unlocked closet located within the nurse's office. The foregoing acts and omissions by the Respondent as set forth in the above counts, individually and cumulatively, constitute unbecoming conduct and/or just cause warranting dismissal, including insubordination and incompetence.

Charge 3 – Incapacity

The foregoing charges and specific counts are incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein. During a conference held on or about November 19, 2014, Respondent indicated to interim superintendent Garguilo in the presence of union representative, Mr. Levy, that he had difficulty recalling the incidents and commented that he had trouble remembering a lot of things this year. On or about January 16, 2015, Mr. Costello was observed by Principal Robbins and Principal Vaccaro with trembling hands and was experiencing body vibrations. Mr. Costello made several loud rambling statements regarding his dissatisfaction with his current position, including that he was "tired of the abuse from staff and couldn't take it any more" which resulted in both Principals advising respondent to go home. The Respondent was directed to admit to a psychological examination. Clinical Psychologist Dr. Chester C. Sigafoos, Ph.D., assessed respondent's psychological functioning and his fitness for duty. Dr. Sigafoos concluded that given Respondent's psychopathological condition, in the role of a school nurse, there are no meaningful school accommodations that can be made and Respondent is not fit for a return to duty as a nurse. As a result, Respondent has been out of work since on or about February 20, 2015. Respondent's inability to perform his job duties with or without reasonable accommodations constitutes incapacity and/or other just cause warranting dismissal based upon unfitness for duty. To date, Mr. Costello has not returned to his positon and has been determined not to be fit for duty. His inability to return to his position has had and continues to have a negative impact on the school district.

Charge 4

Unbecoming conduct warranting dismissal related to a pattern of numerous and ongoing inappropriate acts and omissions. All of the foregoing background information, charges counts, and the facts set forth are therein incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein. The Commissioner of Education and the courts recognize that the totality of a pattern of conduct may constitute unbecoming conduct, even when the individual acts comprising it may not. See e.g. Cowan v. Bernardsville Board of Ed., Tenure Hearing of Gray Young and Tenure Hearing of Donald Dudley. The course of misconduct set forth in the within charges and counts jointly and severally based upon numerous ongoing infractions over an extended period of time constitutes a pattern of inappropriate conduct which rises to the level of unbecoming conduct. This pattern in the course of unbecoming conduct during the extended period of time manifestly demonstrates the respondent's unprofessional attitude, recalcitrance and general unfitness to continue to serve as a public school nurse warranting his immediate dismissal.

BACKGROUND

John Costello has been a Certified School Nurse with the District since September 2001. The building in which Costello works contains two separate schools, a primary and elementary school and a middle school. Each school has its own principal. Prior to the 2014-2015 school year Costello was one of two full time school nurses assigned to the building and enjoyed a satisfactory work record

However, at the conclusion of the 2013-2014 school year, fellow nurse Virginia Wolf retired and the Board replaced the full time school nurse positon with a part-time position and hired a part-time nurse.

THE BOARD'S WITNESSES

On November 10, 2014, at approximately 12:10 p.m. students were moving to different classrooms when C., a student in a third grade class, became ill. The incident was recorded by the security cameras, and that recording was introduced into evidence Exhibit P-48. According to teacher Sadye Heenan, Student C was pale and holding her stomach. C started to stumble and Henan grabbed her and another teacher, Ms. Morales came to help. Heenan testified that Student C was not responding to any questions and as can be seen in the recording, she became limp. Heenan sat on the ground and lowered C to her lap. A third teacher, Mrs. Levy can be seen with Heenan and C. When C. collapses Heenan asked Levy to get the school nurse. Levy can be seen leaving C and running down the hall. Another section of the recoding shows Levy arriving at the nurse's office on the run and then leaving the nurses office with Costello. Levy moved swiftly back to Student C. However, Costello can be seen waiting in the hallway for a class to pass and then walking in a deliberate manner well behind Levy, all the while with a letter sized paper in his mouth. During this time Student C. remained slumped in Heenan's lap. As soon as Costello arrived at the scene he immediately reached down, held C. by the wrist with one hand and held her under the arm with the other and lifted her to her feet and, with Heenan holding C'.s other arm, the two walked C. back to his office. It is apparent that Costello never spoke a word to anyone since he never removed the paper from his mouth. Heenan testified that Costello was actually humming with the paper in his mouth while walking C. to the nurse's office.

When they arrived at the nurses office Costello told Heenan to put Student C into a chair. He stated that he was going to call C.'s home so that her mom can pick her up. Henan left and got Student C's things. Heenan testified that this was not a little girl that was looking for attention. She thought that this was an urgent matter for C. She had passed out and needed a wheel chair; it was an emergency and should as such. Heenan was so upset about how Costello behaved that she cried afterward.

Lauren Morales' testimony was consistent with Heenan's. She testified that C. was unresponsive to any questions that were asked of her and thought she was unconscious. Morales was upset by the way Costello treated the matter. She was concerned about C. but Costello just walked up with a paper in his mouth and without a word picked C. up to her feet and walked her away. Morales did not expect Costello to run necessarily but to respond quickly. Rather, he just walked up and seemed unconcerned Laura Levy's testimony was also consistent. She testified that Student C was beginning to gag as if she were going to vomit and Levy said that she would get Costello. She ran to the nurse's office and told Costello to come quickly. Costello called to another adult in the office and said he'd be right back. He followed Levy out of the office asking where C. was. When Levy and Costello were at the double doors to the atrium, a class was coming through in the opposite direction. Levy said excuse me and made her way through the passing students. Costello waited for the students to pass before following Levy. Costello made no attempt to catch up to Levy. When Levy returned to Mrs. Henan and Student C, she could see the student appeared incoherent. The student did not appear to be conscious and her hands were making unnatural jerking movements. Levy was appalled at Costello's behavior. He made no attempt to move quickly and said nothing at all to C. or ask the teacher's attending her what happened.

The School's standing orders for fainting [Exhibit P-3, NF118] directs that if a student faints have her lie flat for at least fifteen minutes, keep her warm and take her temperature.

On November 5, 2014, at 2:55 p.m., Costello was summoned to a class to attend to a student was having a seizure.

Teacher, Fran Cusick was informed by student L's aide that L was having a seizure. Cusick could see that the student was having a seizure and called the nurse's office but only received a message service. Upon hanging up the phone another teacher, Ms. Martin, called about an unrelated matter. Cusick asked Martin to go to the nurse's office and have the nurse come to her room. Within minutes Costello arrived and said to Cusick "he had to go to work". Costello then walked over to Student L who alert and was able to get up from his desk on his own. Costello and the student's aide, Ms. Gitto escorted Student L from the room. Several days later, Costello delivered a flyer about seizures to Cusick but did had no discussion with Cusick about seizures in general or student L in particular. The flyer described how to treat different types of seizures. For a mild or absence seizure (formerly known as a petit mal seizure) apparently suffered by Student L, no particular treatment is necessary. Mrs. Cusick tried to call Costello to discuss the proper procedures for handling Student L if he has another such seizure but Costello was out of the building. Cusick called again but was unable to reach him.

Costello never discussed the proper procedure for handling such absence seizures with Cusick.

November 19, 2014 meeting

Acting Superintendent Garguilo testified that he had a meeting with Costello on November 19 concerning the events that occurred on November 10. At Garguilo's request Mr. Levy, an Association Representative, was present at the meeting. Garguilo asked Costello about a third grade girl who passed out in the hallway. According to Garguilo, Costello responded "I don't know what you're talking about. Someone passed out in the hallway? And this was on Tuesday? I was out two days last week and I was here on Tuesday? I don't know if I'm coming or going to be honest with you. Was it at a particular time?" Garguilo responded, "It was coming out of Ms. Burnet's gym class. You don't recall any of this?" Costello stated "I got called to fourth grade for a student who was having a seizure. I don't know even if I knew the information right now. I would have to get my notes. Was a JIF report generated by a teacher? I will be honest with you, I don't remember a lot of things this year." The Superintendent said it was Monday, approximately 12:00 p.m. According to the teacher she was wobbly and then went down. According to Garguilo, Costello responded, "it's starting to make a little more sense but I would still have to see my notes." The Superintendent then gave the name of the student then Costello asked, "can I ask what you heard happened?" Garguilo responded a child passed out. You came down, picked up the child and brought her to the office. Check your notes and get back to us. Write a document report."

Immunization Records

Garguilo testified that on November 24, 2014, the Atlantic County Department of Human Services conducted an immunization audit to ensure that the students at the middle school were properly vaccinated or received exemptions. The immunization records were kept by the school nurse. The Atlantic County investigators found that 37 students did not have proof of proper immunizations. According to Garguilo, the 37 deficiencies were all in the sixth grade and the deficiencies were due to the Respondent's failure to collect or record said sixth grade immunizations.

Garguilo also noted that when the County first notified Costello of its intention to County to review the Board's immunization records, the Respondent scheduled them for a day that the school was to be closed for the Jewish holiday, Rosh Hashanah, so when the County officials came to the school they found it was closed. According to Garguilo, the district schools have traditionally been closed for the holiday.

January 16, 2015 meeting

On January 16, 2015, Maureen Vaccaro, the Principal of the primary and elementary school was told by a staff member at approximately 8:30 a.m. that Costello needed her immediately. She arrived at the nurse's office at the same time as the Principal of the middle school, Glenn Robbins. According to Vaccaro, when the two Principals entered the nurse's office, a third grade girl was crying while seated by Costello's desk and Costello was sitting at his desk. Costello immediately got up and went to the back of the office and sat down in another chair. He started to shake. His hands were trembling and his entire body seemed to be vibrating. Vaccaro said, "John, just sit, take a breath, relax, breathe." Costello responded loudly, "I am tired of this. I can't take this anymore. I have asked for help from the administration and I don't get it. When I call you and ask for help and you never get back to me. You never answer me." He yelled and repeated at Robbins that Robbins never gets back to him. Vaccaro asked where the student came from and Costello stated that "she was sent to me by Mrs. Heenan. This is what I mean. She was sent because the teacher said she might be getting sick. That she didn't feel well. That she said she was going to throw up and this is what I mean. She sent her to me without a nurse's pass. What am I supposed to do about that? I get no respect from the teachers, and I'm tired of how they speak to me."

Glen Robbins' testimony was similar. He also witnessed Costello's entire body begin to shake and he stated that "he was sick and tired of being disrespected by faculty, as one teacher proceeded to send a student to him, the student was crying at the time, because she didn't feel well." According to Robbins, Costello rambled on making several statements in regards to staff and not getting support from the administration. Also that he was "tired of the abuse from staff and couldn't take it anymore." Both Vaccaro and Robbins commented that these statements were made in the presence of the young student sitting in the office.

Vaccaro said that Costello needed to go home and was asked if he would be able to drive or would he need a ride. The Principals then arranged for a substitute. Costello called up the student's home, then took the student back to class and Costello was still visibly upset but said he would leave on his own once he was settled. Costello left the building at approximately 9:50 a.m. Vaccaro called Costello on Saturday, the 17th, to see if he felt any better. Costello said he was feeling better. He had visited his doctor on Friday and that he was prescribed medicine to help calm him and that on Friday he had been coming off of steroids. He said that he felt much better.

On February 19, 2015, Costello was placed on administrative leave by Garguilo and has not returned to work.

Preliminary Discipline

On February 24, 2015, Garguilo notified Costello that upon his recommendation the Northfield Board of Education passed a resolution pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 withholding his increment for the 2015-2016 school year. The increment was being withheld specifically because of his response to the two medical emergencies of November 10 and November 11 because of his failure to assess either of the students' medical condition before "swiftly and carelessly moving the students to your office. Moreover, on November 24, 2014 the District was cited by the Department of Human Services for its failure to collect and record sixth grade immunizations."

Also on February 24, 2015, the Respondent was directed to submit to physical and mental examinations. The stated reasons for the direction of such examinations were because of: a) the manner in which he responded to ill students, particularly so on November 10, 2014' b) the manner in which he provided Cusick a leaflet on first aid for seizures without ever discussing the nature of this folder or the appropriate way for her to treat a student having a seizure, c) because of his memory loss at the conference with Garguilo on November 19, 2014, and d) because of the occasion on January 15, 2015 wherein Costello beckoned principals Vaccaro and Robbins to his office and acted inappropriately before a student in his office. He was shaking and visibly upset because the student was sent to the nurse's office without a note.

As directed by the District, the Respondent underwent an evaluation by Chester A. Sigafoos. PhD. Sigafoos conducted a preliminary interview with Costello and initially believed that Costello did not have any serious psychological problems. However, he then administered a battery of tests to Costello, including Paulhus Deception Scales, Bender-Gestalt Perceptual Motor Examination, Rorschach Ink Blot Test, State-Trait Anger Expression Inventory, Million Clinical Multiaxial Inventory and Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory. After interpreting the results of the test and examining those results in light of Costello's work record, Sigafoos issued a 46 page report which concluded that Costello had formed a maladaptive way to manage complex situations and found in part:

> In summary this is a very complex and distraught man. He is able to accurately perceive his world and his functioning in it. This presents as a double edge sword because just as much as he sees positive aspects he will also accurately see negative aspects. As the present time he is seeing negative aspects in himself which would account for why he tried to fake good in his presentation during the evaluation. He lacks a consistent and well defined coping style and will alternate ineffectively between expressive and ideational ways of dealing with his situations. He is likely to conduct himself in an unpredictable way. Recognizing that he does not have adequate coping styles to deal with his current levels of stress only heightens his anxiety and depression. He may have been effective in managing his stress in the past but current testing shows that he cannot do that now.

Sigafoos concluded that, given Respondent's psychopathological condition and the role of a school nurse, there are no meaningful workplace accommodations that can be made and Respondent is not fit for return to duty as a nurse. "[t]he role of the school nurse requires clarity of thought, good decision making, rational thought processes, being responsive, good moral judgement and freedom from clinical or characterological pathologies that will interfere with performance and execution of his duties".

Sigafoos testified that that providing an accommodation of another school nurse to address a workload problem, doesn't address the central issue that being able to perform one's duties first and foremost requires him to be an independent health practitioner free of mental disease, defect and/or limitations

Sigafoos' made the following diagnosis: Generalized anxiety disorder, major depression, obsessive compulsive personality disorder, avoidant personality traits and schizoid personality traits. His recommendations were that the prognosis for is poor. He is not fit for duty.

Denise Petro was hired as a substitute nurse on April 28, 2015. She is a registered nurse and has a substitute certification but is not a licensed school nurse. She testified as to how she found the nurse's office in disarray. On May 7, 2015, she provided Garguilo with an itemized list of those areas where she believed the nurse's office was deficient. [Exhibit P-10].

As per your request, I would like to document the following finding from the health office:

1. Referral forms needed to send home for students who failed their annual health screening performed in the health office were not located. The IT department was able to find a decade old form that I updated.
2. All of the Sport physical forms that were available in the health office were not the new approved forms.
3. Prescription medication was found in an unlocked desk drawer. The medication was both personal medication and unlabeled prescriptions. (noted early via e-mail to you)
4. Outdated medication were located in a bag in the closet and also in the active medication cabinets. Within the bag were unlabeled and unmarked medication that was identified as Excedrin. (Children should not take Excedrin due to the Aspirin component and caffeine.)

5. Some screening were completed and documented in the computer and not on the student's A-85 and vice versa.
6. Student with doctor's treatment protocol from their neurologist was not entered in the computer. After searching for the students file, the letter was located and mark rec 1/29/2015. See attached. (date 5/5/2015)
7. Vaccine records found in an unmarked folder. Crossed reference and they were not completely entered into the computer.
8. Unable to find signed physician order standing orders for school medication administration. Emergency medication standing orders not located. Examples: epi-pens, albuterol, oxygen.
9. No documentation of AED's monthly checks. AED boxes not connected to alarm, outdated pads and batteries. Log should be maintained both in the AED box and a binder in the health office. May 8, 2015.
10. While cleaning out the feminine product box by the students I found the bills for the AED and a letter form the school nurse regarding a student and a health issue dated 2004
11. Electronic A-45 for each student has not been filled out or merged with the current electronic vaccination records. When running a vaccination compliance report all students are incompliant due to this lack of continuity.
    N.J.S.A. 6A:16-2.1
12. (a)1. As stated earlier, the vaccination records on the paper A-45 and vaccination certificates from the student's and the electronic medical record do not reflect the same information. NJSA 18A:40-4 and NJAC 6A:16-2.4
13. (a) 4. There is no glucometer in the health office to evaluate for hypoglycemia of students or staff.
14. (a) 4. The stock epi-pen and epi-pen Jr are expired and therefore no emergency epi-pens are available in the event of an anaphylaxis reaction to a student or staff member.
15. (a) 5. There is no stock albuterol, nebulizer tubing and or masks or wands in school.
16. (a) 10. There was no initialized healthcare plan available for a student who experienced seizure in school. Furthermore, there was no Seizure log available where all pertinent information regarding all seizure students could be readily identified and treated in the event of an emergency.
17. 6A:16-2.2(h) 1. ii Information received via written correspondence from parent and physician in regard to a student's care upon arrival in the Health Office with complaints of a headache were not available in the electronic medical record. Upon searching through the paper file the note was discovered marked, dated and signed received.

18. 6A:16-2.3(A)vi. Only written protocols were available not "standing orders" and there was no sign copy in the Health Office.
19. 3. V As stated earlier, the vaccination records on the paper A-45 and vaccination certificates from the student's and the electronic medical record do not reflect the same information.
20. 3. X no lesson plans regarding health issue found in Health Office
21. 3 X ii No staff instruction file or lesson were found in Health Office Janet's Law
22. No AED log in Health Office. NO monthly check of machine documented.
23. Emergency Action Plan not readily available in a clearly marked binder.
24. According to the Emergency Action Plan page, 20 monthly checklist not maintained to available

In general, the Health Office was in complete disarray. There is no order to the files, student's documentation and records can be found in various places. The binder marked standing orders supply only protocols for care and not standing orders from the school physician. Emergency information is not readily available to a substitute or other healthcare professional in the time of an emergency, for example seizure, anaphylaxis, or diabetic crisis.

Also attached is a list of expired mediation and medication from students who no longer attend the Northfield Community School either due to transfer or graduation.

I will report any other issues I feel need to be brought to your attention.

Petro testified as to her findings in Exhibit P-10. Most of the AEDs batteries were expired, batteries and pads that were in stock were also expired. A log for the AEDs was taped on a cabinet door but the entries were not up to date. She "panicked" because she could not rely on the units being functional. Petro found that the records for seizure patients were in files in the office but were not in the electronic files. She expected to find logs in the office in terms of how to use the office nebulizer but never found any such information. There were binders of information that were unmarked. Some were found in a desk drawer. A letter form the school nurse regarding a student and a health issue dated 2004 was found in a feminine product box. The nursing servicing plan for the current year was in the back of the cabinet.

In all, there were over 200 expired medicines of one type or another, including over fifty epi-pens, some of which had expiration dates as old as 2008. Such medications should have been disposed of through contacting parents to take them or through the use of a service which would pick up such expired medications and destroy them.

There were papers that were left in various places in the office, some of which were student medical records and some were in unlocked cabinets in the waiting room. Student records in general were in unlocked closets. Nursing passes were unsecured on the desk. Similarly, child study team information was left unsecured in piles of papers. The sport physical exam forms that were in the office were an older type that were not to be used and she could not find the proper forms. Petro noticed that there was no glucometer even though nurses were expected to treat students and faculty that might be hypoglycemic. Similarly the nebulizer lacked wands and other essential parts

On the basis of reviewing the documents and records in the office Petro also found among other deficiencies that. the referral forms for students who failed their annual health screening had not been updated, vaccination records were in an unmarked folder, the school physician's standing orders for medical administration and emergency medication administration were not up to date, there was no log identifying all seizure students and their proper treatments, etc.

Carol Murphy became a Nurse's Aide in the district in March of 2015. She testified that the nurse's office was disorganized- just stacks of papers. They were not in any particular order. There were old outdated materials. Student files with medical information were in unlocked drawers. It appeared that nothing was ever recycled or thrown out. Whatever that came into the office was still there. Murphy testified that a support staff employee came into the nurse's office with symptoms that may have been attributable to low blood sugar but a glucometer was not available and she was forced to call 911 for an ambulance.

Murphy acknowledged the nurse's office was always locked whenever it was unoccupied.

Kim Geria worked as a part-time nurse from October or November 2014 to the end of the school year. She testified that the nurse's office was disorganized; records and medications were not secured. Forms with student's names and medication were not secured. She believed this was a HIPPA violation. She testified that in May of 2015 Geria had to order AED pads and batteries because they had expired.

RESPONDENT'S DEFENSE

John Costello testified on his own behalf. He was first employed as a registered nurse in the District in 2001. Up until the 2014-2015 school year, he had received satisfactory evaluations. Other than two letters of reprimand in 2007, he has consistently receiver satisfactory evaluations and commendations. Costello acknowledged that he does not use the school computer system. Although the school uses electronic files, he does not believe he was obligated to keep electronic records since paper or hard copies are more secure as they can be kept under lock and key whereas electronic records can be inappropriately accessed in the school's computer system.

Prior to the 2014-2015 school year, Virginia Wolf was the full-time nurse for the middle school and he served he was full-time nurse for the primary and elementary grades. When Wolf retired in the spring of 2014, the District replaced her with a part-time nurse. According to Costello, the part-time nurse was not interested in doing her job but was busy looking for another full-time position. He felt overwhelmed by the increase in his workload. Accordingly, when he was called in to the meeting on November 19, 2014, and stated he does not know whether he is coming or going, he was referring to being administratively overworked and was not referring to dealing with patients.

Costello had no prior notice of the reason for the November 19, 2014 meeting with Garguilo. The meeting was set up by a secretary. Similarly, Mr. Levy was asked to attend the meeting as a union representative was called to attend the meeting but was not given any indication of the substance of the meeting.

Costello did not view the November 9, 2014 incident with student C, as a significant event. Specifically, in regards to his not rushing to the aid of C when first notified, he noted that it was noontime and classes were passing in the hallway. When he entered the hallway, he waited for a special needs class to pass by before he proceeded, since he did not to disrupt such a class. As he approached C. he assumed that from her posture she was vomiting. He testified that people who vomit get dystonia, get wobbly. [1]He realizes now that putting a piece of paper in his mouth proved to be very disturbing to other people but he did so to keep his hands free. When he approached Student C, it appeared from her posture that she was leaning over a garbage can vomiting. Costello does not believe you bring a wheelchair to an ill child as opposed to an injured one. Putting an ill child in a wheelchair would not be a good thing to do whereas an injured child should lie down. He claimed that he could evaluate the child's condition by observing her posture.

When the County school board called to say they were going to do an immunization audit, they were the ones who picked the date which turned out to be a Jewish holiday. Costello was not aware that schools would be closed on that date. Further, according to Costello, of the 36 students for which the County claimed there was no immunization record, Costello claimed it was the fault of the old forms and that, in fact, 30 of these students did have proper immunization but the old forms did not reflect this. The district had 30 days to correct this deficiency and he did so. The District did not suffer a penalty because it failed the initial audit.

Costello claimed he treated the child in Ms. Cusick's class who had a seizure properly. The child had a mild or absence seizure, where the child blanks out for perhaps ten seconds. There is no treatment necessary for such a seizure. The school policy for treating seizures does not mention such absence seizures; it is clearly designed for grand mal seizures where it directs people not to restrain or insert object into the mouth, turn head to the side, loosen clothing gently, etc. He did not pass off the child with absent seizures on November 11, 2014. He waited for the mother who picked him up and she left the building with her child.

Costello claimed that he appeared anxious at his meetings with the two principals on January 16, 2015 because he was under stress. His mother was ill and he blamed his appearance on the medications he was taking; Prednisone and Gabapentin, which is used for neurologic pain in the feet. He commented without a question being asked that he was being urged to settle the tenure charge but he did not want to settle; he loved to take care of children and wanted his job back. Under cross-examination he was asked about a gap in his curriculum vitae. He had worked between 1993 through July 1996 at Camden County Vocational School and he apparently next worked from January 1997 through August of 2000, in the School District of Philadelphia. When asked what he was doing between July 1996 and January 1997, his response was "I don't know."

He also testified that the prior full time nurse, Mrs. Wolf, was "amazing" but the part-time nurse's inattentiveness to her job was extremely stressful for Costello. He also testified that parents are notified to pick up medications and epi-pens at the end of the school year. Those that were not picked up could be used for training. Costello also maintained that there was no policy enacted concerning disposition of expired drugs so Costello put the expired drugs in the locked closet. He also claimed that the AED pads were not expired when he stopped working and it was the part-time nurse's duty to check the pads every week.

Virginia Wolf also testified on behalf of Respondent. She worked from 1988 to 2013 as a nurse in the District. She testified that both she and Costello maintained the AEDs. They were never told to create a log but she made her own chart in the storeroom about the AED pads. She testified that if the parents that who were called did not pick up the medications, a medical waste person would come every year in October to pick up expired medications but the nurse's office would keep some epi-pens for training. She also claimed that diabetics have their own glucometers and they did not stockpile medications. When asked about proper policy to treat children who have absence seizures, Wolf would abide by the parent's request rather than by any protocol and she would normally walk the student to the office and call the parent.

The Respondent also had fitness for duty evaluations done by an independent psychiatrist, Dr. Charles Meusburger. Meusburger conducted an assessment based upon his interview of Costello. At the time, Dr. Sigafoos' had not yet issued his report. It was Meusburger's opinion that "the patient at this time does not demonstrate any axis1 psychiatric diagnosis and is not required to have any subsequent ongoing treatment prior to returning to work." There was an addendum to the report that the documents relating to Costello's work record were reviewed subsequent to his evaluation and that "as a result of the review of the documents, it is understandable that the school board, as well as the Superintendent would have concerns regarding performance, reliability and standards of care. However, the purpose of this evaluation is to ascertain to a reasonable degree of validity and with the information available at the time, whether or not there are psychiatric reasons why these concerns were present." Meusburger concluded that it is his professional psychiatric opinion that within a reasonable degree of certainty that the issues raised about Costello's performance were not due to psychiatric causes.

Costello was also evaluated by Robert L. Tanenbaum, Ph.D. Dr. Tanenbaum reviewed some of Costello's work record as well as the report of Dr. Sigafoos. Dr. Tanenbaum testified that he had Costello take some of the same tests that were administered by Sigafoos and the tests did reveal a certain level of depression and anxiety. However, Tanenbaum concluded that Costello does not demonstrate evidence of a psychological disorder or dysfunction to a degree that would substantially interfere with his ability to perform his job duties. Tanenbaum also stated in his report:

> It is not clear on the basis psychological evaluation findings whether Mr. Costello's personality characteristics and style actually prevent him from doing his job according to requirements. There appears to be a high level of situational stress at work which have contributed to his feeling upset and depressed about his employment future with the school. He may be responsive at this time to psychological counseling that is structured and supportive, permitting him to resume his employment with the Northfield Board of Education. However, until a factual determination can be made as to whether Mr. Costello has substantially and repeatedly failed to perform in his role as a school nurse, a determination that he is psychologically unfit, and permanently so, would appropriately be deferred until the facts are made clear.

In his testimony, Dr. Tanenbaum said that it is a very high bar to find that someone is incapable of working because of their psychological condition and he believed Costello's psychological state should no bar him from employment as a school nurse. Costello had testified that Sigafoos had Costello complete some of the tests, including the MMPI at home. Tannenbaum expressed concern that it is not appropriate to give the MMPI unsupervised since the test's subject would have the opportunity to cheat, to go online and to research how to answer the questions.

It came to light in Dr. Tanenbaum's testimony that he was unaware of Costello's conduct and condition at his meeting with Principals Vaccaro and Robbins on January 16 where his hands were shaking and whole body "vibrating". Tanenbaum stated that he did not know what would have caused Costello to act this way. When asked if such a response could be evidence of a panic disorder, Dr. Tanenbaum showed a reluctance to answer the question but finally stated it was not evidence of a panic disorder.

ARGUMENT

The Board argues:

The Board acknowledges that it bears the burden of establishing the truth of the charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962). Evidence is said to be preponderant if "it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact." Jaeger v. Elizabethtown Consol. Gas Company, 124 N.J. L. 420, 423 (Sup. Ct. 1940). The Respondent exhibited haphazard judgment, apathy and unstable behavior concerning his rendition of care to students. New Jersey tenure law establishes that repeated defiance and violations of directives and policies may warrant dismissal for insubordination. Pre-TEACHNJ cases have defined insubordination similarly. See e.g., Tenure hearing of Miguel Valladares, 2012 N.J. AGEN. LEXIS 316 60-61 (ALJ 2012) aff'd Cmm'r (August 3, 2012). Insubordination defined as the willful and intentional disregard of the lawful and reasonable directives of an employee's duly authorized supervisor. Board of Ed. Twp of Teaneck v. Wilburn, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (Edu 48), N.J. AGEN LEXIS 2432 Aff'd Cmm'r (October 15, 1991) Teacher's disregard for a supervisor's request to provide lesson plans was an act of insubordination warranting dismissal.

Respondent's conduct also warrants a finding of "unbecoming conduct". Unbecoming conduct is a broadly defined elastic term encompassing conduct which has a tendency to destroy public respect for public employees and confidence in the public service. Karins v. Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). In Laba v. Newark Board of Ed., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1975), the New Jersey Supreme Court established that the touchstone of unbecoming conduct is the employee's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of his or her office or position. Contrary to respondent's assertion that a finding of unbecoming conduct requires action equivalent to a criminal act, a finding of unbecoming conduct does not require a violation of any specific rule or regulation, but rather be based primarily on implicit standard of good behavior. Respondent's position entrusted with the care and custody of children, carries a "heavy duty requirement of self-restrain and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." I/M/O

Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, 1972 SLD 302. A school nurse's failure to render proper care has been found to be sufficient to sustain a determination of unbecoming conduct and the termination of employment and/or revocation of the nurse's school nurse certificate. See I/M/O Certificates of Juliette Kersaint, 2007 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 63 OAL (2007) Aff'd State Board of Examiners (June 7, 2007). In Kersaint, the Respondent school nurse failed in several instances to render appropriate care to ill or injured students. The ALJ concluded that one instance where the respondent failed to respond to a child's asthma attach alone was serious enough to constitute unbecoming conduct. In I/M/O Tenure Charges Against Kathleen Alexander, Dkt. No. 74-3/13, (June 27, 2013), the arbitrator sustained the dismissal of a school nurse for unbecoming conduct stemming from the nurse's failure to provide proper care to an injured student. The student reported to the nurse's office with an injured foot. The nurse never left her seat but told the student to sit on the bench and after observing the student's foot was swollen, the nurse told the student to retrieve an ice pack from the refrigerator. The nurse then permitted the student to leave the office without the ice pack or any other treatment. At no time did the nurse ever leave her desk. The arbitrator found that this conduct unbecoming of a school nurse and found that dismissal was warranted in light of other instances involving the nurse and other the nurses' refusal to act. See also I/M/O tenure hearing of Mary Snyder, Agency Dkt No. 190-6/88, State Board of Ed (August 2, 1989).

The actions of Respondent met or exceed the tenured employees discussed above warranting his dismissal from employment. The respondent repeatedly failed to comply with legitimate and reasonable administrative directives to provide appropriate care as a school nurse. As a result, the quality of care provided to the children of Northfield Community School has been unnecessarily compromised. As set forth in the Board's job description for school nurse, the Respondent is obligated to carry out written orders of the medical home and sanding orders of the school physician. Respondent failed to comply with the appropriate procedures for seizures. On November 5, Respondent was called to assist Student L who, according to Ms. Cusick, experienced a seizure. Upon arriving the respondent merely stated that "he had to go to work" and escorted Student L to the nurse's office. Similarly, the respondent failed to comply with appropriate procedures including school standing orders for fainting. The policy set forth a protocol which includes have the student lie flat for at least 15 minutes. Miriam Webster's medical dictionary defines faint as "weak, dizzy and likely to faint." Respondent failed to follow this protocol on November 10, 2014 when he was called to assist Student C who was vomiting, potentially passing out and could not stand. Respondent showed no urgency in his response, wasting valuable time and upon arriving, performed no assessment, grabbed C by the arm and told her to stand up, in direct contravention to the standing order. Respondent's treatment of C left at least three teachers in tears. Vaccaro testimony, Henan Testimony Levy Testimony. Respondent also failed to comply with Northfield Standing orders for nausea/vomiting. The policy sets forth a specific protocol to be followed. The protocol requires 1) check temperature; 2) allow student to rest; 3) contact parent/guardian. If temperature is above 99.6, or student is witnessed vomiting, call parent/guardian to take home. Respondent failed to follow this protocol both on November 10, 2014 and again on January 16, 2015 when a student was found in the respondent's office crying and stated she did not feel well and was going to throw up. Respondent failed to care for the student and instead became visibly upset, started shaking and trembling and said that he was upset that the teacher sent an ill student to him without a nurse's pass. Vaccaro testimony, Garguilo testimony.

Dr. Sigafoos determined that the Respondent suffered a panic attack during this incident. A conclusion which was not refuted by Respondent. Both Principals stated that the Respondent was not in a condition to care for children or speak with parents.

Charge 2

The Respondent is guilty of insubordination and unbecoming conduct for failure to perform the duties of a school nurse. Title 6A of the New Jersey Administrative code provides that the role of the certified school nurse shall include, but not be limited to, carrying out written orders of the medical home standing orders of the school physician, maintaining student health records, recommending to the school principal students who shall not be permitted to or retained in the school building based upon a parent's failure to provide evidence of the child's immunization, annually reviewing student immunization records, directing and supervising the emergency administration of epinephrine and glucogen, administering asthma medication through the use of a nebulizer, reviewing and summarizing available health and medical information and writing and updating at least annually the individualized health care plans and the individualized emergency health care plans for students' medical needs, implementing procedures for students in the event of an emergency, and providing other nursing services.

Respondent's repeated failure to carry out his legal responsibilities as a school nurse is serious enough to require his dismissal. In Kersaint supra, the Petitioner-Board similarly argued that the school nurse failed to properly fulfill her duties as a school nurse on several occasions. The ALJ found that the nurse left used needles in a common supply cabinet, failed to have a medical waste container, did not document where necessary equipment was stored, failed to make sure students were properly immunized and failed to keep proper immunization records. The ALJ concluded that although the actions of the Respondent were not intentional, the omission could have had very serious consequences. The ALJ ordered that the Respondent's school nurse certificate be revoked. In I/M/O the Certificates of Barbara Lentine, Dkt. No. 1011-136, State Board of Examiners (November 30, 2012), the State Board of Examiner sustained the ALJ, finding that the nurse failed to complete daily logs of student visits. The nurse only completed the log at the end of the school year which led to discrepancies in the records. The Board noted that while such conduct may not have impacted students, such deviation from proper record keeping was dangerous and could not be disregarded. In Tenure Hearing of Jill Kubicki, supra, a teacher had been cited for her repeated failure to adhere to school policies such as: failure to check emails; failure to complete progress reports; failure to revise her substitute plans; failure to meet with parents; failure to take advantage of technology existence; and failure to produce testing protocols. The ALJ determined that the teacher should be dismissed from her position. The Respondent's actions here and inaction during the 2014-2015 school year were constant and far more systematic than those mentioned above and could have very serious consequences for the students in his care. After Respondent was placed on leave, Denise Petro discovered an abdication of duty by Respondent far more pervasive than the school nurses in Lentine and Kersaint, warranting termination. Specifically, Respondent in contravention of his job description, board policies and state statutes and regulations, failed to update annual health screening forms contrary to Board Policy 5141 which provides that certified school nurses shall among other things, assist with physical examinations, conduct biannual scoliosis screenings, conduct an audiometric screening. Garguilo testimony, Petro testimony (P-10), failed to update sport physical forms required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.2(h)(1)(ii)(1), maintain student vaccination records required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(b)(3), failed to enter vaccination records into the computer system contrary to NJAC 16-2.1A and NJAC 6A:16-2.3(b)(3)(v) (P-10), failed to properly maintain the Board physician's standing orders, improperly maintains student records in a box for feminine hygiene products in an unlocked closed contrary to NJAC 6A:16-2.3(b)(3)(iii); NJAC 6A:16-2.4(c) and NJAC 6A:32-7.4 requiring records to be secured and limited to authorized persons. Acted in a deficient manner in 37 occasion due to failure to collect and record sixth grade immunizations as noted in the Atlantic County Department of Human Services; See NJAC 8:5-4.7 (every school ... shall maintain an official State of New Jersey school immunization records for every pupil.) and Board Policy 5141.3 (P-13); failed to maintain individualized health care plans for students and staff in violation of NJAC 6A:16-2.3(b)(3) and the Board's nursing services plan for the 2014-2015 school year; failed to merge paper records into electronic records a direct threat to the health and safety to the students. Respondent also failed to properly store medications by leaving his personal prescriptions in an unlocked drawer with unlabeled prescription bottles contrary to Board Policy 5141 which states in relevant part "all medications shall be securely stored and kept in the originally labeled container." Leaving unlocked and expired medication in medication cabinets contrary to board policy 5141.21 which requires "all medications shall be brought to school by the parent or guardian for such student and shall be picked up at the end of the school year or at the end of the period of medication, whichever is earlier. Respondent further failed to properly maintain equipment necessary to treat asthmatics, diabetic and other students and faculty of urgent need of medical care. Respondent failed to maintain the school's AEDs in working order and failed to maintain an AED log in violation of policy 5141. Respondent failed to maintain a glucometer, contrary to board policy NO. 5141. Respondent allowed the epi-pen and epi-pen juniors in the nurses' office to expire. Respondent failed to maintain nebulizer tubing, stock albuterol, masks or wands contrary to NJSA 18A:40-12.7 requiring each school to have and maintain for the use of pupils at least one nebulizer in the office of the school nurse. Respondent's failure to maintain equipment was not without consequence. Mrs. Murphy testified that because the school's glucometer was not properly maintained, she was forced to call 911 for a janitor with low blood sugar. Mrs. Geria testified that she was forced to order AED pads for children and adults because existing pads had expired during respondent's tenure. Respondent's abdication of duty placed the health and safety of the children and adults of the school in very real danger. Dismissal is the appropriate penalty for teachers who compromise the safety of students. See In IMO Paula Weckesse, 2013 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 155 (OAL 2013) Aff'd Comm'r (September 16, 2013) where a teacher failed to follow school procedure in addressing students who had fallen asleep in class. The teacher forced a student that fell asleep in class to stand up in order to stay awake. School addresses procedure requires that students who fall asleep in class and requires parents to be notified to see if there is a health concern and have students tested for drugs. The ALJ concluded that from a safety point of view, the teacher's conduct created a health hazard and ordered the teacher's tenure be terminated. See also IMO tenure hearing of Barbara Thomas, 2002 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 575 (OAL 2002) and IMO Tenure Hearing of Curtis Robinson, 2008 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 752 (OAL 2008).

Accordingly, the board has proven that Costello engaged in numerous acts of insubordination and unbecoming conduct. Therefore his dismissal from his positon is warranted.

Respondent has demonstrated his incapacity to perform the duties of a school nurse. In addition to the unbecoming insubordinate conduct set forth above, respondent is not fit to serve as a school nurse and must be dismissed for incapacity. The Board has a right to require an employee to submit to a mental health evaluation whenever in the judgment of the Board, an employee shows evidence of deviation from normal physical or mental health. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2. The use of a clinical psychologist to determine a teaching staff member's mental capacity to work has been repeatedly sanctioned. See e.g. Jones v. Board of Trustees of Teachers' Pension Annuity Fund, 2015 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 214 (OAL 2015). See also I/M/O/ the Tenure Hearing of Henry Allegretti, School District of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, 2000 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 1679 Comm'r (March 22, 2000). Similarly, IMO Licenses of Roseann Ravo, Dkt No. 311-06/95-112 State Board of Examiners (November 20, 1997). Accordingly, Petitioner's use of a psychologist in the instant manner is appropriate and with prior precedent. Removal of teaching staff members who are not fit for duty is appropriate. For example, I/M/O the Tenure Hearing of Paul Varano, Board of Education Irvington, Essex County, 2002 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 360 (OAL 2002) Aff'd Comm'r (July 1, 2002) an industrial arts instructor was removed for incapacity as a result of bizarre behaviors demonstrated. Respondent isolated himself from students during class and playground duty and accused the school administration of trying to set him up. The Respondent was evaluated by a mental health professional who concluded that the Respondent's behavior was "highly abnormal and fit the criteria of a schizotypal (sic) personality trait." The doctor opined that the Respondent was not fit for his duties of a teacher and the ALA agreed sustaining the charge of incapacity. The record here similarly demonstrates that the Respondent is incapable of performing the duties of school nurse. Sigafoos concluded that the Respondent was unable to function in his job as a school nurse. Most tellingly, Respondent's own doctors, Dr. Tanenbaum and Dr. Meusburger expressed their own concerns about Respondent's conduct. Dr. Meusburger's report stated that given the Respondent's conduct, "it is understandable that the school board as well as the Superintendent would have concerns regarding performance, reliability, and standards of care." Dr. Tanenbaum stated that Respondent may, however, demonstrate behavioral characteristics which limit his effectiveness and rub his co-workers and superiors the wrong way. Given the testimony and report produced by Dr. Sigafoos and statements made by Respondent's own doctors, the Board has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the Respondent is incapable of performing his job as a school nurse and must be dismissed.

Respondent has exhibited a pattern of conduct establishing other just cause and warranting dismissal based upon the well-established body of school law, principles and precedent. Prior to the enactment of TEACHNJ, the courts and commissioner of New Jersey have developed a clear precedent that permits this tribunal to dismiss Respondent not only for each of the separate charges alleged, but also for the charges viewed in their totality when they demonstrate a pattern of misconduct over a period of time. The sworn tenure charges alleged that the acts and omissions of Respondent, jointly and severally manifest a serious of ongoing infractions over an extended period time constituting a pattern of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. Said pattern of conduct likewise warrants dismissal. See Tenure Hearing of N. William Cowan, 224 N.J. Super 737, 750-51 App Div. (1998) (a residuum of evidence is not needed to prove each act so long as the combined force of relevant here say and relevant competent evidence sustains ultimate findings of unbecoming conduct). Factors to be considered in assessing a penalty include the nature and gravity of the offense under all of the circumstances involved, any mitigating or aggravating factors, impact of the penalty on the teacher's career and any harm or injurious effect which a teacher's conduct may have had on the maintenance of discipline and the improper administration of the school system. Usually as series of events demonstrating a pattern of behavior is an indication of unbecoming conduct. Tenure Hearing of Molokwu, OAL Dkt. No. Edu9650-04 (2004). See also Cowan Supra at 751 (employee may be dismissed where a pattern of conduct persists over a pattern of time even though each individual charge standing alone would not typically warrant dismissal). See Tenure Hearing of Greg Young, 1010 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 511 (September 3, 2010). In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Michele Gibbs, Dkt. No. 45-313 (May 20, 2013). Regardless of how well intentioned a teacher might be, the issue to be decided in tenure cases and specifically cases in which a pattern of conduct exists that amount to just cause warranting termination is "whether the Respondent has a temperament and judgment necessary for a teaching staff member and, if so, should she be returned to the classroom." Just as in Gibbs, the testimony of the Board's witnesses is credible and cumulatively shows a pervasive pattern of behavior by a nurse that he either could not or would not perform his conduct to meet the legitimate and reasonable expectations of the administration. Respondent is unfit to remain a tenured school nurse based upon well-established arbitration case law, principles and precedents. It has been held that an employer should satisfy certain conditions in order to prove just cause in disciplining employees, including the employee was forewarned the consequences of his actions, the employer's rules are reasonably related to business efficiency and the performance of the employer might expect from an employee an effort was made before discipline to determine whether the employee was guilty as charges. The investigation was conducted fairly and objectively, substantial evidence of the employee's guilt was obtained, the rule was applied fairly and without discrimination, and the degree of discipline was reasonably related to the seriousness of the employee's offense and the employee's past record. See Oahu Transit Service and OBT Local 996, 2006 N.A.C. 138 (2006). In addition, it must be stressed that the inherent duties of a public employee include compliance with all reasonable rules and regulations and duties arising from a fiduciary relationship to the republic and from such duties that may arise from the nature of the position held. Hartman v. Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super 32 App. Div. (1992). Unless a penalty is unreasonable, arbitrary or offensively excessive under all of the circumstances, it should be permitted to stand. Ducher v. Department of Civil Service, 7 N.J. Super 156 App. Div. (1950). Summary discharge in lieu of corrective discipline is appropriate for very serious offenses. Elkouri and Elkouri, How Arbitration Works, page 964 (6th Ed. 2003). Here, just cause conditions have been satisfied in the application of the foregoing precedents must result in a determination that Respondent be dismissed from his position.

The Respondent argues:

When Costello was called to the classroom of Mrs. Cusick on November 5, 2014 because student L was having a seizure, the seizure had ended by the time Costello arrived. L was able to arise from his desk on his own and Costello walked L out of the room to the nurse's office. According to Exhibit W, the Mayo Clinic defines an absence seizure as a brief sudden loss of consciousness. Exhibits X, Y and Z from the Epilepsy foundation explain that absent seizures cause short periods of blanking out or staring into space and when an absence seizure ends, the person usually continues doing whatever they were doing before the seizure. They are almost always wide awake and able to think clearly. No first aid is needed because of the seizure. Costello testified that when he entered the classroom and approached Student L, he told him that they would have to go to the nurse's office. Student L responded that he did not feel that was necessary but Costello responded that he knew the drill. Student L arose and walked to the nurse's office with the teacher aide and Costello. Costello acted consistent with the recommendations of the Epilepsy Foundation that once the seizure has ended, in approximately ten seconds, there is no further treatment required.

The Respondent points out that in the incident that occurred on November 10, 2014 involving Student C, Costello explained that he did not keep pace with Mrs. Levy in responding to the sick child because there was a class of quite young special needs children walking by and he did not wish to disturb or disrupt them. Costello claimed that he put the paper in his mouth in order to free his hands up. At no point does the video show Student C lying down or fainting. Costello was able to analyze the situation, realizing that Student C had not fainted and therefore, the school protocol for dealing with fainted children did not apply. Costello's reaction in a meeting with Vaccaro and Robbins, Costello claims he was being eased off Prednisone and had a very negative reaction or response to coming off that medication. According to Costello, he did not want to leave the building until a substitute nurse was in the building.

Costello challenges the report of Dr. Sigafoos, noting that he had never tested a nurse before. Regardless, Sigafoos felt confident to testify as to the fitness of Costello. He underlined that Costello was suffering several deficiencies in his personality which would preclude him from being an acceptable school nurse. However, he also concluded that Costello was suffering from "burnout." Costello claims that burnout often can be relieved by a couple of days off and return to work shortly thereafter. Respondent argues that a review of Sigafoos' curriculum vitae demonstrates that the majority of his work is for the former Division of Youth and Family Services and for fitness for duty for police officers and correction officers. Work of that nature, particularly in the field of criminal justice does not fit one to be able to do an evaluation of a school nurse.

Costello is also critical of Dr. Sigafoos for sending Costello home to complete the MMPI test. The manual for administering the test, Exhibit Q, states that it is desirable that the test be taken within line of site. Respondent argues that the MMPI materials should not have been taken home with the test taker, nor should the test be taken anywhere else where supervision is not possible. It is argued that the fact that Costello was allowed to take the test home and complete it there, brings into question his knowledge of proper test taking and scoring. Dr. Sigafoos' abject failure to monitor the MMPI environment is a clear indication that his mind had been made up as to the outcome of the examination prior to the examination ever being given. He was hired by the District knowing full well what the recommendation would be.

By contrast, the examination of Dr. Charles Meusburger, Exhibit B, concludes that Costello did not demonstrate any "axis 1 psychiatric diagnosis and is not required to have any subsequent ongoing treatment prior to returning to work." This clearly refutes and repudiates the finding of Dr. Sigafoos. Further, Dr. Tanenbaum, who has examined school nurses in the past, found that Costello did not demonstrate evidence of psychological disorder or dysfunction to a degree that would substantiate or interfere with his ability to perform his current duties with the Northfield Board of Education. Although Dr. Tanenbaum found that there is situational stress, Costello is fit for duty and can and should return to his position as school nurse.

It is further argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:16.2 physical examinations; drug testing; requirements sates "the Board may require individual psychiatric or physical examinations of any employee wherever in the judgment of the Board an employee shows evidence of deviation from normal physical or mental health." It is argued that the legislature did not write psychological or mental health but specifically psychiatric. It is argued that psychiatric means the services or examination by a trained licensed professional psychiatrist and does not allow for the interpretation for the word psychiatrist to mean psychologist. In the absence of any contrary interpretations, rather than the obvious literal or true meaning of the term psychiatrist, it is respectfully requested that the report of Dr. Sigafoos be determined as improper and not be considered by the arbitrator. Whether the report is considered or not, the reports of Dr. Tanenbaum and Dr. Meusburger should carry the day on the issue of mental competence and Charge 3 of the tenure hearing complaint should be dismissed outright.

Respondent notes that although the Board was cited for Costello's failure to collect and record the sixth grade immunizations, the deficiency must be seen in light of the total student population of the building which was 921 students and essentially, out of the 13 deficiencies that represents only a deficiency rate of 4% and that all deficiencies were resolved and all records were appropriately updated and the Board did not suffer any sanctions or censures. Its records were complete as of the New Year.

The respondent also challenges the testimony of Denise Petro. Although admittedly a registered nurse, she became so in December of 2014, she is not a certified school nurse. She testified as to expired medications, absent student and staff records and messy conditions. Although Petro testified there were any number of expired medications in the closets, she acknowledged that the nurse's office is locked when there is no one in the office and that medication cabinets were independently secured as well. Kimberly Garia, the substitute nurse who is currently employed by the School District testified that, even as of this date, there are still expired medications in the office and that, although she and others have attempted to have parents come by and pick up medications, some of them are still there.

There is testimony that the expired epi-pens are useful for training purposes. Moreover, Costello testified that he had made arrangements for leftover medications and materials to be picked up in October 2014 but on that date, the medical waste service came but he was in a training course and there was confusion in the office as to what to do. Therefore, the expired medications and epi-pens were never picked up. Although the testimony was that student health records were not kept current, nevertheless it was unrefuted by both Petro and Costello that the hard copies of these records, known as the A-45, were current. What was not current was the electronic data collection system. It is maintained that it is an optional system that does not replace the A-45 cards, it supplements it. Costello testified that the electronic records are not secure inasmuch as others have access to electronic records throughout the building. It is claimed that the lack of security is a violation of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) and Federal Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA).

Lastly, there is testimony that the room is messy and records exposed. However, Costello was out of the building by late February and Petro did not begin work until April 29, 2014. So, for two months there were numerous people had access to the office and had the ability to open cabinets and put records that otherwise had been secured in non-secured areas. Similarly, the testimony concerning the AEDs. School policy states that the Program Coordinator is to maintain the AEDs are the school nurse and/or certified athletic trainer and equipment maintenance needs to be done on a monthly basis with a monthly checking for batteries and pads for damage and expiration dates. Costello testified that the part-time school nurse, Mrs. Bagstrom, developed and maintained the AED log starting with the 2014-2015 school year. It was Costello's belief and understanding that the log was current as of his last day in the building. The last time Costello was present, the AED log was on Bagstrom's desk in a binder. Board Exhibit 12 shows that the batteries at Location A, the health office, were changed in May of 2013 and were set to expire in May of 2015 as were the pads. The upstairs pads were to expire May of 2015. The batteries upstairs seems to be less clear. Petro testified she purchased new AED equipment and machinery. The Board's Exhibit 12 does give evidence as of May 2015, the pads and batteries would have expired and that Petro simply purchased scheduled items that were due to expired in May of 2015. This would tend to show that the Petro exaggerated the facts.

It is argued that since there no crime charged against Costello the conduct unbecoming charge must be dismissed because there is nothing placed before the arbitrator that shows malevolent conduct.

The collective negotiations agreement between the Northfield Board of Education and the Northfield Education Association provides at Article 5 that no employee shall be discharged, disciplined, reduced in rank or compensation without just cause. The contract also provides that except in cases of emergency, whenever an employee is required to appear before the superintendent, board or committee thereof, concerning any matter which could adversely affect the continuation of that employment of his/her office, position or employment or salary or increment pertaining thereto, then he/she shall be given prior written notice for the reason of such meeting or interview and shall be entitled to a representative of the association to advise him/her in representing him/her during such meeting or interview. That process of fair hearing was clearly violated when the Superintendent called Mr. Costello into his office on November 19, 2014. Although the Association representative was also called into that meeting, neither the Association representative nor Costello received any advanced notice of the meeting nor did either of them know the purpose of that meeting. Costello testified that he was under the impression that the meeting with the Superintendent was to discuss the division of labor between the part-time nurse and himself. This was a clear violation of the collective negotiations agreement. It is noted that Costello has had positive evaluations since he first began to work in the District until the 2014-2015 school year.

DISCUSSION

It is not surprising that when the District eliminated one of the two fulltime school nurse positions and replaced it with a part-time nurse Costello was confronted with increased duties and the stress level of his position increased. Unfortunately, Costello could not handle that stress. He could not properly function at a level necessary to perform his duties as a school nurse in a satisfactory manner.

As to the specific acts the Respondent was charged with:

Although the school has a protocol for the proper handling of seizures, the procedures only addresses grand mal seizures and do not address absence seizures such as the one experienced by student L. It is apparent that Costello acted in a medically appropriate manner on November 5, 2014 with Student L. However, part of a school nurse's duties is to interact professionally with teaching staff and educate them as how to handle the health problems of the children in their classes. However, Costello's simply gave Cusick a leaflet on seizures without any explanation. Costello's conduct was consistent with the analysis of Dr. Sigafoos that in that he inappropriately avoided interaction with Cusick.

I do not credit Costello's testimony about his response when called to attend Student C, who became sick in the hallway on November 10, 2014. The video recording shows that Costello could not have said one word during the entire incident; he placed a letter sized paper in his mouth just as he first left the nurse's office with Levy and never removed it during the entire episode. He could not have asked anyone, including C the ill student, about what happened or how C felt. Rather, he immediately assisted her to her feet and walked her back to his office. Moreover, Costello's testimony that he could ascertain how C felt because of her posture does not hold. C was not as he testified leaned forward as if to vomit. Rather she was recumbent in the lap of her teacher who in turn was sitting on the floor. Costello's made no attempt to ask C how she felt or ask any of the three teachers present what happened. Costello's conduct left the teachers quite upset and his conduct was totally inappropriate and consistent with Sigafoos's evaluation.

When Respondent was called into Garguilo's office on November 19, 2014, he could not recall the incident with C, nine days earlier. It is understandable that Costello did not immediately recall the incident since Garguilo said a girl fainted, whereas C was conscious when Costello saw her. But upon further explanation Costello still could not recall the event and said that he "doesn't know whether he is coming or going" and "doesn't recall a lot of things this year." Costello's response was a legitimate cause of concern for Garguilo. I am not impressed by Costello's contention that his remarks was specifically referring to his extra workload since he was specifically being asked about the treatment of C. While it is not unreasonable for Costello to feel the pressure of the extra work involved, his failure to even recall an incident nine days before, where a teacher came running to him for assistance and two other teachers were waiting for him to respond, is cause for concern. As a school nurse he must be able to function effectively even though he was dealing with the situational stress of an increased work load.

The Respondent argues that by the terms of the collective negotiations agreement between the Northfield Education Association and the district he was entitled to advanced written notice of the reasons for the meeting but neither Costello nor his Association representative were given such notice. However, there is no indication that a grievance about the lack of notice was ever filed or that the Education Association representative sought to adjourn the meeting in order to give Costello a chance to prepare. Also, the Board has not sought to introduce evidence about the November 10 incident which was gathered at the investigatory interview per se. Rather, at issue is Costello's mental state at the meeting, his inability to recall an event nine days earlier and his emotional response in particular. I will consider such evidence.

The third incident was on January 16, 2015, when Costello called the two building Principals, Vaccaro and Robbins into the nurse's office. A young female student was crying in the office and, in front of the student, Costello complained about the girl's teacher sending her to the nurse's office without a note. His complaining of the teacher in the presence of the student showed a serious lack of judgment. It was at this point that Costello's hands began to shake and his body began to vibrate. It was apparent that Costello could not properly function and was sent home. Costello blamed his emotional state on the medications he was taking but he introduced no independent medical evidence to corroborate his claim.

After Costello was sent home, it was discovered that the nurse's office was in disarray. The amount of expired medications must have taken years to accumulate. According to Wolf, a company that disposed of drugs came every October to pick up expired medications but according to Costello there was a mix-up in October 2014 and no drugs were picked up. But as Petro testified there were scores of expired drugs of all kinds in the office with expiration dates dating back as far as 2008. Although these drugs must have remained in the office for years Costello bears some responsibility for never disposing of them since he shared this office with Wolf for many years.

Papers and records in the nurse's office were not kept in any coherent order and student medical records were not secured. Although Respondent points out he stopped work in January and Petro, who documented the state of the nurse's office, did not start work until late April, both Murphy and Geria testified that the nurse's office was a mess when they were first hired. Although it is possible that some if the disorder, .e.g., the blank student passes on the nurse's desk, were not the fault of Costello, I am satisfied that Costello bears a good deal of responsibility for the disarray in the Nurses office.

The pads and batteries for the ADP machines were expired in May of 2015. Although Costello testified that the machines were in working order when he left in January, Gerta testified that the replacement pads in stock were already expired. While Costello cannot be held accountable for pads or batteries which expired in May of 2015 he is accountable for having replacement parts in stock and up to date. Similarly, the office failed to have a glucometer or the ancillary parts for the nebulizer in stock.

The respondent has not provided a good reason as to why books concerning proper medical procedures were not out in plain sight.

Costello readily admitted that he never inputted medical information into the schools computer system, arguing that the pertinent regulations did not require that records be kept on computer. Nevertheless it was school policy to input student medical information into the system. The respondent's failure to follow this school policy would almost certainly lead to confusion and delay, for the complete health records for any given student were kept in two places, some of the records in hard copies in the nurse's office and the balance in the computer system.

There was a significant breakdown in Costello's health record keeping as witnessed by County's immunization audit where 35 students, apparently the entire sixth grade, did not have proper records for immunization.

In general, Costello failed to keep up with his ministerial duties in maintaining the nurse's office and again this failure is consistent with Dr. Sigafoos' evaluation of Costello.

The Respondent had two psychiatric/psychological evaluations on his own. One by Dr. Meusburger, a Psychiatrist, who did not testify but his report was admitted into evidence. Meusburger concluded that Costello's performance was not due to any psychiatric causes. However, the report also noted that Meusburger did not have an opportunity to review Board documents about Costello's conduct before he reached his conclusion and he acknowledged that it is understandable that the school board had concerns about Costello's conduct.

Dr. Tanenbaum, a psychologist who did testify also issued a report. In his report Tanenbaum noted that testing revealed that Costello did suffer from some measure of depression and anxiety although not to the degree indicated in Sigafoos' report. The report concluded, "[I]t is not clear on the basis of psychological findings whether Mr. Costello's personality characteristics and style actually prevent him from doing his job according to requirements." He noted that there was a high degree of situational stress at work and recommended counseling. Tannenbaum testified that he did not find that Costello was psychologically unfit for there is a high bar for such a finding. Tannenbaum was not aware of the incident of January 15, 2015 when Costello shook to the point he was vibrating and was sent home. When asked if this were an anxiety attack, Tanenbaum said he didn't know what it was. It is not clear that, if Tanenbaum had been able to identify this as an anxiety attack, he would have reached a different opinion about Costello's fitness.

The Respondent has not supplied any case law in support of its argument that N.J.S.A. 18A:16.2 requires examinations for incapacity to be performed by a psychiatrist. The District has cited several cases where a psychologist's evaluation was relied upon for such a finding. e.g. Jones v. Board of Trustees of Teachers' Pension Annuity Fund, (Supra) I/M/O/ the Tenure Hearing of Henry Allegretto, School District of the City of Trenton, Mercer County (Supra) and IMO Licenses of Roseann Rave (Supra.) Accordingly, I conclude that I may rely upon SIgafoos' report.

The Respondent has also challenged the reliability of Sigafoos' testing practice since he had Costello take the MMPI test at home. According to Tanenbaum this is bad practice since the test should be taken under supervision to avoid cheating. When taking the test at home the subject could search the internet to find out how to take the test to avoid any negative findings. While I have no doubt that the test should be taken under supervision, here the test results negatively reflect on Costello so I see no reason to conclude that Costello cheated on the test or otherwise conclude that the test should not be relied upon.

Costello was not a reliable witness. When questioned why he left a position with one school district in July of 1996 after being employed there for three years, he replied, to take a position in another district. It was pointed out that there was a six month gap in his resume between the two positions, the new one began in January 1997. When asked what happened and what he did for six months Costello replied that he did not remember. Costello took no responsibility for his mistakes but was self-righteous[2] and tried to explain away every charge against him. Under these circumstances I cannot fully credit Costello's claim that his conduct on January 16, 2015 was due to a bad reaction to his medication, It is noted that he also acted inappropriately several times in November of 2014.

Given Costello's long record of satisfactory service with the district, his removal cannot be taken lightly. However, it is apparent that Costello was unable to competently perform his duties during the fall and winter of 2014-2015. He showed no self-awareness of his anxiety level and of how he was perceived by others. His own psychological expert, Dr. Tanenbaum recommended that Costello undergo counseling to help him cope with his stress, but there is no evidence that he ever did so. Unfortunately, there is no reason to think that if Costello were returned to the same work situation somehow he would behave any differently.

Accordingly, in light of the entire record, including but not limited to the evaluation and recommendation of Chester E. Sigafoos, PhD. I find the Board of Education has met its burden of proof and will sustain the tenure charges against John J. Costello due to Incapacity.

Re: Hadassah Muhammad v. Cami Anderson, Superintendent, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County; Christopher Cerf, in his capacity as former Commissioner of Education; Michael Maillaro, Newark Teachers Union, Agency Dkt. No. 83-4/15

Dear Parties:

Upon review of all submissions filed in the above-referenced matter, I have determined – for the reasons set forth below – to grant respondents' Motions to Dismiss the Petition[1] for lack of jurisdiction pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10.

This matter was initiated via a Petition for Declaratory Ruling, filed on April 20, 2015. Therein, petitioner indicated she was employed by respondent, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District"), from September 2000 until March 2012 – at which time she retired due to a permanent disability. Petitioner alleged that she should have received retroactive compensation for the period worked between June 30, 2010 – when the contract between the District and respondent Newark Teachers Union ("Union") expired – and her retirement date. As a result, petitioner seeks $150,000.000.

In lieu of an Answer, respondent Christopher Cerf, in his official capacity as former Commissioner of Education, ("Cerf") filed a Motion to Dismiss the Petition.[2] Therein,

[1] As discussed herein, respondents Christopher Cerf and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark each moved to dismiss the Petition.

[2] Both the Union and the District filed answers indicating that the matter referenced in Ms. Muhammad's petition was in arbitration, and asserting that the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction. The Union further indicated that it was

Cerf argued that petitioner's request for a declaratory ruling should not be entertained since she was not seeking an interpretation of a statute or rule within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner. In the alterative, Cerf posited that – even if it is construed as an appeal rather than a request for declaratory ruling – the Petition should be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction as it does not set forth a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

More specifically, Cerf contends: 1) a dispute as to whether petitioner is entitled to payment under the terms of an employment contract does not invoke the Commissioner's jurisdiction; 2) a dispute as to whether the terms of the collective bargaining agreement ("CBA") negotiated between the Union and the District constitute an unfair labor practice is within the jurisdiction of the Public Employment Relations Commission ("PERC"), not the Commissioner; and 3) any claims that the District violated federal law – such as Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and/or Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act – do not confer original jurisdiction upon the Commissioner.

The District later filed its own Motion to Dismiss the Petition – along with a letter brief seeking to join in Cerf's motion – substantially for the reasons asserted by the Deputy Attorney General. Subsequently, petitioner filed opposition and urged the Commissioner not to dismiss her Petition; however, she failed to address any of the jurisdictional issues raised by respondents.

First, because the Petition seeks "consequential relief" beyond a declaration as to the meaning of a statute or rule, I decline to entertain it as a request for declaratory ruling. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a)(1). Second, even if the Petition is viewed instead as a Petition of Appeal, I am persuaded by the arguments advanced by respondents that the Petition must be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 grants the Commissioner jurisdiction to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws. Balsley v. N. Hunterdon Reg'l Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 117 N.J. 434, 438 (1990); Hinfey v. Matawan Reg'l Bd. of Educ., 77 N.J. 514, 525 (1978). Conversely, "Where the controversy does not arise under the school laws, it is outside the Commissioner's jurisdiction even though it may pertain to school personnel." E. Brunswick Bd. of Educ. v. Twp. Council, 48 N.J. 94, 102 (1966).

Generally, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over disputes that are purely contractual in nature. See Picogna v. Bd. of Educ., 249 N.J. Super. 332, 335 (App. Div. 1991) (no jurisdiction over contract claim of non-tenured school employee because no interpretation of school laws required); S. Orange-Maplewood Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ., 146 N.J. Super. 457, 462-463 (App. Div. 1977) (no jurisdiction where dispute involved interpretation of sabbatical leave provisions of agreement and no statutory interpretation was required).

Petitioner's claims regarding the CBA and its enforcement necessitate interpretation of contractual language – rather than school law – and nothing within the petition indicates that agency expertise is required to resolve the dispute. Similarly, to the extent in accord with Ms. Muhammad's position that she was entitled to retro-pay under the October 2012 Memorandum of Agreement.

petitioner alleges unfair labor practices pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4, or federal law claims pursuant to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to decide such claims as they do not arise under the school laws of this state.

Upon careful review of the petition, I find and conclude that petitioner has made no allegation of a violation of school law or regulation which would bring this matter within my jurisdictional authority. Accordingly, the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.[3]

Sincerely,

David C. Hespe

BEFORE ELIA A. PELIOS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Y.T. (petitioner) filed a petition for due process on behalf of her daughter, L.R., a minor, seeking an order directing the Willingboro Board of Education (respondent) to provide L.R. with home instruction in accordance with a request filed with the Board. In the current proceeding, petitioner seeks an order on emergent relief granting the sought after relief immediately pending the due process proceeding.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 4, 2015, petitioner's petition of appeal was filed with the Office of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education, along with a request for emergent relief. On November 5, 2015, the emergent matter was filed along with the due process request with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). The emergent relief request was scheduled for oral argument, which was held on November 12, 2015. The record was held open for one day to permit respondent to file an additional certification. Although the certification was clearly transmitted by facsimile and stamped received by the OAL on November 13, 2015, it was not received by the undersigned until November 16, 2015 at which time it was deemed timely and the record was closed on emergent relief.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Many of the facts do not appear to be disputed. L.R. is a ten year old special education student residing in the Willingboro Township School District. Petition of Appeal, November 4, 2015, ¶1. L.R. has been diagnosed with ADHD and Oppositional Defiant Disorder. Id. at ¶3. L.R. is classified as eligible for special education services under the category of emotionally disturbed. Id. In the 2014-2015 school year, L.R. was placed in the Twin Hills Elementary School's Self-Contained/Behavioral Disabilities (BD) classroom. Through a serious of events, which are a part of and the subject of a matter currently pending in the Office of Special Education and are not currently before the Commissioner, or pertinent to this appeal, L.R. has not been in school since May of 2015.

On October 6, 2015, L.R. was seen by her pediatrician Dr. Kargman, who issued a letter to the school district stating that L.R. "has been having emotional and behavioral problems of anxiety, mood disorder, ODD and ADHD." Dr. Kargman went on to recommend that L.R. "be placed on home study for 90 days." Petition of Appeal, November 4, 2015, ¶21, Exhibit B.

On October 13, 2015, DRNJ filed the aforementioned request for due process with the New Jersey Office of Special Education that is not a part of this appeal. Id. at ¶22. On the same day, Dr. Kargman's note was submitted to the District, along with a written request for home instruction due to medical necessity. Id. at ¶23. On October 22, 2015, eight school days after petitioner's request was filed, the School District's attorney responded by stating that the request was sent to the District's physician for verification of the need for home instruction and that the District's physician, Dr. Bonnett, would need to talk to Dr. Kargman. Petition of Appeal, November 4, 2015, ¶¶ 24-27, Exhibit I. On October 23, 2015, the School District's attorney was notified that more than five days had passed since the request. Id. On October 23, 2015, the School District's attorney responded stating that the regulation governing home instruction for a medical necessity does not impose a five-day limit on the School District's physician and that the District was not in violation of the regulation. Id.

On October 27, 2015, the School District's attorney was notified that Dr. Kargman had been authorized by L.R.'s parent to talk with Dr. Bonnett. Id. As of November 3, 2015, fifteen school days had passed since Dr. Kargman's note was submitted to the School District. Id. at 28. Petitioner submitted the application for emergent relief on November 4, 2015. On November 10, 2015, the School District denied the application for homebound instruction. The reason offered for the denial was "We called Dr. Kargman's office twice in two weeks for more information to support the request with no response." Respondent's brief, November 11, 2015, Exhibit 1.

At oral argument, petitioner presented a certification by Y.T. stating that on November 11, 2015, she had been told by Dr. Kargman's office that Dr. Bonnet had not contacted that office, but that the District's Director of Special Services, Abdel Gutierrez, had. Over the objection of petitioner, the record was held open to permit respondent to submit a certification by Mr. Gutierrez in response to petitioner's certification, which the District had not been furnished with prior to oral argument. That document was submitted in a timely manner and received by the undersigned on November 16, 2015. In that document, Gutierrez certified that in an effort to expedite matters, he contacted Dr. Bonnett and obtained his permission to contact Dr. Kargman to obtain the additional information Dr. Bonnett needed. Gutierrez did contact Dr. Kargman's office and received no response. Once Gutierrez received the petition and request for emergent relief, he told Dr. Bonnett that a response was needed immediately.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The standards which must be met by the moving party in an application for emergent relief are embodied in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 and Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). Emergency relief may only be granted if the judge determines that:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The petitioner must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe test.

N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-10.1 provides that:

> a) The district board of education shall provide instructional services to an enrolled student, whether a general education student in kindergarten through grade 12 or special education student age three to 21, when the student is confined to the home or another out-of-school setting due to a temporary or chronic health condition or a need for treatment that precludes participation in their usual education setting, whether general education or special education.
>
> 1. To request home instruction due to a temporary or chronic health condition, the parent shall submit to the school district a request that includes a written determination from the student's physician documenting the projected need for confinement at the student's residence or other treatment setting for more than 10 consecutive school days or 20 cumulative school days during the school year.

i. The school district shall forward the written determination to the school physician, who shall verify the need for home instruction. The school physician may contact the student's physician to secure additional information concerning the student's diagnosis or need for treatment, and shall either verify the need for home instruction or shall provide to the district board of education reasons for denial.

2. The school district shall notify the parent concerning the school physician's verification or reasons for denial within five school days after receipt of the written determination by the student's physician.

3. The school district shall provide instructional services within five school days after receipt of the school physician's verification or, if verification is made prior to the student's confinement, during the first week of the student's confinement to the home or out-of-school setting.

With regard to the first required prong in resolving an emergent relief request, "irreparable harm" is defined as the type of harm "that cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications v. Day, 229 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). However, pecuniary damages may sometimes be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or the right affected. Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 133. For example, in Crowe the Court determined neither an unwarranted eviction nor reduction to poverty could be compensated adequately by monetary damages awarded after a distant hearing. Ibid. The threshold standard for irreparable harm in the area of education is showing that once something is lost, it cannot be regained. M.L. o/b/o S.L. v. BOE of the Township of Ewing, EDU 4949-09, Emergent Relief (June 15, 2009). Since money damages are not available in education cases, and compensatory education is the only relief available, the analysis to be used is that if compensatory education, provided at a later date, cannot remedy the situation, then the harm is irreparable. Howell Township Board of Education v. A.I. and J.I. o/b/o S.I., EDU 5433-12, Emergent Relief (May 2, 2012).

In the present matter, if emergent relief is denied, petitioner is faced with an unenviable choice. She will either send L.R. to school despite a written letter from L.R.'s physician that says she should not be in school, or she will keep L.R. at home, where L.R. will not receive educational services and may face truancy proceedings. That a child who is suffering from a physical or mental illness and is deemed medically best kept out of school may potentially and irreparably suffer harm if compelled to attend school (let alone potentially visit harm upon others in the school setting) is self-evident and requires no further analysis. If that same child remains out of school and is not receiving educational services, the question is raised as to whether the lost educational services could be regained.

In L.K. & A.K. ex rel. L.K. v. No. Burlington Cnty. Reg'l Bd. of Educ., EDU 6071-12, Final Decision (March 21, 2014), which, as in the present matter, involved a dispute arising under the school laws, the Commissioner of Education denied, for lack of jurisdiction, petitioners' claim for compensatory education for the school district's failure to provide their classified child an education during his suspension from school. In that case, the school district had intended to impose a five-day suspension, but instead kept the child from school for more than ten days. Although the child thus received a de facto long-term suspension, the Commissioner found that the school district had denied him due process and other rights that come with a long-term suspension, such as the right to a hearing and the right to home instruction after five days. However, while the denial of these rights entitled the child to an expungement of the suspension from his record and reinstatement to school, he was not entitled to an order for compensatory education from the Commissioner.

As the Commissioner stated in his decision,

> [s]etting aside the fact that [the child] appears to have been without educational instruction for no more than ten school days, the remedy of compensatory education has been judicially fashioned to compensate special education students for violations of the [IDEA] . . . As the Commissioner of Education does not have jurisdiction to adjudicate challenges to the IDEA, he may not award remedies designed to compensate students for IDEA violations.

Like in L.K., in the present matter petitioner alleges a violation of a law within the Commissioner's jurisdiction, and even if it is determined that L.R. was unlawfully denied home instruction under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-10.1, the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction to grant compensatory education as relief. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if emergent relief is not granted.

To obtain emergent relief, a petitioner must also demonstrate a likelihood that they will prevail on the merits of the underlying claim. In the present matter, petitioner seeks an order that respondent violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-10.1. It is not disputed and the District acknowledges that it did not, within five school days, notify petitioner "concerning the school physician's verification or reasons for denial within five school days after receipt of the written determination by the student's physician[,]" as explicitly and plainly required by N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-10.1(a)2. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated a likelihood of success in showing a violation occurred at plenary hearing.

Each party argues that they will suffer greater harm if they do not prevail on the question of emergent relief. Considering the foregoing, it is apparent that if emergent relief is denied, L.R. will suffer irreparable harm in either not receiving educational services or in attending school against the advice of her physician. The same cannot be said for respondent, who if successful at plenary hearing, would have provided home instruction services to a student that did not require them. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the balance of equities argument favors petitioner.

Finally, in order to grant a motion for emergent relief in advance of a plenary hearing, a judge must be satisfied that "[t]he legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b)(2). In other words, a judge "must not grant an injunction in cases when the principal of law on which it depends is disputed, and has not been settled in this state." Stevens v. Paterson & N. R. Co., 20 N.J. Eq. 126, 132 (Ch. 1869).

In the present matter, respondent argues that the legal right to home instruction upon a school district's failure to comply with the five-day requirement under N.J.A.C.

6A:16-10.1(a)(2) is not explicitly provided by regulation and, because the issue has not been addressed by any court in this State or the Commissioner of Education, the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is unsettled.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-10.1(a)2 requires that a district notify the parent of the district's physician's verification of or reasons for denying the need for home instruction within five school days. The parties do not dispute that this did not happen. The regulation does not require that the school's physician contact the student's physician, but permits the school's physician to do so if he or she requires additional information. The school's physician may verify or deny without such consultation, and the regulation does not provide for an enlargement of the required timeframe when such inquiry is elected to be made.

In the present matter, the record is clear and there is no dispute that the Board did not notify petitioner of the need to refer the matter to its physician, a referral that is required by the regulation, until the eighth school day after the request, three school days longer than permitted. Mr. Gutierrez's certification makes it clear that in fact the district's physician never contacted or even attempted to contact, L.R.'s physician, and only issued a denial twenty-eight calendar days after the request when faced with an emergent relief application, citing the need for additional information that Dr. Bonnet had never even requested of Dr. Kargman, having delegated the request for information to non-medical personnel.

N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1 requires every school district to appoint a licensed physician as medical inspector. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.3(a)(4) provides that > the school physician shall provide, at a minimum, the following services: . . .

>
> xi. Review, approval, or denial with reasons of a medical home determination of a student's anticipated confinement and resulting need for home instruction.
>
> [Emphasis added]

Clearly, in this matter, the minimum service expected of a school physician has not been provided.

It is true that the automatic provision of home instruction upon a school district's failure to comply with the five-day requirement under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-10.1(a)(2) is not explicitly provided for in the regulation. However, it would appear that to require a potentially sick student to return to class pending a plenary hearing in such an instance would produce an absurd result contrary to the intent of and to the public policy concerns informing the regulation, which clearly seeks to prevent a break in services longer than ten days. It requires little to no imagination to conceive of examples which illustrate this point. Suffice it to say that requiring a child suffering from physical or mental illness to attend school when they are not medically cleared to do so could lead to many potential harms visited upon that student or others around them in the school setting.

Respondent stated its belief at oral argument that petitioner is merely "forum shopping" for relief to maintain her desired status quo pending the concurrent special education due process petition. Such belief, no matter how strongly held or factually based, does not absolve the District of its obligation to review and either verify or deny with reason a request for home instruction under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-10.1. To fail to respond is to perform a disservice and abdicate responsibility not only to the petitioning student, but to the greater school community as well. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated a legal right to the relief sought.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has demonstrated sufficiently that emergent relief is appropriate in this matter. Petitioner's request is GRANTED.

ORDER

Having CONCLUDED that petitioner is entitled to the requested emergent relief and that the petitioner's request for emergency relief is GRANTED, it is ORDERED that respondent provide L.R. with home instruction during the pendency of the underlying due process matter, for a period not to exceed ninety days (the period requested) from the date Dr. Kargman issued the original letter (October 6, 2015). This timeframe would run until approximately January 4, 2016.

The parties are reminded of the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-10(c)4 which states:

> For a student with disabilities, the home instruction shall be consistent the student's individualized education plan (IEP) to the extent appropriate and shall meet the Core Curriculum Content Standards. When the provision of home instruction will exceed 30 consecutive school days in a school year, the IEP team shall convene a meeting to review and, if appropriate, revise the student's IEP.

The matter will now be scheduled for plenary hearing on the underlying due process petition.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

In accordance with the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for Children of New Jersey Act, ("TEACHNJ Act" or "Act") P.L. 2012, Chapter 26 signed into law by Governor Chris Christie on August 6, 2012 the undersigned was appointed as Arbitrator of the dispute described herein.

The hearings were held on October 14 and 21, 2015 at the Passaic County Technical Institute, Wayne, New Jersey. Both parties were afforded full opportunity to present all the necessary proofs and evidence. A verbatim transcript was made and all witnesses were sequestered and sworn. Briefs were received as agreed. (See Exhibit A)

BEFORE: Mattye M. Gandel, Arbitrator

APPEARING FOR PETITIONER:

Albert C. Buglione, Esq.
Buglione Hutton & De Yoe, LLC

APPEARING FOR RESPONDENT:

Ronald Ricci, Esq.
Ricci Fava & Bagley, LLC

Under TEACHNJ, if a tenured member is rated ineffective or partially effective in two consecutive summative annual evaluations, he or she will be charged with inefficiency and using the Stronge Evaluation Model, recommended by the NJ Department of Education and which is fair and equitable, Respondent has failed to meet the minimum standards that are required for a teacher to maintain his tenure, requiring these charges for tenure revocation to be sustained.

While Respondent chided the District for observing him the day he returned from absences in April and two days in a row in May, there are no provisions in the Statute indicating when or under what conditions observations are to be conducted. It is the District's position that when a teacher returns to work from an illness, he is expected to be prepared to work for a day of service and that he did not object to being evaluated and did not request an adjournment because he was not prepared.

As for Respondent's absences, he accumulated sixty (60) sick-days during the 2014-2015 school year; that due to his excessive absence, respondent disregarded and abandoned his professional responsibility to provide for the "efficient operation" of the District and disrupted the educational program at the expense of the students.

Further, Title I of the American's with Disabilities Act of 1990 requires an employer to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals with disabilities; that Respondent and his doctors did not provide the requested and required information to assess the requested accommodation in a timely manner and that a reasonable accommodation was provided respondent after he provided the proper medical documentation.

Finally, credibility is at issue since Respondent has everything to gain or lose in this matter. The District asserts that its witnesses testified directly and without hesitation; that their testimony was consistent with the evidence submitted but that Respondent's testimony was not credible; that he contradicted himself and that Respondent's excuses for all of his non-compliance were unacceptable.

Therefore, the District asks this Arbitrator to determine that it has met its burden and to sustain the Charges.

RESPONDENT'S POSITION:

Respondent's position is that the evaluation process did not adhere substantially to the required evaluation process and the Corrective Action Plan (CAP) required by TEACHNJ and that these failures materially affected the outcome of Respondent's summative evaluation. Respondent points to the fact that some evaluations had no pre-conference; that pre-conferences must be done in person; that Respondent's supervisor, Salvatore Gambino, who was required by Statute to be present at all post-observation conferences only attended the post-observation conference for his own observation and that Gambino never reviewed the observations held during the school year until the Summative Evaluation in the spring of 2015, which meant that Gambino did nothing to help respondent correct his performance during the school year. Further, it is Respondent's position that a mid-year evaluation was required to be done by the SIP by February 15, 2015 but was never performed.

Respondent's position is that the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner when it conducted its second observation during the first period of the first day that Respondent returned from an extended absence and when it conducted its third and fourth observations on back-to-back days. Doing two observations on consecutive days ignores the purpose behind TEACHNJ and the CAP and does not benefit the teacher on CAP especially because the law requires the fourth observation to give the teacher every opportunity to earn an effective rating.

Additionally, Respondent requested his accommodation in good faith in February 2015 based on his health condition but Respondent claims that the District, rather than give him the accommodations, suspended him in retaliation for his request. Respondent asserts that the suspension was unwarranted as the District had no information that indicated that he was unfit for duty but was reinstated after a month despite the fact that the District never received any further medical documentation regarding Respondent's condition, which indicated that there was no reason to have suspended him in the first place. The District's actions aggravated Respondent's hypertension and severely impaired his ability to improve to meet his goal and constitutes arbitrary and capricious behavior.

Respondent contends that regulations require that SGOs be developed by the teacher in consultation with the supervisor; that SGOs are not meant to be directed by central administration with little if any input from the teacher and are not to be across the board goals but rather geared to a specific teacher but that the SGO's for Respondent were done and directed by Gambino without any consultation with Respondent.

Finally, it is Respondent's position that the District did not provide any evidence supporting a tenure charge of excessive absenteeism; that the focus of absenteeism is not merely the number of days of absence but a consideration of the nature of the absence; that some form of warning must be given to the employee that superiors are dissatisfied with the pattern of absences and that if the District was so concerned about his absence, it would not have suspended him for no reason after he returned from his extended absence.

Respondent asserts that the District utilized TEACHNJ to try to fire a teacher rather than to provide feedback to an educator; that the District must be strictly held accountable to follow all the procedures required to give a teacher the opportunity to become an effective teacher and that the District failed to follow the mandated procedures put in place to assist teachers.

Therefore, as the District has not followed the requirements of TEACHNJ and has clearly violated numerous requisite mandated procedures, the tenure charges must be dismissed and the Respondent must be reinstated to his former position as a teacher with back pay and remain on the CAP and receive its benefits for the remainder of the 2015-2016 school year.

OPINION:

Under the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for Children of New Jersey Act (TEACHNJ/ACT), for inefficiency charges, the arbitrator's role is limited and may only consider whether or not:

(1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;
(2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;
(3) the charges would not have been brought but for considerations of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by State or federal law, or other conduct prohibited by State or federal law; or

(4) the district's actions were arbitrary and capricious.

Further, an arbitrator must determine if one or more of these considerations is proven, did that fact materially affected the outcome of the evaluation and, finally, the quality of an employee's classroom performance is not subject to an arbitrator's review.

Two charges were brought against Respondent.

Charge One - Inefficiency

The Board has the obligation to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the statutory criteria for the tenure charges have been met and, in support of its position, the Board submitted all the evaluations and testimony to substantiate that Respondent did not meet the required standards of an effective teacher. Based on observations, he received a rating of 'Partially Effective" for the 2013-2014 school year and, after developing the required CAP, which according to Dr. Michael Parent, Principal "is meant to assist the teacher in helping our students achieve more, learn better and for them to be much more effective educators" and was designed to assist Respondent in deficient areas identified in the evaluation, he received a rating of "Ineffective" for the 2014-2015 school year.

As stated above, this Arbitrator is not empowered to evaluate the quality of the evaluations and, therefore, they remain in the record as fact. However, Respondent asserted that procedurally TEACHNJ was not followed in numerous ways; that the District failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process and that the District's actions were arbitrary and capricious. Respondent cited several aspects of TEACHNJ to support its position.

TEACHNJ, in conjunction with the New Jersey Administrative Codes and Statutes, places numerous requirements on the District when evaluating a teacher, which must be followed in order for the tenure charges to be sustained. There are requirements for pre-observation conferences, for post-observation conferences, for the number of conferences per school year and for the responsibilities of the designated supervisor and the School Improvement Panel (SIP).

The parties agreed that as a teacher on a CAP, Respondent must receive four evaluations per school year and, in fact, Respondent was evaluated on October 14, 2014 by Lydia Yikon'a; on April 27, 2015 by Salvatore Gambino, Respondent's supervisor, and Joe Sabbath;[1] on May 26, 2015 by Dr. Michael Parent, Principal, and on May 27, 2015 by Director of Special Education, Candice Chaleff. Additionally, Title 6A of the Code §6A:10-4.4 (c) states that

> . . . For all teachers, at least one of the required observations shall be announced and preceded by a pre-conference.

It was undisputed that Yakon'a's conference was announced but was not preceded by a pre-conference and, in fact, Parent testified that the pre-observation is "an opportunity to give us an indication of what they would like us to look at and focus on during the observation." Respondent disagreed with the District's position and rather asserted that the pre-observation is for the observer to advise the teacher what things the observer would be looking for. Certainly, whether the pre-observation conference is as stated by the District or as asserted by Respondent, it was undisputed that no pre-observation conference was conducted by Yakon'a. Further, §6A:10-4.4 states that

> A pre-conference, when required, shall occur at least one but not more than seven teaching staff member working days prior to he observation.

However, in this matter it was undisputed that Yakon'a did not have a pre-observation conference with Respondent as required by law.

Further, as for post-observation conferences, §6A:10-2.5.4 (f) states that

> The teaching staff member's designated supervisor and the teaching staff member on a corrective action plan shall discuss the teaching staff member's progress toward the goals outlined in the corrective action plan during each required post-observation conference, . . .

Parent acknowledged that as Respondent was on a CAP, post-observation conferences were required after all four of observations on him. However, the record established that Gambino, as Respondent's supervisor, was not at the post-observation conference with Yakon'a[2] and that, according to Parent, Gambino was not at the third post-observation with Parent. As for the fourth observation Chaleff testified that she wrote her comments in a memo to Respondent. Therefore, as there was no post-observation conference after Chaleff's observation, which she testified she did not know was required, Gambino, by definition, was not at that conference.

Further, regarding the purpose of post-observation conferences §6A:10-4.4 (2) stated that

> The post observation conference shall be for the purpose of reviewing the data collected at the observation . . . and offering areas to improve effectiveness.

[1] TEACHNJ requires at least one co-observation per year.

[2] In fact, Gambino admitted that he never even read Yakon'a's evaluation until he compiled the summative report in the spring of 2015. Certainly, Gambino was unable to give Respondent guidance during the year as he had not read the evaluation until the end of the year.

In the opinion of this Arbitrator, the Code is very clear. Not only are there to be four evaluations per school year for a teacher on a CAP so that the teacher can improve but also, as testified to by Chaleff, > the goal behind the evaluation process is to work in the best interest of the community to assure the parents and the community that their students are receiving an appropriate education by effective teachers.

As for the CAP she stated that

> The goal is to first alert them that their teaching is not meeting the effective standard, to provide them . . . a means to which the teacher can improve themselves and provide the guidance to help the teacher learn or improve their ability in those areas that the CAP was developed for.

Additionally, the requirement under §6A:10-2.5.4(f) is that the designated supervisor and the teacher "shall discuss" the teacher's progress during each required post-observation conference. This was clearly not followed.

While Parent asserted that post-observation conferences can be in writing and do not have to be face-to-face, this Arbitrator cannot agree. The word "discuss" has a very specific meaning and when legislators write law and codes, each word must be given meaning. To discuss is not to write an evaluation and send it to the teacher as was done by Chaleff. She testified that while she did not conduct a post-observation conference, she submitted her comments regarding her observation on D-1, the Formal Classroom Observation Form, which Respondent reviewed. She further stated that if she had had an actual face-to-face conference she would not have had any recommendations that were not included in D-1. However, that is not the point. The Code says "discuss."

While the Board asserted that according to the Stronge Evaluation model "Acknowledgment of any document is equivalent to a digital signature indicating receipt review, and acceptance of the observation," this Arbitrator must make a decision based on the TEACHNJ Statute, not on an evaluation model, despite being approved by the Board and endorsed by the Department of Education. Acknowledgement that the teacher has read and commented on an observation does not negate the necessity, under TEACHNJ for the observer, the supervisor and the teacher to "discuss" the observation.

Further, though Respondent could have requested a meeting to discuss an observation, the responsibility is on the District to follow the procedures set forth in TEACHNJ, not on the teacher to request a discussion. If a board of education wants to help a teacher improve, to discuss must mean to sit down and have a discussion as to areas in which the teacher can improve and to discuss the negative and positive aspects of an observation.

Whereas TEACHNJ was implemented so that teachers can improve instruction through the adoption of evaluations that provide specific feedback to educators, the idea of the acceptability of written communication as a form of a post-observation does not fit within the goals of the statue. Further, Parent agreed that the idea of a CAP is for a teacher, with the help of the school district, to improve. Therefore, in the opinion of this Arbitrator, post-observations, in accordance with the language of TEACHNJ and the Code, must be, by their very nature and objective, in person.

Gambino acknowledged that in the fall of 2014 (September, October and November) Respondent was doing better under the CAP; that he was doing things he was supposed to be doing and on his way but that he was still not proficient. Of course, the record reflected and, will be discussed below, that Respondent took a leave of absence beginning on December 8, 2014 due to an approved extended medical absence. However, from Gambino's testimony and the fact that Respondent had a good evaluation in October 2014 from Yakon'a, one would expect that he would have had a good year but for his illness and his suspension discussed below.

The District's witnesses repeatedly stated that Respondent did not request an adjournment of his evaluations and did not ask to cancel or redo an evaluation. However, this is not the responsibility of a teacher. It is the District that is the driving force behind the observations and it was well aware that Respondent was having medical issues and of his requests for accommodations.

Another issue affecting Respondent's performance in the spring of 2015 when he returned to work on February 17, 2015 was that he was not put back into his regular math class but was assigned to in-class support classes as a certified math teacher to teach math. The Board's position was that it did not want to disrupt the flow of the teaching while Respondent was absent and wanted to retain the teacher who was covering for him. If this had been the only action toward Respondent, this Arbitrator would have understood the Board's position. However, the cumulative effect of the Board's actions toward Respondent affected the outcomes of the evaluations.

Shortly thereafter Respondent was suspended from February 25 and was reinstated on March 25, 2014, which will be discussed below. However, the relevant part of these dates is that Respondent was absent again for a few days at the end of March and the beginning of April, then was out again from April 13 to April 24, 2015 and the very first day he was back to work, on April 27, 2015, the second evaluation was conducted.

Parent acknowledged that in order to improve one's teaching skills, one has to teach. However, the record established that the last time Respondent taught his regular math class was on December 5 and that he taught his regular class a few days in March and April before he was observed on April 27, 2015, the first day he was back. Clearly, Respondent did not have sufficient time to acclimate himself back to the classroom after such a tumultuous year. While Parent did not believe this was unreasonable, this Arbitrator cannot agree.

The Board cited a previous decision of this Arbitrator (#235-13) in support of its position that given Respondent's many years as a teacher he should have been ready the day he returned to the classroom to teach at his best. As a general principle, this Arbitrator agrees. However, the fact pattern in the instant matter can be differentiated from the previous Award. This Respondent clearly had medical problems and was continually frustrated at the way the District handled his issues especially his suspension and his back-to-back evaluations and its not granting him any of his requested accommodations until the last month of the school year. Further, whereas this Respondent was absent due to approved medical leaves for long stretches of time, the teacher in the previous decision taught everyday. It was not a situation where he was absent and returned to the classroom and was unfamiliar with the students and where they were in the curriculum. Rather his issues were that he was unable to control the class; that he treated the students in an unprofessional manner; that he received many complaints from students and parents and that received coaching over several years as to his behavior in the class including swearing and using inappropriate language.

Returning to Respondent's fact pattern, he was absent again for several weeks in mid-May and returned on May 25 to once again be evaluated on the first day of his return. However, the District needed one more evaluation before the end of the school year, so what did it do? It evaluated Respondent on May 26, one day after the third evaluation.

This Arbitrator understands that there are requirements under TEACHNJ to observe a teacher on a CAP four times. However, it was undisputed that evaluations are supposed to help the teacher with his strengths and weaknesses and to give him guidance so he can improve. Therefore, there has to be a reasonable time period between evaluations to show improvement. Additionally, the Code requires a post-observation after each conference, which certainly did not happen after the third and before the fourth evaluations.

Respondent also contended that the language regarding the School Improvement Panel, Section C was not followed. According to §6A:10-2.5 (j)

> The School Improvement Panel shall ensure teachers with a corrective action plan receive a mid-year evaluation . . . The mid-year evaluation shall include, > at a minimum, a conference to discuss progress toward the teacher's goals outlined in the corrective action plan. . .

Further, §6A:10-3.1 states that

> The School Improvement Panel shall include the principal, a vice principal, and a teacher . . .[3]

Additionally, 18A:6-120, Section C states that > the panel shall conduct a mid-year evaluation of any employee in the position of teacher who is evaluated as ineffective or partially ineffective in his most recent evaluation.

Chaleff acknowledged that as a member of the SIP, she did not recall any mid-year evaluation done for Respondent despite the fact that the N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5(j) states that the SIP "shall ensure" teachers with a CAP receive a mid-year evaluation.[4] In contrast, Parent testified that Gambino did the mid-year evaluation "at the same time that . . . that I had done my observation," in other words on May 28, 2015, which was Exhibit 1.4 of Joint Exhibit J-2.[5] However, he acknowledged that the purpose of a mid-year evaluation is "to gauge the progress or lack thereof in a corrective action." With this purpose in mind, it must be concluded that no mid-year evaluation was done in this matter. Clearly, Respondent had no opportunity to gauge his progress. Parent's response was that if Respondent had been in school, the mid-year review could have been done in the middle of the year.

In the opinion of this Arbitrator, the actions of the District certainly did not support an approach whereby it was trying to help Respondent to succeed and to meet

[3] The parties agreed that as it relates to evaluations, teachers are not included in the SIP.

[4] The language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-120 is very clear that the Panel shall conduct a mid-year evaluation.

the goals of the CAP. The District acknowledged that Respondent did not fake his illness and it was aware of the reasons for his absences. This Arbitrator can agree that evaluations cannot be done when the teacher is not in attendance but the timing of the evaluations, the second the day he returned from an extended absence and suspension and the third the day he returned from another absence followed by the fourth on the very next day did not appear to represent a District that was trying to work with its staff member, a member who was a longtime employee with no disciplinary record and no history of medical leaves of absence.

A decision rendered by Arbitrator Daniel Brent[6] can be applied directly to this matter. He stated > Respondent's performance for the year was fatally tainted by an arbitrary and capricious action that materially impaired Respondent's right to be judged and rated on the basis of valid observations and evaluations as required under the TeachNJ statute.

>
> The District has credibly described deficiencies in Respondent's performance observed during that evaluation visit, but the arbitrary and capricious timing and circumstances of this evaluation session was unjustified by sound educational policy, prohibited by applicable statute and undermined the validity of the District's summative evaluation of Respondent Jodi Thompson for the 2013-2014 school year, resulting in the tenure charge of inefficiency.

Similarly, though the evaluations described significant deficiencies in Respondent's work performance in this matter, the surrounding circumstances and the District's response to those circumstances were arbitrary and capricious and unjustified given that Respondent cooperated with administration and was forthright in explaining his illness

[5] Parent also testified that Gambino did the mid-year evaluation in the "same time period" as he did the second observation (meaning April 27, 2015) and submitted it on May 28, 2015 (According to J-2, Exhibit 1.4 was submitted, May 29, 2015.)

from the very beginning and supported by medical documentation. Further, as stated by Arbitrator Brent, this Respondent must significantly improve his teaching skills, take the guidance and direction offered in the evaluations over the past two years and avail himself of all assistance so that he can return to being an effective teacher. If not, tenure charges may lie in his future. Further, the District must find a way to work with Respondent as set forth in the CAP so that he can improve his teaching methods.

Charge Two - Other Just Cause (Exploitation of Apportioned Sick-Time)

Absenteeism is a very serious matter and affects the educational opportunities students are entitled to expect and affects the productivity of the teacher. In addition, boards of education have a right to expect that its teachers are in class daily and ready to teach every day. Further, as in any form of discipline, the employer must advise the employee that attendance is the employee's responsibility and is a key component to being a productive employee; that excessive absenteeism will not be tolerated and that a series of counseling sessions and progressive warnings will be issued to the employee.

In the instant matter, Respondent, a math teacher, was awarded tenure during the 2008 school year. Assistant Superintendent John Maiello confirmed that prior to December 2014 Respondent never took any extended leave of absence and that he was unaware of any discipline for Respondent before the 2014-2015 school year. However, the record established that during the 2014-2015 school year Respondent was absent on an approved sick leave for sixty (60) days; that the first day that Respondent was absent was December 8, 2014; that he was absent for the months of December of 2014, January 2015, part of February and returned to work on February 17, 2015.[7]

[6] In the matter of Tenure Charges against Jodi Thompson and The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Docket No. 240-8/14 and 16-1/15.

It was undisputed that Respondent kept the District informed of his medical condition including a memo and Excuse Slip, District Exhibit D-2, which indicated that Respondent would return to work on February 17, 2015. Additionally, the Board received a letter from Respondent's doctor, Respondent Exhibit R-2,[8] dated February 12, 2015, which indicated that Respondent was under his care, and cited "significant chronic health conditions that impair activities of daily living for Mr. Cuntrera." The doctor listed ten (10) Significant Health Impairments and identified twelve (12) accommodation ideas that Respondent and the doctor discussed and advised the District that "If these accommodations cannot be provided, please let Mr. Cuntrera know so that we can discuss alternatives." He further suggested that he could be called at any time for further discussions. Maiello acknowledged that he received this memo from Respondent; that he did not call the doctor for further discussions regarding Respondent's medical condition and that though he was concerned about Respondent's fitness for duty, there was nothing in the doctor's note that said Respondent was not fit for duty.

As stated above, Respondent returned to work on February 17, 2015,[9] worked the 17th through the 24th and attended two meetings on February 24th. According to [7] Respondent's unrefuted testimony was that he received a bug bite while on vacation in Florida in July 2014; that he had severe side effects from that bite and blood pressure problems combined with anxiety. There was no evidence in the record that disputed Respondent's assertions as to his medical condition.

[8] Respondent's Exhibit R-2 and R-7 are the same document.

Respondent, the first meeting was with William Betar, head of human resources, and John Manning, Association Representative (neither of whom testified), at which time Betar told Respondent that the accommodations requested in R-2 could not be given as it would affect the quality of the education of the students. Later that same day Respondent attended a meeting with Superintendent, Diane Lobasco, who also did not testify. Respondent's unrefuted testimony was that Lobasco stated that the doctor did not have the authority to write this letter; that she was concerned about Respondent's safety and that of the students and that he was suspended. However, Maiello testified that when Respondent was suspended the concern was based on the February 12, 2015 memo but he acknowledged that there was no concern for the safety of the students and that there were no complains that Respondent was acting irrational or in a dangerous manner.

Lobosco wrote to the doctor on February 26, 2015, R-9, requesting additional information regarding accommodations and on March 10, 2015, in response to a request by the District, Respondent wrote a memo to Lobosco, R-12, which advised her that Respondent had given authorization to the doctor to release any and all medical records. However, Respondent acknowledged that no notes were sent to the District from the doctor between February 12th and March 19, 2015.

On March 19, 2015, Maiello wrote a memo to Respondent regarding his accommodation requests, R-4. In that letter, of the twelve (12) accommodations requested, the first was granted. Though the District asserted that this was only a suggestion, the memo was very clear regarding the first requested accommodation, which stated:[10]

[9] Conditions under which he returned to work were discussed above.

> Extra time will be provided to complete work.[11]
> An additional period will be allowed. Mr. Cuntrera will no longer be assigned a duty period. All other extra time needed is to be after the contractual end of the day.

For the following requested accommodations, Maiello asked for more information: bullet points 3 through 6, 8 and 9. For bullet points 2, 7 and 10 through 12 Maiello gave suggestions and stated Board policy. In the opinion of this Arbitrator, the first bullet point was accommodated but the record clearly reflected that the accommodation did not take effect until June 2, 2015. In a memo with that date from Maiello to Respondent, R-10, Maiello stated that

> As a result of interactive process conduced with you and review of Dr. Braverman's letter dated April 1, 2015, and the additional medical information you have supplied, please find the PCTI's position with regard to your requests for reasonable accommodations.
>
> . . .
>
> Extra time will be provided to complete work.
>
> Request granted. Mr. Cuntrera is no longer being assigned a duty period, this will allow him an additional 42 minutes to complete his work. All other extra time needed is to be after the contractual day.

Though the District claimed that this was the memo that approved Respondent's request to be relieved of his duty period, this Arbitrator cannot agree. The only difference between the response regarding duty period on R-4 and the response on June 2, 2015, R-10, was that it said request granted. However, the March 19, 2015 memo was also in the affirmative when it stated that "Mr. Cuntrera will no longer be assigned a duty period." However, it was undisputed that Gambino continued to assign Respondent a duty period from March 19 until June 2, 2015 in contravention of Maiello's directive.

[10] Maeillo testified that he told Gambino around March 25, 2015 that Respondent was no longer to be assigned a duty period.

This Arbitrator agrees with the District that it is only required to grant reasonable accommodations and is not required to lower its standards. However, while the District asserted that the doctor did not respond in a timely manner, this Arbitrator cannot agree. In response to Lobosco's letter dated February 26, 2015, the record established that the Board received a letter from Dr. Braverman dated April 1, 2015 with his assessments but Maeillo did not grant or deny requests until June 2, 2015, R-10.

The record established that Lobosco and Maeillo were very concerned about Respondent's fitness for duty and, therefore, he was suspended beginning on February 25, 2015. As per R-3, dated February 24, 2015, Lobosco wrote to Respondent to advise him that he was suspended, "subject to the validation of your medical documentation, as well as fitness for duty." However, with no reason given and with no additional medical documentation received by the Board at that time, Respondent's suspension was rescinded and he returned to work on March 25, 2015.[12] A careful review of the testimony and documentation convinced this Arbitrator that there was no reasonable

[11] Bold and underlined sentence was the accommodation requested by the doctor in R-2 dated February 12, 2015. The next sentences are the response from the assistant superintendent.

[12] Maeillo testified that he told Gambino on March 25, 2015 that Respondent will no longer be assigned a duty period. However, the record established that Respondent continued to be assigned a duty period by Gambino. Despite the fact that the duty period accommodation was granted, Respondent was told by Gambino that he had duty period responsibility. Respondent emailed Gambino on May 6, 2015, R-5, reminding him that he no longer had a duty period and asked Gambino to confirm. It was not until the June 2, 2015 memo, R-10, was issued, that Respondent was not assigned a duty period.

reason to have suspended Respondent on February 25, 2015. The doctor did not state in his memos that Respondent was not fit for duty and though the District continued to claim that it was concerned about Respondent's fitness and the safety of the students, the District did not send Respondent for a second evaluation and did not receive any further information from Respondent's doctor as was stated in the February 24th letter. However, with no explanation, the Board reinstated Respondent on March 25, 2015.

This Arbitrator can understand that the District may have wanted additional medical information but having not received that documentation, if it really believed that Respondent was a danger to himself and to the students or unfit for duty, why did it reinstate him on March 25, 2015? This curious set of facts led this Arbitrator to question the District's actions.

Respondent was absent most days in April and May and taught from May 26 through the end of the school year when Respondent was rated "ineffective" and the Board filed the tenure charges in accordance with TEACHNJ.

Board Policy #3212 (Attendance) stated in pertinent part that > a teaching staff member who fails to give prompt notice of an absence, misuses sick leave, fails to verify an absence in accordance with Board policy, falsifies the reason for an absence, is absent without authorization, is repeatedly tardy, or accumulates an excessive number of absences may be subject to appropriate consequences, which may include the withholding of a salary increment, dismissal, and/or certification of tenure charges.

There was no evidence in the record of the hearing that Respondent did not promptly notify the District of his absences, that he misused sick leave, that he failed to verify an absence, that he falsified the reason for any absence, that he was absent without authorization or that he was repeatedly tardy.[13] However, it was the Board's position that Respondent was excessively absent when he was absent sixty (60) sick days in the 2014-15 school year. As testified to by Maiello, the 2014-2015 school year was the first time since Respondent was hired in 2005 that he had "excessive leaves of absence."

The District cited the decision by Arbitrator Robert Gifford in a prior tenure matter, Docket No. 260-9/14,[14] in support of its position that the excessive absence charge should be sustained. However, in the opinion of this Arbitrator, the instant charge can be differentiated from the prior tenure decision in significant ways and does not support the Board's position.

- Steitz had a record of 560.55 days of excessive absenteeism over seven (7) school years.
- Steitz was progressively disciplined and warned about his poor attendance multiple times.

While this Arbitrator agrees that teachers must come to school regularly so that students will have the benefit of consistent instruction, this Respondent was absent sixty (60) days in one school year and never used leaves of absence in the past. Further, Respondent was never warned that his absenteeism would lead to disciplinary charges and, in fact, he was never disciplined for absenteeism, progressively or not, from the 2005 school year through the 2013-2014 school year.

[13] On the contrary, the record established that Respondent kept the District informed about all of his absences and followed the Attendance Policy completely.

[14] In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Carson Steitz, School District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County. Decided by Arbitrator Robert C. Gifford, Esq.

Arbitrator Gifford cited the well established "Substantive Standards of Proof" to conclude that Steitz was excessively absent sufficient to warrant dismissing him from his tenured teaching position. Two of the three items cited are applicable in this matter.

> In order to terminate a tenured employee for chronic absenteeism, the Board must demonstrate that there was consideration of:
> (1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences.
>
> . . .
> (3) That there be some warning, given to the employee that his or (sic) supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences.[15]

However, in this matter, the District did not demonstrate that it took into consideration the particular circumstances of Respondent's absences. He notified the District when he would be out. He had doctor certification of his condition. His doctor explained that he had significant health impairments, and that he needed accommodations, which, except for one were not given, and even that one was given the last month of the school year, and the doctor offered to discuss the accommodations with the Board but that never happened.

There was no testimony to convince this Arbitrator that the Board considered the circumstances of his absences. Rather, it merely looked at the number. Further, the record of the hearing was devoid of any notice to Respondent that his continued absences could lead to tenure charges and he was not progressively disciplined for this matter. Finally, despite the fact that the Board was so concerned for the progress of the students and that there be a consistent teacher's presence in the classroom, it suspended him for nineteen (19) days when he could have been in the classroom thus increasing his anxiety and exacerbating the medical condition cited by his doctor. There was no proof in the record of the hearing that Respondent "exploited" his apportioned sick time.

For all of the above reasons, this Arbitrator must decide that the Board did not sustain its burden of proving the Tenure Charges.

The District asserted in its brief that Respondent was not a credible witness and that this Arbitrator should credit the testimony of its witnesses. While the District's position is that an employee has a reason to not tell the truth whereas the employer's witnesses should be given greater weight, this Arbitrator cannot agree with that general statement. Each situation is unique and whereas sometimes the Board's premise is accurate, other times it is not. In the instant matter, each witness was evaluated based on his or her own testimony and compared to the testimony of others and, in fact, this Arbitrator concluded that most witnesses were credible. Not only did this Arbitrator conclude that the Grievant was forthright in his testimony, but also that the Board's actions and its implementation, or lack thereof, of TEACHNJ and the Code were important factors in determining that it did not meet its burden.

Finally, the District issued two Formal Reprimands to Respondent on May 4, 2015 for changing historical grades and for fabrication of Student Growth Objectives (SGO), which appeared to this Arbitrator to be related to the same issue. However, Performance Standard 7, Student Academic Progress, or the SGO measure, is part of the evaluation system and, according to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2, Considerations for Arbitrator in Rendering Decision, the evaluator's determination is not subject to an arbitrator's review. Therefore, these two reprimands will not be addressed.[16] Regarding the third reprimand for using another teacher's information, Respondent specifically noted in the Documentation Log that the material was created by another teacher. Contrary to the District's assertion, Respondent did not try to pass the material off as his own. In the opinion of this Arbitrator, this reprimand was insufficient to support tenure charges.

In conclusion, this Arbitrator has reviewed and carefully weighed all the evidence and arguments presented at the hearing and through briefs by both parties even though many facets were not referred to in the Opinion. Considering all the facts, this Arbitrator must decide that the District did not carry its burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence; that the manner in which the District conducted the evaluations materially affected the outcome of the evaluations and that the Tenure Charges are to be dismissed.

In consonance with proof and upon the foregoing, the undersigned Arbitrator hereby finds, decides, determines and renders the following:

EXHIBIT A

The Board of Education requested to submit reply briefs in this matter first asserting that we had agreed to reply briefs but that if there had been no agreement, it asserted that reply briefs were appropriate so that both parties could present their entire positions. Respondent did not agree to the filing of reply briefs and after several emails from both parties and after due consideration, the Arbitrator issued this ruling via email on November 20, 2015.

Gentlemen;

I have checked my notes and the transcript and there is no mention of reply briefs. The following is from the transcript when we discussed filing of briefs at page 221:

Arbitrator: As you know, we have a very short window of opportunity for briefing schedules because we have 45 days from last Wednesday for my decision to be in, which turns out to be Thanksgiving or the next day, Friday. I'm wondering - unfortunately, I'm going to be away the 12th through the 19th. I'm wondering if you can have it to me by the 6th of November, which gives you like ten days.

Mr. Buglione: Yes

Therefore, it is clear that we never discussed the filing of reply briefs. I know that reply briefs have been submitted sometimes in arbitrations but is the exception and is usually when the parties have agreed in advance to submit such.

Additionally, I have carefully considered Mr. Buglione's reasoning for submitting a reply brief. However, while I believe that it is important for each party to have a full opportunity to present its arguments, reply briefs will not be considered in this matter for the following reasons. The parties never agreed to reply briefs, TEACHNJ requires a very short time schedule so that these matters are resolved quickly and because of Petitioner's main reason for wanting to submit a reply brief. While I agree that Petitioner has the right to question Respondent's credibility and to try to impeach his testimony, Petitioner had the opportunity when it submitted its first brief. As Petitioner said in the November 18 emails at 10:14 a.m. and again at 3:32 p.m.,

"It is abundantly clear that the respondent made misstatements at the hearing and we are allowed to point them out through the briefing process." (emphasis added)

At 3:32 p.m.: .. . the respondent was not candid when he testified before Your honor, and the petitioner should be able to point out the inconsistencies in his testimony, and to demonstrate that he provided false testimony." (emphasis added)

I certainly agree that Petitioner has the right to point out these inconsistencies and to try to impeach Respondent. However, whatever Respondent said was testified to at the hearing on October 21, 2015 and Petitioner had every opportunity to argue those points in its first brief. The hearing cannot be reopened to add new documents. Finally, as far as the reading of TEACHNJ, each party submitted several exhibits with its brief and its positions on the law and I will consider both parties' arguments and exhibits in forming my decision.

Respectfully submitted,
Mattye M. Gandel, Arbitrator

RESPONDENT.	:

The Decision on Settlement and Penalty issued by the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), along with the parties' Settlement Agreement ("Agreement"), have been reviewed. The Agreement contains an acknowledgment by respondent that: 1) he engaged in the conduct alleged in Paragraph 9 of the Complaint; 2) said conduct violated the School Ethics Act; and 3) he shall receive a reprimand from the Commission. On October 28, 2015, the Commission issued its final decision approving the parties' proposed Agreement, recommending the penalty of reprimand for respondent's violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) and (i), and dismissing the matter subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the Commission's determination as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Rather, the Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to review of the Commission's recommended sanction upon its determination that a violation has occurred. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon such review, the Commissioner agrees – for the reasons expressed in the Commission's final decision – that a reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, respondent Anthony Prezioso is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – formerly assigned as the principal at New Brunswick High School – appealed her August 2015 reassignment to the position of principal at the McKinley Community elementary school, contending that she had been demoted and her salary potentially reduced, in violation of her tenure rights. The respondent Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue herein, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; although elementary school principals earn less than high school principals under collectively negotiated agreements, the petitioner in the instant case continues to earn the same salary that she did as high school principal; petitioner's benefits also remain the same; petitioner holds the tenured position of "Principal", and there are no separate titles for "High School Principal" and "Elementary School Principal"; petitioner's contentions that her tenure is only in the position of high school principal and that her transfer is a demotion are without merit; the controlling case in this matter, Williams v. Board of Education of Plainfield, 176 N.J. Super., 154 (App. Div. 1980), certif. denied, 87 N.J. 306 (1981), holds that as long as the salary is not reduced, a transfer from the assignment of high school principal to that of elementary school principal is not a demotion as the new assignment is within the same tenured position, and such a transfer is proper and may occur without the petitioner's consent. The ALJ concluded that the respondent's transfer of petitioner was proper, and accordingly granted the Board's motion for summary decision. The petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision – that the Board acted within its authority when it transferred petitioner from the assignment of high school principal to that of elementary school principal. Accordingly, summary decision was granted to the respondent, and the petition was dismissed.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision – that the Board acted within its authority when it transferred petitioner from the assignment of high school principal to elementary school principal. The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ that such transfer was not a demotion, as petitioner remained in the position of principal – only a change of assignment, not a change of position – and her salary was not reduced.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 212-8/15

JANENE RODRIGUEZ,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Luretha M. Stribling, Esq., for petitioner

George F. Hendricks, Esq., for respondent (Hendricks & Hendricks, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 16, 2015 Decided: November 5, 2015

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 6, 2015, Janene Rodriguez (petitioner) filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education contending that her transfer from the position of Principal of New Brunswick High School to the position of Principal of McKinley Community School, a kindergarten through eighth-grade school by the New Brunswick Board of Education (District or Board) was a demotion with the potential of a $10,000 reduction in pay in violation of the Tenure Statute and TEACH NJ.

On August 6, 2015, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education transmitted the petition and an application for Emergent Relief to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, for determination as a contested case. Counsel for petitioner requested an adjournment of the August 17, 2015, hearing date because she was scheduled to begin a trial in Superior Court on that date. I heard the Emergent Relief application on September 24, 2015, and denied it on that date. I also ordered the Board to file a Motion for Summary Decision by October 9, 2015, and petitioner to file a Cross-Motion for Summary Decision or a Motion in Opposition to the District's Motion by October 16. Following receipt of the Board's Motion, I received petitioner's Opposition on November 4, 2015, at which time the record closed.

DISCUSSION

Based on the Petition, petitioner's certification in support of her application for Emergent Relief, the District's papers in opposition to the application, and the District's Motion for Summary Decision, I make the following FINDINGS of FACT:

The Board hired petitioner into the position of Vice Principal at New Brunswick High School in 2010, where she remained for two years. She was promoted to Principal at the High School in 2012 and became tenured as a Principal. She had received satisfactory observations and evaluations had been designated as "effective." After Aubrey Johnson replaced retiring Superintendent of Schools Richard Kaplan on July 1, 2015, Johnson transferred petitioner to the McKinley Community elementary school effective August 1, 2015, without her consent. Petitioner contends that she is tenured and trained as a high school Principal and has no tenure or experience to work in the position of elementary school Principal. She viewed the transfer as a demotion.

Contrary to petitioner's fear of a reduction in salary because elementary school principals earn less than high school principals under collectively negotiated agreements, the Board has not reduced her salary. Salary and benefits remain the same. Johnson transferred four principals within the District as lateral moves which the Board determined to be in the best interest of the District's students. Petitioner holds the tenured position of "Principal," and there is no separate title of "High School Principal."

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Summary decision is the administrative counterpart to summary judgment in the judicial arena. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." This language is substantially similar to the guidelines for summary judgment under R. 4:46-2(c), which provides in part that the judgment or order sought shall be rendered if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law.

In order to defeat a summary decision motion, the adverse party must respond by affidavits setting forth "specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary hearing." Use of the summary procedure is aimed at "the swift uncovering of the merits and either their effective disposition or their advancement toward prompt resolution by trial." Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).

The New Jersey Supreme Court has encouraged trial-level courts "not to refrain from granting summary judgment when the proper circumstances present themselves." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 541 (1995). While cautioning that a judge should not weigh the truth of the evidence or resolve factual disputes at this early stage of the proceedings, the Court clarified that "when the evidence 'is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,' the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment." Id. at 540 (citations omitted).

I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary disposition. There are no material disputed facts which require a plenary hearing, and I further CONCLUDE that the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

Petitioner argues that an employee who has tenure and has received an effective evaluation cannot be transferred to a different position or demoted unless there is cause. The Board contends that it has the authority to transfer a principal from one principal's assignment to another principal's assignment so long as there is no reduction in salary. No disciplinary grounds or pre-transfer due process is required. It does not matter whether petitioner was a good or bad administrator or whether she did anything wrong. A Board may base the transfer solely upon its determination that an individual school may benefit by such transfer.

The seminal case bearing on the issues here is Williams v. Board of Education of Plainfield, 176 N.J. Super. 154 (App. Div. 1980), certif. denied, 87 N.J. 306 (1981). A tenured high school principal challenged her transfer to a position as an elementary school principal without a reduction of salary. The Court affirmed the decision of the State Board of Education that > . . . petitioner's transfer to the elementary school principalship was a proper transfer to a position of equivalent rank and could occur without appellant's consent. As long as the salary is not reduced, a transfer from the position of high school principal to that of elementary school principal is not a demotion; the certification required is the same, tenure can be acquired in both positions and the duties to be performed are of no less importance from an educational standpoint.

> [Id. at 158.]

The services of a Principal, which requires the holding of an appropriate certification issued by the board of examiners, shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency, and he/she shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for certain enumerated reasons. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Tenure is acquired after employment in a given position for the period of time specified in the statute. Ibid. Petitioner erroneously tries to make a distinction between the certificate of a high school principal and the certificate of an elementary school principal. There is but a single certificate for the position of "Principal." N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-11.5.

It is undisputed that petitioner is tenured in the title of Principal and remains so after her transfer to McKinley. Her reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 for the proposition that she was transferred to a different position without her consent is misplaced. She was simply transferred to a different location for which consent is not statutorily required rather than to a different position. Neither her tenure nor her certified position changed. She is wrong to characterize her tenure as just in the position of high school principal or that her transfer is a demotion. Her tenure is in the position of Principal.

Additionally, although petitioner expressed a concern that her salary would be reduced because the collective negotiations agreement for administrators provides for a $10,000 differential in the salaries of high school and elementary school principals, representatives of the Board have certified that there was no reduction in salary as a result of petitioner's transfer.

Based on Williams, the law is settled. Petitioner's reliance on Sanchez v. Board of Education of the City of Camden, EDU 23-03, State Board of Education (June 4, 2003), http://nj.law.rutgers.edu/collection/oal/, is misplaced. The State Board of Education in that case noted that the petitioner was entitled under the tenure laws to be placed in an assignment within her tenured position of "Principal," but that the Camden Board had improperly transferred her to the position of "Vice Principal," which is a separately tenurable position. Also, without a reduction of pay associated with the recent transfer of school locations, concern regarding future salary increases or adjustments does not change the calculus. The Court in Williams was very clear that, under applicable statutes, "there is no suggestion much less an express statement, that future salary increases or adjustments are to be considered in determining the validity of a transfer which is otherwise proper. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 merely prohibits 'reduc[tion] in compensation' except for the reasons stated and in the manner prescribed therein." Williams, supra, 176 N.J. Super. at 162. I am unconvinced that any aspect of TEACHNJ (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-118 et seq.) has altered N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or the case law thereunder with regard to the issues in this matter.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

Record Closed: October 26, 2015 Decided: November 12, 2015

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 27, 2013, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The parties agreed to a settlement of all issues in dispute. The fully executed Settlement Agreement and Board Resolution were received on October 26, 2015, upon which date the record in this matter closed.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures, and as confirmed by the representations of both counsel.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

2015 SEP 25 P 2:19

This Agreement and Release ("the Agreement") is entered into and effective this day of September, 2015 ("the Effective Date"), by and between the Lakewood Board of Education ("Board") and the Lakewood Education Association ("Association").

WHEREAS, the Board is a body public and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1; and

WHEREAS, the Association is recognized as the majority representative and the exclusive and sole representative for collective negotiations concerning terms and conditions of employment for all full- or part-time certificated staff clerical personnel and paraprofessionals employed by the Board; and

WHEREAS, on or about July 22, 2015, the Association filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education which has been docketed under OAL Dkt. No.: EDU 12148-13 and which, among other things, alleged that the Board failed to make the timely transfers of funds pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-127; and

WHEREAS, the Board has denied the allegations of the Petition and has denied any wrongdoing on its part; and

WHEREAS, the parties have negotiated in good faith and have reached an amicable settlement of all of the claims raised in the Petition and desire to resolve and settle all issues therein on behalf of all members represented by the Association; and

WHEREAS, the parties believe it to be in their best interest to set forth their agreement, and respective obligations and duties in writing;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and conditions set forth in this Agreement, the Parties agree as follows:

1. Payment. The Board shall pay into the trust fund of the Association's counsel the amount of $2,500.00 in settlement of all claims that were or could have been raised in the Petition on behalf of any and all members, present or past, represented by the Association. The foregoing monies represent the full and final consideration to be paid for making this Release. The Association, on behalf of its members, accepts this amount in full satisfaction of any and all claims that were raised or could have been raised in the Petition.

2. Release. In exchange for the above consideration, the Association, on behalf of its members, hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waives, releases and forever discharges any claims, rights, demands, judgments, suits, causes of action or liabilities in tort, contract, by statute, whether known or unknown, that its members have or may have had against the Board, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, officers, administrators, agents, employees, attorneys, and their successors, heirs and assigns, arising in any way out of the facts and circumstances as set forth in the Petition, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorney's fees, contractual damages, pre and post judgment interest, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any claims involving tax liability stemming from this Release, and any claims which could have been asserted up to this time in the Petition.

Releasor specifically releases the following claims:

> Any and all claims for injuries, damages and consequential damages which are the subject of the Petition filed with the Commissioner of Education, currently pending in the Office of Administrative Law under docket number: EDU 12148-13.

3. No Admissions This Agreement is entered into solely for the purpose of resolving disputed claims, and neither the execution, delivery, nor performance of this Agreement shall constitute or be construed at any time or for any purpose to be an admission of fact or liability by any of the parties; and the parties further agree that this Agreement and Release shall not be used as evidence in any judicial, administrative, or quasi-judicial proceeding, except to enforce the terms of the Agreement.

4. Assent to Terms. The parties hereto hereby acknowledge that they have signed this Agreement with a full understanding of their rights and that they were fully informed of the implications of this agreement by their counsel, Aileen O'Driscoll, Esq. for the Association and Katherine A. Gilfillan, Esq. for the Board. The parties acknowledge that they were given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement.

5. Amendment; Materiality; No Waiver. This Agreement shall not be amended, changed or modified except in a writing signed by all parties. Each and every provision of this Agreement is material. In the event that any provision of this Agreement is determined to be illegal and unenforceable, the Parties agree, in advance, to reform the Agreement in good faith to provide each Party with the full benefit of each and every provision of the Agreement. Any failure to enforce any provision of this Agreement shall not operate as a waiver of such provision or of any other provision.

6. Authority/Indemnification. This Agreement is subject to Board approval. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board. The Association further represents that they have the full consent of its members to execute this Agreement on behalf of those represented in this matter as set forth in the Association's response to the Board's Interrogatories specifying the actual parties in interest in this Petition. In the event that any Association member institutes any action against the Board for any declaratory or monetary relief arising out of the same facts and circumstances giving rise to the allegations of the Petition herein, the Association agrees that it will hold the Board harmless and indemnify the Board for any loss, damages, pre or post judgment interest, and attorney's fees arising out of the Board's defense of such action.

7. Who is Bound. The Board and the Association members who have been named as parties in interest to this Petition are bound by this Release. Anyone who succeeds to the individual members' rights and responsibilities, such as their successors and assigns, is also bound. This Release is made for the Board's benefit and all who succeed to the Board's rights and responsibilities.

8. Entire Agreement. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matters herein, and supersedes and integrates any and all prior representations, negotiations, discussions, understandings and agreements, whether oral or written. Each party acknowledges that the other parties, nor any agent or attorney of the other parties, have made any promise, representation or warranty whatsoever, express or implied, not contained in this Agreement to induce it to execute this Agreement.

9. Construction. The terms of this Agreement are not to be construed against any one party but are to be construed as if all parties prepared it equally.

10. Law Governing. This Agreement is governed by the laws of New Jersey.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have executed this agreement consisting of four (4) pages as of the effective date.

Re: Camden Education Association, on behalf of its members v. State-Operated School District of the City of Camden, Camden County
Agency Dkt. No. 219-8/15

Dear Counsel:

Upon review of the Petition of Appeal filed in connection with this matter and based upon the respondent's failure to submit an Answer to the Petition that complies with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5, I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioners.

On August 7, 2015, the petitioners filed their Petition of Appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, claiming that they had acquired tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 as clerical and/or secretarial employees and that respondent violated their tenure rights by abolishing their positions and replacing them with non-tenured employees. In the Petition of Appeal, petitioners sought an order directing respondent to reinstate – retroactive to June 30, 2015 – the following petitioners to full-time clerical and/or secretarial positions, together with back pay, benefits and emoluments: Tracey Allen, Sandra Baratta, Warrenett Hines, Loureen Walker, Glenda Ezell, Annette Johnson-Nichols, Shannon Nelson, Dale Lampkin, Karen Merrill, and Evelyn Holland.[1] A copy of the Petition was served upon the District on August 7, 2015 via regular mail, as was an acknowledgment of filing and notice – dated August 10, 2015 – that an Answer to the Petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because the District failed to respond to the initial notice, a second notice was sent on September 2, 2015, via certified and regular mail, clearly indicating that – absent receipt of an Answer to the Petition within 10 days – each count in the Petition would be deemed admitted and the matter may be decided on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e).

[1] Petitioners Yvette Williams and Christine McKim have been reinstated to positions in the District and have withdrawn from this action, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13(a). Petitioners have also indicated that Stacey Mills has likewise withdrawn from this action, but it appears that her name was not included in the original petition.

The certified mail return receipt card indicates that the September 2, 2015 notice was delivered to the District on September 4, 2015. The District failed to respond to the second notice. A third notice, which reiterated the information contained within the prior notice and also copied the District's attorney, was sent on September 18, 2015. The certified mail return receipt card indicates that the September 18, 2015 notice was delivered to the District on September 21, 2015. The District failed to respond to the third notice.

On October 5, 2015, a letter was sent to counsel for petitioners indicating that, due to a lack of notarized verifications for several petitioners, the matter would not move forward until that deficiency was cured. On November 10, 2015, petitioners submitted the necessary notarized verifications.

Thereafter, a final notice – sent to the District's attorney via certified and regular mail on November 12, 2015 – directed the District to file an answer within 10 days and indicated that should an answer not be filed within that time, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and the matter may be decided on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). The certified mail return receipt card indicates that the November 12, 2015 notice was delivered to the District's attorney on November 16, 2015. A copy of the final notice, sent to the District via regular mail on November 12, 2015, was never returned to this office.

To date, no Answer has been filed on behalf of the District. Accordingly, petitioners' claim that the District's termination of their employment violated their tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17.2 is deemed admitted. It is hereby ordered that petitioners Allen, Baratta, Hines, Walker, Ezell, Johnson-Nichols, Nelson, Lampkin, Merrill, and Holland are hereby reinstated to their full time clerical and/or secretarial positions, together with retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Sincerely,

David C. Hespe

BACKGROUND

The Respondent, Michael Wilson, has been employed by the State Operated School District of Newark since 1996. He acquired tenure and until the 2013-14 school year taught mathematics at the eighth grade level. During that time, his performance evaluations were consistently satisfactory. Beginning in the 2013-14 school year, the district transferred Wilson to the Ivy Hill Elementary School and assigned him to teach science and social studies at the seventh and eighth grade level.

In the school years of 2013-14 and 2014-15, respectively, the school district gave Wilson summative evaluations of "partially effective" and "ineffective." Those evaluations became the basis for the principal of the Ivy Hill Elementary school to file a charge of inefficiency against Wilson as required by P.L. 2012, as amended by P.L. 2015, C.109, chapter 26, the TEACHNJ Act. The principal requested his dismissal from his tenured position and suspension without pay. The State District Superintendent, on September 30, 2015, confirmed the charges against the Respondent, finding probable cause to credit the supporting evidence and that if true the charge was sufficient to warrant dismissal or salary reduction. The superintendent determined, as well, that the Respondent should be suspended as requested.

The matter was then forwarded to the commissioner of Education for hearing. The Respondent replied to the charges on October 13, 2015. The Commissioner advised the parties' counsel on October 23, 2015, that the matter was being referred to arbitration:

> Dear Counsel:
>
> IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MICHAEL WILSON, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY, AGENCY DKT NO. 302-10/15
>
> Please be advised that, following receipt of respondent's answer on October 13, 2015, the above-captioned tenure charges have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-17.2, subject to determination by the arbitrator of respondent's defenses and any motions which may be filed with the arbitrator.
>
> The balance of the charges have been reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, subject to determination by the arbitrator of respondent's defenses and any motions which may be filed with the arbitrator, including, but not limited to, whether N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2 and 6-17.3 now provide the exclusive mechanism for bringing inefficiency charges. The arbitrator shall review those charges brought pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-16- which are not dismissed as the result of a motion- under the preponderance of the evidence standard.
>
> Accordingly, on this date, the charges are being referred to Arbitrator Lewis R. Amis pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-16 as amended by P.L.2012,c.26 and P.L. 2015,c.109.

The Act provides as follows at C.18-A: 6-17.1, 22, b. (3)

> (3) Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employing board of education or its representative. The employee shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. Discovery shall not include depositions, and interrogatories shall be limited to 25 without subparts.

Further, Section f. of this paragraph provides:

> f. Timelines set forth herein shall be strictly followed...

In a letter dated November 5 citing Section (3) above, the Respondent's attorney claimed that the school district had not timely presented all of its evidence as required by statute, primarily the witness list with a complete summary of the testimony to be presented. Respondent included an arbitration award: Tenure Hearing of Marie Ebert, Agency Docket No. 267-9/14, in support of its position and requested a briefing schedule for a motion to dismiss.

The school district responded on November 6, 2015, with additional evidentiary materials, including a list of witnesses with summaries of their testimony and copies of the Framework for Effective Teaching for 2013-14 and 2014-15 describing the teacher performance evaluation system for those years. Petitioner also argued that any motion to dismiss should be denied because the Respondent had actual or constructive knowledge of all the evidence upon which the district would rely.

The Respondent filed a Motion for Summary Dismissal and a letter brief on November 27, 2015 citing the following grounds:

A. Petitioner failed to abide by its disclosure obligations as mandated by law.

B. Respondent's summative evaluation for the 2014-15 school year was improperly derived, thereby rendering the tenure charges defective.

C. Petitioner's tenure charges were filed pursuant to incompatible provisions of the TEACHNJ Act, thereby rendering them defective.

At the initial arbitration hearing in this matter held by telephone on December 7, 2015, the issue was reduced to whether the Petitioner disclosed pertinent mandated evidence in a timely fashion and if not, what should the remedy be?

The Petitioner contends that Respondent's motion should be denied because Petitioner complied with its disclosure obligations under New Jersey law. Petitioner would have the Arbitrator reject the Respondent's timeliness argument because he had the information regarding witnesses and their testimony as early as September 1, 2015, when he was served with detailed documents pertaining to the Respondent's evaluations, including the identity of the evaluators, whom he could assume would be witnesses in Petitioner's presentation. Petitioner thus argues that the Respondent was in no way injured by any delay in its producing the evidentiary basis for its case.

The Respondent contends that the Petitioner did not meet its statutory disclosure obligations under N.J.S.A 18A:17-3 (b)(3). The Respondent argues that the statute is clear as to when disclosure is required--at the time the matter is referred to arbitration--and as to the requirement that timeliness be strictly observed. In neither case, the Respondent argues, did the Petitioner meet its statutory obligations; therefore, the tenure charges should be dismissed.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The Respondent shall prevail in this matter. The Act is clear that all evidence to be used by the Petitioner must be presented upon referral of a case to arbitration. In this case, that would have been on October 23, 2015. The Act also plainly states that evidence presented by the parties prior to the hearing is the only evidence allowed at the hearing except for the purpose of impeaching witnesses.

Petitioner did not submit a witness list with complete summaries of testimony as specified in 18A:6-17.1(3) until November 6, 2015. In addition, Petitioner added other documents not previously provided to the Respondent.

The Act is also clear that all timelines must be strictly adhered to. They were not in this case; therefore, I must find the Petitioner to have been in violation of the specific and general requirements for submitting its evidence in a timely manner.

The Act is a radical attempt to improve educational outcomes by improving the quality of instruction, using as one vehicle a system for teacher evaluations the legislature believes is superior to previous systems. The Act has strict rules for eliminating teachers who do not meet the standards of the evaluation system, and it has its own appeals procedures for adjudicating tenure disputes that are separate and distinct from standard grievance and arbitration procedures that might be found in collective bargaining agreements.

Perhaps the most notable aspect of the appeal process is that arbitrators are specifically excluded from reviewing an evaluator's determination of the quality of an employee's classroom performance. Otherwise, the arbitrator's function is largely to determine that the evaluation procedure is substantially followed, that the outcome is not influenced by considerations extraneous to the legitimate pedagogical goals of the school district, and that the procedures set forth in the Act for processing appeals are followed. In short, the arbitrator's job, though it does not include any assessment of the judgments of professional educator/evaluators, is to assure that the due process provisions written into the Act are followed.

The Act's timelines and procedures for presenting evidence are rigid and are designed to provide sufficient but not unlimited time for parties to prepare their cases so that a fair and expeditious conclusion can be achieved. Any significant delay in the presentation of salient evidence by one party prejudices the other party's ability to represent its client. In this case, the Petitioner delayed presenting certain evidence it would use for fourteen days after the matter was referred to arbitration. That significantly curtailed the time Respondent had to prepare and present its evidence which was due within ten days of the first hearing--a hearing that must be and was scheduled forty-five days after the arbitrator's appointment as provided in 18A:6-17.1b(1). The Petitioner clearly failed to observe statutory timelines and offered no basis for that lapse; therefore, the Respondent's Motion for Dismissal will be granted

The Respondent's motion for dismissal is granted based on the school district's failure to meet the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1b(3). Michael Wilson shall be reinstated as a teacher with full back pay and benefits.

H.F., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, D.F.	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioner in this matter disputed the February 2015 decision of the Interim Executive County Superintendent for Bergen County (ECS) that minor child D.F. is not a "homeless child" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-1.1 et seq. and the McKinney-Vento Homeless Education Assistance Act (McKinney-Vento Act). Petitioner's minor child, D.F., is currently enrolled in the respondent Board's school district, but attends school in an out-of-district placement pursuant to his individualized education program (IEP). The ECS also determined that H.F. and D.F. are currently domiciled in the Borough of Cliffside Park, and D.F. is consequently entitled to a free public education from the Cliffside Park Public School District. Respondent Teaneck Board of Education filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found that the residency decision that the petitioner sought to appeal was rendered by the ECS at the request of H.F., and the respondent Board was not a party to the ECS's decision. The ALJ concluded that there is no factual basis for petitioner's alleged claims against the respondent Board; accordingly the ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

Upon full review and consideration of the record and the ALJ's Initial Decision, the Commissioner determined to remand this matter to the OAL for further proceedings to determine the threshold issue of whether D.F. is a "homeless" child under applicable federal and state law. In reaching this determination, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the ALJ's decision to grant the respondent's motion for summary decision and dismiss the petition was premature; a dismissal of the case at this juncture would unjustly short-circuit the petitioner's right to appeal the ECS's determination pursuant to N.J.C.A. 6A:17-2.7; the respondent Board is – at the least – an interested, if not indispensible, party to this action, as D.F. continues to be enrolled in respondent's school district; and respondent's motion to consolidate this action with a related matter – Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, Bergen County v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cliffside Park, Bergen County and H.F., on behalf of minor child, D.F., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9966-15 – indicates Teaneck recognized that an outright dismissal of this petition could be problematic. Accordingly, the Commissioner denied respondent's motion for summary decision, granted respondent's motion in the alternative to consolidate EDU 7964-15 with EDU 9966-15, and remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings, including rendering the requisite findings of fact to facilitate a determination of whether D.F. is a homeless child under applicable statutes and regulations.

H.F., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, D.F.	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions. For the reasons stated herein, the Commissioner is constrained to remand the matter to the OAL for further proceedings in order to determine whether D.F. is a "homeless child" under applicable federal and state law.

In this action, petitioner disputes the February 3, 2015 decision of the Interim Executive County Superintendent (ECS), who concluded: 1) minor child D.F. is not a"homeless child" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-1.1 et seq. and the McKinney-Vento Homeless Education Assistance Act (McKinney-Vento Act), 42 U.S.C. §§ 11431 et seq.; and, therefore 2) D.F. is not entitled to a continuation of his education in respondent's (Teaneck) district.[1] Petitioner contends that D.F. does meet the definition of a "homeless child" and, therefore, should be permitted to continue his education in Teaneck.[2]

[1] The ECS further determined that H.F. and D.F. are presently domiciled in the Borough of Cliffside Park.

[2] D.F. is presently enrolled in the Teaneck School District, but attends school at an out-of-district placement pursuant to his individualized education program (IEP). According to the record, Teaneck has historically provided transportation for D.F., and covered the tuition costs associated with his out-of-district placement. The present controversy arose when, upon learning that H.F. and D.F. were allegedly residing in Cliffside Park, Teaneck engaged in discussions with Cliffside Park and the ECS in an attempt to identify D.F.'s present school district of Parents or guardians are entitled to appeal an ECS determination regarding a child's homeless status to the Commissioner. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.7(a), "If a dispute remains between the parent and the involved school district(s)" following the ECS's determination as to a child's homeless status, "the parent...may appeal to the Commissioner for determination" under N.J.A.C. 6A:3.

Generally, children in New Jersey are entitled to attend public school – free of charge – at the school district within which they are domiciled, known as the school district of residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-1.1 et seq. An unemancipated child's domicile is determined by that of his or her parent, custodian or guardian. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)1; P.B.K. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 426-27 (App. Div. 2001). When it is alleged that a child's parent, custodian or guardian lacks a domicile, however, determining the child's district of residence – and where that child may attend public school free of charge – requires a different analysis. Under those circumstances, a fact-specific inquiry must be made to determine if the child meets the legal definition of a "homeless child."

Homelessness determinations in this context are dictated by both federal and state law, and further influenced by state regulations. Under the McKinney-Vento Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 11431 et seq., homeless children are defined as "individuals who lack a fixed, regular and adequate nighttime residence," examples of whom include children sharing housing with other people due to loss of their own housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason; children living in motels, hotels, trailer parks or campgrounds due to lack of other accommodations; children living in emergency or transitional shelters; and children living in cars, parks, or other public spaces. Similarly, under state law, a "homeless child" is a child who lacks a fixed, regular and residence. Ultimately, on January 20, 2015, petitioner himself requested a determination from the ECS as to D.F.'s homeless status pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.7(a).

adequate residence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 and N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2. The corresponding state regulations, which substantially reiterate the illustrative examples contained in the McKinney-Vento Act, provide additional guidance for the fact-finder:

> N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2 Determination of homeless status
>
> (a) A district board of education shall determine that a child is homeless for purposes of this subchapter when he or she resides in any of the following:
>
> 1. A publicly or privately operated shelter designed to provide temporary living accommodations, including:
>
> i. Hotels or motels;
> ii. Congregate shelters, including domestic violence and runaway shelters;
> iii. Transitional housing; and > iv. Homes for adolescent mothers;
>
> 2. A public or private place not designated for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation, including:
>
> i. Cars or other vehicles including mobile homes;
> ii. Tents or other temporary shelters;
> iii. Parks;
> iv. Abandoned buildings;
> v. Bus or train stations; or > vi. Temporary shelters provided to migrant workers and their children on farm sites;
>
> 3. The residence of relatives or friends where the homeless child resides out of necessity because his or her family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own;
>
> 4. Substandard housing; or
> 5. Any temporary location wherein children and youth are awaiting foster care placement.

Thus, any homelessness determination is, necessarily, fact-sensitive and case-specific. The Commissioner has recognized that "an evaluation of 'homelessness' cannot rest upon a simple calculation of the amount of time that children have spent in a particular location or municipality. The reasons for the children's homelessness, their living conditions, and the resources and intentions of the parents or custodians are relevant." M. O'K. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cresskill, Bergen County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 14830-13, Commissioner Decision No. 325-14, issued August 12, 2014, at 3.

If a child is deemed homeless, then that child's school district of residence[3] is defined by law as the school district in which the child's parent or guardian resided prior to becoming homeless; it may or may not coincide with the school district in which the child currently resides. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12c; N.J.A.C. 6A:17-1.2. Identifying a homeless child's school district of residence is crucial, for it is the district of residence which is responsible for deciding where the homeless child should be enrolled – upon assessment of the child's best interests and the parent's wishes, with due attention given to continuity of the child's educational program. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.5. The homeless child's school district of residence is also responsible for payment of tuition, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-19, if the child attends school in a different district, and the child's transportation. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3. But, before any disputes concerning enrollment or tuition can be addressed, the threshold determination as to whether the child meets the definition of a "homeless child" must be made – based upon a comprehensive, fact-specific examination of the family's circumstances. See, e.g., Board of Education of the Town of Hammonton, Atlantic County v. Board of Education of the City of Gloucester, Camden County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 18573-13, Commissioner Decision No. 311-14, issued July 31, 2014, at 4.

Following this petition's transmittal to the OAL, Teaneck filed a Motion for Summary Decision, arguing that it was not a properly named party and that "petitioner's appeal should be directed to the County Superintendent, who made the decision[.]" (Teaneck's Motion, at 2) Teaneck further explained that the only involvement it had with the ECS's determination was "the provision of documents relevant to the matter." (Teaneck's Motion, at 2) In the alternative, Teaneck requested consolidation of this action, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.1, with a related matter it filed seeking tuition reimbursement and other relief captioned Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, Bergen County v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cliffside Park, Bergen County and H.F., on behalf of minor child, D.F., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9966-15. Teaneck asserted that both actions involve common questions of fact and law as well as common parties and noted "the disposition of both claims touch upon the validity" of the ECS's homelessness determination. (Teaneck's Motion at 7)

Ultimately, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) granted Teaneck's Motion for Summary Decision, finding that Teaneck "was not a party to the Interim County Superintendent's decision" and concluding "there is no factual basis for petitioner's alleged claims against respondent relating to the Interim County Superintendent's determination as to petitioner's residency and asserted homeless status." (Initial Decision at 3) The ALJ did not address the consolidation of this matter with EDU 9966-15.

Upon careful review of the record and the parties' submissions, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ's decision to grant Teaneck's Motion for Summary Decision and dismiss the petition was premature, and must be rejected. A Motion for Summary Decision is appropriate where "the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. There is nothing in the present record to indicate that there are no genuine issues of material fact in dispute. More specifically, no findings of fact – disputed or undisputed – were made by the ALJ in connection with D.F.'s alleged homeless status, and no stipulations of fact were presented; instead, the Initial Decision merely recites the matter's procedural history and summarizes the ECS's determination, which is challenged by petitioner. A determination as to whether D.F. meets the legal definition of a "homeless child" can only be made upon a thorough examination of the family's past and present living arrangements and attendant circumstances – which, absent a joint stipulation from the parties, may require an evidentiary hearing with testimony and documentary evidence. Thus, the granting of Teaneck's Motion for Summary Decision was premature.

Although Teaneck argues that dismissal of the petition is appropriate due to petitioner's failure to state a claim against the district, a dismissal at this juncture would unjustly short-circuit petitioner's right to appeal the ECS's determination to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.7.[4] Teaneck is – at least – an interested party to this action (if not an indispensable party), as D.F. continues to be enrolled in that district. Furthermore, Teaneck's potential right to tuition reimbursement from Cliffside Park (a claim which Teaneck raised in the related, pending petition) – and its potential responsibility to continue providing D.F. with a free public education – will be directly affected by the Commissioner's final determination as to whether D.F. is considered homeless under the law. By moving in the alternative for consolidation of this action with EDU 9966-15, Teaneck apparently recognized that outright dismissal of this petition could be problematic from a procedural perspective.

In summary, D.F.'s homeless status is a threshold question that must be resolved by the Commissioner – through adoption or rejection of the ECS's determination – before the Commissioner can then decide whether D.F. may continue to be enrolled in the Teaneck School District, and further establish which district is responsible for the cost of D.F.'s education. Based upon the present record – which does not contain any findings of fact as to H.F. and D.F.'s past or present residences, domiciles and/or temporary living arrangements – the Commissioner is unable to determine whether D.F. meets the legal definition of a "homeless child." Absent the requisite findings of fact, the Commissioner is constrained to remand the matter to the OAL for further proceedings. In addition, for the reasons advanced by Teaneck in its Motion, the Commissioner finds this matter should be consolidated with EDU 9966-15 pursuant to the standards delineated in N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.3.[5]

[4] While it might have been permissible for petitioner to name the ECS as a respondent in this matter, nothing in the controlling statute or regulations requires petitioner to do so.

Accordingly, Teaneck's Motion for Summary Decision is denied; Teaneck's Motion in the Alternative to Consolidate EDU 7964-15 and EDU 9966-15 is granted, and this matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings – including rendering of the requisite findings of fact – which will facilitate a determination as to whether D.F. is a "homeless child" under applicable federal law, state law and regulations cited herein. Said determination will then allow for subsequent disposition of the claims raised within EDU 9966-15, and resolution of this controversy in its entirety.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[6]

Marian Cricoli, Esq., for respondent (Machado Law Group, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 19, 2015 Decided: November 4, 2015

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner is appealing a residency decision rendered by the Interim Executive County Superintendent for the Department of Education. During an initial prehearing telephone conference, respondent stated that the District wanted to file a Motion to Dismiss. Deadlines for the submission of papers were detailed and discovery was stayed pending the hearing of initial motions by both parties. Based upon the request of petitioner, the initial deadlines were extended.

On August 21, 2015, respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision. On October 2, 2015, petitioner filed Opposition papers. On October 13, 2015, respondent filed a Reply to petitioner's Opposition papers. Oral argument was conducted on October 19, 2015.

STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issues to the trier of fact. R. 4:46-2.

The standard for granting summary judgment (decision) is found in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Supreme Court adopted a standard that "requires the motion judge to engage in an analytical process essentially "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Id. at 533 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 251-252, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 214 (1986)). To send a case to trial, knowing that a rational jury can reach but one conclusion, is indeed worthless and will serve no useful purpose." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 541.

The Court stated that the motion judge is to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. at 540 (quoting Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 251-252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214).

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

On February 3, 2015, Norah E. Peck, Interim Executive County Superintendent issued a determination, pursuant to petitioner's January 20, 2015, request and based upon all of the documentation submitted by H.F., by and on behalf of the Teaneck Public Schools and by and on behalf of the Cliffside Park Public Schools. The Interim County Superintendent listed all of the documents that she reviewed in her determination.

The Interim County Superintendent found that H.F. and his son moved from Teaneck to a specific location in Cliffside Park, where they resided nightly, approximately one year and a half prior to her determination. Accordingly, she determined that D.F. was not homeless and entitled to the services and considerations outlined in the McKinney–Vento Homeless Act, 42 U.S.C.A. 11431 et seq., and N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.5(a)(2), which "continues a child's education in the school of origin for the duration of his homelessness." Ms Peck determined that D.F. was domiciled in Cliffside Park, and consequently entitled to a free public education from the Cliffside Park Public School District. She expressly noted that if petitioner disagreed with this determination, he could file a Petition of Appeal with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes according to the procedures detailed in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq.

I FIND that respondent was not a party to the Interim County Superintendent's decision. The residency decision that petitioner seeks to appeal was rendered by the Interim County Superintendent, at the request of H.F. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that there is no factual basis for petitioner's alleged claims against respondent relating to the Interim County Superintendent's determination as to petitioner's residency and asserted homeless status.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the District's request for summary decision is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF CHRISTINE GILLESPIE,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

This case dates back to 2003, when the petitioning Board filed tenure charges of incapacity and excessive absenteeism against respondent, a tenured teacher, and sought to terminate her employment with the district. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, but the tenure hearing was delayed for several years due to the pendency of a related workers' compensation case. The case was restored to the active list in January 2011. Thereafter, respondent failed to appear at a hearing scheduled for June 10, 2011. Respondent subsequently submitted a written explanation of her failure to appear, and the Commissioner found that the facts surrounding her absence did not warrant summary decision by default. The case was remanded to the OAL in August 2011 for fact finding and legal recommendations, with a directive from the Commissioner that respondent provide the OAL and petitioner with specific contact information for communicating with Ms. Gillespie, and that: "...respondent will not be excused if she fails to reply to notices, pleadings and communications sent to the phone numbers and addresses that she provides."

Following the Commissioner's remand, two hearing dates were scheduled (in December 2011 and May 2012) and subsequently adjourned by the OAL before the matter was again put on the inactive list pending resolution of the workers' compensation case. The case was reactivated in May 2015, and counsel for petitioner indicated in June 2015 that the workers' compensation case had been dismissed for lack of prosecution. Subsequently, OAL sent a notice to the parties that the remand hearing was scheduled for November 4, 2015. Respondent once again failed to appear, and also failed to offer any explanation of her non-appearance; accordingly, it seems that respondent has abandoned her defense of the tenure charges.

The Commissioner found, inter alia, that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d) and applicable case law, an Initial Decision is required in tenure charge cases that were filed prior to the enactment of the TEACHNJ Act, *P.L.*2012, *c.*26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.). In cases such as this one, the judge may enter an Initial Decision on the merits based on ex parte proofs, provided the failure to appear is memorialized in the decision. Accordingly, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for an ex parte proof hearing proof hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), followed by the issuance of an Initial Decision with findings of fact and legal recommendations as to the merits of this tenure matter.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION ON REMAND
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioner, Cherie L. Adams, Esq., Adams Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, LLC
Respondent, Christine Gillespie, pro se

Upon review of the record in this longstanding tenure matter, the Commissioner is constrained to remand it to the Office of Administrative Law for an ex parte proof hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), as an Initial Decision is required in tenure charge cases that were filed prior to the enactment of the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey (TEACHNJ) Act, *P.L.*2012, *c.*26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.).[1] See, e.g., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Irandokht Toorzani, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park, Bergen County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9713-11, Commissioner Decision No. 49-12, Issued February 8, 2012; Rowley v. Bd. of Educ. of Manalapan-Englishtown Reg. Sch. Dist., 205 N.J. Super. 65, 76 (App. Div. 1985).

This case began as a controversy before the Commissioner in February 2003, when the District filed tenure charges against respondent alleging excessive absenteeism, absence without leave/abandonment of her position, and/or incapacity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-39 et seq. Following receipt of respondent's answer, the matter was transmitted to the OAL, but the tenure hearing was delayed for several years (with the parties' consent) due to the pendency of respondent's workers' compensation claim and related proceedings.[2] Ultimately, as of January 2011, the tenure matter had been restored to the active list. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss the tenure charges, arguing that the OAL lacked jurisdiction; petitioner cross-moved for summary decision; and the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) denied both motions. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Christine Gillespie, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Initial Decision, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3399-03, issued April 27, 2011. Thereafter, respondent failed to appear for a scheduled hearing at the OAL on June 10, 2011 and the file was returned to the Department for disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b).

[1] Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.5, "Any tenure charge transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 prior to the effective date of *P.L.*2012, *c.*26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.) shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of sub article B of Article 2 of chapter 6 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes, *N.J.S.*18A:6-10 et seq., as the same read prior to the effective date of *P.L.*2012, *c.*26 (C.18A:6-117 et al.). Here, the tenure charges were transmitted to the OAL in 2003.

On August 3, 2011, the Commissioner remanded this matter to the OAL for fact finding and legal recommendations following respondent's failure to appear. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Christine Gillespie, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Commissioner Decision No. 313-11, issued August 3, 2011. At that time, the Commissioner found that the facts surrounding respondent's absence from the scheduled June 10, 2011 hearing date – which were explained by respondent in writing – did not warrant summary decision by default. To avoid any further miscommunication, however, the Commissioner ordered: "Respondent shall provide the OAL and petitioner with specific contact information within 10 days of the mailing date of this order, the OAL and petitioner shall use only that contact information to communicate with respondent, and respondent will not be excused if she fails to reply to notices, pleadings and communications sent to the phone numbers and addresses that she provides."

Following the Commissioner's remand, two hearing dates (one in December 2011 and one in May 2012) were scheduled and subsequently adjourned by the OAL. On May 18, 2012,

[2] The protracted procedural history will not be reiterated at length herein, since it is recited in detail within ALJ Gerson's Order denying the parties' motions to dismiss and for summary decision. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Christine Gillespie, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3399-03, Initial Decision issued April 27, 2011.

the ALJ signed an order placing the case on an inactive list for six months – with the parties' consent – due to respondent's pending workers' compensation case and appeal. Another order was entered on September 18, 2013, continuing the case on the inactive list – with the parties' consent – for six more months. On May 12, 2015, the ALJ notified the parties in writing that the order of inactivity had expired and further inquired about the status of the related workers' compensation matter. On June 3, 2015, counsel for petitioner replied and indicated that respondent's workers' compensation case was dismissed for lack of prosecution. Respondent submitted a letter to the ALJ confirming that she no longer had a workers' compensation action pending – although she expressed disagreement with the notion that she failed to prosecute it.

In any event, on June 9, 2015, the parties were sent a notice from the OAL indicating that the remand hearing was scheduled for November 4, 2015 at 9 am. Respondent failed to appear at the scheduled hearing. The OAL then sent respondent a notice – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(c) – advising that she had 13 days to proffer an explanation in writing to the Department as to why she did not appear, and once again returned the file to the Department for disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b), without an Initial Decision on the merits. Although respondent was undoubtedly familiar with this process – as she had offered a written explanation for her non-appearance in 2011 – no such explanation was received in regard to her recent non-appearance. A once-active participant in this matter, as reflected by the large volume of written submissions found in the record, respondent appears to have abandoned her defense of the tenure charges.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d) provides that "If no explanation for the failure to appear is received, and the circumstances require a decision on the merits, the judge may enter an initial decision on the merits based on the ex parte proofs, provided the failure to appear is memorialized in the decision." Despite respondent's failure to appear, the Commissioner finds that an Initial Decision on the merits is required from the OAL in order to bring this longstanding matter to an orderly conclusion. Two prior decisions lend support to the Commissioner's determination herein. First, the Appellate Division held that "the orderly function of the administrative process" requires the merits of a tenure matter "to be first addressed by the administrative law judge and then reviewed by the Commissioner." Rowley v. Bd. of Educ. of Manalapan-Englishtown Reg. Sch. Dist., 205 N.J. Super. 65, 76 (App. Div. 1985). Second, in a case with striking similarities to the present controversy, the Commissioner held that tenure matters filed prior to the enactment of TEACHNJ require an Initial Decision on the merits. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Irandokht Toorzani, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park, Bergen County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9713-11, Commissioner Decision No. 49-12, Issued February 8, 2012.

Toorzani, a pro se respondent, answered the tenure charges brought against her and submitted multiple filings – including a Motion to Dismiss, which was denied by the ALJ – but subsequently failed to appear despite having received appropriate notice of the OAL hearing date. After holding the matter for a day as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) in order to provide respondent with an opportunity to explain her non-appearance, and having received no explanation, the ALJ held an ex parte proof hearing as per N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d). The District submitted a brief and proposed findings of fact, based on the ex parte hearing, and the ALJ subsequently issued his Initial Decision and returned the matter to the Department. In his final decision, the Commissioner held – over respondent's objections – that "the ALJ's proceeding with an ex parte hearing was entirely appropriate" under the circumstances and "because the District required an Initial Decision on its tenure charges, the ALJ was well within his authority, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), to take ex parte proofs from the District with respect to its charges and to render his Initial Decision based on these ex parte proofs." Toorzani, supra, at 7-12.

Upon careful review of the record, the Commissioner finds that respondent was notified in writing almost five months in advance of the November 4, 2015 scheduled hearing date, yet has offered no reason to the Department, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(c), for her failure to appear. Therefore, under these circumstances – akin to those in Toorzani – the District is now required to present its ex parte proofs in support of the tenure charges to the ALJ so that an Initial Decision can be issued addressing the merits of this case.

Accordingly, the Commissioner is constrained to remand this matter to the OAL for an ex parte proof hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), followed by the issuance of an Initial Decision with findings of fact and legal recommendations as to the merits of this tenure matter.[3]

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW UNIT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the New Jersey State Department of Education (Department), Criminal History Review Unit disqualifying him from working on a school construction project based upon a criminal history review. Petitioner was notified in March 2015 that a fingerprint search had revealed a criminal conviction permanently disqualifying him from employment with any educational institution under the supervision of the Department. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, public schools may not employ an individual in any position which involves regular contact with students if he or she has been found to have a disqualifying criminal conviction. Petitioner herein did not challenge the accuracy of his criminal record, but asserted that he should not be disqualified because his employment would not involve regular contact with pupils.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner has been employed for 23 years by a construction company that primarily does public construction projects, including numerous school projects; petitioner is a job-site construction superintendent, and has managed many projects at public schools during his career; a criminal history check revealed that petitioner was arrested in 1989 and pled guilty to an offense involving a "controlled dangerous substance," for which he was sentenced to two years of probation; as a result, petitioner was disqualified from serving as the job-site superintendent on one of his company's school construction projects; petitioner, however, would not have had any contact with pupils and there are safeguards to insure that contact with students would not occur; as a result of his disqualification, petitioner has been assigned temporary alternate work by his employer, but because 80% of the company's work is school construction, he will be laid off if he remains disqualified; the record contains no evidence that petitioner would have access to or contact with students in his role as job-site superintendent; to the contrary, the record indicates the opposite to be true. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner should not be disqualified from employment on the school construction project in question, and ordered that the Department's determination disqualifying him from employment be reversed.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the New Jersey State Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit (CHRU).[1]

In its exceptions, the CHRU does not dispute the factual findings of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), but instead cautions that a final decision in this matter should be applied only to the specific facts of this case. Furthermore, the CHRU suggests that moving forward, local districts are in the best position to make the initial determination of whether contractors are likely to have contact with students during the course of their jobs.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that – as petitioner's current construction project will take place in a fenced-off construction site or in the school only when school is not in session – petitioner will not have regular contact with pupils. Thus, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the ALJ's decision, petitioner should not be disqualified from working on his current construction project pursuant to Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Edward Ecker, appeals the determination of the State of New Jersey Department of Education (Department), Criminal History Review Unit (CHRU)

disqualifying him from working on a school construction project based upon a criminal history review.

By letter dated March 16, 2015, the Department notified Ecker that a fingerprint search conducted through the New Jersey State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-4.13 or N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1.2 revealed a criminal conviction permanently disqualifying him from employment with any educational institution under the supervision of the Department or with a contracted service provider under contract with such school or educational facility. (R-2, R-3.) By letter dated April 14, 2015, Ecker appealed the Department's determination. By letter dated April 20, 2015, the Department notified Ecker of further requirements for his appeal. By letter dated April 27, 2015, Ecker submitted his petition, affidavit, and certification of service. On May 28, 2015, the Department filed its answer to the petition. The Department transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on June 1, 2015. The hearing was held on September 28, 2015, on which date the record closed.[1]

TESTIMONY AND FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner testified on his own behalf. Keith Brian Hackett testified on behalf of respondent. Based upon a review of the evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS and accept as FACT the testimony hereinafter detailed:

Keith Brian Hackett, a retired New Jersey State Police captain, is employed by the Department as a special investigator in the CHRU. The CHRU conducts criminal record background checks on applicants seeking employment in public schools. The process of conducting the background check begins at the school district's request that the applicant submit fingerprints. Thereafter the applicant goes online and completes an Applicant Authorization and Certification (AAC) form, and pays the fee. (R-1.) The form is transmitted electronically to the CHRU. The applicant is thereafter fingerprinted and if there is a criminal record from the New Jersey State Police or Federal Bureau of Investigation, the record is sent to the CHRU for review and is assigned to an investigator. The investigator then determines based upon offenses enumerated in the statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1) whether the applicant is qualified or disqualified.

Edward Ecker is fifty-six years old. He is the father of three adult children. He resides with his wife and his mother, for whom he is the sole provider. He has been employed by ABC Construction[2] for approximately twenty-three years. ABC Construction primarily does public construction projects, such as State, Turnpike, and schools projects. Ecker is a job-site construction superintendent. In that capacity, Ecker coordinates, organizes, and is responsible for all the subcontractors and site safety. Ecker has managed numerous projects at public schools and boards of education since 1989. (P-1 at 2.) In connection with ABC Construction's current project at XYZ Public School,[3] Ecker submitted a completed AAC form. (R-1.) Ecker's Criminal History Review revealed that petitioner was arrested in 1989 and thereafter pleaded guilty to an offense involving a "controlled dangerous substance," for which he was sentenced to two years of probation. (R-3.) Ecker was to be the job-site superintendent at XYZ Public School, but was disqualified by the Department.

Since his arrest in 1989, Ecker has had no further problems with the law, has not been arrested, and has not been charged with any crimes. The owner of ABC Construction provided a letter of reference for Ecker. (P-2.)

In connection with the XYZ Public School construction project, Ecker would not have any contact with pupils, and there are safeguards to insure that contact with pupils would not occur. The construction project specifications provide, in part, as follows: "All renovation work required to be performed within the existing [School] is to be scheduled by the general contractor during the schools summer break. For additional information, please reference the attached [School] Calendar." (P-3.) There are four phases of the construction project, and phase one was completed during the summer break. Presently, the pupils are back in school and all work taking place now is within the fenced-in area outside the school. The project documents specify that when the children are in school, the work takes place in the fenced-in area, and when the children are not in school, the work takes place inside the school. There will be work inside the school next summer, concurrent with work within the fenced-in area outside. Construction would not take place within the building with students in the building. Ecker is OSHA-certified and OSHA has very strict rules for maintaining a safe environment. Contact with students is avoided because of construction safety issues.

[2] A fictitious name is used herein.
[3] A fictitious name is used herein.

The Phasing Plan shows the new construction work is separate from the existing building. (P-4.) The new construction area is the fenced-in area outside the school. The fenced-in area ties into the corners of the existing school, so no one can access the construction area and the school doorways are sealed off and inoperable. No non-construction personnel are permitted within the chain-link fence, which has signs stating "DANGER CONSTRUCTION AREA KEEP OUT." Presently, the construction project is at the phase of blasting rock for the foundation, which is outside the school.

As a result of the disqualification, Ecker has been either working at the owner's home or working at the ABC Construction office on project bids. Approximately eighty percent of ABC Construction's work is school construction. The three projects that ABC Construction had bid on in the three weeks prior to the hearing were all schools. The owner of ABC Construction has been nursing Ecker along, but the work at the owner's home or at the office is not long term. If Ecker remains disqualified, he will be laid off.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

With respect to criminal record checks in public school employment, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> A facility, center, school, or school system under the supervision of the Department and board of education which cares for, or is involved in the education of children under the age of 18 shall not employ for pay or contract for the paid services of any teaching staff member or substitute teacher, teacher aide, child study team member, school physician, school nurse, custodian, school maintenance worker, > cafeteria worker, school law enforcement officer, school secretary or clerical worker or any other person serving in a position which involves regular contact with pupils unless the employer has first determined consistent with the requirements and standards of this act, that no criminal history record information exists on file in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Identification Division, or the State Bureau of Identification which would disqualify that individual from being employed or utilized in such capacity or position . . . .

> An individual, except as provided in subsection g. of this section, shall be permanently disqualified from employment or service under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction for any crime of the first or second degree; or
>
> . . .
>
> b. An offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, distribution or habitual use of a "controlled dangerous substance" as defined in the "Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987," N.J.S.2C:35-1 et al. or "drug paraphernalia" as defined pursuant to N.J.S.2C:36-1 et seq.;
>
> . . .
> [Emphasis added.]

Petitioner does not challenge the accuracy of his criminal record. Rather, petitioner contends that he should not be disqualified because his employment would not involve "regular contact with pupils." In this regard, the Commissioner of Education determined that the phrase "or any other person serving in a position which involves regular contact with pupils" must be understood to encompass "any position with potential for access to students comparable to that of the enumerated positions." Chavis v. New Jersey State Dep't of Educ., Office of Criminal History Review, EDU 8547-07, Initial Decision (April 21, 2008), rejected, Comm'r (May 30, 2008), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. The positions enumerated in the statute are teaching staff members, substitute teachers, teacher aides, child study team members, school physicians, school nurses, custodians, school maintenance workers, cafeteria workers, school law enforcement officers, school secretaries, and clerical workers.

Here, the record is bereft of any evidence that Ecker would have such access or contact with pupils. To the contrary, the work inside the school is performed while students are not present, OSHA compliance would require safety measures to avoid injuries to the public/students, the outside construction takes place within a chain-link fenced-in area, and the doors to the school within that area are inoperable. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that because Ecker will not have regular contact with pupils or access to students comparable to the positions enumerated in the statute, he should not be disqualified from employment at XYZ Public School.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the determination of the Department disqualifying Ecker from employment on the school construction project is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BLOOMFIELD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION ON BEHALF OF THE CHILD STUDY TEAM,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BLOOMFIELD, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner Bloomfield Education Association (Association) challenged the action of the respondent Board in contracting with Delta-T Group North Jersey, Inc. (Delta-T) – a private entity – to supply child study team (CST) services to students in the Bloomfield school district, in violation of the tenure rights of Association members. In April 2013, the Board had approved a reduction in force (RIF) for reasons of economy, which included District-employed school social workers, school psychologists and learning-disability teacher consultants; the Board did not employ any District staff in these positions during the 2013-2014 school year. Subsequently, the Board entered into an agreement with Delta-T for "Supplemental Child Study Team Services" for the 2013-2014 school year; the contract provided for 21 Delta-T employees to provide CST services to the District, including school social workers, school psychologists, and learning-disability teacher consultants. The Association sought rescission of the contract with Delta-T, and re-employment of those members whose prior duties were assumed by Delta-T personnel, with back pay retroactive to the date of the reduction in force (RIF). The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the April 2013 RIF was effectuated for reasons of economy and efficiency, and all tenured employees subject to the RIF – except those who retired – remained on a preferred eligibility list for rehire; Delta-T is approved by the New Jersey Department of Education to deliver services to public school students, but is expressly limited to providing "second opinions" on CST evaluations and providing CST diagnostics to supplement existing District CST services; since all members of the District's CST had been RIF'd, Delta-T was neither supplementing existing services, nor providing only "second opinion" services, notwithstanding the fact that its contract with the Board stated that Delta-T was retained to provide "supplemental child study team services"; during the 2013-2014 school year, Delta-T supplanted the CST members in Bloomfield, and performed the services previously performed by the District's RIF'd CST members; all of the terminated members of the CST were tenured employees; and their eliminated positions were required under N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5. The ALJ concluded that by outsourcing all CST services to Delta-T, the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1; accordingly, the ALJ determined that CST members affected by the RIF during the 2013-2014 school year are entitled to lost salary and benefits and emoluments, less mitigation.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BLOOMFIELD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION ON BEHALF OF THE CHILD STUDY TEAM,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BLOOMFIELD, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the Bloomfield Board of Education (Board) and the Bloomfield Education Association's (Association) reply thereto. In this matter, the Association is appealing the Board's decision to eliminate the tenured members of the child study team (CTS) through a reduction in force (RIF) and enter into a contract with Delta-T – a private entity – to provide CTS services to the students in the District for the 2013-2014 school year.

The Board's exceptions substantially reiterate the substance of its submissions at the OAL, recasting the arguments therein to support the contention that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously found that the contract entered into with Delta-T violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and as a result was ultra vires. At the outset, the Board maintains that the ALJ erred by entering an Order on May 1, 2014 denying its motion to dismiss the petition of appeal filed by the Association. The Board asserts ALJ wrongfully found that the petition was not time barred under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), and that the Association had standing to bring the cause of action on behalf of its members.

The Board also takes exception to the ALJ's decision granting summary decision in favor of the Association. The Board maintains that Delta-T was only retained by the Board to provide CST diagnostic services to supplement existing services. Additionally, the Board restated its reliance on Impey v. Board of Education of the Borough of Shrewsbury, 142 N.J. 388 (1992) to argue that boards of education have considerable latitude in providing essential education services. Further, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows boards of education to reduce force to effectuate economies and for other good cause. Finally, the Board suggests that even if it is determined that it improperly implemented the RIF and outsourced the CST services, it does not owe any back pay to the Association members who were the subject of the RIF. The Board contends that the Association's only avenue of relief is the cancellation of the contract, which is now a moot point because the Board's contract with Delta-T was not renewed after 2013-2014.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ - for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision - that the Board's decision to RIF the CST members and outsource their work to Delta-T was ultra vires and a violation of the staff members tenure rights.[1] The objections raised in the exceptions filed by the Board generally reiterate the arguments previously made before the ALJ, which were clearly taken into account by her in determining that the Association was entitled to summary decision. Although the Board maintains that Delta-T was only retained to supplement existing CST services, it is clear from the record that the Board outsourced all CST functions to Delta-T

[1] With respect to the Board's contentions that the ALJ erred by denying its motion to dismiss for lack of standing and timeliness, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ – for the reasons outlined in her May 1, 2014 Order - that the petition of appeal was neither barred for standing or untimely under the 90-day rule.

in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1.[2] Despite the Board's assertion that the Association members are not entitled to compensation, it is undisputed that the affected members[3] were tenured at the time of the 2013 RIF, and as such the Board's ultra virus contract with Delta-T was a violation of their tenure rights.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is ordered to make the affected staff members whole for any lost salary and benefits or emoluments of employment during the 2013-2104 as directed in the Initial Decision.

[2] It should be noted that the relevant statutory and regulatory provisions do permit school districts to enter into joint agreements for CST services with other school districts, educational services commissions or county special services school districts. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1.; N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(a)(1). However, there is no provision that enables a school district to outsource all of its CST services to a private entity.

[3] In the Initial Decision the ALJ discusses the specific Association members who are entitled to be made whole for any salary and benefits or emoluments of employment lost during the 2013-2014 school year.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, the Bloomfield Education Association (the Association) challenges the action of the Bloomfield Board of Education (the Board) in contracting with Delta-T Group North Jersey, Inc. (Delta-T), a private entity, to supply child study team (CST) services to the students of Bloomfield. In its prayer for relief, the Association seeks rescission of this contract, and the reemployment of those of its members whose prior duties were being performed by Delta-T personnel, with back pay retroactive to the date of the reduction in force (RIF).

The petition of appeal was filed with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on November 27, 2013. On December 24, 2013, the Board filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer, asserting that the Association lacked standing to bring its claims, and that its petition was untimely filed. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 26, 2013. On February 27, 2014, the Association filed a brief in opposition to the motion to dismiss, together with a cross-motion for leave to amend its petition. Via order dated May 1, 2014, the motion to dismiss was denied, and the cross-motion seeking leave to amend the petition was granted. The Board filed an answer to the amended petition on June 11, 2014.

The parties filed a joint stipulation of fact on July 10, 2015, and cross-motions for summary decision on September 8, 2015. Replies were filed on September 25, 2015. In discussions with counsel, it was initially agreed that the issues raised by the pleadings would be bifurcated, with a decision first being rendered on the validity of the Delta-T contract; and a decision on the rights of the affected staff to be made only in the event that it was determined that the Delta-T contract was ultra vires. Upon reviewing the submissions of the parties, however, I felt that the bifurcation originally discussed seemed unnecessary, and that the record was complete. I wrote to counsel via letter dated October 7, 2015, advising them as such, but invited them to reply by October 14, 2015, if they thought otherwise. Counsel for petitioner did not reply; counsel for the Board replied via letter dated October 14, 2015, and asked that if I were to determine that the tenure rights of the CST members were violated, the record remain open to address their entitlement to damages, and consider issues of mitigation. I duly considered her submission, but as will be more fully set forth below, I CONCLUDED that this matter is ripe for summary decision as to all the issues raised by the pleadings. Accordingly, I closed the record as of October 14, 2015.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties stipulated to the pertinent facts and I FIND as follows:

1. The Bloomfield School District (the District) is a public school district with administrative offices located at 155 Broad Street, Bloomfield, New Jersey.

2. The District is comprised of eleven schools educating students in grades pre-kindergarten through twelfth grade.

3. The Bloomfield Education Association (the Association) is an organized labor union which represents all full-time and part-time certified teaching staff members employed by the District.

4. In or about April 2013, the District approved a RIF for the 2013-2014 school year, which included District employed school social workers, school psychologists and learning-disability teacher consultants. The District did not employ any social workers, school psychologists, and learning-disability teacher consultants CST members during the 2013-2014 school year.

5. School social workers, school psychologists, and learning-disability teacher consultants are ten-month positions.

6. The RIF was effectuated for reasons of economy and efficiency. All tenured RIF'd employees remained on a preferred eligibility list for rehire unless they retired from their positions.

7. In or about April 2013, the District advertised a Request for Proposals (RFP) for CST services for the 2013-2014 school year and received proposals from several vendors.

8. On or about June 11, 2013, the District entered into an agreement with Delta-T Group North Jersey, Inc. (Delta-T) for "Supplemental Child Study Team Services" with the District for the period commencing July 1, 2013, through June 30, 2014. The contract provided for the provision of 21 Delta-T employees to provide CST services to the District, including 6.5 Full-Time Equivalent (FTE) school social workers, 7 FTE school psychologists, and 7.5 FTE learning-disability teacher consultants.

9. Delta-T's CST services during the 2013-2014 school year included school social workers, school psychologists, and learning-disability teacher consultants.

10. During the 2013-2014 school year, the District employed a Director of Special Services. In addition, District staff conducted speech evaluations and provided speech services.

11. David Tiene's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

12. David Tiene retired effective June 30, 2013.

13. Claudette Wassil's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

14. Claudette Wassil retired effective June 30, 2013.

15. Louis Petronico's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

16. Louis Petronico retired effective July 1, 2013.

17. Ruth Schuster's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

18. Ruth Schuster served as a CST Coordinator for the District from September 3, 2013, until her retirement on January 31, 2014.

19. Gail Turner served as an elementary teacher for the District during the 2013-2014 school year.

20. Gail Turner retired effective June 30, 2014.

21. Susan Farrell's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

22. Susan Farrell was employed by the Bridgewater-Raritan School District during the 2013-2014 school year.

23. Susan Farrell was notified of her recall rights and was formally reappointed by the District as a CST member effective September 1, 2014.

24. Karen Cooney's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

25. Karen Cooney was employed by Delta-T and Bergen County during the 2013-2014 school year.

26. Karen Cooney was notified of her recall rights and was formally reappointed by the District as a CST member effective September 1, 2014.

27. Nautama Sandesara's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

28. Nautama Sandesara worked as a substitute social worker for the Freehold Township Board of Education for approximately three months during the 2013-2014 school year.

29. Nautama Sandesara was notified of her recall rights and was formally reappointed by the District as a CST member effective September 1, 2014.

30. Melissa Dupree's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the RIF.

31. Melissa Dupree was employed by the Greenburgh Central High School District during the 2013-2014 school year.

32. In 2014, Melissa Dupree received a recall rights letter from the District but failed to respond.

33. Elyse Greenbaum's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

34. Elyse Greenbaum was employed by the Titusville Academy during the 2013-2014 school year.

35. In 2014, Elyse Greenbaum received a recall rights letter from the District but failed to respond.

36. Susan McDonald's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

37. Susan McDonald was employed by the School District of the Chathams during the 2013-2014 school year.

38. In 2014, Susan McDonald received a recall rights letter from the District but failed to respond.

39. Kristen Niemczyk-Kistner's position as a CST member was eliminated effective June 30, 2013, as a result of the District's RIF.

40. Kristen Niemczyk-Kistner was employed by the Montclair Board of Education during the 2013-2014 school year.

41. Kristen Niemczyk-Kistner received a recall rights letter from the District but did not accept the offer.

It is uncontroverted, and I FIND, that the contract with Delta-T was not renewed after the 2013-2014 school year. Delta-T is approved by the New Jersey Department of Education to deliver services to public school students, but its authorization to do so is expressly limited to providing the following:

- Independent Child Study Team Evaluations – Second Opinion Only
- Child Study Team Diagnostic Services to supplement existing district CST services
- Occupational Therapy
- Physical Therapy
- Home Instruction
- Speech Therapy

Since all the CST members had been RIF'd, clearly Delta-T was neither supplementing existing services, nor providing only "second opinion" services, notwithstanding the fact that its contract with the Board stated that Delta-T was being retained to provide "supplemental child study team services." I FIND that during the 2013-2014 school year, Delta-T supplanted the CST members in Bloomfield, and performed the services previously performed by the CSTs. Finally, I FIND that all of the terminated CST members held their positions of employment under tenure.[1]

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Board is empowered to take only those actions authorized by the school laws and by rules promulgated by the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1. I CONCLUDE that the contract entered into with Delta-T, as implemented, violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1, and accordingly was ultra vires. Psychologists, learning-disability teacher consultants (LDT-Cs), and school social workers are not optional members of a local public school district's staff. The statute speaks in the imperative, as follows:

> Each board of education and State-operated program shall separately or jointly with one more boards of education or State agencies provide for basic child study team services. The basic child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning-disability teacher consultant, and a school social worker . . . .
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1.]

Department of Education regulations elaborate upon and clarify this requirement. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1(b) provides that "[a]ll child study team members shall be employees of a district board of education, have an identifiable, apportioned time commitment to the local school district and shall be available to provide all needed services during the hours students are in attendance." Relative to fulfilling this obligation via joint services agreements, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(a)(1) is likewise quite specific, and provides that "[j]oint agreements for child study team services may be entered into with local education agencies including other local school districts, educational services commissions, jointure commissions and county special services school districts." The regulation offers no option to outsource all child study team functions to a private entity, as the Board did here. Accordingly, in doing so, the Board exceeded its authority.

[1] Exhibit B to the certification of counsel for petitioners attaches a record of employment for the affected child study team members, and their employment history reveals that they all achieved tenure. The Board in its reply submissions at no time challenges this point.

Case law has strictly construed these statutory and regulatory requirements. In Elson v. Hudson County Area Vocational-Technical School Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 229 (1995), the Commissioner confirmed that a local district may not outsource basic CST services. While that decision acknowledges that these services can be supplemented by private outside entities, outsourcing the duties of a school psychologist to a private entity following a RIF was deemed improper. See also Vicenzino v. Bedminster Bd. of Educ., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 356, aff'd, 312 N.J. Super. 243 (App. Div. 1998) (which likewise found it improper to outsource the duties of a school social worker). The Board's reliance on Impy v. Board of Education, 142 N.J. 388 (1995), is misplaced. There a local board outsourced the duties of a speech correctionist, a position that is not a part of the basic CST.

The Board argues unsuccessfully that, notwithstanding its action in improperly outsourcing CST services, it owes no back pay to the affected employees. The staff members who were RIF'd at the end of the 2012-2013 school year held their positions of employment under tenure, and per N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 they could be dismissed or reduced in compensation except in the manner prescribed by law. The Board urges that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows boards of education to reduce force to effectuate economies, and for other good cause. But as the administrative law judge held in Vicenzino under facts analogous to those presented here:

> [t]he integrity of the reduction in force was vitiated by the virtually contemporaneous decision to contract for additional Child Study Team services that the team, as originally constituted would have otherwise performed. That being the case, the reduction in force decisions were properly voided, the full-time positions reinstated and petitioners restored to those positions . . . .
> [Vicenzino, supra, 97 N.J.A.R.2d at 370-71.]

Accordingly, I am unpersuaded that since the Board could have correctly effectuated a RIF, and simply chose not to do so, these petitioners are entitled to no relief. I CONCLUDE that the CST members affected by this RIF are entitled to be made whole for any salary, or benefits or emoluments of employment lost during the 2013-

2014 school year.[2] See also N.J.S.A. 18A:6-30 (which provides that "[a]ny person holding office, position or employment in the public school system of the state, who shall be illegally dismissed or suspended therefrom shall be entitled to compensation for the period covered by the illegal dismissal or suspension."). All the affected staff members were recalled and returned to the district for the 2014-2015 school year; or waived their rights to recall either by failing to respond to the recall notice, or by declining the offer to return to Bloomfield.[3] Thus, no additional compensation is owed to any of the CST members for work performed subsequent to the 2013-2014 school year.

Finally, in her letter of October 14, 2015, counsel for the Board asks that the record remain open to consider "issues of mitigation." But there are no outstanding mitigation issues that justify further delay in bringing this matter to closure, as the law and the facts relative to mitigation are both clear. The affected CST members are not entitled to a windfall. The court in Mullen v. Board of Education of Jefferson Township, 81 N.J. Super. 151 (App. Div. 1963), considered the precursor to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-30, and concluded that damages under the statute were intended to be compensatory in nature, and that accordingly, "an individual should not be awarded more damages than actually sustained." McCullough v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., EDU 6164-03, Initial Decision (March 29, 2005), mod., Comm'r (May 11, 2003), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. Indeed, as the Commissioner observed in McCullough, "[t]o find otherwise would violate public policy as [a] petitioner would be provided compensation in excess of his economic loss at public expense." Ibid.

The law is likewise clear that the RIF'd CST members were obliged to make reasonable efforts to secure alternative employment, notwithstanding their improper termination. McCullough, supra, EDU 6164-03 (citing Zielenski v. Guttenberg Bd. of Educ., 1981 S.L.D. 759; White v Twp. of N. Bergen, 77 N.J. 538 (1978)). The petitioners were so obliged regardless of whether the Board raised this issue in its pleadings. McCullough, supra, EDU 6164-03. But the stipulated record reveals that all of the affected CST members mitigated their damages by securing alternative employment in educational settings for the 2013-2014 school year.[4]

[2] The following are exceptions: David Tiene, Claudette Wassil, and Louis Petronico all retired effective July 1, 2013, thus terminating their right to any compensation for the 2013-2014 school year. Likewise, any rights to back pay terminated effective January 31, 2014, for Ruth Schuster, who retired as of that date.

[3] Gail Turner was not invited to return to a child study team position, having worked for the District as an elementary teacher during the 2013-2014 year, because she retired effective June 30, 2014. Her right to continued employment or compensation terminated as of that date.

Accordingly, relative to back pay, I CONCLUDE that the RIF'd CST members are entitled only to the difference between what they could have earned in Bloomfield during the 2013-2014 year, and what they did earn in the educational settings in which they were employed. Similarly, the Board may deduct from their damages any moneys paid in unemployment benefits.[5]

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the relief sought by the petition is GRANTED. Having concluded that the action of the Board in RIF'ing its CST members and outsourcing their work to Delta-T was ultra vires, the Board is directed to make the affected staff members whole for any lost salary, and benefits or emoluments of employment during the 2013-2014 school year, less mitigation.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

[4] Counsel did not specify when she alluded to "mitigation issues" whether a failure to mitigate was the Board's concern. Since clearly these staff members did not sit idly by while they awaited a decision from the Commissioner—there is no factual basis for such a contention. Moreover, it bears pointing out that had the Board wished to allege that the alternative jobs secured by these staff members insufficiently mitigated their damages, it was obliged to affirmatively raise this defense in its answer. It did not do so. See Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, 86 N.J. 19 (1981); Roselle v. La Fera Contracting Co., 18 N.J. Super. 19, 29 (Ch. Div. 1952).

[5] The Board will have a concomitant obligation to "pay back the mitigation amount to the unemployment system." McCullough, supra, EDU 6164-03.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of

JAMES TWEED

and

FREEHOLD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT
MONMOUTH COUNTY

Agency Docket No. 304-10/15

The above-entitled matter was submitted to the undersigned Arbitrator by letter dated October 26, 2015 from the Commissioner of Education through the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended by P.L. 2012, c. 26. A hearing was held on December 3, 2015, during which the parties engaged in settlement discussions. Subsequent scheduled hearings were adjourned pending additional settlement discussions.

On December 15, 2015, the parties submitted an executed Settlement Agreement, Affidavits, and a Resolution of the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional School District approving the terms of the parties' settlement. These documents were submitted to the Arbitrator for examination and approval. After duly considering the nature of the tenure charges, the Respondent's fourteen-year record of service to the Freehold Regional School District, the absence of harm to any student for whom the Respondent was responsible, and the advantages and factors cited by the Board as the bases for its Resolution dated December 14, 2012, I hereby find that the terms and conditions agreed upon by the Board and Respondent, each of whom has been advised by counsel, are reasonable and in the best interest of both the parties and the public.

There being no charge against the Respondent of any moral turpitude, the return of the Respondent to employment under the terms and conditions negotiated by the parties under the parties' Settlement Agreement serves the best interest of the public and the students of the Freehold Regional School District and satisfies the criteria of N.J.A.C. 6A:P3-5.6 (a). Consequently, I accept the Settlement as proposed by the parties and hereby issue a Consent Award incorporating the terms of the Settlement Agreement executed by the parties, effective December 18, 2015, provided that Respondent has not revoked his execution of the Settlement Agreement. Finally, I perceive no reason for the District to report or refer the particular facts of this matter to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners for further action.

Based on the facts elicited by the evidentiary record in the instant matter regarding Respondent James Tweed, and having examined the terms of the Stipulation of Settlement, I find that the terms and conditions set forth in the parties' Stipulation of Settlement dated December 10, 2015 appear to me to be reasonable, to be consistent with the terms and intent of the TEACHNJ Statute and applicable regulations, and to reflect that Respondent has not committed any conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher. I hereby endorse and approve the parties' Stipulation of Settlement as appropriate under the circumstances and as satisfying the requirements of the TEACHNJ statute.

December 18, 2015 Daniel F. Brent, Arbitrator

State of New Jersey
County of Mercer

On this 17th day of December, 2015 before me personally came and appeared Daniel F. Brent, to me known and known to me to be the individual described in the foregoing instrument, and he acknowledged to me that he executed the same.

SEPARATION AGREEMENT

THIS SEPARATION AGREEMENT ("Agreement") is made by and between James Tweed IV, (hereinafter referred to as "Mr. Tweed") and the FREEHOLD REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, 11 Pine Street, Englishtown, NJ 07726, its predecessors, successors, individual Board members, officers, directors, administrators, representatives, employees, attorneys, agents, and assigns, individually, jointly and severally (hereinafter collectively referred to as "Board") pursuant to the following terms and conditions:

WHEREAS, Mr. Tweed is employed as a tenured Teacher by the Board;

WHEREAS, the Board has filed Tenure Charges with the Commissioner of Education against Mr. Tweed seeking his dismissal;

WHEREAS, Mr. Tweed has filed an opposition to those Tenure Charges and refutes the allegations asserted in the Tenure Charges;

WHEREAS, the parties wish to avoid the expense and uncertainty of litigation or disciplinary proceedings;

WHEREAS, by the terms of this Agreement, the employment of Mr. Tweed is to end effective June 30, 2016;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants herein contained and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Mr. Tweed and the Board hereby agree as follows:

1. Mr. Tweed, for and in consideration of the undertakings of the Board as set forth herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge the Board and its officers, members, employees and agents, and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which he ever had, now has, or hereafter may have, known or unknown, or which his heirs, executors or administrators hereafter may have by reason of his disability, any failure to accommodate his disability, any actual or perceived discrimination, his entire employment relationship and/or the termination of his employment relationship and/or affiliation with the Board, including, but not limited to the following:

- All claims of discrimination, harassment and retaliation based upon age, race, color, religion, gender, sex, sexual orientation, handicap, disability, national origin or any other legally protected class, including claims arising under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 U.S.C. § 621 through 29 U.S.C. § 634, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. §2000e et seq., the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §12101, et seq.,the Civil Rights Act of 1866, as amended, 42 U.S.C. §1981, et seq., Executive Order 11246, as amended,, the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. §626(f), the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, 29 U.S.C. §1002, et seq., the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1, et seq., the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, N.J.S.A. 34:19-1, et seq., the New Jersey Family Leave Act, N.J.S.A. 34:11B, et seq., COBRA, the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act, 29 U.S.C. §2601, et seq. & 5 U.S.C. §6381, et seq., the National Labor Relations Act, as amended, The Equal Pay Act, as amended, the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law, as amended, the New Jersey Worker Health and Safety Act, as amended, as well as any other anti-retaliation provision of any statute or law, and any other applicable federal, state or local, constitutional or statutory provision, order or regulation, arising from any event or act of omission or commission;

- All claims for breach of contract, whether express or implied;
- All tort claims, including claims for libel, slander, negligence, invasion of privacy, intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress, fraud, interference with actual or prospective contractual rights or relations, and violation of public policy;
- All claims for wrongful discharge or termination;
- All claims under any federal, state and municipal laws, regulations, ordinances or court decisions of any kind;
- All claims for wages and benefits (including bonuses, health and welfare benefits, vacation pay, sick pay and/or any other fringe benefits;
- All claims for any type of monetary damages, including back pay, front or prospective pay, compensatory damages, and punitive damages, except as otherwise provided in this Agreement;
- All claims for equitable relief, including injunctive relief and reinstatement; and
- All claims for attorneys' fees, litigation expenses and costs.

The sole exception to the waivers set forth above are as follows: claims arising under the Workers' Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq., the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-1 et seq., the indemnity provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and 6.1 with regard to civil and criminal actions, claims by third parties, as well as claims arising from any breach of this Agreement. The Board does not waive any rights that it may have to oppose indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and 6.1.

2. In consideration of the terms herein, Mr. Tweed will simultaneous with the execution of this Agreement execute and submit the attached letter, attached hereto as Exhibit "A," thereby ending his tenured employment with the Board as of the end of the day on June 30, 2016. Mr. Tweed agrees that his signature on this Agreement constitutes an acknowledgment that his rights to employment, including any and all tenure rights and any and all future rights to employment and/or re-employment with the Board will end as of the end of the day on June 30, 2016. Mr. Tweed acknowledges that his employment relationship with the Board is permanently and irrevocably severed. Mr. Tweed agrees he shall never again seek employment and/or reemployment with the Board. Mr. Tweed waives any and all rights or claim of right to be reinstated to his former or any other position with the Board and he agrees that he shall not at any time seek or accept future employment with Board. Mr. Tweed acknowledges that Board has no obligation, contractual or otherwise, to re-hire or re-employ his in any capacity. A breach of this paragraph by Mr. Tweed will constitute lawful and just cause to refuse to employ him or to terminate him if already employed, and he shall have no cause of action against the Board for such refusal or termination.

3. The Board will continue to employ Mr. Tweed as an employee through the end of the day on June 30, 2016. For the 2015-2016 school year, Mr. Tweed's suspension will be converted to a medical leave without pay from October 1, 2015 to December 31, 2015, and a medical leave with pay from January 1, 2016 to June 30, 2016. For the period of paid medical leave, the salary payments -- which will be in accordance with the Board's normal payroll procedures and will not contain any salary offsets or deductions other than normal and customary deductions -- will be paid based on Mr. Tweed's scheduled annual salary for the 2015-2016 school year of $87,500. In addition, the Board agrees that it will take action to rescind the resolution to withhold Mr. Tweed's increment for the 2015-2016 school year; however, the Parties agree that Mr. Tweed is not entitled to and will not receive any salary adjustment as a result of that action by the Board. The Board waives any notice of resignation requirements in connection with the June 30, 2016 employment end date or should Mr. Tweed tender his resignation prior to that date.

4. It is understood that the Parties agreed to be bound by the determination of the assigned arbitrator with respect to any reporting obligation to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners ("Examiners") in connection with Mr. Tweed 's resignation from the Board.

5. Mr. Tweed and the Board, its officers, agents, administrators will be bound by a covenant of good faith and fair dealing with respect to performance under this Stipulation.

6. The Board agrees that Mr. Tweed will be eligible to continue to receive his current level of health insurance benefits through the District's insurance carrier until August 31, 2016, subject to the Board's receipt of Mr. Tweed's mandated health insurance premium contribution by the fifth of each month. The Board agrees to the extent it is applicable that Mr. Tweed may be entitled to continued health care coverage thereafter under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, ("COBRA"), 29 U.S.C. §§1161-1168, should he elect and pay for such coverage. The Board agrees not to oppose any application by Mr. Tweed for COBRA benefits.

7. Both parties agree and acknowledge that this Agreement does not constitute an admission of any kind by either party.

8. The Board agrees that it will respond to inquiries regarding Mr. Tweed from prospective employers with the written communication on Board letterhead attached as Exhibit "B." No other information is to be provided to prospective employers without the consent of Mr. Tweed. An original, fully-executed Exhibit "B" will be provided to Mr. Tweed within thirty (30) days of the date of the Board's approval of this Agreement. The Parties further agree that Mr. Tweed is permitted to solicit any letters of recommendation from past and current supervisory or administrative personnel in the District; however, such letters shall not be on District or Board letterhead.

9. Should Mr. Tweed have certain personal property on Board premises, he and his designated representative shall be permitted, on notice to school administration, and at a mutually convenient day and time, to come onto school property, and, if deemed necessary, meet with a representative of school administration and accompanied by a representative, designate which property belongs to him and remove his personal property. The Board will cooperate in this regard.

10. Mr. Tweed agrees he shall never again seek employment with the Board. Mr. Tweed hereby waives any rights to seek any position, paid or unpaid, with the Board, and specifically promises not to apply for any position with the Board or the Released Parties. Mr. Tweed agrees that any attempt to obtain a position with the Board or the Released Parties will constitute a breach of this agreement and the Board may rely on the breach in rejecting the application or refusing to employ, reemploy, appoint, nominate, or contract with Mr. Tweed.

11. The parties agree that this Agreement may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the same force and effect as original signatures.

12. It is understood between the parties that neither party has relied upon any representation, express or implied, made by any other party or their counsel or any of their representatives, and that this Agreement constitutes the entire understanding of the parties and cannot be modified except in writing signed by all of the parties hereto.

MR. TWEED ACKNOWLEDGES THAT HE HAS BEEN ADVISED THAT HIS LEGAL RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES WILL BE AFFECTED BY EXECUTING THIS AGREEMENT AND HE ACKNOWLEDGES THAT HE IS REPRESENTED BY HIS OWN ATTORNEY AND HAS CONSULTED WITH HIS ATTORNEY PRIOR TO EXECUTING THIS AGREEMENT.

13. In the event that any section or part of this Agreement shall be found to be void or unenforceable, such section or part shall be deemed to be surplusage and the remainder of the Agreement shall remain in full force and effect.

14. This Agreement, including the letters attached as Exhibit "A" and "B", respectively, is contingent upon Board approval.

15. The parties agree that this Agreement shall be interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey. All disputes arising under or relating to this Agreement or the breach of this Agreement shall be brought exclusively in the State courts of the State of New Jersey.

16. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, which shall be taken together as the entire agreement of the Parties hereto. This Agreement may also be exchanged by the Parties via electronic mail for the purposes of securing signatures and will be fully enforceable as an original document.

17. By signing this Agreement, each signatory represents that he or he is a Party or has been duly authorized by a Party to sign on that Party's behalf and that this Agreement is duly authorized, approved and consented to as to terms.

18. Pursuant to the requirement of the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. § 626 et seq., Mr. Tweed acknowledges that he has been given the opportunity, if he so desires, to consider this Agreement for twenty-one (21) days before executing it. In the event that Mr. Tweed executes this Agreement within less than twenty-one (21) days of the date of its delivery to him, Mr. Tweed acknowledges that such decision was entirely voluntary and that he had the opportunity, if he had so desired, to consider this Agreement for the entire twenty-one (21) day period. Mr. Tweed further acknowledges that for a period of seven (7) days from the date of his execution of this Agreement, he shall retain the right to revoke this Agreement by written notice to Mark G. Toscano, Esquire, Comegno Law Group, PC, 521 Pleasant Valley Avenue, Moorestown, NJ 08057, and that this Agreement shall not become effective or enforceable until the expiration of such revocation period.

Intending to be legally bound hereby, Mr. Tweed and the Board execute the foregoing Agreement as indicated below.

J.B., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, E.B.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that his daughter, E.B., did not reside within the school district, and was therefore not entitled to a free public education in Springfield Township schools. Petitioner asserted that he is a domiciliary of Springfield, and owns a house in the township which was rendered uninhabitable by a fire on January 27, 2011; subsequently, he and his daughter lived temporarily with petitioner's father in Mountainside before moving to one – then another – apartment in Springfield. The Board contended that E.B. was not residing at the Springfield address provided by the petitioner, and sought repayment of tuition for the period of E.B.'s ineligible attendance. Hearings in this matter were conducted in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 15, 16 and 23, 2015, and on August 19, 2013.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that petitioner's daughter was not eligible for a free public education in Springfield schools and ordered that petitioner reimburse respondent for the cost of tuition for the period of E.B.'s ineligible attendance, specifically the following periods of time: December 2010 through June 2011; April 25, 2012 through June 2012; September 2012 through June 2013; and January 14, 2014 through June 2014.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner cannot ascertain from the Initial Decision – because of inconsistencies in the record – when petitioner resided in Springfield and the exact amount of tuition due to the respondent Board. Accordingly, the Commissioner was constrained to remand this matter to the OAL for determination of: 1) the exact period when the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Springfield; and 2) calculation of tuition costs owed to the District for E.B.'s ineligible enrollment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3.

J.B., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, E.B.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1] The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner cannot ascertain from the Initial Decision – due to inconsistencies in the record – when petitioner resided in Springfield, and the exact amount of tuition owed to the District. For example, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) made a finding of fact that appellant's testimony regarding where he lived in Springfield was credible. Although the Commissioner does not have the transcript of petitioner's testimony, it appears from the Initial Decision that petitioner testified that he lived at 317 Morris Avenue in Springfield for three months beginning in August 2011, before moving into an apartment at Short Hills Village in Springfield.[2] Nevertheless, the ALJ ordered petitioner to reimburse the

[1] The Commissioner was provided with a transcript of the January 23, 2015 hearing at the OAL, but was not provided with transcripts of the other three hearings, which were held on January 15 and 16, 2015, and August 19, 2015.

[2] Notwithstanding petitioner's testimony, the lease agreement indicates that petitioner's lease at Short Hills Village began in September 2012. Furthermore, petitioner informed the District by letter dated August 26, 2011 (R-4) that he was living in Mountainside and was still renovating an apartment at 317 Morris Avenue. Accordingly, petitioner's testimony is inconsistent with the record.

District for the cost of tuition from April 25, 2012 through the end of the 2011-2012 school year,[3] as well as for the entire 2012-2013 school year, because petitioner lived outside of the Springfield School District during that time – despite petitioner's contention that he lived in Springfield during that period.[4]

The ALJ then found that petitioner and the minor child resided in the Springfield School District during the first half of the 2013-2014 school year, at his apartment in Short Hills Village. However, the lease on that apartment started in September 2012 – not during the summer of 2013 – and there is no evidence in the record indicating that petitioner moved into the apartment during that summer. Accordingly, the Commissioner is unable to determine when petitioner resided in Springfield and for what period the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Springfield. The present record lacks information required to calculate the amount of tuition monies owed to the District – specifically, the exact number of days of ineligible attendance by the minor child.[5]

Because it is impossible to ascertain from the record the correct amount of tuition that is owed to the Board, the Commissioner must remand this matter to the OAL for

[3] The District sent petitioner a letter dated April 25, 2012 (R-7) which assessed tuition for the period of September 2011 through June 2012. However, that letter did not comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.2, which requires that notices of ineligibility include a statement of the applicant's right to an appeal before the Commissioner within 21 days and that if an appeal is not filed, the student will not be permitted to attend school beyond the 21st day following the notice date. The April 25, 2012 letter simply assessed tuition without informing petitioner of his right to an appeal of that determination; further, the District's letter did not inform petitioner that his minor child was no longer permitted to attend school in Springfield. To the contrary, the minor child continued to attend school in Springfield for the 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years. Accordingly, the first valid notice of ineligibility that petitioner received was in August 2013, which resulted in the instant appeal.

[4] It is undisputed from the record that the minor child did not attend school in Springfield after the 2013-2014 school year.

[5] While the parties stipulate to the district's tuition rates for 2010-2011, 2011-2012, 2012-2013 and 2013-2014, this fails to establish the total number of days of ineligible attendance. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, "tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local school district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance."

determination of: (1) the exact period when the minor child was ineligible to attend school in Springfield; and (2) calculation of tuition costs owed to the District for E.B.'s ineligible enrollment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2 and 6.3.[6]

Accordingly – for the reasons expressed herein – this matter is remanded to the OAL for determination of the period of ineligible enrollment and calculation of tuition costs due to the District.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

[6] It should be noted that the current version of the relevant regulations did not take effect until December 16, 2013. Because the instant appeal was filed prior to that date, tuition shall be assessed in accordance with the regulations effective as of January 19, 2010.

[7] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

J.B. O/B/O A MINOR CHILD, E.B., Appellant,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD, UNION COUNTY,
Respondent.

Fredric H. Pearson, Esq., representing appellant (Pearson and Shapiro, attorneys)

Kerri A. Wright, Esq., representing respondent (Porzio, Bromberg and Newman, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 5, 2015 Decided: November 13, 2015

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Appellant, J.B., was the custodial parent of his twelve-year-old daughter, E.B. between 2010 and March 2011. E.B. started attending school in the Springfield School District, Union County, on September 25, 2010. Appellant wrote to respondent, Springfield Township Board of Education (Springfield BOE), with information that his home at 646 South Springfield Avenue in Springfield (646) had burned in a fire on January 27, 2011, and was uninhabitable. He informed respondent that he would be staying with his father in Mountainside until repairs were completed and requested respondent's permission for his daughter to be transferred within the district from the Sandmeier Elementary School to the James Caldwell Elementary School (Caldwell School) because that school is closer to his father's home in Mountainside. Appellant indicated that since the length of time to repair 646 was unknown that he would renovate an apartment in Springfield so he and his daughter could move back into the district by January 2012. On August 31, 2011, the Superintendent of Schools, Michael Davino, granted appellant's request to transfer E.B. to Caldwell School with the understanding: (1) The Mountainside living arrangement was temporary, (2) Appellant would transport his daughter to and from Caldwell School, and (3) Appellant and his daughter would move back to Springfield once repairs /renovations were complete. Superintendent Davino informed appellant that tuition charges would be assessed if he and E.B. did not move back to Springfield.

Appellant did not move back to Springfield by January 2012 and asked for additional time to find an apartment. David Rennie, the principal of Caldwell School, allowed appellant additional time and informed him that tuition charges would be issued if he did not return to reside in Springfield. During January 2012, E.B.'s mother contacted the district to report that J.B. and E.B. never lived in Springfield and have been residents of Mountainside. On January 30, 2012, appellant contacted Mr. Rennie and provided him with an address in Springfield. Mr. Rennie instructed appellant to provide proof that he was domiciled at the address given. During March 2012, appellant provided the district with a copy of a lease for an apartment in Springfield and copies of water and electric bills. The lease was not signed by appellant and did not have his name on it. Names of family members who were renting the property appeared on the lease and on the bills.

In April 2012, the district began to investigate appellant's residency and determined there was no domicile in Springfield. On April 25, 2012, respondent notified appellant that tuition was due and provided a payment schedule. One year later, during April 2013, respondent hired an independent investigator to conduct a residency investigation. The investigation occurred on nine days during April, with the last day of surveillance on April 30, 2013. The investigator reported never seeing appellant or his daughter overnight at the Springfield apartment. The investigator observed appellant and his daughter leaving the Mountainside address on two occasions. The investigator opined that although appellant had a residence in Springfield, his domicile was in Mountainside.

On August 6, 2013, Superintendent Davino notified appellant that it appeared he [appellant] and his daughter were no longer domiciled in Springfield. The letter informed appellant that if he disagreed with the determination of the Springfield BOE he could appeal and have a hearing before the BOE. Appellant's BOE hearing was held on August 26, 2013. Appellant did not speak at the hearing and did not present documents to assist with proving his domicile is in Springfield. The Board concluded that appellant and his daughter were not domiciled in Springfield and passed resolutions authorizing the removal of appellant's daughter from the district's school and the assessment of back tuition in the amount of $51,920. Appellant appeals the Board's determination that tuition reimbursement is warranted.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 11, 2013, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14 F-1 et seq. The undersigned was assigned to the case on October 23, 2013. On November 7, 2013, respondent's counsel requested OAL to reschedule the testimony commencement date from December 11, 2013, to January 27, 2014, and to assign consecutive hearing dates to avoid disruption of testimony. The December 11 date was removed and OAL offered January 27, February 3, 10, and 28 as hearing dates. Appellant did not confirm any of the dates and on November 25, 2013, respondent contacted OAL for additional dates. OAL offered March 5 and 7, 2014, as new dates. On January 27, 2014, respondent informed OAL that appellant had not provided discovery and was not responding to telephone messages to provide dates for scheduling conferences. On February 12, 2014, respondent notified OAL that appellant's discovery still had not been provided. The undersigned scheduled a February 19, 2014, conference with the parties. Appellant announced during the conference that he was in the process of retaining counsel. Attorney Fredric Pearson telephoned OAL on the same day, February 19, 2014, with information that appellant had reached out to him and that time was needed to meet with appellant before determining if he [Pearson] would take the case.

Status conferences were completed on February 26, 28, and March 18, 2014. On March 18 the parties announced that a resolution may be possible. On April 10, 2014, respondent provided a case status report and suggested the scheduling of hearing dates since effort to resolve the matter had not been fruitful. On April 11, 2014, respondent requested leave to amend the Answer filed on October 9, 2013. Leave was granted and respondent submitted a counterclaim for back tuition for the period of E.B.'s ineligible attendance in the Springfield School District. During status conferences held on April 16, and May 20, 2014, respondent committed to completing discovery by no later than May 22, 2014. The undersigned informed the parties that testimony would go forward on June 2, 18, and 19, 2014.

On May 27, 2014, during a status conference appellant's attorney disclosed that appellant had been admitted, four days earlier, to Morristown Memorial Hospital and would be in rehabilitation for thirty days after discharge. The hearing dates scheduled for June were cancelled. A status conference was held on August 28, 2014, and appellant's attorney informed all that appellant was still in the hospital. Another status conference was held on September 4, 2014, and it was reported that in October 2014 appellant should be medically able to move forward with hearings at the OAL. On September 4, 2014, respondent wrote to OAL to request consecutive dates in October. OAL offered: October 3, 30; November 24; and December 24. The parties had conflicts with the dates.

On January 6, 2015, the undersigned held a status conference during which it was Ordered that appellant complete discovery by no later than 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday January 7, 2015. On January 7, 2015, respondent received appellant's witness list and responses to Interrogatories. The parties agreed to hearing dates on January 13 and 16, 2015. However, at the request of respondent's counsel the January 13 date was adjourned to afford time for respondent to review and respond, as needed, to appellant's discovery submissions. The hearing dates for January 15 and 16 were not changed. On January 14, 2015, respondent wrote to appellant's counsel and the undersigned to report that insufficient information was provided for some interrogatory responses and that no documents were produced. Requests for additional adjournments of this matter were not recognized. Testimony commenced on January 15 and continued on January 16 and 23, 2015. Another date was required for the investigator's testimony. OAL offered dates but was unsuccessful in obtaining consent from appellant's attorney for any of the suggested dates.

On April 20, 2015, respondent submitted a Motion To Dismiss based on alleged witness tampering and fraud upon the court by appellant. On April 22, 2015, respondent notified OAL that going forward Kerri A. Wright, Esq., would be handling the case, replacing Okechi C. Ogbuokiri, Esq. On April 22, 2015, respondent contacted OAL with a request for the undersigned to rule on the Motion To Dismiss prior to continuing testimony. The undersigned noted that OAL had not received a response from appellant's attorney and was awaiting same before deciding to make a ruling. On April 22, 2015, F. Pearson, appellant's attorney, notified OAL that he had undergone major surgery on April 1, 2015, and first had knowledge of the Motion to Dismiss on April 21. Appellant's counsel disclosed that he would be recuperating for six weeks. He requested an adjournment and time to respond to respondent's Motion. On April 23, 2015, OAL notified the parties that the adjournment was granted and time was extended, to May 11, 2015, for a reply from Attorney Pearson. On May 13, 2015, respondent wrote to Attorney Pearson and the undersigned to advise that a reply to the Motion to Dismiss had not been received. On July 1, 2015, the undersigned notified the parties that with the completion of testimony from seven witnesses, and one witness remaining that the case will be completed with the last witness to provide testimony on August 19 and 28, 2015, at noon.

On August 19, 2015, counsels argued the motion for dismissal and or sanctions. Appellant acknowledged that his daughter's mother allowed him to speak with his daughter the day before the daughter testified. Appellant acknowledged that he asked his daughter whether she would be comfortable testifying and he mentioned that her mother's demands cuts into her [the daughter's] college funds.[1] Prior to appellant's daughter's testimony, on January 23, 2015, she was asked several questions to determine her understanding of conveying and or perceiving the truth and understanding the requirement to tell the truth on and off the witness stand. The undersigned determined that E.B. comprehended the inquiries made of her and understood the definition and meaning of veracity. The content of the daughter's responses caused the undersigned to decide that all credible testimony should be given consideration, especially her [E.B.'s] recollection of where she lived and when, in comparison to the recollections of other witnesses. There was no proof that the daughter's responses under oath on January 23, 2015, had been influenced by her father. In instances, the daughter's testimony provided clarity to other testimony. The motion to dismiss and or sanction was denied.

Richard Mickles, the last witness, who is no longer employed by the Board of Education, was subpoenaed to testify. Mr. Mickles's testimony was completed on August 19, 2015, and the exhibits listed in the Appendix were marked into evidence. A deadline for receipt of written summations at OAL was established. An extension of the deadline was made with the parties agreeing to submit joint stipulations on tuition rates per day for each Springfield school E.B. attended indicating the school year and name of the school. On September 4, 2015, respondent wrote to appellant's counsel and the undersigned to advise that appellant was not cooperating with the completion of the joint stipulation. On September 4, 2015, respondent submitted a written summation. On October 5, 2015, OAL received the fully executed joint stipulation and the hearing record was closed.

ISSUES

Did appellant and his daughter reside in Springfield, New Jersey during all or any segment of the 2010-2011, 2011-2012, 2012-2013 and 2013-2014 school years? If domicile is not established in Springfield for all or any portion of any of the school years then, what amount is due to Springfield for tuition reimbursement?

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

(ELLYN ATHERTON)

Ellyn Atherton has been an administrator for the Springfield Board of Education for eleven years. She is the Director of Human Resources and the Chief Officer for Affirmative Development. Her employment duties are at the discretion of the Superintendent and include responsibility for oversight of state policy on residency issues, attendance, personnel and board of education matters. Administrator Atherton testified as follows, > Acceptable proofs of residency include Lease Agreements, Affidavits, DYFS placements and more. A child must reside in Springfield to attend Springfield District Schools. Sixty days upon entry to a school district proofs must be provided. After sixty days there is a twenty day appeal period to the board of education. Following the twenty days is another twenty day appeal period to the New Jersey Department of Education.

>
> I have had several experiences of excluding students due to residency issues. Appellant came to me in the summer of 2011 to request that his daughter be allowed to attend Caldwell School that is closer to Mountainside where they would be temporarily living. Caldwell School serves third through fifth grades.
>
> Appellant and his daughter moved out of Springfield prior to the January 2011 fire, but Springfield did not know it.

[1] The word "demands" concerned content for a possible settlement agreement pertaining to the within matter.

> Appellant would have had to reestablish residency and would not have been granted an accommodation for his daughter to attend Caldwell School.
>
> An internal investigation commenced based on the Superintendent's August 31, 2011 letter requiring appellant to move to 317 Morris Avenue once renovations on that apartment was completed. In January 2012, appellant provided proof to the BOE that he had a residence in Springfield. During an August 2013, Board of Education meeting, appellant presented bills and offered testimony through his brother. Board members noted that appellant's driver's license showed Denville, New Jersey, as his place of residence. The Board members voted to remove appellant's daughter from school and request retro-active tuition. Springfield does not accept tuition paying students.

On cross-examination, Ms. Atherton responded,

> I reviewed records, files and procedures before requiring Mr. Richard A. Mickles to commence an investigation. I knew about the divorce action and that Denville was the previous marital home.

(RICHARD MICKLES)

Richard Mickles has been in law enforcement with suburban New Jersey police agencies for more than thirty-two years. For fifteen years he held supervisory and senior department leadership positions. He was a Student Residency Investigator for the Springfield Board of Education from April 2013 through June 2013. Officer Mickles is currently with the Bernardsville Police Department. He testified as follows,

> I completed seven residency investigations for the Springfield Board of Education. It was my responsibility to determine which persons live outside the school district. I have interacted directly with appellant and his family when having to intercede about parking problems at his place of business, the Springfield Truck Center. When starting this assignment and others, I first review all records and documents given to me by the BOE.
> My nine day investigation of this matter began on April 11, 2013 and ended on April 30, 2013. The enrollment documents and Lease Agreement listed a home address located at 47C Forest Drive Short Hills Village in Springfield, New Jersey. However, a Mountainside address was given to me by the Springfield Board of Education, with a location at 373 Upland Road. The owner is listed as M.F.B, who is appellant's deceased mother. There was much activity and many vehicles at the Upland Road address. I did surveillances with binoculars, long distance view lenses, and use of other methods such as testing the moisture [condensation] on car windows that stayed parked overnight.

I reviewed Mountainside Police Reports and learned that on seven occasions between 2009 and 2013, appellant was at the Upland Road house when he phoned for police to assist there. At 8:18 p.m., on July 26, 2009, J.B. phoned the police because his brother and father were quarreling and fighting. At 9:28 a.m., on February 16, 2010, J.B. and his daughter's mother [ex-wife] were both at the Upland Road house and had a run-in that prompted the mother to go to the police department to report what happened. At 7:24 a.m., on November 27, 2011, J.B. phoned the police for assistance at Upland Road because his brother was drunk and kicking down doors. At 7:31 p.m., on June 14, 2012, J.B. phoned the police from Upland Road because his brother was unconscious and acting-out due to intoxication. At 2:37 a.m., on September 24, 2012, J.B. phoned the police and filed a Domestic Violence Complaint against his brother. The police report indicates that J.B. told the police that he [J.B.] and his brother live there together. J.B.'s daughter was there during the incident. At 11:10 a.m., on October 26, 2013, J.B. phoned the police from Upland Road. At 8:30 p.m., on December 14, 2013, J.B. phoned the police to come out to investigate a possible trespasser on the Upland Road property.

My written four page Investigation Report ends with my statement, "[I]t is in my professional opinion based on my training, experience and the information gained, notwithstanding that [J.B.] maintains an apartment in Springfield, the facts and observations developed in this investigation substantiate the reports that [J.B.] and his daughter [E.B.'s] primary residence is 373 Upland Road in Mountainside."

On cross-examination, Officer Mickles responded,

> Of the seven cases I investigated for the Springfield BOE, three were not residents, two were referred to DYFS, and one was a resident of Springfield.
>
> During my interview with agents at Short Hills Village in April 2013, I was told that appellant had not moved out, but his Lease had run-out. My investigation took place over a period of nine dates. I never interviewed appellant's ex-wife. On one day the child's mother reported her daughter was sick and that is when I learned of the visitation rights. I have no listing of who drove the black Denali, other than appellant? I only saw him driving it. I do not specifically know who may have driven the silver passenger van. I never spoke to anyone about the operators of the vehicle(s). I did not have the resources to run the plates. My comments about dew or moisture are based on my own knowledge about vehicles.
>
> I saw appellant's daughter coming out of the Upland Road house in Mountainside on two occasions. The child's after school activities and plans are unknown to me. I know appellant maintains an apartment in Springfield.

(CARLO PALUMBO)

Carlo Palumbo is the chief of the Springfield Fire Department. Chief Palumbo testified as follows,

> I know appellant's family; they have a local business in town. I have been with the Springfield Fire Department for sixteen years. In 2014, I became chief. On January 27, 2011, the date of the fire at 646, I was a Captain and acting as Deputy Fire Chief on that date, therefore I took command of the scene. I went in the two-family residential house after the fire. It did not appear that the first floor was being renovated. The building was heavily damaged and no one was allowed in. Appellant did not ask to enter the building on the night of the fire. I learned through a conversation with the police that 646 is owned by the appellant. I do not know if appellant was occupying the building or not. When I asked appellant for contact information he provided me with an address on Upland Road in Mountainside, New Jersey. I prepared a written "Report of Fire," which is done for every emergency call.

On cross-examination, Chief Palumbo responded,

I know appellant and I am familiar with the Truck Center shop since we inspect it. On the night of the fire I asked appellant for a contact address and he gave me Upland Road in Mountainside.

(DAVID RENNIE)

David Rennie, principal of Caldwell School, testified as follows,

I have been in the school system for twenty-three years and a principal for nine years. As school principal, I am responsible for observing and evaluating teachers, operating the building on a daily basis, and handling attendance and residency issues.

I had a telephone conversation with appellant and asked him to provide documents to prove residency. He gave me a hand written Lease for 317 Morris Avenue [commencing February 2011] and several bills that did not have his name on them. He told me that 317 Morris was owned by his father, therefore the reason his father's name appears on the document. I knew the custody arrangements between the parents and that the child sometimes stays overnight with her mother during the weekday and spends every other weekend with the mother.

On August 31, 2011, Springfield Superintendent of Schools, Michael A. Davino, acknowledged in a letter to appellant, the acceptance of his [appellant's] request to have his daughter live in Mountainside and continue attending school in Springfield because of displacement from housing in Springfield due to fire.

On April 25, 2012, Matthew A. Clarke, Springfield Public Schools Business Administrator and Board Secretary wrote to appellant to inform him that $12,347 is due for his daughter's education in Springfield, while he [appellant] was not a resident of Springfield. I spoke with appellant about the number of properties owned in Springfield by his family > or him, but he never told me he lived in Springfield. Appellant never provided me with any evidence of his and his daughter's permanent residency in Springfield.

On cross-examination, Mr. Rennie responded,

> It was late during the summer of 2011, when appellant visited me about being displaced and requested that his daughter be permitted to attend Caldwell School while property in Springfield was being repaired/renovated.

(B.B.)

B.B., appellant's father, testified as follows,

> I live at 373 Upland Road in Mountainside, New Jersey. In 2011, I was employed at Springfield Truck Center, where I am one of the owners. Appellant, who is my son, was working for me. I do not recall exactly where my son was living during all of 2011, but he was living with me sometimes. I have a bedroom at my place for my granddaughter and another for my son. My son comes to dinner at any time, there is no set rule.
>
> This was a period when my son was going through some things; he was undergoing a divorce, his apartment in Springfield caught fire and he was trying to get a Condo in Springfield.
>
> I own properties in Springfield, including a two-family unit on Keler Street, a two-family unit on Caldwell Place, a five-family house at 317 Morris Avenue and a house on Salter Street. When my son and his first wife got married they lived at 317 Morris Avenue in a small apartment. His father-in-law and me moved a bedroom set, dresser, desk, sofa and chairs into that apartment.
>
> The two properties I own outside of Springfield include Turkey Hill Inn in Summit, New Jersey and property in Palm Beach, Florida. My son stayed at Turkey Hill Inn for a while. I go to Florida in the winter, from December to late spring. I was in Florida when the fire happened in January 2011. The Springfield Truck Center is directly across the street from the house at 646.

On redirect, appellant's father testified,

> My main property is on Upland Road in Mountainside. One of my son's takes care of the property when I am in Florida.

(E.B.)

E.B., appellant's daughter, was born on October 13, 2003. At the time of her appearance for this case she was eleven years old and in sixth grade. E.B. was sworn under oath and testified as follows,

> In 2010-2011, I was in second grade and I lived with my dad a little.[ii] I attended Edward Lee Walton School in Springfield. My teachers were Ms. Funk and Ms. Perdomo. While in second grade, half the time I spent with dad and half the time with mom. I would be with my mom on Monday and Thursday and with my dad on Tuesday and Wednesday. My dad bought a house at 646 Springfield Avenue, in Springfield, but I did not stay there many times because I did not like it and it burned down. I hardly stayed at 646.[iii] I lived almost full time with my dad when in second grade, for a total of166 days.[iv]
>
> In 2011-2012, I was in third grade and attended Caldwell School, in Springfield. My teachers were Ms. Stone and Ms. Kaplan. I stayed in Mountainside and at 317 Morris Avenue in Springfield a couple of times per week. My grandfather made me breakfast in Mountainside, then my dad drove me to school. After school I went to the family business at 311 Morris Avenue, did my homework in the office then went to Mountainside. On Mondays and Thursdays, Scott, my mother's driver, picked me up and drove me to Pequannock so I could play soccer.
>
> In 2012-2013, I was in fourth grade at Caldwell School and my teacher was Ms. Powis. I lived with both my mom and my dad, as I did in third grade. When I was with mom, I was in Pequannock and when I was with dad I stayed at my grandad's in Mountainside. My dad or grand-dad drove me to school. After school I sometimes play with friends on the playground, then went to the business to do my homework, [ii] When E.B. was asked if she could live with her mother in 201-2011, she [E.B.] said: "I don't want to answer."

[iii] During a prehearing interview E.B. told respondent that she never resided at 646.
[iv] When E.B. was asked how she arrived at 166 days, she refused to answer.

and leave with my dad or grand-dad for home in Mountainside. At the end of fourth grade I lived both in the house on Upland Road in Mountainside and in the condo at 47C Forest Drive, Short Hills Club Village, in Springfield (47-C). The condo at 47 C had one bedroom. I slept in the bedroom or on the sleeper-sofa. I stayed there two nights a week. I had very little clothing in Springfield. In Mountainside I had a bed. Most of my belongings are in Mountainside. Dad stayed with me in Mountainside because I wanted him to be there.

In 2013-2014, I was in fifth grade and my teacher was Mr. Warzwig. When school started at Caldwell School in September 2013, I stayed with my mom sometime and with my dad sometimes until January 2014. In January 2014, I started totally living with my mom in Peequanock. I am now in sixth grade and attend Pequannock Valley Middle School.

This is a picture of the house at 373 Upland Road in Mountainside. I live there with my dad, my grandpa Bruce, my grandpa's girlfriend Claudia, my uncle Keith, my uncles Keith's girlfriend Jan and my pets: Brandy a medium size mixed beagle and Drizzle a turtle.

This next picture is 317 Morris Avenue in Springfield. I sort of lived there because my dad wanted me to live there, so I could go to school there. I did not like it because the place was too small. I stayed there once or twice per week.

This is a picture of the 47C Short Hills Village condo, in Springfield where we stayed a lot.[v] But, we also stayed in Mountainside in my grand-dad house where I have lots of space, my own room and my pets.

This is a picture of where my dad worked when I was in second, third and fourth grade and at least the beginning of my fifth grade. It is located at 311 Morris Avenue in Springfield. It is the family place of business. I went to dad's job before and after school since it is four houses down from Caldwell School. All the time, I did my homework at the family business and when I finish I would go to Mountainside.

On cross-examination, E.B. responded,

[v] On cross-examination, E.B. would not respond to an inquiry about who lived in the condo with her and her father.

The house that burned down, I stayed there once or twice. Starting January 2014, I was with my dad two nights each week and every other weekend. My dad would drive around the condo to avoid the school bus. I walked to the business sometimes after school. If I attended an after-school program or soccer practice, I would be picked-up from school.

I went with my dad to look at a place in Jersey City and to look at Turkey Hill in Summit, New Jersey. Turkey Hill is a hotel my family owns. We stayed there during Hurricanes Irene and Sandy since the place never lost electricity.

When I was in fifth grade, my mom asked me if I wanted to go to school in Peequanock. I told her I wanted to wait to sixth grade since I was already in fifth grade in Springfield. I lived with my dad at 47C from January 2013 thru June 2014. I played at the condo, but there were not many kids, I had one friend. Sometimes after school I went to my cousin's house that is close to the business.

During second, third, and fourth grades and the first half of fifth grade, my uncle Keith's girlfriend's sister, Julie (who is a police officer) would sometimes pick me up from school.

My dad phoned me yesterday and we spoke about three minutes on the phone.[vi] He was asking me whether I wanted to testify or not. I said I wanted to testify. He said if I felt uncomfortable with any question asked of me that I should say I do not want to answer. He was saying to me do you remember where you lived and when. I already remembered where I lived, he was just asking me if I did remember. He did not really ask me questions. I remember my dad said to me, "Remember living at 317 Morris Avenue." He was not really asking a question. He made a statement to see if I remembered. I stayed at 317 Morris, but I really did not live there. I stayed there because my dad wanted me to.

My dad did tell me the money would come out of my college fund. I felt scared and was crying because of what he told me. My mother saw me crying and asked me why. I told her I do not want to lie, but I do not want to cost my dad all this money. He said it was coming out of the college fund.

On redirect, E.B. testified,

[vi] E.B. testified on January 23, 2015. Her dad spoke with her on the phone on January 22, 2015.

My dad never told me what to say here today. I spoke to the two [attorneys for respondent] a couple of times. I did not go to their offices, we talked at my mom's house in Pequannock. In January 2014, I started staying with my Mom all the time because shared custody ended.

(Julie Biondi)

Julie Biondi, appellant's current wife, testified as follows,

I know appellant and his family. My knowledge of him goes back to when I was sixteen years old when I was living in Scotch Plains near the border of Mountainside. I went to Scotch Plains High School and graduated in 1984. I now reside in Bernardsville, New Jersey.

When appellant's mother had an asthma attack eight years ago I became reacquainted with him. We began dating in the fall of 2007. He moved from Denville in 2007 or 2008 when he left his wife. I know he had a place in Springfield, New Jersey on South Springfield Avenue. It was a multi-family unit and appellant lived on the top floor until the house burned down in the winter of 2011. Six months after the fire he moved to one of his father's places on Morris Avenue, in Springfield. He and his daughter, E.B., stayed there for two months. E.B. had her own bedroom. More space was needed so appellant moved into a condominium located at 47C Short Hills Village in Springfield and stayed there for two years. I visited the condo in Short Hills Village and saw E.B.; she had her own bedroom. She went to school in Springfield. When appellant and his former wife started joint custody, E.B. would stay with each parent fifty percent of the time.

I have never had a conversation about E.B. with school officials. Appellant usually took E.B. to school in the morning and sometimes I did. When E.B. stayed overnight with her mother, then her mother transported her to school in Springfield.

On cross-examination, Julie Biondi, replied as follows,

In September 2010, I started staying overnight with appellant two or three nights each week at the 317 Morris Avenue property. On July 1, 2014, he moved into my house in Bernardsville, after being discharged from the hospital. I am still romantically involved with appellant.

In the insurance claim, on the 646 house fire, I did testify that appellant did not live at 646 because 646 was used for storage purposes. 317 Morris Avenue is owned by the appellant's father. I heard that appellant's brother reported to the Springfield Board of Education that appellant never moved into 317 Morris Avenue. I only know where appellant was when I was with him. I think all properties owned by appellant and or his father are in Springfield.

In September 2013, E.B., was in school in Springfield. I do not know what school system she attended during the 2014-2015 school year.

(J.B.)

J.B., appellant, born June 9, 1966, testified as follows,

I moved to Springfield, New Jersey in 1990 and always lived there until I moved to Bernardsville on July 1, 2014. Prior to 1990, I lived in several apartments in North Carolina, Maplewood, Summit and Springfield.

I was married in 2003, the year my daughter was born. We resided at 553 Moonachie Road in Denville, New Jersey. In 2009, I moved into Turkey Hill Inn, which is a hotel in Summit, New Jersey. I stayed there three months before moving again in 2009 to 646 South Springfield Avenue in Springfield.

In 2009, my daughter was in her mother's custody and they lived in Ridgewood. She was evicted from the Ridgewood residence and moved to Pompton Plains. We were divorced by 2010, when she received three Driving While Intoxicated (DWI) tickets.[vii] I was given custody of my daughter and enrolled her in the Springfield School District for the 2010-2011 school year. My daughter and I lived at 646. I supplied school personnel with copies of my water bill and electric bill. We had moved out of the 646 house in December 2010, before the January 27, 2011 fire and temporarily moved to my father's house. The fire totally demolished the 646 house and made it uninhabitable.

[vii] Around the time appellant was given custody his former wife was incarcerated.

I told Principal David Rennie about the fire and that we were displaced. Mr. Rennie said, "If displaced no problem, just keep me abreast of what is happening." In June 2011, Mr. Rennie told me I had to get back into Springfield. Since 317 Morris Avenue, Springfield is a family property, I furnished it and moved in during August 2011 with the help of my father, brother and some friends. My daughter lived with me and went to Caldwell School. We were at 317 Morris Avenue for three months before leasing an apartment at Short Hills Village.[viii] The Short Hills Village apartment was larger than 317 Morris Avenue and rented for $1,450 utilities not included. On July 1, 2014, I moved from Short Hills Village to Bernardsville.

After the fire, my daughter stayed the same place I did. My father owns Springfield Truck Center, which is a truck garage located at 311 Morris Avenue, in Springfield. I have used the 311 address as my address. When I lived in Denville I gave 311 as my address, most of the time for convenience. I ate at my father's house three times per week. Periodically, I slept over at my father's if I worked late and my daughter slept over. My job includes working on trucks and school busses and having them repaired for service on the next day.

My father was my head baby-sitter. The Truck Center closed at 7:00 p.m., so my daughter ate dinner with her grandfather. The distance between the Springfield border and my house is one-half mile.

On cross-examination, appellant replied,

When I registered my daughter for school I gave the 646 house address as her address. During 2010 and 2011, I worked at 311 Morris Avenue, at the Springfield Truck Center, now I am unemployed and live in Bernardsville.

The address on my driver's license is 47C Short Hills Village. I went to have the address on my driver's license changed, but I did not have enough proof of residency, I needed more supporting documents.

On redirect, appellant testified,

[viii] The Short Hills Village apartment is sometimes referred to hereon as the "condo", especially by E.B.

When residing temporarily on Upland Road in Mountainside my daughter went to Caldwell School in Springfield with permission from the Springfield BOE. I wanted my daughter in a school closer to where we would be temporarily residing. Principal Rennie had me to write a letter to explain my situation.

I attended the Board of Education meeting but I cannot remember everything because of the lapse of time. I do not believe I was under the influence of drugs or alcohol at the meeting.

317 Morris Avenue is owned by the [B.]'s Brothers, LLC, my family. My father and uncle allowed me to live at 317 Morris. Five families were living there, including my daughter and I.

I am now married to Julie Biondi.

JOINT STIPULATIONS

The parties stipulated to the following,

- For the duration of the 2010-2011 school year, E.B. was enrolled in second grade at the Edward V. Walton School in Springfield, New Jersey;

- For the duration of the 2011-12 school year, E.B. was enrolled in third grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey;

- For the duration of the 2012-13 school year, E.B. was enrolled in fourth grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey;

- For the duration of the 2013-14 school year, E.B. was enrolled in fifth grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey;

- The school year is 180 days per State law;

- The approved tuition rates for Springfield for the following years are:

2010-2011: $13,877

2011-2012: $12,347
2012-2013: $12,284
2013-2014: $13,420

- Respondent seeks tuition for all of the aforementioned years;

- Appellant seeks to pay reimbursement only for the 2012-2013 school year and the first half of the 2013-2014 school year.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the law, the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACTS in this matter:

1. Appellant married in 2003, the year his daughter, E.B., was born;

2. The marital home was located at 553 Moonachie Road in Denville, New Jersey;

3. In 2009, appellant left his wife and moved from Denville to Summit, New Jersey, where he resided for three months at the Turkey Hill Inn, a hotel owned by appellant's family;

4. When appellant moved from the hotel he resided at 646 South Springfield Avenue in Springfield;

5. In 2009, appellant's daughter was in her mother's custody and they lived in Ridgewood;

6. In 2010, E.B.'s mother was evicted from their Ridgewood residence and moved to Pompton Plains;

7. During 2010, E.B.'s mother received three DWI tickets;

8. Commencing the beginning of the 2010-2011 school year, appellant became the primary custodial parent of his daughter, E.B.;

9. On September 25, 2010, appellant enrolled E.B. in the Springfield Public School District;

10. For the duration of the 2010-2011 school year, E.B. was enrolled in second grade at the Edward V, Walton School in Springfield, New Jersey;

11. On January 27, 2011, appellant's home at 646 South Springfield Avenue in Springfield burned in a fire and was uninhabitable;

12. Appellant wrote to respondent, Springfield BOE, with information about 646 and informed respondent that he would be temporarily staying with his father in Mountainside until repairs were completed;

13. Appellant requested respondent's permission for his daughter to be transferred within the district from the Sandmeier Elementary School to the James Caldwell Elementary School because Caldwell School is closer to his father's home in Mountainside;

14. Appellant indicated that since the length of time to repair the house at 646 was unknown that he would renovate an apartment in Springfield so he and his daughter could move back into the district by January 2012;

15. On March 4, 2011, custody arrangements for E.B. were modified by Court Order to joint physical custody and the parents started sharing overnights two nights each weeks and alternating weekend visits;

16. On August 31, 2011, Michael Davino, Superintendent of Schools, granted appellant's request to transfer E.B. to Caldwell School with the understanding:

(1) The Mountainside living arrangement was temporary, (2) Appellant would transport his daughter to and from Caldwell School, and (3) Appellant and his daughter would move back to Springfield once renovations/repairs were complete. Superintendent Davino informed appellant that tuition charges would be assessed if he did not move back to Springfield;

17. Appellant did not move back to Springfield by January 2012 and asked respondent for additional time to find an apartment;

18. Additional time was afforded appellant by David Rennie, principal of the Caldwell school. Mr. Rennie informed appellant that tuition charges would be posted if he and E.B. did not return to reside in Springfield;

19. During January 2012, E.B.'s mother contacted respondent and reported that J.B. and E.B. "never" lived in Springfield and have been residents of Mountainside;

20. The disclosure of E.B.'s mother about her daughter's and ex-husband residency "never" being in Springfield is not supported by the evidence;

21. On January 30, 2012, when appellant provided Principal Rennie with a Springfield address, the principal instructed appellant to provide proof that he was domiciled at the address;

22. During March 2012, appellant provided respondent with a copy of a lease for an apartment in Springfield and copies of water and electric bills. The lease was not signed by appellant and did not have his name on it. Names of family members who were renting the property appeared on the lease and on the bills. The offer of these proofs of residency was rejected;

23. In April 2012, respondent began to investigate appellant's residency and determined there was no domicile in Springfield;

24. On April 25, 2012, respondent notified appellant that tuition was due and provided a payment schedule;

25. For the duration of the 2011-12 school year, E.B. was enrolled in third grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey;

26. For the duration of the 2012-13 school year, E.B. was enrolled in fourth grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey;

27. During April 2013, respondent hired Richard Mickles, as an independent investigator, for three months, April 2013 - June 2013;

28. Investigator Mickles has not performed residency investigations for other school districts; however, he completed seven residency investigations for respondent;

29. Investigator Mickles's conducted appellant's residency investigation over a nine-day period between April 11 to 30, 2013;

30. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he "never" witnessed appellant or his daughter overnight at the Springfield apartment during his nine-day investigation, between April 11 and 30, 2013, is possible, even though the thoroughness of the process for making the determination is unknown - i.e. did Mickles or an assistant observe over-night, and if so, how many nights during the nine days. Also, was E.B. visiting her mom on the dates she was not overserved at the Springfield apartment, since joint physical custody started in march 2011;

31. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he only learned about visitation rights when the child's mother reported to Caldwell School that E.B. was sick on a particular day is not disputed;

32. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he observed appellant and his daughter leaving the Mountainside address on two occasions during his nine day investigation is credible;

33. Investigator Mickles's testimony that appellant's enrollment documents and Lease Agreement lists a home address located at 47C Forest Drive Short Hills

34. Investigator Mickles's testimony that when he interviewed the managers of Short Hills Village he was informed that appellant had not moved out, but that his Lease had run-out is not disputed;

35. Investigator Mickles's testimony that respondent provided him with an address at 373 Upland Road, Mountainside, is not disputed;

36. Investigator Mickles's testimony that the listed owner of 373 Upland is M.F.B, who is appellant's deceased mother is not disputed;

37. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he saw much activity and a number of vehicles at the 373 Upland is not disputed;

38. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he reviewed Mountainside Police Reports and learned that on seven occasions in four years, between 2009 and 2013, appellant phoned the Mountainside police from 373 Upland to request assistance, is not disputed;

39. Appellant's phone calls for police assistance suggests that on at least two occasions he and his daughter stayed at 373 Upland overnight – i.e.: 7:24 a.m., on November 27, 2011, and 2:37 a.m., on September 24, 2012;

40. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he never interviewed appellant's ex-wife is not disputed;

41. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he has no listing of who drove the black Denali, other than appellant because he only saw appellant driving it is not disputed;

42. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he does not specifically know who may have driven the silver passenger van is not disputed;

43. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he never spoke to anyone about the operators of the vehicles is not disputed;

44. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he did not have the resources to run the plates is not disputed;

45. Investigator Mickles's testimony that his comments about dew or moisture is based on his own knowledge about vehicles is not disputed;

46. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he knows appellant maintains an apartment in Springfield is not disputed;

47. Investigator Mickles's testimony that he does not know anything about E.B.'s after school activities and plans is not disputed;

48. Investigator Mickles's "Report of Investigation" dated April 24, 2013, was completed before the last day of surveillance on April 30, 2013;

49. Investigator Mickles no longer performs residency investigations, and is now with the Bernardsville Police Department;

50. Investigator Mickles's determination based on a nine day investigation during the month of April 2013 cannot determine domicile for all the dates in question in this case;

51. E.B.'s testimony that she looked at places to live with her dad and that they did stay in Springfield on some night of the week - is credible;

52. E.B.'s testimony that she and her father spent more time in Mountainside - is credible;

53. E.B.'s testimony that there came a time in 2011 when her parents obtained joint custody and she [E.B.] started spending half of her time with her mom and half with her dad, two nights with each parent every week and alternate weekends with each parent - is credible;

54. E.B.'s testimony that she did stay the at the 646, 317, 47C addresses in Springfield because her father wanted her to attend school in Springfield, but that she preferred to stay at her grandad's place in Mountainside because she had more space, a bedroom and her pets where there - is credible;

55. E.B.'s testimony about spending a lot of time at 47C and having a playmate there is credible;

56. B.B.'s, appellant's father's testimony about not knowing all of his son's living arrangements or information about the fire since he resides in Florida in the winter, from December to late spring is credible;

57. B.B.'s, testimony that there is a bedroom for his granddaughter and a bedroom for his son and that they are always welcome to come in eat, is not disputed;

58. Appellant's second wife's testimony about living at 47C and that sometimes she took E.B. to school, is not dispute;

59. Appellant's second wife's explanations about her husband's property in Springfield is mistaken in part;

60. Appellant's second wife's explanations about places of residence, during the time frame of this case, that appellant lived in is contradicted by her own testimony that she only knows where J.B. lived when she was with him;

61. Appellant's testimony about where he lived in Springfield, during the time frame of this case, is credible;

62. Appellant's and E.B.'s testimony complimented each other in regard to places they lived in Springfield, except that E.B. was adamant about not wanting to stay anywhere long because she did not like the places, except for Mountainside;

63. Fire Chief Palumbo's testimony that he did not know if appellant and E.B. resided in 646 is not disputed;

64. Fire Chief Palumbo's statement that a family was removed from the top floor has no impact on appellant's statement about previously living on the top floor. Appellant and E.B. moved-out of 646 in December 2010 and the fire occurred in January 2011;

65. On August 6, 2013, Superintendent Davino notified appellant that it appeared he [appellant] and his daughter were no longer domiciled in Springfield;

66. Commencing August 2013, appellant had notice from respondent that there was no continued accommodation for E.B. to reside in Moutainside and receive an education in Springfield;

67. On August 6, 2013, appellant learned that he could appeal the no-residency determination and have a hearing before the BOE;

68. A BOE hearing was held on August 26, 2013;

69. Appellant did not present documents at the BOE hearing to prove residency in Springfield;

70. At the BOE meeting, respondent passed resolutions authorizing the removal of appellant's daughter from the district's school and the assessment of back tuition;

71. For the duration of the 2013-14 school year, E.B. was enrolled in fifth grade at the James L. Caldwell School in Springfield, New Jersey without a waiver or accommodation from respondent;

72. During the 2013-2014 school year, E.B.'s mother obtained full custody via Court Order;

73. Commencing January 2014, E.B. started permanently residing with her mother in Pequannock, while still attending school in Springfield;

74. Commencing with the 2014-2015 school year, E.B. attended Pequannock Valley Middle School in Pequannock, New Jersey, Morris County;

LEGAL DISCUSSION

A student is eligible to attend a school free of charge if the student is domiciled within the school district. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it after being absent from the home and has no present intent of moving from the home, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) (1). Domicile may also be defined as a residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

Consideration in proving residency for purposes of establishing eligibility for school district placement is found at N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4(a),

> (a) A district board of education shall accept a combination of any of the following or similar forms of documentation from persons attempting to demonstrate a student's eligibility for enrollment in the school district:
>
> 1. Property tax bills, deeds, contracts of sale, leases, mortgages, signed letters from landlords and other evidence of property ownership, tenancy or residency;
>
> 2. Voter registrations, licenses, permits, financial account information, utility bills, delivery receipts, and other evidence of personal attachment to a particular location;
>
> . . .
>
> 3. Court orders; State agency agreements; and other evidence of court or agency placements or directives;
>
> 4. Receipts; bills; cancelled checks; insurance claims or payments; and other evidence of expenditures demonstrating personal attachment to a particular location or to support the student;
>
> . . .
> 6. Affidavits, certifications and sworn attestations pertaining to statutory criteria for school attendance, from the parent, guardian, person keeping an "affidavit student," adult student, person(s) with whom a family is living, or others as appropriate;

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) sets forth the right of a student to a free public education, which in pertinent parts states:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under twenty years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]
>
> . . .
> (a) A student over five and under twenty years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

In S.S. ex rel. A.S. and A.S. v. Bd. of Education of the Township of Marlboro, Monmouth County, EDU 192-12, Initial Decision (August 26, 2013), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal, evidence submitted by an investigator hired by the Marlboro New Jersey School District to determine whether certain minor children who were enrolled in the school district in fact were domiciled therein within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) was sufficient to establish that the children in fact were not domiciled in the district during the period in question and, instead, supported a conclusion that the minors resided at their grandmother's home in Edison New Jersey. Even though their mother had submitted documentation of the type described in N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4(a) that supported her claim that the minors were domiciled in Marlboro, the circumstances of the mother's employment, which included late hours, was such that the minors were properly found to be residing with their grandmother. On that basis, the administrative law judge recommended that the Department of Education find the mother liable for tuition for the minors.

In K.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Kinnelon, No. A-5671-07 (App. Div. January 4, 2010). Petitioners argue that the Commissioner erred in determining that their Kinnelon home was not their "domicile" for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). They argue that it was undisputed that they intended to occupy the Kinnelon home as soon as possible, but they were delayed by unforeseen construction delays and by the approval and permitting processes.

Pertinent in the instant matter is N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1. Appellant provided the Springfield district with a Lease Agreement and bills that did not have his name on it. The bills in other family member's names were not acceptable. The apartment was rented to appellant's family members. No form of acceptable proof, as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4 (a) were submitted by appellant. Without proof of residency or the presentment of credible evidence through testimony and documentation that residency exists then appellant's daughter is not entitled to a free public education in the Springfield district.

The issue of whether there is sufficient credible evidence to prove that residency existed for appellant and E.B. after a reasonable accommodation period ended must be determined based on the testimony deduced during the OAL hearing. Appellant and his family faced a unique emergent situation in 2010. The mother was charged with DWI, lost her home in Ridgewood, relocated to Pompton Plains, was incarcerated, lost physical custody of her minor daughter and saw her husband (estranged or divorced) gain custody of their daughter. The testimony strongly indicates that appellant wanted to care for his daughter and was trying to obtain housing in which she [his daughter] was comfortable. The facts show that appellant and his daughter searched for housing, but were unsuccessful until the daughter was comfortable with 47C and stayed there more than any other place except Mountainside. The chronology of moves from one place to another knits together, as does the situation that sometimes, after March 2011 when joint physical custody took effect, E.B. was with her mom two nights each week and every other weekend, in Pompton Plains or Pequannock. The only witness who briefly discussed visitation was Administrator Atherton, who said she knew about the Court Order visitation.

In December 2010, there was no indication that appellant intended to make Mountainside a permanent move. The reason for appellant's move from 646 in December 2010, was not disclosed during testimony; however, it is not disputed that by January 27, 2011 he and E.B. would be forced to move from 646 because of the fire damage. It is not disputed that appellant and E.B. searched for an apartment in Jersey City and elsewhere after the move from 646. housing There was no indication that appellant intended to abandon the idea of residing permanently in Springfield as long as he had physical custody of his daughter. When appellant leased 47C he resided there with his daughter until she [E.B.] moved to Pequannock, New Jersey, permanently with her mother in January 2014. Appellant moved into his second wife's home in Bernardsville, New Jersey, on July 1, 2014.

In determining those periods of time that appellant and his daughter were residing in Springfield, consideration was given to Investigator Mickles's testimony that indicates his interview with agents at Short Hills Village, in Springfield, in 2013 revealed that appellant had not moved-out and has a lease agreement that has run-out. Consideration was given the Investigator's acknowledgment that he never interviewed appellant's ex-wife, never knew about visitation rights until one day when E.B.'s mother reported her daughter was sick, never determined who drove what vehicles because he did not have the resources to run plates and that his comments about dew or moisture were based on his own knowledge about vehicles.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE based on the weight of the evidence that:

- Appellant and E.B. resided in the Springfield School District, during the first half of the 2010/2011 school year, until December 1, 2010;

- Appellant and E.B. resided outside of the Springfield School District, from December 1, 2010 to the end of the 2010/2011 school year;

- Respondent permitted appellant and E.B. to reside outside of the Springfield School District during the 2011/2012 school year;

- Respondent approved appellant's request for an extension of the accommodation allowing residency outside of the Springfield School District beyond January 2012;

- On April 25, 2012, respondent provided appellant with notice that an internal residency investigation had been completed and a determination made that tuition is due because proof of his [appellant's] and E.B.'s domicile in the Springfield School District was lacking;

- On August 26, 2013, the members of the Springfield BOE ratified the determinations made on April 25, 2012 by passing resolutions authorizing the removal of appellant's daughter from the district school and assessing back tuition;

- Commencing April 25, 2012, respondent no longer authorized an accommodation for E.B. to reside outside the Springfield School District while attending school in the district;

- Appellant and E.B. lived outside the Springfield School District from April 25, 2012 to June 2013, the end of the 2012/2013 school year;

- Appellant and E.B. resided in the Springfield School District, during the first half of the 2013/2014 school year, while both mom and dad effectuated the Joint Custody Order and had overnight visits from E.B. two nights each week and every other weekend. E.B. visited her mom in Pequannock and stayed with her dad at 47C Forest Drive, Short Hills Village, in Springfield;

- Appellant and E.B. did not reside in the Springfield School District, during the second half of the 2013/2014 school year. Commencing January 14, 2014, E.B. resided full time with her mom in Pequannock and attended school in the Springfield School District;

- Tuition reimbursement is due from appellant to respondent for (1) December 1, 2010 to the end of the 2010/2011 school year; (2) April 25, 2012 to June 2013, the end of the 2012/2013 school year; (3) September 2013 to June 2014, the full duration of the 2013/2014 school year;

- Tuition reimbursement rates shall be at the annual tuition rate established for each Springfield district school attended by E.B. during the specified periods.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the determination of the Springfield BOE that E.B. was not domiciled in Springfield for all of the 2010/2011, 2011/2012, 2012/2013, and 2013/2014 school years and thus owes tuition reimbursement for all of those S.Y.'s, be MODIFIED as follows:

It is ORDERED that appellant reimburse respondent for the dates E.B. attended school in the Springfield School District and resided outside the school district without an accommodation and / or authorization from respondent;

It is ORDERED that appellant reimburse respondent for December 1, 2010 to the end of the 2010/2011 school year; April 25, 2012 to June 2013 the end of the 2012/2013 school year; and September 2013 to June 2014, the full duration of the 2013/2014 school year.

It is ORDERED that the Springfield BOE be entitled to tuition reimbursement from appellant, at the annual tuition rate established for each Springfield district school attended by E.B. during the periods specified above:

Sandmeier Elementary School	2010-2011	$13,877
James Caldwell School	2011-2012	$12,347
James Caldwell School	2012-2013	$12,284
James Caldwell School	2013-2014	$13,412

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER

In the matter of the Tenure Arbitration between:

The State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, New Jersey

and

Ronald Pearson
Agency Docket No. 249 - 9/15

The respondent, Ronald Pearson. a tenured teacher in the Paterson School District, had been charged with inefficiency and was suspended. The respondent denied that the charges made by the District were justified. Pursuant to N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.2, the matter was moved to arbitration and Stephen J. Rosen appointed to hear the dispute.

On November 6, 2015, a Pre-Hearing conference was held. The District was represented by Brenda C. Liss, Esq. of the law firm Riker Danzig. The respondent was represented by Sandford R. Oxfeld, Esq., of the law firm Oxfeld Cohen, P.C. Among other matters discussed the parties agreed to schedule hearings on December 4 and 22, 2015.

In a letter dated November 23, 2015, Mr. Oxfeld informed me that Mr. Pearson had retained the law firm Krumholz and Dillon and would be instituting action in Federal Court based upon claims of discrimination.

Mr. Oxfeld noted that N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.2 makes reference to the claim(s) Mr. Pearson would put forth in Federal Court. In consideration of this development, Attorney Oxfeld requested that the hearings be adjourned and held in abeyance pending outcome of the civil suit. Ms. Liss asked that the matter not be adjourned and be heard on the dates agreed to by the parties.

In response to the opposing requests, I decided that the hearings proceed as scheduled. The parties were reminded that specific time constraints are contained in N.J.S.A.18A:6-17.2 for the resolution of tenure charges for inefficiency. In addition, the statute allows the respondent an opportunity to submit allegation(s) of discriminatory motive(s) to the arbitrator that materially affected the outcome of evaluations. Given these considerations, I informed the parties that the hearing proceed as scheduled.

On December 2, 2015, Mr. Pearson informed Mr. Oxfeld that he decided to resign his position as teacher in the Paterson School District. On the same day, Ms. Liss conveyed that the District had accepted Mr. Pearson's resignation. Based upon Mr. Pearson's resignation the matter is deemed moot.

BACKGROUND

Respondent's motion to dismiss was originally granted by the undersigned on January 20, 2015 under Agency Docket No. 284-9/14 Subsequently, the District filed Amended Tenure Charges with the Commissioner, alleging inefficiency, deficient teaching performance and receiving negative summative evaluations.

On May 15, 2015, the District filed with the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, Docket No.: A-004115-14. As a result, I placed the above matter in abeyance pending a determination by the Court. However, on September 9, 2015, the Notice of Appeal to the Court was withdrawn by the District.

On November 10, 2015 I urged the parties to agree to a date for a hearing in the above amended tenure charges. However, the parties failed to respond to my offer of three consecutive dates for the first hearing. Both parties submitted written briefs without scheduling a hearing. Respondent's brief is in support of a Motion for Summary Judgment. The District submitted a letter brief in response to the Motion of Respondent.

A written response by the District on June 15, 2015, argued in relevant part that "Respondent is essentially contending that she should be given a free pass for poor performance based upon a distortion of the applicable law." The District also points out that previously, "...the underlying matter was dismissed on the basis of a defect in filing the charges under Section 25 and no final decision on the merits was reached." Additionally, the District argued in its brief "...that this matter should proceed to a hearing on the merits of these charges." However, both parties remained silent to my suggested hearing dates. Therefore, I have no alternative but to decide this matter on the basis of the received extensive written evidence submitted to me by Ms. Kathleen Duncan, Director of the Bureau of Controversies & Disputes and the briefs, submitted by both parties herein, which I considered.

POSITION OF RESPONDENT ON MOTION TO DISMISS

Ms. Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq. argued in relevant part that this is the second time the State Operated School District of the City of Newark New Jersey has brought tenure charges based o the same factual allegations against the Respondent in a "Statement of Evidence " signed by Monique Cumberbatch-Jenkins on August 27, 2014. Ms. Oxfeld pointed out that, in both charges, of Respondent Ratiba Ahmed (248-9/14) as well as (50-3/15) the "Amended" charge is essentially identical and the subsections, a-v, are identical with only immaterial minor differences.

In Point One of the Respondent's brief she argues that the herein Amended Tenure charges must also be dismissed, because Section 25 of the TEACHNJ Act is the exclusive means through which a District can bring charges of inefficiency. It pointed out that the legislature clearly meant to allow only one legislated method of pursuing tenure charges of inefficiency against a tenured teacher.

Ms. Oxfeld, also argued in relevant part on behalf of Respondent, that the instant motion to dismiss the amended charges of inefficiency herein against Ms. Ratiba Ahmed, who is a tenured elementary education teacher in the Newark public schools, are again premature and must be dismissed by the undersigned Arbitrator.

She again pointed out that." ...the arbitrator's area of review is statutorily limited." and shall only be considered whether or not:

(1) The employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including but not limited to providing a corrective action plan:

(2) There is a mistake of fact in the evaluation:

(3) The charges would not have been brought but for consideration of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by state or federal law, or other conduct prohibited by state or federal law: or

(4) The Districts actions were arbitrary and capricious. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2a.

The arbitrator's review is limited to the four factors above and the evaluator's determination as to the quality of an employee's classroom performance shall not be subject to an arbitrator's review. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2c.

Respondent further argued that the decisions by other arbitrators support the herein claim that the claimed amended tenure charges against Ratiba Ahmed are premature and must be dismissed. It "cannot be converted into something else." Ms. Oxfeld pointed out that each arbitrator deciding the tenure charges in the same School District of the city of Newark decided that the charges were premature and cannot begin until after the start of the 2014-2015 school year. Additionally, each arbitrator considered herein, also provided a make whole remedy.

As a result, the tenure charges against respondent Ratiba Ahmed should be dismissed for having been filed in violation of TEACHNJ.

DISCUSSION AND OPINION

Having recently decided essentially the same issue herein in my previous decision involving Ratiba Ahmed, respondent of the same District, I cannot ignore the argument herein of MS. Oxfeld, regarding the prior decisions of arbitrators with practically identical issues. She convincingly points out that, the results of the prior arbitrators with essentially identical issues in the same District, rises to a "collateral estoppel" or "res judicata".

I am reminded that the amended tenure issues before me herein of Ratiba Ahmed, is relatively identical to the previously decided case by me on January 20, 2015, as well as a number of prior decisions in the same District.

Courts "have also recognized that the doctrine of Res Judicata, submitted by M. Oxfeld, may apply to arbitrations with strict factual identities."

In considering the recent awards by the above distinguished panel members, I agree with Arbitrator Gregory where he correctly quotes that "....the precedential value of a prior award between the parties is to be determined by the subsequent arbitrator" (Elkouri and Elkouri, How Arbitration Works (6th Edition) (at 598.)

I have previously observed in the previous decision in Ratiba Ahmed Award (248-9/14) that, in a March 28, 2012 letter, from Chief Talent Officer Peter Shulman, he updated resources for 2012-13 school year, as a "planning and capacity-building year" and prepare for the implementation of the new system in the 2013-14 school year. He further advised that from January 2013 through August 2013, districts should test and refine implementation of the observation instruments and rubrics and prepare for full implementation in the 2013-14 school year."

I have previously decided that the tenure charges within the same District of Newark were premature and are therefore contrary to the TEACHNJ statute providing for a specific beginning in the school year2014 and having found that herein also the District prematurely invoked the new inefficiency evaluations prior to the legislated "beginning."

Respondent correctly argued that that the District herein, is not entitled to "a second bite at the apple"

Having thoroughly considered all the evidence and arguments submitted by both parties I, hereby grant the Motion to Dismiss the Amended Tenure Charges against teacher Ratiba Ahmed Of the State Operated School District of the City of Newark New Jersey, Essex County and I make the following Award.

This proceeding arises from tenure charges filed by the Jersey City Board of Education [the "Petitioner" or "District"] against Michelle Rhodes [the "Respondent" or "Rhodes"], a tenured elementary school teacher. The tenure charges were filed with the Board on January 21, 2015 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. On March 17, 2015, the Board determined that the charges were sufficient to warrant dismissal of the Respondent and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(4), filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education. The Respondent filed an Answer to the tenure charges on March 30, 2015 denying that all of the tenure charges constitute just cause for her termination and that all of the charges be dismissed. Pursuant to P.L. 2012, c. 26, I was appointed by the Department of Education to hear and decide the tenure charges on April 10, 2015.

Formal arbitration hearings were held on May 21, June 2, June 3 and June 16, 2015. At the hearings, each party argued orally, presented and cross-examined witnesses and submitted extensive documentary evidence into the record. The Board's witnesses included Principal Sandra Jones, Principal Shante Jones, Assistant Principal Martha Osei-Yaw, Assistant Principal Paulette Bailey, Teacher April Nelson, Principal Clerk Cindy Makwinski, Security Guard Angela Hudson, Assistant Principal Francine Luce, and RAC Coordinator Catherine Coyle. The Respondent's witnesses included Lisa Fantacone, JCEA

Member and Senior Building Director in P.S. #34 and Michelle Rhodes, Respondent. Each party filed post-hearing briefs on or about July 10, 2015.

BACKGROUND

Respondent Michelle Rhodes was initially employed by the Jersey City Board of Education in December 2000. She became a full-time teacher in September of 2001 and was then employed as an elementary school teacher at P.S. #38 for eight years. Her last position was a sixth grade teacher at P.S. #34.

The tenure charges are extensive in nature and segregated into eleven (11) separate charges. They include: unbecoming conduct, insubordination, and/or other just cause for dismissal related to failure to follow, and/or acting in defiance of, administrative directives and policies (21 counts); to unprofessional conduct and disrespect towards parents and students (10 counts); to altercations with co-workers and other staff (4 counts); to refusing to cooperate with and/or obstructing administrators in the performance of their duties (3 counts), to failure to follow proper protocol (6 counts); to failure to deliver instruction (4 counts); to misuse of time (3 counts); to misrepresentation to administrators (3 counts); for chronic/excessive absenteeism (11 counts); for chronic tardiness (8 counts) and for engaging in a pattern of unbecoming conduct over an extended period of time. In Respondent's testimony, she has agreed with a limited number of the Counts, had no recollection of others and denied engaging in the conduct complained of regarding those Charges and Counts that appear to form the main basis for the tenure charges. She also denies being noticed or presented at any time with certain evidence that the Petitioner has offered in support of some of the charges presented during these tenure proceedings.

The charges encompass a wide spectrum of time beginning with events and incidents that occurred in 2004. The Respondent's increment had been withheld at the end of the 2005-2006 and 2006-2007 school years for school years 2006-2007 and 2007-2008 respectively for Conduct Unbecoming and Performance/Conduct Unbecoming. The Respondent objects to any weight given to evidence offered by the Board in this proceeding that relate to events that occurred prior to the 2007-2008 school year. She asserts that the Board, in this proceeding, is attempting to impose double punishment for the same events that it considered during the time that the aforementioned increments were withheld. Based upon this, Respondent seeks that Charge I Counts 1-10, Charge II Counts 1-10, Charge III Counts 1-2, Charge IV Count 1, Charge V Counts 1-3, Charge VI Counts 1-4, Charge VII Counts 1-3, Charge VIII Counts 1-3 and Charge XI all be dismissed. In response, Petitioner rejects the Respondent's claim that conduct prior to the increment withholdings constitutes "double jeopardy" based upon evidence that it contends reflects that the Respondent has engaged in misconduct of a worsening nature since the increment withholdings.

Initially, I address the parties' arguments concerning scope of the analysis of the time periods that are relevant for consideration of the events set forth in the tenure charges. Petitioner and Respondent offer citations to prior cases that pertain to the admissibility or weight to be given to evidence of prior disciplinary action in connection with whether such prior evidence can be considered to support a new disciplinary action.[1] Respondent contends that evidence of prior conduct in connection with the withholding of her increment for the 2006-2007 school year for "Conduct Unbecoming" and for the 2007-2008 school year for "Performance/Conduct Unbecoming" is either inadmissible or must be given no weight towards the Board's attempt to remove Respondent's tenure rights. After review of all of the arguments of the parties concerning this evidentiary dispute, I reach the following conclusions.

I agree with Respondent that she cannot be disciplined anew solely for performance or misconduct that occurred prior to July 1, 2007. Disciplinary action in connection with those events formed the basis for two consecutive increment withholdings. Respondent has been already disciplined for these events. Moreover, disciplinary action for any other events that were not considered at the time that the prior increment withholdings occurred cannot now be raised solely for the purpose of imposing new disciplinary charges for those events. However, the prior increment withholdings are relevant in considering the level of discipline to be imposed in the event that the Petitioner establishes that further disciplinary action is warranted for conduct that occurred after the increments were withheld. Put another way, the increment withholdings, especially as they relate to performance and/or misconduct, may be considered as having served notice on Respondent that conduct of a similar nature thereafter may serve as a basis for determining whether cause exists for a level of discipline beyond that which had been previously imposed.

In Charge III, the Petitioner alleges that Respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct, insubordination and/or other just cause for dismissal related to altercations with co-workers and other staff. In Count 4, the Petitioner alleges that on or about October 17, 2014, during an emergency evacuation drill, and while in the presence of students, Respondent engaged in an altercation with Angela Hudson, a Security Guard at PS #20, telling her, "The next time I see you on Jackson Avenue I'm going to fuck your ass up bitch." Ms. Hudson filed an Incident Report on that day and also reported the incident to her principal and Respondent's principal. A few days later, Ms. Hudson filed a complaint in Jersey City Municipal Court against Respondent alleging harassment. Thereafter, Respondent filed a similar complaint against Ms. Hudson. This resulted in a court supervised Mediation Agreement stating "No contact. Effective at once, no physical, no phone, no text, no email, no social network. No physical or communication whatsoever." These terms applied to both individuals.

Petitioner's case on this allegation rests mainly on the testimony of Angela Hudson, a Security Guard at PS #20.[2] Ms. Hudson has been a Security Guard for 18 years. According to Ms. Hudson, an emergency evacuation drill was being conducted on October 17, 2014 at PS #34. Its students, including those of Respondent, were transported on foot towards PS #20. According to Ms. Hudson, this type of drill is routinely conducted during the first two months of school and included all staff and students. She testified that while she was outside she observed Respondent with her students and Respondent said to her "The next time I see you on Jackson Avenue I'm going to fuck your ass up bitch." Ms. Hudson said she felt threatened by the remark. Ms. Hudson then promptly reported the incident to her Assistant Principal at PS #20 and to Ms. Shante Jones, the Principal of PS #34. Ms. Hudson wrote a Security Department Incident Report on October 17, 2014 stating:

> At the above date and time P.S. #34 came to P.S. 20 for an evacuation walk, as the school filed out the court yard, the teacher by the name Ms. Michelle Rhodes walk pass me and said "The next time I see you on Jackson Ave. I'm going to fuck your ass up, bitch." I told her Principal Ms. Jones and my Asst. Principal Mrs. Dortrait.

Ms. Hudson testified that she filed the Incident Report in order to authenticate what she believed had occurred.

[2] Petitioner also cites testimony and documents from others in connection with events occurring after Ms. Hudson reported the incident to Principal Shante Jones.

In further support of Charge III, Count 4, Ms. Hudson also testified to prior incidents involving Respondent that she deemed inappropriate or threatening. According to Ms. Hudson, an incident occurred during the third week of August 2014 in a neighborhood store located on Jackson Avenue. While in the store, Ms. Hudson said she spoke to an unknown individual. At the time, she did not know that the person was a friend of Respondent nor that Respondent was in the store. According to Ms. Hudson, after she spoke to the person, Respondent turned around and said to her friend "every time she is in uniform, she thinks she is hot shit." Ms. Hudson said she responded, "are you speaking to me because I wasn't talking to you." Ms. Hudson also referred to another incident that occurred at PS #34 during the 2012-2013 school year. She testified that she went to PS #34 to pick up her son and her grandson who was a pupil there. According to Ms. Hudson, she came upon the Respondent and heard her tell her friend behind her back that Ms. Hudson was a "bitch".

In response to all of Ms. Hudson's testimony, Respondent denied that she ever said anything inappropriate or threatening to her. She acknowledged that PS #34 was conducting an evaluation drill on October 17, 2014 and that she was in the courtyard walking with her class. Respondent denied making the comment alleged by Ms. Hudson. She said that she was with her class and saw Ms. Hudson but that she was never next to her and that she had no conversation with her whatsoever. She testified that she felt harassed when she received Ms. Hudson's complaint filed in Municipal Court and that she then filed a counter claim. Although Respondent acknowledged that she had previously seen Ms. Hudson in or around the store located on Jackson Avenue, she rebutted Ms. Hudson's testimony by denying that she said anything improper to Ms. Hudson in or around the neighborhood store on Jackson Avenue. Respondent testified that she was tutoring a student next to the store and while walking a parent to the car, she observed Ms. Hudson looking her up and down and rolling her eyes at her.

I conclude that the Petitioner has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence that Count 4 of Charge III occurred as alleged and that this altercation constituted unbecoming conduct. Ms. Hudson's testimony as to the incident was straightforward, consistent and credible. She was composed during direct and cross-examination and had a clear and vivid recollection of the events. She wrote an incident report immediately after the alleged incident occurred and reported it to the Principal of her school (PS #20) and the Principal of Respondent's school (PS #34). These reports prompted administrative investigations. She also promptly filed a complaint in Municipal Court. Her actions after the incident are consistent with the concern she had over Respondent's remark. I find no significance in a minor inconsistency between Principal Jones' written statement that Ms. Hudson told her that the remark was whispered to her compared to Ms. Hudson's testimony that the remark was louder than a whisper.

Respondent's denials have been carefully reviewed and evaluated including her testimony that she never spoke to Ms. Hudson that morning. A credibility determination is required over whether anything was said, and if so, what was said. Respondent's version of denial can only be credited if a determination can be made that Ms. Hudson made up the incident in its entirety due to her testimony that she never saw or spoke to Ms. Hudson. The record, however, does not support a finding that Ms. Hudson either invented the incident or lied about the events that occurred or did not occur. Ms. Hudson's testimony as to a prior separate incident on Jackson Avenue placed the October 17, 2014 incident in a context that confirmed that there had been a prior event between the two on Jackson Avenue a month or so prior and that it was Respondent that had shown hostility toward her. It also reflects that Respondent had negative feelings about Ms. Hudson relating to her position as a uniformed security officer and the manner in which Ms. Hudson conducted herself in that capacity. While the prior incident on Jackson Avenue in and of itself was not significant, its context in relation to the alleged threat made during the evacuation drill is significant as serving as support for Ms. Hudson's testimony that Respondent made a threat about what she would do if she saw Ms. Hudson in the future on Jackson Avenue. The 2012-2013 incident at PS #34 is also entitled to supporting weight for similar reasons. Moreover, the record contains no evidence reflecting that Ms. Hudson had any hostility whatsoever towards Respondent or did anything to provoke Respondent into making a threat.

The incident involved two co-workers on school property. While there is no evidence that students heard anything relating to this event, the lack of such evidence is not relevant to whether the remark was made. Any reasonable person would regard a remark such as the one made by the Respondent to a co-worker as evidence of intent, at minimum, to frighten and cause distress and one that reasonably could be construed as constituting a threat to cause physical harm in the future. Based on all of the above, I conclude that Petitioner has sustained Charge III, Count 4. I defer an analysis of disciplinary action until review of additional charges.

The events set forth in Charge III, Count 4 are related to and lay a context to review Charge IV, Counts 2 and 3, Charge I, Count 15 and Charge 1, Count 16 based on the Petitioner's view of events that ensued after Principal Jones began to investigate Ms. Hudson's complaint. In Charge IV, Count 2, the Petitioner alleges that:

> Respondent refused to cooperate and defiantly obstructed Principal Shante Jones in the performance of her duties when, in response to Principal Jones' investigation of Angela Hudson's complaint of even date that Respondent had threatened Ms. Hudson, Respondent "pulled her cell phone from out of the inside of her blouse and yelled out, 'I am now recording you because this is a litigation!'" Respondent then held her cell phone toward the Principal's face, shining a light at her.

In Charge III, Count 3, the Petitioner alleges that:

> On or about October 17, 2014, Respondent refused to cooperate and defiantly obstructed Principal Shante Jones in the performance > of her duties when, in response to Principal Jones' instruction that Respondent wait in the main office while she investigated Angela Hudson's complaint that Respondent had threatened Ms. Hudson, Respondent declared the Principal was "taking too long," and left the office.

In Charge I, Count 15, the Petitioner alleges that:

> On October 17, 2014, Respondent declared the Principal was "taking too long" and left the main office, in defiance of the Principal's directive that Respondent wait there while the Principal investigated the complaint of another employee, Angela Hudson, that Respondent had threatened Ms. Hudson by stating, "The next time I see you on Jackson Avenue I'm going to fuck your ass up bitch."

In Charge I, Count 16, the Petitioner alleges that:

> On October 17, 2014, Respondent failed to follow the Principal's directives to report to the main office, and to sign out of the main office before leaving the building.

The separate charges above flow from the aftermath of Ms. Hudson's reporting to Principal Jones what Respondent said to her during the evacuation drill. After Ms. Hudson reported the incident to Principal Jones, Principal Jones wrote a lengthy same day incident report of her own describing what Ms. Hudson told her about the incident and the steps she took thereafter to investigate. Her description of the incident, in her report and in her testimony, parallels Ms. Hudson's report and testimony with the exception of stating in her report that Respondent's remark to Ms. Hudson came in a whisper as opposed to Ms. Hudson's testimony that it was louder than a whisper. In addition to describing the incident, Principal Jones testified that she spoke to Respondent on October 17, 2014 and after telling her that both administrators at each school would create their own incident report, Respondent pulled a cell phone out from inside her blouse and yelled that "I am now recording you because this is a litigation." Respondent said she did so because she was unable to bring an Association Representative with her to the meeting. Principal Jones testified that she told Respondent to put her cell phone away but Respondent continued to record. Principal Jones also stated in her report that Respondent held her cell phone up to her face with the light shining towards her. This incident regarding the cell phone was included separately in Petitioner's tenure charges at Charge IV, Count 2.

The testimony of Principal Jones was corroborated by Principal Clerk Ms. Makwinski. Ms. Makwinski testified to observing the statement and actions of Respondent as testified to by Principal Jones. Ms. Jones said that she told Respondent to put the cell phone away and asked her to wait in the main office while she checked with Dr. Michael Wings, Director of Division A, to see if it was appropriate to question Respondent's students pursuant to Respondent's request that she do so. After attempting to reach Dr. Wings, Principal Jones said that Respondent informed Ms. Makwinski that Principal Jones was taking too long and then went back to her classroom before Principal Jones could respond to Respondent's request. Principal Jones said that she attempted to reach Respondent to come back to the office but Respondent instead went to a different floor to confer with an Association Representative. After checking Respondent's schedule, Principal Jones learned that it was Respondent's preparation period at the time.

In respect to the meeting with Principal Jones, Respondent acknowledged that she did use her cell phone as alleged because she wanted to have a video and audio recording of the meeting out of a fear that she would be improperly disciplined. She said she continued to use the cell phone to record for this reason. She also acknowledged saying that she did so "for litigation." She denied shining a light in Principal Jones' eyes and said she raised her hand holding the phone only for the purpose of recording the events. She said that her phone does not light up when recording and she demonstrated this at the arbitration hearing. She acknowledged that she may have been speaking in a louder tone than normal but that is her manner of speaking when she is on a video recording. She said she also felt frustrated because she felt she was being accused of saying something that she did not say.

There is no dispute that Respondent produced a cell phone for the purpose of having a video/audio recording of the interview with Principal Jones. Charge IV, Count 2 alleges that Respondent pulled the phone out of her blouse and yelled that "I am recording this because this is a litigation." This Count, even if true, does not establish an independent basis for discipline. There is little significance to where Respondent housed her cell phone. I also cannot find, on this record, that Respondent held the cell phone towards Principal Jones' face while shining a light at her face. It should be noted that the Count implies that the light was for the purpose of intimidation. However, this suggestion does not contemplate that the cell phone could appear lit due to the normal video recording process. Even if there was a light, the distance between Principal Jones and Respondent, as testified to by Principal Jones and Ms. Makwinski, was such that the light could not have been for the purpose of intimidation or obstruction of the interview. The testimony does show that Respondent was in an agitated state as a reaction to Ms. Hudson's allegations against her and was somewhat defensive and confrontational. I attribute her raised voice to her hostility for the purpose of the interview rather than a raised tone that she said she would normally use when being recorded. Beyond this, Respondent's conduct during the interview has not been proven to have been obstructive or insubordinate. The Petitioner has not produced a policy or rule prohibiting the open recording of an interview nor was there testimony from Principal Jones that Respondent was directed to cease recording and that she refused to obey such direction. Further, Petitioner's allegation that Respondent's remark concerning her use of the cell phone was for the purpose of litigation has not been shown to be based upon a refusal to cooperate or to defiantly obstruct the investigation. Principal Jones testified that Respondent said "because this is a litigation" while Respondent acknowledged that she said it was "for litigation." I give the Respondent the benefit of doubt as to what was said and to her intent. Regardless of the version accepted, the remark was linked to Respondent's obvious intention to have a recording of the interview which, under the circumstances in this case, has not been proven to violate any rule or policy, nor is there any evidence that Respondent was directed to refrain from recording the interview with disciplinary consequences for any such refusal. Accordingly, Charge IV, Count 2 is dismissed.

Charge I, Count 15 and Charge III, Count 3 both allege that Respondent was defiant, uncooperative and obstructive when she left the main office while Principal Jones was investigating Ms. Hudson's complaint. Respondent was alleged to have ignored a directive from Principal Jones to remain in the office and to have said to Ms. Matwinski that Principal Jones was "taking too long" to investigate the conduct prior to leaving the office.

This incident arose in the context of Principal Jones' checking with Dr. Wing as to whether she had the authority to question students as to whether they may have heard Respondent make a threatening statement towards Ms. Hudson. The testimony of Principal Jones reflects that she "asked" Respondent to remain in the office until she could contact Dr. Wing. The record does not reflect that Respondent received a directive to remain in the office within the common meaning of the term. Had this been the case, Respondent's departure from the room would clearly have been insubordinate. When Principal Jones returned to provide the results of her conversation with Dr. Wing, she was easily able to locate Respondent. Respondent left the office during a time that she had a preparation period. There is no indication her departure from the office was for the purpose of terminating Principal Jones' investigation of Ms. Hudson's complaint or that Respondent thereafter refused to engage in any conversation that Principal Jones wished to have with her over the incident. Respondent's actions did give rise to suspicions of non-cooperation and reasonably could have been viewed as being uncooperative but there is no evidence that Respondent was insubordinate or obstructive. When this Count is reviewed as a whole, I do not find that it has been sustained and it therefore will be dismissed.

Charge I, Count 16 alleges that "on or about October 17, 2014, after the incident, Respondent failed to follow the Principal's directives to report to the main office and to sign out of the main office before leaving the building." At the time of this event, Principal Jones had been informed by the Board's General Counsel that Respondent should be sent home without any time being deducted from her attendance. Principal Jones contacted Respondent to tell her that she could sign out for the remainder of the day. The record reflects that Respondent left the building but did not sign out. Principal Jones testified that she had told Respondent that she needed to speak with her in the main office before leaving but Respondent did not appear. Petitioner contends that Respondent's actions support its charge that she failed to follow and acted in defiance of administrative directives and policies. The record developed on this point is insufficient to establish a refusal to follow a directive. There is no testimony as to what the purpose of the meeting would have been on the sign out issue. It is simply not clear that Respondent was directed to report to the office prior to leaving the school. Ms. Makwinski testified concerning the existence of a Staff Daily Signed-Out/In Book. This provides that a staff member sign out and in and provide a reason for leaving the building on a PS #34 form. Respondent's name did not appear on the PS #34 form for October 17, 2014. Ms. Makwinski acknowledged that the book is not always signed despite teachers being required to. She was not aware that anyone had ever been disciplined for failure to sign out. Under the circumstances present on October 17, 2014, I do not find that the Petitioner has established that Respondent's failure to sign out was either an act of defiance or a deliberate failure to follow Board policy. The Petitioner was aware that Respondent would be leaving the school, had directed her to do so and was aware that she would no longer be present. Given all of the above, I conclude that the Petitioner has not sustained this Count and it will be dismissed.

In Charge III, Count 3, the District alleges that:

> On or about May 13, 2014, Respondent engaged in a threatening and confrontational altercation with April Nelson, a teacher, when, as Ms. Nelson entered the building in the morning, Respondent "paused in front of Ms. Nelson and whispered something in her face," whereupon Ms. Nelson replied, "What did you say?" to which Respondent stated, in a threatening manner, "Come upstairs and I will tell you."

Testimony concerning this incident was offered by Ms. April Nelson, a Mission Read teacher at PS #34. Ms. Nelson testified that after entering the building at 7:30 a.m., she observed Respondent at an exit door on her left. Respondent then changed direction and passed in front of her towards another exit door while mumbling something to her. Ms. Nelson asked Respondent what she said and Respondent said "come upstairs and I'll tell you." Ms. Nelson regarded this as a threat. She responded "get out of my face" to the Respondent, walked away and went to Principal Shante Jones who wrote a report of the incident. Ms. Nelson testified that Security Guard Annie Dickson observed and heard the incident and told her that she heard Respondent tell Ms. Nelson to "come upstairs" in a low tone of voice and then Dickson rolled her eyes. Ms. Nelson filed a harassment complaint against Respondent with the Board. Respondent then filed a complaint against Ms. Nelson in Municipal Court. Ms. Nelson testified that a mediation session resolved the issues and each agreed to be civil to each other and there have been no problems ever since.

Respondent denied making a threatening remark to Ms. Nelson. She said that she felt harassed by Ms. Nelson causing her to file the complaint against Ms. Nelson in Municipal Court. According to Respondent, she admitted turning around and walking in front of Ms. Nelson but said the reason she did so was that she was texting her husband and said "excuse me" to Ms. Nelson prior to Ms. Nelson offering a nasty response. According to Respondent, her comment to Ms. Nelson was misinterpreted. She testified that she said that they could go up to her classroom if Ms. Nelson wanted to continue the discussion. Principal Shante Jones testified that Ms. Dickson wrote a report of the incident but that she could not find the report. Ms. Dickson did not testify. Principal Jones' report indicates that a Teacher's Aide, Frances McClean was asked to write a report and wrote" no comment" but verbalized that "I was not listening to their conversation and everyone needs to grow up around here and act like adults."

There is no dispute that Respondent uttered the words "come upstairs" to Ms. Nelson, although Respondent asserts that it had a different connotation and purpose than what Ms. Nelson believed. Credibility determinations are required over what occurred and was said. I find Respondent's explanation that she inadvertently crossed over into Ms. Nelson's path to be implausible. It suggests that her path away from one exit door in front of Ms. Nelson would have occurred even if Ms. Nelson was not present. If the incident occurred as testified to by Respondent, it is unlikely that when Ms. Nelson asked Respondent what she had said to her that Respondent's answer would have been to "come upstairs." There is simply no logic nor any rationale at that point in time for Respondent, consistent with her testimony, to invite Ms. Nelson to come upstairs to meet her in her classroom in order to continue a dialogue when there was no evidence that an issue existed that would have formed a basis for a continued dialogue. I have considered Respondent's argument that no disciplinary action occurred at the time of the incident. I do not find this contention persuasive or a waiver of Petitioner's right to raise this incident in the tenure charges in light of credible record evidence that other events occurred that establish that Respondent has engaged in other conduct that is confrontational in nature. Accordingly, I conclude that the record evidence on this charge supports the sustaining of Charge III, Count 3.

In addition to the above performance and conduct related charges, the District has alleged that the Respondent has engaged in chronic/excessive absenteeism (Charge IX) and chronic tardiness (Charge X). It submits evidence of such absenteeism and tardiness for the last five years (July 1, 2010 through December 8, 2014) and for years prior. During July 1, 2009 through June 30, 2010, Respondent was absent 11 days, including 9 absences due to personal illness. During the same time period, Respondent was tardy 12 times. During July 1, 2010 through June 30, 2011, Respondent was absent 17.25 days, including 13.25 absences due to personal illness. During that same time period, Respondent was tardy 6 times. During July 1, 2011 through June 30, 2012, Respondent was absent 15.75 days, including 12.75 absences due to personal illness. During July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2014, Respondent was absent 10 days due to personal illness. During July 1, 2013 through June 30, 2014, Respondent was absent on 55 days, including 50.5 absences due to personal illness. During that same time period, Respondent was tardy 7 times. During July 1, 2014 through December 8, 2014, Respondent was absent on 13 days, including 9 absences due to personal illness. During the same time period, Respondent was tardy 2 times.

In respect to the issues of absenteeism and tardiness, the Board submits the following arguments in support of Charge IX and Charge X.

Chronic or excessive absenteeism may warrant removal even when the absences have been excused or caused by legitimate medical reasons such as long-term poor health, or work related injuries. See State-Operated School District of Jersey City v. Pellechio, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDUCATION) 267 (1992). This may be the case even when legitimate reasons, such as long-term health issues, caused the absences. Id. Also see, State-Operated School District of Newark v. Gillespie, 2011 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 226 (OAL 2011), modified Cmm'r (August 3, 2011), aff'd App. Div. (May 17, 2011) (stating "[c]learly, the mere fact that the absences were excused does not obviate the possibility that the teacher may be dismissed for excessive absenteeism"); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Randi True, Willingboro Board of Education, 2011 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 839 (ALJ 2011), aff'd Comm'r (August 15, 2011).

Randi True, like the Respondent herein, was granted multiple leaves of absence for extended periods of time. Yet, both an Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner sustained tenure charges for chronic absenteeism, among other infractions. The ALJ in True specifically cited In Re Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, 414 to support a determination that chronic absenteeism must not be tolerated even when leaves of absence are granted:

> The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who do not have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling. . . . The entire process of education requires a regular continuity of instruction with a teacher directing the classroom activities and learning experiences in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefit for each individual pupil. The regular contact of the pupils with their assigned teacher is vital to this process.

Legal precedent clearly establishes that "[E]ven if a teacher's performance in the classroom is sufficient . . . the absences may nevertheless be considered as material to the issue and can justify removal of the teacher." Tenure Hearing of Jeanne Cook, Old Bridge Board of Education, 2005 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 48, *14 (ALJ 2005), rev'd on other grounds, Comm'r, 2005 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 812 (June 9, 2005); citing Trautwein v. Bd. of Educ. of Bound Brook, 1980 S.L.D. 1539, cert. denied, 84 N.J. 469 (1980).

In the instant case, Respondent was absent from her post on over two hundred (200) occasions, primarily due to personal illness. (FF 55-65, P-50-60.) As established in Pellechio, supra, the fact that Respondent may have had legitimate medical excuse is completely immaterial to this analysis. Respondent's poor attendance has had a deleterious effect on the continuity of instruction, as the Board is then compelled to hire substitutes. (As indicated in the testimony of Principal Shante Jones, who declared that absenteeism interrupts the continuity of instruction for students.) For example, in the 2005-2006 school year, Respondent was absent for 34% of the school operating days. Yet again in the 2013-2014 school year, Respondent was absent for 31% of the school operating days. In five other school years (2009-2010; 2010-2011; 2011-2012; 2012-2013 and 2014-2015), Respondent either met or exceeded the annual contractual allotment of thirteen 13 sick days.

Excessive tardiness "may constitute both 'unbecoming conduct' and 'incapacity' such as to amount to 'just cause' warranting the suspension or termination of the teacher." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Randi True, 2011 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 354, *56-*57 (June 29, 2011), adopted, Comm'r, 2011 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 839 (August 15, 2011); citing In re Kacprowicz, 93 N.J.A.R.2d 147, 151 (January 21, 1993). In True, the administrative law judge (AU) wrote that whether "absenteeism and tardiness are judged to be excessive fall within the reasonable judgment and discretion of the local school district."

When prosecuting tenure charges for both absenteeism and tardiness, a board of education must establish:

(1) that it considered both the number of days and the particular circumstances of the absences [and/or tardiness]; and
(2) the impact that the absences [and/or tardiness] had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred; and
(3) that the teacher received some warning that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the teacher's absences [and/or tardiness].

See Tenure Hearing of Sonia Velez, 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 242, * 17 (ALJ 2006), adopted, Comm'r, 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 654 (April 27, 2006). In the instant matter, the Board has easily met all three prongs of this test:

The Board considered the circumstances of Respondent's absenteeism and tardiness, by issuing to Respondent Summative

Evaluations on May 21, 2010; June 7, 2011; and June 4, 2012 in which she was cited as "needing improvement in the areas of attendance and punctuality." (P47--P-49). Had the Board simply acted on the raw number of absences and tardies, Respondent may have been subject to discipline at the time. However, the Board considered the totality of circumstances in its decision to continue employment with increment. Also, the Board granted extensive medical leaves on multiple occasions, to allow Respondent to resolve medical issues. (P-51, P-59). But as noted in Pellechio, supra, the legitimate medical concerns do not mitigate against chronic absenteeism from the classroom. Despite ameliorative measures by the Board (continued reemployment with increment, granting of extended leaves) Respondent's poor attendance and tardiness has continued all the way through to the most recent school year, 20 142015. (P-58-60.)

The Board considered the impact of the Respondent's absenteeism and tardiness, which force the Board to incur a significant daily cost for substitute teachers, in addition to the Respondent's salary and benefits. Moreover, Respondent's frequent absences prevent the satisfactory performance of the duties of her position. Board Policy 4151 - Attendance Patterns (P-65) clearly states that the "[R]egular presence of assigned personnel is vital to the success of the district's educational program. Consistent absenteeism or tardiness is unacceptable and subject to disciplinary action."

In Tenure Hearing of Randi True, supra, the ALJ noted that the petitioning board need not point to specific instances or examples supporting its contention; rather, it need only demonstrate the likely result of the absences." See also, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alicia Dugan, 2012 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 249 (May 7, 2012), adopted in part, modified in part, Comm'r, 2012 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 664 (June 14, 2012), where the mere fact of a teacher's absence for 197 days over a six year period was sufficient to infer a negative impact on students.

As noted above, Respondent has been warned about her persistent and unacceptable pattern of absenteeism and tardiness, in three Summative Evaluations, (P-47—F-49), yet the problem has continued unabated. Moreover, all teaching staff members are subject to Board Policy 4151 – Attendance Patterns, supra. The evidence proffered by the Board shows that sufficient warnings were given to the Respondent.

During the hearing on this matter, the Board presented uncontroverted testimony from Principal Shante Jones that when > teachers are excessively absent, children do not receive instruction. Moreover, Jones noted during testimony that Respondent's chronic absenteeism made her unavailable for proper and thorough observation/evaluation.

> Accordingly, the Board has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that Rhodes engaged in numerous acts of insubordination and conduct unbecoming relating to failure to provide instruction. Therefore, dismissal from her position is warranted.

Respondent offers extensive argument contending that the Petitioner's charge of excessive absenteeism and tardiness must fail given its view that the Petitioner has not sustained its burden to prove that the absentee record was either excessive or had negative impact on the educational process. Respondent further notes that there was medical evidence to support approved leaves of absence. She submits that:

> In order for a Board of Education to terminate a tenured teacher for excessive absenteeism, it must demonstrate that it considered the number of days and the particular circumstances of the absences, the impact the absences had on the continuity of instruction and that the teacher received some warning. In re the Tenure Hearing of White, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 157. The nature of the warnings and the corrective actions taken are relevant in determining proper discipline. Passaic Bd. of Ed. v. Viani, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 76. Further, with regard to the claims of tardiness for years 2004-2005 through 2007-2008, the Board withheld Rhodes' increment twice for reasons that included absenteeism/tardiness and, as stated supra., cannot and should not be disciplined twice for the same offense.
> The Board inclusion of excessive absenteeism is absurd. First, every witness to this count acknowledged that there were only two school years in which Rhodes was absent in excess of the thirteen contractual days. The first one was during the 2005-2006 when she was on medical leave for her pregnancy and subsequent maternity leave. Eight years later she took two medical leaves of absence during the same school year, 2013-2014. These two years hardly exemplify / excessive absenteeism.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Gregory Short, District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, Agency Docket No. 263-9/14, Arbitrator DeTreux found that while the Board established chronic absenteeism it was not sufficient to warrant termination. He noted that as per White, the Board had given warnings. Because the Board provided testimony regarding the issues that occurred when Short was absent, the arbitrator found that it proved adverse impact. The arbitrator then looked at the circumstances of the absences: work related injury illness of new born. Ultimately, the arbitrator found that as Short was an "average to above average teacher" with positive evaluations, he found that an increment withholding was appropriate. (See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Leslie Ann Ramos, District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, Agency Docket No. 261-9/14 (despite almost 500 days absent over seven years, arbitrator returns teacher to the classroom with a suspension and an increment withholding due to her change in medical condition as well as testimony that she was a good teacher.)

As important as the failure to prove that the sheer number of days were excessive, the Board completely ignored the requirement that it prove the adverse impact that her absences had on the education process. Not a single Board witness testified as to the impact, either good or bad, that Rhodes' absences had on the educational process. On this point alone the charges related to excessive absenteeism must be dismissed. Surely, if the Board had any evidence that Ms. Rhodes' absence led to any educational issues (in fact Shonte Jones testified that she had no documentation of parental complaints) it would have so offered it. By failing to do so, this Arbitrator must accept that there is no such evidence, and Charge IX must be dismissed.

Similarly, Charge X must be dismissed as well. Tardiness issues are handled similarly as chronic absenteeism. In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Vice Principal Lawrence F. Hawkins by the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Agency Docket No, 24310/13, Arbitrator Laskin found that the Board was unable to prove excessive tardiness. She noted that In re Tenure Hearing of True, EDU 812-10, was determinative. In order to demonstrate tardies are excessive, the Board must prove:

> "(1) that it considered both the number of days and the particular circumstances of the absences; (2) the impact the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred; and (3) that the teacher received some > warning that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the [employee's] absences [or tardies]."

> Because the Board could not prove that Hawkins' tardiness affected the continuity of instruction, the claim failed.

The Respondent's record of absenteeism and tardiness commencing with the 2009-2010 school year was clearly a concern to the Board. Consistent levels of absenteeism, even if within contractual limits, can yield recommendations for improvement. However, prior to the 2013-2014 school year, I do not find the record on absenteeism and tardiness to form the basis for discipline or to support tenure charges. However, the record shows that the Respondent clearly had an excessive amount of absenteeism during the 2013-2014 school year. The sheer number of absences, 50.5 days, even if supported by medical documentation, does not render Respondent immune from disciplinary action. She was not in her classroom for almost one-third of the school year. The Petitioner need not establish the level of negative impact asserted by Respondent to be the required standard for disciplinary action. Even so, Petitioner has established through the testimony of Principal Shante Jones, that Respondent's absences caused interference with the proper evaluation of her performance, the ability of the Board to have Respondent's students graded in timely fashion as well as having to bear the substantial cost of teacher replacement. Although the number of absences and tardiness do not, standing alone, provide a basis for termination under the circumstances present, they are sufficient in number to support some level of disciplinary action for failure to achieve a minimum performance level over the entire 2013-2014 school year, including the withholding of an increment.

In further support of the tenure charges, the Petitioner cites to nine (9) instances of reprimand issued to Respondent between January 6, 2011 and December 10, 2014.[3] One involves bulletin boards and is dated January 6, 2011 (Charge I, Count 11). This was issued by Francine Luce, Principal of PS# 34. Another involves a late call in to report an absence and is dated September 16, 2011. (Charge V, Count 4). This was also issued by Francine Luce. Another involves late lesson plans and is dated February 11, 2012. (Charge I, Count 12). This was also issued by Francine Luce. Another involves a late reporting time and failure to sign in dated October 23, 2012. (Charge V, Count 5). This was also issued by Francine Luce. Another involves failure to timely complete several documents for administrative review dated November 13, 2014. (Charge I, Count 17). This was issued by Shante Jones and Assistant Principal Paulette Bailey. Another involves failure to timely complete several documents for administrative review dated December 1, 2014. (Charge I, Count 18). This was issued by Shante Jones. Another involves failure to comply with a PLC Committee Directive also dated December 1, 2014. (Charge I, Count 19). This was issued by Shante Jones and Assistant Principal Paulette Bailey. Another involves failure to submit documents and disrespectful conduct dated December 10, 2014. (Charge I, Counts 20 and 21). This was issued by Principal Shante Jones. Testimony in support of these charges was offered by Principal Luce, [3] There are also several instances of reprimand dating back to 2004 and 2005 issued by Respondent's then Principal Sandra Jones. Because of their remoteness to the filing of the tenure charges and the fact that they predate the two increment withholdings, they will not be considered for reasons previously stated.

Principal Jones and Assistant Principal Bailey. Respondent rebutted their testimony and offered a document (R #8) disputing the events set forth in Petition exhibits dated December 1 and December 10, 2014.

Prior reprimands would normally be considered as final actions that do not warrant de novo review on their merits. Absent timely appeal, they are prior actions issued to Respondent and part of prior discipline. I find this to be the case with those that were issued between January 6, 2011 and February 11, 2012. However, because of the proximity of actions in November and December 2014 to the January 21, 2015 filing of the tenure charges, I will consider those reprimands on their merits as if they had been grieved by Respondent.

On November 13, 2014, Principal Shante Jones wrote a memo to Respondent stating the following:

> The following documents have not been completed for administrative review during the past requested due dates. Please review the information listed below and adhere to the revised due dates.
>
> 1. Emergency Contact Form (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.
>
> 2. School Committee Selections Form (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.
> 3. Staff Needs Survey (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.

4. SGOs - Submit two tiered SGOs both electronically (one copy to myself and Mrs. Bailey) and as a hard copy of each along with the students' scores on Monday, November 17, 2014 by 9am to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.

5. Bulletin Board - Select one sixth grade classroom and post work up for every student in the homeroom. Follow the bulletin board guidelines (CCSS, Graded Work, Constructive Feedback, Objectives, & Rubrics) that were discussed at the staff meeting on October 9, 2014 and listed on the agenda. All new bulletin boards are due on Tuesday, November 18, 2014 by 1:15 pm in preparation for the upcoming Open House.

6. Lesson Plans - On a daily basis your lesson plans should be readily available for continuity in instruction and administrative review. You did not have them available for review on October 1st when asked by Mrs. Paulette Bailey, AP during her visit to your classroom or on October 15th during the district walk-throughs when asked by Mrs. Catherine Coyle, Director of The Regional Achievement Centers.

Thereafter, on December 1, 2014, another memo was sent by Principal Jones to Respondent alleging that Respondent had failed to comply with the November 13, 2014 memo:

> On November 13th, you received a memo in writing to follow through with completing the following tasks by a specific date and time:
>
> 1. Emergency Contact Form (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.
>
> 2. School Committee Selections Form (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.

3. Staff Needs Survey (see attached) - Complete and hand it in on Friday, November 14, 2014 by 2 pm to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.

4. SCOs - Submit two tiered SGOs both electronically (one copy to myself and Mrs. Bailey) and as a hard copy of each along with the students' scores on Monday, November 17, 2014 by 9 am to Cindy Makwinski (Principal Clerk) in the main office.

5. Bulletin Board - Select one sixth grade classroom and post work up for every student in the homeroom. Follow the bulletin board guidelines (CCSS, Graded Work, Constructive Feedback, Objectives, & Rubrics) that were discussed at the staff meeting on October 9, 2014 and listed on the agenda. All new bulletin boards are due on Tuesday, November 18, 2014 by 1:15 pm in preparation for the upcoming Open House.

On Friday (November 14th) and Monday (November 20th) you called out for Personal Illness Days. However, today is Monday, December 1st and you have yet to hand in any of the requested documents above in the main office for my review. Also, your hallway bulletin board that is supposed to display student work for one of the classes you teach remains incomplete since both the October 14th and November 18th due dates.

On November 13th when I discussed the contents of the letter with you, you shared that you were not going to complete the Emergency Contact Form because you felt "unsafe" in this school building and are receiving text messages. In order to accommodate your concern, I explained that the only information that I did require that you complete on the Emergency Contact form was your list of current certifications in order to update your Highly Qualified Teacher status for the 2014-2015 school year. You responded by saying, "I don't have any certifications." I also need the description of your car and license plate number so you can be contacted in the event of an emergency since you park in our school lot.

When inquiring a out the reason for not handing in your state mandated SGOs, you stated that you did not understand the ".77 number." I told you that I did not know what number you were referring to and needed to see you SGO drafts in order to help you. I also asked why you didn't share with me that you needed assistance in the past few weeks so that I could have guided you along the way. In addition to this, I informed you that I would have also invited the district supervisors (who presented the revised SGOs to our staff) to come back to help as needed. Your colleagues who received special SGO development training also turn keyed examples to the staff in all grade levels during morning PLC meetings; however; you stated that you thought your colleagues did not understand it either. Notwithstanding, you are still expected to submit two SGOs as directed.

This memo serves as a letter to document your insubordination and by Wednesday, December 3, 2014, all of the above requested documents are due by 9 am to the main office for my review so that I can assist you with your SGOs, materials/technology needs, and assign you to one of your three choices for the PLC Committees (depending on the number of participants who have already been assigned to each committee). Also, on Wednesday, December 3rd by 2 pm, your hallway bulletin board is also expected to be completed (see above guidelines for #5). Continued failure to adhere to my administrative directives may result in disciplinary action.

The issue concerning PLC committees was the subject of an additional December 1, 2014 memo. Principal Jones testified that the memo was written to confirm her direction to Respondent that she could not join the Health and Wellness Committee and that Respondent failed to comply with her directive. The memo stated:

On Thursday, November 20th, you and a few other teachers who were not on the original list of the morning PLC Committees were called down to the main office in order to review your three selections on the form that was due on the revised date of Friday, November 14th, by 2 pm in the main office. Upon your arrival to the main office with Ms. Lisa Fantacone (Teacher) as your JCEA Representative, I verbally asked you what three committees you chose since you still did not hand in the School Committee Selections Form. You then asked if we could meet in a more private area. I stepped outside of the main office with the two of you and asked the same question. You stated that you selected the Health and Wellness Committee. As I looked at my count of staff members on each committee, I informed you that the committee you selected as your first choice was no longer an option due to its high number of participants who already handed in their forms on the original due date, therefore, I asked what your second and third choices were as well. At this point you referred to what happened last Thursday morning while I was out of the building. You said that Mrs. Bailey (the Assistant Principal) told you that you could select to sit in any committee you wanted to, therefore, by "default" you will remain on the Health and Wellness Committee. As I began to reiterate that the final list will be based on the number of participants on each committee and that Mrs. Bailey did not have that information last week, you repeated that the Health and Wellness Committee was the group that you were going to be a part of despite my explanation. When I stated that that committee was no longer an option, you said, "I feel like I'm being discriminated against." I then dismissed you by stating that I was not going to go back and forth with you over this situation because I needed to visit each committee meeting. Contrary to my directive, you proceeded to sit in the Health and Wellness Committee meeting in Room 102.

I followed up with Mrs. Bailey to inquire about what she said to you last Thursday in reference to your three selections. Mrs. Bailey stated that she in fact did not speak directly to you at all and instead made a general announcement to all staff members as a reminder that it was Committee Day. She also said that she announced that if there were any staff members who were not assigned to a committee yet, they could sit in on a meeting that morning until a final committee was assigned. This final assignment will be completed by me as your Principal solely based on balancing the number of participants in each group; this is why we asked every staff member to make three choices. You have been given the directive in another memo to complete the School Committee Selections Form by Wednesday, December 3rd at 9 am for my review so that I can place you in one of your other two selected committees (the Health and Wellness Committee is no longer an option as I told you on Thursday, November 20th). If you continue to fail to adhere to my directives, a disciplinary action may result.

On December 10, 2014, Principal Jones issued another memo to Respondent concerning her prior requests:

On Monday, December 1, 2014 you received two Failure To Comply letters directing you to once again hand in the five requested documents (Emergency Contact Form, School Committee Selections Form, Staff Needs Survey, and two state mandated SGOs) as well as complete your hallway bulletin board by December 3rd. None of the five documents have been handed in and the bulletin board remains incomplete.

On Wednesday, December 3rd, Mr. Charles Murphy (Technician from the Board of Education) informed me that he was going to install two new computers inside your classroom. As I attempted to reach out to you by calling your homeroom on the intercom, there was no answer. Therefore, I tried the computer lab and asked you to pick up the intercom phone. My first question to you was if you signed up to utilize the computer lab with Ms. Crystal Warren (Library Media Specialist) because I did not know where your class was located. You told me that you did not sign up to use the lab with Ms. Warren and wanted to stay there all day so your students could type and print. As I proceeded to remind you of the importance of signing up so that you have administrative approval and also so that your location would be told to the main office/security desk, you said, "O.K." and hung up the phone before I finished my sentence. I then called you back on the computer lab intercom phone to inform you about the installation of the two new computers and we continuously were disconnected. Once I was able to reach you a few minutes later, you picked up the computer lab's intercom phone and stated, "I will not talk to you unless I have union representation." You then hung up the phone once again. I called you back on the intercom phone and announced that Charles would be visiting your classroom to install two new computers.

Also, on Thursdays at 8 am - 8:30 am, all staff members signed up for three committee and were assigned to participate in one of them. On December 4th, you still did not hand in the requested committee selections form. As per my and Mrs. Bailey's observation while visiting all committee meetings that morning and reviewing all agenda sheets with the participant signatures, you did not report to any of the morning meetings.

As a result of your insubordination, it is recommended that you bring union representation upon your request) to meet with me on Thursday, December 11th at 2:30 pm (coverage will be provided) in the first floor conference room to discuss your refusal to hand in any of the requested paperwork, complete your hallway bulletin board, and disrespectful communication with me as the Principal. As your immediate supervisor, you will speak to me to discuss > anything related to instruction like installing classroom computers without union representation being present because it is not warranted. Your disrespect to me as the Principal is unprofessional and will not be tolerated.

> If you continue to fail to follow my administrative directives, a disciplinary action may follow.

The testimony from Principal Shante Jones and Assistant Principal Paulette Bailey concluded that Respondent either did not adhere to, or comply with, the directives set forth in the memos sent by Principal Jones to Respondent. Respondent either denied failing to perform the directives or offered explanations as to why she did not or need not comply.

At hearing, Respondent offered an exhibit (R #8). This exhibit consists of two memos she said had been sent to Principal Jones on December 2, 2014 in response to the December 1, 2014 memos. Petitioner objected to the document pointing to the testimony of Principal Jones that she had never seen the memo. Petitioner also contends that the document was not properly produced pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17. The first memo is entitled "Complied with PLC Committee Directive" and states:

> Thursday 11/20/14, during my Professional Learning Committee 8:00-8:30 morning meeting, I was called to the main office by Ms. Jones several times over the intercom. Upon arriving at the office with my JCEA representative Ms. Jones told me to choose another PLC committee. This took place in the presence of secretaries, staff and whoever else was present. Unfortunately public disclosing staff members' matters in the main office is common practice for Ms. Jones that is why I brought the Senior JCEA Representative Lisa Fantacone to accompany me to the office.

I asked Ms. Jones if we could we speak in private and she agreed. However, as I (Mrs. Rhodes) and Ms. Fantacone left the main office, Ms. Jones followed behind us stridently questioning me about a PLC committee. After entering the hallway Ms. Fantacone and I stopped walking and waited for Ms. Jones to escort us to a private area such as the conference room to conduct the meeting, instead Ms. Jones stationed us in the hall and continued to discuss my personal issue without regard for my right to privacy.

I'll have you know, I submitted the original PLC committee document and don't understand why my name wasn't added to the original roster of the Health and Wellness Committee I chose.

In addition it is important that you know I and Lisa Fantacone are the JCEA building directors for PS 34. This may be why my name was not added to the roster. Lisa Fantacone and I as JCEA union representatives are harassed together. We are often called to the office for hostile confrontations one after the other and receive written reprimands on the same day. Ms. Jones regularly exhibits anti-union behavior.

The morning of 11/20/14, I informed Ms. Jones that while she was not present the morning of 11/13/14 Ms. Bailey made an announcement over the intercom stating teachers whose names were not on the roster of a committee were to choose a committee to report to and their names would be added to the roster of that committee. In response to this information Ms. Jones retorted, "I'm the principal not Mrs. Bailey!" At that juncture I expressed to Ms. Jones I feel discriminated against.

Then I and my JCEA Representative returned to the Health and Wellness Committee. Ms. Jones vociferously commented as we were a distance from the main office but still in the corridor, "You can go today but you won't be on committee!" I didn't respond to the statement.

In conclusion I am being harassed for being a union representative and for speaking at the board meetings and standing up for fellow members, students and myself. At this time I will be pursuing legal action against Ms. Shante Jones.

A second memo from Respondent also dated December 2, 2014 is entitled "Complied" and states the following:

November 13th I received a memo in writing to follow through with completing the following tasks by a specific time and date

1. Emergency contact form: I don't park in the lot.
2. School Committee Selections Form: I submitted a hard copy.
3. Staff needs survey: I submitted a hard copy
4. SGO's: I gave Ms. Jones a hard copy when she came to my classroom
5. Bulletin Board – My bulletin board has a 3 part objective. Rubric, CCCs, graded work and constructive student feedback. However, every student's work is not on the bulletin board; because I have been absent due to Ms. Jones perpetual anti-union harassment and professional development workshops.

Not counting the 2 half days, 7 days the district was closed, quarterly assessments, Moreover, November 20, 2014 was a Thursday

In conjunction with the absences; students academically perform at different levels and therefore work at different paces. Paramount to Ms. Jones' actions which stem from her anti-union partialities, I am bound by the federal government via No Child Left Behind (NCLB), Jersey City Public School district and curriculum to differentiate instruction.

In addition, prior to this written notice Ms. Jones and I spoke privately November 18, 2014 in reference to the bulletin board. I > explained to Ms. Jones I have one working computer in my class (Which was out of commission for several weeks) and my goal is to have students hand written drafts and typed published essays displayed on the bulletin board, as the, work currently presented on the bulletin board. Ms. Jones acknowledged my dilemma and granted me extra time to put my class' essays up.

>
> However, she reneged on the agreement and accused me of insubordination. It is evident at this point Ms. Jones is either seeking tenure charges or means to withhold my increment.
>
> This isn't Ms. Jones first time falsely accusing me of not handing in work such as alleging on two different occasions that Assistant Principal Mrs. Paulette Bailey and Regional Achievement Center administrator (RAC) Cathy Coyle told her I didn't have lesson plans. In both cases this is a blatant lie.
> In conclusion I am being harassed for being a union representative and for speaking at the board meetings and standing up for fellow members, students and myself. At this time I will be pursuing legal action against Ms. Shante Jones.

I credit the testimony of Principal Jones and Assistant Principal Bailey that as of December 10, 2014, none of the documents or tasks that they requested had been fulfilled. The record clearly reflects that the bulletin board was not completed, that mandated personnel forms were not submitted and that Respondent resisted Principal Jones' direction not to join a committee that she did not want Respondent to join. Respondent contends that there were reasonable explanations for not doing what she was requested to do. Even if this were the case, Respondent was under an obligation to do what she was directed and then, if she deemed it appropriate, to challenge the directives in the grievance procedure. Accordingly, Petitioner has established a proper basis to sustain Charge I, Counts 18, 19, 20 and 21.

The Petitioner in Charge I, Count 13 alleges that:

> On or about September 22, 2014, Respondent notified the District that she would not comply with an administrative directive, given on September 9, 2014, to complete final grades and averages for the 2013-2014 report cards for Respondent's former sixth grade Language Arts classes, which Respondent had failed to complete in the prior year due to a leave of absence; Respondent further added, defiantly, that the Principal's directive was "harassing and of no value to anyone."

In support of this charge, the Petitioner offered exhibits and the testimony of Principal Shante Jones. She referred to the following September 9, 2014 document:

> As per our conversation on Thursday, September 4, 2014, Mr. Thomas Purwin (Director of Educational Technology) has informed me at the end of the day yesterday that you now have access for last school year's (2013-2014) report cards for your former sixth grade Language Arts classes (Room #s 201, 210, & 211) beginning today, Tuesday, September 9, 2014. This access will allow you to complete the Language Arts grades for all three homerooms that were unable to be completed due to your Leave of Absence from June 10, 2014 to June 26, 2014. All Language Arts final grades and averages for the sixth grade students of 2013-2014 should be completed and ready to be reviewed/printed by Wednesday, September 17, 2014 by 9am. Please confirm via email by Wednesday, September 10, 2014 that your access for the report cards is working for all three homerooms and let me know if you have any questions. Thank you for your cooperation!

Respondent went on a leave of absence from her sixth grade class on June 1, 2014. The leave ended on June 26, 2014, after the instructional school year had ended. Respondent gave no quarterly or final grades to her students. The grades were needed for the fourth marking period and for final grades for the year. When asked about the grades, Respondent maintained that she was on leave and had left the grade book on her desk. According to Principal Shante Jones, Respondent's grades were needed in order to forward records to other schools. After not receiving a response from Respondent, the above written communication was made concerning the issue to Respondent on September 9, 2014. Respondent testified that she was on a medical leave at the end of the school year and told Principal Shante Jones that she left the grade book and lesson plans on her desk. She said she heard nothing more until September. When she received the September 9 letter from Principal Shante Jones, she deferred the letter to her attorney who, on September 22, 2014 offered the following response:

> I am attaching a copy of correspondence received on September 9, 2014 from Ms. Shante Jones, the Principal of Public School No. 34. As you know, I represent the JCEA and I respond to you as Ms. Rhodes' attorney.
>
> As the enclosed indicates, my client was on a leave of absence from June 1 through June 26, 2014. Obviously, she did not give final grades and all the material in which she can formulate these grades, is no longer available to her. Ms. Rhodes left her grade books, lesson plans and the like in her room, along with personal belongings and she has not recovered these items, to date.
>
> Accordingly, it is impossible for her to meet the request of Ms. Jones. Additionally, it would appear to me that since all the students have been promoted, the request is harassing and of no value to anyone.

Respondent testified that she was never disciplined over the incident, that the District formulated grades for the students and that none of the students were adversely affected by not receiving a timely grade.

I find that the Petitioner has proven that this incident warrants disciplinary action. The incident reflects that Respondent exercised extremely poor professional judgment on a matter of substantial educational impact, a lack of accountability and an unresponsive attitude towards school management and her students. While Respondent clearly had a right to seek Association advice, she gave no notice of same to Principal Jones who had a right to a more timely response to her inquiry. Moreover, the record does not reflect that Respondent was precluded in any way from completing and submitting student grades or, at minimum, engaging in professional communication directly with her principal to provide input concerning grading for instructional time while she actively worked prior to going on leave.

Charge 1, Count 14 alleges that:

> On or about October 15, 2014, Respondent refused to comply with the District Policy regarding maintaining a lesson plan book when, during a walkthrough of Respondent's sixth grade language arts classroom by Catherine V. Coyle, Regional Achievement Center ("RAC") Coordinator, Respondent stated to Ms. Coyle that "she does not write plans."

Testimony in support of this was offered by Principal Shante Jones, Paulette Bailey, Assistant Principal, PS #34 and Catherine Coyle, Director of Elementary Education and Regional Achievement Center ("RAC") for the New Jersey Department of Education. This issue arose on October 15, 2014. On this date, a walkthrough of Respondent's language arts classroom was conducted by Ms. Coyle. Ms. Coyle testified that she conducts such walkthroughs in all of the 18 schools in Jersey City. When she arrived in the classroom, she observed Respondent at a student desk. After not seeing a plan book, Ms. Coyle testified that she asked Respondent where it was and Respondent said "I don't do plans." Ms. Coyle testified that she was taken aback at the response. She further testified that there was "nothing going on with the students" and that Respondent looked at her and rudely asked "who are you?" Assistant Principal Bailey testified that she heard Respondent say to Ms. Coyle "I don't do lesson plans." She modified her response on cross-examination to recalling that the Respondent said "I don't have lesson plans."

On January 13, 2015, Ms. Coyle sent an email to Chief Academic Officer Jason Bing stating her recollections of her walkthrough.

> I am sending this email in reference to my experience in a classroom visited at #34 School on October 15, 2014 during a Walkthrough. Michelle Rhodes was the teacher in the sixth grade language arts classroom I am referencing.
>
> The teacher, Michelle Rhodes was seated at a student's desk and was whiting out some printing/writing/typed information on papers she had on the desk where she was seated. I approached to ask where I might locate her plan book and she asked, "Who am I speaking with"? I identified myself. Michelle Rhodes shared with me that she does not write plans. She remained seated and continued to white out printing/writing/typed information on the papers she had. Student work was not displayed around the room and student work folders and/or portfolios lacked student work. Students did not understand the assignment.
> I am extremely concerned with what I observed. I have shared this concern with the Division Director and the principal. It is apparent that Michelle Rhodes refuses to comply with the District Policy regarding maintaining a plan book.

Respondent denied that she failed to produce lesson plans when asked. She acknowledged asking Ms. Coyle who she was but denied doing so in a rude manner. Respondent points out that Ms. Coyle's memo occurred three months after the incident, that she was not disciplined and that an interim evaluation after the incident did not even refer to it.

I credit the testimony of Ms. Coyle that Respondent did not produce a lesson plan when asked. It is of little significance as to whether the response was "I don't do lesson plans" or "I do not have any lesson plans." The simple fact is that Board policy requires lesson plans and the Respondent did not produce a plan book when requested to do so. It is entirely logical that Ms. Coyle would, in her district-wide capacity, ask to see lesson plans during a walkthrough. I find no basis to conclude that she did not ask for the plans or that Respondent provided offered any other explanation that justified that the plans could not be produced. I also credit Assistant Principal Bailey's testimony that she heard Respondent's answer to Ms. Coyle's question. Respondent offers argument that had Petitioner believed this incident was of significance, reference to the incident could have been made closer to the time of the incident or in the evaluation of Respondent's performance after the incident. The arguments have been considered but do not serve to defend Respondent's failure to adhere to Board policy requiring lesson plans nor can they serve as a waiver of petitioner's right to refer to this incident in support of tenure charges relating to Respondent's overall conduct. Accordingly, I sustain Charge I, Count 14.

The Petitioner has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that Respondent engaged in conduct supporting Charge 1, Counts 11, 12, 13, 14, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21; Charge V, Counts 4 and 5, Charge IX, Count 10 and Charge III, Counts 3 and 4. As such, Petitioner has established that Respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause for dismissal. The record developed at hearings includes additional Charges and Counts alleging that there was additional conduct by Respondent that supports her removal from the District. After full review of these charges, I find that there is insufficient evidence to support these charges notwithstanding the presence of conduct that could support administrative action in the form of counseling of a non-disciplinary nature. All charges not sustained are dismissed.

Having found that Petitioner has, by a preponderance of the evidence, established a proper basis for disciplinary action, I next turn to the issue of evidence, penalty and whether the Petitioner has proven cause for removal.

In respect to penalty, I first observe that the Respondent previously received increment withholdings in two consecutive years for Conduct Unbecoming and Performance/Conduct Unbecoming. Short of filing tenure charges, these increment withholdings are the most severe penalty that a Board can impose. The increment withholdings served notice on the Respondent that future conduct of similar nature could yield additional disciplinary action at the same or higher level. Petitioner has made a reasonable case that the incident involving Ms. Hudson could, standing alone, support the penalty of termination for conduct unbecoming. Petitioner has established that Respondent engaged in a threat of physical violence towards a security guard but the additional charges that Petitioner has sustained in addition to the one concerning Ms. Hudson renders such determination unnecessary.

The Petitioner has established that Respondent has engaged in a totality of conduct that represents a pattern inconsistent with the conduct, judgments and temperament required of a teacher within the educational organization and its supervisory structure. The individual acts of alleged misconduct have been reviewed and already analyzed in detail, including those that have been dismissed. Collectively, the charges that have been sustained amount to conduct unbecoming a teacher and represent a just cause basis for Respondent's dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

Respondent has forcefully argued, among other things, that the incidents either did not occur, did not rise to the level of removal or that Respondent was either improperly noticed of conduct that warranted disciplinary action. On this latter point Respondent asserts or that Petitioner has, in essence, waived its right to file tenure charges due to a failure to discipline Respondent in timely fashion. I do not find these arguments persuasive. The prior disciplinary actions that led to the increment withholdings, not relitigated here, establish the existence of prior conduct that amounted to conduct unbecoming or poor performance. Two separate and consecutive increment withholdings provided ample notice and warning to Respondent of potential job jeopardy. The Petitioner has also introduced a volume of counselings and reprimands subsequent to the increment withholdings that establish that Respondent has not responded with conduct that corrected her prior behavior that formed the basis for the previous disciplinary actions. I have also considered Respondent's contention that she may have been the recipient of harsh or disparate treatment due to the attitude of Principal Shante Jones towards her as an individual or as a teacher. I cannot draw any such inference based upon the record evidence and also due to evidence that several administrators and peers have interacted with Respondent and whose testimony reflects similar concerns to those expressed by Principal Shante Jones. It is also significant that Respondent worked under a different Principal and different administrators during the times that her increments were withheld in the past.

Accordingly, and based upon all of the above, I conclude that Petitioner has sustained its burden to prove that it had just cause for the dismissal of Michelle Rhodes.

AWARD

The Jersey City Board of Education had just cause to dismiss Michelle Rhodes from her tenured teaching position for conduct unbecoming pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, LLC

For the Respondent:
Kathleen L. Kirvan, Esq.
Selikoff & Cohen, PA

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, I was appointed to serve as arbitrator on August 27, 2015 to hear and decide the merit of tenure charges filed by the Kingsway Regional School District [the "Petitioner"] against tenured secretary Marian Burns [the "Respondent"] in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:10. Upon receipt of that appointment, I conducted a conference call with counsel, at which time the procedure for processing this case was discussed and agreed upon. As a result of this discussion, it was agreed that the matter should proceed directly to hearing.

Arbitration hearings in this matter were held on November 11 and December 15, 2015. At the November 11, 2015 hearing, the parties argued orally, examined and cross-examined witnesses and submitted documentary evidence into the record. Testimony was received from Craig Stephenson, Principal – Kingsway Regional High School, Robert Miles, Assistant Principal (former) – Kingsway Regional High School, Brian Tonelli, Principal- Kingsway Middle School and Dr. James J. Lavender, Superintendent of Schools, Kingsway Regional School District.

At the beginning of the December 15, 2015 hearing, Petitioner and Respondent voluntarily agreed to engage in informal discussions and mediation by the arbitrator on the issues raised in this proceeding. These discussions led to the development of tentative terms of resolution that eventually formed the basis for a Settlement Agreement, subject to approval by the Kingsway Regional Board of Education and the arbitrator. Those terms were signed by the Respondent on December 17, 2015 and formally approved and adopted by the Kingsway Regional

School District on December 17, 2015 as certified by Jason Schimpf, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary.[1] The terms of settlement are as follows:

1. TENURE CHARGES TO BE WITHDRAWN/NO FURTHER BOARD ACTION

   The Kingsway Regional Board of Education agrees that upon execution of the within Agreement by the parties and Ms. Burns-Dolan's fulfillment of the obligations as set forth herein, that the subject tenure charges shall be withdrawn and that no further action shall be initiated by the Kingsway Regional Board of Education regarding the underlying charges. Both parties fully reserve all rights in the event this Agreement is breached, as well as with respect to any third party claims that may be made against each party as a result of any acts and/or omissions by the other.

2. RESIGNATION FOR RETIREMENT

   Ms. Burns-Dolan, by signing this Agreement, hereby tenders her irrevocable resignation effective November 30, 2015 in furtherance of retirement, which is annexed hereto as Attachment A. Ms. Burns-Dolan's resignation shall be effective and irrevocable upon approval of this Agreement by the Board, whether or not the application for ordinary disability retirement is approved. It is hereby acknowledged that no one, including the parties to this Agreement, can guarantee that Ms. Burns-Dolan will receive a pension, and that only the Pension Board and its trustees can determine pension entitlement and benefit level. Ms. Burns-Dolan agrees that she will not seek any future employment or consultant relationship with the Kingsway Regional Board of Education in perpetuity and that the Board has no obligation, contractual or otherwise, to re-hire or re-employ her.

3. RELEASE

   In exchange for the above consideration, Ms. Burns-Dolan, her heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, up until the date of execution of the instant Agreement by both parties, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Kingsway Regional Board of Education, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers and administrators, its attorneys, agents and employees, personally and officially, as well as their successors, and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys' fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this Agreement, and any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions; Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act; the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Equal Pay Act; the Workers' Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the Employer-Employee Relations Act; any collective negotiations agreement; any common law claim and any and all other claims, that could be initiated in. any venue, for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim.

Specifically exempted from this release are any claims arising under the Workers' Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et and for health insurance continuation coverage under and pursuant to Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (referred to hereinabove as "COBRA"). Ms. Burns-Dolan represents that she has not filed and does not intend to file a Workmen's Compensation claim related to her employment with the Kingsway Regional Board of Education. This release does not limit Ms. Burns-Dolan's right to seek indemnification, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, with respect to a claim filed against her for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of her duties as an employee of the Kings-way Regional Board of Education. The parties are not aware of the existence of any such claims.

Ms. Burns-Dolan also agrees to dismiss, with prejudice, any and all matters contesting any prior increment withholding(s) and/or alleging any unfair labor practice charge, including, but not limited to the matter entitled Kingsway Education Association v. Kingsway Regional School Board of Education, Docket No. CO-2016-25. Such a dismissal shall be filed with the agency in which said matter(s) is/are pending within thirty (30) days from the date this Agreement is approved by the Arbitrator.

It is expressly understood that the arrangement herein is predicated exclusively upon the special circumstances of this matter and shall not be construed to represent any policy or procedure of the Kingsway Regional Board of Education.

4. NO ADMISSIONS

The execution of this Agreement does not constitute an admission or acknowledgement by Ms. Burns-Dolan or the Kingsway Regional Board of Education of any wrongful or otherwise improper conduct, nor as to the liability of any party. The parties mutually acknowledge that this matter has been resolved in good faith, and that this Agreement is entered into solely for the purpose of avoiding the time and expense attendant to any further litigation.

5. COMPENSATION/BENEFITS

Ms. Burns-Dolan shall receive a payroll check in an amount of Fifteen Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three Dollars ($15,333.00), which is equivalent to four (4) months' salary. Ms. Burns-Dolan acknowledges that from that amount customary deductions will be made. Besides this monetary payment, Ms. Burns-Dolan shall not be entitled to any further compensation, emolument of employment or fringe benefit of any kind and specifically waives her right to same, including, but not limited to, payment for accrued sick and vacation and personal days and all other emoluments of employment that otherwise may have been due to her as a result of any collective bargaining agreement, contract or Board Policy.

The Board shall send this payment to Selikoff & Cohen, P.A., counsel for Ms. Burns-Dolan, no later than thirty (30) days from the date this Agreement is approved by the Arbitrator.

Ms. Burns-Dolan shall be entitled to any benefits she would lawfully be entitled to under the Workers' Compensation Act or COBRA and she will have the same COBRA rights as any other former employee and shall be solely responsible for any and all costs associated with said COBRA coverage.

6. NON-DISPARAGEMENT

The parties and their agents shall refrain from public negative comments regarding each other, and each other's employees and/or agents. However, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to limit the Kingsway Regional Board of Education and its agents' obligation to provide accurate information in response to legitimate requests for public information, nor to provide information requested by various State Agencies, including but not limited to the State Department of Education; the State Board of Examiners and its agents, including copies of the Tenure Hearing documents, witness list and information, proposed exhibits and work-product related thereto; the Division of Pensions and Benefits; and the Unemployment Compensation Board and/or their agents. Further, nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as affecting the Parties' ability to testify truthfully or fully.

7. INQUIRIES

The Kingsway Regional Board of Education agrees, through its Administration, to respond to post-employment inquiries regarding

Ms. Burns-Dolan by providing solely basic work history such as confirming the dates of Ms. Burns' employment within the school district, the amount of Ms. Burns-Dolan's salary in the final year of her employment, the positions that Ms. Burns-Dolan held within the District, and the date of Ms. Burns-Dolan's resignation. However, nothing herein shall be deemed to limit the Kingsway Regional Board of Education's actions in compliance with the Open Public Records Act, or its obligation to respond fully and accurately to any and all inquiries from State agencies such as, without limitation, the Public Employees Retirement System ("PERS"); TPAF; for example.

8. DUE DILIGENCE

Ms. Burns-Dolan has indicated that she will file an application for ordinary disability retirement benefits ("retirement application") with the Division of Pensions and Benefits. Ms. Burns-Dolan agrees to file her retirement application in accordance with the provisions of Section 1 of this Agreement. Ms. Burns-Dolan shall cooperate fully with the Pension Board and/or any other State or Local governmental body and comply promptly and completely with all requests and requirements. The Board too agrees that it will cooperate fully with the Pension Board and/or any other State or Local governmental body and will comply promptly and completely with all requirements and requests. In furtherance of that commitment, the Kingsway. Regional Board of Education will reply to Question 7 and its subparts of the Employer Certification that Ms. Burns-Dolan is not under suspension or any form of discipline.

Ms. Burns-Dolan acknowledges that the Kingsway Regional Board of Education has no decision-making authority with regard to her retirement application and that her resignation in furtherance of retirement is not contingent upon its approval.

9. REQUIREMENTS PURSUANT TO N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6

A. True copies of the Tenure Charges are annexed hereto as Attachment C.

B. True copies of Ms. Burns-Dolan's Answer to the Tenure Charges are annexed hereto as Attachment D.

C. Both parties have freely consented to the within Agreement, as evidenced by their respective signatures below.

D. Both parties have had the benefit of independent legal counsel and have been fully apprised of their rights and obligations, and have indicated their full understanding and acceptance of same, by their respective signatures below.

E. The within settlement will serve the public interest by avoiding the cost of further litigation guarantying the desired result.

F. The parties agree that nothing in the within Agreement shall restrict access to information or records deemed public by law. The Kingsway Regional Board of Education and its agents shall cooperate fully and honestly in responding to requests for information from government agencies and in response to requests from the public for information that it is legally required to provide.

G. The Kingsway Regional Board of Education has formally approved this Settlement Agreement, subject only to approval by the Arbitrator. A certified resolution is annexed hereto as Attachment B.

10. NO RETALIATION

Ms. Burns-Dolan shall take no retaliatory action of any kind against any student, parent, staff member, Board member or agent of the Board.

11. ENTRY. ONTO BOARD PROPERTY

Ms. Burns-Dolan may enter Kingsway Regional Board of Education Property when working with a private entity that has Kingsway Regional Board of Education approval for use of a facility for a particular event, or attendance at a venue or event that is open to the general public. In all other instances, Ms. Burns-Dolan shall first receive prior permission from the Superintendent of Schools before entering onto Kingsway Regional Board of Education Property.

12. SURRENDER OF BOARD PROPERTY

A. Ms. Burns-Dolan shall surrender all school keys and property in her possession to the Superintendent of Schools or his designee.

B. The Superintendent of Schools shall arrange an appointment for Ms. Burns-Dolan to retrieve her personal property, if necessary.

13. BOARD APPROVAL

This Agreement is subject to Kingsway Regional Board of Education approval. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Kingsway Regional Board of Education.

14. ASSENT TO TERMS

A. Ms. Burns-Dolan hereby acknowledges that she entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of her rights and that she does so without duress and of her own free will and volition, and that she has consulted with independent legal, counsel prior to executing same.

B. Ms. Burns-Dolan acknowledges that she was given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement for a period of at least twenty-one (21) days, and was given seven (7) (lays from the execution of this document to revoke this Agreement by delivering written notification to Stephen M. Bacigalupo, II, Esq., Schwartz Simon Edelstein & Celso, LLC, 100 South Jefferson Road, Whippany, New Jersey 07981,

15. SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS

This Agreement shall be binding upon and shall inure to the benefit of the parties and their respective successors and assigns.

16. ENTIRE AGREEMENT

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matters herein, and supersedes and integrates any and all prior representations, negotiations, discussions, understandings and agreements, whether oral or written. This Agreement shall not be amended, changed or modified except in a writing signed by all parties. Each party acknowledges that the other party, nor any agent or attorney of the other party, have made any promise, representation or warranty whatsoever, express or implied, not contained in this Agreement to induce it to execute this Agreement.

17. SEVERABILITY

In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, the parties agree, in advance, to reform that provision to be legal, valid and enforceable in furtherance of the full benefit of the bargain, if possible, but in the event it cannot be reformed, then the remaining portions of this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect, except that the provisions of Paragraph 1 hereinabove shall be deemed to be material and of the essence of this Agreement. Should the provisions set forth in Paragraph 1 be compromised, then the entire Agreement shall be deemed to be null and void and the Kingsway Regional Board of Education shall be free to proceed with appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including the reinstatement and further prosecution of Tenure Charges.

18. COUNTERPART

This Agreement may be executed simultaneously in two (2) or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which, when taken together, constitute one and the same document.

The signature of any party to any counterpart shall be deemed a signature to, and may be appended to, any other counterpart.

19. GOVERNING LAW

This Agreement and all provisions hereof shall he governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

The arbitrator, under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, is required to issue a decision approving the settlement of tenure charges and to explain why the arbitrator is approving the terms of settlement. I have approved these terms for the reasons that follow.

The issues that were raised in the Statement of Tenure Charges and the Statement of Evidence filed by the Petitioner and the Answer to Tenure Charges filed by the Respondent have been fully reviewed by this arbitrator in conjunction with the mutually agreed upon terms of settlement. After doing so, I am persuaded that the issues raised therein have been satisfactorily addressed by the terms of settlement. In addition to the fact that these terms are mutually acceptable to the parties, the interests of the public will be served by this approval of the settlement terms.

The parties have agreed that the interests of all concerned will be served by Respondent's separation from employment by voluntary resignation in furtherance of retirement and Petitioner's withdrawal of the tenure charges. The parties have acknowledged that these terms have been agreed upon without admission by either party as to the merits of the claims raised by either the tenure charges or by Respondent's defenses to those charges. The Board and the public will further benefit by the budgetary savings achieved by avoiding the costs of further litigation which, based upon the approval of the settlement terms, will no longer be necessary. Accordingly, the Settlement Agreement is hereby approved.
