ICYMI: New Jersey State Police Lifts Travel Restriction

Posted on 02/22/2026

TRENTON – The New Jersey Office of Emergency Management, under the Division of the New Jersey State Police, has announced that the mandatory travel restriction, which began at 9:00 p.m. on Sunday, February 22, and was extended until 12:00 noon today, is now lifted.

While the restriction has ended, motorists are strongly encouraged to avoid unnecessary travel as hazardous conditions persist in some parts of the state. Some roadways remain snow-covered, visibility is limited in some areas, and crews continue working to clear roads and restore safe travel.

Residents should allow extra time for essential trips, reduce speed, and keep emergency supplies in their vehicles.
