National Guard Militia Museum opens Berlin Crisis exhibit

SEA GIRT, N.J. – The National Guard Militia Museum of New Jersey will open an exhibit to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the New Jersey Air National Guard's 1961 Berlin Crisis deployment.

Opening on Nov. 7 and running through Jan. 2, 2012, the exhibit, "50 Years On: New Jersey's National Guard and the Berlin Crisis" will be on display at the main museum in Sea Girt and the museum's annex in Lawrenceville.

"The Berlin Crisis was a significant event," said retired Lt. Col. William Kale, the museum's volunteer curator at Lawrenceville. "Thousands of National Guard members from New Jersey and other states were called to active duty, left their jobs and families for over a year, and deployed to duty stations in the United States and Europe. They did not know whether war or peace was in their immediate future."

The Berlin Crisis was sparked by Soviet provocations in the occupied German capital, most notably the construction of the infamous Berlin Wall. In response, President John F. Kennedy ordered New Jersey's 108th Tactical Fighter Wing to Chaumont, France while the 119th Tactical Fighter Squadron served on active duty in the United States. In total, more than 10,000 Air Guard personnel deployed to Europe in support of what became Operation Stair Step and another 33,000 Soldiers and Airmen were placed on domestic alert. After tensions in Berlin cooled, New Jersey's units returned home in August 1962.

The exhibit was developed by museum staff and Rider University intern James Sheridan. Materials were drawn from the museum's extensive archives, Joint Base McGuire-Dix-Lakehurst Air Force Heritage Center, and several donations from individuals who served during the deployment.

Established in 1980, the National Guard Militia Museum of New Jersey presents the role of the New Jersey Militia and the National Guard within the context of the larger history of the state. Collections include original and reproduction uniforms, weapons, photographs, artifacts and art from the period of Dutch, Swedish and British colonization through the War for Independence, Civil War and World Wars I and II to the present day, with particular attention paid to the diversity of the New Jersey citizen Soldier/Airmen and his or her experience.

Admission is free and open to the public. For more information, please visit the museum's web site at <http://www.nj.gov/military/museum/> or call 732-974-5966.

NJ Guard Soldiers compete in NY sporting event

On a cold and rainy Saturday morning, three Soldiers from the New Jersey National Guard competed in the NYC Men's Health Urbanathlon, a grueling 9.5 mile obstacle course in the streets of New York City on Oct. 29.

With only a week until the competition, Chief Warrant Officer 2 Robert Barea, Sgt 1st Class Josue Pichardo, both from the Recruiting & Retention Battalion, along with Staff Sgt. Garon Lindo, of the 250th Brigade Support Battalion, decided to compete and were able to place 14 out of 192 teams, finishing the course in 1:19:40.

The overall distance did not challenge the team, but some of the obstacles did slow down the otherwise fast Soldiers. Barea took the first leg and got in the mud by crawling under a series of police barricades. Pichardo took the second leg and found the Marine hurdles to be the most challenging obstacle of his leg, and on the final leg, Lindo expressed without a doubt, that the ramps and steps of CitiField Stadium was the most tiresome obstacle of the course.

The three Soldiers have previously participated in other endurance races such as the recent Army Ten Miler and the Tough Mudder.

If you are interested in joining Team NJARNG for future races, please contact Barea at robert.a.barea@us.army.mil.

Veterans right's awareness seminar

The New Jersey Attorney General's (AG) Office, in partnership with The American Legion, will conduct a regional Veterans' Civil Rights seminar on Nov. 18, from 9 a.m. – 12 p.m., at Post 414, 100 Berwyn Place in Lawrenceville.

All veterans, active duty, Reservists, National Guard, family members, and veteran service organizations are invited to attend. You do not have to belong to The American Legion to participate.

The AG's office, Division on Civil Rights (DCR), has proactively noticed a rise in veterans' discrimination claims in the areas of employment, housing, and other subjects. Veterans are entitled to employment-related protection under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD). This law also provides substantial protection of those who seek to gain or continue employment with a disability. DCR has a special interest in any veterans with disabilities having discrimination complaints in employment, housing, public accommodations. They are also concerned about military reservists that have lost their employment or assigned to different positions following their return from military leave.

The DCR's office has suggested, and subsequently produced an education seminar to inform all veterans of their civil rights. They will explain the process to file a claim, and the locations of their offices that are available to assist veterans in need of these services.

The American Legion will host this and further seminars across the state.

If you have any general questions pertaining to this seminar, please call Bob Looby, The American Legion, Past State Commander, at 908-894-0746.
