Trenton, NJ - The Port Authority strongly advises air travelers to check with their carriers before going to the airport today due to a significant number of flight cancellations by the airlines in the wake of the approaching coastal storm.

The airlines serving the Port Authority's major airports – Newark Liberty International, John F. Kennedy International, and LaGuardia have cancelled all or a significant number of their flights beginning at noon today and continuing through early tomorrow.

The airports will remain open during the coastal storm and Port Authority personnel will be on hand for travelers who require assistance.
