

NOTICE TO THE BAR

One-Time Waiver of CLE Fees

The Supreme Court of New Jersey Board on Continuing Legal Education (“Board”) has determined to waive on a one-time basis all fees to be paid by attorneys in the 2011 reporting group only (those with a compliance period that ended December 31, 2010). This one-time waiver applies to the $50 fee paid by attorneys to apply for an extension of time to complete their continuing legal education (“CLE”) courses or to waive CLE requirements, as well as the $150 fee for noncompliance.

This Notice to the Bar supersedes the Notice issued by the Board on September 21, 2011, announcing a one-time reduction in the noncompliance fee.

Attorneys who have paid fees to apply for extensions or waivers and attorneys who already have paid the assessed non-compliance fees will receive a refund or will have their checks/money orders returned upon receipt.

This action by the Board relates only to the CLE fees, not to the CLE requirements or the obligation to certify compliance. Attorneys who received letters of noncompliance from the Board still must complete their CLE requirements and certify to their compliance by November 8, 2011.
