

Home / Safety and Health / New Jersey's Panic Device Law

New Jersey's Panic Device Law

The law requires hotel employers to provide panic devices to employees assigned to work alone in guest rooms.

A panic device is a two-way radio or other electronic device an employee can wear or keep in their pocket that allows them to summon immediate on-scene assistance from a security officer, manager, supervisor, or other appropriate hotel staff member.

This law helps protect these workers from violence and other dangerous work situations.

The information provided below is not a legal document. For additional guidance, see the statute and regulations.

Covered employers, employees	Device requirements and use +	Education program, reporting, recordkeeping, and other requirements +
Additional resources +

- Covered employers
- Covered employees
- Exclusions

Next steps

-  Read the law
-  Read the regulations
-  Download our webinar presentation
-  File a complaint online
-  Immigration relief
-  Go back to the NJDOL homepage

My Work Rights

- Home
- Wages and Overtime
- Safety and Health

Leave and Benefits

More Work Protections

Laws and Regulations

Information for Employers

Statewide

- Governor Phil Murphy
- Lt. Governor Tahesha Way
- NJ Home
- Services A to Z
- Departments/Agencies
- Contact Us
- Privacy Notice
- Legal Statement & Disclaimers
- Accessibility Statement

Copyright © State of New Jersey, 1996-2024
Department of Labor
1 John Fitch Plz,
Trenton, NJ 08611