Transcript

Governor Chris Christie: Three days to the Super Bowl. How about this? How about every minute, minutes, hours that have been wasted worrying about the weather, right? I told the commissioner two and a half years ago, don't worry man. High 30's, low 40's, it'll be fine. And he just kept looking at me shaking my head, and about two weeks ago when I saw him he said to me: high 30's, low 40's? I said in the bank baby, in the bank. Don't worry about it, and man, New Jersey's coming through again. And I know we got a lot of cameras here today from our friends across the river in New York, so I see Channel 4 there. There's a couple other ones. Let me look right into the camera. Remember everybody, remember, where's the Super Bowl? New Jersey. Exactly right baby. So, we welcome everybody to New Jersey on Sunday. We're going to have a great time. People are going to have a great time at the game, and the people from New Jersey are going to show the folks from around the world who come for the Super Bowl what it means to have Jersey strength and Jersey pride, and we've got it, and we're going to keep working on it. So, thank you all for coming today. I appreciate it very much.
