U.S. Congressman Josh Gottheimer (NJ 5) presented hand-made Valentine's Day cards to the residents at the New Jersey Veterans Home at Paramus. Before visiting the home, Gottheimer worked with the students at the Martha B Day School in Bloomingdale to make the cards for the veterans. Oliver Cromwell, New Jersey 2nd Continental Regiment, is the third oarsman from the left (see detail) in the 1851 painting Washington Crossing the Delaware, by Emmanuel Leutze depicting the crossing prior to the Battle of Trenton the morning of December 26, 1776. Cromwell, who was born in what is now Columbus, New Jersey, served from 1777 to 1783 and saw action in the battles of Trenton; Princeton; Short Hills; Monmouth, and the Siege of Yorktown. After the war, Washington si... See more
