Three for three

By Tech. Sgt. Mark Olsen, 177FW/PA

"In the top 10 percent of ANG units."

That was how lead inspector and Team Chief Dick McCoy of the National Guard Bureau described the 177th Fighter Wing in the final assessment of the Environmental, Safety, Occupational Health, Compliance Assessment and Management Program (ESOH CAMP) inspection. The inspection is performed every three years.

"Out of 98 units they inspect (during the inspection cycle), we were among the top nine," observed 177th Fighter Wing Commander Col. Randall S. King.

This makes the third separate inspection the Wing has gone through in less than a month and passed with flying colors. The Wing recently completed a Unit Compliance Inspection on March 31 and Health Services Inspection on March 30.

During the inspection McCoy noted that the "Inspectors were impressed by the level of cooperation in the shops."

The inspection began on April 14 and ended with a briefing to the Wing leadership on April 17. During that time the team of 11 inspectors inspected the following specific Wing programs: Environmental, Ground Safety, Occupational Health, Weapons Safety, Flying Safety, and the Environmental Management System, and finally inspection of various Wing activities including the Warren Grove Range.

In the final report and briefing McCoy cited Capt. Rich DeFeo, who runs the 177th Environmental Management Office, for running "a great environmental program!"

ESOH CAMP inspections are designed to assist wings in complying with Federal, State, Local and Air Force and Air National Guard regulations, assure commanders their programs are effective, provide data for programming, and budgeting Environmental, Health, and Safety (ESOH) programs and lastly, provide training to enhance installation ESOH capabilities. In addition, the inspection assures the Air National Guard and installation commander that their ESOH programs are effectively addressing problems that could significantly degrade the environment, adversely affect the health and safety of employees, or expose the Air National Guard and its people to avoidable financial liabilities as a result of noncompliance with requirements.

With statements such as "strong program" and "well prepared" the 177th Fighter Wing is definitely on the right track.

ChalleNge cadets clean up Pine Barrens

By Paul Wityk, ChalleNge social studies instructor

On Sunday, April 20, cadets from the New Jersey Youth ChalleNge Academy teamed up with volunteers from the Forked River Mountain Coalition to help with their Annual Pine Barrens Clean-up. The cadets cleaned up more than five miles of dirt access roads that crisscross Ocean County. With the help of two front end loaders, the cadets filled two large dumpsters with everything from sofas and mattresses to tires and everything in-between. Kerry, the event organizer, commented that the cadets far exceeded his expectations and that the Forked River Mountain Coalition would be very pleased to have the cadets help them again. Thank you cadets for all of your hard work!

Recycling rules for Lawrenceville

From the desk of Joseph K. Dunleavy, NJDMAVA Environmental Office

Recycling is mandatory in New Jersey and this department should be a leader for all state agencies and for those that visit our building each day. There has been some confusion with our recycling program in the past, but fortunately this is about to change.

The key to a successful recycling program is that the participants follow directions and separate their recyclables from the trash properly. Below is a list of items that must be recycled. New recycling opportunities may be added in the future and this page will be updated accordingly.

If you have any questions regarding the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection's recycling program, please contact Mr. Joe Dunleavy at (609) 530-7134 or contact the DEP Recycling Program in the Bureau of Recycling and Planning.

Holocaust Remembrance Day

By Tech. Sgt. Mark Olsen, 177FW/PA

Editor's note: Holocaust Remembrance Day and the Days of Remembrance memorialize all who died in the Holocaust. This year marks the 70th Anniversary of Kristallnacht.

Bach, Beethoven and Brahms; Goethe, Nietzsche and Hegel; Friedrich, Kandinsky and Marc.

Hitler, Himmler and Goebbels.

Jarring isn't it. The country that produced some of the greatest composers, philosophers and artists also gave the world the "Final Solution" – the Holocaust – concentration camps and killing squads – an entire apparatus developed for the single purpose of "efficiently" murdering entire races of people.

When people think of the Holocaust, they think of the more than six million Jews killed in the concentration camps. Yet there were other victims of Nazi aggression, which can be divided into three groups: racial, political and "undesirables". The racial group was comprised of Jews, Poles, Soviet Slavs and POWs, Roma (Gypsies) and non-Europeans (Africans and some Asians). Those that fell under the political criteria included political prisoners, leftists, trade unionists, Freemasons and enemy nationals. The last group – "undesirables" is a catch-all group that included: the handicapped and mentally ill, German homosexuals, Catholic clergy, Confessing Church members, (a German Christian resistance movement), Jehovah's Witnesses, prostitutes, vagrants, alcoholics, drug addicts and common criminals. In the broadest definition, including Russian civilian deaths, researchers estimate that more than 17 million people were killed by the Nazis.

Yet the Holocaust did not spring into existence overnight.

It began in 1933 when the Nazi government enacted a series of laws restricting the rights of German Jews to earn a living, enjoy full citizenship and to education. By 1935, the Nazis had enacted 48 additional laws – the most abhorrent were the "Nuremberg Laws" created 'for the protection of German blood and honour' (by prohibiting Jews from being citizens of the Reich and forbidding marriage between "those of German or related blood" and Jews, Roma (Gypsies), blacks, or their offspring.

In the ensuing years, the situation deteriorated and by 1938, the situation had gotten to the breaking point. In October, 12,000 Polish-born Jews were given one night to pack one suitcase and were expelled from Germany. As they left, neighbors and Nazi party members broke into their homes to steal the remaining possessions. Sent to the Polish border, 4,000 were given entry, the rest, remained in a deportee limbo at the border.

Herschel Grynszpan, the son of one of the deported couples, was living in Paris at the time. On Nov. 3, he received a postcard his sister asking for help. The next day, he read about the deportations in a newspaper. On Nov. 6, Grynszpan bought a revolver and the following day went to the German embassy in Paris and "in the name of 12,000 persecuted Jews," shot the Secretary of Legation, Ernst vom Rath, fatally wounding him. Grynszpan was arrested, and remanded to the Gestapo where he vanished without a trace.

Following vom Rath's death two days later, an orchestrated orgy of anti-Jewish violence – called a pogrom – broke out throughout Germany.

The pogrom, called Kristallnacht (it is also referred to as Reichskristallnacht, Reichspogromnacht, Crystal Night and the Night of the Broken Glass), had begun and would last from Nov. 9-10.

Thirty-six Jews were killed (some researchers have this figure at 91); 30,000 more were deported to Buchenwald, Dachau, and Sachsenhausen concentration camps, where hundreds died within weeks of arrival; 267 synagogues were burned and more than 7,000 Jewish shops, businesses and homes were vandalized and ransacked. The prisoners were released only after they agreed to transfer their property to "Aryans" and leave Germany.

State authorities made no attempt to contain the rioting. In fact, Reinhard Heydrich, the head of the office which oversaw the Gestapo (Geheimes Staatspolizei-Amt or GeStaPA, which translates as Secret State Police Office), police and SD (Sicherheitsdienst was the intelligence service of the SS) sent a secret telegram on Nov. 10 to "all head quarters and stations of the State Police; all districts and sub-districts of the SD " with the following admonition: "The demonstrations are not to be prevented by the police".

While a number of world governments condemned the Nazis, no economic and military action was taken against them. This led the Nazi government to two conclusions: the first was that whatever they wanted to do to the Jews, it had to be done secretly. The second and more far-reaching conclusion was that nobody would stop them.

Kristallnacht foreshadowed the "Final Solution."

Order a complimentary Blue Star Flag to show your family's service

From the desk of retired Command Sgt. Maj. Mike Hughes, Family Assistance Specialist

The Blue Star Flag first appeared in 1917, when Capt. Robert L. Queissner, who had two sons serving on the front line, designed it as a tribute to their dedication and service. He proudly displayed this flag in the front window of his home and the flag quickly became the unofficial symbol of a child in the service. Also known as a Service Flag, the blue star stands for hope and pride. Order a complimentary Blue Star Flag to honor your loved ones in the service by visiting: www.grantham.edu/promo/freebluestar.php.

Association News

Enlisted Association wants YOU!

By retired Command Sgt. Maj. Mike Hughes, EANG-NJ

The Enlisted Association National Guard-New Jersey is off to a good start for 2008 as we have realigned all the committees and filled both the Executive Council and Committees with a cross section of Army and Air, uniformed and retirees, and several junior NCOs. Everyone appears to be enthused and pledges to support the Association in all its efforts. All we need now is for you to get on board as a member and bring your fellow soldiers and airmen with you.

We have many challenges facing us over the next few years whether it is another round of base closures via the Base Realignment Commission (BRAC), reduction in TRICARE benefits, reduction in troop strength, attempts to maintain the retirement age at 60, etc. We need a powerful voice to put our message across to the State and Federal Legislators and this can only be accomplished through a strong membership in our State Association (EANG-NJ) and the National Association (EANGUS).

The new membership year starts on 1 January 2008 and we need your help in making our Association grow. We encourage all enlisted soldiers and airmen to join the Association as Active Members and also welcome all officers, warrant officers, federal, and state employees to join as Associate Members. Applications for membership can be obtained from our website www.eang-nj.org.
