The session upon which we have just entered is likely to prove interesting and important. From every section of our State there is an urgent demand for reform in matters of local and general government, looking to the prudent and economical administration of the people's affairs. Loaded down by taxation in all its varied forms, the people ask and should have relief. It will be our chief duty to legislate as to matters in this direction.

In all these, and other questions which shall be brought before this Senate, my earnest effort will be to keep the order of our work within the rules and lines laid down by the Senate for its government; at all times having regard to despatch of business. I shall, of course, ofttimes need much of your forbearance and your courtesy, which I know I shall receive.

The annual message of his excellency, the Governor, was received at the hands of his Private Secretary, and read as follows:

Gentlemen of the Senate and General Assembly:

Notwithstanding the continued hardships of the times, our people have been signally blessed, during the year just closed, with abundant harvests and general good health. For these and all other bounties constantly bestowed upon us, great gratitude is due to Almighty God.

This session will be peculiarly gratifying to you and your constituents, in the fact that the usual rate of taxation can now be reduced. There being no occasion for extraordinary appropriations of any considerable size, a part of the tax revenue may well be dispensed with.

REVENUES AND TAXATION.

Inasmuch as the Legislature is not permitted by the Constitution to incur a civil debt exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, without submission of the law therefor directly to a vote of the people, the expenditures of the State must be kept substantially within its revenues. This is a most salutary provision, and has been faithfully observed since the Constitution was adopted. A sure and simple test of the public burthens, so far as the State is concerned, must therefore be an exhibit of the revenues, for in that way can be seen, at a glance, the exact extent of the taxes. Without taxation the cost of government would not be felt; hence the measure of the burthen is the amount of the taxes. The following is a statement of the revenues from all sources for the fiscal year ending October 31st, 1877, (except Sinking Fund):

School tax, two mills on dollar,	$1,225,462 48
State tax, one and a half mills on dollar,	901,306 24
Total from general taxes,	$2,126,768 72
Tax from corporations,	599,842 63
Interest and dividends on stock and bonds,	31,010 00
State Prison receipts,	65,793 95
Fines and forfeited recognizances,	359 67
Licenses and fees,	535 00
Assessments on private acts,	105 00
Rent from United States for court room (half year),	400 00
Returned by Centennial Commission,	312 23
From sale of Revised Statutes,	1,950 00
Received on Centennial stock,	19,883 33

Interest on Agricultural College Fund,	6,960 00
Income and increase of School Fund,	164,452 65
Securities of School Fund paid off,	24,525 00
Temporary loans on securities, total,	270,000 00
Balance in bank Oct. 31, 1877,	118,076 01
Total receipts,	$3,430,974 19

Several of these items will be explained under appropriate heads. The tax from corporations is paid chiefly by railroad companies, either upon special contracts or by force of the general act taxing railroads. The amount received for fines, recognizances, licenses and fees, appears less than last year, but it is really about the same; the account, through misapprehension, was not in condition to be audited in time, for the close of the fiscal year. But few private acts having been passed since the amended Constitution, the revenue from that source has become insignificant. The loans referred to were procured at five per cent.; all have been paid, except fifty thousand dollars, and that soon will be. It is often necessary to borrow in anticipation of taxes, as the year ends October 31, and the taxes are not received until the last of December and in January. The balance in bank October 31, 1876, partly belonged to the School Fund. Much of the revenue of the State is raised by tax or obtained from certain securities and interests for special purposes, and cannot be diverted. Of that character are the taxes for the support of Public Schools, the receipts of the School Fund for income and increase, and also of the Agricultural College Fund for income.

In looking over the exhibit of receipts, it is apparent that the public can feel the weight of the State Government only in two items: one on the special school tax, the other the ordinary State tax. If these were stricken from the list, there would be no State taxes to pay. I emphasize this fact in order that the Legislature, and, through it, the people, may understand the precise amounts and nature of what they contribute to the State Treasury. The sum raised by general taxation for schools is one million two hundred and twenty-five thousand four hundred and sixty-two dollars and forty-eight cents ($1,225,462.48). This merely passes through the Treasury, and is all distributed to the various public schools throughout the State. It, however, helps swell the aggregate of receipts and disbursements, and, without consideration, might wrongfully be taken as a part of the current general expenses of the Government, but it is not; it is raised and expended solely for the support of public schools. The first appearance of this tax is in the act of April 6, 1871, by which, for the purpose of maintaining free schools, an assessment was authorized of two mills on each dollar, according to the ratables of the preceding year. The same has since been continued, and is known as the two-mill tax. By one of the recent amendments to the Constitution, the Legislature is required to "provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in this State between the ages of five and eighteen years." Previous to 1871 the only money paid by the State towards free schools was the ordinary appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars, sixty-five thousand dollars of which were supplied from the ordinary State revenues, and the balance from the income of the school fund. The interest of the surplus revenue held by the counties was also appropriated by the townships for the same object. The townships were also authorized and required to raise by taxation such sums, by vote of the town meeting, as they deemed proper for the support of public schools, not less than two nor more than four dollars for each child. The districts had power also to raise additional sums. The only mode then, by which schools could be made free was through the townships and districts, except in municipalities controlled by special laws. It has been deemed wise to place our school system under a general management, and hence the State school tax. There is, and ought to be, no escape from the obligation to maintain free schools. The Constitution is imperative. The amount now assessed is barely sufficient for that purpose, and the two-mill tax must either be continued, or another system adopted by which the different localities will be compelled to raise at least a like amount. I assume, therefore, that the two-mill tax is permanent, and to the credit of our people, be it said, they quite generally feel satisfied to pay it.

The other item of tax is for ordinary State purposes. The amount received during the year ending October 31, 1877, was nine hundred and one thousand three hundred and six dollars and twenty-four cents, ($901,306.24); the amount assessed in 1877, but collectable after the fiscal year, was $895,250.56. This tax is assessed at one and a half mills on each dollar of the ratables. The war made it necessary to impose a State tax. At first, the sum needed was determined by the Legislature and apportioned to the counties. That system was continued until 1870, when the assessment was fixed at one mill on each dollar of the valuation of all real and personal property, as returned to the Comptroller. That rate remained until 1873, when the half mill was added, and has since been retained. This increase was required chiefly by reason of the new Insane Asylum at Morristown. That institution being completed, the half mill can be discontinued. It was seriously considered at the last session whether taxation might not then be reduced, but on account of the appropriation of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars to complete and furnish the Asylum, and the appropriation for an addition to the State Prison, it was concluded best not to hazard the condition of the finances. I am happy to know that now no reason exists against a reduction. The one and a half mill tax has averaged about nine hundred thousand dollars annually for the five years since the passage of the act of 1873. The half mill has produced in the aggregate about one million five hundred thousand dollars, which would be three hundred thousand dollars for each year. Within that time there have been paid towards the Morristown Asylum alone, nearly two million of dollars, one million three hundred and fifty thousand dollars having been paid during my term of office, entirely from the ordinary taxes, and without disposing of a dollar of the State securities.

The total appropriated for the Asylum, beginning with the year 1871, and since expended, is two million four hundred and fifty thousand dollars. In reviewing the finances of the whole period, I cannot but wonder that the State was at all times able, without a further increase of taxation, to satisfy its obligations. The entire cost of that immense structure and the farm has been met without embarrassment, and the condition of the Treasury is thoroughly sound. It is well to pause and think how little of the vast sums exacted from the people in the shape of taxes of every description, is assessed and collected for State purposes. Three and a half mills include it all; two mills being the special School tax, and one and a half mills the ordinary State tax. If State, county and municipal taxes amount to twenty dollars on a thousand, the share of the State is three dollars and fifty cents. Of that, two dollars are immediately returned to the counties for the support of free schools, the balance—one dollar and fifty cents only—remaining for the general uses of the Treasury. In many cities the taxes exceed two per cent.

Any person may examine his tax bills and readily see how small a portion is required by the State. The conclusion is irresistible that the burthens of which the public complain are nearer home than the State Treasury. They exist in most of the local governments, and are the result of schemes of improvement in advance of legitimate demand, and other extravagances, by which assessments, debts and taxes have been piled up, actually oppressive in many instances, and from which the people are seeking relief. No better service can be performed by the Legislature than to simplify the machinery of municipal government; dispense with useless offices, carefully and stringently limit the power of improvement and expenditure, and provide for a gradual payment of existing assessments and local debts. It is relief from immediate heavy taxation and assessment that is now particularly needed. But legislation alone cannot correct the evils of the times. The habits and demands of the people have been too expensive, and official action has been influenced thereby. Recent experience, however, is creating an appreciation of the necessity of economy, and there is strong hope that a healthier sentiment will eradicate much of the previous disposition to be reckless, both in private and public affairs. The duty of the hour, among all classes, is to be intolerant of waste and extravagance, and thereby encourage, not only in individuals, but throughout the whole range of official conduct, a safe and reasonable economy.

While watching the revenues, the disbursements should always claim a close attention. I therefore present a classified statement of the various objects and amounts expended or disbursed for the year ending October 31, 1877. The total is three million two hundred and sixteen thousand nineteen dollars and eighty-eight cents ($3,216,019.88). Of that, seventy-nine thousand three hundred and seventy-five dollars ($79,375) were permanently invested for the School Fund, and three hundred and eighty thousand dollars ($380,000) paid for temporary loans. Deducting these from the whole amount, the balance is two million seven hundred and fifty-six thousand six hundred and forty-four dollars and eighty-eight cents ($2,756,644.88) for the other disbursements of the year, except some interest on the war debt from the income of the Sinking Fund, the account of which is confined to that fund.

All the foregoing items are so clearly explained in the Comptroller's report that any one desiring to study the finances may easily learn the exact character of every class of payments, and by the aid of the Treasurer's report, also clear, become conversant with the minutest detail. The labor of the Comptroller in his report has lightened my own in this message, and for satisfactory information in reference to every important expenditure, I commend it to your consideration.

For educational, scientific, benevolent, charitable and patriotic purposes alone the disbursements were one million eight hundred and forty-four thousand two hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-three cents ($1,844,232.43), and for the items of war debt, preservation of the peace, and State Prison extension, two hundred and sixty-four thousand nine hundred and nineteen dollars and thirty-seven cents (264,919.37), making a total of two million one hundred and nine thousand one hundred and fifty-one dollars and eighty cents ($2,109,151.80). That sum deducted from the aggregate of disbursements (less School Fund investments and loans) leaves six hundred and forty-seven thousand four hundred and ninety-three dollars and eight cents ($647,493.08) for all other expenses, classified as Criminal, Penal, Reformatory, Legislative, Judicial, Printing, Advertising, Binding, Military and Miscellaneous.

The balance in bank October 31, 1877, to the credit of all the funds (except Sinking) was $214,954.31. In the State Bank of New Brunswick at the time of the appointment of a Receiver, twenty-six thousand dollars of this were on deposit.

The question is pending undetermined before the Chancellor whether the State has preference over other creditors.

PERMANENT FUNDS AND SECURITIES.

The State securities are as follows:

Stock of Camden and Amboy and Joint Companies (par),	$288,700 00
Bonds of Joint Companies,	24,000 00
Bond of Jersey City and Bergen Railroad Company,	10,000 00
	$322,700 00

The market value is now about three hundred and eighty thousand dollars. These, or other securities equivalent, should always be retained, as they afford the only means of obtaining temporary loans, outside of the one hundred thousand dollars permitted by the Constitution. No securities have been sold during my term.

On the Centennial stock the State has received $19,883.33. The suit referred to in my last message, to determine whether the United States Government should be paid its advance in preference to the stockholders, was ultimately decided by the Supreme Court at Washington against the latter. It is uncertain how much will yet be returned, but the amount must necessarily be small.

The School Fund is steadily increasing, and consists of

Investments,	$1,248,933 50
Real estate,	13,000 00
Amount unpaid from State Fund,	209,000 00
Balance in bank October 31, 1877,	111,088 88
	$1,582,022 38
Grants or leases of lands under water on payment of 7 per cent. on principal sums of,	734,239 77
	$2,316,262 15

Other rentals of land under water annually $5,095; also unpaid interests and rents.

When the size of the fund is considered, it seems strange that it is required to contribute only forty thousand dollars annually towards the public schools. It was originally designed as an aid merely to the schools, and not to make them free. Large accumulations of capital under public management are rarely consistent with a sound State policy. While our Constitution lasts, free schools must be maintained chiefly by taxation, and generations will pass before the fund will be large enough to materially reduce the rate of necessary tax. I am fully convinced that it is unadvisable, owing to the uncertainties of investments made even with the most careful thought, to capitalize the income, and thereby add to the natural increase of principal arising from the sales and rentals of the State's lands. As the law stands, of the annual appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars towards the schools, sixty thousand must be borne by the Treasury, out of the taxes and other revenues, while the fund bears only the balance. From the interest of the fund the whole appropriation could easily be paid, and the Treasury thereby be relieved of the sixty thousand dollars. I respectfully renew the recommendation made at the last session—that the law be changed to reach that result.

THE SINKING FUND.

The report of the Commissioners shows assets amounting, October 31, 1877, to $1,371,911.09, as follows:

Loans on mortgages,	$1,273,612 20
Real estate at cost and expense,	45,803 64
School bonds,	9,588 20
Notes,	5,854 80
Balance in bank,	37,052 25
	$1,371,911 09

Owing to the general depression in values, the Commissioners have been obliged, in order to protect loans, to make some purchases of land on foreclosure; hence the real estate on hand.

The War Debt—towards the payment of which this fund is set apart—is two million one hundred and ninety-six thousand three hundred dollars ($2,196,300). One hundred thousand dollars of the bonds mature each year up to 1891. From that time to 1902 the maturing amounts vary, not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars any year. In 1902 the last bonds become payable. The debt exceeds the assets of the Sinking Fund (the January interest having been paid) only about eight hundred and forty thousand dollars ($840,000). From the taxes, one hundred thousand dollars are paid each year on the first day of January, to satisfy the maturing bonds; the deficiency of interest that the income of the Sinking Fund cannot meet, is also provided for from the taxes.

The Agricultural College Fund is invested in bonds of our own State; the principal being one hundred and sixteen thousand dollars ($116,000.) The yearly income of $6,960 is paid towards the salaries of professors in the Scientific School of Rutger's College. This fund arose from the sale of scrip for public lands, given by the United States to States which would provide colleges for the benefit of agricultural and the mechanic arts. The State accepted the trust, and appropriated the interest to the trustees of Rutger's College in aid of such course of instruction in the Scientific School, as would carry out the intention of the act of Congress. The trustees conduct an experimental farm, and every opportunity is afforded for a thorough scientific and practical education. I again commend to public attention the valuable reports of the school and farm. They are worthy of wide circulation. The State is entitled to the free education of forty students, apportioned among the counties, according to legislative representation, and accepted on recommendation of the County Superintendents. The Board of Visitors are deeply impressed with the importance of enlarging the scope of experiments on the farm, and therefore ask assistance. In view of the benefit to farmers generally, I think a moderate appropriation wise.

ESTIMATES.

The Comptroller's estimates of probable receipts and expenditures for the current year applicable to the State Fund account, have been carefully prepared, and afford a reliable basis of calculation. At the end of the year, October 31, 1878, it is estimated that available balance to the credit of the State Fund will be two hundred and seventy-two thousand five hundred and fifty dollars and twenty-three cents ($272,550.23)—this not including the deposit in the bank at New Brunswick. The tax bill must be prepared with refence to the wants of the succeeding year. The taxes of 1877 form part of the revenue of the present year. The expenditures of the next year will probably not exceed those estimated for the whole of the current year. A tax of one mill and a half on the ratables, upon which the assessment of 1878 must be made, would produce $849,376.04. The deduction, one-half a mill, will be $283,376.04. It will thus be seen that the available balance is very little less than the reduction.

There is, therefore, no room for large, unusual appropriations. If, in addition to the balance as estimated, the Treasury should be relieved from the sixty thousand dollars which the School Fund ought to pay, the condition of the finances for the coming year will be easy. In case of difficulty, temporary loans, as heretofore, could be obtained upon the State securities, or a part of the debt now due the School Fund, which is included in the estimates, remain unpaid. I anticipate no embarrassment in confining the ordinary State tax to one mill; that rate will produce $566,250.69, which will be the only revenue raised directly from the people for ordinary, expenditures, being ten cents on one hundred dollars.

PENAL AND REFORMATORY INSTITUTIONS.

State Prison.—The business results of the year at the Prison have been very gratifying, considering the low prices to which the State has been obliged to submit in making contracts for labor. The earnings and incomes peculiar to the year were $75,611.70 (the actual earnings being $75,405.95), and the expenses $133,148.49, leaving a balance against the State of $57,536.79, which is $34,509.44 less than that of the preceding year. The earnings exceed the cost of maintenance $12,129.26. The account for maintenance includes provisions, fuel, lights, water, clothing and all other matters of expense except salaries of keeper, supervisor, inspectors, deputies and clerks, repairs and moneys given to discharged convicts as provided by law. The health of the prisoners has been good, and the management of the Prison most excellent. Rapid progress is being made with the new building authorized at the last session and in a few weeks it will be completed. The cost will not exceed the appropriation. The number of convicts October 31, 1877, was eight hundred and five, the daily average for the year eight hundred and sixteen, an increase of fifty over that of last year. I respectfully suggest an inquiry into the practicability of making provision at a moderate expense, while the improvements are in progress, for the care of insane convicts. As to inspectors, I beg to renew the recommendation contained in the following extract from my last annual message: "By the recent amendments, the office of Prison Inspector was stricken from the Constitution, the term of the Keeper extended from one to five years, and the mode of his appointment changed, he now being nominated by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. This action of the people I think can only be interpreted as intending that the office of Inspectors should be abolished, and greater responsibility rest upon the Keeper. Impressed with that view, I am constrained to recommend that existing laws be made comformable to the spirit of the amendments in that respect."

Reform School for Boys.—The payments from the treasury for this school during the year were thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars ($37,500) two thousand dollars of which were for permanent improvements. The number of pupils October 31, 1877, was 247, the average of the year being 230. The farm is well cultivated, and has been more productive the last than any previous year. The industries of the boys, apart from farm labor, consist of making bricks and tile, manufacturing shirts, and laundry work. There is need of better outbuildings on the farm for live stock and produce. The third story of the new workshop building is occupied by a family of boys, and that space is required for a drying room, the manufacture of paper boxes and other employments. In order to utilize it for those purposes further family room is necessary. Gas should also be supplied as early as possible. I refer to these matters in order that, whenever the finances permit, the Legislature may regard them. Bricks being upon the ground, a suitable family building could be erected at a moderate outlay. This school is one of the most important institutions of the State, and the Trustees and Superintendent have been devoted in their duties. Impressed with the wisdom of having the boys bound out to farming or trades, and receiving the benefits of home surroundings, I invite public attention to this class of labor. Most of the boys are bright, and under proper social influences, would become good and useful citizens. Besides, the expense to the State of their support would thereby be avoided. The Trustees have power to bind out the boys.

Industrial School for Girls.—This school continues to be well managed by the Trustees and Matron. The number of girls remaining November 1, 1877, was twenty-eight. Several were indentured during the year. The following extract from the Trustees' report is worthy of consideration: "We think we are warranted in saying that five-sixths of the ninety-one girls who have been in the school since its opening, are now living moral and useful lives." The school received during the year from the Treasury $7,000.

BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

Morristown Insane Asylum.—The Legislature appropriated, by act of March 7, 1877, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars to the Commissioners towards this Asylum, with a proviso that the sum should not be "paid out until an estimate of the deficiency in completing the Asylum be furnished the Governor, and until such time as he is satisfied that the amount is sufficient to entirely complete the building and furniture." The estimate having been rendered, and I being satisfied, as required by law, the appropriation was paid. At the last session the portico of the main building was not erected, and about one-half of the furniture was to be added; the expenditures had also considerably exceeded the appropriations. A careful calculation was made of the cost necessary to meet these demands, and I have no doubt that the last appropriation is sufficient to cover them all. The Commissioners have executed a contract to construct the portico for nine thousand seven hundred and forty-nine dollars ($9,749). The work is in progress, and it is expected that the same will soon be completed. The accounts of the Commissioners herewith presented, with their report, show the disbursements since the last report, and the money on hand at the end of the year. The whole amount appropriated and paid for the farm, buildings and improvements has been $2,450,000. There remains to be done considerable work in laying out the grounds and building fences, but this can be gradually prosecuted with the ordinary labor and income of the institution. Notwithstanding the cost, the State is to be congratulated in possessing an Asylum unexcelled in the world for beauty, capacity, convenience and durability. To its erection and completion the Commissioners—who are of our best and ablest citizens—have, without compensation, and at great personal sacrifice, given their time, energies and judgment, and rendered a full equivalent for the whole outlay. There has been no jobbery about it. Whatever criticism may be made as to the magnitude of the structure, it is certain that the Commissioners have faithfully done their duty, and are entitled to the gratitude and commendation of the people of the State. The number of patients in the institution October 31, 1877, was four hundred and forty-five. For further particulars I refer to the interesting report of the Superintendent. The State has expended during the year for salaries and patients in this Asylum $26,441.67. Each of the Asylums is supported by the revenue from private patients, payments by the counties for public patients, and a further sum from the Treasury, of one dollar per week, for every county patient. The Trenton Asylum receives a revenue for insane convicts. The salaries are all paid by the State.

Trenton Lunatic Asylum.—The number of patients in this Asylum October 31, 1877, was five hundred and ten. The established reputation of this institution for thoroughness in its appointments and efficiency of treatment, is maintained under its new Superintendent. His report is full of valuable facts and suggestions. The managers are constant and faithful in their duties. The payments from the Treasury during the year for salaries and county patients amount to $37,807.15, a part thereof ($11,821.21) being for insane convicts. These are paid for at the rate of seven dollars per week, including clothing. I invite attention to the views of the managers and Superintendent on the desirability of disconnecting this class of patients from the Asylum.

Home for Disabled Soldiers.—There is nothing special to note respecting this institution. The management continues unexceptionable. The cost of the year was $44,743.27.

The Soldiers' Children's Home is still unoccupied, except by a person employed to take care of the premises. I again remind the Legislature, that at the time of its close, two New Jersey bonds of one thousand dollars each were deposited by the managers with the Treasurer, to await such disposition as might lawfully be made of them. The facts are contained in my last annual message.

EDUCATION.

The Normal, Model and Farnum Schools are very prosperous, and were never better managed. The reports contain all needed information. The expenses applicable to each, as well as the Board of Education, will be found in the statement of disbursements hereinbefore presented. Our public school system is admirable. The report of the State Superintendent, as usual, is replete with facts.

The Deaf and Dumb, Blind and Feeble-minded, continue to be educated in institutions of other States. The number of pupils and cost for the year are :

107 Deaf and Dumb,	$30,368 39
47 Blind,	12,489 58
32 Feeble-minded,	7,968 00

The present mode of educating these classes has proved not only economical to the State but very advantageous to the pupils. The institutions selected are of the highest character, and there is no difficulty now in obtaining sufficient accommodation. It would be well, however, inasmuch as the Soldiers' Children's Home is idle, to make provision there for the deaf and dumb. It could, at a moderate expense, be adapted to that purpose. The amount annually expended for the feeble-minded is less than the interest on the cost of a suitable building and grounds for them would be, and the amount paid for the blind is less than it would cost to erect and support an institution for them. Beyond an expenditure sufficient to fit up the Soldiers' Children's Home for the deaf and dumb, I respectfully submit that the State, under existing circumstances, ought not to venture. The people need rest from all expense that can reasonably be avoided, and this branch of educational work will not suffer by waiting until better and more liberal times shall justify an extension on a larger scale.

NATIONAL GUARD.

The act of March 9, 1877, provided for a reduction of the National Guard, so as not to exceed forty-eight companies of infantry and one battery of artillery. The minimum of enlisted men in each company was also increased from forty to fifty. The Major-General immediately proceeded to carry out the law, and now, instead of sixty-two companies, as before, there are but forty-seven. The cavalry companies (two) have been disbanded; the company of artillery remains. The present force is organized into seven regiments, which compose two brigades and one division. The reduction is plainly visible in the decrease of expense, as each company is entitled by law to five hundred dollars annually towards uniforms and armory rent. The ordinary military disbursements of the year were as follows:

Appropriations,	$29,572 77
State Arsenal and miscellaneous expenses,	8,496 05
	$38,068 82

All of the regiments except one are armed with the Springfield breech-loading rifle. At the inspection in October last the number of officers was 193, and of enlisted men 2,865. The officers generally are fully up to the proper standard of efficiency, some possessing qualifications of a very high order. For discipline and adaptability to service, the troops of this State, as organized and equipped, are not excelled by the militia of any other. I trust that the National Guard will be permanently maintained on its present basis as necessary and adequate to secure perfect peace.

PRESERVATION OF THE PEACE.

During the night of the twentieth of July last, it being evident that the spirit of lawlessness which had broken out in other States, defying public authority and rapidly spreading, would overrun this State and result in serious disturbance and violence unless firmly resisted, orders were issued for the Fourth Regiment and a part of the Seventh to be in readiness for immediate call. The danger continuing and increasing, and it being clear that the most energetic means should be adopted to prevent outbreaks and protect the peace to a certainty, all the companies of the National Guard were on the night of the twenty-second of July, ordered to rendezvous at their armories under arms ready for duty. In obedience thereto, the whole force promptly responded, and for several days thereafter was continued in service wherever required. From time to time, as circumstances would permit, portions were discharged, and the last returned to their homes on the ninth day of August, when quiet was thoroughly restored and absolutely secured. The remembrance of the prominent events of those days is too fresh to necessitate recapitulation, but in order that their history, so far as it relates to New Jersey particularly, might be preserved, and you accurately informed of whatever was done to prevent violence and maintain the power of law within our own borders, Colonel A. Q. Garretson, Aide-de-Camp and Acting Assistant Adjutant-General, at my request, has prepared a full report or record thereof in narrative form, showing the leading movements of troops, the objects in view thereby, and the other means taken to suppress disorder and vindicate the laws. To that report, which is annexed to the Adjutant-General's annual report, I invite special attention. For further military details I refer to the reports of Major-General Mott, Division Commander, and Brevet Major-General Sewell, commander of the Provisional Brigade at Phillipsburg.

In preserving the peace two principles were acted upon: One, that it was the duty primarily of the civil power to prevent and put down all disorder, if possible. The existence of disturbance does not relieve magistrates, police and other peace officers from, but it increases, their responsibility, Every effort was therefore made to urge and encourage those officers to be vigilant and active, and generally their dutys were faithfully performed. The other principle was, that the military should support the civil authorities at all hazards, and in no event, when necessary to use the troops, should a failure to succeed be permitted. Failure in the use of military to suppress riots only aggravates, and futile effort is reprehensible, if possible to guard against it. For these reasons, and to stifle the least outbreak, the whole National Guard was ordered on duty. Its presence, so distributed as to be available at probable or possible points of danger, gave such assurance of support to the civil powers, and created such a dread of the consequences attendant upon disorder and riot, that those disposed to be lawless were kept in check, and life and property thereby thoroughly protected. The outcroppings of violence here and there were but the indications of what might have happened with less precaution.

The military were at all times faithful, prompt and soldierly, meriting and receiving general commendation. I regret that the pay of the men was so inadequate to the service performed, being only at the rate of $13 a month, and therefore ask and recommend that the Legislature make further provision for them. The amount thus far expended in preserving the peace is fifty-five thousand four hundred and thirty-two dollars and fifty cents ($55,432.50). Deducting from that, one thousand six hundred and seventy-seven dollars and twenty-one cents ($1,677.21), for property purchased and turned into the Arsenal, the net amount paid up to this time is $53,755.29. Allowing for a few small scattering bills, the whole cost cannot exceed fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000), apart from the property on hand as stated. No charges have been made by the railroad companies for transportation. Detailed accounts of all the expenditures, with the vouchers and pay rolls, will be found in the office of the Quartermaster-General.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Riparian Commissioners during the year up to December 1, 1877, executed grants and leases of land under tide-water as follows.

Grants,	$43,257 86
Leases at a yearly rental of seven per cent. on principal sums of,	43,529 00
	$86,786 86

They have furnished a schedule of all the grants and leases made, both by the Legislature and the Commissioners, since April 16, 1864. The grants amount to one million two hundred and sixty-eight thousand seven hundred and fifty-four dollars and twenty-nine cents ($1,268,754.29); the leases in principal sums paying rentals to eight hundred and seventeen thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine dollars and seventy-seven cents ($817,839.77). Some of the leases, by payment of the principal sums, have become grants. There is an increasing disposition among riparian owners to avail themselves of the State's title. The Legislature has justly given them the primary right of purchase or lease, and the Commissioners have thus far exclusively confined their grants and leases to those owners.

Printing and Advertising Laws.—The cost for these objects was considerably less the last than the preceding year. Last year it amounted to $86,784.74, being a decrease of $23,296.13. The chief difference is in publishing the laws in newspapers. That item is twenty-two thousand five hundred and forty-nine dollars and five cents ($22,549.05) less than in 1876. Notwithstanding this saving, the whole cost in 1877 was $45,411.90. It is worthy the consideration of the Legislature whether the number of newspapers authorized to publish the laws should not still be further diminished.

Pensions—This account aggregates for the year thirty-four thousand five hundred and eighty-four dollars and fifty-six cents. I again refer to the statistics upon this subject in the annual message of 1876, and suggest that the law be further amended so as to reduce this expense. The amendatory act of 1876, made no material reduction. The Adjutant-General's report gives the present condition of the pension list.

The Geological Board has continued its work throughout the year and presented two reports—one a final report on the Clay District of Middlesex county—the other the regular annual report. The former brings out fully a description of our rich deposits of clay, and other materials for pottery and refractory wares. It is estimated that the State has within its borders three-fourths of all the potteries for making fine earthenware in the United States, and the largest establishments for manufacturing fire brick. The completion of this report is opportune, and must help much in the development amongst us of what is now a most promising and valuable branch of industry. The annual report contains very important matter relating to drainage, fertilizers, soils, minerals, and our natural resources generally. I commend both reports to your attention and that of the public as of great value.

Savings and Insurance Companies.—It is very essential that existing laws providing for an examination of these corporations, should be so amended as to prevent the assets from being carried out of the jurisdiction of the State, or otherwise abstracted, pending the investigation or between its completion and the time the Chancellor may assume control. Whenever on an examination, danger is apprehended in that respect, there should exist a summary power in the State Examiner to direct and protect the custody of the books, securities and funds until the completion of his duty and the restraining action of the Chancellor, if such became necessary. Without that power an examination, instead of benefiting depositors and the insured, may be but the occasion for removing everything of value beyond the jurisdiction of the State and defying its courts.

The report of the Secretary of State as Insurance Commissioner, is an important document, particularly, as showing the extent of the insurance business amongst us.

Fugitives from Justice.—At the April term last of the Essex County Court of Oyer and Terminer, several persons resident of the State of New York, but interested and active in the management of the New Jersey Mutual Life Insurance Company, a corporation of this State, located at Newark, were indicted for conspiracy to embezzle its assets. A requisition was made by me upon the Governor of New York for their rendition, but he declined to deliver them up, claiming chiefly that they were not to be considered as fugitives from justice. Another requisition was sent for one of them singly, and the same result followed. The reasons of the Governor of New York for his action, and my own views in making the demand on behalf of this State, are particularly given in the correspondence between us herewith accompanying, and to which I refer without repetition. The right and obligation of surrender are guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States The mode of accomplishing the rendition in the State from which the alleged fugitive is sought depends upon the act of Congress. No provision exists by which in case of difference between Executives as to their duty, the question can be settled. It seems important in these days of frequent and rapid intercommunication when residence is often in one State and business in another, that Congress should authorize when a disagreement occurs, an application to some judicial tribunal, either federal or of the State upon which the demand is made, for the determination of the question. In the present state of the law, the decision of the Executive on refusal is final, although judicial questions of constitutional obligations may be involved, and when the nature of his powers and duty is only ministerial. Sometimes a mandate to arrest is issued by the Executive, in compliance with the requisition, in order that the courts of his own State may consider and decide such questions; but without that, as in this case, a refusal is conclusive.

The Delaware Boundary.—As authorized by the joint resolution of March 30, 1876, the Attorney General filed a bill in the Supreme Court of the United States against the State of Delaware, to settle the question of the boundary line between that State and this upon the river Delaware. The case is in progress, and the State of Delaware is in the meantime enjoined by the Court from executing its fishery laws on the New Jersey side of the river, from the middle. Our people will, therefore, continue to exercise their rights of fishing as heretofore, to the middle of the river, until the Court shall determine otherwise.

Colonial Records.—The New Jersey Historical Society has received from England thirty-nine folio cases, containing copies of correspondence between the Home Government and the Province of New Jersey between 1703 and 1776; also copies of the minutes of the Council, both Legislative and Privy, and of various miscellaneous documents previous to 1776. Two of these cases have been left with the State Librarian for examination. The Society undertook this work on behalf of the State under an act of March 29, 1872. Much yet remains to be done to procure copies of the other documents, papers and minutes on file in England relating to our colonial history. I invite special attention to a report herewith sent from a committee of the Historical Society, and recommend the passage of a law, as prepared by them, appropriating one thousand dollars to aid in continuing the work and printing the copies. They are ultimately to be deposited in the State Library.

A State Board of Health has been established under the act of last session, and is vigorously performing its duties, giving promise of great usefulness in investigating the causes of disease, and furnishing information to the people whereby unsanitary conditions may be guarded against and corrected. I refer with pleasure to the report and other papers prepared by the Board, as they are full of important facts and practical suggestions.

The Stevens Battery.—The suit in the Court of Chancery involving the title of this vessel has been decided in favor of the State; whether an appeal will be taken is not yet known.

The State should speedily dispose of this vessel. I recommend either that it be tendered to the United States Government, provided the government will reimburse the State for all expenses and complete it, or that the Governor, Vice-Chancellor and executors of Edwin A. Stevens, named in the act of March 27, 1874, be authorized to sell it at public or private sale, in such manner and for such price as they think sufficient, subject however to the opinion of the Attorney-General, whether the condition and effect of the litigation will permit such tender or sale.

The suit against the bondsmen of the defaulting Treasurer was decided at the last term of the Supreme Court against them for the whole amount claimed.

The departments of the Adjutant General and Quartermaster General have been conducted with fidelity and accuracy, and their reports contain all necessary information.

There are several other official reports accompanying this message, to which I ask attention without special mention.

To the heads of departments and other officials, I am indebted for uniform kindness and assistance in the performance of my own duties.

CONCLUSION.

In this final review of the condition of the State, I cannot hesitate to say that in my opinion, its affairs are managed with entire faithfulness, and in general with such reasonable economy as is becoming an important and rapidly growing Commonwealth. That New Jersey is exempt from civil debt, and that the war debt exceeds the assets accumulated to meet it, but eight hundred and forty thousand dollars, are facts not only gratifying, but which excite a commendable State pride.

In view of the enterprise, industry, wealth and intelligence of our people, and the State's advantages of location and natural resources, its progress, under wise laws and a faithful administration of them, (notwithstanding temporary depression,) must be steady and durable.

Thanking the people for their great mark of confidence in electing me Chief-Magistrate; also the Legislature for support and co-operation in many important duties, the trust I now hold (conscious of errors, but of having done the best I could,) will soon be surrendered to another, whose eminent abilities and established integrity are sure pledges of a wise and prosperous administration. May God, who controls alike the destinies of governments and individuals, continue for all time to guide and bless us.

CORRESPONDENCE

Between the Governors of New York and New Jersey on demand by the Governor of New Jersey, for the rendition of Henry W. Baldwin and others, as Fugitives from Justice, on indictment for conspiracy.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, May 23, 1877.

His Excellency Lucius Robinson, Governor, etc.:

SIR: The Prosecutor of the Pleas of Essex county, in this State, has informed me that you declined to issue a mandate, in accordance with a requisition from this State, for the rendition of Henry W. Baldwin and others, charged by indictment in the Oyer and Terminer of said county with the crime of conspiracy, committed in New Jersey; also, as he understood it, that you made two objections, one that there was a want of proof of the crime having been committed in this State, and the other that the defendants were not shown to be fugitives from justice; also, that the latter objection was not much insisted on, but that the former was. Not having received any official statement of the reasons of the refusal, there is, of course, room for a misapprehension. If, however, the information is correct, I beg very respectfully still to urge a compliance with the requisition herewith sent, on the ground that the same is in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, and the act of Congress of February 12, 1793. I assume that if the demand is made according to the provisions thereof, that the duty to surrender is not discretionary but ministerial and obligatory. Such I understand to be the unquestioned law, and it has thus been declared both in New York and in New Jersey. In re Voorhees, 3 Vroom, 140, the Supreme Court of this State distinctly so held, and in the case of Clark, 9 Wendell, 212, and Lawrence and Brady, 56 New York, 183, both in New York, the same doctrine is sustained. See also 2 Kent's Com. 32, note h, and 24 Howard, 66, Kentucky vs. Dennison. The practice in this State has been invariably according to the case of Voorhees since that decision was made.

Regarding that position as settled, permit me to state the other proposition, which I regard equally as strong. The papers accompanying the present requisition consist of an exemplified copy of the indictment charging the crime of conspiracy against our laws, also of the capias issued therein against Baldwin and others with the return, not found. They also contain affidavits of the residence of the defendants in New York, and inability to find them on search in New Jersey. In addition thereto there are several affidavits and exhibits bearing on the fact of the crime and that the defendants were fugitives from justice in the sense of the constitution. These affidavits and exhibits last mentioned were not contained in the first requisition, but, without them, the case in my judgment was complete. The prosecutor, however, has supplemented the past proceedings with them, and I hope that they will remove any difficulty that may have existed in your Excellency's mind.

The principles and facts controlling the case, it seems to me, are these: First, that after an indictment no question can be raised as to the fact of the crime for the purpose of the rendition, and that it was committed within the jurisdiction of the State in which the indictment was found. This is the clear meaning of the act of Congress, (Brightley's Digest, page 293, and U. S. Revision, 1027). It is sufficient that he is legally charged with crime, 9 Wend., 219. The indictment, by that act, is made evidence of the charge, and is one of the conditions upon which the demand may be made. I refer also to the case of Voorhees, as the indictment was the only evidence of the crime upon which he was surrendered. See also 56 New York, 183. Secondly, if the offence is a crime within the State where the indictment is found it comes within the words "other crimes" in the constitution of the United States. The cases are clear upon this point; see note to Brightley's Digest, 293, also cases already cited. I cannot conceive of any difficulty in this respect. Thirdly, that the offence charged is a violation of our laws is shown from the indictment, the requisition, and the oath of G. N. Abeel. The indictment alone is evidence of the fact, 3 Vroom, 150.

Lastly, if a person commits a crime within the jurisdiction of another State, and returns to the State where he resides, he is a fugitive from justice in the sense of the Constitution. Any other construction would allow a person to go into a neighboring State, perpetrate a crime and seek immunity from punishment, because he had not fled the jurisdiction of the State where he resides. He is a fugitive, not from his own State, but from that State whose laws he has offended. The question of his residence is immaterial, as long as he avoids the consequences of the crime in the State where committed. Voorhees, (3 Vroom, 141) was a resident of New Jersey. He was indicted in New Hampshire, and the court say, "a person who commits a crime within a State, and withdraws himself from such jurisdiction without waiting to abide the consequences of such act, must be regarded as a fugitive from the justice of the State whose laws he has infringed. Any other construction would not only be inconsistent with good sense, and with the obvious import of the word to be interpreted in the context in which it stands, but would likewise destroy, for most practical purposes, the efficacy of the entire constitutional provision." The constitutional words evidently mean, fleeing from the justice of the State having jurisdiction of the crime, and, if found in another State, that there shall be a surrender. In all respects the Voorhees case covers this, and permit me to submit that it declares the true meaning of the Constitution and the act of Congress. New Jersey has faithfully followed it in behalf of her sister States, and for none more frequently than New York. It is important for both States, liable as each is to depredations from residents of the other, that there should be no question of the duty of surrender when an indictment has been presented, and the person charged cannot be found in the State where the offence was committed.

This requisition is for the surrender of Baldwin. In addition to the fact of his residence in New York, and the return of non est to the capias, the accompanying papers show that he keeps out of our jurisdiction.

It may be that I have failed to touch upon the reasons that induced your Excellency to decline to issue the mandate before. If so, and if they effect this application, I will be glad to be informed, that I may again communicate with you, if necessary.

Hoping that this requisition and accompanying papers are satisfactory, and assuring you of my strong desire that there should be no misunderstanding of our duties, I am with great respect, your obedient servant,

J. D. BEDLE.

P. S.—The messenger will await your pleasure.

J. D. B.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, May 24th, 1877.

His Excellency, J. D. Bedle, Governor of New Jersey:

DEAR SIR:—I have received your favor with accompanying papers in regard to the matter of the requisition for the surrender of Mr. Baldwin.

The rush of legislative business on this, the last day of the session, is so great that it is impossible to examine the papers before to-morrow or Saturday.

It is proper to say, however, that my position in denying the mandate upon the former requisition, has been thoroughly misstated to you.

It seems impossible that there should be any difference of opinion between us as to the legal aspect of the matter, and as soon as I can find time, I will give my own views of it in full.

Very truly yours,

L. ROBINSON.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, May, 26th, 1877.

His Excellency, J. D. Bedle, Governor of New Jersey:

DEAR SIR:—I avail myself of the first moment I have been able to command since the adjournment of the Legislature, to reply to your letter of the 23d inst., in relation to the surrender of Henry W. Baldwin, claimed to be a fugitive from justice. I regret that the officer who represented to you the grounds of my declining to surrender Mr. Baldwin, failed so utterly to understand the position upon which I based my action, and thereby caused you the labor of writing a long legal argument upon the points in regard to which I do not differ with you.

The one only point on which I declined the surrender, was the want of proof that Mr. Baldwin was actually present in the State of New Jersey at the time the alleged crime was committed. I held then and hold now, that there is no obligation or authority under the Constitution and laws of the United States, or of any other State, to arrest a citizen of one State, deprive him of his liberty, and send him into another State, which might as well be Oregon or Texas, as New Jersey, without having proof that he is an actual, and not merely a constructive fugitive from justice. In other words, whilst the indictment, or the proofs presented, may be sufficient as to the fact of the crime having been committed, there must be proof aside from these, that the party claimed as a fugitive, was actually and personally present in the State at the time that the crime was committed, and that he subsequently left the State, and cannot be found in it. The mandate for his delivery recites as a fact that he has fled from justice in the State claiming him. This fact must be proven; it cannot be assumed. This very point was elaborately considered in 1836, by Governor Marcy, in a correspondence with the Governor of Alabama, and the rule established as I have stated it. It was subsequently followed by Governor Seward, and so far as I know, by every Governor of this State, from that day to this. It seems to me that reason and justice, as well as precedent, require me to adhere to the rule.

Your letter is mainly devoted to other points. I do not understand from it that you hold to a different rule than the one which has been uniformly acted upon in this State, whenever the question has arisen.

On a careful examination of the papers received with your letter, I do not find that the proofs upon this point are materially changed from what they were before.

I am with great respect,
Your obedient servant,
L. ROBINSON.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, Aug. 22, 1877.

DEAR SIR: I beg now to again call your attention to the matter of rendition of Henry W. Baldwin. I do not regret stating the law in my letter of May 23d last, as you admit all the propositions therein contained, and thus the controversy is narrowed down to the single point contained in your letter of May 26th last, that (using your own language) "whilst the indictment or the proofs presented may be sufficient as to the fact of the crime having been committed, there must be proof aside from these, that the party claimed as a fugitive was actually and personaly present in the State at the time that the crime was committed, and that he subsequently left the State and cannot be found in it." That Baldwin at the times included in the indictment was and now is a resident of New York is not denied by me, and that he cannot be found in New Jersey is a fact which I assume you will not dispute. That brings the issue to the one claim on your part, that there must be proof, apart from the indictment, of actual presence in this State "at the time that the crime was committed." The object of such proof, as I understand your letter, being to show that the defendant is a fugitive.

There are two general classes of fugitives, one, where a person offends against the laws of the State in which he resides and then departs from it, the other, where a non-resident violates the laws of a State and then keeps away from its jurisdiction. In this latter class he may be a fugitive from the justice of the State whose laws he has violated, although an actual resident of the State from which his rendition is sought. This is too well settled for argument. I, however, refer to two authorities ; 106 Mass., 223, Kingsbury's ease ; 3 Vroom, (N. J.), 141, Voorhees' case. But you insist that there must be proof outside of the indictment of actual presence in the State when the crime was committed. One answer to that is, that the indictment is not only evidence of the fact of the crime for the purpose of rendition, but also of the guilt of the defendant for the same purpose, and that when personal presence of the accused is necessary to establish his guilt, that fact is as much involved in the indictment as the fact of the crime. Our judicial system is based upon the common law, and the grand jury judicially inquires into cases of alleged crime. Witnesses are produced and examined, and the indictment is the result of the inquiry. The connection of the defendant with the crime is one of the necessary subjects of examination, and how that fact can be dissociated from the fact of the crime in the indictment, I cannot well conceive. The indictment is evidence, so far as arrest and rendition are concerned, that the accused has criminally invaded the jurisdiction of the State in which the indictment is found, and if he cannot be arrested there he must be taken to be a fugitive from the justice of that State. But I am not disposed to discuss that point further now, preferring to deal with the case in another aspect, and hoping thereby that a render may be made without further difficulty. Your proposition seems to assume that personal presence is necessary in every criminal offense in order to secure a rendition. This I respectfully deny. There may be a violation of the criminal laws of a State by a non-resident, without ever setting foot in it. As an instance I refer to a New York case, 3 Denio, 190, The People v. Adams. A resident of Ohio was indicted in New York city for obtaining money from a New York firm, as an advance on false receipts for merchandise made in Ohio, and which merchandise it was alleged had been forwarded to the New York firm. The advance was obtained in New York on presentation of the receipts, by an innocent agent, on behalf of Adams. It was held by the Supreme Court that there was a crime committed in New York by the resident of Ohio, and when he had not left that State. Now, certainly, it cannot be that there could have been no rendition of Adams, because he was not in New York when the money was fraudulently obtained. If he made himself amenable to the criminal laws of that State, and kept away, he was as much a fugitive as if he had resided there and fled. No State can justly afford shelter to such a man, and thereby allow him to violate with impunity the laws of another commonwealth. I mention this case to show how broad your proposition is, and that it is not the test of the right to a surrender. I do not deny that in most criminal matters, the act must have been personally committed within the State asserting jurisdiction. That follows from the inherent nature of crime, but there are cases where it need not have been. There are also other cases of a mixed character, composed of acts committed in different States in the perpetration of an entire crime, and which one State would have full jurisdiction to punish. This is one of them. The defendant (Baldwin), with others, is indicted for conspiracy to defraud a New Jersey insurance company. The substance of the alleged offense is a conspiracy, under color of a re-insurance, in another company, to embezzle the assets of the New Jersey company. Conspiracy is a crime usually subtle, and depending upon circumstantial proof. Some of the acts may be committed in a foreign jurisdiction, and others in the jurisdiction where the indictment is found. A person may be guilty of conspiracy who does not participate in all the acts of the offence. He may come in subsequent to the formation of the original plan and help carry it out, and thereby be as guilty as an original conspirator, or he may assist in the inauguration of the scheme, and leave others to perform the work. This latter is frequently the course adopted by the sharpest conspirators. A person may be as guilty, by a participation in part, as in the whole. Wharton, sec. 2,352; 3 Harr. (N. J.) 90, Stewart vs. Johnson. Now you require that this State shall prove affirmatively, outside of the indictment, that Baldwin was actually within this State when the crime was committed, that is, the conspiracy. If it were a physical crime alone, there would be more reason in such requirement, although then the indictment, I insist, would be sufficient; but it being a conspiracy, what act of several must be proved? The grand jury had power to procure the attendance of witnesses, the Executive has not; and although submitting that the indictment proves all the presence necessary, yet I most earnestly urge that the evidence, apart from the indictment, which you now have, and which accompanies this requisition, shows the presence of Baldwin in New Jersey, engaged in acts charged as a part of, and as the basis of the conspiracy. Amongst the papers annexed to the requisition now in your possession, is a copy of the minutes of the New Jersey Mutual Insurance Company, and particularly of the meeting of January 5, 1877, held at Newark, and at which Baldwin was present. That meeting is the foundation of the offence, as claimed by the State. By referring to the minutes it will be seen that Baldwin was not only present, but that he was a director of the company, and one of a special committee of three appointed by Stedwell, the president, according to a resolution then passed, and voted for by Baldwin, in case the committee should regard a re-insurance desirable, to negotiate terms and take all necessary measures to consummate such an arrangement, and the president, under their advice, to execute all papers and do all things necessary to carry the same into effect. The affidavit of Charles H. Brinkerhoff, accompanying this requisition proves the correctness of the minute, and in addition, the fact of the presence of Baldwin in Newark, and his vote as director in favor of the appointment of the committee, and his appointment thereon. The affidavit of the Prosecutor of the Pleas particularizes the offense for which the indictment was found. The whole evidence shows, unquestionably, that the resolution was carried out, Baldwin taking a large part in it. In addition to the evidence connected with the other requisition, I submit also other affidavits exhibiting a newspaper article sought to be published by Baldwin for compensation from him, in which it appears that the assets were in fact transferred to the National Capitol Company. The case presented shows that a New Jersey corporation was stripped of the bulk of its assets under a resolution for which Baldwin, as a director, voted in New Jersey, and that he was one of the committee to execute it. If the indictment is to be regarded, as you admit, sufficient on the fact of the crime, how, in view of the presence of Baldwin here when the authoritative act was committed, can he be withheld? His conduct may have been innocent or guilty, but which we cannot consider. That Baldwin is legally charged with a crime is undisputed, and that as an officer of the company he took part in a most essential act of the alleged conspiracy in New Jersey is clear. I respectfully insist that even under the rule you propose, there is shown all the personal presence requisite to guilt.

At any rate the State of New Jersey should be allowed to try a person under these circumstances before its proper tribunals, and such a question not be determined alone by executive power. The courts of this State are familiar to your Excellency, for learning and justice; proceeding according to the course of the common law, and not subjecting any one to unusual modes of trial. Can a citizen of New York, who accepts a directorship in a New Jersey corporation, and who, while present at a meeting here, votes for a resolution under which, when here, he is appointed one of the committee by whom the substance of the corporation is afterwards transferred to another company, although the consummation of the transaction is in another State, yet in which he takes a part, and who, when charged by indictment with a conspiracy to defraud the New Jersey company by reason of these acts, could, if found within this State, be put upon his trial, be protected from surrender because he has not been present enough or done enough within this State to warrant a surrender for trial? I think such a position cannot, on principle, be maintained, but such a result will follow if Baldwin is withheld.

I have not had access to the correspondence of Governors Marcy and Seward, to which you refer, but I have made an examination of the requisitions from your State upon this, for the last twenty-eight years, now on file in the office of the Secretary of State, and find no practice of proving, apart from the indictment, an actual presence in your State at the time the crime was committed. The proceedings evidently are not prepared on any such idea. In most, there is the ordinary general affidavit, that the party indicted is a fugitive without stating when he became so or how. In some the indictment is unaccompanied by any affidavit except of residence in this State, and in others the record only shows that the person indicted is not found in the State. There have been but two requisitions from your Excellency upon the Executive of this State, and one is very noticeable. A person by the name of Beckwith was indicted in New York City for obtaining money on a false representation, that he was then a member of the Board of Trade in the city of Chicago and the owner of a certificate thereof, which he had a right to sell. The only papers annexed to the requisition are a copy of the indictment and the formal general affidavit, that the defendant is a fugitive from New York and in New Jersey. That requisition was honored, and it was in accordance with previous practice. The requisition for Baldwin not only follows a line of precedents running through every Governor of your State for the last twenty-eight years, including yourself, but has besides the special facts herein referred to. I know of nothing making the case of Baldwin peculiar, but if so, I submit, on the evidence now before you, that New Jersey is entitled to have him delivered up for trial.

Yours very respectfully,

J. D. BEDLE.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, Oct. 13th, 1877.

His Excellency, J. D. Bedle, Governor of New Jersey:

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of the 22d of August in reply to mine of the 26th of May, in relation to the surrender of Henry W. Baldwin, was duly received, and would have had earlier attention but for my inability to read or write for several months past, and I am obliged now to confine myself to a very brief reply to the one only material point upon which we differ in opinion.

That point is whether a citizen of one State committing an act in his own State, which is a violation of the laws of another State, can be claimed by the latter State as a fugitive from justice. You state your position as follows: "There are two general classes of fugitives, one where a person offends against the laws of the State in which he resides, and then departs from it; the other where a non-resident violates the laws of a State, and then keeps away from its jurisdiction. In this latter class, he may be a fugitive from the justice of the State whose laws he has violated, although an actual resident of the State from which his rendition is sought. This is too well settled for argument."

The proofs presented to me with the requisition in the case of Baldwin show, and your letter admits, that he is a permanent resident in the city and State of New York. The indictment charges that the crime of which he is accused was committed on the 26th day of January, 1877. The proofs show that if any crime was committed, it was committed in the State of New York, and that he was not in the State of New Jersey, and did not commit any crime in that State. My position is, that under these circumstances, Mr. Baldwin is not a fugitive from justice, and can not be treated as such. In other words, he has not fled from New Jersey after the commission of a crime in that State. In stating my views upon this point in my former letter, I referred your Excellency to an opinion of the late Governor Marcy, whose great reputation as a jurist and statesman was, of course, well known to you. I regret to learn from your letter that you have not been able to have access to his opinion, as it is a very able and conclusive discussion of the very point involved in this case, and it is the only authority within my knowledge which goes directly and conclusively to the question involved between us. I hope you will find an early opportunity of reading it. It will be found in the Senate Journal of this State for 1836, page 39. It was a reply to a requisition from the Governor of Alabama, for the rendition of one Williams, who, in the city of New York, had committed an offence against the State of Alabama, which was a felony under the laws of that State. It states the law and the reason of my position in so much better and clearer language than I could do it myself, that I copy from it the following passages:

"I perceive you are aware of the difficulties which would result from the exercise of this power, if carried by construction to the extent you propose to give it. You have fairly stated the embarrassments under which the prosecuting power would labor in its proceedings against persons brought from other and distant States within its proper jurisdiction, and there tried for acts done in those States. There are other difficulties and dangers incident to the exercise of this power, not brought into view by you, which deserves serious consideration. What occurs daily in the ordinary course of criminal proceedings, may take place in regard to persons transported to a distant jurisdiction for trial. It may happen that an innocent man will be accused, and if demanded he must be delivered up, should your exposition of the constitution be sanctioned. Under these circumstances his condition would be perilous indeed. Dragged from his home; far removed from friends; borne down by the weight of imputed guilt; and unable probably to obtain the evidence by which he might vindicate his innocence; if appearances were against him, he could scarcely hope to escape unmerited condemnation. The assumption of a similar power, and the application of it to the American colonists by their acknowledged sovereign to whom they owed full and perfect allegiance, was regarded by them as an act of revolting tyranny, and assigned in the Declaration of Independence as one of the prominent causes that had dissolved the bonds by which they were united to the British King and nation. This consideration renders it, to my mind, very improbable that the framers of the constitution (almost all of whom were revolutionary patriots) intended to confer on each State the right to cause the citizens of all others to be transported out of their own State to be tried for acts done at home, and I cannot resort to a loose construction for the purpose of extracting such a power from that sacred instrument which emanated from their wisdom and experience."

"It is a subject of serious regret to me, that I am obliged to differ from your Excellency as to the rule of construction, but if it were otherwise, I think the result of the application you have made to me would be the same. I am apprehensive, and I say it with all due respect, that any reasonable rule of liberal construction would not extend this provision relative to fugitives, so as to bring the case of Williams within its operation. If we could, by the force of liberal construction, and without unwarranted license, give to the word "flee" in this clause, the same meaning as the ordinary import of the word "evade," as you propose, it would not, in my opinion, remove the difficulty that attends the present application. The meaning of the word "evade," as its etymology indicates, is to go from; and if it be assumed that "flee," is of equivalent import to the word "evade," and this word, or some of the expressions commonly used in defining it, should be substituted for the terms 'flee' and 'fled' in this clause of the constitution, such an alteration of its language would not so far extend its operation as to impose on the Executive of any State the obligation to deliver up an offender in a case similar to the one you have presented to me. To satisfy the word 'evade,' if it were substituted for 'flee,' the offender must have done some act with a view to elude or escape from justice, and must have gone from the offended State, before he could be brought within the operation of the clause in question. It does not appear in this case that Williams has (and therefore the legal presumption is that he has not) done any act whatever to evade, or in any manner to escape from justice, and it is conceded that he has not escaped or gone from the State of Alabama. The substitution then of the word 'evade' for 'flee,' by a rule of liberal construction, does nothing to advance the purposes of this application, unless a rule of still more liberal construction is applied to the substituted word 'evade,' which would give it an import equivalent to the phrase neglect, or refuse to surrender voluntarily, and that part of the clause which speaks of the 'State from which he fled,' is regarded as entirely nugatory in this case. Such a license in construing the constitution would effectualy destroy all the restraints and limitations it imposes, and make it the source of all power that might be desired to invade the rights and sovereignty of the States. By no view that I have taken of this clause of the constitution, have I been able to discover that it imposes on me, as the Executive of the State of New York, the obligation, or confers the right, to surrender Williams to the Executive authority of Alabama, and I must therefore respectfully decline to comply with the requisition in this case."

The reasoning and decision of Governor Marcy appear to me to be entirely sound and just. They sustain, in the true spirit of the Constitution, the rights of the States, and protect the rights and liberties of their citizens. The wrongs which might arise from the establishment of the opposite doctrine contended for in your letter, would, it seems to me, be intolerable. Highly as the administration of justice in New Jersey is regarded, under this doctrine a citizen of New Jersey, who had never been out of the State in his life, might be seized and carried away to Texas, or any other State, to be tried on an indictment found against him in such State. I cannot bring my mind to the conclusion that this can be the fair interpretation of the clause in the Constitution touching the rendition of fugitives from justice. I must, therefore, decline to comply with the requisition in this case.

You refer to the fact that Baldwin attended a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Jersey Mutual Life Insurance Company, on the 5th day of January, and that he was elected a Director of the Company on that day, and appointed a member of two committees. I cannot discover any materiality in this; a man surely is not guilty of a crime when he allows himself to be elected a director of a company, or to be appointed upon a committee. There is nothing which indicates that the proceedings on the 5th of January were intended to be any part of a conspiracy to defraud. If there ever was any such conspiracy, it was formed on the 26th day of January, three weeks after the occurrences on the 5th.

The prosecuting officer, and the grand jury, charge in the indictment that it was on the 26th of January, and take no notice whatever of the proceedings on the 5th. You refer, also, to the fact that the recitals in the indictment, as to the place where the alleged offence was committed, is stated in the indictment, which has usually been received both in this State and yours as sufficient proof of that fact. What distinguishes this case from others is, that the deposition which accompanied the original requisition, including that of the prosecuting officer himself, showed that the allegations in the indictment, in that respect, were wholly untrue, and that Mr. Baldwin was a permanent resident and citizen of the State of New York, and that the crime, if any, was committed in the State of New York.

On the face of the papers, therefore, if I had complied with the requisition, the defendant would unquestionably have been at once discharged upon a writ of habeas corpus, and I think the same result would follow if I should comply with the requisition now.

I have the honor to be, with great respect,

Your obedient servant,

L. ROBINSON.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, Dec. 6, 1877.

His Excellency Lucius Robinson, Governor of New York:

DEAR SIR:—I accept, of course, as conclusive your decision that you can not surrender Henry W. Baldwin, but in order that my own position may not be misunderstood, and also to correct an error of fact in your last letter, I add a few words.

You misapprehend the contents of the depositions accompanying the original requisition. That requisition included Baldwin and four others who were jointly indicted with him. The papers consisted of a copy of the indictment, the capias, and two affidavits showing the residence of the defendants in New York, and the inability of the officer to find them in New Jersey so as to execute the writ. Those affidavits are dated May 3, 1877, and were re-sent with the second requisition. There was nothing in them showing that the offence was committed in New York. The indictment was the only evidence of the fact of the crime. The original requisition was presented to you by the Prosecutor of the Pleas in person, and you having declined to render, he returned the papers to me, but without any reasons, in writing, from you.

In order to meet what was understood to be your objections, the second requisition was made. That included only Baldwin. To this, additional affidavits were annexed bearing on the fact of the crime.

I only desire to say in this connection that the first demand was made entirely on the indictment and proofs (by the two affidavits) of the residence of the defendants in New York, and that they could not be found in New Jersey. My contention is, that when an indictment is presented in the regular course of judicial action in any State, like faith and credit are to be given to it in other States as in that, and for the purpose of rendition the fact of personal presence, where that is necessary to the crime, is as much involved in and concluded by the indictment as any other fact bearing upon the question of guilt.

Our difference upon that question being so radical, I refrain from its further discussion.

After I understood your exact position, as contained in your letter of reply to the second requisition, that there must be proof of actual personal presence in New Jersey at the time the offence was committed, I endeavored to conform to your views without depending merely upon my own. Supplementary affidavits were therefore prepared and forwarded, the particulars of which and their purpose being fully set out in my letter of August 22. In answer to the fact of Baldwin's presence in New Jersey when he was elected a director and appointed on the committee, which, it is claimed, is the foundation of the conspiracy, you say: "I cannot discover any materiality in this. A man surely is not guilty of a crime when he allows himself to be elected a director of a company, or to be appointed upon a committee." I certainly should not contend otherwise merely from the isolated fact, but I did not understand that the question of guilt was in issue, or that you required any evidence of it. My purpose was only to show that Baldwin was actually present in New Jersey taking part in transactions which were claimed by the depositions to be essential parts of and the basis of the conspiracy included in the indictment.

It is true that the time alleged in the indictment is January 22, 1877, and that the presence and acts of Baldwin in New Jersey were on January 5, of the same month, but the allegation of time in an indictment is not material. Besides, the affidavits show that the conspiracy and its consummation, as charged, covered several days, reaching to January 5 as the foundation of it. The time need not have been alleged with a continuando.

I have carefully examined the opinion of Governor Marcy, having lately had access to it. The question arose out of the early slavery agitation, and it was at the outset conceded by the Governor of Alabama that the person charged was not in that State when the offence was committed. The indictment was for circulating a seditious paper in Alabama. The two Governors differed, and although, in the discussion, the message of Governor Marcy is entitled to high consideration, yet the principle of it has not been followed between the States of New York and New Jersey, as the facts stated in my last letter show. The argument drawn from the inconvenience and hardship of sending a person to a distant jurisdiction may well be answered by the suggestion that a State should not be subjected to the machinations of citizens of another through agencies by which frauds and swindles may be as effectually accomplished as if the principals were actually present, as in the case of 3 Denio, already referred to. Possible hardships are an unsafe test of the meaning of the constitutional provision. The opinion of Governor Marcy, however, does not touch the other branch of the question in dispute.

Regretting this difference, and with assurances of high regard, I am

Yours obediently,

J. D. BEDLE.

Mr. Plummer offered the following resolution :

Whereas, The question of Reform and cutting down of expenses has been for some time the all absorbing question, not only in the counting rooms and stores and offices, but in the work shops of the mechanic and at the fireside of the farmer, and among unemployed and poorly paid laborers it has been the all engrossing theme, so universal has been the suffering and distress among the masses of the people, occasioned by the depression of times and need of lower rates of interest to move the industries of which they are dependent, that it has forced itself above all other questions. It has risen above the division of parties and party lines and established in the recent campaign as a policy in the platform of the two political parties, and a demand for retrenchment and lower rate of interest has been unmistakable, and such has been the voice of the people as it has been heard from their representatives on this floor to whom they have a right to appeal.

The power of great wealth is not to be despised. It is sometimes arrogant, tyranical and merciless. It marshals a host of followers who fawn at its feet and bow at its command, and caring for no interest but its own. It tramples with ruthless step upon every right of the people that stands in the way of its purpose, and a bill already pending for this relief without our support would be the violation of a pledge.

The sense of fairness is predominant in the American people. What can be more odious to the people or distructive in their industry and prosperity than excessive taxation or excessive rates of interest. Money is the very life blood of industry and prosperity, take it away and the busy hum of industry ceases, the work shop is silent and the plow rusts in the furrow. Put under the control of money lenders and it enables them to chain and enslave our industries and wring from the toiling thousands every dollar of their profit. Far be it to keep alive sectional strife or prejudice, but if it arises out of this discussion let it not rest on the shoulders of this Senate but upon those who are bent upon maintaining a most burdensome and intolerable taxation. The finances of the people are now in a most unprecedented and unusual condition and if further proof is needed we would appeal to the farmers, the mechanics, and manufacturers and professional men. If we have not been on the downward road since 1864, when the rate of interest was increased and which now averages higher than the average profit of legitimate business industry, and if this policy is longer continued the money lenders will soon own the entire country, and for further proof we have only to refer to the many failures.

Legislation should be so shaped as to encourage and foster industry and to that end our constituents are anxiously looking, and it is to be hoped that the true policy of humanity and justice, and the policy of equality, which elevates and rewards industry will not be worked out and accomplished by this legislation. On this question there is no conflict of interest between the manufacturer, or the farmer or mechanic, they are all equally bled by the capitalist and can never enjoy their rightful share of prosperity until they understand their interests, and by their united action secure the adoption of a policy, which will make the use of money as cheap as the profit of industry. Money was plenty at the time of the increase of the legal rate of interest that the people did not feel the burden of taxation, it was like drawing a few drops of blood from a strong, healthy man, leaving him none the less buoyant after the depletion, but let that depletion continue year after year and day after day, and you will soon see the physical wreck of a once splendid manhood. Thus we see the great necessity of applying the remedy at once and at this session no time should be lost, therefore

Resolved, That we give such matters as relate to consistent reduction of interest our united support.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act to revise and amend the charter of the city of Newark," approved March eleventh, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven.

And asked that it be read, when the said bill was ordered to a third reading.

Which was agreed to.

The undersigned, one of the Judiciary Committee, begs leave to present a minority report adverse to Assembly Bill No. 100, and to recommend that the bill do not pass, for the following reasons:

First. Because such legislation is prohibited by the express language and evident intention of the amended Constitution. Before the Constitution was amended, legislation of this character had become a serious and acknowledged evil. It swelled the statute books to an enormous size; it required every municipal corporation to keep a constant watch against legislation varying its powers and interfering with its internal affairs; it was a fruitful source of corruption, intrigue and partisanship, and some relief was urgently demanded by the people.

When the Constitutional Commission met this was one of the subjects that engrossed their attention, and in obedience to the popular desire, they proposed amendments which were designed to limit special legislation in respect to municipal corporations. These amendments so commended themselves to judicious men of both parties that they were approved, without opposition, by both branches of two successive Legislatures by which they were considered and were incorporated in the Constitution by a large majority of the popular vote when submitted to the people. It cannot be doubted that they were generally understood as restricting such special legislation.

The language of the Constitution as thus amended is, "the Legislature shall not pass private, local or special laws * * * regulating the internal affairs of towns and counties." There can be no question that this is a limit upon special legislation as to counties and some municipal corporations less in size than counties. To what municipal corporations does the word "towns" apply? Can it be understood as applying to the few municipal corporations which had then been incorporated under the specific name of towns? There were not half a dozen such corporations in the whole State. The whole population was less than ten thousand. No evil whatever had resulted from special legislation in respect to such towns, and it would be absurd to conclude that the learned and able men who composed the commission, and who sat in this Legislature when the constitutional amendments were approved and ordered to be submitted to the people, intended to propose a restriction on special legislation which would affect but a tithe of the inhabitants of the State, and which would cure none of the serious evils which had been complained of. Can the word "towns" be concluded to mean townships? There had been no special legislation in respect to townships which had been injurious, and there was no reason to make such a restriction specially apply to them. The word townships had a definite and well understood meaning in New Jersey, and no commission or legislature could have failed to use the word " townships " if such corporation were intended. It seems a necessary conclusion that the word "towns" was used, in this clause, in its general colloquial signification, to express all kinds of municipal corporations, whether incorporated as villages, towns, boroughs or cities. This agrees with the legal definition of the word by the best authorities; this was the clear understanding of the people when they adopted the amendment, and they will hold to a strict accountability any one who aids in removing or disregarding this restriction.

Second. The amended constitution also forbids the passage of any " special act conferring corporate powers," and declares further that the Legislature "shall pass general laws under which corporations may be organized, and corporate powers of every nature obtained." Of what nature are the " corporate powers " which the Legislature are thus prohibited from conferring by such special act?

This question is answered by the language used in the same clause, which declares "that general laws shall be passed by which corporate powers of every nature may be obtained." To what classes of corporations does this clause apply? The language used is unrestricted, and in its terms includes municipal as clearly as it does mining, manufacturing or other corporations. Similar language in the constitutions of other States has been held by their courts to prohibit special legislation in respect to municipal corporations. Any reasoning which would exclude municipal corporations from this restriction would be equally applicable to exclude railroad or other corporations. It seems an unavoidable conclusion that any special legislation conferring corporate municipal powers is prohibited. The city of Newark under existing laws has certain corporate powers, including the power of election of certain officers from certain districts of the city. These powers are by the act in question repealed. The act then proposes to grant powers to elect in other modes. If the power to elect is a corporate power, then this act is unconstitutional.

Third. Whatever view may be taken in respect to the above conclusions, it will be admitted by every candid man that the questions are not free from doubt. Such doubts can never be settled until the decision of the Courts shall determine the true construction of these restrictions upon legislative power. There is now pending in the Supreme Court a case which involves the questions suggested in the above objections to the bill under consideration. The case will be decided within a few weeks, but the decision will be subject to review in the Court of Errors, the court of last resort in this State. Until the decision of that court, the questions will not be definitely settled.

The undersigned respectfully submit that no considerations urged in behalf of this bill, can justify legislation which will leave the citizens of the largest city in the State in doubt who are the legal and constitutional officers of that city; to whom taxes can be safely paid, or who can legally pass ordinances and make contracts for the city; or who can lawfully issue its obligations.

The credit of the city of Newark may be so good as to carry it through and enable it to overcome the difficulties that will result, but other cities, now maintaining their credit by great exertions and many sacrifices will, by similar legislation, proposed in respect to them be driven into default and irretrievably ruined. The questions are so doubtful, and the consequences to these cities so momentous that nothing short of necessity can justify such legislation. And when it is not pretended that any such necessity exists, and no other ground is urged for the passage of this and similar bills except the party advantage, which is expected to be obtained therefrom, such legislation, even if constitutional, is in the highest degree unfair, unwise and injurious.

Feb. 13, 1878. M. J. MAGIE.

Mr. Rabe offered the following concurrent resolution, which was read and ordered to be printed :

Concurrent resolution in reference to closing up the Centennial International Exhibition held in Philadelphia, anno domini eighteen hundred and seventy-six.

WHEREAS, The inhabitants of the State of New Jersey, through their representatives in the Senate and General Assembly, did in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-one, pass a Joint Resolution designating the city of Philadelphia, in the state of Pennsylvania, in which the Declaration of Independence was signed and promulgated, as the proper place to appropriately celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the same ; and did appoint a committee to confer with the authorities of the said city, in reference to the holding of an international exhibition of science, arts, manufactures, and products of the soil and mine ; and whereas, the said international exhibition was held in the name of and under the auspices of the government of the United States, in Fairmount Park, city of Philadelphia, in eighteen hundred and seventy-six, it being the Centennial Anniversary year of American Independence, and designed to commemorate and perpetuate the memories of the heroes, statesmen and inhabitants of the colonies, who, through their wisdom, great sufferings, and sacrifices achieved independence, established for the inhabitants thereof constitutional government, and registered it upon the roll of the family of nations as the government of the United States of America, in which name the people of all nations and governments were cordially invited to attend and participate in said international exhibition ; and whereas, the invitation was accepted by all nations, who were represented through government officials and their people, bearing with them specimens of arts and the products of the intelligent industries of their respective countries in their greatest perfection ; and whereas, the large attendance and display by the people of all nations upon that occasion was not only complimentary to the memories of the colonial fathers, but highly instructive to the people of the United States ; and exercised the most beneficial effects upon the commercial, manufacturing and agricultural industries of the country, and was of incalculable influence in promoting sentiments of peace and good will among the people of all the states of the American Union, as well as in elevating our country in the estimation of all nations who participated with us; and whereas, the contribution of one million dollars by the state of Pennsylvania, and one million five hundred thousand dollars by the city of Philadelphia, with the uniform courtesy and generous and liberal hospitality extended to the nation's invited guests during their attendance at the exhibition, by the citizens of that city, should be deemed by the people of the United States as a liberal and generous contribution in support of the honor and dignity of the nation, and worthy the inhabitants of the great Keystone state; and whereas, the large amount necessary to defray the expenses of the commissioners appointed by the President of the United States, the proper officers, judges, and police force for the protection of the amount of valuable property on exhibition by all nations, was an unavoidable expenditure, as also for the erection of spacious buildings adapted to that and no other purpose, from which fact, and owing to the general financial embarrassment of the country, said buildings were sold at the close of the exhibition, at a nominal price; and whereas, in view of the large contributions made by the state of Pennsylvania, the city and citizens of Philadelphia, to secure the holding and insure the success of the exhibition, and the fact that the people of the entire nation have derived and will continue to derive its honor and its benefits, it is but proper that the government of the United States should bear a reasonable proportion of the expense, of which the balance due to stockholders is but a small amount; therefore,

1. Be it resolved, by the Senate of the State of New Jersey, the General Assembly concurring, That the United States Senators from the State of New Jersey be and are hereby instructed, and the Representatives in Congress requested, to ascertain the balance due to the subscribers to the Centennial Board of Finance; and to prepare and support a joint resolution appropriating the same from the treasury of the United States.

2. And be it Resolved, That it is the duty of the United States Senators and Representatives of the thirteen original States, to use their influence to have the great Centennial Anniversary of our nation's independence closed up consistently with the honor and dignity of a nation holding so high a position in the estimation of the civilized world as that of the United States of America ; and that the Governors of the other twelve of the thirteen original States be requested to send copies of this preamble and concurrent resolutions to the Senators and Representatives of their respective States.

3. And be it Resolved, That the thanks of the people of the United States are eminently due to the Hon. Joseph R. Hawley, President of the United States Centennial Commission; to the Hon. John Welsh, President of the Centennial Board of Finance, and to Director General Alfred T. Goshorn, for the very able and satisfactory manner in which the exhibition was organized and conducted under their direction.

4. And be it Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor of this commonwealth, be and is hereby requested to transmit a copy of this preamble and resolutions to the President of the United States, and copies to their Excellencies, the Governors of the twelve states as before stated.

The following message was received from the House of Assembly by the hands of its clerk :

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
ASSEMBLY CHAMBER,
February 14, 1878.

Mr. President :—

I am directed by the House of Assembly to inform the Senate that the House of Assembly has passed the following concurrent resolution :

Whereas, The supply of food fishes in the waters of which the State of New Jersey has jurisdiction, bordering on our sea coast, has for the last eight years depreciated to such an alarming extent from the reckless intrusion of persons from other states and nationalities as to demand such legislation as will be adequate to prevent the waste of fish that would otherwise find their way into our bays and rivers, and which has almost entirely destroyed the bank fishing along our coast; therefore,

Be it Resolved (Senate concurring), That the Committee on Fisheries of the Senate and House of Assembly, be and they are hereby requested to confer with each other with a view to the forming of a bill, which will meet the exigency of the case, and prevent that which now threatens the utter distruction of that which is the common heritage of the people of our State.

In which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

AUSTIN H. PATTERSON,

Clerk of the House.

The following message was received from the House of Assembly by the hands of its Clerk :

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
ASSEMBLY CHAMBER,
February 14th, 1878.

Mr. President:—

I am directed by the House of Assembly to inform the Senate that the House of Assembly has passed the following:

The following preamble and resolutions were offered by Mr. Lewis and adopted:

Whereas, Gov. Geo. B. McClellan in his inaugural declared that " the people of New Jersey, in common with our fellow citizens throughout the land, have a deep interest in the restoration of the commercial marine of the nation," and expressed the hope that all members of the Legislature would agree with him "in the earnest desire that Congress may promptly do whatever is within its power to accomplish that vital object by removing such restrictions and impediments of any kind existing laws may offer ;" and

Whereas, The sentiments expressed by the Governor meet the opinions entertained by the members of the Legislature of New Jersey, who feel the necessity of putting forth renewed energy and earnestness in common with the people of all sections of our land, for a united effort to advance the prosperity of our nation by developing our manufacturing, agricultural and general trading interests ; and

Whereas, We believe that such development depends upon proper facilities to afford an outlet for our domestic commodities to reach countries where a greater demand exists therefor ; and by a wise and judicious fostering of their oceanic commerce; therefore be it

Resolved (the Senate concuring), That the liberal commercial policy of the leading governments of Europe should be adopted by the government of the United States, and that such aid should be rendered to American shipping as will secure to our people the great advantages and benefits which must necessarily follow.

Resolved, That we urge upon our Senators and Representatives in Congress the great importance of the subject presented, and request that they use their influence in favor of all measures that will inaugurate the policy herein set forth.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to forward a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

In which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

The following message was received from the House of Assembly by the hands of its Clerk:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
ASSEMBLY CHAMBER,
February 19th, 1878.

Mr. President:—

I am directed by the House of Assembly to inform the Senate that the House of Assembly has passed the following concurrent resolution :

Whereas, A certain bill is now pending before Congress called the "Arrears Bill" on Pensions, which has for its object the allowing of pensions of Widows and Orphans and others who failed to procure the necessary proof prior to a certain date to date from the death of the soldier in case of the widow and orphan, or from date of honorable discharge in the case of a crippled soldier, instead of from date of application as was fixed by statute of limitation; those who applied and furnished the necessary proof within five years from the date of the act allowing pensions to wounded soldiers, have received pensions from the date of the discharge (or death of the soldiers in case of widows), it appears now that there is a small number in each of the States, mostly widows, who either from ignorance of the law, or from difficulty of finding the required proof within the time prescribed by the statute referred to, have been cut off from benefits received by others; and whereas, the object of this bill is to restore to them the rights of which they have been deprived, and as seven states have already endorsed the measure, and the committee in both houses of Congress have made favorable reports; and whereas, the State of New Jersey is largely represented by this class, who have been left in destitute circumstances and forced to struggle with want and poverty, since the death of the husband and father from wounds received in the service of our county; and whereas, New Jersey claims to be as patriotic as her sister states in providing for the widows and orphans as she was in furnishing her ratio to the General Government to preserve the nation; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Assembly (Senate concurring) that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be respectfully requested to use their influence for the passage of House Bill No. 2,803, and in accordance with the sixth and seventh sections of Senate Bill No. 2,454, both favorably reported from the respective Committees on Pensions in Congress, allowing pensions to date from the discharge in case of the soldier, and from the death of the husband in the case of widows, Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, properly certified, be sent to each of our Senators and representatives in Congress.

In which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Messrs. Canfield, Cooper, Emson, Gardner, Hendrickson, Hobart, Kirk, Ludlow (President), Magie, Marsh, Moore, Pidcock, Plummer, Rabe, Ridgway, Sewell, Silverthorn, Ward, Whitcar—19.

The Senate was opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Brown.

Journal of Thursday and Friday was read and approved.

Mr. Moore, Chairman of the Joint Committee to investigate certain charges against State officials, submitted the following report :

To The Legislature:—

The special Joint Committee appointed to investigate the charges made as set forth in the preamble to a concurrent resolution, passed January 14, 1878, respectfully present the following report :

The preamble and resolution were as follows :

"WHEREAS, Grave charges have been made against State "officials, in connection with the examination of, "and action concerning, certain insurance compan- "ies, and official corruption and mismanagement "have been charged in the press; and whereas, it "has been alleged that large sums of money, rang- "ing from $3,000 to $5,000 from each company have "been and are still being exacted from insurance "companies, under the pretence of charges for exam- "ination, when such exactions are illegal and extor- "tionate; and whereas, without expressing any

" opinion as to the truth or falsity of these charges,
" it is due to the honor of the State that these charges
" should be investigated, and if found true the guilty
" party punished, and the recurrence of these wrongs
" prevented by proper legislation ; and if found false
" that the purity of our State officials should be vin" dicated ; therefore,

" Resolved, That a Special Committee of five members of the " House, and three members of the Senate be appointed to " investigate fully the charges made, as set forth in the pre- " amble hereof, with power to send for and compel the attend- " ance of persons and papers, and with leave to sit during " the session of the House, and that the Committee be " directed to proceed, as soon as appointed, and report within " fifteen days thereafter, and that the Committee report any " necessary legislation required in this matter."

The Committee organized as soon as appointed, pursuant to the resolution, and by subsequent legislative action the time within which they were required to report was extended beyond the time named in the resolution.

The matter in question was known to have reference to certain allegations which had at various times been made concerning the official acts of the Honorable Henry C. Kelsey, Secretary of State, in his capacity of Commissioner of Insurance of the State of New Jersey, and immediately upon its organization the committee gave notice through the press, that it was prepared to hear any parties having information upon the subjects to be enquired into. Certain persons, known to have been instrumental in circulating charges of improper official conduct on the part of the Commissioner of Insurance, were summoned to appear before the committee, were given an opportunity to make their charges in specific form, and were invited to present the names of witnesses whom they wished subpœnaed to testify in support of these charges.

All the witnesses so named were subpœnaed by the committee, excepting certain non-residents of the State, whose attendance it was not practicable to secure, and, pursuant to the direction in the resolution to " fully investigate the said charges," the greatest possible scope was given to the inquiry, the fullest liberty given for the presentation of any matters bearing, even remotely, upon the questions under consideration, and in pursuit of the truth a mass of testimony was taken, of which a large portion proved to be irrelevant and valueless.

Concerning the statement in the preamble that "it has been "alleged that large sums of money ranging from $3,000 to "$5,000 from each company have been and are still being "exacted from insurance companies, under the pretence of "charges for examination," the committee have failed to find after the most thorough investigation, that any such allegations have ever been made, either verbally or in the public prints, against the Commissioner of Insurance, or any other official of this State, and the testimony presented to the committee abundantly proves that had such allegations been made, they would have been untrue in the extreme; that the sums charged by the said official for examination made in pursuance of law have been fair and reasonable, have been acquiesced in by the companies under examination, and have for the greater part, only been received by the Commissioner to be immediately paid out to experts employed by him, to conduct the examinations. Concerning the statement in the preamble, "that grave charges have been made in connection with the "examination of, and action concerning, certain insurance "companies and official corruption and mismanagement have "been charged in the press," the Committee find that such charges have been made against the Commissioner of Insurance in newspapers, and have been spread broadcast throughout this and adjoining States; they find from testimony produced before them, and notably from the testimony of the persons chiefly engaged in circulating these charges, that the greater portion of the matter contained therein was prepared and furnished to the press by, or at the instance of, a person formerly connected with a life insurance company in this State, who was indicted for fraudulent practices in connection therewith, and who was at the time these charges were made and circulated and still is a fugitive from justice, and that this person paid large sums of money to secure the publication and circulation of these charges of "official corruption." And the Committee further report that they have been unable to trace these charges to any reputable source; that no evidence whatever has been presented in support of them, but on the contrary, the testimony given before the Committee in the course of a long and patient investigation to which the widest range was given, not only disproves the charges and shows them to have been malicious in their nature, but thoroughly vindicates the purity and official integrity of the Commissioner of Insurance, and shows that he has discharged the onerous and difficult duties imposed upon him by law with an earnest desire for the public good, as well as with rare intelligence and discretion, and has by his official acts proved himself a faithful, upright and efficient public officer.

Another State official against whom a charge was brought before your Committee, was the Hon. Henry S. Little, clerk of the Court of Chancery, who had been publicly charged with having improperly accepted a fee from a certain life insurance company in this State, but the testimony presented on this point showed that Mr. Little had received the fee in question in his private capacity, for legal services, and the Committee do not deem it within their province, nor within the scope of the preamble and resolution, to investigate or report upon the private business transactions of any state official. It may be well to state, however, that no testimony was produced to show that the transaction was other than proper and legitimate.

Before closing this report the Committee beg leave to say a word in deprecation of the practice too common in legislative bodies of lightly instituting investigations of the conduct of public officials. When it is remembered that a faithful and efficient officer may be called for days, and even weeks, from his public duties, and required to spend his time in collecting testimony to prove the integrity which it has been his daily aim to demonstrate by his official acts; that a charge of official corruption is in its very nature so easy to make, and even, when unfounded, often so difficult to refute, and that investigations of this character impede the legislative business and involve the State in heavy expense, it surely becomes the Legislature to exercise its undoubted right of investigation with the utmost care, and to demand that charges made against the public officials shall be specific in their form, and shall have, at least, a reputable author and some show of truth.

Concerning that portion of the resolution directing the "Committee to report any legislation required," the Committee beg leave to say, that the investigation has not demonstrated to them the necessity of any change in the laws of the State, excepting possibly some further legislation to insure in future the speedy and severe punishment of those who misuse the great power of the public press and make it the disseminator of wanton and malicious libels.

The testimony taken in the course of this investigation was reported stenographically, and having been written out from the stenographer's notes, is herewith submitted

TRENTON, February 28, 1878.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. B. MOORE,
EPHRAIM P. EMSON,
WM. H. KIRK,
EDW'D T. MATHEWS,
R. BLODGETT,
I. T. NICHOLS.

Mr. Kirk moved that the report lie on the table until the testimony taken before the Committee, be printed.

Which was agreed to.

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE:

PHILADELPHIA, March 13th, 1878.

To the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of New Jersey:

The Board of Managers of this Institution feel that they would be doing themselves injustice if they failed to express their thanks to the members of the Senate and General Assembly of New Jersey, for their "Joint Resolutions in reference to closing up the Centennial International Exhibition held in Philadelphia, anno domini, eighteen hundred and seventy-six." We cannot but recognize in this action of your honorable bodies, the same manifestation of public spirit and national pride, which characterized the action of your State in its prompt and generous response to the call made upon it for its share of the expenses of the great exhibition of '76, which as you truly say, was "designed to commemorate and perpetuate the memories of the heroes, statesmen and people of the colonies who achieved our Independence and established our Constitutional Government."

We feel that this expression of our thanks is due from the fact that this Institution is the outgrowth or child of the parent exhibition of '76, and that the kind and complimentary words of your resolutions in reference to the action of the citizens of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania in behalf of that exhibition, will embrace in their meaning and application all those who are friends and patrons of the Institution we now represent.

By order of the Board of Managers, and with much respect.

Yours, most truly

Mr. Moore, from the Joint Committee on State Prison presented the following report relative to management, &c., of the New Jersey State Prison:

To the Honorable the Senate and General Assembly:

By a concurrent resolution adopted on the 28th day of January last, your Joint Committee on State Prison were directed to inquire into the truth or falsity of certain charges made by the public press, that great wrongs were practiced and cruelties inflicted by the officials of the State Prison on the convicts under their charge. The statements referred to consisted of a letter written by a physician of Trenton, in which he declared that cruel and inhuman punishments were inflicted at the State Prison by means of [1] "a boot-heel gag;" [2] "a paddle;" [3] douches of cold water upon the naked body; and [4] by a "stretcher." The author of these charges also asserted that the prison physician, in the case of a man supposed to be shamming, had "poured alcohol on a man's back, and then set fire to it."

Immediately upon the adoption of the resolution, your Committee organized and applied themselves to the duty imposed upon them of fully investigating all the circumstances of the case. They have summoned before them and taken the testimony of every person who was stated or believed to have any information which could throw light upon the subject. These witnesses included the present and former Keepers of the Prison; deputy keepers now in office and those who had been dismissed therefrom; employees of the contractors; the present and former physicians of the Prison, and other members of the medical profession; members of the Board of Inspectors, and such other persons as it was believed could aid the Committee in arriving at a thorough understanding of the facts.

From this testimony your Committee have arrived at the following conclusions:

1. That the boot-heel gag is a device made of leather, somewhat of the shape of a boot-heel, and is used to compel silence on the part of persistently noisy prisoners; it is so constructed as to cause the least inconvenience consistent with the end desired; and is less painful, and otherwise an improvement upon the old form of gag. Its use is not dangerous or cruel, and the Committee see neither necessity nor propriety for its removal.

2. That we are unable to find from the testimony that such an instrument as the "paddle" has ever been used.

3. That the charge that prisoners have been punished by having cold water thrown upon their naked body is unfounded. The only fact which could bear out such an assertion is, that a prisoner who had maliciously defiled his cell and his own person, was washed off with a hose.

4. That there has been in use for a number of years and under several keepers an instrument of punishment to which, since the commencement of this examination, the name of "the stretcher" has been given. This is an arrangement by which the prisoner, having been fastened to the floor by means of a loose chain attached to one ankle, so as to prevent his climbing up, has his arms drawn up to a bar overhead by means of a chain attached to the handcuffs on his wrists. The severity of the punishment by this method has been shown by the testimony to be entirely dependent upon whether the culprit is allowed to remain wholly or partially upon his feet, or to be entirely withdrawn from them, and the weight correspondingly thrown upon the wrists.

On assuming the charge of the prison, General Mott, the present keeper, found this system of punishment in vogue, and naturally presumed, without any question arising in his mind, that it was such as was contemplated by the law. He has since continued its use, with this change: that instead of drawing the prisoner up against a wall, as had formerly been done, the arrangement is placed in the centre of the cell, so as to allow more liberty of movement.

It is stated in the evidence that the care and attention paid to prisoners who do their duty faithfully, and the certainty of punishment to those who do not, has had the natural result of diminishing the necessity for disciplinary action; that the prisoners have never been punished for a first offence, and that it is only for repeated violations of the rules, of the existence and meaning of which they had been made aware, that punishment has been inflicted; that when such action was rendered necessary, it has always been done for a specified time, not exceeding forty minutes, and in a large majority of cases only reaching fifteen or twenty minutes, during which, at periods of about five minutes each, the condition of the culprit was under the supervision of the person conducting the punishment; and that at no time has any prisoner been drawn off his feet.

During the month of November last, one Jacob Snook was sent to the State Prison from the county of Somerset, for a crime which was, if possible, aggravated by the circumstances under which it was committed. Previous to his trial and during its continuance, he proved himself to be a most desperate character, of great physical strength and uncontrollable temper and passions. His brief incarceration in the county jails of Hunterdon and Somerset was marked, in the former by a violent assault upon the sheriff, and in the latter by the repeated destruction of the furniture and clothing of his cell; in the court room his conduct was such as to have rendered necessary his removal from it, by the order of the presiding judge, Justice Reed. After his reception at the State Prison his bad conduct was continued. On two occasions he was reported to the Keeper, but on being admonished by him and on promises of future good behavior, he was returned to his work without punishment. Subsequently he was reported as being guilty of disturbance and disorderly conduct, and was punished by the use of the "stretcher," without any other result than the securing of obedient conduct. On the morning of the 28th of December last, complaint was made to the Keeper that Snook had been again disorderly during the night previous, disturbing the rest and preventing the sleep of his fellow prisoners, and had continued this conduct up to that time. For this he was ordered to be punished for twenty minutes. The marshal of the prison took charge of him and placed him in the so-called "stretcher." When Snook had been punished about fourteen minutes, the marshal found indications that something was wrong with the prisoner; he immediately called in assistance, and on taking him down it was found that the man was dead. A post mortem examination made by the County Physician developed the fact that the cause of the death was meningitis, a disease of the brain which is insidious in its approaches, and which had given no indication of its presence. All the evidence shows that Snook was a man of good physique, well developed, and looked like one who enjoyed good health; that there were no indications which would have caused any apprehension that the result of the punishment would be different from that in other cases; and your committee are of the opinion that death resulted from the diseased condition of the brain, accelerated by the punishment, as it might have been by any nervous shock, or undue excitement, exertion or emotion.

While this case is singular in its circumstances and its results, your committee, from all the facts which have been brought before them, are of the opinion that the so-called "stretcher" is capable of inflicting severe punishment, and dangerous in its operations when carelessly managed; and, inasmuch as its application has been under the control of the marshal, this committee think that it should either be abolished or that it should be used under the constant supervision of the Keeper.

In the course of this inquiry the general management of the Prison has been brought into view, and your committee feel obliged to say that the institution is conducted in a manner reflecting credit alike upon the keeper and the State. Each employee has his allotted duties, and is held to a strict accountability for their proper performance. The selection, preparation and distribution of the food; the care and renewal of the clothing; the proper cleansing, ventilation and renovation of the cells and work shops; the alleviation and cure of the maladies of the sick, are all attended to with scrupulous exactness. The amount of labor allotted to each prisoner is not oppressive, and its proper performance meets with prompt recognition; all complaints are heeded, and offences against the rules are met by reproof, promptly followed, on repetition, by commensurate punishment.

When it is borne in mind, as the testimony shows, that the report which crept into the Prison, that all punishment had been abolished, was immediately made the signal for open insubordination; that there are in the institution some 850 convicts; that this number promises to increase rather than decrease; that a large part of them will probably be unemployed, and the need of great care and watchfulness increased, your honorable bodies will see how necessary it is to strengthen rather than to weaken the hands of the State's representative in that institution.

The charge that alcohol was poured on a man's back and then fired, was fully examined into, by your committee. The testimony shows that the medical officer of the prison, in the discharge of his duties was called upon to decide whether or not a prisoner who had been sentenced to hard labor was feigning epilepsy, for the purpose of avoiding that labor; in doing so he had recourse to the firing of a small quantity of alcohol upon the fleshy part of the leg of the patient. The test was perfectly successful, and resulted in the discovery in one instance that it was a case of "shamming;" in the other that it was not. The prisoner who had been feigning disease soon gave it up, and proceeded to obey the rules of the institution, and afterwards became one of the best behaved men in the prison; the other was taken to the lunatic asylum. The testimony shows that, besides being successful, the test is one recognized by some medical authorities; that it did no permanent injury, nor was it followed by any serious results; and that its use is entirely dependent upon the judgment of the physician. As to whether or not the particular test should have been applied under the particular circumstances, there is the same difference of opinion as exists among the medical profession in regard to other matters of treatment, and your committee do not feel able or willing to decide between them, but are of the opinion that the method is one which should not be resorted to when milder remedies will suffice.

Your committee believe that had the prison officials performed what seems to us to have been their duty in such cases, they would have called the attention of the county physician to the circumstances attending the death of Snook, so that no misconception could have followed, and the facts been fully established.

Your committee have considered the Resolution of the House of Assembly, which was referred to them, in reference to the right of members of the Legislature to make official visits to the State institutions; and after examination of the law and consulting of legal authority, they are of the opinion that a member of the Legislature has the undoubted right to visit any of the State institutions, at proper and reasonable hours and times, for the purpose of making inquiry into the management of such institutions, or of such information as he may deem necessary for intelligent action.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

The Joint Committee on State Prison and Lunatic Asylum, presented the following report:

The Joint Committee on State Prison and Lunatic Asylum, to whom was referred the subject of providing suitable accommodations for the insane convicts in the State, beg leave to submit the following report:

The Committee met the Managers and Superintendent of the State Asylum for the Insane, at Trenton, and was ably addressed by C. S. Green and Chas. Hewitt, Esq., Managers of the Asylum on the subject, who in their remarks pressed upon the Committee the importance and necessity of making some other provision for the care of insane convicts. The necessity of the case is obvious when it is considered that they are now domiciled with the insane patients of the State, occupying the same wards, and associating together in the same corridor the guilty with the innocent. The Committee consider this to be exceedingly objectionable, detrimental to the interest and good order of the Asylum, and appeals strongly for some change.

The difficulty of converting any wing of the State Asylum into a ward for the convicts is apparent from the fact that the Asylum for the Insane is not constructed in a manner to meet the requirements of a prison without a radical change, accompanied with considerable expense, besides the Asylum is at present so full and the increase so rapid as to forbid the detachment of any wing to be appropriated for that purpose.

The Committee on the State Prison have examined that institution, and report that there are no accommodation to be had for that purpose; the prison with the new addition being inadequate for the accommodation of the prisoners. It has been suggested that the central part of the prison might be fitted up for the insane convicts, and a new building erected outside of the walls for the accommodation of the keepers, but the Committee consider this project cannot be indulged at the present on account of the cost, as no large appropriation should be made the present year in view of a reduction of the State tax. The Arsenal and the Soldiers' Childrens Home buildings have all had their consideration by the Committee, but in view of the approaching close of the Legislative session the Committee recommend that the subject be referred to the Joint Committee on the State Prison, in order that they may during the present year examine and complete some plan to present to the next Legislature. The managers of the Asylum preferring to take charge of the convicts for another year than to make permanent arrangements for the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Prison Committee.

C. B. MOORE,
CHAS. S. PLUMMER.

SENATOR HENDRICKSON—Long before I had the pleasure of meeting you personally, I had heard of you as one serving your country and the State ably and well in this Senate; and now, sir, you are at the close of six additional years as the representative of Monmouth County in this Chamber, where your course has been such as to meet the approbation of your associates without regard to party prejudices. We know that it is within the limits of your own desires to retain your position here indefinitely, but I understand that it is your intention to retire to private life.

Your friends here—and they include every member of this Senate—have had prepared this cane, and desire me to present it to you as a token of their respect for you in your representative capacity and as a gentleman. As you lean on this staff for support in your declining years, it will recall to your mind your service to the people of the State in this Chamber, the ties formed here, the appreciation of your colleagues, and above all the proud consciousness of having faithfully performed your duty.

Senator, when you leave this Senate, the State will lose in you a representative whose past and only object has been simply and solely to perform your duty, and when your shadow fades on these portals, this Chamber will have lost an honest man.

Mr. Hendrickson receiving it, said:

SENATORS—I accept from the hands of your representative this token of your confidence and regard. It is more than I could expect, from the fact that I have never been educated to make speeches, and my life in this Senate has been one of quiet thought and action. My desire, however, has been, while a humble representative of the County of Monmouth, to do my duty to my constituents and the State, and I have never left my seat to avoid a vote, willing at all times to share the responsibility with my fellow members.

The more do I appreciate this gift because as a testimonial of my course it comes from Senators of both sides of this Chamber. Acknowledging that I have made many mistakes, it has always been under the conviction, at the time, that I was doing my duty. This mark of your respect I shall always preserve with great care and constant regard, although it will carry with it a sadness when I am reminded of the separation from those from whom I have received so much of kind assistance in the performance of duty. With my best wishes for your future happiness and success, I again thank you with a heart too full to express its kind emotions to each and all of you.
