COMMISSION, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) determined that Passaic County Educational Services Commission Board of Education member Diana Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when, as Board President, she voted to award a Board contract to the Passaic County Technical Institute, where Ms. Lobosco is employed as Superintendent. After considering the nature of the charge, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, concurred with the Commission's recommendation. The Commissioner thus ordered that Diana Lobosco be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 364-12/05

IN THE MATTER OF DIANA LOBOSCO,	:
PASSAIC COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), finding Passaic County Educational Services Commission Board of Education member Diana Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, as Board President, she voted to award a Board contract to the Passaic County Technical Institute, where she is employed as Superintendent, along with the Commission's recommended penalty of reprimand, have been reviewed. Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, Ms. Lobosco was provided thirteen days from the mailing date of the decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. Comments from Greg K. Vitali, Esq., counsel for Ms. Lobosco, were timely filed.

Counsel's comments propose that the Commission's recommended sanction of reprimand is too harsh and severe under the circumstances. In support of this assertion, counsel essentially argues that the Commission, in finding that Ms. Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), adopted a too stringent application of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(h), which he urges should be applicable here. Furthermore, he submits:

> Ms. Lobosco's participation in this particular vote is clearly not the type of action or conduct that the School Ethics Act is designed to discourage or protect against. The imposition of the sanction of reprimand, therefore, will serve only to blemish an otherwise enviable record of longtime faithful and dedicated public service, a result which the Legislature in adopting the School Ethics Act clearly did not have in mind.

As such, counsel for Ms. Lobosco urges that the Commissioner find that, under the particular conditions here, no penalty is appropriate.

Initially, it must be emphasized that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed based upon a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner notes that, contrary to the apparent misapprehension of counsel for Ms. Lobosco, having found a violation of the School Ethics Act, the Commission was statutorily obligated to recommend a sanction for this infraction (See N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29c.). As evidenced in its decision, upon full consideration of the nature of the offense and after weighing the effects of aggravating and mitigating circumstances, the Commission recommended the least onerous penalty possible. The Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Diana Lobosco be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
DIANA LOBOSCO PASSAIC COUNTY EDUCATION SERVICES COMMISSION PASSAIC COUNTY	:	Docket No. C31-05
	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on June 21, 2005 by Howard Solomon alleging that Ms. Lobosco, President of the Passaic County Educational Services Commission Board of Directors (Board), violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), (c) and (f) of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., when, at the June 24, 2004 Board meeting, she voted to award a Board contract to the Passaic County Technical Institute (Institute) where she is employed as Superintendent.

After the Commission granted an extension, for good cause, of time to file an answer, Ms. Lobosco filed an answer, through her attorney, Greg K. Vitali, Esq. In her answer, Ms. Lobosco denied that her vote on June 24, 2004 violated the Act.

The Commission invited the parties to attend its August 23, 2005 meeting to present witnesses and testimony, but did not require that they be present. The parties did not attend the meeting. At its August 23, 2005 meeting, the Commission voted to find probable cause to credit the allegations that Ms. Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the Act. The Commission also voted to find no probable cause to credit the allegations that Ms. Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and (f).

The Commission found that the material facts were not in dispute with respect to the issue upon which it found probable cause and, therefore, advised Ms. Lobosco's attorney that it would decide the matter on the basis of written submissions. Mr. Vitali was invited to provide a written submission to the Commission by October 21, 2005, and set forth why the Commission should not find Ms. Lobosco in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the Act. Mr. Vitali was also told that his written submission should include his position on an appropriate sanction for Ms. Lobosco should the Commission determine that the Act was violated. Mr. Vitali filed a timely response to the Commission's probable cause decision. In his response, Mr. Vitali argued that the approval of the contract resulted in a loss to the Institute and did not affect Ms. Lobosco's salary and compensation. He further argued that Ms. Lobosco's position as Superintendent of the Institute does not constitute an interest as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22. He further argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(h) applied and the Commission should dismiss the complaint. Mr. Vitali submitted that should the Commission fail to dismiss the matter in its entirety, it should impose a penalty no greater than that of a reprimand.

FACTS

The Commission based its finding of probable cause on the following facts.

At all times relevant to the complaint Ms. Lobosco was President of the Board and Superintendent of the Institute.

Prior to the June 24, 2005 Board meeting, the Institute provided emergency computer services to the Board whenever the computer consulting company under contract with the Board failed to provide adequate services. At the June 24, 2005 Board meeting, the interim Superintendent recommended that the Board approve a contract with the Institute that would pay $35 an hour for each technician. This amount is half of what the state contract rate is for computer technicians. Ms. Lobosco voted in the affirmative to approve the contract recommended by the Interim Superintendent. The contract was approved by a unanimous vote.

The Commission found probable cause that Ms. Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, as President of Board, she voted to award a Board contract to the Institute where she is employed as Superintendent. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he or a member of his immediate family has a personal involvement that is or creates some benefit to the school official or member of his immediate family;

In its probable cause decision, the Commission determined that Ms. Lobosco does not have a direct financial involvement in the contract between the Institute and the Board. However, the Commission found that she does have an indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment. In I/M/O Bruce White, C01-01 (July 24, 2001), the Commission found that a board member had an indirect financial involvement when he voted on the payment of tuition to the Mercer County Vocational School where he was employed as a Principal. In White, the Commission noted that the tuition payment was not earmarked for any particular purpose and that the funds go into the general fund. Based on that fact, the Commission reasoned that the board member had an indirect financial involvement. In its probable cause decision, the Commission reasoned that this complaint is similar to White in that Ms. Lobosco voted to approve a contract between the Board of which she is President and the Institute where she is employed as Superintendent.

In his response to the Commission's probable cause determination, Mr. Vitali argued that it is undisputed that the approval of the contract resulted in the Institute operating at a loss and that Ms. Lobosco's salary and compensation was in no way affected by the approval of the contract. He further argued that since the contract was a mere extension of the goodwill that the Institute was already providing the Board in emergency situations, that Ms. Lobosco's objectivity or independence of judgment was not impaired when she participated in the vote on the contract. The Commission does not dispute that the contract resulted in an operating loss for the Institute. However, as the Commission noted in its probable cause decision, before the Institute entered into the contract, it was providing services to the Board at an even greater loss, and the contract cut those losses in half since the Institute receives some remuneration under the contract.

Mr. Vitali also argued that Ms. Lobosco is an employee of the Institute and owns no interest in the Institute as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23. The Commission agrees that Ms. Lobosco does not have an interest in the Institute. However, she is an employee of the Institute and, similar to all employees, she has an indirect interest in the financial integrity of the Institute. The contract Ms. Lobosco voted for brought additional funds to the Institute. The Commission noted in its probable cause decision that there is no information to show that the contract funds are earmarked for any particular purpose. There is also no information to show where the contract funds are dedicated. Similar to the White decision, Ms. Lobosco had an indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment. Based on the foregoing, the Commission finds that Ms. Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, as Board President, she voted to award a Board contract to the Institute, where she is employed as Superintendent.

In his response to the Commission's probable cause determination, Mr. Vitali argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(h) applies to Ms. Lobosco's vote on the contract because no material or monetary gain accrued to Ms. Lobosco as a result of her participation in the vote on the contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(h) provides:

> No school official shall be deemed in conflict with these provisions if, by reason of his participation in any matter required to be voted upon, no material or monetary gain accrues to him as a member of any business, profession, occupation, or group, to any greater extent than any gain could reasonably be expected to accrue to any other member of that business, profession, occupation or group;

If Ms. Lobosco was a member of any business, profession, occupation or group, then she could vote on the contract if no material or monetary gain accrues to her greater than any gain could reasonably be expected to accrue to any other member. However, Mr. Vitali fails to identify the business, profession, occupation or group of which Ms. Lobosco is a member. The Commission cannot find a business, profession, occupation or group of which Ms. Lobosco is a member to make this section applicable. Therefore, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(h) does not apply.

DECISION

For the reasons discussed above, the Commission finds that Diana Lobosco violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the Act. The Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand for the reasons provided by Mr. Vitali.

This decision has been adopted by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission. This matter shall now be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within 13 days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, Ms. Lobosco may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on December 7, 2005 following transfer of the case from the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division, Bergen County to that agency pursuant to an Order filed on December 1, 2005 by the Honorable Jonathan N. Harris, JSC, before whom the matter initially had been brought. See Joseph A. Natoli Const. Corp. v. Tp. of Wyckoff Bd. of Educ., et als, Superior Court of N.J., Law Division: Bergen County, Docket No. L-814705. Since the subject matter of the dispute involved the propriety of actions taken by the Wyckoff Board of Education (Wyckoff) and the "low" bidder, VRH Construction Corp. (VRH) in connection with the acceptance of the bid of VRH on a school construction project, Judge Harris determined that "primary jurisdiction" was with the Department of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. An unsuccessful bidder, petitioner Joseph A. Natoli Const. Corp. (Natoli) had filed a Verified Complaint, Order to Show Cause and an application for a stay in the Law Division. Following Judge Harris' determination to deny the stay and transfer the matter to the Department of Education, an interlocutory appeal was taken by Natoli to the Appellate Division for leave to appeal and for a stay, both of which were rejected. Thus, the matter now is proceeding before the Office of Administrative Law.[1] Oral argument on the emergency relief application was conducted on December 13, 2005. Counsel for respondent Dobco, Inc., the second low bidder after VRH, advised me by letter that his client did not intend to participate in the case.

The Verified Complaint filed by Natoli in the Law Division alleged that on or about September 30, 2005, Wyckoff promulgated plans and specifications and solicited bids on a substantial school construction project involving additions and alterations to its Eisenhower Middle School. The project generally consists of the construction of two additions to, and alterations of, the existing school building. The bid solicitation provided that Wyckoff intended to enter into a single prime contract pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 18A-18(b). Bids were received and opened on November 15, 2005 and the three lowest base bids of a total of 14 bids were as follows:

A.	VRH	($14,198,000)
B.	Dobco	($14,439,000)
C.	Natoli	($14,787,000)

In its submission VRH designated S&J Electric Contracting Inc. (S&J) as its electrical subcontractor which had a total aggregate authorization of $2,500,000. However, at the time of the VRH bid submission S&J had a balance of approximately $1.2 million in "uncompleted work", leaving an approximate "net" amount available for performing the job in Wyckoff of $1.3 million. The total cost of the electrical portion of the work was about $2 to $2.5 million. Shortly after bids were opened Natoli reviewed the documentation and suggested to its counsel that S&J was not qualified to perform the electrical work since the fair value of the same (at least $2 million) exceeded the subcontractor's dollar limit (about $1.3 million) at the time of the bid. According to the Verified Complaint, VRH and S&J took the position that the undertaking by S&J as the electrical subcontractor for VRH was for "labor only" and that the general contractor would supply all of the material. Natoli, on the other hand, had named as its electrical subcontractor an entity which had a financial aggregate rating of $2.5 million which was sufficient to cover the entire cost of its portion of the project. Thus, according to Natoli, the VRH bid was materially deficient in that S&J was not qualified to meet the aggregate rating limit for performance of that portion of the contract. The action taken by VRH, according to Natoli, in "dividing up" the work between labor and materials in order to qualify its subcontractor was nothing less than a manipulation which subverted the intent and purpose of the public bidding requirements concerning classification of bidders. VRH's action, it claimed, created a "unique and improper competitive advantage" which ran counter to the policy of the Legislature and the courts of this State which is that the bidding statutes are designed to and must be interpreted as protecting against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance and corruption.

Thus, Natoli asserted that since Wyckoff had awarded the contract to VRH in violation of pertinent statutes and regulations, the integrity of the bidding process could seriously be impinged and a stay absolutely was necessary on an emergent basis in order to avoid irrevocable injury to Natoli, not to mention the taxpayers of the of school district and even other bidders. Thus, a temporary restraining order with respect to implementation of the contract was sought and/or a vacation of any award, as well as a determination that since Natoli's bid was the lowest responsible and responsive bid on the subject contract it was entitled to any award.[2]

In a Certification in Support of the Verified Complaint and Order to Show Cause for Temporary Restraints, Paul R. Natoli, petitioner's Vice President and Director of Project Management and the person directly responsible for preparation and submission of the bid in this case, asserted that the specifications for prospective bidders required that electrical subcontractors who were to be engaged to perform any electrical work not only had to be qualified to perform the work, but also had to have an aggregate financial limitation adequate to meet the totality of the electrical work as specified in the bid. This, he insisted, included not merely labor but also material supply and installation. Thus, in Natoli's view, only electrical subcontractors meeting those qualifications were acceptable and had his company been apprised that a bidder could do what VRH did, Natoli possibly would have recalculated its costs and made a lower bid. Natoli also maintained in his Certification that his company has bid upon scores of governmental projects and always followed what he believes to be the statutory mandate that subcontractors must not only be qualified in their classifications per se, but also within their financial aggregate limit. He also commented that the materials necessary to complete the electrical portion of the project were, "in the main, technical in nature and not readily discernible from the plans and specifications except by a qualified electrician." Thus, general contractors such as VHR are not qualified to seek out and obtain these materials safely without the active participation of their electrical subcontractors. Since S&J has an approved limit of only $1.3 million remaining out of the $2.5 million total, it is impossible, he said, for S&J to perform the entire contract where quotes received from potential subcontractors ranged from $2 million to $2.4 million.

[2] Dobco, too, allegedly had done the same thing as VRH with respect to the electrical subcontractor's scope of work. As noted, Dobco has advised that it has no further interest in the proceedings.

Attached to Natoli's Certification was an excerpt from the bid specifications which included, inter alia, the following language with respect to prequalification requirements: "the Bidder certifies that the Bidder and the subcontractor . . . are pre-qualified . . . pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7G-33 et seq. in that, since the latest pre-qualification application was filed by the Bidder . . . at the time of this bid submittal, the amount of the bid proposal and the value of all outstanding incomplete contracts does not exceeds the firms existing aggregate rating limit . . ." According to Natoli, the literal language, if not the spirit of that provision at least, deliberately was circumvented by VRH since S&J's existing aggregate rating limit is $1.3 million, not $2.5 million.

After the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case, a Brief in Opposition was filed by VRH, accompanied by a Certification from its President, Victor D. Wormann, Jr., to which were attached a variety of documents. In that response, VRH took the position (not unexpectedly) that all of its activities in connection with this project strictly conformed with all statutes, rules, regulations and whatever other legal principals applied. In that respect, the Certification by Wortmann observed that in response to a solicitation for single bids from general contractors for the work in Wyckoff, VRH submitted a base rate in the amount of $14.2 million which was the lowest one submitted. In addition, VHR provided the requisite prequalification affidavit and documented its own classification as "unlimited". As part of the bid package, VRH also submitted, as required, a list of the subcontractors it intended to engage, including for electrical work S&J. Simultaneous with that submission VRH also provided the prequalification affidavit of S&J openly disclosing that although it was qualified by the Department of Treasury for an approved amount of $2.5 million, with current uncompleted work $1.2 million outstanding, the total aggregate limit that S&J had at the time of the bid was $1.3 million, which still was sufficient to allow it to perform the work required of it.

Further according to Wortmann, VRH openly disclosed its intent to furnish some materials itself. Thus, all work was to be subcontracted to S&J was for an amount less than $1.3 million which was within the limits of S J's prequalification. Wortmann also pointed out with regard to the furnishing of materials that it was VRH's intent directly to purchase building and stage lighting fixture materials and switch gear materials which it had done on other projects; albeit, the actual installation would be performed by S&J.

In addition to VRH, Wyckoff also responded to the Verified Complaint. In a Certification by its Business Administrator and Secretary, Allan C. Reiffe, he pointed out that after all bids were opened it was determined that VRH was the lowest responsible bidder and that work should promptly start since a stay of the project would cause a delay of at least one day for every day no work is done and freezing weather would complicate the matter further. Finally, he noted that any delay would expose the Board to additional costs not previously contemplated, all to the detriment of the public's interest.

Accompanying Reiffe's affidavit was a letter memorandum which Wyckoff's counsel had submitted to the Appellate Division in opposition to the interlocutory appeal filed by Natoli from Judge Harris' Order. After discussing the propriety of Judge Harris' decision not to entertain the case, counsel for Wyckoff directed his attention to the "underlying merits" and maintained that there is nothing in any applicable statute or regulation, or in the bid specifications themselves, which preclude the general contractor (VRH) from providing the materials to be utilized in the work by its electrical subcontractor (S&J), provided the subcontractor is properly licensed and fiscally qualified for the work it is to perform. Counsel points as well, to Article 3.4.1 of the form contract utilized in this matter which provides that unless otherwise noted it is the contractor's (VRH) responsibility to provide and pay for labor, materials, etc. which VRH intends fully to do in this case. Thus, since VRH was the lowest bidder and has unlimited financial prequalification itself, it clearly can engage S&J for the amount of work it wanted it to do. Even though S&J, itself, did not have a total aggregate rating at this time equal to the total project that did not matter since it was only providing labor and some material which was within its remaining aggregate.

Counsel for Wyckoff also argued to the Appellate Division that not only will Wyckoff taxpayers suffer immediate and irrevocable damage if the project is delayed, they will benefit from the VRH award since the base bid was $589,000 lower than the Natoli bid.

Attached to Wyckoff counsel's memorandum was the Certification of Peter Greico, Architect of Record for the project. In it, Greico also notes that the form contract which has been prescribed is the AIA form, and as set forth in Article 3.4.1, it is the contractor (VRH) which has agreed to provide and pay for labor and materials. Since VRH has an "unlimited" financial classification, the fact that S&J does not have an aggregate rating limit of more than $1.3 million is irrelevant so long as it is qualified to do the dollar amount of work up to its existing limit and is licensed. Finally, Greico points out that nowhere in the bid solicitation materials is there a requirement that any electrical subcontractor must supply all material and labor to complete the electrical phase of the project.

In addition to the letter brief he filed with the Appellate Division, counsel for Wyckoff also submitted a supplemental brief to me which addressed, in part, the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 dealing with the grant of emergent relief, the context of the present case. Counsel points out that in order to be entitled to such relief a petitioner must demonstrate: (1) it will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted; (2) the legal right underlying the claim is settled; (3) the petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and (4) when the equities and relative interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent if the requested relief is not granted. See Crowe v. DiGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). With respect to those elements, counsel argues that a monetary loss does not constitute irreparable harm, there is no demonstration that the legal right underlying Natoli's claim is at all settled, there is no indication that petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits and it is the taxpayers of Wyckoff who will suffer most if a stay is granted.

Counsel goes on to conclude that the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-18, the local Public School Contracts Law, mandates that the Wyckoff Board award the bid to VRH since it was the lowest responsible bidder for the work, goods and services required to complete the project in a single overall contract and for petitioner to prevail in this case there would have to be creation of "new law". Given the difference in dollar value between the VRH and the Natoli base bids ($589,000) and the need for the Board promptly to move forward to complete the school additions and alterations as winter sets in, the notion that emergent relief is warranted should be rejected.

Following oral argument on December 13, 2005, I gave counsel for Natoli until December 16, 2005 to file a supplemental memorandum in response to the briefs submitted to me on the day of the oral argument by opposing counsel. That memorandum was timely filed.

DISCUSSION

Intertwined in this public school construction bidding case are two separate legal principals. First, there is a substantial body of law which touches both generally and specifically on public bidding and, in particular, the duties placed upon and the interests of the parties. The second legal "thread" is the fact that at this stage the matter has been transmitted to OAL for "emergent relief" and the regulations and case law pertinent to that context also play a major role.

With respect to the propriety of emergent relief, a stay of the award of any bid or the commencement of construction by a "low" bidder is extraordinary relief and should be ordered only in the most exigent circumstances and primarily to prevent irreparable injury which a subsequent hearing or trial cannot cure. See e.g., Zoning Board of Adjustment of Sparta Township v. Service Electric Cable Television of New Jersey, Inc. 198 N.J. Super 370 (App. Div. 1985). Only where by clear and convincing evidence has a showing of need been made should entitlement to such relief be found. See e.g., Dolan v. DeCapua, 16 N.J. 599, 614 (1954).

The so called "seminal case" that courts generally cite in dealing with emergent relief applications is of course, Crowe v. DiGoia, supra. Pursuant to Crowe a moving party must satisfy four separate requirements: (1) irreparable harm is likely to occur if the relief is not granted; (2) any applicable underlying law is well settled; (3) the material facts are not substantially in dispute and there exists a reasonable probability of the movant's ultimate success on the merits; (4) in balancing the respective hardships to the parties, the balance tips in favor of issuance of the requested relief. Crowe v. DeGoia, supra, 90 N.J. Super at 132-134.

With respect to the first prong, the potential of irreparable harm, respondents concede that money damages likely are not available if the emergent relief is denied and it ultimately turns out that the contract should have been awarded to Natoli and not to VRH.

The second prong of Crowe requires a determination that the applicable underlying law is "well-settled". I will defer discussion of that factor since it involves consideration of the case law dealing with public bidding. So too, the third prong requires me to determine whether there exists a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. That element, too, relates to the statutory and case law on bidding. Finally, with respect to the last element, balancing the relative hardships to the parties, provided a prompt hearing can be arranged if the stay were to be granted the balance in my view tips in favor of Natoli.

The second legal thread running through this case requires application of the public bidding laws to the particular circumstances. I start with another "seminal case". Specifically, in Township of Hillside v. Sternin 25 N.J. 317 (1957), the New Jersey Supreme Court made eminently clear that public bidding statutes were for the benefit of the taxpayers and were to be construed as nearly as possible with sole reference to that objective in order to prevent the insidious introduction of favoritism, improvidence, extravagance or corruption. The ultimate aim is to secure unfettered competition. Thus, as the Court held in Sternin, material conditions contained in bid specifications may not be waived. See also, Terminal Construction Corp. v. Atlantic City Sewage Authority 67 N.J. 403 (1975). On the other hand, the Terminal decision also observed that where problems arise with bids they should be resolved in a sensible or practical way, such as determining that the condition perhaps was not so critical that it could not be waived, or if a defect is present, can it appropriately and timely be cured. See T. Michellotti & Sons, Inc. v. Borough of Fairlawn, 56 N.J. Super 199 (App. Div. 1959), app. dism., 31 N.J. 556 (1960); Township of Rivervale v. R.J. Longo Construction Co., Inc. 127 N.J. Super 207

(Law Div. 1974); Basically, the inquiry is whether the claimed defect or variance from the strict requirements of public bidding, if tolerated, will result in frustration of the salutary policies which underlie the competitive process, or might create a fertile ground for improvidence, favoritism or extravagance.

Of course, in the present case, the complaint lodged by Natoli does not go to VRH's ability to perform the contract. Rather, Natoli argues that the process used by VRH, perhaps deliberately, palpably created an unfair advantage since VRH "secretly reserved" its intention to supplement its subcontractor's inadequate aggregate limit with its own by artificially dividing the electrical work between labor and materials. According to Natoli, this makes a mockery of the need for a "level playing field" and such conduct is unfair and cannot be tolerated.

For the reasons which follow, while I commend petitioner's counsel for the creativity of his arguments, I do not believe that the facts rise to such a level that it can be determined that's its position is "well settled" law or even that Natoli, following a plenary hearing, even has a reasonable likelihood of succeeding on the merits. Thus, neither the second or third prongs of Crowe have been satisfied.

First, my own scrutiny of the public bidding statutes and pertinent regulations fails to provide any sound basis for the conclusion that they prohibit either expressly or by clear implication what VRH did here. While it is quite true, as Natoli points out, that the statutes or regulations do not appear to authorize it either, I do not believe this to be a pre-requisite. This dispute is unlike the situation in P&A Construction, Inc. v. Tp. of Woodbridge, 365 N.J. Super 164 (App. Div. 2004) where the municipality waived in advance any defect not expressly set forth in the statute. That is not what Wyckoff did here.

Second, I see no "secrecy" in the process followed which would fatally taint the VRH award. VRH submitted a single overall bid which indicated that its own classification was "unlimited". Ultimately, VRH is responsible financially for the successful completion of the entire project, including the electrical portion. While it may not have "highlighted" the limit that its subcontractor had, it did submit with its bid the appropriate documents which fully disclosed the $1.3 million aggregate limit. No one was misled and nothing was hidden. There was no post-bid manipulation. Perhaps some would call what VRH did a "sharp practice". However, even if so, that does not make it illegal or violative of any common law principle of fair dealing.

Third, I fail to discern where the public interest has been harmed. Whether or not the process used by VRH will increase competition as VRH claims is not easily capable of quantification. As I view it, what matters is that the labor for the electrical portion of the project will be performed by a contractor (S&J) who has proper prequalification and sufficient financial ability to cover all of the electrical work it will do. I fail to see any impingement on the public good in that regard.

An additional advantage that arises from an award to VRH is that on an overall basis, it will save the taxpayers of the school district almost $600,000.[3] While that is not a determining factor where challenges of this sort are made, it is an element that can and should be considered where the "public interest" is involved.

I have also scrutinized the bid specifications, the bids themselves, the AIA contract and other documentation relevant to the instant case and I FIND no fatal flow which would justify emergent relief.

There are, of course, in addition to the cases previously cited, a myriad of other decisions dealing with bid challenges in the public context. Many, if not most of course, are fact sensitive; in particular, those dealings with whether failure to comply with a bid specification is a "material" deviation justifying rejection of the bids. See, for example, Twp. of River Vale v. R.J. Longo Construction Co., Inc., supra; Marvec Allstate, Inc. v. Gray and Fear, Inc., 148 N.J. Super. 481 (App. Div. 1977); Palamar Construction, Inc. v. Twp. of Pennsauken, 196 N.J. Super. 241 (App. Div. 1983); Hall Construction Co., Inc. v. N.J. Sports Expos. Auth., 336 N.J. Super 126 (App. Div. 2000). Often, despite divergent results, the same case law is cited. Thus, examination of the particular facts is essential.

[3] The actual amount is somewhat less due to "alternate" bids on some items. However, they do not change the resulting savings in any substantial way.

In my view, absent a question as to the financial responsibility of VRH and to S&J perform the work. VRH was entitled to receive the contract award as a matter of right. Its status as low bidder in the competitive process should not lightly be disregarded. Of primary concern is whether there actually has been an element of such illegally or unfairness that one can say that the competitive bid process has been fatally undermined. If not, the low bidder is entitled to the award. In all cases, of course, strict adherence to the requirements of the bidding statutes is required and the tolerance level for variances or deviations must be set extremely low for the protection of the public interest. However, as noted, the particular facts of each case must be scrutinized rather than relying simply upon the broad language which the courts use to articulate and rearticulate the legal principles involved. For example, in the Sternin case itself, the low bid was rejected not only for a failure to submit any form of security with the bid, but at no time following the submission did the bidder evidence any intention to cure the defect. It takes little imagination to identify the potential for harm in that context. See also Albert F. Ruehl v. Bd. of Trustees, Industrial Ed. 85 N.J. Super. 4 (Law Div. 1964). Compare with T. Michelotti & Sons, Inc., supra; Hanover Twp. v. Inter. Fidelity Insurance Co., 122 N.J. Super. 544 (App. Div. 1973).

The provisions of Title 18A:18A are no different in terms of interpretation of its salutary intent and purposes than other such statutes. Both it and the Local Public Contracts Law governing bidding procedures for local authorities, not to mention statutes pertinent to State contracts, are intended to provide the public with both "benefits of unfettered competition" and to "achieve the most economic result." PEN PAC, Inc. v. Morris Co. Mun. Util. Auth., 299 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1997). That is what took place here.

Accordingly, in my view, the particular circumstances of this case do not allow me to conclude that there exists a reasonable likelihood that any legal principles underlying public bidding have been subverted. Moreover, in the context of this application for emergent relief, given the circumstances I cannot say either that the law in this area is "well-settled" in favor of Natoli. Absent the establishment of those two prongs, at least, emergent relief is not warranted under the case law or the emergency rules in Titles 6A or Title 1. To put it another way, I discern no clear and convincing proof to support petitioner's contention that the VRH bid cannot lawfully be considered the lowest responsible and responsive one. To the contrary, I believe that it was.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I FIND that petitioner has failed to demonstrate the necessary prerequisites for entitlement to emergent relief and its application for a stay of the award of the contract to VRH and/or the commencement of construction work following the award is DENIED.

Finally, I should note that over objection, I have read the letters sent to Mr. Salsburg from Mr. Callahan, counsel to the National Electrical Contractors Association, Northern New Jersey chapter, and Mr. O'Shea, Executive Director of the Mechanical Contractors Association of New Jersey, Inc. Neither has dissuaded me from reaching the decision I have made vis a vis emergent relief. Of course, as counsel for VRH aptly observed, those submissions do not comport with the OAL rules regarding participation or intervention (N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1 et seq). If either or both of those entities wish to join the case as intervenor – parties or as participants it must be done by formal motion with opportunity given to the other parties to object. No such motion has been filed.

Counsel kindly shall confer and provide me with alternative dates for a plenary hearing if they believe one is necessary or desirable. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(k).

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner, a tenured Media Specialist employed by the Board, contends that respondent acted outside its area of authority in withholding her salary increment for the 2004-2005 school year. Respondent contends its action was reasonable and within its statutory authority, and based upon documented observations of petitioner's negative behaviors during the 2003-2004 school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the respondent has the managerial prerogative to withhold an increment for inefficiency or other good cause; the petitioner has the burden of proof to demonstrate that the Board's decision was arbitrary and capricious; the petitioner did not challenge the underlying facts of the incidents that occurred in the 2003-2004 school year, but argued that the Board's reliance upon these incidents as part of the basis for withholding her increment for the 2004-2005 school year was untimely and ultra vires; it was reasonable for the Board to give petitioner a chance to correct deficiencies noted in her June 2003 evaluation, and – failing to do so as evidenced by incidents reported during the 2003-2004 school year – to use this evaluation as a factor in deciding to withhold the increment. The ALJ concluded that the instant petition should be dismissed.

The Commissioner determined that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board, as she concurs with the ALJ that the denial of petitioner's increment was not improper. In so deciding, the Commissioner notes that it is well-settled that actions concerning increment withholding may not be upset unless they can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious, unlawful or induced by improper motive; that the burden of proof of such rests with the petitioner; that the Board did not exceed its discretionary authority; and that the petitioner did not meet her burden of establishing otherwise. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MIDDLESEX, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto, were filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate her arguments advanced below which the Commissioner determines were fully considered and appropriately addressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in his decision and, therefore, will not be revisited here.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner determines that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board, as she concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ -- for the reasons stated in his decision -- that the Board's denial of petitioner's 2004-2005 increment was not improper.

It is well-settled that actions concerning increment withholding may not be upset unless they can be demonstrated to be patently arbitrary, capricious, unlawful or induced by improper motive. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) Further, the burden of proof that an action was so deficient rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera at 297. The Commissioner determines that, based on the record before her, the Board's decision to withhold petitioner's increment did not exceed the valid exercise of its discretionary authority and, moreover, that the petitioner has not met her burden of establishing otherwise.

Accordingly, for the reasons articulated therein and further explicated above, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Sasha A. Wolf, Esq., for petitioner (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Rita F. Barone, Esq., for respondent (Purcell, Reis, Shannon, Mulchay & O'Neill, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 26, 2005 Decided: November 30, 2005

BEFORE DOUGLAS H. HURD, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner contends that Respondent acted outside its area of authority in withholding Petitioner's salary increment for the 2004-2005 school year. Respondent contends its action was reasonable and within its statutory authority.

Petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal on August 2, 2004. On August 18, 2004, Respondent filed an Answer and Affirmative Defenses. The Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transferred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on October 5, 2004. The parties then filed cross-motions for summary decision. The record closed on October 26, 2005, with the filing of the final summary decision brief.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

There is no material dispute to the following facts.

Petitioner is a tenured Media Specialist employed by the Middlesex Board of Education at the Von E. Mauger Middle School. On May 17, 2004, the Board passed a resolution to withhold Petitioner's salary increment for the 2004-05 school year. The Board based its resolution on the existence of the negative environment created by Petitioner in the school's media center and on the following documents:

- On January 18, 2003, middle school principal, Elizabeth Tallman observed Petitioner performing her duties. Based on her observations, Ms. Tallman completed a "Teacher Observation Report," dated January 22, 2003, in which she commented negatively on Petitioner's communication, positive feedback to students, flexibility and responsiveness. Also, based on her observation, Ms. Tallman completed a "Teacher Confidential Evaluation," dated June 2, 2003, in which she wrote that Petitioner did not meet her expectations for a media specialist.

- On October 1, 2003, Principal Robert Heidt observed Petitioner chastising an individual child in front of the class. Mr. Heidt wrote Petitioner a memorandum, the same day, reminding her that such action was in violation of the school's Student Discipline Policy.

- On October 26, 2003, Mr. Heidt wrote a letter to Petitioner informing her that, by criticizing Ms. Karen Brown in front of her students, she had violated Contract Agreement Article 4.7 requiring any criticism of another employee be done in private.

- In a March 9, 2004, letter, Mr. Heidt informed Petitioner of complaints from other staff about her inappropriate and unprofessional verbal treatment of her 5th grade Information Literacy class. The same letter informed Petitioner that Mr. Heidt would be forwarding his recommendation to the Superintendent to withhold Petitioner's salary increment for the 2004-05 school year.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 allows a board of education to withhold any member's employment increase for inefficiency or other good cause. The purpose of the statute is to "reward only those who have contributed to the educational process thereby encouraging high standards of performance." Board of Education of the Township of Bernards v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311, 321, (1979). "The decision to withhold an increment is therefore a manner of essential managerial prerogative which has been delegated by the Legislature to the board." Ibid.

The Petitioner has the burden of proof to demonstrate that the Board's decision was arbitrary and capricious. Gnatt v. Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 589. When reviewing a board's determination to withhold a teaching increment, the scope of the Commissioner's review is to determine (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluations claimed, and (2) whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did based upon those facts. Id. at 594. The Commissioner is not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation. Id. at 594.

In this case, Petitioner's motion papers do not indicate that she challenges whether the underlying facts, that is the incidents listed above from January 2003 – March 2004, "were as those who made the evaluations claimed, and whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did based upon those facts." Ibid. Instead, Petitioner argues that the Board's decision to use incidents that occurred in the 2002-03 school year as part of the basis for withholding her salary during the 2004-05 school year is untimely and ultra vires.[1]

In Newark Teachers Union v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 1984 S.L.D. 1045, the Newark Board decided to withhold the adjustment of 22 tenured teachers who were represented by the union. The union argued that the Newark Board's decision on September 2, 1983, to withhold the 1983 – 1984 increment of tenured teachers was untimely. Id. at 1049. ALJ Weiss held that "unless a board has acted to withhold an increment prior to June 30 where, as here, a binding salary schedule is to take effect on July 1, the board cannot, after July 1 take such action." Ibid. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ's decision but not his reasoning. Id. at 1056. The Commissioner believed that "as a matter of equity and reasonableness," any action to withhold an increment should be taken with enough time to ensure that the staff member is informed of the withholding when he is notified of his salary for the upcoming year. Ibid. The Commissioner determined that a board "must act prior to September 1 of a given school year to withhold the increment of a staff member" employed from September to June. Ibid.

In this case the Petitioner, citing Sutton, infra, asserts that "a school board may not withhold an increment based on events that occurred over one school year prior to the commencement of the current academic year in which the salary withholding is to take place."[2] In Sutton v. Board of Education of the City of Orange, 1986 S.L.D. 2473, petitioners, who were tenured teachers, argued that the Orange Board did not act in a timely manner to withhold their increments. The Orange Board voted to withhold the petitioners' increments on September 10, 1985. Id. at 2476-77. The school year began on September 4, 1985. Ibid. A retroactive withholding of increments is not allowed; instead the withholding must be effected prior to the start of the academic year. Id. at 2480. The ALJ, citing Newark Teachers Union, supra, noted that "once an increment has accrued or vested at the beginning of the school year, it is no longer a proposed raise, which could be withheld, but a part of the employee's contractual salary." Id. at 2481.

Petitioner's reliance upon Sutton is misplaced; it does not support the assertion made by the Petitioner. Sutton stands for the proposition that if a school board is going to withhold an increment it must vote to do so in a pubic session prior to the start of the academic year. Id. at 2480, 2483. The impact of past conduct on a teacher's salary increment was specifically addressed in Trautwein v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bound Brook, 1979 S.L.D. 876. There the Bound Brook Board withheld a teacher's salary increment due to excessive absences. The State Board decided that a teacher's entire record of absenteeism could be considered, even though earlier incidents become less relevant with time. Ibid. "[I]n the case of withholding an increment, past conduct over a reasonably relevant period of time may properly be considered by a board of education in determining whether or not a teacher's increment should be withheld." Id. at 877. Thus, the State Board believed that the Commissioner erred in finding that the school board could not count petitioner's absences from February through June 1975. Id. at 876.

Based on Trautwein, the Board in this case could consider the past conduct from the 2002-03 school year in determining whether Petitioner's increment should be withheld. Based on Newark Teachers Union and Sutton, the Board must decide to withhold the salary increment prior to the start of the academic year in which it is to take effect. In this case, the Board passed its resolution to withhold Petitioner's 2004-05 salary increment on May 17, 2004, which is well before the start of the 2004-05 academic year.

A. Laches

Petitioner argues that the Board's decision to withhold her increment is untimely under the doctrine of laches. The courts have defined the equitable defense of laches as a "defense when there is a delay, unexplained and inexcusable, in enforcing a known right, and prejudice has resulted to the other party because of that delay." Gladden v. Public Employees' Retirement System Trustee Board, 171 N.J. Super. 364, 371 (App. Div. 1979). Laches requires both knowledge of a right and prejudice to the other party as a result of the delay in enforcing the right. The policy behind the doctrine is the discouragement of stale claims. Ibid. Determining whether a claim is stale is based on whether a party had a reason to assert the claim at an earlier date but failed to do so. Berkeley Development Corporation v. Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., 214 N.J. Super. 227, 243 (Law Div. 1986).

It is also important to note that laches, much like estoppel, is "not applied against the State to the same extent as against private parties." O'Neill v. State Highway Department, 50 N.J. 307, 319 (1967). The State has a long history of limiting the applicability of the doctrine in matters which involve the public interest. Hyland v. Kirkman, 157 N.J. Super. 565, 581-82 (Ch. Div. 1978). It is well established that laches cannot be invoked against the government nor can the neglect or omissions of public officials, as to their public duties, work an estoppel against the government. Seaside Improvement Co. v. Atlantic City Steel Pier Co., 110 N.J. 510, 519 (Ch. 1932), aff'd 114 N.J. Eq. 22 (Err. & App. 1933). This limitation holds especially true in matters where the government is acting to enforce a public right or seeking to protect the public interest. Hyland v. Kirkman, supra, 157 N.J. Super. at 581-82; Hill v. Board of Adjustment of Eatontown, 122 N.J. Super. 156, 163 (App. Div. 1972). In other words, laches must not be applied if doing so would prejudice an essential government function. Town of Secaucus v. City of Jersey City, 19 N.J. Tax 10, 27 (2000) (citing East Orange v. Livingston Township, 102 N.J. Super. 512, 522 (Law Div. 1968), aff'd 54 N.J. 96 (1969)).

The doctrine of laches was addressed, in an educational context, in Lavin v. Board of Education of the City of Hackensack, 90 N.J. 145 (1982). In Lavin the Court held that the doctrine of laches barred petitioner's claim for employment credit, which was made nine years after her employment began. "Laches in a general sense is the neglect, for an unreasonable and unexplained length of time, under circumstances permitting diligence, to do in law what should have been done. More specifically, it is inexcusable delay in asserting a right." Id at 151 (quoting Atlantic City v. Civil Service Commission, 3 N.J. Super. 57, 60 (App. Div. 1949)). Factors to be considered are the length of the delay, reasons for the delay and changing conditions of either party during the delay. Id. at 152. However, prejudice to the party asserting laches is the most important factor that must be established in order to successfully invoke the defense. Enfield, supra, 256 N.J. Super. at 253. Indeed,

> [m]ere lapse of time is not enough to constitute laches, however, a "long lapse of time, if unexplained, may create or justify a presumption against existence or validity of plaintiff's rights." Laches depends on more than inexcusable delay in asserting a claim; it depends on inexcusable delay causing undue prejudice to the party against whom the claim is asserted. One who would > invoke laches must show a delay which has subjected that party to a disadvantage in asserting and establishing their claimed right or defense caused by their detrimental reliance on their adversary's conduct.

> [Ibid. (citations omitted).]

The length of time between the June 2003 evaluation and the Board's decision to withhold the increment, May 17, 2004, is approximately one year. The Board's motion papers do not provide any reason for deciding to withhold Petitioner's increment during the 2004-05 school year as opposed to the 2003-04 school year. The only changing conditions mentioned in the papers are the subsequent negative evaluations of the Petitioner during the 2003-04 school year.

The Board taking into consideration an incident a year prior to its decision is not unreasonable because, based on Trautwein, supra, the Board can consider a staff member's past conduct and attach relevance to the conduct depending on how far back it occurred. Moreover, unlike Lavin, which had a nine-year delay, the delay here is only one year. It is reasonable for the Board to give Petitioner a chance to correct the deficiencies listed in the June 2003 evaluation, and then when she failed to do so, as shown by the incidents during the 2003-04 school year, use it as factor in deciding to withhold the increment. Nor has Petitioner shown how consideration of the June 2003 evaluation caused her any disadvantage in asserting and establishing her claimed right or that she detrimentally relied on the Board's conduct.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 allows a board of education to withhold any member's employment increase for inefficiency or other good cause. Petitioner does not argue against the substance of the incidents that the Board used in making its withholding decision. Instead, Petitioner argues that the withholding is improper because the Board considered the June 2003 teacher evaluation as part of its determination to withhold Petitioner's 2004-05 increment.

However, Trautwein allows the Board to consider a teacher's past conduct over a reasonably relevant period of time. Also, Newark Teachers Union and Sutton require the Board to make its withholding decision prior to the start of the school year in which the withholding is to take place. In this case, the Board made its decision on May 17, 2004, well before the start of the 2004-05 school year. Nor would the doctrine of laches bar the Board's action given that Trautwein allows the Board to consider past conduct and that it is reasonable for the Board to give Petitioner a chance to remedy any problems cited in her June 2003 evaluation before considering it and her actions, during the 2003-04 school year, in its decision.

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that Petitioner's Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. AGENCY DKT. NO. 228-6/04

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DONNA MOSLEY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

This matter has been presented to the Commissioner as an Initial Decision approving a settlement agreed to by the parties and ordering compliance with the settlement terms.

On June 28, 2004, the Trenton Board of Education certified to the Commissioner two tenure charges against respondent, a tenured secretary: unbecoming conduct/excessive absenteeism, and abandonment of position. The allegations in the first charge describe poor attendance over a period of years, beginning in 1996 and continuing through the 2003-2004 school year. During most years, respondent allegedly used more than her allotment of leave days: 11 in the 1998-1999 school year, 28 in the 1999-2000 school year, 12 in the 2000-2001 school year, 1 in the 2001-2002 school year, 45.5 in the 2002-2003 school year and 100 in the 2003-2004 school year. The second charge alleged that respondent abandoned her position by being absent without permission or a doctor's note from December 15, 2003 to April 5, 2004.

Respondent's answer, submitted on July 12, 2004, included no response to the second tenure charge. As to the first tenure charge, respondent neither admitted nor denied most of the factual allegations.

On September 12, 2005, the parties held a conference with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concerning settlement negotiations that they had conducted prior to that date. The ALJ received a memorialization of the settlement on November 7, 2005, and issued his Initial Decision approving it on November 23, 2005.

In the settlement, respondent "admits" that her absence from employment from December 15, 2003 through April 5, 2004 was due to her participation in a substance abuse rehabilitation program, and that her absenteeism over the period of years mentioned in the charges was due to a substance addiction.

Accordingly, the parties agreed -- subject to the Commissioner's approval -- that respondent will be reinstated to her former position with the following conditions:

1. Respondent agrees to comply with a Health Improvement Program, a signed copy of which is annexed to the settlement document;
2. Respondent's employment record will show -- for disciplinary purposes -- the 120-day suspension without pay that was imposed following certification of the tenure charges;
3. Respondent acknowledges that she is not entitled to back pay or attorney fees from petitioner; and
4. The parties agree that respondent has not, by accepting the disciplinary suspension without pay, admitted any guilt or wrongdoing.

The Health Improvement Program (HIP) with which respondent has agreed to comply contains acknowledgements that past substance addiction or attendance at a drug rehabilitation program may be a handicap -- under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD) and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) -- as to which employers must provide reasonable accommodation. Bosshard v. Hackensack University Medical Center, 345 N.J. Super. 78, 85-89 (App. Div. 2001). However, also in the HIP is an acknowledgement by respondent that -- to retain her position -- she must be able to perform her duties, "including but not limited to maintaining sobriety and having a satisfactory record of attendance." She also acknowledges that, consistent with In re Yaniello, Commissioner's Decision No. 203-95, decided June 12, 1995, pages 5-8, aff'd State Board January 8, 1997, aff'd App. Div. A-3482-96T1 April 2, 1998, petitioner may lawfully hold respondent to the terms of a return to work agreement (the HIP) containing protections against drug use in the workplace or off-duty use of drugs that affects workplace performance.

To address these considerations, the HIP recites that petitioner will ask the Commissioner to allow the tenure charges against respondent to be withdrawn or dismissed with prejudice in exchange for respondent's agreement that she will acquiesce to blood testing upon evidence or suspicion of any return to substance abuse, and acknowledgement that her employment will be terminated if the result of split sample testing is positive. In addition, for an indefinite period after the effective date of the HIP, respondent will be subject to random blood testing, with the same outcome in the event of a positive result.

The Commissioner adopts the ALJ's approval of the settlement proposed by the parties. It is a supportable balance between the rights under federal and State law that are due to an employee who has done rehabilitation for the handicap of a substance addiction, and the necessity of a high standard of conduct from school employees, who are influential forces in students' lives, and who consequently must hold the confidence of the public which entrusts students into their care.

The ALJ properly determined that respondent entered into the agreement with full understanding of her rights, and that the agreement is dispositive of all issues and consistent with the law and public interest. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(a) and (b). In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 850-851. The Commissioner notes that although petitioner's attorney did not execute the settlement document, the file includes a copy of the minutes of petitioner's October 11, 2005 meeting during which petitioner approved the settlement by a majority vote.

Accordingly, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms, and adopts the ALJ's Initial Decision, as supplemented by the foregoing, as the final decision in this case. The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

4. It is agreed that the Respondent's acceptance of this disciplinary suspension without pay does not constitute an admission of guilt by her to any of the allegations set forth in the tenure charges or an acknowledgment that she engaged in any wrongdoing of any kind, including that set forth in the tenure charges. Respondent has entered into this settlement agreement due to the uncertainty of the outcome and in an effort to dispose of this matter in a way that will allow her to return to work.

7. The parties agree that this settlement agreement will be incorporated as part of an Initial Decision issued by the Honorable John R. Futey, ALJ, and will be presented to the Commissioner of Education to accept as a final decision in this matter.

8. The Respondent by signing this agreement below represents and warrants that she has had an opportunity to review this agreement with her attorney, Michael T. HEALTH IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM CONTRACT

THIS HEALTH IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM CONTRACT (hereinafter referred to as "Contract") is made and entered into this 11th day of October 2005 by and between the Trenton Board of Education ("BOARD") and Donna Mosley ("MOSLEY") (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "parties."

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS, the BOARD and MOSLEY have each retained independent counsel of their own choosing, and have agreed to this resolution concerning the tenure hearing. The parties have knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily agreed to waive such rights as ordinarily available in such a matter.

WHEREAS, past drug addiction or attendance at a drug rehabilitation program is acknowledged as a handicap with the protection of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination ("NJLAD") and the Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA") as touted in Bosshard v. Hackensack University Medical Center, 345 N.J.Super. 78, 783 A.2d 731 (App.Div. 2001). The BOARD acknowledges that under the NJLAD and the ADA, it is required to formulate a reasonable accommodation for employees with disabilities. Similarly, MOSLEY realizes that though the BOARD has a duty to reasonably accommodate her disability, she must be able to perform her duties, including but not limited to maintaining sobriety and having a satisfactory record of attendance and that, consistent with In re Yaniello, CD 203-95 (Jun. 12, 1995), aff'd. S.B. 78-95 (Jan. 8, 1997), aff'd. App.Div. Dkt. No. A-3482-96T1 (Apr.2, 1998) (unreported), the BOARD may lawfully hold MOSLEY to the terms of a return to work agreement. The BOARD cannot assume that, without the following protections contained in the Contract, MOSLEY will limit possible drug consumption to off-duty hours, or that the effects of drugs will be dissipated by the time the workday commences.

NOW THEREFORE, the matters in dispute having been amicably adjusted by and between the parties, it is hereby represented, warranted, promised, covenanted and agreed as follows:

EXHIBIT A

1. The recitals in the Settlement Agreement are made part of the Contract by reference.

2. The BOARD will seek the Commissioner's approval for this Contract, and if the Commissioner approves the Contract without modification, ask the Commissioner to allow the tenure charges against MOSLEY to be withdrawn and dismissed with prejudice.

3. Upon suspicion or evidence of MOSLEY's return to drug abuse after the execution of the Contract, MOSLEY consents in advance to submit to blood testing. The BOARD's demand for blood testing shall be provided in writing and delivered to MOSLEY by personal delivery. MOSLEY must present herself at the place designated for testing for the presence of controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in her body within 1 (one) hour upon receipt of the demand unless extended by the BOARD in writing. Blood testing is to take place at a licensed, BOARD-designated hospital, clinic, hospice, laboratory or other healthcare provider utilizing a split sample method, with the sample to be split into three parts. In the event that the first part of the sample tests positive utilizing the then-current standards accepted by the U.S. Department of Transportation, the BOARD may immediately suspend MOSLEY in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., and the second part of the sample will be forwarded promptly and directly by the licensed, BOARD-designated healthcare provider described above to a facility operated by Quest Diagnostics or its successor by merger or acquisition (which MOSLEY agrees, in advance, is an independent laboratory of her choice). MOSLEY will pay for the analysis of the second part of the sample. In the event that the second part of the sample tests positive, the BOARD will consider the result as a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY. In the event that the second part of the sample tests negative, Laboratory Corporation of America or its successor will test the third part by merger or acquisition at the expense of the BOARD. The third test shall be conclusive. In the event that the third part of the sample tests positive, the BOARD will consider the result as a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY. In the event of a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY, following the principles articulated in Yaniello, supra, MOSLEY acknowledges that she will be subject to the termination of her employment and tenure;

4. For an indefinite period after the full and final execution of this agreement, MOSLEY consents in advance to submit to random blood testing. The BOARD's demand for blood testing shall be provided in writing and delivered to MOSLEY by personal delivery. MOSLEY must present herself at the place designated for testing for the presence of controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in her body within 1 (one) hour upon receipt of the demand unless extended by the BOARD in writing. Blood testing is to take place at a licensed, BOARD-designated hospital, clinic, hospice, laboratory or other healthcare provider utilizing a split sample method, with the sample to be split into three parts. In the event that the first part of the sample tests positive utilizing the then-current standards accepted by the U.S. Department of Transportation, the BOARD may immediately suspend MOSLEY in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., and the second part of the sample will be forwarded promptly and directly by the licensed, BOARD-designated healthcare provider described above to a facility operated by Quest Diagnostics or its successor by merger or acquisition (which MOSLEY agrees, in advance, is an independent laboratory of her choice). MOSLEY will pay for the analysis of the second part of the sample. In the event that the second part of the sample tests positive, the BOARD will consider the result as a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY. In the event that the second part of the sample tests negative, Laboratory Corporation of America or its successor will test the third part by merger or acquisition at the expense of the BOARD. The third test shall be conclusive. In the event that the third part of the sample tests positive, the BOARD will consider the result as a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY. In the event of a violation of this agreement by MOSLEY, following the principles articulated in Yaniello, MOSLEY acknowledges that she will be subject to the termination of her employment and tenure.

Record Closed: November 29, 2005 Decided: November 30, 2005

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about June 11, 1999, petitioner, Rita Hawks, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent improperly charged her sick days for time lost due to a work-related injury in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. On or about August 25, 1999, respondent filed its answer requesting dismissal of the petition and alleging that petitioner's claim must be reduced by any recovery received in Workers' Compensation. On August 31, 1999, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

On October 18, 1999, the matter was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Thomas R. Vena, and a prehearing conference was scheduled for December 2, 1999. With consent of counsel, by order dated February 16, 2000, ALJ Vena placed this matter on the inactive list for three months pending the determination of petitioner's Workers' Compensation claim. The case was continued on the inactive list for six months by Order dated October 18, 2000. The matter was reassigned to Administrative Law Judge Thomas E. Clancy, who also ordered the above matter continued on the inactive list for various time periods, until petitioner's attorney advised Judge Clancy by letter dated August 3, 2004 that the matter should be listed for hearing.

On September 7, 2004, the case was assigned to the undersigned judge, and a hearing scheduled for April 20, 2005. The hearing was adjourned to June 21, 2005 and then again to August 11, 2005. On that date, the parties appeared and settlement discussions were held. A settlement was reached, and the parties signed a Settlement Agreement. As a result, the hearing was adjourned. The settlement was contingent upon approval by the Board. Despite requests for the Board Resolution approving the settlement, it was not received by the undersigned until November 29, 2005.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Settlement Agreement and Board Resolution, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on November 16, 2004 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –15.

Petitioner Bloomfield Education Association sought salary and benefits on behalf of 10 teachers employed by the Bloomfield Board of Education. One of those individual teachers, Daniela DiCarlo, has entered into a settlement of her claim against the Board.

Ms. DiCarlo and the Board have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement. I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. Ms. DiCarlo and the Board voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy between Ms. DiCarlo and the Board and is consistent with law.

3. This partial settlement does not affect the rights and obligations of any of the other nine named individuals in this case.

Therefore I ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be and are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONERS,	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	DECISION ON APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY,
RESPONDENT.

Upon independent review of the record and the Initial Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Commissioner adopts the determination of the administrative law judge (ALJ) that petitioners have not met their burden to entitle them to relief on an emergent basis.

This case began on December 8, 2005 with a petition demanding that B.W. and S.D.C. be given credit for Algebra I and allowed to participate in Algebra II for the rest of the 2005-2006 school year. The petition was accompanied by a brief and certification purporting to support a motion for emergent relief. Respondent's answer was filed on December 14, 2005 with the OAL, to which the case had already been transmitted. In essence, respondent maintained that: both students had failed their respective 9th grade Algebra I classes; had not taken any of the remedial classes for Algebra I that had been approved by the district, or by the principal of their school; and were ineligible to take Algebra II until they passed an approved Algebra I course. A hearing was held in the OAL on December 14, 2005, at which the ALJ rendered an oral order denying petitioners' application for emergent relief.

It is undisputed that B.W. and S.D.C. (the Students) received failing grades in Algebra I at the end of their freshman year (2003-2004) at Dr. Charles E. Brimm Medical Arts High School (Brimm). It is also undisputed that during the summer of 2004, respondent operated summer school remedial courses for juniors and seniors only. The students were consequently obliged to seek other alternatives for remediation in Algebra I.

Plaintiffs submitted a copy of an undated letter from a Brimm guidance counselor, Frederick W. Clayton (P-6), wherein he stated that he had met with B.W.'s mother and "It was resolved from [their] meeting [that B.W.] and another student would resolve their deficiency in Algebra I by completing the required hours and review work with the same teacher and the same curriculum which the Camden Board of Education used in Summer School 2004."

In a letter dated January 20, 2005 (P-5), the director of the Camden area Upward Bound reported that S.D.C. had attended a six-week program during Summer 2004 which included an Algebra I component for which S.D.C. received a final grade of 75 (P-5). The Algebra I instruction was given by a Camden City school teacher who, according to the testimony of Camden Assistant Superintendent Luis Pagan, has a certificate in elementary education and taught mathematics in a Camden middle school. The Algebra I instruction that B.W. obtained in summer 2004 was apparently from a Brimm mathematics teacher, Ms. Cloth, who submitted a note dated June 16, 2005 stating that B.W. had "attended summer school in '04 and completed Alg I [sic] with me. She received a B and passed."

It is undisputed that no prior recommendation or approval was obtained from the principal of Brimm for either student's summer instruction. It is also undisputed that neither the students nor the respective teachers forwarded to Brimm an evaluation and description of the provided instruction and an account of the number of hours of classroom instruction. Further, it is undisputed that the Upward Bound teacher held no endorsement in mathematics. While Ms. Cloth is certified to teach secondary school mathematics, she was not, according to Pagan's testimony, assigned by the district to teach Algebra I during summer 2004.

Although the students were initially scheduled to repeat Algebra I in their sophomore year (2004-2005 school year), it is undisputed that they were both allowed to take Geometry (P-4), and that they both passed the course. A copy of a memorandum dated September 6, 2005 from Joseph D. Carruth, Principal of Brimm, to Luis A. Pagan, Assistant Superintendent of the respondent district (P-3), indicated that prior to being switched to Geometry, B.W. had been given an examination for Algebra I and had passed it. The same memo details Carruth's recollections regarding the changing of B.W. and S.D.C.'s Algebra I grades from F to D. There was conflicting evidence at the OAL hearing as to whether the students' failing grades for Algebra I had ever been changed to D's, but Pagan testified that he had never approved same (R-1), and that the students' current official transcripts show F's.

At the end of the 2004-2005 school year, Pagan wrote to D.W., B.W.'s father and former member of the respondent Board of Education, that B.W. could not receive credit for her instruction in summer 2004 because the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.8 [now N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5] had not been met. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5 mandates that it is a student's principal who must recommend any summer school remedial course, in accordance with district board policies, and that he/she must identify the specific course and the purpose for which it is taken. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5(a). Further, credit for remedial courses may not be granted unless an evaluation and description of the course is provided to the principal, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5(b) and (d), and unless the course is given for 60 hours "under standards equal to those during the regular term or through an established number of curricular activities as determined by the district board of education and approved by the county superintendent . . . ." N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5(d).

Pagan stated in his letter, which was dated June 27, 2005, that he had found no evidence of compliance with the foregoing. He suggested that B.W. take an approved Camden County Algebra I course during summer 2005 so that she could take Algebra II as a Junior, and he attached to his letter a list of approved summer school programs in Camden County (R-2).

It is undisputed that neither B.W. nor S.D.C. took remedial Algebra I during summer 2005. Accordingly, both were scheduled to take Algebra I for the 2005-2006 school year. Contrary to the allegations in the petition, it is now undisputed that both students have been in Algebra I for four months, i.e., since the beginning of the school year.

Finally, although petitioners initially alleged that four courses in mathematics are needed for graduation from Brimm, they could offer no supporting proof. To the contrary, annexed to respondent's Answer are a copy of an excerpt from Camden City Public School's Program of Studies for Grades 9-12, and an affidavit by the Brimm course scheduler, both of which verify that only three mathematics courses are necessary under State standards and Brimm's own graduation requirements.

The foregoing facts having been established, the ALJ issued an oral opinion, applying the standards for granting emergent relief, as articulated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Under Crowe v. DeGioia, petitioners must show (1) that they will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted; (2) the legal right underlying petitioners' claim is settled; (3) petitioners have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and (4) a balancing of the equities and interests of the parties reveals that petitioners would suffer greater harm than respondent would suffer from an adverse ruling.

At the outset, the ALJ expressed concern that petitioners had presented insufficient proofs to support the allegations that formed the basis of their claim. For example, petitioners were not able to support their allegations that the students had initially been allowed to take Algebra II but were subsequently removed from same. The facts established at the hearing revealed that the students had been in Algebra I from the beginning of the 2005-2006 school year, since they had not taken remedial Algebra I during summer 2005, despite Pagan's June 27, 2005 letter advising petitioners of the necessity to do so.

The ALJ mentioned also that while there was testimony that Pagan gave permission for B.W. to be given an Algebra I final exam -- and while there was a written hearsay statement that she had passed it (P-3) -- there was a factual dispute about whether Pagan ever saw the exam, and about the purpose or significance of the exam. The Commissioner notes that petitioners' own exhibit (P-3) indicates that the exam was administered not to assess whether B.W. could proceed to Algebra II, but rather to assess whether B.W. should be allowed to take Geometry in 2004-2005.

Most significantly, the ALJ found that petitioners presented no proof at the hearing that the instruction the students had taken in summer 2004 qualified for Algebra I remedial credit under N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5, supra. Nor did petitioners show that they had, at any time, presented to the Camden district the information it needed to assess the instruction.

The remaining weakness in petitioners' proofs related to the alleged approval that guidance counselor Clayton gave to the students for remedial summer instruction in Algebra I. Petitioners argue that Clayton's approval of the students' summer 2004 instruction was apparent authority upon which petitioners were entitled to rely. However, according to petitioners' own exhibit P-6, the remedial plan that Clayton "approved" required completion of "the required hours and review work with the same teacher and the same curriculum which the Camden Board of Education used in Summer School 2004." The record shows that S.D.C. did not comply with such a plan, and, as stated above, petitioner did not offer proof that B.W.'s instruction included "the required hours and review work," and covered "the same curriculum which the Camden Board of Education used in Summer School 2004." The ALJ further found that even if the students had received the instruction proposed by Clayton, petitioners were not entitled to rely upon Clayton's representations: "The parents had an affirmative obligation in order to understand and know the parameters of the relevant regulations . . . ." (Transcript of ALJ's Oral Order on Emergent Relief, p. 4) The principal, not a guidance counselor, is authorized to recommend or approve summer schooling, and the Brimm principal did not do so for the petitioners' children.

Applying the Crowe standards to the facts that were actually established at the hearing and through affidavits, the ALJ found that petitioners did not meet their burden to prove that their situation warrants emergent relief. The Commissioner agrees.

First, the petitioners did not prove that the students would suffer irreparable harm if they did not enter Algebra II in January 2006. Providing they both pass Algebra I this year, they can both meet the graduation requirement of 15 credits of mathematics by taking Algebra II when they are seniors. And if they take Algebra II in summer school, they can take a fourth mathematics course when they are seniors. In fact, switching into Algebra II when they have missed four months and have never provided the information necessary to prove that they mastered Algebra I would appear to hold more potential harm for the students and their classmates than keeping the status quo – despite the unsubstantiated allegations that the Brimm Algebra II teacher said it would not be a problem.

Second, the Commissioner agrees that petitioners did not show that there is a settled legal right for a student to be placed in a course when credit for the prerequisite course has not been approved by the principal, due to failure by the student to take remedial instruction that complies with N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5 and/or due to failure by the student, parents or instructors to provide information about the remedial coursework that is required by N.J.A.C. 6A:32-10.5.

Third, for the reasons articulated above, petitioners have not presented a case strong enough to persuade the Commissioner that they will prevail on the underlying merits at the OAL plenary hearing scheduled for February 10, 2006.

Fourth, in balancing the interests and equities of the parties, the Commissioner finds, on the one hand, that there is no irreparable harm to the students if they stay in Algebra I this year, since they can complete their graduation requirements in mathematics and, if they avail themselves of summer school, take a fourth year of mathematics in the 2006-2007 school year. On the other hand, there is a reasonable chance that allowing the students to transfer into an Algebra II class after four months would lead to disruption to the education of all the students in the class. Further, the Commissioner is concerned that disregard of the regulations that enable the principal to scrutinize remedial work could open the door to inconsistent curricular standards. Clearly, the interest of respondent in maintaining fairness to all students would be implicated.

See, e.g., G.B.C. On Behalf of Minor Child J.T.C. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield, Camden County, 1986 S.L.D. Vol. I, p.54. Thus, the equities do not favor granting the requested emergent relief.

For the reasons articulated herein, the Commissioner adopts the determination of the ALJ that petitioners' application for emergent relief should be denied, and the matter shall proceed to a plenary hearing on February 10, 2006.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

The following represents a transcript of an Oral Order rendered by ALJ Futey at an emergent hearing on December 14, 2005, at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton, New Jersey.

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

This is an Oral order rendered as a result of the petition being filed with the Department of Education with an answer or response by respondent being submitted to the Office of Administrative Law, as of December 14, 2005 at 12:10 pm with the matter being listed for emergent relief hearing for 1:30 that same afternoon. Counsel have appeared on behalf of both sides, Saul Steinberg, representing the petitioners and Linda Olsen, representing the respondent district. It should be also noted parenthetically that only one of the petitioner parents, D.W. has appeared. The other parent was unable to attend today but I could not find any harm by the person not showing for today, it being so noted for the record.

In any event, these represent applications for emergent relief on behalf of both students D.W. and S.C. respectively by their respective parents to allow to be "placed in" (as opposed to the term "not returned to") the Algebra II class which had been alleged in the transmittal which had been received at the OAL on December 9, 2005, from the Department of Education. In the transmittal it appears that there was an error or a misrepresentation or misunderstanding by petitioner as to what the issue was. That issue as framed in the transmittal indicates: "Parents appeal Boards refusal to honor passing grades received by there children in summer Algebra I course and seek there return to Algebra II class from which they were removed." Rather, they never did commence the Algebra II class in September, 2005. They were placed in the Algebra I class by the district.

I have had an opportunity to consider the arguments raised by counsel. We also have had sizable discussions on the record and all of it was contained on the record with reference to the parameters of the emergent relief applications. Emergent relief may be granted in accordance with the standards which have been enunciated in the seminal case of "Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, (1982). The standards are four in nature. (1) Petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted; and (2) the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled; and (3) petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim and, (4) when the equities and the interests of the parties are balanced the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

I have had a very full opportunity to assess the arguments raised as well as the testimony received by assistant superintendent Luis Pagan who appeared this afternoon to present some relevant testimony regarding some of the issues in this matter.

Let me indicate to all of you at the outset that I find the issues to be very complex. The question regarding the disputed proofs or disputed facts are significant and because of that I am not satisfied that there is sufficient information here before me to render an emergent relief order in favor of the petitioners for a whole list of reasons, not the least of which is the fact that there is, at a minimum, a dire paucity of relevant proofs to support their allegations or claims in this matter. Specifically, although it was averred in the moving papers that the students are currently placed in a Algebra II class and that they were removed sometime in November of this year, thereby subjecting them to humiliation by their peers as well as teachers because of that removal and returned by the district to Algebra I, it nonetheless appears more readily apparent that the students were never placed in the Algebra II class setting at all. And in fact and instead they were placed back in the Algebra I class at the beginning of September 2005, school year, this having occurred after both students and their respective parents were placed on notice by the district in June of 2005, that the students would be required to retake the Algebra I class at that time or take a summer school class to make it up during the summer or 2005 prior to commencing the 2005/2006 school year. It also appears that neither student availed herself of that opportunity to take any make-up class in order to get a satisfactory placement in an Algebra II setting this current year.

It also appears on its face that there has been no proof submitted to the district over time to corroborate and confirm that the make-up course which the respective students took in the summer of 2004 did in fact qualify them to get credit for the Algebra I make-up course for that period of time. Specifically there appeared to be questions regarding whether or not the students attended make-up courses which were mandated or required under State law, eg., to get (1) the approval of the principal of the school, (2) to have a certified teacher in order to administer the course and (3) to have satisfactory proof of the hours spent in course content or anything else to demonstrate the sufficiency of the courses which they respectively took.

In addition, it appears that the student S.C. may have in fact taken a course which was not a remedial course, which was what was required, but instead took an enhancement course which does not appear on its face at all to comply with the standards of receiving credit for a Algebra I make-up for that period of time. So, at a minimum, as for that the student S.C. there may have in fact been an initial deficiency in that she may not have even taken any course relating specifically to that which is permitted and to allow for such credit for make-up.

Now, as to D.W., there is also a sizable question and concern regarding who taught the course, whether that make-up course was taught by a teacher who was authorized to administer the course during that summer period of time and similarly whether or not she took the requisite number of hours in order to satisfactorily meet that minimum basic requirement. These are basic and, if you will, threshold concerns that were raised by the respondent district in order to deny the appropriate academic course credit being applied to both students under the circumstances. On cross examination Mr. Pagan had acknowledged that there was, in fact, an authorization by him to allow the students to take a qualifying test to confirm that, even though the courses were not necessarily approved, that perhaps they had otherwise mastered the Algebra I skills sufficiently in order to get a passing grade. And yet, he has been presented with no proof, nor have I been presented with any proof, to demonstrate that they did take an appropriate test in order to demonstrate that. And, once again, I FIND that the district was left in the lurch regarding its ability to properly access that which the students did take during that summer session in 2004.

One of the additional issues that I have to come of grips with involves (1) what was represented to the parents about taking those alternate summer school make-up classes, (2) who represented those facts to the parents and (3) whether the person who represented those facts to the parents was even authorized to make such representations. It appears that a guidance counselor, who was strictly in a guidance counselor capacity at that time, (and this is a person identified as Mr. Frederick Clayton) was that guidance counselor and the question becomes whether or not he had appropriate authority in order to direct the parents and the children accordingly, it being argued by the parents that even if that was not the case that there should be a form of estoppel because the parents relied upon his representation. I do not FIND that argument persuasive. The parents had an affirmative obligation in order to understand and know the parameters of the relevant regulations, as does the school district. It appears on its face that the guidance counselor was not the person who was authorized to approve or disapprove any type of summer schooling but rather that right is reserved to the recommendation by the principal of the school, which was apparently not forthcoming at the time. And further that there were no other proofs submitted to demonstrate that the course that was provided for either student, whether it was a remedial course or a tutoring course or an enhancement course, constituted an appropriate type of course for that purpose anyway.

I am satisfied that the parents should not be entitled to any relief for emergent relief for that reason alone. But, in addition, I am concerned that in looking at the four criteria set under the Crowe standard that (1) there will be not irreparable harm suffered by the students in if I were not to grant the relief at this time. The relief that they are requesting is that they be placed in Algebra II right now here in December or, if you will, the beginning of January 2006. It has been represented to me by the parents that the current teacher of Algebra II would testify that there would be no harm for the students to enter that Algebra II setting at this point and that there would be no adverse impact upon them or any other students in the class. Although it is so represented as such, I am not satisfied at this point in time that would necessarily cure the problem that these two students have because right now we have yet to determine whether or not they have satisfactorily complied with the Algebra I class requirement. I am also not satisfied that the legal right underlying that the petitioners' claims respectively are settled. That is to say, I am satisfied that there is no absolute right for a student to or have a parent insist upon placement in an advance course when it has not been adequately determined that the student has met the official requirement of the required course. In addition, although it was represented in the moving papers that the school requires four continuous years of mathematics in order to graduate, the State requirement which has been pointed out by the respondent counsel would appear to suggest something to the contrary, and that is that only 15 credits are required in order to graduate in the mathematics area and nothing more than that.

That being the case, I am satisfied that the legal right underlying petitioners' claims is not settled also. Further, and based upon that, I am satisfied the petitioners do not have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claims as a result. Because, if in fact, the State standard is to be applied to the Camden district (that is to say, that only three course of mathematics are required) then, in fact, the students can cure their problems by taking additional summer courses to get them into advanced courses if they so prefer. But that's not even required for graduation. And, therefore, when I balance the equities and interests of the parties, I do not FIND that either petitioner would suffer greater harm than the respondent district would suffer if the requested relief is not granted. They are both presently in Algebra I. I trust that they will be exemplary, or at least satisfactory, in the completion of their Algebra I studies this year. Whether or not they are "bored" or not, as suggested by the one parent at the hearing today, I am nonetheless satisfied that, unless there are other proofs which would demonstrate that they have otherwise satisfied the necessary regulatory requirements regarding the matriculation of Algebra I, that they will remain in Algebra I through the remainder of this school year and that it is up to them to decide whether or not they want to attempt to go into any additional coursing, for example, Algebra II, during the summer if that is otherwise approved by the district or whether or not they wish to wait until next year and take Algebra II in their last year of school.

Therefore, based upon all of these factors, I am a satisfied that the application fails on all four grounds as to each of these petitioners. It is so ORDERED. In doing so, I am herewith setting this matter down for a full plenary hearing since I am denying the emergent relief application as to both students at this time. The plenary hearing shall be held here at the Office of Administrative Law, in Mercerville, N.J. commencing at 9:00 am on Friday February 10, 2006. In addition, and prior to that, no later than January 20, 2006 the parties shall exchange and submit to me all of their exhibits premarked for identification as follows: for the petitioner it will be P-1 etc. upper right hand corner of each document and, in fact, I would suggest to petitioners' counsel to separate them. Perhaps it should be P-D.W.-1 and P-S.D.C.-1 etc. And on the behalf of the respondent of course it will be R-1 etc. I would like to have all of the exhibits in loose leaf notebooks with index separators between each document along with a table of contents. At the same time of exchanging and submitting to me by January 20, 2006, each of the premarked exhibits I also want a complete and final witness list exchanged and submitted to me at the same time.

This is my Order and my prehearing Order relative to the emergent relief applications today.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record, Settlement Agreement & Release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner observes that the Director of Programs and Planning signed the Settlement Agreement & Release on behalf of the Board. In that neither the file nor the settlement agreement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating the Director of Programs and Planning to sign the agreement on its behalf nor, in the alternative, is the agreement signed by the Board attorney -- who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation -- the Commissioner cannot approve the within settlement agreement.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement & Release consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to hearing.

The record of this matter, returned to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 30, 2005 as a withdrawal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2, has been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner notes that this matter was deemed withdrawn by the OAL based upon the Board's October 20, 2005 submission of its resolution approving settlement of a tuition counterclaim against petitioner, subject to her payment of $2,000 in two installments, due November 1, 2005 and January 1, 2006. However, the record contains no indication whatsoever that petitioner has agreed to these terms, either by her explicit consent to settlement or by payment of the amounts stated.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for amplification of the record so as to enable the Commissioner to approve its settlement or withdrawal, as appropriate, or for such further proceedings as are otherwise necessary to resolve the parties' claims.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on August 10, 2000, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and assigned to Administrative Law Judge Edith Klinger on September 18, 2000.

At the request of the parties, on November 30, 2000, ALJ Klinger ordered that this matter be placed on the inactive list for a period of six months pending the resolution of a Worker's Compensation proceeding brought by the Petitioner against the Respondent. After six months, the Worker's Compensation claim had not been decided; therefore, the parties requested that the matter continue inactive. Accordingly, this matter continued inactive until the resolution of the Worker's Compensation claim. On October 7, 2004, a request was made to restore case to active status. Subsequently, this matter was assigned to the undersigned.

BEFORE: ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The sole issue in this matter is whether the respondent school district, a member of the county educational audiovisual aids commission, Central Jersey Instructional Media Services (hereinafter "CJIMS") organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:51-1 to -12 properly withdrew its participation therein for the school years 2002-2003 and 2003-2004. The parties submitted the matter by way of summary decision motion and upon review on December 21, 2005, I determined this Initial Decision will be dispositive of the within matter and closed the record.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following facts are not in dispute and thus constitute the FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. Petitioner CJIMS, a county educational audiovisual aids commission organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:51-1 to -12, provides media services and resources to participating school districts, which, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:51-7, pay for the services on a per pupil basis.

2. The respondent (hereinafter the "Board") was a participating school district in CJIMS and the audiovisual aids center it managed.

3. On December 17, 2001, the Board's business administrator wrote a letter to CJIMS advising that it would no longer participate in CJIMS' program for the 2002-2003 school year.

4. On December 19, 2001, Ronald MacIntyre, CJIMS' director, responded in writing that the letter was insufficient and that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:51 the notice of withdrawal must be received by August 1 of a given year for withdrawal the following year and in addition, a board resolution authorizing the withdrawal must also be sent. The letter also stated that these requirements "can be sent to us anytime between now and August 1, 2002" for withdrawal for the following school year.

5. CJIMS sent the Board an invoice dated June 7, 2002, in the amount of $7,820.40 for the 2002-2003 school year. That invoice has not been paid.

6. For the entire 2002-2003 school year, the Somerville School District used CJIMS resources and services, specifically requesting 493 items either by telephone, or by a request transmitted over the internet.

7. In his affidavit opposing the within motion, school business administrator Bryan Boyce, requests that Somerville not be held responsible for membership fees for the 2003-2004 school year. As such, he does not dispute the $7,820.40 owed for the 2002-2003 school year.

8. On October 11, 2002, the Board's attorney advised CJIMS that the Board had passed a resolution on September 10, 2002, formally withdrawing from CJIMS effective June 30, 2003.

9. CJIMS sent the Board an invoice dated June 6, 2003, in the amount of $7,908.60 for the 2003-2004 school year. That invoice has not been paid.

10. For the entire 2003-2004 school year, the Somerville School District used CJIMS resources and services, specifically requesting 229 items either by telephone, or by a request transmitted over the internet.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:51-12, provides in pertinent part,

> Any board of education of any participating school district may withdraw as a participating district pursuant to resolution duly adopted by said board and notice of intention to withdraw given to the secretary of the commission on or before August 1 in any year....

Further, the Attorney General issued an opinion regarding the construction of this statutory language that fully supports the interpretation that withdrawal must occur on or before August 1 of the prior school year. Specifically, the opinion provides "a withdrawal of a member board of education of a county audiovisual education commission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 51-12 is effective only with respect to the commission programs to be implemented commencing with the school year beginning one year thereafter." Attorney General's Memorandum Opinion, M82-5158, October 27, 1982. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:17A-4(e), the Attorney General is vested with the duty of interpreting statutes. In general, "formal Attorney General opinions are binding on most administrative agencies. Board of Educ. of West Windsor-Plainsboro Reg'l Sch. Dist., Mercer County v. Bd. of Educ. of Township of Delran, Burlington County, 361 N.J. Super. 488, 494 (App. Div. 2003). The Attorney General's Opinion supports the plain meaning of the statute.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 sets forth the summary decision standard. It is substantially similar to the summary judgment standard utilized in civil matters pending before the Courts. R. 4:46-2 sets forth the requirements for filings in connection with a summary judgment motion. R. 4:46-5 requires an adverse party to respond by affidavit meeting the requirements of R. 4:46-2(b). R. 4:46-2(b) requires a party opposing the motion to file a responding statement either admitting or disputing each of the facts in the movant's statement. Here, school business administrator Boyce never addressed CJIMS' director MacIntyre's affidavit, that the Board utilized CJIMS services for the 2003-2004 year.

Based on the foregoing, I further FIND that the respondent school district never properly withdrew from participation in CJIMS pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:51-12 for the school years 2002-2003 and 2003-2004 and therefore was a member during those school years. I FIND that the attempts made by the respondent school district were deficient and did not comply with the clear requirements of the statute. I also FIND that even if the district could argue that prior to December 19, 2001, it was not aware of the requirements for proper withdrawal from CJIMS, the letter of that date from MacIntyre was very specific. I further FIND that the respondent school district no longer contests its membership for the 2002-2003 school year and does not dispute that it availed itself of CJIMS services for the 2003-2004 school year.

DECISION AND ORDER

Summary Decision on behalf of the petitioner is hereby GRANTED. Respondent is hereby ORDERED to pay the petitioner the following assessments: $7,820.40 for the 2002-2003 school year; and $7,908.60 for the 2003-2004 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in the matter of Christopher M. Possumato et al. v. Board of Education of the City of Vineland, Cumberland County, et al., Agency Dkt. No. 363-11/05, including the parties' respective memoranda in response to the Department's letter seeking argument as to why this matter should proceed as a controversy before the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, notwithstanding that the Petition/Complaint appeared neither to raise allegations nor to seek relief under the school laws, and that it presented as a class action litigation for which no provision is made in statute or rule governing administrative proceedings. Upon such review, I have determined that the appropriate disposition of this matter is dismissal on jurisdictional grounds, without adjudication of its merits.

The Board of Education—on whose motion this matter was transferred from Superior Court—contends that, such transfer having now been made and the effectuating court order having not been vacated, I have no authority to decline consideration of it on jurisdictional grounds. (Board's Memorandum at 4) Furthermore, the Board opines, the Commissioner of Education is in the best position to judge this matter "by virtue of his statutory status, administrative competence and regulatory expertise" and because the issue at hand "potentially affects hundreds, if not thousands, of school employees" (Id. at 2, 11). According to the Board, it is the Commissioner of Education who has fundamental and indispensable jurisdiction over all disputes and controversies arising under the school laws, which empower the Commissioner to resolve disputes involving, inter alia, district board of education management of schools, fixing of employee compensation and making of rules governing employment. (Id. at 4-10, citations omitted)

Petitioners in turn contend that the matters at issue and the remedies sought clearly arise under the Civil Service laws, specifically Title 11A and its implementing regulations, not the school laws, and that jurisdiction is not conferred on the Commissioner of Education by the mere fact that a matter involves school employees. (Petitioner's Memorandum at 5-9, citations omitted) As to the court's transfer order, petitioners note that the court cannot confer jurisdiction where none exists, and that the Commissioner's first obligation in reviewing a contested case is to determine whether it falls within the agency's jurisdictional authority. (Id. at 4-5)

After careful review of the pleadings, I concur with petitioners that this matter does not arise in whole or part under the school laws and -- for that reason -- I neither have jurisdiction over it nor am compelled to decide its merits, notwithstanding its transfer to me by the Superior Court. Although petitioners are school employees and their dispute has arisen in the school setting, the claims they assert are entirely beyond the scope of authority granted to me by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, on either a primary or an ancillary basis; moreover, the matter is expressly pled as a class action, for which no provision is made in statute or regulation governing administrative practice. While, as the Board correctly states, petitioners could have appealed the court's order of transfer, the fact that they did not does not confer upon me jurisdiction which I would not otherwise have; indeed, the Commissioner has previously been faulted for deferring to a trial judge's erroneous determination of jurisdiction. Bd. of Educ. v. Murnick, 224 N.J. Super. 504, 513 (N.J. Super. Ct. 1988); cert. denied, Board of Education v. Murnick, 111 N.J. 625 (N.J. 1988)

Accordingly, I find that I have no authority over petitioners' claims and I hereby dismiss the Petition of Appeal on that basis, without prejudice to petitioners' ability to pursue the matter in a forum of competent jurisdiction.

Sincerely,

Lucille E. Davy
Acting Commissioner

Record Closed: November 28, 2005 Decided: December 5, 2005

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about March 8, 2001, petitioner, Rita Van Santen, filed a Verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent improperly charged her sick days for time lost due to a work-related injury, in violation of N.J.S.A.

18A:30-2.1. On March 21, 2001, respondent filed its answer, requesting dismissal of the petition and a stay of the proceedings pending the disposition of a claim before the Division of Workers' Compensation. On April 18, 2001, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On April 26, 2001, the matter was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Edith Klinger, and a prehearing conference was scheduled for May 21, 2001. With consent of counsel, by order dated May 17, 2001, ALJ Klinger placed this matter on the inactive list for six months pending the determination of petitioner's workers' compensation claim. The case was continued on the inactive list until April 8, 2002, by order dated December 7, 2001, and then until September 18, 2002, by order dated April 1, 2002. The matter was reassigned to Administrative Law Judge Thomas E. Clancy on August 19, 2002, and by letter dated January 28, 2004, counsel for petitioner advised Judge Clancy that the matter should remain on the inactive list. By letter dated August 13, 2004, ALJ Clancy was advised by counsel for petitioner that the workers' compensation case had been finalized through an Order Approving Settlement and that the instant case should be restored to the active list.

On September 7, 2004, the case was assigned to the undersigned judge, and a hearing was scheduled for March 31, 2005. At the request of counsel for respondent, the hearing was adjourned and rescheduled to August 8, 2005. On that date, the parties appeared and settlement discussions were held. Additional telephone conferences were held on August 23 and 30, 2005, and the hearing was rescheduled to September 6, 2005. On that date, the parties appeared and reached a settlement which was contingent upon approval by the District. The fully executed Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal, and a copy of the District Action Form approving the settlement, were filed on November 28, 2005.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal and Paterson Public School District Action Form, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM LAHN, :
DELSEA BOARD OF EDUCATION, :
GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) determined that Delsea Board of Education member William Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when he, inter alia, requested copies of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports from the guidance secretary, and when he inspected the boys' locker room and instructed district employees regarding supervision of students. After considering the nature of the charge, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, concurred with the Commission's recommendation. The Commissioner thus ordered that William Lahn be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 383-12/05

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM LAHN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DELSEA BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
GLOUCESTER COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), including the recommended penalty of censure, have been reviewed.

This matter comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon Respondent William Lahn, member of the Delsea Board of Education, based upon findings of fact and conclusions of law by the Commission that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) of the School Ethics Act when he went directly to a guidance secretary and requested a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports, and when he went into the boys' locker room, inspected the lockers and instructed district employees regarding the supervision of students. The Commission further found that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) when he took a complaint from a parent to the Principal rather than the Superintendent.

Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, respondent was provided 13 days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. Mr. Lahn's submitted comments argue that the violations that the Commission found were "clearly unintentional," will not be repeated in the future, and were "minor" compared to other issues which have come before the Commission. He, therefore, urges that the Commissioner impose no sanction or, if a sanction is absolutely necessary, that the absolute minimum is appropriate.

Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner notes that having found violations of the School Ethics Act, the Commission was statutorily obligated to recommend a sanction for these infractions (See N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29c.). As evidenced in its decision, the Commission -- in making its penalty determination -- recommended the more stringent penalty of censure because "Mr. Lahn's conduct violated the Act on more than one occasion and because his conduct put the guidance secretary in a difficult situation that ultimately resulted in her being reprimanded." (Commission Decision at 4). The Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that William Lahn be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
WILLIAM LAHN	:	Docket No. C25-05
DELSEA BOARD OF EDUCATION	:
GLOUCESTER COUNTY	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on May 27, 2005 by Richard T. Durham alleging that William Lahn, a member of the Delsea Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. Mr. Durham specifically alleges that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) when he went directly to a guidance secretary and requested a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports including the names of the students, when he went into the boys locker room and inspected the lockers, and when he went into the school cafeteria to eat lunch. Mr. Durham also alleged that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) when he took a complaint from a parent to the Principal rather than the Superintendent. Mr. Lahn filed a timely answer in which he denied violating the Act and asked the Commission to find the complaint frivolous and sanction the complainant pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(e).

The Commission invited the parties to attend its August 23, 2005 meeting to present witnesses and testimony, but did not require that they be present. Mr. Durham attended the meeting and testified before the Commission. Mr. Lahn did not attend the meeting. At its August 23, 2005 meeting, the Commission voted to find probable cause to credit the allegation that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) of the Act when, as a member of the Board, he went directly to the guidance secretary and asked for a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports, and when he went into the boys locker room to inspect the lockers and instructed district employees on the supervision of students. The Commission also found probable cause to credit the allegation that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) when he took a parental complaint directly to the Principal rather than to the Superintendent. Finally, the Commission found no probable cause to credit the allegation that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and (j) when he went into the school cafeteria to eat lunch. Since the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and (j) of the Act, it did not consider Mr. Lahn's request to find the complaint frivolous and sanction the complainant.

The Commission found that the material facts were not in dispute with respect to the issue upon which it found probable cause and, therefore, advised Mr. Lahn that it would decide the matter on the basis of written submissions. Mr. Lahn was invited to provide a written submission to the Commission by November 7, 2005, and set forth why the Commission should not find him in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act when, as a member of the Board, he went directly to the guidance secretary and asked for a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports, when he went into the boys locker room to inspect the lockers and when he took a parental complaint directly to the Principal rather than to the Superintendent. Mr. Lahn was also told that his written submission should include his position on an appropriate sanction should the Commission determine that the Act was violated.

Mr. Lahn did not submit an answer to the Commission's probable cause decision. At its meeting of November 22, 2005, the Commission found that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act when, as a member of the Board, he went directly to the guidance secretary and asked for a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports, when he went into the boys locker room to inspect the lockers and when he took a parental complaint directly to the Principal rather than to the Superintendent. The Commission voted to recommend that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

FACTS

The Commission based its finding of probable cause on the following facts.

At all times relevant to the complaint Mr. Lahn was a member of the Board and a member of the Building and Grounds Committee.

In 2004, Mr. Lahn obtained SAT scores from the Guidance Office that did not include information regarding the scores of individual students. On January 11, 2005, Mr. Lahn went into the guidance office and asked the guidance secretary to provide him with the SAT scores from last year and this year. The guidance secretary told Mr. Lahn that she could not give out that information. Mr. Lahn told the guidance secretary that Mrs. Orsi always provided him with a report of the average scores for the SAT administration. The guidance secretary could not find such a report. The guidance secretary claimed that Mr. Lahn then asked for a copy of the reports that included the students' names. In Mr. Lahn's certified answer, he denied asking for copies of the report with the students' names. The guidance secretary eventually made a copy of the SAT reports without the students' names and gave it to Mr. Lahn. In a letter attached as an exhibit to the complaint, the guidance secretary wrote that she felt uncomfortable with Mr. Lahn's request and felt as if she had no choice but to give him the copies since he was a member of the Board. A letter of reprimand was put into the guidance secretary's file for giving Mr. Lahn the SAT reports. Mr. Lahn later went into the guidance secretary's office to apologize if he made her feel uncomfortable. The guidance secretary also wrote that she told Mr. Lahn that she felt that he used his position on the Board to get what he wanted.

In January 2005, Mr. Lahn went to the High School to attend a basketball game where his daughter was cheerleading. Mr. Lahn instructed a district employee that more supervision was needed in the boys' locker room when the students were present. Mr.

Lahn also went into the boys' locker room and inspected the lockers. At the next Building and Grounds Committee meeting, when the Superintendent and the Business Administrator recommended that new lockers should be purchased for the boys' locker room, Mr. Lahn said that he did not think that new lockers were needed.

Sometime in April 2005, late one evening, a parent called Mr. Lahn with a complaint. Mr. Lahn told the parent to call the School Administrator the next day with the complaint. On the following morning, Mr. Lahn went to the Principal's office and told the Principal that a parent had called him with a complaint regarding a conflict her son was having between his involvement in the track team and the school play. The Principal told Mr. Lahn that he was aware of the situation and it had been taken care of. Mr. Lahn then said that it was fine and he just wanted to give the Principal a heads up. The Principal certified that Mr. Lahn did not petition him on behalf of the parent, but were merely informing him of a potential problem. The Superintendent certified that the parent had called Mr. Lahn after the Principal had resolved the situation. The Superintendent also certified that neither he nor the Board had prior knowledge of the complaint.

The Commission found probable cause that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when, as a member of the Board, he went directly to the guidance secretary and asked for a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports and when he went into the boys locker room to inspect the lockers.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) provides:

> I will carry out my responsibility, not to administer the schools, but, together with my fellow board members, to see that they are well run.

To find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), the Commission must determine if Mr. Lahn's conduct rose to the level of administering the schools. Previously, in Sanders v. Smith, C03-04 (July 27, 2004), the Commission found that the actions of a board member going into the schools to determine what the district needs does not rise to the level of administering the schools. However, in this case, Mr. Lahn did more than just enter the schools to determine the district's needs. Mr. Lahn went directly to the guidance secretary and requested SAT reports. When the guidance secretary could not find the reports that Mr. Lahn described, he again insisted that he receive a copy of the reports. As a result of Mr. Lahn's conduct, the guidance secretary received a letter of reprimand, which was placed in her file. Mr. Lahn's conduct had a direct impact on an employee of the school. Mr. Lahn also personally inspected the boys' lockers to determine if new lockers were needed and, in doing so, he instructed district employees to provide more supervision when the students were present. Mr. Lahn's personal interactions with district personnel were administrative by nature. His conduct rose to the level of administering the schools because Mr. Lahn instructed district employees regarding their job duties. Therefore, the Commission finds that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) when he went directly to a guidance secretary and requested a copy of the 2004 and 2005 SAT reports, and when he went into the boys' locker room, inspected the lockers and instructed district employees regarding the supervision of students.

The Commission also found probable cause that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) when he took a complaint from a parent to the Principal rather than to the Superintendent. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) provides:

> I will refer all complaints to the chief school administrative officer and will act on the complaints at public meetings only after failure of an administrative solution.

Mr. Lahn admitted receiving a complaint from a parent. Mr. Lahn also admitted that the next morning he went directly to the Principal's office with that parent's complaint. Mr. Lahn did not take the complaint to the Superintendent or the Board. In this case, the Principal had already resolved the parent's complaint and the parent was then turning to Mr. Lahn for some further resolution. This is an example of what can happen when a board member does not refer all complaints to the chief administrative officer. It creates confusion in the administration of the school. Based on the foregoing, the Commission finds that Mr. Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) when he took the parental complaint directly to the Principal instead of referring it to the Superintendent.

DECISION

For the reasons discussed above, the Commission finds that William Lahn violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act. The Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure since Mr. Lahn's conduct violated the Act on more than one occasion and because his conduct put the guidance secretary in a difficult situation that ultimately resulted in her being reprimanded.

This decision has been adopted by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission. This matter shall now be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within 13 days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, Mr. Lahn may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) determined that Galloway Community Charter School Board of Trustees member Karen Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when she made a derogatory statement regarding a student-created project proposed by a teaching staff member, which was intended to provide instruction to fulfill the Core Curriculum Content Standards for Holocaust Education. After considering the nature of the charge, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, concurred with the Commission's recommendation. The Commissioner thus ordered that Karen Jackson be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

AGENCY DKT NO. 382-12/05

IN THE MATTER OF KAREN JACKSON, GALLOWAY COMMUNITY CHARTER SCHOOL, ATLANTIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), finding that Galloway Community Charter School Board of Trustees member Karen Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board members when she made a derogatory statement regarding a student-created project proposed by a teaching staff member, which was intended to provide instruction to fulfill the Core Curriculum Content Standards for Holocaust Education. Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, Ms. Jackson was provided 13 days from the mailing date of the decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration.

No comments were filed by or on behalf of Ms. Jackson.

Initially, it must be emphasized that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed based upon a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

cause, it reconsidered the matter and voted to amend the probable cause decision to credit the allegation that Ms. Jackson did violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) of the Code of Ethics.

The Commission found that the material facts were not in dispute with respect to the issue upon which it found probable cause and, therefore, advised Ms. Jackson that it would decide the matter on the basis of written submissions. Ms. Jackson was invited to provide a written submission to the Commission by September 23, 2005, and set forth why the Commission should not find her in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b), (c), (i) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act when, at the February 23, 2005 Board meeting, she made a derogatory statement regarding a student created project proposed by a teaching staff member. Ms. Jackson was also told that her written submission should include her position on an appropriate sanction should the Commission determine that the Act was violated.

Ms. Jackson filed a timely response to the Commission's probable cause decision. In her response, Ms. Jackson denied that she violated the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. Ms. Jackson did not provide her position on an appropriate sanction should the Commission find a violation of the Act.

FACTS

The Commission based its finding of probable cause on the following facts.

At all times relevant to the complaint, Ms. Jackson was President of the Board. Ms. Jackson served on the Board for eight years and she resigned from the Board on April 22, 2005, prior to the Commission's hearing on this matter. The complainants are faculty members of the School.

At the February 23, 2005 public comment section of the Board meeting, there was a discussion regarding a project created by students to represent the deaths that resulted during the Holocaust. The lesson was a fulfillment of the requirement at N.J.S.A. 18A:35-28 that every board of education include instruction on the Holocaust and genocides in the curriculum of all elementary and secondary school pupils. A teaching staff member asked if there would be a place on the school grounds to host a "Holocaust Rock Garden." Ms. Jackson responded that she had a number of concerns regarding the project. While communicating her concerns, she said that she "didn't want Jews lined up on Route 9 with their rocks and no where to put them."

The Commission found probable cause that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b), (c), (i) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when, at the February 23, 2005 Board meeting, she made a derogatory statement regarding a student created project proposed by a teaching staff member. The project was created and proposed by the teacher in order to provide instruction to fulfill the Core Curriculum Content Standards requirements on Holocaust Education. Each provision will be discussed in turn.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b) provides:

> I will make decisions in terms of the educational welfare of children and will seek to develop and maintain public schools that meet the individual needs of all children regardless of their ability, race creed, sex, or social standing.

The Commission found probable cause to credit the allegation that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b), because her statement failed to fulfill her Board responsibility to support the educational welfare of the students. The Commission found that, while it would have been reasonable for Ms. Jackson to discuss her concerns regarding curriculum at the School, her statement during a public meeting of the Board that she "didn't want Jews lined up on Route 9 with their rocks and no where to put them," was a derogatory statement that focused on a specific religious group. In her response to the Commission's probable cause determination, Ms. Jackson admitted making the statement, but denied that it showed that her decisions did not support the educational welfare of the children. Ms. Jackson argued that, for eight years, she made decisions in terms of the educational welfare of the children and has sought to develop schools that met the individual needs of all the students regardless of their ability, race, creed, sex or social standing. As the Commission noted in its probable cause determination, Ms. Jackson's statement is a prime example of religious intolerance. However, after considering Ms. Jackson's response, the Commission is persuaded that merely making such a statement does not prove that Ms. Jackson's decisions as a Board member failed to support the educational welfare of the children. Therefore, the Commission finds that Ms. Jackson did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b).

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) provides:

> I will confine my board action to policy making, planning, and appraisal, and I will help to frame policies and plans only after the board has consulted those who will be affected by them.

The Commission found probable cause that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), because her statement at the public Board meeting was unrelated to policy making, planning and appraisal. In her response to the Commission's probable cause determination, Ms. Jackson argued that, at the meeting, she adamantly expressed the need to follow policy and procedures for all projects and visitors in the building. She argued that her concern was to fulfill her responsibility for upholding the safety, the conditions of the building lease and the policies for visitors. Thus, it appears that although her statement was derogatory, it was related to the Board's policies. Therefore, the Commission finds that Ms. Jackson did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) provides:

> I will support and protect school personnel in proper performance of their duties.

The Commission found probable cause that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i), because her statement created a hindrance in the teacher's ability to move forward with the curriculum of the Holocaust. In her response to the Commission's probable cause decision, Ms. Jackson argued that the teacher did not follow policy and procedure because she did not contact the landlord prior to her creation of the project. After the Board meeting, Ms. Jackson contacted the landlord and discussed with him where all of the stones would be placed. Whether or not the teacher contacted the landlord, the Commission notes that the statement made by Ms. Jackson was the antithesis of the instruction on Holocaust required by N.J.S.A. 18A:35-28. The teacher was fulfilling her duties to provide instruction on the Holocaust and Ms. Jackson's statement demeaned the teacher. It was not supportive of the teacher or the lesson. Therefore, the Commission finds that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) when she made an insensitive and derogatory statement that did not support the teacher in her proper performance of her duties.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) provides:

> I will refer all complaints to the chief school administrative officer and will act on the complaints at public meetings only after failure of an administrative solution.

The Commission found probable cause that Ms. Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j) because she did not fulfill her duty to report her concerns regarding the lesson on the Holocaust to the chief school administrative officer before raising the issue at a public meeting of the Board. In her response to the Commission's probable cause decision, Ms. Jackson argued that she did refer her complaint to the chief school administrative officer, Ms. Nataloni, when she informed Ms. Nataloni that there would be a quorum for the meeting. At that time, Ms. Nataloni told Ms. Jackson that the issue could be addressed at the meeting because the teacher would be there to discuss the garden and any questions that the Board had. Since Ms. Jackson did refer her complaint to the chief school administrative officer who told her that she could discuss it at the public Board meeting, the Commission finds that Ms. Jackson did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j).

DECISION

For the reasons discussed above, the Commission finds that Karen Jackson violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act. The Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand since Ms. Jackson has resigned from the Board.

This decision has been adopted by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission. This matter shall now be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. The record of this emergent matter, which included the audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law, and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner adopts the recommended Order denying emergent relief as he concurs with the ALJ's determination -- clearly set forth on the audiotape of the hearing -- that petitioner has failed to satisfy the requirements necessary for the granting of such extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), most notably that the legal right underlying her claim is settled, that she will suffer irreparable harm absent the requested relief, or that a balancing of the equities and interests of the parties inures to her favor.

Accordingly, the instant application for emergent relief is hereby denied. This matter shall proceed to plenary hearing on its merits, scheduled for April 4, 2006, as directed by the ALJ.

Dear Ms. Amarh'-Kwantreng:

Upon review of the papers filed in the matter captioned I.A.-K., on behalf of minor child, K.N. v. Pope Paul VI High School Board of Education, et al. and Board of Education of Haddon Township, et al., Camden County, Agency Dkt. No. 334-11/05, I have determined to dismiss the above-identified petition for failure to prosecute.

This matter was opened November 29, 2005 by way of the filing of a Petition of Appeal. The petition was acknowledged by communication of the same date which clearly informed petitioner that no action would be taken on this matter until, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4, she provided the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes with proof that she had served each named respondent in this matter with a full copy of all submitted materials. On December 21, 2005 petitioner was sent a second communication again reminding her that no action would be taken on her matter until respondents were properly served and proof of such service submitted to the Bureau. Because petitioner failed to respond to the November 29, 2005 and December 21, 2005 notifications, on January 3, 2006 a final letter was sent via certified and regular mail,* clearly informing petitioner that failure to provide proof of service of the Petition of Appeal on both respondents within ten (10) days of receipt of this notice would result in dismissal of her petition for failure to prosecute the appeal. To-date, no proof of service has been received.

Accordingly, in that petitioner has not submitted the requested proof of service within the time specified, nor has she responded to any of the three notifications in any manner, I have determined to dismiss the instant petition for failure to prosecute.

Sincerely,

Lucille E. Davy

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the Petition of Appeal and the papers filed in connection with both respondents' Motions to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer in the matter captioned S.R.C., on behalf of minor child, S.C. v. Pope Paul VI High School Board of Education, et al and Board of Education of Haddon Township, et al., Camden County, Agency Dkt. No. 277-10/05. Upon such review, I have determined, for the reasons set forth below, to transfer the instant petition to the Division on Civil Rights in accordance with Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Board of Education, 77 N.J. 514 (1978).

In the Petition of Appeal, petitioner - whose daughter is a student at Pope Paul VI Catholic High School - alleges that her daughter has been the victim of numerous acts of racial and cultural discrimination and harassment at the hands of school administrators and faculty. The Board of Education of Haddon Township is, additionally, named as a respondent in her petition because she alleges that this District serves as the fiscal agent for any federal and/or state funds for which Pope Paul VI may be eligible and, thus, has an obligation to compel staff of Pope Paul VI to discontinue what, petitioner urges, are their illegal discrimination and harassment practices. Petitioner seeks, inter alia, that I grant her the following relief: terminate all state and/or federal funds to Pope Paul VI due to racial and cultural discrimination; a refund of moneys she has expended at the school for tuition, books and clothing; a public apology to all visitors and students; that diversity training - provided by an outside federal or state agency - be ordered for all faculty, staff and administrators at the school and the Camden Diocese; and that the school be compelled to conduct more minority recruitment.

Contrary to the assertions of the Superintendent for respondent Haddon Township Board of Education in his September 12, 2005 reply to a formal complaint petitioner had filed with that Board on August 31, 2005, the New Jersey State Department of Education does not approve educational programs developed by Pope Paul VI. The Commissioner's authority with respect to programs for private school students is limited to services provided to non-public school students pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq. (remedial services for handicapped children in non-public schools) and N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. (auxiliary services to non-public school children). Therefore, withholding of funds for services under those two statutory provisions is the only relief the Commissioner might award if there were to be a finding that respondent Pope Paul VI was not in compliance with the requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. See N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.2(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-2(b). I am not empowered to grant any of the other relief requested by petitioner. Because charges of racial and cultural discrimination and harassment would appear to fall under the intendment of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq., and such matters are within the particular expertise of the Director of the Division on Civil Rights, I conclude that the venue for this type of action would most properly be the New Jersey Division of Civil Rights.

Accordingly, I hereby transfer the entire matter to the New Jersey Division of Civil Rights for review and action, if any, as that agency deems appropriate. I do not retain jurisdiction; if the Director of the Division on Civil Rights ultimately determines that relief is warranted, the matter may be returned to me to consider petitioner's request that funds be withheld.

Sincerely,

Lucille E. Davy

Petitioners sought restoration of passing grades in three classes in which minor child H.M. was assigned failing marks based on tardiness, and damages for alleged failure of the respondent Board to provide a hearing prior to the banning of H.M. from participating in high school interscholastic wrestling competition. H.M. graduated from the District's schools in June 2004. The ALJ advised petitioner on October 20, 2003 of the option of an accelerated proceeding in order to hear the matter before petitioner's scheduled graduation date; respondent Board consented to the accelerated proceeding option, but petitioner declined to request same. Respondent Board filed a motion to dismiss the matter.

The ALJ granted respondent's motion to dismiss, finding the matter moot given the fact that petitioner declined the accelerated hearing which would have allowed timely consideration of the issues prior to petitioner's graduation date. The ALJ additionally found that petitioner had not met the burden of proof in this matter, failing to support allegations of lack of notice of suspension from extra-curricular activities, lack of due process, arbitrary application of student regulations, and bias.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ for the reasons clearly stated in her decision, and dismissed the petition.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
LEWIS C. SHINKLE, JR.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board sought to recover salary and benefits paid to respondent while he was suspended pending resolution of both criminal and tenure charges based on allegations of sexual misconduct with a student. Respondent had received salary and benefits totaling $312,347.46 from the date of his suspension in May 1997 until tenure charges were sustained by the Commissioner in August 2004. Respondent filed a counterclaim seeking indemnification for expenses he had incurred while defending against a civil suit and the criminal charges that were dismissed. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found that: 1) respondent withheld records which would have quantified set-off income that respondent had received from substituted employment during his period of suspension; 2) respondent's failure to provide requested records pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 warranted an adverse inference concerning the scope of his outside earnings; and 3) respondent is therefore obligated to pay full restitution of all income received from petitioner during his suspension. The ALJ also found that respondent's motion for indemnification is without merit, as the criminal and civil charges against respondent did not arise from the performance of his duties as a teacher. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the petitioner is entitled to recoup $312,347.46, and that respondent is not entitled to indemnification.

The Commissioner concurs with the determinations of the ALJ, and adopts the Initial Decision, with supplementation, as the final decision in this matter. In so deciding, the Commissioner emphasizes that: the amount of respondent's "substituted" income during the period of his suspension is clearly relevant to the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and was not independently ascertainable without respondent's W-2 forms; respondent did not meet his burden to show that his substitute earnings were less than the total amount paid out by petitioner; respondent's failure to produce records warrants the inference that they are unfavorable to respondent's position; and the conduct which precipitated the criminal and civil proceedings against respondent – engaging in sexual relations with a minor – clearly did not arise from the duties of his employment. The Commissioner dismisses respondent's counter-claim, and respondent is ordered to pay petitioner $312,347.46.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 213-05
AGENCY DKT. NO. 436-12/04

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
LEWIS C. SHINKLE, JR.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and petitioner's replies to the exceptions were fully considered by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) in reaching her determination.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, petitioner seeks the recoupment of seven years of salary and payments in lieu of benefits that it paid respondent during the pendency of tenure charges which were sustained in a prior proceeding (the tenure case). Respondent counterclaims for indemnification for attorney fees and costs incurred in defending against criminal charges and civil litigation that arose from the same set of facts which triggered the tenure charges. The matter was decided in the OAL by way of cross motions for summary judgment. For the reasons which follow, the Commissioner herein adopts the findings and conclusions in the initial decision, as supplemented herein.

The record reveals that on May 5, 1997, upon receipt of allegations that respondent had had sexual relations with a 16-year-old student between February 28 and May 1 of 1997, petitioner suspended respondent with pay. On November 25, 1997, after the conclusion of a local criminal investigation, petitioner instituted tenure charges against respondent. The tenure matter was held in abeyance while county and State criminal proceedings progressed to their conclusion in November 2000. The tenure charges were ultimately decided on August 19, 2004, when the Commissioner adopted the findings and determinations of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and ordered that respondent be dismissed from his teaching position for unbecoming conduct.

The ALJ in the tenure case found that during the 1997/1998 school year respondent had been employed by petitioner as a social studies teacher at Nottingham High School. He had also served as the yearbook advisor and as the stage crew manager for the annual school play. A sixteen-year-old eleventh grader had served as assistant stage manager for the play. This student reported that on February 28, 1997 respondent had initiated an affair with her by asking her to accompany him to the school's audio-visual room to get extension cords, and initiating sexual contact after finding the cords. Later that evening respondent invited her into the music room, where he pulled her onto his lap and rubbed her back.

After a few more meetings the two engaged in sexual intercourse in a number of locations in the school, including the girls' locker room, respondent's classroom, the yearbook room, the audio-visual room, and a loft above the janitor's closet; one encounter occurred in the respondent's home. The student kept a diary with reflections on these events, which diary was entered into evidence as P-55 at the tenure hearing.

On one occasion in the loft above the janitor's closet, the student and respondent had sexual relations while leaning against a ladder. Testing of semen on the ladder conclusively identified respondent as the donor. In addition, the chairperson of respondent's department at the high school, who was friendly with respondent, testified that after respondent had been suspended, he had asked this friend to go to the loft with cleaning supplies and wipe away any ejaculate that might be present. The ALJ, three counsel and an assistant principal visited the loft and found it large enough to accommodate the alleged activities.

Other school employees reported seeing respondent and the student, after hours, exiting the darkened and locked yearbook room, with respondent's undershirt hanging from under his shirt, and his belt hanging loosely. In addition, the high school principal came into possession of a spiral notebook, entered as P-72 at the tenure hearing, in which the student and some of her friends discussed her relationship with respondent.

It is undisputed that from respondent's May 5, 1997 suspension to his August 19, 2004 dismissal, petitioner paid respondent full salary and payments in lieu of benefits totaling $312,347.46. Petitioner maintains, and respondent does not contradict, that the salary petitioner paid to respondent during his suspension included salary increases.

In his answer to the petition in the present case, respondent admits that between the date of his suspension and the date of his dismissal he realized "income, salary, wages, and/or other remuneration from sources other than and in addition to the salary/or other funds paid to him by" respondent. Petitioner maintains that under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, petitioner is entitled to recoup this remuneration from respondent, up to the sum of $312,347.46. There is correspondence in the record indicating that in a telephone conference prior to November 15, 2005, the ALJ had asked the parties to submit a joint stipulation regarding the amount of salary that respondent had received for the other employment during his suspension. The same correspondence, from petitioner's counsel to the ALJ, stated that the parties were collecting the information. A subsequent letter from respondent's counsel advised the ALJ that respondent's W-2 forms would not be forthcoming because respondent had not forwarded them to counsel.

There is no dispute that respondent was the subject of local and state criminal investigations into the same facts that underlay the tenure charges, and that he was indicted by a State grand jury on March 22, 1999, on nine counts of sexual assault, three counts of criminal sexual contact, one count of official misconduct, one count of tampering with witnesses and informants and one count of hindering apprehension or prosecution. State v. Lewis C. Shinkle, Jr., State Grand Jury No. SCJ-409-99-10. It is also undisputed that the indictment was dismissed on November 6, 2000, after the State withdrew its opposition to respondent's motion to dismiss. Petitioner points out that the order dismissing the indictment was without prejudice; however, respondent maintains that a dismissal of the criminal charges with or without prejudice entitles him to indemnification. There are no details in the record about the civil litigation.

The ALJ in the present case agreed with petitioner that under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, it is entitled to deduct from salary paid to respondent -- while he was suspended -- any sums he received by way of pay or salary from any substituted employment assumed during the period of suspension. In so doing, the ALJ relied upon Ernest E. Gilbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, 1982 S.L.D., Vol. 1, p.674-686. The ALJ further determined that respondent's unexplained choice to decline disclosure of the amount of his outside earnings, created the adverse inference that the earnings equaled or exceeded the payments he received from petitioner during his suspension. (Initial Decision at 3)

As to respondent's claim for indemnification, the ALJ noted that even though the indictment against respondent had been dismissed, the tenure proceeding established that respondent engaged in sexual relations with a minor student. He opined that dicta in Bower v.

Board of Education of the City of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997) denotes that any proofs of wrongdoing, even findings in a tenure proceeding precipitated by the same facts upon which a criminal or civil proceeding is based, are cause for a fact-finder to deny indemnification for legal fees incurred in the defense of the criminal or civil action. He further cited Nicholas A. Ciufi v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Docket No. EDU 7548-94, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 980 (Initial Decision), adopted by the Commissioner, May 15, 1998, for the same proposition. (Id. at 3-4)

Both petitioner's claim for recoupment of salary paid to the respondent during his suspension, and respondent's counterclaim for indemnification for legal fees incurred by respondent in defending against criminal charges, warrant discussion supplemental to the initial decision.

I. Recoupment of Salary Paid to Respondent During His Suspension

Nowhere in his exceptions does respondent refute petitioner's claim that *N.J.S.A.*18A:6-14 mandates petitioner's recoupment of remuneration paid to respondent during his period of suspension, up to the amount that respondent earned from employment outside of the school district. He contends only that he should not have to reimburse all of the $312,347.46 that petitioner paid him. More specifically, he argues that it was arbitrary and unreasonable for the ALJ to conclude that his failure to produce his W-2 forms created the inference that his outside earnings were at least equal to what petitioner paid him during the period of suspension. (Respondent's Exceptions at 8-9)

Respondent characterizes the situation as a "dispute of material fact between parties to a summary judgment motion" and, citing Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), asserts that "the finder of fact is obliged to conduct a fact hearing in order that the relevant facts may be found." (Respondent's Exceptions at 8) In addition, respondent maintains, citing Ulman v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 87 N.J. Super. 409, 415 (App. Div. 1965), that > [t]he production of tax returns should not be ordered unless it clearly appears that they are relevant to the subject matter of the action or to the issues raised thereunder, and further, that there is a compelling need therefore because the information contained therein is not otherwise readily obtainable.

Also, according to respondent, if the ALJ had wished to obtain respondent's tax records, he should have issued a subpoena for them. (Id. at 9)

The Commissioner rejects respondent's exceptions as meritless. As regards the appropriateness of requesting respondent's tax documents, the amount of respondent's "substituted" income was clearly relevant to the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and was not independently ascertainable by petitioner or the ALJ. It appears that only respondent's W-2 forms were sought, and that they were the most reliable way of establishing the total outside income. Respondent's privacy was not unreasonably implicated. Further, the ALJ specifically requested the information from respondent via telephone conference, allowed the respondent ample time to produce it, and apparently received no objections about the production of the information prior to submission of his exceptions to the initial decision.

Nor does respondent's argument concerning summary judgment standards help him. To the extent that respondent contends that there is a dispute of fact, he is obliged to provide the basis for that contention. It is undisputed that he earned outside income. There is no "dispute" as to how much, because petitioner cannot access that information and respondent has refused to provide it. Petitioner has sustained its burden to show that there is substitute income to recoup, and that the salary paid to respondent during the period of suspension was Further, the failure to produce records warrants the inference that they are unfavorable to respondent's position. Wild v. Roman, 91 N.J. Super 410 (App. Div. 1966); Hickman v. Pace, 82 N.J. Super 483 (App. Div. 1964). The prerogative to draw such an inference is not limited to a jury; the trier of fact in a non-jury case may also do so. Robinson v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. of United States, 126 N.J. Eq. 242 (E. & A. 1939); Series Publishers v. Greene, 9 N.J. Super 166 (App. Div. 1950). More generally, a [party] is not entitled to benefit from a strategic decision to withhold evidence. See, e.g., State v. Drisco, 355 N.J. Super. 283, 290-91, (App. Div. 2002), certif. denied, 178 N.J. 252 (2003).

Accordingly, it was entirely reasonable for the ALJ to conclude that petitioner was entitled to recoup the entirety of what it paid respondent during the period of suspension. Because the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner is entitled to recoup the full amount that it paid respondent, the issues of recoupment of increments and recoupment of remuneration paid to respondent while he was under indictment are moot.

II. Indemnification for Legal Fees.

In his exceptions, respondent challenges the ALJ's determination that respondent is not entitled to indemnification for the expenses of defending criminal charges and a civil suit. He does not dispute that the controversy turns on an analysis of *N.J.S.A.*18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, and related case law, but disagrees with the ALJ's application of that law to the facts of this case.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 states in pertinent part:

> Indemnity of officers and employees against civil actions
> Whenever any civil or administrative action or other legal proceeding has been or shall be brought against any person holding any office, position or employment under the jurisdiction of any board of education . . . , for any act or omission arising out of and > in the course of the performance of the duties of such office, position, employment . . . , the board shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom . . . . (Emphasis added.)

Similarly, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 states in pertinent part:

> Indemnity of officers and employees in certain criminal actions
> Should any criminal or quasi-criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals. (Emphasis added.)

Although N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 does not expressly refer to acts and omissions arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of [a school employee's] office, position or employment, the phrase "any such act or omission" is interpreted to refer back to the above underlined language set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. In other words, respondent may not be indemnified for his criminal defense expenses unless the criminal charges related to acts or omissions arising out of and during the course of the performance of his duties. See, e.g., Scirrotto v. Warren Hills Bd. of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1994).

In his exceptions, respondent contends that the ALJ erred in finding that his actions did not arise from the performance of his duties. He argues that the charges "arose in the course of respondent's employment and within the period of time and at the place where he was an employee of the board of education, where he was expected to be fulfilling his duties and responsibilities." (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-2)

Respondent maintains that the criminal charges were dismissed for lack of evidence, that there is consequently no evidence in the criminal record of any conduct other than respondent's presence in the school and performance of his lawful duties, and that petitioner is therefore obliged to indemnify him for his criminal defense. Addressing dictum from Bower v. Board of Educ. of the City of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416, 43 1-33 (1997) -- upon which the ALJ relied to conclude that fact-finding from a tenure hearing can be used to bar an employee's claim for indemnification of criminal defense expenses -- respondent argues that since there was no evidence of wrongdoing in the criminal proceeding, he should be indemnified regardless of the existence of proofs of his wrongdoing brought to light in other proceedings. (Ibid.)

Respondent concedes that there is precedent for adverse fact findings in administrative proceedings, such as tenure hearings, to serve as bars to indemnification of defense expenses in related criminal matters. However, he urges that the order of disposition of criminal and administrative proceedings arising from the same conduct can be determinative of whether fact-finding in the administrative proceeding can be used to defeat an indemnification claim for defense costs in the criminal action. Thus, respondent distinguishes Ciufi v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, supra, in which the Commissioner found that fact-finding in a tenure hearing precluded indemnification of defense expenses that the respondent in that case incurred during a criminal trial based on the same conduct that was addressed in the tenure proceeding. Respondent suggests that the administrative fact-finding in Ciufi could defeat the respondent's claim because the tenure hearing in that case preceded the criminal proceeding, but that the administrative fact-finding in this case may not defeat respondent's indemnification claim because the tenure hearing succeeded the criminal proceeding. (Id. at 3)

*N.J.S.A.*18A:16-6.1 and related case law articulate two conditions that a school employee seeking indemnification must satisfy. First, the charges against the employee must be dismissed or otherwise result in a favorable disposition. Second, and additionally, the charges must be triggered by acts or omissions arising out of and in the course of the performance of the employee's duties.

In its reply exceptions, petitioner argues that the first condition is not satisfied by respondent's dismissal without prejudice. Ciufi v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, supra, is instructive in this regard. In that case, in which the Commissioner adopted both the ALJ's findings of fact and his conclusions of law, the ALJ discussed the significance of a "dismissal without prejudice" of an indictment:

> Since a second grand jury is free to return a new indictment, the Board argues that Ciufi has not been "determined innocent, or exonerated" of the criminal charge made against him.
> . . . .
>
> [However,] currently there are no charges pending against Ciufi.
>
> Often the failure to obtain an indictment is a reflection of the weakness of the State's case. In a somewhat different context, the Appellate Division held that an administrative dismissal of a criminal complaint constitutes "a favorable termination of a criminal proceeding for purposes of a malicious prosecution action." Rubin v. Nowak, 248 N.J. Super. 80, 84 (App. Div. 1991). Speaking in terms of "a presumption of favorable termination," the court found nothing in the [criminal] record to suggest that the prosecutor acted for any reason other than a careful determination of plaintiff's innocence.
> Ciufi, supra, at 5-6.

Considering the foregoing, the Commissioner is reluctant to find that a dismissal without prejudice cannot be regarded as a favorable disposition. However, this issue need not be reached, because the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ and petitioner that the facts of this case do not satisfy the second condition precedent to indemnification for respondent's costs of defending against criminal charges and a civil lawsuit. More specifically, respondent has failed to show that the conduct which precipitated the criminal and civil proceedings arose from the duties of his employment.

Much of the conduct that precipitated the criminal and tenure charges may have taken place on the school premises, and some of it may have taken place within normal school hours, or during hours that were supposed to be devoted to school-sponsored clubs and organizations for which respondent served as advisor or manager. That does not, however, qualify the conduct as the performance of the duties of respondent's employment and, consequently, does not qualify the criminal action against respondent as an action brought "for any act or omission arising out of or in the course of the performance of the duties of" his employment. Clearly, engaging in sexual relations with a minor cannot be characterized as conduct related to respondent's teaching duties. Respondent's behavior was not a reaction to a pedagogical event or situation; was driven purely by personal motives unrelated to his job; and, in fact, was antithetical to the goals of education.

Further, as regards indemnification claims, there is school law precedent that conduct that has been substantiated as unbecoming in a tenure hearing does not qualify as conduct which arises out of a school employee's duties, for purposes of the indemnification statute. In Bower v. Board of Educ. of the City of East Orange, supra, the Supreme Court stated: "Had the local board seen fit to institute [] dismissal proceedings, we assume that any evidence adduced at the hearing addressing those charges would have been material to the proceeding instituted by Bower for indemnification of his legal expenses [defending criminal charges that were dismissed]." Bower, supra, at 433.

Subsequent to Bower, in Ciufi, supra, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's determination that that case presented the precise situation alluded to in the Bower dictum set forth above. In Ciufi, the Irvington Board filed tenure charges and, after a trial-type hearing, including full opportunity for discovery, cross-examination and subpoena of witnesses, the Commissioner made findings that Ciufi sexually assaulted a student. A criminal proceeding precipitated by the same conduct that triggered the tenure hearing was eventually dismissed. Ciufi brought a subsequent proceeding to obtain indemnification. In this latter proceeding the ALJ concluded (and the Commissioner concurred) that "to sustain the tenure charges, the Commissioner must necessarily have determined that Ciufi's improper conduct occurred outside the regular course of his teaching duties." Ciufi, supra, at 6. Thus,

> [i]t would clearly be incongruous for the Commissioner to uphold the board's dismissal of Ciufi for unbecoming conduct, while ordering the board to pay his counsel fees for defense of criminal charges arising out of the same transaction. Rather, as the Supreme Court anticipated, the evidence adduced at the tenure hearing must be regarded as "material" to the indemnification proceeding. Bower, at 433. Accordingly, the Commissioner's prior determination that Ciufi committed a sexual assault against his student is binding on the parties and dispositive of Ciufi's claim for indemnification of counsel fees.
> Ciufi, supra, at 7. [1]

For purposes of an indemnification determination, there is no significant difference between Ciufi, Yatauro, and the present case. The Commissioner found in the tenure proceeding that respondent had sexual relations with his student, a minor. This is clearly not in his job description. It is irrelevant that the disposition of the tenure matter came after the dismissal of the criminal charges; the Commissioner is now asked to order indemnification, in a case where it has been established that respondent was acting outside the duties of his employment. To grant respondent's counterclaim would be to contravene statutory and common law, and defy common sense.

[1] In Board of Education of the Township of Lacey v. Brian Yatauro, EDU 00793-99, the ALJ similarly determined, and the Commissioner concurred, that "where a tenured employee seeks to recover salary which was withheld after an indictment from which the employee has obtained a favorable disposition, but where the employee has subsequently been proven in a tenure proceeding to have committed the same misconduct which was the essential subject of the criminal charges, the employee may not recover salary withheld during the pendency of the indictment."

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as supplemented herein, is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent's counter-claim is dismissed and respondent is ordered to pay petitioner $312,347.46 as reimbursement for salary and payments in lieu of benefits that petitioner paid him during his period of suspension from employment.

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a petition filed by the Hamilton Township Board of Education with the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, seeking to recover salary and benefits paid respondent while he was suspended pending resolution of tenure charges. Respondent has filed a counterclaim seeking indemnification for expenses incurred while defending against a civil suit and criminal indictments that were dismissed. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-

1 to -15. The parties have filed cross-motions for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

The background facts are undisputed. On May 5, 1997 respondent was suspended from his teaching position based on allegations of sexual misconduct with a student. Tenure charges were filed on November 25, 1997 and the administrative process was postponed to await the results of criminal proceedings. A Mercer County Grand Jury failed to indict respondent, but thereafter a State Grand Jury returned a 15 count indictment in March 1999. This indictment was dismissed without prejudice in November 2000. Proceedings in the OAL commenced in November 2003 and the tenure charges were sustained in an initial decision issued in July 2004. These findings were adopted by the Commissioner in August 2004, at which time the District stopped paying respondent. Subsequently, the State Board of Education affirmed the decision of the Commissioner and it is my understanding from the motion papers that an appeal is pending in the Superior Court, Appellate Division. From suspension to removal respondent received salary and payments in lieu of benefits from the District in the amount of $312,347.46[1].

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 makes no general provision for the recovery of salary paid to a suspended teacher when tenure charges are proven. The District was thus put to trying to recover portions of the money paid respondent under various other theories. The Board is aware that respondent earned money from other employment while suspended and believes that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 requires such amounts to be set off against money it paid him. The District maintains also that it is entitled to recover increments paid respondent during his suspension and any salary he received while under indictment.

After reviewing the motion papers, which were filed during the summer of 2005, it appeared that the issues had been addressed abstractly and that the process would be better served if the financial data appropriate to each of the categories of recovery sought were provided. A decision without the data might encourage an additional round of litigation about the numbers. I contacted counsel and both agreed to pursue this information. A few months time was given for this purpose and petitioner sought respondent's tax returns. By letter of November

[1] The Board's brief mentions a slightly lower figure of $307,453; the later and higher number is accompanied by supporting financial data. There has been no dispute concerning this figure.

28, 2005, counsel for respondent informed me that he has "...not received from Mr. Shinkle the subject W-2 forms. Accordingly, we will not be submitting the same on his behalf". Petitioner responds that in that case it is entitled to the inference that respondent's earnings were at least equal to the monies it paid him. This is the substance of the record.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 plainly expects the District to set-off income from substituted employment against salary. I have seen no judicial precedents on point, but the administrative decisions in the area consistently approve such recaptures, see, e.g. Willingboro et al. v. Gilbert, 3 N.J.A.R. 206 (1982). Respondent made no legal argument to the contrary. Moreover, by choosing to withhold records quantifying his outside earnings, respondent makes setoff calculations impossible. He has not explained the decision, nor argued that the information is not discoverable. Respondent is ably represented by experienced counsel and this is undoubtedly a considered stance that, for whatever reason, is willing to suffer an adverse inference concerning the scope of outside earnings. I therefore find that respondent is obligated to full restitution of all payments received during his suspension.

Petitioner's other arguments need not be pursued at any length. Nonetheless, I agree that increments are a reward for sound performance and need not be given where, as here there was no performance, see, Bd. Of Ed. Bernards Tp. V. Bernards Tp. Ed. Assn., 79 N.J. 311, 321, (1979); In re Castaldo, 1986 SLD 3026, 3030. Additionally, employees suspended by reason of indictment need not be paid pending those proceedings, see, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3; Romanowski v. Bd. of Ed. of Jersey City, 89 N.J. Super 38 (App. Div. 1965); Lacey Tp. Bd. of Ed. V. Yatauro, EDU 00793-99; Bd. of Ed, City of Camden v. Hovington, EDU 6675-97. It follows that increments and salary paid under these circumstances are subject to recovery.

Respondent's motion for indemnification is without merit. Employees who must defend against charges for acts or omissions arising from the performance of their duties are entitled to indemnification, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and 18A:16-6.1. In Bower v. Bd. Of Educ. Of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997), the New Jersey Supreme Court analyzed these statutory sections in the context of a teacher against whom indictments on charges of sexual misconduct were dismissed, but which were not thereafter followed by tenure proceedings. In a 4-3 decision the Justices analyzed refined burden shifting questions and the majority held for restitution because the teacher was under no obligation to establish his innocence once indictments were dismissed. The issue here is crucially different. Fact finding has determined that respondent had sexual relations on multiple occasions with a minor student. It is plain in the Bower dicta that any actual proofs of wrongdoing would have turned the majority decidedly against indemnification, Bower, at 433; see also, Ciufi v. Bd. of Ed. of Township of Irvington, EDU 7548-94, Initial Decision, March 30, 1998, adopted by Commissioner, May 15, 1998, http://www.rutgers.edu/oal.

Based on the foregoing, I conclude that the district is entitled to recoup $312,347.46, the sum of its payments to respondent, and that respondent is not entitled to indemnification. It is so ordered.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RANDALL MC CANN,

PETITIONER,

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT.

SYNOPSIS

Following an incident in July 2003 in which petitioner entered and used a boy's bathroom at South Plainfield High School – allegedly before a female employee of a summer camp program could finish cleaning the lavatory – respondent imposed a requirement on the petitioner that if a school facility does not have a sign in/out procedure, he must notify a school administrator when he is on school premises. Petitioner – a South Plainfield parent – seeks monetary damages, attorney fees, and reversal of respondent's determination.

The ALJ determined, inter alia, that: petitioner's conduct was disrespectful and demonstrated bad judgment; petitioner failed to appreciate that his actions were inappropriate; petitioner did not meet his burden of proof to show that the actions of respondent were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; respondent acted in a reasonable way in imposing a minor restriction on petitioner; and respondent was within its authority to impose such a restriction given its responsibility to maintain order, ensure the safety of its students and regulate its property. The ALJ ordered that the petition be dismissed, and affirmed the actions of the respondent Board.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ. The Commissioner also notes that there is no authority under the school laws for grants of the type of money damages and attorney fees that the petitioner seeks. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition is dismissed.

RANDALL MC CANN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Neither party submitted exceptions.

This controversy was precipitated by an incident that took place in South Plainfield High School on July 11, 2003. It is undisputed that during the summer of 2003, two groups were using the high school facility. The South Plainfield Recreation Department was running a sports camp, for which Tammy Zurka – a high school teacher and coach – served as director; a community theater group was using the high school stage and auditorium to present a play. The theater group's producer had hired petitioner, who lives in South Plainfield and has two children in respondent's schools, to build a set for the play.

It is further undisputed that in the morning of July 11, 2003, petitioner was working on the high school stage and Zurka was supervising the sports camp. After two boys told her that some campers had made a mess in the boys' bathroom, she entered the empty bathroom to tend to the mess. She testified that she left two boys outside the room to warn her if anyone came to use the facilities.

The boys apparently failed to follow those instructions, because petitioner entered the room while Zurka was still cleaning up. The respective parties' accounts of what happened in the bathroom diverge. At the OAL hearing Zurka testified that she had told petitioner that she was the camp director cleaning up after her charges, would be finished in a minute, and asked petitioner to wait. Instead of waiting, petitioner told her that he had to use the bathroom right away, and proceeded to unzip his fly. She hastened to leave, but heard petitioner urinating before she reached the door. Petitioner's testimony at the hearing was that Zurka did not identify herself,[1] that he had not unzipped his fly within Zurka's range of vision, and that Zurka had exited the room before he started urinating.

There appears to be no dispute that the incident occurred shortly before the close of camp hours, that Zurka supervised the pick-up of the campers by their parents, and that she subsequently reported the incident to the then assistant principal of the high school, Kenneth May. May was apparently unaware of petitioner's presence in the building, identity, or purpose in being on the premises. Fearing that there was a stranger on school grounds who had behaved inappropriately toward staff and whose presence could be detrimental to students, May notified the district superintendent, Dr. Rosado, and the police, and went to look for the individual, accompanied by Zurka.

They found petitioner working on the stage. While there was conflicting testimony about what May said to petitioner, it is undisputed that petitioner acknowledged that it was he who entered the boys' bathroom while Zurka was there. May testified that petitioner's response to questioning about the bathroom incident was: "When you got to go, you got to go." May ordered petitioner to gather his things and leave the auditorium.

[1] At the OAL hearing petitioner's counsel stated that petitioner has a 60% hearing loss in both ears.

Rosado and the police arrived at about the same time. The police interviewed Zurka and petitioner. McCann conceded at the hearing that he told the police that 'even if Zurka's account of the incident had been true, what was the big deal.' The police conveyed petitioner's attitude to Rosado and May. Because of the attitude petitioner displayed, May recommended to Rosado that petitioner not be allowed to continue working on the school premises. Rosado agreed, relying on paragraph F of the district's policy about visitors:

> F. Any visitor to the school whose presence or conduct is disruptive, or whose behavior, past or present suggests that he/she intends or is likely to become disruptive, may be requested to leave the school premises. If the visitor so addressed does not withdraw, the superintendent may summon assistance from the local law enforcement agency.

Since that time, petitioner has been required to sign in and out of any school building that he enters (this is not required if he is just dropping off or picking up his children outside the facility), and advise a school administrator of his presence if there is no mechanism for signing in and out. The requirement to sign in and out is applicable to all parents or other persons who are not employees of the South Plainfield Board of Education, pursuant to paragraph B of the district's policy:

> B. Upon their arrival at school, visitors must register at the main office where they will receive instructions, permission, and/or a pass.

Rosado testified that if petitioner were willing to acknowledge the inappropriateness of his July 11, 2003 behavior, he was willing to rescind the requirement that in the absence of sign-in procedures petitioner advise an administrator of his presence in a school facility. However, petitioner was apparently not willing to so acknowledge.

Instead of filing a standard appeal with the Commissioner, petitioner submitted papers that he had previously filed in Superior Court. Among those papers was a notice of motion requesting an order:

> 1. Allowing [petitioner] to participate in school activities.
> 2. Allowing [petitioner] to enter South Plainfield schools without having to sign in and out.
> 3. Compelling [respondent] to treat [petitioner] as they would any parent of any child in the school system.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) correctly found that, in view of section B. of respondent's visitor policy (set forth above), petitioner was not being treated differently from other parents by having to sign in and out when entering school facilities. The ALJ also found, and the Commissioner agrees, that there was no evidence at the hearing that would support a claim that petitioner had been prevented from participating in school activities relating to his children. Consequently, the ALJ correctly concluded that:

> The only action taken by Respondent that puts a requirement on petitioner that does not apply to other parents is the following: If petitioner is entering a school building and that building does not have a sign in/out procedure in place, then Petitioner must notify a school administrator that he is on the premises. Such a situation would typically occur after hours when the staff at the main office (where signing in and out occurs) has left for the day. That requirement is the issue in this case; namely, whether the Board acted arbitrary [sic] and capricious [sic] in imposing this requirement on Petitioner.

In articulating the facts of this case, the ALJ found that Zurka was a very credible witness, and her testimony was harmonious with other evidence offered at the OAL hearing. By way of contrast, petitioner was arrogant, and his testimony was often vague and inconsistent. The Commissioner cannot find differently. The ALJ's determinations about credibility must be given deference. S.D. v. Div. Med. Assistance and Health Services, 349 N.J. Super. 480, 485

(App. Div. 2002) (Credibility findings of an ALJ concerning a lay witness may not be modified or rejected unless it is explained why they are arbitrary and capricious or unsupported in the record). Having reviewed the hearing transcript and accompanying exhibits, the Commissioner finds no reason not to adopt the ALJ's credibility determinations.

The Commissioner further adopts the ALJ's findings that the petitioner did disrespect Zurka by unzipping his trousers within a few feet of her, and urinating before she left the room. Not only was Zurka credible, but there was also no indication in the record that the petitioner, at the time he was interviewed by the police, had denied that the incident – as described by Zurka – had occurred. And the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's finding that at the hearing in this matter, the petitioner still did not appreciate that his actions as alleged by Zurka, if true, would reasonably cause "Zurka or any other woman to be upset."

Based upon his findings that petitioner did conduct himself on July 11, 2003, in the manner described by Zurka – and that petitioner continued to show bad judgment in not appreciating how disrespectful and offensive his actions were – the ALJ concluded that petitioner, who has the burden of proving that respondent's actions were arbitrary or capricious in imposing the "minor" restriction of notifying administrators of his presence when no sign-in procedure is available, had not met that burden. The ALJ further expressed regret that a teacher, principal and superintendent had to miss most of the first day of school to respond to a frivolous case, which could have been resolved by a simple apology by petitioner.

The Commissioner agrees. Where board or administrative actions are challenged, the challenger bears the burden of proving that such actions were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Shuster v. Board of Education of Montgomery Tp., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 670, 676. In other words, actions of local boards [of education] which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Regulation of visitors to school property is clearly action which lies within respondent's discretionary powers. N.J.S.A. 18A:20-20. There is nothing in the record to suggest that respondent – through its representatives Rosado and May – had any improper motives for imposing the reporting restrictions upon petitioner, and the Commissioner cannot say that it was irrational to ask petitioner – who has continued to show bad judgment in evaluating his conduct – to advise school administrators when he is on school premises.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision dismissing the petition.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

Marc H. Zitomer, Esq., for respondent (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 27, 2005 Decided: November 9, 2005

BEFORE DOUGLAS H. HURD, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Based upon Petitioner's conduct on July 11, 2003, Respondent determined when entering a school facility Petitioner would have to (1) sign in and out of the facility if the facility had such a procedure and (2) if no such procedure existed, Petitioner had to notify an administrator of the facility that he was on the premises. The first restriction applies to all parents and visitors to school facilities, but the second restriction was imposed on Petitioner due to his conduct on July 11, 2003.

On June 20, 2004, Petitioner appealed and requested that he be treated like all other parents. On August 9, 2004, Respondent provided an Answer to the appeal. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on September 27, 2004. A hearing was held on September 7, 2005. Respondent submitted a post-hearing brief on October 27, 2005. Petitioner has not submitted a post-hearing brief, even though many phone calls were placed and messages were left with Petitioner's counsel's office requesting the brief. No response by phone or in writing was provided by counsel for Petitioner. Accordingly, the record closed on October 27, 2005, the date of Respondent's post-hearing brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Petitioner's complaint filed with the Department seeks to allow him "to participate in all school activities . . . and to enter the school without having to sign in and out". Petitioner also requests that he be "treated as any other parent would be". The evidence presented at the hearing resulted in a clarification of the issue before me. The only action taken by Respondent that puts a requirement on Petitioner that does not apply to other parents is the following: If Petitioner is entering a school building and that building does not have a sign in/out procedure in place, then Petitioner must notify a school administrator that he is on the premises. Such a situation would typically occur after hours when the staff at the main office (where signing in and out occurs) has left for the day. That requirement is the issue in this case; namely, whether the Board acted arbitrary and capricious in imposing this requirement on Petitioner.

Based on the testimony and evidence provided at the hearing, I find the following facts:

In July 2003, Petitioner was employed by a summer theater workshop program, a non-profit community program that is not affiliated with the Board, but simply uses school property. On July 11, 2003, he was working at the South Plainfield high school with this program to help design and construct a theater set. Petitioner has two children that are students with the district, but at the time were not of high school age.

Tammy Zurka, on July 11, 2003, was also at the high school. She is a teacher for the District and that summer she was working as a camp director for a youth basketball camp run by the South Plainfield Recreation Department. At the time of the incident, Zurka had never seen Petitioner before. On July 11, 2003, she was cleaning a boys' bathroom in the high school because two of the children at the camp reported to her that it was a mess. Zurka went to the bathroom and started cleaning it. There was nobody in the bathroom at the time. Then, Petitioner walked in to the bathroom. Zurka immediately told Petitioner she was the Camp Director, that she was cleaning up the bathroom and that she would be done in a minute or two. Petitioner responded that he "really had to go". Zurka repeated that she would just be a minute and asked Petitioner to leave. Petitioner refused to leave or wait.

Petitioner proceeded to the toilet and, just after taking a few steps past Zurka, he began unzipping his pants. At this time, Petitioner was only a few feet away from Zurka. Zurka felt violated by Petitioner's actions and immediately proceeded to leave the bathroom. Prior to her actually leaving, Petitioner began urinating.

After the basketball camp concluded for the day, Zurka went and located Kenneth May, then Assistant Principal, and reported the incident to him. May became concerned after hearing Zurka's report because he did not recognize the description of Petitioner and thought a stranger was in the building. He therefore called the police and Dr. Rosado, the Superintendent. May and Zurka then went through the building to find Petitioner. He was located in the auditorium working on the set. Two police officers arrived and took a statement from Petitioner. The Petitioner told the police that even if Zurka's account of what happened was true, that there is no crime for unzipping your fly near a woman. According to Rosado, the police told him that Petitioner clearly did not appreciate the gravity of his actions. The police report notes Petitioner's "lack of judgment".

Based on this incident, Rosado imposed a requirement on Petitioner that if a school facility does not have a sign in/out procedure (because it is after hours or for any other reason), then Petitioner must notify a school administrator he is on the premises. Rosado imposed this requirement because of Petitioner's blatant disregard of Zurka's request to wait until she left the bathroom before he urinated, his complete lack of judgment and respect and because of what the police officers relayed to him about Petitioner's lack of judgment. This policy still remains in effect. Rosado testified that he would have revoked this policy if Petitioner simply would have apologized and appreciated that what he did was wrong.

Petitioner denied that he did in fact unzip his pants in front or near Zurka. He testified that she had left the bathroom when he unzipped his fly. He, however, did not say that he heard the door shut prior to unzipping his pants and urinating.

Determining credibility can be tricky, however, in this case it was very easy. Simply put, Petitioner had no credibility and Zurka was completely credible. Zurka was detailed, genuine, and straightforward in her testimony. Her testimony was consistent with the other evidence presented at the hearing. She was simply doing her job when this happened and I do believe this incident upset her very much. Petitioner, on the other hand, was arrogant, hesitant and inconsistent in his testimony. There is no credible evidence that he even denied this incident took place when questioned by police. Moreover, although he testified that he didn't unzip his pants until after Zurka left the bathroom, he said he unzipped his pants without hearing the door shut. Most amazingly, Petitioner testified that even if he did unzip his pants near Zurka that it is not a big deal since he didn't expose himself and it is not a crime. It is troubling that Petitioner doesn't appreciate that his actions would cause Zurka or any other woman to be upset.

The testimony and documents also established that all parents and visitors to school buildings with sign in and sign out procedures, must in fact sign in and out when entering and leaving a school building. Petitioner must do this like all parents and visitors. Furthermore, Petitioner has not been denied the opportunity to participate in any school activities. The only claim on this issue is that Petitioner was denied the opportunity to be Santa Claus for a school fundraiser. This claim simply had no evidence supporting it. First, there was no evidence that the fundraiser was a school sanctioned activity. Second, there was no evidence that any school official took action that led to Petitioner not being able to be Santa Claus. Finally, Petitioner, as all parents, is not required to sign in/out or notify a school administrator when he is simply dropping off his child at school and not entering a school building.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioner has the burden of proving that the actions of Respondent were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioner does not come close to meeting his burden. Rather, the evidence demonstrates that Respondent acted completely reasonable in imposing a minor restriction on Petition. In addition, Respondent clearly was within its authority to impose such a restriction given its responsibility to maintain order, ensure the safety of its students and regulate its property.

Respondent's actions were reasonable in light of Petitioner's actions in (1) disregarding Zurka's requests to wait a minute for her to leave the bathroom; (2) unzipping his pants while standing only a few feet away from Zurka; (3) beginning to urinate before Zurka could leave the bathroom; and (4) not appreciating that his actions were completely inappropriate. Given this conduct, Dr. Rosado's determination to require Petitioner to notify a school administrator when he is present at a school building (where there is no sign in/out procedure), is completely reasonable.

It is unfortunate, to say the least, that such a frivolous case had to cause the Superintendent, a Principal and a teacher to miss a large part of the first day of school. This is especially true, given that the Respondent would have lifted this restriction if Petitioner simply apologized for his conduct.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that Petitioner's petition be DISMISSED and that the actions of Respondent be AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. On or about January 8, 2004, Sal Pauciello, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent failed to reimburse his attorneys for reasonable fees associated with the legal defense of a criminal action which resulted in a final disposition in his favor. On or about February 9, 2004, respondent

On March 24, 2004, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On April 19, 2004, the matter was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Margaret Hayden who scheduled a telephone prehearing conference for July 20, 2004 and a hearing for December 1, 2004. The matter was reassigned to the undersigned judge on July 26, 2004 and during the telephone prehearing conference held on September 27, 2004, the issues were isolated and a settlement conference was scheduled for November 9, 2004. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF RALPH McCULLOUGH	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

In August 2003, the Trenton Board of Education certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and incapacity against respondent, a tenured school custodian. Hearings were held at the OAL in late 2003 and early 2004, after which the presiding judge was recused from the proceedings following a motion from respondent's counsel. The case was reassigned to another ALJ, additional hearings were held, and the record closed on November 7, 2005. Respondent vigorously argued that an entire new hearing was necessary to prevent any undue influence on the new judge as a result of the previous judge's actions.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent was rude and abusive during a January 2003 meeting with his supervisors, during which respondent made it clear that he was capable of violence; and there is enough in the record – and the respondent's documented history of conduct in the workplace – to suggest that he could be a potential danger if he returned to work. Thus, the ALJ concluded that respondent's conduct was unbecoming and insubordinate, and the Board has established that respondent represents a potential danger if he is returned to work. The ALJ ordered that tenure be removed.

Upon a full and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the charges against respondent have been sustained by a preponderance of the credible evidence and that the proven charges warrant respondent's removal from his tenured position; accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is hereby adopted. In so deciding, the Commissioner emphasizes that it cannot be credibly advanced that the ALJ's March 2005 letter order decision – which concluded that a whole new hearing was unnecessary, but, rather, the matter could proceed based on his review of prior hearing transcripts and forthcoming testimony – in any way compromised the fair discharge of his judicial duties or resulted in prejudice to the respondent.

AGENCY DKT NO. 310-8/03

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF RALPH McCULLOUGH	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

The record and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions, dated and filed January 24, 2006 in response to an Initial Decision mailed to the parties on January 10, 2006, were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and, therefore, these and the Board's reply exceptions were not considered herein.[1]

Upon full and independent review of the record in this matter, which included transcripts of the hearing at the OAL,[2] the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), for the reasons clearly set forth in his decision, that the charges against respondent have been sustained by a preponderance of the credible evidence and that the proven charges warrant respondent's removal from his tenured position.

At this point, the Commissioner is compelled to elaborate and comment on a prior Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in this matter, discussed briefly at pages 1-2 of the Initial Decision. Subsequent to the reassignment of this case to ALJ Masin as a consequence of ALJ Schuster's

[1] Respondent's exception submission included the following introductory colloquy: "Although the decision certifies that it was mailed to the undersigned on January 10th, it was not received in this office until January 17, 2006, when my next door neighbor brought it over and indicated that it had been put in their mail box on Saturday the 14th. We were closed on January 16th in observation of Martin Luther King day." It is specifically noted that, notwithstanding what respondent views as valid justification for the filing of his late exceptions, at no time subsequent to his receipt of the Initial Decision and prior to the expiration of the regulatory timeline for the filing of exceptions did he seek an extension of time within which to file.

[2] Hearing in this matter was conducted on November 10, 2003, January 7, 8, and 30, 2004, February 20, 2004, April 4, 2005 and June 27, 2005.

recusal mid-trial, two options were available to him: 1) conduct a complete re-presentation of all testimony from the beginning or 2) review the transcripts of the testimony already taken and continue the hearing from that point. Respondent McCullough vigorously argued for an entire new trial, contending that such was necessary for an assessment of credibility and to preclude bias from existing transcripts where – respondent charged – ALJ Schuster engaged in excessive questioning of Board witnesses. By letter-order dated March 10, 2005, ALJ Masin concluded that this matter could proceed based upon his review of the prior hearing transcripts and additional forthcoming testimony and it was not necessary to recall the prior witnesses and re-present the entire hearing. In so determining, ALJ Masin stated that, after a review of the transcripts to-date, he could "state without any doubt that there is nothing in those transcripts which interferes with my ability to fairly and impartially assess the testimony of the witnesses and determine the facts in the case." (ALJ Masin letter-order dated March 10, 2005). The Commissioner's comprehensive consideration of the hearing transcripts and the Initial Decision persuades her that it cannot be credibly advanced that the ALJ's March 10, 2005 letter order decision in any way compromised the fair discharge of his judicial duties or resulted in prejudice to the respondent.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons articulated therein. The Commissioner hereby directs that Ralph McCullough be dismissed from his employment as a tenured custodian with the School District of the City of Trenton as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 06702-03S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 310-8/03

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF RALPH McCULLOUGH.

Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., for petitioner, Trenton Board of Education (Sumners George, attorneys)

Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., for respondent, Ralph McCullough (Klausner & Hunter, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 7, 2005 Decided: January 5, 2006

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

On August 29, 2003, the Trenton Board of Education ("Board") certified tenure charges against Ralph McCullough, a tenured school custodian. The Commissioner of Education received the charges and after an Answer was filed on September 19, 2003, the Commissioner transferred the charges for a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on September 29, 2003. Hearings were held before Honorable John Schuster, III, on November 10, 2003 and January 7, 8 and 30 and February 20, 2004. Thereafter, counsel for Mr. McCullough moved before Judge Schuster to recuse the judge from the proceedings. Judge Schuster denied the motion; however, on interlocutory appeal OAL Chief Judge and Director Laura Sanders reversed that decision and ordered that Judge Schuster be recused. The case was then re-assigned to this judge. After consideration of the respondent's request for the re-presentation of all witnesses and a review of the respondent's concerns regarding what he perceived to be excessive involvement of Judge Schuster in the prior proceedings and certain comments made by the judge which counsel felt could improperly influence my consideration of the case, I concluded that I could readily consider the prior testimony based upon the transcripts thereof and could weigh the credibility of the witnesses already presented without the need for the re-presentation of such witnesses. I also determined that the comments of which counsel expressed concern would not in any way interfere with my ability to fairly and impartially judge the case and that to the extent that Judge Schuster had inserted himself into the questioning of witnesses, there was no danger that such questioning by the judge would improperly influence my considerations. Indeed, I must note that while recusal was no doubt appropriate due to certain specific comments made by the judge, the criticism of Mr. McCullough's counsel regarding the level and nature of Judge Schuster's questioning of witnesses was completely without merit. While some of it was extensive, Judge Schuster's questions did not involve any prejudice to the respondent nor did it involve a degree or type of questioning likely to affect this judge's consideration of the testimony. As will be detailed, that questioning played little role in the conclusions drawn from the testimony of the various witnesses. In view of my analysis of the motion, I ordered that the case proceed, with additional hearings as necessary to present the remaining witnesses. These hearings were held on April 4 and June 27, 2005. Counsel obtained the transcripts of these hearing dates and filed briefs and the record closed on November 7, 2005.

The Charges

In its Statement of Tenure Charges, the Board alleged that Mr. McCullough had been guilty of unbecoming conduct during a meeting held with other school employees on January 29, 2003. He was purportedly rude, abusive and made a statement that was perceived by these employees as threatening. The Charge claims that he "stated that a person under the stress from the harassment on the job that he was receiving could kill someone." In view of these facts and a "history of disruptive behavior with school staff which previously resulted in the filing of tenure charges against him," which charges resulted in a determination that he had been guilty of insubordination "by rudely interrupting a conversation between two school administrators in a loud and abusive manner," he should be terminated from his employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. In addition, the Board alleged that Mr. McCullough was incapacitated from the performance of his duties. It based this charge upon a psychiatric evaluation performed by James L. Hewitt, M.D., who determined that it was not safe for McCullough to return to work "due to his mixed personality disorder and constant threatening statements to co-workers." Hewitt also reported that the "Respondent's habit of frightening others and not being held accountable for his actions was due to his suffering from Paranoid Schizophrenia or some other mental illness." Again, the Board sought Mr. McCullough's termination.

Evidence

The Board's first witness was Bee Jay Cooper. At the time of his testimony and on the occasion of the incident under consideration, Mr. Cooper was the Head Custodian for the Trenton Board of Education. He was assigned to the Southwood DayLight/Twilight Program, a program designed for adults seeking to obtain their high school diplomas. He was assigned to the St. Stanslaus building where the program was held. Respondent Ralph McCullough was assigned to the school as an assistant custodian. Mr. Cooper testified that on January 29, 2003, he attended a meeting with Evan Collins, the director of buildings and grounds, Raul Sanchez, facilitator of the school and Jeanette Harris, the vice principal of the school, along with Mr. McCullough. He described the purpose of this meeting as "to get some common ground of a check list of getting communication between" himself and McCullough. McCullough related that he had such a list. He had told Cooper that he wanted such a list in black and white, "instead of me coming to him, or any of us coming to him for what his job is to do, what part of the building to clean."

According to Cooper, at the meeting on the 29th he felt that his life was threatened. He described Mr. McCullough's conduct at the meeting as "irate," "much controlling and trying to dominate the meeting."

> He started talking about when his - - his past, when he was younger, up until he said he found the Lord, but he still can go back to his tactics, the things that he's done, and he was talking with his hands, and moving around, and he just kept getting louder, and louder, you couldn't get a word in to say anything, to try to say where are you going with this, we were working on something and he went to somewhere else where it wouldn't have went . . .
> . . . .

> As his past he said he was homeless at the time that he was drinking, he was doing drugs, and he used to knock people up, take their money from them, whatever he had to do to get what he needed, what kind of substance it was he would do it to get it, and the whole thing of the meeting was nothing pertaining his past or anyone's past, and it was just uncomfortable hearing this, listening to this.
> It reached a certain point that he had stated to the people in the room that, you know, you're messing with my livelihood and that could put yourself in danger, and we're like we're not messing with anyone's livelihood, we were just - - no one said nothing. I'm just sitting there saying to myself we're not talking about his livelihood, we're just talking about a piece of paper for communication, and he just kept on going and he got to a point and said, you know, "Under stress, you know, things can happen under stress, and you know, I - - well, under the stress that I'm under I'm - - I can kill somebody, I can kill you,". . . .
> [Transcript of hearing of January 7, 2004, pages 25-27.]

At this point in the meeting, Raul Sanchez asked McCullough, "Are you threatening us, or what are you saying." According to Mr. Cooper, McCullough responded,

> "I can kill you." When he said that he looked directly at me and Mr. Sanchez . . . and my expression never changed, because I didn't want him - - to let him know that he got the best of me at that point in time. . . I felt threatened, I felt scared for my life, because I have two young kids, and my wife . . . . To this day, you know, I'm thinking about it now, I'm holding myself not to be shaking and my eyes are starting to water to tell you the truth.

The meeting lasted for about forty-five minutes, or one hour and ten minutes. He felt that McCullough intended to threaten him. After the incident, when he would go to work at 5:30 p.m., he would "look over my shoulders left to right" as he opened the locks on the gates in the dark, "because I don't know, it could be him, it could be anybody coming, you know, from what happened, you know, so I'm nervous."

Mr. Cooper testified that a few days before this meeting, Mr. McCullough had given him a check list relating to the cleaning of the building. McCullough thought that he was cleaning the whole building and that Cooper was not doing anything. There was a preliminary meeting on the 28th between McCullough, Sanchez and Cooper at Belleview. At that meeting, McCullough started to talk, wanted his way, let no one else get a word in and said that he was leaving and walked out. That meeting lasted about six minutes.

Mr. Cooper acknowledged that at the meeting at which the above-quoted statements were made, McCullough made no moves towards him or towards anyone else. He never took anything into his hands other than a tape recorder. He did not accuse Cooper of lying about him cleaning rooms. The threats were made about half-way through the meeting. Cooper did not leave the meeting after McCullough voiced the threat, which was stated only once, although McCullough kept speaking, not letting anyone else get a word in. He did repeat "you're putting your life in danger" more than once, although the witness could not recall how many times he said this. He did not leave because, "I'm a man - -if I'm in a meeting I'm going to stay until the meeting is over. I don't just get up and walk out of a meeting. . . The meeting had to continue, so I wasn't just going to leave." However, after the meeting the police were called.

No one from the Trenton Board ever told Cooper that McCullough liked to fight or was a violent man. He agreed that he had worked overtime at the school both before McCullough arrived to work at the school a couple of months earlier and after McCullough left the school. He estimated that during the entire seventy minute meeting, Mr. McCullough spoke for forty-five to fifty minutes.

Raul Sanchez is a teacher leader in the Daylight/Twilight High School at the satellite site at St. Stanislaus. He functioned somewhat like a building supervisor, although Jeannette Harris was assigned there as a vice-principal. Mr. Sanchez was present at the January 29 meeting with Mr. McCullough, a meeting that stemmed from McCullough's complaints about being unfairly assigned cleaning work. A meeting had been held on the 28th with Cooper, McCullough and Sanchez, where McCullough voiced this concern. That meeting did not last long because when Sanchez tried to speak > before I could get the words out, he said, "You be quiet while I'm talking because I'm a man." And I said, "Mr. McCullough, we're all men here," and he said, "Some of us are, some of us aren't," > and at that point I said, "Mr. McCullough, I'm sorry, under those terms we can't continue," and I left the room.

> Transcript of hearing of January 8, 2004, pages 20, 21]

Sanchez insisted that someone from administration be present at the meeting on the 29th. At that meeting McCullough referred to Sanchez as a "puppet." He said that he did not recognize Ms. Harris' authority and questioned why she was at the meeting. He spoke about his own background, including references to having been a crack addict and having assaulted people "and he described a prior incident in his job in which someone tried to get him fired and that he was willing to, you know, go to the person's house. . . something like that and that he was willing to go to their houses, kick the door down and as I understood it, you know, do them in." Asked what he meant by that term, Sanchez responded, "Kill them," acknowledging that to represent his interpretation of the term. "I'm not sure if he said the word specifically, but that was my interpretation." He also acknowledged that he could not recall if McCullough had specifically used the words "do him in." He never made any specific comments directed towards Sanchez other than the "puppet" remark. During the meeting he walked around and Ms. Harris asked that he sit down.

Mr. Sanchez recalled the meeting lasting for one and one-half to two hours. He recalled that

> Most of what he was saying initially was threats. He was saying that we were playing with his - - with his income, we were playing with his family and in doing so we were playing with our lives. He said, "You can get killed playing with a man's car and his house." And that was, you know, mixed in with -- once he was talking about with the prior incident where he was willing to go to somebody's house and kick the door in. . . . So I asked him, "Do you mean that you would, you know, kill us, I mean, is that what you're saying?" and he said, "Yeah, under the stress I'm in, yeah. That's - - that's what I do."

These comments left Sanchez "frozen," as he recognized that McCullough was, "not only abusive, but also violent and dangerous." He was a "verbal menace," and "appeared to be out of control. It appeared that he was just going to do what he was going to do." However, he did not do anything except talk. Sanchez, who did not know that Mr. McCullough was an ordained minister, described him as often talking in a loud voice at times other than at this meeting.

Mrs. Harris said that she would have to end the meeting, but she did not do so, "I think she was trying to continue to see if we could resolve this issue and - - and - - get past this. The meeting went on for another half hour, but it wasn't resolved." After it ended, the police were called. Sanchez, who had never been threatened that way before even though he grew up "in a rough neighborhood," was stressed. He felt that McCullough was trying to intimidate and it had worked.

Mr. Sanchez explained that two teachers had complained to Mr. Cooper that their rooms had not been cleaned properly, but they were unsure who was responsible for cleaning their particular rooms. They did not place their complaints in writing.

The witness acknowledged that at a prior time a serious verbal allegation had been made against him. Mr. McCullough prayed with him, coming to him to provide comfort and assistance.

On cross-examination, Mr. Sanchez was questioned about what he did after the meeting ended. After a short time in Ms. Harris's office, he returned to St. Stanislaus. He understood at that point in time Mr. McCullough's shift had ended. Despite his fear of McCullough following the events at the meeting, he did not see McCullough's car, a "large green Cadillac," so he felt safe that he was not there and did not "check out the building to see if Ralph McCullough was laying in wait for" him. Explaining further why he did not do so, he said, > Nothing had happened to Ralph McCullough yet. He hadn't been fired. He had been told to report the next day to work by his boss. So I expected to see him, but I expected to see him the next day at eight o'clock.

> [Transcript of hearing on January 8, 2004, page 96]

Questioned by Mr. McCullough's counsel as to whether his client was "a legend for violence," Sanchez reported that he had heard McCullough lose his temper several times before January 28th, directing himself toward Mr. Cooper on several occasions in the office or on the stairwell. Once he called Sanchez to a stairwell to show him that Cooper had not done his job right and was trying to blame McCullough for this. Sanchez also responded to a query as to whether he truly believed that McCullough was going to kill Sanchez, saying that he did, "I believed that if we were together at some point, something would happen and yeah, that he was very capable." He based this belief upon the forty minutes during which he heard the respondent speak of his past history as an addict and his comments that "I'd be out on the street and I'd get somebody, I'd knock him on the head and I'd do this." He did not understand McCullough's comments as an analogy. Instead "he was directing it at me because I was talking about me. I was concerned about me. I was trying to say, 'You don't really mean this, do you?' and he said, 'Yes, I do. Under conditions.' " When he learned that McCullough was suspended he spent a couple of weeks in fear or apprehension, but did not see a medical professional about it.

Jeanette Harris, who was the vice-principal for the Daylight/Twilight program, has been with the district for two and one-half years. Previously, she held a position with the Department of Education in school review and improvement. She is a certified teacher and administrator. Her first encounter with Mr. McCullough was at the January 29th meeting. He acted in a very inappropriate manner while she was there. She found his behavior rude and insulting. In the course of the meeting, which she understood had been called to deal with some concerns that Mr. McCullough had about job assignments, Mr. McCullough referred to Mr. Cooper as a liar. At the very start of the meeting, McCullough questioned her presence, saying "I don't know who this is. Who is this woman? You know, she doesn't - - what business is this of hers to be here." She had not even had the opportunity to introduce herself at that point and let him know why she was there. Even after she identified herself and her purpose, he remained rude. At one point, McCullough > began to talk to the people at the table about - - he mentioned to us that "when you mess with my livelihood" and specifically, you know, his house, you know, food, shelter, those types of things, 'that you're messing with your life." And then after he made such statement, Mr. Sanchez asked him, "Are you saying that, you know, you would kill someone," and he said under stressful conditions, he could.

> In addition to that, he also then referred to a - - a specific person that I - - apparently had tried to have him fired prior to him working I guess at south - - at the south site, and you know, how he > had planned to kick his door down and - - and he had planned to kill him but the wife - - his wife, you know, stopped him from doing that. And so those comments I found to be very disturbing. Very disturbing.

> [Transcript of hearing of January 8, 2004, pages 163,164.]

Ms. Harris recalled that the meeting lasted for thirty-five to forty minutes and the comment about being under stress and he could kill someone was made "probably" twenty to twenty-five minutes into the conference. She recalled that the meeting ended after "everyone said pretty much what they needed to say" and the ending was not a rude one. After the meeting ended, Sanchez and Cooper were each concerned about what had been said by McCullough, concerned about the safety of the staff and "of course themselves . . . because they felt threatened. They expressed that they did not feel safe, that Mr. McCullough still had keys to the building . . . ." As for herself, Harris had never before had such an experience "where an employee said things that I considered to be a little bit extreme or bizarre." Both his conduct and his statements were "extreme." He was loud at times, animated, but he did not make any physical gestures or movements of a threatening sort and she did not see him looking at anyone in particular as he said these things. She did perceive McCullough as being serious in what he said. "I think that Mr. McCullough was intentionally trying to intimidate the people at the table. That was my feeling." She agreed that it was Mr. Sanchez who injected the word "kill" into the conversation. McCullough never told either Cooper or Sanchez that he was going to kill them. McCullough did indicate at the meeting that he felt that he was being harassed and stated that there were teachers who would corroborate that Cooper was lying. Harris believed that at the meeting that McCullough was angry and was venting, but she did not believe during the meeting that she was in any danger. The meeting continued for about twenty minutes after McCullough's comments.

The witness explained that after this incident she did have some apprehension about McCullough, yet she did not have fear.

> I figured first of all that was my first encounter with him. If he was directing really you know threatening, it was probably more directed to the other people at the table since he had not known me prior to that. I - -I will tell you that I was - - I did have some concern during the summer and during the first couple of months > of school because I was actually working in the building. Mr. McCullough had keys to the building and that was cause for concern, that, you know, at that time he wasn't in the building. He wasn't working and so then I - -I was a little bit more concerned about it. I didn't file any police report. I hadn't done one before. [Transcript of hearing of January 8, 2004, page 207.]

Everett O. Collins, Executive Administrator for Buildings and Grounds for the Board, testified that he called the January 29th meeting to resolve issues regarding the work schedule that Bee Jay Cooper had presented to Ralph McCullough. McCullough felt that he had been wrongly accused and that there was some attempt to try to get him terminated. Collins denied that this was the intent, instead the purpose of the meeting was to "give clear direction as to what his job duties were and what his responsibilities were to break it up in that manner."

Collins recalled that when McCullough entered the meeting room he first walked over to Jeanette Harris, leaned over and asked "who are you and why are you here," which Collins felt was an inappropriate comment. She then explained who she was. Collins confirmed the prior witnesses' testimony about McCullough's comments about putting his livelihood in jeopardy, his home, car, wife and children and > basically he stated that a man under those conditions could do basically anything and Mr. Sanchez, at that point, did lean forward and say "Are you referring to -- you're saying you - - you would kill us," and Mr. McCullough's response, to the best of my recollection was that, "a man can do anything under these conditions."

> [Transcript of Hearing of February 20, 2004, page 14.]

Collins was taken aback by these comments. The meeting continued for a "little beyond that," and as he recalled, Ms. Harris was the one who said that she did not feel that the meeting could continue under these conditions and said that the meeting should be terminated. When McCullough asked if he was not to report to work the next day, Collins told him he needed to report tomorrow and get back to your job. After the meeting had ended, Sanchez and Cooper expressed that they felt threatened by McCullough's comments. Sanchez was upset that Collins was allowing McCullough back in the building in view of what Sanchez believed was a threat to his life. The police were called and a statement was given.

The witness described McCullough's speech and character at the January 29th meeting as "very consistent" with his observations of McCullough on prior occasions. He was loud and dominating, he > controlled the conversation, he didn't - - it wasn't a conversation. It was a one speech thing for Mr. McCullough. He just kept on going until I asked him to please sit down so we could have the meeting. He was still standing up, shouting at Mrs. - - Ms. Janette Harris about who was she, what right she had to be here and she didn't know him and . . .. He stood there and he - - he was expounding and he hollered and screamed, so was he consistent? Yes.

> I had seen him do things of this nature - - not just hollering and screaming, but speaking loud and controlling conversations as his demeanor, is the word I would use. . . . Some people feel intimidated, you know, and they do, I guess. I don't know, but that's the way he conducts his conversations.
> [Transcript of hearing of February 20, 2004, pages 27 & 28.]

In response to cross-examination, Mr. Collins described the respondent's body language as "of a threatening tone. He was walking back and forth, he was moving around, and he never sat down. All three people were sitting down calm and collected. He was moving around pacing, carrying his coat on his arm and his hat in his arm." He came within eighteen to twenty-four inches of Harris when he walked into the room.

Asked to assess the situation at and following the meeting, Mr. Collins explained that he was not afraid that McCullough was going to kill someone. Asked if the comments were "hyperbole," he responded,

> I wouldn't dismiss it like in that statement. I wouldn't say that he was going to kill somebody. Was he upset where he potentially might have done something to somebody, I don't feel confident he might have done that, but I felt that over a period of time that Ralph would - - my words - - regain himself and go do his job like I wanted him to do and I gave Ralph that opportunity, but Ralph, through his explosive attitude and his voice and everything else, that -- I guess that wasn't possible.

The last witness for the Board was James Lester Hewitt, M.D. Dr. Hewitt has been licensed to practice medicine in New Jersey since 1977. Dr. Hewitt testified as an expert in psychiatry. He conducts a private practice in which about one-third of his patients are adults. Dr. Hewitt examined Mr. McCullough on June 12, 2003, and rendered a report to the Board of Education. In preparation for that examination, Dr. Hewitt "briefly" reviewed some records, but he "wanted to remain as objective and neutral" as he could, "so my thorough evaluation of the records took place after the visit." Among the materials he reviewed was information from school employees that dealt with a tenure charge against Mr. McCullough that had been the subject of a previous administrative hearing, as well as information from Mr. McCullough's attorney in that matter in which there was a denial of those charges. He also reviewed either the initial decision of the administrative law judge in the prior matter and/or the Commissioner of Education's final decision in that matter. Additional information related to the current charges. Dr. Hewitt explained that this material > provided an ability to see detailed information about Mr. McCullough from other people's perspective. If an individual is alleging harassment, or having to work in a hostile work environment it's important to have information about that environment in order to come to some psychiatric conclusion about the individual in terms of perceived unfriendliness of others, versus paranoid delusional thinking, versus an accurate reflection of a hostile work environment.

The witness testified that there was an "apparent pattern of mental instability" related to Mr. McCullough's work history. He cited apparent threats and verbal intimidation of others, more specifically with a payroll clerk that he made feel uncomfortable and unsafe, confrontations with a principal suggestive of difficulties in accepting the hierarchical structure within the school, an inability to accept direction and criticism and an inability to "accept that someone else's point of view is the relevant issue at a moment, not the subordinate's point of view or priorities of what should be done and not done." He seemed to have an egocentric view of the world. He saw a pattern of using confrontation and intimidation in response to criticism.

Dr. Hewitt specifically noted as information he utilized in formulating his conclusion of mental instability, pattern of confrontation, difficulty with authority and egocentricity, a handwritten note from a Mrs. Blank, dated June 17, 1998, regarding an allegation that she left work early out of fears because McCullough left areas unlocked and a stranger had on one occasion walked into the building and startled her. Hewitt explained that he used this document to understand Mrs. Blank's perceptions of McCullough, which he agreed could be objective or subjective, accurate or inaccurate. He acknowledged that he had no independent way of knowing truth and that he had evidence that the judge in the prior tenure hearing "did not consider it truthful or objective. . . credible." Hewitt also considered Mr. McCullough's complaint that the head janitor, Mr. Hatcher, was spying on him.

The interview with Mr. McCullough lasted for about one hour. During that time, Mr. McCullough told Hewitt much about his past life up until 1988, his significant drug and alcohol use and his exploitation of others, "making his way in the world as best he could," hopes of a career as an entertainer, "and in some ways not getting serious about life and falling into a life-style typical of people who are abusing hard drugs." He also spoke of alienating everyone who cared about him and then "reconnecting to his religious faith and that that enabled him to move forward in his life."

Referring to his discussions with McCullough regarding the respondent's work experiences with the Board, Dr. Hewitt referred to "statements which I found difficult to verify and difficult to follow up with him objectively, such as what I quote in my report, "We just don't like you, Ralph." McCullough saw himself as either the only, or one of a very few people conscientious about his job, and feeling that others were blaming him for the shortcomings of his supervisor. Without being in a position to evaluate his work performance, Hewitt posited that while it was possible that McCullough could be the only conscientious employee and that he is being persecuted for this, such a scenario was not plausible. "That was Mr. McCullough's point of view, and when I tried to gather more information to see if he was in fact correct he just made more general statements with raise of the volume of his voice, and repeating self as if doing so would convince me, but it did not."

The doctor tried to discuss the apparently threatening remarks with McCullough, but this was "difficult." He did seem capable of understanding that he might have intended something that might have been conceived differently. Hewitt found him to be very precise in the use of language, thus Hewitt ruled out the possibility that he made a statement "using inexact language in a way that was an honest mistake." He asked McCullough about his treatment with Dr. Richard Cohen. He could not determine from McCullough whether he had taken medicine or whether Dr. Cohen had ordered medicine. Dr. Hewitt commented upon Dr. Cohen's report of February 21, 2003, which stated that the doctor had prescribed Paxil, an antidepressant. McCullough also told Hewitt that he had paranoid schizophrenia in the past, which if he did have it is not something that can be cured. The doctor could not be sure whether McCullough was referring to this accurately, as given his past drug use, it might be that what he really had was an episode of paranoid psychosis in response to cocaine abuse.

In his discussions with McCullough about work, the witness observed that the respondent > seemed unable to accept - - he could intellectually understand, but he could not emotionally accept and deal with the fact that demands could be made of him that he felt were unfair, or possibly based on malevolent attempt, that is an attempt to document so he could be fired.

As for the January 29th meeting and the remarks allegedly made there by McCullough, Hewitt saw signs > that the themes that I identified earlier, . . . ,egocentricity, emotional instability, the use of verbal intimidation, the inability to listen and to accept that someone else's point of view though different is the relevant issue, not right or wrong, but if a boss asks you to do something it's then your job duty, . . . So I felt that Mr. McCullough was unable to accept that he was not the center of the universe. He was not the person who would say what was going to be done, that the issue of a check list was something his supervisor had implemented to determine whether Mr. McCullough was doing his work or not in order to objectively assess whether he was doing his job or not. . . . but I could tell from the proceedings, that is those three things, that Mr. McCullough was showing evidence of a significant mixed personality disorder highlighted by affective instability, grandiosity, egocentricity, non-dilutional (sic) paranoia, that is an excessive suspiciousness of others, and that there was a potential for dangerousness to others in terms of if he is held accountable or he does not like what is demanded of him he might resort to physical aggression towards others.

The doctor was not aware of any form of physical aggression having been performed at work, but this did not minimize his concerns. The absence of such physical violence in the workplace is "encouraging, but the persistent use of either direct or implied threats. . . What's going to happen if he doesn't get his way? That concerns me. His verbal intimidation always led to having things his way, so there was not need for any more than that." Transcript of Hearing of January 7, 2004, pages 170-171.

Dr. Hewitt defended his ability to reach his conclusions based upon a one hour interview and review of records. He thought that in most instances repeated interviews were the exception in forensic psychiatric work. His conclusions concerning dangerousness were not based upon any specific textbook or article, but on many years > of reviewing articles, and working with school districts in terms of say dealing with bullying behavior, safety in the school system, working with employees of school system where there's a problem with getting along with other workers, arguments, threats, pushing students, excessive force in restraining a violent student, so all those things have led to my - - providing the foundation for my impressions.

In this case, Dr. Hewitt's conclusion to a reasonable degree of medical certainty was that he "did not think that it would be safe for him to return to his former duties." A mixed personality disorder does not come within the terms of specific types of personality disorders. McCullough could not control his emotions or accept frustration or understand priorities in a social context, had an inability to control feelings of grandiosity and a tendency to blame others rather than to accept responsibility. While the diagnosis does not in itself pose a threat to the safety of others, the inability to accept directions and see boundaries in terms of limits of how he should act in a work setting were significant factors in the concern about safety.

> I have questions about whether Mr. McCullough would understand the limits of what he should be doing when he as a custodian sees unruly behavior in students, whether it's fighting, vandalism, being out of class when they should be in class.
> . . .
> I think that if he is held accountable and made to do what is assigned to him I have concerns and I think there's a reasonable > chance he would resort to verbal intimidation, and he by his own admission has said people can under those circumstances, and I take that as a valid reference to himself, take action on those feelings and kill other people.

> Transcript of Hearing of January 7, 2004, pages 180 & 181.]

On cross-examination, the doctor identified the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual-IV (DSM-IV) and his psychoanalytic training as the guides for determining personality disorders. Dr Hewitt did not speak to any "informants" in regard to Mr. McCullough. He did not request any information from Dr. Cohen, although he did see a two-page report prepared by that physician.

Counsel for Mr. McCullough questioned the doctor as to his use of information regarding the perceptions of persons involved in the first tenure charge against Mr. McCullough. He considered the perceptions of these people even if the charges were not sustained and even though the information was rejected in the judge's decision. He considered it to be the ordinary practice of psychiatrists in New Jersey to use unsubstantiated or rejected allegations as part of the basis for making a diagnosis. He explained,

> To me, by definition, from a psychiatrist, the idea of gathering information from informants is inherently subjective. One has to be open to the idea that there could be lies, misstatements, distortions, narrow perceptions which distort the overall picture. That's what informants are. . . .

In response to a question from the then trial judge about how he considered the packet of materials provided to him by the Board, Hewitt added that while he did not take the information as "fact," or the statements of others as "truthful documents," and he recognized the "inherently subjective" nature of the material and that it is "typically biased against the employee," he was looking for > Pattern recognition, consistency among different perspectives, different descriptions at different points in time and then comparing that to what I see, what the patient tells me, what I discover and how he advocates for himself and what I discover through my indirect questioning.

Antecedents of a personality disorder pre-exist the age of eighteen years, by which age it becomes technically appropriate to diagnose a personality disorder. He agreed that it is "often necessary to conduct more than one interview and space these over time," to properly diagnose such a disorder, but that same statement (read to him for approval by Mr. McCullough's attorney) acknowledges that a single interview is "sometimes sufficient for making the diagnosis." In making his diagnosis, Dr. Hewitt assumed that from the information he obtained from Mr. McCullough that Dr. Cohen was making a diagnosis related to symptoms of depression and anxiety, but he did not have Cohen's formal diagnosis until later. In fact, Dr. Cohen diagnosed a Major Depressive Disorder First Episode and Anxiety Disorder. Dr. Hewitt acknowledged that a clinician had to exercise caution in diagnosing personality disorders "during an episode of mood disorder and/or an anxiety disorder" because these could make it "more difficult to evaluate retrospectively the individual's long-term patterns of functioning." He agreed that if the "episode" was "acute" then more account had to be given to it, if, however, the problem was "chronic" then less of an account need be paid to it.

Dr. Hewitt did not speak to anyone else about Mr. McCullough, such as family members or his wife, did not obtain any medical records relating to his adolescent years or any school records. The information regarding McCullough's adolescent years up through age twenty-five was obtained from his discussion with McCullough on that subject, which lasted from five to fifteen minutes. There was no second interview. Dr. Hewitt confirmed that other than what he obtained in this conversation he had no other information that he relied upon that led him to conclude that McCullough had a personality disorder-not otherwise specified. To make an assessment of personality disorder one must "put the person's personality in the context of their culture, where they came from." McCullough was born in Griffin, Georgia. Dr. Hewitt grew up near there. There area was segregated in 1959 when Mr. McCullough was born. McCullough left this "still . . . very racist society" in 1972. The doctor took these factors into account in his assessment.

> I asked a general question about what life was like there. I have no recall that he addressed the issue of racism or how buffered he might have been from racism by the fact that there was so much segregation that up to a certain age, you could be kind of in a > bubble. It might not be a very nice bubble, but it would insulate you . . . and you run up against the boundaries. That's what destroys people and can sometimes lead to defensive grandiosity or excessive paranoia. So, that the culture and the issue of racism was taken into account when I evaluated Mr. McCullough's grandiose statements and statements of paranoid feelings about how he was treated. So, I felt that it was important to give him the benefit of being in that environment before I jumped to any conclusions about what on the surface sounded like grandiosity and paranoia.

One with a personality disorder, which typically has an early onset, > is rigid and not adaptive to new circumstances, the fact that it causes problems. It leads to taking a bad situation and making it worse, being less flexible, being limited in terms of being able to see a situation from multiple perspectives or being able to adapt based on new information.

Dr. Hewitt agreed that to the extent that he relied upon any information from "informants" such as district employees whose information was supplied to him and was gathered in regard to the first tenure charge, he probably only reviewed this information after he had interviewed McCullough. Thus, McCullough did not have any opportunity to respond to him regarding any of the information contained in those writings. He never took any steps to determine the veracity of these people's perceptions or of the writings they produced, but insisted that this is an accepted practice among psychiatrists.

Queried about his expressed concern that McCullough's return to school could pose a threat to the safety of students, Dr. Hewitt remarked that he had concerns that the sort of dispute as occurred between Mr. Ramsey and Mr. McCullough "could easily take place between Mr. McCullough and a student who would not have the self control of the principal, and it might provoke a reaction in Mr. McCullough that would be harmful to students, people involved." However, he had no evidence that McCullough had ever threatened or touched any employee of the district. He agreed that McCullough had a "strong voice, he comes across strong, positive, with a certain conviction in things that he says, no timidity in his voice." This could come across to others as threatening or intimidating. However, he also thought that at the worksite, where people "would understand him better and would be more familiar with people talking loudly, . . . he would be less likely to be misperceived in that environment than if he were to be in an environment where there weren't other men of color talking loudly."

If Dr. Hewitt were treating Mr. McCullough, he would have made an effort to contact other persons about McCullough. But as an independent medical examiner, he did not do so. But when asked to compare his report with that of Dr. Cohen, he contended that he had more information from McCullough "that's not reported here that would lend credence to the idea of a personality disorder, referring specifically to "statements from other sources, other informants that made me aware of the role of a personality disorder. I interpreted Mr. McCullough's mode of restlessness and irritability as not being in response to something internal but more just anger at things not going his way. Whereas, Dr. Cohn (sic) was sort of seeing it as an internal problem." When Hewitt saw McCullough, he was not depressed or anxious. He did not see him as having Internal Anxiety Disorder, but instead "more of a response to external events."

In his report, Dr. Hewitt referred to a letter faxed on May 9, 2002, "to all staff of the Board." The letter caused Hewitt to be concerned about McCullough's "stability, ability to properly edit his comments and behavior in the work setting." It made him consider the issue of safety. He assumed that this letter had been sent from the McCullough's. More specifically, he was concerned by such language as

> "What each of you contributed, I pray that God will pay you back 100 fold, pressed down, shaken up, and running over." Sounds like a threat underneath there, because I really don't think that he's thanking people for mistreating him or doing what he thinks - - or doing him wrong in his perception. So, it that's sarcastic, then, that implies that this paragraph is a threat, and so it has the same style of other alleged remarks that Mr. McCullough has made. It's consistent with the diagnosis that I have made. It's consistent with statements that Mr. McCullough has made about the role of faith in this life and his role as a minister and his views about God. So, it all hangs together.

The fact that there was no evidence that McCullough had ever attempted to carry out any threats was taken into account, but Hewitt noted that this did not change his concerns about safety, as there had been several tragic episodes of workplace violence where the perpetrator had no history of physical threats to others. "So, the absence of physical threats doesn't change - - it doesn't erase the dangers. Certainly, the presence of those things would heighten the danger." As for his concerns about the possible danger to students, again the lack of even verbal threats to students did not lessen his concern, as he believed that due to the student's lack of maturity and McCullough's vulnerabilities, incidents involving them were more likely to escalate. Given his perceptions and rigidities, the potential mix involving students was "even more risky than with adults." Dr. Hewitt further explained that while, in contrast to Dr. Cohen, he did not find McCullough to be depressed or anxious when he saw him, he did not believe that McCullough could return to work due to considerations of "safety." He was "emphasizing the potential for bad to happen; not something existing at that time," whereas he saw Dr. Cohen as having recommended that McCullough stay out of work due to his findings of depression and anxiety.

Respondent's Witnesses

The respondent's expert in psychiatry was Richard W. Cohen, M.D., Dr. Cohen is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and received his medical degree from Temple University. He is Board Certified in psychiatry and has been in private practice since 1981. He currently serves as an expert witness in Social Security disability and SSI hearings.

Dr. Cohen treated Mr. McCullough two years prior to the hearing. He "guesses" he saw him twenty times. His diagnosis was that his patient had a Major Depressive Disorder with neurovegetative signs of depression and an Anxiety Disorder. His drug dependency was then in full remission. He had trouble sleeping, problems with energy, concentration, and blunted affect, all of which are signs of depression. In addition he had a lot of anxiety and motor restlessness. He was withdrawn, secluded and irritable. His anxiety was causing him to have chest pains. In his professional opinion at the time, he told Mr. McCullough that he needed to take a couple of weeks off from work. However, he wanted McCullough to "eventually" return to work. To a reasonable degree of psychiatric certainty, Dr. Cohen did not see McCullough as a danger to himself or to others. Cohen did not see the patient as psychotic nor did he believe that he had any organic problem. Indeed, if Mr. McCullough stayed out of work for too long a period, his symptoms could exacerbate. But he did need "some time off to get better."

Dr. Cohen had reviewed Dr. Hewitt's report. While he agreed with the diagnosis of "poly substance abuse in apparent remission," he disagreed with Hewitt's diagnosis of "mixed personality disorder." A definition of a personality disorder is "very difficult. You never say never and you never say always in medicine. But it takes longer than a one time evaluation to make that diagnosis." However, he conceded that on some occasions he himself had made such a diagnosis based upon one visit. Nevertheless, he noted that a "personality disorder is a long-standing maladaptive way of dealing with the world, where the person is egocentric [comfortable with the symptoms] to their symptomolgy." But Mr. McCullough was "egodistonic [uncomfortable with the symptoms], and therefore, that would go against the diagnosis of personality disorder."

> This doctor is not giving him an Axis One diagnosis and is just putting down an Axis Two diagnosis, which is very difficult. If he knew him over a five to ten session evaluation period of time, then, I would - - I would think to myself well, maybe there is that there. But to make that diagnosis on a one short [sic] deal is very difficult, and I think most psychiatrists would tell you that also. [Transcript of Hearing of June 27, 2005, page 17.]

Dr. Hewitt "neglected the neurovegitative signs of depression and anxiety." To have a diagnosis of Mixed Personality Disorder, "you need a longitudinal maladaptive way of dealing with the world."

Dr. Cohen, who could not locate his chart for Mr. McCullough, has not seen the respondent for two years. He does not recall if McCullough was released by him from care or simply stopped coming. He does not recall whether he saw any documents from McCullough or what the "ongoing fight with the Trenton school board," which he refers to in his report, meant, nor can he recall what his reference to "anti-social behavior" referred to. He would not have read the decision in Mr. McCullough's previous tenure hearing, as he will "read medical records. I don't read legal documents." McCullough appeared to be a "good historian," supplying a good history of what had been going on. A psychiatrist does not usually review statements that describe "certain events Mr. McCullough was involved in." Cohen was "just trying to help him through a depression and anxiety and make him feel better."

The witness did not think that Mr. McCullough had a "thought disorder." He did not feel that McCullough was paranoid, a condition that he can usually detect. He did not exhibit such "thought disorder," any related symptoms such as "hallucinations, delusions, ideas of reference." This is why Dr. Cohen did not feel that he had a personality disorder, such as schizophrenia.

Dr. Cohen was unaware of the allegations that McCullough had been accused of threatening co-workers. If he had known of these allegations, he would have had to see the statements and speak to McCullough. After such a conversation he would use his clinical judgment as to the impact of these allegations.

The witness had no idea whether the problems that he saw affecting the respondent in February 2003 were resolved as of the time of the hearing.

Ralph McCullough testified concerning his background, which saw him quitting school, living on the streets, drinking and taking drugs. However, he eventually obtained his GED degree, became employed, obtained a Boiler license and is an ordained minister. He is in the process of obtaining a building and grounds certification from Rutgers.

Mr. McCullough explained that he saw Dr. Hewitt for approximately fifteen to twenty minutes. He was not asked about any documents or about any incidents described in any documents. He recounted his version of an incident involving Mr. Ramsey, the principal at Trenton High School, which was a subject of the prior tenure case. He disputed that he had become irate; instead, it was Ramsey who had done so. Hewitt never asked him about this incident.

Referring to the current set of charges, McCullough recounted that he had requested Mr. Collins to have a meeting in January 2003. He felt that Mr. Cooper had lied about him and his job performance and had concluded that Cooper was "trying to build a case." Mr. Cooper never gave him a list of duties, as McCullough had understood he was to receive. As a result of this incident, McCullough wrote up a list of duties. When he presented his own list to Cooper, Cooper told him to "Throw that away. I don't want that one. I'll type my own." When Cooper did give him a list, it contained not only all of the work that McCullough performed, but also all that Cooper was responsible for. In response to this, he told Cooper that the school was so small, "You know what? Put it all on one. I'll do all the work." Cooper kept telling him that "the people upstairs," were complaining that their rooms were not clean. This reference meant Mrs. Rodriquez and other teachers, who, when McCullough asked them about such complaints, told him that they had been complaining about Cooper and had no complaints about the way McCullough cleaned. McCullough told Mr. Sanchez, the interim principal at St. Stanislaus, about his problem with Cooper, but he felt that Sanchez was brushing him off. Two days later, McCullough asked for a meeting, which was held in the basement. Sanchez, Cooper and McCullough were present. Sanchez smiled and said, "B.J. does what he wants at the school." Hearing this, McCullough left and drove to the Building and Grounds office and left a note for Mr. Collins, who was not in. He explained in the note that he was having a problem at the school. He waited a long time and when Collins did not appear, he told the secretary that his blood pressure was up and he was taking a half sick day. The next day, Collins called him. He told McCullough that there would be a meeting at the school where McCullough worked. However, he received a call telling him that the meeting would instead be held at the Daylight/Twilight school at Belleview. When he arrived for the meeting, he noted the presence of a lady and queried who she was, as the problem was only between him and Sanchez and Cooper. He wanted to know who this person was because he felt that the meeting would be discussing "personal information." In response to his question, "they said, 'Mr. McCullough, just sit down.' " He also questioned where his union representative was. He then added, "You know what? Let's just have the meeting, because if the meeting's going to go right, we can just end this stuff right now, and I just go on back to work." The others appeared to ignore his question as to where his union representative was. After he was asked what his problem was, "they turned the meeting around as if they had called the meeting, and I was in the wrong." "I said, 'Hold it. Hold it. I called this meeting. Can I say what problems I' - - they wasn't letting me - - so, I said, 'Look. I'm going to leave. I'm leaving, because I see this meeting is being turned around as if you're all bringing me here to reprimand me.' And they were a bit angered at me knowing what I'm doing."

McCullough continued describing what happened at the meeting. After Ms. Harris asked why they were meeting, McCullough said,

> "If I do my job, why are we here? I called this meeting, because I have to go back to a school where my supervisor is going to hang [sic] on me. I can't go back there. I just came out of tenure hearing for three years, lost my job, family. I almost lost my house. I almost lost my car. Went through great mental emotional stress." And I told her -- I told -- I said, "Look. They fired a guy named Robert Tarber (phonetic)." He said, "Ralph, let's go over Mr. Richardson's house. I going to over there and kick his door in," and I begged him not to do it. This guy used to be a football player.
> And by me being of a righteous man, I talked him out of it, and I was telling him "you cannot mess with a man's livelihood, hiring incompetent supervisors over people who have never had any prior supervision experience." That's what they're doing. "And people's livelihood, someone could get hurt." And I don't know how it - - where "killing" came in at. And they were, "What are you saying, Mr. McCullough?" I might have said, "Well, people can get - - can get killed or hurt on these jobs. You see it everyday, people coming into companies with guns. You're creating an unsafe working environment here, a hazardous work environment here. Because you see fights, the head custodian given favoritism over different custodians . . ." I told them, "This stuff could cause somebody to get hurt." I never threatened any - - and they said, "Are you saying you're going to kill us?" Mr. Sanchez jumped up. "He says he's going to kill us. Are you going to kill us?" I said, "No, I'm not going to kill you." I said, "No, I didn't say that." "Yes you did." And they said, "Mr. Sanchez would you please sit down. The man didn't say he was going to kill us. . ."

> I said, "Mr. Sanchez, I did not say I was going to kill anybody, but if that's what you want to think in yourself, you can think that." The meeting proceeded, and I said goodbye to everybody, "Have a nice day," and I walked out. And Mrs. Gibson said, "Mr. McCullough, we will be calling you, giving you a date when you can come back to work."
> [Transcript of hearing of April 4, 2005, pages 63-67]

Mr. McCullough did not stand up or touch anyone at the meeting. He never exhibited a weapon of any sort. He never threatened any of the participants during the meeting, which he estimated lasted for between forty-five to sixty minutes. He believes that when he left the meeting he shook hands with Mrs. Harris and possibly with Mr. Collins. He has never assaulted any personnel since he has been employed with the district. He never was accused of any incidents involving students and there were none. He conceded that he might have been "politely rude" to Mrs. Harris. He believed that the other participants in the meeting "felt I was being rude, because I wasn't allowing them to take control of the meeting that I had requested." He was not shouting, was not loud or

> "abruptive." I was just showing my concern that we needed to address the issue in which I called this meeting for, and I felt that the meeting was steering towards making me the reason for the meeting . . . and I was just trying to take back control of the meeting to get to the point at hand, which was I had been lied on by my supervisor.

In response to questions from the Board's attorney, Mr. McCullough contended that he entered the meeting on the 29th with "proof" that Cooper and Sanchez "had lied on me." However, he disputed that he remarked that if "someone would harass someone on the job, then, that could lead to somebody killing somebody." He explained,

> I wasn't concerned about them hurting me, because they can't hurt me. I was concerned that they would - - I have control over myself. I have temperaments. I'm a praying man. But there's people there that come from the streets who are uneducated, angry, and I was afraid of somebody just flying off the rockers. There's children there. That's a dangerous situation. . . . I told him [Sanchez] "I wasn't going to kill anybody." I said, "But somebody could get killed. Because when you're bothering people, and you've got insufficient supervisors here, you're causing that person problems, but you don't see that person's family, that person's car, that person's house, that person's children's lunch money." I explained it in such a nice manner, and I don't have a college degree. I have a GED.

Mr. McCullough agreed that during the meeting he did mention what kind of car he drove and what kind of house he had, as well as that he had a family. He was questioned about whether he had said that under stressful circumstances he might kill someone.

> No, I told him - - he asked me, "Are you saying you're going to kill us?" And I said, "No, I'm not going to kill you." He said, "Are you saying that you could kill someone?" And I had to answer questions according to the Bible that I live by. The Bible says that the heart of every man is wicked and evil and who can trust it. And I said, "Yes, I'm capable," . . . .

Asked if he had related this comment to the others by referring to the Bible as he had in this testimony, he said, "Basically, Mr. - - Your Honor, I told them, 'Listen, I'm a minister, so I have to base my answers off the Bible." He claimed that when he related this, the others said, "Mmmm, that's true."

Mr. McCullough conceded that he was the author of a letter faxed to the Board dated May 9, 2002. He claimed that it was being perceived incorrectly.

The Prior Disciplinary Action

Because the Board's tenure charge referred to Mr. McCullough's "history of disruptive behavior with school district staff" it is necessary to review that history. Mr. McCullough was the target of tenure charges filed by the Board in December 1999. Hearings were held before Honorable Joseph F. Martone, ALJ. In an initial decision issued on July 22, 2002, Judge Martone determined that Mr. McCullough was guilty of insubordination and unbecoming conduct which could "adversely affect the moral and efficiency of the school in which the employee is a part and has a tendency to disrupt public respect for school employees and public confidence in the operation of the schools." This determination arose regarding an incident occurring on October 21, 1998, in which Judge Martone found that the Trenton High School building principal, Mr. Ramsey, had observed McCullough talking to a secretary and questioned him as to whether he was working or on a lunch break. He responded "neither," which response the Judge found "not an appropriate response." Ramsey left and was speaking privately with an assistant principal in the hall when McCullough approached and "rudely interrupted their conversation by stating in a loud and abusive manner that he serves only one master, the Coordinator of Custodians, and not Mr. Ramsey." When Ramsey pointed out as the principal, he was in charge of the building, McCullough "kept insisting that only Mr. Richardson was his boss." Judge Martone found that a ninety-day suspension was warranted. He also dismissed other charges pending against McCullough. The Commissioner of Education sustained Judge Martone's finding that a tenurable offense had occurred, but the Commissioner limited the penalty to forfeiture of the 120-days pay that had already been withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. The State Board of Education affirmed the Commissioner's Final Decision.

Discussion

In determining exactly what happened at the meeting on January 29, 2003, it is interesting to note that there are certain basic elements of the conversations held that day that are common to each version of the events related by the five participants. While there is no doubt a dispute between the four Board witnesses and Mr. McCullough regarding the exact words and phrasing, at the core of the five versions are the words and phrases that involved the topics of stress, killing, and the ability or the capacity to kill. Thus, Mr. Cooper says McCullough said, "[u]nder stress, you know, I –well, under the stress that I'm under I'm - - I can kill somebody, I can kill you." Mr. Sanchez says that when McCullough spoke of how "you can get killed playing with a man's car and his house," Sanchez asked if he meant that he "would kill us." McCullough responded, "Yeah, under the stress I'm in, yeah, that's what I do." Mrs. Harris says McCullough spoke about that his life was being messed with and when Sanchez asked if he was saying "you will kill someone," McCullough replied that under stressful circumstances he could. Mr. Collins recalled that McCullough, "basically . . . stated that a man under those conditions could do basically anything" and then responded to Sanchez's query as to whether he was saying that "you would kill us," "a man can do anything under these conditions." Finally, Mr. McCullough himself testified that while he did not tell Sanchez that he was going to kill anybody, he did refer to how "somebody could get killed," and that when Sanchez asked if he was "saying you're going to kill us," he denied that he was, but added that he did acknowledge that he was "capable."

Thus, there is a basic undisputed core of commonality to each version which confirms that during this meeting the four Board witnesses were in fact meeting with a man who, even by his own admission, did state that he was capable of killing under the weight and stress of events. While it must be emphasized that this conclusion does not mean that he meant what he said, or that he is in fact capable of killing, it nevertheless means that the four Board witnesses did not invent the story of McCullough speaking of killing under stress out of whole cloth. There is a basic truth to their testimony as to what was discussed, even though Mr. McCullough's version differs to some extent as to the exact sentences spoken and even though in his testimony he speaks of the conversation as more of a hypothetical about "others" who might be more prone than he to react violently to stress and harassment. In the end, he agrees that he did tell the other participants that in such a stressful circumstance he was capable of killing, and in the end, what the four Board witnesses took from the meeting as to what they felt McCullough was conveying to them is more significant than what the exact sentences or phrases spoken were or even what Mr. McCullough may have in all honesty thought that he was saying or intending to convey to his listeners. Even if McCullough had no intention that his words convey any threat to his listeners, even if he spoke in hypotheticals and about "others," the tone and context, the message the listeners "heard" as either a direct or implicit threat, was more important than what he actually intended. If reasonable people would be concerned and threatened, made uneasy and worried by what he said, then there is cause to be troubled that he said it in the first place, regardless of his own intentions. And while in the course of grievance presentation or negotiations, or even simply discussions between employees and supervisors that might not reach a level of legal status to qualify as either of these more "formal" contexts, sometime strong words and emotions can come out, threats of physical violence and harm are not simply "strong" or even "offensive" words. And while counsel for the respondent cites First Amendment cases in support of his contention that McCullough's statements are protected by that Constitutional right, he fails to discuss the case law that makes clear that the rights of government employees to speak in the employment setting may in some instances be subject to limitations that would certainly not be permissible in the non-governmental employment realm.

> To be protected, the speech must be on a matter of public concern, and the employee's interest in expressing herself on this matter must not be outweighed by any injury the speech could cause to "'the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees.'" Connick, supra, 461 U.S. at 142 Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 103 S.Ct. 1684, 75 *L.Ed.*2d 708 (1983)(quoting Pickering v. Board of Ed. of Township High School Dist. 205, Will Cty., 391 U.S. 563, 568, 88 S. Ct. 1731, 20 L. Ed. 2d 811 (1968)). [Waters v. Churchill, 511 U.S. 661, 671 (1994) (O'Connor, J., plurality opinion)]

The New Jersey Supreme Court spoke about the "state interests" that might support an employer's limitation of employee speech. In Hall v. Mayor & Director of Public Safety, 176 N.J. Super. 229 (App. Div. 1980), the Court said, "certain legitimate state interests may limit a public employee's First Amendment right of speech. Some of these interests are: (1) the need to maintain discipline or harmony among co-workers; (2) the need for confidentiality; (3) the need to limit conduct which impedes the public employee's proper and competent performance of his duties, and (4) the need to encourage close and personal relationships between employees and their superiors."

Here, in a context that did not involve matters of public concern, Mr. McCullough spoke words and addressed topics that caused apprehension severe enough in these supervisory employees that when the meeting ended the police were called. That the police told them that no police response was appropriate does not lessen the fact that surely when they emerged from the meeting, the Board witnesses were shaken by what they heard and what they felt was either directly stated or implied by the respondent, a fellow employee and a subordinate. And while Mr. McCullough presents his version as having involved references and concerns about the possible reaction of others less in control of themselves than he, I am persuaded by the circumstances, by his own testimony, by his reaction to what he perceived was being done to him, by his belief that Cooper was lying, that he did not simply suggest or mean to convey that other hypothetical employees might react violently but that his listeners should know that he would not, but that he did intend to at least plant the seed of doubt, worry, concern and distress in these supervisors. This finding as to the credibility of the respondent is based upon my hearing him testify, but also on the overall circumstances of the events surrounding the meeting and of Mr. McCullough's clear intent to dominate the meeting, which he, by his own admission, saw as happening at his request and which he clearly did not intend to let anyone else control and his quite apparent and immediate reaction to the presence of Mrs. Harris, which set him off at the very start of the meeting, as he was clearly upset and disturbed by her appearance at the session.

I FIND that Mr. McCullough was rude and abusive to the attendees at the January 29th meeting. He stated that under the stresses that he was complaining of, he could kill. Such a statement made to his supervisors was in itself abusive. It is true that Mr. Sanchez appears to have been the first to directly address the question of whether McCullough was saying that he could kill under the circumstances he was claiming were affecting him, but Mr. McCullough did make it clear enough that he was affirming that he was capable of such action so as to put the listeners in reasonable distress. That they did not flee the room in terror, that the meeting continued, does not mean that they were not abused and stressed by this unnecessary and provocative statement that the respondent was capable of resorting to the most violent of acts. The fact of the call to the police shows that while they chose to try to finish the meeting they were sufficiently disturbed so as to need to refer the matter to the police.

I CONCLUDE that Mr. McCullough's conduct and language at the meeting was unbecoming for a public employee and was insubordinate, as it conveyed to supervisors at least the suggestion that if they did not do as he wanted he could respond not simply by saying no to a direction, but by violent action. Such conduct is without doubt disruptive and disharmonious, calculated to impose his views and his desires on others, and no employer should be required to tolerate such conduct.

In truth, I do not know whether Mr. McCullough is a threat to the lives or physical well-being of anyone. The psychiatrists who examined him have differing positions on this serious issue. Dr, Cohen, who treated him for some time two years and more before he testified, did not believe him to be a threat, but did agree that he had some emotional/ mental concerns, a major depressive disorder and anxiety. He is unsure whether the respondent ever completed his course of treatment and whether he ever discharged him. Dr. Hewitt, who saw McCullough one time, felt that even with this very limited base he could diagnose a personality disorder. He referred to an inability to accept the idea that others' views and directions in the workplace could be paramount to his own opinions and his paranoia and intimidation of others as elements that were of concern and indeed aspects of his mental instability. I must confess that based upon the record and my own observations of the respondent that I can understand much of what Dr. Hewitt expressed. The question of who is actually a threat, who may truly erupt in a violent way in the workplace, is no doubt a difficult one, maybe even impossible to determine in many cases. Here, Mr. McCullough's behavior at the meeting, coupled with his prior suspension for disruptive interaction in the workplace, where he was again rude and appeared unable to accept supervision, leads to the conclusion that his tenure should be terminated. As for his alleged dangerousness, the preponderance of the credible evidence offered by two competent experts, is such that I FIND the scale to weigh in favor of the concerns expressed by Dr. Hewitt, with the significant caveat that I do not suggest that Mr. McCullough is in fact a danger. While I am convinced that in a criminal proceeding, or one in which the higher civil standard of proof of clear and convincing evidence prevailed, the evidence would not suffice to meet the Board's burden on this issue, in this administrative action, where the normal civil standard of preponderance of the credible evidence applies, I FIND that there is enough in the record, enough in Mr. McCullough's documented history of conduct, including his conduct in this incident, to weigh the scale a little bit more toward Dr. Hewitt's view than to Dr. Cohen's. Despite the evidence that McCullough has not previously assaulted any employee of the Board, or for that matter any student, there is enough expert opinion here to support the Board's cautions. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the Board has established that Mr. McCullough represents a potential danger if he is returned to work, but I emphasize that while this ruling is itself a close one, even without a finding of dangerousness, for the reasons previously expressed, I CONCLUDE that tenure must be removed. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTVILLE, MORRIS COUNTY,

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

By petition dated April 21, 2005, petitioners appealed a November 17, 2004 determination by the respondent that C.V. and Ch. V. would not receive credit for the 2003-2004 school year because of non-compliance with the attendance policy of the Board. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss the petition based on untimeliness pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 (i).

The ALJ found that: letters to petitioners dated November 17, 2004 advising that their children would not be promoted constituted the notice of a final action that triggered the 90-day limitations period for filing appeals to the commissioner; the absence of petitioners' child advocate at the subsequent Board hearing concerning the children's retention did not toll the limitation of action prescribed by the ninety day rule; no basis exists to warrant relaxation or waiver of the ninety day rule, as petitioners failed to appropriately identify any substantial constitutional issue or one of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern to petitioners themselves, and failed to demonstrate that strict adherence to the ninety day rule would be inappropriate, unnecessary and result in injustice, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16. The ALJ thus concluded that petitioners' claim was not timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 (i); that the circumstances do not warrant relaxation of the ninety day rule; and that the respondent's motion to dismiss the petition should be granted.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision, adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter and dismisses the petition for untimeliness, emphasizing that the submission date was well in excess of the 90-day allowance for appeals and that the petitioners did not offer facts that would warrant relaxation of the "90-day rule."

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTVILLE, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Upon full and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioners' appeal was untimely, that there were no extraordinary circumstances that would allow relaxation of the 90-day limitation period in which appeals may be filed, and that the petition of appeal should, therefore, be dismissed.

Petitioners were notified on April 27, 2004 that C.V. and Ch.V. would be retained in their respective grades in high school because, in violation of the district's attendance policy, their absences far exceeded 10% of the total days that school was in session. (Exhibits A and D of respondent's motion to dismiss the petition.) The parties stipulated that the "parents and students were provided with notice of this policy." Included in the policy is the Board of Education's right to require verification of the reasons that are offered for student absences, and to investigate the causes of prolonged absences. (Exhibit G to respondent's motion to dismiss the petition.)

Petitioners took the matter to the district superintendent, Mary Louise Malyska, who ultimately, on November 3, 2004, notified them that they had not provided sufficient information to serve as a basis for reversing the determination of the high school principal that the children – as a result of their absences – did not qualify for promotion to the next grade. (Exhibit B to respondent's motion to dismiss the petition.) Malyska invited petitioners to meet with the Board of Education (Board) on November 16, 2004.

After considering the facts and analyses presented by the petitioners and the district superintendent at the November 16 meeting, the Board determined that the petitioners had not provided adequate support for exemptions from the district attendance policy. By letter dated November 17, 2004, the Board president notified petitioners of this decision. (Exhibits C and E of respondent's motion to dismiss the petition.)

Petitioners' appeal was dated April 21, 2005 and arrived in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on May 2, 2005 – over five months after the Board's action. This is well in excess of the 90-day allowance for appeals set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 (i). The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioners did not offer facts that would warrant relaxation of the "90-day rule."

The Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. For the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision, the petition is dismissed for untimeliness.

Before ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

Record Closed: November 23, 2005 Decided: January 6, 2006

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, W.V. and L.V. filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education dated April 21, 2005, on behalf of their minor children, C.V. and Ch. V., seeking an Order compelling the Respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Montville to restore the minor children to "their proper grade levels" and for other relief. This petition was in response to the determination by the Respondent that C.V. and Ch. V. would not receive credit for the 2003-2004 school year. The Respondent filed a motion to dismiss the petition in lieu of an answer, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A;3-1.5(g), on May 3, 2005. The basis for the motion was the timeliness of the petition, in accordance with the "ninety day rule". The Petitioner filed a letter memorandum in lieu of a more formal brief in opposition to the Respondent's motion on May 13, 2005. Thereafter, the Respondent filed a reply to the opposition by letter dated May 18, 2005.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 25, 2002 as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned on June 24, 2005, and a pre-hearing conference was held on July 12, 2005. The hearing scheduled for August 1, 2005 was adjourned to September 6, 2005, pending the outcome of the motion to dismiss. At the request of the parties, the September 6, 2005 hearing date was adjourned, due to the unavailability of witnesses. The hearing was rescheduled for September 26, 2005.

A conference was conducted on September 26, 2005, at which time the parties agreed that the only issue before the undersigned was whether the minor children C.V. & Ch. V. should have their credits for the 2003-2004 school year reinstated. In that regard, the parties agreed to submit joint stipulated facts as to facts not in dispute regarding the motion to dismiss the Petition under the ninety day rule. The parties further agreed to supplement the stipulated facts with certifications as to alleged facts still in dispute, in support of their respective positions. Stipulations of fact were received by the undersigned under cover of letter dated October 13, 2005. In addition, the petitioners submitted the certification of L.V. as to facts alleged to be in dispute. The respondent submitted a certification and supplemental certification from Jo Ann Lynch, Supervisor of Special Services, regarding the alleged facts in dispute. Thereafter, upon review of the record in the within matter, the record was closed on November 23, 2005.

ISSUE PRESENTED

The threshold issue in this motion to dismiss the Petition is whether petitioners claim was timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d).

STIPULATED FACTS

The parties submit the following Joint Stipulation of Facts, and for the purpose of the within motion to dismiss, I FIND:

1. C.V. and Ch. V. reside in the Township of Montville and are currently enrolled in the Montville Township School District.
2. C.V. currently is scheduled to attend Shepard High School in Morristown, New Jersey.
3. Ch. V. currently attends Montville Township High School.
4. W. V. and L.V. reside in the Township of Montville and are the natural parents of C.V. and Ch. V.
5. The Montville Township Board of Education is a public agency and instrumentality of the municipality, charged with the administration and operation of the Public School System in the Township of Montville.
6. The Attendance Policy of the Board of Education requires 90% attendance.
7. The parents and students were provided with notice of the Board's Attendance Policy.
8. The sole issue before the Honorable Court is whether C.V. and Ch. V. should have their credits for the 2003-2004 school year reinstated.
9. During the 2003-2004 school year, Ch. V. was classified as eligible for special education and related services based upon the category of Multiply Disabled.
10. Ch. V. received special education services during the 2003-2004 school year through Individualized Education Plans (IEPs), prepared on May 28, 2003 and May 26, 2004.
11. Neither IEP exempted Ch. V. from the District's attendance policies.
12. On April 27, 2004, W.V. and L.V. were notified by Dr. Steven Kramer, principal of the Montville Township High School, that Ch. V. lost credit for the 2003-2004 school year, for non-compliance with the Attendance Policy of the Board of Education, as he had been absent for 44 ½ days at that time.

13. During the 2003-2004 school year C.V. was not classified as eligible for special education and related services.
14. During the 2003-2004 school year, C.V. did not have a 504 Plan.
15. On April 27, 2004, W.V. and L.V. were notified by Dr. Kramer that C.V. lost credit for the 2003-2004 school year, for non-compliance with the Attendance Policy of the Board of Education, as he had been absent from school for 331/2 days at the time.
16. On September 17, 2004, after the beginning of the 2004-2005 school year, W.V. and L.V. asked Dr. Mary Louise Malyska, Superintendent of Schools in Montville Township, to overturn the decisions of Dr. Kramer and promote C.V. and Ch. V.
17. Dr. Malyska upheld the decisions of Dr. Kramer and denied the parents request for C.V. and Ch. V. to be promoted.
18. The parents obtained representation from Lynnette Joy Goodman, Parent/Child Advocate, to assist them with their sons' educations.
19. The parents requested a hearing with the Board of Education to challenge the determinations of Dr. Kramer and Dr. Malyska.
20. The President of the Board of Education invited the parents to a hearing to be held at the Executive Session of a meeting of the Board of Education on November 16, 2004 with their advocate, if they wanted the advocate to attend.
21. The parents made their appeal at the hearing with the Board of Education on November 16, 2004, without their advocate present.
22. By letter dated November 17, 2004, the Board denied the parents' appeal of the denial of credit for C.V. and Ch. V. for the 2003-2004 school year.

CERTIFICATIONS OF THE PARTIES

The parties submitted certifications related to alleged factual disputes regarding facts not stipulated by the parties. The following is a summary of the pertinent facts alleged to be in dispute.

Petitioners

L.V. certified that she and her husband, W.V. retained the services of Lynette Goodman to assist them in appealing the Board's determination to retain the minor child, C.V.[1] in his prior grade due to alleged excessive absences. Although one of the services that Ms. Goodman was to provide was to appear at the hearing of that matter before the Board, she was unable to attend on the scheduled date. L.V. maintains that she and her husband requested an adjournment of that hearing. According to L.V., the Board denied the request for adjournment and "pressured" them to go forward with the hearing without representation.

L.V. indicated that she and W.V. appeared before the Board with insufficient time and opportunity to present their case. L.V. also maintains they were not fully permitted to voice their concerns to the Board. They assert the Board summarily and without basis affirmed the decision to retain C.V. in his prior grade. L.V. asserts that the Board failed to treat them fairly in denying them proper representation at the hearing. The Board further failed to advise the petitioners that they were required to file an appeal from the Board decision within ninety days. L.V. stated that during the time period through February 18, 2005, they were not in communication with Ms. Goodman. They retained their present counsel approximately one month later. He immediately requested another hearing before the Board with Ms. Goodman there to testify. When the Board denied the request for another hearing, the petitioners filed the instant appeal.

Respondent

Jo Ann Lynch certified in pertinent part that the parents and their advocate were invited to attend a hearing during a meeting of the Board of Education on November 16, 2004. The parents arrived at the meeting without their parent advocate. Ms. Lynch asserts that the parents were specifically asked whether they wanted to proceed with the hearing without their representative. She further asserted in her certification that the parents wanted to continue with the hearing on that date. Although the Board denied the parents' appeal of the denial of credit for C.V. and Ch. V. for the 2003-2004 school year as confirmed in the letters to the petitioners dated November 17, 2004, the parents

[1] It is noted that the petitioners never asserted that the advocate was retained for any purpose related to the educational services provided to Ch. V. In light of the ultimate determination herein, this is not took no action to challenge that decision until they filed the instant appeal with the Commissioner on April 21, 2005.

By supplemental certification Ms. Lynch asserted that the petitioners were provided ample time to present their case to the Board on November 16, 2004. The parents were provided the basis for the Boards determination in the November 17, 2004 letters. Although L.V. asserted in her certification that the parents had no communication with Ms. Goodman during the period from November 18, 2004 to February 18, 2005, Ms. Lynch submitted a copy of an attendance sheet for an eligibility conference held on December 8, 2004 regarding C.V., which was signed by Ms. Goodman, and a sign-in sheet for an IEP conference regarding C.V. on January 28, 2005, also signed by Ms. Goodman.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Title 6A of the New Jersey Administrative Code provides that a petitioner may challenge the action of a board of education by filing a petition conforming to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4. However, the Code provides for a limitation of action with respect to the initiation of a contested case for the Commissioner's determination of a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws. The petition must be filed no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(h)(4)(i). This limitation related to the filing of a contested case is often referred to as the "ninety day rule".

Generally speaking, limitations of actions serve two salutary purposes. The Supreme Court reemphasized the importance of limitations of actions in Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co., 90 N.J. 108, 112 (1982). The Court expressed there that the initial purpose is "to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims." Second is to "penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose." Id. at 112 (quoting Farrell v. Votator Division of Chemtron Corp., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1975)).

Sometime later, the Supreme Court expressly affirmed the validity of the ninety day rule as applied to school law cases (then codified as N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)) in Kaprow v. Berkeley Township Bd. Of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, 588 (1993). The Kaprow Court held that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) represents a fair and reasonably-necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws. The Supreme Court there concluded that even an unofficial, informal note from the board secretary to the petitioner stating that two positions had been created and filled was sufficient to trigger the start of the ninety day period. The Kaprow Court stated that the time limitation, while arguably short, provides a "measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws." Id. at 582. In addition, the limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Ibid.

The ninety day requirement has been strictly followed by the Commissioner and State Board and is applied almost invariably. For example, a petition filed only two days after the ninety day period was dismissed as untimely in Dreher v. Jersey City Board of Education, 1987 S.L.D. 1706, aff'd, St. Bd., 1988 S.L.D. 2439. The ninety day period begins running as of the date on which the final action of the board took place; not the date on which the petitioner claims that a substantive right accrued. Nissman v. Board. of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 373, 381 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994). Regardless of whether the board complies with statutory (administrative or regulatory) requirements, a petitioner is required to file the petition no later than ninety days after receipt of notice of the final decision. Portee v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 381, 383.

The Commissioner of Education has consistently held that the ninety day filing requirement is to be strictly construed and that "a showing of emotional stress alone, without the showing of circumstances amounting to genuine incapacity, is not enough to toll the time limit for appeal." Carol Unangst v. Board of Education of the Township of Redon, Sussex County, OAL DKT. No. EDU 9828-98, Agency DKT. No. 434-9/98, decided May 1, 2003. The Commissioner has further held that "requests to a board [of education] for reconsideration of its final determination do not toll the running of the ninety day rule." Pacio v. Lakeland Reg. High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2069. Similarly, in a recent case, Administrative Law Judge Elinor L. Reiner held that:

> Attempts to resolve a claim through negotiation with the local board of education are irrelevant. Such efforts do not negate the fact of receipt of adequate notice nor do they toll the running of the time limits for filing a petition of appeal. [M.N. and E.Y. o/b/o K.N. v. Jersey City Sch. Dist., EDU 11336-03 (June 17, 2004) adopted Comm'r (July 21, 2004).]

In any event, in order that notice be adequate under the regulation, it must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety day limitations period. The notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the petitioner has been alerted to the existence of facts that would be adverse to it. At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 21 N.J. 28, 48 (1956). Such triggering event was considered by the State Board of Education in Eisenberg v. Fort Lee Bd. of Educ., State Bd. of Educ. (Nov. 5, 2003). The State Board there clarified the importance of the petitioner either receiving notice of the final decision or "knowing of facts that enabled [the petitioner] to file a timely claim." In Eisenberg, the petitioner received "final" notice of his non-renewal on April 3, 2001, and requested a statement of reasons for his non-renewal, which he received on May 1, 2001. On May 10, 2001, Eisenberg requested a public meeting with the board to discuss his non-renewal and the meeting was held on July 2, 2001 (Eisenberg requested the public meeting be held after the end of the school year). On July 3, 2001, Eisenberg received a "final determination regarding [his] employment status," which letter indicated that the board had upheld its decision not to renew his contract. Eisenberg filed his petition of appeal with the Commissioner on September 29, 2001, challenging the board's action. The board contended that its final action took place on April 3, 2001, and the ninety day limitation period started to run at that point. The ALJ disagreed with the board and determined that the final decision was not until July 3, 2001. On appeal to the Commissioner, the ALJ's initial decision was reversed when the Commissioner agreed that the "Superintendent's letter of April 3, 2001, had alerted the petitioner to the existence of facts that might equate in law with a cause of action." Ibid. On appeal, the State Board of Education reversed the Commissioner's decision, holding that, in this particular set of circumstances, the final notice did not take place until July 3, 2001. The State Board determined that Eisenberg only learned of pertinent information just prior to the July 2001 meeting, which, if reviewed by the board, would possibly have changed its renewal decision. Thus, it was the July 3, 2001, decision that was the "final" decision and the petitioner's petition in September 2001 was timely.

Also in issue is whether the circumstances warrant relaxation of the rule so as to permit the petition to be filed after the ninety day period has lapsed. The regulation provides in pertinent part as follows:

> The rules in this chapter shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of the Commissioner in connection with, the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. Where such rules do not reflect a specific statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in the Commissioner's discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.]

The ninety day rule may only be relaxed under exceptional circumstances or if there is a "compelling" reason to do so. Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 590. Certain cases are excepted from the rule, which include "cases involving (1) important and novel constitutional questions; (2) informal or ex parte determinations of legal questions by administrative officials; and (3) important public rather than private interests which require adjudication or clarification." Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 586 (1975). The expenditure of public funds is not a sufficient public interest to justify a waiver or relaxation of the ninety day rule. Elmwood Park Bd. of Educ. v. Farrell, 95

N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 375, 378. Moreover, the authority to relax or waive the ninety day rule is rarely invoked and is generally unsuccessful unless strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur. DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 449, 453 (citing Gordon v. Passaic Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1929, 1931, aff'd, A-3294-84 (App. Div. May 27, 1986), certif. denied, 105 N.J. 534 (1986)). On the other hand, the Appellate Division has held there is justification for relaxation of the ninety day rule where "the Commissioner's findings that [a] petitioner was reasonably led to believe that he could continue to informally seek relief and not be concerned about the time limitations for filing his formal petition are adequately supported by the record and that strict adherence to the ninety day time limitation . . . would result in individual justice not being served." Brown v. Bd. of Educ. of the Vocational School in the County of Sussex, A-4854-83T7 (App. Div. April 4, 1985).

Administrative Law Judge Steven Weiss addressed the issue of relaxation of the ninety day rule as it applies to controversies before the Commissioner of Education, in Twp. of Springfield Bd. Of Educ. v. N.J. State Dept. of Educ., et als., OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5987-02. Judge Weiss succinctly stated:

> The relaxation rule as to appeals to the Commissioner is the starting point for the inquiry in this case, too. Thus, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 specifically provides that where time limits are not contained in a statute, or in or underlying OAL rule, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner where, " . . . strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice." What constitutes "strict adherence" is a fact sensitive issue as witnessed by the many cases decided by the Commissioner concerning the same. However, as the Springfield Board accurately points out, cases relaxing or waiving the 90-day with regard to controversies and disputes generally are rare and the rule is sparingly invoked. See, e.g., DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 449; Gordon v. Passaic Bd. of Ed. 1985 S.L.D. 1929, aff'd New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, Dkt. No. A-3294-84T7 (May 27, 1986) (unreported), certif. den. 105 N.J. 534 (1986); Dreher v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., EDU 2777-87 (decided by the Commissioner February 2, 1988), aff'd State Board of Education (July 8, 1988); Unangst v. Township of Fredon, supra.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Initially, the petitioners asserted that the petition filed on April 21, 2005 was timely filed. This was apparently based on a letter from respondent's counsel dated April 4, 2005, stating the respondent would refuse to do anything to address the concerns then raised by the petition. (Petitioner's letter brief to Commissioner, May 13, 2005). Clearly, that letter could not be reasonably construed to be the final action of the Board. An attempt to have the Board reconsider the initial decision does not toll the ninety day period. I CONCLUDE that the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education contemplated by the regulation was properly the letters to the petitioners dated November 17, 2004 (Exhibits C & E, Respondents letter brief to Commissioner, May 3, 2005).

Petitioners next assert that in any event, the limitations period should be relaxed under the circumstances extant. The specific circumstances cited, which petitioners maintain give rise to just cause for the relaxation of the ninety day rule relate to the assertion that the petitioners were somehow coerced into appearing at the November 16, 2004 hearing without adequate representation. Regardless of the veracity of such assertions, which need not be resolved here, I CONCLUDE that the failure to have adequate representation at the hearing does not toll the limitation of action prescribed by the ninety day rule. In point of fact, there is nothing that could be reasonably gleaned from the stipulated facts or the certifications submitted that would lend to that ultimate conclusion here.

Generally, a court may relieve a party from a final judgment for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect or for any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment or order. N.J. Ct. R. 4:50-1(a), (f). The rule is designed to reconcile the strong interests in finality of judgments and judicial efficiency with the equitable notion that courts should have authority to avoid an unjust result in any given case. Excusable neglect is that carelessness attributable to an honest mistake that is compatible with due diligence or reasonable jurisprudence. Only where a mistake of law is reasonable and there is some justification for a lack of determination of the correct law will the court grant equitable relief. Mere ignorance of the law, however, is not a sufficient basis to excuse compliance with the requirements of an established rule of law.

Much as the Judge Weiss concluded in the Springfield case, I am convinced that there are no compelling circumstances extant dictating that I recommend to the Commissioner of Education that the ninety day rule be relaxed in the instant case. There are no overriding issues of public importance. Nor is there any indication, as there sometimes is asserted in various cases, that the person against whom the rule is sought to be applied has somehow deliberately been misled or has been prevented from knowing and understanding his or her rights. Indeed, a lack of sophistication with regard to the time limit is no excuse.

Having considered these arguments, I CONCLUDE that no basis exists to warrant relaxation or waiver of the ninety day rule. In sum, petitioners have failed to appropriately identify any substantial constitutional issue or one of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern to petitioners themselves regarding which grade C.V. and Ch. V. would enter in the 2003-2004 school year. Petitioners have failed to demonstrate that strict adherence to the ninety day rule would be inappropriate, unnecessary and result in injustice.

I thus CONCLUDE that petitioners' claim was not timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(h)(1)(i) and that the circumstances do not warrant relaxation of the ninety day rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that the appeal of petitioners is and shall be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination that it was the district of residence for pupil B.P. and was financially responsible for his education during the 2001-02 school year. The district contended that B.P.'s parent, R.B., did not reside in the district during the period in question and sought return of State aid monies withheld from the district in payment for B.P.'s educational costs.

The ALJ concurred with the district, finding, inter alia, that R.B. had no fixed, regular and adequate residence, and that she did not reside in Bound Brook during the school year at issue, notwithstanding that she may have used her father-in-law's Bound Brook address for "pit stops," receipt of mail and other similar purposes. The ALJ concluded that – under applicable school funding law – Bound Brook was not the "district of residence" for B.P. during the 2001-02 school year and that the Department must provide State aid to the district in the amount of $51,165.28, which represents the amount erroneously withheld from the Board's State aid to cover B.P.'s educational costs.

The Deputy Commissioner, to whom the matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BOUND BROOK, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE, AND R.B.,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed by the Deputy Commissioner, to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, as have the Department of Education's (Department) exceptions and the Board of Education's (Board) reply.

The Department first excepts to the determination of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that R.B. was a credible witness, pointing out the instances on record where R.B. indicated that she lied about her residency for purposes of mail receipt, motor vehicle and insurance documents, welfare benefits, court proceedings and interactions with the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS). The Department also objects to the ALJ's statement that W.B. indicated to the school attendance officer that he did not know where R.B. lived, citing testimony and documents indicating that while W.B. said he did not know where R.B.'s children lived, he also said that R.B. did live at his Bound Brook address. Finally, the Department contends that R.B.'s residency in Bound Brook during the 2001-02 school year can be inferred from her statements during a 2003 DYFS proceeding, notwithstanding that she was not specifically questioned about that period of time. (Department's Exceptions at 1-4)

In reply, the Board contends that this matter turns on R.B.'s residency during the period in question; that only R.B. knows the truth in this regard, and she testified that she did not live in Bound Brook; and that there is no basis in the record to attack the ALJ's credibility determination, which is entitled to deference pursuant to longstanding decisional precedent. (Board's Reply at 1-5)

Upon review of the record and submissions on exception, the Deputy Commissioner determines to adopt the Initial Decision of the ALJ, subject to one correction in fact-finding as noted below.

As the Board recognizes, the outcome of this matter substantially depends upon R.B.'s assertions that she did not reside in Bound Brook during the period at issue. With respect to the credibility of any lay witness during contested case proceedings, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) states in pertinent part:

> The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. In rejecting or modifying any findings of fact, the agency head shall state with particularity the reasons for rejecting the findings and shall make new or modified findings supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record.

Here, the Deputy Commissioner is satisfied that there is sufficient evidence in the record to support the ALJ's assessment that R.B. was telling the truth about living "from place to place" while using her father-in-law's Bound Brook address for official purposes and as an "occasional pit stop." (Initial Decision at 11, 18) In re Taylor, 158 N.J. 644 (1999) In so holding, the Deputy Commissioner is cognizant that the ALJ's credibility determination is entitled to deference, since the ALJ, as finder of fact, had the greatest opportunity to observe the witness's demeanor. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 121 N.J. 615 (1989); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Roberts, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 549, 550 (1996).

Moreover, although the Department is correct that the record belies the ALJ's finding (Initial Decision at 11) that W.B. claimed R.B. was not living with him – and the Deputy Commissioner here modifies the fact-finding in this matter to so indicate – reversal of this one finding does not sufficiently tip the balance of evidence and testimony so as to alter the final conclusion to be drawn from the record. Similarly, although the Deputy Commissioner is not persuaded that any reliable inference can be drawn from R.B.'s 2003 DYFS proceeding statements, even if such an inference were to be accepted, arguendo, it would be outweighed by the bulk of credible testimony on record.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein subject to modification of fact-finding in the one instance noted above, the Initial Decision of the OAL – finding that Bound Brook is not the district of residence for B.P. and directing the Department to provide the $51,165.28 it withheld from the Board's State aid as a consequence of its determination to the contrary[1] – is adopted as the final decision in this matter. In the interest of protecting the confidentiality of the numerous DYFS records contained in the file, the Deputy Commissioner directs that the record of this matter be sealed.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This case requires a determination of the "district of residence" of a school-age child. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, -12.1. Local boards of education are generally responsible for the education of school-age children who reside in their respective districts and the children's districts of residence are relevant for purposes of the Department of Education's funding of local boards of education. Relevant laws provide that if a school district fails to comply with a rule, standard or directive of the Commissioner of Education and/or State Board of Education, the Commissioner may withhold all or part of the State aid that the Department of Education would otherwise provide to the district and/or direct the State Treasurer to withhold from the district funds otherwise payable by the State. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, -12.1; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5, -9; N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:55-2; N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2, -5.3.

The facts can be summarized: B.P. is the school-age son of respondent R.B. and an unidentified father. In 2000 the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) removed R.B.'s children, including B.P., from R.B.'s home in Phillipsburg and placed them in foster homes. B.P., who was placed in a foster home in Elizabeth, was classified for special education and related services and, during the 2001-02 school year, pursuant to an Individualized Education Program (IEP) developed by the Phillipsburg public school system, B.P. was placed in a private school. See 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1400 et seq.; N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.5, -3.7. R.B. testified that after the DYFS took custody of her children she stayed in various places, although in 2001 she made representations for certain purposes, including official records, that she resided in the Borough of Bound Brook. Consistent with R.B.'s representations, the Division of Finance determined that during the 2001-02 school year Bound Brook was R.B.'s "district of residence," and the Division deducted $51,165.28, i.e., the cost of B.P.'s placement in the private school for the 2001-02 school year, from funds the Department granted to the Bound Brook Board of Education (BOE). See N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5. However, in this case R.B. testified that between 2000 and 2005, although she used a Bound Brook address for certain purposes, she really lived from place to place, i.e., she was homeless. The BOE submits that given R.B.'s testimony and other evidence in this case, Bound Brook was not B.P.'s "district of residence," and it claims that the Division of Finance should restore the deducted amount to its funding. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, -12.1.

By letter dated November 13, 2001, the Department's Division of Finance notified the BOE of its determinations that Bound Brook was R.B.'s district of residence and that the BOE was financially responsible for the education of B.P. during the 2001-02 school year. DOE-1. In a letter dated December 11, 2001, the BOE's superintendent denied that Bound Brook was the district of residence and enumerated factors supporting that denial. DOE-2. By letter dated February 8, 2002, Assistant Commissioner Peter Genovese notified the BOE of his agreement with the determination that Bound Brook was R.B.'s district of residence and that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq., the BOE could request a hearing on the matter. DOE-3. On April 1, 2002, the BOE's petition naming R.B., individually and as mother of B.P., as respondent was filed with the Department. On April 12, 2002, the BOE's Amended Verified Petition, adding the Department as a respondent, was so filed, demanding an order ruling that Bound Brook is not the district of residence and that the BOE is not the school district financially responsible for B.P.'s education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On May 15, 2002, the Department's answer was filed. The Department then transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on May 23, 2002. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). The case was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Kathryn Clark, who fell ill. The case was reassigned to me and was the subject of a series of conferences related to a possible settlement and motions related to discovery. I heard the case on August 16 and 18, 2005. Thereafter, R.B., who never filed an answer to the petition, became available to testify, and on November 7, 2005, another day of hearing was held for that purpose. By the record-closed date, the parties had submitted their written summations and memoranda.

THE RECORD

R.B. testified as follows: She was born on February 5, 1967, in Paterson. Her maiden name is R.P. She spent much of her childhood in her parents' home in Belvidere, Warren County. She graduated from high school and attended Warren County Community College.

R.B. is the mother of six children: P.P., born January 17, 1986; B.P., born December 17, 1990; M.B.B. born April 27, 1993; K.A.B., born August 30, 1995; C.B., born May 4, 1997; and D.B., born December 11, 1998. She was not married to the father or fathers of P.P., B.P., and C.B. and she does not know the locations of their father or fathers. On February 15, 1998, she married B.B., who is the father of M.B.B., K.A.B., and D.B. Although C.B. was born after R.B. had children by B.B. and although C.B. uses B.B.'s last name, B.B. is not C.B.'s father. Also, in 2001, although R.B. was married to B.B., she was pregnant by another man, but she miscarried.

In response to questions about the dates and locations of her residences, R.B.'s testimony, which was inexact, was as follows: Beginning about 1987 and 1988 she and P.P. resided in Phillipsburg. About 1994 or 1995 she returned to her parents' residence. Beginning about 1995 she resided with B.B. in a row house in Washington Borough, Warren County. Beginning about 1998 she and B.B. resided in Phillipsburg. In December 2000 the DYFS took custody of her children. Thereafter, R.B. and B.B. left their Phillipsburg residence and they did not reside together: B.B. first stayed in a rooming house in Phillipsburg and he then resided in a two-bedroom, single-family house his father, W.B., rented at 24 Romney Road in Bound Brook. R.B. stayed wherever she could, including with friends and in her car. She used the Bound Brook address for receipt of mail and, occasionally, she stayed there, showered, and cooked. By 2001 she was pregnant by a man other than B.B. and, for a few weeks after she miscarried in May 2001, she stayed in the Bound Brook house. However, several members of W.B.'s family residing in the Bound Brook house were alcoholics, R.B. did not want to stay there, and she left the Bound Brook house.

Bernadette Joslin, a DYFS worker, testified as follows: R.B.'s children all appeared to have suffered neglect and/or abuse. The DYFS has had a long period of involvement with R.B. and all of R.B.'s children have been the subjects of DYFS cases. The DYFS filed a Superior Court complaint resulting in orders which restricted R.B.'s parental rights relative to her children. See DOE-20. The DYFS placed R.B.'s children in foster homes in various locations in New Jersey. B.P., classified as "emotionally disturbed" for special education and related services, was placed in a foster home in Elizabeth. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.5(c)(5).

The DYFS's records of the dates and locations of R.B.'s residences show the following: From 1986 to 1988, R.B. resided in Belvidere. In 1991, R.B. resided in Phillipsburg. In 1995, R.B. reported that she again resided in Belvidere. The DYFS does not have a record of R.B.'s residence at other times between 1988 and 1999. From 1999 to March 15, 2001, R.B. resided at several locations in Phillipsburg. Since Belvidere and Phillipsburg are Warren County municipalities, the DYFS's Warren District Office managed R.B.'s children's cases, and R.B. had a number of appearances in the Superior Court, Warren County. The case was later transferred to Somerset County. The DYFS monitored whether R.B. complied with orders governing her contact with her children. DOE-11; DOE-17.

As written above, in December 2000 B.B., R.B., and R.B.'s children were residing in Phillipsburg and the DYFS took custody of R.B.'s children. In 2001 Catholic Charities, a DYFS contractor, began to supervise R.B.'s visits with her children. The DYFS records show that in April 2001 R.B. stated to DYFS workers that she was having difficulties with B.B., but that they were residing in the Bound Brook house. However, there is no competent evidence detailing that alleged statement.

R.B. testified here as follows: She did not sign a lease for the Bound Brook residence and she did not authorize anyone to enter her name on any lease for the Bound Brook residence. However, she stayed there from time to time after December 2000. She needed an address for purposes including mail, service of papers related to the Superior Court case, her driver's license, motor vehicle registration, and motor vehicle insurance, and the DYFS's records. Consequently, she asked W.B. to say that she resided in the Bound Brook residence, she asked W.B. to accept calls, mail, and papers for her there, and she represented to the court and to the Motor Vehicle Commission that she resided in the Bound Brook residence. DOE-22; DOE-23. During this period she was staying from place to place and, occasionally, she stayed in the Bound Brook residence. DYFS officials also telephoned her on her cellular telephone when she was at work at Wal-Mart in Union. When she needed to meet with DYFS or Catholic Charities officials, e.g., before traveling to visit with her children, she would travel from wherever she was staying and meet them at the Bound Brook house.

R.B. testified here that she lied when she testified in the Superior Court case that she began to reside in the Bound Brook house in about April 2001. She also testified there that between "the end of" 2002 and January 2003 she "kind of bounced between Jersey City and Newark, [and] stayed with friends." DOE-20.

The DYFS's Warren District Office notified the DYFS's District Office for Somerset County (where Bound Brook is located) that R.B.'s children's cases should be transferred to Somerset. Susan Mizak, of the DYFS's Warren District Office, then met with Carole Murray, the DYFS's Somerset District office supervisor, and William Brophy, the Somerset District Office transfer liaison. Ms. Mizak described the children's placements. Mr. Brophy could not say that Ms. Mizak personally knew of R.B.'s residence and he could not recall that he personally confirmed R.B.'s residence. However, he testified that consistent with normal procedure, within thirty days of notice of the proposed transfer of a case, a DYFS worker would meet at the reported new residence to confirm and document the residence, and, in this case, Kathleen Brown conducted that meeting. Thereafter, the DYFS mailed numerous items to R.B. at the Bound Brook address. DOE-11; DOE-17.

Kathleen Brown has certified the following: She was a DYFS Warren District Office worker who managed B.P.'s case. On April 19, 2001, she visited the Bound Brook house and performed an assessment of R.B. and B.B. During the visit, W.B., B.B.'s father, stated that R.B. was residing there and that she could remain there until she found another place to reside. R.B. stated that she was looking for a place to live in Bound Brook. B.B. stated that when R.B. found another residence, he intended to remain in his father's house. DOE-13; DPE-16.

In July 2001, consistent with B.P.'s IEP developed by the Phillipsburg public school system, the DYFS placed B.P. in Willowglen Academy in Sparta, a private school, for the 2001 extended school year and for the 2001-02 school year. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7. R.B. testified that she knew of, but did not participate in the development of, the IEP.

The DYFS mailed notices to R.B. at the Bound Brook address and the postmaster advised the DYFS that R.B.'s mail was directed to her at the Bound Brook address. Several times between 2001 and 2003, when Ms. Joslin and Heidi Zorde, another DYFS worker and a credible witness, appeared at the Bound Brook house, R.B. was not present, but a man there told them that R.B. did live there. DOE-6. Once B.B. told Ms. Zorde that R.B. was out, but that she returned in the evenings; however, when Ms. Zorde appeared at the Bound Brook house that evening R.B. was not present there. Ms. Zorde communicated with R.B., by way of R.B.'s cellular telephone, when R.B. was at work at Wal-Mart in Union. The DYFS received a report that R.B. had a "boyfriend" who resided somewhere other than in Bound Brook, but the DYFS's investigation did not show that she resided with the boyfriend and R.B. continued to represent to the DYFS workers that she resided in the Bound Brook house. In 2003, Karin Erickson, of Catholic Charities, twice transported R.B. from the Bound Brook house to Phillipsburg for visits with her children and, after the visits, Ms. Erickson returned R.B. to the Bound Brook house. DOE-4; DOE-4A.

Believing R.B. to reside in Bound Brook, in 2001 the DYFS reassigned its cases involving R.B. to its Somerset District Office. R.B. testified here that (on a date she did not provide) someone from the Bound Brook BOE telephoned the Bound Brook residence and told her that she should register her children in the Bound Brook school system for the 2001-02 school year, so she did so.

Karen Gagné testified as follows: She is a certified school social worker employed by the Office of Education in the Department of Human Services (DHS). She obtains information from the DYFS relative to the residences of parents and children who are the subject of DYFS cases and enters the information on forms to be submitted to the Department of Education's Office of School Funding for a determination of the "district of residence." N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12. Ms. Gagné spoke with Ms. Zorde to obtain information about where R.B. lived. However, Ms. Gagné did not personally confirm R.B.'s residence, e.g., by appearing at the Bound Brook house to make observations. Ms. Gagné entered the information provided by Ms. Zorde on the form and forwarded the form to the Department of Education's Office of School Funding.

Raymond Hoffelder is a planning associate in the Department of Education's Office of School Funding and he was a credible witness here. He is responsible for the initial determination of the "district of residence" of school children placed by the DYFS. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12. In doing this, he usually reviews information received from the DHS on the above-described form. On December 21, 2001, having received the form relative to R.B. and B.P., Mr. Hoffelder requested that Ms. Gagné provide additional information. Ms. Gagné, in a responding letter dated January 4, 2002, wrote that Ms. Zorde had confirmed that the Bound Brook residence was R.B.'s address and that R.B. retained legal guardianship over B.P. DOE-11. Mr. Hoffelder did not personally confirm the information.

As described in the procedural history above, by letter dated November 13, 2001, the Department's Division of Finance notified the Bound Brook BOE of its determinations that Bound Brook was the district of residence for B.P. and that, since the Bound Brook BOE was responsible for the cost of B.P.'s education during the 2001-02 school year, the Department would deduct that cost from funds it would otherwise grant to the BOE. DOE-1. In a letter dated December 11, 2001, the BOE's superintendent denied that Bound Brook was the district of residence and enumerated factors supporting that denial. DOE-2. By letter dated February 8, 2002, Assistant Commissioner Peter Genovese notified the BOE that he agreed that Bound Brook was R.B.'s district of residence and that the BOE could request a hearing on the issue. DOE-3; see N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq. On April 1, 2002, the BOE's petition was filed with the Department and, thereafter, the BOE filed an amended petition.

Gloria Imbriani testified here as follows: During relevant times she has served as the Bound Brook BOE's attendance officer. The BOE's superintendent requested that she investigate R.B.'s residency. On November 20, 2001, she appeared at the Bound Brook house and W.B., who answered the door, said that he was R.B.'s grandfather and that R.B. did reside there but that B.P. did not. Thereafter, she telephoned D.S., shown on tax records as the owner of the residence, and he told her that R.B.'s name was on the lease, but that he had not met her. On November 26 or 27, 2001, she returned to the Bound Brook house with Donna Bodnar, the BOE's supervisor of special services. W.B., who again answered the door, said that R.B. was his daughter, and then said she was his daughter-in-law and that she worked at a Wal-Mart in Union, and he gave her the names of all of R.B.'s children, but he said he did not know where they lived. On November 28, 2001, she telephoned R.B. at the Wal-Mart, but R.B. hung up on her. BB-1. A few days later she returned to the Bound Brook house and knocked, but no one answered; a woman who identified herself as the next-door neighbor stated that a woman did not reside there. Ms. Imbriani did not obtain the woman's name.

As a result of the Division of Finance's determination that Bound Brook was the district of residence for B.P., it deducted $51,165.28, i.e., the cost of B.P.'s placement in Willowglen Academy for the 2001-02 school year, from school funding the Department would otherwise have provided to the BOE.

In the Superior Court case, on June 5, 2003, R.B. testified as follows: Beginning in July 2001 she worked in the Wal-Mart in Union and, every two weeks, depending on the amount of her pay check, she gave W.B. about $30 to $50 out of her check and she bought food (for the Bound Brook house residents). About February or March 2003 she returned to the Bound Brook house and W.B., B.B., her brother-in-law and she all resided there. DOE-20.

B.P.'s most recent placement is in the Peter Paul House, a group home in Phillipsburg. R.B. testified that she had not seen B.P. regularly, but that the day before she testified here, she saw him at her parents' home.

In R.B.'s testimony here she denied that the Bound Brook house was her residence. She testified that she still receives some mail at the Bound Brook house and she received papers related to this case and the costs of B.P.'s education there. However, she testified that the DYFS already takes some of her income for support of her children and she thought she was not responsible for the costs of education of her children. Consequently, she did not respond to the papers related to this case and she did not participate in this case. Since June 2005 she has resided in a third-floor apartment at 653 Jefferson Avenue, Elizabeth, but she never gave the DYFS her present address, because she does not want the DYFS further involved in her life. She has not filed a complaint for divorce from B.B.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses and consider their credibility and to consider all of the evidence, I make the following findings of fact:

R.B. was not married to B.P.'s father and she does not know the location of B.P.'s father or the location of the father or fathers of her other children, except B.B. B.B. is the father of several of R.B.'s children born between 1993 and 1998.

Prior to 2000, R.B. resided in Belvidere, Phillipsburg, Washington Borough, and again in Phillipsburg. In 2000, B.B., R.B., and R.B.'s children, including B.P., resided in Phillipsburg.

In December 2000, the DYFS removed B.P. from R.B.'s Phillipsburg home. Thereafter, the DYFS placed R.B.'s children in foster homes. The DYFS placed B.P. in a foster home in Elizabeth. B.P. is classified as emotionally disturbed for special education and related services and, for the 2001-02 school year, pursuant to an IEP developed by the Phillipsburg public school system, B.P. was placed in the private Willowglen Academy in Sparta.

R.B. testified that between 2000 and 2005 she lived from place to place, and that until 2005, although she used the Bound Brook address for certain purposes, she did not have a fixed, regular and adequate residence. There are circumstances that make it appear that during the 2001-02 school year R.B. may have resided in the Bound Brook house, and these circumstances include the following: R.B. used the Bound Brook address for receipt of mail, for her driver's license, for her motor vehicle registration, for car insurance purposes, for her dealings with the DYFS, and for her dealings with the Superior Court. In April 2001 W.B. told the DYFS's Ms. Brown that R.B. resided in the Bound Brook house. R.B. registered B.P. in the BOE's school system. R.B. testified that, depending upon the amount of her paycheck, she gave W.B. money and bought food for the Bound Brook residence. DYFS and Catholic Charities officials met R.B. at the Bound Brook house, e.g., before traveling to see her children. R.B. testified in Superior Court that in about April 2001 she began to reside in Bound Brook and she testified here that, (at least) occasionally, she stayed in the Bound Brook house and that, while there, she showered, and also cooked. As a result of the Division of Finance's determination that Bound Brook was the district of residence for B.P., it deducted $51,165.28, i.e., the cost of B.P.'s placement in Willowglen Academy for the 2001-02 school year, from school funding the Department would otherwise have provided to the BOE.

However, there are circumstances that are consistent with the finding that during the 2001-02 school year R.B. had no fixed, regular, and adequate residence and that she did not reside in the Bound Brook house: There is no competent evidence here that R.B.'s name appeared on a lease for the Bound Brook house or that she paid the Bound Brook house landlord rent. R.B., who has led a mixed-up life, testified that between 2000, when she left Phillipsburg, and 2005 she lived from place to place and, having no other address, she used the Bound Brook address only for contact with officials and for an occasional pit stop. R.B. testified here that after the DYFS took custody of her children in December 2000 she stayed with friends and in her car and that she stayed in the Bound Brook house only occasionally. Between 2001 and 2003, when DYFS officials appeared unannounced at the Bound Brook residence to visit R.B., she was not present and, even when a DYFS official returned to the house one evening, R.B. was not present. DYFS officials communicated with R.B. by way of cellular telephone while R.B. was at work in Union. R.B. testified that she would travel from wherever she was staying to meet the DYFS and/or Catholic Charities officials at the Bound Brook house before traveling for visitation with her children. In April 2001 W.B. told the DYFS's Ms. Brown that R.B. resided in the Bound Brook house, but also that she could remain there until she found another residence and R.B. told Ms. Brown that she was looking for a residence. The DYFS's records also showed that by 2001 R.B. had a new boyfriend and that she was not residing in Bound Brook, and R.B.'s uncontradicted testimony here was that in 2001 she was pregnant by a man other than B.B. R.B. testified in Superior Court that in about April 2001 she began to reside in Bound Brook, but there is no record here that she testified in Superior Court that she resided there during the 2001-02 school year. R.B. testified here that, because several members of B.B.'s family in the Bound Brook house were alcoholics, she did not want to live there, and W.B. and the members of his family would have made the two-bedroom Bound Brook house crowded. Ms. Imbriani, the BOE's attendance officer, testified that in November 2001, i.e., during the 2001-02 school year, when she appeared at the Bound Brook house, W.B. stated that he did not know where R.B. lived. R.B.'s testimony that between the time that she left her Phillipsburg residence in 2000 and the time that she obtained the apartment in Elizabeth in 2005 (during the 2001-02 school year) she did not have a permanent residence is consistent with these circumstances.

Having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses and to consider all of the evidence, I find R.B. credible in her testimony describing her life as transient between 2000 and 2005. I do not find sufficient, competent and credible evidence that, during the 2001-02 school year, the Bound Brook house constituted a fixed, regular and adequate residence for R.B. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c). To the contrary, I accept that beginning in December 2000 she lived from place to place and she was basically homeless, until 2005, when she obtained the apartment in Elizabeth.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Legislature is to "provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in the State between the ages of five and eighteen years." N.J. Const. art. VIII, § 4, ¶ 1.

The Legislature has provided that local boards of education are generally responsible for the education of school-age children who reside in their respective districts and, under the State Facilities Education Act of 1979, the children's districts of residence are relevant for purposes of the Department of Education's funding of local boards of education. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Relevant laws provide that if a school district fails to comply with a rule, standard or directive of the Commissioner of Education and/or State Board of Education, the Commissioner may withhold all of part of the State aid that the Department of Education would otherwise provide to the district and/or direct the State Treasurer to withhold from the district funds otherwise payable by the State. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-9; see N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, -12.1; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:55-2; N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2, -5.3.

The Resource Family Parent Licensing Act was amended, effective August 27, 2004, so that in N.J.S.A. 30:4C-27.1 "foster family" was replaced with "resource family." L. 2004, c. 130, § 69. N.J.S.A. 30:4C-27.1 now states:

As used in this act "resource family parent" shall mean any > person with whom a child in the care, custody or guardianship of the Department of Human Services is placed by the department, or with its approval, for care and shall include any person with whom a child is placed by the Division of Youth and Family Services for the purpose of adoption until the adoption is finalized.

That is, "[r]esource family homes include homes previously categorized as foster homes, adoptive homes, family friend homes and relative care homes." 37 N.J.R. 2807(a) (August 1, 2005).

The State Facilities Education Act of 1979 was also amended, effective, August 27, 2004, so that in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(a) "foster family" was replaced with "resource family." L. 2004, c. 130, § 39. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 now states:

> For school funding purposes, the Commissioner of Education shall determine district of residence as follows:
> a. The district of residence for children in resource family homes shall be the district in which the resource family parents reside. If a child in a resource family home is subsequently placed in a State facility or by a State agency, the district of residence of the child shall then be determined as if no such resource family placement had occurred.
>
> b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private schools or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.
>
> If this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement.
>
> c. The district of residence for children whose parent or guardian temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless. For the purpose of this amendatory and supplementary act, "homeless" shall mean an > individual who temporarily lacks a fixed, regular and adequate residence.

> d. If the district of residence cannot be determined according to the criteria contained herein, or if the criteria contained herein identify a district of residence outside of the State, the State shall assume fiscal responsibility for the tuition of the child. The tuition shall equal the approved per pupil cost established pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1 et seq.]. This amount shall be appropriated in the same manner as other State aid under this act. The Department of Education shall pay the amount to the Department of Human Services, the Department of Corrections or the Juvenile Justice Commission established pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 52:17B-170] or, in the case of a homeless child, the Department of Education shall pay the appropriate T&E amount and any appropriate additional cost factor for special education pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-19] to the school district in which the child is enrolled.
>
> e. If the State has assumed fiscal responsibility for the tuition of a child in a private educational facility approved by the Department of Education to serve children who are classified as needing special education services, the department shall pay to the Department of Human Services or the Juvenile Justice Commission, as appropriate, the aid specified in subsection d. of this section and in addition, such aid as required to make the total amount of aid equal to the actual cost of the tuition.

The State Facilities Education Act of 1979 further states:

> The district of residence for a homeless child determined pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12] shall be responsible for the education of the homeless child. The district of residence shall determine the educational placement of the child after consulting with the parent or guardian. This determination shall be: a. to continue the child's education in the school district of last attendance, b. to enroll the child in the district of residence if the district of residence is not the district of last attendance, or c. to enroll the child in the school district where the child is temporarily living, whichever is in the child's best interest. If the parent or guardian objects to the determination made by the district of > residence, the county superintendent of schools shall be notified and within 48 hours shall determine the placement of the child based on criteria established by the State Board of Education. Any appeals regarding the determination shall be resolved according to rules established by the State Board of Education.

> When the homeless child attends school in a district other than the district of residence, the district of residence shall pay the costs of tuition for the child to attend school in that district and shall pay for any transportation costs incurred by that district. When the homeless child attends school in the district of residence while temporarily residing in another district, the district of residence shall provide for transportation to and from school pursuant to the provisions of [N.J.S.A. 18A:58-7].
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12.1.]

Department of Education regulations provide criteria for determination of a school child's district of residence:

> (a) The district of residence for school funding purposes shall be determined according to the following criteria:
>
> > 1. The "present district of residence" of a child in a residential state facility defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3 and referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16.
> >
> > 2. The "present district of residence" of a child placed by a State agency in a group home, skill development home, private school or out-of-State facility also referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the date of the child's initial placement by the State agency. In subsequent school years spent in the educational placement made by a State agency, the child's "present district of residence" shall be determined in the same manner as for a child in a residential State facility as set forth in (a)1 above. The "district of residence" referred to in the second paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence in which the child resided immediately prior to his or her most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

3. If the State becomes the child's legal guardian after the date of the child's initial placement by a State agency, the State will assume financial responsibility for the child's educational costs in subsequent school years.

(b) The "present district of residence" or "district of residence" referred to in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b shall be determined by the Commissioner or his or her designee based upon the address submitted by the Department of Corrections, the Department of Human Services or the Juvenile Justice Commission on forms prepared by the Department of Education.

(c) The district board of education shall be notified by the Department of the determination of the district of residence. In order to prevent a lapse in the child's education and/or child study services, the district board of education shall be bound by such determination unless and until it is reversed on redetermination or appeal pursuant to the provisions of (e) and (f) below.

(d) A district board of education contesting the Department's determination of district of residence shall submit a written notification that a dispute exists to the Assistant Commissioner, Division of Finance, within 30 days of the receipt of a final notice that a child was determined to be a resident of the district for purposes of State funding. As part of this written notice, the following information shall be submitted:

1. A written statement detailing the effort of the district board of education to verify the determination of the Department;

2. Written rationale for rejecting the determination of the Department; and

3. Any additional information the district board of education has obtained which might enable redetermination of the district of residence.

(e) The Division of Finance shall attempt to resolve the dispute administratively and shall notify the district board of education whether a redetermination of district of residence shall be made within 90 days of the receipt of the written notification that a dispute exists.

(f) A district board of education may initiate a formal > proceeding before the Commissioner to resolve such a dispute if the Division of Finance is unable to resolve a dispute within the 90 day time limit, by filing a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:3.

> (g) As prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, the "district of residence" for a homeless child whose parent(s) or guardian(s) temporarily moves from one district board of education to another is the district in which the parent(s) or guardian(s) last resided prior to becoming homeless. This district shall be designated as the district of residence for as long as the parent(s) or guardian(s) remains homeless.

Department of Education regulations further provide relative to determination of a school child's district of residence:

> (a) The address submitted to the Department for determining the district of residence for school funding purposes for a child described below shall be the address defined below:
>
> > 1. If the State has custody of the child or if a court or the State has appointed a third party as the custodian of the child, the present address of the parent(s) or guardian(s) with whom the child resided immediately prior to his or her initial admission to a State facility or placement by a State agency shall be submitted. If the child resides in a foster home or with relatives, the present address of the foster parent(s) or relatives shall be submitted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12.
> >
> > 2. If the child's parents are divorced with joint guardianship, the present address of the individual parent with whom the child resided as of the date required by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(a)1 or 2 shall be submitted.
> >
> > 3. If the child's parents are divorced with joint guardianship and the child resides with each parent one-half of the time, the present address of both the child's father and mother as of the date required by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(a) 1 or 2 shall be submitted.
> > 4. If the child's sole parent or legal guardian resides in a State facility, the State will assume financial > responsibility for the child's educational costs until such time as the parent or guardian no longer resides in the State facility.

>
> 5. If the child resides with a relative such as an aunt or grandmother for less than one year immediately prior to the child's initial admission to a State facility or initial placement by a State agency, the present address of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) at the time this initial placement is submitted.
>
> 6. If the child resides with a relative such as an aunt or grandmother pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1d for one or more years immediately prior to the child's initial admission to a State facility or initial placement by a State agency, the present address of the child's relative(s) at the time of this initial placement is submitted.
>
> 7. If the child is age 18 or older, or has been legally emancipated and has lived on his or her own before the initial placement, the present address of the child as of the date required by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(a)1 or 2 is submitted.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.3, emphasis added.]

In December 2000 the DYFS removed B.P. from R.B.'s Phillipsburg home and placed B.P. in a foster home, now known as a resource home, in Elizabeth. Consistent with the IEP developed by the Phillipsburg public school system, B.P. was placed in the private Willowglen Academy for the 2001-02 school year. The location of B.P.'s father is unknown. From 2000, when R.B. left her Phillipsburg residence, until 2005 when she obtained an apartment in Elizabeth, she used the Bound Brook address for purposes including receipt of mail and she stayed there occasionally, but she really lived from place to place. That is, R.B. had no fixed, regular and adequate residence and she did not reside in Bound Brook during the subject school year. Consistent with these facts and the above-cited laws, on the record here, "[f]or school funding purposes" Bound Brook was not the "district of residence" for B.P. during the 2001-02 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12.

Consistent with the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, the Division of Finance (the Department) should not withhold or cause the withholding of funding and should provide $51,165.28, i.e., the cost of B.P.'s placement in Willowglen Academy for the 2001-02 school year, in school funding to the BOE.

ORDER

I ORDER the Division of Finance to restore $51,165.28, i.e., the cost of B.P.'s placement in Willowglen Academy for the 2001-02 school year, to funding provided to the BOE and to take such other steps as reasonably necessary so that that amount is provided to the BOE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The agency proposal follows:

Summary

Pursuant to the requirements of Executive Order No. 66 (1978) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-5.1, the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) proposes to readopt with amendments the current OAL Rules for Agency Rulemaking found at N.J.A.C. 1:30, which would otherwise expire on July 15, 2006, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-5.1.c.

These rules were initially adopted in 1981, and were subsequently readopted with amendments in 1986, 1991, 1996 and 2001 (see 13 N.J.R. 255(d), 18 N.J.R. 469(a), 23 N.J.R. 399(a), 28 N.J.R. 1198(a) and 33 N.J.R. 549(a), respectively). The significant 1986 amendments included new and clarified definitions; actions to be taken by OAL in the event of non-compliance with rulemaking requirements; a revised document clarity standard; clarification of the proposal notice and opportunity to be heard requirements; the procedure for negotiating a rule; revision of expiration dates from the subchapter to the chapter level; and clarification of emergency rulemaking documentation. The significant 1991 amendments included new and clarified definitions; clarification of what can be corrected administratively and introduction of the administrative change process; clarification concerning secondary notice of proposals; the allowance of informal public input prior to proposal; clarification as to allowing oral comments and public hearing notice; incorporation of the Administrative Procedure Act requirements for mandatory requested public hearings and for a summarization of hearing officer's recommendations and agency responses thereto; and clarification as to agency replies to petitions for rulemaking, and the contents of notices of adoption. The significant 1996 amendments included a new rule concerning publication filing deadlines; inclusion of the requirement for a Jobs Impact Statement in proposals, pursuant to P.L. 1995, c. 166; and a new rule concerning timely filing of notices of adoption. The 2001 readoption included only technical amendments; however, following the enactment of P.L. 2001, c. 5 amending the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., a subsequent 2001 rulemaking substantively amended the chapter concerning the standard of clarity for rules; rulemaking calendars; petitions for rulemaking; and providing public hearings on rulemaking or extending public comment period based upon sufficient public interest. See 33 N.J.R. 915(a) and 1927(a)

In compliance with Executive Order No. 66 (1978), OAL has reviewed the current chapter and has determined that it remains adequate, reasonable and necessary for the purposes for which it was originally promulgated, that is, the implementation and coordination of uniform rules for agency rulemaking. As a result of this review, OAL also proposes a few amendments to the rulemaking rules.

The following summarizes the current rules and the proposed amendments:

Subchapter 1 contains general provisions.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.1 states the title of the rules.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.2 is the chapter definitions section.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.3 states the Division of Administrative Rules' address and hours of operation.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.4, 1.5 and 1.6 specify how the New Jersey Administrative Code, New Jersey Register and New Jersey statutes should be cited, respectively.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.7 discusses the use of the rule headings.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.8 states that the public has access to rulemaking documents and the location and time for such access.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.9 sets forth the fees for copies of rule-related documents.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.10 states that OAL may prescribe forms and formats for use in rule submissions.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.11 is reserved.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.12 outlines rulemaking compliance requirements, including actions to be taken by OAL when a submission is found not in compliance with this chapter.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.13 describes the noticing of an invalidated rule.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.14 describes the schedule for filing of documents for publication in the New Jersey Register, sets forth what types of documents need to be filed by the scheduled proposal and adoption deadlines, and provides that documents for a particular Register filed beyond those deadlines will be accepted at OAL's discretion based on specified considerations.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.15 explains the procedure for receiving and filing a rulemaking document.

Subchapter 2 contains rules on rulemaking generally.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.1 states that documents submitted and rules must be written clearly in order to be acceptable for filing. This section reiterates the standard of clarity in N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4.1a.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.2 explains how source documents are incorporated by reference.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.3 requires that each rule section embrace a single subject.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.4 specifies the proper authorization for rule activity.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.5 specifies the effect of statements that are part of notice of proposal and adoption.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.6 states what constitutes the authoritative text of any rule printed, or not printed, in the New Jersey Register.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.7 set forth the standards for amendment to a rule by administrative correction or change.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.8 outlines the use of appendices in rules.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-2.9 serves to reiterate the requirements of N.J.S.A. 52:14B-3(1) and (2), that State agencies promulgate organizational rules and rules of practice.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-3 sets forth requirements for the quarterly publication in the New Jersey Register of agency rulemaking calendars, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-3(4).

N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.1 requires each agency to publish in the first New Jersey Register for the months of January, April, July and October, a quarterly calendar setting forth a schedule of the agency's anticipated rulemaking proposal activities for the next six months.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.2 prescribes the form of notice to be filed with OAL when an agency wishes to amend its rulemaking calendar.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.3 sets forth exceptions to the calendar requirements, five circumstances in which an agency need not include a rulemaking activity in a rulemaking proposal calendar before proceeding with the proposal.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.4 prescribes how each agency shall publicize that copies of its calendar are available to interested persons, and the fee to be charged for such copies.

The OAL notes that since the rulemaking calendar requirements became operative on July 1, 2001, rather than publish rulemaking calendars, State agencies have opted to utilize the calendar exception at N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.3(a)5 and provide a 60-day comment period for almost all proposals.

Subchapter 4 contains the rules on petitions for rulemaking.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.1 sets forth requirements for the content of a petition and of the notice of receipt of a petition to be submitted by the receiving agency to the OAL for publication in the New Jersey Register.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.2 sets for the requirements for agency action on a petition.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.3 concerns agency failure to respond to a petition within the time frames established under N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.2(a). In keeping with the establishment of specific time frames for action in the petition for rulemaking process under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4(f), and in order to establish a reasonable period for conclusion of the proceedings under this section, the OAL proposes to amend N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.3(e) to require that the report of the person who conducted the public hearing on the petition under this section, summarizing the factual record presented and the arguments for an against proceeding with a rule proposal based on the petition, be completed within 90 days after the public hearing. The sentence structure of the subsection is also proposed for amendment, for improved clarity.

Subchapter 5 contains rules that regulate the proposal process.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.1 specifies what must be included as part of a notice of proposal.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.2 sets forth the action to be taken by OAL and the submitting agency concerning a notice of proposal, including the additional forms of notice concerning the proposal that the agency must provide.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.3 specifies the requirements for when an agency wishes to provide an opportunity for informal public input on a rule matter, and for when an agency wishes to more formally "pre-propose" a rule. A technical amendment is proposed at N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.3(c)4i, correcting a cross-reference to a prior codification of N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.4.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.4 states the requirements for providing public opportunity to be heard on a proposed rulemaking, including provisions concerning a 30-day comment period extension and/or conducting a public hearing if sufficient public interest is generated.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.5 sets forth the requirements for public hearings on a proposed rulemaking.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.6 establishes the rulemaking record that an agency must maintain.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.7 outlines the requirements for negotiating a rule.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.8 defines a Federally required proposed rule and provides that, unlike other proposals, such is not required to be submitted to the Legislature, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4.4. As P.L. 2001, c. 5, §11 repealed N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4.4 was repealed effective July 1, 2001, this section is likewise proposed for repeal.

Subchapter 6 contains rules that regulate the adoption procedure.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.1 sets forth the requirements for a notice of adoption.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.2 outlines the time requirements for filing a notice of adoption.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.3 establishes a framework for determining the propriety of substantive and technical changes upon adoption to a proposed rule or amendment.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.4 outlines Executive Order No. 66 (1978) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-5.1 rule expiration requirements. The OAL proposes to amend N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.4(f) to provide that, in order to maintain chapter effectiveness, the rules must be duly proposed for readoption, adopted and filed "on or before" (changed from "prior to") the chapter expiration date. This amendment reconciles this sentence with subsequent subsection language, conforming to established OAL practice.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.5 contains the procedure for filing an emergency adoption.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.6 specifies when adopted rules become effective.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-6.7 concerns the timely filing of a notice of adoption in order to avoid the expiration of a chapter or a proposed rulemaking, or to avoid a break in effectiveness between an emergency adoption and the adoption of a concurrent proposal.

As the OAL has provided a 60-day comment period on this notice of proposal, this notice is excepted from the rulemaking calendar requirements, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:30-3.3(a)5.

Social Impact

The readoption of N.J.A.C. 1:30, Rules for Agency Rulemaking, primarily affects all State agencies which are required or authorized by law to promulgate rules necessary to implement their respective statutory responsibilities. These rules provide uniform application and administration of the rule promulgation process as established under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and ensure that the public is afforded notice of an agency's proposed rulemaking action and the opportunity to comment on that proposed action. No social impact is anticipated from the proposed amendments and repeal.

Economic Impact

Although primarily procedural rules, N.J.A.C. 1:30 may have an economic impact on State agencies in that both administrative and professional staffs may be required to comply with the procedural requirements of the rulemaking rules. There may be an economic impact in that agency staff is required to draft Summaries and other statements for proposals, prepare summaries of public comments and agency responses for adoptions, respond to rulemaking petitions, conduct public hearings, and compile and retain the rulemaking record.

While the public input permitted under the Administrative Procedure Act rulemaking process may result in a non-quantifiable economic benefit to those regulated and society at large, except for the copy charge permitted under N.J.S.A. 47:1A-2 and any expense that would be incurred in preparing a petition for rulemaking, the application of these amended rules should have no direct economic impact on the public.

The review and maintenance of documents subject to these rules necessitates the employment of professional and administrative staff by OAL. Such staff cost is part of the OAL annual budget, and is not anticipated to change as a result of the rules proposed for readoption with amendments and repeal.

Federal Standards Statement

The Rules for Agency Rulemaking are promulgated under the authority of the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and are not subject to any Federal statutes, regulations or standards. Therefore, an analysis pursuant to Executive Order No. 27 (1994)/N.J.S.A. 52:14B-23 is not required.

Jobs Impact

The OAL does not anticipate that any jobs will be generated or lost by virtue of the rules proposed for readoption with amendments and repeal.

Agriculture Industry Impact

Except for the requirement to include in a notice of proposal an Agriculture Industry Impact statement, the rules proposed for readoption with amendments and repeal are not anticipated to have any impact upon the agriculture industry beyond those impacts generally described above. The requirement for inclusion of an Agriculture Industry Impact statement, at N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.1(c)6, merely reflects the requirement for such statement under N.J.S.A. 4:1C-10.3.a and 52:14B-4(a)(2). The presence of an Agriculture Industry Impact statement in proposals may serve to enhance awareness on the part of the agriculture community of the impact of State regulatory proposals, and, in conjunction with proposing agency consultation with the State Agricultural Development Committee, required in the circumstances specified in N.J.S.A. 4:1C-10.3.c, to lessen adverse economic effects of the proposal on the industry.

Regulatory Flexibility Analysis

The rules proposed for readoption with amendments and repeal primarily affect State agencies in regulating the rule promulgation process and, with the exceptions discussed below, do not impose reporting, recordkeeping or other compliance requirements on small businesses as the term is defined under the Regulatory Flexibility Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-16 et seq.

Those requesting copies of rule-related documents from OAL, or a copy of a rulemaking calendar from an agency, whether individuals or entities, must pay the copy fees set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:30- 1.9. These fees reflect the statutory charges at N.J.S.A. 47:1A-2. No small business would have to employ professional services to request copies or pay these fees. As the cost of document reproduction, in terms of equipment and labor, is unrelated to the business size of an entity requesting copies, no lesser fees or fee exceptions are provided small businesses.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-4.1(b) sets forth the content requirements of a petition for rulemaking, reiterating those established under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4(f). These requirements apply to anyone, including a small business, submitting a petition, and would involve only the costs of drafting and submitting the petition to an agency. No professional services need be employed to comply with these requirements. As the requirements are statutory, there is no differentiation in requirements based on business size.

In a case in which an agency in receipt of a petition for rulemaking has not complied with the mandatory time frames for response, a petitioner's request to the OAL Director to order a public hearing on the petition must be in writing. The only costs involved would be those for the preparation and delivery of the written request, and no professional services need be employed to comply. As this requirement arises under statute (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4(h)), no lesser requirement or exception can be provided for a small business petitioner.

Smart Growth Impact

Executive Order No. 4 (2002) requires State agencies to include a Smart Growth Impact statement in rulemaking notices of proposal. The requirement for this statement is reiterated in the Rules for Agency Rulemaking at N.J.A.C. 1:30-5.1(c)8. The statement is to relate the rulemaking's impact on the achievement of smart growth and the implementation of the State Development and Redevelopment Plan (State Plan). By providing the public and other interested parties information concerning the smart growth-related effects of a proposed rulemaking, the requirement for this statement may be viewed as having a positive impact on the achievement of smart growth and the implementation of the State Plan.

Full text of the rules proposed for readoption may be found in the New Jersey Administrative Code at N.J.A.C. 1:30.

If the chapter expiration date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday, the 180-day expiration date extension shall take effect if the filing of the notice of proposed readoption occurs no later than the next business day after the expiration date. The readopted rules are effective upon filing with the Office of Administrative Law.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed her minor child, T.P.'s, long-term suspension following an incident in September 2005 in which the child allegedly threatened and verbally abused a teacher. She contended that the respondent Board did not consider the child's medical condition when imposing the penalty of a suspension for the balance of the school year, and she requested that T.P. be returned to school. An application for emergent relief was filed, and a hearing scheduled.

Settlement discussions apparently took place on or prior to the hearing date although the record is unclear in this regard. The ALJ issued an Order of Dismissal of the emergent application and an Initial Decision dismissing the petition, stating that the case had been settled, and that T.P. had been returned to school on December 19, 2005.

Having received no exceptions stating to the contrary, the Commissioner is constrained to find that the petition and the application for emergent relief are moot, and accordingly adopts the Order of Dismissal of the emergent application and the Initial Decision dismissing the petition as the final decision in this matter.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTH ORANGE-MAPLEWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter, the Order of Dismissal issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 11, 2006, and the Initial Decision dated January 17, 2006. No exceptions were filed.

The petition and application for emergent relief were submitted to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on November 10, 2005, requesting that petitioner's minor child, T.P., be returned to school. T.P. had been suspended for the balance of the school year, with the possibility of returning to school sooner, provided certain conditions were met, including a mental health evaluation. The case was immediately transmitted to the OAL for a hearing.

A hearing on the emergent application was scheduled for November 21, 2005, and on November 18, 2005, respondent submitted its papers opposing the requested emergent relief. In both the above referenced Order of Dismissal and the Initial Decision, it states that "[d]uring the hearing, the parties requested that the case be continued to another date because they were discussing settlement terms."

Correspondence dated November 29, 2005, from respondent's counsel advised the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that respondent had agreed to meet to reconsider T.P.'s disciplinary case. Respondent asked that petitioner provide a medical report/evaluation, including information about T.P.'s medication and treatment, and an opinion about whether she posed a danger to herself or others. After the submission of that information, petitioner and respondent's superintendent would meet, the superintendent would make a recommendation to the respondent Board of Education (Board), and the Board would make a decision. It states in both the Order of Dismissal and Initial Decision that the OAL hearing was consequently adjourned to December 14, 2005.

On December 13, 2005, the day before the scheduled hearing, respondent's counsel submitted a letter brief and certifications urging that petitioner had neither sustained her burden to justify a grant of emergent relief, nor shown that respondent had acted arbitrarily or capriciously in imposing the suspension upon T.P.

Notwithstanding this indication that the issues in this matter were still unresolved on December 13, 2005, the ALJ reported in both the Order of Dismissal and the Initial Decision that the hearing date of December 14, 2005 "was adjourned because the case had been settled. T.P. was returned to school on December 19, 2005." Having received no exceptions stating to the contrary, the Commissioner is constrained to find that the petition and the application for emergent relief are moot.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Order of Dismissal of the emergent application and the Initial Decision dismissing the petition.

Such instruction shall be for a minimum of 10 hours per week and shall be in accordance with the Core Curriculum Content Standards and all other governing regulatory and statutory requirements. Home instruction shall continue until the appropriate program and placement for the petitioner O.O. has been determined, and he has been placed in that setting, pursuant to the assessment(s) and plan(s) described in (2) and (3) below. Petitioner O.O. shall make himself accessible to the instructor in accordance with the agreed-to schedule throughout the duration of the home instruction.

(2) On or before January 15, 2006, the Irvington Board of Education shall conduct an assessment of petitioner O.O.'s eligibility for special education and related services, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.4, and conduct an eligibility meeting, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.5; 6A:14-2.3(i). If the Eligibility Team determines that petitioner O.O. is in fact eligible for special education services, an IEP conference shall be held as soon as possible, but no later than 10 days from the completion of this assessment, and an IEP shall be prepared in collaboration with petitioners M.F. and O.O. In addition to special education and related services, the IEP developed for petitioner O.O. at this conference shall include provisions for all of the required and needed educational and educationally-related programs and services to which petitioner O.O. is entitled under the Abbott v. Burke rulings and implementing regulations, as well as any programs and services required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.1; 16-8.2.

Burke rulings and implementing regulations, as well as governing New Jersey regulation (e.g. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-1.1; 16-8.1; 16-8.2; 16-9.2), that are required and needed to address petitioner O.O.'s academic, behavioral, social, and health needs; and (3) goals and measurable benchmarks to insure that petitioner O.O. has a meaningful opportunity to earn a high school diploma in a timely manner. Thereafter, this educational plan should be reviewed at least annually for effectiveness by the multidisciplinary Intervention and Referral Team and petitioners M.F. and O.O., and modified as appropriate, as provided by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.2.

(4) Upon completion of the IEP, or in the alternative, of the educational plan, and agreement of the parties, the Board of Education of Irvington shall immediately implement the plan. Once the plan is implemented, petitioner O.O. shall agree to abide by all attendance and disciplinary regulations applicable to all students.

PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY, AND NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Former school security officer sought nullification of the Department's determination disqualifying him from school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, as well as reinstatement to his position with the Board of Education, from which he was terminated as a result of the disqualification. Petitioner contended that the criminal history record check conducted on him in 2003 – when it was discovered that no record existed of a prior check – should have been reviewed under the standards in effect in 1991, when petitioner was first employed by the Board and did everything necessary for the Board to initiate the required check. Petitioner further contended that the Department and Board should not be permitted to invoke N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 against him now, after not raising any issue as to his qualification during twelve years of employment.

The ALJ found that the Department acted correctly in its application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, which on its face requires the more stringent standards enacted in 1998 to apply to all record checks conducted thereafter, apart from certain specified exceptions not applicable to petitioner. The ALJ further found that the Board was required to terminate petitioner's employment upon the Department's finding of disqualification. In considering petitioner's equitable claim, the ALJ found that petitioner did not respond truthfully to job application questions regarding prior convictions. The ALJ thus upheld the actions of the Department and Board and dismissed the Petition of Appeal.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6088-03
AGENCY DKT. NO. 219-6/03

JOSEPH V. CIDONI,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY, AND NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have timely exceptions filed by petitioner and replies thereto by the Department of Education (Department) and the Camden Board of Education (Board).

In his exceptions, petitioner objects to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) failure to consider the Exhibits appended to Petitioner's certification—the authenticity of which was not disputed by respondents—as well as other evidence clearly indicating that petitioner did all that was required of him by way of authorizing a criminal history record check at the time he was first employed by the district. Such evidence, petitioner contends, demonstrates that: petitioner completed the requisite State background check form on September 3, 1991, and the document was notarized by a board employee and placed in petitioner's district personnel file; the document was recorded as received by a board employee on the district's internal personnel form; and petitioner completed a second, local district authorization form when asked a few months later in January 1992. In other words, petitioner asserts, he acted to provide all that was needed for the Board to initiate the criminal history record check required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 as it then existed, and had the check been conducted as required, petitioner would have been found qualified for employment because the offense for which he was subsequently disqualified was not disqualifying at that time; he should not then – after twelve years of employment during which the issue of his background was never raised by respondents – have been made to undergo a retroactively applicable check in 2003, by which time the law had changed. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1-6)

Petitioner also contends that the ALJ misapplied case law relating to the issues in this matter, arguing that Garvin, supra, is based upon the entirely different premise of an employee claiming that he should be found qualified because his offense occurred prior to the law's effective date, notwithstanding that his check was timely conducted after the amended law went into effect; and that Nunez, supra, supports rather than undermines petitioner's position, since the two petitioners' situations—both disqualified under the amended law when their checks should have been conducted under the prior law but were not through no fault of their own—are identical and Mr. Nunez was afforded relief despite the fact that he was found to have been untruthful in a subsequent authorization form, based upon the special circumstances of his case. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 6-8)

Finally, petitioner argues that, in any event, such inaccuracies as may appear in his local district employment applications cannot thwart a conclusion that he is entitled to reinstatement. Petitioner stresses that the Board's sole proffered reason for terminating his employment was his disqualification as a result of a State criminal history record check, and that—prior to post-pleading communications arising within the instant proceeding—misrepresentation in his application forms is nowhere mentioned as a reason for his termination, despite the Board having notice and access to his personnel files. Moreover, petitioner contends, the Board has not demonstrated that petitioner would have been terminated on this basis apart from State disqualification, nor could it do so given the length of time since his conviction, the nature and circumstances of his offense, and his good performance record as a Board employee. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 8-10)

In reply, the Department urges that the ALJ was entirely correct in concluding that petitioner's check was required to be assessed under the law as it existed at the time of the check, regardless of the date of petitioner's offense and regardless of any claim, where no record of a check can be found, that a prior check should have been conducted. The Department further argues that its position is supported, not undermined, by Nunez, supra, which held that the Department had applied the statute properly under similar circumstances. With respect to the amount of time petitioner remained employed without question of his criminal record, the Department notes the complete absence of any evidence indicating that a State record check had been initiated prior to 2003, so that petitioner cannot possibly meet his burden of proving intentional misrepresentation or concealment of facts, as would be necessary for him to invoke laches and equitable estoppel against the Department. Finally, the Department contends that the central issue herein is whether petitioner is disqualified from school employment, so that any argument on his part that misrepresentations on job applications are not relevant to termination of his employment should be ignored. (Department's Reply at 1-10)

For its part, the Board replies by emphasizing that the ALJ was correct in finding petitioner disqualified from school employment, and that the Nunez decision supports her conclusion in this regard. (Board's Reply at 1-3) To the extent that Nunez opens the door to equitable relief, the Board contends that Petitioner is precluded from receiving the benefits of equitable remedies because he deceived the Board about his background from the inception of his employment. (Id. at 3-4) The Board urges:

> "He who seeks equity must do equity." Kingsdorf v. Kingsdorf, 351 N.J. Super. 144, 157 (App. Div. 2002) citing Morsemere Federal Savings and Loan Association v. Nicolaou, 206 N.J. Super. 637, 645 (App. Div. 1986). The doctrine of unclean hands precludes any equitable remedy on Petitioner's behalf. The unclean hands doctrine is "that a suitor in equity must come into court with clean hands and he must keep them clean after his entry and throughout the proceedings." Id. at 156 citing Borough of Princeton v. Board of Chosen Freeholders, 169 N.J. 135 (2001). Unclean hands "gives expression to the equitable principle that a court should not grant relief to one who is a wrongdoer with respect to the subject matter in suit." Id. citing Faustin v. Lewis, 85 N.J. 507, 511 (1981). "Consequently, 'where the bad faith, fraud or unconscionable acts' of a party seeking equitable relief form the basis of his contention, equity may deny him its remedies." Id. citing Rolnick v. Rolnick, 262 N.J. Super. 343 (App. Div. 1993). (Id. at 3)

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the ALJ, for the reasons expressed therein as further explicated below.

Initially, the Commissioner observes that, although the ALJ does not cast it in exactly this manner, the fundamental issue here is the same as was addressed in Nunez, supra: whether an employee who, at the time of initial employment, did all that was necessary for the employing board of education to initiate the criminal history record check required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, is entitled – when it is later discovered that no check was ever conducted – to have the resulting "corrective action" check conducted under the terms of the law as it existed at the time the check should have been conducted rather than under the terms currently in effect.

Here, as in Nunez, the Commissioner holds clearly and unequivocally that any application for criminal history record check received by the Department must be reviewed and effectuated based upon the standards of law then in effect. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 states on its face that the provisions of P.L. 1998, c. 31 shall apply to criminal history record checks conducted on or after the effective date of that act (June 30, 1998), except in the case of an individual employed by a board of education who is required to undergo a check upon employment with another board of education.[1] In petitioner's case, as in Nunez, there is no evidence that any record check application on behalf of petitioner was received by the Department, and consequently no check was conducted prior to the remedial check of 2003; because petitioner's application at that time did not fall within the statutory exception provision of being checked in conjunction with changing employment from one school district to another, the Department acted in the only manner permitted to it by law in applying current standards to the results of petitioner's check and declaring him disqualified from school employment on that basis. Similarly, as a consequence of State disqualification, the respondent Board of Education had no alternative but to terminate petitioner's employment.[2]

However, again as in Nunez, the Commissioner must recognize the possibility of an equitable entitlement, demonstrable on appeal, for a petitioner to have his or her "corrective action" check re-evaluated by the Department on a nunc pro tunc

[1] Although the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that Garvin, supra, is not particularly germane to the pivotal issue herein, it does reinforce the general principle that application of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 is triggered by the date on which a record check is actually conducted, and not by the date of any prior event.

[2] It is noted that petitioner neither requested nor obtained a stay of such disqualification pending appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

basis, and, assuming a favorable outcome, to make a claim for reinstatement by the employing board of education. The question on which this matter ultimately turns, then, is whether petitioner has demonstrated such an entitlement.

Upon consideration of the record, the Commissioner concludes that petitioner has not. Although petitioner has borne his burden of demonstrating, through the documentation cited in his briefs and on exception, that he did everything necessary to enable the respondent Board to initiate the requisite criminal record check upon his initial employment in the Fall of 1991, his conduct subsequent to that time militates against a finding that he is entitled to equitable relief.

Specifically, the Commissioner notes that while petitioner truthfully swore on his September 3, 1991 State record check application that he had not been convicted of any of the enumerated crimes and offenses, he filled out a district form in conjunction with the same application wherein he responded "No" to the question of whether he had ever been convicted of any misdemeanor (Stipulation No. 8, Exhibit 6); he further signed a form in January 1992 authorizing release of criminal background information to the respondent Board, which form stated on its face that failure to disclose information about prior convictions could lead to disqualification from the job or dismissal if hired (Petitioner's Certification, Exhibit C). Subsequently, petitioner filled out a district form in conjunction with his 1994 application for the position of school security guard, wherein he indicated that he had never been convicted of any crime (Stipulation No. 10, Exhibit 7); he completed a similar form in conjunction with his 1997 application for the position of school security guard/law enforcement, wherein he again indicated that he had never been convicted of a crime (Stipulation No. 10, Exhibit 8). Both of these forms included a statement – signed by petitioner – attesting to the truth of the information set forth therein.

Neither is the Commissioner persuaded by petitioner's argument based upon Nunez, supra, the facts of which are distinguishable from those herein. In Nunez, the sole "misrepresentation" by petitioner – who had been consistently truthful otherwise and was found to be a credible witness at hearing – was to sign what appeared to be, but was not because of the intervening change in the law, the same form he had already signed a few years previously and was told needed to be redone. Under the specific factual circumstances of that matter, the Commissioner declined to find that this incident alone should foreclose the petitioner from the equitable relief to which he had otherwise demonstrated entitlement. Here, in contrast, the Commissioner is confronted with a petitioner who repeatedly denied ever being convicted of any crime or misdemeanor, and whose explanation for his misrepresentation – that he didn't think of his conviction as a crime, but as a "minor licensing infraction" (Petitioner's Certification No. 7) – is belied by the documentation surrounding his arrest and conviction, which attests to his carrying of a concealed, fully loaded handgun for which he had neither a license nor legal authority to so carry under the applicable statute, and to his having been fined $500 and placed on two years' probation. (Stipulation Nos. 4, 5, 6; Exhibits 1, 4)

Finally, the Commissioner is not persuaded by petitioner's argument that any "inaccuracies" on his local district employment application forms are of no import in this matter. Given that petitioner is arguing for equity, it is disingenuous in the extreme for him to ignore the fact that truthful responses on those forms – of which there were three spanning several years beginning with his initial employment, one of them for a bus aide position and two of them for school security positions – would surely have alerted the Board to a need to make further inquiry into his criminal record, or to verify the results of his State record check, before entrusting him with the safety of school children as a bus aide or security officer.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, affirming petitioner's disqualification from school employment and dismissing the Petition of Appeal, is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and above.

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals from termination of his employment as a school law enforcement officer due to a criminal background check result pursuant N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. He requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. The parties have stipulated no genuine issue of material fact exists in this matter and have submitted cross-motions for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. The sole issue presented is whether or not the petitioner should have been disqualified from his employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The parties have stipulated the following facts which shall constitute FINDINGS OF FACT. On March 23, 1984, Joseph Cidoni was arrested in East Lampeter Township, Pennsylvania, and charged with violating 6106A of the Uniform Firearms Act, Chapter 61; i.e., carrying a firearm without a license. (J-1) On January 29, 1984, Cidoni had been issued a permit to purchase a handgun and form of register by the state of New Jersey. (J-2) On July 11, 1984, Cidoni pled guilty in the Court of Common Pleas, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. (J-4) On October 1, 1991, the Camden Board of Education (hereinafter "BOE") hired Cidoni as a bus/teacher aide. (J-5) He completed an application for this position but does not recall the date. (J-6) The State Department of Education Criminal History Review Unit has no documentation regarding any criminal history background check performed in connection with his employment with the Board in 1991 or any subsequent time until the year 2003. He submitted an application dated February 16, 1994, for the position of school security guard and on November 21, 1997, for school security guard/law enforcement. He was reappointed on an annual basis as a bus/teacher aide until he was appointed a school law enforcement officer on July 30, 2001. (J-9) This employment continued through the 2001-2002 school year. He was thereafter appointed to this position for the 2002-2003 school year. (J-10) Based upon a check of Cidoni's fingerprints dated May 6, 2003, a report was prepared for the Department of Education, Office of Criminal History Review (hereinafter "DOE"), which contained an entry "Court-State Police Harrisburg," " Charge CC6106A Firearm Carried w/o a licen M1 Sentence – Conviction/Plead Guilty/County Probation/Max – Sentence 02 Yrs/Costs/Restitution." (J-12) By letter dated May 12, 2003, Carl Carabelli, Manager of the Criminal History Review Unit, advised Cidoni that a fingerprint check revealed the disqualifying offense of "carrying firearm without license" and that he was "permanently disqualified from employment in any position with a school or other educational institution under the supervision of the Department of Education or with a contracted service provided under contract with said school or educational facility." (J-13) By letter dated May 12, 2003, Carabelli advised Camden City BOE Superintendent Annette Knox of the results of the fingerprint check and the notification to Cidoni. He also requested she advise the DOE "as to the final disposition of the applicant's employment." (J-14) By letter of May 16, 2003, Camden City BOE informed Cidoni that based upon its receipt of a notice of disqualification from employment from the State, and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, that he would be terminated immediately. (J-15) By Board action on May 28, 2003, Cidoni's employment was terminated effective June 1, 2003, based solely on his fingerprint disqualification. (J-16) By letter dated May 30, 2003, Cidoni was informed that his employment was terminated effective June 1, 2003 due to fingerprint disqualification. (J-17)

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 provides, in pertinent part,

> (A) ... school, or school system under the supervision of the Department of Education and board of education ... involved in the education of children under the age of 18 shall not employ or contract for the services of any teaching staff member or substitute teacher, teacher aide, ... school law enforcement officer, ... or any other person serving in a position which involves regular contact with pupils unless the employer has first determined consistent with the requirements and standards of this act, that no criminal history record information exists on file in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Identification Division, or the State Bureau of Identification which would disqualify that individual from being employed or utilized in such capacity or position. ...
> An individual, except as provided in subsection g. of this section, shall be permanently disqualified from employment or service > under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction for any crime of the first or second degree; or > a. An offense as set forth in chapter 14 of Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes, or as set forth in N.J.S.2C:24-4 and 2C:24-7, or as set forth in R.S.9:6-1 et seq., or as set forth in N.J.S.2C:29-2; or ...

>
> d. For the purposes of this section, a conviction exists if the individual has at any time been convicted under the laws of this State or under any similar statutes of the United States or any other state for a equivalent crime or other offense. .....
>
> g. This section shall first apply to criminal history record checks conducted on or after the effective date of P.L. 1998, c. 31 (C.18A:6-7.1c et al.); except that in the case of an individual employed by a board of education or a contracted service provider who is required to undergo a check upon employment with another board of education or contracted service provider, the individual shall be disqualified only for the following offenses:
>
> (1) any offense enumerated in this section prior to the effective date of P.L. 1998, c. 31 (C.18A:6-7.1cetal.);and
> (2) any offense enumerated in this section which had not been enumerated in this section prior to the effective date of P.L. 1998, c. 31 (C.18A:6-7.1c et al.), if the person was convicted of that offense on or after the effective date of that act.

This statute was in effect in 2002. Petitioner asserts this amended version of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 should not apply to him because the 2003 background check revealed the 1984 conviction which was not a disqualifying offense in 1991 when a prior version of the statute was in effect. He asserts that the current version of the statute should not be applied to him "retroactively" so as to terminate his employment, which he has had for approximately 12 years. He asserts the statute was not meant to apply to current employees. He further asserts, but offers no proofs, that he is being treated differently than other employees of Boards of Education hired prior to the statutory amendments and that those employees were not disqualified from employment despite having a disqualifying conviction under the amended statute. He asserts that by not raising an issue with regard to his background for 12 years, the BOE should now be foreclosed from applying the provisions of the amended statute retroactively. Finally, he asserts this matter is similar to Nunez v. New Jersey Department of Education, wherein the Commissioner found that

Nunez complied with the necessary criminal background check and was afforded the opportunity to demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to the statute. OAL Docket No. EDU 6088-03, reversed and remanded, Commissioner (May 26, 2005) Petitioner asserts he complied with each succeeding request over the course of his 12 year employment history with the BOE, was convicted of a less serious offense than Nunez and had an excellent employment history as evidenced by the letters from Principal Davida Coe (J-F) and Chief of Security James Thornton. (J-G)

Respondents contend in separate oppositions and cross motions that the statute is not being applied retroactively to the petitioner and that he has misinterpreted the statute to read that it does not apply to current employees. They assert the language of the statute is clear that it shall apply to criminal history background checks performed on or after June 30, 1998. The triggering event is the date of the background check and not the date of conviction. Thus, there is no viable concern of retroactive application of the statute; it is prospectively being applied to Cidoni and the criminal background check which occurred in 2003, approximately five years after the effective date of the statute. I concur, and FIND the respondents' interpretation of the statute is supported by the plain meaning of the statute and further by Commissioner's decision in Anthony Garvin v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, OAL Docket No. EDU 7455-55 (March 27, 2002), aff'd, Commissioner (May 20, 2002).

Based on the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the respondent DOE properly disqualified petitioner from employment in any position under its supervision and the respondent Camden City BOE properly thereafter terminated his employment effective June 1, 2003.

Although this resolves the issue, other matters raised by petitioner necessitate further, but brief, comment. The exception to the statute, in section g, does not apply to the petitioner as he contends. That applies only to employees or contracted service providers required to undergo a background check upon employment with another board of education. Petitioner's assertion of selective application of the statute is hearsay unsupported by the Residuum Rule. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. Nunez cannot be interpreted to allow petitioner herein an opportunity to demonstrate rehabilitation. In Nunez, the Commissioner found the petitioner answered the questions asked of him truthfully. Although the petitioner herein was disqualified and subsequently terminated based on the fingerprint results only, I FIND based upon a review of the applications he submitted that he did not answer truthfully on: the February 16, 1994 application for school security guard position wherein he certified that he had never been convicted of a crime; and the November 21, 1997 application for school law enforcement officer wherein he certified he had never been convicted of a crime.

DECISION AND ORDER

Petitioner's disqualification from employment in any position under the supervision of the New Jersey Department of Education and termination from employment with the Camden City Board of Education effective June 1, 2003, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 is hereby AFFIRMED and petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN TALTY :

AND SHARON KIGHT, :

BRICK TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION, :

OCEAN COUNTY. :

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

This matter arose from complaints filed against two members of the Brick Township Board of Education, alleging violations of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. The two complaints were filed by one individual, Robert Lanzieri, and alleged that both respondents physically and verbally attacked Mr. Lanzieri at the March 17, 2005 Board Meeting.

Following a hearing and review of written summations, the School Ethics Commission (Commission) found that: 1) Mr. Talty did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 (e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members, and 2) Ms. Kight did violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 (e); the Commission recommended a sanction of a two-month suspension for Ms. Kight.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, concurred with the Commission's recommendation. The Commissioner thus ordered that Sharon Kight be suspended from the Brick Township Board of Education for a period of two months.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 51-1/06

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN TALTY	:
AND SHARON KIGHT,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BRICK TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
OCEAN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), including the recommended penalty of a two month suspension, have been reviewed.

This matter comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon Sharon Kight, member of the Brick Township Board of Education, based upon findings of fact and conclusions of law by the Commission that she violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the School Ethics Act when she took private action in confronting a member of the public in a verbal and physical manner regarding his comments during the public comment session at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting.[1]

Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, the parties were provided 13 days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. Comments on behalf of Ms. Kight and complainant, Robert Lanzieri, were timely filed by their respective counsel.[2] Ms. Kight's comments profess that, based on the facts of this matter, a penalty of a two-month suspension is "disproportionately

[1] It is noted that at its January 24, 2006 public meeting, the School Ethics Commission found that Mr. Talty did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and voted to dismiss the complaint against him.

[2] Stephen K. Foran, Esq. for Ms. Kight; John G. Koufos Esq. for Mr. Lanzieri severe" in that the Commission's decision readily admits that there was contradictory testimony with respect to the interaction which took place with Mr. Lanzieri. Moreover, she advances, there was "no reasonable proof" offered that she either had physical contact with him or that she used any inappropriate language. Although it is true that she was admittedly "upset" with Mr. Lanzieri, Ms. Kight urges that a board member's tone of voice and annoyed demeanor are simply insufficient justification for imposing the draconian penalty of a two-month suspension. (Ms. Kight's comments at 1)

Ms. Kight further contends that the Commission's finding that her actions intimidated Mr. Lanzieri and made him fearful of addressing the Board in the future are unfounded. Rather, she points out, the "lengthy diatribes" which he addressed to the Board prior to this incident continued subsequent to that time. Specifically, she contends, he spoke at length at Board meetings of July 11, August 25, September 15 and November 17, 2005, wholly dispelling notions of fear and intimidation. (Id.)

Finally, Ms. Kight cites to three prior Ethics Commission cases which she proposes evidence the undue harshness of the sanction imposed here, i.e., In the Matter of Edmund J. Zilinski, Bloomfield Board of Education, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner November 23, 2005, (Board member organized confidential information containing the names of suspended students on a spreadsheet and accidentally transmitted the information to other Board members); In the Matter of Bruce Freilich, Washington Township Board of Education, Burlington County, decided by the Commissioner April 4, 2005, (Board member sent an unauthorized letter to a private donor); and In the Matter of Alphonse A. DeMeo, Bellville Board of Education, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner November 17, 2004, (Board member endorsed a municipal council candidate by mailing letters on stationery which could be viewed as an endorsement made in the Board member's capacity as Board President). Ms. Kight submits that, unlike the situation here which the Commission concedes is based on unclear and disputed facts, each of the cited cases was based on uncontested facts and the penalty imposed was only a reprimand. Ms. Kight argues that, under these circumstances and in light of the nature of her offense, logic dictates a lesser not more severe penalty be imposed. (Ms. Kight's comments at 2)

Mr. Lanzieri's comments urge the Commissioner to uphold the Commission's recommended penalty arguing that it is entirely appropriate "given Ms. Kight's unprofessional, irrational and violent behavior which has a chilling effect on how others may exercise their right to public comment in the future." (Mr. Lanzieri's comments at 1)

Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner finds Ms. Kight's arguments in support of mitigation of penalty unpersuasive. Notwithstanding the Commission's recognition of the existence of contradictory evidence as to exactly what transpired in the Kight/Lanzieri interaction, it specifically found:

> [t]he weight of the evidence shows that Ms. Kight approached Mr. Lanzieri in an aggressive manner, screamed at him and threatened him. There is also evidence to show that she made some type of physical contact with Mr. Lanzieri. The evidence > also shows that her actions have had an impact on both Mr. Lanzieri and Mr. Dubrosky, who do not feel comfortable speaking at Board meetings. The Commission finds that such aggressive actions had the potential to compromise the Board because the actions hurt the integrity of the Board and intimidated the public from coming forward and addressing the Board.

> (Ethics Commission Decision at 5)

It cannot reasonably be disputed that a Board member's loss of control with a member of the public does a disservice to her Board, which relies upon her to conduct herself properly and appropriately in fulfilling her responsibilities, and that such an interaction could have deleterious effects on not only Mr. Lanzieri and Mr. Dubrosky but other members of the public viewing the altercation and, therefore, must be viewed as serious in nature.[3] The Commissioner's review persuades her that, in recommending a penalty for this violation, the Commission fully considered the nature of the offense and weighed the effects of aggravating and mitigating circumstances. Consequently, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Sharon Kight be suspended from the Brick Township Board of Education for a period of two months[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

[3] It is noted that none of the cases advanced by Ms. Kight in support of her position is similar enough in nature or factual circumstances to the instant matter so as to provide precedential support for her position.

[5] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination regarding penalty in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. BRICK TOWNSHIP	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION	:
OCEAN COUNTY	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from two complaints filed by Robert Lanzieri against John Talty and Sharon Kight, both members of the Brick Township Board of Education (Board) alleging violations of the School Ethics Act (Act) N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. The first complaint, C18-05, filed on April 15, 2005, alleges that Mr. Talty violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act when, at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, he physically and verbally attacked Mr. Lanzieri. The second complaint, C19-05, also filed on April 15, 2005, alleges that Ms. Kight violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when, at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, she physically and verbally attacked Mr. Lanzieri.

After receipt of the complaints, the Commission forwarded both complaints to Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight and notified them that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.5(a), they had 20 days to submit an answer under oath to the Commission. Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight filed timely responses wherein they both denied that they physically and verbally assaulted Mr. Lanzieri. They also both denied that they violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. Ms. Kight informed the Commission that a hearing on assault charges was pending in municipal court. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-32, the Commission had to hold the matter in abeyance until such time as the municipal matter was resolved. On October 14, 2005, Mr. Lanzieri's attorney informed the Commission that the criminal complaint had been withdrawn, but that Mr. Lanzieri still intended to go forward with the ethic's complaint.

The Commission invited Mr. Lanzieri and his attorney, John Koufos, Esquire, and Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight and their attorney, Thomas Monahan, Esquire, to attend its November 22, 2005 meeting to present witnesses and testimony for a hearing to determine whether the respondents' conduct violated the Code of Ethics. The parties were also notified that their attendance at the hearing was not required. All the parties and their attorneys attended the hearing. At its November 22, 2005 meeting, the Commission consolidated C18-05 and C19-05 for a hearing. Mr. Lanzieri and his witnesses John Bendokas, a former Board member, and Geoffrey Dubrosky testified. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8, cross-examination of the witnesses was allowed. Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight and their witnesses Danielle Medina and John Barrett also testified.

At the November 22, 2005 meeting, after presentation of the testimony, the Commission voted to table the matter and requested that counsel for both parties provide simultaneous written summations on behalf of their clients by December 12, 2005.

The closing statement of Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight was timely filed by Mr. Monohan, Esq. on December 9, 2005. In his closing statement, Mr. Monahan stressed that Mr. Lanzieri had withdrawn the criminal complaint he had filed against Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight in the Brick Township Municipal Court based on the same facts that gave rise to the complaints filed before the Commission. Mr. Monahan argues that the voluntary withdrawal of those charges contradicts any testimony which Mr. Lanzieri or his witnesses gave during the November 22, 2005 hearing before the Commission. Mr. Monahan argued that there was no evidence that Mr. Talty physically and verbally abused Mr. Lanzieri at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting. Instead, Mr. Monahan claimed that Mr. Talty knew Mr. Lanzieri from church and other activities and had approached Mr. Lanzieri in an attempt to calm him down. In the closing statement, it is admitted that Mr. Talty placed his hand upon the shoulder of Mr. Lanzieri; however, Mr. Monahan maintains that it was done for the purpose of calming Mr. Lanzeiri and was not a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

With respect to Ms. Kight, Mr. Monahan maintains that, prior to the executive session of the Board on March 17, 2005, Ms. Kight walked up the aisle not to confront Mr. Lanzieri, but to meet with her husband as was her usual custom. Mr. Monahan maintains that because Ms. Kight felt that Mr. Lanzieri belittled Mr. Talty, she briefly exchanged words with Mr. Lanzieri and continued up the aisle to meet her husband. Mr. Monahan points out that the newspaper reporter, Danielle Medina, would have prepared a newspaper article if anything significant had happened between Ms. Kight and Mr. Lanzieri, but since there was just a brief exchange of words, there was no newspaper story. Mr. Monahan maintains that Ms. Kight was merely expressing her opinion when she spoke with Mr. Lanzieri, which is not a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e). Mr. Monahan argues that, based on previous Commission decisions, there was no private action taken by either Ms. Kight or Mr. Talty and, thus Mr. Lanzeiri failed to demonstrate a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

The Commission reviewed and considered the closing statements of the parties at its December 20, 2005 meeting and voted to find that Mr. Talty did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act. The Commission voted to find that Ms. Kight violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and recommended a sanction of a two-month suspension.

FACTS

The Commission based its findings on the following facts.

At all times relevant to these complaints, Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight were members of the Board. Subsequent to the filing of the complaint, Ms. Kight became Board President. Mr. Lanzieri co-founded Friends of Parents of Autistic Children (POAC). Mr. Lanzieri and Mr. Talty know each other from church and other functions.

At the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, Mr. Talty asked the Superintendent if the funds set aside for the roof were going to be spent to fix the roof. Mr. Talty testified that in the past this had been a problem with the roof leaking and many parents had complained about the leaky roof. The Superintendent told Mr. Talty that the funds would be spent to fix the leaky roof.

Mr. Lanzieri testified that, at the March, 17, 2005 Board meeting, he was sitting in the back on the right on an end seat and Mr. Bendokas was sitting in front of him. He further testified that, at that time, he was recovering from very recent back surgery. During the public comment portion of the meeting, Mr. Lanzieri got up to speak. Although, Mr. Lanzieri testified that he spoke to the Board as a whole, there is testimony from Mr. Talty, Ms. Kight and Ms. Medina that Mr. Lanzieri directed his comments towards Mr. Talty. There is contradictory testimony regarding exactly what Mr. Lanzieri said when he addressed the Board; however, there is consensus that he made comments regarding the fact that the Board was focusing on the roof when they should be focusing on the loss of 22 positions. Mr. Talty responded to Mr. Lanzieri's comments, and Mr. Lanzieri made another comment. The Board President stopped Mr. Talty from responding again and cut off further discussion on the subject. Ms. Kight testified that the comments from Mr. Lanzieri made her very upset to the point that she was shaking.

Mr. Lanzieri testified that, generally, when the meetings go into executive session, the Board members usually leave to the right. However, both Ms. Kight and Ms. Medina testified that Ms. Kight usually talks to her husband before the Board's executive sessions. Thus, she usually goes to meet her husband who is in the audience.

There is contradictory testimony regarding Ms. Kight's behavior when the Board broke for executive session. Mr. Lanzieri testified that Ms. Kight came up to him screaming. He said she pointed her finger and pushed him with her forearm and elbow. He further testified that she said that she would get him and her organization. Mr. Bendokas, who was sitting right in front of Mr. Lanzieri, testified that Ms. Kight approached Mr. Lanzieri with a very direct and focused movement. He further testified that she was shouting at Mr. Lanzieri regarding his comments to Mr. Talty and then she poked Mr. Lanzieri with her finger. Mr. Dubrowsky testified that he saw Ms. Kight running toward Mr. Lanzieri saying that she will get him. Mr. Lanzieri testified that Ms. Kight's husband pulled her away from the commotion. Ms. Medina testified that Ms. Kight was very upset and annoyed as her husband led her out.

Ms. Kight testified that when the Board went into executive session, she picked up her binder and folders and headed up the aisle toward her husband to ask him if he wanted to stay. She further testified that she then turned to Mr. Lanzieri and said that what he had said to Mr. Talty was cruel and uncalled for. She testified that she did not touch Mr. Lanzieri since her hands were full with her notebook and folders. Ms. Kight demonstrated by standing up with a lagre binder in her hands to show that she could not have possibly touched Mr. Lanzieri because of the size of the binder. However, the Commission notes that in her demonstration, she put the large binder in her right hand while she gestured with her left hand. Ms. Kight further testified that her husband, who was sitting across the aisle from Mr. Lanzieri, grabbed her to lead her away from Mr. Lanzieri.

After Ms. Kight was led away by her husband, Mr. Talty headed up the aisle on the right. Mr. Talty testified that he heard an argument between Ms. Kight's son and Mr. Lanzieri regarding Ms. Kight. He further testified that he saw Mr. Lanzieri and put his hand on Mr. Lanzieri's shoulder. Mr. Lanzieri told him to take his hand off, which he did. Mr. Lanzieri and Mr. Dubrowsky both testified that Mr. Talty placed his hand on Mr. Lanzieri's shoulder twice. Mr. Bendokas, Mr. Dubrowsky and Ms. Medina all testified that when Mr. Talty put his hand on Mr. Lanzieri's shoulder, it was in an attempt to diffuse the situation and calm down Mr. Lanzieri. Mr. Talty testified that after his attempt to speak with Mr. Lanzieri he left saying, "There is no talking to you tonight."

Both Mr. Lanzieri and Mr. Dubrowsky testified that, after the events at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, they do not feel comfortable speaking out at Board meetings.

As an initial matter, the Commission notes that Mr. Lanzieri bears the burden of proving factually any violations of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29.

Mr. Lanzieri alleges that Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the Act when, at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, they both physically and verbally attacked Mr. Lanzieri. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) provides:

> I will recognize that authority rests with the board of education and will make no personal promises nor take any private action that may compromise the board.

Since there is no promise involved, in order to prove a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), Mr. Lanzieri must show that Mr. Talty and Ms. Kight took private action that had the potential to compromise the Board. When Mr. Talty approached Mr. Lanzieri after the Board broke for executive session at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting, he did place his hand on Mr. Lanzieri's shoulder twice. However, the evidence shows that he did so in an attempt to calm Mr. Lanzieri down. Furthermore, he walked away from Mr. Lanzieri when he realized that he could not get through to him. Mr. Talty's actions had no potential to compromise the Board because he was trying to diffuse the situation; he was not there to confront or argue with Mr. Lanzieri. Therefore, the Commission finds that Mr. Talty did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

In regards to Ms. Kight, the Commission notes that there is contradictory testimony regarding her interaction with Mr. Lanzieri. Ms. Kight testified that she was so upset with Mr. Lanzieri's comments during the public comment portion of the meeting that she was shaking. She further testified that she walked calmly towards her husband and turned to Mr. Lanzieri. However, Mr. Lanzieri and two witnesses testified that she walked up to Mr. Lanzieri in an aggressive manner. Ms. Kight denies that she touched Mr. Lanzieri. However, Mr. Lanzieri and two witnesses testified that she either pointed her finger at him or pushed him. There is also evidence that Ms. Kight told Mr. Lanzieri that she would get him and his organization. Even Ms. Kight's witness, Ms. Medina testified that Ms. Kight was upset and annoyed as her husband led her out. All the witnesses agree that the interaction between Ms. Kight and Mr. Lanzieri was so heated that her husband had to pull her away.

Ms. Kight's actions were clearly private actions since they occurred during a break in the Board meeting. She was not acting in her official Board capacity since she was no longer engaged in the Board meeting. The evidence shows that she was headed towards her husband to see if he was going to stay while she was participating in the executive session of the Board. She testified that she then turned towards Mr. Lanzieri to discuss his comments. The Commission must determine if Ms. Kight's private action had the potential to compromise the Board. The weight of the evidence shows that Ms. Kight approached Mr. Lanzieri in an aggressive manner, screamed at him and threatened him. There is also evidence to show that she made some type of physical contact with Mr. Lanzieri. The evidence also shows that her actions have had an impact on both Mr. Lanzeiri and Mr. Dubrosky, who do not feel comfortable speaking at Board meetings. The Commission finds that such aggressive actions had the potential to compromise the Board because the actions hurt the integrity of the Board and intimidated the public from coming forward and addressing the Board. Therefore, the Commission finds that Ms. Kight violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) when she took private action in confronting Mr. Lanzieri in a verbal and physical manner regarding his comments during the public comment session at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting.

DECISION

For the reasons discussed above, the Commission finds that Mr. Talty did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and dismisses the complaint against him. The Commission also finds that Ms. Kight violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) when she took private action in confronting Mr. Lanzieri in a verbal and physical manner regarding his comments during the public comment session at the March 17, 2005 Board meeting. The Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of a two-month suspension because of Ms. Kight's aggressive interaction with a member of the public who commented during a Board meeting.

This decision has been adopted by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission. This matter shall now be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within 13 days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, Ms. Kight may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

LYDIA ANDERSON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a non-tenured teacher formerly employed by the Board, challenged the determination of the respondent to not renew her contract for the 2002-2003 school year. She asserts the actual reason for non-renewal is her national origin, specifically that she is foreign born. Respondent Board asserts that petitioner's non-renewal was the result of budgetary concerns and unsatisfactory performance in the classroom.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner's testimony regarding hearsay remarks of a discriminatory nature lacked credibility; petitioner failed to prove, by a preponderance of evidence, a prima facie case of discrimination; and respondent Board established a legitimate basis for non-renewal of petitioner based on budgetary reasons and performance reasons. The ALJ ordered that the determination of the respondent Board be affirmed, and dismissed the petition with prejudice.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, and adopts the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

LYDIA ANDERSON,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have exceptions submitted by petitioner and replies thereto by the Board of Education (Board).[1]

Petitioner takes exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) findings of fact, reiterating her contention that the evaluations on which the Board purportedly relied in determining not to renew her contract of employment were fabricated, and that these—together with the budget crisis on which the Board also purportedly relied—were nothing more than a pretense to cover the Board's real reason for nonrenewal, that is, discrimination based on petitioner's national origin. Petitioner also argues that the Board never voted on her nonrenewal, that she received communications from the district suggesting she was still employed for the following school year, that the statements treated as hearsay by the ALJ occurred exactly as petitioner reported them and should have been credited accordingly, and that certain arguments submitted in Board briefs should have been disregarded because they went beyond the topic of briefing requested by the ALJ. Petitioner asks that her claim be remanded to the ALJ for "retrial as stated in Article 10 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," since she did not receive the "fair hearing" to which she is entitled. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1-10, quotation at 13-10) In reply, the Board contends that petitioner's exceptions provide no basis on which to upset the ALJ's ruling, and that they further fail to comport with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. (Board's Reply at 1-2)

Upon careful consideration of the record in light of arguments on exception, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the ALJ.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that virtually all of petitioner's objections to the Initial Decision are fundamentally rooted in her disagreement with the ALJ's credibility determinations and with the resultant weighing of testimonial and documentary evidence, including the extent to which the ALJ credited hearsay and written communications which petitioner claimed to have, but did not produce at hearing.

The standard of law with respect to objections of this type is well established,[2] and in the present instance, the Commissioner finds the ALJ's credibility and fact determinations to be both clearly explained in the Initial Decision and sufficiently supported by the record. She further finds that petitioner has offered nothing in her exceptions that would warrant disturbing the deference to which the ALJ—as the finder of fact who had the greatest opportunity to observe the demeanor of witnesses—is entitled in this regard. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987).

> The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. In rejecting or modifying any findings of fact, the agency head shall state with particularity the reasons for rejecting the findings and shall make new or modified findings supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record.

Additionally, to the extent that petitioner places import on the fact that the Board did not actually vote to nonrenew her employment, the Commissioner observes that no such vote is required, either initially upon the superintendent's recommendation or following the employee's informal appearance before the board. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b);[3] Angelo Velasquez v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brielle, Monmouth County, State Board of Education, August 6, 1997.

Finally, the Commissioner finds nothing in the record to suggest that petitioner was denied any right of due process to which she was entitled in the present proceeding, and, consequently, there is no basis on which to conclude that this matter should be remanded to the OAL for "retrial" as petitioner requests.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, a non-tenured teacher, is challenging the determination of the District to not renew her contract for the 2002-03 school year. She asserts the actual reason for the non-renewal is her national origin, specifically, she is foreign born.[1]

[1] I note there is nothing in the record which even approaches discrimination based on a specific national origin or ethnic background. As I set forth in the Findings of Fact, Petitioner alleges she was non-renewed because she is a foreigner.

On August 15, 2003, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

Respondent filed an application to dismiss for lack of timeliness in filing the petition and a briefing schedule was set. On May 5, 2004, I entered an order denying the application to dismiss the petition and ordering the parties to proceed with discovery. The hearing was scheduled for January 7, 10, and 11, 2005; however, these dates were adjourned at the request Petitioner and with the concurrence of Respondent. The matter was rescheduled for hearing on September 7 and 8, 2005, at which time the hearing took place.

The parties requested an opportunity to submit written summations and a schedule was set; Petitioner requested and received an extension of time to submit her argument to which Respondent submitted a response. The record closed on December 12, 2005, after my receipt of both summations and my review of the file.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of fact, which are essentially undisputed, in this matter.

1) Respondent is a local Board of Education operating pursuant to mandates promulgated by New Jersey Statutes Title 18A and certain other Administrative authority, State and Federal Law.

2) Petitioner is a woman of West Indian origin. She had 15 years teaching experience in Jamaica before coming to the United States. She holds a K-8 teaching certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners.

3) Petitioner was hired by Respondent as a third grade teacher, effective September 1, 2000 (P-5).

4) Petitioner taught a self-contained third grade class.

5) Petitioner received a letter on May 14, 2002, informing her that the then Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Ernest H. Smith, Jr., would not be recommending the renewal of her employment contract for the 2002-03 school year (R-2).

6) After timely notification of her non-renewal, Petitioner requested a statement of reasons for the non-renewal from the Superintendent (R-3; R-4).

7) On August 16, 2002, Petitioner received a letter from Dr. Smith enumerating the reasons for her non-renewal. The reasons are:

(1) budgetary issues;
(2) November 1, 2001 unsatisfactory evaluation;
(3) January 31, 2002 unsatisfactory evaluation;
(4) Poor classroom management skills;
(5) Failure to demonstrate effective teaching strategies necessary to engage students;
(6) Failure to create atmosphere conducive to learning (R-5).

8. Petitioner requested an informal appearance before the Board to try and convince the Board to offer re-employment, despite the decision of the Superintendent to non-renew. No action was taken by the Board to offer employment.

9. On February 26, 2003, Petitioner alleged having an unsolicited conversation with a member who took office in April 2002.

10. Ethel Davion, Assistant Superintendent for Academic Affairs, informally observed Petitioner numerous times, conducted walk throughs and spoke with the math supervisor at least two times regarding concerns about Petitioner's performance.

11. After a walkthrough conducted by Ms. Davion during the 2001-02 school year, she reported to Petitioner's supervisor and the building principal her concerns of Petitioner's lack of classroom control and the fact that Petitioner had asked her to watch her students.

12. Ms. Davion noted that Petitioner was working hard, but ineffectively and inefficiently.

13. Petitioner's building Principal, Richard Graves, never received any complaints from Petitioner regarding the alleged discriminatory remarks she claims to have overheard from various staff members regarding her national origin.

14. Graves further indicated that he had concerns regarding Petitioner's quality of teaching and that supervisors would go to certain teachers' classrooms more frequently in part based upon classroom management skills.

15. Petitioner has not alleged any discriminatory intent or motive on behalf of the former Superintendent, Dr. Smith, or Ms. Davion, Assistant Superintendent of Academic Affairs and part of the executive cabinet that reviewed personnel matters and made decisions to non-renew.

16. Petitioner was evaluated in November 2001 and was given an unsatisfactory evaluation (R-6).

17. The pre-observation conference is listed as November 1, 2001. The date of the evaluation is listed on the evaluation form as November 1, 2001 (R-8).

18. Ms. Anderson's attendance records for that date show that she was not in school on November 1, 2001 (P-2).

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The issue to be resolved in this matter is whether Petitioner sustained her burden of proving, by a preponderance of credible evidence, the overriding reason for the non-renewal of her contract as a non-tenured teacher by the District was discriminatory in nature in violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. Because Petitioner's claim is premised on a purported remark made by the deceased President of the Board of Education and purportedly reported to Petitioner at a chance meeting months after Petitioner's contract was not renewed, I requested the parties to also brief the issue of the admissibility of certain statements allegedly made by a declarant who was unavailable to testify.

In order to resolve whether the statement which, it has been alleged, was made by the President of the Irvington Board of Education, is admissible, I must first determine whether the statement is hearsay and, if it is, whether it falls within one of the several exceptions to the to the hearsay exclusion. Hearsay is defined as an out of court statement, offered in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted. N.J.R.E. 801(c). Generally, hearsay is not admissible; there are, however, a number of specific exceptions to the general rule. N.J.R.E. 802.[2]

In this case, Petitioner testified she encountered a former Board member several months after her employment ended. According to Petitioner, at this chance encounter, the Board member reported a remark made by the Board President which the Board member claimed to have heard. Specifically, according to Petitioner, that remark was: "Even if she's right, she is a foreigner, why are you taking sides with her," (sic)

There is no question this purported remark is an out of court statement; moreover, because Petitioner is claiming discrimination based on national origin, it is offered as evidence of a discriminatory bias on the part of the Board President. Accordingly, I FIND, it is offered as evidence of the truth of Petitioner's claim of a discriminatory intent on the part of the Board in not renewing her contract. Accordingly, it appears the statement is hearsay. As noted above, however, there are a number of exceptions to the hearsay exclusion and so I must now determine whether the alleged remark falls within the exception as asserted by Petitioner so as to make it admissible.

Among the statements which are not excluded by the hearsay rules is one offered against a party where the hearsay is a statement by an agent or servant of the party concerning a matter within the scope of the agency and made during the existence of the relationship. N.J.R.E. 803(B)(4). Since the Board of Education is a party to this litigation, the comment of the Board President, made as a representative of the Board, fits squarely within this exception to the hearsay exclusion, and I do so FIND. I further FIND, therefore, the statement is admissible as an exception to the hearsay exclusion, i.e., standing by itself, it may be competent evidence of the matter at issue.

The rationale behind the hearsay exclusion is hearsay is deemed to be untrustworthy and unreliable. Certain exceptions are justified because the circumstances under which the hearsay statements were made provide strong indicia of reliability. Biunno, Current N.J. Rules of Evidence, Comment to N.J.R.E. 802. Accordingly, as Respondent argues, the circumstances under which the statement was made must be examined to determine the reliability of the statement. In short, there must be a probability that the statement is trustworthy from the circumstances surrounding its making. State v. White, 158 N.J. 230, 246-247 (1999). In this case, the only factor which has been established conclusively is that the declarant is deceased.[3] There is nothing in the record to indicate the circumstances under which the statement may have been made such as who, other than the one board member who allegedly heard the statement but who was not produced as a witness, was present when the comment was made or the context in which it was made. Moreover, except for the testimony of Petitioner, there is no evidence the declarant actually made the statement. In addition, although Petitioner testified to the efforts she made to contact the board member who relayed the remark, I take note that no attempt was made to subpoena that member.

[3] The fact that the declarant is deceased and, therefore, unavailable to testify is of no importance with regard to this exception to the hearsay exclusion. See N.J.R.E. 803.

Petitioner argues the issue of "hearsay within hearsay"[4] is not a problem with regard to the admissibility of this statement; it does, however, affect the trustworthiness and reliability of the statement. The farther the reported conversation gets from the original source of communication, the more opportunity for distortion of that which was expressed. In this case, the remark was made, purportedly, by the Board President, relayed to Petitioner by a Board member; then, it was relayed to the court by Petitioner.

I cannot overlook the fact that all evidence regarding bias came in through the testimony of Petitioner who has an interest in the outcome of the matter. There is no independent, objective evidence to support Petitioner's testimony with regard to this remark or other remarks she claims were made. Accordingly, I ascribe no weight to the purported remark of the Board President.

As noted above, I recognize there are other comments purported to have been made by fellow teachers and administrative personnel which Petitioner testified she overheard. While these comments may be admissible under the same exception to the hearsay rule, once again, the reliability and trustworthiness of the circumstances are at issue. There were, purportedly, at least two statements which would tend to indicate bias on the part of some colleagues or administrators. They were not, however, reported at the time they were made. The failure to report the statements when they occurred, along with the fact that, apparently no one else heard them, since no other witnesses were called to corroborate Petitioner's testimony, critically undermines the trustworthiness and reliability of the purported statements. Accordingly, I accord them no weight.

In addition, Petitioner testified she had written to members of the Board numerous times regarding her non-renewal; however, she did not have copies of the letters with her. Consequently, based on the foregoing as well as the tone of the document admitted into evidence as R-9, I FIND Petitioner's testimony to be lacking in credibility in the legal sense, i.e., it lacks the trustworthiness and reliability required of competent evidence. Therefore, I accord it no weight.

[4] Hearsay within hearsay, or "double hearsay" occurs when an out of court statement of one person is relayed, out of court to another person, who then testifies about the original statement, which is the situation in this case.

Since I have determined to accord the evidence of a discriminatory intent no weight, I must further CONCLUDE Petitioner has failed to prove, by a preponderance of evidence, a prima facie case of discrimination.

On the other hand, Respondent has articulated five grounds for the decision not to renew Petitioner's contract. Those five reasons are:

- budgetary concerns which resulted in a reduction of teaching staff;
- two unsatisfactory performance evaluations;[5]
- poor class room management skills;
- failure to demonstrate effective teaching strategies necessary to engage students; and
- failure to create atmosphere conducive to learning.

There is testimony in the record which reflects during the period of time when Petitioner was non-renewed, there was, in fact, a budget crisis in Irvington. Ms. Davion, who was Acting Superintendent at the time of the hearing and who has been Assistant Superintendent for Student Affairs for five years testified as a result of the budget crisis facing Irvington, the District was forced to cut 252 teaching staff positions. This testimony was unrebutted. I FIND Ms. Davion's testimony on this point to be credible. I further FIND there was a budget crisis in Irvington at the time Petitioner was non-renewed; and I further FIND Respondent has established a legitimate basis for the non-renewal based on budgetary reasons.

Having determined there was a legitimate basis for the non-renewal, there is no need to further analyze other reasons cited by the District, except to note, with respect to the November 2001 evaluation, although it is clear Petitioner was absent on November 1, the date which appears on the evaluation form, it is equally clear that the form was signed by the evaluator later in the month; moreover, Petitioner never denied the evaluation took place on a subsequent date nor is there any indication on the form itself which is unsigned by Petitioner that Petitioner denied it happened. From the contents of R-9, which is addressed to the supervisor who conducted the evaluation, it is clear Petitioner was aware of the evaluation and the evaluation form. From the tone of R-9, it is equally clear that she disagreed strongly with the contents; what is missing from R-9 is a denial that the evaluation ever not took place. All of this impinges on the credibility of Petitioner and, as noted above, her testimony is simply not reliable.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE Respondent has demonstrated a legitimate basis for the non-renewal; I further CONCLUDE the determination of Respondent should be affirmed.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER the determination of Respondent be and hereby is AFFIRMED; I further ORDER this petition be and hereby is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the Board's residency determination that his niece, R.P., was not eligible for a free education in the West Orange Public Schools based on family or economic hardship. Petitioner's appeal included an affidavit from R.P.'s mother, who resides in Haiti, alleging economic hardship and persecution of her family for its political beliefs. The matter was originally heard in June 2005, and an initial decision dismissing the petition and ordering petitioner to pay tuition was filed based on petitioner's failure to appear at the hearing. The Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for a hearing on the merits, which was held on January 17, 2006.

The ALJ found that: petitioner's supplemental submissions and testimony were credible and demonstrate that R.P.'s parents lack the economic ability to provide for their child; R.P.'s parents are suffering from political persecution; the family is in fear for their lives; and G.P. brought his niece into respondent's district for reasons other than providing her a superior education. The ALJ concluded that petitioner has met his burden of proof that R.P. is domiciled in the district, and that he is providing care for R.P., gratis, due to family and economic hardships. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that R.P. is entitled to a free education in the West Orange Public Schools, and denied the respondent's application for tuition reimbursement.

The Commissioner must give deference to the credibility determinations of the ALJ, and therefore agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that R.P. meets the standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) which allow a free public education to a student who resides in the home of a person domiciled in the district, is supported by that person gratis, is not in the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free education, and whose parents cannot support or care for her due to hardship. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the OAL in this matter.

The controversy stems from G.P.'s (petitioner) application to the West Orange Board of Education (respondent) to allow his niece, R.P., to receive a free public education in West Orange, and respondent's denial of the application on September 13, 2004, for the stated reason that it did not meet the statutory requirement that the application be precipitated by family or economic hardship. PETITIONER,	COMMISIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	DECISION ON REMAND
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,
RESPONDENT.

The record in this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were submitted.

The controversy stems from G.P.'s (petitioner) application to the West Orange Board of Education (respondent) to allow his niece, R.P., to receive a free public education in West Orange, and respondent's denial of the application on September 13, 2004, for the stated reason that it did not meet the statutory requirement that the application be precipitated by family or economic hardship. On October 25, 2004 the Commissioner of Education received an appeal from the petitioner which included an affidavit dated October 21, 2004, from R.P.'s mother, R.D.P.

In the affidavit, R.D.P. alleged that her family members had been persecuted for their political beliefs; that they had lived from house to house in fear; that after a beating in retaliation for attendance at a protest against Haiti's president, R.P.'s brother had fled to the United States and applied for asylum; that before R.P. arrived in the United States to live with her uncle, the petitioner, she had been in hiding from the militia, which had tried to kidnap her; that R.P. had been traumatized as a result of the conditions in Haiti; and that petitioner would care for R.P. gratis because of her mother's inability to provide her with security and basic necessities.

Respondent filed an answer on November 30, 2004, including a counterclaim for tuition reimbursement for the period in which R.P. had attended school in West Orange, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL. On February 7, 2005, the OAL sent a notice to the parties advising that the hearing would take place on June 3, 2005, at 9 a.m.

Petitioner did not appear at the hearing on June 3, 2005, and did not call the OAL to request an adjournment or explain his absence. (EDU 10926-04, Initial Decision at 2) On June 3, respondent moved for dismissal of the petition and an award of tuition reimbursement. (Ibid.) Testimony was presented about R.P.'s school attendance and about tuition rates in West Orange. (Ibid.) The matter was held until Monday, June 6, 2005. (Ibid.) When petitioner failed to appear, respondent's motion for dismissal of the petition and an award of tuition fees was granted. (Ibid.)

The administrative law judge's (ALJ) Initial Decision in EDU 10926-04 was issued on June 8, 2005. She concluded that since petitioner failed to attend the hearing, and in so doing failed to meet his burden to show that R.P.'s residency with him entitles her to a free education in West Orange, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1), the petition should be dismissed. (EDU 10926-04, Initial Decision at 3) In addition, she concluded that, pursuant to N.J.S.A.18A:38-1(b)(2), and based upon the evidence, petitioner owed respondent tuition for the 2004-2005 school year. (EDU 10926-04, Initial Decision at 4)

Nine days after the Initial Decision in EDU 10926-04, on June 17, 2005, petitioner hand delivered to the office of the Commissioner of Education a letter reporting that he did not know about the hearing until two days after it took place. The letter stated:

> If I were to know, I would not have ever made the mistake of not attending, I was waiting for that chance for so long. Please I would like to have the opportunity to prove my case. I am pleading for another chance to be able to do so.

Because the letter was filed within the time allowed for exceptions to the Initial Decision, because there was no evidence that there had been any communication between the court and the parties during the four months between the notice of the hearing and the date of the hearing, and because the facts alleged in the affidavit of R.P.'s mother, if true, could arguably have justified R.P.'s residence with her uncle in West Orange, and R.P.'s attendance at West Orange High School, the Commissioner granted petitioner's request for a hearing, and remanded the case to the OAL.

A hearing on the merits was held in the OAL on January 17, 2006. As a threshold matter, in her Initial Decision on Remand issued January 25, 2006, the ALJ found G.P. to be credible. (Initial Decision at 6) His testimony was consistent with the facts set forth in the affidavit of R.P.'s mother. Significantly, the ALJ noted that R.P.'s mother's affidavit had been incomplete due to the fact that R.P.'s mother neither speaks, reads nor writes in English, and consequently had to find an interpreter to compose her affidavit and letters, which she then signed. (Initial Decision at 3) The Commissioner notes that the vocabulary and syntax of the affidavit suggest that the interpreter was not fluent in English.[1] Thus, G.P.'s testimony at the hearing supplemented the affidavit and clarified the conditions under which R.P.'s family had been and still were living.[2]

Thus, the ALJ found that R.P. had gone to school in Haiti only on an intermittent basis because of political unrest and security issues. (Initial Decision at 2) In July, 2004, G.P. paid for her air fare to bring her to his home in West Orange, and has since been her sole source of support. (Initial Decision at 3) She has never returned to Haiti, and intends to stay in the United States and go to college. G.P. has applied to sponsor her for a green card. (Initial Decision at 4)

[1] Although the affidavit included a paragraph that stated that R.P. was being placed with her uncle "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education" in West Orange, the ALJ found that the context of the affidavit necessitated the conclusion that the affiant meant to state that her daughter's residency with G.P. was not "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education." (Initial Decision at 4)

[2] Indeed the conditions which R.P.'s mother described are consistent with journalistic and scholarly accounts of the last decade and a half in Haiti. See, e.g. Elizabeth D. Gibbons, Sanctions in Haiti: Human Rights and Democracy under Assault, Center for Strategic and International Studies, Washington, D.C., 1999.

G.P. testified on January 17, 2006 that R.P.'s parents still live in Haiti in a two-room house with no running water, electricity or telephone. (Initial Decision at 3) (The above-referenced affidavit from October 21, 2004, stated that they slept "house to house" because of political persecution.) R.P.'s father, a mason, could not find work because he unsuccessfully ran for mayor in his town as an opposition candidate to the incumbent regime. (Initial Decision at 3) He is also periodically harassed by rebel forces to the point where he flees over the border to Santo Domingo and "stays there for a while." (Ibid) R.P.'s mother earns some income by buying food and clothing in Miami and selling it in Haiti. G.P. gave her $2000 to initiate this retail business; it costs her $150-200 to make each trip, and her profits provide a meager living for her and R.P.'s father. (Ibid.)

R.P.'s two older brothers have fled Haiti. (Initial Decision at 2) One fled dressed as a woman, after having been beaten by the "Chumeras Lavales" [Haitian President Aristede's political enforcers], and is currently applying for political asylum. (Initial Decision at 4) G.P. assists both young men financially, as they are employed only sporadically. (Initial Decision at 3)

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's determination that R.P. meets the standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) which allow a free public education to an "affidavit student," i.e., a student who: resides in the home of a person domiciled in a school district; is supported by that person gratis; is not in the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free education; and whose parents cannot support or care for her due to hardship.

As a threshold matter, the Commissioner is bound by the ALJ's determination that G.P.'s testimony was credible. S.D. v. Div. of Med. Assistance and Health Services, 349 N.J. Super 480, 485 (App. Div. 2002). That testimony established that R.P.'s parents live in an environment that is economically depressed and ranges from politically unstable to dangerous. More specifically, they are poor, and cannot count on the consistent operation of such institutions as schools and the administration of justice and law enforcement. Further, the evidence at the hearing showed that G.P. is not only supporting R.P. gratis, but is helping her brothers and has assisted her parents.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision for the reasons expressed therein and supplemented above. G.P.'s petition is granted; R.P. is entitled to receive a free public education in the school district of West Orange. Respondent's request for tuition is denied.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondents.

G.P., pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for the respondent

Record Closed: January 17, 2006 Decided: January 25, 2006

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, (G.P.) appeals from the denial by the Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, Essex County (respondent) of his application to allow his niece (R.P.) to be educated in the West Orange Public Schools. The procedural history of this matter was outlined in the Decision of the Commissioner of Education July 14, 2005 and is incorporated herein. (See attached). The Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on the merits of the petitioner's appeal. The file was returned to the OAL on October 6, 2005 and re-assigned to the judge on October 31, 2005. The case was scheduled for a hearing on January 17, 2006 and heard on that date.

ISSUES

1. Whether the child's parents are incapable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship.

2. Whether the District is entitled to tuition reimbursement.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony presented and the documentary evidence submitted, and having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses and to assess their credibility, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. G.P. owns a home at 77 High Street, West Orange, New Jersey. He resides there with his wife, three daughters and niece, R.P. (G.P. is her paternal uncle.) Mr. and Mrs. P. are employed full time. Their daughters, who are 25, 24 and 16 years old, attend school or are employed.
2. R.P. is presently nineteen years of age and is in the twelfth grade at West Orange High School. She is due to graduate in June 2006.
3. R.P. went to school in Haiti, but only on an intermittent basis, because of the unrest in her country.
4. R.P.'s parents reside in Haiti. She has two adult brothers, who do not live at home. One lives in Miami and the other in Santo Domingo. The brothers are employed sporadically and G.P. helps provide money for their support.

5. G.P. brought R.P. to the United States on July 19, 2004. R.P.'s mother, Rose P., originally came to New Jersey with her daughter. (G.P. paid for their air fare.) However, she returned to Haiti shortly thereafter.
6. G.P. is the sole source of support for R.P. and provides this support gratis.
7. R.P.'s father is a mason by trade, but he only works sporadically. He ran for mayor in his town in Haiti, as an opposition candidate, but was not elected. As a result of his running for office, he became the target of persecution by former President Aristede. Since his overthrow, R.P.'s father has been subject to harassment by rebel forces, which periodically come to his house with guns. When things get difficult, R.P.'s father sneaks over the border into Santo Domingo and stays there for awhile.
8. G.P. gave his sister-in-law, Rose P., $2,000.00 in order for her to start a business. His sister-in-law purchases food and clothing in Miami and then brings the products back to Haiti for sale. Once she has sold the goods, she returns to Miami to purchase more. It costs her between $150-200 round trip to go back and forth to Haiti. This business provides a subsistence income for herself and R.P.'s father, who is basically unemployed.
9. G.P.'s brother and sister-in-law live in a two room house. There is no running water or electricity. They do not have a telephone or car.
10. Rose P. does not read or write English. Therefore, the Affidavit of Parent (P-1 and R-1) and the two letters "To Whom it may Concern" (P-2 & R-3) were not written by Rose P. Rather, she signed the statements composed by someone else.
11. The Affidavit of Parent, which was signed by R.P. on October 21, 2004, and which was not part of the original registration material, but was submitted as part of the appeal, states: "Because of the political persecution we do not have no place to live we sleep the house to house because we are afraid to be apprehended and kill by the terrorist militia of the ancient regime." It goes on to say that the mother is not capable of supporting and providing care and security for her daughter because of the fear of persecution. In order for her son to flee the county after he was beaten by the "Chumeras Lavalas", he had to dress like a women. He is presently applying for political asylum. R.P.'s mother also claims in the affidavit that R.P. did not attend school, because the terrorist militia threatened to kidnap her. The document also states that she is placing R.P. with her uncle "solely for the purpose of receiving a free public Education in west orange."

12. From the context of the Affidavit it appears that the affidavit was meant to read "not solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education."

13. The original documents, submitted to the school at the time of registration, did not mention political persecution or the parents being unemployed and unable to support R.P. Nor did it say that R.P. had missed school in Haiti because of the militia

14. R.P. has not gone back to Haiti since she arrived in the United States. She intends to remain in the United States and attend college, once she graduates. G.P. has made application with the INS to sponsor her, so R.P. can obtain her green card.

15. According to the Affidavit submitted by Josefa Lopez, Register for the West Orange Board of Education, the amount spent in tuition payments for R.P. for the 2004-2005 school year was $12,655.00 and for the period from September 7, 2005 to January 17, 2006 (81 days) $5,694.30, for a total of $18,349.30.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Public education must be provided free to persons over six and up to twenty years of age, who are domiciled within the School District - N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Under section b(1) of this statute, there are certain requirements for any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within school district. These requirements state that, the petitioner must show that they are:

> supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements; that he intends so to keep supporting the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term ...that the child's parents or guardian are not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements...

The petitioner has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria.

The school district argued that while there is no doubt that the educational system is better in the United States than in Haiti and the overall condition is better here, that is not sufficient to meet the legal standard under the statute to show family or economic hardship that prevents the parents from providing support for the child. The Board pointed out that R.P.'s mother was in Florida at least three times in 2004. She was able to pay for these trips and return to Haiti to conduct her business. While the standard of living is much lower in Haiti, this does not mean that her parents were unable to support R.P. in her native country. They also argued that R.P.'s ability to graduate on time demonstrated that she did not in fact miss school in Haiti, due to the threat of violence against her. In addition, the District argued that the fact that R.P.'s mother was able to travel freely back and forth to Miami demonstrated that she was not in fear of her life and therefore discounts the political persecution claim. In addition, the fact that R.P.'s father went to and from Santo Domingo showed that he was not being persecuted. The respondent also pointed out that there was no mention in the original registration material about political persecution and economic hardship. The district emphasized that this is an intact two parent household, where the mother and father have both traveled freely outside of their native country and have some means of support. The respondent asserted that this was just a case of parents wanting a better life and education for their child. While this is commendable, it is not the standard to permit R.P. to receive a free education in West Orange at the expense of other taxpayers. Further, they argue that there is no question, at this point, that R.P. will be removed from the school, since she is graduating in June. Rather it is a question of the taxpayers being reimbursed for the cost of her tuition.

On the petitioner's side he argued that he had no idea, when he went to register R.P., what kind of documents he needed to show the district that the student qualified for a free public education. No one explained to him the criteria that had to be met. His grasp of English is limited and he did the best he could in providing the papers that he believed were needed. It was not until after the school denied R.P.'s request that he came to understand what documents were required to prove his case. G.P. has tried to comply with the production of those documents. However, R.P.'s mother does not speak or write English. Therefore, some of the papers supplied by G.P. do not clearly show the extent of the economic and political hardship that the family suffers. G.P. emphasized that his brother and sister-in-law are just scrapping by on the little that she earns from selling food and clothes. There is not enough to provide for their daughter. In addition, the fact that R.P.'s parents slip in and out of Haiti, does not mean that they are not persecuted, when they are Haiti. Further, there was no evidence presented that they can leave Haiti permanently. G.P. argued further that the District's assertion that R.P. will be graduating on time, shows that she did not miss school in Haiti, is flawed logic. G.P. asserted that R.P. was so motivated to get a good education that she has worked hard to catch up to her grade. She should not be punished for being a diligent student.

While, it is clear that the initial documents presented by the petitioner did not meet the standards under the statute, the supplemental submissions and the testimony of G.P., which I FIND to be credible, demonstrate that R.P.'s parents lack the economic ability to provide for their child. Further, the testimony and evidence shows that R.P.'s parents are suffering from political persecution and the family is in fear of their life. It is therefore clear that G.P. has brought his niece into the district for reasons other than providing her with a superior education.

CONCLUSION

Thus, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has met his burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), that R.P. is domiciled within the district; that G.P. is supporting her gratis and assumes all personal obligations for her. Further, R.P.'s parents are incapable of supporting and protecting her. I therefore CONCLUDE that G.P. is providing care for R.P. due to family and economic hardships.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that the relief sought by G.P. on behalf of R.P. be granted and that R.P. is entitled to a free education in the West Orange Public Schools.

I further ORDER that the District's application for tuition reimbursement is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

G.P. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, R.P.,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the Board's residency determination that his niece, R.P., was not eligible for a free education in the Township of West Orange School District based on family or economic hardship. Petitioner's appeal included an affidavit from R.P.'s mother, who resides in Haiti, alleging persecution of her family for its political beliefs. Petitioner did not appear at the OAL hearing and respondent moved for dismissal of the petition and an award of tuition reimbursement.

The ALJ found that: petitioner enrolled his niece, R.P., in West Orange High School in September 2004; R.P. attended the school on a regular basis through the date of the hearing on June 3, 2005; the tuition rate at West Orange High School for the 2004-05 school year was $12,655; and petitioner failed to attend the scheduled hearing or call to ask for an adjournment or to explain the reason for his failure to appear. Based on the petitioner's failure to appear at hearing, the ALJ concluded that he failed to meet his burden of proof pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) (1), and further concluded that respondent did meet its burden under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) (2), and is entitled to tuition reimbursement and removal of R.P. from the district schools; the ALJ so ordered.

Upon review of the record, the initial decision of the OAL, and a letter from petitioner dated June 17, 2005, the Commissioner rejects the ALJ's recommendations, and remands the matter to the OAL for a hearing on the merits. In so deciding, he states that there is enough in the record to justify, at minimum, a hearing to determine whether the allegations in R.P.'s mother's affidavit about the family's political oppression and economic hardship in Haiti are legitimate and sufficient to justify tuition-free attendance for R.P. in West Orange schools, and notes that such an important inquiry should not be short-circuited by dismissal of petitioner's appeal, where petitioner is pro se, where there was one hearing notice four months before hearing date and no further communication between the parties and the OAL, and where petitioner promptly took action when he learned that he missed the hearing. Accordingly, the Commissioner remands this matter to the OAL for an expedited hearing.

G.P. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, R.P.,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record in this matter, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and a communication from the petitioner, a copy of which is annexed hereto, have been reviewed. Upon consideration of the foregoing, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) remands the matter to the OAL for a hearing on the merits.

Factual and Procedural History

G.P. (petitioner) applied to the West Orange Board of Education (respondent) to allow his niece, R.P., to receive a free public education in West Orange. Respondent denied his application on September 13, 2004, for the stated reason that it did not meet the statute's requirement of family or economic hardship. On October 25, 2004 the Commissioner of Education received an appeal from the petitioner which included an affidavit dated October 21, 2004, from R.P.'s mother, R.D.P., who resides in Haiti.

In the affidavit, R.D.P. alleged that her family was persecuted for its political beliefs: that they lived from house to house in fear; that after a beating in retaliation for attendance at a protest against Haiti's president, R.P.'s brother fled to the United States and applied for asylum; that before R.P. arrived in the United States to live with her uncle, the petitioner, she had been in hiding from the militia, which had tried to kidnap her; that R.P. was traumatized as a result of the conditions in Haiti; and that petitioner would care for R.P. gratis because of her mother's inability to provide her with security and basic necessities.

Respondent filed an answer on November 30, 2004, including a counterclaim for tuition reimbursement for the period in which R.P. had attended school in West Orange, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL. On February 7, 2005, the OAL sent a notice to the parties advising that the hearing would take place on June 3, 2005, at 9 a.m.

Petitioner did not appear at the hearing on June 3, 2005, and did not call the OAL to request an adjournment or explain his absence (Initial Decision, p.2). Respondent's counsel represented that he had left petitioner a telephone message on June 2, 2005, with the date and location of the hearing and his telephone number, but petitioner had not returned the call. Ibid. At 10:15 a.m. on June 3, respondent moved for dismissal of the petition and an award of tuition reimbursement. Ibid. Testimony was presented about R.P.'s school attendance and about tuition rates in West Orange. Ibid. The matter was held until Monday, June 6, 2005. Ibid. When petitioner failed to appear, respondent's motion for dismissal of the petition and an award of tuition fees was granted. Ibid.

The administrative law judge's (ALJ) initial decision was issued on June 8, 2005. The ALJ found that petitioner enrolled R.P. as an eleventh grader in West Orange High School on September 13, 2004; that she attended the school regularly throughout the year; that tuition for the 2004-2005 school year was $12,655; and that petitioner failed to attend the hearing scheduled to adjudicate R.P.'s right to a free education in West Orange (Initial Decision, p.3). He concluded that since petitioner failed to attend the hearing, and in so doing failed to meet his burden to show that R.P.'s residency with him entitles her to a free education in West Orange, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1), the petition should be dismissed. Ibid. In addition, he concluded that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), and based upon the evidence, petitioner owed respondent tuition for the 2004-2005 school year (id. at 4).

Nine days after the initial decision, on June 17, 2005, petitioner hand delivered to the office of the Commissioner of Education the letter, a copy of which is annexed hereto, wherein he reports that he did not know about the hearing until two days after it took place. The letter further states in pertinent part:

> If I were to know, I would not have ever made the mistake of not attending, I was waiting for that chance for so long. Please I would like to have the opportunity to prove my case. I am pleading for another chance to be able to do so.

Discussion

Petitioner's letter was submitted within the time allowed for exceptions and can be regarded as a challenge to the initial decision. While the letter does not set forth specific facts explaining why petitioner did not know about the hearing date, the Commissioner notes that there was no contact between the parties and the OAL between the February 7, 2005 hearing notice and the June 3, 2005 hearing date, a period of four months. Also, respondent's counsel's representation that he left a message for petitioner on the day before the hearing is not grounds for concluding that petitioner knew about the hearing. The reference in the initial decision to counsel's representation contains no specifics about how counsel left the message and with whom.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) allows a free public education for anyone (of qualifying age) who lives with and is supported gratis by a person domiciled in the school district, so long as the supporting person makes certain representations, and the parent of the student shows reasons why he or she cannot support or care for the student. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) states in pertinent part:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child.

The record does not include what, if anything, petitioner initially submitted to respondent concerning his domicile, his intention to support R.P., and his commitment to assume responsibility for her for the long term. However, respondent does not appear to be challenging those issues. Respondent alleges that R.P.'s parents have not made a showing that economic or family hardship warrants that R.P. live with her uncle.

The Commissioner has determined that there is enough in the record to justify, at a minimum, a hearing to determine whether the allegations in R.P.'s mother's affidavit about the family's political oppression and economic hardship in Haiti are legitimate and sufficient to justify tuition-free attendance for R.P. at West Orange High School. Such an important inquiry should not be short-circuited by dismissal of petitioner's appeal, where petitioner is pro se, where there was one hearing notice four months before the hearing date and no further communications between the parties and the OAL, and where petitioner promptly took action when he learned that he missed the hearing.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated herein, the Commissioner remands this matter to the OAL for an expedited hearing on the merits of petitioner's appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter the petitioner, Maria Saco, challenged her suspension without pay by the Board of Education on the basis that it was in violation of statutory and case law. A plenary hearing was scheduled before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge for November 2 and November 3, 2005. However, in advance of those hearing dates I was advised by counsel that the matter had been settled. Subsequently, a Stipulation of Settlement and Release was submitted to me for review which is attached hereto and made part hereof. The document is signed by petitioner and by the President of the Passaic Board of Education. Also attached hereto is a certification from the Board Secretary attesting to the adoption of the settlement by the Board on October 31, 2005.

I have reviewed the terms of the Settlement Agreement and I FIND as follows:

DANIEL MC HARRIS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF NORTH BRUNSWICK TOWNSHIP, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, formerly employed by the respondent Board as an In-School Suspension supervisor, claims entitlement to indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 for defense of criminal charges of official misconduct and sexual harassment relating to four North Brunswick High School students, for which he was acquitted. Petitioner submitted itemization of fees totaling $310,818.50.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the alleged acts arose out of and in the course of the performance of petitioner's duties; a second chair at trial was reasonable under the circumstances of this case to assure appropriate trial preparation; petitioner is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable legal fees directly related to his defense against criminal charges; petitioner's itemization of fees incorporated legal fees for other matters not associated with the criminal charges; certain itemized administrative expenses are not subject to indemnification; certain itemized billing entries related to legal research performed by lead counsel or second chair for the petitioner are deemed unreasonable and therefore not subject to indemnification, or are subject to indemnification at the lower hourly rate of a law clerk. Based on the foregoing, the ALJ adjusted the total amount of petitioner's itemized fees to reflect reasonable fees directly related to his defense against criminal charges, and issued an Initial Decision awarding petitioner $174,593.00 in legal fees and $9,103.05 in costs.

Upon an independent and comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, and directs the respondent Board to pay petitioner criminal charge defense indemnification of $174,593.00 in legal fees and $9,103.05 in costs.

DANIEL MC HARRIS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF NORTH BRUNSWICK TOWNSHIP, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner requested and was granted an extension of time within which to file exceptions to the Initial Decision. Primary and reply exceptions of both parties were timely filed within the intendment of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and all submissions were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching her determination herein and are presented, in relevant part, below.

The Board first excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's determination that the two-prong test outlined in Bower, et al. v. Board of Education of the City of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997) was satisfied, thereby entitling petitioner to indemnification for fees incurred in defense of the criminal charges against him. Although conceding satisfaction of one prong, that the underlying criminal action resulted in a favorable disposition or dismissal, it vigorously argues that petitioner has not met the second equally important prong, i.e., that the acts or omissions which form the basis of the criminal charges arose out of or occurred during the course of his performance of his duties and responsibilities. This assertion is apparently based on the fact that because two of the alleged victims, A.D. and L.L., were not assigned to In-School Suspension (ISS) and were not, therefore, students of petitioner, the majority of the underlying acts which gave rise to the criminal charges cannot be viewed as arising from his employment duties and responsibilities. (Board's Exceptions at 1-2)

In reply, petitioner points out that in Bower, supra, the Supreme Court found that dismissal of an indictment necessitates the assumption that the employee committed no acts other than to perform the duties of his employment. The Court further concluded that "where the record in the criminal proceeding reveals no evidence of any conduct other than the employee's performance of his lawful duties, the factual basis for the indictment becomes inextricably linked with the employee's duties as a teacher. Id. at 431. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 14) Here, petitioner avers, the criminal charges were tried to conclusion, petitioner testified under oath denying that the alleged acts had occurred and the result was an acquittal on each and every charge. Petitioner further posits that trial testimony establishes that all alleged acts supposedly took place in the ISS classroom during school hours. Consequently, he argues, the evidence is more than sufficient to establish the requisite nexus between the charges and his employment. (Id. at 14-15)

The Board next objects to the ALJ determination that the $265 "blended rate" billed by petitioner's counsel was reasonable. It advances that, while in no way denigrating the skills and professionalism of associate Mr. Montenegro – given that he was wholly inexperienced in criminal actions conducted in Superior Court – the billing of his time at a rate of $265 an hour was "grossly inappropriate". (Board's Exceptions at 4)

Responding, petitioner urges that the ALJ's conclusion in this regard was wholly appropriate. He explains that – pursuant to a retainer agreement with Wilbert, Montenegro & Thompson – petitioner was billed at a flat "blended rate" of $265 an hour for the services of senior partner Wilbert, a criminal defense expert, and associate Montenegro, an education law specialist. Such rate was calculated by averaging the hourly rates of each of these individuals, $330 and $200, respectively. Petitioner avers that the record substantiates that this billing method was utilized because of the interplay of criminal and educational law issues, necessitating collaborative work between these two attorneys. Petitioner points to hearing testimony elicited from attorney "experts" which, he contends, confirms the reasonableness of such an arrangement under the circumstances. Moreover, he proposes, the use of this "blended rate," in light of the billed hours disallowed in the Initial Decision, operates to reduce the Board's indemnification obligation. Such is the case because the majority of disallowed hours were education law related, performed by the associate, while the bulk of the allowed hours were performed by senior partner Wilbert. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 17-19)

Petitioner objects to the ALJ's summary denial of his claim for reimbursement of counsel costs and fees related to the prosecution of the instant indemnification action. Such denial, he asserts, was improperly based on N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6(a), which prohibits reimbursement for the defense or appeal of disciplinary actions against Board employees. The instant action, petitioner submits, can in no way be deemed a disciplinary action or appeal thereof. In support of his entitlement to these costs, petitioner cites to a number of Civil Rights cases which, he contends, stand for the proposition that when an award of counsel fees is statutorily authorized, the reasonable costs associated with prosecuting the claim should be included in the award. Furthermore, he argues, denial of these costs would operate to "encourage public entities to refuse to comply with their obligations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 by utilizing the costs and time associated with prosecuting an indemnification claim to thwart a Petitioner's right pursuant to the statute." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1-3)

The Board advances that petitioner's claim in this regard is supported by no education law authority. The Civil Rights cases cited by petitioner in support of his entitlement to recovery here are of no precedential benefit to him. Counsel fees are a stated element of damages to the victim pursuant to the statutes involved in Civil Rights actions. Such statutes, it professes, are "remedial in nature and intended to compensate an injured party in all aspects of loss including compensatory, punitive damages and counsel fees incurred." In contrast, N.J.S.A. 18A:16:6.1, on its face, specifically enumerates that an individual be reimbursed for "reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals," and provides no authorization whatsoever for any other consequential costs which may be incurred. Neither has petitioner cited to any Rule of Court or case law interpreting this particular provision which would support his position. As such, the Board argues, "[i]n the absence of a rule, statute or common law right to reimbursement, the counsel fees incurred in pursuing the claim for indemnification are clearly not reimbursable." (Board's Reply Exceptions at 1-2)

Petitioner next charges that in awarding him legal fees and costs on Page 13 of her decision, the ALJ neglected to award him interest. He contends that his June 23, 2001 Petition of Appeal filed in this matter requested such an award and, now that he has successfully established his entitlement to indemnification, he "should be awarded by the Commissioner prejudgment interest inasmuch as the Board's denial of the Petitioner's monetary claim for almost five years was taken in deliberate violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 as well as an award of postjudgment interest if payment is not made within 60 days of December 9, 2005." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 4-5)

The Board submits in reply that this case is not one which warrants the imposition of interest. Prejudgment interest should only be awarded in circumstances where failure to pay a monetary claim is done in "bad faith" or found to be in "direct violation of a statute or rule." Here, there can be no credible assertion made that the Board acted inappropriately in compelling petitioner to substantiate his claim for reimbursement prior to compensating him. As to post-judgment interest, the Board proffers that such an award is premature since the exact amount of any award will not be known until the Commissioner of Education rules on this matter. (Board's Reply Exceptions 2-3)

Upon an independent and comprehensive review of the record – which includes transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL[1], as well as the full transcripts of the criminal trial[2], along with the parties' exception submissions and all exhibits – the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusions of the Initial Decision.

[1] OAL hearing in this matter was conducted on January 15 and 29, 2003, July 18, 2003, October 1, 2003 and December 9, 2003.

In so determining, the Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has satisfied the requisite criteria pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, read in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, and the N. J. Supreme Court's interpretation of these provisions in Bower, supra, so as to entitle him to indemnification for legal fees and costs incurred in connection with the criminal charges brought against him. Specifically, the statutory provisions and this case law require 1) that the alleged criminal actions involved acts or omissions arising out of and in the course of the performance of petitioner's duties as an ISS supervisor, and 2) that petitioner received a favorable disposition on the charges. Notwithstanding that it is without question that petitioner received a favorable outcome on adjudication of the criminal charges, the Board challenges petitioner's satisfaction of the prong which requires that such charges arose in the course of petitioner's duties as an ISS supervisor. The Commissioner determines that the record here clearly establishes that there is no evidence – from the criminal charges, which resulted in a full acquittal; the tenure proceedings, which concluded in settlement rather than proceeding to adjudication; nor the instant indemnification action – of any conduct, other than petitioner's presence in the classroom at school performing his classroom duties, which formed the basis of the charges against him. It is noted that the Supreme Court in Bower, supra, finding that:

> [t]he only 'conduct forming the basis of the charge' that is undisputed is that the alleged events took place in the school during school hours, and while Bower was required to be engaged in performing his duties as a teacher. (at 432)

thus concluded:

> [t]here being proof of no underlying act other than Bower's presence in the school and performance of his classroom duties, the indictment > and its dismissal – unrebutted by any other evidence – clearly satisfied Bower's burden of proof under the statute.

[2] The criminal trial was conducted on April 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, and 12, 2001.

> Bower, supra, at 434.

The Commissioner, therefore, finds that the necessary requirements entitling petitioner to indemnification for the costs of defending the criminal charges against him have been satisfied.

Next, full review of testimony and the specific circumstances existing in this matter persuades the Commissioner that the ALJ correctly concluded that petitioner has met his burden of proof with respect to the "reasonableness" of the use of a blended billing rate and the necessity of a second chair at trial.

With respect to petitioner's request for counsel fees related to the prosecution of the within indemnification action, as was properly pointed out in the Board's reply exceptions, while N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 provides reimbursement for "reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals," unlike the statutes involved in Civil Rights matters, this education provision provides no authorization for any other consequential costs which may be incurred. Absent express statutory, court rule or contractual authorization for such costs, they are not recoverable. See State Dept. of Environ Protect. v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473, 504 (1983), Also See Balsley v. North Hunterdon Bd of Educ., 117 N.J. 434, 442, 443 (1990). Additionally, notwithstanding petitioner's attempt to categorize work accomplished during the course of the tenure proceedings and appearances in family court as "criminal defense representation," the Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ, that petitioner's advances in this regard are unpersuasive. Rather, indemnification for fees and costs of the tenure proceedings is precluded by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, and the family court appearances are "collateral and unrelated to the criminal charges and not contemplated nor provided for pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1." (Initial Decision at 5-6)

Finally, the Commissioner declines to grant petitioner's request for interest in this matter. With respect to pre-judgment interest, the Commissioner concludes that the record before her does not support a finding that the Board's actions were taken in bad faith or in deliberate violation of the law (N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)(1)). As to post-judgment interest, such a request is premature, as the 60-day timeline relative to the granting of this interest does not even begin to toll until the Commissioner renders her decision in the instant matter. (N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)(2).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as expounded on above, is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. The North Brunswick Board of Education is hereby directed to pay petitioner criminal charge defense indemnification of $174,593.00 in legal fees and $9,103.05 in costs.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner claims entitlement to indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 16-6.1 for defense of criminal charges of which he was acquitted. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 28, 2001, for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. It was previously assigned to the [1] Mr. Wilbert and Mr. Montenegro had previously been with the law firm of Wilbert, Montenegro and Thompson.

Honorable Bruce Campbell, ALJ and upon his retirement was reassigned to the undersigned ALJ on March 21, 2002. A companion matter involving tenure removal charges (EDU 4390-01) had been settled before Judge Campbell but remanded pursuant to In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7094-81 (Feb. 17, 1982), rem. Comm'r of Ed. (Apr. 7, 1982), dec. St. Bd. of Ed. (Aug. 4, 1982). The parties reformed the settlement agreement in accordance with the Remand Decision and submitted same to the undersigned. An Initial Decision approving the settlement was thereafter issued by the undersigned and a Final Decision approving the settlement was then issued by the Commissioner. The within matter proceeded upon receipt of that Final Decision. After discovery, motion practice and settlement discussions, the hearing with regard to this matter proceeded over the course of several days from January 15, 2003 through December 9, 2003. Written summations were submitted by March 22, 2004 and the record closed upon their review on June 3, 2004.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

Undisputed Facts

Petitioner McHarris was employed by the North Brunswick BOE as an In-School Suspension (ISS) supervisor. On August 17, 1999, he was arrested and charged with two counts in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14(c)-3(b) and two counts in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2 in relation to allegations surrounding L.L. and A.D., two former, then current, North Brunswick Township High School students. By superseding 6 count indictment of April 11, 2000, petitioner was charged with 4 counts of official misconduct and 2 counts of criminal sexual contact relating to a total of 4 North Brunswick Township High School students; L.L., A.D, E.R. and S.M. The counts generally averred inappropriate sexual contact and sexual harassment. He was acquitted of all charges after a jury returned a verdict of not guilty on April 12, 2001.

Thereafter, the parties herein settled the tenure removal matter. As part of that settlement agreement executed by the parties and approved by Final Decision of the Commissioner, the parties agreed,

> 7. This settlement shall, in no way, release the Board or preclude McHarris' claim for indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, currently pending before the Office of Administrative Law, Docket Number 263-7/01. The parties agree that the aforesaid litigation shall be confined to the reasonableness of the fees and > costs incurred and whether such costs "arose out of" McHarris'employment as defined in New Jersey law. The parties agree that the remaining proceeding shall not involve the validity of the Tenure Charges but, instead, shall be limited to the above issues.

Thus, two issues are presented; whether the costs incurred are subject to indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, and if so, were the costs and fees reasonable.

1. Were the costs incurred subject to indemnification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 provides, in pertinent part,

> Should any criminal or quasi-criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the costs of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

This statute, which provides for indemnification in criminal actions, refers back to N.J.S.A. 18A: 16-6, which provides for indemnification for civil, administrative or other legal proceedings. Bower et al v Board of Education of the City of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416, 423, citing Scirrotto v Warren Hills Bd of Educ., 272 N.J. Super 391,396 (App. Div. 1994) The Supreme Court in Bower adopted a two-part standard for determining whether board of education employees are entitled to indemnification of counsel fees and expenses incurred in the defense of criminal charges. Bower, supra, at 423. In order to prevail, petitioner McHarris must demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that any act or omission on which the criminal charges are based arose "out of and in the course of the performance of his duties" as ISS supervisor, and that the charges were either dismissed or resulted in a final disposition favorable to him. Id., at 424, 434.

McHarris has satisfied the second prong; he was acquitted of all charges. The inquiry then focuses on whether the acts on which the criminal charges are based arose of out and in the course of the performance of his duties as ISS supervisor. In that regard, as part of the post hearing summations, petitioner offered his testimony from the criminal matter.[2] Daniel McHarris testified that he allowed non-ISS assigned students to have their lunch break in that classroom. He also testified that on a daily basis the principal; the assistant principals, including Peter Clark and Geraldine Margin; visited the ISS room. On a daily basis, other teachers bringing assignments for the ISS students also visited.

At this hearing, Geraldine Margin testified on behalf of respondent. She was the Assistant Principal of North Brunswick Township High School. She testified that a review the discipline records from the 1998-1999 school year, indicates that neither AD nor LL were assigned to ISS during the time period of the allegations. Any such assignments would have been made by an assistant principal. She testified students not assigned to ISS were not permitted to enter that designated room. While there was no written policy in that regard, she testified that this policy would hold true for any classroom; any student not assigned to a class is not permitted to be there. AD's alleged events took place solely in the ISS room.[3] However, she testified that assistant principal Peter Clark was the ISS supervisor overseeing McHarris, and he would have been the one responsible for addressing this issue with petitioner. At the criminal trial, Margin conceded that when she visited the ISS room, in addition to finding unassigned students, she also encountered police officers assigned to the high school and other teachers.

Peter Clark testified at the criminal trial that ISS students were not allowed to have visitors in that classroom. But he testified that at times it was difficult to keep non-ISS students out of that room.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that while assistant principal Margin testified that only ISS assigned students should have been in the ISS room, there was no written policy in that regard and no proof of any verbal instruction to the petitioner of this. The administration was certainly on notice that McHarris permitted non assigned students in that classroom, and it appears that he allowed them in there during a free period; either for lunch or individual counseling. Based on the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE the alleged acts arose out of and in the course of the performance of petitioner's duties and that he is entitled to reimbursement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

[2] The transcripts of the entire criminal matter proceedings were submitted thereafter as part of the post hearing summations. This should not have been in dispute and indeed, the hearing focused primarily on the fees dispute.
[3] One of the alleged victims originally signed a sworn statement alleging misconduct out of the school on the part of the petitioner herein; however, she denied that at the criminal trial.

2.Were the costs and fees reasonable?

While respondent has not contested the reasonableness of the costs incurred, I FIND the following expenses to be related to the administrative matter and therefore not subject to indemnification, $65 messenger service to NJDOE on 11/15/99; $65.00 messenger service to Borus office on 11/15/99; and $175.00 filing fee appellate Division May 16, 2000, so petitioner is entitled to indemnification of the costs in the amount of $9, 103.05.

Preliminarily, petitioner submitted an itemization of fees totaling $310,818.50. Petitioner also seeks an award for fees to prosecute the claim for indemnification. As a result of a pre-hearing conference with the undersigned, it was learned that petitioners itemization of fees also incorporated legal fees associated with a family court matter, motor vehicle matter,[4] the prosecution of the indemnification and the teacher tenure removal matter. At the request of the undersigned, petitioner thereafter resubmitted the itemization segregating the fees by litigation type. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 provides, in pertinent part, that > no employee shall be entitled to be held harmless or have his defense costs defrayed in a disciplinary proceeding instituted against him by the board or when the employee is appealing an action taken by the board.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6(a).[5] As such, petitioner is not entitled to indemnification of the 398.9 hours expended by counsel from August 21, 1999 through April 19, 2001 in defending the teacher tenure removal matter (P4, P5, P7) or the fees related to this litigation totaling 123.8 hours from August 2, 2000 through December 13, 2002 or any fees thereafter in relation to prosecuting the within claim. I FIND counsel's assertion that petitioner was attempting to obtain discovery to assist the criminal defense matter unpersuasive.

[4] The request for reimbursement related to motor vehicle matter was withdrawn by counsel at this hearing.
[5] This provision became effective July 26, 2001 and was deemed to apply to any claim for reimbursement, defrayal or indemnity made in writing to a board in the two years preceding the effective date. See N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20, Historical and Statutory Note.

It should also be noted that petitioner sought and obtained dismissal of those charges prior to the re-filing of same. (J-1, R-11) Similarly, the fact that counsel chose to represent petitioner at the Family Court proceeding relating to child support payments, in order to potentially invoke his 5th Amendment rights in case the presiding judge questioned him regarding the criminal allegation, does not require reimbursement of the 31.1 hours expended from August 21, 1999 through April 19, 2001. These were collateral and unrelated to the criminal charges and not contemplated nor provided for pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. As a result, the remainder fees indicated to be related to defense of the criminal matter totaled 762.1 hours. (P-4, P-5)

A discussion of "reasonableness" of fees also incorporates a discussion of "necessity" of fees. Rosenberg v Rosenberg, 286 N.J. Super 58, 68 (App Div 1995) The Supreme Court has held that retainer agreements are generally enforceable, provided that they satisfy both the general requirements for contracts and the special requirements for professional ethics. Cohen v Radio-Electronics Officers Union, 146, N.J. 140, 155,156 (1996)

In this matter, the retainer agreement provided that the fee was $265.00 per hour for all services and that N.J.E.A. would pay $110.00 for the fee[6] with the difference, $155.00, to be the responsibility of the petitioner. (P-2)[7] As to the defense of the criminal matter, and based on counsel's indication and itemization that 762.1 hours were expended, the total cost of fees petitioner seeks indemnification is $201, 956.50. (P-4, P-5)

The key issues with regard to the reasonableness of this fee focuses on three factors: the concept of a "blended" hourly rate of $265.00 for noted criminal trial counsel Michael Wilbert and his associate Ben Montenegro; the billing for a second chair at the criminal trial; and specific itemizations.

the blended rate

[6] Petitioner signed a separate agreement with N.J.E.A./N.E.A. Legal Services Program agreeing to reimburse N.J.E.A. in the amount of its financial assistance. (P-8)

[7] It is also important to note, for reasons to be discussed further within this Initial Decision, that the agreement provided further as follows:

> You understand that we as your lawyers will not handle every detail of your case. We will supervise the work of others at all times and we will have the assistance from paralegals and law clerks.

Petitioner's expert, Henry Furst, Esq., testified that the blended rate was a reasonable accommodation considering the criminal defense experience of Michael Wilbert and the education law background of associate Ben Montenegro, who was admitted to practice in 1996. Had the blended rate not been used, Wilbert would have billed at his then prevailing rate of $330.00 per hour and Montenegro, at $150.00 per hour. (P-10) Respondent's expert, Steven Altman, Esq. testified that he has never spoken to anyone or heard of a blended rate in his thirty years of practice. (R-8) Altman conceded; however, that an associate in Middlesex county with five years experience, (which Montenegro had at the time of trial), would bill at a rate of $150.00.

The concept of a "blended" billing rate is not novel. A New Jersey Law Journal article cited to an ABA report recommending alternative to the billable hour system, such as flat fees and partial and whole-contingent fees.[8] While the ABA report focused on alternative to a billable hour system, the concept of a blended rate achieves a reduction in rates when one considers that the highest tier hourly rate is reduced to achieve a compromise rate in hourly billing. Also, no ethical proscription in regard to same has been raised by respondent (R-7), and as such the retainer agreement in this regard should be enforced. Cohen, supra, at 155-156.

second chair at trial

The retainer agreement signed by petitioner does not reference the use of a second chair at the criminal chair. Altman testified that in his experience, second chair has been used rarely and usually for a capital murder trial and in this instance, there were no expert witnesses or unique evidence issues. In addition, Mr. Montenegro never cross-examined any witnesses. Furst testified that in his experience, he has sat second chair in many non capital trials and has used a second chair in multiple witness or documents cases. Second chair has usually been a junior attorney. He cited an example of noted criminal defense attorney Joseph Hayden, Jr., Esq. sitting second chair to noted criminal defense attorney Justin Walder in a non-capital criminal case tried in Ocean County. Having read the criminal trial transcripts, considered the testimony of the respective experts and that of Mr. Wilbert regarding the necessity of a second chair in this matter, and having reviewed the itemized bills from August 21, 1999 through April 18, 2001, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has met the burden of proof as to the reasonableness of a second chair at this trial. Petitioner's defense at this trial involved analysis of four respective students' statements provided to school officials regarding their individual allegations and comparison with grand jury testimony. In addition, issues of coercion or duress in making allegations against the petitioner, different versions of a journal kept by an alleged victim, and motives by some of the respective students and their respective friends involved multiple layers of trial preparation. While the bulk of this billing was done by Mr. Wilbert, nonetheless a second chair was reasonable under the circumstances in order to assure efficient cross-examination, thorough analysis, document retrieval and preparation for each witness.

specific itemized billing entries

As previously indicated, the retainer agreement provided that counsel would utilize paralegals and law clerks in defense of the criminal matter. That did not happen; however, and some of the work billed for as further discussed below should not have been completed by an attorney.

Extensive legal research was conducted by either Mr. Wilbert or Mr. Montenegro with regard to a series of either filed or contemplated motions. Mr. Wilbert testified, and Mr. Furst agreed, that regardless of whether motions were actually filed, the research had to be completed. Mr. Altman; however, asserted that some of the motions should not have been researched as they only would have been relevant post-verdict. These motions are individually discussed below.

15.3 hours were billed for legal research relating to speedy trial issue with 11.6 of those hours being billed by Mr. Wilbert. I FIND that given the stature of Mr. Wilbert in the criminal defense bar, that such research was not reasonable and deduct it in its entirety. The same applies to the following legal research billed by Mr. Wilbert, all of which I FIND not reasonable: 8.9 hours on prosecutorial misconduct; 2.6 hours (.8 being billed by Mr. Montenegro to copy cases) on the applicability of the de minimus statute; 12.4 hours on official misconduct; 2.1 hours on cruel and unusual punishment; 1.8 hours on the defendant's right and ability to subpoena documentary evidence beyond the state's discovery; 3.6 hours on prior bad acts character evidence; 3.3 hours on the clear and convincing standard of proof; 4.7 hours on evidence rule 609 regarding impeachment; 2.2 hours on change of venue (by Mr. Montenegro); and 4.2 hours (2.2 being billed by Mr. Montenegro) on exculpatory evidence. I agree with respondent's expert that this billing was excessive and that legal research is ordinarily completed by an associate rather than a senior partner. (R-9) In addition, the retainer agreement provided that law clerks and paralegals would be utilized on this case. They were not. I also believe however, that the reason an attorney of Mr. Wilbert's stature in the criminal defense field was retained was precisely for his expertise and knowledge of criminal law. There is presumed a certain knowledge in one's area of expertise that need not be researched. While shephardizing of cases would have been reasonable if completed by a law clerk, such was not the case here. Thus I FIND that none of this billing is subject to indemnification. The following legal research I will allow but at a reduced rate of $75.00 for a law clerk; research relating to: criminal discovery (6.1 hours); physical force as an element of prima facie case (3.9 hours); penetration and coercion (2.9 hours); voiding statute on grounds of vagueness (2.1 hours); and preparation of case summaries on motion to dismiss (4.2 hours) and cases cited by opposition (of the 3.7 hours billed by Mr. Wilbert for review and preparation of case summaries, I am considering 1.8 hours for law clerk time.)

Finally, the following represents miscellaneous billing having reviewed all the itemizations designated by petitioner's counsel as related to criminal defense which I FIND not reasonable and therefore not subject to indemnification. (P-4, P-5)

(The following are based on a review of P-4)

1. page 1, 8/26/99 – 4 hours billed by BENM re: review of case re: indemnification and back pay issue. This was clearly related to the tenure case.

2. page 2, 8/27/99 -- .6 hours billed by BENM re: telephone conference with client re: background of tenure charges. This was clearly related to the tenure case.

3. page 5, 9/13/99 – 1.4 hours billed by MEW re: receipt and review of entire file of prior counsel Klausner. This was clearly related to the tenure matter as Steven Klausner, Esq. was prior counsel on the tenure case.

4. page 10, 9/30/99 – I am reducing the 1.6 billed by MEW by .8 because the retainer agreement provided that law clerks and paralegals would be utilized in Mr. Mc Harris' case and none were. It is not reasonable for an attorney to be indexing documents at $265.00 per hour. Rather, it will be billed at the paralegal rate of $50.00/hour.[9]

5. page 11, 10/1/99. I am again reducing the 3.9 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by 2 hours and billing the two hours at the paralegal rate.

6. page 12, 10/7/99. For the reasons set forth above, I am reducing the 1.9 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by 1 hour, and billing that hour at the paralegal rate.

7. page 13, 10/12/99. For the reasons set forth above, I am reducing the 2.8 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by 1.4 hour, and billing that hour at the paralegal rate.

8. pages 13-14, 10/12/99. For the reasons set forth above, I am reducing the .9 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by .4 hours, and billing that hour at the paralegal rate.

9. page 14, 10/15/99. For the reasons set forth above, I am reducing the 1.7 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by .8 hours, and billing that hour at the paralegal rate.

10. page 18, 10/29/99. For the reasons set forth above, I am reducing the 2.1 hours billed by MEW for, in part, indexing documents, by 1 hour, and billing that hour at the paralegal rate.

11. page 19, 11/01/99. BENM billed 1.3 hours in connection with drafting a tort claim notice. This is clearly not related to the criminal matter.

[9] During the course of this hearing, the undersigned requested Mr. Wilbert advise whether his office utilized a paralegal. He advised and memorialized in writing (C-1) that one paralegal was hired for complex mass tort cases venued in Middlesex County and that the paralegal billed at a rate of $120.00. The undersigned advised counsel that in her former capacity as a Special Master for mass tort litigation venued in Middlesex County, she was aware of this litigation and that $120 per hour for a paralegal was not the norm and certainly not in Ocean County in the year 2000. Counsel conceded that the firm hired this paralegal with experience in mass torts in consideration of the deadlines imposed in that litigation and that this was a special circumstance.

12. pages 25-26, 11/12/99. BENM billed .5 hours for strategy conference re: handling 11/16 Board of Ed hearing. This was not related to the criminal matter.

13. page 56, 1/13/00. BENM billed .8 hours in connection with Mr. McHarris' arrest on support warrant. This was not related to the criminal matter.

14. page 57, 1/13/00. BENM billed .2 hours in connection with a telephone call with Mrs. McHarris confirming Mr. McHarris' release. This was related to the child support matter.

15. page 63, 2/3/00. BEN billed .3 hours re: worker's compensation claim. This is not related to the criminal matter.

16. page 63, 2/3/00. MEW billed .2 hours for telephone conference with client re: unemployment hearing. This is not related to the criminal matter.

17. page 66, 2/11/00. MEW billed .2 hours for telephone conference with client re:status of indictment and problem with unemployment. I am disallowing .1 of that billing.

18. page 67, 2/11/00. BENM billed 1.9 hours researching issue of suspension by reason of indictment while tenure charges pending. This is not related to the criminal matter.

19. page 67, 2/11/00. MEW billed .2 for telephone conference with client re: scheduling shoulder surgery. This is not related to criminal matter.

20. page 73, 2/23/00. MEW billed 1.1 hours for review of client's disability file and timing of claims to Board of ed tenure action. This is not related to criminal matter.

21. page 74, 2/24/00. MEW billed a total of .5 in relation to impact of Hudson case on 120 day time period for salary withholding and telephone conference with his client in relation to same. This is not related to the criminal matter.

22. page 76, 3/3/00. BENM billed 2.3 hours to index documents. Again this is a paralegal function and the entire 2.3 hours will be billed at the paralegal rate.

23. page 79, 2/15/00. I am disallowing .2 of billing by BENM re: a disability meeting with insurance representative as not related to the criminal matter.

24. pages 82-83, 4/3/00. BENM billed .2 hours for a telephone conference regarding status of criminal/tenure charge in relation to the worker's comp matter. This is unrelated to the criminal matter.

25. page 86, 4/10/00. BENM billed .2 hours for a telephone conference with Mr. McHarris re accepting a sales job. This is unrelated to the criminal matter.

26. page 86, 4/10/00. MEW billed .3 hours for a telephone conference with his client re false arrest (in relation to child support) and preparing notice of tort claim. This is unrelated to the criminal matter.

27. page 87, 4/11/00. MEW billed .2 hours for a telephone conference with his client regarding a news paper article on the arrest of the BOE president's spouse for alleged misappropriation of funds. This is not related to the criminal matter and disallowed.

28. page 101, 6/19/00. MEW billed 2.3 hours for receipt and review of grand jury transcript (second indictment); preparation of transcript outline with page references; preparation of note to file. I am disallowing 1.1 hours for the preparation of the transcript outline at the blended rate and allowing it to be billed at $50.00 hour for paralegal time as this is a paralegal function.

29. page 107, 7/19/00 BENM billed a total of 2.8 to research rules of evidence re: inconsistent statements and credibility. As Mr. Montenegro did not cross examine any witnesses at trial, and Mr. Wilbert is familiar with the rules of evidence, I am disallowing this billing in its entirety.

(The following is based on a review of P-5.)

30. page 16, 1/22/01. BAM billed .2 for telephone conference with client to discuss employment status and impact on back pay reimbursement. This is not related to the criminal matter.

31. page 27, 4/12/01. MEW billed .2 for a phone call to the Asbury Park Press re: the verdict. This was not necessary.

32. page 27, 4/16/01. BAM billed .5 to speak with the client re:return to work and with a Ms. D'Errico regarding the verdict and status of tenure charges. This was not related to the criminal matter.

Based on the foregoing, there is a deduction of $27,363.50 yielding a total of $174,593.00, which represents the total defense legal fees that are subject to indemnification. That figure was arrived at as follows. The disallowed legal research on page 8 of this opinion resulted in a deduction of 61.1 hours at the blended rate of $265.00/hour; or ($16,191.50 deduction); the allowed legal research of 21 hours but at a law clerk rate of $75.00/hour resulted in a net deduction of $3,990.00; and the miscellaneous items on pages 9-13 resulted in a net deduction of $7,182.00.

DECISION AND ORDER

The record of this matter, the proposed settlement agreement and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 have been reviewed.

[1] The other respondents were dismissed from the action prior to the remand of this case.

Petitioners brought this action in 1997 for relief from respondent's actions abolishing their school nurse positions for economic reasons and contracting with the Montclair Department of Health (Montclair DOH) for the provision of nursing services to the Montclair public schools. The Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) found that, based upon the record before him, respondent appeared to have acted within its authority as regards both actions. Accordingly, he ruled that no relief was due petitioners.

However, the Commissioner directed respondent to review its contracts with the Montclair DOH to ensure that – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3 and other relevant statutes, regulations and case law – all duties specifically reserved for certificated school nurses were being performed by the remaining certificated school nurses employed by respondent, and not by non-certificated nurses supplied by the Montclair DOH. Respondent was further directed to make revisions to the contracts to correct any violations, and to submit a report to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools.

As a result of petitioners' appeal, the State Board of Education reviewed the matter. It found that "it was appropriate for the Commissioner to direct the Board to review any contract it had with DOH and the attendant job descriptions to ensure that duties being performed by nurses provided by DOH did not conflict with those reserved by law for 'school nurses' employed by the Board." (State Board Decision at 8-9.)

It also noted that there was information in the record that raised a question about the adequacy of school nurse staffing in the district, which had three school nurses and over ten schools. To resolve this question, which in turn would be determinative of whether petitioners might have been inappropriately 'riffed,' and might be entitled to relief, the State Board ordered a remand to supplement the record.

Finally, the State Board stressed that in the event that respondent was currently supplementing its nursing services with contract [non-certificated] nurses, respondent was required to comply with the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3.

Upon the remand, the parties have agreed to a settlement whereby the individual petitioners will receive remuneration in exchange for the waiver of all claims against respondent. Upon review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and accordingly adopts as the final decision in this matter the Initial Decision which incorporates and approves the settlement and orders compliance with the settlement terms. The Commissioner also directs that respondent review the district's nursing services for compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3, if it has not already done so, in accordance with the prior decisions of the Commissioner and the State Board.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

This Stipulation of Settlement ("the Stipulation") is entered into and made effective this ___ day of December, 2005 ("the Effective Date"), by and between Petitioners, Montclair Education Association, Moira Palisits, and Cynthia Samuel, hereinafter "Petitioners", in the above captioned action and the Board of Education of the Township of Montclair, Essex County, hereinafter "Respondent" in said action.

RECITALS:

WHEREAS, Petitioners filed Petitions of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education during July, 1997, challenging, inter alia, the actions of Respondent Board in contracting with Respondent Montclair Department of Health ("DOH") to provide nursing services and in abolishing the positions of two of its school nurse positions for reasons of economy, effective June 30, 1997, resulting in the separation from employment with the Board of Petitioners, Palisits and Samuel; and

WHEREAS, the Petitions were consolidated and transferred to the Office of Administrative Law ("Court") for hearing; and

WHEREAS, by order of June 5, 1998, the Court dismissed the DOH from the case because the Commissioner did not have jurisdiction to grant relief against the DOH; and

WHEREAS, the Court, in its Initial Decision, on a stipulated record, recommended that the Petitions be dismissed in their entirety; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner adopted the Court's initial decision with modification; and

WHEREAS, on appeal filed by Petitioners, the State Board of Education ("State Board") issued a decision on November 6, 2002, affirming the Commissioner's decision, in part, and remanding in part for additional proceedings before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL" or "Court"); and

WHEREAS, the completion of such additional remand proceedings would involve a significant dedication of time and legal expense for both parties in order to develop a full and complete record as required by the State Board's remand order; and

WHEREAS, the parties are of the opinion that the amount of time and expense required to continue this proceeding far outweighs the limited backpay and incidental damages at issue herein; and

WHEREAS, under all the circumstances, all parties are of the opinion that this matter should be settled upon reasonable terms mutually agreed to by the parties; and

WHEREAS, both parties agree that this settlement is merely a means to resolve a dispute by means of compromise and in no way may be interpreted or used as an admission of liability or of wrongdoing by any party; and

WHEREAS, following good faith negotiations, the parties and their designated representatives, hereby stipulate and agree to settle and to request the dismissal of the above captioned proceeding upon the following terms and conditions:

1. Within thirty (30) days following the approval of this Stipulation by the Court and the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay to Petitioner Moira Palisits the sum of $8,000.00, less legally required deductions.

2. Within thirty (30) days following the approval of this Stipulation by the Court and the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay to Petitioner Cynthia Samuel the sum of $4,000.00, less legally required deductions.

3. The Petitioners, individually and collectively, hereby release, waive and give up any and all claims and rights, which they may have against the Board, its members, its employees, and agents and attorneys, including those claims which they may not be aware, arising out of or otherwise related to the claims set forth in the Petitioners' Petitions of Appeal filed in this matter, except those claims which may arise out of a breach of the terms of this Stipulation. The foregoing release applies to any claim/request or demand of any nature, which was included in settlement discussions or resulting from anything which has happened up to now or which failed to occur. The Plaintiffs specifically release the following claims: any and all claims which have been raised or could have been raised for money damages, backpay, interest, equitable relief, and any and all other relief, including, but not limited to any claims related to their separation from employment with the Board, all claims arising under the United States Constitution, including, but not limited 42 U.S.C. 1983, et seq.; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 2000 et seq.; the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 42 U.S.C. 791 et seq.; the First, Second and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution; the Education Laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, et seq.; the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1; all regulations promulgated pursuant to any of the aforementioned laws; any other federal, State, county, local or common law, statutes, ordinances, resolutions, regulations, Board policies and administrative regulations and directives not mentioned above, including, but not limited to, claims for defamation, libel, or claims on any other basis, for damages, costs, and fees of any type whatsoever, including, but not limited to attorneys' fees. The foregoing release also includes all claims which could not have been brought in the current forum due to jurisdictional reasons.

4. This Stipulation is not to be construed as a past practice, precedent or as an admission of liability or wrongdoing of any kind on the part of any party and may not be used in any subsequent legal or contractual proceeding for any purpose, provided that either party may refer to and use this Stipulation in any legal or contractual proceeding to enforce its terms and conditions.

5. This Stipulation is made and entered into in the State of New Jersey and shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE KINGSWAY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a former resident whose family moved out of the district in April 2004 with the intent to return upon building a new home – challenged the respondent Board's finding that her son and brother are not domiciled in the district and must consequently pay tuition. Petitioner contends that her family has complied with the district's policy regarding future residents. She bases her contention upon a May 2005 agreement to purchase vacant land in the district and a residential lease dated November 2005, showing that she resides in a district serviced by the respondent district. Respondent moved for dismissal of the case, asserting that petitioner had failed to supply the lease and building plans, permits, etc. for her property located in the district.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner meets the conditions of the future resident policy, having satisfied the implicit good faith understanding connected with a commitment to build; petitioner presented the district with a bona fide contract for the purchase of vacant land in May 2005; and dismissal of the case based on discovery violations is unwarranted. The ALJ consequently denied respondent's motion to dismiss; concluded that petitioner qualified as a "Future Resident"; and ordered that C.B. and K.M. are eligible for a free public school education in respondent's district, subject to sending district Logan Township's verification that petitioner resides therein.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner satisfied the conditions of the district's future resident policy, and adopts the ALJ's conclusions that: C.B. and K.M. are entitled to enroll in Kingsway for the 2005-2006 school year without paying tuition; and they are now entitled to attend school at Kingsway as residents of a district that has contracted to send its high school students there. Accordingly, the Commissioner orders that C.B. and K.M. continue as students at Kingsway, subject to verification by the Logan Township school district that petitioner resides therein, and orders petitioner to pay respondent tuition for the 2004-2005 school year in the amount of $3,590.40, as stipulated, unless respondent agrees to the lower amount set forth in petitioner's post-hearing brief.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE KINGSWAY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,	:	DECISION

RESPONDENT.	:

The record in this case and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No transcripts were transmitted to this office and no exceptions were submitted by the parties.

The matter was precipitated by respondent's August 16, 2005, determination that C.B. and K.M., petitioner's son and brother, were not residents of the Kingsway Regional High School District and were consequently not entitled to a free, public education in the district for the 2005-2006 school year. Petitioner appealed this determination, based upon the following facts, which do not appear to be disputed.

C.B. and K.M. are both currently in the 12th grade. They have attended Kingsway Regional High School (Kingsway) since the beginning of 9th grade. In April of 2005, S.B. and her husband sold their house in the Kingsway district and moved to a rental outside of the district, with the intent to return to the district upon building a new home. The parties have stipulated that for the last two months of the 2004-2005 school year, petitioner will pay respondent tuition of $3590.40 for her son and her brother. (Initial Decision, p. 2)[1]

On May 24, 2005, petitioner and her husband entered into a contract to buy a five-acre tract of vacant land in the Kingsway district. (R-1) The purpose of the purchase was to build a home on a portion of the land and subdivide the rest to a relative. Petitioner gave a copy of the contract to Terrence Crowley, the superintendent of the Kingsway district, and communicated with him a number of times, between the end of May and August 2005, about her plans to move back into the Kingsway school district.

On July 20, 2005, Crowley sent petitioner a letter stating that because petitioner was buying property without a dwelling, and since the closing would not be until September 15, 2005, after school began, her children would not qualify as district residents for the 2005-2006 school year. (R-3) Petitioner requested an appearance before the respondent board of education, and the matter was put on the agenda for August 16, 2005 (R-2). Unfortunately, petitioner's mother-in-law passed away suddenly on or about August 16, 2005, which required petitioner to go to Florida. She testified that she did not contact Crowley at that time because she had incorrectly calendared the board meeting for a different date.

At respondent's August 16, 2005, meeting it passed a motion that found that "based upon the evidence presented, the 'B' family are not residents of the district and are not entitled to a free public education and further that their residency ceased on April 30, 2005 and as such are responsible for tuition of $8,245.60 for the months of May and June, 2005." (P-6) After her return from Florida, petitioner asked that the residency hearing be rescheduled, and was advised that the residency decision for the 2005-2006 school year had been made. She subsequently attended a board meeting to discuss the issue but was told that respondent's August 16, 2005, decision was final and she could appeal to the Commissioner of Education. She did so on September 2, 2005 (P-4), and the matter was transmitted to the OAL for an expedited hearing. Her appeal allowed her children to begin the school year at Kingsway.

[1] Prior to the hearing in this matter, respondent moved that the petition be dismissed for petitioner's failure to produce certain documents, and petitioner countered that respondent had failed to produce its written policy concerning future residents. The administrative law judge (ALJ) ruled that since most of these issues were resolved at least three weeks prior to the hearing, neither party was prejudiced and dismissal of the case was not warranted. The Commissioner adopts the ALJ's ruling.

The closing, transferring the five acres to petitioner and her relatives, occurred on September 15, 2005. (P-3) Petitioner and her husband still hoped, at that time, that their home would be built within three months. However, the surveyor whom they hired did not perform in a timely manner and had to be replaced. This delayed the design of a septic or sewer system, which design was a prerequisite to building permit approvals. When it became apparent that their new home would not be completed by the end of 2005, petitioner and her husband rented an apartment in Logan Township (P-2), a district that sends its high school students to Kingsway. The lease was for six months and began on December 1, 2005. In the meanwhile, petitioner and her husband continued to pursue the permits and approvals necessary to construct a home in the district, and have been paying taxes on the land since September 2005.

Based upon the foregoing facts, the petitioner urged that her children met the conditions of respondent's policy allowing "future residents" to attend Kingsway without paying tuition. That policy, set forth in petitioner's exhibit P-1 (page 2 of 3), states in pertinent part:

> Future Residents
> A child otherwise eligible for attendance whose parent/guardian has signed a contract to buy, build or rent a residence in this District shall be enrolled for a period not to exceed 90 days previous to the anticipated date of residency without tuition charges. If the child has not become a resident of the District by the end of the period of free attendance, tuition shall be required for the remainder of the time until residency is established.

> Parents/guardians of children who are future residents shall be required to demonstrate proof of the anticipated residency. The Board reserves the right to verify such claims and to remove from school a nonresident pupil whose claim cannot be verified.

The ALJ found that the petitioner satisfied the conditions, as does the Commissioner. By virtue of the fact that petitioner and her husband had – prior to the 2005-2006 school year – signed a contract to buy land in respondent's district upon which to build a home, had closed on the land two weeks after school started, had entered into contracts (with surveyors and a septic engineering firm) to begin the building process, and had secured a rental property in Logan Township by November 20, 2005, the children were residents of respondent's district or, at least, residents of a district within the region served by respondent. And they achieved that status within the 90-day period contemplated by respondent's "future resident" policy.

Respondent has not adequately rebutted petitioner's arguments about the future resident policy. In its August 16, 2005 determination, respondent neglected to address the question of whether the children could be considered future residents. At the OAL hearing respondent apparently argued that since the children were not "pre-qualified" as future residents, they did not qualify for the tuition-free 90-day period. However, the sales contract for the tract in respondent's district had been presented to respondent's representative, and petitioner had communicated to him on multiple occasions that her family expected to return to the district in the near future. Respondent cannot argue that petitioner's children were not pre-qualified, when petitioner had provided that information and respondent had failed to address it when it made its ruling about C.B. and K.M. Nor did respondent submit a post hearing brief addressing the future resident issue.

In view of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's conclusions that: 1) C.B. and K.M. were entitled, under the future resident policy, to enroll in Kingsway for the 2005-2006 school year without paying tuition; and 2) they are now entitled to attend school at Kingsway as residents of a district that has contracted to send its high school students there. [2]

Accordingly, the Commissioner orders that C.B. and K.M. continue as students at Kingsway, subject to verification by the Logan Township school district that petitioner resides therein. Petitioner is ordered to pay respondent tuition for the 2004-2005 school year in the amount of $3,590.40, as stipulated, unless respondent agrees to the lower amount set forth in petitioner's post-hearing brief.

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Education Bureau of Controversies received a request for relief on September 6, 2005. Petitioner challenges the district's finding that her children are not domiciled in District and consequently must pay tuition. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 13, 2005 to be heard as an expedited matter. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 The Director of the OAL assigned the undersigned to hear this as an expedited matter pursuant to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was scheduled for a plenary hearing on November 21, 2005. The hearing was adjourned to allow petitioners to obtain counsel. The hearing was rescheduled for December 13, 2005, at the OAL office in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record remained open until December 29, 2005, to enable the parties to submit simultaneous closing arguments. Petitioner's closing submission was received on December 23, 2005. Respondent's was received on December 29, 2005. No advantage was gained by the timing difference because petitioner's closing submission was only provided to this tribunal. The record closed on December 29, 2005.

STIPULATIONS BY THE PARTIES

For school year 2004-2005, petitioner[1] had four children attending school within the District. Two students were juniors and two students were seniors. The family moved out of district on or about April 15, 2004, with the intent to return upon building a new home. The school year concluded on or about June 15, 2004. The school has a policy (P-1) to allow seniors to complete the school year without being assessed tuition, even when they are out of district. The policy does not apply to juniors or other underclassmen. As a result, the parties stipulated that for the completion of the school year 2004-2005 (April 15 through June 15, 2004) that the two students who were juniors owed tuition from April 15 through June 15 because they were not covered by the exception in the non-resident student policy. Similarly, the District stipulated that the two seniors would be permitted the benefits of the Non-Resident Student Policy - Completion of Senior Year, and, therefore, would not owe any tuition. The parties further stipulated that the tuition for the two juniors to be $3,590.40. These stipulations resolved all issues for the school year 2004-2005, except for when the tuition moneys would be due and owing the District.

[1] Petitioner is the student's mother, S.B. Their father, C.B. was present but did not testify at the hearing. This Initial Decision may refer to petitioner as petitioners because some of the testimony was referring to both the mother and father of the children. C.B. is not in the caption in the agency transmittal.

SUMMARY OF RELEVANT TESTIMONY

Petitioner and her children resided within the District encompassing the Kingsway Regional High School for at least three to four years. Her four children, who among them included her brother who is an Affidavit student, attended the Kingsway Regional High School for approximately 3¾ years. In or around April 15, 2005, the family sold their house that was within the District and moved Mullica Hill, which is out of district. The four children completed the 2004-2005 school year at the Kingsway Regional High School.

On or about May 24, 2005, petitioner signed "Contract for the Sale of Vacant Land for One Family Dwelling." (R-1). On or about the same date, petitioner provided the school district, in particular, Terrence Crowley, Superintendent of the Kingsway Regional High School District, with a copy of the Contract.

Petitioner and Superintendent Crowley had several telephone conferences or meetings between the period May 2005 and August 2005. The conferences revolved around petitioner's residency or domicile in anticipation of the 2005-2006 school year. The real estate agreement called for settlement to occur on or before September 15, 2005. Superintendent Crowley reviewed the Contract for Sale of Vacant Land and incorrectly assumed that it was for the purchase of a property with improvements. In other words, Superintendent Crowley believed petitioner was buying a house. He stated that he had conversations with petitioner that led him to believe that petitioner would be moving into a house in September 2005. Notwithstanding Superintendent Crowley's testimony, the agreement caption states that it is a contract for sale of vacant land and paragraph 1 of the Contract clearly states seller and buyer agree under the terms of this Contract that the Buyer agrees to purchase a "certain tract or vacant parcel of land in the Municipality of Mullica Hill," (also known as South Harrison). The property identified under the Contract would fall within one of the Kingsway Regional's sending districts.

Subsequent to receipt of the Contract, Superintendent Crowley investigated the situation further. He contacted the local building department and found that petitioner had not secured any building permits between the period May 2005 through August 2005. He learned that the property did not contain a dwelling or any other improvements. Petitioner had not retained a builder. Crowley was not convinced that a house would be constructed within a reasonable period during the 2005-2006 school years.

By letter dated July 20, 2005 (R-3), Crowley notified petitioner that

> I have received the Contract of Sale for a property located at 568 Franklinville Road in South Harrison Township. In reviewing the document, I must note that this is a vacant piece of land, not a residence, and the settlement date is September 15, 2005. Therefore, this does not qualify as living in the district.
> My previous letters regarding residence stand and if you would like to appear before the Board, please advise me no later than July 25, 2005.

It is clear that on or before July 20, 2005, the District had notified petitioner that they were not going to be considered residents for purposes of entering the Kingsway Regional District for the 2005-2006 year. On July 27, 2005, Crowley notified petitioners of their right to appear before the Board. Crowley's letter, dated July 25, 2005 (R-2), states

> You have requested to appear before the Board of Education regarding your residence and your child [C.] and [K.M.]. This is scheduled for Tuesday, August 16, 2005, at 8:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as is possible and will be held in the Middle School Media Center. The Board will make a decision that evening.
> You have a right to be present, be represented by an attorney, at your expense, present witnesses on your behalf and question witnesses against you. Please advise me by August 12, 2005 if an attorney will be representing you.

Petitioner acknowledged receiving both of Superintendent Crowley's letters. Petitioner also stated that she intended to appear before the Board of Education on August 16, 2005. On August 16, 2005, the Board of Education met and decided as follows:

> RESIDENCY
> Motion by Walsh, second by DiGiovacchino, that the Board of Education find that based upon the evidence presented, the "B" > family are not residents of the district and are not entitled to a free public education and further that their residency ceased on April 30, 2005 and as such are responsible for tuition of $8,245.60 for the months of May and June, 2005. The Board directs the solicitor to file the appropriate legal proceedings to recover the tuition due.

> Motion carried unanimously. (P-6)

Petitioner's mother-in-law suddenly passed away on or around August 16, 2005. The family left to attend the funeral in Florida. As a result, they were unable to attend the School Board meeting intended to discuss the residency issue. Petitioner did not contact the District because she believed the School Board was actually meeting on a different date. Consequently, she thought she could attend the funeral in Florida and also attend the School Board residency hearing. When she returned from Florida, she realized that she had incorrectly calendared the meeting date and had actually missed the hearing.

Petitioner contacted the District and asked if she could reschedule the residency hearing. She was advised that the School Board had already made a decision on the residency issue involving her children for the 2005-2006 school year. However, petitioner was advised that she could attend a regular meeting and discuss the matter with the Board. Sometime between August 16 and September 1, petitioner attended a regular School Board meeting and pressed her case. She was advised that the District's decision was final and that she could appeal their determination to the Commissioner of Education.

On September 2, 2005, petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal. (P-4). Petitioner's appeal states as follows:

> We are currently not in the school district. We sold our house in April and moved to a rental. We brought (sic) property in the school District and plan to move to it within 2 months. My son and brother started at Kingsway as freshman and I would like them to finish their High School Education there. And since we are moving back to the District during this school year I don't want to disrupt their senior year to transfer them back and forth.

Upon filing the appeal, petitioner's children were eligible to enter the District subject to reimbursement of tuition if they were unsuccessful. (P-4, ¶ 6).

Petitioners were unable to complete the construction of a new home within the District during the first half of 2005. Petitioner testified that the process was much more involved than anticipated. Petitioner's husband works in the construction field and is going to act as the general contractor for the project. Petitioner was completing most of the paperwork for the project. Petitioner testified that in order to procure building permits, the property owner must first obtain sewer or septic approval. In order to obtain sewer or septic approval, they are required to obtain a survey and submit it to a septic engineer. The property in question involves five acres. Petitioner and her husband intend to initially build on the five acre site and then subdivide a portion thereof to petitioner's brother-in-law.

Petitioner's initial surveyor was not responsive. Petitioner hired a second surveyor in the Fall of 2005 who completed the survey within two weeks. The survey was submitted to the septic engineering company. The septic engineers are still working on this aspect of the project as of December 2005. Petitioner stated that she anticipated getting septic approval sometime in mid-December. Once septic approval is received from the County, petitioners can then apply for building permits.

Petitioner conceded that the process was much more involved than she anticipated. In hindsight, her initial expectations of moving into a newly constructed home within the District within two months of September 2005 were not practical or feasible. However, petitioner reiterated that her intentions in May 2005 were to purchase vacant land, build a house and return to the District within the 2005-2006 school year. She supported her intentions by reference to her continued discussions with Superintendent Crowley as well as her actions, which initially started in May 2005. Since May 2005, she sought assistance from the District on the basis that she intended to return. She had meetings and telephone calls with the District, supplied the District with proof of a contract to purchase and build, and has been pursuing, to the best of her ability, the various approvals necessary to construct a home. Consequently, petitioner urges that her intent was genuine and sincere with regard to moving back within the District. She resided herein for several years and owns a parcel of land valued at $135,000 and, thus, is paying real estate taxes.

Petitioner secured a residential lease in a sending district in November 2005, after it became apparent that the new home would not be completed. The occurred within in the 90 day tuition free window embodied in the "Future Resident" policy.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

Petitioner contends that her children are presently domiciled in the Kingsway Regional school district. Petitioner's contention is based on the May 24, 2005, agreement to purchase vacant land with the intent to build a home and the residential lease dated November 10, 2004. (P-2). Based upon these agreements, petitioner urges that they have complied with the District's policy involving future residents.

The relevant statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and it provides in part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within > the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection.

Where a local board of education removes a student, the parent may appeal to the Commissioner of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1(b)(2). In the proceeding before the Commissioner, the parent has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child meets eligibility requirements for a free education. Ibid. The child shall not be removed while the matter is pending before the Commissioner. Ibid. If the evidence does not support the parent's claim, the Commissioner shall assess the parent tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Ibid.

Attendance at public schools shall be free to any person who is domiciled within a school district and meets age requirements. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A person's domicile is "the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has an intention of returning, and from which he has no intention of moving." Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L 213, 215 (Sup. Ct. 1944). A person may have multiple residences but only one domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). As set forth in Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971), the following factors are important in determining a person's domicile:

> . . . the physical characteristics of each [place], the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude towards each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return. [Id. at 39-40].

Establishment of a domicile is an act of volition. Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 375 (Law Div. 1991). "[A] choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of the motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." Id. at 376.

Three elements which must be considered in regard to a change of domicile are: "(1) whether there has been an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular state; (2) whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently or [at] least indefinitely; and (3) whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile." Ibid. Once established, a domicile continues until superseded by a new one. Id. at 377.

Petitioner urges that her family satisfied the terms and conditions of Kingsway Regional's "Future Residents" policy by purchasing land in the district with the intention of building a residential home.

The present controversy specifically centers on the applicability and interpretation of the Kingsway Regional School District's non-resident policy (P-1, p. 2) and petitioner's intentions. The District articulated a policy concerning "future residents". It addresses circumstances similar to the present. The policy provides:

> A child otherwise eligible for attendance whose parent/guardian has signed a contract to buy, build or rent a residence in the District shall be enrolled for a period not to exceed 90 days previous to the anticipated date of residency without tuition charges. If the child has not become a resident of the District by the end of the period of free attendance, tuition shall be required for the remainder of the time until residency is established.
> Parents/guardians of children who are future residents shall be required to demonstrate proof of the anticipated residency. The Board reserves the right to verify such claims and to remove from school a nonresident pupil whose claim cannot be verified.

Notably, this policy was not discussed by the Kingsway Board of Education on August 16, 2005. The minutes do not reflect a discussion of the contract to purchase vacant land. Nor do the minutes reflect the Boards reasoning why the contract did or did not satisfy its policy. Moreover, Crowley incorrectly thought petitioner's were buying a home and explained that he felt deceived. No such deception occurred. The contract provided to Crowley in May 2005 plainly stated vacant land. Crowley admittedly misread the agreement. He stated that he is not experienced with real estate agreements. Consequently, the Board may have also misread the agreement, been misinformed or misunderstood petitioner's intentions. The policy should have been discussed and the Board's reasons set forth in the minutes.

Petitioner submits that they have complied with the District's policy in regard to future residency. Petitioner signed an agreement of sale for vacant land with intentions to construct a home upon that vacant land. (R-1). The agreement is dated May 24, 2005, and was provided to the District by petitioners on or about the same date. Petitioners assert that whether or not they actually completed the construction within the 90 day period is irrelevant.

I FIND so long as petitioners submitted to the District, in good faith, a contract to purchase with intent build a home, they meet the clear expressed conditions of the future resident policy. Petitioner testified that a surveyor, septic engineer were retained. They have been pressing forward to obtain building permits. Unfortunately, petitioner and her husband are inexperienced and have been unsuccessful in expediting the process. In fact, petitioners concede that they have been visited with delays from inception. Initially, they intended to settle on the vacant land in or around July 15, 2005. That date was extended to September 15, but petitioners could close on or before September 15, 2005, if funds were available sooner. Petitioners indicated that the five acre site was being purchased jointly with a brother-in-law. The brother-in-law was having difficulty coming up with his share of the purchase price. The purchase price is $135,000.00 cash (with no mortgage). Petitioners were able to settle on the property, in accordance with the Contract, on September 15, 2005. The Deed was executed on this date (P-3). Petitioners still had expectation that they could have completed the construction of their home within the 90 days. It has proved to be wishful thinking.

The Board's "Future Residents" policy does not contain a specific means or probability test. The residency policy simply states that the parent or guardian [must have a] signed contract to "buy, build or rent a residence." There is an implicit good faith understanding connected with a commitment to build which, I FIND petitioners satisfied. Petitioners presented the District with a signed contract for vacant land on or about May 24, 2005. Petitioner's four children attended the District for three to four consecutive years. They stated from inception when they sold their in-district home that they intended to return to the district. They entered into an agreement, purchased land and became taxpayers within the district. The purchase of land and payment of taxes confirm, in part, their intentions to return as residents. Their intentions were further confirmed during various meetings and telephone calls with Superintendent Crowley. Crowley confirmed that petitioner repeatedly stated that they intended to return to the district. Finally, when the construction delays interfered with the probability or likelihood of their timely return, they leased an apartment on November 20, 2005. Again, this reaffirmed their intentions and satisfied the "Future Residents" policy. Furthermore, there is a sufficient nexus or continuity between the May 2005 contract to purchase vacant land to build a home and the November 2005 lease, to grant petitioner the benefit of the District's "Future Resident" policy.

I FIND that petitioners presented the District with a bona fide contract for vacant land with the intentions to build a dwelling, in district, upon the land in May 2005. This complies with the District's "Future Resident" policy negating petitioner's obligation to pay tuition. While petitioners experienced construction problems and delays, their actions were not a subterfuge of the policy. Petitioners clearly and convincingly expressed their intentions of returning to a newly built home. Delays related to real estate closings and new home construction are common events. Thus, the arguments concerning delays that were raised by petitioners are plausible and believable.

The "Future Residents" policy further states that if a child has not become a resident of the District by the end of the period of free attendance, tuition shall be required for the remainder of the time until residency is established. The parties stipulated that, under these circumstances, if a qualified future resident failed to establish a bona fide residence within the District within the 90 day window, they would be responsible for tuition on a prospective basis. In other words, if they fail to reside or be domiciled within District after the expiration of the 90 days, tuition would be due starting from the 91st day. It would not be retroactive to the first day. In this instance, tuition would be due and owing on December 1st, should petitioners fail to meet the 90 day requirement. The tuition would not be retroactive to September 1st.

One exception asserted by the District was that petitioners failed to pre-qualify for the Future Resident policy as of the Board of Education's decision on August 16, 2005. In other words, the District does not accept tuition-paying students. Hence, if the Board determined that a child was not a resident or not qualified under the policy as a future resident, they must be considered a tuition-paying student. Here, petitioner's children were not pre-qualified to attend the District for 2005-2006 according the respondent as a result of the Board's August 16, 2005, decision. Under these circumstances, a non-pre-qualified student would owe tuition retroactive to September 1st, should they fail to be a resident or domiciled within the District by the end of the 90 day period.

The school year commenced September 1, 2005. The expiration of 90 days would occur on or about November 30, 2005. I have already found that the May 2005 contract to purchase and build on vacant land satisfied the "Future Resident" policy. Petitioner was unsuccessful in completing the construction of the home within the 90 day window mentioned in the policy. In response, petitioners secured a rental property in Logan Township on November 20, 2005. (P-2). Logan Township is not within the Kingsway Regional High School District, but is a tuition-paying sending district to Kingsway. Petitioners stated that they began moving out of Mullica Hill and into Logan Township between the period November 20, 2005 and December 1, 2005. Petitioner stated that she currently resides at the location stated within the lease. (P-2).

Petitioner has had some casual contact with the Logan District for purposes of arranging transportation. More particularly, petitioner left a note with the Kingsway Regional District, in particular, Secretary Savage, stating that she has moved into a sending District, provided a new address and requested transportation for her children. She contacted the Logan School District and left similar messages. Since December 1, 2005, her children have been receiving bus transportation from the Logan District to Kingsway Regional High School, either intentionally arranged or simply by boarding a bus in the neighborhood[2].

Finally, in response to questioning by this ALJ, Superintendent Crowley agreed that continuity of educational programs is an important consideration. Here, the students in question spent most their high school experience at Kingsway Regional. It would be disruptive to bounce the students around in different programs for their senior year due to construction/housing issues. Crowley observed that he as a dual responsibility; one to the taxpayers and one to the education of children. In this instance, Crowley believed that petitioners were really not intent on returning back in the district. But, the proofs submitted by petitioners clearly refute any such assumption made by the District. Petitioner's intent is clear; the family is moving back. Thus, I FIND that it is in the best interest of the children to remain in the Kingsway School District tuition free for the 2005-2006 school year in view of the construction delays. The rental agreement signed in November 2005 (within 90 days of the September 1, 2005) is sufficient to replace the construction plans and meets the terms of the "Future Resident" policy.

Finally, on November 21, 2005, respondent moved that petitioner's case be dismissed for discovery violations. Respondent asserted that petitioner failed to supply the lease, building plans, permits contracts and other similar items. Similarly petitioner asserted that the District did not supply a copy of the "Future Resident" policy prior to this date. Some of these outstanding discovery claims of both sides were resolved on November 21, 2005. The policy was supplied by the District and the lease was supplied by petitioners. I FIND and CONCLUDE that dismissal of the case under these circumstance is not warranted. The matter was adjourned until December 13, 2005. This provided both sides equal time to resolve all outstanding discovery issues. Petitioners retained counsel. No new or continuing discovery violations were raised on December 13, 2005. Consequently, neither side suffered any significant prejudice. Accordingly, the District's motion to dismiss petitioner's case for discovery violations is DENIED.

[2] Petitioner submitted proof of registration for December 19, 2005, for Logan Township residents with its closing brief.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner qualified as a "Future Resident" on May 24, 2005, by entering into and submitting to the Superintendent an agreement to "Build...a residence in the District." (P-1). I ORDER the petitioner's two children are eligible for free public school education, subject to Logan Township school district verifying or certifying that petitioner resides therein. Kingsway Regional shall cooperate with petitioner and the Logan District for such matters as tuition, transportation, confirmation of residency and any other related issues. Petitioner is ordered to pay tuition in the amount of $3,590.40[3] for two children (juniors) in regard to the 2004-2005 school year as stipulated. (April 15 to June 15).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] Petitioner's closing brief submitted on December 21, 2005, states the stipulated tuition for the 2004-2005 school year (two juniors) is 3,495.00. My notes reflect $3590.40 being the stipulated amount. The difference is $95.40. If respondent agrees with petitioner than the amount shall be adjust accordingly. If the amount remains in dispute, the parties are free to request a copy of the hearing tape and settlement amount in dispute by listening to the tape.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged a ten-day suspension imposed on his son for possession of a knife on school property, and seeks a due-process hearing and a reversal or expungement of the suspension. Respondent Board moved for summary decision, arguing, inter alia, that the issues determinative to this matter had already been adjudicated in New Jersey Superior Court.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the doctrine of issue preclusion prevents any re-litigation; the school record of petitioner's son cannot be determined to be "inaccurate, irrelevant or otherwise improper" and therefore does not meet the criteria for expungement under N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.7; information about R.O.'s delinquency proceeding was properly released pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60d(1); there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, and the respondent is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Accordingly, the ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

The Commissioner found no merit in petitioner's twenty-one exceptions; concurred with the ALJ's determinations articulated in the Initial Decision; supplemented the Initial Decision; granted the respondent's motion for summary judgment and dismissed the petition.

R.O. on behalf of minor child, R.O., II, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

The record in this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's reply exceptions have been thoroughly and independently reviewed.[1] After considering the facts and applicable law, the Commissioner adopts the administrative law judge's (ALJ) decision to grant respondent summary judgment, dismissing the petition.

This case was initiated on February 9, 2005, by petitioner's appeal to the Commissioner from respondent's denial of petitioner's request to remove from his minor son's (R.O.) school record any mention of a ten-day suspension that had been imposed on March 3, 2004, as a result of R.O.'s possession of a knife on school premises. Petitioner also requested a "hearing to challenge the school suspension," and the "names and identities" of students who could possibly provide facts about the conduct that precipitated the suspension. (Petition at 2) General reference to such students had been made in a June 16, 2004, memorandum by Donna Gibbs-Nini, one of two assistant principals in R.O.'s school. The matter was transmitted to the OAL on March 8, 2005.

[1] Replies to reply exceptions are not contemplated by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Consequently, petitioner's reply to respondent's reply exceptions was not considered.

On September 23, 2005, petitioner moved before the Commissioner for interlocutory review of an order by the ALJ denying petitioner leave to supplement the original petition. On October 6, 2005, the Commissioner issued an order granting interlocutory review, adopting the ALJ's order denying supplementation of the original petition, and stating that the appropriate course of action would be for petitioner to raise his new claims in a separate petition of appeal. Accordingly, petitioner filed a second petition – Agency Dkt. No. 274-10/05, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8827-05 – on October 9, 2005, alleging violation of R.O.'s due process rights (First Count), racial discrimination (Second Count) and violation of R.O.'s civil rights (Third Count). The Commissioner dismissed the Second Count for lack of jurisdiction on November 4, 2005, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL on November 9, 2005.

Petitioner once again moved before the Commissioner for interlocutory review on October 20, 2005. On this occasion, petitioner challenged the ALJ's October 19, 2005 order denying reconsideration of his September 30, 2005 order denying petitioner's motion to compel respondent to answer a new set of interrogatories. The Commissioner declined interlocutory review on October 28, 2005.

On October 19, 2005, respondent resubmitted a motion for summary judgment that had originally been filed, and denied, in the previous month. The gravamen of respondent's motion was that the question of whether R.O. had possessed a knife on school premises on March 3, 2004 had already been decided in the affirmative in a proceeding in family court on February 3, 2005. On that occasion, R.O. had been adjudicated delinquent for possessing a dangerous knife while on the grounds of an educational institution without written authorization from the governing officer of the institution, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(e)(2), a fourth degree crime. Respondent argued that the doctrine of issue preclusion – as articulated, for example, in State v. Gonzalez, 75 N.J. 181, 186 (1977) – bars petitioner from litigating the issue again. Further, since R.O. had been found guilty of possessing a knife on the grounds of an educational institution, there was no basis under N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.7(a)(1) for expungement of the suspension from his record.

Petitioner's responses to the summary judgment motion contained a number of arguments. First, petitioner maintained that certain alleged erroneous rulings by the family court judge, and the appealability of the delinquency determination, barred summary judgment. Second, petitioner asserted that it was improper for respondent to use and disclose, in the present proceeding, transcripts and orders from R.O.'s juvenile delinquency trial. While not expressly stated in his papers, petitioner presumably intended that the ALJ deny summary judgment because respondent's grounds for same were offered to the ALJ via these documents from the family court action.

Third, petitioner appeared to contend that summary judgment could not be granted because R.O. was improperly denied a hearing before the respondent board. For the proposition that R.O. was entitled to such a hearing, petitioner relied upon N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.5, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7, which provide that students who commit certain offenses must receive certain due process rights, including hearings before the board of education.

The ALJ found that the following facts in this matter are undisputed. On March 3, 2004, R.O. was a seventh grade student at Community Middle School in the West Windsor-Plainsboro school district. On that date, he was suspended for ten days for possessing a weapon on school grounds. No written explanation was given to R.O.'s parents on March 3, 2004 or immediately thereafter, and no formal hearing was held by respondent before or after imposition of the suspension. R.O.'s parents requested a copy of an incident report prepared by a school employee. (Initial Decision at 2-3)

The ALJ also found that certain facts relating to R.O.'s family court proceeding are also undisputed. They are as follows. On May 10, 2004, a juvenile delinquency complaint was filed against petitioner in New Jersey Superior Court, Chancery Division Family Part, Middlesex County, containing – among other charges – allegations that on March 3, 2004, R.O. purposefully and knowingly possessed a dangerous knife while on the property of an educational institution in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(e)(2) – 4th degree. On February 3, 2005, the Superior Court judge found that R.O. had claimed that on March 3, 2004, he had found a knife on the school bus, that the bus had arrived at the school at approximately 7:00 a.m., and that R.O. had not given the knife to Assistant Principal Donna Gibbs-Nini until after he was summoned, at approximately 11:20 a.m. The judge then found the above-articulated allegations in the juvenile delinquency complaint to be true, and adjudicated R.O. delinquent. (Initial Decision at 3-4)

Since it was undisputed that a court had already adjudicated R.O. guilty of possessing a dangerous knife on the grounds of an educational institution, the ALJ agreed with respondent that – under the doctrine of issue preclusion – the Department of Education cannot relitigate the matter, and the petition must be dismissed as a matter of law. He reasoned further that there is no basis to expunge information about R.O.'s ten-day suspension from his school record. Under N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.7(a)(1), information in a student's school record must be inaccurate, irrelevant or otherwise improper for it to warrant expungement. The ALJ found that the record of R.O.'s suspension meets none of those criteria. (Initial Decision at 4-6)

The ALJ also rejected petitioner's claim that R.O. was entitled to a hearing before the board of education. He agreed with respondent that N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.5, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7 – regulations that pertain, respectively, to student possession of firearms, assaults with weapons, and assaults on board of education members and employees – are irrelevant to the level of process due to R.O. The foregoing regulations address offenses that carry serious penalties, including expulsion and suspensions up to a year or more. The penalty imposed on R.O. was what the Department of Education's regulations consider short-term, and is subject to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2. The ALJ determined that R.O. had received the informal hearing required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2 (a)(2). (Initial Decision at 6)

As for petitioner's contention that respondent improperly used documents from R.O.'s delinquency proceeding, the ALJ noted that petitioner himself had continually referred to the family court proceeding during the pendency of this matter in the OAL, and that the information was properly released pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60 (d)(1). (Initial Decision at 4)

Finally, the ALJ revisited the summary decision standards set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 (b). He found that respondent's brief and certifications had met its burden to show that there were no disputes of material fact, and that respondent was entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Petitioner, on the other hand, had failed to respond with any opposing certifications showing that there were, in fact, genuine issues of material fact that required determination at an evidentiary hearing. (Initial Decision at 6)

The Commissioner finds no merit in petitioner's twenty-one exceptions, most of which are duplicative of his arguments in opposition to respondent's application for summary judgment. In his exceptions 10, 11 and 12, petitioner maintains that the ALJ omitted certain findings of fact. And in exception 16, petitioner claims that the ALJ erroneously denied him access to students who might have had relevant information. Based upon these allegations, petitioner argues in his first exception that outstanding disputes of fact render summary judgment inappropriate. However, the undisputed facts in this case are sufficient to support the suspension that was imposed upon R.O. He had a four-inch knife in his possession in school for over four hours and produced it from his pocket when asked about it. Nothing in the record suggests that he was prevented from turning over the knife during the four hours. Any remaining facts, including the "newly discovered facts" referenced in petitioner's exception 13, are not material, and consequently do not serve as a bar to summary judgment. Even though the allegations of the pleadings may raise issues of fact, if the other papers show that, in fact, there is no real material issue, then summary judgment can be granted. Judson v. People's Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954). See, also, Brill v.

Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520, 530 (1995) (disputed issues that are of an insubstantial nature cannot overcome a motion for summary judgment).

Further, petitioner provided no evidential support for his allegations, such as a certification from R.O. about any fact which he deemed relevant to his position, but which was not adduced at the delinquency trial. Bare conclusions in the pleadings, without factual support in tendered affidavits, will not defeat a meritorious application for summary judgment. United States Pipe & Foundry Co. v. American Arbitration Ass'n, 67 N.J. Super. 384, 399-400 (App. Div. 1961).

Petitioner's exceptions 2, 3 and 4, in which he contends that respondent improperly utilized R.O.'s juvenile records, are also meritless. As the ALJ observed, petitioner himself submitted the juvenile records to the court. The juvenile delinquency complaint against R.O. was annexed to the petition, and it appears – from a letter by petitioner, dated September 15, 2005 – that petitioner sent the ALJ a copy of the transcript of the juvenile delinquency proceeding. If a party offers or allows evidence with full knowledge of the risks, he will be regarded as waiving, irrevocably, his right to have his evidence excluded. Administrator of Monfort v. Rowland, 38 N.J. Eq. 181 (N.J. Ch. 1884); Berryman v. Graham, 21 N.J. Eq. 370 (E.E.A. 1869); Boone v. Ridgway Exrs., 29 N.J. Eq. 543 (N.J. Ch. 1878).

Moreover, N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60 does not bar the availability of R.O.'s juvenile records in this proceeding. The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60(d) allows public disclosure of information about R.O.'s delinquency proceeding. Further, the Commissioner finds that information about the delinquency proceeding was properly disclosed to respondent under N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60(c) (2). Respondent was the equivalent of "the agency which filed the complaint." Respondent reported the offense to the police, and served – through Assistant Principal Gibbs-Nini – as the complaining witness. In addition, the Commissioner agrees with respondent that *N.J.S.A.*2A:4A-60 (A) (6) pertains. Respondent is an agency that has an interest in the case and made, through counsel, a request to the court to obtain the records of R.O.'s family court proceeding, which request was granted.

The Commissioner similarly finds no merit in petitioner's argument, in his exception 5, that respondent's absence as a party in the delinquency proceeding bars the application of the doctrine of issue preclusion. R.O. was found to have knowingly possessed a dangerous knife on school premises in a prior proceeding. R.O. is seeking, in the present proceeding, to dispute his liability for the same offense. It is R.O., the party against whom the doctrine of issue preclusion is asserted, that must have been a party (or in privity with a party) in the prior proceeding. Board of Trustees of Trucking Employees of North Jersey Welfare Fund, Inc. v. Centra, 983 *F.*2d 495, 505 (3d Cir. 1992); State v. Gonzalez, 75 N.J. 181, 186 (1977). Respondent's lack of participation in that proceeding is irrelevant.

The Commissioner also finds that petitioner's fourteenth exception is irrelevant to the instant controversy. In that exception, petitioner invokes standards for criminal trials, which standards do not govern these administrative proceedings.

Respecting petitioner's exceptions 6, 7, 8, 9 and 15, in which petitioner disputes the ALJ's conclusions about the due process required for ten-day suspensions, and about the applicability – or lack thereof – of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2 and 7.3, and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.5 through 5.7 to this issue, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's determinations, for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision and supplemented herein.

Petitioner's exception 17 is moot because respondent does not request dismissal of the petition on the basis of timeliness, and petitioner's exception 18 is rendered moot by the recent decision of the State Board of Education regarding petitioner's appeal of the denial of his request for an order compelling answers to twenty-seven interrogatories.

Finally, petitioner's exceptions 19, 20, and 21 pertain to the subject matter of a separate petition filed with the Commissioner on October 9, 2005, and will not be addressed herein.

In summary, for the reasons articulated in the Initial Decision of the OAL, and supplemented herein, respondent's motion for summary judgment is granted, and the petition is dismissed.

SUMMARY DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2010-05

AGENCY DKT. NO. 33-2/05

R.O., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD,

R.O., II,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,

Respondent.

R.O., petitioner, pro se

Eric L. Harrison, Esq., for respondent (Methfessel & Werbel, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 7, 2005 Decided: November 7, 2005

BEFORE RICHARD F. WELLS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner challenges a ten-day suspension imposed upon him due to his possession of a weapon on school property. Petitioner seeks a due-process hearing and a reversal or expungement of the suspension. Petitioner argues that the suspension was based upon a false premise and that no hearing was afforded him before the suspension was imposed. Additionally, petitioner argues that the respondent school district withheld the identity of witnesses and other information necessary for a full and complete defense of the allegations lodged against him. Still further, petitioner asserts that representatives of respondent school district were guilty of intentional prevarication to his detriment. Concomitantly, petitioner asserts that the suspension imposed was a function of the respondent's discriminatory practices, evidencing selective enforcement.

Respondent had moved for summary decision under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Respondent argues that the gravamen of this matter has already been fully and finally adjudicated in the Superior Court of New Jersey. Therefore, respondent asserts that the doctrine of issue preclusion bars the relitigation of the possession of weapons charge. Additionally, respondent observes that petitioner has filed no appropriate response under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules and so the grant of summary decision is mandated.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The instant matter was transmitted by the New Jersey State Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") where, on March 10, 2005, it was docketed as a contested case. Thereupon, this tribunal issued Orders dated June 13, 2005, August 29, 2005, September 22, 2005, September 23, 2005, September 30, 2005, October 17, 2005 and October 19, 2005.

Respondent filed its motion for summary decision on October 19, 2005 and petitioner responded in writing that same date. Thereafter, respondent filed supplemental papers in support of its motion for summary decision on November 1, 2005 and November 3, 2005. Petitioner supplemented his response by letters dated October 30, 2005, November 1, 2005, November 3, 2005, and November 6, 2005.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND that there is no dispute over the following facts:

1. On March 3, 2004, petitioner was a seventh grade student at Community Middle School in the West Windsor Plainsboro School District.

2. Petitioner was suspended from school on March 3, 2004.

3. No formal hearing was held prior to or immediately after March 3, 2004.

4. No written explanation was given to petitioner's parents on March 3, 2004 for the suspension.

5. No incident report was given to petitioner's parents prior to the suspension or immediately after the suspension.

6. Petitioner's parent specifically requested a copy of the incident report prepared by the school.

7. Petitioner was suspended for a period of ten days for possessing a weapon on school grounds.

8. On May 10, 2004, a Juvenile Delinquency Complaint was lodged against petitioner wherein it was alleged that on March 3, 2004, petitioner possessed a weapon, namely, a knife, with the purpose to use it unlawfully against the person or property of another, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4(d), 3rd degree and purposely and knowingly possessing a weapon (knife) while on the property of a school in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(e)(2) – 4th degree. Said Juvenile Delinquency Complaint was filed in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division Family Part, County of Middlesex.

9. On February 3, 2005, petitioner was adjudicated delinquent by a New Jersey Superior Court judge for knowing possession of a weapon on school grounds in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(e)(2).

10. On February 3, 2005, the Superior Court found that petitioner had knowingly possessed a "dangerous knife" with a four-inch blade.

11. On February 3, 2005, the Superior Court found that petitioner claimed that he found the knife on the school bus, arrived at school on the bus at approximately 7:00 a.m. and did not turn over the knife to Assistant Principal Donna Gibbs-Nini until after he was called to her office at approximately 11:20 a.m.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In the matter before this tribunal, petitioner seeks to challenge the ten-day suspension that he received for possession of a knife on school premises. Petitioner avers that the suspension should be removed from his school records. Essentially, petitioner is making this claim under N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.7 that provides for the ability to "expunge inaccurate, irrelevant or otherwise improper information" from the pupil's records.[1] However, the validity of the charge that petitioner possessed a dangerous weapon on school property has already been adjudicated in the New Jersey Superior Court and petitioner has been found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Accordingly, I FIND that this issue has already been adjudicated and the doctrine of issue preclusion prevents any re-litigation. Parenthetically, this tribunal is without authority to disturb, set aside, interfere with or otherwise overrule the Superior Court's finding on this score.[2]

As noted in the above Findings of Fact, petitioner's possession of a knife on school property was the subject of a prior judicial proceeding, namely, a delinquency proceeding in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Family Part. Following a hearing, the Superior Court Judge determined that petitioner did knowingly possess a weapon on school grounds and adjudicated him delinquent. Thereafter, the Superior Court Judge sentenced petitioner to a probationary term.

I am satisfied that the juvenile hearing in Superior Court resulted in a final judgment on the merits, which depended entirely on the finding of fact that petitioner wrongly possessed a weapon on school property. That matter was litigated in the Superior Court resulting in a final judgment and it would be inappropriate to re-litigate in this forum.

[2] By letter dated November 6, 2005, petitioner raises a new issue for the first time in this dispute. Petitioner argues that the school district is improperly disclosing and relying on his school and juvenile records. I am not persuaded by this argument. I FIND petitioner has continuously referred to the Superior Court action during the pendency of this matter before this tribunal. Additionally, I FIND the information was properly released pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60d(1).

The doctrine of issue preclusion prohibits the re-litigation of any factual or legal issue that was actually determined in an earlier proceeding. See, e.g., New Jersey Dep't of Law & Pub. Safety v. Gonzalez, 273 N.J. Super. 239, 242 (App. Div. 1994). To invoke the doctrine of issue preclusion, the issues presented within the two proceedings must be identical, and the earlier proceedings must have afforded a full and fair opportunity to the party against whom the doctrine of issue preclusion is invoked to litigate the contested issue. See also Morton Int'l, Inv. v. Gen. Accident Ins. Co. of Am., 266 N.J. Super. 300, 321 (App. Div. 1991), aff'd, 134 N.J. 1 (1993); Watkins v. Resorts Int'l Hotel & Casino, Inc., 124 N.J. 398, 412 (1991). The doctrine of issue preclusion is recognized in administrative proceedings. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 31-33 (1980). See also 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practice, § 6.27 at 345 (Steven L. Lefelt, Anthony Miragliotta and Patricia Prunty) (rev. 2d ed. 2000). Further, in appropriate circumstances, a judgment in regard to which an appeal is pending should be given preclusion effect. Restatement (Second) of Judgments § 13 comment g (1980); O'Hara v. Bd. of Educ. of Vocational Sch. in Camden County, 590 F. Supp. 696, 702 (D.C. N.J. 1984), aff'd, 760 *F.*2d 259 (3d Cir. 1985). For issue preclusion to apply, the following requirements must be met:

> (1) The identical issue was decided in a prior judication;
> (2) There was a final judgment on the merits;
>
> (3) The party against whom the bar is asserted was a party or in privity with a party to the prior adjudication; and
>
> (4) The party against whom the bar is asserted had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue in question.
> [Board of Trustees of Trucking Employees of North Jersey Welfare Fund, Inc. v. Centra, 983 *F.*2d 495, 505 (3d Cir. 1992).]

In the matter before this tribunal, I am satisfied that the above-listed elements are satisfied and that issue preclusion applies. There has already been a full hearing where petitioner had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue in question and a final judgment on the merits was rendered wherein petitioner was found to have wrongfully possessed a weapon on school property. Accordingly, and in reliance on the Superior Court ruling, I FIND that petitioner's school record cannot be determined to be "inaccurate, irrelevant or otherwise improper."

As concerns petitioner's ancillary claims of selective enforcement and/or discrimination, I am constrained to conclude that the record before this tribunal fails to so much as establish even a prima facie case on either discrimination, selective enforcement, discriminatory enforcement, discriminatory pattern of enforcement or an improper denial of due process.[3] Although this tribunal's file is thick with submittals from petitioner's counsel, what is required to defeat respondent's motion for summary decision has not been proffered. The Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules is clear that when a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party, in order to prevail, must by responding affidavit, set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) goes on to state: "If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." (Emphasis supplied.)[4]

In the matter before this tribunal, the motion for summary decision was adequately supported by the Transcript of Trial of February 3, 2005, as well as the Certification of Donna Gibbs-Nini, dated September 8, 2005. Petitioner's response has been limited to claims or allegations, all in the absence of adequate support in the record.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth hereinabove, I am satisfied from the papers and supporting documentation submitted, that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party, Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro School District, Mercer County, is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Accordingly, respondent's motion for

It is noteworthy that N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.7 provides for a ten-day appeal period to either the district board of education or the Commissioner of Education. Petitioner states the final decision of the school district was January 14, 2005, yet the date of petitioner's appeal is February 4, 2005.

summary decision is GRANTED and petitioner's action to expunge inaccurate, irrelevant or otherwise improper information from his records is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education appealed the Department's finding of noncompliance as the result of a complaint investigation conducted by the Office of Special Education Programs pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-9.2. The parties agreed that the matter was appropriately heard as a contested case before the Commissioner.

The ALJ vacated the Department's finding of noncompliance, concluding that the Board's actions were in "substantial compliance" with applicable law and that they were reasonable under the circumstances. The ALJ did not address the question of Commissioner jurisdiction, concluding that the parties' prior agreement – together with transmittal of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the agency – had resolved the issue. A motion to intervene or participate filed by the parent (A.M.) who initiated the complaint on behalf of her son – raising Commissioner jurisdiction among other issues – was denied by the ALJ, and the Commissioner declined to review the ALJ's ruling on an interlocutory basis.

The Commissioner, upon review of the entire record, expressed serious reservations about her jurisdiction to decide the merits of the matter, and remanded it to the OAL for argument, analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the threshold question of Commissioner jurisdiction. Additionally, solely for purposes of argument on jurisdiction, the Commissioner granted participant status to A.M.

PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision and prior Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have exceptions filed by the Department of Education (Department) and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto. "Proposed exceptions" submitted by A.M. on behalf of P.M. – filed in the event that A.M. was granted intervenor or participant status by the Commissioner subsequent to issuance of the Initial Decision, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(j)2 – were considered to a limited extent as set forth below, as were the parties' objections to this submission and A.M.'s response.[1]

In its exceptions, the Department contends that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erred in vacating the Office of Special Education Programs' (OSEP) finding of Board noncompliance, improperly relying on a "substantial compliance" standard that is supported by neither the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) nor the [1] A.M. sought leave from the State Board of Education to appeal the Commissioner's December 12, 2005 denial of her request for interlocutory review of the referenced order (see Initial Decision at 1-2). In a decision dated February 1, 2006, the State Board denied the motion.

State regulations enacted pursuant thereto. The Department further contends that the ALJ effectively shifted the burden of proof in this matter, improperly requiring OSEP to justify its action rather than requiring the Board to demonstrate that such action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. According to the Department, if OSEP's finding of noncompliance is viewed under the correct standard, it must be upheld because the Board clearly failed to act in accordance with specific, applicable law as well as the intent of the IDEA. (Department's Exceptions at 1-3)

In reply, the Board contends that the ALJ did not shift the burden of proof, but rather was persuaded by the Board's demonstration that OSEP's finding was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable under the circumstances. The Board reiterates prior arguments to the effect that its actions, "when viewed in conjunction with the facts at hand and the actions of A.M.," clearly met the requirements of the IDEA and State regulation. The Board urges the Commissioner to "consider the practical effect of P.M.'s dis-enrollment, recognize [the Board's] efforts to accommodate the special needs of this student, and affirm [the ALJ's] decision vacating OSEP's findings." (Board's Reply at 1-4; quotations at 2, 4)

Upon review, the Commissioner finds that she has serious reservations regarding any attempt on her part to rule on the merits of this matter. As the fully developed record so abundantly indicates – and as the parties' exceptions confirm – the issues in this matter fundamentally arise out of the IDEA and its interpretation, notwithstanding that they also implicate Department actions and State Board regulations adopted in furtherance of the federal law. While it was not unreasonable for the ALJ to conclude that the question of Commissioner jurisdiction did not need to be addressed at the OAL in light of the fact that the case was transmitted after the parties agreed that such jurisdiction was not an issue in dispute, the fact remains that party agreement cannot confer jurisdiction where none exists, and the act of transmittal does not in itself foreclose further inquiry where the need for it becomes apparent, as it has here.

Although the existing record in this matter contains substantial argument on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction, particularly in the context of briefing on A.M.'s motion to intervene or participate and in A.M.'s proposed exceptions, the Commissioner is loathe to decide so critical an issue without benefit of full adversarial argument and an initial analysis with recommended conclusions of the law by the OAL. Unfortunately, the ALJ's order denying such intervention or participation – together with her conclusion that jurisdiction was not at issue as noted above – effectively precluded a detailed analysis of the adversarial argument on this threshold issue within the Initial Decision.

Therefore, prior to any possible consideration of the merits of this matter, the Commissioner has determined to: 1) grant A.M.'s motion to participate, but solely on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction; and 2) remand this matter to the OAL so that the argument, analysis and recommendations necessary for the Commissioner to decide the threshold jurisdictional issue on the most informed basis possible may be developed with A.M.'s participation. A.M.'s participation will add constructively to the case, since she alone is presenting an adversarial perspective on the question of jurisdiction, and it will not delay or confuse the matter because the Commissioner would – even without her involvement – seek further exploration of the jurisdictional question before issuing a final ruling in this matter; moreover, as a parent of disabled child(ren), A.M. has a significant interest in the outcome of a matter implicating the process by which such parents may seek to resolve complaints against school districts. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6(a)-(b). In light of these considerations, the Commissioner deems it appropriate for A.M. to have the opportunity to argue orally, file statement(s) or brief(s), and file exceptions to the Initial Decision on Remand. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6(c).

Accordingly, the Order of the ALJ denying A.M.'s request to intervene or participate in this matter is rejected to the extent that it does not allow A.M. to participate on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction, and the matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for the limited purpose of argument, analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the question of jurisdiction as set forth above.

Carolyn Labin, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter C. Harvey, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 13, 2005 Decided: December 21, 2005

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals from a finding of non-compliance concerning a student's individualized education plan (IEP). By prior Order, that student's application, through his parent, A.M. o/b/o P.M., to intervene or participate was denied. By letter of December 12, 2005, Acting Commissioner Lucille E. Davy denied A.M.'s request for interlocutory review. The record then closed upon receipt of that decision. The parties previously consented to jurisdiction.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The facts are undisputed and thus constitute the FINDINGS OF FACT.

1. P.M. is a twenty-year old Lenape student who, at the relevant timeframe herein, was eligible to receive special education and related services.

2. During the 1998-1999 school year, P.M. was enrolled in the Medford Lakes School District. The IEP developed by his child study team (CST) in July 1999 determined placement at the Shawnee High School for the fall of 1999.

3. A.M. and R.M. filed a due process petition against Lenape on the issue of placement; A.M. et als v Lenape Regional High School District Board of Education, OAL Dkt. No. EDS 00-3028.

4. After several days of hearing, the record closed on November 17, 1999, and the Hon. Bruce Campbell, ALJ issued a Final Decision on November 18, 1999, denying petitioner's claims and ordering P.M. to begin attending Shawnee on November 22, 1999, under the IEP developed in July, 1999. Further pursuant to Judge Campbell's order, a revised IEP was created on December 15, 1999.

5. P.M. never attended Shawnee pursuant to Judge Campbell's order and the school district commenced truancy proceedings.

6. His parents withdrew him from the school district and completed a student exit form on January 14, 2000.

7. A.M. and R.M., thereafter unilaterally placed him at the Pine Ridge School in Williston, Vermont.

8. A.M. and R.M. then appealed from Judge Campbell's Final Decision to the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. On November 28, 2000, the parties executed a Final Settlement and Release entered as a Consent Order by the Hon. Joel Rosen, USMJ.

9. That settlement provided, in pertinent part, that P.M.'s placement would be at Pine Ridge, the parties would share the cost, a re-evaluation meeting should be convened and a new IEP developed. Specifically, the agreement provided,

> 2)(u)pon request of the plaintiffs, and without being responsible for travel costs, Lenape will provide for a 1. vocational assessment, 2. pre-driving assessment, and 3. recommendations for transition services by the New Jersey United Cerebral Palsy Association. Plaintiffs will indicate request in writing to Lenape.
> 4. Between January 15, 2001, and February 15, 2001, the IEP team shall convene a re-evaluation meeting to determine the need, if any, for re-evaluations of P.M.

10. The district received a document entitled "Education Plan" on February 9, 2001, from the evaluation team from Pine Ridge, which the parties agreed to use an interim IEP. This was memorialized in a February 16, 2001, letter from Kathrina Semar, of Shawnee, to the parents. That letter also indicated that upon receipt of the parents' fax of February 6, 2001, the district requested United Cerebral Palsy of New Jersey conduct an evaluation of P.M.

11. Lenape's re-evaluations continued through June 21, 2001.

12. On April 27, 2001, P.M.'s parents caused an investigation to be conducted into whether Lenape completed the re-evaluations and whether P.M.'s IEP complied with state and federal statutes and regulations. The IEP in effect at this time was Pine Ridge's "education plan."

13. As a result of that investigation, OSEP concluded that the district completed the evaluations, but improperly utilized Pine Ridge's IEP, the "education plan," determining that it did not meet the IEP requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7.

14. An IEP was developed and submitted to OSEP on June 14, 2001, pursuant to the Corrective Action Plan.

15. By letter dated August 15, 2001, OSEP advised Lenape that this IEP complied with the Corrective Action Plan.

16. On September 20, 2001, Lenape filed this appeal seeking a decision vacating OSEP's determination of non-compliance.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The parties concur that as the facts are not in dispute, summary decision is the appropriate means to resolve the within matter. As such, cross-motions for summary decision were filed.

Petitioner asserts that by November 28, 2000, the date by which the appeal filed by A.M. and R.M. was settled before Magistrate Judge Rosen, P.M. had not attended a district school since immediately prior to the commencement of the 1999-2000 school year and had not been enrolled in the school district since January 14, 2000. Given this extended period of time by which the district received no information regarding P.M., by the parents unilaterally enrolling him at Pine Ridge, the parties – the school district and the parents –agreed to the Pine Ridge education plan as an interim plan. The interim plan was only to remain in place until the school district could obtain the necessary current information, that it had not had access to for almost a year, before an IEP could be developed. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7 requires a detailed review by the IEP team. In order to accomplish this, the IEP team needed the re-evaluations, to review P.M.'s progress, completed course work, and other information relating to the year that P.M. spent at Pine Ridge when he was not enrolled in Lenape. Putting together a document in a hasty fashion, or relying on the December 2000 IEP, would not have accurately addressed P.M.'s then current needs, petitioner asserts. Additionally, petitioner asserts that a comparison of the "education plan" to the IEP that was developed, and approved by OSEP pursuant to the Corrective Action Plan, indicates it to be substantially similar. Petitioner asserts that the two plans contain the same information but it is organized differently. For example, petitioner points out that pages three through 33 of the June 2001 IEP contain P.M.'s level of educational performance at Pine Ridge in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A: 14-3.7(d). All of the information came from the strengths and weaknesses section of the Pine Ridge educational plan. In addition, the June 2001 IEP reflects on page 34 that P.M. does not have any visual or hearing impairments, does not require assistive technology, and does not need nor was provided transportation or related services. The Pine Ridge educational plan also recognized that P.M. did not require these accommodations. Further, a review of page 35 of the June 2001 IEP indicates that P.M. would be exempt from Lenape curriculum, credit hour and attendance requirements as a result of the out-of-district placement. The Pine Ridge plan addressed this by indicating the out-of-district placement and since it was developed prior to P.M.'s re-enrollment in Lenape, it would not state that P.M. was exempt from district requirements. OSEP approved the June 2001 IEP in regard to the IEP team's recommendation that P.M. not take the High School Proficiency Test. The Pine Ridge plan required P.M. take achievement tests. In addition, pages 38 through 42 of the June 2001 provide for P.M.'s English and Mathematics goals pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7(d) (2) and this portion of the IEP was taken "word for word" from the Pine Ridge plan. In addition, verbatim copying from the Pine Ridge plan occurred in connection with the career transitioning goals which are contained on pages 43 and 44 of the June 2001 plan. Similarly the behavioral and social goals listed on page 46 of the June 2001 IEP and the instructional strategies and techniques to support P.M.'s personal and social development listed on page 48 are similar to the Pine Ridge plan. The only real difference between the two plans is the organization of the documents, petitioner contends. Based on the foregoing comparisons, petitioner asserts the education plan "substantially complied" with N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7.

Respondent asserts that a seven month passage of time from the settlement of November 28, 2000, to the June 2001 IEP does not satisfy the "without delay" requirement for the implementation of an IEP pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3. In addition, although petitioner claims that OSEP did not take into consideration the circumstances in developing an appropriate IEP for P.M., IEPs are to be implemented without delay in order to ensure that children with disabilities are not deprived FAPE. Further the Pine Ridge educational plan did not include or address: a statement of special education and related services and supplementary aids and services that were to be provided for P.M.; program modifications or supports to advance P.M.'s attaining his goals to be involved and progress in the general education curriculum; and a statement of any individual modifications in the administration of statewide or district wide assessments of student achievement needed for the student to participate in such assessment. Respondent further asserts the regulations do not envision substantial compliance.

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7 sets forth the requirements for an IEP. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7(c) provides, in pertinent part, > when developing the IEP, the IEP team shall:

>
> 1. consider the strengths of the student and the concerns of the parents for enhancing the education of their child;
> 2. consider the results of the initial evaluation or most recent evaluation of the student and, as appropriate, the student's performance on any general State or district-wide assessment; ...

OSEP's Findings of Facts in connection with the complaint investigation, provided in pertinent part,

> 1. A reevaluation plan was developed via teleconference IEP meeting with the parent on February 2, 2001. The plan required the district to provide a vocational assessment, pre-driving assessment and an assistive technology assessment as per a settlement between the district and the parent on November 28, 2000.
>
> 2. P.M. resides in an out-of-state placement. As per the parent's request, the United Cerebral Palsy Association of New Jersey completed the evaluation while P.M. was at his New Jersey home from April 24-30, 2001.
> 3. The district received two evaluation reports in mid-May 2001 and the third report was provided to the district on June 5, 2001. An IEP meeting is scheduled or June 14, 2001.

As a result, OSEP determined "the district completed the evaluations required by the re-evaluation plan." Therefore, the district was determined to be compliant.

Based on the foregoing, I FIND AND CONCLUDE that the petitioner, under the circumstances as presented, acted reasonably in utilizing the Pine Ridge "educational plan" until the IEP that conformed with the federal and state regulations could be developed. While clearly the Pine Ridge "educational plan" lacked discussion of related services and statewide assessments, it otherwise complied with federal and state regulations and thus I FIND substantial compliance under the circumstances. Although the settlement was reached before Magistrate Judge Rosen on November 28, 2000, the settlement specifically provided that "upon the request of the plaintiffs (the parents)," Lenape will provide for the assessments. As is evident from OSEP's findings noted above, the parents did not permit those assessments to proceed until P.M. came home to New Jersey in April 2001. Those assessments were completed between April 24 and April 30 by United Cerebral Palsy of New Jersey. Under the circumstances, I FIND that the district acted appropriately in allowing the Pine Ridge educational plan, which substantially complied with the requirements of an IEP pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7, to be used as an interim plan. P.M. had not been enrolled in the district for almost one year and had not attended the in-district placement even longer. The district appropriately did not rely on the last IEP it had prepared for P.M., as it was outdated. The sole function of the Pine Ridge educational plan was for it to be an interim IEP. The alternative would have been for the district and other members of the IEP team to work on draft IEPs while awaiting the results of the assessments. This would not have been practical would not have served to benefit P.M. in any measurable manner and the IEP team would have needed to reconvene upon the availability of the assessments. While seven months ordinarily would not satisfy the "without delay" component of implementing an IEP as contemplated by N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3, under the circumstances presented in this case, I FIND it was appropriate for the district to rely on the "educational plan" as it substantially complied with the regulatory requirements of an IEP.

DECISION AND ORDER

Petitioner's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED and the finding of non-compliance is hereby VACATED. Respondent's cross-motion is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education challenged the Department of Education's determination that the school district was responsible for educational costs involved in the placement of Z.S. in the KidsPeace Program following an adjudication of juvenile delinquency in a family court proceeding. Z.S. was enrolled as a regular education student in petitioning Board's high school in September 2004, prior to the Superior Court Judge's Order for placement of Z.S. at KidsPeace in December 2004 as part of his probationary sentence. Cross motions for summary decision were filed by the parties.

The ALJ found that: the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to review the legal propriety of a Superior Court judge's order, and that her role in these proceedings is limited to carrying out the legislative determination as to what responsibility the district of residence should have in funding the educational costs for Z.S.'s placement, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b); Z.S. and his parents are residents of Neptune; the determination that the Board is responsible for the educational costs associated with Z.S.'s education at KidsPeace is legally correct and unassailable. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Department's motion for summary decision, denied Neptune's cross-motion, and dismissed the petition.

The Commissioner concurs that she does not have jurisdiction to review or change the order of the family court judge, and that because Neptune is the district of residence for Z.S, the district is responsible for his educational placement costs at KidsPeace. The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties filed no exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon an independent review of the record, the Commissioner finds that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Department as she concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's determination that the Commissioner of Education does not have jurisdiction to review or change the Order of Disposition issued by Family Court judge, the Honorable Thomas F. Scully, J.S.C., ordering the Department of Human Services, Division of Youth and Family Services, to place Z.S. at KidsPeace.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL – concluding that because Neptune is the district of residence for Z.S., it is responsible for the educational costs of his placement in the KidsPeace Program – is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

James T. Hundley, Esq., for petitioner (Hundley & Parry, attorneys)

Carolyn Grace Labin, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Zulima V. Farber, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: January 17, 2006 Decided: February 8, 2006

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The petitioner Board of Education of Neptune ("BOE" or "Neptune") filed a Petition of Appeal with the Department of Education ("DOE"), challenging a determination of DOE that the school district was responsible for the educational costs involved in the educational placement of Z.S. in the KidsPeace Program. The petitioner alleges that the cost of the educational component of this program is $95,040. The petitioner's challenge was filed against both the DOE's Division of Finance and the Department of Human Services' Division of Youth and Family Services ("DYFS"). The Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On September 27, 2005, I issued an Interlocutory Order dismissing DYFS as a party to the case. On December 12, 2005, the DOE moved for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Neptune replied on January 17, 2006, filing a cross-motion for summary decision. The parties agree that the facts of the matter are not in dispute and that summary decision is appropriate for one or the other party. Based upon the submissions of the parties and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the DOE's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and Neptune's motion is DENIED.

This matter arose during the 2003-04 school year when Honorable Thomas Scully, J.S.C., sitting in the Family Part of the Superior Court, Monmouth County, adjudged Z.S. to be a delinquent. On July 30, 2004, Judge Scully entered an Order of Disposition in the juvenile delinquency proceeding then pending before him. The juvenile was placed on three years probation, conditioned upon his immediate admission to the Woodbridge Child Diagnostic and treatment Center and completion of any program recommended by the Central Regional Assessment Program. The judge acted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-43-(b)(5), which provides, among other possible dispositions for juveniles adjudged delinquent,

> 5) Place the juvenile under the care and responsibility of the Department of Human Services so that the commissioner may designate a division or organizational unit in the department pursuant to P.L.1951, c.138 (C.30:4C-1 et seq.) for the purpose of providing services in or out of the home. Within 14 days, unless for good cause shown, but not later than 30 days, the Department of Human Services shall submit to the court a service plan, which shall be presumed valid, detailing the specifics of any disposition order. The plan shall be developed within the limits of fiscal and other resources available to the department. If the court determines that the service plan is inappropriate, given existing resources, the department may request a hearing on that determination;

Z.S. was enrolled as a regular education student in the Neptune BOE's high school in September 2004. In December 2004, the Central Regional Assessment Program recommended that Z.S. attend an 18-month program at KidsPeace National Center, a facility located in Pennsylvania. This attendance was to be a part of the juvenile's probation. On December 21, 2004, Judge Scully entered an Amended Order of Disposition, ordering that the juvenile be placed in the "care, custody and supervision of DYFS for placement in Kid's Peace. . . ." As part of this Order, he directed that DYFS pay the educational costs of Z.S.'s placement in the KidsPeace Program. However, on January 7, 2005, the judge issued a second Amended Order of Disposition. This also ordered that Z.S. be placed in the "care custody and supervision of DYFS for placement in KidsPeace-Reside w/grandparents until Place./ . . .," but omitted any direction to DYFS to pay the costs of the educational component and instead ordered "DYFS to complete certification letter for school Dist. Determination (Dept. of Education)." On January 10, 2005, the student was withdrawn from the Neptune School District and placed in KidsPeace. On January 26, 2005, the DOE issued a residency determination finding that the BOE was responsible for the educational costs of Z.S.'s placement at KidsPeace. The BOE appealed this determination and on March 15, 2005, the DOE again determined that the BOE was responsible for the costs. The petition for a hearing followed that second determination.

DOE determined the residency issue pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 (b). This statute provides that the "district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private schools or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency. If this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement." The Board does not deny that Z.S. was a resident of Neptune. However, it contends that the Commissioner has the jurisdiction to review the placement of Z.S. in KidsPeace; contends that the placement was a "private" placement and therefore not one made by a State agency as required by the statute, and that even if the determination is correct that the district would ordinarily bear the costs for the child's education, it should not be held liable for such due to the manner in which the placement was effectuated. It does not appear that either DYFS or Judge Scully communicated with the Board prior to the determination that Z.S. be placed at KidsPeace.

The DOE argues that the placement in this case was effectuated by an order of the Superior Court which placed the child in DYFS' custody and ordered that DYFS effectuate the placement at KidsPeace pursuant to the recommendation of the Central Regional Assessment Program. The Commissioner is without jurisdiction to review the legal propriety of a Superior Court judge's order; such reviews are reserved for the Appellate Division. As there is no dispute that the application of the statute to the facts relevant to Z.S. leads to the inevitable conclusion that he and his parents are residents of Neptune, the determination that the Board is responsible for the educational costs associated with the child's education at KidsPeace is legally correct and unassailable in this proceeding.

In support of its claim that the Commissioner has jurisdiction to review a determination by DYFS to place a child in a particular educational setting, the Board relies upon Board of Education of the Borough of Prospect Park, Passaic County v. New Jersey Dep't of Educ., Div. Of Finance, Dep't of Human Services, Div. Of Youth and Family Servs., OAL DKT. No. EDU 1512-96 (EDU 3045-94 on remand) 97 N.J.A.R.2d 134 (Dept. of Education), That action involved a challenge by a local board of education to a decision that the Board was responsible for the educational costs of a private school placement effectuated by DYFS for a special education student. The Commissioner determined that although Prospect Park was indeed the district of residence, nevertheless he would not order that it pay the costs of the placement. The reason for this was the failure of DYFS to comply with a requirement under former N.J.A.C. 6:28-7.4(b) that it first consult with the chief school administrator of the district of residence before a placement was determined. However, unlike the present matter, in Prospect Park DYFS did not act as the result of an order issued by a court; indeed, there was no involvement by Family Court. As such, the facts and legal context of that case do not make it a precedent for the present matter, except that it might be argued that here too the Commissioner could determine that even though Neptune is the district of residence under the statute, nevertheless the Commissioner could refrain from imposing the cost of the placement upon the district. It is unclear what would be the result of such a determination and whether, in such case, DYFS might have some responsibility. Nevertheless, as the placement here was directed to occur by the Family Court judge, the Commissioner cannot undertake to review the propriety of that placement, which was part and parcel of a probationary sentence. And as there is no question that the district of residence here is Neptune, the sole basis for Neptune avoiding the fiscal responsibility would be if the Commissioner declined to impose the costs on Neptune, as he did in Prospect Park. But there, DYFS had failed to follow mandated procedures and it had acted in making the placement on its own, without the imprimateur, indeed without the legal force and authority upon it, that a Superior Court order constitutes. If DYFS did not properly assess the child's educational needs in this case, and the recommendation of the Central Regional Assessment Program was legally or factually incorrect, the place to challenge that determination was in the Family Court. Once Judge Scully ruled, his order constituted the governing authority. The Commissioner cannot now attempt to interfere in the legal proceedings and the results from them.

Petitioner argues that if it cannot pursue a challenge to the funding responsibility here it has no forum to challenge the financial impact that DYFS' recommendation and Judge Scully's order impose upon it. Whether the local school board has, or should have, a right to express its views before the Family Court acts in matters such as were before Judge Scully, is a matter for the courts and the legislature to consider. What provisions should be incorporated in statute or Court Rule to assure that a local school district can have some input in what will quite possibly have a major financial impact upon it must be decided by others than the Commissioner of Education, who has no power over either the Legislature or the Courts. Perhaps the Board could have moved to intervene in the Family Court for the limited purpose of commenting upon the placement issue. Perhaps there are issues of what notice of those proceedings the local board should receive so that it could pursue intervention. But, these are not matters for the Commissioner. His role here is simply to carry out the legislative determination as to what the role of the district of residence should be in funding the educational costs. While in Prospect Park the matter only involved action by DYFS, an Executive Branch agency, and the Commissioner could consider the fault of that agency in carrying out its mandated actions without stepping on the toes of another equal branch of government, in the present case that situation does not exist. If the Commissioner is to review the actions of DYFS, or the propriety of the decision and order for DYFS to place Z.S. at KidsPeace, the Commissioner must inevitably infringe on the authority of the Judiciary. He cannot do so. As Neptune is indubitably the district of residence, it must bear the costs of the placement.

There are no material facts in dispute and pursuant to Robin Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, et al., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), summary decision in favor of the DOE is proper. The DOE's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. The cross-motion for summary decision filed by Neptune is DENIED and its challenge to the funding determination is DISMISSED.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.1, it is ORDERED that all evidence, stenographic notes or audiotapes in this case are hereby SEALED. I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Upon review, the Commissioner notes that, notwithstanding petitioner's letter to the OAL indicating that the petition was being withdrawn because "[t]he school district was provided with the appropriate information and documentation and my son was effectively registered for the school year," respondent's answer in this residency matter contains an unresolved request for tuition for the period that the student attended school while he was allegedly ineligible. Record Closed: February 21, 2007 Decided: March 2, 2007

BEFORE: IRENE JONES, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, N.B., filed a Pro Se Residency appeal with the Commissioner of Education on November 16, 2006. In her appeal, petitioner challenged the decision of the respondent, Union Township Board of Education, Union County that disenrolled S.P., a student in the District's Burnett Middle School. The District alleges that the petitioner is not the legal guardian or the custodial parent of S.P., thus S.P. is not domiciled in Union Township.

On December 6, 2006, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. The matter was calendared for hearing on March 1, 2007.

Prior to the hearing, petitioner notified the OAL that she was no longer interested in pursuing the appeal. On February 22, 2007, the District advised that based on the petitioner's withdrawal of the appeal, it would withdraw its counterclaim and consent to a dismissal of this matter.

FINDINGS

Having reviewed the record in this matter, I FIND that the parties are no longer interested in pursuing this matter. I FIND that the matter is no longer a contested case and thus matter should be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

C.G. and R.G., on behalf of minor child, R.M.G., :

PETITIONER, :

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BRICK, OCEAN COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

C.G. and R.G. filed a petition in March 2005 seeking reconsideration of their son's grade of 84 in his second quarter 9th grade Honors English class (2003-2004 school year), and amended their petition in May 2005 to include reconsideration of R.M.G.'s grade of 86 in his third quarter 10th grade AP History class (2004-2005 school year). Respondent Board made a motion to dismiss for violation of the 90-day requirement provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i).

The ALJ found that: the petition was filed far beyond the 90-day limitation period in regard to the claim involving the 2003-2004 school year; petitioners' explanation for the delay in filing does not justify a relaxation or tolling of the regulation; and petitioners were unable to meet their burden in proving that R.M.G.'s third quarter AP History grade in the 2004-2005 school year was assigned in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that the petition be dismissed.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the determinations of the ALJ, and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BRICK, OCEAN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have exceptions filed by petitioners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. A reply to petitioners' exceptions was untimely filed by the Board of Education (Board)[1] and is not considered herein.

In their exceptions, petitioners contend that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erred in finding that relaxation of the 90-day rule was not warranted in their case. Petitioners argue that they first contacted the Department of Education well within 90 days of the action from which they appeal, but were "sent away" and told to contact the County Superintendent. They further claim that throughout numerous subsequent communications, they were led to believe that they should seek relief informally and were at no time told about any time limitation for filing a formal petition. Petitioners reiterate the personal circumstances behind their delay in filing subsequent to September 9, 2004, contending that they never slept on their rights because even during that time they continued to contact State representatives, legal advisors and the press in an effort to help their son. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 1-2)

[1] The reply, in response to exceptions filed on February 27, 2006, was incorporated into the Board's response (filed March 17, 2006) to the Department's advisement of the Commissioner's intent to take official notice of a document submitted with petitioners' exceptions. See note 4 below.

Petitioners also except to the ALJ's finding that their son's sophomore AP History grade was properly determined and should be upheld. They reiterate their objection to class participation – and consequently class attendance – being a determining factor in such grading, contending that: such reliance is inherently unfair to students who are legitimately absent; the district has no consistent policy on this issue; and other students have been treated differently than their son. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 3-5)[2]

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner has determined to adopt the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Even if petitioners are accorded every inference and the County Superintendent's September 9, 2004 letter is deemed the triggering event for calculating the 90-day filing period, petitioners filed their appeal well beyond the allotted time frame and the personal reasons they advance for this delay do not suffice to warrant relaxation of the rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 – particularly when weighed against the rule's salutary purpose of discouraging dilatoriness and providing a measure of repose in the conduct of school affairs.[3] Farrell v. Votator Division of Chemtron Corp., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1973); Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co., 90 N.J. 108, 112 (1982); Kaprow v. Berkeley Township Bd. Of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, 588 (1993). See also Carol Unangst v. Board of Education of the Township of Fredon, Sussex County, decided by the Commissioner May 1, 2003 (a showing of emotional stress alone, without the showing of circumstances amounting to genuine incapacity, is not enough to toll the time limit for appeal) and W.V. & L.V., on behalf of minor children C.V. & C.H.V. v. Board of Education of the Township of Montville, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner February 21, 2006, citing M.N. and E.Y. on behalf of minor child K.N. v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, et al., decided by the Commissioner July 21, 2004 (attempts to resolve a claim through negotiation do not negate the fact of receipt of adequate notice, nor do they toll the running of the time limits for filing a petition of appeal).

[2] Petitioners also reiterated their arguments on the merits of their claim regarding R.G.'s English grade; however, given the decision, infra, with respect to the timeliness of this claim, the Commissioner does not summarize that portion of petitioners' exceptions herein.

[3] Contrary to the suggestion of the ALJ that this matter should not have been transmitted to the OAL because petitioners' claim was untimely on its face (Initial Decision at 4), petitioners were entitled – given the representations made in their petition – to present facts and argument as to why relaxation was warranted under the circumstances or why the 90-day rule did not apply.

Moreover, petitioners cannot excuse their failure to abide by the 90-day rule by claiming that no one they contacted within the Department specifically told them about a time limitation. Initially, this argument overlooks the general presumption that appellants are charged with knowledge of the law and are not excused from its requirements by claims of ignorance. Matter of Kovalsky, 195 N.J. Super. 91, 98 (App. Div. 1984). Additionally, it is clear from C.G.'s email to the Department,[4] to which Exhibit R-6 is in response, that C.G. was aware of the existence of rules for the filing of an appeal to the Commissioner at least as early as June 8, 2004.[5] Finally, this matter does not present a circumstance where a pro se petitioner sent a letter to the Department specifically seeking to appeal a local board decision but suffered a delay in receiving information on how to file properly, cf., J.M. and D.M., on behalf of minor

[4] This document was submitted by petitioners with their exceptions in violation of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4; however, because it is a public record pursuant to the Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1 et seq., the Commissioner took official notice of it as necessary for proper assessment of the Department's response within the context of the issues raised in the case. Upon opportunity for party objection pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2(c), neither petitioners nor the Board objected to such notice being taken.

[5] In their comments in response to the advisement of intention to take official notice referenced in Note 4 above, the Board offered a new document as evidence that petitioner C.G. had knowledge of the process for filing a Petition of Appeal at an even earlier date; petitioners objected to this document, contending that it was submitted in violation of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and that the Board was attempting to attack C.G.'s character by portraying her as "manipulative." Because the proffered document is unnecessary to reach a decision in this matter, the Commissioner declines to take notice of it.

child, J.L.M., v. Board of Education of the City of Summit, Union County, decided by the State Board of Education November 3, 1999; to the contrary, in this instance, both petitioners' communications and their actions consistently reflect a desire to have their issues addressed through alternative means notwithstanding their awareness of the administrative hearing process.[6]

With respect to R.G.'s history grade, the Commissioner finds that petitioners' have offered nothing that would enable her to disturb the fact-finding or credibility assessments of the ALJ. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). Consequently, the Commissioner must concur with the ALJ's conclusion that the manner in which R.G.'s grade was awarded was within the lawful discretion of the board and was not arbitrary, unreasonable or otherwise improper.[7]

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[8]

[6] In this regard, the Commissioner notes that petitioners were not "sent away" by the Department, but were provided with an alternative means of addressing their concerns in light of C.G.'s stated reluctance to file a Petition of Appeal. (Exhibit R-6, expanded version; see note 4 above)

[7] In their exceptions on this issue, petitioners reference the Board's recent denial of their "504" and "IEP" requests and contend that their son is effectively being penalized for his medical condition (Petitioners' Exceptions at 4). Such claims, however, are beyond the scope of a contested case before the Commissioner, whose jurisdiction does not extend to requests for accommodation or special education programming based on medical needs. (Indeed, petitioners were advised at the time they filed their petition that their claim in this forum would not extend to such matters, which fell within the purview of the Office of Special Education Programs to which petitioners were directed for assistance. See Acknowledgement Notice dated March 9, 2005.)

C.G. and R.G., on behalf of minor child, R.M.G., pro se

Jean L. Cipriani, Esq., for respondent (Gilmore & Monahan, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 17, 2006 Decided: February 7, 2006

BEFORE DOUGLAS H. HURD, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, C.G. and R.G., parents of R.M.G., filed a petition of appeal on his behalf on March 4, 2005. Respondent, the Brick Township Board of Education, filed an answer, which was received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on March 30, 2005. Petitioners filed an amended pleading on May 17, 2005.

Petitioners' pleadings were not clear in setting forth the relief requested. At the hearing, Petitioners clarified the relief sought as pertaining to the following three issues:

1. Whether R.M.G.'s 9th grade, 2nd semester, Honors English class teacher, Sharon Curran's grading system regarding participation was fairly applied to R.M.G. in light of his numerous excused absences.

2. Whether R.M.G.'s 9th grade, 2nd semester, Honors English class teacher, Sharon Curran, acted appropriately in giving R.M.G. a 0 for a quiz that was not taken by R.M.G.

3. Whether R.M.G.'s 10th grade, 3rd semester, AP History class teacher, John Mastandrea's grading system regarding participation was fairly applied to R.M.G. in light of his numerous excused absences.

The first two issues are part of Petitioners' initial pleading and the third issue was part of their amended pleading. Hearings were held on January 12 and 17, 2006. On various dates prior to the hearing, the parties engaged in settlement discussions, some with another ALJ, in an attempt to have this matter amicably resolved.

On the date of the first hearing, counsel for Respondent made a motion to have the petition dismissed for violating the 90-day requirement provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Since the motion was made on the date of the hearing, I advised the parties that it would be addressed in the Initial Decision, after I had an opportunity to review the regulations.

1. Motion to Dismiss Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i).

Respondent contends that the petition should be dismissed because it was filed beyond the 90-day timeline provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). The rule, in relevant part, provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

As noted above, Petitioners' initial petition was filed on March 4, 2005. This petition concerned the first two issues cited above. Those two issues arise from R.M.G.'s 2nd quarter, 9th grade, Honors English class. R.M.G.'s 9th grade year was during the 2003-2004 school-year. The 2nd quarter ended in early February 2004, and R.M.G.'s grades were provided shortly thereafter.

R.M.G. and Petitioners had concerns that R.M.G.'s grade for the 2nd quarter class was made in error and inappropriate in light of his excused absences. R.M.G. received a grade of 84. Petitioners feel the grade should have been in the A range. R.M.G.'s final grade for the year in Honors English was a 92.

Petitioners and Ms. Curran, the teacher, exchanged letters thereafter regarding the grade for the marking period. Ms. Curran provided ample explanation regarding the grade that R.M.G. received. Ms. Curran did not change R.M.G.'s grade.

On April 29, 2004, the Superintendent of Schools, Thomas Seidenberger, Ed.D., wrote a letter to Petitioners upholding Ms. Curran's determination that R.M.G.'s grade should not be changed. Seidenberger explained that Curran acted appropriately. He also explained to Petitioners that R.M.G. could have raised his grade by doing extra credit to make up for the excused absences. Also, Seidenberger explained that Curran acted appropriately with respect to R.M.G.'s failure to take a quiz.

On June 9, 2004, Petitioners wrote a letter to the Department of Education, Office of the Commissioner, regarding their concerns with Curran's grading system. DOE replied to Petitioners on June 11, 2004, that there was nothing it could do and suggested contacting the Ocean County Superintendent. On September 9, 2004, the County Superintendent advised Petitioners of his position, which did not result in a change to Curran's grade.

Petitioners explained why the petition was not filed until March 4, 2005. Petitioner, C.G., R.M.G.'s mother, testified that after the September 9, 2004, letter that she contacted three attorneys who told her to try and resolve the matter. She also testified that in the fall of 2004 she had a son who was sick and that occupied four months of her time.

Given that the final decision by the District was made on April 29, 2004, by the Superintendent, it is clear that the March 4, 2005, filing date was far beyond the 90-day limitation period. Even if I were to use the September 9, 2004, letter from the County Superintendent as the last ruling, Petitioners are still not in compliance with the 90-day rule. Moreover, Petitioners' explanation for the delay in filing does not come close to justifying a relaxation or tolling of the regulation.

Accordingly, Petitioners' claims made in their initial pleading of March 4, 2005, are barred by their failure to file the petition within 90 days of the District's ruling.[1] Since Petitioners' claims are time barred, it is not necessary to address the merits of the two claims. Nonetheless, it should be noted that the evidence overwhelmingly showed that the District, including Ms. Curran, acted appropriately and reasonably.

As noted above, Petitioners filed an amended pleading on May 17, 2005, regarding the third issue cited above. This claim concerns R.M.G.'s grade for his 3rd quarter, 10th grade, AP History class. The 3rd quarter ended sometime in April 2005, clearly within the 90-day time frame provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Even though the amended pleading is related to the initial pleading, which I find violated the 90-day

[1] Given Petitioners' clear noncompliance with the 90-day requirement, and resulting lack of jurisdiction, it is curious why the matter was transmitted to OAL by the Office of Controversies and Disputes. There was no disputed fact regarding the time periods that required a hearing on the 90-day time requirement.

provision, I will not dismiss the amended pleading claim because it raises a new claim that falls well within the 90-day timeframe.

2. 3rd Quarter, 10th Grade, AP History Grade

As noted by Administrative Law Judge Metzger in M.G. v. Monmouth Regional High School Board of Education, 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 38, 40, aff'd in part, rev'd in part, State Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 364: "[The board's] decisions in this matter carry a presumption of validity and [it is the] petitioners who must show that the actions taken were arbitrary and unreasonable, if they are to be disturbed." In adopting the administrative law judge's decision, the Commissioner of Education likewise noted the limited scope of review:

> it is not a proper exercise of a judicial function for the Commissioner to interfere with local boards in the management of their schools unless they violate the law, act in bad faith (meaning acting dishonestly), or abuse their discretion in a shocking manner. Furthermore, it is not the function of the Commissioner in a judicial decision to substitute his judgment for that of the board members on matters which are by statute delegated to the local boards. [91 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) at 42, quoting Boult v. Bd. of Educ., City of Passaic, 1939-49 S.L.D. 7, 13 (1946), aff'd, State Board of Education (Sept. 13, 1946), aff'd, 135 N.J.L. 329 (Sup. Ct. 1947), aff'd, 136 N.J.L. 521 (E. & A. 1948).]

There are many judicial decisions expressing the same concepts, such as Quinlan v. Board of Education of North Bergen Township, 73 N.J. Super. 40, 46-47 (App. Div. 1962); Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581 (1966); and Boyle v. Riti, 175 N.J. Super. 158, 166 (App. Div. 1980). In Boyle, the court declared:

> It is well established that a presumption of reasonableness attaches to the action of an administrative agency and the party who challenges the validity of that action has the burden of showing that it was arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious. . . . Also, where the administrative record discloses a reasonable basis for findings and accordant administrative action, [the reviewing court's] duty is ordinarily to uphold such action. [175 N.J. Super. at 166 (citations omitted).]

Based upon the foregoing, it is clear that in a matter such as this, the burden of proof is on the petitioners, and the legal standard to be applied is that an action of a local school board that lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset, unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives, Kopera, supra, 60 N.J. Super. at 294. Applying this standard does not leave discretion in this tribunal to recommend, or in the case of the Commissioner of Education, to decide that a new judgment should be substituted. Thus, mere disagreement, if any, with the Board is insufficient legal grounds for substituting one's own judgment for that of the Board. The Board must first be found to have been arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for reversal or modification to occur. See K.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Matawan/Aberdeen High School Dist.,91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74.

John Mastandrea was R.M.G.'s teacher for 10th grade AP History in the 2004-2005 school year. R.M.G. has a chronic sinus problem that resulted in him missing about 6 classes in the 3rd semester. R.M.G.'s grade for the 3rd semester was an 86. His final grade for the year in AP History was a 92.

Petitioners presented very little evidence to demonstrate that Mastandrea's grading policy and 3rd quarter grade for R.M.G. were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioners were upset about a "C" that R.M.G. received on a day during the "yarn toss". Petitioners claim that R.M.G. was absent the day before, and thus he was at a disadvantage to participate in this activity that involved cooperative learning and repetition. Mastandrea noted that the yarn toss grade for R.M.G. was appropriate in light of the fact that he "passed" on answering a question three times. Mastandrea stated that R.M.G.'s absence from the day before would not have prevented him from being able to participate in the yarn toss.

Mastandrea provided very credible testimony about his grading procedure and, specifically, how he graded R.M.G. His policy is provided in P-14 and is completely reasonable on its face and as applied to R.M.G. Mastandrea testified that R.M.G. was not penalized for his excused absences. He testified to the importance of participation in class, especially in light of the fact that it is an AP class. He said that R.M.G.'s participation started strong and ended strong, but that during the 2nd and 3rd quarters he did not participate as much.

Petitioners should consider themselves fortunate that R.M.G. had a teacher of such high quality. Mastandrea clearly cares about his students, is fluent in the subject and teaches with passion. The evidence was clear that he dealt with R.M.G. fairly and did not penalize him in any way for his absences. Petitioners presented very little evidence to show any arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable actions by Mastandrea or the District on this issue. In fact, it appeared that Petitioners liked Mastandrea and thought he did a good job teaching R.M.G.. R.M.G.'s 86 for that quarter certainly seemed reasonable in light of Mastandrea's testimony regarding R.M.G.'s tests, essays and class participation.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

In conclusion, it is clear that Petitioners' claims in their initial petition are barred under the 90-day rule provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Petitioners' explanations for delay in filing do not justify relaxing or tolling the 90-day requirement. The amended petition raising a new claim should also be barred because it was amended to the initial pleading which was defective for violating the 90-day requirement. Nonetheless, since the amended claim on its own concerned an issue that was within the 90-day requirement, I addressed the merits of that claim. On the merits, Petitioners presented very little evidence on this issue. The evidence that was presented by Petitioners and Respondent show overwhelmingly that Respondent did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. On the contrary, the evidence is clear that Respondent acted reasonably and within its discretionary authority.

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that Petitioner's petition and amended petition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

DECISION

Remand

The record, Stipulation of Settlement and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that neither the file nor the Stipulation of Settlement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating Valarie A. Gogar, Yorven R. Liou and Francis T. Howlett to sign the agreement on its behalf, nor is the agreement signed by the Board attorney, who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation. The Commissioner consequently cannot approve the within settlement.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement to include either the Board attorney's signature or a Board resolution approving the settlement and designating the above-noted persons to sign on behalf of the Board. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to hearing.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

WHEREAS, on or about April 19, 2005, petitioner's son, K.L., was assigned two Saturday detentions; and

WHEREAS, Yorven R. Liou filed a Verified Petition against the Bernards Township Board of Education ("Board" or "District") and Francis T. Howlett (collectively "Respondents") on or about June 22, 2005 appealing this discipline on behalf of his son; and

WHEREAS, respondents expressly deny any wrongdoing and assert that the discipline was properly imposed; and

WHEREAS, the parties have reached an amicable resolution of this matter which protects the interests of all parties and avoids the cost and time necessary to pursue litigation; and

WHEREAS, this resolution serves the public's best interest by avoiding further litigation costs and the uncertainty attendant to litigation;

NOW THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

1. Petitioner agrees to withdraw the Petition with prejudice.

2. In complete and full satisfaction of his appeal, petitioner will have the opportunity to have a meeting with the Superintendent of the Bernards Township Schools and Francis T. Howlett to discuss the discipline which is the subject of this appeal. If petitioner would like to avail himself of such a meeting, he will contact the Superintendent within 30 days of the date that this settlement is approved by the Commissioner of Education (assuming such approval is granted). If no request is made by the end of such 30 day period, it will be assumed that petitioner does not wish to have such a meeting and petitioner will have forfeited his right to a meeting.

3. Petitioner expressly understands that the purpose of the meeting is to allow petitioner to express his views on the discipline that was imposed and that respondents may take whatever action they deem appropriate in response to this meeting and that respondents may adhere to their previous position and allow the discipline to stand.

4. Petitioner acknowledges that he has entered into this Agreement voluntarily and entirely of his own free will and that he was not subject to any duress and/or coercion. Petitioner further acknowledges that he has been advised to seek the advice of counsel in connection with the execution of this Stipulation.

5. This Agreement is subject to and contingent upon the approval of the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner of Education. In the event such approval is not secured, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties returned to their respective positions prior to the execution of this Agreement.

David B. Rubin, Esq., for Patricia A.Walsh

Robert S. Bonney, Jr., for Middletown Township BOE (Lomurro, Davison, Eastman & Munoz, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 27, 2006 Decided: February 15, 2006

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Patricia A. Walsh seeks indemnification for legal expenses from the respondent Middletown Township Board of Education ("Board"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 (statutory indemnification) or alternatively, seeks indemnification as a discretionary act by the Board. The Board, in an independent petition to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), seeks a ruling with respect to the continued participation of Ms. Walsh as a Board member because of a possible conflict of interest arising under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2. These matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on May 29 and August 3, 1998, for hearing as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The two contested cases were consolidated by order dated September 1, 1998. On November 18, 1998, the undersigned issued an Interlocutory Order Denying Cross-Motions for Summary Decision. Thereafter, these cases were placed on the inactive list numerous times pending the resolution of companion litigation in the Superior Court Monmouth County.

Following the Superior Court trial, the parties agreed to a settlement of all issues in dispute and have prepared a Settlement Agreement, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATIONdoes not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Parties:

VERONICA TAPERINO V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MORRIS COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY, AGENCY DKT. NO. 86-2/06

We are enclosing a copy of the decision of the Commissioner of Education dated March 28, 2006, in the above-captioned matter. Appeals of Commissioner decisions, other than State Department of Education employee contractual determinations and matters involving the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, may be filed with the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq.

Please note that this office is no longer providing an additional copy of the initial decision to the parties in this case.

Additionally, please note that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.4(a), the Commissioner's decision is mailed to the parties three days prior to the date it is deemed officially filed. This provides counsel and pro se litigants with the decision before it is made public by the Department. Parties and counsel are requested to refrain from making Commissioner decisions public prior to the filing date. Your cooperation is appreciated.

Very truly yours,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MORRIS COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Upon review of the parties' submissions, the Commissioner concludes that the proper venue for the above referenced matter is New Jersey Superior Court. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-3.1(b), applications for the enforcement of settlements shall be brought in Superior Court, unless resolution of the parties' adjudicated rights requires a further determination on a school law issue. That is not the case here.

The parties have entered into a settlement contract. Petitioner seeks enforcement of the already established terms. No additional school law issues are implicated. Enforcement of such a contract is properly brought in Superior Court, whether the relief sought is pecuniary or injunctive. Accordingly, the Commissioner dismisses the petition for lack of jurisdiction.

RESPONDENT. :

The record of this matter – returned to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 28, 2006 as a withdrawal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 – has been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner notes that this matter was deemed withdrawn by the OAL based upon the respondent's letter of March 10, 2006, stating that – as a result of petitioner's guardianship of R.M.C. – respondent had decided to withdraw its motion to dismiss the petition, and would not seek back tuition. Respondent also advised that it would forward to the OAL a stipulation of dismissal.

The record, however, contains neither a stipulation of dismissal, nor any communication from the petitioner evidencing her intent to withdraw her appeal.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for amplification of the record so as to enable the Commissioner to approve a withdrawal, or for such further proceedings as are otherwise necessary to conclude the matter.

However, if it is necessary for either party to commence any legal action against the other to enforce the terms of this Release and Agreement, then the Board or Cosme, if it/he is the prevailing party, shall be entitled to recover its/his reasonable attorneys' fees, costs and disbursements incurred in prosecuting the action.

9. This Release and Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

10. If any term, provision or condition of this Release and Agreement is held invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall be without effect upon the validity or enforceability of any other provision, term or condition of this Release and Agreement.

11. A waiver by Cosme and the Board of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other, or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

Record Closed: February 21, 2006 Decided: March 3, 2006

BEFORE DANIEL B. MCKEOWN, ALJ (t/a):

On August 22, 2005, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) issued an Order by which an initial decision is sought of a recommended order that was issued on June 28, 2005 by the undersigned. That recommended Order denied the application for emergency relief of Control Building Services, Inc. (Control Services) by which Pritchard Industries, Incorporated would have been prohibited from commencing certain work under a contract it, Control Services, asserted it should have been awarded because it submitted the low bid. In his decision remanding the matter, the Commissioner noted that in the recommendation denying the application for emergency relief, the conclusion was reached:

> Should petitioner [Control Services] wish to press claims made against the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson and Pritchard for conduct that was to have occurred in 2003, counsel must contact the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law within 14 days from the date of this decision and a hearing date will be arranged. Otherwise, the matter shall be considered moot and will be dismissed (Order of June 28, 2004, at 5).

The Commissioner adopted the recommended order on July 20, 2005 as his decision on the motion. There is no evidence in the record petitioner notified the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law that it wished to press any claims after the issuance of the recommended order; indeed, there is no correspondence from petitioner after the recommended Order was issued. Nevertheless, when a recommended initial decision was issued on July 20, 2005, the wording of this recommendation is, as the Commissioner notes in his order of remand, 'identical' (Emphasis by Commissioner) to the Order that disposed of the emergent relief request. The Commissioner held that the recommended initial decision does not indicate "the ALJ's conclusion with respect to whether this matter should be dismissed as moot . . . "and, therefore, the decision does not constitute an initial decision. Thus, the matter was remanded for issuance of an initial decision.

A telephone inquiry was made as to the status of the matter on February 21, 2006. After reviewing the file, the matter is ready for disposition by way of an initial decision.

It is error that a second recommended order disposing of the emergent relief matter issued instead of an initial decision recommending the dismissal of the matter as moot after the expiration of time for petitioner to further press claims. The second written recommended order should have noted the absence of correspondence that additional proceedings were requested by petitioner to further his claim, and that the matter be dismissed as moot for failure of petitioner to press the claim any further.[i]

In the absence of evidence, petitioner Control Building Services, Incorporated elected to press its claims after its application for emergent relief was denied, it is recommended in this initial decision that the matter be dismissed as moot.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[i] In reviewing the Order of Remand, it is noted that the Commissioner wrote he adopted my recommended Order on June 20, 2005. However, my recommended Order was not issued until June 28, 2005. From the context of the entire decision, it is obvious the Commissioner intended to write July 20, 2005, not June 20.

Vivian English, pro se

Record Closed: March 7, 2006 Decided: March 7, 2006

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges of unbecoming conduct or other just cause certified by the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson ("District") against Vivian English under the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Based upon my review of the record and the testimony at the hearing, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Vivian English has been employed as a confidential secretary in the Passaic Public School System for approximately eight years.

2. The allegations pertain to a single event in February 2005 in which English allegedly revealed confidential information to an attorney who was handling her workers' compensation claim against the district.

3. If respondent were successful in defending against the tenure charges, she would be entitled to return to her job in the district. For various reasons, however, respondent has decided that she would prefer to find employment elsewhere.

4. Under the terms of settlement, respondent will receive credit for her unused vacation days to which she is entitled under governing District policy. She will not receive any other payments from the District.

5. From both parties' point of view, this settlement is preferable to risking the uncertainties of litigation.

6. Before entering this agreement, English fully understood her rights and had adequate opportunity to ask questions to opposing counsel and the judge.

7. Since respondent does not hold any certifications issued by the State Board of Examiners, it is unnecessary to refer this case to the State Board for further action.

8. The settlement is fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interests.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF VIVIAN ENGLISH, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

Petitioner State-Operated School District of Paterson ("District") and respondent Vivian English ("respondent") agreed to settle this matter as follows:

1. Respondent will withdraw her request for a tenure hearing and resign her employment with the District effective December 1, 2005, and the District agrees to dismissal of the tenure charges pending before the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner").

2. The District shall pay respondent for her accumulated 33.5 vacation days. Respondent will not receive any other back pay, counsel fees, costs or any other monetary relief or any other relief whatsoever as a result of this settlement.

4. This matter (OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1318-06 - Agency Dkt. No. 336-11/05) shall be dismissed with prejudice.

6. By entering into this matter, neither the District nor the respondent admits any liability with regard to this matter.

7. Respondent waives all claims, suits or actions, whether known, unknown, vested or contingent, civil, criminal or administrative, in law or in equity against the District, its employees, agents or assigns, including but no limited to those which have been or could have been made or prosecuted on account of any conduct of any party occurring at any time with respect to the events, information, facts and disputes giving rise to this action up to the date of this agreement, including but not limited to all claims under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1991, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, the Developmentally Disabled Rights Act, the Alcoholism Treatment and Rehabilitation Act, the Handicapped Blind or Deaf Persons Civil Rights Law, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, the Rights to the Family Leave Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the conscientious Employee Protection Act, the New Jersey Tort Claims Act, the Civil Service Act, Title 11A, the common law and any contract express or implied.

8. This agreement will only become effective when the Superintendent of the State-Operated School District of Paterson and the Commissioner approve it.

9. Any disapproval by the Superintendent or Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

10. The parties waive their right to file either exceptions or cross-exceptions herein.

11. The parties hereby stipulate that this agreement shall fully dispose of all issues in controversy between them with regard to this matter.

SYNOPSIS

The six petitioners in these consolidated appeals challenged the disallowance of legal fees incurred in connection with the defense against criminal charges – leading to the convictions for theft by deception of two former directors and the corporate entities – in their final approved tuition rates for the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 fiscal years. Petitioners challenged the disallowance as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; argued that the fees incurred in the defense of the six schools should be recognized as a legitimate operating expense even if the disallowance of the legal fees incurred in the defense of the individual directors is upheld; and requested that the Commissioner exercise her powers to extend the time for repayment of any disallowed expenses beyond the thirty day period set forth in the regulations.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that the Department's disallowance represents an appropriate exercise of agency expertise in the field of school financing and does not detract from the established principle that schools may include professional fees related to bona fide educational purposes in their tuition rates; the equities do not predominate in favor of extending the 30-day period for petitioners to make restitution of tuition overcharges, but, rather, clearly lie in favor of the public getting its money back as soon as possible. The ALJ granted summary decision to the Department, and denied the relief requested by petitioners.

Upon a thorough and independent review, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, emphasizing that – even assuming, arguendo, she had the authority to extend the 30-day timeline prescribed by regulation for the repayment of these monies – public policy and the equities in this matter militate against such an action.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Department's reply thereto were filed in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions essentially recast and reiterate their arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below, i.e., the Department's determination to disallow legal fees incurred by the schools was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable because it contained no explanation or justification; such disallowance represents ad-hoc rule making on the part of the Department which is prohibited by Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984); and – should the petitioners be required to repay these monies – principles of equity demand that the regulatory provision requiring that such repayment be made within 30-days after resolution of an appeal be waived. In that the Commissioner finds that each of petitioners' exception advancements was fully and fairly considered and addressed in the Initial Decision, these will not be revisited here.

Upon a thorough and independent review, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's grant of summary decision to the Department, as she concurs with his determination that the Department appropriately disallowed legal fees incurred in connection with the defense against criminal charges – leading to the convictions for theft by deception of two former directors and the corporate entities – from petitioners' approved tuition rates for the 2001-02 and 2002-03 fiscal years. The Commissioner further agrees that even assuming, arguendo, she had the authority to extend the 30-day timeline prescribed by regulation for the repayment of these monies, public policy and the equities in this matter militate against such an action.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons well articulated therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

These six consolidated appeals involve separate challenges brought by six private schools for the disabled (collectively, "Windsor Schools") to the disallowance of certain legal fees in their final approved tuition rates for the 2001-02 and 2002-03 fiscal years. The six Windsor Schools had interlocking directorships. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14-21, private schools for the disabled receiving students from public school districts may not charge a tuition rate that exceeds the actual cost per student as determined under rules prescribed by the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") and approved by the State Board of Education.[1]

Auditors from the New Jersey Department of Education ("Department") excluded various expenses, totaling $263,580 for 2001-02 and $188,937 for 2002-03, incurred in connection with the defense against criminal charges leading to the convictions for theft by deception of two former directors and the schools. In their written findings, the auditors determined that the costs were unreasonable within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(1), which limits allowable expenses to those that are "ordinary and necessary and not in excess of the cost which would be incurred by an ordinary prudent person in administration of public funds." The auditors also regarded the expenses as failing to satisfy the regulatory requirement that any allowable cost must be "consistent with the individualized education program (IEP) of a disabled student."[2] Id. In addition, the auditors treated the expenses as non-allowable under the express exclusion of costs "found to be patently unreasonable by the Commissioner or his or her representative(s) or the independent auditor/accountant." N.J.A.C. 6:23-4.5(a)(63).[3]

[2] During the time covered by the audit (2001-02 and 2002-03), the matter was governed by the regulations then in effect. On August 16, 2004, the Department amended the regulations, making largely technical changes. 36 N.J.R. 1312(a) (March 15, 2004); 36 N.J.R. 3895(a) (Aug. 16, 2004). The relevant portion of revised regulations) currently requires that allowable costs be "consistent with the students' individualized education programs (IEP)."

Windsor Schools challenge the Department's disallowance of the legal fees on three grounds. First, they argue the determination should be overturned as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Second, even if disallowance of the legal fees incurred in defense of the individual directors is upheld, they argue that the fees incurred in defense of the six schools should be recognized as a legitimate operating expense. Lastly, they request that the Commissioner exercise his equitable powers to extend the time for repayment of any disallowed expenses beyond the thirty-day period set forth in the regulations.[4]

Procedural History

By letters dated May 28 and June 13, 2003, the Department's Office of Compliance Investigation notified the six Windsor Schools that it had completed its fiscal monitoring of petitioners' budgets for FY 2002 (July 1, 2001 to June 30, 2002) and had disallowed legal fees incurred as a result of criminal charges brought against the individual members of the management team.[5] Shortly thereafter, on July 28, 2003, the Office of Compliance amended its earlier findings to disallow legal fees incurred as a result of criminal charges brought against the schools' corporate entities.

Petitioners sought timely review by the Chief of Staff Gloria Hancock. On November 18, 2003, Chief of Staff Hancock denied each of these appeals. Three months later, on February 20, 2004, the Windsor Schools filed separate appeals to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Subsequently, on June 24, 2004, the

[5] The fiscal monitoring report indicated that these amounts must be excluded from the FY 2003 budget as well.

Commissioner transmitted all six appeals to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing.

Since all six appeals involve common issues of fact, the parties agreed to submit the matter of disposition on cross-motions for summary decision. On April 19, 2005, the parties submitted a joint stipulation of facts and legal briefs in support of their respective positions. They filed reply briefs on or before April 22, 2005. The OAL held oral argument on April 27, 2005, on which date the record closed.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are stipulated by the parties or admitted in the pleadings. I FIND the following facts:

Windsor Learning Center, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Pompton Lakes, New Jersey. Shepard Academy, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Morristown, New Jersey. Shepard High School, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Morristown, New Jersey. Windsor Prep, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Paterson, New Jersey. Windsor Academy, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Paterson, New Jersey. Windsor School, Inc. is a corporation that owns and operates a private school for the disabled located in Pompton Lakes, New Jersey.[6]

Prior to July 1, 2001, Dr. Daniel Greco and Philip Scardilli were officers and trustees of the various Windsor Schools. On or about January 25, 2003, Greco and Scardilli were indicted by a Morris County Grand Jury on fifteen counts of criminal activity arising out of their management of the Windsor Schools. Ultimately, on March [6] In its initial brief, petitioners' counsel represented that Windsor Learning Center, Inc. and Shepard Academy, Inc. are for-profit entities and the four other schools are not-for-profit educational institutions.

17, 2003, Greco and Scardilli each pled guilty to one count of the second degree crime of theft by deception and the remaining counts were dismissed. Sentenced on August 18, 2003, they each received imprisonment for a term of six years, were required to divest themselves of their interest or positions in all Windsor Schools, forfeited their professional licenses and certificates in the education field and agreed to pay restitution in excess of $3.6 million. Similar criminal indictments containing a lesser number of counts were filed against the six corporate entities. They too each pled guilty to a single count of theft by deception on March 17, 2003 and, as part of the sentence, consented to entry of an order holding them jointly and severally liable for restitution of $3.6 million.

The Department has accepted petitioners' breakdown of legal fees derived from invoices submitted by the criminal attorney rather than attempting to perform its own allocation of legal fees between individual and corporate expenses. Windsor Schools quantified the amount of legal fees incurred for criminal defense work during 2001-02 as $202,510 for the two individuals and $44,070 for the six corporate entities.[7] Corresponding legal fees incurred during 2002-03 totaled $105,972 for the two individuals and $53,083 for the corporate entities, plus an unallocated amount of $17,332 relating to Shepard Academy, Inc.[8]

As a result of their criminal convictions, Greco and Scardilli divested themselves of all interest in the Windsor Schools and the six schools are presently under new ownership and management.

[7] There is, however, a $6,000 shortfall between the $263,580 amount disallowed by the state auditors and the $257,580 total legal expenses in petitioners' calculations. The source of this discrepancy appears to be an error in reporting the individual and corporate legal fees attributable to Windsor School, Inc. ($102,785 instead of $108,785). Since both individual and corporate legal fees are disallowable, the error does not effect the outcome of this case. The higher number used by the state auditors is the correct figure for total legal fees.

[8] Here too, there is a difference of $12,550 between the $188,937 disallowed by the auditors and the $176,387 reflected in petitioners' allocation of legal expenses. Again, the source of the discrepancy seems to be an underreporting by petitioners of the total legal expenses for Windsor School, Inc. ($35,000 instead of $47,550).

Legal Analysis and Conclusions

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Department properly disallowed these expenses from the Windsor Schools' approved tuition rates for FY 2002 and 2003.

New Jersey law authorizes public school districts to send handicapped students to approved private schools as the means of satisfying the districts' duty to provide suitable facilities and programs of education for children with educational disabilities. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(g). Council of Private Schools for Children with Special Needs, Inc. v. Saul Cooperman, 205 N.J. Super. 544 (App. Div. 1985), certif.. den. 103 N.J. 490 (1985). The Legislature has expressed concern for the quality of education for handicapped pupils as well as its overall cost to the public. Council of Private Schools, at 545. Toward that end, the Legislature has conferred statutory authority on the Commissioner, with the consent of the State Board of Education, to approve special facilities and educational programs for education of handicapped students, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-15(a), and to require private schools to provide such educational, financial and statistical reports as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of Chapter 46. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19. Tuition rates that approved private schools may charge to sending public school districts are strictly regulated. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21, tuition rates charged by approved private schools cannot "exceed the actual cost per pupil as determined under the rules prescribed by the [C]ommissioner and approved by the State Board of Education." N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21.

To carry out its responsibility to ensure that public funds are properly spent for legitimate educational purposes, the Department has adopted regulations prescribing the accounting and bookkeeping systems utilized by approved private schools for the disabled. N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.2 prescribes that the final tuition rate to be charged to public school districts must be "an amount less than or equal to the certified actual cost per student." Subsection (a)(1)(ii) of this regulation requires that allowable costs shall be "consistent with the students' individualized education programs (IEP)." Furthermore, Subsection (a)(1)(iv) requires that such costs must be "reasonable, that is, ordinary and necessary and not in excess of the cost which would be incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds." (Emphasis added.) N.J.A.C. 6:23-4.2(a)(1)(iv).

While the Department has enumerated numerous examples of specific costs that are non-allowable, that list is not intended to be exhaustive and does not preclude the Department from acting to prevent waste or fraud. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5 A catch-all provision set forth in Subsection (a)(65) of the rule on non-allowable costs broadly encompasses all "[c]osts found to be patently unreasonable by the Commissioner or his or her representative(s) or the independent auditor/accountant." (Emphasis added.)

Legal fees incurred in the unsuccessful defense of individuals and corporate entities engaged in the misuse of public funds do not qualify as an expense "incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds." That Windsor Schools' directors were allowed to plead to only one of the charges (in exchange for acceptance of stiff prison sentences) does not alter the basic character of the expenditure. Certainly it was not an abuse of discretion for the state auditors and the Department's internal review staff to conclude that such use of public money is of no significant benefit to the handicapped students attending the private schools. Rather, the Department's finding represents an appropriate exercise of agency expertise in the complex field of school financing.

Petitioners' contention that the Department engaged in ad hoc rule-making in derogation of Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984) is without merit. As previously noted, the Department already has enacted general regulations prohibiting allowance of costs which are not consistent with students' IEPs or are determined to be patently unreasonable. Therefore, the Department was not announcing a new rule, but simply interpreting its existing regulations as applicable to the particular facts. In the context of public administration, adjudication is regulation. In re Appeal of Certain Sections of the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 93 (1982). An agency can use the adjudicative process to set certain policies, to give specific content to general regulations and to handle specialized problems that arise. Thus, the agency's decisional authority is directly and integrally related to its regulatory function. Id. "Administrative agencies cannot be expected to cover the course of administrative regulation on one leg. They need both their rule-making and adjudicatory powers to perform their duties properly." 90 N.J. at 94.

Windsor Schools exaggerates when it contends that the Department's rulings "transcend the rights of petitioners and have broad ramifications for private educational institutions which take on public school students." Hopefully, not too many private schools or their administrators will be convicted of theft of public money earmarked for education of handicapped children. Nothing in the Department's determination detracts from the well-established principle that schools may include professional fees related to bona fide educational purposes in their tuition rates. Cf. Hankin v. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Educ., 47 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1957), certif. den. 25 N.J. 489 (1957) (affirming award of architects' reasonable compensation for preparation of plans in connection with construction of school additions and new high school); Board of Educ. v. Finne, 88 N.J. Super. 91 (Law Div. 1965) (granting summary judgment in favor of architectural firm for services rendered).

Similarly, the Commissioner recognized that legal costs and fees concerning school matters are ordinarily included in the tuition rate calculation in sending-receiving relationships, but nonetheless required each side to bear its own legal expenses in litigation between the two districts. Upholding the distinction drawn by the Commissioner, the Appellate Division found it to be "a legally sustainable exercise of authority over his area of expertise". Board of Educ. of Lincoln Park v. Board of Educ. of Boonton, OAL Dkt. No. 5944-02 (April 2, 2003), clarified (Comm'r May 15, 2003), aff'd (State Bd. Nov. 7, 2003), aff'd No. A-2155-03T3, slip op. at 8, (N.J. App. Div. May 25, 2005).

It would be incongruous to require public school districts to pay legal fees incurred by dishonest directors of private schools, whereas a public school district would not be required to reimburse the legal fees of its own employees who have been convicted of criminal offenses. Public school districts must reimburse their employees for the cost of defending themselves against criminal prosecution related to their employment only if "such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person." N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. Bower v. Board of Educ. of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997). Having pled guilty to at least one of the criminal charges against them, Greco and Scardilli did not achieve a favorable outcome within the meaning of the statute. Surely there is no compelling reason to treat private school employees more generously than public school employees under comparable circumstances, especially where the crime of which the private school officials have been convicted involves the fraudulent taking of public money.

Where, as here, a private school is itself convicted of participating in a criminal scheme, the cost of its legal defense falls within the same category of expenses that are not "consistent with the student's individualized education program" and "patently unreasonable." Indeed, the facts of this case are much less sympathetic than those in Lincoln Park, supra, where the legal fees disallowed by the Commissioner were spent in furtherance of civil litigation between sending and receiving districts. In contrast, the legal fees which the Windsor Schools want to include in their tuition rates derive from their losing battle to defend against criminal charges of defrauding the very districts on which petitioners seek to impose such costs. Other state agencies in New Jersey have rejected analogous efforts by a commercial enterprise to pass along unreasonable litigation expenses as an ordinary cost of doing business. Illustratively, in Renaissance Rehabilitation and Nursing Ctr. v. Dep't of Health & Senior Servs., OAL Dkt. HLT 1090-02, 2004, N.J. AGEN LEXIS 322 (May 18, 2004), the Commissioner of Health refused to include the amount of a jury award, including punitive damages, in setting Medicaid rates because such legal expenses "were not reasonable costs of providing routine care services." (slip op. at 1).

Lastly, Windsor Schools invokes the equitable powers of the Commissioner to waive strict application of the regulatory requirement that a private school for the disabled must pay or credit the sending public school districts for tuition overpayment "not more than 30 days after an appeal on a certified amount is finally resolved." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(l). Pleading economic hardship and an alleged threat to the schools' financial viability, Windsor Schools emphasizes that the current owners were not involved in any criminal wrongdoing. Not having reserved the right to waive application of the deadline, it is debatable how much authority the Commissioner actually possess to waive regulations that inure to the benefit of particular sending school districts. Compare, e.g., N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16, wherein the Commissioner expressly reserved the right to waive procedural rules. In re Petition for Authorization to Conduct a Referendum on the Withdrawal of N. Haledon Sch. Dist., 181 N.J. 161 (2004), on which petitioners rely, arose in the context of the Commissioner's constitutional mandate to enforce the State's policy against racial discrimination and does not necessarily confer a broader power on the Commissioner to disregard duly-adopted regulations.

Assuming, however, that an agency head possesses inherent authority to waive application of agency regulations to prevent manifest injustice, such power should be exercised sparingly. Even at the agency level, waiver would require a case-by-case determination of whether the facts of a particular situation merit waiver and, thus, might hamper efficient rule application. See Dougherty v. Dep't of Human Servs., 91 N.J. 449 (1982). Considerations of fairness and uniformity weigh against making exceptions to general rules on a piecemeal basis. Here the equities do not predominate in favor of extending the 30-day period for the Windsor Schools to make restitution of tuition overcharges. Basically, petitioners are seeking an interest-free loan at the expense of the public school districts that have paid tuition in excess of the final approved rate. As between the innocent schools districts and the successors-in-interest to private schools whose directors committed criminal acts, the equities clearly lie in favor of the public getting its money back as soon as possible.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board, an Abbott District, filed a petition challenging the Department's denial of funding for a community attendance liaison in its preschool budget for the 2006-2007 fiscal year; the Board asserts that this position performs "significant duties and responsibilities critical to the success of its preschool program" which cannot be performed by individuals in other positions. The Department maintains, inter alia, that it already funds other district employees who perform outreach duties, and emphasizes that attendance in a preschool program is not compulsory, nor do its guidelines recognize an attendance officer as a recommended position for the early childhood program.

The ALJ found that: Elizabeth's request in the amount of $50,786 would fund a position that is essentially that of a truancy officer for a program where attendance is voluntary; Elizabeth has funding for sufficient outreach and support staff to operate a high quality preschool program, and has the ability to restructure the duties of existing staff to address poor attendance at the preschool level if that is deemed a priority; in terms of demonstrated need, Elizabeth has not shown any unique local conditions that might justify funding this extra position. The ALJ denied the relief requested by the petitioning Board.

Upon a full and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ's conclusion that the Department properly denied the District's special requests for a community attendance liaison as the District has not satisfied its burden of demonstrating the need for such a position or its effectiveness in the provision of its Abbott preschool program. Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition is dismissed.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by the Elizabeth Board of Education ("Elizabeth" or "Board") from the denial of its special request for state funding of a "community attendance liaison" in its preschool budget for the 2006-2007 fiscal year ("FY '07").[1] Pursuant to the mandate of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Abbott school districts must provide high quality preschool programs to their three- and four-year old children and the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") must "ensure" that such programs are adequately funded and "assist" local districts in implementing them.[2] Instructions issued by the Department of Education ("Department") for completing the FY '07 budget forms provide that districts must use a special request form for items "that either (1) do not fit within or (2) exceed the amounts in any of the line-item categories contained in their respective budget guidelines." Elizabeth filed eighteen special request forms, all but three of which were approved by the Department. Originally, the Board challenged all three denials. Prior to the hearing, the parties satisfactorily resolved two of the issues, so that the only remaining dispute involves funding for the community attendance liaison.

Elizabeth contends that the community attendance liaison performs "significant duties and responsibilities critical to the success of its preschool program" and which cannot be performed by individuals in other positions. The Department maintains that it already funds other district employees, such as the community parent involvement specialist ("CPIS") and a team of social workers, who are available for outreach duties, including home visits. Moreover, the Department points out that attendance in a preschool program is not compulsory and that its guidelines do not recognize an attendance officer as a recommended position for a well-run preschool program. Further, the Department objects that Elizabeth has failed to furnish sufficient supporting documentation to establish the need and effectiveness of its special request.

[1] Elizabeth is one of 31 special needs districts designated by New Jersey Supreme Court decision or by statute as an "Abbott district." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3. Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287, 394 (1990) ("Abbott II").

Procedural History

On or about November 13, 2005, Elizabeth filed its one-year programmatic budget for its Abbott Preschool Program during FY '07. By letter dated January 13, 2006, the Department approved a total budget of $39.4 million, but denied three special requests including the amount of $50,787 to fund the position of community attendance liaison. One month later, on February 14, 2006, Elizabeth filed a petition of appeal to the Commissioner.

Subsequently, on February 16, 2006, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. On or before March 8, 2006, the parties exchanged position papers setting forth more specific facts with respect to the issues in dispute. The OAL held hearings on March 10, 13 and 15, 2006. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Upon receipt of post-hearing briefs from the parties, the record closed on March 20, 2006.

General Background Facts

In 2006-07, Elizabeth has an approved projected enrollment of 2,997 three- and four-year olds or 78.5% of the estimated universe of eligible students.[3] Currently, Elizabeth operates 130 or more preschool classrooms, located in 16 elementary school buildings and three stand-alone early childhood centers scattered throughout the city. Additionally, Elizabeth contracts with eight private providers to furnish preschool services to 555 children.

[3] New Jersey regulations establish the goal of enrolling 90% of the universe of eligible three- and four-year olds. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(21)(iii). David Joye, co-director of the Department's Office of Early Childhood Education, candidly acknowledged that only 7 or 8 of the 31 Abbott districts have met the 90% benchmark.

New Jersey has adopted a recommended staffing model to assist districts in delivering services and maintaining communication with families. Under that model, preschool supportive staff consists of one "community and parent involvement specialist", one "social worker" for every 250-300 children in a district-operated classroom and one "family worker" for every 45 children in a community-provider setting.

Special Request for Community Attendance Liaison

Elizabeth seeks funding in the amount of $50,786 for a "community attendance liaison." Despite the fancy title, the position is essentially that of a truancy officer, whose primary duties consist of visiting the homes of preschool students who have been absent for more than three consecutive days and educating their parents or guardians on the importance of early childhood education and consistent attendance.

Forms designed by the Department for use by an Abbott district in making a special request specify in bold-faced print that:

> Only those special requests accompanied by detailed descriptions and justifications, including documented evidence of need and/or effectiveness from studies, evaluations, needs assessments, etc. will be considered by the Department. [4]

Nonetheless, Elizabeth submitted a short one-page request, without any supporting documentation. In that document, Elizabeth made the blanket assertion that the community attendance liaison averages 50 to 60 home visits per week. Nothing was offered to demonstrate the need for such function or its effectiveness. Couched in conclusory language, Elizabeth urged that the community attendance liaison "performs

[4] In a letter dated November 29, 2005, Dr. Eric Rodney, the Department representative responsible for review of Elizabeth's budget requests, reminded the District that "[s]pecial requests should be accompanied by documented evidence, need and effectiveness from studies" and that "failure to do so may prevent the department from approving these services or materials."

specific responsibilities that cannot be completed by the Community Parent Involvement Specialist."

Since participation in the preschool program is voluntary, Department staff were perplexed by the statement in Elizabeth's submission that "a 5 day legal notice is issued to the parent or guardian to send the pupil to school."[5] During her testimony at the hearing, Olga Hugelmeyer, Elizabeth's director of early childhood education, conceded that this statement was erroneous and that issuance of a 5-day notice was inapplicable at the preschool level.

Elaborating on the need for an extra position, Hugelmeyer testified that only the community attendance liaison can work after regular school hours and on weekends and that none of the other outreach workers employed by Elizabeth are allowed by contract to do so. Thus, the CPIS is considered to be a "teaching" position and her contract only requires her to work from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Hugelmeyer added that the CPIS "does not go into the field and visit parents' homes." Similarly, the preschool social workers funded by the Department work from 8:15 a.m. to 3:05 p.m., and it is not part of their contract to meet with parents after hours.

Although Elizabeth has employed a community attendance liaison since September 1999, her duties were previously divided between preschool and Kindergarten and her compensation has always been paid out of local funds. This is the first year that Elizabeth has asked the state to assume this cost. Contrary to Hugelmeyer's understanding, the community attendance liaison is under no greater obligation than other district employees to work beyond normal school hours. Olga Fajardo, the person occupying that position since its inception, testified that her regular work hours are 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and she conducts home visits during that period. When she is unsuccessful in contacting a parent or guardian, she often makes visits after school or on weekends when working parents are more likely to be at home. She does so out of her own sense of dedication and genuine enthusiasm for the preschool program. It does not appear that she receives any additional compensation or overtime payment for working beyond her regular hours.

Fajardo, who has a high school diploma, summarized the process by which she gets assigned cases.[6] Initially the classroom teacher, office secretary or building vice principal attempts to make telephone contact with the parent of a preschool child who has been absent for three days. Sometimes the family has moved without notifying the school or the telephone number has been disconnected. If the parent cannot be reached, the case is referred to Fajardo to make a home visit. Additionally, Fajardo may be assigned to visit the home if a child is excessively late to class. She visits the home and, if no one is there, leaves a card under the door asking the parent to contact her. Often she has to return to the home two or three times before she is able to track down the missing parent.

Once she makes contact with a parent, Fajardo explains the benefits of the preschool program and encourages improved attendance. If the parent claims that the child is sick, Fajardo asks for a doctor's note. Fajardo keeps a written daily log, in which she records the date of referral, the child's name and identification number, the school attended, the number of days absent or tardy, the date of the home visit or other contact, and the outcome. She reports her findings to the building administrator and later checks with the school to make sure that child's attendance has improved.

As noted, the Department routinely funds several other preschool positions involved with community outreach. Every Abbott district must hire a "community and parent involvement specialist" or CPIS. State regulations prescribe that the CPIS' responsibilities shall, at a minimum, include: staffing the Early Childhood Advisory Council; being responsible for the community needs assessment; organizing and coordinating systematic parent involvement plans and activities; and coordinating work with other agencies.[7]

Guidelines promulgated by the Department's Office of Early Childhood Education envision that the CPIS will support efforts to extend services provided by classroom teachers and maintain communications with families. Abbott Preschool Program Implementation Guidelines ("Guidelines"), 49 to 50 (Updated July 2005). Recruitment efforts "must be in earnest and assigned to individuals who know the community and understand the necessity of public relations." Guidelines, at 14. Preschool staff must develop a partnership with parents, understanding their perspectives, enhancing their knowledge of child development, and involving them in the program. Guidelines, at 48. Recommended ways to increase family participation in the preschool program include "hold[ing] meetings at different times of the day to accommodate working schedules." Guidelines, at 49. Communication between home and parent should be "regular and two-way." Guidelines, at 54.

Tina Anapolsky has served as CPIS in Elizabeth since 2001. She is qualified as a teacher, but not as a school social worker.[8] Her duties, for the most part, consist of chairing the Early Childhood Advisory Council, coordinating with local agencies and attending meetings of various community groups.[9] Anapolsky also has an opportunity to talk with parents during registration and by attending parent workshops held throughout the school year. None of the workshops (which are taught by the social workers or family worker, not by her) are held at night or on weekends. Acknowledging that she does not get to speak to every parent, Anapolsky characterized her contact with families as "informal and anecdotal." She regards her "primary location" to be her office, and rarely leaves the building, except to attend meetings or visit community providers. Somewhat defensively, she insists that nothing in her contract requires her to work beyond 4:30 p.m. or visit parents in their homes.

[8] While no particular certification is required, the instruction sheet for filling out the FY '07 programmatic budget indicates that "[t]he specialist will ideally possess a Masters of Social Work (MSW) and have experience designing parent involvement programs."

[9] Elizabeth's Early Childhood Advisory Council is made up of various "stakeholders" in the community, such as Trinitas Hospital, Elizabethport Presbyterian, the Department of Human Services, the Department of Education and the directors of private community providers of preschool services.

In addition, the Department has supplied funding for eight social workers for the preschool program in the Elizabeth public schools. Among the tasks enumerated by regulation, the social worker is responsible for "coordinating with the [CPIS] to reach out to families, determine individual family needs and provide advocacy services, and obtain available community services."[10] Social workers are also responsible for collaborating with classroom teachers and other school professionals, providing follow-up and assessment of child needs, helping parents learn about child development, nutrition and a safe environment, and designing and providing parent workshops.

Elizabeth presented the testimony of Karen Pierre as illustrative of the types of duties performed by the preschool social workers. Pierre, who holds a masters degree in social work, is assigned to provide services at two public schools and two community providers with a combined total of 25 classrooms.[11] Stationed at Prince Street School, she receives referrals when students exhibit behavior problems in class. Presently, she has a caseload of 34 students. By the end of last year, she had a caseload of 43 students. After receiving a referral, she meets with the teacher, observes the child in class and devises a behavior support program. She develops strategies for teachers and parents to address behavior problems and engages in role-playing activities. She also serves as a resource on what behaviors are developmentally appropriate and assists the parents in gaining access to outside agencies for help. Moreover, she presents parent workshops on different topics, such as nutrition, daily classroom routine and how to help children learn at home. During initial orientation, Pierre spends about twenty minutes discussing the importance of attendance and distributing student handbooks containing information about the District's attendance policy.

[10] N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(12).

[11] It is unclear why Fajardo assumed the task of serving as attendance officer for the community providers, since each community provider has its own family worker whose responsibilities include "help[ing] families stay involved with the program." N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(13).

Pierre works during regular school hours and never leaves the premises to visit parents at home. Recognizing, however, that behavioral problems in preschool are "family issues," Pierre routinely invites parents to meet with her in school. Pierre considers her responsibilities to be a full-time job, and does not usually get involved in attendance issues unless she has an existing relationship with a particular child.

On the question of need for the position, Elizabeth alleged that a preschool attendance officer is needed to comply with the mandates of the federal No Child Left Behind Act ("NCLB") in order to avoid having any of its schools stigmatized as being "in need of improvement."[12] Natalie Kosoncoky, Elizabeth director of accountability, explained that each school in the district must achieve a proficiency standard on 41 different indicators to achieve Adequate Yearly Progress ("AYP"). New Jersey has selected an attendance rate of 90% of enrollment as one of those indicators.[13] Even though preschool is purely voluntary, preschool attendance is counted in determining whether a particular school building has met its benchmark. Individual schools that fail to achieve AYP are subject to an escalating set of sanctions over a five-year period, starting with an early warning in the first year and culminating in implementation of a restructuring plan in the fifth year. Department witnesses agree that statewide attendance rates in preschool have historically been lower than in elementary grades, so that inclusion of preschool data has a tendency to drag down the attendance score of those schools with preschool classes.[14] Significantly, however, Kosoncoky conceded that no school in Elizabeth has ever failed to make AYP because of a low attendance rate.

Another concern expressed by Elizabeth is the possibility of a reduction in the amount of its state Preschool Expansion Aid ("PSEA") if attendance in preschool were to drop. Calculation of PSEA is based not on attendance, but on actual enrollment at [13] Notwithstanding that attendance is termed a "secondary" measure," a school will not achieve AYP if it is deficient in this single category.

[14] Department officials acknowledged that this methodology may not be a federal requirement and promised to confer with Title I staff about omitting preschool attendance as a future measure for NCLB purposes.

the time of the yearly census on October 15th. Auditors from the Department's Office of School Financing visit school districts during the spring to examine their business records, including sampling classroom attendance to verify the enrollment count.[15] Substantial discrepancies between the attendance and reported enrollment could conceivably lead to an adjustment in PSEA, either upward or downward as the case may be. When and if a reduction is proposed, the affected school district would have an opportunity to request a hearing.

Elizabeth waited until the last rebuttal witness on the last day of hearing to produce any data purporting to demonstrate the effectiveness of the requested position. Earlier, on March 3, 2006, Elizabeth had submitted a compilation of the number of home visits made by the community attendance liaison between December 2005 and February 2006, but this uninformative summary failed to disclose whether or not attendance had subsequently improved as a result of these efforts. Finally, at the hearing on March 15, 2006, Elizabeth introduced into evidence Fajardo's daily logs memorializing each contact with the parent cross-matched against district attendance records for the each child. Unfortunately, however, the District made no effort to quantify this raw data in any statistically meaningful way.

Although Hugelmeyer claimed that 80% of Fajardo's home visits resulted in a successful outcome, she never explained the basis for her overly optimistic conclusion. Of the 29 students for whom attendance records were provided, 8 were absent for three or more days in February following Fajardo's visit.[16] Children kept home due to illness might well have returned once they felt better, regardless of whether or not Fajardo contacted their parents. Many of the visits were made during the last few days of the month and were meaningless in terms of measuring improvement in attendance. In sum, Elizabeth's proofs were insufficient to definitively show the effectiveness of the position.

I FIND that Elizabeth has funding for sufficient outreach and support staff to operate a high quality preschool program. The Department's staffing model provides a CPIS and four social workers responsible for increasing community utilization of preschool services and maintaining communications with parents. If the Elizabeth school administration determines that poor attendance at the preschool level is a high priority, it has the ability to restructure the duties of existing staff to address the problem. Certainly the District could put more emphasis during initial enrollment on acquainting parents with the advantages of preschool for their children and the importance of attendance. Elizabeth cannot contract for its staff to work only during the day and then be heard to complain that it has nobody available to meet with the parents at night. (Indeed, the record establishes that the District's outreach staff are no more contractually prohibited than the community attendance officer from working outside regular school hours.)

It is equally important for the CPIS to make herself available to meet with working parents at times and places convenient to her clientele as it is for her to observe workshops given by others or attend community meetings outside the school. Similarly, the social worker's responsibilities include reaching out to families and assistance in serving the child's individual needs, without drawing artificial distinctions between behavior problems in class and general attendance problems. Since preschool is not compulsory, the choice of whether or not to send the child ultimately belongs to the parent. However, the social worker should accommodate the parent's schedule if the family requires counseling or additional information in order to make an informed choice.

In terms of demonstrated need, Elizabeth has not shown any unique local conditions that might justify funding this extra position. Nothing on the record suggests that Elizabeth's preschool attendance is lower than the statewide experience. Exaggerated fears that this factor might cause one of its schools to fall below the NCLB standards are allayed by the fact that none of Elizabeth's schools has ever failed to make AYP due to low attendance. PSEA is calculated on the basis of enrollment rather than attendance and, again, there is nothing to suggest that Elizabeth has ever been threatened with a loss of PSEA because of attendance. Verification of attendance by state auditors is done to ensure the accuracy of the enrollment figures. Surely, Elizabeth should not be entitled to continue to receive aid for phantom students.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Department properly denied Elizabeth's special request for a community attendance liaison.

In Abbott v. Burke, 153 N.J. 480, 508 (1998) ("Abbott V"), the New Jersey Supreme Court emphasized the importance of early childhood education and directed the Commissioner to "ensure" that preschool programs for three- and four-year-old children are adequately funded. Thereafter, in Abbott v. Burke, 163 N.J. 95, (2000) ("Abbott VI"), the New Jersey Supreme Court reaffirmed its commitment to quality preschool programming and reiterated its direction to the Commissioner to "ensure" adequate resources and funding for that purpose. Two years later, in Abbott v. Burke, 170 N.J. 536, 559 (2002) ("Abbott VIII"), the Supreme Court revisited the topic and commented that funding decisions should be "based not on arbitrary, predetermined per-student amounts, but rather, on a record containing funding allocations developed after a thorough assessment of actual needs." Recently, in Board of Education of Millville v. New Jersey Dep't of Educ., 183 N.J. 264 (2005), Supreme Court clarified that to "ensure" adequate funding is not the same as to "provide" state funding and that the Commissioner may require Abbott districts to reallocate money from district budget accounts to make up preschool funding shortfalls.

Elizabeth objects to the Department's alleged failure to articulate fully the reasons for denial of its special request. Citing the regulation requiring the Department to provide "specific reasons for denying the program or expenditure," N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-

97(a)(1), Elizabeth points out that the only reason given in the January 13, 2006 letter for not funding the community attendance liaison is the Department approval of "a community parent involvement specialist for the district." Nevertheless, Elizabeth undoubtedly understood that the Department evaluated its special request in the context of whatever existing staff could be mobilized to deal with attendance matters. Before the hearing began, the parties exchanged more specific statements of fact. In that document, the Department clarified that the denial was due to Elizabeth's failure to document the need for the new position and because other funded positions could perform the same duties. At the hearing itself, Elizabeth offered affirmative proofs on the functions of its social workers, vice principals, and school secretaries as well as the CPIS. Consequently, Elizabeth was not unfairly surprised by any claimed deficiencies in the Department's denial letter and was fully prepared to litigate all reasons for denial of its request.

Abbott decisions have repeatedly referred to the "particularized needs" of the children in the Abbott districts as the driving force in developing appropriate programs. Abbott V, at 511. See also, Abbott v. Burke, 149 N.J. 145, 198 (1997) ("Abbott IV"); Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444, 451-52 (1994) ("Abbott III"); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287, 295 (1990) ("Abbott II"). Agency practice comports with this approach by requiring Abbott districts to demonstrate the need and effectiveness of any special requests.

Existing case law mandates that Abbott districts make suitable efforts to encourage widespread participation in the preschool program. Realistically, the Supreme Court recognized that "even if every parent is informed about the availability of preschool, not all parents will chose to enroll their children." Abbott VIII, at 551. Some parents may not wish to '"put their child[ren] in the 'world' too soon," while others may prefer a more family-oriented child care environment or the flexibility of alternative child care options. Abbott VIII, at 551, quoting from Evaluation of Early Childhood Programming in the 30 Abbott School Districts: Phase 1 Report (Feb. 2001). Concerned about under-enrollment of eligible children, the Court ordered increased outreach and recruitment efforts so that "children will not be denied the benefits of a quality preschool program simply because their parents do not know it exists." Abbott

VIII, at 552. Hence, the remedy fashioned by the Court is focused on assuring that parents are fully aware of the opportunity for their children, rather than requiring all parents to take advantage of what is offered. Elizabeth now seeks to extend that remedy beyond the court mandate and reach parents who clearly know of the option because they have enrolled their children in a preschool program.

Whatever the merits of a school district choosing to spend its own money on improving preschool attendance, Elizabeth has not demonstrated the need and effectiveness of creating such a position in fulfillment of the Abbott preschool program. Unlike the upper grades, attendance is voluntary in preschool so that a truancy officer is nonessential. Claims that the position is necessitated by NCLB or distribution of PSEA are theoretical and overblown. Elizabeth has never been at genuine risk of failing to meet NCLB standards or losing state aid because of low preschool attendance rates. More importantly, the Department already funds sufficient preschool support staff to satisfy Elizabeth's outreach and recruitment obligations. Should the need arise, Elizabeth can redeploy its funded CPIS and social workers to include attendance in their community relations efforts. Furthermore, Elizabeth has not introduced sufficient data establishing the effectiveness of the community attendance liaison. Statistics gathered during the one-month period of February 2006 are subject to varying interpretation and do not substantiate the claim that attendance improved significantly as a result of Fajardo's home visits.

Unable to meet its burden of proof, Elizabeth tried unsuccessfully to shift the burden of producing substantiating documentation from itself onto the Department. Throughout the hearing, Elizabeth complained that the Department never told it what documents were required so that its special request could be approved. Elizabeth's complaint is based on a misreading of the New Jersey Supreme Court's admonition that the parties should work cooperatively together through the administrative process and that Department staff should "assist the districts in curing any deficiencies that have caused the Department to reject any plan." Abbott VIII, at 544. As the record shows, Dr. Rodney met with Elizabeth officials on February 28, 2006, corresponded with Elizabeth on numerous occasions and continued diligently working with Elizabeth to resolve all remaining disputes up to and including the first day of hearing. But it does not follow that the Department has any obligation to tell Elizabeth how to justify a position that the Department regards as wasteful and unnecessary. Ultimately, Elizabeth has superior knowledge of relevant information in its possession and bears the burden of proving that its special request should be granted. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-9.6(c). See Schaffer v. Weast, 126 S. Ct. 1300, 528, 163 L. Ed.2d 387, 2005 U.S. LEXIS 8554 (2005) ("The burdens of pleading and proof with regard to most facts have and should be assigned to the plaintiff who generally seeks to change the present state of affairs and who therefore naturally should be expected to bear the risk of failure of proof or persuasion.").

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a candidate for teacher certification, challenged the State Board of Examiners' (Board of Examiners) decision to deny her petition for the issuance of a standard certificate, or in the alternative, a third provisional certificate allowing her to participate in a provisional program in the Rahway school District. The Board of Examiners determined that her appeal, filed five months after she received the second of two "insufficient" certification ratings – assigned by two different school districts at the end of each of two consecutive years of teaching under provisional certification – was untimely under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18 (a)(1). Petitioner asserted that her second insufficiency rating and her failure to timely file her appeal were attributable to the effects of domestic abuse and, in any event, she was never given personal notice of the requirements for appealing a certification rating under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18. She maintained that her circumstances constituted "good cause" under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c) for the waiver of any time requirements.

The ALJ found that: the Department has published regulations that clearly define the consequences of a second "insufficient" rating for individuals teaching under a provisional license; the time limit for filing an appeal is clearly identified in the regulations; petitioner had constructive notice of the regulations and adequate opportunity to establish the existence of a "good cause" reason for her failure to file in a timely fashion; and petitioner's due process rights to proper notice were not violated. Further, the ALJ found that petitioner failed to present evidence in regard to her claim that domestic abuse was the causative factor in both her failure to achieve a "satisfactory" teaching recommendation and her failure to file within the time required by N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1). Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition for failure to file within the 60-day time limit.

The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that: petitioner did not show good cause to waive the 60-day limitations period under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1); and petitioner's due process rights were not violated. The Commissioner determined, however, to remand the case to the Board of Examiners to address the issue of petitioner's invocation of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d), which grants candidates who receive a "disapproved" or two recommendations of "insufficient," and who have not challenged the performance assessment/certification recommendation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a), the right to petition the Board of Examiners for approval of an additional opportunity to seek provisional employment.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner challenges the January 25, 2005, decision of the State Board of Examiners (Board of Examiners) to deny her petition for the issuance of a standard certificate or, in the alternative, a third provisional certificate allowing her to participate in a provisional program in the Rahway school district. The Commissioner has reviewed the record, the Initial Decision, and petitioner's post-hearing reply brief dated March 6, 2006, which was not considered in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). The Commissioner did not review petitioner's pro se letter dated March 17, 2006, because throughout the proceedings she has been represented by counsel, and there has been no notice that she has discharged her attorney and is now representing herself.[1] Respondent did not file exceptions.

The facts that follow are not disputed by the parties. In October 2002, petitioner received a provisional teaching certificate with an endorsement in elementary education. She was hired by the New Brunswick School District for the 2002-2003 school year,[2] at the end of which she received a rating of "insufficient."

[1] Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.1, petitioner may be represented by counsel, or represent herself, but not both.

[2] The copy of petitioner's contract with the New Brunswick Board of Education does not specify what petitioner's teaching assignment would be.

Petitioner completed the course requirements for Teacher of English as a Second Language in August 2003, and was hired by the Perth Amboy District for the 2003-2004 school year as an early childhood ESL teacher. Copies of three of her ratings for the school year at Perth Amboy are in the record. An October 2003 evaluation contained a 'needs improvement' grade for one assessment category. A November 2003 evaluation contained 'needs improvement' grades for two assessment categories, and a February 2004 evaluation contained 'needs improvement' grades for four assessment categories and grades of 'unsatisfactory' for four other assessment categories. The Perth Amboy district ultimately gave petitioner a rating of "insufficient" at the end of the school year.

In September 2004, petitioner began a third year of work as an ESL teacher in grades 6-8 in the Rahway school district. On her first evaluation, dated September 29, 2004, there were eight assessment categories; petitioner received a 'needs improvement' grade for one of them. Subsequent to that evaluation, the Rahway district learned that petitioner had received "insufficient" ratings for the prior two school years which, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.7(b)(2) and (c), meant that petitioner could not enroll in the provisional teacher program for a third year without petitioning the Board of Examiners. Consequently, the Rahway district removed petitioner from the position.

Petitioner appealed to the Board of Examiners on November 24, 2004. She contended that her second insufficiency rating was attributable to the effects of domestic abuse that she was experiencing up until February 20, 2004, and was not representative of her skills. Relying on N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18, she asked that the Board of Examiners issue her a standard certificate or allow her a third provisional teaching year – and an opportunity to prove her skills – in the Rahway district.

In her appeal to the Board of Examiners, petitioner invoked both N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d). N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a) allows a teaching candidate to challenge a "disapproved" recommendation or the second of two "insufficient" recommendations. Such a challenge must be filed within 6o days of receipt of the adverse recommendation, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1), but the period may be relaxed for good cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c). On the other hand, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) allows a candidate who has received an adverse certification recommendation, and who has not challenged it pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a), to "petition the Board of Examiners for approval of an additional opportunity to seek provisional employment. The candidate shall be responsible for demonstrating by clear and convincing evidence to the Board of Examiners why he or she would be likely to succeed if granted the requested opportunity."

The decision of the Board of Examiners was issued on January 25, 2005. It did not reach the merits of petitioner's appeal for standard or provisional certification because the Board of Examiners determined that the appeal was untimely under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1), and that petitioner had not shown good cause for relaxing the 60-day limitations period, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c). The Board of Examiners reasoned that the "insufficient recommendation' had been issued no later than the last day of the 2003-2004 school year, and that petitioner had consequently not filed her appeal until five months after her second rating of 'insufficient,' i.e., three months after the regulatory deadline. During the five months, petitioner had evidently conducted a job search which produced the Rahway position. The Board of Examiners concluded that since the after-effects of the domestic violence, which apparently ended with the issuance of a final restraining order in March 2004, did not stop petitioner from conducting a job search, there was inadequate reason to believe that the after-effects constituted an impediment to petitioner filing a timely appeal of her second 'insufficient' recommendation.

The Board of Examiners did not address petitioner's invocation of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d). It directed that "the second 'insufficient' rating stands, and Ms. Muench may not participate in the Provisional Teacher Program in the future."

The OAL hearing took place on January 20, 2006. After considering the evidence and a post hearing brief submitted by respondent, the administrative law judge (ALJ) took the same position that had been taken by the Board of Examiners. He characterized petitioner's appeal as a challenge to the second "insufficient" recommendation, and agreed with the Board of Examiners that before the merits of petitioner's adverse recommendations could be addressed, petitioner was required to prevail on the specific issue of justification of her untimely appeal. No hearing transcripts were provided to the Commissioner, but the ALJ stated in the Initial Decision that petitioner failed to present evidence "regarding the alleged mental, emotional or physical results of the alleged domestic violence and the supposed relationship to Ms. Muench's failure to file within the necessary time frame." (Initial Decision at 3)

Instead, petitioner focused on alleged constitutional issues. Petitioner asserted that since a second recommendation of 'insufficient' has the effect of closing out petitioner's teaching career, the State has a constitutional obligation to provide meaningful notice and opportunity to be heard. There is language in the Initial Decision that suggests that petitioner may have presented witnesses who testified that education students are not, in the course of their training about the provisional certificate program, given personal notice of the appeal requirements for 'insufficient recommendations.' (Ibid.)

The ALJ found, however, that the published regulation setting forth the 60-day requirement for appeals satisfied any requirement for meaningful public notice. (Ibid.) Any teacher could readily determine when a negative appraisal would need to be appealed and how. In the ALJ's view, petitioner was charged with knowledge of the law, "including duly published regulations contained in the New Jersey Administrative Code." (Initial Decision at 5) "[N]o other form of notice was constitutionally required." (Ibid.)

Because he found that adequate notice about the 60-day rule existed, and because he found that petitioner had presented no evidence at the hearing concerning her claims that the after-effects of the domestic violence impeded her ability to pursue a timely appeal, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had failed to make a timely appeal and had failed to show good cause why the 60-day rule should be waived in her case. (Ibid.) He ordered dismissal of her appeal without addressing the issue of her invocation of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d).

In petitioner's January 20, 2006 trial brief she articulated her position that the circumstances of her case warranted a relaxation of the 60-day limitations period in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1). In her view, the "good cause" showing that is required – under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c), as a prerequisite to relaxing the 60-day appeals period – need not be limited to a showing of good cause for tardiness in filing an appeal. Citing no authority, she contended that the Commissioner may look at her situation as a whole to determine good cause for waiving the 60-day rule.[3] (Petitioner's trial brief at 7)

Petitioner also argued – as she had in her appeal to the Board of Examiners and her petition to the Commissioner – that she qualified under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) for an additional opportunity to seek provisional employment, and that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) is not encumbered by the time limitation in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c). (Petitioner's trial brief at 7)

The balance of petitioner's brief was devoted to a discussion of due process rights. Petitioner claimed that, under the circumstances of this case, denying her a teaching career would be a constitutional violation. (Petitioner's trial brief at 8) Petitioner characterized the third opportunity for a provisional teaching job that she seeks as a right, and contended that it may not be – but was – withheld from her without proper notice and an opportunity to be heard. (Ibid.)

Petitioner's March 6, 2006, "reply brief," appears to constitute a response to the arguments set forth in a post hearing brief submitted by the State on February 17, 2006. It echoes the [3] One of petitioner's allegations in her January 20, 2006, brief was that although she was hired as an elementary teacher, she was illegally forced to teach ESL before she was so qualified. Since, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a), only the second "insufficient" rating shall be the subject of an appeal concerning standard certification recommendations, this allegation is not germane to the disposition of this controversy. Moreover, the Commissioner has been provided with no evidence to support the contention, and petitioner apparently never challenged the alleged illegal assignment during or directly after her tenure in the New Brunswick School District.

constitutional arguments in her January 20, 2006 brief, and her contention that her circumstances constituted good cause to waive the 60-day limitations period in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a)(1).[4]

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioner did not show good cause to waive the 60-day limitations period under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a). Further, for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision, the Commissioner agrees that petitioner's due process rights were not violated.[5] However, the Commissioner has determined to remand the case to the Board of Examiners to address the issue of petitioner's invocation of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d).

That regulation states, in pertinent part:

> Candidates who receive a recommendation of "disapproved" or two recommendations of "insufficient," and who have not challenged the certification recommendation pursuant to (a) above may petition the Board of Examiners for approval of an additional opportunity to seek provisional employment. The candidate shall be responsible for demonstrating by clear and convincing evidence to the Board of Examiners why he or she would be likely to succeed if granted the requested opportunity. . . .

Petitioner asked, in the alternative, for another chance for a provisional teaching assignment, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d). She alleged facts that were meant to show that her poor performance was not based upon incompetence, but rather was caused by an anomalous situation. She further offered facts for the purpose of meeting the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) that she demonstrate that she would likely succeed if given another chance as a provisional teacher.

Unlike N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a), N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) does not contain a limitations period. Petitioner invoked it in her appeal to the Board of Examiners and before the OAL, but

[4] The Commissioner notes that petitioner's reference (on page 2 of her brief) to the legislature's provision of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(c) is an error, since regulations are promulgated by State agencies. The Commissioner also finds that petitioner's references to the rules of New Jersey Superior Court are inapposite to the present controversy.

[5] Further, in the Commissioner's view, petitioner's claim that she has a "right," "property interest," "liberty interest" or "entitlement" to a teaching certificate is bootstrapping. A teaching certificate was never granted to petitioner, due to her failure to satisfy the prerequisites. It is axiomatic that one must first possess a property or liberty interest before one may seek protection against its confiscation.

neither the Board nor the ALJ addressed the issue of its applicability to petitioner's situation. Accordingly, the Commissioner remands this matter to the Board of Examiners for the application of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) or, if the Board determines that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(d) may not be applied, for the articulation of the reasons therefor.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 02754-05S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 61-2/05

ELLEN MUENCH,
Petitioner,
v.
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,
Respondent.

Sean F. Byrnes, Esq., for petitioner

Marta N. Kozlowska, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Zulima V. Farber, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: February 22, 2006 Decided: February 28, 2006

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Ellen Muench is a candidate for a teacher certificate. She has a Master's Degree in Education and has taught under provisional certification during the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years. The first year she was employed by the New Brunswick Board of Education. She received an "insufficient" recommendation from that district and the following year she worked for the Perth Amboy Board of Education. She again received an "insufficient" rating. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.7, a candidate who receives two "insufficient" or one "disapproved" recommendations may not receive a standard teaching certificate, but the candidate may be permitted to petition the Board of Examiners for approval to seek provisional employment in districts other than those in which the candidate received unfavorable recommendations. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18. Alternatively, a candidate receiving a second "insufficient" recommendation may seek to challenge that recommendation before the Board of Examiners. On November 24, 2004, an attorney representing Ms. Muench filed a letter with the State Board of Examiners ("Board"), appealing the second "insufficient" rating to the Board, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18.[1] On January 25, 2005, the Board issued a letter, in which it reported that at its January 20, 2005, meeting it had determined that Ms. Muench had filed her appeal on November 24, 2004, and, as it believed that she had received her final evaluation and certification recommendation no later than the last day of the school year, June 30, 2004, the filing was made well out-of-time, since the regulation authorizing such appeals provides that the appeal "shall" be filed with the Board of Examiner's Secretary "within 60 days of receipt of the final evaluation and certification recommendation." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18 (a)1. Those same regulations provide that, "[f]or good cause shown, the Board of Examiners may relax the 60-day requirement in (a) above." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18 (c). However, the Board also determined in that same meeting that Ms. Muench had not demonstrated "good cause" for waiving the filing deadline. In view of these determinations, the Board did not consider the merits of Ms. Muench's appeal and dismissed it as untimely.[2] On February 25, 2005, she filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education, seeking to appeal the Board of Examiners ruling.[3] The Board filed a motion with the Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10, seeking to dismiss the appeal as untimely. Ms. Muench responded and the Board replied. The Commissioner transferred the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law, with a direction to decide the timeliness issue as a threshold question. On October 6, 2005, I issued an Interlocutory Order, concluding, in part, that a hearing was necessary to determine the facts relevant to Ms. Muench's claims that mental, emotional or physical sequlae of domestic violence had impacted upon her sufficiently as to provide "good cause" for her failure to file a timely petition. I also determined that the "good cause" spoken of in the regulation related to a showing of "good cause" for the late filing and not to any generalized "good cause" basis asserting why the Board should hear the case on its merits even if there was no showing of a legitimate and sufficient reason why the petition was filed late.

[1] The regulations provide that in the case of a candidate receiving two "insufficient" recommendations, only the second "insufficient" recommendation "shall" be the subject of the appeal. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18(a).

[2] Had the matter proceeded to the merits, the parties would have been Ms. Muench and the Perth Amboy Board of Education. The sole remedies that the Board of Examiners may provide are the issuance of a standard certificate or an opportunity to seek further employment as a provisional teaching staff member. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18. If the candidate does not seek to challenge the "insufficient" recommendation, the candidate may petition the Board of Examiners for approval of an additional opportunity to seek provisional employment. N.J.A.C. 6A:9:17.18 (d).

[3] While styled as a "Petition," and not a "Verified Petition," this document does include a sworn averment by Ms. Muench that the "facts contained therein are true to the best of my knowledge and belief."

In his trial brief, counsel for Ms. Muench, pointing to the devastating impact that a second "insufficient" recommendation causes to his client, raises constitutional arguments relating to questions of notice of the impact of such a recommendation. More specifically, he claims that in a situation where, as here, the effect of the second notice is to "close the door on her teaching career," the State has a constitutional obligation to provide "meaningful" notice and an opportunity to be heard, and failure to do so amounts to a violation of due process. At the hearing, counsel presented witnesses dealing with the notice issue and with aspects of the training that education students such as Ms. Muench receive regarding issues relating to the provisional certificate program. Nothing was presented regarding the alleged mental, emotional or physical results of the alleged domestic violence and the supposed relationship to Ms. Muench's failure to file within the necessary time frame. Following the hearing held on January 11, 2006, the deputy attorney general filed a brief in reply to counsel's trial brief and the record closed on February 22, 2006.

The sixty-day filing requirement is set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.18 (c). The regulation clearly states the significance of the receipt of a second "insufficient" recommendation and the right to appeal that recommendation. It clearly states that such an appeal must be filed with 60 days of the final evaluation. Thus, the existence of public notice of the requirement is not at issue. Ms. Muench's arguments relate instead to the need, if any, for some more direct, personal form of notice being necessary to meet the constitutional standard. The DOE responds that no special form of notice of the consequences of a second insufficiency is constitutionally required and that Ms. Muench is charged with knowledge of the published regulation. It relies on case law which supports that the principle that "ignorance of the law is no excuse.," Escalante v. Twp. Of Cinnaminson, 283 N.J. Super. 244, 250 (App. Div. 1995), Lutz v. Semcer, 126 N.J. Super. 288, 297 (Law Div. 1974)

In support of her position, Ms. Muench relies upon cases that speak of the need for the state to provide notice and an opportunity to be heard before depriving a citizen of property or personal liberty. Mullane v. Central Hanover B. & T. Co., 339 U.S. 306, 313, 70 S.Ct. 652, 94 L.Ed. 865,873 (1950); Rivera v. Board of Review, 127 N.J. 578, 583 (1992), Garzon v. Board of Review, 370 N.J. Super. 1 (2004). While that general principle is well known, the cases cited do not apply to the facts and the legal landscape of this case. Mullane deals with a question involving the provision of a statutorily required notice to present beneficiaries of trusts who were known by name and address. The United States Supreme Court held that these beneficiaries were entitled to receive individual notice rather than to have to rely upon a newspaper notice of a proceeding brought by the trustee of a common trust fund to settle the accounts of the trust. Rivera involved questions concerning the nature of notice required to apprise a migrant worker of a determination by the Division of Employment Security that he had been found to have been ineligible for benefits he had already received. The notice was sent to his off-season home during the farming season and, as a result, he had not filed an appeal prior to the filing deadline. The Court found the notice inadequate. In Garzon, another unemployment case, the Appellate Division found a notice problem arising > because we find that a form letter, forwarded to Garzon when it was determined that her appeal was late, did not adequately advise her that the Board of Review would relax its time limitations if "good cause" for doing so were demonstrated, and the "Timeliness Certification" accompanying that letter did not pose questions clearly designed to elicit the facts necessary to establish good cause. If the need to obtain information sufficient to determine whether good cause has been demonstrated is to be met through the use of a certification, then that certification and the instructions accompanying it should be revised.

> [Garzon, supra, 370 N.J. Super. at 3]

The Court noted that the Division had chosen the use of the form letter and the "Timeliness Certification" as the means to meet the notice deficiencies identified by the Supreme Court in Rivera, supra. It was to the inadequacies of these documents that the Garzon court addressed itself.

None of these cases addresses a situation such as that posed by the present matter. Here, the DOE has published regulations that clearly define the consequences of a second "insufficient" recommendation and the process for appealing such a negative appraisal. It has also clearly identified the time limit for filing an appeal and has made provision to consider "good cause" claims for late filing. Individual teachers who are part of the program can therefore readily determine how and when an appeal must be filed. The cases relied upon by the appellant do not mandate any requirement for individualized notice of either the appeal process or the filing deadline. In these cases either the means of notice required to advise one of pending litigation of which one would not likely have any knowledge (Mullane), or of a determination by a state agency of which one might also have no knowledge (Rivera), or of certain provisions and requirements of which the State determined to give specific notice but did so in an inadequate and insufficient manner, were at issue. Here, unlike those who may not be aware of legal proceedings that might affect them, Ms. Muench certainly knew she had received both "insufficient" recommendations. The regulations made it clear that with two "insufficient" recommendations her ability to continue to seek further employment as a provisional teacher was severely impacted, just the same as if she had received a recommendation of "disapproved." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.7(C). Ms. Muench was the person who had to determine whether she wanted to appeal from the second of these, or petition for another opportunity, and the published regulations were available to provide her with the rules governing any such appeal. She was charged with knowledge of the law, including duly published regulations contained in the New Jersey Administrative Code. She had constructive notice of the regulations. She has had adequate opportunity to establish the existence of a "good cause" reason for her failure to file in a timely fashion. Indeed, at this hearing she appears to have abandoned the grounds for "good cause" that she originally asserted. She cannot now claim that the State has failed to provide adequate notice to her; no other form of notice was constitutionally required. As such, and as she failed to provide "good cause" for failing to meet the 60-day appeal deadline, her appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GLOUCESTER, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal, challenging the respondent Board's determination that she is not a bona fide resident nor is she domiciled within its school district, and therefore her two children are not eligible for a free public education in Gloucester Township schools. Petitioner stated in her appeal, dated December 2005, that she was not at that time living in the district.

The ALJ found that: petitioner was unable to provide any documentation sufficient to support her claim that she is a resident domiciled in the district; petitioner, by her own admission, is seeking housing in the school district, but has not been able to acquire such housing since September 2005 when her two children were enrolled in respondent's schools; petitioner's children are not eligible for a free public education in Gloucester Township schools. The ALJ dismissed the appeal and ordered petitioner to pay respondent tuition in the amount of $4,599.34 per child for the period between September 6, 2005 and February 23, 2006, plus any additional days of attendance beyond February 23, 2006 at the rate of $43.39 per day per child.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has not demonstrated that her children are entitled to a free education in the respondent's school district, and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner directs petitioner to remit tuition to the Board of Education as stated in the Initial Decision; the Board is authorized to disenroll M.S. and M.C. unless it determines to permit their further attendance on a discretionary basis.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GLOUCESTER, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.[1]

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has not demonstrated that her children are entitled to a free education in the respondent's school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is authorized to disenroll M.S. and M.C. unless it determines to permit their further attendance on a discretionary basis, and petitioner is directed to remit tuition to the Board of Education in the amount of $4,599.34 per child

[1] Petitioner submitted a letter indicating that the district had acted to disenroll her children upon receipt of the Initial Decision, and asking that the Commissioner allow them to finish the year in the district on a tuition basis, notwithstanding the district's refusal at that point to do so. The former issue was resolved upon the district administration's recognition that the OAL order was not effective unless and until adopted by the Commissioner, while the latter is a matter of local board discretion which the Commissioner may not disturb in the absence of a showing that the district's action was arbitrary or unlawful – a conclusion which the present factual record does not support.

for the period from September 6, 2005 through February 23, 2006, and $43.39 per day per child for each day of attendance thereafter.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ, t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals from a determination by the Gloucester Township Board of Education (Board) that petitioner is not a bone fide resident nor is she domiciled within in its school district and, therefore, her two children are not eligible to attend its schools for a free public education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

The matter was transmitted from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14A-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. The hearing was held on February 23, 2006, at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey. Counsel for respondent was requested to submit a calculation of tuition alleged to be due, pursuant to Board of Education of the Township of Cranford v. A. McG. And L.M. McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, aff'd 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 140, rev'd and remanded, App. Div., February 10, 1998, A-4742-95T3, slip. op. at pp. 8-10. The hearing record closed upon receipt of the submission on March 3, 2006.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Having carefully reviewed and considered the testimony adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

A pre-hearing telephone conference was conducted with the parties and this tribunal on February 15, 2006, at which, among other things, petitioner agreed to provide the Board's attorney with requested discovery material; i.e., utility statements, lease agreements, driver license, and/or other indicia to demonstrate petitioner's residence/domicile within the Board's school district. Petitioner failed to provide any of the requested discovery to the Board's attorney. Nor did petitioner offer any evidence at the hearing to support her assertion she is a resident within the Board's school district.

The hearing record demonstrates that petitioner enrolled her two sons in the Board's Chews Elementary School in or about September 2005. Based upon an investigation by the Board's central and attendance office, the Board determined that the minor children were not residents of the school district and the children were illegally attending the Board's schools, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. On November 1, 2005, the Board's Superintendent of Schools sent petitioner a letter, by way of certified mail, to advise petitioner of the Board's review of the domicile/residency of petitioner's two children. On or about November 21, 2005, the Board, in executive session, took action to exclude the minor children from its school effective November 22, 2005.

On November 30, 2005, the Superintendent sent petitioner a letter in which, among other things, he advised petitioner of the investigation of the children's residence/domicile and the Board's action to exclude the children from its schools. The Superintendent also advised petitioner of her right to appeal the Board's decision before the Commissioner, and that the children would be permitted to attend the Board's school pending the outcome of her appeal. He further asserted that, in the event no appeal is set forth before the Commissioner, the children would be removed from the Board's school the 21st day after the receipt of the Board's notice and petitioner would be responsible for tuition in the amount of $43.39 per student per day for each day the children attended the Board's school.

Petitioner perfected her Pro Se Residency Appeal before the Commissioner on December 2, 2005 (R-2).

Petitioner testified she provided the school district with a copy of her New Jersey driver license, in support of her assertion she was a resident of the Board's school district. Petitioner's driver license shows her address as: 590 Lower Landing Road, Townhouse 228, Blackwood, New Jersey 08012. Blackwood is within the Board's jurisdiction.

Petitioner then testified that she does not reside at Townhouse 228 but, rather, she resides at Townhouse 255, with her godmother. Petitioner asserted she could not produce a rental lease with her name as a leaseholder because the lease is in the name of her godmother. Nor could petitioner produce any utility bills or other documentation to demonstrate she was, in fact, a resident of Townhouse 255. Petitioner admitted she did not pay any rent to her godmother.

Subsequent to petitioner having providing the Principal of the Chews Elementary School with a copy of her New Jersey driver license, petitioner was in receipt of a letter from the Superintendent of Schools which asserted that the school officials had proof that petitioner lived at 9 E. Hodges Avenue, Lawnside, New Jersey. Lawnside is not within the Board's school district.

Petitioner's submission of the Pro Se Residency Appeal to the Commissioner, dated December 2, 2005, contains a series of statements to which petitioner was required to respond. Item Number 5, on the Appeal asks the following:

> Give a brief explanation of why attendance is being denied, including date of district's decision. Please attach, if possible, a copy of district's written determination. (Additional sheets may be used.)

Petitioner answered Item Number 5 as follows:

> I am not living in the district. I am waiting for housing authority to place me in my home. (R-2)

On December 5, 2005, petitioner addressed a letter to the Board's Superintendent of Schools where she stated, in part, as follows:

> My children and I are residing at 590 Lower Landing Road TH 255, we are staying with my godmother Mary Williams. We are awaiting housing authorities to place us in an home and this should be happening in January of 2006. If you could allow my children to remain in the school until January 31, 2006, I will have an address for you with all the information or have my children transfer from the Chews Elementary School district. (Attached to the transmission from the Commissioner to the OAL)

Petitioner testified that she had not acquired housing through the housing authority as of that date of the herein hearing held on February 23, 2006.

Petitioner testified that her sister lives at the address, which appears on a coupon to enroll her son, M.C., in the at-home book club selection. The coupon shows petitioner's name and the address of 9 Hodge Avenue, Lawnside, New Jersey (R-1). In addition, petitioner's name and address is shown on a cancelled check issued to the Chews Elementary School as "9 E Hodge Lane, Lawnside, NJ 08045" (R-3). A copy of a page from a telephone directory also demonstrates that petitioner's address to be 9 E Hodge Avenue, Lawnside (R-4).

Petitioner executed applications for school free and reduced price meals for her two sons for the year 2005, dated September 7, 2004 (R-5). Thereon, petitioner listed her address as Blackwood, New Jersey. However, the telephone number she provided on the applications was same as her address at Lawnside, New Jersey (R-4). On the application for free and reduced price meals for the 2006 fiscal year, petitioner listed the Blackwood address and a telephone number which is different from the telephone number petitioner listed on the 2005 application (R-6).

Petitioner admitted on the herein hearing record she did not have any documentation to demonstrate she resided within the Board's school district.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, free public education shall be provided to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district. In general, domicile is the place of a person's abode where he or she has the present intent of remaining and to which he or she has present intent to return, Mercadante v. City of Patterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). The courts have recognized that a person may have multiple residences, but only one domicile, State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955); In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977), Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1 (1955). The residence may coincide with domicile, however, it alone does not determine domicile. State v. Benny, supra. Domicile is that place which the person regards as his or her true permanent home. In re Jaffe, supra.

The court stated In the Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362 (Law Div. 1991) that it is:

> . . .clear. . .that a choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile. Id. at 376.

The Unanue court continued to observe that persuasive evidence of actual domicile may include:

> . . .recitals as to domicile in a will, trust, tax return or other formal document, as well as statements to others as to domicile, are evidential of the actual domicile. But they are not all conclusive. They are of value evidentiary to the extent that they are not intended to deceive and other proofs support such domicile. Id. at 377.

CONCLUSIONS

The record in this matter clearly demonstrates that petitioner is not domiciled within the Board's school district. By her own admission, petitioner is seeking housing in the school district, however, she has not been able to acquire such housing since on or about September 2005, when her two sons were enrolled in the Board's schools.

Petitioner was unable to provide any documentation, by way of utility bills, rental receipts, lease agreement or other indicia which would be sufficient to support her claim she is a bone fide resident domiciled in the Board's school district.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has not shown, nor provided any credible evidence, that she is domiciled within the jurisdiction of the Board of Education of the Township of Gloucester. I FURTHER CONCLUDE that petitioner's two children are not eligible for a free public education within the Board's school district under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

CALCULATION OF TUITION DUE

The calculation of tuition due as a consequence of petitioner's two children's attendance in the Board's schools is pursuant to the decision found in Board of Education of the Township of Cranford v. A. McG. and L. McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, aff'd 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 140, rev'd and remanded, App. Div., Feb.10, 1998 A-4742-95T3, slip op. at pp. 8-10. The Board forwarded its calculation to this tribunal on March 3, 2006, which constitutes the close of the herein hearing record.

By way of the Board attorney's Certification, it asserts that the Superintendent of Schools calculated the daily tuition rate for each of petitioner's children to be $43.39 per day of school attendance. Between the period, beginning September 6, 2005 through February 23, 2006 (the date of the herein hearing), it is calculated there is a possible 106 school days for each child. Consequently, the tuition due and owing between September 6, 2005 and February 23, 2006, to be $4,599.34 per child. Additional days of attendance beyond February 23, 2006, accrue at the rate of $43.39 per child.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's Pro Se Residency Appeal is DISMISSED. It is FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner arrange with the Board's representatives to make the necessary tuition payments and that her children are to be removed from the Board's school immediately.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

NANCY SIMONS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a non-tenured guidance counselor – challenged the determination of the respondent to rescind her contract for the 2003-2004 school year, arguing that her employment was secure based on her acceptance of a contract in April 2003. Respondent Board asserted that petitioner's employment was duly terminated in accordance with the sixty-day termination at will clause in her contract.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the facts are essentially undisputed; contracts of non-tenured teachers which contain provisions for termination at will by either party upon a specified number of days notice may be terminated without the need to demonstrate good cause; petitioner has not offered proof that the decision to terminate her was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that: petitioner's termination was valid; petitioner is entitled to sixty days pay for the period from September 1, 2003 to October 30, 2003, minus nine weeks of unemployment compensation, together with interest calculated from September 1, 2003.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that respondent Board properly exercised its contractual right to terminate petitioner's employment subject to a sixty-day notice period, which ran its course prior to the date upon which petitioner would have attained tenure. However, the Commissioner determined that since the notice period began on July 24, 2003 and ended on September 22, 2003, the petitioner is not entitled to salary for 38 of the 60 days, because she was apparently on a ten-month contract. Thus, the petitioner is only entitled to salary for the period from September 1 through 22, 2003, minus unemployment benefits. The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL with the above modification; noted that it was unnecessary to reach to the merits of petitioner's performance; and dismissed the rest of petitioner's claims.

NANCY SIMONS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Initial Decision and record for this matter have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed.

For the reasons expressed in the Initial Decision, the Commissioner finds that respondent properly exercised its right, under its contract with petitioner, to terminate her employment subject to notice of sixty days. The resulting termination date brought petitioner's employment with respondent's district to a close short of the statutory period that would have been necessary for petitioner to earn tenure. The Commissioner accordingly adopts the Initial Decision as modified hereinafter.

If the entire sixty-day notice period had occurred during the school year while teachers were receiving paychecks, petitioner would have been entitled to sixty days of wages, in accordance with the compensation terms of her contract with respondent minus – as mitigation – any unemployment benefits that she received during that time. However, in the within matter, the sixty-day period ran from July 24, 2003 through September 22, 2003. Petitioner is consequently entitled to salary only for September 1 through 22, 2003, minus the unemployment benefits she received for that period of time.[1]

The reasoning in Bitzer v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, 1976 S.L.D. 370 (1976), upon which the ALJ herein relied to come to a different conclusion, was rejected

[1] A copy of this decision will be forwarded to the Department of Labor so as to facilitate prompt reimbursement by respondent of the offset unemployment benefits.

by the Appellate Division in Patricia Fallon v. Board of Education of the Township of Mount Laurel, 1977 S.L.D. 1287 (App. Div.), certif. den. 74 N.J. 275 (1977). The court in Fallon disagreed with and reversed the State Board's decision which had held that a notice of termination given after a new contract was deemed to have been granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and 11 could not begin to run until the commencement date of the new school year. Consequently, in a later case entitled New Jersey Education Association v. Essex County Educational Services Commission, 1984 S.L.D. 439, aff'd. State Board of Education, 1985 S.L.D. 1976, aff'd. App. Div. A-3154-84 (April 30, 1986), the Commissioner relied on Fallon, supra, in holding that the sixty-day notice period began, in that case, to run on July 1, 1980 – the date on which the employees in that case received their notice – as opposed to the date of the first day of their employment responsibilities in September.

The Commissioner also notes that it is unnecessary to address the merits of petitioner's performance and, accordingly, she declines to do so.

Regarding the issue of interest, the Commissioner finds that because petitioner has not satisfied the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(a)(1) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)(1), she is not entitled to prejudgment interest. The rest of petitioner's claims are dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8067-03
AGENCY DKT. NO. 312-8/03

NANCY SIMONS,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY,
Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for petitioner (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

Dennis M. DeSantis, Esq., for respondent (Destribats, Campbell, DeSantis & Magee, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 25, 2004 Decided: March 7, 2006

BEFORE RICHARD F. WELLS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Nancy Simons, a school guidance counselor, asserts that the respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County, improperly rescinded her contract and thereby adversely impacted her tenure acquisition rights. In response, respondent maintains that it acted within its discretion to terminate non-tenured employees and that petitioner's contract contained a sixty-day termination at will clause.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 22, 2003, petitioner filed her Verified Petition. Respondent filed its answer on September 29, 2003. Thereafter, the within matter was transmitted by the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"), where, on October 21, 2003, it was filed as a contested case. The matter was originally scheduled to be heard on July 26, 2004, but was adjourned upon the joint request of counsel. Thereafter, the matter was rescheduled on September 20, 2004, and heard in the OAL offices in Trenton. Subsequently, the parties were afforded the opportunity to submit post-hearing memoranda and upon receipt of same, the record was closed on October 25, 2004. Thereafter, Orders of Extension were obtained to permit the filing of the Initial Decision beyond the statutory time period, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)1.

ISSUES PRESENTED

Whether a non-tenured guidance counselor is terminable at will and, if so, does the provision for a sixty-day notice before termination apply?

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Petitioner, Nancy Simons, was a non-tenured teacher employed as a Guidance Counselor by the respondent.

2. Petitioner's employment began with respondent on November 6, 2000.

3. Petitioner was offered and accepted re-appointment for the 2001-2002, and 2002-2003, school terms.

4. In April of 2003, petitioner was offered and signed an employment contract for the 2003-2004, school term.

5. On July 24, 2003, the Hamilton Township Board of Education "voted to rescind" petitioner's appointment for the 2003-2004, school term.

6. Petitioner was "highly regarded" by her supervisor during the 2000-2001, 2001-2002, and 2002-2003, school years. Petitioner's evaluations during that time reflected that view.

7. A new school principal started in the 2002-2003, school year.

8. There were some personality conflicts between petitioner and the new principal that included some disrespectful language on the part of petitioner.

9. Petitioner's June 20, 2003, Annual Performance Report, prepared by the new principal, was neutral in tone but noted that:

> It is an observation of this administrator that communications and interaction between and among staff and parents could use improvement....[the petitioner] could benefit from constructive criticism if she was more willing to discuss the particulars of a given situation in a collegial manner. It is suggested that...[the petitioner] take more initiative to begin projects that are counselor related and follow through to completion...[the petitioner] was absent for two consecutive weeks at a very busy time of year which impeded upon the continuity of services.

10. The June 20, 2003, Performance Report does not indicate whether the petitioner was recommended for Retention (that portion of the evaluation form was left blank).

11. There was some discussion with petitioner that she and a guidance counselor from another school would switch positions for the upcoming school year.

12. Petitioner received a letter dated July 24, 2003, stating that the respondent Board of Education "voted to rescind" petitioner's appointment for the 2003-2004, school term at a meeting held on July 23, 2004.

13. Petitioner received no notice or warning of the July 23, 2004, meeting and vote.

14. Petitioner requested via letter dated July 28, 2003, the reasons in writing for the respondent's actions.

15. The respondent, via letter dated August 28, 2003, informed petitioner of the reasons for "not being reappointed":

> The decision was based on the recommendations of the building administrator who found that your performance was deficient in regards to your communications and interactions between and among parents and that the positive and clear communication strategies that facilitate this process were often missing. Additionally, you were unwilling to discuss particulars of a given situation in a collegial manner after the receipt of constructive criticism. You did not take the initiative to begin counselor-related projects and follow them through to completion. Additionally, you absence for two consecutive weeks at a very crucial time of year impeded the continuity of services such as assistance with field day, test administration, and group sessions.

16. Had petitioner's contract for the 2003-2004 school term not been rescinded, she would have become eligible for tenure during that term.

17. Petitioner received unemployment insurance benefits of $482 per week as a result of her application for benefits of August 10, 2003.

18. Petitioner was unemployed from August 2003 through December 2003.

19. Petitioner's written contract contained a termination clause with a sixty-day notice provision.

20. Respondent's written policy on "Employee Contracts" contained a sixty-day notice provision for unilateral terminations.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-10 requires that non-tenured teachers be notified by May 15th if they will not be reemployed for the upcoming academic year;

> On or before May 15 in each year, each non-tenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either:
> a. A written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding year providing at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or a written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-10.]

The burden is then on the teacher to accept the employment offer in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-12; "If the teaching staff member desires to accept such employment he shall notify the board of education of such acceptance, in writing, on or before June 1 in which event such employment shall continue as provided herein." The primary purpose of the statutory scheme is to provide teachers with timely notice that they will not be employed by a board of education for the upcoming school year so that they may seek employment elsewhere. Armstrong v. East Brunswick Twp. Board of Education, 1975 S.L.D. 112, 115-116, modified, St. Bd., 1975 S.L.D. 117, aff'd, App. Div., 1976 S.L.D. 1104.

The case before this tribunal is different than the situation where a non-tenured teacher is not offered a renewed contract for employment. In that situation, the teacher is entitled to two separate and distinct procedural safeguards. The first, known as a Rice hearing, occurs when a board of education intends to discuss at a meeting of the board, the non-renewal of specific employees for performance or other reasons. Skidmore v. Board of Education of the Twp. of Washington, Mercer County, EDU 6588-03, Initial Decision, (October 20, 2004), rejected, Comm'r. (December 1, 2004) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Rice, requires that the employee receive notice of the meeting so that they may be present. Rice v. Union Co. Regional High School Board of Education, 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977). The second procedural safeguard is a Donaldson hearing, which must be requested by the non-renewed teacher. Skidmore, supra. Under Donaldson, a non-tenured teacher may request and receive a written statement of the reasons for her non-renewal. Ibid.

The operative facts of the case before this tribunal are essentially undisputed. The petitioner was offered employment for the 2003-2004 school year on April 22, 2003, prior to the statutory May 15th date. The petitioner accepted the offer of employment the following day, April 23, 2003. The petitioner argues that her employment was secure for the 2003-2004 school term since a contract had been offered and accepted. Petitioner, therefore, asserts that the respondent could not terminate her employment absent some cause for termination. Consequently, the question before this tribunal is whether the subsequent termination of the petitioner is valid and, what remedies, if any, petitioner is entitled to.

A school board has "virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or reviewing the contracts of non-tenured teachers." Dore v. Board of Education of the Township of Bedminster, Somerset County, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453 (App. Div. 1982). This power to terminate non-tenured teachers is so broad that "absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teachers, local boards of education have almost a complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board. Id. at 456. Furthermore, employment contracts of non-tenured public school teachers which contain provisions for termination by either party upon a specified number of days notice may be terminated in accordance with the terms of the contract without the need to demonstrate good cause. Mozier v. Board of Education of Cherry Hill Twp., Camden County, 450 F. Supp. 742, 748 (D.N.J. 1977). The board's decision will be vacated only when it is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Here, the petitioner was offered and accepted a contract for the new school term. Thus, the provisions of that contract apply. Respondent offered evidence that all of the contracts of its employees contain a provision that provides that the contract may be terminated upon sixty-days notice from either party. Indeed, the petitioner signed such a contract in October 2000, when she was initially hired. Thus, absent proof by the petitioner that the decision to terminate her was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, I FIND petitioner is only entitled to sixty days notice of her termination.[1]

Accordingly, because the petitioner has not offered evidence that her termination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, I CONCLUDE her termination is valid. Indeed, the respondent offered testimony that the petitioner was insubordinate to her supervisor, the school principal.[2] Petitioner's annual evaluation was neutral at best, reflecting the school principal's observation of the petitioner's work product. Respondent offered testimony by the school principal that the petitioner had problems communicating with at least three other parents. Further, the school principal testified that the petitioner had attendance problems. Given the broad discretion that school boards have regarding termination of non-tenured staff members, any of these factors preclude a finding that the school board's decision was arbitrary and capricious.

Because petitioner's termination was valid, petitioner is only entitled to the terms of the contract – namely, the sixty-day notice provision. Bitzer v. Board of Education of the Town of Boon, Morris County, 76 S.L.D. 370 (1976) held that a notice provision clause requires that the terminated employee receive salary for the specified number of days beginning September 1 on the next school year, minus mitigation of any other salary earned. As a result, I FIND petitioner is entitled to sixty days pay from

[1] The petitioner did request a written statement regarding the reasons for her termination. As set forth in the above Findings of Fact, I am satisfied respondent provided petitioner with the letter dated August 28, 2003. (R-6).

September 1, 2003, to October 30, 2003.[3] Therefore, I CONCLUDE the petitioner is entitled to sixty days pay minus nine weeks of unemployment compensation (as mitigation, i.e., $482 x 9), together with interest at the legal rate, calculated from September 1, 2003. See R. 4:42-11.

In conclusion, because school boards have virtually unlimited discretion to terminate non-tenured employees, I FIND that the termination of the petitioner was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Although there is no need for the respondent to show good cause when terminating employees, the testimony offered by the school principal is sufficient to show that the school board's action had a rational basis. Since the terms of the employment contract govern, the sixty-day notice provision applies from September 1, 2003. Accordingly, I FIND petitioner entitled to sixty days pay, minus any unemployment compensation as mitigation, plus interest on the net amount owed.

DISPOSITION

For the reasons set forth hereinabove, I FIND that petitioner is not entitled to reinstatement. Rather, I FIND that respondent appropriately terminated petitioner in accordance with the applicable contract terms. Accordingly, I FIND petitioner is entitled to sixty days pay at the appropriate rate for the school year of 2003-2004, minus any unemployment compensation petitioner received, plus interest on the net amount owed by respondent to petitioner at the legal rate under the applicable court rule cited above.

[2] In September of 2002, the school principal testified that she received a formal complaint letter from a parent regarding the petitioner. The school principal testified convincingly that during the resolution and heated discussion of the complaint with the parent and the principal, the petitioner used inappropriate expletives.

[3] Petitioner argued that she would have been entitled to tenure either in November 2003 or January 2004, depending on the date used for petitioner's "start" date (petitioner commenced employment with respondent on November 6, 2000, as a long term substitute and was appointed to a permanent position on January 29, 2001). Since the sixty-day notice period does not overlap with either date, I FIND the question of tenure accrual need not be further addressed.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this emergent matter – which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 4, 2006, along with the recommended order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – have been reviewed.

Upon her independent and careful review of the record, the Commissioner determines to adopt the ALJ's recommended order granting emergent relief in this matter as she concurs, for the reasons articulated in his decision, that petitioners have satisfied the requisite standards for the granting of such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

Accordingly, the within application for emergent relief is hereby granted. This matter is being returned to the OAL for such further proceedings as may be necessary to bring it to conclusion.[1]

[1] It is noted that on Page 7 of the ALJ's Order he mistakenly reports that the only matter referred to the OAL by the agency was the instant emergent application. The transmittal additionally included a Petition of Appeal and the transmittal form specifically described the Nature of the Case thusly: "Petitioner, early childhood education provider, challenges internal audit findings for 2003-04 and 2004-05 and seeks to enjoin respondents from implementing repayment or reduction schedule pending underlying determination claiming that absent such

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

In this matter petitioner requested an emergency hearing to enjoin respondents from reducing monthly monies allegedly due it pursuant to a contract between petitioner and respondent State-Operated School District of City of Paterson, Passaic County (the "District). On March 29, 2006, the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes referred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for an emergency hearing. On April 4, 2006 the undersigned heard the emergency aspect of the case. At oral argument that day, counsel for petitioner represented that that part of the dispute solely with regard to the application for emergency relief involving the Department of Education had been resolved but requested that the application for emergency relief against the District proceed.

EMERGENCY HEARING RESULTS

Catholic Family and Community Services (CFCS) is a not-for-profit corporation which operates and administers a wide variety of social service programs within the boundaries of the Diocese of Paterson including the operation of Friendship Corner Schools, which are early childhood education programs that provide educational services to 360 children enrolled in the Paterson Public Schools (the "District") pursuant to Abbott v. Burke, 153 N.J. 480 (1998) Abbott v. Burke, 163 N.J. 95 (2000).

As an Abbott District obligated to provide an early education program, the District has entered into a series of successive contracts with the Friendship Corner Schools of CFCS to provide those services for the fiscal years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06.

In the fall of 2005 the District's Internal Audit Unit completed an audit of Friendship Corner Schools for July 1, 2003-June 30, 2004 initially concluding that $226,992.83 was owed upon finding that they did not follow the approved Abbott budget for certain personnel costs. CFCS had previously returned $41,472 from a total amount of $268,464.83 leaving a balance of $226,992.83 which the District recouped by deducting from purchase orders owed to CFCS under the current contract for December 2005, January 2006 and February 2006. CFCS subsequently asked, and the District agreed, that $88,985.49 of the recouped amount regarding administrative costs incurred during the 2003-04 school year be reinstated. According to CFCS, that money has not yet been returned but accepts the District's representation that it will be returned.

In November 2005, the District informed CFCS, without providing an audit report or any other specifications, that, upon review of the Friendship Corner Schools' financial reports for the 2004-05 school year, it found that CFCS owed the District additional monies which, when adjusted, totaled $303,392. The District initially announced a "repayment/reduction schedule from monies owed to CFCS under the 2005-06 contract from February to May 2006. The repayment schedule was then revised so that the recoupment of the 2004-2005 money would extend from March 2006 through December 2006.

The 2003-04 and 2004-05 contracts between CFCS and the District provided for a mechanism to recoup any unexpended or misspent funds occurring under those contracts. They provided as follows:

> The Provider agrees to submit to the District a quarterly expenditure report of actual, approvable, reasonable and customary expenditures ... and understands that the District will recoup any unexpended or misspent funds during and at the end of the school year based on the quarterly expenditure reports, enrollment records and monthly payments made by the District.
> ...Based on its review of the quarterly expenditure report, the District shall make prorated adjustments to subsequent monthly payments through the end of the contract.

Significantly, the 2005-06 contract expanded on the adjustment procedure as follows:

> Based on its review of the quarterly expenditure reports, the District shall make prorated adjustments to subsequent monthly payments. When necessary, based on quarterly expenditure reports, the District may recoup funds after the contract period has ended.

Whereas the earlier contracts provided for recoupment from future payments only in subsequent monthly payments during the life of the contract, the current contract provides for recoupment during the rest of the contract period as well as after the contract period has ended.

The problem appears to lie in the attempt of the District to recoup monies, allegedly misspent in 2003-04 and 2004-05, not through the mechanism in place during the life of those contracts, but rather through an expanded mechanism first put into place in the current contract.

CFCS has filed for emergency relief before the Commissioner of Education claiming that the District's recoupment action is in violation of state law and its contract with CFCS and that it should be restrained from collecting allegedly misspent monies under the 2003-04 and 2004-05 contracts through reductions in monies due to CFCS under its 2005-06 contract.

Previously, CFCS filed an Order to Show Cause with Temporary Restraints in the Superior Court of New Jersey, where, on February 27, 2006, the Honorable Joseph J. Riva issued Temporary Restraints ordering that the District shall not implement a repayment or reduction schedule as to the 2004-2005 fiscal year regarding purchase orders owed to CFCS in the 2005-06 fiscal year pending disposition of the instant dispute. He further ordered that the District shall not implement a repayment or reduction schedule regarding future services rendered by plaintiffs pending disposition of the instant dispute. He further ordered that the District be required to provide immediately for the return of $88, 858 to CFCS which it admits is due and owing pending appeal in its letter of January 31, 2006. He further ordered that the Department of Education be dismissed without prejudice. He finally ordered that the temporary restraints which are granted to maintain the status quo until the Commissioner of Education has an opportunity to review and decide the application for restraints submitted by CFCS on February 22, 2006 and which shall expire upon the issuance of a final determination by the Commissioner on the application for temporary restraints, are not intended to supersede the Commissioner's jurisdiction and determination regarding the ultimate issues raised.

For a request for interim relief or stay, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 requires as follows:

(b) A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

I have heard the arguments of all parties and read their submissions.

I FIND that CFCS will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted. The District does not contest through any certifications of its own the certified claim that Friendship Corner Schools are financially destitute with no surplus or reserves for contingencies, and are being subsidized by CFCS, and that CFCS does not have the funds to continue this subsidy. It appears that the implementation of the repayment/reduction plan will force CFCS to close the Friendship Corner Schools notwithstanding an acknowledgment that the parent organization of Catholic Charities may in the future be able satisfy past obligations. Although matters involving money damages often do not justify a finding of irreparable harm, because if a party ultimately prevails it can recover the monies taken, here the recovery of the money at a later time may be a futile exercise if the enterprise has collapsed in the interim for lack of sufficient operating funds. The unrebutted certification of CFCS discloses that it has become delinquent in paying health benefits premiums for lack of cash flow and is at risk of losing this coverage. It has also implemented a hiring freeze and has delayed supply purchases. Of equal concern is that, if the schools shut down because of insufficient operating funds, the 360 District students will be deprived of the educational services mandated by the Abbott decisions.

I additionally FIND that the reasonable likelihood of success on the merits falls in favor of CFCS on the basis of simple contract law and contract interpretation. This application is not about whether CFCS indeed owes monies under two expired contracts. At issue is whether the current contract permits the mechanism of recoupment from promised monies under the current contract, not for misspent funds under the current contract, but for allegedly misspent funds under prior contracts. It does not appear to do so, although, unlike its predecessors, it allows the District to recoup funds misspent in 2005-06 after this contract period. The prior contracts do not provide for a recoupment from future payments under future contracts after the prior contract has expired. The District aptly points out that providers of Abbott preschool programs agree to spend the funds approved in the annual budget only as specified. If there is a breach of that commitment, the District is free to engage in traditional contractual remedies under those contracts. My finding on likelihood of success is limited to the method of recoupment and not the right of recoupment

Although N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(l) applies to tuition payments to private schools for the disabled and not private preschools, it does suggest the notion of collecting misspent money only after due process is provided. I am troubled that the process leading to the assessment for 2004-05 appeared to me less thorough and less interactive than the process leading to the assessment for 2003-04. The due process concern is not dispelled by a claim that CFCS should have been policing itself and returning money all along.

It is correct that N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.3 requires the District to monitor the expenditures of each contracted child care center provider at least quarterly and shall recoup any unexpended funds at the end of the school year. That provision is consistent with the contracts in effect in 2003-04 and 2004-05. It does not give any greater authority to the District to collect those monies by recoupment from a different contract.

I additionally FIND that the legal right underlying the claim of CFCS is settled under traditional principles of contract law that one cannot breach a contract by failing to make contractually obligated payments (in this case agreed upon monthly purchase orders under the 2005-06 contract) where that contract contains no language to allow a party to recoup monies from prior fiscal years under prior contracts.

Finally, I FIND that the balance of the equities weigh in favor of CFCS in view of the unrebutted financial picture of CFCS. If a financially crippled organization must cease to provide services, unless the District has an immediate alternate method to provide a preschool program to 360 children, the children will be deprived of mandated services and the District itself will be in breach of its Abbott obligations. On the other hand, the District will always be able to pursue traditional collection remedies if, indeed, CFCS breached its obligations under prior contracts.

I CONCLUDE that CFCS has met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and is entitled to certain emergency relief.

It appears that the only matter referred to the OAL by the Department of Education relates to the application for emergency relief. It further appears, from the presentations of the parties, that the issues of whether monies are actually owed to the District under the 2003-04 and 2004-05 contracts and, if so, in what amounts are currently the subject of internal appeal processes. Accordingly, OAL will not retain jurisdiction over any other aspects of this matter, subject to any direction to the contrary by the Department of Education.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the District shall not implement a repayment or reduction schedule as to the 2004-05 fiscal year by reducing agreed upon monthly purchase orders to CFCS under the 2005-06 fiscal year contract pending disposition of the pending dispute and that CFCS is not required to repay the District any monies from the 2004-2005 fiscal year pending disposition of the instant Appeal.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Department of Education, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In the first of these two consolidated matters, the petitioning Board brought tenure charges of conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured librarian/media specialist – for use of the District's Newcomb Middle School circulation desk computer to access and view pornographic materials on the internet during school hours, and to send e-mail messages containing inappropriate, obscene, lewd or vulgar language to another district employee. In the second matter, Ms. Donahue appealed the District's determination to withhold her 2003-2004 salary increments for the same reasons set forth in the first matter. Ms. Donahue contends that her intent when accessing improper internet material was to protect children from exposure to inappropriate websites by identifying flaws in the District's content filtering software.

The ALJ identified the issue in this case to be whether respondent viewed inappropriate or pornographic websites for personal gratification or in order to expose flaws in the District's filtering software and – if the latter – whether she had the right to engage in such conduct; therefore, the case hinged largely on respondent's credibility. The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent's testimony lacked credibility; respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a public school teacher by using the District's computers to access and view internet pornography during school hours; and respondent's unbecoming conduct was sufficiently flagrant to justify her dismissal. The ALJ concluded that petitioning Board met its burden of proving the tenure charges against respondent, and that her dismissal is warranted.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the District has proven its charges against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is dismissed from her tenured position as of the date of this decision, and the matter is referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate as that body deems appropriate.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEMBERTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,[1]	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions on behalf of Ms. Donahue and the Board's reply thereto, filed in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching her determination herein.

Respondent's exceptions charge that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision failed to recognize and resolve the crux of respondent's defense in this case, i.e., her motive in accessing or attempting to access inappropriate, sexually explicit or pornographic internet cites. Respondent makes extensive citation to her hearing testimony and that of her

[1] It is noted that with respect to the increment withholding portion of this consolidated case: on the first day of hearing the Administrative Law Judge determined, without objection of the parties, that – because the charges underlying both the tenure case and the increment withholding were identical – resolution of the tenure matter, either way, would necessarily render the increment withholding moot. (Transcript December 1, 2004, pp. 4-7) Additionally, the parties' subsequent submissions made no reference to the increment withholding.

expert which, she avers, conclusively establishes that her motive was concern for the protection and safety of her students not satisfaction of her own personal prurient interests. In finding to the contrary, respondent maintains the ALJ failed to give fair consideration to all of the evidence in support of her position and, rather, focused only on that which supported her removal from her position. (Respondent's Exceptions dated March 21, 2006)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, which included transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL[2], the Commissioner – finding respondent's exceptions wholly without merit – concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the District has proven its charges against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence and that termination from her employment is warranted.

In so determining, the Commissioner recognizes – as did the ALJ – that the central issue in this case:

> is not whether Ms. Donahue attempted to access inappropriate or pornographic websites using the Newcomb Middle School circulation desk computer. Rather, the issue is whether she did so for personal gratification or in order to expose flaws in the District's internet content filter software and, if the latter, whether she had the right to engage in such conduct. Therefore, much of this case hinges on Ms. Donahue's credibility.
> (Initial Decision at 26)

For the reasons meticulously detailed on pages 26-29 of his decision, the ALJ concluded that Ms. Donahue's "testimony raises so many more questions than it provides answers that it simply does not 'hang together'." (quote at 26) In this regard, the Commissioner is mindful that the ALJ's credibility determinations are entitled to deference. "The reason for this rule is that the administrative law judge, as a finder of fact, has the greatest opportunity to observe the demeanor of the involved witnesses and, consequently, is better qualified to judge their credibility." In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 *N.J. Indeed, with the 2001 amendment to the Administrative Procedure Act (P.L. 2001, c. 5, §4), the Commissioner "may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record." (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)) The Commissioner's considered review of the entire record before her provides no basis whatsoever for alteration of the ALJ's determinations.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly stated therein. It is hereby directed that Darlene Donahue be dismissed from her tenured position in the School District of Pemberton Township as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's certificates.

Record Closed: January 23, 2006 Decided: March 10, 2006

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ:

The first of these two consolidated matters, OAL Docket No. EDU 4379-03, involves tenure charges brought by petitioner, the Pemberton Township School District Board of Education, against respondent, Darlene Donahue, for conduct unbecoming a public school teacher. The Board has alleged that Ms. Donahue used the district's computers to access and view pornographic materials on the internet during school hours and send several e-mail messages containing inappropriate, obscene, lewd, or vulgar language to another district employee. The second matter, OAL Docket No. EDU 6586-03, concerns Ms. Donahue's appeal from the District's determination to withhold her 2003-04 salary and adjustment increments for the same reasons as set forth in the in the first matter.

On May 29, 2003, the Board adopted a resolution finding that probable cause existed to credit the evidence supporting the tenure charges, that the charges were sufficient to warrant Ms. Donahue's dismissal from her tenured position, and that her 2003-04 salary should be withheld. The tenure charges were served under cover letter dated June 2, 2003, and she in turn filed her answer on June 11, 2003. Ms. Donahue subsequently filed the aforementioned Petition of Appeal on June 19, 2003 demanding, inter alia, restoration of her salary adjustment and increment for the 2003-04 school year as well as reimbursement of a sum of money equal to her loss of salary.

The matters were heard as scheduled on December 1 and 2, 2004; May 16 and 19, 2005; and September 27, 2005 at the Office of Administrative Law, 9 Quakerbridge Plaza, Mercerville, New Jersey. The parties requested the opportunity to submit post-hearing briefs and the record was closed upon receipt of the final brief on January 23, 2006.

Ms. Donahue is a 1975 graduate of Trenton State College and currently holds certificates in early childhood learning, elementary school education, and library science. She was employed by the Pemberton Township School District in August 1989 as the librarian at the Fort Dix Elementary School and was transferred one year later to serve in the same capacity at the Newcomb Middle School. She remained at Newcomb as a librarian/media specialist for approximately thirteen years, until the tenure charges which gave rise to the present proceedings were filed.

As the librarian, Ms. Donahue was initially responsible for selecting, cataloguing, and screening books and videos to ensure they were age and grade appropriate; teaching students research skills; and generally assisting students and teachers with various research projects. She also became responsible for teaching students internet research skills when the District connected to the internet in 1998.

At that time the District adopted Policy No. 2361 entitled "ACCEPTABLE USE OF COMPUTER INTERNET/COMPUTERS AND RESOURCES." Among other things, Section L.8. of the policy expressly prohibits students and teachers from accessing obscene or pornographic materials as follows:

> a. Users will not use the District system to access material that is profane or obscene (pornography) that advocates illegal acts, or that advocates violence or discrimination towards other people (hate literature). For students, a special exception may be made for hate literature if the purpose of such access is to conduct research and access is approved by both the teacher and the parent. District employees may access the above material only in the context of legitimate research.
> b. If a user inadvertently accesses such information, they should immediately disclose the inadvertent access in a manner specified by their school. This will protect users against an allegation that they have intentionally violated the Acceptable Use Policy.
> [Policy No. 2361 §L.8., Exhibit P-10]

Additionally, Section L.4. restricts employees' use of the District's e-mail in the following ways:

> a. Restrictions against Inappropriate Language apply to public messages, private messages, and material posted on Web pages.
> b. Users will not use obscene, profane, lewd, vulgar, rude, inflammatory, threatening, or disrespectful language.
>
> [Policy No. 2361 §L.4., Exhibit P-10]

Daniel Bevilacqua, the District's Director of Personnel, described Policy No. 2361 as > a comprehensive document that outlines an agreement providing a privilege to employees for the use of Internet access and E-mail, and calls it out as a privilege, in that it details the do's and don'ts, if you will, and the appropriate protocols and procedures to be followed in the event of a determination of inappropriateness.

> [T1 55:5-12[1]]

Mr. Bevilacqua testified that the "protocols and procedures" require teachers who have inadvertently accessed inappropriate websites to immediately notify the Director of Public Information, Kathy Bernacki, "and indicate that this might be a site that needs to be added" to the internet filter. Neither the policy nor the procedures authorize teachers such as Ms. Donahue to monitor or test the effectiveness of the District's internet filtering system on their own.

In accordance with established procedures, on Friday, October 11, 2002, Linda Guidone, a high school English teacher, provided Ms. Bernacki with a printout of an inappropriate website that she had inadvertently accessed using the District's proxy server. Later that afternoon, Ms. Bernacki called the District's Network Engineer, Lori McMillan, and asked her to add that website to the internet filter's list of blocked sites.

Testifying on behalf of the District, Ms. McMillan stated that she logged on to the District's server from home that evening and added the inappropriate website to the filter. She then stopped and restarted the server to update the filter and perform a test to ensure that it was operating properly. She tested the filter by scanning the user activity logs for inappropriate websites that should have been blocked and noticed that there had been a substantial amount of inappropriate activity coming from one particular IP address, that of the Newcomb Middle School Circulation Desk computer.

Ms. McMillan became quite upset when she saw the number and names of these inappropriate sites and knew she had to inform Ms. Bernacki about her discovery. Since she made this discovery on a Friday evening and the schools were closed for [1] T1 refers to the transcript of the hearing conducted on December 1, 2004.

Columbus Day on Monday, October 14, she was unable to brief Ms. Bernacki until Tuesday, October 15, at 7:00 a.m. At that time she accompanied Ms. Bernacki to the Newcomb School, where they booted up the circulation desk computer.

When they looked at the computer's internet history files, Ms. Bernacki and Ms. McMillan noticed that many sites of a "questionable nature" had been visited. Much the same was true of the "Favorites" folder in Internet Explorer, in which they noticed that a number of "very questionable things" had been saved or bookmarked for future access. At that point they unplugged the computer, notified the school office that they were removing it, and brought it with them to Ms. McMillan's office in Computer Services, which is located in Pemberton High School.

Upon returning to her office, Ms. McMillan opened the Surf Watch filtering program and Super Scout reporting software installed on the proxy server. Using the Super Scout software, Ms. McMillan ran off a custom "User Activity Detail" report[2] for the circulation desk computer for a seven day period including October 9, 10 and 11, 2002 (Exhibit P-1). When asked if she had gone back any further in time, Ms. McMillan testified that she could not because the logs "rotated" or wrote over the data they amassed every seven days.

After reviewing this report Ms. McMillan accessed approximately fifty-two of the questionable websites and concluded that the circulation desk computer had been used to access inappropriate and pornographic websites including such words and phrases as "sexy blondes," "hardcore," "porno," "pussy," "sex positions," "bound brunettes," "freakish cocks," and other graphic or descriptive terms. She then prepared a second report entitled "User Activity," Exhibit P-2, which listed these websites in alphabetical order, indicated whether access had been allowed or blocked, and provided the date and time that access had been attempted.

Next, Ms. McMillan re-opened the computer's internet history file, which is automatically generated and records each website a user visits in chronological order.

[2] More specifically, Ms. McMillan testified that she exported the Super Scout data into a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet and then printed it out.

After reviewing its contents, she printed out six pages of screenshots[3] displaying an alphabetical list of the websites that had been visited up to the date the computer had been removed from the Newcomb Middle School library.[4] In addition to academic sites such as americanfolklore.net and ghosts.sbs.edu, as well as commercial sites such as spencergifts.com, oldnavy.com, and astrology.yahoo.com,[5] the history folder, Exhibit P-3, included the following inappropriate websites:

- 101sexualhealth.com

[3] Ms. McMillan stated that she clicked on the Print Screen button, copied and pasted the image into Microsoft Word, and then printed it out.

[4] Ms. McMillan explained that much like the User Activity logs, these files are automatically cleared every twenty days, although a user may go into Internet Explorer and clear the files manually.

[5] Policy No. 2361 §A3 also provides that "Users may not use the District system for commercial purposes, defined as offering or providing goods or services or purchasing goods or services for personal use." Although she ordered a natal chart from AstroStore, a site listed in the Yahoo! Astrology directory, Exhibit P-13, there is nothing in the record indicating that Ms. Donahue paid for the chart or otherwise purchased any goods or services from websites such as these using the circulation desk computer.

- orgasmic-tendencies.net
- sexpositions.privat.ms
- sex-positions.surfhere.net
- xratedpornos.com

A comparison of the inappropriate sites listed in the "User Activity Detail" report and those displayed in the history file disclosed that many of them "matched up."

Ms. McMillan then reopened the "Favorites" folder in Internet Explorer and printed a screenshot that included the objectionable websites the user had intentionally added to or saved in the folder for faster access at another time. As was the case with the history file, in addition to academic sites such as South Jersey Ghost Research and Unsolved Mysteries, and commercial directories such as Yahoo! Business and Economy Shopping and Services, the Favorites folder, Exhibit P-4, included the following inappropriate websites and directories:

- Yahoo! Society and Culture – Sexuality
- Yahoo! Society and Culture – Sexuality Activities
- Men's Health Men's Guide to Fitness, Health, Sex...
- Sex Positions 101 – Because Missionary Style is Bor...
- Blonde Babes, Hot Blondes, Naked Blondes, Nud...
- Blondes in Bikinis.com
- Free Hot Nude Blonde Bikini Women Babes Pussy...

For the most part, these sites correlated to others displayed in the previous exhibits.

Ms. McMillan also opened the "Cookies"[6] folder generated from the computer's internal "C" or Hard Drive and printed a screenshot of the contents.[7] The folder, Exhibit P-5, indicated that the user, "ddonahue," had visited, among others, sites with names such as "freakishcocks," "petitebeaver," and "sluttoons." Ms. McMillan stated that these sites not only correlated to others displayed in the previous exhibits in name, but were also "within a few moments" of the access times for the sites listed in those exhibits.

Finally, Ms. McMillan checked the e-mail on the computer's hard drive and found three "questionable" messages that Ms. Donahue had sent to Edward Komosinski, a physical education teacher employed by the District. The three e-mails, listed in chronological order, contained the following messages:

- Monday, June 17, 2002, 2:54 p.m. – ""I'll meet you for some ball!!!!!!! Hm." (Exhibit P-6).

- Tuesday, June 18, 2002, 7:39 a.m. – "I hope you like the card I sent you. Little nasty, so you might want to turn the screen and turn down volume if you have sound on your comp. I also sent a nasty message too. Your messages aren't getting to my home comp. Maybe K isn't getting his either. It was great seeing you yesterday!!!! I have a note and a big blanket for you. I'll meet you at the ballfield for a little 'ball playing'!!!??? Have a great day!!! Miss you.... XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXOOOOOOOOOOOO" (Exhibit P-7).

- Tuesday, June 18, 2002, 10:24 a.m. – "Hi!!!!! I'm sooooo glad the messages are getting through. Sounds great for this afternoon. I love the Ahhhhhhhh badge!!!! You got my motor running!!! Vrooom Vrooom Can't wait to help them with the Ahhhhhhhh badge. Miss you!!!! I can't wait to show you how much. XXXXXXXXXXXXXOOOOOOOOOOOO" (Exhibit P-8).

Upon completing her examination of the circulation desk computer, Ms. McMillan made an identical copy of the hard drive and placed it in the school's safe "just in case anything happened." As it happens, something did happen and the internet history, which had been programmed to recycle every twenty days, was wiped clean when the computer was subsequently booted up for Ms. Donahue's expert. At that time Ms. McMillan made a copy of the "ghost" drive for the expert's use.

Also testifying on behalf of the District was Ms. Bernacki, who stated that the District had purchased the Surf Watch internet filter on the recommendations of the venders it had been working with to build and implement its wide area network. In 1998, Surf Watch was "an industry leader ... one of the 2 or 3 big names in Internet filtering at that point." T4 33:23-25.[8] In or about 2002, Surf Watch was bought out by Cyber Patrol, which itself was "voted the editor's choice by Network Magazine for the most effective Internet filter." T4 34:19-25.

Cyber Patrol met the District's needs in that it not only updated the filter on a nightly basis, but also provided occasional new product releases. Unfortunately, Cyber Patrol's upgrades proved to be "more buggy" than those provided by Surf Watch before the buy-out. Among other things, the upgrades occasionally caused the proxy server to crash, although these problems diminished once the District switched to N2H2 in January 2003. In any event, Ms. Bernacki testified that "over the course of the last 5 or 6 years," she had typically received "about 1 call a month, 1 to 2 calls a month" from teachers reporting inadvertent access to an inappropriate website, regardless of the filter system in place. T4 63:12-14.

To the best of her recollection, none of those calls had been from Ms. Donahue. Nor could she recall having ever received any calls or voice mail from Ms. Donahue complaining about the effectiveness of the internet filter, much less advising her that she was conducting an investigation to prove that the internet filter was deficient. Had Ms. Donahue left her voice mail, she would have recorded the date, time, and subject of the call in a black, hard-bound log book she kept to ensure she addressed problems as they arose. And a review of the log book had failed to disclose any entries concerning calls Ms. Donahue had made complaining about the accessibility of inappropriate websites. In fact, the log book had contained but one entry from Ms. Donahue and it had concerned a broken fax machine.

Recalling the events of October 15, 2002, Ms. Bernacki corroborated Ms. McMillan's testimony and confirmed that she had assisted Ms. McMillan in the preparation of the User Activity reports. She'd also had Ms. McMillan place the raw data into a separate file so that she could create a report disclosing whether access to a particular website had been blocked or permitted and, if permitted, the length of time the user had spent viewing the site. The result was a report entitled "Circulation Station

User Activity Extract from Super Scout Sorted by Date and Time," Exhibit P-9, which gave rise to a Stipulation read into the record as follows:

> P-9, Exhibit E to the tenure charges. We are stipulating that with the exception of the 4 sites mentioned,[9] all of these sites contain or contained ... in 10/02 sexually explicit material, and that is all we are stipulating with the exception that yellow highlighting means the site was "allowed," [and] gray shading is that the site was "blocked." The stipulation does not suggest, imply, or illustrate anything other than that, and that's it.

According to Ms. Bernacki, the report disclosed that Ms. Donahue had typically spent a very short amount of time, "a minute or less," at each inappropriate website, although there had been exceptions. For example, the report disclosed that Ms. Donahue had accessed auroralovenest.hypermart.net on October 10, 2002 at 7:47:44 a.m., and did not access the next website, www.sn.gr, until 7:57:30 a.m., approximately ten minutes later. Similarly, she had accessed www.sexpositions.privat.ms on October 11, 2002 at 12:28:33 p.m., and did not access www.allhosting-x.com until 12:39:55 p.m., approximately eleven minutes later. Other exceptions included the following websites:

- www.celebrateintimacy.com – accessed October 11, 2002 at 11:56:25 a.m.; the next site, www.stangl-taller.at, accessed at 12:00:21 p.m. Total elapsed time: approximately four minutes.
- a49d7e39ee9b7393a946d6d85bf856f7.playgal – accessed October 11, 2002 at 12:21:26 p.m.; next site, www.excalamation-about-sexual-intercourse-positions.com, accessed at 12:27:17. Total elapsed time: approximately six minutes.
- 3X-sexy-blonde-hardcore-porno – accessed October 11, 2002 at 1:00:42 p.m.; attempted access to nudeblondewomen.com at 1:02:33 p.m. Total elapsed time: approximately three minutes.

[9] Greenfield.fortunecity.com; pquinn.com; menshealth.com; and positive.org.

- free-hot-nude-beautiful-teen-brunette-pussy-girls-pics.com – accessed October 11, 2002 at 1:10:58 p.m.; attempted access to sexhunt.com at 1:13:39 p.m. Total elapsed time: approximately three minutes.
- www.hot-free-nude-blonde-woman-bikini-babes-pussy-girls-pics.com – accessed October 11, 2002 at 1:13:56 p.m.; attempted access to www.yahooligans.com, at 1:44:43 p.m. Total elapsed time: approximately thirty-one minutes.

All told, Ms. Donahue accessed or attempted to access approximately 160 inappropriate websites with sexually explicit material over the three day period of October 9 – 11, 2002.

Ms. Benacki also compared the entries in Exhibit P-9 to the Newcomb School Sign-In Sheets for October 7 – 11, 2002, Exhibit P-14, to see if Ms. Donahue had in fact been on the premises when the internet activity in question had taken place. The comparison disclosed that the circulation desk computer had been used on October 8, 2002, to access six different websites before Ms. Donahue signed in at 7:20 a.m.[10] Further comparison disclosed that the computer had also been used on October 11 to access or attempt to access forty-six different websites, nineteen of which were blocked by the internet filter, before Ms. Donahue once again signed in at 7:20 a.m.[11] The last of these sites, c6edca036cc5197adc4a4bc8cf8553fa.sex-toy-slut.com, was accessed at 7:19:29 a.m., and was followed in quick succession by five more sites, three of which were blocked, between 7:20:04 and 7:20:49 a.m.

Given these discrepancies, Ms. Bernacki spoke with the school's Principal, Mr. Ruben, who advised her that Ms. Donahue entered the school from the rear of the building and "often came in through the library and stopped in the library before she signed in." T4 87:8-10.

Ms. Bernacki also compared Ms. Donahue's teaching schedule to the User Activity reports to determine whether Ms. Donahue had accessed or attempted to [10] www.shamrock.org; www.weirdworld.com; www.13thchild.com; www.jerseydevilforumcom; www.theoeastwind.com; and www.theshadowlands.net.

[11] The Sign-In Sheets disclosed that Ms. Donahue routinely signed in at 7:20 a.m.

access any of the inappropriate websites when students were present in the library. This comparison resulted in a spreadsheet entitled "Trend Analysis for Internet Access from Circulation Desk PC," Exhibit P-15. However, the spreadsheet did not list any of the websites, be they appropriate or inappropriate, by name. Nor did it provide the actual times access was attempted. Consequently, the parties stipulated that respondent's Exhibits R-5, R-6, and R-7, dealing with October 9, 10 and 11, 2002, respectively, should be accepted as accurately indicating the websites Ms. Donahue had accessed or attempted to access during certain periods on any given school day.

The spreadsheet for Wednesday, October 9, 2002, Exhibit R-5, disclosed that Ms. Donahue had attempted to access eleven inappropriate or pornographic websites, one successfully, during her prep period between 11:40 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. She had also attempted to access two additional such sites, one successfully, during a class period from 12:30 to 1:10 p.m. The two sites, sex-positions.surfhere.net and images.v3.com, were not consecutive, but rather had been preceded, separated, and followed by apparently appropriate sites such as www.njghostresearch.org, www.allworldhosting.org, and www.yahooligans.com.

The spreadsheet for Thursday, October 10, Exhibit R-6, disclosed a significantly greater amount of questionable activity. Prior to her first class at 8:00 a.m., Ms. Donahue attempted to access, but was blocked from viewing, two inappropriate sites. However, the search for inappropriate sites increased between 8:00 and 8:40 a.m., during her first class of the day. During that period she attempted to access twelve inappropriate sites, seven of them successfully. Among these twelve websites were five bearing domain extensions such as "fr" (France) and "uk" (United Kingdom). As was the case on October 9, these sites were accessed before, during and after other apparently acceptable sites.

During her next class, between 8:43 and 9:23 a.m., she attempted to access only two inappropriate sites, one successfully. And again, these sites were not consecutive but rather interspersed among several other websites.[12] After attempting and successfully accessing only one site during her lunch period, Ms. Donahue engaged in the bulk of her surfing after school, between 2:20 and 2:31 p.m. At that time she attempted to access nine inappropriate websites, six successfully.[13]

Finally, the spreadsheet for Thursday, October 11, Exhibit R-7, disclosed that Ms. Donahue had engaged in a significant amount of searching for inappropriate sites during her prep and break periods, between 11:40 a.m. and 12:20 p.m.; the following class period between 12:30 and 1:10 p.m.; and the class period after that between 1:13 and 1:53 p.m.

During her prep and break periods she attempted to access 15 inappropriate sites, 11.5[14] of them successfully, and, as before, not all of them consecutively. However, it was during the 12:30 to 1:10 class that she attempted to access 69 inappropriate sites, 11[15] of them successfully

Ms. Bernacki reiterated that Policy No. 2361 and the reporting protocol had been adopted to prevent intentional, if not repetitive, use of the District's internet connection to access inappropriate and pornographic websites. And although section L.8. permitted access to inappropriate sites "in the context of legitimate research," the reference to "legitimate research" meant "[r]esearch associated to school projects, with classroom projects, to instruction of children, to, perhaps, professional development to improve an employee's skills so far as word processing, say, or Excel, or Database –

[12] Four years later, it cannot be ascertained whether sites such as voyanciel.free.fr, content4web.net2one.fr, pro.weborama.fr, killabees31.free.fr, www.weborama.fr and members.lycos.fr, all bearing domain extensions for France, or www.chezlola.net were appropriate or inappropriate.

[13] Curiously, sites such as www.girlsgonewild.com, www.wildpartygirls.org, and exits.freepornpics.com were blocked, but other more explicit sites such as www.sluttoons.com, www.petitebeaver.com, and www.freakishcocks.com were allowed.

[14] Access to one of these websites – www.celebrateintimacy.com – was marked as "A/B" or Allowed/Blocked. Since there is no explanation for this designation in the record, the site has been credited as having been half-blocked and half-accessed.

[15] Access to two of these websites – abcbearsactofgod.com and www.hot-free-nude-beautiful-teen-brunette-pussy-girls-pics.com – was marked as "A/B." Again, since there is no explanation for this designation in the record, each of them has been credited as having been half-blocked and half-accessed.

instructional research." T5 24:10-17.[16] It did not mean the type of investigation in which Ms. Donahue had been engaged.

Ms. Bernacki also testified that all of this had been covered in 1998 when she trained the District's employees in the use of the internet. In fact, each employee had been given a copy of the "Acceptable Use" policy and been required to sign an "Employee Account Agreement" acknowledging receipt and review of the "Acceptable Use" policy prior to being given access to the internet. This included Ms. Donahue, who signed her "Employee Account Agreement," Exhibit P-11, on November 4, 1998.

Adam Sheridan, employed as a technology coordinator at the Newcomb School, testified that he could recall only one occasion when a teacher had complained about an inappropriate e-mail she'd received, but that the teacher had not been Ms. Donahue. In fact, to the best of his recollection, Ms. Donahue had never complained to him about pornographic e-mail or her ability to access inappropriate websites, although she had complained about pop-up ads for things like dating services and Viagra appearing on the students' computers in the library in or about February 2002. He responded to that complaint by installing pop-up prevention software on those computers.

The District's expert, Anthony DeFeciani, Vice President of Open Systems Technologies ("OST") in charge of Engineering and Emergent Technologies, testified that OST had worked with the District for a number of years helping it implement its network infrastructure, which included network switching and router hardware, as well as e-mail servers, web servers and content filtering servers. In or about March 2004, the company was retained to conduct a technical analysis to determine if the Newcomb Middle School circulation desk computer had been used to access sexually explicit materials during the course of a school day.

In conducting this analysis, he and Jason Hovak, an OST Senior Systems Engineer, evaluated all of the information contained in the following Internet Explorer files on the computer's hard drive:

[16] T5 refers to Volume 2 of the transcript of the hearing conducted on December 2, 2002.

- Log File – A transaction file created by the Internet Explorer web browser indicating the websites a user has visited or attempted to visit. In this case, log files were created not only on the computer's hard drive, but on the content filtering server as well.
- History File – A file created by Internet Explorer providing a daily log of the dates and times specific websites were accessed. The server-based Cyber Patrol software similarly recorded the sites visited and the source IP address of the particular computer visiting those sites.
- Temporary Files – Files that are downloaded and "cached" or recorded in a temporary directory on the hard drive to improve overall access time to websites a user has previously accessed and wishes to access again.
- Favorites Files – "Bookmarks" for sites frequently visited by a user. Websites' names are manually placed in a folder so that a user wishing to access them can simply click on their names rather than having to recall or type in the entire URL, e.g., www.whatever.com.

OST's written report dated March 31, 2004, Exhibit P-16, included a matrix comparing the circulation desk's recovered history file to the District's internet content filtering server's log file. Preliminarily, Mr. DeFeciani pointed out that the raw history file from the computer reported time in Greenwich Mean Time (GMT) and had to be converted to Eastern Standard Time (EST), which during the months of Daylight Savings Time required a four hour adjustment. Upon completing that conversion, he concluded that the matrix clearly showed a correlation between the two files and included material that was related to files in the computer's Favorites folder as well.

Based upon the information contained in the matrix, Mr. DeFeciani also concluded that the circulation desk computer had been used to access sexually explicit material during school hours. He based this conclusion on his analysis of the log files on both the computer's hard drive and the content filtering server, which disclosed that the circulation desk computer had been used for "sexually explicit accesses" during a six hour period on October 11, 2002 alone. He further concluded that much of this material had been accessed following active Yahoo! key word searches, including:

- http://search.yahoo.com/bin/search?p=falatio
- http://search.yahoo.com/search?p=fallatio
- http://search.yahoo.com/bin/search?p=fallatio
- http://search.yahoo.com/bin/search?p=positions

In addition to the sexually explicit material recorded in the computer's history and the filter server's logs, similar material could be found in the computer's Favorites folder. Three of these websites – "Yahoo! Business and Economy Shopping and Services Sex Adult Galleries for Women," "Yahoo! Business and Economy Shopping and Services Sex Adult Galleries," and "Yahoo! Society and Culture Sexuality" – were added to Favorites on October 9, 2002. And the following six additional sites were added on October 11, 2002:

- Blonde Babes, Hot Blondes, Naked Blondes, Nude Blondes And Hot Babes
- Blondes in Bikinis.com
- Free Hot Nude Blonde Bikini Women Babes Pussy Girls Pics
- Men's Health Men's Guide to Fitness, Health, Sex and Life
- Sex Positions 101 Because Missionary Style is Boring
- Yahoo! Society and Culture Sexuality Activities and Practices Sex Positions

Closer examination of the recovered history file and filter server logs also disclosed that the user had gone beyond the initial "welcoming" page of a sexually explicit website by clicking on multiple pages within the same site. For example, the matrix revealed that the following web pages in askmen.com had been accessed over an eight minute span:

- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip/50_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip/28_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip_60/76_love_tip.html

- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip_60/64_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip_60/73_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip_60/75_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip/59_love_tip.html
- http://www.askmen.com/love/love_tip/47_love_tip.html

According to Mr. DeFeciani, this information conclusively established that the user had continuously accessed the site during this eight minute span.

Also testifying on behalf of the District as an expert witness was the aforementioned Jason Hovak, an OST Senior Systems Engineer. He concurred with Mr. DeFeciani that many of the sites listed in the matrix could not have been accessed inadvertently because they were obtained using a key word search with multiple variations on a word's spelling.[17] Similarly, there were the web pages related to "www.askmen.com" that had been accessed over an eight minute span, which led him to believe that the user had been clicking from one link to another.

Mr. Hovak further explained that "anywhere in the report that a site is listed by its fully qualified domain name is an access to that site," and sites using that name thereafter represent web pages from the same website. He gave as an example http://srd.yahoo.com/S=2766679:WS3/R=17/K=fallatio/*http://search.yahoo.com/search ?p=fallatio&hq=site:www.everevolving.com., which was accessed by a key word search using a variant spelling of the word "fellatio." The six sites that followed all represented accesses to the domain "www.everevolving.com," suggesting that the user had clicked on links within that domain. He added that some of these sites were related to sites recovered from the Favorites folder on the computer's hard drive.

Other examples included the sites http://www.bound-brunettes.com and http://srd.yahoo.com/drst/95484389/*http://www.boundbrunettes.com, found within four sites of one another, and the sites in between, http://brunette-babes.girlfriend.nu. and http:///srd.yahoo.com/drst/95484460/*http://brunette-babes.girlfriend.nu. The sites that followed, http://srd.yahoo.com/drst/95484512/*http://www.brunetteheaven.com and http://srd.yahoo.com/drst/95484411/*http://www.foxybrunettes.com, also included the word "brunette" in their titles and may therefore have been related to the same initial key word search.

As Mr. DeFeciani and Mr. Hovak concluded in their written report,

> It is apparent that some websites were accessed beyond the first page. This report sites one example of multiple pages accessed over several minutes which clearly refutes the claim that time spent accessing inappropriate sexually explicit sites was typically not longer then (sic) eight seconds. While the user's intent cannot be determined from the data, it is clear that sexually explicit material was actively pursued and in some cases examined beyond a cursory glance.

> [OST Report, pg. 5]

Ms. Donahue's expert, Kevin Gilper, Chief Technology Officer of World Wide Web Communications, testified that he too had had an opportunity to examine the Newcomb School circulation desk computer and had copied the temporary internet files, history files, user's profile,[18] Favorites files, and computer registry to an external hard drive. He also took a series of screenshots of the contents of the Favorites folder and copied them onto the external hard drive as well.

Mr. Gilper's initial focus was on the history, or index.dat, file because it was a "near perfect record of what the browser's activity were (sic). Every, every page that the browser opens is recorded in the history file." T7 20:5-9.[19] He used the term "near perfect" because in addition to recording a user's actions, such as typing in the URL of a website, the history also recorded "pop ups" and "redirects."[20] Using a variety of [18] Mr. Gilper defined the user's profile as "a folder on the machine that has user specific settings." T7 14:10-12.

[19] T7 refers to the transcript of the hearing conducted on May 19, 2005.
[20] A "redirect" occurs when the user conducts a search and the internet browser makes a request for a specific site, but the web server to which it connects substitutes another URL and directs the browser to go to the second location.

programs,[21] he printed out a report of the internet activity for October 11, 2002, including the names and URLs of the websites, along with the dates and times they were accessed. Exhibit R-8.

Mr. Gilper testified that as he reviewed this report he was impressed by the "sheer quantity of records," which suggested that the user had been "performing a survey a websites." T7 27:14-16. However, what he found even more significant was the broad range of topics searched and the fact that the user appeared to spend more time performing these searches in Yahoo! than actually spending time in the websites themselves. Very little time – in most cases approximately ten seconds – elapsed between website accesses, and the data indicated that the user had accessed the sites in the order that they had been listed.

In his expert report, Exhibit R-13, Mr. Gilper also indicated that a review of the temporary internet files as well as the history failed to produce any evidence that the user had accessed web pages beyond the portals of the websites. When the entries were viewed in chronological order it was readily apparent that only the first screens of the sites had been accessed because only one request had been made to each adult site and there had been no subsequent requests. This was different from the user's behavior in accessing non-adult sites, where she accessed pages beyond the initial screens. In his opinion, this was consistent with an attempt to prove that the filtering program was not working. And while he acknowledged OST's adverse conclusion, he attributed it to that company's reliance on the logs from the Super Scout reporting program, which contained entries not present in the temporary internet or history files, and entry times inconsistent with those given in these files.

Mr. Gilper added that the Favorites folder supported that position as well. As he noted, the first adult website in that folder had been added on October 9, 2002 at 12:20 p.m.[22] Moreover, it had been the 140th file overall. Four Yahoo! site directories and four adult sites accessed from those same directories followed. However, a comparison with the history files failed to disclose any attempted access of pages beyond the first pages of those adult sites, which in his opinion "indicate[d] that she was not interested in viewing the material contained within each site." Gilper Report, pg. 7.

Testifying in her own behalf, Ms. Donahue stated that Newcomb Middle School students were prohibited from using the school's computers for internet access until they received internet instruction from her, and instruction for the 2002-03 school year was scheduled to begin on Tuesday, October 15, 2002, immediately following the Columbus Day holiday. However, a male student named "L."[23] had accessed a triple-X pornographic website the previous spring and she herself had begun to receive persistent pop-up ads of "scantily clad girls" and "pornographic e-mail" on the circulation desk computer. She therefore had serious concerns about the effectiveness of the District's internet content filtering software and the prospect of starting internet instruction that fall.

On October 9, 2002, with internet instruction scheduled to begin the following week, Ms. Donahue took her concerns to the school principal, Mr. Fred Ruben. As she recalled, she told him that "things were coming up on the computers – I was afraid for their safety, the students' safety, and I didn't want an incident like the previous year with 'L.' I was concerned for the students. I did not think the filters were working ... something was not right." T8 45:13-19.[24] Nevertheless, Mr. Ruben told her to start the internet instruction as scheduled and stop worrying.

Later that same day she noticed a group of students in one of her classes giggling and holding their thumbs up, and couldn't help but think that "it wasn't a good sign." She walked up to their table and, when she asked them what they were up to, they giggled and asked her if she had seen "Thumbzilla." She told them she had no idea what they were talking about and that they must have meant Godzilla. However, that only caused them to giggle some more. After class, she "had a really bad feeling – and ... thought, what if – what if these kids know something on the computer – I don't know." T8 47:25 to 48:4.

[22] Although the report directed the reader's attention to "Attachment A," the only attachment to the report was a glossary of terms.
[23] Ms. Donahue could not recall his last name.
[24] T8 refers to Volume 1 of the transcript of the hearing conducted on September 27, 2005.

At this point she began to think that the filters were "seriously damaged" because things just weren't right. She therefore logged on to the internet and typed in a search for "Thumbzilla." She clicked on one of the search results and noticed two green almond-sized Godzilla-type figures and the words, "Enter if you dare." She then clicked on the image of a door and entered the site, where she saw fifty lines of type in a very small font covering "every type of situation – sexual – any type of sexual topic you could think of was on there." T8 48:17-24. With growing concern she clicked on something else and "there were, like, 6 pictures would appear. 'Uh – and they were totally, totally node (sic) sexual acts. I was shocked. My first action was I turned the screen off and I was just like, oh my God." T8 49:6-8.

After her experience with Thumbzilla, Ms. Donahue decided to see if any other inappropriate sites were getting through the filter. She began by typing in a key word search for "sex" because "there is no need of that being anywhere in an elementary system." T8 50:4-5. To her surprise, "it not only screened sites, there were search engines leading to other – the clicking and clicking, and I found so many things going through it, it just – it just shocked me." Id. at 6-9.

However, Ms. Donahue steadfastly denied that she had conducted any of these searches when students were present in the library. Although her teaching schedule, Exhibit R-11, may have indicated that classes were supposed to be present during the periods she was testing the filter, she explained that some of the teachers occasionally brought their students into the library just long enough to take out new books. Others just called in and cancelled their time in the library because the students were working on something in the classroom. There were also times when assemblies were scheduled over periods during which classes would have otherwise been present.

Ms. Donahue also testified that because of the sheer number of sites, she began to record the topics on loose-leaf paper that she stapled together. She also called Ms.

Bernacki on Thursday and Friday morning before her first class, left these topics on her voice mail, and "pleaded to please just leave a message – that you've gotten this – that you're working on this, 'cause I'm starting Internet next week. Please...." Id. at 15-22. When she did not hear back from Ms. Bernacki, she began to bookmark some sites in preparation for a meeting she hoped to schedule with Superintendent Cowell, Mr. Ruben and Ms. Bernacki the following week.

Although she'd intended to visit Ms. Bernacki's office on Friday afternoon, Ms. Donahue had to cancel her plans because her aunt was critically ill in the hospital. Unfortunately, her aunt passed away that afternoon and the funeral was held on Tuesday, October 15. Therefore, she did not return to the Newcomb School until Wednesday, October 16, when she was summoned to the Principal's office following her last scheduled class that morning.

Ms. Donahue stated that Mr. Ruben met her outside his office and simply told her that she needed to get her union representative. Shortly thereafter she entered Mr. Ruben's office with the building representative, Ms. Lisa Mainor, and was met by Mr. Bevilacqua, who asked her to leave the building. When she requested an explanation, Mr. Bevilacqua handed her a sealed envelope in which she found the following memo:

> Please be advised that effective today, Wednesday, October 16, 2002, you are suspended with pay pending action by the Board of Education on Tuesday, October 29, 2002, regarding violations of Board Policy #2361.
>
> You will be further advised of your rights by separate memo.
> [Bevilacqua Memo, Exhibit R-12]

According to Ms. Donahue, once she completed reading the memo Mr. Ruben walked her to the library and told her she needed to gather her belongings and leave. He then requested her keys and reiterated that she "need[ed] to leave." Moreover, the only items she was allowed to take with her were her coat and pocketbook, "and that was it." She had to leave behind all of her personal effects including her "textbooks from college, I'll never get back, mementos from children, pictures, all of my hundred hours materials – everything. The list that – everything of the topics. I mean, everything was there." T8 62:19 to 63:2.

Ms. Donahue stated that she was surprised because she did not know that there was a policy pertaining to the acceptable use of the District's computers and internet connection. Although she acknowledged having signed the Employee Account Agreement, she claimed she had done so in haste and thought it pertained to the use of e-mail. She also acknowledged that a copy of the District's policies could be found in the library, but that she had not gone back and researched them after signing the agreement.

Looking back, Ms. Donahue confessed that she had not exercised her best judgment and wished she had not panicked. Asked what she would have done differently, she replied, "maybe called a meeting, and had everyone see what I saw, have it dealt with." Id. at 68:1-3. She concluded her testimony with the following statement:

> [M]y job is being a teacher – is my life. I love my children, my students – the only purpose was to protect them, and I did panic, and I am sorry, and it was misinterpreted, but it was only to protect them – to see if things were blocked, but for years I had told them that those filters weren't, but obviously they didn't, so – but it's -- my life.

Tenure is intended to protect teachers from dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 71 (1962)). Accordingly, a tenured teacher may be dismissed for "inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause," but only after a hearing in compliance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -30.1.

> The closest analogous case law is public lewdness. Compare Town of West Orange Bd. of Educ. v. Lieb, 1985 S.L.D. 933 (teacher's conviction for public lewdness constituted conduct unbecoming); Bd. of Educ. Township of Old Bridge v. Pappa, 1988 S.L.D. 542 (teacher's flagrantly lewd act at a rest area along the Garden State Parkway constituted conduct unbecoming). Grundfest's conduct was not the criminal equivalent of public lewdnesss, N.J.S.A. 2C:14-4(a) (a flagrantly offensive act which is likely to be observed by nonconsenting persons), but it was the functional equivalent. By misusing a school computer during school hours to access and view pornography on the internet, he committed a flagrantly lewd act which he should have known might be observed by a student. ...

In a case analogous to the present matter, Egg Harbor Township Board of Education v. Gregory Gomes, Initial Decision (November 1, 2002), aff'd, Commisioner, <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/>, a social studies teacher was charged with unbecoming conduct for having used the district's computers to access and view pornographic materials on the internet while on school property and during school hours. In his decision, the Hon. W. Todd Miller, A.L.J., found that Gomes's actions and conduct had been sufficiently flagrant to justify his dismissal. He based his decision on the fact that

> This was not a single incident of misconduct involving a serious lack of sound judgment. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Earmond DeMarco, [1980 S.L.D. 204, aff'd St. Bd., 1980 S.L.D. 227]. Gomes demonstrated a serious lack of self-restraint and judgment on repeated occasions. He repeatedly viewed internet pornographic materials, over several months, while on school property, in unoccupied classrooms and in the school library. ... Notably, some of the sites accessed involve teenage pornographic material. ... These computers were public property and are used by other teachers as well as available for use by students. Numerous pornographic internet sites were knowingly or inadvertently saved on the computers. Students could have viewed these materials, either by actually observing Gomes while on the internet or through access from the sites stored and saved on the three computers. Gomes was aware that

In order to dismiss a tenured teacher, the underlying charges must be filed with the local Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. The teacher is given an opportunity to submit a written statement in defense of the charges. Ibid. After the Board has considered the charges, it must determine by majority vote whether there is probable cause to believe the charges are true. If so, the Board must decide whether the charges warrant dismissal or a reduction in salary. Ibid. Should the Board determine that the charges do in fact warrant either of these penalties, it must certify and forward the charges to the Commissioner of Education for a hearing. Ibid.

If the Commissioner determines the charges are sufficient to warrant dismissal or a reduction in salary, he or she will forward the case to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, where the burden shall be on the Board to prove the charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). Ultimately, it will be the State Board of Education that makes the final decision. In re Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif. denied, 121 N.J. 615 (1990).

Unbecoming conduct or the lack of fitness to discharge the duties of a teacher are grounds for dismissal. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974) (citing Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364 (1957)). Unfitness to remain a teacher may be demonstrated by a single incident if sufficiently flagrant. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967); Pietrunti v. Bd. of Educ. of Brick Tp., 128 N.J. Super. 149 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 573 (1974).

Viewing pornographic material on the internet has been compared to public lewdness and, therefore, considered to be conduct unbecoming. In Board of Education of the Borough of Madison v. Robert I. Grundfest, Initial Decision (March 29, 2000), rev'd on other grounds, St. Bd., <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/>, a teacher was charged with using a school computer to access and view pornography on the internet. As the Hon. Jeffrey A. Gerson, ALJ, stated:

> his conduct was improper and unprofessional. He knew that it violated the district's policy for computer use.
> [Egg Harbor Township Board of Education v. Gregory Gomes, Initial Decision, supra at 12]

The issue in this particular case is not whether Ms. Donahue attempted to access inappropriate or pornographic websites using the Newcomb Middle School circulation desk computer. Rather, the issue is whether she did so for personal gratification or in order to expose flaws in the District's internet content filter software and, if the latter, whether she had the right to engage in such conduct. Therefore, much of this case hinges on Ms. Donahue's credibility.

Credibility is the value that the fact finder gives to the testimony of a witness. It contemplates an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of the credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955); Gilson v. Gilson, 116 N.J. Eq. 556, 560 (E. & A. 1934). And in this case, Ms. Donahue's testimony raises so many more questions than it provides answers that it simply does not "hang together."

Ms. Donahue testified that she was "so shocked at what I saw. ... I was just so upset. I just couldn't believe it." T8 39:21 to 40:15. Yet, despite the shock she experienced viewing these sites, she engaged in an extensive search for a significant number of them. As she explained it, she was so shocked by the "Thumbzilla" website on October 9, 2002, that she "panicked" and started trying to access pornographic websites to make sure the District's internet content filtering software was preventing them from being viewed by her students. Yet, neither she nor any of the students could have viewed "Thumbzilla" from any of the District's computers that or any other day because it had been blocked by the software.

She also testified that she kept a list of the sites she was able to access, first on sheets of loose-leaf paper and then in her Favorites folder. However, she never made Ms. Bernacki aware of the written list and certainly did not mention it to Mr. Bevilacqua, even after he'd served her with the notice of suspension and asked her to leave the building. Nor did she volunteer that she had saved some of the same and similar sites in her Favorites folder. Given the nature of these proceedings, it is hard to imagine that the District would not have used the written list of inappropriate websites to support the tenure charges had it existed. Therefore, her assertion that she kept a list in order to show the District what she had been able to access appears to be nothing more than a pretext.

Ms. Donahue was also heard to say that she had called and left messages on Ms. Bernacki's voicemail on Thursday morning, October 10, and Friday morning, October 11. However, Ms. Bernacki steadfastly denied this claim and I found her to be a much more credible witness than Ms. Donahue. Among other things, Ms. Bernacki impressed me as someone who takes her responsibility for the safety of the District's internet access very seriously. In fact, the immediacy with which she responded to Ms. McMillan's verbal report on Tuesday, October 15, 2002, at 7:00 in the morning, speaks volumes about the way she carries out her duties. Had Ms. Donahue actually called her on Thursday or Friday morning, I've no doubt Ms. Bernacki would have confirmed receipt of the voice mail and dispatched Ms. McMillan to take care of the problem that day, much as she did when she received the call from Ms. Guidone about an inappropriate website that Friday morning. Consequently, I do not believe Ms. Donahue had any contact with Ms. Bernacki or Ms. McMillan during the days in question.

Ms. Donahue's contention that she left these voice mail messages also begs the question of why she would have continued to search for and access such a significant number of inappropriate sites after she made the calls. By her own admission, she was shocked by the "disgusting pornographic" websites and e-mails that appeared on her screen. It is therefore difficult to understand why she would have continued to seek them out when providing Ms. Bernacki with the names or URLs of just a few would have been more than sufficient to place the District on notice that there was a problem with the filtering software.

Additionally, careful examination of the user activity reports discloses that hers were not panic-driven searches pursuing any number of search words or topics. Rather, she was quite methodical and appeared to stay with a topic such as blondes, fellatio, and sexual positions before moving on to another. What is more, there were times she clicked on sites listed in a search result and then proceeded to click on individual web pages within those sites. www.askmen.com, in which Ms. Donahue clicked on no fewer than eight different "love tips" during one session, is but one example.

Nor was Ms. Donahue reticent about accessing or attempting to access sites with obviously pornographic names such as 3x-sexy-blondes-hardcore-porno-sex-pictures-pussy-pics.com, free-hot-nude-beautiful-teen-brunette-pussy-girls-pics.com, orgasmic-tendencies.net, or xratedpornos.com., to name just a few. An alternative explanation for the fact that some of the inappropriate sites were visited for only a matter of seconds could be that they simply did not contain content in which she was interested. Be that as it may, still other sites remained on her computer for minutes at a time, including hot-free-nude-blonde-woman-bikini-babes-pussy-girls-pics.com, which she accessed during a sustained period of internet activity and apparently did not leave for approximately thirty-one minutes. As Messrs DeFeciani and Hovak concluded, "it is clear that sexually explicit material was actively pursued and in some cases examined beyond a cursory glance."

Also casting a long shadow on her testimony are the three pieces of e-mail Ms. Donahue sent to Edward Komosinski in June 2002, approximately four months before her questionable conduct was discovered. More than giving light to an apparently very physical relationship, the messages suggest that Ms. Donahue was no stranger to sexually explicit material. Were it otherwise, she would not have sent a self-described "nasty" card in the first place, much less cautioned Mr. Komosinski to turn the screen and turn down the sound. Nor would she have made reference to a second, separate "nasty" message she had sent him. Besides being in violation of the District's e-mail policy in their own right, the e-mail messages also suggest that Ms. Donahue's activities might not have been limited to a discreet three or four day period.

Finally, the fact that there were no reported incidents of students actually being exposed to pornographic or otherwise inappropriate material on the circulation desk computer is of no moment. What is material is the fact that Ms. Donahue embarked on these searches during school hours, in the school library, using the circulation desk computer. She knew, or certainly should have known, that her conduct was not only improper and unprofessional, but in violation of the District's policy for computer use as well.

Ms. Donahue is a public school teacher who is entrusted with the care and custody of children and must exercise a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior unlike most other types of employment. In re Tenure Hearing of Lucarelli, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 537, 541, quoting In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. As a public role model, she is held to a higher standard of behavior than other employees and individuals in society. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sammons, supra. Sadly. she did not meet this standard and violated the public trust and confidence needed for her to continue in her capacity as a teacher of middle school-aged children.

Based upon the foregoing, I find that Darlene Donahue engaged in conduct unbecoming a public school teacher by using the District's computers to knowingly and intentionally access and view internet pornography during school hours. And I further find that her unbecoming conduct was sufficiently flagrant to justify her dismissal. I therefore conclude that the Pemberton Township School District Board of Education has met its burden of proving the tenure charges preferred against Darlene Donahue by a preponderance of the credible evidence and determine that her dismissal is warranted.[25] It is so ORDERED.

[25] Having concluded that the tenure charges should be sustained, I need not reach the issue of whether the District properly withheld Ms. Donahue's salary increment, although it would certainly have been decided in the affirmative.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ADAM MUJICA, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

In April 2001, petitioning school district certified tenure charges against a tenured teacher for unbecoming conduct related to incidents of inappropriate behavior with a student in 1984-85 and another student in 1994-95. These tenure charges followed separate tenure charges brought against respondent by petitioner in October 2000. The instant matter remained inactive pending the outcome of the first set of charges.

The ALJ concluded that: the final disposition of the prior tenure charges is an intervening event that renders the instant matter moot; there are no legal rights, duties, obligations, privileges, benefits or other legal relationships between the parties still in issue; and the instant matter is no longer a contested case. The ALJ ordered the tenure charges against respondent dismissed as moot.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ for the reasons set forth in the Initial Decision, that the tenure charges against respondent at issue in this matter have been mooted by his removal as a tenured employee based upon a prior set of charges. The Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ADAM MUJICA, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision, that the tenure charges against respondent at issue in this matter have been mooted by his removal as a tenured employee based upon a prior set of charges.[1]

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL dismissing the above-captioned tenure charges as moot is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5184-01

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ADAM MUJICA, STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY

Joanne Butler, Esq., for petitioner (Schenck, Price, Smith & King, LLP, attorneys)

Adam Mujica, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: January 30, 2006 Decided: March 15, 2006

BEFORE ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HIUSTORY

The instant matter involves tenure charges brought against respondent, Adam Mujica, a tenured teacher employed by the petitioner, State-Operated School District of Paterson on April 12, 2001. These tenure charges, alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher followed separate tenure charges brought against respondent by petitioner on or about October 24, 2000. That first set of certified charges, under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10130-00, consisting of nine charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and insubordination, was heard before Administrative Law Judge Margaret M. Hayden and was concluded on April 17, 2001. Judge Hayden sustained the eight counts of conduct unbecoming, and dismissed the one count alleging insubordination. Judge Hayden ordered the removal of the respondent as a tenured employee of the District in an Initial Decision entered on July 20, 2001.

The instant certified charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education on May 14, 2001. Respondent was permitted to file an answer to the tenure charges by June 4, 2001. On June 4, 2001, respondent filed a motion for summary decision to dismiss the tenure charges, with the Commissioner. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for decision on the motion, prior to the commencement of a plenary hearing. A telephone conference was conducted by the undersigned on June 14, 2001. A briefing schedule was entered. Thereafter, respondent supplemented the motion to dismiss by letter memorandum dated June 18, 2001. Petitioner's brief in opposition to the motion was filed on June 25, 2001. Respondent filed a reply brief on July 3, 2001.

By Order entered July 13, 2001, the undersigned dismissed counts one and two of the certified tenure charges filed against the respondent. The remaining count three, conduct unbecoming, alleged that the respondent engaged in a course of inappropriate conduct toward an instructional assistant at East Side High School.

Thereafter, the matter was set down for hearing for September 24, 2001. A telephone conference was held in the matter on August 8, 2001 to discuss the status of the first set of tenure charges, and the scheduling of the within matter. Counsel advised the undersigned that the removal of the respondent on the first tenure charges was on appeal to the State Board of Education. At that time, counsel for the respondent addressed the issue of placing the instant matter on the inactive list, pending the final disposition of the first set of charges. The respondent agreed to waive any right to salary he might have pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, during the period of inactivity. The matter remained inactive during the long procedural history of the first set of tenure charges, as set forth hereinafter.

The Initial Decision of Judge Hayden, dated July 20, 2001, regarding that first set of charges was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education. Thereafter, the State Board of Education sustained seven charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher, which consisted of sexually inappropriate remarks and gestures made by the respondent to his students. The matter was appealed to the Superior Court of the State of New Jersey, Appellate Division, which affirmed the decision of the State Board of Education. The Appellate Division remanded the matter, however, for a reconsideration of the penalty.

For a second time, the Commissioner found conduct unbecoming sufficient to warrant removal. The State Board once again affirmed the Final Decision of the Commissioner, and the matter was once again appealed to the Appellate Division on March 19, 2004. The Appellate Division affirmed the removal of the respondent in a decision entered on October 24, 2005.

At the conclusion of the appeal process involving the first set of tenure charges, the instant matter was placed on the calendar for hearing scheduled on December 16, 2005. Counsel for the petitioner had been replaced by the Law Firm of Schenck, Price, Smith & King, Joanne Butler, Esq. appearing. John Norton, Esq., respondent's counsel for the entirety of the prior proceeding, was no longer representing respondent in the instant matter. The respondent is now representing his own interests, pro se. Prior to the hearing, the undersigned conducted a telephone conference on December 14, 2005, to discuss the status of the matter and any issues that might have arisen. Counsel for the petitioner addressed the issue of dismissal of the tenure charges, in light of the fact that the respondent's removal from his tenured position on the prior tenure charges had been affirmed by the Appellate Division. It was the position of the petitioner that the instant matter was therefore moot. The respondent concurred that the removal from his tenured position had been upheld, and that there were no further appeals on his behalf.

The undersigned directed Ms. Butler to file a motion requesting the matter be dismissed. A motion to dismiss and letter brief in support of the motion was received by the undersigned on December 27, 2005. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2, the return date of the motion was set at January 30, 2006. No opposition to the motion received by that date, the record in the matter was closed on January 30, 2006.

ISSUE PRESENTED

Whether good cause exists sufficient to warrant the dismissal of the instant tenure charges as moot.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The pertinent facts are undisputed. This matter involves tenure charges of conduct unbecoming, insubordination and other just cause certified by the State District Superintendent of the State Operated School District of the City of Newark against the respondent under the provisions of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq. The respondent herein had been removed from his tenured position with the petitioner as a result of prior tenure charges. The instant matter was placed on the inactive list pending the appeal of the removal of the respondent on the prior tenure charges. The respondent waived any claims for back pay during the pendency of that appeal. The Appellate Division upheld the removal in that case, by decision entered October 24, 2005.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The determination of controversies and disputes arising under the local school laws is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commissioner of the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. A tenured school teacher cannot be dismissed or have his or her compensation reduced except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, "or other just cause," and then only after a hearing when written charges of the cause or causes of the complaint, signed by the person or persons making the same, have been preferred against the teacher. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The pertinent statutory provisions addressing the filing of tenure charges with the local school district, certification of the charges to the Commissioner, filing of responses by the teacher, a determination of the sufficiency of the charges by the Commissioner, and deadlines applicable to the hearings in such cases are set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, et seq.

Regulations promulgated by the Department of Education address the "withdrawal, settlement or mooting of tenure charges." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a) [Emphasis added]. Paragraph (a) provides that "once tenure charges are certified to the Commissioner, such charges may be withdrawn or settled only with the Commissioner's approval." It then discusses the requirements that must be satisfied in order to secure that approval. Cardonick, supra., ("it is proper, therefore, for the Commissioner to review and evaluate, and to approve and disapprove, tenure settlements."). In construing regulatory provisions, the plain language must first be considered. Merin v. Maglaki, 126 N.J. 430 (1992). Pertinent provisions must also be read in pari materia. Alling Street Urban Renewal Co. v. City of Newark, 204 N.J. Super. 185 (App. Div. 1985), cert. den. 103 N.J. 472 (1986). The regulation specifically requires that tenure charges may be withdrawn or settled only with the Commissioner's approval, and then only upon consideration of certain factors, N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-5.6(a). However, this does not specifically address the issue of whether the matter is subject to dismissal as moot.

It has been held that court-fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation do have some genuine utility and relevance in administrative proceedings. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980). One such court-fashioned doctrine is the doctrine of mootness. Mootness may be found to apply in cases in which no effective relief can be granted. Handabaka v. Division of Consumer Affairs, 167 N.J.Super. 12 (App. Div. 1979) (case ruled as moot where applicant sued for a civil service appointment but no longer desired the appointment).

An issue is "moot" when a determination is sought on a matter which, when rendered, cannot have any practical effect on the existing controversy and where the conflict between the parties has become merely hypothetical. In re Conroy, 190 N.J. Super. 453, 458 (App. Div. 1983); Barshatsky v. Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 73. The courts and the Commissioner of the Department of Education ordinarily will refuse to review questions which become academic prior to the issuance of a decision out of reluctance to render a legal decision in the abstract and a desire to conserve judicial or administrative resources. In re Conroy, supra. at 459; Carolyn Henry v. Board of Ed. of the City Wildwood, 1975 S.L.D. 1, 3. On the other hand, as was made clear in Conroy, the courts will decide a moot case that presents issues of great public importance or is based on a controversy capable of repetition, yet evading review because of the short duration of any single plaintiff's interest.

In an administrative proceeding, an issue is not moot if it remains contested. Under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, an issue remains contested if a specific party's legal right is at issue and that party invokes their right to a hearing. Bloom v. Department of Transportation, TRP 6600-03, Initial Decision (August 3, 2004) <http://library.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. However, actions by a party can render a case moot.

Mootness applies to the issues involved [in a controversy] and as a general rule require that legal opinions, via adjudication, not be given concerning issues which are no longer in existence because of changes in facts and circumstances [that] surround a case. A particular cause of action may be mooted by intervening events, which include actual changes in the law, administrative actions, and settlement between the parties. It is well settled law in New Jersey, that issues that have become moot prior to adjudication are no longer actionable. Coviello v. Bd. Of Educ. of the Borough of Fair Lawn, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 486.

In order that a case avoids dismissal pursuant to the mootness doctrine, it must meet the qualifications of a contested case. Bloom v. Department of Transportation, supra. A contested case is defined as a proceeding that determines the legal rights, duties, obligations, privileges, benefits or other legal relationships of specific parties. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The resolution of the instant matter is not reached by way of settlement or withdrawal. Nor is it in consideration of the unilateral resignation from employment by the respondent. Instead, the petitioner requests that the matter be dismissed as moot as a result of the Appellate Division decision affirming the removal of the respondent on prior tenure charges.

I CONCLUDE that the final disposition of the prior tenure charges is an intervening event that renders the instant matter moot. There are no legal rights, duties, obligations, privileges, benefits or other legal relationships between the parties still in issue. I CONCLUDE as such that the instant matter is no longer a contested case.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the tenure charges certified by petitioner State Operated School District of the City of Newark against respondent Adam Mujica be and are hereby DISMISSED as moot.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: March 17, 2006 Decided: March 17, 2006

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

On June 20, 2004, the petitioner, Deborah Lassiter, filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the respondent, the Board of Education of the Township of Irvington (the Board), violated her tenure and/or seniority rights when it failed to reemploy petitioner for the 2004-2005 school year. On August 23, 2004, the Board filed an Answer to Petition. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where, on October 21, 2004, it was filed for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The undersigned held a telephone prehearing conference on December 23, 2004 and issued a Prehearing Order on December 27, 2004. At the parties' joint request, the hearing scheduled for July 6 and July 14, 2005 was adjourned and the parties thereafter filed cross-motions for summary decision. Oral argument with regard to the parties' respective motions was conducted on December 14, 2005. Subsequently, the parties engaged in discussions toward an amicable resolution of the matter. Having reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that settlement should be approved. Accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This Stipulation of Settlement is made by and between Deborah Lassiter (hereinafter "Ms. Lassiter") and the Irvington Board of Education (hereinafter "the Board"). In consideration of the mutual promises and undertakings contained in this Agreement, and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned state:

WHEREAS, Ms. Lassiter has been employed as a teaching staff member by the Board; and,

WHEREAS, Ms. Lassiter has filed the above-captioned matter with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board violated her tenure and/or seniority rights when it failed to reemploy her for the 2004-05 school year; and,

WHEREAS, the Board has denied violating Ms. Lassiter's rights; and,

WHEREAS, in lieu of further pursuing this action, the parties desire to enter into an agreement stipulating the terms of Ms. Lassiter's separation from her employment status with the Board and resolving this litigation.

IT IS on this _____ day of February, 2006, agreed as follows:

1. Ms. Lassiter agrees that, in return for compliance with this Agreement and in consideration for the sums specified herein, she waives and relinquishes any and all tenure, seniority and employment recall rights she may have with the Board. This waiver shall take effect upon the approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

2. The Board agrees that it will pay the following sum to Ms. Lassiter, representing the salary she would have earned if employed by the Board for the period of time from September 1, 2004 through December 31, 2005, less the amount she received for unemployment compensation benefits:

3. The sums paid by the Board to Ms. Lassiter shall be net of normal deductions.

4. The Board agrees that, based on the deduction of unemployment benefits from the amount to be paid to Ms. Lassiter, it shall bear the responsibility for repaying or reimbursing the Division of Unemployment Compensation, or other appropriate agency, for any benefits paid to Ms. Lassiter during the period of time from July 1, 2004 through December 31, 2005.

5. Ms. Lassiter agrees to dismiss the within action against the Board with prejudice.

6. This Agreement shall not in any way be construed as an admission by either party of any liability, or of any wrongful acts whatsoever against the other party or any other person.

7. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as conferring any benefit upon any person, group or association not a direct signatory hereto. Further, this Agreement shall not be deemed to establish any "past practice" or other precedent requiring the Board to, or restricting it from, providing any benefit to any person, group or association other than Ms. Lassiter.

In this uncontested case, the boards of education of the Town Boonton and the Borough of Lincoln Park seek to sever their sending-receiving relationship of over 50 years, asserting that severance is in the best interest of their respective communities. The school district of Lincoln Park sends its high school students (grades 9-12) to Boonton High School, currently making up the majority of the high school's student body.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: while Lincoln Park has the majority of pupils in the high school, it has only one member on the Boonton Board of Education, resulting in a lack of representation that has fostered distrust and a history of protracted litigation between the two boards; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, the Commissioner may not weigh the overall positive and negative impacts of a proposed severance on the affected school districts, and any substantial negative impact on either district will result in a denial of severance; the instant proposed severance would not result in a substantial negative impact on the racial composition of the districts; severance would have a substantial negative impact on the educational quality at Boonton High School, though the quality of education at Lincoln Park would not be adversely affected. The ALJ concluded that the petition for severance must be denied, and commented that she is without jurisdiction to address the inequity of Lincoln Park's limited representation on the Boonton Board of Education.

The Commissioner determines to accept the recommendation of the ALJ that the application for severance not be granted, based upon the well-supported finding that Boonton would suffer a substantial negative educational impact if it were to lose the high school students from Lincoln Park. The Commissioner declines to reach the remainder of the ALJ's report, which summarizes testimony regarding financial impact without making findings or a recommendation, and makes conclusions regarding racial impact with which the Commissioner is reluctant to concur on the present record. Additionally, the Commissioner emphasizes that perceived inequities in the statutorily-prescribed composition of local district boards of education are a matter of State policy to be addressed by the Legislature.

The record of this uncontested matter and the Report and Recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) issued pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-21.5 have been reviewed.[1] Comments were filed by the Lincoln Park Board of Education (Lincoln Park), to which the Boonton Board of Education duly replied.

In its comments, Lincoln Park urges that if the Report's findings are read correctly, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) actually concluded that Lincoln Park (as opposed to Boonton) met all of the statutory conditions for severance; therefore, the recommendation to deny severance should be rejected. According to Lincoln Park, the ALJ found no negative racial impact on either district, accepted testimony to the effect that Lincoln Park would save money by having its own high school, and determined that severance would have educational benefits for Lincoln Park; the fact that Boonton failed to demonstrate an ability to operate without Lincoln Park students "should not be a factor" in the decision to grant severance, the district contends, "since it is not a factor in the statutory criteria for Lincoln Park, a separate legal entity." Moreover, Lincoln Park argues, if it can succeed with a small high school— as the ALJ found it could— it then follows that Boonton should be able to do the same; a degree of financial hardship and loss of elective courses of study should not lead to a conclusion of negative educational impact at a time when every district in the state is facing similar difficulties. (Lincoln Park Comments at 1-2, quotation at 2)

[1] The Report and Recommendation of the OAL in this uncontested matter is misidentified as an Initial Decision, and, pursuant to the rules for contested cases, the parties' subsequent submissions – here construed as "Comments" – were filed as exceptions.

Lincoln Park further urges the Commissioner, if severance is not granted, to address the "inequity, unfairness and discrimination" that result from Lincoln Park having only one member on the Boonton Board of Education when its high school population constitutes the majority of Boonton High's student body. The Board cites with approval the ALJ's comments at page 23 of the Report, and implores the Commissioner to remedy the representation situation so that "Lincoln Park can have a real voice and impact at the high school level even if it is forced by the final decision in this matter to remain a party in the sending-receiving relationship." (Lincoln Park Comments at 3)

In reply, the Boonton Board of Education submits that the ALJ's reference to the statutory representation scheme for sending-receiving districts has no bearing on the statutory criteria for severance—which is the question before the Commissioner—and reiterates that, in any event, the referenced scheme has already been challenged and upheld in federal court.[2] (Boonton Reply at 1)

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner determines to accept the recommendation of the ALJ that the parties' application for severance not be granted, and does so expressly based upon the finding—well supported in the record—that Boonton would suffer a substantial negative educational impact if it were to lose the high school students from Lincoln Park. As the ALJ properly found, the Commissioner may not collectively weigh the overall positive and negative impacts of the criteria for grant of severance and conclude thereby that a positive impact in one category outweighs a negative impact in another; nor may the Commissioner consider the impact on one district without regard to the impact on the other, as Lincoln Park appears to suggest in its comments. (Englewood, supra at 462; Report at 12-14) In this latter regard, it is not enough for Lincoln Park to contend that— notwithstanding the evidence on record to the contrary—Boonton "should" be able to remain viable because small schools can be successful, and because districts are required in other circumstances to make programmatic reductions as a result of fiscal constraints.

Having so found, the Commissioner declines to reach the remainder of the ALJ's Report[3], which summarizes testimony with regard to financial impact without making findings or a recommendation, and makes conclusions with regard to racial impact with which the Commissioner is reluctant to concur on the present record – particularly without benefit of meaningful adversarial perspective.

Accordingly, the Commissioner concurs with the recommended conclusion of the OAL that the parties' application for severance of their sending-receiving relationship must be denied for failure to meet the criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. To the extent that the ALJ criticizes the general statutory scheme for

[3] The ALJ's Report notes, at page 9, footnote 5, that an appeal of the referenced decision regarding inclusion of legal fees and costs in tuition assessments "is presently pending in the Superior Court, Appellate Division." representation of sending districts on receiving boards of education and suggests that the Commissioner remedy its "gross inequity" (Report at 23), the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 et seq. is neither before the Commissioner in the present matter nor appropriately addressed in the context of a request for severance pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13; moreover, perceived inequities in the composition of local district boards of education are first and foremost a matter of State policy to be addressed by the Legislature.[4]

I/M/O THE APPLICATION OF THE BOE OF THE TOWN OF BOONTON AND THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY, FOR AN ORDER ON SEVERANCE OF A SENDING-RECEIVING RELATIONSHIP

Dennis A. Collins, Esq., for petitioner Board of Education of the Town of Boonton (Collins and Vella, attorneys)

Nathanya G. Simon, Esq., for respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso and Kessler, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 11, 2005 Decided: December 23, 2005

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-11, the boards of education of the Town of Boonton ("Boonton") and the Borough of Lincoln Park ("Lincoln Park") have engaged in a sending-receiving relationship for over fifty years. The District of Lincoln Park sends its high school students (grades 9-12) to Boonton High School.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 provides that any school district that seeks to change a sending-receiving relationship may do so only upon approval by the Commissioner of Education. On August 9, 2002, the petitioner, the Town of Boonton, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") seeking to sever its sending-receiving relationship with Lincoln Park.

The respondent, Lincoln Park, opposed the severance and moved to dismiss the petition. Thereafter, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to Administrative Law Judge Stephen Weiss. Subsequent to the transmittal, Lincoln Park changed its position and joined the request for severance. The parties assert that severance is in the best interest of their respective communities. Accordingly, with the consent of Judge Weiss, Lincoln Park withdrew its motion to dismiss the petition and entered into settlement negotiations before Judge Weiss.

On November 12, 2003, Judge Weiss issued an initial decision that approved the settlement agreement that provided for the severance of the sending-receiving relationship. On December 26, 2003, the Commissioner rejected the settlement agreement on the basis that additional information was required before the relationship could be terminated, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:13-38. The Commissioner then ordered interested persons to submit written comments on the severance issue. Further, the Commissioner ordered that a public hearing be held on whether the severance meets the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-38. On June 4, 2004, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as an uncontested case and it was reassigned to the undersigned.

After a prehearing conference, a public hearing was held on August 16, 2004, at Boonton High School in Boonton, New Jersey. Several hundred people attended the public hearing; some forty-four citizens voiced their opinions on the proposed severance, and some sixty citizens wrote letters voicing either objections to or support for the proposed severance.

On August 17, 2004, a plenary hearing was held. Boonton presented the expert testimony of Harry Galinsky, Ed.D., a renowned expert on regionalization, de-regionalization and sending/receiving relationships. Galinsky prepared and presented a report entitled "A Feasibility Study to Determine the Impact of Terminating the Sending-Receiving Relationship Between the Boonton and Lincoln Park School Districts." Lincoln Park presented the testimony of Dr. Joyce Valenza, superintendent of the Lincoln Park public schools, and James T. Tevis, the district's business administrator and board secretary. The parties submitted posthearing briefs and the record closed on November 3, 2004, upon receipt of the transcript of the public hearing.

In February 2005, while writing the initial decision, the record was reopened upon notice to the undersigned that the Academy for Visual and Performing Arts ("Performing Arts Academy" or "Academy"), a tenant within Boonton High School, had vacated its space and moved to the Denville Campus of the Morris County School of Technology. The parties advised that the vacancy could have a significant influence on the statutory criteria by which the severance would be decided. Specifically, the Academy had fifty-nine students at Boonton High and contributed some $750,000 annually to the high school's budget; the move would impact the financial aspects of the proposed severance. Further, since there would be fewer students than originally projected, the loss of the Academy could impact the educational quality of Boonton High School. As a result of the Academy's move on June 23, 2005, Dr. Galinsky supplemented his feasibility study to include the impact, if any, on the recommendations contained in his 2002 study. The supplement was filed on October 14, 2005. On October 14, 2005, Dr. Galinsky presented oral testimony on the supplement and the parties submitted supplemental briefs on November 11, 2005, at which time the record closed.

THE PUBLIC HEARING

At the public hearing, local residents from both communities were invited to express their views on the severance. While hundreds of people appeared, some forty-four people spoke. Their opinions, pro and cons, were about 50/50. Additionally, many letters were received, the majority of which opposed severance, and two-thirds of the letters received from the Boonton residents opposed severance. The majority of letters received from the Lincoln Park residents also opposed severance. However, there were many letters submitted in support of the severance.

Significantly, the majority of the letters noted that the severance was being driven by an inability of the two boards to get along. Some concluded that egos were in the way of working together. Another letter noted that the current allocation that allows only one voting member from Lincoln Park Township to sit on the Boonton Board of Education is inequitable and it is the allocation that is the true source of the problem.

The mayors of Boonton and Lincoln Park oppose the severance, concluding that it would adversely affect both high schools. Notably, Boonton's mayor is a middle school principal and his children have attended the Boonton public school system. He questions the impact on the teaching staff, school state rankings, SAR scores, athletics, and extra-curricular school programs, as well as the tax impact.

The mayor of Lincoln Park questions the suitability of Lanes Field, the proposed site of the new high school, concluding that it is inappropriate because it floods. Further, it is inappropriate because it will displace the two recreation fields at Lanes Field where the Borough has expended some $500,000 in improvements. He also questions the impact of having two small schools and the substantial negative impact to the curriculum that will be offered by two smaller schools.

Finally, a few students wrote letters about the severance. The majority of them opposed severance. Many questioned the viability of splitting Boonton High and questioned why the boards could not work together.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Background and Characteristics of the Two Communities

The Town of Boonton is a small suburban community located in the northeastern section of Morris County, New Jersey. It has a total land area of 2.45 square miles. It is bounded on the north and northwest by Boonton Township and on the west by the Borough of Mountain Lakes. The 1990 Census put Boonton's population at 8,343. The 2000 U.S. Census reported 8,496 residents, an increase of 153, or less than 2% growth over the ten-year period.

Boonton's school district is a pre-K through 12 system operating in three school buildings, housing 1,296 students. Grades 9-12 include approximately 327 pupils from the Borough of Lincoln Park who attend Boonton High School.[1] Boonton Middle School educates 151 students in grades 7-8 within the high school.

The high school is located on a 19.09-acre site and it was constructed in 1927. The first addition to the school was built in 1936 and the second addition was constructed in 1962. The high school functions as an educational facility for 611 students enrolled in grades 9-12. Prior to February 2005, it was also the site for the Morris County Performing Arts Academy.

Previously, the parties' sending-receiving relationship included the school districts of Parsippany, Montville and Boonton Township. As those municipalities' population grew, the districts of Parsippany and Montville left the joint system to establish their own school districts. Boonton Township entered into a new sending-receiving relationship with Mountain Lakes High School. See Bd. of Educ. of Township of Boonton v. Bd. of Educ. of Town of Boonton, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 235. The parties' current sending/receiving agreement, executed in April 1999, is for seven years, ending in June 2006.

[1] The number of students fluctuates each year.

The net impact of the withdrawals has been that the majority, 53%, of the Boonton High School students are now from Lincoln Park. While Lincoln Park has the majority of students in the high school, it has only one member on the Boonton Board of Education ("BOE"). The BOE governs the day-to-day operations of the school. Lincoln Park asserts that this effectively leaves it without any real voice in the day-to-day or year-to-year operational decisions that affect the high school. Thus, over the last fifty years, significant issues have arisen and Lincoln Park's positions were either defeated or rebuffed. The lack of input into the day-to-day decisions has resulted in a history of protracted litigation that has cost the two districts vast sums of money. The litigation has resulted in Boonton having to refund Lincoln Park hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Reasons for Termination of the Sending/Receiving Relationship

A principal reason for the severance lies in the long, protracted and expensive litigation between the two boards. In order to appreciate the enormity of dissatisfaction, a cursory review of some of the litigation is set forth below. The litigation is costly, the underlying issues are significant and serious. These issues involve Lincoln Park's "representation" and voting on the Boonton BOE, core democratic principles in a democracy. Further, there are differences in goals and objectives in educating the students, and issues surrounding Lincoln Park's participation in the selection of administrators for the high school. As a result of the litigation, Boonton and Lincoln Park no longer trust each other. This distrust causes funds to be allocated for annual audits and ongoing and anticipated litigation. This, of course, diverts resources that could otherwise be used for direct education. Indeed, Dr. Joyce Valenza, superintendent for the Lincoln Park School District, testified that the district budgets $15,000 annually for litigation expenses. Additionally, Lincoln Park annually audits the accounts to insure that it is not overcharged for tuition.

This petition is not the first time that the two boards have sought severance. In 1994 Lincoln Park filed a petition with the Commissioner seeking to enjoin Boonton from incorporating its seventh- and eighth-grade students into its high school facility.

While the matter was pending, the parties entered into a settlement agreement, wherein it was agreed that Boonton would establish several staff positions to service the seventh- and eighth-graders only. The parties also agreed to a two-year moratorium, whereby Boonton agreed not to oppose, for a two-year period, any petition filed by Lincoln Park seeking to withdraw from the sending/receiving relationship. See Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Lincoln Park v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 493.

On review of the settlement, the Commissioner found that the parties did not have the power to bind future boards, and therefore could not enter into such an agreement. The State Board of Education modified the Commissioner's findings to allow the parties to remove the unenforceable clauses.[2]

In July 1995 Lincoln Park filed a petition seeking an interpretation of the sending/receiving agreement and certain school laws.[3] Lincoln Park sought an interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, which provided for a representative on the receiving board of education where a sending district's students comprise at least 10% of the student body. Lincoln Park's students constituted 56% of the student body, thus entitling it to a representative on the Board. Lincoln Park also contended that it and its appointee (to the Boonton BOE) had the right "to receive and discuss among themselves all information, matters, business and concerns relating to high school programs brought before the Boonton BOE prior to action taken by the Boonton BOE." Further, Lincoln Park sought to allow its appointee to have full rights and privileges as a member of the Board, subject to statutory voting restrictions. Moreover, it sought permission to allow its appointee to communicate with the Lincoln Park Board of Education and its superintendents on matters pending before the Boonton BOE. See Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Lincoln Park v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 97 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 592. Lincoln Park also sought to remove the newly appointed principal of Boonton High School. It alleged that the Boonton board and its superintendent had acted arbitrarily, capriciously, illegally and in bad faith in the selection search process for the new principal. Further, it sought to have a new search selection process put in place.

[2] Specifically, Boonton agreed not to contest any request to sever the relationship irrespective of the statutory criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13.
[3] The petition involved two issues which were consolidated by the presiding judge.

The administrative law judge (ALJ) found and concluded that pursuant to the sending/receiving agreement, the Lincoln Park appointee was entitled to documents, information and communications that were distributed to other Board members. Further, the ALJ found that the appointee could freely communicate with its superintendent on matters regarding Board meetings. However, it was concluded that the appointee was bound to maintain confidentiality of matters discussed in closed sessions, thus prohibiting disclosure of any information that was received during closed session. Further, the ALJ denied Lincoln Park's request to have copies of documents and other communications prior to the information being made public and prior to public dissemination and consideration by the Boonton BOE.

The ALJ did find that the Boonton superintendent and the Boonton BOE acted in bad faith when they unilaterally eliminated Lincoln Park's participation in the selection of a principal. Thus, the position of principal was vacated and reopened.

As a consequence of the finding of bad faith in the selection of a principal for Boonton High School, the certifications of Boonton's superintendent, Joy Northrop Divincenzi, were suspended by the State Board of Examiners for five years. See Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Lincoln Park v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 97 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 592.

In English v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, 135 F. Supp. 2d 588 (D.NJ. 2001), a member of the Lincoln Park BOE filed suit challenging the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8. The statute provided for no more than one representative from the sending district to participate on a receiving district's board of education. Initially, Lincoln Park prevailed, as the court held that the statute was unconstitutional as applied to the Lincoln/Boonton sending/receiving relationship. However, on appeal to the United States District Court, an interim remedy was fashioned by the district judge that gave Lincoln Park three members on Boonton's BOE pending a new statute by the State Legislature. Boonton appealed to the Third Circuit, United States Court of Appeals. The court held that the New Jersey send-receive scheme, as enacted and applied to Lincoln Park, did not violate the principle of "one person, one vote."[4] See English v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 161 F. Supp. 2d 344 (D.NJ. 2001).

In Borough of Lincoln Park Board of Education v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, EDU 5944-02, Initial Decision (April 2, 2003), adopted, Comm'r (May 15, 2003), aff'd, St. Bd. (November 5, 2003) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, Lincoln Park successfully challenged Boonton's inclusion of legal fees and costs in its tuition assessments. There, Boonton sought to recover litigation costs incurred in cases filed by the Lincoln Park Board of Education. The ALJ concluded that Boonton could not include the cost of legal fees in the tuition for Lincoln Park students.[5]

In Borough of Lincoln Park Board of Education v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, No. MRS C-217-00 (Ch. Div.), Lincoln Park charged Boonton with breach of contract and failure to appropriately credit certain monies in the tuition rate per the 1999 Sending/Receiving Agreement between the parties. Judgment was entered in favor of Boonton. The court found that Lincoln Park breached the contract by failing to commence the audit process in a timely fashion. The court concluded that Lincoln Park had full knowledge of the audit process and its right to audit, and knowingly permitted the applicable deadlines to expire without legal justification.

In the instant matter, witness Valenza testified about the ongoing litigation and day-to-day problems between the Boonton and Lincoln Park school districts. She noted that Lincoln Park now spends $15,000 each year auditing the tuition assessment. The boards have attempted to correct the representation issue by the creating a high school committee. However, since the committee is only advisory, not statutorily mandated, it carries no weight. Disputes have arisen and have not been satisfactorily resolved. Further, Boonton asserts that it is under no legal obligation to the committee and will not consent to continue the committee's existence when the new contract is negotiated. Moreover, Boonton will no longer use the committee to engage in articulation discussions between seventh- and eighth-grade teachers. These discussions are used to coordinate the curriculum between the Lincoln Park Middle School and Boonton High School. Boonton has indicated that it will agree to nothing additional except the "bare bones" sending-receiving contract provided by the State. Only the science curriculum is currently being coordinated.

[4] The court declined to review the statute under strict scrutiny, and concluded that the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.2 to Lincoln Park was not irrational. The court reversed the order of the district court, granting summary judgment to Lincoln Park, and remanded the matter with directions that the court grant cross-motions for summary judgment in favor of defendants. See English v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 301 *F.*3d 69 (3d Cir. 2002), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 1148, 123 S. Ct. 852, 154 L. Ed. 2d 851 (2003).

[5] Further, it was held that neither the administrative tribunal nor the Commissioner could enter an award of attorney's fees or legal costs. An appeal is presently pending in the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

Valenza further testified that the two boards have significant differences and approaches to the use of technology, special education and the music program. For example, Lincoln Park is focused on placing computers in every class, whereas Boonton endorses the use of computer labs. Lincoln Park endorses mainstreaming and inclusion of classified students in regular classrooms, which is not being done at Boonton High School.

TESTIMONY

Boonton retained Harry A. Galinsky, Ed.D., in March 2001 to conduct a feasibility study to determine the impact of terminating its sending/receiving relationships. Additionally, Galinsky was to determine whether the severance could meet the statutory criteria in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-56. Dr. Galinsky's credentials and expertise are impressive. He has over forty-five years of experience in public education; he was a long-term teacher, a high school guidance counselor, an elementary and high school administrator, and an assistant to the superintendent. P-1. Furthermore, he was an assistant superintendent for secondary education, deputy superintendent and superintendent in the Paramus and Morris school districts. Galinsky established a successful dropout prevention program and early childhood program to identify at-risk students. He also developed a multifaceted approach to educating a growing number of non-English-speaking students.

Presently, Galinsky is a consultant to various school districts and the Department of Education. He has participated in approximately forty superintendent searches for various school districts. He was a facilitator to twenty communities in eastern Bergen County, including Englewood, Englewood Cliffs and Tenafly. There, he assisted in developing a cooperative plan to encourage voluntary attendance at a regionalized high school and a regional magnet school in Englewood, New Jersey. Additionally, he has been presented as an expert in five or six regionalization or sending/receiving cases. Galinsky has been recognized as an expert witness in the severance of the Dover Township/Mine Hill sending/receiving agreement. Based on his experience and educational background, Dr. Galinsky was recognized herein as an expert in the field of public administration and education.[6]

Dr. Galinsky conducted an in-depth review of the two districts and submitted his report to Boonton in March 2002. In the initial hearings, Galinsky testified that the data contained in his 2001 feasibility report remained sound and relevant. He concludes that severance is appropriate. His findings on the impact on racial composition, the impact on financial conditions and the impact on educational quality are discussed below.

Dr. Joyce Valenza, superintendent of schools for Lincoln Park, also testified in support of the proposed severance. Dr. Valenza has thirty years of educational experience. Prior to her current position, she was assistant superintendent of the Fair Lawn School District. Additionally, she was district supervisor of the Randolph Township School District. Valenza holds certifications as a chief school administrator, principal, supervisor and teacher.[7] Valenza testified about the community benefits from the community having its own high school. Further, she noted that the current students at Boonton High School would be phased into the new high school over four years.

James T. Tevis, business administrator and board secretary for Lincoln Park, provided additional support for the severance. As the business administrator, Tevis is the chief financial officer for the district. As board secretary, he prepares legal notices for board meetings and activities. He also prepares the minutes of the board meetings.

[6] Galinsky received his bachelor of arts degree from Rutgers University, a master's degree from New York University and a doctoral degree from Rutgers University.

[7] Her educational background includes a bachelor of arts in business education and teaching from Montclair State University, a master's degree in administration and supervision, and a doctorate in educational leadership from Nova Southeastern University.

Tevis supported the superintendent's testimony that there exists a negative and contentious relationship between the districts. Specifically, Lincoln Park believed that Boonton was overcharging it for tuition, thus, a lawsuit was filed. Lincoln Park prevailed. See Borough of Lincoln Park Bd. of Educ. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, supra, EDU 5944-02, Initial Decision (April 2, 2003) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Since that time, Lincoln Park has conducted annual audits on the tuition rates. If a new contract is negotiated past 2005-2006, the tuition rate will once again be challenged, resulting in continuing litigation.

Tevis calculates that the cost of a new high school will be some $30.8 million. He anticipates that the district will receive over $7.5 million in State aid, thus leaving a balance of $23.327 million to be funded through local taxes. His findings on the impact to local taxes are discussed below.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-11, "[t]he board of education of every school district which lacks high school facilities within the district . . . shall designate a high school or high schools" outside of the district for the education of its students. Thus, two or more schools may enter into a sending-receiving relationship, whereby a contract is formed between the involved districts for the provision of educational services in exchange for a fixed tuition payment. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.

Severance of a sending-receiving relationship between school districts requires the approval of the commissioner. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood Cliffs v. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood, 257 N.J. Super. 413 (App. Div. 1992), aff'd, 132 N.J. 327, cert. denied, 510 U.S. 991, 114 S. Ct. 547, 126 L. Ed. 2d 449 (1993). Approval is based on the criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, which includes an analysis of whether severance will create a "substantial negative impact." Specifically, the statute provides:

> No such designation of a high school . . . shall be changed or withdrawn . . . except upon application made to and approved by the commissioner. Prior to submitting an application the district seeking to sever the relationship shall prepare and submit a feasibility study, considering the educational and financial implications for the sending and receiving districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils in each of the districts, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of each of the districts. The commissioner shall make equitable determinations based upon consideration of all the circumstances, including the educational and financial implications for the affected districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of the districts. The commissioner shall grant the requested change in designation . . . if no substantial negative impact will result therefrom.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 (emphasis added).]

The determination of whether there will be a substantial negative impact on the educational quality, financial implications, or racial composition of the affected school districts involves weighing and balancing the stated categories. Englewood, supra, 257 N.J. Super. at 461-62. The commissioner may not, however, weigh the overall positive and negative impacts of these categories as a group. Id. at 462. Specifically, Englewood holds:

> The act lays out a series of factors to be considered by the Commissioner as part of a feasibility study including: the educational (offerings) and financial (budgetary) implications for both districts, the impact on the quality of education in both districts, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population in both districts. The Commissioner's responsibility is to reach an "equitable" determination – one that is fair to both districts – keeping in mind his responsibility as the ultimate educational authority in the State. To be sure, the Commissioner may engage in weighing and balancing within each of the stated categories.

> For example, he may assess whether financial losses outweigh financial gains in a proposed move or whether racial balance is improved in one district more than it is negatively affected in the other. However, he is not free to weigh the overall positive and negative impacts of severance or to determine that a substantial negative impact he has found in any category is "outweighed" by a positive impact in another. The reason for this is that the legislatively prescribed considerations do not exist in a vacuum but are inextricably bound up with the question of what kind of an education is to be provided. A substantial negative impact in one category necessarily implicates an overall educational quality issue. The focus of the Commissioner's inquiry is whether a substantial negative impact exists at all; if it does, severance is to be denied.
> [Ibid. (citation omitted).]

Thus, a finding of any substantial negative impact will result in a denial of severance. Only if there is no substantial negative impact on the factors set out in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 will severance be granted.

Impact on Racial Composition

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 requires that the Commissioner consider the impact on the racial composition of the pupil population of both districts. Notably, the Commissioner has concluded that the issue of racial balance is one of utmost importance to the State. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood Cliffs v. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood, supra, 257 N.J. Super. 413, aff'd, 132 N.J. 327, cert. denied, 510 U.S. 991, 114 S. Ct. 547, 126 L. Ed. 449; Bd. of Educ. of Merchantville v. Bd. of Educ. of Pennsauken, St. Bd. (January 7, 1998) <http://www.nj.gov/njded/legal>; Bd. of Educ. of Winfield v. Bd. of Educ. of Rahway, EDU 7138-98, Comm'r (March 2, 2000) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. In those matters, the impact on the racial composition was carefully examined. In Englewood Cliffs, the severance was rejected because of a substantial negative impact on the racial composition and education quality of the high school. There, the Board of Education of Englewood Cliffs sought to sever its sending/receiving relationship with the District of Englewood and enter into a new sending/receiving relationship with the Tenafly Board of Education. The impacted high school, Dwight Morrow High School (DMHS), had 799 students, 21 of whom were from Englewood Cliffs. At that time 11.8% of DMHS students were white, 66.2% were black, 17.8% Hispanic and 3.9% Asian. The 21 Englewood Cliffs students consisted of 15 whites, 4 Asians and 2 Hispanics. If severance were granted, the DMHS would have become 10.2% white, 68% black, 18% Hispanic and 3.5% Asian, resulting in a 1.60% loss of white students at the DMHS. While the proportional loss, a 1.6% decrease of white students, was de minimis, severance was denied because the impact of losing 21 white students was deemed substantial since the high school had so few white and Asian students. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood Cliffs v. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood, supra, 257 N.J. Super. at 440, 441.

Conversely, in Board of Education of Winfield v. Board of Education of Rahway, supra, EDU 7138-98, Comm'r (March 2, 2000) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, it was concluded that termination of a sending-receiving relationship would not have a negative racial impact. There, the severance resulted in a 1.9% decrease in the proportion of white students attending Rahway, and a percentage decrease of the overall white student population of 7.9%. The Commissioner found that these statistical changes did not leave Rahway racially imbalanced. The Commissioner further found that a statistical change in the racial composition of the current receiver is itself not dispositive of whether a significant negative impact will result from severance of the relationship. Instead, "it is imperative that the significance of the statistical change in a particular case be evaluated under 'all of the circumstances.'" Bd. of Educ. of Winfield v. Bd. of Educ. of Rahway, supra, EDU 7138-98, Comm'r (March 2, 2000) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> (citation omitted).

Most recently, the New Jersey Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Petition for Authorization to Conduct a Referendum on the Withdrawal of North Haledon School District from the Passaic County Manchester Regional High School District, 181 N.J. 161 (2004), denied the severance petition of the Borough of North Haledon, which sought to withdraw from the Passaic County Manchester Regional High School District. The regional district consisted of North Haledon, Haledon and Prospect Park. North Haledon sought to withdraw from the district, as its share of the operating costs were dramatically and disproportionally higher than Haledon's or Prospect Park's because it had a higher property tax base than the other two districts. The voters in Haledon and Prospect Park would not agree to an equalized valuation basis based on per-pupil costs, notwithstanding the glaring inequity.[8] In addition to a higher property tax base, North Haledon students were predominantly white. It was estimated that if North Haledon were to leave the district, the white population would decline from 51% to 38%.

The Supreme Court denied the withdrawal of the North Haledon students in order to prevent racial imbalance in the school and prevent any action that would exacerbate racial imbalance. The Court further held that "[n]ot every action that reduces the percentage of white students [in a school district] necessarily implicates the State's policy against segregation in the public schools." However, in this case withdrawal would accelerate a demographic trend. Recognizing the gross inequity to North Haledon from the current valuation, the Court did order the Commissioner of Education and the municipalities to develop an equitable cost apportionment scheme among the three communities. In re the Petition for Authorization to Conduct a Referendum on the Withdrawal of North Haledon Sch. Dist. from Passaic County Manchester Reg'l High Sch. Dist., supra, 181 N.J. at 183.

In the instant case, the 2000 U.S. Census reports the Town of Boonton's population at 8,496, of which 83% is white and about 15% is minorities.[9] The same census reports that Lincoln Park's population of 10,930 is 90% white and 9% minorities.[10] Accordingly, both communities are predominantly white.

Using the projected enrollment figures for 2006-07, Boonton High School, including Lincoln Park students, will be around 77% white and 23% minorities. In comparison, the projected enrollment for Boonton High School without Lincoln Park students will be about 64% white and 36% minorities. As a result, if Lincoln Park

[8] North Haledon's cost per student was $23,000, while the cost per student for Haledon and Prospect Park was $6,000 and $7,000, respectively.

[9] The 2000 U.S. Census provides that Boonton's total population is 84.9% "white alone or in combination," 83% are "white alone," 1.9% are "white in combination," and 15.1% are "not white alone or in combination."

students are permitted to withdraw from Boonton High School, then Boonton will have a 13% reduction in white students and a 13% increase in minorities.

If Lincoln Park has its own high school, then the projected enrollment for 2006-07 will be around 86% white and 14% minorities. This will result in an increase of 9% in the number of white students enrolled compared to a combined enrollment at Boonton High. While there would be a statistical change in the racial composition of Boonton, (the receiving school), this statistical change by itself is not dispositive of whether a significant negative impact will result from the severance.

One factor to be considered is whether the severance will leave a negative perception, as was the case in Englewood. There, it was concluded that the loss of 21 white students from the sending district would result in an implicit message that the receiving school was not good enough for white and Asian students, but acceptable for blacks and Hispanics. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood Cliffs v. Bd. of Educ. of Englewood, supra, 257 N.J. Super. at 440-41. Here, there is no issue, alleged or implied, of "white flight." The projected enrollment for Boonton High School in 2006-07, including Lincoln Park students, will be about 77% white and 23% minorities. Severance will result in the white population decreasing to 64% and the minority population increasing to 36%. As a result, Boonton High School is not "racially imbalanced." Also, the Town of Boonton and the Borough of Lincoln Park are predominantly white, with relatively stable minority populations. Therefore, Boonton High School, excepting the Asian population, is not projected to have a large increase in its minority student enrollment in the foreseeable future. Consequently, I FIND that the proposed severance under this criteria will not result in a substantial negative impact.

Impact on Financial Conditions

It is important to emphasize that it has been held that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 "was never intended to create a revenue source for receiving districts or protect them from tax increases." See Bd. of Educ. of Ho-Ho-Kus v. Bd. of Educ. of Midland Park, 96

[10] The 2000 U.S. Census provides that Lincoln Park's total population is 91.4% "white alone or in combination,"

*N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 964, 972 (quoting Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Boonton v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Boonton, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 235, 244). Accordingly, an increase in taxes does not automatically translate into a substantial negative impact.

In the initial feasibility study, Dr. Galinsky estimated that Boonton High School's anticipated revenue from tuition from Lincoln Park would be $3,163,129 for the 2002 school year.[11] Without the Lincoln Park students, Boonton would be able to reduce its budget by the expected decrease in expenses from the reduction in students. Galinsky projected that the difference between lost tuition and Boonton's operating costs would be $447,280. This "deficit," he opines, would not result in a significant tax increase to the residents of Boonton. Dr. Galinsky's conclusions relied on growth in the number of students at the Academy of Visual and Performing Arts. He projected that the Academy's enrollment would increase to 120 students over the next four years versus the current enrollment of 43. Based on that projected enrollment, he concluded that tuition would increase from $211,259 to $589,560. This increased revenue would be used to cover the deficit left by the termination of the sending-receiving relationship. Based on that assumption, Galinsky concluded that there was no substantial negative impact on the financial condition for Boonton High School since any tax increase on Boonton residents would be minimal. Further, he concluded that Boonton could offset tax increases by decreasing the school budget as a result of reduced costs from less students, and by increasing the enrollment of the students at the Academy.

Galinsky's June 2005 supplemental study acknowledged that the loss of the Academy for Visual and Performing Arts would result in the loss of $481,339 in tuition receipts. Further, the projected increase in students that Galinsky relied on in his initial study no longer holds. Thus, Boonton is looking at an initial decrease in tuition revenues of more than $3.6 million.[12] Galinsky concludes, however, that Boonton can partially offset this loss by cuts in its staff and budget reductions resulting from reduced

90.1% are "white alone," 1.4% are "white in combination," and 8.6% are "not white alone or in combination."

[11] The breakdown of this amount includes: (1) tuition of $9,324 per student x 323 Lincoln Park students; (2) $31,788 paid for six self-contained special education students; and (3) $119,689 for resource center enrollments.

[12] The actual number is 3,678,976, which includes $3,197,638 of tuition from Lincoln Park and $481,338 from the Academy.

enrollment. Further, he notes that Boonton will achieve savings of $144,857 from a special education agreement with the Chancellor Academy.

However, even with reductions, cuts in staff and savings, Boonton still needs $1,144,731 to make up lost tuition in the 2004-05 school year and $1,279,476 for the 2005-06 school year. This shortfall must come from increased property taxes. He calculates that school taxes will increase $.10 per $100 of assessed valuation in 2004 and $.21 per $100 of assessed valuation in 2005. For a homeowner with an average assessment of $175,000, the increase would be $175 in 2004 and $368 in 2005.

Galinsky asserts that the financial impact to Lincoln Park is the cost of constructing a new high school. Business administrator James Tevis testified on the financial impact to Lincoln Park if severance were granted. Tevis was a member of the ad hoc committee that was formed to determine the feasibility of Lincoln Park building its own high school. The committee looked at several sites and determined that a site, Lanes Field, that the district already owns would be appropriate. In his initial testimony Tevis projected that the building expenses would result in an average tax increase of $191.95 for each $100,000 of assessed value. He calculated the operating cost for the new high school to be $57.46 for each $100,000 of assessed value, for a total of approximately $250 per $100,000 of assessed value. Since the average assessed value of Lincoln Park homes is $170,000, he projected a $400 tax increase. R-15. He concludes that this increase is not a substantial negative impact in light of the many benefits the community and students would receive from having their own high school.

Tevis acknowledges that his projections are contingent on three factors: the amount of State aid that the district receives; construction costs per square foot; and the bond interest rate.

At the August 17, 2005, hearing, Tevis updated his testimony. His projected tax increase is now $180 higher, for an increased assessment of $329.36 per $100,000 of assessed value. Tevis asserts that only $40 is attributable to the new high school.

However, he notes that Lincoln Park's tuition is now higher because of the loss of the Academy. Thus, Tevis projects that Lincoln Park will achieve greater savings in tuition costs if the severance is granted.

Impact on Educational Quality

Currently, Boonton High School provides its approximately 600 students with a comprehensive academic program. During the 2001-2002 school year, the school offered 135 general courses and 14 special education courses. The curriculum also includes an applied technology lab and 10 advanced placement courses and honors courses for all academic areas."[13]

Initially, Galinsky conceded that severance would reduce the number of course "sections" offered by the school. However, he found that Boonton would still be able to offer all of the programs offered in its current curriculum. Thus, he concludes that the education quality would not suffer a substantial negative impact because the school would be able to maintain its scope of courses and quality of education.

Additionally, severance would result in a smaller school system for both districts. Indeed, Boonton would lose over half of its student population. Galinsky believes that this loss does not translate into a substantial negative impact to the remaining students because the school would still offer the same courses as prior to severance.

In Board of Education of Bloomingdale v. Board of Education of Butler, 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 553, aff'd, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 151, aff'd, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 843, the State Board of Education recognized that it would be possible for a school losing half its student population to restructure its program so as to continue to educate its students "in some way." Even so, the State Board, quoting the ALJ, recognized that the educational impact would be "negative and substantial because of drastic impact on scope and quality of curricular offerings necessitated by reduction of student population virtually in half." Such a drastic reduction in the student population necessitates a reduction in teachers as well, which also could affect the quality of education.

Galinsky testified to the "school of thought" that favors the creation of smaller schools. Smaller schools will: (1) allow teachers to know their students better; (2) provide an environment that is more conducive to learning; (3) better protect individual students from "falling between the cracks"; (4) allow better performance from teachers working together; and (5) allow better school management. Accordingly, he does not believe that Boonton High School will be negatively impacted by the reduction of students.

Galinsky concedes that the withdrawal of the Lincoln Park and Performing Arts Academy students poses challenges to Boonton as to curriculum offerings; however, he does not believe that it will have a profound adverse effect. A supplemental report concludes that most of the courses currently offered will continue to be offered. Those courses that will be eliminated will have some of the concepts taught in courses that continue to be available. He acknowledges that some classes, however, are being eliminated outright, including Music Appreciation, AP Physics, AP History 1 and 2, AP French, and AP Spanish. The elimination of the AP courses may hinder the college plans of a few students, but these students could still opt to study independently and take the AP examination so as to qualify for the college credit associated with the AP test.

The loss of over half its student population would result in an enrollment of about 308 students at Boonton High. Consequently, some sports teams and extracurricular activities will also have to be eliminated, including golf, tennis, swimming, marching band, the annual musical theater production, and the school's literary magazine. To counter the loss of these activities, Galinsky asserts that the students in a smaller Boonton High School may benefit from a more intimate environment and more individualized attention.

In Board of Education of Bloomingdale v. Board of Education of Butler, supra, 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 553, it was found that where a receiving school would lose almost half of its students if the sending-receiving relationship were severed, the educational impact on the receiving school was negative and substantial because of the drastic impact on the scope and quality of curricular offerings necessitated by the reduction of the student population. The ALJ found that the transmogrification of the receiving school from a comprehensive high school to a small district high school was a negative educational step. Here, the facts are on point with Bloomingdale because Boonton would lose more than half of its student population, requiring it to overhaul current curriculum, which would include losing several advanced placement courses, as well as certain school activities and sports, such as the marching band, tennis and swimming. It is not realistic that students who desire AP classes can study independently. It does not seem likely that students could properly learn these subjects on an advanced level, as required by the AP test.

The changes to the school's curriculum and the loss of so many school activities are drastic changes that would result in undue hardship for those students who attend Boonton High School. While smaller schools may have benefits, there is a real difference when a large, comprehensive high school is converted into a smaller high school in two years. Accordingly, I FIND that the transforming of Boonton High School from a large, comprehensive high school into a small district school will have a substantial negative impact on its educational quality.

Conversely, Lincoln Park, after a phase-in period, will be able to offer a comprehensive academic program for its high-school-level students, including advanced placement courses and all subjects required for entrance into college. Therefore, I FIND that the quality of education at Lincoln Park will not be affected by the withdrawal of the Performing Arts Academy students from Boonton High School. Indeed, severance would have specific benefits for Lincoln Park. The district proposes to move away from the traditional approach to schooling, pursuing articulation agreements with universities, colleges and vocational schools so as to provide its students with "a rich and diverse" curriculum. Further, Superintendent Valenza visualizes computers in every classroom, as opposed to the current computer labs at Boonton. Most importantly, the district would be free to provide the education vision of its own administrators and to decide its own course. Presently, it has no real voice in structuring the educational path of its high school students, notwithstanding that it constitutes the majority.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that under the statutory criteria, the petition for severance must be DENIED because there would be a substantial negative impact on the quality of education for the Boonton School District. However, this recommendation is made with a great deal of reluctance since there are many real benefits, especially to Lincoln Park, from the severance. It is blatantly inequitable that Lincoln Park does not have a real vote on matters that it pays for, that affect the day-to-day operations of the high school, and on the education of its children. This is not what one expects in a democratic society. Unfortunately, I am without jurisdiction to address this gross inequity – that is for the Commissioner and the State Legislature to remedy. However, it is in the best interest of the school districts to do so, to avoid expensive and time-consuming litigation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education appealed the Department's finding of noncompliance as the result of a complaint investigation conducted by the Office of Special Education Programs pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-9.2. The investigation was conducted subsequent to a request from a parent, A.M., who enumerated areas of concern with regard to her son's IEP for the 2001-2002 school year, particularly related to the provision of appropriate technology to improve P.M.'s academic and environmental organizational skills. The parties agreed that the matter was appropriately heard as a contested case before the Commissioner.

The ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision and affirmed the Department's finding of noncompliance and corrective action, concluding that the school district was obligated to provide appropriate assistive technology – at public expense and without charge – in order to meet its federally mandated obligation to provide a "free and appropriate public education" under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. The ALJ did not address the question of Commissioner jurisdiction, concluding that the parties' prior agreement – together with transmittal of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the agency – had resolved the issue. A motion to intervene or participate filed by the parent (A.M.) who initiated the complaint on behalf of her son – raising Commissioner jurisdiction among other issues – was denied by the ALJ, and the Commissioner declined to review the ALJ's ruling on an interlocutory basis.

The Commissioner, upon review of the entire record, expressed serious reservations about her jurisdiction to decide the merits of the matter, and remanded it to the OAL for argument, analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the threshold question of Commissioner jurisdiction. Additionally, solely for purposes of argument on jurisdiction, the Commissioner granted participant status to A.M.

LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision and prior Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on A.M.'s Motion to Intervene or Participate have been reviewed,[1] as have exceptions filed by the Board of Education (Board) and the reply thereto by the Department of Education (Department). These submissions pertain to the merits of the matter, and are not summarized herein for the reasons set forth below.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds – as in a recent appeal of a complaint investigation involving the same parties, Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District v. New Jersey State Department of Education, decided by the Commissioner on March 21, 2006 (Lenape I) – that he has serious reservations regarding any attempt on his part to rule on the merits of this matter. As in Lenape I, the issues herein fundamentally arise out of the IDEA and its interpretation, notwithstanding that they also implicate Department actions and State Board regulations adopted in furtherance of the federal law.

[1] Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(j)2, this order is reviewable at the end of the contested case, where – as here – the Commissioner declined to review it on an interlocutory basis. It is noted that the Initial Decision (at 2) erroneously states that the Commissioner adopted the referenced order, when – in fact – she merely declined to review it interlocutorily. A.M. sought leave from the State Board of Education to appeal the Commissioner's denial of her request for interlocutory review; in a decision dated March 1, 2006, the State Board denied the motion.

Similarly, as in Lenape I, the ALJ again concluded that the question of Commissioner jurisdiction did not need to be addressed at the OAL in light of the fact that: 1) the case was transmitted by the agency; and 2) the parties agreed that such jurisdiction was not an issue in dispute. However, as the Commissioner held in Lenape I, party agreement cannot confer jurisdiction where none exists, and the act of transmittal does not in itself foreclose further inquiry where the need for it becomes apparent, as it has here.

Although the existing record in this matter contains – as it did in Lenape I – substantial argument on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction in the context of briefing on A.M.'s motion to intervene or participate, the Commissioner is no less loathe in this instance to decide so critical an issue without benefit of full adversarial argument and an initial analysis with recommended conclusions of the law by the OAL.

Therefore, prior to any possible consideration of the merits of this matter, the Commissioner has determined, as in Lenape I, to: 1) grant A.M.'s motion to participate, but solely on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction; and 2) remand this matter to the OAL so that the argument, analysis and recommendations necessary for the Commissioner to decide the threshold jurisdictional issue on the most informed basis possible may be developed with A.M.'s participation. Once again, A.M.'s participation will add constructively to the case, since she alone is presenting an adversarial perspective on the question of jurisdiction, and it will not delay or confuse the matter because the Commissioner would – even without her involvement – seek further exploration of the jurisdictional question before issuing a final ruling in this matter; moreover, as a parent of disabled child(ren), A.M. has a significant interest in the outcome of a matter implicating the process by which such parents may seek to resolve complaints against school districts. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6(a)-(b). In light of these considerations, the Commissioner deems it appropriate for A.M. to have the opportunity to argue orally, file statement(s) or brief(s), and file exceptions to the Initial Decision on Remand. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6(c). Lenape I, supra.

Accordingly, the Order of the ALJ denying A.M.'s request to intervene or participate in this matter is rejected to the extent that it does not allow A.M. to participate on the question of Commissioner jurisdiction, and the matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for the limited purpose of argument, analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the question of jurisdiction as set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. EDU 735-03
AGENCY REF NO 27-1/03

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION (OSEP),

Respondent.

Susan S. Hodges, Esq., for petitioner, (Archer & Greiner, attorneys)

Carolyn Grace Labin, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Zulima V. Farber, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: March 6, 2006 Decided: March 13, 2006

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals from an OSEP compliance investigation finding that petitioner Lenape failed to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1 et seq., to Lenape student, P.M., on account of Lenape's district requirement that P.M.'s parents sign a Bailment Agreement prior to the release of school property for out-of-school use. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 6, 2003, for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14 B-1 to -15. P.M.'s parent, A.M., subsequently moved before the undersigned to intervene and/or participate in the within matter. That motion was denied. On December 23, 2005, the Commissioner adopted the undersigned's Order denying AM's motion. On February 1, 2006, the State Board of Education denied A.M.'s motion for leave to appeal the Commissioner's decision.

The parties do not contest jurisdiction of the within matter and have submitted same on cross-motions for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Final responsive pleadings in that regard were received on March 6, 2006, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The facts in this matter should not be in dispute and shall constitute FINDINGS OF FACT.

P.M. was an 18-year-old Lenape student eligible to receive special education and related services. On July 14, 2001, P.M.'s IEP team met in order to develop his IEP for the 2001-2002 school year. Pursuant to a settlement reached in federal District Court, P.M. was placed in an out-of-district school, the Pine Ridge School in Williston, Vermont. His IEP contained two entries relevant to the issue in dispute. With regard to the section titled "Individualized Educational Program Conference Report,"[1] the following is indicated:

[1] See Affidavit of Michael Comman, Ph.D., exhibit B, at page 33.

> (P) received an assistive technology evaluation on April 24, 2001 to determine the most appropriate technology to improve his academic and environmental organizational skills including note-taking and writing skills. Suggestions included a reading and writing support program, a numeric processor, money software, an interactive algebra computer game, an interactive geometry computer game, a digital recorder with indexing, and a hand held graphic organizer. (P) is in agreement that the language arts computer program and the graphics organizer would be helpful. The District is in agreement with these two recommendations (Handspring PDA and Text Help Read and Write). In order for assistive technology to be successfully implemented, there must be uniformity across (P)'s educational curriculum and his home. The District accepts this report and is in agreement with the two recommendations that (P) is interested in exploring (Handspring PDA $249 and Text Help Read and Write software $249).

The second discussion appears under the heading of "Special Factors; Assistive Technology."[2] It provides:

> Received evaluation 4/24/01. Does not need assistive technology devices and/or services; would benefit from use of Handspring PDA to improve organizational skills at home and in school and Text Help Read and Write software.

At the meeting, Lenape advised A.M. that it would provide P.M. the Handspring PDA but that "like all other Lenape students,"[3] P.M. would be responsible for the care and maintenance of the equipment and his parents would be required to sign a Bailment Agreement before the equipment could be released to P.M. Lenape purchased the Handspring PDA equipment for P.M. The Bailment Agreement provided essentially that the parent of the recipient would agree to be held liable for loss, damage or failure to return the equipment. A.M. refused to sign the Bailment Agreement; the Handspring PDA equipment was thus not provided to P.M.

On June 18, 2002, July 17, 2002 and August 13, 2002, A.M., on behalf of P.M., requested OSEP conduct a compliance investigation into 24 separate, enumerated areas of concern with regard to P.M.'s IEP for the 2001-2002 school year. With regard to the matter at issue, OSEP conducted an investigation, which included several phone interviews with the complainant, a review of documentation provided by the district and interviews with district personnel during a site visit on September 4, 2002. The factual findings from the investigation are essentially those indicated herein. Along with the conclusions, all were contained in the Complaint Investigation Report. (R-1)[4] The conclusions reached provided, in relevant part:

> (b)ecause the IEP team determined that in order for PM to receive a free, appropriate public education the software and the Handspring PDA was listed in the IEP as an IEP requirement, the district was required to provide it. A district board of education cannot condition a free and appropriate public education on the parent's ability to be willing to pay for an assistive technology device should repairs be necessary.
> Therefore, because the district failed to provide assistive technology required by the IEP of a student with disabilities, the district is determined to be noncompliant.

The corrective action required the district reimburse the complainant the cost of the Handspring PDA, as AM had purchased one after the district refused to provide one until the bailment agreement was signed. The district was further directed to provide P.M. Text Help Read and Write software. [5]

LEGAL ANALYSIS

In support of its motion for summary decision, respondent asserts its finding of non-compliance was consistent with state and federal law and must be upheld as reasonable. Since the IEP team determined the Handspring PDA to be necessary and included it on P.M.'s IEP, the district is obligated to provide it without the requirement that a parent sign a bailment agreement as the Individual with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) guarantees a "free appropriate public education" (FAPE) and that has been interpreted as special education and related services that have been provided at public expense under public supervision and direction, without charge, and meeting the standards of the state education agency and conforming to the student's IEP. 20 U.S.C. §1401(9)(A)-(D); N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1(d)(1).

[4] See attachment to February 21, 2006, letter brief submitted by respondent.

Petitioner asserts in opposition to this motion and in support of its cross-motion for summary decision that first, the IEP provided that P.M. did "not need" assistive technology but "would benefit from use of Handspring PDA;" second, it complied with the IEP by purchasing the equipment; and third, it complied with Lenape's policy which requires any student accepting equipment to sign a Bailment Agreement. To have done otherwise, petitioner asserts, would mean the district treated P.M. in a discriminatory fashion because of his eligibility for special education and related services. With regard to the OSEP compliance investigation, petitioner asserts the importance of Lenape's policy regarding the Bailment Agreement and the fact that it refused to treat P.M. in a disparate manner with regard to the Bailment Agreement was not adequately considered by OSEP in finding non-compliance. Further, petitioner asserts summary decision should be granted in its favor because it complied with the IEP by purchasing the equipment for P.M. The IEP does not exempt P.M. from complying with the district's requirement regarding the Bailment Agreement.

The resolution of this matter does not center upon the purported disparate treatment of P.M., if as a student eligible for special education, he, unlike other typically developing students, was not required to sign a Bailment Agreement prior to the release of equipment. I FIND that the district was "in agreement" with the April 24, 2001, assistive technology evaluation recommendations for the Handspring PDA and the Text Help Read and Write. Further, the district recognized that "in order for assistive technology to be successfully implemented, there must be uniformity across (P)'s educational curriculum and his home. The District accepts this report... ." In order to meet its federally mandated obligation to provide FAPE, special education and related services are to be provided at public expense without charge and in conformity with an IEP that meets the requirement of IDEA. 20 U.S.C. § 1401 (8), 34 C.F.R. 300.13 (a)(d). Thus, once the IEP team accepted the assistive technology as recommended by the evaluation, it was obligated to provide it to P.M. without any requirement of a Bailment Agreement which might entail a future cost on his part. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, Respondent's motion for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 is hereby GRANTED. Respondent's finding of non-compliance and corrective action is hereby AFFIRMED. Petitioner's cross motion for summary decision is hereby DENIED and its appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." WHEREAS, on November 23, 2004, after exhausting the Office of Compliance's appeal process, Golden Door filed a petition of appeal challenging the Department's September 1, 2004 final determination regarding the Report of Examination with the Commissioner of Education and the matter was subsequently transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case; and

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case in March 2004. The petition of appeal sought reimbursement of legal fees incurred in defense of criminal charge against Moss who by then was deceased. Some delays were caused by the need to correct the filing to indicate the petitioner (the estate) was properly represented by either an administrator or an executor. Thereafter, as a result of discussions between newly engaged board counsel and the attorney for the estate the terms of a settlement were reached. A Stipulation of Settlement and Release has now been submitted to me for review which is attached hereto and made a part hereof. Record Closed: March 10, 2006 Decided: March 14, 2006

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case in March 2005. The petition of appeal alleged that the respondent had refused to indemnify petitioner for legal fees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. Thereafter, discussions were conducted with counsel concerning the dispute and the terms and conditions of a tentative settlement were reached. A Stipulation of Settlement and Release has now been submitted to me for review which is attached hereto and made a part hereof. That document sets forth the agreement made between the parties concerning an amicable resolution of the matter. Also attached is an extract of the minutes of the Board of Education of East Orange meeting of February 14, 2006 at which time the instant settlement was approved.

I have reviewed the terms of the Settlement Agreement and I FIND as follows:

(1) The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures which appear thereon, together with the Board Resolution;

(2) The Settlement Agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

Therefore, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SUBJECT: Immigrant Student Count - 2005

Title III requires that states reserve a portion of their Title III funds for school districts that have experienced a significant increase in the percentage or number of immigrant children and youth who have enrolled in the public and nonpublic elementary schools and secondary schools in the geographic areas under their jurisdiction. The purpose of the funds is to pay for activities that provide enhanced instructional opportunities for immigrant children and youth to help them attain English proficiency, to help them meet the same challenging academic standards as all children, and to help them with their transition to American society.

This memorandum is to inform you that the immigrant student enrollment count is now available online. Please be aware that there has been a change in the way the immigrant student data will be collected; the data will be collected via the Internet and back-up information must also be provided by mail. You must complete both the online data collection as well as the supporting documentation in order to be considered for funding.

In order to be eligible for a possible grant allocation, districts must meet the following criteria:

- The district's combined public and nonpublic school immigrant student enrollment in February 2005 must represent at least a 2% increase as compared to the average immigrant enrollment of the two preceding years: February 2003 and 2004.

- Districts must have a total public and nonpublic school enrollment of 20 or more immigrant students in February 2005.

- Districts must be eligible for Title III funds. In order to be eligible, districts must have received a $10,000 or greater Title III allocation or be part of a consortium that receives an allocation of at least this amount.

The federal regulations define immigrant students as those who:

- are aged three to 21;
- were not born in any state, Puerto Rico, or the U.S. Virgin Islands (St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John); and
- have not been attending one or more schools in any one or more states for more than three full academic years.

If you would like to be considered for funding for FY 2006, please submit your district's immigrant student enrollment data to the New Jersey Department of Education at http://homeroom.state.nj.us (ISGE) where all current web-based DOE data collection systems reside. On the immigrant count data collection homepage (ISGE), you will find the following to assist you in completing the immigrant student enrollment information:

- Welcome to New Users;
- User Manual;
- Immigration Count Form;
- Frequently Asked Questions;
- Data Entry Instructions; and
- System Requirements.

The immigrant student count must be submitted via the Internet to the Department of Education by March 18, 2005. In addition to the immigrant student enrollment submitted online, you must complete back-up forms and mail them to the New Jersey Department of Education. The immigrant student data collection forms and instructions can also be accessed on the department's website at http://homeroom.state.nj.us and click on ISGE. The forms must be received no later than March 31, 2005.

The information requested on the forms is as follows:

- the number of eligible immigrant students (Pre K-12) enrolled in the school district;
- the number of eligible immigrant students enrolled in nonprofit, nonpublic schools within the district; and
- the countries of origin of the immigrant students.

You need to submit this information only if you intend to be considered for funding. In order to be eligible for funding, districts must have a 2% or greater increase in the percentage of immigrant children and youth enrolled in the public and nonpublic schools in the district as compared to the average of the February 2003 and February 2004 student immigrant enrollment count submitted to the department. The deadline for receipt of the online data is March 18, 2005 and the supporting documentation is March 31, 2005.

Please mail, fax, or e-mail the completed back-up forms to the Department of Education by March 31, 2005. Forms must be submitted to:

Record Closed: March 9, 2006 Decided: March 9, 2006

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ

Petitioners, officers of the Camden City District Parent Advisory Council (DPAC) filed a petition for emergency relief alleging that the City of Camden Board of Education has improperly interfered with the DPAC membership's nomination, election, and installation of officers. Among other things, petitioners have requested an order directing the Board to permit the election of the then-unopposed slate of officers approved on October 31, 2005.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 8, 2006, for a hearing on the requested emergent relief. The hearing was scheduled for March 9, 2006, at which time the parties entered into the following settlement of the dispute that was placed on the taped record:

1. The election and installation of the slate of officers approved by the DPAC membership on October 31, 2005, shall be held on March 16, 2006.
2. The parties understand and agree that this shall be a special election and that the officers shall serve a one-year-term instead of the two-year-terms provided for in the DPAC's bylaws.
3. The DPAC shall convene meetings of its executive committee and general membership as soon as is practicable to review and, it is anticipated, revise its bylaws with regard to the minimum qualifications of candidates for office.

Having had an opportunity to voir dire the parties on the record, I am satisfied and therefore find that they have voluntarily agreed to this settlement, which is the entire settlement, and that no separate understandings or verbal or written agreements have been made. And I further find that the settlement is reasonable, fully disposes of all issues in controversy, and is consistent with the law. Accordingly, I ORDER that the parties comply with the Settlement Agreement and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF SONIA VELEZ, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF HUDSON : DECISION

COUNTY SCHOOLS OF TECHNOLOGY. :

SYNOPSIS

The Board filed tenure charges against respondent – a tenured secretarial staff member – for incapacity, chronic and excessive absenteeism, and other just cause. Respondent admits that she has been absent from her secretarial duties since April 15, 1999, and asserts that her absence is the result of work-related illness. Respondent further asserts that tenure charges should be held in abeyance pending the final outcome of her Workers' Compensation actions against the Board. The parties requested a disposition of the matter via Summary Decision.

The ALJ found that: the issue of incapacity is conceded by the respondent, and that respondent is incapacitated from performing the duties of her secretarial position; there are no genuine issues of material fact in this matter that would preclude a grant of Summary Decision, and the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Furthermore, the ALJ concluded that: there is no conflict with tenure charges being resolved while worker's compensation claims are still pending; the Board has established that the tenure charges are well supported by evidence; the respondent should be permanently removed from her tenured secretarial position with the Board.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's determination that the tenure charges against respondent have been sustained and, therefore, summary decision – calling for respondent's dismissal from her tenured secretarial position due to excessive and chronic absenteeism, incapacity and other just cause – is appropriately granted to the Board. In so deciding, the Commissioner emphasizes, inter alia, that – regardless of whether or not respondent is ultimately determined to have sustained an injury or illness arising out of her employment – the status of her workers compensation claims are irrelevant to the determination of the tenure charge of incapacity. Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that Sonia Velez be dismissed from her tenured secretarial employment with the Hudson County Schools of Technology as of the date of this decision.

AGENCY DKT NO. 54-2/05

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF SONIA VELEZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF HUDSON	:	DECISION
COUNTY SCHOOLS OF TECHNOLOGY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the District's reply thereto, filed in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching a determination herein.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate her sole argument advanced below, again contending that it was inappropriate for these charges to go forward until a determination is issued by Workers' Compensation as to whether a work-related injury or illness was the cause of her extensive absences. Citing to Neptune Twp. Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, 1989 S.L.D. 2086 and Smith v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, 1989 S.L.D. 1506, respondent maintains that when absence related tenure charges are filed against an employee, a board may not merely rely on the sheer number of absences but, additionally, must take into consideration the reason for such absences. Should Workers' Compensation ultimately decide that respondent became unable to perform her duties due to a work-related injury, respondent professes that this would significantly impact the examination of the propriety of the Board's charges and any possible sanction. (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-2)

In reply, the Board urges that respondent's exception must be rejected. Contrary to her intimation, it professes, the Initial Decision obviously reflects that the Board did not rely on the sheer number of absences in bringing its charges against respondent. As presented by the ALJ (Initial Decision 12-14), the totality of factors surrounding these absences were thoroughly considered, not the least of which were the considerably long period of time involved and the accommodations provided respondent by the Board – including the deferring of action against her – to facilitate her return to work. (Board's Reply Exceptions at 3) The Board further proposes that the ALJ's rejection of respondent's contention that the instant tenure charges must be placed in abeyance until her Worker's Compensation matters have been determined is entirely consistent with the facts in this case and the settled law on this issue. Whatever the outcome is in that forum, it is without question that the underlying facts here – warranting respondent's removal from her position – remain unaltered and unaffected. By respondent's own admission, she has been absent from her position for almost 7 years and has no plans to return to work. As accurately observed by the ALJ in her decision, the Board submits, "[t]he charges are supported by evidence; [t]here are reasons for the alleged chronic and excessive absences, incapacity or other just causes that are good reasons, but [these] will not negate the facts of the case which show without dispute that Respondent is incapacitated and can not perform her duties." (Initial Decision at 17) (Board's Reply Exceptions at 4)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's determination that the tenure charges against respondent have been sustained and, therefore, summary decision – calling for respondent's dismissal from her tenured secretarial position due to excessive and chronic absenteeism, incapacity and other just cause – is appropriately granted to the Board.

In so determining, the Commissioner initially notes – as was correctly observed by respondent in her exceptions – that when pursuing absence related tenure charges against one of its employees, a Board may not rely solely on the sheer number of absences to justify the termination of the employee but, rather must demonstrate that:

> [t]here was consideration of (1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences, (2) the impact that the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred, not merely after the fact, and (3) that there be some warning given to the employee that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Michele Hernandez, School District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, decided by the Commissioner October 15, 2001, citing In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Lena White, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 157, 161.

Review of the ALJ's analysis of these factors, based on the stipulated facts in this matter and applicable case law (Initial Decision 13-14), persuades the Commissioner that the Board has satisfied its burden in this regard.

Next, it is undisputed that respondent has been continuously absent from her secretarial position since May 7, 1999; during this period, she was – and continues to be – incapable of performing her work duties, and cannot now, almost seven years later, forecast when – or whether – she may ever be able to return to her position. Notwithstanding that respondent concedes that she is, in fact, incapacitated from performing her job, she – nonetheless – mistakenly harbors a belief that the tenure charges to this effect are "premature," as her workman's compensation actions claiming that such incapacity is a result of a work-connected illness or injury have not yet been resolved. It is by now axiomatic that action can be taken against a tenured individual for excessive absenteeism even if such were the result of a work-related illness or injury. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Jabour, School District of the Delaware Valley Regional High School District, Hunterdon County, decided by the Commissioner January 8, 1999; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Phyllis Stanley, Board of Education of Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County, 1995 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 495; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Grace Folger, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner May 15, 2000. Moreover, that respondent's lengthy absence may be related to her claims of work-related illness or injury is of no consequence whatsoever in this matter. As found in Stanley, supra.:

> [w]hether or not [respondent] is ultimately determined to have sustained an injury [or illness] arising out of her employment with the petitioner, is irrelevant to the determination of the certified tenure charge of incapacity. "Incapacity" as identified in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 relates to the inability to perform a position, irrespective of the cause of the inability to work. (at 498)

The Commissioner concludes that although a favorable decision from the Division of Worker's Compensation would entitle respondent to the full measure of remedies available under that body of law, it will in no way affect respondent's status as an individual who is incapable of performing the duties of her employment.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as expounded upon above, is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner hereby directs that Sonia Velez be dismissed from her tenured secretarial employment with the Hudson County Schools of Technology as of the date of this decision.

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter involves tenure charges filed against Sonia Velez (Respondent), a tenured secretary employed by the Hudson County Schools of Technology Board of Education, (Petitioner/Board). On January 18, 2005 Frank J. Gargiulo, Superintendent of Schools filed sworn tenure charges with the Board. On February 17, 2005 the Board certified the charges to the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq. On February 22, 2005 the sworn tenure charges were filed by the Board with the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 et. seq. Petitioner's tenure charges against Respondent are for excessive and chronic absenteeism, incapacity and other just causes. Respondent does not dispute her attendance record, but contends that her inability to work stems from an illness connected to environmental exposures at her assigned worksite which was designated by the Board.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transferred from the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes to the Office of Administrative Law on March 18, 2005 as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. An In-Person Pre-Hearing conference was scheduled for April 7 and 22, 2005 and the initial de novo hearing dates were set for June 10, 27, July 6 and August 24 2005. Counsel for the parties, mutually requested a postponement of the hearing dates due to a need for additional discovery time; the request was granted. Thereafter, the parties requested a disposition of the matter via Summary Decision. Oral arguments scheduled for February 9 and 10, 2006 were waived and the parties request for disposition of the matter via Summary Decision was granted with the provision that briefs and documents in support of the Motions for Summary Decision be exchanged between the parties and received by the undersigned by the close of business on February 28, 2006. All briefs and supporting documents were timely received and the record closed on February 28, 2006.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved in this matter regarding the Hudson County Schools of Technology Board of Education's four (4) charges against a tenured secretary for alleged excessive absenteeism, chronic absenteeism and incapacity and/or other just cause resulting in a determination that termination of employment is warranted, are:

(1) Whether the charges are supported by evidence;

(2) Whether there are reasons for the alleged chronic and excessive absences, incapacity or other just causes, which could be considered good cause(s) or reasons for excused absences;

(3) Whether, based on the findings in (1) and (2) above, should Respondent permanently be removed from her tenured secretarial position with the Board?

THE CHARGES

Tenure Charge 1: Certified by the Board on February 17, 2005 - alleges that Respondent had been absent from her position as a secretary since May 7, 1999;

MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

When considering a Motion for Summary Decision, this tribunal must determine whether the pleadings, the answers to interrogatories, admissions and affidavits demonstrate that no genuine issue of material fact exists. Motions for Summary Decision are the administrative counterpart to Summary Judgment and should be granted if the pleadings, discovery and certifications "show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. It is well-established that where no disputed issues of material fact exist, an administrative agency need not hold an evidential hearing in a contested case. Frank v. Ivv Club, 120 N.J. 73, 98, citing Cunningham v. Dept. of Civil Service, 69 N.J. 13, 24-25 (1975). Moreover, disputes as to the conclusions to be drawn from the facts, as opposed to the facts themselves, will not defeat a motion for summary judgment. Contini v. Bd. of Ed. of Newark, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 196, 215, Contini v. Board of Education 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121(App. Div. 1995). Citing Lima and Sons. Inc. v. Borough of Ramsey, 269 N.J.Super. 469,478 (App. Div. 1994). In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 NJ. 520, 541 (1995) the New Jersey Supreme Court encouraged trial courts to grant summary judgment whenever the proper circumstances present themselves. When the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail, courts should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Brill, at 540.

In the instant matter, Respondent does not offer disputed facts or documentation showing contradictory findings of the issues raised in the Petition. In fact, Respondent herein stipulates to the accuracy of the hiring, tenure and attendance history submitted by Petitioner.

An adverse party's mere reliance on arguments in a brief and the bare allegations of the complaint, without more is insufficient to create a genuine issue of fact. LaRusso, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 506 (citations omitted); Camuso v. City of Newark, OAL Docket No. CSV 3667-98, 1999 WI 1189096 (OAL October 26, 1999) (Initial Decision). Baran v. Clouse Trucking, Inc., 225 N.J. Super. 230, 234 (App. Div.) certif. denied, 113 N.J. 353 (1988). Moreover, an adverse party's "misguided subjective belief", without more are also insufficient to create a fact issue. In the Matter of Bergen Pines County Hospital Layoff, OAL Docket Nos. CSV 11139-98 et. al., 2000 WI 17384830 (OAL November 8, 2000) (Initial Decision) (citation omitted).

Relevant to the inquiry regarding a motion for summary decision is whether the competent evidential materials which have been presented, when viewed in the light of the most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issues in favor of the non-moving party. Brill at 540. In, Board of Education of Woodbury v New Jersev State Department of Education, OAL Docket No. EDU 8072-03 (March 15, 2004), citing Bowles v City of Camden, 993 F. Supp 255, 261 (DNJ 1998), the court noted that: If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied.

Respondent has not submitted competent evidence that would create a genuine issue of material fact, which could only be determined by an evidentiary hearing. In response to Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision, Respondent submits a letter memorandum dated February 17, 2006 which does not dispute the attendance records or the fact that documents have been submitted which suggest that Respondent may be physically unable to perform her duties due to an illness caused by environmental exposures at Petitioner's worksite. Respondent's contentions regarding the actual cause(s) for her alleged physical inability to perform her duties were not substantiated by laboratory findings or her physicians' letter. The physician's letter indicates that Respondent's illness is "most likely due to environmental exposures".

No reliable evidence was submitted to give credence to Respondent's contention that the suspected environment, the school district location, is actually the cause of an illness, and/or a work-related illness for Respondent. Therefore, without verification of statements made by Respondent's physician, it is reasonable to believe that the statements made in Respondents reply to the Motion for Summary Decision were unsubstantiated and speculative. In order for the non-movant to prevail, a responding affidavit must be offered setting forth specific facts, which indicate that there is a genuine issue of a material fact that can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practices, § 194 at 202 (Lefelt) (1988). The instant case is void of such an affidavit. The United States Supreme Court in Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317 (1986l) explained that "one of the principal purposes of the summary judgment rule is to isolate and dispose of factually unsupported claims or defenses, and we think it should be interpreted in a way that allows it to accomplish this purpose." Celotex at 323-324.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

CHRONIC AND EXCESSIVE ABSENTEEISM

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 -

> Tenure of secretaries, assistant secretaries, school business administrators, business managers and secretarial and clerical employees
> a. Any secretary, assistant secretary, school business administrator or business manager of a board of education of any school district who has or shall have devoted his full time to the duties of his office and has or shall have served therein for three consecutive calendar years, and

b. Any person holding any secretarial or clerical position or employment under a board of education of any school district or under any officer thereof, after

1. The expiration of a period of employment of three consecutive calendar years in the district or such shorter period as may be fixed by the board or officer employing him, or

2. Employment for three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year, an academic year being the period between the time when school opens in the district after the general summer vacation and the beginning of the next succeeding summer vacation, and

c. Any person, who has acquired, or shall hereafter acquire, tenure in any secretarial or clerical office, position or employment under the board of education of a school district and has been appointed district clerk or secretary, or shall hereafter be appointed secretary of said district, as such secretary, shall hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 – DISMISSAL

Dismissal and reduction in compensation of persons under tenure in public school system

No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,

(a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, or

(b) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teacher or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner;

except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to > act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

Tenure laws are designed to protect employees from unwarranted political interference and from arbitrary and capricious treatment, however they are not an infinite protection. In Kasony v. Lawrence Township Board of Ed., OAL Docket No. EDU 2680-99 (On Remand) EDU 10490-98), (June 8, 1999), affirmed Commissioner Decision, July 22, 1999, indicating that excessive absenteeism may be grounds for tenure dismissal. In Tenure Hearing of Edith Trautwein, OAL Docket. No. EDU 9692-82 (1983), the Board certified five charges against a tenured teacher including a charge of excessive absenteeism and the court found there was a right to impose discipline because of the pattern of excessive absences constituted unbecoming conduct. The Commissioner determined that excessive absenteeism can constitute a tenure charge. Also, in Hernandez v. City of Elizabeth School District, OAL Docket. No. EDU 3126-01 (2001) the court found that excessive absenteeism constitutes valid grounds for dismissal of a tenured secretary. Excessive absenteeism must be determined by each school district and must be shown as reasonable. Trautwein, supra However, "excessive or chronic absenteeism of a tenured employee, even if related to legitimate medical or health problems, has been held to constitute "incapacity", "unbecoming conduct" and/or "just cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, so as to warrant dismissal from employment. In order to terminate a tenured employee for excessive absenteeism, the Board must demonstrate that:

> there was consideration of (1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences, (2) the impact that the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred, not merely after the fact, and (3) that there be some warning given to the employee that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences. Hernandez citing Tenure Hearing of Lena White. 92 NJ.A.R. 2d (EDU) 157. 161.

PARTICULAR CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE ABSENCES – the parties have stipulated to the germane facts of this case and are in agreement that Respondent has been absent from work for six years, which amounts to chronic and excessive. Respondent and her doctor provided correspondence, as stipulated in the Joint Stipulation of Facts, which indicates that Respondent will not be returning to work. A tenured employee may be dismissed when the underlining reasons for the absenteeism indicate there is a likelihood that the conduct will continue in the future. State-Operated School District of Jersey City v. Pellecchio, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 267, affd, N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 30 (Pellecchio); Passaic Ed. of Educ. v. Vianid (EDU) 76 (Viani).

Petitioner was aware of Respondent's health issues and thus the reason for extending her leave of absence. Respondent failed to return to her position in January 2000 when the leave expired. Thereafter she reported her inability to work in the assigned building and Petitioner offered her a position elsewhere in the district. Respondent did not accept the offer.

IMPACT OF ABSENCES ON SCHOOL DISTRICT OPERATIONS - In Stanley v. FreeholdRegional School District 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 495 (1995), the court agreed with the school board's contention that the secretarial support staff is important to the effective operation of a school district and found a significant negative effect of an absence of such a support staff member for a period exceeding two years. Respondent's chronic and excessive absences are significantly longer - six (6) years. Petitioner identified the negative effect on the operation of the district and in particular, at the high school where Respondent was assigned – including the need for the Board to plan for its clerical and secretarial needs around Respondent's absences; leaving a tenured secretarial spot open for six (6) years in the event Respondent were to return to her position; making arrangements for an accommodation to place Respondent in a different school within the district, which she refused; and by re-extending leave time in good faith for six years, while initially believing Respondent would return.

NOTIFICATION OF UNACCEPTABLE ABSENCES – in the Joint Stipulation of Facts the parties agree that on a number of occasions the Superintendent periodically contacted Respondent to learn whether she would be returning to her position. During each contact Respondent said she was unable to return to her position and did not know when she would be able to return. Petitioner makes payment of Respondent's medical benefits as Respondent's absences continue. As of the time of completion of this Summary Decision, Respondent continued to be absent from her position because she remains incapacitated.

INCAPACITATION – > NJ.S.A. 18A:6-10 b) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teacher or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner;

> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.

Chronic and excessive absenteeism may constitute incapacity and unbecoming conduct, as well as just cause warranting suspension or dismissal, even in instances where the absences were caused by legitimate medical reasons and where leaves of absence and sick days were approved. Trenton Board Of Education V. Williamson, 1986 S.L.D. 1462; Stanley v.

Freehold Regional School District 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 495 (1995). Stanley is similar to Respondent's instant case, since Ms. Stanley a tenured clerk with the Freehold Regional School District filed an incident report alleging a work related injury which she described as "severe depression". A doctor's note indicated that Ms. Stanley's condition was triggered when she was in contact with work. As a result, Ms. Stanley was absent from her position, and exhausted all of her sick, vacation and holiday time. Thereafter she requested and was granted an unpaid medical leave of absence under the FLMA. An additional leave of absence was requested and denied. When Ms. Stanley's leave of absence expired, she failed to return to her position and provided no indication to the Board that she planned to return to her position. She notified the board that she would not attend a scheduled meeting (because of her health) to discuss her intentions. Tenure charges of abandonment and incapacity were certified by the Board. The court found that the Board had not met the abandonment charge, but had met its burden with respect to the charge of incapacity, and she was dismissed on that basis. In Stanley incapacity is related to the inability to perform a duty despite the cause of the inability.

In Kasony, supra, certified tenure charges for excessive absenteeism and incapacity were brought against a custodian who was injured in the course of his employment and had been absent from his position for three years. The Board argued that the Respondent's incapacity was established as a matter of law because of his excessive and chronic absences and therefore dismissal should be on those grounds unless evidence was available to prove he could return to work. The court relied on Stanley in reaching a decision.

In Delaware Valley Regional High School District Board of Education v. Jabour, OAL Docket No.EDU 08524-98S,(1998), the board sought to remove a tenured industrial arts teachers because of incapacitation and no indication that his condition would improve. The Court found that the matter was ripe for Summary Decision because the material issue regarding the ability to perform the job was resolved. In the instant matter Respondent stipulates that she is incapacitated from performing her secretarial duties which are required in her position.

RIPENESS OF TENURE CHARGES WHILE WORKER'S COMPENSATION CLAIM REMAINS OPEN –

A total of five Worker's Compensation claims have been filed by Respondent between July 23, 1999 and June 27, 2000 and all remain pending. The cause of Respondent's illness and the resolution of the Worker's Compensation matters have no relevancy in determining the appropriate penalty due to a finding of incapacity. In Stanley, supra the Commissioner of Education agreed. A Summary Decision in this matter will not an impact on the disposition of claims in the Worker's Compensation court.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

Based on the undisputed facts, the Joint Stipulation of Facts, briefs and additional letter memoranda offered in support or in opposition of Summary Decision, I FIND that the issue of incapacity is conceded, and there are no material facts in dispute. I further FIND that Respondent is incapacitated from performing the duties of her secretarial position.

Having considered the competent evidential materials presented in the light mist favorable to the non-moving party, I CONCLUDE that no genuine issue of material fact exists to preclude the grant of a Summary Decision in this case and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. I also CONCLUDE that there is no conflict with tenure charges being resolved while worker's compensation claims are still pending since one case has no bearing on the other. I further CONCLUDE that Petitioner has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Hudson County Schools of Technology Board of Education's four (4) charges against the tenured secretary herein for alleged excessive absenteeism, chronic absenteeism and incapacity and/or other just cause should result in a determination that termination of employment is warranted, because:

The charges are supported by evidence;

There are reasons for the alleged chronic and excessive absences, incapacity or other just causes, which are good causes and reasons, but will not negate the facts of the case which show without dispute that

Respondent is incapacitated and cannot perform her duties;

Based on the findings in (1) and (2) above, the Respondent should permanently be removed from her tenured Secretarial position with the Board, on the grounds of excessive absenteeism, incapacity and/or other just cause.

4. Within thirty (30) business days of the complete execution of this Settlement Agreement and General Release, the Board agrees to pay Holmes the gross sum of $38,248.95, less all applicable taxes, representing his back pay for the period of April 5, 2005 through January 31, 2006, plus all accrued sick and/or vacation time to which he may be entitled to as a result of his previous employment with the Board.
5. In consideration of the payment outlined in Paragraph 4 hereof, Holmes agrees to never seek reemployment or assert any tenure status with the Board at any time in the future in any capacity. Although the Board does not admit nor acknowledge that Holmes is a tenured employee of the Board, and in fact, contests his claimed status as a tenured employed, Holmes understands and agrees that by entering into this Settlement Agreement and General Release, he forever waives any claims, rights and privileges to tenured employment status he may have or may have had with the Board.
6. This Agreement is not and shall not in any way be construed as an admission by the Board of any acts of wrongdoing whatsoever, or that the Board, or any of its officers, members, agents, employees or representatives violated any federal or state constitutional prohibitions or any federal, state or local law, statute, ordinance, regulation or public policy of the State of New Jersey. Instead, the parties have entered into this Agreement for the sole purpose of resolving all claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation.

Holmes hereby waives any and all relief not explicitly provided for herein.

8. Holmes and the Board expressly understand and agree that said payment includes any and all amounts that may be claimed by Holmes or on his behalf, or by his attorneys, heirs, successors or assigns, against the Board. Holmes and the Board agree and acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement and General Release is also contingent on and subject to approval and ratification by the Board of Education of the City of Passaic.

9. This settlement is intended as and for damages for any and all possible injuries and Holmes hereby waives any and all claims for lost wages, income or future earnings.

10. In any action commenced against Holmes to enforce the provisions of this Agreement, the Board, if it is the prevailing party, shall be entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees, costs and disbursements incurred in prosecuting the action.

11. Holmes specifically acknowledges that the payment referred to in Paragraph 4 hereof constitutes any and all additional consideration not otherwise owed to him for this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

12. The parties and their attorney(s) agree and promise that they will not disclose, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatsoever, any information regarding either: (a) the substance or existence of his charges and/or actions against the Board; or, (b) the existence, terms or contents of this Settlement Agreement and General Release, to any person or organization, including, but not limited to, any governmental agency, members of the press and media, present and former officers, employees and agents of the Board and other members of the public. This paragraph shall not preclude the parties or their attorney(s) from disclosing the existence or terms of this Settlement Agreement and General Release to governmental authorities that require such information. The parties may only state, without elaboration, as follows: "The situation has been resolved to the mutual satisfaction of Holmes and the Board." In the event that the Board is approached for a reference, the only information to be provided will be Holmes's date of hire, date of resignation and salary.

13. Holmes agrees that he shall not seek any further amount of money from the Board other than the amount set forth in Paragraph 4 hereof.

14. This Settlement Agreement and General Release contains the full agreement of Holmes and the Board and may not be modified, altered, changed or terminated except upon the express prior written consent of Holmes and the Board, which consent must be signed by Holmes and the Board, or their duly authorized agents.

15. The waiver by Holmes and/or the Board of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other, or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

16. If any term, provision or condition of this Settlement Agreement and General Release is held invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall be without effect upon the validity or enforceability of any other provision, term or condition of this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

17. This Settlement Agreement and General Release shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

18. This Settlement Agreement and General Release may be executed in counterparts, with each of which shall be deemed to be an original copy, but all of which together shall be deemed one and the same instrument.

19. This Settlement Agreement and General Release shall become effective immediately following execution by Holmes and the Board, but shall be contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law. In the event that approval is not given for this Agreement, Holmes shall immediately refund all monies provided to him hereunder to the Board.

20. Holmes and the Board shall each bear all of their own costs, expenses and attorneys feels arising from the prosecution or defense of this matter and in connection with this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

21. This Settlement Agreement and General Release contains the entire Agreement between Holmes and the Board with regard to the matters set forth in it, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of their officials, officers, directors, attorneys, representatives, employees, associates, partners, agents, servants, executors, administrators, personal representatives, heirs, successors and assigns of each, and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations or partnerships or any other entity or persons connected therewith, except as set forth herein or as may be agreed to in writing between the parties.

22. In entering into this Settlement Agreement and General Release, Holmes has relied upon the legal advice of his attorney, who is the attorney of his own choice, as to the terms of this Settlement Agreement and General Release which have been completely read and explained to him by his attorney and those terms are fully understood and voluntarily accepted.

23. This Settlement Agreement and General Release shall become effective immediately following execution by all of the following parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, Holmes and the Board have hereunto set their hands.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education appealed the Department's determination that the district failed to follow the appropriate procedures for obtaining parental consent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b), and provided speech and language therapy services without effective consent and without going to due process for A.R. Petitioner asserts that parental consent for special education services was obtained when the mother A.R. signed the initial Individual Education Program (IEP) shortly after the child entered the district's schools, and that this initial consent remains effective until revoked by written notification. The Department moved for Summary Decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the district's continued implementation of the IEP for A.R. did not require parental consent; that continued implementation of the IEP could not be negated by the parents' revocation of consent since parental consent for such implementation is not required by either the IDEA or the implementing New Jersey regulations. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the determination of the respondent in its complaint investigation report is incorrect and should be reversed and dismissed.

The Commissioner, upon review of the entire record, expressed serious reservations about her jurisdiction to decide the merits of the matter, and remanded it to the OAL for argument, analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the threshold question of Commissioner jurisdiction.

PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have exceptions filed by the Department of Education (Department) and the reply thereto by the Board of Education (Board). These submissions pertain to the merits of the matter, and are not summarized herein for the reasons set forth below.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds – as in two recent appeals of complaint investigations, Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District v. New Jersey State Department of Education, decided by the Commissioner on March 21, 2006, and Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District v. New Jersey State Department of Education, decided by the Commissioner on April 25, 2006 – that she has serious reservations regarding any attempt on her part to rule on the merits of this matter. As in the Lenape matters, the issues herein fundamentally arise out of the IDEA and its interpretation, notwithstanding that they also implicate Department actions and State Board regulations adopted in furtherance of the federal law.

Although it was reasonable for the ALJ to have assumed that the question of Commissioner jurisdiction did not need to be addressed at the OAL – since the case was transmitted by the agency and the parties did not dispute jurisdiction,[1] – as the Commissioner held in the Lenape matters, party agreement cannot confer jurisdiction where none exists, and the act of transmittal does not in itself foreclose further inquiry where the need for it becomes apparent. Here as in Lenape, the Commissioner is loathe to decide so critical an issue without benefit of an initial analysis with recommended conclusions of the law by the OAL.

Therefore, prior to any consideration of the merits of this matter, the Commissioner has determined to remand it to the OAL for the limited purpose of analysis and recommended conclusions of law on the question of jurisdiction.

Accordingly, the Commissioner does not reach the findings and conclusions of the Initial Decision, and this matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for limited proceedings on the question of jurisdiction as set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [2]

Record closed: February 6, 2006 Decided: March 23, 2006

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 8, 2005, the Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) of the New Jersey Department of Education issued Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634. In that Report, it determined that the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District failed to follow appropriate procedures for obtaining parental consent, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b), where it provided special services from February 22, 2005 until April 25, 2005, and thus corrective action was required. (Ibid.) On August 26, 2005, the West Windsor-Plainsboro school district filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education, challenging OSEP's finding, and OSEP filed an Answer on or about September 19, 2005. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 30, 2005, for hearing as a contested case.

On November 22, 2005 a telephone conference was conducted between all parties whereupon it was agreed that each party would submit a cross-motion for summary decision, and a briefing schedule was established. The parties further agreed to rely upon those documents referenced in OSEP's Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634 in support of the Motion for Summary Decision. Pursuant to said briefing schedule, the parties filed their respective submissions, and the record was closed on February 6, 2006.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

None of the facts in this matter are disputed by the parties. Therefore, the following discussion shall constitute my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

A.R. is a child born to bi-lingual parents who speak both Tamil and English at home. A.R. was originally evaluated in the North Brunswick School District where she resided at the time with her parents and a sibling. A.R.'s parents had requested a child study team (CST) evaluation because of their concerns with A.R.'S speech and language development and behavioral problems. Following this evaluation, the school district's Individual Education Program (IEP) team met on September 12, 2003, and concluded that A.R. was eligible for special education and related services, based on an eligibility category of preschool disabled. (R-2, Exhibit A.) A.R. then began receiving speech-language services pursuant to a September 12, 2003 IEP and Behavioral Intervention Plan (BIP). Included in the September 12, 2003 IEP was a "Procedural Safeguards Statement" wherein it stated "[A]s a parent of a student who is or may be determined eligible for special education services, you have the rights . . . under the New Jersey Administrative Code for Special Education." Furthermore, it stated,

"A description of these rights, which are called procedural safeguards, is contained in the document, Parental Rights in Special Education (PRISE)." (R-2, Exhibit A.)

A.R.'s mother, R.R. signed the IEP, thereby providing parental consent for the IEP to be implemented by the school district. Pursuant to the parental consent notice, R.R. acknowledged that she had read the proposed IEP and that she understood that her consent was voluntary and could be revoked at any time. (R-2, Exhibit A.)

At the end of the 2004 school year, because A.R. was about to enter kindergarten, she was referred for another evaluation. (R-2, Exhibit B.) On May 18, 2004, the North Brunswick IEP team again met regarding A.R.'s neurodevelopmental evaluation and speech language evaluation, wherein A.R. was diagnosed with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and speech delay. Pursuant to the evaluations, the IEP team concluded that A.R. was eligible for special education and related services, based on an eligibility category of other health impaired. Ibid.

On September 4, 2004, A.R. transferred to the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District, and that school district implemented the May 18, 2004 IEP of the North Brunswick School District. A new entrant IEP was developed on September 10, 2004, which incorporated the provisions of the May 18, 2004 IEP. On September 10, 2004, R.R. signed the procedural safeguards statement of the IEP, thereby consenting to the implementation of the IEP by the West Windsor-Plainsboro School District. (R-2, Exhibit B.) This IEP provided that in addition to A.R.'s placement in the regular education kindergarten classroom, she would receive small group speech/language therapy as a related service, twice per week for 30 minutes per session. Subsequently, on September 14, 2004, goals and objectives for speech and language therapy, which were not part of the initial IEP, were developed and attached to the IEP.

On November 11, 2004, the West Windsor-Plainsboro School District referred A.R. to Cross Country Clinical and Educational Services for a bilingual speech-language evaluation with the consent of A.R.'S parents. (R-2, Exhibits C and D.) Based on the results of the evaluation, continued speech and language therapy were recommended. (R-2, Exhibit E.) An IEP dated December 17, 2004, was then completed based on the results of this reevaluation. (R-2, Exhibit F.) A.R.'s parents attended the December 17, 2004, meeting and did not dispute the IEP. However, A.R.'s parents did not sign the IEP as they had previously.

A.R. stopped attending the after-class speech-language therapy sessions on December 21, 2004. On January 8, 2005, A.R.'s father, J.R., sent an e-mail to Dr. Michael C. Welborn, Principal of Wicoff Elementary School, advising that "[A.R.] will not be attending Speech classes hereafter." (R-2, Exhibit G.)

Shortly thereafter, A.R.'s parents met with Dr. Welborn and Dr. Deborah R. Batchelor, West Windsor-Plainsboro's Supervisor of Special Services, and A.R.'s parents advised Dr. Batchelor that they did not want A.R. to receive special services and did not want her to remain classified as a special education student.

On January 19, 2005, Dr. Batchelor sent a letter to A.R.'s parents, wherein she summarized their meeting and further advised the parents that A.R. should continue to receive both speech and language services (R-2, Exhibit H). Dr. Batchelor specifically stated in that letter:

> Based on this reevaluation . . . from Cross Country as well as our district speech and language therapist, it is the district's recommendation that [A.R.] continues to be a child who would benefit from special education services, with an eligibility classification of Multiply Disabled. While we think that a placement at the Maurice Hawk School in a program for students who are Communication Impaired would be appropriate, we will amend the Individual Education Plan that was written on December 8, 2004 to have her placement remain at the Wicoff School to receive speech and language services and the assistance of an instructional > assistant for part of the school day while she is in kindergarten, which was the placement and program that was developed with your wife on September 10, 2004.

Included with this written correspondence was a copy of the PRISE which described the parental rights with regard to A.R.'s special services.

On February 3, 2005, Dr. Batchelor acknowledged in a letter to the parents (R-2, Exhibit I) that the parents had sent two e-mails dated January 22, 2005. There is no indication in the documents supplied in this matter what was stated in the two e-mails from the parents. In her letter Dr. Batchelor reminded the parents that A.R. came to the school district as a classified student and that the district thinks that A.R. continues to need special education services and it could not declassify her unless it agreed that she has no disability. She pointed out that the district actually recommended a more intensive type of program but the district compromised with the parents and agreed to have her remain at the Wicoff School, just receiving speech services and the assistance of an instructional assistant.

In February 2005, a progress report from the speech and language specialist was issued, which indicated that A.R. had not been attending speech lessons since December 21, 2004. (R-2, Exhibit J.)

The school district then resumed providing speech-language therapy, but in the regular education classroom, on February 22, 2005, and continued to provide this service through April 25, 2005. As a result of the school district's continuation of speech and language therapy, A.R's parent sent a letter to the school district dated April 23, 2005 (R-2, Exhibit K), stating,

> I would like to bring to your kind attention that [A.R.] is not at all attending the Speech & IEP education. As you aware, I have cancelled this program for her as of Jan. 05.

On April 26, 2005, mediation was conducted through OSEP, at which time A.R.'s parents agreed that A.R. would receive speech and language therapy within the classroom setting only. (R-2, Exhibit L.) The IEP team reconvened on May 18, 2005, to incorporate the terms of the mediation agreement into the IEP. (R-2, Exhibit M.) On May 23, 2005, A.R.'s parent advised the school district, by written correspondence, that he disagreed with the IEP and thus directed the school district that he was effectively withdrawing consent for special education services. (R-2, Exhibit N.) Shortly thereafter, on June 2, 2005, A.R.'s parent was advised, by written correspondence from the school district's attorney that the school district had an obligation to provide services as long as A.R. needs such services. (R-2, Exhibit 0.)

Shortly after mediation, on April 29, 2005, a request for complaint investigation was filed with OSEP on behalf of A.R. by her parents. Specifically, the complaint alleged a violation of the rights of the parents by the West Windsor-Plainsboro School District for the time period from January, 2005 until April 25, 2005. (R-2, Exhibit P.)

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Petitioner herein challenges the July 8, 2005, OSEP issued Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634, wherein it was determined that the petitioner failed to follow appropriate procedure for obtaining parental consent, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b), where it provided special services from February 22, 2005 until April 25, 2005, and thus corrective action was required. (Ibid.) Specifically, OSEP directed the District to revise its procedures for acknowledging and implementing revocation of consent in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3. Furthermore, OSEP ordered that the District's revised procedures must ensure that services provided for the IEP will discontinue once consent has been revoked, unless the District proceeds to a due process hearing. Ibid.

Pursuant a briefing schedule ordered in this matter, the Department has moved for Summary Decision and relies upon those documents referenced in OSEP's Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634 in support of its Motion.

Respondent's arguments

Respondent takes the position that OSEP appropriately determined that the District failed to follow appropriate procedures for obtaining consent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b). Specifically, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3, initial consent given by the parent for special education services remains effective until revoked by written notification. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3. Furthermore, a school district must obtain parental consent prior to initial evaluations, any assessment for reevaluation, implementation for the initial IEP, and release of student records. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a). If a parent refuses to provide consent and the district and the parent have not agreed to other action, the district shall request a due process hearing to obtain consent. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b). Respondent points out that, moreover, pursuant to PRISE, which outlines the procedural safeguards for a parent of a child with special needs, consent means that the "parent understands that he or she willing gives permission and permission may withdrawn at any time." PRISE, §C1(c) (R-2, Exhibit Q).

Respondent takes the position that in the present matter, A.R.'s father provided the District with a written correspondence, dated January 8, 2005, the effect of which was to advise the District that parental consent for special services was revoked. (R-2, Exhibit G.) In addition, A.R.'s parents met with the District principal and special services supervisor on January 14, 2005, whereupon A.R.'s father advised once again that he did not want A.R. to receive special services. (R-2, Exhibit H.)

Respondent asserts that the District was aware that A.R.'s parent revoked consent for the District to provide special services, and that in two letters dated January 19, 2005 and February 3, 2005, the District acknowledged A.R.'s parents' request to cease special services. It contends that despite this, it ignored this request and continued to provide special services. (R-2, Exhibits H & I.)

Respondent points out that if the District argues that the January 8, 2005 e-mail does not constitute effective revocation of consent, nowhere in either the statutory or regulatory scheme, nor in the PRISE, is notification in the form of an e-mail precluded. In fact, N.J.A.C. 6A:14.2.3(e) and PRISE set forth written notification requirements for the school district only, not the parent.

Thus, respondent contends that in light of the fact that parental consent was validly revoked, the District had an obligation to request a due process hearing to obtain parental consent, relying on N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b). However, the District failed to do so and, instead, after failed attempts to convince A.R.'s parents to continue special services, the District continued to provide speech-language services to A.R. from February 22, 2005 until April 25, 2005. Thus, respondent's position is that the District failed to follow appropriate procedure as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3 and OSEP properly determined that corrective action was necessary.

Petitioner's arguments

Petitioner points out that in its Complaint Investigation Report, OSEP cites the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a) and (b) as support for its decision. Petitioner argues, however, that a close reading of those provisions reveals that they are not relevant to the facts at hand.

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a) provides that a school district shall obtain parental consent in the following four specific situations:

1. Prior to conducting any assessment as part of an initial evaluation;
2. Prior to implementation of the initial IEP resulting from (a) 1 above;
3. Prior to conducting any assessment as part of a reevaluation, except that such consent is not required if the district board of education can demonstrate that it had taken reasonable measures, consistent with (i) 7 below, to obtain such consent and the parent failed to respond; and
4. Prior to the release of student records according to N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b) goes on to state that if parental consent is not received in any of these four situations, the school district must request a due process hearing "to obtain consent" from an administrative law judge.

Petitioner contends that none of the four scenarios outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a) existed in the present case during the 2004-05 school year. A.R.'s initial evaluation was done with parental consent prior to the 2003-04 school year when she resided in North Brunswick. Her initial IEP was implemented in North Brunswick, once again with the consent of her parents. After the family's relocation to West Windsor-Plainsboro, re-evaluations were conducted by Cross County Clinical and Educational Services, also pursuant to parental consent. The fourth situation of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a), the release of student records, is not in issue herein.

Petitioner argues that since the four factual predicates of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a) did not exist in this matter, the provision of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b) mandating that the school district must file for a due process hearing were not applicable. In this case, the parents attempted to withdraw their consent for special education services long after their child had been evaluated and a program was in place for her. Unlike N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b), the Administrative Code does not contain a provision placing the burden on the school district to request a due process hearing in order to continue services. To the contrary, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(f)(3)(ii) imposes the burden upon parents to file for due process when they seek to discontinue services for which they have already given consent.

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(d) mandates written notice from the school district to the parents whenever the district proposes to change the educational placement of a student or declines to change such placement. In this case, A.R.'s parent's request to terminate special education services constituted a request to change her educational placement, which the District declined. The District's Supervisor of Special Services, Dr. Deborah R. Batchelor, then sent two letters dated January 19, 2005, and February 3, 2005, explaining the District's reasons for declining the parents' request, thereby satisfying the written notice requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(e). Pursuant to N.J.A.C.

6A:14-2.3(f)(5), no further action was required by the District; N.J.A.C. 6A: 14-2.3(f)(5) does not require a school district to initiate a due process hearing in order to continue services after a parental request for a change in a student's classification or educational placement. This burden falls on the parents.

An analogous situation arises when the school district, rather than the parents, seeks to change the educational placement of a student. Once again, appropriate written notice must be given to the parents under N.JA.C. 6A:I4-2.3(e) and (f). However, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(f)(3) then permits the district to implement its proposed action after 15 days' notice unless the parents, not the district, have filed for mediation or due process.

Based on the foregoing, petitioner argues that OSEP's "Complaint Investigation Report" was based on a misreading of the relevant regulations. Those regulations were promulgated to implement in New Jersey the mandates of the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). It is instructive that the current IDEA (including 2004 amendments) requires prior informed parental consent only for initial evaluations and for initial placements for the receipt of special education and related services. 20 U.S.C.S. § 1414(a)(I)(D). The IDEA does not address the issue of parental consent for the continuation of special education services, and it does not impose a responsibility upon school districts to initiate due process proceedings in the event of attempted parental revocation of consent.

Petitioner also refers to the federal regulations implementing the IDEA, which provide that "informed parent consent must be obtained before- (i) conducting an initial evaluation or reevaluation; and (ii) initial provision of special education and related services to a child with a disability." 34 C.F.R. § 300.505 (a)(I). The federal regulation also provides that a state may require parental consent for additional services and activities as long as "the State establishes and implements effective procedures to ensure that a parent's refusal to consent does not result in a failure to provide the child with FAPE." 34 CFR § 300.505(d). As noted above, New Jersey has not adopted a regulation requiring ongoing consent for IEP services which have already been consented to and which have been implemented. Such a regulation would interfere with the student's paramount right to receive a free appropriate public education ("FAPE"). In fact, OSEP's reading in this case of the existing New Jersey regulations would have a similar effect by denying, at least temporarily, necessary services to the affected student.

Analysis

Summary decision may be granted where the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with any affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The standards governing the grant or denial of summary judgment are set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Brill requires a fact finder to consider whether the evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged dispute in favor of the non-moving party. Id. at 523.

In the administrative forum, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 provides the standard for summary decision. The New Jersey Supreme Court sustained the validity of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 "noting that it is related to and, indeed essential to the proper conduct of administrative hearings in a contested matter." Contini v. Board of Educ. of Newark, 286 N.J. Super. 106, 116 (App. Div. 1995) (citations omitted)

In this matter, there are no material facts in dispute. Rather, the crux of the dispute between the parties is the legal issue whether the District was required to followed the appropriate procedure for obtaining parental consent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3 when it failed to honor the parents' revocation of consent in January 2005 and continued to implement A.R.'s then existing IEP?

In their respective submissions, only attorney for respondent referred to the definition of the term "consent" found at N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.3, and neither discussed its applicability to this matter. This definition provides:

> "Consent" means agreement in writing that is required by this chapter. Consent shall be obtained from the parent having legal responsibility for educational decision making. The district board of education shall ensure that the parent:
>
> 1. Has been fully informed of all information relevant to the activity for which consent is being sought, in his or her native language or other mode of communication;
>
> 2. Understands and agrees in writing to the implementation of the activity for which consent is sought, and the consent describes that activity and lists the records (if any) that will be released and to whom;
>
> 3. Understands that the granting of consent is voluntary and may be revoked at any time; and
> 4. If the parent revokes consent, that revocation is not retroactive (that is, it does not negate an action that has occurred after the consent was given and before the consent was revoked).

I have been unable to locate any similar definition of the term "consent" in the IDEA. In addition, I have been unable to locate any prior court decisions or administrative decisions determining the legal effect of the parental revocation of consent.

While under the foregoing definition, it is clear that parental consent may be revoked at any time, it is also clear that the revocation does not negate an action that has occurred before the consent was revoked. It logically follows from this that the revocation of consent does not negate any action that has occurred for which consent is not required.

In the present matter, it is undisputed that on January 8, 2005, A.R.'s parent sent an e-mail to the District's school principal that A.R. will not be attending speech classes thereafter. It should be remembered that the speech classes up until that time were taking place after the regular education program. It is also undisputed that shortly thereafter, the parents met with the District's school principal and supervisor of special services and advised them that they did not want A.R. to receive special education services or even to remain classified as a special education student.

In her letter of February 3, 2005, in response to the parents, Dr. Batchelor stated that the District compromised with the parents and agreed to have A.R. remain at the Wyckoff School receiving speech services and the assistance of an instructional assistant rather than implement a different program at another school within the District.

Thus, the District recognized the right of the parent to refuse to have their child attend speech therapy sessions which had been occurring at a time after the regular education program hours. However, the District believed that it had the responsibility to implement the IEP which required it to provide speech therapy, and it was doing so during regular school hours in the regular education classroom.

From the foregoing, I FIND that on January 8, 2005, A.R.'s father, J.R., by implication, revoked his consent for A.R.'s attendance at speech therapy by indicating that A.R. would not be attending after school speech therapy sessions from that date forward. I FIND that shortly thereafter, when the parents met with the School Principal and the Supervisor of Special Services, they revoked their consent for A.R. to receive special services and did not want her to remain classified as a special education student. I FIND that by letter dated January 19, 2005, the District notified the parents that A.R. would remain at the Wyckoff School to receive speech and language services and the assistance of an instructional assistant for part of the day while she was in kindergarten pursuant to the IEP of December 8, 2004.

I FIND that the parental revocation of consent could not be effective to negate the previously conducted assessments of A.R. which were part of an initial evaluation, could not negate the implementation of the initial IEP for A.R. which resulted from the initial evaluation, and could not negate the conducting of any prior assessment as part of a reevaluation of A.R. Each of these events were accomplished facts for which consent had been previously given pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(a). I FIND that the District's continued implementation of the IEP for A.R., which was in effect as of the dates of the parents' revocation of consent in January 2005, did not require parental consent. Ibid. Therefore, I FIND that such continued implementation of the IEP could not be negated by the parents' revocation of consent since parental consent for such implementation is not required by either the IDEA or by the implementing New Jersey Regulations. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the determination of respondent OSEP in its Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634 is INCORRECT and should be REVERSED and DISMISSED.

It should be noted that neither party addressed the standard to be applied in deciding this matter, e.g., whether petitioner must show that OSEP's determination was arbitrary and unreasonable. Since I have determined that OSEP is incorrect as a matter of law, I believe that the arbitrary and unreasonable standard has been met.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that the determination of respondent OSEP in its Complaint Investigation Report C2005-2634, wherein it determined that the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District failed to follow appropriate procedures for obtaining parental consent, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.3(b), and thus corrective action was required, is hereby REVERSED and DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

KRZAN ACKNOWLEDGES THAT THE PARTIES HAVE COMPLIED WITH THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE OLDER WORKERS BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT OF 1990.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning private school for the disabled appealed the Department's determination to disallow the cost of a student trip to a Broadway play – $2,625 – in its final approved tuition rate for the 2002-2003 fiscal year. Petitioner argued that the event was a field trip designed to implement the State's core curriculum content standards in the visual and performing arts, and to increase student appreciation of music and theater.

The ALJ concluded that the cost of tickets to a Broadway show is unnecessarily expensive and above the cost that would be incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds, and granted summary decision in favor of the Department. In so determining, the ALJ pointed out, inter alia, that there are less costly alternatives to achieve the desired educational benefit.

The Commissioner agrees that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Department as she concurs that the $2,635 cost should be disallowed from the petitioner's final approved tuition rate for the 2003-2003 fiscal year. Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties filed no exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner agrees that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Department as she concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's determination that the $2,635 cost of a student field trip to a Broadway show should be disallowed from petitioner's final approved tuition rate for the 2002-03 fiscal year.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal brought by the Forum School ("Forum School"), an approved private school for the disabled, from the disallowance of the cost of a student trip to a Broadway play in its final approved tuition rate for the 2002-03 fiscal year ("FY 2003").

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14-21, private schools for the disabled receiving students from public school districts may not charge a tuition rate that exceeds the actual cost per student as determined under rules prescribed by the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") and approved by the State Board of Education.

Auditors from the New Jersey Department of Education ("Department") excluded the amount of $2,635 incurred for a field trip involving 34 students and staff to attend a Broadway production of the musical play Man of La Mancha. In their written findings, the auditors originally disallowed the cost on the ground that it constitutes "an ordinary living expense for a student that is normally assumed by the parents of a student" and, therefore, is excluded under N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(30).[1] During the course of the appeal process, the Department advanced two additional justifications for denial of this expense: first, that the cost has not been shown to be "consistent with the individualized education programs (IEP) of a disabled student," as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(1);[2] and, second, that the cost is unreasonable within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(1), which limits allowable expenses to those that are "ordinary and necessary and not in excess of the cost which would be incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds."[3]

Forum School describes the event as a "field trip" designed to implement the state's core curriculum standards in the visual and performing arts and to increase student appreciation of music and theater. Since the activity allegedly advances legitimate instructional goals and objectives, Forum School maintains that it should be includable in the approved tuition rate. Responding to the Department's claim that the activity is an ordinary living expense, Forum School urges that the regulatory requirement of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(30) must yield to the governing statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:36-21, which prohibits districts from requiring parents of children in special education classes to pay for authorized school field trips. Further, Forum School contends that the regulations fail to provide meaningful guidance as to which field trips are allowed and which are disallowed in setting tuition rates, and that the Department has always approved such costs in the past.

Procedural History

By letter, dated July 13, 2004, the Department notified Forum School that it had completed a fiscal monitoring of petitioner's budget for FY 2003 and had approved all but $73,585 of its $3.5 million request.[4] On or about July 28, 2004, Forum School filed an appeal with the Department's Office of Compliance Investigation setting forth in detail the reasons for its disagreement with the disallowance of the $2,635 cost of a field trip to a Broadway show. Thereafter, on August 13, 2004, the Office of Compliance Investigation reviewed Forum School's submissions and upheld its earlier determination. On or about September 28, 2004, Forum School filed a second-tier appeal to the Department's Chief of Staff. One month later, on October 28, 2004, the Chief of Staff issued a letter of denial. Consequently, on February 22, 2005, Forum School filed an appeal to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). The Department filed an answer on March 11, 2005.

Subsequently, on April 20, 2005, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. Prior to hearing, the parties agreed that the facts are undisputed and that the case could be decided as a matter of law. On October 7, 2005, the parties filed a joint stipulation of facts and exhibits. Shortly thereafter, on October 24, 2005, the parties filed cross-motions for summary decision and supporting briefs. Forum School also filed an affidavit setting forth additional uncontested facts. Both parties filed reply briefs on October 31, 2005. The OAL heard oral argument by telephone conference on November 7, 2005.

[4] The auditors also recommended that Forum School exclude similar items for the following fiscal year should the same type of costs be incurred.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are derived from the joint stipulation of facts and the affidavit filed by Forum School. I FIND the following facts to be undisputed:

The Forum School is a non-profit private school for developmentally disabled children located in Waldwick, New Jersey. Forum School has been approved by the Department to provide special education programs to public school children.[5] On March 19, 2003, thirty-four students and staff of Forum School attended a showing of Man of La Mancha, a Broadway play, at the Martin Beck Theatre in New York City at the cost of $77.50 a ticket.[6] Dr. Steven Krapes, the Forum School director, charged the cost of the theater tickets on his personal credit card and then obtained reimbursement from the school.

Forum School arranged the trip to the Broadway show as part of its music program and to satisfy the core curriculum standards promulgated by the Department. Core Curriculum Content Standard 1.1 for the Visual and Performing Arts prescribed that "all students will acquire knowledge and skills that increase aesthetic awareness in dance, music, theater, and visual arts." Standard 1.4 provided that "all students will demonstrate knowledge of the process of critique." (Bold face in originals.)[7] In preparation for viewing the play, students at Forum School participated in various learning activities, including: (a) a study of the story itself; a study of the lyrics of the play and the meanings associated with the songs; (b) a review of the Play-Bills to familiarize themselves with the story and actors; and (c) development of a series of "The program utilizes a developmentally stimulating curriculum, with a structured behavioral management approach." http://www.nj.gov/njded/specialed/instate/

[6] The total of $2,635 equates to 34 theater tickets at $77.50 each and does not appear to include any costs of transportation, parking or refreshments.

[7] The Department revised and readopted the Core Curriculum Content Standards for the Visual and Performing Arts in April 2004. Reprints of the current version of the Core Curriculum Content Standards are available at the Department's website. http://www.state.nj.us/njded/cccs/questions to ask the actors in a question and answer period following the play. In the days after the play, the students (a) wrote about their theatre experience, the plot lines, and character development in language arts class and (b) in music class, critiqued the appropriateness of specific songs from the play in supporting character and plot development.

Previously, students from Forum School have attended Broadway plays, including: (a) Oklahoma (April 2002); (b) The Music Man (April 2001); (c) Phantom of the Opera (March 2000); (d) Stomp (March 1999); (e) 1776 (January 1998); (f) Bring in Da Noise, Bring in Da Funk (May 1997); (g) Cats (April 1996) and (h) Fantasticks (May 1995). None of the costs associated with attending these performances were disallowed by the Department.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the cost of tickets to a Broadway show is unnecessarily expensive and above the cost that would be incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds.

This appeal is a sequel to the recent case entitled Bergen Center for Child Dev., Inc. v. New Jersey Dep't of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1807-05 (Aug. 31, 2005), aff'd (Comm'r Oct. 14, 2005) 2005 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 492, wherein the Commissioner had occasion to review the law concerning allowance of the cost of field trips in setting tuition rates for private schools for the disabled. Applying the same three regulations involved here, the Commissioner found the cost of a field trip geared toward developing the social and life skills of disabled children to be an allowable cost. That same analysis will be followed here to determine whether the cost of theater tickets to a Broadway show satisfies the same regulatory requirements.

First, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(30) prohibits a private school from passing along to the sending public school districts "an ordinary living expense for a student that is normally assumed by the parent of a student attending public day school." Undeniably, the theater trip organized by Forum School meets the literal definition of a "field trip" as "a journey by a group of pupils, away from the school premises, under the supervision of a teacher." N.J.S.A. 18A:36-22. Educators recognize that field trips "are a regular part of a District's program and are designed to help familiarize the students with their community and foster their independence." Clifton Bd. of Educ. v. D.C., OAL Dkt. No. EDS 19771-97, 1998 N.J AGEN. LEXIS 345 (May 1998). Teachers may be assigned to supervise educational trips which are properly part of the curriculum. Parrish v. Moss, 200 Misc. 375, 106 N.Y.S.2d 577 (Sup. Ct. 1951), aff'd without opinion, 270 App. Div. 608, 107 N.Y.S.2d 580 (App. Div. 1951).

N.J.S.A. 18A:36-21 authorizes public boards of education to impose all or part of the costs of a field trip on the pupils' parents or legal guardians.[8] If parents usually pay such costs, as they do for food, clothing and shelter, then an argument could be made that such expense is an ordinary living expense for a student that is normally assumed by the parent.[9] Unfortunately, the record does not disclose the general practice of public school districts with regard to theater productions. During oral argument, counsel could not say whether or not public school districts routinely require parents to bear the cost of their own child's tickets on school-sponsored trips to Broadway shows.

Assuming that most public schools do charge parents for such field trips, however, the statute contains an express exception for "pupils in special education classes and pupils with financial hardship." Even if a handicapped child were enrolled in the public school, therefore, the cost of this field trip would not be assumed by his or

[8] The Deputy points out that enactment of this statute was a legislative response to the agency decision in Willett v. Board of Educ. of Colts Neck, 1966 S.L.D. 202 ((Dec. 2, 1966), in which the Commissioner declared that a school board policy requiring parents to pay for all field trips violated a child's right to a free public education. While historically accurate, such legislative history is not particularly helpful in resolving the immediate question. Indeed, the fact that the Legislature saw fit to exempt parents of disabled children from paying for school field trips cuts against the Department's argument.

[9] Dr. Krapes' reference, in one of his letters, to the Child Nutrition Program merely clouds the issue, since the federally subsidized school lunch program was enacted to safeguard the health and well-being of all the nation's schoolchildren by insuring that they are provided with at least one low-cost nourishing meal per day, and to encourage domestic consumption of the nation's agricultural commodities. 42 U.S.C.A. § 1771. See also, 14 A.L.R. Fed. 634 (2006).

her parent. Students enrolled in Forum School are in special education and, therefore, their parents are exempt from having to pay for field trips. Parents of disabled children should not be financially worse off simply because their child is so handicapped that his or her needs cannot be met in a public school setting. Of course, that does not necessarily mean that Forum School may demand reimbursement of unreasonable expenses from the sending public school districts.

Second, consideration must be given to whether the cost is "consistent with the students' individualized education program" as mandated by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(1) Proofs establish that the theater visit was connected to classroom exercises dealing with aesthetic awareness and critique of the theatrical arts and served to fulfill the objectives of the Department's core curriculum standards. The Department rejected the cost because the activities "should have been laid out in an individualized education plan (IEP)." However, the regulation only requires that an allowable cost be "consistent" with the individualized education plan, not that the IEP make specific reference to such cost.

An individualized education program is defined as a written plan developed jointly by the parents and school staff "which sets forth present levels of performance, measurable annual goals and short-term objectives or benchmarks and describes an integrated sequential program of individually designed instructional activities and related services necessary to achieve the stated goals and objectives." N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.3. While an IEP must include sufficiently definite milestones so that a child's progress can be adequately measured, Lascari v. Ramapo Indian Hills Reg. High Sch. Dist., 116 N.J. 30, 48-49 (1989), it need not be as detailed as a teacher's daily lesson plan. Given the fact that the theater trip is an integrated learning experience incorporated as part of Forum School's music curriculum, it satisfies the condition that the cost must be "consistent" with the child's IEP.

Third, the question arises whether the cost is "ordinary and necessary and not in excess of the cost which would be incurred by an ordinarily prudent person in the administration of public funds" as provided by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(1) (1996).

Although this particular regulation is mentioned in the Bergen Center decision, the Commissioner never fully addressed the issue because the Department had conceded that the costs in that case were reasonable. Here, however, the Department challenges the reasonableness of the expense.

Commentary in Bergen Center contemplated a situation much like the present one:

> This particular requirement is more subjective than the others, due to the difficulty of articulating a bright line test for separating reasonable from unreasonable expenses. Few would seriously argue that a sending public district must pay for a trip to Madrid by the Spanish class or front row seats at a top Broadway show for a theater class, although certainly such costs could be justified as serving a legitimate educational purpose.
> Bergen Center (slip op. at 7).

In its reply brief, Forum School "does not dispute that certain expenditures may rise to the level of unreasonableness on their face, such as 'a trip to Madrid by the Spanish class.' " Petitioner's counsel also acknowledged at oral argument the legitimacy of the concern that the statute not be read as "a blank check." Thus, the question is not whether there should be an upper limit on costs, but rather where to draw the line.

Forum School suggests that its students are entitled to nothing less than the very best educational experience. Counsel maintains that part of Forum School's responsibility "is to expose the students to the most inspiring and skillful productions, so that exposure to those performances will feed a student's creativity and dreams[.]" Contrary to this ambitious mission statement, the legal standard under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1400 to 1487, is not to maximize the potential of handicapped children, but rather "to confer some educational benefit." Lascari, at 47. Federal appellate courts have further refined that standard to clarify that such educational benefit must be "meaningful," "achieve significant learning," and confer "more than merely trivial benefit." T.R. v. Kingwood Tp. Bd. of Educ., 205 F.3d 572 (3rd Cir. 2000); Ridgewood Bd. of Educ. v. N.E., 172 F.3rd 238 (3rd Cir. 1999); Polk v. Central Susquehanna Intermediate Unit 16, 853 F.2d 171, 183-184 (3rd Cir. 1988), cert. den. sub. nom. Central Columbia Sch. Dist. v. Polk, 488 U.S. 1030 (1989). In establishing State oversight of private schools, the New Jersey Legislature expressed concern for the quality of education for handicapped pupils as well as its overall cost to the public. Council of Private Schools for Children With Special Needs, Inc. v. Cooperman, 205 N.J. Super. 544 (App. Div. 1985). Accordingly, the Department acted properly within the legal framework to inquire whether there exist less costly alternatives to achieve the desired educational benefit.

Who better to determine whether the cost is reasonable than the Commissioner, with her expertise in the field of education and extensive knowledge of the financial operations of public school districts in New Jersey? Common sense should have alerted Forum School's administration that, in this era of fiscal restraint and recurring budget crisis, the luxury of sending school children to Broadway plays at public expense is a questionable use of scare resources. It was blatant enough to be noted as an obvious example of extravagant spending in Bergen Center. One can sympathize with Forum School's sincere desire to make their students' first theater experience as enjoyable and entertaining as possible. Nonetheless, the core curriculum concepts of aesthetic awareness and critique could have been imparted just as well, if not better, in more modest surroundings, such as going to a nearby professional theater or watching a Hollywood movie in the classroom.[10]

Forum's School's desire for greater certainty is understandable, but it is impractical to expect the Department to devise an exhaustive list of the universe of all possible financial abuses. Leaving anything out would be an invitation to fill the vacuum. Placing a dollar ceiling on field trip costs, as Forum School has also proposed, would be an unsatisfactory alternative, because private schools that otherwise spend less than the top amount might be encouraged to increase their expenditures up to the limit. In any event, the legal authority to write regulations is entrusted to the Commissioner and the State Board of Education, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21, and those public officials have chosen to express the limit in terms of overall reasonableness.

Finally, the happenstance that the Department did not disallow costs associated with Forum School's prior field trips to Broadway shows over the last nine years does not preclude it from disallowing unreasonable costs in FY '07. Estoppel connotes a change in position by a person to his detriment in reliance upon the word or conduct of another. Rossum v. Jones, 97 N.J. Super. 382, 392 (App. Div. 1967). Equitable estoppel is rarely applied against public entities, particularly when estoppel would interfere with essential governmental functions. Nonetheless, equitable considerations are relevant to assessing governmental conduct, Skulski v. Nolan, 68 N.J. 179, 198 (1975), and may be invoked to prevent manifest injustice. Vogt v. Borough of Belmar, 14 N.J. 195, 205 (1954). See also, O'Malley v. N.J. Dep't of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 316 (1989).

Present circumstances weigh heavily against estopping the Department from recovering monies rightfully owed to the sending public school districts. Nothing on the record indicates that the Commissioner or other Department official affirmatively represented to Forum School that it was appropriate to use public money to purchase Broadway theater tickets. It is unclear whether the Department was even aware that Forum School had been engaging in this practice. State regulations provide that the Department will conduct a fiscal monitoring of an approved private school for the disabled "at least every six years." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.13. The record does not reveal how many times in the last nine years the Department's auditors actually examined Forum School's financial books or when was the last time that a fiscal monitoring occurred. Certainly there is no evidence that the Department auditors had previously uncovered the expenditures for Broadway tickets or given any assurances that such payments were allowable costs. In sum, Forum School did not reasonably rely on past promises by the Department that it would not seek recovery of unreasonable costs in future fiscal years.

It is ORDERED that summary decision is granted in favor of the Department dismissing the appeal of Forum School.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF DELAWARE, HUNTERDON COUNTY,

PETITIONER,

V.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education appealed the Department's determination that it was legally responsible to pay the educational costs for pupil S.W., a minor now being educated at KidsPeace, a private school where he was placed by the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) during the 2004-2005 school year. S.W., Sr., the custodial parent, had been evicted from a residence in the Delaware Township school district a month prior to the child's placement at KidsPeace, and subsequently moved back to his parent's home in Flemington. Petitioner contends therefore that S.W., Sr. was not homeless at the time that S.W. was placed at KidsPeace, and that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c) do not apply.

The ALJ concurred with the petitioner, finding, inter alia, that: "homeless" is not a proper description of S.W., Sr.'s situation; S.W., Sr.'s residency at his parents home cannot necessarily be construed as temporary, and his intent to leave cannot be the determining factor in identifying him as homeless; S.W., Sr. was never in any real sense "homeless"; and statutory liability for funding the educational costs rests with the district in which the parent resides, therefore petitioner is not responsible for these expenses. In so determining, the ALJ relied upon two prior cases in which the Commissioner decided that students and their parents were not homeless. The ALJ ordered the record of this matter sealed.

The Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the court order placing S.W. in KidsPeace was issued while S.W., Sr., resided in Delaware Township; at the time of the Department's determination, an assessment of the permanence of S.W., Sr.'s residence with his parents would have been premature; the cases upon which the ALJ relied are not apposite to the present case; petitioner did not meet its burden to show that the Department's assignment of educational costs was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; there is no evidence that S.W., Sr. had a legal right to remain in his parents' home, and it was reasonable for the Department not to assume that this would be his permanent home. Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects the ALJ's determination regarding S.W.'s educational costs for the 2004-2005 school year; orders petitioner to pay same; remands the case to the OAL for a determination concerning whether petitioner remained the responsible district for S.W.'s educational costs after June 2005; and adopts the ALJ's order to seal the record, but not the decision.

V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	RECORD SEALED
RESPONDENT.	:

The record, Initial Decision and parties' exceptions and reply exceptions in this matter have been reviewed.[1] The Commissioner notes that the issue to be determined, whether the Delaware Township school district is liable for the educational costs of a classified student's residential school placement, is fact sensitive. Consequently, the absence of a transcript of the hearing in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the limited number of specific findings of fact in the Initial Decision has restricted the Commissioner's ability to evaluate certain factual contentions as to which the parties disagree. Nonetheless, the Commissioner believes that there is sufficient evidence in the record to render a modified decision.

The controversy centers on the minor child, S.W. The parties agree that in April 2003, custody of S.W. was awarded to S.W., Sr., who resided at the time in his parents' home in Flemington. Six months later, in November 2003, S.W., Sr. moved with his children to Delaware Township. S.W. attended school in Delaware Township from November 2003 until January 21, 2005, at which time the New Jersey Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) removed him from his father's residence in Delaware Township, pursuant to an agreement signed by his father, and placed him temporarily in a Catholic Charities Diagnostic Center in Bridgewater, New Jersey. (Respondent's Exhibit at 4-5)

[1] Petitioner's "sur-reply letter brief" dated March 6, 2006 was not considered, as there is no provision for such consideration in N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

It appears that by court order dated February 24, 2005, the Hunterdon Division of Youth and Family Services was authorized to place S.W. in a private residential facility, i.e., KidsPeace, in Orefield, Pennsylvania. (Respondent's Exhibit at 3-4) Subsequently, S.W., Sr. was evicted from his residence in Delaware Township. According to case worker contact sheets that were included in a file produced by DYFS to the OAL, S.W., Sr. went to stay with his parents in Flemington at some point between March 15 and April 8, 2005.[2] On April 7, 2005, S.W. was delivered to KidsPeace. (Ibid.)

A DYFS case worker contact sheet dated April 22, 2005 memorialized an April 12, 2005 conversation between a case worker and S.W., Sr. wherein S.W., Sr. indicated that he did not plan to be at his parents' residence for a long time. He apparently so testified at the OAL hearing, and the ALJ found that testimony to be credible. (Initial Decision at 3) Another conversation between S.W., Sr. and a DYFS case worker on May 20, 2005 – memorialized on a May 23, 2005 DYFS contact sheet – indicated that S.W., Sr. was still trying to find a way to leave his parents' residence.

In the meanwhile, on April 21, 2005, Karen Gagne – the State Responsible Student Coordinator for the Office of Education in the Department of Human Services – sent Raymond Hofelder, of the Department of Education's Office of School Funding, a form containing information offered to enable him to determine the district of residence for S.W., for the purpose of assigning responsibility for the costs of S.W.'s educational expenses in the [2] The Commissioner cannot ascertain whether the materials in this DYFS file were marked as exhibits at the OAL hearing, but a letter dated December 5, 2005, from the ALJ to the parties gave them notice, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2, that the ALJ deemed them relevant to the case.

KidsPeace facility. (Respondent's Exhibit at 1-7) The form described S.W., Sr. as "transient," (Respondent's exhibit at 3) and stated that S.W., Sr. "became transient" from his Delaware Township address on County Road "approx. the end of March 2005." (Respondent's Exhibit at 5) After reviewing the information from the Department of Human Services, Hofelder assigned financial responsibility for S.W.'s placement to Delaware Township because it was the "[d]istrict where father last resided before becoming homeless" and he was "[h]omeless at time of placement." (Respondent's Exhibit at 7) Accordingly, by letter dated May 5, 2005, Yut'se Thomas, Director of the Office of School Funding, notified petitioner that it was responsible for S.W.'s educational costs for the 2004-2005 school year. (Respondent's Exhibit at 8)

Petitioner challenged the determination by letter dated May 23, 2005 from petitioner's attorney. Before responding, Hofelder requested verification from DYFS of the information it had provided concerning S.W., Sr. Gagne forwarded him a copy of an internal communication, dated June 20, 2005, from Nicole Palumbo, the DYFS employee who had placed S.W. Palumbo conveyed both her personal knowledge about the facts relating to S.W.'s placement, and the information she received from S.W.'s current caseworker.

Palumbo explained that at the time she was assigned to S.W.'s case, she learned of S.W., Sr.'s eviction and change of location from his incarcerated girlfriend. When Palumbo contacted S.W., Sr., he indicated that he was temporarily staying with his parents to allow him to save money to acquire a "nicer place" for when his children returned to him. (Respondent's Exhibit at 10) On June 25, 2005, Palumbo spoke with a subsequent case worker who had been assigned to S.W., and had just visited S.W., Sr. This case worker told Palumbo that S.W., Sr. still maintained that he was with his parents temporarily to save money. (Ibid.)

On August 11, 2005 – after receipt of the update from Palumbo, via Gagne – Yut'se Thomas (now an Assistant to the Commissioner of Education) sent another letter to petitioner upholding respondent's original decision that S.W., Sr. was homeless; that the Delaware Township School District was the last district in which S.W., Sr. resided before becoming homeless; and that, consequently, petitioner is responsible for the costs of S.W.'s education for the 2004-2005 school year. (Respondent's Exhibit at 11-12) The facts articulated as the bases for this determination were: that S.W., Sr. was evicted from his residence in Delaware Township due to the inability to pay rent; that he moved in with his parents out of necessity; that he expressly told the DYFS caseworker that his stay with his parents was temporary, i.e., until such time as he could afford his own place; and that Delaware Township was consequently S.W., Sr.'s last district of residence before he became homeless. (Respondent's Exhibit at 12)

Petitioner filed its appeal with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on August 31, 2005, the case was transmitted to the OAL on September 27, 2005, and a hearing was conducted on December 19, 2005.

In his Initial Decision, the ALJ made reference to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12, which requires a "district of residence" determination to serve as the basis for assignment of a student's educational costs. As the ALJ pointed out, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b directs that the district of residence for a child who has been placed by a State agency in a private residential facility "shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent . . . placement by [the] State agency." (Initial Decision at 1-2) The Commissioner notes that, similarly, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(a)(2) states:

> The "present district of residence" of a child placed by a State agency in a . . . private school or out-of-state facility also referred > to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the date of the child's initial placement by the State agency.

In his Initial Decision the ALJ also made references to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12c, which informs that: "[t]he district of residence for children whose parent or guardian temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless." Further, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12c characterizes a 'homeless' person as "an individual who temporarily lacks a fixed, regular and adequate residence." (Id. at 2) The Commissioner notes, in addition, that N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3 characterizes a child as homeless when he or she resides in – among other alternatives – "the residence of relatives or friends with whom the homeless child is temporarily residing out of necessity because the family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own." N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(a)(3).

The ALJ correctly explained that it is the Department of Education (Department) that determines the district of residence for a student placed by a State agency in a residential facility. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(b). That determination is made using information provided by the placing agency, in this case DYFS. (Id. at 2-3)

The information that DYFS provided to the Department is in the record for this case. It establishes that S.W. had lived with his father and attended school in petitioner's district for over a year prior to his removal from the home by DYFS on January 21, 2005. When DYFS obtained a court order – on February 24, 2005 – to send S.W. to KidsPeace, his father still lived in petitioner's district. On April 7, 2005 – when S.W. was physically transferred to KidsPeace – S.W., Sr. may have left petitioner's district, but the DYFS record is not precise. Neither party has established the date between March 15 and April 8 on which S.W., Sr. moved into his parents' house. The Initial Decision contains no specific finding of fact on this point, and the Commissioner was not provided with a transcript from which she could seek relevant testimony.

In light of the foregoing, the specifics of which were not directly addressed by either the ALJ or the Department in the context of the statutory language in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, the Commissioner must consider the possibility that the petitioner is the correct assignee for S.W.'s educational costs under the terms of that statutory provision. Since S.W., Sr. was living in Delaware Township on the date DYFS obtained a court order approving S.W.'s placement at KidsPeace, and may or may not have finished moving to his parents' house on April 7, 2005, when S.W. arrived at KidsPeace, the Commissioner cannot categorically rule out – based on the record before her – that at the time of S.W.'s placement at KidsPeace, the "present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent . . . placement by a State agency" was petitioner's district. Further, the Commissioner notes that when a determination about the parent or guardian's district of residence cannot be made, the district in which the child resided prior to his or her state placement is designated to pay for the child's educational expenses. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b. That district was Delaware Township.

The analysis used by the Department to assign responsibility for S.W.'s educational costs, however, appeared to turn on the issue of homelessness. It was N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12c (see also N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(g)) upon which the Department relied in making its determinations about S.W.'s educational costs. Thus, the ALJ analyzed same in evaluating petitioner's claims. The Initial Decision recites (but makes no specific finding of fact) that S.W., Sr. had been living with his parents in the Flemington-Raritan School District at the time the Department made its cost assignment determination. (Initial Decision at 2) Despite the fact that S.W., Sr. consistently maintained that his stay with his parents was temporary, the ALJ rejected the Department's determination that S.W., Sr. was homeless at the time of his son's placement to KidsPeace. More specifically, while recognizing that the Department's determination was entitled to deference (Initial Decision at 3), the ALJ ultimately concluded that S.W., Sr. was never homeless, and that responsibility for S.W.'s educational costs should have been conferred on the Flemington-Raritan School District "from the time of [his] eviction and relocation to his parents' home." (Initial Decision at 7)

At the same time, the ALJ noted that "it may be felt by the Commissioner or the State Board that it is more appropriate that some period of time pass between the date when Mr. W. was evicted and moved in with his parents until that point in time when the stay with his parents became 'sufficiently fixed, regular and adequate so as to preclude a finding of homelessness.'" If so, the ALJ's recommendation was that petitioner pay S.W.'s educational costs only through the end of the 2004-2005 school year and the summer of 2005, if applicable. (Ibid.)

In disagreeing with the Department that S.W., Sr. was homeless at the time it assigned responsibility for S.W.'s educational costs, the ALJ discussed the provision in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12c which states: "[f]or the purpose of this amendatory and supplementary act, 'homeless' shall mean an individual who temporarily lacks a fixed, regular and adequate residence." The ALJ observed that there was "no contention that [S.W., Sr.'s] parents' home was not a permanent structure or that it was not physically adequate to serve as a dwelling in which the parents and their son could reside." (Initial Decision at 3) He perceived the operative question to be how much weight to give S.W., Sr.'s perception that his parents' house was not his fixed and regular residence, but rather a temporary abode.

S.W., Sr. apparently testified at the OAL hearing – and the ALJ found credible his testimony – that he had believed his stay at his parent's house was temporary. (Ibid.) However, the ALJ did not believe that S.W.'s intent to stay only temporarily necessarily meant that his sojourn with his parents would be brief. The ALJ observed that it is not unusual for adult children to return to live with their parents after college, failed marriages, financial setbacks, or during periods of indecision about the paths to follow in their lives. In his view, while the children may regard their return to their parents' homes as temporary, "at some point the intent to leave might begin to seem more the dream than the attainable goal. For these reasons, mere intent cannot be the determining factor in identifying someone as homeless." (Initial Decision at 4)

In connection with these issues, the ALJ discussed two prior cases in which the Commissioner of Education decided that students and their parents were not homeless: L.C. on behalf of B.C. v. Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 1003, and Board of Education of the Township of Maurice River, Cumberland County, v. Board of Education of the City of Wildwood, Cape May County, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 895.

In L.C., a parent and child who had lived for years in Branchburg, were evicted and went to stay with a relative in Somerville. L.C., supra, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d at 1003. The parent viewed the move as temporary, but paid half of the rent and received mail at the apartment, even though her name was not on the lease. (Id. at 1003-1004) Almost five months after the parent and child moved to Somerville, the Branchburg Board of Education – having belatedly learned of same – voted that the parent and child were no longer domiciled in Branchburg, and that the child was consequently not entitled to a free education therein. (Id. at 1004)

The parent countered that she and her child were homeless, pursuant to N.J.A.C 6A:17-2.3(a)(3), which states that a child may be considered homeless if he or she temporarily resides with relatives or friends out of necessity because the family lacks a regular or permanent address of its own. She argued that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:31-1(f) and N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c), the Branchburg school district was responsible for her child's education because it was their district of residence when they became "homeless." (Id. at 1005)

The ALJ and Commissioner in L.C. determined that petitioner and her child were not domiciled in Branchburg, and were not homeless. While petitioner's transfer to her brother's apartment may have been initially characterizable as temporary, the particular facts of petitioner's living arrangements, both at the time of respondent's determination and at the time of the OAL hearing, supported the conclusion that her residence in her brother's apartment had become sufficiently fixed, regular and adequate to preclude a finding of homelessness. More specifically, the Commissioner found that "petitioner's brother's home [had], in the months since September 1995, effectively become petitioner's regular and fixed residence." (Id. at 1005-1006)

In Maurice River, a child, A.P., who had lived in the Wildwood school district moved with his mother to his grandmother's home in Maurice River in May 1991. The reason for the move was a "marital dispute." Maurice River, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 896. From the beginning of the 1991-1992 school year until October 18, 1991, A.P. still attended school (a pre-first program) in Wildwood, because his mother was hoping for a reconciliation and a return to A.P.'s father's home in Wildwood. (Ibid.)

Because the reconciliation did not occur, A.P.'s mother enrolled him in the Maurice River school district on October 22, 1991. On the registration form, she placed a check mark next to the following reason for A.P.'s enrollment in the Maurice River district: "We are out of necessity living with relatives or friends." (Ibid.) Two weeks later – after A.P.'s grandmother wrote a letter to the county welfare agency stating that A.P.'s family could no longer live with her – A.P. moved with his mother to an apartment in Maurice River, where they received a rent subsidy for a year. The family continued to live in the Maurice River apartment through the time of the hearing in the OAL, and after the rent subsidy expired. (Id. at 896-897*)*

It was the Maurice River Board of Education (petitioner), not A.P.'s mother, that contended that A.P. was homeless and accordingly demanded tuition payment from respondent Wildwood Board of Education. It based its determination of homelessness on 1) the above mentioned October 22, 1991 enrollment form that indicated that A.P. was living by necessity with a relative, and 2) information from county welfare agency employees that A.P.'s family – which was given a rent subsidy for the first year it lived in its Maurice River apartment – was homeless. (Ibid.)

The Maurice River ALJ and the Commissioner found that A.P. was not a homeless child during the 1991-1992 school year. (Id. at 897) They rejected the notion that receipt of a housing subsidy signifies that the recipient is homeless; such subsidies are, in fact, provided to prevent homelessness. (Ibid.) They also rejected the idea that all persons living with relatives, even out of necessity, are homeless. (Ibid.) And they further pointed out that A.P.'s father still had a home in Wildwood. (Ibid.) The Commissioner adds that it is unclear, from the published facts in Maurice River, whether A.P.'s mother left the marital home by necessity, which could make a difference when applying the statutory and regulatory definitions of homelessness to the facts of the case.

The ALJ in the instant case considered L.C. and Maurice River to be precedent because in both those cases it was determined that parents (and their children) who stayed with relatives out of necessity were nonetheless not homeless for purposes of determining which school district was responsible for tuition. The ALJ concluded that S.W., Sr.'s situation was comparable to L.C.'s and B.P.'s (A.P.'s mother), and that his intention to stay with his parents only until he could save money for a place of his own was, like L.C.'s intention, not enough of a basis to characterize him as homeless. (Initial Decision at 3) As mentioned above, at the time of the OAL hearing, S.W., Sr. was still residing with his parents.

The Commissioner does not agree that L.C. and Maurice River are apposite to the present case. There appears to be no dispute that at the time of the Department's initial determination concerning S.W.'s educational costs, S.W., Sr. had very recently been evicted for non-payment of rent, and had unequivocally told his DYFS caseworker that he was temporarily staying with his parents to save money for a new residence. There is nothing to the contrary in the record before the Commissioner. Thus this case deviates from L.C. and Maurice River in that – at the time of the Department's determination – insufficient time had passed for the Department to assess whether S.W., Sr. would truly reside with his parents for a short stay, or make his stay more permanent. After-the-fact observation that at the time of the OAL hearing in December 2005, S.W., Sr. was still, after nine months, residing in his parents' home – suggesting some degree of permanence – did not render invalid the Department's May 5, 2005 decision about the 2004-2005 school year.

In addition, the present case is factually dissimilar from Maurice River in other ways. At the time of the Maurice River Board of Education's petition for tuition reimbursement, A.P.'s family had not only lived in Maurice River for five months, but A.P.'s mother had given up her hope of returning to her husband in Wildwood and, by November 1 of the school year in question, the family had transitioned to its own apartment in Maurice River. Those circumstances were not conducive to a classification of homelessness, and bear little precedential value for the case now before the Commissioner.

Nor does the fact pattern in L.C. bear much similarity to the present case. The record before the Commissioner does not indicate whether, at the time of the Department's determination, S.W., Sr. had been regularly paying money toward his parents' household expenses, as the mother did in L.C., or whether S.W., Sr. had taken any other actions in the few weeks he had been with his parents that would suggest his presence at his parents' residence might be more than short-lived. In the absence of same, the Department's conclusion that S.W., Sr. was homeless could not be characterized as unreasonable.

Further, N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.4(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23-5.2(g) direct that the district of residence described in N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 shall continue to be the district of residence "for as long as the parent(s) or guardian(s) remain homeless." When S.W., Sr. was evicted, there were no more than three months left to the 2004-2005 school year. By the time an intelligent assessment of the permanence or transience of S.W., Sr.'s stay at his parents' home – and the ancillary determination about homelessness – could have been made, the school year would have been all but finished, and S.W.'s educational costs for the last three months would have been assignable to petitioner under those regulations.

A school district challenging the Department's determination about residency bears the burden of proving that the Department's determination was arbitrary, capricious or without reason. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark v. New Jersey Dept. of Education, Division of Finances, EDU 1370-98, Final Decision (March 22, 1999). The Department's decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness. Board of Education of the Borough of South River v. N.J. Department of Education, EDU10117-98 (November 1, 2000). The Commissioner does not agree with the Initial Decision that petitioner met its burden to show that respondent's assignment of S.W.'s educational costs for the 2004-2005 school year was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

The Commissioner also carefully reviewed both parties' exceptions. At the outset, the Commissioner notes that petitioner was correct in pointing out that the ALJ did not make specific factual findings in support of his determinations. However, the Commissioner can neither rely on petitioner's nor respondent's characterizations of the testimony at the OAL hearing because neither party provided a transcript of same.

The Commissioner does not agree with respondent that J.S. on behalf of D.S. v. Parsippany-Troy Hills Township Board of Education, and J.S. on behalf of J.S. v. Parsippany-Troy Hills Township Board of Education, OAL DKT. NO. EDS 1676-01, OAL DKT. NO. EDS 1677-01, CONSOLIDATED AGENCY DKT. NO. 01-4866, AGENCY DKT. NO. 01-4867 (March 19, 2001) present a fact pattern apposite to this case. In J.S., petitioner and his family were living in the Parsippany-Troy Hills school district, where the children had been attending school, when they were evicted from their apartment in August 2000. (J.S. at 3) Some friends in Vernon Township allowed the family to stay with them, gratis, while J.S. searched for permanent housing. (Ibid.) At the beginning of September J.S. enrolled his children in the Vernon Township schools, using a note from Mr. K., the friend with whom the family was staying. (Ibid.) The note verified that J.S. and his family were residing with Mr. K. (Ibid.)

About two weeks later, however, Mr. K. asked J.S. and his family to leave. (Ibid.) After some nights in a hotel and one night in a car, J.S. and his family moved in with his father in West Paterson, where they remained at least through the time of the OAL hearing, [which was in February of 2001]. (Id. at 4*)* The ALJ was asked to decide, inter alia, which district, between Parsippany-Troy Hills and Vernon Township, was responsible for the children's education. For some reason, neither party raised the issue of whether West Paterson should be the responsible district. (Id. at 9, n.4)

Petitioner demanded that his children be allowed to attend school in Vernon, arguing that Vernon was the last place the family resided before becoming homeless. (Id. at 5) The ALJ disagreed, finding that the facts made it obvious that J.S.'s friends in Vernon understood their hosting of J.S.'s family to be temporary. (Id. at 7) Thus, J.S.'s family did not have a fixed, regular and adequate residence in Vernon. (Ibid.) The district responsible for the children's education was, consequently, Parsippany-Troy Hills.

At the time of Vernon Township's notice to J.S. that they did not believe his children were entitled to a free education in Vernon Township, J.S.. and his family had already left Vernon Township, having only resided there for about a month. It was already clear that the Vernon residency was temporary. By way of contrast, the Department's determination in the instant case was made at a time when the nature of S.W., Sr.'s residency with his parents was not clear. In sum, J.S. neither supports nor hurts respondent's position.

Finally, a point raised in Board of Education of the Township of Delran, Burlington County v. Board of Education of the City of Clifton, Passaic County, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 04113-96S, AGENCY DKT. NO. 87-3/96 (December 23, 2004), bears some discussion in connection with the issues in the present case. In Delran, K.G. and her three children lived in Clifton for at least two years prior to November 1995, when they were evicted for failure to pay rent. (Delran at 2) From November 20, 1995 until January 18, 1996, K.G. and her children stayed in an apartment in Delran with a J.M., and her children attended school in Delran for the two months. (Ibid.) K.G.'s name was not on the lease for the Delran apartment, and she had no approval from the apartment complex management to reside there. (Ibid.) On or about January 18, 1996, K.G. and the children relocated to Hackensack. (Ibid.)

Delran demanded tuition from Clifton for K.G.'s three children for the two months they attended school in Delran, asserting that under the regulation that preceded N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(a)(3), K.G.'s children were homeless after they were evicted from their home in Clifton, and also during their stay – out of necessity – at J.M.'s apartment in Delran. (Id. at 1-2) Consequently, Delran maintained that responsibility for the children's education lay with Clifton. The ALJ agreed, and further observed that "[i]t can hardly be argued that residence in a home in which one has no legal right to remain is 'regular' or 'fixed.'" (Id. at 6) Thus, K.G.'s family's status while it was in Delran was "homeless." The ALJ explained that for purposes of tuition assignment, the concern was whether the district where the family stayed in an unauthorized arrangement should bear the costs for educating the children, rather than the district which was responsible for them before they became adrift. (Ibid.)

In his reference to "legal rights," the ALJ may have been alluding to petitioner's allegation that K.G. and her children did not have permission from the management of J.M.'s apartment complex to reside in J.M.'s apartment. However, this principle also applies to the fact that an individual who is not named on a dwelling's lease or deed does not have a legal right to reside in that dwelling, unless circumstances exist that bestow upon the individual an equitable right.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was his parents that S.W., Sr. went to after his eviction, there is no evidence showing that he had a legal right to remain in his parents' home, either by the presence of his name on a lease or deed, or by an implied contract created by monetary or other types of contributions by him to the household or dwelling. Thus, when he went to his parents after the eviction, it was reasonable for the Department to refrain from jumping to the conclusion that his parents' home would be his permanent residence.

In summary, the Commissioner rejects the determination in the Initial Decision that respondent erred in assigning S.W.'s educational costs for the 2004-2005 year to petitioner, and orders petitioner to pay same. Further, the Commissioner declines to make any determinations about S.W.'s educational costs for the summer of 2005 or the 2005-2006 school year, as the record is insufficient to support same, and remands the case to the OAL for a determination concerning whether petitioner remained the responsible district for S.W.'s educational costs after June 2005. A copy of this decision will be simultaneously forwarded to the Flemington-Raritan Regional School District so that their Board may determine whether to intervene in this matter upon remand. Finally, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's order for the sealing of the record (but not the decision).

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

RECEIVED BY CONTROVERSIES & DISPUTES
2005 MAY 11 AM 10: 29

This Settlement Agreement and Release ("Agreement") is made and entered into between the Board of Education of the City of Passaic, Passaic County (the "Board") and Myles Holmes ("Holmes"). This Agreement is made pursuant to the following terms and conditions.

RECITALS

WHEREAS, pursuant to a series of contracts, Holmes was employed by the Board as a janitorial employee since on or about December 12, 1994;

WHEREAS, on or about April 5, 2005, Holmes was notified by the Board that his employment was being terminated for cause;

WHEREAS, on or about April 19, 2005, Holmes filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education, asserting that his termination by the Board violated his claimed tenure rights as a janitorial employee;

WHEREAS, the Board subsequently filed an Answer with Affirmative Defenses, denying that Holmes had obtained tenured employment status with the Board and that his rights had otherwise been violated;

WHEREAS, the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case and was docketed as EDUOR-05653-2005N;

WHEREAS, the parties have elected to settle all outstanding matters and allegations in dispute in lieu of a hearing so as to avoid expending further resources and to eliminate the uncertainties of litigation; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Holmes deem it to be in their best interests to set forth in a formal written agreement their respective rights, duties and obligations regarding Holmes's separation from employment with the Board; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Holmes are now mutually desirous of settling the matters and allegations in dispute; and

WHEREAS, all parties have been afforded the opportunity to consider the terms of this Agreement with advice of counsel and/or a representative of their choice;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and the mutual covenants herein contained, and for other good and valuable considerations, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. The "Board", as used herein, shall at all times mean the Board of Education of the City of Passaic, Passaic County, its affiliates, predecessors, successors and assigns of any and all of them, their present and former directors, officials, officers, representatives, associates, partners, servants, employees, agents, attorneys, and successors, whether in their individual or official capacities, and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations, partnerships or any other entity connected therewith.
2. "Holmes", as used herein, shall mean Myles Holmes, his heirs, representatives, privies, executors, administrators, assigns, successors-in-interest and predecessors-in-interest.

4. Within thirty (30) business days of the complete execution of this Settlement Agreement and General Release, the Board agrees to pay Holmes the gross sum of $38,248.95, less all applicable taxes, representing his back pay for the period of April 5, 2005 through January 31, 2006, plus all accrued sick and/or vacation time to which he may be entitled to as a result of his previous employment with the Board.
5. In consideration of the payment outlined in Paragraph 4 hereof, Holmes agrees to never seek reemployment or assert any tenure status with the Board at any time in the future in any capacity. Although the Board does not admit nor acknowledge that Holmes is a tenured employee of the Board, and in fact, contests his claimed status as a tenured employed, Holmes understands and agrees that by entering into this Settlement Agreement and General Release, he forever waives any claims, rights and privileges to tenured employment status he may have or may have had with the Board.
6. This Agreement is not and shall not in any way be construed as an admission by the Board of any acts of wrongdoing whatsoever, or that the Board, or any of its officers, members, agents, employees or representatives violated any federal or state constitutional prohibitions or any federal, state or local law, statute, ordinance, regulation or public policy of the State of New Jersey. Instead, the parties have entered into this Agreement for the sole purpose of resolving all claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation.

7. Holmes releases, acquits, gives up and forever discharges any and all claims and rights which he may have against the Board up to the time of the execution of this Settlement Agreement and General Release. This releases all claims, including those asserted in the matter of Holmes v. Holmes hereby waives any and all relief not explicitly provided for herein.

8. Holmes and the Board expressly understand and agree that said payment includes any and all amounts that may be claimed by Holmes or on his behalf, or by his attorneys, heirs, successors or assigns, against the Board. Holmes and the Board agree and acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement and General Release is also contingent on and subject to approval and ratification by the Board of Education of the City of Passaic.

9. This settlement is intended as and for damages for any and all possible injuries and Holmes hereby waives any and all claims for lost wages, income or future earnings.

10. In any action commenced against Holmes to enforce the provisions of this Agreement, the Board, if it is the prevailing party, shall be entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees, costs and disbursements incurred in prosecuting the action.

11. Holmes specifically acknowledges that the payment referred to in Paragraph 4 hereof constitutes any and all additional consideration not otherwise owed to him for this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

12. The parties and their attorney(s) agree and promise that they will not disclose, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatsoever, any information regarding either: (a) the substance or existence of his charges and/or actions against the Board; or, (b) the existence, terms or contents of this Settlement Agreement and General Release, to any person or organization, including, but not limited to, any governmental agency, members of the press and media, present and former officers, employees and agents of the Board and other members of the public. This paragraph shall not preclude the parties or their attorney(s) from disclosing the existence or terms of this Settlement Agreement and General Release to governmental authorities that require such information. The parties may only state, without elaboration, as follows: "The situation has been resolved to the mutual satisfaction of Holmes and the Board." In the event that the Board is approached for a reference, the only information to be provided will be Holmes's date of hire, date of resignation and salary.

13. Holmes agrees that he shall not seek any further amount of money from the Board other than the amount set forth in Paragraph 4 hereof.

14. This Settlement Agreement and General Release contains the full agreement of Holmes and the Board and may not be modified, altered, changed or terminated except upon the express prior written consent of Holmes and the Board, which consent must be signed by Holmes and the Board, or their duly authorized agents.

15. The waiver by Holmes and/or the Board of a breach of any provision hereof shall not operate or be construed as a waiver of that breach by the other, or as a waiver of any subsequent breach by the other.

16. If any term, provision or condition of this Settlement Agreement and General Release is held invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall be without effect upon the validity or enforceability of any other provision, term or condition of this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

17. This Settlement Agreement and General Release shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

18. This Settlement Agreement and General Release may be executed in counterparts, with each of which shall be deemed to be an original copy, but all of which together shall be deemed one and the same instrument.

19. This Settlement Agreement and General Release shall become effective immediately following execution by Holmes and the Board, but shall be contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law. In the event that approval is not given for this Agreement, Holmes shall immediately refund all monies provided to him hereunder to the Board.

20. Holmes and the Board shall each bear all of their own costs, expenses and attorneys feels arising from the prosecution or defense of this matter and in connection with this Settlement Agreement and General Release.

21. This Settlement Agreement and General Release contains the entire Agreement between Holmes and the Board with regard to the matters set forth in it, and shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of their officials, officers, directors, attorneys, representatives, employees, associates, partners, agents, servants, executors, administrators, personal representatives, heirs, successors and assigns of each, and all other persons, firms, corporations, associations or partnerships or any other entity or persons connected therewith, except as set forth herein or as may be agreed to in writing between the parties.

22. In entering into this Settlement Agreement and General Release, Holmes has relied upon the legal advice of his attorney, who is the attorney of his own choice, as to the terms of this Settlement Agreement and General Release which have been completely read and explained to him by his attorney and those terms are fully understood and voluntarily accepted.

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arises out of the disputed elections results from the April 18, 2006 vote for three seats on the Atlantic City Board of Education (ACBOE), and the Board's attempts to reorganize itself as required by statute while challenges to those results are ongoing.

Petitioners are members of the Atlantic City Board of Education (ACBOE) who have filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) seeking emergent relief. They request that the Board reorganization meeting held on May 9, 2006 be voided on the grounds that it violated the Open Public Meeting Act (OPMA), and that a quorum of its members was not present. They further allege that Board policies and procedures were violated in the manner in which the meeting was conducted, and that actions taken at the meeting were in violation of statutory provisions governing the award of contracts by school boards and conflicts of interest among school board members. Petitioners also request that the annual reorganization meeting of the ACBOE be postponed until the outcome of the election contests for the three new members is determined, and that the new members of the Board not assume office until the contests are decided.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 3, 2006, one of the newly elected members of the ACBOE, Scott Evans filed an action in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Atlantic County. Evans requested the Court order ACBOE members to attend an emergency reorganization meeting on May 5, 2006. On May 4, 2006, the Honorable Valerie H. Armstrong, A.J.S.C., entered an order dismissing his complaint (A-4(B)). The Court took the position that the issues relating to the Board and its reorganization were matters under the jurisdiction of the Commission of Education (A-4(F)). On May 9, 2006, the Petitioners filed a request for emergent relief with the Commissioner and asked that the reorganization meeting of the ACBOE scheduled for May 9, 2006, and the concomitant swearing in of its new officers be enjoined pending the outcome of the contested election results. On that same date, four of the already sitting ACBOE members, and two of the new members went forward with a reorganization meeting.

On May 12, petitioners filed an Amended Petition with the Commissioner, requesting that the reorganization meeting of May 9, 2006 be voided, and that the annual reorganization meeting, and the swearing in of new officers be enjoined until the election challenges were decided. [1] On May 15, 2006, counsel for the respondent ACBOE and counsel for one of the newly elected members Scott Evans[2] filed responses to the Petition with the Commissioner. On May 16, 2006, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15.

On May 18, 2006, a hearing was held on the request for emergent relief at the offices of the OAL in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The Court on its own motion, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16, granted intervenor status to Evans. After unsuccessful attempts to settle the matter, counsel for petitioners, the respondent ACBOE, and intervenor Scott Evans argued the matter, relying on the briefs and certifications submitted. All sides were given an opportunity to present witnesses at the hearing, or to reconvene on May 19, 20006 in Atlantic City to present testimony or other evidence. The parties chose to submit briefs and certifications to supplement the record. The record remained open until the morning of May 22, 2006.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Most of the salient facts in this matter are not in dispute. The ACBOE is currently an eleven member body. Due to population changes, a review is underway by state authorities as to whether one of the sending districts is entitled to another seat on the board. If so, the Board will become a twelve member body. Three of the eleven seats were at issue in the April 18, 2006 school election. At the close of the polls the winning candidates were Shay Steele (1,213 votes), George Crouch (1,056 votes) and John Devlin (885 votes).

[1] Petitioners also filed a Verified Complaint requesting the same relief with the Superior Court of New Jersey on May 15, 2006. By letter of May 17, 2006, Judge Armstrong again declined jurisdiction in favor of the Commissioner of Education. (A-4(F).

[2] Daniel Gallagher, counsel for Scott Evans was voted in as counsel for the ACBOE at the disputed May 9, 2006 meeting. Petitioners have raised an issue on the validity of his appointment under school board contracting and conflicts of interest statutes. Mr. Gallagher has entered an appearance in this matter solely on behalf of Scott Evans. The issues surrounding his appointment as counsel for the ACBOE are not addressed in this decision on petitioners' request for emergent relief.

On April 21 and 24, 2006, Steele, Crouch and Devlin requested the Superior Court to impound approximately 1,500 absentee and messenger ballots, citing voting irregularities. When the over 900 messenger ballots and the several hundred absentee ballots were counted, the vote total changed the winners to Scott Evans (1,610 votes), Pam Jones (1,590 votes) and Joel Nunez (1,472 votes). Shortly thereafter in early May, Judge Armstrong ordered a recount.

Before the recount could be completed, counsel for Scott Evans filed an action in Superior Court to require the ACBOE to reorganize itself at an emergency meeting on May 5, 2006, and in the absence of a quorum, that the newly elected candidates be allowed to participate in order to create a quorum. Judge Armstrong denied that request. Prior to the election, the ACBOE had scheduled and advertised May 2, 2006, as the date for its reorganization meeting. According to papers filed by Intervenor Evans (I-1), the meeting was cancelled by school officials due to the pendency of the recount. On that date, four of the Board members and three newly elected candidates appeared for the reorganization meeting. No meeting was held, but counsel for Evans asserts that he administered the oath of office to Scott Evans and Pamela Jones on that date. (I-1, page 2 and Exhibits C and D).

On May 8, 2006, the recount was conducted and the results were certified by the Atlantic County Clerk on May 9, 2006. The three certified winners were Scott Evans, Pamela Jones and Shay Steele. Officials of the ACBOE had rescheduled and advertised the reorganization meeting for May 9, 2006. Prior to that meeting however, the Petitioners advised ACBOE officials and counsel that they were moving before the Commissioner to enjoin the reorganization meeting pending the outcome of the election contests. Aware of the request to enjoin the meeting, and uncertain as to whether a quorum would exist for the meeting, the Superintendent of Schools, Fredrick P. Nickels (Nickels) contacted the eight sitting members of the Board and was informed that only four of the members would be present at the meeting. He then contacted outgoing Board President Cornell Davis, who advised him to cancel the meeting. He then notified the Board members and administrative staff that the meeting was cancelled, and provided notice of that cancellation to the media. (R-1 (2)).

Four of the sitting members of the Board, Stephen Bonanni, John Dollard, Theresa Kelly, and Rashun Stewart, and newly elected member Shay Steele provided Certifications that they were informed of the meeting's cancellation and therefore did not attend (A-4). Each also certified that they subsequently learned that a reorganization meeting was held on May 9, 2006, by four other sitting Board members, and two of the newly elected members, Evans and Jones. The record shows that while steps were taken by the School Superintendent to cancel the meeting and notify the public, four of the sitting Board members Rochelle Salway, Dolores Callaway, Stephanie Davies-Khan and Sophia LaPorte disagreed with that decision. Together with newly elected members Evans and Jones, they held a reorganization meeting on May 9, 2006. Since an oath of office had been administered by Daniel Gallagher, Esq., to Evans and Jones on May 2, 2006 (I-1, page 2, Exhibits C and D), the four sitting members who chose to attend the meeting and the two newly elected members took the position that a quorum existed. They convened the reorganization meeting and conducted business, including the hiring of counsel.

Intervenor Evans presented a series of Certifications from residents and staff who attended the disputed May 9, 2006 meeting (I-3). Each asserts that they did not receive notice of the cancellation and that they witnessed the two new members being sworn in and Board business being conducted. The meeting was conducted without the usual board administrative staff being present, including the Board Secretary who serves to take the official minutes of the meeting. At the hearing in this matter, neither the minutes of the disputed meeting, nor the transcript of the meeting were placed in the record.

Subsequent to the disputed meeting of May 9, 2006, Petitioners filed their Amended Petition with the Commissioner to void the actions taken at the May 9, 2006 meeting on the grounds that it violated the OPMA and that the meeting was conducted without a valid quorum being present. They also requested that the reorganization meeting not be held until the election contests have been decided, and that the Board continue to sit with its already sitting eight members. At the hearing in this matter, the parties informed the court that election contests to the certified results of the vote had been filed in the Superior Court.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The issues in this matter concern the attempts by members of the ACBOE to reorganize and conduct business while an election recount and election contests are ongoing. The first issue to be addressed is whether, pending the outcome of the election contests, the three newly elected board members should be allowed to assume their seats or whether the Board should continue with the already sitting eight members. The record shows that there are three duly certified winners of the April 18, 2006 election. Although the initial certification by the County Clerk and Board of Elections was overturned due to the court ordered recount of votes, the recount was completed on or about May 9, 2006 and the results were certified. There does not appear to be any statutory provision or relevant case law which bars the certified winners of the election from taking office. Nor is there any current order of a court of competent jurisdiction which prevents the winners from taking office pending the outcome of the election challenges currently pending in Superior Court. I therefore FIND that the certified winners of the April 18, 2006, school board election for Atlantic City may take office and petitioners' request to enjoin the seating of the newly elected members is DENIED.

The question then becomes when and in what manner, the certified winners of the election assume office. School districts in New Jersey are required by statute to reorganize themselves after the yearly school elections held in April. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3 provides that each board "shall organize annually at a regular meeting held not later than at 8 p.m. at which time new members shall take office..." Depending on the type of school district, that meeting will occur either on May 16 or on a day during the first or second week following the school election. If the meeting cannot take place on the applicable date "by reason of lack of a quorum or for any other reason", the reorganization shall be held within three days thereafter. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3. While the statute is silent on what should occur when, for whatever reason the reorganization meeting does not take place, the statute's clear imperative is that a reorganization of boards and the seating of new members take place by May 19.

Both the statute and the ACBOE policy 0163 (A-2(C) assume that the new members will "take office" at the reorganization meeting. Petitioners therefore object to the disputed reorganization meeting held on May 9, 2006, on the grounds that the meeting was invalid due to the lack of a quorum. Since only four of the Board's sitting members were present, they argue that the two newly elected members could not be counted toward the required six member quorum. The usual reorganization meeting procedure is for a quorum of the Board to convene and administer the oath of office to the newly elected members. At the May 9 meeting, two of the newly elected members who had been administered the oath of office by an attorney of the State of New Jersey on May 2, 2006, were counted toward the quorum.

The newly elected members could not count toward the quorum until they had assumed office. Intervenor Evans argues that since he and Jones had been administered the oath of office by someone authorized to administer the oath under the election laws, N.J.S.A. 41:2-17, they had assumed their office when they were administered the oath. At that point, they argue, they were entitled to participate in the reorganization meeting. Reviewing the record in this matter, I find that it is unclear when the oaths of office were actually administered to Evans and Jones. The only official evidence submitted of the oath of office being administered to Evans and Jones related to the oath administered to them on May 2, 2006 by counsel. The form attesting to the oath being administered to Jones lists the date for the oath as the May 2, 2006, meeting, but it was attested to on May 9, 2006 by counsel. On May 2, 2006, the election results were being recounted and the certification of votes was in question. Since the recount and vote certification issue was before Superior Court and the results were not finalized until May 9, 2006, an oath of office administered on May 2, 2006, was not only outside the procedures set by board policy and outside the statutory assumption that it would occur at the reorganization meeting, it was invalid due to the uncertainty of the vote certification process.

While there is some evidence in the Certifications of those in attendance (I-3) at the disputed May 9 meeting that a second oath was administered at that time, neither the official evidence of that oath, nor the transcript or minutes of that meeting have been entered into the record. Since I find that the oath administered to Evans and Jones on May 2, 2006, was not valid, and since official evidence of the oath being administered on May 9, 2006 is not in the record, I cannot make a finding as to whether a quorum actually existed at the May 9, 2006 reorganization meeting. I note however, that even if the oath was administered at the May 9 meeting, a legal issue exists as to whether the newly elected members could count toward the quorum necessary for the meeting.

Petitioners also challenge the validity of the May 9, 2006 meeting on the grounds that it was held in violation of the OPMA. As a public body, the meetings of a school board are to be conducted in public and are subject to the mandates of the OPMA. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq., N.J.S.A. 18:10-6. The purpose of the OPMA is to provide access to public meetings and to prevent secrecy in the conduct of public affairs. In order to provide fair and open access to the public, the OPMA requires adherence to notice provisions for public meetings and "any action taken by a public body at a meeting which does not conform with the provisions of this act shall be voidable". N.J.S.A. 10:5-15. Strict adherence to the letter of the Act is required in determining whether a violation of the Act has occurred. Polillo v. Deane, 74 N.J. 562, 578 (1977). While the statute provides that the remedy for a violation of the OPMA shall be a proceeding in lieu of prerogative writ in Superior Court, authority exists allowing an administrative agency in its exercise of primary jurisdiction over a controversy, to determine issues arising under the OPMA. Sukin V. Northfield Bd. Of Ed., 171 N.J. Super. 184, 187 (A.D. 1979).

In the case at hand, the record shows that the initial reorganization meeting scheduled for May 2, 2006, was cancelled due to the uncertainly over the election results and the pending recount. The meeting was then rescheduled for May 9, 2006 and appropriate notice was given to the public. Actions were then taken by the Superintendent of Schools in consultation with sitting board members to cancel the meeting. Members of the Board were notified, and notice of the cancellation was provided to the public. Members of the administrative staff, including the Board Secretary who usually administers oaths and takes the minutes of the meeting, were advised not to attend. Upon receiving notice of the cancellation, four members of the Board and two of the newly elected members chose to conduct the cancelled meeting without notifying the other board members that they were proceeding with the meeting. In doing so they violated the provisions of the OPMA. While the meeting had been validly noticed to the public, the actions taken by the Superintendent and his staff to cancel the meeting were taken in good faith on the assumption that a quorum would not be present and in recognition of the petition to enjoin the meeting filed with the Commissioner. I find that those actions effectively negated the notice required of the meeting required under the OPMA. Given the actions taken to cancel the meeting and notify the press and public, the decision by a portion of the Board to convene the cancelled meeting without further notice to the public or their colleagues on the Board was in contravention of both the letter and the spirit of the OPMA.

Remedies for violations of the act include voiding of actions taken at the meeting. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15. Such action may be warranted when notice to the public has been less than adequate and when members of a public body have also failed to notify their fellow members of actions to be taken. Roman v. Township of South Hackensack, 302 N.J. Super. 568, 575 (A.D., 1997). The violation of the Act in this matter is not of a de minimus nature. It concerned notice to the public and fellow board members of the Board's reorganization and its seating of newly elected board members during a series of actions contesting their election. It also involved the convening of the Board in a manner not in conformance with its usual policies and procedures, and without the presence of its usual administrative staff.

Balancing the statutory mandate for the school board to reorganize annually after the April elections with the requirements of the OPMA, I FIND that the Petitioners have met the standards for emergent relief in their request that the disputed May 9, 2006 meeting of the ACBOE be voided based upon nonconformance with the OPMA. In order to comply with N.J.S.A. 18-10-3, all members of the Board must convene on May 26, 2006 to conduct the annual reorganization meeting, and they shall seat the three newly elected members Shay Steele, Pamela Jones and Scott Evans in conformance with Board policy and procedures.

I make no findings or decisions on the allegations of noncompliance with other statutory mandates that are contained in Counts Four and Five of Petitioners' Verified Complaint at this time. Such findings are not necessary to the emergent relief granted in this opinion and are outside the scope of the emergent hearing held in this matter. I retain such jurisdiction as may be appropriate over those Counts and those issues will be scheduled for hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-1 et seq.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that all members of the Atlantic City Board of Education meet on May 26, 2006, to conduct the reorganization meeting required by N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3, and to seat its three newly elected members in conformance with the statue and Board policy. I further ORDER that Fredrick Nickels, the Superintendent of Schools provide notice to the public of such meeting in conformance with the requirements of the OPMA.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of the Department of Education who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioning education association challenged preferential treatment allegedly accorded the school business administrator/board secretary (SBA) with respect to payment for accumulated sick leave, in violation of statute and district policy. Respondent board denied the allegations; asserted that petitioner failed to comply with the 90-day rule of limitation set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i); and filed motion for summary judgment.

The ALJ found: the November 2003 public Board meeting, attended by the president of the Carteret Education Association (CEA), to be the triggering event for the 90-day notice period; petitioner did not exercise reasonable diligence in the filing of the petition; the assertion of the CEA president that he had no reason to learn the existence of an "individual" contract for the SBA until November 2004 is not supported in the record. The ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petitioner's appeal.

The Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that the appeal is appropriately dismissed as time barred, noting that when a petitioner's cause of action is dismissed on procedural grounds pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, it is essential to ensure that the requirements of so doing have been fully satisfied in light of the provision's underlying purpose. The Commissioner finds that: with respect to its approval of Mr. Patel's contract at the November 2003 meeting, petitioner had every reason to rely on respondent's compliance with statutory requirements; petitioner first became aware of questionable aspects in connection with the SBA contract in November 2004, and was not provided with a copy of said contract until January 2005; "adequate notice" arose upon receipt of that document by the CEA; therefore, the instant petition – filed in March 2005 – was timely. Accordingly, the Initial Decision is rejected, and the matter is remanded to the OAL for hearing on its merits.

CARTERET EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET, MIDDLESEX COUNTY AND NILKANTH PATEL,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto, filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching her determination herein.[1]

Petitioner's exceptions charge that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination that the November 12, 2003 Board meeting was the triggering event for the filing of a petition in this matter is erroneous. Petitioner points out that the governing provision with respect to timeliness of a petition, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), in applicable part provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

[1] The Board did not file reply exceptions.

While conceding that Carteret Education Association (CET) President, Robert Cowan, was in attendance at the November 12, 2003 meeting and, therefore, was aware of the Board's appointment of Mr. Patel to the position of Business Administrator/Board Secretary, both the resolution which was adopted in this regard and the meeting minutes subsequently issued clearly and unambiguously discussed only: 1) that a contract was being entered with Mr. Patel; 2) the salary to be paid; and 3) the effective date of the contract. As such, it argues, neither Mr. Cohen nor petitioner had any reason to believe – nor did the Board's action provide any reason to suggest – that Mr. Patel's contract accorded him accumulated sick leave benefits over and above those granted to all other District employees. (Petitioner's Exceptions dated May 8, 2006)

Moreover, petitioner argues, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 sets forth the requirements which must be fulfilled in order to grant an individual credit for unused sick leave earned in another district:

> Whenever a board of education employs any person who has an unused accumulation of sick leave days from another school district in New Jersey, the employing board may grant, not later than the end of the first year of employment, part or full credit therefore. The amount of such credit shall be fixed by resolution of the board uniformly applicable to all employees and subject to the provisions of this chapter. Id. at 8

Here it is undisputed that the Board did not take the requisite public action at its November 12, 2003 meeting and, therefore, petitioner proposes, absent public notice of the Board's action, there is no way petitioner could have or should have known that Mr. Patel's contract granted him benefits of this nature. (Ibid.) Petitioner professes that it first became aware that Mr. Patel's contract might be other than standard in nature in November 2004, at which time it requested a copy of this contract – which was not provided until late January 2005. Petitioner advances that it was at this point in time that it learned that Mr. Patel had accumulated sick leave benefits "that had never been publicly disclosed or separately voted upon in public," (Id. at 2) and it filed the instant Petition of Appeal within the requisite 90 days of this discovery. Petitioner, therefore, urges that the decision of the ALJ dismissing this matter as untimely be rejected.

The Board's reply exceptions support the correctness of the Initial Decision and urge its adoption by the Commissioner.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner determines to reject the Initial Decision, as she does not – under the circumstances presented in this matter – agree with the ALJ's conclusion that this case is appropriately dismissed as time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3. In so determining, the Commissioner was particularly mindful that when imposing the severe penalty of dismissing a petitioner's cause of action on procedural grounds pursuant to this provision, it is essential to ensure that the requirements of so doing – in light of this provision's underlying purpose – have been fully satisfied.

With this in mind, the Commissioner turns to consideration of the applicability of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) to the facts in this matter. This provision specifies:

> [t]he petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. ***

Guidance as to what constitutes notice sufficient to trigger the running of this regulatory provision was provided by the Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993) wherein it examined the underlying purpose of both the limitations period and the concept of "adequate notice". Essentially, the Kaprow Court found the limitations period begins to run when a party has adequate notice of a final order, ruling or action by a board of education, adequate notice being defined as one which is "sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Kaprow at 587. Moreover, it found that notice is "adequate" where it furthers the purpose of the 90-day limitations period,

> [t]hat is, the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the [affected persons] have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with [their] cause of actionAt the same time, [the notice] should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Id.

The Commissioner observes that the instant record – with respect to the salient issue under consideration here – establishes that, at its public meeting of November 12, 2003, the Board voted to approve the employment contract of Nilkanth Patel, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary. Such action clearly set forth this individual's salary and the effective date of the contract. It is uncontroverted that no further details with respect to this contract were presented at this meeting nor in the subsequently issued meeting minutes. It is similarly uncontroverted that at no time during this meeting did the Board fix by resolution, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2, the credit to be accorded Mr. Patel for unused accumulated sick leave days earned in his prior employment. Under these circumstances, it cannot reasonably be concluded that, on November 12, 2003, petitioner had notice of the existence of any facts which – under the concept of the exercise of "reasonable diligence" – would impose on it a duty to further investigate by inquiring as to the specific terms and conditions of Mr. Patel's contract, or compel it to secure a copy of this document. Rather, given the absence of any indication to the contrary, petitioner had every reason to rely on the Board's compliance with statutory requirements surrounding all aspects of Mr. Patel's employment contract. Petitioner asserts that it first became aware of potentially questionable aspects in connection with the Patel contract in November 2004 and immediately requested a copy, which it contends – and the Board does not refute – was ultimately provided in late January 2005. The Commissioner finds that the record of this matter amply supports that the "adequate notice" contemplated by Kaprow, supra. – serving to trigger the running of the 90-day filing timeline of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) – arose at the point in time when, upon receipt of this document, petitioner discovered that Mr. Patel had been granted accumulated sick leave benefits from prior employment absent public disclosure and the requisite public action. Consequently, she concludes that the instant Petition of Appeal, filed on March 24, 2005, was timely. The Commissioner, however, is compelled to clarify that this decision deals solely with the procedural issue of timeliness. It does not consider the substantive issues contained in the petition or any remedies which may be available to petitioner, if applicable.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal as untimely is rejected. This matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for hearing on its merits.

Record Closed: April 3, 2006 Decided: April 19, 2006

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 24, 2005, the Carteret Education Association (CEA) filed a petition challenging the alleged preferential treatment accorded School Business Administrator/Board Secretary Nilkanth Patel with respected to payment for accumulated sick leave from his previous public school employment and alleging violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 and district policy. Respondents filed an answer asserting general denial of the allegations and an affirmative defense that the CEA failed to comply with the 90-day rule of limitation set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.3(i). The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 18, 2005, for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. It was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on June 13, 2005, and as a result of a pre-hearing conference, the parties have submitted the within matter initially, by motion, to resolve the issue of the timeliness of petitioner's application. The pleadings were submitted between March 9, 2006, and April 3, 2006, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following facts are not in dispute and shall constitute FINDINGS OF FACT.

At a public board of education meeting on November 12, 2003, the Board approved the 2003-2004 contract of respondent Nilkanth Patel as School Business Administrator/Board Secretary (SBA/BS).[1] CEA President Robert Cowan was in attendance at that meeting. Immediately prior to the Board acting to approve the 2003-2004 contract, Cowan spoke about the subject of after school programs appointments.

[1] See exhibit B to respondents' motion.

Petitioner has no evidence to rebut the fact that the Board approved, by a roll call majority vote of the members of the Board, the employment contract between the Board and Patel, effective July 1, 2003, through June 30, 2004, at a public board meeting on November 12, 2003.[2] In addition to providing for a salary of $122,500.00, the contract also provided, with regard to accumulated sick leave:

> ...the SBA/BS shall be permitted to carry over the balance of one-hundred twenty-eight (128) days from his prior employment . ...

Petitioner had knowledge as of November 12, 2003, that Patel was employed as the SBA/BS.[3] The document containing the Board minutes of the November 12, 2003, meeting is a public document.[4] Prior to November 12, 2003, petitioner has made requests of the Board for copies of public documents.[5] The 2003-2004 contract is a government record pursuant to the Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1.1 et seq.

On March 24, 2005, petitioner filed the within matter challenging the contract approved at the public meeting of November 12, 2003.

Respondent Patel is in his third year of employment with the Board.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Respondents assert their motion for summary decision should be granted as there is no dispute that petitioner CEA failed to timely file the petition within the 90 day period required by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Relying on Kaprow v Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp, respondents assert that the rationale behind the strict application of the 90 day rule is that it "provides finality in education matters."[6] Further relying on Kaprow, respondents assert that the "objective event"[7] triggering the limitation period occurred on November 12, 2003, when the Board voted to approve Patel's contract at its public meeting. The petitioner's argument that it was not aware of the contents of the contract until it reviewed it in February 2005, cannot be deemed the "objective event" triggering the 90 day period, since the exercise of reasonable diligence on the part of the CEA would have caused it to request a copy of the contract after the November 12, 2003, meeting that its president, Robert Cowen, attended. Furthermore, respondents assert petitioner has not demonstrated exceptional circumstances by way of compelling reason, substantial constitutional issues or issues of significant public interest beyond the parties. It is in these limited circumstances, respondents assert, the Commissioner has relaxed the 90 day limitations period.[8]

[4] Id.
[5] Id.

In opposition, and not supported by any affidavit pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 and R. 4:46-5, petitioner contends that the existence of an individual contract between the respondents was not known to the CEA until November 2004 and that a request for same at the time was not complied with until late January 2005. By letter of February 4, 2005, CEA President Cowan requested a copy of the Board resolution wherein it gave Patel credit for 128 accumulated sick days and a copy of the certification filed with the Board regarding those sick days pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.3.[9] By memorandum of February 11, 2005, Carteret Superintendent of Schools Kevin Ahearn advised that there was "no existing board resolutions" that had been passed.[10] By memorandum of February 14, 2005, Ahearn forwarded Cowen a copy of the February 10, 2005,

"Certification of Unused Accumulated Sick Leave Days" completed by Englewood Public Schools Assistant Director of Human Services, Danielle Jarvis-Shubrick, indicating, in part:

> upon leaving the employment of the Englewood Public School on December 31, 1998, Nilkath Patel had 195.5 unused accumulated sick leave days.[11]

As a result, petitioner contends that the Board entered into a "customized" individual contract, rather than a standard contract pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3 and that this contract was therefore void ab initio as the Board lacked the statutory authority to enter into such a contract because customized contracts are only permitted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-24.2, which is inapplicable herein. Petitioner asserts that the Board minutes were prepared by Patel and therefore, "intentionally vague." As a result, it contends that upon discovering the individual contract, it filed the petition within 90 days of discovery. Additionally, petitioner asserts respondent BOE failed to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 which requires that a resolution be passed specifically relating to Patel's sick leave and therefore a timeliness issue as to this petition does not exist.

In reply, respondents assert that the Board had the authority, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-6 to include all necessary terms and conditions of employment in the 2003-2004 contract, and as such, the contract is fully compliant and not void. Additionally, respondents assert the discovery rule is inapplicable in this matter as it is premised on reasonable diligence which the petitioner has failed to demonstrate the exercise thereof. In this instance, reasonable diligence would have required the petitioner to have inquired as to the terms and conditions of the contract and filed a petition within 90 days of November 12, 2003.

In sur-reply, petitioner contends that the recent release of the State Commission of Investigation (SCI) report titled "Questionable and Hidden [11] See exhibits D and E to petitioner's opposition dated March 10, 2006.

Compensation for Public School Administrators"[12] highlights the very concerns it has articulated.

The Commissioner has general jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) requires that a petition of appeal be filed within 90 days of notice of a ruling affecting a petitioner. Formal notice of the school board's action is not necessary to raise a claim. Indeed, the Commissioner has held that a letter from the local board secretary which provided clear and unambiguous notice of the local board's final action triggered the 90-day limitation. Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 255 N.J. Super 76 (App. Div. 1992), cert. granted, 130 N.J. 16, aff'd, 131 N.J. 572 (1993). The 90-day rule is to be strictly applied, Gordon v. Passaic Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D.1929, aff'd, No. A.-3294-84 (App. Div. May 27, 1986), cert. den., 105 N.J. 534 (1986). The Commissioner has the authority, however, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16, to relax that time period "in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice." But such authority is rarely invoked. See Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkely Twp., supra. Moreover, relaxation of the regulation is generally unsuccessful unless there are compelling reasons justifying relaxation or where circumstances are such that strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur. Gordon, supra, at 1931. In this matter, I FIND that the November 12, 2003, public Board meeting attended by CEA president Robert Cowan to be the triggering event for the 90 day period. Petitioner does not dispute knowledge that the SBA/BS contract is a public document subject to disclosure pursuant to the Open Public Records Act (OPRA) and petitioner does not dispute having previously requested copies of public documents. But such prior knowledge is not required nor is petitioner's familiarity with OPRA request process dispositive of this matter. That knowledge is deemed imputed to the petitioner, in this circumstance, due to Mr. Cowan's presence at that meeting. That provided adequate notice sufficient to commence the 90 day period. Reasonable diligence on the part of the petitioner could have been exercised promptly and the within petition filed in a timely manner. Mr. Cowan's assertion, not supported by affidavit, that he had no reason to learn the existence of Patel's "individual" contract until November 2004 is not supported by the record in this matter.

[12] The full report is available at www.state.nj.us/sci

Petitioner's assertion that the SBA/BS contract is void ab initio is erroneous. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-24.6 specifically permits the board to determine the "the initial terms and conditions of the employment contract between the boards and ... (the) school business administrator ...(which) terms shall be maintained for the life of the contract. Petitioner's reliance upon N.J.S.A. 18A: 17-24.2 is misplaced as that statute concerns boards sharing a superintendent or SBA and that is inapplicable in this matter.

Petitioner cites to the recent publication of the State Commission of Investigation report and presumably, although not specifically articulated, seeks relaxation of the 90 day time period due to a significant public interest[13] rationale. Certainly, public interest on the issue highlighted by the SCI report is heightened at this juncture. Had reasonable diligence been exercised by the petitioner, the timely filing of this petition would have caused this matter to proceed forward on the merits. It should be noted; however, that N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2 permits a board of education employing any person who has an unused accumulation of sick days from another New Jersey school district to "grant, not later than the end of the first year of employment, part or full credit ... (and) the amount of any such credit shall be fixed by resolution of the board... ." N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.4 requires the accumulation of sick leave days from another district be credited upon receipt of the certificate of the prior employer. Further, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.3 provides that:

> Upon termination of employment of any employee from any school district, the board shall issue, at the request of the > employee, a certificate stating such employee's unused accumulation of sick leave days as of the date of such termination. Such certificate shall be filed with the new employer within one year of the date of such new employment.

Here, no resolution was passed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2. Interestingly, the certification from Jarvis-Shubrick is not provided prior to the Board meeting of November 12, 2003, but rather on February 10, 2005, after the February 4, 2005, inquiry by Cowan. But it must also be emphasized though that respondent Patel is now in the third year of his employment with this Board. As the Supreme Court noted in Kaprow:[14] > because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back pay requirements. ....(The 90 day limitations period) represents a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws.

It is for that reason that respondent's motion for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 for failure to timely file the petition in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 must be granted.

DECISION AND ORDER

Respondents' motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

Duane T. Phillips, Esq., for petitioner

Clement F. Lisitski, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: November 2, 2005 Decided: November 10, 2005

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

The New Jersey Department of Education (DOE) Bureau of Controversies received a request for emergent relief on August 25, 2005, wherein petitioner contended the Board of Education's refusal to promote her two children to the next grade for the 2005-2006 school year on the basis of their having too many absences was arbitrary and capricious. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 2005, and was docketed as EDU 6599-05. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The Director of the OAL assigned the undersigned to hear this matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5o.

The matter was scheduled for oral argument on September 2, 2005, at the OAL office in Atlantic City. An Order on Emergent Relief was entered by the undersigned ALJ on September 6, 2005, and the matter was set down for plenary hearing for November 2, 2005, at the OAL office in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The parties appeared for hearing on November 2, 2005, in the matter docketed at EDU 6599-05. At that time, the parties reached a settlement of both this case (EDU 6599-05), and of another matter filed by petitioner against respondent docketed as GRC-6816-05. The settlement set forth below is intended to resolve both matters, but, as it is one document, this Initial Decision is intended to address all issues contained in both matters. I note that the settlement of the matter docketed at EDU 6599-05 leaves open one issue for my adjudication, and my resolution of that issue is set forth herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the testimony placed on the record on November 2, 2005, a copy of which is attached hereto.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all but one of the issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Pursuant to the terms of the settlement between the parties and as set forth herein, there remains one open item. The current academic transcript of T.A. at respondent's school contains the following typed language:

> Your child has been retained due to excessive absences per N.J.S.A. 18A:38.25-30, 18A:29, and BOE Attendance Policy 5117.7.

Additionally, the transcript contains the following hand-written notation:

> "see attached attendance report."

Appended to the transcript is a second page purporting to be a delineation of T.A.'s attendance at respondent's school.

P.A.'s transcript likewise contains the above-cited typed and handwritten language, and an attached "attendance report." Petitioner argues that this language is inaccurate, and that it is prejudicial to the children. According to petitioner, anyone reading the transcript would believe that the children had been retained in the prior grade, when in fact they had not been. Further, petitioner avers that the appended "attendance report" is not a normal practice, but one that has been adopted solely for T.A. and P.A. to highlight respondent's struggles with petitioner.

Respondent argues that the typed notation is part of the history of the student's tenure at the school and must be preserved. Regarding the handwritten note and the accompanying attendance schedule, while admitting that the attendance report is not normal practice, the school superintendent, Rosemary Fiore, testified that the school's computer system would not reflect at the bottom of the transcript the absences prior to February. Therefore, it was necessary to append the schedule of absences.

I FIND respondent's position to be without merit on each issue. First, the typed text on the transcript sets forth inaccurate information. Neither child was "retained" due to excessive absences. Respondent attempted to retain the children, but that retention was enjoined by my Order in this matter of September 6, 2005, and the settlement agreement herein permanently rescinds respondent's efforts to retain the children. Because of my Order of September 6, neither child spent even one day in his prior grade. Therefore, the typed statement is factually inaccurate and I ORDER that it be deleted from each child's transcript.

I FIND the respondent's argument regarding the handwritten note and the accompanying schedule to be equally specious. I FIND incredible and unbelievable Ms. Fiore's contention that the school's computer could not be programmed to reflect the children's attendance records prior to February. I ORDER the school to effectuate the reflection of each child's proper attendance record in the appropriate place at the bottom of the transcript by whatever means necessary. If it shall somehow prove impossible to correct the existing transcript, then respondent shall produce a new transcript in accordance with this ORDER. I further ORDER that the handwritten notation and the attendance report be deleted from each child's transcript.

Finally, petitioner has questioned the content of the attendance report. The attendance report reflects that the students were enrolled at respondent's school on October 27, 2004. I ORDER that the transcript reflect only absences occurring on or after that date. No absences that occurred in other school districts shall be reflected on the transcript. Similarly, the attendance report reflects that the students "did not attend school from January 4 through January 7 due to residency..." Based upon that statement, I FIND that those absences were the result of the on-going residency dispute between petitioner and respondent. Therefore, the failure of the students to attend school was not an "absence," but rather the result of their being barred from attending. Accordingly, I ORDER that the dates January 4 through 7 not be reflected as absences on the children's transcripts.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioning private school for the disabled appealed the Department's determination to disallow $342,593 in salaries and benefits to nine teachers for the 2002-2003 school year because of their alleged failure to obtain emergency certification. Petitioner argued that this disallowance would require the return of the above amount to its sending districts, creating financial hardship for the non-profit school.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent has clear responsibility -- implicit in the laws and regulations requiring teachers to physically possess an emergency teaching certificate before commencing employment -- to act promptly on applications for emergency certification; respondent has for many years allowed teachers to commence work in September without emergency certificates in hand as long as applications for the certificates have been submitted and approved by the County Superintendent; in practice, emergency certificates have been issued by the Department as late as April or May of the school year, and then backdated to the date that the County Superintendent recommended approval to the Department; the credible evidence establishes that petitioner submitted paperwork for the nine teachers in question in a timely manner, and that it is likely that the applications in question were lost or misplaced; and that the situation could have been resolved by the County Superintendent's office in 2003. The ALJ concluded that respondent is equitably estopped from designating the salaries & benefits in question as non-allowable costs, and ordered: the Monmouth County Superintendent to review the replacement applications for the teachers in question, and to confirm that said teachers would have been entitled to receive emergency teaching certificates for 2002-2003; the Office of Licensing and Certifications to issue the appropriate emergency certificates backdated to September 2002; and the Division of Finance to reconsider its disallowance of the related salaries and benefits.

The Commissioner adopts the ALJ's conclusions that both the weight of evidence and the doctrine of estoppel support a decision in favor of petitioner, and orders that after determining which teachers were or were not entitled to receive emergency certificates for 2002-2003, the Division of Finance shall either rescind or recalculate the disallowance of $342,593 in salary and benefits costs in the calculation of tuition which petitioner may charge to its sending districts.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner appeals a determination by the Division of Finance of the New Jersey Department of Education (the Department) that for the 2002-2003 school year, salaries and benefit costs totaling $342,593.00, for nine of petitioner's teachers, must be disallowed under N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(4) and (11) (effective at the time but now superseded), due to the teachers' alleged failure to obtain emergency certification. Such a disallowance would have the effect of requiring petitioner to return that amount to its sending districts. Since petitioner is a non-profit entity which rarely achieves surpluses, and the amount cannot be paid with tuition from subsequent years, petitioner would have to engage in extensive fund raising. After reviewing the Initial Decision, the record[1], and the parties' exceptions, the Commissioner finds as follows.

It is undisputed that petitioner, a private, non-profit school for the disabled, located in Ocean Township, Monmouth County, and specializing in the education of autistic students, has been approved by the Department to receive placements from public school districts. It is also undisputed that in order to be fully staffed, petitioner has frequently hired teaching candidates who have not acquired standard teaching certificates. Thus, for several years, petitioner has been forwarding to the Monmouth County Office of the Department of Education (Monmouth County Office) applications for emergency certificates for the positions of "teacher of the handicapped" and "speech language specialist." Normally, these application packages are processed by the County Office and, if approved, are forwarded to the Department's Office of Licensing and Credentials (State Licensing Office), in Trenton, for issuance of the certificates. The County Superintendent's approval is the basis for issuing certificates. The State Licensing Office sends the certificates to the teacher/applicants. (1T146[2])

[1] Transcripts of hearings held on August 25 and 26, 2005, and October 28, 2005 were provided.

It was the responsibility of petitioner's office manager, Christina Johnson, to process the applications for emergency certification. (1T9) She testified that her general practice up through the 2002-2003 school year was to ask the staff for transcripts, money orders and applications in June and collect them in July. (Ibid.) She would give the application materials to Executive Director Katherine Solana for review and signature, and send the paperwork via regular mail to the County Office after she received it back from Solana. (1T9; 1T24) She did not keep copies of what she forwarded to the County Office. (1T20-21)

Johnson testified that in 2002 she did not deviate from the procedures described above when she handled the applications for emergency certificates for the previously mentioned nine teachers. (1T24) However, in June of 2003, as she initiated the process of preparing emergency certification applications for the next school year, she realized that the certifications for the prior year had never arrived. (1T10) She testified that her failure to realize earlier that there was something amiss was attributable to the fact that the emergency certificates had, in her experience, always arrived well into the second half of the school year, i.e., March, April or May, and had always been backdated to the prior September. (1T11; 1T164) Respondent does not dispute this.

Johnson advised Solana of the problem (1T15), and contacted county certification officer Donna Pesci. (1T16) Pesci could not find any record of the applications and asked Johnson for copies. Johnson had some money order receipts provided by the applicant teachers (1T33; 1T59; P-13; P-14), a transcript copy for one of the teachers (P-15), and possibly a copy of the envelope, but could provide nothing else because she generally did not keep copies of what she forwarded to the County Office. (1T20-21) She sent what she had to Pesci. (1T21) Pesci's supervisor, June Hankel, contacted Johnson and said she would look into the problem. (1T23)

In August 2003, at the suggestion of Pesci and/or Hankel, Search Day resubmitted applications to the County Office for all nine teachers for the 2002-2003 year. (P-4) Hankel sent the paperwork to the State Licensing Office on September 15, 2003, and checked with Peggy Smith of that office on October 8 and 24, 2003. (P-5; P-6) Solana also wrote to the State Licensing Office on September 8, 2003, explaining the situation, and asking both for retroactive emergency certificates for the 2002-2003 school year, and renewals for the 2003-2004 school year. (P-8)

Joan Brady, Director of the State Licensing Office, responded to Solana's September 8, 2003 letter on October 28, 2003. She stated that there was no basis upon which to grant petitioner's request for retroactive emergency certificates for 2002-2003 and renewals for 2003-2004 [presumably because the State Licensing Office possessed no approvals from the County Superintendent], and further directed petitioner to submit new applications for the 2003-2004 school year. (P-8) On November 10, 2003, Hankel sent Smith an email reminding the State Licensing Office that petitioner had already resubmitted applications to the County Office and that those applications had been forwarded to the State Licensing Office on September 15. (P-9) Hankel followed the e-mail up on November 18, 2003, November 25, 2003, and December 1, 2003, at which point the 2003-2004 emergency certificates were apparently issued, backdated to September 2003. (Ibid.) The list of teachers whose salaries had been disallowed for 2002-2003 and the list of teachers who were approved for teaching in 2003-2004 were identical.

In the meanwhile, during the late summer and autumn of 2003, petitioner met with the county superintendent (P-15), and wrote to the Commissioner of Education and other employees of the Department of Education (P-17; P-18; P-19) about the dispute concerning the emergency certification applications, and the serious impact that the disallowance of $349,593 would have on petitioner's $3 million annual budget.

The factual controversy in this case is whether petitioner submitted to the County Office the nine emergency certification applications for the 2002-2003 school year. There are copies in the file of statements from all nine of the involved teachers describing when and how they submitted their emergency applications (P-11) and, as stated above, petitioner's office manager described at the OAL hearing how she processed and forwarded the applications.

Both Pesci and Hankel denied ever receiving emergency certification paperwork from petitioner for the 2002-2003 school year. Neither witness believed that the applications could have been lost or misplaced in their office. Hankel, however, testified that before arriving in the County Education Office, all mail went to and was processed by the Monmouth County mailroom, located in a different building. (3T25-26)

In addition, both Pesci and Hankel testified that their office moved in August 2002. (1T149; 3T20) August is, according to their testimony, the busiest time for receiving certification application materials from the fifty-two districts and private schools in Monmouth County. (1T158-159) Further, Hankel stated that the move was executed "in different times" (3T24) and that she was on vacation during the days in which the files for emergency certification applications were transported to the new office. (3T20-21)

The ALJ found in favor of petitioner on two grounds. The first ground was the weight of the evidence. The ALJ found Johnson's testimony to be credible and consistent with other evidence in the record, such as the statements, receipts and a transcript copy from the nine teachers whose salaries were disallowed, showing that they had submitted their application materials by September of 2002. Johnson's explanation for her tardy realization that there was a problem with the 2002-2003 certifications was also consistent with other evidence in the record that the State was typically late in issuing emergency certificates. Thus, the expectation that the certificates were on their way precluded timely concern and action while there was still time to correct the situation.

In addition, respondent's position that it is unlikely that the county lost or misplaced petitioner's emergency certificate applications is not entirely harmonious with certain undisputed facts. First, the County Office moved during the critical period in which emergency certificate applications were submitted by over 52 districts. Second, Hankel was not actually present on the days that the office contents were moved. Third, the emergency certification filing cabinets were sealed for a few days, and Hankel was not able to explain what was done with applications that might have come in during those days and could not be filed.

The ALJ also referred to Hankel's testimony that all county mail was first routed to a mailroom at a location separate from the Superintendent's office. Neither Hankel nor Pesci knew how the mail was processed in the county mailroom, or how it was subsequently distributed to the various county offices.

The second ground upon which the ALJ based his decision was equitable. The regulations in 2002 mandated that services requiring a certificate could be rendered only by the holder of the required certificate . . . . N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.1(a). However, emergency certificate applications could not be submitted to the county until after August 1. N.J.A.C. 6-11-4.3(b). The Department's witness, Smith, testified that it was virtually impossible for the county and state to process every emergency certificate application between August 1 and the beginning of the school year. Consequently – as conceded by both the county and State witnesses – each year teachers in many districts taught without "holding" their emergency certificates. The certificates typically did not arrive from the State until half of the school year – or more – was over.

Technically, therefore, the State violated its own regulations each school year, by designating as allowable costs the salaries of many teachers who did not actually have their certificates in hand. Further, through this pattern of practice, the State caused districts to rely on the validity of their emergency teacher's credentials until it was too late to resubmit applications. The districts came to expect backdated certificates to arrive in March, April, or even May.

The ALJ also took into consideration the fact that respondent did not allege that any of the teachers who had not received the emergency certification for the 2002-2003 school year would have been ineligible to receive same, had their applications been timely processed. In fact, they all were approved for certificates for the 2003-2004 school year, and apparently several had received certificates for the 2001-2002 school year.

Upon consideration of the foregoing, the ALJ concluded that respondent is equitably estopped from designating the 2002-2003 salaries and fringe benefits of petitioner's nine emergency teachers as non-allowable costs.

In its exceptions, respondent challenges both of the ALJ's grounds for his Initial Decision in favor of petitioner. In challenging the ALJ's determination about the weight of the evidence, respondent asserts that Johnson testified that she submitted applications in batches as they were supplied to her by teachers (1T54:23-1T56:3) and that she did so in August and September as they came in. (1T55:20-25) Because it would be unlikely that multiple batches of only one out of fifty-two schools' emergency certificate applications would get lost, respondent contends that the weight of the evidence goes against petitioner's contention that the County Office lost the applications. Respondent also pointed to Hankel's and Pesci's testimony about how meticulous their office practices were.

The Commissioner sees no reason to disturb the ALJ's finding concerning the weight of the evidence. First, the Commissioner must defer to the ALJ's determination that Johnson's testimony about mailing the emergency certification applications was credible and more likely than respondent's position concerning the infallibility of the county office procedures. D.L. v. Board of Educ. of Princeton Regional School Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004); Clowes v. Terminex Int'l., 109 N.J. 575 (1988).

Second, the hearing transcript reveals that the testimony of Johnson to which respondent refers was given in response to questions, some theoretical, about Johnson's general procedures prior to 2002-2003. (1T54:13 to 1T55:13) In point of fact, Johnson testified that "[i]f [she] had three applications, [she] would send three applications in one envelope."

(1T55:14-15) And she also testified that she did not specifically recall whether the 2002 applications went in separately or together. (1T55:16-19)

A review of the statements from the nine teachers and the money order receipts mentioned above reveals that at least seven or eight of the applications could have been sent in one envelope in September or October.[3] If that were the case, the timing would have been after the move of the County Superintendent's Office, but the possibility of misplacement by the county mailroom or the County office would have remained.

Respondent's challenge to the ALJ's application of equitable estoppel is also without merit. Relying on Jesse Barr v. City of Newark Police Department, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d 582, (1997), aff'd., Merit System Board (decided April 15, 1997), and other cases, respondent maintains that to establish a claim of equitable estoppel against a government entity, a party must prove that the public entity knowingly and intentionally misrepresented or engaged in conduct that is calculated to mislead another, and that the misled party relied upon the government entity, changing its position to its detriment. The intentional misrepresentation requirement is needed to balance the detriment to the public interest that could result from estoppel against the government. O'Malley v. Department of Energy, 109 N.J. 300, 317 (1987). Estoppel against the government is only justified where its absence would cause manifest injustice. W.V. Pangborne & Co., Inc. v. New Jersey Dep't. of Transportation, 116 N.J. 543, 554 (1989). Respondent reasons that the doctrine of equitable estoppel is inapplicable to this case because there was no showing of intentional misrepresentation by the Department.

However, in State Dep't. of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473 (1983), a case cited in the authority upon which respondent relies, the New Jersey Supreme Court explained that "intentional misrepresentation by the government may be found if a public official knew or should have known of material facts but acted as if he did not have knowledge, thus causing a misrepresentation. Ventron, supra, 94 N.J. at 499. The evidence in this case reveals that both the Department and the County knowingly 1) allowed "emergency" teachers to work in the county's schools for the better part of the year without their certificates and 2) routinely sent backdated certificates to the teachers after most of the school year had passed. These practices by the Department left little time for the correction of errors, since the schools relied upon receiving backdated certificates in March, April or May, and thus had no reason to suspect problems until the end of the school year.

Further, there is nothing in this record to suggest that detriment to the public interest would result from a decision in favor of petitioner. There is no contention that the nine teachers did not do the jobs for which they were hired and paid, and there is no contention that they were not eligible for emergency certificates. To the contrary, a decision in favor of respondent would impose a debt on the petitioner of ten percent of its budget, which would cripple its ability, as a non-profit entity that rarely enjoys surpluses, to continue its important service to the community. [4]

In summary, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's conclusions that both the weight of the evidence and the doctrine of estoppel support a decision in favor of petitioner. Accordingly, the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools shall review the replacement applications for 2002-2003 emergency certificates submitted on behalf of the nine teachers at issue and confirm whether they would have been entitled to emergency certification for the 2002-2003 school year. As to those teachers who were so entitled, the Office of Licensing and Certification shall issue emergency certificates backdated to September 2002. Finally – after the [4] The first argument in respondent's third exception appears to be missing some text and is not comprehensible. The second argument is unconvincing. The Commissioner is not persuaded that the payment of $342,593 in installments will significantly ease the impact of the debt on petitioner's budget.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner in this matter, Search Day Program, Inc., is a private, non-profit school for the disabled located in Monmouth County which specializes in the needs of autistic children between the ages of three to twenty-one. Petitioner appeals respondent's disallowance of the allocation of $342,593 in salaries to various teachers for the 2002-2003 school year as a result of its review of petitioner's financial audit. Respondent determined that these teachers did not possess the appropriate certifications for the school year. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 14, 2004, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was heard on August 25, August 26 and October 28, 2005, and after receiving the submissions of the parties, the record was closed on December 8, 2005. By an Order of Extension filed in this matter, the time for filing the initial decision was extended until March 9, 2006.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

It is undisputed that petitioner, Search Day Program, Inc., is a private non-profit special education school located in Ocean Township, Monmouth County. It is a school for children with autism, and has been approved by the Department of Education to receive placements from public school districts. Petitioner serves approximately sixty students ages three through twenty-one, and has a staff of approximately sixty-five employees. Its annual budget is approximately $3 million.

On August 23, 2004, petitioner, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, challenging a determination by the Division of Finance that $342,593 in salary and benefits for nine teachers during the 2002-2003 school year were "non-allowable" costs, because they were not appropriately certified. See, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(4),(11) (superseded).

Christina Johnson, the Office Manager at Search Day Program, testified that her duties included making certain that emergency teaching certificates were properly applied for and received. She would obtain documentation from the teachers and deliver them to the Department of Education's county office. In June of each year she would tell the staff members to obtain their official transcripts and in July of each year she would collect them together with the applications and fees for each teacher for the coming school year and send them by mail to the Department's Monmouth County Superintendent's office.

In Ms. Johnson's three years as office manager and two prior years as receptionist/office clerk at Search, it was not unusual for the teachers not to have their emergency certificates in hand. For the most part, the teachers received their certificates between March and May of the following year, and they would bring them into the school. There were never any discussions with the Department of Education about this and no concerns were ever raised.

In the summer of 2002, the same summer Ms. Johnson sent in the documents in question, the Monmouth County Superintendent's Office moved to a different building on State Highway No. 9 in Freehold, New Jersey. Ms. Johnson stated that after she mailed the paperwork for the emergency certificates to the Monmouth County Superintendent's Office, she just assumed that the emergency certificates would be received by the following spring. She had no conscious knowledge that the certificates had not been received until she started to ask employees for their paperwork for the next school year in June 2003. She then advised Ms. Katherine M. Solana, the Executive Director of Search Day Program, that the emergency certificates had not arrived. She then called the Monmouth County Superintendent's Office and spoke to Donna Pesci, and Ms. Pesci told her to fax over copies of whatever she had. She had not kept copies of all of the documents and could only fax over two or three money orders and copies of applications. Both Ms. Pesci and June Hankel, who worked in the same office, said they would look into it.

Ms. Johnson explained that once the applications and supporting transcripts were reviewed by the county office and approved and signed by the County Superintendent, they would be sent to the Department of Education in Trenton, and the Department would mail the certificates to the individual teachers. Ms. Johnson further indicated that there was no suggestion that any of the teachers would not have been approved for emergency teaching certificates.

Eventually, Ms. Johnson was advised by Ms. Hankel that neither the county office nor the Department of Education in Trenton had any record of receiving the applications and therefore nothing could be done. She was also told by Ms. Hankel that the 2003-2004 renewal applications must be changed from renewal applications to initial applications. As a result, all employees with emergency certificates resubmitted initial applications for the 2003-2004 school year.

Ms. Johnson testified that the 2003-2004 applications were hand-delivered to the County Superintendent's office, and the certificates were issued to the teachers in early December 2003, backdated to September 2003. The Department has not taken the position that the teachers were uncertified from September 2003 through December 2003. As for the emergency certificates for 2004-2005, the first one was received in mid-March 2005 backdated to September 2004. No one in the Department of Education ever said that it was necessary to have an emergency certificate in hand in order for that teacher's salary to be an allowable cost.

On cross-examination, Ms. Johnson indicated she was aware of the importance of the applications. The previous office manager also sent these applications to the County Superintendent's office by mail.

Katherine M. Solana, the Executive Director of Search Day Program, testified that Search was established 34 years ago and specializes in providing special education services to children with autism. She has been connected with Search for 28 years. There are approximately 60 students and 65 employees. She has been Executive Director since 1998, and served as an Administrator for the five years prior thereto, and for more than twelve years she was a classroom teacher. She was first involved with the certification process in 1998.

Ms. Solana agreed with Ms. Johnson's testimony concerning the extensive delay in the issuance of emergency teaching certificates by the Department of Education. It was common practice for the Department to backdate the certificates to the beginning of the school year. She explained that the procedure is for the employee to submit the application, transcript and fee and for Search Day Program to mail the completed application by regular mail to the County Superintendent's office. Search Day Program had never been docked or disallowed prior to the 2002-2003 school year. However, she admitted she had no hands-on role in this process.

Ms. Solana testified that she first learned from Ms. Johnson that there was a problem in June 2003, but that Ms. Johnson was trying to work it out with the County Superintendent's office. Search resubmitted the paperwork, but there was still a problem so she requested a meeting with Mr. Michael Maddaluna, the County Superintendent. She attended a meeting with Karen Fruman, Supervisor of Special Education, June Hankel and Mr. Maddaluna. Mr. Maddaluna asked why Search had not called to inquire as to the status of the emergency certificates during the school year. Ms. Solana brought up the fact that there is a significant delay in the Department's issuance of these certificates and Mr. Maddaluna replied that it was her responsibility to keep on this. Mr. Maddaluna indicated he would look into this with the Department. Sometime after the meeting, Ms. Hankel called her and advised her that Mr. Maddaluna would be leaving the Superintendent's position and that she was back in charge of handling the matter.

Ms. Solana began telephoning the Department of Education in Trenton herself to cut through the red tape and get the problem resolved. After several unfruitful calls, she wrote to Brady on September 8, 2003, explaining in detail what had occurred. (P-4) Brady responded by letter of October 28, 2003 (P-B), denying Solana's request for relief. Solana followed up the next day with a letter to Commissioner of Education William Librera himself (P-17), requesting a meeting to discuss the matter, and sent yet another letter to Brady on November 12, 2003 (P-18)

Search's independent audit for the 2002-2003 school year had been filed with the Department. Since the allowability of the affected teachers' compensation had not yet been resolved, the auditors had no choice but to show the $342,593 costs of the nine teachers' salary and fringe benefits as non-allowable.

Ms. Solana wrote another letter to the Department on January 9, 2004, once again pleading her case (P-19). Finally, in June 2004, Search's attorney, Paul Anzano, Esq., wrote once more to Commissioner Librera, forwarding another copy of Ms. Solana's prior letter and again requesting a meeting. (P-25)

On June 21, 2004, Mr. Verner of the Division of Finance sent a memo to Mr. Rosenberg (P-26), suggesting how he should respond to Mr. Anzano's letter. The contents of that memo are as follows:

> Based on the above information, I see no need for a meeting since you have no authority to intercede in this issue. I feel their only avenue is filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-I.1 et seq.

Mr. Rosenberg, apparently on Mr. Verner's advice, replied to Paul Anzano, Esq., by letter of June 28, 2004, that "I understand the importance of this issue, but I feel that a meeting would not be beneficial since I have no authority to intercede in this issue." (P-27). Mr. Rosenberg reminded Mr. Anzano of Search's right to file a petition of appeal with the Commissioner, and this present proceeding was instituted two months later.

Ms. Solana testified that the annual budget of Search Day Program is approximately $3 million. Funds are paid to it from the sending districts. There is an occasional surplus in funds but Search generally operates at deficits. Search does not have the funds to repay the disallowed tuition. The amount could not be paid from tuition for subsequent years and could only be paid through fundraising. She also explained that if these teachers could be considered to have been hired as substitute teachers, Search would have to pay back $89,428, and if they were considered to be teacher's aides, Search would have to pay back $137,322. All of the teachers in question were approved for the following year and many were approved for the prior year.

On cross-examination, Ms. Solana testified that the decision that the $342,593 were not allowable costs resulted from the auditor's submission of an independent audit. The audit is due by November 30 of each year and the auditor reported these as nonallowable expenses. Mr. Verner of the Department takes the position that Search's own audit shows these as nonallowable expenses, therefore he is powerless. She also testified that Search resubmitted new original applications for these emergency certificates. She stated that there is no procedure to follow up on these submissions.

The 2001-2002 emergency teacher certificates were issued beginning in December 2001 through the spring of 2002. The application forms come in triplicate and Search did not retain the green copy of the form in 2002-2003. The 2004-2005 emergency teacher certificates came in at the end of April and during May 2005, and were effective in September 2004. She indicated that there is no question the applications were submitted on time.

Donna Pesci testified that she has been the Certification Officer at the Monmouth County Office of the Department of Education since 1998. She and June Hankel are the only two that work in the Certifications office. Ms. Hankel has been there 17 years and is in charge. In that position, she opens all incoming mail, puts together all files of applicants and processes renewals. Each emergency certificate renewal is filed alphabetically by individual names and the money order for the fee is attached. The money order and the white copy of each application is sent to the Department and the Department then sends the emergency certificate to the applicant.

Ms. Pesci testified that she does not remember the specifics as to the 2002-2003 school year. There was no paperwork in the office to show that the renewal from Search Day Program were submitted. When Ms. Johnson called they looked through the file cabinet for the names she provided and no applications could be found. The County Superintendent's Office moved in the summer of 2002, and the filing cabinets were taped closed and locked when they moved. She indicated that policy is that as long as the paperwork was filed with the County Superintendent everything was "OK" with the Department, and that an applicant for an emergency teaching certificate was not to worry about it. There is always some kind of delay and Trenton is always backlogged.

On cross-examination, Ms. Pesci stated that seven of the nine teachers from Search Day Program were renewal applications. Over 50 schools and organizations send in these applications. It is typical to receive them by regular mail, and they are mailed to both a post office box and to the street address of the County Superintendent's Office. When the Office moved in August 2002, it took them a day or two to accomplish the move.

Margaret L. Smith testified that she is employed by the Department of Education at the Office of Licensure and Credentials. She has held the position of Coordinator of Licensing Programs for six years and is a resource person for county offices. She testified that she is familiar with the emergency teaching certificates regulations, which changed in 2004. The application requires the school district to show that it advertised and found no suitable certified teacher, and the County Superintendent makes the determination whether the school district has taken all necessary and appropriate steps to find a certified teacher. If an emergency teaching certificate is issued, it can be renewed from year to year provided the applicant is making progress toward a permanent teaching certificate. The State office has no authority to deny a certificate if the County Superintendent has approved it.

Ms. Smith became aware of the Search Day Program matter in September 2003. The Department searched through all renewal requests and the renewal applications from Search were never located. She acknowledged that there is a delay in issuing emergency certificates but indicated that the bulk of the certificates are issued by November of each year. The certificates are issued based on the date they are approved by the County Superintendent. Thus, if the County Superintendent approves the application on September 1, the State office back dates the certificate to that date.

On cross-examination, Ms. Smith acknowledged that the regulations require the teacher to have an emergency certificate in hand in order to teach, but that it would be impossible to follow the regulations literally. This requirement was not applied mechanically and the State accepts the County Superintendent's approval as the approval date. The County Superintendent's approval is not a recommendation but is binding and is the basis for issuing the emergency certificate. When the school district has filed properly it is not penalized for the State's delay in issuing the certificate. However, those school districts that have not followed the proper procedure should be penalized.

James Verner testified that he is the section supervisor in the Division of Finance, Office of Fiscal Policy and Planning, a position he has held for approximately eighteen years. He is familiar with petitioner's allegations. He explained that each school must have a private auditor perform an annual audit pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 to 4.16. His office is responsible for certifying the actual cost per pupil. It is up to the independent auditor to determine non-allowable costs pursuant to the regulations. In the present matter, the independent auditor for Search Day Program listed approximately $342,000.00 in teachers' salaries as a non-allowable cost. He explained that the Department does not go back and determine if nonallowable costs are nonallowable. He talked to Ms. Solana about this and told her to appeal the decision. He also indicated that he would be able to work out a payment schedule with Search.

Mr. Verner acknowledged that teachers must hold a certificate and that the certificate must have an issue date to be effective. He acknowledged that Assistant Commissioner Michael Azzara issued a memo (P-32) approximately ten years before with a practical solution to the problem of delay in issuance of emergency teaching certificates. The memo provides that the date the individual may begin employment is the date the County Superintendent signs the form indicating approval to issue or renew the emergency certificate. There is no sanction for this practice in the regulations, and its purpose was to deal with the reality of the situation.

Mr. Verner has Search's Audit, but has no recollection when it was received. If Search submitted renewal applications and the county office did not receive them, it is up to the Office of Licensing and Certifications to intercede. The auditors are required to disallow salaries paid to noncertified teachers.

June Hankel testified that she has been employed by the Department of Education, Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools, for 18 years, and is in charge of teacher certifications in the Certification Department. She reviews all certifications and paperwork, compiles applications to work for Trenton and addresses all questions from applicants as far as requirements for certifications. Her Department handles applications from school districts for substitute teachers, emergency teacher certificates, renewals and conditional licenses. She and Donna Pesci handle all of the paperwork for the county office.

Ms. Hankel testified that when a school district has requested an emergency teaching certificate, it is good for one year and expires on June 30 of that year. It must be proven to the county office that the school district has advertised fruitlessly. The application is given to the superintendent to sign. A form is sent out to all school districts in June with a memo regarding emergency certificates (R-1), and applications are accepted by their office from July 31 through August of each year. Once an application is received, the emergency teaching certificates files are maintained individually and the file is pulled for each individual and they check to make sure the application is filled out properly with the appropriate fee. It is a three-part application. The bottom part is completed by the county and is signed by the superintendent. The pink copy is put in the applicant's file, the green company is for the school district and the original white copy is sent to the Department's Office of Licensure and Credentials in Trenton. Trenton issues and sends out the renewal license.

Ms. Hankel does not recall if her office sent out renewal certificates to teachers in 2002-2003. She does recall that Ms. Johnson called to her attention that no renewals were received. She and Donna Pesci searched through every drawer and file in the county office and found no documentation that the renewal applications were ever received by their office. They also went through the folder of green application files and found nothing. They advised Ms. Johnson of this fact. Ms. Solana then met with the County Superintendent, but, because no renewal forms were found and no record of application fees were found, Joan Brady said that the Department would not backdate emergency certificates. As a result, the applicants had to apply for new emergency certificates.

Ms. Hankel acknowledged that her office moved during the week of August 12, 2002. She was on vacation during the move. She would not permit files to be taken out of the cabinets and the files had been locked and taped shut and had to be moved with the files remaining in them. The office is very cautious because it deals with people's livelihoods, and they tried to do everything they could to secure their files. It was when she returned from vacation to the new office that the filing cabinets were unsealed and all the mail was scrutinized. To her knowledge the move only took a couple of days. She is very "anal" and either she or Donna Pesci opens the mail, no one else. Money orders are immediately stapled to the applications. In her eighteen years working there they have never lost a file. The mail first goes to the Monmouth county mail room, which is located somewhere in Freehold, then delivered to her office by county workers who may have had other stops en route. When she was asked whether Search's mailings may have been misplaced in the County mailroom before they ever got to her office, Ms. Hankel replied, "I can't answer that."

Ms. Hankel indicated that she has taken paperwork home in recent years, but did not do so in 2002. The meeting with Ms. Solana was pleasant and there were no challenges to anyone's credibility.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Petitioner herein challenges the determination by the Division of Finance that $342,593 in salary and benefits for nine teachers during the 2002-2003 school year were "non-allowable" costs, because they were not appropriately certified. See, N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a)(4),(11) (superseded). At the time in question, the administrative regulations at issue in this case were codified in Title 6 of the Administrative Code. They have since been recodified in Title 6A, but the original provisions will be referred to herein as they were in effect at the time

Private special education schools are required to employ professional staff who hold the state-issued certification appropriate to their scope of responsibility. At the time in question here, when the events underlying this case occurred, N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.3

provided that when a school could demonstrate that suitable professional staff were unavailable, the Department could issue an emergency certificate to candidates not yet eligible for standard certification:

> (a) An emergency certificate is a substandard one-year certificate issued only in the field of educational services, teacher of the handicapped, teacher of the blind and partially sighted, and teacher of the deaf and hard of hearing.
> (b) An emergency certificate is issued only on application of a public school district, submitted after August 1, in which the district board of education declares its inability due to unforeseen shortages or other extenuating circumstances to locate a suitable certified teacher.

A private school receiving pupils from a local public school district may not charge tuition that exceeds the actual cost per pupil as determined under rules prescribed by the commissioner and approved by the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A.18A:46-21. Pursuant to this statutory grant of rule-making power, the State Board of Education has promulgated regulations governing the maximum tuition rates that may be charged by private special education schools. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 to 4.4 (superseded). At the time in question here, private schools for the disabled were permitted to charge tuition in "an amount less than or equal to the certified actual cost(s) per pupil," N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1(a) (superseded), calculated in accordance with a schedule of allowable and non-allowable costs in the regulations, as reflected in an annual audit report filed with the Department by November. N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.8(a) (superseded).

N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.1(a) provided that services requiring a certificate under the State Board's regulations be rendered only "by the holder of the required certificate or under his or her direct and continuous personal supervision." Under N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.4(a),

> "[a] cost which is not allowable in the calculation of the certified annual cost per pupil includes the following:
> * * *

> (4) The salary of a professional staff member who is not certified but is functioning in a position requiring certification in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:11[,]
>
> * * *
>
> [and]
> (11) The cost of fringe benefits which are based on non-allowable salary. . .

At Search Day Program, the standard practice for many years was for the office manager to instruct staff members requiring original or renewal emergency certificates to submit their official transcripts, money orders and application forms to her office over the summer before the school year to which the certificate would apply. The office manager would then send these applications and supporting documents to the County Superintendent's Office by regular mail, usually during August or, depending on the date of hire, September. It is undisputed in this case that while emergency certificates were supposed to be in hand when the employee commenced work in September, they typically were not issued by the Department of Education until the late winter or spring of the following year, backdated to the previous September. For as long as anyone could remember, by the time Search's employees received their certificates from the Department of Education and turned them in to the school, most of the school year had already elapsed.

Christina Johnson testified that she sent the nine teachers' paperwork to the County Superintendent's Office in a timely manner consistent with how Ms. Pesci testified most districts and private schools send them. This was the same procedure she had followed since the time she assumed the position two years earlier, and was no different than her predecessor had followed for many years without incident. It is noted that at no time did Ms. Johnson testify that she submitted this paperwork in multiple packages over a period of two months. It was not disputed at the hearing that all nine of the teachers fully satisfied the eligibility criteria for an emergency certificate, and would have been issued one if timely application were made. Ms. Johnson was adamant that she had sent in the paperwork, and secured written statements from the affected employees attesting to their timely submission of the required paperwork to her in 2002 (P-11 through P-14).

Ms. Solana testified from her own experience as a teacher at Search, going back over twenty years, that certifications that were applied for over the summer would not be received from the State until many months later, and were always backdated to the previous September.

Petitioner argues that the overwhelming weight of the credible evidence establishes that Ms. Johnson sent the nine teachers' paperwork to the County Superintendent's Office in a timely manner. Ms. Johnson's testimony was not directly disputed by respondent. In addition, I had the opportunity to assess Ms. Johnson's testimony and demeanor, and found her to be credible. The respondent's response to this testimony was simply that it did not receive these materials. However, petitioner argues that even if they did not, the evidence suggests any number of reasons why this may have been so. The County Office moved to a new building in August 2002, the same critical month that certification applications from over fifty school districts and private schools, including Search day Program, were being received by her office. Ms. Pesci and Ms. Hankel both suggested that the likelihood of Search's paperwork being misplaced as a result of the move was slight, because all of their file cabinets were locked and taped shut in preparation for the move, and not reopened until they arrived in the new office space. However, as argued by petitioner, if the documents were misplaced somewhere in the office, they most likely would not have been filed in the cabinets to begin with.

Ms. Hankel had no personal knowledge of what paperwork came and went in the office during the period of the move as she was away on vacation. Nor could she satisfactorily explain what happened with the mail arriving at the office daily while she was away, after the file cabinets had been secured in anticipation of the impending move. Ms. Hankel also testified that mail addressed to the County Office at that time was first routed to a central mail drop serving all Monmouth County agencies, then delivered to her office by county workers who may or may not have had other stops en route. When she was asked whether Search's mailings may have been misplaced in the County mailroom before they ever got to her office, Ms. Hankel replied that she could not answer that. Ms. Pesci and Ms. Hankel both indicated that the likelihood of Search's paperwork being misplaced as a result of the move was slight, because all of their file cabinets were locked and taped shut in preparation for the move, and not reopened until they arrived in the new office space. However, if the documents were misplaced somewhere in the office, they would not have been filed in the cabinets to begin with.

Petitioner argues that even if it is assumed, but not conceded, that Ms. Pesci and Ms. Hankel never received the documents, the appropriate sequence must be analyzed in the context of a regulatory scheme that the Department itself has routinely ignored. From the outset of this dispute until the hearings commenced, the Department steadfastly maintained that a teacher's salary and fringe benefits were non-allowable for any period of service during which the teacher was not the holder of a certificate required by the regulations. In discovery, Jim Verner of the Division of Finance, took the position that in order to work in a position that requires school certification the individual must possess the proper school certification required for the position. If a staff member was working in a position that required a school certification but was not properly certificated for all or a portion of the school year, all salary and fringe benefits during the period of non-certification would be considered non-allowable costs.

However, at the hearing, every witness who testified for the Department admitted that teachers are routinely permitted to commence their teaching duties before they become the "holder" of the required certificate. Ms. Pesci agreed that certifications are not issued by the Department until well after the midpoint of the school year, backdated to September. It was her understanding that as long as the paperwork is delivered to the County Office on time, and signed off on by the County Superintendent before the school year begins, the employee would be held harmless regardless of the date when the physical certificate is issued.

Margaret Smith, who was on staff with the Department's Office of Licensure and Credentials at the time of the underlying events herein, testified that, according to the regulations, a teacher is required to have the emergency certificate physically in his or her possession before commencing work. She testified, however, that because it was virtually impossible for the County Offices and the Department to process emergency certificates between August 1st and the start of school in September, the Department has for many years allowed employees to start work without a certificate in hand, as long as the paperwork was submitted to the County Office, and the County Superintendent had recommended approval by the Department. Once the Department issued the physical certificate later in the school year, it would be backdated to the date that the County Superintendent recommended approval.

It was acknowledged that teachers must hold a certificate to teach, but that Assistant Commissioner Azzara issued a memo (P-32) approximately ten years before to address the problem of delay in issuance of emergency teaching certificates. The memo provided that the date the individual may begin employment is the date the County Superintendent signs the approval to issue or renew the emergency certificate. Emergency teaching certificates are then backdated to that date even though there is no sanction for this practice in the regulations.

In my opinion, the position and arguments of petitioner herein are in the nature of a claim of equitable estoppel. Equitable estoppel is generally defined as > [T]he effect of the voluntary conduct of a party whereby he is absolutely precluded, both at law and in equity, from asserting rights which might perhaps have otherwise existed, either of property, of contract, or of remedy, as against another person, who has in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse, and who on his part acquires some corresponding right, either of property, of contract, or of remedy.

> [Highway Trailer Co. v. Donna Motor Lines, Inc., 46 N.J. 442, 449 (1966), cert. den. sub nom., Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v. Highway Trailer Co., 385 U.S. 834 (1966).]

The doctrine is intended to prevent a party's disavowal of prior conduct if such repudiation would frustrate the demands of justice and good conscience. Carlsen v. Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan Trust, 80 N.J. 334, 339 (1979). Equitable estoppel arises from one's "conduct," which necessarily encompasses spoken or written words, positive acts, and silence or a negative omission to act. State v. United States Steel Corp., 22 N.J. 341, 358 (1956). An estoppel may also arise by silence or omission where one is under a duty to speak or act. Summer Cottagers' Ass'n of Cape May v. City of Cape May, 19 N.J. 493, 503-04 (1955).

Estoppel is properly invoked where "conduct, either express or implied, . . . reasonably misleads another to his prejudice so that a repudiation of such conduct would be unjust in the eyes of the law." Dambro v. Union Cnty. Park Comm'n, 130 N.J. Super. 450, 457 (Law Div. 1974). Equitable estoppel is not based upon "subjective intent but rather on the objective impression created by the actor's conduct." Ibid. Inasmuch as the basis for equitable estoppel is the preclusion against speaking contrary to one's own act or deed, West Jersey Title v. Industrial Trust Co., 27 N.J. 144, 153 (1958); Anske v. Boro. Of Palisades Park, 139 N.J. Super., 342, 348 (App.Div. 1976), it is not essential to application of the doctrine that the act was fraudulent or intentionally misleading.

In order to establish such a claim, the claiming party must show that the alleged conduct was done, or representation was made, intentionally or under such circumstances that it was both natural and probable that it would induce action. Further, the conduct must be relied on, and the relying party must act so as to change his or her position to his or her detriment. Fidelity Union Trust Co. v. Essex Cty. Mortgage Co., 130 N.J.Eq. 351, 353 (E. & A.1941); see W.V. Pangborne & Co. v. New Jersey Dep't of Transp., 116 N.J. 543, 553 (1989).

Several cases hold that the courts should apply the doctrine of equitable estoppel only in very "compelling circumstances." Bonaventure Intern. v. Spring Lake, 350 N.J. Super. 420, 436 (App. Div. 2002). Although, equitable estoppel is rarely invoked against public entities, O'Malley v. Department of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 316 (1987), it may be invoked against a governmental agency "where interests of justice, morality and common fairness clearly dictate that course." Gruber v. Raritan, 39 N.J. 1, 13 (1962), and to prevent manifest injustice, Anske, supra, 139 N.J.Super. at 348, unless the application would prejudice essential governmental functions, Vogt v. Borough of Belmar, 14 N.J. 195, 205 (1954).

Equitable considerations are relevant in assessing governmental conduct and impose a duty on the court to invoke estoppel when the occasion arises. Skulski v. Nolan, 68 N.J. 179, 198 (1975). In Skulski, the Court concluded that it was appropriate for the Court to weigh equitable considerations, particularly the "reliance factor" in determining the applicability of estoppel. Id. at 198-99.

In this matter, I FIND that respondent had a clear duty and responsibility to act promptly on applications for emergencies teaching certifications. I FIND that such duty is implicit in the laws and regulations requiring a teacher to physically possess an emergency teaching certificate before commencing employment. I also FIND that it was virtually impossible for the County Superintendent's office and for respondent to process emergency teaching certificates in compliance with the foregoing requirements. I FIND that respondent had, for many years, allowed employees to commence work as teachers in September of the school year without an emergency certificate in hand as long as the application was submitted to the County Superintendent's office and the County Superintendent had recommended approval by the Department. I FIND that the Department would eventually commence issuing emergency teaching certificates by December of the school year, but that some would not be issued until April or May of the school year. I FIND that at the time the Department actually issued these emergency teaching certificates, they would be backdated to the date that the County Superintendent recommended approval.

I FIND that that the overwhelming weight of the credible evidence establishes that Ms. Johnson sent the nine teachers' paperwork to the County Superintendent's Office in a timely manner. I make this finding based on the fact that Ms. Johnson's testimony was not directly disputed by respondent. In addition, as I previously stated, I had the opportunity to assess Ms. Johnson's testimony and demeanor, and found her to be credible. I FIND that the circumstances in this matter are such that it is more likely that the applications in question for emergency teaching certificates for the staff of Search Day Program had been lost or misplaced.

I FIND that if the Department of Education had issued emergency teaching certificates on an immediate basis as required by law, a school district or school such as petitioner herein would become immediately aware of the fact that applications for such emergency teaching certificates had been lost or misplaced. I FIND that the petitioner in this matter was not made aware that the applications it submitted were lost or misplaced until June 2003 because of the Department's regular, recurrent, and unavoidable delay in issuing such certificates. I FIND that by relying on the regular and recurrent delay in issuing such emergency teaching certificates by the Department to its detriment, petitioner herein would be cause to suffer a severe injustice with catastrophic consequences.

The testimony of petitioner's Executive Director is that petitioner is a nonprofit organization and does not have sufficient funds to pay back the $342,000 claimed by respondent. Her testimony was to the effect that this approved school for autistic children would be required to close. I FIND that the interests of justice, morality and common fairness clearly dictate some other result in this matter. I FIND that this entire situation would have been easily resolved in 2003 by the County Superintendent's office reviewing the replacement applications of the teachers in question, confirming that these teachers would have been entitled to receive emergency teaching certificates, and having the Department issue such certificates backdated to September 2002.

The State Department of Education, through its State Board and Commissioner, has broad powers and responsibilities to supervise public education in the State and effectuate constitutional and legislative policies concerning it. Piscataway Township Bd. of Education v. Burke, 158 N.J. Super. 436, 441 (App. Div. 1978). The Commissioner of Education has fundamental and indispensable jurisdiction over all disputes and controversies arising under the school laws and the Supreme Court "has repeatedly reaffirmed the great breadth of the Commissioner's power." Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Bd. of Ed., 77 N.J. 514, 525 (1978). Certainly those broad powers extend to remedying a situation such as this where a provider of essential educational services is facing extinction. I FIND that by now requiring the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools to review the replacement applications of the teachers in question, confirming that these teachers would have been entitled to receive emergency teaching certificates for the 2002-2003 school year, and by requiring the Office of Licensing and Certifications to issue such emergency teaching certificates backdated to September 2002, this matter may be remedied. For the reasons stated above, I CONCLUDE that this is the fair and appropriate action to take in this matter in order to avoid severe injustice with catastrophic consequences for petitioner.

DECISION AND ORDER

As stated in the foregoing discussion, and for the reasons stated therein, I hereby ORDER that the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools shall review the replacement applications of those teachers employed by Search Day Program who applied for emergency teaching certificates for the 2002-2003 school year, and shall confirm that said teachers would have been entitled to receive emergency teaching certificates for the 2002-2003 school year. As to those teachers who were so entitled, I further ORDER that the Office of Licensing and Certifications shall issue emergency teaching certificates backdated to September 2002. Finally, I ORDER that the Division of Finance, Office of Fiscal Policy and Planning, shall reconsider its disallowance of the allocation of $342,593 in salaries to various teachers for the 2002-2003 school year as a result of its review of petitioner's financial audit.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE BARRY N. FRANK, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on April 24, 2006, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Petitioner appeals the decision of respondent to suspend her two sons, E.E. and J.E., for the balance of the 2005-06 school year.

An oral argument was scheduled for May 3, 2006 at the OAL, 33 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. At the hearing, settlement discussions were held and a settlement was reached.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared an Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the ALJ's recommended Order denying emergent relief, as she concurs with his audiotape determination that – in order for petitioner to institute a challenge in this matter – such challenge should have been brought prior to its participation in the bidding process.

Accordingly, the Order of the OAL denying emergent relief is adopted. This matter is being returned to the OAL for those proceedings which may be necessary to bring it to conclusion.

The record of this emergent matter and the Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner has met the established standard for granting of interim relief. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982); N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6

With respect to irreparable harm and balancing of interests, the Commissioner so holds for the reasons expressed by the ALJ. However, with respect to likelihood of success on the merits, the Commissioner holds as she does based on the probability that E.M. will be found entitled to attend the Salem County Vocational-Technical School in accordance with established decisional law, not – as suggested by the ALJ – for reasons of constitutional entitlement to a thorough and efficient education or the lack of comparability between the resident district and vocational school drama programs. *Board of Education of the Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional School District, Bergen County v. Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein as clarified above, the Order of the OAL is adopted as the final disposition of petitioner's application for emergent relief. The Commissioner hereby directs the respondent Board of Education to issue forthwith a letter to the Salem County Career and Technical School accepting responsibility for E.M.'s tuition and transportation for the 2006-07 school year pending the outcome of this matter, which is set for hearing on the merits on June 15, 2006 in accordance with the ruling of the ALJ.

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 4, 2006, petitioner filed a letter pro se with the Commissioner of Education seeking emergent relief on behalf of her daughter, E.M. Petitioner sought to compel respondent to pay tuition and transportation costs for her daughter's attendance at an out-of-county vocational school.

The Division of Controversies and Disputes transferred the case to the Office of Administrative Law on May 24, 2006, and the matter was set down to be heard on an emergent basis on May 26, 2006.

At oral argument on May 26, 2006, petitioner appeared. The Clerk's Office notified Paul Kienzle, Esq., respondent's solicitor, of the hearing date. The Clerk's Office confirmed that Mr. Kienzle received the notice. Notwithstanding this sequence of events, neither Mr. Kienzle nor anyone else from respondent appeared. Mr. Kienzle, however, did fax to the Court a letter after working hours on May 25, 2006, indicating that he had "commitments on May 26, 2006 and will not be present." Mr. Kienzle did not notify the Court by telephone of his fax, nor did he call to request an adjournment. His fax was not discovered until Tuesday, May 30, 2006 following the Memorial Day holiday. His letter offers no detail as to why he could not appear, but unilaterally states he would not appear. Accordingly, the hearing proceeded ex parte. Given that Mr. Kienzle did not request an adjournment, there was no cause to forestall the emergent application.

By separate letter received by fax on May 30, 2006, Mr. Kienzle requested that I recuse myself from this matter. By the time that letter was received, I had already heard the case.

The basis of the request was as follows. The Bridgeton Superintendent is Victor Gilson. Mr. Gilson formerly served as superintendent of the Dennis Township School system. Shortly after his departure in 1994, I was appointed solicitor for that Board. Mr. Gilson filed suit against the Dennis Township Board either immediately before or immediately after my appointment. However, I did not represent the Board in that matter; the Board was represented by the former solicitor, Louis Greco, Esq.

In his letter, Mr. Kienzle states that Mr. Gilson "indicates that you were advising the Dennis Township Board of Education on matters adverse to him and he believes that there is a conflict of interest with respect to your serving as a Judge with respect to any matters involving the Board of Education of the City of Bridgeton."

This argument is misplaced for two reasons. First, Mr. Gilson is not a litigant in this matter; he is only an agent of respondent. The Board of Education is the party hereto, and bears ultimate responsibility for the actions or omissions of its agents.

But more importantly, Mr. Gilson is in error. I did not represent the Dennis Board in its suit with Mr. Gilson, a matter that occurred some twelve years ago. Accordingly, there is no cause for my recusal. Since counsel has not formally moved for my recusal, no order is appropriate on this issue.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner spoke on behalf of her daughter E.M. E.M. is a resident of the Bridgeton school district. She will graduate from the 8th grade at Immaculate Conception Regional School in June.

E.M. has been involved in the performing arts since 5th grade. Her involvement includes not only school activities, but also activity with a community theater, the Cumberland County Players. Her goal is to seek a career in the performing arts.

Toward that end, petitioner sought out high school programs that would allow E.M. to pursue her career. She found two in the area: Gloucester County Institute of Technology (GCIT) and Salem County Career and Technical High School (Salem).

E.M. applied for admission to the two schools. Each required an audition. E.M. passed the auditions and was admitted to each school. In the case of GCIT, the school had twenty-five openings for 125 applicants. Salem had fifteen openings, and continues to audition.

E.M.'s admission to each school was conditioned upon respondent confirming that it would assume the obligation to pay tuition and provide transportation for E.M. Petitioner testified that she notified respondent in December that she would need such confirmation.

For some months, respondent failed to respond to petitioner's requests for such a letter of confirmation. Finally, on April 3, the superintendent advised petitioner that respondent would not agree to pay tuition or transportation. The superintendent stated that respondent offered a drama program comparable to that offered at GCIT and Salem (P-3).

Petitioner appealed the superintendent's determination to the Board of Education. On April 24, the Board affirmed the superintendent's action and denied tuition and transportation (P-4). Petitioner then filed this appeal.

Petitioner presented the curriculum for the Bridgeton High School Visual & Performing Arts Department (P-5), the Course of Study for GCIT (P-6), and the Salem County Vocational Technical Program Description (P-7). She argued that the Bridgeton program offered nothing to E.M. during 9th grade, and was primarily based around participation in choir.

Petitioner stated that E.M. preferred the Salem program. The primary reason for the choice was proximity. The Salem school is fifteen minutes from petitioner's home; GCIT is forty-five minutes away.

Petitioner requested emergency relief in the form of an Order compelling respondent to provide Salem with a letter confirming that it would assume responsibility for E.M.'s tuition and transportation costs. She stated that Salem was holding a slot open for E.M., but the school was continuing to audition. The letter of responsibility from respondent is a condition of admission. If such letter is not immediately forthcoming, Salem may fill the slot with a student who can provide such a letter.

The requirements for granting emergent relief are well settled. Petitioner carries the burden in seeking emergent relief. The standard is set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), necessary for the awarding of this relief. See also, Princeton Ins. Co. v. 349 Associates, L.L.C., 147 N.J. 337, 340(1997). Crowe requires a showing of each of the four specific criteria:

1. The relief must not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy;

2. Relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled;

3. The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits; and

4. The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered. Id. at 132-34.

I am satisfied that E.M. may suffer irreparable harm if relief is not granted. If Salem and GCIT fill the slots currently reserved for her, E.M. will be foreclosed from entering the program, and will lose the opportunity to further her education in her chosen field. Therefore, I FIND that petitioner has met her burden to show irreparable harm.

Although petitioner offered no law on the issue, I FIND that the law on this issue is not unsettled. Under the New Jersey State Constitution, E.M. is entitled to a thorough and efficient education. Depriving her of an appropriate program would violate her rights under the State Constitution.

I also FIND that petitioner has shown a reasonable probability of success on the merits. Petitioner testified without contradiction that respondent's program was inferior to that offered by Salem and GCIT. A cursory review of the respective curricula (P-5 through P-7) reveals that respondent's curriculum is less detailed and appears to offer EM fewer options, particularly in the 9th grade. I do not find that respondent's curriculum fails to meet the minimum standards necessary for such a program. A finding on that issue must abide a plenary hearing. But the disparity between the programs apparent from the face of the curricula is sufficient to establish a reasonable probability of success by petitioner.

Finally, no hardship will be imposed upon respondent by requiring it to forward the confirming letter to Salem. Forwarding the letter will have the limited effect of holding open E.M.'s place in Salem's 2006-2007 9th grade class. No permanent liability for tuition or transportation will be imposed upon respondent without a full hearing.

At the same time, substantial hardship will result to E.M. if Salem should determine to fill her slot in next year's 9th grade class with another student. Issuing the confirming letter will alleviate that potential hardship.

For all the reasons set forth above, I ORDER respondent to issue a letter to Salem stating that it will assume financial responsibility for E.M.'s tuition and transportation costs for the 2006-2007 school year.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent issue to the Salem County Career and Technical School a letter accepting responsibility to provide tuition and transportation for E.M. for the 2006-2007 school year.

I ORDER that this matter be set down for plenary hearing on June 15, 2006, at 9:00 a.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, 1601 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appeals the Department's determination to disallow certain expenses in the computation of final tuition rates for the 2002-2003 school year for two private schools for the disabled operated by petitioner, one located in Union and the other in Cranford. The Cranford school appeals from the denial of an increase in its final tuition rate of more than 10% over its tentative rate, and both the Cranford and the Union schools appeal from the Department's refusal to recognize "employee merit awards" as an allowable expense, arguing that they do not constitute merit pay increases within the scope of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15).

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: as early as October 2003, petitioner's executive director and trustees knew that the final tuition request for Cranford School would be more than 10% above its tentative rate; petitioner failed to exercise due diligence in complying with the 45-day notice requirement; there is no support for petitioner's contention that a new school is exempt from the 45-day notice requirement; petitioner's two schools expended nearly $70,700 in employee merit awards for FY '03, which money would otherwise have been refunded to the sending public school districts; petitioner failed to timely file a copy of its merit award plan with the Department, thereby allowing no opportunity to review and approve the payout; and respondent Department uncovered serious deficiencies in the design of the merit award plan after a copy was ultimately obtained. The ALJ concluded that the Department properly disallowed Cranford School's tuition increase in excess of the 10% limit, and both schools' employee merit awards, and determined that petitioner's request for relief should be denied.

Upon thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, and dismissed the petition.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Department's reply thereto, submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching her decision herein.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate its arguments advanced below. As it is determined that these were fully addressed and considered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in his decision, they will not be revisited here.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, which included transcripts of the hearing below,[1] the Commissioner is in agreement with the ALJ – for the reasons clearly detailed in the Initial Decision - that the Department properly disallowed Cranford School's tuition increase in excess of the 10% limit, and the employee merit awards for both Cranford and Union Schools, from the computation of petitioner's approved tuition rates for the 2002-03 fiscal year.

[1] Hearing was conducted on May 24, May 25, and July 29, 2005.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

These are consolidated appeals by two private schools from the disallowance of certain expenses in the computation of their final tuition rate for the 2002-2003 fiscal year ("FY '03"). Petitioner Cerebral Palsy League ("CPL") operates two separate approved private schools for children with disabilities, the Jardine Academy I located in Union, New Jersey ("Union School") and the Jardine Academy II located in Cranford, New Jersey ("Cranford School"). Pursuant to statute, the New Jersey Department of Education ("Department") has the responsibility of regulating tuition rates that an approved private school for the disabled can charge to a sending public school district.[1] Regulations promulgated by the Department provide that the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") shall approve a tentative tuition rate for the upcoming school year no later than January 1 of the preceding school year.[2] After the close of the pertinent school year, the Commissioner approves the final tuition rate for that year, which must be "equal to or less than the certified actual cost per student."[3]

Basically, the pleadings raise two issues, one unique to Cranford School and the other applicable to both schools. Cranford School appeals from the denial of an increase in its final tuition rate of more than 10% over its tentative rate for the FY '03 school year. Throughout FY '03, the governing regulation provided that, if a private school proposes to charge a final tuition rate in excess of 10% of the tentative rate, then it must notify each sending district and the appropriate Department official "within 45 days after the private school becomes aware of such increase." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(2).[4] Otherwise, the private school is limited to a maximum tuition increase of 10%. Thus, the regulation does not absolutely bar a private school from raising tuition by more than 10% if justified by its certified actual costs, but imposes conditions on the circumstances under which it may do so.

Initially, Cranford School argues that, as a "new school" in only its second full year of operation, it is exempt from the 45-day notice requirement. In response, the Department interprets its regulation as applying equally to all approved private schools for the disabled, regardless of whether they are new or old. Alternatively, in the event that the 45-day notice provision is deemed applicable, Cranford School contends either

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21.
[2] N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(i)
[3] N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.1.
[4] Effective August 16, 2004, the subchapter governing tuition for private schools for the disabled, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4, was amended and recodified. 36 N.J.R. 1313(a)(March 16, 2004); 36 N.J.R. 3895(a)(Aug. 16, 2004). Unless otherwise specified, citations in this decision will refer to the previous set of regulations in existence during FY '03.

that it complied with the 45-day notice requirement or that strict compliance should be waived due to honest confusion and lack of harm to the sending districts. The Department counters that Cranford School failed to serve the required notice within 45 days of the date it became aware of the undercharges and that the regulations are clear and unambiguous.

Both schools appeal from the Department's refusal to recognize so-called "employee merit awards" as an allowable expense because the underlying plans had not been filed with the Commissioner as mandated by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15). They urge that their "merit awards" do not constitute a "merit pay increase" within the scope of the regulation and also that the regulation itself imposes no set time limit for submitting such plans to the Commissioner. Further, the schools maintain that the only reason recognized by the regulation for excluding a merit award is "if the sole purpose of the award(s) is to avoid returning unexpended tuition funds to the public schools." Nonetheless, the Department maintains that the regulation uses the terms "merit pay increases" and "merit awards" interchangeably and was designed to require pre-approval by the Commissioner before such plan can be implemented.

Generally, the Department points out that merit pay awards are non-allowable unless consistent with plans on file with the Commissioner, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(33). Even if the plans had been timely filed, the Department contends that the Commissioner would not have approved them anyway because the plan did not specify a dollar amount or how many times an individual would be evaluated.

For the reasons that follow, the Department's determination on both issues is correct and will be upheld.

Procedural History

By letter dated March 2, 2004, the Department notified CPL that it had reviewed the audited financial statements for FY '03 and had determined that Cranford School's tuition increase above 10% of the tentative tuition rate was non-allowable. Soon thereafter, on April 20, 2004 and April 26, 2004, respectively, the Department notified CPL that Union's and Cranford's costs for employee merit awards were non-allowable. On March 29, 2004, CPL filed a petition to the Commissioner on behalf of Cranford School seeking a tuition increase of 14.3%. On June 24, 2004, CPL filed two separate petitions on behalf of Union and Cranford Schools challenging the exclusion of the merit awards. The Department filed its answers to these appeals on July 28, 2004.

Subsequently, on August 18, 2004, the Commissioner transmitted all three appeals to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"), where they were consolidated for hearing together as a contested case. The OAL held hearings on May 24, May 25 and July 29, 2006. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Both parties filed post-hearing briefs on October 3, 2005 and reply briefs on October 17, 2005.

General Background Facts

All of the general background facts are undisputed. Cerebral Palsy League, a not-for-profit corporation, was established fifty-five years ago when few services were available for children afflicted with cerebral palsy.[5] Presently, CPL operates two private schools for the disabled in New Jersey. Union School has been in operation since the 1970's in Union, New Jersey. Cranford School recently opened its doors in January 2001, midway through the 2000-2001 academic year, at a separate facility in Cranford, New Jersey. Both offer special education and related services to students with special needs, including those with multiple handicaps, severe cognitive deficits, physical challenges or complex medical needs. Each school is approved by the State of New Jersey and accredited by Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.[6] Union School serves younger children ages 3 to 10 years old, while Cranford School serves older children and young adults from 10 to 21 years old.

Notwithstanding that the two schools had different locations and different student bodies for the latter part of the 2000-2001 fiscal year ("FY '01"), the Department decided to continue treating them as a combined entity for that year in order to spare Cranford School the extra time and expense of revising its accounting records and preparing separate audited financial statements.[7] Thus, for financial auditing purposes, Cranford School's first year of operation was 2001-2002 ("FY '02") and its second year of operation was 2002-2003 ("FY '03.)[8] Further evidence that the Department regarded FY '03 as Cranford's second year of operation comes from its letter granting the new school until the end of the 2003 school year to attain a minimum daily average enrollment of 16 students. Since state regulations require that new private schools for the disabled must achieve a minimum average daily enrollment of 16 students by the end of the second school year to retain their approved status, this deadline confirms that the Department treated FY '03 as Cranford's second year of operation.[9]

10% Cap on Tuition Increases

Debra Wolfel, executive director of CPL, testified that the organization's former director of finance had difficulty handling the added responsibilities of managing

[7] N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a) provided that "a currently approved private school for the disabled which is expanding a program to another location or opening a new program is considered a new private school which shall be approved by the Commissioner prior to opening." (Emphasis added). Applying this regulation literally, the Department could, if it had wanted, treated Cranford as a "new school" for the second half of FY '01.

[8] Under the pertinent regulation, a private school for the disabled is considered to be a new school "in the first two years of operation." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.1.

finances for two separate schools. While the finance director gave periodic reports at the regular meetings of CPL's Board of Trustees ("Board"), he failed to that disclose there would be a projected gap between tentative and final tuition rates for FY '03. Instead, the Board was led to believe at its meeting on June 24, 2003, near the close of the fourth quarter, that "our cash flow was better this year than last year and we should not experience the 'crunch' we felt last year." When the outside auditing firm of Curchin & Co. completed its independent audit for FY '03, however, the Board learned for the first time that there was a shortfall of approximately $300,000 between tuition revenues and expenses. Curchin & Co. found that the accrual method of accounting had not been applied consistently and, as a result, that Cranford School had substantially understated its accrued expenses for FY '03.

Most of the factual disagreement concerns when CPL realized that Cranford School's final tuition request would exceed 10% of its tentative tuition rate. Significantly, Executive Director Wolfel admits that the independent auditors presented their audit report at the monthly meeting of the Board on October 28, 2003 and informed her and the trustees of the significant additional expenses. Page 50 of the audit report recites that the per-diem cost per Cranford student at the tentative rate was only $278.20, whereas the certified actual cost per Cranford student was $318.09 (representing an increase of 14.3% over the tentative rate.) None of the auditors, however, expressed this excess in percentage terms, either in the audit report or during their presentation at the Board meeting. Because she did not do the math herself, Director Wolfel now says that she failed to appreciate that the actual cost per student was more than 10% over the tentative tuition rate "until much later." Consequently, she claims that the forty-five day period for notifying the sending districts should run from that uncertain date rather than from the Board meeting on October 28, 2003.

It is undisputed that Cranford School did not notify the sending districts and the Department of the 14.3% tuition undercharge until January 7, 2004, which is 71 days after October 28, 2003. Nonetheless, CPL's counsel urges that the mailing was "certainly" within forty-five days of whatever date Director Wolfel finally learned that the costs would exceed 10% of the tentative rate. Since Director Wolfel cannot pinpoint the date with any precision, it is unclear how that time-frame can be ascertained so certainly, especially since Director Wolfel testified that she did not concentrate on percentage amounts until after the Department had rejected the tuition increase of more than 10%.

Another factual dispute involves whether CPL was justified in mistakenly assuming that it had thirty days after receipt of its final tuition notice from the State to notify the sending districts. During the prior fiscal year (FY '02), Cranford School's undercharges were less than 10%, so that the question of putting sending district on notice of a larger tuition increase did not arise. Following standard practice, James Verner, section supervisor in the Department's Division of Finance, wrote to Director Wolfel on February 28, 2003, advising that the Department had approved Cranford School's final tuition rate and recommending that the school notify each sending district of any final audit adjustments "no later than 30 days after receipt of this letter." On its face, this letter refers to final audit adjustments of whatever amount, overcharges as well as undercharges, and has nothing to do with a school's continuing obligation to notify sending districts of anticipated tuition increases of more than 10% within forty-five days of whenever such increases become known. However, Director Wolfel ostensibly interpreted the letter to mean that the school need not send notices to sending districts until after Department approval of its final tuition rate and that the same procedure would apply to the subsequent fiscal year (FY '03) as well.

Making CPL's position even less tenable, the Department annually distributed a copy of its mandated tuition contract with approved private schools for the handicapped, which plainly sets forth the forty-five day notice requirement. Paragraph 7 of the contract clearly states that:

> In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)2, the APPROVED PRIVATE SCHOOL shall notify each SENDING DISTRICT and the Assistant Commissioner of Finance, Division of Finance that such increase will be charged and the reason for the increase within 45 days after the APPROVED PRIVATE SCHOOL becomes aware of such increase. If the APPROVED PRIVATE SCHOOL fails to comply, the school may only charge a 10 percent increase.

Moreover, a cover memo accompanying the contract for FY '02 alerted CPL to changes to the regulations made as the result of a new code adopted by the State Board of Education on April 4, 2001. One of the highlighted changes was the forty-five day notice requirement applicable to private schools proposing to charge a final tuition rate in excess of 10% of the tentative rate. Cranford School makes a big deal of the fact that the cover memo sent together with the contract for FY '03 does not highlight this provision, although the contract itself contains identical language. Of course, the reason is that the change had already been made in the prior year and, as Director Wolfel recognized, the same procedure would apply to the subsequent fiscal year as well, unless otherwise noted.

I FIND that, as early as October 28, 2003, Director Wolfel and CPL's trustees knew or should have known that the final tuition request for Cranford School would exceed its tentative rate by more than 10%. On October 28, 2003, the independent auditing firm advised the Board that the accrued expenses were substantially in excess of the tentative tuition rate and that a large adjustment would be necessary. In particular, the auditors provided sufficient information from which it was readily ascertainable that the increase would be greater than 10%. Director Wolfel's claim of ignorance does not excuse Cranford School and its board of trustees from having to comply with the forty-five day notice requirement. Managers of approved private schools must exercise due diligence and cannot shield their institution from the consequences of inattentiveness by professing lack of knowledge well within their cognizance.

Nothing in the Department's letters to CPL lends support to Cranford School's contention that a new school is exempt from the forty-five day notice requirement. To the contrary, the mandated tuition contract mailed to all schools prior to the commencement of the fiscal year incorporates the regulatory language prescribing a forty-five day notice whenever a school becomes aware that its proposed final tuition rate will exceed its tentative rate by 10%. No confusion can realistically be said to exist between such regulatory requirement and the Department's recommendation that private schools apprise sending districts of their approved final tuition rates within thirty days after the Department's review of their audited financial statements.

Employee Merit Awards

CPL adopted an "employee merit award" plan on July 1, 2001, which remained in effect throughout FY'03.[10] Its purpose was to recognize an employee's outstanding work performance and tie monetary reward to an employee's end-of-year performance. Under the plan, "all employees will be evaluated by their director, prior to the close of each fiscal year (June 30)." In order to be eligible for a merit award, an employee must have been employed by CPL for the full fiscal year and have "received at least 2 scores of 'exceptional' or 'outstanding' performance" and not "any scoring less than 'satisfactory' or 'standard.'" Each year the amount of the award was to be set by the Personnel Committee of the Board and adopted by the Board prior to the last meeting of the fiscal year. Merit awards are "payable as a lump-sum amount." Payment was to be made, as far as practicable, before the end of the fiscal year in which the award was earned. Union School awarded a total of $39,540 to 33 staff members out of 63 employees. Cranford School awarded a total of $31,155 to 28 staff members out of 51 employees.

CPL witnesses testified that the merit award does not become part of the employee's base salary in that year and is not carried over into the subsequent year's contracted salary. Since merit awards were granted to outstanding employees of those CPL programs showing a deficit, Director Wolfel denied that the plan was devised to deplete unspent funds so that the money would not have to be refunded to the school districts at the end of the year.

[10] Because the incentive did not seem to be working as expected, the League discontinued employee merit awards in FY' 04.

Section Supervisor Jim Verner stated that the Department disallowed the merit pay awards because CPL had failed to file a copy of the plan with the Department for review. According to Verner, the regulatory intent was for the private school to file the plan at the beginning of the school year so that the Department would have an opportunity to approve it before any award was made. Neither school submitted a copy of the merit award plan until long after the end of FY '03, so that the Department never had the opportunity to review the plan before it took effect.[11] As soon as Verner obtained a copy of the plan, in or around March 2004, he raised serious concerns about potential violations of Department regulations pertaining to merit salary increases. He faulted the plan for failing to fix any definite dollar amount and for lack of adequate standards in how an individual's performance would be evaluated.[12] Of course, the adequacy of the plan is academic at this point, since FY '03 had already passed by the time that the Department saw the plan.

I FIND that the two schools expended nearly $70,700 in employee merit awards for FY '03, which money would otherwise have been refunded to the sending public school districts. CPL failed to file a copy of its merit award plan with the Department until after expiration of FY '03, thereby depriving the Department of any opportunity to review and approve the payout. Ultimately, when the Department obtained a copy of the plan, it uncovered serious deficiencies in the specification of the maximum amount of the awards and in the procedures for selecting the recipients.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Department properly disallowed Cranford School's tuition increase in excess of the 10% limit and both schools' employee merit awards.

[11] If the plans had been filed earlier, the Department could have identified any deficiencies and afforded the League the opportunity to cure them during the year in which they were operative.

[12] Verner noted that an employee needed two exceptional or outstanding performance ratings in order to qualify for an award, but that the plan did not specify how many times per year each individual would be evaluated.

New Jersey law authorizes public school districts to send handicapped students to approved private schools as the means of satisfying the districts' duty to provide suitable facilities and programs of education for children with educational disabilities. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(g). Council of Private Schools for Children with Special Needs, Inc. v. Saul Cooperman, 205 N.J. Super. 544 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 103 N.J. 490 (1985). The Legislature has expressed concern for the quality of education for handicapped pupils as well as its overall cost to the public. Council of Private Schools, at 545. Toward that end, the Legislature has conferred statutory authority on the Commissioner, with the consent of the State Board of Education, to approve special facilities and educational programs for education of handicapped students, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-15(a), and to require private schools to provide such educational, financial and statistical reports as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of Chapter 46. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19. Tuition rates that approved private schools may charge to sending public school districts are strictly regulated. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21, tuition rates charged by approved private schools cannot "exceed the actual cost per pupil as determined under the rules prescribed by the [C]ommissioner and approved by the State Board of Education." N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21.

To carry out its responsibility to ensure that public funds are properly spent for legitimate educational purposes, the Department has adopted regulations prescribing the accounting and bookkeeping systems utilized by approved private schools for the disabled. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.1 to 4.16.

N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)(2), as it was worded in FY '03, provided that:

> If the private school for the disabled proposes to charge a final tuition rate in excess of 10 percent of the tentative tuition rate charged, the private school shall notify each sending district board of education and the Assistant Commissioner, Division of Finance that such an increase will be charged and the reason for the increase within 45 days after the private school becomes aware of such increase.[13]

There is no inherent ambiguity in this language that conceivably might give rise to the misunderstanding that new schools are exempt from the forty-five day notice requirement. As a fundamental rule of construction, it is not a court's function to rewrite a plainly-written enactment. Courts turn to extrinsic evidence only where there is an ambiguity in the language that leads to more than one plausible interpretation. DiProspero v. Penn, 183 N.J. 477, 492-92 (2005). Petitioner's reference to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.3(g) is inapposite, since that provision deals with final adjustments at year's end and does not supersede the forty-five day rule. If the Department had intended the forty-five days to start running only after the final rate had been fixed, then adoption of N.J.A.C. 6:23-4.2(a)(2) would have been superfluous. Youth Consultation Service, Inc v. Rosenberg, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7893-03, 2004 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 528 (Sept. 2, 2004), aff'd (Comm'r Oct. 14, 2004). http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/final/edu7893-03.pdf

Similarly, CPL's claim that it did not become "aware" of the 14.3% increase until a "much later" date is spurious. In Youth Consultation Service, management possessed sufficient information to realize that the costs of its school exceeded the 10% limit when the directors received the completed independent audit and learned of the certified cost per student. Here too, CPL became "aware" that the increase could be expected to exceed the 10% limit at its board meeting on October 28, 2003, when the independent auditors made their report to the trustees. Board members must exercise due diligence in monitoring the finances of regulated private schools.

[13] In order to clarify its regulatory intent, the Department adopted a "technical" amendment, which took effect on August 4, 2004. As currently worded, N.J.A.C. 23:2.4(a)(2) provides the notice must be given "on or before the following dates: December 15, for the first quarter, March 15th for the second quarter, June 15th for the third quarter and September 15th for the fourth quarter, or the next business day when applicable." 36 N.J.R. 1313(a) (March 13, 2004); 36 N.J.R. 3895(a) (Aug. 16, 2004).

Next, CPL's request that the Commissioner "relax" strict application of the regulation is without merit. Assuming that an agency head possesses authority to waive application of agency regulations to prevent manifest injustice, such power should be exercised sparingly. Even at the agency level, waiver would require a case-by-case determination of whether the particular circumstances merit waiver and, thus might hamper efficient rule application. See Dougherty v. Dep't of Human Servs., 91 N.J. 449 (1982). Considerations of fairness and uniformity weigh against creating exceptions to general rules on a piecemeal basis. Windsor Learning Center, Inc. v. New Jersey State Dep't of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5979-04, 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 244 (Feb. 28, 2006), aff'd (Comm'r April 6, 2006).

Notification of increases over 10% during the year was designed to "encourage better budgeting and tracking of expenditures at the private schools and provide public schools more timely notice of anticipated tuition adjustments." 33 N.J.R. at 1417. Youth Consultation Services, supra. While the League speculates that a short delay in serving the required notice would not have any serious impact on fiscal operations of the sending districts, it makes this argument without consulting the affected districts and without any basis in the record. Moreover, excusing the League's carelessness in monitoring its own financial affairs would undermine the equally important objective of promoting better budgeting and tracking of expenditures at private schools seeking public funding.

In light of the disposition of the first issue, the second issue is moot, since the cost of the merit awards is already included in the disallowed charges that exceed 10% of the tentative rate. Nevertheless, the merit awards will also be addressed for the purpose of a complete record.

N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(33) provides that the costs of a merit pay award is non-allowable if the award is inconsistent with the plans on file with the Commissioner.[14] In turn, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15) sets forth the conditions under which an approved private school may incur "merit pay increases." Among other criteria, the board must formally adopt a "merit pay plan," and that plan must be filed with the Commissioner, "who may exclude from tuition any merit award(s) if the sole purpose of the award(s) is to avoid returning unexpended tuition funds to public schools." Plans adopted by private schools must include certain mandatory provisions, namely: (i) eligibility for all employees; (ii) the basis by which the pay is earned; (iii) the amount of awards by plan(s); (iv) the maximum number of awards to be given by plan(s) for each year; and (v) the date of board approval and the date of initiation of the plans. The Department treated this regulation as applicable to CPL's "merit pay awards" and disallowed the expense because the plan had never been filed with the Commissioner.

Initially, CPL argues that the N.J.A.C 6A:23-4.4(a)(15) only covers "merit pay increases," as distinct from the "merit pay awards" granted by the two schools. However, the regulation itself does not draw such fine distinctions and uses the phrases "merit pay increases" and "merit awards" as if they are interchangeable. Use of the term "merit pay increase" implies an upward adjustment of compensation based on an employee's actual performance, as opposed to other considerations like seniority or educational attainment. If the semantic hairsplitting advocated by CPL is condoned, an approved private school would easily be able to circumvent the regulation by inventing a new name for a non-allowable expense.

Alternatively, CPL contends that the merit pay award can be disallowed only in the event that its "sole purpose" is to avoid returning unexpended funds to public schools. Although the language of the regulation is susceptible of such interpretation, that argument would carry more weight if CPL had submitted the plan to the [14] CPL contends that a "merit award" (which is payable in a lump sum and does not carry over to the employee's base salary in subsequent years) differs from what is commonly understood by the term "salary." Regardless of whether or not the payment is considered "salary," a merit award must still satisfy the criteria of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15) in order to be allowable.

Commissioner for review. Testifying on behalf of the agency, Supervisor Verner interpreted N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15) as bestowing greater authority on the Department to ensure that the merit pay plan fully conforms to the regulatory requirements. Since CPL failed to file the merit plan for review, however, the Department denied the cost for that reason alone and never reached the broader issue.

Emphasizing that the regulation has no deadline, CPL maintains that it complied with its literal language by filing the merit pay plan in March 2004, some eight months after the close of FY '03. Read together with the prohibition in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(k) against allowance of most salary increases after the start of the fiscal year, it would make little sense to review the plan for adequacy after the payout had already accrued. Courts should avoid constructions of language that would render any word inoperative, superfluous, redundant, or meaningless. Township of Pennsauken v. Schad, 160 N.J. 156, 174 (1999).[15]

In short, CPL cannot recover the disputed costs due to its failure to comply with the regulatory notice requirements and its failure to file a copy of its merit award plan with the Commissioner.

Order

It is ORDERED that CPL's request for relief is denied.

[15] Amendments effective on August 16, 2004 added a sentence that, "The plan(s) shall be submitted for approval to the Commissioner prior to implementation." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(a)(15).(2004). CPL's argument is not strengthened by this new language, since the revisions were adopted "to clarify and enhance existing financial and business service rules," rather than to alter or change them. 36 N.J.R. 1313(a) (March 15, 2004).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Petitioner's motion for clarification of the Commissioner's decision denying petitioner's motion for reconsideration of the Commissioner's March 17, 2006 Final Decision dismissing petitioner's claims has been reviewed. No opposition to the motion having been received, the Commissioner finds as follows:

The decision denying petitioner's motion for reconsideration was necessitated by petitioner's failure to satisfy the criteria, set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2), that parties must meet to show that reconsideration is justified. More specifically,

1) Petitioner made no showing that the Commissioner made a mistake;[1]

2) Petitioner presented no newly discovered evidence that could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;

[1] Under the terms of this regulation, mere disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake."

3) Petitioner alleged no newly ascertained misrepresentations or other misconduct by respondent or its representatives that could not have been previously ascertained and alleged; and

4) Petitioner cited no reversals of prior judgments upon which the Commissioner relied in making her decision in this matter.

For the foregoing reasons, petitioner's motion for reconsideration was, and still is, denied.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CALDWELL-WEST CALDWELL SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a tenured social worker employed by the Board, contends that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:66-1 et seq when it failed to deduct and forward pension contributions to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years. Petitioner seeks reimbursement from the Board in the amount of $6,932.68, the difference between the amount petitioner was required to pay when he purchased service credits at the 1999 rate and the amount that should have been withheld from his pay for the period in question.

On cross-motions for summary decision and based on the outcome of a prior proceeding before the TPAF Board of Trustees, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner's appeal was timely filed; petitioner was wrongfully denied his status as an eligible member of the TPAF for two years; petitioner was granted the right to purchase service credits, but did so at an increased cost due to the Board's error; and petitioner's recovery of funds he was required to pay in excess of what his pension withholdings would have been in 1986-87 and 1987-88 would provide appropriate restitution to petitioner. The ALJ granted the petitioner's motion for summary judgment and ordered the Board to reimburse petitioner in the amount of $6,932.68.

The Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision. The Commissioner found that petitioner's claim based on the Board's failure to treat him as an employee for pension purposes arises under pension law, so that its remedy lies within the jurisdiction of the TPAF Board of Trustees rather than the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner further found that petitioner's claim of violation of a 1988 arbitration Consent Award lies within the jurisdiction of the Public Employment Relations Commission and was, additionally, filed well out of time. Finally, even assuming timely filing, the Commissioner found no proof that the Board was in any way responsible for petitioner's claimed eleven-year delay in learning about the 1988 Consent Award, so that there was no basis in equity to order the Board to compensate petitioner for the cost increase that resulted. The Commissioner dismissed the petition.

PASQUALE SPITALETTA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CALDWELL-WEST CALDWELL SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the parties' submissions on exception filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The respondent Board of Education (Board) objects to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner was not aware of the Consent Award settling his 1986 grievance until 1999, contending that the ALJ unilaterally accepted petitioner's representation without taking any account of a Board certification to the contrary. (Board's Exceptions at 3-4) The Board also objects to the ALJ's finding that the petition was timely filed, contending that any claim petitioner had against the Board was settled by the 1988 Consent Award, and that if said Award – which by its own terms constituted a "full resolution" of the dispute – were not deemed enforceable, petitioner should have brought further action in a more timely fashion. (Id. at 5-7, 11) Most significantly, the Board objects to the ALJ's "bootstrapping" of a prior matter involving petitioner and the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) – but not the Board – onto the instant matter, and to her concluding from her decision in the earlier matter that the Board was somehow to blame for petitioner's delay in filing his application for purchase of TPAF credit and therefore liable for his increased costs. According to the Board, not only did the ALJ apply the wrong standard by construing inferences in favor of petitioner rather than respondent in granting summary decision, she even erroneously indicated that her Initial Decision was to be filed with the Board of Trustees of TPAF rather than the Commissioner of Education. (Id. at 5-12)[1]

In reply, petitioner counters that the ALJ appropriately decided the matter summarily in his favor based upon documents presented and the prior TPAF decision, since a court or agency "can take account of fact-finding made in complimentary proceedings," citing Winschel v. City of Jersey City, 96 N.J. 651, 666 (1984). (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1-2) Petitioner also reiterates that his appeal was filed within 90 days of the ruling upon which it was based, i.e., the TPAF ruling that he was an employee during the period in question for purposes of accruing pensionable service time. (Id. at 2) Finally, petitioner contends that the Board's violation of the 1988 Consent Award when petitioner attempted to purchase service credit in 1999 precludes it from relying on this agreement now as a basis to deny recovery to petitioner. (Id. at 3)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner has determined to reject the Initial Decision in this matter.

The undisputed facts are as follows: Petitioner has been a social worker in the Board's district since 1981. In the spring of 1986, by which time he had acquired tenure, he was notified by the Board that his position would be terminated at the end of the 1986 school year as the result of a reduction in force; the Board subsequently hired him as a per diem Consultant-Case Manager/Social Worker for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years,[2] during which time the Board did not withhold pension contributions from his payment because it did not consider him a salaried employee. In October 1986, the Caldwell-West Caldwell Education Association filed a grievance alleging that the Board's hiring of a consultant to fill the position of Case Manager/Social Worker violated the recognition clause of the collective bargaining agreement; a second grievance was filed in January 1987, alleging that petitioner was part of the Association's bargaining unit and subject to deduction of agency fees. The grievances were heard by an arbitrator, and were ultimately settled in 1988 via a Consent Award stating as follows:

[1] The Board additionally objects to a number of statements in the ALJ's procedural recitations, contending that these either inaccurately or insufficiently relate what actually transpired, particularly with respect to the Board's ability to fully argue its case. (Board's Exceptions at 2, 4-5, 9, 10)

1. Mr. P. Spitaletta's functions shall henceforth be done by bargaining unit personnel.
2. The Association will be paid the Agency Fee monies for 1987-88 amounting to $141.10.
3. The Board will credit Mr. Spitaletta's sick leave bank for time worked in school year 1987-88 in the amount of five (5) days.
4. If the Grievant decides to seek pension credit, the Board shall provide assistance to facilitate the back credit purchase.
5. The above is in full resolution of AR-87-272. Future similar issues will be decided on a case by case basis.
6. Arbitrator Robert E. Light retains jurisdiction over interpretation and compliance of the above.

   (Exhibit A, No. J-10, Certification of Mark A. Wenczel, Esq., Attachment to Board's Brief in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment and in Support of the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment)

[2] For 1986-87, petitioner received a stipend of $200 per day for two days service per week with a maximum of 75 days per year; for 1987-88, the stipend remained the same, but the maximum number of days was reduced to 64. (Exhibit A, Nos. J-3 and J-6, Certification of Mark A. Wenczel, Esq., Attachment to Board's Brief in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment and in Support of the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment)

Petitioner returned to full-time employment with the district in the fall of 1988. In June 1999,[3] petitioner sought to purchase pension credit for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years; in September 2000, his request was denied by the Division of Pensions because the service in question was characterized by the Board as that of an independent contractor rather than an employee. The Division of Pensions did not notify petitioner of his right to appeal its decision, and in the fall of 2002, petitioner sought recourse through the Board of Trustees of TPAF.[4] On August 6, 2004, following a hearing at the OAL conducted by the same ALJ as heard the matter now before the Commissioner, the TPAF Board held that, for pension purposes, petitioner was an employee rather than an independent contractor during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years and that the Division of Pensions had improperly denied his request to purchase pension credit for this period. Petitioner then purchased the credit at the rate applicable in 1999 when he first applied for purchase; his cost was $8,522.68, reflecting a difference of $6,932.68 from what his cost would have been ($1,590) had contributions been withheld from his pay during the period in question. On October 27, 2004, petitioner filed the present action to recover this difference from the Board.

Reviewing these facts in light of applicable law, the Commissioner can find no basis on which to grant petitioner the relief he seeks. To the extent that petitioner is claiming that the Board should have treated him as an employee for pension purposes during 1986-87

[3] The parties dispute the point at which petitioner became aware of the 1988 Consent Award, with petitioner contending that he only discovered it upon assuming the presidency of the Caldwell-West Caldwell Education Association in 1999 and the Board contending that he knew or should have known about it in 1988 as evidenced by his conceded knowledge of the underlying arbitration proceeding and the plain language of the Consent Award itself, which specifically references petitioner's purchase of pension credit.

[4] Petitioner also appears to have filed a grievance around this time with the respondent Board of Education, as evidenced by the Board's response – denying the grievance for untimely filing – dated December 16, 2002. (Exhibit A, Certification of Daniel Gerardi, Ph.D., Attachment to Board's Brief in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment and in Support of the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment) and 1987-88, but did not:[5] that claim is more properly raised before the TPAF Board, where the relief due petitioner appears to be addressed by a statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:66-6.1) providing a specific remedy for instances where an employee should have been enrolled in the pension system and making contributions to it, but was not. Application of that statute, however – and the awarding of relief under it – lies within the jurisdiction of the TPAF Board, not the Commissioner of Education.[6] [7]

To the extent that petitioner is claiming that the Board violated the above-quoted 1988 Consent Award, jurisdiction over that order – by its own terms – lies with the Public Employment Relations Commission. Even if it did not, however, petitioner clearly had knowledge of the Board's characterization of his service for pension purposes at the latest upon his receipt of the September 8, 2000 letter from the Division of Pensions explaining the basis for denial of his purchase request, so that his October 27, 2004 petition in this matter was filed well beyond the 90 days permitted by rule. (Exhibit J, Certification of Mary J. Hamer, Attachment to Petitioner's Brief in Reply to the Board's Opposition to

---

[5] Petitioner himself characterizes his claim against the Board – accurately, based upon the Petition of Appeal and briefs filed at the OAL – as a recovery of the increased costs he experienced "due to [the Board's] failure to deduct pension contributions from his salary and forward them to the Division of Pensions as it should have done in the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years." (Petitioner's Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Decision at 2-3) Petitioner further describes the central issue in this matter as "whether or not the Board should have taken pension contributions from the petitioner's salary and forwarded them to the Division of Pensions during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years," and argues that "[if] the petitioner was an employee rather than an independent contractor during the period in question as the decision of the [TPAF Board] holds, then respondent should have withheld pension contributions from his salary and forwarded them to the Division of Pensions.The [TPAF Board] is the appropriate agency to decide whether or not petitioner was an employee for pension purposes rather than the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner can and should hold that respondent acted inappropriately by not withholding petitioner's pension contributions during the years in question but should not reconsider the decision made by the [TPAF Board]." (Id. at 6-8)

[6] The Commissioner is uncertain as to why relief under this statute was neither requested nor addressed in petitioner's proceeding before the TPAF Board.

[7] It was for this reason that the question of Commissioner jurisdiction was identified as a threshold issue upon transmittal of the contested case to the OAL; the record does not indicate why the ALJ elected not to address the matter.

Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision) Contrary to petitioner's assertion, he did not need to wait for the TPAF Board to determine that he was, in fact, an employee for pension purposes in order to make a claim that the Board was violating the Consent Award's provision requiring it, "if the Grievant decides to seek pension credit," to "provide assistance to facilitate the back credit purchase." (Consent Award, Term No. 4) Nor does the Commissioner find any circumstance in the record that would warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16, particularly when weighed against the rule's salutary purpose of discouraging dilatoriness and providing a measure of repose in the conduct of school affairs.

Finally, even assuming, arguendo, that the petition was timely filed and petitioner truly did not or could not have become aware of the 1988 Consent Award until 1999, to the extent that the additional cost of his credit purchase was occasioned by that delay, there is not a shred of evidence on record – nor, for that matter, does petitioner expressly claim – that the Board was in any way responsible for such lack of awareness. The Commissioner cannot, therefore, find any basis on which to hold the Board accountable for petitioner's loss and order it to make restitution as a matter of equity.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, the Initial Decision of the OAL is rejected in its entirety, and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[8]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Pasquale Spitaletta, Petitioner, claims that the Caldwell, West Caldwell Board of Education, Respondent, violated N.J.S.A. 18a:66-1, et seq. when Respondent's personnel failed to deduct and forward pension contributions from his pay checks to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund for the school years 1986-1987 and 1987-1988. Respondent had initially argued that Petitioner was not entitled to pension credit for the two periods, since he was then an Independent Contractor. The undersigned heard and decided the case involving the issue of independent contractor vs. employee on June 17, 2004, and concluded from the law and factual testimony that Petitioner was an employee in 1986-1988. Thereafter, Petitioner purchased the service credits for $8,522.68, at the rate based on his age and salary on the date of his initial request to purchase (June 1999). Had Respondent withheld contributions between 1986 and 1988 Petitioner's pension contribution would have been $1,590.00. Petitioner now seeks reimbursement from Respondent of $6,932.68, which is the increased cost for the recent purchase ($8,522.68 – 1,590.00). Respondent contends that Petitioner's claim is time-barred, under both the common law laches doctrine and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), which requires Petitioner to bring this action within 90 days of receipt of notice of a final agency action or order on the matter.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Education Bureau of Controversies & Disputes received a Petitioner's request to appeal on October 26, 2004. The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 6, 2005, for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to B-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. On January 27, 2005 the case was listed with the undersigned. Conferences were held in 2005 on June 2, July 12 and August 12. Petitioner submitted a "Motion for Summary Decision" on June 16, 2005; thereafter on July 6, 2005 Respondent submitted "Respondent's Brief In Opposition To Petitioner's Motion For Summary Judgment and In Support of Respondent's Motion For Summary Judgment" and thereafter on July 11, 2005 Petitioner submitted "Petitioner's Brief In Reply To Respondent's Opposition". All Briefs were supported with Certifications from the parties counsel. A Telephone Settlement Conference was held on July 12, 2005 which was unsuccessful. The parties requested oral arguments oral arguments to fully address all issues to be decided via Summary Decision. The scheduled July 14 and 15, 2005 de novo hearing dates were postponed to prepare for oral arguments on the Summary Decision Motions.

On July 28, 2005, Petitioner's counsel faxed a letter to OAL and Respondent, to advise of an error in the method used by Petitioner to calculate the damages being sought. Petitioner offered to file a formal motion to amend the prior motions. On July 29, 2005, the undersigned held a telephone conference with counsel for the purpose of resolving the issue of the revision to the damages claim. On August 8, 2005 counsel for the school board suggested that oral arguments proceed and that the issue be included in the arguments. Oral arguments were scheduled for August 25, 2005 however counsel for the school board requested a brief adjournment because of a conflict with a trial in Superior Court in Bergen County on the same date. On September 14, 2005 oral arguments were completed and the hearing record was closed. Due to a voluminous caseload, inclusive of a numerous EDS matters, the undersigned requested and was granted two extensions until February 2, 2006 to complete a Summary Decision in this matter.

CASE BACKGROUND

Petitioner is a tenured social worker employed by Respondent Board of Education since 1981. In the spring of 1986 Respondent notified Petitioner that his position would terminate effective June 30, 1986, as part of a reduction in force. Then for the commencement of the 1986 school year Respondent hired Petitioner as a Consultant-Case Manager/Social worker which continued through the 1987-88 school year. Respondent did not withhold pension contributions from Petitioner's salary to forward to the Division of Pensions.

In May 1999, after Petitioner became President of the Caldwell-West Caldwell Education Association he discovered the Consent Award which settled the Association's grievance against Respondent regarding the creation of the Consultant-Case Manger/Social Worker position. The next month, in June 1999, Petitioner sought to purchase pension credits for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years. The Division of Pensions refused Petitioner's request, advising him that his service during the years in question was ineligible for purchase because he was a consultant. Petitioner argued his status as a consultant vs. employee and lack of notice from the Division of Pensions of his right to appeal the decision of ineligibility.

In the fall of 2002, Petitioner again tried to purchase pension credits for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 school years. The Division of Pensions denied Petitioner's request again, based on Respondent's representation that Petitioner was an independent contractor during the period and not an employee. Petitioner appealed that denial and an OAL Initial Decision was issued and adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, which held that Petitioner was an employee during the 1986-88 school years and should be allowed to purchase pension credits for those years.

ISSUES

The two issues in this case are as follows:

(1) Is Petitioner time-barred from bringing this action?

(2) If Petitioner is not time-barred, is Petitioner entitled to reimbursement from Respondent for all or part of the difference between the cost of Petitioner's pension credits when purchased in 2004 versus what the cost would have been in 1986-1987 and 1987-1988, had Respondent properly withheld pension contributions from Petitioner's pay?

MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION

DISCUSSION AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.12(a), the Commissioner of Education shall apply the standard set forth in the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules in deciding Motions for

Summary Decision. In accord with N.J.A.C. 1: 1-12.5(b) of the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, a Motion for Summary Decision shall be rendered:

> [I]f the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 NJ 520 at 541 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court determined that "when the evidence is 'so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,' the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment..." Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) and Contini v. Board of Education of Newark, 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121-122 (App. Div. 1995) (citing Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 NJ 520 (1995), summary decision may be granted in an administrative proceeding if there is no genuine issue of material fact in dispute and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Also, "disputes as to the conclusions to be drawn from the facts, as opposed to the facts themselves, will not defeat a Motion for Summary Judgment. Contini v. Board of Education of Newark, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 196, 215, citing Lima & Sons, Inc. v. Borough of Ramsey, 269 N.J. Super. 469, 478 (App. Div. 1994); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Andrew Phillips, School District of the Borough of Roselle, Union County, Commissioner's Decision No. 129-97, decided March 20, 1997; and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Neal A. Ercolano, Board of Education of Branchburg Township, Somerset County, Commissioner's Decision No. 140-00, decided May 1, 2000. When there is submission of cross-motions for Summary Decision, it may reasonably be inferred that the parties agree that Summary Decision is appropriate in the matter. The Attorneys in the instant case filed and exchanged Motion Briefs and Certifications which fully explored on paper, the issues which had to be addressed in a Summary Decision; and, Counsel also supported their Summary Decision briefs via Oral Arguments. When considering a Motion for Summary Decision, this tribunal must determine whether the pleadings, the admissions and affidavits demonstrate that no genuine issue of material fact exists. In this matter an Initial Decision has been rendered and adopted and Petitioner seeks a determination on an issue which arose because of the outcome or finding in the Initial Decision. Here, the pleadings, discovery and certifications show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact being challenged and a Summary Decision is ripe in for this matter.

In the instant matter, Petitioner claims that the Caldwell, West Caldwell Board of Education, Respondent, violated N.J.S.A. 18a:66-1, et seq. when Respondent's personnel failed to deduct and forward pension contributions from his pay checks to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund for the school years 1986-1987 and 1987-1988. N.J.S.A. 18A:66-1, known as the "Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund Law "sets forth the following definition teacher at 18A:66-2 p.:

> "Teacher" means any regular teacher, special teacher, helping teacher, teacher clerk, principal, vice-principal, supervisor, supervising principal, director, superintendent, city superintendent, assistant city superintendent, county superintendent, State Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner of Education, members of the State Department of Education who are certificated, unclassified professional staff and other members of the teaching or professional staff of any class, public school, high school, normal school, model school, training school, vocational school, truant reformatory school, or parental school, and of any and all classes or schools within the State conducted under the order and superintendence, and wholly or partly at the expense of the State Board of Education, of a duly elected or appointed board of education, board of school directors, or board of trustees of the State or of any school district or normal school district thereof, and any persons under contract or engagement to perform one or more of these functions. It shall also mean any person who serves, while on an approved leave of absence from regular duties as a teacher, as an officer of a local, county or State labor organization which represents, or is affiliated with an organization which represents, teachers as defined in this subsection. No person shall be deemed a teacher within the meaning of this article who is a substitute teacher. In all cases of doubt the board of trustees shall determine whether any person is a teacher as defined in this article.

In regard to membership eligibility, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2.1. Teachers; membership in Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, indicates the following:

> Any individual in the categories specified in section 1 p. of this act, who was a member of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund on December 11, 1975, shall be considered to be in continuous membership in that system.

The Initial Decision concluded that Petitioner was an employee at all times in question and had continuous membership in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. The Decision was upheld and Petitioner has purchased service credits for 1986 through 1988.

Petitioner questions through this appeal whether he is entitled to a reimbursement for the additional money he had to pay, because of the delay in purchase, after his initial request to purchase, when Respondent deemed he was an independent contractor. Respondent's response to Petitioner's request for reimbursement is that Petitioner's claim is time-barred, under both the common law laches doctrine and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), which requires Petitioner to bring this action within 90 days of receipt of notice of a final agency action or order on the matter. Petitioner says this action was brought within ninety (90) days of a final agency action or order in the initial case dated August 6, 2004 and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), which sets forth:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. This rule shall not apply in instances where a specific statute, regulation or court order provides for a period of limitation shorter than 90 days for the filing of a particular type of appeal.

Petitioner is not time-barred, if it is determined that Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund final decision in the previous Spitaletta case, dated August 6, 2004, constitutes the final order referred to in the above rule. The interpretation of the word "subject", in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), refers back to the preceding phrase "agency". There is no law or specific interpretation of "agency" or whether "agency" only refers to the Department of Education, or encompasses sub-agencies of the Department of Education. However, in deciding this matter N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 which supports the "Relaxing of Rules", must be taken into consideration:

> The rules in this chapter shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of the Commissioner in connection with, the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. Where such rules do not reflect a specific > statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in the Commissioner's discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

Respondent's argument that Petitioner is time-barred because he knew or should have known of the 1988 Consent Award between the school board and his teachers' association comes without evidence that the results of the action in 1988, brought by the Teachers' Association was actually or specifically made known to Petitioner; nor is there information on whether the Association disseminated the results of the Consent Award to their membership. However, regardless of whether the content of the Consent Award was disclosed to Petitioner, the facts of the case continue to illustrate that it was Respondent's negligence, lack of knowledge or failure to act in making contributions to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, which caused Petitioner to delay his application from 1988 until 1999. There is no evidence that Petitioner had constructive knowledge of the Consent Award, dating back from 1988, and therefore "laches" should not apply. Further, Respondent contention that a "time-barred" claim exists under both common law laches doctrine and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) should be dismissed because of the timely filing after the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund final decision in the previous Spitaletta case, dated August 6, 2004.

In regard to reimbursement for the increase in purchase price between 1988 and 1999 the underlying issue is one of "restitution" and the reasoning that such reimbursement must serve "to make the injured party whole". This approach is used in cases where a school district acted wrongly, such as a violation of tenure or seniority rights, or a wrongful suspension. The instant case is similar to a wrong action case, in that Petitioner was reclassified due to reduction in the work force, but continued to perform all job responsibilities under the previous job classification and Respondent wrongly stopped his pension deductions for a two year period. Of import in arriving at a decision in this matter is the relevancy of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-63. "Correction of Errors by Trustees":

> If any change or error in records results in a member or beneficiary receiving from the retirement system more or less than he would have been entitled to > receive had the records been correct, then on discovery of the error, the board of trustees shall correct it and, so far as practicable, adjust the payments in such a manner that the actuarial equivalent of the benefit to which he was correctly entitled shall be paid.

It remains a fact that Petitioner should have been deemed an employee of Respondent in 1986-1987 and 1987-1988, and thus had the right to purchase pension credits for those years. It is noted again, that the Consent Award, included Respondent's agreement to help purchase pension credits for Petitioner. In Newark Board of Education v. Ruth Levitt and Esther E. Sasloe, 197 N.J. Super 239 (1984), the BOE was found to have wrongfully classified two teachers as substitutes, for years, and thus denied them all salary, tenure, and pension benefits. A summary of Newark Board of Education v. Ruth Levitt and Esther E. Sasloe, follows:

> Petitioners argued that their assignment by the board as long-term substitute teachers from 1945 through 1961 improperly prevented them from acquiring tenure protection and also denied them proper placement on the teacher's salary guide, longevity increments, leaves of absence and other fringe benefits which should have accrued to them as regular teaching staff members. They sought compensation for the wages, fringe benefits and credits that they would have received had they been properly assigned. The Commissioner issued his decision on October 5, 1977. He adopted the findings of the hearing examiner, found that petitioners were regular full-time teachers during the years in question and ordered the board to compensate them for the back pay and benefits due to them.

In Newark Board of Education v. Ruth Levitt and Esther E. Sasloe the Superior Court, Appellate Division (Decided Nov. 29, 1984), held that the Decision by the State Board of Education affirming the amount found by the Commissioner of Education to have been owing to teachers who had been improperly assigned by the city school board as long-term substitute teachers was supported by sufficient credible evidence and the award of damages due to their improper assignment was justified. In the instant case Petitioner seeks only the reimbursement of the difference in the cost to purchase now, as opposed to what he should have paid in 1988 when he initially made a request to purchase. A determination of the cause in this appeal also yields a rationale that Petitioner should be made whole and that restitution is achieved in the reimbursement to Petitioner of the amount of the increased payment to purchase the service credits.

FINDINGS

All of the facts necessary for the disposition of Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision and Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment are uncontested. The issues presented in this appeal pertain to a legal analysis on laches, time-barred and right to receive full or partial reimbursement of the increased cost to purchase service credits. All concerns regarding a miscalculation of the actual increased cost for the purchase of service credits were resolved and accepted by Respondent after oral arguments, a review of supporting documents and prior to the preparation of a Summary Decision.

Based upon and after my review of the Briefs, listening to oral arguments and drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of Petitioner, I FIND, the following:

Petitioner brought this action within 90 days of receipt of notice of a final agency action or order on the matter, and within ninety (90) days of a final agency action or order in the initial case dated August 6, 2004 and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i);

Petitioner was wrongfully denied his status as an eligible member of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, for two years, due to no fault of Petitioner;

Petitioner's contribution to pension benefit funds were not submitted to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund by Respondent on behalf of Petitioner, due to no fault of Petitioner;

Petitioner was granted the right to purchase service credits from 19986-1988, but did so at an increased cost, due to the error of Respondent;

Petitioner has experienced a financial loss because of the error and has not been made whole;

Petitioner's recoupment of the additional funds, in excess of 1988 amount needed to purchase service credits, would provide Restitution to Petitioner and make him whole.

ORDER

For all the foregoing reasons, it is ORDERED that Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision Be and Is Hereby GRANTED, and that Respondent promptly reimburse Petitioner for the difference of $6,932.68, which is the increased cost for the purchase of services credits from 1988 to the date of the request to purchase in June 1999.

It is further ORDERED that Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment Be and Is Hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TEACHERS' PENSION AND ANNUITY FUND for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TEACHERS' PENSION AND ANNUITY FUND which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR, DIVISION OF PENSIONS, One State Street Square, 50 West State Street, PO Box 295, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0295, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DONNA CARTRETTE,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF UNION, HUDSON COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The Board certified tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and insubordination against Donna Cartrette, a tenured custodian in the Union School District. Respondent was directed via both certified and regular mail to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her, but failed to do so. Because no reply was received in response to the Board's charges, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted. N.J.A.C. 6A:5-3(c).

The Commissioner reviewed the tenure charges certified against the respondent, and the evidence in support of those charges. Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has twice failed to respond to the allegations against her, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constitute excessive absenteeism and insubordination amply warranting dismissal from her tenured custodial position. Summary judgment is granted to the District, and Donna Cartrette is dismissed from her tenured custodial position as of the filing date of this decision.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 163-5/06

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DONNA CARTRETTE,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	DECISION
OF UNION, HUDSON COUNTY.	:

For the Board, Mitzy Galis-Menendez, Esq. (Chasan, Leyner & Lamparello)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 5, 2006 through certification of tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and insubordination by the Board of Education of the City of Union (Board) against Donna Cartrette (respondent), a tenured custodian. Respondent did not reply to the charges when they were initially filed with the Board, and subsequently, the board determined to certify the charges. On May 2, 2006, the Board served respondent, via regular mail and certified mail, return receipt requested, with the Board's resolution, Certificate of Determination, and transmittal letter to the Commissioner, referencing the previously filed and served charges.

Upon receipt of the certified charges on May 5, 2006, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail, to file an Answer to such charges. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent – as did the Board's above-referenced May 2, 2006 communication – that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee.

Neither the regular nor the certified notices from the Commissioner were returned as undeliverable, but no reply was received from respondent.

The Commissioner's review of the certified tenure charges, and the statement of evidence in support of them, indicates that: (1) respondent's absences in the eight years of her employment have been consistently significant and have worsened over the years; (2) such absences have negatively impacted on the district's ability to operate and maintain its buildings; (3) respondent was granted a medical leave expiring on December 27, 2005, and has neither returned to work nor provided notice of her intent to return; and (4) respondent has consistently failed to acknowledge receipt of Board documents regarding her attendance and failed to attend a related meeting with district administrators as directed.

Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has twice failed to respond to the allegations against her, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constitute excessive absenteeism and insubordination amply warranting dismissal from her tenured custodial position.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the Board, and respondent Donna Cartrette is dismissed from her tenured custodial position in the Board's employ as of the filing date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the ALJ's recommended Order denying emergent relief as she concurs with his determination that petitioners have failed to satisfy the requirements necessary for the granting of such extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), most notably: that they will suffer irreparable harm absent the grant of the requested relief; that the legal right underlying their claim is settled; or that a balancing of the equities and interests of the parties inures to their favor.[1]

Accordingly, the instant application for emergent relief is hereby denied. This matter is being returned to the OAL for those proceedings which may be necessary to bring it to conclusion.

BEFORE DONALD J. STEIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 25, 2005, petitioner, C.B. on behalf of her children, R.M.B. and R.B., filed an application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. The application requested that R.M.B. and R.B. be immediately returned to school and their record expunged. The application also requested several additional items to be discussed below.

On May 25, 2005, petitioner, D.E. filed a similar application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. The application also requested that D.E. be immediately returned to school and his record expunged, as well as the additional items to be discussed below.

These matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on the requested emergent relief on May 31, 2006. The case heard in the OAL, Trenton (Hamilton Township) on June 6, 2006, at 9:00 a.m., and the record closed on that date. Before the start of the hearing, the two cases were consolidated.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Some of the facts are undisputed. D.E. and R.M.B. are juniors at Bound Brook High School (High School). R.B. is a sophomore at the same school. On March 17, 2006, an altercation occurred among several Hispanic and African American students at the High School, and one or two white students. The Board suspended D.E., R.B., and R.M.B (the three students), pending an expulsion/suspension hearing scheduled for April 18, 2006. The expulsion hearing was adjourned at the request of Mr. Giles, attorney for D.E., who was seeking additional discovery; and C.B, who was seeking an attorney. The attorneys for the petitioners have requested this emergent application be heard before the Board expulsion hearing. Home instruction has been provided to the students on an eight hour per week basis.

The facts of the altercation are in issue. One statement indicated that the alleged victim and a group of four other Hispanic male students passed R.M.B., R.B., and D.E., and a group of six other students, four black and two white. The victim's friend indicated some members of the other group including R.B. started talking trash to the alleged victim. Then everyone started hitting him. One of the boys knocked the alleged victim to the ground and everyone started kicking him. R.B.'s statement said that he was in the bathroom at 12:30 and when he got outside the fight was done and he only saw a group of people. R.M.B.'s statement was that he and a friend were walking home together and were in front of a group of students. They saw they were going to be a fight so they kept walking. D.E. stated that he and four other boys left the school building together and stopped by a nearby bridge where they hang-out. The alleged victim came down the street with a group of fifteen other Hispanic individuals. The alleged victim and an African American student started a fight. Another Hispanic jumped in, and then one of the white students jumped in. The Hispanic student who jumped in was on top of one of D.E.'s friends. D.E. tried to pull him out of the fight. At that point, D.E. saw a large crowd forming and left. He denied that anyone was trash talking to him.

The Board asserts that R.B., R.M.B., and D.E. were with a group of students (Group A). Another group of students including O.N. and A.N. (Group B), were walking by Group A, when O.N. was struck in the back of his head by J.W. (a member of Group A). Other members of Group A including R.B., R.M.B., and D.E., then punched, picked and stomped by O.N.'s head. When a second member of Group B, A.N., attempted to protect O.N., he was assaulted by members of Group A. The police were called to the scene.

Respondents allege that School Resource Officer (SRO) Sascha Higazi reported to the scene, attended to alleged victims who were Hispanic, and took statements from Hispanic students but not from African American students. The principal was advised by the Bound Brook Police that the incident was gang related and retaliatory and counter-retaliatory actions were anticipated to take place in the Community and the High School on March 20, 2006. On March 20, 2006, before school started, the parents were contacted and asked not to send the children to school for a few days for fear there would be retaliation.

Respondents allege the following procedural deficiencies occurred during the disciplinary process:

1. The short-term suspension without notice or discipline violated the students' right to procedural due process.
2. The Board violated procedural due process by failing to offer a hearing within 21 days, and withheld records and information needed to respond to the charges.
3. The Board's failure to comply with the Department of Education's Student Conduct regulations violated the students' right to procedural due process.
4. The school officials were not authorized to extend the suspensions beyond the second regularly held meeting of the Board without formal action by the Board.
5. The students' rights were violated under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5 by recommending expulsion without ever being suspended or placed in an alternative setting.
6. The students' constitutional right to an education were violated when they were suspended and not provided minimal education services pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2(a) 5 and 7.3(a) 8.
7. The Board violated the students' right to confidentiality and privacy when it disclosed the pupil records to the Bound Brook Police Department.

The Board denies these allegations and argues:

1. The students received notice and an opportunity to be heard prior to the ten day suspension.
2. The students were provided with a Board hearing within thirty days, but the hearing was postponed by the petitioner and attorney for the petitioner.
3. The students were provided with the necessary records for the hearing.

4. His suspension was not extended beyond the second regularly scheduled meeting of the Board. The delay was due to the petitioner and attorney's request for a postponement of the hearing.

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

The standards which must be met by the moving party in an application for emergent relief in a matter concerning a special needs child are embodied in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.7(m)1, N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1, and Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). Emergency relief may only be granted if the judge determines that:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The petitioner must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe test.

Since the school year ends in June 26, 2006, petitioners have not established that the students will suffer irreparable harm. As argued by the respondent, the students are being provided ongoing alternative education, will have the opportunity to take final exams, and receive credit for the 2005-2006 school year. The petitioners have contributed to any potential harm by adjourning the April 18, 2006 hearing and then not rescheduling it pending the adjudication of this matter.

When attempting to satisfy the second and third prongs of the four-part Crowe test, petitioner has a difficult burden. If the law is well settled, it is settled in favor of the Board of Education. Local boards of education are charged with the responsibility of protecting the health, safety, and welfare of their students and ensuring the orderly conduct of the academic process. The actions they take in adopting and enforcing the policies necessary to carry out these responsibilities have a presumption of validity and, in order to prevail, a petitioner must show that the Board acted arbitrarily and outside the scope of its discretionary authority. Thomas v Bd of Ed of Morris Tp., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965); Kopera v West Orange Bd of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

This case involves the enforcement by the school district of clear educational policies. The action of a board of education which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., supra, 60 N.J. Super. at 294. The Board's disciplinary policy authorizes it to suspend or expel a student for conduct such as an assault. Petitioners have not shown that such action was arbitrary and capricious.

In a public school setting, for good cause, including an assault upon another student, a student may be suspended and/or expelled from school, subject to due process requirements, including notice of the charge on which the demand for suspension or expulsion is based; a statement of the factual allegation on which a charge is based; discovery of the name of any person with knowledge of any relevant fact and discovery of any relevant document; and a hearing, during which the student may confront any witness against her. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 to -5 to -5; Tibbs v. Bd. of Ed. of Tp. of Franklin, 59 N.J. 506 (1971). Further, where a school administrator has a reasonable basis for a belief that a student presents a danger to herself or to others or to school property, he may temporarily suspend the student, pending and conditioned upon notice and a hearing before the board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-5.

Since the facts are in issue as to what occurred on March 17, 2006, and the petitioners have not established that the actions of the Board were arbitrary and capricious, the petitioners have not established that they are likely to prevail on the merits of the underlying claim.

Petitioners also attempt to argue that they have not been provided discovery for the Board hearing. It is not disputed that the Board has given them the statements of all witnesses. Petitioners are seeking statements of students who will not be called to testify, citing Tibbs. Petitioner's reliance on Tibbs is misplaced.

Tibbs involved the expulsion of five students for allegedly assaulting two other students. In a per curiam decision, the Appellate Division reversed the expulsions for failing to produce the accusing witnesses for testimony and cross-examination." Tibbs, 114 N.J. Super., at 288. The Supreme Court issued a per curiam decision in the case, affirming the Appellate Division's decision for the reasons expressed in the concurring opinion of Judge Kolovsky. 59 N.J. 506, 507 (1971).

Neither the language of the decisions in Tibbs, nor Judge Kolovsky's concurrence, hold that a student is entitled to a summary of witness testimony in advance of a full Board hearing. Rather, as explicated in Judge Kolovsky's concurrence, Tibbs centered on the due process requirement that "a respondent charged with misconduct in a hearing before a governmental agency be given the opportunity to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses where the decision of the governmental agency will turn on questions of fact." 114 N.J. Super. at 301. While recognizing that the Commissioner had previously held that accused students were entitled to be given at least the names of the witnesses against them and copies of their statements and affidavits, Judge Kolovsky's concurrence articulated the due process requirement that such witnesses appear in person so that, in the absence of an appearance, the witnesses' statements could not be considered or relied on by the board. Id. at 300. In this case, the Board has clearly provided the statements of testifying witnesses, which is more than required by Tibbs. No authority has been produced by petitioners that they are entitled to the statements of witnesses who will not be called to testify.

The petitioners have not proven that the legal right underlying their claim is settled. The due process arguments asserted are not ripe for decision at this time. The initial suspension and the suspension or expulsion hearing are intertwined and cannot be analyzed separately. Petitioner's own action in delaying the expulsion hearing has created the issues now being argued. The Board could decide to reinstate the students, which would render this application moot, or suspend or expel the students in an arbitrary manner. Until a decision is rendered by the Board, it cannot be determined if the actions were arbitrary and capricious, as well as violative of procedural due process.

Petitioners must also show that when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioners will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted. The petitioners may suffer some harm being away from school, but they are still receiving alternate instruction. However, the Board runs the risk of greater harm, especially if the immediate return of the students would escalate violence and retaliation within the school. Therefore, I further FIND that the petitioners have not proven that they would suffer greater harm than respondents.

Since this application only addressed the initial suspension, and the Board has not yet made a final determination, there are no further issues to be addressed.

DECISION AND ORDER

Since N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.7(m)1 and N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1 are written in the conjunctive and all three petitioners have failed to satisfy the four requirements, I CONCLUDE that the petitioners have failed to establish grounds for the granting of emergency relief. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petitions of R.B., R.M.B., and D.E., for emergent relief is DENIED without prejudice.

It is further ORDERED that the Board hearing concerning expulsion or suspension take place as soon as possible.

It is further ORDERED that the remaining claims made by the petitioners are dismissed. There are no other issues remaining once the emergent relief matter is resolved.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) determined that West Essex Board of Education members Colleen Gartland and Carmine Picardo violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (d) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when they met with officers of the West Essex Teachers' Association, without the knowledge of the Board or the Superintendent, to discuss concerns that the Association brought to their attention. After considering the nature of the charge, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure upon Mr. Picardo, and a penalty of suspension from the Board for a period of one month for Ms. Gartland.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, concurred with the Commission's recommendation. The Commissioner thus ordered that Carmine Picardo be censured and Colleen Gartland be suspended from the Board for a period of one month as school officials found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 95-3/06

IN THE MATTER OF COLLEEN GARTLAND	:
AND CARMINE PICARDO,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
WEST ESSEX BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the amended decision[1] of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon Colleen Gartland and Carmine Picardo, members of the West Essex Board of Education, based upon findings of fact and conclusions of law by the Commission that they violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (d) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in the School Ethics Act when they met with officers of the West Essex Teachers' Association, without the knowledge of the Board or the Superintendent, to discuss concerns that the Association brought to their attention. The Commission recommends that Mr. Picardo be censured and Ms. Gartland be suspended from the Board for a period of one month for these violations.

Upon issuance of the amended decision of the Commission, the parties were provided 13 days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on their respective recommended penalties for the Commissioner's consideration. Mr. Picardo did not file any comments. Ms. Gartland's comments were untimely and, thus, cannot be considered herein.[2]

[1] It is noted that the Commission's original decision in this matter, authorized at its February 28, 2006 meeting, was transmitted to the Commissioner and the parties on March 3, 2006. Subsequent to this decision's issuance and prior to the Commissioner's review and issuance of her decision with respect to the imposition of penalty, the Commission received additional information which it was felt might conceivably serve to impact and/or alter its determination and, therefore, it requested return of the file for that body's review and consideration. The decision before the Commissioner here is the Commission's amended decision in this matter, authorized at its March 28, 2006 meeting, which was transmitted to the Commissioner and the parties on May 4, 2006.

[2] The amended decision was mailed to the parties on May 4, 2006. Ms. Gartland's comments, although dated May 16, 2006, were mailed on May 20, 2006 and filed on May 23, 2006, well outside the allotted timeline for their receipt.

Initially, it must be emphasized that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner determines to accept the Commission's recommendation, for the reasons expressed in its decision, that censure of Mr. Picardo and a one month suspension from the Board for Ms. Gartland are the appropriate penalties in this matter. In so determining, the Commissioner is persuaded that, in recommending these penalties for the parties' violations, the Commission fully considered the nature of the offenses and weighed the effects of aggravating and mitigating circumstances. Consequently, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalties in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Carmine Picardo be censured and Colleen Gartland be suspended from the Board for a period of one month, as school officials found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

MICHELE BOTTI and LAURA MELVENEY, Petitioners, v. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF EATONTOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, Respondent.	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY OAL Dkt No. EDU 6701-2003S Agency Ref. No. 332-8/03 STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The above-captioned matter having been brought before the Commissioner of Education upon a Petition of Appeal filed by petitioner Michele Botti and Laura Melveney, and the dispute between Michele Botti and the Eatontown Board of Education having since been settled, petitioner LAURA MELVENEY ("Melveney"), now known as LAURA REVOLINSKY, and the EATONTOWN BOARD OF EDUCATION ("Board") in consideration of the mutual promises contained in this Stipulation, hereby agree to resolve the dispute between them, now pending before this court, subject to the terms and conditions set forth below:

1. For purposes of this agreement, respondent Board of Education of Eatontown, Monmouth County, shall hereinafter be referred to as the Board and petitioner Laura Melveney shall hereinafter be referred to as Melveney.

2. Solely for purposes of settlement, the parties agree that Melveney should have been retained as a full-time elementary school teacher for the 2003-04 school year and thereafter. The Board thus agrees to reinstate Melveney to the position of full-time elementary school teacher, as of the 2003-04 school year.

3. Although Melveney would be entitled to a back pay award of $82,970.00 for the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years, she also had a duty to mitigate her damages. Taking such duty into consideration, the parties have agreed that the Board shall therefore pay to Melveney the gross amount of $18,730.00, subject to standard and ordinary deductions, which represents the annual salary of $40,165.00 she would have earned during the 2003-04 school year (Step BS-5) and the annual salary of $42,805.00 she would have earned during the 2004-05 school year (Step BS-6), less mitigation (monies obtained from other sources) during this time period in the amount of $64,240.00.

4. This award of back pay shall be made to Melveney within thirty (30) days following the execution of this agreement.

5. During the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years, Melveney would have received Board paid health insurance coverage. The Board shall therefore reimburse Melveney for her expenses for securing health insurance coverage for the period from November 1, 2003 through June 30, 2005, and for additional sums that Petitioner paid for dental insurance coverage during this period of time. This sum totals $3,327.26, and consists of the sum of $1,672.06 which she paid in insurance premiums for COBRA coverage for the period November 1, 2003 through June 30, 2004, the sum of $212.00 which she paid for dental insurance coverage for the period November 1, 2003 through June 30, 2004, and the sum of $1,443.20 which she paid in contributions (10%) toward insurance premiums during the period September 1, 2004 through June 30, 2005. No tax deductions shall be taken.

6. This reimbursement for medical/dental coverage shall be made to Melveney within thirty (30) days following the execution of this agreement.

7. The Board has not provided any tax advice to Melveney regarding whether any compensation agreed to in this agreement will be taxable either to the federal government or the State of New Jersey. The Board has also not provided any advice to Melveney regarding pension credit and/or pension contributions for any back pay monies paid to her in connection with this settlement agreement.

8. The parties agree that Melveney shall pay the employee's share of any pension contributions to the Teachers' Pension & Annuity Fund for the period of September 1, 2003 through June 30, 2004 based upon her gross annual salary for the 2003-04 school year of $40,165.00 before any reduction for mitigation of damages, that the Board shall not be liable for the employee's share thereof, that Melveney shall not be liable for the employer's share thereof, that the State will contribute the employer's share of pension contributions if it agrees to do so, and that if the State does not contribute the employer's share of pension contributions, the Board shall contribute the employer's share of such contributions. Pension contributions were made to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund for the period September 1, 2004 through June 30, 2005, pursuant to Melveney's full-time employment with the Ocean Township Board of Education during that period of time.

9. The Board shall re-employ Melveney for the 2006-07 school year as a full-time tenured teaching staff member, in an assignment consistent with her instructional certification as an elementary school teacher (K-8). Her salary and benefits for the 2006-07 school year shall be consistent with that provided to a teaching staff member on Step BS-7 of the salary guide for the 2006-07 school year as set forth in the applicable collective bargaining agreement.

10. As of June 30, 2003, Melveney had accumulated 44.5 sick days. Any sick days to which Melveney is entitled for the 2006-07 school year shall be added to the 44.5 sick days which she had previously accumulated.

11. Melveney shall receive full seniority credit in the elementary category for the 2003-04 and 2004-05 school years, as if she had been employed on a full-time basis by the Board during those two (2) school years. Thus, as of the start of the 2006-07 school year, Melveney shall have 5 years 5 months of seniority in the elementary category.

12. Melveney shall withdraw the Petition of Appeal presently pending before the Office of Administrative Law and Commissioner of Education, with prejudice, when her counsel receives notice and documentation that the Board has approved the terms and conditions of this settlement.

13. This Settlement Agreement resolves any and all claims by Melveney arising from the Board's termination of her employment, which took effect June 30, 2003, and regarding Melveney's allegation that the Board acted unlawfully in terminating her employment and/or in failing to retain petitioner in a full-time position.

14. This Agreement contains all the terms of the parties' agreement and cannot be modified or changed unless all parties agree to do so in writing. In the event, however, that this Agreement requires some modification to facilitate its acceptance by the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund and its approval by the Commissioner of Education, the parties agree to make such modification in a timely fashion in order to effectuate the intent of the parties as to this agreement.

15. The terms of this Agreement are confidential, and they are not to be discussed by the parties hereto, except with their respective attorneys, financial advisors and the Board's employees on a need to know basis or as otherwise required by law.

16. The parties agree that they have been represented by counsel and enter into this Agreement voluntarily. Neither party admits any wrongdoing whatsoever by executing this document.

17. The parties agree that neither party is responsible for the payment of the other party's attorney's fees in connection with this matter.

18. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

19. Upon approval by the Board and full execution of the Agreement, the Board, agrees to submit this Agreement and a copy of the Board's resolution to the Honorable Donald J. Stein, ALJ within seven (7) days of the signing of this Agreement.
