Trenton, NJ – Lt. Governor Kim Guadagno, Chair of the Red Tape Review Group, today issued the following statement after the first public meeting of the bipartisan Red Tape Review, where public input and testimony was received on the topic of Reforming the Administrative Rulemaking Process in New Jersey:

"Today's meeting was another positive step in our bipartisan efforts to reform the regulatory structure in the Garden State, cut through the layers of red tape affecting so many businesses, and make the process as transparent to the public as possible. I look forward to continuing our work in upcoming public forums, and with leaders of both parties as we make recommendations on changes to the rule making process. I know that by bringing common sense principles to regulatory and rulemaking processes, we can get New Jersey back on the road to having a business-friendly, job-producing environment."
