Mr. Little, having received a majority of the votes cast, was declared by the President pro tempore, duly elected President of the Senate for the present session, and was conducted to the chair by Messrs. Anderson and Horner.

On taking the chair the President addressed the Senate as follows:

SENATORS:—You will permit me to express to you my acknowledgments for the honor you have conferred upon me in selecting me to preside over your deliberations. For your confidenee I owe, and will repay you with my best ability in discharging the duties of this appointment. One thing is in my power to promise, and I do promise you that I will discharge the duties fairly and conscientiously. It is not inappropriate, I trust, to make mention of one or two matters which, at the threshold of this session, it may be well for us, as well as for our constituencies to recognize, conducive alike to our mutual advantage and the interest of the State.

One is, that our sessions are unnecessarily protracted. The framers of our Constitution contemplated a session of forty days. For several years we have considerably more than doubled that period. Doubtless the matters of legislation have multiplied beyond what could have been anticipated, still not in any fair proportion to the time now consumed. It is but just to say, however, that our constituencies seeking legislation are not blameless that business is not fairly begun until the lapse of a month. The bills are withheld, and, when the session approaches its close, laws are hastily enacted, and necessarily so, and in not a few cases have, in my short experience here, been called upon to face laws which I have assisted to pass, of which I was heartily ashamed. It is impossible for any one, however watchful, to scan with that care that should mark all legislation, law after law thrown before his mind in the rush of the closing days of the session. Let us hope that persons wanting legislation will give us more time by introducing their business early, and we will give them each better laws.

Another matter: It needs not to be told that the burdens of taxation are felt more and more heavily every day. It is not in our power to lift these burdens. It will be a long time, doubtless, before we can boast again of our State being free from debt; but we can do very much, if we set seriously and earnestly about it, towards mitigating them. We ourselves could do something in that direction by a short session. We could in many ways diminish the expenses of our session. One example would, perhaps, more than any other beside, enforce the necessity of a greater economy. The public institutions, supported and assisted from the Treasury, should be required to practice rigid economy, and held to a strict accountability. Appropriations should only be made upon the most assured necessity; and the gentlemen who manage our institutions, whether of benevolent or otherwise, should co-operate with us in a determined effort to reduce our State expenses to as low a point as it is practical, consistent with the humane and other objects to be attained.

I beg to assure you that these matters are not referred to by way of complaint, but only for correction; not with any partisan aim, but with the loftier view of earning from all the people of the State, the proud plaudit that we have done our duty.

I again, Senators, have to thank you with my whole heart, for your kindness to me.

The Senate then proceeded to the choice of a Secretary.

A message was received from the Governor, by the hands of his private Secretary, announcing his reasons for vetoing Senate Joint Resolution, No. 1, as follows:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, Feb'y 25, 1868.

To the Honorable the Senate of the State of New Jersey:

MR. PRESIDENT:—I herewith beg leave respectfully to return, without my approval, Senate Joint Resolution number one, entitled a "Joint Resolution withdrawing the consent of this State to the proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the United States entitled 'Article Fourteen,' and rescinding the Joint Resolution approved September eleventh, Anno Domini, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, whereby it was resolved that said proposed Amendment was ratified by the Legislature of this State."

The amendment in question, being article fourteenth among the amendments to the Constitution of the United States, was on the thirteenth day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, by a vote of two-thirds of both Houses of Congress, duly proposed for adoption. On the sixteenth of June, in the same year, it was submitted by the Secretary of State of the United States to the action of the State of New Jersey, and on the eleventh of September, in the same year, was ratified by the Legislature of this State. Such ratification, authenticated in due form, was made known to the Government of the United States, and the evidence thereof filed in the office of the Secretary of State, in obedience to the law which requires the decision of the several Legislatures upon this subject to be communicated to the State Department of the United States, and in conformity with the express terms of the official communication of the Secretary of State of the United States, which accompanied it when sent to the Governor of New Jersey to be laid before the Legislature for its action. Of the official reception of this ratification the authorities of the State of New Jersey were officially informed.

I cannot approve the Joint Resolution by which it is now attempted to withdraw or rescind the ratification so made, because,—

1. I deem that such a resolution, if finally adopted, would be of no validity or effect. The only authority by virtue of which the Legislature can take legitimate action upon the subject of amendments to the Constitution of the United States, is contained in the fifth article of that instrument. By that article, the State action is limited to the two cases therein specifically named. One is the application by the Legislature to Congress to call a convention for proposing amendments, and the other is, when amendments are by Congress proposed to the Legislature. In the latter case, the action of the Legislature can be based only on the proposal then existing and pending before them. When such proposal is accepted and approved, the amendment ratified and returned to the General Government by which it was submitted, the transaction is completed, the decision of the State has been rendered, and the power of the Legislature over the subject is spent. No further action can be taken until the subject is again submitted by Congress, with whom the power to make such submission is exclusively lodged. An omission or failure to ratify by the Legislature of one year, or within any specified time, would not prevent such ratification at a subsequent time; all such legislative cognizance of the subject being dependent upon and continuing with the pendency of the proposal itself.

But with the acceptance of the proposal, and its official and formal return to the authorities, from whom alone it could come, that cognizance must of necessity end. Any other construction is believed to be without support from the Constitution itself, as well as opposed to the general analogies of law.

It must be remembered that while a State has the clear and undoubted right to repeal and rescind its own laws, subject to its contracts, yet that in all its relations to the General Government, its actions are conclusive and final. If a State part with a portion of its soil to the General Government, it cannot recover its title, even under the doctrine of eminent domain. If the Legislature appoint a Senator for the constitutional term, no matter how faithless he may be to the interests of the State, or how wantonly he may disregard the sentiments of her people, the Legislature cannot withdraw the appointment and trust.

An approval or ratification of an amendment to the national Constitution by the Legislature of a State cannot be regarded as experimental or conditional, unless declared to be such when made. When solemnly and unqualifiedly done, it is of the nature and effect of a contract, which cannot be rescinded or changed at the mere will of the State by which it was made.

The Legislature acted on the amendment, under the provisions of the Constitution of the United States; that Constitution fixes no limit of time during which the assent of the requisite number of Legislatures shall be given. By their ratification, the Legislature of New Jersey agreed that the amendment should be a part of the Constitution of the United States, whenever the Legislatures of a sufficient number of States had added their assent to that of New Jersey, to make the whole number of assenting Legislatures equal to three-fourths of the States. The ratifieation of New Jersey, made under the provisions of the Constitution, was without condition or limit of time within which the Legislatures of the other States, necessary to make the requisite number, should signify their assent. Her action so taken and published, enters into and becomes part of the causes and considerations by which the action of other States in the premises, is influenced and determined, and she cannot, by subsequent action, fix any new limit or condition to the contract into which she has duly entered, nor withdraw her assent while the conditions upon which it was given remain unchanged and unbroken.

2. If any doubt can exist as to the power of the Legislature to withdraw its approval of such amendment before it has been ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, it is nowhere supposed that such approval could be afterwards withdrawn. This ratification, by three-fourths of the States, must be deemed already to have been made, unless the Legislature shall assume to decide that when more than one-fourth of the States have, by rebellion and war, withdrawn from their duties and functions as States, and rendered constitutional amendments essential to the welfare of the nation, such States can by their action, prevent the adoption of those amendments, and thus occasion, indirectly and partially, the results which rebellion and war were waged more openly and thoroughly to produce. Of the States that have maintained their fidelity to the Union, and their constitutional relations to each other and the General Government, more than three-fourths have ratified the amendment, and I cannot deem it open to doubt that their action is sufficient and conclusive. If open to doubt it is not to be decided by the Legislatures of the States, and should not be assumed by this Legislature to be within its province to determine.

3. But aside from the absence of any proper, legal or constitutional power possessed by the Legislature, I am constrained to withhold my approval from this Joint Resolution, because, I deem it repugnant to the convictions of the majority of the people, and of the voters of the State. In the general election that followed the ratification of the Amendment in New Jersey, the fact that such ratification was approved by the voters of the State, was abundantly shown. Since then, it has not been considered or canvassed by the people, and no reference was to had to it in the late election, at which the present Legislature was chosen.

4. Another, and the remaining reason for withholding my approval, is because I deem the amendment a wise one, and in a high degree important to the welfare of the nation. Its provisions are eminently just, and fitted to promote the great objects which the Constitution was formed and intended to secure.

Its first section defines and settles the hitherto disputed question of citizenship, by declaring all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, to be citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside, and as such, entitled to the equal benefit of the laws. It provides that no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; and that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, or deny any person within its jurisdiction, the equal protection of the laws.

The second section of the amendment fixes the basis of representation in Congress.

Without this section, the political power and representation in Congress of the rebellious States would be largely increased as a consequence of the rebellion, while at the same time the population continued the same. The insurrectionary States would elect members of the House of Representatives upon the whole number instead of three-fifths of their colored population, and in this way possess advantages which they have not heretofore enjoyed. It is against the plainest dictates of wisdom and right to make such a discrimination against the people of the States who have been faithful to the Union, and in favor of those who have so lately waged war to destroy it. It cannot be supposed that the people of this State are in favor of such a distinction; rewarding treason by increasing the political power of those who have committed it, entrusting in an enlarged and unprecedented manner the great interests of the nation, its public credit and well-being, to the decision of representatives whose recent efforts and wishes have been directed to the ruin of both.

The third section of the amendment disqualifies from holding political office certain classes of persons who, having taken oaths to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have afterwards engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof, thus adding perjury to treason. It confers, however, upon Congress the power to remove such disability.

The fourth section provides against the possible validity or legality of debts, obligations or claims incurred in aid of the rebellion, and against the possible questioning of the validity of the public debt incurred in suppressing it.

These are the provisions of the amendment which it is now proposed, if possible, to annul. They need no argument to illustrate their wisdom and justice. The simple statement of them is irresistible by the patriotic judgment, and their ratification has received the approval of the people. The amendment was formally and solemnly ratified upon the part of the Legislature of this State, and thereby, to the extent of its power, made a part of the Constitution of the United States.

Presuming that the object of this Joint Resolution is therein expressed, and my objections being to that object, and to the claim of power to accomplish it, I do not think it necessary or proper to refer to the assumed reasons for the passage of the resolution which are alleged in the preamble which accompanies it.

Although always regretting to differ in opinion from the Legislature, yet, believing that the Joint Resolution now presented would, if approved, be inoperative and vain, in violation of the plighted faith of the State, injurious to the common good, and repugnant to the wishes of the people we represent, I am constrained to return the same to you with my objections as above.

Respectfully,

Under the direction of the President, the Secretary carried the same to the House of Assembly, and informed them that the Senate had passed the same without amendment.

The following protest was laid before the Senate by Mr. Hays, and upon motion was ordered to be put upon the Journal of the Senate:

Mr. Hays presented the protest of the Republican members of the Senate against the passage of the resolution rescinding and withdrawing the ratification on the part of this State, of the 14th article of amendment to the Federal Constitution, as follows:

The undersigned, members of the Senate of New Jersey, make this their protest against the passage of a certain resolution entitled "Joint Resolution withdrawing the consent of this State to the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, entitled Article Fourteen, and rescinding the Joint Resolution approved September 11th, Anno Domini, 1866," whereby it was resolved that said proposed amendment was ratified by the Legislature of this State, and request that said protest be entered upon the Journal of the Senate.

They so protest for the following reasons:

First. Because the ratification of an amendment to the Constitution is an act of such a nature that it cannot be withdrawn. The Constitution is no compact between States, but a form of civil government ordained and established by the whole people of the United States. And this being so, amendments, whether of addition or alteration, are no more compacts than the instrument of which they become part. They are each special expressions of the will of the people, who thus in the way they themselves appointed, ordain changes in the form of civil government which they, and not the States, originally established. These amendments might, constitutionally, were such mode of ratification enacted by law, be ratified by conventions in the several States, elected solely for the purpose of considering them. The Legislature acts, for this purpose, as a convention. It conveys the will of the people as to the proposed amendment. And having conveyed it, and ratified the amendment, all power over the subject is exhausted. Whatever the fate of the proposed amendment, the ratification cannot be withdrawn. The Constitution provides no mode of withdrawal, and it is only because of the Constitution and the action of Congress under it, that a Legislature has any power over the subject. A subsequent Legislature can have no more power to withdraw a ratification than a subsequent convention would, had the laws of Congress provided for ratifying by a convention, and such a ratification been given. And it seems too plain for dispute that there would be no convention elected to reconsider a ratification made by another previously legally assembled.

Second. Because it follows from this view of the matter, and from the fact that neither the Constitution nor the laws of the United States provide anytime within which ratification shall be made, that the assent to the amendment given by the people of New Jersey through their Legislature, remains operative so far as they are concerned, and whenever the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States also ratify it, article fourteen will become a part of the Constitution, however long the Legislatures of other States choose to delay their action.

Third. Because the States whose people have lately been in rebellion have had no Legislatures organized and having lawful authority according to the Constitution of the United States, since the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one; an oath or affirmation to support that Constitution being required by article six thereof, as a qualification to holding their office, of all members of State Legislatures, and executive and judicial officers; and the members of the Legislatures of the States above mentioned, as also their executive and judicial officers, having not only refused to take such oath, but having all actually sworn allegiance to a constitution and government traitorous to that of the United States. Hence the restoration of peace found those States revolutionized, and without any civil officer or civil government which, under the Constitution, could be recognized. Nor have any such yet been framed or elected, since they must owe their legal existence to the action of Congress carrying out the constitutional duty of guaranteeing to all the States a republican form of government, and these States, so far, have not conformed to that action. These States have, therefore, no Legislatures authorized to ratify the amendments to the Constitution; whence the consequence follows either that the amendment ratified by New Jersey, having been likewise ratified by three-fourths of those States having Legislatures competent to ratify, is now a part of the Constitution of the United States, or that the decision of the question whether it shall be part thereof, must wait till the States lately overthrown by rebellion shall be constitutionally restored; during which period, at all events, a ratification given is beyond withdrawal.

Fourth. The doctrine that a State may withdraw such a ratification is the doctrine of secession. The Legislatures of the States lately overthrown by rebellion asserted their right to rescind their ratifications of the Constitution, and did formally rescind them. But the civil war which eusued decided forever the truth of the doctrine asserted in the first section of this protest, that the Constitution was no treaty between States, but an indissoluble government; that the Legislatures, so far as regards ratifying constitutional amendments, are but machinery through which the will of the people is legally expressed, and that once expressed, it cannot be reconsidered or withdrawn.

Fifth. We further protest, because whatever changes in legislative majorities may have lately occurred, and whatever the reasons of those changes, it cannot be truthfully averred that the people of New Jersey have changed their opinions on either of the sections of the proposed article fourteen of the Constitution. They thought when it was ratified and think still, that all free persons born or naturalized in any State are citizens thereof, and that no State should have the right to pass laws denying to any free person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of its laws. They thought and think still that the vote of a freeman in New Jersey should be equally influential with that of one in any other State, and that a people whose rebellion was overcome, should not gain power in the Congress of the Union, greater than that they possessed before they rebelled; that, having outraged every right and broken every obligation to retain four millions of men in bondage, they should not gain political influence from the freedom they opposed, and which, when established, they refused to respect. They thought and they still think, that while rebels might be suffered to go unpunished, those who were actually perjured should not be permitted to hold office till good behavior redeemed their characters; they thought and still think that debts incurred to save the nation should never be impugned, while debts incurred to destroy it should never be paid. So believing, we protest in the name of the people of New Jersey, against rescinding the ratification through which these provisions are proposed to be made part of the Constitution, because, in our judgment not to pass them would be permitting reward to treason.

Sixth. The preamble to the resolution of rescision invites remark and reply, but its length forbids. It would be out of place here to answer seriatim, the strange charges and doctrines with which the resolution of withdrawing ratification is prefaced. We content ourselves with saying that said preamble is untrue, and unworthy even of the office it performs. And we protest against it, not only because of the many falsities it contains, but because it is full of disrespect to the Congress of the United States, to the Legislatures and people of such States as have ratified said amendment, and to the people of New Jersey, who, at the elections immediately after their own ratification, solemnly approved it. And legislative bodies which respect themselves, will avoid exhibiting disrespect to others.

For which reasons, among many others, we earnestly protest against said preamble and resolution.

G. T. COBB, SAMUEL PLUMMER,
A. G. RICHEY, GEORGE D. HORNER,
EDWARD BETTLE, D. S. BLACKMAN,
JAMES L. HAYS, W. WARRICK,
AMOS CLARK, JR.

On motion of Mr. Bettle, the protest was ordered to be spread on the Journal of the Senate.

The following message was received from the Governor, returning to the Senate, Senate bill No. 220 with his objections, as follows:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, April 6th, 1868.

To the Honorable Senate of New Jersey:

MR. PRESIDENT:—Being unwilling to approve of Senate bill No. 220, entitled "An act to incorporate the New Jersey Detective Agency," I herewith return the same to the House in which it originated, with my objection, as follows, viz:

By the first section of the bill, six private citizens and their successors are created into a corporation to continue for fifty years under the name of "The New Jersey Detective Agency," with power to associate with themselves, as members of the incorporation, as many and such other persons as they or a majority of them may at any time designate without restriction of age, sex, color, citizenship or other personal or political qualification.

By the third section of this bill, every such member of said incorporation, without qualification or restriction any kind, is invested with all the powers of constables and policemen, in all the counties, cities, townships and wards of the whole State.

Thus the whole police and constabulary system of the State is in effect committed, for fifty years, to the charge of these six private incorporators and their successors, and those they may choose to associate with them, and that, without limit, restriction, oath, security, check, or safeguard of any kind. Under the Constitution and laws of this State, as they now stand, the constables of the several counties, limited in number by the number and requirements of the population, are elected annually by all the votes of the various townships and wards for which they are respectively chosen; when so elected in accordance with the popular spirit of our laws, these officers are required, before any of the rights of the people are committed to their charge, to qualify by taking binding oaths, and entering into bonds with proper security for the legal and faithful performance of their duty.

They are moreover directly responsible to the various courts of the State, whose precepts they execute, and whose officers they are.

But by the effect of this bill, it is sought to establish a body of constables and policemen, who, instead of being limited to the wants of the community, are wholly unlimited in number; who, instead of being restricted to qualified citizens, are without restriction of age, sex, color or other qualification; who, instead of being confined each to his own bailiwick, are invested with power over the whole State and in every portion thereof; who, instead of being elected annually by the people of their respective districts, are appointed by a private corporation; who, instead of exercising their official powers under the solemn sanction of an oath and the wholesome check of pecuniary liability, are neither required to take any oath or give any bonds, and who, instead of being responsible annually to the people with whom they live and among whom their powers are exercised, and to the courts whose officers they are, may hold their offices for fifty years if they shall live so long, and are directly responsible to no one.

For these reasons I am not able to approve of this bill. I need not say that the provisions to which I have referred are at variance with the spirit of the Constitution and laws: and assured that its scope and effect were not understood by the Legislature when it received its assent, I return it for further consideration.

Respectfully,

MARCUS L. WARD.

WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., April 11, 1868.

Hon. H. S. Little, President of New Jersey Senate:

DEAR SIR:—I herewith return to the Senate the Joint Resolutions forwarded to me, to be presented to the House of Representatives, with a copy of the Congressional Globe setting forth the proceedings thereon had, from which it will be seen that the House refuse to receive them or even to have them read.

Your obedient servant,

CHAS. HAIGHT.

On motion of Mr. Winfield, the proceedings as reported in the Globe were read.

Mr. Bettle moved that the communication from Hon. Chas. Haight lie upon the table.

Upon which the yeas and nays were called with the following result:

In the affirmative, were

Messrs. Bettle, Blackman, Clark, Cobb, Hays, Horner, Richey, Warrick—8.

In the negative, were

Messrs. Anderson, Bowne, Dater, Edsall, Gaskill, Hopper, Little (President), Rice, Robins, Wildrick, Winfield—11.

So said motion was not agreed to.

Mr. Winfield moved the adoption of the following concurrent resolutions:

WHEREAS, a communication has been received from the Hon. Charles Haight, one of the Representatives from this State in the House of Representatives, stating that he had presented to that body Joint Resolution No. 1, as requested by the Legislature of New Jersey, and that they had been returned to him by the Speaker of the said House of Representatives before the reading of the same was concluded, under the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the Resolutions of the Legislature of New Jersey purporting to withdraw 'the assent of the said State to the Constitutional Amendment, known as the Fourteenth Article,' be returned by the Speaker of the House to the gentleman who presented it, for the reason that the same is disrespectful to the House, and scandalous in character, and that its title only shall be referred to in the journal and in the Congressional Globe."

Be it resolved by the Senate, the House of Assembly concurring,

That, the return of the Joint Resolutions of the Legislature, withdrawing the assent of this State to the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States, entitled Article Fourteen, to the Representative who presented the same, by virtue of the resolution of the House to that effect, and the passage of the said resolution, pronouncing the Joint Resolutions of New Jersey "disrespectful to the House and scandalous in character" when only a portion of the paper had been read, was a violation of the national and constitutional rights of the people of this State, oppressive, arrogant and imperious,

That the manner in which the said Joint Resolutions were received, demonstrates the wholesome truths contained in them. It confirms the statement that "the origin and objects of the said proposed amendments were unseemly and unjust, that the necessary result of its adoption must be the disturbance of the harmony if not the destruction of our system of government;" that the object of Congress was to absorb to itself all executive, judicial and legislative power, necessary to secure to itself immunity for the unconstitutional acts it had already committed, and those it had since inflicted on a too patient people.

Resolved, That if it be true as stated by the House of Representatives, that the Joint Resolutions sent to them by this Legislature were "disrespectful to the House and scandalous in character," they were only disrespectful to the House inasmuch as they recited its acts, and scandalous only because they recited the scandalous proceeding of Congress.

Resolved, That the order made "that the title of the resolutions should only be referred to in the journal and Congressional Globe," after a portion of the resolutions had been read, made the record untruthful and unfaithful. It recorded not what transpired, but what the prevailing faction desired to be recorded. It was an effort to close the ears of the people at large, as they had closed their own to a fair and constitutional statement of grievances; to a recital of their own actings and doings, by demolishing the record and making it only a partial witness of their proceedings.

Resolved, That the statement made by the mover of the resolution, on the floor of the House of Representatives, that it was done "as a rebuke to a disloyal Legislature," should have been sufficient to have presented any Representative from this State from voting for said resolution. That we, on the part of the Legislature of New Jersey, and all the people of the State, deny the truth of the statement that the Legislature is disloyal or ever has been; but, pointing proudly to the record for the evidence of our past devotion to the government of our fathers, and constitutional liberty, we solemnly appeal to the people of this State to maintain unabridged the sacred rights of freedom of speech and petition, so grossly violated by the action of the House in the presentation of these resolutions; and to that end we call on them so to speak at the polls, that the House of Representatives will be obliged to hear, be they never so unwilling, and so to record the protest of New Jersey against the unconstitutional acts of the present Congress, that no resolve of the House of Representatives can mar the record.

Mr. Bettle offered a substitute, that the Legislature of New Jersey cordially approve of the manner in which they had received the resolutions from New Jersey withdrawing the assent of the State to the 14th article, &c. Lost 1 to 11.

Mr. Hays offered an additional resolution, that a committee be appointed to inquire into the condition of the arms, ordnance and munitions of war at the State Arsenal, &c. Ruled out of order.

Mr. Plummer inquired whether there was any politics in this?

Mr. Hopper said it was simply a recognition of that just right everybody had to present a petition to Congress and have it read; a right for which John Quincy Adams contended twenty years ago, and which everybody agreed in. He regretted to find the gentleman from Camden, at this day opposing this right of petition.

After some remarks by Mr. Bettle, Mr. Hays offered a resolution to send a copy to the President, to encourage him in his efforts against a loyal Congress.

Mr. Winfield moved to amend by inserting before the word loyal, only three letters, "dis"—making it "disloyal."

This was carried, 16 to 3.

The resolutions were then adopted, 11 to 9.

Messrs. Bettle, Plummer and others attempted to prevent the passage of the resolutions by a little fillibustering.

Mr. Bettle offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Senate do cordially approve the action of the House of Representatives at Washington, in refusing to permit the reading and publication in the journal of said House, of the Joint Resolutions passed by the Legislature of this State, which has for their object an attempt to rescind a former binding ratification and assent on the part of this State to the 14th Constitutional amendment.

Upon which the yeas and nays were called with the following result:

In the affirmative, were

Messrs. Bettle, Blackman, Clark, Cobb, Hays, Horner, Plummer, Richey, Warrick—9.

In the negative, were

Messrs. Anderson, Bowne, Dater, Edsall, Gaskill, Hopper, Little (President), Rice, Robins, Wildrick, Winfield —11.

So said resolution was not agreed to.

Mr. Hays offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his Excellency the President of the United States, as a marked token of their respect and sympathy with him in his unflinching antagonism to a loyal Congress.

Mr. Winfield moved that the word "dis" be inserted before the word loyal,

Which motion was agreed to.

Upon the question as to agreeing to the resolution offered by Mr. Hays, the yeas and nays were called with the following result:

In the affirmative, were

Messrs. Bettle, Blackman, Clark, Cobb, Hays, Horner, Plummer, Richey, Warrick—9.

In the negative, were

Messrs. Anderson, Bowne, Dater, Edsall, Gaskill, Hopper, Little (President), Rice, Robins, Wildrick, Winfield—11.

So said resolution was not agreed to.

Upon the question as to agreeing to the concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Winfield, the yeas and nays were called with the following result:

In the affirmative, were

Messrs. Anderson, Bowne, Dater, Edsall, Gaskill, Hopper, Little (President), Rice, Robins, Wildrick, Winfield—11.

In the negative, were

Messrs. Bettle, Blackman, Clark, Cobb, Hays, Horner, Plummer, Richey, Warrick—9.

So said resolutions were adopted.

On motion of Mr. Robins, the Senate then adjourned.
