IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DAWN A. LEWIS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
EAST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent – a tenured special education teacher in the district – based upon her arrest for DWI and indictment for alleged unlawful possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in April of 2009. Respondent subsequently was admitted into a pre-trial intervention (PTI) program regarding the charge of possession of a CDS, third degree. The petitioning Board sought dismissal of respondent from her tenured teaching position. Respondent contended that because the incident at issue occurred away from the school and out of the district, the penalty of dismissal is unnecessary and unwarranted.

The ALJ found that: it is uncontested that respondent was driving while intoxicated and that she was in possession of a CDS; the fact that possession of the CDS occurred off school premises has no bearing on the determination that the behavior underlying respondent's arrest constituted conduct unbecoming; the petitioning Board had sustained its burden of proving that the respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher; and respondent's entry into a PTI program does not negate the fact that she engaged in unbecoming conduct sufficiently flagrant to warrant dismissal. The ALJ determined that the nature and severity of the offense require that respondent be dismissed from her tenured teaching position.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the Commissioner directed that respondent be dismissed from her tenured position. A copy of this decision has been transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action as that body deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DAWN A. LEWIS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent requested and was granted an extension of time within which to file exceptions to the Initial Decision. Such exceptions and the District's reply thereto were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Respondent excepts solely to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) recommendation of a penalty of termination of employment in this matter, maintaining that such a sanction is unwarranted because: 1) the incident at issue took place outside of the school and the district where respondent was employed; 2) respondent has been employed by the District since September 1996 and there is no evidence of any prior blemish on her record prior to the incident at issue here; and 3) respondent has accepted responsibility for her actions and the interests of justice dictate that she deserves a second chance. (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-3)

Upon his reasoned review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge, for the reasons comprehensively presented in her decision, that the District has established its charge of unbecoming conduct/other just cause against respondent and – finding respondent's arguments to the contrary unpersuasive – that removal from her tenured position is the appropriate penalty here.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby terminated from her position with the School District of the City of East Orange. This matter will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

On or about August 5, 2009, respondent Dawn A. Lewis was served with a copy of the Sworn Tenure Charges and Sworn Statement of Evidence filed against her by East Orange School District superintendent of schools Dr. Clarence Hoover. The charges included unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause. Respondent filed a response under oath to the tenure charges on or about August 20, 2009. On or about September 1, 2009, respondent was suspended from her teaching duties with pay. On September 8, 2009, the Board certified the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education and notified respondent of same. In addition, on or about September 8, 2009, respondent was suspended without pay concurrently with the Board's certification of the tenure charges to the Commissioner. On or about September 30, 2009, the Commissioner transmitted the tenure charges to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. A pre-hearing telephone conference was held on October 6, 2009, during which discovery issues were discussed. The matter was scheduled for a hearing on December 17, 2009, and January 11, 13 and 14, 2010. The December 17 date was adjourned at the request of the District because its witnesses were not available. An additional day of hearing was scheduled for January 20, 2010. The matter was heard on January 11 and 13; the January 14 date was adjourned at the request of the respondent; and the case was concluded on January 20, 2010. At the close of testimony and after oral summations, I allowed the parties to submit citations of cases that would be applicable to the issue of penalty. The respondent submitted her case citations on February 2 and the petitioner responded on February 5, 2010.

ISSUE

The issue in this case is whether the respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member or other just cause warranting dismissal and revocation of tenure or a reduction in compensation as per N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts were stipulated by the parties:

1. Respondent holds a B.A. in Speech Communication from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

2. Respondent holds an M.A. in Media Management.

3. Respondent holds an M.A. in Special Education from New York University in New York, New York.

4. Respondent holds certificates in the following areas: Substitute Teacher, Teacher of the Handicapped, Supervisor of Instruction and School Administrator.

5. Respondent began her employment in the East Orange School District on or about September 1, 1996, as a teacher.

6. Respondent became a tenured employee of the East Orange Board of Education on or about September 1, 1999.

7. Respondent is currently a tenured Special Education and Life Skills teacher, assigned to the East Orange Campus High School.

The following facts were not stipulated to by the parties. However, the respondent did not dispute the validity of these facts at the hearing:

1. Police Officer Jason Brooks, who is employed by the Union Township Police Department, was called to the scene of a one-car accident on April 4, 2009, at 1:09 a.m. to investigate. He saw a Mercedes sport utility truck blocking Morris Avenue near Kean University. The car had hit a utility pole.

2. He interviewed the driver, who was Dawn A. Lewis. She claimed that she had been cut off by another vehicle, but she could not describe the other car, nor did she know the traffic lane that she had been in prior to the accident.

3. In speaking with Ms. Lewis, Officer Brooks noted that her demeanor was vague, she had alcohol on her breath, and her eyes were watery.[1] She had trouble finding the credentials for the car. He observed that her movements were off and she had trouble with the balance and repetition tests that he administered at the scene.

[1] These conditions were confirmed by Sgt. Mark Martin, Officer Brooks' supervisor, who was at the scene of the accident and who described Ms. Lewis as being uncooperative.

4. As a result of his observations, he believed that he had probable cause to arrest Ms. Lewis. Therefore, he put her in handcuffs and placed her in the rear of his patrol car.

5. During the ride to headquarters, he heard Ms. Lewis fidgeting in the back seat and heard things falling. On several occasions he told her to sit still.

6. When they arrived at headquarters and Ms. Lewis was removed from the police car, he saw coins, lipstick and a tiny plastic bag containing a small rock-like substance on the back seat. He seized the bag and brought it inside with Ms. Lewis.

7. Ms. Lewis did not want to answer any questions without an attorney. The police officer informed her that she did not have a right to talk to her attorney until after certain tests were completed. The video camera was put on, but she did not submit to the Alcotest or the psychophysical or any other alcohol-related testing. She also refused to take the blood test. She insisted that she had to go to the bathroom, even though she had gone to the rest room immediately when she arrived at headquarters.

8. Ms. Lewis was charged with driving while intoxicated, refusal to take a breathalyzer test and possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

9. The plastic bag that Officer Brooks took from the back seat of the patrol car was placed in a heat-sealed bag and put in a secure room at police headquarters. It was logged into evidence and Det. Diane Spann transported the bag with its contents to the Union County lab in Westfield for testing on April 9, 2009. The chain of custody was properly memorialized.

10. Suzanne Fenske is employed by the Union County prosecutor's forensic laboratory in Westfield. She is responsible to test substances that are suspected to be controlled dangerous substances.

11. She was charged with testing the substance that was brought in the heat-sealed bag from the Union Township Police Department. She was the only person who had access to the substance in the bag. She performed a number of tests and determined that the bag contained 0.602 grams of cocaine.

12. Two coworkers testified in Ms. Lewis' behalf. Gloria Mosior, who teaches life skills for special education in East Orange, testified that she has known Ms. Lewis for ten years and worked closely with her for three years. She socialized with her one time outside of the office. She characterized Ms. Lewis as a good team player, very cooperative and good with her students. Donald R. Henderson, who also works in the district, is a "lead" teacher and a disciplinarian. He knew Ms. Lewis as a teacher in the building and because she attends a bible study class with him and other teachers two times per week. His impression was that she was a caring and compassionate person. He did not socialize with her outside of school, nor had he ever seen her teach in the classroom.

ANALYSIS OF THE LAW

The tenure of educational personnel is authorized by the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. Tenure is a status in a particular position created by statute, not the agreement of the parties, therefore it "is a 'statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment,' Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Ed., 38 N.J. [65,] 72 [(1982)]. It may not be forfeited or waived, Red Bank Ed. Ass'n v. Red Bank Bd. of Ed., 78 N.J. [122,] 141 [(1978)]." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 77 (1982). Tenure was designed to protect employees "from dismissal for 'unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.'" Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 99 N.J. 112, 118 (1985) (citing Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 71). Lack of fitness is usually demonstrated by a series of incidents, but it also may be found when there is a single incident that is sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd, 131

N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). While tenure was designed to protect employees, teachers are responsible to act in a professional manner and to serve the welfare of the students in their care. In the final agency decision in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321, the Commissioner stated that

> . . . teachers of this State . . . are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. As one of the most dominant and influential forces in the lives of the children, who are compelled to attend the public schools, the teacher is an enormous force for improving the public weal.

As the administrative law judge stated in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Johnston, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 439, 443:

> Teaching is a calling requiring "an unusually high degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior." . . . Adolescents are especially vulnerable to the influences of their teachers, who serve as role models and help to shape how youngsters actually view themselves. . . . Being a teacher requires an intense dedication to civility and respect for people as human beings.

Among the charges lodged against the respondent was that of "conduct unbecoming." This term was defined in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Motley, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), aff'd as modified, Comm'r (August 4, 1999), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (December 1, 1999) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>:

> "Unbecoming conduct" is an elastic term broadly defined to include any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and competence in the operation of [public] services." Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon a violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon a violation of the implicit standard of > good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of what is morally and legally correct. Despite the apparent vagueness of this standard, "it fairly and adequately conveys its meaning to all concerned." In the context of a school tenure case, "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office and position."

Courts have held that the failure or refusal to undergo sobriety testing can constitute conduct unbecoming. In In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1966), a police officer was given a ninety-day suspension for conduct unbecoming a police officer when he failed to cooperate in an examination to determine his sobriety following an off-duty automobile accident. The court refused to consider issues regarding due process or the right against self-incrimination in connection with the suspension hearing, holding that they were without foundation because the suspension hearing was disciplinary and not criminal in nature. The court was not persuaded that the officer's assertion that he acted on advice of counsel in refusing to take a blood test was a defense. The court held that advice of counsel was not a defense to a charge of misconduct. In another matter involving a tenured teacher, the administrative law judge found that possession of a controlled dangerous substance constituted conduct unbecoming and subjected the teacher to penalty under the tenure law. See In re Tenure Hearing of Carter-Lee, EDU 9825-07, Initial Decision (February 15, 2008), aff'd, Comm'r (March 19, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>; see also In re Tenure Hearing of Morton, EDU 253-97 and EDU 956-97, Initial Decision (June 11, 1999), aff'd, Comm'r (July 30, 1999) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. That possession of the controlled dangerous substance occurred off school premises has no bearing on the determination that the possession, in and of itself, constitutes unbecoming conduct. Willingboro Bd. of Educ. v. Lott, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 516, aff'd, State Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 35; In re Tenure Hearing of McIntyre, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 718, aff'd, No. A-5942-94 (App. Div. July 10, 1996); In re Tenure Hearing of Wolfe, 1980 S.L.D. 721, aff'd, App. Div., 1981 S.L.D. 1537, 1539. Nor does the fact that Ms. Lewis received pre-trial intervention with regard to the drug-possession charge preclude a finding of unbecoming conduct as to that incident.

It is the obligation of the District to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. The Commissioner in In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Grundfest, Comm'r (June 20, 2000), aff'd, St. Bd. (November 1, 2000) <http://www.nj.gov/education/legal>, outlined what a board of education had to prove in order to meet its burden in a tenure charge:

> Sustaining tenure charges for unbecoming conduct, however, is a very serious matter. The ramifications for respondent would be not only the loss of his tenured employment, but also the automatic referral of the matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of his teaching certificate, and the possible loss of his pension benefits. Since the penalty for respondent would be severe, it is the Board's responsibility and its burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence [the tenure charges against the respondent].

In this matter it is uncontested that Ms. Lewis was driving while intoxicated and that she was in the possession of a controlled dangerous substance. Therefore, the only issue that needs to be decided is whether Ms. Lewis should lose her tenure as a result of this incident. The respondent has argued that because of her prior unblemished record she should not be subjected to a loss of tenure. In deciding whether the respondent should lose her tenure a balancing test must be employed. See McIntyre, supra, 96 N.J.A.R.2d at 725. However, in McIntyre the Commissioner determined that "with respect to the possession of controlled dangerous substances by an educator, analyses which consider quantity or measure shades of misconduct are inappropriate" because the Legislature and the State Board of Education have "assigned to the school districts of New Jersey a fundamental role in the prevention and intervention of substance use and abuse among students." McIntyre, supra, 96 N.J.A.R.2d at 725. Teachers serve as role models, a "heavy duty [which] requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Id. at 726 (citing Sammons, supra, 1972 S.L.D. at 321)). Accordingly, "possession of a controlled dangerous substance by an educator, absent mitigating circumstances, . . . is sufficiently flagrant conduct to warrant dismissal," even if it reflects only one instance of misconduct. Ibid.; see also Willingboro, supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 516.

Mitigating circumstances could include evidence of an exemplary record as a teacher. For example, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Valenti, 1990 S.L.D. 410, the teacher was arrested for possession of one marijuana joint and an additional 2.5 grams of marijuana. A principal, teacher and guidance counselor, all employees of the Board, testified as to the teacher's exemplary record over twenty years as a teacher, his rapport with his students and his integral part in the school community. While the Commissioner increased the penalty recommended by the administrative law judge from forfeiture of 120 days' pay to forfeiture of 180 days' pay, the Commissioner did not order Valenti removed from his tenured position. Respondent, in the case at bar, did not offer any mitigating circumstances. The only testimony put forth by Ms. Lewis was from two of her fellow teachers. Neither witness seemed to know anything about steps taken by Ms. Lewis to rehabilitate. In addition, Mr. Henderson stated that he had never seen the respondent teaching a class. His interaction with Ms. Lewis involved disciplinary matters, where he said that she appeared to care about her students. Ms. Mosior characterized Ms. Lewis as a team player and cooperative. While these are compliments, they certainly do not rise to the level of her being characterized as having an exemplary record. In addition, as the District pointed out, Mr. Valenti was charged with possession of a small amount of marijuana, which is considered a simple disorderly persons offense and never involved the possibility of imprisonment, as opposed to the charges lodged against Ms. Lewis, which included possession of cocaine in the third degree, driving while intoxicated, and refusal to undergo sobriety testing.

The other cases cited by the respondent for the proposition that termination of tenure is not warranted were equally unpersuasive. In In re Tenure Hearing of Passero, OAL Dkt. No. 3340-83, Initial Decision (September 2, 1983), aff'd, Comm'r (October 17, 1983), the tenured employee was a custodian who worked the night shift and therefore did not have contact with pupils. In addition, he was charged with simple possession of hashish and methamphetamines. While I am not diminishing the seriousness of that offense, it certainly is not on the level of possession of cocaine. In re Tenure Hearing of Koller, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 157, is likewise inapposite to this case. There the tenured teacher was found to have committed conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. However, he asserted that he was an alcoholic and dismissing him from his position would be a violation under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD). Ms. Lewis has never alleged that she suffers from a qualifying disability under the NJLAD and that her disability was the cause of her conduct.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the District has sustained its burden of proving that the respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher.

I further CONCLUDE that based on the nature and severity of the offense, the respondent should be dismissed from her position in the District.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the tenure charges of conduct unbecoming are sustained and the respondent is to be DISMISSED from her teaching position in the District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CHERYL SWIDER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOLMDEL, MONMOUTH COUNTY.

William B. Cunningham, Esq., appearing for respondent (Starkey, Kelly, Bauer, Kenneally & Cunningham, LLP, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 22, 2010 Decided: February 26, 2010

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ:

This matter arises out of the Holmdel Board of Education's filing of tenure charges against Cheryl Swider for conduct unbecoming a public school teacher. The Statement of Evidence attached to and filed in support of the Statement of Charges alleged that Swider, an athletic trainer and former assistant principal, engaged in on-going harassment of Superintendent of Schools, Barbara Duncan. The Board filed the charges on December 28, 2007, Swider filed her answer on January 9, 2008, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL for hearing as a contested case on January 18, 2008.

Although the prehearing conference was held as scheduled on February 14, 2008, subsequent hearing dates were repeatedly adjourned for various reasons including the pendency of motions the Board had filed in Superior Court to obtain certain evidence that had been presented to a grand jury; the taking of depositions; scheduling conflicts, and other good cause shown. In the meantime, the parties continued to engage in settlement discussions until they finally reached an agreement on or about January 26, 2010. The fully executed Stipulation of Settlement, Exhibit J-1, was filed with this Administrative Law Judge on February 22, 2010.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a) provides:

> Once tenure charges are certified to the Commissioner, such charges may be withdrawn or settled only with the Commissioner's approval. Any proposed withdrawal or settlement, whether submitted to the Commissioner or to the ALJ, shall address the following standards established by the State Board of Education in the matter entitled In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846):
>
> 1. Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges;
>
> 2. Explication of the circumstances justifying settlement or withdrawal;
> 3. Consent of both the charged and charging parties;
>
> 4. Indication that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of her rights;
>
> 5. A showing that the agreement is in the public interest; and
> 6. Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of the certificate.

After careful consideration of the record in this matter, I find that the parties have satisfied these six standards and shall address them sequentially.

1. Documentation. The Statement of Charges (Exhibit J-2), Statement of Evidence with Exhibits (Exhibit J-3), and Board Resolution/Certification of Charges (Exhibit J-4) have been appended to this Initial Decision.

2. Explication. As recited in the Stipulation of Settlement, the Superior Court of New Jersey, Monmouth County, Criminal Part, determined that since the Grand Jury had not issued an indictment and no other criminal action had been taken against Cheryl Swider and the other targets of the Monmouth County Grand Jury, it would be inappropriate to allow the Board access to or use of the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Report and Monmouth County Grand Jury Investigation. Moreover, a review of the deposition transcripts provided by the Board (Exhibits J-5 and J-6) disclosed that none of these prospective witnesses were going to say anything that might implicate Ms. Swider in the alleged harassment of Superintendent Duncan. Consequently, the Board concluded that it would have difficulty establishing the tenure charges and that it would be in the best interests of the parties and the public to resolve the matter amicably.

3. Consent. The Stipulation of Settlement has been signed by Cheryl Swider, her attorney, William P. Cunningham, Esq., and the Board's attorney, Martin M. Barger, Esq., who by letter dated February 22, 2010, (Exhibit J-7) indicated that he had been "authorized by the Board of Education to settle the matter and to sign on behalf of my client."

4. Understanding of Rights. By letter dated February 23, 2010 (Exhibit J-8), William P. Cunningham, Esq., indicated that Ms. Swider understood her right to have a hearing and that the file might be referred to the Board of Examiners by the Commissioner upon conclusion of the matter.

5. Agreement in the Public Interest. A careful reading of the Statement of Evidence – particularly the exhibits attached thereto – and deposition transcripts readily discloses that the events leading up to the filing of the tenure charges have forced Superintendent Duncan to relive an exceptionally painful period of her life. It also discloses that at least some of the actors in this matter still bear a great deal of resentment, if not outright animosity, towards her. Needless to say, the dispute has polarized not only the teaching staff, but also the broader community. Additionally, ongoing litigation will only fan the flames of the dispute and it is unlikely that even a decision on the merits – particularly a finding that the Board had failed to meet its burden, if that were in fact the outcome – will placate those involved. Consequently, an amicable settlement is in the best interests of all concerned.

6. Knowledge of Commissioner's Duty. As indicated in item 4 above, Mr. Cunningham has fully advised Ms. Swider of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in a loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. By virtue of her signature on the Stipulation of Settlement, she has nevertheless decided that it is still in her best interests to resolve this matter.

After careful consideration of the record before me, I find that the parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures and that the settlement fully disposes of all issues in the controversy and is consistent with the requirements of In re Cardonick, supra, 1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842.

I therefore conclude that this settlement agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and should be approved; that the parties should be directed to comply with the settlement terms; and that these proceedings should be concluded. It is so ordered.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
OFFICE OF ADMIN LAW

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

WHEREAS, Holmdel Township Board of Education filed tenure charges against Cheryl Swider on November 28, 2007; and

WHEREAS, Cheryl Swider filed an Answer to said tenure charges on January 9, 2008; and

WHEREAS, extensive discovery was conducted in this litigation, including depositions of Cheryl Swider and two (2) other main witnesses, and the transcripts of those depositions have been supplied to the Court; and

WHEREAS, the Holmdel Township Board of Education also sought permission from the Superior Court of New Jersey, Monmouth County, Criminal Division, to use the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Investigatory Report and the Monmouth County Grand Jury proceedings involving Cheryl Swider and others; and

WHEREAS, the Superior Court of New Jersey, Monmouth County, Criminal Division, determined that no action was taken against Cheryl Swider and others and, therefore, it would be inappropriate to use the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Report and Monmouth County Grand Jury Investigation, both of which are confidential, in this proceeding; and

WHEREAS, Holmdel Township Board of Education would have difficulty establishing the tenure charges without the above-described documentation; and

WHEREAS, the parties determined that, under the circumstances, it would be best for all concerned to enter into negotiations to settle this matter, and all other matters between Cheryl Swider and the Holmdel Township Board of Education; and

WHEREAS, the parties have reached a settlement, subject to recommendation by the Honorable Israel D. Dubin, A.L.J. and approved by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, pursuant to all standards set forth in the Cardonick decision; and

WHEREAS, the parties understand that the entire file is subject to review by Judge Dubin prior to his recommendation and by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education prior to his approval, and that no settlement is permitted without said recommendation and approval; and

WHEREAS, the parties recognize that, pursuant to Cardonick, the terms of any settlement will be subject to careful scrutiny to be essential to the maintenance of the integrity of the Tenure Employees Hearing Act, ensuring that all determinations will serve not only the interest of the parties but also the broader public interests;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREY AGREED, AS FOLLOWS:

1. This settlement between Cheryl Swider and Holmdel Township Board of Education shall not take effect unless and until approved by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education.

2. The tenure charges against Cheryl Swider shall be withdrawn by the Holmdel Township Board of Education.

3. Cheryl Swider shall submit her resignation from the Holmdel Township School District, effective June 30, 2010.

4. Cheryl Swider is entitled to her salary and other benefits for the first 120 days of her suspension, which were withheld.

5. Holmdel Township Board of Education is entitled to mitigation for the compensation earned by Cheryl Swider at other institutions during the normal Holmdel school day during the time of her suspension.

6. It has been determined that items 4 and 5, as set forth above, are almost identical, and the parties therefore waive their financial claims for these items accordingly. Benefits and pension rights for Cheryl Swider shall remain in full force and effect.

7. Cheryl Swider is entitled to be compensated for unused sick leave pursuant to the terms of the Holmdel Township Education Association contract and subject to any limitations imposed by the regulations of the New Jersey Department of Education.

8. Cheryl Swider presently has a collateral claim against Holmdel Township Board of Education that is also being resolved as part of this total settlement.

9. In settlement of that collateral claim Cheryl Swider shall receive the sum of $25,000.00 and shall provide to the Holmdel Township Board of Education and all of its Administrators, other employees and agents a full General Release for any claims of any nature whatsoever that she may have against Holmdel Township Board of Education, its Administrators, and other employees and agents.

10. This shall constitute the full settlement between the parties and shall be binding on all heirs, successors and assigns.

SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION DKT. NO. C34-08
COMMISSIONER DKT. NO. 7-11/09A

TONY JOHN, MARTIN NOCK, CHRISTOPHER WALKER AND EFE OSAGIE,	:
COMPLAINANTS-RESPONDENTS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
KEN GORDON, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, October 27, 2009

For Complainants-Respondents, Tony John, Pro Se[1]

For Respondent-Appellant, Thomas A. Abbate, Esq.
(DeCotiis, Fitzpatrick, Cole & Wisler, LLP)

The above-captioned matter came before the Commissioner of Education by way of a November 2, 2009 appeal by Respondent-Appellant Ken Gordon (respondent) of the October 27, 2009 decision of the School Ethics Commission finding him in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members and recommending a penalty of reprimand. In its decision, the Commission determined that respondent – at the time a member of the Willingboro Board of Education (Board) – administered the schools contrary to his duty as a Board member, took private action capable of compromising the Board, and failed to support and protect school personnel in the proper performance of their duties by inserting himself into the controversy surrounding the interim

[1] Where a complaint is submitted by more than one person, a lead complainant – in this case, Mr. John – may be designated by the Commission. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.6; Transcript of Proceedings Before the School Ethics Commission at 4-5 (Appendix to Respondent's Brief at 53-54a).

superintendent's cancellation of a previously scheduled mock student election and asking the high school principal – also the head of the district administrators' association (WEAA) – to inform her colleagues that they should not stand in the way of such election, which was a parent-teachers (PTA/PTO) event that – contrary to apparent widespread belief – had not been cancelled by the Board.[2]

On appeal before the Commissioner, respondent characterizes the Commission's decision as arbitrary, irrational, and permeated by procedural and substantive errors.

Procedurally, respondent contends that, contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(b), the Commission failed to transmit the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) upon its finding of probable cause and to render its decision within 90 days. According to respondent, the statute is unequivocal in its requirements, and the Commission's "attempt to circumvent [these requirements] through the promulgation of regulations" that permit it to hear matters directly and deem its initial screening of a complaint as satisfying the 90-day requirement is of no moment, since the rule in question – N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.8 – is an ultra vires enactment that clearly contravenes the underlying statute. (Respondent's Brief at 21-23)

Respondent further contends that the Commission violated his due process rights by improperly admitting privileged evidence and erroneously crediting the testimony of complainants' principal witness. In respondent's view, the Commission should not have permitted the unredacted confidential investigative report with attachments prepared by Board counsel with reference to the incident underlying this matter (Exhibits C-2 through C-8) to be entered as evidence over respondent's repeated objections, since the report was rendered as "confidential," clearly subject to attorney-client privilege, and not released publicly – apart from a "heavily redacted excerpt" – as untruthfully stated by complainants and testified by complainants' witness Sarah Holley.[3] Had this report been suppressed as it should have been, respondent asserts, witnesses would not have been asked to admit on record to the substance of their statements to Board counsel; the email on which the Commission relied in deciding against respondent would have been precluded from consideration because complainants had no evidentiary foundation for its possession apart from their access as Board members to the confidential report to which it was appended; respondent would not have been compelled to testify at hearing; and the complainants' case would have rested almost entirely on the testimony of a witness (Theresa Lucas) who should not have been deemed credible because, as respondent repeatedly advised the Commission, she had a clear motive to slant her testimony against respondent – specifically, a forthcoming civil suit against the district and several individuals including respondent, actually served the day after the Commission's hearing and claiming harassment and retaliation as a result of her complaints of Board member interference, that would unquestionably be bolstered by a finding that respondent had violated the School Ethics Act. (Respondent's Brief at 12-14, 17-21)

Substantively, respondent first argues that his actions did not constitute "administering" the schools or failing to support school personnel in their duties, as erroneously found by the Commission. According to respondent, his interaction with the head of the WEAA[4] "represented a measured approach to what he reasonably perceived to be either a potential

[3] Respondent opines that "the complainants do not seem to appreciate the irony of breaching the confidences and secrets of the Board in furtherance of a matter in which they allege that [respondent] compromised the Board." (Respondent's Brief at 2)

[4] Respondent states that he "did not insist that Ms. Lucas contact the WEAA in his presence, nor did he ever order her to contact her membership. He did not directly order Ms. Lucas to tell her membership to permit the student election to proceed, nor did he ever expressly contradict any directive of Interim Superintendent Kern...or intend for the WEAA to take any action contrary to the [superintendent's] directive." He further states that his email to Interim Superintendent Kern – accepting "an inordinate share of the responsibility for the situation" in an effort to dissuade Kern from taking disclinary action against Lucas – intentionally "overstated the scope of his advice to Lucas." (Respondent's Brief at 9)

lawsuit against the district, or alternatively irreparable harm to the Board's relationship with the WEAA," undertaken in view of his official position as Chair of the Negotiating Committee at a time when Board negotiations with the WEAA were pending and the parties were attempting to overcome their history of negative labor-management relations. Respondent asserts that "the misperception by the WEAA that the Board had cancelled the student election at the last minute, outside of a public session, would leave the membership of the WEAA as the target of convenience to bear the brunt of parental criticism for the decision" and that it "cannot be gainsaid that the WEAA's belief that it had been 'sold out' by the Board, even if mistaken, had the potential to irreparably harm relations between the parties." Respondent further contends that the Commission applied a vague notion of the term "administer," ignoring the fact that complainants – who bear the burden of proof in this matter – never established the delineation between the Interim Superintendent's actual administrative functions and respondent's authority as a liaison to the WEAA so as to demonstrate that respondent's actions were within the scope of the former rather than the latter. (Respondent's Brief at 25-28) Moreover, respondent continues, even if his actions could (erroneously) be construed as violating the Ethics Act, the Commission should not have overlooked the fact that he made every effort to follow the chain of command before concluding he had no choice but to speak to Ms. Lucas, and even then did not instruct her to ignore the Interim Superintendent's instructions, but merely advised her that her membership should not "stand in the way" of the mock election and should let the PTA/PTO deal directly with the higher-level administration – thus supporting building administrators in the proper performance of their duties, in a situation where the chief school administrator was acting in a manner respondent reasonably believed to be illegal and improper so as not to warrant similar support.[5] (Id. at 28-31, 33-34)

[5] Respondent states that the Ethics Act cannot be read to require deference to the chief school administrator in all

Respondent also argues that it makes no sense to hold that his actions compromised the Board, since – as correctly found by the Commission – the PTA-sponsored student election was never the subject of official action by the Board, nor did the Board vote to prohibit the event. Respondent further contends that the potential for the annual school election to have been tainted under the facts of this matter are so "attenuated and remote that the [Commission's decision] is stretched to the point of absurdity," noting that no school held a student election as a consequence of respondent's actions, no party or law enforcement or other regulatory authority challenged the results or legitimacy of the Board election, and the County Board of Elections had advised that a student election was permissible so long as incentives were not offered – a restriction made clear to the PTA prior to the election. Thus, according to respondent, petitioner's actions "had no bearing on the Board election, and posed no reasonable likelihood of tainting the election" – which, in fact, "was not, and never has been, tainted." (Respondent's Brief at 31-33)

According to respondent, the Commission's "most fundamental error was that it failed to recognize the distinction between a genuinely and materially unethical act...and the ordinary incidents of a citizen's right to participate in the affairs of his government without fear of liability," and that it consequently interpreted the School Ethics Act in "absolutist terms that elevate form over substance." Respondent contends that he is a "public service minded person" seeking to be a "positive force for change" in a troubled district, but was made the subject of ethics charges by self-interested "holdovers from the time of [the district's] fiscal mismanagement" who sought to discredit him for their own purposes; he asserts that he did nothing more than attempt to bring the parties to the election controversy together in good faith, instances or support of all personnel at all times, since situations will arise where supporting one group necessarily excludes supporting another.

yet has now received a decision which will "permanently and irrevocably tarnish [his] integrity" because the Commission '[failed] to recognize that his de minimis contact with the head of the WEAA was both unavoidable in these circumstances and not unduly intrusive of the Interim Superintendent's prerogative to administer the district." (Respondent's Brief at 1, 3, 23-24) Respondent opines that the Commission's decision effectively means that "in order to avoid a charge of interference under the Code of Ethics, a board member has a mandatory and unconditional obligation to look the other way if an administrator is discovered to be engaging in conduct that is reasonably believed to be unlawful, or which might cause irreparable harm" – a holding that is "particularly fallacious in the context of a district that is now under the monitorship of the Department of Education because a complacent board allowed a previous superintendent to run up a $10 million deficit." Respondent states that he ran for a seat on the Board precisely because "too many people looked the other way," and that the Commission's implication that the School Ethics Act requires board member acquiescence "no matter how much confusion and potential for irreparable harm [exist]" is a result that the Commissioner must reverse. (Respondent's brief at 2, 14)[6]

The complainants did not reply to respondent's brief.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner is unpersuaded by respondent's arguments on appeal and finds no basis on which to disturb the decision of the School Ethics Commission.

Initially, the Commissioner can find no fault in the Commission's having conducted proceedings in this matter in accordance with regulations duly adopted by the [6] Within his papers on appeal, respondent additionally sought indemnification for counsel fees and expenses. That claim, however, is proceeding separately, as a petition (Ken J. Gordon, Jr. v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, Agency Dkt. No. 347-11/09) before the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3.

State Board of Education. Respondent's contention that the Commission violated its authorizing statute by so doing effectively challenges the facial validity of the implementing regulations – a challenge which lies within the sole purview of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and is not properly raised before the Commissioner. R. 2:2-3(a); see also, Pascucci v. Vagott, 71 N.J. 40, 51-52 (1976); Wendling v. N.J. Racing Com'n, 279 N.J. Super. 477, 485 (App. Div. 1995).

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot agree that respondent's due process rights were violated by the Commission's acceptance into evidence of Board counsel's confidential report on the mock election. Respondent's own submission shows that the r eport and all attachments on which the Commission materially relied, including respondent's email (Exhibit C-6), were released as public documents on July 14, 2008 – over three months prior to the filing of the October 21, 2008 complaint in this matter – in response to an Open Public Records Act (OPRA) request, and that the documents so released were redacted only as to the names of certain district staff members – readily identifiable in the context of complainants' allegations and likely recognizable to anyone even slightly acquainted with the underlying events – and personal address, phone and medical information not pertinent to the issues before the Commission.[7] (Appendix to Respondent's Brief at 300a-324a[8])

Nor can the Commissioner agree that the Commission placed undue weight on the hearing testimony of Mrs. Lucas; to the contrary, the Commission's findings of fact on the issues central to its determination of violation (findings 20 through 23) are entirely consistent with respondent's own testimony as set forth below:

[7] Exhibits C-3 and C-4 do not appear to have been so released, but – even granting respondent's contention, arguendo – these were not material to the Commission's determination.

[8] It is noted that the 23-page "public records" package provided to respondent's counsel by the Board contains only 14 pages of actual text, which agrees with the number of pages released in response to the OPRA request.

Q: Okay. Why did you go to the high school that day?

A: I was scheduled – as a Willingboro graduate, I was scheduled to speak at career day, and I went there to speak for career day.

Q: You were invited to speak there?

A: Yes, I was invited.

Q: Was the primary purpose in your going there to speak at the career day event?

A: That was my only purpose.

Q: Okay. When you went to the building what did you do when you got there?

A. When I went to the building I signed in, and I went to the main office to make the building principal aware that I was there [consistent with Board practice]. They did that. They called her wherever she was and she came to the main office.

Q: Was your primary purpose in asking to speak to Mrs. Lucas to talk to her about the mock election?

A. No. It was just to inform her I was in the building.

Q: How long did you see Mrs. Lucas during that encounter?

A: About five or ten minutes.

Q: So what happened during – what transpired during your encounter with Mrs. Lucas?

A: When I saw Mrs. Lucas, I asked her – she asked me why I was there, I told her about the career day, and I asked her was she aware of all the confusion surrounding the mock election, and she indicated that she had heard about it, she was aware of it. I indicated to her that two of her principals had approached me and had expressed quite a bit of concern. I expressed to her that I was very concerned because we were in the midst of negotiations, and the relations were going very good, which was not common in the past...I told her I did not want this to affect what was going on in the labor and collective bargaining we had. I told her I was very concerned because it had been communicated that the board of education had cancelled this event, and I wanted her to know that the board of education did not have anything whatsoever [to do] with the canceling of this event, rather it was not a board of education event, it was not within our purview to cancel it at all, so we did not have anything to do with it.

I then indicated to her that because two of her principals had stopped me in the parking lot that I felt it was very important that all the principals were made aware that this is absolutely not a board of education function, this is not something that we cancelled, this is not something we had anything to do with. It was a PTA function. I asked her to "please call your members and let them know that we did not do this, we're not trying to hang them out to dry." The perception was from her two principals that stopped me, that "there we go again having a situation where the heat gets turned up you guys leave us just dangling out there by ourselves," and I wanted her to know that that's not what we were doing, that the board of education had nothing to do with this, and I asked her to call her members and let them know.

Q: Did you ever insist that Mrs. Lucas make the phone calls in your presence?

A: No.

Q: Did you issue Mrs. Lucas a direct order to take action to call those principals?

A: I did not issue her a direct order at all. I asked her to do it for clarity's sake and (inaudible) relations of the collective bargaining unit.

Q: Did you ever directly order Mrs. Lucas to tell her membership to permit the mock election to proceed?

A: I did not.

Q: In your mind, did you ever contradict any statement that you had understood the superintendent had made that day?

A: The only contradiction was I had been told the superintendent said the board of education, the nine on the board had cancelled the election, and I wanted it to be very clear that the board of education did not cancel the mock election.

Q: Did you intend for Mrs. Lucas to take action to contradict the superintendent as a result of your statement to her?

A: I did not, and it was my understanding that she made the phone calls and gave them the information, but there was no indication from me – to me that she had contradicted what the superintendent had said....so, no, that wasn't the intent and it wasn't what I was looking to have happen.

Q: After your speaking engagement, did you have occasion to see Mrs. Lucas again?

A: Absolutely. Before I exited the building I stopped by her office again to advise her that I was finished and I was leaving the building.

Q: Did you mention the mock election in your second encounter with Mrs. Lucas?

A: I did...I said, "Did you talk to any of your members?" And she said, "Yes, I did talk to them." And I said, "Okay, thank you." And then I left.

Q: Do you recollect sending in this email, and I'm going to read an excerpt from it. "I proceeded to Willingboro High School where I was scheduled to speak. Once in the building I contacted Ms. Theresa Lucas, building administrator, president of the WEAA. I indicated to Mrs. Lucas that she should contact the principals as the president to the WEAA and inform them that the mock election was not a board of education function. I further indicated that it was unprecedented for a PTA function to be cancelled by the superintendent, therefore she was to instruct them not to interfere or stand in the way of said event." Do you recall that?

A: Yes.

Q: ...[Earlier] you said you had no discussion about that, but clearly in this you did give a directive.

A: No, I did not. I indicated as I said in there...that the board of education is not involved, had nothing to do with that, and that her people should not proceed or not proceed on that basis, and that is what I said too. I did not give her a directive to tell them to countermand anything that the superintendent did. Rather I gave her the facts that the board did not cancel it, and I did not want them proceeding, or not proceeding under the auspices of the board of education having any directive whatsoever, but I did not give her, nor did I say in there that I gave her direction to cancel it.

Thus, it is apparent that where respondent and the Commission actually differ is not in their material accounts of respondent's actions during the exchange in question, but in their views of whether such actions constituted a violation of the Board Member Code of Ethics. In this regard, the Commissioner finds the Commission's reasoning neither arbitrary and capricious nor contrary to law. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a)

Notwithstanding respondent's attempts to rely on subtle distinctions and nuances in wording – as in denying that he gave Lucas "direct orders" to contact WEAA members in his presence or "expressly contradicted" the superintendent's directive to cancel the mock election – the Commissioner finds that any reasonable person could easily construe respondent's statements to Theresa Lucas as an implied directive to promptly contact fellow administrators and convey the message that the Board had not cancelled the mock election, contrary to what they might have been told – a message that could, under the circumstances, have at best done nothing but cause confusion and create a dilemma for principals uncertain as to how to proceed given the Interim Superintendent's earlier instructions. Moreover, it was respondent who raised the issue of the mock election – a matter wholly unrelated to his purpose for being in the building, which pertained to his private status as a successful Willingboro graduate and not to his Board office – both at the beginning and the end of his stay at the high school, first to provide "clarification" of the Board's role (or lack thereof) in its planning and cancellation and later to inquire whether his message had been conveyed to WEAA members. Clearly, respondent did, as found by the Commission, insert himself into the day-to-day operations of the school district, intervening in a situation which was the responsibility of the administration to address and failing to support the chief school administrator in the performance of his duties.[9] Moreover, while respondent's actions may not, in fact, have resulted in a challenge to the validity of the annual school election, the Commission is certainly correct that they had the potential to do so – and thus to compromise the Board – since the "mixed message" they inherently conveyed could very well have led to at least some principals moving forward with the mock elections notwithstanding that such activity might have subjected the annual election to allegations of taint due to previously offered and advertised incentives.

In so holding, the Commissioner is not unmindful of respondent's contention that he was acting out of necessity to protect the Board from potential lawsuits and other consequences of what he perceived to be incorrect actions by the Interim Superintendent; nor is he unmindful of respondent's assertions that he is the target of self-interested complainants representing an adversarial faction on the Board and that the Commission's decision is tantamount to a declaration that Board members must "look the other way" in the face of administrative error or risk facing ethics charges. However, the Commissioner finds these arguments unpersuasive: Questionable motivation does not negate a complaint when its underlying facts are found proven by the Commission, nor did the happenstance that the Interim Superintendent was unreachable and the Business Administrator was unfamiliar with the situation give respondent license to overstep his role as a Board member and intervene directly in matters properly within the purview of the administration – in the process additionally failing to support school personnel in the performance of their duties. Moreover, in the situation with which he was confronted, private action by respondent was neither necessary nor appropriate, since, to whatever extent respondent perceived that Board-employee relationships might have been harmed by the misinformation he sought to correct, any misunderstanding could easily have been cleared up by the Board afterward, and any perceived improper actions by the Interim Superintendent could (and should) have been brought to the attention of the Board for due exercise of its powers of supervision and oversight and for any action it deemed necessary to address such objections as may have been raised by the organizers of the mock election.

Finally, having affirmed the Commission's finding of violation, the Commissioner is satisfied that the recommended penalty of reprimand is appropriate in this instance, where the Commission dismissed all other allegations against respondent and recommended its least severe penalty – after having taken into account that the violations it found all arose out of a single incident in which respondent acted out of a well-intentioned but misguided attempt to "straighten out misinformation" rather than any desire to contradict or confront the decisions of the Interim Superintendent. (Commission's Decision at 22-23)

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth therein and above, the decision of the School Ethics Commission finding respondent in violation of the School Ethics Act is affirmed and its recommendation as to penalty is adopted by the Commissioner. Consistent with such determination, respondent Ken Gordon is hereby reprimanded for having violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

v.	:	Docket No. C34-08
KEN GORDON WILLINGBORO BOARD OF EDUCATION BURLINGTON COUNTY	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on October 21, 2008 by Tony John, Martin Nock, Christopher Walker and Efe Osagie alleging that the respondent, then a member of the Willingboro Board of Education ("Board"), violated the School Ethics Act. Specifically, the complainants allege that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (d), (e), (g), (i) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.[1]

The respondent filed an answer on November 13, 2008. The Commission invited the parties to attend its July 28, 2009 meeting for a hearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.9. By letter dated July 24, 2009, the Commission was notified that the respondent had obtained counsel, Thomas Abbate, Esq. Mr. Abbate requested an adjournment on behalf of the respondent. The matter was rescheduled for the Commission's meeting on August 25, 2009, at which time the parties appeared and the Commission heard testimony. The Commission tabled the matter, pending further discussion at its meeting on September 22, 2009. At the public portion of the Commission's meeting on September 22, 2009, the Commission voted to find that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members and further determined to recommend a penalty of reprimand.

SUMMARY OF THE RECORD

Complainants Tony John, Christopher Walker and Martin Nock appeared to present their case. The respondent, Ken Gordon also appeared, with counsel.

Mr. Edward Kern, the former Interim Superintendent for the Willingboro School District, testified for the complainants. Mr. Kern testified that the district had discussed having a mock election for its students on the date of the actual school board elections on April 15, 2008. The mock election would be sponsored by the district's PTOs/PTAs as well as the Willingboro

[1] On April 15, 2009, the State Board of Education adopted amendments to N.J.A.C. 6A:28, the regulations governing matters that come before the School Ethics Commission. These rules became effective on May 18, 2009. However, because the complaint in this matter was filed on October 21, 2008, the Commission followed procedures and rendered its determinations herein in accordance with the rules that were in effect at the time the complaint was filed. To the extent this decision cites to regulations, they are the regulations that were in effect when the complaint was filed.

Education Association (WEA). Mr. Kern explained that, initially, the mock election was viewed as a positive learning experience for the students, who would be accompanied by their parents to the polls. Thus, the mock election would be a civics lesson for students which could result in increased voter turnout.

However, as the event unfolded, Mr. Kern learned that incentives, like pizza parties and rewards, were being offered for students' attendance. He testified that flyers were sent by the WEA and PTOs. Mr. Kern did not want such flyers to be on district letterhead. He spoke with the "election committee" and was informed that these incentives were not appropriate and could taint the general school board election.[2] Mr. Kern explained that he was increasingly uncomfortable with holding the mock election for students.

Mr. Kern testified that there was an impromptu meeting held on Friday April 11, 2008; some board members were present and they discussed the mock election and the promotional activities. Mr. Kern testified that on April 15, 2008, he was scheduled to attend a county roundtable meeting. He called the principals in the district that morning and informed them that the mock election "was off." He stated that he specifically gave the directive to Mrs. Lucas, principal of Willingboro High School (WHS), not to have the mock election. However, he later received a call from Mrs. Lucas, who told him that the mock election was back on. Mr. Kern acknowledged that there was much confusion surrounding the cancellation of the mock election, but he maintains that it was within his discretion to hold the mock election or not, inasmuch as the event was scheduled to take place on school grounds.

Mr. Kern further acknowledged that the mock election cancellation became a "hot issue." He mentioned at a Board meeting that he was considering taking disciplinary action against Mrs. Lucas since he maintained it was not her place to counter a Superintendent's decision. According to Mr. Kern, Mrs. Lucas "took it upon herself to contact the other principals and counter his directive." Mr. Kern stated that Mrs. Lucas was never actually disciplined for the incident.

Mr. Kern verified that Exhibit C-1 was a memorandum from the Director of Human Resources stating that the matter would be turned over to Board counsel for investigation. Exhibit C-2 is the summary of the Board attorney's investigation, which incorporated documents prepared by Mr. Kern. Specifically, Exhibit C-3 is Mr. Kern's chronology of events; Exhibits C-4 and C-5 are letters sent by Mr. Kern to Mrs. Lucas on May 5, 2008 and May 6, 2008, respectively. Exhibit C-6 is an email addressed to Mr. Kern and "signed" by Mr. Gordon, which Mr. Kern stated that he received. Mr. Kern affirmed that he did not read the email from the respondent as a threat, although he stated it was "a strong statement by Gordon to back off" (i.e., not take any disciplinary action against Lucas). Mr. Kern testified that the email did not affect his decision not to discipline Mrs. Lucas.

Mr. Kern confirmed that at the time of this incident, the Board was in the midst of negotiations with the [administrators'] union. Mr. Gordon was a Board member and chair of Negotiations Committee. Mrs. Lucas was the principal of the WHS and the President of the Willingboro Educational Administrators' Association (WEAA).

[2] It is presumed that the witness was referring to the County Board of Elections.

On cross-examination, Mr. Kern acknowledged that the Board had never taken formal action with respect to the mock election. Nevertheless, the activity was to take place on District property. He testified that concerns first arose when he was approached in late March or early April about flyers that were circulating; however, he did not discuss concerns with the Board at a meeting. Mr. Kern testified that about two weeks before the scheduled mock election, he "let it be known that it was heading in wrong direction." However, he did not "pull the plug" until the election date.

Mr. Kern further testified on cross-examination that he believed on the morning of April 15, 2008, he contacted the Board president, but did not call Mr. Gordon. He stated that he spoke with Mrs. Lucas on the way to his meeting, around "8:00 ish" and told her that the activity was cancelled. He returned to the district about 1:00 or 1:30 p.m. Mr. Kern stated that on his way to the roundtable meeting, he received calls indicating that there was "activity" in the Levitt Middle School, notwithstanding that he "pulled the plug on the whole thing." Mr. Kern stated that the Superintendent has the authority to approve every activity in the District. He acknowledged that if there were PTO/PTA events on the school property that were "something routinely scheduled" he may not get involved.

Theresa Anne Lucas testified for the complainants. She was the principal of the WHS at the time that the mock election was scheduled to take place. Mrs. Lucas explained that April 15, 2008 was a scheduled Career Day in her school. That morning, she was in the cafeteria; someone came to get her and told her that Mr. Gordon was in the building. She went to her office to meet him. Mrs. Lucas described Mr. Gordon as "pretty animated." According to Mrs. Lucas, Mr. Gordon was annoyed and stated that "we continuously do things in Willingboro to take opportunities away from children." He spoke about the mock election as an activity to engage the students in voting.

According to Mrs. Lucas, Mr. Gordon informed her that the Interim Superintendent had directed everyone not to hold this activity. Lucas testified that Mr. Gordon was adamant that this was a PTA activity. He further explained that she, as union president, needed to contact her members and tell them that the mock election was not a Board initiative, but rather, a PTA initiative; therefore, the activity should not stop. In this connection, Mrs. Lucas clarified that cancellation of the election did not affect WHS, since it was not a polling station. Nevertheless, Lucas testified that she informed Mr. Gordon: "I will call my colleagues and relay the message." She then began making calls; she talked to some colleagues. Some said they would wait until they received some confirmation; Mrs. Lucas reiterated that she was "just relaying the message."

Mrs. Lucas testified that she was confused and felt she was being put "between a rock and a hard place." She stated that she had a conversation with Mr. Kern around 7:45 a.m. that day and he told her that although it does not affect your school, he was going to be calling the other principals to let them know that we are not going forward with the mock election. Mr. Gordon's "future position," according to Lucas, was pretty clear: "it was almost common knowledge that [Mr. Gordon] would be the next Board president" and she did not want "to tick him off." Lucas stated that Gordon urged her, as the WEAA president, to make the calls to the other principals. She felt she was in a "damned if you do, damned if you don't" situation that was unsettling; she did not want to see her hard work "go down the tubes."

Later that day, at about 5:00 p.m., Mr. Kern approached her during a Middle States reception and asked, "Since when do you overturn my directive?" The question caught her by surprise. To this, she responded that she did not give anyone a directive contrary to his; rather, Mr. Gordon was there in her office and he made it clear that he needed the message to "get out" from her; she complied. According to Mrs. Lucas, Mr. Kern told her there could be some serious consequences; they would have to notify "the election board." Mrs. Lucas stated that she had no idea it was that serious. Mrs. Lucas felt that a Board member put her in a compromising position.

Mrs. Lucas identified Exhibit C-7 as a letter which she wrote to Mr. Kern on April 28, 2008 because she was concerned she could be subject to disciplinary action. Mrs. Lucas also identified Exhibit C-8 as a letter that she wrote to Mr. Kern on April 30, 2008. She testified that it was written a day after she had surgery. The letter recounts that she received a phone call in the morning from Gordon who stated that he was aware of her April 28th letter to Kern. Lucas stated that the letter had been given to her secretary to deliver. According to Lucas, Gordon said he would write a letter to Mr. Kern, but Lucas needed to "pull" the letter she had already written to him. Mrs. Lucas replied that she was home recovering from surgery. Gordon requested her email address. Thereafter, she received a draft email from Gordon addressed to Mr. Kern explaining what had happened (Exhibit C-6) Mrs. Lucas said she forwarded the email to the Board's attorney and to her attorney.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Lucas testified that although Mr. Gordon was Chair of the Negotiations Committee and she was the president of the WEAA, she was not participating regularly in negotiations because she was out on disability in December 2007 and returned for work on March 30, 2008. She worked through April 27, 2008, and then had a second surgery on April 28, 2008. Mrs. Lucas stated that Keith Ellerbe, the vice president of WEAA, was involved in the negotiations that year.

Mrs. Lucas denied that she made frequent calls to Mr. Gordon seeking advice. Instead, she said she returned his calls "and maybe on a couple occasions" called him to ask questions about a scheduled meeting. Most of these calls, Mrs. Lucas stated, were before December 2007; Mr. Ellerbe "picked up during the time she was out." Mrs. Lucas stated that while it was not "out of the ordinary" to talk with Mr. Gordon, it was out of the ordinary for Mr. Gordon to make such a request of her. She acknowledged that her letter of April 28th refers to interference from other Board members, not just Mr. Gordon.

Mrs. Lucas reiterated that when Mr. Gordon spoke with her on April 15th, he was annoyed that the mock election had been cancelled because it was not a Board initiative but a PTA initiative. Mrs. Lucas stated that to her knowledge it was not a Board initiative, "but when the schools are giving out flyers and the administrators need to make it work to move forward, it is questionable." She was confused about how to proceed. She restated that Mr. Gordon "was quite animated;" his voice was elevated at times. He appeared annoyed that there was a change, although he did not yell. He was in her office about 10-15 minutes. Mrs. Lucas conceded that Mr. Gordon had a reason to be in the building that day as he was speaking at Career Day, but he did not have to be in her office. Career Day activities were taking place in the library, which is the opposite end of the building from her office. Moreover, Mrs. Lucas explained that the ROTC students were greeting visitors and directing them to the library, so it was unusual for the respondent to come to her office that day, especially since she was not there, but at the career fair in the library.

Mrs. Lucas acknowledged on cross-examination that she is no longer the principal of the high school. She stated that, subsequent to the events herein, she was asked by Interim Superintendent Dawson to take a central office position, which she declined. Nevertheless, Mrs. Lucas learned that her principal's position was posted on October 8, 2008. After that, however, she was told she was not being transferred; the District restructured mid July [2009]. Mrs. Lucas acknowledged that she sent a letter to her attorney on October 11, 2008 with a detailed chronology. She stated that she retained an attorney "for other reasons" and she did file a suit recently having nothing to do with this matter. She stated that under the new Superintendent, a number of administrators were called and asked to cooperate with a restructuring, and she consented to a transfer.

Former Board member Sarah Holley testified for the complainants. She was a Board member on April 15, 2008 running for reelection. Ms. Holley testified that she had hip replacement surgery on March 16, 2008; while recuperating at home, she received calls from employees and people in the community that efforts were underway to unseat her. She was told that students were promised that if parents came out, students would get pizza. According to Ms. Holley, this was put in place by sitting Board members Gordon, Bouyer and Bolden, as well as the PTA. Ms. Holley testified that she was not informed that there would be a mock election; she heard from the community that it was put in place so the Board could "turn over" and be replaced. Ms. Holley testified that this would give Gordon control of the Board. She stated that the mock election was not a Board function. After the election, she made a request under the Open Public Records Act and learned of the investigation relative to this matter, which took place after she was off the Board.

Complainant Anthony John testified that on May 21, 2008, the Board received a letter from Senator Diane Allen regarding a potential settlement with Alonzo Kittrels, the former Superintendent of the District against whom tenure charges had been filed and were pending. (Exhibit C-9). That letter was copied to all Board members. Mr. Gordon, at that time, was President of the Board. Gordon responded to Senator Allen on the same date and said that he would contact her office to set up a meeting. Mr. John emailed Mr. Gordon stating that the Senator could not be told anything that happened in executive session. Mr. Gordon agreed. (Exhibit C-10) Mr. Gordon met with Senator Allen. By letter dated May 28, 2008, Senator Allen sent follow-up correspondence to Mr. Gordon requesting additional information. (Exhibit C-11)[3] Mr. John testified that Mr. Gordon should not have told the Senator anything about the pending settlement.

[3] It was noted that the letter marked as Exhibit C-11 was not copied to the Board and was addressed solely to Mr. Gordon. Mr. Gordon's counsel did not object to the letter coming into evidence.

Thereafter, on July 3, 2008, an article appeared in the Burlington County Times which recounted an interview with Mr. Gordon. As to the statements made by Gordon in the article, Mr. John stated that he was pretty sure the Board did not discuss the cost of the Kittrels litigation, but even if they did, that information should not have been given to the reporter. Mr. Johns recalled that a member of the public had asked for an update on the Kittrels settlement and the Board attorney said that the Board would not be giving any statements about that. Mr. John stated that at this point in time, no details had been given to the public about the determination to settle the Kittrels matter versus actually going to trial. Yet, Gordon is quoted in the article as providing reasons why the Board should settle and states that the Board was leaning toward settlement because of cost and prior mistakes made. Mr. John stated that the decision to settle was made "soon afterward."

Complainant Christopher Walker testified that he also received a call from the reporter about this article. According to Mr. Walker, the reporter said she understood that we would not be giving a comment, but she had already spoken to Mr. Gordon who provided a comment. He stated that the total cost of the litigation had not been discussed, although "rumors were rampant about proposed settlement."

Complainant Nock testified that the Board, during this time, was still involved in collective bargaining negotiations. He testified that a $10 million loan had been given to the town and that Senator Allen was supportive of Willingboro receiving this money.

Respondent Ken Gordon testified that he was a Board member in Willingboro from 2006 to 2009. He stated that he initially ran for the Board upon the urging of community members who were concerned about the district; he shared their desire to make changes. He served as President in his final term, 2008-2009.

Mr. Gordon testified that it was his understanding that the purpose of the mock election was to encourage the community to get involved in the election. He stated that one of the Board members had attended a seminar and learned about a "Kids Vote" program; the Board member brought the idea back to Willingboro. The purpose of the mock election was to increase voter turnout. Mr. Gordon stated that it was important because, in the past, decisions were not being made by people who had children in the district. The district had a history of low voter turnout. According to Mr. Gordon, the mock election was not intended to favor any candidate or viewpoint. The teachers' union and the PTAs were proponents of the event.

Mr. Gordon stated that the mock election was not the subject of Board action. The Board member who brought the idea to Willingboro was the chairperson of the PTO/PTA committee. There were general discussions, but no formal action taken. According to Mr. Gordon, the mock election was run by the WEA and PTA. The Board did not typically approve or get involved with WEA or PTA events. Mr. Gordon stated that the mock election idea was initially proposed around January or February. He first became aware of concerns with the event when Sarah Holley submitted a letter to the Interim Superintendent that was copied to the Board. Gordon testified that Holley felt this event was a conspiracy to get her off the Board. Gordon affirmed that this was not the purpose based on what he knew; he had no knowledge that the mock election was designed to favor one candidate over the other.

Mr. Gordon testified that he did not learn of other concerns with the mock election until the night before the election. He heard from his wife, who was a PTA president at the time, that there were concerns about the incentives being offered to students. Gordon stated that, as a result of these concerns, according to his wife, the PTA was informed that no incentives were to be offered and all agreed to this requirement. Thus, it was Gordon's understanding that it was not an issue and they were moving forward with the mock election.

Mr. Gordon testified that on the morning of April 15, he received a call from a PTA president informing him that the mock election had been cancelled. The caller stated that it was her understanding that the mock election had been cancelled by the Board, and she wanted to know why. Gordon initially thought that the caller had been given the wrong information; however, subsequent calls from the PTA seemed to reflect the same story: that the Board cancelled the mock election. Gordon testified that the PTA was beginning to talk about action that could be taken. He then called Board member called Bolden, who was Chair of the PTO/PTA committee and asked if she knew it was cancelled; she did not. He called Board member Bouyer and asked the same question; she did not know anything. Mr. Gordon stated that he then called the Interim Superintendent to find out what was going on. Mr. Gordon said he called Mr. Kern's cell phone number three times. He did not get a return call until later that evening.

Mr. Gordon was invited to speak at the WHS's Career Day on April 15th. First, he stopped to see Mr. Kern in person and his secretary told him Mr. Kern was out for the day; Mr. Gordon asked the secretary to help him get in touch with Mr. Kern. The secretary tried to call Mr. Kern, but could not reach him. Mr. Gordon then stopped to see the Business Administrator, who was not aware of the cancellation of the mock election. Mr. Gordon did not ask the Business Administrator to overrule the Interim Superintendent or take any action. Mr. Gordon stated that he had never known the Superintendent to get involved with cancellation of PTA/PTO events.

Mr. Gordon testified that he then left the central building and was approached by two principals. They told him that they had been called by a number of parents and they were confused by the cancellation. Mr. Gordon stated that he told the principals that the Board did not cancel the event. When he went to the High School for Career Day, Mr. Gordon affirmed that he signed in and went to the main office to let Mrs. Lucas know he was in the building. He said that he asked to see Mrs. Lucas just to inform her he was in the building.

According to Mr. Gordon, he asked Mrs. Lucas if she was aware of the confusion surrounding the cancellation of the mock election. She said that she was. Mr. Gordon said he was concerned because the district was in the midst of negotiations, that things were going well and he did not want this to affect labor discussions. He informed her that the Board did not cancel the mock election. Gordon explained that because "her principals" stopped him in parking lot, he asked her to please call her members to let them know the cancellation did not come from the Board. He was there for about 5-10 minutes. Mr. Gordon testified that he did not insist that she call the principals; he did not issue a direct order; he asked her for reasons of clarity and negotiation goals. He did not ask her to tell her membership to proceed with the mock election. He had been told that the Interim Superintendent attributed the cancellation to the Board and Mr. Gordon wanted to be clear that this was not the case. Mr. Gordon did not intend for Mrs. Lucas to take any action to contradict the Interim Superintendent's directive. He did not raise his voice; he stated it would be out of character for him to yell. Mr. Gordon stated that he and Mrs. Lucas were merely standing in her office talking. After this exchange, Mr. Gordon left Mrs. Lucas' office and was escorted to Career Day. Before exiting the building that day, Mr. Gordon returned to tell Mrs. Lucas that he was leaving and he asked her if she had spoken with her members; she said that she had.

Mr. Gordon testified that he felt that it was important that Mrs. Lucas know that the Board was trying to support the union. As the Chair of the Negotiations Committee, Mr. Gordon affirmed that he had frequent interactions with Mrs. Lucas as President of bargaining unit. He explained that although the actual negotiations occurred in a group setting, he nevertheless had a number of occasions to interact with Mrs. Lucas. Mr. Gordon further testified that since he was on the Board, Mrs. Lucas regularly sought him out. He estimated that in the months from September 2007 through December 2007, she called him about 35-40 times on matters not necessarily limited to collective bargaining issues. According to Mr. Gordon, he tried to coach Mrs. Lucas "into using the process," but she felt she was victimized.

Mr. Gordon affirmed that he believed that the way the announcement of cancellation was made, the Board would have to deal with the brunt of the discontent. In speaking to the PTA presidents, they believed it was illegal for the Interim Superintendent to bar a PTA event. According to Mr. Gordon, the Board's policy provides that the Business Administrator determines who can use the District's facilities. Mr. Gordon testified that he believed that the public needs to be accommodated and, with the Interim Superintendent out of the District that day, there was potential for legal conflict. According to Mr. Gordon, "we were in the line of fire based on our policies and the PTA was upset."

Mr. Gordon testified that after April 15, 2008, his relationship with Lucas changed. About a week later, he received a call from Mrs. Lucas who stated that Board members were telling her that he "had thrown her under the bus." Mr. Gordon staid he spoke with Mr. Kern on the evening of April 15, 2008 and "his demeanor very different from today [when he testified]." Mr. Gordon said that Mr. Kern apologized for what happened. Gordon said that Kern "appeared to have an axe to grind with Mrs. Lucas." According to Mr. Gordon, there were ongoing efforts to discipline Mrs. Lucas and Mr. Kern wanted her to be removed as a principal. Mr. Gordon stated that Mrs. Lucas's attorney had served the Board with intent to sue on harassment claims.

With respect to the Kittrels litigation, Mr. Gordon stated that there had been a budgetary shortfall. The initial tenure charges that were brought against Kittrels by the Board were "thrown out" because the Board had done improper things. Gordon stated that he was on the Board when the initial tenure charges were dismissed. The Board had to recertify the charges. According to Gordon, the Board questioned the potential of a settlement. Gordon stated that, "we did not think they would go for it but we floated it out there." This discussion, according to Gordon, took place about four months before the meeting with Senator Allen.

Mr. Gordon stated that prior to the meeting with Senator Allen, there was a verbal agreement to pursue a settlement. According to Gordon, the Board was told it was a binding agreement as long as it was approved by the Commissioner of Education. The State Monitor reported the proposed settlement to the Commissioner and they were awaiting the approval. When the Commissioner had more questions that needed to be answered, they "were in limbo" while waiting for approval. According to Gordon, the next step was to sign and execute the documents and it was a "done deal." The Board would approve the settlement, then the Commissioner would review it.

Mr. Gordon testified that people came to a Board meeting and asked about the letter from Senator Allen. According to Gordon, they were angry and upset about it. Gordon testified that in public session, he made the public aware that he would meet with Senator Allen. Before that public session, Gordon stated that he had not talked to anyone about it. Gordon said that the Board did not confirm or deny what Senator Allen stated but merely stated that the information "was out there."

Mr. Gordon testified that upon receiving the letter from Senator Allen, the Board talked about whether he should meet with her and what he should say. Mr. John was present at that meeting. Mr. Gordon stated that the majority of the Board believed that "we needed to meet with her and give her general information, not specifics." He said that the Board authorized his meeting with Senator Allen, although there was no formal vote. As the President of the Board, he would handle external communications. Additionally, Mr. Gordon testified that he conferred with the Board attorney about what he could say. He was told that he could meet with the Senator as long as he provided no specifics. He was also advised to discuss the matter with the State Monitor. The meeting was with Mr. Gordon, Senator Allen and her aide. Mr. Gordon said that he discussed the initial tenure charges that were brought by the Board and dismissed. Gordon testified that he did not provide any details about pending matters and specifics about what the Board would do. According to Mr. Gordon, Senator Allen was key in getting the $10 million loan for the district and it was his understanding that that Sarah Holley informed the Senator about a potential settlement.

After the meeting, Mr. Gordon received a confirming letter from Senator Allen (Exhibit C-11). Mr. Gordon testified he believed that the "mistakes" to which the Senator referred in her letter were those mistakes made in bringing the initial tenure charges against Kittrels, and she was not asking for information about pending legal matters. Mr. Gordon stated that it was not up to him to provide her with such information since she could have obtained it for herself.

Mr. Gordon testified that when the reporter for the Burlington County Times called him about a potential settlement, he asked if he could call her back. He then called the Board attorney and made him aware of the reporter's phone call. Mr. Gordon returned the reporter's call; she wanted a statement. Mr. Gordon does not dispute that he stated what was printed in the article on July 3, 2008. He stated that she quoted him accurately. He merely stated that the Board was bound to explore all possibilities and that legal bills associated with litigating the matter could result in a cost of $1 million. Mr. Gordon explained how he arrived at that figure. A member of the public once asked the Board in a public session how much it spent for litigation on an annual basis; according to Mr. Gordon, the annual legal budget was $300,000. Thus, Gordon reasoned that if the case went on for three years, the costs could be $1 million.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gordon acknowledged that his sister was running for the Board in 2008 and was endorsed by the WEA. He had no way of knowing whether increased voter turnout would benefit her. He stated that he was not aware that the Board's policy with respect to usage of its facilities provided for final approval by the Superintendent. The mock election issues for the students were about Field Day and dress down days.

With respect to the email that Gordon sent to Kern (Exhibit C-6), Mr. Gordon stated that although the email indicates that he called Mr. Kern in his office on April 15th, he called him both on his cell phone and at his office. Gordon addressed the language that he used in the email to Kern. Specifically, the email states that he told Mrs. Lucas that "she was to instruct the principals...." To this, Gordon stated that the Board was not involved with the mock election and he did not give Mrs. Lucas a directive to countermand what the Superintendent said or did. Mr. Gordon felt it was necessary to clarify this with the principals because he did not want the principals "to feel that they were left out to dry." It was not his intent to speak on behalf of the entire Board. According to Mr. Gordon, Mrs. Lucas made no objection and she expressed no reservations to him. Gordon stated, "I believe as a board member I have a right to straighten out misinformation that could have been injurious to the board." Gordon insisted that he did not tell Mrs. Lucas to countermand the Interim Superintendent.

With respect to the letter from Senator Allen, Mr. Gordon stated that the majority of the Board agreed to the settlement and had given the "OK" to the attorneys; Senator Allen "heard" about it, but the board had never told the public.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Both parties in their testimony referred to tenure charges that were brought against the former Superintendent, Alonzo Kittrels. However, neither party brought any related document to the record. Accordingly, the Commission informed the parties at the hearing on August 25, 2008 that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2, it would take official notice of the decisions issued relative to this litigation. Neither party objected. Thus, the Commission takes official notice of the following facts:

1. On November 28, 2005, the Willingboro Board of Education filed tenure charges against Alonzo Kittrels, then Superintendent of Schools. The Board voted to certify the charges to the Commissioner of Education on December 5, 2005. Thereafter, Mr. Kittrels filed suit in Superior Court alleging that the Board violated the Open Public Meetings Act at the November 25 and December 22, 2005 meetings. On May 11, 2007, Judge Sweeney entered an Order granting summary judgment to Kittrels. The Board of Education agreed to a voluntary dismissal of the tenure charges based on Judge Sweeney's Order. The agreement to dismiss the charges was approved by the Administrative Law Judge on November 14, 2007 and by the Commissioner of Education on December 24, 2007. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alonzo Kittrels, School District of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 00099-06, Agency Dkt. No. 387-12/05. ("Kittrels I")

2. The Board brought tenure charges against Kittrels a second time. On or about March 31, 2008, these charges were certified to the Commissioner of Education and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case. An initial decision in the form of a settlement was issued by the ALJ on July 10, 2008 and referred to the Commissioner for final determination. A certification from Board Counsel therein states that on June 23, 2008 during Executive Session, the Board discussed the settlement agreement and approved the terms, contingent upon approval by the Commissioner of Education." By decision dated August 26, 2008, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings finding that the proposed settlement did not meet the legal standard necessary for the settlement of tenure matters. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alonzo Kittrels, School District of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 2820-08, Agency Dkt. No. 102-4/08 ("Kittrels II")

3. The Commissioner approved the settlement in Kittrels II on May 27, 2009. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alonzo Kittrels, School District of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8566-08, Agency Dkt. No. 102-4/08

The Commission was able to discern the following facts based on the testimony, pleadings and all documents submitted.

4. At all times relevant to this complaint, the complainants and the respondent were members of the Board.

5. The respondent was a Board member from 2006 through 2009. He was the President of the Board for the 2008-2009 term.

6. In the Spring of 2008, the District had been considering holding a mock election for students to be held on April 15, 2008. The purpose of the election was to increase voter turnout. The students would vote on student-related issues.

7. The mock election was sponsored by the PTO/PTA along with the WEA. Although Board members were aware of the mock election, the Board never took action to formally authorize the activity.

8. As election day approached, Interim Superintendent Kern became increasingly concerned about holding the mock election when he became aware that incentives were being offered to the students.

9. A meeting was held on April 11, 2008 to discuss the concerns with the mock election.

10. On the morning of April 15, 2008, Interim Superintendent Kern made the decision to cancel the mock election.

11. Mr. Kern attended a county superintendents' roundtable meeting on April 15, 2008.

12. Phone calls were made to all principals that morning to advise them that the mock election was cancelled.

13. Mrs. Teresa Ann Lucas, then principal of the Willingboro High School, received a call from Mr. Kern regarding cancellation of the mock election at approximately 8:00 a.m. on April 15, 2008.

14. Respondent Ken Gordon received calls at home that morning from PTO members who were questioning the cancellation. They believed that the Board of Education cancelled the event and they wanted to know why. Mr. Gordon called Board members Bolden and Bouyer to find out what they knew; they did not know anything about the cancellation that day.

15. Mr. Gordon tried to reach Mr. Kern by telephone that morning, but could not.

16. Mr. Gordon was scheduled to participate in the Career Day that was being held on April 15, 2008 at Willingboro High School.

17. Before going to the High School, Mr. Gordon stopped by the central office to see Mr. Kern, who was not in the building. Mr. Kern's secretary tried to call Mr. Kern, but could not reach him.

18. Mr. Gordon then stopped to see the Business Administrator, who was not aware of the cancellation of the mock election. Mr. Gordon did not ask the Business Administrator to overrule the Interim Superintendent or take any action.

19. Mr. Gordon left the central building and was approached by two principals who informed him that they had been called by a number of parents and they were confused by the cancellation. Mr. Gordon told the principals that the Board did not cancel the event.

20. Mr. Gordon went to the High School for Career Day; he signed in and went to the main office. He asked to see Mrs. Lucas.

21. At the time, Mrs. Lucas was the President of the WEAA and Mr. Gordon was the Chair of the Negotiations Committee. The Board was involved in negotiations with the administrators' bargaining unit.

22. Mr. Gordon was upset about the cancellation; he felt that it was important that Mrs. Lucas know that the Board was trying to support the union. Mr. Gordon informed Mrs. Lucas that the Board did not cancel the mock election.

23. Mr. Gordon asked Mrs. Lucas to call the other principals to let them know the cancellation did not come from the Board and, therefore, they were not to stand in the way of the event. He was there for about 5-10 minutes. After this exchange, Mr. Gordon left Mrs. Lucas' office and was escorted to Career Day. Before exiting the building that day, Mr. Gordon returned to tell Lucas that he was leaving and he asked her if she had spoken with her members; she said that she had.

24. The Levitt Middle School conducted a mock election. (Exhibit C-3)

25. At a Board meeting on April 21, 2008, Mr. Kern mentioned the possibility of disciplining Mrs. Lucas.

26. By letter dated April 28, 2008, Mrs. Lucas wrote to Mr. Kern regarding his statements at the public meeting. Mrs. Lucas stated therein stated, in pertinent part:

> As we discussed on Tuesday, April 15, 2008, I was given a clear directive from Ken Gordon, Board President, as WEAA President, to contact WEAA members.[4]
> The message clearly stated that the mock election was not a Board Function, but a PTA Activity. Therefore, we had no involvement should the activity take place. Please note that when you contacted me at 8:30 a.m. that morning you only indicated that you would be calling principals to inform them that the Board would not be holding mock elections.

[4] Mr. Gordon was not the Board president at this time. Testimony from Mrs. Lucas, as set forth above, indicates that she was aware of that fact.

> At no point did you indicate that this was a directive for PTA or WEA not to hold mock elections. More importantly, principals received no written notification, nor did they receive information that the event would be cancelled prior to Election Day." (Exhibit C-7)

27. On April 29, 2008, Mr. Gordon called Mrs. Lucas. Thereafter, on the same date, Mr. Gordon forwarded to Mrs. Lucas a draft of an email addressed to Mr. Kern. Mr. Kern received the email, although it is not clear when he received it. Addressing the events of April 15, 2008, Mr. Gordon stated, in pertinent part:

> I indicated to Mrs. Lucas that she should contact the Principals, as the President of the WEAA and inform them that the Mock Election was not a Board of Education Function. I further indicated that it was unprecedented for a PTA function to be canceled by the Superintendent. Therefore, she was to instruct them not to interfere or stand in the way of said event.
> As the presumptive Board President, clearly this placed Mrs. Lucas in an awkward position. However, this position was no more awkward than the position in which the other Principals were placed when they were asked to cancel a non-Board of Education function sponsored by the PTA. As I indicated to you in person, the organizers of the event were well aware of the need to ensure incentives were not provided. When a report came to you indicating that incentives were promised, it should have been dealt with on a case by case basis and not by canceling the entire event.
> Mr. Kern, the bottom line is that many of us responded in a manner which, if we could do it all over again, we would likely do differently. If we are to mete out discipline or counsel those involved that did not respond in a matter [sic] you or I would have liked, as the leaders of this School District, then the line would be quite long. Therefore, it is unfair to single out Mrs. Lucas and counsel her. Further, it would be inadvisable to mete out discipline in any form to the President of the Union, who was advising the unit members on direction given from the presumptive Board president.
> Mr. Kern, again, this was a learning situation for everyone involved. As I would not condone Board Members to take action against you for your handling of the situation, I will not condone any action against Mrs. Lucas. Any action towards or against her would be unwarranted and unfair. The course of action we should all take is to reflect, learn and move forward. It is my sincere desire that this is the course of action you will choose in this case. (Exhibit C-6)

28. By letter dated April 30, 2008, Mrs. Lucas wrote to Mr. Kern stating that she had received a call from Mr. Gordon on April 29, 2009. Mrs. Lucas states in the letter:

> At that time he stated that I should contact someone to have them pull the letter dated April 28, 2008 that I had addressed to you, the Interim Superintendent; and all related copies. He further stated that I should give him an opportunity to forward his letter to you on my behalf indicating that you should refrain from any disciplinary actions toward me in regards to the mock elections. Subsequently, the Board President emailed a copy of his letter to my address requesting that I review its' content and respond with comments. (Exhibit C-8)

29. By letter dated May 5, 2008, Mr. Kern wrote to Mrs. Lucas responding to her letter of April 28, 2008. Mr. Kern stated, in relevant part:

> You stated in your letter that Mr. Gordon was the Board President. This is incorrect. The phone calls occurred when Rita Owens was Board President and Mr. Gordon was a Board member. In either situation, neither a Board Member nor a Board President can give a directive to a staff member.

Mr. Kern therein reminded Mrs. Lucas of the line of authority in the District and added:

> The message I relayed to all Principals was that the 'mock election' would be cancelled. Again, it is irrelevant who or what group sponsored the event. This call was made by me and my Administrative Assistant to all Principals on the morning of and prior to the Elections taking place. A written memo was sent via e-mail on April 15, 2008 to all Principals. (Exhibit C-4)

30. By letter dated May 6, 2008, Mr. Kern wrote to Mrs. Lucas responding to her letter of April 30, 2008. (Exhibit C-5)

31. By letter or email dated May 21, 2008, Senator Diane Allen wrote to Mr. Gordon, as the President of the Board. Senator Allen's letter stated, in full:

> I have heard that the Willingboro School District is considering giving Willingboro Superintendent Alonzo Kittrels a lump sum bonus to buy out his contract. I understand his contract ends on June 30, 2008 so I am confused about the need to take this action. I feel very strongly that this is not a good way to spend the district funds, funds that I helped secure to get the District out of a terrible financial situation brought about by a number of people, possibly including Mr. Kittrels.

I would like to meet with you prior to you taking any action on this issue. Please contact my office with your availability as soon as possible. (Exhibit C-9)

The letter was copied to all Board members.

32. Mr. Gordon responded to the Senator's letter indicating that he would contact her "first thing tomorrow morning (Thursday May 22) to arrange a meeting whereby, to the extent possible, I can clarify and provide information into the situation, as well as straighten out the misinformation currently circulating through the community." (Exhibit C-10)

33. Complainant Tony John wrote in an email to Mr. Gordon: "While I understand Senator Allen feels she should know what is going on with the Kittrels issue, I don't think the Willingboro Board of Education should give her anything but a 'no comment.' Everything discussed so far is supposed to be confidential and unless there is a leak on the board, it doesn't matter what is out there. There will always be rumors and misinformation...." (Exhibit C-10)

34. Mr. Gordon responded to Mr. John's email, agreeing with his assessment. He stated, "However, I will give her the respect of telling her 'no comment' and 'we cannot discuss executive session material' in person." Gordon added, "Again, I am in complete agreement that it is paramount we not breach Executive Session confidentiality to anyone, including our Honorable Senator. You have my commitment that this will not occur from the Vice President or me." (Exhibit C-10)

35. Prior to meeting with the Senator, Mr. Gordon discussed with both the Board attorney and the State Monitor what information could be shared with her.

36. Mr. Gordon met with the Senator and her aide on May 28, 2008.

37. By letter dated May 28, 2008, Senator Allen wrote to Mr. Gordon as a "follow-up" to their meeting. Senator Allen stated, in relevant part: "You will recall that at the May 28, 2008 meeting, you indicated that you felt you had to settle with Mr. Kittrels as a result of mistakes that were made by various attorneys and Board members. You explained that a lawsuit could result in substantially more than a settlement." The Senator therein requested that Mr. Gordon "forward the information pertaining to the mistakes that was previously requested to my office as soon as possible." (Exhibit C-11)

38. On July 3, 2008, the Burlington County Times published an article entitled, " W'boro board eying settlement with Kittrels." The reporter contacted Mr. Gordon for comment. He is therein quoted as saying, "What we are looking at now is, is there a way for us to settle all the (legal) cases across the board –the ones he has filed against us and the ones we filed against him ---that allows us to move on as a district and to allow the taxpayers to stop spending good money on the bad." According to the article, which Mr. Gordon did not deny was an accurate representation of his statement, the charges pending in the Kittrels litigation could result in two years of hearing and legal bills costing the district $1 million. (Exhibit C-12)

The Commission initially notes that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29b, the complainants bear the burden of factually proving any violations of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. The complainant asserts that the respondent's conduct violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (d), (e), (g), (i) and (j) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

Count One:

The complainants allege that on April 15, 2008, the respondent instructed the principal to ignore a decision by the Interim Superintendent not to hold PTA/WEA sponsored mock elections. The complainants contend that the respondent told the principal to contact each of the district's principals and inform them that the mock election could proceed. (Complaint at Count 1, paragraph 1) The complainants assert this was a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (d), (e), (i) and (j). N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) states:

> I will confine my board action to policy making, planning, and appraisal, and I will help to frame policies and plans only after the board has consulted those who will be affected by them.

The evidence on this record shows that the Board never took action to formally support or authorize the mock election. The complainants have not demonstrated that the respondent's actions, as set forth in the Findings of Fact 15-23 were "board action" so as to implicate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c). Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have not established that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

The Commission next considers whether Mr. Gordon violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), which states:

> I will carry out my responsibility, not to administer the schools, but, together with my fellow board members, to see that they are well run.

In order to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), the complainants must show that the respondent "administered" the schools, contrary to his duty as a board member. To administer the schools means that a board member has become directly involved in activities or functions that are the responsibility of school personnel or the day-to-day administration of the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.1.

Here, the Commission finds that Mr. Gordon improperly administered the schools in three ways: (1) by directing Mrs. Lucas, a school administrator, to contact the other principals and tell them that the mock election was not a Board event; (2) by directing Mrs. Lucas to tell the principals not to stand in the way of the mock election (Exhibit C-6), notwithstanding that the Interim Superintendent had already informed the principals that the mock election was cancelled; and (3) by insisting that the Interim Superintendent refrain from disciplining Mrs. Lucas (Exhibit C-6).

With respect to Mr. Gordon's directives to Mrs. Lucas, the Commission finds his writing to be most persuasive:

> I indicated to Mrs. Lucas that she should contact the Principals, as the President of the WEAA and inform them that the Mock Election was not a Board of Education Function. I further indicated that it was unprecedented for a PTA function to be canceled by the Superintendent. Therefore, she was to instruct them not to interfere or stand in the way of said event.
> As the presumptive Board President, clearly this placed Mrs. Lucas in an awkward position. However, this position was no more awkward than the position in which the other Principals were placed when they were asked to cancel a non-Board of Education function sponsored by the PTA. As I indicated to you in person, the organizers of the event were well aware of the need to ensure incentives were not provided. When a report came to you indicating that incentives were promised, it should have been dealt with on a case by case basis and not by canceling the entire event.
> Mr. Kern, the bottom line is that many of us responded in a manner which, if we could do it all over again, we would likely do differently. If we are to mete out discipline or counsel those involved that did not respond in a matter [sic] you or I would have liked, as the leaders of this School District, then the line would be quite long. Therefore, it is unfair to single out Mrs. Lucas and counsel her. Further, it would be inadvisable to mete out discipline in any form to the President of the Union, who was advising the unit members on direction given from the presumptive Board president.
> Mr. Kern, again, this was a learning situation for everyone involved. As I would not condone Board Members to take action against you for your handling of the situation, I will not condone any action against Mrs. Lucas. Any action towards or against her would be unwarranted and unfair. The course of action we should all take is to reflect, learn and move forward. It is my sincere desire that this is the course of action you will choose in this case. (Exhibit C-6, emphasis added)

The Commission finds that Mr. Gordon took it upon himself to intervene in a situation which was the responsibility of the Interim Superintendent. As Mr. Kern noted in his letter to Mrs. Lucas (Exhibit C-4), it is irrelevant who or what organization sponsored the mock election. The activity was to take place on school grounds and the Interim Superintendent had the right to cancel the mock election if he felt uncomfortable with the activity.[5] When the mock election was canceled by the Interim Superintendent, no matter how confusing the circumstances may have been, it was not Mr. Gordon's place to remedy the confusion or insert himself into the situation. The fact that Mr. Kern was out of the district for a portion of the day on April 15, 2008 is of no moment. Whatever uncertainty ensued as a result of the last-minute cancellation was Mr. Kern's problem to address. Moreover, the decision to discipline an employee is made by the administration, not a Board member. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have demonstrated that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d).

The complainants next contend that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), which provides:

> I will recognize that authority rests with the board of education and will make no personal promises nor take any private action that may compromise the board.

"Private action" means any action taken by a member of a district board of education that is beyond the scope of the duties and responsibilities of the member. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.1.[6] For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that the respondent took private action: (1) by directing Mrs. Lucas, a school administrator, to contact the other principals and tell them that the mock election was not a Board event; and (2) by directing Mrs. Lucas to tell the principals not to stand in the way of the mock election (Exhibit C-6), notwithstanding that the Interim Superintendent had already informed the principals that the mock election was cancelled. In this connection, the Commission finds that the respondent's explanation of his reasons for seeking out Mrs. Lucas (i.e., to let her know that he was in the building) were not persuasive, particularly in light of his repeated statement of concern that he needed to address the confusion that ensued following the cancellation. Indeed, that was his reason for talking to Mrs. Lucas on April 15, 2008.

Further, it is not necessary that the Commission find that such action, in fact, compromised the Board. Rather, it is sufficient that the action was of such a nature that it may have compromised the Board. The Commission finds that it was. Specifically, the respondent's private action on April 15, 2008, as set forth above, resulted in the principals receiving mixed messages about the mock election. Mr. Kern's testimony fairly established that that incentives that had already been offered and advertised might have tainted the school board election that was being held on the same date. To the extent any mock elections were held on that date, the [5] To the extent the respondent asserted that the Board's policy does not allow for such discretion, it is noted that the Commission does not have jurisdiction to consider allegations of violations of local Board policy.

[6] It is noted, however, that in Marc Sovelove v. Paul Breda, Mine Hill Twp. Bd. of Ed., C49-05 (September 26, 2006), the Commission found that a Board member's action cannot be both board action and private action. Conversely, if a board member's action is found to be private action it cannot constitute board action.

Board may have been compromised. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have established that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

Recently, in the matter entitled Dericks et. al. v. Schiavoni, Sparta Board of Education, C41-07, the Commission found that when the then-Board President rushed to submit a letter to the editor in response to an article that he believed was injurious to the Board without first obtaining the Board's consent, he failed to recognize that the authority to address any perceived problems as a result of the first article rested with the Board. Because the Board President's letter to the editor clearly addressed Board business and was intended to speak for the Board of Education, the Commission found that there was a reasonable likelihood that the public would perceive this letter to be an official statement of the Board's position. Thus, the Commission found, and the Commissioner of Education affirmed, that the Board President's private action could have compromised the Board if, indeed, the Board did not subscribe, as whole, to the statements he made in the letter to the editor, particular since these statements concerned the administration of the schools. Jennifer Dericks et al., v. Michael Schiavoni, Sparta Township Board of Education, Sussex County, C41-07 (February 24, 2009), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 260-09SEC, decided August 18, 2009.

The complainants next contend that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i), which provides:

> I will support and protect school personnel in proper performance of their duties.

The Commission herein finds that the Interim Superintendent was acting within the proper performance of his duty as the chief school administrator when, on April 15, 2008, he cancelled the mock election. To the extent that the respondent nevertheless directed Mrs. Lucas to contact the other principals and tell them that the mock election was not a Board event, and further instruct them not to stand in the way of the mock election (Exhibit C-6), notwithstanding that the Interim Superintendent had already informed the principals that the mock election was cancelled, the respondent failed to support the Interim Superintendent in the proper performance of his duties. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have established that the respondent failed to support and protect school personnel in the proper performance of their duties, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i).

The Commission next considers whether Mr. Gordon violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j), which states:

> I will refer all complaints to the chief administrative officer and will act on the complaints at public meetings only after failure of an administrative solution.

As used in this provision, "complaint" means a concern, issue or dissatisfaction that a member of the public or a member of the school personnel has brought to the attention of a member of the district board of education. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.1. On this record, the Commission finds that the complainants did not establish that the respondent was acting on a "complaint," but, rather, that he was acting to straighten out what he believed to be misinformation about the cancellation of the mock election. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have not established that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(j).

Count Two

In the second count, the complainants allege that the respondent met with Senator Diane Allen and made statements about topics discussed by the Board in executive session concerning the litigation which the Board was involved in with its prior superintendent, Alonzo Kitrels. (Complaint at Count 2) The complainants assert that, "By Mr. Gordon disclosing his own interpretation of what was discussed at executive session meetings whether factual or not put the Board at a disadvantage concerning the Kittrels litigation." (Complaint at Count 2, paragraph 8). The complainants assert that these actions constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (g).

In order to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), as set forth above, the complainants must demonstrate that the respondent failed to recognize that authority rests with the board of education and made personal promises or took private action that was of such a nature that it could have compromised the board. Based on the factual findings, the respondent met with Senator Allen with both the knowledge and the consent of the Board. Thus, the Commission cannot find that, in so doing, that Mr. Gordon took private action or failed to recognize that authority rests with the board of education.

Further, the complainants assert that Mr. Gordon violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) which states:

> I will hold confidential all matters pertaining to the schools which, if disclosed, would needlessly injure individuals or the schools. In all other matters, I will provide accurate information and, in concert with my fellow board members, interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.[7]

None of the complainants attended the meeting with Senator Allen. This charge rests solely on the Senator's letter dated May 28, 2008 which refers to "mistakes that were made by various attorneys and Board members." (C-11) The respondent testified that he believed that the Senator's letter referred to the Kittrels I litigation, not the Kittrels II litigation and the complainants did not offer any proofs to the contrary. Indeed, by May 2008, the facts associated with the Kittrels I matter, including the mistakes that were made in bringing the original tenure charges, were a matter of public record. (See, Factual Finding #1) Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants failed to establish that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) or (g) in connection with Count Two.

[7] Complainants do not appear to allege that the respondent violated the "inaccurate information" provision of the statute, so the Commission does not address this portion of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g).

Count Three

In the third count, the complainants allege that in a July 3, 2008 newspaper article in the Burlington County Times, the respondent commented on current litigation offering "his interpretation of information that might or might not have been discussed in executive session." (Complaint at Count 3, paragraph 13) The complainants assert that this action constituted a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (g).

As noted, in order to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), the complainants must demonstrate that the respondent failed to recognize that authority rests with the board of education and made personal promises or took private action that was of such a nature that it could have compromised the board. In this connection, the respondent testified that he was the Board President at the time and he was authorized to speak to the press. He also stated that he conferred with the Board attorney before speaking to the reporter. Thus, the Commission does not find that, in this instance, the complainants established that the respondent took "private action" in speaking with the reporter.

With respect to the alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), as set forth above, the complainants seem to argue that Mr. Gordon: 1) released confidential information pertaining to the schools which, if disclosed, would needlessly injure individuals or the schools; and 2) provided inaccurate information with his statement to the reporter.

On this count, the Commission finds that the complainants failed to establish what information regarding the Kittrels II litigation remained confidential as of July 3, 2008. Indeed, Senator Allen's letter of May 21, 2008 started with: "I have heard that the Willingboro School District is considering giving Willingboro Superintendent Alonzo Kittrels a lump sum bonus to buy out his contract." (Exhibit C-11) Complainant Walker stated in his testimony that "rumors were rampant about a proposed settlement." As to the alleged inaccuracy of the statement made by Gordon about the potential costs of litigation, Mr. Gordon testified that he arrived at the $1 million figure based on a question that a member of the public once asked the Board in a public session how much it budgeted for litigation on an annual basis. The complainants offer no persuasive testimony or documentary evidence to the contrary, as is their burden. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainants have failed to prove that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) or (g) in connection with Count Three.

DECISION

The Commission finds that respondent Ken Gordon violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members and the Commission dismisses the allegations that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (g) and (j).

PENALTY

The Commission recommends that the respondent be reprimanded. Initially, it is noted that the respondent no longer serves as a Board member. The Commission further notes that the violations found herein evolved from a single date, notwithstanding that Mr. Gordon's own writing on April 29, 2008 summarizing such events, in fact, contributed to the findings of violation. On balance, the Commission is persuaded by the documentary and testimonial evidence on this record that the respondent's actions on April 15, 2008 were motivated by his misguided attempt to "straighten out misinformation" (see Gordon's testimony at page 10), rather any desire to contradict or confront the decisions of the Interim Superintendent. Nevertheless, in so doing, he undoubtedly overstepped his role as a Board member, which cannot be overlooked or excused by the Commission.[8]

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

[8] Contrast, the Board member's actions in Jennifer Dericks et al., v. Michael Schiavoni, Sparta Township Board of Education, Sussex County, C45-07 (April 28, 2009), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 294-09SEC, decided September 15, 2009, where, on appeal, the Commissioner agreed that censure was an appropriate penalty for a former Board member found to be in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) and (d). The Commissioner therein noted that the Board member's actions evidenced far more than a disagreement with the Superintendent and, instead, "are tantamount to a willful, full-scale usurpation of the role and responsibilities of the district administration." Resolution Adopting Decision – C34-08

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has considered the pleadings filed by the parties, the documents submitted in support thereof, and the testimony of the parties from its hearing on August 25, 2009; and

Whereas, at it meeting of September 22, 2009, the Commission found that the respondent, Ken Gordon, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members and the Commission dismissed the allegations that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (g) and (j); and

Whereas, at its meeting on October 27, 2009 agreed that the within decision accurately memorializes its findings and recommendations; and

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The record of this emergent matter, the audio recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In so doing, however, the Commissioner modifies the ALJ's analysis as set forth below.

Initially, contrary to the conclusion of the ALJ, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has met the threshold criterion of irreparable harm. The Commissioner so holds notwithstanding that participation in extracurricular activities such as the Spanish Exchange program is a privilege rather than a right, since the opportunity to participate in these activities cannot be regained once lost, and were the Commissioner to permit emergent applications to be dismissed for failure to demonstrate irreparable harm on the grounds here relied upon by the Board and set forth in the OAL order, school district actions in matters of this type would be effectively insulated from any meaningful review on appeal.[1]

However, as properly recognized by the ALJ, applicants seeking extraordinary relief must also demonstrate that the legal right underlying their claim is settled, that they have a likelihood of success on the merits of their underlying appeal and that the balance of interests and equities under the circumstances rests in their favor. In the Commissioner's view, it is here that petitioner's application fails.

With respect to applicable law, it is – as the ALJ has stated – well settled that students do not have an absolute entitlement to participate in extracurricular activities, and that discretionary actions of a local district board of education are entitled to a presumption of correctness and may not be disturbed on appeal unless they are shown to have been unlawful, arbitrary and unreasonable or contrary to district policy. Moreover, petitioner cannot be found to

[1] The Commissioner is fully cognizant of the well-established principle that a prohibition from extracurricular activities does not, in and of itself, rise to the level of irreparable harm necessary to warrant extraordinary remedy. However, harm is "irreparable" when there can be no adequate after-the-fact remedy in law or in equity, and monetary damages cannot adequately redress the intangibles of a lost experience after the activity is over. In past cases denying similar applications for emergent relief, the irreparable nature of the harm and the degree or severity of the harm have frequently been addressed together; they are, however, two separate factors, and it is on the basis of the severity of the harm – which pertains to the weighing of interests – and not its irreparable nature that applications of this kind typically fail. Martin A. Domacasse v. Board of Education of the North Warren Regional School District, Warren County, decided by the State Board April 17, 1996; L.J., on behalf of minor child, S.J. and David Wickham v. Board of Education of the Township of Manchester, Ocean County, decided by the Commissioner May 2, 2003. The Commissioner has consistently recognized this distinction in more recent rulings on emergent applications seeking restoration of privilege; see, for example, S.L., on behalf of minor child, D.L. v. Board of Education of the Township of Verona, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner September 7, 2007; *D.M.S., on behalf of minor child, E.B. and Gregory Heck v. clearly prevail on the balancing of equities, since – although petitioner certainly has a valid interest in ensuring that her child, notwithstanding his admitted infraction, is not unfairly deprived of a unique opportunity for educational and personal enrichment, enhancement of college applications, and furtherance of career interests – the Board of Education has, at the very least, an equally significant interest in maintaining student discipline, enforcing school rules, and dissuading students from participation in illegal activities and consumption of alcohol.

The success of petitioner's application, then, must rest on her ability to demonstrate that she is likely to prevail on the merits of her claim when settled law is applied to the operative facts. Here, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the requisite standard has not been met, but substantially for reasons other than those expressed in the OAL order (at 9-11).

On review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner finds it evident – regardless of the parties' (and hence the ALJ's) focus on the district's general substance abuse and discipline policies and the written parental agreement governing Spanish Exchange student conduct while traveling abroad – that students participating in the Spanish Exchange program were held to additional standards and consequences unique to that activity, and that it was by virtue of these standards and consequences that C.G. came to be disciplined; no other conclusion is possible in light of Principal Daher's November 16, 2009 letter to petitioner, his March 23, 2010 affidavit setting forth his actions once he was advised of what had allegedly transpired on October 31, 2009, the particular sanction imposed on C.G., and limitation of the school's post-party investigation to Spanish Exchange students, notwithstanding that there were undisputedly other students present who were fully subject to the same general district policies and prohibitions under which the Board later claimed to have disciplined C.G.[2] Consequently, the Commissioner finds central to determination of the merits of this matter the Board's representation that, notwithstanding the absence of any writing to this effect, students participating in the Spanish Exchange program (and their parents) were clearly told, and fully understood, that violation of specified standards of behavior at any time during the course of the program – not merely on the culminating trip – would result in loss of trip participation.

[2] In this regard, see F.B. and M.B., on behalf of minor children, J.B. and L.B. v. Board of Education of the Township of Moorestown, Burlington County, decided by the Commissioner February 15, 2000, requiring that similarly situated students be treated in a similar fashion.

That representation, however, is vigorously disputed between the parties. The initial (March 23, 2010) affidavit of program advisor Kristen Kincaid generally attests (at ¶ 9) that she clearly explained the prohibition against alcohol use and its consequences and that students clearly understood that such prohibition was a year-long commitment, but does not state how or when this was accomplished, leaving to inference that it must have occurred through a series of meetings – described in the preceding paragraph (¶ 8) – held for purposes of reviewing procedures, expectations and conditions for program participation, and for obtaining student and parent signatures on the written agreement referenced above. Petitioner and C.G. responded – in affidavits submitted at the invitation of the Department of Education in light of counsel's statement to the ALJ at the close of the OAL hearing that petitioner was not conceding the statements in Ms. Kincaid's affidavit – with categorical assertions that no such prohibition was presented at the March 18, 2009 meeting they attended, or at any other time to their knowledge, and that the agreement they signed pertained on its face to students' conduct while on the actual trip. In a further affidavit submitted in response to those of petitioner and C.G., Ms. Kincaid amplified her prior statements and, equally categorically, denied each of petitioner's and C.G.'s assertions. As a result, no findings on this point can ensue in the absence of a plenary hearing, and – it being well established (Crowe, supra) that extraordinary remedy cannot be granted where material facts are in dispute – no likelihood of success on the merits can be found.

In so holding, the Commissioner is not unaware that the circumstances of this matter may unfortunately have led to the punishment of a student who told the truth about his alcohol consumption while fellow program members possibly escaped similar consequences through untruthful denials. However, the Commissioner cannot grant relief where petitioner is unable to demonstrate a likelihood that the Board will be found to have acted arbitrarily, unreasonably or unlawfully in concluding – once it had knowledge of C.G.'s undisputed infraction and was satisfied that participants in the exchange program were informed of the prohibition against alcohol consumption and its consequences[3] – that it could not meet its own obligation to maintain discipline and discourage substance abuse and unlawful activity without requiring C.G. to suffer the consequences of his behavior.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons set forth therein as modified above. This matter shall proceed to hearing on the merits as the ALJ and parties deem appropriate.

Record Closed: March 24, 2010 Decided: March 25, 2010

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, L.W. o/b/o minor child C.G., filed an application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. The application requested that C.G. be permitted to attend the Hopewell Valley Central High School ("HVCHS") spring trip to Spain leaving on April 1, 2010. Respondent Hopewell Valley Regional Board of Education ("Board" or "HVRBOE") denied C.G. permission to attend the spring trip for behavior it deemed as not adhering to the behavioral expectations for students participating in the program. At issue is the propriety of the discipline imposed by HVRBOE, given the behavior of C.G.

The case was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 22, 2010, for a hearing on the requested emergent relief. This Administrative Law Judge held an emergent hearing on March 24, 2010, at the Office of Administrative Law, Quakerbridge Plaza, Building 9, Quakerbridge Road, Mercerville, New Jersey, and on that day the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

This matter involves a challenge to the Board's policies on substance abuse and student conduct, which, in essence, outlines the efforts of the district to assist its students academically as well as protecting the welfare of the entire school community. As a result, the parties agree that the Board validly adopted substance abuse and code of conduct policies, and that those policies were in place as of September 2009. Also in September 2009, students enrolled in the HVCHS received copies of the student code of conduct which contained behavioral expectations and established disciplinary measures for various infractions of the code.

C.G. is an eleventh grade student at HVCHS which is part of HVRBOE. C.G. has an interest in pursuing studies related to the Spanish language and culture. He applied for and was accepted to participate in the HVCHS spring trip to Spain as part of the HVCHS/Floridablanca Spanish/American Exchange ("Exchange"). This program has been in existence for many years at HVCHS, and is an extracurricular activity designed to enhance the educational experience of students by initiating encounters with students of their own age from the country of Spain. The conditions for student participation in the exchange program were agreed to and signed by petitioner on March 18, 2009. Participating students were also advised by Kristin Kincaid, the advisor to the Exchange, that participation in the Exchange was a year-long commitment spanning the duration of the school year, and that consumption of alcohol during the Exchange program would not be tolerated. Kincaid reviewed with the students the consequences if the students engaged in such behavior.

In planning for Exchange activities, Kincaid met with parents and solicited families interested in hosting a welcoming and closing party. Two different families were selected and arrangements were made for the parties. Subsequently, another parent approached Kincaid about hosting a private party, and was advised that she was welcome to host a separate party for the students. This separate party took place on the evening of October 31, 2009, and Kincaid did not attend. Students from outside the Spanish Exchange also attended the party. On the morning after, Kincaid was advised that alcohol was present, and that certain members of the Exchange had consumed alcohol at the party.

HVCHS principal Michael Daher was advised of the alcohol consumption, and he investigated the allegations by interviewing the Exchange students who attended the party. Under questioning, the majority of the students denied any consumption of alcohol. During his interview, C.G. admitted to consuming alcohol at the party. One other student also admitted to consuming alcohol at the party. Both C.G. and the other student were notified by letter of Daher dated November 16, 2009, that as a result of the use of alcohol, they would not be permitted to attend the Spanish Exchange trip to Spain in the spring of 2010. The students participating in the Exchange leave the U.S. for Spain on April 1, 2010.

The Board argues that this decision is consistent with the conditions for student participation in the exchange program, agreed to and signed by petitioner on March 18, 2009, as well as HVRBOE Policy 5530 entitled "Substance Abuse" which defines a "substance" as an alcoholic beverage. "Substance abuse" is defined as "the consumption or use of any substance for purposes other than for the treatment of sickness or injury as prescribed or administered by a person duly authorized by law to treat sick and injured human beings." The policy goes on to set forth that "a pupil who uses, possesses, or distributes a substance, on or off school premises, will be subject to discipline. Discipline will be graded to the severity of the offenses, the nature of the problems and the pupil's needs. Discipline may include suspension or expulsion." In addition, HVRBOE Policy 5600 entitled "Pupil Discipline/Code of Conduct" sets forth that, "School authorities also have the right to impose a consequence on a pupil for conduct away from school grounds . . . This authority shall be exercised only when it is reasonably necessary or the pupil's physical or emotional safety, security, and well-being or for reasons relating to the safety, security, and well being of other pupils . . . "

Petitioners asked for, and were given, a hearing before the Board, but the matter was considered over objection, and by only three members of the Board. Petitioners were not thereby allowed to question or otherwise challenge the witnesses and/or other evidence presented by the district to the three Board members. Petitioners argue that this procedure violated HVRBOE Policy 5710, entitled "Pupil Grievance."

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION OF LAW

Petitioners claim that respondent's actions in this matter are arbitrary, unreasonable and capricious, and that respondent's actions violated their son's due process rights because of the proceedings before the Board. They also contend that the consequences of enforcing the Substance Abuse policy are punitive in nature and disciplinary.

The Board maintains that its substance abuse and code of conduct policies are in accordance with all acceptable standards of the Department of Education, that its policies have a beneficial impact on defining positive student behavior and encouraging students to resist peer pressure regarding the negative impact of drugs and alcohol, and that the policies create a positive educational opportunity for the affected student. Participation in extracurricular activities is not a right, but a privilege. Thus, the Board contends that, after having signed the conditions for participation in the Spain trip in March 2009, and being subject to the school policies, neither the student nor the parents can now argue that the policies have no application to them. The child agreed to the terms of the conditions when he signed the participation form, and implicitly agreed to the Board's policies, but now disavows because he admitted an infraction which is the direct subject of the Board's policies.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(a) provides for the granting of emergency relief where authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case. In such circumstances, emergency relief pending a final decision may be ordered upon the application of a party. Subparagraph (f) of this section provides that temporary relief may be granted if there is a finding that immediate and irreparable harm will probably result, if there is the likelihood that the moving party will prevail, and if the relief is as limited in scope and as temporary as possible.

The foregoing regulation embodies the principles of law announced by the court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132 (1982). These legal principles may be summarized as follows:

1. Emergency relief should not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm. Harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages. In certain circumstances, severe personal inconvenience can constitute irreparable injury justifying issuance of injunctive relief. Pecuniary damages may be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or of the right affected.

2. Emergency relief should be withheld when the legal right underlying the claim of the requesting party is unsettled.

3. Emergency relief should not issue where all material facts are controverted. Thus, to prevail on an application for emergency relief, the party requesting the relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. That requirement is tempered by the principle that mere doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo. The point of emergency relief is to maintain the parties in substantially the same condition when the final decision is issued, as they were when the litigation began.

4. The final test in considering the granting of emergency relief is the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief. The relief granted should be no broader than necessary to preserve the status quo pending a full hearing on the merits.

When this standard was applied to the facts to this case, it was apparent that petitioners have failed to meet the criteria for such relief.

Irreparable harm

Having carefully considered the parties' respective arguments, I agree that C.G. will not suffer irreparable harm by not participating in the trip to Spain. Even though attending this trip to Spain means a great deal to C.G., and he has been looking forward to it, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not shown any cognizable educational harm which would occur as a result of missing the trip. Petitioner has not proven an actual adverse impact will result to C.G. as a result of missing this trip other than a loss of the experience. On its face, such an event is in the nature of an extracurricular activity, similar to a class trip. Therefore, proceeding on the trip is a privilege to the Exchange students of HVCHS, and not a right. While the trip may have some educational component to it, and may enhance the educational experience of the students, the primary purpose of the trip is to allow C.G. to travel with friends to a foreign country and experience the foreign culture. I further CONCLUDE that the trip to Spain, although important in one's young life, will not result in dire consequences if it is missed. If anything, if the stay were to be granted, it could have a great adverse impact upon the ability of the Board to maintain good order and discipline in the high school for the benefit of every one in light of its policies relative to its efforts to dissuade students from participating in drug and/or alcohol activities. Thus, I CONCLUDE the greater harm would be to the HVRBOE if the stay were to be granted at this time. Thus, petitioners' request fails as to this element. There is no showing of irreparable harm under the circumstances. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that C.G. will not suffer irreparable harm if he is not permitted to participate in attending the trip to Spain.

Right to underlying claim must be settled

As to the requirement that the right underlying the claim of a requesting party must be settled, it is clear that each school district is obligated to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to all children residing in its school district. N.J. Const. (1947), Art. VIII, 1, N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1. To carry out this policy, local boards of education have been granted discretionary authority at N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1c. and d. to adopt rules for the management of the public schools of the district, and to perform all acts and do all things necessary for the lawful and proper conduct of the public schools of the district.

In the present matter, counsel for respondent has represented that the respondent Board has duly adopted policies which have been announced and disseminated over time for the benefit of children within the school district. Petitioner concedes to the lawful promulgation of those policies. Further, the petitioners signed the participation agreement to participate in the Spanish Exchange. The affidavit of Kincaid also makes it clear that at various times and during various meetings, the rules of conduct were explained to each student, an explanation was given to the students that the consumption of alcohol during the year-long Exchange program would not be tolerated, and the students were advised that the consumption of alcohol in either country was expressly prohibited. Despite all of the foregoing, petitioners now claim the school policies were incorrectly applied, or not properly adhered to, by the Board.

Board policies are entitled to a presumption of correctness, and will not be upset by the courts unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas v. Bd. of Educ. of Morris Twp., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), affirmed, 46 N.J. 581 (1966). In assessing this, the local school board's factual determinations must be accepted if supported by substantial credible evidence. Quinlan v. Bd. of Educ. of North Bergen Twp., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962). The policies of the Board provide a reasonable opportunity for compliance by all affected parties/families who wish to participate in extracurricular activities conducted by the Board.

In general, a board of education's actions are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith. Where board actions are challenged, the challenger bears the burden of proving that such actions were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Schuster v. Ed. of Educ. Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 670, 676 (citing Schnick v. Westwood Ed. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960), and Quinlan v. Bd. of Educ. of North Bergen Twp., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962)).

The "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard of review imposes a heavy burden on challengers of board actions. This standard has been defined by the New Jersey courts as follows:

> In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis. Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is no room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached . . . Moreover, the court should not substitute its judgment for that of an administrative or legislative body if there is substantial evidence to support the ruling.
> [Piccoli v. Ed. of Educ. of Ramapo Indian Hills Regional School District, OAL Dkt. EDU 1839-98 (January 22, 1999) (citing Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dent. of Envir. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974).]

In the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion, the Commissioner of Education will not substitute his or her own judgment for that of the board of education. Massaro v. Bd. of Educ. of the Boro. of Bergenfield, 1965 S.L.D. 84, 85. In Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960), the Appellate Division stated, "The well established rule that action of the local board [of education] which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently without rational basis or induced by improper motives." See also G.M. v. Roselle Park Boro. Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 107, 109 (where the Commissioner adopted the decision of the ALJ when in a challenge to board action, the ALJ stated, "It is the management prerogative of boards of education that will not be usurped or assumed by the Commissioner of Education absent a definitive showing of bad faith or arbitrary actions taken in bad faith without a rational basis."). As long as the record reflects a rational basis for the action, as well as an absence of bad faith, a board's action shall be upheld. In the G.M. case, supra, the ALJ, after a full hearing, found the board's decision to change geographic boundaries for kindergarten pupil placement, with a goal of evenly distributing the pupils at different schools within the district, to be a reasonable exercise of authority.

Based upon the foregoing and after having considered all the arguments advanced as well as the proofs offered by both sides, I CONCLUDE that the right underlying petitioner's claim is settled against the petitioners' position. Students do not possess an absolute right to participate in extracurricular activities such as the trip abroad. The determination whether or not they may attend is within the sole discretion of the board of education. This is particularly true where, as here, there are written substance abuse and code of conduct policies that permit the board to suspend the student and prohibit him from attending extracurricular activities. C.G. does not possess a well settled right to participate in the exchange trip abroad. No authority has been set forth by petitioner guaranteeing his right to attend the Exchange trip. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have failed to establish the right to relief and have failed to show that the action of respondent is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, this having occurred after having given them all due deference and a full and complete opportunity to present such arguments at the emergent relief hearing. In addition, petitioners failed to submit any proofs to show the actual adverse consequences which will attend the implementation of the policies against C.G. at this time.

Requirement to show reasonable probability of prevailing on the merits

The most difficult requirement for the moving party to establish or in order to show entitlement to emergency relief is the third factor. In order to prevail on one's application for emergency relief, the party requesting the relief (the parents in this matter) must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. If the point of emergency relief is to maintain the parties in substantially the same condition of the final decision as when this matter began, it must be established by the moving party that they will probably win on the merits. It is with respect to this that petitioners have great difficulty. Petitioners must show that respondent's actions in this matter are arbitrary and capricious and unreasonable. Petitioners must show that respondent's actions violated petitioners' due process rights because of its purported failure to provide to petitioners an opportunity for redress from the entire board of education, rather than just a committee thereof. A review of Policy 5710 reveals that a pupil grievance that proceeds to the Board will be determined promptly and the Board will issue a decision in no more than ten calendar days. However, the Policy does not contain a prohibition against a committee hearing the pupil grievance. In this case, the Board delegated the matter to a committee, and no definitive showing has been made that such delegation was improper.

Petitioner argues that Board Policy 5530 applies only to school sponsored functions, and that the two clauses on page two thereof discussing the use of alcohol or other substance therein must be read in pari materia to reach the conclusion that the use of a substance off school premises must be at a school sponsored event in order to subject a student to discipline by the school district. I do not agree. The language specifically states that a pupil who uses a substance off school premises will be subject to discipline. The discipline will be graded to the severity of the offense. Discipline may include suspension or expulsion. Suspension was not imposed herein, because according to respondent's attorney, suspension was considered by respondents to be a more severe penalty than the loss of the trip to Spain. While petitioner argues that the penalty imposed according to this Policy should have been a ten-day suspension according to Policy R5530, a reading of both policies implies that a lesser penalty to the ten day suspension may be imposed by the Board according to the severity of the offense. Petitioner has therefore not shown a reasonable probability of prevailing on this issue.

Petitioner also argues that Board Policy 5600 does not apply here because discipline is not reasonably necessary for a pupil's safety, security and well being. This policy shall be exercised only when the conduct which is the subject of the proposed consequence materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school. While petitioners' argument that the use of alcohol at an off-site, non-school related activity does not materially and substantially interfere with the requirements of appropriate discipline and the operation of the school may have some merit, it is difficult to agree with petitioner that a disciplinary consequence of the use of alcohol is not necessary for that student's well being. Any discipline imposed by a policy for alcohol use may be considered to promote the well-being of that child. Petitioner has therefore also not shown a reasonable probability of prevailing on this issue.

Finally, the Board has shown that the privilege (and not the right) of participating in extracurricular activities attaches to itself certain distinct requirements for responsible conduct by the student in question. Local boards of education have been expressly charged with protecting the health, safety and welfare of its students and school community, and insuring the orderly conduct of the academic process. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have failed to show the likelihood of prevailing on the merits. Respondent's actions in applying its policies to prohibit C.G.'s participation in the trip abroad due to his admitted use of alcohol, no matter how regrettable and unfortunate this is for C.G., cannot be disturbed.

Relative hardship to the parties

The final test in considering the granting of emergency relief is the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief in order to preserve the status quo pending a full hearing on the merits. As found hereinabove, there has been no actual showing of extraordinary hardship to C.G. other than his inability to engage in this certain extracurricular activity. While C.G. has a substantial interest in attending the exchange trip to Spain, the Board also has a substantial interest in insuring that its disciplinary policies are applied so as to protect the safety and well-being of the students, the teachers, the administrators and other employees. Were it not to enforce its disciplinary policies, or treat C.G. differently than other students in the school, the Board would be sending the wrong message and possibly establishing a negative precedent. By contrast, I am concerned that the granting of a stay would promote a negative message regarding the ability of the Board to maintain good order and positive role modeling for its student community instead. Further, it could genuinely compromise the ability of the Board to actively participate as a community member and leader in providing a positive environment for the community youth. Petitioner has therefore not shown a reasonable probability of prevailing on this issue. And I so CONCLUDE.

Finally, I CONCLUDE that the Board has settled policies that the Board's policies have been properly enforced, and that the Board's policies are reasonable. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the respondent Board will suffer greater harm than the petitioner if the requested relief is granted.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I have FOUND that for purposes of deciding this application for emergency relief, petitioners have failed to establish: (1) the existence of irreparable harm, (2) that petitioners' claim is based upon a settled right, (3) that petitioners are likely to prevail on the merits, or that (4) C.G. or his parents will suffer a relative hardship pending a full hearing on the merits. In view of the fact that petitioners have failed to establish any or all of the requirements for emergency relief, I CONCLUDE that petitioners' request should be DENIED.

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' request for emergency relief seeking to stay implementation of the Board's decision to revoke the right of C.G. to attend the trip to Spain is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the parties' respective submissions with regard to petitioner's motion for reconsideration of my March 30, 2010 decision in the emergent matter of L.W., on behalf of minor child, C.G. v. Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District, Mercer County, Agency Dkt. No. 54-3/10, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 0807-10, Commissioner's Decision No. 105-10E.

Upon such review, I find that petitioner's motion does not meet the standard set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b), in that it makes no claim of newly discovered evidence or newly ascertained misconduct and the arguments in support of its claim of mistake are substantially in the nature of disagreement with the outcome of my decision and the analysis on which it is based, contrary to the express provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)1.

Accordingly, I find petitioner's concerns to be more appropriately raised on appeal, and hereby I deny the motion for reconsideration.[1]

Sincerely,

Bret Schundler

Petitioner challenged the respondent Board's determination that her child, B.B., is not entitled to a free public education in its schools, contending that she is homeless and that her last permanent domicile was within the Township of West Orange. B.B. turned 18 in December 2009, and has been living since July 2009 in West Orange with R.P., who originally filed this petition as a residency appeal. The Board asserted that the petition should be dismissed, as R.P. was not the mother, legal guardian nor affidavit host of B.B., and petitioner does not reside within the district. The Board counterclaimed for tuition for the period of B.B.'s alleged ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found that: A.B. has not had an established residence in any municipality since her eviction from her residence in West Orange in July 2009; prior to becoming homeless, the last residence of A.B. and B.B. was in West Orange; and West Orange was the district of origin and the district of last attendance for B.B., as well as the district in which B.B. has been temporarily living. The ALJ concluded that, by virtue of the foregoing, B.B. should be enrolled in the West Orange School District. Moreover, because B.B. has reached the age of 18 and has established a residence in West Orange, she is entitled to a free public education in the district's schools. Accordingly, the ALJ granted petitioner's appeal, and dismissed the Board's claim for tuition.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. In so deciding, the Commissioner rejected the respondent Board's exception arguments contending that the ALJ improperly substituted A.B. for the original petitioner, finding that this matter is a homeless situation rather than a residency case, and the ALJ appropriately facilitated amendment of the proceedings, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2(a), replacing petitioner R.P. with A.B. to conform to the particular situation existing in this matter. The Commissioner directed that B.B. receive a free public education in the West Orange School District for the 2009-2010 school year.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 297-10/09

A.B., on behalf of minor child, B.B.,[1]	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The Board excepts to what it alleges was the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) improper substitution of A.B. (B.B.'s mother) for the original petitioner, R.P., and her simultaneous denial of the Board's motion for summary decision seeking dismissal of the petition because R.P. lacked standing to bring this action. In so contending, it argues:

> The substitution of parties by the ALJ is without legal authority. Respondent's school residency decision can only be challenged by the student's parent or guardian within 21 days of the decision. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-16.(2) While an ALJ has authority to relax rules, they can only be relaxed when they do not reflect a specific statutory requirement. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16. The statutory prescription that a residency decision be contested by a proper party within 21 days cannot be amended or adjusted by the ALJ. The substitution of the parent (the proper party) for the original petitioner (some two months late) is not permissible. To hold otherwise would render meaningless the particular filing requirements of the > statute. Further, once an answer is filed in an action, an amendment to a petition can only be made with the consent of the adverse party or by leave of the Commissioner upon written application. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.7. The ALJ cannot take it upon herself to simply supplant petitioners without doing violence to the specific demands of the school residency law. (Board's Exceptions at 2)

The Board states that because B.B. is a senior scheduled to graduate in June it will not seek her removal from its schools; however, it strongly urges the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision and assess tuition for the period of her ineligible attendance in the district. (Id. at 3)

Upon his considered review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons clearly presented on pages 6-9 of her decision, that B.B. was entitled to a free public education in the West Orange School District from the beginning of the 2009-10 school year through December 4, 2009 by virtue of the fact that she and her mother, A.B., were homeless. The Commissioner further agrees with the ALJ that as of December 5, 2009 – B.B.'s eighteenth birthday – she possesses entitlement to a free public education in the district by virtue of being a domiciliary of West Orange.

Finding the Board's exception arguments disingenuous at best, the Commissioner concludes that, under the factual underpinnings of this case, the ALJ appropriately facilitated amendment of the pleadings, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2(a), replacing petitioner R.P. with A.B. to conform to the particular situation existing in this matter. Moreover, the necessity for such amendment appears to be directly attributable to actions of the Board. Specifically, based upon her credibility determinations, the ALJ made the following factual findings[2]:

> A.B. credibly testified that she is at work overnight at least two nights, and for the remainder of the week, alternates between the apartments of two friends. She

[2] The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. > undoubtedly cannot remain in the subsidized apartment on Georgia King Village, and although N.L. has allowed A.B. to stay with her, she is not on the lease, and there is already one adult and five, soon to be six, children living in the apartment. A.B. has no legal right to remain in either Newark apartment, nor is she related to either tenant. She further testified credibly that she lost her full-time job in 2008, and that she has since had only her part-time job. A letter from her employer states that she works 20 hours per week, at a rate of $11 per hour, which would gross approximately $880 per month. Even her gross earnings would be insufficient to pay for an apartment and utilities, not taking into account any other expenses for herself and B.B., including medical insurance or auto insurance. Based on the above, it is clear that A.B. does not have a permanent or regular residence since her eviction from the apartment on High Street in July 2009.
> It was undisputed that R.P. is domiciled in West Orange, and that B.B. was living with R.P. (Initial Decision at 6)

The Commissioner has no cause whatsoever to challenge the ALJ's finding as to A.B. and B.B.'s homeless status within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(a)3. Significantly, the ALJ's decision further reports that "A.B. testified that, in July 2009, she made the District aware of her situation, including that she had no place to live, and that B.B. was living with R.P" (Initial Decision at 5), a representation which on this record is not contested by the Board. Notwithstanding that, upon being so informed, the Board was obligated by law to proceed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 17-2.1, et seq. (Education of Homeless Children) it, rather, proposed to disenroll the student pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a., thereby treating this matter as a "residency" rather than a "homeless" case. A.B. sought guidance from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes with respect to appealing the Board's proposed action and, upon A.B.'s telephonic representation to Bureau staff[3] that she had received a letter from the Board stating that it intended to disenroll B.B. due to lack of residency in the District and A.B.'s further representation that, of necessity, B.B. was living with R.P not A.B, she was correctly advised that, under these circumstances, the appropriate petitioner was R.P. When it was ultimately discovered at the OAL that this matter was a homeless situation rather than a residency case, A.B.'s substitution for R.P. was mandatory, not discretionary.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein. It is hereby directed that B.B. receive a free public education in the West Orange School District for the 2009-10 school year and the Board's counterclaim for tuition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 13330-09
AGENCY DKT. NO. 297-10/09

R.P. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, B.B.[1], Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

A.B., pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq. (Board Attorney), for Respondent

Record Closed: January 25, 2010 Decided: February 26, 2010

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about October 26, 2009, R.P., on behalf of B.B., filed a residency appeal, which stated that B.B. was living with R.P. because B.B.'s mother was temporarily homeless. On November 4, 2009, the West Orange Board of Education (Board) sent a letter to the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, requesting dismissal of the appeal because R.P. was not the mother, legal guardian nor affidavit host of B.B. On November 5, 2009, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on November 17, 2009 for determination as a contested case.

A hearing was scheduled for January 6, 2010, at which time A.B., mother of B.B. appeared on behalf of B.B. R.P. did not appear. On that morning, the undersigned received in the mail, a motion from the Board, a copy of which had also been mailed to R.P., but had not been mailed to A.B. A.B. made a motion to be substituted as Petitioner, which was granted, and she was provided with a copy of the Board's motion, and two additional letters from the Board, which she had not previously been provided with. In light of the substitution of A.B. as Petitioner, the Board's motion was denied, but considered as the Board's Answer, as no formal answer had been filed by Respondent because the matter had been transmitted by the Commissioner to the OAL. The hearing was adjourned to allow the parties additional time to prepare, and a hearing was held on January 25, 2010, on which date the record closed.

TESTIMONY AND FINDINGS OF FACT

A.B. testified that she had been living with her daughter, B.B., on High Street in West Orange. A.B. had been working one full-time and one part-time job, but lost her full-time job in 2008, and was thereafter unable to afford her rent payments. They were evicted from the High Street apartment in July 2009. A.B. moved their personal belongings into storage, and B.B. went to live with R.P. in West Orange.

A.B. testified that, other than R.P., there is no one else with whom B.B. could have stayed. She further testified that she works Sunday and Monday overnight, from 10 p.m. to 8:00 a.m. in Parsippany, and that the remaining nights she alternates between the Newark apartments of two friends, M.C. and N.L. There is no set schedule as to which, or how many, days she is at either friend's apartment.

A.B. testified that M.C. lives on Georgia King Village, and that the apartment is subsidized, so she is not permitted to remain with M.C., as she is not on the lease. Additionally, M.C.'s apartment has three bedrooms, but M.C. already has her four children and one grandchild residing with her. While at M.C.'s apartment, A.B. sleeps upstairs with one of the girls.

N.L. lives on Boyd Street in a three bedroom, three bathroom apartment with her five children. She and her five children are the only persons on the lease. She is presently in the process of adopting another foster child, and the Division of Youth and Family Services regularly inspects her apartment for this reason. While at N.L.'s apartment, A.B. sleeps either on the floor in N.L.'s room, or on the couch in the living room. Unlike M.C.'s apartment, N.L.'s apartment is not subsidized and has a private mailbox. As such, N.L. has allowed A.B. to utilize the Boyd Street apartment as her mailing address. N.L. advised that she would continue to help A.B. until she is able to get on her feet.

Presently, A.B. continues to work part-time, 20 hours per week, at Jewish Services for the Developmentally Disabled of MetroWest, Inc. (JSDD), in Parsippany. She is paid $11 per hour, and works two nights per week from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m., though she does try to work extra hours when available. (P-2). She now commutes from Newark to Parsippany. In September 2009, she purchased a vehicle with over 150,000 miles on it for $1,800. She has paid $1,000 toward the vehicle, half of which was borrowed from N.L., and thus still owes $800. She pays approximately $132 per month for insurance for the vehicle. She had previously leased a vehicle, but after losing her full-time job, she was unable to continue making the payments.

A.B. does not receive public assistance, but does have New Jersey FamilyCare medical insurance for herself and B.B., for which she had been paying $51 per month, and now pays $35 per month. B.B. will be covered until she is nineteen. A.B. does not receive unemployment insurance benefits (UIB). She had applied for UIB, but was denied because she was working part-time and able to get extra hours. She intermittently receives some child support from B.B.'s father, who resides in Texas. She usually gives the child support funds to B.B., M.C. or N.L., or spends it on gas. A.B. testified that she contributes approximately $50 to $100 per month to either of the friends she stays with. A.B. also pays R.P. approximately $200 per month, but is unable to afford more. She does not have any credit cards. She purchased B.B. a coat for approximately $10 and boots for approximately $15 to $20 for the winter. Both A.B. and B.B. have cellular phones, for which the average monthly bill is approximately $120.

A.B. is a high school graduate and has been attending college online at South University in Savannah, Georgia since 2007 in order to obtain a bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice. Her tuition is approximately $5,000 per semester, which she pays through federal loans and grants. The loans do not have to be repaid until after graduation, which is expected to occur in January 2011. She does not own a computer, and uses the computer at the public library.

A.B. and B.B. had lived on High Street in West Orange for approximately one year, and, prior thereto, they had lived on Harrison Avenue in West Orange, except for a period when the apartment was uninhabitable. B.B. has attended school in West Orange since late 2006. B.B. testified that, from grades four through eight, she went to a different school every year, and that she has been in West Orange since 9th grade. She expects to graduate in June 2010 and wants to remain in West Orange for graduation. She turned eighteen on December 5, 2009.

B.B. has been living with R.P. in an apartment in a two-family house since July 2009, and has her own bedroom. She does not have a computer, but R.P. does. She receives free lunch at school. She is going to the high school prom, and testified that she plans to help pay for it, but she does not have a job. The cost of the prom is $100, and the extra costs for a dress and other items will likely cost another $200. N.L. testified that she had discussed the prom with A.B., and will be lending A.B. the money to pay for these items.

B.B. does not have a driver's license yet, but does have a permit, which reflects her previous High Street, West Orange address. She did not know where she would stay if she was unable to stay with R.P., but testified that maybe she could stay with her mother in Newark or move to Texas and stay with her father. A.B. testified that there was no one else B.B. could stay with, and, until July 2009, B.B. had always lived with her mother. B.B. wants to attend Nyack College in New York, and is planning to live on campus. However, she testified that if she does not go to Nyack College, she may move to Texas to live with her father.

A.B. testified that, in July 2009, she made the District aware of her situation, including that she had no place to live, and that B.B. was living with R.P. She was advised that she would have to wait for a letter to request a hearing. She was given the same school paperwork to complete that she had always completed, and was not provided with any paperwork for "affidavit students" from the District. She received a letter from the Board, dated October 6, 2009, advising her that the Board decided to remove B.B. from the school because she did not reside in West Orange. In response, A.B. contacted the District, who advised her to contact Trenton. Because A.B. had questions, she called the Commissioner's office and spoke to Kathleen Duncan (Duncan). A.B. testified that Duncan informed her that R.P. would have to file the petition because B.B. was residing with R.P., and R.P.'s domicile was in West Orange. A.B. further testified that Duncan was advised that R.P. was not B.B.'s legal guardian.

Frank Guarneri (Guarneri), Registrar for the District, testified on behalf of the Board in support of its counterclaim for tuition. Tuition for the 2009-2010 school year is $18,570, and as of the date of the hearing, B.B. attended 85 days at $103.16 per day, for a total of $8,768.60. Additionally, the tuition calculation to the date B.B. turned eighteen was calculated during the hearing by adding the number of days in September, October and November, without counting December, since it was not clear whether December 1 through December 4 were all school days. That total of 53 days, was multiplied by $103.16, for a total of $5,467.48.

A credibility determination requires an over-all evaluation of the testimony in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but must be credible in itself. Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 555 (1954). It must be such as the common experience and observation can approve as probable in the circumstances. Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1, 5 (App. Div. 1961). "The interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952).

Accordingly, I make the following FINDINGS of critical FACTS:

A.B. credibly testified that she is at work overnight at least two nights, and for the remainder of a week, alternates between the apartments of two friends. She undoubtedly cannot remain in the subsidized apartment on Georgia King Village, and although N.L. has allowed A.B. to stay with her, she is not on the lease, and there is already one adult and five, soon to be six, children living in the apartment. A.B. has no legal right to remain in either Newark apartment, nor is she related to either tenant. She further testified credibly that she lost her full-time job in 2008, and that she has since had only her part-time job. A letter from her employer states that she works 20 hours per week, at a rate of $11 per hour, which would gross approximately $880 per month. Even her gross earnings would be insufficient to pay for an apartment and utilities, not taking into account any other expenses for herself and B.B., including medical insurance or auto insurance. Based on the above, it is clear that A.B. does not have a permanent or regular residence since her eviction from the apartment on High Street in July 2009.

It was undisputed that R.P. is domiciled in West Orange, and that B.B. was living with R.P.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The issue in this appeal is whether B.B. is a domiciled student in the District for the 2009-2010 school year. The Board contends that although A.B. is in a difficult financial situation, she is not "homeless".

A student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)1. A student is also deemed domiciled in the school district when he or she has reached the age of 18 or is emancipated from the care and custody of a parent or legal guardian and has established a permanent home within the district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)2. A home is permanent when the parent, legal guardian or student intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existences of homes or residences elsewhere. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1.

Additionally, a student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, is eligible to attend school in the school district if the student's parent or guardian moves to another district as the result of being homeless, subject to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2 (Education of Homeless Children). N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(d). "Homeless child" means a child or youth who lacks a fixed, regular and adequate residence, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 and N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2. The district of residence for children whose parent or guardian temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3, a district board of education shall determine that a child is homeless for purposes of education of homeless children, when he or she resides in the residence of relatives or friends with whom the homeless child is temporarily residing out of necessity because the family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3.

A.B. has not had a permanent or fixed residence since she was evicted from her apartment in July 2009. She is unable to afford an apartment because she no longer has a full-time job. She spends two nights per week at work, and the other nights she alternates between the apartments of friends. She is not related to either friend, nor is she on the lease for their apartment, one of which is a subsidized apartment. Thus, neither apartment can be said to reasonably be a fixed, reasonable or adequate permanent residence, and B.B. has been residing with R.P., a friend, because the family lacks a regular and permanent residence of its own. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that A.B. and B.B. are homeless.

The district of residence for children whose parent or guardian temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent or guardian last resided prior to becoming homeless. Prior to becoming homeless, the last residence of A.B. and B.B. was High Street in West Orange. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that B.B.'s district of origin is West Orange.

The chief school administrator of the school district of origin or designee shall decide in which school district the homeless child shall be enrolled as follows: (1) to the extent feasible, enroll the homeless child in the school of origin except when doing so is contrary to the wishes of the homeless child's parent or guardian; (2) to continue the homeless child's education in the school district of last attendance if the school district of last attendance is not the school district of origin; or (3) to enroll the homeless child in the school district where the child is temporarily living. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6. "School district of origin" means the school district in which the parent last resided prior to becoming homeless. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2. In any of the aforesaid scenarios, West Orange would remain the district in which B.B. should be enrolled, as enrolling B.B. in any other school would be contrary to the wishes of A.B., the school district of last attendance is the school district of origin, and the school district where B.B. is temporarily living is West Orange. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that B.B. should be enrolled in West Orange.

Although A.B. contributes approximately $200 per month to R.P., and she does contribute to her friends in Newark as well, A.B. was not provided with paperwork for B.B. to apply as an "affidavit student" in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2. Thus, the within matter is not an "affidavit student" case, in which her mother would have filed a sworn statement that she is not capable of supporting or providing care for the student due to family or economic hardship and that the student is not residing with R.P. solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education; and in which R.P. would have filed a sworn statement that she is domiciled within the District, is supporting the child without remuneration and intends to do so for a longer time than the school term, and will assume all personal obligations for the student relative to school requirements.

However, even pursuant to these regulations, a student shall not be deemed ineligible solely because a parent or legal guardian gives gifts or makes limited contributions, financial or otherwise, toward the welfare of the student, provided that the resident keeping the student receives no payment or other remuneration from the parent for regular maintenance of the student. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2.

There is no dispute that B.B. has attended West Orange schools since 9th grade, and that both A.B. and B.B. want B.B. to finish high school in West Orange. Whether or not B.B. resides with a West Orange domiciliary does not matter. After her eviction, A.B. and B.B. lacked a permanent or regular residence in any municipality, rendering B.B. homeless for education purposes, and West Orange was her district of origin.

If A.B. had permanent residence and B.B. was nevertheless residing with R.P., there would be no doubt it would be for the sole purpose of completing her education in West Orange, or that B.B. would return to living with her mother upon graduation. However, A.B. does not have an established residence in any municipality at this time, and thus, B.B. is living with R.P. out of necessity. Nevertheless, even if A.B. were not homeless, B.B. has reached the age of 18, and has established a permanent home within the District. Although she may have expressed an intention to move upon graduation, not unlike many high school graduates, she has no residence or domicile elsewhere, at college or in Texas, at present. If she had the means to do so, she would be within her rights to move to any municipality and attend school there, so long as she was domiciled within the municipality, and there would be nothing to prevent her from moving out of the municipality upon graduation. B.B. does not have the means, and perhaps does not have the choice, so at present, her residence is with R.P., and the monthly payment from A.B. could arguably be construed as rent for B.B.'s room. She has no alternate residence or domicile, and although she expressed a desire to live away at college or move to Texas with her father if she is unable to attend college, she does not wish to move from Kirk Street in West Orange at the present time.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the appeal of Petitioner is GRANTED. It is hereby further ORDERED that B.B. receive a free public education in the School District of West Orange for school year 2009-2010, and that the Board's claim for payment of tuition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter, the proposed Settlement Agreement and Release (Agreement) and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following observation. Sections 2 and 3 of the Agreement make reference to a January 30, 2010 deadline by which respondent was to pay petitioner $6,376.55. That date has preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have already implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon a mutually satisfactory alternate date for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Release ("this Agreement"), dated January ___, 2010, is entered into by and between Lisa Pisano-Phillips ("Pisano-Phillips") and The Horace Mann Insurance Company ("Horace Mann") (collectively the "Releasors") and the Franklin Township Board of Education (the "Board") (collectively "the Parties").

WHEREAS, Pisano-Phillips is a former employee of the Board;

WHEREAS, Pisano-Phillips was named as a defendant in two civil lawsuits filed simultaneously in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Hunterdon County vicinage, bearing the following captions and docket numbers: 1) P.S., an infant by her Guardian Ad Litem v. Franklin Township Board of Education, Franklin Township School, Lisa Pisano, R.N., Robert Agree, School Supervisor, Joseph Stuby, John Does 1-10 (representing unknown individuals), bearing docket number HNT-L-593-05; and 2) N.S., an infant by her Guardian Ad Litem v. Franklin Township Board of Education, Franklin Township School, Lisa Pisano, R.N., Robert Agree, School Supervisor, Joseph Stuby, John Does 1-10 (representing unknown individuals), bearing docket number HNT-L-594-05 (hereinafter referred to as the "Superior Court litigations");

WHEREAS, the Board provided Pisano-Phillips with counsel for all claims made against her in the Superior Court litigations with the sole exception of claims seeking an award of punitive damages;

WHEREAS, Horace Mann provided legal counsel for Pisano-Phillips to defend her against claims seeking an award of punitive damages in the Superior Court Litigations;

WHEREAS, the Superior Court Litigations were resolved pursuant to a voluntary settlement agreement;

WHEREAS, Releasors filed a Verified Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education, bearing agency reference number 252-10/09 and Office of Administrative Law docket number EDUOA 12069-2009S (hereinafter referred to as the "Subject Litigation") seeking reimbursement of attorneys' fees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 16-6; and

WHEREAS, the Parties desire to settle all claims and causes of action that were asserted or could have been asserted in the Subject Litigation without incurring further costs of litigation;

NOW THEREFORE, it is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the Parties upon the following premises and in consideration of the promises, mutual covenants, and agreements set forth herein, and other good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged as follows:

1. Scope of Agreement: This Agreement shall be a full and complete settlement of any and all claims, whether alleged, or which could have been alleged, arising out of the Subject Litigation and factual circumstances underlying the Subject Litigation. The Parties further agree that by entering into this Agreement, the Parties specifically waive and relinquish the right to have the Commissioner of Education, the Superior Court, or any agency adjudicate the Subject Litigation.

2. Payment To Releasors: The Board shall pay the total sum of six thousand three hundred seventy-six dollars and fifty-five cents ($6,376.55) to Releasors. This payment shall be made by check payable to "Wills, O'Neill & Mellk Trust Account" and shall be forwarded to the Law Offices of Wills, O'Neill & Mellk at 10 Nassau Street, P.O. Box 614, Princeton, New Jersey 08542, on or before January 30, 2010.

3. Dismissal of Subject Litigation: This Agreement shall dispose of all issues raised in the Subject Litigation and Releasors agree to voluntarily dismiss the Subject Litigation with prejudice. As such, within ten (10) days of approval of this Settlement Agreement and Release by both Parties, counsel for Releasors shall advise the Commissioner of Education of such dismissal in writing, with copy served on counsel for the Board, Porzio, Bromberg, & Newman, P.C., at 100 Southgate Parkway, Morristown, New Jersey 07920.

4. Release: In exchange for the terms set forth herein, Releasors release and give up any and all claims and rights they may have against the Board, its current or former officials, administrators, employees, agents, servants, or representatives, arising out of alleged acts or omissions, whether known or unknown, that have taken place through the date of this Agreement. As used in this Agreement, the term "Board" means: the Franklin Township Board of Education, and all officials, administrators, employees, attorneys, agents, servants, representatives, predecessors, and successors, insurance carriers, and other persons or entities for whom any of the above have been or may be legally responsible. This release specifically includes any potential claim for attorneys' fees, compensatory damages, punitive damages, by Releasors or their counsel based upon any relevant statute or law.

5. Agreement Not To Sue: Releasors agree not to file any lawsuit or claim against the Board, its officials, administrators, employees, agents, servants, or representatives, in any court or tribunal of the United States, New Jersey or any other state, city, county, or locality, for any claims released in this Agreement.

6. Non-Admission of Liability: This Agreement (or the payments hereunder) shall not be construed as an admission by the Board of any of the acts or omissions alleged, or of any acts or omissions which could have been alleged in the Subject Litigation. The Board specifically denies any liability whatsoever for any damages, injuries or other claims by the other party or which could be claimed by the other party.

7. No Precedent: The Parties agree that this Agreement may not be used to establish precedent in any future proceeding of any type whatsoever involving any one of the parties or the Board and that it shall be inadmissible in any such proceeding, other than a proceeding to enforce or prove the existence of this Agreement. This Agreement is a compromise of disputed claims and shall not be construed as an admission by either Party of any of the acts or omissions alleged or those that could have been alleged by either Party against the other Party in this matter.

8. Entire Agreement: This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement between the Parties respecting the Subject Litigation, bearing agency reference number 252-10/09 and Office of Administrative Law docket number EDUOA 12069-2009S. This Agreement may not be changed or modified, except by a writing signed by both Parties hereto.

9. Who Is Bound: Pisano-Phillips and her agents are bound by this Agreement. Those who succeed to Pisano-Phillips' rights and responsibilities, such as heirs, the executors of her estate, or her personal or legal representatives, are also bound. Horace Mann, its current or former officials, administrators, employees, agents, servants, or representatives, are also bound. The Parties specifically disavow that any benefit shall inure to any third-party by virtue of this Agreement.

10. Governing Law: This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

11. Execution: This Agreement may be executed in counterparts.

12. Interpretation and Construction: The Parties acknowledge that each party has engaged counsel in connection with the negotiation and completion of this Agreement, and, consequently, agree that the normal rule of construction to the effect that any ambiguities are to be resolved against the drafting party will not be used in the interpretation of this Agreement or any amendment or exhibit hereto.

13. Severability: If any of the provisions of this Agreement shall be held by any court to be invalid or unenforceable, such invalidity or unenforceability shall not invalidate or render unenforceable this entire Settlement Agreement, but rather this entire Settlement Agreement shall be construed as if not containing the particular invalid or unenforceable provision or provisions, and the rights and obligations of the Parties shall be construed and enforced accordingly.

14. Voluntary and Knowing: The Parties acknowledge that each of them has consulted with, or had the opportunity to consult with, legal counsel of their own selection about this Agreement and its attachments. The Parties understand how this Agreement will affect their legal rights and voluntarily enter into this Agreement with such knowledge and understanding. The Parties warrant that they are fully authorized to execute this Agreement and to give the releases and make the promises contained herein. Each of the Parties warrants and represents that no other consent, approval, authorization, or order of, and no notice to, or order filed with any court, governmental authority, person, or entity is required for the execution, delivery or performance of this Agreement.

PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a former member of the respondent Board of Education, sought indemnification by the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 for the costs of his defense against a complaint filed against him with the School Ethics Commission. In the proceeding for which he sought indemnification, the Commission held, and the Commissioner of Education affirmed on appeal, that petitioner had violated three provisions of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

The ALJ found that, in order to be eligible for indemnification under the statute, the acts or omissions forming the basis of the charges against petitioner must have arisen out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a board member, requiring their analysis as to time, place and subject matter in accordance with applicable case law. The ALJ noted that the Commission had dismissed most allegations against petitioner; on the actions that resulted in findings of violation, the ALJ found that two of these arose out of and in the course of the performance of board member duties, while one did not.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's analysis and conclusions with respect to general principles of applicable law and petitioner's eligibility for indemnification as to his defense against those allegations resulting in findings of violation by the School Ethics Commission. However, the Commissioner found the record and Initial Decision insufficient to render a complete determination, in that these did not address the full panoply of actions underlying the allegations brought before the Commission and for which petitioner sought indemnification – only those resulting in findings of violation – nor did they address the manner in which the extent of indemnification would be determined where some of the acts or omissions underlying the complaint were found eligible for indemnification while others were not. The Commissioner remanded the matter for further proceedings as necessary to fully resolve the parties' dispute.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1228-08
AGENCY DKT. NO. 333-11/07

DAVID MATTHEWS,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed by the Deputy Commissioner to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, as have the respective exceptions and replies filed by each party in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and 1:1-18.8.

In his exceptions, petitioner urges the Commissioner to endorse the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that he is entitled to indemnification by the Board of Education (Board) for "nearly all" of the costs of his legal defense against the school ethics allegations brought against him by two other Board members and the Superintendent of Schools;[1] he objects, however, to the conclusion that he is not entitled to indemnification with respect to his violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d). In the latter regard, petitioner contends that the ALJ erred by applying the wrong legal standard – stating that petitioner was found to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(d) (undertaking of employment or service which might reasonably be expected to prejudice independent judgment in the exercise of official duties),

[1] Stephen Brown, Carol Lisa and Glenn Garrison v. David Matthews, Board of Education of the City of Englewood, Bergen County, School Ethics Commission Dkt. No. C13-07, decided October 27, 2008; affirmed on appeal to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4, Decision No. 123-09A, decided April 14, 2009.

when, in fact, he was found to have violated the provision of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members requiring board members not to administer the schools, but to see that they are well run – and by failing to recognize that petitioner's conversation with Deputy Superintendent Susan Mullins was fully within the scope of his duties as a Board member, arising directly from his involvement in that capacity in the ongoing issue of Ms. Mullins' employment status within the district. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1-10, quotation at 5) In both his exceptions and his reply to the exceptions of the Board, petitioner once again urges – as he did before the ALJ – that any action by a board member relating to the conduct of school affairs must be deemed to have arisen out of and in the course of the performance of the board member's duties, since N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1(d) expressly provides for boards of education to "perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district." (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 2)

The Board, in turn, urges rejection of the ALJ's conclusions in all respects save petitioner's violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), renewing its argument that merely because a board member takes an action having some relationship to school affairs does not mean that such action was taken in the course of the board member's duties as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 in order to qualify for indemnification. According to the Board, actions taken by a board member without board knowledge or approval, in opposition to or defiance of the board, or beyond the reasonable bounds of acceptable behavior cannot possibly be found, as they largely were by the ALJ, to have arisen in the course of performance of legitimate duties; indeed, the Board posits, the ALJ's analysis "turns the statutory intent on its head" by effectively providing that "even if a member does something he is not supposed to as a member of a school board, his action being linked to school law prohibiting such conduct is enough to support reimbursement." (Board's Exceptions at 5-10, quotation at 10; Board's Reply Exceptions at 1-3)[2]

Upon review, the Deputy Commissioner finds the record and Initial Decision insufficient to render a complete determination, and hence remands the matter to the OAL for further proceedings.

Initially, the Deputy Commissioner notes that the question of indemnification for costs associated with defending against a complaint alleging violation of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1) is both one of first impression and one posing unique difficulties, since proceedings arising under this statute frequently – as here – involve a plethora of diverse allegations rather than claims arising from a single act which may be discretely analyzed in terms of the statutory standard for indemnification. Moreover, in that proceedings under the School Ethics Act are administrative proceedings which do not require favorable disposition in order for the charged party to be eligible for indemnification, analysis under the requisite standard cannot be limited solely to those actions found to constitute violations of the Act.

Petitioner has, in effect, addressed this difficulty by arguing from the outset that allegations of violation of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members inherently arise from the performance of board member duties, so that any proceeding to defend against them must necessarily be indemnified in full; the Board, in turn, has countered that behavior evincing defiance, extremism and disregard of board authority is inherently contrary to legitimate performance of board member duties, so that any complaint arising from such behavior cannot be found eligible for indemnification at all. However, as the ALJ has correctly recognized, in Code of Ethics matters, as in any other, it is the particular actions on which the allegations against a charged party are predicated that must be scrutinized – consistent with prior case law as to time, place and subject matter – in terms of the statutory standard of "arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of the board" in order to determine a petitioner's entitlement to indemnification.[3]

As to those actions specifically reviewed by the ALJ pursuant to this standard – that is, those on which the School Ethics Commission based its findings of violation – the Deputy Commissioner is unpersuaded by the parties' respective exceptions and concurs with the ALJ's analysis and conclusions in this regard.[4] However, the Initial Decision does not address – nor does the record contain documentation and argument enabling the Deputy Commissioner to make informed determinations regarding – the full panoply of actions underlying the complaint before the Commission for which petitioner here seeks indemnification, including a substantial number of the allegations dismissed at various points in the Commission's proceedings.[5] Similarly lacking is any consideration of how the

[3] In this regard, see also Bower v. Bd. of Ed. of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997), interpreting analogous language in the statute providing for indemnification of school employees.

[4] In so holding, the Deputy Commissioner additionally notes that, by his own account, petitioner's conversation with Susan Mullins took place during a "chat" when he stopped by her office while in the building on other business, and that petitioner was interviewed during the affirmative action investigation specifically in his capacity as a board member against whom the superintendent had made allegations of creating a hostile work environment. (School Ethics Decision, supra, at 6, 12) With respect to petitioner's attendance at the Bergen Tech School meeting – which the Commission found to have constituted "private action" in violation of the School Ethics Act, rejecting the testimony and evidence proffered by petitioner in support of his contention that he was both authorized and entitled to attend (Id. at 5, 11-12, 14, 15) – the Deputy Commissioner stresses that it is the action(s) underlying the charge, not the charge itself or its ultimate disposition, that determine whether a party's costs of defense are eligible for indemnification in an administrative matter.

[5] Petitioner's exceptions appear to construe the opening paragraph of the ALJ's conclusion (at 10) as finding him indemnified against all dismissed allegations, which constituted the bulk of the complaint against him. To the extent of indemnification is appropriately determined in the event that some of the acts or omissions underlying the complaint at issue qualify for indemnification while others do not.

Accordingly, the Deputy Commissioner adopts the analysis and conclusions of the Initial Decision with respect to its statements of applicable law[6] and its findings on petitioner's eligibility for indemnification as to those allegations resulting in findings of violation by the School Ethics Commission. She remands the matter to the OAL, however, for such further proceedings as are necessary to fully resolve the parties' dispute consistent with the parameters set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

extent that such construction may be correct, the Deputy Commissioner observes that no basis is stated for the bald assertion that "the bulk of the overall dispute arose as a result of [petitioner's] participation as a Board member," apart from a reference to the mere fact of the allegations' dismissal – which is, in itself alone, immaterial to eligibility for civil or administrative indemnification under the standard of statute.

[6] The Initial Decision does, in fact, misstate various provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 by quoting the analogous paragraphs of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24; however, this error is not reflected in its subsequent analysis and conclusions, and had no effect on the outcome of the matter. Additionally, Scirrotto v. Warren Hills Bd. of Educ. is inadvertently cited as 72 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1994); the correct citation is 272 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1994).

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner David Matthews, a member of the Board of Education of the City of Englewood (Board), seeks indemnification for the costs of his defense before the School Ethics Commission (Commission).

On January 15, 2008, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On June 2, 2008, Petitioner moved for summary decision. On June 9, 2008, the Board filed a cross-motion for summary decision. On or about October 27, 2008, the Commission issued a decision on charges filed against Petitioner.

On April 14, 2009, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) issued a final decision and affirmed the Commission's finding that Matthews had violated three provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1. The Commissioner imposed the penalty of censure.

The issue is whether Petitioner is entitled to indemnification of attorney fees relating to the costs Ethics Complaint. The parties seek summary decision on the issue.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision is appropriate > if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts. Summary judgment is > designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial.

[Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).]

I FIND the relevant facts have been adjudicated before the School Ethics Commission and the Commissioner of Education. Therefore, and I CONCLUDE the matter is appropriate for summary decision.

FACTS

The findings of facts in the decisions of the School Ethics Commission and the Commissioner of Education are incorporated here as FACT:

1. Petitioner David Matthews is a former member of the Englewood Board of Education.

2. On March 26, 2007, Board members Stephen Brown and Glenn Garrison, and Carol Lisa, Superintendent of Englewood Public Schools filed a complaint against Matthews before the School Ethics Commission.

3. The complaint contained seventy-four (74) paragraphs and charged Matthews' with violating the School Ethics Act.[1] The gist of the allegations are summarized as follows:
   (a) Matthews did not abstain from discussing and/or voting on resolutions 07-A-17 and 07-A-41. (§6-8).
   (b) The Board selected three members (Brown, Garrison and Smith) to attend a meeting with the Bergen Tech Superintendent on January 4, 2007. On several occasions prior to the meeting, Matthews contacted the Bergen Tech Superintendent and discussed certain matters without Board approval or knowledge. (§9-16).
   (c) On January 4, 2007, Matthews appeared at the Bergen Tech meeting, the other board members present challenged his attendance, Matthews responded with derogatory and demeaning remarks about the Board and its President. (§17-18).

[1] The complainants alleged that Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (b), (c), (d), (e) (f), (g), (i) and (j) of the code of Ethics for School Board Members.

(d) The board members were forced by the circumstances to allow Matthews to remain at the meeting, in which he then participated. (§19-21).

(e) Matthews openly criticized the Board at numerous public meetings. (§22).

(f) Without Board approval or knowledge Matthews spoke with Board employee Colon, which compromised the Board and caused Colon undue stress. (§23-25)

(g) Without Board approval or knowledge Matthews spoke with former Deputy Superintendent Mullins regarding her position with Bergen Tech; his conduct demonstrated "utter distain and contempt for the Board's decisions" and directives. (§26-34).

(h) At a public meeting on March 8, 2007, Matthews spoke against the Board's 2007/2008 budget and the Budget Committee, criticized Superintendent Lisa and the administration, and refused to yield the floor. (§35-44).

(i) On numerous occasions, Matthews entered the District's schools, discussed Board business with staff, and requested information not otherwise known or available to Board members. (§45).

(j) On March 20, 2007, Matthews acted without authorization or approval from Superintendent Lisa and demanded Assistant Superintendent Richard Segall to compile information regarding student enrollment in advanced placement classes. (§46).

(k) Matthews sought to obtain copies of Superintendent Lisa's expense reimbursements documents. (§47-49).

(l) Matthews refused to cooperate with an investigation regarding charges of harassment and then engaged in conduct that caused Lisa Finn-Bruce, Affirmative Action Officer, to resign. (§50-.58).

(m) Matthews' behavior and dealings with staff compromised the Board and harmed the District. (§58-74).

4. Matthews denied the allegations, filed a Motion to Dismiss and sought sanctions against respondents.

5. Based upon the pleadings and the parties' positions on December 18, 2007, the Commission on granted Mathews' Motion to Dismiss "as to allegations as set forth in paragraphs 22, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 43, 44 and 58 of the complaint". The Commission, however, noted that even if the allegations were true, they would not constitute violations of the Code of ethics for School Board members. The Commission further concluded that the complaint was not frivolous and denied petitioner's request to impose sanctions against respondents.

6. On June 24 and August 26, 2008, the Commission held hearings on the merits of the complaint. The Commission evaluated testimony presented by Carol Lisa, Stephen Brown, Glenn Garrison, Lisa Finn-Bruce and David Matthews.

7 On August 26, 2008, the Commission granted Matthews' Motion to Dismiss paragraphs 6, 7, 8, 33, 34, 45, 42, 47, 48, and 49 of the complaint.

8. The School Ethics Commission evaluated the evidence concerning Matthews' interaction with Ellen Conlon, Susan Mullins, and Richard Segall. On October 27, 2008, the Commission issued a decision that Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e), and (i

9. Based upon its findings the Commission concluded Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(d),[2] as summarized:

[2]N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(d), "No school official shall undertake any employment or service, whether compensated or not, which might reasonably be expected to prejudice his independence of judgment in the exercise of his official duties".

a. Matthews' action with Mullins constituted direct involvement in activities or functions that were the responsibility of school personnel.

b. The Board charged Superintendent Lisa with delegating special assignments to Mullins, who would work from home and communicate directly with the Superintendent; the Commission noted "It is irrelevant what [Matthews] personally thought about this arrangement".

c. Further, the Commission found that Matthews' conduct in February 2007, "Matthews, (by telling Mullins that if he were her, he would... not go through the humiliation associated with the Interlocal Services Agreement and he would simply return to Bergen Tech, and that he believed it was embarrassing that the Board had three assistant superintendents) overstepped his duties as a board member and encroached on the oversight and management functions that were specifically assigned to the Superintendent";

d. The Commission concluded, Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(d) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

10. The School Ethics Commission made credibility findings and concluded Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e)[3] as summarized:

a. Matthews was not authorized or selected by the Board to attend the meeting at Bergen Tech on January 4, 2007.

b. Matthews' attendance at the meeting with Bergen Tech School over a disputed interlocal services agreement "constituted private action" under N.J.A.C. 7A:28-7.1. (Action which is "beyond the scope of the

This provision shall not apply to the solicitation or acceptance of contributions to the campaign of an announced candidate for elective public office, if the school official has no knowledge or reason to believe that the campaign contribution, if accepted, was given with the intent to influence the school official in the discharge of his official duties duties and responsibilities of a member of a district board of education").

c. Matthews' conduct of attending the meeting constituted "in this context, reckless behavior that could have compromised the Board's position."

d. The Commission concluded Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board members.

11. The School Ethics Commission concluded Matthews engaged in combative and insulting dialogue with the District's Affirmative Action Officer during an investigation in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-241(i)[4].

12. The Commission recommended that Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

13. On April 14, 2009, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the decision of the Commission that Matthews violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e), and (i) Code of Ethics for School Board members by attending the January 4, 2007 meeting with Bergen Tech without Board authorization, as a consequence of his interactions regarding Mullins; and as a result of his refusal to cooperate with the Affirmative Action Officer's investigation and making statement to her of an offensive nature.

Petitioner contends the alleged unethical acts arose in the performance of his duties as a Board member. Specifically, he was acting "under color" of his position when he engaged in the conduct that underlies the ethics complaint. Consequently, the Board must indemnify him based on "the undeniable fact that the conditions of the statue are met for mandatory indemnification, both by virtue of the complained-of conduct and by the inherent fact that violations of the Code of Ethics can arise only by way of one's board membership." (Petitioner's Brief at 1).

[4] No elected member shall be prohibited from making an inquiry for information on behalf of a constituent, if no fee, reward or other thing of value is promised to, given to or accepted by the member or a member of his immediate family, whether directly or indirectly, in return therefor.

Petitioner acknowledges all school board members must abide by the Code of Ethics. However, petitioner asserts that conduct, even behavior that violates the Code, constitutes action that is inherently related to the duties of a school board member. Therefore, the alleged wrongful conduct is automatically within the purview of the statute and ripe for indemnification. (Petitioner's Brief at 9-11).

Respondent argues Petitioner erroneously equates actions that simply relate to the duties of a school board member and actions that arise from the course of performance of duties as a school board member.

A board member may be entitled to indemnification of his or her legal fees. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 reimbursement of legal fees for a board member is recoverable:

> Whenever a civil, administrative, criminal or quasi-criminal action or other legal proceeding has been or shall be brought against any person for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties as a member of a board of education, and in the case of a criminal or quasi-criminal action such action results in final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting there from.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 the alleged violations must arise out of and in the course of the performance of one's duties as a member of a board of education. Montagna v. Board of Education. of Township. of Belleville, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 46.

In Errington v. Mansfield Board of Education, 42 N.J. 320, 322 (1964) plaintiff alleged that the board had no authority to expend public funds to defend a libel suit.[5] On remand the court determined the President of Board of Education was not eligible for indemnification for a libelous statement. Further, the court determined that the board members, intervenors in the libel suit, were acting as individuals in adopting a resolution to provide legal fees to the board president. However, indemnification was awarded to the board members who were then subjected to suit because their involvement in the suit was wholly an outgrowth of their role as board members. Errington v. Mansfield Board of Education, 100 N.J. Super. 130 (1968).

In the context of a criminal complaint, the issue is whether the critical acts took place when and where the individual performed his duties and while he was fulfilling the duties of a board member. Powers v. Union City Board of Education, 124 N.J. Super. 590 (1973), aff'd o.b., 127 N.J.Super. 294 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 575 (1974). Although the alleged criminal acts were beyond the prescribed duties of a board member does not immunize the board from the statutory liability. Such a construction would exclude all criminal conduct and frustrate the express intent of the legislature." Id. at 595. The critical factor with regard to the extortion charge, even though the board member voted on contracts, was that the actions were carried outside his activity as a board member as to time, place, and subject matter. Examples of criminal conduct that would require indemnification under the statute include a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-5.1, (board member votes to exclude a child from a public school because of race, creed, or color; creating a religious test for employment in a public school; neglecting to perform any duty required by law) and N.J.S.A. 2A:135-5, (board member willfully and knowingly votes for the disbursement of public money or the creation of an obligation in excess of appropriations). The court explained that although the acts would be illegal, the successful defense of them would invoke indemnity under the statute because the gravamen of the litigation took place when and where the individual performed his duties and while he was fulfilling the duties of a board member. Criminal extortion, on the other hand, fell outside because it was carried on outside the course or scope of powers' duties as a board member.

[5] The New Jersey Supreme Court refused to consider the issue absent a full record. "The record before us is meager and the issue presented is of public importance. It appears to us that the sound course would have been to permit the libel actions to proceed to trial, and thereafter the issue could have been fairly determined on the basis of a full record."

In the civil context, courts have generally held that litigation arising out of situations involving the strong public policy favoring open debate and discourse, fall within the duty to indemnify. For example, where the Board President allegedly made defamatory remarks to a public citizen during a television show, the Court found that the Board President was entitled to indemnification for legal fees resulting from the action. Montagna v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Belleville, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 46. The sole reason for the president's appearance on the show was to disseminate information about the Board and its decisions to the public. Further, at least a portion of "the utterance was directed at the Petitioner's past and present disagreements with the BOE." Id. at 15-16.

Similarly, in Quick v. Board of Education. of the Township. of Old Bridge, 308 N.J. Super. 338, 342 (App. Div. 1998), plaintiff sought expenses incurred in a dispute over her attendance at a meeting to discuss a lawsuit she and other citizens had initiated before her election to the Board. The court held Quick was within her duty to attend a board meeting, despite board action barring her attendance. Quick, 308 N.J. Super. at 342. Quick had agreed to refrain from participating in the decision, and believed it was her duty as a school board member to attend meetings. Id. at 342.

On the other hand, the Courts have held that the conduct does not arise in the course of one duties where a member attends the board meeting to advance a personal agenda or a teacher's effort to pressure administration officials into tenure, Scirrotto v. Warren Hills Bd. of Educ., 72 N.J. Super. 391 (App. Div. 1994)

Here, the bulk of the overall dispute arose as a result of Matthews' participation as a board member. The Commission dismissed most of the paragraphs listed in the complaint, leaving three that were adjudicated. I have carefully considered whether the conduct in the remaining three charges was carried on outside the course of scope of Petitioner's duties as a Board member as to time, place, and subject matter. The conversation with Mullins was a private conversation, which occurred outside of a board or committee meeting, breached board policy and defied a court order limiting interaction with Mullins.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner's conversation with Mullins was not within the course of duties as regards time and place. I further CONCLUDE that defense of the charge is not eligible for indemnification.

The second violation concerned a breach of board policy. The Commission found that Matthews ran afoul of the statutory prohibition against taking "any private action that may compromise the board" and the duty to recognize that the authority belongs to the board of education as a whole. Further, the Commission noted that N.J.A.C. 7A:28-7.1 defines the term private action, as that which is "beyond the scope of the duties and responsibilities of a member of a district board of education". The Board did not select Matthews to attend the meeting with Bergen Tech School. Therefore, the Commission concluded that his attendance at a meeting "constituted private action". The Commission further commented that Matthews' decision to attend the meeting, "[W]as in this context, reckless behavior that could have compromised the Board's position." Although petitioner's conduct might have went beyond acceptable, the issue is whether the conduct was carried on outside the scope of his duties as to time, place, and subject matter. The subject matter and the meeting were within the purview of all Board members. Although the other participants were unhappy about his appearance at the meeting they included and accepted his attendance. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that indemnification is available.

Lastly, the Commission concluded that Petitioner engaged in combative and insulting dialogue with a district employee assigned to conduct an Affirmative Action investigation. The Commission observed that Petitioner raised valid issues about the authority of the employee to conduct the investigation. However, he violated the Ethics Code requirement that board members "support and protect school personnel in proper performance of their duties," N.J.S.A. 18A:12-241(i). Since boards of education have the authority to hire and fire personnel, this requirement is intended to prevent board members from using that authority to improperly intimidate district employees – a circumstance peculiar to board members.

Thus, I CONCLUDE this charge arises out of Petitioner's role as a board member, since it is that authority which makes any inappropriate conduct destructive in the school environment. Moreover, the conversation, although unfortunate, arose as part of an official school investigation. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that indemnification is available.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner asks for reconsideration of a decision issued by the Commissioner on April 10, 2008. The decision upheld respondent Board's non-renewal of petitioner's employment as an alternate route provisional teacher.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b) allows applications for reconsideration of Commissioner decisions, providing that they are filed within ten days of the issuance of said decision. The instant application is clearly out of time. Moreover, the motion fails to meet the standards outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2). Rather than presenting specific new facts which could not have been previously discovered by due diligence, mistakes directly related to the treatment of petitioner, and/or new developments in legal precedent, petitioner's motion generally relies on 1) papers submitted and already considered by the Commissioner and other adjudicators in previous, unsuccessful proceedings brought by the petitioner in various forums and 2) a Department of Education report which described improprieties in some of the respondent district's business practices and compensation packages for upper level staff, but included nothing specifically related to respondent's determination that petitioner's employment should not be renewed. [1]

Petitioner was advised by letter dated March 4, 2010, from Deputy Commissioner Willa Spicer, that the "Commissioner is unable to consider your submission, which pertains to matters that are either on appeal or in litigation in the State and federal courts and into which the Commissioner may not insert himself in the manner you seek." For those reasons and the reasons articulated in this decision, respondents' motion to dismiss the petition is granted.

WHEREAS, the petitioner, JOHN MAIELLO, filed a Petition of Appeal asserting that he had tenure as a "director," having previously served as a director of human resources, a position which had required an administrator certificate and a principal endorsement, and,

WHEREAS, petitioner asserted a tenure claim to existing director titles now held by non-tenured staff members, and

WHEREAS, the Wayne Township Board of Education opposed petitioner's claim, and

WHEREAS, the parties engaged in settlement discussions to avoid the need for further litigation and associated costs, and

WHEREAS, while reserving all the rights related to their respective claims and defenses, the parties have arrived at an agreement which they believe is in their mutual interest in that it will end this litigation and any further expense associated with it, and will avoid displacing any existing staff member employed in the district,

NOW, be it resolved that the parties agree to the following stipulation of settlement:

1) The petitioner waives and releases all claims he has asserted in the within petition to any existing director titles.

2) In consideration therefore, the respondent, Wayne Township Board of Education, while not acknowledging any wrongdoing or violation of law or contract, agrees to compensate petitioner the difference between his current salary of $126,230.00 and the salary of $132,583.00 which he received in his prior position during the 2008-2009 school term, a sum of $6,353.00, less the payment of $2,337.00 he would have had to have made towards his health insurance premium if he were reassigned to a director title, representing a net payment of $4,016.00. Said payment will be made only for the current 2009-2010 school term.

3) Petitioner does not waive any tenure claim he may have towards any director position to be created in the future or any director title which may become vacant for which he will be qualified.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF FABIO JIMENEZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP OF WOODBRIDGE,	:
MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The Woodbridge Township School District brought tenure charges of conduct unbecoming, insubordination and other just cause against respondent, a tenured custodian. Respondent denied all charges.

The ALJ concluded that the Board proved by a preponderance of the credible and legally competent evidence that respondent, inter alia: engaged in a pattern of belligerent conduct towards his co-workers and supervisors, behaved in an objectionable and offensive manner toward a female co-worker, left his assigned post without permission, failed to abide by procedures regarding absences, failed to clean as directed, and flagrantly disregarded workplace rules. The ALJ found that respondent's conduct warranted dismissal from tenured employment.

The Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Respondent was dismissed from tenured employment.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9298-09
AGENCY DKT. NO. 156-7/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FABIO JIMENEZ, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WOODBRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the respective exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by respondent and the Board of Education (Board), and the Board's reply to respondent's exceptions.[1]

In its exceptions, the Board substantially reiterates its post-hearing submission at the OAL, urging adoption of the Initial Decision to the extent that the Board's arguments were accepted by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and expansion of the ALJ's findings and conclusions to the extent that these do not reflect the Board's position in full detail.[2] (Board's Exceptions at 1-54)

[1] By letter dated March 22, 2010, respondent objected to the Board's exceptions on grounds that applicable rule makes no provision for exceptions "in support of" an Initial Decision; by reply dated March 23, 2010, the Board countered that its submission was fully in compliance with law, in that it proposed substantive additions and administrative clarifications to the Initial Decision as well as noting those areas with which the Board agreed. By letter dated March 25, 2010, the Department of Education advised the parties that the Board's exceptions fell within the permissible scope of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and, hence, would be considered by the Commissioner in rendering his decision. Respondent did not reply to the Board's exceptions, although afforded the opportunity to do so by both the referenced rule and the Department's March 25, 2010 letter.

[2] The Board notes seven instances of hostility toward supervisors in addition to those specifically found by the ALJ (Board's Exceptions at 12-13); three additional instances of berating and embarrassing co-workers (Id. at 15); three additional instances of other unbecoming conduct (Id. at 16); two additional instances of insubordination (Id. at 17-18); seven additional instances of violating attendance procedures (Id. at 20-21); and five additional instances of sexual harassment (Id. at 22-23).

Respondent's exceptions similarly reiterate the substance of his post-hearing submission, recasting the arguments therein to support the contention that the ALJ erroneously sustained the Board's charges. (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-27) During the course of such reiteration, respondent particularly asserts that the ALJ: 1) failed to explain, for each charge, why she upheld some specifications and rejected others and further failed to specify the evidence on which she relied in making her determinations (Id. at 1-2); 2) failed to deal with inconsistencies in testimony (Id. at 8, 13); 3) made findings of fact that do not relate back to the Board's charges as stated (Id. at 10), including some on allegations not contained within such charges (Id. at 26); and 4) pronounced respondent's leaving of a note in response to removal of his personal items from a locker inappropriate without indicating the basis for so doing (Id. at 13-19).

In reply, the Board contends that respondent's exceptions have: 1) mischaracterized the Initial Decision in stating that the ALJ "rejected" some of the tenure charge specifications, when, in fact, not one of the Board's allegations was found untrue (Board's Reply at 3); 2) wrongly asserted that findings were made outside the scope of the Board's charges, when each of the purportedly extraneous incidents is, in fact, incorporated into the Board's July 1, 2009 Statement of Tenure Charges and Statement of Evidence Under Oath and the Board's charges additionally contain broad allegations encompassing "other actions of the same or similar nature" (Id. at 3-4); and 3) attacked the ALJ's well-supported credibility determinations by attempting to simply dismiss Board witnesses as "not credible," take testimony out of context, proffer "some outlandish theory" or claim of prejudice as to why a particular witness would lie under oath, or urge wholesale rejection of hearsay testimony without acknowledging that such testimony is acceptable in administrative proceedings so long as the residuum rule[3] is satisfied, as it clearly was herein (Id. at 4-13; 19-22). The Board further contends that respondent errs in claiming that certain of its allegations "appear" not to have been sustained, when the ALJ's overall discussion and summation of respondent's own testimony makes it clear that they were[4] (Id. at 13-17), and that – notwithstanding respondent's attempts to cast blame for the "note" incident elsewhere and characterize the writing in question as angry but not threatening – Board witnesses clearly testified that they did, in fact, feel threatened and intimidated by respondent's note, the language of which speaks for itself (Id. at 18-19).

Upon review, the Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments and objections previously raised before the ALJ and clearly taken into account by her in weighing the testimony and evidence, and in concluding that the record overall overwhelmingly supported the Board's charges. Notwithstanding respondent's contentions to the contrary, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record, which includes transcripts of all five days of hearing, to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or her determinations of witness credibility;[5] similarly, the Commissioner judges the ALJ's findings of fact to be supported by a voluminous documentary and testimonial record as appropriately summarized in the Initial Decision.[6] Moreover, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's assessment of respondent's conduct in light of applicable law and prior decisional precedent, and

[3] N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.5(b).

[4] In one instance, the Board attributes respondent's stance to the ALJ's reference (at 18-19) to "September 2003" as the due date of a doctor's note, when it is clear from the context that she is referring to respondent's absence between September 30, 2003 and October 6, 2003 without providing a doctor's note as required upon his return on October 7, 2003. (Board's Reply at 14-15)

[5] It is well established that the Commissioner must defer to the credibility findings of the ALJ unless these prove to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

[6] In this regard, the Commissioner rejects both respondent's contention that the ALJ was required to set out in detail the specific basis for each finding when such basis is evident from the Initial Decision's discussion of testimony and evidence, and the Board's suggestion that each and every allegation supporting its charges should be specifically addressed in the Initial Decision when consideration of the major allegations under each charge was more than sufficient to render a determination as to whether a charge was proven.

agrees that the conduct proven in this proceeding amply warrants respondent's dismissal from tenured employment.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL directing removal of respondent from his position of tenured employment is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 09298-09
AGENCY DKT. NO. 156-7-7/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FABIO JIMENEZ, WOODBRIDGE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

Jonathan Busch, Esq., for petitioner Woodbridge Township School District (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent Fabio Jimenez (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 16, 2010 Decided: March 8, 2010

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Woodbridge Township School District (the District/Board), brought tenure charges against Fabio Jimenez, a custodian, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 on charges of conduct unbecoming (sexual harassment and belligerent conduct) insubordination and other just cause. On July 1, 2009, the Board suspended Jimenez without pay, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. On July 17, 2009, tenure charges were filed with the superintendent of schools, and served on Jimenez in accordance with N.J.S.A.

18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. Through counsel, respondent filed an answer on July 30, 2009, denying the charges and raising certain affirmative defenses.[1] (P-3.)

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on August 11, 2009. Hearings were held on November 30, and December 1, 14, 16, and 17, 2009. The record remained open for the receipt of transcripts and post-hearing briefs, and closed on February 16, 2010.

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUE

The issue is whether the Board proved the tenure charges against Jimenez by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

TESTIMONY

The following is intended to summarize the testimony of the witnesses relevant to the issues in this matter.[2]

Dr. Jonathan Crowe

Dr. Jonathan Crowe, superintendent of schools, testified on behalf of the District. Jimenez was hired by the Board in 1996 as a custodian. Crowe met Jimenez in the fall of 1996 while teaching sixth grade at Lynn Crest School. Jimenez would clean the classroom and they would informally speak. Crowe was appointed principal of Lynn Crest School in June 2002, and served in that position through December 2007. He was appointed principal of Iselin Middle School on January 1, 2008, and served in that position until July 31, 2008, when he became superintendent of schools.

When Crowe was principal of Iselin Middle School, he met with Jimenez to discuss his job performance. He said that Jimenez was insubordinate and failed to complete his assigned tasks. Crowe stated that since becoming superintendent he has only spoken to Jimenez on one occasion, addressing an allegation from an employee who accused Jimenez of speaking to her inappropriately, dancing in front of her, and blocking her way.

Crowe also testified that Jimenez failed to report to work without following procedures, by not leaving a recorded message that he would not be at work.[3] (P-2.) Pursuant to the policies and procedures of the District, Crowe must prepare verbal warnings, written warnings, suspensions, salary freezes or dismissals. (P-3; P-4.) Crowe verbally warned Jimenez. On January 7, 2008, Crowe, as principal of Iselin Middle School, forwarded a letter to Jimenez advising him that he had used eleven of his fifteen allotted illness days for the school year. (P-103.)

On February 1, 2008, Dennis DeMarino, District business administrator, forwarded a memo to Crowe (P-108) advising him of four incidents involving Jimenez:

> 1.) Physical education teachers found a half empty bottle of Michelob Ultra on a desk in their locked office. Jimenez had been assigned to clean that office;
> 2.) Music teacher Mrs. Margaretta Casella reported that Jimenez was disruptive when he stood in front of her classroom doorway during chorus rehearsal and danced;
> 3.) Jimenez called his supervisor at 6:00 a.m., on January 31, 2008, advising he had lost a kitten during his evening shift that a family member brought in and he was looking for it; and
> 4.) After inspection of Jimenez' designated area on January 31, 2008, his supervisor found only a portion of the area cleaned.

Crowe personally observed the Michelob bottle on the desk and suspected Jimenez of leaving it there, because that was his assigned work area. He also believed that Jimenez was dancing in front of the music teacher's chorus rehearsal. Crowe stated that Jimenez confirmed that a kitten, which was brought to school by a family member, was lost in the building.

On February 26, 2008, supervisor Pamela McGlynn forwarded a memo to DeMarino outlining additional incidents involving Jimenez. (P-113.) These incidents included Jimenez "meowing" around the building; singing in Spanish and English during an after-school activity period while listening to his iPod[4]; not cleaning two large soda spills in classroom 603; not removing trash from room 604; and not removing papers from under the desks in rooms 514 and 516.

On May 20, 2008, Crowe forwarded a memo to Jimenez advising him that he was insubordinate by not cleaning bleachers when directed to do so by his supervisor and not changing a light bulb as directed. (P-133.)

On May 29, 2008, Jimenez was given an informal hearing to address the issue of absenteeism and the bleacher incident. (P-134.) Present at the meeting were Crowe, assistant superintendent for personnel services Angela Korodan, Dennis DeMarino, and Brian Geoffroy of the Woodbridge Township Education Association representing Jimenez. At that hearing, Crowe stated that Jimenez did not follow a written directive immediately, as his coworkers did, when ordered to clean the bleachers. Instead, Jimenez gave an excuse that he had been on his way, but the bleachers had already been done, which Crowe found to be an unacceptable excuse.

On June 16, 2008, Jimenez received his year-end performance evaluation. Crowe said it was a very negative evaluation, and that it was rare to see so many "unsatisfactory" ratings for a custodian. (P-137.)

On March 10, 2009, Crowe and Korodan met with a temporarily assigned custodian, Katherine Anthony, to discuss a complaint she had made. Anthony claimed that Jimenez was harassing her by making inappropriate sexual comments, and she wanted the behavior to stop. (P-144.)

[4] Crowe testified that although there is no written policy that iPods and similar devices are not permitted, he felt that it was inappropriate to use such a device during the school day, but less serious if used in the evening.

As a result of Anthony's complaint, Jimenez was suspended with pay from March 10, 2009, through March 16, 2009, pending further action of the Board. (P-149.) On March 30, 2009, DeMarino recommended to Crowe that Jimenez's salary increment be withheld for the 2009–2010 school year, and also sought to have Jimenez terminated from employment effective July 1, 2009. (P-150.) DeMarino based his recommendation to withhold Jimenez's salary increment on his excessive absenteeism, his not following procedure when he failed to call in for a bereavement day and a birthday compensatory day, and his inappropriate behavior as alleged by Anthony.

On May 20, 2009, Crowe sent a letter to Jimenez advising him of his suspension with pay effective May 19, 2009, pending Board action. (P-158.) The Board approved the suspension with pay on May 22, 2009. (P-160.)

On July 1, 2009, Crowe filed tenure charges, which were approved and adopted by the Board on July 16, 2009; thereafter, Jimenez was suspended without pay.

Angela Korodan

Angela Korodan, the District's assistant superintendent for personnel services since 2008, testified on behalf of the District. Korodan had been the director of personnel from July 2002 to September 2008. Her duties included hiring, employee discipline, staffing, budgeting and conferencing. Korodan is also the chief affirmative action officer.

Korodan stated that Jimenez had an informal hearing on April 8, 2004, with regard to his past disciplines, to address why he failed to follow procedure by leaving the building without the permission of his supervisor. (P-35.) The Board approved a five-day suspension without pay. (P-37.)

On January 14, 2005, the Board upheld a two-day suspension for Jimenez's again leaving the building without permission and taking a half-day sick day an hour earlier than policy dictated. (R-53.)

An informal hearing was held on October 27, 2006 (discussed in DeMarino's testimony), and the Board imposed a suspension of ten days without pay. (P-77.)

On February 7, 2008, Jimenez had an informal hearing to address why he was taking sick days when he was not ill, and the fact that he had a family member bring a kitten to school and leave it with him. Korodan had concerns not only for the safety of the animal that was left in the building all night, but also for the health and safety of the students, in case the animal carried disease. (P-110.) On March 13, 2008, the Board approved a thirty-day suspension without pay for the period March 31, 2008, through May 9, 2008. (P-121.)

On April 24, 2008, the Board approved the increment withholding for Jimenez for the 2008–2009 school year for being excessively absent during the 2007–2008 school year; for engaging in disruptive behavior on January 31, 2008, by standing in the doorway of a classroom and dancing while a chorus rehearsal was being conducted; by allowing a cat into the school building and leaving it there overnight; and for repeatedly failing to complete assigned tasks and engaging in hostile and disrespectful conduct towards his supervisor. (P-125.)

On May 29, 2008, Jimenez had another informal hearing to address why he did not follow procedure when he called to take off work for legal reasons when he did not have any available leave days left. Jimenez also failed to follow the directive to clean the bleachers in the gym after a basketball game, when he did not help his coworkers. (P-134.)

Korodan testified that she received a telephone call on March 9, 2009, from Crowe advising that a substitute custodian, Katherine Anthony, was accusing Jimenez of sexual harassment. After interviewing Anthony and Jimenez, Korodan prepared an Affirmative Action Grievance Report.[5] (P-143; P-144.) Korodan found that there was evidence to support Anthony's claim against Jimenez of sexually inappropriate behavior in the workplace. (P-147.) Jimenez was suspended with pay pending action by the Board. (P-146; P-148.)

On October 13, 2008, Jimenez attended the affirmative action "Diversity Awareness and Sexual Harassment" training. (P-141.) Pursuant to the handout distributed during the training session, examples of sexual harassment included hugging, kissing, patting, stroking, blocking a person's path, following a person and/or giving a personal gift, turning work discussions to sexual topics, telling sexual jokes or asking personal questions about someone's social or sexual life. (P-142.)

On April 29, 2009, the superintendent recommended withholding Jimenez's salary increment for the 2009–2010 school year for being excessively absent; for not following procedure by failing to call and leave a recorded message when absent for a bereavement day and a birthday compensatory day; and for the harassment of Anthony. (P-154.)

On May 21, 2009, the Board approved a suspension with pay retroactive to May 19, 2009, pending further action. (P-164.)

Dennis DeMarino

Dennis DeMarino, the District's business administrator and board secretary since June 2003, testified on behalf of the Board. Both Jimenez's supervisor, Pam McGlynn, and supervisor of buildings and grounds Anthony D'Orsi contacted him on many occasions with complaints about Jimenez's behavior issues. Many informal hearings were conducted in his office. The first hearing that addressed behavior issues was held on April 8, 2004. During that meeting they discussed Jimenez leaving the building during working hours without permission from a supervisor, and his being argumentative towards his supervisor. (P-35.) A five-day suspension was imposed.

On May 25, 2004, another informal hearing was held because Jimenez was having personal conflicts with his supervisor, and he had lost his temper when addressing his supervisor. (P-44.) No disciplinary action was taken.

On December 20, 2004, another informal hearing was held to discuss Jimenez's leaving work earlier than permitted (twenty minutes) and failure to call and leave a recorded message to report that he was leaving. (P-48.) A two-day suspension was imposed.[6]

DeMarino testified that he told Jimenez that he was constantly being written up, yet never saw himself as doing anything wrong. He met with Jimenez on many occasions to discuss his personality conflicts. DeMarino even requested that Jimenez send him a letter requesting a transfer, and said that he would present it to the Board as soon as possible. Jimenez refused.

On October 27, 2006, another informal hearing took place in DeMarino's office to address a directive issued by Ms. Miller not to use the cooking room during the evening or on weekends and to keep the room locked. While Jimenez did not use the room, DeMarino felt that he made an inappropriate and disrespectful comment to his supervisor McGlynn in responding to the directive by saying, "I'm going to use the damn room tonight and every night."

DeMarino testified that there was also an incident involving a Board member who was running a girls' basketball league and asked Jimenez to let him use a side room to conference with the basketball team. Jimenez refused, and used inappropriate language towards the Board member. (P-71.)

On November 15, 2006, DeMarino prepared a synopsis for the Personnel and Grievance Committee of the many informal hearings, disciplines and evaluations of Jimenez. (P-76.)

An informal hearing was conducted on March 22, 2007, in DeMarino's office to address a note written by Jimenez that stated, "If you have a problem with me, come and see me, man to whatever you are," which had been directed at the physical education staff when his personal belongings were thrown in the trash. On April 13, 2007, DeMarino recommended that Jimenez's increment be withheld for the 2007–2008 school year. (P-86.)

[6] The remainder of the informal hearings have been testified to by either Crowe or Korodan and will not be repeated as testified to by DeMarino.

On April 18, 2007, DeMarino directed Jimenez to attend the Employee Assistance Program, and, if recommended, attend anger-management therapy. He also told Jimenez of bimonthly meetings he needed to attend with his supervisor to monitor his performance and his willingness to accept suggestions and directions while controlling his temper, and to work an entire shift timely. Jimenez was also directed to have monthly meetings with the principal to ensure compliance with any recommendations. (P-87.)

On April 18, 2007, then superintendent Vincent Smith forwarded a letter to Jimenez advising him that he was recommending that his increment be withheld for the 2007–008 school year for repeatedly engaging in insubordinate conduct, failing to complete assigned tasks, and repeatedly engaging in hostile and disrespectful conduct towards coworkers and supervisors. (P-88.) On May 1, 2007, the Board approved the recommendation. (P-92.)

Jimenez attended anger-management therapy in the months of April and May 2007, and his supervisor sent DeMarino updates on his performance bimonthly. (P-93; P-94.)

DeMarino received a memo from supervisor McGlynn on February 26, 2008, advising him that Jimenez was making a meowing sound in the building; singing loudly in English and Spanish while listening to an iPod; and failing to clean soda spills in a classroom. Although DeMarino recommended a ten-day suspension, the Board imposed a thirty-day suspension. DeMarino also recommended an increment withholding for the 2008–2009 and 2009–2010 school years for excessive absenteeism, not completing tasks, and allowing a cat into the building. (P-123; P-150.)

On July 17, 2009, the Board suspended Jimenez without pay and found probable cause to credit the evidence in support of filing tenure charges.

Pamela McGlynn

Pamela McGlynn, supervisor of custodians for Iselin Middle School, testified on behalf of the Board. She has been Jimenez's supervisor since 1996. She found him to be a hard-working employee until sometime in 2000 or 2001. Since then she has thought that his personal life and another job were interfering with his performance. She said that he was becoming a "liar, throwing temper tantrums," and being, in general, "completely obnoxious." He would say to her, "don't talk to me" or "don't bother me." On November 14, 2001, Jimenez left the school building at 8:15 p.m., during his shift, without obtaining permission from her or from the building administrator or even signing the "sign-out sheet." Jimenez did inform and obtain permission from the vice principal, but that was not the proper procedure. (P-19.)

In another instance, on December 28, 2001, Jimenez wrote a note to McGlynn advising of a change in his vacation plans. District procedure required the employee to give the supervisor forty-eight hours' notice of a change in plans. Jimenez advised McGlynn on December 28, 2001, that he was taking a vacation from December 24 to December 29, 2001, thereby violating the procedure. (P-20.) He also did not advise in advance whether he was planning on taking a vacation around Easter. Jimenez advised that he did not have reservations yet. (P-23.) McGlynn did not recall if he took any days off during that time.

McGlynn also testified that Jimenez did not turn on the boilers on two consecutive Saturdays in February 2002, as instructed by her in writing. Jimenez told her that he had forgotten. (P-21.)

On June 18, 2002, McGlynn completed a year-end evaluation wherein she rated Jimenez's performance as "satisfactory," except for mood swings and his poor attitude when things did not go his way. (P-26.)

She further testified that Jimenez failed to call the tape recorder to report that he would not be at work on August 11, 14, and 15, 2003, and also failed to provide a doctor's note in September 2003 when he was absent for five consecutive days, in violation of District procedure that you must submit a note if absent five or more consecutive days.

On April 2, 2004, McGlynn asked Jimenez to help unload tables from a truck during his supper break, and he responded, "What the fuck do you want? I'm fucking sick and tired of doing this extra shit," telling her that he was in a bad mood and tired.

McGlynn, who rarely gave an "unsatisfactory" rating on year-end evaluations, did so for Jimenez on May 26, 2004, because he was not accepting suggestions and was disrespectful to her by becoming "belligerent." (P-45.)

On December 8, 2004, Jimenez left the building and fell asleep in his car, not following the procedure to let someone know he was leaving the building. McGlynn completed an evaluation form on December 10, 2004,[7] reflecting an "unsatisfactory" performance rating for leaving the building. (P-46.)

McGlynn formally met with Jimenez on two occasions in April 2007 pertaining to his work performance. She met informally with him thereafter. The meetings were supposed to end upon his completion of anger-management therapy. (P-93.)

On March 10, 2009, McGlynn filled out an affirmative action grievance report, indicating that she had observed a substitute custodian, Kathy Anthony, get a cup of coffee and Jimenez then get a cup of coffee. She heard Anthony yell, "Pam, tell him to leave me alone. Tell him to leave me alone." She heard Jimenez mention the word "sex." Two other custodians were also in the room. Soon thereafter, when McGlynn and Anthony walked into the cafeteria, Jimenez blocked Anthony's way.

[7] Incidents occurring after this date have been outlined in prior witnesses' testimony and were corroborated by McGlynn.

Anthony D'Orsi

Anthony D'Orsi, supervisor of buildings and grounds for the entire school district, testified on behalf of the Board. One of his primary duties was to be responsible for the tape recorder used by employees to leave messages if they were going to be absent. (P-28.) The employees were instructed to call D'Orsi's cell phone in the event of an emergency.

On November 14, 2001, Jimenez left the building at approximately 8:15 p.m., during his shift, and did not contact D'Orsi or sign out, in violation of procedure. D'Orsi stated that Jimenez had "more excuses than names that are in the Essex County telephone book." He felt that Jimenez was "just not a good worker."

David Johnson

David Johnson, a custodian at Iselin Middle School since 2001, testified on behalf of the Board. He has worked with Jimenez for eight years. Johnson recalled an incident in April 2004 when both he and Jimenez were instructed to put up tables for a craft show. Jimenez came to the area late, and Johnson recalled Jimenez yelling at McGlynn. He stated that Jimenez would have outbursts towards him and then apologize.

Johnson further testified that he was surprised when Jimenez showed him a cat in the building. They both looked for the cat during their shift when it went missing. Johnson also confirmed that Jimenez did not clean the bleachers as directed to by their supervisor.

He also recalled another incident, which took place in March 2009 at the school, when he heard the substitute custodian say "stop" and Jimenez saying the word "sex." Johnson told Jimenez that he should not be saying that. He also saw Jimenez dance on the stage on one occasion, but not lift his shirt. Johnson was not specific as to all of the allegations pertaining to March 9, 2009, because his brother was terminally ill at that time and his recollection of events was not clear.

Katherine Anthony

Katherine Anthony was a substitute custodian from May 2004 until her layoff in July 2009. She worked with Jimenez from September 2008 to March 2009, from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. She talked with Jimenez about his personal problems. On two occasions, Jimenez asked Anthony in front of another coworker, "Do we do ourselves when we're home alone?" and "does anyone have a sex toy?" She began to feel uncomfortable with their conversations.

Anthony testified that in early March 2009, Jimenez danced on stage while at the school and lifted his shirt, played with his nipples, and said they would do a striptease act. David Johnson was also present at the time.

Anthony stated that on March 9, 2009, in the boiler room, Jimenez put his hand on her shoulder and started rubbing her back. He then cornered her, not letting her go around him, saying, "You never had sex until you had sex with me." She yelled to her supervisor for help. Jimenez left the area. When she and McGlynn walked into the cafeteria to clean, Jimenez was sitting on the railing, blocking her way. She felt very uncomfortable working with Jimenez.

Margaretta Casella

Margaretta Casella, a music teacher, testified on behalf of the Board. She stated that on January 31, 2008, while having chorus rehearsal with her music students after school, she heard a voice outside the door of the classroom. She saw Jimenez singing and dancing. She found this not only very disruptive to her class, but bizarre.

Franco Caruso

Franco Caruso testified on behalf of the Board. He has been a physical education teacher at the Iselin Middle School since 2002. He shared an office in the boys' locker room with two other teachers. There were six lockers in the hallway connected to the office which were used by the physical education teachers.

Jimenez was asked to remove his personal belongings from one of the lockers because the locker was needed for a student teacher. When Jimenez did not remove his items, physical education teacher Richard Canto removed them and placed them in a clear plastic bag. He then put the bag on top of the locker with a note that said, "Fabio, here's your stuff." When the bag was not retrieved for approximately one week, Canto put it in the trash. The next morning a threatening note from Jimenez was found on Canto's chair, which Caruso brought to the attention of the principal.

Richard Canto

Richard Canto testified on behalf of the Board. He has been a physical education teacher since 2003 at the Iselin Middle School. In March 2007 he removed personal belongings from one of the lockers that appeared to have been there for a long time, and placed the items in a plastic bag on top of the lockers with a note attached that read, "if these are your belongings and you need them, take them." After five to seven days of seeing the bag on top of the lockers, Canto thought no one was claiming it and he threw it in the trash. Caruso told him of a note that was left on his chair, and told him that he should see the principal. When he read the note he felt threatened because it said "come see me" with exclamation points, which he felt meant "somebody wants to call you out or, you know, fight." Canto also took offense to the part of the note that said "man to whatever you are," which implied that he was not a man. He filed a police report.

Fabio Jimenez

Fabio Jimenez testified in his own behalf. He worked for the District as a custodian for approximately fourteen years. He began his 3:00-p.m.-to-11:00-p.m. shift by going to the boiler room, where the custodian's office was located, about fifteen minutes before work started, to meet with his supervisor, Pam McGlynn, about any extra work assignments that needed to be completed. Those assignments were usually in writing.

Jimenez testified that on one occasion in 2001 when he needed to leave work early to take his wife to an appointment, he obtained permission to do so from the vice principal. He penciled in the time he left on the time sheet and then he erased it when he returned to the building that evening to finish his shift and secure the building. That was the procedure. He felt that to be appropriate because he advised an administrator that he would be leaving early. The following day, Jimenez was told by McGlynn that there had been a fire in a garbage bin. He stated he knew nothing about a fire.

Jimenez claimed that he was not aware of any complaint in 2002 about his not turning on the boilers over the weekend, since he was not written up and had no knowledge of an incident on the date in question. He stated that it was warm that day.

In March 2002, Jimenez advised McGlynn that he did not have any reservations yet for Easter break because he did not intend on taking vacation time.

Jimenez denied any incident of not calling and leaving a message on the tape recorder when he was not coming to work, failure to bring in doctors' notes for absences, or failing to sign the sign-in or sign-out sheet. He stated that he was not absent for five consecutive days because it was his understanding that the five days had to be consecutive, and that a weekend in between the days meant they were no longer considered consecutive.

Jimenez recalled an occasion in April 2004 when he was called over the loud speaker to report to the main area. He could not recall if he cursed McGlynn when he went to the main area to get his instructions to move tables. He could not recall whether he was calm. Jimenez did recall a conversation with McGlynn in May 2004 when he was annoyed at her for not giving him overtime and he said, "oh big deal, supervisor, blah, blah, blah."

In December 2004 Jimenez received permission to take one-half day sick time, which would be from 7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. He testified that he went out to his car at about 6:45 p.m. and fell asleep until 7:10 p.m., and came into the building to sign out. He was then suspended for two days.

Jimenez testified that after he was told he could no longer use the cooking room he did not do so. When questioned about a missing spoon, he asked, "Are we still dealing with the damn cooking room?" He did not recall saying anything else. He stated that prior to the no-cooking direction from D'Orsi in approximately 2002, custodians cooked pizza, steak, kielbasa or whatever else they wanted.

Jimenez stated that when he refused a Board member access to a classroom, he did say "I don't care who you are," and denied saying anything else. He also confirmed that he was angry when his belongings were thrown in the trash in the men's locker room, but he did not consider the note he wrote as threatening. He stated that he went to anger-management sessions in 2007.

Jimenez denied dancing in front of Casella's classroom door or not cleaning up a soda spill in one of the classrooms. Although he had been directed to clean bleachers after a basketball game, the other custodians completed the task before he was able to get to the gym.

Jimenez testified that one evening his daughter brought him a kitten while he was working in order to make him feel better after a close relative had passed away. He stated that he thought nothing of keeping the kitten in the building. He lost the kitten, but he found it the next morning. He was suspended for forty-five days. He denied "meowing."

Jimenez denied ever saying anything about sex to Anthony or blocking her way. He claimed that on March 9, 2009, Anthony seemed "down" because she was concerned about finances. He put his hand on her shoulder and asked her if she was okay. Jimenez stated that he never said the word "sex." He also denied mentioning sex toys or asking Anthony, "do you do yourself when you're alone?"

Jimenez had no recollection of meeting with principal Jacqueline Miller to discuss his counseling sessions to deal with stress. He also had no recollection of meeting with McGlynn or Crowe to discuss job performance or disciplinary concerns. He claimed that these meetings never happened.

In evaluating the evidence, the trier of fact must assess and weigh the credibility of the witnesses for purposes of making factual findings as to the disputed facts. Credibility is the value that a finder of fact gives to a witness's testimony. It requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, its internal consistency, and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. U.S., 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). "Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself," in that "[i]t must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances." In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950). A fact finder "is free to weigh the evidence and to reject the testimony of a witness . . . when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone or in connection with other circumstances in evidence excite suspicion as to its truth." Id. at 521-22; see D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997).

Based upon these principles, I FIND that the witnesses for the Board were credible and forthright. Each was convincing, compelling and straightforward.

Jimenez, on the other hand, was lacking in credibility. During his testimony he rambled, was often unresponsive and frequently answered "I don't remember" or "I don't recall." He stated that all of the District's witnesses lied, but he was not able to adequately explain how the testimony was lies, and he demonstrated a complete lack of remorse for or understanding of the legitimacy of his employer's concerns.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon consideration of the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Jimenez is a tenured janitor at Woodbridge Township School District and has been employed by the District since July 1, 1996.

2. On November 14, 2001, Jimenez left the school building during his shift at 8:15 p.m. without obtaining permission from McGlynn or the building administrator, nor did he sign the "sign-out sheet." Rather, he advised the Vice Principal. He was charged with a half-day's absence.

3. Custodians must report their absences by leaving a recorded message no later than two hours prior to their shift.

4. On December 28, 2001, Jimenez wrote a note to McGlynn advising of a change in his vacation plans, effective December 24, 2001, in violation of the procedure requiring that the employee give the supervisor forty-eight hours' notice of a change in plans. He received a verbal warning.

5. Jimenez did not turn on the boilers on two consecutive Saturdays in February 2002, as instructed by McGlynn in writing.

6. On June 18, 2002, McGlynn completed a year-end evaluation and found Jimenez's performance basically satisfactory, except for problems with mood swings and his attitude when things did not go his way.

7. Jimenez was absent on August 11, 14, and 15, 2003, and failed to leave a message on the recorder notifying the District of his absence. He further failed to provide a doctor's note in September 2003 when absent for five consecutive days, in violation of the procedure requiring that a note must be submitted if the employee is absent five or more consecutive days.

8. On April 2, 2004, McGlynn asked Jimenez to help unload tables from a truck during his supper break, and his response was, "What the fuck do you want? I'm fucking sick and tired of doing this extra shit," and he told her that he was in a bad mood and tired.

9. On April 8, 2004, Jimenez left the building during work hours without permission from a supervisor. He was argumentative towards his supervisor. A five-day suspension was imposed.

10. McGlynn rated Jimenez as "unsatisfactory" on the year-end evaluation dated May 26, 2004, because he was not accepting suggestions and was disrespectful to her by becoming "belligerent" and saying he "did not need this shit."

11. On December 8, 2004, Jimenez left the building and fell asleep in his car, not following the procedure requiring that he advise someone when he was leaving the building. A two-day unpaid suspension was imposed.

12. On October 27, 2006, Jimenez had an informal hearing to address his response to a directive by Miller to not use the cooking room during the evening or on weekends, and to keep the room locked. His response was, "I'm going to use the damn room tonight and every night." A ten-day unpaid suspension was imposed.

13. On March 15, 2007, Jimenez wrote a note directed at the physical education staff that stated, "If you have a problem with me, come and see me, man to whatever you are," when his personal belongings went unclaimed and thrown in the trash.

14. On April 18, 2007, DeMarino instructed Jimenez to attend the Employee Assistance Program, and, if recommended, attend anger-management therapy. He also advised that bimonthly meetings would be held with Jimenez and his supervisor to monitor his performance and willingness to accept suggestions and directions while controlling his temper, and to work an entire shift timely. Jimenez was also directed to have monthly meetings with the principal to ensure compliance with any recommendations.

15. On May 1, 2007, the Board approved the increment withholding for Jimenez for the 2007–2008 school year for repeatedly engaging in insubordinate conduct, failing to complete assigned tasks, and repeatedly engaging in hostile and disrespectful conduct towards his coworkers and supervisors.

16. On March 23, 2008, a thirty-day unpaid suspension was imposed by the Board for leaving a half-filled bottle of beer in the teachers' room, for dancing in front of the music teacher's classroom door during chorus practice, for having a cat in the school building overnight, for repeatedly failing to complete assigned tasks, and for engaging in hostile and disrespectful conduct towards his supervisor.

17. On April 24, 2008, the Board voted to withhold Jimenez's employment and adjustment increments for the 2008–2009 school year.

18. On May 29, 2008, Jimenez had an informal hearing to address procedural deficiencies that involved calling to take off from work for legal reasons without having any leave days available. The discipline imposed was loss of one day's pay. Jimenez also failed to follow the directive to clean the bleachers in the gym after a basketball game. A written warning was issued.

19. On October 13, 2008, Jimenez attended a custodian affirmative action seminar on "Diversity Awareness and Sexual Harassment."

20. In March 2009, Jimenez sexually harassed another custodian, Katherine Anthony, by blocking her way, rubbing her shoulder, lifting his shirt while dancing on a stage, and making inappropriate remarks such as "do you ever do yourself when no one's around" and "you haven't had sex like I can give you, like no other man can" and "who has a sex toy?"

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A tenured New Jersey public school employee shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation during good behavior except for, among other things, unbecoming conduct after a hearing by the Commissioner or the Commissioner's appointee upon written charges. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Tenure protects such employees from dismissal for political or unfounded reasons. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982).

Unbecoming conduct is not defined in the statute. However, the courts have stated that "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974). For this purpose, the Commissioner considers the nature and gravity of the offenses, evidence of provocation, extenuation, or aggravation, and any harm or injury to discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967).

Charges must be dismissed if the weight of the evidence neither supports them nor demonstrates unfitness. In re Tenure Hearing of Nies, 1963 S.L.D. 172. When the evidence is in equipoise, the party with the burden has failed. Hudson County Area Vocational Technical Sch. v. Smith, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 229.

The Board urges that Jimenez's conduct warrants his dismissal from his tenured position of employment. I concur. Custodians in the public schools perform a crucial function, and they have been held by the Commissioner of Education to a high standard. The role of the custodian has been described as follows:

> A school janitor occupies a position of trust and responsibility necessitating high standards of dependability and morality. His functions far exceed opening and closing the schoolhouse and keeping it clean and tidy. The safety and welfare of the children may depend upon the proper discharge of his duties.

The Commissioner has recognized that the failure of a custodian to properly attend to his duties could jeopardize the safe and efficient functioning of a building's educational program. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Paterson v. Watson, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 362. The Commissioner has not hesitated to order the dismissal of tenured custodians who have failed to faithfully perform their duties. See In re Tenure Hearing of Riddick, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 345; Jimenez v. New Jersey State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Paterson, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 600; In re Tenure Charges Against Purnell, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 364.

Jimenez was charged with a pattern of belligerent conduct towards his coworkers and supervisors. I CONCLUDE that there was sufficient credible and legally competent evidence that Jimenez made inappropriate verbal outbursts towards his supervisor on more than one occasion, and therefore engaged in conduct unbecoming a staff member, warranting disciplinary action.

Regarding the incident involving Jimenez's coworker Katherine Anthony, I am persuaded that Jimenez's behavior towards Anthony was objectionable and offensive, and created a work environment intimidating enough to compel her to discuss the incident with supervisory personnel and change her hours in order to have minimal or no contact with him. Jimenez had attended the training on sexual harassment and knew, or should have known, that his conduct was inappropriate and offensive, and that a violation of that policy could result in termination. Jimenez made unwanted and unwelcome physical contact in the form of touching Anthony, made unwanted sexual comments to Anthony, and blocked her way. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Jimenez's behavior towards Katherine Anthony in March 2009 constituted unbecoming conduct.

Jimenez was also insubordinate, which has been defined as the willful and intentional disregard of the lawful and reasonable directives of an employee's duly authorized supervisor. In re Tenure Hearing of Motley, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), aff'd as modified, Comm'r (August 4, 1999), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (December 1, 1999) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. This definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. Thus, insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. In re Loria, January 26, 1988, slip op. at 69, aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (August 7, 1988). Insubordination is always a serious matter. "Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of the department." Rivell v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 115 N.J. Super. 64, 72 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 59 N.J. 269 (1971).

Jimenez was absent from his assigned post without permission despite being previously warned. He had previously been admonished that his assigned area was not satisfactorily cleaned. He flagrantly disregarded the rules of his workplace, as confirmed by the testimony at hearing. Credible evidence showed that Jimenez left the building while on duty without following procedure, did not call the recorder to report absences, altered vacation days in December 2001 after the start of his vacation, did not follow a directive when asked to turn on the school's boiler on two weekends, did not clean bleachers as directed, and did not complete cleaning his work area as directed by his supervisor. With regard to the charge of insubordination, I CONCLUDE that the Board has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Jimenez was insubordinate.

The record makes it plain that allowing Jimenez to continue in the employ of the Board would place the unwarranted burden on his supervisors of "continually monitoring a subordinate [who has been] demonstrated to be lax" in performing his assigned duties and who has a record of leaving his assigned post without permission. See State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Paterson v. Cox, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 748.

With his vast disciplinary history, I am satisfied that removal is appropriate and warranted under the circumstances. Under the principle of progressive discipline fashioned from West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962), a person entrusted with public duties who subverts the discipline of his employer evidences an indifference to his obligations and to his position. Such an indifference to his obligation to follow legitimate directives or orders by his employer, as well as his inappropriate behavior towards a substitute custodian, serves to adversely impact morale and efficiency of the middle school.

Based upon the facts adduced and the legal principles cited above, I CONCLUDE that the Board has met its burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence and that the tenure charges are sustained.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Jimenez be removed from employment with the Board.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

DEBRA BUTLER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:
AND
IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DEBRA BUTLER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

The records of these consolidated matters, the proposed Settlement Agreement (Agreement) and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed. Upon said review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following observations.

First, settlements of tenure matters require analysis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a), which articulates the standards set forth in In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 (State Board, April 6, 1983). The Commissioner finds that those standards have been met in this case.

The record contains the statement of charges, satisfying standard N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)(1). The terms of the Agreement indicate that standards N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)(3) and (4) – concerning the parties' understanding of the settlement and their consent to same – are satisfied. Finally, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)(2) and (5), the standards requiring explication of how the settlement is justified and in the public interest are also satisfied, insofar as the respondent's resignation from her secretarial position and the expeditious resolution of the litigation will have no detrimental effect on the district's students, and will allow the minimization of legal fees and a prompt search for a qualified employee.[1]

The Commisssioner also notes that Section 1 of the Agreement makes reference to a December 1, 2009 date of termination of petitioner's employment. That date has preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have already implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon a mutually satisfactory alternate date for the effectuation of same. Assuming same, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: January 13, 2010 Decided: January 19, 2010

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

These matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 5, 2009 and August 11, 2009, respectively, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Debra Butler v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 2007-09 was assigned to the Honorable Ronald W. Reba, and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Debra Butler, School District of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8637-09, was assigned to the undersigned. The parties moved for consolidation and on September 28, 2009, Judge Reba entered an Order of Consolidation and both matters were scheduled for hearing for November 9, 10 and 12, 2009.

Prior to November 9, 2009, the parties requested an adjournment of the November 9 hearing date as they were actively pursuing settlement of both matters. On November 10, 2009, the parties appeared and further adjournment was requested due to ongoing settlement negotiations. On November 12, 2009, the parties appeared, placed the settlement on the record and executed a handwritten settlement agreement. The matter was rescheduled for hearing of December 1, 2009, awaiting Board approval.

On November 13, 2009, Board counsel advised that the Board had approved the settlement and an executed settlement agreement would be filed.

On the record closed date, an executed Settlement Agreement together with the Board Resolution was received indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, The Trenton Board of Education (hereinafter referred to as "petitioner") brought tenure charges against the respondent, Debra Butler (hereinafter referred to as "respondent"), having Docket No. 08637-2009S; and

WHEREAS, the petitioner also withheld both the employment and adjustment increment for the respondent for both the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school terms; and

WHEREAS, the respondent was prepared to litigate both issues; and

WHEREAS, both the tenure and incremental withholding matters were consolidated for purposes of this litigation having respective OAL Docket No. 8637-09, Agency Docket No. 176-7/09, and OAL Docket No. 2007-2009S and Agency Docket No. 221-07/08; and

WHEREAS, a hearing was scheduled to take place before the Hon. Judge Scarola on November 6, 2009; and

WHEREAS, the parties entered into settlement discussions regarding both the increment withholding action and the tenure matter; and

WHEREAS, both the respondent and the petitioner were able to reach an agreement that would serve the best interest of both parties; and

WHEREAS, the agreement shall serve the public interest in that it will remove the uncertainty caused by both cases and reduce the potential legal fees that would have been incurred;

NOW, THEREFORE, the respondent and the petitioner agree to settle this matter on the following basis:

1. The respondent agrees not to contest her termination of employment as a Confidential Secretary which shall become effective December 1, 2009.

2. In consideration therefore, the petitioner agrees to compensate the respondent for the 120 days during which she was suspended without pay, said compensation to be at her per diem rate of $249.17 predicated on her 12-month employment status (240 days) at an annual salary of $59,800.00. The amount of compensation will therefore be $29,900.00.

3. In addition, the respondent shall compensate petitioner for all unused vacation days she incurred both in the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school terms, payment to be made based on her per diem rate of $249.17.

4. The petitioner shall not oppose any application made by respondent for unemployment benefits.

5. With this agreement, the respondent gives a full and final release to the petitioner regarding any and all claims she may have had, potential or otherwise, with regard to either the withholding of increment action under OAL Docket No. EDUOA 02007-2009S and the tenure action under OAL Docket No. EDUTH 08637-2009S both of which were consolidated under OAL Docket No. EDUTH 08637-2009S.

6. Respondent agrees that she will not seek future employment with the Trenton Board of Education.

7. This agreement does not constitute an admission of any kind by either party. It does not speak to the merits or the case brought by the petitioner or the defenses raised by the respondent.

8. By this agreement, both actions, the one having to do with the increment withholding action and the one having to do with the tenure charges, will be dismissed with prejudice subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 350-12/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ANDREW J. JACKSON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
HACKENSACK, BERGEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, the parties' proposed Agreement, and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommending approval of the parties' settlement, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner cannot accept the proposed settlement, as recommended by the OAL.

It is well established that – once tenure charges are certified – such charges may be settled only with the Commissioner's approval, and any proposed settlement, whether submitted to the Commissioner or to the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), must address the standards expressly established for this purpose by the State Board of Education. In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a). Specifically, a proposed settlement must: 1) be accompanied by documentation as to the nature of the charges; 2) include an explanation of the circumstances justifying the settlement or withdrawal; 3) evidence the consent of both the charged and the charging parties; 4) indicate that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights; 5) demonstrate that the agreement is in the public interest; and 6) indicate, where the charged party is a teaching staff member, that he or she has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible action against the staff member's certificate.

In the present instance, the record is clear as to the nature of the charges and includes a Board of Education resolution approving settlement; the final criterion does not apply in respondent's case since he is not a teaching staff member. However, neither the parties nor the ALJ have anywhere on the record set forth the circumstances justifying settlement of this matter, notwithstanding the well-established principle that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, a board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges need no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them – a principle no less applicable where the charged party is resigning from employment with the charging district. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, aff'd with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, aff'd N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, January 30, 1986. The Commissioner finds this deficit particularly troubling where, as here, the alleged behavior underlying the charges is of a type that may be of concern should respondent once again seek employment in a school district, and the parties have agreed – in the event the district is contacted for a reference – to indicate that respondent resigned for "personal reasons"[1] notwithstanding that the filing of tenure charges, tenure charge documents, and any record of or determination related to these, are a matter of public record. Williams v. Board of Educ. of the

[1] The Open Public Records Act states, in pertinent part, that the following employment information shall be public:

> An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service in the instrumentality of government and in the government, date of separation and the reason therefor; and the amount and type of any pension received . (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 47:1A-10

Atlantic City Public Schools et al., 329 N.J. Super. 308 (App. Div. 2000); see also N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.1(a).[2]

In declining to accept the proposed settlement at this time, the Commissioner stresses that he does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter; however, he cannot meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this State without the requisite assurance that a proposed settlement is consistent with established standards for the setting aside of tenure charges.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL recommending approval of the proposed settlement is hereby rejected, and this matter is remanded to the OAL for expansion of the record or revision of the parties' Agreement consistent with the concerns expressed above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to agree on such expansion or modification, the tenure charges shall proceed to plenary hearing.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 4/23/10
Date of Mailing: 4/23/10

[2] The Commissioner notes that the date of respondent's proposed resignation is not clear, although such resignation was presumably intended to take effect upon or subsequent to approval of the parties' agreement by the Commissioner.

[3] Pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1), Commissioner decisions are appealable to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court.

AGREEMENT

This AGREEMENT made this 23 day of February 2010 between the HACKENSACK BOARD OF EDUCATION, which has offices located at 355 State Street, Hackensack, New Jersey 07601 (hereinafter referred to as the "BOARD"), and ANDREW J. JACKSON, who resides at 324 Katherine Street, Englewood, New Jersey 07631 (hereinafter referred to as "JACKSON").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, JACKSON is employed as a tenured grounds person (custodial staff) by the BOARD;

WHEREAS, on November 24, 2009, the BOARD passed a resolution authorizing the filing of tenure charges against JACKSON;

WHEREAS, on December 7, 2009, the BOARD filed the said tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education;

WHEREAS, JACKSON filed an answer on or about December 18, 2009, denying the charges; and

WHEREAS, the parties are desirous of resolving the issues raised by the tenure charges and answer without having to resort to further litigation;

Now, WHEREFORE, based on the foregoing premises and the mutual promises and covenants contained herein, the parties agree to the following as the terms and conditions of settlement:

1. JACKSON agrees to resign from all employment with the BOARD provided that the conditions for the resignation are in accordance with the terms of this Agreement have been complied with by the parties. A copy of JACKSON'S letter of resignation is attached hereto and made a part hereof. In the event that the Hackensack School District is contacted for a reference, the BOARD agrees that it will provide the starting and ending dates of JACKSON'S employment and indicate that he resigned for personal reasons.

2. The BOARD agrees to restore JACKSON'S medical benefits retroactive to their termination through April 30, 2009.

3. The BOARD agrees to pay JACKSON two (2) month's salary with deduction for taxes and pension.

4. The BOARD agrees to pay JACKSON for 113 unused sick days at the rate of $54.00 per day ($6,102.00).

5. JACKSON knowingly and voluntarily releases, waives and discharges the BOARD, and its members, officers, employees, administrators, agents and servants, from any and all claims which she has or might have against the BOARD from any and all lawsuits, charges, claims, complaints, demands, judgments, obligations, causes of action, controversies or any other proceedings with any administrative agency, court or any other forum, under any federal, state of local constitution, laws or regulations, including but not limited to claims arising under the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, or any action similar thereto against the BOARD, including any claim for attorneys' fees that JACKSON now has ever had or may hereafter have, based upon any conduct arising out of JACKSON'S employment with the BOARD. This paragraph shall not preclude JACKSON from instituting proceedings seeking to enforce the terms of this Agreement and receive salary and benefits in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement.

6. The terms of this Agreement represent the compromise of disputed claims between the parties. This Agreement shall not constitute, be interpreted, construed or used as evidence of an admission of responsibility, wrongdoing or liability on the part of the BOARD or JACKSON and shall not be referred to in any subsequent proceeding other than to enforce the express terms of this Agreement.

7. This Agreement resolves all issues between the parties. The BOARD shall withdraw the Tenure Charges filed with the Commissioner of Education bearing agency reference number 350 – 12/09 and OAL docket number EDUTH 01007 – 2010N, with prejudice.

8. Each party has consulted with an attorney of their own choice and acknowledges satisfaction with their independent legal representation and that this Agreement is entered into voluntarily and of their own free will.

9. All parties are bound by this Agreement and each of its provisions. Anyone who succeeds to their rights and responsibilities, such as their successors and assigns, are also bound. This Agreement is made for the benefit of all the parties hereto and all who succeeds to their rights and responsibilities, and expressly includes their officials, representatives, employees, agents and attorneys, successors or assigns.

10. This Agreement may not be changed except by written, signed agreement between the parties.

11. The undersigned represent that they have the requisite authority to sign this Agreement on behalf of the respective party.

12. This Agreement may be signed by the parties in counterparts on separate copies of the Agreement and all signatures pages shall be incorporated into the parties' Agreement as if all the signatures are affixed on one (1) page.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set forth hands and seals on the date and year shown below.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter, the proposed Settlement Agreement, Default Judgment and Release, and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Upon such review, the Commissioner cannot accept the proposed agreement, which does not dispose of all issues in controversy as required by applicable rule. Specifically, the Commissioner notes that there are two petitioners in this matter, only one of whom (T.T.) signed the agreement and consented to withdrawal of the petition; the other (I.D.) expressly refused to do so, as indicated by the notation "No Agreement/Refused to Sign" on the line designated for his signature. Since the petition has not been withdrawn by I.D. and there is no explanation on record as to why the proposed settlement resolves this matter notwithstanding I.D.'s refusal to consent to its terms, the Commissioner cannot approve the agreement as recommended.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement and the Initial Decision of the OAL recommending its approval are hereby rejected, and this matter is remanded to the OAL for such proceedings as are necessary to fully resolve the parties' dispute.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 8, 2010, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a settlement agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

DECISION ON REMAND

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision on Remand issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner fully concurs with the analysis and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge, as thoroughly and clearly set forth in the Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL – finding that petitioner has acquired tenure and is entitled to the relief sought, including back pay, less mitigation, from the date of her removal, together with all of the benefits of her tenured position – is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a guidance counselor who was employed by the Board of Education for each year from 2004-05 through 2007-08, contended that she had acquired tenure and that her employment was unlawfully terminated on January 29, 2008. The Board countered that petitioner – owing to leaves of absence, including two granted pursuant to the federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) – had not provided the thirty-plus months of service required to obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c). The case was originally heard at the OAL in November 2008, and an Initial Decision was issued denying petitioner tenure based upon language contained in the FMLA. The Commissioner found that the FMLA was not dispositive of the petitioner's claim, and the matter required review pursuant to the standards of applicable education case law, i.e.: Kletzkin v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Spotswood; accordingly, the matter was remanded to the OAL for further fact-finding and argument.

On remand, the ALJ found that, based on the principles in Kletzkin, supra, and Blinn v. Board of Trustees of the Public Employees' Retirement System, petitioner's employment relationship with the Board continued during her leaves of absence and that these leaves of absence had no adverse impact on the Board's ability to evaluate her. The ALJ found that petitioner met the requisite number of months for tenure and is entitled to back pay, less mitigation, from the date of her removal, together with all of the benefits of her tenured position.

The Commissioner concurred with the analysis and conclusions of the ALJ, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

BEFORE J. HOWARD SOLOMON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals her removal from employment with respondent, contending that such removal was unlawful since she had acquired tenure. Respondent denies she acquired tenure and that its actions were lawful. This matter was initially forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law on or about May 14, 2008, by the Department of Education for determination as a contested case. At the hearing on November 19, 2008, the parties had stipulated all facts since none were in dispute. The record closed on January 30, 2009, upon receipt of further facts stipulated by the parties and post-hearing memoranda.

The undersigned rendered an Initial Decision dated February 24, 2009, denying petitioner tenure based upon the language contained in the Federal Family Medical Leave Act.[1]

The Commissioner of Education, in her Final Decision dated August 26, 2009, rejected the Initial Decision and remanded the matter to the OAL, stating:

> . . . the Commissioner prefers to revisit the merits of this matter following development of a factual record setting forth the effect of petitioner's series of leaves on the Board's ability to evaluate her performance, and consideration of argument regarding the appropriate application of Kletzkin[2] to such facts.

Accordingly, the matter was scheduled for hearing on the remand on November 25, 2009 but was adjourned at the request of counsel for respondent. The matter was then rescheduled for hearing on December 9, 2009. On that date, counsel for respondent appeared but advised that one of respondent's witnesses, who was most familiar with petitioner, was not available. The matter was then rescheduled for February 8, 2010, on which date the matter was heard. Both counsel were given until March 5, 2010, for the submission of legal memoranda, on which date the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the facts are not in dispute. At the hearing previously scheduled for November 19, 2008, the following FACTS were stipulated, and reiterated here:

1 Initial Decision EDU 05801-08 dated February 24, 2009.
2 Kletzkin v. Spotswood Bd. of Educ., 136 N.J. 275 (1994).

1. Petitioner was employed by respondent as a guidance counselor commencing on October 27, 2004. She was employed in that capacity through June 30, 2005.

2. Petitioner was re-employed by respondent as a guidance counselor from September 1, 2005, through June 30, 2006. From June 5 through June 30, 2006, petitioner was on an approved family leave.

3. Petitioner was re-employed as a guidance counselor from September 1, 2006, to June 30, 2007. From December 4, 2006, through March 4, 2007, petitioner was on an approved family leave. From March 5 through March 30, 2007, petitioner was on an unpaid child-care leave. She returned to work on April 2, 2007, and continued working through June 30, 2007.

4. Petitioner was re-employed as a guidance counselor from September 1, 2007, to January 29, 2008. By letter dated January 25, 2008, received by petitioner on January 29, 2008, petitioner was notified that her employment was terminated effective January 29, 2008.

5. Throughout her employment with the respondent, petitioner held a standard educational services certificate with an endorsement for student personnel services.

Also at the November 19, 2008, hearing, the parties stipulated, and as reiterated here, certain documents into evidence referred to as J-1A through J-1F, enumerated as follows:

J-1A Request from petitioner dated June 1, 2006, for an unpaid medical leave with paid benefits as per the Federal Family Medical Leave Act (the FMLA) from June 5, 2006, to July 1, 2006;

J-1B Approval of the Board for the leave of absence recited above;

J-1C Request from petitioner for unpaid maternity leave of absence with paid benefits as per the FMLA from December 4, 2006, to March 4, 2007, followed by an unpaid leave for child care with paid benefits from March 4, 2007, to March 30, 2007;

J-1D Letter from the office of the superintendent, dated January 25, 2008, terminating petitioner's employment;

J-1E Letter from petitioner to the Board, dated February 7, 2008, requesting reasons for her termination.

The parties also stipulated at the November 19, 2008, hearing, and reiterated here, as FACT the days petitioner worked and the days she was on leave of absence. (J-2.) Accordingly, I FIND the following:[3]

Worked	10/27/04-06/30/05	8 months, 05 days
Worked	09/01/05-06/04/06	9 months, 04 days
Family Leave	06/05/06-06/30/06	26 days
Worked	09/01/06-12/03/06	3 months, 03 days
Family Leave	12/04/06-03/04/07 and
Child Care	03/05/07-03/30/07	3 months, 28 days
Worked	04/02/07-06/30/07	3 months
Worked	09/01/07-01/29/08	4 months, 29 days
Total Working Days		28 months, 14 days
Total Leave (unpaid)		04 months, 23 days
Grand Total		33 months, 06 days

The parties further stipulated, and reiterated here, as FACT that petitioner's leaves of absence from June 5 to June 30, 2006, and from December 4, 2006, to March 4, 2007, were pursuant to the Federal FMLA.[4] Her leave of absence from March 5, 2007, to March 30, 2007, was an approved unpaid leave for child care which was not pursuant to the Federal FMLA or any family leave under the laws of this State.[5]

At the time of their appearances on the hearing date scheduled for December 9, 2009, the parties stipulated as FACT that:

1. During the school year 2004-2005, petitioner received three formal evaluations.

2. During the school year 2005-2006, petitioner received three formal evaluations.

3. During the school year 2006-2007, petitioner received two formal evaluations. The first evaluation occurred on November 27, 2006, (P-8) before her leave of absence and the other occurred on May 24, 2007, (P-9) after she returned from her leave.

4. Petitioner worked the following school year from September 1, 2007, until January 29, 2008, when she was terminated. During the 2007-2008 school-year, petitioner received one formal evaluation.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The hearing continued on February 8, 2010, to allow for the testimony of Ronald N. Bligh, Jr., respondent's witness, who was not available on December 9, 2009.

3 Petitioner's leaves were for her pregnancy and subsequent child care.

4 On January 30, 2009, this stipulation was placed on the record through a telephone conference with counsel for the parties.

5 She had used up the twelve weeks of leave allowed under the Federal FMLA. 29 U.S.C.A. § 2612.

Bligh, now employed by the West Orange Board of Education, had been the principal at respondent's Union Avenue Middle School from 2005 to 2009 at the same time petitioner was there as a guidance counselor.

Petitioner had been under his supervision since February 2005 and among his several duties as principal was the evaluation of staff members. He stated that petitioner was also responsible for teaching the STEP (Students Taking Education Personally) program and was also involved with the special needs program. Ilene Walton, who was the guidance counselor supervisor, Bligh and Mohammed Baala, the assistant vice principal, all had the opportunity to evaluate her.

Bligh was aware that non-tenured teachers were required to be evaluated three times a year, while tenured teachers were required to be evaluated twice annually. Both evaluation processes were the same. He described formal evaluations which were scheduled evaluations in the classroom on advanced notice followed by a discussion with the staff member afterwards. There were also informal unannounced evaluations which consisted of unscheduled classroom observations and discussions with the teacher.

Bligh acknowledged that petitioner had nine or ten formal evaluations during her employment.

He said that guidance counselor formal evaluations were done with the same frequency as with teachers, except that the evaluation form was different. Guidance counselors could also be teachers, such as teaching the STEP program, which petitioner did.

Bligh recalled that he conducted three to five formal evaluations of petitioner and about fifteen to twenty informal ones. He mentioned that Baala probably had the same amount of formal and informal evaluations as he did, but he could not recall how many were done by Walton. He stated also that the formal evaluations he conducted were not favorable towards petitioner.

He commented about her lack of attendance, which affected the evaluation process and its impact on students. He mentioned that petitioner, on several occasions, was either tardy or absent. He stated that, because of her leaves of absence, she was given the lightest workload of all the guidance counselors in order to impact the least amount of students.

He then discussed the process about recommending tenure. The process started with his recommendation whether or not to grant tenure, which was accompanied by documentation in support of his position and which was then submitted to the personnel department. His recommendation was then forwarded to the superintendent of schools who could agree or disagree. The superintendent then forwarded the recommendation for or against tenure to the Board of Education for its final decision.

Bligh recommended that petitioner not be granted tenure. He stated that her skills were below par, that she once made a false time-report, that she often had to be paged to be located, and at times exceeded her allotted lunch time. He further stated that once she referred to the special education students, during an assembly for others to hear, as such rather than referring to their classroom number. He also once found her talking on her cell phone during a fire drill rather than directing children out of the building. He further stated that she was given training to remediate her deficiencies which she did not complete satisfactorily.

Ethel W. Davion, superintendent of schools, also testified on behalf of respondent. She was aware of petitioner through conversations and e-mails with Bligh, but not on a personal basis.

She stated that each employee is expected fulfill his or her job description, and if not, tenure is not awarded. A recommendation either for or against tenure must be supported by written documentation. When Bligh's recommendation not to award tenure was received, Davion was in agreement and prepared a resolution to that effect, which was submitted to respondent for its decision.

Although Davion did not always agree with Bligh's recommendations, here she felt that there were overwhelming concerns about petitioner. She discussed the need for a good attendance record and that petitioner's absences raised concerns, even though she acknowledged that petitioner's leaves of absences were all approved by respondent. She, too, acknowledged that petitioner had received a sufficient number of formal evaluations.

She also noted that petitioner was given improvement plans that were not satisfied. The last improvement plan was for ninety days which commenced on November 30, 2007. However, petitioner's employment was terminated in January 2008, during the middle of an improvement plan. Davion stated that if petitioner were not performing satisfactorily during that plan, there would be no need to wait for the completion of the plan. It was Davion's position that an employee who had excessive absences should not be awarded tenure. It was her impression that sufficient time remained to discharge petitioner since her leaves of absence did not count towards the time for tenure.

Petitioner then testified in rebuttal to the allegations made by Bligh. She disagreed about her attendance, stating that she never received any written negative comments from him about this issue, nor was attendance ever discussed, during her evaluations. She stated that she filed many grievances against Bligh for harassment and denied that she was given an easy workload or was on a cell phone during a fire drill, as Bligh alleged.

ADDITIONAL FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a consideration of the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following additional FACTS:

1. Bligh had been employed by respondent from 2005 to 2009 as the principal of the Union Avenue Middle School where petitioner was a guidance counselor.

2. He had been her supervisor from February 2005 until she was terminated pursuant to his recommendation.

3. The superintendant of schools and respondent agreed with his recommendation and petitioner was terminated from employment on January 25, 2008.

4. Prior to petitioner's termination, respondent had conducted nine formal evaluations of her as a non-tenured employee.

5. Respondent, through its witnesses, confirmed that no further formal evaluations were considered necessary since it had already had a sufficient number of them upon which to base its decision of termination.

6. In addition to formal evaluations, petitioner received several informal evaluations and was given additional training which failed to yield satisfactory results.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The acquisition of tenure is governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which provides, in pertinent part:

> The services of all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher . . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education, . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this Title, after employment in such district or by such board for:
> (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
>
> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

The purpose of teacher tenure laws is "to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)). Following the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, "all teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the requisite number of years, are eligible for tenure unless they come within the explicit exceptions in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or related statutes such as N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 81 (1982). According to N.J.S.A.

18A:28-5(c) all teaching staff members, including guidance counselors, shall acquire tenure once employed in a school district for "the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years," Ibid., which runs for the "ten months between September 1 and June 30 of the school year." Kletzkin, supra, 136 N.J. at 277 (citing N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1). Due to "its remedial purpose, the Tenure Act [N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18] should be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends." Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 74-75 (citing Barnes v. Jersey City Bd. of Educ., 85 N.J. Super. 42, 45 (App. Div. 1964)).

Here the parties stipulated that petitioner was actively employed for twenty-eight months, fourteen days. The question then becomes whether petitioner and respondent maintained an employment relationship during petitioner's four months, twenty-three days of approved leaves of absence. In that regard, the Appellate Division in Blinn v. Board of Trustees of the Public Employees' Retirement System, 173 N.J. Super. 277 (App. Div. 1980), has held:

> [w]e are convinced that the grant of a leave of absence to [an] employee does not terminate the employment relationship . . . and that, during the term of such leave of absence, the employment relationship continues – albeit in an inactive status. The phrase "leave of absence" itself "connotes a continuity of the employment status."

The court further stated that:

> [a leave of absence] is simply an authorized temporary absence from active service which, in the normal course and all other things being equal, implies the right of the employee to return to active employment in the employer's service at the conclusion of such leave of absence. Were it to be equated with a discontinuance or termination of employment, a leave of absence would be a meaningless term, signifying nothing.

Also see Kletzkin, supra, 136 N.J. 275. In that matter, petitioner was employed initially as a learning disabilities teacher/consultant and later as the school psychologist in the same local board cumulatively from January 1986 until April 1989 when she was terminated. She provided active service continuously from January 1986 until November 1988 when she was forced to take an involuntary leave of absence due to a work-related injury. Prior to her involuntary leave, her active service was slightly in excess of twenty-eight consecutive months. The issue in Kletzkin was whether she obtained tenure when the thirtieth month passed in January 1989 while she was still disabled. The court held that she was entitled to tenure after being employed for thirty months and one day, over four academic years, because her employment continued during her absence by virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, which required her employer to continue her pay up to one calendar year. Kletzkin, supra, 136 N.J. at 278. The court also reasoned that even though it recognized the importance of the probationary period during which a teacher's performance is assessed, the board had ample time to assess Kletzkin during her twenty-eight consecutive months of active employment in four school years and upheld her attainment of tenure which included the time she was on her leave of absence.

In light of Blinn and Kletzkin the employment relationship between petitioner and respondent continued during her leaves of absence, "albeit in an inactive status," until she was eventually terminated. Blinn, supra, 173 N.J. Super. 278. Since petitioner was on leaves of absence with the consent and approval of respondent, their working relationship did not terminate. In other words, and contrary to respondent's contention, petitioner's leaves of absence did not toll the time for acquiring tenure. She was employed for more than three consecutive academic years – until January 2008 in the fourth successive academic year. Pursuant to the above legal principles I, therefore, CONCLUDE that petitioner had been sufficiently employed by respondent to meet the requisite number of months for tenure.

The issue then remaining, as sought by the Commissioner, is whether respondent was able to adequately evaluate petitioner during her years of employment.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1, entitled "[e]valuation of nontenured teaching staff," reads:

> Every board of education in this State shall cause each nontenure teaching staff member employed by it to be observed and evaluated in the performance of her or his duties at least three times during each school year but not less than once during each semester. Said evaluations are to take place before April 30 each year. The evaluations may cover that period between April 30 of one year and April 30 of the succeeding year excepting in the case of the first year of employment where the three evaluations must have been completed prior to April 30. The number of required observations and evaluations may be reduced proportionately when an individual teaching staff member's term of service is less than one academic year. Each evaluation shall be followed by a conference between that teaching staff member and his or her superior or superiors. The purpose of this procedure is to recommend as to reemployment, identify any deficiencies, extend assistance for their correction and improve professional competence.

From the testimony adduced at the hearing, I CONCUDE that petitioner's leaves of absence had no adverse impact upon respondent's ability to evaluate her. Bligh and Davion both acknowledged that respondent had sufficient time to evaluate petitioner, conducting at least nine formal evaluations during her years of employment. She received three formal evaluations during the school year 2004-2005; three formal evaluations during the school year 2005-2006; two formal evaluations during the school year 2006-2007, the first on November 27, 2006, before her leave of absence and the other on May 24, 2007, after she returned from her leave. Petitioner worked the following school year from September 1, 2007, until January 29, 2008, when she was terminated. During that portion of the school year and prior to her removal, the parties agreed that she received one formal evaluation.

Although N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1 requires at least three formal evaluations in each academic year, the statute places the obligation for such frequency of evaluations upon the board of education. Even though petitioner did not have the required three formal evaluations in each academic year—she only had two formal evaluations in the 2006-2007 school year—it was incumbent upon respondent to see that she was evaluated three times during that school year. Here there was no evidence presented whatsoever that respondent tried to evaluate her three times during the 2006-2007 school year, but that her leaves of absence made it impossible. To the contrary, respondent, through its own witnesses, made it clear that it had sufficient time to formally evaluate her and to make its decision to terminate. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that her leaves of absence presented no obstacles for her formal evaluations.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has acquired tenure because she remained employed for thirty-three months and six days, notwithstanding her leaves of absence. Although respondent sought her removal, it, nevertheless, failed to act timely. By January 25, 2008, petitioner had acquired tenure and, thereafter, could only be removed under the strict constraints of law. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -33.

ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, it is ORDERED that the relief sought by petitioner be and is hereby GRANTED and that she be entitled to back pay from the date of her removal, less any income she received, together with all of the benefits of her tenured position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a part-time, non-tenured substance abuse counselor – sought reinstatement to the position she had held in the 2008-2009 school year after that position was eliminated during a 2009 departmental reorganization. The alleged grounds for petitioner's requested reinstatement are her contentions that in her second year of teaching, she was not evaluated in accordance with the procedures outlined in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1. Respondent, however, asserts that petitioner's non-renewal was not due to her performance, but was the result of restructuring and elimination of her part-time position. Since it is well-settled that a school board has virtually unlimited discretion in the hiring or renewal of non-tenured teachers, respondent urges affirmance of its decision not to renew petitioner.

The ALJ found that: the petitioner has not met the burden of establishing that respondent's elimination of her non-tenured position was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable; the Board has virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing non-tenured teachers; the Board's decision was premised on the elimination of a part-time substance abuse counselor position as part of a restructuring, not on petitioner's evaluations; and the Board's determination is entitled to a presumption of correctness. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed respondent's non-renewal of the petitioner.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Deputy Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent Board properly exercised its right to non-renew petitioner's employment, rejected the petitioner's exceptions, and adopted the Initial Decision with supplementation. The petition was dismissed.

LINDA MINNELLA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner Linda Minnella (Minnella), a non-tenured substance abuse counselor, asks for reinstatement to the part-time position she held during the 2008-2009 school year. The record indicates that Minnella's employment was terminated when the respondent district eliminated her position, and that she was notified of same via a letter from the district superintendent, Karen Bilbao, dated May 8, 2009.

Bilbao's letter informed petitioner that the nonrenewal of her contract was the result of a departmental reorganization. Further, in a June 23, 2009 letter of recommendation written by Bilbao for Minnella – also included in the record – Bilbao advised that "Minnella's position was eliminated due to the district's need to reorganize existing positions to support new initiatives." It is undisputed that petitioner did not ask for a statement of reasons or a Donaldson hearing after receiving her notice of non-renewal.

The alleged grounds for petitioner's request for reinstatement are her contentions that in her second year as a substance abuse counselor she was not evaluated in accordance with the procedures outlined in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1.[1] More specifically, petitioner states that although three written evaluations[2] of her were submitted in April 2009, she was not actually observed three times during 2008-2009 school year. She asserts that the Middletown High School South principal did not observe her for the evaluation he submitted on April 2, 2009 – which included negative comments – and the Assistant Superintendent of schools never observed her for the evaluation he submitted on April 27, 2009, which purportedly included a mixture of comments, good and bad, from the two other evaluations.[3]

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) correctly concluded in the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) that petitioner is not entitled to reinstatement. A long line of precedent, see, e.g. Dore v. Bedminster Board of Education, 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982), instructs that boards of education have virtually unfettered discretion to decline to renew non-tenured employees. Further, there is nothing in the record to contradict respondent's position that the petitioner's non-renewal was the consequence of a reorganization driven by a change of priorities and initiatives. Under such circumstances, even tenured teaching staff may be let go. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9; see, also, Dennery v. Board of Educ. of Passaic County Regional High School Dist. No. 1, Passaic County, 131 N.J. 626 (1993).

The Deputy Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that, since petitioner's performance was not the reason for her non-renewal, the nature and number of her evaluations is not material to same. Nor is the Deputy Commissioner persuaded by the argument in petitioner's exceptions that respondent perpetrated a fraud upon petitioner – by way of the evaluations that were allegedly submitted without prior observations of her work – and that the alleged fraud imposed obligations upon respondent that exceed those articulated in the statutes and cases cited above. As Dore v. Bedminster Board of Education, 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982) instructs, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1 sets forth procedures to be followed for evaluating teachers but does not provide for any penalty in the event a local board fails to follow the proscribed procedures. Dore, supra, at 456. Thus, the fact that petitioner may not have received three evaluations and/or other considerations referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1 does not signify that she must be reconsidered for renewal.

[3] The evaluation submitted on April 3, 2009 from the Middletown High School North principal, who did observe her prior to her evaluation, allegedly gave her good marks.

Further, it appears undisputed that there are now only two substance abuse counselor positions in respondent's district, and that they are both held by tenured employees. Thus, respondent could not reinstate petitioner without violating the statutes concerning the rights of tenured employees. See, e.g. Prysiazny v. Board of Education of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County, Commissioner Decision #165-80, May 5, 1980.

A board of education's discretionary decisions are entitled to a presumption of correctness, and they will not be disturbed absent evidence that they are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Under the circumstances of this case, the Deputy Commissioner cannot conclude that respondent was arbitrary or capricious in its reorganization, in the elimination of the part-time substance abuse counselor position, or in its placement of the two tenured counselors in the remaining positions. While respondent may have fallen short in its evaluations of petitioner in her second full year as a part time substance abuse counselor, there is no invocable statutory or regulatory penalty for such deficiencies.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted and the petition is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [4]

AGENCY DKT. NO. 180-7/09

LINDA MINNELLA,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,
Respondent.

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for petitioner (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Christopher B. Parton, Esq., for respondent (Kenney, Gross, Kovats & Parton, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 28, 2010 Decided: March 15, 2010

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner contends that the Board's non-renewal of her employment as a part-time, non-tenured Substance Awareness Coordinator (SAC) was per se arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. She seeks reinstatement. Her appeal was filed with the Department of Education, Commissioner of Education on July 31, 2009, and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 23, 2009, for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. The matter has been submitted on respondent's motion dismissal.

Based upon the pleadings submitted, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT relevant to the disposition of this matter. Petitioner began her employment with the Middletown Township Board of Education in or around January 2007, as a Health, Physical Education and Driver's Education. She holds certificates issued by the state Board of Examiners in Driver's Education, Physical Education and SAC. During the 2007-2008 and the 2008-2009 school years, petitioner worked as a part-time SAC. The district also employed two full-time, tenured SACs. Petitioner never attained tenure in the Middletown school district. By letter, dated May 8, 2009, Superintendent of Schools Karen Bilbao notified petitioner that:

> In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10(b), ...due to a departmental reorganization, (her) contract is not being renewed for next year and (her) employment is terminated as of June 30.

Petitioner did not request a Statement of Reasons for her non-renewal nor did she request a Donaldson hearing in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.6. In a June 23, 2009, letter of recommendation written on behalf of petitioner, Bilbao indicated that petitioner's "position was eliminated due to the district's need to reorganize existing positions to support new initiatives."

LEGAL ANALYSIS

In support of its motion for summary decision, respondent relies, in part, upon the affidavit of Superintendent Bilbao. In addition to attesting to the facts set forth above, Bilbao further indicates that effective with the 2009-2010 school year, the district restructured the delivery and staffing of counseling services at the high schools such that the school district reduced the number of SAC positions from two and one-half (2 ½) to two (2). The two positions are filled by two tenured, full-time SACs. Further,

Bilbao attests that petitioner's non-renewal was not due to her performance, as she contends, but as a result of the restructuring and elimination of her part-time SAC position. Based upon these facts, respondent asserts it is entitled to dismissal of the within action since it is well settled law that a school board has "virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing non-tenured teachers." Dore v. Bedminster Board of Education, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453 (App. Div. 1982). Additionally, a board's discretionary decisions are entitled to a presumption of correctness, and they will not be disturbed absent evidence that they are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Petitioner alleges the respondent did not comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1; that each non-tenured teacher be observed three times during each school year and not less than once in each semester. She also alleges fraud by the principal of Middletown High School South in the evaluation process in that one of the evaluators did not even observe her prior to submitting an evaluation.

Based upon the pleadings submitted, including the affidavit of Superintendent of Schools Karen Bilbao, I FIND and CONCLUDE petitioner has not met the burden of establishing that the respondent's elimination of her non-tenured position was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. As respondent correctly noted, the board has virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing non-tenured teachers. Here, the board's decision was not premised on evaluations as the petitioner contends but rather, the elimination of a part-time SAC position that had been staffed by the non-tenured petitioner as part of a restructuring that left in place two full-time SAC positions staffed by tenured SACs. As such, the board's decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness.

DECISION AND ORDER

The respondent's motion for dismissal of this matter is hereby GRANTED and the respondent's non-renewal of petitioner as a part-time SAC is hereby AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

HEARING OF GINA PRIANO-KEYSER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	DECISION
THE BOROUGH OF THE CHATHAMS,	:
MORRIS COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured speech and dramatic arts teacher, who was employed with the district for 10 years – in connection with a solitary incident that took place on April 17, 2009 in which petitioner allegedly allowed the demonstration of an inherently dangerous activity during a student presentation, which resulted in an injury, and failed to follow school procedures in dealing with the injured student.

The ALJ found that: the factual circumstances surrounding the April 17, 2009 event are not in serious dispute; petitioner was under the impression that the student presentation entitled "How to Fall Asleep" would focus on relaxation techniques and/or meditation, and her unrebutted testimony – that she stopped the presentation immediately after realizing that it was demonstrating how to pass out by hyperventilating – was credible; and the Board's charge that petitioner should have known better than to send an injured student to the nurse accompanied only by another student is an exaggerated and unproven allegation; however, the petitioner did leave her class unattended, during which time a student was injured. The ALJ concluded that the two charges involving leaving students unattended were substantiated, and this failure of supervision led to a minor injury of a student under petitioner's charge; accordingly, the ALJ recommended a penalty of forfeiture of three month's pay.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner ordered that respondent shall forfeit 90 of the 120 days salary withheld following certification of tenure charges, and directed the District to return respondent to her tenured employment forthwith.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF GINA PRIANO-KEYSER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	DECISION
THE BOROUGH OF THE CHATHAMS,	:
MORRIS COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the District and respondent's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with the directives of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The District initially excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) dismissal of Charges 1 and 4 as unsubstantiated. With respect to Charge 1, it contends the ALJ's finding that "Ms. Priano-Keyser's credible testimony that she was surprised by the content of the demonstration was convincing" (Initial Decision at 5) is alarming. The District claims that respondent testified that she believed the demonstration was going to be about relaxation and breathing exercises for relaxation. Curiously, it argues, if this were the case why would the presentation be entitled "How to Fall Asleep." Moreover, the District urges that the ALJ's finding as to respondent's "surprise" fails to consider why a student would attempt to mislead his teacher in this way. Urging that the ALJ erred in dismissing this charge, the District maintains:

> Ms. Priano-Keyser admitted that the student injured himself immediately after the demonstration of "How to Fall Asleep" and Ms. Priano-Keyser admitted that the student injured himself immediately after she left the classroom unattended. The Board sustained its burden of proof in this regard because Ms. Priano-Keyser admitted the causal connection between the "How to Fall Asleep" demonstration and her leaving her classroom unattended thereby caused injury to a student in her class. (Ibid.)

As to Charge 4, the District contends the ALJ dismissed this charge because he found that at the time of this incident, the seriousness of head injuries had not been properly emphasized in the school nurse's presentation to staff. Such a conclusion, it avers, was based on his finding that "[a]lthough I believe her [the school nurse's] presentation probably did incorporate mention of head injuries, the absence of further instruction in the Power Point presentation leads me to believe that it was not a medical situation of emphasis." (Initial Decision at 6) The District contends that the ALJ's excusing respondent from complying with the school nurse's instructions merely because head injuries were not specifically included in her Power Point presentation serves to undermine the high expectations school districts are entitled to have of their teachers. The District argues that there was no testimony by respondent denying that the nurse had instructed her in how to deal with student head injuries and it, therefore, urges that dismissal of this charge be reversed. (District's Exceptions at 3-4)

The District next excepts to the ALJ's finding that charges 2 and 3 are exaggerated. In so finding, it charges, the ALJ stated:

> The only attempt by the Board to establish an aggravating circumstance was the fact that the class was left unattended following a lesson that was considered inappropriate and dangerous. Undoubtedly, the lesson if countenanced by Ms. Priano-Keyser would have been inappropriate and dangerous, but it was > uncontradicted that upon learning of the content of the presentation she stopped it and warned the students of its dangers. (Initial Decision at 6)

The District finds "shocking" the ALJ's apparent rationale that respondent's condemnation of the presentation on how to pass out mitigates her unbecoming conduct in leaving her classroom. Rather, it urges, because seventh graders are capable of acting irresponsibly and carelessly, respondent "had an obligation not only to admonish her students as to the danger of hyperventilating, but also to oversee and guard against the predictable outcomes of the students hearing such a lesson." Abandoning her classroom after her students were exposed to such a dangerous activity is unjustifiable. (District's Exceptions at 4)

Finally, – reiterating its post-hearing brief reliance on Jerkins v. Anderson, 191 N.J. 285 (2007) and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of George Zofchak, Board of Education of the City of Trenton, decided by the Commissioner October 15, 2002 (#365-02), aff'd State Board June 4, 2003, the District urges the Commissioner to terminate respondent from her position.

In response, as to Charge 1, respondent advances that the ALJ correctly determined that the District had failed to prove that she allowed the demonstration of an inherently dangerous procedure. Respondent points out that no witness testifying at the hearing contradicted her testimony in this regard. Additionally, the handwritten notes of assistant principal Gordella's investigative meeting with respondent verify her version of the events. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at 3-4). As to Charge 4, notwithstanding that the nurse testified that she trained staff on the proper protocol to be utilized for student head injuries, respondent testified that she did not recall any discussion or training whatsoever regarding protocol for head injuries; the nurse's power point presentation did not cover head injuries; and no witness presented at the hearing testified that the nurse provided any training in this regard. Consequently, the ALJ properly determined that the District did not meet its burden of proof on this charge. (Id. At 4-5)

As to Charges 2 and 3, respondent maintains that the ALJ properly found these to be exaggerated. Charge 2 alleges that respondent left her students unattended subsequent to a demonstration on passing out and that she should have expected the students would engage in the activity. Respondent does not deny that she left her classroom for a very short period of time. However, she specifically directed her students not to attempt the activity they had witnessed and prior to leaving the room all of the students were seated quietly. It is incomprehensible, respondent argues, that she could have reasonably foreseen that a student would attempt the activity after her admonition to the class not to do so. As to the District's charge that the student was injured because she left the room, respondent observes that a student could have attempted the activity even if she had been in the room. As such, the District cannot credibly allege that her actions in leaving the room were the cause of the student's injury. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at 6-7)

In conclusion, respondent proposes that the District has proven nothing more than respondent left her classroom unattended for approximately 30 seconds while retrieving material from the copy machine. Given her unblemished ten-year record in the District, respondent maintains no good cause for termination has been demonstrated. Rather, she agrees that the ALJ properly concluded that a 90-day forfeiture of salary is an appropriate penalty under the circumstances here. (Id. At 7-9)

Upon full consideration of the record in this matter – which it is noted did not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL on December 16, 2009 – the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons presented on pages 5-6 of his decision – that Charges 1 and 4 against respondent are appropriately dismissed as unfounded. The Commissioner further agrees with the ALJ that even though the details surrounding Charges 2 and 3 may be exaggerated, leaving a class unattended for any period of time is unbecoming conduct for a teaching staff member, and warrants discipline. In reaching these conclusions, the Commissioner was well aware of the clear and unequivocal standard governing his review of the factual findings of the ALJ based on credibility determinations:

> The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Upon a reasoned review of the record with this governing standard in mind, viewing the District's exceptions as purely speculative in nature, and particularly in light of the absence of a hearing transcript in this matter, the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's factual findings and resultant conclusions, as they are amply supported by the record before him.

As to the penalty in this matter, the Commissioner is persuaded – as was the ALJ – that Jerkins v. Anderson and Zofchak, supra, are inapposite to the situation existing in this matter. (See Initial Decision at 7) The instant respondent is a 10-year employee of the District with a heretofore unblemished record. The charges here arose out of an isolated incident which took place on April 17, 2009 – where the Board has established that respondent failed to supervise her students for a period of time of less than one minute. Under these circumstances, the Commissioner is compelled to agree with the ALJ that forfeiture of three months pay is a penalty sufficient to impress upon respondent that her supervisory obligations towards her students cannot be treated cavalierly.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent shall forfeit 90 of the 120 days salary withheld following certification of the within tenure charges. The District shall forthwith return respondent to her tenured employment.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11405-09
AGENCY DKT. NO. 237-9/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF GINA PRIANO-KEYSER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF THE CHATHAMS, MORRIS COUNTY.

Phillip E. Stern, Esq., for petitioner (Adams, Stern, Gutierrez and Lattiboudere, attorneys)

Gail Oxfeld Kanef, Esq., for respondent (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 12, 2009 Decided: March 15, 2010

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Gina Priano-Keyser is a tenured teacher at the Chatham Middle School certified to teach theater arts and public speaking.

By letter dated September 9, 2009, the School District of the Chathams forwarded a Statement of Tenure Charges along with a Statement of Evidence and Certificate of Determination with respect to Gina Priano-Keyser.

Four charges filed by James O'Neil, the superintendent of schools were forwarded. The charges alleged unbecoming conduct arising out of a solitary incident that took place on April 17, 2009.

As of September 9, 2009, Ms. Priano-Keyser was suspended without pay pending disposition of the charges.

TESTIMONY

The first witness to testify on behalf of the School District of the Chathams was Susan Butler, the school nurse.

On April 17, 2009, Ms. Butler treated a student with a contusion to his left cheek which he sustained while in Ms. Priano-Keyser's class. P-13 and P-14 marked in evidence were the accident report prepared by Nurse Butler and a subsequent narration of what occurred on April 17, 2009.

Her testimony from the witness stand confirmed what appears in the accident report and the narration (P-15). Nurse Butler's exam revealed a swollen contusion on the student's cheek but that he was alert, ambulatory and oriented.

The focus of Nurse Butler's testimony was not on the extent of the injury, which ultimately turned out not to be serious, but rather on the failure of Ms. Priano-Keyser to follow protocols with respect to head injuries. Nurse Butler indicated that at the beginning of each school year, she conducts a seminar which in part instructs teachers to have the nurse report to the room in the event of a head injury. A Power Point presentation prepared by Ms. Butler and available online did not in fact reflect those instructions.

Assistant Principal Robert J. Gardella conducted an investigation concerning the incident involving Ms. Priano-Keyser and the injured seventh grade student.

Gardella's handwritten notes marked in evidence as P-1 indicate that Ms. Priano-Keyser was under the impression that a student was going to give a presentation on "how to fall asleep" which Ms. Priano-Keyser believed to be about hypnosis, meditation, breathing, and relaxation.

Assistant Principal Gardella's testimony confirmed that he was told by Ms. Priano-Keyser that she had left the class unattended in order to retrieve a document from a printer not far from the classroom. When she returned to the classroom, the student was already injured. Assistant Principal Gardella's notes indicate that Ms. Priano-Keyser did not send a student to retrieve the document she needed from the printer for she had been told that the printer might contain documents not suitable for student observation.

On or about April 20, 2009, a letter was composed and forwarded to parents describing the incident of Friday, April 17, 2009. The letter indicates that a "how to" project was conducted in the classroom, part of which was to include a demonstration. The demonstration performed by one of the students, "How to Fall Asleep," involved a process of hyperventilation which according to the letter indicated that some students had attempted. The last sentence of Assistant Principal Gardella's letter indicates "many situations that impact our lives are unpredictable and sudden, and its moments like these that may well represent an opportunity to educate our children."

The next witness to testify was Superintendent O'Neil who confirmed that it was he who prepared and filed the tenure charges.

Gina Priano-Keyser testified on her own behalf. She has been teaching at the Chatham Middle School since the fall of 1998 and she is certified to teach arts and public speaking. During her ten years with the School District, Ms. Priano-Keyser has never been disciplined.

On April 17, 2009, as part of an instructional public speaking lesson, the students were to give a speech incorporating a demonstration. The topic of each student's speech was screened by Ms. Priano-Keyser several days prior to the actual class. When discussing the project with the student who presented the "How to Fall Asleep" demonstration, Ms. Priano-Keyser was under the impression that the demonstration was going to be about relaxation and breathing exercises for relaxation. According to Ms. Priano-Keyser as soon as she realized that the demonstration was about hyperventilating, she stopped the presentation and told the students not to try it. Ms. Priano-Keyser started to prepare the next student for her presentation, which she indicated would take some time to set-up. While the student was setting up for her demonstration, Ms. Priano-Keyser went to the printer to pick up a document.

When she returned from the printer, a period of time she estimated to be approximately forty seconds, the students were huddled in the back of the room and she saw a male student with his hands over his face crying. There was a bruise on his left cheek. Ms. Priano-Keyser called the main office and then sent the student to the nurse with an escort.

DISCUSSION

Although there were some minor discrepancies in the testimony of the witnesses the factual circumstances surrounding the event of April 17, 2009, are not in serious dispute.

Ms. Priano-Keyser's public speaking class was to present demonstrations and speeches on that day involving topics that she had pre-cleared at least several days prior to April 17. She was under the impression that the presentation involving "How to Fall Asleep" was going to involve relaxation techniques and/or meditation. Her unrebutted testimony was that as soon as she realized that the subject matter of the demonstration did not in fact involve relaxation or meditation techniques, she immediately stopped the demonstration and instructed the students not to try what had just been demonstrated.

Ms. Priano-Keyser was aware that a class should not be left unattended. Her testimony with respect to this issue was brief and quite straight forward. She left the class unattended and should not have. Her candor and conciseness enhanced her credibility. Her testimony that she was unaware that the demonstration by the student was going to incorporate "hyperventilation" was believable. There was nothing offered in evidence to refute Ms. Priano-Keyser's testimony.

According to Ms. Priano-Keyser, she had not been instructed on the manner in which to handle head injuries and considering the fact that the injured child was alert and responsive, she did what she thought was necessary by sending the child to the nurse immediately.

Nurse Butler's testimony with respect to the manner in which head injuries should be handled undoubtedly would be the safer procedure. But, this appears to be an issue which should be re-emphasized by the school board to the teachers in that the absence of any mention in the Power Point presentation offered in evidence at the hearing concerning the manner in which head injuries should be treated lends credibility to Priano-Keyser's testimony.

The contention that allowing the lesson on hyperventilating was conduct unbecoming has not been established. Ms. Priano-Keyser's credible testimony that she was surprised by the content of the demonstration was convincing. Charge No. 1 of the tenure allegations that contends Priano-Keyser permitted a student to demonstrate an inherently dangerous practice that resulted in injury is not established. There was no evidence that she permitted the student to conduct the demonstration in question nor could it be contended that it was a lack of appropriate judgment, for I am convinced she knew not what the content of that demonstration was going to be.

Charge No. 4 contending that Ms. Priano-Keyser " . . . should have known better than to send an injured student to the nurse accompanied only by another student" is an exaggerated and unproven allegation. Unquestionably, recent publicity concerning the danger of what appears to be innocuous head injuries resulting in unforeseen consequences has heightened everyone's awareness to the dangers of head injuries. I am, however, convinced, that at the time of this incident the emphasis on the seriousness of head injuries had not been properly emphasized in Ms. Butler's presentation. Although I believe her presentation probably did incorporate mention of head injuries, the absence of further instruction in the Power Point presentation leads me to believe that it was not a medical situation of emphasis.

Thus, the unbecoming conduct alleged in Charges No. 1 and No. 4 are dismissed as unfounded.

With respect to Charge No. 2 and Charge No. 3, both charge Ms. Priano-Keyser with leaving her students unattended. The details of both charges No. 2 and No. 3—other than the conceded fact that the class was left unattended—are exaggerated. However, there is no doubt that a class of students should not be left unattended under any circumstances.

Ms. Priano-Keyser has experienced no prior discipline whatsoever. Leaving a class unattended warrants discipline. Although a class of students should never be left unattended, factors to be considered in mitigation of penalty would be age of the students, type of students and length of time left unattended. The only attempt by the Board to establish an aggravating circumstance was the fact that the class was left unattended following a lesson that was considered inappropriate and dangerous. Undoubtedly, the lesson if countenanced by Ms. Priano-Keyser would have been inappropriate and dangerous, but it was uncontradicted that upon learning of the content of the presentation she stopped it and warned the students of its dangers.

PENALTY

Tenure teachers shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incompetency, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. It is the Board that bears the burden of establishing proof of the charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Although the School District in this matter seeks the termination of Gina Priano-Keyser, a review of prior decisions cited in In re Prinzo, EDU 10324-00, Comm'r (Aug. 20, 2001), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, clearly indicate that termination is an extreme penalty and in this matter clearly unwarranted.

Respondent cites In re Zofchak, EDU 0146-02, Initial Decision (Aug. 26, 2002), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/seach.html>, in support of the conclusion that termination is warranted. The Board also cites Jergens v. Anderson, 191 N.J. 285 (2007), in support of the termination request.

The offenses in Zofchak were considerably more serious than the allegations in this matter. Among other conclusions, the judge in the Zofchak matter found that Zofchak failed to discipline and control students in his charge and continuously failed to discipline in an effective manner and on many occasions continuously failed to teach his students in any manner whatsoever.

In Jergens, supra, which was a negligence case, a student was released from the school and hit by a car in attempting to cross the street, resulting in quadriplegia. The lack of supervision in Jergens was considerably more serious than the lack of supervision by Ms. Priano-Keyser.

Ms. Priano's lack of supervision of her students was for a period of time less than one minute, was an isolated incident, and was the first time Ms. Priano-Keyser ever faced disciplinary charges. Although these factors mitigate against a termination, a failure of supervision requires discipline.

In this matter, a very short failure of supervision led to an injury of minor magnitude which could have been much more serious. Supervisory shortcomings cannot be treated cavalierly. As a result, I CONCLUDE that the penalty for Ms. Gina Priano-Keyser should be forfeiture of three month's pay.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that Gina Priano-Keyser shall suffer a loss of three month's pay as a result of a finding of failure to properly supervise students for which she was responsible.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: April 5, 2010 Decided: April 6, 2010

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

The Wharton Borough Board of Education filed its Certification of Determination dated August 28, 2008, and supporting documents under cover of August 28, 2008, in regard to tenure charges with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education sufficient for termination of employment and suspension without pay against Anthony Bartolomeo, a tenured teacher within the Wharton Borough District. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on September 26, 2008, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The charges involved allegations that Mr. Bartolomeo had abused sick time and submitted illegitimate or no medical documentation which demonstrated a pattern of conduct unbecoming during certain periods in each of the years 2005-2008, all of which allegations Mr. Bartolomeo denied.

The parties have now entered into a settlement of all issues in dispute and prepared a Stipulation of Settlement and Settlement Agreement, which is attached and fully incorporated herein. Prior to the entry herein, there were some inadvertent delays between the original settlement of this matter and transmittal of the final document for reasons that have been previously placed on the record on July 2, 2009, and which did not relate to the underlying charges or the reasons either party chose to enter into the settlement. In that document or on the record, the parties have detailed the nature of the allegations made against Mr. Bartolomeo, the evidential considerations which have been considered in determining to resolve the matter without a full hearing, including the limits of proof perceived by the Board in connection with the charges made, the recognition of the importance of the matter and of the right of the Commissioner of Education to refer matters to the Board of Examiners, as well as their position that this matter should be permitted to resolve without any such referral, and the recognition that should the Commissioner determine that he cannot abide by the parties' view that the matters involving Mr. Bartolomeo be resolved that the settlement will be null and void and the matter be returned to the Office of Administrative Law for a full evidentiary hearing. The parties have also presented their position that the nature of the charges, taken in light of the proof issues, are such that removal of tenure may not be warranted although other sanctions might be proper, and have noted that as a result of this agreement Mr. Bartolomeo will no longer be employed by the Board as of June 30, 2009, contingent upon the acceptance of this Settlement by the Commissioner.

I have consulted with counsel regarding this matter and based upon those discussions, I am satisfied that this Settlement, which I FIND was entered into voluntarily and disposes of the issues in dispute, incorporates a proper and reasonable resolution of the issues in dispute between this Board and its employee. The Settlement also reasonably protects the interests of the public and students, while acknowledging that in a case of this nature, there is no certainty as to the outcome of a hearing, one way or another.

I CONCLUDE that this settlement is in accord with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and of In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 and that it should be approved. I therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of

ANTHONY BARTOLOMEO

WHARTON BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION, MORRIS COUNTY

VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, WAIVER AND RELEASE

The Wharton Borough Board of Education ("Board") and Anthony Bartolomeo ("Mr. Bartolomeo"), agree to the following terms in full resolution of this matter:

WHEREAS, Mr. Bartolomeo disputes the allegations of misuse of sick time which resulted in the filing of the tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that it is in the public interest to enter into this agreement in resolution of said charges in order to avoid the uncertainty and expense of litigation; and

WHEREAS, the parties further agree that the terms of this agreement will not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the school district,

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Bartolomeo agrees to resign from employment with the Wharton Borough School District, effective at the close of business on June 30, 2009.

2. Mr. Bartolomeo shall continue to receive health benefits until the Commissioner of Education renders her Final Decision.

3. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, Mr. Bartolomeo will be suspended without pay from September 1, 2008 through December 31, 2008. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, Mr. Bartolomeo shall then be placed on the payroll from January 1, 2009 until the date of settlement, March 20, 2009.

4. The period between March 20, 2009, the date of settlement, and June 30, 2009, the effective date of resignation, shall be treated as an unpaid leave.

5. Mr. Bartolomeo and the Board agree that in full settlement of this matter, the Board shall pay Mr. Bartolomeo one month's salary for a total of five thousand four hundred forty-nine ($5,449.00) dollars upon the final determination of the Commissioner of Education.

6. Upon approval by the Board and the Commissioner of Education, the Board shall withdraw the tenure charges filed against Mr. Bartolomeo.

its successors and assigns, hereby fully releases and forever discharges Mr. Bartolomeo, his heirs and successors and assigns, for any and all actions, claims and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, that it has had or may now have against him, including without limitation any and all claims related to Mr. Bartolomeo's employment with the Board or the separation from that employment.

8. Mr. Bartolomeo acknowledges, as required under In re Cardonick, that despite the approval of this Agreement, the issue of possible revocation of his teaching certificate may be considered by the State Board of Examiners. Mr. Bartolomeo understands that the Commissioner of Education may accept, reject or modify this Settlement, and that the Commissioner of Education may forward this matter to the State Board of Examiners for consideration of revoking his certificate.

9. The parties agree that it is in the public interest to avoid the time, expense and uncertainty attendant to litigation. The parties further agree that this Settlement accomplishes the remedy which the District sought by bringing the tenure charges: Mr. Bartolomeo will be separated from his employment with the District.

10. The parties further agree that the charges at issue do not represent a danger to the public welfare.

11. This Agreement is freely and voluntarily executed by each party hereto. Both parties have had the terms of this Agreement thoroughly explained by their respective legal counsel and understand such terms and the legal implications arising therefrom.

12. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Wharton Borough Board of Education and the Commissioner of Education. Should the Commissioner of Education decide not to approve the application for approval of the parties' settlement and withdrawal of the tenure charges, this Agreement, and all of its terms, shall be null and void.

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF KINNELON, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners challenged the residency determination of the respondent Board that their child, J.B., was not entitled to a free public education in Kinnelon schools during the 2006-2007 school year. Petitioners contended that at the time they enrolled J.B. in school, they established domicile at a Kinnelon property they had purchased in 2005 and intended to occupy upon completion of renovations; however, delays in construction necessitated a move to an extended-stay residence until mid-August 2007, when they began residing at the Kinnelon property full time. The Board asserted that J.B. was not domiciled in Kinnelon during the school year in question, and sought reimbursement of tuition in the amount of $ 9,989.

The ALJ found that: credible evidence supports petitioners' contention that they fully disclosed their residency circumstances and provided truthful responses on the district's registration forms; unexpected construction delays prevented petitioners from moving into their Kinnelon residence by September 2006 and necessitated their move into temporary housing, but their clear intent was to occupy the Kinnelon house as their permanent home, though they did not occupy the residence until August 2007; respondent district had knowledge on May 31, 2006 that petitioners were not occupying the house in Kinnelon, but made no attempt to inquire about their occupancy status or present them with the district's "Policy 5111 – Eligibility of Resident/Nonresident Pupils" until February 2007, eight months after J.B. was enrolled in school. The ALJ concluded that petitioners had established domicile in Kinnelon for the purposes of J.B. receiving a free public education in 2006-2007, and dismissed the Board's claim for payment of tuition.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner was constrained to reject the Initial Decision, finding that the petitioners failed to establish that Kinnelon was their domicile for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) during the 2006-2007 school year, and that the respondent Board had discretion, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a), to charge tuition for J.B. for his attendance in the district's schools during that period of time. Accordingly, the Commissioner dismissed the petition and granted respondent's counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $ 9,989.

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF KINNELON, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioners challenge respondent's determination that petitioners had not been domiciled in respondent's school district during the 2006-2007 school year, that petitioners' child had consequently not been entitled to a free education in the district, and that petitioners therefore owe respondent tuition in the amount of $9,989. Upon review of the record of this matter, including the transcript of the February 4, 2009 hearing in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Initial Decision finding in favor of petitioners, and respondent's exceptions,[1] the Commissioner is constrained to reject the Initial Decision.

A summary of undisputed facts – some, but not all of which were set forth in the Initial Decision – is appropriate. In 1998 petitioners moved to West Milford, New Jersey.

[1] Petitioners submitted no reply exceptions.

(T11)[2] In 2005, while living in West Milford, they bought the Kinnelon home of M.B.'s mother, with the intention to eventually reside therein. (Petitioner's Exhibit 1) They decided in the Spring of 2006 to have extensive renovations performed on the Kinnelon property (T18) – including the removal and rebuilding of walls and fireplaces, the replacement of windows and doors, the addition of rooms, closets, porches and decks (Petitioner's Exhibit 2), and extensive plumbing, electrical and fire protection renovations (Petitioner's Exhibits 5, 6, and 7) – before moving in.

On or about May 31, 2006, notwithstanding that the contemplated renovations had not commenced and the family was still living in West Milford, petitioners completed a registration form to enroll J.B. in the Kinnelon School District for September 2006. On the form petitioners listed their "current address" as "B.L.," Hewitt, N.J.[3] (Respondent's Exhibit 1) Petitioners filled in the address of the Kinnelon property on another line entitled "future address." (Ibid.) That line was provided for the enrollment of out-of-district students who would be transferring into the district prior to the upcoming school year.

It is undisputed that in September 2006, J.B. commenced school in the Kinnelon School District. On September 8, 2006, petitioner C.B. filled out and submitted to respondent an emergency reference card which affirmatively listed the Kinnelon property as J.B.'s residence, notwithstanding that J.B. and petitioners were admittedly still living in West Milford and J.B. had never resided in Kinnelon. (Respondent's Exhibit 2) Further, at the time C.B. filled out the emergency reference card, petitioners knew that renovations on the Kinnelon property had not begun and that the required construction permits had not even been obtained. In point of fact, petitioners did not enter into a contract for renovations of the Kinnelon property or obtain the construction permits until January 2, 2007, four months after the commencement of the school year. (Respondent Exhibit 13 at 3; Petitioner's Exhibits 3 through 7)

[2] T = Transcript of the February 4, 2009 hearing in the OAL.

On October 28, 2006, M.B. and C.B. executed a contract for sale of the Hewitt/West Milford property, (Petitioner's Exhibit 8), but the closing/passing of title did not occur until May 2007. (Respondent's Exhibit 13 at 3). The record indicates that petitioners remained in their West Milford home until at least November 2006, and that when they moved therefrom, they did not move into the Kinnelon school district. (T 24-25) Rather, they resided in Wayne until they were able to occupy the Kinnelon house. (Interrogatory Answer # 11.)

On January 29, 2007, respondent received an anonymous letter from "An Utterly Agitated Couple in Kinnelon" claiming J.B. did not reside in respondent's district, but rather that the address where he supposedly resided was uninhabitable. (Exhibit 2, attached to Certification of Alice M. Robinson [Robinson] dated January 2, 2008) This – according to Robinson, Business Administrator and Secretary to the Kinnelon Board of Education – was the first notice respondent received that J.B. was not domiciled in Kinnelon. (T141) She went to the address herself on February 1, 2007, and saw that the property was "completely gutted." (T144 and Certification of Robinson dated January 2, 2008, ¶ 6)

Robinson sent petitioners a letter – to the West Milford address – asking them to call her about the residency issue. (Respondent's Exhibit 3) M.B. telephoned her the next day about the letter. The swiftness of the response suggested to Robinson that at that time petitioners were still using the West Milford premises. (T142) After hearing from M.B. on February 1, 2007, Robinson provided petitioners with Policy #5111, "Eligibility of Resident/Nonresident Pupils". (Respondent's Exhibit 4) That policy, which tracks N.J.S.A. 18A:38 and corresponding regulations, explains that to receive a free education in Kinnelon a student must be domiciled in Kinnelon. Exceptions are allowed for students who become domiciled in the district within five weeks of the beginning of their school attendance in the district. Robinson testified that families are frequently delayed more than five weeks in moving into the district – due to construction delays or otherwise. (T134) In such cases they are sent a letter, followed by a tuition bill. (Ibid.)

Two telephone conversations occurred between Robinson and M.B. on February 1, 2007. (T142) Robinson recorded notes about them in her telephone log. (T143) In the first conversation Robinson explained that owning property in a district and paying taxes thereon, in and of itself, is not a sufficient basis for a free public education in that district. (Ibid.) Robinson testified that M.B. called her again, later in the day, expressing the view that his property taxes should be enough to cover J.B.'s school tuition. (T145)

On February 6, 2007, M.B. telephoned Robinson to ask that the matter be held in abeyance until the end of February while his wife underwent a medical procedure, and Robinson accommodated the request. (T148 and 153) At approximately the same time, petitioners' counsel apparently sent Robinson a letter, entered into evidence as Respondent's Exhibit 12, which stated that the Kinnelon property would be habitable in mid-March of 2007.[4] However, respondent subsequently hired an investigator, who advised in a March 15, 2007 report that the house was still "undergoing extensive renovations" and was "obviously, uninhabitable." (Respondent's Exhibit 6) In the report the investigator further explained that he spoke to one of the individuals who were working on the property, which individual confirmed that the house had been vacant for many months. (Ibid.)

Having learned that the property had not been inhabited, T152, Robinson forwarded the investigator's report to respondent's attorneys and brought the matter to the attention of respondent's board of education (Board). (T153) When the Board indicated it wished to move forward on the matter Robinson sent petitioners a Notice of Initial Determination of Ineligibility, dated April 30, 2007. (Ibid.; Respondent's Exhibit 5)

On May 31, 2007, M.B. and petitioners' attorney appeared before the Board for a hearing on J.B.'s eligibility for a free education in Kinnelon. The Board decided that J.B. had not been eligible for a free education in Kinnelon and sent petitioners a final notice of ineligibility on June 7, 2007. (Respondent's Exhibit 7) The Certificate of Approval for the Kinnelon renovations was not issued until September 25, 2007, after which petitioners moved into the premises. (Petitioner's Exhibit 9) It is undisputed that, subsequent to the 2006-2007 school year, no tuition was charged for J.B.'s public education in Kinnelon.

After a hearing in the OAL and the submission of post-hearing briefs the Administrative Law Judge recommended that J.B. receive a free public education from respondent. This determination was based on the conclusion that petitioners had established domicile in Kinnelon. (Initial Decision at 10)

The following summarizes the statutory framework within which the instant controversy must be addressed. "Public schools shall be free to . . . persons . . . who [are] domiciled within the school district [.]" N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). However,

> [i]f the . . . school district finds that the parent . . . of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district . . . the superintendent . . . may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent . . . shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent . . . is not domiciled within the district . . . , the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the [C]ommissioner within 21 days of the > date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the [C]ommissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the [C]ommissioner. If in the judgment of the [C]ommissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the [C]ommissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district.

> N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

And "[a]ny person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residence, may be admitted to the schools of the district with the consent of the board of education upon such terms, and with or without payment of tuition, as the board may prescribe. [Emphasis added] N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a).

The State Board of Education has promulgated regulations to supplement and clarify the statutes. For example:

> A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent . . . whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere. [Emphasis added.]
> N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1).

It remains for the Commissioner to apply the foregoing legal framework to the instant matter. In so doing, the Commissioner notes that the facts of this case are similar to those in a decision rendered in favor of the respondent Kinnelon board of education in a case recently affirmed by the Appellate Division of New Jersey Superior Court, i.e., K.L. and K.L. on behalf of minor children M.L. and C.L. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Kinnelon, Morris County, Docket No. A-5671-07T1, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, decided January 4, 2010.

In that case, petitioners registered their children in the Kinnelon school district for the 2007-2008 school year. They had purchased a single-family home in Kinnelon and had represented that they planned to move in after the completion of renovations. In October 2007 the renovations were not completed and petitioners did not occupy the Kinnelon house. Nevertheless they petitioned the Commissioner to bar the district from charging them tuition for their children. In their view, the Kinnelon property was the family's true, fixed and permanent home, notwithstanding that they had never lived there.

The Kinnelon board of education moved to dismiss the petition in lieu of filing an answer. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) converted the motion to dismiss to a motion for summary decision and recommended that the petition be dismissed. After reviewing the applicable case law and administrative rulings, the Commissioner concluded that "petitioners . . . had never lived in Kinnelon before the 2007-2008 school year and d[id] not appear to have lived in Kinnelon at any time during that school year." She dismissed the petition, and the petitioners appealed – raising the same arguments before the Appellate Division that they had offered the Commissioner.

More specifically, petitioners urged that the Commissioner had erred in determining that their Kinnelon home was not their domicile for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). They relied, in particular, upon In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied sub. nom., Unanue-Casal v. Goya Foods, Inc., 526 U.S. 1051. Although not a case involving education law, Unanue contains a legal delineation of "domicile" that has been relied upon by the Commissioner: "In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving." Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 374 (quoting Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215 (Sup. Ct. 1944)); accord D.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Princeton Regional School Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004). Focusing on the portion of the description of domicile that refers to "intention," petitioners reasoned that since it was undisputed that they had planned to occupy the Kinnelon home as soon as possible, but were delayed by unforeseen construction delays and by the approval and permitting processes, it followed that the Kinnelon house should have been regarded as their domicile.

In evaluating petitioners' position the Appellate Division construed the holdings in Unanue. More specifically, it discussed the three elements set forth in Unanue that must be considered to determine whether a change of domicile has occurred: 1) whether there had been an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular state; 2) whether the subject had had an intention to make his home there permanently or at least indefinitely; and (3) whether the subject had had an intention to abandon his old domicile. [Emphasis added.] Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376 (citing Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264-65, (1972)). Thus, domicile is established where "there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home." [Emphasis added.] Ibid.

The Appellate Division concluded that petitioners and their children had never been domiciled in Kinnelon, notwithstanding their undisputed ownership of property in Kinnelon. While they may have possessed an intention to reside on the property after the completion of the planned renovations, it was undisputed that they never did physically reside in the district before or during the 2007-2008 school year. Therefore, their intention to do so was irrelevant. They had never established an actual and physical abode in Kinnelon, and therefore they lacked the necessary concurrence of physical presence and intention to make a place one's home, upon which the legal concept of domicile rests.

The fact pattern in the instant case is strikingly similar to the fact pattern in K.L. and K.L., and the same legal principles apply. The record indicates that petitioners remained in their West Milford home – which was not conveyed to buyers until May of 2007 – for all of 2006 and possibly part of 2007. The petitioners in this case undisputedly owned the Kinnelon property but never physically occupied it before or during the 2006-2007 school year. Consequently, they failed to establish that it was their domicile for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) during that period of time. Thus, respondent had discretion under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a) to charge tuition for J.B for the 2006-2007 school year.

The Commissioner may not disturb respondent's exercise of that discretion unless he finds that it was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or in bad faith. Kopera v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, Essex County, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294-96 (App. Div. 1960). Here, the record provides no basis for such a finding. Further, the record supports respondent's contention that until the end of January 2007 – when it received an anonymous letter – it had no notice that petitioners were not domiciled at their Kinnelon address. Thus, the Commissioner rejects any contention that respondent acted in bad faith by not notifying petitioners of their liability for tuition until then.

In sum, petitioners have not met their burden to show that they and their children were domiciled in Kinnelon during the 2006-2007 school year. Accordingly, it was within respondent's discretion to charge tuition for the education the district provided to J.B. during that period of time. The petition is dismissed and respondent's counterclaim is granted. Petitioners are liable to respondent for tuition in the amount of $ 9,989.00.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [5]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners M.B. and C.B, on behalf of J.B., challenge the residency determination of respondent Kinnelon Board of Education (Board or District). The Board maintained that petitioners were not domiciled in the Kinnelon School District during school year 2006-2007. Therefore, petitioners' son J.B. was not entitled to a free education. The District seeks reimbursement for the cost of the tuition in the amount of $9,989.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) July 9, 2007. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Thereafter, respondent moved for summary decision. Based on a review of the papers the undersigned denied respondent's motion. The hearing was held on February 9, 2009. The parties submitted post-hearing briefs and the record closed on May 15, 2009. Based on the administrative law judge's voluminous caseload, extensions of time to complete the Initial Decision were granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

FACTS

Based on the relevant evidence, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. On or about May 31, 2006, petitioners completed a registration form to enroll their son J.B. in the Kinnelon School District for September 2006. (R-1.)

2. The registration form requested a current address; petitioners listed their current address as "B," Hewitt, N.J. (R-1.)

3. The registration form states, "If currently out of town, FUTURE ADDRESS." Petitioners listed 4 "D" Circle, Kinnelon, N.J. (R-1.)

4. Petitioners also provided copies of tax bills for years 2002 to 2007 for the property located at "D" Circle, Kinnelon, N.J.

5. Petitioners provided documents showing transfer of the property on February 3, 2005, to M.B., who then resided in Hewitt, N.J.

6. In September 2006, J.B. commenced school in the Kinnelon School District.

7. On October 28, 2006, M.B. and C.B. executed a contract for sale of the Hewitt property.

8. On January 2, 2007, petitioners were issued a construction permit for "D" Circle, Kinnelon, N.J. The Certificate of Approval for work completed was issued on September 25, 2007.

9. On January 29, 2007, the Board received an anonymous letter from, "An Utterly Agitated Couple in Kinnelon" claiming J.B. did not reside in the District.

10. On February 1, 2007, the District provided petitioners with Policy #5111 Eligibility of Resident/Nonresident Pupils.

11. Alice M. Robinson, Kinnelon business administrator, "observed that the house was completed gutted."

12. On or about January 31, 2007, Robinson contacted petitioners regarding their residency and J.B.'s enrollment in the Kinnelon School District.

13. On March 15, 2007, Gerald Wyhopen, investigator, under the "ruse of house hunting," approached a worker on petitioners' Kinnelon property and inquired whether the house was being remodeled to be sold or "flipped." The contractor replied, "No." Wyhopen reported the house to be "undergoing extensive renovations."

14. Wyhopen relayed to Robinson that he was "reassured the family planned to move in, although they were 'moving slow.'"

15. On May 1, 2007, the Board mailed petitioners a Notice of Ineligibility, which states in part, "The [B.] family is not domiciled in Kinnelon. Mr. and Mrs. [B.] have owned a home at 4 D-- Circle since February 3, 2005. At no time since that date has the [B.] family moved into the residence. The [B.] family continues to reside in Hewitt. [J.B.] began attending 2nd grade at Kiel School on September 7, 2006, and continues to attend to date."

16. The Kinnelon "premises were occupied by [petitioners] on or about mid-August 2007."

ISSUE

Whether petitioners were domiciled in the Kinnelon School District for school year 2006-2007 and therefore entitled to a free public education?

DISCUSSION

The State of New Jersey provides that "[p]ublic schools shall be free to . . . [a]ny [child] who is domiciled within the school district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The domicile of a child follows that of his parents. The New Jersey Supreme Court noted that "[s]ince the concept of domicile[e] involves the concurrence of physical presence in a particular [place], and an intention to make that [place] one's home, determination of a disputed issue on the subject requires an evaluation of all the facts and circumstances of the case." Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264-65 (1972). N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) explains that "[a] home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." The courts have consistently held that "[d]omicil[e] is very much a matter of the mind-of intention." Lyon, supra, 60 N.J. at 264. A person may have multiple residences, but he may have only one domicile at any given time. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238 (1955).

Information and documentation used to establish a student's eligibility for enrollment in the school district include proof of property ownership such as property tax bills, deeds, contracts of sale, utility bills and "personal attachment to a particular location." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4. The District's policy regarding eligibility of resident and nonresident pupils provides in part:

> Policy #5111 - Eligibility of Resident/Nonresident Pupils
>
> Eligibility to Attend School
>
> The Board shall admit pupils eligible to attend school free of charge that are domiciled within the district, as defined in N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1.
>
> Proof of Eligibility
>
> The district shall accept forms of documentation from persons attempting to demonstrate a pupil's eligibility for enrollment in the district in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4.
>
> The district shall consider the totality of information and documentation offered by an applicant, and shall not deny enrollment based on failure to provide a particular from of documentation, or a particular subset of documents, without regard to other evidence presented.

I have carefully considered the evidence presented by the parties.

Position of the Parties

Petitioners contend that at the time they enrolled J.B. in school they established domicile at the Kinnelon. They provided the Board proof of payment of property taxes, utility tax bills and received mail at the address. They intended to occupy the premises upon completion of renovations, which was targeted on or before September 2006. Moreover, as proof of intent they signed a contract to sell their Hewitt house in September 2006, moved personal property into the Kinnelon house and between September 1, 2006, and March 15, 2007 spent a substantial period of time at the Kinnelon home. Unfortunately, after the sale of the Hewitt house renovations were not completed and they moved into an extended-stay residence until mid-August 2007, when they began residing at the Kinnelon residence full time. The delays to the final move-in date were due to difficulties in replacing a contractor. Petitioners maintained that they intended Kinnelon to be their permanent residence and, therefore, their domicile.

Petitioners further claim that they were never made aware of Policy #5111 or advised of any residency requirements. Therefore, the Board should be equitably estopped from enforcing Policy #5111. Indeed, on the student registration form, petitioners disclosed their current address in Hewitt, N.J. However, the registration form neither references Policy #5111 nor inquires into petitioners' anticipated move-in date to the Kinnelon address. Moreover, petitioners maintain that the District never requested additional information about their intentions regarding the Kinnelon home or asked about the status of their occupancy until months after they enrolled J.B. in the District.

The Board argues petitioners were not domiciled in Kinnelon during the 2006-2007 school year, and relies on In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999). The Board asserts that the key element in determining a domicile is whether there has been an actual and physical taking up of an abode. Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376. Here, petitioners did not physically occupy their Kinnelon residence for the "majority" of the 2006-2007 school year. Thus, J.B. was ineligible to attend the school free of charge when he commenced school in the Kinnelon School District in September 2006, and for most of that school year.

M.B. testified about the family's intent to reside and be domiciled in Kinnelon in the house in which his parents owned and where he lived as a child. On May 31, 2006, M.B. enrolled his son in the Kinnelon School District. (R-1.) M.B. intended to sell the Hewitt property, renovate the Kinnelon property, and move into the home upon completion of the renovations scheduled in September, 2006. M.B. further testified the sale of their Hewitt property was not conditioned on or tied to taking occupancy or renovating the Kinnelon property. Indeed, he possessed sufficient funds to complete all of the renovations to the Kinnelon property without selling the Hewitt property. The Hewitt property was sold on May 14, 2007. (P-1.)

M.B. further testified that the registration form clearly indicates the family's current address to be the Hewitt location. (R-1). The next line on the form indicates "future address – 4 D G Circle." When the Board requested documentation to substantiate their domicile in Kinnelon, M.B. provided documentation including copies of property tax and utility bills. Since no further inquiry was requested, M.B. believed that the information submitted satisfied the Board's requirements. M.B. maintained that he was not informed that the family was required to physically occupy the premises. Had the Board provided him notice he would have altered the construction plans to accommodate the family's ability to occupy the premises during the renovations. Indeed, since he was never presented with the occupancy requirement, the construction plans included the complete renovation of the premises while the family occupied a temporary-long-term residence.

I am persuaded by the credible evidence that petitioners fully disclosed information to the District and provided truthful responses to the requested information. Indeed, on the registration form petitioners revealed their residence in Hewitt. They contend that unexpected construction delays prevented them from moving into their Kinnelon residence before September 2006. I have also considered petitioners' argument they were not provided with the District's eligibility policy #5111 at the time of enrollment. However, petitioners provided what they believed was required to establish residency. Petitioners acquired the property in 2005, registered J.B. in 2006 and they intended to occupy the premises as their principle home.

I have also considered the Board's position. Respondent maintained paying property taxes is not sufficient to establish domicile. Rather, domicile is established by "a contract of sale or inten[t] to move to Kinnelon, and in fact actually do move into the District." (Respondent's Brief at 14.) Alice Robinson, school business administrator, testified that she reviewed the emergency card forwarded to her office. (R-2.) "Based upon the District's receipt of the Emergency Reference Card for [petitioners], which stated they lived in Kinnelon, the District had 'absolutely no doubt' that the family lived in Kinnelon." (Ibid.) Indeed, the District received no information to indicate that [petitioners] were not living at "D" Circle as of September 2006 until January 29, 2007. (Ibid.)

However, Respondent's argument appears to conflict with the District's registration form, which was completed on May 31, 2006. Petitioners candidly disclosed their current and future addresses. (R-1) Robinson conceded that petitioners completed the proper registration form. Robinson also maintained that the secretaries in each school carefully review "every document to make sure there's nothing questionable." Nevertheless, respondent's waited until February 1, 2007, to mail petitioners a copy of the Board's residency policy and inform them that they might be in violation of the residency requirement. (R-4). Indeed, respondent failed to provide any explanation for not reconciling the two addresses appearing on the registration document.

Petitioners maintained that had they been made aware of Policy 5111 at the time they registered J.B. (May 2006) they would not have enrolled him in the District. Instead, respondents sent them the policy on February 1, 2007, eight months after J.B. was enrolled. Petitioners submit, at the very least, the representative of the District should have engaged in some communication or discussion about petitioners' residence and their intentions to charge for tuition prior to February 1, 2007. They did not. Thus, equitable estoppel should be invoked to prevent respondent's claim for tuition.

Although petitioners presented credible evidence on their intent to occupy the premises, equitable estoppel should rarely be invoked against public entities. Cipriano v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 151 N.J. Super. 86, 91 (App. Div. 1977). Furthermore, equitable estoppel may only be invoked against a public entity to prevent manifest injustice. W.V. Pangborne and Co. v. N.J. Dep't of Transp., 116 N.J. 543, 554 (1989); Vogt v. Borough of Belmar, 14 N.J. 195, 205 (1954); Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980). Since the record reveals no discussion between the parties on this issue at the time of or near enrollment, it would be a stretch to conclude petitioners would have refrained from enrolling J.B. in the District in May 2006. Indeed, based upon the representations of their builder/contractor, petitioners believed the renovations would be completed by September 2006; it is more reasonable that petitioners would have altered their construction plans to occupy the premises during the completion renovations.

Therefore, I have considered the District's delay in providing petitioners notice that their residency in Kinnelon was questionable.

Where an applicant for enrollment is found to be ineligible to attend a public school, the local school board is required to send written notification to the parents, setting forth the reasons for the determination of ineligibility, their right to appeal, and other information. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.2(a). This section also applies when the application is later found to be deficient because an applicant has provided incomplete, unclear or questionable information. Ibid.; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.1(c)(1). The district must notify students who are enrolled on a provisional basis what documentation is needed before their final eligibility status can be assessed. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.2(b)(2). When a student who is "enrolled and attending school in the district based on an initial determination of eligibility is later determined to be ineligible for continued attendance, the chief school administrator may apply to the district board of education for removal of the student." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.3(b). Before removal can be sought under this section, a notice of ineligibility must be sent. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.3(b)(1).

Respondent's correspondence on February 1, 2007, (R-4) appears to have been the first indication that the District might charge petitioners tuition under Policy 5111. The right to attend public schools free of charge in a school district is determined by domicile, not physical residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Domicile is established by the facts and circumstances of each case, and the examination of the parties' intent. I have considered whether there has been an actual taking up of an abode, whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently, and whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile. However, the district did not notify petitioners that their residency was under scrutiny until sometime in January 2006.

In a similar case the District provided notice and inquiry about petitioners' residency almost immediately after registration. In K.L. and K.L. o/b/o M.L. v Board of Education of the Borough of Kinnelon, EDU 1191-08 and EDU 1192-08 (consolidated), Initial Decision (April 24, 2008), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, petitioners purchased home in May 2007 but did not occupy the premises during renovations. In July 2007, petitioners executed an affidavit of anticipated residency furnished by the Board with the attached Board's Policy #5111. In October, the Board requested an update on the renovations and advised petitioners that it would "charge tuition until a Certificate of Occupancy was issued." The ALJ found petitioners did not eat, sleep, entertain, or otherwise treated the Kinnelon residence as their domicile. Moreover, petitioners had not surrendered their current domicile outside of Kinnelon. Thus, the ALJ concluded that without demonstrating such objective indicia of domicile, petitioners cannot be said to reside in Kinnelon for the purposes of the children receiving a free public education. Ibid.

Here, petitioners' acquired title to the home in 2005, and took affirmative steps to complete a permanent move from Hewitt to Kinnelon. Renovations were delayed for several months, during which time petitioners abandoned their former domicile and moved to temporary quarters until renovation were completed. Property taxes and utility bills were paid, mail delivered and a close watch on the renovations. Although petitioners' day-to-day-physical abode occurred in August 2007, their action demonstrated an intention to make D. Circle their home. "The court must evaluate all of the facts of the case to determine the place in which there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home." Here petitioners abandoned their former domicile and resided in temportary quarters until the home was completed. Even though the District had knowledge on May 31, 2006, that petitioners were not occupying the home in Kinnelon, it made no attempt to inquire on their occupancy status or present them with the residency policy until eight months after the registration form was completed.

Based on the whole of the credible evidence I CONCLUDE petitioners have established residency in Kinnelon for the purposes of J.B. receiving a free public education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner J.B. receive a free public education in the School District of Kinnelon for school year 2006-2007.

It is further ORDERED that the District's claim for payment of tuition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF SALVATORE PICCOLI, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS, ALBERT C. WAGNER YOUTH CORRECTIONAL FACILITY.

Ellen M. Hale, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner, New Jersey State Department of Corrections, Albert C. Wagner Youth Correctional Facility (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., for respondent, Salvatore Piccoli (Weissman & Mintz, LLC)

Record Closed: April 13, 2010 Decided: April 13, 2010

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, ACTING CHIEF ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 4, 2009, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The New Jersey Department of Corrections filed charges with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on or about June 29, 2009, charging tenured teacher Salvatore Piccoli with conduct unbecoming and specific incidents of insubordination, verbal abuse, and inappropriate conduct, and seeking to impose a ninety-day suspension. No suspension has been served at this time.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Hearing of Salvatore Piccoli, Department of Corrections	:	Agency Ref. No.: 157-7/09
	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The New Jersey Department of Corrections ("NJDOC" or "Department"), represented by ~~ANNE MILGRAM~~ Paula Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, Ellen M. Hale, Deputy Attorney General, appearing; and Salvatore Piccoli, a tenured employee of the NJDOC represented by Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., appearing; by way of this Stipulation of Settlement say:

WHEREAS, the Department initiated the filing of tenure charges against Mr. Piccoli, having filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education on or about June 29, 2009; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli was charged with Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) and Human Resources Bulletin 84-17, as amended, C-4 verbal abuse of an inmate, patient, client resident, or employee; C-9 insubordination: intentional disobedience or refusal to accept order, ~~assaulting or~~ resisting authority, disrespect or use of insulting or abusive language to a supervisor; C-11 conduct unbecoming an employee; and C-24 ~~threatening~~, ~~intimidating, harassing, coercing, or~~ interfering with fellow employees on State Property; and D-4 having an inmate present during a union consultation.

WHEREAS, the tenure charges alleged that on March 17, 2009 and June 15, 2009, Salvatore Piccoli, a Teacher I within the New Jersey Department of Corrections, violated the above-noted statute, regulations and Policies, ~~when he verbally abused his supervisor in the school hallway and in his classroom in front of an inmate and a union representative~~; and

WHEREAS, the NJDOC sought the suspension of Mr. Piccoli for ninety (90) days without pay for the above set of charges;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli disputed the charges;

WHEREAS, the matter was initially referred in June 2009 to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing;

WHEREAS, a hearing has ~~not yet~~ been scheduled.

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli has not yet served any suspension time;

WHEREAS, the petitioner has concluded that it may be time consuming and expensive to prove the tenure charges against Mr. Piccoli;

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into an amicable resolution of the tenure charges filed against Mr. Piccoli;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli is not owed any pay, counsel fees or any other costs associated with this matter;

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the parties and the public to enter into this Stipulation of Settlement. By entering into this settlement agreement, petitioner avoids the excessive costs of litigation; and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Piccoli admits to the charges and underlying conduct as set forth above.

2. As the penalty, Mr. Piccoli shall be suspended ~~fifteen~~ ten (~~15~~ 10) days without pay. The suspension time shall be scheduled consistent with Operational needs and at the management's discretion. The suspension will be completed and served consistent with Department Policy.

3. Mr. Piccoli's personnel record shall reflect a ~~30~~ 20-day suspension.

3a. Mr. Piccoli agrees to attend anger management class

4. This Agreement shall be part of Mr. Piccoli's official personnel file and Mr. Piccoli's admission of the noted charges and the penalty imposed by way of settlement may be presented and considered in any subsequent disciplinary action against him.

5. This Agreement constitutes a final and complete resolution of the tenure charges in this matter and fully disposes

3b. Mr. Piccoli will be placed on the next available transfer list.

3c. Mr. Piccoli agrees to withdraw his appeal of the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated 6-15-05 (5 working days) of all issues in controversy between the parties hereto. Mr. Piccoli agrees not to appeal the terms of this Agreement in any administrative, arbitral or judicial forum.

6. Settlement of this matter is justified and in the public interest because it imposes the desired discipline without the need for a contested tenure hearing. The reduction in penalty from a ninety day suspension to ~~fifteen~~ 10 days to be without pay and 20 days on the record is equitable in exchange for eliminating the expense, time and uncertainty connected with a contested tenure hearing.

7. This Agreement shall become effective when the Commissioner of Education approves it. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

This Agreement is made in good faith. The parties have read the Agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

PETITIONER,	:

STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her son, E.E., was not eligible for a free public education in the Newark school district during the period from January through June of 2006. The respondent contended that E.E. lived with petitioner in East Orange during the time period in question, and counterclaimed for tuition in the amount of $4,478.88. This matter addressed on remand the final remaining issue in a controversy that began with the filing of a petition in September 2006.

The ALJ found that: petitioner owned property in East Orange from which she operated a business; petitioner resided in a unit in one of the houses her company was renovating in East Orange prior to moving to Newark; petitioner provided proofs regarding her residence in Newark, including, inter alia, a lease agreement dated July 26, 2005, a notarized statement from her landlord dated September 24, 2006, and a driver's license bearing the Newark address; respondent's evidence indicated that petitioner had a day to day physical presence in East Orange, while petitioner's evidence pointed to a home address in Newark. The ALJ concluded that, on remand, the petitioner met her burden to prove that she was domiciled in Newark during the period in question; therefore, E.E. was eligible to receive a free public education in Newark schools from January through June of 2006.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner's claim for relief was granted and respondent's counterclaim for tuition was dismissed.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter,[1] and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Said decision adjudicates the residual issue in a controversy that began in 2006 when respondent sent notice to petitioner that it had found petitioner's minor child ineligible to receive a free public education in Newark – based upon the district's conclusion that the child lived with petitioner in East Orange. The focus of this final segment of the case is the location of petitioner's domicile from January through June of 2006.[2]

As the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) stated in the Initial Decision, the party seeking relief in an administrative proceeding has the burden to establish her claim by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk,

[1] The record contains no transcripts of a February 11, 2009 hearing which was held in this matter.

[2] Respondent has submitted exceptions that are 18 days past the regulatory time period for filing same. Although counsel alleges that he did not receive the Initial Decision at the time it was issued, he has not provided a certification to establish this contention.

90 N.J. 550 (1982). The evidence presented by the parties in the instant case conflicted on a number of salient facts; however, the ALJ noted the following:

> Petitioner produced several documents connecting her to a residence [on South 10th Street] in Newark. These included a lease agreement dated July 26, 2005 (P-12), a notarized signature of Frank Hodges dated September 24, 2006 (P-13), a driver's license bearing the Newark address (P-20), correspondence to petitioner from the property's new owners (P-14), mortgage applications to purchase the property (P-15; P-16; P-17), and eviction papers for non-payment of rent (P-19).
> (Initial Decision at 7)

Turning to the law regarding domicile, the ALJ observed that:

> A person has the right to choose her own domicile, and her motive in doing so is immaterial. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to show domicile, but mere residence, regardless of its length, is not sufficient. Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264 (1972). Determination of domicile requires an evaluation of all the facts and circumstances of the case. Id. at 265. When there is more than one residence, a court should consider numerous factors in determining domicile, including "the physical characteristics of each, the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude toward each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return." Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39–40 (Ch. Div. 1970) (citation omitted).
> (Initial Decision at 8)

In light of the foregoing, the ALJ concluded that the evidence as a whole showed 1) an intent by petitioner to reside in Newark, 2) physical use of the South 10th Street address, and 3) a totality of circumstances sufficient to support a finding of domicile. While the ALJ made no express credibility determinations, the Commissioner finds that a credibility assessment of petitioner is implicit in the ALJ's ultimate findings.

Because there is evidence supporting petitioner's version of the material facts, and because deference is owed to the ALJ's credibility assessments, see, e.g. D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of T.L. and K.L. v Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, 366 N.J. Super.

269, 273 (App. Div. 2004) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision.[3] Petitioner's claim for relief is granted and respondent's counterclaim is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [4]

Date of Decision: 5/04/10

Date of Mailing: 5/04/10

[3] While the Commissioner may reject an ALJ's factual findings and credibility determinations if they are distinctly contrary to the record, the absence of a hearing transcript makes such an analysis unavailable to the Commissioner in the instant case.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Arsen Zartarian, Esq., for respondent (Office of the General Counsel)

Record Closed: February 16, 2010 Decided: March 26, 2010

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Y.E., on behalf of her minor son E.E., appealed the final decision of the State Board of Education affirming in part the decision of the Commissioner of Education that her son was not domiciled in the city of Newark from January 2006 to June 2006 and ordering petitioner to reimburse the District $4,478.88 for tuition.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 11, 2006, petitioner appealed the District's determination that E.E. was not entitled to a free public education from the District because he was not domiciled in Newark. On September 22, 2006, petitioner sought emergent relief. The Department of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10085-06 on September 26, 2006. The District counterclaimed for tuition and moved to dismiss the petition as untimely. On October 2, and 17, 2006, a hearing was held, and on November 22, 2006, the administrative law judge denied the application for emergent relief, dismissed the petition on the merits, and ruled in favor of the District on tuition reimbursement. The Commissioner of the Department of Education adopted the Initial Decision. On June 8, 2007, the State Board affirmed the Decision of the Commissioner. Petitioner filed an appeal before the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division. On June 24, 2008, the court reversed the State Board and remanded the matter for a plenary hearing on E.E.'s eligibility to receive a free public education in Newark from January to June 2006. On July 28, 2008, the Department of Education remanded the case to the OAL for a hearing on E.E.'s eligibility to receive a free public education in Newark from January to June 2006.

A hearing was held on February 11, 2009. On December 23, 2009, petitioner's counsel notified the undersigned of a change of address. On February 16, 2010, the parties confirmed that all post-hearing submissions were filed and the record closed.

ISSUE

The issue in this case is whether E.E. was eligible to receive a free public education in Newark from January 2006 to June 2006.

Petitioner bears the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that E.E. was domiciled in the Newark School District during the period at issue and thus was eligible for a free public education from the District. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). In an administrative proceeding the party seeking relief has the burden to establish her claim by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982).

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

Y.E. is the mother of E.E., born on October 9, 1994. Y.E. testified that E.E. has lived with her since his birth, except during short periods when he lived with his father in June and July 2005, and then with his aunt, J.H., from September to December 2005. She further testified that during the period E.E. lived with J.H., he attended Rafael Hernandez School in Newark. As found in the prior emergent proceeding, E.E. continued to attend Rafael Hernandez School through the end of the 2005–2006 school year.

Y.E. is self-employed and the owner of "Ms. Fix It," a business that purchases and rehabilitates houses for rental. In 1998, Y.E., doing business as "Ms. Fix It," purchased a three-family house at ___ North 17th Street, East Orange, for investment purposes. While renovating the house she resided in one of the apartments and rented the other two apartments. In 2004, Y.E. purchased another three-family house in East Orange, located across the street from the first house. She moved into one of the units in that house and rented the other two apartments while renovating this property. Petitioner presented copies of rental leases from both East Orange properties. (P-3; P-4; P-5; P-6; P-7; P-8; P-9; P-10; P-11; P-22.)

Y.E. operated "Ms. Fix It" from the basement of the East Orange property, where she kept a washer and dryer and did the family's laundry. Occasionally, she stayed overnight with her sons. (Petitioner's Brief at 6.) At night she parked her van, containing her tools, in a locked parking lot in East Orange. Y.E. believed that the neighborhood in which she lived was drug-infested, and she did not feel safe living there. In August 2005, Y.E. moved into a rooming house on South 10th Street, Newark, owned by Frank Hodges. Although the lease agreement, dated July 26, 2005, reveals that she agreed to pay monthly rent of $500, Y.E. testified that she and Hodges agreed that in lieu of rent she would provide maintenance services for the property. (P-12; P-13).

The distance between the East Orange and Newark properties is thirteen blocks. Each morning Y.E. drove her car from Newark to East Orange with her sons, picked up the van, drove the boys to school, and then drove to her job site for the day.

On September 27, 2006, Y.E. received a notice to forward "all rental payments" to M. Credit, Inc., the new owner of the rooming house. (P-14.) The correspondence also stated, "Please call me to discuss your tenancy. If I do not hear from you within five (5) days from the date of this letter, I will have no alternative but to commence eviction proceedings against you." (Ibid.)

Y.E. took steps to purchase the property and convert the rooming house into an apartment house. On October 16, 2006, Y.E. applied for a mortgage to purchase the property on South 10th Street, Newark. (P-15; P-16.) On November 30, 2006, she had the property appraised. (P-17.) On January 8, 2007, Y.E. was approved for the mortgage. (P-18.) However, Y.E. never purchased the rooming house.

At the hearing, Y.E. presented a document that she claimed had been written by Frank Hodges. The document, dated September 24, 2006, states, "I Frank Hodges, [am the] owner of . . . So. 10th Street, Newark. . . . [Y.E.] resides at . . . So. 10th St. Newark NJ." (P-13.) The signature was notarized.

Y.E. also presented a letter from the District addressed to Hodges, which states:

> September 13, 2006
>
> . . . South 10th Street
> Newark, NJ 07107-2114
> Dear Mr. Frank Hodges:

> We are sending you this letter in an effort to verify [Y.E.]'s residence.
> [Y.E.] presented a copy of a lease to the Newark Public School stating she lives at . . . South 10th Street and that you own the property and she pays rent to you.
>
> The IRS has no records of you reporting any security deposit in the name of [Y.E.] in any bank. Please contact us ASAP concerning this matter.
>
> John Scott-Bey
> Chief Investigator

The bottom of the letter contained the following handwritten response: "24, Sept. '06, Dear Sir, The first lease was for a room. There was nothing to report if I were reporting those things. She is present in an apartment and there is no money involved. . . . Thank you, Frank Hodges." (P-21.)

In October/November 2006, Y.E. was served an eviction notice for non-payment of rent on the Newark property. (P-19; P-20.) She vacated the apartment sometime in March 2007. (Petitioner's Brief at 8.) Between 2005 and 2007 she received mail at addresses in East Orange and Newark and at a post office box.

Fabian Wiley

Fabian Wiley rented an apartment from Y.E. at ___ North 17th Street, East Orange, in February 2006. He was employed part time and spent a great deal of time at home. He testified that Y.E. did not reside at ___ North 17th Street, East Orange. However, under cross-examination, he conceded that he had no knowledge of whether Y.E. lived at the South 10th Street address in Newark.

Manuel Quinones

Manuel Quinones, employed by the District, was assigned to investigate petitioner's residence. On March 20, 21, 22, and 23, 2006, he conducted surveillances of ___ North 17th Street, East Orange, and observed "[b]lack female and two children exit residence enter vehicle" and drive to Rafael Hernandez School in Newark. (R-1.) Quinones' records show that he photographed a van parked at the curb at ___ North 17th Street on "March 21, 2005," at 8:15 a.m.; on "March 22, 2005," at 7:55 a.m. and 7:56 a.m.; on "March 23, 2005," at 7:54 a.m.; and on March 20, 2006, at 7:35 p.m. and 7:36 p.m. (R-2.) The parked vehicle was registered to an East Orange address. Quinones acknowledged discrepancies in the dates and years recorded on the photos. (R-2.)

John Scott-Bey

John Scott-Bey is employed by the District as chief investigator. He has twenty years of experience in investigation and has taken some courses in handwriting analysis. In August 2006, Scott-Bey was assigned to investigate petitioner's residence. He spoke with Y.E., verified the Newark address on her driver's license, reviewed several letters, and spoke with Hodges, who informed him that Y.E. paid no rent for the South 10th Street residence. Scott-Bey also spoke with Mary Johnson, whom he identified as a tenant at the Newark property. Johnson identified two neighbors who lived in the building, neither of which was Y.E. Scott-Bey also reviewed a closed DYFS case, which listed Y.E.'s home address in East Orange. He determined that Y.E. resided in East Orange, not Newark, from January 2006 to June 2006.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The record in the prior emergent proceeding included an Affidavit by J.H. dated May 19, 2006, which stated in part:

> I reside in Newark. While my nephew [E.E.] resided in my home in the beginning of the 2005–2006 school year, [E.E.]

> has not resided in my home since December 25, 2005. At that time I released him to his natural mother, [Y.E.]. A petition of appeal was filed in my name on behalf of [E.E.] on May 12, 2006, claiming that [E.E.] resides with me and seeking [E.E.'s] continued attendance in Rafael Hernandez School. . . . [E.E.] does not reside with me and I am not responsible for his education. To the best of my knowledge, [E.E.] resides with his mother in East Orange. Therefore, I withdraw my Petition of Appeal claiming residency for [E.E.] submitted under my signature dated May 12, 2006.

The statement is consistent with petitioner's testimony that E.E. lived with his aunt J.H. from September to December 2005. At face value the statement shows that J.H. cared for her nephew for several months and then sent him back to his mother in East Orange. The remand has provided the opportunity to present proof of Y.E.'s domicile from January 2006 to June 2006.

I FIND that Y.E. owned property in East Orange from which she operated a business under the name "Ms. Fix It." While renovating two houses in East Orange she resided in one of the units before moving to Newark. Petitioner produced several documents connecting her to a residence in Newark. These included a lease agreement dated July 26, 2005 (P-12), a notarized signature of Frank Hodges dated September 24, 2006 (P-13), a driver's license bearing the Newark address (P-20), correspondence to petitioner from the property's new owners (P-14), mortgage applications to purchase the property (P-15; P-16; P-17), and eviction papers for non-payment of rent (P-19).

The District relies on the investigation reports of Manuel Quinones and John Scott-Bey; a surveillance of the East Orange property on March 20, 21, 22, and 23, 2006; and pictures taken of a van parked in front of the property. The District's chief investigator interviewed a resident of the Newark property, who did not identify Y.E. as one of the building's tenants. Further, the District's investigator believed that the lease for the unit in the Newark rooming house was "fraudulent," but provided no evidence to support his conclusion. While the District's evidence points to Y.E.'s day-to-day physical presence in East Orange, petitioner's evidence points to a home address in Newark.

Despite inconsistencies in the record, all factors must be considered to determine the place in which there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home. Some inconsistencies in a witness's testimony do not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible and the conclusion that the witness is wholly unworthy of belief. United Stations of N.J. v. Getty Oil Co., 102 N.J. Super. 459, 476 (Ch. Div. 1968).

The State of New Jersey provides that "[p]ublic schools shall be free to . . . [a]ny person who is domiciled within the school district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The domicile of a minor child follows that of his parents. See V.R. ex rel. A.R. v. Bd. of Educ. of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 286 (Dep't of Education 1980); N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). The right to attend public schools free of charge in a school district is determined by domicile, not physical residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Domicile is established by the facts and circumstances of each case, and the examination of the parties' intent.

A person has the right to choose her own domicile, and her motive in doing so is immaterial. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to show domicile, but mere residence, regardless of its length, is not sufficient. Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264 (1972). Determination of domicile requires an evaluation of all the facts and circumstances of the case. Id. at 265. When there is more than one residence, a court should consider numerous factors in determining domicile, including "the physical characteristics of each, the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude toward each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return." Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39–40 (Ch. Div. 1970) (citation omitted).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner owned property in East Orange, where she was observed by a District investigator leaving the premises with her children on four days of surveillance. I CONCLUDE that petitioner presented documents showing intent to reside in Newark. The evidence also supports the use of the Newark address from which she was evicted for non-payment of rent.

Based on the whole of the evidence, I CONCLUDE that petitioner met the burden of proof on remand. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that E.E. was eligible to receive a free public education in Newark from January 2006 to June 2006.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the petitioner's claim for relief be GRANTED.

It is further ORDERED that the Districts request for payment of tuition be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	AMENDED DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter,[1] and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Said decision adjudicates the residual issue in a controversy that began in 2006 when respondent sent notice to petitioner that it had found petitioner's minor child ineligible to receive a free public education in Newark – based upon the district's conclusion that the child lived with petitioner in East Orange. The focus of this final segment of the case is the location of petitioner's domicile from January through June of 2006.[2]

As the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) stated in the Initial Decision, the party seeking relief in an administrative proceeding has the burden to establish her claim by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk,

[1] The record contains no transcripts of a February 11, 2009 hearing which was held in this matter.

[2] Respondent's exceptions were received on April 30, 2010, after the regulatory time period for filing same had expired. Counsel's May 5, 2010 Certification supporting his request for an extension of time to file exceptions – and establishing that he did not receive the Initial Decision at the time it was issued – was received after the Commissioner's decision had been issued in this matter, as were petitioner's reply exceptions.

90 N.J. 550 (1982). The evidence presented by the parties in the instant case conflicted on a number of salient facts; however, the ALJ noted the following:

> Petitioner produced several documents connecting her to a residence [on South 10th Street] in Newark. These included a lease agreement dated July 26, 2005 (P-12), a notarized signature of Frank Hodges dated September 24, 2006 (P-13), a driver's license bearing the Newark address (P-20), correspondence to petitioner from the property's new owners (P-14), mortgage applications to purchase the property (P-15; P-16; P-17), and eviction papers for non-payment of rent (P-19).
> (Initial Decision at 7)

Turning to the law regarding domicile, the ALJ observed that:

> A person has the right to choose her own domicile, and her motive in doing so is immaterial. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to show domicile, but mere residence, regardless of its length, is not sufficient. Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264 (1972). Determination of domicile requires an evaluation of all the facts and circumstances of the case. Id. at 265. When there is more than one residence, a court should consider numerous factors in determining domicile, including "the physical characteristics of each, the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude toward each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return." Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39–40 (Ch. Div. 1970) (citation omitted).
> (Initial Decision at 8)

In light of the foregoing, the ALJ concluded that the evidence as a whole showed 1) an intent by petitioner to reside in Newark, 2) physical use of the South 10th Street address, and 3) a totality of circumstances sufficient to support a finding of domicile. While the ALJ made no express credibility determinations, the Commissioner finds that a credibility assessment of petitioner is implicit in the ALJ's ultimate findings.

Because there is evidence supporting petitioner's version of the material facts, and because deference is owed to the ALJ's credibility assessments, s*ee, e.g. D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of T.L. and K.L. v Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District,* 366 N.J. Super.

In September 2007, an Order to Show Cause was served upon respondent – a non-tenured teacher – requiring her to show cause why her teaching certificate should not be suspended for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for resigning her position as a first grade teacher on the second day of school, without notice and contrary to the terms of her employment contract. The respondent contended, inter alia, that: the aforementioned statute was not applicable to her as a non-tenured charter school employee; she was the subject of a constructive discharge as the result of alleged mistreatment and discriminatory harassment, namely that she was referred to as "Blondie" during a phonics workshop prior to the first day of school; and that any suspension is discretionary in nature and unwarranted under the circumstances of the case.

The ALJ found that: respondent ceased to perform her duties before the expiration of the term of her employment without the consent of the charter school, contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10; respondent's contention that she was subject to harassment, discrimination, disparate treatment, or a hostile work environment is not supported by the evidence; rather, the job did not meet respondent's expectations, and she was at odds with the director of the school. The ALJ concluded that the respondent resigned her teaching position on approximately 15 minutes notice and left her class without a teacher; accordingly, the respondent's actions constituted unprofessional conduct and warrant the suspension of her teaching certificate for a period of one year.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred that the facts in this case do not support a finding of constructive discharge and that respondent's behavior warrants the suspension of her teaching certificate for a period of one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which has been forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating this order.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11971-07
AGENCY DKT. NO. 294-10/07

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF DANIELLE PONTI, GRAY CHARTER SCHOOL, ESSEX COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Petitioner, the Gray Charter School, demands that respondent Danielle Ponti's teaching certificate be suspended for a year in consequence of her resignation from her position before the end of her contractual term – in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. Respondent's defense is that she was constructively dismissed from the position by virtue of alleged mistreatment and discriminatory harassment. After review of the record, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), respondent's exceptions and petitioner's replies thereto, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that respondent's teaching certificate be suspended for the term of one year.

It is undisputed that respondent signed a contract requiring her to teach at the Gray Charter School for one school year, i.e., from August 23, 2007 to June 30, 2008. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-1) It is also undisputed that respondent resigned by letter dated August 28, 2007, ten months before the end of her contractual obligation to petitioner. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-6) Such an early resignation, on its face, violates the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, which states:

> Any teaching staff member employed by a board of education or an approved private school for the disabled, who shall, without the consent of the board or, in the case of an approved private school for the disabled, the board of directors of the school, cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year. [1]

Relying on Penns Grove-Carneys Point Board of Education v. Leinen, 94 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 405, 407, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for this matter explained that "the obvious purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students . . . . The ultimate objective is to protect the students." (Initial Decision at 29) The record reveals that respondent's precipitous departure created disruptions that were contrary to the best interests of the pupils in the class to which respondent was assigned. (1T28-29[2]) Thus, both the letter and spirit of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 was defeated by respondent's behavior. [3]

Further, after considering the testimony and exhibits, the ALJ found that respondent fell short of proving her affirmative defense of constructive discharge. In evaluating respondent's most serious claim, i.e., that she was repeatedly referred to by a phonics seminar instructor as "Blondie," the ALJ noted that the instructor and three other seminar attendees denied that such behavior occurred. (Initial Decision at 23) The ALJ also found it significant that respondent never complained to the school affirmative action officer, the principal, or her mentor about the alleged harassment. (Initial Decision at 23-24) Further, the ALJ regarded respondent's testimony as lacking in credibility (Initial Decision at 24), a finding to which the Commissioner must accord deference. See, e.g. D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of T.L. and K.L. v Board of

[1] It also violates Section 4.1 of the contract between petitioner and respondent, which allows employees to terminate their contract only under the following circumstances:

> Termination Upon Agreement. Upon the written agreement of both Employee and the School (which agreement may be made by the Executive Director), this agreement shall immediately terminate.

[2] 1T signifies the transcript of the first day of the hearing conducted in the OAL.

[3] The ALJ also found, and the Commissioner concurs, that during a meeting at the beginning of the school year, Principal Verna Gray impressed upon the teachers the importance of proper and sufficient (two months) notice of resignation. At that meeting, there was a discussion about the disruptions caused by the abrupt resignation of five teachers which, inter alia, caused the commencement of the school year to be delayed. (Initial Decision at 24-25)

Education of the Princeton Regional School District, 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Another of respondent's allegations of mistreatment was the assertion that she was formally evaluated on her first day of work. The ALJ found, and the Commissioner concurs, that the record does not support the allegation. The facts show that on her first day respondent was observed by Mr. Collins, the phonics instructor, to ascertain whether she understood and could implement the techniques taught at the phonics seminar. (1T44; 3T18-19) She was also informally observed by Principal Gray, who apparently routinely observes the teachers on the first day. (1T43) No evidence was presented suggesting that a formal evaluation of respondent was conducted on her first day in class.

A third issue that respondent raised in defense of her sudden resignation was a letter from Gray to respondent, delivered to respondent on the second day of school, which warned that respondent had exhibited insubordination on the first day of school. The insubordination referenced in the letter was respondent's failure to teach, commencing at 8:00 a.m., the phonics skills presented at Mr. Collins' seminar. Respondent characterized the letter as unfair, disputing that Gray instructed her to teach the phonics method presented at the Collins seminar, claiming that respondent had good reasons for not teaching the required phonics at 8:00 a.m., and denying that Gray was in or about respondent's classroom between 8:00 and 8:30 a.m. on the first school day. However, the ALJ found Gray credible as a witness, and concluded that Gray had directed respondent to teach the phonics at 8:00 a.m. and that respondent did not do so. The warning about insubordination was consequently, in the ALJ's view, not unfounded. (Initial Decision at 25) The Commissioner finds that the record supports the ALJ's conclusion.

After an extensive review of the evidence as a whole, the ALJ found that "respondent ceased to perform her duties before the expiration of the term of her employment without the consent of the Gray Charter School contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and that respondent's actions constituted unprofessional conduct." (Initial Decision at 30) He further determined that "the findings in this matter do not support respondent's contention that she was subject to harassment, discrimination, disparate treatment or a hostile work environment." (Initial Decision at 31)

The facts of this case may suggest differences in style and philosophy between an experienced school administrator and a new teacher, but the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that they do not support a finding of constructive discharge. Respondent's precipitous resignation was unjustified, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, disrupted her students' education and was serious enough to warrant more than a minimal suspension of her teaching certificate. Accordingly, petitioner's request for the suspension of respondent's teaching certificate for one year is granted.[4] A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [5]

[4] Respondent's argument, in Point VII of its exceptions, that N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 does not apply to charter school teachers has already been rejected in Commissioner Decision No. 297-08, issued on July 9, 2008, in consequence of a motion by the parties in this and six other cases. OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11971-07
AGENCY DKT. NO. 294-10/07

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF DANIELLE PONTI, GRAY CHARTER SCHOOL, ESSEX COUNTY.

Cherie L. Adams, Esq., and Erin E. McLaughlin, Esq., for Gray Charter School (Adams, Stern, Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, attorneys)

Lane J. Biviano, Esq., for Danielle Ponti

Record Closed: November 17, 2009 Decided: February 18, 2010

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Gray Charter School (petitioner) seeks the suspension of the teaching certificate of Danielle Ponti (respondent) for unprofessional conduct based upon a resignation that did not comply with applicable statutory requirements. Respondent maintains that the statutes upon which petitioner relies are not applicable to her as an untenured employee of a charter school, that she was the subject of a constructive discharge as the result of various forms of mistreatment and that any suspension is discretionary in nature and unwarranted under the circumstances of this case.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

At the request of petitioner, the Commissioner of Education issued an Order to Show Cause on September 27, 2007, ordering respondent to show cause why her teaching certificate should not be suspended for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. Respondent filed an Answer on November 13, 2007, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 19, 2007, for determination as a contested case.

One of respondent's contentions in this proceeding is that N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 are not applicable to charter schools. In the same general time frame, six similar matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law raising the issue of the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 to charter schools.[1] By Order dated March 31, 2008, the seven matters were consolidated for the limited purpose of determining the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 to charter schools.

Three teachers filed a motion to dismiss based on the contention that N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 do not apply to charter schools. In an Order dated June 6, 2008, the determination was made that these statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, are applicable to charter schools. However, one statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, relates to teachers who have tenure. The determination was that this statute is not applicable to teachers who do not have tenure. Five of the seven teachers in the consolidated proceeding including respondent herein did not have tenure. As a result,

[1] The other matters are as follows: In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Nadira Raghunandan, Gray Charter School, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11437-07, Agency Dkt. No. 292-10/07; In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Melissa Van Pelt, Gray Charter School, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11556-07, Agency Dkt. No. 291-10/07; In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Tyarra Hunter, Gray Charter School, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11956-07, Agency Dkt. No. 293-10/07; In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Claude Gentil, Gray Charter School, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11745-07, Agency Dkt. No. 298-10/07; In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Taheerah Jackson, Gray Charter School, Newark, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11972-07, Agency Dkt. No. 300-10/07; and In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Jenelle Stokes, Gray Charter School, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 12569-07, Agency Dkt. No. 332-10/07.

the portion of the Order to Show Cause based on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 was dismissed as to those five teachers including respondent.[2]

One or more parties sought interlocutory review of the Order dated June 6, 2008. By Decision on Motion for Interlocutory Review dated July 9, 2008, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the Order dated June 6, 2008. Thereafter, by Order dated August 14, 2008, the seven matters were severed for each to proceed separately.

The hearing in this matter was conducted on May 20, July 7 and August 28, 2009, at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. The record closed on November 17, 2009, upon receipt of briefs.

ISSUES

With the question of applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 to charter schools having been resolved by motion, the remaining issues are whether respondent engaged in unprofessional conduct within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, whether respondent's teaching certificate should be suspended and, if so, the length of the suspension. Respondent's main defense is that she was subject to a constructive discharge caused by harassment, discrimination and other forms of mistreatment.

FACTS

A. Undisputed Facts

The general course of events in this matter is not in dispute, and I FIND as follows:

[2] It was later determined that a sixth teacher did not have tenure.

1. Ms. Verna Gray is the executive director and principal of The Gray Charter School. She has held those positions since 2000.

2. As of August 2007, respondent held a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing as an elementary school teacher.

3. On August 13, 2007, Ms. Gray interviewed respondent for the position of first grade teacher at The Gray Charter School.

4. Ms. Gray offered respondent the position, and respondent accepted the offer.

5. On August 13, 2007, the parties executed an Employment Agreement for the 2007-2008 school year.

6. Respondent's contract contains a provision which states as follows: "Upon the written agreement of both Employee and the School (which agreement may be made by the Executive Director), this agreement shall immediately terminate."

7. On August 13, 2007, respondent signed a form acknowledging receipt of a copy of The Gray Charter School Workplace Harassment Statement.

8. According to the Statement, prohibited harassment refers to behavior that is not welcome, that is directed against a person because of his or her gender, race or other legally protected category, and that is severe or pervasive enough to make the person reasonably believe that the conditions of his/her employment are altered and the working environment is hostile or abusive.

9. The Statement further states that anyone who believes that he or she has been the subject of unlawful harassment should immediately report the matter to the Director or the Assistant Director.

10. The Gray Charter School had seventeen classroom teachers plus several other teachers.

11. Respondent reported to The Gray Charter School on August 14, 2007, to begin her employment.

12. At the first faculty meeting, Ms. Gray announced that the school would not open on August 20, 2007, as scheduled, because four teachers had quit without proper notice.

13. Back-to-school night was postponed.

14. Then another teacher resigned from her position.

15. As a result, Ms. Gray had to hire five new teachers.

16. Respondent spent the rest of her first week getting her classroom ready.

17. During respondent's second week, back-to-school night was rescheduled for August 22, 2007.

18. All faculty were required to attend a three-day workshop on phonics given by Patrick Collins, who was an outside consultant.

19. The three-day workshop on phonics took place during the period from August 22 to 24, 2007. The workshop began during the afternoon of Wednesday, August 22, and ended around noon on Friday, August 24.

20. Ms. Gray advised the faculty that Mr. Collins would observe them during the first week of school.

21. Ms. Gray took the teachers to a luncheon after the conclusion of the workshop on Friday.

22. School opened on Monday, August 27, 2007, at 7:30 a.m. The normal school day was from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

23. Prior to the opening; Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics at 8:00 a.m. and that Mr. Collins would observe her.

24. Respondent was previously informed that phonics would be taught every day at 8:00 a.m.

25. Another first grade teacher, Megan Groome, was respondent's mentor.

26. There were ten new faculty members including three first year teachers.

27. When Mr. Collins arrived in respondent's classroom, respondent taught phonics using a method known as "Read, Sing, Spell and Write." This is a different method from the one taught by Mr. Collins at the workshop. Respondent also read a story entitled "First Grade Jitters."

28. Ms. Gray visited respondent's classroom during the morning of August 27, 2007.

29. After 4:00 p.m., Ms. Gray spoke with respondent and told her to be sure to teach phonics, reading and language arts, when Mr. Collins was in the classroom.

30. Respondent reported to work on August 28, 2007, and picked up her mail. Respondent found a schedule for Mr. Collins' observations of the teachers. Respondent was the only teacher scheduled to be observed three times.

31. During the day, Assistant Director and Vice Principal Richard Salles delivered to respondent an envelope containing a letter dated August 28, 2007, from Ms. Gray.

32. In the letter, Ms. Gray stated that she told respondent that at 8:00 a.m. she was to teach phonics and reading as taught at the workshop by Mr. Collins. Further, at 8:25 a.m., respondent was not teaching in accordance with the orders Ms. Gray had given just an hour earlier. Ms. Gray then stated as follows: "This is insubordination on your part. I have a right as your boss and employer to expect that you will follow my orders when I give them to you." Ms. Gray continued with the schedule for teaching phonics, reading and language.

33. During the evening of August 28, 2007, respondent prepared a resignation letter.

34. On August 29, 2007, respondent arrived at school at 6:45 a.m. Respondent cleaned her classroom and removed all items that she had purchased herself.

35. At approximately 7:15 a.m., respondent and a kindergarten teacher went back to submit their resignation letters.

36. Unable to locate Ms. Gray, respondent placed her letter under the door.

37. In the letter, respondent sets forth her defense to the charge of insubordination. Respondent then noted that she "was highly offended by Mr. Collins' disrespectful and inappropriate behavior when he referred to me as 'Blondie,' in front of my colleagues throughout the three day workshop." Finally, respondent stated that she regrets that her "educational philosophy, consisting of a proactive positive behavioral approach conflicts with your reactive authoritative approach." The notice of resignation was effective that day.

38. Respondent left the school without seeing Ms. Gray and returned home.

39. At approximately 8:45 a.m., respondent received a telephone call from Ms. Gray, who stated that respondent had to give sixty days notice.

40. Respondent told Ms. Gray that there was no notice requirement in the contract.

41. Ms. Gray demanded that respondent return to work, but respondent refused to do so.

42. Ms. Gray then asked respondent to return until a placement could be found, but respondent refused to do so.

43. Ms. Gray continued to demand that respondent return to work.

44. Respondent said that she would return to work the next day.

45. Respondent never returned to The Gray Charter School.

46. Respondent checked for telephone messages from other schools where she was seeking a job.

47. On Thursday, August 30, respondent found a message from St. Peter's School in Belleville.

48. Respondent called in the morning and went for an interview in the afternoon.

49. Respondent received an offer to teach middle school English. Despite the fact that she wanted to teach first grade, respondent accepted the offer.

50. Respondent took a decrease in pay from $40,000 per year to $28,000 per year.

51. Respondent is now in her third year at St. Peter's School, and she is teaching fifth grade.

52. At the request of Ms. Gray, Mr. Collins submitted a letter dated September 4, 2007, responding to respondent's accusations in her letter of resignation dated August 28, 2007.

53. In his letter, Mr. Collins noted that respondent was not teaching the phonics method presented at the workshop. In addition, Mr. Collins stated: "Ms. Pointe's allegation I called her 'Blondie' is false; Mrs. Zablow jokingly said, quote 'Have the blond say the wall cards she hasn't said much during the training.' "

B. Summary of Evidence

Petitioner presented the testimony of six witnesses, and respondent testified on her own behalf. Petitioner presented its case first, but due to the fact that most of the factual issues relate to respondent's defenses, this summary of evidence will begin with respondent's testimony.

1. Respondent's Evidence

Respondent testified that she received a bachelor of arts degree in American history and a masters degree in elementary education from Fairleigh Dickenson University. Respondent was a student teacher in several school districts while she was obtaining her degrees. From January to June 2007, respondent worked as a substitute in Secaucus. For nine years, respondent worked part-time for a law firm specializing in real estate.

Respondent applied for a full-time position with The Gray Charter School in the spring of 2007, and she was interviewed by Ms. Gray in August 2007. During the interview which lasted fifteen minutes, Ms. Gray and respondent discussed the importance of classroom management and the beginning of school for setting up a foundation for the school year. They also discussed cooperative learning groups where students are able to socialize and learn from each other, and Ms. Gray agreed with all of respondent's ideas. Ms. Gray discussed a phonics program by Marva Collins. Respondent knew how to teach phonics, but she was not familiar with the Marva Collins Program. Ms. Gray said that a consultant would come in and explain how to teach this type of phonics.

At the end of the interview, Ms. Gray offered a maternity leave position. Respondent said that she was looking for a full-time position. In response, Ms. Gray said that she would keep respondent for the full year and that respondent would teach science and social studies to both first grade classes when the other teacher returned from maternity leave. Despite reservations, respondent accepted the offer.

During her first or second day at work, respondent learned that students were not allowed to talk and that they are not allowed to leave their seats without permission. There was no social interaction throughout the school day. In this environment, there could be no cooperative learning groups.

Respondent spoke with other teachers during back-to-school night. One teacher, Ms. Johnson, told respondent that Ms. Gray hires a licensed teacher to fill in for one on maternity leave, promises to keep her and then finds a reason to get rid of her.

The phonics workshop was scheduled for August 22 to 24, 2007, and was conducted by Patrick Collins. The Gray Charter School has a policy that faculty and staff will be addressed by their surnames. Respondent's mentor, Megan Groome, was present on the first day of the workshop but did not return for the next two days. During the workshop, Mr. Collins addressed all of the faculty members by the surnames except that he referred to respondent as "Blondie." At one point, Mr. Collins referred to respondent as "Blondie" and called her to the front of the room to go over wall cards. While respondent was standing in the front of the room before the other teachers, Mr. Collins again referred to respondent as "Blondie." Respondent felt that Mr. Collins' words were degrading and humiliating, and she felt that he was making fun of her. The other faculty members in the room were laughing. Respondent had to do most of the letters, while other faculty members did just a few. Mr. Collins did nothing to mock or embarrass other faculty members in front of their peers. Mr. Collins repeatedly referred to respondent as "Blondie" over the three days. Later, respondent learned from a teacher, Ramesha Francois, that Mr. Collins and another teacher, Ms. Zablow, planned to embarrass her. Respondent described their agreement as a bet.

Respondent stated that Ms. Francois would testify in this proceeding, but she did not do so. A certification dated May 9, 2009, from Ms. Francois was submitted in regard to an earlier motion and was accepted into evidence at the hearing. The certification states in part that: (1) Ms. Francois was hired as a new teacher at The Gray Charter School in August 2007; (2) Megan Groome was present for only a small portion of the phonics seminar taught by Patrick Collins; (3) at the seminar Mr. Collins addressed all faculty by their surname with the exception of respondent whom he referred to as "Blondie" throughout the three-day seminar; and (4) it was clear that Mr. Collins' comments toward respondent were intended to embarrass or otherwise humiliate respondent in front of her peers. Ms. Francois left The Gray Charter School during the following winter.

On the last day of the seminar, Ms. Gray announced that Mr. Collins would be observing the teachers during the following week. As set forth in a printed schedule, respondent who was one of nine new faculty members was the only teacher who would be observed three times.

Classes started at 7:30 a.m. on Monday, August 27, 2007. At approximately 7:30 a.m., respondent received a call from Ms. Gray to come to her office. Respondent and Ms. Groome proceeded to Ms. Gray's office. Ms. Gray told respondent that Mr. Collins would observe her at 8:00 a.m. and that she should teach phonics and reading. After Ms. Gray left, Ms. Groome told respondent to use the "Read, Sing, Spell and Write" phonics cards. Ms. Groome said that they were used in the first grade until November.

Mr. Collins did not arrive in respondent's classroom at 8:00 a.m. Since Mr. Collins was coming to observe respondent teaching phonics, respondent decided that she would not teach phonics at that time. Instead, she continued with classroom management. Respondent waited until Mr. Collins arrived in the classroom between 8:30 a.m. and 8:35 a.m., and then respondent proceeded to teach phonics using the "Read, Sing, Spell and Write" cards as Ms. Groome had instructed her. Mr. Collins was sitting in the back of the classroom.

Respondent presented a diagram of the classroom. The blackboard is at the front of the classroom, and there are windows along the back wall. Respondent stood near the blackboard to teach the students who were seated at desks facing her. The classroom had two doors. The front door was on the same wall as the blackboard. The door is separated by a wall from floor to ceiling that extends out approximately five feet creating an alcove. As a result, respondent could not see a person at the door. Likewise, a person at the door could not see respondent. A door in the middle of a side wall could easily be seen by respondent.

Respondent continued to teach phonics, and then she read a story called "First Grade Jitters." Mr. Collins left when the class started standardized testing at 9:00 a.m. Mr. Collins spoke to the students for a few minutes, but he did not say anything to respondent about her teaching.

In regard to Mr. Collins' letter dated September 4, 2007, respondent testified that it contained inaccuracies as to certain details such as the time that he arrived in her classroom, the title of the book that she read to the pupils and the spelling of both her first and last names. Further, the letter states that Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics using the concepts taught during the three-day workshop. But according to respondent, Ms. Gray told her to teach phonics but did not mention the method taught at the workshop. Further, Ms. Gray had told the teachers that during the first week of school the teachers did not need lesson plans because most of the time would be spent on standardized testing. Instead, they should have a basic outline on their desk. Ms. Groome provided a basic outline for respondent, who placed it on her desk. Mr. Collins never asked to see a lesson plan. In the letter, Mr. Collins interprets respondent's use of the "Read, Sing, Spell and Write" method as a refusal or inability to use the method taught at the workshop. Respondent states that she was following her instructions from

Ms. Gray and Ms. Groome. Finally, Mr. Collins' denial that he called respondent "Blondie" is completely false. He called respondent "Blondie" the whole time.

During the morning of August 27, 2007, Ms. Gray and Mr. Collins were never in respondent's classroom at the same time. Standardized testing lasted from 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Ms. Gray came into respondent's classroom at approximately at 10:00 a.m. Ms. Gray yelled at the students, but she did not say anything to respondent at that time. Respondent was not in agreement with Ms. Gray's authoritarian approach to dealing with first graders.

Respondent met with Ms. Gray at the end of the school day on August 27, 2007. Ms. Gray told respondent to be sure that she taught phonics, reading and language arts when Mr. Collins comes into her classroom. Respondent said that she would do so. Ms. Gray did not mention any problem with respondent's work.

In regard to the letter dated August 28, 2007, from Ms. Gray, respondent testified that Vice Principal Richard Salles delivered it to her classroom at approximately 10:00 a.m. and left it on her desk. Respondent opened the envelope at approximately 10:20 a.m. and read the letter. Respondent initially thought that she was fired, but she went to Ms. Groome, who told her that it was a warning letter.

Respondent noticed various inaccuracies in Ms. Gray's letter. According to respondent, Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics and reading but never mentioned the method taught at the workshop by Mr. Collins. Ms. Gray stated that she entered respondent's classroom at 8:25 a.m., but respondent testified that she would have seen Ms. Gray if she had done so. Ms. Gray did not come into respondent's classroom until 10:00 a.m. According to respondent, she did what she was told to do, and she was not insubordinate. Ms. Gray never told respondent prior to the letter that she was not teaching the correct lesson.

Respondent testified that it is not appropriate to observe a first year teacher within the first hour of the first day of school. If Mr. Collins was not conducting a formal observation, there should not have been a formal letter stating that she did not follow procedure. The observer should have taken notes and had a follow-up discussion within a few days.

Respondent referred to a regulation, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.5, which relates to evaluations of nontenured teaching staff members. According to this regulation, each district board of education shall adopt a policy for the supervision of instruction, setting forth procedures for the observation of all nontenured teaching staff members. Further, such policy shall be distributed to each teaching staff member at the beginning of his or her employment. Respondent testified that she never received any written policy for evaluations. Likewise, she never received any evaluation form. According to respondent, Mr. Collins' letter dated September 4, 2007, is a formal observation, despite the fact that he does not hold any certificates in New Jersey.

Respondent signed a contract when she began her employment with The Gray Charter School. In the contract, there is no provision that requires sixty days notice or any other type of notice. Ms. Gray never told respondent that a teacher had to give sixty days notice.

Respondent decided to resign because her time at The Gray Charter School was not what she expected and because she was being treated unfairly. Respondent was sick all day after she read the letter. Respondent realized that it would be like this every day for the rest of the school year and that she could not handle it.

On August 29, 2007, respondent left her letter of resignation at The Gray Charter School. Respondent assumed that one of the aides or substitutes who were in the building would teach her class. Respondent felt bad about what she was doing. Respondent acknowledged that she was teaching for only two days.

At approximately 8:45 a.m., respondent received a telephone call. According to respondent, Ms. Gray said over the telephone that she understood why respondent wanted to leave and that she accepted respondent's letter of resignation. Ms. Gray then said that respondent had to give sixty days notice. Respondent said that there was no sixty-day clause in the contract, and Ms. Gray said that a New Jersey statute required sixty days notice. Ms. Gray told respondent to come in, until Ms. Gray found a replacement. Respondent said that she would come in the following day, but she did not intend to do so. Respondent did not report to The Gray Charter the following day, and Ms. Gray did not call again.

In regard to respondent's replacement, Ms. Gray found one by Tuesday or Wednesday of the following week after the Labor Day weekend. With respect to Mr. Collins, respondent did not say anything to him because she was extremely intimidated and did not know what to do. Respondent thought that it was extremely inappropriate to refer to teachers by their race or gender. In regard to the race of the individuals involved, respondent is Caucasian, and Ms. Gray and Mr. Collins are African-Americans.

Respondent acknowledges that she knew that Mr. Collins was a consultant and that he would be leaving after a short amount of time. Prior to submitting her letter of resignation, respondent did not tell anyone other than Ms. Francois how she felt about being called "Blondie."

When respondent resigned from The Gray Charter School, she did not have another teaching job. She planned to continue working part-time as a secretary. At St. Peter's School, respondent was teaching English and language arts to fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders. Her preference was to teach first grade.

2. Petitioner's Evidence

a. Verna Gray

Verna Gray is the executive director and principal of The Gray Charter School. Her responsibilities include making offers of employment to teachers and entering into contracts with teaching staff members.

After an interview on August 13, 2007, Ms. Gray hired respondent to replace a teacher on maternity leave. Respondent received a contract for the entire school year.

Teachers reported to school on August 14, 2007. On that day, Ms. Gray became aware that five teachers had resigned without providing notice. At a meeting with the entire staff, Ms. Gray explained the situation and announced that school would not open on schedule. Ms. Gray stated that the actions of those five teachers were unlawful because they did not provide proper notice. The teachers should have spoken with Ms. Gray and provided two months written notice. Respondent was in attendance at that meeting.

Ms. Gray also discussed the harassment policy at that meeting and identified the affirmative action officer as Richard Salles. Ms. Gray informed the staff members that they should speak with Assistant Director Salles if they had a problem. Assistant Director Salles spoke at the meeting.

Patrick Collins provided a workshop on the phonics program used at The Gray Charter School on August 22, 23 and 24, 2007. Mr. Collins has conducted other workshops for The Gray Charter School and has been very professional. Aside from respondent, no one has ever made a complaint about Mr. Collins' behavior during a workshop. From August 22 to August 27, respondent did not complain about Mr. Collins. At a luncheon after the completion of the workshop on August 24, respondent seemed very happy, and she was speaking with the other teachers.

On August 27, 2007, the first day of school for the students, Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics exactly the way she learned at the workshop. The teachers were to teach phonics at 8:00 a.m. Mr. Collins was to observe the teachers using the phonics method taught at the workshop and later speak with them to improve their performance.

At approximately 8:25 a.m. on August 27, 2007, Ms. Gray went to respondent's classroom to observe her teaching phonics. Mr. Collins was in the classroom, but Ms. Gray could see that respondent was not teaching phonics. Ms. Gray left immediately without respondent seeing her. Ms. Gray stood outside the door for close to fifteen minutes, but respondent did not do anything with the lesson that she was supposed to teach at that time. Since respondent was not presenting the lesson that Ms. Gray had just told her to teach, Ms. Gray wrote a warning letter dated August 28, 2007, to respondent. The letter did not terminate respondent. Vice Principal Salles gave the letter to respondent.

Ms. Gray arrived at work at 7:15 a.m. on August 29, 2007, and found that respondent had left a letter of resignation. Ms. Gray called respondent and said that she accepted respondent's resignation but that respondent had to give sixty days written notice. Respondent said that she did not want to stay sixty days. Ms. Gray said that she needed a teacher for these children and explained to respondent that the law prohibits her from just walking out and leaving the class with no teacher. Respondent still did not want to return, and Ms. Gray stated that this was the law. Ms. Gray then asked respondent to return, until Ms. Gray could find another teacher. Ms. Gray stated that as soon as she found a teacher, respondent could leave the school. Eventually, respondent agreed to return, but she never did so. Since Ms. Gray had no teacher for that first grade class, she had to put Mr. Collins in the room, and then she found a substitute. Ms. Gray hired a replacement teacher three and a half weeks later. Prior to submitting her resignation, respondent did not complain to Ms. Gray about anything.

Ms. Gray never discussed the issues raised in her letter dated August 28, 2007, with respondent.

Ms. Gray immediately discussed with Mr. Collins respondent's allegation that he referred to her as "Blondie". Mr. Collins vehemently denied the allegation. Ms. Gray asked Mr. Collins to put his response to respondent's allegation in writing. Ms. Gray spoke with every teacher in the workshop and asked if they heard Mr. Collins call respondent "Blondie." Every teacher said that he did not do so and that he was very professional. According to Ms. Gray, it would not be appropriate at all to refer to someone as "Blondie" at The Gray Charter School. Personnel are supposed to refer to each other by their surnames.

There was no formal observation or evaluation of respondent on the first day of school. That would be too early in the school year. The purpose was simply to see who needs help. Mr. Collins was not in the classrooms to conduct evaluations. He was there to see if the teachers were teaching what they learned in the workshop or if they needed help.

Ms. Gray entered respondent's classroom at 8:25 a.m., and Mr. Collins was already there. Ms. Gray was not doing a formal evaluation, and she did not take any notes. Ms. Gray observes all of her teachers during the first several weeks of school. It is not possible that respondent misunderstood Ms. Gray's instructions.

Ms. Gray hired Ms. Adamafil to teach the second or third grade. Ms. Gray had to put her in the first grade class, because she had absolutely nobody.

b. Patrick Collins

Patrick Collins testified that he is an educational consultant and that he provides training in the areas of teacher empowerment, classroom management, phonics, reading and language arts. Mr. Collins has provided training at The Gray Charter

School for the last nine years. Mr. Collins has no certificates for teaching or supervision in New Jersey.

Mr. Collins provided training at The Gray Charter School in August 2007 in various areas including phonics. Respondent was in attendance for that training. Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "Blondie" at any time during that training. One of the other teachers, Ms. Zablow, said, "Why don't you call on the blonde? She hasn't said very much during the entire training." The reference was to respondent. Mr. Collins did not see Ms. Zablow's comment about the "blonde" as inflammatory. Mr. Collins acknowledged that he did call on respondent to do the phonics wall cards in response to Ms. Zablow's comment. At that point, respondent had not really participated in the training, and it was time for her to do so. After he called her up, Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "blonde" or "Blondie." Mr. Collins did not have a bet with Ms. Zablow to have the blonde girl come up and teach.

Mr. Collins was in respondent's classroom on August 27, 2007, for observation and recommendations. He was not there to evaluate her. Mr. Collins stated that he was not aware that Ms. Groome told respondent that phonics is not taught in first grade until November.

c. Jennifer Orlando

Jennifer Orlando is employed by The Gray Charter School as an eighth grade teacher, and as of May 2009, she was in her third year. Ms. Orlando attended the entire training workshop given by Mr. Collins in August 2007. Ms. Orlando did not hear Mr. Collins refer to respondent as "Blondie" at any time during the training. When called upon by Mr. Collins, another teacher, Ms. Zablow, said "Call on Blondie instead of me." That teacher liked to joke around. Respondent did not complain to Ms. Orlando about Ms. Zablow's comment. After the workshop, the teachers attended a luncheon. Ms. Orlando did not speak with respondent, but she did not seem upset at the luncheon. Ms. Orlando stated that she would not have been offended if Ms. Zablow had directed a similar comment toward her, but she acknowledged that she could not speak for respondent's feelings.

d. Hyun Shin

Hyun Shin testified that she is employed by The Gray Charter School as a third grade teacher. As of May 2009, she was in her sixth year. Ms. Shin attended the entire training workshop given by Mr. Collins in August 2007. Respondent was also present for the workshop. Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "Blondie" at any time during the workshop.

Another teacher, Ms. Zablow, said, "Why don't you call that Blondie since she is not doing that much?" Ms. Shin was not offended by the comment. Respondent never complained to Ms. Shin about the comment.

During the first week of school, Mr. Collins was in Ms. Shin's class twice for approximately forty-five minutes. Ms. Gray came into Ms. Shin's classroom on the first day of school.

e. Megan Groome

Megan Groome has been employed by The Gray Charter School since it opened in 2000, and she is currently a first grade teacher. Respondent was employed by The Gray Charter School in August 2007, and Ms. Groome served as her mentor. Ms. Groome attended the training seminar given by Mr. Collins in August 2007. Mr. Collins did not make any ethnic remarks about any of the participants during the workshop. Respondent was also in attendance at the workshop. Ms. Groome did not hear Mr. Collins refer to respondent as "Blondie." Ms. Groome acknowledged that she was not present for the entire seminar. Respondent never complained to Ms. Groome about being called "Blondie" by Mr. Collins. Ms. Groome did not hear the terms "Blondie" or "blond" during the training session.

Respondent came to Ms. Groome after she received the letter from Ms. Gray. Ms. Groome told respondent that it was just a warning and tried to ease her concerns. Mr. Collins usually visits her classroom twice after the workshop.

f. Richard Salles

Richard Salles is the assistant director and vice principal of The Gray Charter School. He has held these positions since October 2001. Mr. Salles is also the affirmative action officer for The Gray Charter School. At a staff meeting, which is typically on the first day of each school year, Mr. Salles goes over his role as the affirmative action officer so that everyone knows where to go if there is an issue or a complaint. This occurred for the 2007-2008 school year. Mr. Salles did not receive any complaint from respondent.

Mr. Salles visited respondent's classroom on August 28, 2007, to deliver a letter from Ms. Gray. There were no students in the classroom at the time. Respondent opened the letter, and Mr. Salles said that if respondent had any questions, she could ask. Respondent did not have any questions. Respondent never mentioned any comments referring to her as "Blondie." Mr. Salles was never made aware of any allegations by respondent against Patrick Collins, and he has never investigated any complaint while the affirmative action officer for The Gray Charter School.

C. Findings

The main factual issue in this proceeding is whether Mr. Collins referred to respondent as "Blondie" during the workshop that he gave at The Gray Charter School from August 22 to August 24, 2007. According to respondent, Mr. Collins' use of this term was ongoing over the course of the three-day workshop. In contrast, Mr. Collins testified that he never referred to respondent as "Blondie."

The first consideration is that it seems very improbable that Mr. Collins would refer to respondent as "Blondie". As several witnesses including Ms. Gray stated, it would be inappropriate to refer to a teacher as "Blondie." In fact, a comment of that nature would violate The Gray Charter School's harassment policy. Mr. Collins has been in the field of education since 1993, and he impressed as a person who would have the sense and sensitivity not to refer to a teacher as "Blondie." Under the circumstances, it is unlikely that Mr. Collins referred to respondent as "Blondie."

Second, the comments allegedly occurred during a workshop attended by a group of teachers. Their testimony should provide a reliable guide as to the actual events. Three teachers who were present at the workshop testified in this proceeding. Two of the teachers were present for the entire workshop, and they testified that Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "Blondie." The third teacher was not present for the entire workshop, but she would likely have heard Mr. Collins say "Blondie," given respondent's claim that he did so over the course of the three days. The third teacher testified that she did not hear Mr. Collins refer to respondent as "Blondie."

Further, Ms. Gray testified that she interviewed all of the teachers who attended the workshop. Every teacher stated that Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "Blondie" and that he was very professional. In contrast, no one from the workshop other than respondent testified in support of respondent's allegations. Respondent stated that Ms. Francois would testify, but she did not appear at the hearing. Under the circumstances, her certification is entitled to little weight. It follows that the evidence from the other teachers at the workshop strongly supports Mr. Collins' testimony.

There are other reasons to doubt respondent's version of the incident. It seems likely that repeated references to respondent as "Blondie" would have evoked some type of response. Only the week before the workshop, respondent signed an acknowledgement of receipt of petitioner's Workplace Harassment Statement. Mr. Collins' alleged action would certainly violate petitioner's policy, and the statement advised staff members how to proceed with a complaint. Yet, respondent claims that she mentioned her concerns only to Ms. Francois. In addition, it seems likely that respondent would have mentioned her concerns to her mentor, Ms. Groome.

Finally, during a telephone conversation with Ms. Gray on August 29, 2007, respondent said that she would report to work at The Gray Charter School on August 30, 2009. In fact, respondent did not report to work on August 30. Further, respondent acknowledged that at the time she made the statement to Ms. Gray, respondent did not intend to report to work on August 30. In other words, respondent lied to Ms. Gray to get off the telephone. Under all of these circumstances, respondent's testimony that Mr. Collins referred to her as "Blondie" lacks credibility and is overborne by the testimony of petitioner's witnesses. The testimony that Mr. Collins never referred to respondent as "Blondie" is accepted as true.

In other testimony related to the phonics workshop, respondent claimed that Mr. Collins and Ms. Zablow had concocted some sort of scheme to embarrass her in front of her peers. According to respondent, she received this information from Ms. Francois. However, this incident is not mentioned in Ms. Francois' certification.

Mr. Collins, Ms. Orlando and Ms. Shin testified that Ms. Zablow said something about calling on the blonde, but none of them mentioned anything about trying to embarrass respondent. For substantially the same reasons as the "Blondie" issue, I accept the testimony of petitioner's witnesses as true and reject respondent's version of this incident.

Another factual issue is whether Ms. Gray mentioned a sixty-day notice requirement for a teacher to terminate employment with The Gray Charter School. Ms. Gray testified that she discussed notice requirements when the teachers first reported on August 14, 2007. Ms. Gray explained that the actions of several teachers who quit without adequate notice were unlawful and that they have to give two months written notice and speak with her. In contrast, respondent testified that Ms. Gray did not mention a sixty-day notice requirement.

The surrounding circumstances provide an indication as to the likelihood that Ms. Gray would mention a notice requirement to the teachers. On or about August 14, 2007, Ms. Gray received communications from five teachers that they were resigning. As a result, Ms. Gray had to delay the opening of school because she did not have sufficient teachers. Under these circumstances, it is highly probable that Ms. Gray would advise the remaining teachers that there were notice requirements to resign and that the actions of those who left without proper notice were unlawful. In addition, Ms. Gray was a fully credible witness. Under the circumstances, I accept her testimony as true.

The next group of factual issues relates to events during the morning of August 27, 2007, and to Ms. Gray's letter dated August 28, 2007, reprimanding respondent for insubordination. Ms. Gray testified that prior to the start of classes on August 27, 2007, she told respondent to teach phonics at 8:00 a.m. using the method taught at the workshop. Ms. Gray testified that she observed respondent in her classroom at 8:25 a.m. and that she was not teaching phonics. Ms. Gray viewed respondent as insubordinate. In contrast, respondent testified that Ms. Gray told her that Mr. Collins would observe her at 8:00 a.m. and that she should teach phonics and reading. Because Mr. Collins did not arrive until 8:30 a.m., respondent did not start phonics until that time. Respondent did not claim that she was teaching phonics at 8:25 a.m. but rather testified that Ms. Gray did not enter the classroom and observe her at that time. Finally, respondent testified that she was not insubordinate and that she was following Ms. Gray's instructions.

Despite these differences, the core facts were admitted by respondent. Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics at 8:00 a.m., but respondent decided not to do so, because she was waiting for Mr. Collins. Irrespective of her reason, the fact is that respondent was not following Ms. Gray's instructions.

There was a discrepancy in the testimony of respondent and Mr. Salles concerning the delivery of Ms. Gray's letter dated August 28, 2007. According to respondent, Mr. Salles came into the classroom while the pupils were present and left the letter. In contrast, Mr. Salles testified that no pupils were present, that he asked respondent if she had any questions and that she did not have any. This discrepancy does not seem to have any particular consequence one way or the other and may be the result of a failure of memory. Due to the inconsequential and immaterial nature of this discrepancy, there is no need to make a finding of fact.

Another factual issue relates to respondent's claim that petitioner unfairly conducted a formal evaluation of her during the first hour of her first day of teaching. Ms. Gray and Mr. Collins testified that he was not conducting a formal evaluation. Rather, he was observing her for limited purposes to see if she was teaching the phonics method as taught at the workshop correctly and to offer recommendations.

The notion that petitioner was conducing a formal evaluation of respondent during the first hour of the first day of school makes no sense at all. The testimony of Ms. Gray and Mr. Collins concerning the purpose of the observation is readily believable and is accepted as true.

Finally, respondent claims that Ms. Gray hired her with the intent to terminate her when another teacher returned from a maternity leave. According to respondent, all of her factual claims fit this pattern.

Respondent's factual assertions to support this claims have been rejected. Only hearsay from Ms. Johnson and speculation support this claim. Under the circumstances, this factual assertion by respondent is not accepted as true.

After consideration of the evidence presented at the hearing in this matter, I FURTHER FIND as follows:

54. Ms. Gray interviewed respondent on August 13, 2007, for a teaching position with The Gray Charter School.

55. Respondent came away with the impression that Ms. Gray agreed with her ideas concerning classroom management, the beginning of school, and the use of cooperative learning groups, where students are able to socialize and learn from each other.

56. On August 14, 2007, Ms. Gray conducted a meeting with staff members. Ms. Gray explained that the actions of several teachers who quit without adequate notice were unlawful and that teachers have to give two months written notice and speak with her.

57. During the workshop from August 22 to 24, 2007, Mr. Collins did not refer to respondent as "Blondie."

58. Another teacher, Ms. Zablow, referred to respondent as "the blonde."

59. On August 27, 2007, Ms. Gray told respondent to teach phonics at 8:00 a.m. and that Mr. Collins would be in the classroom to observe her.

60. Respondent disregarded Ms. Gray's instructions because Mr. Collins was not present at 8:00 a.m., and she did not start teaching phonics until approximately 8:30 a.m.

61. Mr. Collins' observation of respondent on August 27, 2007, was not a formal evaluation.

62. Mr. Collins was observing respondent for limited purposes to see if she was teaching the phonics method as taught at the workshop correctly and to offer recommendations.

63. When she arrived at work at approximately 7:15 a.m. on August 29, 2007, Ms. Gray found respondent's letter of resignation.

64. During a telephone conversation on August 29, 2007, Ms. Gray offered to accept respondent's resignation conditionally. First, Ms. Gray said that she would require sixty days notice.

65. After respondent rejected the first condition, Ms. Gray asked respondent to return to work until Ms. Gray found a replacement.

66. Respondent agreed to return to work on August 30, 2007.

67. At the time that she agreed, respondent did not intend to return to work on August 30, 2007.

68. Respondent did not return to work at The Gray Charter School on August 30, 2007.

69. On August 30, 2007, Ms. Gray did not have a teacher or a substitute for respondent's first grade class.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

The applicable statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, which provides in pertinent part as follows:

> Any teaching staff member employed by a board of education or an approved private school for the disabled, who shall, without the consent of the board or, in the case of an approved private school for the disabled, the board of directors of the school, cease to perform his > duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.

The obvious purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students. Penns Grove-Carneys Point Board of Education v. Leinen, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 405, 407. The ultimate objective is to protect the students.

Respondent's main defense is that her resignation on short notice was justified by mistreatment in the form of harassment, discrimination, and, implicitly, disparate treatment and a hostile work environment, which in total effect amounted to a constructive discharge. Respondent also maintains that Ms. Gray accepted her resignation.

A constructive discharge occurs when an employer knowingly permits conditions of employment so intolerable that a reasonable person subject to them would resign. Muench v. Township of Haddon, 255 N.J. Super. 288, 302 (App. Div. 1992). The findings in this matter do not support respondent's contention that she was subject to harassment, discrimination, disparate treatment or a hostile work environment. Rather, the job did not meet respondent's expectations, and she found herself at odds with the director of the school. These circumstances do not amount to a constructive discharge.

Respondent also contends that Ms. Gray accepted her resignation. This argument implies that respondent had consent to cease to perform her duties within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10.

This argument is not supported by the facts. Ms. Gray initially offered to accept respondent's resignation provided that she gave sixty days notice. After respondent refused these terms, Ms. Gray offered to accept respondent's resignation, provided that she returned to work long enough for Ms. Gray to find a replacement. Respondent told

Ms. Gray that she would return the next day. But respondent had no intention of doing so, and in fact, she did not return the next day or at any time thereafter. Under the circumstances, respondent did not have the consent of The Gray Charter School to cease to perform her duties.

In the context of this case, N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 prohibits a teaching staff member from ceasing to perform his duties without the consent of the charter school. Here, respondent entered into an employment agreement for a term set to expire on June 30, 2008, and thereafter, respondent submitted a letter of resignation dated August 28, 2007. This date was the second day of the school year, and respondent did not have the consent of the charter school. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that respondent ceased to perform her duties before the expiration of the term of her employment without the consent of The Gray Charter School contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and that respondent's actions constituted unprofessional conduct.

Petitioner seeks a suspension of respondent's teaching certificate for a period of one year and cites multiple cases in which such action was taken. According to petitioner, this matter should be handled in the same manner as in the cited cases.

The prior precedent has been summed up as follows: "Generally, the Commissioner has imposed the full one-year suspension of a teaching certificate for leaving a district without adequate notice. (Citations omitted). In rare circumstances in which the Commissioner has seen fit to lessen the suspension period, it was for compelling reasons. (Citation omitted.)" Board of Education of Borough of Alpine v. Leonid Yuz, EDU 1116-06, Initial Decision (July 17, 2008), adopted, Commissioner of Education (September 23, 2008), http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml.

Respondent argued for dismissal of the petition rather than a reduction in the length of any suspension. Nonetheless, respondent's arguments will be considered in relation to the length of any suspension.

As noted above, the findings in this matter do not support respondent's contention that she was subject to harassment, discrimination, disparate treatment or a hostile work environment. As respondent points out, she resigned without another job and had to accept a position with a lower salary. While this circumstance shows that respondent did not leave The Gray Charter School simply to benefit herself with a higher salary, there is no indication that respondent acted out of any commendable motivation.

The salient facts are that respondent resigned her teaching position on approximately fifteen minutes notice and left her class without a teacher. Respondent's precipitous action was highly unprofessional. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that respondent's teaching certificate should be suspended for a period of one year.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent's teaching certificate be suspended for a period of one year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MOUNT OLIVE, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's replies to same. The Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that M.W. is not entitled to a free public education in respondent's district is adopted. However, the Commissioner was unable to find evidence, by way of certification or recitation of testimony,[1] that the daily tuition fee in respondent's district is $75.00.

Accordingly, this case is remanded to the OAL for the sole purpose of factual findings regarding the tuition due to respondent.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [2]

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a Pro Se residency appeal, challenging the respondent Board's determination that her niece, M.W., is not entitled to a free public education in the Mt. Olive School District. Petitioner stated that she is M.W.'s guardian, her niece relocated from Florida to live with her because of conflicts with her stepfather and because she missed petitioner and her grandmother, and M.W.'s parents will continue to support her financially. Respondent Board filed a counterclaim seeking payment of tuition for the number of days M.W. attended school in the district.

The ALJ found that: petitioner is not the legal guardian of M.W.; M.W.'s parents live in Florida and do not have a permanent home within the district; and petitioner has failed to establish that M.W.'s parents are incapable of supporting or providing care for their daughter due to a family or economic hardship pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that M.W. is not entitled to a free public education in Mt. Olive schools, and the respondent Board is entitled to reimbursement for tuition for the period of M.W.'s ineligible attendance at the rate of $75 per day.

Upon a full and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's finding that M.W. is not entitled to a free public education in respondent's district. The case file, however, did not include evidence that the daily tuition rate is $75.00; accordingly the Commissioner remanded the case to the OAL for the sole purpose of factual findings regarding the tuition due to respondent.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 01980-10
AGENCY DKT. NO. 18-2/10

E.P.F., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, M.W., Petitioner,
v.
TOWNSHIP OF MOUNT OLIVE BOARD OF EDUCATION, MORRIS COUNTY,
Respondent.

E.P.F., pro se

Aaron Mizrahi, Esq. for respondent (Schwartz Simon Edelstein Celso & Zitomer, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 25, 2010 Decided: April 5, 2010

BEFORE LELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

M.W., who resides with her aunt E.P.F. (Petitioner), contends that she is entitled to attend school within the Mount Olive School District (District) because Petitioner is domiciled in the District and is her aunt and guardian. The school residency law in New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1 and 3.2, provides that public schools shall be free for a student who is living with a parent or guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district; or for a student kept in the home of a person other than the student's parent or legal guardian (1) where that person is domiciled in the district, and where the non-parent signs a sworn statement stating that (2) s/he is supporting the child gratis, and (3) s/he assumes all personal obligations for the student relative to school requirements, and (4) s/he intends to support the child for a longer time than the school term, and (5) the parent or guardian is not capable of supporting or providing care for the student due to family or economic hardship, and (6) the student is not residing with other persons solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education. The District denied the request for admission of M.W. because of the failure to satisfy all of these requirements, and Petitioner appealed. The issue in Petitioner's appeal is whether M.W. has met the eligibility requirements so as to entitle her to admission in the District's high school. I CONCLUDE that she has not, and, therefore, the District is entitled to tuition.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 1, 2010 Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") from the District's January, 2006 denial of the request for admission of M.W. On or about February 17, 2010, the District filed a Notice of Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer and supporting brief. Following the filing of the District's motion, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13. The OAL filed it for hearing and determination as a contested case on March 9, 2010. I heard the matter on March 25, 2010, and closed the record on March 25, 2010, after the conclusion of the hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Background

Petitioner testified and her son, Brian Lawrence offered limited testimony over the objection of Respondent. Upon listening to Mr. Lawrence's testimony, I determined that it had no probative value and sustained Respondent's objection. His testimony was not considered in rendering this decision. Aaron Mizrahi, Esq. argued the motion on behalf of Respondent. The following background facts are undisputed, and I FIND them to be FACTS of this case:

Petitioner is the aunt of M.W., who moved back to New Jersey on or around January 11, 2010. Petitioner is domiciled within the District and will provide for the personal obligations of M.W. as it relates to school requirements. M.W. previously resided with her mother in Florida and relocated at her own request because of conflicts with her stepfather, and because she missed her aunt and grandmother. M.W.'s parents ("Parents") are capable of supporting, and providing care for M.W.

M.W. was registered to attend the District's high school effective February 5, 2010. As of the date of the hearing in this matter, M.W. had been in attendance in the district for thirty-three days. The district's daily tuition rate for 2009-10 is $75.00 per day.

Factual discussion

On January 26, 2010 Petitioner submitted "Sworn Statements of Mount Olive Resident" to the District on behalf of M.W. wherein the following representations were made: M.W. will continue to be supported financially by her parents; her mother will provide whatever she needs including living expenses; M.W. will live with Petitioner until she has completed high school and is enrolled in a university; Petitioner will assume responsibility for all of M.W.'s personal obligations with respect to school requirements; and the reason that M.W. will be living with Petitioner is that she misses her grandmother and Petitioner.

On or about January 26, 2010 Petitioner submitted the Parent's "Affidavit of Parent/Guardian" to the District wherein M.W.'s mother made the following representations: she resides in Sanford, Florida; she is employed as a Community training specialist; M.W.'s mother, P.W., has legal custody of M.W.; P.W. has primary physical custody of M.W.; the reason that M.W. will reside in the district with Petitioner is that M.W. was very close to her aunt and grandmother so she wanted to be with them when they moved back to New Jersey; and both parents are capable of supporting M.W.

Petitioner testified that she resides and pays taxes in the district. Her niece, M.W., was "crying that she wanted to live with her" because she was having emotional and mental problems stemming from a poor relationship with her stepfather. Petitioner felt that the child was "in distress" and wanted to help her. At one point in M.W.'s life the family unit was comprised of Petitioner, her sister and mother, her nieces (including M.W.) and Petitioner's own children. At one point this family unit all resided together in New Jersey. As a result, Petitioner testified that she "had M.W. all her life." Petitioner further testified that M.W.'s mother purchased a plane ticket and sent M.W. to stay with her. Petitioner felt that she could not let M.W. stay at home so she attempted to enroll her in school in the district. Petitioner testified that M.W. was living in a good neighborhood in Florida that had a good, free school system. As such, M.W. did not move to New Jersey just to get a free education in the district. She was not aware of whether the Mount Olive school district was good or not.

Based upon a review of the totality of the evidence, and having had the opportunity to assess the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses, I make the following additional FINDINGS of FACT:

The residency affidavits submitted in support of Petitioner's application to enroll M.W. in school in the district, did not comply with the eligibility requirements for enrollment. There is no competent evidence that Petitioner is the legal guardian of M.W. Further, M.W.'s parents are not incapable of providing care for M.W. due to a family or economic hardship. They claim no such hardships in their Affidavit. Indeed, M.W.'s mother is employed. There is no competent evidence that M.W. is medically unable to reside with her parents. Petitioner is not supporting M.W. gratis as evident from Petitioner's own Affidavit which states that M.W. "will continue to be supported financially by her parents" and "[h]er mother will be providing whatever she needs." It is also telling that M.W.'s mother's affidavit states that "[b]oth parents are capable of supporting" M.W. Further, the affidavits are silent as to any medical basis for Petitioner undertaking the care of M.W.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

In New Jersey public schools are free for children so long as they meet certain residency requirements.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides eligibility in two alternative ways as follows in pertinent part:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, ... and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. ... If in the judgment of the > board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. ... If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. ...

For the purpose of applying subsection (a) of the statute, the regulations of the Department of Education provide that a student is domiciled in the school district when he is with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1. Since M.W.'s parents do not have a permanent home within the district, and, since Petitioner is not the legal guardian of M.W., I CONCLUDE that she is not entitled to a free public education in the District under subsection (a).

Subsection (b) of the statute entitles a free education under certain circumstances to a student living with someone domiciled in a district other than a parent or guardian if that other person is supporting the student without remuneration as if the student were his or her own child. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2. However, such eligibility does not exist where the parties fail to validly establish that the parent or guardian is not capable of supporting or providing care for the student due to family or economic hardship, and that the student is not residing with the other person solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(a)1.i. I CONCLUDE that M.W. is not entitled to a free public education from the District under subsection (b) because there is neither a claim nor proof of a family or economic hardship.

As Petitioner has not provided any other basis whereby M.W. would be entitled to a free public education in the District, I CONCLUDE that M.W. has been, and continues to be, ineligible to attend a District school, for the 200-10 school year. I further CONCLUDE therefore that the District is entitled to reimbursement for those days that M.W. has attended the District's school from February 5, 2010 until the Commissioner issues his Final Decision at a rate of $75 per day.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the Motion to Dismiss the petition is granted and the Petition is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE; and it is further ORDERED that the District's claim for tuition is GRANTED and that Petitioner shall pay to the District tuition for the 2009-10 school year at a rate of $75 per school day starting from February 5, 2010, together with post judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDE 5320-05
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DKT NO. 0708-146
COMMISSIONER APPEAL NO. 6-8/09A

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF	:	DECISION
LORI LOWENSTEIN-MASE.	:

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, June 22, 2009

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Lori Lowenstein-Mase, pro se

For the Respondent, Deputy Attorney General Cynthia Raymond Rimol

On August 17, 2009, appellant filed with the Commissioner a copy of a notice of appeal from an order of the State Board of Examiners (the Board) revoking her teaching certificates/endorsements. By letter dated August 24, 2009, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (the Director) notified appellant that her notice of appeal was deficient because she did not include a copy of the order/decision from which she was appealing and because she failed to provide proof that she served the notice of appeal upon the Attorney General – counsel for the Board.

On September 2, 2009, counsel for the Board submitted a list of items comprising the record of this matter and copies of said items, including a copy of the Board's decision/order of revocation. Appellant's failure to present proof of service and a copy of the order of revocation was consequently deemed cured.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.7(a), the brief supporting appellant's appeal was due 20 days later – i.e., September 22, 2009, but no brief was filed with the Commissioner by that date. By letter dated December 3, 2009, the Director then extended the deadline for the filing of appellant's brief to December 21, 2009. Upon appellant's request, on January 11, 2010 a final extension to January 31, 2010 was granted, and she perfected her appeal on January 29, 2010. Respondent's brief was filed on February 9, 2010.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a)(1). Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a)(2). Upon review of the record, Board decision, and appellate submissions in this case, the Commissioner concludes that appellant received the process that she was due. The evidence in the record supports the Board's factual findings and provides a rational basis for the Board's revocation decision. Consequently, the Commissioner sees no reason to overturn same.

As to the penalty imposed by the Board upon respondent, the Commissioner rejects the contention that a more lenient sanction than revocation of appellant's teaching certificates is warranted under the circumstances of this case. First, appellant was convicted of at least one crime, i.e., theft by deception (N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4a), that requires disqualification from public school employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(c)(2). Indeed, "forfeiture of public employment in the State of New Jersey for life" was a term of the plea agreement appellant entered into on May 7, 2008. Revocation of appellant's certificates can be viewed as a reasonable measure to impede appellant's return to employment in a primary or secondary school setting.

Second, appellant's argument – that she should not be stripped of certificates which she validly obtained – ignores the nature and severity of her subsequent conduct. She essentially stole the "speech language specialist" certificate of another individual, showing herself unworthy of retaining the previously acquired professional certificates which allow individuals to educate and serve as role models to children and youth.

Similarly, appellant's argument that revocation is too harsh a penalty for a teacher who served in good standing for many years must be rejected. Unfitness for a position may be shown by a series of incidents, or just one – if sufficiently flagrant. See, e.g. Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd., 131 N.J.L. 326 (E&A 1944). The Commissioner cannot find fault with the Board's determination that appellant's theft of another teacher's credentials is sufficient to show unfitness to teach and to justify revocation of her certificates/endorsements.

In summary, the Commissioner finds no basis upon which to disturb the decision of the State Board of Examiners. Accordingly, it is affirmed for the reasons set forth therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
LORI LOWENSTEIN-MASE	:	ORDER OF REVOCATION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 0708-146

At its meeting of October 16, 2008, the State Board of Examiners reviewed a Judgment of Conviction forwarded by the Elizabeth School District indicating that on May 7, 2008, Lori Lowenstein-Mase pled guilty to Wrongful Impersonating (Identity Theft) and Theft By Deception-False Impression. On August 1, 2008, Lowenstein-Mase was sentenced to five years probation, fined, ordered to pay restitution and ordered to forfeit her public employment. As a result of her conviction, Lowenstein-Mase was also disqualified from public school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. Lowenstein-Mase currently holds a Teacher of Elementary Education certificate, issued in March 1988 and a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in August 1991. Upon review of the above information, at its January 13, 2009 meeting, the State Board of Examiners voted to issue Lowenstein-Mase an Order to Show Cause.

The Board sent Lowenstein-Mase the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on January 14, 2009. The Order provided that her Answer was due within 30 days. Lowenstein-Mase filed her response on February 13, 2009. In that Answer, Lowenstein-Mase admitted that she had worked under a speech therapist certificate that belonged to someone else from November 2005 to March 2006 and that she had been prosecuted for the same conduct. (Answer, ¶¶ 4, 5). Lowenstein-Mase stated that she suffered from a mental illness, bipolar disorder with ADHD, which she believed contributed to her wrongful actions. (Answer, ¶ 6.) She added that she was making restitution according to her criminal plea agreement and claimed that revoking the certificates that she validly earned and never misused would be an unfair penalty. (Answer, ¶ 8.) She noted that she "only used another's certificate for five months of my roughly 27 year teaching career" and that, although she could never again teach in a public school, retaining her certificates would help her to find a job. (Answer ¶¶ 8, 9.) In addition to her certification, Lowenstein-Mase submitted a brief in support of her position which argued that revocation was not required in this case. (Answer Brief, pp. 1-3.) She further noted that if the Board of Examiners felt a penalty was warranted, suspension of her certificates was more appropriate since it "sends a powerful message yet is not so punitive in nature that [I] cannot start over again and market [my] skills and experience as a special education teacher." (Answer Brief, p. 4.)

Thereafter, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(e), on March 3, 2009, the Board of Examiners sent Lowenstein-Mase a hearing notice by regular and certified mail. The notice explained that it appeared that no material facts were in dispute and Lowenstein-Mase was offered an opportunity to submit written arguments on the issue of whether the conduct addressed in the Order to Show Cause constituted conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. It also explained that upon review of the charges against her and the legal arguments tendered in her defense, the State Board of Examiners would determine if the conduct underlying her conviction and resulting disqualification warranted action against her certificates. Thereupon, the Board of Examiners would also determine the appropriate sanction, if any. Lowenstein-Mase was also provided the opportunity to appear before the Board and testify on the sanction issue. On March 31, 2009, her counsel indicated that Lowenstein-Mase would rely upon the brief that she had submitted in response to the Order to Show Cause. (Hearing Response, p. 1.)

constitute conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. At its meeting of May 11, 2009, the State Board of Examiners reviewed the charges and papers Lowenstein-Mase filed in response to the Order to Show Cause. After review of her submissions, the Board of Examiners determined that no material facts related to Lowenstein-Mase's offense were in dispute since she admitted that she had pled guilty to the offenses charged and had been sentenced accordingly. Thus, the Board of Examiners determined that summary decision was appropriate in this matter. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(h). It is therefore ORDERED that the charges in the Order to Show Cause are deemed admitted for the purpose of this proceeding.

The State Board of Examiners must now determine whether Lowenstein-Mase's conviction and disqualification, predicated on the same offense set forth in the Order to Show Cause, provide just cause to act against her certificates pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. The Board finds that they do.

The State Board of Examiners may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. Lowenstein-Mase's acts of identity theft are inexcusable for any individual, teacher or not. While she may have been an exceptional teacher in the classroom, she has not demonstrated like behavior outside that arena. The Commissioner has long held that teachers serve as role models for their students. "Teachers... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321.

Furthermore, unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct.

1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). In this instance, not only did Lowenstein-Mase use another teacher's certificate, she even went so far as to have the Social Security Administration change that teacher's Social Security number to her own so she could further her fraud. This is not "role-model" behavior, nor is it behavior that can be excused by reliance on a mental illness diagnosis after-the-fact.

Notwithstanding Lowenstein-Mase's contentions of rehabilitation, this is not the proper context for such considerations. The purpose of this proceeding is "to permit the individual certificate holder to demonstrate circumstances or facts to counter the charges set forth in the Order to Show Cause, not to afford an opportunity to show rehabilitation." See In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of Gloria Jackson by the State Board of Examiners, 96 N.J.A.R. 2D (EDE) 1, 16 aff'd, App. Div. Dkt. No. A-1246-96T5 (September 9, 1997) citing In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of James Noll, State Bd. of Examiners decision (February 7, 1990). Thus, the fact that Lowenstein-Mase has begun paying her court-ordered restitution, while a step in the right direction, has no bearing on the decision the Board of Examiners must make with regard to her certification.

Lowenstein-Mase argues that although she cannot teach in public schools because of her disqualification, she should be allowed to retain her certificates since her plea deal did not require their revocation and her behavior occurred over only five months of a 27 year teaching career. In enacting the Criminal History Review statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. in 1986, the Legislature sought to protect public school pupils from contact with individuals whom it deemed to be dangerous. Individuals convicted of a crime that involves theft squarely within this category. The strong policy statement on the part of the Legislature, set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(b), also offers guidance to the State Board of Examiners as to the appropriate sanction in this matter. An individual whose offense is so great that he or she is barred from service in public schools should not be permitted to retain the certificate that authorizes such service. Nor should a person who has been disqualified from teaching in a public school be permitted to continue to hold herself out as a teacher. Thus, because the Legislature considers Lowenstein-Mase's offense so significant, the State Board of Examiners believes that the only appropriate sanction in this case is the revocation of her teaching certificates.

Accordingly, on May 11, 2009, the Board of Examiners voted to revoke Lori Lowenstein-Mase's Teacher of Elementary Education and Teacher of the Handicapped certificates. On this 22nd day of June 2009 the Board of Examiners voted to adopt its formal written decision and it is therefore ORDERED that the revocation of Lowenstein-Mase's certificates be effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Lowenstein-Mase return her certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. TATIANA CHARAPOVA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner asks for reconsideration of a decision issued by the Commissioner on June 20, 2006, reversed by the State Board of Education on August 1, 2007, and affirmed by the Appellate Division of Superior Court on July 21, 2008. The State Supreme Court denied certification on October 20, 2008. The ultimate disposition of the case was dismissal – based upon untimeliness – of petitioner's claim that she was not rehired after a reduction in force (RIF) due solely to her age and national origin. It was the former State Board of Education that dismissed Charapova's petition, but – since the State Board no longer performs an appellate function – it now falls to the Commissioner to respond to petitioner's motion. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1 and 9.2.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b) allows applications for reconsideration of decisions, providing that they are filed within ten days of the issuance of said decision. Since the rulings of the forums which reviewed and adjudicated petitioner's case were all made in 2008, the instant application is clearly out of time. Moreover, the motion fails to meet the standards outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2).

Petitioner has not, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2)(ii), presented any material "newly-discovered evidence" that was not previously discoverable by due diligence. No newly ascertained misrepresentations or misconduct by respondent's representatives – which could not have been previously known – are now presented by petitioner, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2)(iii).[1] Indeed, petitioner's current motion papers track very closely the documents that supplemented the petition she submitted on September 25, 2008.

Finally, no new developments in legal precedent are offered by petitioner in support of her motion, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2)(iv), and no cognizable "mistakes" – as referenced in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2)(i) – have been shown to have been made by respondent or the triers of fact in the various forums which have reviewed this case. Accordingly, the Commissioner denies petitioner's motion for reconsideration of the dismissal of her petition, which alleged that discrimination was the improper basis for the 2005 non-renewal of her employment contract with respondent.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

[1] A substantial portion of petitioner's motion refers to alleged improprieties by her union representatives and counsel. Such allegations cannot support claims against the respondent school district.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Bret Schundler
Acting Commissioner
Department of Education
State of New Jersey
PO Box 500
Trenton, NJ 08625-0500

Dear Commissioner Schundler:

Kindly accept this letter brief as notification of my appeal of the matter begun against the Edison Township Board of Education June 2, 2005 to the Board of Education President Mr. Barry Miller. (Exhibit 1) Assistant Superintendent Dr. Maryann Banks' letter on June 14, 2005 was notification of my health benefits have being terminated July 2, 2005. (Exhibit 2)

While I was encouraged by then Superintendent Carol Toth's change in my status on Ms. Gina Foxx's final evaluation of me from Not Recommended to Recommended, I did not then understand why if I was on the RIF list and now Recommended to be rehired I would have my insurance terminated. (Exhibit 3)

The Edison Teacher's Education Association President Myron Fouratt's actions were confusing to say the least. Mr. Fouratt appeared to be removed from my situation even at one time falling asleep as was speaking of the harassment I experienced under Ms. Foxx. The President of ETA said that he couldn't help me because there were no laws in Edison to protect me as non tenured teacher, and non citizen during that time. After my conversation with Mr. Tarr Mr. Fouratt over sudden provided me with these papers and warned me not to open my mouth because then I would be done in NJ. (Exhibit 4)

As you will recall the NJEA did not provide representation in moving my matter forward to the Commissioner of Education; I was told by Mr. Mellk to go to Civil Rights and by Mr. Klausner to EEOC. I was confused; my colleagues encouraged me to move forward on my own. All these confusions caused me to take further action myself with letters to then Commissioner William Librera (stamped date of receipt July 7, 2005) and to Acting Governor Richard J. Codey (response July 8, 2005). (Exhibit 5)

In my 25 year teaching career I have always been successful. In Edison my two prior principals and my ESL supervisor were more than satisfied with my teaching and the results of my students. Even at this time I cannot imagine how this could have been permitted to occur.

I am not an attorney but I know that Mr. Mellk has not been consistent in his advice or in his representation of me. Mr. Mellk never requested any papers and it has come to my attention that the dates of August 5 and 22 are being used by Mr. Mellk and Ms. Barrone. Since I continue to be very confused and continue to be unsure of Mr. Mellk's opinion since he has failed to contact me despite my continued attempts; I have decided that I would once again ask for you Commissioner to reconsider my case.

It continues to be my belief that I was never provided with a notice of termination nor the reasons for such a determination; in point of fact my status was changed by Superintendent Toth to Recommended and despite the fact that not one but two openings occurred I was not recalled from the RIF list. (Exhibit 6)
On April 19, 2005 I received a Reduction in Force notice, which is defective notice Edison Board of Education gives for purposes of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) of the termination of my employment. As a matter of Due Process RIF notice issued to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 cannot constitute notice of a board action pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). (Exhibit 7)
Former Commissioner Davy made her decision about RIF and my timely Petition on June 20, 2006 (Exhibit 8).
In correspondence with Kathleen Duncan Director of Controversies and Disputes, Ms Duncan stated that the issue of my letters to Governor Cody and Commissioner Librera being considered as the date of the Appeal would be your determination. Ms. Duncan did state that these letters were not among the documents considered in my Appeal of Judge Dubin's decision to dismiss my case because it not filed in a timely manner. Kindly accept my apologies for failing to provide these documents to Department of Education. The entire ordeal has been almost crippling for me. While I have continued to teach as an adjunct professor in county colleges, I am an educator and it is my desire to continue to work for the Edison community with children.
I have enclosed exhibits for your review. I will be more than happy to provide any other documents that your office requests.

Sincerely,

T. Charapova

The record of this matter, the parties' proposed Settlement Agreement, and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner determines that he cannot approve the parties' proposed settlement as currently configured. Specifically, term number 5 of this agreement – in pertinent part – specifies "In the event of a breach of this Agreement by one of the parties hereto, the breaching party shall pay a penalty to the non-breaching party to be established in the discretion of the Commissioner for a willful violation of any term of this Agreement. In the event that either party is required to commence an action in law or equity to enforce its rights under Agreement and it prevails, the party against whom the action is brought shall be required to pay the prevailing party reasonable attorneys fees and costs in addition to any damages which may be recoverable." It must be emphasized that awarding of penalties, damages or attorney fees as a consequence of one of the parties' breach of this agreement is outside the jurisdictional purview of the Commissioner of Education and must, rather, be sought from the Superior Court of New Jersey. Consequently, in order for the Commissioner to consider approving the parties' proposed agreement, term number 5 must be eliminated or reconfigured.

Accordingly, this matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement consistent with the concerns set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 20, 2009, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This settlement agreement ("Agreement") is being entered into between Petitioner, Colleen K. Covert ("Ms. Covert"), and Respondent, Rumson Board of Education ("Board"), with regard to Colleen K. Covert v. Rumson Board of Education & Kathleen Dec, Intervenor, OAL Dckt. No.: EDUOA 06385-2009S, Agency Ref. No.: 155-7/09 having agreed to amicably resolve their differences, it is hereby stipulated and agreed that this matter shall be settled upon the following terms:

1. Effective April 1, 2010, Ms. Covert will be returned to a full-time secretary position. Ms. Covert shall receive her pro-rated sick and vacation days for the period of time that she was a part-time secretary. Ms. Covert agrees to waive any claim to back-pay as part of this settlement. The parties acknowledge that as of April 1, 2010 Ms. Covert will have 14 years, 0 months, 11 days seniority in the position of secretary. It is expressly understood by and between the parties that Ms. Covert will be initially assigned to the Child Study Team. The parties acknowledge that the Board, at all times, retains the right to reassign Ms. Covert.

2. The consideration described in Paragraph 1 above shall constitute the entire monetary settlement of the matters encompassed by this Agreement.

3. In exchange for the promises and undertakings of the Respondent, Rumson Board of Education, as set forth in Paragraphs 1 and 2 above, Petitioner agrees:

RECEIVED
2010 APR 21 P 2: 20
STATE OF NJ
OFFICE OF ADMIN LAW

A. To execute a General Release and Waiver ("General Release") to the Respondent in the form annexed. Petitioner expressly acknowledges that this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver are intended to extinguish and to waive all claims which she may have against any person or entity identified as a releasee in the General Release and Waiver resulting from anything which has happened up to the date of the execution of the General Release and Waiver and which were or could have been asserted, including those claims unknown to her and claims for medical expenses, attorneys fees and costs. Petitioner hereby acknowledges that the execution of this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver which accompanies it shall absolutely bar any such claim, action or suit against any releasee identified in the General Release and Waiver. This release specifically excludes any pension based or workers compensation claims. Ms. Covert is unaware of any factual basis for such claims.

B. Petitioner agrees and promises to cause her attorney to file a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice with respect to her claims and causes of action with the Commissioner of Education in this action.

4. All documents and information obtained during discovery in this case shall be deemed "confidential." The parties and their counsel agree that no such documents or information shall be provided or disclosed to or shared with any third party for any purpose whatsoever. This provision shall not apply to third parties and to documents previously filed with the Commissioner of Education, but this shall not permit Petitioner or Petitioner's counsel to provide copies of such documents to third parties. Petitioner and her counsel further agree that none of them will use or will permit to be used in any other action or matter any information about the Respondents in this action which they obtained as a result of, during the course of or in connection with their involvement in this action. Petitioner shall not voluntarily assist third parties in the pursuit of litigation against Respondent.

5. The parties agree that any breach of any obligation under this Agreement will constitute a breach of this Agreement. In the event of a breach of this Agreement by one of the parties hereto, the breaching party shall pay a penalty to the non-breaching party to be established in the discretion of the Commissioner for a willful violation of any term of this Agreement. In the event that either party is required to commence an action in law or equity to enforce its rights under this Agreement and it prevails, the party against whom the action is brought shall be required to pay the prevailing party reasonable attomeys fees and costs in addition to any damages which may be recoverable.

6. It is understood that neither the execution of this Agreement nor any other action taken by the Respondent in connection with this settlement constitutes an admission by the Respondents or any other person or entity identified in the General Release and Waiver as a releasee, of any violation of any law, duty or obligation, or that any decision or action with respect to the employment of Petitioner was unwarranted, unjustified, retaliatory, discriminatory or otherwise unlawful. The Respondent specifically disclaims any liability to Petitioner or any other person. The parties have entered into this Agreement solely to compromise disputed claims. No findings of any kind have been made or issued by the Commissioner on the merits of the claims in this action and neither party purports to be the prevailing party in this action.

7. The parties to the within lawsuit agree not to make disparaging statements concerning each other or to defame each other in any manner to any person or entity. The parties also agree not to authorize any person or entity to make any disparaging statements about each other to any person or entity.

8. All parties to this Agreement and their counsel participated in the negotiation and drafting of this Agreement as equals. No particular party shall be deemed to be the drafter or provider of this Agreement, and the parties agree that the Agreement shall not be construed against any particular party.

9. This Agreement and the General Release and Waiver referred to herein set forth the entire agreement between Petitioner and the Respondents. This Agreement supersedes all prior agreements or understandings, if any, between the parties regarding the subject matter of this Agreement.

10. Petitioner acknowledges that she has consulted with her attorney regarding this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver that accompanies it prior to executing it; that the terms of this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver have been explained to her by her attorney; and that she has represented to her attorney that she has read this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver and fully understands them and agrees to be bound by them. Petitioner has also acknowledged that she has been given a reasonable period of time within which to consider this settlement and the terms of this Agreement and General Release and Waiver prior to executing them.

11. Any notice or other communication under this Settlement Agreement shall be in writing and shall be considered given when mailed by regular mail or delivered personally, to the parties at the following addresses:

or at such other address as a party may specify by notice to the other.

14. Nothing contained herein or in the Release shall be intended to bar either party from initiating such action as may be necessary to enforce the terms of this Settlement Agreement.

15. Conditioned upon the entry of an initial decision and the Commissioner's approval of this Settlement Agreement without modification, the parties will submit a stipulation of dismissal with prejudice and without costs.

Record Closed: May 3, 2010 Decided: May 4, 2010

BEFORE DENNIS P. BLAKE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The parties agree with the accuracy of the transmittal forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law dated April 28, 2010, which reads as follows:

Emergent relief requested. Petitioner seeks immediate enforcement of rights under settlement approved by commissioner. Matter deemed appropriate as a contested case pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-3.1(b) by virtue of both subject matter and prior determination of remand by Superior Court.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 10, 2009, the Commissioner of Education approved a Settlement Agreement which was embodied in an OAL Decision Approving Settlement dated July 2, 2009. Petitioner filed a verified complaint and order to show cause in Superior Court on February 16, 2010. On April 12, 2010, Hon. Mary Colalillo, JSC, granted respondent's motion to transfer the matter to the Commissioner of Education. On April 28, 2010, the Commissioner transmitted the petition to the Office of Administrative Law. The matter was scheduled for hearing on May 3, 2010, heard on that date and the record closed.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner seeks to enforce two provisions of the Stipulation of Settlement which was approved by the Commissioner of Education on September 10, 2009. This Stipulation had the effect of withdrawing tenure charges filed against the petitioner and reinstating him with no further action to be taken. Paragraph three of the Settlement reads as follows:

Reassignment

Upon approval of this settlement by the Commissioner, the Board shall immediately reinstate the respondent and reassign respondent to a teaching position within the scope of his certificate and endorsement at the District's Beck Middle School; Provided, however, that in the event a staff position vacancy within the scope of respondent's certificate and endorsement occurs at the District's Rosa Middle > School prior to September 1, 2009, then respondent will be assigned to such position instead. (See petitioner's petition to enforce rights Exhibit A, page 2).

Paragraph five embodies the second issue to be addressed in this hearing. That reads as follows:

> Applications for extra curricular assignments
> Upon approval of this agreement by the Commissioner, and continuing thereafter, respondent shall have the same right as all other district staff to apply for and potentionally be appointed to any coaching or extra-curricular positions in the District. The Board makes no guarantee or representation that respondent will be appointed to any extra-curricular position for which he makes application. (Ibid at page three)

Petitioner argues in this petition that respondent violated the settlement agreement by failing to appoint him to an alleged vacancy that occurred at the Rosa Middle School prior to September 1, 2009. Petitioner was not advised of the existence of this alleged vacancy prior to September 1, 2009, and alleges that he should have been and, further, that the assignment should have been his. However, the settlement document was not approved by the Commissioner of Education until September 10, 2009, ten days after the operative day for the reassignment to Rosa Middle School. Thus, I FIND that a question of fact exists with respect to the ability of respondent to assign petitioner to any alleged vacancy at Rosa Middle School at a time beyond the operative date noted in the settlement document. Additionally, respondent argues that a vacancy did not existence for a position within the scope of petitioner's certificate. It argues that it merely effected an intra-school transfer between two teachers which did not result in a vacancy. Respondent argues that a vacancy would have been created only if a teacher requested reassignment or resigned. Here, respondent argues that it merely transferred two teachers at Rosa, both of whom remain on Rosa's staff. Based on these submissions by counsel, I FIND that a question of fact does exist with respect whether or not an actual vacancy did occur within the time parameters set forth in the settlement agreement.

With respect to the application for extra-curricular assignments, petitioner argues that the respondent has acted in bad faith in refusing to appoint petitioner to any extra-curricular assignment, even a voluntary, no-pay assignment. Petitioner argues that such a refusal violates the settlement as it deals with such extra-curricular assignments. However, respondent points out that it is within its rights under the settlement agreement since the section dealing with applications for extra-curricular activities concludes,; "The Board makes no guarantee or representation that respondent (sic) will be appointed to any extra curricular position for which he makes application."

The legal standard for the issuance of an Emergent Relief Order as requested by petitioner in this matter is covered by N.J.A.C. 1:6A-.12.1(e) which would grant petitioner emergent relief only if the following criteria are satisfied:

1.) The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2.) The legal underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3.) The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim;
4.) When the equities and the interests are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

In this matter, petitioner argues that he will suffer irreparable harm if the settlement agreement is not enforced. He bases this on two arguments: 1. That he is entitled to an appointment to the allegedly vacant position at Rosa Middle School, and 2. respondent has acted in bad faith in not assigning him to extra-curricular activities. Even assuming that petitioner was entitled to an appointment to the Rosa Middle School, he has failed to establish in any way that he has suffered irreparable harm by not getting that assignment. He acknowledges that he is working full time within the scope of his certificate. Thus, he has not suffered any financial loss. Moreover, he has not established in any fashion any other deprivation that stems from his placement in another building. Thus, he clearly has failed to prove irreparable harm from the continuation of his assignment at the Beck Middle School.

With respect to whether or not petitioner's claim for relief as sought in this petition is settled, reference to the lack of proof of irreparable harm, the question of the effective date of the settlement agreement and the lack of a guarantee of extra-curricular appointments makes it clear that his legal right to any such relief is not settled. Thus, prongs two and three of the emergent relief standard have not been established, since the same evidentiary issues prevent a finding that he is likely to prevail on the merits of the underlying claim. Lastly, I FIND that petitioner has not established that when the equities and the interest of the parties are balanced in this matter that he will suffer greater harm than the respondent. Indeed, at this hearing, he has not established any harm that he is suffering other than his preference for working at another building within the district.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's request for emergent relief in this matter must be denied. However, based on petitioner's argument that without a ruling on the merits in this matter within the immediate future there will be no resolution to his case prior to the 2010/2011 school year, I request that the clerk's office schedule a hearing in this matter as soon as possible.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that petitioner's request for Emergent Relief in this matter is hereby DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF SANTO DAVID LINTON, CENTRAL JERSEY COLLEGE PREP CHARTER SCHOOL, SOMERSET COUNTY.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In March 2010, the petitioning charter school served an Order to Show Cause upon respondent, requiring him to show cause why an order should not be entered suspending his certificate – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 – for resigning his position as a full-time social studies teacher without providing the notice required by his contract. The respondent failed to answer the order. Respondent was duly advised that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e), failure to respond would cause each allegation in petitioner's papers to be deemed admitted, and might result in summary decision by the Commissioner.

There being no response to the order to show cause, the Commissioner concluded that the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted, and are sufficient to justify suspension of respondent's certification. Accordingly, summary decision is granted to petitioner, and respondent's certificate is suspended for a period of one year from the date of the filing of this decision – a copy of which has been forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating this order.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 50-3/10

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF SANTO DAVID LINTON, CENTRAL JERSEY COLLEGE PREP CHARTER SCHOOL, SOMERSET COUNTY.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For Petitioner, Brenda C. Liss (Riker, Danzig, Scherer, Hyland and Perritti, LLP)

No appearance by or on behalf of respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on March 17, 2010, by way of an Order to Show Cause served by petitioner (Central Jersey College Prep Charter School) upon respondent (Santo David Linton), requiring respondent to show cause why an order should not be entered suspending his teaching certificate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for resigning without giving the notice required by his contract with petitioner. By notice dated March 18, 2010, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (Bureau) acknowledged receipt of proof that the Order to Show Cause had been served upon respondent, and directed respondent to answer within 20 days.

No answer having yet been received, the Bureau sent respondent a final notice on April 13, 2010 – via regular and certified mail – directing that he file an answer within ten days. The notice advised that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e), failure to answer would cause each allegation in petitioner's papers to be deemed admitted, and might result in summary decision by the Commissioner. The notice sent by certified mail was returned by the postal service as unclaimed; however, the notice sent by regular mail was not returned, and no answer to the Order to Show Cause has been filed as of this date.

Having reviewed the affidavit submitted by the petitioner in this matter – which states that respondent resigned mid-year on one day's notice, with no prior indication that such action was contemplated and no provision for continuation of student instruction until a replacement was found – and noting that respondent has not denied the allegations therein, the Commissioner deems such allegations deemed admitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e) and further deems them sufficient to justify suspension of respondent's teaching certification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to petitioner, and respondent's teaching certification is suspended for a period of one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners challenged the respondent Board's decision not to renew a preschool program contract with A Little Class, Inc., as well as the Department's approval of the Board's non-renewal decision. The Board moved for summary decision, asserting that it had facilities to educate the thirty Neptune preschool children previously attending A Little Class's program and that it could do so in a more fiscally and administratively efficient manner.

The ALJ found that: there were no genuine issues of material fact, and the matter was ripe for summary decision; the Board's decision to non-renew petitioners' contract was based upon legitimate financial and administrative considerations and complied with the mandates of the School Funding Reform Act (SFRA) and its implementing regulations; there is substantial evidence to support the findings on which the non-renewal decision was based; accordingly, the respondent's decision was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; and the Department appropriately based its approval on the Board's demonstrated ability to serve all of its preschool children in district facilities and the resulting savings in preschool education aid. The ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ, finding no cause to disturb either the Board's determination not to renew the contract at issue or the Department's approval thereof, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in the matter.

V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY, AND THE NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have petitioners' exceptions and the replies of the Neptune Township Board of Education (Board) and Department of Education (Department), each duly filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In their exceptions, petitioners urge the Commissioner to reject the decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on grounds that it: 1) upholds, without explanation, a Department determination based on palpably erroneous factual conclusions as to cost efficiency; 2) reduces the quality and diversity of preschool education in Neptune in violation of applicable law; 3) improperly relies on evidence beyond the scope of the permissible record; and 4) creates a "cost to absorb" test that is neither justified by regulation nor relevant to the Department determination under review. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 1-2)

Specifically, petitioners contend that the decision to terminate their contract cannot be found to be supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record so as to satisfy the standard (correctly) set forth by the ALJ, reiterating their consistent stance that the Department's decision affirming the Board's action was fatally flawed because it relied on "information unrelated to reality" – that is, on a comparison of the respective State aid subsidies payable for in-district versus private providers, which it "mistook" for the per pupil costs of Neptune's program versus that of petitioners – rather than on actual or budgeted costs. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 2-5) They further renew their contention that the only reasonable conclusion to be drawn from the sole actual cost figure on record for the Board's program – the 2007-08 per pupil cost of $16,701.00 as stated in the Department's School Report Card – is that petitioners can educate Neptune's preschoolers more economically and efficiently than can the Board. (Id. at 5-6)

Petitioners additionally reiterate that termination of their contract is contrary to the spirit of regulations emphasizing high quality education through competition and use of a mixed delivery system, and that it will, in fact, reduce the quality of education available to Neptune preschool students. Asserting that the Board, the Department and the ALJ "have all taken the position that elimination of a great education is acceptable because the district can provide an education that, while inferior, is good enough," petitioners proffer that the Department's decision does not even reference quality of education – notwithstanding that their program undisputedly scored higher (6.4 out of a possible 7.0) than the Board's (5.67 out of 7.0) on the 2008-09 Early Childhood Environment Rating Scale (ECERS-R) evaluation representing the average of 43 items indicative of the quality of education – and they urge wholesale rejection of any implication that "a preschool education only needs to meet a certain [arbitrarily selected] standard of quality above which differences in quality can be ignored." (Petitioners' Exceptions at 6-7)

Petitioners also object, as they did before the ALJ, to any consideration being accorded to either the Department's statements in the present proceeding regarding program quality or the Board's late-coming representation – which was not before the Department when it rendered its decision – that the only additional costs associated with Board absorption of the students previously attending petitioners' program would be the salaries and benefits of two teachers and two paraprofessionals, estimated at $200,000 or $6,666.67 per pupil. According to petitioners, the Board's figure ignores the costs of transportation, meals, supplies and additional facility burdens, and is "nothing more than an arbitrary number" found nowhere in the record and created by the Board "as a last ditch effort to support the unsupportable." Petitioners contend that the Department's decision approving the Board's action rested solely on a comparison of State aid figures and must be reviewed as such, and that the Initial Decision should not have "improperly expanded the record, created its own rationale and rubber stamped the arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable termination of [petitioners'] contract." (Petitioners' Exceptions at 7-9)

Finally, petitioners assert that the "cost to absorb" standard embodied in the Initial Decision is nowhere to be found in applicable law, and that acceptance of it would also be counterproductive as a matter of policy. Petitioners explain that adding a small group of students to a large, high-cost facility may, indeed, have a minimal impact on the facility's overall costs; however, if "cost to absorb" is the measure by which such changes are judged, smaller facilities can one by one be consumed by a larger facility even if comparison of their actual budgets reveals that the smaller schools are more efficient and that greater savings would result from elimination of the larger school. Ignoring actual costs per pupil in favor of comparisons based on the cost to a large in-district school of consuming a private provider or smaller school, petitioners opine, will increase the ultimate cost of preschool education while simultaneously eliminating school choice. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 9-10)

In reply, the Board counters that the rules governing nonrenewal of preschool program contracts at N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-9.3 provide solely for the Board's written notice of nonrenewal and the provider's written notice of dispute therewith – with additional information to be submitted only if requested by the Department – and make no provision for establishment of a record through discovery, production of documents, hearings or other like procedures – clearly contemplating that such a record, if necessary, will be developed on appeal to the Commissioner. The Board further asserts that the record thus developed supports its determination to terminate petitioners' contract on grounds of costs savings, and is devoid of any papers, discovery or affidavits supporting petitioners' position that the referenced difference in ECERS-R scores evidences a reduction in the quality of education; in this latter regard, the Board additionally notes that no affidavits or other competent evidential materials were offered to challenge the affidavit of Director of Early Childhood Education Ellen Wolock attesting that both petitioners and the Board provided quality programs and that the Board's fiscal practices and classroom quality were sound. Finally, the Board contends that petitioners do not identify the regulation(s) the ALJ purportedly failed to apply in accepting the Board's "cost to absorb" argument, nor do they cite the authorities on which they rely for their own position as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(b)(3) when taking exception to an ALJ's conclusions of law. (Board's Reply at 1-4)

The Department, in turn, reiterates that its determination to affirm the Board's decision not to renew petitioners' contract cannot be held arbitrary and capricious, since the record on which it was based – itemized in full in the Certification of Ellen Wolock

(Exhibit R-3) – provided no justification for denial of the Board's request and demonstrated to the Department's satisfaction that: 1) petitioners' and the Board's programs were both of sound quality, 2) there was ample in-district classroom space within which to serve the 30 students at issue, and 3) the Board could serve these students more efficiently based on statutory Preschool Education Aid (PEA) amounts. [1] (Department's Reply at 2-4) In this latter regard, the Department reiterates that petitioners persist in misunderstanding the School Funding Reform Act of 2008 (SFRA), P.L. 2008, c. 260, which prescribes that a board is entitled to PEA in an amount determined by multiplying standardized per pupil amounts derived from actual budgets submitted by in-district programs and private providers – in this instance, $12,092 in 2009-10 for all Monmouth County in-district programs and $13,593 for all Monmouth County private providers – by the projected general education preschool enrollment, and provides no mechanism for recoupment based on individualized costs other than adjustment in the subsequent budget year to reflect actual enrollment as of October 15 of the year for which aid is given; thus, if the Board educated petitioners' 30 students in-district, the State would save approximately $45,030. (Id. at 4-6)

Upon review, the Commissioner is unpersuaded by petitioners' exceptions and adopts the Initial Decision as set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects petitioners' contention that the ALJ decided this matter on an improperly expanded record. Petitioners assert that their burden lies solely in refuting the reasons for approval specifically stated in the Department's written letter to the Board, so that the Department and Board cannot be permitted to build a record on appeal in an attempt to fabricate post facto justifications for their actions. The Commissioner finds, however, that no such attempt has occurred in this instance; to the contrary, the Department has done nothing more than identify the documents and information it took into consideration when reviewing the Board's request and provide a detailed explanation of the process and rationale by which it arrived at its stated conclusions,[2] while the additional cost information provided by the Board was offered not as retroactive justification for its decision to nonrenew petitioners' contract, but specifically in response to petitioners' central claims – made before both the Department and the OAL and properly considered by the ALJ based on the record developed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 – that comparison of actual costs, rather than PEA amounts, is the correct measure of efficiency to be applied in this matter, and that the Board's actual costs are significantly higher than their own. (See Brief and Appendix in Support of Motion for Summary Decision at 20-21; also Exhibits J-1 at 3, P-1 at 8, P-4 at 3.)

[1]The Department also asserts that it did not present an after-the-fact supplement to its reasoning upon review of the Board's application, but rather a fuller explanation thereof. The Department further adds that it does not, when reviewing nonrenewal requests, engage in a balancing test of which provider has the better program, but whether a request is appropriate in light of all the existing circumstances. (Department's Reply at 6-7)

The Commissioner further rejects petitioners' contention that it was improper or unreasonable for respondents to rely on PEA amounts to conclude that nonrenewal of petitioners' contract would result in cost savings. As respondents correctly observe, the Board is required to provide universal preschool and as such is entitled under the SFRA – independent of its actual program costs – to a fixed amount of State aid to support preschool programs, with any difference between petitioners' actual tuition charge and the private provider aid amount returnable to the district without recoupment by the Department; moreover, the documents considered by the Department (notably Exhibit R-7) support the Board's representation that its 2009-2010 preschool program budget did not exceed the amount of such aid. Consequently, in this instance, PEA amounts and the per pupil cost of a budgeted in-district program are effectively the same, so that the Board was neither mistaken nor unreasonable in contending – and the Department neither mistaken nor unreasonable in concluding – that a substantial sum would be saved by allowing the Board to serve students in-district so that its aid would be based on the in-district amount of $12,092 per pupil rather than the private provider amount of $13,593.

With respect to petitioners' objection to the ALJ's purported adoption of an unfounded and unacceptable "cost to absorb" standard, the Commissioner finds that the Initial Decision neither creates any such standard nor turns on this factor as suggested by petitioners, instead merely summarizing (at 4) the Board's calculation – introduced, as noted above, not as justification for the decisions on appeal, but in response to petitioners' continued press for "actual" versus "unreal" numbers – as part of its background discussion and basing its conclusions (at 5-7) on the justifications actually provided by the Board and Department. However, notwithstanding that neither the Board nor the Department relied on "cost to absorb" in the decisions herein on appeal, its introduction into this proceeding as a result of petitioners' claims compels the Commissioner to observe that: 1) petitioners' contention that consideration of this factor will increase program costs in the long run is purely speculative – unsupported by anything in the evidential record[3] and belied by the fact that the Department considers the totality of circumstances in reviewing each individual request for nonrenewal of a provider contract; and 2) the circumstances reviewed in this matter – including the existence of State-built and funded facilities having unused space and an established program already successfully serving the vast majority of the district's preschool population within a sound administrative and operational framework – support the reasonableness of any conclusion that it would be more efficient to integrate petitioners' students into the existing district program than to continue paying the sum of 30 individual tuitions to a private provider and being responsible for the substantial administrative oversight required of districts utilizing such providers to deliver public preschool services.

[3] The Commissioner concurs with respondents that petitioners' reliance on the per pupil cost set forth in the School Report Card is misplaced, since that amount reflects comprehensive pre-K through 12 program costs district-wide, and additionally predates enactment of the SFRA and its related accounting practices.

Finally, the Commissioner cannot agree with petitioners' assertion that the Board's nonrenewal of their contract must be overturned because it reduces the quality and diversity of preschool education in the district. The Board did not base its request to nonrenew on the quality of petitioners' program – which, as has been stated repeatedly throughout this proceeding, is not in question – and the record is clear that the Department was well acquainted with both petitioners' and the Board's programs and judged both to be of sound quality based on experience and a variety of measures; petitioners offer no support whatsoever for their contention that, in itself alone, a difference in 2008-09 ECERS-R scores made it unreasonable or unlawful for the Department not to have weighed relative program quality in assessing the Board's request – particularly where the scores at issue (5.67 and 6.4, respectively) both fall within the "very good" range between 5 (good) and 7 (excellent). Additionally, since the promulgation in June 2008 of regulations implementing the SFRA and eliminating the former prohibition against the Board's duplication of programs or services otherwise available in the community, lack of delivery through a mix of private and public providers could no longer serve, as it did in the past, as a basis on which the Department could properly deny the Board's request to nonrenew petitioners' contract.

Consequently, like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb either the Board's determination not to renew its contract with petitioners or the Department's approval thereof, both decisions having been established in this proceeding as in all respects reasonable, lawful and supported by competent evidence.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated therein and above, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

BEFORE DONALD J. STEIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arises from respondent Neptune Board of Education's (Neptune) decision not to renew a preschool program contract with A Little Class Inc. (petitioner), a private provider, and respondent Department of Education, Division of Early Childhood's (Department) approval of Neptune's non-renewal decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 29, 2009, petitioners filed an application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education. On the same day, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on the requested emergent relief. On July 8, 2009, the application for emergent relief was denied. The factual findings are adopted herein (J-1).

On February 9, 2010, Neptune filed a motion for summary decision. On February 26, 2010, the petitioners filed a reply brief. On March 3, 2010, the Department filed a response. On March 10, 2010, oral argument was heard in the OAL, Trenton (Hamilton Township). After the hearing the parties requested additional time to submit additional documentation. On March 26, 2010, Neptune filed a certification. On April 1, 2010, petitioners filed a response and the record closed.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Petitioners have been engaged in the education of preschool children since 1982 and are a private provider of preschool education in Neptune Township. Kim Notte is the President and Executive (P-1).

Since the 2001-2002 school year, Neptune has contracted with the petitioners to provide a quality preschool education for approximately thirty of the resident children of Neptune Township since the inception of the Abbott Preschool Program in Neptune in September 2001 (P-1). The last contract between the petitioners and Neptune ran from July 1, 2008 through June 30, 2009 (P-2).

Neptune attempted to not renew the contract with the petitioners for the 2007-2008 and 2008-2008 school years, but each year the Department of Education issued a determination that the Board's non-renewal violated N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2, which prohibited the duplication of services and ordered the Board to continue to contract with petitioners for the 2007-2008 school year (P-1).

On February 12, 2009, and April 28, 2009, Neptune notified petitioners that it would not renew its contract for the 2009-2010 school year, alleging that the regulations (N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-3.1) require districts to contract with the most cost efficient preschool education providers (P-3, P-4).

On June 16, 2009, the Department affirmed Neptune's decision not to renew the contract with petitioners on the basis that Neptune has demonstrated the ability to serve all of its preschool children in district facilities, and that Neptune can serve its preschool students more efficiently than the petitioners (R-1). The Department agreed with Neptune's assertion that the cost per student in Neptune was $12,092 for the 2009-2010 school year as opposed to the petitioners' cost of $13,593. Petitioners assert that their cost is $12,587 per pupil (P-1, P-5). They further assert that Neptune's per pupil cost is far in excess of $12,092 (P-1).

Neptune gives several reasons for their decision. First, Neptune stated that the 2009-2010 preschool budget for the private providers is $13,593 per pupil, while Neptune is authorized to spend $12,092 for preschoolers, representing a $1,500 per pupil savings. Second, there are savings having Neptune administer and supervise the program. Third, Neptune now has the capacity to house all eligible preschoolers and no longer needs to rely on private providers for space outside the district school buildings. Fourth, there were added financial and administrative burdens on Neptune of overseeing petitioners' fiscal records and the educational burden of ensuring that teachers and teacher assistants meet regulatory standards. Fifth, Neptune has in place accountability measures and an administrative structure for their Neptune personnel to ensure effective oversight of the quality of the preschool program, the staff's credentials, and the timely implementation of improvement measures.

Neptune asserts that it would cost far less to bring the thirty Little Class students in-district. They have new facilities and two classrooms available. They would place fifteen students in each classroom. Since the facility is already open and operating, the only additional cost would be the salaries and benefits for two teachers and two paraprofessionals, estimated to be $200,000. This would amount to a cost of $6,666.67 per student. Alternatively, petitioners' cost to Neptune, based on their figure of $12,587, would be $377,608 (R-2). Neptune further asserts that more expense is required to administer this program.

Ellen Wolock is the Director of the New Jersey Department of Education, Division of Early Childhood Education. She has been directly involved in the review and determination regarding Neptune's request not to renew its preschool program contract with petitioners for the 2009-2010 school year as well as the 2007-2008 and 2008-2009 years (R-3).

She reviewed numerous documentation and consulted with the District's Early Childhood Supervisor, Kathleen Thompson. The quality of petitioners' program was not in question and their 2008-2009 Master Teacher ECERS-R total was above a 6.0. The Neptune score was 5.67 (R-5). The total overall ECERS-R score represents an average of the scores of the forty-three items included in the instrument. A one rating indicates inadequate quality, three indicates minimal quality, five indicates good quality, and seven indicates excellent quality (R-3).

She and her staff believed that the petitioners and the District both provided a quality program. She concluded that the District provided a quality program based on the following: 1) the District's overall 2008-2009 Master Teacher ECERS-R score of 5.67(R-5); 2) the Early Learning Improvement Consortium Report provided by Dr. Holly Seplocha from William Paterson University (R-6); 3) the District's Five-Year Preschool Program Plan, which established that the District would be able to meet the needs of its students without contracting with the petitioners (R-4); and 4) the District's 2009-2010 District Budget Planning Worksheet (R-7), which confirmed that the District had budgeted for two additional teachers and two additional teacher aides to ensure that the District would be employing the required staff to serve the students from Petitioners.

She further indicated that the program quality was not initially discussed because it had already been determined that both programs were of sound quality. She did not believe the quality of education was an issue.

Petitioners assert that the in-district provider is more costly on a per pupil basis than they are. Petitioners further assert that they provide a superior education as compared to that of Neptune, and provide greater services to a portion of the Neptune Township community (P-5).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The facts in this matter are not in dispute. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5(b) and Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

On October 8, 2009, the Department adopted regulations requiring school districts to implement high-quality preschool programs as a condition of receipt of preschool education aid under the School Funding Reform Act (SFRA). N.J.S.A. 6A:13A-1.1 to -11.3. A school district may offer a high-quality preschool program within a mixed delivery system that includes in-district, private provider and local Head Start agency settings. N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-3.1(c)(9).

Thus, a school district may choose to contract with private providers and local Head Start agencies to provide high-quality preschool services. N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-9.1. A school district must annually execute the preschool program contract provided by the DOE with all contracting private providers and local Head Start agencies. N.J.A.C.

6A:13A-9.1(c). The school district shall notify any private provider or local Head Start agency, the Department of Education, Division of Early Childhood Education and the Department of Children and Families, Office of Licensing in writing on or before May 1 of each contract year if the school districts intends not renew the preschool program contract for an additional one-year term. N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-9.3(a)(1)(i). Any school district notification of non-renewal shall follow the protocol established by the Division of Early Childhood Education and detail justifiable reason(s) for non-renewal of the preschool program contract. Ibid. The Department shall affirm or deny the non-renewal decision, and the non-renewal decision may be appealed to the Commissioner of the DOE. N.J.A.C. 6A:13A-9.3(iii)-(vii).

In a case in which a school district makes a discretionary decision, the decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Parsippany-Troy Hills Educ. Assoc. v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 188 N.J. Super. 161, 167 (App. Div. 1983), certif. denied, Parsippany-Troy Hills Educ. Assoc. v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 94 N.J. 527 (1983). Under this standard, three factors must be considered: (1) whether Neptune's actions violated the SFRA's express or implied legislative policies; (2) whether there is substantial evidence in the record to support the findings on which non-renewal decision was based; and (3) whether, in applying the legislative policies to the facts, Neptune clearly erred by reaching a conclusion that could not reasonably have been made on a showing of the relevant facts. In Re Warren, 117 N.J. 295, 296-7 (1989) (citing Campbell v. Dep't of Civil Service, 39 N.J. 556, 562 (1963)); Edison Twp. Bd. of Ed. V. Edison Twp. Principals and Supervisors Ass'n, 304 N.J. Super. 459, 463-4 (App. Div. 1997) (citing In Re Musick, 143 N.J. 206, 216-17 (1996)).

Neptune's non-renewal decision was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Instead, Neptune's decision was justified and complied with the mandates of the SFRA and its implementing regulations. The non-renewal was in accordance with the express legislative policy of the SFRA and there is substantial evidence to support the findings on which the non-decision was based. The purpose of the SFRA is to provide students in poor urban school districts with a thorough and efficient education. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44. Neptune provided several reasons not to renew the contract with the petitioners based upon financial and administrative considerations in order to provide its students with a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, I FIND that Neptune did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner and that its non-renewal decision was justified.

The Department considered Neptune's February 12, 2009, letter to the petitioners, the petitioners' February 23, 2009, letter disputing the non-renewal decision, Neptune's April 28, 2009, letter to the petitioners providing reasons for the non-renewal decision, and the petitioners' May 10, 2009, response letter attaching its 2009-2010 Budget Planning Worksheet, the 2007-2008 School Report Card for Neptune's Early Childhood Center, a list of districts with preschool students attending private provider programs, and a Child Care Center License. The Department based its approval on Neptune's demonstrated ability to serve all of its preschool children in district facilities. The Department did not find that Neptune could not provide a thorough and efficient education to its preschool students. There were no facts presented to dispute the certification from Ellen Wolock that Neptune provided a quality education to their students.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the Neptune Board of Education's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. Petitioners' appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RECORD PARTIALLY SEALED

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FREDERICK W. CLAYTON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION ON REMAND

The Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the parties' revised settlement agreement, and the record of this matter have been reviewed, mindful of the concerns raised by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and Commissioner in rejecting the parties' prior proposal.

Upon review of the revised agreement and record on remand, the Commissioner, like the ALJ, now finds the parties' proposed settlement consistent with established standards for settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, decided by the Commissioner of Education April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990, codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL recommending approval of the settlement agreement is adopted as the final decision in this matter, which is hereby dismissed subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.*

* In this regard, the parties are again reminded that, except to the extent they are sealed by order of the ALJ or Commissioner – as has been a portion of the record in this case pursuant to the ALJ's order of April 23, 2010 – tenure proceedings are a matter of public record pursuant to New Jersey's Open Public Records Act, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1 et seq., as is the following employment information:

> An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service, date of separation and the reason therefor, and the amount and type of any pension received . (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 47:1A-10

A copy of this decision – together with respondent's original certificate and his affidavit relinquishing same (Exhibit C) – shall be transmitted forthwith to the State Board of Examiners for action pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.11.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FREDERICK W. CLAYTON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.

Nicholas J. Repici, Esq., for the petitioner (Genova, Burns & Vernoia, attorneys)

Brian J. Manetta, Esq., for the respondent, (Mets, Schiro & McGovern, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 30, 2010 Decided: April 23, 2010

BEFORE: ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ

The prior procedural history of this tenure removal matter as set forth in my November 9, 2009, Order denying approval of settlement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, is incorporated herein by reference and attached hereto as exhibit C-1. After former Commissioner Lucille E. Davy, issued her December 17, 1009, Decision on Motion (C-2), adopting my order as a Final Decision, the matter was remanded for further hearing or for the parties to submit a settlement in accordance with the former Commissioner's directive. In her Decision on Motion, the former Commissioner noted:

> Consequently – finding that the proposed settlement's only real benefit to the Board and public is avoidance of the uncertainty, expense, disruption and potential for embarrassment that nearly always accompany tenure proceedings on charges of unbecoming conduct, particularly those touching on students – the Commissioner finds the minimum condition necessary for its approval is relinquishment by the respondent, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A: 9-17.11, of all certificates issued to him by the Board of Examiners.

Although the former Commissioner indicated in her decision that "nothing (t)herein is intended to preclude continued bifurcation of the tenure charges" as the Administrative Law Judge previously hearing this matter had decided, I advised counsel that as the presiding judge over a tenure case I was not in favor of any bifurcation. As a result, the matter proceeded to hearing on all the certified tenure charges on January 20, 2010. The petitioner's key witness who is retired and living in California was not available to testify until March 2, 2010. During the continued hearing of March 2, 2010, the parties advised they had reached a settlement, subject to approval, that would meet the former Commissioner's settlement criteria, i.e., a relinquishment of all certificates issued to him by the Board of Examiners.

Counsel has submitted a fully executed settlement agreement with five exhibits attached. Exhibit A consists of a copy of the tenure charges. Exhibit B consists of respondent's answer to the tenure charges. Exhibit C consists of the respondent's affidavit submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(e) and N.J.A.C. 6A:17.11 and the original, and only, certificate issued by the Board of Examiners. The final exhibits, although not delineated as such, consist of the certification of David Shafter, Interim School Business Administrator/Board Secretary of the Board of Education of the city of Camden, annexing an extract from the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Education held on March 9, 2010, approving the within settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures. Additionally, I note that on March 2, 2010, after the petitioner completed the case in chief, the respondent advised he decided to not defend the within matter any further but to resign and relinquish the only certificate issued him by the Board of Examiners. The respondent was then placed under oath and submitted to voir dire on the voluntariness of his decision. Based upon his testimony before me, I FIND and CONCLUDE the respondent fully understood his decision, was not under any duress and had not been promised anything further than what is included in the attached settlement, the essential terms of which were placed on the record on March 2, 2010.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, and satisfies the former Commissioner's minimum condition necessary as indicated in her December 17, 2009, Decision on Motion, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.[1]

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Release (hereinafter referred to as the "Agreement") is entered into this 9th day of March, 2010 between the Camden City Board of Education (hereinafter, "the Board" or "the Employer") and Frederick W. Clayton (hereinafter referred to as "Clayton" or "the Employee") (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the parties").

WHEREAS, Clayton is employed by the Employer as a tenured Guidance Counselor; and

WHEREAS, the Board proffered tenure charges against Clayton on or about October 5, 2006; and the pending appeal at the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"), specifically Docket No.: EDUTH 12196-2006; and

WHEREAS, the Board certified seven (7) charges against Clayton, alleging the following: 1) Clayton was guilty of neglect of duty for failing to maintain the official transcripts of students at Brimm Medical Arts High School ("Brimm"); 2) Clayton was guilty of conduct unbecoming a Board employee for failing to carry out his responsibility of maintaining the accuracy of student report cards; 3) Clayton was guilty of conduct unbecoming for making, directing, contributing, or in any other way permitting his office to maintain a second, fraudulent set of student transcripts; 4) Clayton was guilty of conduct unbecoming for directing, contributing, or in any other way permitting his office to forward the second set of transcripts to colleges and universities; 5) Clayton was guilty of fraud, deceit and misrepresentation for applying, accepting, and maintaining the position of Principal at Brimm despite not holding the requisite Principal's Certificate; 6) Clayton was guilty of insubordination for failing to report to a scheduled meeting with the Principal at Brimm; and 7) Clayton is guilty of insubordination for his failure to cooperate with the internal investigation with respect to the allegations of student grade changes, transcript discrepancies and production of the second set of student transcripts; and

WHEREAS, the Statement of Charges is attached hereto as Exhibit A; and

WHEREAS, on or about December 15, 2006, Clayton filed an Answer and Affirmative Defenses to those charges, denying the factual allegations set forth by the Board; and

WHEREAS, a copy of Clayton's Answer and Affirmative Defenses is attached hereto as Exhibit B; and

WHEREAS, on December 17, 2009, Commissioner of Education, Lucille E. Davy, issued a final administrative decision deny approval of the settlement initially proposed by the parties' in this matter, finding that the settlement failed to comply with the established standards for the settlement of tenure matters as set forth by In re Cardonick and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6. See In re Clayton, Agency Dkt No. 447-12/06, OAL Dkt No. 12196-06 on Remand, OAL Dkt No. Edu 10684-08, Comm'r Dec. on Motion, 415-09M (Dec. 17, 2009); and

WHEREAS, in her decision, Commissioner Davy held that "the minimum condition necessary for [settlement] approval is relinquishment by [Clayton], pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.11, of all certificates issued to him by the Board of Examiners." Id. at 6; and

WHEREAS, in accordance with the terms of this Agreement, as set forth below, Clayton desires to voluntarily relinquish any and all certificates issued to him by the Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.11; and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration for the promises and conditions set forth herein, the Board and Clayton agree as follows:

1. TERMS

a. Clayton's employment with the Board shall terminate effective immediately upon the full execution of this Agreement by the parties (the "termination date"). Simultaneous with Clayton's execution of this Agreement, Clayton shall deliver an irrevocable letter of resignation. While the parties recognize that the Board certified tenure charges against Clayton, those charges have not been fully adjudicated and Clayton's resignation shall be recorded by the Board as a resignation in good standing;

b. The Board agrees to withdraw the tenure charges pending against Clayton, specifically those pending with the Commissioner of Education docketed as follows: Agency Dkt No. 447-12/06, OAL Dkt No. 12196-06 on Remand, OAL Dkt No. Edu 10684-08;

c. Clayton hereby agrees to voluntarily relinquish any and all certificate(s) issued to him by the New Jersey Board of Examiners. Attached hereto as Exhibit C is Clayton's executed affidavit of voluntary relinquishment, along with all certificates issued to him by the Board of Examiners. Clayton's affidavit of voluntary relinquishment and his certificates shall be forwarded to the Board of Examiners by the Commissioner of Education upon the Commissioner's approval of the Agreement in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(e) and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.11;

d. Within 30 days of the approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board agrees to pay Clayton $13,000.00 for his accumulated sick time in accordance with Article 12(e) of the parties' collective bargaining agreement. While Clayton is entitled to the maximum payment of $15,000.00 allowed under Article 12(e) for his accumulated sick time, he nevertheless agrees to the reduced sum of $13,000.00 in full and final settlement of this matter;

e. Except as explicitly set forth in Paragraph 1(d) above, Clayton agrees that he is not entitled to any payment of monies owed to him or any other benefits, including payment for any sum which he may have otherwise claimed entitlement to under a collective negotiations agreement or memorandum of agreement between the Board and his union.

2. MUTUAL RELEASE

a. Clayton, for himself and his heirs, executors, representatives, assigns, and all others claiming by or through any of them, hereby waives, remises, releases and forever discharges any and all claims, disputes, grievances, demands, actions, causes of action, and/or claims for damages, losses, expenses, fees, or other relief of any kind or nature whatsoever, either in law or in equity, whether direct or indirect, whether asserted or unasserted, and whether known or unknown, which Clayton, and/or her heirs, assigns, representatives, executors and any others claiming by or through him, have, may have had, or may hereinafter have against Board, its predecessors, successors, and affiliates and/or any of their respective past or present Board members or representatives or agents (collectively hereinafter the "Board Releasees"), which arise out of, result from or relate in any manner to Clayton's employment with the Board, his termination thereof, the execution of this Agreement, or by reason of any other matter whatsoever occurring prior to the execution of this Agreement, whether or not relating to employment, excepting therefrom any action for the enforcement of the terms of this Agreement. Clayton specifically waives, releases and forever discharges any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment with the Board based on any act, event or omission occurring before he executes this Agreement including, but not limited to, any claims which could be asserted now or in the future, under: common law, including, but not limited to, breach of express or implied duties, wrongful termination, defamation, or violation of public policy; any policies, practices, or procedures of the Board; any federal or state statutes or regulations including, but not limited to, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. §2000e et seq., the Civil Rights Act of 1866 and 1871, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 U.S.C. §621 et seq., the Americans With Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §12101 et seq., the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA"), 29 U.S.C. §1001 et seq., Equal Pay Act, 29 U.S.C. §206 et seq., Worker-Adjustment Retraining Notification Act, 29 U.S.C. §2101, et seq., National Labor Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. §151 et seq., Older Worker's Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. §621 et seq., New Jersey Family Leave Act, N.J.S.A. 34:11B-1 et seq., the Family and Medical Leave Act, §2601 et seq., the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.; the Conscientious Employee Protection Act, N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 to -8; any contract of employment, expressed or implied; any provision of the United States or New Jersey Constitutions; any provision of any other law, common or statutory, of the United States, the State of New Jersey or any other state.

b. Clayton agrees never to commence against the Board, or any other of the Board Releasees, any action based upon any claims which are the subject of this Agreement; provided, however, that nothing in this Agreement prevents him from filing, cooperating with, or participating in any proceeding before the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission or a state or local fair employment practices agency, except that he acknowledges and understands that he may not be able to recover any monetary benefits in connection with any such claim, charge or proceeding.

c. Clayton represents that there are no pending lawsuits, charges, or administrative proceedings, or other claims of any nature whatsoever by him against Board, pending in any state or federal court, or before any agency or other administrative body.

d. The Board, for itself and its heirs, executors, representatives, assigns, and all others claiming by or through it, hereby waive, remise, release and forever discharge any and all claims, which the Board, and/or its heirs, assigns, representatives, executors and any others claiming by or through it have or may have had against Clayton which arise out of, result from or relate in any manner to Clayton's employment with the Board, or otherwise, excepting therefrom any action for the enforcement of the terms of this Agreement. This Agreement shall not release claims for matters arising prior to or after the execution of this Agreement which are unrelated to Clayton's employment with Board

4. NON-DISPARAGEMENT

The Board and Clayton promise not to discredit or detract from the reputation of each other or libel or defame each other to any person(s) or entity(s) in any form of communication or media, including, but not limited to, oral, written, electronic, or digital forms, audio or visual communications or recordings, and printed materials. A breach of this paragraph is a material breach of this Agreement.

5. CONSULTATION WITH ATTORNEY

Clayton has consulted with his attorney with respect to this Agreement and reviewed with his attorney all the terms and conditions of this Agreement prior to executing this Agreement. Clayton agrees that he has received competent legal counsel and representation from his attorney.

6. COMPLETE AGREEMENT

This Agreement contains the entire agreement between Clayton and the Board with respect to the subject matter and supersedes all prior agreements or understandings dealing with the same subject matter. This Agreement shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed by the Laws of the State of New Jersey.

7. MODIFICATION

No modification or amendment of this Agreement will be enforceable unless it is in writing and signed by the party to be charged.

8. SEVERABILITY

Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by the Commissioner of Education or any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, the legality, validity, and enforceability of the remaining parts, terms or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal, unenforceable or invalid part, term or provision shall be deemed to be part of this Agreement.

9. CLAYTON ATTESTS

Clayton represents and warrants that he has carefully read each and every provision of this Agreement and that he fully understands all of the terms and conditions contained in each provision of this Agreement. Clayton represents and warrants that he enters into this Agreement voluntarily, of his own free will, without any pressure or coercion from any person or entity including but not limited to the Board.

10. REVIEW AND REVOCATION

Clayton understands and agrees that: (i) he shall have up to twenty-one (21) days from March 5, 2010, the date that he received this Agreement, to consider and sign it, and that he may take the entire 21-day period to do so; (ii) any changes to this Agreement, whether material or immaterial, will not restart the running of the 21-day period; (iii) if he does sign this Agreement, he may revoke it within seven (7) days after signing it by submitting a written notice to the Board, addressed to the attention of Nicholas J. Repici, Esquire, Genova, Burns & Vernoia, 2 Riverside Drive, Suite 502, Camden, New Jersey 08103, in such a manner that it is actually received within the 7-day period; and (iv) this Agreement will not become effective or enforceable until the end of this 7-day revocation period.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, and intending to be legally bound hereby, I, Frederick W. Clayton, executed the foregoing Agreement this 9th day of March, 2010.

FREDERICK W. CLAYTON

CAMDEN CITY
BOARD OF EDCUCATION

EXHIBIT A

STATEMENT OF CHARGES

I, Luis Pagan , Assistant Superintendent of Schools, do herewith charge that Mr. Frederick W. Clayton, employed by the Camden City Board of Education ("CCBOE") as Guidance Counselor from September 1, 1991 to August 18, 2003, as Acting High School Principal from August 18, 2003 to December 11, 2003, and again as Guidance Counselor from December 11, 2003 to present, is guilty of: 1) neglect of duty; 2) conduct unbecoming a Board employee; 3) insubordination; 4) fraud, deceit and misrepresentation; and, 5) other conduct unbecoming an employee so as to require his employment with the Board of Education of the City of Camden be terminated.

More particularly, it is charged that:

CHARGE NO. 1

Mr. Clayton, as Guidance Counselor at Brimm Medical Arts High School ("Brimm"), is guilty of neglect of duty for failing to carry out his responsibility of maintaining the official transcripts of the student body at Brimm. As Guidance Counselor, Mr. Clayton was the primary custodian of the official transcripts of the school's student body. Clayton failed to carry out his duty of maintaining the accuracy of said transcripts by allowing a continuous pattern of grade changes and other recording discrepancies to occur with respect to the transcripts during his tenure.

In accordance with CCBOE policy and procedure, official student transcripts are produced by a central computer system every August. See Certification of Assistant Superintendent Luis Pagan ("Pagan Certification"), Exhibit A. The official transcript lists a student's courses with the corresponding grades the student received for those particular courses. Pagan Certification, supra. A comprehensive review of official student transcripts for Brimm's Classes of 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, and 2006 reveals that nearly 200 grade changes and/or other discrepancies occurred in violation of CCBOE policy and procedure during Mr. Clayton's tenure with Brimm.

A review of the Class of 2002's official transcripts, alone, revealed 33 grade changes/discrepancies for the 1998-99 school year, 48 grade changes/discrepancies for the 1999-2000 school year, and 35 grade changes/discrepancies for the 2000-01 school year. See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2002, Exhibit B.

A cumulative review of the Classes of 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, and 2006 official transcripts revealed the following:

- Approximately 110 grade changes/discrepancies for the 2001-02 school year. See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2002, GRADE 12, Exhibit B; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2003, GRADE 11, Exhibit C; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2004, GRADE 10, Exhibit D; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2005, GRADE 9, Exhibit E.
- Approximately 62 grade changes/discrepancies for the 2002-03 school year. See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2003, GRADE 12, Exhibit C; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2004, GRADE 11, Exhibit D; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2005, GRADE 10, Exhibit E; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2006, GRADE 9, Exhibit F.
- Approximately a minimum[1] of 62 grade changes/discrepancies for the 2003-04 school year. See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2004, GRADE 12, Exhibit D; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2005, GRADE 11, Exhibit E; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2006, GRADE 10, Exhibit F.

- Approximately 2 grade changes/discrepancies for the 2004-05 school year.[2] See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2005, GRADE 12, Exhibit E; See RECORDS OF CLASS OF 2006, GRADE 11, Exhibit F.

Thus, Mr. Clayton failed in carrying out his duty of maintaining the official transcripts of the student body at Brimm. The above-referenced act is only one example of Clayton's neglect of duty as an employee in the Camden School District, which warrants his dismissal from his employment with the Camden School District.

CHARGE NO. 2

Mr. Clayton, as Guidance Counselor at Brimm, is guilty of neglect of duty for failing to carry out his responsibility of maintaining the accuracy of student report cards. As Guidance Counselor at Brimm, Mr. Clayton was the primary custodian of the student body's permanent records. Each Student's report card is placed in his/her permanent record. See Pagan Certification, supra. The grades on a student's report cards should mirror the grades on that student's official transcript. Id.

During Mr. Clayton's tenure with the Camden School District, numerous grade changes were made to students' report cards. Said grade changes were not made in accordance with Board policy and procedure, which provides: "In the event any grade is subsequently changed or modified, the teacher shall be so informed at that time. Whoever makes such a change shall clearly identify himself/herself by placing his/her name next to that grade on all records of that grade." See Exhibit G.

[1] Grade 9 records were not reviewed in the analysis of the 2003-04 grade change/discrepancies calculations.
[2] Grades 9 and 10 were not reviewed in the analysis of the 2004-05 grade change/discrepancies calculations.

From the 1998-99 school year to the 2003-04 school year, there were nearly 200 grade changes and/or other discrepancies on student report cards in the student body's permanent records at Brimm. See Exhibits B - E, supra. The grade changes were not made in accordance with CCBOE policy and procedure, as there is no indication of who made the hand-written grade changes.

Thus, Mr. Clayton failed in carrying out his duty of maintaining the accuracy of student report cards and permanent records. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's neglect of duty of as an employee in the Camden School District which warrants his dismissal from his employment with the Camden School District.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of conduct unbecoming for making, directing, contributing, or in any other way permitting his office to maintain a second, fraudulent set of student transcripts during his tenure at Brimm.

During Mr. Clayton's tenure at Brimm his office maintained two sets of student transcripts. As indicated above, students' official transcripts are generated by the CCBOE central computer system every August and placed into the students' permanent records. See Pagan Certification, supra. An internal investigation into allegations of grade changes at Brimm revealed that a second set of transcripts were being produced and recorded for Brimm students. See Pagan Certification, supra. This second set of transcripts, labeled Medical Arts High School Record ("MAHSR"), was being produced and stored on an independent computer which was not connected to Brimm's central computer system. Id.

Nearly 200 discrepancies exist between the MAHSR and the students' official transcripts. See Exhibit B - F, supra. In the substantial majority of the cases where the discrepancies exist, the grades listed on the MAHSR were higher then the grades listed on the students' official transcript. Id. Additionally, the courses listed on the MAHSR often did not reflect the actual courses in which students were enrolled. For instance, regular level courses may have been listed on a student's official transcript, but the course would appear as an honors or advanced placement course on the MAHSR. See Pagan Certification, supra.

For these reasons, Mr. Clayton is guilty of conduct unbecoming for making, directing, contributing, or in any other way permitting his office to produce and record the MAHSR. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's conduct unbecoming of an employee in the Camden School District which warrants his dismissal from his employment with the Camden School District.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of conduct unbecoming for directing, contributing, or in any other way permitting his office his office to forward the MAHSR transcripts to colleges and universities under the guise of official student transcripts.

In accordance with CCBOE policy and procedure, when a college or university requests a student's transcript, that student's official transcript label in his or her permanent record is to be photocopied and forwarded to the requesting institution. See Pagan Certification, supra. The internal investigation conducted in this case revealed that Brimm officials were sending the MAHSR transcripts to colleges and universities under the guise of official student records, despite the fact that grades and courses on the MAHSR did not accurately reflect the grades and courses on students' report cards and official transcripts contained within their permanent records. Id.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of conduct unbecoming for allowing these fraudulent documents to be sent to institutions of higher education under the guise of official student transcripts. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's conduct unbecoming of an employee in the Camden School District which warrants his dismissal from his employment with the Camden School District.

CHARGE NO. 5

Mr. Clayton is guilty of fraud, deceit and misrepresentation for applying, accepting, and maintaining the position of Principal at Brimm despite the fact that he did not hold the requisite Principal's Certificate. A vacancy existed for the position of Principal at Brimm for the 2003-04 school year. Mr. Clayton applied for the position. At that time, Mr. Clayton made numerous representations to the Camden City Superintendent of Schools that he held the necessary Certification to hold the position of a high school principal within the State of New Jersey.

On or about August 18, 2003, Mr. Clayton was appointed Principal of Brimm. Subsequent to his appointment, the Superintendent made numerous requests to Mr. Clayton that he produce his Principal Certificate. Nevertheless, Mr. Clayton failed to do so. Because his Principal Certificate was never produced, the CCBOE rescinded Mr. Clayton's title as Principal on or about December 11, 2003.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of fraud, deceit and misrepresentation for knowingly and willfully applying and accepting the Principal position at Brimm despite the fact that he was not licensed to do so. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's fraudulent conduct as an employee in the Camden School District which warrants his dismissal as an employee with the Camden School District.

CHARGE 6

Mr. Clayton is guilty of insubordination for failing to report to a scheduled meeting with the Principal at Brimm on November 3, 2004. The meeting was schedule to discuss Mr. Clayton's action, against the Principal's directive, where he changed a students schedule by placing her in Geometry despite the fact that the student did not pass Algebra I, which is a prerequisite for that course. See Exhibit H.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of insubordination for his failure to appear at the scheduled meeting with Brimm's principal. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's insubordination as an employee in the Camden School District which warrants his dismissal as an employee with the Camden School District.

Mr. Clayton is guilty of insubordination for his failure to cooperate with the internal investigation with respect to the allegations of student grade changes, transcript discrepancies, and production of the MAHSR.

After allegations of grade changes at Brimm, the Superintendent of Schools directed Assistant Superintendent Dr. Fred Reiss and Assistant Superintendent Luis Pagan to investigate the matter. In or about August 2004, Dr. Reiss and Mr. Pagan went to Brimm to conduct interviews of several individuals including Guidance Counselor Frederick Clayton. See Pagan Certification, supra. Mr. Clayton was given notice that Dr. Reiss and Mr. Pagan would be conducting interviews on that particular date, and that Mr. Clayton's presence was required. Id. Nevertheless, at the time interviews were being conducted, Mr. Clayton could not be found on school property despite that fact that he had signed-in for duty that morning. Id.

Mr. Clayton willfully and deliberately avoided Dr. Reiss and Mr. Pagan in an effort to thwart the investigation. The above-referenced act is only one example of Mr. Clayton's insubordination as an employee in the Camden School District, which warrant his dismissal as an employee with the Camden School District.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FREDERICK CLAYTON, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

DOCKET NO.

ANSWER TO TENURE CHARGES

Respondent, Frederick Clayton, residing at 3756 Lankenau Road, Philadelphia, PA 19131, by way of answer to the Statement of Charges certified to the Commissioner of Education, says:

The general allegations unbecoming conduct and misbehavior are denied. Petitioner is left to its proofs.

CHARGE NO. 1: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 1, Respondent admits that he was and is a Guidance Counselor at Brimm Medical Arts High School ("Brimm"). The remaining allegations of this paragraph are denied and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations of the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 1, Respondent admits that student transcripts are produced by Petitioner on a centralized basis each year, utilizing grades provided by the teaching staff and administrators at Brimm. Denied that the centrally-maintained student transcripts are always accurate. Denied that Respondent was in any way responsible for any illegitimate grade change or that he was the source of any grading discrepancy. The remaining allegations of this paragraph are denied and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 1, Respondent lacks information sufficient to form a belief as to what if any review was conducted by Petitioner and what, if anything, that review disclosed. In addition, Respondent notes that Petitioner's production of redacted information in Exhibit B to the charges deprives him of an opportunity to be confronted with the evidence against him so that he may meet the allegations and formulate his defense. This response serves as a denial and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the fourth unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 1, Respondent lacks information sufficient to form a belief as to what if any review was conducted by Petitioner and what, if anything, that review disclosed. In addition, Respondent notes that Petitioner's production of redacted information in Exhibits C through F to the charges, inclusive, deprives him of an opportunity to be confronted with the evidence against him so that he may meet the allegations and formulate his defense. This response serves as a denial and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the fifth unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 1, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 2: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 2, Respondent admits that he was and is a Guidance Counselor at Brimm and that if the Board maintained accurate transcripts and student records, including report cards, the grades would match. The remaining allegations of this paragraph are denied and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations of the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 2, these allegations are denied and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent specifically denies that Exhibit G is a duly-promulgated Board policy, though it is an excerpt from a collectively negotiated agreement.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 2, Respondent lacks information sufficient to form a belief as to what if any review was conducted by Petitioner and what, if anything, that review disclosed. In addition, Respondent notes that Petitioner's production of redacted information in Exhibits B through E to the charges, inclusive, deprives him of an opportunity to be confronted with the evidence against him so that he may meet the allegations and formulate his defense. This response serves as a denial and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the fourth unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 2, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 3: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 3, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 3, Respondent lacks information sufficient to form a belief as to what if any investigation was conducted by Petitioner and what, if anything, that investigation disclosed. In addition,

Respondent notes that Petitioner's production of redacted information in Exhibits B through E to the charges, inclusive, deprives him of an opportunity to be confronted with the evidence against him so that he may meet the allegations and formulate his defense. This response serves as a denial and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 3, Respondent lacks information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of these allegations. In addition, Respondent notes that Petitioner's production of redacted information in Exhibits B through E to the charges, inclusive, deprives him of an opportunity to be confronted with the evidence against him so that he may meet the allegations and formulate his defense. This response serves as a denial and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the fourth unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 3, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 4: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 4, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 4, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 4, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 5: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 5, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 5, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 5, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of condu that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 6: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 6, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 6, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

CHARGE NO. 7: As to the allegations in the first unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 7, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the second unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 7, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs.

As to the allegations in the third unnumbered paragraph of Charge No. 7, Respondent denies these allegations and Petitioner is left to its proofs. In addition, Respondent objects to the conclusory statement that the enumerated charge is "only one example" of conduct that warrants his dismissal. Due process requires that Petitioner clearly set forth specifications as to all charges against Respondent so that he may have a meaningful opportunity to defend himself and not have to defend himself against a "moving target."

SEPARATE DEFENSES

FIRST SEPARATE DEFENSE

Petitioner has failed to comply with the procedural requirements of the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et. seq. Among other things, the charges contain redacted exhibits and conclusory allegations that deprive Respondent of fair notice of the charges against him, deprive him of an opportunity to meet and rebut the accusations and his accusers, and fail to clearly set forth specifications as to all charges.

SECOND SEPARATE DEFENSE

Through its administrators and staff, the Board has failed to maintain adequate security for student transcripts and records and has failed to maintain accurate transcripts and records and substantially all of the claimed facts giving rise to Petitioner's allegations flow from Petitioner's own systemic failures.

THIRD SEPARATE DEFENSE

Respondent was not insubordinate in failing to meet with administrators concerning the allegations giving rise to the tenure charges. Upon information and belief, at the time that the administrators were attempting to meet with Respondent, the allegations were already the subject of a threatened or pending criminal investigation and, in the absence of an offer of transactional and use immunity from the County Prosecutor or the Attorney General, Respondent was fully justified in respectfully refusing to participate in an administrative investigation under circumstances where the same alleged incident also formed the basis for threatened criminal charges. See, e.g., Banca v. Town of Phillipsburg, 181 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1981); Garrity v. New Jersey, 17 L.Ed. 2d 562 (1967).

FOURTH SEPARATE DEFENSE

Given mitigating circumstances, the charges, if proven, do not warrant termination or reduction in salary.

WHEREFORE, Respondent requests that the Commissioner of Education issue an order dismissing the instant charges.

148-10

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF EDWARD FLYNN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming and insubordination against respondent, a Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant, for physical altercations with students. The State of New Jersey also filed criminal charges against respondent arising out of the same facts which led to the tenure charges. Subsequently, respondent pled guilty to the third degree crime of endangering the welfare of a child, and consented to the forfeiture of his position as a teacher and the relinquishment of the two instructional certificates he held. Based on the foregoing, the Board filed a motion to withdraw the tenure charges in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

The ALJ found and concluded that the withdrawal meets the standards of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, and that – as a result of the Order of Forfeiture of Public Office pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2a(2), respondent's affidavit consenting to relinquishing his certificates, and the State Board of Examiners Order of Revocation – the tenure matter is now moot. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss the tenure charges.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF EDWARD FLYNN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that the tenure charges filed by the Asbury Park Board of Education have been mooted by respondent's forfeiture of public employment and relinquishment of his teaching certificates, so that no purpose would be served by further proceedings in this matter.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL – granting the Board's motion to dismiss the tenure charges – is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF EDWARD FLYNN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY.

Douglas J. Kovats, Esq., for School District of Asbury Park, petitioner (Kenney, Gross, Kovats & Parton, attorneys)

Marcie L. Mackolin, Esq., for Edward Flynn, respondent (Chamlin, Rosen, Uliano & Witherington, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 19, 2010 Decided: April 29, 2010

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

Petitioner certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming and insubordination against the respondent Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant (LDTC) on or about October 14, 2009. The charges were filed with the Commissioner on October 19, 2009, and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 4, 2009, for an expedited hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1. The State of New Jersey also filed criminal charges against the respondent herein arising out of the same facts and circumstances which led to the tenure charges; i.e., physical altercation with students. On September 28, 2009, defendant Edward Flynn appeared before the Honorable Ronald L. Reisner, J.S.C. in connection with State of New Jersey v Edward C. Flynn, Jr., MON-L-09-00870. In addition to pleading guilty to the third degree crime of endangering the welfare of a child, contrary to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4a, Flynn consented to forfeiture of his position as a teacher with the Asbury Park Board of Education and forfeiture from ever holding any office or "position of honor, trust, or profit under the State of New Jersey or any of its administrative or political subdivisions." (C-1). Flynn also executed an affidavit consenting to relinquishing to the State Board of Examiners the two certificates he holds: Teacher of the Handicapped and LDTC, respectively. (C-2). This was presented to the Board of Examiners at its meeting of January 7, 2010, and the Board ordered the revocation of Flynn's certificates effective immediately.[1] (C-3). Respondent herein was represented by counsel of record in the criminal proceeding and in the matter of the teaching certificates.

Based on the foregoing, the petitioner filed the within motion to withdraw the tenure charges in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, asserting that based upon the forfeiture and revocation of the certificates, the tenure charges need not be pursued by the petitioner. No opposition has been filed.

Having considered the submission of counsel, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the withdrawal meets the standards of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6. I also note that as a result of the Order of Forfeiture of Public Office pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2a(2) (C-1), respondent's affidavit (C-2), and State Board of Examiners Order of Revocation (C-3), the within tenure matter is now moot.

[1] Although the Order was entered on January 7, 2010, it was not available on the State Board of Examiners' website and petitioner's counsel was not able to provide a copy until March 18, 2010.

Petitioner's motion to dismiss the tenure charges in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

FORFEITURE OF PUBLIC OFFICE
PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2

This matter having been opened to the Court on this date by Monmouth County Prosecutor Luis A. Valentin, Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor Maria M. Franceschini appearing, and Charles Uliano, Esq., attorney for Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr., upon notice to and in the presence of Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr.; and Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr., having appeared before this Court on this date and entered a plea of guilty to the third degree crime of Endangering the Welfare of a Child, contrary to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4a as charged, and the Court having received an adequate factual basis from Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr., to substantiate the charge; and Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr., having consented, as a material condition of the plea agreement, to the entry of this Order; and

The Court having found that Defendant Edward C. Flynn, Jr., has been convicted under the laws of this State of an offense involving dishonesty and/or of a crime of the third degree or

Docket No. 0910-118

Civil Action

AFFIDAVIT OF
EDWARD C. FLYNN, JR.

Edward C. Flynn, Jr., of full age, being duly sworn upon his oath, deposes and says:

1. I am the holder of the following teaching certificates:

Teacher of the Handicapped
Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant

2. I agree to relinquish to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners the teaching certificates identified in Paragraph No. 1 above. The original certificates are attached hereto.

3. I understand that the relinquishment of my teaching certificates will be deemed a revocation and will have the same force and effect as a revocation, with all attendant consequences, as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.8.

4. I consent to the revocation of the certificates that I am surrendering.

5. In consenting to the revocation of my certificates, I agree to waive any and all hearings to which I am entitled pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38 and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7, and I further agree that I will not oppose the revocation of my certificates.

6. I understand that I may never reapply to the New Jersey State Board Examiners for certification for employment in the public schools of this State pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38.

7. I acknowledge that in signing this agreement I have secured the advice of an attorney and I understand the terms of this agreement.

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
EDWARD FLYNN, JR.	:	ORDER OF REVOCATION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 0910-118

At its meeting of January 7, 2010, the State Board of Examiners reviewed an affidavit Edward Flynn, Jr. had forwarded. After pleading guilty to Endangering the Welfare of a Child, the Court ordered Flynn to forfeit his teaching certificates. Flynn currently holds a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in June 1983 and a Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant certificate, issued in March 1990.

Flynn agreed to forfeit his certificates with the force and effect of a revocation and all attendant consequences in his affidavit to that effect to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners. At its meeting of January 7, 2010, the Board voted to accept Flynn's relinquishment with the force and effect of a revocation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.8.

Accordingly, on this 7th day of January 2010 it is therefore ORDERED that the revocation of Edward Flynn Jr.'s Teacher of the Handicapped and Learning-Disabilities Teacher-Consultant certificates be effective immediately.

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION ON APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF VERNON, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that emergent relief cannot be granted in this matter, as petitioners have failed to demonstrate their entitlement thereto in accordance with Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b). However, in so doing, the Commissioner modifies the ALJ's analysis as set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner fully agrees that there has been no showing by petitioners that the legal right underlying their claim is settled, that they have a likelihood of success on the merits of their underlying appeal, and that the balance of interests and equities under the circumstances rests in their favor.

However – while it does not affect the outcome of this matter because applicants for emergent relief must satisfy all of the requisite criteria – the Commissioner cannot agree that petitioners' application additionally fails to meet the threshold criterion of irreparable harm. The Commissioner finds instead that petitioners have met such standard, notwithstanding that participation in extracurricular activities is a privilege rather than a right, since the opportunity to participate in such events cannot be regained once lost and dismissal of an emergent application for failure to meet this criterion would effectively insulate the school district's actions from any meaningful review.[1]

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth therein as modified above, the Commissioner adopts the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioners' application for emergent relief because it fails to meet the requisite criteria. This matter shall continue at the OAL, with proceedings to ensue as necessary to bring it to conclusion.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 5|25|10

Date of Mailing: 5|27|10

[1] In this regard, the Commissioner is fully cognizant of the well-established principle that a prohibition from extracurricular activities does not, in and of itself, rise to the level of irreparable harm necessary to warrant extraordinary relief. However, harm is "irreparable" when there can be no adequate after-the-fact remedy in law or in equity, and monetary damages cannot adequately redress the intangibles of a lost experience after the activity is over. In past cases denying similar applications for emergent relief, the irreparable nature of the harm and the degree or severity of the harm have frequently been addressed together; they are, however, two separate factors, and it is on the basis of the severity of the harm – which pertains to the weighing of interests – and not its irreparable nature that applications of this kind typically fail. Martin A. Domacasse v. Board of Education of the North Warren Regional School District, Warren County, decided by the State Board April 17, 1996; L.J., on behalf of minor child, S.J. and David Wickham v. Board of Education of the Township of Manchester, Ocean County, decided by the Commissioner May 2, 2003. The Commissioner has consistently recognized this distinction in more recent rulings on emergent applications seeking restoration of privilege; see, for example, S.L., on behalf of minor child, D.L. v. Board of Education of the Township of Verona, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner September 7, 2007; D.M.S., on behalf of minor child, E.B. and Gregory Heck v. Board of Education of the Pinelands Regional School District, Ocean County, et al., decided by the Commissioner May 9, 2008; M.R., on behalf of minor child, J.R. v. Board of Education of the Town of Kearny, Hudson County, decided by the Commissioner May 30, 2008; Samantha Walsh v. Board of Education of the Monmouth Regional High School District, Monmouth County, decided by the Commissioner June 20, 2008; M.L., on behalf of minor child, S.L. v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner June 15, 2009; M.N., on behalf of minor child, R.N., v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner June 16, 2009; Michael Buonasorte, Jr. v. Board of Education of the Mainland Regional High School District, Atlantic County, decided by the Commissioner June 19, 2009; David Doll v. Board of Education of the Borough of Pitman, Gloucester County, decided by the Commissioner June 22, 2009; Steven E. Tomlin, Jr. and Diane Hogan v. Board of Education of the Lower Cape May Regional School District, Cape May County, decided by the Commissioner June 22, 2009; Robert Nabel v. Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, decided by the Commissioner June 24, 2009; William Nash v. Board of Education of the Town of Kearny, Hudson County, decided by the Commissioner March 23, 2010.

D.L. AND C.L. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, S.L.,
Petitioners,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF VERNON, SUSSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Sergio R. Pastor, Esq., for petitioners

James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy, attorneys)

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

S.L. was removed from the varsity baseball team of Vernon Township High School (VTHS) for the 2010 season as the result of incidents of misconduct during the 2009-2010 school year. S.L.'s parents, D.L. and C.L. (petitioners), seek emergent relief in the form of reinstatement of S.L. to the baseball team. The Board of Education of the Township of Vernon (respondent) opposes petitioners' request for reinstatement of S.L. to the VTHS varsity baseball team.

Petitioners filed their petition with the Commissioner of Education on April 20, 2010, invoking the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. In conjunction with the petition, petitioners filed a motion for a stay or emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 26, 2010, for determination as a contested case. On April 29, 2010, respondent filed papers responsive to petitioners' motion for emergent relief. Oral argument in regard to petitioners' motion for emergent relief was conducted on April 30, 2010, at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey.

Petitioners filed their motion for emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(a). As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), the factors to consider in regard to an application for emergent relief are as follows:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;

3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The first consideration is whether S.L. will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted. Petitioners maintain that S.L. is talented as a baseball player and that participation on the baseball team will give him the opportunity to earn a scholarship to college. According to petitioners, removal of S.L. from the baseball team will deny him this opportunity and cause irreparable harm.

The difficulty with petitioners' argument is that the Commissioner of Education has repeatedly held that students do not suffer irreparable harm when they are prohibited from participating in extracurricular activities such as interscholastic sports. E.g., Elmwood Park Borough Board of Education v. New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 106, 109 (1994); Board of Education of the City of Camden v. N.J. State Interscholastic Athletic Association, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188 (1992); Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County v. NJSIAA, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 158, 160 (1991). It follows that removal of S.L. from the VTHS varsity baseball team will not cause irreparable harm to S.L. within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b)1.

The second consideration is whether the legal right underlying petitioners' claim is settled. One difficulty with respect to this consideration is that the original petition as prepared by the parents does not set forth specific legal theories. Moreover, this factor is intertwined with the third consideration, i.e., the petitioners' likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

Nonetheless, two legal theories can readily be inferred from the petition. The first legal theory is that the removal of S.L. from the VTHS varsity basketball team was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. It is well established that a school district may not engage in action which is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 295-96 (App. Div. 1960). Within this determination with respect to petitioners' request for emergent relief, it will be necessary to determine whether petitioners have established a likelihood of prevailing on the merits.

Another legal theory readily discernible from the petition is that S.L. was denied due process of law in that petitioners were not notified of an incident on March 26, 2010, and S.L. was not given a hearing. With respect to the constitutional right to due process of law, the threshold question is whether students have a federally protected property interest in extracurricular activities. In Palmer v. Merluzzi, 689 F. Supp. 400 (D.N.J. 1988), aff'd 868 F.2d 90 (3rd Cir. 1989), the court stated as follows: "New Jersey is not alone in recognizing that students do not have a federally protected property interest in extracurricular activities. The great majority of state and federal courts which have considered this issue have reached a similar conclusion." Id., at 408. On appeal, the majority in the Third Circuit Court of Appeals did not address the question whether a student has a federally protected property interest in extracurricular activities. Rather, the Court decided that the procedures which the student received in regard to a ten-day suspension from school were adequate to satisfy due process requirements with respect to a sixty-day suspension from the football program. The dissent addressed in the question whether a student has a federally protected property interest in extracurricular activities and described the state of the law as follows: "The question of whether a student has a protectable interest in his continuing participation in extracurricular activities has been faced by numerous courts with differing results." Id., at 97.

More recently, in Wooten v. Pleasant Hope School Dist., 139 F. Supp. 2d 835 (W.D. Mo. 2000), aff'd 270 F.3d 549 (8th Cir. 2001), the Court stated as follows: "The prevailing view in most jurisdictions is that no federally-protected property interest exists in a student's participation in extracurricular activities." Id., at 840. As recently as 2006, a Court held that the opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities is not a federally-protected property interest. Perry v. Ohio High Sch. Ath. Ass'n, 206 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 74080 at 13 (Oct. 11, 2006).

In view of the above, there is no settled legal right underlying petitioners' claim that S.L. was denied due process of law. Further, as noted above, the petition does not set forth specific legal theories in support of the request for relief. It follows that aside from the claim that the removal of S.L. from the VTHS varsity baseball team was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, petitioners have no settled legal theory to support the request for emergent relief.

The third consideration is whether petitioners have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. In this matter, the only settled legal theory of petitioners' case is that the removal of S.L. from the VTHS varsity baseball team was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. With respect to this contention, respondent presented certifications which show that S.L. engaged in various instances of misconduct in school generally in the form of the use of vulgar, disrespectful and insubordinate language toward teachers and staff. This behavior was contrary to the VTHS General Athletic Team Rules and Regulations, which require that athletes conduct themselves in a manner that reflects credit upon their families, school team and coaches. Further, violations of the code of conduct may result in suspension or dismissal from the athletic team. The certifications indicate that S.L. has violated this policy on multiple occasions. Petitioners' submissions do not discredit the manner in which the situation was handled by respondent's personnel. Under the circumstances, petitioners have failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the claim. It follows that petitioners do not satisfy the third condition for emergent relief.

In regard to the equities and interests of the parties, S.L.'s problem stems from his own misconduct by using vulgar language to a teacher in the classroom. Respondent has a clear interest in maintaining order in the classroom. S.L.'s interest in playing on the baseball team does not tip the balance of the equities and the interests of the parties in his favor. Under the circumstances, petitioners do not satisfy the fourth condition for emergent relief.

In view of the above, I CONCLUDE that the emergent relief requested by petitioners must be denied. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that petitioners' motion for emergent relief is denied.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of Education who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PERC Docket No. 2009-320

STIPULATION OF AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

WHEREAS, the parties to the above matter are desirous of resolving the issues set forth therein as they relate to Joseph Delesky (see, generally Second Count);

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the following and valuable consideration, it is agreed by and between the parties hereto as follows:

1. The District will, in compromise, pay Delesky $10,000.00 in full satisfaction for any and all current and back pay claims and emoluments, including sick days, health benefits, mileage reimbursement, etc. This sum will be paid within 30 days of Board approval of the herein Agreement.

2. Upon the execution by the Association and Delesky of this Agreement and approval by the Board, the Association and Delesky will withdraw with prejudice the above matter currently pending before the Public Employment Relations Commission. Delesky will also withdraw with prejudice his appeal pending before the Commissioner of Education and Office of Administrative Law, Agency Reference No. 130-6/09 and OAL

Dkt. No. EDU 09409-09 regarding cessation of his employment by the Board. In so doing, Delesky also relinquishes any and all recall rights to return to the Board's employment.

3. Delesky shall submit a letter of resignation dated June 30, 2009, which resignation the Board shall accept. In so doing, Delesky recognizes that he is relinquishing any and all recall rights to return to the Board's employment.

4. The foregoing shall constitute full and complete settlement regarding any and all claims of whatever nature the Association and Delesky have or may have against the Board of Education, the School District, its officers and employees regarding these PERC and Commissioner of Education matters and constitutes a Release to the benefit of the Board and District and all its employees and officers regarding same through the date of this Agreement.

5. In consideration for the terms detailed above, the Association and Delesky hereby forever waive and release all legal and/or equitable claims they have or may have against the Board, its officers and/or employees under State law relating to the issues currently pending before PERC and the Commissioner of Education, and any and all other claims against the Board, its officers and/or employees relating in any way, either directly or indirectly, limited to the issues addressed in these matters and this Agreement.

6. This Agreement shall not constitute, be interpreted, construed or used as evidence of any admission of fact, law, responsibility, wrongdoing or liability on the part of the Board, its officers and employees and shall not be referred to in any subsequent proceeding by any party other than to enforce the express terms of this Agreement. In the event that this Agreement is not fully executed and approved by all parties hereto, this Agreement shall become null and void and shall neither constitute an admission of any party, nor be referred to by any party in any subsequent legal proceeding for any purpose whatsoever.

7. The Association and Delesky agree that this Agreement and Release and their terms are and will remain confidential to the full extent permitted by law and that they will not voluntarily disclose its terms or otherwise discuss the settlement either directly or through their representatives; except that John Ropars of the NJEA is familiar with the terms of this settlement. Ropars, likewise agrees to keep its terms confidential.

8. The covenants and agreements herein contained shall bind and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, representatives, successors and assigns.

9. This Agreement represents the entire agreement between the parties hereto, and it will not be modified, in whole or part, except by a mutual, written agreement.

10. The Association and Delesky acknowledge that they have entered into this Agreement freely, willingly and voluntarily, without duress or coercion and with the opportunity to consult with counsel or other advisor(s) of their choosing and option and that they fully understand its terms and conditions. They acknowledge that they did in fact consult with Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq. prior to executing this Agreement and Release.

11. Nothing stated herein shall act or serve as an admission of either party that their positions and/or claims regarding the herein matters were anything less than legitimate and valid.

12. It is understood and agreed that this Agreement is subject to the review and approval of the Board of Education and the herein Agreement shall not be effective as to the School District without the specific approval of the Board of Education. This Agreement will be presented to the Board with a recommendation for approval at its March 10, 2010 meeting or as soon thereafter as possible.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The New Jersey Department of Corrections ("NJDOC" or "Department"), represented by PAULA T. DOW, Attorney General of New Jersey, Ellen M. Hale, Deputy Attorney General, appearing; and Christopher Bound, a tenured employee of the NJDOC represented by Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., appearing; by way of this Stipulation of Settlement say:

WHEREAS, the Department initiated the filing of tenure charges against Mr. Bound, having filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education on or about February 1, 2010; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Bound was charged with Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) and Human Resources Bulletin 84-17, as amended, C-11 conduct unbecoming an employee; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges alleged that on December 11, 2009,

Mr. Bound failed to report that an inmate was using a computer without authorization, observed the inmate delete a file, and also observed the inmate place a disk in a paper clip box. Although Mr. Bound later retrieved and secured the disk on December 11, 2009, he failed to report the incident to his supervisor until December 15, 2009, which was in violation of the safety and security regulations and policies at the New Jersey State Prison;

WHEREAS, the NJDOC sought the suspension of Mr. Bound for thirty (30) days without pay for the above set of charges;

WHEREAS, Mr. Bound disputed the charges;

WHEREAS, Mr. Bound has not yet served any suspension time;

WHEREAS, the petitioner has concluded that it may be time consuming and expensive to prove the tenure charges against Mr. Bound;

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into an amicable resolution of the tenure charges filed against Mr. Bound;

WHEREAS, Mr. Bound entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights;

WHEREAS, Mr. Bound is not owed any pay, counsel fees or any other costs associated with this matter;

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the parties and the public to enter into this Stipulation of Settlement. By entering into this settlement agreement, petitioner avoids the excessive costs of litigation; and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Bound admits to the charges and underlying conduct as set forth above.

2. As the penalty, Mr. Bound shall be suspended ten (10) days without pay. The suspension time shall be scheduled consistent with Operational needs and at the management's discretion. The suspension will be completed and served consistent with Department Policy.

3. Mr. Bound's personnel record shall reflect a 10-day suspension without pay.

4. This Agreement shall be part of Mr. Bound's official personnel file and his admission of the noted charges and the penalty imposed by way of settlement may be presented and considered in any subsequent disciplinary action against him.

5. This Agreement constitutes a final and complete resolution of the tenure charges in this matter and fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties hereto. Mr. Bound agrees not to appeal the terms of this Agreement in any administrative, arbitral or judicial forum.

6. Settlement of this matter is justified and in the public interest because it imposes the desired discipline without the need for a contested tenure hearing. The reduction in penalty from a thirty-day suspension to ten days to be without pay is equitable in exchange for eliminating the expense, time and uncertainty connected with a contested tenure hearing.

7. This Agreement shall become effective when the Commissioner of Education approves it. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

This Agreement is made in good faith. The parties have read the Agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

Record Closed: April 19, 2010 Decided: April 30, 2010

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 24, 2009, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14f-1 to -13. A case management conference was held on May 18, 2009, after which the parties further conferenced on July 27, 2009. The matter was re-scheduled for February 10, 2010.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein. (J-1) It was received at the OAL on April 19, 2010, at which time the hearing record closed.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning education association asserted that the respondent Board has maintained class sizes in excess of the limits provided in N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1, and filed a motion for summary decision. The Board avered that the matter is not ripe for summary decision, and further asserted that the petitioners lack standing to bring their claims.

The ALJ found that: the matter was ripe for summary judgment; Elizabeth is a "high poverty" district within the intent of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1, and therefore subject to the class size requirements of the regulation; during the 2008-09 and 2009-10 school years, numerous district class sizes exceeded the regulatory limits, thereby failing to address the mandated needs of the district's "at risk" students. The ALJ concluded that the Board's contention that petitioners lack standing is meritless, and ordered that the Board immediately comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1 relative to class size.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioners have standing in this matter and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, finding unpersuasive the Board's exception arguments regarding extenuating fiscal constraints.

ELIZABETH EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, ROSE CARRETO AND MARIA DEJESUS DIAS,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board and petitioners' reply thereto[1] – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein.

The Board first excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) reliance in her decision upon 2008-09 enrollment data provided by the petitioners. This reliance was improper, it argues, because such data should have been excluded as moot since it deals with a school year which has already passed and the ALJ cannot rule prospectively. More significantly, it maintains, this data should have been excluded because the instant petition was filed on December 24, 2008, well into the start of the 2008-09 school year and, as such, deals with a school year which was in progress and is, therefore, irrelevant in determining whether the Board is currently in violation of class size mandates. (Board's Exceptions at 2)

[1] It is noted that petitioners' 22-page reply exception submission – transmitted to the agency via facsimile – included a copy of the 12-page Initial Decision in this matter. As the Initial Decision of the OAL is always a part of the record before the Commissioner, attachment of this document to subsequent submissions of the parties is superfluous and unnecessary.

Next the Board urges that the ALJ erroneously relied on the certification provided by Kathleen Wolfe as this certification was not submitted with petitioners' motion papers but, instead, was included with its reply to the Board's brief. Consequently, the Board did not have an opportunity to review and respond to this certification in its opposition to petitioners' motion papers. (Ibid.)

Continuing, the Board disagrees with the ALJ's ruling that this matter was ripe for summary decision because it avers a number of issues of material fact remain as to whether the Board has classes over the regulatory size limit. In this regard it argues:

> While the Respondent does not dispute that it provided the Petitioners with documentation showing that some of its class rosters appear to be over the size limit, as the Respondent emphasized in its opposition papers, there is an ever-existing fluctuation of students in and out of the school district at any given time within the school year that make such rosters unreliable for purposes of calculating the number of students in every class within the entire district. In addition, the attendance records the Respondent attached to its opposition papers, records which the Judge failed to consider, demonstrate that a class roster does not provide an accurate assessment of the average class size in a school year, especially with respect to the middle schools and high schools, where classes are taught in "periods" throughout the day, as opposed to one teacher having the same class for an entire day.
> Further, the New Jersey Administrative Code 6A:32-8.2 provides that school enrollment should be calculated by the "sum of the days present and absent of all enrolled students when schools were in session during the year, divided by the number of days schools were actually in session," something that was not done in this case. (Board's Exceptions at 4)

Finally, the Board maintains that the ALJ failed to consider the economic ramifications to the District – in this time of significant budget cuts – of compelling immediate compliance with class size limitations. (Ibid.)

In response, petitioners propose that the ALJ's reliance on 2008-09 class size data was entirely proper, notwithstanding the passage of time. They charge that the Board conveniently overlooks that the instant appeal was filed during the 2008-09 school year because of excessively large classes. This class size trend continued in the 2009-10 school year and establishes the Board's clear violation of the regulation over the course of several academic years. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 2)

As to the Board's objection to the certification of Kathleen Wolfe – petitioners offer that this document was submitted in response to respondent's opposition to summary decision which included certifications of Ms. Morgan and Assistant Superintendent Olga Hugelmeyer wherein they admit that class sizes were and are over the class size limit. The purpose of Ms. Wolfe's certification, they posit, was merely to provide a firsthand illustration of how excessive class sizes negatively impact the classroom atmosphere and a teacher's ability to perform his or her duties. (Id. at 2-3)

Petitioners dismiss as "preposterous" the Board's contention that this matter was not ripe for summary decision "based on the alleged 'material fact as to whether the Respondent has class sizes that are actually over the limit.'" To the contrary, it points out:

> As reflected in the class size data produced by the Board, it is undisputed that during the 2008-09 and 2009-10 school years, district class sizes have been over the limit allowed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1(a). Moreover, by its own admission, the Board has acknowledged that classes are too large. The Petitioners need not prove that each and every class size in the District is excessively large in order to establish a violation of the regulation. And there is ample evidence to clearly illustrate that excessive class sizes are rampant in grades kindergarten through twelfth. Even assuming that there is an inherent fluctuation of attendance within the District, it does not, and cannot explain, nor excuse the rampant violations that persist at all grade levels, and at nearly every single school in the District. (Petitioners' Reply Exceptions at 4-5)

Lastly, petitioners argue, "the Board's cry for sympathy and immunity from the class size requirements is likewise without merit." Maintaining that the ALJ was insensitive to the Board's ability to comply with class size regulations due to fiscal restraints, it seeks that the instant petition be dismissed, claiming that it is not possible for it to comply. Petitioners submit that class size regulations for high poverty districts like Elizabeth are clear on their face and the Board was and continues to be obligated to adhere to the stated requirements. Petitioners contend that the Board's own data clearly evidences that there have been and continue to be a large number of classes with an excessive number of students. They urge that the Board is responsible for complying with the regulations and neither the Court nor the Commissioner is duty bound to excuse the Board's violation simply because it claims to be under fiscal constraints. (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 5)

Upon his comprehensive review, and finding the Board's exception arguments unpersuasive, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ – for the reasons presented on pages 9-12 of her decision – that petitioners have standing to bring this action. He further concurs with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriately granted to petitioners as the record clearly demonstrates that certain of the Board's class sizes during the 2008-09 and 2009-10 school years exceeded the regulatory limits of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is hereby directed to immediately comply with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1.

Record Closed: March 22, 2010 Decided: April 12, 2010

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, the Elizabeth Education Association (the Association), Rose Carreto and Maria DeJesus Dias, assert that the respondent, the Elizabeth Board of Education

(the Board), has maintained class sizes that violate the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1. Petitioners have filed for summary decision, and seek an order directing that the Board comply with the requirements of the regulation. The Board urges that this matter is not ripe for summary decision, and further asserts that the petitioners lack standing to bring their claims.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners filed their appeal before the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on December 24, 2008. The Board filed an answer and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 6, 2009.

Several hearing dates were adjourned due to discovery concerns, and to afford the parties an opportunity to explore settlement. During the course of several status conferences with me, the drafting of a joint stipulation of facts was discussed, as it appeared that the salient facts were not in dispute. Both parties agreed that it was likely this matter could be decided via cross-motions for summary decision.

As early as July 9, 2009, I confirmed via letter to the parties that they were working cooperatively on a comprehensive stipulation of facts. Ongoing discovery concerns remained, however, and a September 23, 2009, hearing date was adjourned until March 22, 2010.

Via letter dated February 12, 2010, I was advised by counsel for the petitioners that settlement had not been reached, nor had the parties drafted a stipulation of facts. Counsel indicated that she sought leave to file a motion for summary decision. Via letter order dated February 18, 2010, I directed counsel for petitioners to file her motion, which she did on March 2, 2010. The Board filed its opposition to the motion on March 15, 2010. The petitioners replied to the Board's opposition on March 22, 2010, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The relevant facts are not in dispute and I FIND as follows:

The Elizabeth School District is a "high poverty school district." N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1(a).[1] The Association is the collective bargaining representative for professional staff employed by the school district. Petitioners Rose Carreto and Maria DeJesus Dias are taxpayers and residents of Elizabeth. Ms. Dias had a child who attended the Elizabeth Public Schools at the time the petition was filed, but who has since graduated. Ms. Carreto is also the President of the Association and a teacher in the district.

During the fall of 2008, the Association received complaints from its membership regarding large class sizes. In an effort to explore these concerns further, the Association surveyed teachers in grades kindergarten through twelve at the start of the 2008-2009 school year. The results of that survey are contained in Exhibit B to the certification of Association Representative Al Ramey. Mr. Ramey's research confirmed large class sizes at all levels of instruction. By way of example, two kindergarten teachers at School Number 28 reported class sizes of thirty-one students. At the middle school level, Mr. Mascari, a math teacher at School Number 15, reported a class size of thirty-one students. At Jefferson Arts High School, Art Teacher Mary Callahan reported a class size of forty-three students.

The Association brought the results of its research to the attention of district administration, was unable to receive a satisfactory response to its concerns, and this petition followed. Through discovery, the Board supplied the Association with data regarding class sizes during the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school years. This data accompanies petitioners' moving papers, and is too voluminous to recite here in its entirety. The following excerpts are representative of the Association's concerns, however:

[1] Elizabeth was previously denoted as an "Abbott District" in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:10-1 et seq.

The data supplied to the petitioners by the Board reflects, in part, the following relative to class sizes in November 2008:

1. At George Washington School, (School Number 1), Jasmine Lee's kindergarten class had an enrollment of twenty-three students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 505.)
2. At George Washington School (School Number 1), Shawneequa Torres's first grade class had an enrollment of twenty-four students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 505.)
3. At Winfield Scott School (School Number 2), three kindergarten and one first grade class had enrollments of twenty-two students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 508.)
4. At Joseph Battin School (School Number 4), two fourth grade classes had enrollments of twenty-four students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 512.)
5. At Benjamin Franklin School (School Number 13), two sixth grade classes had enrollments of twenty-seven students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 524.)
6. At the High School, over fifty ninth grade classes had enrollments in excess of twenty-four students. (Exhibit 4 to O'Driscoll certification, pp. 564-585.)

The data supplied to the petitioners by the Board reflects, in part, the following relative to class sizes in January 2009:

1. At the High School, over fifty ninth grade classes continued to have enrollments in excess of twenty-four students. (Exhibit 3 to O'Driscoll certification, pp. 299-320.)
2. At the High School, over fifty twelfth grade classes continued to have enrollments in excess of twenty-four students. (Exhibit 3 to O'Driscoll certification, pp. 368-392.)

2009-2010 Data

The data supplied to the petitioners by the Board reflects the following, in part, in regard to class sizes in November 2009 for grades pre-K through 8:

1. At George Washington School, (School Number 1), several classes in grades one through three had more than twenty-one students enrolled. (Exhibit 2 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 279.)
2. At George Washington School, (School Number One), a fifth grade class had twenty-four students enrolled. (Exhibit 2 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 279.)
3. At Mabel G. Holmes School (School Number 5), a fourth grade class had twenty-five students enrolled. (Exhibit 2 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 282.)

Board data confirms that there were numerous classes in grades nine through twelve as of December 2009 that had more that twenty-four students enrolled. The data supplied for the 2009-2010 school year at the High School broke enrollment down by subject matter. (Exhibit 1 to O'Driscoll certification.) Class sizes in excess of twenty-four students were noted in many academic subjects. For example, at the Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr. Leadership Academy, there were two Geometry classes with enrollments of twenty-nine students. (Exhibit 1 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 234.) At Elizabeth High School there were three Latin classes with more than twenty-four students. (Exhibit 1 to O'Driscoll certification, p. 275.)

The Board submitted the certification of counsel, who readily admits that several classes were over "the class size limit." The certification alludes to "discrepancies" in the data the Board supplied to the Association, but it appears that this is a reference only to the fact that not every class size exceeds the regulatory limits. The certification of counsel, and that of Assistant Superintendent of Schools Olga Hugelmeyer, both explain the fiscal constraints which necessitated large classes, and the diligent but unsuccessful efforts by the district to uniformly bring class sizes in compliance with regulatory requirements.

The certification of district teacher, Kathleen Wolfe, outlines the problems that are created by large class sizes. Her certification furthermore confirms that large class sizes continue to date in Elizabeth. Wolfe teaches visual arts at Edison High School and currently teaches a class with twenty-five students, and another with thirty. She states that there are not enough desks for her students nor space in the classroom to accommodate additional desks. Wolfe indicates that it is difficult for her to keep track of the students in her class, and that the large class size results in discipline problems, which force her to turn her focus away from instruction to classroom management. She has no time for individualized instruction or to even provide small-group assistance.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Board seeks relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." The regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that "if the opposing party . . . offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, 'fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,' he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (quoting Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The "'judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.'" Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214.

I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material disputed facts which require a plenary hearing, and the petitioners are entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Petitioners contend that the Board violated the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1, which provides that class sizes in "high poverty" districts "shall not exceed 21 students in grades kindergarten through three, 23 in grades four and five, and 24 students in grades six through twelve." Exceptions are noted in the regulation for "some" physical education and performing arts classes, "where appropriate." The regulation further provides that if the district chooses to maintain lower class sizes in grades kindergarten through three, class sizes in grades four and five may not exceed twenty-five students. Elizabeth is a "high poverty" district within the intent of the regulation, and was previously "subject to N.J.A.C. 6A:10A and 6A:10" per N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1(c). It therefore was subject to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1(b) during the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school years.

In asserting that the Board maintains class sizes which contravene the express requirements of the regulation, the petitioners primarily rely not on anecdotal data, but rather, data supplied by the Board itself. The Board, in its opposition to the motion, merely offers explanations for its non-compliance. Those explanations reflect the harsh fiscal realities under which the district operates, rather than a willful disregard for the regulation and its requirements. Nonetheless, it is uncontroverted that numerous district class sizes during the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school years have exceeded the regulatory limits.[2] I CONCLUDE that class sizes in the Elizabeth School District do not uniformly comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1.

Petitioners correctly urge that the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1 are clear and unequivocal, requiring no analysis of the agency's regulatory intent. See Phillips v. Curiale, 128 N.J. 608, 618 (1992). Nonetheless, the intent behind the regulation is noteworthy, and serves to emphasize the seriousness of the Board's disregard of the regulation's express requirements. A "high poverty district" is defined by the regulation as one in which "40 percent or more of the students are 'at risk.'" N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-45 defines "at risk" students as those from households that are at or below the poverty level. In educational terms, the future of these students is "at risk," as is their ability to access an educational program that will free them from the cycle of poverty. The Department of Education has determined that smaller class sizes will create a learning environment in which these "at risk" students can achieve academic success. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that it is appropriate to enter the relief sought by the petitioners and direct that the Board immediately comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1.

The Board's contention that the petitioners lack standing to assert the claims raised in the petition is unavailing. Standing is a "threshold justiciability determination whether the litigant is entitled to initiate and maintain an action before a court or other tribunal." In re Six-Month Extension of N.J.A.C. 5:91-1, 372 N.J. Super. 61, 85 (App. Div. 2004); Stubaus v. Whitman, 339 N.J. Super. 38, 47 (App. Div. 2001). In order to have standing, a party "must present a sufficient stake in the outcome of the litigation, adverseness with respect to the subject matter and a substantial likelihood that the party will suffer harm in the event of an unfavorable decision." In re Camden County, 170 N.J. 439, 449 (2002). In New Jersey we have a "venerable tradition" of liberally applying the standing criteria. Ridgewood Educ. Ass'n v. Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., 284 N.J. Super. 427, 430 (App. Div. 1995). This approach to standing is even more liberal within the State's administrative system. Reiman and Borough of Carteret v. New

[2] Petitioners correctly note that the subsequent to the filing of its petition, N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1 was amended. The petitioners also correctly note, however, that these amendments created no changes to the previously prescribed class size limitations.

Jersey State Dep't of Educ., EDU 8564-04, Initial Decision (August 26, 2005), aff'd, Commissioner (December 27, 2005), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>.

Both Carreto and Dias are residents of Elizabeth, and taxpayers. Their status as taxpayers suffices to give these petitioners standing to bring their claims. Our courts have recognized "a broad right in taxpayers and citizens of a municipality to seek review of local legislative action without proof of unique financial detriment to them." Kozesnik v. Montgomery Twp., 24 N.J. 154, 177-78 (1957). The Ridgewood court held that "we see no reason why this State's historic liberal approach to the issue of standing . . . should not apply to taxpayer suits challenging the quasi-legislative actions of local boards of education." Ridgewood, supra, 284 N.J. Super. at 433.

Indeed, in Paterson Eastside High School Parent/Alumni Committee v. State Operated School District of the City of Paterson, EDU 11847-06, Initial Decision (May 30, 2007), adopted, Commissioner (July 13, 2007), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the Commissioner relied on Ridgewood to uphold the standing of a parent committee and individual parent to challenge the district's appointment of a basketball coach. The status of the petitioners there, "as residents and taxpayers of Paterson who have expressed a strong interest in the workings of the high school," was deemed sufficient to give them standing to challenge the school district's actions. In Silverman v. Millburn Board of Education, 134 N.J. Super. 253 (Law Div. 1975), an analogous conclusion was reached by the court relative to a challenge brought by taxpayers to the closing of a school. The Silverman court noted that the taxpayer plaintiffs "represent their own personal interest and the public interest of the community," and thus were not "strangers to the dispute." Id. at 258.

In like measure, the petitioners here are not interlopers, but rather, have a legitimate interest in the orderly, efficient and legally sound administration of the Elizabeth Public Schools. Ms. Dias's interest could not be more direct, as her child attended the public schools, and did so at the time the petition was filed. I agree with the petitioners that the graduation of Dias's son does serve to limit her standing to bring the claims raised in the petition. Relative to Ms. Carreto, who is a taxpayer but also a district teacher, the Ridgewood court specifically upheld the standing of two individual petitioning teachers there, citing their "professional status and involvement" in the subject matter of the litigation. Ridgewood, supra, 284 N.J. Super. at 432.

Moreover, the Association has standing to bring this claim on behalf of its membership. The Board's reliance on Bedminster Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Bedminster, EDU 6720-05, Initial Decision (March 23, 2006), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> is misplaced. The Administrative Law Judge in Bedminster recognized a local teachers association's standing to challenge board action on behalf of district teachers, but dismissed the claims of the petition because the petitioning association could not demonstrate "a substantial likelihood of harm to its members arising from the complained of conduct." Ibid. Here, the Board correctly asserts that there is no statutory or regulatory basis for an award of damages to the petitioners. Nonetheless, the Board's non-compliance with class size requirements harms the members of the Association in very real ways. Teachers are being asked to deliver instruction in overcrowded classrooms, directly impacting their working conditions. Overcrowded classrooms furthermore may negatively impact the teaching performance of Association members, who are evaluated, in part, based on a review of "available indicators of student progress and growth toward program objectives." N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.4. The certification of District Teacher Kathleen Wolfe emphasizes this point.

Petitioners correctly urge what where, as here, a question of significant public interest is presented even the slightest private interest suffices to establish standing. Loigman v Twp. Comm. of the Twp. of Middletown, 409 N.J. Super. 13, 27 (App. Div. 2009). Our courts have held that a petitioner's interest may be accorded proportionately less significance where it coincides with a strong public interest. N.J. State Chamber of Commerce v. N.J. Election Law Enforcement Comm'n, 82 N.J. 57, 68 (1980). The strong public interest in quality schools is incontrovertible.

Ultimately, the standing of these petitioners can be expressed in quite simple terms, however. If the citizens, parents and teachers of Elizabeth do not have standing to question the manner in which educational services are delivered to the children of Elizabeth, then who does? Petitioners correctly state that the voices of these children "can only be heard" through their parents, through the concerned citizens and taxpayers of the City of Elizabeth, and through their teachers. I CONCLUDE that the Board's contention that petitioners lack standing is meritless.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the Board immediately comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:13-3.1 relative to class size.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 3, 2009, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13.

Hearings were scheduled for January 6 and 9, 2010, but were postponed when the parties commenced developing terms and conditions for a settlement agreement. On or about March 8, 2010 the parties consented to a Settlement Agreement and executed the document, which is incorporated herein by reference and annexed hereto.

Having reviewed the contents of the attached Settlement Agreement and the Resolution of the Elizabeth Board of Education, dated March 18, 2010, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures and/or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into between the Elizabeth Board of Education (the "Board" or the "Respondent"), with offices at 500 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey 07207 and Jennifer Bauer (the "Petitioner"), residing at 31 Middle Hill Road, Colonia, New Jersey 07067.

WHEREAS, the Petitioner was a non-tenured teacher employed by the Board during the 2008-2009 school year, who resigned from her teaching position by letter dated October 31, 2008, and who filed a Petition with the New Jersey State Commissioner of Education claiming that she is entitled to back pay for the period of December 12, 2008 through December 31, 2008; and

WHEREAS, the Board and the Petitioner have elected to settle all outstanding matters in lieu of expending further resources and to eliminate the uncertainties of litigation; and

WHEREAS, the Board and the Petitioner have been afforded the opportunity to consider the terms of this Agreement with advice of counsel and/or a representative of their choice;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and mutual covenants herein contained, and for other good and valuable considerations, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. The Board agrees to compensate the Petitioner for unpaid back pay covering the period of December 12, 2008 through and including December 31, 2008, for the gross amount of $3,047.34.

2. In return for compliance with this Settlement Agreement, the Petitioner hereby agrees to waive any rights that she may have, or may have had, to file any claims relative to any future grievance, complaint, petition or charge in any court of law or administrative agency, including, but not limited to the Commissioner of Education; Division of Worker's Compensation; Office of Administrative Law; and the Public Employment Relations Commission relative to any issues or potential issues that may have arisen or could have arisen during the course of Petitioner's employment with the Board.

3. Neither party shall be responsible for costs or the counsel fees of the other party's attorney.

4. The Board and the Petitioner further agree and understand that this Agreement is a settlement of all claims asserted in connection with the Petition in this matter. Entering into this Agreement does not constitute an admission of wrongdoing, error or omission by the Board.

5. This Agreement does not constitute a past practice or policy in the Elizabeth School District. The terms of this Agreement do not apply to any employee other than the Petitioner and may not form the basis for a claim by other employees, nor act as a bar to claims by other employees, against the Board.

6. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

7. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified except by an instrument executed in writing by all parties.

8. This Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

9. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, but shall be enforceable only if executed by the Petitioner named herein and by the Board's authorized representatives.

10. All parties in this matter agree and acknowledge that the Settlement Agreement herein embodies the parties' full understanding of the terms of the parties' Settlement.

11. The Petitioner has been fully apprised of her rights in connection with this Settlement, and fully understands the terms of this Settlement Agreement. Petitioner also agrees that she has been fully and fairly represented by counsel throughout this proceeding.

The record in this matter, the proposed settlement agreement (Agreement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following provisos. First, regarding the third paragraph of the Agreement, in the event that petitioner falls behind on monthly tuition payments, respondent may apply to the Commissioner – as opposed to the OAL – for an order requiring immediate payment of the full tuition amount set forth in the second paragraph of the Agreement.

Secondly, paragraph two of the Agreement makes reference to a May 15, 2010 date for the commencement of petitioner's payments to respondent. That date has preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

The petition is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the settlement terms, and providing that the petitioner has either commenced monthly installment payments or the parties have agreed upon a mutually satisfactory alternate date for effectuation of same.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF GILBERT ALVAREZ, : SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : OF LAKEWOOD, OCEAN COUNTY. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning school district certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent – a tenured Spanish teacher – for alleged inappropriate behavior toward students, in which he demonstrated poor judgment, an inability to control his temper and demeanor, and insubordination; additionally, on one occasion, respondent used inappropriate language and pushed a desk in such a manner as to threaten or injure a student. The parties initially attempted to settle this matter, but – in light of the apparent seriousness of the Board's allegations and based on the extremely limited record before the Commissioner – the settlement was rejected and the matter remanded to the OAL for hearing.

The ALJ found that: respondent does not dispute that his conduct in pushing a desk into a student on December 23, 2008, was inappropriate, nor that he had trouble controlling his anger, emotions and frustrations when dealing with his students; respondent engaged repeatedly in inappropriate and unbecoming conduct for a tenured teacher, was unable to properly control and channel his frustration and anger, violated school policy by removing students to the hallway, and used physical force to push a student out of a room and to push a desk. The ALJ concluded, based on case law which he viewed to be similar in nature, that the appropriate penalty for respondent's unbecoming behavior was the forfeiture of the 120 days of pay withheld for the initial portion of his suspension; that he be suspended for an additional period of two months; that he complete training in anger management, conflict resolution, and management of disruptive students; and that he forfeit any increment that he might be entitled to during the 2009-2010 school year.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner – while concurring with the ALJ's findings as to the seriousness and unacceptability of respondent's conduct – rejected the penalty recommendation in the Initial Decision as he found that the impetus for and the nature of the actions taken by this respondent were substantially more serious in kind and degree from the school law decisions relied upon by the ALJ in fashioning his recommended penalty, necessitating respondent's removal from his position. Accordingly, the Commissioner dismissed respondent from his tenured teaching position with the School District of the Township of Lakewood and the matter was transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action as that body deems appropriate.

(EDU 0736-09 ON REMAND)
AGENCY DKT NO. 36-2/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF GILBERT ALVAREZ, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, OCEAN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The District and respondent requested and received extensions of time within which to file exceptions and reply exceptions, respectively, to the Initial Decision. These submissions were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The District's exceptions first charge that – although he "correctly found that [respondent] engaged in inappropriate and unbecoming conduct, repeatedly demonstrated an inability to properly control and channel his frustration and anger, used physical force, violated school policy on several occasions, and more than once recognized that his emotions had the best of him and that he might hit someone or otherwise lose it" (Initial Decision at 27) – the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) nonetheless declined to terminate respondent from his tenured position. Such a determination, it argues, was apparently premised on the former Commissioner's reversal as to penalty of a prior decision of this ALJ, i.e., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Adam Mierzwa, Commissioner's Decision No. 283-08, decided June 23, 2008, wherein this ALJ had concluded that the respondent's tenure should be removed and the Commissioner determined that a lesser penalty was warranted. The District posits that the ALJ, apparently viewing Mierzwa, supra, and the instant matter as similar in nature, and in consideration of the Commissioner's penalty modification therein, misread this prior modification as directing a penalty less severe than removal in the instant matter. It argues that the Commissioner's penalty modification in Mierzwa does not dictate the result reached in this matter, as these two cases are fully distinguishable. Specifically, 1) unlike the instant matter, Mierzwa did not engage in physical intimidation, verbal abuse, or cursing; 2) the Commissioner in the Mierzwa matter accepted that his actions were partially mitigated by a lack of administrative support which is not a factor here; and 3) Mierzwa exhibited a lack of self-restraint on only two occasions as opposed to the instant respondent who, it avers, showed an increasingly frequent lack of self-restraint. (District's Exceptions at 2-3)

In response to this particular District exception, respondent points out that the ALJ's Initial Decision was thirty-five pages, eighteen of which meticulously and accurately summarized hearing testimony and physical evidence (pp. 3-20) and fifteen of which analyzed the relevant, applicable law, applied the facts to the law, and imposed a thoughtful, fair and just penalty (pp. 20-35). Respondent argues that the District's contention that the ALJ erred as a consequence of the Commissioner's reversal of his Initial Decision recommendation to remove tenure in Mierzwa makes no logical sense. To the contrary, he proffers, the ALJ's decision here 1) carefully considered the Commissioner's modification in Mierzwa; 2) found substantial similarities between this case and those where a penalty less than removal was imposed; and 3) reached the ultimate conclusion that tenure removal was unwarranted in the instant matter. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at 2-5)

The District next contends that the ALJ incorrectly ruled that Dr. Gallina, the District's psychiatrist, and Dr. Tobe, respondent's psychiatrist, could not testify as expert witnesses but, rather, could only testify as to the facts because the ALJ, the District maintains, incorrectly found that respondent's mental state had not been pled in its tenure charges. In support of its accusation in this regard, the District submits that its charges against respondent stated that:

> there were alleged "on-going concerns with [Mr. Alvarez's] demeanor and performance," not limited to his use of "inappropriate language and instructional techniques," but including "less than favorable interactions with students of Mexican and/or African American heritage, often appearing disgruntled, upset, detached from staff and students and allegedly attempting to invade their privacy." The Tenure Charges further stated that Mr. Alvarez's cumulative file indicated that, among other things, he "fail[ed] to demonstrate professional responsibility;...fail[ed] to initiate parent contacts; and fail[ed] to monitor [students'] progress," and falsified information. (citations to charges omitted; emphasis in text)

Consequently, the District proffers, the tenure charges contained both allegations and substantial evidence of mental unfitness, requiring that expert testimony with respect to respondent's mental state should have been considered. (District's Exceptions at 8-9, quote at 9) It also suggests that the ALJ erred by refusing to consider the evaluative reports of the two psychiatrists "which further supported a finding of [respondent's] mental unfitness to serve as a school teacher." (Id. at 9-10)

The District further charges that the ALJ utterly disregarded the testimony that was proffered by Drs. Gallina and Tobe. Just because he believed such testimony to be "duplicative of that of other witnesses was not a reason to essentially ignore same." It maintains much of the other testimony which the ALJ did consider – such as that of four students, one parent, nine teachers and administrators and even respondent – was also "duplicative." (District's exceptions at 5)

In rejoinder, respondent tenders that not once in its tenure charges against him did the District plead that he "was mentally or psychologically unfit to teach." The only allegation pled – and as such the only allegation considered during the hearing – was conduct unbecoming. Respondent maintains that the District's "claim that its allegation in the tenure charges that there were 'on-going concerns with [Mr. Alvarez's] demeanor and performance' was sufficient to constitute pleading mental or psychological unfitness such that the doctors should have been permitted to testify as experts and have their reports considered is absurd." (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at 8-9) Respondent, he posits, is not required to intuit and decipher charges from broad and unspecific language. The language highlighted by the District in its exceptions could not serve to put any reasonable person on notice that charges of mental of psychological unfitness were being brought against him. Respondent cites to Jenkins v. South Woods State Prison, OAL Dkt. No. CSV 6363-04 (May 10, 2006) for the proposition that:

> [c]lear and unambiguous notice of all the charges or potential charges that may arise at the hearing is indispensable to fundamental fair and proper notice. Whether the appointing authority can meet its burden regarding charges that were never properly noticed, presented or served upon the employee is irrelevant after the hearing has concluded. The appointing authority could have amended the charges prior to the hearing, to conform the evidence and proofs to the charges intended to be offered at the hearing. Absent any amended pleadings, or other means of notice of the proposed charges to be asserted, the employee has a fundamental right to rely upon the preliminary and final notices of disciplinary action, together with any related discovery in connection thereto, in defense of the charges. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at 9-10)

Moreover, respondent further argues, the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., specifies that "a tenured teacher may not be dismissed without written charges being filed against them, a copy of which must be provided to the employee." Additionally, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 specifically requires "that notice of the charges must be given to the employee such that they are able to prepare a meaningful defense on their own behalf." That did not happen in the instant matter with respect to any claim of mental or psychological unfitness as nothing in the charges themselves or in the statement of evidence in support of the charges alleges mental or psychological unfitness. Furthermore, respondent offers, even if the District initially neglected to plead mental unfitness, it could have amended its pleadings prior to the hearing in this matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2 to correct this omission.[1] Because it failed to do so, respondent urges, it was entirely correct for the ALJ to refuse to permit the two doctors to testify as expert witnesses and refuse to allow them to proffer opinion testimony. He maintains that any attempt by the District to have the Commissioner consider expert opinion testimony from the witnesses must be rejected. (Id. at 11) However, even assuming, arguendo, that the ALJ had considered a charge of mental or psychological unfitness, respondent professes there was and is no basis to find him unfit to teach on that basis. Respondent submits that the District:

> [F]ocuses on [the ALJ's] finding that [respondent] was frustrated by his work, his disruptive students, and his inability to reach some students, to conclude that [the ALJ] erred in not finding [respondent] mentally unfit. Frustration does not make someone mentally unfit to perform their jobs. Indeed, if that were the standard, most (if not all) of us would be considered mentally and psychologically unfit to work, especially teachers in disadvantaged school districts.
> While [respondent] may have acted inappropriately in certain instances, there is no evidence that this stemmed from or constituted a psychiatric problem. Accordingly, as [the ALJ] correctly held,
>
> > [i]t is apparent that the rather limited history of Mr. Alvarez's demonstrations of a lack of ability to readily handle the frustrations of his work, the disruptive actions of students and the disappointments that must affect a teacher who is disturbed by the less than motivated attitude of students does not present a sufficiently egregious pattern as to warrant the removal of his tenure. (Initial Decision at 33)

[1] Note that in actuality the district would have had to go through the process of filing a second set of tenure charges.

Upon full review and consideration of the entire record in this matter – which included transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL on June 4, December 7, December 8 and December 14, 2009 – along with the parties' exception submissions, the Commissioner determines to adopt the Initial Decision with modification as detailed below.

Preliminarily, however, the Commissioner is compelled to clarify what appears to be some confusion in the Initial Decision and on the part of the District as to the prior Commissioner's discussion of the respondent's possible "unfitness" in rejecting the settlement agreement previously proposed by the parties in this matter. (See Initial Decision at 22; and the District's exceptions) The Commissioner's consideration of "unfitness" therein was a reference to the quintessential issue in every tenure case, that of penalty. Specifically, in rejecting the parties' proposed settlement she was speculating – in light of the District's stated allegations and the extremely limited record before her – as to the possibility that the Board's ultimately proven charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent might serve to demonstrate that he was unfit to serve as a teacher, either in this district or any other. (See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Gilbert Alvarez, Commissioner's Decision No. 274-09, decided September 4, 2009, at 3) This discussion did not – nor was it intended to – initiate an unpleaded inquiry into respondent's mental or psychological fitness to be a teacher, i.e., incapacity. Additionally, in the same vein, as the District did not choose to lodge an incapacity charge against respondent in this matter, the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ's ruling – for the reasons expounded upon in respondent's reply exceptions – that Drs. Gallena and Tobe could not testify as expert witnesses with respect to respondent's mental or physical fitness in this matter but, instead, would be heard only as fact witnesses. Similarly, consideration of their respective evaluative reports in this regard was not permissible.[2]

Turning again to the instant decision, the Commissioner finds the ALJ's recitation of testimony advanced by the witnesses and his resultant fact-finding, analysis and conclusions as to the truth of the District's allegations and the depiction of respondent's behavior as unbecoming conduct to be amply supported by the record and consistent with applicable law. The Commissioner – based on this record – is in full accord with the stated conclusions of the ALJ, specifically:

> I CONCLUDE that Mr. Alvarez engaged in inappropriate and unbecoming conduct for a tenured teacher. His repeated inability to properly control and channel his frustration and anger at the conduct, attitudes and faults of his students led him to outbursts of inappropriate language, to the use of words and phrases not proper for a teacher to utilize in a classroom setting, to the use of physical force to push a student out of a room and to push a desk that he must have known would also cause another desk with a student in it to be similarly pushed. He also violated school policy on several occasions by removing students to the hallway when such action was not permitted. And on more than one occasion, he himself appears to have recognized that his emotions had the best of him and that if he did not "cool down" or was not calmed down by another faculty member he might "lose it" and might "hit" someone, a concern whose validity may be said to have been confirmed by his actions on December 23, [2008]. (Initial Decision at 27)

The Commissioner similarly concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons presented on pp. 25-26 of his decision – that the District "has failed to demonstrate any sustainable basis for any suggestion that Alvarez is biased against African-American and/or Mexican American students."

However, while the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ as to the nature of respondent's conduct, he cannot accept his recommended penalty as the appropriate

[2] The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ's assessment of – and, therefore, his declining to elaborate on – the proffered testimony of these fact witnesses, i.e., "[t]he essence of each witness's testimony was to affirm the essence of Alvarez's own testimony, that is, that he admitted certain inappropriate conduct, spoke of frustrations and expressed that he had no intent or desire to injure T.B. In the end, this evidence did not add anything significant to the proofs." (Initial Decision at 20)

one here. In determining penalty to be imposed, factors to be considered include the respondent's prior record in the District, the nature and gravity of his offenses under all the circumstances involved, and any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation, and must consider any harm or injurious effect which his conduct may have had in the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421-22 (App. Div. 1967).

In fashioning his penalty recommendation here, the ALJ in his decision reviewed eight prior school law decisions which the parties had argued were analogous to the instant matter. Six of these cases dealt with respondents who were alleged to have engaged in one incident of corporal punishment. The Commissioner did not find these cases particularly instructive as he concludes – as did the ALJ – that this matter involves neither one isolated incident nor corporal punishment as that term has been developed through prior case law. It appears that the ALJ found this matter most akin to In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Adam Mierzwa, Commissioner's Decision No. 283-08, decided June 23, 2008, which at first blush might appear to be true: both matters involve respondents who failed to control their tempers, displayed poor judgment, and allowed feelings of frustration and anger to overwhelm their professional demeanor. Additionally, in both matters neither respondents' tenure in the District (approximately 4 years at the time of the filing of tenure charges), nor their performance evaluations could serve to mitigate any penalty that would otherwise be imposed against them.[3] Notwithstanding these similarities, the Commissioner finds that when looking at the impetus for and the nature of the actions taken, these two matters are substantially different in both kind and degree. The record in this matter evidences that – during the period October-December 2008, in response to frustration he was experiencing as a consequence of the conduct of his unruly, inattentive and unmotivated students – Mr. Alvarez manifested physically against them, erupting out in explosive anger: yelling, engaging in outbursts of inappropriate language, using force to push a student out of his classroom and finally, on December 23, 2008, forcefully pushing a desk into another desk which had a student in it. Both his pupils and other staff members, who witnessed respondent's angry interactions with his students, reported they were scared or afraid of what he might do. In contrast, the respondent in Mierzwa, supra, was recognized as having a mindset that focused on a lack of administrative support and/or proper protocols as the primary factors triggering his temper flare ups. (See Mierzwa Initial Decision at 17) In two incidents – two years apart – the objects of this respondent's angry outbursts were administrators with whom Mierzwa felt frustration because of their alleged failure to adequately address what he perceived as dangerous situations inside and outside the school. There is no suggestion that Mierzwa engaged in threats or used physical force, violence or inappropriate language against students or staff members.

[3] It is curious, however, that – although finding these two matters analogous – the ALJ recommended a lesser penalty in the instant matter than the one ultimately imposed by the Commissioner in Mierzwa, supra. (i.e., in the instant decision, forfeiture of 120 days pay withheld upon initial suspension, an additional suspension of two months, forfeiture of any increment to which he might be entitled during the 2009-10 school year and the successful completion of training in anger management, conflict resolution and management of disruptive students vs. penalty in the Mierzwa decision of forfeiture of 120 days pay withheld upon initial suspension, an additional suspension of four months while he obtains training in anger management, conflict resolution and handling difficult and disruptive students, with termination of his employment if he does not successfully complete the program.)

It is by now axiomatic that teaching "requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. It is similarly without question "that teachers carry a heavy responsibility by their actions and comments in setting examples for the pupils with whom they have contact." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Blasko, School District of the Township of Cherry Hill, 1980 S.L.D. 987, 1003.

The Commissioner is satisfied that the record herein establishes that respondent acted in a manner which is wholly inappropriate for a professional educator and not commensurate with a teacher's function as a role model. Respondent failed to control his temper, exercised poor judgment, used inappropriate language with students, and allowed his feelings of frustration and anger to overwhelm his professional demeanor – all of which caused students and staff members alike to feel "afraid" or apprehensive. While in no way condoning the actions of respondent's recalcitrant students, the Commissioner observes that – as a professional educator – respondent was required to comport himself properly when faced with the inevitable difficulties and provocations experienced by most public school teachers. Rather than addressing the behavior of his students in a controlled and professional manner, respondent – through his anger and loss of control – became the focal point of the classroom disruption, ratcheting up the tumult by his own actions. Additionally, in his capacity as a role model for his students, respondent by his behavior communicated to them that anger and violence were appropriate responses to frustration.

Based on this record, the Commissioner cannot conclude that respondent's behavior is an aberration; nor can it be said that such conduct would not be repeated in the future. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Brady, Morris School District, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 410, 420. Indeed, respondent recognizes and admits the inappropriateness of his conduct but appears to be unwilling or unable to address the challenging situations with which he is faced in a controlled, professional manner.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioner cannot entertain the prospect of respondent's return to the District and the resultant potential for the perpetration of an unhealthy educational environment.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified herein with respect to penalty, is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his tenured teaching position with the School District of the Township of Lakewood. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10067-09 (EDU 00736-09 Remanded)

AGENCY DKT. 36-2/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF GILBERT ALVAREZ, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, OCEAN COUNTY.

Michael I. Inzelbuch, Esq., for petitioner

Richard A. Friedman, Esq., for respondent (Zazzalli, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 16, 2010 Decided: March 5, 2010

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Lakewood Township Board of Education filed tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education alleging that because of the unprofessional and improper manner in which Gilbert Alvarez, a tenured teacher of Spanish in the District, had acted, his tenure should be removed. Mr. Alvarez filed an Answer to the charges and the Commissioner transferred the contested case for hearing at the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Following a prehearing conference, motions and an attempt to settle the case which resulted in a rejection by the Commissioner and a remand for hearing, the case was heard before this judge on December 7, 8 and 14, 2009. The parties obtained transcripts and filed closing briefs and the record closed on February 16, 2010.

In the tenure charges, the Board alleges that on or about December 23, 2008, Mr. Alvarez exhibited inappropriate behavior, using inappropriate language and pushing a desk in such a manner as to threaten or actually injure a student. Additionally, the charges contend that there have been on-going concerns about Alvarez's demeanor and performance, including his alleged use of inappropriate language and "instructional techniques" with another student in October-November 2008, and that he did not fulfill certain responsibilities, such as attendance to his coaching responsibilities and to staff meetings, monitoring student progress and submitting lesson plans. Finally, it argues that his "interactions" toward Mexican-American students demonstrated hostility, or was otherwise "less than favorable." While Mr. Alvarez does not deny each and every factual element which the Board contends establishes its case, he does deny that his conduct supports any sanction against his tenure status or employment. Moreover, he denies any hostility or untoward actions towards any group of students.

Preliminarily, Mr. Alvarez asserts that because the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) determined that it could not substantiate that he had engaged in child abuse in respect to the student who was in the desk that was pushed, that tenure charges cannot be brought for that incident, citing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7a.

> When a complaint made against a school employee alleging child abuse or neglect is investigated by the Department of Children and Families, the department shall notify the school district and the employee of its findings. Upon receipt of a finding by the department that such a complaint is unfounded, the school district shall remove any references to the complaint and investigation by the department from the employee's personnel records. A complaint made against a school employee that has been classified as unfounded by the department shall not be used against the employee for any purpose relating to employment, including but not limited to, discipline, salary, promotion, transfer, demotion, retention or continuance of employment, termination of employment or any right or privilege relating to employment.

This position is without merit. Child abuse determinations made under N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21c. may include consideration of whether a child has been subjected to inappropriate corporal punishment. DYFS can either substantiate the allegation or find that it is unfounded. Whether the incident in question here is even one involving corporal punishment is itself open to serious question, as even counsel for Alvarez concedes, and as will be explained below, I conclude that it does not. Further, the concerns of the Commissioner addressed in proceedings brought under the Tenured Employees Hearing Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to 18.1, regarding the propriety of a teacher's conduct vis a vis students address issues and concerns that can be quite different than those which are the concern of DYFS. The two statutory schemes exist side-by-side and it cannot be said that the DYFS statute trumps the educational concerns that are the focus of cases under the Tenured Employees Hearing Act. It must also be said that the nature of DYFS investigatory reviews hardly permit the searching examination of conduct that occurs in tenure proceedings involving full evidentiary hearings. See, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Gilbert Young, Jr., School District of the Borough of Roselle, Union County, EDU 11569-07, Initial Decision, (May 27, 2008), adopted, Comm'r (August 18, 2008)<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> aff'd, A-0309-08T3 (App. Div. 2009); cert. granted, October 26, 2009.

Evidence

Carla Leach, a teacher in the Lakewood Middle School, testified that on December 23, 2008, a student, T.B., appeared in her class for 9th period. He was upset, with a red face and eyes welling up with tears. He explained that Mr. Alvarez, in whose class he was during 8th period, had pushed him, and that Alvarez had said that he did not care if he lost his job. Leach sent him to the office and later filed a report. T. was the only student who had both Mr. Alvarez and Ms. Leach. Leach described T. as a student who received A's and B's in her class, but who sometimes needed redirection. Occasionally in such cases, Leach would call the boy's mother, who was a substitute in the district and was "very helpful." Leach recalled that some African-American and "Mexican" students complained to her that Alvarez yelled at them and was disrespectful. They in turn would sometimes refer to him as "Gilbert," a reference she at first mistook to refer to a student and not to a teacher. Caucasian students did not voice similar concerns about Alvarez.

Debora Goldsmith, a health and physical education teacher at the Lakewood Middle School, testified that she coached girl's soccer and Alvarez was the co-coach. Soccer team members were in the locker room by 2:10 p.m. and on the field by 2:20-2:25 p.m. While Alvarez was to be on the field by 2:20 to 2:25, during the second year of this arrangement, 2007-2008, there were a few times when Alvarez was late for practice. Some days he did not appear until 3 p.m. He did sometimes stay late, as she sometimes did, and they would then make the 5 p.m. bus. When he did appear he was a good coach. During the third year, 2008-2009, he was late "a lot." She asked him about this and he told her that he was on the computer in the library and forgot. Ms. Goldsmith characterized Alvarez's demeanor with the members of the soccer team, which consisted of a mixed group including African-Americans and Mexicans, as "fine."

Goldsmith also recalled that she had an occasion in October 2008 to go to his classroom for something about soccer. When she arrived, she found that Alvarez was upset. He asked her to "calm him down before he hit somebody." He only said that the kids were wild.

The Board called Gilbert Alvarez as its witness. Mr. Alvarez, who at the time of his testimony was sixty years old, holds a B.A. in Spanish Literature from Queens College and has completed all but his thesis for a Masters from Kean University. He holds supervisors and principals and teaching certificates and has been employed by the Lakewood Board of Educations since September 2004, teaching Spanish to 7th and 8th graders. He was previously employed as an educator in Nassau County, New York after working for, and ultimately being laid off in, a mass layoff at Verizon.

Mr. Alvarez admitted that on December 23, 2008, he pushed a desk at which T.B. was sitting.[1] The desk and chair constitute one physical unit. He admitted that he had allowed the students in this class to act in a manner that a teacher should not permit. He and the students argued and he let the situation go on too long. He "came down" to the student's level "too much" and then ended up pushing the desk with the student sitting in the desk.

Alvarez explained that at the start of this pre-holiday week, he had told the students that if they finished their work during Monday through Thursday, on Friday they would watch a movie as a reward for a job well done. On Friday, he set up the VHS/TV in front of the chalkboard in the front of the classroom. Children were permitted to sit where they wanted in two squares in front of the TV. One girl sat by herself, the rest of the students, all males, sat in front at two tables. After about a half hour, the students began to misbehave for a while. He asked them several times to be quiet. He asked T.B. to move to a different seat to "diffuse the situation." An argument ensued during which T.B. objected that he was being singled out. Alvarez asked that the students be quiet. He told the students that the movie was a "privilege" and "let's not lose it." Other students were also acting up. He asked that they "cease and desist." After a minute or two they acted up again. This happened about three or four times. They would calm down and then start again. They also began to chant his first name, which they appeared to think was funny. This was the first time they had done this. It was at this point, as giggling and comments continued, that he took off his glasses, put them down on his desk (which may have been heard by students) "came down," to the students' level by arguing with them, with he and they speaking harshly back and forth, particularly T.B. He asked that T.B. and the other students "please be quiet." They should not ruin the movie for everyone, it was "not right." During this "confrontation, Alvarez sent a student, C.T., out of the classroom, when he became "confrontational," "butted in" and "may have said something" while Alvarez was talking to T.B., asking that he be quiet. Alvarez agreed that the school has a policy against sending students to stand outside a classroom door and that his direction to C.T. violated that policy. After this happened, there was quiet, but the students then started to be disruptive once again. At some point T.B. said, that he could "take" Alvarez. The teacher replied, in a voice that he characterized as louder than a whisper and not intended for others to hear, that "You don't have the balls." Alvarez also said, "I don't have to take this crap," a comment that he acknowledged he should not have made, but which he also agreed he had used in the past as a "motivational tool to communicate to the student that I am serious and mean business." Nevertheless, after he said this, he moved forward perhaps six feet and pushed the desk with T.B. seated in the chair. It moved about two to two-and-one-half feet across the linoleum floor. Alvarez insisted that this was the first time that he had used the word "crap" in the classroom and the first time that he had pushed a desk. He denied having used "fucking," but he might have used "damn." He also agreed that at some point in this "escalating" episode T.B. said that Alvarez could not "touch me" because he "would lose his job," "throwing this" in Alvarez's face. Alvarez, responding to this by telling the student he could not act as he was in the classroom, also stated that he did not care if he lost his job. He agreed that this form of "head butting" with a student was not appropriate. However, he was not in a "fighting-like mode," and at first denied that he was "that mad," or that he was mad. Yet he acknowledged that the students knew that he was mad and said "of course," I was mad." Alvarez recalled that after he pushed the desk, he told T.B. that they should go someplace and talk and that they had to take a walk, proposing that they walk down to the office. He knew that there was a shortage of security guards in the school and he had never been shown where the panic button was located that would have allowed him to seek assistance. He intended to ask another teacher to watch his room. However, at this point the bell rang and the students simply left the classroom.

Alvarez explained that he had planned an easy day for the students on this day before the Christmas holiday and the students simply would not "go along with it." They were "collectively" throwing away the opportunity that he had provided for them.

Alvarez also testified about an event, or as he recalled it, two events, involving a Black 7th grade student named D.C. Alvarez, who denied any knowledge at the time that this student was classified or had an IEP, described him as a "high maintenance" student, constantly speaking out and conversing with people around him and constantly creating reasons for not doing his work. He would interrupt the class and keep others from learning, and had been acting in that fashion since the start of the school year. In either late October or early November, D.C. was "just going on and on and on and he wouldn't finish." Alvarez raised his voice "a little" so as to be heard and told D.C. to "'please, shut up,' like, you know, just enough, you know. 'We've heard from you for a long time. That's enough.'" He had had enough of his misconduct. Alvarez explained that the student had only sought help during a quiz when there was not to be any speaking. The directions were clearly presented. He never told D.C. to shut up on any other occasion. Alvarez believed that this event occurred on a separate day from another event where he placed D.C. outside of the classroom in the hallway. As for that time, he did not "throw" a chair in to the hallway, but "placed" it against the wall, during which there may have been a noise caused by the tile floor.

In November, Alvarez had a conference with the parents of D.C. and the child's case manager, Carol Bowers. Mrs. C. objected to his telling her son to "shut up." At this meeting, Alvarez first learned that D.C. was classified. Mrs. C. reported that his conduct at home was "more or less the same" as Alvarez described it and that D.C. just had to be refocused at times. Although Alvarez had thought that he had written up D.C. once or twice, the records do not reflect such write-ups and he apparently never did. He might not have because he felt bad for the boy's father, a police officer stationed at the High School and Middle School. He agreed that he was at fault for not advising the parents of his problems with their son, although he did speak to the father a couple of times in the school hallway. He explained that on the day that he told D.C. to shut up, the boy had been constantly not listening and was bothering people and he told him to shut up, not as a "reprimand . . . in a negative way. It was just like, 'D., come on,' you know," said, "out of frustration." Alvarez believed that while he did not directly apologize to the C.'s at the meeting, they did agree "to a resolution arrived to by all the parties at that meeting and that we would go on forward."

The respondent insisted that he did complete progress reports every week and would place these in front of the room and then give them to the students just prior to the bell. Students were responsible to give these reports to their parents. Progress reports for D.C. constantly noted that he talked excessively, got out of his seat and did not do the required work.

Alvarez denied that he had ever asked school principal Yuli to remove students from this class. But he admitted that he probably did tell her that he was having difficulty with discipline in this class or in other classes. He also probably remarked to her that the class was not taking the work seriously, comments that he characterized as "just typical teacher conversation." He explained that there was a time when sixteen students were removed from his class in 2008, but this was because there were not enough chairs for them. He denied requesting this action, but he had told the administration that he had students "standing around."

Alvarez was asked about P-9, an "Incident Description" prepared by Tina Rose Yuli on February 9, 2009, in which Yuli stated that he was "clearly exhibiting problems teaching Spanish to the overall student population as evidenced by numerous referrals, placing students outside of the room, and complaining about the students to the administration." He had done some referrals, but only recalled having referred C.T. once or twice and not T.B., who had only been in the class for two weeks before the December 23 incident. As for placing students outside the class, he only recalled having done this with C.T. on December 23 and D.C. As for complaints about his students, he explained that he did express to Yuli, informally, that the students were a "big problem," because all my classes were "Achievers", meaning that, in the school's parlance, they were students who had difficulty in class, mostly behavior problems. In fact, while he was not certain if the eighth period class in which he encountered the difficulty on December 23, was an Achievers class, at least his second and third period classes were Achievers. He told Yuli that "they're a handful and they're not easy to deal with." He agreed that students were not listening and did not "take life seriously."

Lakewood has a Caucasian student population of sixteen percent. Almost every student that Alvarez had in his classes was Black or Hispanic, not Caucasian. Indeed, the questions posed to him at hearing suggested that the Hispanic population was Mexican, but no evidence in the record demonstrates the background or country of origin of the non-Black, non-Caucasian student population. However, it is clear that there were a significant number of "Mexican" students.

Mr. Alvarez denied that he told Lakewood Education Association President Carol Cousins that he had an anger problem, but he acknowledged that he did get angry, and that he did so in class, adding, "Who doesn't." He would yell on occasion, when the students "need it." He accepted that if Ms. Goldsmith testified that he had commented to her that she needed to calm him down and that he was going to hit somebody that it is likely that he did say that. As for appearing late at soccer practice, he may have done so a few times, but he had an agreement to do so because he could not be in the locker room at 2:10 with the girls and would stay late.

Alvarez was asked about an interrogatory answer regarding his frustration as a teacher. He responded that his frustration > stems from lack of success in affecting a positive response in the lives of my students at LMS, many of whom are socially and/or economically disadvantaged and who are classified in the classroom, the athletic field or the community at large.

To this, the witness added "not being able to do - - to - - to elicit more success from my students, not being able to convey the value and opportunity that they have to build a successful educational career." He was sure that he had conveyed this frustration in conversation with administrators.

D.C., now thirteen years old and a classified student at Lakewood Middle School who is blind in one eye, testified that his experience in Mr. Alvarez's class was "scary," due "mostly to all the yelling." He would tell the class to "shut up" and call the students "stupid." He told D.C. to "shut up" when he asked Alvarez for help and once when he asked Alvarez for a pencil. Once, when he needed help for something that he did not understand, Alvarez told him to "shut up" and when D. asked him again, the teacher told him to "get out." Alvarez opened the door and when D.C.

> was walking slow- - I was walking slow to get out of the door and I asked him, "what did I do?" He pushed me out of the door and he closed the door and I looked through and he was getting a chair and he came back in the hallway and > threw the chair against the hallway and said, "Sit down" and he slammed the door.

The witness said that when Alvarez pushed him, he did so not "with a light tap." He was put out of Alvarez's room three other times, each time not simply because he was talking but because he asked for help, which made Alvarez mad.

Mr. C. acknowledged that sometimes he talked in class or misbehaved. It was not unusual for Alvarez to yell at the class, on an average, he would tell the class "maybe about ten" times a week, to "shut up." C. never told other teachers, his guidance counselor Ms. Bowers, or the vice principal that Alvarez was not helping him. His mother told Bowers. He did tell his parents about the push. He remained in Alvarez's class for about a week after the meeting and then was transferred to an Art class at his request.

Mrs. G.C., mother of D.C., confirmed that she had heard her son voice at least several complaints about Alvarez's yelling at the class starting with the beginning of the school year in September. In November, she learned of an incident in which her son was put out of the room and Alvarez "threw a chair." She first learned of this incident when D.C. called her from school, upset and crying so that she could not understand him. D. later related to her that he had been shoved out of the room and that Alvarez had told him that "I don't even want to look at you." Once she heard of this incident, she tried to see both points of view, but given the number of complaints, she felt that things had reached a point where she needed to understand what was going on. She contacted Ms. Yuli and Ms. Bowers about the call, and this resulted in conference with Alvarez. She had never received any call from him about any behavior problem with D., nor had she received any information on the progress reports she had prepared for teachers to fill out, which he did not fill out. At the meeting, Alvarez related that D. was talkative. She asked why he had not notified her and he told her that he did not have the time to do progress reports, either those she had prepared or as were supposed to be provided in accordance with his IEP. When she asked about his having told the kids to "shut up," he told her that > Sometimes, the kids just, you know, you can't imagine how these kids, you know. Sometimes, they just - - they can really - - by the end of the day, these kids, you wouldn't believe. You wouldn't believe.

After she told him that while she understood how kids could get, nevertheless she and her husband never told their child to "shut up," or to "get out of our face," or "I don't want to look at you," he never denied having said any of these things. He only said that what she understood to have been a shove was not such as he recalled it. She brought up about the chair being thrown and he did not dispute that. But when he apologized, she wanted to give him the benefit of the doubt, thinking that maybe all he needed was a parent to confront him about his conduct. His was the only Spanish class available, and she felt that as a parent she should not have to make the decision whether to have her child stay in the class or be removed to another class due to the teacher's conduct. She gave Alvarez her home and cell phone numbers. However, after the meeting, things did not change and D. came home from school asking what had happened at the meeting because Alvarez was really mad at him, yelling even if he just raised his hand and telling him that he should put his hand down as he did not even want to hear from D. D. said that he should never have even said anything about the incident. Things were worse than they had been before he did. D.'s whole demeanor changed, "like he's just broken and he was actually kind of upset."

T.B., now fourteen years old, testified that on December 23, prior to Alvarez's pushing the desk, the teacher's eyes were popping, he threw his glasses toward Alvarez's desk, he looked very mad and said that he did not care if he lost his job. He then pushed an empty desk located directly to the left of the desk that T. was seated in, thereby pushing his desk against the heater, catching T.'s pinky against the heater and causing it to swell. When he told his mother about what happened, she called the school.

T.B. related that he entered Alvarez's class in December. The teacher yelled a lot and told the students to shut up almost every day. The two Caucasian students in the class, J., a male, and F., a female, never got in trouble, even though J. was one of the students who was saying "Gilbert" when T.C. was "kicked out of the room." When Alvarez would say to shut up, he would "go to somebody's face, actually." He would point his finger at someone, and the witness demonstrated this with his finger about eighteen inches to two feet from the face of Board counsel.

T. B. acknowledged that he did not tell anyone about how Alvarez acted from the time he entered the class in early December up to December 23. He did not think that anyone would believe him. However, he felt like a "prisoner" in the class, "because he [Alvarez] was always- - used to yell a lot and always used to have to do what he says."

On cross-examination, T. described how, on December 23, after about ten minutes of watching a movie, there was some conversation amongst students about Christmas and then his friends were saying "Gilbert." He did not know what that meant, but he started to say it as well. Alvarez got "really mad." The repetition of "Gilbert" was going on for about thirty minutes, during which time T. was saying "Gilbert" for "around probably like fifteen minutes." He then clarified that during these time frames, students, including him, would intermittently say "Gilbert." The movie had by then been shut off and the students instructed to put their heads down on their desks. As for the teacher's comment that he and T. should go walk to another room, he thought that Alvarez was going to "fight" him. Although Alvarez did not say that, "it sounded like he did" and he was so mad and his veins were popping.

T. had been in trouble with Alvarez once before, when he was told to stand outside of the classroom. Other times, "every time when I would open my mouth," the teacher told him to shut up.

F.C., a fifteen-year-old female student, confirmed that as Alvarez was yelling at T.B. that he "might lose my job," he took off his glasses as he got up from his desk, went to T.'s desk, asked if T. thought he (T.) was "funny", and said, "but I bet you don't got the balls to say it again." When the desk was pushed, T. said "ow, my arm." She was a foot away from T. She also agreed that Alvarez "scared me a little" and "seemed like a person who scared people."

C.G., who gave a statement about the December 23 incident in which he characterized Alvarez as getting mad and having "exploded," testified that he turned red and started to get mad and yelled. T. looked "scared." The reference by Alvarez to taking a walk was made in a mean way. Once again, this witness said that Alvarez yelled a lot, but he also never told anyone about this. Kids made fun of Alvarez's name "daily."

Tina Rose Yuli, currently the principal of Lakewood High School, was the principal of the Lakewood Middle School for the past two years. When she arrived at that school it was in "total dysfunction," without "order or discipline," with the teachers acting in a very complaisant manner. In 2007-08, Yuli encountered problems with Mr. Alvarez. He had problems with lesson plans and missed a faculty meeting. Then, in November 2008, she was advised by a guard that D.C. had been put out of a classroom and was in the office making a call home. He explained that Alvarez was yelling at him and D. was upset, as was his mother after he called her. Yuli set up a meeting with the parents and Alvarez. There was discussion about Alvarez having told the boy to shut up in front of others, thereby embarrassing him. Alvarez admitted saying this and apologized. He admitted having touched D., but he did not "exactly" shove him. Instead, he "escorted" him out. He agreed that he had lost his patience.

Yuli had advised teachers on the very first day of the school year that they were not to put children or chairs in to the hallway. Instead, if they had trouble with a student and needed the child removed they were to contact security and could press a panic button if need be. Yuli added,

> You're not supposed to put a student out because it's considered corporal punishment that they be put out of the room and then of course they're unsupervised.

Principal Yuli was asked about the allegation that Mr. Alvarez had "less than favorable interactions with students of Mexican or African American heritage." During her first year in the Middle School, "a lot" of students would be put out of his room and "they were Mexican students." When she would question students sent to the office, they would tell her that Alvarez had told them to leave or had thrown them out and would relate "You know, Miss, he doesn't like Mexicans." She explained that she spoke to these students about how they could be > better disciplined in the room, how they could better behave, how they could be better prepared. We heard that a lot. I heard that a lot year one. . . . By year two the building was better organized . . . and there was absolutely no way any student would ever be out in the hall leaving the classroom or being put out, because that was something that we put a definite stop to and so year two actually Mr. Alvarez had a conversation with me and he sort of explained that he was having trouble with the class and that he felt that they weren't really serious and didn't really want to learn and he was struggling with the group and so - - A class of student on the I guess the class that we're - - speaking about, that they weren't serious and they were giving him trouble and sometimes - - he didn't think they felt they were academic enough, that they took education seriously. So I ended up moving some students out of the room during the course of that year. . . . I moved out mostly Mexican students.

Yuli was pressed by this judge as to the identity of this group of students that Alvarez was complaining about.

> Q. did he express to you specifically that he was having problems with Mexican students?
> A. He used the word "they."
> Q. They. Did he define who "they" were?
> A. He said, "they, the kids, they don't - - they don't listen" . . .They're not listening." Then he gave a few names and I'm trying to remember some of the names. It was I guess a boy named E. and another girl, S. You know, they happened to be Mexican kids. . . .

Counsel for the District proceeded

> Q. When you saw that he had a less than favorable interactions with students of Mexican or African American heritage, how do you know that?
> A. Because the kids said it. . . . They said, Miss, he doesn't like us and he doesn't like Mexicans. He puts us - - he doesn't teach us. He puts us in the back of the room. He throws us out. He picks on us.

During her first year in the school, Yuli did not really believe this talk. However, by year two she did, as the building became "much more organized and there was a whole different atmosphere . . . So it started to seem to me like there might be some - -." When she asked Alvarez about this, that is, that students reported that he did not like students because they were Mexican, that he put them in the back of the room, > he would get a little frustrated with me and sort of say, you know, "They don't want to learn" and that "they're not prepared and they're not, you know, they're giving me a hard time and no matter what I do it's not working." He really would not admit to not liking the ethnic group, but he did - - absolutely was frustrated with the kids.

Yuli pressed the issue with Alvarez.

> I said, "The kids feel that you don't like them. They feel you have a problem with them because of their ethnicity," but he didn't admit to that.

Yuli was asked whether it might be possible that the Caucasian students in the school simply did not misbehave, but she characterized all of the students as "middle school students" who all "behave the same and we were a failing school. . . The kids were very similar in terms of their ability."

On cross-examination, Ms. Yuli acknowledged that neither D.C. nor his mother mentioned anything about a chair having been pushed or thrown out of the room into the hallway when he was sent outside the room in the November incident that led to the meeting between Alvarez and C.'s mother. However, she recalled that she "heard it was pushed out of the room." Yuli also agreed that Alvarez, who taught all of the Spanish classes at the Middle School, probably three or four classes in total, did not complain about any one class more than any other. She never reported anything about Ms. Goldsmith's complaints about Alvarez as a soccer coach because Goldsmith did not want to pursue the matter. She did write him up for missing a staff meeting and asked his colleagues if they knew where he was. She received a letter from Alvarez who explained that he had "something else to do." She never followed up with any calls to any doctors. She agreed that she never received any reports of any "racial" remarks by Alvarez. She denied that any students were moved out of Alvarez's room due a lack of seats, as he testified had occurred.

Annette Maldonado, the principal of Lakewood Middle School who served as the assistant principal for the immediate past two school years, testified that she was aware that quite a few students were sent out of the classroom and to the main office. She would speak with them and they reported that "Alvarez doesn't like the Mexicans," always yelling and screaming at them, kicking them out of class. When she tried to counsel them to be prepared, take their seats and give respect when they were in the classroom, students would respond, "We don't give respect when it's not given to us." She reported the information about what was occurring to Mexican males to Principal Yuli, but she never wrote this information up and she never spoke to Alvarez about the issues. Maldonado asserted that students told her that Alvarez made racial remarks to them, but while she claimed to have written them down, she did not have them with her. Nevertheless, she claimed that "absolutely" these students had told her that "he dislikes or he hates Mexican." Asked to clarify if they were reporting his comments or their perceptions, she answered, "The words that came out of their mouths was, 'He doesn't like us, he doesn't like Mexicans.'" Alvarez never expressed any racial or ethnic comments about Mexican students to Maldonado.

Sharon Freeland, a special education teacher employed in the Lakewood schools for eleven years, provided in-class support in Mr. Alvarez's classroom in 2006-2007. This class, in which the students' ages ranged from fourteen to seventeen years of age, was held in the district's alternative school, attended by students with behavioral issues as well as students who had special needs. Perhaps five to ten times, Alvarez got angry and told students to "shut up." Freeland would calm Alvarez down. One day he had to leave the class and she took over for him. She did not write any reports about any of this, but did advise school Principal Weinberg. She was aware of students who complained about Alvarez.

Joann Gryszkiewicz, a retired teacher who served in the Lakewood district for forty-one years, served as a language arts teacher and a literacy coach. She currently consults for the district. She recalled that sometime in 2005, a student ran into her room at the time the home room bell rang and was "visibly shaken." When she approached the student and began to speak to him he merely mentioned Alvarez's name. He was "kind of white" and appeared ready to cry. At this point, Alvarez "burst" into the room, without knocking or asking permission to see the student. She was "frightened", "tense that there could be something wrong happening." Alvarez was angry, red faced, "kind of clutch[ing"]his hands. His tone of voice also denoted anger. She does not recall precisely what was said, but she and another, now retired, teacher also in the room at the time "stopped him" as he was coming towards the student. Later, Alvarez apologized to the teachers and she had a "great relationship" with him thereafter.

Randy Holmes, a special education teacher for eleven years currently serving in Lakewood High School, assisted in Alvarez's classroom during the 2007-2008 school year. Alvarez was a good teacher, got along with the kids in his class, was prepared for class, and never displayed any inappropriate demeanor toward the students.

Dominic Bizzaro, now retired, and formerly an untenured teacher who was laid off by Lakewood, had served for sixteen years at the alternative school. He taught social studies and shared a classroom with Alvarez during period one for 2008-2009 and part of the previous year. He observed Alvarez teaching and encouraging students and heard no complaints from students about Alvarez. He was unaware of the basis for the tenure charges.

Nicole Sivolella, a French teacher in Lakewood Middle School for five years, had a classroom across the hall from Alvarez starting in August 2005. She described "a tough couple years before the new administration took over in 2007." She had interactions with Alvarez before the change in administration, but after this change she noted that Alvarez's attitude towards the district changed. He would complain about the students and to meeting with the new leadership. In 2007-2008, students started to complain to her that they wanted to take French because they were not learning anything in Spanish. One time a "bunch" of kids came up to her in the hallway and she asked where they were going. They responded that they were going to the library and that "Mr. Alvarez sends all the Mexicans to the library." They told her that he "does not like Mexicans" and sends them to the library "quite often." Other times students came up to her in the hallway individually, saying that they wanted to take French, that Alvarez was a "racist" "doesn't like Mexicans" "singles us out" and "doesn't teach us." She also told an administrator that she stayed away form Alvarez, as "he scares me." This comment resulted from an incident in which he approached her in what seemed to be an agitated state, huffing and puffing and grimacing, asking her for the combination to a cabinet that was not hers. She felt that he thought that she was lying about not having the combination. He walked away, huffing and shaking his head.

Ms. Sivolella acknowledged that in that 2007-2008 school year, all teachers had "challenging" students in their classrooms, "challenging" but very workable kids. Eighty percent were Latino. She never heard what Alvarez said about Mexicans. Asked on cross-examination what specifically the students said to her about Mexican or Latino students, she answered,

> They said things like the book work is very ridiculous how he - - you know, what he was giving them to teach, that things were - - there was no supplemental information that was a little more difficult for them or because they spoke Spanish already there was no differentiated instruction.

She could recall no specifics as to what Alvarez was supposedly saying to the students about not liking Mexicans, but believed that what they were telling her about that subject was both their perception and a reflection of what he actually said to them. She did not write anything about these complaints or alert the administration.

Gilbert Alvarez confirmed that he entered Ms. Gryszkiewicz's room and that he subsequently apologized to her and the other teacher for interrupting their classroom. The student involved had been in the hallway, wearing a cap that he would not remove when asked to do so. The administration was trying to enforce a ban on wearing caps in the building. The student did finally remove the cap after several requests and then after taking five or six steps, put it back on and entered the classroom, "looking for sanctuary." Alvarez followed and as the door was open he quickly entered behind the student to get the hat from him. He is "pretty sure" that he told the two teachers that the student was refusing to remove his cap. He acknowledged that it was a "breach of protocol" to walk into another teacher's classroom unannounced. He was mad at the student's conduct. He is "sure that he apologized on the way out of the room and may have also apologized at a later time."

As for Ms. Freeland's testimony, Alvarez had no reason to doubt her recollection of his having told students to shut up. There was less shouting than she indicated. He did get mad one day and walk out of the room when a "rough crowd" of seniors were not paying attention. He told Freeland that he was going to walk out of the room, which he could "legally" do, and was going to "cool off."

Finally, he acknowledged that, as Ms. Sivolella testified, he did send perhaps three or four students a week out of, as he recalled, mostly the fifth period class, asking that they go to the office. If security was available, he would ask for an escort, but if not, he would send them on their own.

Alvarez explained that his arrangement with Ms. Goldsmith was that he would meet the team on the practice field at between 2:30 and 2:40 p.m. after Goldsmith handled the locker room duties. He would get water if needed. He would also stay late.

Addressing the comments regarding the Mexican and African-American students, he acknowledged that he had sent students out of the classroom who "happened to be" Mexicans. He sent them to the library. They were "Hispanics" and were "very good students" who had > pressing scholastic issues with other subjects and I considered it a waste of time to be sitting in a seventh grade remedial level Spanish class and maybe once a week I would send two or three of these good students with a pass to the library with permission of the librarian, so that they could do other work or extra work that they were really pressed for rather than a remedial Spanish that they already knew.

He denied making any derogatory remarks about any student's ethnic or racial background.[2]

Applicable Standards

Pursuant to the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:35-1, a tenured teacher may not be removed from his position unless a school board successfully establishes by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the teacher has engaged in unbecoming conduct or other similar charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Matter of Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982); N.J.A.C. 18A:6-10. "Unbecoming conduct" is broadly defined as "any conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the [governmental unit] or which has a tendency to destroy public respect for municipal employees and confidence in the operation of municipal services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532 (1998), at 554. (internal quotation and citations omitted). In the Matter of Anthony Nicosia, A-5285-04T5 (App. Div. May 17, 2007). The conduct need not be "predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye." In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136,140 (App. Div. 1960). And because a teacher is both a role model and is entrusted with the care and education of minors, the public is entitled to expect that they will fulfill their roles with a high degree of responsibility.

In Saunders v. New Jersey Dep't of Educ., 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 12, 14, Administrative Law Judge Mumtaz Bari-Brown wrote:

> The educator imparts on her students not only academic knowledge, but also the development of social and moral values that are expected from parents, law enforcement officials, and the general public. Thus, teachers must be > held to a higher standard of conduct than others who do not in their profession have direct contact with molding habits and nurturing young minds. Suffice it to say, children mimic what they see and they learn by example. Clearly, teachers play a direct role in influencing the opinions of their pupils and, indeed, teachers are role models. Teachers often impart the goals set by their students and the direction they take in achieving those goals.

Another expression of the role of the teacher

> Teachers are public employees who hold positions demanding public trust, and in such positions, they teach, inform, and mold habits and attitudes and influence the opinions of their pupils. Pupils learn, therefore, not only what they are taught by the teacher, but what they see, hear, experience and learn about the teacher." The Tenure Charge document filed by Lakewood with the Commissioner of Education, signed by the Acting Superintendent of Schools and the Building Principal and Assistant Principal of the Lakewood Middle School, referred most prominently to the December 23, 2008 incident related above involving Alvarez's actions in the 8th period class, most particularly in regard to an unnamed student now known to be T.B. In addition thereto, the document noted alleged prior concerns about Alvarez's demeanor and performance. The document itself did not characterize these other matters of concern as distinct examples of unbecoming conduct or as evidence of any unfitness to teach. The Board's "Certificate of Determination In the Matter of Gilbert Alvarez" merely recited that the Board had probable cause to support tenure charges that were sufficient to warrant termination of employment and suspension without pay. However, when the parties attempted to settle this matter, the Commissioner of Education, in a decision rejecting the settlement and remanding the case to OAL for a hearing, referenced comments made in briefs filed by Lakewood at the OAL in which the Board's attorney referred to respondent as a "danger to students" and as one who "had a detrimental impact upon them" and noted her concern that the charges raised "serious questions not only about the propriety of a teacher's continued presence in the district, but also about his fitness to serve in that position anywhere." In view of these comments, while the formal set of allegations did not specifically raise "unfitness" as an issue, the Commissioner has, in effect, determined that that is a matter to be considered in resolving this case. And while the Board did not characterize the issue as one of "unfitness," the allegations of the use of physical force to push desks, expressions of anger in the classroom, both verbal and physical, and the possibility of a bias against a racial or ethnic group which may have manifested itself in conduct by a teacher toward members of that group do raise concerns that are most appropriately characterized as whether the tenured employee is fit to teach. Unfitness to remain as a teacher may be demonstrated by a single incident if it is sufficiently flagrant, although in less serious matters progressive disciplinary measures may be more appropriate. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967).

Discussion

The Board of Education has presented evidence about a number of incidents that it contends demonstrate that Mr. Alvarez engaged in misconduct and, in the words of the Commissioner, may be unfit to teach. While the primary event which clearly triggered these charges and is the main item addressed in the written charges is the December 23, 2008 incident that included the pushing of the desks, the Board charges also reference additional circumstances that the Board believes demonstrates a pattern of behaviors indicative of inappropriate conduct for a tenured teacher. While some of the evidence of such allegations, such as being late to soccer practice and missing a staff meeting, are, as they are described in the record and to be charitable, unworthy of consideration in the context of an attempt to oust a tenured teacher, others require serious review.

Initially, I FIND that, as is apparent from the testimony and documentary record, Mr. Alvarez does not dispute that his conduct on December 23, 2008 was inappropriate. He rather readily acknowledged that he had argued with his pupils, shouted, used language such as "balls" and "crap" that was surely inappropriate for a teacher to use in a classroom, that he had "come down" to the level of his adolescent students rather than present the proper attitude and conduct of a teacher, that he was "mad," that he voiced his lack of concern as to whether he lost his job (albeit as he says as a tactic to gain serious attention from the student(s)), that he had shoved an empty desk which then pushed another desk (in which student T.B. was seated) into a heater, that he had pushed the desk purposely, that he had sent another student, C.T., out of the room into the hallway in violation of the school policy against placing students in the hallway (an action he acknowledged he had previously done in similar violation of policy) and that he told T.B. that they should "take a walk." He does not acknowledge using the word "fucking," and it is not clear whether he simply is unsure if T.B.'s finger was hurt when the desk was pushed or whether he disputes that any physical injury occurred. Regardless of these latter details, it is apparent that while the Board has presented multiple pieces of evidence to establish that the incident occurred, that fact, and the fundamental and legally essential elements thereof, are not actually at issue. Further, I FIND that there is no doubt about the fact that, prior to Mr. Alvarez "losing his cool" and descending to a level nearer that of his students than of the "in-control" teacher he should have been, most of the members of his class, given a chance to watch a movie as a reward for having done their work, allowed themselves to degenerate into a group of somewhat unruly, disrespectful adolescents who mocked and provoked their teacher and refused to quiet down and simply watch the movie. That they acted as they did is in no way condoned. However, the fact that they were unwilling to listen to Alvarez's requests to behave and continued to misbehave cannot, in the end, justify the failure of Alvarez to act in accordance with the high standard to which he is held.

The respondent strenuously argues that considering the events of December 23, and most directly the pushing of the desk as the central element thereof, that even to the degree such conduct was admittedly inappropriate and conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher, the sanction for such misconduct cannot properly be removal of tenure. He cites cases in which teachers have used force, including corporeal punishment, and yet have not lost their tenure even where found to have acted inappropriately. But the Board's charges in the current case go beyond the single event of December 23, 2008, and seek to portray a teacher who, for reasons that the Board asserts may arise from his frustration with his job and with the students he is required to try to teach, has simply lost the ability to approach his job responsibilities in a proper professional manner. As such, the Board does not see the issue of tenure removal as focusing only on the improprieties of the December event. And while it is true that Mr. Alvarez was never charged in any disciplinary proceeding or tenure action for any of the alleged conduct preceding the December 23, 2008 incident, there is no automatic bar to consideration of these matters in regard to the propriety of his continued tenure status. Indeed, the Board has noted these matters in the tenure charges.

Although not the first chronologically, one of these other matters is the episode, or episodes, involving D.C. While Mr. Alvarez believed that he told D.C. to "shut up" on a different day from that on which he ordered him out of the room, I am persuaded that while he may have told him to "shut up" on another day, he also did so the day he removed him from the room, which appears to have been in November 2008. I FIND that Alvarez admits that on this particular day he placed the student in the hallway, by doing so again acting in violation of the school policy against such action. But D.C. testified that he was pushed when he walked slowly towards the door. Also, he claims that Alvarez then pushed or threw a chair into the hallway for him to sit in. While the violation of the policy itself demonstrates inappropriate conduct to some degree, given the December incident, with its own element of force and anger, the allegation of physical contact and of forceful ejection of the student and the chair may raise significant concern about the respondent's fitness.

Ms. Yuli acknowledged that that neither D.C. nor his mother mentioned anything about a chair having been pushed or thrown out of the room into the hallway. However, she recalled that she "heard it was pushed out of the room." Alvarez claimed that the chair was "placed against the wall," but the noise may have been from the chair on the tile floor and as it "struck the wall when it got put down." Based upon the evidence of Mr. Alvarez having reached a level of frustration and displeasure with D.C. over time and his having determined that the boy should be removed from the classroom, I FIND by the preponderance of the credible evidence that he did place his hand upon D. and use a limited degree of physical "force" to "encourage" his exit from the room when the student did not move on his own at a pace that satisfied Alvarez. It may be too much to say that he shoved him, but I FIND that he did not allow D. to exit on his own either. The amount of force involved was more than a gentle tap or hand on the shoulder.

Perhaps it was enough force to warrant the term "push, but likely it was less than a forceful "shove." As for the chair, I FIND that he placed the chair out in the hallway with some forcefulness, not gently, but to say that he threw it would be to claim too much.

Another incident which the Board presented was that testified to by Ms. Goldsmith. Her testimony of an October 2008 incident when Alvarez asked for her assistance so that he would not "hit somebody" was essentially conceded to be true by Alvarez. As such, I FIND that the incident occurred as described by Goldsmith. Again, the Board contends this demonstrates that as a teacher, Alvarez could not deal with the pressures and frustrations that arose from a combination of sometimes unruly, or at least less than attentive students who were, also in his view, tragically less that motivated. Again, while here no physical consequence occurred as a result of his response to these factors, the Board might well contend that was a fortuitous result of his reaching out to Goldsmith for assistance. Perhaps so, although of course any suggestion that he might actually have followed through and struck someone is purely conjecture. As for the incident described by Joann Gryszkiewicz, I FIND that, once again, Mr. Alvarez's conduct in bursting into her room unannounced and without knocking, to pursue a student who was violating a rule about hats and was "defiant" towards Alvarez, suggests someone who let his frustrations and his temper get the best of him, a trait that could be considered to have culminated in the December 2008 incident involving T.B. and the desk. Finally, I FIND that the credible testimony of Ms. Freeland, which Alvarez essentially accepted with only some contention that the shouting was less than she recalled, only confirms that the respondent has had issues with controlling his anger, emotions, and frustrations for several years.

Perhaps the most damning charge against Alvarez is that he has a "less than favorable" attitude toward Mexican-American students. In the Tenure Charges, this description is also utilized with regard to African-American students, but the evidence offered to support the allegation of some ethnic or racial disfavor on Alvarez's part is overwhelmingly in regard to students of Mexican-American heritage. The nature of this charge is interesting. The charges do not state that Alvarez is a racist, or that he holds any biased attitude toward minorities, but only that his "interactions" are "unfavorable" with certain groups of students who happen to be members of racial or ethnic minorities, albeit in this district they are separately or at least together, substantially in the majority of the student population. No one has offered any specific direct evidence that Alvarez has ever voiced any racial epithets, or has openly expressed any racially insensitive or outright bigoted language. Yet, a number of witnesses point to their interactions with students who they claim complained to them that the teacher did not like "Mexicans," that he sent them out of his classroom, that he "singled" them out, that he did not teach them anything worthwhile in his Spanish classes, even that he was a racist. None of the students who supposedly voiced these comments testified in this hearing, and all of the information about Alvarez's actions toward them, their comments about him and their perceptions was offered as hearsay by others, hearsay that is admissible in an administrative hearing but which cannot itself serve as the basis for a material finding unless supported by competent evidence. But in light of this testimony, the Board's allegation of "unfavorable interactions" must be considered to be the result of some anti-Mexican, anti Mexican-American bias, a most serious contention. In this regard, it is fair to say that the evidence suggests that Alvarez, a proud man of Cuban heritage who has most assuredly used his brains and his own motivation to succeed, wanted and even expected that students of Hispanic heritage, including Mexican-Americans, would likewise motivate themselves to succeed, would apply themselves to their school work and would desire to achieve. It is also fair to conclude that he was frustrated by what he saw as a less than motivated group of such students. Indeed, Ms. Yuli's testimony about her having confronted Alvarez about the issue confirms that he voiced such frustrations and disappointments to her. But I FIND that the fact that he had such feelings, while they may explain in some part his actions as described, does not establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that he has any bias toward Mexican-American students as such or that his actions toward them were motivated by an "unfavorable" attitude towards them as an ethnic group. It may better be seen that he had an "unfavorable attitude" toward the attitudes and actions of some students who were of Mexican heritage which he found difficult to deal with due to his concern for their advancement, and that, as apparent from the other incidents in this case, his inability to properly deal with his frustrations and anger caused him to at times act towards students in a manner that was less than appropriate and which they might have believed was motivated by some negative attitude towards them as a ethnic group.

Conclusion

Based upon the credible evidence, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Alvarez engaged in inappropriate and unbecoming conduct for a tenured teacher. His repeated inability to properly control and channel his frustration and anger at the conduct, attitudes and faults of his students led him to outbursts of inappropriate language, to the use of words and phrases not proper for a teacher to utilize in a classroom setting, to the use of physical force to push a student out of a room and to push a desk that he must have known would also cause another desk with a student in it to be similarly pushed. He also violated school policy on several occasions by removing students to the hallway when such action was not permitted. And on more than one occasion, he himself appears to have recognized that his emotions had the best of him and that if he did not "cool down" or was not calmed down by another faculty member he might "lose it" and might even "hit someone," a concern whose validity may be said to have been confirmed by his actions on December 23, 2009. Given these findings and conclusions, the Commissioner's question as to whether Mr. Alvarez is fit to teach must be confronted. But, at the same time, it must be recognized that now that the evidence has been fully presented and the Board has failed to demonstrate any sustainable basis for any suggestion that Alvarez is biased against African-American and/or Mexican-American students, the issue of his fitness, as well as the direct question of what sanction should be imposed, must be decided only in regard to the allegations of misconduct proven in this case and not on any unproven suspicions.

Remedy

As was noted earlier, the respondent has argued that the December 23, 2008 incident is the sole event under consideration and as such, he contends that removal of tenure cannot properly be imposed for the misconduct found to have occurred on that date. Indeed, dismissal of a tenured teacher for one incident of misconduct is warranted only where the conduct is egregious, is of such quality and character that measures short of the ultimate disciplinary sanction are simply inappropriate. Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup Ct. 1943). The concept of progressive discipline, generally applicable to public employees including tenured teachers, can be set aside where the circumstances warrant. Carter v. Bordentown, 191 N.J. 474 (2007).

Counsel for Mr. Alvarez has conceded that he is not sure whether the incident of December 23, 2008 can properly be characterized as one involving the infliction of corporal punishment. He cites Craze v. Allendale Board of Education, 1938 S.L.D. 585, in which the Commissioner of Education defined corporal punishment as "any punishment causing or intended to cause bodily pain or suffering." He notes that in this case there is no evidence that Alvarez pushed the desk in order to inflict any bodily pain or suffering on T.B. There was no direct physical contact with the student and no intent to injure. Nevertheless, he has argued that the cases involving corporal punishment can be considered in determining the proper discipline, and that these cases generally support the proposition that one instance of corporal punishment is not deserving of loss of tenure. Indeed, it is not clear that this case is about corporal punishment. A review of cases in which there has been physical contact between a teacher and a student may be helpful. They seem to reflect that the line between what is viewed as corporal punishment and what is instead considered as some other form of physical contact with students that is not within that "punishment" zone is sometimes unclear. Additionally, cases in which a teacher's conduct, which has led to anger, emotional outbursts and even physical contact with a student, and which has or may have been, at least in part, the result of the teacher's frustration and difficulty in coping with the sometimes difficult situations that they must face in carrying out their tasks are relevant to the inquiry.

The Commissioner of Education has long recognized that teachers are often faced with frustrating and difficult experiences as they attempt to carry out their vital role in society. Yet, while acknowledging that frustration is a hurdle that must met, the Commissioner has also noted that it provides no excuse of the use of corporal punishment.

> While the Commissioner understands the exasperations and frustrations that often accompany the teacher's functions, he cannot condone resort to force and fear as appropriate > procedures in dealing with pupils, even those whose recalcitrance appears to be open defiance. The Commissioner finds in the century-old defiance. The Commissioner finds in the century-old statute prohibiting corporal punishment (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1) an underlying philosophy that an individual has a right not only to freedom from bodily harm but also to freedom from offensive bodily touching even though there be no actual physical harm. . . such a philosophy with its prohibition of the use of corporal punishment or physical enforcement does not leave a teacher helpless to control his pupils. Competent teachers never find it necessary to resort to physical force or violence to maintain discipline or compel obedience. . . . Thus, when teachers resort to unnecessary and inappropriate physical contact with those in their charge [they] must expect to face dismissal or other severe penalty.

In Craze, supra, the teacher pulled a nine-year-old child's hair to redirect his attention when he turned around and talked while she was teaching a lesson. The Commissioner of Education considered this to have a "disciplinary flavor", relying in part on evidence of other occasions where the teacher had similarly pulled hair as proof of an intent and of a general policy to utilize corporal punishment in violation of the accepted rules and upheld her removal. However, on review the State Board of Education did not agree with the Commissioner's characterization of the event. Instead, it found that there was no corporal punishment involved, as the act was not done with the intent to inflict pain as a penalty for an infraction but merely to direct attention. Craze, supra at 588.

In In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), students were passing a pocketbook around from desk to desk. The bag came to rest on a male pupil's desk. The teacher dropped his textbook on a student's desk, proceeded to the desk of the boy on whose desk the pocketbook rested, laid his hands on the boy, and when the boy went to the front of the room and was directed to return to his seat but instead bolted from the room, chased the boy, grabbed him and both fell. The Commissioner found no justification for the use of physical force to maintain discipline or to punish infractions. However, he did not find that the teacher's conduct was "premeditated, cruel or done with intent to inflict corporal punishment." Instead, the actions bespoke "a hasty and misguided effort to restrain" the student. Given Fulcomer's "great many years" of service, good record and an unquestioned ability to teach, removal from tenure was simply too great a penalty.

In In re Tiefenbacher, 1983 S.L.D. 1648, the teacher twisted the face of a student in the hallway following a classroom incident between the two and the student's subsequent attempt to return to the classroom. The Commissioner speaks of the "highly charged emotional atmosphere attendant to the incidents involving the teacher and student a short time before, and determined that as the teacher had an unblemished record of sixteen years of service "without exhibition of reprehensible disciplinary behavior toward his students" that removal was inappropriate. He remanded the case for consideration of lesser penalties, with the factors identified in Fulcomer as guides. These included the societal needs and interests, the offender's history, any propensity for like conduct in the future and the probable effect upon the latter of the choice of a reasonable penalty. "The question that must be answered is whether the offense was of so flagrant a nature and the prospect for the future so dim as to require the ultimate punishment available." Id. at 1653.

In In re Nogaki, 1984 S.L.D. 1986, a teacher punched each of two brothers in the chest after they refused to follow his directions. The administrative law judge found that the teacher's conduct constituted corporal punishment and the Commissioner adopted this finding. However, as there was no "premeditation, cruel or vicious action and no specific intent to inflict corporal punishment," the Commissioner found that removal was too severe a penalty for a teacher with a thirteen-year career. The event was simply not so egregious as to warrant dismissal. There was no significant harm, no showing of series of incidents, and no showing of a propensity for violence.

In In re Harrell, 1979 S.L.D. 479, the teacher slapped a student in a physical education class. Two students had been wrestling and were told to stop. They continued and then one of the boys ran to the corner of the locker room. The teacher pursued, caught and slapped the student, who fell. The teacher pulled him up, grabbed him and pushed him into line. The Commissioner concluded that this was not a case of corporal punishment. The teacher forfeited two weeks of pay.

In Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Anthony Ashley, EDU 1916-02, Initial Decision, (September 20, 2002), adopted, Comm;'r. (December 6, 2002), adopted, State Bd. of Examiners (May 7, 2003) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, a teacher kicked a female student while they were in the auditorium. She had been acting in a playful manner and had not done anything to provoke the teacher. However, she did touch a badge he was wearing. The teacher pushed the student away, told her "not to fucking touch me" and "I'll beat your ass," and kicked her. The Commissioner found this to be unbecoming conduct, conduct which was unprovoked and which included vulgar language. The teacher violently and rudely pushed and kicked the student at least one time, causing injury. The incident demonstrated a lack of self-restraint and controlled behavior. Ashley had only been a teacher for five years. He was removed from tenure.

These cases would seem to identify the intent to punish, to inflict a physical force upon a student in order to discipline, as essential to a finding that the physical contact was corporal punishment. But in the absence of such motive, where the evidence more properly supports the conclusion that the teacher lashed out in anger, sought to simply reply to a provocation, or indeed without one, sought not to discipline but to retaliate or to impose his will on a recalcitrant student whose conduct simply could not justify a physical response under any circumstances, then the action is not corporal punishment. In this case, Alvarez, in entering into a figurative "head butting" with T.B., in lowering himself to the adolescent's level, in engaging in an exchange of verbal challenges and responses, almost a form of verbal fisticuffs, seemingly abandoned the role of teacher, guide, and role model that is the essence of the teacher's status and instead became a common combatant. Pushing the desk in the midst of an angry exchange is more a lashing out than a punitive or corrective measure and similarly here, not only is there no evidence of any intention to inflict pain, there is also no element of redirecting attention, such as in the rather benign action of pulling the boy's hair while he sat in his seat and turned to talk. Here, while the pupil was seated, the raising of voices, the exchange of words, including words and phrases completely improper to the classroom setting, the threats and the challenges, all make for a totally different set of circumstances than those in the Craze case. As such, I concur with the suspicion of Mr. Alvarez's counsel. There is no element of corporal punishment in the December 23, 2008 incident.

In Tenure Hearing of Adam Mierzwa, EDU 8220-07, Initial Decision, (May 6, 2008), modified in part, Comm'r. (June 23, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> a teacher was involved in attempting to break up a fight outside of the school doorway. He tussled with one of the combatants and was brought to the ground during that encounter. He then physically returned the student to the school office where he forceably seated the student in a chair, although the force used was "not extreme." In the office he was very loud and emotional, screaming to those in the office. In another instance students in his classroom were disruptive. He was angry and was frustrated by their lack of attention, motivation and apparent disinterest in learning. He had a student removed from the class and told students that they were "cowards" that he would contact the police about them and would fail them. He was emotional, agitated and verbally threatening toward the students. These events occurred about two years apart. In the initial decision, I wrote > While no one should minimize the difficulties and provocations that Mr. Mierzwa and other teachers unfortunately face in the schools, and by no means should the sanctioning of a teacher for improper conduct in any way be viewed as condoning the actions of misbehaving students, it is still the case that a teacher must comport himself properly despite the slings and arrows of daily life in the schools. Mr. Mierzwa apparently is unable to harness his temper and control his emotions sufficiently to handle the pressures that he inevitably must face when dealing with students, and the record suggests that he is not fully aware of this as a problem that he needed to deal with. It is not required of a school district that it continue to employ a teacher who fails to serve as the role model that a teacher must be, nor to employ a teacher whose temper is so uncontrolled that he cannot act in a proper and controlled fashion when faced with the strains of modern day school life. His continued employment does not serve the interests of his school, his colleagues, his district and most importantly, his students.

> [Id. at 29.]

The initial decision ordered that Mierzwa's tenure be removed. On review, the Commissioner accepted the findings and conclusions of the initial decision, but determined that removal was not appropriate. Agreeing that Mierzwa's conduct could not be tolerated and that his evaluations and history did not mitigate the seriousness of his misconduct, she noted that there was no evidence that the district had attempted to have Mierzwa utilize strategies for dealing with the situations that he was confronted with involving student disruption and administrative conflict and had not implemented any specific actions to address his previous unacceptable behavior, nor that the district had included any such actions in his Individual Professional Improvement Plan. The Commissioner also noted that previous decisions involving similar matters had not generally resulted in termination. Instead of removal, she imposed a forfeiture of the 120 days pay for the period of his pre-hearing suspension, a further suspension of four months without pay, and a requirement to successfully complete a course dealing with anger management, conflict resolution and handling disruptive students.

Similarly, in Tenure Hearing of Barbara Emri, EDU 4579-00, Initial Decision, (August 30, 2002), modified in part, Comm'r. (October 21, 2002), modified in part, State Bd. of Examiners (December 3, 2003) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the ALJ and Commissioner declined to remove a teacher who had a pattern of difficulties dealing with disruptive students, including those who failed to follow her and the school's rules, who had several instances of yelling at students causing them to cry, who yelled at administrators and pounded her fists on the table accusing them of harassment, who demonstrated a lack of sensitivity to students, including special education students, and who, although she was not deemed a racist, had used the "N" word. The Commissioner and State Board of Education essentially agreed with Judge Tylutki that forfeiture of 120 days of pay, suspension for six months, loss of certain increments, and a specifically tailored training in anger management and strategies for dealing with disruptive students was sufficient sanction for Emri's misconduct. Again, the decisions cited a lack of evidence that the District had taken any corrective action regarding Emri's several earlier incidents of inappropriate conduct.

Based upon the facts established in this case and the case law, it is apparent that the rather limited history of Mr. Alvarez's demonstrations of a lack of ability to readily handle the frustrations of his work, the disruptive actions of students and the disappointments that must affect a teacher who is disturbed by the less than motivated attitude of students does not present a sufficiently egregious pattern as to warrant the removal of his tenure. While it may not be too much to say that given some of the comments in his evaluations and the words he had used and actions that he had demonstrated to fellow staff and students before December 2008, that he was, in a sense, an accident waiting to happen, and that the December 23, 2008 event was the accident, the culmination of the issues plaguing him, and while in fairness my opinion in Mierzwa might suggest that I would order removal, in view of the Commissioner's ruling therein, I deem it proper to order that he forfeit the 120 days of pay withheld for the initial portion of his suspension, that he be suspended for an additional period of two months, that he forfeit any increment that he might be entitled to during the 2009-2010 school year, and that he successfully complete training in anger management conflict resolution and management of disruptive students. In addition, the Board of Education shall work with Mr. Alvarez to implement any strategies or actions that will facilitate his appropriate classroom management skills, including those that may assist with dealing with the multicultural, multi-ethnic and minority nature of the student population.[3]

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] In the interests of full disclosure, as I have previously advised the parties in this case, in either 1963 or 1964 while a high school student, I was sitting in a desk that was pushed by a teacher. I cannot recall what exactly what the triggering event for this. I may have been talking when I should not have been or the class may have been involved in some heated discussion. The teacher was outstanding and the class quite a motivated bunch. I was pushed no more than a foot or two and was not in any way injured. The event, while it became well known to students, did not result in any report about the teacher. I do not know if the teacher ever did anything similar. In 2000, after my name was mentioned in a newspaper editorial regarding a case I had decided, this teacher, now retired, contacted me for the first time in thirty-six years to congratulate me on the decision. At the end of our conversation, completely without any prompt, the teacher apologized for his action so long ago. I was amazed that the teacher remembered it. As I informed the parties, I did not believe that this experience would in any way impact my consideration of this contested case, and counsel agreed that there was no reason for me to step aside.

IN THE MATTER OF THOMAS GUARASCIO, :

OF BERKELEY, OCEAN COUNTY. : DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) found that respondent – a member of the Board of Education of the Township of Berkeley – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members of the School Ethics Act when he voted, inter alia, to: reappoint his wife as a teacher in the District; reappoint the Principal, Assistant Principal and Supervisor of Elementary Education under whom his wife served; and to reappoint his wife as club sponsor for the Scrapbook Club. The Commission recommended the penalty of censure in this matter.

Upon review, the Commissioner – whose jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the Commission's recommended sanction – concurred that censure is the appropriate penalty for the violations found. Accordingly, the Commissioner directed that respondent be censured as a school officer found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 77-4/10

IN THE MATTER OF THOMAS GUARASCIO, :
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP : COMM ISSIONER OF EDUCATION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission") – finding that Berkeley Township Board of Education (Board) member Thomas Guarascio violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), and recommending a penalty of censure – have been reviewed by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1 solely for determination on the Commission's recommended penalty. Mr. Guarascio (respondent) filed timely exceptions to the Commission's recommendation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1 and N.J.A.C. 1:6C-18.3, but did not appeal the Commission's finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4.[1] The Commission duly replied to respondent's exceptions.

In his exceptions, respondent reiterates that nothing more than a reprimand is warranted for his "rookie mistakes" – which he has acknowledged committing – and contends that the Commission's decision fails to address all but one of the mitigating circumstances he presented for the Commission's consideration, instead imposing an "unduly harsh" penalty not supported by the factually distinguishable case law on which the decision purports to rely. (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-3) Specifically, respondent renews his stance that: 1) five of his six violations involve 9-0 votes that were "mere formalities" and occurred within minutes of respondent's seating on the Board; 2) in five of the six cases, respondent and the complainant (a fellow Board member) voted the same way, so that complainant could not have objected to the merit of respondent's votes; 3) five of the six votes involved a simple renewal of pre-existing positions, with no new positions created and no changes made to job status; 4) despite being a "veteran" Board member while respondent was a "rookie," the complainant never voiced his concerns to respondent prior to or at the time of the votes in question, opting instead to file a School Ethics complaint; 5) no member of the public has voiced any concern to the Commission so as to warrant a conclusion that the public trust was violated; 6) the complainant sought to withdraw his complaint, but the Commission rejected his request; 7) the fact that respondent and complainant voted the same way five of six times compels the conclusion that this matter constituted "a classic 'set-up;'" and 8) although there was a difference of opinion between respondent and complainant on one of the six votes at issue, "a simple 'peep'" at the time would have resulted in respondent's recusal and avoided any question of violation. (Id. at 1-2)

Respondent additionally contends that a bad precedent is being set by subjecting him to censure, since this will invite similar proceedings in other districts having "split" boards; he reiterates that, in his view, the present situation involves a veteran Board member who complained about a rookie – notwithstanding the absence of either public outcry or any attempt to prevent or stop the violations on the part of the veteran – who opted instead to keep quiet until filing a formal complaint at a moment of his own choosing. (Respondent's Exceptions at 2) Finally, respondent opines that the public reading of a resolution of censure will create "quite the spectacle" given the complainant's prior silence and the lack of any expressed concern on the part of the public, and that the posting of such resolution in the Board's public notice area, as required by law, will have the additional effect of punishing respondent's wife, who is an innocent Board employee. (Id. at 3)[2]

In reply, the Commission asserts that it did, in fact, consider the mitigating factors and case law presented by respondent, but was not persuaded thereby. The Commission summarizes the findings and decisional precedents previously set forth, and adds that the factors cited by respondent over and above his inexperience as a Board member did not relieve him of his duty to abstain from all actions affecting his wife's employment. (Commission's Reply at 1-5)

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Commission that censure of respondent is the appropriate penalty in this matter.

In so holding, the Commissioner is satisfied that the Commission properly considered the nature and circumstances of respondent's violations, as well as his arguments regarding mitigation, and imposed a penalty appropriate to the facts in light of prior decisional law. Like the Commission, the Commissioner finds it particularly significant that – even making reasonable allowance for several violations having occurred at respondent's first meeting as a Board member on April 30, 2008 – respondent committed two similar violations three weeks later and, in September 2008, yet another even after completing new board member training in June. Nor is the Commissioner persuaded by the fact that respondent's votes may not in most instances have altered the ultimate action taken by the Board or affected its current staffing, or by the fact that respondent was not cautioned that he was about to commit – or promptly notified that he had just committed – violations of the School Ethics Act; as the Commission has recognized, the provision violated by respondent speaks to reasonable perception of a potential for biased judgment rather than to actual outcome, and respondent cannot rely on the silence of

[2] Respondent additionally renews his request that, in the alternative, his violations be found de minimis so as not to warrant any penalty, invoking the current rule at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12(a) notwithstanding that this matter arose under, and was reviewed by the Commission pursuant to, prior regulations. (See Commission's Decision at 1)

others to explain away his own failure as a school official charged with knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of his office.[3] Similarly, the fact that imposition of a censure may cause surprise to members of the public or school community previously unaware of a school ethics proceeding, or chagrin to an employee whose relationship to the sanctioned school official is the basis for a finding of violation, cannot limit the Commission's (or the Commissioner's) ability to impose the statutorily authorized penalty deemed appropriate for the violation found; to hold otherwise would compromise enforcement of the provisions of the School Ethics Act as contemplated by the Legislature and State Board.[4]

Accordingly, there being no basis on which to disturb the Commission's penalty recommendation, the Commissioner hereby directs that Thomas Guarascio be censured as a member of the Berkeley Township Board of Education found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [5]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 6|04|10
Date of Mailing: 6|04|10

[3] In this regard, the Commissioner notes respondent's acknowledgement before the Commission, following complainant's assertion that Board candidates receive kits including the School Ethics Act and newly elected Board members receive a copy of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members prior to the reorganization meeting, that he signed the Code of Ethics statements but did not read what was handed to him and that he did not take the time at new board member training to seek clarification on the issues presented by his spouse's employment in the district. (Probable Cause Notice at 3-4; included with respondent's Exceptions as Exhibit F)

[4] The Commissioner also notes that complainant's attempt to withdraw his complaint cannot serve to mitigate penalty where a violation has been found, since, pursuant to Pannucci, supra, it is "not the function of the Ethics Commission...to adjudicate the rights of complainants vis-à-vis school officials"; rather, "the function of a complainant is to bring acts by school officials which may indicate a violation of the School Ethics Act to the attention of the Ethics Commission so as to protect the public's confidence," and it "is the Commission, not the complainant, which is charged in this context with acting as the guardian of the public interest." (Slip Opinion at 9)

[5] Pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1), Commissioner decisions are appealable to the Superior Court, Appellate Division.

IN THE MATTER OF THOMAS GUARASCIO, BERKELEY TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION OCEAN COUNTY	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
	:	Docket No. C40-08
	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on December 11, 2008 by Stephen J. Pellecchia, alleging that Thomas Guarascio, a member of the Berkeley Township Board of Education, Ocean County, violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. The complainant thereafter submitted a request to withdraw the complaint, which was denied by the School Ethics Commission on January 27, 2009. An answer was filed on behalf of the respondent on March 6, 2009. The matter was scheduled for a probable cause determination by the Commission on December 15, 2009, at which time the Commission voted to find probable cause to credit the allegations that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) in connection with seven instances of voting. The Commission also found that the complaint was not frivolous. The Commission determined to resolve this matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), in that the material facts are not in dispute.[1] Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), the respondent was accorded 30 days from the mailing date of the Probable Cause Notice on January 27, 2010 to submit a written statement of the reasons he should not be found in violation of the Act based on the undisputed facts set forth in the Probable Cause Notice.

On February 25, 2010, a statement was filed on behalf of the respondent. Therein, the respondent referred to his answer and his arguments why he should not be found in violation of the Act. Additionally, the respondent cited to the Commission's determinations in Dressel v. Spitzer, Monroe Township Board of Education, C10-07 (August 26, 2008) and I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10SEC, decided March 11, 2010 to support his position that he should not be found in violation of the Act. As to the question of potential penalty, the respondent again refers to his answer and the mitigating circumstances set forth therein which, respondent asserts, would support a penalty no greater than reprimand. In the alternative, and notwithstanding that this matter is being reviewed under the regulations that were in existence at the time the complaint was filed (see, footnote 1), the respondent requests that the Commission consider, based upon the circumstances in this matter, that the violations are de minimis, in accordance with the newly-adopted rule at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12(a). (Respondent's Statement at pp. 1-2)

At its March 23, 2010 meeting, and upon consideration of the respondent's arguments, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), as set forth below, and recommended a penalty of censure.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts are deemed to be undisputed:

1. The respondent was a newly-elected Board member in April 2008 and was sworn into office on April 30, 2008. (Answer at p. 3)

2. The respondent's wife is employed by the District as a tenured sixth grade elementary school teacher. (Id. at p. 2)

3. At the Board's reorganization meeting on April 30, 2008, the respondent voted to:

   - reappoint his wife as a teacher in the District. (Id. at p. 8)

   - reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Principal, James D. Roselli, his wife's immediate supervisor. (Id. at p. 9)

   - reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Assistant Principal, Harry Colangelo, his wife's immediate supervisor. (Id. at p. 10)

   - reappoint Berkeley Township District Supervisor of Elementary Education, Dr. Dyann Declerico, a central office administrator of the respondent's wife. (Id. at p. 11.)

4. At the Board's reorganization meeting on April 30, 2008, the respondent voted to appoint Guy Ryan as Board attorney. Mr. Ryan's firm made a contribution of $2,000 to "A Better Berkeley," which was the campaign name for four candidates, including the respondent. (Id. at pp. 16-17)

5. On May 19, 2008, the respondent participated in Executive Session discussions, including a discussion which concerned the automatic renewal, pursuant to statute, of the Superintendent's contract. He voted in the affirmative in a 5-4 vote not to automatically renew the Superintendent's contract. (Id. at pp. 13-14; Complaint Exhibit F: May 19, 2008 Regular Meeting Executive Session Minutes)

6. The respondent attended training for new board members in June 2008.

7. On September 23, 2008, the respondent voted to reappoint his wife as club sponsor for the Scrapbook Club. (Id. at p. 15) She was appointed "at the hourly supplemental contractual rate of pay." (Complaint Exhibit G: September 23, 2008 Board Minutes at p. 10)

ANALYSIS

Based on the undisputed facts set forth above, the Commission previously found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) in connection with his votes as set forth in Factual Findings #3, 5 and 7. The Commission also found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) in connection with his vote as set forth at Factual Finding #4.

The Commission first considers whether the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), which provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he or a member of his immediate family has a personal involvement that is or creates some benefit to the school official or member of his immediate family;

In order to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), the Commission must find that the respondent has either: 1) taken action in his official capacity in a matter where he, or a member of his immediate family[2] had a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment or 2) acted in his official capacity in a matter where he or a member of his immediate family had a personal involvement that is or created some benefit to him or the member of his immediate family.

Actions Concerning the Respondent's Spouse

The Commission first considers the respondent's vote at the April 30, 2008 reorganization meeting to reappoint his wife, as well as the respondent's vote on September 23, 2008 to reappoint his wife as sponsor for the Scrapbook Club. The Commission has long held that a Board member may not vote on matters where he, or a member of his immediate family, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. See, I/M/O Wayne Wurtz, Paulsboro Bd. of Ed., C01-96 (May 28, 1996), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 293-96SEC, decided July 9, 1996;

[2] The School Ethics Act at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "member of the immediate family" as the spouse or dependent child of a school official residing in the same household. The Commission's regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2 define "spouse" as "the person to whom the school official is legally married under New Jersey law and also includes a partner in a civil union couple as established in N.J.S.A. 37:1-33." Thus, the respondent's spouse is a member of his immediate family.

I/M/O Lorraine Dunckley, Denville Twp. Bd. of Ed., C37-01 (July 23, 2002) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 330-02SEC, decided September 6, 2002; I/M/O Alexander Sipos, Garfield Bd. of Ed., C20-99 (May 23, 2000) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 221-00SEC, decided July 10, 2000. In I/M/O Barry Levine, Egg Harbor Township School District, C31-97 (July 30, 1998), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 373-98SEC, decided August 26, 1998, the respondent Board member voted to approve a monthly bill list, which included a $148.37 reimbursement to his wife, who worked in the District. The Commission therein acknowledged that "no one advised Dr. Levine that he should either abstain from voting on the bill list or ask the Board to vote on his wife's expense reimbursement separately so that he could abstain." (Levine at slip. op. p. 2) Nevertheless, the Commission found that the respondent's spouse "clearly had a personal and financial involvement in the request such that the public might reasonably expect that Dr. Levine could not be objective in voting in favor of it."[3] (Id. at p. 3)

Similarly, the respondent's vote at the April 30, 2008 reorganization meeting to reappoint his wife as a teacher in the District, together with his vote on September 23, 2008 to reappoint his wife as sponsor for the Scrapbook Club, concerned his spouse's continued employment and appointment to the position of club sponsor for which she would be paid. Although the respondent argues that because his wife was a tenured teacher at the time of the reappointment on April 28, 2008, his vote was a "mere formality" and "harmless error," (Answer at p. 8) the Commission notes that tenure does not prohibit a Board from taking action to reduce its teaching staff members when it is advisable for reasons of economy, due to a reduction in the number of pupils, for administrative reorganization or other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Thus, the Commission finds that on both occasions, the respondent took action in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had "a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment" in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Actions Concerning Employment Issues of the Supervisors of the Respondent's Spouse

The Commission next considers whether the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, at the Board's reorganization meeting on April 30, 2008, he voted to reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Principal, James D. Roselli, his wife's immediate supervisor; he voted to reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Assistant Principal, Harry Colangelo, his wife's immediate supervisor; and when he voted to reappoint Berkeley Township District Supervisor of Elementary Education, Dr. Dyann Declerico, a central office administrator for his wife. In this connection, the Commission notes that at no time does the respondent challenge the assertions made by the complainant that Principal James D. Roselli, is his wife's immediate supervisor; that Assistant Principal Harry Colangelo is his wife's immediate supervisor; or that Dr. Dyann Declerico, as a central office administrator, is among the administrators in his wife's chain of supervision. Rather, the respondent "vehemently denies" that voting for the reappointments of these administrators constituted a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). (Answer at pp. 9-11).

[3] At the time this case was decided, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) read: "No school shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment." Although the wording of the statute has changed, the Commission finds its reasoning to be applicable to this matter.

In this context, the Commission also considers whether the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on May 19, 2008, he participated in an Executive Session discussion concerning the automatic renewal of the Superintendent's contract, then voted not to automatically renew the Superintendent's contract. Again, the respondent does not deny these actions, but rather contends that because his wife is a tenured teacher and member of a bargaining unit, Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006) does not apply. (Id. at p. 13)

The Commission has advised that a Board member whose spouse works in the District may not participate in discussions or vote on employment issues concerning the employee's supervisors, including the Superintendent. Advisory Opinion A10-00 (June 27, 2000); Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006). In A30-05, the Commission advised that Board member B, whose spouse worked as a secretary in the High School nurse's office, "would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in employment issues regarding the principal of the High School and the Superintendent." (A30-05 at p. 4) The Commission further advised that Board member B must recuse himself "from all discussions and votes with regard to those administrators." (Id., emphasis added)

Recently, in I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10SEC, decided March 11, 2010, the Commission found the respondent Board member in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when he voted on April 30, 2009 to extend the contract of the Superintendent, where his wife was employed in the District as a truant officer and reported directly to the Superintendent.[4]

In I/M/O Charles Carey, Pennsauken Bd. of Ed., C33-08 (March 23, 2010)[5], the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by voting to approve the Superintendent's 2008-2009 salary "even where the affiliation between the respondent's spouse and the Superintendent is indirect," as his wife was a secretary in the nurse's office of the High School. The Commission therein noted that the Superintendent has general supervision over all aspects of the schools, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, which allows for a variety of managerial actions or decisions that could affect the employment of the respondent's spouse. See, Carey at p. 4.

In I/M/O Richard Filipek, Saddlebrook Bd. of Ed., C18-07 (June 24, 2008) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 317-08, decided July 23, 2008, the Commission found that the respondent Board member, whose spouse was employed in the District, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by being present in his capacity as president of the Board and running two closed session meetings of the Board when the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal, his wife's direct supervisor, was discussed, notwithstanding that he did not participate in the [4] It is unclear why, in his Responsive Statement, the respondent cites to this case in support of his position that the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act.

[5] This decision is pending review by the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c).

vote. The Commission found that the respondent had a direct financial involvement in the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal that would reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

In the instant matter, the Commission finds that when the respondent voted to reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Principal, James D. Roselli, Berkeley Township Elementary School Assistant Principal, Harry Colangelo, and Berkeley Township District Supervisor of Elementary Education, Dr. Dyann Declerico, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had a "direct or indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment" in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) because these administrators where in the chain of supervision for his wife. Similarly, when the respondent participated in Executive Session discussions and then voted not to automatically renew the Superintendent's contract at the Board's Meeting on May 19, 2008, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had an indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) since the Superintendent has general supervision over all aspects of the schools, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, which allows for a variety of managerial actions or decisions that could affect the employment of the respondent's spouse.

Action Concerning Appointment of Board Attorney

Finally, the Commission considers whether the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) when, at the Board's reorganization meeting on April 30, 2008, he voted to appoint Guy Ryan as Board attorney, notwithstanding that Mr. Ryan's firm made a contribution of $2,000 to "A Better Berkeley," which was the campaign name for four candidates, including the respondent. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) provides:

> No school official, or member of his immediate family, or business organization in which he has an interest, shall solicit or accept any gift, favor, loan, political contribution, service, promise of future employment, or other thing of value based upon an understanding that the gift, favor, loan, contribution, service, promise, or other thing of value was given or offered for the purpose of influencing him, directly or indirectly, in the discharge of his official duties. This provision shall not apply to the solicitation or acceptance of contributions to the campaign of an announced candidate for elective public office, if the school official has no knowledge or reason to believe that the campaign contribution, if accepted, was given with the intent to influence the school official in the discharge of his official duties; (emphasis added)

In order to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e), the Commission must find that a school official, or a member of his immediate family, or business organization in which he has an interest, solicited or accepted a gift, favor, loan, political contribution, service, promise of future employment, or other thing of value based upon an understanding that the gift, favor, loan, contribution, service, promise, or other thing of value was given or offered for the purpose of influencing him, directly or indirectly, in the discharge of his official duties. While the respondent readily admits that Guy Ryan's firm made a contribution of $2,000 to "A Better Berkeley," which was the campaign name for four candidates, including the respondent and at the Board's reorganization meeting on April 30, 2008, the respondent voted to appoint Guy Ryan as Board attorney (Answer at pp. 16-17), the respondent argues that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) does not apply in this instance since, at the time the campaign donation was made, he was not a "school official." Nor, according to the respondent, is there any factual support in the record to indicate that he "had 'knowledge or reason to believe that the campaign contribution, if accepted, was given with the intent to influence a school official in the discharge of his official duties.'" (Id. at p. 17)

Upon careful review of this provision and the cases decided there under, the Commission concurs that the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) requires that the recipient of the "gift, favor, loan, political contribution, service, promise of future employment, or other thing of value" be a school official. The Act defines "school officials" as board members, charter school trustees, administrators and employees and officers of the New Jersey School Boards Association. Thus, at the time the respondent accepted the donation, he was not a school official. Moreover, the Commission further finds that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) requires a showing that when the school official accepted the contribution, s/he did so based upon the understanding that it was given for the purpose of influencing him/her in the discharge of his/her official duties. I/M/O Meera Malik and Elizabeth Vasil, C06-98 & C08-98 (September 22, 1998)[6] No such evidence exists on this record. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) and this charge is dismissed.

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that Thomas Guarascio violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) in six instances. Specifically, the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on April 30, 2008, he voted to reappoint his wife as a teacher in the District; to reappoint Berkeley Township Elementary School Principal, James D. Roselli; to reappoint the Berkeley Township Elementary School Assistant Principal, Harry Colangelo; and to reappoint reappoint Berkeley Township District Supervisor of Elementary Education, Dr. Dyann Declerico. He again violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on May 19, 2008, he participated in an Executive Session discussion and then voted not to automatically renew the Superintendent's contract. Finally, the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on September 23, 2008, he voted to reappoint his wife as club sponsor for the Scrapbook Club. The Commission dismisses the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e).

[6] While the Commission continues to take a strong position with respect to the actions of Board members once they have accepted campaign contributions, see Advisory Opinion A23-02 (December 2, 2002), ordinarily such actions are reviewed under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of censure. In weighing the appropriate penalty in this matter, the Commission has considered the respondent's answer setting forth the mitigating circumstances. Specifically, the respondent asserted in his answer that he was a new Board member in April 2008 and the votes taken at the April 30, 2008 reorganization meeting occurred within minutes of the time that he was sworn in. Neither the Superintendent nor the Board attorneys ("old" or "new") advised him not to vote on these matters. (Answer at p. 3) As to the vote at the May 19, 2008 meeting, the respondent asserted this vote was taken three weeks after he was sworn in and he was similarly not advised that he should abstain. (Id. at p. 3) As to the allegation that he voted for his wife for club sponsor, the respondent stated that his wife had been the sponsor for the Scrapbook Club for several years. (Id. at p. 4) In this connection, the Commission recognizes that the Commissioner of Education has found new Board member status to be a mitigating factor for a penalty determination. (See, I/M/O John Harrison, Ewing Township Bd. of Ed., C13-94 (December 14, 1995) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 78-96SEC, decided March 6, 1996).[7] However, the Commission cautiously applies this mitigating factor, inasmuch as it finds that the school official is charged with knowing his duties and responsibilities under the Act and cannot be granted a "free pass" for errors made during his initial meetings.

Even granting that the first four violations "occurred within minutes of the respondent's swearing in," (Answer at p. 3) there was a fifth violation on May 19, 2008 which occurred during an Executive Session meeting when the respondent participated in a discussion concerning the automatic renewal of the Superintendent's contract, then when he voted in the affirmative in a 5-4 vote not to automatically renew the Superintendent's contract. In Filipek, supra., the Commission cited to SEC v. Michael Kilmurray, Lacey Twp. Bd. of Ed., C12-94 (January 27, 1998), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 155-98 (April 15, 1998) where it found that "when a school official has a conflict of interest of which the public is aware, and that school official goes behind closed doors when that item is discussed, the situation creates a justifiable impression among the public that their trust is being violated." (Kilmurray at page 3) The Commission therein advised that full recusal requires the conflicted school official to leave the room. In Filipek, the Commission recommended a penalty of censure for this single violation, and the Commissioner concurred.

The Commission also notes that after the respondent attended new board member training in June 2008, there was a sixth violation on September 23, 2008 when he voted to reappoint his wife as club sponsor for the Scrapbook Club. In I/M/O Lorraine Dunckley, Denville Twp. Bd. of Ed., C37-01 (July 23, 2002) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 330-02SEC, decided September 6, 2002, the Commission found that a Board member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when she voted on a bill list which included reimbursement to her and her husband, and when she voted on a student tuition payment to the school where her husband was employed. She was also found in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26(a)(3) for not disclosing the Board as a source of prepaid expenses for her conference attendance. The Commission recommended a penalty of censure and the Commissioner approved.

In I/M/O Alexander Sipos, Garfield Bd. of Ed., C20-99 (May 23, 2000) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 221-00SEC, decided July 10, 2000, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, after being elected to the Board in 1997, he made motions to pass resolutions in July 1998 and January 1999 that resulted in the appointment of his wife to two positions with the Board. The Commission recommended a penalty of censure and the Commissioner approved.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 3-3/10A

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES CAREY, :
PENNSAUKEN BOARD OF EDUCATION, :
CAMDEN COUNTY. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, March 23, 2010

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Charles Carey, pro se

For the Respondent, Deputy Attorney General Melissa Dutton

On March 26, 2010, appellant filed a notice of appeal from the March 23, 2010 decision of the School Ethics Commission, finding him in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act and recommending a penalty of reprimand. In its decision, the Commission determined that respondent – a member of the Pennsauken Board of Education, whose wife is employed as a secretary in the District – committed this violation when he voted to approve the 2008-09 salary for the Superintendent of Schools in the District. By letter dated April 8, 2010, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes: 1) acknowledged respondent's appeal; 2) requested the Executive Director of the School Ethics Commission to certify the record and submit it, together with a statement of items comprising the record to the Commissioner; and 3) set up the briefing schedule for this appeal, which began by requiring appellant to submit a brief in support of his appeal within 20 days of the date of the April 8 letter. On April 16, 2010, the Executive Director of the School Ethics Commission certified the record and submitted it – together with a statement of items comprising the record – to the Commissioner. Respondent, however, has failed to submit the requisite brief in support of his appeal and, therefore, the appeal IS HEREBY DISMISSED for failure to prosecute.

Accordingly, as the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner due to respondent's failure to prosecute his appeal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the Commissioner's jurisdiction at this time is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following the finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner accepts the Commission's recommendation that reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter. As clearly stated in its decision, the Commission finds this penalty congruent with that imposed in similar cases previously decided by the Commission. As such, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Charles Carey be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES CAREY PENNSAUKEN BOARD OF EDUCATION CAMDEN COUNTY	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
	:	Docket No. C33-08
	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on October 1, 2008 by Michael Stargell alleging that Charles Carey, a member of the Pennsauken Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. An answer was filed on behalf of the respondent on December 15, 2008.[1] The matter was scheduled for a probable cause determination by the Commission on November 24, 2009, at which time the Commission voted to table the matter. At its meeting on December 15, 2009, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegation in the first count of the complaint that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on August 28, 2008, he voted to approve the 2008-2009 salary for the Superintendent. The Commission also determined to resolve this matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), in that the material facts are not in dispute.[2]

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), the respondent was accorded 30 days from the mailing date of the Probable Cause Notice to submit a written statement of the reasons he should not be found in violation of the Act based on the undisputed facts set forth in this Probable Cause Notice. On February 2, 2010, the respondent filed his statement. Therein, the respondent underscored that he excused himself from the Executive Session when the Superintendent's annual increase to his existing contract was discussed, although he did not abstain on the vote. As to the continued significance of the advice rendered by the Commission in Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006), the respondent states:

> Also, A30-05 was a decision made regarding our organization in 2005. Things change and the hierarchy in our district Administration has changed. For example, at least two new Assistant Principal [p]ositions were added to the High School, a

[1] By notice dated January 4, 2010, received by the Commission on January 12, 2010, the respondent notified the Commission that he was no longer represented by counsel and that he would be proceeding pro se in this matter.

[2] On April 15, 2009, the State Board of Education adopted amendments to N.J.A.C. 6A:28, the regulations governing matters that come before the School Ethics Commission. These rules became effective on May 18, 2009. However, because the complaint in this matter was filed before May 18, 2009, the Commission followed procedures and rendered its determinations herein in accordance with the rules that were in effect at the time the complaint was filed. To the extent this decision cites to regulations, they are the regulations that were in effect when the complaint was filed.

> Director of Curriculum was added; we have a new Special Services Director and a new Business Administrator. From these and all other changes has come a change of responsibilities. ***
> As far as the meeting of August 28th, 2008, after the superintendent's increase was approved by the majority of board members attending, I voted yes to show my support for the superintendent. I have done this in the past. At one public meeting, after a great deal of discussion, we were deadlocked 4-4 on a resolution and I was one of the no votes. I changed my vote to yes to show my support for the Superintendent. I believe that one of the President's tasks is to support the Superintendent. (Respondent's Statement at page 2)

FINDINGS OF FACT

The undisputed facts are as follows:

1. At all times relevant, the respondent was a Board member.

2. The respondent's wife is a secretary for the nurses in the Pennsauken High School's nursing office. His wife reports to the school nurse and the school physician; her evaluation is performed by the Assistant Principal or the Principal. The Assistant Principal is evaluated by the Principal and the Principal is evaluated by the Superintendent. (Answer at page 5)

3. The respondent attended a Board meeting on August 28, 2008. Item 38 of the Board's agenda included a resolution approving the 2008-2009 salary for the Superintendent. The respondent voted to approve the Superintendent's salary, although he did not participate in any discussions regarding Item 38, including the amount of annual increase to be accorded to the Superintendent. (Id. at pages 1-4)

4. The respondent is "Board Member B" in Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006).

Based on the undisputed facts set forth above, the Commission previously found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on August 28, 2008, he voted to approve the 2008-2009 salary for the Superintendent. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. No school official > shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he or a member of his immediate family has a personal involvement that is or creates some benefit to the school official or member of his immediate family;

In order to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), the Commission must find evidence that the respondent has either: 1) taken action in his official capacity in a matter where he, or a member of his immediate family[3] had a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment or 2) acted in his official capacity in a matter where he or a member of his immediate family had a personal involvement that is or created some benefit to him or the member of his immediate family.

The Commission has advised that a Board member whose spouse works in the District may not participate in discussions or vote on employment issues concerning the employee's supervisors, including the Superintendent. Advisory Opinion A10-00 (June 27, 2000); Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006). In the instant matter, there is no dispute that the respondent's wife is employed in the District as a secretary for the nurses in the Pennsauken High School's nursing office. According to the respondent, his wife's evaluation is performed by the Assistant Principal or the Principal. The Assistant Principal is evaluated by the Principal and the Principal is evaluated by the Superintendent. (Answer at page 5) Thus, while the respondent argues in his responsive statement that the existing reporting hierarchy in the District renders A30-05 inapplicable,[4] the Commission notes that the facts presented for the purpose of that advisory were not appreciably different from those set forth above. Specifically, A30-05 includes the following recitation of facts:

> You have further set forth that board member B has a spouse employed in the district as a secretary in the office of the nurse at the high school. The principal of the high school is the direct and immediate supervisor of the spouse. The Superintendent is the immediate supervisor of the principal of the high school. Board member B's spouse is a member of the secretaries' union and the majority of the terms, conditions and benefits of her employment are subject to collective bargaining. (A30-05 at p. 2)

Thus, in A30-05, the Commission stated, in relevant part:

> With regards to board member B, since the high school principal is the direct and immediate supervisor of the board member's spouse, for the reasoning noted above, the board member would violate

[3] The School Ethics Act at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "member of the immediate family" as the spouse or dependent child of a school official residing in the same household. The Commission's regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2 define "spouse" as "the person to whom the school official is legally married under New Jersey law and also includes a partner in a civil union couple as established in N.J.S.A. 37:1-33." Thus, the respondent's spouse is a member of his immediate family.

[4] The respondent in this matter is identified as Board Member B in A30-05.

> N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in any employment issues regarding the principal. Similar to A10-00, since the Superintendent is the direct supervisor of the principal, there is an opportunity for the spouse's employment to be affected by the board member's involvement in employment issues related to the Superintendent in terms of the way the administrators treat and evaluate the spouse, even if such impact does not affect the contractually determined salary. Therefore, board member B has an indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). (A30-05 at p. 4, emphasis added)

Consequently, the Commission advised that Board member B "would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in employment issues regarding the principal of the High School and the Superintendent." The Commission further advised that Board member B must recuse himself "from all discussions and votes with regard to those administrators." (Id., emphasis added) Thus, while the Commission accepts that the affiliation between the respondent's spouse and the Superintendent is indirect, it must nevertheless recognize that the Superintendent has general supervision over all aspects of the schools, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, which allows for a variety of managerial actions or decisions that could affect the employment of the respondent's spouse. The Commission finds, therefore, that when the respondent voted to approve the 2008-2009 salary for the Superintendent, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had an indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that Charles Carey violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of reprimand, as it did in similar matters where Board members were found to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) in a single instance of voting on matters where they were conflicted. See, I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10, decided March 11, 2010; I/M/O Stewart, Atlantic City Bd. of Ed., Atlantic County, C20-07 (August 26, 2008), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 410-08, decided October 9, 2008; I/M/O Diana Lobosco, Passaic County Educational Services Commission, Passaic County, C31-05 (November 22, 2005), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 7-06, decided January 10, 2006. As such, the Commission recognizes that the facts in this matter, as set forth in the Factual Findings, may be distinguished from those in School Ethics Commission v. Gunning, C15-93 (September 22, 1994), where the Commission recommended a penalty of censure for a board member found to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), when he voted on the

Superintendent's raise notwithstanding that his spouse was employed as a confidential secretary to the Superintendent, was directly supervised by him and was not a member of a collective bargaining unit. (Gunning, slip. op. at p. 3)

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES CAREY ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PENNSAUKEN BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) found that respondent – a member of the Pennsauken Board of Education – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when he voted to: appoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken, including the Principal of the High School, for the 2009-2010 school year, and when he voted to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries, which included his wife. The Commission recommended the penalty of reprimand in this matter.

Upon review, the Commissioner – whose jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the Commission's recommended sanction – concurred that reprimand is the appropriate penalty for the violations found. Accordingly, the Commissioner directed that respondent be reprimanded as a school officer found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 75-4/10

IN THE MATTER OF CHARLES CAREY ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PENNSAUKEN BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), including the recommended penalty of reprimand, have been reviewed.

This matter comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon Respondent Charles Carey, member of the Pennsauken Board of Education, based upon findings of fact and conclusions of law by the Commission that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when, on June 25, 2009, he voted to appoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-10 school year, which included the Principal of the High School; he then voted to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-10 school year, which included his wife.

Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, respondent was provided 13 days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. No comments were submitted by or on behalf of Mr. Carey.

Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner unless a notice of appeal is filed pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 and N.J.A.C. 6A:4, which did not happen here. Therefore, the Commissioner's jurisdiction at this time is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner accepts the Commission's recommendation that reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter. As clearly stated in its decision, the Commission finds this penalty congruent with that imposed in similar cases previously decided by the Commission. As such, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Charles Carey be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on July 9, 2009 by Michael Stargell alleging that Charles Carey, a member of the Pennsauken Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. An answer was filed on behalf of the respondent on October 5, 2009.[1] The complainant and respondent were notified by letter dated December 29, 2009 that the Commission would review this matter at its meeting on January 26, 2010 in order to make a probable cause determination, in accordance with procedures set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.7. At its meeting on January 26, 2010, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations that the respondent, whose spouse is employed as a secretary in the District, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on June 25, 2009, he voted to reappoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-2010 school year and to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year. The Commission also determined to resolve this matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.7(c)1, in that the material facts are admitted.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.7(c)1, the respondent was accorded 20 days from the mailing date of the Probable Cause Notice to submit a statement setting forth the reasons he should not be found in violation of the Act. On March 8, 2010, the respondent filed his statement, which challenged the continued significance of the advice rendered by the Commission in Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006), the basis of the complaint. In this connection, the respondent notes that the District has added Assistant Principals and "the responsibilities in the High School have changed dramatically since 2005." (Respondent's Statement at p. 2) The respondent also points out that his spouse is a tenured secretary with a pre-existing contract defining her salary increase, which he took no part in negotiating.

At its March 23, 2010 meeting, and upon consideration of the respondent's arguments, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), as set forth below, and recommended a penalty of reprimand.

[1] By notice dated January 4, 2010, received by the Commission on January 12, 2010, the respondent notified the Commission that he was no longer represented by counsel and that he would be proceeding pro se in this matter.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

The undisputed facts are as follows:

1. At all times relevant, the respondent was a Board member. He is serving as the President of the Board for the 2009-2010 school year. (Answer at p. 2)

2. The respondent's wife is a tenured secretary for the nurses in the Pennsauken High School's nursing office. (Id. at pp. 3, 9)

3. There are five Assistant Principals at the Pennsauken High School. The respondent's spouse is evaluated by one of the Assistant Principals. The Assistant Principals are evaluated by the Principal who, in turn is evaluated by the Superintendent. (Id. at p. 7)

4. On June 25, 2009, the respondent attended a Board meeting. Item 40 on the agenda included a resolution to reappoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-2010 school year, including the Principal of the Pennsauken High School, Dennis Vinson, at a specified salary. The respondent voted in favor of the motion. (Id. at pp. 5-7; Id. at Exhibit A)

5. On June 25, 2009, the respondent attended a Board meeting. Item 41 on the agenda included a resolution to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year "at salaries to be adjusted pursuant to the successor collective bargaining agreement with the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries." His wife was included on the list of secretaries, with her approved salary. He voted in favor of the motion. (Id. at pp. 8-10; Id. at Exhibit A)

6. There was no reduction in force in effect for the 2009-2010 school year. (Id. at p. 9)

7. The respondent is "Board Member B" in Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006).

ANALYSIS

Based on the undisputed facts set forth above, the Commission previously found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on June 25, 2009, he voted to appoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-2010 school year, which included the Principal of the High School and when he voted to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year, which included his wife. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) provides:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. No school official > shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he or a member of his immediate family has a personal involvement that is or creates some benefit to the school official or member of his immediate family;

In order to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), the Commission must find evidence that respondent has either: 1) taken action in his official capacity in a matter where he, or a member of his immediate family[2] had a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment or 2) acted in his official capacity in a matter where he or a member of his immediate family had a personal involvement that is or created some benefit to him or the member of his immediate family.

Action Concerning Employment Issues of the Supervisor of Respondent's Spouse

With respect to the respondent's vote on June 25, 2009 to appoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-2010 school year, the Commission has advised that a Board member whose spouse works in the District may not participate in discussions or vote on employment issues concerning the employee's supervisors. Advisory Opinion A10-00 (June 27, 2000); Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006). The Commission has affirmed this principle in recent decisions. In I/M/O Richard Filipek, Saddlebrook Bd. of Ed., C18-07 (June 24, 2008) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 317-08, decided July 23, 2008, the Commission found that the respondent Board member, whose spouse was employed in the District, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by being present in his capacity as president of the Board and running two closed session meetings of the Board when the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal, his wife's direct supervisor, was discussed, notwithstanding that he did not participate in the vote. The Commission found that the respondent had a direct financial involvement in the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal that would reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. See also, I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10SEC, decided March 11, 2010.

In the instant matter, there is no dispute that the respondent's wife is employed in the District as a secretary for the nurses in the Pennsauken High School's nursing office. According to the respondent, his wife's evaluation is performed by an Assistant Principal. (Answer at p. 7) The Assistant Principal is evaluated by the Principal and the Principal is evaluated by the Superintendent. (Id.) Thus, while the respondent argues in his responsive statement that the existing reporting hierarchy in the District renders A30-05 inapplicable, the Commission notes that the facts presented for the purpose of that advisory were not appreciably different from those set forth above. Specifically, A30-05 includes the following recitation of facts:

[2] The School Ethics Act at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "member of the immediate family" as the spouse or dependent child of a school official residing in the same household. The Commission's regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2 define "spouse" as "the person to whom the school official is legally married under New Jersey law and also includes a partner in a civil union couple as established in N.J.S.A. 37:1-33." Thus, the respondent's spouse is a member of his immediate family.

> You have further set forth that board member B has a spouse employed in the district as a secretary in the office of the nurse at the high school. The principal of the high school is the direct and immediate supervisor of the spouse. The Superintendent is the immediate supervisor of the principal of the high school. Board member B's spouse is a member of the secretaries' union and the majority of the terms, conditions and benefits of her employment are subject to collective bargaining. (A30-05 at p. 2)

Thus, in A30-05, the Commission stated, in relevant part:

> With regards to board member B, since the high school principal is the direct and immediate supervisor of the board member's spouse, for the reasoning noted above, the board member would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in any employment issues regarding the principal. (A30-05 at p. 4, emphasis added)

Consequently, the Commission advised that Board member B "would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in employment issues regarding the principal of the High School and the Superintendent." The Commission further advised that Board member B must recuse himself "from all discussions and votes with regard to those administrators." (Id., emphasis added) Although the respondent's action in this matter did not take place in Executive Session, as in Filipek, and even granting that the High School Principal is no longer the "direct and immediate supervisor" of the respondent's spouse, the Commission nevertheless reasons, as it did in A30-05, that "there is an opportunity for the spouse's employment to be affected by the [respondent's] involvement in employment issues related to [the supervisors in his spouse's chain of command] in terms of the way the administrators treat and evaluate the spouse, even if such impact does not affect the contractually determined salary." (A30-05 at p. 4) Thus, when the respondent voted on June 25, 2009 to reappoint the non-tenured Principal of the High School, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had an indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Action Concerning the Respondent's Spouse

The Commission now considers the respondent's vote on June 25, 2009 to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year, which included his wife. The Commission has long held that a Board member may not vote on matters where he, or a member of his immediate family, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. See, I/M/O Wayne Wurtz, Paulsboro Bd. of Ed., C01-96 (May 28, 1996), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 293-96SEC, decided July 9, 1996; I/M/O Barry Levine, Egg Harbor Township School District, C31-97 (July 30, 1998), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 373-98SEC, decided August 26, 1998; I/M/O Lorraine Dunckley, Denville Twp. Bd. of Ed., C37-01 (July 23, 2002) Commissioner of Education Decision No.

330-02SEC, decided September 6, 2002; I/M/O Alexander Sipos, Garfield Bd. of Ed., C20-99 (May 23, 2000) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 221-00, decided July 10, 2000. Even granting that the respondent's wife is tenured and there was no reduction in force in effect for the 2009-2010 school year (Answer at p. 9), the Commission has found that "the employment of one's spouse is a matter which might reasonably be expected to impair one's objectivity." (Sipos, slip op. at p. 3) In this connection, the Commission rejects the respondent's position that his wife's tenure rights shield him from accountability. See, Donna Custode v. Bd. of Education of the Town of Hackettstown, Warren County, Commissioner of Education Decision No. 349-00, decided October 30, 2000, State Bd. of Ed., Decision No. 71-00, aff'd. The Commission finds, therefore, that when the respondent voted on June 25, 2009 to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year at a specified rate, which included his wife, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had an indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment and was also acting in a matter where a member of his immediate family had a personal involvement that is or creates a benefit to her. Therefore, the Commission finds that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that Charles Carey violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on June 25, 2009, he voted to reappoint the non-tenured members of the Administrators Association for Pennsauken for the 2009-2010 school year and to reappoint the members of the Pennsauken Association of Educational Secretaries for the 2009-2010 school year.

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of reprimand. In so doing, it has carefully considered that this respondent was recently found in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). See, I/M/O Charles Carey, Pennsauken Bd. of Ed., C33-08 (March 23, 2010), which is pending review before the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). In this connection, however, the Commission noted that the actions taken by the respondent occurred on June 25, 2009, well before C33-08 was adjudicated by the Commission. Consequently, in this unusual circumstance, the Commission is constrained to recommend a penalty of reprimand, in accordance with its previous decisions. See, I/M/O Wayne Wurtz, Paulsboro Bd. of Ed., C01-96 (May 28, 1996), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 293-96SEC, decided July 9, 1996; I/M/O Barry Levine, Egg Harbor Township School District, C31-97 (July 30, 1998), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 373-98SEC, decided August 26, 1998; and I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10SEC, decided March 11, 2010.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of JAMES STEWART, New Jersey Department of Corrections	:	Agency Dkt. No.: 20-2/10
	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The New Jersey Department of Corrections ("NJDOC" or "Department"), New Jersey State Prison ("NJSP"), which is located at Third and Federal Streets, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, represented by Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, Christopher C. Josephson, Deputy Attorney General, appearing; and James Stewart, a tenured employee of the NJDOC represented by Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., appearing; by way of this Stipulation of Settlement say:

WHEREAS, the NJDOC initiated the filing of tenure charges against Mr. Stewart, having filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education on or about February 4, 2010; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Stewart was charged with Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee and Sleeping While on Duty; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges alleged that on September 28,

2009, James Stewart, a "Teacher II" within the Department, who is assigned to NJSP, was observed by Shirley Stephens, Supervisor of Education, and Shelley Council, Teacher I, to be sleeping in a classroom at NJSP at a time when he should have been preparing for his afternoon class;

WHEREAS, the Department sought the suspension of Mr. Stewart on the above charges for a period of thirty (30) days without pay; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Stewart disputed the charges; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into an amicable resolution of the tenure charges filed against Mr. Stewart; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the parties and the public to enter into this Stipulation of Settlement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Stewart agrees to serve a suspension for fifteen (15) days without pay to be served during a time period that is agreeable to the parties. Service of the entire fifteen-day suspension must be completed within six months of the date that the Commissioner of Education approves the within settlement.

2. This Agreement shall be part of Mr. Stewart's official personnel file and may be presented and considered in any subsequent disciplinary action against him.

3. This Agreement constitutes a final and complete resolution of the tenure charges in this matter and fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties hereto. Mr. Stewart agrees not to appeal the tenure action or the terms of this Agreement in any administrative, arbitral or judicial forum.

4. Settlement of this matter is justified and in the public interest because it imposes the desired discipline without the need for a contested tenure hearing. With regard to the penalty, Mr. Stewart has had one prior disciplinary action taken against him, which was also for Sleeping While on Duty, and which resulted in a five-day suspension. The reduction in the length of the suspension without pay from the proposed length to the agreed length is equitable in exchange for eliminating the expense and uncertainty connected with a contested tenure hearing.

5. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter involving Mr. Stewart or any other employee.

6. This Agreement shall only become effective when the Commissioner of Education approves it. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

This Agreement is made in good faith. The parties have read the Agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

IN THE MATTER OF VALERIE JORDAN,	:
HIGH BRIDGE BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
HUNTERDON COUNTY.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) found that respondent – a member of the High Bridge Board of Education – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members of the School Ethics Act when she transmitted confidential correspondence from Board counsel to the Interim County Superintendent of Schools and when she posted on NJ.com inaccurate information regarding the salary negotiations for the Interim Superintendent. The Commission recommended the penalty of reprimand in this matter.

The Commissioner – whose jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the Commission's recommended sanction in the absence of an appeal of the finding of violation – adopted the Commission's recommendation that respondent be reprimanded, finding that the Commission fairly considered the nature and circumstances of respondent's violations, as well as applicable case precedent pertaining to penalty.

IN THE MATTER OF VALERIE JORDAN,	:
HIGH BRIDGE BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
HUNTERDON COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission, forwarded to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29 for final determination on the Commission's recommended penalty, have been reviewed. Respondent did not file exceptions, nor was the Commission's underlying finding of violation appealed to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the Commission. Accordingly, the above-named respondent is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IN THE MATTER OF VALERIE JORDAN	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
HIGH BRIDGE BOARD OF EDUCATION	:	Docket No. C03-09
HUNDTERDON COUNTY	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on March 3, 2009 by Robert Imhoff, alleging that Valerie Jordan, a former member of the High Bridge Board of Education, Hunterdon County, violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. An answer was filed on behalf of the respondent on April 9, 2009.[1] The matter was scheduled for a probable cause determination by the Commission on December 15, 2009, at which time the Commission voted to find probable cause that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) when, on October 3, 2008, she transmitted to the Interim County Superintendent of Schools confidential correspondence from Board counsel and when, on January 30, 2009, she posted on NJ.com inaccurate information regarding the salary negotiations for the Interim Superintendent. The Commission also found that the complaint was not frivolous. The Commission determined to resolve this matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), in that the material facts in this matter are not in dispute.[2]

The Commission adopted its Probable Cause Notice at its meeting on January 26, 2010 and mailed the notice to the respondent, via regular and certified mail, on January 27, 2010.[3] Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), the respondent was accorded 30 days from the mailing date of the Probable Cause Notice to submit a written statement of the reasons she should not be found in violation of the Act based on the undisputed facts set forth in this Probable Cause Notice.[4] Respondent was therein notified that after expiration of the time for submission of her statement, the Commission may make a determination of violation on a summary basis. The respondent did not submit a statement in response to the Probable Cause Notice. At its meeting on March 23, 2010, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and recommended a penalty of reprimand.

[1] By letter dated June 26, 2009, the respondent notified the Commission that she was no longer represented by counsel.

[2] On April 15, 2009, the State Board of Education adopted amendments to N.J.A.C. 6A:28, the regulations governing matters that come before the School Ethics Commission. These rules became effective on May 18, 2009. However, because the complaint in this matter was filed before May 18, 2009, the Commission followed procedures and rendered its determinations herein in accordance with the rules that were in effect at the time the complaint was filed. To the extent this decision cites to regulations, they are the regulations that were in effect when the complaint was filed.

[3] The "green card" returned to the Commission shows delivery on January 29, 2010.

[4] The respondent was therein also advised that if she disputed the facts set forth in the Probable Cause Notice, she should set forth the facts with which she disagreed and state why they are material to the case.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts are deemed to be undisputed:

1. At all times relevant, the respondent was a Board member.

2. On or about the beginning of 2009, the Board was interviewing two final candidates for an Interim Superintendent's position. Responding to a Board member's concern that the per-diem salary could be further negotiated, Board member Robert Imhoff, during a Board meeting, called both finalists and both finalists agreed to a lower per-diem rate than that which was previously given in the interviews.

3. The respondent acknowledged that she posted information on NJ.com as "CodeRedd1."

4. On January 30, 2009, the respondent posted a statement on NJ.com as "CodeRedd1" regarding the salary negotiations of the Interim Superintendent. That posting states: "[Word omitted] are correct. Jeff wanted to negotiate, but the interim would not take less. The range between all potential candidates was $600-620 a day." (Complaint attachment).

5. The January 30, 2009 posting by the respondent was an inaccurate statement.

6. The February 9, 2009 Board minutes state, in relevant part:

> Mr. Imhoff also pointed out that Mrs. Jordan had inaccurately posted on the NJ Forum that "Jeff Raefski wanted to negotiate, but the interim would not take less." Mr. Imhoff pointed out that again Mrs. Jordan was lying to the public, when in fact Mr. Raefski did want to negotiate with the final candidates, and as a result of his request, the Board authorized, Mr. Imhoff, with the entire BOE present, to call the top 2 candidates and negotiate salary. Mr. Imhoff stated that both candidates made salary concessions, which Mrs. Jordan agreed and stated "oh yeah $5.00". Mr. Imhoff pointed out that it was actually a $10.00 per day concession for the CSA the BOE ultimately hired.  (February 9, 2009 Board Minutes at p. 7)

7. A memorandum from the Superintendent of Schools, Patricia Ash, to the Board, dated September 11, 2008 states, in full:

> Please find attached confidential correspondence from Nick Celso, Board Attorney regarding an analysis and opinion of the type of language used for executive session resolution.
> This is not an agenda item. (Answer/Ash Memo, September 11, 2008)

8. On October 3, 2008, the respondent sent via telefax from her home to the office of the Interim County Superintendent the letter from the Board attorney that was marked "ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGED – CONFIDENTIAL." The attorney's letter, dated September 3, 2008, is addressed to the High Bridge Superintendent and contains legal advice.

9. The respondent acknowledged that the fax number shown on the banner of the letter was from her fax machine.

Based on the undisputed facts set forth above, the Commission previously found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), which states:

> I will hold confidential all matters pertaining to the schools which, if disclosed, would needlessly injure individuals or the schools. In all other matters, I will provide accurate information and, in concert with my fellow board members, interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.

As noted above, the respondent did not submit a written statement in response to the Probable Cause Notice and, therefore, did not challenge any of the facts set forth in the notice. With respect to the respondent's posting on NJ.com of inaccurate information regarding the salary negotiations for the Interim Superintendent on January 30, 2009, the Commission reflects on its decision in I/M/O Randie Zimmerman, Rocky Hill Bd. of Ed., (C49-02) (July 22, 2003), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 497-03SEC, decided August 21, 2003. There, the Commission found that a Board member violated N.J.A.C. 18A:12-24.1(g) when, after receiving a complaint from a parent about a classroom, she forwarded a letter to the Superintendent which referred to the "substandard kindergarten classroom" and stated that the room was an "obvious Fire Code Violation" because there must be two available exits to any classroom." The Superintendent challenged the accuracy of the correspondence, noting that the classroom had been approved by the county superintendent for instruction. The Commission found that Ms. Zimmerman did not provide accurate information; neither did she discuss these strong allegations with her Board or give the administration an opportunity to address the concerns raised. Therefore, the Commission reasoned, she did not act in concert with her fellow board members to interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.[5]

Similarly, in the instant matter, at the probable cause phase of the Commission's review, two Board members, Ms. Kay Daughters-Musnuff and Ms. Janice Stemple, testified that the Board was interviewing two final candidates for an interim Superintendent's position when one of the Board members wanted to negotiate the per-diem salary. Thus, during a Board meeting, Robert Imhoff called the candidates and negotiated down the daily rate that was previously given in the interviews. The respondent never denied that she was present at the meeting when these calls were made. Yet, her posting on NJ.com did not accurately reflect this course of events. Although it is a mere couple sentences, the Commission is concerned that this communication was presented in a manner which was inconsistent with the respondent's duty to provide accurate information and to act in concert with her fellow board members to interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.[6]

With respect to the respondent's transmittal of a document on October 3, 2008 to the Interim County Superintendent of Schools which the Superintendent and Board attorney deemed confidential, the Commission specifically rejects the respondent's assertion that the letter was not confidential in nature (Answer at paragraph 23) and finds that a reasonable Board member would have known that a letter from the Board attorney marked "ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGED – CONFIDENTIAL" should have been treated as a confidential correspondence. (See, Jacobs v. Delbury. C44-07 (November 25, 2008) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 7-09SEC, decided January 9, 2009, where the Commission found that respondent's public posting of a confidential email that included information about a District employee could have needlessly injured the staff member or the schools because it exposed the school to possible litigation and revealed confidential medical information about a staff member.)

In I/M/O Frank Pizzichillo, C17-02 (January 28, 2003), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 102-03SEC decided March 6, 2003, the Commission found that a board member should have been convinced that documents given to the Board at a public meeting (an employee's payroll records) were confidential due to the specific personal information contained in the documents; the Commission also noted that the release of the same could have subjected the Board to adverse consequences. Consequently, the Commission found that Pizzichillo violated N.J.A.C. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (g).

In the instant matter, the Commission finds that the respondent should not have transmitted counsel's confidential correspondence to anyone outside of the Board. The Commission further finds that the Board attorney's correspondence was of such a nature that its release could have needlessly injured the Board. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) when, on October 3, 2008, she transmitted to the Interim County Superintendent of Schools confidential correspondence from Board counsel and when, on January 30, 2009, she posted on NJ.com inaccurate information regarding the salary negotiations for the Interim Superintendent.

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that Valerie Jordan violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

[6] The Commission notes that there is no allegation that the information in the posting was confidential. Nor does the record provide any support for such an assumption.

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of reprimand, as it did in Pizzichillo, supra., and Zimmerman, supra., since it finds Pizzichillo and Zimmerman to be both factually analogous and comparable in violation(s) to the matter herein, for the reasons set forth in the above analysis.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Resolution Adopting Decision – C03-09

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has considered the pleadings filed by the parties, the documents submitted in support thereof, the testimony presented on December 15, 2009; and

Whereas, at its meeting on December 15, 2009, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) as set forth in Counts II and IV of the complaint, but found no probable cause to credit the allegations that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), as set forth in Count III or N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), as set forth in Counts I, II and IV and, therefore, dismissed those allegations;

Whereas, the respondent was so notified and accorded 30 days to submit a written statement setting forth the reasons why she should not be found in violation of the Act.

Whereas, the respondent failed to submit a written statement; and

Whereas, at its meeting on March 23, 2010, the Commission determined that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) of the School Ethics Act and recommended a penalty of reprimand; and

Whereas, at its meeting on April 20, 2010, the Commission agreed that the within decision accurately memorializes its findings and recommendations; and

Now Therefore Be It Resolved, that the Commission hereby adopts the within decision and directs it staff to notify all parties to this action of the decision.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (DCF-IAIU) substantiated that K.N. physically abused E.W., a twelve year old student. K.N. denied all charges, and requested that his name be removed from the Central Registry. Following the DCF complaint, the District filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against K.N. – a special education teacher – and sought his removal from his tenured position. The cases were consolidated; DCF was determined to have the predominant interest; and the ALJ ordered the record sealed.

The ALJ found that: respondent's testimony was credible and consistent with the evidence; any physical contact that occurred between K.N. and E.W. consisted of K.N. holding E.W.'s arm to stop him from passing out candy to other students; and no credible evidence exists to support the petitioners' contentions of abuse. The ALJ concluded that: DCF-IAIU failed to meet its burden of proving that a substantiated abuse determination is warranted; that the District failed to demonstrate that K.N.'s conduct was unbecoming; termination is not warranted, but respondent's conduct warrants verbal counseling on appropriateness of physical contact with a student when intervening to stop misconduct. The ALJ ordered the DCF-IAIU's substantiated abuse determination dismissed, and reversed K. N.'s removal from his tenured teaching position by the District.

The Chief of Staff of the DCF found no indication that the ALJ's determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and adopted the Initial Decision reversing the finding of abuse. Further, the DCF determined that K.N.'s name would not be placed on the central registry.

The Commissioner's sole focus in this matter is to determine whether the District's tenure charges against K.N. have been sustained. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings that the District failed to establish conduct unbecoming. Accordingly, the Initial Decision dismissing the tenure charges and returning respondent to his tenured position was adopted; the Commissioner, however, declined to adopt that portion of the OAL decision recommending verbal counseling as he found nothing inappropriate about K.N. holding E.W.'s arm for a short period of time to stop him from passing out candy in class. The Commissioner ordered respondent returned to his tenured position and reimbursed for back pay and emoluments, less mitigation.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3071-09
AGENCY DKT. NO. 23-2/09
(CONSOLIDATED)

A. INTRODUCTION

K.N., a teacher for the City of Newark, appealed a finding of abuse rendered by the Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (IAIU) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c). The IAIU investigation resulted in a finding that K.N. abused a twelve-year-old student, E.W., by placing a plastic bag and holding it tightly over his head, picking E.W. up out of his seat and slamming him down into his desk. K.N. filed a request for a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). The matter was transmitted to the OAL for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13 on March 10, 2009.

In addition, the school district filed tenure charges against K.N., related to this incident. This agency does not have jurisdiction over the tenure charges. Administrative Law Judge Mumtaz Bari-Brown (ALJ Bari-Brown) ordered on March 10, 2009, that the two matters be consolidated and that DCF has the predominant interest in determining whether an act of child abuse had taken place. ALJ Bari-Brown heard the matter on June 4, 15, and 16, and July 30, and 31, 2009. The record remained open for post-hearing submissions and was closed on October 30, 2009. The Initial Decision, which is attached hereto and incorporated by reference, was issued on January 26, 2010, and received by this agency on the same day.

B. THE INITIAL DECISION

In rendering her decision, the ALJ considered the testimony of: E.W., the victim; Kim Barnes, a teacher's aide; Nahlia Gad, IAIU investigator; Ronald Orr, vice principal and school administrator at William H. Brown Academy; Diane Anderson, social worker for the Office of Alternative Education; Davis Hannah, art teacher; Janice Holmes, in-class support teacher; and K.N., the respondent. ALJ Bari-Brown also considered IAIU investigative reports and supporting documentation.

ALJ Bari-Brown noted inconsistencies in the witness' testimony. E.W. stated that while the class watched a Jet Li movie after lunch, K.N. placed a plastic bag over his head, and held it tightly around his neck. K.N. then picked E.W. up by the arm and leg and slammed him into his desk. K.N. denied that any incident occurred in the afternoon and further denied that he showed a Jet Li movie that afternoon. According to K.N., in the morning he told E.W. to stop passing out candy and when E.W. did not listen, he grabbed E.W.'s arm. K.N. testified that this "unnerved" E.W., and that E.W. told K.N. to let go of his arm.

The ALJ also considered the statements that the caseworker took from the other students, S.S., J.J., and J.R., who did not testify in court. Lastly, the ALJ also considered the testimony of several coworkers, who testified on K.N.'s behalf, but they did not have any direct knowledge of the incident. The ALJ evaluated the testimony of K.N. and E.W. since they were the only witnesses who had first hand knowledge of the incident. The ALJ noted that E.W. changed details, such as the number of bags, the location of the bags, and color of the bag allegedly placed over his head. E.W. also testified that J.R. was given papers to hold from the bag, but J.R. told the caseworker that he was asleep and did not witness the incident. During testimony K.N. denied placing a plastic bag on E.W.'s head, denied grabbing E.W. by the neck, denied slamming E.W. into the desk, denied showing a movie that afternoon, denied every showing a Jet Li movie, and denied even keeping plastic bags in his classroom.

The ALJ made additional findings which related to the tenure issue, and which are, accordingly, not addressed herein. ALJ Bari-Brown after evaluating the testimony of the witnesses determined that K.N.'s testimony was credible and constant. Accordingly, the ALJ found that some physical contact took place, but determined that the extent of the contact consisted of K.N. grabbing E.W.'s arm to prevent him from passing out candy.

ALJ Bari-Brown considered relevant regulatory and statutory law, including the definition of child abuse and neglect at N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c):

> a child less than 18 years of age whose parent or guardian . . . (1) inflicts or allows to be inflicted upon such child physical injury by other than accidental means which causes or creates a substantial risk of death, or serious or protracted disfigurement, or protracted impairment of physical or emotional health or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily organ; (2) creates or allows to be created a substantial or ongoing risk of physical injury to such child by other than accidental means which would be likely to cause death or serious or protracted disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily organ; . . . (4) or a child whose physical, mental, or emotional condition has been impaired or is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as the result of the failure of his parent or guardian, as herein defined, to exercise a minimum degree of care . . . (b) in providing the child with proper supervision or guardianship, by unreasonably inflicting or allowing to be inflicted harm, or substantial risk thereof, including the infliction of excessive corporal punishment; or by any other acts of a similarly serious nature requiring the aid of the court.

The ALJ concluded that "no credible evidence exists to support the versions of the events of May 23, 2008, presented through the testimony of E.W. and Barnes or the investigator's statements of S.S., J.J., M.B. and J.R. I therefore CONCLUDE that the Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit, has failed to meet its burden of proving that a substantiated-abuse determination is warranted." Accordingly, ALJ Bari-Brown overturned the substantiation of abuse.

C. COMMENTS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8, appellants may file exceptions within 13 days of the date that the Initial Decision was mailed to the parties. No exceptions were received.

D. FINAL DECISION

The OAL file was transmitted to this Department for consideration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(d) and was reviewed in its entirety. Careful consideration was given to the ALJ's findings and conclusions with respect to the evidence and testimony presented at the hearing. I concur that the facts in this matter, as found by ALJ Bari-Brown, do not support the finding of child abuse.

The basic facts of this case are disputed. According to E.W., while the class was watching a Jet Li movie, K.N. picked up a plastic bag, removed its contents, and gave the contents to another student. K.N. then put the bag over E.W.'s head, holding it tightly around his neck, and picked E.W. up by his shoulder and leg and slammed him down into the desk. E.W. was not injured as a result of this incident. K.N. denied showing a movie that afternoon and denied ever showing a Jet Li movie. K.N. also denied keeping plastic bags in the classroom. He denied any incident happening at that time. K.N. contends that earlier in the day he told E.W. to stop passing out candy. When E.W. did not listen, K.N. grabbed E.W.'s arm, which "unnerved" E.W. prompting E.W. to tell K.N. to let go.

ALJ Bari-Brown found K.N.'s account of the incident, as set forth within, to be credible while finding E.W.'s account of the incident to be inconsistent and not credible. It is the task of the ALJ to make her own credibility determinations, based upon the testimony and evidence presented. Those determinations may only be modified when the Division determines, from a review of the record, that the findings are arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6(c). The ALJ provided an explanation regarding her determination that K.N.'s testimony was credible. There is no indication that this determination was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

ALJ Bari-Brown found that the only physical contact between K.N. and E.W. occurred when K.N. held E.W.'s arm to stop him from passing out candy to his classmates. Such contact does not constitute abuse or neglect pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9: 6-8.21(c). Therefore, in the absence of evidence to reject the ALJ's credibility determination, I ADOPT the ALJ's Initial Decision, which REVERSED the finding of abuse. Consequently, K.N.'s name will not be placed on the central registry.

Adam S. Herman, Esq., for petitioner State-Operated School District of the City of Newark

Eugene Liss, Esq., for respondent K.N.

Record Closed: October 30, 2009 Decided: January 28, 2010

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit, (DCF-IAIU) substantiated that K.N. physically abused E.W., a twelve-year-old student, by placing a plastic bag over his head, closing it tightly, pulling E.W. up, and slamming him over a desk. K.N. denies all charges of abuse and requests that his name be removed from the Central Registry. See N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.11.

As a result of the DCF complaint, the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark charged K.N., a tenured teacher in special education, with unbecoming conduct. The District seeks K.N.'s removal from his tenured position. K.N. opposes the removal action.

The DCF and the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matters to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On March 10, 2009, a prehearing conference was held pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-13.1. I ordered that the cases be consolidated and determined that the DCF has the predominant interest in the outcome of this proceeding. N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.3(a); N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.5(a). I further ordered that the record be sealed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10a and N.J.A.C. 1:10A-14.1(b).

Hearings were held on June 4, 15, and 16, and July 30, and 31, 2009. I granted the parties' requests for an extended period of time to submit posthearing briefs, and the record was closed on October 30, 2009. Based on the voluminous record and the administrative law judge's voluminous caseload, an extension of time to complete the initial decision was granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

ISSUES

1. Whether K.N. is guilty of the charges alleged by the IAIU, and, if so, does the conduct constitute substantiated abuse?

2. Whether K.N. is guilty of the charges (conduct unbecoming) alleged by the District, and, if so, what is the appropriate penalty?

FACTS

Based on the joint stipulation of facts and the relevant evidence, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. On May 23, 2008, K.N., a tenured teacher of special education, was employed by the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark and assigned to William H. Brown Academy.

2. On May 23, 2008, principal Kevin Guyton of William H. Brown Academy referred a child abuse allegation to the IAIU and charged K.N. with physical abuse of E.W., a twelve-year-old student.

3. Nahlia Gad, IAIU investigator, investigated the child abuse allegation.

4. On August 11, 2008, Charmine L. Thomas, chief of IAIU Investigations, informed K.N. that the child abuse allegation was substantiated.

5. On September 3, 2008, K.N. denied the allegation and requested a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law.

6. On February 4, 2009, Clifford B. Janey, State district superintendent of the Newark Public Schools, certified tenure charges against K.N.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

K.N.

Since 1978, K.N., a certified teacher of the handicapped, has worked in the Newark public schools. In school year 2007–2008 he taught a "self-contained" class at William H. Brown Academy.[1] Students were placed in "self-contained" classes due to learning disabilities. Some exhibited behavior disorders with tendencies to be disruptive and impulsive. For example, they were subject to sudden outbursts of anger and out-of-control behavior, and were argumentative, verbally abuse and physically abusive. These students often repeat grades two or three times.

The students in K.N.'s science class were J.J., S.S., E.W., M.B., J.R. M.S. (absent) and D.H. (absent). In November 2007 E.W. transferred into the class. K.N. described his students' behavior patterns. For example, M.S. would refuse to stay inside the classroom and had to be placed in an SOS (suspension-on-site) class. S.S. was very quiet, but when teased by another student he would explode, pushing over desks and chairs and going after whoever bothered him. At times S.S. would blow things out of proportion, would fantasize, and would become argumentative, as well as combative. J.R. was sometimes argumentatively combative. School personnel would call J.R.'s mother and she would speak to her son until he became calm. K.N. noted that J.R. was learning to control his temper and might be a good candidate for inclusion-class placement. J.J. liked to be the center of attention and exhibited sadomasochistic behavior. On one occasion while sitting in his seat, J.J. stabbed himself in the arm with a tack, looked at the blood flowing out, and smiled. K.N. also recalled the day that J.J. sliced his tongue with a razor. When these incidents occurred K.N. calmly spoke to the students, making it a point not to yell.

K.N. also testified about E.W.'s behavior. In November 2007 E.W. transferred from a sixth-grade class and was very adamant about not wanting to be in K.N.'s classroom. He would constantly figure out ways to leave the classroom. E.W. would be totally out of control if he did not take his medication. Initially, E.W. was not assigned an aide. When given permission to leave the room, e.g., go to the bathroom, school security would find him in the hall and escort him back to class. K.N. further testified that E.W. fabricated stories. For example, E.W. was in the after-school program, where the students complete homework assignments. Often, E.W. did not do his assignment; instead, he told K.N. no teachers were available to help him. On other occasions E.W. claimed that the book slid off his desk onto the floor, claimed that the pencil broke because it was weak, or denied eating candy although candy wrappers were found on the floor beneath his desk. K.N. believed uncontrolled intake of candy could impact E.W.'s behavior. He described an occasion when E.W. ate candy and then K.N. found him on the playground flipping off the wall. E.W. exhibited volatile behavior and was assigned a personal aide, Ms. Venable. However, due to E.W.'s volatility the school principal removed Ms. Venable from the classroom. K.N. claimed that he repeatedly requested that the principal assign E.W. an aide, as required by his Individualized Education Plan (IEP).

K.N. described the daily class schedule and the incident that occurred on May 23, 2008. Between 8:40 and 9:25 a.m. the students work on vocabulary, and they go to lunch from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. On May 23, 2008, at approximately 8:40 a.m. E.W. entered the classroom and began passing portions of his sandwich to the other students.[2] K.N. said, "I told him, 'Stop giving out the sandwich pieces and put it away.'" K.N. said that E.W. mumbled and rolled his eyes at him. At 10:00 a.m. K.N. observed E.W. passing candy to the other students and told him to stop. Between 10:20 and 11:50 a.m. K.N. showed a film, "The Pursuit of Happiness."

K.N. testified that between 11:50 a.m. and 12:10 p.m. Kimberly Barnes, the teacher's aide, walked into the classroom. She stayed only briefly. Generally, the teacher's aide assists K.N., e.g., escorts students to the lunch room. However, on May 23, 2008, K.N. escorted the students to the lunch area. Generally, after lunch K.N. meets the students in the playground and escorts them back to class. On May 23, 2008, K.N. arrived at the playground and observed E.W. "flipping off the wall, running up to the wall and planting his feet and spinning off the wall." K.N. and the students returned to the classroom at 1:00 p.m. and worked on a science lesson.

K.N. observed E.W. passing out candy to other students. Although he told him to stop several times, E.W. continued the behavior. K.N. said that he walked over to E.W. and reached out and held E.W.'s arm in order to stop him from passing out the candy. K.N. stated, "I told him to stop, and he looked at me, and was very unnerved with me holding his arm, saying, 'Let go.'" K.N. maintained that he then walked away while E.W. sat in his chair pouting. K.N. denied grabbing E.W.'s neck, placing a plastic bag over E.W.'s head, and "slamming" E.W.

K.N. denied kicking or hitting any student with a hammer, making students participate in torture games, and allowing them to hit each other. He acknowledged having a hammer in his classroom, which he borrowed from the custodian in the beginning of the school year to hang pictures. He then returned the hammer. Further, K.N. denied showing films containing violence. Indeed, he said he believed that films that contained violence were contrary to the calm environment he tried to maintain. He believed a sedate atmosphere helped to diffuse real incidents of violence in his class. For example, K.N. recalled M.S. placing a knife at another student's throat. On another occasion he observed E.W. "tormenting" his aide, Ms. Venable. Other incidents involved J.R. attacking a teacher, S.S. and M.B. fighting, and J.J. using a razor and thumbtack to inflict wounds on himself.

K.N. further testified that E.W. and S.S. sat next to each other. K.N. has observed S.S.'s aggressive behavior, e.g., he has seen S.S. throw chairs at student J.R. K.N. believed that if he were to ever punch and kick S.S. that S.S. could react by throwing chairs. Therefore, K.N. sought to create a "tranquil and calm" setting by playing music in the background during class. He also used lavender or lemongrass oil diffusers in the classroom. K.N. believed these techniques created a calming effect "subliminally" on the students in the classroom.

K.N. continued describing the events of May 23, 2008. The teacher's aide, Kimberly Barnes, returned to the classroom at 1:50 p.m., stayed briefly, and left. She returned at 2:30 p.m. and sat at her desk. Prior to dismissal K.N. left the room to find S.S., who had run out the classroom. The students were dismissed at 2:55 p.m. K.N. returned to the classroom and asked Barnes to escort the students to the bus. He noticed that E.W. was not in the room. Barnes said that E.W. "left out." K.N. searched for E.W. and found him in front of the main office. He denied that Barnes took E.W. out of the classroom; he said that E.W. had run out of the classroom.

Under cross-examination K.N testified that E.W.'s violent conduct frequently occurred in other classes, taught by teachers Janice Holmes and Rasheeda Bates. On those occasions K.N. would escort E.W. to the vice principal's office. K.N. knew that E.W. was on medication to control his behavior. When E.W. didn't take his medication he would sometimes be out of control and couldn't sit for five minutes without getting up. K.N. believed that E.W.'s behavior on May 23, 2008, could have been the result of not taking his medication.

E.W.

E.W. testified that the movie shown in class was not "The Pursuit of Happiness." Instead, K.N. showed a martial arts movie with Jet Li containing "fighting," "kicking," and "guns." Everyone was watching the movie, talking or sleeping. Sometime between 1:15 and 1:45 p.m. he heard a noise, turned around, and saw K.N. take papers out of a plastic bag and give the contents to J.R., another student in the class. E.W. maintained that he was watching the Jet Li movie when K.N. came at him from behind and placed the plastic bag over his head. He said, "I felt like I couldn't breathe for a minute." Then K.N. lifted him from the chair and "slammed [him] on the chair." K.N. then removed the plastic bag from E.W.'s head and he began to cry. E.W. further testified that he tried to leave the room "to tell a teacher" and report K.N. He could not, because K.N. grabbed his arm and said, "Everything is going to be all right."

Kim Barnes

Kim Barnes is the teacher's aide assigned to K.N.'s classroom. She testified that on May 23, 2008, K.N. showed part of a Jet Li movie in the morning before lunch and continued the movie after the children returned from lunch. She entered the room and saw four students, E.W., S.S., J.S. and J.J. Barnes testified that S.S. and J.J. approached her laughing and said, "'Mr. N. put a bag over E.W.'s head and picked him up and slammed him down on the desk.' . . . They were all talking about it. They were all laugh ing." Barnes further testified that as S.S. and J.J. were reporting the incident she heard K.N. remark, "He's okay. He's fine." Barnes testified that K.N. kept white, beige and yellow plastic shopping or grocery bags in the classroom. Under cross-examination Barnes conceded that she did not hear K.N. threaten E.W. However, she believed that K.N. treated E.W. and S.S. differently from the other students regarding their use of the computer.

Barnes maintained that she sat there for a minute, and she tried to get E.W. to talk to her but he said nothing. Therefore, she left the classroom and reported the incident to the vice principal, Mr. Orr. Barnes conceded that she did not ask to leave the classroom or inform K.N. that she was leaving the room. Barnes, adamantly and somewhat belligerently, stated, "I'm grown. Ask Mr. N. can I leave the class? No." In contrast to Orr's testimony, Barnes maintained that it was school policy that she could leave the classroom whenever she chose.

Barnes further testified that when she reported the incident to Orr he acted like he didn't know what to do or how to tell Barnes to handle the situation. She said that she went back to the classroom because it was time to take the students to the bus. She was taking S.S. and J.S. to the bus at 2:15 when E.W. asked if he could go with her. Barnes said that she was hoping that E.W. would tell her about what had happened with K.N. when they were outside of the classroom, which he did. E.W. said to her, "It's true, Ms. Barnes. Mr. N. did put the plastic bag over my head and slammed me down." Barnes escorted E.W. to the Child Study Team and then to the principal, Mr. Guyton, and submitted a statement.

Barnes further testified that she had been assigned to K.N.'s classroom as the teacher's aide since the beginning of the 2007–2008 school year. She never observed K.N. kick, hit or act inappropriately towards a student. She never observed K.N. do anything that could be considered "torture" games with the children. Barnes said that

K.N.'s approach to educating the students included "the meditation stuff." In the morning he would tell the kids to meditate, and would put a particular video on. Barnes also described E.W.'s behavior. She said that there were instances when E.W. would "explode." He would go in a closet, and either she or Ms. Venable would have to go in the closet and calm him down. Barnes has seen E.W. "get mad" and "kick the chair or something, because they'd be picking on him," but nobody did anything.

Nahlia Gad

Nahlia Gad, an investigator for the IAIU, interviewed E.W. at his home on May 23, 2008. She reported that E.W. told her that K.N. was a mean teacher, but Ms. Barnes, his teacher's assistant, was nice. He told her that while the class was watching a movie K.N. walked over to him, "asked [student J.R.] to hold some stuff that was in a plastic bag and placed the bag over [E.W.'s] head." K.N. "then picked [E.W.] up by his left leg and right shoulder and slammed him against the bottom of the seat he was already sitting on." Four classmates were sitting near him, S.S., J.R., M.B. and another J. Gad further reported that E.W. told her, "Ms. Barnes was at lunch and when she returned she overheard [K.N.] telling him 'I'll get you later.'" E.W. also said that Ms. Barnes "made up a story" to get him out of the classroom and into the hallway. E.W. told Barnes about the incident while they were in the hallway. E.W. also told Gad that K.N. had hit him on another occasion, and that K.N. kept a hammer and plastic shopping or grocery bags in his classroom. Gad also noted in her report that E.W. said that he had told his mother that K.N. had hit him before, "but she didn't do anything." (P-2).

Gad interviewed S.S., who "reported the same exact story as [E.W.]." He told her that the whole class was watching the movie, Mr. N. took "some stuff" out of a plastic bag and told J.R. to hold the stuff then [S.S.] watched K.N. walk over to E.W. and placed a bag over E.W.'s head, picked him up and slam him back onto the chair. S.S. watched as E.W. then began to cry. Gad also reported that S.S. told her "[E.W.] eventually ripped the bag off of his own head." (P-2.)

Gad interviewed M.B., who told her that he was "sleeping during the movie and did not see anything that happened between E.W. and K.N." (P-2.)

Gad interviewed J.J., who her that he didn't see or hear anything that happened between E.W. and K.N. J.S. was sitting in front of E.W. and heard the chair "slam on the ground" and saw E.W. "on the floor with his face up." S.S. also told Gad that he had no knowledge of an incident involving K.N. putting a plastic bag over E.W.'s head. Gad noted, "He reports that he did not hear [K.N.] saying anything to [E.W.] or threatening him." (P-2.)

Gad interviewed J.R., who said that he was sleeping during the movie and did not see or hear anything between K.N. and E.W. In contrast to the version reported by S.S., Gad reported in her interview with J.R. that he (J.R.) denied that K.N. asked him to hold the plastic bag or its contents. (P-2).

Gad also interviewed Kimberly Barnes, who said that she was returning to K.N.'s classroom after her lunch period. Barnes also told Gad that E.W. was crying as S.S. approached her and said, "Ms. Barnes, you don't want to know what happened." Gad reported that S.S. then proceeded to tell Barnes about K.N. placing the plastic bag over E.W.'s head and slamming him back on his chair. (P-2.)

Gad interviewed L.W., mother of E.W., who told her that E.W. came home on May 23, 2008, and said, "The teacher said he was 'gonna' get him, put a bag on his head, flipped him, and hit him." L.W. further said that her son was "mad, but was not crying and wasn't complaining of pain." (P-2.)

Gad then interviewed Principal Guyton. He reported that the incident came to his attention through Barnes and E.W., who were waiting for him in his office. E.W., who appeared distraught and was crying, told him that K.N. had put a plastic bag over his head. (P-2.)

Gad testified that there was no question in her mind that the incident happened as described by E.W., S.S. and Kimberly Barnes. She believed E.W. and S.S. were credible, honest, sincere, and genuine. Gad also believed that E.W. never lied, as reported by Barnes.

Ronald Orr

Ronald Orr held the position of vice principal and school administrator at William H. Brown Academy. Neither he nor Kimberly Barnes witnessed the incident between K.N. and E.W. on May 23, 2008. However, he was familiar with the general makeup of the students in K.N.'s class and the duties of the teacher's aide. As a teacher's aide, Kimberly Barnes' responsibilities were to remain in the classroom at all times and take her lunch period when the children ate their lunch. However, Barnes was not in the classroom during the incident. When questioned by Orr about why she was away from the classroom, Barnes respondend, "I was doing something else."

Orr further testified that K.N.'s students were classified, many with behavior disorders, and were the most difficult to manage. The students had special needs and all had IEPs, an education plan that addresses social and emotional behavior as well as academics. The IEP also describes the student's behavior pattern, i.e., what sets the student off and what behavior he or she responds to. For example, if agitated or upset some children might have a tendency to throw chairs. Some of the students have been "bounced" from one school to another due to behavior problems. Orr testified that "they've been known to make up stories."

K.N.'s classroom was located above Orr's office, so Orr was able to hear loud noises from the classroom. On several occasions, upon hearing a "ruckus" in the classroom Orr would run upstairs to the classroom. Often the students would explain that K.N. had done something to cause a loud noise.

Orr observed K.N.'s class on several occasions. As vice principal it was his responsibility to discipline students for misbehavior. Orr described K.N.'s relationship with his students as "good." The students respected him. On one occasion a special education student had a loaded gun in school. The school administration believed that the student would listen to K.N. and asked him to intervene. K.N. asked the student,

"Do you have a gun?" The student replied, "Yeah." K.N. asked, "Can I have it?" The student gave the gun to K.N., and the administration put it in a bag and waited for the police to arrive. Orr further described K.N. as "strong." He said that K.N. cared about his students and brought supplies for the students to work with. Orr also said that K.N. was "very rigid, [a] very no-nonsense type."

Diane Anderson

Diane Anderson was employed as a social worker for the Office of Alternative Education. She worked at William H. Brown Academy for seven years with K.N. Three or four times per week she observed K.N.'s classroom, and she described it as "the epitome of calm." He played soothing music and maintained a "pleasant atmosphere." The students were engaged in academic work as K.N. walked around the room interacting with each student, never raising his voice. Anderson further revealed that some of the students were reassigned to K.N.'s class because the other special education teachers could not handle these students' "difficult behavior."

Janice Holmes

Janice Holmes was employed as an in-class support teacher for special education students and worked with K.N. for twelve years. Three special education teachers taught the same students in school year 2007–2008: Rasheeda Bates, K.N. and Holmes, who taught literacy and history. Holmes' duties brought her into K.N.'s classroom daily. She described K.N.'s demeanor as calm and collected, and said that he was very accessible and approachable for his students. He earned a reputation within the school as a person who cared about his students and for whom the students felt respect.

Davis Hannah

Davis Hannah was employed at William H. Brown Academy as the art teacher. His duties allowed him to observe K.N. in the classroom. Hannah said he believed that the "toughest kids" were enrolled in K.N.'s class, "because a lot of teachers sent the most problematic students to Mr. N." Hannah further observed that those students became calmer after being in K.N.'s class. He attributed the transition to the classroom atmosphere, e.g., soft music and calming scents. Hannah admitted that he believed it was "odd," until he actually paid attention to the students' response to the classroom environment. Hannah candidly testified that the school had a negative reputation within the school district. He testified about his first experience walking in the building and thinking that the bell had rung because so many people were in the hallway. He then learned that it was the middle of a class period and no bell had rung. In contrast, K.N.'s classroom was "sort of an oasis." He said that K.N. would bring the most "belligerent kids in there and try to show them a different way, a different outlet."

DISCUSSION

1. Substantiated Abuse

The charges against K.N. are serious and the penalty sought is severe. If it is determined that an allegation of child abuse or neglect has been substantiated, the name of the individual and any identifying information are entered into the Central Registry maintained by the DHS. See N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.11. The information contained in the Registry is confidential, but may be disclosed to various people for specified purposes. N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10a; In re L.R., 321 N.J. Super. 444, 466 n.3 (App. Div. 1999); New Jersey Div. of Youth and Family Servs. v. M.R., 314 N.J. Super. 390, 399-402 (App. Div. 1998); In re Allegations of Sexual Abuse at E. Park High Sch., 314 N.J. Super. 149, 156-59 (App. Div. 1998).

After an allegation of child abuse or neglect has been received, the child protective investigator shall evaluate the available information and determine whether abuse or neglect has occurred, and shall make a finding of either "substantiated" or "unfounded." N.J.A.C. 10:129-5.3(a).

> "Substantiated" means a finding when the available information, as evaluated by the child protective investigator, indicates by a preponderance of the evidence that a child is an abused or neglected child as defined in N.J.A.C. 10:133-

> 1.3 because the alleged child victim has been harmed or placed at risk of harm by a parent or guardian.
>
> "Unfounded" means a finding when:
>
> i. There is not a preponderance of evidence that the alleged child victim was harmed or placed at substantial risk of harm; or
>
> ii. There is not a preponderance of evidence indicating that a parent or guardian and child were involved.
> [N.J.A.C. 10:129-1.3.]

"Parent or guardian" includes a teacher. Ibid. An "abused or neglected child" means a child less than eighteen years of age

> [w]hose physical, mental, or emotional condition has been impaired or is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as the result of the failure of his or her parent or guardian to exercise a minimum degree of care . . . [i]n providing the child with proper supervision or guardianship, by unreasonably inflicting or allowing to be inflicted harm, or substantial risk thereof, including the infliction of excessive corporal punishment; or by any other acts of a similarly serious nature requiring the aid of the court . . . .

The IAIU has the burden of proving substantiated abuse by the preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). Preponderance is the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Where the standard is reasonable probability, that is, preponderance of the evidence, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959) (citation omitted).

Proof of the charge that K.N. abused E.W. depends in large part on the credibility of the witnesses. Credibility contemplates an assessment of a witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. In re Schulman, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (BDS) 16, 27 (citing Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963)).

The IAIU relies on the testimony of E.W. and Kimberly Barnes, as well as statements contained in the investigation report. In an administrative proceeding, testimony may be disbelieved, but it may not be disregarded. Middletown Twp. v. Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Moreover, the trier of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness and may accept or reject, in whole or in part, the testimony. Application of Howard Sav. Bank, 143 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1976). One factor to consider in determining which party's version of the incident has the "reasonable probability of truth" is that the "interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify [the trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952). Further, "[a] trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony." Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

K.N. and E.W. were the only witnesses to the incident who presented live testimony. Thus, I have carefully observed their demeanor, and evaluated the consistencies of all persons who contributed his or her version of the incident.

Gad, an investigator since 2003, testified that there was no question in her mind that the incident on May 23, 2008, happened as it was told by E.W., S.S., and Kimberly Barnes. The IAIU and the school district maintained that K.N. was showing a martial arts movie containing action and violence. Indeed, E.W. testified that the movie starred Jet Li and had "kicking," fighting," and "guns." According to Gad, students J.R., and M.B. said that they slept through the movie and J.J. claimed he did not see or hear any incident involving E.W. and K.N. During the interview E.W. told Gad that K.N. picked him up by his left leg and right shoulder and slammed him on the seat. Gad also took a statement from E.W.'s mother, L.W. According to L.W., her son said that K.N. "put a bag on his head, flipped him and hit him."

Gad's interpretation depicts an unusual amount of commotion in a classroom that has been described as relatively serene and calm. Is it more likely than not that E.W. and S.S., who heard and witnessed everything, sat quietly while K.N. attacked E.W.? Should not the sounds of the violent martial arts movie and K.N. "flipping" and "slamming" E.W. have awakened at least one of the sleeping students or caused the other student, who was watching a movie, turn around to see what the commotion was all about?

Another problem in the credibility determination is E.W.'s claim that prior to putting the bag over his head, K.N. gave J.R. something to hold from the bag. If J.R. slept through the event, as recorded in Gad's report, how could he at the same time hold anything given to him by K.N.?

Even more incredible version of the incident was presented by Kimberly Barnes. She said that she walked into the room, observed E.W. crying, and observed two other students, S.S. and J.J., laughing and talking about the incident. Barnes was not a credible witness, and her version of the incident is also inconsistent with the testimony presented by Gad that J.J. reports he did not see or hear anything that happened between K.N. and E.W. because he was sleeping during the incident. When did he awaken and begin to laugh at an incident that he claimed he neither observed nor heard?

Respondent points to other inconsistencies in petitioners evidence. For example, E.W. told his mother that the plastic-bag incident occurred during his after-school program. E.W. said that K.N. attacked student J.J. with a hammer. Further, E.W. said that K.N. kept plastic bags in his desk drawer, then said the bags were kept next to K.N.'s desk. Respondent further notes that E.W. told the IAIU investigator that the plastic bag was white, then told her that it was white and beige. At the hearing E.W.

"insisted" that the bag was yellow, and he told Principal Guyton that K.N. put two plastic bags over his head. E.W. and S.S. reported that E.W. was lifted from his seat and slammed into his desk and chair, and that he was injured with an initial mark across his back, which he testified left after ten minutes. E.W. testified that Barnes took him out of the class on the pretense of permitting him to wash his face.

I have considered the parties' evidence and their arguments. Some inconsistencies in a witness's testimony do not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible. United Stations of N.J. v. Getty Oil Co., 102 N.J. Super. 459 (Ch. Div. 1968). The testimony must be such that the trier of fact can reasonably conclude that the witness is wholly unworthy of belief. Accordingly, the trier of fact must carefully weigh the evidence before rejecting testimony, even if not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to the circumstances. I have also considered the nature, character and scope of statements taken by Gad, as well as the circumstances and reliability of the statements. The out-of-court statements of S.S., J.J. and J.R. are problematic because there exist none of the safeguards of in-person testimony under oath, i.e., the opportunity for cross-examination of the witness and the opportunity for the trier of fact to observe the witness's demeanor. However, in administrative proceedings all hearsay is admissible. Furthermore, the ALJ has sole discretion in determining what weight to accord hearsay evidence. The ALJ is further guided by the residuum rule, N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. The rule requires that a fact finding or legal determination cannot be based on hearsay alone. For a court to sustain an administrative finding that affects the substantial rights of a party, there must be a residuum of legally competent evidence to support it. Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36, 51 (1972); Goodman v. London Metals Exch., 86 N.J. 19 (1981). The evidence presented by the DCF-IAIU gives no clue when the sleeping students awoke and found E.W. crying or lying face-up on the floor. Nevertheless, Gad opined that both E.W. and S.S. were credible, honest, sincere, and genuine.

I have also considered the testimony of several employees who have worked with K.N. and observed his classroom demeanor and interaction with the students. Social worker Diane Anderson, special education support teacher Janice Holmes and art teacher Davis Hannah all testified as to K.N.'s general character and their positive professional relationships with him. They worked at William H. Brown Academy at the time of the incident. However, none of them were present in the classroom for the alleged incident on May 23, 2008, or had any firsthand knowledge of the incident. Indeed, the only persons who had any firsthand knowledge of the incident and presented live testimony at the hearing were K.N. and E.W.

Evidence presented through Gad's testimony merely supports a conclusion that some physical contact occurred between K.N. and E.W. This is consistent with K.N.'s testimony. K.N. observed E.W. passing out candy. He said that several times he told E.W. to stop passing out candy, and then reached out and held his arm in order to stop him. K.N. testified, "I told him to stop, and he looked at me, and was very unnerved with me holding his arm, saying, 'Let go.'" K.N. maintained that he then walked away while E.W. sat in his chair pouting. K.N. denied grabbing E.W.'s neck, placing a plastic bag over his head, and slamming E.W.

I am persuaded more by the evidence presented by respondent than by the evidence presented by the petitioners. K.N.'s testimony was credible and consistent with the whole of the evidence. I FIND that any physical contact that occurred between K.N. and E.W. consisted of K.N. holding E.W.'s arm in order to stop him from passing out candy.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that no credible evidence exists to support the versions of the events of May 23, 2008, presented through the testimony of E.W. and Barnes or the investigator's statements of S.S., J.J., M.B. and J.R. I therefore CONCLUDE that the Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit, has failed to meet its burden of proving that a substantiated-abuse determination is warranted.

2. Removal

As a result of the DCF complaint, the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark charged K.N., a tenured teacher in special education, with unbecoming conduct and seeks his removal.

State law provides that no tenured teacher shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Thus, tenured employees are protected "in their employment when they are subjected to unfair or improper attacks or when they are unable to perform effectively because of conditions not of their own making or beyond their control." In re Tenure Hearing of Maratea, 1966 S.L.D. 77, 106. Additional procedural safeguards, including the right to a list of charges, a sworn statement of evidence and an impartial hearing are required under the law to protect tenured teachers from arbitrary dismissal for unfounded or flimsy reasons. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Moreover, charges against a tenured employee may not be examined in a vacuum, but must be considered in the context of any events leading up to the allegations made against the employee that may help to explain the situation. See In re Tenure Hearing of Romanoli, 1975 S.L.D. 352.

The District has the burden of proof to establish the charges against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re License Revocation of Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982).

Members of the teaching profession hold a sacred position in our society. They have daily contact with our students, molding habits and nurturing young minds. Thus, teachers must be held to a high standard of conduct. Parents, law enforcement officials and the general public expect teachers to impart to students the foundations of "reading, writing and arithmetic," as well as convey social and moral values appropriate to the setting. Clearly, teachers influence the opinions of their pupils and, indeed, teachers are role models. Also, teachers encourage students to set goals and then help to steer them on a path to achieve those goals. Further, teachers are entrusted with the care and custody of school children. Thus, they play a most important role in the community. In In re Tenure Hearing of Tordo, 1974 S.L.D. 97, 98-99, the Commissioner recognized:

> Teachers are public employees who hold positions demanding public trust, and in such positions they teach, inform, and mold habits and attitudes, and influence the opinions of their pupils. Pupils learn, therefore, not only > what they are taught by the teacher, but what they see, hear, experience, and learn about the teacher. When a teacher deliberately and willfully . . . violates the public trust placed in him, he must expect dismissal or other severe penalty as set by the Commissioner.

It is essential that teachers avoid conduct that is in violation of the public trust or that creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated. Teachers are expected to exercise self-restraint and control.

I am persuaded more by the evidence presented by respondent than by the evidence presented by the petitioners. I FIND that any physical contact that occurred between K.N. and E.W. consisted of K.N. holding E.W.'s arm in order to stop him from passing out candy. I CONCLUDE that the District failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that K.N.'s conduct was unbecoming, and therefore CONCLUDE that termination is not warranted. Rather, K.N.'s conduct warrants verbal counseling on the appropriateness of physical contact with a student when attempting to stop a student's misconduct.

ORDERS

Based on the above, it is ORDERED that the IAIU's substantiated-abuse determination is DISMISSED.

It is further ORDERED that the removal of K.N. from his tenured teaching position by the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY SERVICES.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY SERVICES, who by law is authorized to make the final decision on all issues within the scope of that agency's predominant interest. If the Executive Director of Community Services does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision on all of the issues within the scope of predominant interest shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8, upon rendering its final decision, the EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY SERVICES shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and the Executive Director's final decision, to the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, which may subsequently render a final decision on any remaining issues and consider any specific remedies which may be within its statutory grant of authority.

Upon transmitting the record, the EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY SERVICES shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c), request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision by the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION within forty-five days of the predominant agency decision. If the CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION does not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the remaining issues and remedies shall become the final decision.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS COORDINATOR, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, 222 South Warren Street, PO Box 729, Trenton, NJ 08625-0729, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOMERSET COUNTY VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a tenured teacher of Diesel Technology in respondent's district, alleged that his tenure rights were violated when he was terminated from full-time employment as the result of a reduction in force and reinstated to a part-time position, which resulted in the loss of his health insurance benefits. Respondent contends that petitioner, as a part-time employee, is not eligible for health insurance benefits.

The ALJ identified two issues in this matter: whether petitioner's tenure rights were violated when he was reduced in force and then offered only a part-time teaching position, which he accepted; and whether petitioner lost compensation to which he is otherwise entitled as a tenured teacher when his health insurance benefits ended because he was no longer working full-time. The ALJ found that: petitioner was reinstated into his position and compensated by receiving a percentage of his salary step in proportion to his new part-time teaching schedule, and therefore his appeal as to the first issue is without merit; and eligibility for health insurance in the district is a contractual matter limited to full-time employees. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner's appeal as to loss of tenure rights must be dismissed and the respondent's determination as to petitioner's ineligibility for health insurance benefits must be affirmed.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision, with the following modification: any increase in petitioner's teaching hours in the second semester of the 2009-2010 school year would necessitate a recalculation of the proportionate salary he was entitled to receive during this period; if the parties are unable to agree on the number of increased hours involved or the appropriate pro-rata salary calculation, the petitioner is encouraged to file a new petition of appeal on that issue.

THOMAS MANNA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOMERSET COUNTY VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto – filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Petitioner excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that although the court's decision in Bassett v. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland, 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988) stands for the proposition that a reduction in force, through the diminishment of a particular program, still entitles the teaching staff member's continuation in the reduced program at a pro-rata reduction in compensation, because this court was silent on the issue as to whether such "compensation" includes benefits – such as the health insurance coverage petitioner is seeking here, comparatively reduced – the parties' collective bargaining agreement (CBA) must control the outcome of that issue. Petitioner argues that the statutory protection referred to by the Bassett court "is N.J.S.A. 18A:25-5 which prohibits a 'reduction in compensation' except for statutory cause", and the interpretation given by the court is that a "reduction" in the instance of a diminished position necessitates a pro-rata reduction no matter what a CBA might direct. Petitioner further argues that "compensation" as utilized in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 has to mean more than salary. An argument that an individual is protected pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 merely by maintaining a pro-rata level of salary with a total loss of insurance benefits, he contends, is unfathomable, especially in current times when an individual's cost for health care is nearly equal to his pro-rata share of salary. Petitioner, therefore, maintains that "[a] pro-rata reduction in compensation should include all compensation meaning salary, benefits and other quantifiable emolument[s] of employment." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2) (emphasis added)

Petitioner next charges that there is a second issue in this matter which was left fully unaddressed by the ALJ in her decision. He points out that although the ALJ's factual findings, paragraph 5, recognized:

> [f]or the first semester of school year 2009-2010, petitioner taught three courses per week, which totaled fifteen teaching hours plus administrative and prep time (approximately five to six hours per week, pro-rated). For the second semester, he taught three courses and had one additional course assigned to him (to permit a student to compete the program), which totaled twenty teaching hours plus administrative and prep time (approximately six to eight hours per week, pro-rated). [Initial Decision at 3]

she failed to consider his argument that – as the determination of the pro-rata share of salary paid him by the Board was made by hours worked vis-à-vis his salary on the salary guide were he still in a full time position – his "pro-rata salary should increase by virtue of the increase in his assignment from one semester to the next – an increase of approximately 25% in teaching time." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2-3)

In reply, the Board advances that petitioner was subject to a bona fide reduction in force but was later rehired on a part-time basis (58% of his prior full-time teaching hours) to allow the diesel program to continue on a limited basis for one year to accommodate those students who only had one year left to complete the program.[1] Upon his rehire, petitioner's salary, vacation, sick leave time and pension contributions were pro-rated to reflect his part-time status. However, pursuant to a 1996 Board resolution which set employment of 35 hours a week as the minimum eligibility requirement for health insurance benefits, petitioner's part-time status rendered him "ineligible" for health insurance benefits provided by the Contract. The Board argues that petitioner's contention that its refusal to provide him with health care benefits is a reduction in "compensation" within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 is belied by prior education law decisions which specifically determined that the protections of this statute apply only to salary and that contractual benefits other than salary are not entitled to protection by the statute. See Arlene C. Allen, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of Clark, Union County, Commissioner decision No. 189-04, April 30, 2004, aff'd State Board, September 1, 2004, aff'd A-754-04T2 (App. Div. 2005); Also See [Hyman] v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, decided by State Board March 6, 1985, wherein it was determined "that there is no statutory entitlement to benefits, only a right to that which is granted

[1] The Board additionally emphasizes that "[petitioner's] employer, Somerset County Vocational Technical Institute, will cease to exist on June 30, 2010 when Raritan Valley Community College assumes responsibility for post secondary adult education in Somerset County. Mr. Manna was not offered a position by Raritan Valley Community College." (Board's Reply Exceptions at 1)

by contract", aff'd A-3508-84T7 (App. Div. 1986), cert. den. 104 N.J. 469 (1986) (Board's Reply Exceptions at 2)

As to petitioner's argument that he was entitled to additional money because he taught an extra class in the second semester of the school year, the Board advances that the ALJ refused to entertain argument on this issue "as that was not the subject of his petition and he never established how many more hours, if any, he taught as a result of an additional class." (Ibid.)

Upon careful review of the record, the Commissioner determines to modify the Initial Decision as set forth below.

It is without question that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, "teaching staff members" serving in any school district or under any board of education "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation" except as specifically prescribed under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10(b). In this matter, petitioner, a full-time tenured teacher whose position was eliminated by reason of a reduction in force, was subsequently offered and accepted reassignment to a part-time position in the same instructional area. As found by the ALJ, upon his reinstatement – in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and the Court's holding in Bassett, supra. – petitioner was compensated by receiving a percentage of his salary in proportion to his new part-time teaching schedule. The crux of petitioner's contention here is that, on his reinstatement, the Board's refusal to provide him with health insurance benefits – since he was now working fewer than 35 hours per week – was an impermissible reduction of his "compensation" within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. As recognized by the Board in its Reply Exceptions, the term "compensation" with respect to the tenure right protections provided by education law is by now well-established, having been explicitly defined as encompassing only salary. See Arlene C. Allen, et al, supra;

Hyman v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck; Also See Mark Kramer v. Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County, Commissioner's Decision No. 299-04, July 12, 2004. Consequently, as petitioner received compensation proportionate to his full-time position, he was accorded the full extent of his statutory right pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Health insurance benefits are not preserved and protected by this statute but, rather – as recognized by the ALJ – are a contractual benefit subject to collective bargaining negotiations. For the reasons presented by the ALJ on pp. 5-6 of her Initial Decision, because petitioner did not qualify as "eligible" for health insurance benefits pursuant to the Contract, he possesses no entitlement to this benefit.

Finally, the record here indicates that subsequent to the filing of his petition on July 24, 2009, and his reinstatement to his position for the 2009-10 school year on a part-time basis at a pro-rata salary of 58% of his prior full time teaching hours, petitioner contends that – beginning in the second semester of this school year – his course load increased by an additional class. Although the ALJ finds the details with respect to this second semester course load increase an undisputed finding of fact – see Findings of Fact No. 5, Initial Decision at 3 – a finding which might appear arguable in light of the Board's Reply Exception argument, she nonetheless failed to address and resolve the impact of such a finding. The Commissioner concludes that it is without question that to prevent an impermissible "reduction in compensation" – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and Bassett, supra – an increase in petitioner's teaching hours in the second semester of the 2009-10 school year would necessitate a recalculation of the proportionate salary he was entitled to receive during this period. If the parties are unable to agree on the number of increased hours involved or the appropriate pro-rata salary calculation, petitioner is encouraged to file a new petition of appeal on this issue.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL – as modified above – is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: April 16, 2010 Decided: April 30, 2010

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Thomas Manna, a tenured teacher at respondent Somerset County Vocational-Technical School District, alleges that his tenure rights were violated when he was terminated from full-time employment as the result of a reduction in force and reinstated to a part-time position, which caused the loss of his health insurance benefits. Respondent contends that as a part-time employee, petitioner is not entitled to such benefits.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 28, 2009, petitioner was advised that his employment contract for the 2009-2010 school year was not being renewed as the result of a reduction in force. On July 24, 2009, petitioner appealed that determination. In August 2009, petitioner was reinstated to his position, but for fewer hours per week, which resulted in a proportionate salary, vacation, sick time and pension reduction, and the loss of his health insurance benefits.

The Department of Education transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on August 20, 2009. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was conducted on March 25, 2010. The record remained open for the submission of briefs until April 16, 2010, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The essential facts as revealed by the testimony and the evidence are not in dispute:

1. On September 1, 2001, petitioner was hired by respondent as a Diesel Technology instructor for its post-secondary program at its Technology Institute. Petitioner was expected to teach twenty-five hours per week, plus administrative and prep time of an additional eight to ten hours per week, which was considered full-time employment. He was entitled to and received health insurance benefits pursuant to the employment contract. Petitioner became tenured in that position.

2. In April 2009, petitioner was notified that respondent had determined to eliminate its post-secondary vocational instruction program and permit it to be taken over by Raritan Valley Community College. As a result, there would be a reduction in force of the Technology Institute instructors, and petitioner would lose his employment.[1]
3. Petitioner filed an appeal on July 24, 2009, seeking "reinstatement . . . to his legally entitled position of employment, with all back pay, and other emoluments of employment and any relief deemed equitable and just."
4. On August 24, 2009, respondent offered to reinstate the petitioner to the part-time position of Diesel Technology instructor at fifty-eight percent of step 23/A of the salary scale for the 2009-2010 school year. [Exhibit R-2.] The petitioner accepted that reinstatement, teaching fifteen to twenty hours per week, plus requisite administrative and prep time. He was also advised that he would receive pro-rata vacation and sick days, and pension contributions, but no health insurance benefits except for what he was entitled to pursuant to COBRA, to be paid for at his own expense. Petitioner contended that, as a tenured employee, his entitlement to his heath insurance benefit should have continued when he was reinstated.
5. For the first semester of school year 2009-2010, petitioner taught three courses per week, which totaled fifteen teaching hours plus administrative and prep time (approximately five to six hours per week, pro-rated). For the second semester, he taught three courses and had one additional course assigned to him (to permit a student to complete the program), which totaled twenty teaching hours plus administrative and prep time (approximately six to eight hours per week, pro-rated).

[1] Respondent indicated that the Technology Institute program will be discontinued later this year as originally contemplated, and that petitioner's employment will again be terminated.

6. In September, 2009, petitioner assumed responsibility for his monthly COBRA expense of $1,481, and has been paying it since. This expense increased to approximately $1,670 per month in February 2010.
7. The contract between the respondent and the Education Association, adopted June 26, 2009 for the school years 2009-2010, 2010-2011, and 2011-2012, provided that respondent would provide hospital, medical and surgical insurance "to each eligible employee." The contract did not define "eligible employee," nor did it differentiate between full- and part-time employees. [Exhibit R-3.]
8. The contract also provided that the total weekly workload for full-time Technology Institute teachers would be thirty-three hours per week (distributed as twenty-five hours of instruction, one hour for office time, four prep hours and three administrative assignment hours).[2]
9. Pursuant to a resolution adopted by respondent in 1996, in order for an employee to be considered eligible for health insurance benefits, he or she must be working full-time, which is defined as working at least thirty-five hours per week. [Exhibit R-1.]

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Two issues must be addressed in this matter: first, whether petitioner's tenure rights were violated when he was reduced in force and was then offered only a part-time teaching position in the Technology Institute which he accepted; and second, whether petitioner lost compensation to which he is otherwise entitled as a tenured teacher, namely, his health insurance benefits, because he was no longer working full-time.

In this case, the original notice of appeal, filed in July after petitioner's teaching contract was not renewed due to a reduction in force, referred to petitioner's imminent loss of employment in his full-time position as Diesel Technology instructor for school year 2009-2010. Petitioner acknowledged that no full-time teaching position was available for him, but that he was entitled "to retain the position he once held 'to the extent that it continues in any form.'" Accordingly, when respondent determined to continue the program in limited form, it offered, and petitioner accepted, a reinstatement to his teaching position in August 2009, but for fewer hours per week.

The reduction of a full-time teaching staff member to a part-time employee has uniformly been considered a reduction in force with an appropriate concomitant salary reduction. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 240 (App. Div. 1987); Klinger v. Cranbury Tp. Bd. of Educ., 190 N.J. Super. 354, 357 (App. Div. 1982); Popovich v. Bd. of Educ. of Wharton, 1975 S.L.D. 737, 745.

In Bassett v. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland, 223 N.J. Super. 136, 142-43 (App. Div. 1988), the court held that a part-time tenured teacher should be paid proportionately to the full-time salary for her step on the salary scale. As petitioner was reinstated into his position and, in accordance with the holding of Bassett, was compensated by receiving a percentage of his salary step in proportion to his new "part-time" teaching schedule, his appeal as to the first issue is without merit.

Petitioner also argued that as a tenured teacher, he was entitled to a continuation of the health insurance benefits previously provided to him pursuant to the contract negotiated between respondent and the Education Association. Respondent argued that the continuation of such benefits was not permitted because petitioner was not an eligible employee. Although petitioner contended that Bassett also controlled on this issue, the court specifically did not address this issue. As a footnote in Bassett indicated, "petitioner . . . did not challenge the conclusion of the administrative law judge that . . . she would not be entitled to insurance 'fringes.' We accordingly do not address that issue." Bassett, supra, 223 N.J. Super. at 143.

Therefore, in order to determine whether petitioner is entitled to a continuation of his health insurance benefits, reference must be made to the terms of the contract itself. Article III A provided that eligible employees were entitled to health insurance benefits, but the contract did not define "eligible employee." N.J.A.C. 17:9-4.6(a)(1) set forth the terms of eligibility for the NJSHBP for full-time employees, and provided that:

> For purposes of local [NJSHBP] coverage, "full time" shall mean: employment of any eligible employees who appear on a regular payroll and who receive a salary or wages for an average of the number of hours per week as prescribed by the governing body of the participating employer. Each participating employer shall by resolution determine the number of hours worked which shall be considered to be "full-time." In no case shall the number of hours for full-time be less than 20. (Emphasis added.)

Accordingly, a resolution was passed by respondent in 1996 which provided that, for the purposes of eligibility for health benefits for its employees , "the definition of full-time . . . [is] set at 35 hours per week . . . , and ... any new employees hired [hereafter] . . . must work 35 hours a week in order to be eligible for the NJSHBP."

Respondent argued that this resolution was dispositive as to an employee's eligibility for health insurance benefits, regardless of whether the terms of the resolution were incorporated into the contract; that is, in order to qualify for such benefits, an employee must be working at least thirty-five hours per week. In practice, respondent has clearly deviated from the terms of this resolution, by making health insurance benefits available to Technology Institute instructors whose full-time work week consisted of less than thirty-five hours. But whether it can do this without modifying the previous resolution is not the issue here.

Rather, it is clear that for respondent's purposes of determining eligibility for health insurance benefits, "full-time employment" at the Technology Institute was considered to be thirty-three hours per week (or thirty-two for Saturday instructors). In his new position, petitioner did not come close to the total number of hours worked per week to be considered "full-time," whether it be thirty-five hours (or thirty-three hours) per week. Accordingly, he could not be considered eligible for the health insurance benefits which are provided to full-time employees.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the appeal as to loss of tenure rights regarding the teaching position should be dismissed, and the determination of respondent as to petitioner's ineligibility for health insurance benefits should be affirmed.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER the appeal as to tenure rights DISMISSED, and hereby AFFIRM the determination of the respondent as to petitioner's ineligibility for health insurance benefits.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: April 22, 2010 Decided: April 27, 2010

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 17, 2009 for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures on the attached settlement agreement. The Elizabeth Board of Education has approved the settlement, as evidenced by the attached certified Board resolution dated April 15, 2010.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

JANNA PFEIFFER, Petitioner, v. CITY OF ELIZABETH BOARD OF EDUCATION, UNION COUNTY, Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY OAL DKT. NO.: EDUOR 3338-2009N AGENCY DOCKET NO.: 17-1/09 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and General Release is made by and between the Elizabeth Board of Education ("the Board"), whose administrative offices are located at 500 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey 07208, and the law offices of Bergman & Barrett, whose offices are located at 9 Tamarack Circle, Montgomery Knoll, U.S. Highway 206 North, Skilman, New Jersey 08558, on behalf of the Petitioner, Janna Pfeiffer. In consideration of mutual promises and undertakings contained in this Settlement Agreement and General Release and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned parties agree as follows:

1. Releasor and Releasees. The Releasor is Janna Pfeiffer, hereinafter referred to as "Petitioner" or "Mr. Pfeiffer." Releasees are the Elizabeth Board of Education, its agents, officers and assigns, past and present. Releasees are hereinafter collectively referred to as "the Board."

2. Petitioner releases and gives up any and all claims and rights which he may have against the Board, including those of which he is not aware and those not mentioned in this General Release. This Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Release") applies to claims resulting from anything which has happened up to now and specifically as full payment and satisfaction for any and all claims resulting from the Petition entitled Jamie Pfeiffer v. City of Elizabeth Board of Education, Union County, bearing OAL Docket No. EDUOR 03338-2009N, Agency Ref. No. 17-1/09, filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education, State of New Jersey.

3. Payment. The Board will pay to Mr. Pfeiffer the gross sum of Twenty Thousand One Hundred Forty-Six Dollars and Ninety-Seven Cents ($20,146.97). This amount is based on back-pay to Mr. Pfeiffer from February 2, 2009 to June 30, 2009 (which equals $29,989.50, based on placement on the Step 6 salary guide), minus Mr. Pfeiffer's mitigation earnings of $9,842.53 during this time period. This amount is subject to standard and ordinary deductions and constitutes a full and complete settlement of the Petition and all claims or potential claims referred to above, including costs of suit. Petitioner has been placed on the Step 6 salary guide for the 2009-2010 year.

4. No Other Actions or Proceedings. Mr. Pfeifer represents that, other than the above-entitled Petition, he has no pending lawsuits, charges, administrative proceeding, or other claims of any nature whatsoever against the Board in any form, based upon the events, whether known or unknown, occurring prior to the date of execution of this Release.

5. Unenforceable Provisions. The parties agree that if any of the provisions, terms, clauses, waivers and releases of claims and rights contained in this Release are declared illegal or unenforceable in a legal forum of competent jurisdiction, such provisions, terms, clauses, waivers and releases of claims and rights [illegible] if possible in order to achieve the intentions of the parties. If any such provisions, terms, clauses, waivers and releases of claims and rights cannot be modified, the remaining provisions, terms, clauses, waivers and releases of claims and rights contained in this Release shall remain in full force and effect.

6. Entire Terms. This Release sets forth the entire terms between the parties, and fully supersedes any and all prior Agreements between them pertaining to the subject matter thereof.

7. No Admission or Liability. Nothing contained in this Release constitutes an admission of any wrongdoing by either party and neither party shall be considered a prevailing party.

8. Who is Bound. It is understood and agreed that Mr. Pfeiffer is bound by the Release. Anyone who succeeds to his rights and responsibilities, such as his heirs, or the executor of his estate, is also bound.

9. Governing Law. This Settlement Agreement and General Release is an agreement that shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

10. Legal Representation and Signatures. Mr. Pfeiffer agrees that he has been fully and fairly represented by legal counsel throughout this proceeding. In addition, by signing this Settlement Agreement and General Release, Mr. Pfeiffer acknowledges that he has read, understands and agrees to the terms of this Release and he signs it knowingly and voluntarily.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of his children in September 2009. The respondent filed an answer and counterclaim for tuition. Petitioner failed to appear in the OAL for a scheduled telephonic hearing on February 16, 2010 and provided no explanation for his nonappearance. The respondent Board subsequently withdrew its counterclaim.

The ALJ found that: the petitioner failed to explain his non-appearance, and respondent Board withdrew its counterclaim subject to dismissal of petitioner's claim. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the matter returned to the Department for disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision, and dismissed the petition.

Kimberly A. Sukinik, Esq., for respondent (Comegno Law Group, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 19, 2010 Decided: April 28, 2010

BEFORE ANA C.VISCOMI, ALJ:

Petitioner timely appealed from a Board determination that he did not reside within the school district and therefore, his daughter, J.A.M. was not entitled to attend the district's schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). In his appeal, petitioner also sought a determination with regard to his son, B.T.M. In its answer, the Board asserted a counterclaim for tuition reimbursement. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 20, 2009, for a hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. Although the Board's answer also included a motion for summary decision, that motion was stayed pending an attempt to achieve a resolution with the petitioner, who by September 28, 2009, may have properly resided within the district. Respondent propounded discovery upon the petitioner. I conducted a conference on December 8, 2009, during which time I reviewed the discovery demands propounded upon the respondent and issued an Order. A settlement conference was then scheduled for January 5, 2010, during which time petitioner provided some proofs with regard to residency but not all the proofs he was required to pursuant to my December 10, 2009, Order. The hearing of January 14, 2010, was adjourned to permit the petitioner sufficient time period to provide additional discovery responses. A status telephone conference was scheduled for February 16, 2010, at 3:30 p.m. I personally advised petitioner of the February 16, 2010, conference during the January 5, 2010, conference and confirmed his telephone number. Additionally, an official notice was mailed to him on January 14, 2010, scheduling the February 16, 2010, conference. That notice has not been returned by the United States Post Office as undeliverable. On February 16, 2010, respondent's counsel and I were prepared to proceed with the conference call but the petitioner failed to appear and has not submitted any explanation for his non-appearance. I advised counsel I would proceed forward pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:14.4; however, if no explanation was forwarded by the petitioner regarding his non-appearance, the issue of the counterclaim remained and based upon the proofs submitted by the petitioner thus far, respondent should consider withdrawing the counterclaim.

Petitioner has failed to explain his non-appearance and in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, and in consideration of respondent's letter of March 18, 2010, (C-1), withdrawing its counterclaim for tuition reimbursement subject to the dismissal of petitioner's claim, I am ORDERING the Clerk to return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

This order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

The Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (DCF-IAIU) substantiated that M.D. placed a seventh grade student under his charge in substantial risk of harm by directing and allowing the student, J.W., to retrieve a book from a slanted roof approximately 20 feet above paved ground. Following the DCF complaint, the District filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against M.D. – a social studies teacher – and sought his removal from his tenured position. The cases were consolidated; DCF was determined to have the predominant interest; and the ALJ ordered the record as to the substantiated neglect charge sealed.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: J.W. was a credible witness, in contrast to the respondent; respondent, M.D., was overwhelmed by the demands of his classroom, and asked J.W. to retrieve a textbook from the roof outside of the classroom window; M.D. realized that he made a serious mistake in judgment, but nonetheless allowed J.W. to step out onto a slanted roof; M.D. repeatedly disregarded procedures described in the school handbook, including allowing students to play card games during instructional time, showing violent "R" rated movies such as "Glory" to 7th graders, and failing to carry his roll book with him during fire drills. The ALJ concluded that the DCF/IAIU finding of substantiated neglect should be affirmed, as should the Board's removal of respondent's tenure, and ordered respondent's name to be maintained on the central registry.

The Chief of Staff of the DCF found no indication that the ALJ's determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and adopted the Initial Decision, modifying it only to the extent that the reasoning in the Initial Decision was supplemented by the reasoning in contained in the DCF's Final Decision. Further, the DCF determined that M.D.'s name would be placed on the central registry.

The Commissioner's sole focus in this matter is to determine whether the District's tenure charges against M.D. have been sustained. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings that the District has established conduct unbecoming. Accordingly, the Initial Decision affirming the Board's tenure charges of unbecoming conduct was adopted, and the respondent dismissed from his tenured teaching position. The matter was transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Procedural History

On May 27, 2008 respondent M.D. – a tenured social studies teacher at Rivera Elementary School in the City of Trenton – was allegedly involved in an incident with J.W., a thirteen-year old seventh grade student, where it is charged that respondent requested J.W. to retrieve a textbook from the roof outside of his classroom; J.W. climbed onto a chair to the window sill, dropped down approximately one and a half feet to the roof; she then walked approximately 2 to 3 feet onto the asphalt shingle roof, which sloped at an approximate 30 degree angle and was approximately 20 feet above the black top driveway; J.W. retrieved the book and climbed back in the window as instructed by M.D. By letter dated July 31, 2008, the Department of Children and Families (DCF), Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (IAIU), informed M.D. that – upon investigation by the IAIU – it was found that allegations that he placed J.W. in serious risk of harm, in contravention of N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21, had been substantiated. M.D. was further advised that he had a right to appeal this determination – which he ultimately did – and the matter was transmitted by the DCF to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing on April 3, 2009.

On March 3, 2009, the School District of the City of Trenton (District) certified tenure charges against M.D. to the Commissioner of Education. This certification consisted of One Charge with 33 paragraphs which, in addition to the May 27, 2008 incident involving J.W., included other alleged charges of inappropriate behavior by respondent, i.e.,

- November 28, 2006 – respondent removed a student's "hoodie" in the hallway in violation of school policy.
- December 1, 2006 – the school principal observed students playing cards in respondent's class during instructional time in violation of school policy.
- April 20, 2007 – during a fire drill, respondent did not have his roll book with him in violation of school policy.
- April 20, 2007 – the school principal observed respondent showing an R-rated movie to his class in violation of school policy.

- September 18, 2007 – respondent failed to pick up his class from the cafeteria in a timely manner in violation of school policy.
- October 11, 2007 – respondent's classroom was in violation of various fire codes.
- November 7, 2007 – respondent permitted more than one student out of his class at a time; permitted students to play cards during instructional time; and exhibited poor classroom management.
- November 16, 2007 – respondent was involved in an incident with student K.F. wherein he pulled off the student's hoodie and leaned on his desk, overturning it and sending the student to the floor.[1]
- December 21, 2007 – principal sent respondent a memo regarding his work attendance (daily absence rate for the 2007-08 school year did not meet District guidelines).
- January 18, 2008 – respondent was written up for failure to meet requirements of the Learning for Learning monitoring checklist.

The District urged that this pattern of unbecoming conduct necessitated M.D.'s dismissal from his tenured employment. With receipt of an answer to the tenure charges from M.D., the matter was transmitted on March 18, 2009 to the OAL for hearing. Aware of the impending filing of the DCF, IAIU case – and recognizing that case and one of the charges in the tenure matter both involved the incident involving J.W., which occurred on May 27, 2008 and presented the same facts for adjudication – the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the tenure matter with the following special feature: "Suggest consolidation and predominant interest determination, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6B-17 with D.C.F. matter which we have been advised will be transmitted shortly." The tenure matter and the DCF matter were subsequently assigned to Administrative Law Judge Ana C. Viscomi.

On April 9, 2009, the ALJ issued an Order of Consolidation and Predominant Interest[2] in these matters, ordering therein that the DCF, IAIU shall have the Predominant Interest with regard to issues relating to the charges of child neglect. As such the ALJ's Initial Decision in this consolidated matter would first be filed with the DCF: 1) for a determination by that entity as to whether the factual allegations against M.D., with respect to the J.W. incident, have been established by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence and constitute neglect warranting inclusion of M.D.'s name on the Central Registry, and 2) for issuance of a final decision by DCF in this regard. Thereafter this decision would be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education to determine – dependent upon the DCF's findings with respect to the J.W. incident which are binding upon him, and his conclusion on the remaining tenure charges – whether M.D.'s conduct is sufficient to warrant his removal or a reduction in salary. Hearing in these consolidated cases took place at the OAL on June 2, June 10, July 10, July 23, July 28, July 29, August 25, September 25, October 13, and October 23, 2009.[3]

The Initial Decision of the ALJ was issued on March 22, 2010 and was received by the DCF on that date. Therein, with respect to the May 27, 2008 J.W. incident – driven largely by her credibility assessments – the ALJ determined:

> In this matter, I found J.W. to be an articulate and sincere 8th grader. She had no reason to discredit the respondent. She testified that she liked Mr. D. and enjoyed being in his class. I found her to be a credible witness in contrast to the respondent. I FIND that M.D. was overwhelmed by the demands of his

[2] On May 19, 2009, the ALJ issued a separate Order partially sealing the record in this matter (the record with respect to the neglect part of the hearing was closed; that which dealt with the tenure charges was left open). She additionally did not seal the Initial Decision.

[3] The instant record includes transcripts of the proceedings conducted on all but the July 10 and August 25, 2009 hearing dates.

> classroom. Upon learning that text books, which looked "new" to him were on the roof, he asked student M.B. to retrieve it. When that student refused, he ultimately asked J.W. to retrieve it. The first textbook was closer to the window. J.W. climbed out onto the slanted roof, approximately 20 feet from the ground and retrieved the book. Upon returning to the inside of the classroom, M.D. asked her to retrieve the second textbook which was near the edge of the roof. She declined. Even if one were to accept as credible M.D.'s version that J.W. volunteered to retrieve the book and was partially out of the window, his duty to her was to use reasonable physical force to prevent her from the foreseeable danger of falling from the roof. Instead, even if one was to accept his version of the events, his focus was on the fact that the textbooks looked "new" and not on the safety of 7th graders entrusted to him. His belated indication that his diabetic condition prevented him from acting appropriately is specious. It did not prevent him from noticing that the textbooks were "new." It did not prevent him from realizing that he made a serious mistake in judgment, if one believes his version of the event, as soon as he told J.W. she could retrieve the book from the roof. Based upon these findings, I CONCLUDE that the DCF appropriately substantiated neglect based upon the May 27, 2008, incident involving the respondent. (Initial Decision at 16)

The ALJ, thus, concluded that respondent's name should be maintained on the Central Registry.

By decision dated May 4, 2010, transmitted to the Commissioner on May 5, 2010, the Acting Commissioner, DCF – after full review of the record, the ALJ's decision, and the parties' exception arguments – first recognized that the credibility determinations of the ALJ could not be modified unless, after a full review of the record, these were found to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or were not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence. The Acting Commissioner found that the ALJ provided an explanation of her determination that J.W.'s testimony was more credible than that of M.D. and she found no reason to conclude that such a determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The Acting Commissioner determined to modify the ALJ's decision "only to the extent the reasoning in the Initial Decision is supplemented by the reasoning herein." (DCF Decision at 5) Specifically, the Acting Commissioner stated:

As J.W.'s teacher, M.D. had a duty to ensure the student[']s safety. His conduct was grossly and wantonly negligent and placed J.W. at risk of substantial harm when he permitted her to climb out a window onto a roof twenty feet above paved ground. N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c)(4)(b) notes in part an:

> abused or neglected child means a child less than 18 years of age whose...physical, mental, or emotional condition has been impaired or is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as the result of the failure of his parent or guardian...to exercise a minimum degree of care...in providing the child with proper supervision...by unreasonably inflicting or allowing to be inflicted harm, or substantial risk thereof.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that the applicable standard for minimum degree of care is not one of simple negligence, but rather "conduct that is grossly or wantonly negligent, but not necessarily intentional" and "can apply to situations ranging from slight inadvertence to malicious purpose to inflict injury." (citations omitted)

Additionally, respondent's intent to place the child at risk of harm is irrelevant. "Conduct is considered willful or wanton if done with the knowledge that injury is likely to, or probably will, result...So long as the act or omission that causes injury is done intentionally, whether the actor actually recognizes the highly dangerous character of her conduct is irrelevant...Knowledge will be imputed to the actor." (citations omitted)

As counsel for the Trenton [B]oard of Education correctly noted, N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c)(4)(b) includes a "substantial risk thereof" of harm. Indeed, DYFS "need not wait to act until a child is actually irreparably impaired by parental inattention or neglect." (citations omitted)

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth within, I find that M.D. committed an act of child neglect when he asked J.W. to climb onto a slanted roof, twenty feet above paved ground, to retrieve a text book...Accordingly, M.D.'s name will be placed on the central registry, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.11. (DCF Decision at 4-5)

Commissioner's Decision

The record of this matter – which included the Initial Decision, exhibits, post-hearing submissions of the DCF, the District, and respondents, transcripts of the hearing,[4] the decision of the DCF and exceptions of respondent and replies thereto of the District with respect to the tenure charges – have been reviewed.

In his exceptions, respondent charges that the ALJ resolved every dispute in this matter in favor of the District without a sufficient factual basis to do so. Particularly troubling, he maintains, is the fact that the tenure charge relating to the incident involving K.F. – which was the subject of an IAIU investigation which concluded that allegations of abuse were unfounded – should have been dismissed. In support of this argument, respondent points out that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7(a) states:

> When a complaint made against a school employee alleging child abuse or neglect is investigated by the Department of Children and Families, the department shall notify the school district and the employee of it[s] findings. Upon receipt of a finding by the department that such a complaint is unfounded, the school district shall remove any references to the complaint and investigation by the department from the employee's personnel records. A complaint made against a school employee that has been classified as unfounded by the department shall not be used against the employee for any purpose relating to employment, including but not limited to, discipline, salary, promotion, transfer, demotion, retention or continuance of employment, termination of employment or any right or privilege relating to employment.

Respondent contends – that over his objection – the ALJ held that this statute does not prevent testimony in a legal hearing about events involved in an IAIU unfounded determination as long as they are derived from another source. Respondent maintains that this "very loose interpretation" renders this statute meaningless. "The legislature determined that DCF (IAIU in this case) is the appropriate entity to investigate matters such as this. They have experience and they know the terrain. In directing that full weight be given to an IAIU unfounded determination, and full protection to one accused after such a determination, the legislature wanted to put full reliance on that determination. While we submit that 'full reliance' means evidence concerning the underlying complaint should not be taken, we would respectfully request that to the extent the Court disagrees, then at least due consideration be given to the unfounded determination of IAIU and the impact of such a finding on a claim of unbecoming conduct." (Respondent's Exceptions at 4)

Respondent next contends that the "non-abuse" portion of these tenure charges are simply insufficient to constitute unbecoming conduct. Moreover, they evidence that Principal Marazzo – the only witness against respondent on all of these charges – is so completely biased against him as to render his testimony "incredible and meaningless." For the ALJ to accept Marazzo's testimony as fully credible and to discount testimony of respondent, he argues, "led to an improper determination of unbecoming conduct that should be reversed. (Id. at 5)

In reply, the District submits that respondent's argument that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7(a) precludes the District's tenure charge involving student K.F. – which was the subject of an IAIU investigation where allegations of abuse were determined to be unfounded – is specious. As the District specifically "removed any reference to the complaint, investigation, or report of the Department of Children and Families from Respondent's employee records and did not used (sic) them to prove the tenure charges against Respondent, it was in full compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7-6(a)." Furthermore, it argues, although respondent claims that this statute precludes presentation in a legal proceeding of evidence about events which were the subject of an IAIU unfounded determination, he is mistaken for a number of reasons. First of all, the District proposes, the purpose of an IAIU investigation was to make a determination as to whether the actions of respondent constituted child abuse. In contrast, the purpose of the District's independent investigation of this incident was to determine whether respondent's actions were in violation of the District's physical contact policy and, as such, constitute unbecoming conduct. Secondly, the District cites to In re Young, 2009 WL 1789466[5], wherein the Appellate Division held "there is nothing in the law that precludes the school district from conducting it[s] own independent investigation and based thereon from pursuing charges for conduct unbecoming a teacher and/or other just cause for dismissal under its own statutory scheme and pursuant to its own jurisdiction." (District's Reply Exceptions at 4-5, quotations at 5)

Finally, although respondent asserts that the "non-abuse" charges are insufficient to constitute unbecoming conduct, the District points out that he makes no argument or demonstration in support of this claim. The District emphasizes that the ALJ was able to observe, listen to and judge the credibility of the witnesses during the course of the hearing and, therefore, her findings of fact and conclusions of law should be accorded proper deference. (Id. at 6)

Upon careful and independent review – and recognizing that the findings of fact with respect to the J.W. incident adopted by the DCF in its final decision in this matter are binding on him – the Commissioner's sole focus here is on whether the District's tenure charges against M.D. have been sustained, and on determination of the appropriate penalty to be imposed. In this regard – finding respondent's exception arguments without merit – the Commissioner is in full accord with the factual findings of the ALJ, for the reasons presented on pages 16-18 of the Initial Decision, and her conclusion that these amply establish that:

> Time and time again, respondent exercised poor decision making that placed the safety of the students under his care in jeopardy. Asking students to retrieve books from the roof, tilting a desk because a student refused to identify himself and remove a "hoodie," purposeful failure to acclimate to hand book requirements of taking his roll book with him to fire drills and failure to clear his classroom of > obstructions determined to be fire code violations are all the actions of a teacher whose unbecoming conduct warrants his termination from employment. Purposefully ignoring a handbook prohibition of showing an "R"-rated movie to 7th graders under the guise of "academic freedom" constitutes conduct unbecoming. Inability to control his classroom and allowing students to engage in card playing without even noticing it is not an example of effective teaching techniques and constitutes conduct unbecoming. The conglomeration of all of these unfortunate instances over less than two years' period of time amply demonstrate that the respondent [should properly be] removed from his position as a teacher. (Initial Decision at 19)

Accordingly, that portion of the Initial Decision of the OAL dealing with the tenure charges in this consolidated matter – finding respondent M.D. guilty of unbecoming conduct – is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his tenured teaching position with the School District of the City of Trenton. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, INSTITUTIONAL ABUSE INVESTIGATION UNIT,	FINAL DECISION OAL DKT. NO.: HSV 2576-09 AGENCY DKT. NO. AHU # 08-0990
Petitioner, v. M.D., Respondent, and
IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MICHAEL DOUGHERTY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	OAL DKT. NO. EDU 895-09 AGENCY DKT. NO. 42-3/09 CONSOLIDATED)

A. INTRODUCTION

M.D., a Trenton middle school teacher, sought to appeal a finding of neglect rendered by Department of Children and Families (DCF) Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (IAIU) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c)(b)(4). The IAIU investigation on May 28, 2007 resulted in a finding that M.D. placed J.W., then a thirteen-year-old student at the Rivera School at serious risk of harm when M.D. requested and or permitted J.W. to climb out a window, onto a slanted roof to retrieve a textbook. M.D. was notified by letter dated July 31, 2008 that he had been substantiated as a perpetrator of child neglect and his right to appeal this determination. M.D. subsequently appealed the finding to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). This matter was transmitted to the OAL pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) on April 3, 2009

In addition, on January 15, 2009, the Trenton Board of Education filed tenure charges against M.D. related to this as well as other incidents. This agency does not have jurisdiction over the tenure charges. Administrative Law Judge Ana C. Viscomi (ALJ Viscomi) ordered on April 9, 2009 that the two matters be consolidated, and that DCF has the predominant interest in the matter. ALJ Viscomi heard the matters on June 2 and 10, 2009; July 10, 23, 28 and 29, 2009; August 25, 2009; September 25, 2009; October 13 and 23, 2009 and the record closed on December 22, 2009. The Initial Decision, which is attached hereto and incorporated by reference, was issued on March 22, 2010 and received by this agency on the same date.

B. THE INITIAL DECISION

In rendering her decision, ALJ Viscomi considered the testimony of J.W., the alleged victim; F.B., another student and classmate; Kelli Williams, a paraprofessional at Rivera School; Mathew Butcher, IAIU investigator; and M.D., respondent. ALJ Viscomi also considered investigative reports, photographs and diagrams of the classroom and other supporting documentation.

The ALJ found the testimony of J.W., now an 8th grade student to be credible. J.W. testified that M.D. initially asked another student, M.B. to retrieve the book from the roof. When M.B. refused, he then asked J.W. to retrieve the book. J.W. testified that she climbed out the window onto the slanted roof and took two steps to retrieve the book. When she reentered the window, M.D. asked her to retrieve another book that was further from the window and closer to the edge of the roof, which she declined to do.

The testimony of another student witness, F.B. corroborated J.W.'s account of the incident. F.B. also liked having M.D. as a teacher and testified that M.D asked a student, M.B. to retrieve the book from the roof, when he refused, J.W. was asked to do it.

A paraprofessional at Rivera School, Kelli Williams testified that she had a clear view of the roof and saw a female student walking on the roof. She stated the student was about five to ten feet from the window that accesses the roof.

The IAIU investigator, Mathew Butcher inspected the roof that J.W. climbed onto to retrieve the book. He noted the roof was slanted and the ground surrounding the area was covered in asphalt. He obtained measurements from the school custodian that it was 20 feet in height.

The ALJ found that on May 27, 2008, M.D. initially asked a student, M.B to retrieve a textbook from the roof. When M.B. refused, M.D. asked J.W. to retrieve it. After she retrieved the first textbook, M.D. asked J.W. to retrieve a second book closer to the edge of the roof which she declined to do. The ALJ noted that even if M.D.'s version of this event were true, that J.W. was already partially out the window when she offered to retrieve the book, it was M.D.'s responsibility to stop her to prevent the foreseeable danger of a fall from the roof.

The ALJ found the respondent, M.D.'s testimony to be less credible than that of the victim, J.W. The ALJ affirmed the IAIU decision to substantiate M.D. for neglect of J.W. for the May 27, 2008 incident. The ALJ made additional findings which related to the tenure issue, and which are accordingly not addressed herein.

C. COMMENTS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8, any party may file exceptions within 13 days of the date that the Initial Decision was mailed to the parties.

On April 1, 2010, respondent's attorney, Michael T. Barrett filed exceptions to the Initial Decision of ALJ Viscomi. Mr. Barrett took exception to the conclusion that M.D. placed a student in his charge at serious risk of harm claiming that M.D. never affirmatively instructed any student to go onto the roof to retrieve a book. Mr. Barrett also noted that J.W. was not harmed and cited G.S. v Department of Human Services, 157 NJ 161 (1991) noting that the Department must show that M.D. was "grossly or wantonly negligent." Mr. Barrett argued that M.D.'s conduct did not meet that threshold.

On April 9, 2010, Rocky L. Peterson, attorney for the Trenton Board of Education filed a reply to Mr. Barrett's exceptions. Mr. Peterson noted that per N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c)(4)(b) a child is considered neglected if:

> the child is less than 18 years old and the child's "physical, mental, or emotional condition has been impaired or is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as the result of the failure of his parents or guardian...to exercise a minimum degree of care . . . (b) in providing the child with proper supervision or guardianship, by unreasonably inflicting or allowing to be inflicted harm, or substantial risk thereof.

Mr. Peterson stated that M.D. did permit J.W. to go on the roof to retrieve the book noting that during M.D.'s own testimony he said, "no, okay get it and come back in."

The balance of the exceptions raised related solely to the tenure charges and are accordingly outside of the scope of this agency's interest in the matter. Accordingly, these additional exceptions will not be commented on herein. These exceptions as well as the reply will be forwarded along with this decision and the OAL record to the Department of Education for consideration.

D. FINAL DECISION

Careful consideration was given to the ALJ's Initial Decision, the exceptions and replies submitted, and to the entirety of the OAL file, which was transmitted to the Department for consideration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(d).

This matter is about a teacher who allegedly asked a student, J.W., to climb out of a window and onto a pitched roof, twenty feet above paved ground, to retrieve a text book. Thirteen-year-old J.W. retrieved the book as asked and suffered no harm from the incident. Pursuant to M.D.'s version of events in testimony, he permitted J.W. to retrieve the textbook from the roof in a split second decision but did not instruct the student to do the same. However, this is contradicted by two students, J.W. and F.B both of whom liked M.D. as their teacher. Both F.B and J.W. testified that M.D. initially asked another student, M.B., to retrieve the book from the roof. When M.B. refused, M.D. asked J.W. to retrieve the book. J.W. testified that M.D. had also asked her to retrieve a second book that was closer to the edge of the roof and she refused.

It is the task of the Administrative Law Judge to make her own credibility determinations, based upon the testimony and evidence presented. Those determinations may only be modified when the Division determines from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence [N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6(c)]. ALJ Viscomi provided an explanation regarding her determination that J.W.'s testimony was more credible than that of M.D.'s testimony. There is no indication that this determination was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

As J.W.'s teacher, M.D. had a duty to ensure the students safety. His conduct was grossly and wantonly negligent and placed J.W. at risk of substantial harm when he permitted her to climb out a window onto a roof twenty feet above paved ground. N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(c)(4)(b) notes in part an:

> abused or neglected child means a child less than 18 years of age whose ... physical, mental, or emotional condition has been impaired or is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as the result of the failure of his parent or guardian . . . to exercise a minimum degree of care . . . in providing the child with proper supervision . . . by unreasonably inflicting or allowing to be inflicted harm, or substantial risk thereof.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that the applicable standard for minimum degree of care is not one of simple negligence, but rather "conduct that is grossly or wantonly negligent, but not necessarily intentional" and "can apply to situations ranging from slight inadvertence to malicious purpose to inflict injury." G.S. v. Dept. of Human Serv., 157 N.J. 161, 178 (1999).

Additionally, respondent's intent to place the child at risk of harm is irrelevant. "Conduct is considered willful or wanton if done with the knowledge that injury is likely to, or probably will, result. . . . So long as the act or omission that causes injury is done intentionally, whether the actor actually recognizes the highly dangerous character of her conduct is irrelevant. . . . Knowledge will be imputed to the actor." [Id. at 161, 178.]

As counsel for the Trenton board of Education correctly noted, N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21 (c)(4)(b) includes a "substantial risk thereof" of harm. Indeed, DYFS "need not wait to act until a child is actually irreparably impaired by parental inattention or neglect." In re D.M.H., 161 N.J. 365, 383 (1999) (citing Div. of Youth and Fam. Serv. v. A.W., 103 NJ 591, 616 n. 14 (1986)); Div. of Youth and Fam. Serv. v. S.S., 372 N.J. Super. 13, 24 (App. Div. 2004); Div. of Youth and Fam. Serv. v. A.C., 389 N.J. Super. 97 (Ch. Div. 2006).

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth within, I find that M.D. committed an act of child neglect when he asked J.W. to climb onto a slanted roof, twenty feet above paved ground, to retrieve a text book.

I hereby MODIFY the ALJ's Initial Decision, as it relates to the IAIU substantiation, only to the extent the reasoning in the Initial Decision is supplemented by the reasoning herein. Accordingly, M.D.'s name will be placed on the central registry, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.11.

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ

Respondent appeals from a July 31, 2008, finding by the Department of Children and Families (DCF), IAIU that on May 27, 2008, he placed student, J.W. in serious risk of harm, in contravention to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21. By letter, dated August 15, 2008, he requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 3, 2009, for a hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. On January 15, 2009, the Trenton City Board of Education certified tenure charges against the respondent which dealt in part, with the IAIU finding relating to the alleged May 27, 2008, incident but that also separately averred other alleged incidences of unbecoming conduct purportedly warranting the dismissal of the respondent from his employment. The charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 3, 2009, and transmitted to the OAL on March 24, 2009, for a hearing as a contested case. Both matters were consolidated pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:6B-17.1 and N.J.A.C. 1:6B-17.2, by Order of April 9, 2009, which also determined predominant interest in the neglect matter to rest with the Executive Director of Community Services and the tenure matter with the Commissioner of Education. On April 20, 2009, I executed an Order permitting the release of DCF records and a protective Order. On May 19, 2009, I issued an Order partially sealing the record in this matter, which notably does not seal the initial decision. The hearing in these consolidated matters was conducted on June 2 and 10, 2009; July 10, 23, 28 and 29, 2009; August 25, 2009; September 25, 2009; and October 13 and 23, 2009. The hearing dates were selected based upon mutual availability of counsel and their respective witnesses. Additionally, one of petitioner Board of Education's witnesses failed to appear on the date of her scheduled testimony. A subpoena was served upon the witness and she still did not appear on the next date of her scheduled testimony. Thereafter, an Order enforcing the subpoena was executed by the Honorable Linda R. Feinberg, A.J.S.C., on July 17, 2009, and the witness still failed to appear. Ultimately, the petitioner Board of Education elected to withdraw her as a witness in this case. The parties ordered transcripts and submitted written summations within 30 days of receipt. The record then closed. An extension was requested, and granted, in order to issue this initial decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

For reasons further set forth below, the petitioners in both of these consolidated matters have met their respective burden of proof and the neglect substantiation by the DCF/IAIU finding that respondent Michael Dougherty placed student J.W. in substantial risk of harm by directing and allowing student J.W. to retrieve a book from a slanted roof approximately 20 feet high is AFFIRMED. Additionally, as further set forth below, respondent's pattern of conduct, including the disregard of board of education policies relating to safety and education, constitutes conduct unbecoming requiring the removal of his tenure and dismissal from his employment with the city of Trenton Board of Education.

The neglect matter

Matthew Butcher has been employed with the DCF for 12 years, nine of those years as an investigator in the IAIU unit. During that time, he has investigated approximately 250 matters; half of them involving allegations of neglect. He received training as to how to conduct neglect investigations and is required to complete additional training every few years.

He was charged with the responsibility of investigating the May 27, 2008, incident. Principal Joseph Marazzo contacted DCF and a screening summary was prepared. (JP-1). He contacted Marazzo initially to inquire about the allegations and action taken by the school district. He was provided the copies of students' respective written statements regarding the incident written individually in the principal's office after the incident occurred. (JP-4 through JP-7).[1] He spoke with the 7th grade student, J.W. She advised him that M.D. requested student M.B. to retrieve a book from the roof, which was accessible from the classroom window. M.B. refused. M.D. then asked her and she stepped out the classroom window onto the roof and retrieved the book. She climbed back into the classroom and then M.D. requested she climb back out onto the roof and retrieve a second book which was located further down on the roof. She declined this time. At this point, the principal entered the classroom and inquired about what happened. On the basis of his discussion with J.W., Butcher then spoke with fellow students F.B. and M.B., separately. (JP-2). F.B. told him he was present when the incident occurred and overheard M.D. instruct J.W. to go out onto the roof and retrieve the book. M.B. told him that M.D. initially asked him to retrieve the book but he declined and then M.D. directed J.W. to obtain the book. A substitute teacher was in the classroom when the incident occurred. She corroborated J.W.'s version of the event.

Butcher spoke with M.D. at his attorney's office. He told Butcher that M.B. stated he was going onto the roof to retrieve the book to which M.D. replied, "anybody but you." J.W. was half-way out of the window and M.D. then stated, "o.k., get it and come back." M.D. also told him that the second floor roof was flat and not heavily slanted. M.D. also stated that he probably should not have let J.W. climb out the classroom window onto the roof.

Butcher visited the classroom and inspected the roof. He noted the roof was 20 feet off the ground and was slanted. The ground below was paved with asphalt. He took pictures. (PJ-9). He obtained measurements of the roof from the school custodian.

Based upon his investigation, he recommended that a substantiation of neglect findings be made against M.D. as he placed J.W. in substantial risk of harm. (JP-8).

[1] Principal Joseph Marazzo testified that obtaining statements after an incident is part of the district policy. Students are brought in individually to write statements and no one, including himself, remains in the room while the statement is being written.

J.W., now 14 years old and an 8th grade student, was in the 7th grade when the incident occurred. She testified that she liked having M.D. as a teacher. She testified that "Mr. D." asked M.B. to get on the roof and retrieve the book. When M.B. refused, Mr. D. asked her and she replied "yes" as she was not afraid of heights. She climbed out the window, took two steps on the roof, retrieved the book, and returned. Mr. D. stood near her and she completed this task. The roof was slanted she testified. After she climbed back into the classroom, Mr. D. asked her if she would retrieve a second book on the roof. This one was near the edge of the roof, she testified. She refused because she did not want anyone to see what happened. J.W. testified that Ms. Somerville was in the classroom when the incident occurred. She heard Somerville say to Mr. D., "why did you let her do that?" Then Mr. Marazzo entered the classroom and told her to report to his office and write a statement. (PJ-4). She testified that she was being truthful when she wrote the statement.

F.B. is also an 8th grader in Rivera school. He was in Mr. D.'s 7th grade Social Studies class and liked him. He was present when the incident occurred. Mr. D. asked M.B. to retrieve the book but he refused. He then asked J.W. and she replied that she would retrieve the book. Mr. D. stood by the window looking out. He then helped J.W. back into the classroom. The roof was slanted. After principal Marazzo came to the classroom, he asked her to write a statement. (JP-6).

Kelli Williams was a para-professional assigned to the Rivera school in the 2007-2008 school year. She recalled the incident that occurred on May 27, 2008. She walked into a classroom and teacher Graham pointed out to her the female student walking on the roof. Graham told her to report the incident and she did. She had a clear view of the incident as it occurred and testified that the student was about five to ten feet away from the window on the roof. As part of routine procedures after an incident, she wrote a statement. (JP-7).

M.D. testified he entered the classroom and the students were already there. Ms. Somerville was sitting in the back of the classroom grading papers. Students were standing nearby talking with her. He was notified by one of the students, M.B., that there was a book on the roof. M.B. also asked if he should retrieve the book and respondent told him "no." One or two other students volunteered to retrieve the book and he responded in the same manner. J.W. was leaning right by the window and said, "Mr. D., I'll get it." He asked, "where is it? O.K. get it." As soon as he said it, he realized he made a mistake. It was a new textbook, he testified. It looked like someone had just thrown it out. He had an issue with his diabetes that morning. Considering the prior two incidents and the amount of time he was away from school, he would not ask anyone to go out on the roof. J.W. was a wonderful "kid," he testified. He had mentored her over the past two years. She was already out the window when she said, "I'll get it, Mr. D." He initially said "no" but then saw where she was and said "all right." He then realized his mistake. It all happened in a matter of seconds. In a "normal situation," he testified, he would never let any student out on the roof, but he was under stress and needing sugar. He testified that he never told the IAIU investigator that he was feeling ill that day because either the investigator "never asked" or he may not have written it.

The tenure matter

The Board certified tenure charges based on one charge of unbecoming conduct contained within 33 separate paragraphs and correlated to a Statement of Evidence comprising 18 separate exhibits. Because some of the paragraphs and exhibits concerned DCF, IAIU investigations against respondent determined unsubstantiated, petitioner Board of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7a withdrew paragraphs 8, 9, 10, 11, 17, 18, 19, 23, 24 and 25 and exhibits 9, 10, 14 and 15. (C-1).

Joseph Marazzo has been employed with the Trenton Board of Education for 38 years during which time he served as a teacher, supervisor and principal, respectively. He has served as a principal since the 1997-1998 school year. He reviews the performance of teachers as one of his functions and walks through the school building every day.

He testified that he sent respondent a confidential memorandum, dated December 4, 2006, because of a complaint from a parent or student regarding his interaction with a student wearing a "hoodie"[2] in the hallway and because of his observation of students in Dougherty's classroom playing cards during instruction time. (PT-1). The complaint regarding the "hoodie" was that Dougherty touched the student and removed it from the student's head himself. Marazzo testified that the general rule requires the teacher to request the student remove the hood; "hoodies" are not permitted to be worn at any of the schools in the district. He explained that middle school students are difficult to work with and that teachers need to talk to the students and explain policies to them. With regard to the playing cards incident, Marazzo testified that as the principal he walks through the building and checks the classrooms. It was during his rounds that he observed students in Dougherty's classroom playing cards. He testified it would not be appropriate to confront Dougherty in the classroom when he made the observation, so he made a note of it in the notebook he carries in his pocket and sent the memorandum requesting a meeting for the following morning. (PT-1). Instead, he received a written reply from the respondent. (PT-1A). In the response, Dougherty indicates "judge not without knowledge and insight" and defends his use of playing cards as a reward to the students who stayed on task during the week. With regard to the "hoodie" incident, Dougherty indicated that Marazzo did not personally witness the incident and detailed as well that the student is problematic. He admitted to removing the student's hood after the student refused to comply.

On April 27, 2007, he sent the respondent a memorandum after a fire drill during which time he observed that Dougherty did not have his roll book with him. Policy requires teachers to bring the roll book with them during an emergency because the book is required to account for every student. (PT-4). The very same day, he observed Dougherty showing his class an "R"-rated movie. He walked into the classroom, watched it for a while and then checked the videocassette casing for the rating. He does not specifically recall what he did at the time although procedure would have required him to direct Dougherty to stop showing the video. He sent Dougherty a memorandum indicating that page 35 of the staff handbook specifically prohibits the showing of "R"-rated videos. (PT-5). Teachers are required to include the showing of any videos in their lesson plans. The principal and/or the vice-principal then check the lesson plan.

On September 18, 2007, he sent respondent a memorandum for failing to retrieve his class on time from the cafeteria. (PT-6). Marazzo testified that it is important to timely pick-up the students because of cafeteria and classroom schedules. However, he does not know how late Dougherty was in picking up his class.

He sent respondent another memorandum, dated October 11, 2007, due to fire code violations observed in his classroom several weeks after a faculty meeting in which the potential fines for fire code violations were explained. (PT-7).

He sent respondent another memorandum, dated November 7, 2007, after personally observing students playing cards again during instructional time and more than one student out of the classroom at a time. (PT-8). He was concerned that the instructional period was not being used as required. Social Studies is a core course, he testified. He was also concerned that by allowing more than one student out of the classroom at a time, there would be a great likelihood they would go outside and play or "fool around."

On November 18, 2007, he sent respondent another memorandum regarding an allegation made by student K.F. of assault. (PT-16J). He investigated the incident by speaking with K.F. and other students. K.F. advised that respondent had overturned his chair/desk during class. K.F. had his head down on his desk. His head was covered by a "hoodie" and he was not participating in class. Dougherty then picked up his chair and K.F. fell to the floor and hit his leg. He obtained statements from other students. (PT-27). And he contacted the Division of Youth and Family Services.[3] He was called to the nurse's office and observed that the nurse had placed an ice bag on K.F.'s leg over a bump that had developed. Marazzo testified that physical contact with students is permissible only: to protect a child from self-injurious harm; to protect a child from being harmed by another child; or to protect oneself. Even then, only a reasonable amount of force may be used. A teacher can't overturn a student's desk for any reason.

He sent respondent a memorandum, dated December 21, 2007, expressing concern with the number of days Dougherty was absent and its affect on instruction. (PT-11). The memorandum indicated the number of days Dougherty was absent did not meet district guidelines. He specifically required a conference with the respondent, but does not recall if it occurred.

He sent respondent a memorandum, dated January 18, 2008, requiring a conference with regard to a number of issues including the "Looking for Learning" district mandates. (PT-12). He testified that all principals in the district were required to make sure the "Looking for Learning" mandates were met in every classroom. Dougherty did not appear for the scheduled meeting because he was absent the day it was scheduled, he testified. (PT-12A). With regard to the "Looking for Learning" mandates, the requirements were discussed with all district staff. Marazzo utilized a checklist for every classroom to make sure everyone was in compliance. (PT-13).

On February 15, 2008, he forwarded a memorandum to Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources, Patricia Lucas, recommending that respondent be reassigned to the high school level only, that he immediately be removed from contact with the Rivera School children and that his increment be withheld. He indicated that he made these recommendations because of respondent's continued acts of conduct unbecoming; poor decision-making; poor attendance over several years; poor classroom management and acts of perceived insubordination. (PT-16). Marazzo testified that based on his observations over the prior two school years, he felt that respondent may "work better" with older children. Marazzo explained that middle school children represented a "challenge" that was difficult for Dougherty. He testified that he spoke with Dougherty several times about the challenges of working with students that age and gave him pamphlets regarding professional development and recommended he attend workshops on dealing with middle school students. (PT-16).

Marazzo testified he specifically recalled the rooftop incident. During the course of his daily rounds that day, a para-professional came running down to the office and said that a student was on the roof. There are only two classrooms with windows over the roof and Dougherty's classroom was one of them. The first classroom he came to down the hallway was Dougherty's. He walked into the classroom and asked if anyone was on the roof. One of the students acknowledged that someone from the classroom was on the roof and then J.W. identified herself. He asked her to step out into the hallway and verify what occurred. He asked her to identify witnesses. Several students acknowledged in writing what they had observed. He asked Ms. Somerville to verify the incident. He then asked Dougherty to step out of the classroom and to contact his union representative and come to his office. He then told respondent that he was relieved of his duties and to report to Central Administration. He never asked Dougherty for his version of the events. Human Resources would not withhold Dougherty's increment because he had filed a discrimination complaint that was eventually dismissed. He had recommended reassignment to the high school and increment withholding; he never recommended tenure removal. But he testified that from June 2007 through February 2008, he did not feel that respondent had progressed even taking out of consideration the roof incident. He completed a final evaluation for Dougherty on April 25, 2008. (PT-21). He noted that Dougherty was a highly qualified social studies teacher but he needed to improve his communication skills with students. He was concerned with what he termed Dougherty's poor decision-making and he based this on student concerns, observations and interaction with students that Dougherty could have handled in a different manner. For example, he testified that the overall curriculum needs to be taught in a meaningful manner. He explained that with a subject area like Social Studies, there are many opportunities to present project-based instruction. If a teacher spends too much time lecturing, particularly with middle school students, the teacher will lose the students. Additionally, teachers have to be diligent in following school policies and procedures. Based on his formal observations made during his daily rounds, he determined respondent was not effective in instruction. Dougherty did not effectively manage his classroom and this was evident in students being off-task, playing cards, not sitting down and being loud. He was concerned that Dougherty would be returning to Riviera and that would not be in the best interest of the students or Mr. Dougherty; Marazzo testified.

K.F. testified with regard to the incident that occurred in respondent's Social Studies class. He was sitting at his desk. The desks are connected to the chairs in this classroom. The respondent was yelling at everyone in the classroom, K.F. testified. He put his head down because everybody was just talking. Dougherty pulled the desk out and flipped it. He fell and hit his leg on the side of the chair. His leg was sore and he went to see vice-principal Bethea who then sent him to the nurse. The nurse called the principal and Marazzo asked to write a statement. Dougherty filed a harassment complaint against K.F. (R-1). He denies telling the respondent that he wanted to slap him.

J.C. testified with regard to the incident involving K.F. The respondent assigned work to the students. K.F. asked the student sitting next to him a question. The respondent then yelled at K.F. and told him to leave the classroom. K.F. left but returned when respondent was turned away. K.F. sat down at his desk and put his head down. His head was covered by a "hoodie." Dougherty then asked her who that person was, but she could not answer because she was busy with her class assignment and did not realize it was K.F. Dougherty asked the person to identify himself but K.F. remained silent. Dougherty then tapped K.F. on the shoulder and then flipped the desk to the ground with K.F. still in it. She wrote a statement with regard to this incident. (PT-27).

Michael Dougherty testified on his behalf. He holds a B.S. in Social Science and a Masters. He taught for two years at Cherry Hill High School West and then left teaching to work in the private sector. He has 30 years of business experience. After several heart bypass procedures, he decided to return to teaching. He taught for two years at Malcolm X School in Newark before commencing his teaching career at the Trenton school district. He taught for three years at the high school before coming to Rivera. He taught 6th grade World Culture during the 2006-2007 school year and 7th grade American History during the 2007-2008 school year.

Prior to the hooded sweatshirt incident of November 2006, he had not been disciplined by Marazzo. He testified that he observed someone coming down the side hall with a "hoodie." He did not know who the person was and it is against student policy to wear hoods. That person ignored his directive to remove the hood. He conceded the student was not threatening any student at any time. Dougherty then removed the hood himself and sent the student to the principal. Nothing else occurred. He did not touch any part of the student's body when he removed the hood. He testified there is no policy prohibiting the touching of students' hoods. He was advised that day not to touch any article of clothing worn by the students and he followed that rule.

With regard to the card-playing incident, Dougherty testified that part of the difficulty with the class was that there was no interaction between the students. That is why he purchased games and with the stipulation that the students would be rewarded if they stayed on task during the week, he gave them the reward of some game time. He testified this was "outside the box" thinking on his part; if the students had fun in groups playing games, this might carry over in class.

He did meet with principal Marazzo regarding the "hoodie" incident and the card-playing incident.

He received the memorandum regarding the "R"-rated videos. (PT-5). He did show videos during class on occasion for instructional purposes. A lot of times he showed just portions of the films. Some of the films he maintained in his "bin" of movies were "R"-rated, such as "JFK," "Flight 93," "The Patriot" and "Amistad." The policy at school was that the movies had to be instructional. He would skip over any violent scenes when he showed the movies. He then formulated quizzes for the students on the movies they had seen. (R-3, R-4). He testified this was his multi-media approach to teaching in order to keep the students motivated in learning. He submitted his lesson plans to vice principal Bethea who approved it. It was Bethea's responsibility, respondent testified, to tell him otherwise. Bethea never told him he could not show the movies. He conceded that the movie "Glory" had an "R"-rating but that "it would not have mattered because it is a critically acclaimed film about African-American soldiers." He conceded to being aware of the policy against showing "R"-rated movies. He conceded to showing "Glory" to the students. He testified that he exercised "a little bit of academic freedom.". He testified that he used the staff handbook (PT-28) as a reference and that it is not a policy by the board of education but a staff manual written by the principal.

With regard to the roll book incident (PT-4), Dougherty conceded that he did not have the roll book with him but that he always carried a daily log with him on a clipboard and then transferred the information to the roll book. He had the daily log with him that day during the fire drill. The daily log has a listing for each of his courses and lists all the students in each class. He conceded the staff handbook indicates that teachers are required to carry their roll books during fire drills. (PT-28).

Dougherty testified that he recalls two incidences when he was not able to get to the cafeteria in time to retrieve his students. On one occasion, he was on the cell phone with a parent; on the second occasion, he was sick during lunchtime. On both occasions, he advised the vice-principal. He was less than five minutes late and vice-principal Bethea was present. He has covered for other teachers who were late.

With regard to the safety and fire code issues (PT-7), Dougherty testified that his classroom was a homeroom and students typically left their belongings there all day. They had no closets in the classroom. The vent in the back of classroom does not work. That is where the students place their books. He had been out sick with ragweed and because he ate poisonous berries; otherwise, he would have cleared the room earlier.

With regard to allowing more than one student leave the classroom at a given time (PT-8), Dougherty testified that he would allow one female and one male leave with respective passes to go out to the bathroom at the same time.

Dougherty testified that principal Marazzo did not discuss attendance issues with him during the 2006-2007 school year. During the 2006-2007 school year, he was absent on October 24 with ragweed. He took off on October 10 and 11 to move into a new house. He was injured at school toward the end of October when he fell over a desk. In March, he was injured when he broke-up a fight between students. In June while on duty outside the building, he fell and injured himself. He went into cardiac arrest and stayed in the hospital for the remainder of the year. During the 2007-2008 school year (PT-12), he was out several days in November during the investigation of the K.F. incident. He was out again during the investigation of the V.B. incident. And that is when the Looking for Learning Checklist was reviewed. (PT-13).

With regard to the K.F. incident, respondent testified that K.F. was lying down on the floor acting strangely. This was in front of the classroom. He was making sounds. Dougherty called the office and no one answered. He walked to the hall and saw principal Marazzo and told him he was having difficulty with K.E. The principal came in and told K.F. to report to his office. Marazzo told respondent that he would keep K.F. for the day and call his mother. At the end of the day, a lot of students were running up and down the hallway. He told K.F. to report to vice-principal Bethea as K.F. was not allowed back in his classroom until the principal met with his mother. K.F. must have come into the class because he saw a "kid" with a hood and he could not identify him. He poked the student. He later denied testifying that he poked the student. He walked into the hallway but no guard was present. He called the office twice but no one answered. He then tilted the desk for the purpose of trying to get the student to "do something." He later testified that other students told him it was K.F. He leaned on the side of the desk with one of his hand and the student "slipped out" onto the floor screaming that he was hurt. Respondent testified that he did not turn over or flip the desk. He testified that he believes his leaning on the desk caused it to fall over and that caused the student to fall on the floor. He later testified that the student fell out of the desk of his own volition. Respondent testified that the handbook allows him to overturn a desk and poke a student. (PT-28). He did not consider removal of a hood to be an offensive touching. As a result of the DYFS investigation, he remained out of the school until mid-January 2008. That resulted in an unsubstantiated finding.

Shortly after his return to Rivera, the V.B. incident occurred. He remained out during the investigation of that incident and did not return until mid-May 2008.

Alexander Bethea was the vice principal at Rivera from 2006-2009. He has been employed with the Trenton Board of Education for 34 years. He testified that he worked with the respondent in reviewing his lesson plans. He never reviewed any lesson plan that indicated the respondent would show an "R"-rated movie. He would have never approved that. It is against Board policy.

The J.W. incident then occurred on May 27, 2008. He conceded that it was dangerous for a student to be out on the roof.

He testified that there was "bad blood" with principal Marazzo. He did not report to him but to the vice-principal. He realized that anything he said would not be received well by the principal. Most of the reprimands were not classroom related but "hallway stuff; what other teachers" did all the time. He testified that other teachers subject to DYFS investigations were not removed from the school.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

A child less than 18 years old is considered neglected if her physical condition is in imminent danger of becoming impaired as a result of her guardian's failure to exercise a minimum degree of care in providing her with the proper supervision. N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21. Teaching staff members are considered guardians for purposes of the statute. N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21(a). Logically stated, parents leave their children in the care and supervision of school personnel every day for purposes of education; thus a transfer of obligation occurs. As our Supreme Court noted in the oft-quoted statement in Frugis v Bracigliano, 177 N.J. 250, 268 (2003):

> The law imposes a duty on children to attend school and on parents to relinquish heir supervisor role over their children to teachers and administrators during school hours. .... No greater obligation is placed on > school officials than to protect the children in their charge from foreseeable dangers, whether those dangers arise from the careless acts or intentional transgression of others.

In this matter, I found J.W. to be an articulate and sincere 8th grader. She had no reason to discredit the respondent. She testified that she liked Mr. D. and enjoyed being in his class. I found her to be a credible witness in contrast to the respondent. I FIND that M.D. was overwhelmed by the demands of his classroom. Upon learning that text books, which looked "new" to him were on the roof, he asked student M.B. to retrieve it. When that student refused, he ultimately asked J.W. to retrieve it. The first textbook was closer to the window. J.W. climbed out onto the slanted roof, approximately 20 feet from the ground and retrieved the book. Upon returning to the inside of the classroom, M.D. asked her to retrieve the second textbook which was near the edge of the roof. She declined. Even if one were to accept as credible M.D.'s version that J.W. volunteered to retrieve the book and was partially out of the window, his duty to her was to use reasonable physical force to prevent her from the foreseeable danger of falling from the roof. Instead, even if one was to accept his version of the events, his focus was on the fact that the textbooks looked "new" and not on the safety of 7th graders entrusted to him. His belated indication that his diabetic condition prevented him from acting appropriately is specious. It did not prevent him from noticing that the textbooks were "new." It did not prevent him from realizing that he made a serious mistake in judgment, if one believes his version of the event, as soon as he told J.W. she could retrieve the book from the roof. Based upon these findings, I CONCLUDE that the DCF appropriately substantiated neglect based upon the May 27, 2008, incident involving the respondent.

With regard to the tenure charge of conduct unbecoming, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT.

Principal Joseph Marazzo was charged with the responsibility of evaluating teachers. In the appropriate discharge of his responsibilities, he walked through the Rivera school on a daily basis and took notes on matters that needed attention. He received a complaint on or about December 6, 2006, from a parent or student regarding the respondent having removed a "hoodie" from a student walking through a hallway. Respondent concedes the student did not pose a threat to anyone. While respondent was well aware of the handbook prohibition on the wearing of "hoodies," the prohibition of physical contact with students in non-emergent situations was a part of the handbook he chose to ignore.

During his daily rounds, principal Marazzo observed respondent's class playing cards during instructional time. Respondent defended his use of playing cards as a reward to students who stayed on task during the week. After he told principal Marazzo that it would not happen again, students were later found to be playing cards but respondent stated he was unaware of this occurring in his own classroom.

Contrary to the requirements of the handbook, respondent did not bring his roll book with him during a fire drill occurring sometime in April 2007. Instead, he determined to use his own method of documenting daily student attendance which he would then transfer onto the roll book. This ignores the possibility that had a real fire occurred, he could have been left only with his daily student sheet if the roll book was destroyed in any fire.

Contrary to the requirements of the handbook, respondent elected to show a violent "R"-rated movie, "Glory," to his 7th grade class without administrative approval and without parental consent. Vice Principal Alexander Bethea credibly testified that respondent never submitted a lesson plan indicating intent to show any "R"-rated movie. If he had, Bethea would not have approved the lesson plan. The showing of an "R"-rated movie, even one with a historical context, was unsuitable for 7th graders and deprived their respective parents of the ability to decide whether their respective children should see it or were even mature enough to see it. It was also a value judgment he unilaterally deprived these parents from making by substituting his own judgment. The showing of an "R"-rated movie without permission was a deliberate act of insubordination and defiance on the part of the respondent. He knew the handbook did not permit the showing of such material without prior approval of a lesson plan. He chose, instead, to exercise what he termed "academic freedom" on his part. The showing of this movie also demonstrated his disdain for principal Marazzo who drafted the handbook. According to the respondent, as the handbook was developed by Marazzo and not the Board of Education, he was not compelled to follow it.

Despite being told not to remove "hoodies" from students, respondent once again flouted authoritative direction and engaged in a "hoodie"-removing incident with student K.F. in November 2007. He purposely poked the student, although later denied it, and purposely leaned on the student's desk to tip it over, thereby sending the 7th grader to the ground.

The District bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relies by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). Tenure protects educators from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). It is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by affording to teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Accordingly, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that no tenured person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause."

The multi-paragraph charge lodged by the district is conduct unbecoming which has been broadly defined to included any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and confidence in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992). In the context of a school tenure case, "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974).

Educators are held to certain prescribed standards of conduct because of the public trust placed in their positions. In that regard, the Commissioner has stated that:

> they are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment . . . . Those who teach do so by choice, and in this respect the teaching profession is more than a simple job; it is a calling.

Time and time again, respondent exercised poor-decision making that placed the safety of the students under his care in jeopardy. Asking students to retrieve books from the roof, tilting a desk because a student refused to identify himself and remove a "hoodie," purposeful failure to acclimate to hand book requirements of taking his roll book with him to fire drills and failure to clear his classroom of obstructions determined to be fire code violations are all the actions of a teacher whose unbecoming conduct warrants his termination from employment. Purposefully ignoring a handbook prohibition of showing an "R"-rated movie to 7th graders under the guise of "academic freedom" constitutes conduct unbecoming. Inability to control his classroom and allowing students to engage in card playing without even noticing it is not an example of effective teaching techniques and constitutes conduct unbecoming. The conglomeration of all of these unfortunate instances over less than two years' period of time amply demonstrate that the respondent was properly removed from his position as a teacher.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the DCF/IAIU finding of neglect substantiation is hereby AFFIRMED and I ORDER respondent's name shall be maintained on the Central Registry. The petitioner board of education's removal of respondent's tenure is hereby AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CHIEF OF STAFF, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CHIEF OF STAFF, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, who by law is authorized to make the final decision on all issues within the scope of its predominant interest. If the CHIEF OF STAFF, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision on all of the issues within the scope of predominant interest shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS COORDINATOR, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES, 222 South Warren Street, PO Box 729, Trenton, NJ 08625-0729, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8, upon rendering its final decision the CHIEF OF STAFF, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and its final decision, to the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, which may subsequently render a final decision on any remaining issues and consider any specific remedies which may be within its statutory grant of authority.

Upon transmitting the record, the CHIEF OF STAFF, DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c) request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION within forty-five days of the predominant agency decision. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the remaining issues and remedies shall become the final decision.

ORDER DENYING SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9-10
AGENCY DKT. NO. 354-12/09

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF KERRI A. POTTER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LITTLE EGG HARBOR, OCEAN COUNTY.

Paul J. Carr, Esq., for petitioner Board of Education of the Township of Little Egg Harbor

William Koy, Esq., for respondent (Law Firm of William Koy, attorneys)

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

This matter comes before me on respondent Potter's motion for summary decision, filed on March 19, 2010. Petitioner, Little Egg Harbor Board of Education ("Board") has made a determination that tenure charges filed against respondent Kerri Potter ("Potter") warrant her dismissal. Potter is employed by the Board as a tenured teaching staff member. In October 2006, Potter was injured in an automobile accident. As a result, she missed 467 days of work during the 2006-2009 school years, and needed to take prescription medication for her pain.[1] On October 7, 2009, the Board

[1] The certifications of the Board's counsel and the Board Superintendent are not in accord with respect to the amount of time Potter was absent during the 2006-2009 school years. The Board's counsel certifies that she missed 466 days; the Board Superintendent certifies that she missed 467 days.

Secretary received and filed tenure charges for Potter's dismissal. According to the Board, Potter engaged in insubordination because she "failed to comply with the directive of the administration to perform a [physical] reevaluation within the 120 days of the initial evaluation and she further failed to undergo a psychiatric evaluation and blood and urine testing within the time required by the administration;" Potter was incapacitated because she missed 467 days of work during the 2006-2009 school years; and Potter engaged in unbecoming conduct "in attending her responsibilities while under the influence of narcotic controlled substances in the presence of minor children, jeopardizing their safety and security." See Certification of Dr. Frank Kasyan, Board Superintendent, ¶¶16-20. According to Lynn Coates, Board Secretary, "[o]n October 7, 2009, and again on October 19, 2009, after considering the reply to charges filed by Kerri Potter, [the Board] determined that the charges and the evidence in support of the charges are sufficient, if true in fact, to warrant tenure dismissal of staff member, Kerri Potter. At the same time and place, [the Board suspended her without pay]. See Certification of Kerri Potter No. 2, Certification of Lynn Coates, ¶ 5, Exhibit P. The Board initially filed the tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education on November 20, 2009; however, due to deficiencies in its filing the Commissioner did not accept the Board's filing until December 16, 2009. On January 7, 2010, the matter was filed as a contested case with OAL.

Potter has appealed from the decision of the Board imposing tenure charges against her for incapacity (absenteeism), insubordination, and unbecoming conduct. Potter urges that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges against Potter based on absenteeism, insubordination and unbecoming conduct. Based upon those charges, the Board terminated Potter's employment.

The Board based the termination upon its contention that the Potter had excess absences from school, did not adhere to the requirements of the school district by failing to comply with a conveyed directive, and was under the influence of a controlled substance in the presence of minor children. The Board believes all proper procedures were followed by school personnel, and that Potter's rights were protected at all times. Potter requests the tenure charges be dismissed. The motion for summary decision is made on procedural and substantive grounds.

In its brief, Potter sets forth a series of factual and legal contentions in support of its position. Those factual and legal contentions include the following:

- The Board failed to provide adequate "Rice" notice to respondent.

- The Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges against respondent based on absenteeism.

- The Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges against respondent based on insubordination.

- The Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges against respondent based on unbecoming conduct.

The standards controlling a motion for summary decision are set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), which states in pertinent part:

> The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

In making this determination, the Court must examine the facts in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, and draw all inferences in that party's favor. Bray v. Marriott Hotels, 110 F.3d 986,989 (3d. Cir.1997).

In this case, the initial legal issue raised by Potter is whether or not the tenure charges should be dismissed as there was no adequate "Rice" notice to Potter. The Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1, and the regulations promulgated thereunder, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 to -5.6, set forth specific procedural steps that must be followed before a tenured teacher may be dismissed or reduced in compensation. Ibid. Any charge against a tenured teacher must be filed with the secretary of the board of education and sworn evidence supporting such charge shall be presented to the board. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The board must then provide the tenured teacher with a copy of the charge and evidence, and give the tenured teacher the opportunity to respond by submission of a written statement of position and evidence. Ibid. After the board considers all of the evidence, the board shall determine by a majority vote whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge and, if so, whether the charge warrants dismissal or reduction in compensation. Ibid. All deliberations and actions of the board with respect to such charge shall take place at a closed meeting. Ibid. The board shall notify the tenured teacher of its determination, and if probable cause exists and the charge warrants dismissal or reduction in compensation, the board shall forward the charge to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") for a hearing. Ibid. Upon certification of any charge to the Commissioner, the board may suspend, with or without pay, the tenured teacher against whom the charge is made. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. If the Commissioner disagrees with the board's determination, he shall dismiss the charge and penalty; however, if the Commissioner determines that the charge is sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, he shall refer the matter to OAL for further proceedings. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.

The Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21 ("OPMA"), recognizes, with certain exceptions, the public's right to be present at all public meetings. N.J.S.A. 10:4-7. One such exception allows public exclusion from discussion of matters including the employment, termination of employment, and evaluation of the performance of or disciplining of a public employee unless the employee whose rights could be adversely affected requests in writing that such matter(s) be discussed in public. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). As such, a public employee "is entitled to reasonable notice of the intention of the [public body] to consider personnel matters related to [him or her]" so that the employee may request a public hearing ("Rice notice"). Rice v. Union Cty. Reg'l High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 155 N.J. Super. 64, 73-74 (App. Div. 1977), certif. denied, Rice v. Union Cty. Reg'l High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 76 N.J. 238 (1978). Any action taken by a public body at a meeting that fails to conform to the OPMA shall be voidable, except in cases in which the non-conformity is a failure to provide advance published notice of at least 48 hours before a meeting. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a). Due to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine all controversies and disputes under the school laws, "the Commissioner has additional incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the [OPMA] as they relate to controversies under the school laws." Sukin v. Northfield Bd. of Educ., 171 N.J. Super. 184, 187 (App. Div. 1979). Therefore, this tribunal must consider Potter's allegation that the Board violated the OPMA by failing to provide "adequate notice to [her] and ensure the right to attend [the October 19th Board meeting] where business affecting the public or rights of such individuals whose rights may be adversely affect [was] discussed." See Potter's Brief, Point I.

In Sukin, supra, 171 N.J. Super. 184, a former school principal appealed a trial court's judgment dismissing the count of his complaint in which he alleged defendant Northfield Board of Education violated the OPMA after the court concluded that any violations of the act had been cured by remedial action taken by Northfield. Ibid. On appeal, the Appellate Division reversed the trial court's dismissal of that count because the Appellate Division held that that count should have been transferred to the Commissioner of Education for consideration. Id. at 187. According to the court,

> [b]y virtue of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, any action taken by a public body which does not conform to the Open Public Meetings Act is reviewable in the Superior Court in an action in lieu of prerogative writs. That section, however, was not intended to confer exclusive jurisdiction in the Law Division or the Chancery Division. We have held that where an administrative agency of the State has primary jurisdiction to determine the underlying controversy between the parties, a trial judge should not undertake to decide the issues presented under the Open Public Meetings Act but should refer those issues to the appropriate administrative agency.
> The Commissioner of Education has complete power to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. We are equally satisfied that the Commissioner has additional incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Open Public Meetings Act as they relate to controversies under the school laws. [Id. at 186-87 (citations omitted).]

Based upon the above, this tribunal has jurisdiction over Potter's OPMA claim.

While the OPMA requires Rice notice to public employees before meetings at which personnel matters about them will be discussed, the Tenure Employee Hearing Law clearly provides that "the consideration and actions of the board as to any [tenure] charge shall not take place at a public meeting." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The Board held a meeting on October 19th to consider the charges against Potter. Potter argues that the "[OPMA] mandates adequate notice to the party and ensures the right to attend [board] meetings where business affecting the public or rights of such individuals whose rights may be adversely affected is discussed," and that the Board's failure to provide adequate notice of the October 19th meeting violates the OPMA and that, as a consequence, the tenure charges against her should be dismissed. Potter's Brief, Point I.

In Cirangle v. Maywood Bd. of Educ., 164 N.J. Super. 595, 598 (Law Div. 1979), a tenured superintendent, Louis Cirangle, sued the Maywood Board of Education "to have the board's action [to certify tenure charges against him] declared void on the basis that it was taken during the course of a meeting which did not conform to the provisions of the [OPMA].[2]" Ibid. In Cirangle, the court noted the following conflict between the OPMA and the Tenure Employee Hearing Law: "[o]n the one hand, the [OPMA] requires that consideration of the charges against Cirangle be conducted at an open public meeting. On the other hand, the Tenure Employee Hearing Law prohibits consideration and action by the board in public." Ibid. Cirangle argued that under Rice, supra, 155 N.J. Super. 64, "the board was required to consider the charges against him in public" under the OPMA at N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). Cirangle, supra, 164 N.J. Super. at 598-99. However, as the court noted, "[t]he Tenure Employee Hearing Law was neither involved nor discussed by the court [in Rice]." Id. at 599. The court observed that the Tenure Employee Hearing Law followed in time the OPMA in passage by the Legislature and included clear language regarding the closed nature of board meetings at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. As such, the court held that the board could "exclude the public even in the face of a demand for an open meeting by the affected tenured employee." Id. at 602.

[2] It is unclear from the court's decision whether Cirangle was notified and/or in attendance at the meeting at issue.

Here, as in Cirangle, Potter argues that, under the OPMA, she should have been notified in advance of the Board's October 19th meeting at which the Board discussed her tenure charges so that she, and other members of the public if she so chose, could be in attendance. However, as the court held in Cirangle, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 specifically precludes public attendance or participation at meetings at which the board considers or takes action on tenure charges. As a result, the Board did not offend Potter's rights under the OPMA by failing to provide her with Rice notice so that she could be in attendance at the October 19th meeting at which the Board considered the tenure charges against her.[3] As the court in Rice noted, "[t]he plain implication of [N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8)] is that if all employees whose rights could be adversely affected decide to request a public hearing, they can only exercise that statutory right if they have reasonable advance notice." Rice, supra, 155 N.J. Super. 73. However, again, as the court in Cirangle pointed out, the right to Rice notice is circumscribed by the Tenure Employee Hearing Law because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 requires that boards consider tenure charges in closed sessions. This conclusion is supported by Sch. Dist. of the Town of Phillipsburg v. Hamlen, 86 S.L.D. 2705, 2711 (November 17, 1986), in which the Commissioner held that "[t]here is no legal requirement that would have compelled the Board to notify respondent [tenured teacher] of the date it was considering action on the tenure charges. N.J.S.A. 18:11-6 specifically prohibits consideration and action by a board as to any tenure charges at a public meeting." Ibid. In addition, even if the Board violated Potter's OPMA rights by failing to provide her adequate notice of the October 19th meeting, OPMA clearly states that "[a]ny action for which advance published notice of at least 48 hours is provided as required by law shall not be voidable solely for failure to conform with any notice required in this act." N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a). As such, Potter's motion for summary decision for failure to provide adequate "Rice" notice to Potter with respect to the OPMA issue is DENIED.

The second request of Potter is for a finding that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on absenteeism. Potter argues that there are other tools available to deal with absenteeism before a teacher is suspended or discharged. However, the use of those other tools is not mandatory. Potter also argues that dismissal of a tenured teaching staff member for excessive absenteeism requires a true excess of absences, and that the teacher must be given prior warning of the potential suspension or discharge. Notwithstanding, Potter presents no authority for that proposition. Finally, Potter argues that even if the facts proffered by the Board are true, these facts or proofs are not comparable to any other cases where excessive absenteeism was upheld as a reason for termination. When analyzing the aforementioned arguments in a light most favorable to the Board, a conclusion cannot be reached that there is not a genuine issue of a material fact. The Board reveals in its brief that Potter missed 183 days of school during the 2006-2007 school year, 154 days during the 2007-2008 school year, and 129 days during the 2008-2009 school year. Genuine issues of fact exist as to the propriety and reasons for those missed school days. The Board is entitled to develop at a hearing that these absences were inexcusably excessive. There are fundamental factual issues raised by the parties regarding whether Potter's actions rose to the level of unacceptable absenteeism, and consequently, genuine issues of fact remain unresolved. Therefore, because genuine issues of material fact remain unresolved, summary decision is not appropriate. Therefore, Potter's request for a finding on summary decision that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on absenteeism is DENIED.

Potter next argues that a finding should be made that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on insubordination. Potter correctly characterizes insubordination as actions which are disobedient to constituted authority. Potter sets forth that to sustain a charge for insubordination, the Board must be able to show that its policies and directives had been communicated to the employee and the Board must prove that the employee did not carry out such policies and directives. Genuine issues of material fact are present as to whether or not the Board can prove that it communicated its policies and directives to Potter, and that Potter failed to comply with those policies and directives, thus rising that to the level of insubordination. Whether Potter refused to see a doctor as required by the Board, or rather if a scheduling issue by the Board was the cause of a miscommunication, are genuine factual issues. As such, there are fundamental factual issues raised by the parties regarding whether Potter's actions rose to the level of insubordination, and consequently, genuine issues of fact remain unresolved. Therefore, because genuine issues of material fact remain unresolved, summary decision is not appropriate. Accordingly, Potter's request for a finding on summary decision that that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on insubordination is DENIED.

Finally, Potter argues that a finding should be made that the Board failed to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on unbecoming conduct. Potter correctly sets forth that unbecoming conduct is a charge relating to egregious conduct whether it be directly related to job performance or not. Potter is accused by the Board of being under the influence of a controlled substance in the presence of minor children. Potter argues that the Board has not set forth any proofs to sustain these charges, and that the allegations do not rise to the level of an unbecoming conduct charge. Further, Potter denies ever teaching under the influence of controlled substances, and alleges that the Board's proofs are based on hearsay, or on instances that cannot be confirmed. Given the allegations, genuine issues of fact exist as to whether or not Potter ever taught students while unlawfully under the influence of controlled substances. There are fundamental factual issues raised by the parties regarding whether respondent's actions rose to the level of unbecoming conduct, and consequently, genuine issues of fact remain unresolved. Therefore, because genuine issues of material fact remain unresolved, summary decision is not appropriate. As such, Potter's request to dismiss on summary decision the Board's appeal based upon the Board's failure to meet the threshold for tenure charges based on unbecoming conduct, is hereby DENIED.

Potter's motion for summary decision is DENIED.

A prehearing conference shall be scheduled with the parties to confirm the schedule of future dates herein.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent Potter's motion for summary decision be DENIED.

This order denying summary decision is being submitted under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) for immediate review. This recommended order may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make the final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this order was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: May 18, 2010 Decided: May 18, 2010

BEFORE TAHESHA L. WAY, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 26, 2010, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached agreement indicating the terms of settlement (J-1).

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

3. Both the claim and counterclaim have been resolved in accordance with the executed Settlement.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. H.P. and G.H. on behalf of minor children, R.H., Petitioners, vs. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HILLSIDE, UNION COUNTY, Respondent.	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF NEW JERSEY OAL Dkt. No: EDUOS 01842-2010N SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Petitioner, H.P is a resident of Hillside at 1511 Schley Street and has acted as guardian for R.H. Petitioner G.H. resides at 1 Grumman Avenue Newark, NJ and is the natural mother of R.H. Respondent, HILLSIDE BOARD OF EDUCATION ("Board" or "District"), a body corporate of the State of New Jersey, with its primary offices at 195 Virginia Street, Hillside, NJ 07205.

WHEREAS G.H. acknowledges that R.H. has resided with her in Newark during the 2009-10 school year and has not resided with H.P. although he has attended the Hillside schools during this time; and

WHEREAS H.P. and G.H. have agreed to withdraw the current appeal in consideration of the District's willingness to permit R.H. to finish the 2009-10 school year at Hillside High School without payment of tuition; and

WHEREAS, the District has agreed to waive their right to collect back tuition for the period of R.H.'s ineligible attendance at Hillside for the 2009-10 school year specifically [illegible] school year; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve the litigation in this matter;

NOW THEREFORE the parties agree as follows:

1. H.P. and G.H acknowledge that R.H. has not resided in Hillside during the 2009-10 school year and that they are liable for tuition for the period of ineligible attendance.

2. H.P. and G.H. agree to withdraw the instant appeal, which will result in R.H. being disenrolled as a resident student in the Hillside school district.

3. The District shall permit R.H. to complete the 2009-10 school year only in Hillside High School without payment of tuition.

4. R.H. shall not return to Hillside High School following the 2009-10 school year except as a tuition paying student. Should G.H. attempt to register R.H. as a student in the Hillside schools at any point after the 2009-10 school year, the District reserves the right to reinstate its claim and collect back tuition for the 2009-10 school year for the period of ineligible attendance acknowledged in this Agreement.

EDUCATION, MORRIS COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, the parties' revised settlement agreement, and the Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. On May 4, 2010, the Commissioner remanded this matter to OAL based upon a determination that the prior settlement agreement recommended for adoption by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") did not include the requisite Board of Education approval.

Upon review of the revised agreement and the record on remand, the Commissioner finds that the deficiency identified in the prior agreement has been corrected. The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ that the proposed settlement is consistent with the established standards governing the settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

Accordingly, the settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement. A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners.

Randi Doner April, Esq., for petitioner Anthony Bartolomeo (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Philip E. Stern, Esq., for respondent Wharton Borough Board of Education (Adams Stern Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 13, 2010 Decided: May 14, 2010

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

This is a remand from the Department of Education filed with the Office of Administrative Law on May 4, 2010, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, from a settlement agreement transmitted under an Initial Deicision Settlement dated April 6, 2010, under Docket No. EDU 11393-08 concerning tenure charges brought by the Wharton Borough Board of Education on August 28, 2008 against Anthony Bartolomeo. The charges involved allegations that Mr. Bartolomeo had abused sick time and submitted illegitimate or no medical documentation which demonstrated a pattern of conduct unbecoming during certain periods in each of the years 2005-2008, all of which allegations Mr. Bartolomeo denied.

The only objection to the Stipulation of Settlement by the Department was that it had not been provided with evidence of authorization of approval of the settlement by the Wharton Borough Board of Education. It sought such authorization in the form of either a Board Resolution or signature of the Board's authorized attorney representative. The latter has now been provided by Board counsel. Accordingly, this remand matter will not require any evidentiary hearing and resulting delay that could interfere with implementation of its terms. I CONCLUDE that the matter can be re-transmitted to the Commissioner for approval with this additional documentation.

I CONCLUDE that this settlement is in accord with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and of In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 and that it should be approved. I therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Agency Ref. No. 265-9/08

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of ANTHONY BARTOLOMEO WHARTON BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION, MORRIS COUNTY	VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, WAIVER AND RELEASE

The Wharton Borough Board of Education ("Board") and Anthony Bartolomeo ("Mr. Bartolomeo"), agree to the following terms in full resolution of this matter:

WHEREAS, Mr. Bartolomeo disputes the allegations of misuse of sick time which resulted in the filing of the tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that it is in the public interest to enter into this agreement in resolution of said charges in order to avoid the uncertainty and expense of litigation; and

WHEREAS, the parties further agree that the terms of this agreement will not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the school district,

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Bartolomeo agrees to resign from employment with the Wharton Borough School District, effective at the close of business on June 30, 2009.

2. Mr. Bartolomeo shall continue to receive health benefits until the Commissioner of Education renders her Final Decision.

3. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, Mr. Bartolomeo will be suspended without pay from September 1, 2008 through December 31, 2008. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, Mr. Bartolomeo shall then be placed on the payroll from January 1, 2009 until the date of settlement, March 20, 2009.

4. The period between March 20, 2009, the date of settlement, and June 30, 2009, the effective date of resignation, shall be treated as an unpaid leave.

5. Mr. Bartolomeo and the Board agree that in full settlement of this matter, the Board shall pay Mr. Bartolomeo one month's salary for a total of five thousand four hundred forty-nine ($5,449.00) dollars upon the final determination of the Commissioner of Education.

6. Upon approval by the Board and the Commissioner of Education, the Board shall withdraw the tenure charges filed against Mr. Bartolomeo.

7. Mr. Bartolomeo acknowledges that the payments reflected in this agreement constitute the full financial obligation of the Board and that he shall receive no additional payments, except as set forth in this Agreement. In exchange for the above consideration, Mr. Bartolomeo, on behalf of himself, his heirs, successors and assigns, hereby fully releases and forever discharges the Board, its representatives, agents, officers and employees, for any and all actions, claims and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, that he has had or may now have against any of them, including, without limitation, any and all claims related to his employment with the Board or the separation from that employment. Likewise, the Board, on behalf of itself, its successors and assigns, hereby fully releases and forever discharges Mr. Bartolomeo, his heirs and successors and assigns, for any and all actions, claims and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, that it has had or may now have against him, including without limitation any and all claims related to Mr. Bartolomeo's employment with the Board or the separation from that employment.

8. Mr. Bartolomeo acknowledges, as required under In re Cardonick, that despite the approval of this Agreement, the issue of possible revocation of his teaching certificate may be considered by the State Board of Examiners. Mr. Bartolomeo understands that the Commissioner of Education may accept, reject or modify this Settlement, and that the Commissioner of Education may forward this matter to the State Board of Examiners for consideration of revoking his certificate.

9. The parties agree that it is in the public interest to avoid the time, expense and uncertainty attendant to litigation. The parties further agree that this Settlement accomplishes the remedy which the District sought by bringing the tenure charges: Mr. Bartolomeo will be separated from his employment with the District.

10. The parties further agree that the charges at issue do not represent a danger to the public welfare.

11. This Agreement is freely and voluntarily executed by each party hereto. Both parties have had the terms of this Agreement thoroughly explained by their respective legal counsel and understand such terms and the legal implications arising therefrom.

12. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Wharton Borough Board of Education and the Commissioner of Education. Should the Commissioner of Education decide not to approve the application for approval of the parties' settlement and withdrawal of the tenure charges, this Agreement, and all of its terms, shall be null and void.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF VINELAND, CUMBERLAND COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners – whose tenured teaching positions were abolished – claimed entitlement to positions held by allegedly less senior employees. Subsequently, the respondent Board rehired petitioner D'Ottavio – who then withdrew her petition – and offered petitioner Cucukov reemployment. Respondent filed a motion for summary decision, which petitioner Cucukov did not oppose.

The ALJ granted respondent's motion for summary decision, finding that petitioner Cucukov declined to oppose the motion; therefore her petition must be dismissed.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner found that the controversies alleged in the petition appear to have been resolved or abandoned. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed in its entirety.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Record Closed: May 13, 2010 Decided: May 19, 2010

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners appealed respondent's action terminating their employment by abolishing their positions.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioners requested a fair hearing and the matter was transmitted to the OAL on September 29, 2009, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

This case comes before me on respondent's motion for summary decision. The case arises out of respondent's action terminating petitioners' employment with the school district because their positions were abolished. Subsequently, petitioner D'Ottavio was rehired by respondent, and petitioner Cucukov was offered reemployment. By letter from her attorney dated May 13, 2010, D'Ottavio withdrew her petition. Counsel further advised that Cucukov did not oppose the motion.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Since Cucukov has declined to oppose the motion, respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. The petition of petitioner Cucukov must be DISMISSED.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's motion for summary decision be GRANTED.

I ORDER that the petition of petitioner Cucukov be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WINSLOW, CAMDEN COUNTY AND PEGGY NICOLOSI, EXECUTIVE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT, CAMDEN COUNTY,	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

RESPONDENTS.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, with respect to petitioner's claim that it has been improperly deemed a non-operating school district, and its request for an emergent order adopting its April 17, 2010 budget. The Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ that the effective date for the elimination of the Chesilhurst school district, and its pending merger with Winslow Township, shall be stayed until respondent – the Executive County Superintendent for Camden County – complies with the statutory and regulatory provisions governing the elimination of a non-operating school district. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(g) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-2.4.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief and granting a temporary stay of the effective date for the elimination of the Chesilhurst school district is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

Susan M. Huntley and Shannon M. Ryan Deputies Attorney General, for respondent Peggy Nicolosi (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of the State of New Jersey, attorney)

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

Petitioner, the Borough of Chesilhurst Board of Education (Chesilhurst) seeks to enjoin respondent Peggy Nicolosi (Nicolosi), the Executive County Superintendent (ECS) of Camden County from taking action to eliminate Chesilhurst as of July 1, 2010, as a non-operating school district, and merging it into the Winslow Township school district (Winslow). As part of its emergent request it further seeks an Order adopting the school budget passed by Chesilhurst on April 17, 2010, and an expedited hearing on its companion petition to terminate the sending/receiving agreement with Winslow Township, under which Chesilhurst's pre-kindergarten through sixth grade students attend Winslow schools. That petition also seeks a determination that Chesilhurst is not a non-operating district slated for elimination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:8-43, et. seq. The petition and request for emergent relief was filed on May 17, 2010, and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 20, 2010. Oral argument on the emergent motion was heard on May 24, 2010, and the parties were given until May 25, 2010, to submit additional legal argument and documentary evidence.

The following are the relevant facts. Chesilhurst is a small district with just a few hundred students. For some time, its students enrolled in grades seven through twelve have attended Winslow schools through a sending/receiving relationship. The district's pre-kindergarten through sixth grade students attended Chesilhurst's only school, the Shirley B. Foster Elementary School until the 2009-10 school year. In the midst of the 2008-2009 school year, Chesilhurst and Winslow began discussions on expanding their sending/receiving relationship in consideration of the new Accountability Regulations set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-2.1 et. seq. Additionally, in anticipation of further consolidation legislation, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) encouraged school districts to consider consolidation. Chesilhurst was one of twenty-six school districts in the state, with an established sending/receiving relationship for some of its students, for whom consolidation was being encouraged. After a fire which damaged its elementary school in January 2009, Chesilhurst passed a resolution on March 30, 2009, to expand the sending/receiving relationship with Winslow to include pre-kindergarten through sixth grade for a three-year term. Relying on the agreement, the Boards drafted their 2009-10 school year budgets to include tuition payments to Winslow for the attendance of all Chesilhurst students to its schools. Chesilhurst's budget was approved by Executive County Superintendent Nicolosi pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.1.

The expanded sending/receiving agreement was implemented for the 2009-10 school year.[1] Winslow expended funds for extended school year (ESY) programs for the additional students from Chesilhurst classified as eligible for special education and related services; created class schedules for the new students; hired eight tenured teachers from Chesilhurst; provided for the bus transportation needs of the Chesilhurst students; conducted IEP (individualized education program) meetings for the students classified eligible for special education and related services; and provided financially for the out-of-district placements for those students classified eligible for special education and related services for whom Chesilhurst IEP teams had previously designated their respective placements. When the school year commenced in September 2009, Chesilhurst students from pre-kindergarten through twelfth grade were attending Winslow schools.

Chesilhurst submits that serious problems occurred in the integration of its elementary students into Winslow, serious and continuing enough to support its contention that the children should be returned to the district's now repaired elementary school. While Winslow allows that some disruptions and problems may have occurred at the start of the expanded sending/receiving relationship, it asserts that they were of a more routine nature and have been resolved. Chesilhurst further contends that although a comprehensive Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) was discussed between it and Winslow, such an agreement was never executed by the two districts. The MOA was to have expanded on the existing sending/receiving relationship between the two districts by dealing with their possible consolidation, and issues attendant to such a merger.

After Chesilhurst agreed to the expanded sending-receiving relationship with Winslow in March 2009, legislation governing the elimination of non-operating school districts took effect on June 30, 2009. N.J.S.A. 18:7-8(g) provided that the ECS shall eliminate districts not operating schools on the effective date of N.J.S.A. 18A:8-43 which defines a non-operating district. The effective date of that provision is June 30, 2009. Immediately after the effective date of the above provisions, the Commissioner announced the elimination of thirteen such districts and listed Chesilhurst as one of another thirteen districts proposed for elimination (Exhibit B of respondent Nicolosi's submission).

[1] In the summer of 2009, the Borough of Chesilhurst (Borough) and its Mayor, Michael Blunt filed a petition and request for emergent relief with the Commissioner seeking to enjoin the implementation of the expanded agreement. An Order denying that emergent relief was issued by Administrative Law Judge Anna Viscomi and the Borough subsequently withdrew the companion petition.

During the 2009-10 school year, Chesilhurst and the ECS have met and corresponded over Chesilhurst's status, its budget and operations, as well as its elimination as a district and possible merger into Winslow. Chesilhurst contends that during the past year-and-a-half it has received "mixed messages" from the ECS regarding its status as a "non-operating" district and that the ECS has taken "unilateral" action by scheduling the district for elimination as of July 1, 2010. The ECS and Chesilhurst continued to disagree on whether the district was non-operating, with Chesilhurst submitting budgets to the ECS providing for the return of the pre-kindergarten through sixth grade students to the reopened Chesilhurst elementary school. Citing her statutory authority the ECS rejected those budgets and submitted a budget for Chesilhurst to the Department of Education (Department) reflecting its status as a non-operating district.

In addressing the relief sought by petitioner, it is important to note that Chesilhurst and the ECS begin their arguments and analyses on the underlying legal issues from different starting points. While Winslow is a party to this action and disagrees with factual assertions made by Chesilhurst, its submission states that it takes no position on the relief sought by Chesilhurst and will defer to the Commissioner's determination in this matter. Chesilhurst's petition cites N.J.S.A. 18A:38-20 and 21, provisions dealing with a sending/receiving relationship between districts. It argues that it should be allowed to terminate its agreement with Winslow and resume the operation of its elementary school, contending that its expanded agreement with Winslow did not make it a non-operating district on June 30, 2009. Arguing that its right to reopen its elementary school was not foreclosed by law or its agreement with Winslow, it disputes that it is a non-operational district and mandated for elimination.

Respondent ECS however, begins its analysis with the statutory effect of Chesilhurst's non-operational status. Citing N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(g), she asserts that since Chesilhurst was not operating any schools on the effective date of N.J.S.A. 18A:43, June 30, 2009, it became a district required to be eliminated. Since it is required to be eliminated under the statute, its ability to change its sending/receiving relationship is foreclosed and the elimination of the district should go forward as set forth in the legislative mandate.

In reviewing the relief requested by petitioner, the issues presented under N.J.S.A. 18:38-20 and 21, cannot be reached without an analysis of the statutory provisions regarding elimination of non-operating districts. Simply put, the issue becomes whether Chesilhurst was a non-operating district under the applicable statute on June 30, 2009, and if it was, then does it still have the ability to seek a change in that status by a request to change its sending/receiving agreement and become operational again? In its request for emergent relief Chesilhurst seeks a stay of the ECS's actions eliminating it as a district as of July 1, 2010, and requests that its budget rather than that of the ECS be adopted. Both those request for emergent relief require an analysis under the statutory provisions setting forth the power of the ECS, and providing for elimination of non-operating districts.

In order to grant all or part of petitioner's request for emergent relief, the criteria for the award of emergent relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 must be met. Those include irreparable harm if the relief is not granted, a settled legal right underlying petitioner's claim, a likelihood that petitioner will prevail on the merits of the underlying claim, and on a balance of the equities and interest, that petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent.

In regard to its emergent request that a stay be entered on the determination by the ECS that Chesilhurst shall be a non-operating district as of July 1, 2010, and merge with Winslow during the pendency of this proceeding, petitioner has not met the criteria for a stay on the determination that it is a non-operating district. Although it has made a colorable argument that its expanded sending/receiving relationship with Winslow was exigent and temporary in nature, obviating its non-operating status under the statute, neither the legal right underlying that claim, nor the likelihood of success on the merits is assured.

It has however, met the criteria for a stay of the ECS's actions setting the date for the elimination of the district and its merger with Winslow as of July 1, 2010. Although the ECS has broad powers under the statute, the elimination of a non-operating district must occur in accordance "with a plan and schedule included in the plan submitted to and approved by the commissioner." N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(g). Respondent has not yet finalized such a plan, nor submitted it to the Commissioner for approval (Respondent Nicolosi's brief at page 6, referencing petitioner's Exhibit R). Similarly, regulations promulgated by the Department, and effective December 21, 2009, set forth the items to be addressed in the plan of elimination developed by the ECS and the Commissioner. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-2.4. Petitioner's elimination as a district must conform under the statute and regulations to that procedure. In that regard its legal right is settled and there is a likelihood of Chesilhurst's prevailing on the requirement that the ECS cannot proceed with its elimination except in the manner required by statute and regulations. Further, the irreparable harm to Chesilhurst is that it will no longer exist, as well as the timing of its demise and the resolution of the issues attendant to its passing. Balancing the equities between the parties, Chesilhurst will suffer the greater harm.

Petitioner's emergent request for an Order adopting its budget providing for the return of its children must fail however. Such a request is bound up with the issue of whether it is a non-operating district, and as noted above, Chesilhurst's legal right underlying that claim is not settled, nor is its likelihood of success. Further, the disruption to the present sending/receiving relationship with Winslow and its effects upon the students for the upcoming school year outweigh any harm to petitioner.

Petitioner's final request for emergent relief is a request for an expedited hearing on its underlying petition. As the parties were advised at oral argument such an order may be issued under N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4. Procedures for acceleration of cases include a finding of good cause by the Director of the OAL or the judge assigned, as well as consent of the parties, and consent by the transmitting agency to the regulation's deadlines. While petitioner's argument for expedition has merit, the remaining criteria for acceleration have yet to be met and its request is denied without prejudice.

Based on the foregoing, petitioner's request for an emergent order adopting its April 17, 2010 budget is hereby DENIED. Petitioner's request to stay the decision by respondent Nicolosi that it is a non-operating district is DENIED; however, its request to stay the elimination of the Chesilhurst school district and its merger with Winslow as of July 1, 2010, is GRANTED until respondent Nicolosi complies with the statutory and regulatory requirements for the approval of such elimination and merger by the Commissioner. It is ORDERED that respondent Nicolosi take no further action to eliminate Chesilhurst and merge it with Winslow except in accordance with the required plan submitted to and approved by the Commissioner. Finally, petitioner's request for an accelerated hearing is DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter – including the digital recording of the proceedings conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) – and the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Most particularly, she has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying appeal and failed to show that the balance of interests and equities under the circumstances rests in her favor.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL denying petitioner's application is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Because the parties have agreed that the present proceeding has fully disposed of all issues in dispute between the parties in this matter, no further proceedings are necessary, and this matter is, therefore, dismissed with the request that the Clerk of the OAL return the file to the agency pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3.

M.K. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, J.M.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RANCOCAS VALLEY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

M.K., petitioner, appeared pro se on behalf of minor child J.M.

Shannon Hudak, Esq., for respondent (Parker McCay, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 23, 2010 Decided: June 23, 2010

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

M.K., the mother of a senior in high school, J.M., filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to overturn a decision of the respondent Board of Education denying her son permission to participate in the high school graduation ceremony scheduled for Friday evening, June 25, 2010. The Board acted pursuant to a policy that provides that if a student receives a grade of less than 60 in a core subject required for graduation, the student is not permitted to participate in the graduation ceremony, although he or she is allowed to make "other arrangements" to complete the graduation requirements and thereby become eligible to receive a diploma. In this case, J.M. failed English IV, a core course, during the first half of the school year. He then went to night school, paid for by his mother, and passed the English IV requirements. He is eligible to receive a diploma, but in accordance with the policy, the Board has informed the parent and child that he will not be allowed to participate in Friday's ceremony. Ms. K. argues that the policy is unfair and that it punishes a child who has successfully remedied the failing grade, thus undermining the feeling of achievement that would otherwise come from having obtained the passing grade.

The Board defends its policy as being fair to all students. The school operates on a block scheduling basis. If a child fails a core course in the first half of the school year, he or she can, if they choose, go to night school, as J.M. did, and pass the course, thereby making themselves eligible for a diploma prior to the graduation ceremony. But a child who, through no fault of his or her own, is assigned to take a core course in the second half of the school year, simply has no ability to pursue an alternative means of passing the course prior to the ceremony. While that child may go to summer school after the graduation and complete the requirements for a diploma, he or she cannot do what J.M. could, that is, go the alternate route and pass before the ceremony. In recognition of this, the Board points to a notice provided to students in September 2009, entitled "Graduation Requirements Acknowledgement." This notice, a copy of which it is conceded was signed by J.M. in September 2009, specifically states the policy with emphasis on the graduation ceremony issue.

> I understand that if I am within 10 credits of completing all graduation requirements but I have an average lower than a 60 in any course required for graduation, or if I am more than 10 credits from completing all graduation requirements, I will not be permitted to participate in the graduation ceremony and I must make other arrangements to complete graduation requirements in the future.

A letter was sent to parents in February 2010 enclosing a copy of this "graduation contract signed by your son/daughter." The letter notes that the contract addresses the requirements for participation in the graduation ceremony. The letter notes also that the contract "has been updated and any requirements that still remain are highlighted," as indeed, the signed document does bear highlighting. Ms. K. is unsure if she received this letter, but does not deny that she may have. At the time she was suffering from a significant medical issue and may have been distracted and have not been aware of the letter, but she concedes that her son mentioned the concern about the prospect of not being allowed to participate in the graduation ceremony and she did inquire about this when he signed up for night school. It is clear that she had notice and awareness in at least February or March that J.M.'s failure in English IV at the very least threatened, if not absolutely barred, his participation in the ceremony. And it is surely clear that he knew of the policy in September, long before he failed the course.

The decision as to whether a student is permitted to participate in a graduation ceremony is within the broad discretion of the Board of Education. The Commissioner of Education will not interfere in such a decision unless the Board has acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. The actions of a board of education are entitled to a presumption of correctness. It is to be presumed that such actions will be upheld by the Commissioner of Education in the absence of a showing of bad faith, illegal motive or a lack of rational basis. Kopera v. West Orange BOE, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Emergent relief is only available where the party seeking the relief is able to establish that, in the absence of such relief, irreparable harm is likely to occur, that there is a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits of the underlying claim put forth by the party seeking emergent relief, that the party seeking relief seeks to enforce a legal right to which they have a settled legal right, and where the balance of equities is such that the moving party will suffer greater harm than the opposing party will suffer if the requested relief is denied. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). These predicates for emergent relief are set forth in the conjunctive and therefore all must be met if such relief is to be granted. Here, conceding that there are cases that have split on whether the failure to be able to attend a graduation ceremony involves irreparable harm, the key element that must be considered is the "reasonable likelihood of success." The Board's rationale for not allowing a student to participate who, due to the fortuitous fact of having failed in the first half of the school year, has the ability to pass the course at night, while those who fail in the second half cannot avail themselves of such a pre-graduation opportunity, is sensible and evenhanded. It would be quite unfair to do otherwise, and no doubt those who had the misfortune to fail in the second half would be quite upset to see a student who failed as they did, but did so in the first half, march while they were sidelined. It is indeed commendable that the child did pass the failed course, and that his mother went out of her way to assure that he could do so at some expense to her, but that does not suggest that in the face of enforcement of an evenhanded policy she has any likelihood of prevailing on the underlying issue, which, after all, in this type of case, is in fact whether he should or should not be permitted to participate. The parties agree that no additional testimony or material would assist either side in presenting the merits of their respective cases.

Based upon the documents offered by the Board, and the arguments of the parent and Board counsel, I FIND that J.M. had notice of the policy as set forth in writing at least as early as September 2009, that he signed to acknowledge his having received such notice, that he failed English IV, passed it in the early Spring in night school and that the Board has advised that he cannot participate in the graduation ceremony in accordance with the stated policy. Additionally, I FIND that Mrs. K. was made aware of the policy, and her son's concern about it, in either February 2010, or at the latest in March 2010. They knew then that his failure to pass English IV in the regular school, as opposed to doing so through "other arrangements" had an impact on his ability to participate. I FIND that the Board policy reasonably treats all students alike regarding their participation if they fail a core course. I FIND that there is no reasonable likelihood that the applicant for emergent relief can prevail on the merits of her claim. I also FIND that as the legality of the Board's action must be viewed in the broad context of its responsibilities to all students and not merely as to this one student, granting the relief sought and allowing this student to participate despite his failure to pass a core course and his knowledge of the consequence of such failure in respect to the ceremony would cause greater harm to the Board than it would denial of the relief cause to the student. If an exception to the policy were allowed here, the Board would be faced with such demands in the future, when the policy as announced to students is a fair one, notwithstanding that in the specific instances where is must be applied, such as this one, it is no doubt a harsh consequence for the particular student and parent(s) involved.

I CONCLUDE that the applicant for emergent relief has failed to establish the grounds upon which such relief can be granted. The application for emergent relied is DENIED. The parties having agreed that there is no further evidence to present on the issues in dispute, the contested case will be returned to the Commissioner of Education.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DR. WENDE GREENBERG, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE VILLAGE OF RIDGEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY

Jeffrey Merline, Esq., for petitioner Village of Ridgewood School District, Bergen County (Lindabury, McCormick, Estabrook & Cooper, attorneys)

Judson L. Hand, Esq., for respondent Dr. Wende Greenberg

Record Closed: April 23, 2010 Decided: May 20, 2010

BEFORE DANIEL B. MC KEOWN, ALJ (t/a)

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On December 7, 2009, the Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood School District, Bergen County (Board), certified to the Commissioner of Education for disposition under *N.J.S.A.*18A:6-11 tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, incapacity, and other just cause against Dr. Wende Greenberg (respondent), a teacher with a tenure status in its employ. Indeed, respondent had been in the Board's employ for 20 years. Respondent was suspended without pay under *N.J.S.A.*18A:6-14 pending disposition of the charges against her. The Commissioner of Education transferred the matter as a contested case which was received by to the Office of Administrative Law on November 6, 2009. The matter was 1initially assigned the Honorable Joseph Paone, who was subsequently appointed to the New Jersey Superior Court. The matter w as reassigned this administrative law judge on or about January 29, 2010. A hearing was scheduled to be conducted March 22, 2010. However, prior to the commencement of hearing the parties settled the matter and set out in writing the specific terms of the settlement as is required under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a).

For the reasons that follow, I FIND and CONCLUDE the written terms of the settlement, approved by the parties, is an acceptable settlement of the tenure charges.

BACKGROUND

The Board certified the tenure charges against respondent on December 7, 2009. Prior to that date, however, the superintendent notified respondent on September 18, 2009, in writing, that tenure charges had been filed against her and that she had fifteen days within which to file an Answer to the charges. The superintendent also stated that the Board would then have 45 days within which to determine whether probable cause exists to credit the evidence in support of the charges and, if so, whether such conduct would warrant some discipline to be imposed by the Commissioner of Education. The superintendent concluded this writing by stating that should probable cause be determined to exist that, he, the superintendent, would certify the charges to the Commissioner for determination.

The authority to certify tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education for determination rests with the employing board of education. In this case, respondent had asked for additional time to file an Answer to the tenure charges. Respondent did not file an Answer. On December 7, 2009, the Board having considered the charges against respondent in light of the statement of evidence in support thereof, determined to certify the charges to the Commissioner for determination. At the same meeting, the Board determined to suspend respondent from her teaching duties pending disposition of the charges.

PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

The parties did reach an amicable settlement, the terms of which are incorporated into a written agreement attached hereto and incorporated herein. Counsel to the parties have detailed each and every provision of the settlement and have addressed all standards required in such matters.

The agreement, approved by the Board on April 13, 2010, and by respondent on March 29, 2010,.calls for the resignation of respondent from the Board's employ, effective June 30, 2010 at which time she will seek retirement from the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. In the meantime, the Board, pending disposition of the matter by the Commissioner of Education, agrees to resume respondent's salary on April 6, 2010, as is required under N.J.S.A.18A:6-14. Should the Commissioner approve this settlement of the charges, the Board would then consider respondent to have been on a paid medical leave as of February 1, 2010, through June 30, 2010, the date of her intended resignation and retirement. The settlement agreement calls for no admission of liability by either side, general releases from future liability for conduct arising from this case, and other standard provisions of settlement agreements.

The acceptance of settling agreements in public school tenure cases are governed by the cited New Jersey Administrative Rule above.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a) provides as follows:

> Once tenure charges are certified to the Commissioner, such charges may be withdrawn or settled only with the Commissioner's approval. Any proposed withdrawal or settlement, whether submitted to the Commissioner or to the ALJ, shall address the following standards established by the State Board of Education in the matter entitled In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846):

1. Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges;
2. Explication of the circumstances justifying settlement or withdrawal;
3. Consent of both the charges and charging parties;\indication that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights;
4. Indication that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights;
5. A showing that the agreement is in the public interest; and
6. Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

Applying those standards to the present case, the Statement of Charges against respondent reveals the following. None of the 16 specifications to the charge of Unbecoming Conduct, or Charge One, relate to an incident that may be considered moral turpitude, or dishonesty, or improper physical or emotional misconduct towards students or to anyone else. The specifications do allege an antagonistic attitude towards staff and students, and various failures to follow administrative rules and regulations regarding her role as a teacher including reporting for scheduled instruction periods, using student computers without authorization, failing to meet with the building principal, bringing her dogs to school without prior approval, and so on.

Charge Two, the charge of Insubordination, carries two specifications, one of which includes the specifications set above regarding unbecoming conduct, while the second specification addresses in the main respondent's alleged failures to follow administrative directives related to her role as a teacher. Charge Three, Incapacity, incorporates the specifications to the first two charges, and an additional specification that respondent engaged in the abandonment of student supervision, engaged in unacceptable use of Friday and Monday absences, failed to report for scheduled instruction periods, and failed to submit medical examinations, and an alleged failure to submit "an HIPAA-Compliant Authorization form". Charge Four, Other Just Cause, merely incorporates the specifications to Charges One, Two, and Three.

An essential component of respondent's defense to the charges is to be based on her medical condition. Respondent asserts she is subject to mental illness making her prone to episodes of paranoia. Respondent claims this illness is treatable and has been aggravated by the conduct of the school environment as created by school administrators and others. Respondent claims she has been harassed by school personnel and by the Board for, at best, minor rule infractions. Respondent had a psychiatric examination, but the Board did not receive the evaluation until after it had filed the tenure charges.

A term of the proposed settlement of the matter includes respondent's irrevocable resignation from the Board's employ, effective June 30, 2010, subject to the approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The nature of the charges as discussed above do not constitute complained of behavior that demands a public hearing into the truth or falsity of the allegations, in light of respondent's resignation. Rather, if required to proceed to hearing, more than three days would be required for both sides to present their case. During such a lengthy hearing would take witnesses away from their school duties, and would incur legal costs thereby taking scarce resources away from school programs for diversion to an expense not called for in the total circumstances of this case.

These circumstances, I FIND in addition to the details of salary payment to which respondent is to be entitled by law and as more fully explained in the attached settlement, do justify allowing this case to be settled under the terms specified by the parties in the attached document.

The parties accepted the terms of the settlement, and have knowingly and voluntarily accepted those terms as a full and final disposition of the matter. Respondent acknowledges the duty of the Commissioner to refer tenure matters to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of her certificates to teach and is aware and accepts that that referral is a contingency in this matter.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

I FIND and CONCLUDE that while the Board certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education for determination seeking respondent's removal from its employ, that respondent has been in its employ for more than 20 years, and that no one of the charges allege moral turpitude, dishonesty, or relate to physical or emotional misconduct with a student or any other person, that a full hearing into the matter would consume costs better spent in the furtherance of a school program, that the result sought by the Board of ending the employment relationship between it and respondent would be achieved by this settlement, that the public interest is better served in accepting the settlement than requiring a financial burden on the Board, the agreement reached by the parties and as attached hereto, is an acceptable resolution in this matter.

Therefore, the attached settlement agreement is accepted as a full and final disposition of the matter. The parties are directed to comply with the terms of the settlement as stated in their agreement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE MATTER OF WENDE GREENBERG, RIDGEWOOD PUBLIC SCHOOLS, BERGEN COUNTY	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DKT. NO.: EDU 13079-2009N AGENCY DKT. NO.: 285-10/09 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND MUTUAL RELEASES

WHEREAS, the Board of Education of the Ridgewood School District, ("the Board"), having administrative offices located at 49 Cottage Place, Ridgewood, New Jersey is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, and is empowered, under N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 & 2, to do all things and take all actions to ensure the proper operation and management of the School District, consistent with law and the regulations of the State Board of Education; and

WHEREAS, Wende Greenberg ("Dr. Greenberg" or "Respondent") for the past 20 years has been employed by the Board as a tenured English teacher; and

WHEREAS, on September 18, 2009, Dr. Daniel Fishbein, Superintendent of Schools, filed sworn tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, incapacity, exhibiting a series or pattern of unbecoming incidents and other just cause against Dr. Greenberg, together with a sworn statement of evidence in support of the charges, with Angelo J. DeSimone, Board Secretary; and

WHEREAS, the Board determined to certify the said Charges to the state Commissioner of Education (the "Commissioner") on December 7, 2009, as well as to suspend Dr. Greenberg at that time for 120 days without pay, and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner transmitted the within matter to the Office of Administrative Law, as a contested case; and

WHEREAS, a hearing was set in this case for March 22, 23 and 24, 2010 before the Hon. Daniel McKeown, A.L.J. (t/a); and

WHEREAS, Dr. Greenberg has submitted a letter to the Superintendent of Schools, dated March 15, 2010, (attached as Exhibit A) advising that she would be resigning from her employment with the Board effective June 30, 2010, contingent upon the approval by the Commissioner of this Settlement Agreement and Mutual Releases (the "Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, following extensive discovery, the parties now have determined that it is in their mutual best interest, as well as in the public interest, to compromise their claims through this Agreement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties, wishing to resolve the within matter without the need for further litigation, while achieving the goals of both parties and protecting the public interest, hereby stipulate to settle same. Subject to the terms and conditions set forth herein, and to approval by the Court and the Commissioner, they agree as follows:

1. Tenure Charges to be Moot

The Board agrees that, upon execution of this Agreement by the parties, Dr. Greenberg's fulfillment of the obligations set forth herein, and final approval by the Commissioner, the subject tenure charges shall be moot and shall be abandoned.

2. Resignation

Dr. Greenberg, by submitting her letter of March 15, 2010 attached hereto as Exhibit A, has tendered her irrevocable resignation for the purpose of retirement from all employment with the Board, effective as of the close of business on June 30, 2010, subject only to the Commissioner's approval of the Agreement. This resignation from all employment by the Board shall remain irrevocable and in effect notwithstanding any denial, or approval and subsequent denial, or any disability pension for which Dr. Greenberg may apply.

3. Payment

Dr. Greenberg's current suspension without pay expires on or about April 6, 2010. As of on or about that date, she shall be paid with benefits, including medical benefits, until either the Commissioner approves the Agreement or a final determination is made on the tenure charges. Effective as of approval by the Commissioner, and in view of Dr. Greenberg's medical condition, she shall be and hereby is placed on paid medical leave, with medical and dental insurance benefits, as of February 1, 2010 through the date of her intended retirement, June 30, 2010. Upon her retirement, Dr. Greenberg shall receive payment for any unused sick days to the extent that she is qualified pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement between the Board and the Ridgewood Education Association. The Board not less than 14 days before that date shall provide Dr. Greenberg with an accounting of her sick days, which will include days she received on September 1, 2009.

4. No Admissions

Nothing contained in this Agreement shall be deemed to constitute an admission of wrongdoing or liability by either party.

5. Mutual General Releases

Except as otherwise prohibited by law, and contingent upon the approval of the Agreement by the Commissioner, the Parties hereby release, waive and forever discharge any and all past, present or future claims that related to any action that predates this Agreement that they may have against each other as follows, subject only to approval of the Agreement by the Commissioner, as set forth more fully in the releases attached respectively as Exhibit B (by Dr. Greenberg) and Exhibit C (by the Board).

6. Stipulation as to Justification of Settlement

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, the parties hereby stipulate that the within Agreement comports with the standards established by the State Board of Education in In re Cardonick, 1990 SLD 842, 846.

A. Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges.

The Sworn Tenure Charges are annexed hereto as Exhibit D.

B. Explication of the circumstances justifying settlement or withdrawal.

(i) The first day of hearing for this matter was scheduled for March 22, 2010. Additional hearing dates were scheduled for March 23 and 24, 2010. The parties, having reached an understanding on key settlement terms, so advised the Court on Wednesday, March 17, 2010. Assuming that the hearing was to have taken place as scheduled originally, the parties anticipated several dozen witnesses and many additional days of testimony. Assuming that all of the requisite statutory timelines were followed for the submission of post-hearing briefs, the ALJ's Initial Decision and the Commissioner's Decision, it is likely that the matter would not have been resolved until late September or early October. Under the terms of the proposed Agreement, Dr. Greenberg's resignation would become effective by the end of June, several months earlier. In addition, as her 120-day suspension is due to expire on or about April 6, 2010, the five additional months of pay she might receive under this Agreement would likely be largely offset because she would have been paid anyway during the period from April 6, 2010 through June 30, 2010. In addition, the conduct of the hearing and related proceedings, plus a possible appeal to the Appellate Division from the Commissioner's decision, would increase those costs to the Board substantially. Such costs would be avoided under the Agreement. The Board, therefore, and would achieve a guaranteed result at a relatively small cost.

(ii) The within matter involves extensive medical expert testimony which will cost both parties significant sums of money and is expected to result in a complicated hearing and extensive post-hearing briefing.

(iii) Just prior to the filing of tenure charges, the Board requested that Dr. Greenberg undergo a psychiatric evaluation, because the Board had concerns about whether her performance as a teacher was affected by some sort of mental condition. Due to Dr. Greenberg's initial objections to the psychiatrist initially chosen, Dr. Vicki Fiore of Englewood, N.J. and to ongoing discussions about Dr. Greenberg's possible retirement, the Board did not receive a medical report until after it filed tenure charges. During the pendency of the tenure charges, the Board received the examination report of Dr. Greenberg's chosen psychiatrist, Dr. Francis Mondimore of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md. At the Board's request, Dr. Fiore has also examined Dr. Greenberg. The Board has concluded, based upon these examinations, that many or most of the incidents described in the tenure charges were likely brought about or made worse by a mental condition that would likely benefit from treatment. Furthermore, throughout most of her 20 years of teaching at Ridgewood, evaluations of Dr. Greenberg's classroom performance have ranged from "satisfactory" to "outstanding," with her recent troubles largely related to her mental condition.

C. Consent of both the charged and the charging parties.

The parties have mutually consented to the resolution contained herein. The Board Resolution approving the Agreement is annexed hereto as Exhibit E.

D. Indication that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of her rights.

Dr. Greenberg has been represented by independent legal counsel throughout. The terms and conditions of the within Agreement have been fully explained to her and she hereby indicates her understanding and acceptance of same by signing this Agreement and represents further that she does so of her own free will and accord, and without duress, and that she is fully satisfied with the legal representation she has received.

E. The agreement is in the public interest.

As discussed above, the Agreement would be highly cost effective to the Board and, therefore, to the taxpayers. This is especially significant in light of the state's recently proposed substantial cuts in funding to school districts. Second, the terms of this Agreement fully achieve the Board's original objective of removing Dr. Greenberg from her tenured teaching position. Were the Board to proceed with the litigation, it is uncertain whether this goal could be fully achieved. Third, should the Agreement be approved by the Commissioner, Dr. Greenberg intends to apply for a disability pension. Therefore, should Dr. Greenberg ever wish to return to teaching in New Jersey, it would be after her mental ailment was properly treated and properly accommodated, so that her mental condition would likely not interfere with her teaching performance. Throughout most of her 20 years of teaching at Ridgewood, evaluations of Dr. Greenberg's classroom performance have ranged from "satisfactory" to "outstanding," with her recent troubles largely related to her mental condition.

F. Commissioner's duty to refer matter to State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

Dr. Greenberg hereby acknowledges that she has been apprised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure matters to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of her certificate(s), notwithstanding the settlement of the subject tenure proceeding, and that she knowingly accepts that contingency in entering into this Agreement.

7. Application For Pension And/Or Disability Benefits

To the extent permitted by law, the Board agrees to cooperate with any application for pension benefits and/or disability income submitted by Dr. Greenberg, including without limitation applications to the New Jersey Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund and the federal Social Security Administration. The Board will not cooperate with any accidental disability pension application by Dr. Greenberg and she hereby waives any claim against the Board for damages or any other relief based on work-related illness, injury or disability.

8. Entire Agreement

This Agreement contains the entire agreement and understanding between the Parties and constitutes a full and final agreement in any and all issues relating to this matter, except to the extent that the Agreement must be approved by the state Commissioner of Education and to the extent that the Parties reserve their right to enforce this Agreement, if necessary.

9. Choice Of Law

This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey and disputes involving the enforcement of this agreement may be brought only in the state or federal courts of New Jersey.

10. Severability

If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

11. Binding Effect

The Parties shall be bound by the terms and conditions of this Agreement, finding it to be in the best interests of the public, consistent with public policy, fair and equitable under all circumstances surrounding this matter.

12. Voluntary Agreement

The Parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a full understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement.

13. Modifications

This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except in writing, signed and duly authorized by both Parties.

14. No Drafting Presumption

The parties hereby agree that this Agreement was drafted with substantial input from counsel for each party. Therefore, in any construction or interpretation of the Agreement, neither party is entitled to a presumption regarding the other party's drafting of the Agreement.

15. Admission of Liability

It is understood that neither the execution of this Agreement nor any other action taken by either party in connection with this Agreement constitutes an admission by that party or any other person or entity identified in the General Releases and Waiver as a releasee, of any violation of any law, duty or obligation, or that any decision or action with respect to Dr. Greenberg's employment was unwarranted, unjustified, retaliatory, discriminatory, arbitrary or otherwise unlawful. The Parties have entered into this Agreement solely to compromise disputed claims.

16. Opportunity to Consult With Counsel

Dr. Greenberg acknowledges that she has the opportunity to consult with her legal counsel and representatives of her choice regarding this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver that accompanies it prior to executing it; and that she represents that she has read this Agreement and the General Release and Waiver and fully understands them and agrees to be bound by them. Dr. Greenberg has also acknowledges that she has been given a reasonable period of time within which to consider the terms of this Agreement and General Release and Waiver prior to executing them.

17. Breach

If either party breaches this agreement, the breaching party shall bear the costs of the non-breaching party of any litigation or efforts to have such breach corrected or compensated for, including reasonable attorneys' fees.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the signatures and/or seals of the parties or their duly authorized representatives have been set forth on the dates indicated below:

GENERAL RELEASE AND WAIVER BY DR. GREENBERG

In consideration for the promises and undertakings described in the Separation of Service Agreement dated March 29, 2010, and except as otherwise provided by law, I hereby release, waive and discharge the Ridgewood Board of Education, and its present and former board members, officers, employees and representatives, and their estates and/or heirs thereof from any and all claims which I, my estate and/or heirs may have against any of them. This releases and waives all claims, known and unknown, resulting from anything which has happened up to now, including my personal claims (but not the claims of the Law Offices of Alan L. Zegas) for attorneys' fees in the action presently pending before the Office of Administrative Law bearing Docket No. EDU-07538-2009N.

Without limiting the scope of the foregoing provision in any way, I specifically release all claims which were or could have been asserted by me. I also release and waive all claims relating to or arising out of any aspect of my employment to date with the Ridgewood Board of Education, including but not limited to, all claims under Title VII of The Civil Rights Act, The Civil Rights Act of 1991 and the laws amended thereby; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990, the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Act, and any related federal, state or local law claims, and any claims of discrimination based on race, age, sex, religion, color, creed, handicap or disability, citizenship, national origin and any other factor prohibited by any federal, state or local law, rule, regulation or guideline; any claim for wrongful discharge; any contract of employment, express or implied; any provision of the Constitution of the United States or the State of New Jersey; and any other law, common or statutory, of the United States, the State of New Jersey or any other state; any claims for the negligent and/or intentional infliction of emotional distress or specific intent to harm; any claims for attorneys' fees, costs and/or expenses; any claims for unpaid or withheld wages, severance pay, benefits, bonuses, deferred compensation, stock option awards, restricted stock awards, commissions and/or other compensation of any kind; and/or any other federal, state or local human rights, civil rights, wage and hour, wage payment, pension or labor laws, rules and/or regulations, and all claims growing out of any legal restrictions on the Ridgewood Board of Education's right to hire and/or terminate its employees, including all claims that were asserted and/or that could have been asserted by me in this cause of action.

I acknowledge that the parties also promise not to sue and waive all claims against each other based upon any claims covered by the Separation of Service Agreement and this General Release and Waiver. If one party breaches this promise by suing the other for any such claims, the breaching party will pay all costs and expenses the other party incurs defending against the suit, including reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Parties reserve their right to enforce the terms of the Separation of Service Agreement and General Release and Waiver.

I acknowledge that I was advised to consult with attorneys regarding this General Release and Waiver; and that I have read this General Release and Waiver and fully understand it and agree to be bound by it. I also acknowledge that I have been given a reasonable period of time within which to consider this Agreement and the terms of this General Release and Waiver prior to executing it.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I HAVE CAREFULLY READ AND FULLY UNDERSTAND THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF THIS RELEASE AND WAIVER. I ACKNOWLEDGE THAT I HAD THE OPPORTUNITY TO REVIEW THIS RELEASE AND WAIVER WITH ANYONE OF MY CHOOSING, AND TO DISCUSS WITH SUCH PERSONS THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF THIS RELEASE AND WAIVER AND MY RIGHTS UPON EXECUTION. I AGREE AND ACKNOWLEDGE THAT NO REPRESENTATIONS CONCERNING THE TERMS OR EFFECT OF THIS RELEASE WERE MADE BY THE RIDGEWOOD BOARD OF EDUCATION OR ITS ATTORNEYS OTHER THAN AS SET FORTH IN THE DOCUMENT AND THAT I HAVE VOLUNTARILY SIGNED THIS RELEASE AND WAIVER AS MY OWN FREE ACT WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE OF ITS TERMS AND CONDITIONS, WHICH ARE FINAL AND BINDING UPON ME.

Dear Dr. Greenberg:

You are herewith advised that Tenure Charges of the following: Unbecoming Conduct; Insubordination; Incapacity; Exhibiting a "Series" or Pattern of Unbecoming Incidents; and other Just Cause (the "Charges") have this day been filed against you. Enclosed please find one (1) copy of each of the following: 1) Statement of Charges; 2) Statement of Evidence in Support of Charges; and 3) Appendix of Exhibits Supporting the Statement of Evidence.

You are further advised that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, you are granted the opportunity to submit a written statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath with reference to the filed charges. You shall have fifteen (15) days from the date of receipt of this letter to submit your written position and documentation in support thereof.

Further, please be advised that at the expiration of that time, pursuant to statute, the Ridgewood Board of Education shall consider the charges and the statement of evidence that you have submitted, and make a determination within 45 days as to whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether, if such charges are credited, they are sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. In the event of a determination of probable cause, I will certify the matter to the Commissioner of Education for hearing, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.

You will be notified in writing the determination of the Board of Education.

Very truly yours,

Dr. Daniel Fishbein

STATEMENT OF CHARGES

I, Dr. Daniel Fishbein, Superintendent of the Ridgewood Public Schools (the "District"), do herewith charge Dr. Wende Greenberg, a tenured teacher employed by the Ridgewood Board of Education at Ridgewood High School, with UNBECOMING CONDUCT; INSUBORDINATION; INCAPACITY; EXHIBITING A SERIES OR PATTERN OF UNBECOMING INCIDENTS; and other JUST CAUSE pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et. seq., sufficient to require termination of her employment with the Ridgewood Board of Education.

CHARGE ONE

Dr. Greenberg engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher at Ridgewood High School. (Exhibits 1 through 47) She has, among other things:

1. threatened and/or exhibited antagonistic behavior towards staff and students, including incidents occurring in November 2002 (Ex. 1), April 2005 (Exs. 5-7), September 2006 (Exs. 8-9), October 2008 (Ex. 21), December 2008 (Exs. 26-29), January 2009 (Exs. 30-32), and June 2009 (Exs. 38-41);

2. failed to report for scheduled instruction periods in 2004-2005 School Year (Exs. 2-4);

3. inappropriately used student computers in October 2008 (Exs. 22-23);

4. failed to respond to the Building Principal's directive to schedule a meeting with the Building Principal in October 2008 (Ex. 23);

5. failed to follow proper procedures for requesting approval of field trips and professional leave in the Fall of 2008 (Ex. 24);

6. exhibited unacceptable "Friday and/or Monday" absence patterns and failed to use AESOP substitute assignment system during the 2008-2009 School Year (Exs. 25; 35-36);

7. failed to properly use the AESOP substitute system in 2004-2005 and 2005-2006 School Years as well (Ex. 2, Exs. 10-12);

8. inappropriately brought her dogs to work (Ex. 13);

9. improperly confiscated a student's cellular telephone (Exs. 13-19);

10. refused to send a student from her class to the Grade Advisor's office when requested to do so via Public Announcement system in January 2009 (Ex. 31);

11. abandoned her student supervision responsibilities in July 2007 (Ex. 12) and in January 2009 (Exs. 30-32);

12. failed to keep her district e-mail account storage clear enough to receive important work-related messages during the 2008-2009 School Year (Ex. 33);

13. failed to submit to a psychiatric and physical medical examination(s) by District-designated doctors, at District expense, as authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 in the Summer of 2009 (Exs. 42-46);

14. failed to supply the District with a HIPAA-compliant "Authorization for Health Information Disclosure form for the District to assess her fitness for work for the 2009-2010 School Year (Exs. 42-26);

15. failed to communicate with District Administration to develop an appropriate 2009-2010 School Year Action Plan that facilitates her effective return to work (Exs. 42-26); and

16. has engaged in other conduct that provides just cause sufficient to require that her employment with the Ridgewood Board of Education be terminated (Exs. 1-47).

WHEREFORE, Dr. Greenberg's misconduct as set forth above constitutes unbecoming conduct and other sufficient cause sufficient to warrant dismissal.

CHARGE TWO

Dr. Greenberg acted in insubordination as a teacher at Ridgewood High School. (Exhibits 1 through 47) She has, among other things:

1. The allegations in Charge One are incorporated by reference as if set forth at length herein.

2. Dr. Greenberg's failure to follow directives, including failing to report for scheduled instruction periods; failure to respond to Building Principal meeting requests; failure to follow field trip and professional leave approval procedures; failure to use the AESOP substitute system; refusal to send a student in her class to the Grade Advisor's office; failure to keep her e-mail account storage clear; failure to submit to a medical examination; failure to submit a HIPAA-Compliant Authorization form; and failure to communicate with the Administration regarding development of an Action Plan, are all examples of insubordination constituting just cause for her dismissal.

WHEREFORE, Dr. Greenberg's insubordination as set forth above constitutes unbecoming conduct and other sufficient cause sufficient to warrant dismissal.

CHARGE THREE

Dr. Greenberg has demonstrated incapacity as a teacher at Ridgewood High School. (Exhibits 1 through 47) She has, among other things:

1. The allegations in Charges One and Two are incorporated by reference as if set forth at length herein.

2. Dr. Greenberg's abandonment of student supervision; unacceptable use of Friday/Monday absences; failure to report for scheduled instruction periods; and failure to submit to a medical examination or submit an HIPAA-Compliant Authorization form are all examples of incapacity constituting just cause for her dismissal.

WHEREFORE, Dr. Greenberg's incapacity as set forth above constitutes unbecoming conduct and other sufficient cause sufficient to warrant dismissal.

CHARGE FOUR

Dr. Greenberg has exhibited a pattern of unbecoming incidents as a teacher at Ridgewood High School. (Exhibits 1 through 47) She has, among other things:

1. The allegations in Charges One, Two and Three are incorporated by reference as if set forth at length herein.

WHEREFORE, Dr. Greenberg's pattern of unbecoming incidents as set forth above constitutes unbecoming conduct and other sufficient cause sufficient to warrant dismissal.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
E.S. AND W.S., on behalf of minor children, A.S. and E.S. and BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner Englewood Cliffs Board of Education appealed the determination of the Bergen County Executive County Superintendent (ECS) that Englewood Cliffs is responsible for providing E.S. and A.S. with a free education and transportation. The ECS concluded that E.S. and A.S. and their parents are homeless and that their last domicile was in Englewood Cliffs rather than Teaneck. Petitioner contended that the family has not been homeless since November 2008 when the family moved to the house Teaneck that they still occupy, and that respondent Teaneck Board of Education is responsible for the children's public education. Respondents claim that the family is homeless, that the Teaneck residence is only temporary; and that they have been forced to remain there because of credit problems.

The ALJ found that: the S. family has lived at the same address on Fairview Avenue in Teaneck for more than seventeen months; the house in which the family resides is small and in need of repairs, but is habitable, and the family had previously lived in the same house from February 2001 until early 2002, before moving to Stuyvesant Avenue in Teaneck from early 2002 through 2006; the family had lived in Englewood Cliffs for less than two years before they were evicted from the house they rented there; and the family does not suffer from the typical financial hardships that are often related to homelessness, as both parents have been steadily employed for many years with a combined annual gross income of approximately $104,000. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that E.S. and A.S. are not homeless; the Fairview Avenue house has been the family's domicile since November 2008; and the Teaneck Board of Education is the school district responsible for the education and transportation of A.S. and E.S from that date to the present. The ALJ ordered that: E.S. may be disenrolled upon issuance of this final decision; the Teaneck Board of Education must reimburse the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education for the costs of E.S.'s education and transportation since November 2008; and respondents W.S. and E.S. must reimburse the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education for the costs of transporting A.S. to her private high school.

Upon full and careful consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determinations, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

E.S. AND W.S., on behalf of minor children, A.S. and E.S. and BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon his full review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, N.J. house has been the domicile of E.S. and W.S. since November 1, 2008 and, therefore, the Teaneck Board of Education – not the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education – is the school district responsible for the education and transportation of minor children A.S. and E.S., Jr. from that date to the present.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons well-stated therein. The Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck is hereby ordered to reimburse the Board of Education of Englewood Cliffs for the cost of E.S., Jr.'s education and transportation from November 2008 to date. Respondents W.S. and E.S. are hereby ordered to reimburse the Board of Education of Englewood Cliffs for the costs of transporting A.S. to her private high school during this period.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

W.S., respondent, pro se

Record Closed: April 16, 2010 Decided: May 20, 2010

BEFORE: CARIDAD F. RIGO, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education, appeals from the determination of the Bergen County executive county superintendent (hereinafter referred to as "ECS") that Englewood Cliffs is responsible for providing minors E.S., Jr., and A.S. with a free education and transportation. The ECS determined that the respondent minors and their parents were homeless and that their last domicile was in Englewood Cliffs, and not in the township of Teaneck.

The ECS made his determination on May 5, 2009. On or about August 5, 2009, petitioner filed its petition appealing the ECS's determination. The matter was then transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case. It was received at the OAL on October 7, 2009.

Petitioner filed a Notice of Motion for Summary Decision on or about December 15, 2009, and respondents filed opposition papers. The motion for summary decision was denied and the matter was set down for a plenary hearing. Hearings were conducted on January 12, and 25, and March 5, 2010. Closing briefs were submitted after receipt of the transcripts, and the record closed on April 16, 2010.

ISSUES

Is the S. family homeless? Is the Teaneck residence the family's domicile? Which school district is responsible for the cost of educating and transporting the two S. children?

BACKGROUND

E.S. and W.S. are the parents of A.S. and E.S., Jr. The S. family resided in Englewood Cliffs from December 2006 until October 17, 2008. In October 2008 the property they were living in, in Englewood Cliffs, was foreclosed on and they were evicted. The family lived in a motel from October 17, 2008, until November 19, 2008, after which they moved to a house on Fairview Avenue in Teaneck, New Jersey. The family is still residing at that house in Teaneck.

E.S., Jr., has been enrolled in the Englewood Cliffs school district from January 2007 up to the present. A.S. was enrolled in the Englewood Cliffs school district from January 2007 until June 2008. In September 2008 A.S. entered a private high school. The Englewood Cliffs school district has provided transportation for A.S. to the private high school since September 2008.

Petitioner contends that the S. family is not homeless and has not been homeless since November 2008, when the family moved to Teaneck. Therefore, Englewood Cliffs is not responsible for the education and transportation of the two children. Englewood Cliffs also contends that respondent Teaneck Board of Education is responsible for the S. children's public education.

The Teaneck Board of Education contends that the family is homeless, and that the Teaneck residence is not and has not been their permanent home. Teaneck contends that it is Englewood Cliffs' responsibility to educate and transport the S. children since the family's last permanent residence, before the family became homeless, was in Englewood Cliffs.

The S. family contends that the family is homeless and that the Teaneck residence is only temporary.

SUMMARY OF THE TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

Dominic Mucci

Dominic Mucci is the superintendent of schools for Englewood Cliffs. Mucci said that the S. family currently has one child in the Englewood Cliffs district. A.S., the older child, attends Paramus Catholic High School. Englewood Cliffs does not have a high school, and typically Englewood Cliffs students go out of district after eighth grade. Englewood Cliffs currently provides transportation for A.S. to Paramus Catholic. He said that Englewood Cliffs is obligated to provide transportation for Englewood Cliffs students to attend high school outside of the district. E.S., Jr., is currently in the eighth grade and he is currently being transported from Teaneck to the Englewood Cliffs school he is attending.

One of Mucci's duties is to review and make residency determinations. Mucci stated that in September 2008, just after he became superintendent, he undertook a re-registration process of all of the students in the district. The district had on file a copy of the S. family's lease for when the family was residing in Englewood Cliffs. The lease went from January 1, 2007, until January 1, 2008. He needed to substantiate the family's residence from January 2008 until January 2009. Mucci stated that it was when he began inquiring about the current lease that he discovered that the S. family was no longer living in Englewood Cliffs, but in Teaneck.

Mucci stated that he sent letters to Mr. and Mrs. S. at the Englewood Cliffs address, but never received a response from them. The letters he sent were returned and marked as "undeliverable." Mucci said that on or about January 30, 2009, Dawn Smith informed him that Mrs. S. called her to say that the family was homeless. Mucci said he then called Mrs. S. at her place of employment, and verified her continued employment. Mucci said Mrs. S. told him that the family was living in Teaneck, and confirmed that they were homeless. Mucci said Mrs. S. told him that the housing situation in Teaneck was temporary. Mrs. S. said that she preferred that E.S., Jr., remain in school in Englewood Cliffs. She wanted him to finish his elementary education there.

Mr. Mucci testified that he continued to investigate W.S.'s claim of homelessness, and discovered that on February 12, 2009, W.S. submitted a transportation application to Englewood Cliffs on behalf of A.S., and listing the Englewood Cliffs address as their home address. Mucci said he asked W.S. to provide him with motel receipts for the claimed period of homelessness, but he never received any. Nor did he ever receive any updated documentation that the family was still living in Englewood Cliffs.

Mucci stated that after further inquiry he determined that the S. family was not homeless and that the arrangements in Teaneck were not temporary. He stated that he confirmed that the S. family was residing in a regular house in Teaneck; they were paying rent and utilities; both parents were gainfully employed; A.S. was attending a private high school; and the S. family had been residing in the Teaneck house since November 2008.

Mr. Mucci testified that Englewood Cliffs has provided transportation for E.S., Jr. since May 2009 at the cost of $23,000. He said that E.S., Jr., is the only student on his bus. Englewood Cliffs has provided round-trip transportation for A.S. to her private parochial school in Paramus since November 2008. He could not state the cost because transportation for A.S. is through a cooperative consortium. However, he testified that Englewood Cliffs was not aware that A.S. had been and is currently being transported by her father. Neither the school nor the parents notified Englewood Cliffs.

Sheila Spector

Sheila Spector is employed by the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education as a school nurse and health teacher.

Ms. Spector recalled that in January 2007 she requested health records from the Teaneck school system for the S. children. (P-13; P-14.) She noted that the records from Teaneck show a Teaneck address.

She stated that she had known E.S., Jr., since January 2007. She testified that E.S., Jr., told her that he had been in another school, but that he did not like it so he returned to the Englewood Cliffs school.

Dawn Smith

Dawn Smith is employed by the Englewood Cliffs district as the school social worker, homeless liaison, and student assistance counselor.

Ms. Smith testified that Mrs. S. called her on January 30, 2009, to say that she and her family were homeless. Mrs. S. told her that they were no longer living in Englewood Cliffs and that they had been homeless for a few months. Smith said this was the first time Mrs. S. communicated their homelessness to the district. Smith said she gave Mrs. S. some referrals to assist her in finding adequate housing.

Ms. Smith stated that she initially became involved with the S. family in 2007, when A.S. was classified.

W.S.

W.S., who represented herself and her husband, testified. W.S.'s direct testimony was in narrative form. She was then cross-examined by counsel.

W.S. testified that the house the family rented in Englewood Cliffs was foreclosed on in October 2008. As a result of the foreclosure the family was dispossessed of housing. She said they lived in two hotels/motels for about one month. Because they were unable to rent another place, V.N. offered them his house in Teaneck. She stated that they had previously lived in V.N.'s house.

They lived in the Englewood Cliffs house from December 2006 until on or about October 17, 2008. From on or about October 17, 2008, until on or about November 19, 2008, they lived in a motel/hotel. The family moved to Teaneck, into V.N.'s house, sometime in November 2008.

W.S. provided the following addresses as places the family had lived:

Fairview Street, Teaneck, November 2008–present

Hotels/motels, October 17, 2008–November 2008

Anderson Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, January 2007–October 2008

Stuyvesant Avenue, Teaneck, early 2002–December 2006

Fairview Street, Teaneck, February 2001–early 2002

W.S. testified that she and her husband have two children, E.S., Jr., and A.S. Her daughter A.S. attends a private parochial high school. W.S. said that she paid two years of that school tuition in advance. The next tuition is due for the school year beginning September 2010. W.S. explained that A.S. is classified for special education services. A.S. initially had problems at the Englewood Cliffs school, but since attending the parochial high school she has overcome certain problems. W.S. also said that she kept her son E.S. in the Englewood Cliffs school after they moved to Teaneck because of the housing uncertainty they were experiencing. She wanted her children to have some stability, and not be moved from school to school.

W.S. further testified that they never intended to stay at V.N.'s house, and they do not consider that house their permanent residence. They are still living there because they are unable to get other housing because of their poor credit. They are not related to V.N. The house has two bedrooms and one bathroom. V.N. stores his equipment at the house, and reserves one of the bedrooms for himself.

Mrs. S. provided photos of the house they are currently living in on Fairview Avenue in Teaneck. (R-1(a), 1–29.) She said she took the photos to show their living conditions. W.S. stated that they are living there temporarily.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Fogarty, W.S. testified as to the following:

The family lived at two different addresses in Teaneck between 2001 and December 2006. In December 2006 they moved to Englewood Cliffs, and they lived there until they were evicted in October 2008. They returned to Teaneck in November 2008 and are still there.

The Teaneck school records show that the children attended kindergarten in Teaneck when they were living on Fairview Avenue in Teaneck.

The family is currently living on Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, in a house that has two bedrooms, one bathroom, a living room and a kitchen. They are month-to-month tenants, paying $800 per month, plus utilities.

W.S. is employed as an assistant/secretary/clerk for a law firm in New York City. She has worked for the same firm for the last twelve years. Her yearly gross salary is $64,000. Her husband, E.S., has worked for the County of Passaic for twenty-six years and earns a yearly gross salary of $40,478. They have a combined gross income of approximately $104,000. They do not receive any kind of public assistance.

W.S. testified that the rent at the Englewood Cliffs house was $2,300 per month. She stated that she first learned about the house being in foreclosure sometime in August 2008. W.S. admitted that they did not pay rent for the Englewood Cliffs house from January 2008. She testified that the reason they did not pay rent was because she was told the landlord had died.

She further testified that she sent her daughter A.S. to a parochial high school because Englewood Cliffs does not have a high school. She knew that Englewood Cliffs had a sending/receiving relationship with the town of Englewood, and that her daughter would have been able to attend Englewood High School. She wanted to send her daughter to a private high school. The tuition at the private high school is $7,000 per year, and W.S. stated that she paid two years of that tuition in advance.

W.S. further stated that she and her husband have bad credit because a car was repossessed. They now rent a car at $945 per month. They have their personal furnishings in storage, paying $215 a month. The utility bill averages $262 a month.

According to W.S., A.S. is transported to and from school by her husband, E.S. She acknowledged that in the application for private-school transportation for the 2009–2010 school year she listed the Anderson Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, address. (See P-11.) She also acknowledged that she never notified the Englewood Cliffs school district that A.S. was not going to use the school bus that Englewood Cliffs provided to transport her to and from the private high school.

W.S. admitted that various documents show the family's various addresses. For example, her driver's license shows her Englewood Cliffs address. The storage receipt has the current Teaneck address. The application for her son's school-bus transportation shows the Englewood Cliffs address. E.S.'s 2008 W-2 form shows a previous Teaneck address, and W.S.'s 2008 W-2 form shows the Englewood Cliffs address.

W.S. stated that V.N. reserves a room in the house, which he uses as a storage room. She stated that it is the same room he used when the family was living there back in 2001.

W.S. admitted that she and her family have been living at the Teaneck house on Fairview Avenue for the past seventeen months.

Ms. Butler, the attorney for the Teaneck Board of Education, also cross-examined W.S., and W.S. testified to the following:

At the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house, W.S., her husband and the two children sleep in the same room. The room is too small to include a bed so they all sleep on the floor. There is no dresser or any kind of bedroom furniture in the room. There is only a television and a stand. She uses the living room to store clothing, exercise equipment, paintings, a computer, appliances and other household items.

W.S. said that the house's one bathroom has plumbing problems. The bathtub leaks into the kitchen. The house has two floors, and the bedrooms and bathroom are on the second floor. W.S. said the oven in the kitchen does not work, and the stove has to be lit with matches. The kitchen has numerous electrical problems; the sockets are all overloaded and circuits breakers are tripped all the time.

She again reiterated that the house in Teaneck was never intended to be their permanent home, and they consider their living arrangement temporary. She explained that the only reason they are living at the Fairview Avenue residence is because they have poor credit (due to car repossession and subsequent garnishments) and they cannot pass the necessary credit checks to rent a regular place in which to reside.

W.S. stated that her daughter is sixteen years old and her son is fourteen years old. Her daughter is depressed, and her son is not doing well in school. Her children don't have normalcy or stability.

She testified that it was sometime in January 2009 when she spoke to the Englewood Cliffs people and told them the family was homeless. W.S. said that she did not know that she had to notify the Englewood Cliffs school district that her daughter was being transported to school and back by her husband. She said she told the school, and she thought the school would tell Englewood Cliffs.

V.N.

V.N. is the landlord of the house on Fairview Avenue, Teaneck. He was a witness for the petitioner, the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education.

V.N. testified that he has owned the subject property for approximately twelve years. He lived in the house until May 2008. He now lives in an apartment in Englewood with his wife and their children. He described the Fairview house as a house with two bedrooms, one bath, a living room, a kitchen and an enclosed porch in a residential-zoned part of town. He said he is a self-employed contractor who does home repairs and building.

He testified that the S. family moved into his house in November 2008; it was the second time the S. family lived there. He is not related to the S. family. He believed that the S. family also lived in the house in 2006. He said the first time the S. family lived there he also occupied the house with them. He had one bedroom, and the S. family had the other.

V.N. stated that since the first time the S. family lived in the house he has completed numerous repairs. The house has a new front door, windows, hot water heater (two years old) and electric wiring. The boiler is four years old. He said that as far as he knows the essential systems in the house are in working order. He stated that the S. family decided not to use the oil-heat boiler, so although it works it is not used. He said the boiler shut down because there is no oil in it, not because it is broken.

V.N. testified that he has let Mr. and Mrs. S. know that if there is anything in the house that needs to be repaired or replaced they are to let him know. He testified that the S. family generally does not give him much time to do the repairs. He can only get access to the house on Sundays between 8 and 9 a.m., or at 2 p.m. He said the family wants its privacy.

He also said the S. family has use of only one bedroom in the house because he uses the smaller bedroom for storage of some of his contracting equipment and personal things. He goes there when the S. family allows him to go into the house. He said he has free access to the outside areas, like the garage.

V.N. said that as far as he is concerned, the S. family can stay in the house as long as they want. They pay $800 per month as rent and they pay their own utilities. The PSE&G account is in his name, and he gives the S. family a copy of the bill every month. They give him the money in cash and he pays the bill.

V.N. said he built a rack across the porch so the S. family could hang their clothes. He said they never told him the rack in the closet was broken. He saw it broken and fixed it. He said he found out on January 12, 2010, that the sheetrock in the enclosed porch showed that there was a leak. On that date he also found out about the leak in the drainpipe in the bathtub. He said he is willing to repair those things if given access to the house. He said the ceiling in the living room is sheetrocked but not spackled, and some walls have cracks in them. To his knowledge there are no roof leaks. He said that in order for him to make the repairs the family would need to leave for one day, mainly because of the bathroom; they would be unable to use the bathroom for a day. V.N. said that the house is insured, and that it has been inspected by the insurance inspectors.

V.N. also testified that he is willing to give the S. family a lease, and was willing to do so fourteen months ago, but the S. family told him they did not want one. He said it was then that he knew that the family intended to be there permanently.

He testified that as far as he is concerned there is no reason for the S. family to live the way they do. Things are disorganized, and it was the same when they lived together in 2006. He said that the last time they lived there he did ask them to leave.

Under cross-examination, V.N. admitted that the house is too small for four people.

Karla Starks

Karla Starks testified for respondent Teaneck Board of Education. She is a twenty-year veteran of the school system. She is an assistant to the school administrator, and she has been in that position for two years. She was a coordinator of physical services. She served for fifteen years as supervisor of accounts payable. Basically, she is responsible for overseeing the financial aspects of the school's operation. She is also the homeless liaison.

Ms. Starks testified that most of the homeless students in the district come from a local shelter for abused women, some are sent by the Board of Social Services, and some are students relocated because of the Katrina disaster.

Ms. Starks stated that the S. family's situation is not unusual, in that there have been children who are homeless for more than one year.

According to Ms. Starks, the Teaneck Board of Education records have two addresses for the S. family. One address is Stuyvesant Avenue, Teaneck, which was valid in 2001–02, and the other is Fairview Avenue, Teaneck.

Starks said that Teaneck determined that the S. family is homeless based on the May 2009 letter from Dr. Graham. She said that she has not before had a homeless case like that of the S. family. The closest situation to the S. family's situation was a student that had been living in a shelter for more than one year. She was not aware of the S. family's situation until early 2009.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence presented, I FIND the following to be the FACTS:

1. The S. family resided at the Anderson Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, residence from January 2007 until on or about October 17, 2008.

2. The S. children, E.S., Jr., and A.S., attended the Englewood Cliffs school district.

3. The S. family was homeless from on or about October 17, 2008, until on or about November 19, 2008. The family resided in a motel/hotel for approximately four weeks.

4. The S. family moved to a house owned by V.N. on Fairview Avenue in Teaneck on or about November 19, 2008, and they are still residing in that house.

5. The S. family is a month-to-month tenant at the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house, in that they do not have a written lease. They pay monthly rent of $800 and they pay their own heat and utilities.

6. Mr. and Mrs. S. are employed full time. Mr. S. is a public servant and Mrs. S. works for a law firm. The family's combined gross annual income is approximately $104,000.

7. The Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, residence, although in need of repairs and organization, is adequate and habitable.

8. The S. family has lived at the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, residence for more than seventeen months.

9. Prior to residing in Englewood Cliffs at the Anderson Avenue address, the family lived in Teaneck twice, at two different addresses. When the family lived at those two Teaneck residences, the S. children attended Teaneck schools. When the family moved to Englewood Cliffs in January 2007, the children attended Englewood Cliffs schools.

10. A.S. attends a private parochial high school. E.S., Jr., attends a school within the Englewood Cliffs school district.

11. E.S. and W.S. paid two years of A.S.'s private-school tuition in advance, which was approximately $14,000.

12. The Englewood Cliffs school district has been providing the cost of transportation for E.S., Jr., between the Upper School in Englewood Cliffs and his residence in Teaneck.

13. The Englewood Cliffs school district has been providing transportation for A.S. between the private parochial high school in Paramus and her residence in Teaneck. However, E.S. has been transporting A.S. to and from her private school, and the S. family never notified the Englewood Cliffs school district that A.S. was not going to use the transportation provided by Englewood.

14. The S. family is not homeless.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioner, the Englewood Cliffs school district, contends that the S. family is not homeless and that the family is domiciled in Teaneck. Englewood Cliffs argues that the family does not exhibit any of the indicia of homelessness. The parents are gainfully employed, they have been living in Teaneck since November 2008, they pay rent and utilities in Teaneck, and they receive pertinent mail in Teaneck.

The Teaneck Board of Education contends that the S. family is homeless because the living conditions at the Fairview Avenue residence are deplorable. Teaneck also contends that because the S. family does not consider the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house their permanent home, it is not their domicile. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c), the district of residence for children whose parents temporarily move from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent last resided prior to becoming homeless. Therefore, the Englewood Cliffs school district is the district responsible for the education of the S. children.

E.S. and W.S. contend that the family is homeless because they were dispossessed from a residence in Englewood Cliffs and lived in a motel/hotel for approximately four weeks. They also claim that the residence on Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, is temporary and not their permanent domicile. The house is inadequate, in that the four members of their family sleep in one room. The house needs repairs. Further, they share the house with V.N. They assert that because they are homeless, and Englewood Cliffs is the school district in which the family last resided prior to becoming homeless, Englewood Cliffs is responsible for the education of their children.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955) (citation omitted). The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of the parents, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. ex rel minor child E.Y. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super., 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001).

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 also sets out conditions under which a free public education shall be provided to a child even though that child may not be domiciled in a particular school district. Specifically, the statute states:

> Any person whose parent or guardian, even though not domiciled within the district, is residing temporarily therein, but any person who has had or shall have his all-year-round dwelling place within the district for one year or longer shall be deemed to be domiciled within the district for the purposes of this section.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d) (emphasis added).]

N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c) says "homeless" shall mean an individual who temporarily lacks a fixed, regular and adequate residence. A child is homeless when he or she resides in any of the following: 1) a publicly or privately operated shelter designed to provide temporary living accommodations; 2) a public or private place not designated for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation; and 3) the residence of relatives or friends with whom the homeless child is temporarily residing out of necessity because the family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3. The parent has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

In this particular case, the S. family has lived at the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, address for more than seventeen months. Although the house is in need of repairs, it provides a roof over their heads, and the roof does not leak. The house has an oil-boiler heating system that works, but the S. family chooses not to use it and gets their heating from another source. The basic parts of the stove work. They have access to electricity and hot water. There is a bathroom in the house that is adequate.

I found V.N. credible when he said that the S. family limits his access to the house, making it difficult if not impossible for him to make the necessary repairs, if and when he is advised of items that need repair.

W.S.'s testimony and documentary evidence are not credible. The determination of credibility must be made based upon the totality of the evidence, including an assessment of the witnesses by the judge who had the opportunity to see and hear the witnesses at the hearing. In re Final Agency Decision of Bd. of Exam'rs of Elec. Contractors, 356 N.J. Super. 42 (App. Div. 2002). It was not until on or about January 30, 2009, that Englewood Cliffs discovered that the S. family had not completed the re-registration process. Correspondence sent to the Englewood Cliffs address was returned as undeliverable. It was after receiving the returned mail that petitioner began investigating the family's residency. And, it was when questioned that W.S. claimed homelessness. The updated residency information provided by W.S. was misleading and otherwise incorrect. (See P-7 through P-12.)

Homelessness is very often equated to financial hardship due to a chronic illness, injury or loss of employment. This is not the case here. The parents here have been gainfully employed in their respective jobs for numerous years. The combined annual gross income of this family is approximately $104,000. The record is void of any claims of illnesses or injuries.

It is important to note that this was not the first time this family lived in the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house. This family knew the size of the house and what the living arrangements were. Therefore, the family's decision to move back to the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house was not made out of hardship or necessity, but because it was convenient and easier. Also of note is the fact that E.S. and W.S. made a conscious decision to pay, in advance, two years of A.S.'s private-school tuition, totaling $14,000.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the above findings and legal authority, I CONCLUDE that the Fairview Avenue, Teaneck, house has been E.S. and W.S.'s domicile since November 19, 2008. I therefore CONCLUDE that the Teaneck Board of Education, not the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education, is the school district responsible for the education and transportation of A.S. and E.S., Jr., from that date to the present.

ORDERS

It is hereby ORDERED that:

1. Petitioner may DISENROLL E.S., Jr., upon the issuance of the Final Decision in this matter.

2. Petitioner's demand that respondent Teaneck Board of Education reimburse the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education for the costs of E.S., Jr,'s education and transportation since November 2008 is GRANTED.

3. Petitioner's demand that respondent Teaneck Board of Education reimburse the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education for the costs of A.S.'s transportation since November 2008 is DENIED.

4. Respondents W.S. and E.S. are to reimburse the Englewood Cliffs Board of Education for the costs of transporting A.S. to her private high school.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500 marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – formerly employed by the district as a non-tenured World Languages teacher – appealed the Board's decision not to renew her employment contract. Petitioner claimed, inter alia, that the Board's nonrenewal determination was made in retaliation for a workers' compensation claim against the district, relating to an injury sustained in the course of her work. Respondent denied petitioner's allegations, asserting the right of a school district to release non-tenured employees at will, barring a violation of the law or the constitutional rights of the employee.

The ALJ found that: the evidence as a whole did not support petitioner's contention that she was discriminated against as a result of her injury; the testimony of respondent's assistant principal regarding the district's attempts to make feasible accommodations for the petitioner following her injury was credible, while the testimony of petitioner lacked credibility; the district acted properly with respect to petitioner's request for an accommodation for her injuries; and the negative evaluations of petitioner's work performance were not issued in retaliation for the workers' compensation claim. The ALJ concluded that petitioner had not met the burden of establishing that respondent's elimination of her non-tenured position was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, and affirmed the action of the district in not renewing her contract.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Deputy Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the respondent Board properly exercised its right to non-renew petitioner's employment, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter – including the transcripts from seven days of hearings in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) – and the Initial Decision of the OAL have been reviewed by the Deputy Commissioner to whom this case has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33.[1] The Deputy Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner failed to show that respondent's decision not to renew her employment was improper.

As the ALJ explained, "a non-tenured teacher has no viable appeal from being released from a teaching position unless the release constitutes a violation of law or constitutional provision. The issue has been settled since the decision in Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1982)." The laws which petitioner relied upon to challenge her non-renewal were those that bar discrimination based upon disability.[2] More specifically, petitioner alleged that in not renewing her employment, respondent was motivated by 1) the workers' compensation claim that she filed in consequence of a March 22, 2007 injury to her knee, 2) an injury-related absence from September 2007 to January 2008, and 3) her January 2008 request for accommodations upon her return to work.[3]

After considering the testimony presented by the nine witnesses during the OAL hearing, and the numerous exhibits, the ALJ found that the evidence as a whole did not support petitioner's contention that she was discriminated against as a result of her injury. First, the ALJ found that Assistant Principal Robert Brower, whose responsibility it was in January 2008 to identify feasible accommodations for petitioner, was a credible witness. She accepted his testimony that 1) he offered petitioner the opportunity to work in a building with an elevator, 2) upon her refusal he changed petitioner's schedule – as reflected on page 2 of P-11 – to significantly reduce the amount of stair-climbing that was required of her, and 3) he explained to her that she could not be set up in the school library – with her classes brought to her – because the library was needed for other purposes.

Second, the ALJ did not regard petitioner's testimony as credible. She found no basis in the record to accept petitioner's contention that her 2007-2008 negative evaluations from Supervisor Mercedita Dacanay, Principal Jeanette Ayala and Assistant Principal Brower were "lies and fabrications." Rather, the ALJ found that several of petitioner's evaluations prior to 2007 had contained notations that various teaching categories needed improvement, thus supporting the possibility that petitioner's performance could have been ultimately assessed as unsatisfactory. The Deputy Commissioner's perusal of the exhibits revealed that many of the evaluations themselves contain specific descriptions of incidents that support negative assessments.

[2] It would appear that petitioner also filed a complaint with the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights on or about October 10, 2008, but the case was closed prior to the hearing in this matter.

[3] Petitioner also implied in her petition and in her OAL testimony that the negative evaluations that she received during 2007 and 2008 were also driven by her workers compensation claim, medical leave and requests for accommodations flowing from the March 2007 injury.

Further, the ALJ recognized that the record revealed that the first of petitioner's negative evaluations in the 2007-2008 school year occurred before petitioner's injury on March 22, 2007. The Deputy Commissioner notes, in particular, that Supervisor Dacanay's February 23, 2007 evaluation assigned unsatisfactory grades in several categories. When asked why that evaluation of petitioner was much worse than the prior two, Dacanay testified that she saw – and recorded on the evaluation – performance that had regressed. 5T139[4] Her detailed evaluation notes described a lack of classroom management, difficulty in communicating lessons clearly and providing appropriate feedback, and an absence of proper assessments and recordings of student progress. Dacanay's notes depict petitioner's classroom as unruly and out of control. (Petitioner's Exhibit 1-K)

Nonetheless – as the ALJ observed – despite petitioner's admission that Dacanay's negative evaluation preceded her injury, leave of absence and request for accommodations, she did not abandon her claim that the negative evaluations by respondent's representatives and the non-renewal were driven by her knee injury. This rigidity was a recurring theme in petitioner's testimony.

The Deputy Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that Petitioner's other witnesses were not useful. Frank Conti and Marcia Hernandez offered no helpful material facts and, as the ALJ found, Noritza Andino's "testimony was riddled with comments reflecting a personal bias against the principal of School No. 23" – where petitioner taught. By way of example, Andino attributed negative connotations to facially neutral facts and statements by that principal.

[4] 5T designates the OAL hearing transcript for November 9, 2009.

In summary, petitioner failed to provide evidence sufficient to support her claim that her non-renewal had an improper basis. Nor has the Deputy Commissioner found anything in the record that would suggest that the ALJ's credibility determinations were arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable based on the available facts. Absent such a finding, the Deputy Commissioner may not disturb those determinations. D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of minor children T.L. and K.L. v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School district, 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10c.

In light of the foregoing, the Deputy Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision of the OAL and dismisses the petition.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner is appealing the Board's decision to not renew her teaching contract. The determination of a District to not renew the contract of an untenured employee is to be reviewed under a limited standard. The Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed on September 2, 2008, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The record closed on March 5, 2010; therefore, the forty-five day period to issue an Initial Decision expired on April 19, 2010. I requested and was granted additional time for filing the Initial Decision to June 3, 2010.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of fact, which are essentially undisputed.

1. Petitioner, Victoria Ramirez, began her career in education as a teacher's assistant in the Jersey City Public Schools in the 1997-98 school year. She became employed as a Spanish teacher in the primary grades in the District during the 2001-2002 school year.

2. She taught first grade and later the second grade and kindergarten. In 2005, she taught the fifth grade.

3. During her employment as a teacher of world languages, Petitioner pursued an alternate-route certification program at Saint Peter's College in Jersey City to qualify for New Jersey certification. As such, she did not obtain tenure within the timelines prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

4. As a non-tenured teaching staff member, Petitioner was subject to three evaluations per year between the 2001-02 school year and the 2007-08 school year.

5. At the conclusion of the 2007-08 school year, the principal of the No. 23 Public School recommended to the superintendent of schools that Petitioner's employment contract with the District not be renewed for the 2008-09 school year. That recommendation was ultimately accepted by the superintendent of the Jersey City Public Schools.

6. On February 23, 2007, Petitioner was evaluated by Ms. Dacanay, a supervisor of world languages, who found her to be unsatisfactory in two of four domains[1] in which teachers are rated. Petitioner was teaching a second grade class at the time. During the previous November, i.e., November 2006, Ms. Andino, another supervisor, had evaluated Petitioner as satisfactory in all categories while teaching a second grade class.

7. On March 23, 2007, Petitioner was injured at School 23 when a bookcase fell striking her left leg and waist. Petitioner reported the accident but was able to report to work after seeking medical intervention.

8. An observation was conducted on April 26, 2007, and once again in May 2007. Both of these evaluations reflect numerous areas in which Petitioner needed improvement.

9. Petitioner returned to work in September 2007; however, she was compelled to stop and seek medical treatment for her knee with Concentra, the carrier for Worker's Compensation for Jersey City.[2] Although treatment with Concentra continued until May 2008, Petitioner was permitted to return to work in January 2008. At that time, Petitioner presented a physical therapy document from Concentra dated December 18, 2007, indicating she should refrain from climbing stairs.

[1] There are four domains, or areas in which teachers are evaluated. Each domain has a number of subtopics which are given ratings of S, NI, or U. The "S" means satisfactory; "U" is unsatisfactory.

[2] The parties stipulated that there was a claim for medical benefits under Worker's Compensation for the period from March 2007 to June 2007; however, there was no request for an accommodation at that time.

10. Upon her return in January 2008 from her leave, Petitioner requested an accommodation because of her leg injury.

11. On January 22, 2008, Petitioner was evaluated by Ms. Dacanay who found her to be unsatisfactory in three of the four domains by which teachers were evaluated. In addition, she was found to need improvement in the fourth domain. In March, she was evaluated by Mr. Brower; there were two further evaluations by Ms. Ayala.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

As Respondent asserts, a non-tenured teacher has no viable appeal from being released from a teaching position unless the release constitutes a violation of law or constitutional provision. The issue has been settled since the decision in Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1982). In Dore, the hearing examiner recommended reinstatement of the teacher because the loss of tenure was not related to the evaluations of his teaching performance but to matters which were extrinsic to that performance; the Commissioner agreed; however, the State Board disagreed and reversed, finding that there were insufficient grounds for overriding the managerial prerogative of the local board. Stressing the wide discretion of a district board the Appellate Division held " . . . absent constitutional restraints or legislation effecting tenure rights of teachers, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board." Id. at 456. Following Dore, there is a line of cases which consistently holds that non-tenured teaching staff members "are not entitled to litigate their terminations . . . unless the reason for the board's action is in violation of constitutional or legislatively conferred rights." (Citations omitted).

In the case before me, Petitioner is asserting bad faith on the part of the Board in that the Board is retaliating against her for making a Worker's Compensation claim against the District for an injury sustained in the course of her work. In addition, it appears she alleges that the Board failed to provide her with an accommodation upon her return to work in January 2008. Accordingly, Petitioner bears the burden of demonstrating the District violated the law or a constitutional provision when it failed to renew her contract for the 2008-2009 school year for the reasons, according to her petition:

> [T]he denial of tenure and reappointment is based upon discriminatory conduct against her on a continuous basis by Assistant Principal Robert Brower and Principal Jeanette Ayala following the occurrence of a work related injury in an accident of March 22, 2007 and need for treatment under the Workers' Compensation Act and complaints of failure to accommodate Petitioner's disabilities, said disability resulting from such injury which caused the Petitioner to be on Workers' Compensation Disability Leave from September 2007 until January 2008.
> [(See Ramirez Pet. at ¶ 2.)]

In addition, Petitioner also alleges a bad faith motive against superintendent and other members of his administration by including the following in her petition:

> [P]rior to [her injury of] March 2007, [Ms. Ramirez] received evaluations from various members of the school system which were substantially satisfactory in many categories, including evaluations by M.G. Dacanay on or about may 12, 2003 and November 13, 2002 and by Assistant Principal Jeanette Ayala on June 12, 2002, on March 22, 2005, by Mrs. Menzel which was satisfactory in all respects and Assistant Principal Noritza Andino on November 10, 2006.
> [(See Ramirez Pet. at ¶ 4.)]

The issues to be resolved are whether the District retaliated against Petitioner by failing to give her an accommodation and by giving her poor evaluations. Petitioner bears the burden of proving both by a preponderance of the evidence.

The resolution of the issue of the accommodation turns on the testimony of Petitioner and Assistant Principal Brower. The testimony from each of these witnesses is in direct opposition to the other. Accordingly, the issue must be resolved by a determination of each witness's credibility.

Credibility is the value that a factfinder gives to a witness's testimony, requiring an overall assessment of the witness's story in the light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it hangs together with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony must proceed from the mouth of a credible witness and must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955). A factfinder is expected to base credibility decisions on common sense, which is also referred to as intuition or experience. Barnes v. United States, 412 U.S. 837, 93 S. Ct. 2357, 37 L. Ed. 2d 380 (1973).

In this case, the determination of whether an appropriate accommodation was offered to Petitioner while she completed her recovery from her disability requires a determination of credibility of two witnesses; the first is the credibility of Assistant Principal Brower; the second, is that of Petitioner. Turning first to the issue of the credibility of Assistant Principal Brower, he testified that he had not worked directly with Petitioner prior to her return to work in January 2008. Upon his becoming aware that she should not be climbing stairs, he immediately offered to transfer her to the main building of Public School 23 which had an elevator. The transfer to the main building would have meant that she would have been teaching the upper-primary grades, five through eight. Petitioner refused, saying she was not comfortable teaching the upper grades, although she was certified to teach grades K-8. Instead, she asked to be allowed to have her classes brought to her in the library at the Duncan Avenue School rather than have her travel from classroom to classroom. Brower advised her that this would not be possible since, according to his testimony, the library was used for library purposes. Upon her refusal of his proposal, he testified that he rearranged her schedule so that he minimized the amount of stair climbing she would have to do on any day.

On the other hand, Petitioner testified that there was never an offer to transfer her to the main building and, of course then, she could not have refused such an offer. She was indignant that she was not allowed to use the library since there were various other teachers in there using the library according to her. She did not seem to understand that those were teachers bringing their classes in there to do library-related work.

As noted above, Brower was not acquainted with Petitioner prior to her return to work from her medical leave of absence in January 2008. In addition, Brower's testimony was clear, concise and straightforward. When he could not answer a question or did not remember, he said so. In addition, Petitioner's program for the second half of the 2007-08 year reflects the changes he made to the program to minimize her need to use the stairs.

On the other hand, Petitioner insisted that she had never been offered the accommodation of working in the main building; further, she insisted that other teachers were permitted to use the library for their classes but she was not. The record is replete with instances where Petitioner characterizes the testimony of the supervisors who evaluated her as "a bunch of lies and fabrications." For example, Ms. Dacanay, who, as a supervisor of world languages, had evaluated Petitioner a number of times throughout her career, had, in an evaluation dated May 12, 2003, given Petitioner four "NI"s,[3] an increase over the three she had given Petitioner the previous November, rated Petitioner as unsatisfactory in two domains in February 2007, one month prior to Petitioner's work-related accident. Although this evaluation predated the accident, Petitioner's testimony with regard to this evaluation reflected a theme which would continue throughout Petitioner's testimony. Petitioner agreed that Ms. Dacanay's February evaluation could not have been influenced by the accident which occurred one month later, however, she still insisted that Dacanay's testimony was lies and fabrications; Petitioner's attitude reflected rigidity and an inability to accept direction and constructive criticism.

Based on the opportunity to observe the demeanor and attitude of Petitioner, as well as that of Mr. Brower, I FIND the testimony of Brower to be more credible than that of Petitioner, with regard to the offer of the transfer to the main building which had the elevator as an accommodation for her disability as well as his testimony with regard to the changes he made in her program to minimize the number of times per day she would have to climb the stairs at the Duncan Avenue Annex upon her refusal of the transfer to the main building.

Moreover, it would appear that the accommodation that Brower implemented did help in her rehabilitation. I further note on the Physician Activity Status reports that the date of maximum-medical improvement in Petitioner's condition was reached as of October 25, 2007, which would belie any restriction would, at a later date, serve to help with an improvement. Moreover, there are no further requests for any kind of accommodation for this Petitioner after the status report of December 18, 2007, although the Physician Activity Status Reports continue until May 5, 2008. Accordingly, I FIND that the District acted properly with respect to this Petitioner's request for an accommodation for the injuries sustained.

Turning now to Petitioner's assertion that the negative evaluations she received were in some way related to her Workers' Compensation claim and were in retaliation for her making that claim, it is clear that her evaluation immediately proceeding the occurrence of the accident in March 2007, which took place on February 23, contained negative evaluative data.

A review of her evaluations prior to that date indicates that on several occasions she had been given the "NI" rating for various aspects of Domain 2. On the February 23, 2007, evaluation, immediately preceding her accident, Petitioner received a "U" rating on all but one of the aspects of Domain 2. Her May 2007 evaluation which occurred after the accident but before her leave of absence also reflects, generally, a substandard performance with a rating of "NI" in three of the four domains and an "S" in the fourth.

Upon her return from her leave of absence, she was evaluated three times. The first was on January 22, 2008, at which time she was given a rating of "U" in all four domains. In the second evaluation on March 8 which was done by Mr. Brower, she received three "NI" ratings and one "U," thus, perhaps indicating an improvement. In the third evaluation, however, Petitioner was once again rated "U" or unsatisfactory in all domains. As a result, her Summative Evaluation for the year was a rating of "U" in all domains except one.

Petitioner presented a witness to support her contention that the negative evaluations were retaliatory. Ms. Andino, asserted that she had been told, when evaluating Petitioner, "you know what you have to do" by the principal of the school. Ms. Andino, who was an assistant principal at the time, testified that she interpreted the instruction to mean she was to give a negative evaluation. Once again, the credibility of this witness is critical to determine the weight to accord her testimony. A review of Ms. Andino's testimony reveals that she imputed a negative interpretation to the instruction she was given. Those words are neutral on their face; as an administrator presumably with the appropriate certifications but with little experience in the position of assistant principal, she was expected to know how to conduct an evaluation. The words on their face can be interpreted as a reminder of her professional responsibility. Andino, however, had lost one appeal at the OAL and had, at the time she testified, another pending. In addition, her testimony is riddled with comments reflecting a personal bias against the principal of PS No. 23. Therefore, I FIND that her testimony was tainted with personal animus and I accord it no weight.

Based on the fact that evaluations which preceded the Workers' Compensation claim contained negative evaluation data, especially that of February 23, 2007, I FIND that the negative evaluations were not issued in retaliation for the Workers' compensation claim.

Based on all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE Petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of proving a violation of law or constitutional provision.

As noted above, it is well established by case law that a non-tenured teacher has no viable appeal from being released from a teaching position unless the release constitutes a violation of law or a constitutional provision. Since such is not the case here, where the record clearly reflects a performance which deteriorated over time from being substantially satisfactory to becoming increasingly unsatisfactory at the end, I CONCLUDE the action of the district in not renewing this contract should be affirmed.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. BEFORE CARIDAD F. RIGO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 19, 2007, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13.

A hearing was scheduled on January 12, 2009. Prior to the hearing the parties settled the matter. A Settlement Agreement was prepared and executed indicating the terms of the agreement, which are incorporated herein by reference.

Having reviewed the contents of the attached Stipulation of Settlement and Board Resolution, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures and/or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF JIMMY GARCIA,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
UNION CITY BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission, forwarded to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29 solely for review of the Commission's recommended penalty, have been reviewed. Respondent did not file exceptions, nor was the Commission's underlying finding of violation appealed to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty of censure recommended by the Commission and additionally admonishes the respondent for failure to timely file the requisite disclosure statements, in that such delay has resulted in a waste of administrative and adjudicative time at both State and local levels.

Accordingly, the above-named respondent shall be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

UNION CITY BOARD OF EDUCATION	:
HUDSON COUNTY	:
	:	Docket No. D14-09
	:	DECISION ON REMAND

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) on October 30, 2009, through regular and certified mail, return receipt requested, directing the respondent to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure statements required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26. The Commission therein provided notification that the respondent had 20 days to respond to the OTSC, and that the failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the Order. The respondent was further notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the 20-day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

The respondent failed to reply to the Order to Show Cause.[1] Accordingly, at its meeting on December 15, 2009, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26. The Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a sanction of suspension until the school official filed the disclosure statements, removal if the disclosure statements were not filed within 30 days of the Commissioner's decision, and censure if the disclosure statements were filed prior to issuance of the Commissioner's decision.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq., the respondent appealed the Commission's findings and recommended penalty to the Commissioner of Education. On appeal, the respondent argued that, as a Senior Network Administrator, the Act does not apply to him because he does not meet the definition of "administrator" set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23. He further asserted that he was not aware that he was required to file the disclosure statements until he received the Commission's December 15, 2009 decision finding him in violation of the Act. In this connection, he asserts that he did not receive the "warning letter" dated August 21, 2009 issued by the Commission, nor did he receive the Commission's October 30, 2009 Order to Show Cause which was sent by both regular and certified mail. (I/M/O Jimmy Garcia, Board of Education of the City of Union, Hudson County, Commissioner Decision No. 99-10ASEC, decided March 26, 2010, at p. 2) In support of his appeal, the respondent supplemented the record with a copy of a job posting for the position of Network Administrator dated December 1, 1999; a copy of the a notice from the U.S. Post Office dated November 3, 2009 indicating that there was an attempted delivery of a letter sent via certified mail; and a sworn certification signed by the respondent on January 11, 2010. In his decision, the Commissioner found that:

[1] It is noted in this connection that while the certified mail copy of the Order was returned as "unclaimed," the copy sent by regular mail was not returned and is, therefore, deemed received.

> [T]he central issues raised by the respondent's appeal [are] whether he is subject to the requirements of the School Ethics Act and, if so, the credibility and effect of his representations as to why he failed to respond to the Order to Show Cause or to timely file disclosure statements ." (Garcia, supra at p. 3)

Accordingly this matter was remanded to the Commission for consideration "with the benefits of a full record." (Id. at pp. 3-4) The Commissioner did not retain jurisdiction.

By letter dated March 31, 2010, the Commission notified respondent's counsel that it would place this matter on its agenda for consideration at its meeting on April 20, 2010. The respondent was invited to attend. The Commission provided a copy of that letter to the Board Secretary, also inviting his attendance, as well as the submission of "any documentation relevant to the determination that, for the 2009 calendar year, the respondent was subject to the School Ethics Act as a school administrator, together with any documentation to show that the respondent was duly apprised of the same." (Commission's March 31, 2010 letter)

On April 9, 2010, counsel for the Board supplemented the record with, inter alia, a statement of the job responsibilities for the Senior Network Administrator provided by the Board's Supervisor of Technology & Information Systems, as well as a certification from the Board Secretary and supporting exhibits. The respondent attended the Commission's meeting on April 20, 2010, with counsel, Mary J. Hammer, Esq.

At the outset, counsel for the respondent noted that the respondent filed his 2009 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure statements during the pendency of his appeal before the Commissioner of Education and also filed his 2010 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure statements due on April 30, 2010 in order to avoid sanction. Counsel argued that the respondent did so irrespective of his belief as to whether the Act requires him to file the statements. In this connection, counsel argued that the respondent is not a school administrator as contemplated by the Act; she likened his respondent's job duties to buying a car. That is, the respondent would tell the District that it needed to purchase a six cylinder sedan, but would not recommend the particular model to be purchased.

The respondent testified that he was initially hired in 1996 as a Programmer/Systems Administrator and in 2000 he became a Network Administrator. In 2004, he became the Senior Network Administrator. The respondent stated that he obtained the 2009 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure forms around February 2009 when they were placed in an envelope to be filled out. He stated that he was told to fill out the forms. The respondent testified that he did not understand why he was required to complete the forms since he had been employed in the position for 12 years and had not previously been asked to complete the statements. When he received the form, he went to his Human Resources office and was directed to the School Ethics Commission's website. He testified that he read the statute and did not think that it applied to him. Additionally, the respondent testified that Assistant Superintendent Caputo informed him that he did not think that he had to file the forms.

The respondent testified that he then spoke to the Board Secretary's administrative assistant who indicated that she did not know why he was being asked to complete the forms, but his name was on the list of school administrators who needed to complete the form. The respondent stated that he then asked the Board secretary why he was required to complete the forms, but the Board Secretary did not get back to him with a response. In response to questioning from the Commission, the respondent acknowledged that when the Board Secretary did not directly respond to his inquiry, he made the decision not to fill out the forms because he believed that the statute did not require that he do so. As to the emails that were submitted to the Commission by the Board Secretary showing that the respondent was repeatedly reminded of his duty to file the statements, the respondent affirmed that although the email address was his, he "never saw those emails." The respondent asserted that these emails were in memo format and could have been typed.

The respondent testified that after receiving the Commission's December 15, 2009 decision, he discussed the matter with the Executive County Superintendent because, according to the respondent, he heard nothing from the District. He stated that although the Commission's August 2009 warning letter and October 2009 Order to Show Cause were sent to the correct mailing address, he did not receive either.

The respondent disputed that his job requires him to make recommendations as to the purchase of goods or services, as set forth in the Board Secretary's certification submitted to the Commission, although he acknowledged that after 2006, he played "a big role," from a technology standpoint, in construction being done in the District. The respondent testified that, in accordance with the District's technology plan, it was his role to ensure that any new construction would be compatible with existing infrastructures and warrantees. However, the respondent stated that the Board decides what products to purchase and what vendors to hire; he never interacted with the vendors. The respondent indicated that he did not have a job description that would show his duties and responsibilities in 2009.

In response to a question from the Commission, the respondent acknowledged that he and his supervisors have a different perception of his role and that in the future, if the District requires that the disclosure statements be completed, he will complete them. The respondent testified that he completed the 2010 disclosure statements so as to avoid being sanctioned.

After hearing testimony from the respondent, at the Commission's public session, it voted to find that the School Ethics Act applied to the respondent in that he satisfied the definition of "school administrator" as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23. The Commission found that the respondent was accorded proper notice that he was required to file 2009 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements and consequently violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26 when he failed to file those statements until January 2010. The Commission recommended a penalty of censure.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the documentary and testimonial evidence, the Commission finds the following facts on remand. In so doing, the Commission found the respondent's testimony ineffective as a rebuttal to the District's position, as set forth within, that he is subject to the School Ethics Act and particularly lacking in credibility with respect to his claims that he did not receive any notice that he was required to file 2009 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements.

1. The respondent is a Senior Network Administrator employed by the Board.

2. The Board's Supervisor of Technology & Information Systems provided a job description for Senior Network Administrator as follows:

> As Senior Network Administrator, Mr. Garcia's responsibilities include the management/direction of the Technical Support Specialists (full and part time employees) for infrastructure, design, management, maintenance and repair for both the local and wide area networks (LAN and WAN). In addition, he is responsible for the configuration, upgrades/maintenance, security and back-ups of district servers, the configuration, upgrades/maintenance and security of switched electronics, routers, firewall, faltering services, VPN Access, email system, computer imaging, hardware and software trouble shooting. Mr. Garcia also managed the district telephone system until the system was replaced. (Completed in 2009). Finally, in the commission of his job responsibilities, Mr. Garcia recommended/specified the equipment and/or supplies to be ordered. (Lavelle letter, February 5, 2010 at p. 2)

3. The Board Secretary, Anthony Dragona, certified that in 2009, the respondent's job responsibilities "included involvement in the development, recommendation (of vendors, contracted services and equipment purchases) and specifications of technology hardware, equipment, supplies and services for the District" in connection with a school construction project. As such, the respondent "was in the position to impact the purchasing decisions of the Technology phase of the new construction projects "(Dragona Certification at paragraph 4).

4. By email dated March 17, 2009, the Board Secretary's office forwarded to the respondent's correct email address the following statement:

> Please accept this email as a reminder for filing your financial disclosure statement which was due on March 16, 2009. Please kindly submit your forms to the Board Secretary's office as soon as possible. (Dragona Certification at Exhibit A).

5. By email dated April 3, 2009, the Board Secretary's office forwarded to the respondent's correct email address the following statement:

> Please accept this email to remind you that the deadline for the filing of your financial and personal/relative disclosure statements was March 16, 2009. To date, I have not received your completed statements. Please bring your completed statements to my office as soon as possible. Your original disclosure statements will be date-stamped upon receipt, and you will be provided with a copy of the date-stamped statements for your records. The disclosure statements may be downloaded from the School Ethics Commission's website at www.nj.gov/education/ethics/fdform.htm. >
> The School Ethics Commission has asked me to advise you that if the completed statements are not filed in my office by April 30, 2009, it has the right to issue an Order requiring you to Show Cause why you have not filed. It has further asked me to advise you that failure to timely file your disclosure statements may result in the Commission finding you in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26 of the School Ethics Act.
> Thank you. (Dragona Certification at Exhibit B).

6. By email dated March 3, 2009, the office of the Board Secretary alerted Board Counsel, as follows:

> In reference to ethics disclosure statements—I was informed to hand a form to Jimmy, which I did.
>
> He came back to me on 2/29 informing me that he never filed an ethics disclosure form out before and that he didn't have to this year. He also questioned me of why he was given the form.
>
> I showed him the ethics disclosure memo from the state and a section of the memo explains who has to file. I explained to him that because he makes recommendations on purchase of services he has to file.
>
> He doesn't think that he has too [sic] and I informed him that it was not a big deal just fill out the form and don't leave any questions blank.
>
> He mention [sic] to me that he was going to speak to Tony and Janice about this.

As of today, I have not received the filled out form. (Dragona Certification at Exhibit D).

7. By email dated April 23, 2009, the Board Secretary's office forwarded to the respondent's correct email address the following statement:

> Please accept this email to remind you that the deadline for the filing of your financial and personal/relative disclosure statements was March 16, 2009. To date, I have not received your completed statements. Please bring your completed statements to my office as soon as possible. Your original disclosure statements will be date-stamped upon receipt, and you will be provided with a copy of the date-stamped statements for your records. The disclosure statements may be downloaded from the School Ethics Commission's website at www.nj.gov/education/ethics/fdform.htm. If you lack internet access, you may come to my office to receive a form.
>
> The School Ethics Commission has asked me to advise you that if the completed statements are not filed in my office by April 30, 2009, it has the right to issue an Order requiring you to Show Cause why you have not filed. It has further asked me to advise you that failure to timely file your disclosure statements may result in the Commission finding you in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26 of the School Ethics Act.
> Thank you. (Dragona Certification at Exhibit C).

8. By letter dated August 21, 2009, the School Ethics Commission directed a "warning letter" to the respondent's correct home address, which stated, in relevant part:

> Your board secretary has identified you as a school official required to file the disclosure statements. However, to date, your Executive County Superintendent's office has not received your completed disclosure statements or, your statements were received but were returned to you because they were not properly completed. Please immediately bring your completed disclosure statements to your board secretary's office where the statements should be date stamped and copied. The board secretary will forward the original statements to the county office. The county office will report to the Commission when the statements are filed. ***
> If the completed disclosure statements are not received in the office of the Executive County Superintendent by September

> 30, 2009, the Commission may issue an Order requiring you to show cause why you have not filed, which may result in the Commission finding you in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26 of the School Ethics Act and recommending that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty in accordance with the statute.  (August 21, 2009, School Ethics Commission; emphasis in text)

9. On October 30, 2009, an Order to Show Cause was issued by the Commission via regular and certified mail to the respondent's correct home address directing the respondent to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure statements required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26.

10. On December 15, 2009, a decision was issued by the Commission finding that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26. The Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a sanction of suspension until the school official files the disclosure statements, removal if the disclosure statements are not filed within 30 days of the Commissioner's decision, and censure if the disclosure statements are filed prior to issuance of the Commissioner's decision.

11. The August 21, 2009 warning letter, the October 30, 2009 Order to Show Cause and the December 15, 2009 decision were all forwarded to the respondent at the same address, which is the respondent's correct address.

12. On January 7, 2010, the Hudson County Office notified the office of the School Ethics Commission that the respondent filed his 2009 disclosure statements. (email from Hudson County Office to School Ethics Commission dated January 7, 2009)

13. The respondent filed his 2010 Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure statements that were due on April 30, 2010.

ANALYSIS

The School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in school board members and school administrators. Annually, on or before April 30th of each year, all school officials, as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23, must file both a Personal/Relative Disclosure Statement and a Financial Disclosure Statement with their local board secretaries or charter school designees. Indeed, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26 place an affirmative duty on the individual school official to file the required statements. The term "school official" is defined as a board member (or charter school trustee), an administrator or a managerial employee or officer of the New Jersey School Boards Association. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 and 23.1. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23:

> "Administrator" means any officer, other than a board member, or employee of a local school district who:

(i) holds a position which requires a certificate that authorizes the holder to serve as school administrator, principal, or school business administrator; or

(ii) holds a position which does not require that the person hold any type of certificate but is responsible for making recommendations regarding hiring or the purchase or acquisition of any property or services by the local school district; or

(iii) holds a position which requires a certificate that authorizes the holder to serve as supervisor and who is responsible for making recommendations regarding hiring or the purchase or acquisition of any property or services by the local school district. (emphasis added)

Additionally, the Commission's regulations provide that:

> In order to comply with the filing requirement, each local district board secretary or charter school designee shall annually, on or before February 1, file with the executive county superintendent a written list of names of those school officials, by office and position, whose responsibilities would require the filing of the Financial and Personal/Relative Disclosure Statements pursuant to the criteria contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. and these rules. Offices and positions vacant or to become vacant by virtue of expiration of terms or personnel leaving the district are to be listed. (N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.2(a); emphasis added)

Thus, it is the Board Secretary, in the first instance, who determines which individuals are subject to the filing requirement, notwithstanding that it is clearly the individual school official's duty, as set forth in statute, to meet the filing mandate.

Here, the Board Secretary determined that the respondent should file disclosure statements in the 2009 calendar year because he was responsible for making recommendations regarding "the purchase or acquisition of any property or services by the local school district." The Commission finds sufficient support for the Board Secretary's determination in the record as supplemented on appeal and thus determines that the respondent was required to file both a Personal/Relative Disclosure Statement and a Financial Disclosure Statement in 2009, but failed to do so until January 2010. In this connection, although the respondent argued that he cannot be considered a school administrator under the Act because it is only the Board which is authorized to make decisions about the purchase of goods and services, the Commission notes that the statute requires only that the non-certificated person is responsible for making recommendations regarding hiring or the purchase or acquisition of any property or services by the local school district. To the extent the respondent disputes the Board Secretary's certification or the job description for Senior Network Administrator offered by the Board's Supervisor of Technology & Information Systems which specifically stated that the respondent recommended/specified the equipment and/or supplies to be ordered in connection with his job duties (Factual Finding #2), the Commission notes that the respondent failed to offer any documentation as to his current job duties that contradicts the District's position.

Additionally, contrary to his contention on appeal, the Commission finds that the respondent was fairly notified that he was expected to file the disclosure statements. The respondent forthrightly admitted that he was told in February 2009 that he was expected to file the statements. He also testified that after receiving the forms, he consulted the statute. Thus, the Commission finds it fair to conclude that the respondent was: (1) timely notified that he was expected to file and (2) aware that he must do so by April 30, 2009. However, as acknowledged in his testimony, he made the decision not to complete the disclosure statements because the Board Secretary did not directly respond to his inquiry and he believed that the statute did not require that someone in his position do so.

The Commission further finds that once the respondent was fairly notified that he was expected to file the statements, the District was under no legal obligation to continually remind him of his duty. Thus, the respondent's claim that he never received the email correspondences from the Board Secretary's office, even if true, is without legal consequence. Similarly, the respondent's assertion that he did not receive the Commission's August 21, 2009 warning letter, if true, is without legal consequence, where such a letter is not required to be sent to a delinquent filer.

Respondent's claim that he did not receive the Commission's Order to Show Cause presents a more difficult question, since the Order is the basis for the Commission's original action. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6. However, the Commission is satisfied that, absent the return of the regular mailing for an improper address, or some other plausible explanation from the respondent, the Order sent by regular mail was properly delivered and is, therefore, deemed received. New Jersey Court Rule 1:5-4(b). The Commission finds that the respondent's assertion that "The first time I learned that I was required to file the statements was when I received the December 16, 2009 letter from the School Ethics Commission enclosing their decision finding me in violation of the Act" strains credibility. (Garcia Certification at paragraph 11) In this connection, the Commission is persuaded that the respondent's statements on appeal, and on remand, were motivated by his desire to avoid a sanction.

DECISION

Based on the record supplemented on appeal, the Commission finds that the respondent was required to file both a Personal/Relative Disclosure Statement and a Financial Disclosure Statement in 2009, but failed to timely do so. Accordingly, the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26.

PENALTY

In its decision dated December 15, 2009, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a sanction of suspension until the school official filed the disclosure statements, removal if the disclosure statements were not filed within 30 days of the Commissioner's decision, and censure if the disclosure statements were filed prior to issuance of the Commissioner's decision. As noted above, the respondent filed his 2009 disclosure statements in January 2010, prior to the issuance of the Commissioner's decision on March 26, 2010. Accordingly, consistent with its prior decision and noting that the respondent, on remand, offered no testimony that would persuade the Commission that a lesser penalty was warranted, the Commission finds that censure is the appropriate penalty.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. The school official may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Resolution Adopting Decision – D14-09

Whereas, the School Ethics Commission has considered this matter remanded by the Commissioner of Education, including the record on appeal, all documents submitted to the Commission on remand and the respondent's testimony on April 20, 2010; and

Whereas, at its meeting on April 20, 2010, the Commission found that the respondent was required to file both a Personal/Relative Disclosure Statement and a Financial Disclosure Statement in 2009, but failed to timely do so, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and 26; and

Whereas, at its meeting on April 20, 2010, the Commission recommended a penalty of censure; and

Whereas, at its meeting on May 25, 2010, the Commission agreed that the within decision accurately memorializes its findings and recommendations; and

Now Therefore Be It Resolved, that the Commission hereby adopts the within decision and directs it staff to notify all parties to this action of the decision.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought home schooling for his child after he was allegedly attacked at school, claiming that F.P. could not continue to attend classes because of nervousness and vomiting. An emergent relief hearing in the matter was scheduled for June 1, 2010.

Subsequently, both petitioner and respondent failed to appear at the scheduled hearing despite appropriate notice, and neither provided any explanation for their nonappearance. Having received no explanation from either party, the OAL returned the file to the Commissioner.

There being no explanation filed, the Commissioner dismissed the petition with prejudice.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter, including a copy of the notification sent to the parties by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 27, 2010, informing them that the emergent hearing in this matter would be held on June 1, 2010, and the June 3rd memorandum of the OAL advising that both parties failed to appear at the emergent hearing scheduled for June 1, 2010. The Commissioner also notes that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a), the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) held the matter for two days after the hearing to give the parties the opportunity to offer explanations for their nonappearance. There being no explanations filed with the ALJ, she directed that the matter be returned to the Commissioner of Education and provided notice dated June 4, 2010 to the parties that any excuses for non-appearance should henceforth be sent to the Commissioner of Education.

The Commissioner has to date received no explanations for the parties' nonappearances. Accordingly, for failure to prosecute, the petitioner's appeal is herewith dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF SALVATORE PICCOLI, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS, ALBERT C. WAGNER YOUTH CORRECTIONAL FACILITY.

Ellen M. Hale, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner, New Jersey State Department of Corrections, Albert C. Wagner Youth Correctional Facility (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., for respondent, Salvatore Piccoli (Weissman & Mintz, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 28, 2010 Decided: June 3, 2010

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

This matter was initially transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 4, 2009, which matter was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 08561-09 and has now been assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04289-10 on remand.

On May 4, 2010, the decision of the Commissioner of Education remanded the matter to the OAL indicating that the handwritten alterations to the typewritten stipulation of settlement did not sufficiently indicate the parties' acceptance of the document and the alterations. The parties have now resubmitted the stipulation of settlement, initialing the agreement in compliance with the Commissioner's remand.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The New Jersey Department of Corrections ("NJDOC" or "Department"), represented by Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, Ellen M. Hale, Deputy Attorney General, appearing; and Salvatore Piccoli, a tenured employee of the NJDOC represented by Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., appearing; by way of this Stipulation of Settlement say:

WHEREAS, the Department initiated the filing of tenure charges against Mr. Piccoli, having filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education on or about June 29, 2009; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli was charged with Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a) and Human Resources Bulletin 84-17, as amended, C-4 verbal abuse of an inmate, patient, client resident, or employee; C-9 insubordination: intentional disobedience or refusal to accept order, resisting authority, disrespect or use of insulting or abusive language to a supervisor; C-11 conduct unbecoming an employee; C-24 interfering with fellow employees on State Property; and D-4 having an inmate present during a union consultation; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charges alleged that on March 17, 2009 and June 15, 2009, Salvatore Piccoli, a Teacher I within the New Jersey Department of Corrections, violated the above-noted statute, regulations and Policies; and

WHEREAS, the NJDOC sought the suspension of Mr. Piccoli for ninety (90) days without pay for the above set of charges;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli disputed the charges;

WHEREAS, the matter was initially referred in June 2009 to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing;

WHEREAS, a hearing has been scheduled.

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli has not yet served any suspension time;

WHEREAS, the petitioner has concluded that it may be time consuming and expensive to prove the tenure charges against Mr. Piccoli;

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into an amicable resolution of the tenure charges filed against Mr. Piccoli;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights;

WHEREAS, Mr. Piccoli is not owed any pay, counsel fees or any other costs associated with this matter;

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the parties and the public to enter into this Stipulation of Settlement. By entering into this settlement agreement, petitioner avoids the excessive costs of litigation; and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Piccoli admits to the charges and underlying conduct as set forth above.

2. As the penalty, Mr. Piccoli shall be suspended ten (10) days without pay. The suspension time shall be scheduled consistent with Operational needs and at the management's discretion. The suspension will be completed and served consistent with Department Policy.

3. Mr. Piccoli's personnel record shall reflect a twenty (20) day suspension.

3a. Mr. Piccoli agrees to attend anger management classes.

3b. Mr. Piccoli will be placed on the next available transfer list.

3c. Mr. Piccoli agrees to withdraw his appeal of the Final Notice of Disciplinary Action dated June 15, 2005 (5 working days). (Settlement Agreement attached as Exhibit A.)

4. This Agreement shall be part of Mr. Piccoli's official personnel file and Mr. Piccoli's admission of the noted charges and the penalty imposed by way of settlement may be presented and considered in any subsequent disciplinary action against him.

5. This Agreement constitutes a final and complete resolution of the tenure charges in this matter and fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties hereto. Mr. Piccoli agrees not to appeal the terms of this Agreement in any administrative, arbitral or judicial forum.

6. Settlement of this matter is justified and in the public interest because it imposes the desired discipline without the need for a contested tenure hearing. The reduction in penalty from a ninety day suspension to ~~fifteen~~ 10 days to be without pay and 20 days is on the record equitable in exchange for eliminating the expense, time and uncertainty connected with a contested tenure hearing.

7. This Agreement shall become effective when the Commissioner of Education approves it. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

This Agreement is made in good faith. The parties have read the Agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

Dear Parties:

Upon review of the petition of appeal filed in connection with the matter entitled M.C. on behalf of minor child, S.H.. v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, Agency Dkt. No. 87- 5/10, and based upon the board's failure to submit an answer to the petition, I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioner.[1]

On May 4, 2010, petitioner – a grandmother to S.H. – filed a petition of appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1 et seq. claiming that S.H. was entitled to attend school in the District in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. A copy of the petition of appeal was served upon the board secretary via facsimile on May 4, 2010, together with an acknowledgment of filing and notice that an answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5. Because the board failed to respond to the initial notice, a second notice was sent on May 21, 2010 to the board secretary – via certified and regular mail – clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an answer to the petition of appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition would be deemed admitted and this matter could be decided on a summary decision basis. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). To date, no answer has been filed on behalf of the board.

Accordingly, petitioner's claim that S.H. is entitled to attend school in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. is deemed admitted by the board. The board is hereby ordered to continue to admit S.H. into its public school system, free of charge, so long as there is no change in circumstances that would alter that entitlement.[2]

Sincerely,

Willa Spicer

IN THE MATTER OF FRANK MINNITI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GREENWICH TOWNSHIP BOARD	:	DECISION
OF EDUCATION, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission (Commission) found that respondent – a member of the Board of Education of the Township of Greenwich – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members of the School Ethics Act when he voted to approve the contract of the Business Administrator to whom his wife reported. The Commission recommended the penalty of reprimand in this matter.

Upon review, the Commissioner – whose jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the Commission's recommended sanction – concurred that reprimand is the appropriate penalty for the violation found. Accordingly, the Commissioner directed that respondent be reprimanded as a school officer found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

July 12, 2010

AGENCY DKT. NO. 107-5/10

IN THE MATTER OF FRANK MINNITI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GREENWICH TOWNSHIP BOARD	:	DECISION
OF EDUCATION, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission"), including the recommended penalty of reprimand, have been reviewed.

This matter comes before the Commissioner to impose a sanction upon Respondent Frank Minniti, member of the Greenwich Township Board of Education, based upon findings of fact and conclusions of law by the Commission that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when, on February 23, 2009, he voted to approve the contract of the Business Administrator to whom his wife – a secretary in the District – reported.

Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, respondent was provided 13 days from the mailing of such decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration. No comments were submitted by or on behalf of Mr. Minniti.

Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner unless a notice of appeal is filed pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 and N.J.A.C. 6A:4, which did not happen here. Therefore, the Commissioner's jurisdiction at this time is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the Commission. Consequently, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner accepts the Commission's recommendation that reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter. As clearly stated in its decision, the Commission finds this penalty congruent with that imposed in previously decided similar cases. As such, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Frank Minniti is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on March 27, 2009 by Frederick Reel alleging that Frank Minniti, a member of the Greenwich Township Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. The respondent filed an answer on April 9, 2009. The matter was scheduled for a probable cause determination by the Commission on January 26, 2010, at which time the Commission voted to find probable cause to credit the allegation in the complaint. The Commission also determined to resolve this matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), in that the material facts are not in dispute.[1]

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.8(b), the respondent was accorded 30 days from the mailing date of the Probable Cause Notice (February 24, 2010) to submit a written statement of the reasons he should not be found in violation of the Act based on the undisputed facts set forth in this Probable Cause Notice. On March 23, 2010, the respondent filed his statement. Therein, the respondent quoted from his answer to the complaint where he stated:

> I do not believe it is reasonable for the public to expect a Board Member, with a spouse who is employed as a secretary in the district, who chooses to vote on the Business Administrator's contract for said secretary to gain any financial benefit or special privilege especially since said secretary is governed by a collective bargaining agreement. (Responsive Statement at p. 1, citing to answer at page 2)

The respondent explains that by the term "governed," he meant that any salary increment his wife receives is "directly tied to the bargaining agreement." Thus, if the bargaining agreement calls for a 3% salary increase, his wife would get the same. (Id.)

In his statement, the respondent underscored that he was never involved "either directly or indirectly" with negotiations regarding the contract for the Business Administrator. Rather, three days prior to the meeting, he received a copy of the Business Administrator's contract, with instructions from the chief school administrator to review the contract prior to ratification. The respondent asserts this was the first time he saw the document. Respondent affirms that in Executive Session, prior to reviewing the contract, he made a statement that if any negotiations were to take place, he would have to remove himself from the proceedings. According to the respondent, it was then that the Chief School Administrator recommended that the contract be ratified." (Id. at pp. 1-2).

[1] On April 15, 2009, the State Board of Education adopted amendments to N.J.A.C. 6A:28, the regulations governing matters that come before the School Ethics Commission. These rules became effective on May 18, 2009. However, because the complaint in this matter was filed on March 27, 2009, the Commission followed procedures and rendered its determinations herein in accordance with the rules that were in effect at the time the complaint was filed. To the extent this decision cites to regulations, they are the regulations that were in effect when the complaint was filed.

The respondent notes that there have been five Chief School Administrators in the District since he has served as a Board member and none has advised him not to vote on the Business Administrator's contract. Neither has the Board solicitor advised him of the same. (Id. at p. 2) He continues:

> The complainant, at the time of the vote, was politically driven along with other Board members, to remove the current Business Administrator from his position and said board members were in a lengthly [sic] and ugly contract negotiation with the Business Administrator.  In response to my vote, my spouse's position was used as a ploy to retaliate against me. (Ibid.)

The respondent concludes by stating that he has never acted in any capacity where a member of his family has benefited financially or in any other capacity. He affirms that he "has taken great pride as a school board of education member to never violate the public's trust" and has always been aware of his ethical and moral responsibility to the school district and to himself. (Ibid.)

At its April 20, 2010 meeting, and upon consideration of the respondent's arguments, the Commission found that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c), as set forth below, and recommended a penalty of reprimand.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

The undisputed facts are as follows:

1. At all times relevant, the respondent was a Board member.

2. The respondent's spouse is employed in the District as a secretary who reports to the Business Administrator. (Complainant's July 13, 2009 submission, Attachment: Minutes of Regular Meeting, Greenwich Township Board of Education, June 29, 2009 at page 3.)

3. At the Board's meeting on February 23, 2009, the respondent voted to approve the contract of the Business Administrator. The vote was five to two in favor of ratifying the contract. (Minutes of Regular Meeting, Greenwich Township Board of Education, February 23, 2009 at page 13.)

4. Minutes from the meeting on February 23, 2009 show that the Board went into Executive Session at 7:48 p.m. and returned from closed session at 9:10 p.m. The next item on the agenda was Personnel. The minutes read, in relevant part:

Motion: (Minniti/LaPalomento) to approve the following:

B. The approval of the contract for Scott A. Campbell, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, at a salary of $88,525.00, retroactive to July 1, 2008.

ANALYSIS

Based on the undisputed facts set forth above, the Commission previously found probable cause to credit the allegation that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on February 23, 2009, he voted to approve the contract of the Business Administrator. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) provides that:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment. No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he or a member of his immediate family has a personal involvement that is or creates some benefit to the school official or member of his immediate family;

The School Ethics Act at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "member of the immediate family" as the spouse or dependent child of a school official residing in the same household. The Commission's regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2 define "spouse" as "the person to whom the school official is legally married under New Jersey law and also includes a partner in a civil union couple as established in N.J.S.A. 37:1-33. Thus, the respondent's spouse is a member of his immediate family.

The material facts in this matter are not disputed. The respondent's wife is a secretary to the Business Administrator and on February 23, 2009, the respondent voted in public session to approve the contract of the Business Administrator. The Commission has advised that a Board member whose spouse works in the District may not participate in discussions or vote on employment issues concerning the employee's supervisors, including the Superintendent. Advisory Opinion A10-00 (June 27, 2000); Advisory Opinion A30-05 (March 10, 2006). In A30-

05, the Commission advised that Board member B, whose spouse worked as a secretary in the High School nurse's office, "would violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) if he were to participate in employment issues regarding the principal of the High School and the Superintendent." (A30-05 at p. 4) The Commission further advised that Board member B must recuse himself "from all discussions and votes with regard to those administrators." (Id., emphasis added) See also, School Ethics Commission v. Gunning, C15-93 (September 22, 1994).

Recently, the Commission found that a Board Member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when he voted to extend the contract of the Superintendent, where his wife was employed in the District as a truant officer, reporting directly to the Superintendent. I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10, decided March 11, 2010. In I/M/O Charles Carey, Pennsauken Bd. of Ed., C33-08 (March 23, 2010),[2] the Commission similarly found that a Board Member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when he voted to approve the 2008-2009 salary for the Superintendent, notwithstanding that the Board member's spouse, who was employed in the District as a secretary in the nurse's office, did not report directly to the Superintendent. In I/M/O Thomas Guarascio, Township Bd. of Ed., C40-08, April 20, 2010,[3] the Commission found that a Board member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when he voted at the Board's reorganization meeting to reappoint the Vice-Principal, Principal and Supervisor of Elementary Education where his wife was a tenured teacher in the District. The Commission finds, therefore, that when the respondent voted on February 23, 2009 to approve the contract and salary of the Business Administrator, he was acting in his official capacity in a matter where a member of his immediate family had an indirect financial involvement which a reasonable person could perceive to impair the respondent's objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).[4]

The Commission further notes that, in his statement, the respondent acknowledges that he was present in Executive Session when the Business Administrator's contract was discussed. The Commission, therefore, cautions the respondent that "when a school official has a conflict of interest of which the public is aware, and that school official goes behind closed doors when that item is discussed, the situation creates a justifiable impression among the public that their trust is being violated." SEC v. Michael Kilmurray, Lacey Twp. Bd. of Ed., C12-94 (January 27, 1998), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 155-98 (April 15, 1998), where the Commission therein advised that full recusal requires the conflicted school official to leave the room. See also, I/M/O Richard Filipek, Saddlebrook Bd. of Ed., C18-07 (June 24, 2008) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 317-08, decided July 23, 2008, where the Commission found that the respondent Board member, whose spouse was employed in the District, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by being present in his capacity as president of the Board and running

[3] This decision is pending review by the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c).

[4] In this connection, it is also noted that the respondent made the motion to approve the contract and salary of the Business Administrator. (See, Factual Finding #4.) The Commission has found that making a motion may be considered "official action." See, I/M/O Alexander Sipos, Garfield Bd. of Ed., C20-99 (May 23, 2000) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 221-00SEC, decided July 10, 2000.

two closed session meetings of the Board when the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal, his wife's direct supervisor, was discussed, notwithstanding that he did not participate in the vote. The Commission found that the respondent had a direct financial involvement in the tenure appointment of the middle/high school principal that would reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission finds that Frank Minniti violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when, on February 23, 2009, he voted to approve the contract and salary of the Business Administrator.

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of reprimand, as it did in matters which were both factually analogous and comparable in violation to the matter herein, for the reasons set forth in the above analysis, see, I/M/O Charles Carey, Pennsauken Bd. of Ed., C33-08 (March 23, 2010), I/M/O William Depsee, Woodland Park Board of Education, Passaic County, C30-09 (January 26, 2010), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 65-10, decided March 11, 2010 and because a penalty of reprimand is consistent with those decisions where there a respondent was found to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) in a single instance of voting on matters where they were conflicted. See, I/M/O Stewart, Atlantic City Bd. of Ed., Atlantic County, C20-07 (August 26, 2008), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 410-08, decided October 9, 2008; I/M/O Diana Lobosco, Passaic County Educational Services Commission, Passaic County, C31-05 (November 22, 2005), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 7-06, decided January 10, 2006.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought to transfer his son, A.J. to another school district based on respondent district's alleged failure to appropriately respond to an assault on A.J., and the district's failure to comply with applicable statutes and regulations governing school safety. The charges stem from a single incident in March of 2009, wherein A.J. was assaulted by an older student on the school bus. The OAL hearing in this matter was held on May 25, 2010.

The ALJ found that: the assault on the bus was an isolated incident, which was handled appropriately by the district; petitioner cites no legal basis for ordering the transfer of A.J. to another school; there are no other schools in the district; there is no legal basis for transferring A.J. to another school outside the district; A.J. testified that the other student did not bother him before or after the one incident, and that they continue to ride the bus together; there is no continuing evidence of bullying; and A.J. is progressing well in school. The ALJ concluded that the petition should be dismissed.

Upon full review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurred that the petition must be dismissed as there is no legal basis upon which the requested relief can be granted.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed and considered by the Commissioner.[1]

Petitioner's exceptions continue to express dissatisfaction with the way the District handled the March 26, 2009 incident involving his son. He charges that the District and its administrators have "a habit of falsifying information" and that if they had done a thorough investigation, they would have found that A.J. continues to be bullied. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1) He further urges that the letters from the District's witnesses regarding the incident be ignored because these individuals "intimidates [sic] their staff and students" (Id. at 2); he expresses his frustration at the Judge not being educated on the law of this particular matter (Id. at 3); and maintains that justice demands that A.J. receive a transfer. (Ibid.)

[1] It is noted, however, that petitioner's exceptions attempt to introduce for the first time a number of documents which were not a part of the hearing below. As such a submission is clearly contraindicated by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c), these documents were not considered herein.

Upon full review, the Commissioner is compelled to concur with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons presented on pages 4-5 of his decision – that there is no legal basis upon which the Commissioner can grant petitioner's requested relief.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 806-10
AGENCY DKT. NO. 22-2/10

F.J. O/B/O MINOR CHILD, A.J.,

v.
FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION,

F.J., petitioner, pro se

Frank DiDomenico, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: May 25, 2010 Decided: May 28, 2010

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, F.J., seeks to transfer his son, A.J., to another school district based on respondent district's alleged failure to appropriately respond to an assault on A.J. and the district's failure to comply with applicable statutes and regulations governing school safety. For the reasons discussed below the relief sought by petitioner is DENIED.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent requested a fair hearing and the matter was transmitted to the OAL on March 22, 2010, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matter was scheduled for a hearing on April 15, 2010, but was adjourned at the request of petitioner to enable him to retain the services of an attorney. The matter was rescheduled for hearing on May 25, 2010. The basis for emergent relief became moot. Petitioner appeared without counsel. Accordingly, the hearing proceeded on that date and the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

A.J. is currently an eleven year old, sixth grade student at the Fairfield Township School district. He as been a student in the Fairfield district since fourth grade. Fairfield is a kindergarten to eighth grade school district with 615 students.

On March 26, 2009, A.J. was in fifth grade and riding the bus to school. Student D. approached A.J. in the aisle. D. stated "move". A.J. moved but also called D. "dude." A.J. then sat or knelt on his seat. When D. passed by A.J. called him "dude" again. While A.J. was kneeling in his seat, D. pushed A.J.'s head into the window, causing his right cheek to hit the emergency latch. A.J. immediately felt blood running down his face.

The bus driver was alerted. She was at the last stop before reaching school. She radioed ahead for the nurse to meet A.J. outside when the bus arrived at the school. The remaining trip took only a few minutes. The nurse met A.J. at the bus and was taken to the nurse's office for treatment. The wound was cleaned and pressure placed on the wound to stop the bleeding. A.J.'s parents were contacted but neither parent responded to the calls. He was taken to the local emergency room for additional treatment. The nurse accompanied A.J to the emergency room. A.J. received about five stitches. (P-1).

The district investigated the incident and notified A.J.'s parents of its findings. The district disciplined D. This was summarized as follows:

> Please be advised that on March 26, 2009 your son, [A.J.], was assaulted on the school bus. It was reported that a male student pushed [A.] into the window causing an injury to his face. [A.] was seen by the nurse upon arrival to school. The emergency/rescue squad was called to transport him to South Jersey Hospital.
>
> [A.] reported that while he was looking for his book bag on the bus, the male student came in the aisle and said, "Move!" [A.] reported saying, "OK, Dude!" The male student told him not to call him dude because he is older. The male student walked toward the front of the bus. [A.] reported calling him dude again. The male student then pushed his head and cheek into the bus' window frame.
>
> The male student involved in the incident has been disciplined according to school district policies. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions or concerns.

A.J. testified. His testimony substantially agreed with the district's assessment of the incident. A.J. added that D. did not bother him before or after the incident. A.J. and D. continue to ride the bus together.

In April or May 2010, A.J. was in D.'s seat. D. told A.J. to move out of his seat. This scared A.J. because D. seemed agitated. But nothing further happened.

D. and A.J. live within a close range of each other (about 5 minutes by bike ride). They have not had any problems outside of school.

A.J. likes most of his teachers. He grades are good (As-Cs) and have improved since the 2009 incident. (R-10, 11, and 12). He is participating in the after school mentoring or tutoring program, which he enjoys. His parents have also been working with him on improving his grades.

A.J.'s father asserts that the district showed no compassion to his son during the incident. The police should have been called and the superintendent should have consoled A.J. A.J. remains afraid of D.[1] Therefore, A.J. is entitled to be transferred to another district. A.J.'s father insists that the district can and has transferred other students.

The district provided proof it fully investigated the incident, provided A.J. immediate and appropriate medical attention, and took disciplinary action. D. was suspended. Further, the district looked for evidence of bullying, and found it was not present. Many staff members were interviewed. (R-2 to R-4). The district supplied proof that its staff members are regularly trained and instructed on bullying. (R-6 to R-16.)

The district only has one school. There is nowhere else A.J. can be transferred. Fairfield has transferred other students out of district for special educations reasons. And the district does pay tuition for former homeless students. Otherwise, no student receives tuition payments resulting from a transfer.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

1. On March 26, 2009, A.J. was injured while riding the bus to school.

2. D. pushed A.J. into the widow.

3. The district immediately attempted to contact A.J.'s parents and provided immediate medical attention.

4. D. was disciplined for his actions.

5. D. and A.J. have not had any altercations since March 26, 2009, either in or outside of school.

[1] D. is currently in the seventh grade.

6. The district conducted an investigation whether A.J. was being bullied.

7. No evidence of bullying was found.

8. The district is not designated as a persistently dangerous school invoking the provision of No Child Left Behind (NCLB). (See, Respondent's Answer.)

The material facts as offered by all witnesses were consistent and undisputed. Thus no credibility issues were present.

CONCLUSIONS

Petitioner cites no legal basis for ordering the transfer of his son, A.J., to another school. He simply urges that his son be transferred to another school out of frustration or dissatisfaction with the district's handling of the March 2009 incident. But the district has no other school. And there is no legal basis for transferring A.J. to another school outside the district. There is no school choice or voucher system. Petitioner, on his own, may choose to go to a charter school.

A.J. is progressing adequately, his grades are improving, he likes most of his teachers, and enjoys the after school programs. The district has an anti-bullying policy and trains its staff member in violence prevention. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15; N.J.AC. 6A:16-(b)13. This is no evidence of bullying. The incident in question was isolated. Over one year has passed without further violence, harassment, cyber bullying, belittling, or other offensive conduct.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, the action filed by petitioner is DISMISSED. Petitioner may elect to go to a charter school or may request that his son take a different bus to school, if it is possible. This decision on petitioner's application for emergency relief resolves all of the issues raised in the due process complaint; therefore, no further proceedings in this matter are necessary.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: June 3, 2009 Decided: July 20, 2009

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was brought before the Board of Examiners as a result of the Commissioner of Education's referral of tenure charges brought against respondent, Dean Howarth, by his then-employer, the Maple Shade Board of Education. (Order to Show Cause, ¶2) The tenure matter was resolved when the school district withdrew the tenure case and Howarth agreed to resign from his tenured position in the school district. (Order to Show Cause, ¶4)

On February 22, 2007, the Board of Examiners issued an Order to Show Cause why Howarth's Teacher of Social Studies and Teacher of the Handicapped certificates should not be revoked or suspended based upon the allegations set forth in the tenure charges. Howarth filed an answer dated April 3, 2007, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 8, 2007, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was scheduled for hearing and hearings took place on May 27, July 24 and 29, and December 19, 2008, and on January 7, 2009. After the parties' submission of written closing arguments, the record was closed on June 3, 2009.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following is intended to be a summary of the testimony and evidence presented in this case. I also note that with certain minor exceptions, the essential facts relating to this case are not in dispute.

Stipulated facts

The parties entered into a Joint Stipulation of Facts (J-1) which are as follows:

1. Dean Howarth is the holder of a Teacher of Social Studies Certificate, issued in April 1987, and a Teacher of the Handicapped Certificate, issued in December 1994.

2. Howarth was employed as a special education teacher at the Maple Shade Jr./Sr. High School ("MSHS") from 1995 through 2005.

3. The MSHS Staff Acceptable Use Policy states, in part: The use of the information network must be in support of education and research consistent with the educational objectives of the district, school, and teacher.

4. Pursuant to the MSHS Staff Acceptable Use Policy, it is a violation of the policy to use the network for inappropriate purposes including, but not limited to "accessing sites that contain pornography, vulgar or obscene language, racist, sexist or ethnic remarks, or any other uses deemed objectionable in a public school environment."

5. Pursuant to the MSHS Staff Acceptable Use Policy, teachers are not permitted to "store files on network drives that are not consistent with the adopted curriculum and educational objectives of the district."

6. The MSHS Staff Acceptable Use Policy is incorporated in the MSHS Teacher Handbook.

82. For teachers, the MSHS "school day" begins at 7:30 a.m. and ends at 2:35 p.m.

Testimony of Cheryl Smith

Cheryl Smith, the Maple Shade Superintendent of Schools, testified that among her duties is to address complaints of teacher misconduct. The first complaint she received regarding Howarth was in 2003 when Raymond Marini, principal of the high school, advised her that Howarth and several other teachers had gone to lunch at a strip club in Philadelphia during a school day. On the date in question, the school was in the process of administering exams. The school day begins at 7:30 a.m. and ends at 2:45 p.m. and teachers were required to return to school after lunch. Those teachers not required to proctor an exam in the afternoon were given the time to correct examinations.

Ms. Smith testified that she and Mr. Marini met with each of the teachers individually. In Howarth's case, Mr. Andy Severin, the Education Association representative and Robin Sandusky, Howarth's supervisor met and during the meeting, Mr. Marini went over the facts, expressed disappointment at Mr. Howarth's conduct and read a letter of reprimand that was issued to Mr. Howarth. This letter of reprimand was placed in his file and stated that Howarth had demonstrated unprofessional behavior by visiting an establishment that compromised his reputation as a Maple Shade employee during the work day (P-1). It also indicated that this showed poor judgment, reflected poorly on the school district and compromised his professionalism. It indicated that this conduct was unbecoming a professional educator. Ms. Smith indicated that Howarth did not challenge anything that was said and gave the appearance that he understood.

In April 2005, Ms. Smith was contacted by Dr. Joseph Massari, the Superintendent of Schools for Pennsgrove School District. Mr. Massari indicated that there had been discovered some very disturbing e-mails that had been exchanged between Howarth and a Pennsgrove teacher, Richard Vozza. These e-mails were forwarded to Ms. Smith by fax. She took notes of this conversation with Dr. Massari (P-4).

Ms. Smith indicated that the school district has an acceptable use policy governing the use of school district computers and that the policy is that the computers are to be used for educational purposes (P-2). The policy is distributed to teachers as part of the staff handbook and is discussed at opening faculty meetings at the beginning of each school year.

Ms. Smith contacted the school district attorney who instructed her to have the director of technology confiscate Howarth's computer and bring it to her office.

Following this Howarth was suspended with pay for violation of the staff acceptable use policy (P-86).

In June 2005, Ms. Smith again met with Mr. Howarth and his union representative concerning the incident at which time Howarth was given an opportunity to explain why he believed his increment should not be withheld. Howarth defended his value to the district but did not express regret the incident had occurred. He was continued on suspension with pay until tenure charges were filed in September 2005. The tenure charges were resolved in June 2006 when the parties entered into a settlement agreement resulting in Howarth's resignation from Maple Shade.

Ms. Smith testified that in her opinion a number of the e-mails violates Maple Shade's staff acceptable use policy including P-9, P-10, P-30, P-49, P-35 of which contains an invoice for the purchase of DVD's, including a guide to foreplay and a guide to oral sex.

Testimony of Arunas Avizius

Arunas Avizius testified that he has been employed by the Maple Shade School District for thirty-one years and has been the technology administrator for the school district for fifteen years. His duties include the maintenance and protection of the district's technology and assisting teachers in incorporating technology into their instruction. He drafted the staff acceptable use policy and under that policy district computers are to be used for educational purposes, for research that supports education.

Avizius testified that at the request of Superintendent Smith he took possession of Mr. Howarth's computer by going to Howarth's classroom with the principal, Mr. Marini, and removing the computer from Howarth's desk. The computer was then secured in the Superintendent's office where it remained during his investigation. Avizius then investigated by reviewing e-mails for inappropriate content. While he was reviewing the e-mails he found pictures of nude women, inappropriate jokes and e-mails, and movie files.

Mr. Avizius explained that the "P Drive" is a private drive assigned to a specific user for file storage. The P Drive is part of the network and staff members are encouraged to store things on the P Drive rather than the local computer. Information on the P Drive must be placed there by the user. He then indicated that an e-mail client is a program that is used to access e-mail and that e-mail clients have folders which are locations where e-mails can be placed by the system or stored by the user. There are several standard folders to e-mail clients which include the in-box, out-box, sent items, deleted items and junk mail. He indicated that e-mail users can create additional "custom folders" and that e-mails do not appear in a custom folder unless they have been deliberately moved to that folder by the user. He also explained that an e-mail "header" contains information about the e-mail including the sender, the recipient, the date and time the e-mail was sent. He also explained that a sender must take affirmative action to attach a file to an e-mail as an attachment.

Mr. Avizius testified that with respect to Mr. Howarth's e-mail account, there were multiple custom folders created including those entitled "jokes", "saved", "important", and "dean", each of which had to have been affirmatively created. The custom folder "dean" contained P-11, P-51, P-55 and P-56, and the "important" folder contained P-61, P-62, P-64 and P-82. The custom folder "saved" contained P-76 and the custom folder "jokes" contained P-19. These exhibits contained vulgar language, a derogatory cartoon about homosexuals, multiple photographs of nude women and men, and a video clip entitled "This Old Whore House." He explained that each of these exhibits had to be affirmatively saved into their respective custom folders. He also testified that Mr. Howarth's local computer or "C Drive" contained inappropriate content. He found images reflected in P-83 on the C Drive and explained that an affirmative action is required for files to appear on the C Drive. Such an affirmative action was taken with respect to the image file that was attached to P-7 which is a photograph of a woman performing oral sex upon a man in a restaurant. He admitted that it is not possible to tell what time an e-mail was read but that if the recipient replied to or forwarded the email then the recipient would have viewed it some time between the time it was sent and the time that the user replied or forwarded it. While a person has no control over what comes into their e-mail box, if one repeatedly receives unwanted e-mails there are ways to block subsequent e-mails from that e-mail address.

Testimony of Raymond Marini

Raymond Marini, the former principal at Maple Shade High School testified that while he was principal he received complaints concerning Mr. Howarth. In February 2003, he learned that Howarth was with a group of teachers that went to a Go-Go Bar in Philadelphia during their lunch hour on a mid-term examination day. Teachers are required to return to school after lunch on exam days. He met with Howarth as well as the other teachers to discuss the incident and during that meeting Howarth admitted to visiting the Go-Go Bar during school hours and acknowledged that it was a poor choice.

Mr. Marini also testified of complaints regarding Howarth's use of his computer during class time on two separate occasions. On the first occasion, a parent raised the issue of Howarth's computer usage in a child study team meeting indicating that the child felt that Howarth was at the computer and not teaching. When Marini asked Howarth about this incident, his response was that he used the computer to answer e-mails from parents and to do educational research. Mr. Marini advised Howarth not to use class time for those purposes.

Mr. Marini testified that in April 2005 Superintendent Cheryl Smith advised Marini that she had received information that Howarth was using his computer in violation of the acceptable use policy. Marini explained that the acceptable use policy is provided to teachers in the faculty handbook and is also discussed at the opening day faculty meeting which all teachers are required to attend.

Mr. Marini testified that he maintained schedules for each individual teacher and identified Howarth's teaching schedules for the 2001-02 through 2004-05 school years

(P-85). By cross-referencing Howarth's teaching schedules with the various e-mail exhibits, Howarth's practice of sending inappropriate e-mails at times that he was scheduled to be instructing the students of Maple Shade are as follows:

Testimony of Robin Sandusky

Robin Sandusky testified that he is Director of Special Education and Mr. Howarth's supervisor. He indicated that in May 2004, a parent complained to him about Howarth's computer usage and that her child attributed poor performance to Howarth's excessive computer usage. When he met with Howarth to discuss it he indicated he was using the computer for educational reasons. Mr. Sandusky advised him not to do so. Mr. Sandusky received a second complaint about Howarth's excessive computer usage in December 2004. A child stated that all he ever does is sit at the computer and he never works with the students. Mr. Sandusky again spoke with Howarth and stated that it was inappropriate to use the computer during instructional time.

Testimony of Dean Howarth

Dean Howarth testified to his educational background and prior employment and work experience. He holds a Social Studies Comprehensive Certificate and a Teacher of the Handicapped Certificate. Prior to being employed in Maple Shade he taught three years at Gloucester High School and as a permanent substitute in Gateway Regional. He worked at Archway while he was going for his special education degree. He then began his employment at Maple Shade in 1994 until his termination in 2006. After Maple Shade he taught at Emily Fisher Charter School in Trenton from fall 2006 until February 2007. He then taught at Robbinsville High School until June 2008.

At Maple Shade, Howarth was co-advisor for the Junior High School Student Honor Society and Student Council. He was class advisor for the class of 1998. He coached wrestling for five years until 1999 because his own children were getting more demanding, injuries requiring surgery and philosophical disagreement as far as discipline. Other than the incidents recounted in this case he was never disciplined at Maple Shade.

Howarth testified first concerning the incident in which he and two other male teachers and four female teachers visited Penns Port Pub, a bar and restaurant located in Philadelphia, during their lunch hour. He believed that teachers were allowed to leave for the day after they completed their duties, and he did not return to school that day. In addition to being a bar and restaurant, there is a center stage visible from the restaurant on which a young woman wearing a bikini would dance. Howarth had been at this establishment approximately ten occasions previous to this over a ten-year period. A former student of Howarth's danced there but was not performing at the time of their visit. He did not contest the punishment imposed for having left work too early and patronizing an establishment that did not shed good light on the school.

Howarth testified concerning his use of the school computer. He recalled that there were two occasions when Mr. Marini brought to his attention complaints by parents or students that he was spending too much time on the computer. He vaguely recalled the first complaint involving a student who was failing his class because he refused to do his work and was absent eighty percent of the time. He believed this student was looking for excuses and trying to take the focus off of himself for his failing. The second complaint involved a failing student with behavior issues who was disruptive. That student was removed from his class and placed in a self-contained class in the high school. Nothing came of this second complaint.

Howarth admitted sending many personal e-mails during the time he was scheduled to be instructing classes. He also admitted that students were present in his classroom at the time that he would send the e-mails. He admitted that nearly every exhibit introduced in this matter was on his Maple Shade computer and e-mail account. He specifically denied having previously seen only one of the exhibits and admitted that he basically saw pretty much everything.

Howarth acknowledged receiving a copy of the acceptable use policy from the school district at the beginning of the school year and admitted that he is familiar with the policy. However, he indicated that at the time of these occurrences he did not understand that it was wrong to send, receive or store the materials contained in the exhibits on his school computer. He acknowledged that some of the material on the computer can be offensive when he was brought to the superintendent's office and it was explained to him. He admitted that it was probably a poor choice to look at the material and that he should have used better judgment. He admitted that he should have requested that the sender stop sending inappropriate e-mails to his Maple Shade e-mail account, but he did not do so.

Howarth admitted that he sent and/or received a series of e-mails on his school computer on March 31, 2004 (P-74), on April 1, 2005 (P-28), April 4, 2005 (P-29 and P-30), April 5, 2005 (P-32, P-33, P-34 and P-36) and April 6, 2005 (P-32, P-37, P-39, P-40, P-42 and P-43). The time he spent doing so amounted to about two minutes here and there. He testified that these dates were right before the end of the marking period when he implemented a "make-up week." During the first week of April 2005, he did not lecture, but allowed his students to work independently at their desks. If a student had a question or needed assistance the student would ask him and he would help the student at the student's desk. He never left the room but would be at his desk grading papers, preparing exams and helping students when asked. He acknowledged that this make-up week was neither sanctioned nor approved by the school district or the special education department. However, the school's administrators and teachers were happy with it.

Howarth testified that, as to additional dates referred to by Mr. Marini, March 18, 2004 (P-10), October 13, 2004 (P-13), November 29, 2004 (P-14), December 3, 2004 (P-16), January 18, 2005 (P-19), and March 9, 2005 (P-22), and some others not referred to by Mr. Marini, January 8, 2003 (P-63), January 21, 2003 (P-70), March 18, 2004 (P-70), March 23, 2004 (P-72), March 24, 2004 (P-72) and March 24, 2005 (P-77). With respect to these exhibits Howarth explained that in a special education classroom a teacher usually cannot lecture for the entire forty-two minutes or even thirty-five minutes because their attention spans are very, very short. Lessons are done in short segments so you might do an exercise, go over it on the board and then have a break and then a short segment. He never stopped teaching to use the computer but only used it during the breaks between segments. In addition, he would only spend a minute here and a minute there or at the end of class while students were starting their homework.

Howarth was referred to the book of exhibits and testified that he did not see all of these exhibits before they were placed in the book. There was a movie in there about an old house that he did not see. He testified that he saw about eighty-five percent of the items in the book that were on his computer. He does not know which he saw. Some of the e-mails came up blank and others were sent to him that he did not request. At the time he did not believe it was wrong to have this material on the computer. He now believes it was wrong. He acknowledges that some things could offend people and he then realized it was wrong. When he met Mrs. Smith a second time and proposed discipline was to be discussed, he apologized and he then realized that some of the material was offensive. He apologized and was sorry for the negative impact on the school, his family and the students. The students suffered by him not being in the classroom as a result of these charges. It also caused stress at home and stress to other teachers.

Howarth testified he had excellent rapport with parents and students. He never engaged in any improper actions with the students. He acknowledged sending and receiving the material. He testified that he received pictures of naked people from Mr. Ranchoff, who was still employed and he received mostly jokes including nudity from Mr. Brad Bauer. No one other than he was to be terminated. The tenure charges against him were settled and he has lost salary and pay because of the tenure charges and because of his employment at lesser salary at both the Charter School and Robbinsville. His employment at Robbinsville was ended when an anonymous e-mail containing a newspaper article about the Maple Shade situation was sent to Robbinsville principal and others. Robbinsville had a few instances of teacher indiscretion and they did not want to take a chance on bad publicity so he was placed on administrative leave and not rehired. All of his evaluations after his leaving Maple Shade have been excellent.

Howarth acknowledged that he did not request that the e-mails not be sent to him and did not do so. He acknowledged receiving a copy of the Acceptable Use Policy (P-2). He testified that he expressed remorse at his second meeting with Mrs. Smith. The tenure charges had not been filed by then.

Testimony of S.C.

S.C. testified that she formerly resided in Maple Shade from 1998 to 2003. Her son B.C., who was classified as Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), had Howarth as his teacher from seventh to tenth grade. His only teacher in tenth grade was Howarth. B.C. left the school district at the beginning of the tenth grade because he was acting out and was a troublemaker. He was placed in an alternative school in Cherry Hill. She was not satisfied with his placement and felt that B.C. did not belong there. Howarth fought to have him come back and was able to get him returned to the school district.

Howarth was excellent teaching B.C. his tenth grade work while others in the class were at the seventh and eighth grade level. She was absolutely happy with Howarth's teaching ability and his dedication to her son. Howarth would talk to B.C. and encourage him to do his schoolwork. On occasion he would come to the house when B.C. did not want to go to school in order to convince him to attend. When B.C. got involved with drugs Howarth visited him at the Detention Center and Rehab Center for six months. B.C. loves Howarth. She feels that Howarth went above and beyond his duties as a teacher. She has no relationship with Howarth; he was only her son's teacher.

Testimony of Marion Haggerty

Marion Haggerty testified to her educational background and teaching certificates, which include health and physical education, and special education K through twelve. She remains employed by Maple Shade. She knows Mr. Howarth and has worked with him for twelve years as a colleague. She socialized with him only when in school. Her class was in the same area as Howarth and they shared a large room in which portable walls were installed to separate their classes. They shared the room for one or two years. She taught grades seven and eight with one ninth grade social studies class. Sometimes she taught jointly with Mr. Howarth. She identified the classroom layout (P-87).

She could look over the portable partitions dividing the classrooms when she stood on her toes. The desks in Howarth's room faced away from the computer. She never saw any students at or looking at Howarth's computer. No student or anyone else ever complained about his computer and she never saw anything on his computer other than schoolwork. She observed Howarth teaching and found him to be very organized, and he had a good rapport with his students. He was light-hearted, well structured and knew his content. On occasions, he helped pay for needy students' lunches on class trips.

Before exams students were given an opportunity and extra time to make up incomplete work, and this was more prevalent in special education. Students were allowed to work at their desks during that time to avoid failure. She indicated that students only worked on make-up work or exam review packets before the exams.

Exams took place twice a year and during exams there was a half-day schedule. Her understanding is when a teacher was finished with the exams they were allowed to leave school and there was no policy which required a teacher to remain. She has left school as well as stayed in school after exams. Teachers were permitted to leave during lunch period on regular school days, but that was almost impossible because there is only a twenty-two minute lunch period. She understood there was no formal policy at all on exam days. She felt that teachers could go home because they were no longer assigned with student contact. She never saw Howarth leave the class unattended. She said there was no policy on where teachers could go after exams.

Testimony of Frances M. Schuld

Frances M. Schuld testified to her educational background and teaching certificates which included social studies K through twelve. He taught social studies at Maple Shade and was the head wrestling coach from 1985 through 2002 for a total of eighteen years. He knew Howarth before he came to Maple Shade. Howarth is a friend but they do not see each other since Howarth left. He recommended Howarth to Maple Shade and regarded him highly as a wrestling coach. He coached with Howarth for approximately four to five years when Howarth was an assistant coach and he felt Howarth was outstanding and had an outstanding relationship with students. Howarth helped him deal with problem children such as R.R. He was extremely professional, very knowledgeable and handled all students very well. Other teachers were positive toward Howarth. He never saw any inappropriate conduct by Howarth and there were never any complaints from students.

With regard to exams, there was no written rule that said a teacher could not leave. He was not aware of any other incidents where teachers were disciplined for going to lunch. Howarth stopped coaching wrestling because he had a disagreement concerning discipline of a student. This has not affected their relationship.

Testimony of Molly Cristine Avery

Molly Cristine Avery testified to her educational background and teaching certificates. She knows Dean Howarth. He was a special education teacher at Robbinsville while she was principal. They last worked together in March 2008. His contract was not renewed but she was not involved in that decision. His evaluations were all satisfactory and there were never any complaints by any students or parents. He was held in high regard and never engaged in any inappropriate conduct. In March 2008, there was an anonymous e-mail sent with a copy of a newspaper article concerning allegations of misconduct in Maple Shade. She forwarded this to her boss and Howarth stopped working at Robbinsville. At the end of the school year Howarth was not renewed. Based on Howarth's performance everything was positive and she had no concerns about his conduct or activities. She was not asked for her recommendation but could not recommend him because she never observed him teach.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The Board of Examiners is authorized by N.J.A.C. 6A:9-I7.5 to revoke or suspend the certificate or certificates of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. However, the Board of Examiners may not revoke or suspend a certificate without providing the holder an opportunity to be heard pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.6.

While "conduct unbecoming a teacher" is not specifically defined in either the statutes or regulations, judicial interpretation has proscribed a broad range of behavior as "conduct unbecoming a teacher." State Bd. of Exam'rs. v. Schumacher, EDE 7396-03, Initial Decision (July 19, 2005), Final Decision, Bd. of Exam'rs. (Sept. 22, 2005) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. The broad scope of unbecoming conduct is necessitated by the high standard to which teachers are held because of the amount of influence they exercise over students. State Bd. of Exam'rs v. Charlton, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDE) 18, citing In re the Certificates of Bradley, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDE) 5, 13.

In In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974), cert. den'd., 65 N.J. 292 (1974), the court noted that the "touchstone of the determination lies in the certificate holder's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." Unfitness for a position may be shown by a series of incidents or one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Ed. of Educ. 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (1943)

In administrative proceedings such as this, the prosecuting party bears the burden of proving essential elements of fact by a preponderance of competent and credible evidence, i.e., sufficient to assure reliability and to avoid the appearance of arbitrariness. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(a), (c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5; In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550, 566-69 (1982); In re Kerlin, 151 N.J. Super. 179, 184, n.2 (App. Div. 1977); see also Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962); In re the Certificates of Papadaniil, EDE 8821-00 Initial Decision (March 13, 2002), adopted Exam'rs. (May 9, 2002) (citations omitted). "Evidence is found to 'preponderate' if it establishes the reasonable probability of the fact alleged and generates a reasonable belief that the tendered hypothesis . . . is true." State Bd. of Exam'rs v. Ferreira, OAL Dkt. No. EDE 3390-04 (July 5, 2005) adopted, Exam'rs (Sept. 22, 2005) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. The certificate holder must then demonstrate facts that counter the charges set forth in the Order to Show Cause. State Ed. of Exam'rs v. Brown, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDE) 5.

1. Whether the evidence establishes that Dean Howarth engaged in the alleged conduct?

In the Joint Stipulation of Facts, the parties stipulated to the existence of P-5 through P-82 (excluding Exhibit P-74) on Howarth's school computer. The undisputed testimony of Mr. Avizius, the school district technology administrator was that these exhibits were all contained within files and folders on Howarth's computer. While respondent's attorney seems to argue that there is no evidence of Howarth's viewing these exhibits, Howarth's own testimony admitted sending many personal e-mails concerning these exhibits and seeing all but one of the exhibits. In fact, Howarth admitted that he basically saw pretty much everything on his computer. He also admitted not advising the senders of this material to stop sending him this material. It is also clear, based upon the computer records and the testimony of Mr. Avizius that Howarth affirmatively saved and forwarded many of these exhibits.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that the testimony and evidence in this matter overwhelmingly establishes that Howarth engaged in the conduct as alleged by the petitioner by sending, receiving, forwarding, saving and otherwise viewing and reviewing the exhibits stipulated to have been found on his computer. In addition, I FIND that Howarth acknowledged and admitted to attending a Go-Go bar during work hours in 2003.

2. Whether Dean Howarth's alleged conduct is unbecoming conduct?

I have carefully reviewed the cases relied upon by the petitioner in support of its request to revoke the teaching certificates of the respondent. In Board of Education of the Borough of Madison v. Grundfest, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5326-98, Initial Decision (March 29, 2000), Final Decision, (June 20, 2000) http://www.lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html, the Commissioner reversed the decision of the ALJ finding the teacher guilty of the charges based on questionable evidence. However, the Commissioner specifically noted that "the charge of accessing pornographic materials on a school computer is reprehensible and, if proven true, violates a sacred trust between the teacher and his students."

In In the Matter of the Certificate of Gomes, Agency Dkt. No. 0304-172, Final Decision, Examiners (April 20, 2004) http://www.lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html, a teacher employed as a teacher of social studies was charged with unbecoming conduct for accessing pornographic websites on the school district's computers located in the school library. It was later discovered that the teacher had obtained access to pornographic websites from computers in other school district classrooms. The Board of Examiners found that the teacher's behavior was highly inappropriate in that he accessed twenty different pornographic sites on forty-four different occasions. It held that this flagrant misuse of district resources showed a lack of judgment and a failure to comply with the heavy duty of self-restraint and controlled behavior which is imposed on a teacher.

In Matter of Certificates of Donahue, Agency Dkt. No. 0708-208, Final Decision, Examiners (March 31, 2009), a middle school librarian was found guilty of unbecoming conduct based on her accessing pornographic websites over a three-day period using the circulation desk computer during school hours. She was also charged with sending e-mail messages concerning inappropriate, obscene, lude or vulgar language to another district employee. The Board of Examiners indicated that even though no students were exposed to the offending material, this was only a matter of happenstance and does not lessen the severity of these actions or the potential for harm. The Board determined that her abuse of the public trust and misuse of the district's computer was central to her job function as a school librarian and thus was sufficiently flagrant that only one incident would have been sufficient.

I have carefully reviewed all of the exhibits submitted in evidence by stipulation of the parties upon which the allegation of unbecoming conduct is based. I FIND that virtually all of these exhibits violate the Maple Shade Board of Education Policy on Acceptable Use of the information network. I FIND that a number of the exhibits include nude photographs, generally of women, that are clearly inappropriate and objectionable in the public school environment. These include Exhibits P-5, P-7, P-8, P-11, P-13, P-16, P-19, P-20, P-22, P-55, P-61, P-69, P-74, and P-79 (duplicate of an earlier exhibit). P-21 possibly contains nudity but it is unclear from the exhibit. In addition, of these exhibits containing nudity I FIND at least three of them are pornographic in nature because they are photographs that depict either sexual activity or erotic poses designed to arouse sexual excitement. These exhibits are P-7 depicting oral sex, P-8 which is a series of photographs purporting to show an exercise class but progressing to erotic poses by females which are designed to arouse sexual excitement, and P-22 consisting of a series of erotic poses by females which are designed to arouse sexual excitement.

Based upon the guidance given by the Commissioner of Education in Grundfest, supra, and by the Board of Examiners in Gomes, supra, and Donahue, supra, and after taking into account the surrounding circumstances, I FIND the actions and conduct of Howarth in this case clearly amount to unbecoming conduct. His conduct and actions were a flagrant misuse of district resources and showed a lack of judgment and a failure to comply with the heavy duty of self-restraint and controlled behavior imposed on a teacher. In particular, Howarth's conduct in accessing, saving and forwarding those exhibits on his school computer which I found to be pornographic in nature is reprehensible and violates a sacred trust with his students.

3. What is the appropriate penalty under the circumstances?

In Gomes, supra, the Board of Examiners revoked the teacher's certificate for highly inappropriate behavior in accessing pornographic sites on school computers. The Board concluded that this revocation should occur because his flagrant misuse of district resources showed a lack of judgment and a failure to comply with the heavy duty of self-restraint and controlled behavior imposed on a teacher. In Donahue, supra, the Board determined that a school librarian's abuse of the public trust and misuse of the district's computer was central to her job function thus was sufficiently flagrant that only one incident would have been sufficient. Mitigating factors such as her unblemished record and the character testimony presented that she was well-liked by students and staff and had performed charitable works for her community, while laudable, did not outweigh the aggravating circumstances surrounding this offense. The Board of Examiners concluded that the only proper response to this breach is revocation.

In this case, respondent asserts a number of mitigating factors. However, I have given little, if any, weight to the settlement agreement between the Maple Shade Board of Education and Howarth. That settlement agreement is not a decision on the merits, and the Board of Examiners is not bound by the determinations made therein, but may make its own separate and independent determinations based on the merits in this case.

Likewise, I have given little, if any, weight to the possible misuse of school district computers by other staff and administrators at Maple Shade. The fact that other educators in the school district may have violated their trust to the students cannot be used to justify or mitigate the conduct and actions of the respondent in this case.

The testimony and evidence clearly indicates that Howarth's performance as a teacher is good to excellent. His colleagues and other educators as well as parents found him to be a dedicated and effective teacher. However, Howarth's prior excellent record and his subsequent realization of the error of his ways does not mitigate the extraordinary lack of judgment he has shown in this case.

I FIND that Howarth's actions and conduct are such that he is unfit to discharge the duties and functions as a teacher. In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, supra, 127 N.J. Super. at 29. I FIND that the only proper response to the flagrant breach of trust on the part of Howarth is the revocation of his teaching certificates. Redcay v. State Ed. of Educ., supra, 130 N.J.L. at 371. I make this finding with some feelings of regret because of Howarth's prior record as a dedicated and effective teacher, but believe it to be necessary for the protection of the students of the State of New Jersey.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that Certificates of Dean Howarth as a Teacher of Social Studies and a Teacher of the Handicapped are REVOKED and his appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the State Board of Examiners does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the SECRETARY OF THE STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, 1000 Riverview Plaza, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
DEAN HOWARTH	:	ORDER OF REVOCATION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 0607-156

At its meeting of January 18, 2007, the State Board of Examiners reviewed a decision forwarded by the Commissioner of Education that had settled a tenure case brought against Dean Howarth by the Maple Shade Board of Education (Maple Shade) for charges of unbecoming conduct. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Dean Howarth, Docket No. EDU 08830-05 (Commissioner's Decision, July 10, 2006). Howarth currently holds a Teacher of Social Studies certificate, issued in March 1987, and a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in December 1994.

This case originated in September 2005, when the Maple Shade Board of Education certified tenure charges against Howarth. The district charged him with conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member for using a school computer visible to students to send and receive sexually explicit and racist e-mails during his instructional time, sending negative e-mails concerning the district and its students and visiting a strip club during lunchtime of an in-service day and returning to school late with the smell of alcohol on his breath.

The Acting Commissioner of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). After the hearing had begun, the parties settled the matter. Howarth resigned from his tenured position and the district paid him back salary and benefits. The Acting Commissioner approved the settlement and transmitted the matter to the Board of Examiners for appropriate action. Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 1.

Thereafter, on February 22, 2007, the State Board of Examiners issued Howarth an Order to Show Cause as to why his certificates should not be suspended or revoked. The Order was predicated on the charges of unbecoming conduct that had been alleged in the tenure hearing.

The Board sent Howarth the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on March 5, 2007. The Order provided that Howarth's Answer was due within 30 days. Howarth filed an Answer on April 3, 2007. In his Answer, Howarth admitted that the district had brought tenure charges against him but denied that the allegations warranted the suspension or revocation of his certificates. (Answer, ¶¶ 4, 6.)

Thereafter, on June 8, 2007, the Board transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case. A hearing was conducted before Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Joseph Martone on several dates in May, July and December 2008, and in January 2009. After the record closed, ALJ Martone issued his Initial Decision on July 20, 2009. In the Matter of the Certificates of Howarth, Dkt. No. EDE 4479-07 (Initial Decision, July 20, 2009). In that decision, ALJ Martone concluded that Howarth had engaged in the conduct alleged in the Order to Show Cause "by sending, receiving, forwarding saving and otherwise viewing and reviewing the exhibits stipulated to be found on his computer." Id. at 27. The ALJ found that "virtually all of the exhibits" submitted into evidence by stipulation of the parties violated Maple Shade's policy on "Acceptable Use of the Information network." Id. at 28. Moreover, the ALJ noted that many of the exhibits contained nudity and at least three were pornographic in nature. Id. at 28. The ALJ also found that "Howarth acknowledged and admitted to attending a Go-Go bar during work hours in 2003." Id. at 27. ALJ Martone determined that Howarth's actions and conduct in the case clearly amounted to unbecoming conduct: "His conduct and actions were a flagrant misuse of district resources and showed a lack of judgment and a failure to comply with the heavy duty of self-restraint and controlled behavior imposed on a teacher." Id. at 29. Howarth's conduct in "saving, accessing and forwarding" the pornographic exhibits was particularly "reprehensible" according to the ALJ and "violate[d] a sacred trust with his students." Ibid.

In considering the appropriate penalty in the case, ALJ Martone noted that Howarth "assert[ed] a number of mitigating factors." Id. at 29. The ALJ gave little weight, however, to Howarth's settlement agreement in his tenure case as it was not binding on the Board of Examiners. Id. at 29-20. Similarly, Howarth's argument that other staff members in Maple Shade were also misusing district computers was given short shrift by the ALJ as that excuse could not justify or mitigate Howarth's conduct. Id. at 30. ALJ Martone did note Howarth's record as a dedicated and effective teacher, but added that his "prior excellent record and his subsequent realization of the error of his ways does not mitigate the extraordinary lack of judgment he has shown in this case." Ibid. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the only appropriate penalty was the revocation of Howarth's teaching certificates. Ibid.

Howarth submitted Exceptions and the Deputy Attorney General (DAG) representing the Board of Examiners submitted Reply Exceptions. In his Exceptions, Howarth admitted that he had inappropriate e-mails on his school computer but argued that no evidence was produced to show when he opened and reviewed the e-mails that he received. (Exceptions, pp. 9-11.) Howarth also argued that the District's policy on acceptable personal use of district computers was unclear and that Maple Shade allowed teachers to use their school computers for personal use during the same time period he had received, stored or sent e-mails from his district computer. (Exceptions, pp. 11-16.) Howarth contended that he never accessed pornographic sites using the internet, but rather, was accused only of sending and receiving explicit e-mails.

(Exceptions, pp. 21-22.) He maintained that most of the e-mails sent to him were by persons over whom he had no control. (Exceptions, p. 22.) He also argued that there was no proof that his job performance was diminished in any way or that any student saw or was harmed by the e-mails. (Exceptions, pp. 22-23.) Howarth also claimed that the ALJ erred when he gave little weight to Howarth's mitigation evidence, especially the settlement agreement from his tenure case wherein the District "was essentially agreeing that Mr. Howarth was still qualified to teach in the public schools of New Jersey." (Exceptions, p. 26.). Howarth reiterated his claims that other District staff members had sent and received inappropriate e-mails and that he was an outstanding teacher whose computer use "neither affected his instruction of his students nor contributed to any deficiency in his teaching performance." (Exceptions, pp. 28-30; 30.)

In her reply, the DAG argued that the "Initial Decision, and the factual findings and legal conclusions contained therein, are amply supported by the evidence presented at hearing." (Reply Exceptions, p. 1.) She noted that ALJ Martone had found that Howarth had sent, received, forwarded and saved the inappropriate exhibits found on his school computer, that he had attended a Go-Go bar during school hours, and that at least several of the exhibits were pornographic in nature. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 1-2.) The DAG further claimed that ALJ Martone's legal conclusion that Howarth engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member was correct. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 3-6.) She noted that Howarth's behavior was particularly egregious, because his e-mails were sent regularly over several years and during periods when Howarth was supposed to be engaged in classroom instruction, and because some of his e-mails contained highly inappropriate commentary regarding female students at Maple Shade. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 6-7.) She further argued that a settlement agreement in a tenure proceeding is not controlling in a revocation case and that ALJ Martone was therefore correct in according it "little, if any, weight." (Reply Exceptions, pp. 8-9.) Finally, the DAG argued that Howarth's claims that it was impossible to tell when and for how long he viewed the offensive e-mails, and that no students viewed any of the e-mails, were distractions from the real issue of his unbecoming conduct. (Exceptions, pp. 9-12.) Accordingly, the DAG noted that "Howarth's exceptions do nothing to undermine the integrity of the Initial Decision," and urged the Board of Examiners to adopt it as the "Final Decision in this matter." (Reply Exceptions, p. 13.)

The Board must now determine whether to adopt, modify or dismiss the Initial Decision in this matter. At its meeting of October 22, 2009, the Board reviewed the Initial Decision, Exceptions and Reply Exceptions. After full and fair consideration of the Decision, Exceptions and Reply Exceptions and the issues raised therein, the Board voted to adopt the Initial Decision.

As a preliminary matter, the Board must address Howarth's claim that the settlement agreement in his tenure case should carry more weight in this proceeding than that accorded to it by ALJ Martone. That argument is unfounded. As the DAG correctly noted in her Reply Exceptions, neither the presiding ALJ's nor the Commissioner's approval of a settlement in a tenure case necessarily signifies agreement with the substance of the provisions, but rather an acknowledgment that the agreement comports with the legal requirements for settlement. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 7-8.) Moreover, only the Board of Examiners is imbued with the statutory authority to determine who is qualified to possess a teaching certificate in New Jersey. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. That purview extends far beyond the limited scope of determining whether a teaching staff member has engaged in conduct which renders him unsuitable for a particular district. Instead, the Board of Examiners must be mindful of its responsibility to all New Jersey public school children by removing from its classrooms all teachers who are detrimental to their welfare. In view of that heavy burden, settlement of a tenure matter, which may be prompted by vastly different concerns, has no bearing whatsoever on a revocation proceeding.

There is no doubt that the ALJ is in the best position to render credibility determinations in this matter. Accordingly, the Board will defer to those findings. As noted above, ALJ Martone found that Howarth was a dedicated teacher who nevertheless engaged in inappropriate and, at times, reprehensible conduct with regard to sending and receiving inappropriate and pornographic e-mails at work. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 29, 30.) The record is replete with exhibits which no reasonable individual could argue were in any way appropriate for workplace viewing, let alone further dissemination. Howarth's claim that "everyone else was doing it" rings hollow and runs counter to the purpose of allowing mitigation. Although ALJ Martone expressed some regret at revoking Howarth's certificates, the Board of Examiners shares no such misgivings. Howarth has clearly engaged in conduct that negates any claim he can have as a role model for children. In fact, his behavior was harmful to students in that they lost valuable instructional time because he was otherwise occupied. Moreover, the fact that no student viewed this material on his computer is mere happenstance and not a cause for acclamation. As we have noted previously, "failing to get 'caught in the act' by students does not lessen the severity of [Howarth's] actions or the potential for harm." In the Matter of the Certificates of Darlene Donahue, Dkt. No. 0708-208 (Bd. of Examiners, March 31, 2009.) The potential for seeing the material existed and therefore does not lessen the severity of the offense. The Examiners therefore agree with the ALJ's conclusion that the only appropriate response to Howarth's breach is the revocation of his teaching certificates. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 30.)

Accordingly, on October 22, 2009, the Board of Examiners voted to adopt the Initial Decision and revoke Howarth's teaching certificates. On this 2nd day of December 2009, the Board of Examiners formally adopted its written decision to adopt the Initial Decision in this matter, and it is therefore ORDERED that Dean Howarth's Teacher of Social Studies and Teacher of the Handicapped certificates be hereby revoked effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Howarth return his certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

CHARLES COLEMAN,

v.
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY
Respondent.

Eugene G. Liss, Esq., for petitioner

Bernard Mercado, Associate Counsel, for respondent (Lisa Pollak, General Counsel)

Record Closed: May 10, 2010 Decided: May 14, 2010

BEFORE DANIEL B. MC KEOWN, ALJ (t/a):

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Charles Coleman (petitioner) filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education in which he contends that he acquired tenure as a teacher in the employ of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (Board). Petitioner further asserts that the Board violated his tenure rights when it determined not to continue his employment as a teacher into the 2008–09 academic year. The Board filed its Answer and denies petitioner's claim of tenure. The Board says its action regarding petitioner's non-reemployment is in all respects proper.

After the Commissioner of Education transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, the matter was assigned to administrative law judge Joseph Paone, who subsequently was appointed to the New Jersey Superior Court. Judge Paone's appointment resulted in the case being assigned to this administrative law judge on or about January 30, 2010. A hearing was scheduled to be conducted on May 7, 2010. At the opening of the record, counsel to the parties were granted time to discuss the possibility of settling the matter, rather than proceed to hearing. After approximately one hour, the record was continued, at which time counsel announced that a settlement had been reached. For the following reasons, the conclusion is reached that the Commissioner of Education should adopt the settlement as a full, fair, and final disposition of the matter.

BACKGROUND OF DISPUTE

Petitioner alleges in his petition that at the conclusion of the 2007–08 school year he had served as a fully certified teacher in the Board's employ for four years and eight months. Three years of such employment was under written contract, while the remaining time of employment was on a per-diem basis.

It is noted that at the hearing, the parties stipulated that petitioner possesses an instructional certificate with an elementary endorsement, and that during all times of his employment he was assigned within the scope of the endorsement to an elementary position. On or about May 9, 2008, petitioner was advised by the former superintendent of schools that his employment was not to be continued into the 2008–09 school year. Petitioner requested and was granted an opportunity to be heard by the Board. Though petitioner claimed a tenure status during the opportunity to be heard, the Board determined to affirm the determination not to continue his employment.

In addition to his claim of tenure, petitioner also alleges that the Board erred in its determination not to continue his employment because it failed to cause an appropriate number of observations and evaluations of his performance to be made, that he was the target of unlawful discrimination because of race, and that he was the target of religious bias because of his Muslim faith.

SETTLEMENT

The Board, relying on a risk-reward analysis, agrees that petitioner may be likely to show that at least one of the days he taught on a per-diem basis could reasonably be considered time served as a teacher for purposes of his acquiring tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The Board acknowledges that petitioner is a satisfactory teacher and that under the new superintendent of schools, whose title is now executive director, petitioner will more likely than not be an effective teacher for the students of Newark. The Board says it is prudent for it to use its financial resources for Newark students, as opposed to litigating an issue on which it may not prevail.

Under the offer made by the Board, petitioner would be considered to have acquired a tenure status in its employ, and returned to a teaching position within the scope of the endorsement on his certificate at the commencement of the 2010–11 school year. He would receive no back pay, nor any other remuneration from the Board, and he would be placed on step 12 of the appropriate salary scale. The Board explains that the time between now and the commencement of the 2010–11 school year will provide the Commissioner of Education time to review the Initial Decision and the record compiled on May 7, 2010.

If the settlement is approved by the Commissioner, the Board would consider petitioner to have been on an approved unpaid administrative leave since June 30, 2008. Board counsel represents that the executive director of the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark agrees with the pre-offered terms.

Petitioner testified under oath that he understands the terms of the settlement; that he discussed the terms with his attorney; that he understands that he is entitled to a hearing on his petition, but that he waives such entitlement upon his acceptance of the settlement; that he embraces the terms of the settlement in a voluntary manner; and that he accepts the pre-offered terms as a full and final settlement of the matter.

CONCLUSION

As is required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-19-1, I CONCLUDE that the testimony given under oath by petitioner establishes that his acceptance of the settlement terms is voluntary, is consistent with the law, and is fully dispositive of all issues in controversy. Therefore, I approve the settlement as disposing of all issues presented in the petition of appeal. The parties are ordered to comply with the terms of the settlement as set out above.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT
Respondent.	:

The parties in this appeal have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement that fully disposes of all issues in controversy between Charles Coleman ("Coleman" or "Petitioner") and the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (the "District"):

1. Petitioner agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, his appeal and request for a hearing filed under OAL Docket No. EDUOR 11818-2008N.

2. The District agrees to reinstate Petitioner in September 2010 for the 2010-11 school year. Petitioner will be assigned to a location other than Barringer 9th Grade Success Academy.

3. Coleman will receive no back pay as part of this Agreement but will be placed on the salary guide at Step 12 upon his reinstatement. Coleman will also be credited with the sick days he otherwise would have received and will be deemed to have attained a tenure status with the State-Operated Newark Public Schools.

4. This agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other employees.

5. Except as noted above, Petitioner waives all claims of any nature against Respondent with regard to this matter, including fees, or other monetary relief, with the exception of workers' compensation.

6. Except as noted above, Coleman waives all claims against the District with regard to this matter in any forum, including back pay, counsel fees, or other monetary relief. This includes without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Petitioner's employment with the District. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Petitioner may have regarding tenure, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, any federal or state civil rights law, any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the Federal False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; the retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law (and including any and all amendments to the above) and/or any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance, and/or contract or implied contract or tort law or public policy or whistleblower claim, or collective bargaining/ contractual claim relating to employment, having any bearing whatsoever on his employment with the District, including, but not limited to, any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wage, commission or bonus payment, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss.

7. The parties respectively acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Settlement Agreement and that each is signing this Settlement Agreement freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

8. This Settlement Agreement constitutes the full agreement between the parties, and shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law.

9. If any provision of this Settlement Agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction, or determined under applicable federal or state law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will continue in full force and effect.

10. This Agreement is subject to the State District Superintendant of the State-operated School District of the City of Newark and will only become effective upon the approval of the State District Superintendent. Any disapproval by the Superintendent shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education (Lakewood) sought Medicaid reimbursement for special education students who have been parentally placed in private schools. The petition originally sought relief exclusively through the Department of Education, which raised jurisdictional questions. The petition was then withdrawn and filed in the Appellate Division of Superior Court, naming the three respondents herein. The court remanded the matters for hearing at the OAL, where they were consolidated and predominant interest was established in the Department of Human Services. The record before the Commissioner includes the Initial Decision of the OAL and the Final Agency Decision of the Department of Human Services.

The ALJ identified the core question of law in this matter as the interplay of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA) and a provision of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 (42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c)), and found that: prior to 1988, Medicaid did not reimburse special education services because they were covered under the IDEIA; the Medicaid amendment of 1988 allowed reimbursement for certain medically necessary services pursuant to 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c), but this statute does not separately address Medicaid-eligible privately placed students; and there is little reason to believe that Congress equalized treatment of privately placed students with publically placed students for Medicaid purposes without any special mention of this issue. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the respondents' motion for summary judgment, denied petitioner's motion for partial summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

The Director of the Department of Human Services, Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services, reviewed the record of this matter including the Initial Decision of the OAL, petitioner's exceptions and respondents' reply thereto, and determined to adopt the findings, conclusions and recommended decision of the ALJ in their entirety as the Final Agency Decision.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner determined that there are no remaining issues under the jurisdictional purview of the Commissioner of Education. Accordingly, the petition of appeal was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, PETITIONER, V. DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES, DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES; DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; AND DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY, RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

This matter involves a consolidated action that stemmed from a petition originally filed with the Department of Education in which Petitioner sought Medicaid reimbursement for special education students who have been parentally placed in private schools. The original petition was withdrawn because of potential jurisdictional questions. Petitioner then filed an appeal in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, against the Department of Human Services, Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services; the Department of Education; and the Department of Treasury seeking similar relief. The Appellate Division remanded the matters to the respective agencies for a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). On remand, the petitions were consolidated, and the parties agreed that the Department of Human Services, Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services, has predominant interest.

The record of this matter, which includes the Initial Decision of the OAL, the Petitioner's exceptions to the Initial Decision, the Respondents' joint reply to the Petitioner's exceptions, and the final decision of the Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services, has been reviewed. There were no separate exceptions filed with the Commissioner of Education. Upon such review, the Commissioner has determined that there are no remaining issues under the jurisdictional purview of the Commissioner of Education.

Accordingly, the petition of appeal is dismissed.

RESPONDENTS.	:

As Director of the Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services (DMAHS), I have reviewed the record in this matter including the Initial Decision, the OAL case file, Petitioner's Exceptions to the Initial Decision and Respondents' reply thereto. Although Petitioner submitted an additional response to Respondents' submission, I am unable to consider the submission because the OAL rules make no provision for responses to reply exceptions. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Moreover, it appears that Exhibit D of Petitioner's response was not submitted at the hearing and thus cannot be included in exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c).

Procedurally, the time period for DMAHS to render a Final Agency Decision is June 10, 2010 pursuant to an Order of Extension. The Initial Decision issued by ALJ Metzger concluded DMAHS had the predominant interest in this consolidated matter and instructed DMAHS upon rendering its Final Agency Decision to obtain a 45-day Order of Extension and forward the Initial Decision and the Final Agency Decision to the Commissioner of the Department of Education and the Director of the Division of Purchase and Property to render a Final Agency Decision on any remaining issues and consider any specific remedies which may be within their authority.

I hereby ADOPT the findings, conclusions and recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge in their entirety and incorporate the same herein by reference. As noted in the Initial Decision, summary disposition may be entered where there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and where the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 and Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Once the moving party has shown competent evidence of the absence of any genuine issue of fact, the non-moving party must do more than simply create some doubts as to the material facts; it must raise a factual issue substantial enough to sustain a reasonable conclusion in the non-moving party's favor. I agree with the Administrative Law Judge that Lakewood has failed to raise any genuine issue of material fact that would require a hearing in this matter. At issue is whether reimbursement through Medicaid is available for services provided to parentally-placed special education private school students. For the reasons which follow, I agree that Medicaid reimbursement is limited to services provided to public school students pursuant to an Individualized Education Program (IEP).

By way of background, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA), was enacted to ensure that children with disabilities have available to them a free and appropriate public education. The IEP sets forth the specific services needed by the child. Before 1988, Medicaid, the payor of last resort, did not cover any items in a child's IEP because federal IDEIA funds were available to pay for those items. However, with the enactment of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988, Medicaid was no longer prohibited from paying for services prescribed in a student's IEP. The statutory amendment does not require coverage of services in an IEP, it permits it.

Pursuant to this amendment, the Department of Education, the Department of Human Services and the Department of Treasury created the Special Education Medicaid Initiative (SEMI), a program designed to maximize the recovery of costs eligible for matching federal Medicaid reimbursement. The recovered funds are divided between the State and the local school district. Lakewood contends that the SEMI program should be permitted to submit claims for Medicaid reimbursement for services provided to its parentally-placed private school students. I disagree. As discussed below, the statutory requirement for an IEP provides ample support for Respondents' position that special education services provided to parentally placed private school students were not meant to be treated in the same way as those provided to public school students as far as Medicaid reimbursement is concerned.

Federal Medicaid law clearly requires that there be an IEP containing the medical services provided through the SEMI program.[1] The federal statute provides in pertinent part:

> Treatment of educationally-related services. Nothing in this title [42 USCS §1396 et seq.] shall be construed as prohibiting or restricting, or authorizing the Secretary to prohibit or restrict, payment under subsection (a) for medical assistance for covered services furnished to a child with a disability because such services are included in the child's individualized education program [IEP] established pursuant to part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Act [20 USCS § 1411 et seq.]
>
> [42 U.S.C.A. §1396b(c) (emphasis added)]

Further, the congressional history from the enactment of this law states:

> The conference agreement clarifies that federal Medicaid matching funds are available for the cost of health services, covered under a State's Medicaid plan, that are furnished to a handicapped child or a handicapped infant or toddler, even though such services are included in the child's individualized education program [IEP] or individualized family service plan [IFSP]. Under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975, P.L. 94-142, children with handicaps are entitled to a free and appropriate public education in conformity with an individualized education program (IEP) which describes the educational and "related services" necessary to meet the child's unique needs. While the State education agencies are financially responsible for educational services, in the case of a Medicaid-eligible handicapped child, State Medicaid agencies remain responsible for the "related services" identified in the child's IEP if they are covered under the State's Medicaid plan . . .
> [134 Cong. Rec. H 3765, 3840 (emphasis added)]

The legislative history suggests that Congress clearly sought to distinguish between public versus private school students by virtue of its direct reference to a free and appropriate public education (FAPE). It is only pursuant to providing a FAPE that Congress permits related services contained in an IEP to be covered by Medicaid. Comments to the U.S. Department of Education's regulations addressing the IDEIA amendments of 1997 clearly state that private school children "have no individual right to receive some or all of the special education and related services that they would be entitled to if enrolled in a public school." 64 F.R. 12406. The comments go on to state that because private school students with disabilities are not entitled to a FAPE, it is "misleading" to use the term IEP. Indeed, while IEPs must include all special education and related available services, regardless of cost, to children under IDEIA, a private school student with a disability has no right to have a plan developed in the same way because the local education agency determines the amount and type of services it will provide to that child. As aptly noted by the ALJ, "[t]here is little reason to believe that the Congress, without any special mention, equalized the treatment of privately placed students with publicly placed students, for Medicaid purposes, when that is not the approach of the IDEIA, the very mechanism by which the benefit is delivered". See Initial Decision at page 4. It follows that Congress allows only those school-based services included in an IEP to be covered by Medicaid as part of a FAPE. For these reasons, I FIND that Respondents are correct in not providing SEMI claiming for school-based services not supported by an IEP.

[1] Parentally-placed private school students may however continue to participate in the Medicaid program by receiving services from participating Medicaid providers.

THEREFORE, it is on this 20th day of May 2010,

ORDERED:

That the recommended decision granting Respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby ADOPTED.

Record Closed: March 1, 2010 Decided: March 11, 2010

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ t/a:

These matters arise out of a petition filed by the Lakewood Board of Education seeking reimbursement through Medicaid for special education students that have been parentally placed in private schools. Collectively, respondents are the Department of Human Services, which administers the Medicaid program, the Department of Education, and the Department of the Treasury.

Initially the petition sought relief exclusively through the Department of Education, which raised jurisdictional questions. The petition was withdrawn and filed in the Superior Court, Appellate Division, naming the three agencies. The court in turn remanded for hearing in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the substantive questions presented. The matters were consolidated and predominant interest was established in the Department of Human Services by agreement of the parties before my predecessor in the case, Hon. John Futey, ALJ. Lakewood then filed a motion for partial summary decision on liability, and respondents have countered with a cross-motion for summary decision, Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). For this purpose, the students for whom reimbursement is sought should be seen as eligible, but for the fact that they have been privately placed. Separate factual and legal arguments over claim specifics and appropriate use of funding lines are not necessary to a resolution.

The core question of law involves the interplay of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act (IDEIA),[1] 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1400-1482, and a provision of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988, at 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c). Under the IDEIA children with disabilities are entitled to a free appropriate public education (FAPE). The Act intends that parents and district child study teams will work cooperatively to produce an individualized education program (IEP), which then serves as an annual guide by which to measure progress. Each child evaluated in this way has a statutory right to needed services irrespective of cost, and a process is established by which to redress grievances. Though the IDEIA also makes provision for privately placed students, this is limited, allowing for group coverage to the extent local budgets permit, 34 C.F.R. § 76.654(a) (1998); for a historical discussion, see, e.g., K.R. by M.R. v. Anderson Cmty. Sch. Corp., 81 F.3d 673 (7th Cir. 1996), vacated and remanded for reconsideration in light of 1997 amendments to IDEA, 521 U.S. 1114, 117 S. Ct. 2502, 138 L. Ed. 2d 1007 (1997), adhered to on remand, 125 F.3d 1017 (7th Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1046, 118 S. Ct. 1360, 140 L. Ed. 2d 510 (1998). In its brief Lakewood seeks to narrow these distinctions by focusing on the IEP and service plan documents and the process by which they are developed. This is not, however, where the deep difference rests. Rather, one is an entitlement based on need without limit, while the other is discretionary and subject to the vagaries of funding.

Prior to 1988, Medicaid, as payer of last resort, did not reimburse special education services, precisely because they were covered under the IDEIA. The Medicaid amendment that year allowed reimbursement for certain medically necessary services, 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c). Owing to the new intersection of these statutes and a desire to maximize federal funding, New Jersey created the Special Education Medicaid Initiative, through which the three agencies here coordinate segments of the regulatory task. Federal reimbursement is available to the State for a proportion of costs for evaluation, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, counseling, nursing services, and specialized transport. The State in turn shares this money with districts. The question here is whether Medicaid reimbursement extends as well to these parentally placed private-school students. The issue is particularly impactful in Lakewood because a large majority of students attend private religious schools.

The distinctions in treatment for parentally placed and publically placed students under the IDEIA are crucial as we attempt to understand the interplay with Medicaid. 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c) does not separately address Medicaid-eligible privately placed students. Rather, it keys reimbursement to the IEP, where services would be described. Privately placed students receive service plans so as to distinguish them from publically placed students, 34 C.F.R. § 300.452 (1999). Lakewood points out that when the Medicaid amendment was adopted in 1988 the document developed for private-school students was also referred to as an IEP. The term "service plan" did not come into use until some years later via regulation, see 64 F.R. 12406, 12659. This is accurate, and in the end the matter ought not to turn solely on jargon. It happens that the current nomenclature reinforces philosophical differences originating in the IDEIA, and it is these, in the main, that defeat petitioner.

There is little reason to believe that the Congress, without any special mention, equalized the treatment of privately placed students with publically placed students for Medicaid purposes, when that is not the approach of the IDEIA, the very mechanism by which the benefit is delivered. A focus on public education is also suggested by the direct reference to FAPE in legislative history pertaining to the Medicaid amendment, 134 Cong.Rec.H. 3765, 3840. By definition, privately placed students are not entitled to FAPE. Recognizing that legislative intent is sometimes in the eye of the beholder, it nonetheless appears that 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c) addresses the broad public programming of the IDEIA, see generally New Capitol Bar & Grill Corp. v. Div. of Unemployment Sec., Dep't of Labor and Indus., 25 N.J. 155, 160 (1957).[2]

The motion papers pose additional questions concerning the claims themselves and the legal parameters of certain funding lines. These arguments are supported by conflicting certifications that may create fact questions. I prefer here to address the baseline issue. If my understanding is sustained the matter is ended. If Lakewood ultimately prevails on the point, the entire landscape of the litigation is likely to shift.

[2] The motion record includes two reports to Congress that assess the progress and problems associated with the IDEIA/Medicaid linkage. The first is a 2003 document entitled Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Medicaid, by Apling & Herz. The second is a 2006 follow-up entitled, The Link Between Medicaid and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA): Recent History and Current Issues, by Herz. Both relate that Congress adopted 42 U.S.C.A. § 1396b(c) to ease the financial burden on states and school districts from IDEIA mandates. Despite federal subsidy, the latter bear the major cost of this program. If this history is accurate it tends to support respondents' position. The unique demographics of Lakewood aside, for much of the country the heavy cost under the IDEIA derives from FAPE obligations, and logically this is the sphere of congressional attention.

Based on the foregoing, the motion of the respondent agencies is GRANTED, the Lakewood motion is DENIED, and the claims are DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES, who by law is authorized to make the final decision on all issues within the scope of its predominant interest. If the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision on all of the issues within the scope of predominant interest shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8, upon rendering its final decision the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and its final decision, to the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF PURCHASE AND PROPERTY, which may subsequently render a final decision on any remaining issues and consider any specific remedies which may be within their statutory grant of authority.

Upon transmitting the record, the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c), request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF PURCHASE AND PROPERTY within forty-five days of the predominant agency decision. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION and the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF PURCHASE AND PROPERTY do not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the remaining issues and remedies shall become the final decision.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR OF THE DIVISION OF MEDICAL ASSISTANCE AND HEALTH SERVICES, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the recommended Order, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW, PAULA T. DOW, NEW JERSEY ATTORNEY GENERAL, AND CLIFFORD B. JANEY, SUPERINTENDENT OF NEWARK PUBLIC SCHOOLS,

Respondents.

Craig R. Levine, Esq., for petitioner Peter Bond (New Jersey Institute for Social Justice)

Joyce Williams, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Criminal History Review and Paula T. Dow (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Bernard Mercado, Associate Counsel, for respondent Clifford B. Janey, Superintendent of Newark Public Schools (Lisa J. Pollak, General Counsel)

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the determination by the Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit (the Department) that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, he is disqualified from employment in any position with a school or other educational institution under the supervision of the Department or with a contracted service provider under contract with such a school or educational facility based upon the results of his criminal background check. On June 7, 2010, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner). Petitioner also filed a motion for emergent relief seeking a stay of the disqualification determination, which was scheduled to be heard on June 17, 2010. In support of the motion, petitioner submitted a memorandum of law and an affidavit of petitioner (Bond Aff.). Respondents submitted briefs in opposition to the motion, which the undersigned received on June 17, 2010. Oral argument on the motion was held on June 17, 2010, at which time I also permitted limited testimony by petitioner.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

A summary of the pertinent evidence presented follows.

In 2007, petitioner secured employment in New Jersey with Chartwells School Dining Services (Chartwells) as a District Manager. Bond Aff. at ¶ 4. Petitioner was required to undergo a criminal background check in connection with his employment. By letter dated March 8, 2010, the Department informed petitioner that he was "permanently disqualified from employment in any position with a school or other educational institution under the supervision of the Department . . . or with a contracted service provider under contract with said school or educational facility" based upon the results of his criminal background check which, according to the attachment, included a 1971 drug offense adjudicated in municipal court carrying a sentence of one year probation.[1]

As a District Manager of Chartwells in New Jersey, petitioner oversaw and managed the food services operations in six New Jersey school districts, including Newark, and supervised nearly 100 schools. Bond Aff. at ¶¶¶ 1, 4, and 5. Due to the size of the Newark School District, petitioner "would ordinarily operate out of the Chartwells' district office for Newark, housed within the Camden Middle School Building . . . ." Id. at 5. As part of his job duties, petitioner would "travel to the various New Jersey schools" under his supervision "to tour the food services facilities . . . ." Ibid. According to petitioner's Affidavit, these activities did not involve "regular contact with school children" and "[a]t most" he "passed children in the halls." Ibid. Petitioner also participated in Youth Action Council meetings for each district, which provided "the opportunity to meet with students, parents and teachers" to ensure the quality of the company's services. Ibid. Prior to his current position, petitioner held positions that entailed working with the Philadelphia and Washington D.C. school systems for three years. Id. at 4.

Petitioner is fifty-nine years of age and has resided in New Jersey for nearly his entire life. He is the father of three adult children, one of whom lives in New Jersey, and has five grandchildren. Bond Aff. at ¶ 10. One of petitioner's two sisters also resides in New Jersey. Ibid. Petitioner testified that he is engaged to be married in 2011 and has a foster child who resides with his fiancé.

Petitioner is currently employed by Chartwells. After receiving notice that petitioner was disqualified from employment in any New Jersey school, Chartwells modified petitioner's job duties. Bond Aff. at ¶ 5. According to petitioner's Affidavit and testimony, Chartwells "temporarily" modified his duties so that he could work out of his home. Petitioner travels to supervise districts out of state, including in Maryland and Pennsylvania, and petitioner has work assignments in New York.

[1] Although the Department attached to its brief an earlier letter dated September 6, 2007, advising petitioner that he was permanently disqualified from such employment based upon the results of his criminal background check, petitioner disputes that he received the letter and the record does not establish the circumstances surrounding what occurred after that letter and prior to the Department's letter dated March 8, 2010.

Petitioner states in his Affidavit that, if he is ruled disqualified from working with the New Jersey public schools, he will not be able to continue in his position at Chartwells, which requires the capacity to visit school locations; he would incur economic losses; and he would lose many of the retirement and insurance benefits that he secured through his job. Bond Aff. at ¶ 8. Petitioner further avers that it would be extremely difficult to start a new career or move to a new state, and that leaving New Jersey would be especially difficult on his family. Ibid. Petitioner testified as to his need for medical benefits for required medication, coupled with the probability that he would fall into debt, lose his home and have to postpone his wedding, as well as relocate to a different state, if he lost his job. Petitioner described that his current employment arrangement is not an "indefinite" arrangement, and relayed that his employer has informed him since March that it would create a problem for his employment if the disqualification matter were not resolved by July. Petitioner further relayed that his employer recently told him that he could not apply for a position with the company in Washington or a promotional position in South Jersey as a result of the disqualification. Petitioner stated his belief that he was "running out of time" with the company, and he is uncertain as to how long Chartwells will continue his employment.

It is against this backdrop that petitioner's application for emergent relief is considered.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

> A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. Degioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;

3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).]

Petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above requirements in order to warrant relief in his favor.

Turning to the first criteria, it is well settled that relief should not be granted except "when necessary to prevent irreparable harm." Crowe, supra 90 N.J. at 132. In this regard, harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be adequately redressed by monetary damages. Id. at 132-33. In other words, it has been described as "'substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages.'" Judice's Sunshine Pontiac, Inc. v. General Motors Corp., 418 F. Supp. 1212, 1218 (D.N.J. 1976) (citation omitted). See New Jersey Dep't of Environmental Protection v. Circle Carting, Inc., 2004 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 968 (April 2, 2004) (finding no irreparable harm in connection with the revocation of respondent's solid waste license in that financial loss is generally insufficient to demonstrate this requirement). The moving party bears the burden of proving irreparable harm. More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated. Continental Group, Inc. v. Amoco Chemicals Corp., 614 F. 2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980). The requisite for injunctive relief requires a "'clear showing of immediate irreparable injury,'" or a "'presently existing actual threat; (an injunction) may not be used simply to eliminate a possibility of a remote future injury, or a future invasion of rights, be those rights protected by statute or by common law.'" Ibid. (citation omitted.)

Petitioner argues that the Department's determination harms his "liberty to practice his trade in New Jersey, his ability to maintain and advance his career, and the stability of his family." Petitioner relies on Community Hosp. Group, Inc. v. Blume Goldfaden Berkowitz Donnelly Fried & Forte, P.C., 384 N.J. Super. 251, 255 (App. Div. 2006) for the proposition that "acts destroying a complainant's business, custom and profits do an irreparable injury."

Simply put, I embrace respondents' position that petitioner has failed to demonstrate irreparable harm. Petitioner's Affidavit and testimony do not support a finding that the Department's determination has destroyed his business, custom or profits. Rather, petitioner has continued his employment with Chartwells and currently holds a supervisory position servicing clients in different states. Although it may be an inconvenience to petitioner to supervise the food service programs in other states due to the travel involved, this does not rise to the level of an irreparable harm. While petitioner expressed sincere concern that he may soon lose his job, the evidence as a whole falls short of demonstrating an imminent termination of petitioner's employment. According to petitioner's Affidavit, he presently has "a very good working relationship" with the company. Bond Aff. at ¶ 8. The Department's disqualification determination does not restrict petitioner's ability to work for the company in a capacity that does not involve New Jersey schools or educational facilities. Petitioner has failed to offer evidence that Chartwells has issued a notice terminating his employment as of a specific date or specific evidence of immediate financial distress. In short, whether petitioner will or will not be terminated and/or lose his health benefits is speculative in nature. And, even if petitioner's employment with Chartwells was terminated as a result of his disqualification, an employee's loss of income alone is generally insufficient to constitute irreparable harm. See Morton v. Beyer, 822 F. 2d, 364, 372-73 (3d Cir. 1987). See also Sampson v. Murray, 415 U.S. 61, 92 n.68, 39 L. Ed. 2d 166, 94 S.Ct. 937 (1974) ("an insufficiency of savings or difficulties in immediately obtaining other employment--external factors common to most discharged employees and not attributable to any unusual actions relating to the discharge itself--will not support a finding of irreparable injury, however severely they may affect a particular individual."). Further lacking is sufficient evidence to support a finding that the stability of petitioner's family will be irreparably harmed if the relief requested is not granted. In sum, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet his burden of establishing a clear showing that he will suffer immediate irreparable injury unless the requested relief is granted.

Apart from this, in order to prevail on an application for an emergent relief, petitioner must demonstrate that the legal right underlying his claim is settled and must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 133.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, governing "criminal record check in public school employment," states in pertinent part:

> A facility, center, school, or school system under the supervision of the Department of Education and board of education which cares for, or is involved in the education of children under the age of 18 shall not . . . contract for the paid services of any teaching staff member or substitute teacher, teacher aide, child study team member, school physician, school nurse, custodian, school maintenance worker, cafeteria worker, school law enforcement officer, school secretary or clerical worker or any other person serving in a position which involves regular contact with pupils unless the employer has first determined consistent with the requirements and standards of this act, that no criminal history record information exists on file . . . which would disqualify that individual from being employed or utilized in such capacity or position . . . .
>
> An individual . . . shall be permanently disqualified from employment or service under this act if the individual's criminal history record check reveals a record of conviction for any crime of the first or second degree; or
>
>
> b. An offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, distribution or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance' as defined in the 'Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987,' N.J.S. 2C:35-1 et al. or 'drug paraphernalia' as defined pursuant to N.J.S. 2C:36-1 et seq.
> . . . .

Petitioner claims that he should not be disqualified because his position did not involve "regular contact with pupils." His Petition of Appeal also alleges that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution, the equal protection guarantee of the New Jersey Constitution, and the substantive due process guarantees of the United States and New Jersey Constitutions. Petitioner further avers that the Department and the Newark Public Schools violated Title VII of the Civil Rights Act by denying his employment on the basis of his criminal record, and that the statute is preempted by Title VII.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder his burden of proving that the legal right underlying his various claims is settled and that he has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claims. In this regard, petitioner does not dispute that he was convicted of a disqualifying offense under the statute. It is further undisputed that, in his position of District Manager in New Jersey, petitioner supervised the food services operations at nearly 100 schools and was required to visit schools when students could and would be present in the hallways. The Commissioner has recently determined that the phrase "regular contact with pupils" must be interpreted broadly to ensure the maximum degree of protection for children. Chavis v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Criminal History Review. EDU 8547-07, Initial Decision (April 21, 2008), rejected, Comm'r (May 30, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html.> Indeed, unlike the petitioner in Chavis whose office was situated in a separate administration building, petitioner's office for Newark was located in the very same building where school children were present all day. Petitioner has also failed to demonstrate a settled legal right underlying his constitutional and Title VII claims and a reasonable probability of prevailing on the merits of those claims. Beyond the heavy burden that must be met vis-à-vis petitioner's claims asserting that the statute is unconstitutional, which casts doubt on petitioner's likelihood of success, petitioner has failed to clearly establish this forum's jurisdiction to entertain claims that appear to amount to a facial challenge to the constitutionality of the statute.

Finally, in balancing the equities and interests of the parties, the scales tip in favor of respondents. The Department has the duty to safeguard students by disqualifying individuals convicted of the offenses enumerated by the Legislature. The Legislature's "unequivocal intent" was to "preclude judgment of individual applicants in the interest of ensuring the maximum degree of protection for children." Chavis, supra. Suffice it to say, the public interest in protecting the welfare of school children and providing a safe instructional environment outweighs petitioner's right to work for a contractor within a New Jersey school.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) warranting a stay or emergent relief. Accordingly, I ORDER that petitioner's application for such relief be and hereby is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

CONSENT ORDER

The parties to the above-captioned matter having amicably resolved their differences;

This matter is hereby deemed settled for the following consideration:

1. R.A.'s school discipline records shall be modified so as to reflect that he was suspended for no more than 10 school days for each disciplinary incident, which occurred in September 2008 and during the winter break of this school year. With respect to the second incident, the records should reflect nothing more than R.A. was suspended for selling during the winter break away from school to another student for five dollars imitation marijuana. R.A.'s other student records, including any 504/ADA and child study team records, should not reflect anything more regarding his disciplinary record.

2. R.A.'s child study team records will reflect that his placement at Center School was made by the IEP team without objection from K.C. and that his program and placement prospectively shall be determined by the IEP team pursuant to regular IEP standards and procedures. However, the District agrees that should K.C. continue to find Center School an appropriate placement and want R.A. to remain there, the School District will fully support such placement. Conversely, should K.C. determine that Center School is not appropriate for R.A., the IEP team will consider alternative placements, including Old Bridge High School. R.A.'s previous suspension will play no role in any decisions regarding R.A.'s program and placement.

3. The Board will support the provision of counseling to R.A. at Center School as may be requested by K.C. and consistent with Center School recommendations.

4. The Board will make available to R.A. an extended school year program consisting 2.5 hours of daily reading and writing instruction designed to address his individual needs in these areas.

5. The Board, through its Child Study Team, will make every effort to secure a placement at Middlesex County's ½-day Vocational Technical High School for the 2009-2010 school year.

6. The Board will refer R.A. to Children's Specialized Hospital for a follow-up evaluation by a multi-disciplinary team to clarify R.A.'s diagnosis, educational needs, and discrepancies in past learning assessments, and to develop an integrated, comprehensive plan, as recommended by Dr. Iofin, to support and enhance R.A.'s functioning in school. This evaluation shall include learning, central auditory processing, neuropsychological and medical (psychiatric, pediatric neurodevelopmental or other medical, as determined appropriate by Children's Specialized) assessments. It will also include a functional behavioral assessment focusing on R.A.'s actions that have resulted in his previous discipline.

7. The Board also agrees to pay K.C. five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) to reimburse her for private therapy and educational services provided in the past or that will be provided in the future.

Record Closed: June 10, 2010 Decided: June 14, 2010

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ t/a:

This matter concerns the determination of the back salary and emoluments due to the petitioner, Charlotte Klumb, pursuant to the final decision of the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) dated June 16, 2005, and the decision of the State Supreme Court dated May 11, 2009.

The matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 27, 2009 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On December 22, 2004, I rendered an initial decision based on a motion for summary decision, in which I concluded that there were no factual disputes and that the respondent, the Manalapan-Englishtown Board of Education (Board) had the right to deny the petitioner's request that she be rehired to her former teaching position after the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF Board) had determined that her disability had disappeared or substantially diminished. On June 16, 2005, the Commissioner rejected my initial decision and held that the pension statute mandated the rehiring of a formerly disqualified employee and ordered her reinstated as of March 1, 1999, with all appropriate emoluments and back pay. It was noted that March 1, 1999, was the day that the Board interviewed the petitioner for an existing elementary teacher vacancy but that the Board did not rehire her until September 1, 2005.

The State Board of Education (State Board) affirmed the Commissioner's decision on January 4, 2006, and the Appellate Division of the Superior Court (Appellate Division) affirmed the State Board's decision on July 25, 2005. The State Supreme Court on May 11, 2009 affirmed the Appellate Division's decision as to the rehiring of the petitioner but remanded to the Commissioner issues relating to the back salary payment. The period of time in issue as to the back salary issues is between March 1, 1999 and September 1, 2005.

The Commissioner then remanded the back salary issues to the OAL. It is OAL's policy to give a remanded matter to the administrative law judge (ALJ) who had initially handled the case. Consistent with this policy, the matter was reassigned to me.

Richard C. Swarbrick, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, filed a motion to disqualify me from hearing the remanded matter since I had issued the initial decision in the original case, had ruled against the petitioner, and other ALJs were available to handle the matter.

As to the motion, I concluded that the petitioner had not shown any legal reason why I should recuse myself and that there was no reason to believe that I could not provide a fair, unbiased and impartial hearing and determination in this matter. On October 29, 2009, I ordered that the petitioner's motion for recusal be denied. Swarbrick filed an appeal with the Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge. On November 24, 2009, Director Laura Sanders issued a final order in which she affirmed my decision.

Both parties filed a number of motions regarding the issue in this matter as well as discovery, and I handled the matters in a number of orders. After there was substantial compliance by the petitioner as to the discovery requests, I had a settlement conference with the parties on April 26, 2010. During the conference, we were able to agree to the outline of a settlement of the matter. The parties had to work out the details of the settlement and have a discussion with a representative of the TPAF Board. I received a written and signed stipulation of settlement on June 10, 2010.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a settlement agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner,	:	OAL DOCKET NO. EDU-08421-2009S
v.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MANALAPAN-ENGLISHTOWN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT
Respondent.	:

This matter having come before the Office of Administrative Law upon a remand to the Department of Education by order of the Supreme Court of New Jersey for proceedings consistent with the order of the Supreme Court, and the parties having amicably resolved the matter, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

WHEREAS, on or about April 29, 2002, petitioner filed a lawsuit against the Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District and agents, servants and employees of said Board of Education, seeking re-employment after retirement, back-pay and other monetary damages; and

WHEREAS, said matter was transmitted to the New Jersey Department of Education and heard by the Office of Administrative Law and decided by the Commissioner of Education on or about June 16, 2005; and

WHEREAS, in accordance with the decision of the Commissioner of Education, petitioner was re-employed by the respondent Board of Education in or about September 2005, and remains an employee in the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District; and

WHEREAS, after review by the State Department of Education, the Appellate Division of the Superior Court and the Supreme Court of the State of New Jersey, the matter was returned to the Department of Education for a hearing to resolve the issues relating to back-pay as set forth in the decision of the Supreme Court of New Jersey dated May 11, 2009, and its supplemental order entered July 2, 2009; and

WHEREAS, the remanded matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing; and has been lengthy and protracted and further litigation will result in continued extensive time and expense, which is not in the best interest of the parties;

WHEREAS, the matter is ripe for settlement at this time because it will allow petitioner to make plans for retirement at the end of this school year (2009-10), and for the respondent Board of Education to conduct educational planning for the next school year (2010-2011) in a prudent, timely and fiscally responsible manner; and

WHEREAS, the parties desire to resolve any and all claims of petitioner that may have arisen during her employment with the Board of Education in order to finally resolve all claims and put a conclusive end to any and all disputes between the parties; and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund (hereinafter "TPAF") has certain claims to the proceeds of any back-pay award that may have been made in this proceeding, and resolution of the claims in this matter will enable TPAF to recover funds out of the proceeds of this settlement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Within 30 days of the date hereof, the Respondent Board of Education shall issue payment in the amount of TWO HUNDRED FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($240,000.00) minus all federal, state and local withholding taxes on the entire amount, said payment representing full and final settlement of all claims of the petitioner in this matter. Payment of the aforesaid net amount shall be made payable to the trust account of Brown & Connelly, L.L.C., to be held in trust pending resolution of claims by TPAF and pending final approval by the Commissioner of Education, as set forth below.

2. Petitioner agrees that she shall finally and conclusively end her employment with the Respondent Board of Education on or before July 1, 2010, and hereby waives any and all claims of whatsoever kind or nature to re-employment at any time after July 1, 2010. Said agreement to leave the employ of the respondent Board of Education is final and absolute, and is not contingent upon approval of petitioner's retirement application by the Division of Pensions or resolution of any claims that the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund may have against petitioner or against the settlement proceeds, or any other contingencies for release of the funds from the trust account of Brown & Connelly, L.L.C.

3. This settlement agreement is contingent upon approval by the Administrative Law Judge assigned to this matter and upon final approval by the Commissioner of Education. The proceeds of the settlement amount set forth in paragraph 1 shall not be released by the law firm of Brown & Connelly, L.L.C. until such time as there is final approval by the Commissioner of Education.

4. The parties understand and recognize that the TPAF has certain claims against the proceeds of the settlement amount set forth in paragraph 1, for payments that were made to petitioner by TPAF or for payments that petitioner may be required to make as contribution to her retirement from the settlement proceeds. In light of these claims, the parties understand and agree that the proceeds of the settlement shall not be released from the trust account of the law firm of Brown & Connelly, L.L.C. until such time as there is a full and final release by the TPAF of any and all claims it may have with respect to the proceeds of this settlement. The parties understand and recognize that the respondent Board of Education does not take any position with respect to the amount of the settlement proceeds to be paid to TPAF, and that said amount shall be negotiated between petitioner herein and TPAF, or resolved through the ordinary administrative and legal procedures for the resolution of said claims.

5. Upon resolution of the claims of TPAF and upon approval of this settlement agreement by the Commissioner of Education, a portion of the proceeds of this settlement shall be paid to TPAF in the amount determined by agreement of petitioner and TPAF or by other legal proceedings; and the remainder shall be paid to petitioner herein by payment to the trust account of Richard Swarbrick, Esquire, attorney for the petitioner. No amount of the settlement proceeds shall be released to TPAF without the approval of petitioner herein or order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

6. The parties understand and agree that this settlement represents a compromise of the claims and positions of the parties, and that neither party makes any admission with respect to the claims or defenses of the other party to these proceedings.

7. In consideration of this agreement, petitioner hereby expressly releases and forever discharges the Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District and its agents, servants, employees, and Board of Education members, past and present, from and against any and all claims, demands, actions, causes of action, of whatsoever kind or nature, including but not limited to any claim for interest, attorneys' fees, costs or expenses by reason of any act or omission of the Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District or any of its agents, servants, employees or Board of Education members, past or present. This release includes, but is not limited to, any claims which have been made, or could have been made, under the education laws of State of New Jersey, Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code, the civil rights acts of the United States of America and the State of New Jersey, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act and the Family Leave Act, the Workers' Compensation Law of the State of New Jersey, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, and all other laws and statutes relating to civil rights, employment, retirement, pensions and wages, and any action for tort, defamation, infliction of emotional stress, tortious interference with employment or contract, personal injury, breach of contract or other common law action. Petitioner specifically releases all parties named in the complaint filed under Docket No. MON-2190-02, and all claims raised or which could have been raised in that proceeding or the proceedings before the New Jersey Commissioner of Education.

9. Petitioner agrees to hold harmless the law firm of Brown & Connelly, L.L.C. from and against any and all claims by petitioner or any other party to the settlement proceeds to be held in trust by said law firm pending resolution of the claims set forth above.

10. This agreement represents the full agreement between the parties, and no other promises or agreements have been made by or to either party. All parties represent that they have consulted with counsel prior to the execution of this agreement and that they are satisfied with the representation of counsel, and all parties agree that they are responsible for payment of their own attorneys' fees. This agreement is being made voluntarily and with full understanding of the terms and conditions herein.

11. This agreement is expressly subject to approval of the Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District. In the event the aforesaid approval is not obtained, then this agreement shall be null and void.

PRITCHARD INDUSTRIES, INC.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VILLAGE OF RIDGEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY, AND GCA SERVICES GROUP, INC.,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENTS.	:

A challenge to respondent Ridgewood Board of Education's awarding of a custodial/maintenance services contract to respondent GCA Services Group was instituted by the second lowest bidder, Pritchard Industries, by way of a petition and application for emergent relief. The Commissioner's task at this juncture is to determine whether petitioner has established entitlement to emergent relief pending the ultimate decision on the merits. After review of the papers, the audio recording of the emergent hearing in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) recommended order denying interim relief, the Commissioner is constrained to adopt the ALJ's order and return the case to the OAL for a hearing on the merits.[1]

The gravamen of petitioner's challenge relates to the requirement in respondent Ridgewood Board of Education's bid specifications that 20% of each bidder's quote for wages and benefits (WBT) be composed of prevailing wages (in Bergen County) for the following

[1] The Commissioner notes that in the Initial Decision, the ALJ misstated the date of this case's transmittal from the Department of Education to the OAL. That transmittal was effectuated on April 16, 2010, not on May 11, 2010.

Mailed 7/23/10

trades: plumbing, electric work, carpentry, painting and HVAC (heating, ventilation and air conditioning). It is undisputed that the 20% amount translates into 3328 hours. Listings of the prevailing wages for the trades was included in the bid invitation. By way of example, the listings showed that the prevailing wages for journeymen – the lowest level of tradesman – ranged from $44.09 per hour for painters to $74.95 per hour for electricians. (Certification of Thomas Martin, Exhibit B)

Although the bid invitation provided information which purportedly reflected the historic mix of trade work relevant to the district, it also expressly stated that: "The trades' mix of these hours is up to the experience and expertise of the contractor." (Certification of Thomas Martin, Exhibit A [Invitation for Bids], page 6) It further stated: "Prevailing wage is the Contractor's responsibility to manage and control. The District will not be responsible for any additional charges to the bid/contract price due to prevailing wage issues." (Ibid.) And, as the ALJ found, the contractor had to sign a certification that it would provide the requisite staffing, wages, overtime, and benefits for the duration of the contract.

GCA's quote for the prevailing wage component of its bid averaged $49.78 per hour (as opposed to Pritchard's quote that averaged $74.11). Petitioner reasoned that GCA's low average prevailing wage signified that GCA had not conformed to the requirement that bidders use the Bergen County prevailing wage figures for the five trades. (See, e.g. Petitioner's brief at 6-7) Thus, petitioner argued, GCA had deviated from the bid specifications, submitted an unresponsive bid, and should not have been awarded the contract. (Petitioner's brief at 8)

Respondent GCA countered first that GCA's low prevailing wage rate did not, in and of itself, prove that GCA failed to follow the specification which required that 20% of the contract work be paid at Bergen County's prevailing wages for the relevant trades. Second,

GCA explained that – as the incumbent provider of custodial and maintenance services to the respondent board of education – it had historic knowledge about the nature of the services most commonly required by the district and about the kinds of benefit packages chosen by the custodial and maintenance employees. This knowledge was purportedly helpful in selecting the number of hours in each trade that was likely needed for the term of the contract.

The standards for adjudicating applications for emergent relief, contained in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and codified in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), are well known.[2] The ALJ correctly concluded that in this case the third standard is the determinative question, i.e. "Is petitioner likely to prevail on the merits?" (Initial Decision at 7) To so prevail, in this case, petitioner's task is to show that GCA deviated from the specifications concerning the requirement that 3328 hour of contract work be paid at Bergen County's prevailing wages for the relevant trades. The ALJ found, based upon the exhibits, certifications and argument that had been put before him, that GCA was not likely to accomplish that task:

> Having reviewed the specifications and the arguments of counsel, I see no reason why a bid based on the prevailing-wage rate for HVAC or painting would be non-compliant with the specifications. The specifications only required a contractor to bid at least 20% of the total maintenance hours at prevailing-wage-rate hours. The specifications specifically stated that the mix of these hours was up to the experience and expertise of the contractor.
> Moreover, the specifications noted that the mix of these hours was subject to change based on the scope of the work and the needs of the Ridgewood Public School District; that the prevailing wage is the responsibility of the contractor manage and control [sic]; and

---

[2] They require a determination that:
1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and > that Ridgewood would not be responsible for any additional charges due to prevailing wage issues.
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

>
> Finally, I note that GCA signed a certification guaranteeing that it would comply with the prevailing-wage rates for the prevailing-wage-rate work.
> (Initial Decision at 9)

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ. Given the large number of hours that were to be set aside for prevailing wage work, it is mathematically possible that respondent GCA included a small allotment for plumbers and electricians, but allocated the lion's share of hours to painters and HVAC journeymen. It may have done this after examination of the respondent board of education's maintenance records and after identification of the benefit packages chosen by the various employees who had been working in the district or whom it planned to utilize. Moreover, it had to plan its trade mix with the knowledge that it would be obligated to absorb any financial fallout, were it to quote a 'lowball' wage rate.

While it is possible that petitioner could eventually proffer hard evidence disclosing GCA deviations from the bid specifications, it has not done so to date. Consequently, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's order denying petitioner's application for emergent relief and returns the case to the OAL for disposition on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VILLAGE OF RIDGEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY AND GCA SERVICES GROUP, INC.,

Respondents.

Patrick T. Collins, Esq., for petitioner Pritchard Industries, Inc. (Franzblau and Dratch, attorneys)

Jeffrey R. Merlino, Esq., for respondent Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood (Lindabury, McCormick, Estabrook, Cooper, attorneys)

Christina A. Stoneburner, Esq., and Christine A. Cannella, Esq., for respondent GCA Services Group, Inc. (Fox Rothschild, attorneys)

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On March 8, 2010, the Ridgewood Board of Education (Ridgewood) awarded GCA Services Group, Inc. (GCA) a services contract. Pritchard Industries, Inc. (Pritchard) contends that it should have been awarded the services contract because the prevailing-wage rate it submitted was realistic (based on 67% of the historic mix of prevailing-wage-rate work) while the prevailing-wage rate GCA submitted was unrealistic (based on only 33% of the historic mix). The specifications, however, did not require that the prevailing-wage rate be based on any particular mix of prevailing-wage-rate work. Should the contract be invalidated? No. Only a material departure from a specification can invalidate a bid and the contract based on it.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 10, 2010, Ridgewood gave notice that it was accepting sealed bids for a custodial, maintenance, grounds, and management services contract until 10:00 a.m. on February 23, 2010. Both Pritchard and GCA submitted timely bids but the bid GCA submitted was the lowest. As a result, Ridgewood awarded the contract to GCA.

On March 8, 2010, Ridgewood passed a resolution awarding the contract to GCA.

On April 16, 2010, Pritchard filed an application for emergency relief with the Department of Education. According to its verified complaint, Pritchard seeks a temporary restraining order enjoining GCA and Ridgewood from entering into the contract. In the alternative, GCA seeks and order rendering the contract null and void. Finally, Pritchard seeks an order awarding the contract to it instead of GCA.

On May 11, 2010, the Department of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the office, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, and the rules of procedure established by the Department of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to 1.17. Jurisdiction is conferred under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

On May 28, 2010, the parties appeared for a conference during which time they agreed to a briefing schedule and a return date for oral argument. On June 14, 2010, the parties returned for oral argument, having already submitted their papers in support of an in opposition to the motion.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS OF FACT

Other than the contentions set forth below, I FIND the following as FACT, based on the certifications the parties submitted:

Background

Both Pritchard and GCA provide custodial, maintenance, grounds, and management services to private companies and public entities including school districts. GCA has been the service provider to the Ridgewood Public School District for the past four years. Its current contract is due to expire on June 30, 2010.

On February 10, 2010, Ridgewood gave notice that it was accepting sealed bids for a custodial, maintenance, grounds, and management services contracts until 10:00 a.m. on February 23, 2010.

For a bid to be considered responsive and responsible under the specifications, it had to follow the minimum staffing, wages, overtime, and fringe benefits requirements set forth in the specifications. The contractor also had to sign a certification that it would provide the requisite staffing, wages, overtime, and benefits for the duration of this contract. Indeed, non-compliance with these requirements would be considered a material breach of the contract and would subject it to cancellation. (§ 1, ¶N, p. 5.)

GCA signed such a certification.

In addition, contractors were to bid at least 20% of the total maintenance hours at prevailing-wage-rate hours. The mix of those hours, however, was up to the experience and expertise of the contractor. Historically, the mix of the prevailing-wage-rate work has been 16% carpentry, 33% electrical, 1% HVAC, 32% painting, and 18% plumbing. Regardless, the mix of these hours was subject to change based on the scope of the work and the needs of the Ridgewood Public School District. Moreover, the prevailing-wage rate was to be the responsibility of the contractor to manage and control. As such, Ridgewood would not be responsible for any additional charges due to any prevailing-wage-rate issues. (§ 1, ¶ N, p. 6.)

The contract is for two years, from July 1, 2010, to June 30, 2012, and both Pritchard and GCA submitted bids. Pritchard submitted a bid in the amount of $7,148,478.03, and GCA submitted a bid in the amount of $7,087,052.84. As Pritchard notes, the difference between the two bids was only $60,256, which is less than 1% of their respective bids.

Still, Pritchard's bid was only the second lowest bid. GCA's was the lowest. Therefore, Ridgewood awarded the contract to GCA.

On March 8, 2010, Ridgewood passed a resolution awarding the contract to GCA.

The Bids

Twenty percent of the total maintenance hours were fixed at 3,328 hours. Therefore, Pritchard and GCA had to bid at least 3,328 hours at prevailing-wage rates. The rate was up to them.

In Bergen County, the prevailing-wage rate for carpentry is $65.16 to $73.39; the prevailing-wage rate for electrical is $74.95 to $91.43; the prevailing-wage rate for HVAC is $51.97; the prevailing-wage rate for painting is $44.09 to $49.22; and the prevailing-wage rate for plumbing is $72.30 to $79.31.

If either party had used the historical mix of prevailing-wage-rate work, the amalgamated rate for that work would have been $68.02. Neither Pritchard nor GCA used that rate. Pritchard used a prevailing-wage rate of $74.11, while GCA used a prevailing-wage rate of $49.78.

Technically, the parties listed their respective prevailing-wage rates as incremental rates. Since the overall-average-wage rate for maintenance positions was fixed at $25.28, Pritchard listed an average-prevailing-wage rate increment of $48.83, while GCA listed an average-prevailing-wage rate increment of $24.50. As such, both Pritchard and GCA listed their prevailing-wage rates as the incremental cost for the prevailing-wage-rate work.

Pritchard and GCA also listed their prevailing-wage rates as total prevailing-wage rates without delineating the wages and benefits. Although the form in the specifications lists hourly wages, medical benefits, and fringe benefits as separate line items, both parties acknowledge that it is impossible to separate them from the total prevailing-wage rate. Therefore, both Pritchard and GCA listed their prevailing-wage rate increment as a total prevailing-wage rate only.

Contentions

Pritchard contends that GCA's prevailing wage rate of $49.78 is based on only 33% of the historic prevailing-wage-rate work (HVAC and painting) while its prevailing-wage rate of $74.11 is based on 67% of the historic prevailing-wage-rate work (carpentry, electrical, and plumbing). According to Pritchard, this means that GCA will not pay the prevailing-wage-rate work for carpentry, electrical, or plumbing (or has assumed that none of the prevailing-wage-rate work performed will be in those trades).

GCA counters that its prevailing-wage rate is based on the actual prevailing-wage-rate work performed in the Ridgewood Public Schools since July 2006; the actual wage rates it pays its current individual trade employees; and its current employee health benefit participation rates. GCA also asserts that the New Jersey Department of Labor had approved this method for calculating prevailing-wage rates in 1995 and that GCA has used it in Ridgewood and in at least two other school districts before:

> 11. Based upon my industry knowledge and past experience, GCA reviewed the Specifications and determined how many hours of those required to be bid at prevailing wage rates would be spent by a carpenter, painter, electrician, plumber, or any of the other listed crafts and trades. In order to do so, GCA took into account the number of hours and type of prevailing wage rate work performed in the Ridgewood Public Schools since July 2006.
>
> 12. For those hours required to be bid at prevailing wage rates, GCA then determined the difference or delta between the Base Rate (as specified on page 6 of the Specifications) and the applicable prevailing wage rates for Bergen County, New Jersey to determine what additional amount would be needed to be paid for those hours bid at the prevailing wage rate.
>
> 13. GCA then took into account the actual wage rate paid to the current individual trade employees, as this rate will effect [sic] the delta. Thus, an employee making more than the Base Rate, was credited the amount over the Base Rate against the delta.
>
> 14. In calculating the prevailing wage range, GCA also took into account the benefit participation rates of its current staff. Employees participating in family or single health care coverage would have less of a difference between the Prevailing Wage Rate and Base Rate when compared to an individual who declined health care coverage. This is because the Prevailing Wage Act requires the total prevailing wage (base wage rate x benefit wage rate) to be paid to the employee. An employer who does not provide fringe benefits must pay the total amount of the Benefit Wage Rate to the employee. An employer who provides benefits that are worth less than the Benefit Wage Rate must pay the balance directly to the employee.
>
> 15. The above procedures or methods for calculating prevailing wages was established and approved by the New > Jersey Department of Labor at least since 1995. It was placed into effect on at least (3) school districts that have contracted maintenance:

>
> a. Ridgewood Public Schools, Ridgewood NJ
> b. Lakewood Township Public Schools, Lakewood NJ
> c. Monroe Township Public Schools Williamstown NJ
> [(Certif. of James Calamia dated June 7, 2010.)]

Similarly, Ridgewood states that GCA complied with its specifications. In short, Ridgewood states that the prevailing-wage-rate increment GCA submitted for prevailing-wage-rate work simply includes no health care or other fringe benefits beyond the benefits already included in the overall-average-wage rate for maintenance positions.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision prohibiting some action in a contested case, emergency relief pending a final decision on the whole contested case may be ordered upon application of a party. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6

The standards to be met for granting such relief are contained in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). They have since been codified in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b):

> 1 The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will not suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

In this case, the salient issue is whether Pritchard has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

Under New Jersey Public School Contract Law, every contract for the performance of any service shall be awarded only by resolution of the board of education to the "lowest responsible bidder" after public advertising for bids. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4(a).

Under the statute, "responsible" means able to complete the contract in accordance with its requirements, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(x), while "responsive" means conforming in all material respects to the specifications of the bid, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(y).

According to the New Jersey Supreme Court, this means that the contract must be awarded to the lowest bidder who complies with the substantive and procedural requirements set forth in the specifications; and that any material departure invalidates the non-conforming bid as well as any contract based on it. Meadowbrook Carting Co. v. Borough of Island Heights and Consol. Waste Serv., 138 N.J. 307, 313-14 (1994).

Minor discrepancies and technical omissions; however, can be waived. Id. at 314. The test is one of materiality: (1) whether waiver would deprive the municipality of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed, and guaranteed according to its specifications; and (2) whether waiver would adversely affect competitive bidding by giving an advantage to one bidder over the other or by undermining the common standards of competition. Id. at 315.

In this case, Pritchard argues that GCA is not the lowest-responsible bidder because GCA did not comply with the requirements set forth in the specifications. In particular, Pritchard argues that GCA's prevailing-wage rate is a material departure from the specifications because it is unrealistic. More pointedly, Pritchard argues that acceptance of GCA's prevailing-wage rate would deprive Ridgewood of its assurance that the contract would be performed according to its specifications and give GCA an advantage over Pritchard, thereby undermining the standards of competition.

Therefore, Pritchard concludes that the bid GCA submitted is invalid and Ridgewood should have awarded the contract to it instead.

GCA, on the other hand, argues that it did conform in all material respects to the specifications for the prevailing-wage rate. According to GCA, it arrived at its prevailing-wage rate through a computation of its employees' current base rate, the base rate set forth in the specifications, and its employees' current health insurance participation rates. In addition, GCA factored in its own estimate of the prevailing-wage rate work to be performed based upon its own experience in the Ridgewood Public Schools during the past four years.

Having reviewed the specifications and the arguments of counsel, I see no reason why a bid based on the prevailing-wage rate for HVAC or painting would be non-compliant with the specifications. The specifications only required a contractor to bid at least 20% of the total maintenance hours at prevailing-wage-rate hours. The specifications specifically stated that the mix of these hours was up to the experience and expertise of the contractor.

Moreover, the specifications noted that the mix of these hours was subject to change based on the scope of the work and the needs of the Ridgewood Public School District; that the prevailing wage is the responsibility of the contractor manage and control; and that Ridgewood would not be responsible for any additional charges due to prevailing wage issues.

Finally, I note that GCA signed a certification guaranteeing that it would comply with the prevailing-wage rates for the prevailing-wage-rate work.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the prevailing-wage rate GCA submitted was responsive to the specifications; that Pritchard has not demonstrated a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its underlying claim; and that its application for emergency relief should be denied.

ORDER

Based on my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that the application for emergency relief be DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who is authorized by law to make the final decision in this case. The final decision shall be issued without delay but no later than forty-five days from the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify, or reject this order within those forty-five days, this recommended order shall become the final decision on the issue of emergency relief under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the State Board of Examiners (Board) to deny him a social studies endorsement to his instructional certificate. Petitioner contends that he is entitled to the endorsement because: he has taught middle school social studies for twelve years; he received a passing score on the PRAXIS exam for Social Studies Content Knowledge; and his college major – psychology – is considered a social science. Respondent denied the endorsement on the basis that petitioner did not satisfy the academic requirements for the social studies endorsement, and filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found that: petitioner's response to the motion for summary decision failed to set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue of material fact which would require an evidentiary proceeding; petitioner failed to show that the actions of the Board in denying him the social studies endorsement were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; and summary disposition in favor of respondent was appropriate.

The Commissioner found that: petitioner has no academic training or practical experience in six of the ten subject areas about which high school social studies teachers are expected to be knowledgeable, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6)(ii): world history, economics, government, political science, geography, and anthropology; the PRAXIS score alone cannot form the basis for the social studies endorsement; and petitioner's experience teaching middle school does not signify that he possesses the expertise and depth of knowledge that is required to teach upper level courses in high school. The Commissioner concluded that petitioner has not met his burden to prove that he is qualified to receive a social studies endorsement, and adopted the ALJ's recommendation that the petition be dismissed.

DANIEL J. FARRAR,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

In this case, the petitioning teacher asks the Commissioner of Education to reverse the denial, by respondent State Board of Examiners, of his application for a Social Studies (K-12) endorsement to his instructional certificate. Petitioner's undergraduate degree is a Bachelor of Science with a major in Psychology. He attained his instructional certificate and elementary education endorsement via the alternate route, and has been teaching social studies at the elementary level in the Carteret School District, Middlesex County.

Petitioner argues, in his petition and subsequent papers, that he is entitled to a social studies endorsement because 1) he has taught middle school social studies for twelve years, 2) he received the score of 172 on the PRAXIS Social Studies Content Knowledge exam, and 3) because his college major, psychology, is considered a social science. Respondent urges the Commissioner to uphold its denial of the endorsement, which denial was based on its determinations that 1) petitioner's experience teaching at the elementary level cannot substitute for the training required to teach at the high school level, 2) a PRAXIS test score, alone, cannot be grounds for the issuance of a subject matter endorsement, and 3) petitioner's college studies did not include sufficient credit hours in the disciplines which comprise the 'subject' of social studies. Since none of the material facts in this case are disputed, summary disposition is appropriate.

The petitioner bears the burden of establishing – by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence – that he is entitled to issuance of the social studies endorsement. In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590 (1958). The Board of Examiners – which is the body statutorily mandated to determine whether applicants for endorsements to instructional certificates have met the relevant requirements, see, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38 – found that petitioner did not meet that burden. The Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law recommends that the Board of Examiners' determination be upheld.[1]

In most decisions wherein the Commissioner has reviewed determinations by the Board of Examiners, the articulated standard of review has been an assessment of whether the Board's ruling was reasonable, or whether it was arbitrary and capricious. See, e.g. Fisher v. State Bd. of Examiners, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 561 (Comm'r April 8, 1996); Williams v. State Bd. of Examiners, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 58 (Comm'r Oct. 12, 1994). There have, however, been cases in which the utilized standard of review appeared to contemplate that the Commissioner's function was to make an independent determination concerning whether the petitioner had met his or her burden under the rules and whether certification was proper. See, e.g. Linda J. Avellino v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, Commissioner's Decision No. 332-00, decided October 2, 2000, at 34-35. The Commissioner finds that in the instant case, under either standard of review, the Board of Examiner's decision must be affirmed.

[1] No exceptions to that decision were filed by petitioner.

At the time that petitioner applied for the social studies endorsement, general requirements for subject matter endorsements were set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1(a)(3), which states in pertinent part:

> Except as indicated in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11..., to be eligible for a CE in instructional areas, the candidate shall...
> Until October 30, 2009, for subject area endorsements, complete a major in the subject area or at least 30 credits in a coherent sequence of courses appropriate to the instructional area. At least 12 semester-hour credits must be at the advanced level of study, including the junior, senior or graduate level study...

In addition, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6) instructed that two social studies endorsements were available: Psychology and Social Studies – the latter of which "includes American history, European history, world history, government, political science, sociology, geography, anthropology and economics." Ibid. Effective January 7, 2008, the regulations concerning subject matter endorsements were supplemented. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.16 now expressly requires that, in addition to complying with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1(a)(3), social studies teachers must have completed fifteen credits in history – to include courses in American history and World history – to obtain a social studies endorsement.

Apart from the thirty or more credit hours that petitioner completed in psychology, his college transcript shows that he completed two history and three sociology courses, for a total of fifteen credit hours. (Respondent's Brief in support of motion for summary decision, Exhibit C) Only one of those courses – "Social Problems in the United States" – was above the beginning level of study. (Ibid.) Respondent found that those fifteen credits were insufficient to serve as the basis for K-12 social studies instruction. In objecting to that finding, petitioner appears to contend that since psychology is considered a social science, his psychology credits should be added to the fifteen history and sociology credits he earned in college, to satisfy the above referenced thirty credit requirement.

Neither N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1 nor N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6) provides an itemized list of courses required for a social studies endorsement. However, construing the two regulations in pari materia leads to two logical conclusions. First, interpreting the regulations in the way that petitioner urges, i.e., allowing a candidate to use psychology courses to satisfy the requirements for a social studies endorsement, would render superfluous the psychology endorsement memorialized in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6)(i). Statutory construction and common sense preclude such an interpretation. See, e.g., State v. Reynolds, 124 N.J. 559, 564 (1991).

Second, to grant petitioner's wish and issue him a social studies endorsement based upon his psychology classes, simply because psychology is regarded as one of the social sciences, would appear to be ignoring the purpose of both N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6)(ii). The latter regulation identifies the disciplines that an instructor of social studies is expected to teach, over half of which are nowhere in petitioner's academic or experiential background. The former regulation, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1, instructs that a candidate for a K-12 endorsement for a specific subject area – in this case social studies – must have taken a minimum of 30 credits in the disciplines that the candidate plans to teach, with twelve at an advanced level. There can be no other purpose behind these requirements than to ensure that the State's students receive quality instruction in the core curriculum. That purpose would be undermined by issuing a social studies endorsement to a teacher who has taken two beginning level history courses, three sociology courses (two of which were at the beginning level), and no courses whatsoever in the remaining seven disciplines set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)(6)(ii).

In summary, the Commissioner cannot conclude that petitioner has met his burden to prove that he is qualified to receive a social studies endorsement when the record shows that he has had no academic training or practical experience in six of the ten subject areas in which a high school social studies teacher is expected to be knowledgeable. More specifically, the only college transcript provided by petitioner reveals that of the ten subjects subsumed under the social studies endorsement, petitioner took no courses in world history, economics, government, political science, geography or anthropology. (Respondent's Brief in support of motion for summary decision, Exhibit C) All but one of the history and sociology courses that he did take were at the beginning level of study. (Ibid.)

Similarly, the Commissioner is not persuaded that a social studies endorsement can be properly issued based solely upon a PRAXIS score, in the absence of proof of academic and practical training in the disciplines required for the teaching of social studies. Finally, in the Commissioner's view, the fact that petitioner taught social studies on an elementary level does not signify that he possesses the expertise and depth of knowledge that is required to teach upper level social studies courses in high school – including honors and AP courses.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation in the Initial Decision that the petition be dismissed.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 13763-08
AGENCY DKT. NO. 292-10/08

DANIEL FARRAR,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,

Respondent.

Daniel J. Farrar, pro se

Bryant Lawrence Horsley, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Paula Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 9, 2009 Decided: April 27, 2010

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Daniel Farrar, appeals the determination of the Department of Education, State Board of Examiners that denied him a social studies endorsement to his instructional certificate. Respondent denied the endorsement on the basis that petitioner did not satisfy the requirements for the endorsement.

On December 2, 2008, the respondent transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. A hearing was scheduled for June 9, 2009. On April 23, 2009, respondent filed a Motion for Summary Judgment. On or about September 3, 2009, petitioner filed a letter in opposition to the Summary Judgment Motion. A reply was filed by the respondent on September 9, 2009.

FACTS

Petitioner Daniel Farrar (petitioner or Farrar) has been employed as an elementary school teacher in Carteret since 1996. He teaches middle school social studies. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology. In 2006, Farrar passed the Praxis examination measuring content knowledge in social studies. His goal was to receive a social studies endorsement, enabling him to teach social studies at the high school level.

Farrar requested a credentials review before the State Board of Examiners, in 2006. His request was submitted through the Middlesex County Office of Education. Farrar did this with the understanding that the Credentials Review Committee would review his experience and alternative education, but would not waive requirements. The function of the Committee is to determine if the experience is comparable to the particular certification requirements.

In March 2007, Farrar received a letter from the Office of Licensure and Credentials, detailing that the evaluation revealed that a minimum of thirty credit hours in social studies in a "coherent sequence" in the subject field was required. Farrar was required to complete an additional fifteen semester-hour credits with twelve of those credits at an advanced level of study (junior, senior and graduate level). He was advised to consult an accredited four-year college or university to register for those courses. It was further provided that psychology courses could not be substituted for the core content of social studies. All other requirements for the endorsement were met.

In April 2007, Farrar contacted Robert R. Huggins, Ph.D., acting director, Office of Licensure and Credentials, voicing concerns regarding the teacher certification requirements, and the processing of his case. Dr. Huggins responded, reiterating the requirements, citing to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2, and distinguishing social studies and psychology as two separate teaching endorsements. Further, Dr. Huggins advised Farrar that he could appeal this decision to the State Board of Examiners. Farrar filed an appeal on May 7, 2007, and the Credentials Review Committee coordinator advised that the procedure might take several months and reiterated that the Board would not waive requirements, but "determines if the experience presented by the petitioner demonstrates a one to one relationship with the particular certification requirements."[1]

In January, 2008, Dr. Huggins advised Farrar that he had received his appeal and further advised that upon the submission of the required supporting documentation, The State Board of Examiners would review his appeal.

In April, 2008, Farrar received another letter from Dr. Huggins, advising that the information packet submitted had some deficiencies. Dr. Huggins instructed Farrar to focus on each area of deficiency and prepare a narrative which correlates his experience and coursework as the equivalent of the required college study.

In May, 2008, Dr. Huggins advised Farrar to inform him that his appeal was placed on the agenda for the June 5th meeting of The State Board of Examiners. He was invited to attend the meeting so he could address any of the questions or issues the Board might have.

In July 2008, Dr. Huggins advised Farrar that his appeal was denied. The Board concluded in its decision that after reviewing all the documentary evidence and his oral presentation, he failed to establish the required one-on-one correspondence of his experience and academic background. The Board concluded that he did not show "the breadth of knowledge" necessary to teach higher-level courses at the high school level, even though he has a successful and lengthy teaching history at the middle school level. Thus, the Board denied his request for an endorsement to teach social studies for grades kindergarten through 12. In October, 2008, Farrar appealed this decision to the Commissioner.

STANDARDS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Both the New Jersey Administrative Code and the New Jersey Court Rules set forth the standards to be applied in the disposition of a case presenting no genuine issue of material fact, and not requiring a plenary hearing. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) states that: "Summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." This rule echoes the New Jersey Court Rule, R. 4:46-2(c) which states, in part: "The judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law." The rule goes on to explain what constitutes a genuine issue of fact.

> An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact.

For more than forty years the case that served as a beacon for the determination of summary judgment motions was Judson v. People's Bank and Trust of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). However, in 1995 the Judson standard was augmented by the decision in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Now, instead of just determining whether a material issue of fact exists, Brill requires that the evidence be viewed in the light most favorable to the non-movant, who must demonstrate that a dispute exists, and, if resolved in the non-movant's favor, will entitle him to a favorable judgment.

> The "judge's function is not . . . to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial" . . . . If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46- 2 . . . . The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law" . . . the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.
> [Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (internal citations omitted).]

In order for the non-movant to prevail, the party "must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "If the adverse party does not respond, an absence of a material factual dispute may be presumed and the movant will prevail if the law supports the movant's position." 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practice, §5.18 (Steven L. Lefelt, Anthony Miragliotta and Patricia Prunty) (2d ed. 2000).

Here, Farrar did not answer interrogatories, even when the DAG amended them, and made them slightly less onerous. In fact, the only response to the motion for summary decision is the following:

> The basis of my rebuttal of Mr. Brian Horseley's motion to dismiss my claim is simple. Documentation. The N.J. State Department of Education has a staggering amount of documents on everything. Anything, I've passed my Praxis exam (score 177). The state claims that my psychology credits do not count towards the 30 credits of Social Studies required for the secondary endorsement. The state has documentation (New Jersey licensing code) that at the time I applied for the Social Studies endorsement; Social Studies, along with World History, European History, U.S. History, Economics, Civics, Sociology, and Anthropology was listed as a Social Science. There is documentation that shows psychology is ten percent of the practice exam for the Social Studies endorsement. It is ten percent of the actual Praxis exam for the Social Studies endorsement. After an exhaustive search I have found NO [emphasis in the original] documentation that states that, at the time I applied for the > Social Studies endorsement Psychology was not considered a Social Science. Thank you for your attention.

> [(Farrar Letter, (undated, received OAL, June 19, 2009).)]

I FIND that petitioner has failed to specify the facts, and has made only the most general allegations. Insofar as his understanding that, at the time he applied, psychology credits were considered under the ambit of social sciences, that well may be the case, yet he has failed to consider one very important matter, that upon the evaluation of his credentials, in 2007, the State Licensing Board made it clear that psychology could not be substituted for the core curriculum in social studies.[2] It is true that when Farrar made his first application for a credentials review, in 2006, there were no promulgated rules establishing the requirements necessary to obtain a Social Studies endorsement. Such a rule was not proposed until August 20, 2007, see 39 N.J.R. 3441(a), and not adopted until January 7, 2008, see 40 N.J.R. 113(b). The response to comments upon adoption, does allow for a grandfather clause for students who were enrolled in applicable degree programs during the pendency of the proposal of the rule and the date of adoption. See 40 N.J.R. 114, subchapter 11, response to comment 3. The exception is not applicable herein. Farrar was actively teaching social studies at the middle school level, not enrolled in a college program, at the time of his request for an endorsement. His undergraduate field of concentration was psychology. When his credentials were first reviewed, Dr. Huggins explained that under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2, social studies and psychology were designated as two distinct subject areas, each with its own endorsement. That rule's effective date was January 20, 2004. Psychology was not subsumed into the subject area of social studies, it was distinct from it, and therefore the social studies core curriculum area of study was reasonably interpreted by the Board to exclude some of the credits earned by the petitioner in psychology.

Therefore, the fact that the requirements for obtaining a Social Studies endorsement were not codified until after petitioner first requested a credentials review, is not dispositive of the instant dispute. Rather, the issue is whether or not, in making the decision to deny Farrar an endorsement for social studies, the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably.

The burden is on the petitioner who must prove the actions of the Board were unlawful. It is not enough to allege that they reached the wrong conclusion; he must first overcome the "presumption of correctness." He must prove that the action of the board was "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." S. Mountain Civic Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ. of Millburn Twp., EDU 0589-83 (July 13, 1983), adopted, Comm'r (Aug. 29, 1983).

In Bayshore Sewerage Company v. Department of Environmental Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1973), the Court held: "Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action without consideration and in disregard of circumstances, but where there is room for two opinions the action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration even though court may believe that an erroneous conclusion has been reached."

Here, I FIND that the record does not support that the Board's determination was without ample consideration or in disregard of the circumstances. Nor is there any support that the Board's determination was unreasonable and contrary to law.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE that the Board of Examiner's recommendation that petitioner successfully complete an additional fifteen credits to rectify the only deficiency toward obtaining a social studies endorsement is immin ently reasonable. Thus , I hereby AFFIRM the denial of a social studies endorsement. Thus, for the foregoing reasons, respondent Motion for Summary Judgment is hereby GRANTED and this matter is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF VINELAND, CUMBERLAND COUNTY,	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the recommended Order, that petitioner has demonstrated entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, with respect to petitioner's claim that he was wrongfully denied a Donaldson hearing. Therefore, the Board is directed to provide the petitioner with a Donaldson hearing as soon as possible, but not later than August 30, 2010. To that end, if there are currently no Board meetings scheduled prior to August 30, 2010, the Board is directed to schedule a special meeting to afford the petitioner with the opportunity to have his Donaldson hearing. The Board is further directed to refrain from filling any additional vacancies for which petitioner holds an appropriate endorsement until petitioner is provided with a Donaldson hearing.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL granting petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

JEREMY RASMUSSEN,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF VINELAND, CUMBERLAND COUNTY,
Respondent.

Jeremy Rasmussen, petitioner, pro se

Eric L. Harrison, Esq., for respondent (Methfessel & Werbel, attorneys)

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Jeremy Rasmussen, filed an application for emergency relief with the Commissioner of Education, alleging the non-renewal of his employment as a teacher of secondary English with respondent was for improper purposes. For the reasons discussed below, petitioner's request for emergent relief, seeking a Donaldson hearing, is GRANTED.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner is an experienced and well-educated individual. See, Resume P-2. In 2008-2009 and 2009-2010, petitioner was employed by the Vineland Board of Education (Board) as a teacher of secondary English. Petitioner holds a teaching certificate for said title. Petitioner has accumulated 1.75 years of teaching credit towards his tenure rights.

For the 2008-2009 school year, petitioner taught two periods of college English for ninth grade and two periods of college English for tenth grade. For the 2009-2010 school year, petitioner taught two periods of college English for ninth grade and one period of English 11 for students having difficulty passing the HSPA test.

Petitioner received performance evaluations during his approximate two years of service with the Board. Performance evaluations are broken down into four categories: unsatisfactory, basic, proficient and distinguished. For the years in question, petitioner received primarily distinguished or proficient scores in the relevant categories on the evaluations. Petitioner stated his performance evaluations for the years in question were excellent.

The Vineland school district has been designated as in need of improvement by the New Jersey Department of Education. Petitioner explained that all of his students received a 100% pass rate for the HSPA test for both the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 academic years. Petitioner highlighted that for the 2009-2010 school year, he was assigned one class of students who had failed the HSPA test for English 11. 100% of students who completed his English 11 course passed the HSPA test.

The State of New Jersey faces difficult economic times. As part and parcel of these economic times, school boards must make serious budget decisions. See, Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, ¶2. Budget decisions were required to be made in May and June 2010.

On May 12, 2010, the Board determined not to renew petitioner for the 2010-2011 school year. The official minutes state the:

> ...action was based upon the projected return of tenured teachers from leave of absence, the reduction in number of pupils, reasons of economy, budgetary considerations, change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district, restructuring of program components, current limited contract, and/or other good cause. Seven Board members voted in favor of the action.
> See, Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, Exhibit A.

On May 13, 2010, petitioner was notified that, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18:27-10 (Notice of Continued Employment to Non-Tenured Teaching Staff) he would not be offered employment for the 2010-2011 school year. The reasons provided in the notice were identical to those contained in the Board minutes mentioned above. The letter also specifically states that, "This action is not based upon your performance." Finally, the notice emphasized that:

> In the event any or all of these factors change, including but not limited to budgetary considerations, the Board of Education may then, but is not obligated to offer you employment for the 2010-2011 school year.
> Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, Exhibit B.

The Board contends that the notice sent to petitioner was identical to those sent to numerous other non-tenured teaching staff members. See, Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, Exhibit B. By statute[1], the Board must notify all non-tenured teaching staff members by May 15 of the status of their teaching positions for the subsequent year. According to petitioner, approximately 157 non-tenured teaching staff members receive similar notifications.

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10

Petitioner did not receive a Rice[2] notice prior to the Board's meeting of May 12, 2010. The Board asserts a Rice notice is not necessary when the Board of Education is considering the status of massive numbers of non-tenured teaching staff members. It is simply impractical and not necessary to "Rice" all the non-tenured teaching staff members for such a routine or generic termination.

Subsequent to serving non-renewal notices upon staff members, many were reassured that they would ultimately be rehired and that the notices were merely in compliance with the May 15, 2010, deadline set by statute. In fact, approximately 151 non-tenured teaching staff members were rehired, notwithstanding the May 13, 2010, notice to the contrary. See, Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, ¶8.

Petitioner argues that the Board intended to rehire most if not all of the non-tenured teaching staff members back after the May 12, 2010, meeting and May 13, 2010, notice. And petitioner was among those who would be rehired. Discussions connected with that process took place on June 1 and 2, 2010, according to petitioner. Petitioner was reassured by the supervisor of the English department, vice-principal and principal that he would be included with those non-tenured teaching staff members rehired for the 2010-2011 school year. See, P-1, Letter of Theodore A. Peters, Principal (retired). Peters, in his letter, noted his high regard and praise for petitioner. Peters indicated that petitioner was being recommended for renewal based upon actual observations, as well as evaluations of other administrative and supervisory staff.

During the non-tenured teacher renewal process, Vineland students were taking their final examinations. Petitioner observed many improprieties, defects, and other deficiencies during the final examination process. In particular, petitioner observed teaching staff members providing students with answers to examination questions. Ultimately, the teaching staff member or members provided the students with erroneous answers resulting in several students receiving failing grades. Petitioner also observed teaching staff members adding points or subtracting points during the grading process, reflecting scores that did not correlate to the students' performance on the examinations. The scores were weighed based upon last name, ethnicity, and teacher preferences.

Petitioner raised these concerns with his colleagues and supervisors. The concerns were raised in a protective, non-accusatory fashion. For example, in a June 1, 2010, e-mail to the Supervisor of English, petitioner stated:

> I am trying to honor the students' aptitudes by taking a big picture look at the actual essay in front of me and giving it a grade relative to their skill level. I certainly don't want a student that has clearly developed writing aptitude to suffer a poor grade over semantics. But I am having an extremely tough time reconciling the two simultaneous but seemingly competing standards. In other words, how well could a student possibly have answered a question if they unquestionably fail to answer it? In extreme cases, do I just "knock a point off" as has been suggested, or do I ignore the difficulty entirely and just credit whatever writing skills/aptitudes are displayed?

Similarly, petitioner submitted a detailed letter to Dr. Banks, Superintendent of Schools, dated June 8, 2010, again reiterating his concern for improper test administration and scoring.

> It is my first hand experience with the English finals, however, that has been most troubling. From the beginning, there has been a calculated agreement among several teachers that the dual scoring format could be "worked around" by teachers working in pairs that agree to provide a second grade that agrees to within one point of the first. I have witnessed this firsthand. I have also witnessed negotiation of scores, "trading" of points between teachers who have potential scoring disagreements ("I'll add two points to Jane's paper of you add one point to John's), special deals made for particular favorites, and even prejudged scores that were given based on last names that were either recognizes, or in some cases, mocked because of their ethnicity.

Counsel for the Board avers that the determination as to which non-tenured teaching staff members to rehire was made in or around June 4, 2010. Consequently, there is no nexus between petitioner's complaints regarding test taking and the Board's decision not to renew him.

Ultimately, petitioner learned that he was not going to be renewed in spite of oral assurances to the contrary. Rumors about petitioner's exclusion from the renewal list surfaced between the period of June 4 and June 8. Union members and other teaching staff members were beginning to learn who "did not make the cut." The word was leaking out that petitioner was among those who "did not make the cut."

On or about June 15, 2010, petitioner requested reasons for his non-renewal. The Board responded that it was a "reduction in force" or RIF. See, Petitioner's Exhibit C. On June 17, 2010, petitioner requested an appearance before the Board for what is otherwise known as a Donaldson[3] hearing. Superintendent Banks stated that: "Your request for a Donaldson appearance is denied, as you are the subject of a RIF and not a nonrenewal."

In or around July 2010, the Board advertised to fill approximately forty teaching staff positions. Petitioner qualifies for three of the teaching staff positions advertised by the Board (Language Arts Teacher in the Middle School, an English teacher, and an English Teacher – READ 180). Petitioner argues that the Board's net reduction in work force was approximately six non-tenured teaching staff members (157 noticed for non-renewal and 151 rehired). Since the Board is currently advertising to hire forty new teaching staff members, there was no reduction in force achieved. Petitioner argues that the actions of the Board are disingenuous and unlawful.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Law Regarding Non-Tenure-Dismissal

A board of education has broad discretionary authority in regard to the granting of tenure. Donaldson v. Board of Educ. of North Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 240-41 (1974). A board's discretionary authority is not unlimited, and its action will be set aside if it was taken for arbitrary or capricious reasons. Id. at 247; N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b). A determination not to grant tenure need not be grounded on unsatisfactory classroom or professional performance, as there are many unrelated but equally valid reasons. Donaldson, supra, 65 N.J. at 241. Thus, evaluations of classroom performance are not necessarily the controlling factor. Dore v. Bedminster Board of Educ., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453-54 (App. Div. 1982).

A determination within a board's discretionary authority is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable if it is without a rational basis or is induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). A rational basis for a determination is lacking where the board's beliefs or assertions as to the underlying facts prove to be untrue, or if the facts are true, they do not warrant the board's conclusion or action. Id. at 296-97. The party challenging the board's action has the burden of proving unreasonableness. Id. at 297.

Here petitioner asserts three statutory or common law rights that were violated forming his claim for emergent relief. They are; 1) inappropriate reasons for his removal; 2) denial of a Donaldson hearing; 3) violation of the Rice notice.

1. Conflicting Statement of Reasons

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27 -3.2, a non-tenured teaching staff member may request in writing a statement of reasons for non-reemployment and an informal appearance before the district board of education. Donaldson v. North Wildwood Bd. of Ed., 65 N.J. 236 (1974). Here, petitioner satisfied both of the procedural prerequisites to make such a request. The request for a statement of reasons followed the Board's

May 13, 2010, notice of non-renewal. The Board's May 12, 2010, decision to send these notices was not one of choice, but one demanded by statute. The May 15, 2010, deadline is not discretionary, it is obligatory. But the Board's June 16, 2010, letter stating it's reason was a "reduction in force" confused petitioner since he believed he was being non-renewed. See, Petitioner's Exhibit C. He did not perceived that a formal RIF was taking place.

The expression "reduction in force" is a legal term of art in public employment. Petitioner argues that the Board is confusing or comingling a case of non-renewal of a non-tenured teaching-staff member with a formal "reduction in force."

The actions of the Board must be viewed in context with the present fiscal environment. As indicated, the entire state of New Jersey is experiencing fiscal difficulties. The Vineland Board of Education is facing a budget cut of $18.5 million. See, Affidavit of Kevin Franchetta, ¶6. In this context the Board notified 157 teachers that they would be non-renewed for reasons of economy, budgetary consideration, etc. See, Minutes of Board of Education, Notification to Non-Tenured Teachers, supra. While the minutes and notices do not specifically state "reduction in force," the sum and substance of the Board's actions were, in fact, just that. And the Board had to take action by May 15, 2010, as required by statute. N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-10. The Board met its statutory obligation in notifying all non-tenured teaching staff members that their contracts would not be renewed and that the reason for their non-renewal was for budgetary reasons. And the Board intended to rehire many of the non-tenured teaching-staff members, once the budget matters were settled.

When petitioner requested reasons for his non-renewal, the language "reduction in force" was provided. However this language did not substantively change the nature of the action taken in May from a non-renewal to a reduction in force, necessitating a different procedure. The terminology is merely semantics and did not trigger any other substantive obligation upon the Board. I CONCLUDE that petitioner was non-renewed because the Board wanted to reduce its work force. The Board satisfied its obligation by providing petitioner with a lawful and valid notice of reasons for its action. The underlying motives for petitioner's non-renewal are a separate consideration and must be addressed at a plenary hearing.

2. Donaldson Hearing

The second procedural protection raised by petitioner is that he was denied a Donaldson hearing. The right to a Donaldson hearing is codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 This statute states in part:

> An officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal pursuant to section 2 of P.L.1975, c.132 (C.18A:27-3.2) and to an informal appearance before the board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment.

It is undisputed that petitioner made a valid request to appear before the Board. And it is also undisputed the request was denied by the superintendent. See, Petitioner's Exhibit D. The superintendent concluded that petitioner was subject to a reduction in force and therefore not entitled to an appearance before the board. I DISAGREE. Petitioner falls in the category of a non-renewed, non-tenured teacher. Consequently, he is entitled to an informal appearance before the Board. The Board cannot deny that right which is codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, by merely re-titling its action as a reduction-in-force in lieu of a non-renewal.

3. Rice Notice

Petitioner asserts his rights were violated pursuant to Rice v. Union City Regional High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977), certif. denied, 76 N.J. 238 (1978). Pursuant to the Rice decision, a public body is required to provide the employees with reasonable notice of its intention to consider in closed session, personnel matters related to them. Such matters include employment appointment, termination of employment, terms and conditions of employment, evaluation of performance, promotions or discipline. The Rice notification process allows the employee to request a public hearing on such matters.

Here, petitioner suggests that he was entitled to a Rice notice in advance of the Board's May 12, 2010, meeting. Similar circumstances were addressed in Oliveri v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 160 N.J. Super. 131 (App. Div. 1979); and in Jamison v. Morris School Dist. Bd. of Ed., 198 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1985). In both of the aforementioned matters, the Courts concluded that the Boards of Education technical violations of the Rice notification requirements were cured. There is also a body of law that holds that technical violations may be corrected and those corrections will relate back to the date of the initial action in question. See, Davis v. Somers Point Bd. of Ed., 327 N.J. Super. 535 (App. Div. 2000).

In Oliveri, six non-tenured teaching staff members were non-renewed. Public and non-public meetings were held in conjunction with the non-renewal decision-making process. While initially there were technical violations of the Rice procedures, the Board ultimately cured the deficiency in a subsequent meeting. And, the Court also concluded that plaintiff had constructive notice or actual notice to the Board's meeting and agenda.

A similar result was also reached in Jamison. There, the school board denied a vice-principal reemployment in her third year. The vice-principal's non-reemployment was a result of a reduction in force of school administrators. Plaintiff contends that she lacked notice that her employment status would be considered at the Board's meeting and, thus, had no opportunity to request a public discussion at an open meeting. The Jamison court, relying on Oliveri, concluded that the constructive notice, rather than actual notice, is sufficient.

Applying these principles to the present matter, it is clear that most, if not all, non-tenured teaching staff members recognize that their contracts come up for renewal in April and/or May every year until tenured. Since this was petitioner's second year of service, he had already been through the procedures involved with reappointment of non-tenured staff in 2008-2009. Moreover, the Board published and posted notification, as well as prepared an agenda for its May 12, 2010, meeting. The agenda included a line item for non-tenured staff member. See, Agenda and Resolution of Meeting Dates. (C-1).

I CONCLUDE that, collectively, petitioner knew, should have known, or had access to information of what was coming before the Board in May 2010. Thus, no Rice notice violations occurred. Moreover, the Board discussed the personal matters in public, in bulk. The public session minutes reflect a generic or general discussion involving all non-tenured staff members. Rice notices are intended provide staff member notice when a Board or public body, upon its own initiative, is going to act on matters involving personnel. The Board's action was mandated by statute and the statute is a public record. Therefore, it should have come as no surprise to any staff member that the Board was fulfilling its statutory duty.

Emergent Relief

Based upon this background, I now analyze petitioner's rights to emergent relief. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in relevant part:

> A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. Degioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).]

Petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above requirements in order to warrant relief in his favor.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if he is not granted a Donaldson hearing. Petitioner is entitled to a hearing pursuant to the determination made in Donaldson v. North Wildwood Bd. of Ed., 65 N.J. 236. Petitioner is a non-tenured teaching staff member who was entitled to this procedural protection originally determined by our Supreme Court which was later codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 If petitioner is not afforded his right to informally appear before the Board of Education, he will suffer irreparable harm. This is a right that has been created by common law and codified in a statute. It cannot be denied by the superintendent by semantically altering the reappointment process for non-tenured teaching staff members. If this right is not afforded, the statute is violated and irreparable harm will result.

I also CONCLUDE that petitioner's legal right is settled as it relates to his right to an informal appearance before the Board of Education for the reasons set forth above.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits as it relates to his rights protected under Donaldson.

I further CONCLUDE that the balance of equities favor petitioner in terms of granting him a right to an informal appearance before the Board of Education. There is materially no prejudice or consequences to the Board by allowing petitioner to appear and make his case for re-hire or renewal.

Finally, I note that petitioner raised serious allegations of improprieties as to test taking, favoritism, skewing grades, racial bias in test grading, and other disturbing improprieties. As a matter of public policy, this information should be presented to the Board of Education. Moreover, the Board should consider whether this information shared by petitioner with staff members and management formed the basis of petitioner's name being excluded from those staff members who were renewed. Petitioner has more than adequate credentials, excellent performance appraisals and remarkable results as it relates to the performance of his students on the HSPA tests. The Board has been designated by the state as one in need of improvement. And the Board is currently advertising for English teachers. It seems that when a teaching-staff member has a 100% pass rate on HSPA tests in a district this is designated "in need of improvement" and the staff member is highly rated by his principal, an opportunity exists for all.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, petitioner's request for emergent relief, seeking a Donaldson hearing, is GRANTED. A Donaldson hearing shall be scheduled as soon as is practical, but before August 30, 2010. Petitioner's request for continued and immediate employment is DENIED, without prejudice. A hearing on the merits of petitioner's claim that the Board acted arbitrarily and capriciously in not renewing his contract for the 2010-2011 school year will be held on August 30, 2010, at 9:30 a.m., at the Office of Administrative Law, 1601 Atlantic Avenue, Suite 601, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – the Cerebral Palsy League of Union County (CLP) – owns and operates Jardine Academy, a private school for the disabled (PSD) which serves children with disabilities who require medical as well as educational services. Petitioner appealed the Department's determination to disallow $137,319 of salary and fringe benefits for three of its employees – two music therapists, and a coordinator of instruction – for the 2003-2004 school year. The Department found that the employees were in unrecognized job titles without Department approval, and petitioner was ordered to refund tuition payments to the affected public school sending districts.

The ALJ cited to Youth Consultation Service, Inc. v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Policy and Planning, in finding, inter alia, that: the determination of whether salaries and related benefits of certain employees should properly be considered in establishing tuition rates payable to PSDs requires an examination of what an employee actually does; based on the CLP's job description and testimony at hearing, the duties of the music therapist are such that they do not require an instructional certificate, and the duties of the coordinator of instruction position likewise do not require an administrative certificate with an endorsement as supervisor; and the Department improperly determined that the salaries and fringe benefits of the three employees in question were non-allowable costs. The ALJ ordered that the duties of the music therapist position correlate to those of a non-certificated teacher aide or paraprofessional rather than a teacher, and the duties of the coordinator of instruction position correlate to those of a teacher rather than a supervisor; accordingly, the Department had no basis upon which to disallow the $137,319 of salary and fringe benefits for the three positions.

Upon full consideration of the record, and exercising the required deference to the ALJ's implicit credibility assessments, the Commissioner determined to adopt the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, for the reasons stated therein.

CEREBRAL PALSY LEAGUE OF UNION COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto – filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Exceptions of the Department first maintain that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erred in rejecting the Department's disallowance of the salary and benefits of Dawn Huss. In so determining, it charges, she found that the Coordinator of Instruction position was more akin to the responsibilities of the "Head Teacher" position in Youth Consultation Service, Inc. [YCS] v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Policy and Planning, Commissioner's Decision No. 394-07, decided October 4, 2007. The Department advances that the evidence in the record regarding the actual job functions in YCS is distinguishable from that present in this matter. In YCS, it argues, the ALJ's decision turned on hearing testimony which elaborated on the duties listed in the job description of Head Teacher. Here, it charges, there was no such elaboration but only "conclusory statements that the job function is not supervisory," nor are there any facts in the record to establish that the duties of the Coordinator of Instruction position differed in any meaningful respect from the job description provided to the Department. (Department's Exceptions at 2-3, quote at 3) Also instructive, the Department points out, is that the job description for this position "even states that administrative/supervisory experience and a Masters degree is preferred." (Id. at 4) Most importantly, it argues, it is critical that the Department be allowed to rely on job descriptions provided by the school during the audit process in reaching its determinations. The Department, therefore, argues that as Ms. Huss did not possess a Supervisor's certificate in the 2003-04 school year and the record is devoid of factual support for a conclusion that her duties were limited to a non-supervisory role, the determination disallowing her salary and benefits for this school year must be upheld. (Id. at 4-5)

Next, the Department contends that the ALJ's rejection of its disallowance of the salaries and benefits of Joanne Schlachter and Cynthia Pellegrino – employed as music therapists during the 2003-04 school year – because they "did not provide direct instruction, but rather assisted properly certified personnel with the supervision of pupil activities," similarly has no basis in the record. The Department contends that the record does not contain any evidence whatsoever of which instructional staff music therapists assisted but rather, again, contains only "conclusory statements" that these individuals did not teach music but only assisted instructional staff. Absent any definitive testimony regarding the specific instructional staff that these individuals assisted, it professes, the Department's determination disallowing their salaries and benefits must be upheld. (Department's Exceptions at 5-7, quote at 6)

Pages 1-28 of petitioner's Reply Exception submission is a verbatim presentation of its post-hearing brief advanced below. Petitioner concludes this submission by arguing that the crux of this case is the Department's position that its consideration of this matter was properly limited to an examination of the language of the individuals' job descriptions without regard to what their duties actually were. This position, petitioner argues, is wholly belied by the Commissioner's decision in Youth Consultation Service, supra. Here, in line with the principles established in YCS, the ALJ looked beyond the language of the job descriptions alone and found the unrebutted testimony of the school's witness, Patricia Tekel, as to actual duties these individuals performed to be credible. Petitioner argues that this credibility determination is entitled to "considerable deference." It urges that the Commissioner adopt the Initial Decision in its entirety. (Id. at 31)

Upon full consideration of the record – which included transcripts of the hearing conducted on April 15 and 16, 2009 – and exercising the requisite deference to the ALJ's implicit assessment of the credibility of the witnesses,[1] the Commissioner is compelled to adopt the recommended Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1] The applicable standard of review in this regard is clear and unequivocal – the Commissioner "may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record." (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)) A reasoned review of the record, with this governing standard in mind, does not provide a basis for concluding that the ALJ's implicit credibility assessments and resultant fact finding were without the requisite level of support.

Record Closed: August 31, 2009 Decided: June 14, 2010

BEFORE IRENE JONES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Cerebral Palsy League of Union County, (CPL or petitioner) appeals the determination of the respondent, New Jersey State Department of Education, Division of Finance (respondent or Department) that disallowed approximately $137, 319 of salary and fringe benefits for three of its employees for the 2003-2004 school year. The Department found that the employees were in unrecognized job titles without Department approval. As a consequence of this determination, petitioner was ordered to refund tuition payments to the affecting public school sending districts.

The respondent filed an Answer to the petition on June 14, 2007. On October 18, 2007, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. The matter was scheduled to be heard on December 8 and 11, 2008, but adjourned due to the unavailability of the respondent's witness. Hearings were held and concluded on April 15 and 16, 2009, and the record closed on August 31, 2009. At the request of the undersigned, the time for the issuance of the Initial Decision was extended to June 14, 2010.

FACTS

Based on the record, I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioner, Cerebral Palsy League of Union County, Inc., owns and operates Jardine Academy, a private school for the disabled (PSD). Petitioner operates two campus locations, in Cranford and Union. The Union campus serves severely disabled students from approximately four to twelve years old who require medical as well as educational services. The Cranford campus serves a similar population from ages twelve to twenty one. CPL, like all private schools for the disabled in this State, are authorized to receive special-needs students from public school districts (sending districts) when it is determined it is "impractical" for the district to provide specialized education programs for these students. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(g). The sending districts send their students to the PSD and pay tuition. The tuition assessed, however, must not exceed the "actual cost per pupil as determined under rules prescribed by the Commissioner of Education and approved by the State Board of Education (State Board). N.J.S.A. 18A:46-21.

The "Tuition for Private Schools for Students with Disabilities" rules, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.1 to -4.16, impose stringent bookkeeping and accounting practices (N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4), and require the submission of detailed budgets (N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.3). The rules prohibit inclusion of numerous specified costs in calculating tuition (N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5) and require annual detailed audits by the Department (N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.9).

The administrative rules further require PSD use recognized job titles. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(j). Significantly, if a PSD determines that the use of an unrecognized job title is desirable, the PSD must request approval from the county superintendent to use the proposed title. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.4(j); N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(b). Such request must include a detailed job description. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(b)(1). The county superintendent then exercises his or her discretion regarding approval of the request and determines the appropriate certification and title for the position. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(b)(2). If the PSD fails to obtain approval for the unrecognized position title, the costs of salaries and fringe benefits of the untitled employees are not allowable in the calculation of the actual cost per student. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(57).

On June 12, 2003, the Department of Education sent all PSD directors an annual letter that embodied these provisions. (P-1.) Attached to the letter was a list of recognized job titles for PSDs for the 2003-2004 school year. The letter provided: "Private schools should attempt to use the titles from the attached listing but may apply for approval of an unrecognized title through the county superintendent's office in the county where the private school is located." Further, the letter also set forth the process used by the county superintendent to determine whether to grant or deny a request to use an unrecognized job title:

> The county superintendent reviews proposed job titles and job descriptions to determine the following: if the proposed job description requires certification and if a similar job title currently exists. If the proposed job description does not require certification, the request for approval of a new job title will be denied on the basis that it doesn't require certification. If the proposed job description may be fulfilled under an existing job title, the county superintendent will recommend that the school use the existing job title. If the proposed job description requires certification and cannot be > performed under an existing job title, the county superintendent will make a determination of the appropriate title for the position.

The letter further provided that unrecognized-position titles must be approved annually even if previously approved. Finally and most significantly it was stated that "the costs of salaries and fringe benefits of unrecognized position titles which are not properly approved in accordance with [the administrative code] are considered non-allowable costs."

CPL submitted audited financial statements to the Department for both campuses of the Jardine Academy for the 2003-2004 school year. Upon receipt of the statements, James Verner, a section supervisor of the Office for Fiscal Policy and Planning of the Department conducted a desk review of the financial statements in November 2005, by comparing the information in the audit to CPL's Fiscal Information Form. After comparing these statements, he had concerns. Thus, on or about December 22, 2005, Verner notified CPL about his concerns and requested that CPL provide him with the contracts, job descriptions, licenses, and school certifications for three CPL employees: Joanne Schlachter, Cynthia Pellegrino, and Dawn Huss. (P-6; R-3.)

On January 25, 2006, Verner notified CPL that the employment contracts of Schlachter and Pellegrino reflected the position titles of "Music Therapists" and the employment contract of Huss reflected the position title of "Coordinator of Instruction"; all of which were unrecognized titles. (P-7; R-4.) Consistent with P-1, he advised CPL that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(r) and 4.4(j) private schools for the disabled using an unrecognized-position titles must provide documentation that the position title was approved by the respective county superintendent. In the absence of an approval, the school must immediately request retroactive approval from the Union County Superintendent of Schools for the 2003-2004 school year. Finally, he noted that if approval was granted, a copy of same should be submitted to him.

In that same letter, Verner noted, inter alia, that:

> If the proposed unrecognized position title and job description may be fulfilled under an existing recognized position title, the county superintendent will recommend that the school use an existing position title which would be considered in compliance. However, the staff member who held or holds the position must hold the proper school certification for either the recognized position title or an unrecognized position title approved by the county superintendent. If the proper school certification is not held by the staff member, the salary and fringe benefits associated with the position are considered non-allowable costs in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(6).
> If the county superintendent determines that the function(s) of the unrecognized position title(s) does not require school certification, the unrecognized position title(s) will not be approved. The school must request county superintendent approval of the position as an aide based on the job description submitted to this office for the positions of Coordinator of Instruction . . . and Music Therapist. If no such approval exists and retroactive approval cannot be obtained, the salary and fringe benefits associated with these positions are considered non-allowable in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(57) . . . . [A] county superintendent . . . of schools approval of any recognized position title and paraprofessional title is required on an annual basis.

When Patricia Tekel (Tekel), Jardine Academy's director of operations, received Verner's letters she contacted the office of Union County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Carmen Centuolo to schedule an appointment. Both the purpose and outcome of that February 2006 meeting are disputed by the parties. Following that meeting, Debra Wolfel, CPL's executive director and Charles Zalewski, CPL's director of finance, notified Verner in letters dated February 15, 2006, that:

> We have met with Dr. Carmen Centuolo, Union County Superintendent of Schools, and Ms. Heather Mills Pevonis, Union County Supervisor of Child Study, to address the issue of unrecognized job titles and to review job descriptions. Based on the outcome of our meeting, Dr. Centuolo recommended that we use existing recognized job titles for those position titles in question. As such, per Dr. Centuolo's instruction, enclosed please find amended > Annual Program and Fiscal Information Report for the 2003-2004 school year. Furthermore, included are the amended 2004-2005 and 2005-2006 Annual Program and Fiscal Information Reports with the corrected position titles to ensure that we remain in compliance.

Upon receipt of CPL's letters, Verner e-mailed Dr. Centuolo on March 30, 2006, concerning CPL's proposed use of existing job titles for the positions. (P-10.) He advised Dr. Centuolo that:

> Beginning in the 2004-2005 school year, no retroactive approval of unrecognized job titles were being granted which was agreed upon by all the county superintendents and the private schools were made aware of this decision prior to the 2004-2005 school year. In addition, approximately a year ago a committee of three county superintendents was formed and chaired by Dr. Patrick Piegari to review all requests for approval of unrecognized job titles along with standard written response forms for all requests.
>
> [(R-6.) (Emphasis added.)]

He advised Centuolo to contact Dr. Piegari.

Following Verner's e-mail to Centuolo, the Union County Supervisor of Child Study Heather Mills-Pevonis sent an e-mail to Centuolo on April 4, 2006, wherein she stated:

> I spoke with Susan Ballestero, Director of Personnel for the Cerebral Palsy League (Jardine Academies) . . . this afternoon, where she admittedly thought that meeting with Carmen and me on February 2, 2006 would rectify their unapproved job titles for the previous year's dating back to 2003-04. In memorializing our meeting we agreed that Ms. Tekel and Ms. Ballestero sought guidance on how to proceed (meaning going forward) with their title dilemma of unrecognized job titles and were advised to use approved titles; they were not requesting retroactive approval. I provided them with the latest approved title list and we briefly discussed the titles in question with the county superintendent and me.

> To date there has not been any request submitted to this county office requesting the superintendent to review and/or approve an unrecognized job title. I further shared the process of submitting in writing a formal request for an unrecognized position titles [sic]. Citing the specifications Mr. Verner directed me to on our website.

On April 11, 2006, CPL's Director of Personnel Susan Ballestero submitted a formal request to Dr. Centuolo for retroactive approval of the unrecognized-position titles of "Music Therapist" and "Coordinator of Instruction." (P-14.) In her letter, Ballestero stated:

> At the time of our meeting in February, we understood that unrecognized position titles and job descriptions from 2003-2004 could be fulfilled under existing recognized position titles because they had the appropriate school certification. However, as per instructions from Heather Mills-Pevonis and Jim Verner, we are writing to request retroactive approval of the unrecognized position titles for the school year 2003-2004.

On September 11, 2006, Dr. Centuolo advised CPL that she had denied its request for retroactive approval of the unrecognized-position titles of "Music Therapist" and "Coordinator of Instruction." (P-19.) Additionally, she advised CPL that the Department's Committee of County Supervisors had reviewed CPL's proposed-job descriptions and had concluded that the positions did not meet the Department's licensing requirements. Further, she noted that the job description for the "Music Therapist" position title could be fulfilled under an approved "Music Teacher" position title, which requires the holder of the position to hold a New Jersey school certification as a music teacher and that the job description for the "Coordinator of Instruction" position title could be fulfilled under the existing approved "Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction" position title, which requires the holder of the position to hold a New Jersey school certification as a supervisor. (P-19.)

On January 10, 2007, Verner notified CPL that consistent with the Department's September 11, 2006, decision unless it could provide documentation that Schlachter and Pellegrino held the required certifications for the existing job titles (music teacher and supervisor of curriculum) for the 2003-2004 school year, their salaries and fringe benefits would be considered non-allowable costs. (P-20, P-21.)

On February 13, 2007, Debra Wolfel addressed the issues outlined in Verner's January 10, 2007, letter regarding the 2003-2004 Audit for each CPL campus. (P-24, P-25.) Regarding the music therapist position, she stated:

> While I appreciate Dr. Centuolo's recommendation of using the existing recognized title of Music Teacher . . . utilization of that title does not reflect the function and nature of this position/expenditure. The nature of the Music Therapy provides activities that are supplemental to and assist in the instructional process; in no way does this position teach music. Per the NJ Private Schools for the Disabled Chart of Accounts Appendix B, this account line . . . is for salaries of all certified staff providing related services to children which would include physical therapist, occupational therapist, speech therapist, counseling and school psychologists, etc. Music Therapy in [sic] not a related service.

Therefore, this expenditure was classified as a salary for an assistant or aide to the instructional process. (Ibid.)

Regarding the Coordinator of Instruction position, she stated:

> While I appreciate Dr. Centuolo's recommendation of using the existing recognized title of Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction, . . . utilization of that title does not reflect the function and nature of this position/expenditure. In the position of Coordinator of Instruction, Ms. Dawn Huss, did not provide supervision nor was she required to assist teachers in improving instructional methods and the learning process. This position was not intended to improve instructional services; Rather the position of Coordinator provided assistance in the coordination and support of teaching and administrative duties.

[(P-24.)]

Therefore, this expenditure was classified as a salary for support services–school administration. (Ibid.)

On May 24, 2007, CPL filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner wherein it alleging that the Department's determinations were arbitrary, in that the functions actually performed by Schachter, Pellegrino, and Huss did not require the certifications mandated.

DISCUSSION, FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-13 provides that every school district is obligated to provide a free and appropriate education (FAPE) to students who are classified as disabled and in need of special services. A district that lacks the ability to deliver the necessary services may satisfy its obligation by sending special needs students to a State-approved facility or program. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14.

A PSD may charge its sending districts for tuition for its services; however, the tuition may not exceed the certified cost per student. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.1. Each fiscal year a PSD is required to submit audited financial statements for review by the Department, which forms the basis for determining the certified actual cost per student and the final tuition rate the PSD may access to a sending district. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.9. The Department reviews PSDs audited financial statements to ensure that non-allowable expenses are not being charged to the sending districts.

N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5 sets forth the various types of non-allowable expenses that a PSD must exclude from the certified actual cost per student calculation. Subsection (a)(57) of his rule specifies that a PSD may not charge its sending districts for the costs of salaries and fringe benefits of unrecognized-position titles which are not properly approved in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5.[1]

[1] During the 2004-2005 school year this process was governed by N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3.

The Department provides annual notice to the PSDs regarding these procedures. For the 2003-2004 school year, a letter was sent to all PSD directors on or about June 12, 2003. The letter iterated that the PSD should minimize the use of unrecognized job titles and that a PSD must apply for approval of same. The letters further explained that such requests must be forwarded to the county superintendent where the PSD is located and the job description would be reviewed to determine if the job responsibilities could be fulfilled under a recognized job title and whether a certificate was required.

Music Therapist

The determination of whether salaries and fringe benefits of certain employees should properly be considered in establishing tuition rates payable to PSDs requires one to look beyond titles and determine what the employee actually does. Youth Consultation Serv. v. Dep't of Educ., EDU 3573-06 (consolidated), Initial Decision (August 20, 2007), adopted, Comm'r (October 4, 2007), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Here, the written job description for the title "Music Therapist" requires the individual to assist classroom teachers and other certified staff in meeting defined goals and objectives of students using music as a medium. The music therapist is responsible for:

> Maintaining and safeguard each family/student's right to privacy, respect and confidentiality;
> Assist the interdisciplinary team in the assessment of the student's musical interest, responses, knowledge skills and abilities;
>
> Assist the classroom teacher or school certified therapist in assessing the usefulness of specific musical equipment, materials, and resources available for the student's specific handicap as well as assist in determining the most effective approach to motivate the student through music. Assist in conducting individual and group music sessions, as planned, to effect changes or growth;

> Assist in planning individual and group music sessions to meet each student's goals and objectives;
>
> Assist in evaluating the overall music program and suggest necessary changes as needed;
>
> Participate as an active member of the Direct Service Team and attend appropriate workshops and professional meetings to increase professional knowledge and skills;
>
> Introduce to interdisciplinary team new program activities and suggest improvement for existing activities to meet the needs of students;
>
> Request inventory and maintain music equipment;
>
> Attend annual IEP meetings when requested;
>
> Carry out related duties as requested by the Therapy Program Specialist or Principal; . . . . .
> [(P-44.)]

According to Dr. Piegari, the Committee's determination consisted of a review of the actual job responsibilities and a determination of whether the responsibilities were those of a certified music teacher or those of a non-certified teacher position. In his view, a certified music teacher would:

1. "Assessment of students' musical interests and knowledge of skills and abilities."

2. "Work with the classroom teacher or other certified therapists, look at musical equipment, materials, and specific resources that are available." A music teacher "would be able to provide that specific direction and support."

3. "Look at the most effective approach to motivate students through music." Contribute a major role of the music teacher.

4. "Assist the interdisciplinary team in evaluating the overall music program, and suggesting necessary changes."

5. "Introduce to interdisciplinary team new program activities and suggestions for improvement to existing activities, to meet the needs of students."

Piegari was a "little" surprised that CPL used the term "assist" in the job description. Typically an art or music teacher runs their program with some coordination or work with a classroom teacher. Here, the job description starts with "assist" and then the rest of the sentence gets into more direct instruction. He found this to be a "little inconsistent" and a "little bit of a dichotomy" as assisting is more of a secondary role, but then it gets into a very specific role.

Dr. Centuolo testified the job description specifically required the music therapist to instruct the students and work with the students in therapy; they were going to be addressing the child's IEP and assessing the students. In her view, these are all the things that you would do as an instructional staff member. Further, if the music therapists performed as CPL indicated, then the staff person merely assisted the teacher. No special expertise, no special theory or certification was required and could be performed by an aide. Centulo concluded that the assistant was there to motivate the children. Since that staff person was merely assisting in the educational process, their salary would have to be commensurate with that type of duty and not classified as an instructional staff member, nor would they need an unrecognized title approval. Ultimately, the issue was whether the person was assisting or was an actual teacher.

Tekel recalled that when she and Balastero met with Heather Mills-Pevonis in February 2006, they talked about the function of the music therapist in the school and it was acknowledged at that time that the music therapist does not teach music but instead assists the classroom teacher and the different therapists and uses music as a modality for instruction. Indeed, she recalls she made it "pretty clear" that the music therapist doesn't teach music; it's just music as a modality that Ms. Mills-Pevonis and she agreed to it. Thus, the music therapist does not teach music, but rather assists the instructional staff by providing activities that are supplemental to and assist in the instructional process.

I FIND that the Department's failure to acknowledge that the music therapist is not providing direct instruction, among the functions and responsibilities noted in the job description, is critical in reviewing its determination.

N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.1 defines a "Paraprofessional" as school aide or classroom aide who assists appropriately certified personnel with the supervision of pupil activities.[2] Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.5(b), a teacher aide may:

> provide supplementary support to a student or students with disabilities when the IEP team has determined that the student requires assistance in areas including, but not limited to, the following:
>
> 1. Prompting, cueing and redirecting student participation;
>
> 2. Reinforcing of personal, social, behavioral, and academic learning goals;
>
> 3. Organizing and managing materials and activities; and
>
> 4. Implementation of teacher-designed follow-up and practice activities.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:14-4.5(b) (emphasis added).]

Clearly, what distinguishes a teacher's aide/paraprofessional from a teacher is that the latter is responsible for the direct instruction of students, while a "teacher aide/paraprofessional" merely assists a properly certified professional who is ultimately responsible for supervising students. In Dowding v. Monroe Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 1711, 1712, the State Board of Education held

> Whether or not an . . . assignment is a teaching staff assignment requiring an [appropriate] certification turns upon the specific duties to be performed in that particular assignment, requiring assessment of whether the employment is of such character as to require that the individual assigned thereto hold appropriate certification in order to perform such functions.

I FIND that duties as enumerated in CPL's job description for the music therapist and attested to by Ms. Tekel are more like those of a "teacher aide" or "paraprofessional" than a teacher. They describe support and assistive functions rather than direct instruction. The music therapists do not teach music; but rather assist the instructional staff by providing activities that are supplemental to the instructional process.

I CONCLUDE that based on the CPL job description and Tekel's testimony that the duties of the music therapist are such that they do not require an instructional teacher certificate in order to perform their functions.

Coordinator of Instruction

CPL describes the responsibilities for this position as requiring one to monitor and assess the overall environment within each assigned classroom and ensuring the effective delivery of integrated educational and therapeutic services to their optimal potential. Provide support and technical expertise to the instructional team in formulating and implementing strategies to effectively meet the individual needs of each student. Additionally, the coordinator is a liaison between all in-house team members, parents and department coordinators. Finally, the coordinator is required to facilitate the implementation of each student's Individualized Education Program and assure that all support and related services are consistent and complimentary. As coordinator, responsibilities include:

> Maintain(ing) and safeguard(ing) each employee/family/student's right to privacy, respect and confidentiality;
>
> Maintain(ing) ongoing communication with the Principal, Nursing Coordinator, Social Worker, and Parents/Guardians regarding student's educational program;
>
> Assist teachers and therapists in creating an educational environment conducive to student learning and development as well as assist team members in maintaining appropriate,

[2] During the 2004-2005 school year the regulation in effect provided the purpose of a school or classroom aide is to assist "in the supervision of pupil activities under the direction of a principal, teacher or other designated certified professional personnel . . . ." N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.6 (emphasis added).

useful, and compliant plan books, data sheets, lesson plans, class registers, therapy logs by regular review;

Provide orientation and ongoing support training for all team professional and para-professional staff;

Investigate and recommend conferences and educational seminars for team members . . . ;

Assist team staff in the development and attainment of professional development goals . . . ;

Review and approve purchase orders and check requests relevant to the implementation of individual educational plans . . .;

Assist the Principal and Vice Principal in developing and implementing staff recruitment plans and in the development and implementation of applicable policies and procedures;

Schedule, attend, facilitate and provide documentation on in-house team meetings, progress meetings, IEP planning meetings, and monthly case review meetings regarding status of student's program as well as facilitate and document special interdisciplinary team meetings;

Attend bi-monthly Program Coordination meetings for the purpose of disseminating information, discussing concerns and formulating plans to meet the identified needs of the students;

Track all student specific program recommendations and equipment requests to assure they are carried out in a timely fashion;

Assist in the development and implementation of all Quality Assurance programs, including Middle States Strategic Plans;

Track IEP related services and report all gap s [sic] and or anticipated gaps to Education Plan Coordinator for resolution;

Carry out additional related assignments as requested by the Principal, Vice Principal and/or Executive Director; . . . .

The Committee denied the request for retroactive approval of this position because it was concluded that the position could be fulfilled under an existing title of "Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction." Piegari then detailed the individual responsibilities contained in the job description to validate the Committee's decision.

Dr. Centuolo agreed with Pregari's assessment that the job description described a supervisor of instruction's position. CPL requires the coordinators to report to a principal, thus she assumed that it was the supervisor's position at a minimum. Further, she recommended that the position require a supervisor's certificate due to the number of supervisory responsibilities listed in the job description.[3] She recalled telling CPL that based on their description of the title that position didn't require a degree, or it seemed to be an administrative assistant's position. However, the job description was not consistent with CPL's oral representation during their meeting.

However, witness Tekel specifically recalled her meeting with Heather Mills-Pevonis in February 2006 where the functions of the coordinator of instruction were discussed. CPL specified that the coordinator would be engaged in the educational program of each individual student; would coordinate the therapy with the educational process and the IEP.

She further recalled stating that the coordinator of instruction does not supervise or evaluate anybody. Further, as coordinator, she does not formulate the curriculum. Nor does she determine whether the certified staff is retained or renewed. At the meeting, Mills-Pevonis agreed the job title of teacher was appropriate.

CPL contends the supervisor of curriculum and instruction does not supervise nor assist teachers in improving instructional methods and the learning process, but rather provides assistance in the coordination and support of teaching and administrative duties. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c) provides:[4]

[3] For example, the position requires the coordinator to conduct performance appraisals.

[4] During the 2004-2005 school year the regulation in effect provided a supervisor's endorsement is required:

> For supervisors of instruction who do not hold a school administrator's or principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This > for both supervisors of instruction and athletic directors who do not hold a standard principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This endorsement also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.

> A supervisor's endorsement is required:

In Youth Consultation Service, supra, EDU 3576-06, the Department determined that the job description for an unrecognized "Head Teacher" title matched the duties of the recognized supervisor title, which requires a supervisor's certification. However, at the hearing it was established the actual duties and functions of the position differed greatly from the written job description. Ibid. Indeed, the ALJ acknowledged that the references in the job description would reasonably lead to a conclusion of supervisory status without further explanation. However, based on the testimony of the Superintendent, it was concluded that the primary duties involved direct student instruction, which reflected a status of a lead-person rather than that of a supervisor charged with the authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. Thus, the ALJ found that the duties correlated to those of certified teachers of the handicapped rather than supervisors and that the lack of a supervisor's certificate was not a basis for disallowing the employees' salaries and fringe benefits. Ibid.

Here, I FIND that the duties of the "Coordinator of Instruction" are comparable to the responsibilities of the "Head Teacher" position in Youth Consultation Service, supra. Tekel testified that the function of the coordinator of instruction was to help the educational program of each individual student; to coordinate the therapy with the educational process and the IEP. Additionally, she noted that the coordinator of > endorsement also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.

>

instruction does not supervise or evaluate anybody or get involved in the formulation of curriculum. She does not take part in the hiring process.

Given the job descriptions and Tekel's testimony, I FIND that the individual serving in the coordinator of instruction position was not required to possess an administrative certificate with an endorsement as a supervisor as the responsibilities do not reflect a school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. See N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c).

Based on the record, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Department improperly determined that the salaries and fringe benefits of Sclachter, Pellegrino, and Huss were non-allowable costs because the "Music Therapist" and "Coordinator of Instruction" positions were unrecognized job titles; their job responsibilities as written in their respective job descriptions could be fulfilled under existing job titles of music teacher and supervisor of curriculum and instruction; and the aforementioned employees did not hold the requisite certifications.

ORDER

I ORDER that the duties of the music therapist correlate to those of a teacher aide or a paraprofessional rather than a teacher and the lack of a teacher's certificate is not a basis for disallowing Sclachter and Pellegrino's salaries and fringe benefits.

I further ORDER that the duties of the coordinator of instruction correlate to those of a teacher rather than a supervisor and therefore the lack of a supervisor's certificate is not a basis for disallowing Huss' salary and fringe benefits.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law on July 9, 2010 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner adopts the recommended order denying emergent relief as he concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons stated on the digital recording – that petitioner has not satisfied his burden of establishing the requirements necessary for the granting of such extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982); most notably, he has failed to demonstrate: irreparable harm, that the legal right is established in his favor, or that he has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying controversy.

Accordingly, the instant application for emergent relief is hereby denied. However, notwithstanding that this pro se petitioner's petition of appeal was inartfully titled "Petition for Declaratory Ruling and Injunctive Relief," it is clear on its face that the underlying relief being sought by petitioner is a rescinding of the Board's hiring action. Consequently, this matter is being returned to the OAL for such further proceedings as may be required to resolve this underlying issue.

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ:

Application for Emergent Relief having been filed by Scott E. Rixford, Chief School Administrator for the Borough of Woodland Park appearing pro se and Jeffrey R. Merlino, Esq., appearing on behalf of the Woodland Park Board of Education The undersigned having heard oral argument from both sides and having reviewed briefs submitted by both sides does hereby deny the application for Emergent Relief based on the petitioner's failure to establish any potential for irreparable harm, a failure to establish a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlined claim and an acknowledgement that the Emergent Relief requested, that being a denial of an offer of contracts to seven previously riffed employees of the Board, is moot because all seven employees have already been offered contracts.

It is further ORDERED that this matter is being returned to the Commissioner of Education for a determination of whether the contracts offered to the seven full-time employees can be or should be rescinded.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a tenured principal, who had most recently been employed by the Board as superintendent – filed a petition and an application for emergent relief, contending that respondent violated his tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 when it failed to assign him to a position as principal after the Board declined to renew his contract as superintendent. Emergent relief was denied following oral argument in July 2009, and the parties filed cross-motions for summary decision on the issues.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent Board admitted in its opposition to petitioner's motion for emergent relief that it may be responsible to find a position for petitioner, but in its subsequent filing contends that it owes no duty to Dr. Lewis, and considers him no longer employed by the District; it was stipulated by the parties that petitioner never resigned from his position as principal during his tenure as superintendent and did not otherwise abandon his tenure rights to that position with the District; N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.4 protects a superintendent's tenure rights; and the only way the Board can keep petitioner from a position within its district is to successfully file tenure charges against him. The ALJ concluded that petitioner has tenure rights to a principal's position in the Asbury Park School District and granted his motion for summary decision, ordering the Board to return petitioner to a position for which he is qualified under his principal certificate and to compensate him for back salary and benefits.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner was compelled to concur with the ALJ's conclusion that summary decision is appropriately granted to petitioner, finding that the current applicable law – N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.4 – makes this determination mandatory and not discretionary in nature. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner ordered the Board to forthwith reinstate petitioner to a principal position consistent with his tenure and seniority rights and to compensate him for back pay and emoluments from the date of his termination as superintendent of schools to the date of his reinstatement as a principal.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ASBURY PARK, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board and petitioner's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The Board's exceptions – in relevant part – recast and reiterate its arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. As it is determined that these were fully considered and addressed by the ALJ in his Initial Decision, they will not be revisited here.

Upon his comprehensive review, the Commissioner is compelled to concur with the ALJ's conclusion that summary decision is appropriately granted to petitioner. In so determining, the Commissioner is cognizant that current applicable law provides him no recourse in this regard. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.4 – in pertinent part – states:

> ...A superintendent of schools promoted from within a district shall retain all tenure rights accrued in any position which was previously held by the superintendent in the district.

As this provision clearly and unequivocally expressly preserves all tenure rights previously accrued by a contract superintendent promoted from within a district, the result in this matter is mandatory, not discretionary in nature.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. The District is hereby ordered to forthwith reinstate petitioner to a principal position consistent with his tenure/seniority rights and to compensate him for back salary and emoulments from the date of his termination as superintendent of schools on July 1, 2009, to the date of his reinstatement to a principal's position.

ANTONIO N. LEWIS,
Petitioner,
v.
ASBURY PARK BOARD OF EDUCATION,
Respondent.

Robert T. Pickett, Esq., for petitioner

Michael J. Gross, Esq., for respondent (Kenny, Gross, Kovats & Parton, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 20, 2010 Decided: June 21, 2010

BEFORE RONALD W. REBA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, on July 23, 2009, petitioner Antonio Lewis filed a petition of appeal with an application for emergent relief. Petitioner contends that respondent Asbury Park Board of Education (Board or District) violated his tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 by failing to assign him to a position as principal within the Board's jurisdiction after the Board declined to renew his contract as superintendent. The case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on July 27, 2009. Following oral argument on July 31, 2009, emergent relief was denied on the basis that petitioner could not establish that he would suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief were not granted.

The parties have now filed what I consider to be cross-motions for summary decision on the issues submitted in the original petition of appeal.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The petitioner argues that the Asbury Park Board of Education has an affirmative duty to return him to a principal position, for which he is tenured, a fact which has not been refuted by the respondent. In its opposition to the motion for emergent relief, respondent admitted that it may ultimately be responsible to find a position for petitioner or make him financially whole. It now makes the argument that it owes no duty to Dr. Lewis and considers him no longer an employee of the school district.

Antonio Lewis became principal of Asbury Park Middle School in 1992, and acquired tenure as a principal with the Asbury Park School District in 1995. Lewis remained in his principal position until 1999, when he was appointed interim school superintendent for the District. In 2001, Lewis was appointed school superintendent and signed a five-year contract with the District. In 2005, the District rescinded Lewis's five-year contract and the parties entered into a separate four-year contract that ran from 2005 to June 30, 2009. The District declined to renew Lewis's contract as superintendent at the end of that contract, and Lewis was not returned to any position with the District and is not currently on the District's payroll. The parties agree that at no time did Lewis resign his position as principal.

Lewis seeks to be reinstated in his tenured position as principal with the District, and seeks back pay and all benefits to which he would have been entitled had he been reinstated to a principal position at the end of his contract as superintendent, to the date of his reinstatement to a principal position with the District. It is undisputed that the District currently employs five school principals, two of whom have yet to acquire tenure as principals. Also, the District has recently advertised to replace one of the principals due to an expected retirement.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The purpose of tenure laws is "to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528–29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1 (Tenure Employees Hearing Law). A tenured teaching staff member may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after the appropriate procedural requirements under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law have been met.[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

In 1991, the Legislature passed and Governor Florio signed into law an act "concerning certain supervisory personnel in local school districts, amending N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and supplementing Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes." L. 1991, c. 267. While that act replaced lifetime tenure with contract tenure for superintendents, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.4, which is part of that act, states that "[a] superintendent of schools promoted from within a district shall retain all tenure rights accrued in any position which was previously held by the superintendent in the district." Ibid.

[1] According to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9:

> Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article.

Thus, a tenured teaching staff member could also lose his job as a result of a reduction in force.

It is acknowledged by respondent that Lewis did not lose his tenure rights when he was promoted from principal to superintendent by the District. Lewis argues, however, that the District has "de facto dismissed" him as a principal, because he is ready, willing, and able to perform the duties of a principal with the District but the District refuses to place him in a principal position or any other position for which he is qualified. I agree.

The District argues that summary decision should be granted to the District because petitioner had no legal right or entitlement to a principal's position following the natural conclusion of his superintendence. (District's Brief, May 3, 2010, at 2.) However, on August 10, 2009, in response to Lewis's application for emergent relief in this matter, the District stated that, "[i]n fact, as repeatedly acknowledged by [the District], [Lewis] is protected by tenure, and is entitled to some assignment at (or above) his tenured Principal position." (District's Letter Brief, August 10, 2009, at 1.) It appears that the District has assumed inconsistent stances during the course of this matter, taking one position for purposes of Lewis's application for emergent relief and then taking a different position for purposes of the District's motion for summary decision. Such inconsistencies are barred under the doctrine of judicial estoppel, which precludes "a party from asserting a position in a case that contradicts or is inconsistent with a position previously asserted by the party in the case or a related legal proceeding." Tamburelli Properties Ass'n v. Bor. of Cresskill, 308 N.J. Super. 326, 335 (App. Div. 1998). While the District's motion must fail for other reasons, this tribunal uncomfortably notes that the District appears to have taken opposite positions depending on what relief it seeks. While petitioner's' application for emergent relief failed due to his failure to show irreparable harm, this tribunal gave attention to the District's assurance that Lewis "is entitled to some assignment at (or above) his tenured Principal position" in assessing Lewis's right to emergent relief and why it was premature at that time. Had the District taken its present position at the inception of this appeal, all of the issues could have been addressed in a single, financially expeditious cohesive decision instead of duplicating efforts, which is not only unfair to the petitioner, but also to the citizens of Asbury Park and other individuals ultimately affected by this case.

The District argues that Lewis does not possess a seniority right to a principal's position because there has been no reduction in force, and, accordingly, any seniority right Lewis may have had remains inchoate. (District's Brief, May 3, 2010, at 2.) While the District may correctly argue that seniority rights only arise from a reduction of force (commonly referred to as a "RIF") under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11, and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1, the tenure laws include only two ways in which a tenured teacher may be removed. The first way is a RIF under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and the second way is through the procedural requirements of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law. A RIF is not at issue here. Thus, I FIND that the only way in which the District can keep Lewis from a position with the District is to successfully file tenure charges against him. In the absence of such charges, the District has violated Lewis's tenure rights by failing to place him in a position as principal or another position for which he is qualified. I further FIND that the District's argument that seniority rights lay dormant until there is a RIF cannot overcome Lewis's tenure right to a position with the District unless the respondent successfully files tenure charges against Lewis. Again, as the District "emphasized" in its August 10, 2009, Letter Brief, "[Lewis] is protected by tenure, and is entitled to some assignment at (or above) his tenured Principal position."

Finally, the District argues that by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1, Lewis's employment in the District ceased when he was not reappointed to another term, and, accordingly, he is not entitled to claim a principal's position. (District's Brief, May 3, 2010, at 4.) As the District points out, "[i]t is a fundamental principle of statutory construction that courts must look to the plain language of the statute to determine its meaning," and "[w]here the language is clear, the court need not look beyond the statutory terms to determine the legislative intent." (Ibid.) While the District correctly outlines the rules of statutory construction, those same rules work against the District. According to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1, if a school board does not wish to continue to employ a person as superintendent, one way to effect this desire is to give the superintendent proper notice "in writing that he will not be reappointed at the end of the current term, in which event his employment shall cease at the expiration of that term." Thus, the District argues, Lewis's "employment with [the District] permanently ceased on June 30, 2009, and accordingly, he was not entitled to return to a Principal's position." (District's Brief, May 3, 2010, at 5.) However, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 defines "employment" as including "employment in a position," whereas "employee" includes "the holder of any position or employment." Emphasis added. These definitions make it clear that "employment" in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 refers to the position of superintendent, and does not affect any tenure rights Lewis has in another position within the District. Indeed, as stipulated by the parties, Lewis never resigned from his position as principal during his tenure as superintendent and did not otherwise abandon his tenure rights to a principal position with the District. As a result, the only way in which Lewis's employment as a principal with the District could "permanently cease" is if the District successfully brings tenure charges against Lewis.

The District's ultimate position is that Lewis's "appointment to Superintendent of Schools was a one way street, precluding him (and any other similarly situated person) from 'coming back down' to a lesser, previously held position." (District's Brief, May 3, 2010, at 2.) However, the law holds otherwise, as N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.4 protects a superintendent's tenure rights. Indeed, there would be little incentive for a tenured teaching staff member to accept a school board's invitation to ascend to a superintendent's position unless there were safeguards in place that would allow that person the right to return to his or her former position at the end of his or her superintendent's contract. An example would be a recently tenured principal who did not have enough years to retire taking a superintendent's position, and after a brief term he is released by a new school board. Under the District's position this individual is not only without his superintendent's position, but also loses all employment with the district. This could not be what was intended by the framers of the 1991 legislation that eliminated lifetime tenure for superintendents, but provided those who take such a position with the protection of contract tenure and the retention of any tenure rights in a previous position. Thus, a school board cannot so easily remove a tenured teaching staff member who "doesn't work out" as superintendent. Indeed, as stated by the court in Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 298 (App. Div. 1960) (citations omitted), "[t]enure is a status, a protection, not a contract. As a status, tenure protects all teachers who have it, the merely adequate as much as the excellent." While the District exercised its right not to renew Lewis's superintendent contract, Lewis's tenure rights to a position for which he is qualified with the District remain. Under the facts of this matter, the District must place Lewis in a position for which he is qualified.[2]

The case that I find is most analogous to the instant case, as pointed out by the petitioner, is a 1995 final decision entitled Dunn v. Elizabeth Board of Education, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 279. In that case, the commissioner upheld the decision of the ALJ, who ruled that a superintendent could not during his contractual time period be removed by the board and reassigned to an assistant superintendent's position which he formerly held and to which he had tenure. In his decision the commissioner stated:

> Thus, in the present instance, while the board was free to unilaterally relieve petitioner of his duties for the remainder of his contract, it was not free to assign him the duties of Assistant Superintendent instead. Petitioner's Tenure right to that position should he choose to exercise it, will arise upon expiration of his contract.

The commissioner in the Dunn case acknowledged that a superintendent may elect to use his tenure rights to a former position once his contract has expired. I can only conclude from a reading of this case that Dr. Lewis also has this option, which cannot be unilaterally barred by the District.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 provides that summary decision may be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). In this case, there are no material facts in dispute. See Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995).

[2] After the hearing petitioner forwarded a notice issued by the Asbury Park Board of Education advertising an open principal position. Petitioner has applied for this position, and I bring it out so as to dispel any complaint that Lewis should not bump a sitting principal, tenured or otherwise. The position is open and no sitting principal would be affected if petitioner is appointed to this position.

CONCLUSION

Based on all of the above, I CONCLUDE that Dr. Lewis has tenure rights to a principal's position in the Asbury Park school district.

ORDER

The respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby DENIED. The petitioner's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED, to the extent that the District must return him to a position for which he is qualified under his principal certificate and compensate him for back salary and all benefits from the date of his termination as superintendent of schools on July 1, 2009, to the date of his restoration to a principal's position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the Village of Ridgewood Board of Education's (Board) determination to accept the bid of The Bennett Group (Bennett) for addition and roof replacement at Hawes Elementary School. On June 23, 2010, petitioner filed a Motion for Emergent Relief/Temporary Restraints to stop the Board from entering into or taking any actions in furtherance of the construction contract with Bennett for Hawes Elementary School, which was scheduled to be heard on June 30, 2010. In support of the motion, petitioner submitted a verified petition, brief, certification of service and certification of Roman Graure, president of Niram Incorporated. Respondents submitted briefs in opposition to the motion, as well as certifications from Frank Bennett, president of Bennett and Anthony Gasparovich, which the undersigned received on June 29, 2010. Oral argument on the motion was held on June 30, 2010.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this matter.

In April 2010, Ridgewood advertised bids for an addition and roof replacement project at Hawes Elementary School. The bids were opened on May 27, 2010. Ridgewood determined Bennett to be the lowest responsible bidder, with a bid of $3,718,000. Petitioner was the second lowest bidder with a bid of $3,797,000. Ridgewood awarded the contract to Bennett on June 14, 2010. Bennett listed Reiner Group (Reiner) as its heating, ventilating and air conditioning systems (HVAC) and sheet metal subcontractor. Reiner was prequalified in HVAC before the date of the bid. Reiner was prequalified in sheet metal on June 14, 2010.

The bid specification states that, if the bid is over twenty thousand dollars the bidder and its prime subcontractors must be prequalified prior to the time and date that the bids are received. It then states that the bidder and its subcontractor must be prequalified in one of the following disciplines: General Construction or General Construction/Alterations & Additions, or Plumbing, or HVAC or Electrical or Site work or Roofing Membrane Modified Bitumen or Pile Driving.

The bid specification discusses the pre-qualification of bidders. It states that "all bidders and subcontractors for plumbing and gas fitting work, heating and ventilating systems and equipment, electrical work, structural steel, and ornamental iron work must be prequalified by NJSDA to trade or work classification and aggregate rating limit, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7G-33 et seq., on which they submit bonds" The bid specification has a requirement that where any portion of the subcontract costs more than twenty thousand dollars, the subcontractor must be pre-qualified. The bidder must submit documentation in accordance paragraphs A and B of section 32 of the bid specification. The cost of the sheet metal work to be done by Reiner is fifty thousand dollars.

On June 10, 2010, Reiner contacted the Department of treasury to determine what was required to have sheet metal added to the HVAC classification. He submitted information on two recent completed projects and his classification was amended to include sheet metal.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

> A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. Degioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above requirements in order to warrant relief in his favor.

Petitioner claims that Bennett's bid was not responsive because Reiner was not prequalified as a sheet metal subcontractor prior to the time and dates the bids are received, in accordance with the bid specifications. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-8 (b) provides in part:

> . . . there will be set forth in the bid the name or names of all subcontractors to whom the bidder will subcontract the furnishing of plumbing and gas fitting, and all kindred work, and of the heating and ventilating systems and equipment, and electrical work, structural steel and ornamental iron work, each of which subcontractors shall be qualified in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq.

The statute clearly does not require sheet metal subcontractors to be prequalified. The bid specifications do not explicitly state that sheet metal subcontractors must be prequalified. The Bid specifications stated that, if the subcontractor's work costs over twenty thousand dollars, the subcontractor must be prequalified. There is nothing in the bid that stated the prequalification of the subcontractor must be prior to the date the bid was submitted. That requirement only applies to plumbing and gas fitting, heating and ventilating systems and equipment, electrical work, structural steel and ornamental iron work sub contractors. Reiner was prequalified in sheet metal on June 1, 2010.

Legally acceptable bids cannot materially deviate from the specifications set forth by the contracting agency. Meadowbrook Carting Co., Inc., v. Borough of Island Heights, 138 N.J. 307, 314 (1994). While minor or inconsequential discrepancies and technical omissions can be waived, material conditions contained in bidding specifications cannot be waived. Terminal Const. Corp. v. Atlantic County Sewerage Auth., 67 N.J. 403, 411 (1975). New Jersey Courts have developed a two-prong test for determining if a deviation is material: (1) does waiver of such defect deprive the purchaser of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed, and guaranteed according to the specified requirements, and (2) does it adversely affect the competitive bidding process by placing a bidder in a position of advantage over other bidders, or by otherwise undermining the necessary common standard of competition. Meadowbrook Carting, supra, 138 N.J. at 315. The Meadowbrook Court aptly cited from Terminal Const. Corp., supra, regarding the limitation on the doctrine of strict compliance for bids:

> Essentially this distinction between conditions that may or may not be waived stems from a recognition that there are certain requirements often incorporated in bidding specifications [that] by their nature may be relinquished without there being any possible frustration of the policies underlying competitive bidding. In sharp contrast, advertised conditions whose waiver is capable of becoming a vehicle for corruption or favoritism, or capable of encouraging improvidence or extravagance, or likely to affect the amount of any bid or to influence any potential bidder to refrain from bidding, or which are capable of affecting the ability of the contracting unit to make bid comparisons, are the kind of conditions [that] may not under any circumstances be waived. 67 N.J. at 412

In this matter, even if the sheet metal subcontractor had to be prequalified prior to the date the bid was submitted, that deficiency would not have constituted a material defect and was waiveable. A waiver does not deprive Ridgewood of the assurance that the contract will be performed in accordance with its requirements. Reiner is now prequalified in sheet metal work and was listed in the bid as the subcontractor who would do the sheet metal work. Bennett was not given an advantage over the other bidders that would not undermine the necessary common standard competition. The bid did not advertise that the sheet metal subcontractor had to be prequalified prior to the date of the bid. In addition, Reiner was the company listed as the sheet metal contractor, and he is now prequalified. The sheet metal work costs fifty thousand dollars. The total bid was 43,718,000.00.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder its burden of proving that the legal right underlying his various claims is settled and that he has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claims.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) warranting a stay or emergent relief. Accordingly, I ORDER that petitioner's application for such relief be and hereby is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MOUNT OLIVE, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

This residency matter was remanded to the OAL in May 2010. Petitioner filed a Pro Se residency appeal, challenging the respondent Board's determination that her niece, M.W., is not entitled to a free public education in the Mt. Olive School District. Petitioner stated that she is M.W.'s guardian, her niece relocated from Florida to live with her because of conflicts with her stepfather and because she missed petitioner and her grandmother, and M.W.'s parents will continue to support her financially. Respondent Board filed a counterclaim seeking payment of tuition for the number of days M.W. attended school in the district. The ALJ determined that M.W. is not entitled to a free public education in Mt. Olive schools, and that the district is entitled to reimbursement for tuition for the period of M.W.'s ineligible attendance at the rate of $75 per day. The Commissioner adopted the findings of the ALJ, but remanded the case to the OAL for factual findings regarding the tuition due to respondent.

On remand, the ALJ found that: M.W. attended school in respondent's district for 34 days, from February 5, 2010 until March 26, 2010; M.W. was not eligible for a free public education in Mt. Olive schools; the per diem tuition rate in Mt. Olive this year is $75; and respondent did not seek pre- or post-judgment interest. The ALJ concluded that the correct amount that the Board can bill E.P.F. for M.W.'s ineligible attendance is $2,550, and ordered petitioner to make payment in this amount within fourteen days of the date of this decision.

Upon review of the supplemented record, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, and directed petitioner to compensate the Board in accordance with this decision.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

This residency matter was remanded to the OAL on May 12, 2010 solely for expansion of the record to include evidentiary findings with respect to the amount of the tuition due and owing the Board of Education of Mount Olive as a consequence of minor child, M.W.'s, ineligible attendance in the District's schools. Upon review of the supplemented record, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's conclusion – based upon the certification of Susan M. Decker, the District's Assistant Superintendent for Business – that petitioner must compensate the Board in the amount of $2,550.00 for the period of M.W.'s ineligible attendance in the Board's schools (February 5, 2010 through March 26, 2010, a total of 34 days, @ $75.00 per day).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons stated therein. Petitioner is directed to compensate the Board in accordance with this decision and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Respondent.

Kathryn J. Kingree, Esq. for petitioner (Algeier Woodruf, Attorneys at Law, attorneys)

Aaron Mizrahi, Esq. for respondent (Schwartz Simon Edelstein Celso & Zitomer, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 30, 2010 Decided: July 7, 2010

BEFORE LELAND S. MCGEE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 1, 2010, Petitioner, E.P.F. filed a pro se residency appeal with the Department of Education challenging respondent Mount Olive Board of Education's ("Respondent" or "District") residency determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1 AND 3.2. The contested case was forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on March 9, 2010, and docketed as EDU 01980-10 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). A hearing was held on March 25, 2010, on which date the record closed. An Initial Decision was issued on April 5, 2010.

On May 12, 2010, the Commissioner of Education remanded this matter to the OAL because the record contained insufficient evidence concerning the per diem tuition rate, or the number of days chargeable to E.P.F., for the period of M.W.'s ineligible attendance. The matter was transmitted to the OAL on May 24, 2010. By letter dated May 26, 2010, counsel for Respondent provided a Certification from Susan M. Decker, Assistant Superintendent for Business for the District. A telephone conference call was held with the parties on June 23, 2010 to confirm whether additional evidentiary proceedings would be necessary. By letter dated June 23, 2010, the undersigned memorialized the result of conference call. Petitioner stated that she did not wish to have any further evidentiary hearings in this case. She agreed to submit any objections to the Susan M. Decker certification, in writing by June 28, 2010. E.P.F. offered no opposition. On June 30, 2010, the court was advised that E.P.F. was represented by counsel, and a request was made for an extension of time to file an opposition to the certification. A telephone conference was held on July 7, 2010 to determine whether an evidentiary hearing would be necessary. The parties agreed that it would not be necessary and the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the documents of record, I FIND:

1. On or about January 27, 2010, Petitioner's niece, M.W. was denied admission to the District as an affidavit pupil.

2. On February 5, 2010, M.W. was admitted into the school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) pending the outcome of Petitioner's February 1st appeal.

3. M.W.'s last day of enrollment in the District was March 26, 2010, and she was enrolled for thirty-four (34) days for which she was ineligible.

4. The per diem tuition rate of the Mount Olive School District is seventy-five ($75.00) dollars.

5. Multiplying 34 days by the daily tuition rate of $75.00 results in a tuition bill of $2,550.00 for the 2009-2010 school year.

6. Respondent did not specifically request prejudgment interest in its Motion to Dismiss the Complaint and request for relief, nor did it provide an interest calculation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(a)(1).

7. Respondent did not file a petition for post-judgment interest in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 nor did it propose an interest calculation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(a)(2).

CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the correct amount that the Mount Olive School District can bill E.P.F. for M.W.'s improper attendance at the Mount Olive High School is $2,550.00 without interest.

It is ORDERED that E.P.F., within fourteen days of the date of this decision, make payment to the Mount Olive Board of Education in the amount of $2,550.00 unless the parties agree to another payment schedule.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF KURT HALVORSEN, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.

Rocky L. Peterson, Esq., appearing for petitioner, Board of Education, City of Trenton (Hill Wallach, attorneys)

Richard P. Flaum, Esq., appearing for respondent, Kurt Halvorsen, (DiFrancesco, Bateman, Coley,Yospin , Kunzman, Davis and Lehrer, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 2, 2010 Decided: July 9, 2010

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

In this manner, petitioner, the Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County (hereinafter "Trenton") preferred and filed tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education on November 5, 2009, against respondent Kurt Halvorsen (hereinafter "Halvorsen") in which it charged Halvorsen, a tenured teacher, with insubordination and unbecoming conduct, as a result of which it sought his removal. He appealed that action. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (hereinafter "OAL") on November 18, 2009, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. An in-person prehearing conference was held on January 7, 2010, at which time Halvorsen was then represented by Arnold M. Mellk of the firm of Wills, O'Neal and Mellk. The due process hearing was then set to be heard on February 4,5, 8 and 10, 2010 at the OAL, Trenton, New Jersey and a prehearing order relative to same was thereafter issued on January 11, 2010.

On the first scheduled hearing date, the parties orally agreed under oath and on the record to all of the terms of a settlement and which was to be followed up with an appropriate resolution by Trenton thereafter. Edward A. Cridge, Esq, appeared on behalf of the Wills firm at that time with Halverson. However, when the executed agreement was not forthcoming, Trenton moved to have the terms of the agreement enforced, which motion was stayed pending the substitution of counsel on behalf of Halvorsen after the Wills firm moved for withdrawal on his behalf on April 15, 2010. At the same time, although the substitution of attorney was granted by this tribunal, it was also ordered that any entitlement to back pay would be stayed and that he would remain in no-pay status until a final administrative decision on the merits of the pending tenure charges due to the delays occasioned by him in this matter. Halverson and his new counsel, whom he ultimately retained on April 23, 2010, were invited to appear at the OAL to answer the motion for enforcement by Trenton on April 26, 2010. At that time and instead of pursuing that motion, the parties met and agreed to resolve all disputed matters, subject once again to obtaining all of the requisite signatures and the Board resolution by Trenton. Upon receipt of the fully executed original agreement, which included the signatures of the Trenton board President and the Trenton board Secretary (J-1), on July 2, 2010, the hearing record closed.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

WHEREAS, the Board of Education of the City of Trenton ("the Board") is a body politic and corporate, organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, which is entrusted with maintaining and conducting the public schools of the Trenton Public School District; and

WHEREAS, Kurt Halvorsen ("Halvorsen") is a tenured teacher employed by the Trenton Public Schools; and

WHEREAS, the Board drafted a Statement of Tenure Charges and Statement of Evidence against Halvorsen dated August 18, 2009, attached hereto as Exhibit A, with the charges being based upon Insubordination and Unbecoming Conduct; and

WHEREAS, a copy of the Statement of Tenure Charges and Statement of Evidence were forwarded by Jayne S. Howard, Business Administrator and Board Secretary to Halvorsen via regular and certified mail, return receipt requested under cover dated August 18, 2009, attached hereto as Exhibit B; and

WHEREAS, the cover letter from Ms. Howard to Halvorsen dated August 18, 2009 provided Halvorsen with the required fifteen (15) day period to respond to the charges in writing and notified him of his right to attend the meeting of the Trenton Board of Education on September 29, 2009, at which time the Board would discuss the charges and provide Halvorsen with an opportunity to respond to the Board directly; and

WHEREAS, Halvorsen failed to respond to the charges in writing within the fifteen (15) day period and failed to attend the Board meeting on September 29, 2009; and

WHEREAS, on October 16, 2009, the Board passed a Resolution and executed a Certificate of Determination in approval of a Statement of Tenure Charges and Statement of Evidence against Halvorsen, attached hereto as Exhibit C; and

WHEREAS, the Statement of Tenure Charges and Statement of Evidence were filed with the Commissioner of Education under cover dated November 5, 2009, attached hereto as Exhibit D, under Docket Number EDUTH 10720-2009S; and

WHEREAS, Halvorsen, through counsel, filed an Answer to the Statement of Tenure Charges dated November 10, 2009, attached hereto as Exhibit E, generally denying all allegations; and

WHEREAS, the parties have exchanged discovery; and

WHEREAS, said discovery demonstrated that the tenure charges concerned allegations that Halvorsen did not complete mandatory requirements of teachers regarding the academic assessment of students, and not any allegation of malicious conduct, nor conduct involving moral turpitude; and

WHEREAS, the parties, wishing to resolve the within matter amicably without the need for further, protracted litigation, while achieving the goals of both parties and the public interest, hereby stipulate to settle same, subject to the terms and conditions set forth herein, upon approval by the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, Halvorsen has been advised by counsel of the Commissioner's sole discretion to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate; and

WHEREAS, Halvorsen will submit a letter of resignation of his employment to the Board, effective February 8, 2010, upon execution of this agreement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, they agree as follows:

1. Dismissal of All Claims

This Stipulation is expressly contingent upon and subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education of New Jersey. The parties agree and consent that upon approval of this Stipulation of Settlement by the Commissioner, the within tenure charges shall be dismissed. Halvorsen agrees to resign from his employment with the Board effective upon the adoption of this agreement by the Board of Education. Halvorsen further waives any right to, and will not, seek reinstatement in his tenured position, and releases any and all claims that could have been raised in the tenure proceeding. Halvorsen agrees that he will not apply for any future position of employment with the Board. Halvorsen further acknowledges that he is permitted to keep and negotiate four (4) payroll checks that he erroneously received from the Board subsequent to the filing of the tenure charges against him. However, Halvorsen and the Board agree that the 120-day period of unpaid suspension directly following the filing of tenure charges will now begin on December 22, 2009 instead of on November 6, 2009. The Board has no objection to, and will not oppose, any application by Halvorsen for unemployment benefits. The Board agrees to fulfill its obligations under applicable law with respect to Halvorsen's COBRA rights and benefits. Both parties agree, however, that in the event this agreement is not approved by the Commissioner of Education, they fully reserve their rights to proceed with this litigation and/or any other cause of action that they might have against one another and that their obligations under this agreement shall be null and void.

2. Public Interest

Settlement of this matter is in the public interest as it avoids the financial, legal and administrative burden which will result from continued litigation where all parties agree to these terms of settlement. The parties are in agreement that it is in the best interests of all parties for Halvorsen to resign from his employment with the Board. Therefore, the parties agree to move forward with a prompt settlement, which causes the Board no financial prejudice, and which avoids further unnecessary litigation.

3. No Admission

The execution of this agreement does not constitute any admission by either party as to the nature, quality, veracity, or demonstrability at trial of the allegations set forth in the tenure charges. The parties mutually acknowledge that this matter has been litigated and resolved in good faith, and agree that Halvorsen is resigning from his employment with the Board in good standing. The Board shall respond to any inquiry by a prospective employer by providing Halvorsen's dates of employment, position, and salary history, and shall indicate that his reason for leaving his employment was "resignation in good standing."

4. Board Approval

The Board President has been duly authorized by the Board at its Executive Session on February 8, 2010 to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board of Education. The Board will execute a Resolution adopting the terms of settlement shortly after the February 8th Board Meeting.

5. Assent to Terms

Both parties hereby acknowledge having entered into this agreement with a full understanding of their rights and that they were fully informed of the implications of this agreement by legal counsel. Neither party enters into this agreement under duress. Both parties enter this agreement by their free will and volition. Both parties were given the opportunity to fully consider the terms and conditions of this settlement. Either party may revoke their consent to this Stipulation of Settlement within seven (7) days from the execution thereof by delivering written notification of revocation to the other party. It is understood that if this agreement is revoked, it will not be effective or enforceable. By signing this Stipulation of Settlement, Halvorsen acknowledges the Commissioner's sole discretion to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

6. Entire Agreement

This agreement represents the entire understanding of the parties as to the settlement and may be modified only in a subsequent written instrument, duly executed by the parties. No other representations of any kind shall be binding upon the parties.

7. Governing Law

This agreement and all provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have knowingly and voluntarily executed and delivered this Stipulation of Settlement on the dates set forth below.

Re: Health Benefits

This letter serves to clarify your eligibility to the health benefits you hold pursuant to your employment with the Trenton Board of Education. You have entered into a Stipulation of Settlement with the Trenton Board of Education regarding your termination of employment. Pursuant to the settlement, you have resigned from your employment effective February 8, 2010. However, due to the nature of the settlement negotiations, the finalization of settlement terms and final execution of the Stipulation of Settlement, you remained suspended from your employment through April 26, 2010. Therefore, you are entitled to medical insurance coverage under the benefits policy you had as an employee of the Trenton Board of Education through April 26, 2010.

Sincerely,

Kathleen Smallwood Johnson, Esq.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CAROL ZIZNEWSKI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF EDISON, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board certified charges of insubordination and conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured elementary teacher and reading specialist – for: failing to provide services to her students, engaging in improper conduct toward other staff members and supervisors, and disregarding administrative directives and Board policies. The extensive record of this matter includes transcripts of 43 days of hearing at the OAL, the testimony of 22 witnesses, and 193 exhibits from the petitioning Board documenting multiple incidents of harassment and intimidating and threatening behavior demonstrated by respondent against her coworkers, as well as an on-going pattern of defiant behavior and disrespectful attitude toward respondent's building principal. Respondent denied the charges.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the prolonged and unusual number of hearing dates in this matter afforded the parties exhaustive opportunity to fully present their cases; respondent's claim that she is exempt from the tenure statute as it applies to teachers because she was a reading specialist is without merit; the Board's witnesses presented credible testimony, amply supported by documentation, while respondent's testimony was self-serving, contradictory, and not credible; respondent failed to follow district policies regarding Basic Skills and ESL instruction, thereby denying services to children in need; and overwhelming evidence supports the Board's contention that respondent, over many years, engaged in repeated and unprovoked verbal abuse and intimidation against co-workers and supervisors, creating a hostile work environment. The ALJ concluded that the Board has carried its burden to prove the charges against respondent, and ordered her dismissed and removed from tenured employment.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. Respondent was dismissed from her tenured employment, and the matter transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CAROL ZIZNEWSKI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the respective exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by respondent and the Board of Education (Board), and the Board's reply to respondent's exceptions.[1]

The respondent's exceptions substantially reiterate the substance of her post-hearing submission at the OAL, recasting the arguments therein to support the contention that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously sustained the Board's charges. Respondent asserts that: 1) the ALJ erred in concluding that the respondent willfully refused to provide services to students; 2) the ALJ erred in finding respondent guilty of other instances of unbecoming conduct; 3) the ALJ erred in finding that respondent was guilty of insubordination; 4) the tenure charges filed against respondent were technically deficient; and 5) the taking of respondent's tenure is too severe a penalty. Respondent generally maintains that she never refused to provide basic skills instruction to any students during her employment as a reading specialist. In her exceptions, respondent also points out that she has received positive evaluations and that she was never warned that her conduct was inappropriate. Respondent further suggests that the tenure charges were only brought against her because she challenged educational decisions made with respect to certain students, and she exercised her personal rights in previous disputes with the school district.

[1] Subsequent to her counsel's submission of respondent's exceptions on May 19, 2010, Ms. Ziznewski submitted a letter to the Commissioner dated June 22, 2010, attempting to appeal the ALJ's April 1, 2010 decision denying respondent's motion to be relieved as counsel. Any appeal of the ALJ's denial of the motion to be relieved of counsel should have been made to the Office of Administrative Law as an interlocutory appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(j)5. It should also be noted that correspondence from individuals who are represented by an attorney is not permitted. Therefore, the Commissioner did not consider Ms. Ziznewski's June 22, 2010 letter.

The Board's reply also reiterates the positions advanced in its post-hearing submission at the OAL and in its original exceptions, which urged the adoption of the Initial Decision. In its reply, the Board again cited examples of students who were refused basic skills instruction by the respondent. The Board further emphasized respondent's numerous acts of inappropriate conduct towards her colleagues and supervisors that constitute unbecoming conduct and insubordination. In reply, the Board also contends that respondent's exceptions are a distorted narrative of the 2006-2007 and 2007-2008 school years at John Marshall Elementary School.

Upon a comprehensive review of the entire record in this matter, which included the transcripts of the 43 hearing dates conducted at the OAL between September 2, 2008 and December 15, 2009, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct and insubordination. As a threshold matter, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that respondent's argument that the tenure charges were deficient because the charges only named her as a teacher as opposed to a reading specialist is without merit. For purposes of a violation of the tenure removal statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, it is irrelevant whether respondent had tenure as both a reading specialist and a teacher.

The Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments and objections previously raised before the ALJ and clearly taken into account by him in weighing the testimony and evidence, and in concluding that the record overall overwhelmingly supported the Board's charges. Notwithstanding respondent's contentions to the contrary, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record, which includes transcripts of all 43 days of hearing, to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or his determinations of witness credibility. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the various witnesses who appeared before him and made findings of fact based upon their testimony. In this regard, the clear and unequivocal standard governing the Commissioner's review is:

> The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. [N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)].

The Commissioner also finds that the ALJ's fact-finding analysis and conclusions as to the truth of the Board's allegations and the characterization of respondent's behavior as insubordinate and unbecoming conduct to be fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law.

The extensive record includes credible evidence of multiple confrontations that the respondent had with other staff members, at times in front of the students, during which respondent engaged in loud, intimidating and threatening behavior that created an uncomfortable and tense work environment. The Board also proved that respondent engaged in an on-going pattern of exhibiting a defiant and disrespectful attitude toward the authority of her building principal. The details and history of respondent's inappropriate behavior towards other teachers, supervisors and school principals that amounted to unbecoming conduct are extensively outlined in the Initial Decision and need not be repeated here.

With respect to her performance, respondent repeatedly refused to conform to the overall district policy of balanced literacy, and instead continued to maintain her own method of teaching. Additionally, there were several documented incidents of unbecoming conduct including, respondent's failure to complete the appropriate reading assessments; the willful failure to provide basic skills services to certain students; and a total inability to work with the classroom teachers to properly identify, service and help those students in need of basic skills instruction. It is clear from the record that because of respondent's conduct the basic skills program was not being efficiently and effectively implemented at the John Marshall School. Finally, respondent routinely disregarded requests of her supervisors and boldly refused to even accept that the elementary supervisors were her supervisors, despite the fact that the administration repeatedly informed respondent that the elementary supervisors were indeed her direct supervisors. This type of behavior by a teaching staff member undoubtedly amounts to unbecoming and insubordinate conduct that cannot be tolerated.

Turning to the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner is mindful that the "[f]actors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, the individual's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Deborah Suitt-Green, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner October 14, 1997, slip. op. at 32, citing In re Hearing of Ostergren, Franklin School District, 1966 S.L.D. 185; In re Hearing of Kittell, Little Silver School District, 1972 S.L.D. 535, 541; In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). It is also well recognized that by virtue of the unique position they occupy educators must be held to an enhanced standard of behavior. As was succinctly stated in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321

> [Teachers] are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. (emphasis added)

The Commissioner recognizes that the charges in this matter are serious in nature and finds that the inappropriate behavior of respondent necessitates the termination of her employment. Respondent's unbecoming conduct and insubordination was not the result of an isolated incident, but rather a pattern of egregious conduct that escalated during the 2006-07 and 2007-08 school years which resulted in a hostile, uncomfortable environment at the John Marshall Elementary School. The record in this case is overflowing with examples of unbecoming conduct and insubordination, but the Commissioner finds it most troubling that respondent's attitude, and repeated failure to adhere to district policy, was detrimental to the students who were in need of basic skills instruction.

The record also demonstrates that respondent has been unwilling or unable to improve her inappropriate behavior for the betterment of the school environment. Her responses to the charges against her range from complete denial of the alleged behavior to allegations that such behavior was inconsequential in nature and/or provoked by others, a position which is completely inconsistent with the testimonial and documentary evidence. Finally, the Commissioner does not find that the record before him provides any indication that the respondent will improve her interpersonal relationships with fellow staff members, yield to the authority of her building principal without continued conflict, or adhere to the mandated procedures and policies regarding the basic skills program. The Commissioner considered respondent's extended employment with the District, and nonetheless determines that the incidents proven to have occurred demonstrate that she is unfit to remain in her position. Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943); aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby dismissed from her tenured position with the Edison Township School District. This matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

Philip Feintuch, Esq., appearing for respondent, Carol Ziznewski, (Feintuch, Porwich and Feintuch, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 24, 2010 Decided: May 5, 2010

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, Petitioner, the Edison Board of Education (hereinafter " Edison" or the 'Board") charges respondent, Carol Ziznewski (hereinafter "Ziznewski") a tenured teacher, with unbecoming conduct and insubordination and seeks her removal. Ziznewski appealed the action.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on June 18, 2008, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was assigned to this administrative law judge on June 23, 2008. On July 9, 2008, an in-person prehearing conference was scheduled and held in the above captioned matter, after which, by agreement, the case was scheduled for hearing and to be heard on September 2, 9, 10 and 12, 2008 at the OAL, Mercerville, New Jersey. A prehearing order was issued on the same day. Notwithstanding the specific agreement of the parties regarding the scheduling of the matter, on the first day of hearing on September 2, however, the parties advised that they needed five or six additional dates for hearing, and, accordingly, the following dates were cleared on this ALJ's calendar, offered, added and agreed to, to wit: October 17 and 27 and November 13, 21 and 26, 2008. (The date of October 16, 2008, was also offered but rejected by respondent's counsel due to two older matters he had scheduled at OAL-Newark for the same day.) On the next scheduled date of September 9, however, the parties further advised that, in addition to the previously requested six additional days, they would need six additional days in order to complete the hearing. As a result, the following additional dates were secured and agreed to at that time: December 9, 16 and 19, 2008, as well as January 21, 22 and 23, 2009, it being specifically understood and agreed to by the parties that the entire matter would have to be concluded within that extended time frame. The date of Decemeber 19, 2008, was later adjourned at the request of the parties due to inclement weather (ice conditions) in Northern New Jersey, from which they both traveled. The parties were further cautioned to schedule and conduct their remaining examinations in accordance with that extended time frame. However, they failed to meet that timeline and instead requested further additional time to complete this matter. Thus, while this tribunal was acutely concerned about the length of time it took the parties to present this matter, it reluctantly asceded to the requests of the parties and scheduled the matter for the following additional dates: March 2 (adjourned on the hearing date at the request of the parties due to a "nor'easter" snow storm), March 3, 4, 5, 6 24, 25 and April 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 28 and 30, May 6, 19, 20, August 14, 18, 19, and 20, September 2, 17 and 22, 2009. It is noted that this tribunal had offered the additional dates of June 1, 2 and 10, 2009, as further hearing dates, all of which were rejected by respondent's counsel who was vacationing until June 12, 2009. Thereafter, this tribunal attempted to provide further June dates but was unable to do so due to vacation plans of petitioner's counsel. The scheduled date of September 23, 2009, was adjourned in advance on the morning of the hearing due to the illness of Board's counsel. It was rescheduled and heard on October 5, 2009. The next scheduled date of October 8, 2009, was adjourned in advance on October 6, 2009 due to the untimely and tragic death of the daughter of respondent's counsel. The additional scheduled dates of October 9 and 16 were adjourned at the same time due to the same request. The matter reconvened and was heard on November 4, 2009. The next scheduled dates of November 13 and 17, 2009, were adjourned in advance on November 12, 2009, due to the illness of Ziznewski. The matter was continued and heard on November 23, 24 and 30 and December 2 and 15, 2009.

At the conclusion of the testimony on December 15, 2009, the parties sought transcripts in accordance with statute. However, upon their receipt of those transcripts, the parties then advised that there were significant errors in a number of them which required correction by the transcribing agency, after which such correction on February 23, 2010, the parties were given until March 24, 2010, to submit their post-hearing briefs, since that date was extended under the 30 day rule by one day at the request of the Board's attorney, without objection from opposing counsel, when it was represented that the initial submission on behalf of respondent had not been received by Board's counsel in accordance with the original deadline. Although this understanding was apparently an error in the office of Board's counsel and that respondent counsel's brief was actually timely delivered to that office and was subsequently reconciled by the parties, the final reply response by respondent was nonetheless not received until March 24, 2010, pursuant to the acquiesced deadline. Upon receipt of those briefs at that time, the hearing record closed on March 24, 2010.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

At the commencement of the hearing on September 2, 2008, the following Stipulations of Facts was presented by the parties (J-1):

1. Ziznewski earned her bachelor's degree from Kean College in 1973.
2. Ziznewski earned her master's degrees from Kean College in 1976 and 1994.
3. Ziznewski has elementary certification, reading specialist certification, supervisor certification, and a certificate of eligibility to be a principal.
4. Ziznewski has served as a teaching staff member in the Edison Township Public Schools during the period from 1973 to the present.
5. Ziznewski was assigned to Lincoln Elementary School and James Madison Primary School as a reading specialist from January, 1993 June, 1990.
6. Ziznewski was assigned to John Marshall Elementary School as a reading specialist for the 1990-1991 school year.
7. Ziznewski was assigned to James Monroe Elementary School and the Benjamin Franklin Elementary School as a reading specialist for the 1991-1992 school year.
8. Ziznewski was assigned to James Monroe Elementary School as a third grade teacher for the 1992-1993 and 1993-1994 school years.
9. Ziznewski was assigned to Washington Elementary School as a reading specialist from the 1994-1995 and 1995-1996 school years.
10. Ziznewski was assigned to James Monroe Elementary School and Benjamin Franklin Elementary School as a reading specialist for the 1996-1997 school year.
11. Ziznewski was assigned to Lindeneau Elementary School and Lincoln Elementary School as a reading specialist for the 1997-1998 school year.
12. Ziznewski was assigned to Lincoln Elementary School and John Marshall Elementary School as a reading specialist from the 1998-1999 school year to the 2000-2001 school year.
13. Ziznewski was assigned to John Marshall Elementary School as a reading specialist from the 2004-2005 school year to the 2007-2008 school year.

TESTIMONY OF THE WITNESSES

Twenty two witnesses testified in this matter and their relevant testimonies are summarized as follows.

Rosanne Traficante, Ed.D.

Rosanne Traficante, Ed.D., was employed at the time of the commencement of the hearing by Edison as the Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, which title she had held since 2004. She has since retired but remained the authorized liaison for Edison during the course of the hearing. She received her undergraduate degree in English from Immaculata University and her certification in secondary education in 1973, her Master's degree in educational theory from Rutgers University in 1985, and her Doctorate in Education from Rutgers University in 1993.

She began her employment as a teacher of English in the Elizabeth school district in 1974 and served as a curriculum resource teacher there between 1980 through 1985. She was a supervisor of English in the Marlboro school system between 1985 to 1988 and an assistant principal at Howell High School between 1988 and 1993. She then commenced her employment at Edison as a middle school principal at the Woodrow Wilson School (grades 6 through 8) before assuming her current role in 2004. She possesses New Jersey certifications in the areas of English, supervisor and principal.

During the course of her doctoral program, which consisted of inter disciplinary subjects including anthropology,sociology, philosophy and language arts, she became interested in language acquisition, i.e., how we use it and how we teach it. The previous methodology of teaching in the academic area was known as "product teaching", which focused on the use of a single course of instruction to be used by the entire class, such as the use of a single novel to be utilized by the entire class on a uniform basis. She noted that a paradigm shift occurred at Edison which has since embraced student centered approach to learning, otherwise known as "process teaching." In that methodology, instruction occurs at the level of the student and which is at his or her own individual level. She indicated that Edison has adopted and now soley espouses the process method, which occurs and includes an assessment of each child by reading specialists. The teachers in Edison have been provided with instruction regarding "balanced literacy." As part of that process, reading specialists provide coordinated instructions for students who are identified as having deficient basic skills, which instruction is done in concert with the "running record" of the primary or classroom teachers.

In the area of the curriculum, she is responsible for following the guides, and the supervisors report directly to her pursuant to the curriculum and instructions of the Edison board. There are two elementary level supervisors among the eleven Edison elementary schools to implement the program, Joan Hagie and Suzanne Capraro. Their jobs include observation of non tenured as well as sometime observations of tenured teachers. Each has specialized tasks and responsibility for specific schools. Hagie is responsible for reading in the Basic Skills Instruction model(hereafter "BSI") and her assignment is primarily at the John Marshall School (hereinafter "Marshall"). She organizes meetings regarding BSI and collects student assessment data, known as Developmental Reading Assessments (hereinafter "DRA") from the reading specialists. Capraro is responsible for the science area and she also observes teachers at the Marshall School. The process model is the only district model. Teaching begins at the level of the student such as small group, matching of levels to the student and not beyond one's level, and the opportunity for "scaffolding."

The teacher of record/classroom teacher recommends a pupil for basic skills based upon multiple measures which recommendation is then transmitted directly to the reading specialist. But the running record drives the assessment. The supervisor collects the schedules of all reading specialists, charts the DRA's and make sure that the students are identified for appropriate services including such opportunities as extended school year. The reading specialists are required to coordinate with the classroom teacher.

She knows Ziznewski, having met her in Spring 2004 while she was still at the Woodrow Wilson School and serving as a facilitator there. Subsequently she became aware of Ziznewski through Dr. Mary Ann Banks, Assistant Superintendent/Principal and Gerald Young, principal of Marshall. She was aware that on October 18, 2006, Young wrote to Banks and advised that Ziznewski had not yet met with her reading groups in grades 1 and 2, which were her assignments for the year. Further, even though Young had told her that grade 1 that would be a "push in program" for the forthcoming year, it was nonetheless his understanding that Ziznewski planned to pull out students in both grades 1 and 2 instead (P-3). Traficante understood that Edison's published guidelines required that the meetings with the reading groups should have taken place by the first week in October.

Concerns were expressed to her by both of her supervisors. As a result, she directed both supervisors to meet with Ziznewski to schedule a meeting with her, which was done on October 23 (P-4) and which was held on October 24, 2006. She was instructed in that memo to bring three or four copies of DRA's which she had administered to students who had attended the Summer Literacy Academy (current second graders) as samples of her assessments, along with her lesson plan book so that they could review instruction that had occurred to date as well as lessons that she was planning for her students. However, she failed to produce any of the requested samples of her assessments or lesson plan book at that meeting. Instead, she began her own comments there by stating "I don't have any intention of answering anything." She also challenged the authority of both of the supervisors to ask any questions of her, even though it was their full understanding that they were the supervisors of the reading specialists. It was further noted that Ziznewski had not begun to meet with the students until October 16, 2006 and, further, despite the preference of Young that she "push in to first grade classrooms", she nonetheless had performed all instruction in a pullout setting. Ziznewski did not confirm or deny the statements at the time. Nor, did she reply to any of their questions, offer any information, or share any of the requested items (P-5).

Dr.Traficante reacted, based upon receipt of that conference memo, by contacting both supervisors about their upset with having been treated disrespectfully by Ziznewski at the conference. She instructed Young to have a second meeting set up with her. However, on December 11, 2006, Young wrote to Traficante and advised her that he had had two cancellations of the second meeting with Ziznewski (P-7 and 9), both of which were at her request. She noted that the BSI forms were ultimately produced sometime in December, 2006, although she does not know if the lesson plan was similarly produced at that time.

She also indicated that the guidelines for Basic Skills programs are circulated annually (P-25). They have been circulated in that fashion since 1993 or 1994. Those guidelines indicate that the classroom teacher may recommend to the reading specialist any student who was not making sufficient progress in language arts or math. The reading specialist is then required to schedule in such students for help accordingly and in conjunction with the classroom teacher. If a reading specialist intends not to take a child into the BSI, there must be a basis of data to support the difference. The DRA is a method by which it may be deduced. Instruction in BSI should begin two weeks after school starts, with the expectancy that services should start in the beginning of October. It is a supplemental program and not a replacement for services. As a result, the role of the reading specialist to support the needs of the child in BSI.

Based upon the foregoing, It was her understanding that Ziznewski was not following the guidelines. The follow-up meeting was held on January 22, 2007, at which time Ziznewski once again questioned whether the supervisors could oversee her reading program and/or review her lesson plans. Traficante attended that meeting at which time Ziznewski also questioned the validity of the DRA. In response, Hagie had indicated that the DRA provides a "stronger tool of assessment", as well as opening up an effective dialogue with the teachers. Hagie further indicated that the assessment is required of all reading specialists. But Ziznewski nonetheless questioned the reliability of the DRA (P-10).

Traficante was concerned about the disrespect shown by Ziznewski to the two supervisors. She was rude and questioned them in a direct confrontational manner. She was not professional. She was sarcastic and had a tone of challenging the supervisors' roles over her and the right to ask for certain things. She showed a lack of propriety. Ziznewski also admonished Young by using a tone of sarcasm against him when she repeated in an insulent fashion what he had said. She also lectured at them.

The meeting was approximately one to one and one half hours long. At the end of the meeting, it was her opinion that Ziznewski viewed herself as being an advocate for the pupils and was being attacked on all fronts by the other professionals. But even though Ziznewski declared that she was an advocate at that meeting, Traficante did not believe it at the time.

But, on March 6, 2008, Traficante wrote to Young and instructed him to write Ziznewski and express the expectation that she follow the approved schedule and provide instruction to students, since she was aware that Ziznewski had refused to service students when Ziznewski had failed to provide the midyear DRA's for BSIs which were due to Hagie by February, 2007 (P-38). Thereafter, Young told her that he did follow up and relay the information to her, but, on March 10, 2008, Young advised her that he had been approached by Ziznewski and "made it clear" to him that Hagie was "not her boss." She also did not believe in the assessment and she would only do as he directed her (P-42). When Traficante saw this, she wanted another meeting scheduled, which was held on March 19, 2008. At that meeting, Ziznewski challenged the role of the DRA which she viewed as being an inappropriate research based tool (P-51). She also once again challenged the supervisors' roles in the process. At the same time, Ziznewski had failed to submit her reports in the requisite time periods. For example, the DRA score reports which were due on November 14, 2007, were not received until December 19, 2007. And the DRA score reports for January 30 were not received until March 19, 2008. Ziznewski was also questioned about her inflated assessment results and the trends which were demonstrated in her findings. Although the DRAs of the reading specialist can be off one level from the "running" records of any classroom teacher, there was a trend of significant deviation by Ziznewski involving more than one teacher. Such a trend would result in certain students not receiving instructions at the basic instructional level, and then not being able to "scaffold" into more complex concepts. She noted that reading specialists are to give instruction in remediation and not to be instructing in enrichment for basic level students (even though it is common practice to advance such instruction with gifted students), since the purpose and role of the reading specialist is to collaboratively work with the classroom teacher to bring the pupils up to the level of their peers. Thus, by March, 2008, Ziznewski's views were contrary to and in violation of the instruction model of the district.

On January 22, 2007, Traficante attended a meeting along with Ziznewski and others, which was reduced to a report by Young (P-10). Previously, Ziznewski had been told to produce her teaching schedules by October, 2007, relative to the students she was assigned to instruct and the days when she would meet with them since such a production would demonstrate the education services which were to be provided to the pupils and the number of BSI services to be given to them. Thereafter, on April 10, 2008, Traficante wrote to Ziznewski with reference to the results of the March 19, 2008 meeting. In that memo, she expressed and summarized the meeting concerns regarding the failure by Ziznewski to produce the documents and a recording of the DRA levels, their importance, and the need to submit them on a timely basis (P-51). She noted that the DRA school reports which were due on November 14, 2007, were not received until December 19, 2007, and the school reports for January 30, 2008, were not received until March 19, 2008, date of that most recent meeting. She also reminded her that her inflated assessor results deterred supplemental instruction which was to be provided by the reading specialist. She noted: "In the broader context of the BOE-approved Balanced Literacy Program, assessment drives instruction as students are to be taught on their level." (P-51 at page1). She maintained that the district had wanted to track the most at risk pupils and that Ziznewski's DRA results had huge discrepancies at variance with the classroom running records, even though the classroom teachers had identified the need for such services of specific students who had repeated reading deficiencies within the classroom. Nonetheless, Ziznewski challenged everybody at the meeting and claimed that there were no such deficiencies. And, as a result of Ziznewski's continued failure to adhere to district procedures for screening and assessing the students with whom she worked, Traficante referred the matter to the acting superintendent of schools for further action. She indicated that the DRA is a "non negotiable" item and not to be challenged or disregarded by any one, including the reading specialists. She noted that, as early as November 13, 2007, the Marshall supervisors had explained all of the guidelines to the staff, including Ziznewski, including what the BSI was and how it was to be implemented (P-25). In fact, Ziznewski was the first staff member to attend that conferencing (P-25 at page 3). It is supposed to be a collaborative effort by the reading specialist and classroom teacher, which includes supplementing, but not replacing, instruction. The role of the reading specialist is to reinforce and intensify the program which is otherwise conducted within the classroom. Ziznewski had also been told to identify her late filed DRA's to Young, which she eventually produced, although they did not arrive in a timely fashion.

On January 16, 2008, Traficante got a memo from Young regarding a second grade student, identified as A.P., in which the classroom teacher, Mrs. Jennifer Figueroa, had advised that A.P. was the poorest reader in the class, even though Ziznewski had dropped him from the BSI program and even though he had previously been recommended for BSI after his attendance at the previous Summer Literacy Academy program (P-26). As a result, Traficante ordered Young to implement the BSI program immediately for A.P. but, on January 17, 2008, Young wrote to her about the results of a parent-teacher conference which had occurred earlier that day and in which he reported that Ziznewski inappropriately challenged the other teachers' concerns in the presence of the parents (P-28), at which time he stated "Today I took part in one of the most embarrassing parent-teacher conferences in my 53 years in education." It was his opinion that Ziznewski acted in a highly unprofessional manner, and it was his further opinion that the mother of the child was confused after hearing Ziznewski's comments which, according to Mrs. Figueroa, were misleading. She knew that, if need be, referral of a child would go to the Intervention and Resource Services Committee (hereinafter "I&RS"). In any case, Ziznewski was ordered to provide her with services two days a week.

On January 28, 2008, Young wrote to Ziznewski about complaints from two other teachers who had been concerned that Ziznewski was not implementing the BSI for their own students pursuant to his schedule. As a result, Traficante told Young to monitor all children who were to receive instructions to make sure they were properly receiving those instructions. At the same time, she increased the after-school academy funding in order to offset the various educational services shortfalls of Ziznewski. She also got Mrs. Deborah Bredahl, the district's funding coordinator, to release money from Title I funding for snacks and supplemental funds for this additional after-school instructions for them. All this occurred because Ziznewski was unable to and did not provide appropriate services for a number of identified students at that time.

Then, on February 7, 2008, Hagie wrote to Ziznewski regarding the Lindamood Bell academic materials, which were to be utilized in her programming (P-34). She was also told to focus her time with the children pursuant to a process of specialized intensity for certain students. Her function was not to provide enrichment but rather intensive, strategy based instructions. Then, on March 5, 2008, Hagie sent a memo to Ziznewski in which she requested her to supply her mid year DRA's for all the BSI students and the children who attended the Summer Literacy Academy in 2007 that she was supposed to support (P-37). She noted that the Marshall school is a K through 5 program and is one of the 11 elementary schools in the district. Traficante had spoken to Hagie about needing to make a clear submission deadline since they had already been due in January 2008 and, as result, they were past due by two months. She ordered Young to contact Ziznewski and express the expectations that she was to follow the approved schedule and provide instructions to students. She further ordered him to tell Ziznewski that any attempt on her part to refuse to do her job would be reported immediately to the acting superintendent for further action and that a copy was to be placed in her personnel file (P-38). She noted that she was aware that Ziznewski had refused to service the students because of the requirement for her to provide the mandated reports. In response, Young wrote that, after he handed the required memo to Ziznewski, she indicated she would not be able to service the students in her BSI program until she completed her assessment assignment and that she then abuptly turned around and walked away after he told her that her report had been due in February, 2008 (P-39). In his follow-up memo to the acting superintendent, he indicated that she became quite angry and questioned how this can be done (ie., the providing of the reports at the same time that she was also expected to continue with her instruction of the pupils.). She also angrily indicated that Hagie was not her boss and that Young was going to be in a lot of trouble because she intended to report the situation to the Commissioner of Education. He felt that the information provided by her was presented to him in an intimidating matter (P-40). Young then wrote to Hagie on March 10, 2008, and advised her about Ziznewski refusing to respond to any directive from Hagie, that she did not believe in the assessment and that Hagie was "not her boss."(P-42). As a result, Traficante ordered a meeting to be held on March 19, 2008. Hagie had previously written to Ziznewski on March 7, 2008, relative to the reporting of DRA levels and for the reports to be submitted no later than March 17, 2008. She had even authorized three full days of release time to Ziznewski for the week of March 10 in order complete the required reporting as an accommodation (P-41).

Then, on March 11, 2008, Young advised Dr.Traficante that two sisters, A.N. and A.N. (grades one and two, respectively) had been recommended for BSI but neither one was taken out for required construction by Ziznewski. He wanted emergency approval for supplemental instruction for them as a result, which Dr.Traficante approved (P-46). She noted the teachers are compensated to provide such services above and beyond the regular teaching rates in order provide those supplemental instructions. These funds come out of general education, and local levies, while BSI comes out of Title I funding.

Dr. Traficante also noted that there is an "English as a Second Language" (ESL) program in place at Edison, which consists of a K through 12 program. At the elementary school (K through 5) level, there are select sites where the students are gathered from among the eleven elementary schools. As part of that plan, the Marshall students would go to a planned program at the Washington School, except for what was scheduled for the 2006-07 school year, at which time Edison opened up a special section at the Marshall School. That ELS program initially contained only ten students (P-116), who had been screened out and found eligible out of 48 kindergarten, first and second grade students there. Previously there had been a much larger group assigned from Marshall to the Washington School. As part of the process of screening, an observation rating sheet (ORS) (P-65) for newly registered students had to be utilized by the reading specialist within 48 hours of assignment pursuant to regulation, which, in this case was Ziznewski. After that initial assessment, the child would move on to another teacher to confirm the ESL eligibility through the use of another test administration. Although Ziznewski had the primary screening responsibility at Marshall for those students, Dr. Traficante found out that there were no ORS scores for them even though they had been determined eligible for the ESL services and had been recommended for such screening. Young had told her in late September, 2006 that the ORS was not being administered properly by Ziznewski and that various teachers were expressing concerns about children whom they felt needed specific help in that area, even though the results by Ziznewski indicated that they were otherwise proficient. As a result, she asked another educator, Mrs. Hook, to administer the ORS and, if necessary, an additional test known as the MAC II in order to determine any children who should be eligible for ESL. Mrs. Hook did the tests accordingly on October 13, 2006, at which time nine pupils were determined to still need ESL (P-116). She then reached out to the ESL supervisors in order to work out details in order to keep those children within the Marshall School in October, 2006, rather than put them back into the satellite schools for the 2006-07 school year since school was already in session for over a month and she was concerned about any additional changes or transitions for those children. Had they been properly identified in September, those students would have gone directly to the Washington School and, as a result, it would have saved the need to have those additional teacher costs generated by having to retain them at Marshall thereafter. Dr. Traficante made a calculated determination based upon the best interests of the children.

On November 21, 2006, there was a special meeting held with Ziznewski about the requirements relative to the 48 hour ESL screening, which Zisnewski challenged even though this is State law and, further, even though it had been in place for a long time by then (P-120). At that time, Ziznewski was also told not to identify placement options directly with parents. Young summarized the results of that meeting in a letter to Ziznewski on November 22, 2006 (P-121), which meeting had been also attended by Traficante and two other staff professionals, one being Martin Smith, who is the ESL program district supervisor for students at Marshall. At that meeting, Smith's official role as ESL supervisor was verified, along with the ORS testing requirements as well as the program development of the ESL. They were told that his role with reference to the reading specialists was to be the "point person" for programs as well as any parental concerns. Ziznewski was told to follow all steps of the district procedures regarding the submission of required paperwork such as the ORS forms as well as the need for timely filing of the forms, all of which reflected State law as well as Edison district policy. The test results were to be in the student records of those screened in September and October so that the records would reflect that Edison was in compliance with the identified ESL students students.

However, notwithstanding those standing instructions to not interact directly with parents, on July 6, 2007, Traficante wrote to Ziznewski relative to the meeting which they were forced to hold with her on June 15, 2007, after a parent had informed Smith that Ziznewski was going to great lengths to keep his child out of ESL. Additionally, the parent expressed frustration to Smith about Ziznewski because of her repeated statements to him and her insistence that his daughter did not belong in an ESL program but that she rather belonged in regular programming at the Marshall School. He expressed anger at the district and the principal for her actions regarding his child. When confronted with that complaint at the June meeting, Ziznewski stated that she only sought to assist the parent to keep the child with her family at Marshall School. However, she was told that further testing by another teacher demonstrated the need for more screening of the child. Traficante noted that this action by her violated the instructions given to her the previous school term (as noted above) regarding non involvement with placement issues with parents. Further, Ziznewski failed to appreciate her role in the screening process, which process she still insisted was faulty. Thus, she concluded that Ziznewski had not changed at all since November, 2006. Rather, she persisted in justifying her role in the screening process, inappropriately challenged Smith's recognized role in the ESL and insisted what was still wrong with the overall program. In her letter to Ziznewski on July 6, 2007 (P-125), Dr. Traficante warned her that her repeated disregard of district procedures relative to screening and assessment of pupils, along with her inappropriate communications with parents in violation of district orders to the contrary constituted a deliberate disregard or an act of insubordination by her. She closed that letter by noting that she intended to request the Edison superintendent to make a recommendation to the Edison Township Board of Education to withhold her employment and adjustment increments for the 2007-08 school year.

On cross examination, she explained that the mandated, Edison Board-approved curriculum in reading and writing is known as balanced literacy and takes the form of process teaching. Ziznewski's methodology is not in keeping with that model. For example, in the process method, one is to teach children at their own level and use the DRA, which is correlated with the use of the running records, which are primarily created by the classroom teacher. Instead, Ziznewski disagreed with that approach and wanted to rely upon portfolios instead of the mandated lesson plan approach to instruction. Also, she refused to use the DRAs in a timely fashion. As a result, Dr. Traficante was forced to engage in five separate conferences with Ziznewski in order to address her resistance to following the district format, on November 21, 2006, January 22, 2007, June 15, 2007 October 24, 2007, and March 19, 2008. Prior thereto, she had noted no problems with her in the school years of 2004-2005 and 2005-2006 in Zisnewski's capacity as a reading specialist. She has also never formally evaluated Ziznewski although she is aware that Principal Young did evaluate her at the Marshall School. However, she does know that Ziznewski's assignment as a reading specialist required her to provide services for students who were identified in need of BSI and, further, that in the 2006-2007 school year she was required to administer ORS testing to students who had been screened for that purpose.

She got to know Ziznewski at the Marshall School after the elementary supervisors contacted her in late September/October, 2006, and advised that both of the supervisors had reached out to Ziznewski to get her reading schedule which, at that time was already late and not yet timely filed. Thereafter, sometime in probably mid October, Traficante told them to get their concerns in writing and for Ziznewski to produce the reading schedule since it was already so late. October 6 is usually the cut date for purposes of producing the schedules. However, by October 24, 2006, Ziznewski was still not producing the required documentation, which resulted in the need for the meeting with her to discuss it (P-5), since it's untimely production delayed instruction of needy students at Marshall. As a result of that meeting, Young advised her that he was still having difficulties getting a schedule from Ziznewski and that instruction was not being conducted in BSI.

She noted that teacher recommendations drive the need for assessments for pupils in grades kindergarten through grade two, while uniform screening occurs for children in grades three and up. The child is then fit into the schedule of the reading specialist, who is required to administer the DRA, which had been in existence at Edison since 2006, as a diagnostic tool and then coordinate it with the running record of the classroom teacher. It is not the function of the reading specialist to place the child in any particular program. She explained that the DRA is an instrument or a system of tasks to be completed by the pupil. The child is then rated based upon one's successful completion, or not, of those individual tasks. The administration of and scoring of the DRA are all standardized. However, there is a subjective element built into that program so that two different administrators of the DRA can come up with two different results. However, it was the overall or global disparity in the results generated by Ziznewski, which was at significant variance to the classroom teachers' overall need for services for the various pupils, which caused the district to become very concerned with her performance since Ziznewski had stated that many of those identified pupils did not need such services. Those numerous specific teacher concerns kept building over a period of time and were ultimately brought to her attention in 2008, at which time Dr. Traficante conducted a conference with Ziznewski on March 19, 2008, which was also attended by Supervisor Hagie and Principal Young. The conference focused on approximately eight specific students who had been identified as having significant reading problems because the DRAs generated by Ziznewski did not correlate with the running records of the classroom teachers as well as the DRAs conducted by teachers in the previous Summer Literacy Academy Program.

Ziznewski had previously been given instructions in training in the administration of the DRA's starting in, as she described it, the "practice year" of 2006, at which time the DRA concept was introduced as a uniform program at the Edison district. Although by October 2006, Principal Young had wanted all of the first graders to have their reading specialist programs conducted on a "push in" (classroom) level (P-3), he nonetheless acquiesced to having Ziznewski conduct her sessions in a "pull out" setting due to her claim of a physical disability in that she felt that she was uncomfortable sitting within each classroom's tiny young pupil chairs, even though he otherwise felt that it would have been permissible and acceptable for her to have a large, adult size chair available within the classroom.

As the 2006 school year commenced to get underway with the new DRA programming, it nonetheless became necessary to have a conference with Ziznewski by October 24, 2006. Her performance there was counterproductive and negative. A memo announcing the conference had been presented to Ziznewski on October 23 (P-4), at which time she had been asked by the two elementary supervisors Suzanne Capraro and Lois Hagie to bring her lesson plan book and three or four copies of the DRA's administered to the students who had attended the Summer Literacy Academy. However, she failed to produce them at the conference and, in fact, she never did produce the required lesson plans at any subsequent meetings either. In addition, Ziznewski audio taped the meeting and virtually immediately announced "I don't have any intention of answering anything." (P-5). Consequently, she failed and refused to respond to any questions asked by the supervisors. Instead, she persisted in writing questions on Post-It Notes and handed them to her ETEA representative, Diane Keane, to verbalize for her. As part of that truncated process, she challenged the authority of the two supervisors over her since she contended that Deborah Bredahl, a Title 1 program coordinator, was actually her supervisor. And, even when they advised her that they were her supervisor, and not Bredahl, she persisted in refusing to cooperate with them. Further, it was discovered that Ziznewski did not even begin to meet with her assigned students until October 16, which was well after the time when she should have initiated her programming with them. Valuable time had been lost in order to properly administer to these children.

Further, at the follow-up meeting which was ultimately held on January 22, 2007 (which had been delayed a couple of times due to Ziznewski's delays), she still challenged whether or not she had to show her lesson plans to the supervisors, even though it had been clarified that she had to at the October meeting. She also once again questioned the necessity of reading specialists to complete and produce a DRA report and then proceeded to give a lengthy presentation with reference to her viewpoint, which was to the effect that she felt that teachers were satisfied with her portfolio style of evaluating student reading progress, which she claimed that she presented to them on an ongoing basis. However, her approach violated uniform Edison Board of Education policy. It was the opinion of Dr. Traficante that Ziznewski blatantly refused to respond to the issues. She also did not like her demeanor as well as her refusal to take directions from and to confer respect toward her supervisors, which was consistent with her attitude at the October meeting. Yet, Dr. Traficante conceded that, as far as she knew, Ziznewski had not been told to produce the lesson plan at the January meeting, even though she had been previously instructed to produce it at the October meeting and failed to comply at that time as well as at all times thereafter.

Ziznewski also failed to comply with the job requirement that she was supposed to administer the ORS screening and testing of various ESL students during the 2006-07 school year (P-116), even though nine students had been identified by Mrs. Hook on October 13, 2006, as being in need of ESL instruction based upon her own ORS screening and testing results. They included eight students in kindergarten and one student in grade two. Ziznewski's job in that area was to properly and timely administer the ORS as directed by Principal Young. Yet, although she had been directed to do the ORS testing, the district has never found any test results in any of their students' records and she has failed to produce them at any point thereafter. As a result, these children had their educations delayed until sometime in November, 2006. Her conclusion was that Ziznewski did not service them. Her duty had been to screen the students and then place the results in the files, which she totally failed to do. Therefore, Ziznewski did not follow the procedures regarding screening of these children.

The case involving student A.P., a second grade student in the class of Mrs. Jennifer Figueroa, highlighted some of the significant concerns of Edison. Although he eventually received BSI services, he had failed to get them as of January 16, 2008, even though he had been recommended by his first grade teacher for such services and had been in the Summer Literacy Academy, which dictated a further immediate need for such services. On January 16, 2008, Young ordered Ziznewski to immediately begin BSI (P-26) for him, which occurred at a meeting held with the mother of A.P. It was her opinion that the delay of instruction is the same as withholding of services and, as a result, it became necessary for Young to issue a direct order to Ziznewski in order to attempt to get her compliance since she had refused and failed to give A.P. services since the previous September.

At that same meeting, Mrs. Figueroa complained about the Ziznewski behavior and comments during that parent meeting. Although Ziznewski was not supposed to be part of that meeting, she nonetheless insisted on attending the meeting, which created an uncomfortable situation for the mother, according to Figueroa. Further, although Ziznewski apparently purportedly tested A.P. on December 11, 2007 (according to her claim at that meeting), she nonetheless failed to advise any faculty about the results of the testing, and in particular Figueroa, who should have received that testing information immediately. She also failed to share any information with the faculty before she divulged her complaints about the disparity in the testing results in the presence of the parent, which was also a breach of protocol.

Concerns were also brought to her attention about the child identified as A.O. and relative to teacher Mary Schaefer who had gotten into a verbal altercation with Ziznewski on October 5, 2007 (P-17) regarding to that child. Then, on January 17, 2008, Schaefer wrote to Young about being concerned that A.O. was not being taken for BSI, in addition to children T.J. and E.P., even though she had recommended these childre for those services (P-27). Yet, Ziznewski had said that they did not need them. In addition, Schaefer did not even recall A.O. having been taken out for testing by Ziznewski, even though Ziznewski had claimed that she had tested her twice. Schaefer also noted that Ziznewski frequently was either absent, arrived late, or was working on something else during the scheduled times for the children, which denied them appropriate instructional time. She also was concerned that there continued to be a rift in communication. Young directed Ziznewski to provide those services. Subsequently, on March 11, 2008, Young wrote to Dr.Traficante for emergency approval for supplemental instructions for the sisters identified as A.N. and A.N. (grades two and one, respectively) who were both struggling in their academics and whose parents had expressed concern about their deficiencies. Neither one was being taken for BSI instruction by the Ziznewski even though their respective teachers had asked for the service. They both had been tested for ESL twice and tested out by only one point (P-46). Thereafter, Dr.Traficante held a conference with Ziznewski on March 19, 2008. Also present were Young, Hagie, and NJEA representative Donald Tarr. Ziznewski claimed that she had been attempting to utilize "enrichment books" for some pupils, which would force the students to read books and be exposed to vocabulary beyond their reading levels, but Dr.Traficante admonished her that such a procedure was in violation of established, clear-cut district policy to which she had previously received training, instruction and counseling by her supervisors. Ziznewski also once again persisted in challenging the validity of the elementary supervisors in overseeing the BSI program, even though that issue had previously been addressed at their meetings held on October 24, 2007 and January 22, 2008. The major problem was that instruction to those children was not forthcoming by Ziznewski, and nor was she permitted to decide when to provide services or not. She also had insisted to teach them above their performance levels, which was a violation of her role as a reading specialist. She also gave inflated assessments, which were false and, in the process, denied those children an appropriate education. Further, she failed to meet deadlines for the submission of the DRA reports for November 2007 and January 30, 2008. The impact was that she violated her professional responsibility to file her mandated reports in a timely fashion and, in addition, on a teaching level, she did not provide appropriate data to the school administration in order to track the progress of the students. As a result, Ziznewski was cited by her for failure to adhere to the district procedures for screening and assessing the students with whom she worked (P-51). (This had also been evidenced by her insubordinate attitude at the immediately previous meeting conducted with reference to her performance on January 22, 2007. (P-10). At that time she once again challenged the validity of the elementary supervisors' role over her and became argumentative with them.) She noted that if there is ever a difference of opinion regarding providing BSI services to a student, the principal makes the decision after having evaluated all of the appropriate test results. In this case, it was abundantly clear that at least seven separate teachers had questioned whether or not their students should have gotten BSI services since they all had determined their respective children to be eligible for them, all of which was in direct contrast to the opinions of Ziznewski. The teachers included

Mrs. Figueroa (grade 2), Mrs. Sica, Mrs. Schaefer (grade 1), Mrs. Hoffman (curriculum resource teacher), Ms. Kerry Peters, Mrs. Sandra Pellicane (grade 2) and Ms. Diane Keane. There was a universal concern that Ziznewski did not start BSI services for the children at their appropriate ability levels.

For example, the child A.P. was denied services by Ziznewski even though he had been identified for BSI services at the end of first grade, had attended the Summer Literacy Academy, and had also been recommended by Mrs. Figueroa when he entered her second grade class. She had found him to be a struggling reader even as late as January, 2008. The child A.O. had been recommended by Mrs. Schaefer by October, 2007 but Ziznewski rejected the child's need for it because she claimed she had tested her twice since September, 2007. Yet she never recalled A.O. having ever brought out of her classroom for such testing. However, according to Traficante, even assuming any such purported test results suggested no need for BSI, the school principal would have been required to order the servicing of the child for BSI and then get further diagnostic testing to confirm the status of the child one way or the other.

In that regard, on January 17, 2008, Principal Young specifically ordered Ziznewski to provide BSI programs for A.P. for two days a week (P-28). But then, in the presence of the parent for A.P., as well as the other teachers present, Ziznewski indicated that she intended to bring A.P.'s case up to the Intervention & Referral Services Committee (I&RS Committee). However, Dr.Traficante noted that referral to the I&RS Committee occurs only after delivery of services and the exhaustion of all strategies. In this case, not only were all other strategies not exhausted, but Young had specifically ordered Ziznewski to provide the extra reading services. Thus, it was her opinion that Ziznewski was insubordinate when she persisted in seeking the I&RS referral despite after receiving the order from Young.

In addition, Young also wrote to Dr. Traficante on the same date and expressed his upset with having participated in "one of the most embarrassing parent-teacher conferences in my 53 years in education." (P-28). He was very much embarrassed by Ziznewski's performance and outlandish attitude in the presence of the parent of A.P.

She contradicted the teachers who were present regarding A.P.'s reading ability and then interceded to the parent by claiming that he was proficient in reading. Young expressed the opinion that Ziznewski had acted in a "highly unprofessional manner" and that the parent was confused after hearing her comments which, according to Mrs. Figueroa at the meeting, were misleading . He was also most embarrassed that Ziznewski would contradict other teachers in front of a parent but was grateful that the other two teachers did not respond in kind in front of the parent. Then, on January 28, 2008, Young wrote to Ziznewski about her failure to implement the BSI program (P-30), which included A.P. Subsequently, on March 7, 2008, Young wrote again to Ziznewski and admonished her for failing to maintain her required teaching schedule and provide instruction after he was advised that she had requested time away from her students in order to complete her assessment of students in her classes (P-40) which letter he copied to John DiMuzio, acting superintendent. Concurrently, he wrote directly to Dimuzio and advised him about Ziznewski's inability to service her assigned students and complete her assessments (P-40). In that letter he also then stated: "I indicated Mrs. Hagie expects to receive a report as soon as possible. Mrs. Ziznewski indicated, angrily that Mrs. Hagie was not her boss and I was going to be in a lot of trouble because she will be reporting this situation to the Commissioner of Education. This information was presented to me in an intimidating manner."

On the same date of March 19, 2008, Dr.Traficante participated in a meeting with Ziznewski, Young, Hagie and N.J.E.A. representative Donald Tarr, at which time Hagie was present in order to review the DRAs and DRA results. Although Ziznewski supplied test scores at that time, she never provided the reports which formed the back up for the scores, which is what they wanted in the first place. Those scores also had been originally due on January 30, 2008 (P-51).

The matters involving the sisters A.N. and A.N. (grades two and one, respectively) represented another failing by Ziznewski. On March 11, 2008, Young wrote to Dr.Traficante and requested emergency approval for supplemental instruction for both of them because, even though they had both tested for ESL twice and only tested out by one point, they still only showed basic proficiency in English. They had arrived in Edison on January 16, 2008 from the Philippines but were both in the grade level behind where they were placed at Edison where, due to their age, Enrollment had put them in their present grades. It was already too late to transfer them into another school since the year was almost completed by that point. The ordered need for emergency supplemental instruction for both sisters consisted of a a form of tutoring by a paid instructor. Someone had to be paid to provide that supplemental instruction because Ziznewski was not providing the BSI for them by March 2008. Dr.Traficante authorized the emergency instruction accordingly.

Dr.Traficante also noted that Ziznewski had been told to not use novels but to only meet the needs of the BSI children as part of her instruction since the classroom teachers were better prepared to provide the high quality children's literature which they needed and where such items were more appropriate for their usage. Yet, Ziznewski refused to follow that program and insisted upon directing and employing an enrichment program, which was beyond her scope. Further, in addition to her steadfastly disagreeing with the use of the DRA's, Ziznewski also refused to submit the test scores in accordance with the mandated deadlines, which constituted a deliberate disregard of an order of her supervisors, which was insubordination. In the process, she also undermined the district's goal to provide appropriate education for disadvantaged students. She had also violated a direct order by Young to produce the DRA's as well as her lesson plan book at the November 22, 2006 meeting (P-7). She never produced the lesson plan book pursuant to the October order even at the January 22, 2007 meeting, at which time she also still persisted in challenging the need to even have produced it at all (P-10). And, even though, as of December 11, 2006 she was finally doing her job at that time, she was supposed to have commenced it by October 6, 2006, and her failure to do in a timely fashion constituted a form of unbecoming conduct (P-9), according to Dr. Traficante.

She also never supplied the ORS forms at any time (P-121). Without them, the district was unable to advance appropriate ESL students into the next level of instruction called MAC II. Submission of the forms to back up the scores is required, and Ziznewski's failure to provide them was a direct violation of her responsibility in that regard. Nine students had been identified by Mrs. Hook on October 13, 2006 as in need of ESL instruction based upon her ORS screening and testing and yet there were no ORS screening scores in eight of the students folders prior to that even though it had been recommended at registration that they needed to be screened (P-116). Thus, by June 15, 2007, Ziznewski was not following the prescribed screening procedures regarding ORS and for the ESL the programs (P-125), according to Traficante.

Further, as of March 19, 2008, Supervisor Hagie, in charting the various test results, noted inflated DRA scores by Ziznewski (P-51). The required previous November scores were not even reported by her until December, 2007 and the January 28, 2008 scores did not even come in from her until the March 19, 2008 meeting. It was at that time that Hagie plotted the test results, at which time she noted that the Ziznewski scores were inconsistent with the previous summer school scores (fulltime) and the running record scores (winter) which were culled from the other teachers. All of the Ziznewski scores indicated that there was purported much better achievement by the students over the results determined by all of the classroom teachers on a consistent basis. The net result would be to place students who had such inflated scores into a frustration level of learning above their actual abilities, and the actual gap in their learning would begin to widen even more. Dr.Traficante was forced to get involved with the evolving issues relative to Ziznewski when the in-house personnel at Marshall, including the supervisors and Principal Young, could not complete their tasks to get the lesson plans and timely reports from Ziznewski over time. In addition, ESL Supervisor Martin Smith had reported that, through the insubordinate actions of Ziznewski, some ESL students were also not getting their education. Dr.Traficante hoped to mediate these issues with Ziznewski and, in the process, she attempted to provide support for all of the concerned personnel. However, she did not meet with success, despite her best efforts. The need to open an ESL class at a cost of $10,000.00 to fill in the needs of some students demonstrated that they could not meet the needs of several students as well as the fact that two students were required to get a literacy coach because they were not being serviced by Ziznewski. It was her opinion that, had Ziznewski identified the ESL students earlier on in the year, they would have gone to the Washington School where the central ESL program was being undertaken among the various schools. However, since she had delayed such identification until the following March, it was too late in the year to send them over since it would have been unfair to have approved those children for transfer at that late stage. Also, when Ziznewski failed to administer the ORS and further failed to produce the rating or screening sheets at all, Young was forced to conduct a survey which included the ESL teacher from the Washington School, who was then required to come over and administer the ORS in place of Ziznewski. In the process, Dr.Traficante attempted to work directly with Ziznewski between four and six times, after she had initially allowed Young and the several building supervisors to try to correct the problems directly with her.

Thus, although she initially had had no problems with Ziznewski between 2003 and 2006, problems did begin to escalate thereafter, during which time the role of the reading specialist changed during her tenureship as assistant superintendent. That included the introduction of balanced literacy in the regular education curriculum, which required all aspects of the reading program to be brought into sync. It also included the introduction of the Lindamood Bell program along with the uniform application of DRA's throughout the district, the latter of which was fully phased in by the 2007-08 school year.

All district reading specialists were expected to implement the complete programming by that time but Ziznewski fell very short of complying even though she had been provided with her anticipated schedule as early as the 2006-2007 school year (P-3), was given a comprehensive listing of "expected job areas" for the 2007-2008 school year (P-11), was supplied the requirements regarding the BSI improvement program (P-181) and the reporting of DRA levels and the timelines for the submission of January and June DRA levels (P-12), as well as the BSI guidelines for reading specialists on November 13, 2007 (P-25). And, despite all of the training in that regard, it became necessary for her to be nonetheless individually directed to her tasks and she then received specific instructions and limitations on her role as a reading specialist relative to the introduction of novels in her direct instructional time environment by February 7, 2008 (P-34). She then received a follow up directive on March 7, 2008 from Lois Hagie regarding the reporting of DRA levels and her failure to timely file them (P-41).

Dr.Traficante also noted that all of the reading specialists and teachers had received a directive on September 22, 2007 to use the DRA. Ziznewski was one of eleven educators present during that meeting. Once a child would thereafter be referred to the reading specialist for BSI, it was required that the DRA had to be used. The multiple measures standard is the policy of Edison to place a child into BSI, in accordance with New Jersey State standards, which are designated as "core curriculum content standards." (P-181). A reading specialist must then administer the DRA, which is diagnostic, and it is meant to provide a deeper level of instruction in order to educate the child. It allows the reading specialist to specialize. However, in the process, the reading specialist does not identify the children. That is the function of the classroom teacher, who makes the initial of judgment about those needs. The role of the reading specialist is only to service them. As a result, even if the reading specialist questions the status of the child, the teaching specialization must continue unless and until a further directive is made by the school principal.

It was the conclusion of Dr.Traficante that, because of her failure to fulfill her duties as a reading specialist in the years 2006-2007 and 2007-2008, Ziznewski lost her increment and then tenure charges were ultimately preferred against her.

Lois Hagie

Lois Hagie is employed by Edison as a supervisor of elementary curriculum and instruction, which position she has held since August, 2004. She previously served as a classroom teacher for grades four through six between 1974 and 1999, after which she became a curriculum resource teacher between 1999 and 2004. As a supervisor at Edison, she is responsible for all content areas of grades kindergarten through five and observes non-tenured teachers for five of the eleven Edison elementary schools. In addition, she also coordinates and conducts curriculum development for all tenured and non-tenured teachers in a fashion similar to the role she played as a curriculum resource teacher previously. She also observes tenured teachers.

She supervises language arts literacy, which utilizes the program introduced at Edison approximately eight to nine years ago and is known as the concept of "balanced literacy." The previous method was to have all students in grades one through five read the same book in an anthology with one reading method. In that way, all students were expected to read one book on one level. Over time, however, they turned to the new approach of balanced literacy, in which students are assessed on their reading ability. In small groups, there are guided instructions at their individual instructional levels in which they use books unique to their individual needs. A central or major book is only used in the large group where the teacher has control of all of the students at the same time.

She is aware that Marshall School has a kindergarten through grade five structure like most of the other elementary schools in Edison (with only two exceptions, which have grades one and two and grades three and four, respectively). At Marshall, they worked with various types of teachers, including gifted and talented, literacy development, reading specialists, literacy enrichment, and "Read One A" teachers. Starting in 2006-2007, another role of each supervisor included the training of reading specialist at the Edison Education Center in order provide consistent assessments. Prior to that time, there were three different assessment tools used and they were dependent upon the grade level involved as well as the use of different running records. In the prior setting, she found it difficult to determine any district-wide trends to illustrate progress or not so she started to collect data to observe the inconsistencies in the programming. A committee was formed at about the same time and began to use the "Wright" learning model to make it more consistent from grades kindergarten through four or five. The committee attempted to create a uniform running record, to be utilized on a one on one basis. In the 2005-2006 school year, they created and introduced a uniform concept or "package" of reading assessments, which resulted in determining what type of reading materials a child should be able to use in each of the the grades kindergarten through five. In the summer 2006, additional revisions were made to that package, which added books to the running records for assessments. All teachers and specialists were trained in regarding its use. By 2007-2008, the new running record assessments were used by the classroom teachers. The result was that Hagie could now look at all the levels of the district and make proper evaluations of their pupils' needs. She was able to establish grade level patterns and trends as a result. At some point, the supervisors looked at the assessment tools used by the reading specialists, who needed a special layer or form of assessment to get more knowledge about the students. At the end of each school year, pupils were determined by their respective classroom teachers to be identified who were below grade level in order to receive BSI services. Starting in the summer 2005, the most at risk first and second grade students were directed to the Summer Literacy Academy, where they began to receive DRA services under the new model. Commencing in the 2006-2007 school year, the committee determined to adapt it to the regular school environment. The DRA is administered similar to the running record. The new system was introduced to the reading specialists in the fall 2006, at which time they received a package followed by training at Edison's Education Center. They then got the specialists together several times later that year for additional training.

As part of that training, the various instructors were advised that, after the initial referral by the classroom teacher prior to the summer recess, both the new classroom teacher and the assigned reading specialist were to get together early at the commencement of the next school year in the fall, in order to determine the needs for BSI for the identified students. The reading specialist was supposed to "push in" in the classroom in the early grades, although "pull-outs" would occur in the upper grades. The concept of a push-in would allow both teachers (i.e., the classroom teacher and reading specialist) to be in the same room at the same time, share the training and notes, and to make joint observations. In the 2006-2000 school year, the expectations were that the reading specialists were to be given a list of the attendees to the Summer Literacy Academy and then provide and share their assessments on a quarterly basis in order to accurately and timely chart the progress of each such child. The reading specialists were specifically instructed to do this and were also told to get the DRA reports in so that they could track these assessments by Hagie during that first year of the new program. In that way, by year two (i.e., 2007-2008), Hagie would then be in the best position to determine the consistency in the actual leveling of the reporting and compare it to the classroom teachers' running records. This mandated the timely submission of the data from the reading specialists.

She explained that the concept of the single running record was developed and adopted by Edison in order to provide consistency with young readers. This was in contrast to the prior use of multiple test measures which had failed to establish a baseline for consistency. Thus, the use of one instrument only from one source (i.e., the single running record) became the mandate in the district. The classroom teacher became the primary source of those running records at the start of the school year, after which the identified students would then be referred to the reading specialists who were expected to start working with those children immediately thereafter and were expected to use the DRA in order to establish the appropriate reading level of the student. The BSI should begin by the third week of the school year. The push-in method within the classroom was to be employed up through the first grade. Thereafter, the pull-out method was the norm.

Hagie knows Ziznewski, and, as her supervisor, she got to interface with her regarding the new programming at Edison. One of her tasks in that regard was to gather information on the running records and the DRAs. Early on in the 2006-2007 school year, she was asked to check on the status of Ziznewski in order to find out why she had not yet started her schooling of instruction regarding her assigned students. As a result, she and fellow supervisor Suzanne Capraro asked for an October 24 meeting with Ziznewski and Principal Young at Marshall in a memo dated October 23, 2006, in which they indicated that they wanted to see her schedule, three or four samples of her DRA's and to set up a dialogue with her (P-4). The meeting took place on October 24 as scheduled. Also in attendance was Diane Keane, an ETEA representative, on behalf of Ziznewski. However, the meeting was not productive, according to Hagie, since, right from the start, Ziznewski (who had unilaterally determined to audiotape the meeting) announced: "I don't have any intention of answering anything." (P-5). As a result, she refused to answer any questions and instead persisted on writing questions on Post-it Notes and handing them to Keane to verbalize for her. She also failed to produce any DRA's or her lesson plan and offered no explanation for their non production. Further, Ziznewski did not even begin to meet with her assigned students until October 16, and all of those instructions were even only taking place in a pull-out setting. She offered no explanation with reference to the concerns raised about those deviations from the expected procedures. Hagie noted that this was the first time that any teacher had ever refused to answer any questions or had determined to tape a session. Ziznewski also commenced to challenged the authority that Hagie and Capraro had over her, at which time she was specifically told by them that they were her supervisors and not Deborah Bredahl. It was the opinion of Hagie that Ziznewski acted in a defiant matter at that meeting. Hagie was so physically upset that she had received nothing from Ziznewski that she was forced to go to Dr. Traficante to express her upset.
