Stephen B. Hunter, Esq. and Lawrence Van Wess, Esq., for the respondent, (Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 15, 1993 Decided: November 16, 1993

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 19, 1993, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The Board of Education of the Shore Regional High School District (Board) certified charges of unbecoming conduct of a school secretary with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) against respondent, Dedra Derrick. The Board alleges, among other things, that respondent had engaged in a pattern of absenteeism which interfered with the orderly operation of the school. Respondent denies the charge and set forth a series of affirmative defenses.

Prior to the tenure hearing, the parties arrived at an agreement to settle the matters in controversy, together with a remedial action plan for respondent.

I have reviewed the terms and conditions of the Agreement and CONCLUDE that it meets the State Board of Education guidelines, pursuant to Cardonick v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brooklawn, 1982 S.L.D. _____ (Comm. Dec. April 7, 1982; State Board Dec. August 4, 1982). (See attached Agreement).

I have also reviewed the Remedial Action Plan for Dedra Derrick from May 24, 1993 to June 30, 1995 and CONCLUDE that its incorporation into the Agreement is appropriate. (See attached Remedial Action Plan).

I FIND that the parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement terms and conditions as evidenced by their signatures.

I FIND that the Agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this Agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER the parties to comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

A G R E E M E N T

The Shore Regional Board of Education, (hereinafter referred to as "Board" and Dedra Derrick, (hereinafter referred to as "Derrick"), an employee of the Shore Regional District have reached a tentative agreement with respect to a certification of tenure charges against Derrick and grievance filed by Derrick against Board.

The following issues have been addressed and agreed to:

1. The Board shall withhold the 1993-1994 salary increment of Derrick in the amount of $1,328.00. Derrick's 1993-1994 salary shall be $17,928.00.

2. A remedial action plan shall be mutually developed and agreed upon between Board and Derrick, which shall be strictly adherred to by Derrick.

3. The amount of $1,328.00 withheld from Derrick's 1993-1994 salary shall be restored on July 31, 1994, if the remedial action plan and criteria are completely met by Derrick. Her salary for 1994-1995 shall then be $20,875.00. If Derrick shall fail to meet criteria set forth in remedial action plan, then the amount of money withheld in 1993-1994 in the amount of $1,328.00 shall not be restored to her. Derrick agrees that she will not grieve or arbitrate the decision of the Board if Board decides not to restore increment.

4. Tenure charges brought by Board shall remain in effect until agreement and remedial action plan are executed by all parties.

5. Derrick agrees to dismiss her grievance against the Superintendent of Schools and Board and that no arbitration shall commence with respect to Board's decision. Superintendent's evaluation dated February 2, 1993 shall remain in full force and effect with no amendment.

6. Board and Derrick agree that she has three sick days remaining until June 30, 1993.

7. Derrick agrees that in addition to the remedial action plan to be developed and executed, that she will meet monthly with Mark Abramson, Linda Conway and Dan Sorkowitz to review her progress and status of employment with the Board. The first meeting shall take place during the month of June, 1993 and continue monthly thereafter until the termination of this plan. The remedial action plan shall terminate June 30, 1995. Results of conferences, on a monthly basis, shall be reduced to writing and signed off by all parties.

8. Derrick agrees that she has earned no vacation time for the time she missed since March 29, 1993.

9. Board agrees to reimburse Derrick for her salary missed from the time that the tenure charges were certified. Said gross amount of money shall be 2,790.00. Derrick will be responsible for repayment of all unemployment monies received from New Jersey Division of Unemployment and holds the Board harmless and indemnifies the Board from any responsibility with respect to same.

10. The remedial action plan shall have certain parameters to be developed. The maximum number of sick days to be allowed to Derrick during the school year 1993-1994 shall be eleven (11) days. The maximum number of sick days in the 1994-1995 school year shall be ten days, however, if there are any unused sick days from the 1993-1994 school year, they shall accrue and be available for use by Derrick during the 1994-1995 school year. The superintendent, in his sole discretion, may request a doctor's certificate for any sick time taken. Bereavement leave shall be in accordance with the contract entered into between the secretarial association at Shore Regional High School. Derrick shall be allowed three (3) days for court appearances in each school year provided she is subpoenaed to attend court and providing further that it is a school related matter. All absences, of whatever nature, must be called into Derrick's supervisor, Dan Sorkowitz. All absences, of whatever nature, must be fully documented in accordance with the remedial action plan to be developed and executed.

11. Nothing contained herein shall prevent Board from future certification of charges or increment withholdings for excessive absenteeism or improper job performance.

12. Parties agree that Derrick shall be allowed to return to work on May 24, 1993 until June 30, 1993. If for any reason the remedial action plan or the agreement is not executed, then Board shall relieve Derrick of her duties. Parties agree that Derrick's next work year shall begin September 1, 1993 and end on June 30, 1994.

13. This document constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and there have been no promises, agreements, stipulations or understandings that have not been incorporated into this Agreement.

14. Each of the parties represent that he or she has consulted legal counsel prior to the execution of this Agreement. Each of the parties further represents that he or she is entering into this Agreement voluntarily and that he or she understands and agrees to the terms contained in this Agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 4TH day of October, 1993.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DEDRA DERRICK, SHORE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms as they comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters, and adopts the instant settlement as the final decision in this matter. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846). In so doing, however, the Commissioner notes that the agreement herein includes terms which appear to have been effectuated prior to the Commissioner's approval, and cautions the parties herein, and all litigants, against such action in that settlement agreements have no force and effect prior to such approval.

Notwithstanding this reservation, the settlement is approved and this matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

James P. Granello, Esq., on behalf of respondent

Record Closed: November 29, 1993 Decided: November 30, 1993

BEFORE NAOMI DOWER-LABASTILLE, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 3, 1993 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On October 1, 1993, the parties requested that this case be placed on the inactive list for six months or more because the identical issue in this case was currently being decided by the Commissioner of Education. On October 4, 1993, I ordered this matter be placed on the inactive list.

On July 29, 1993, I issued an initial decision in Millstone Township Teachers Association v. Bd. of Ed. of Millstone, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4175-92 and five other consolidated cases which determined the identical legal and factual issues as those posed by the instant docket. On October 12, 1993, the Commissioner of Education issued her decision in these consolidated dockets (no. 237-93), and ordered withdrawal of all boards from participation in Grinspec Trust by the end of the 1993-94 school years.

I FIND that the respondent board of education here, among all other boards, is subject to the Commissioner's order in no. 237-93 and the result of any appeal thereon. I CONCLUDE there is no longer a contested case in this docket because all issues have been decided by the Commissioner in no. 237-93.

It is therefore ORDERED that the Clerk return the file to the agency.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE NAOMI DOWER-LABASTILLE, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 22, 1993 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On June 15, 1993, the parties requested that this case be placed on the inactive list for six months or more because the identical issue in this case was currently being decided before the Office of Administrative Law. On July 7, 1993, I directed that the matter be placed on the inactive list.

On July 29, 1993, I issued an initial decision in Millstone Township Teachers Association v. Bd. of Ed. of Millstone, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4175-92 and five other consolidated cases which determined the identical legal and factual issues as those posed by the instant docket. On October 12, 1993, the Commissioner of Education issued her decision in these consolidated dockets (no. 237-93), and ordered withdrawal of all boards from participation in Grinspec Trust by the end of the 1993-94 school years.

I FIND that the respondent board of education here, among all other boards, is subject to the Commissioner's order in no. 237-93 and the result of any appeal thereon. I CONCLUDE there is no longer a contested case in this docket because all issues have been decided by the Commissioner in no. 237-93.

It is therefore ORDERED that the Clerk return the file to the agency.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993. Parties settled; however, Coordinating County Superintendent urged rejection of settlement.

Upon review, Commissioner determined that since district is a special needs district, the Board is required to dedicate the minimum amount required for its Educational Improvement Plan. (N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.4) Thus, Commissioner ordered $235,000 added to amount certified to Board of Taxation by governing body for General Fund school purposes for 1993-94 school year for total tax levy of $17,168,466.

GARFIELD BOARD OF EDUCATION, :

PETITIONER, :

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

Toni Belford Damiano, Esq., for petitioner (Damiano & Cerruti)

Lawrence J. Jaskot, Esq., for respondent (Jaskot and Evertz)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner through the City of Garfield Board of Education's (Board) filing of a notice on June 1, 1993 of its intent to appeal the reductions effectuated by the Mayor and Council of the City of Garfield (Council) to the 1993-94 proposed school budget upon defeat of same by the voters of that municipality on April 20, 1993.

On June 11, 1993 the Petition of Appeal was filed by the Board in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. In the petition the Board sought restoration of $1,399,765 in reductions made by the Council on May 13, 1993 ($1,183,823 to the General Fund portion that loss of same "will not sustain Petitioner's objective and obligation of providing a 'Thorough and Efficient Education' program for the public school students of the City of Garfield." (Petition of Appeal, at p. 2) In addition, the Board averred in its petition that > a Thorough and Efficient system of schools cannot possibly be conducted with the funds remaining after the recommended line item cuts of the Respondent. The money allotted per line item is necessary for the Petitioner to operate properly. The position the Petitioner would be in if the recommendations of the Respondent were upheld would be greatly detrimental to the children of the school district. (at p. 3)

The Board also averred in its petition that the budget reduction ordered by Council is "arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, premised upon political, noneducational factors." (Id.)

On June 22, 1993 Council's Answer to the petition was filed in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6. In its Answer, Council denies the allegations set forth by the Board relative to the reductions made to the Board's proposed budget and sets forth two affirmative defenses relative to the appropriateness of its actions with respect to that budget.

Subsequent to the filing of Council's Answer and before the expiration of the time within which the parties were required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8 to file their position papers in this matter, the Board, on July 13, 1993, filed a letter indicating that as a result of a mediation conference conducted by the Office of the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools, a settlement had been reached between the parties. The settlement agreed to a budget reduction of $940,000, resulting in a total budget of $16,933,466 for the Garfield School District. It further notified the Commissioner that it was withdrawing its Petition of Appeal.

On July 20, 1993, Dr. Maureen Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, sent a letter to the Board acknowledging receipt of its letter regarding withdrawal of its petition and informing it that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.3(e), no action could be taken on the withdrawal until the County Superintendent determined whether or not the settlement reached by the parties was sufficient to ensure a thorough and efficient system of education to the students of the Garfield School District.

Because the wife of Dr. Anthony Scalzo, Bergen County Superintendent of Schools, is employed by the Garfield School District, he recused himself by letter of July 26, 1993 from further involvement in the review of this matter so as to avoid any appearance of a conflict of interest. Dr. Sharon I.R. Clover, Coordinating County Superintendent for the North Region, was assigned by Assistant Commissioner Elena Scambio to review the proposed settlement in light of the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.3(e) and (f).

On September 7, 1993, the Coordinating County Superintendent submitted an affidavit setting forth her findings and conclusions of the review conducted of the Garfield School District's budget for 1993-94, together with supportive documentation. In her affidavit, the Coordinating County Superintendent urged rejection of the settlement proposed by the parties based upon the fact that the school district is a special needs district as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 and, as such, the budget was not found to be adequate to fund the Educational Improvement Plan (E.I.P.) required by statute and code. (See attachment #8 of September 7, 1993 submission.)

The Coordinating County Superintendent's affidavit sets forth, inter alia, that:

On June 29, 1993, the two governing bodies reached an amicable settlement wherein the Mayor and Council restored $459,765 to the General Fund Budget and certified a General Fund Tax Levy of $16,933,466. The revised reduction to the General Fund was $940,000. (Attachment #2)

The Board of Education directed its Board Attorney to file a withdrawal of the Budget Petition of Appeal. (Attachment #3)

The Superintendent of Schools refused to sign the latest budget statement. Upon questioning by the County Superintendent, he stated that the new budget could not provide a thorough and efficient system of schools.

When I learned of this situation from Dr. Scalzo, I convened a conference on July 12, 1993 with Dr. Robert Van Zanten, Garfield Superintendent, Dr. Anthony Scalzo, Bergen County Superintendent, and Mr. Jay Doolan, Acting Director of Urban and Field Services to review the Garfield budget in light of cuts made by the town council and agreed to by the local board of education, and to determine if the provisions of the N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.3 sub para (f). should be invoked. At this point in time, Dr. Scalzo was present since he had not as yet received official notice not to participate. We also consulted with the county business official to go over specific line items in the revised budget and to determine if sufficient funds could be obtained through reallocation. An amount of $39,000 in the unemployment insurance account was found and we recommended it be reallocated to E.I.P. implementation.

Subsequent to that meeting, Jay Doolan forwarded a letter (attachment #4) to Dr. Scalzo recommending that the Garfield budget not be approved because the reductions seriously impact on the conditionally approved 1993-94 Educational Improvement Plan.

In addition, Dr. Van Zanten has refused to sign and approve the revised budget because he believes "cuts of this magnitude would prevent the district from carrying out the 1993-94 E.I.P. and meet its responsibility to provide a Thorough and Efficient Education." (attachments #5 and #6)

Copies of the district budget (attachment #7) and Educational Improvement Plan (attachment #8) are enclosed.

Therefore, it is our conclusion that the reduced Garfield budget is not adequate to meet the requirements of the Educational Improvement Plan and to provide thorough and efficient education and mandated programs. Specific concerns include:

1.a. Whole Language Teacher Training (obj. 4) $ 25,000

b. General supplies for kindergarten, middle school and high school - Advancement Placement courses (obj. 1, 2, 7, 8) 50,000

c. Equipment for above programs (obj. 1, 2, 7, 8) 100,000

d. Staff for A.P. program (obj. 1) 60,000

2. Budgetary cuts in teacher salary accounts 156, 157, 158 and 275 amount to $687,629. Of that total, at least the positions relating to mandated programs and EIP implementation should be reinstated. Superintendent's letter indicates these positions include:

   3 bilingual, 2 ESL, 2 Special Education, 1 Basic Skills and 1 Social Studies (for A.P.) teachers

3. General teaching supplies and equipment needed for maintaining existing programs were cut $140,000. (See budget lines 163, 165, 525, 526, 527, 528)

4. The reduced budget, in a special needs district, is now $956,561 under cap.

In summary, it has been well documented that special needs districts are underfunded and need a great deal of support from the education department. To approve a budget with nearly a $1 million reduction in such a district will continue to make it impossible to improve and provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. (Coordinating County Superintendent's Affidavit, at pp. 2-3)

On October 26, 1993, the Board submitted a letter responsive to the Coordinating County Superintendent's affidavit. The Board informs the Commissioner that through much diligence on the part of the new Superintendent, Thomas Cangiolosi, and in conjunction with the governing body, a further agreement had been reached wherein the Superintendent had proposed a $50,000 increase which would restore the total amount of $509,765 to the General Fund Budget. Said increased restoration was approved by the Board at its October 21, 1993 meeting and is subject to the approval of the governing body. Set forth in the Board's response is a synopsis of the budget review, completed by the new Superintendent in conjunction with the School Business Administrator, which is incorporated herein by reference. It states in summation,

> In summation, it is the opinion of the new Superintendent of Schools, Thomas Cangiolosi, and the Business Administrator, that the Garfield School District can provide a thorough and efficient education within the limitations of the budget as presented, with two exceptions, as noted in this report; to wit: Objective IV - $7,630.00 and Objective VII - $36,000.00, for a total of $43,630.00. The Garfield School District is seeking to recover $50,000.00 to provide a proper allocation for the above mentioned areas, as well as to provide for a possible increase in the cost of the classroom computers. (emphasis in text) (Damiano Letter of 10/26/93, at p. 3)

On November 1, 1993, the governing body submitted its response to the Coordinating County Superintendent's affidavit. Initially, the governing body states that it had received a copy of the E.I.P. for the first time when preparing to submit its response herein. It also states among other things that

> We, of course, understand and realize that the action of the Commissioner was percipitated by the recommendation of the local superintendent, Dr. Van Santon, who not incidentially already made plans to leave the district for another position when he rendered his recommendation. Perhaps, the departing superintendent lacked the focus necessary to evaluate the budget economics compromised by the governing body and school board.

> The recent history of cooperation and compromise between the respective governing bodies, should not be overlooked. In the more distant past each took uncompromising positions which resulted in contesting hearings before the Office of Administrative Law where each side was urged to revaluate their positions so that the community could work toward a harmonious solution of what had been a vexing problem. Despite the leadership role a member of the city council chose, he or she was faced, in most instances, with an overwhelming rejection of the school budget by his or her own constituents. Without entering into a treatise on the role of an elected representative, the city council member could hardly ignore the clear choice of the people in exercising their prerogative at the polls. Now that both the city council and elected board of education have found means and methods of effectuating a compromise consistently urged by the county superintendent and the administrative law judge, they are now advised that their efforts are ephemeral since an itinerant superintendent has misjudged the sincerity and ability of the local board of education and the city council.
> The newly appointed superintendent, who has tenure in the Garfield School system and has much more extensive experience in the Garfield Schools than the departing superintendent, had adjudged the compromise to be fair and reasonable. Furthermore, he proposes, based on a documented case submitted herewith by the Board of Education, to fulfill the E.I.P. with an additional $50,000. The undersigned is currently without authority to represent that this amount will be restored by the city council. However, the Garfield City Manager has led me to believe it will be and we are prepared to recommend it at the City Council meeting of November 9, 1993.
>

The governing body also addresses the issue of settlements to litigated matters urging, inter alia, that

> There is little question that the law favors settlement which ranks high in public policy, Warren v. Employers' Fire Ins. Co. Boston, Mass. 100 N.J. Super. 464 (App. Div. 1968) rev'd 53 N.J. 308, Jannarone v. W.T. Co. 65 N.J. Super. 472 (App. Div. 1961).
> Although we concede that there exists circumstances under the law where a settlement > may be rejected by the court. Where inequity and unfairness are clear, this is the case. More often judicial scrutiny finds fault with a settlement of a controversy where mistake or ignorance of a fact or law is established by a party, or where fraud or duress is found, Taylor v. Mitchell 90 N.J. Super. 312. (Ch. Div. 1966), Nevets C.M. Inc. v. Nissko Iwai American Corp. 899 F.2nd. 1218 (D.N.J. 1989), Chattin v. Cape May Greene Inc. 216 N.J. Super. 618, cert. den 107 N.J. 148, remd. 243 N.J. Super. 590, aff'd 124 N.J. 520. Absent these narrow exceptions, the courts have validated voluntary settlements Nolan v. Nolan 120 N.J. 465 (1990) and they are encouraged, almost to a fault. (Id., at pp. 2-3)

Upon review of the arguments of the parties in this matter and the affidavit with supportive documentation submitted by the Coordinating County Superintendent, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the settlement proposed by the parties cannot be approved. N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.4 requires that given that Garfield is a special needs district, the Board is required to dedicate a minimum of $1,349,052 for its E.I.P. Notwithstanding the narrative information from Superintendent Cangiolosi and the School Business Administrator submitted as part of the Board's response to the Coordinating County Superintendent's affidavit, the record sufficiently demonstrates that the Board has failed to dedicate the amount mandated by law to fund its E.I.P. It is unfortunate that the governing body did not have available a copy of the district's E.I.P. for review prior to making the reductions to the 1993-94 school budget given that such a document is indeed crucial to any informed decision making by the governing body relative to the budget. This is not to occur again in the future if the Garfield School District experiences a defeated budget necessitating review by the governing body.

Because the reductions effectuated by the governing body result in a $235,000 decrease in the district's Educational Improvement Plan, contrary to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.4, and given that the review conducted by the Coordinating County Superintendent finds that no reallocation within the 1993-94 school budget is possible, IT IS ORDERED that $235,000 be added to the amount certified to the Bergen County Board of Taxation by the governing body for General Fund school purposes for the 1993-94 school year. This results in a total tax levy for school purposes for the City of Garfield for the 1993-94 school year in the amount of $17,168,466.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 14, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Damiano & Cerruti
(Toni Belford Damiano, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Salvatore Ingraffia, Esq.

On April 20, 1993, the voters of Garfield defeated the budget proposed by the Board of Education of the City of Garfield (hereinafter "Board") for the 1993-94 school year. On May 13, 1993, the City Council acted to reduce the budget pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, and the Board for this special needs district appealed the reductions to the Commissioner of Education.

Thereafter, the parties reached an agreement concerning the education budget, and, on that basis, the Board sought to withdraw its appeal to the Commissioner. However, upon her review, the Coordinating County Superintendent urged the Commissioner to reject the proposed settlement because the resulting budget was not adequate to meet the District's Educational Improvement Plan (EIP) and to provide a thorough and efficient education.

Nov. 2, 1994

On November 9, 1993, the Council resolved to restore additional funds to the District's education budget and thereby modified the terms of the proposed settlement. Relying upon its belief that the current District Superintendent had demonstrated that the District's EIP could be accomplished within the budget if the Council restored an additional $50,000, the Council acted to restore that additional amount.

Relying primarily on the Coordinating County Superintendents earlier recommendation, the Commissioner rejected the proposed settlement on January 14, 1994, finding that the Board was required to dedicate $1,349,052 to its EIP, but had not done so.

On appeal to the State Board, the City Council argues that the budget resulting from the proposed settlement as it had been modified by reallocation within the budget and its restoration of the additional amounts provided the funds necessary to fund the EIP. The district Board has advised us that it takes no position with respect to this appeal.

Upon our review, the State Board of Education approves the settlement as modified by reallocations made within the Board's budget and the restoration of the additional $50,000 by the Council. Our approval is, however, contingent upon review of the documentation by the Assistant Commissioner for the Division of Field Services and his assurance to us that, as represented by the parties, the budget resulting from the proposed settlement did in fact provide the funds required both to fund the District's EIP and to provide a thorough and efficient education.

DECISION ON MOTION

For Petitioner-Movant, Robert M. Tosti, Esq. (Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff)

For Respondent-Respondent, Lawrence P. Cohen, Esq. (Courter, Kobert, Laufer, Purcell & Cohen)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on December 3, 1993 by way of a Motion for Reconsideration filed by petitioner with reference to the Commissioner's decision of October 29, 1993 in the budget appeal of the same name. Specifically, the Board sought reconsideration of the Commissioner's decision to sustain a $350,000 reduction to surplus made by the governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

In its supporting papers, the Board argued that the Commissioner, in determining based on a prior year's audit that the Board's available surplus was $604,183.73, had overlooked that this amount had been depleted by the Board's appropriation of $309,958 in current expense Account No. 11-303 and capital outlay Account No. 12-303, thus leaving an actual surplus of only $294,225.73. The Board further contended that, in determining the percentage of surplus available to the Board, the Commissioner compounded the first error by computing the percentage of the available surplus dollar amount against an erroneous total budget figure of $15,768,118 rather than the correct figure of $25,975,942. Thus, while the Commissioner calculated and deemed acceptable a 3.8% surplus even after governing body reduction, in actuality the reduction he sustained left the Board with a surplus of only 1.8%, well below the 3% generally deemed acceptable by the Commissioner in prior case law. In this regard, the Board observed, while a current audit report is now available and gives the district's surplus at $989,376, after allowing for the $309,958 appropriations noted above, the remaining $679,418 amounts to 2.6%, which the $350,000 reduction sustained by the Commissioner would decrease to $329,418 or 1.3%. Clearly, the Board concludes, this constitutes inadvertent error and does not represent the Commissioner's true intent.

In reply papers filed on December 20, 1993, the Township Council ("Township") acknowledged the correctness of the Board's contentions with respect to the calculations made by the Commissioner, but argued that the reduction at issue should be sustained nonetheless in that the remaining surplus was sufficient even if the correct figures had been used by the Commissioner. In support of its position, the Township presented a four-year analysis of surplus amounts and utilization, claiming that the Board had routinely functioned with surplus balances of 1% to 2% and cannot now be heard to claim that 3% is necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient education ("T & E"). The Township further objected to the Board's insistence on reckoning its available surplus by subtracting subsequent year appropriations from prior year surplus balances, thus ignoring the likelihood (borne out by the Board's past experience as shown in the four-year surplus analysis) that the appropriated amounts would be covered by replenishments to surplus during the course of the year of expenditure. Moreover, if the Board did not routinely "hide" potential surplus by last-minute advance purchasing in unexpended accounts such as teaching supplies and textbooks, its year-end accrual would be even greater. Finally, the Township contended that, in light of the Board's request for reconsideration of the surplus issue, the Commissioner's entire decision should be reviewed in light of spending patterns which emerged after the Township's post-election review, both as they relate to surplus and otherwise.

Upon review of the arguments of the parties on motion, the Commissioner's prior decision in this matter and the record of that decision, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that errors were made in the calculation of surplus so as to produce a result other than the Commissioner intended. Specifically, the available surplus figure used by the Commissioner did not take into account appropriations therefrom for the 1993-94 budget and was applied to an erroneous total budget figure to obtain the percentage of that budget represented by surplus, so that the Commissioner's determination that the Board could sustain a $350,000 reduction was in fact based on inaccurate premises.

In revisiting that determination in light of the correct figures and the arguments of the township, the Commissioner notes that the method of surplus calculation used in this matter (that is, the prior year's final available amount less any appropriations therefrom in the current budget) has historically been employed by the Commissioner in determining surplus acceptability levels and that it is well established that a 3% surplus is deemed acceptable even where other line item accounts have reasonable contingency "cushions" included in the amounts sustained by the Commissioner, as is the case herein. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy v. Council of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, 1987 S.L.D. 2262; Board of Education of the Borough of Carteret v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Carteret, Middlesex County, decided November 4, 1993. Nor does the fact that the Board may have functioned in the past with less than a 3% surplus alter this result where, as here, the Commissioner is satisfied that the dollar amounts remaining in disputed line items other than surplus are appropriate. Finally, to the extent that the Township's argument on motion would require reopening of the record of this matter, the general issues which it raises having been previously set forth in the record of the original appeal (Certification of June A. Cetro) and re-litigating of the appeal being inappropriate in the context of the within motion, the Commissioner declines this request.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, in light of the corrected calculations set forth above, the previously sustained reduction of $350,000 to the Board's surplus account would leave the Board with a less than acceptable level of surplus for the 1993-94 school year, so that this reduction must be restored. The Morris County Board of Taxation is, therefore, directed to adjust the 1993-94 General Fund school tax levy for the Township of Jefferson to reflect an increase of $350,000 over and above the $15,069,350 previously ordered by the Commissioner.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

*In rendering this decision, the Commissioner is not unmindful of the January 5, 1994 decision of the State Board of Education in the matter of Board of Education of the Borough of New Milford v. Borough Council of the Borough of New Milford, Bergen County, wherein the State Board reversed a $100,000 restoration to surplus made by the Commissioner on grounds that the Commissioner had made such restoration because the resulting surplus was within the guidelines set by the Commissioner as reasonable for boards to carry rather than because the Board made a specific demonstration that the Council's reduction to surplus would impair its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education. (Slip op., at p.4) However, because this matter was litigated prior to enunciation of the State Board's heightened standard and the reconsideration herein is based solely on the Board's claim of technical error in surplus calculations, the Commissioner applies the standard in use and effect at the time of the original decision.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE : DECISION TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, :
MIDDLESEX COUNTY. :

Petitioning qualified voters sought inquiry into alleged violations/irregularities in school election proceedings. Two separate requests for inquiry were consolidated and heard as one matter. Petitioners conceded at the outset that they sought not to overturn the result of the election, but to obtain a determination that improprieties occurred.

ALJ dismissed petition, finding no support for allegations of Board or staff involvement in a letter purportedly from the "room mother" coordinator but not written by her and a flyer prepared by the Civic Action Committee, allegations of "candidate bashing" at Board meetings and allegations of harassment of one candidate's challenger; claims that election workers failed to call out voter names were rejected as not founded on any authority so requiring. Claims regarding early opening of polls at one school, failure to permit inspection of certain voting machines prior to election and preparation at public expense of a televised presentation advocating passage of the school budget were found to have merit to the extent that some small degree of error was demonstrated, but were not found sufficient to warrant directives from the Commissioner.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and conclusions regarding most allegations, but modified determination with respect to televised budget presentation. Commissioner determined that presentation, through inclusion of exhortations to vote "yes" in the context of overall positive presentation aired during the four days preceding election, crossed line separating information from advocacy contrary to standards of Citizens to Protect Public Funds. Board was cautioned and enjoined from future expenditure of public funds for programs or materials having the effect of advocating passage of budget and was further directed to adjust instruction and supervision of election workers to extent necessary to avoid repetition of errors demonstrated herein.

Harold G. Smith, Esq., on behalf of respondent Old Bridge Township Board of Education (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 27, 1993 Decided: December 6, 1993

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of two complaints filed by Mitchel Geier, and nine other qualified voters of Old Bridge Township, alleging certain irregularities by the Board of Education (Board) leading up to and during the April 1993 School Board Election. N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12. The matters were separately transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases and were heard as one.[1] A hearing was conducted on June 30 and October 14, 1993. The record closed on October 27, 1993, with receipt of the last post-hearing memorandum.

1 No formal request for consolidation was made, however the cases were treated throughout as one, and are hereby formally consolidated.

Petitioners allege: (1) that the Board expended funds to produce and televise a one-sided budget presentation which improperly exhorted the public to vote for the budget; (2) that the Board authorized distribution of a letter purporting to be from Mary Ellen Zanfini urging "room mothers" to use their "call lists" to garner support for the proposed budget; (3) that school administrators made improper comments in presenting the proposed budget during a meeting at Cheesequake Village Civic Association; (4) that comments made by Board members during a televised Board meeting on February 16, 1993, constituted "candidate bashing"; (5) that Board members made improper comments during the Board meetings of March 16 and 23, 1993; (6) that early voting was permitted at the Schirra School on election day; (7) that Brenda Bjonnes, a challenger for defeated candidate Mitchel Geier, was harassed by an election worker at the Voorhees School; (8) that election workers failed to call out the names of persons as they appeared at the polls to vote; and (9) that election workers refused to allow Mr. Geier and his challengers to view the vote counter on the voting machines during the election.

Petitioners conceded at the outset that they were not seeking to overturn the election; rather, they believe that their allegations reveal a multiplicity of violations which require a corrective instruction from the Commissioner.

I

Respondent filed a motion to dismiss at the close of petitioners' case, which was granted in part during a subsequent telephone conference; an order was entered on October 14, 1993 (attached). I elaborate on the points of the order here to provide the Commissioner with an opportunity for review. At that stage of the proceedings, petitioners' proofs were entitled to all reasonable inferences. R. 4:37-2; Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2, 5-6 (1969).

The Zanfini Letter

Mary Ellen Zanfini testified that as "room mother" coordinator she had access to confidential class lists for purposes of calling homes in case of bad weather. Sometime prior to the election, she picked up a copy of a letter in her mailbox at the school, purportedly written by her, which urged room mothers to contact parents on their call lists to convey the message "that the PTA Executive Board has voted to support the school budget this year, and we hope that you will too" (P-1). Ms.

Zanfini testified that she did not write the letter and does not know who did. There is no indication that this letter was actually distributed to school mothers or that any such telephone calls were made. Ms. Zanfini did not know whether any Board members, administrators or employees of the district were involved in writing this letter. In the absence of any prima facie evidence connecting the Board or its staff to this letter, this charge was dismissed.

Cheesequake Village Civic Association Presentation

On April 13, 1993, Dr. Andrew Korshalla, superintendent of schools, Dr. R. Gregory Quirk, assistant superintendent of schools, and Dr. George, assistant superintendent of schools, appeared at Cheesequake Village, a senior citizens community, to make a budget presentation. Kathleen A. Quick and Mitchel Geier, candidates for election, were in the audience. They testified that Dr. Quirk and Dr. George made substantive presentations, but Dr. Korshalla warned people that defeat of the budget would simply require an appeal to the Commissioner, with its attendant costs. Petitioners also allege that a flyer was produced in connection with this meeting urging support for the budget (P-2). Neither charge is supported. Dr. Quirk's certification indicates that the administrators who appeared that night received no additional compensation for their talks, and this is undisputed. The New Jersey Supreme Court in Citizens to Protect Public Funds v. Board of Educ. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 13 N.J. 172 (1953), concluded that it was improper for a board of education to expend public funds to promote its position on a referendum, because opponents of the question did not have access to such funds. Thus, while expenditures for advocacy are prohibited, advocacy is a legitimate part of the Board's annual effort to inform and persuade the public that it has acted wisely. Opponents are free to present a contrary position.

The flyer complained of states on its face that it was prepared by the Civic Action Committee of Cheesequake Village Civic Association; no connection to the Board was established.

The February 16, March 16 and March 23, 1993, Board Meetings

Petitioners allege that during the televised Board meeting of February 16, 1993, statements were made by Board members which constitute "candidate bashing." A videotape of this meeting was entered into evidence (P-9). This videotape shows a regular board meeting, at which general business was conducted.

A portion of the meeting was also given over to public comment and questions. Mr. Geier spoke during this segment, as did others. Toward the end of the meeting, a few Board members who were irked by some of the criticisms made during the public comment period suggested that these expressions were politically timed to be seen by the voters before the upcoming election. The public was reminded that the critics had not attended previous meetings, but that the Board had been diligently working on the District's problems throughout the year.

A review of the videotape reveals that the conduct complained of consumed a few minutes at the end of a long meeting. I would characterize this exchange as part of the give-and-take of electoral politics, and it was mild at that - no member of the public was even mentioned by name. Board meetings are videotaped as a matter of course, and anyone who wanted to speak had the opportunity.

The allegations with respect to the March 16 and 23, 1993, Board meetings were withdrawn by counsel prior to the commencement of respondent's case.

Bjonnes Harassment

Petitioners allege that one of Mr. Geier's challengers, Brenda Bjonnes, was harassed by an election worker. Ms. Bjonnes testified, however, that the incident did not occur while she was acting as a challenger, but while she was waiting to vote at the Voorhees School. She was talking and an election official yelled at her to be quiet. She does not know who the official was. There is no indication that Ms. Bjonnes was harassed in any way; it does appear that she was embarrassed. As it happens, chatter is discouraged at election polls and I am unaware of any rule that prohibits what occurred here.

Failure to Call Out Voter Names

Petitioners allege that election workers failed to call out the names of voters who presented themselves for purposes of voting. Assuming this to be true, petitioners have pointed to no authority which requires such announcement.

Respondent's position on the above charges was sustained, because petitioners failed to make a prima facie case. There was sufficient evidence to go forward on three allegations; the televised budget presentation prior to the election, the question of early voting at the Schirra School, and the alleged refusal to allow inspection of voting machines. Respondent made two additional arguments for dismissal in connection with these charges, which were rejected. It argued first that since petitioners do not seek to overturn the election, and their proofs do not support such a finding, the case is moot. Second, if petitioners felt that the videotape produced and aired by the Board in advance of the election violated the law, it should have sought to enjoin its use; failing that, they are barred from attacking it after the election. Kenilworth v. Raubinger, 15 N.J. 581, 590 (1954).

An inquiry into election irregularities seeks to determine whether violations occurred and if so, whether they affected the outcome. N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12. Findings concerning the former are independent of the latter. Traditionally, the Commissioner has used adverse findings concerning election irregularities as a vehicle for instruction and admonition. See, e.g., Matter of the Annual School Election, Town of Westfield, 1976 S.L.D. 425; Matter of the Annual School Election, Township of Hamilton, 1976 S.L.D. 444. That is all that petitioners are seeking.

The Kenilworth decision appears to support the theory that injunctive relief should be sought prior to an election, rather than waiting to undo the result. Surprisingly, I have seen no case in the forty years since Kenilworth that builds on this point. Be that as it may, however, this incident occurred close to the election, and the argument assumes that opponents were aware that the tape was being aired. Moreover, as petitioners are not attempting to overturn the result, the question is only whether an instruction is necessary on the point to prevent a reoccurence.

I

The Televised Budget Presentation

From April 16 through April 19, 1993, the Board televised a pre-recorded presentation by a panel consisting of Dr. Korshalla, Dr. Quirk, Board president David Nash, and chairman of the Budget Committee Michael Haggerty on the dedicated cable television channel 15, which serves Old Bridge Township. A copy of this presentation was entered into evidence, as was an edited version reflecting the areas where petitioners felt violations had occurred (P-7, P-8). The unedited tape is approximately forty minutes in length. There is a brief introduction followed by Dr. Quirk's presentation, which consumes the bulk of the program. Dr. Quirk acknowledged that he favored the budget and that his presentation was favorable, but at no time did he urge adoption of the budget and there was no political content in his message. At the end of Dr. Quirk's presentation, Mr. Nash, Mr. Haggerty and Dr. Korshalla summed up in a few minutes. The introductuory comments and summation were to the effect that the Board had worked hard to produce the budget, it had passed unanimously, it was a high accomplishment, and it should be passed.

Petitioners see these comments as converting the entire presentation into "propaganda" on behalf of the Board's position. Respondent believes that these comments were reserved, and consistent with its responsibility to present the budget and express some view on its content. It feels that the voters have a right to know where the Board stands. There is no question that the comments which offend here were reserved, brief and in no way derisive of the opposing point of view. The Board has an obligation to publicize the details of the budget and the videotape is one legitimate means to that end. Nevertheless, comments which urge passage of the question cross the line between factual presentation and advocacy, drawn by Citizens, supra, 13 N.J. 172. Recent decisions of the Commissioner tend to brighten this line. Schettino v. Ridgefied Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 224 (Education); Fenton v. Sullivan, 1991 S.L.D. 677, 682. The Board should be on notice that urging the public to vote affirmatively under circumstances where funds are expended is inconsistent with precedent.

Voting at the Schirra School

It is undisputed that four or five people were permitted to vote early at the Schirra School. Dr. Quirk testified that he has been involved in public education since 1974 and he administers elections on the Board's behalf. He testified that election personnel are appointed from a list provided by the County; they are not Board employees. Dr. Quirk testified that he instructs these poll workers in election procedure through a training program (R-2). Angela Smith was in charge of the Schirra School polling place and he instructed her as he did all poll workers that the polls were to open at 2:00 p.m. Dr. Quirk testified that he learned during the day that polls had been opened early at Schirra School and he went there to inquire why. Ms. Smith told him that a few people arrived early and indicated to her that they had elsewhere to go; initially she refused to open the polls earlier, but they persisted and she relented.

The polls were opened at least a few minutes early at the Schirra School contrary to instructions from Dr. Quirk. Thus, petitioners have established that an error occurred, but in the absence of any pattern of early openings, I cannot say that the Board failed in its obligation to instruct poll workers or to conduct the election in a fair and orderly way.

Refusal to Allow Mr. Geier's Challengers to Inspect Voting Machines

Dr. Quirk testified that he instructs poll workers to allow inspection of counters on the back of machines, and it is undisputed that candidates were informed that voting machines could be inspected prior to the election (R-3). There were some voting locations in which challengers were not permitted to look at counters upon request. When this was brought to Dr. Quirk's attention, he informed poll workers to allow it and challengers had an opportunity to inspect counters before the polls closed. There is no indication that this affected the vote count at all. More intensive instruction of poll workers may improve this situation in the future, but again I see this as isolated, and insufficient to warrant any strong admonition.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that petitioners' action be dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of these consolidated matters and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.*

Upon such review, the Commissioner affirms in part and modifies in part the findings and conclusions of the ALJ.

Initially, the Commissioner fully concurs with, and adopts as her own, the ALJ's analysis, findings and conclusions with respect to dismissal of petitioners' allegations regarding the "Zanfini" letter, the Cheesequake Village Civic Association Presentation and the Board meeting of February 16, 1993. The Commissioner further concurs, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, with the ALJ's determination not to dismiss this matter in its entirety because petitioners conceded at the outset that they sought not an invalidation of the results of the contested election, but rather a determination as to the propriety of alleged actions on the part of the Board and its agents.

*On December 28, 1993, attorney for petitioner requested an extension of time within which to file exceptions to the initial decision. However, in view of the fact that such requests must be made prior to expiration of the filing period for exception, which in this case was December 23, 1993 (13 calendar days from mailing of the initial decision on December 10, 1993) and in the absence of any emergency or other unforeseen circumstance to warrant waiver of deadline, this request was denied. N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.4, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

Moreover, with respect to petitioners' allegations regarding early opening of polls at the Schirra School and refusal to allow challengers to inspect machines prior to opening of polls, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, while errors clearly were made by poll workers, they appear to have been isolated incidents which occurred notwithstanding that the workers had been duly instructed by district staff as to proper procedures; therefore, remedies beyond admonition to the Board are unwarranted. Nonetheless, the Commissioner stresses that the Board must take special care to prevent a recurrence of such errors in future elections, both because they can potentially taint election outcomes and because, even where they do not, they can serve to undermine the integrity of the school election process and the confidence of citizens in it.

With respect to the televised budget presentation that serves as the center of petitioners' complaint, however, the Commissioner cannot fully concur with the ALJ's analysis and conclusions. Initially, the Commissioner notes upon review of the unedited tape that Assistant Superintendent Quirk's budget presentation does not consume the bulk of the approximately 40-minute program, nor is it merely preceded by a brief introduction and followed by a brief conclusion by the remainder of the panel. Rather, the "introduction" accounts for fully 20 minutes of the program, with three speakers spending about 5-6 minutes each addressing a distinct topic: a general introduction to school budgets (Superintendent Korshalla), a historical perspective on Old Bridge as it relates to development of the current budget (Board President Nash), an overview of the actual process used by the Board to develop the current budget (Finance Committee Chairman Haggerty) and concluding remarks by Dr. Korshalla. Then, following Dr. Quirk's presentation of approximately 10 minutes, each speaker is afforded a few minutes for concluding remarks.

The bulk of the content of the various speakers' presentations can, in isolation, fairly be characterized as an appropriate attempt to educate the public about the Board's budget and development of it, consistent with the principles enunciated in Citizens, supra. However, with the exception of Dr. Quirk, each of the speakers includes, in either his initial presentation or his concluding remarks, or both, a measured but direct exhortation to the viewing public to vote in favor of the budget. These comments, taken within the context of the very favorable approach embodied in the program overall and the strategic choice of its air time (daily for the four days preceding the election), are sufficient to color the character and general effect of the program in a way that pushes it, in the Commissioner's view, over the line that separates information from advocacy. Thus, notwithstanding that the Board televises its regular meetings and frequently uses the cable access station in Board matters, the fact remains that public funds were expended--albeit modestly and with no apparent ill intent--to produce a special program that had the effect, through inclusion of comments such as "Give us your vote of support and vote 'yes' on April 20th" (several times) and "We appeal to you to please vote for the budget," of advocating passage of the budget. This the Board cannot be permitted to do. (In so holding, the Commissioner notes the Board's argument that its presentation was far more reserved than the pamphlets at issue in Citizens, supra, and was not argumentative or accusatory as were the flyers in Schettino, supra; however, programs and materials need not rise to the level of "scare tactics" or disparagement of opposing views to nonetheless constitute public-funded advocacy under circumstances such as were present herein. See, for example, Barbara Burghardt v. Board of Education of the Township of Mahwah et al., Bergen County, decided November 29, 1993.)

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law except as modified above, and, as a consequence of said modification, cautions the Board and enjoins it from future expenditures of public funds in a manner that advocates, or has the effect of advocating, passage of the school budget. The Commissioner further directs that the Board make any necessary adjustment to the instruction and supervision of its poll workers in order to avoid repetition of the errors found herein with respect to opening of polls and inspection of voting machines. In all other respects, the petition is dismissed consistent with the findings and recommendations of the ALJ.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

		DECISION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teacher who retired from the position of English Teacher on an accidental disability pension but was later found fit by TPAF to return to employment, appealed Board's refusal to appoint her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 to vacancy in position of Librarian, which she held prior to her transfer to English Teacher and in which she had been tenured. Board contended petitioner had effectively resigned from district by voluntarily accepting disability pension, or alternatively, by accepting employment in another district following certification of ability to return to work by TPAF.

In light of Laing and Kopel, ALJ concluded petitioner effectively resigned and forfeited her tenure rights by accepting disability pension; Board, therefore, had no obligation to reemploy her notwithstanding provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner set aside initial decision, finding in light of Superior Court decisions in Allen and DiMuzio that N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 obliged district to reemploy petitioner when a vacancy arose in her former position, i.e., the position of English Teacher from which she actually retired. Any other offer of employment, including the Librarian position sought herein, is discretionary on the part of the Board. Commissioner remanded matter for findings and recommendations on question of whether Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to Librarian position was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

CHRISTINE BUBLIN,
Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Tanya Pushnack Friedman, Esq. and Richard A. Friedman, Esq., for petitioner, (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak, attorneys)

Daniel S. Popovitch, Esq., for respondent, (Popovitch & Popovitch, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 26, 1993 Decided: December 8, 1993

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner alleges that the Board of Education of the Borough of Point Pleasant (Board) violated her tenure and seniority rights when it failed to reemploy her, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 and, instead, employed two nontenured employees to positions to which she was entitled. The Board denies petitioner's allegations asserting, among other things, that petitioner resigned her tenured teaching position when she voluntarily accepted a disability pension by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) or, in the alternative, that she effectively resigned when she accepted employment with another board of education subsequent to the termination of her disability pension.

MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

The parties cross-moved to have the matter determined by way of summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Having determined that there are no genuine issues as to any material fact, I CONCLUDE that the matter meets the criteria for summary judgment, as established in Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1957), and, therefore, is ripe for summary decision.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal, as set forth in the Prehearing Order, are these:

1. Whether petitioner was entitled to placement in a vacant position by the Board when the position became available?
2. Whether petitioner resigned from the Board's employ when she received and accepted a disability retirement allowance issued by the Teachers Pension and Annuity System?
   a. If so, what affect does the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, have in this matter?
3. What affect, if any does petitioner's employment with another board of education between the period of separation from the Board and her claim for reinstatement?
4. Whether petitioner's application and/or claim for reinstatement with the Board was timely filed?

STIPULATION OF FACTS

Petitioner, Christine Bublin, was hired by the respondent Board in September of 1968 as a teaching staff member, and, at the time of this employment became enrolled in the TPAF. Petitioner received tenure as a teaching staff member in September of 1972. At all times while in the employ of the Board, petitioner was properly certified as a teacher of English and teacher-librarian by the State Department of Education. During the term of her employment, petitioner served first as an elementary school staff member under her teacher-librarian endorsement and thereafter, under the same endorsement in the high school, until June 30, 1981, when she was assigned to duties as an English teacher in the Board's high school.

Petitioner continued on active status until January 18, 1982, which was the last day petitioner reported for work. At that time, petitioner was acting in the capacity of an English teacher. After January 18, 1982, until she received her disability retirement, petitioner was absent from duty under Workers' Compensation.

By certification filed on September 14, 1982, the Board certified to the TPAF that petitioner was permanently and totally disabled. On September 14, 1982, petitioner certified to the TPAF that she was incapacitated for further service as a teacher. On October 21, 1982, petitioner's disability retirement was confirmed by the TPAF to be effective November 1, 1982, and, on appeal, petitioner was finally awarded an accidental disability retirement.

By letter dated March 12, 1991, the Board received notice from the State of New Jersey, Department of the Treasury, Division of Pensions, that the Board of Trustees of the Pension Fund had found that petitioner's disability had diminished to the point where she could resume her former duties as a teacher without restriction. Petitioner had also received a letter, dated March 11, 1991, advising that she was able to resume her duties as a teacher. (Exhibit B). At that time, there was no position available, either as an English teacher or as a teacher-librarian, and the Board neither contacted petitioner, nor did petitioner contact the Board of Education. Petitioner, however, accepted employment as a librarian with the South Amboy Board of Education beginning April 8, 1991, and sought reinstatement in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, which was granted. Petitioner was assigned a new TPAF number.

Since April 8, 1991, petitioner has remained in the employment of the South Amboy Board of Education, and has been offered a contract for the 1993-94 school year.

Thereafter, by letter dated April 13, 1992, petitioner applied for a position of elementary school librarian, which had become open in the Point Pleasant School system. By letter dated June 8, 1992 from the Board, petitioner was advised that she would not be hired for the position, and on August 14, 1992, petitioner filed this action, seeking the position of elementary school librarian for which she applied, together with other relief.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Introductory Statement

As set forth in the Stipulation of Facts, petitioner was employed as a teacher-librarian by the respondent Board from 1972 through June 1981. (Stipulation of Facts, p. 1-2). Effective September 1981, she was involuntarily transferred to the position of English teacher and taught in that position until January, 1982 when she retired under an ordinary disability retirement allowance. (Stipulations of Facts, p.2) On or about March, 1991, the Board of Trustees, Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) certified that petitioner had recovered to the extent where she could resume her former duties without restriction. The TPAF ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner to her former duty or any comparable duty. (Stipulation of Facts, Exhibit A). In that letter, the TPAF advised the Point Pleasant Board of Education that if it disagreed with the determination, it could appeal the decision. The Board did not file an appeal of the TPAF's decision and therefore, the TPAF's determination became final. At that time, no position was available with the Board for which petitioner was qualified.

By April, 1992, the position of elementary school librarian, in which petitioner had previously served for nine years, became available in the Board's school district. Petitioner applied for this position but was denied appointment. (Stipulation of Facts, p.3). Petitioner then filed a timely petition of appeal seeking the position of elementary school librarian together with other relief.

The issue in this matter is whether petitioner is entitled to the position of elementary school librarian pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, and should have been appointed to that position when it became vacant in April, 1992.

POINT I

PETITIONER IS ENTITLED TO BE REINSTATED AS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL LIBRARIAN AS OF APRIL 13, 1992, REGARDLESS OF THE POSITION IN WHICH SHE LAST SERVED.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, if a retiree under ordinary disability recovers, he must be reinstated to his former duty or other comparable duty which his employer is willing to assign him. N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a). The plain language of the statute provides as follows:

> If the report of the medical board shall show that such beneficiary is able to perform either his former duty or other comparable duty which his former employer is willing to assign him, the beneficiary shall report for duty .... N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a).

There is nothing in the statute which limits the "former duty" to the last duty performed. Petitioner was employed as a teacher-librarian with respondent school district for over nine years. Thus, petitioner is entitled to be reinstated to the position of teacher-librarian and the court should reject any attempt by the Board to add conditions or limitations to the statute.

This conclusion is also required by the Appellate Division's decision in Board of Police Commissioners, City of East Orange v. PFRS, DiMuzio, (App. Div. Docket No. A-2629-87T8, unpubl. op. May 18, 1989). There, a former East Orange police officer who had been retired on an accidental disability allowance under the Police and Firemen's Retirement System (PFRS) statute, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8, et seq.[1], recovered from his disability and sought reinstatement to his former position. The Board of Trustees of PFRS, as the TPAF in this matter, ordered the officer reinstated to his former position. The City of East Orange refused to reappoint him and claimed that it had the authority and discretion to deny reappointment, depending on its own budgetary needs.

[1] The language of the PFRS statute, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8(2), which governs an employee's return to work after recovering from a disability, is substantially similar to the TPAF statute at issue, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a).

In affirming the pension board's decision that DiMuzio should be returned to work, the Court determined that the PFRS statute required the municipality to reinstate DiMuzio to his former position of lieutenant, if a vacancy existed. Significantly, the Court also found that if there was no vacancy at the former level, the City was required to appoint him to any other available duty. (emphasis added). As to the City's argument that it had the discretion to deny the officer reinstatement to another available duty, the Court concluded that the thrust of the pension statute:

> is to reemploy an able-bodied police officer, not to waste pension funds, and we, therefore, interpret this provision to mean that East Orange may not arbitrarily refuse to assign DiMuzio to the next level of available vacancy for which he is eligible, nor may it defer action until he is no longer eligible. City of East Orange, unpub. op. at p. 9

Recently, the Appellate Division affirmed this rule, that a public employee who has recovered from a disability is entitled to reinstatement to his former position or any available position, In the Matter of John J. Allen, 262 N.J. Super. 438 (App. Div. 1993). Allen was a police sergeant with Hazlet Township who retired under an ordinary disability allowance from the PFRS. A year later, the PFRS board determined that he was fit for reemployment. The Township returned Allen to duty as a police officer, rather than a sergeant, and refused to grant him seniority for his prior service, or any guarantee of future employment.

The Merit System Board found that the Township should have reemployed Allen when two police officer positions became vacant. 262 N.J. Super. at 442. Citing the PFRS statute, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8(2), the Board also found that Allen should be reappointed to the position of sergeant when the next vacancy occurred. In reviewing the agency's determination, the Appellate Division found that by implication, the PFRS statute mandates that a recovered employee be returned to his former position, along with the cumulation of prior service. 262 N.J. Super. at 444-445.

The PFRS statute which governs restoration to active service mirrors the TPAF statute, in that it provides that a member shall return to work "if the report of the medical board shall show that such beneficiary is able to perform either his former duty or any other available duty. ... which his employer is willing to assign him" N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8(2). As the PFRS statute and TPAF statute serve the same purpose and contain substantially the same language, it logically follows that the rationale of DiMuzio and Allen apply equally to this matter.

Thus, pursuant to DiMuzio and Allen, petitioner herein is entitled to reinstatement to her last position, i.e., English teacher, if a vacancy exists. If no vacancy exists, then she must be appointed to the next available duty for which she is qualified, that of elementary school librarian. Accordingly, the Board's claim that petitioner's last position, English teacher, was unavailable is irrelevant, for the case law and statute require the employer to appoint her to the next available position. Here, it is undisputed that at the time petitioner was deemed able to return to her employment, there was no open English teacher position. It is likewise undisputed that the next available position for which petitioner was qualified was the elementary school librarian position, which opened in April, 1992. Accordingly, petitioner should be reinstated to the position of elementary school librarian, retroactive to the date the position became available.

Moreover, petitioner's tenure in the position of teacher-librarian further entitles her to the position. As set forth in the Stipulation of Facts, petitioner is certified as a teacher of English and a teacher-librarian. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, a teacher becomes tenured in a position after serving three years and one day. Petitioner served over nine years under the teacher-librarian endorsement, became tenured in that position and is entitled to be reinstated to the position of librarian. As the Commissioner and State Board of Education have repeatedly ruled, tenure is achieved within a position and tenure protection extends to all assignments within that tenured position. Wallen v. Rancocas, Com. of Ed. (Oct. 27, 1992); Howley v. Ewing Twp. 1982 S.L.D. 1328, aff'd., St. Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. 1554; Kish v. Bor. of Elmwood Pk., St. Bd. of Ed. (May 6, 1992).

By contrast, petitioner served only six months as an English teacher, and therefore, is not tenured as an English teacher. Accordingly, petitioner is entitled to the protection of the tenure statutes N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., for her position as a teacher-librarian, but would not be able to claim tenure in the position of English teacher. Moreover, petitioner's tenure as a teacher-librarian was never revoked or lost, as the laws do not provide that a person's tenure is revoked upon retirement. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Indeed, the Appellate Division in Allen recognized that a public employee returning from retirement is entitled to credit for his or her prior service. Thus, petitioner's tenure and former service in the position of teacher-librarian entitle her to be appointed to that position over a nontenured employee.

For these reasons, petitioner is entitled to be restored to the position of elementary school librarian retroactive to the date the position became vacant.

POINT II

THAT THERE WAS NO POSITION VACANT AT THE TIME MS. BUBLIN WAS ABLE TO RETURN TO SERVICE DOES NOT PRECLUDE HER APPOINTMENT TO THE NEXT AVAILABLE POSITION

The respondent Board may argue that because there was no position available at the time petitioner was certified as medically fit for reemployment, the Board was not required to appoint her to the next available position. This argument is untenable, is not supported by the pension statute, and contravenes the public policy established in DiMuzio.

First, the TPAF statute does not prescribe any time limit for restoring a member to his duty. N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40. To the contrary, the statute states that "beneficiary shall not suffer any loss of benefits while he awaits his restoration to active service." N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a), 3d. para. Thus, the plain language of the statute clearly states that the return to service does not have to be contemporaneous with the time the member is first able to return to service.

Moreover, in DiMuzio, the Court implied that if no vacancy exists at the time of recovery, the public employer must return the member to the next available duty - whenever it occurs. DiMuzio, unpub. op. at p. 9. As the Court also emphasized, the thrust of the pension statute is to reemploy an able-bodied employee, not to waste pension funds. DiMuzio, unpub. op. at p. 9. If the Board's position was correct, and an employee loses her recall rights if there is no position immediately available, then public employees would be encouraged not to seek work, to remain on retirement thereby depleting the pension fund and jeopardizing the members who rightfully deserve it. The Board's argument would completely subvert the purpose underlying the pension statutes, which is to induce able person to enter and remain in public service and to render faithful and continued service. Geller v. Dept. of Treasury, 53 N.J. 597 (1969).

In addition, petitioner's claim is supported, by analogy, by the tenure statutes. Pursuant to the tenure laws, an employee who has been terminated pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF) is placed on a recall list for reemployment and is to be reemployed whenever a vacancy occurs. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. See Mirandi v. West Orange B.O.E., St. Bd. of Ed., April 5, 1989. In Mirandi, a tenured assistant high school principal was terminated and assigned to a teaching position. When a principalship opened two years later, the petitioner applied but was rejected in favor of a person from outside the district. The State Board of Education found that when a teaching staff member is riffed, he has the right to employment in a position within the scope of his tenured position over an nontenured employee. More importantly, the State Board concluded that the teacher's recall rights prevail even if the vacancy occurred not at the time of the termination, but two years later. Thus, the State Board ruled that Mirandi's tenure status entitled him to the principal position, regardless of when the vacancy occurred.

Here, the pension statute should be liberally construed to effectuate its purpose, which is to induce able-bodied persons to remain in public service. Geller, 53 N.J. at 598. Thus, the fact that a vacancy did not exist in April, 1991, when petitioner recovered, does not mean that she loses her right to be reinstated or recalled to her former position. The timing of the vacancy is irrelevant, for the statute and case law mandate that a teacher is to be reinstated to her duty as soon as a position becomes available. DiMuzio; Allen, supra.

To the extent the Board may argue that her acceptance of alternate employment terminated petitioner's recall rights, the Board is incorrect. Nothing in the statute suggests that acceptance of employment in another school district while awaiting reinstatement constitutes a waiver or abandonment of the member's recall rights to her former position. On the contrary, any such rule must be rejected because nothing in the statute supports that position. N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a). Second, any such policy would encourage employees to receive unnecessary pension benefits, which would contravene the public policy underlying pension statutes. Third, the respondent can point to no harm or prejudice by allowing petitioner to work in another school district until a position became available in the Board's school district. If anything, by accepting other employment and removing herself from the pension rolls, petitioner was mitigating her damages, and by doing so, furthering the purpose of the pension statute.

For these reasons, petitioner's motion for summary decision should be granted and she must be reinstated to the position of elementary school librarian retroactive to April 1992, together with back pay, benefits and all other emoluments of employment.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

Statement of Facts

Respondent will rely upon the Stipulation of Facts agreed to by the parties.

POINT I

THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION HAS CONSISTENTLY HELD THAT RETIREMENT IS TANTAMOUNT TO RESIGNATION

In a series of decisions reaching back to 1977, the State Board of Education has held that retirement, for any reason, constitutes a resignation. The first reported decision was in the matter of Laing v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, 1977 S.L.D. 422, which was subsequently affirmed by an unreported Appellate Division opinion. In that particular case, the petitioner was a tenured teacher, who applied to the TPAF for accidental disability retirement to be effective on September 1, 1973. Subsequently, the Board of Education approved petitioner's application for a retirement. When the TPAF denied petitioner's request for an accidental disability retirement, and instead retired her on an ordinary disability retirement, petitioner sought to have the TPAF rescind the determination on her retirement, and in fact, the TPAF thereafter reinstated her. The Commissioner, in affirming the hearing examiner's report held:

> This act [the application for retirement to the TPAF] terminated her employment just as effectively as the acceptance of a letter of resignation would have done. Petitioner clearly intended to terminate her employment and she did so. 1977 S.L.D. at 426.

That decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division in an unreported opinion which appears at 1978, S.L.D. 1025. The Court there held:

> Petitioner's status as a terminated employee of the Edison Township Board of Education was not altered by the action of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund in rescinding her retirement. The Fund, and the Board of Education, are separate and independent agencies. (cases cited) (at p. 1026 of the Appellate Division Laing decision in appendix A).

Thereafter, in the matter of the School District of the City of Newark v. Rosalind Kopel, 1982 S.L.D. 17, which was affirmed by the Commissioner, in part relying upon Laing, it was held that respondent's application for retirement and acceptance of the respondent's application for retirement terminated her employment as effectively as if she had submitted a letter of resignation. More importantly, in that case respondent raised the issue present here regarding the interpretation and applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a). The Administrative Law Judge therein, the Honorable August E. Thomas, found, under the statute governing disability retirement, that it was entirely discretionary with the Board whether to rehire respondent or not.

Finally, in the last decision involving a school employee, Young v. Board of Education of the City of West Orange, 1987 S.L.D. 69, affirmed by the Commissioner and the State Board on September 4, 1987, the Administrative Law Judge, Honorable Elinor R. Reiner, addressed the issue of a retirement terminating petitioner's employment. The Court again held that retirement constitutes a resignation and relinquishment of tenure and seniority rights.

The State Board of Education has general jurisdiction of all educational matters within the State of New Jersey. The respondent Board would certainly have the right to rely upon the state of the law, as it existed in 1991, when it received notice from the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund that petitioner was found to be able to return to her former duties as a teacher. Instead of approving her disability retirement, the Board could have sought her dismissal for incapacity under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 or her resignation. The Board relied, however, upon petitioner's application for retirement as being effectively a resignation, and chose to approve the same on that basis. The recent Appellate Division case, In the Matter of John J. Allen, 62 N.J. Super. 438 (App. Div. 1993) is readily distinguishable. In that case, Allen, a police sergeant who had been retired from active duty on an accidental disability pension, upon being certified by the Policemen and Firemen Retirement System as medically fit for reemployment, immediately sought return to the Hazlet Township Police force, at his prior position, and with his former seniority. The Court there held that, under those circumstances, Allen was entitled to be reinstated. In this case, petitioner never even contacted the Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education to find out if any positions were available, and, instead, accepted employment with the Board of Education of South Amboy as a teaching staff member, where she has remained employed to the present time. Petitioner was even assigned a new number in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. There is nothing to indicated that petitioner lost the benefit of her prior years of experience as a teacher by accepting employment in South Amboy.

The unreported Appellate Division decision in Board of Police Commissioners, City of East Orange v. Board of Trustees, Police and Firemen's Retirement System and Anthony DiMuzio, (Docket No. A-2629-87TS, decided May 18, 1989) is also distinguishable for the same reason the Allen decision is distinguishable. In that case, also involving a police officer, the defendant DiMuzio, upon being certified as available to return to active duty, immediately sought reinstatement with his former employer. The Court held that since DiMuzio had been a lieutenant at the time of his disability retirement, then he should be returned to a lieutenant's position if one were available, and otherwise return to active duty police work.

Such a result may be workable in a situation involving a police officer, but ignores the requirement for certification applicable to teachers. If, as petitioner now apparently contends, she is entitled to her former seniority, then that seniority would have attached upon the certification by the TPAF that she was able to return to work. Followed to its logical conclusion, if petitioner then enjoyed her former seniority with the respondent, Board of Education, she would have been entitled to assert a claim upon a position for which she was certified held by a teaching staff member with less seniority. Instead, petitioner chose her present employment in South Amboy.

In the East Orange case, the Court noted that the thrust of the statute, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8, similar to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, was to reemploy an able-bodied police officer and not to waste pension funds. Certainly, that is not the situation that exists here. In fact, petitioner became employed less than one month after the date of her notice from the TPAF that she was physically able to return to work, remains employed, and will gain tenure in the South Amboy school system on April 9, 1994.

BY HER APPLICATION FOR RETIREMENT, AND SUBSEQUENT ACCEPTANCE OF ANOTHER POSITION PETITIONER LOST ALL TENURE RIGHTS

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:66-39, before the granting of a disability retirement, either ordinary or accidental, a physician designated by the Board must certify that a teacher is physically or mentally incapacitated for the performance of duty. In fact, on September 14, 1982, petitioner certified to the TPAF that she was incapacitated for further service as a teacher. Thus, if read in para materia, the statutes themselves lead to the inescapable conclusion that a retirement is equivalent to a resignation and loss of tenure status. Thus, even if petitioner had sought reemployment, she would have returned as a nontenured teacher, since her admitted physical incapacity in September of 1982 constituted sufficient grounds for loss of tenure. Even if petitioner were now to return to a position with the respondent Board, she would do so as a nontenured teacher, and the Board could not be compelled to retain her in her position.

While a police officer enjoys protection under civil service in his job, after a brief probationary period, the concept of tenure is unique to the educational system. The right of tenure is earned only after three years as a teaching staff member in a particular school system. When a teacher leaves to take a position in another system, tenure does not follow that teacher. By her acceptance of other employment, petitioner lost her rights to tenure in the Point Pleasant Borough school system.

PETITIONER'S APPEAL IS UNTIMELY AND BARRED BY N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 requires that an appeal from a decision of a Board of Education be filed within 90 days of the date of such decision. If petitioner's logic is followed to its ultimate conclusion, she is, in effect, claiming that she was entitled to a position with the respondent Board of Education upon the TPAF certifying that she was physically capable of returning to work, and its directive to the Board as contained in its letter of March 12, 1991. It is undisputed that the Board did not offer any position to the petitioner at that time or any other time.

If petitioner's rights came into being with the March 12, 1991, letter, then her petition should have been filed by June 11, 1991. Instead, petitioner's appeal is dated August 12, 1992, more than one year later. Her petition is substantially out of time, and she has not shown the requisite good cause for an extension of time limit on filing an appeal.

In essence, if anything, it was the Board's inaction in 1991 that gives rise to any color of rights in the petitioner, and not the subsequent vacancy and application by petitioner in 1992. Further, it can well be argued that her failure to even contact the Board about a position, and her acceptance of a position with the South Amboy Board of Education, works an estoppel against petitioner's untimely claim.

The Board, therefore, argues that petitioner's appeal be denied and that summary decision be entered on its behalf.

PETITIONER'S REPLY

First, to the extent the Board argues that a retirement terminates petitioner's rights to reemployment upon recovery from a disability, respondent is wrong. Respondent argues that pursuant to Laing v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, 1977 S.L.D. 422, a retirement constitutes a resignation. Petitioner does not contest the general holding of Laing; i.e., that a retirement constitutes a resignation. However, the analysis of Laing must be reviewed in the context in which the case was brought. There, the petitioner had retired on an ordinary disability retirement, changed her mind and sought to have the TPAF rescind her retirement. Once the TPAF rescinded her retirement, the teacher sought reinstatement to her former position. The Commissioner held and the Appellate Division affirmed that the TPAF's action in rescinding the petitioner's retirement had no effect on the board of education and therefore, the teacher had no right to receive her job back.

Laing had nothing to do with recall rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a). Laing simply involved the case of a teacher who retired, changed her mind and then sought reinstatement. There, the petitioner did not and could not have sought reinstatement pursuant to the recall statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a), because the TPAF did not certify her as able to return to work. The recall statute requires that if the medical board certifies that the employee is able to return to his duty, the member shall report for duty. Accordingly, for purposes of the recall statute, a retirement is not equivalent to a resignation. The petitioner in Laing could not rely on the recall statute in her claim for reinstatement to her former position. Here, petitioner Bublin retired on an accidental disability retirement, was certified to return to duty by the TPAF and therefore, was entitled to return to her former position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a).

Indeed, the Board's position, that a retirement is a resignation which means that you have absolutely no right to reemployment, is illogical and in fact, vitiates the disability recall statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 (a). The statute was clearly adopted to address the specific instance where a member is retired due to medical disability and later recovers to the point where she is able to return to work. As set forth in the petitioner's initial brief, the statute requires the employer to reinstate the employee to his or her former position or comparable duty.

In addition, respondent's position would reverse the Appellate Division precedent as established in Board of Police Commissioners, City of East Orange v. PFRS, DiMuzio, (App. Div. Docket No. A-2629-87T8), unpub. May 18, 1989 and In the Matter of John J. Allen, 262 N.J. Super. 438 (App. Div. 1993), both which held that a public employer lacks the discretion to deny reinstatement and must return a recovered employee to his former position. To the extent the respondent argues that City of Newark v. Kopel, 1982 S.L.D. 17, grants an employer the discretion to rehire and employee or not, Kopel, is inconsistent with both DiMuzio and Allen. In DiMuzio and Allen, the Appellate Division reviewed pension statutes identical to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a) and found that when a public employee recovers from a disability, his employer is required to appoint him to his former duty or any other available duty. Thus, to the extent the Commissioner in Kopel found that N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a) allows a board of education the discretion to deny reappointment to a recovered employee, Kopel is no longer good law.

Respondent's position, that retirement is equal to a resignation, is likewise inconsistent with the pension fund's decision in Township of Dover v. Bd. of Trustees, Public Employees' Retirement System, (PERS), 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* 83 (1992), where PERS found that there is a difference between a voluntary resignation and a retirement and recall rights. Reviewing the PERS statute, N.J.S.A. 43:15A-44 (a), which is similar to the TPAF recall statute at issue here, the agency concluded that a teacher who had retired from his employment three months before filing for a disability pension was not entitled to the protection of the recall statute. In distinguishing the facts from the situation in DiMuzio, supra. PERS stated "where an individual chooses to sever his employee status with an employer prior to even applying for a disability benefit" he has no "former employer" with whom he can seek reinstatement. 92 N.J.A.R. 2d. at 85. Accordingly, when the member recovered from his disability, the agency found that his employer had no duty to reinstate him under the disability recall statute because he had severed his employer/employee relationship prior to applying for disability. In this case, petitioner never resigned, but rather, retired on an accidental disability retirement allowance, and therefore, the rationale of DiMuzio applies and her employer has the duty to reinstate her.

The Board further argues that petitioner's Petitioner of Appeal was untimely. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) provides that a petition of appeal must be filed no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order ruling or other action by the district board of education ... which is the subject of the appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:25-1.2 (c). The Board argues that the 90 day time limit runs from the date of the TPAF's letter notifying the Board of Education that petitioner was able to return to work, that is March 12, 1991. Such an argument is ridiculous, for there was no vacancy at that time, and no decision or final order by the Board which petitioner could appeal. Petitioner's cause of action did not accrue and could not accrue until a position opened, and the Board notified her that she would not be appointed to the position.

In addition, as established in DiMuzio and Allen, supra., the disability recall statutes contemplate that a vacancy may not exist at the time the member recovers from his or her disability. Accordingly, the only logical reading of the TPAF statute in conjunction with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c), is that petitioner's recall rights did not arise until there was an open position and the Board refused to appoint her to that position. See Kaprow v. Board of Ed., Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572 (1003) where the Court found that the 90 day time period for filing an appeal runs from the time that the employee is denied reinstatement to a position and each vacancy is a new cause of action. It is undisputed that there was no vacancy in the Point Pleasant school district for which petitioner was qualified until April of 1992 and the Board denied her the position of elementary school librarian on June 8, 1992.

Thus, petitioner's cause of action did not accrue until June 8, 1992, the time she was notified that she would not be appointed to the teacher-librarian position. Ms. Bublin's Petition of Appeal was filed on August 13, 1992, well within the 90 day time frame and accordingly, her appeal is timely.

For these reasons, summary decision should be granted in favor of petitioner and an order should be entered reinstating her to the position of elementary school librarian retroactive to April, 1992, together with full back pay and other benefits and rights of employment.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The stipulated facts in this matter demonstrate that petitioner was granted an accidental disability retirement by the TPAF. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, petitioner was subject to periodic medical examinations by TPAF physicians to determine whether the disability which existed at the time of retirement continued, vanished, or materially diminished. The statute N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, continues to state in part, that:

> ... If the report of the medical board shall show that such beneficiary is able to perform either his former duty or other comparable duty which his former employer is willing to assign him, the beneficiary shall report for duty; such a beneficiary while he awaits his restoration to active service.

In the instant matter, it was petitioner who initiated the medical examinations and requested of the Board of Trustees of the TPAF that her accidental disability retirement benefits be terminated and that she be reinstated to the TPAF rolls. Following its review of medical documentation provided by petitioner, the Board of Trustees assigned an independent physician to examine petitioner and her medical documents. The independent physician submitted a report to TPAF, which was reviewed by the State Medical Panel. The Board of Trustees of TPAF then found that petitioner's disability had disappeared or substantially diminished to the point that petitioner was able to resume her former duties of a teacher without restriction. The TPAF Board of Trustees then ordered the Point Pleasant Borough Board of Education, by way of letter dated March 12, 1991, to reinstate petitioner to her former duty or any other comparable duty.

The Board did not respond to the TPAF letter dated March 12, 1991. Nor did petitioner contact the Board to express an interest in or advise the Board she was able to return to duty. Had petitioner done so, the Board would have had the opportunity of requesting its independent medical evaluation of petitioner. Rather, petitioner accepted employment with the Board of Education of the City of South Amboy commencing April 8, 1991, less than 30 days from receipt of the TPAF letter dated March 12, 1991. Petitioner remains in the employ of the South Amboy Board.

The issue presented by this matter has clearly been disposed of by the Commissioner and the Courts in the matter of Laing, supra. The Honorable August E. Thomas summarized the Laing case in Kopel, supra., where he observed that:

> Her reinstatement in TPAF gave rise to the issue of whether the Board was obligated to reinstate the petitioner to a position as a teacher, or whether her retirement, which was effectuated by the TPAF, permanently terminated her employment irrespective of the later decision by TPAF to rescind its earlier determination. The Commissioner determined that the petitioner forfeited her tenure entitlement because of her retirement, and that the determination by the TPAF to reinstate her in its pension fund did not automatically compel the Board to reinstate her as a teacher. 1977 S.L.D. at 426. This decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education. The Commissioner found that there was no distinction between the Board's approval of the petitioner's application for retirement and a letter of resignation. 1977 S.L.D. at 426.
> Petitioner submitted her application for retirement to the TPAF and made this fact known to the Superintendent on September 4, 1973. The Board considered this a fait accompli and approved her retirement from the Edison school district. This act terminated her employment just as effectively as the acceptance of a letter of resignation would have done. Ibid.
> The Commissioner's decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division, 1978 S.L.D. 1025. (1982 S.L.D. 20)

Judge Thomas continued to observe that case law hold that the State Department of Education and the Board of Trustees of the TPAF are independent and separate agencies. Any determination by the TPAF that a teacher is capable of returning to duty after accepting retirement cannot affect the prior determination by a board of education to accept the teacher's retirement and resignation. Judge Thomas cites the words of the Appellate bench in Laing where it said:

> Petitioner's status as a terminated employee of the Edison Board of Education was not altered by the action of the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund in rescinding her retirement. The Fund and the Board of Education are separate and independent agencies. In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 33 (App. Div. 1974); Swan v. Bd. of Trustees of Teachers' Pension Fund, 85 N.J. Super. 226, 232 (App. Div. 1964). They function within unrelated areas of responsibility and the determination of the Fund could not effect consequences of policy lying within the authority of the Board of Education. 1977 S.L.D. at 1026. (1982 S.L.D. 21)

The Kopel case further observes that N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40 makes it entirely discretionary for the Board to determine whether or not to rehire a retired employee. Judge Thomas properly observes:

> Policy considerations also support this determination. The Board must be able to plan and determine the size and status of its work force in order to operate effectively and efficiently. 1982 S.L.D. 22

Based upon the Commissioner's holding in Laing, and as affirmed by the Appellate Division of Superior Court, I CONCLUDE that petitioner herein effectively resigned her position when she accepted accidental disability retirement from the TPAF on or about January 18, 1982, and forfeited her tenure rights.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has no entitlement to any position with the Board.

I CONCLUDE that the Board may, in its discretion, consider petitioner for employment if and when she presents herself for a teaching position for which she is qualified and certified.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that pursuant to the holding in Kaprow, supra. petitioner's Petition of Appeal as timely filed.

Having arrived at such conclusions, it is not necessary to address the issue of the affect of petitioner's employment with another board of education subsequent to the termination of her disability retirement.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the herein Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

CHRISTINE BUBLIN,	:
		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:
		DECISION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF POINT PLEASANT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

In her exceptions, petitioner references her briefs before the ALJ, which, the Commissioner notes, are well summarized in the initial decision. Petitioner further argues that Laing, supra, was wrongly relied upon by the ALJ to conclude that retirement on an accidental disability pension constituted a resignation and forfeiture of tenure rights on petitioner's part. Laing, petitioner argues, is distinguishable from the circumstances herein in that Laing was not seeking reinstatement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40(a) after being certified by the pension system ("TPAF") as recovered and able to return to work; this case, in contrast, turns precisely on petitioner's rights under that statute, and the ALJ ignored the Appellate Division decisions (DiMuzio, supra, and Allen, supra) specifically addressing this issue and standing for the proposition that disability retirement cannot be viewed as a resignation so as to vitiate an able-bodied employee's statutory reinstatement rights. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at pp. 1-5)

Petitioner also argues that, to the extent that the ALJ's decision implies that petitioner had an obligation to present herself to the Board for employment in order to dispute a failure to reinstate her, nothing in statute imposes such a requirement and the Board was clearly on notice by TPAF (Stipulation of Facts, Exhibit A) that it was obliged to reemploy her or keep her on a preferred reemployment list if no position was then available. The Board neither acted on nor appealed TPAF's order, choosing instead to simply ignore it; this lack of action on the Board's part cannot now be used as a basis to deny petitioner her rights. Neither can the Board rely on claims of disruption to district staffing patterns or employees, as the position sought by petitioner was vacant. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at pp. 5-6)

Upon review of the record and consideration of the arguments raised, the Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ that Laing, supra, and Kopel, supra, dispose of the central issue of this matter so as to end the inquiry into petitioner's claimed entitlement.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that Laing does indeed stand for the general proposition that retirement constitutes a resignation from the district of employment, and that action by

TPAF to rescind such retirement does not necessarily obligate a district to reinstate a retired employee. Following this reasoning when turning to the specific question of a disabled employee's entitlement to reemployment under N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, the Commissioner in Kopel interpreted that statute to make reinstatement by the former employer following a determination of fitness by the TPAF medical board optional rather than mandatory. However, in the wake of subsequent Court decisions (DiMuzio, supra, and Allen, supra), this interpretation can no longer be held valid. To the contrary, in interpreting language substantially identical to that of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, the Court explicitly stated that > Although the statute does not expressly compel the appointing authority to restore the employee to his former position, the [Police and Fireman's Retirement System] Board's construction of N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8(2) is fully consonant with the legislative purpose. It is apparent that the grant of disability retirement is conditioned on the continuation of the incapacity. If the retired employee regains the ability to perform his or her duties, the Legislature mandated that he or she be returned to the former position. The Legislature clearly recognized that individuals returning from a disability retirement are in a unique situation, plainly different from all other employees returning to active service. Their separation from employment is unlike the voluntary separation of other civil servants whose seniority is not aggregated. In our view, N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8(2) contemplates that a restoration to employment return the formerly disabled individual as nearly as possible to the status held at the time he or she was pensioned. (Allen, supra, at 444)

Thus, the Commissioner can reach no other conclusion but that upon TPAF's determining that a disabled retiree is able to return to work, that retiree has a right to return to his or her former position. That right, however, is not unfettered, as noted by the Court in DiMuzio:

> We recognize that N.J.S.A. 43:16A-8 does not require that an additional slot be created if there are no existing vacancies at the former duty level, nor does it require that incumbents be "bumped" to make room. The PFRS order does not so require, nor do we. If a vacancy at the former level, i.e., lieutenant, then existed the order (and the statute) requires that DiMuzio be there placed. If not, he should be returned to "any other available duty" to which the Department "is willing to assign him." (DiMuzio, supra, slip opinion at p. 9)

Thus, in the case of petitioner, the threshold questions to be resolved are what constitutes petitioner's "former duty," that is, whether her statutory entitlement is limited to a vacancy in the position of Teacher of English (the position from which she retired) or extends to her prior position of Teacher-Librarian; and what is the effect, if any, of her acceptance and retention of employment in another district.

In the latter regard, given that there was no vacancy in the respondent school district in any position arguably appropriate for petitioner until the opening of the Teacher-Librarian vacancy disputed herein, the Commissioner finds that petitioner cannot be faulted, let alone found to have waived her cause of action or entitlement to reemployment, as a result of accepting a position elsewhere in the interim. To the contrary, such action served the public interest in its return of a formerly pensioned employee to productive service, and there is nothing in controlling statute that appears to contemplate termination of either employee rights or employer obligation by virtue of alternative employment pending availability of an employee's former position. Neither does the Commissioner find this conclusion to be altered by petitioner's "failure" to contact the district, both because she did so at the first available opening and because the statutory scheme (as well as the TPAF letter orders effectuating it, Stipulation of Facts, Exhibits A and B) clearly envisions the initial impetus for reemployment to be the responsibility of the former employer.

In the former regard, the question of the duty to which petitioner is entitled, the Commissioner here interprets the controlling statute and the case law arising from analogous statutes in other public pension systems to contemplate a mandatory return to the duties and status held by a disabled retiree at the time of his or her retirement, when those duties are available, with return to other duties in the absence of a vacancy in the former position being solely at the discretion of the employing board. Where, as herein, a returning retiree whose former position is not vacant seeks appointment to duties other than those held at the time of retirement, a board "may not arbitrarily refuse" such assignment, but may do so on a reasonable basis. DiMuzio, supra, slip opinion at p. 9.

Thus, as petitioner's statutory entitlement in this matter is to the position of Teacher of English, in which there is undisputedly no vacancy at present, the instant claim must be decided based upon whether the Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to her prior position of Teacher-Librarian was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Because the present record, developed in response to other issues, will not permit such a determination, a remand is necessary for further argument and factfinding to this end.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is reversed and remanded for finding and recommendation as to whether the Board's refusal to appoint petitioner to the position of Teacher-Librarian was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BONNIE SPEARMAN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY

Carolyn Ryan Reed, Esq., Associate Counsel, for petitioner Newark Board of Education
(Marvin L. Comick, General Counsel)

John L. Schettino, Esq., for respondent
(Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 8, 1993 Decided: December 14, 1993

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This teacher tenure case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on June 25, 1993 and involves certified charges against respondent of inefficiency and unbecoming conduct. The inefficiency charge related that respondent had demonstrated various inadequacies while a teaching staff member since 1986 and had not corrected the same despite having been afforded an opportunity to do so. The unbecoming conduct count alleged that respondent had, among other things, inappropriately disciplined her students by the use of corporal punishment on November 28, 1989 and June 15, 1990

Following transmittal of the case to the Office of Administrative Law I communicated with counsel and conducted a settlement conference. At that time, early August 1993, counsel advised that they were negotiating a settlement and hoped to reach agreement in the near future. Thereafter, in late August 1993, a second case involving the parties was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law involving an appeal by Spearman from the withholding of her 1992-93 increments. The transmittal from the Department in that case (OAL Docket No. EDU 8096-93) recommended that the case be consolidated with the pending tenure matter.

Recently, a stipulation of settlement was submitted to me for review. That document, which contains the signatures of the attorneys and the respondent, reveals that the parties have agreed to resolve the two matters in the following fashion. Spearman will immediately upon acceptance of the settlement resign her employment as a tenured teacher and will withdraw her appeals from the Board's withholding of her 1991-92 and 1992-93 increments. The Board will withdraw the tenure charges and restore to Spearman the salary which was withheld during her 120-day suspension following certification of the charges, as well as the increments she would have received for the above two school years. In reaching this agreement the settlement document recognizes with respect to the corporal punishment allegations that those three alleged incidents occurred three and one-half to four years ago. Thus, it will be difficult to substantiate the allegations because of the length of time that has elapsed since their occurrence and the problems this creates with respect to recollection of witnesses, especially students. In addition, the settlement recognizes that there would be substantial potential legal and related administrative costs to the Board if the matter were to proceed to a full hearing and decision by the Commissioner and that the respondent would be in a full pay status during this period. Accordingly, the stipulation recognized that the settlement is in the best interests of the school system and also would be in the public interest. For her part, respondent recognized that despite the withdrawal of tenure charges, as part of any settlement the Commissioner of Education remains free to refer the matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her certification.

Finally, attached to the stipulation was an affidavit by respondent attesting to the fact that since her suspension she has not been employed nor received any wages from any other employer.

I have reviewed the entire file in this matter, including the charges and the documentary evidence in support thereof, the certificate of determination, the contents of the stipulation of settlement and my own notes of the settlement conference. In my view, the Board's determination to enter into a settlement is appropriate despite the existence of the corporal punishment allegations for the reasons set forth by the Board in the stipulation.

I am aware, of course, of the particularly close attention which is paid by the Commissioner to the settlement of tenure matters where allegations of corporal punishment are made. In this case I agree with the Board that in light of the length of time that has elapsed since the alleged corporal punishment took place, and the problems of proof attendant thereto, a settlement of this case involving the resignation of the respondent does not subvert the interests of the public. Accordingly, I have reviewed the file and the terms of the settlement, and I FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures appearing on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and order that the parties comply with its terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." NEWARK BOARD OF EDUCATION

(201) 733-7139

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BONNIE SPEARMAN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY	: BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF : EDUCATION OF THE STATE : OF NEW JERSEY : OAL DOCKET NO. EDU-06099-93N :

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties to the above matter have agreed to an amicable resolution of this litigation. The resolution is based upon agreement as to the following:

1. The Respondent, Bonnie Spearman, was employed by the Petitioner School District of the City of Newark (hereinafter "Board") as of September 2, 1986 and in due course became tenured.

2. It is alleged by the Board of Education that on a number of occasions during her employment, the Respondent exhibited performance problems which were documented in observations conducted by four administrators employed by the Board, as well as in memoranda prepared by supervisors and administrators.

3. As a result of these problems, the Board voted in May, 1993 to certify tenure charges against the Respondent, Bonnie Spearman. The charges filed against the Respondent were charges of Inefficiency and unbecoming conduct.

4. The Board alleges that Ms. Spearman's performance problems resulted in several incidents involving inappropriate disciplinary methods.

5. While said incidents are incorporated in the second tenure charge of unbecoming conduct, it is recognized that such incidents occurred four years ago and may be difficult to substantiate because of difficulties encountered in students as witnesses and the length of time that has elapsed since the alleged incidents have occurred.

6. Respondent Bonnie Spearman fully understands that the Commissioner of Education may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her certification.

7. In addition to the time, legal and related administrative costs regarding the continuation of the tenure charges proceeding against Ms. Spearman, in light of the passage of 120 days since her suspension without pay, the Board will have to effect salary payments to Ms. Spearman.

8. It is in the best interest of the school system to settle this matter, in that it is cost effective, within the public interest and adequately addresses the concerns of the school district.

Based upon the aforementioned, the parties hereby agree to resolve this matter on the following basis:

1. Bonnie Spearman will immediately resign her position of employment as a teacher with the Newark Board of Education. She will also withdraw her two appeals of the Board's withholding of her increment for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school year.

2. The Board will pay Ms. Spearman for the 120 day suspension plus the two increments Ms. Spearman would have received for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years.

3. The Board of Education will withdraw the tenure charges in this matter.

4. This agreement represents a complete resolution of all issues outstanding between the parties. Neither party shall be entitled to any relief in this matter other than the relief set forth in this agreement.

5. The provisions of the Stipulation of Settlement are specifically conditioned on the approval by the Commissioner of Education of the acceptance of this Stipulation and the approval of any Order of Dismissal which may be recommended by the Administrative law judge. If the Commissioner shall reject the provisions of this Stipulation of Settlement and/or an Order of the Administrative Law Judge, then the parties shall revert to the position they were in, without prejudice to any and all matters then to be determined.

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

For the reasons expressed by the ALJ, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms, as they comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. However, because the allegations of corporal punishment raised in the tenure charges are sufficiently serious to warrant consideration by the State Board of Examiners, this matter shall be forwarded to that body for action regarding respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.

Accordingly, this matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement, but shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners as set forth above.

Record Closed: December 8, 1993 Decided: December 14, 1993

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on August 26, 1993 as a result of the filing of an appeal by Bonnie Spearman from the determination by the respondent to withhold her salary and adjustment increments for the 1992-93 school year. When the file was transmitted, the Department recommended that I consider consolidating this case with a pending tenure matter against petitioner entitled In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Bonnie Spearman, OAL Docket No. EDU 6099-93.

Recently, a stipulation of settlement with respect to the tenure case has been submitted to me for review and is attached hereto. In it the parties have agreed that as part of a comprehensive resolution of their disputes the instant case will be withdrawn. In the event the Commissioner rejects the tenure settlement, the petitioner has reserved the right to reinstate this action and to proceed to a hearing with respect to the increment withholdings. As part of the settlement, the Board has agreed to restore all increments withheld from petitioner.

Having reviewed the stipulation of settlement submitted in connection with the tenure matter and having recommended its approval to the Commissioner of Education, I similarly recommend its approval in this case. This initial decision-settlement has been submitted to the Commissioner simultaneous with the initial decision-settlement in the tenure case so that the Commissioner may review them together.

I have reviewed the file and the terms of the settlement, and I FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures appearing on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and order that the parties comply with its terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BONNIE SPEARMAN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY	: BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF : EDUCATION OF THE STATE : OF NEW JERSEY : OAL DOCKET NO. EDU-06099-93N :

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties to the above matter have agreed to an amicable resolution of this litigation. The resolution is based upon agreement as to the following:

1. The Respondent, Bonnie Spearman, was employed by the Petitioner School District of the City of Newark (hereinafter "Board") as of September 2, 1986 and in due course became tenured.

2. It is alleged by the Board of Education that on a number of occasions during her employment, the Respondent exhibited performance problems which were documented in observations conducted by four administrators employed by the Board, as well as in memoranda prepared by supervisors and administrators.

3. As a result of these problems, the Board voted in May, 1993 to certify tenure charges against the Respondent, Bonnie Spearman. The charges filed against the Respondent were charges of Inefficiency and unbecoming conduct.

4. The Board alleges that Ms. Spearman's performance problems resulted in several incidents involving inappropriate disciplinary methods.

5. While said incidents are incorporated in the second tenure charge of unbecoming conduct, it is recognized that such incidents occurred four years ago and may be difficult to substantiate because of difficulties encountered in students as witnesses and the length of time that has elapsed since the alleged incidents have occurred.

6. Respondent Bonnie Spearman fully understands that the Commissioner of Education may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her certification.

7. In addition to the time, legal and related administrative costs regarding the continuation of the tenure charges proceeding against Ms. Spearman, in light of the passage of 120 days since her suspension without pay, the Board will have to effect salary payments to Ms. Spearman.

8. It is in the best interest of the school system to settle this matter, in that it is cost effective, within the public interest and adequately addresses the concerns of the school district.

Based upon the aforementioned, the parties hereby agree to resolve this matter on the following basis:

1. Bonnie Spearman will immediately resign her position of employment as a teacher with the Newark Board of Education. She will also withdraw her two appeals of the Board's withholding of her increment for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school year.

2. The Board will pay Ms. Spearman for the 120 day suspension plus the two increments Ms. Spearman would have received for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years.

3. The Board of Education will withdraw the tenure charges in this matter.

4. This agreement represents a complete resolution of all issues outstanding between the parties. Neither party shall be entitled to any relief in this matter other than the relief set forth in this agreement.

5. The provisions of the Stipulation of Settlement are specifically conditioned on the approval by the Commissioner of Education of the acceptance of this Stipulation and the approval of any Order of Dismissal which may be recommended by the Administrative law judge. If the Commissioner shall reject the provisions of this Stipulation of Settlement and/or an Order of the Administrative Law Judge, then the parties shall revert to the position they were in, without prejudice to any and all matters then to be determined.

Petitioning Educational Services Commission sought finding that it had no obligation to refund monies paid to it for auxiliary services by participating member school districts because it is not a school district. Department alleged result of audit was that Commission owed $1,299,100 with interest earned.

ALJ concluded that petitioner is not a school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 but that as a matter of law unused Chapter I funds ($321,487) and unused Chapters 192/193 funds ($977,613) retained by petitioner were to be returned to Department. Moreover, interest earned was also due since the law clearly does not allow any educational services commission to make a profit.

Commissioner concurred with findings and conclusions of initial decision and order with clarification that while not a profit-making entity, petitioner must reimburse $1,299,100 plus interest earned on such funds to State Department of Education. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: September 8, 1993 Decided: December 13, 1993

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition, dated November 29, 1990, filed by the Middlesex County Educational Services Commission (MCESC), the petitioner, objecting to the results of the audit of its business records by the State Department of Education (Department), the respondent (EDU 1479-91). The Department, in answer to the petition, alleges that the audit results are correct. The Department has since amended its answer to include a counterclaim which asks that the petitioner be ordered to return $1,299,100, with interest, and that the Department be afforded other appropriate relief, including but not limited to cost of suit and attorney fees.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In February 1989, the respondent issued a report regarding the audit of the MCESC's business records for the school year July 1, 1987, through July 30, 1988 (P-8). Contained in this report was the determination that the MCESC had a liability to the respondent in the amount of $1,372,000. This amount was composed of $1,165,320 in accrued funds for Chapters 192/193 services (N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 and 18A:46-19.1) and $206,680 in accrued funds for Chapter 1 services. After departmental appeals, the total amount alleged due was reduced to $1,299,100 (P-9).

The funds for Chapters 192/193 services are monies made available by the Legislature to provide auxiliary services for pupils in the non-public schools (Chapter 192), and remedial services for handicapped children in non-public schools (Chapter 193). The funds for Chapter 1 services are monies made available by the Legislature pursuant to the Federal Education Consolidation and Improvement Act for basic skills and remedial education for educationally deprived pupils.

The MCESC's petition was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 13, 1991, for a determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The initial prehearing conference date was adjourned at the request of the respondent and a telephone prehearing conference took place on July 10, 1991. At this prehearing conference, Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, requested that the matter be adjourned and placed on the inactive list of cases. Mr. Vignuolo stated that the petitioner and several other educational services commissions were planning to initiate a joint action in the Superior Court regarding one of the issues in this matter and requested that the hearing before me not be scheduled until there was a determination by the Superior Court. Deputy Attorney General Arlene G. Lutz, on behalf of the respondent, concurred with this request. Thereafter, I had a telephone status conference with the parties on February 19, 1992.

A case was initiated by the MCESC in the Law Division of the Superior Court, Middlesex Cty. Educ. Serv. Comm'n v. State Dep't of Educ., Dkt. No. L-013889-91. On February 24, 1992, Superior Court Judge Steven L. Lefelt dismissed the matter, with prejudice, for lack of jurisdiction, failure to exhaust administrative remedies and violation of the entire controversy doctrine. Further, Judge Lefelt transferred the case so that it could be consolidated with the proceeding before me.

On March 5, 1992, I again discussed the matter with the parties and it was determined that Mr. Vignuolo, on behalf of the petitioner, would submit a motion for partial summary judgment as to the threshold issues in this matter, namely, whether the MCESC is a school district, and whether it is subject to a legal obligation to return unused funds paid to it for auxiliary services by participating school districts. Briefs regarding these issues were received from the parties.

Judge Lefelt's remand was formally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department (EDU 2030-92). During a telephone conference call on September 8, 1992, the parties agreed that the matters should be consolidated as suggested in Judge Lefelt's decision. On September 11, 1992, I ordered that the matters be consolidated.

After reviewing the briefs submitted by the parties, I denied the motion for partial summary judgment. I concluded that although the MCESC is not a school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, or as that term is used in N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq., it had not shown that it was legally entitled to retain unused Chapters 192/193 funds or unused Chapter 1 funds. A copy of this order is attached and incorporated herein.

The hearing as to the remaining issues took place on July 13 and 14, 1993, and after receipt of briefs, the record in this matter closed on September 8, 1993. I requested an extension of time for the filing of my initial decision and by order dated October 25,1993, the date for the filing of the initial decision was extended until December 13, 1993.

Since neither the testimony nor the briefs presented any additional reasons as to why the MCESC is entitled to retain either Chapters 192/193 or Chapter 1 funds, I CONCLUDE that the Department is entitled to the reimbursement of these monies as a matter of law.

As stated, the Department seeks the return of $1,299,100. This amount is comprised of alleged unused Chapters 192/193 funds amounting to $977,613, and unused Chapter 1 funds amounting to $321,487. It was stipulated at the hearing that the Chapter 1 unused funds are no longer an issue in the matter.

The remaining issues are:

1. Whether the $977,613 is unused Chapters 192/193 funds or money received by the MCESC pursuant to the Teacher Quality Education Act (TQEA), N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5 to -16.

2. If the $977,613 is TQEA funds, whether any or all of it must be returned to the State of New Jersey.

In its brief dated September 3, 1993, the MCESC argued that the burden of proof as to the remaining issues is on the Department. The Department disagreed and argued in its response brief dated September 9, 1993, that the burden of proof is on the MCESC since it was challenging the findings of the audit. I agree with the Department's position and CONCLUDE that the burden of proof is on the petitioner. In general, the party asserting a claim, such as the MCESC in this matter, has the burden to prove the claim, WCI - Westinghouse Inc. v. Edison Tp., 7 N.J. Tax 610, 630 (Tax Ct. 1985), aff'd 9 N.J. Tax 86 (App. Div. 1986).

FACTUAL DETERMINATIONS

When the TQEA passed in 1985, it established a minimum salary of $18,500 for teachers, and it did not include teachers employed by the educational services commissions. The statute was amended, effective March 28, 1986, to include full-time teachers employed by educational services commissions, L. 1986, c. 9. Initially, the MCESC was advised that hourly teachers would not be eligible to receive the minimum salary; later, however an opinion of the Attorney General advised the educational services commissions that full-time hourly teachers were entitled to the minimum salary established by the TQEA.

Jane A. Henry, the superintendent of the MCESC, testified about the efforts to get teachers employed by the educational services commissions eligible for the minimum salary established by the TQEA. It was clear from her testimony that the MCESC's teachers would not have been paid the TQEA's minimum salary unless the law was amended and construed to cover them and the MCESC was able to get the TQEA funds to pay for the increase in salaries. Once it was determined that the MCESC's teachers were eligible, the MCESC applied for TQEA funds to pay for the difference in the salaries retroactive to the 1985-86 school year. Between January 12, 1987, and February 1, 1988, the State of New Jersey sent several checks to the MCESC for TQEA funds for the 1985-86 and 1987-88 school years (P-1 through P-5). It was recognized at the hearing that $34,500, part of the money provided by one of the checks (P-2), was not TQEA funds. Therefore, the total TQEA funds received by the MCESC was $977,613.

After is was determined that the MCESC teachers were entitled to the TQEA's minimum salary, checks for the 1985-86 and 1987-88 school years were issued to the teachers in January 1988. This was before all of the TQEA funds were received by the MCESC. It is the MCESC's position that it used Chapters 192/193 funds to pay the teachers, and that it can retain and use the TQEA funds for future teacher salaries in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.10 and N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.6.

Ronald E. Bolandi, the assistant superintendent and school business administrator for the Middletown School District, was hired by the MCESC to review its records (R-1). Mr. Bolandi testified that the TQEA funds received by the MCESC should have been placed in a restricted account rather than in the account containing Chapters 192/193 funds. According to Mr. Bolandi, the MCESC should have created a separate account similar to the one created by the Union County Educational Services Commission (P-10). The MCESC recognizes that it was an error not to place the TQEA funds in a separate, restricted account and it is the MCESC's position that because the TQEA funds were placed in the wrong account, its own audit (R-2) as well as the Department's audit (P-8) has incorrectly identified the $977,613 as unused Chapters 192/193 funds. Notwithstanding its failure to place the TQEA funds into a separate, restricted account, it is the MCESC's position that the $977,613 is not unused Chapters 192/193 funds, but is unused TQEA funds which can be retained by the MCESC.

Melvin Wyns, the director of the Bureau of School Finance, and Robert W. Ortley, a supervising auditor, both employed by the Department, testified that the $977,613 was correctly identified as unused Chapters 192/193 funds. Mr. Wyns stated that TQEA funds had to be used for the teacher salary differential payments, the extra salary payments made in order to reach the minimum salary of $18,500. Mr. Wyns stated that the law recognizes that a school district or an educational services commission may receive more TQEA funds than needed to make the teachers salary differential payment since in its application for the funds it may not have anticipated all future staffing and salary changes. According to Mr. Wyns, this surplus would be a small amount, and the law allows the school district or the educational services commission to retain such surplus funds and to place the funds into a reserve account for future salary payments. Mr. Wyns stated that even if the MCESC used the Chapters 192/193 account to make the teacher salary differential payments, this account should have been reimbursed once the TQEA funds were received by the MCESC.

Mr. Ortley, who did the audit in issue, stated that based on his review of the MCESC's records, all of the TQEA funds were used to make the salary differential payments. Mr. Ortley stated that the TQEA funds had to be used for this purpose. According to Mr. Ortley, the MCESC would be double billing if it used Chapters 192/193 funds instead of the TQEA funds to make the teacher salary differential payments. Chapters 192/193 funds are provided by the State of New Jersey to school districts for certain services, and some of the school districts contract with the MCESC to provide these services. These school districts use their Chapters 192/193 funds to pay the MCESC for these services. Part of the Chapters 192/193 funds paid to the MCESC by the school districts is used by the MCESC to pay the regular salaries of the teachers employed by the MCESC. If the MCESC also used the Chapters 192/193 funds to make the salary differential payments, it would be receiving funds from two sources to make the payments.

I FIND the facts as stated above are not in dispute, except for the question of whether the funds used to make the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988 were Chapters 192/193 funds, TQEA funds, or a combination of Chapters 192/193 and TQEA funds. It is the position of the MCESC that it used exclusively Chapters 192/193 funds. It is the position of the Department that the MCESC used at least some TQEA funds, since two of the TQEA checks were sent to the MCESC before it paid the teachers and since Ms. Henry clearly stated that the MCESC teachers would not have received the salary differential payments if the MCESC had not been provided with TQEA funds. Based on the testimony and exhibits admitted into evidence, I FIND that it is impossible to determine whether the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988 were solely from Chapters 192/193 funds or from a combination of Chapters 192/193 and TQEA funds. The TQEA funds were placed by the MCESC into its Chapters 192/193 account and the teacher salary differential payments were made from that account. Two of the TQEA checks were sent to the MCESC before the teachers were paid in January 1988, and commingled with money already in the account.

FIRST ISSUE

A. Arguments of the Parties

As to the first issue, namely whether the $977,613 is TQEA funds or unused Chapters 192/193 funds, the pertinent provision of the TQEA provides:

> Any funds appropriated for salaries that will be replaced by State aid as authorized pursuant to this amendatory and supplementary act shall not be transferred to or used for any purpose other than the payment of teaching staff member salaries.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.10]

In addition, the regulation that is pertinent to this issue, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.6*, in part provides:

> (e) For the 1985-86 school year and subsequent school years a district board of education shall not transfer out of any line item account or program category any funds replaced by State aid received pursuant to the "Teacher Quality Employment Act." . . .
> (h) Any part of the funds replaced by State aid as determined in (f) and (g) above which remains unexpended at the completion of the 1985-86 school year or a subsequent school year shall be held as a special balance appropriated which shall only be used in subsequent school years for the payment of full-time teaching staff member salaries for duties which are part of the teaching staff member's regular contractual responsibilities.

Also pertinent to this issue is N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62.1 which was enacted at the same time that the Legislature provided that teachers employed by educational services commissions were entitled to the benefits of the TQEA. This statute provides:

> Tuition rates for the 1985-86 school year and subsequent years for educational services commissions shall be determined after excluding the applicable salaries funded by section 7 of P.L. 1985, c. 321 (C. 18A:29-5.6) and shall be certified by the Commissioner of Education.

* The cited provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.6 (P-11) were in effect at the time of the audit and are applicable in this matter. This regulation was thereafter twice amended, R. 1990 d. 393, effective August 6, 1990 (18 N.J.R. 1199(a), and R. 1991 d. 459, effective September 3, 1991 (23 N.J.R. 2634(a)).

Although this provision was repealed by L. 1990, c. 254, §18 (effective July 1, 1990), it is applicable in this matter since the rights and obligations of parties are determined by the law in effect at the relevant time.

In summary, the MCESC stated that it used Chapters 192/193 funds for the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988 and argued that it is entitled to retain the $977,613 it received as TQEA funds in a restricted account for future salary payments. The MCESC argued that pursuant to the clear meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.10 and N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.6, the MCESC is entitled to retain this money since it constitutes unused TQEA funds. The MCESC cited a number of cases holding that where the language of the statute is clear and unambiguous, the court's sole function is to enforce the statute in accordance with its terms and provisions, State Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Motor Vehicles, v. Bigham, 119 N.J. 646 (1990), Dacunzo v. Edgye, 19 N.J. 443 (1955). The MCESC argued that Mr. Wyns's testimony that TQEA funds had to be used for the teacher salary differential payments is not consistent with the provisions of the TQEA. Also, the MCESC disagreed with Mr. Ortley's statement that if the MCESC did not use the TQEA funds for the teacher salary differential payments, it would be double billing for such payments. The MCESC admitted that it made a bookkeeping error by not placing the TQEA funds in a separate account, but argued that these funds can be clearly identified and can be retained by the MCESC for future salary payments pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.10.

The Department argued that Mr. Wyns correctly testified that the TQEA funds were intended to be used for the teacher salary differential payments and that the law requires that the TQEA funds be used for that purpose. According to the Department, if the MCESC used any Chapters 192/193 monies to make the teacher salary differential payments it should have reimbursed the Chapters 192/193 account for such payments when the TQEA funds were received by the MCESC. The Department noted that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62.1 clearly shows that this was the intent of the TQEA, since it requires the exclusion of TQEA monies from the tuition rates charged by the educational service commissions. The Department argued that to hold to the contrary would be to allow the educational services commissions to double bill, since the commission would be getting both funds from the participating school districts (Chapters 192/193 funds) and direct TQEA funds to make the teacher salary differential payments. The Department argued that the clear intent of the Legislature was that the TQEA funds would be used to make the teacher salary payments. Although the TQEA allows unused TQEA funds to be retained in a reserve account, the Department argued that funds to be placed in such an account are limited to TQEA funds not needed to make the teacher salary differential payments, and that it was never intended that a school district or an educational services commission be allowed to use other funds to make the teacher salary differential payments and to put into the reserve account the full amount of the TQEA funds.

Further, the Department argued that since the MCESC never put into evidence the exact amount of money it used to make the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988, it is reasonable to conclude as determined by both the MCESC's own audit and the State audit that all of the TQEA funds were used for the teacher salary differential payments.

The Department disagreed with the MCESC's argument that if it had used a separate account for the TQEA funds initially, there would have been no question that it could retain said funds. The Department argued that the fact that the Union County Educational Services Commission used a separate account for its TQEA funds and has not been asked to reimburse said funds is immaterial since there has not yet been a Department audit of the books of the Union County Educational Services Commission.

The Department argued that the MCESC should be ordered to reimburse the $977,613, with interest.

B. - Legal Conclusions

After reviewing the arguments of the parties, I agree with the Department's arguments that the provisions of the TQEA clearly intended to request that the funds provided to the school districts and the educational services commissions be used to meet the statutory teacher minimum salary requirement. In general, the interpretation of a statute by the agency in change of its enforcement is entitled to substantial weight, Matter of Bd. of Educ. of Town of Boonton, 99 N.J. 523, 532 (1985); Peper v. Princeton Univ. Bd. of Trustees, 77 N.J. 55, 69-70 (1978); N.J. Guild of Hearing Aid Dispensers v. Long, 75 N.J. 544, 575 (1978). In this matter the Department's interpretation is reasonable and clearly consistent with the legislative history of the TQEA and the amendment to add teachers employed by educational services commission to the TQEA program. Also, the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.6 are consistent with the Department's interpretation of the provisions of the TQEA.

The court's have recognized that an agency's interpretation of its own regulation is entitled to due deference by a court which is called upon to interpret the regulation, Venuti v. Construction Bd. of Appeals, 231 N.J. Super. 546, 554 (App. Div. 1989); DiMaria v. Bd. of Tr. of P.E.R.S., 225 N.J. Super. 341, 351 (App. Div. 1988). In addition, the testimony of Ms. Henry clearly indicated that the MCESC did not intend to increase salaries to the minimum teacher salary provided by the TQEA unless it qualified for funds pursuant to the TQEA.

Also, I agree with the Department's position that the provisions of the TQEA clearly limit the amount of money placed in the reserve account to any funds left over after the teacher salary differential payments are made, and the law does not allow either a school district or an educational services commission to make the teacher salary differential payments using other available funds and to place all of the TQEA funds in the reserve account. The Legislature's intent is clear, especially when N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.10 is read in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62.1. If any Chapters 192/193 funds were used by the MCESC for the January 1988 teacher salary differential payments, those funds were borrowed for this purpose and the Chapters 192/193 account had to be reimbursed once the TQEA funds were received by the MCESC. I agree with the Department's argument that to hold to the contrary would allow the MCESC to get funds from two different sources for the teacher salary differential payments. My conclusion herein is consistent with the determination in Essex Cty Educ. Serv. Comm'n v. State Dep't of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 522, adopted, Dep't of Educ. (June 8, 1993).

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the MCESC used its TQEA funds to make the teacher salary differential payments, and that the $977,613 is unused Chapters 192/193 funds. I CONCLUDE that the MCESC should reimburse the amount of $977,613 to the Department.

The Department argued that in addition to this money, it is also entitled to receive any interest earned by the MCESC on its Chapters 192/193 account. Since the law clearly does not allow any educational services commission to make a profit, I CONCLUDE that the MCESC should also return to the Department any interest earned by retaining the $977,613.

SECOND ISSUE

It is not necessary for me to address the second issue, namely, whether the MCESC can retain all or part of the $977,613, since I have concluded that based on the evidence presented, all of this money is Chapters 192/193 funds which have to be returned to the Department. However, the Department has recognized the possibility that the MCESC received more TQEA funds than were needed to make the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988. If the MCESC had presented proof that it had received more TQEA funds than needed to make the January 1988 payments, it would be entitled to retain such excess funds in a special account for future teacher salary payments. Since no such proof was presented, I agreed with the Department's argument that it is reasonable to assume that all the TQEA funds were used for the teacher salary differential payments, as shown by the MCESC's audit and the State audit. I CONCLUDE, however, that my decision is not intended to foreclose the right of the MCESC to submit information to the Department detailing the exact amount of TQEA funds it used to make the teacher salary differential payments in January 1988, and if that sum is less than $977,613, to request that it be allowed to retain the difference in a special reserve account for future teacher salaries. Even though the MCESC did not present such evidence during this hearing, I CONCLUDE that it should not be foreclosed from doing so in the future.

CONCLUSIONS

For the reasons stated above, I CONCLUDE that the $977,613 is Chapters 192/193 unused funds and that the MCESC is to return to the Department the amount of $977,613, plus any interest earned on this amount. Also, I CONCLUDE that the MCESC has retained unused Chapter 1 funds in the amount of $321,487, and that the MCESC is to return to the Department this amount plus any interest earned on it. In addition, the Department has presented no legal arguments to support its demand for additional relief such as court costs and attorney costs, and therefore I will not order any such relief.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." MIDDLESEX COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION,

v.
STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., for the petitioner (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl, attorneys)

Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition filed by the Middlesex County Educational Services Commission (MCESC), the petitioner, regarding its objections to an audit of its business records by the State Department of Education (Department), the respondent (EDU 1479-91).

On or about February 1989, the respondent issued a report of an audit of the MCESC's business records for the period July 1, 1987, through July 30, 1988. In this report, it was determined that the MCESC had an alleged liability to the respondent in the amount of $1,372,000.

This amount is composed of $1,165,320 in accrued funds for Chapters 192/193 services (N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 and 18A:46-19.1) and $206,680 in accrued funds for Chapter 1 services. After departmental appeals, the total amount alleged due was reduced to $1,299,100. The funds for Chapters 192/193 services refer to monies made available by the Legislature to provide auxiliary services for pupils in the non-public schools (Chapter 192), and remedial services for handicapped children in non-public schools (Chapter 193). The funds for Chapter 1 services refer to monies made available by the Legislature pursuant to the Federal Education Consolidation and Improvement Act for basic skills and remedial education for educationally deprived pupils.

The MCESC's petition was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 13, 1991, for a determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The initial prehearing conference date was adjourned at the request of the respondent and a telephone prehearing conference took place on July 10, 1991. At this prehearing conference, Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, requested that the matter be adjourned and placed on the inactive list of cases. Mr. Vignuolo stated that the petitioner and several other educational services commissions were planning to initiate a joint action in the Superior Court regarding one of the issues in this matter and requested that the hearing before me not be scheduled until there was a determination by the Superior Court. Deputy Attorney General Arlene G. Lutz, on behalf of the respondent, concurred with this request. Thereafter, I had a telephone status conference with the parties on February 19, 1992.

A case was initiated by the MCESC in the Law Division of the Superior Court, Middlesex Cty. Educ. Services Comm'n. v. State Dept. of Educ., Dkt. No. L-013889-91. On February 24, 1992, Superior Court Judge Steven L. Lefelt dismissed the matter with prejudice for lack of jurisdiction, failure to exhaust administrative remedies and violation of the entire controversy doctrine. Further, Judge Lefelt transferred the case so that it could be consolidated with the proceeding before me.

On March 5, 1992, I again discussed the matter with the parties and it was determined that Mr. Vignuolo, on behalf of the petitioner, would submit a motion for partial summary judgment as to the threshold issues in this matter; namely, whether the MCESC is a school district, and whether it is subject to a legal obligation to return unused funds paid to it for auxiliary services by participating school districts. Briefs regarding these issues were received from the parties.

Judge Lefelt's remand was formerly transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the State Department of Education (EDU 2030-92). During a telephone conference call on September 8, 1992, the parties agreed that the matters should be consolidated as suggested in Judge Lefelt's decision. I ordered that the matters be consolidated on September 11, 1992.

As to the petitioner's motion, the parties did not enter into a stipulation of facts and the pertinent facts are set forth in the briefs. These facts are not in dispute except for the information contained in the certification in lieu of affidavit of William Searle, which is attached to the respondent's brief. Mr. Vignuolo objected to the certification. According to Mr. Vignuolo, the petitioner has not yet conducted discovery and may contest some of the factual statements in the certification, specifically Sections 8 - 16. Ms. Lutz stated that the respondent had done nothing improper by including the certification.

As stated by Mr. Vignuolo, the issues involved in the motion deal with statutory construction; however, certain basic facts must be presented to set forth the circumstances which give rise to the issues. For this purpose, I will consider only Sections 1 - 7 of Mr. Searle's certification and the rest of the certification is deleted from the record as to this motion. I am taking this action since I recognize Mr. Vignuolo's right to discovery and cross-examination as to facts which may be disputed.

I FIND the following facts are not disputed.

The MCESC was organized under the school laws of the State. It was formed in 1979 for the purpose of rendering specialized educational services to the students of its participating school districts and for participating non-public schools. The MCESC employs teachers, principals and other personnel subject to the same employment rules as school districts. The pertinent statute relating to the arrangement with participating school districts provides:

> Any board of education may contract with an educational improvement center, an educational services commission or other public or private agency, other than a church or sectarian school, approved by the commissioner for the provision of auxiliary services. [N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-7]

By statute, the participating school districts apply for state funds to cover the cost of MCESC's services and receive a fixed sum per pupil. Each of the school districts then agrees with the MCESC to pay such sums as were appropriated by the State for the MCESC's services.

As to Chapters 192/193 service funds, the school districts are required to return unused monies to the respondent and these monies go into a pool to be used by other school districts whose actual expenditures exceeded the amount of their state aid, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14, 18A:46-19.8. No school district is required to make expenditures pursuant to Chapter 192 in excess of the amount of state aid, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-15; however, the school districts must provide the services for the handicapped children even if the cost exceeds the amount of state aid pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq.

Since its creation, the MCESC has had contracts with an average of eighteen school districts to provide auxiliary services. The participating school districts enter into contracts with the MCESC and the consideration for the services comes from the state aid appropriated to the school district. The number of students serviced by the MCESC fluctuates during the course of any school year and on occasion the number of students actually serviced exceeds that provided for in the contractual arrangements. No additional costs are paid by the participating school districts in such cases. The MCESC has retained all unused funds generated as a result of its contractual arrangements with the participating school districts. These funds have now accumulated over an approximate thirteen-year period and it is these monies that the respondent requests be returned to the State.

The first issue as to this motion is whether the MCESC is a school district. On behalf of the petitioner, Mr. Vignuolo argued that the MCESC is a separate and distinct legal entity. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51(a) defines an educational services commission as follows:

> "Educational Services Commission" means an agency established or to be established in one or more counties for the purpose of carrying on programs of educational research and development and providing to public school districts such educational and administrative services as may be authorized pursuant to rules of the State Board of Education.

Based on this definition, Mr. Vignuolo argued that the MCESC is not a school district since it does not meet the statutory definition of a school district, N.J.S.A.

18A:1-1. Mr. Vignuolo argued that the plain meaning of these statutes bars the respondent from considering the MCESC to be a school district, State Dep't of Law and Public Safety, Div. of Motor Vehicles v. Bigham, 119 N.J. 646 (1990); Rosenberg v. North Bergen Tp., 115 N.J. Super. 322 (App. Div. 1971), rev'd, 61 N.J. 190 (1972); Dacunzo v. Edgye, 19 N.J. 443 (1955); Graham v. City of Asbury Park, 64 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Div. 1960), rev'd, 69 N.J. Super. 256 (App. Div. 1961), aff'd, 37 N.J. 166 (1962).

Ms. Lutz argued that the MCESC is a school district or, in the alternative, is a quasi school district since its organization and structure is like that of a school district.

After reviewing the arguments of the parties, I agree with the MCESC's argument that it is not a school district. The definition of an educational services commission clearly distinguishes it from a school district. See, N.J.E.A. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Services Comm'n, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1666-82 (June 23, 1982) and (Jan. 26, 1984), rev'd and remanded, Comm'r of Educ. (March 22, 1984). In that case, the Commissioner of Education refers to an Attorney General's formal opinion which states:

> [I]t is clear that the Legislature, which has already created local districts to discharge its responsibility under the Education Clause, has further authorized the creation of regional public agencies to assist districts in the performance of their educational functions. [Att'y Gen. Form. Op. 1981 - No. 1, p.8]

In Remedial Educ. & Diag. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Serv. Comm'n, 191 N.J. Super. 524, 527 (App. Div. 1983), the court recognized that the only reason for an educational services commission is "for the purpose of 'providing' the educational services to the public school districts" and the court did not define the educational service commission as a school district. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that an educational services commission is a unique and separate entity which is established to assist school districts by providing educational services. Further, I CONCLUDE that although there are some similarities between a school district and an educational services commission, there is no authority to conclude that such a commission is a quasi school district.

The second issue is whether the MCESC is subject to a legal obligation to return unused funds paid to it for auxiliary services by participating school districts. As to this issue, I agree with Ms. Lutz's argument that the petitioner did not present a persuasive argument that it can retain the Chapter 1 service funds. Other than its argument that the MCESC is not a school district, the respondent presented no argument to justify its position as to the Chapter 1 service funds.

As to the unused Chapters 192/193 service funds, Mr. Vignuolo argued that the law clearly requires only school districts to return unexpended funds. The pertinent portions of the applicable statutes provide:

> In the event the expenditure incurred by any district is less than the amount of State aid received, the district shall refund the unexpended State aid. . . . In any year, a district may submit a request for additional aid. . . . If the request is approved and funds are available from refunds received from school districts from the prior year, payments for the additional aid shall be made immediately from those funds. [N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-14]
> In the event the expenditures incurred by any district are less than the amount of State aid received, the district shall refund the unexpended State aid. . . . In any year, a district may submit a request for additional aid. . . If the request is approved and funds are available from refunds of the prior year, payment shall be made in the current school year. [N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.8]

As to these funds, Mr. Vignuolo argued that there is no legal authority to require the MCESC as the provider of the services to return unexpended Chapters 192/193 monies. Mr. Vignuolo argued that the only way the respondent can justify its demand is by considering the MCESC to be a school district. Since there is no legal justification for considering the MCESC to be a school district, Mr. Vignuolo argued that the respondent is not entitled to any reimbursement of monies.

Further, Mr. Vignuolo stated that by statute the school districts can enter into agreements for the auxiliary services with private agencies, and if the school district contracts with such a private agency, the respondent cannot get a return of funds. See, N.J.E.A. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Services Comm'n., 5 N.J.A.R. 29 (Dep't of Education 1981). In addition, Mr. Vignuolo argued that the school district can contract with another school district to provide such services and he represented that the respondent has never requested or investigated to find out whether all the monies were used by that school district.

Ms. Lutz argued that the MCESC as a school district or a quasi school district is subject to the same requirements as a local school district and therefore it is required to return the excess Chapters 192/193 funds.

More specifically, Ms. Lutz argued that the MCESC cannot retain these funds since it is not permitted by law to make and retain a profit. Ms. Lutz argued that the MCESC can exercise only those powers which are given by the Legislature expressly or by necessity or fair implication. See, Bd. of Educ. of Belvidere v. Bosco, 138 N.J. Super. 368 (Law Div. 1975); Fair Lawn Educ. Ass'n v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Educ., 161 N.J. Super. 67 (App. Div. 1978), aff'd, 79 N.J. 574 (1979); Resnick v. East Brunswick Bd. of Educ., 135 N.J. Super. 257 (Ch. Div. 1975), aff'd, 144 N.J. Super. 474 (App. Div. 1976), rev'd on other grounds, 77 N.J. 88 (1978). Ms. Lutz noted that there is no statutory provision allowing the MCESC to earn a profit.

Ms. Lutz argued that the Chapters 192/193 service funds are dedicated funds and that they cannot be used for other purposes. Further, she noted that it is the legislative intent that the unused monies be returned and placed into a fund to be used by other local school districts. After reviewing the arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE that although the statutory provisions, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.8, do not specifically require the MCESC as the provider of the services to refund unused monies, based on the legislative intent, the MCESC comes under the purview of the statutes and is required to make such refunds of unexpended Chapters 192/193 funds.

The legislative intent as to both statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq., is set forth in the legislative findings which provide:

> The Legislature hereby finds and determines that the welfare of the State requires that present and future generations of school age children be assured opportunity to develop to the fullest their intellectual capacities. It is the intent of this Legislature to insure that the State shall furnish on an equal basis auxiliary services to all pupils in the State in both public and nonpublic schools. [N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1]
> The Legislature hereby finds and determines that the security and welfare of the State require that all school-age children be assured the fullest possible opportunity to develop their intellectual capacities. In order to achieve this objective it is the intent of this Legislature to require that the State and local communities identify and provide remedial services for handicapped children in both public and nonpublic schools. [N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1]

The obvious intent of both statutes is to insure that the identified children receive the needed services. Since funds are limited, it is obvious that refunds can play a critical role in achieving the Legislature's objective. The MCESC's position that it can retain unused monies is clearly inconsistent with this legislative intent. The courts have clearly recognized that if the literal reading of a statute will lead to a result not in accordance with the essential purpose of the act, the spirit of the act will control. See, M.P. by D.P. v. Wee Care Day Nursery, 250 N.J. Super. 119 (App. Div. 1991); N.J. Turnpike Employees v. N.J. Turnpike Auth., 200 N.J. Super 48 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den., 101 N.J. 294 (1985); Cty. of Essex v. Waldman, 244 N.J. Super. 647 (App. Div. 1990). It is clearly evident that the policy and purpose underlying the Chapters 192/193 statutes would be hindered if the MCESC is allowed to retain unexpended state aid and to use the monies at its discretion for other purposes.

Although it may be true as argued by the MCESC that a private agency would not be required to refund any unused money, the MCESC is a public entity and as such has a "responsibility [that is] owed to the public which places governmental functions, relationships and practices at a higher level than those of the marketplace." N.J.E.A. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Services Comm'n., supra., 5 N.J.A.R. at 63. Also, as a public entity the MCESC has a unique relationship with the school districts it services. It is doubtful that these school districts would enter into the same type of contractual relationships with a public entity as they have with the MCESC, namely, giving their entire appropriations of Chapters 192/193 service funds to the MCESC.

In addition, it should be noted that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-67 provides:

> With the approval of the State Board of Education, the board of directors may enter into a contract with and receive and administer funds and grants from any individual or agency including but not limited to, agencies of the Federal Government of the United states, provided that the funds or grants are for programs or services for which the commission has received approval from the State board pursuant to sections 2 and 19 of P.L. 1968, c. 243 (C. 18A:6-52 and C. 18A:6-69). [emphasized language deleted and underlined language added, L. 1989, c.254].

The key word in this statute is "administer." The word "administer" does not convey ownership. It means to "manage or conduct" and "to serve in the conduct of affairs, in the application of things to their uses." Black's Law Dictionary 41 (5th ed. 1979). The MCESC therefore administrates the Chapters 192/193 service funds for the school districts and it has to comply with the refund statutes since it is acting on behalf of each participating school district. Further, I agree with Ms. Lutz's argument that by statutes these funds are dedicated for the purposes set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq.

Lastly, it is questionable whether if the MCESC is allowed to retain the unused Chapters 192/193 service funds, these monies can be used for a capital construction program as planned by MCESC.

As an educational services commission, the MCESC is required to prepare and submit an annual budget, and to notify its participating school districts of their proportionate portion of the expenses, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62. Although I disagree with the respondent's argument that the retention of the unused Chapters 192/193 service funds would constitute a profit, I find no legal authority to allow the MCESC, at its discretion, to use these monies for unplanned and non-budgeted expenditures. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62, amended by L. 1989, c.254 and L. 1990, c.52.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that the MCESC's motion for partial summary judgment is hereby denied. Although the MCESC has presented persuasive proof that it is not a school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 or as that term is used in N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq., it has not shown at this juncture that it is entitled to retain unused Chapters 192/193 service funds or unused Chapter 1 service funds.

This order may be reviewed by COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Respondent, however, filed a timely statement in support of the initial decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law as embodied in the initial decision rendered on December 13, 1993, as well as the order dated October 30, 1992. Said determinations hold that while not a school district per se, petitioner herein, as an educational services commission, is under a legal obligation to refund unused Chapter I and Chapters 192/193 services funds and that, consequently, petitioner must refund to the Department of Education $1,299,100 in excess funds, composed of $321,487 in accrued Chapter I services funds, which, by the time of the December 13, 1992 hearing petitioner no longer contested, and $977,613 in accrued Chapters 192/193 services funds.

One last point of the initial decision requires clarification. Interest on the monies due and owing in this matter cannot be described as a request for prehearing judgment. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1, pre-judgment interest is warranted when it is concluded that "the denial of the monetary claim was an action taken in bad faith and/or has been determined, to have been taken in deliberate violation of statute or rule." No such contention has been advanced or demonstrated in the record of this matter. Rather, the question of interest arises from a determination of whether petitioner's retention of the monies at issue herein resulted in the accumulation of additional interest on such funds. The initial decision correctly observes at page 10 that the law does not allow any educational services commission to be a profit-making entity. However, it bears mentioning that merely because the monies retained by petitioner may have accumulated interest does not necessarily mean that petitioner is thereby a profit-making entity. Nevertheless, if petitioner acquired additional revenues as a result of retaining the sums in question, such interest must also be returned to the Department of Education.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision and order of the Office of Administrative Law, petitioner is directed to reimburse the amount of $1,299,100 and also to return any interest earned on such monies to the State Department of Education. The Petition of Appeal is therefore dismissed, with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 26, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl (Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

We recognize, as did the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), that there are differences between a district board of education and an educational services commission. Middlesex County Educational Services Commission Education Association v. Board of Directors of the Middlesex County Educational Services Commission, decided by the State Board, January 7, 1987, slip op. at 6. See Remedial Educ. & Diag. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Ser., 191 N.J. Super. 524 (App. Div. 1983), certif. denied, 97 N.J. 601 (1984). However, as the ALJ properly concluded, those differences did not entitle Middlesex County Educational Services Commission (MCESC) to retain Chapter 1 service funds in excess of the cost of the services. We further agree that the moneys at issue in this case are unused Chapter 192/193 funds and must be returned to the State. We concur with the ALJ that because New Jersey law does not permit an educational services commission to make a profit, to the extent that these funds can be isolated, MCESC must return any interest it earned on them.

Therefore, as modified herein, we affirm the Commissioner's decision in this case.

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was brought by way of verified petition dated September 9, 1993 to set aside the Board's decision of June 10, 1993 transferring T.M. from the Robert Gordon School to Sherman Elementary School in Roselle Park. Further relief was sought permanently restraining the Board of Education from reassigning and transferring T.M. to the Sherman Elementary School. This petition was filed with the Department of Education on July 12, 1993. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on August 16, 1993 and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 26, 1993 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On September 8, 1993 this case was assigned to the undersigned ALJ for hearings. It was scheduled for a in-person prehearing on September 21, 1993. That date was adjourned at the request of petitioner's attorney due to his unavailability. The matter was then scheduled for a telephone prehearing on September 28, 1993. Because of an expedited hearing request due to the nature of the case the matter was also scheduled for a hearing on October 1, 1993. At the time of the hearing petitioner moved to amend the complaint changing the requested relief. Petitioner requested that the relief be changed to delete a request barring T.M.'s transfer and instead, since the transfer had already occurred, to have her moved from the Sherman School back to the Robert Gordon School at the end of the 1993-94 school year. No objection was made to the request to amend the complaint and leave to amend was granted.

On October 1, 1993 testimony was taken and the parties entered into a stipulation of facts. At the close of testimony both sides agreed that the expedited nature of the case no longer existed due to the change in requested relief. The parties were given until November 15, 1993 at their request to submit posthearing memoranda. On that date the record closed.

Prior to the beginning of the hearing both sides entered into a stipulation of facts as follows:

1. Petitioner resides at 127 W. Street, Roselle Park, New Jersey, and is the parent and guardian of T.M., age five, who began kindergarten in the Roselle Park school system commencing September 1993.

2. Respondent, Roselle Park Board of Education, owns, operates, maintains, sets policy and administers all of the schools in Roselle Park.

3. Respondent, Roselle Park Board of Education, operates, controls, maintains, supervises, sets policy for and administers three elementary schools in the municipality of Roselle Park, namely Sherman Elementary School, Robert Gordon Elementary School and Aldene Elementary School.

4. By letter dated April 19, 1993 from James Banyas, principal at the Robert Gordon Elementary School, petitioner was notified that his daughter, T.M., would be attending Robert Gordon Elementary School commencing September 1993.

5. On or about May 11, 1993 T.M. attended an orientation session at the Robert Gordon Elementary School.

6. By letter dated June 10, 1993 from William Clarke, superintendent of schools for respondent and James Banyas, petitioner was notified that T.M. would be attending the Sherman Elementary School.

7. By letter dated June 11, 1993 from Thomas Faria, prinicipal at the Sherman Elementary School, petitioner was notified again that T.M. would be attending the Sherman Elementary School and that an orientation session was being held on June 17, 1993.

8. By correspondence dated September 1, 1993 from Mr. Faria, petitioner was notified of T.M.'s classroom assignment at the Sherman Elementary School.

9. Beginning September 8, 1993, T.M. began attending the Sherman Elementary School.

10. At its March 8, 1983 open session, the Roselle Park Board of Education passed a resolution memorializing the Board's policy for assigning elementary school students to the various elementary schools owned and operated by the Roselle Park Board of Education.

11. At its May 4, 1993 open session, the Roselle Park Board of Education discussed kindergarten registration and enrollment for the 1993-94 school year.

12. At its June 8, 1993 open session, the Roselle Park Board of Education discussed the assignment of students to the elementary schools for the 1993-94 school year.

13. At its July 27, 1993 regular session, the Roselle Park Board of Education approved the establishment of a new kindergarten section at Sherman Elementary School due to increased enrollment and approved the assignment of students to that section.

As these facts are stipulated to by the parties I FIND them to be operational facts in this case.

TESTIMONY

At the time of the hearing G.M., who is the father of the five year old T.M., testified. G.M. is married and in addition to T.M. has a two and one-half year old daughter and his wife is seven and one-half months pregnant.

G.M. and his wife were born and raised in Roselle Park and both of them went to the Robert Gordon School. They have owned their home for nine years and G.M. stated that he thought his child would be able to go to the Robert Gordon School. He himself was raised very close to the Robert Gordon School and his parents, as well as his sister and niece, live in the family which is nearby that school.

G.M. stated that his experience is that the children in the neighborhood had been going to the Robert Gordon School. He also felt that the child would be able to go to her grandparents' house only doors away from the school either at lunchtime or after school. Should T.M. become ill and need attention her grandparents would be the closest to that school. G.M. lives approximately two blocks away from the Robert Gordon School however lives between seven and nine blocks from the Sherman School.

With respect to the Sherman School, G.M. has both walked and driven the route which T.M. must walk. He stated that there are only crossing guards on one block near the school at two different intersections. He stated that he has a safety concern for his child walking to and from the Sherman School. G.M. also produced a letter from Ronald R. Scull of the Roselle Park police department indicating the lack of crossing guards.

G.M. stated that there would be crossing guards at each intersection for T.M. to travel between their door and the Robert Gordon School. According to G.M. all the other children on his block which is W. Street go to the Robert Gordon School. T.M. has friends in the two-block area with whom she plays. These include twins across the street as well as three children from the nearby families. He stated that T.M. wanted to know why she could not "go to kindergarten" rather than Sherman. This is because she perceived Robert Gordon as being kindergarten and Sherman as being something different. She has expressed a desire to go to the Robert Gordon School. G.M. confirmed that he does not know of any kindergarten children in his area going to the Robert Gordon School this school year. He also indicated that he was unaware of any children in the area attending kindergarten at the Sherman School other than T.M.

G.M. confirmed that the distance between the Sherman and the Robert Gordon Schools may be approximately one-half mile. He also stated that with respect to crossing guards he believed it was the Township rather than the Board of Education that had the ultimate responsibility of placing crossing guards. He stated that Sgt. Scull told him that crossing guards were placed based upon traffic patterns and school zones.

G.M. then traced the route that T.M would have to walk from their home on W. Street in order to get to the Robert Gordon School. She would have to walk up W. Street and turn left onto Grant. She would then have to continue on Grant until arriving at the Robert Gordon School. This would require her crossing at Charles where there is no crossing guard. There would however be a crossing guard available at the corner of Chestnut and Grant.

The respondent produced the testimony of William T. Clarke who is the superintendent of schools in Roselle Park. He has held this position since July 1, 1993. Prior to this he was the business administrator since January 1982.

Mr. Clarke testified that two different members of the school board staff measured the distance between petitioner's home and Robert Gordon School. This distance is 3 tenths of a mile. The same was done with respect to the distance from petitioner's house to the Sherman School. This distance was 4.5 tenths of a mile. He stated that the total distance between the Robert Gordon School and the Sherman School is approximately one-half mile.

Mr. Clarke stated that it is the Borough of Roselle Park that has jurisdiction over crossing guards rather than the board of education. The police determine the appropriate locations for crossing guards based upon considerations of safety and traffic flow. He was aware that the prior superintendent had contact with the chief of police regarding placement of crossing guards.

The witness described what lead up to the changing of the geographic designation determining which students in town went to the Robert Gordon School and which went to Sherman. He stated that in February 1993 the school principals advertised for "kindergarten roundup." This was a manner of seeking parents with children who were going to be attending kindergarten to come in and register. In March the actual registration took place. In April an orientation was held for the parents and the children. After the April 1993 orientation the board of education got more registrations. That number would have made the classes too large in his estimation. The three elementary principals approached him and discussed the question of class size. As a result of their input he went to the board of education and requested that a third section of kindergarten be put in place. At that time the only available classroom was at the Sherman School. Each class was then determined to be approximately 20 children.

The witness described while using a map (R-1), that previously all students living on Spruce Street went to the Sherman School and those west of Spruce went to the Robert Gordon School. Upon inspection and consideration after listening to the elementary school principals he made the recommendation to the board of education that the designation be moved to Walnut Street. That would cause those students living on Walnut Street to go to kindergarten at the Sherman School. Those living west of that location but east of the Aldene grade school would go to the Robert Gordon grade school. He stated that it was necessary to move the line west and that the line is considered a "floating line" in order to adjust for population. After the change in line to Walnut Street the result was that 11 students were changed from the Sherman School to the Robert Gordon School. This meant that all kindergarten aged students living on Walnut were reassigned to the Sherman School. Of those 11 students the witness pointed to five other children who live closer to the Robert Gordon School than T.M.

The witness explained that if there are more than 25 students in a class it is necessary to have a teacher's aide present. Although they may have as many as 25 students without an aide, the district policy is to keep the class size to approximately 20 students. At the time the decision was made Robert Gordon had 49 registrations as well as three retentions which would have meant a total of 52 students in two classes. The Board was presented with the option of an increased class size with an aide present. It was not however recommended and the Board did not opt to use this solution. Instead, the Board decided to make a third class at the Sherman School and adjust the geographic line which indicated which student went where.

The witness confirmed that the school has a policy that once a student is reassigned the intent is that they remain at that school. Additionally, under their policy any siblings would not be split up.

Mr. Clarke stated that he did not personally know at the time the decision was made where crossing guards were located.

The witness also stated that the Board took into account that all grades from first and above would continue to go to the Robert Gordon School where they had been previously been placed. This change in demarcation affected only this years' kindergarten class.

As the facts testified to by these two witnesses are not in dispute, I FIND these, in conjunction with the stipulated facts, to be the operational facts in this case.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The only issue in this case is whether the action of the Roselle Park Board of Education changing the geographic designation for attendance in kindergarten was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. It was this change in the geographic designation which resulted in T.M. attending the Sherman Elementary School rather than the Robert Gordon Elementary School which she and her family had originally believed she was to attend. It is well established that actions of local boards that lie within their discretionary powers may not be upset unless they are arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The standard for review at a hearing such as this requires a determination of whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed and also whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts bearing in mind that they were experts. The burden of proving unreasonableness is on the appellant. This is not a situation in which the Commissioner of Education will substitute his or her judgment for that of the board of education. Massaro v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, 165 S.L.D. 84. It is the management prerogative of boards of education that will not be usurped or assumed by the Commissioner of Education absent a definitive showing of bad faith or arbitrary actions taken in bad faith without a rational basis. Paddock v. Board of Education of the Borough of Demarest, 1974 S.L.D. 435.

In this case those facts that were known to the Board of Education at the time they made the decision to move the geographic designation were that the student enrollment was of sufficient size to cause the two classes that were available at the Robert Gordon School to exceed the amount of students they believed appropriate for maximized learning. The number that the Board of Education aims for in classes is 20 students. Up to 25 students in a class may be accommodated by one teacher but any number in excess of that would require the presence of an aide in addition to the classroom teacher. The enrollment, when taking into account new students as well as retentions, would have meant that the classes would also have required an instructional aide. The school board determined that an additional kindergarten class could be set up at the Sherman School and by doing so the Board of Education would be able to keep the number around 20 students for each available kindergarten class. In order to distribute the students evenly it was necessary to change the manner in which they were assigned to the two schools. In changing the geographic designation from Spruce Street to Walnut the Board of Education did not affect only T.M. it also affected ten other kindergarten students living on Walnut Street or in that immediate area. This geographical change was applied uniformly to all kindergarten students who would be attending the Roselle Park schools in that particular year. The Board of Education did not single out T.M. or any other student and move them based upon considerations other than geography and available classrooms that met the desired size.

It is certainly understandable that G.M. would prefer his child go the Robert Gordon School based upon the easy access to the child's grandparents and other family members from that location. While this is understandable the school board may not look at each individual child and decide whose personal reasons are more compelling for attendance at one school than another. Absent some form of actual impediment to attendance or extraordinary circumstance boards must act in a manner that treats all students equally. While T.M. will have more actual intersections to cross on her way to kindergarten the actual distance from her home to the two schools is not signficantly different. T.M. lives 4.5 tenths of a mile from the Sherman School and 3.0 tenths of a mile from the Robert Gordon School. The question of placement and location of crossing guards is not within the direct control of the Board of Education. It is however a matter of concern both to the Board of Education and to all parents. The police department makes determinations as to the location of school crossing guards based upon their evaluation of traffic flow and school zones. It is within their area of expertise to determine if a crossing guard is necessary or advisable at any particular location. Should parents have a concern with respect to specific intersections they must turn those concerns over to the police department in order that they might reevaluate the appropriate locations for crossing guards.

While the petitioner has expressed very articulately his concerns and reasons for dissatisfaction with the action of the board he has not shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the action of the Board of Education at the time the decision was made to change the geographic designation for attendance at the two schools, was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing I CONCLUDE that the actions of the Roselle Park Board of Education in changing the geographic designation for students to attend kindergarten in the 1993-94 school year was reasonable.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs that the Board's decision to change the geographic designations for attendance at its various kindergarten classes was neither arbitrary and capricious nor unreasonable, nor did it result in petitioner's child being treated differently from other similarly situated children.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal and upholding the actions of the Board of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

For the Board of Education, William C. Baggitt, Esq.

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition for Declaratory Judgment seeking approval for altering the terms of Board members pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-9. The provisions of the aforesaid statute are set forth in their entirety below

N.J.S.A. 18A:13-9. Reapportionment of membership

> Each apportionment shall continue in effect unless and until a reapportionment shall become necessary by reason of the official promulgation of the next Federal census or the enlargement of the regional district by the admission of one or more local districts. In any such case, immediately after the official promulgation of said census or the certification of a favorable result of the election for enlargement of the regional district the county superintendent or county superintendents of the county or counties in which the constituent districts are situate shall reapportion the members accordingly but all members shall continue in office for the terms for which they were elected or appointed notwithstanding any reapportionment. If any constituent district shall become entitled to increased representation on the board the additional members shall be elected at the next annual school election of the regional district. If, as a result of such reapportionment, a disproportionate number of the total representatives of any one constituent district to a regional board are to be elected at a single annual school election, the commissioner shall have the power, on petition of a constituent district board of education, to alter the term of any member representing such constituent district by not more than 1 year, so as to temporarily apportion, as equally as possible over any given 3-year period, the election of the members representing such constituent district.

It appearing that the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District is an all purpose regional school district as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-2 which is comprised of the constituent municipalities of the Township of West Windsor and the Township of Plainsboro; and

It appearing that as a result of the 1980 census, the County Superintendent of Schools notified the Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District of a reapportionment of Board representatives, five for the Township of West Windsor and four for the Township of Plainsboro; and

It appearing that as a result of said reapportionment, all of the School Board members are elected for three-year terms; however, elections are not held in each district every year. A ten-year projection of the effect of this is shown below:

It appearing that the School Board deems it to be in the best interest of the School District and of the public to temporarily reschedule terms as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-9 so as to achieve the result of holding an election in each district every year; and

It appearing that each member of the Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District signed a Resolution, which was adopted on December 14, 1993, requesting the Board Secretary and Board Attorney to submit a proposed plan for the reapportionment of the terms of Board members for review and approval by the Commissioner; and

It appearing that on December 27, 1993, the Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District petitioned the Commissioner to alter the terms of the Board members to be elected in the April 1994 and April 1996 elections pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-9, such proposed alteration not affecting the term of any existing Board member, and the Commissioner noting that the full Board membership and the Mercer County Superintendent of Schools support the relief sought by the two petitioning municipalities; now therefore

The Commissioner accepts and makes a part of this order the following proposed method of reapportioning the terms of Board members for the Board of Education of the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District as approved by the parties herein:

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, alleged Board reduced her salary for 1991-92 school year in violation of her tenure rights (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 28-5).

Citing Galloway Township, ALJ found Board complied with law by paying petitioner according to 1988-91 salary schedule and that such payment did not vest in petitioner the right to a salary inconsistent with new collective bargaining agreement. Thus, ALJ concluded petitioner was unable to establish that her salary was unlawfully reduced since her salary was adjusted to reflect the salary to which she was contractually entitled under 1991-94 Agreement between employees' union and the Board. Board's motion for summary judgment was granted.

Commissioner affirmed in part/reversed in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that matter was amenable to summary judgment. However, citing Stockton, Commissioner found that tenured teaching staff member's salary cannot be reduced absent certification of tenure charges to Commissioner or the withholding of an increment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Commissioner denied Board's motion for summary judgment and directed petitioner's salary be held in place until salary guide catches up to salary paid her in 1991.

Record Closed: November 12, 1993 Decided: December 10, 1993

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

This appeal was instituted by the petitioner, Louise Cohen, by a petition filed with the Commissioner of Education on February 25, 1992. Essentially Ms. Cohen alleges that the action of respondent in determining to reduce her salary for the 1991-1992 school year violated her rights and was in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. An answer to the petition was filed by the respondent (South River) on March 16, 1992, in which it essentially argues that the salary paid to the petitioner for the period in question was consistent with law, appropriately negotiated by her representative, the South River Education Association, fully and completely memorialized and embodied in a labor agreement to which the parties agreed.

On March 18, 1992, following the filing of the pleadings in the matter, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the appeal to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Thereafter cross-motions were filed by the parties for summary decision in the matter. On September 8, 1992, I issued a letter-ruling indicating that a genuine issue of fact and law existed in respect to an argument raised by Mr. Cohen, counsel for the petitioner, at point two of his brief. In his brief counsel argued that a negotiator for the petitioner's bargaining unit and the chief negotiator for the respondent orally agreed that certain salaries, including the petitioner's, would be held at their current level until the new guide "caught up" with them. This process, referred to as "redlining," was alleged by Mr. Cohen to justify entry of summary judgment on his client's behalf if not rebutted; if the assertion was contradicted by the Board, he argued that a hearing would be required to arrive at factual findings concerning the "redlining" question.

In my September 8, 1992 letter ruling denying summary decision, I concluded that, at least in respect to the issue which I have just described above, a hearing would be required. As a further incident of my letter ruling, I indicated to the parties that I thought it best that a status conference be conducted to discuss the parameters of the hearing and to set forth a schedule. That conference was conducted by telephone on November 19, 1992 and its subject matter was memorialized by me in a letter of November 23, 1992. During the course of these conversations, Mr. Golum, on behalf of South River, discussed various issues which touched upon the possibility of further argument being brought to my attention in respect to the ruling denying the motion for summary decision and directing a hearing on the issue of "red lining." Based upon those discussions I noted in my letter of November 23 that a motion for reconsideration of my decision would be contemplated. *

* While insignificant, it was Mr. Golum's recollection in a later telephone conversation that I suggested instituting a motion for reconsideration. That, based upon my recollection, is not entirely accurate. While I did suggest that he institute a motion for reconsideration if he chose to, that suggestion was not prompted by any substantive view that I had held; rather it was based upon the procedure that I suggested that he employ based upon the arguments which he indicated he wished to offer.

Thereafter, by moving papers dated March 5, 1993, South River submitted its motion for reconsideration of my earlier ruling as well as summary decision. Mr. Cohen, on July 30, 1993 submitted his brief in opposition to reconsideration. On August 30, 1993, my office received Mr. Golum's reply brief in the matter. Following a review of the documentary submissions, I attempted to schedule a telephone conference with the parties as soon as it was reasonably possible; as a consequence of an illness from which Mr. Cohen was suffering and from which he has since recovered, that conference could not be conducted until November 12, 1993. Essentially, my concerns in respect to the motion were directed to whether the parties were inclined to receive a ruling exclusively on the motion for consideration, which would then be followed if the motion were granted, by an initial decision fully depositive of all of the issues in the case, or whether they wanted the matter to be decided in its entirety. It was agreed that the case be decided in its entirety (assuming that the motion for reconsideration were granted). Accordingly, I also advised them, based upon their request that I would inform them by telephone by no later than November 29, 1993 in respect to whether plenary proceeding would be required. This was designed to avoid the unnecessary expense and time that the parties might utilize in deposing witnesses and preparing for what would otherwise be unnecessary litigation. They were so advised. Accordingly, the record in the matter closed on the date of the final telephone conference in this matter, November 12, 1993.

PETITIONER'S MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

As will be recalled in my earlier ruling of September 8, 1992, I concluded that a plenary hearing would be required in respect to the argument raised by Mr. Cohen at point two of his brief wherein he describes a purported oral agreement to redline the petitioner's salary. Upon further review and examination of the arguments presented, I have concluded that the existence or nonexistence of that purported oral agreement does not present any genuine issue of fact or law which would require a plenary proceeding and accordingly I hereby GRANT the respondent's motion for reconsideration and CONCLUDE that there are no genuine fact issues which are required to be addressed at a plenary proceeding in respect to any aspect of this case.

For purposes of South River's motion for reconsideration and insofar as it also impacts upon summary decision, the petitioner's representation of the facts and any reasonable inferences drawn from those facts must be accepted as provided for by affidavits and/or certifications. For purposes of the motion for reconsideration and as it relates to the purported conversations at issue addressed to "redlining," the following factual scenario has been adopted.

When the salary guide for the Agreement between the Board of Education of South River, New Jersey and the South River Education Association 1991-94 (hereinafter, 1991-94 Agreement) was proposed, James Sanderson, member of the SREA negotiating team inquired about the status of 12-month employees. Fred Baron, negotiator for the Board, stated that these salaries, including petitioner's, would be redlined. (Sanderson certification, 7/20/92, para. 4). When Mr. Sanderson asked what redlined meant, Mr. Baron explained that these particular employees, including petitioner, would continue at their present salary until the new salary guide caught up with them. This was presented as an uncontroverted contractual interpretation. (Sanderson certification, para. 5). Mr. Sanderson checked several times with Mr. Baron and other members of the SREA negotiating committee to make sure there were no misunderstandings regarding this concept of redlining. All parties were in agreement and at no point did Mr. Baron alter his position. (Sanderson certification, para. 6). It was the understanding of Michael Parise, Uniserve representative of the New Jersey Education Association, Stephanie Scrime, another member of the SREA negotiating committee, and Mr. Sanderson, that redlining was the only manner in which the salary guide would be interpreted. (Sanderson certification, para. 7).

Similarly, Mr. Parise, chief negotiator for the SREA, had a number of conversations with Mr. Baron regarding petitioner and redlining of her salary. Mr. Parise initially spoke with Mr. Baron about petitioner and redlining in the summer of 1991, at which time Mr. Parise and Mr. Baron agreed that any salary schedule agreed upon would include redlining of petitioner's salary. (Parise certification, 7/22/93, para. 7). Mr. Parise and Mr. Baron again discussed petitioner's salary with regard to the October 22, 1991 Memorandum of Understanding (Exhibit A to Parise certification) which did not include petitioner's redlined salary. Mr. Parise asked Mr. Baron if their agreement to redline petitioner's salary needed to be committed to writing. Mr. Baron responded, "no, the law protects Louise Cohen, she has tenure, we cannot reduce her salary." (Parise certification, para. 8). After Mr. Parise learned that petitioner's salary had been reduced, shortly after December 15, 1992, he called Mr. Baron requesting an explanation. Mr. Baron admitted that this reduction was contrary to the understanding reached on October 22, 1991. Mr. Baron said he would talk to Ernest Barberio, Superintendent of South River School District. Thereafter, Mr. Baron contacted Mr. Parise and said the redlining of petitioner's salary was not agreed to by him or the Board.

The factual issue I found to be in dispute in my initial ruling was whether there was an oral agreement between the Board and the SREA that petitioner's salary would be redlined, that is, kept at the level it would have been under the 1988-91 Agreement until her salary under the 1991-1994 Agreement, or some future agreement, reached the 1988-91 Agreement level. Certifications have been submitted from two Board negotiators (Baron Cert. I and II and Hoskins Cert.) and the School Superintendent, who attended every negotiations session, (Barberio Cert. I, II and III) that no such agreement was made. Certifications have been submitted from two SREA negotiators that such agreement was reached.

Petitioner asserts that respondent has offered no new facts or legal arguments that require reconsideration. This is not the case. The argument that the parol evidence rule bars consideration of evidence regarding alleged discussions or oral agreements offered to contradict the written collective bargaining agreement is first raised in Respondent's Brief in Support of Motion for Reconsideration. The parol evidence rule is part of the substantive law of contracts. Additionally, new factual details surrounding the discussions regarding redlining of petitioner's salary have been alleged.

The contract which governs this case is the 1991-1994 Agreement between the Board and the SREA. Petitioner persists in attempting to argue that the individual contract she entered with the board for a 1991-92 salary of "$36,685 plus any negotiated adjustment" plus the fact of payment between July 1, 1991 and November 29, 1991 at an annual rate of $47,035, vested her salary at that latter level. See, Petitioner's Brief in Opposition to Motion for Reconsideration, Statement of Facts, page 3, para. 2 and Legal Argument, page 10. However, the 1991-1994 Agreement at page 9 contains the following paragraph:

> Any individual contract between the board and an individual employee, heretofore, or hereafter executed, shall be consistent with the terms of the Agreement. If an individual contract contains any language inconsistent with this Agreement, this Agreement during its duration, shall be controlling.

Additionally, one of the cardinal principles of American labor law is that of exclusive representation by the majority union. Lullo v. International Assoc. of Firefighters Local 1066, 55 N.J. 409 (1970) (Individuals who voted against union representation are nonetheless bound by the majority vote of their colleagues.) Multiple representation of employees encourages rivalries among employee groups and severely handicaps the development of effective negotiations and stable relationships. Lullo v. Local 1066, 55 N.J. at 421. The New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3 provides that

> [P]ublic employees shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employee organization. . .A majority representative of public employees. . .shall be entitled to act for and to negotiate agreements covering all employees. . . (emphasis added)

It is illegal for an employer to by-pass the bargaining agent and engage in negotiations about wages and other working conditions with individual employees. See, Robert Gorman, Basic Text on Labor Law, 1976, page 375, discussing a provision similar to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3 contained in the the National Labor Relations Act which provides "[r]epresentatives designated or selected for the purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the employees . . . shall be the exclusive representative of all employees . . . for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages . . ." (emphasis added), citing, inter alia, Medo Photo Supply Corp. v. NLRB, 321 U.S. 678 (1944) and J.I. Case Co. v. NLRB, 321 U.S. 332 (1944) (individual advantages are a fruitful way of interfering with organization).

"The law of contracts is well settled that a party to a contract cannot rely on extrinsic parol evidence to circumvent the clear and unambiguous terms of the contract." Henry v. Black & Decker, Inc., 779 F.Supp. 778, 785 (D.N.J. 1991) (Former employee cannot rely on oral discussions with employer to contradict the terms of written agreement). "On the theory that all language will bear some different meanings, evidence of the circumstances is always admissible in the construction of integrated agreements, but not for the purpose of giving effect to an intent at variance with any meaning that can be attached to the words. . .Extrinsic. . .evidence is adducible only for the purpose of interpreting the writing- - not for the purpose of modifying or enlarging or curtailing its terms. . .So far as evidence tends to show not the meaning of the writing, but an intention wholly unexpressed in the writing, it is irrelevant." Casriel v. King, 2 N.J. 45, 50-51 (1949).

"The touchstone of the [parol evidence] rule's application is the fact of an 'integrated' written contract, and 'integrated' is a word of art. An agreement is integrated where the parties thereto adopt a writing or writings as the final and complete expression of the agreement. An integration is the writing or writings adopted." U.S. v. Clementon Sewerage Authority, 365 F.2d 609, 613 (3d Cir. 1966). "If the writing contains a statement to the effect that it is the complete and final statement of the agreement, the courts may give the statement conclusive effect in determining integration." U.S. v. Clementon Sewerage Auth., 365 F.2d at 614. (citing Zone Co. v. Service Transportation Co., Inc., 137 N.J.L. 112 (1948) ("Where there is a clear implication of fact from the writing itself that it fully expresses the whole bargain between the parties (here it is explicit), contradiction of the implication by parol evidence is no more permissible than the contradiction of the express terms of the writing." Zone Co. v. Service Transportation Co., Inc., 137 N.J.L. at 117.))

There can be little doubt that the 1991-1994 Agreement constitutes an integrated written contract. The Agreement provides:

> This Agreement represents and incorporates the complete and final understanding and settlement of the parties of all bargainable issues which were or could have been the subject of negotiations. During the term of the Agreement, neither party will be required to negotiate with respect to any matter that was within the knowledge or contemplation of either or both of the parties at the time they negotiated or signed this Agreement.

1991-1994 Agreement, page 10.

Petitioner points to no terms of the 1991-1994 Agreement which are vague or ambiguous, the interpretation of which would be aided by the parol evidence. Instead, it is clear that the parol evidence is being offered to vary the written salary schedule contained in the Agreement or to add a material term, that if indeed intended, should reasonably have been expressly included in the writing.

Additionally, "[t]he [parol evidence] rule operates in favor of or against a third party who was not a party to the written integration. If there [is] a complete integration, the rule is the same no matter who asserts or denies [the terms of the agreement]; the intention of the parties is equally binding upon strangers to the instrument." Atlantic Northern Airlines, Inc. v. Schwimmer, 12 N.J. 293, 301 (1953) (citations omitted)

Invocation of the parol evidence rule to collective bargaining agreements is particularly appropriate. See, Adams v. Jersey Central Power & Light Co., 21 N.J. 8 (1956):

> We find no error in the rejection of parol testimony with respect to discussions that took place prior to the final drafting of the collective bargaining contract, since this proof consists merely of views expressed by those who were participating in the discussions and offers no help in determining what was subsequently agreed on. The proof was clearly inadmissible under Casriel v. King, 2 N.J. 45 (1949).

Adams v. Jersey Central Power & Light Co., 21 N.J. at 16.

None of the negotiators involved has the authority to bind the entities he or she represents. The negotiators for the SREA must present the written contract to the SREA membership which holds power to ratify it. Similarly, the labor consultant who negotiated for the Board merely recommends the contract to the Board which, again, holds the power to accept or reject it. Neither the SREA membership nor the School Board partook in any discussions of proposed redlining of salaries. Nor is there any language in the Agreement which reasonably supports an interpretation that redlining was intended.

It is of course true that parol evidence is sometimes admitted to contradict apparently unambiguous contractual language. "Even when the contract on its face is free from ambiguity, evidence of the situation of the parties and the surrounding circumstances and conditions is admissible in aid of interpretation. The inquiry is the meaning of the words when assayed by the standard adopted by the law." Casriel v. King, 2 N.J. at 50-51. For example, "[i]n evaluating claims of mutual mistake and fraud, a court necessarily must look beyond the four corners of the contract." Conforti v. Guliadis, 128 N.J. 318, 327 (1992) (The Court's well established equitable power to modify property distributions can be used to examine the intent of the parties (former spouses) in entering a lease which allows one spouse to sell the property at any time and terminate the lease.) Ace Stone, Inc. v. Wayne Township, 47 N.J. 431 (1966) provides another example of the acceptance of parol evidence despite apparently unambiguous contractual language. In Ace Stone, Inc. The Court allowed parol evidence of the circumstances attending the contract including trade practices and customs to determine whether a "no damage" clause ("No claim for damages or any claim other than for an extension of time as herein provided shall be made or asserted against the [Township] by reason of the delays hereinbefore mentioned.") contemplated barring contractor's claim based on Township's failure to have acquired the easements necessary for the construction of sewer lines. Petitioner sets forth a passage from Kearny, P.B.A. Local 21 v. Town of Kearny, 81 N.J. 208, 221 (1979) (Petitioner's Brief in Opposition to Motion for Reconsideration, p. 13). The question in this case was whether "standby" time was includable in computing hours worked and therefore, whether or not officers were entitled to overtime compensation. The Court acknowledged that "[w]hat occurred during negotiations frequently will throw light upon the parties intent as expressed in the written contract." Kearny P.B.A. Local 21, 81 N.J. at 222. The difference between Kearny P.B.A. Local 21 and the case at hand is that Kearny P.B.A. Local 21 clearly involved interpretation of contractual language not supplantation.

Damaging to Respondents motion for summary decision is the alleged statement by Mr. Baron, Board negotiator, in response to an inquiry by Mr. Parise as to whether the agreement to redline petitioner's salary needed to be committed to writing, that "No, the law protects Louise Cohen, she has tenure. We cannot reduce her salary." Also damaging is the alleged acknowledgement by Mr. Baron, after learning of the reduction in petitioner's salary, that such reduction was contrary to the understanding reached. The first statement is denied by Mr. Baron and no response was made regarding the latter assertion. Though perhaps making the determination as to whether summary judgment should be granted to the Respondent more difficult, these statements are not fatal to Respondent's Motion. The problems raised by these statements illustrate the policy behind the parol evidence rule. With regard to the first statement, assuming in fact it was made, as we must in a motion for summary decision, the meaning is far from unambivalent. Did Mr. Cohen mean that petitioner's salary could not be reduced below the $36,685 she received for the 1990-91 school year or the $47,035 she received after July 1, 1991? Alternatively, did Mr. Baron misunderstand the law? Could it have been intended as negotiating "puffing"?

If in fact the statement was made and the meaning intended was as now asserted by petitioner, the question arises whether the SREA negotiators were reasonable in relying on such statement in the face of clear and contrary contractual language. Petitioner has not alleged deliberate misrepresentation by the Board negotiator nor do the defenses to contract formation of mutual mistake or unilateral mistake appear to be applicable. They have not been alleged by Petitioner.

The clear statement in the 1991-1994 Agreement that it constituted an integrated, written agreement, the absence of ambiguous or uncertain contractual language the interpretation of which would be aided by the parol evidence, the presumed equal sophistication of the bargaining parties, and the lack of any allegations of fraud in the inducement to approve the contract or mistake, lead to the conclusion that the parol evidence rule bars consideration of the alleged oral agreement to redline petitioner's salary.

Absent the effect of the parol evidence rule whether there had been oral agreement to redline petitioner's salary would be a genuine issue of material fact. The workings of the parol evidence rule, however, render these alleged discussions and agreement irrelevant. It doesn't matter whether they took place or not. The petitioner's salary pursuant to the unambiguous 1991-1994 Agreement is uncontested.

The alleged discussions and oral agreement is also rendered irrelevant by the fact that they took place between SREA and Board negotiators which lack the authority to contractually bind their respective organizations and there is no contractual language which can reasonably support the assertion that redlining was intended.

Accordingly, and based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact in respect to the purported redlining of the petitioner's salary and accordingly the motion for reconsideration is GRANTED.

B.

THE CROSS-MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Having concluded that there are no genuine fact issues and having adopted the facts as set forth above, the only substantive argument to be addressed at this time is whether, as the petitioner asserts, South River unlawfully reduced her salary in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 each provide that a tenured school teacher may not receive a reduction in compensation except for just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation, (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment . . . except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing. . .

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 reiterates this protection against dismissal or reduced compensation except for good cause and specifies that a teaching staff member shall be tenured after employment in the district for three consecutive years.

Galloway Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. Galloway Twp. Ed. Assn., 78 N.J. 25 (1978), is dispositive of the case at hand. In Galloway, the court held that the unilateral decision of the school board to withhold increments at the beginning of a new school year, that would have been due under the salary schedule provided in the then expired collective bargaining agreement, constituted an unlawful failure to bargain in good faith and an unlawful interference with the employees' right to form and join labor unions for collective bargaining purposes, in violation of N.J.S.A. 34:13A5-3.[1] Under Galloway, if the South River Board of Education unilaterally failed to pay petitioner the salary to which she was entitled under the previous collective bargaining agreement during the period of time from expiration of the previous agreement to the adoption of the new agreement, the Board would have committed an unfair labor practice. The Respondent was statutorily required to abide by the salary schedules established by the expired collective bargaining agreement until a new agreement was negotiated and adopted.

In Galloway, the 1974-75 collective bargaining agreement expired on June 30, 1975. When school resumed in September of 1975, a new collective bargaining agreement between the board and the employees had not yet been adopted. In the face of no new collective bargaining agreement, the school board unilaterally determined to pay employees the same salary they had earned the previous year, and to not pay any salary increment to which the employees would automatically be entitled, based on years of service, if the 1974-75 agreement were still in effect.

[1] N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3 provides that the representatives selected by the majority of public employees, of an appropriate unit, shall be the exclusive representative for collective negotiation for all employees of that unit. Furthermore, all "[p]roposed new rules or modifications of existing rules governing working conditions shall be negotiated with the majority representative," and "the majority representative and designated representatives of the public employer shall . . . negotiate in good faith with respect to . . . terms and conditions of employment."

In the Galloway case, the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) took the position that the automatic payment of the scheduled annual salary increment was one of the existing terms and conditions of employment despite expiration of the agreement. The 1974-75 agreement contained a salary schedule specifying annual increments for each additional year of service. Therefore, the Board's failure to pay the increment upon start of the new school year constituted a unilateral alteration of the status quo. The school board argued that it was maintaining the status quo by not paying the increments. The Supreme Court found that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1[2] commands the conclusion that in the absence of a new salary schedule, the 1974-75 salary schedule, with its annual increments for each additional year of service, remained operative and obligated the board to pay according to it. Galloway Twp. Bd. of Ed., 78 N.J. at 51.

The factual distinction between Galloway and the case at bar appears to be one source of the confusion and disagreement between petitioner and respondent as to what was agreed between them. In the current matter, twelve-month employees of the South River board of education, including petitioner, were paid, beginning July 1, 1991, the salary increase to which they were entitled under the expired 1988-91 Agreement. Certification of Fred Baron, August 13, 1993, para. 5. Upon agreement of the South River board and employees' union, nine-month employees were paid, beginning in September of 1991, the same salary they earned the previous year. Nine-month employees were not paid the salary increment for years of service which they would have earned under the 1988-91 Agreement. Id. Therefore, during September and October, 1991, some South River employees were being paid what they earned the prior year and some employees were paid an increment consistent with the expired agreement. The

2. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 provides that one, two, or three year salary schedules adopted by a board of education shall be binding upon the adopting board and upon all future boards in the same district for a period of one, two, or three three years from the effective date of such schedule. Cases citing to this provision do not aid the analysis in the case at hand.

Galloway Board acted unilaterally to withhold salary increments from all employees. However, as far as application of the Galloway rule to this case, and the conclusive effect of the salary schedules contained in the 1991-94 Agreement, this is a distinction without a difference.

Petitioner asserts that Galloway has no bearing on this case because Galloway "only applies to cases in which employees are denied an advancement or raise merely because a new collective negotiations agreement is not ready." Petitioner's Brief in Opposition to Motion for Summary Decision, pg. 8. Petitioner's attempt to limit Galloway is in effect a concession that, under Galloway, if petitioner had been denied the salary increment called for by the 1988-91 agreement, respondent would have been vulnerable to an unfair labor practices charge. Petitioner concedes that Galloway stands for the proposition that "in the absence of any agreement at all, the salary guide of the old collective negotiations agreement will apply until a new collective negotiations agreement is adopted."

It was earlier concluded that the parol evidence rule barred consideration of petitioner's evidence of alleged oral agreement between board and union negotiators to "redline" or "red circle" petitioner's salary at $47,035. Therefore, petitioner must rely on the proposition that the individual contract between the board and petitioner for a 1991-92 salary of "$36,685 plus any negotiated adjustment," plus the fact of payment between July 1, 1991 and November 29, 1991 at an annual rate of $47,035, created in her a contractual right, and in the board a contractual obligation, to this latter amount. See, Petitioner of Appeal, February 24, 1992, Motion for Summary Decision, July 21, 1992, pages 6-7. Petitioner must also assert the ascendancy of this individual contract over the 1991-94 collective bargaining agreement. In this, petitioner must fail.

For the reasons already set forth, petitioner's reliance on the individual contract is misplaced. The union is the employees' exclusive representative and the collective bargaining agreement explicitly provides that any conflicting provision in any contract with an individual employee is preempted. The New Jersey Legislature has "recognized that the unilateral imposition of working conditions is the antithesis of its goal that the terms and conditions of public employment be established through bilateral negotiation and. . .agreement between the public employer and the majority representative of its employees." Galloway, 78 N.J. at 48. It is illegal for the school board to offer salary or other benefits to individual employees which are inconsistent with the collective bargaining agreement. Cf., D'Arrigo v. New Jersey Board of Mediation, 119 N.J. 74, 78 (1990) (Exclusive representation by the representative chosen by a majority of the employees is now at the core of our national labor policy.)

The cases citing to Galloway offer no reason to question the applicability of the rule established by Galloway to this case. The question in Board of Ed. of Bernards Twp. v. Bernards Twp. Ed. Assn., 79 N.J. 311 (1979) concerned the validity of a clause of the collective bargaining agreement which provided that disputes concerning the withholding of a teacher's salary increment for inefficiency or other good cause, shall be subject to advisory, as opposed to binding, arbitration. Stating that the "decision to withhold an increment is therefore an essential managerial prerogative delegated by the Legislature to the Board [that] cannot be bargained away," Board of Ed. of Bernards Twp., 79 N.J. at 321, the Court distinguished the holding in Galloway. "In Galloway, we held that a board's unilateral alteration of an automatic right to an annual salary increment, during the course of collective negotiations, constituted an unfair labor practice." Board of Ed. of Bernards Twp., 79 N.J. at 321-322, n. 2. In Galloway there was no claim that the teachers' salary increments were withheld for inefficiency , incapacity, or other just cause. Id.

See, also, In re Piscataway Twp. Board of Education, 164 N.J.Super. 98 (App. Div. 1978) (Unilateral reduction of the yearly term of employment from 12 months to 10 months and proportionate reduction in salary violated the spirit and the text of the Employer-Employee Relations Act and was an unfair labor practice.); In the Matter of Maywood Bd. of Education, 168 N.J. Super. 45 (App. Div.), cert. denied, 81 N.J. 292 (1979) (A change in the length of the teachers' work day is mandatorily negotiated.); Ramapo-Indian Hills Education Assn. v. Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional High School Board of Ed., 176 N.J. Super. 35 (App. Div. 1980) (Compensation for a newly created post must be established through bilateral negotiations.)

Galloway Twp. Board of Ed. v. Galloway Twp. Ed. Assn. strongly supports respondent's position that it was merely complying with the law by paying petitioner according to the 1988-91 salary schedule and that such payment did not vest in petitioner the right to a salary inconsistent with the new collective bargaining agreement. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has been unable to establish that her salary was unlawfully reduced in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. I further CONCLUDE that her salary was adjusted to reflect the salary to which she was contractually entitled under 1991-94 Agreement between the employees' union and the South River Board of Education. It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent's motion for summary decision be and is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH RIVER, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner reverses in part and accepts in part the initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that this matter is amenable to summary judgment for the reasons suggested in the initial decision. Specifically, the Commissioner concurs that parol evidence as to what unwritten agreements may have been struck between the negotiators for the South River Education Association (SREA) and the Board is not relevant to a determination as to whether petitioner's rights under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law were abridged by the Board's 1991-94 collective bargaining agreement's salary provisions. He so finds for the reasons expressed in the Reconsidered Initial Decision.

However, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 mandate that a tenured teaching staff member's salary cannot be reduced absent certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner or the withholding of an increment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. In the instant matter, it is uncontested that in conformity with Galloway Township, supra, and pursuant to the terms of the expired 1988-91 collective bargaining agreement between SREA and the Board, respondent raised petitioner's salary to $47,035 from a yearly salary of $36,685. It is also uncontested that petitioner received payments corresponding with this arrangement from July 1, 1991 to November 29, 1991. Further, it is undisputed that on November 29, 1991 the Board placed petitioner on Step "G" of the newly ratified collective bargaining agreement, which agreement would result in petitioner's salary being set at $41,101, an amount approximately $6,000 less than she had been paid from July 1, 1991 to November 29, 1991.

While it is not within the Commissioner's purview to consider the proper application of the Galloway Township holding, see Board of Education of Neptune Township, Monmouth County v. Neptune Township Education Association et. al., decided by the Commissioner February 16, 1993, this matter turns on the statute prohibiting the reduction of salary of a tenured employee and the case law interpreting it. Hence, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Board is prohibited pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 from placing her at a step on the new guide which would effectively reduce her salary from its previous level. See, e.g., Charles Stockton v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, 1987 S.L.D 512 and 210 N.J. Super. 150 (App. Div. 1986).

Accordingly, the Commissioner reverses that part of the initial decision finding that petitioner failed to demonstrate that her salary was unlawfully reduced in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Instead, the Commissioner denies the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment and further directs that petitioner's salary be held in place at the salary she was paid from July 1, 1991 to November 29, 1991 until the salary guide catches up to the salary she was paid during that period.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On June 22, 1992, petitioner, Ellen Deutsch, a nontenured teacher, filed a petition of appeal against respondent, Livingston Board of Education, essentially alleging that she had been improperly terminated. On July 1, 1992, respondent filed an answer denying the allegations. On July 14, 1992, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On August 6, 1992, petitioner filed an amended petition of appeal alleging that respondent failed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 to act on petitioner's employment by April 30, 1992, that the superintendent had impermissibly usurped the power of the Board of Education and his actions were without authority or approval of respondent, that petitioner had been deprived of her due process rights, and that petitioner was terminated for proscribed reasons in violation of her constitutional rights against discrimination. On or about August 19, 1992, respondent filed its answer to the amended petition of appeal denying the allegations contained therein.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on October 1, 1992, at which time the issues were isolated, and a hearing scheduled for April 12, 13, and 14, 1993 at the Office of Administrative Law.

By letter dated March 29, 1993, petitioner requested an adjournment of the scheduled hearing. A conference was held with counsel on April 2, 1993, during which respondent indicated that it would be moving for summary decision. Dates were established for the filing of the motion, and the hearing rescheduled to October 6, 7 and 8, 1993. Respondent filed its motion for summary decision on May 4, 1993. Petitioner filed its brief in opposition to the motion on June 9, 1993. On June 16, 1993, respondent filed a reply, which was supplemented on July 19, 1993. Oral argument was held on July 22, 1993, at which time the undersigned judge granted respondent's motion for summary decision on the issue of procedural due process and violation of contractual rights, dismissing the portion of the petition in regard to those issues. On August 2, 1993, the undersigned judge signed a decision setting forth with particularity the reasons for partially granting respondent's motion for summary decision in this matter. The remaining issue was scheduled for hearing on October 6, 7 and 8, 1993. A settlement conference was scheduled for August 31, 1993 at the Office of Administrative Law and adjourned at the request of petitioner's attorney. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties, a settlement was reached on October 1, 1993, and the hearing was adjourned.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared a Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms of settlement which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms, and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, February 3, 1994

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 30, 1994

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, December 7, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Morrissey, Rotolo & DiDonato (Joseph J. Rotolo, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Purcell, Ries, Shannon, Mulcahy & O'Neill (Joseph F. Skinner, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter was initiated on October 5, 1993, when Maria Scannella (hereinafter "complainant") filed a certified complaint with the New Jersey School Ethics Commission, alleging violations of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 et seq.[1] Complainant alleged that Carol Scudillo (hereinafter "respondent"), a member of the Board of Education of the City of Garfield, had violated

[1] The School Ethics Act was adopted by the Legislature in 1991 and was predicated on its findings that school board members and local school administrators should have the benefit of specific standards to guide their conduct and of some disciplinary mechanism to ensure the uniform maintenance of those standards among them so as to ensure and preserve public confidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31, and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22 of the School Ethics Act ("Act").[2]

Complainant asserted that respondent had violated the School Ethics Act when she cast the fifth and deciding vote to appoint her son-in-law as district superintendent of schools and that she had been on the personnel committee which had recommended the appointment. Complainant also alleged that she had witnessed respondent violating the Act by "soliciting" goods to the principal of one of the district's schools. Complainant attested that she "knew by speaking to several teachers" that this practice had been going on for "a long time."

Complainant urged an example should be made of respondent, not only because of her "outrageous" conduct at that time, "but for the constant and blatant arrogance and disrespect to her elected position, and, in the past, with the constant promotion of her daughter and her husband in the District."

On November 20, 1993, respondent filed a certification with the New Jersey School Ethics Commission (hereinafter "Ethics Commission" or "Commission") in response to the complaint. Therein, she denied all allegations of unethical conduct represented in the complaint and requested dismissal thereof.

By letter of November 30, 1993, the Deputy Director of the Ethics Commission notified respondent that the matter had been placed on the Commission's agenda for its meeting of December 8. She further advised respondent that:

[2] Ms. Scannella also complained of violations of the School Ethics Act by another Board member, the Board president, and the Board's Personnel Committee. These allegations were dismissed by the Ethics Commission for lack of probable cause on December 8, 1993, and, hence, are not involved in this appeal.

> At the meeting, the School Ethics Commission may take one of several actions. The Commission may table the matter and ask for additional information and/or legal advice, the Commission may dismiss that matter, or the Commission may determine that probable cause exists for a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law, or the Commission may ask you to enter into a Consent Order if the facts are not in dispute, in lieu of a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law. The language of the Consent Order may indicate the belief of the Commission that a violation has occurred and may include a mutually agreed upon settlement. Possible sanctions include reprimand, censure, suspension, or removal.

The course which the Ethics Commission embarked upon on December 8 was not one of those enumerated in the November 30 letter. The Commission determined that there was probable cause to credit complainant's allegations concerning both respondent's vote to hire her son-in-law and the sale of gloves to school employees. However, as the Ethics Commission's Acting Executive Director advised respondent in a letter dated December 10:

> ...As the material facts regarding these allegations are undisputed, both the complainant and respondent will be given the opportunity to submit to the Commission written arguments as to whether the undisputed facts demonstrate any violation of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.

Respondent did not concur with this view. To the contrary, in her brief dated January 3, 1994, she continued to contest the factual basis of the allegations, again denying the charges and contending that the complaint against her should be dismissed with prejudice. Although she had not specifically addressed complainant's charge of solicitation in her certification of November 20, respondent set forth her version of the circumstances surrounding this allegation in detail in her brief, denying that she had ever solicited the sale of any products at any school function or Board meeting. In contrast to the circumstances alleged in the complaint, respondent's brief recounted that

> At the conclusion of the [P.T.A.] meeting, the School Principal, Peter DeFranco, asked Carol Scudillo to come into his office. Some time prior to the evening, Mr. DeFranco had purchased two pairs of gloves from Carol for his wife. On the night in question, Mr. DeFranco was returning a pair of gloves that his wife did not want to purchase. As Carol was talking to Mr. DeFranco, Maria Scannella entered the office. Maria Scannella did not say anything to either Carol Scudillo or Mr. DeFranco. She was present only for a brief moment and then left Mr. DeFranco's office to enter an adjoining office. There was never any listing on Mr. DeFranco's desk concerning school personnel to whom Carol Scudillo intended to distribute gloves. This statement in the Complaint is completely false.

Respondent's brief, at 10.

In contradiction, complainant's brief, dated January 6, asserted that > Board member Carol Scudillo has engaged in business transactions with Board of Education employees for the purpose of financial gain. Mrs. Scudillo was witnessed soliciting for the sale of gloves from her place of regular employment to the principal of one the Garfield's schools. In addition, Mrs. Scudillo has solicited for the sale of these gloves to several teachers within the district as well as soliciting to the Superintendent of Schools and members of his staff.

>
> Once again, these allegations have been admitted, in their entirety, by Mrs. Scudillo.

Complainant's Brief, at 3.

On January 13, 1994, counsel for complainant filed a reply submission in response to respondent's submission of January 3, 1994. He stated that he had reviewed the statement of facts contained therein, but had found it unnecessary to comment on them because those pages were "without substance or import" "in view of the fact that the facts are not in dispute...". He however reiterated in this submission that the facts regarding the sale of gloves to school employees "have been admitted...."

In her memorandum of January 19, respondent once again took issue with the factual assertions material to complainant's allegations, including both those relating to her vote for her son-in-law for superintendent and those relating to the charge of solicitation.

By a decision adopted on February 3, 1994, the School Ethics Commission found that respondent had violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c)[3] when she cast a vote in favor of her son-in-law to become superintendent of schools for the Garfield Public Schools. It further concluded that Respondent had violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b)[4] and (d)[5] when she sold gloves to school

3 N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) provides that:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment....

4 N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) provides:

> No school official shall use or attempt to use his official position to secure unwarranted privileges, advantages or employment for himself, members of his immediate family or other;

5 N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(d) provides:

> No school official shall undertake any employment or service, whether compensated or not, which might reasonably be expected to prejudice his independence of judgment in the exercise of his official duties; employees. Both of these determinations rested on factual findings derived from the written submissions of the parties.

The Commission then determined that respondent's violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) was "deliberate and serious." Nevertheless, the Commission concurred with respondent's view that > ...since the School Ethics Act is new and has never addressed a situation where a board member was penalized for voting for a relative through marriage, removal would be too severe a penalty.

The Commission concluded that, therefore, a three month suspension from membership on the district Board would be the appropriate sanction for respondent's conduct, and it recommended to the Commissioner of Education that he impose this as the penalty.[6]

The Ethics Commission further determined that respondent had derived little or no profit from the sale of gloves and that there was no evidence that her activity was "abusive." It therefore recommended that the Commissioner issue a letter of reprimand for respondent's violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and (d), admonishing respondent for her actions and advising her not to

6 The School Ethics Act provides that if the Ethics Commission finds a violation of the Act it > ...shall by majority vote, recommend to the commissioner the reprimand, censure, suspension, or removal of the school official found to have violated this act. The commission shall state in writing its findings of fact and conclusions of law. The commissioner shall then act on the commission's recommendation regarding the sanction.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c).

We also note that, in contrast to the appeals procedure provided for under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq., any appeal from the Ethics Commission's determination of a violation of the School Ethics Act, as well as of the Commissioner's decision as to the sanction, is to the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(d).

sell items from her workplace to district employees in the future.

On February 7, 1994, the Ethics Commission transmitted its decision to the Commissioner of Education for his determination of the sanction to be imposed.[7]

On March 30, 1994, based on his review of the "asserted allegations" and "upon review of the Commission's findings of fact and conclusions of law," the Commissioner of Education concluded that he could not accept the Ethics Commission's recommendation as to the sanction to be imposed on respondent. The Commissioner rejected the Ethics Commission's view that although the statute was "seriously and deliberately" violated, the most severe penalty should not be imposed because the law was "new." The Commissioner instead reasoned as follows:

> [T]he statute specifically prohibits a board member from acting in any matter where the board member has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement. The respondent refrained from acting against the public trust when she first abstained from voting when her son-in-law was appointed as acting superintendent. Subsequently, respondent's actions violated that trust and the dictates of the statute when voting to appoint him superintendent.
> Moreover, her act of soliciting the sale of gloves was also found to have created the justifiable impression that the public trust was violated in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and (d).

Therefore, the Commissioner concluded, respondent should be removed from her position as a member of the district Board.

Our Legal Committee issued its Report in this matter on September 21, 1994, recommending that the State Board of Education set aside both the Ethics Commission's determination as to the alleged violations of the School Ethics Act and the Commissioner's decision as to the sanction. This recommendation was grounded in the conclusion that, although respondent had repeatedly contested the material facts underlying the allegations against her, the School Ethics Commission had failed to follow the statutory and regulatory prescription that she be provided a hearing in these circumstances.

Complainant filed exceptions to the Report on October 4, 1994, contending that respondent had never disputed the facts salient to the vote she cast for her son-in-law. Complainant further contented that it was proper for the Ethics Commission to have acted expeditiously in penalizing respondent because public confidence in the Garfield School District had been seriously undermined of late by the Superintendent and another board member.

Subsequently, a memorandum sent in December 1993 to the Chairman of the School Ethics Commission by a Deputy Attorney General was brought to our attention. See 93-0122: Whether the School Ethics Commission Must Refer a Matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a Hearing as a Contested Case Upon a Finding of Probable Cause (December 1, 1993). In that it appeared that the contents of the memorandum might be relevant to the issues involved in this appeal, the State Board provided the parties with the opportunity to respond to it. We then directed that the memorandum be included in the record.

We have reviewed complainant's exceptions to the Legal Committee's report of September 21, and find them to be without merit. We stress that even if public confidence in the Garfield Board has been undermined by the conduct of the Superintendent and a board member, this can not justify denying due process to respondent.

We have also considered the memorandum that was provided to us after our Legal Committee's initial report was issued. This reinforces our conclusions that the decisions below can not be sustained on the basis of the agency record that has been developed thus far and that we must remand this matter to the Ethics Commission.

The procedures which the Ethics Commission must follow in making its determinations with respect to complaints of alleged violations of the School Ethics Act are specified by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. The terms of this statutory provision are clear and unambiguous. After receipt and service of a complaint, the named school official must be provided the opportunity to submit a written statement under oath. The statute then provides that:

> b.... The commission shall thereafter decide by majority vote whether probable cause exists to credit the allegations in the complaint. If the commission decides that probable cause does not exist, it shall dismiss the complaint and shall so notify the complainant and any school official named in the complaint. The dismissal shall constitute final agency action. If the commission determines that probable cause exists, it shall refer the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing to be conducted in accordance with the "Administrative Procedures Act, " P.L. 1968, c 410 (C.52:14B-1 et seq.), and shall so notify the complainant and each school official named in the complaint.
> c. Upon completion of the hearing, the commission, by majority vote, shall determine whether the conduct complained of constitutes a violation of this act or whether the complaint should be dismissed. If a violation is found, the commission shall, by majority vote, recommend to the commissioner the reprimand, censure, suspension, or removal of the school official found to have violated this act. The commission > shall state in writing its findings of fact and conclusions of law. The commissioner shall then act on the Commission's recommendation regarding the sanction.

(Emphasis added).

The Commission's obligations are also specified in the regulations adopted by the State Board of Education. Like the statute it implements, the pertinent regulatory provision provides that when the Ethics Commission determines that probable cause exists to credit allegations in a complaint, it shall refer the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing to be conducted in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act. N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.18(f).

We recognize that the Administrative Procedure Act does not require that an Administrative Law Judge conduct a full evidentiary hearing in every case. Cunningham v. Department of Civil Service, 69 N.J. 13 (1975); N.J.A.C. 1:1-1 et seq. Hence, if there are no disputed facts in a given matter and resolution of a complaint under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29 requires only the application of the law to the undisputed facts, a given matter might properly be resolved by the Ethics Commission after giving the parties the opportunity to be heard. See memorandum 93-0122, supra. at 2. However, if there are disputed facts, an evidentiary hearing must be conducted. See id.

There is no question that this case was a contested case requiring an adjudicatory hearing before a penalty could be imposed on respondent. Hills Development v. Bernards Tp., 229 N.J. Super. 318, 340-341 (App. Div. 1988). Respondent answered the complaint and repeatedly contested the facts material to the allegations against her with respect to both the charge of nepotism and that of "solicitation." Despite this, the Commission did not alter the view embodied in its letter of December 10 that the material facts were not disputed. It therefore decided this matter solely on the basis of the written submissions. Based upon these submissions, the Commission concluded that respondent had solicited the sale of gloves and that her conduct in casting a vote for her son-in-law was a "serious and deliberate violation" of the School Ethics Act. Judgments such as these could not properly be made without an adjudicatory hearing conforming with the requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act. In re Uniform Adm'v Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. 85 (1982). See In re Township of Warren, 247 N.J. Super. 146 (App. Div. 1991); Hills Development v. Bernards Tp. 229 N.J. Super. 318, 340-341 (App. Div. 1988).

In contrast to the opportunity that was afforded respondent in this case, the Administrative Procedure Act provides that "opportunity shall be afforded all parties [in contested cases] to respond, appear and present evidence and argument on all issues involved." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c). "Any party in a contested case may present his case or defense by oral and documentary evidence, submit rebuttal evidence and conduct such cross-examination as may be required, in the discretion of the administrative law judge, for a full and true disclosure of the facts." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(a).

Consequently, the proper course at this point is to reverse the Ethics Commission's determinations with respect to the alleged violations of the School Ethics Act and to remand the matter to the Ethics Commission with the direction that it transmit the case to OAL for hearing. Similarly, because the Commissioner's decision as to the appropriate sanction in this case was grounded in the Ethics Commission's factual findings and determinations with respect to the violations, we must set that judgment aside and direct that the Commissioner consider the case anew once the Ethics Commission issues its decision on remand.

We express no opinion as to the merits of the allegations against respondent. Our decision rests solely on the fact that no penalty should be imposed upon an individual unless he or she has been afforded due process. This is an essential element of justice, and its importance is heightened where, as here, the Commissioner of Education has relied upon Ethics Commission findings as to the respondent's state of mind in determining what penalty should be imposed. We stress that our primary duty in this context is, as is that of the Ethics Commission and the Commissioner, to insure that justice is done.

In that there has not yet been any determination as to the merits, the effect of our decision is to return the situation to the status that existed before the Commissioner directed respondent's removal from the Board. We do not retain jurisdiction.

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, February 3, 1994

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 30, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Morrissey, Rotolo & DiDonato (Joseph J. Rotolo, Esq., of Counsel)

This case involves a complaint filed on October 5, 1993, by Maria Scannella (complainant) with the New Jersey School Ethics Commission, alleging that Carol Scudillo (respondent), a member of the Board of Education of the City of Garfield, had violated various provisions of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 et seq. The Ethics Commission resolved the case without referring the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, finding that respondent had violated the School Ethics Act and recommending to the Commissioner of Education that he impose a sanction of three months' suspension on respondent. The Commissioner rejected the sanction recommended by the Ethics Commission and instead directed respondent's removal from the Board.

Our Legal Committee issued its Report in this matter on

December 7, 1994

September 21, 1994, and, as provided by our regulations, mailed it to both parties. N.J.A.C. 6:2-3.1(d)

Subsequently, a memorandum sent in December 1993 to the Chairman of the School Ethics Commission by a Deputy Attorney General was brought to our attention. Memorandum 93-0122: Whether the School Ethics Commission Must Refer a Matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a Hearing as a Contested Case Upon a Finding of Probable Cause (December 1, 1993). In that it appeared that the contents of the memorandum might be relevant to the issues involved in this appeal, we advised the parties that it was our intention to direct its inclusion in the record. Although we provided them with the opportunity to respond, neither party has objected to the inclusion of this document.

Therefore, as provided for by N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.9, on our own motion, the State Board of Education directs that the record on appeal in this case be supplemented by the inclusion of memorandum 93-0122, dated December 1, 1993, by Deputy Attorney General Geraldine Callahan to the Chairman of the School Ethics Commission.

Daniel J.P. Moroney abstained.

Petitioner, Educational Media Specialist, sought order directing the Board to grant authority to the Educational Media Specialist to supervise the noncertified support members of the Library/Media Center staff and to grant authority to develop and coordinate the total Educational Media Services program within the district. Petitioner alleged her supervisor (vice principal) to whom she reported was performing out-of-title duties.

Initial decision found person holding a principal endorsement on an administrative certificate is authorized, among other things, to perform the duties involved in supervising a media center and the persons attached to a media center. Certification and endorsement required for a position are determined by duties performed; job title is irrelevant. (Teaneck Education Association) Board's Motion for Summary Judgment was granted. Petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Petition was dismissed.

REBA LIPPINCOTT,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF WATCHUNG HILLS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

Reba Lippincott, petitioner, pro se

Thomas J. Savage, Esq., for respondent (Savage and Serio, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 9, 1993 Decided: December 21, 1993

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Reba Lippincott, petitioner, seeks an order directing the Watchung Hills Regional High School Board of Education, respondent, to grant authority to the Educational Media Specialist to supervise the noncertified support members of the Library/Media Center staff and to grant authority to the Educational Media Specialist to develop and coordinate the total Educational Media Services program within the district. The Board asserts the petitioner has failed to state a claim upon which the Commissioner can grant relief and, in the alternative, that the petitioner has failed to exhaust administrative remedies.

New Jersey Is An Equal Opportunity Employer

The matter was opened on June 2, 1992, when the petitioner, then represented by counsel, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging the supervisor to whom she reports is performing out-of-title duties. The Board filed its answer on July 8, 1992.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held by telephone on October 2, 1992. It was settled that the petitioner sought an order of the Commissioner directing that the Board's Supervisor of Communications cease performing certain responsibilities and that the petitioner be permitted to perform those responsibilities. Counsel were directed to complete discovery. The matter was set down for hearing on February 10, 1993 and counsel were directed to file a joint stipulation of facts not later than January 15, 1993.

On February 8, 1993, counsel represented that the matter could proceed on stipulations of fact and cross-motions for summary judgment. Accordingly, I adjourned the February 10 hearing date and scheduled the appropriate submissions. On March 8, 1993 I wrote to counsel stating that the parties' papers were long overdue and that the matter was set down for hearing on May 4, 1993. On April 22, 1993, I received a letter from the petitioner's counsel announcing that the petitioner had decided to represent herself. A Substitution of Attorney was submitted also.

On April 27, 1993 I received from the petitioner a motion to amend the pleadings along with a request for an adjournment of the May 4 hearing date. I converted the May 4 hearing to a telephone conference. The Board indicated it needed additional information and asked permission to use short interrogatories. I granted the request and set the matter down for hearing on October 20, 1993. The petitioner also indicated she wanted more discovery. Both parties agreed to the October 20, 1993 hearing date.

The Board timely filed its answer to the amended petition. Thereafter, certain discovery problems were addressed. On October 15, 1993, the petitioner moved for summary judgment. The Board cross moved for summary judgment on October 25. The petitioner filed a reply on October 29, 1993. I held the record open for ten days, but received no reply brief from the Board. Accordingly, I closed the record on November 9, 1993.

PARTIES' ARGUMENTS

Petitioner's arguments

The petitioner asserts that the Board has assigned all responsibility to develop, coordinate and implement the services of its media center to Frances Sills. Sills does not hold an educational media specialist endorsement or an associate educational media specialist endorsement. Sills assigns work to the media center personnel. Sills' title is vice principal. The Board adopted this arrangement on September 8, 1992. The educational media specialist, Collier, and the petitioner are not responsible to develop and coordinate media center services. They merely perform services provided by the media center. Neither Collier nor the petitioner has authority over any other staff. There is an audiovisual technician and a secretary. The technician develops and/or coordinates audiovisual equipment services. He supervises the distribution and use of all audiovisual materials under Sills' direction. The technician has exclusive access to the school video collection. He is responsible for cataloging all video materials, the production of instructional materials and the selection and/or ordering of video materials.

Sills directly supervises the secretary. The secretary is not exclusively assigned to the educational media specialist.

Sills supervises the development and implementation of media center services. She is responsible for providing leadership and direction so that the media center goals are fulfilled. She is in charge of developing and coordinating educational video services and coordinating film and video previews to school faculty. She is also in charge of educational television services and processing of interlibrary loan services provided by the media center. Sills develops policies for the selection and ordering of educational media including films and video. Sills provides the same level of supervision to all media center personnel. She visits the media center daily. Sills is not responsible for attending professional media meetings, media workshops or recruiting volunteers to perform clerical duties in the media center. She is in no way responsible for reporting to the certified educational media specialist regarding the institutional plans, anticipating curriculum changes and other matters that affect the internal effectiveness of the center.

The media center has its own educational materials budget. The budget does not include monies for audiovisual materials ordered by the technician, Tuttle. There is a separate budget for his requests. The media center budget does not include monies for educational media materials and computer software ordered by department supervisors. These are also separate budget items.

Sills holds an administrator certificate with principal endorsement. She does not hold a special services certificate. Tuttle holds an instructional certificate with an English teacher endorsement. He does not hold a special services certificate or an educational media specialist endorsement.

The high school budget is administered by the chief school administrator and the Board. Sills administers the media center budget. The educational media specialists participate in acquiring educational media by submitting requests for acquisitions through the secretary. The secretary types the requests and forwards them to Sills. Sills either approves or rejects the requests. Approved requests are submitted to the chief school administrator either for final approval or rejection.

The technician participates in acquiring educational media in the same manner. Department supervisors and faculty participate in educational media acquisition in precisely the same way. The secretary catalogs all educational software under the computer technician's direction. The computer technician maintains the catalogs for all educational software.

The petitioner asserts several arguments. Sills lacks the legal right to do more than evaluate educational media specialists pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h). Sills violates school law when she does more than evaluate the educational media specialist. N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)(1) provides that vice principals are appropriately certified to perform tenured teaching staff member evaluations.

Clearly, Sills can be the petitioner's supervisor for annual evaluation purposes. But the same rule that provides the authority to evaluate does not give Sills the authority to develop, coordinate or implement the services of a media center. Therefore, in the petitioner's view, Sills is illegally developing, coordinating and implementing the services of the media center.

Sills lacks the right to develop, coordinate or implement media center services because she does not have an educational services certificate. The petitioner discusses the rights and responsibilities of the Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification in the New Jersey Department of Education. See, generally, N.J.A.C. 6:11-1.1 through -3.5.

The petitioner insists that N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17(a) requires the educational media specialist endorsement for any person who is assigned to develop and coordinate educational media services in the public schools. Educational media are defined as all print and nonprint resources and the equipment needed for their use.

Because Sills has been assigned to develop and coordinate educational media services, and because she is in charge of the four people who work in the media center, she should hold an educational services certificate, but does not. The law does not allow for exceptions.

If Sills were allowed to continue to develop and coordinate the educational media services, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17(a) would be meaningless. Vice principals could run libraries without media specialists.

The chief school administrator has violated N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.1(b) by assigning Sills to be in charge of the media center and by failing to require her to exhibit the educational services certificate and educational media specialist endorsement before she assumed the responsibilities. Being in charge of the media center is a regulated duty. Running a media center requires the proper certificate. Sills has neither the proper certificate nor the proper endorsement.

The petitioner also urges that N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) does not give authority to develop and coordinate educational media services. The rule provides > Principal: This endorsement is required for any position that involves service as an administrative officer of a school or other comparable unit within a school district. Such positions shall include assistant superintendent for curriculum instruction, principal, assistant principal, vice principal and director. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct the formulation of goals, plans, policies, budgets and personnel actions of the school or other comparable unit, to recommend them to the chief district administrator, and to direct their implementation in the school or other comparable unit. Holders of this endorsement also are authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, to evaluate school staff, including teaching staff members pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.19 and 1.21 and to direct the activities of school-level supervisors.

The petitioner assumes the high school administration believes Sills has legal authority to develop and coordinate educational media services because she has the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs. However, if she has this right, derived from N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b), then why does that same regulation also specifically allow her to direct the activities of school-level supervisors? Logically, the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs would include directing the activities of school-level supervisors. New Jersey school law requires certification of any person employed to do a job regulated by certification rules. There are only three basic certificates, instructional, administrative and educational services. A person is required to have the proper certification in order to perform a job. Although Sills' administrative certificate gives her the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, the law still requires her to have the educational services certificate and the corresponding educational media specialist endorsement to be allowed to develop and coordinate educational media services per N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17(a). The chief school administrator may not assign Sills to be in charge of the media center until she can show that she in fact has an educational media specialist endorsement.

Any work done by the technician that relates to educational media services is being done illegally because his supervisor has no authority to develop and coordinate educational media services. The arguments here are identical to those immediately above. Any work done by the educational media services secretary is done illegally for the same reasons. As long as the technician and secretary are not working in the media center, their salaries and other expenses should be stricken from the media center budget.

Educational media services at Watchung Hills Regional High School are not centralized. Even if Sills were properly certified to be in charge of the media center, there are others at the school developing and coordinating educational media services within their own departments without the proper certification and endorsement. Educational media are defined as all print and nonprint resources and the equipment needed for their use. At the high school, department heads are allowed to order books and other materials that clearly are within the definition of educational media. Therefore, they are coordinating and developing educational media services illegally when they fail to hold an educational media specialist endorsement. The computer technician is responsible for ordering computer parts, equipment and software which certainly qualify as educational media. He does not have an educational media specialist endorsement and he is coordinating and developing things related to computers at the school.

No genuine issues of material fact exist in this matter and, therefore, the petitioner is entitled to summary judgment in her favor.

Board's arguments

The Board agrees that summary judgment is appropriate because there are no material issues of fact and the moving party, the Board, is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

The petitioner's request for an order directing the Board to grant authority to the educational media specialist to supervise the noncertified members of the media center staff must be denied. The petitioner does not hold a supervisor's certificate nor has she ever served as a department chairperson or supervisor.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 is dispositive. Persons holding the principal endorsement may serve as set forth, above. At N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(c), the rule provides > Supervisor: This endorsement is required for supervisors of instruction who do not hold a school administrator's or principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This endorsement also authorizes appointment as assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.

This is not a tenure case. The petitioner does not argue, nor can she, that she has tenure in the position as supervisor and is entitled to assume the media center supervisor position. She does not hold a supervisor's certificate. Her position is that the educational media center must be supervised by a certified educational media specialist.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 is clear. It expressly provides that holders of principal endorsement are authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs. Likewise, holders of a supervisor endorsement are also charged with the responsibility of supervising and overseeing personnel.

The Board also discusses tenure and seniority. The Board asserts that the petitioner's question has been considered and decided in a number of cases. In Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, OAL DKT. EDU 9107-88 (June 123, 1989) adopted Comm'r of Ed (July 25, 1989), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. (Aug. 3, 1990), aff'd N.J. App. Div. (May 22, 1991, A-318-90T 1) (unreported), the petitioner held an administrative certificate with supervisor endorsement. The endorsement qualified him to supervise special services. No other specific endorsement covered the position of Supervisor of Special Services. Although the petitioner had never served as a supervisor of special services, he was held to have rights to that position because he had a valid tenure claim and administrative and supervisory certificates.

In the present case, the Board concedes that Lippincott does not supervise media center personnel. The Board disputes that the computer technician is an audiovisual technician and part of the educational media center.

The petitioner argues that N.J.A.C.6:11-9.3 does not clothe the vice principal with the authority to supervise the media center personnel. N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 is clear, however. And where the language of a statute or regulation is clear, the words must be given their generally accorded meaning State v. Maunder, 195 N.J. Super. 317 (Law Div. 1984). The regulation gives the holder of a principal's endorsement the right to direct and supervise all school operation and programs. There is no dispute that Sills holds a certificate with a principal endorsement. Therefore, she is given the express authority to supervise all media center personnel.

The petitioner seems to hold that N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17(a) somehow changes the supervisory hierarchy permitted by regulation and case law. That rule provides

> This endorsement is required for any person who is assigned to develop an coordinate educational media services in the public schools. Educational media are defined as all print and nonprint resources and the equipment needed for their use.

The regulation is clear. An educational media specialist is permitted to develop and coordinate educational media services. The regulation does not confer upon an educational media specialist any authority to supervise personnel. The petitioner's reliance on this regulation as somehow conferring the ability to supervise personnel and as denying that right to the vice principal is misplaced.

The petitioner argues that because she is not permitted to supervise personnel and make final determinations concerning the media budget, she has been deprived of the ability to develop and coordinate educational media services. The Board does not have a problem with educational media specialists developing and coordinating educational media services. However, the Board does not agree with the petitioner's definition of developing and coordinating. Throughout her pleadings and her interrogatories and many discussions with the superintendent and staff, it has become clear that her interpretation of developing and coordinating means more than overseeing the developing of educational media services. Her interpretation is expansive and includes personnel as well as services. To the extent her interpretation exceeds the authority provided by regulation, it must be rejected. The chief school administrator, answering interrogatories propounded by the petitioner, responded in the negative when asked whether the petitioner develops and coordinates educational media services because he was aware that in her opinion, such a function includes the supervision of personnel.

The petitioner has presented no facts other than the undisputed facts that she does not supervise personnel or have final decision making authority with regard to the budget.

The petitioner also argues that departments order books and video materials or computer software. Provided they are doing so for their departments or for the computer program, there can be no violation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17(a). The regulation does not confer upon the educational media specialist the sole authority to request purchase of materials either for the educational media center or for other departments. Materials purchased for schoolwide computer programs for any of the departments are properly ordered or requested by persons having responsibility for those operations. The cited regulation only gives authority to develop and coordinate educational media services. The petitioner has failed to show how she has been denied that right.

An individual who is represented by an authorized bargaining agent has no standing to maintain her cause of action about a negotiable term or condition of employment. The Board asserts that once there is an authorized bargaining agent, the individual cannot contest a contractual term or condition of employment. County of Essex, 17 N.J.P.E.R. 173 (1991).

To the extent that the petitioner's claims arise out of an allegation that she is not permitted to perform her job functions or that other personnel are performing out-of-title duties, the allegation is not cognizable in this forum. The collective bargaining agreement controls. It sets out a specific procedure for processing grievances. The labor contract in this case defines a grievance as a claim by a teacher or the Association based upon the interpretation, application or violation of this Agreement, administrative decision, or Board policies affecting a teacher or a group of teachers. The agreement then sets out a five-level grievance procedure.

The petitioner claims the Board's policy with regard to materials purchased encroaches upon her right to develop and coordinate media services. As such, this claim should go through the grievance procedure because it involves a Board policy. It is undisputed that there have been no grievances filed with regard to this matter. To the extent the petitioner's claims relate to Board policies concerning implementation of the budget and any allegations as to employees performing out-of-title work, her claims are subject to the grievance procedure.

Where the controversy does not arise under the school laws, it is outside of the Commissioner's jurisdiction even though it may pertain to school personnel.

The petitioner's claims concern the right of the educational media specialist to supervise media center employees. This arises under the school laws and regulations and is cognizable by the Commissioner. Her claims as to budget requests pursuant to Board policy are not.

DETERMINATION

Among her arguments, the petitioner asserts that it is assumed the administration of the school believes Sills has legal authority to develop and coordinate educational media services because she has the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs. The petitioner's assumption is correct, as is the Board's similar assumption. Under the principal endorsement, Sills has the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs.

The petitioner would distinguish this. She asks, if the vice principal has the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, why does the regulation also allow the principal to direct the activities of school-level supervisors? In the petitioner's view, the right to direct and supervise all school operations and programs logically would include directing the activities of school-level supervisors. Somehow, the petitioner fails to perceive that educational media services are subsumed by the authority to direct and supervise all school operations and programs. Nothing in any of the rules cited by petitioner forecloses supervision from a higher level. Simply, the Board could chose to vest supervisory duties for the media center in a person holding an educational services certificate and educational media specialist endorsement. The Board has chosen not to add that layer of supervision. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 gives to every local board of education the authority to make, amend and repeal rules for its own government . . . the government and management of the public schools and the public property in the district, and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of employees. The same statute authorizes local boards to perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and state board rules, necessary for the proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools.

The Board's choice of administrative structure lies within its compass of legislatively invested authority. It is subject to challenge only when it is applied arbitrarily, capriciously, or for proscribed reasons.

The petitioner's assertion that there is no merit to the argument that N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) gives authority to the vice principal to develop and coordinate educational media services is itself without merit. The petitioner has fastened upon an isolated bit of language. One of the basic rules of statutory and regulatory interpretation is that statutes and rules upon the same matter are to be read together and harmonized. A tribunal cannot ignore the plain meaning of language employed by a legislature or an administrative body. Singleton v. Consol. Freightways Corp., 64 N.J. 357 (1974).

The statement at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) concerning the principal is unequivocal. Fundamental principles of statutory and regulatory construction require that if the language is plain, unambiguous and uncontrolled by other parts of the matter upon the same subject the court cannot give it a different meaning. This standard of interpretation has been employed consistently by the courts of New Jersey. See, Imbriacco v. State Civil Service Comm'n, 150 N.J. Super. 105 (App. Div. 1977); Fahey v. Jersey City 52 N.J. 103 (1968); Duke Power Co. v. Patten, 20 N.J. 42 (1955). It applies with equal force to resolve the question of construction presented in this case.

Despite the other well-crafted arguments of the Board, the matter turns entirely on interpretation. What has happened is that the petitioner has seized upon one phrase in a large chapter of regulations concerning teacher preparation and certification. By failing to read the language concerning school media personnel in the larger context, she has lost sight of the fact that certain certificates subsume the powers, duties and authorities of other certificates. Reading the certification rules in their entirety, I FIND that a person holding a principal endorsement on an administrative certificate is authorized, among other things, to perform the duties involved in supervising a media center and the persons attached to a media center. The certification and endorsement required for a position are determined by the duties performed; the job title is irrelevant. Teaneck Education Ass'n v. Teaneck Board of Education, 1983 S.L.D. 1039.

In summary, this decision FINDS the Watchung Hills Regional High School District Board of Education has properly determined the administrative and supervisory arrangement of personnel in its school; the vice principal properly is assigned, among other things, to supervise the school's media center and the personnel attached to the media center; only a strained reading of the appropriate regulations could lead to the result the petitioner wants, and the clear meaning of the principal endorsement authorization and many years of common practice require that the petitioner's interpretation be rejected.

I CONCLUDE that the Board's motion for summary judgment must be GRANTED.

Accordingly, I enter judgment for the Board and DISMISS the petitioner's motion for summary judgment. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including the exceptions advanced by petitioner, the Commissioner determines that such exceptions essentially recast and reargue issues which were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in his initial decision and need not be herein reiterated. The Commissioner is in full agreement with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is hereby granted and the instant Petition of Appeal and petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision are dismissed.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Savage & Serio
(Thomas J. Savage, Esq., of Counsel)

The State Board of Education affirms the decision of the Commissioner of Education substantially for the reasons expressed by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"). In so doing, however, we clarify the ALJ's comment that the certification required for service in a particular position is "determined by the duties performed; the job title is irrelevant." Initial Decision, slip op. at 12. When a staff member demonstrates that the title established for his or her position is inappropriate in view of the duties attending such position, the certification required and the staff member's resultant tenure entitlements will then be determined by the Commissioner on the basis of the specific duties and functions required to be performed. Boeshore v. Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 1974 S.L.D. 805. Consequently, position title is necessarily the starting point for such an analysis.

IN THE MATTER OF THE BRANCHBURG TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF LEASE PURCHASE AGREEMENT, SOMERSET COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION ON MOTIONS

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 20, 1994

Decision on motion by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, May 27, 1994

For the Appellant Thomas Christensen, Mark G. Yates, Esq.

For the Appellant Township Committee of Branchburg, Woolson, Sutphen, Anderson & Nergaard (Mark S. Anderson, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Carroll & Weiss (David W. Carroll, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter is before us on application by the Township Committee of Branchburg (hereinafter "Township") and an individual Branchburg Township taxpayer (hereinafter "petitioner"). Both are seeking to stay an approval given by the Commissioner of Education on April 20, 1994 to a lease with option to purchase and ground lease agreement for the construction of a primary school and additions and/or renovations to three other schools in the school district of Branchburg.

The Township's involvement in this matter began when, on March 8, 1994, it requested the opportunity to attend the conference scheduled for March 31 pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:22A-1.2(h) to review the proposed agreement. By letter of March 23, the Commissioner denied this request, advising the Township that it had no standing to be represented in that phase of the application process.

Petitioner's involvement began on April 8, 1994, when he filed a petition with the Commissioner seeking to oppose the Board's application for approval of the agreement. By letter dated April 20, 1994, the Department of Education disposed of this petition by returning it to petitioner, stating that there was no mechanism in the law for the Commissioner to entertain such a filing.

On April 20, 1994, the Commissioner approved the proposed agreement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:20-8.2(b) and N.J.A.C. 6:22A-1.1 et seq. as to the District's need for the construction. This approval was contingent on favorable review by the Local Finance Board in the Department of Community Affairs.

On May 5, 1994, the petitioner appealed to the State Board of Education, challenging both the "dismissal" of the petition he had filed with the Commissioner on April 8 and the Commissioner's approval of the lease purchase agreement.

On May 17, 1994, the Township appealed to the State Board from the approval issued by the Commissioner. On that date, the Township also sought a stay from the Commissioner.

On May 23, 1994, the petitioner filed a motion with the Commissioner seeking a stay of his approval.

By letter decision of May 27, 1994, the Deputy Commissioner, acting under authority delegated to him by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33,[1] determined that the

See also N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34(c) (The Commissioner may delegate to an assistant commissioner the hearing and determination of controversies arising under the school laws).

Township had failed to establish standing either to seek a stay or to bring an appeal.

The Deputy Commissioner also determined that petitioner had failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits of his appeal and that neither movant had shown that it would suffer irreparable harm were a stay denied.

The Deputy Commissioner therefore declined to stay the Commissioner's approval issued on April 20, 1994.

Both the Township and the petitioner applied to the State Board for a stay of the approval.[2] At the request of all three parties, we are considering both applications for a stay on an expedited basis.

In these proceedings, each party seeking a stay bears the burden of establishing that: 1) there is a clear likelihood that it will prevail on the merits of its appeal, 2) irreparable injury will result if the stay is not granted, 3) upon balancing the hardships, the harm to the moving party from denial of a stay outweighs the damage to the Board if a stay is granted and 4) that the public interest requires that we issue a stay. Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982); Zanin v. Iacono, 198 N.J. Super. 490, 498-99 (Law Div. 1984). In this respect, it is our task to engage in a delicate balancing of the interests of the parties and the public as they may be affected by the granting or denying of a stay in this case. Cf. Yakus v. United States, 321 U.S. 414, 440 (1944).

Petitioner's central claim is that the form of the transaction involved in this case is not authorized by law. He argues that interest-bearing obligations will be used to finance the project and maintains that the transaction is in fact a borrowing transaction. Petitioner asserts that this requires that the Board exercise its borrowing authority and, consequently, that voter approval must be sought.

Petitioner urges that the Board will suffer little or no harm if a stay is granted, and that the Board might benefit by lower interest rates once the underlying matter is resolved.

The Township challenges the validity of the Board's population projections and asserts that the projects approved by the Commissioner are not needed. In support of this contention, it points to the fact that three bond referenda have been defeated by the voters in the last four years. It also argues that the Commissioner's approval of the lease purchase proposal was procedurally defective, asserting that an evidentiary hearing was required before the Commissioner could properly approve it. The Township also contends that N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2 does not authorize construction at multiple sites under the rhubric of a single lease purchase arrangement.

The Township argues that a stay is necessary to protect its taxpayers from the fiscal impact of the project.

We find that neither the Township[3] nor petitioner has demonstrated a clear likelihood that it will prevail on the merits of its appeal. The materials presented in these proceedings do not

3 On May 27, 1994, the district Board filed a motion to dismiss the Township's appeal to the State Board for lack of standing. That motion is pending before the State Board. However, in that petitioner has adopted the Township's argument, we need not decide that issue in these proceedings.

demonstrate that the transaction at issue is outside the legal framework provided by statute and implementing regulations. Not only do the terms of the statute authorize lease purchase agreements that conform to certain conditions specified in the statute, but the terms of the implementing regulations make express provision for financing arrangements such as that here. See, e.g., N.J.A.C. 6:22A-1.2(g) and (n). Petitioner has not shown that the regulations are not valid. Nor has he demonstrated that the arrangement here is on its face contrary to statutory and regulatory authorization or that there are any specific defects in any aspect of the transaction that would invalidate the transaction.

Nor has petitioner shown in these proceedings that the payments involved in this transaction constitute debt so as to invalidate the Commissioner's approval either on statutory or constitutional grounds.

We reject the Township's contention that a stay must be issued because its enrollment projections differ from the Board's. The fact that projections may differ does not demonstrate that those upon which the Commissioner relied were erroneous. Moreover, the Township has failed to demonstrate that it was legally entitled to an evidentiary hearing so as to contest those projections prior to the Commissioner's approval of the proposal. Nor does the fact that the District's voters have defeated referendum in the past show that the District's students do not need the facilities at issue. Cf. In re Upper Freehold Reg'l School Dist., 86 N.J. 265 (1981).

Similarly, neither petitioner nor the Township has shown that it will suffer irreparable harm if we do not stay the approval. To the contrary, to preclude the Board from proceeding at this point would make its task more difficult and would almost certainly increase the cost of this transaction. Given that the Commissioner has approved the District's need for the additional facilities, the public interest is best served by permitting the Board to begin the process of providing those facilities to its students.

IN THE MATTER OF THE BRANCHBURG TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL OF LEASE PURCHASE AGREEMENT, SOMERSET COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 20, 1994

Decision on motion by the Deputy Commissioner of Education, May 27, 1994

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, June 1, 1994

Order by the Appellate Division, June 6, 1994

For the Appellant Township Committee of Branchburg, Woolson, Sutphen, Anderson & Nergaard (Mark S. Anderson, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Carroll & Weiss (David W. Carroll, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter arises from an application by the Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg (hereinafter "Board") for approval from the Commissioner of Education as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2(f) for a transaction for a lease with option to purchase and ground lease agreement in excess of five years for the construction of a primary school and additions and/or renovations to three other schools.[1]

The Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg (hereinafter "Township") first became involved in the matter when, on March 8, 1994, it requested the opportunity to attend a conference that had been scheduled for March 8, 1994, to review the proposed agreement on behalf of the Commissioner.[2] By letter of March 23, the Commissioner denied this request, advising the Township that it had no standing to be represented in that phase of the application process.

Thereafter on April 8, 1994, Thomas Christensen (hereinafter "Christensen"), a taxpayer who is a resident of Branchburg, filed a Petition of Appeal to the guidelines and regulations of the Department of Education and that any lease purchase agreement in excess of five years shall be aproved by the Commissioner of Education as in the best interest of the school district after determining that the relationship of the proposed lease purchase project to the districts' goals and objectives established pursuant to P.L. 1975, c. 212 (C. 18A:7A-1 et seq.) has clearly been established; and provided that for any lease purchase agreement in excess of five years the Local Finance Board in the Department of Community Affairs shall determine within 30 days that the cost and the financial terms and conditions of the agreement are reasonable....

2 N.J.A.C. 6:22A-1.2(h) provides that:
The Commissioner or a designee shall hold a conference prior to the Commissioner approving any request for approval of a lease purchase agreement in excess of five years. All documents required and the application must be submitted in duplicate and in final form and received at least 15 days prior to the scheduled conference. At the conference the district board of education shall be required to document and discuss at a minimum the following:
1. The newspaper advertisement for the request for proposals;
2. The list of persons and/or firms to which the request for proposals was sent;
3. The responses to the request for proposals; and
4. The comparative analysis of proposals.

Commissioner seeking to oppose the Board's application for approval of the agreement. By letter dated April 20, 1994, the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes disposed of this petition by "returning" it to Christensen. In so doing, she advised Christensen that there was no mechanism in the law for the Commissioner to entertain such a filing.

On April 20, 1994, the Commissioner acted under authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2 to approve the proposed agreement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:20-8.2(b) and N.J.A.C. 6:22A-1.1 et seq. as to the District's need for the construction. As required by the statute, this approval was contingent on favorable review by the Local Finance Board in the Department of Community Affairs.[3]

On May 5, 1994, Christensen filed an appeal to the State Board of Education, challenging both the "dismissal" of the petition he had filed with the Commissioner on April 8 and the Commissioner's approval of the lease purchase agreement, which had been granted by that time.

On May 17, 1994, the Township appealed to the State Board from the approval issued by the Commissioner. On that date, the Township also sought a stay from the Commissioner.

On May 23, 1994, Christensen filed a motion with the Commissioner seeking a stay of the approval.

By letter decision of May 27, 1994, the Deputy Commissioner, acting under authority delegated to him by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33,[4] determined that the Township had failed to establish standing either to seek a stay or to bring an appeal.

The Deputy Commissioner also determined that Christensen had failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits of his appeal and that neither movant had shown that it would suffer irreparable harm were a stay denied.

The Deputy Commissioner therefore declined to stay the Commissioner's approval issued on April 20, 1994.

Both the Township and Christensen applied to the State Board for a stay of the approval. At the request of all three parties, we considered both applications for a stay on an expedited basis. On June 1, 1994, we denied them.

On June 6, 1994, the Appellate Division acted on an emergent basis to stay the Commissioner's approval and temporarily restrained the Branchburg Board from proceeding to close the lease purchase transaction.

With the agreement of the parties, briefing on the merits of this matter proceeded on an expedited basis. As part of this briefing, the Board renewed its earlier motion to dismiss the Township Committee's appeal on the grounds that the Township lacked the standing to challenge the approval.

Consequently, before we may consider the merits of these appeals, it is necessary to resolve whether the Township has the standing to pursue its challenge to the Commissioner's approval. We have considered the arguments of counsel on this question, including those set forth in the exceptions which the parties filed to our Legal Committee's Report. We concur with the Commissioner that the Township does not have the standing in this matter to entitle it to challenge the Commissioner's approval.

[4] This statutory provision authorizes the Commissioner to designate an assistant commissioner as a deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place. See also N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34(c) (The Commissioner may delegate to an assistant commissioner the hearing and determination of controversies arising under the school laws).

The State Board is not unaware of New Jersey's liberal standing policy in cases of public interest to which the Township has pointed in support of its right to sustain the action involved here. E.g., New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce et al. v. New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission, 82 N.J. 57 (1980); Crescent Park Tenants Association v. Realty Equities Corp. of New York, 58 N.J. 98 (1971). We do not view that policy, however, as conferring standing on a municipal governing body to challenge a transaction which, as here, the Legislature has expressly placed in the control of another governmental body, in this case the district board of education, contingent on approval by the State. Kaveny v. Montclair Bd. of Com'rs., 71 N.J. Super. 244, 246 (App. Div. 1962); Gualano v. Bd. of Estimate of Elizabeth School District, 39 N.J. 300, 303 (1963); Botkin v. Westwood, 52 N.J. Super. 416, 425 (App. Div. 1958).

To restate the analysis we applied in Bedminster Township Committee v. Board of Education of the Township of Bedminster, decided by the State Board, July 3, 1991:

> ...the terms of the applicable statutes do not confer standing on a governing body so as to entitle such body to participate in the approval process before the Commissioner of Education. To the contrary, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2, it is the district board of education alone which is authorized to acquire a site and school building by lease purchase agreement, and the statute > specifically allocates jurisdictional responsibility for approval of agreements by a district board in excess of five years between the Commissioner of Education and the Local Finance Board.

> In short, the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2 do not assign any role to municipal governing bodies with respect to either the decision to seek approval of a lease purchase agreement from the Commissioner or the process by which the Commissioner approves such agreements. This is consistent with the allocation of responsibility and authority under the education statutes generally. Under those statutes, aside from specific statutory provisions such as N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, which expressly authorizes a governing body to determine for each item appearing in the budget the amount necessary to be appropriated to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in a district where voters defeat the budget placed before them, the statutes do not confer on governing bodies any role of a general nature with respect to the education system. This reflects that, as embodied in the education statutes, responsibility for the provision of a thorough and efficient education and the authority to meet that responsibility at the local level is vested in the district board of education. E.g., N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-1 et seq.

On these grounds, we grant the district Board's motion to dismiss the Township as a party to this appeal. Contrary to the Township's contention, this result does not permit the underlying transaction to escape either administrative or judicial review. As the Board correctly concedes, Board's brief at 18, there is no question that petitioner Christensen has the standing to seek review of the project proposed to the Commissioner by the district Board.

In his petition to the Commissioner of April 8, 1994, Christensen sought to challenge the Board's determination to seek approval for the transaction, as well as the validity of the proposed transaction, by invoking the Commissioner's authority "to hear and determine this matter as a 'controversy' under the school law (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9)..." In the alternative, Christensen sought review of the transaction pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to approve lease purchase agreements under N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2(f).

In her letter of April 20 "returning" the petition, the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes expressly rejected Christensen's assertion that the matter was subject to review by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.[5]

The Acting Director erred both in "returning" the petition and in her conclusion as to the scope of the Commissioner's jurisdiction. The substantive determination to refuse to entertain a petition made to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to his authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 is such that the responsibility entrusted to him requires that he render a final decision in the matter. In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590 (1958); Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364 (1957). Hence, the Commissioner was required to render a decision with respect to the petition at issue here even if he had agreed that the petition should be dismissed. N.J.S.A. 6:24-1.9.

In similar situations, the State Board of Education has remanded the matter involved in order to afford the Commissioner the opportunity to fulfill the legislative mandate to render his final decision. E.g., Capra v. Board of Education of the Borough of Eatontown, remanded by the State Board, February 4, 1987, decided by the Commissioner, February 26, 1987, aff'd with modification by the State Board, November 4, 1987.

5 N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 provides that:
> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws....

In this case, Christensen challenged the district Board's action in seeking approval of the proposed lease purchase transaction, as well as to the validity of the transaction. In doing so, he presented a controversy under the education laws, which must now be heard and decided. Compare with Citizens Advocating Referendum for Education ("CARE") v. Board of Education of the Township of Passaic, decided by the Commissioner, March 2, 1989, appeal dismissed by the State Board, July 5, 1990 (Commissioner adopted the Administrative Law Judge's determination in contested case initiated by petition of taxpayers' group challenging validity of proposed lease purchase agreement and district board's actions in seeking approval thereof).

We reiterate that the approval process before the Commissioner of Education is specifically designed to focus on the educational necessity of a proposed lease purchase transaction. Consequently, the current process does not guarantee that there is no legal impediment to the transaction.

We have no doubt that our adjudicative responsibility requires that we resolve any questions as to whether the transaction proposed by a district board conforms with the requirements of the education laws.[6] Christensen attempted to invoke the Commissioner's jurisdiction under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear such questions before the Commissioner approved the project pursuant N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2(f). Given that those questions have not yet been heard, the proper recourse is to remand the matter.

6 We note that under N.J.S.A. 18A:20-4.2(f), questions concerning the fiscal reasonableness of the project are within the purview of the Local Finance Board. See, supra, note 3 and accompanying text.

When Christensen filed his exceptions to our Legal Committee's Report, he also filed a motion seeking an order from the State Board recusing the Commissioner from this matter and directing that the matter proceed directly to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing.

In asserting the necessity for the Commissioner's recusal, Christensen contended that remarks made by the Commissioner with respect to this litigation and reported in a newspaper article indicate that the Commissioner is biased and prejudiced in favor of the Board.

N.J.S.A. 2A:15-49 requires that a judge recuse himself from any matter on which he has given his opinion. There is no question that the Commissioner of Education must be guided by these principles. However, these same principles dictate that we afford the Commissioner the opportunity to decide in the first instance whether he should recuse himself. We therefore remand this matter to the Commissioner and transmit to him the record developed thus far[7] with the direction that, should he determine to recuse himself, he assign the matter to an assistant commissioner who has had no previous involvement with this matter. See, supra note 4.

Finally, we reiterate that we are remanding this matter for resolution of Christensen's claims that the proposed project would contravene the education laws. This requires examination of the terms of the agreement, including those providing for remedy in case of default by the school district, in order to assure that the District's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students is not placed in jeopardy. CARE, supra, 1157-58.

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, challenged the withholding of his 1991-92 employment and adjustment increments in 1992-93 school year. Board contended that due to clerical errors withholding was effected retroactively.

ALJ found that Board's holding of petitioner's salary for 1992-93 in place at level he received in 1991-92 was proper and was to continue until overpayment was recouped at end of 1993-94 school year. (Trenton Education Association) ALJ determined petitioner had no demonstrated right to salary monies mistakenly paid him. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

(Marvin L. Comick, General Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: December 15, 1993 Decided: December 17, 1993

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

Edward Cerato, a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, was advised that the Board acted on May 21, 1991 to withhold his salary and/or adjustment increments for the 1991-92 school year, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, by reason of unbecoming conduct during the 1990-91 school year. He did not appeal the action. See, Exhibit 1 (attached to answer). Allegedly because of a computer problem with the 1991-92 salary guide, he received salary for 1991-92 at unreduced and incrementalized level. He was advised the following year in August and September 1992 that his salary was to be frozen at the level of that received at end of 1991-92 school year until, presumably, the scheduled but theretofore uneffected increment withholding amount for the previous year was recouped. Freezing was begun. Alleging Board action contravened his tenure and/or seniority rights, he filed a petition of appeal with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education on November 6, 1992 seeking judgment against the Board for reimbursement of all monies deducted from 1992-93 salary, for invalidation of Board action purporting to withhold increments for 1991-92 retroactively and during the succeeding year of 1992-93 as unlawful, null and void, for assessment of interest and for such other relief as is proper. The Board admitted the sequence of events generally. It alleged that petitioner's employment and adjustment increments were properly determined to be withheld on May 21, 1991, but that through "clerical errors" withholding action was not effected during the succeeding school year. Petitioner's salary was held in 1992-93 at previous year's level to effect projected recoupment, which the Board said amounted to some $5,044.09. Recoupment of overpayment in that manner, said the Board, was lawful and proper. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on December 10, 1992 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

On notice to the parties, the matter came on for prehearing conference in the Office of Administrative Law and an order was entered on March 25, 1993. At issue in the matter, it was provided, are:

1. Whether Board action purporting to withhold petitioner's salary and adjustment increments in 1992-93 at 1991-92 levels was effectual as a proper retroactive increment withholding action under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14; and

2. Assuming such retroactive increment withholding action to be proper, whether nevertheless the employment action was an improper reduction of compensation under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 6, 10, under Trenton Education Association v. Board of Ed., City of Trenton, Mercer County, 1986 S.L.D. 2415.

The parties were directed to confer for the purpose of fashioning stipulations of all relevant and material propositions of fact in chronological and sequential order, together with documentation as necessary, indexed and premarked, which thereafter were to be filed in the cause. The matters would then be addressed and resolved as if on cross-motions for summary decision based on pleadings, admissions, stipulations, documentation and memoranda of law, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 et seq. Stipulations and memoranda by the parties having been filed by December 15, 1993, the record closed then.

ADMISSIONS, STIPULATIONS AND FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties having so admitted and/or stipulated, I make the following findings of fact:

1. Petitioner is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the City of Newark for 32 years.

2. On May 21, 1991, the Board voted to withhold his employment and adjustment increments for the 1991-92 school year. He informed the Board he declined to appeal the action.

3. On August 28, 1992 and September 24, 1992, petitioner received letters from Board administrators saying that because of a computer problem with the 1991-92 salary guide, he had received salary monies (unreduced and incrementalized) to which he was not entitled and that in order to fulfill withholding of increments as ordained by the Board, salary for 1992-93 was to be frozen at the salary he received at the end of the 1991-92 school year.

4. Petitioner is currently being paid the same salary he received for 1991-92, that is, $65,335.

5. A summary (revised Exhibit 3 and Exhibit 4) is an accurate mathematical calculation of the effect of Board action of May 21, 1991 on petitioner's salary. It shows petitioner's corrected total earnings for 1991-92 at step 5 on the salary guide and with two longevity increments, 20 years and 25 years. His total annual salary for 1990-91 was $65,335. Continuation of compensation for intervening years at 1991-92 level until end of 1993-94 will accomplish recoupment of total overpayment of $5,044. Revised Exhibit 3 and Exhibit 4 of J-1.

6. The Board has taken no action since May 21, 1991 with respect to petitioner's salary except as above.

7. Petitioner's 1994-95 will be $69,636, plus any longevity payments and employment and adjustment increments agreed to by the Board and the City Association of Supervisors and Administrators in negotiating a successor agreement for supervisors and administrators.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner argued generally that Board action was reduction of compensation of a tenured teaching staff member forbidden by N.J.S.A. 18:28-5, that Board action was distinguishable from facts made plain in Trenton Education Association v. Board of Ed., City of Trenton, supra, in that over 15 months passed between notice of withholding and withholding, that announcement of belated withholding by administrators 15 months later was null and void since without Board approval, and that petitioner's right to salary and adjustment increments for 1992-93 had become vested by passage of time.

The Board denied petitioner's assertions. It urged that where the Board properly acts to withhold a tenured teaching staff member's salary and adjustment increments but its administration inadvertently fails to freeze salary at that level at the time, it may nonetheless properly act to do so in the succeeding school year.

My view is that Board action here is not defective for lapse of time or for the circumstance delay in retention was by computer glitch. Though not to be condoned, such mistakes are occasional perhaps in any large business organization. Petitioner cannot with reason complain he was not given notice of withholding or that he suffered loss of any property vested in him by mere passage of time. While silently and unprotestingly receiving unreduced 1991-92 salary, reason suggests, petitioner was nonetheless put on notice to inquire about the anomaly. Since he did not, he can claim no windfall at public expense. The act of withholding is not, in my view, a reduction in salary since salary at the level maintained during recoupment was all to which he was lawfully entitled. Future restoration of withheld increments is within discretion of the Board when it becomes satisfied petitioner has come to perform his job satisfactorily. See, Probst v. Board of Ed., Borough of Haddonfield, 127 N.J. 518 (1992). That the mechanics of enforcing Board-ordered salary withholding was announced to petitioner by Board administrators, and not by additional formal Board resolution, is in my mind of no moment. It is enough to note the Board in the interim has ratified and approved measures taken by administration, no plainer evidence of which being its defense of the petition of appeal.

It is my view generally that it is wrong to permit people to retain public monies they have not earned, a sentiment I believe shared by the line of cases on salary recoupment issues. It is clear, in any event, a Board's determination to freeze a teacher's salary until it recoups an overpayment does not constitute an unlawful "reduction in compensation" under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Markot v. Bd.of Ed., Twp. of East Brunswick, 1989 S.L.D. 3043 (State Bd. Aug. 4, 1989) (slip opinion at 6-7); and see, Trenton Education Association v. Bd. of Ed., City of Trenton, 1986 S.L.D. 2415, 2432 (. . . it must be emphasized the appropriate step for a Board to take when the issue of erroneous salary level arises is to hold the salary level in place, not to reduce it through deductions. . .).

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, having considered stipulated facts and argument of counsel, I CONCLUDE:

1. Board action in holding petitioner's salary for 1992-93 in place at level of that paid him in 1991-92 was in discharge of a prior validly adopted action, not appealed, in withholding salary and increment adjustments for cause and was, though belated, but corrective of an excusable unilateral mistake of fact;

2. The action was proper and may continue until overpayment has been recouped at end of 1993-94 school year;

3. The action taken was not violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as an impermissible reduction in compensation; nor did it contravene N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

4. Administrative action in 1992 to hold salary in place during 1992-93 and until recoupment is complete was adopted, ratified and approved by the Board;

5. Passage of some 15 months after Board resolution to withhold and before administrative action to recoup overpayment for salary paid in 1991-92 did not occasion unlawful divestiture of any property rights vested in petitioner;

6. Petitioner has demonstrated no right, vested or equitable, to salary monies mistakenly paid him;

7. Board measures to recoup are but proper discharge of obligation to guard the public fisc; and, finally,

8. The Board is entitled to judgment on its motion.

The petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

EDWARD CERATO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions as well.

Petitioner excepts to the ALJ conclusions that his salary may be held in place until the increment that erroneously had been paid to him following a withholding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 was effectuated. Citing Deborah Kalapos v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner June 3, 1993, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 430, among other cases, petitioner submits, as she did at hearing below, that a board cannot require the reimbursement of monies paid in error through no fault of the employee because such action constitutes an impermissible reduction of his salary under the Tenure Employees Hearing Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. He further argues that notification of the administrative action to freeze his salary for the 1992-93 school year took place eight days after the commencement of his actual work year, without Board approval, and persisted through a third consecutive year, 1993-94. Thus, he claims, his salary has been illegally held at the same rate since the 1991-92 school year.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law for the reasons expressed therein. The exceptions raised by petitioner offer no new arguments that would alter the conclusion drawn by the ALJ that a board's determination to freeze a teacher's salary until it recoups an inadvertent ministerial overpayment does not constitute an unlawful reduction in compensation as envisioned by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. See Markot, supra, and Trenton Education Association, supra. The latter case makes plain that "the appropriate step for a board to take when the issue of erroneous salary level arises is to hold the salary level in place, not to reduce it through deductions." (Id., at 2436)

Petitioner's reliance on Kalapos, supra, is inapposite to the facts of this matter because no deductions of the overpayment to petitioner were ever undertaken. Rather, the Board herein froze petitioner's salary so that he would not receive the increments that the Board sought to withhold.

As to petitioner's contention that the Board's original action to withhold his increment was accomplished without a majority vote of the full membership of the Board, the Commissioner agrees that the defect in the action to withhold was cured by the Board's subsequent ratifications.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as amplified herein, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF JACQUELINE CARSON, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF CHERRY HILL, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

Board certified tenure charges of inefficiency against tenured clerk. Respondent was afforded 90-day period to correct inefficiencies.

In light of the record and testimony of witnesses, ALJ concluded Board proved its charges of inefficiency. Although some improvement was noted in 90-day period of remediation, majority of inefficiencies showed no improvement and taken together they formed the basis for respondent's removal. (Redcay) ALJ ordered respondent removed from her clerical position.

Commissioner found that in light of all relevant, credible evidence, Board had proven an overall pattern of poor performance by respondent which warranted her dismissal. Commissioner ordered respondent terminated from her tenured clerk position as of date of the Commissioner's decision.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9754-92
AGENCY DKT. NO. 482-10/92

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JACQUELINE CARSON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CHERRY HILL.

William C. Davis, Esq., and Terri Jane Freedman, Esq., for petitioner (Davis, Reberkenny & Abramowitz, attorneys)

Kenneth A. Sandler, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 6, 1993 Decided: November 17, 1993

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The Cherry Hill Township Board of Education (petitioner or Board) filed tenure charges of inefficiency against a tenured clerk (respondent or Carson) with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 through -18.1. The respondent timely filed an answer and the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

After notice, a prehearing conference was held on April 26, 1993. Among other things, it was determined that the sole issue in this matter is whether the charges against the respondent are true in fact and, if true in fact sufficient to warrant removal or reduction in salary. The matter was heard on September 13, 14, 15 and 22, 1993 at the Merchantville Municipal Court.

There is no procedural infirmity alleged. The charges, the substantiation and a 90-day supervisory plan to correct inefficiencies were timely afforded the respondent. At the conclusion of the 90-day period, the experience was reviewed and the Board resolved to certify charges to the Commissioner of Education. All statutory and regulatory times were observed.[1]

The respondent interposes separate defenses of insufficiency of charges and, alternatively, that any alleged inefficiencies have been substantially corrected or overcome.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

The Board presented four witnesses. The testimony adduced tended to show that the assistant superintendent for business, who was also the Board secretary, prepared most of the paperwork required by the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 through -18.1 (P-1). The secretary met several times with the director of purchasing and the office supervisor who had daily contact with the respondent. He also made a presentation to the Board and asked that charges be filed. The Board agreed and a 90-day correction period began. The respondent was provided a supervisory plan dated June 12, 1992. On the same day, the secretary met with the respondent and her union representative to discuss the plan. The plan provides for review each two weeks of 19 items. The plan provides for follow up and additional resources, for example, additional word processing training for the respondent.

There were six review sessions: June 30, July 14, 29, August 17, 28, and September 9, 1992. On July 21, the respondent was provided additional suggestions for improvement.

After the 90-day period, the secretary reviewed all reports. Of 19 areas noted as needing improvement, four improved to the satisfactory level; 15 did not. The witness stated the respondent had improved in her ability to accept constructive criticism, had less need to repeat questions, was more courteous and professional in the office and used the telephone for professional reasons only. The respondent did not show acceptable improvement in the other 15 areas.

The secretary reported this to the Board and the Board directed certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education.

The purchasing officer supervisor testified. She knows the respondent's employment history and was the respondent's supervisor at relevant times. During the 90-day probationary period, the witness monitored the respondent's daily work, recorded any problems, met with the respondent weekly, suggested improvements and participated in bi-weekly meetings prescribed by the plan.

At the end of the probationary period, the witness reviewed each report. The secretary summarized the meeting and wrote the final report. The witness read and agrees with the report.

The witness also detailed specific incidents tending to illustrate the respondent's failure to remedy shortcomings.

The director of purchasing testified. He was present at the July 14, 1992 conference with the respondent. He reviewed all notes and agrees with the reports and recommendations he has read.

The former purchasing agent, who filled the position during most of the relevant time, also testified. He was the purchasing agent in spring 1991 when the respondent transferred into his office. This witness also reviewed all paperwork. He, in consultation with the office supervisor, monitored the 90-day improvement plan, secured additional resources, made recommendations and conferred with the respondent. He kept the Board secretary advised and provided documentation at the end of the period.

The respondent presented testimony of a word processing specialist. The witness instructed the respondent and answered certain questions concerning the word processing system in use. When the respondent was transferred to the purchasing office, the witness had no contact with her. At some point, the witness' supervisor told the witness to set up classes with the respondent. The witness spoke to the purchasing agent and set up standing appointments each Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m. with the respondent.

The witness covered basics and then went on to more advanced material. She had to cancel a few classes. The witness believes the respondent mastered operations by September 1992. In October 1992, the witness began a maternity leave. She believed the respondent was comfortable with the basic word processing system. In summary, the witness believes she had approximately six sessions with the respondent and that sessions ended in September 1992. The witness never observed the respondent in a work setting.

A building engineer from one of the district high schools testified concerning forms that passed between the purchasing office and a school building when any outside activity takes place. He has had contacts with the office supervisor, the respondent and now the respondent's replacement. He has found them of equal ability and good to deal with.

The athletic coordinator testified that her duties include scheduling of facilities. As such, she has much contact with persons in the purchasing office involved in community services.

At some point, the witness learned that the respondent had community service responsibilities; that is, the witness was involved in scheduling fields and facilities for use by community groups. The witness often spoke directly to the respondent although the respondent was not the only person she dealt with. She found the respondent helpful to deal with. The witness does not evaluate the respondent. The witness believes the respondent may have helped her to solve problems. Others in the purchasing office, however, may have helped to solve her problems.

The respondent testified concerning her employment history and her move into the purchasing office. She testified concerning the paperwork involved in use of facilities by community groups.

The witness also testified concerning her first few days on the job. Among other things, there was a dispute about whether breaks were to be informal or whether there should be two 15-minute breaks each day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. The witness stated she was the only person who took fixed breaks and was the only union member in the purchasing department. The witness also stated that her community service work was given second priority to purchasing duties. Also, the system was being changed from a hand kept system to a computer system. The witness explained both systems.

The respondent stated that she and her supervisor both dealt with the community. In her opinion, "Two hands cannot be in the same pot." The witness acknowledged some complaints concerning community service functions from various schools, but could not be specific. She further stated there are always a few conflicts given the numbers involved. To her knowledge, conflicts were always concluded satisfactorily.

The witness had used a word processor while in her former position, but not every day. When she first used word processing equipment, she was given assistance by a trainer. When she came upon an unfamiliar job, she could call the trainer for assistance. The procedure was different in the purchasing office. In March 1991 she heard no mention of training although the switch to word processing began. There were several situations new to her. Her superiors suggested training and she thought it a good idea. She attended several sessions in the trainer's office and learned a lot. She began to feel more at ease on her job.

The respondent recalls receiving praise as the best switchboard operator the office ever had. She also testified concerning problems with specific community groups. She recalled some only generally and others in more detail. She recalled dealing with one group and assuming that they would use the facilities for religious purposes. Religious groups are charged a lesser fee than are other types of groups. The witness did not ask the requesting person what the purpose of the use would be.

The respondent did some correspondence in the purchasing office at the supervisor's direction. Often the text was changed by the supervisor.

The respondent testified concerning notice of the 90-day supervisory period. During the period there was a series of meetings with the purchasing agent, the supervisor and the respondent. Toward the end of the period, the purchasing agent changed. The witness stated that after a memorandum (A-18), she believed everything was falling into place "and that would be the end of it."

The respondent knew that the supervisor and the purchasing officer were keeping notes on her during the 90-day period. She testified concerning procedures surrounding custodial overtime and other payroll functions. She used the Regulations and Procedures For Use of Public School Facilities dated September 1, 1991 as her procedures manual. She also testified concerning certain criticisms to which she did not reply (e.g., performance evaluation, March 10, 1988 - January 20, 1989 and performance evaluation September 14, 1987 - March 9, 1988).

The witness could not recall several important events. One was a meeting with the Board secretary concerning breaks and another involved parts of her evaluation for the period ending January 17, 1992. There was contradictory testimony concerning insurance certificates and a community swim club. Although she received a memorandum from her supervisor concerning the September 9, 1992 performance meeting, she believed all superiors were happy with her notwithstanding five suggestions for improvement on the third page of the memorandum.

The respondent stated that she kept a record of contacts with the word processing trainer in a stenographic book, but the book was taken from her desk. Guidance as to costs for various uses was always available in the form of the policy, P-2.

The respondent also adduced testimony that she was pleasant, helpful and prompt in her dealings with the public. One witness stated she once or twice received a duplicate bill, but called the respondent who referred her to a bookkeeper who took care of the problem. The witness last spoke to the respondent in the summer of 1991. Another witness stated she worked as a temporary office worker in the purchasing department and heard the supervisor being "rude, nitpicking, obnoxious" to the respondent. The respondent also was criticized loudly enough to be heard by other personnel. A former Board employee testified that all employees would receive correspondence in handwritten form, type and take it to the supervisor who would often edit and change it. The supervisor had to approve everything before it was sent out. The witness also mentioned a "tense atmosphere" in the purchasing department. A head custodian testified that he is familiar with forms sent by the purchasing department to a facility that would be used by a community group (R-4). He fills in the top of the form, lists work required, lists time expended and requires the sponsor to sign the form as well. The form then goes to the assistant principal and then to the administration building. The form provides data for billing. If the respondent did not receive a form, she would call his school and ask for data. As far as he is concerned, she did a good job. Any problems were taken care of promptly. Occasionally, his pay would be inaccurate, but the matter would always be straightened out.

Board's Argument

The Board emphasizes that it relies on sworn statements of the Board secretary, the former and present purchasing officers and the office supervisor. It is uncontroverted that the respondent had approximately three and one-half years experience in the finance office before being moved to the purchasing office, performing many of the same tasks. As early as 1989, supervisors noted the respondent's need to improve her skills (P-1, attachments 11, 12 and 13). The respondent and one of her witnesses verified that the respondent regularly contacted the trainer for aid in performing routine word processing functions. Although she used word processing equipment at least weekly and usually more often, her lack of skills was apparent. The lack became more glaring upon her reassignment to the purchasing office. There, supervisors repeatedly noted deficiencies and directed that she seek additional formal training in both data entry and word processing (P-1, attachments 2, 3 and 9). The respondent received additional training, but still failed to master basic skills. In addition, she asked co-workers for assistance regularly. Often, she posed the same questions again and again. As a result, the supervisor eventually limited the respondent to asking questions only of the supervisor.

In order to assist the respondent during the 90-day supervisory period, she was given approximately ten 30-minute word processing training sessions. These were meant to again refresh her memory about fundamental tasks on the word processing equipment (R-3). The respondent did well during the weekly sessions.

However, the trainer could not testify as to the respondent's ability to recall the information once she returned to her workplace. As shown by the periodic evaluations, the respondent could not in fact recall information she had just reviewed.

Despite five years of experience on the same word processing equipment, another year''s experience with data entry, several individualized training sessions and repeated questions of her co-workers, the respondent still could not master basic functions. The clear inference is that the respondent is simply unable to retain information.

The respondent also repeatedly failed to follow through on her work and to follow instructions. She failed to procure current insurance certificates from various community groups, although repeatedly instructed to do so (P-1, attachments 1, 2 and 4; summary conference memorandum, July 29, 1992). The repercussions and liability the Board could be exposed to as a result of a community group not securing proper insurance is obvious. Nevertheless, this point had to be explained and reexplained to the respondent. Even after having been given specific instructions, orally and in writing over the course of six months, the respondent still failed to obtain valid insurance certificates from several community service groups (summary conference memorandum, July 29, 1992).

The respondent produced seven witnesses in an effort to refute the charges. Yet few of any of the witnesses actually observed the respondent in the work place on a regular basis. None of the witnesses supervised or evaluated her. None of the witnesses testified as to the quality of her work. The respondent's witnesses could testify that they received a correct paycheck or had no problem in scheduling an event. However, they could not testify as to how the end product was produced or who actually produced it.

Based on the evidence presented, this tribunal must find that the respondent failed to rise to the level of efficiency required for her position. She presented no evidence to effectively refute the tenure charges set forth by the Board and substantiated by the evidence at hearing.

Respondent's Argument

The respondent counters that the Board's presentation was scarce in detail. The Board simply presented its administrators and supervisors and the reports and evaluations they had prepared. The Board apparently believed it met its burden of proof. It did not.

Two of the four Board witnesses based their conclusions and opinions on the information related to them by the respondent's immediate supervisor. Thus, they were hearsay witnesses.

The Board's principal witness was the respondent's direct supervisor. Her testimony, however, was general and vague. She stated she had indoctrinated the respondent into electronic data processing and purchasing and that she had many sessions and conferences with the respondent. She made records of areas in which she believed the respondent was improving and not improving, but stated she had not reviewed the 90-day supervisory plan summary prior to its issuance. The specifics with respect to examples of the respondent's work product or alleged problems were simply not provided through her testimony.

The supervisor admitted she used profanity in the work place and admitted she praised the respondent's switchboard performance. As to each of the faults she found with the respondent, the witness stated she would personally handle the matter and that it was easily resolved. Further, the supervisor never checked with the word processing trainer about the respondent's progress or asked for a additional training despite the fact that computer and word processing skill deficiencies were noted in the supervisory plan summary.

On dealing with community and outside organizations, the supervisor faulted the respondent for having charged one group religious rates. Although the group was of a religious nature, the event was social or recreational. The rental rate for Board facilities for religious purposes should not have applied. The supervisor stated she handled the matter and easily resolved it. However, the Board produced no persons with whom the supervisors spoke or with whom she alleges the respondent improperly handled a matter.

In another matter, the Board charged there was a problem in scheduling a facility for a music director. Yet the Board failed to produce the complaining party in their case-in-chief or even in rebuttal after the respondent stated there had been no problem with the music director. The Board produced no one other than its supervisory and administrative staff. That would be unremarkable in most cases. In this case, many of the respondent's responsibilities regarded the rental of Board facilities by outside groups. These groups were, in effect, the Board's customers. None of these customers with first hand knowledge of the manner in which the respondent served their needs testified for the Board.

The Board's former purchasing agent stated he observed certain things first hand rather than through the supervisor. Yet it was not clear what he had observed and he conceded much of his information came from the supervisor. He also conceded the respondent was the only employee in the department who was a union member. The witness also denied that he became angry and excited or banged his fists on his desk while reprimanding the respondent in his office.

The Board's attempt to limit testimony of its administrators to a recitation of the procedure used to document its charges broke down when the former purchasing agent stated he was following these procedures for the purpose of dismissal. He was not involved in the actual drafting of the charges and comments at the conclusion of the 90-day improvement period. Therefore, his reference to the procedure could only be to that followed during that 90-day improvement period. His statement that the real purpose of the Board's documentation and meetings during the 90-day improvement period was to justify the respondent's dismissal is most telling because it reveals that the Board was not affording the respondent an opportunity to "correct and overcome" an alleged inefficiency, but was really building its case against her. This is a misuse of statutory procedures and it cannot be countenanced.

The Board's approach was to "paper over" its case. Its testimony merely skimmed over the surface of the written allegations against the respondent. The implied argument was that because something is in writing, it is true. The respondent submits that boards of education are skilled producers of paper records with which an employee cannot compete. However, in a tenure hearing, an employee's career is on the line. The paper must be probed and the underlying facts and circumstances explored. The Board failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the respondent was performing her duties and responsibilities in an inefficient manner or that she had failed to substantially correct any alleged inefficiencies in the 90-day improvement period.

In her defense, the respondent presented a more complete picture of the circumstances and particulars underlying the Board's tenure charges. Six witnesses as well as the respondent herself persuasively established, among other things, that the respondent was well-regarded within Board offices and by outside organizations. The respondent also showed that the office supervisor created a tense and trying atmosphere and that the respondent did complete a computer training course and did master the necessary skills.

Upon her transfer to the purchasing office, she had to learn to perform new tasks, using a computer to a greater extent than previously. Legitimately, her supervisor raised a concern as to her skills in performing computer functions. A decision was made to have the respondent receive training with the word processing trainer.

The trainer testified that she regularly provides training to employees on the computer system and that such training had been requested and was provided to the respondent. The trainer stated that, in her opinion, the respondent was able to master the skills necessary. The Board denies that the respondent mastered them.

The witness also stated that at no time during the 90-day improvement period was she contacted by the respondent's superiors advising that the respondent was lacking in any computer skill.

The respondent submits that the Board failed to follow through with the person it designated to assist her in overcoming her alleged deficiency in computer skills. This is inexcusable and violates the statute. The Guidelines for Implementation of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, put out by the Division of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education, May 3, [1977], cited in Rowley v. Bd. of Ed. of Manalapan-Englishtown, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 72 (App. Div. 1985), indicates

> During the aforementioned 90 day period, members of the administrative/supervisory staff should make reasonable efforts to provide a assistance to the teaching staff member to overcome the specific inefficiencies.

The Appellate Division approved the Commissioner's decision in the case, concluding that "if a board chooses to file tenure charges of inefficiency against any teacher, the administration bears the heavy responsibility to render positive assistance to the teaching staff member to overcome his inefficiencies." Id. Secretarial and clerical staff are accorded the same protections pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. In the computer and word processing skills area, the Board appeared to have provided positive assistance through the trainer. However, the Board did not complete the task by providing a cohesive effort before and after filing charges so it could measure the employee's improvement by a synthesis of observations. Ibid. at 73. That did not exist here. Rather, there was an exclusive reliance on a single evaluator even though she was not the person assigned to provide the training. That was unfair and capricious. The Board's failure to comply with the statutory mandate is clear. It appears that the Board was merely going through the paces and there was little or no communication between the trainer and the supervisor.

The trainer testified there was some difficulty using the software. The trainer herself found it to be not user friendly. This was an area in which the supervisor faulted the respondent, who was new to computers.

On a related question, the Board charged that the respondent manually researched files in community services. The use of a manual system was, however, wholly acceptable for the Board's athletic coordinator. The respondent, who performed community service functions in her prior position with the Board testified that she had no input into the development of the computerized system by her supervisor and that she had previously used a manual system of folders for each school rather than the calendar organization of listing all events for all schools under a single date. She also stated she would use the manual system as an extra check on the schedule.

The respondent submits that the supervisor praised the respondent's performance on the switchboard and in shipping and that the supervisor's manner was unseemly. Three witnesses cast doubt upon the supervisor's capacity and ability generally to assist the respondent in an attempt to follow the correction plan. The manner of supervision belies the superficial propriety of the paper record.

The fact that the respondent was the only union member in the purchasing office served to make her unwelcome. The respondent stated she was told at or about the time of her transfer that the purchasing officer did not want her in his department.

The respondent dealt effectively with custodial staff concerning overtime work related to facilities use by outside organizations. When adjustments in scheduling were necessary or there was a question concerning overtime pay for custodians, the respondent was able to resolve the matter. Despite the respondent's ability and efficiency in payroll duties, the supervisor's assignment of her to perform this task while handling the switchboard was inappropriate. In addition, the supervisor frequently interfered in the respondent's contacts with community organizations. This resulted in confusion as it was not clear for which organizations the respondent was responsible and for which the supervisor was responsible.

In summary, the respondent was a loyal and dedicated employee of the Board who, upon transfer to the purchasing department needed specific training and guidance in new job functions. The purchasing operation was becoming almost completely computerized. Training was not provided at the outset, but only after the respondent had been in the department well over a year. Nonetheless, the respondent successfully completed a program of weekly word processing training sessions. The Board relied almost exclusively on the representations of the respondent's supervisor, whose conduct in the workplace was less than professional. The Board, therefore, did not fulfill its statutory mission to provide positive assistance to the tenured employee. In this case, the Board's supervisors launched a campaign to justify its decision to dismiss the respondent from employment and to support the tenure proceeding that would have to be effected to achieve dismissal. The Board simply has not made the required case and the charges should be dismissed.

DETERMINATION

Although there is no procedural defect alleged, the respondent suggests that the charges certified by the Board to the Commissioner are insufficient. Having reviewed the charges and giving the ordinary and popular meaning to the words therein, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the charges are sufficient. Sykes v. Propane Power Corp. 224 N.J. Super. 686 (App. Div. 1988). First, they state with reasonable clarity a set of circumstances. Second, the circumstances described, if true in fact, warrant reduction in salary or dismissal.

The Board presented the witnesses and documents listed in an appendix to this decision and mentioned above. The credible testimony and documentation reveal, not unsurprisingly, a picture that is not clearly black and white. Virtually no employee is without some saving graces and virtually no supervisor is infallible. But, it is the weight of the evidence that this tribunal must address.

The Board's strongest evidence is Exhibit P-1. The Exhibit recognizes that the respondent worked from June 16, 1986 until May 19, 1991 in offices other than the purchasing office. Her service in those positions ranged from excellent in the general secretary area to good in the areas of attendance, punctuality and cooperation to improvement needed in the areas of time utilization, work quality, punctuality and dependability. Upon being reassigned to the purchasing office, an informal evaluation on April 26, 1991 indicated some weaknesses but her first formal evaluation on July 10, 1991 reflected ratings in the satisfactory to excellent range. Thereafter, performance declined and a pattern of deficiencies emerged. The Exhibit displays meticulous record keeping. The respondent suggests that it is an attempt to "paper over" a predetermined outcome. Yet, the Board would also be criticized if it failed to document completely the charges it brings.

Viewing the record in its entirety I FIND:

1. On June 9, 1992, the Board secretary served notice upon the respondent of the resolution, charging affidavit and statements of evidence in support concerning the charges filed against her by the secretary.

2. The notice further advises the respondent that she is being provided a 90-day period in which to overcome and correct the inefficiencies identified.

3. The notice further advises that at the end of the 90-day period, the Board will make a determination as to whether or not the noted inefficiencies have been sufficiently corrected and, if not, that further steps as the Board deems necessary under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 may be taken.

4. The materials provided to the respondent with the notice are unequivocal and complete. They constitute clear notice of the inefficiencies identified and how they were identified.

5. The Board secretary met with the respondent on June 12, 1992 for the purpose of reviewing the supervisory plan for the statutorily required 90-day period.

6. The supervisory plan sets forth the areas needing improvement and details a 22-part supervisory plan.

7. The plan was put into effect and progress conferences were held each two weeks in compliance with the plan.

8. The summary report identifies inefficiencies that have been corrected or overcome. It also identifies inefficiencies that were not corrected to a satisfactory degree.

9. After a summary conference with the respondent, tenure charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education.

In addition to the foregoing, I also FIND that the fact that the supervisor was not involved in drawing up the 90-day plan is a matter of management prerogative and has no bearing on the truth or falsity of the charges. Similarly, even if the office supervisor was not universally popular, that has no bearing on the truth or falsity of the charges. An ad hominem argument is no substitute for facts. Despite the respondent's urging to the contrary, the Board did not fail to establish a prima facie case.

I FIND the Board's witnesses' testimony to be inherently credible and consistent with common experience. The party bearing the burden of proof in an administrative hearing must prove the case by a preponderance of the evidence. This tribunal, therefore, must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. D.L. and W.R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). The evidence is found to preponderate if it "establishes 'the reasonable probability of the fact.'" Jaeger v. Elizabethtown Consolidated Gas Co., 124 N.J.L. 420, 423 (Sup. Ct. 1940) (citation omitted). Where the standard is reasonable probability, that is, preponderance of the evidence, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959). One factor that must be considered in a determination as to which party's version of an incident has the "reasonable probability of the truth" is that "the interest, motive, bias or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952) (citations omitted) certif. den. 10 N.J. 316 (1952). Further, "[a] trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony." Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

The respondent's witnesses were not incredible. Their personal knowledge, however, was remote from the material part of the charges. They could and did testify to specific instances that reflected favorably on the respondent. This testimony is not disregarded.

Upon a review of the entire record and in consideration of the foregoing findings of fact, I CONCLUDE that the Cherry Hill Board of Education has proven tenure charges of inefficiency against Jacqueline Carson after providing a 90-day period for remediation, providing reasonable support to the respondent aimed at assisting her in overcoming her inefficiencies and that the appropriate result is dissolution of tenure and removal from position. Some improvement was indeed noted in the 90-day period. The majority of inefficiencies showed no improvement. While no one of these inefficiencies may be sufficient in itself to form a basis for removal, taken together they can lead to no other result. "Unfitness for a position under the school system is best evidenced by a series of incidents. Unfitness to hold a post might be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it might also be shown by many incidents." Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943); aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). The proofs support the action taken.

Accordingly, I ORDER that Jacqueline Carson be removed from her position as a tenured member of the clerical staff of the Cherry Hill township Board of Education effective as of the date of final decision in this matter by the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JACQUELINE CARSON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent requested and was granted an extension of time, until December 15, 1993, to file exceptions. These and Board's reply thereto were timely filed and are summarized in pertinent part below.

Respondent's exceptions argue that the initial decision is fatally deficient and must be remanded because the ALJ failed to include specific findings of fact necessary to support his recommendation of termination as required by the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3(c)6,7. As support for this contention, she asserts that

1) The ALJ failed to make findings with respect to each of the inefficiencies alleged by the Board.

> [T]his was a very fact-specific case involving a charge of inefficiency in which the Petitioner Board of Education  alleged  that Respondent had failed to correct fourteen  specific performance areas. Yet in the Initial Decision, the ALJ makes no specific factual findings as to these fourteen separate and specific performance criteria. He simply summarizes the testimony of the parties' respective witnesses in a section entitled "Parol and Documentary Evidence" (ID at 2-7). He > then proceeds to restate the parties' arguments by synopsizing their post-hearing memoranda. ID at 7-13. Finally, in a section entitled "Determination," he makes findings but only as to the aggregate credibility of the parties' witnesses and not on the specific factual issues presented. Nowhere is there to be found in the Initial Decision a finding with respect to any of the specific performance areas recited in the 90-day supervisory plan, e.g., "undergo scheduled training on computer/word processing/EDP"; "place all notes and written guidelines in a notebook"; meet all deadlines for completion of work." [T]he ALJ did not make a determination as to the facts underlying the Board's specific charges against Respondent but settled for a broad brush conclusory summary in favor of the Board.

Respondent cites a number of appellate court cases dealing with such issues as disability claims, tax assessments, and workers' compensation claims where courts found that conclusory findings of administrative law judges and administrative agencies warranted reversal of the agency's determination and a remand for the issuance of more specific findings.

2) The ALJ failed to resolve conflicts between testimony of witnesses adduced at the hearing. Respondent proffers as examples:

> The Board alleged in its 90-day supervisory plan summary that Respondent "still cannot perform basic tasks" in computer and word processing matters. The purchasing office supervisor, JoAnn Angelone, testified that she agreed with that statement as well as all statements in the summary. IT35. She also testified on cross-examination that Respondent had made only "very little" improvement in computer and word processing skills. IT54. Despite this negative opinion which Ms. Angelone steadfastly held, she also testified that she had not conferred at all with the computer trainer, Ms. Gail Persichelli. Ms. Persichelli confirmed that she had no communication from the purchasing department regarding the training which she was administering to Respondent but that she had > spoken with her own supervisor and reported to him that the training was "going fine." 2T63, 64. Ms. Persichelli, after reviewing her detailed training notes (Exh. R-3) and the specific computer skills indicated thereon testified that Respondent had mastered all of the skills of basic word processing by the end of the 90-day improvement period in September, 1992. 2T57 to 2T61. The ALJ, however, never resolved this conflict in the testimony in what was clearly one of the more important allegations of inefficiency raised by the Board, e.g., mastery of basic computer functions. No resolution of how the computer trainer with responsibility for providing training to personnel district-wide could opine that Respondent had satisfactorily completed the training and mastered the skill, instructed and, at the same time the purchasing department supervisor could state that she agreed with the Board secretary's summary indicating that Respondent "still cannot perform basic skills." Without a resolution of this conflicting testimony and documentation, there can be no finding on the first-listed inefficiency in the Board's 90-day supervisory plan summary.

Respondent contends that there are also unresolved testimony conflicts with respect to another Board-listed inefficiency, paying custodians beyond cut-off dates. She points out that a building engineer, Robert Mascio, testified that she handled these matters as well as her predecessor and her successor and that Frank Ford, a head custodian, also testified that she handled these matters well and the only problem he specifically remembered was that custodians did not turn in overtime information sheets on time.

Also, with respect to the Board's alleged inefficiency -- failing to proof all work prior to distribution -- respondent alleges that the ALJ failed to resolve conflicts which arose through her testimony and that of a former employee that the reason so many documents had to be retyped was that the purchasing supervisor frequently made revisions of her initial drafts.

Respondent maintains that the ALJ's failure to resolve such conflicts in the record is harmful error which warrants reversal and remand.

Respondent further excepts to the ALJ's determination that the Board provided reasonable support during the 90-day improvement period aimed at assisting her to overcome her inefficiencies citing as an example its failure to have ongoing communication with the person designated to provide computer skills training. Likewise, respondent excepts to the ALJ's determination that the Board's witnesses were inherently credible without specifying which witnesses and to what substantive testimony he was referring. Respondent provides citations to areas of proferred testimony where she maintains such witnesses were evasive or vague on matters unfavorable to them or the Board.

Finally, respondent alleges that the ALJ provided no explanation or supporting rationale as to why removal was the appropriate penalty in this matter but rather he simply affirmed the penalty sought by the Board.

By way of response, the Board avers that all of the exceptions advanced by respondent essentially rest on an assertion that the ALJ improperly failed to make specific and necessary findings of fact to justify his ultimate determination, a claim which it argues is unsupportable when reviewing the initial decision.

The Board contends that on pages 13 through 16 of the initial decision the ALJ made all the factual findings necessary to support his recommendation of respondent's termination. It contends:

> Respondent urges that she should remain in her position absent a specific finding that she had not overcome one particular area of inefficiency, her computer processing skills. The ALJ, however, does not base his decision on the inability to have overcome any one inefficiency, but rather states that:
>
> > The majority of inefficiencies showed no improvement. While no one of these inefficiencies may be sufficient in itself to form a basis for removal, taken together they can lead to no other result.
>
> Id. at page 16. Accordingly, the ALJ did not deem it necessary to make individual factual findings with respect to each inefficiency proven by Petitioner. What the ALJ did find was that Respondent's performance, taken as a whole, leads to only one result: A recommendation for removal.

The Board argues that the ALJ's initial decision correctly determined that based on the weight of all of the evidence presented and the truthfulness ascribed to that evidence, respondent's termination was warranted. It contends that respondent's argument that there is a lack of individual findings of fact is irrelevant when reviewing the totality of circumstances such as occurred here.

The Board contends that respondent's arguments regarding its lack of support in assisting her to overcome her inefficiencies and testimony conflict arguments are unfounded.

> Petitioner provided repeated training for Respondent in both computer and word-processing areas, but Respondent was still unable to master basic computer skills. While Respondent correctly points out that no evidence contradicted Ms. Persichelli's testimony that Respondent did well during her training sessions, as proven by Petitioner, Ms. Persichelli was unable to testify as to Respondent's ability to recall the information after she allegedly "mastered" it. Only Respondent's supervisors could testify as to her ability to retain fundamental information, and as the ALJ found, did so in a believable well-supported fashion.

The Board further notes that respondent's direct supervisor credibly testified that she repeatedly assisted respondent with her routine office tasks. Additionally, it contends:

> One other point should be made with respect to the ALJ's heavy reliance on Petitioner's witnesses. As is pointed out in the Initial Decision, it was not the incredibility of Respondent's witnesses which created the strong preponderance in favor of Petitioner. Rather, it was their remoteness from the material part of the charges. Id. at 16. Thus, while Respondent's witnesses may have been able to testify as to specific favorable instances, they were too far removed from Respondent's daily conduct in the Purchasing Office to offer wholly relevant testimony. Id. (Board's Reply, at p.3)

With respect to the assertion that the ALJ failed to make an independent determination as to the appropriate penalty, it contends he did so on page 13 of the initial decision where he stated that the charges set forth by the Board were sufficient, as

> "they state with reasonable clarity a set of circumstances" that, "...if true in fact, warrant reduction in salary or dismissal." Id. at 13. Based on the evidence presented, the ALJ found that, in this instance, dismissal was the appropriate remedy. (Board's Reply, at p. 3)

The Board contends that it is a strongly held principle that the appropriate disciplinary measure to be imposed upon a proper finding of inefficiency is termination and cites Township of Teaneck, Bergen County v. Leon Wilburn, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 48 as support for this contention.

Upon an independent review of the record in this matter, which it is noted included transcripts of the hearings conducted before the ALJ, the Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions to be without merit. He concurs with the ALJ's findings and conclusion that the Board has sustained its charges of inefficiency against respondent, after providing a 90-day period for remediation during which it accorded her reasonable support aimed at assisting her in overcoming such inefficiencies, which she was unwilling or unable to do, and, consequently, the appropriate result is respondent's removal from her position.

Contrary to the argument advanced by respondent, the Commissioner does not find the ALJ's lack of specific factual findings with respect to each individual inefficiency charge lodged against respondent violative of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3. Rather, he finds that his "DETERMINATION" (Initial Decision, at pp. 13-16) satisfies the necessary factual requirements of that regulatory provision and supports his ultimate conclusion, i.e., that in light of all relevant, credible evidence, the Board had proven an overall pattern of poor performance by respondent which warrants her dismissal.

The Commissioner further finds that the record supports the weight ascribed to the testimony of respondent's witnesses by the ALJ

> The respondent's witnesses were not incredible. Their personal knowledge, however, was remote from the material part of the charges.
> (Initial Decision, at p. 16)

Accordingly, respondent is terminated from her tenured clerk position in the Cherry Hill School District as of the date of this decision.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 20, 1994

For the Appellant, Hanly & Ryglicki (Jack Gillman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This appeal by the Board of Education of the Township of Weehawken (hereinafter "Board" or "Weehawken") results from the fact that the District's application for a grant in the amount of $175,980 for implementation of its desegregation plan for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-33.15 was not accepted by the Commissioner of Education. As provided for under the statute, Weehawken had applied for grants for the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years and had been awarded such funds by Commissioner John Ellis for those years pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-33.16. Although the application Weehawken submitted for 1993-94 was the same as those it had submitted the previous two years, it was not recommended for funding for 1993-94 since it did not receive the minimum score for such recommendation under the criteria used by the evaluation panel appointed to review the applications for that year. By letter of May 20, 1994, Commissioner Leo Klagholz sustained this determination.

Weehawken filed an appeal to the State Board of Education on June 24, 1994, but the matter was placed in abeyance at the parties' request. The briefing schedule was reestablished after the parties arrived at an agreement concerning the record on appeal, and the parties' briefs were filed by April 29, 1996.

By its appeal, Weehawken is seeking an award of $175,980 either by reopening this matter or through "some other grant or loan program available to solve the problem." Brief in support of appeal, at 1. Essentially, Weehawken contends that it is entitled to such funds because it had been granted aid the previous two years on the basis of applications identical to the one it filed for 1993-94 and had spent the monies it had applied for in anticipation of also receiving a grant for 1993-94. It argues that it was arbitrary for the Commissioner to deny it the funds because, in contrast to the previous two years, the personnel who reviewed the grant applications for 1993-94 were "unfamiliar with the Weehawken desegregation plan," id. at 4-5. Weekhawken also contends that the Commissioner is estopped from "withholding" the funds because the grants were not awarded until well after the 1993-94 school year had commenced, by which point Weehawken had spent the money in reliance on the "previous conduct of the Commissioner of Education." Id. at 7. In addition, Weehawken argues that its due process rights were violated since it was not afforded "an opportunity to be heard as to the incorrectness and unfairness" of the determination not to recommend that the District receive aid for 1993-94.

Based on the terms of the applicable statutes and the submissions of the parties, we find that Weehawken has not provided any basis that would warrant either awarding it the monies it is seeking or reopening the matter for further hearing. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-33.15 provides that districts which are eligible to receive State aid under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-33 and which are either under an order or implementing a voluntary desegregation plan may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a grant for 1) programs required for the implementation of a desegregation order, 2) the enhancement of educational programs in the district, including such other excellence initiatives as the Commissioner deems appropriate, or 3) magnet schools.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-33.16 provides that the Commissioner shall determine the manner, form, and content of such applications, and that:

> The commissioner shall review the applications and shall, within the limit of funds appropriated or otherwise made available for this purpose, award such grants as he deems advisable or appropriate.

Thus, while Weehawken was eligible to apply for a grant under the statute, nothing in that statute entitled it, or any other eligible school district, to be awarded the funds it sought in any given year. Further, as Weehawken concedes, pursuant to the express terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-33.16, the Legislature conferred on the Commissioner of Education the discretion to award such grants to eligible districts as he deems "advisable or appropriate." Nothing in Weehawken's arguments demonstrates to us that Commissioner Klagholz abused his discretion by determining not to award a grant to this district for 1993-94.

We find absolutely no merit to Weehawken's contentions that the Commissioner was compelled to award it these funds because of awards that had been made by one of his predecessors. To the contrary, the words of the statute require the Commissioner of Education to make a judgment as to whether such grant is advisable or appropriate in each year for which a district applies. Weehawken does not contend that the Department of Education failed to notify it of the criteria that would be applied in 1993-94, nor does it make any substantive argument as to why it was entitled to a grant under those criteria. In this respect, we find no merit to Weehawken's suggestion that the Commissioner would have reached a different conclusion as to the advisability and appropriateness of its application had the individuals who screened the applications been "familiar" with its program. Rather, it was the District's responsibility to provide any information which it deemed critical to the success of its application when it responded to the Department of Education's Request for Proposal (RFP) for 1993-94.

Furthermore, while the delay in making the award for 1993-94 was unfortunate, that fact did not entitle the District to assume that it would receive an award for the year in question. Prior to awarding funds for 1993-94, Commissioner Mary Lee Fitzgerald directed a review by the Department of Education's internal auditor in order to determine whether undue political pressure had been used to influence the award of these grants in the first two years of the program, and we reject Weehawken's contention that Commissioner Fitzgerald's memorandum of September 3, 1993, provided it with either the assurance or any reasonable basis to conclude that it would be receiving a grant for 1993-94.

In short, Weehawken has failed to demonstrate to us that it is entitled to the money it is seeking. Moreover, given the circumstances, it is disingenuous for the District to suggest that it was not treated fairly because Commissioners Fitzgerald and Klagholz sought to assure that the grants for 1993-94 were awarded on the basis of criteria that had been provided to all eligible school districts, rather than simply awarding monies to those districts which had received grants during the previous two years. In that Weehawken has not made any showing that it would be entitled to the award it seeks under those criteria, we dismiss this appeal.

V.	:	DECISION
THE NEW JERSEY SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, May 26, 1994

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 23, 1994

For the Appellants, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Robert A. Fagella, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Marlene Zuberman, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This appeal to the State Board of Education was brought by four members of the Board of Education of the Township of Delran (hereinafter "appellants"), who represented in their Notice of Appeal filed on June 24, 1994, that they were "individuals directly affected by advisory opinions of the New Jersey School Ethics Commission." Their Notice indicated that appellants were appealing from "final decisions of the New Jersey School Ethics Commission dated May 26, 1994 and June 23, 1994." Those "decisions," appended to the Notice, were designated as "Public Release" "Advisory Opinion A10-93" and "Public Release" "A10-93(b) and A07-94."

The file transmitted to the State Board of Education by the School Ethics Commission reflects that the "decisions" that are the subject of this appeal originated with a request to the Ethics

Oct. 5 1994

Commission made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31 for an advisory opinion.[1] The request was made by the attorney for the Delran Board (hereinafter "counsel") in a letter dated April 25, 1993, wherein he indicated that he was making the request on behalf of several local boards which he represented. See note 1. Counsel's request raised questions as to whether thirteen different circumstances involving collective negotiations might constitute violations of the School Ethics Act by local board members.

By letter of December 14, 1993, counsel renewed his request, this time focusing only on one question:

> Whether or not it would be a violation of the School Ethics Act for a local board of education member who was affiliated with the NJEA, or its affiliates, in various ways to vote on or participate in collective negotiations with the NJEA or its local affiliates concerning a collectively negotiated contract for a unit of employees within the school district in which the individual serves as a local board member.

Counsel also referenced a Commission "ruling" of October 26 and requested that "the [Commission] guarantee that the advisory opinion and any related application of the School Ethics Act with respect to [the] issues will be prospective only."

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31 provides the authority under which the Ethics Commission may issue advisory opinions, providing that:

> A school official may request and obtain from the Commission an advisory opinion as to whether any proposed activity or conduct would in its opinion constitute violation of the provisions of this act. Advisory opinions of the commission shall not be made public, except when the commission, by a vote of at least six members directs that the opinion be made public. Public advisory opinions shall not disclose the name of the school official.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 defines "school official" as a board member or an administrator.

By letter of February 9, 1994, the Commission notified counsel that it had determined at its January 26 meeting that "any advisory opinions regarding union members participating in collective bargaining negotiations will be applied prospectively."

By letter of May 26, 1994. directed to counsel, the Commission advised that "...a board member may not participate directly in negotiations if the member or a member of his immediate family...is a member of the same statewide general union."

The Commission concluded that:

> ...this ruling extends to all members of the same state wide union, regardless of the bargaining unit. It does not extend to affiliate organizations because the Commission feels that the nexus of influence in such a situation is too remote to prejudice a board member's independence of judgment. Additionally, this opinion does not extend to board members who are themselves retired members of a union, or whose immediate family members are retired members of a union since they are inactive members of the union with an extremely limited financial and personal interest in the outcome of the negotiations.
> It is axiomatic that decisions which result in fundamental changes in the interpretation or application of long-standing law or precedent should be applied prospectively. See, e.g. Spiewak v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63, 82-83 (1982). Therefore, this decision shall apply prospectively from this date forward, and shall not apply to negotiating teams in place that are in the process of negotiating with a union of the date of this opinion. The Commission shall endeavor to make this decision known to the public.

On June 23, 1994, the Commission addressed another of the questions that had been raised by counsel for the Delran Board. In a letter directed to both counsel and another attorney, and citing its previous "ruling," the Commission advised that:

> ...a board member may not vote on a negotiated contract if the board member or member of his immediate family...is a member of the same statewide general union that has negotiated the contract with the school board.

Referencing its earlier "opinion," the Commission concluded that:

> As with its previous opinion, this opinion does not apply to retired members of a union. This opinion is also not applicable to affiliate unions in other states, but is limited to members of the same statewide union. However, as also intended in A10-93, this opinion does limit board members from voting on collective bargaining agreements negotiated by a statewide union, where they or their spouses are covered by a collective bargaining agreement that is negotiated by the same statewide union, even though they themselves may not be members of that union, i.e. agency shop situation. The rationale for this decision is the same as that for prohibiting board members from negotiating with unions to which they or their spouses belong; a board member benefiting from a union's negotiations has a financial involvement in that agreement which might prejudice his independence of judgment.
>
> This opinion shall take effect prospectively since it is a fundamental change in long-standing practice.

Appellants filed their appeal to the State Board of Education on June 24, 1994.

On July 29, 1994, the Ethics Commission filed a motion to dismiss the appeal, contending that the State Board lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the matter and that if any review were sought, it should be from the Appellate Division. On August 3, appellants filed individual certifications opposing the motion.

By letter of August 8, both parties were advised that the briefing schedule in the appeal had been placed in abeyance pending the State Board's disposition of the Commission's motion to dismiss.

On August 10, the State Board Appeals Office received a proposed stipulation submitted by the Commission on behalf of the parties. Under the terms of the stipulation, the State Board would consent to withdrawal of the appeal based on the agreement between the parties that the Ethics Commission would not assert lack of jurisdiction in any future proceeding conducted in the Appellate Division.

By letter of September 15, appellants notified the State Board that they had filed a notice of appeal in the Appellate Division on August 6, 1994.

We can not ignore the fact that the desire of the parties to have this matter adjudicated by the Appellate Division is not a guarantee that the Court can hear it. Peper v. Princeton University Board of Trustees, 77 N.J. 55, 65 (1978). Subject matter jurisdiction can not be conferred by agreement of the parties, or by waiver of objection to the assumption of such jurisdiction, as is reflected in the stipulation that has been submitted to us. Id. State v. Osburne, 32 N.J. 117, 121-122 (1960).

That being the case, we could not consent to withdrawal of the appeal now before us without first ascertaining whether or not the State Board has jurisdiction over it. Cf. Lay Faculty Ass'n of Regional Secondary Schools of Archdiocese of Newark v. Roman Catholic Archdocise of Newark, 122 N.J. Super. 260, 269-271 (App. Div. 1973), supplemented, 124 N.J. Super. 369 (App. Div. 1973). Our conclusion in this respect requires a determination as to whether the "decisions" from which appellants sought to appeal are properly characterized as advisory opinions rather than final decisions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1. See, e.g., New Jersey Ass'n for Retarded Citizens, Inc. v. New Jersey Dept. of Human Services, 89 N.J. 234 (1982).

We are not able to determine on the basis of the documents provided to us whether the Ethics Commission intended its opinions to be binding either on any individual or in general, or whether the Commission's intent was to issue purely advisory opinions. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11 (no advisory opinion as to seniority shall be binding). We are therefore compelled to remand this matter to the Ethics Commission for such clarification before we can determine whether jurisdiction over this matter lies with the State Board of Education.

We retain jurisdiction.

NEW JERSEY SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION,	:	DECISION

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, May 26, 1994

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 23, 1994

Remanded to the School Ethics Commission by the State Board of Education, October 5, 1994

For the Appellants, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Robert A. Fagella, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Marlene Zuberman, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

On October 5, 1994, the State Board of Education rendered a decision in which we concluded that, without first ascertaining whether the State Board had subject matter jurisdiction over this appeal, we could not consent to its withdrawal on the basis of an agreement between the parties to conduct any future proceedings in the Appellate Division. Our conclusion in that respect required a determination as to whether the "decisions" involved were properly characterized as advisory opinions rather than final decisions.

December 7, 1994

However, as expressed in our decision:

> We [were] not able to determine on the basis of the documents provided to us whether the Ethics Commission intended its opinions to be binding either on any individual or in general, or whether the Commission's intent was to issue purely advisory opinions. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11 (no advisory opinion as to seniority shall be binding). We [were] therefore compelled to remand this matter to the Ethics Commission for such clarification before we [could] determine whether jurisdiction over this matter lies with the State Board of Education.

By letter of October 31, 1994, the Executive Director of the School Ethics Commission responded to the State Board's decision, communicating to us that:

> Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.14, the School Ethics Commission intended its advisory opinions to be advisory in nature. Its public opinions, passed by a vote of at least six Commission members, are to have a general application.

In reaction thereto, appellants filed a letter brief with the State Board of Education on November 30, 1994.[1] Appellants were disturbed by the fact that while the Commission's response indicated that the contested opinions were merely advisory, it also appeared to indicate that they were to have "general application." Appellants argue that the opinions were clearly intended to be binding on every member of a board of education and every school official in New Jersey and that, given the impact of these opinions, appellants deserve the right to obtain review as expeditiously as possible.

In view of the concerns appellants have expressed to us, we have carefully reviewed the Ethics Commission's response to our

1 We note that although the Ethics Commission response was issued on October 31, 1994, appellants represented to us that they did not receive a copy of it until November 28, 1994.

remand. We find that while the response is not entirely clear, it does state that the opinions in question were issued pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31, "Advisory Opinions." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-31 provides that:

> A school official may request and obtain from the [ethics] commission an advisory opinion as to whether any proposed activity or conduct would in its opinion constitute a violation of the provisions of this act. Advisory opinions of the commission shall not be made public, except when the commission, by a vote of at least six members, directs that the opinion be made public. Public advisory opinions shall not disclose the name of the school official.

An advisory opinion is an interpretation of the law without binding effect, rather than a decision. Black's Law Dictionary; 20 AM JUR 2d at 524. In that the Ethics Commission has now clarified that the opinions at issue are advisory in nature, we conclude that they do not constitute determinations by the Ethics Commission regarding violations of the School Ethics Act that are appealable to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(d). Nor do such advisory opinions constitute final decisions appealable to the State Board under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1.

The fact that the Commission indicated in its response to us that its advisory opinions have "general application" can not give the opinions at issue here the force of administrative rules. In this respect, we stress that although N.J.S.A. 18A:12-34 expressly provides that the State Board of Education may promulgate regulations pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act to effectuate the purposes of the School Ethics Act, the Ethics Commission has not proposed to us that we promulgate such regulations. Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984).

Based on the foregoing, we therefore conclude that jurisdiction to review the opinions in question does not lie with the State Board of Education at this juncture, and we dismiss this appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured custodian, appealed termination from his position, alleging it was without sufficient cause and contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-41 to -48.

ALJ concluded petitioner failed to carry his burden of proof that he was denied a fair hearing. ALJ found pursuant to Rice, petitioner was given notice that his employment status was to be discussed, and that the meeting petitioner attended was not a hearing. ALJ found petitioner's Fifth Amendment rights were not violated when he chose, on advice of counsel, not to speak at such meeting. ALJ determined Board's action to terminate petitioner's position was neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable. ALJ concluded one incident of offensive language and comment to a student was sufficiently flagrant to warrant petitioner's dismissal.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision emphasizing Board complied with Rice standards.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, a nontenured custodian in the employ of the Board of Education of the Pinelands Regional School District (Board) appeals its action to terminate him alleging, among other things, that his termination was without sufficient cause and contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-41 to -48. The Board, by way of Answer to the Petition and Affirmative Defenses, asserts, among other things, that it properly exercised its statutory authority in terminating petitioner from its employ, pursuant to N.J.SA. 18A:11-1.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on August 12, 1993 followed by a Prehearing Order, dated August 17, 1993, where, among other things, the issues to be determined were set forth as follows:

1. Whether a hearing may be conducted by a Board of an employee for charges which have been brought simultaneous with similar charges arising out of the same factual circumstances which are the basis of a criminal complaint?

2. Whether the Board abused its authority to dismiss the petitioner?

The matter was heard on December 3, 1993, at the Stafford Township Municipal Court, Manahawkin, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on December 3, 1993. On December 1, 1993, petitioner submitted a trial brief in support of his appeal.

BACKGROUND AND STIPULATED FACTS

Based upon petitioner's testimony at the herein hearing and the stipulated facts before the Honorable Thomas Grant Bernard, J.M.C., Little Egg Harbor Municipal Court, in the matter of State of New Jersey v. William D. Hugg, I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioner has been employed as a custodian by the Board for approximately two years. Petitioner is under contract and, therefore, has not acquired a tenure status with the Board. Petitioner's work performance evaluations have generally been good. Petitioner has had no prior disciplinary actions against him. He was, however, warned not to transport female students home from the school house.

Petitioner's work day commenced at 3:00 p.m. and continued to 11:00 p.m., each week day. He was assigned a specific work area to clean for the opening of school on the following day. Petitioner generally took two work breaks during the evening; i. e., a short break at 5:00 p.m. and a lunch or dinner break at 7:00 p.m.

On November 19, 1992, at approximately 7:00 p.m., petitioner and three other employees had taken their lunch break in the school's cafeteria. The cafeteria proper is separated from the school corridor by a series of glass windows. Student T.C., a 16 year old female, appeared at one of the windows and caught petitioner's attention. Petitioner went to the window and determined that the student, by pointing, wished to get into the school auditorium to practice a play. Petitioner, pointed to his wristwatch and shook his head "no" to advise the student she could not get into the auditorium. Petitioner further indicated to T.C. that she would need a teacher's permission to gain entrance to the auditorium. As T.C. moved away from the window, petitioner said, "I want to suck your tits." T.C. heard petitioner's statement.

Subsequently, petitioner was suspended from duty with pay on November 19, 1992. A criminal complaint was filed by Detective Dennis Brown of the Little Egg Harbor Township Police Department which charged petitioner of violating N.J.S.A. 2C:34-4(b). The complaint was remanded to the municipal court by the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office.

The Board advised petitioner, by letter, that his employment status was to be discussed at a meeting of the Board scheduled on December 9, 1992. Petitioner was invited to attend the Board meeting. Petitioner was informed that he would be allowed to address the Board concerning the alleged incident and his employment status. Petitioner appeared at the December 9, 1992, Board meeting and met with the Board in closed session pursuant to the Open Public Meeting's Act (OPMA). Upon advise from his legal counsel, petitioner did not discuss the incident nor his employment status with the Board. On December 9, 1992, in open public session, the Board voted to dismiss petitioner from his position as custodian.

On January 12, 1993, petitioner appeared before Judge Bernard and, upon stipulated facts, petitioner was found guilty of violating N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4(a), harassment. The court imposed the maximum fine of $500 in addition to an assessment of $50 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB).

The victim, T. C., did not testify at the herein hearing although she was present and ready to do so. Judge Bernard did, moreover, provide T.C. the opportunity to speak at the municipal court hearing where she said in part:

> Your Honor, I feel bad that he had to lose his job, and you know, that he might be in debt or, but you know, I still can't go to school which I thought was one of the safest places to be, and where I don't feel -- I feel bad that I have to worry about being in, to get my education in school.

PETITIONER'S LEGAL ARGUMENT

RESPONDENT'S DENIAL OF PETITIONER'S REQUEST FOR AN ADJOURNMENT OR CONTINUANCE DENIED PETITIONER DUE PROCESS OF LAW

An examination of the Board's denial in the within matter reveals a situation where little, if any, consideration was given to petitioner's right to a fair hearing. While there is no dispute that the Board may have felt compelled to act in an expeditious manner out of concern for the student, it was nevertheless improper for the Board to deny petitioner's request for a continuance or adjournment based on the totality of the facts and circumstances presented to the Board. Neither the Board nor the student would have suffered any prejudice by delaying the matter a mere six weeks. It should be noted that the incident allegedly occurred on November 19, 1992. Petitioner was suspended on December 1st and thereafter terminated on December 9th during the hearing that is the subject of this appeal. Furthermore, petitioner became the subject of the criminal complaint on November 20, 1992 - the day after the incident allegedly took place. Considering this accelerated dimension of events it would appear that if any party was prejudiced petitioner is the likely candidate.

The New Jersey Supreme Court examined a related issue in State v. Kobrin Securities, Inc., 111 N.J. 307 (1988). The question presented in that case was whether the State could proceed with a civil fraud action against associated securities dealers while certain of them were subject to pending criminal actions arising out of the same transactions. The parties to the criminal action had in the civil proceedings asserted their privilege against self-incrimination and had therefore refused to provide discovery to the State. The trial court on its own motion placed the civil case on the inactive list.

Although the Supreme Court ultimately held that the case should be returned to the active list, the Court set forth certain considerations that bear on this case. First, the Court noted that the alleviation of tension between constitutional rights has been treated as within the province of a court's sound administration of justice.

Id. at 313 [citing People v. Coleman, 13 Cal. 3d 867, 885, 533 P.2d 1024, 1039 (1975)]. In the context of staying discovery the Court stated:

> Generally, the question should be whether refusing to stay discovery would impose undue hardship on a defendant and would thereby expose to unnecessary adverse consequences the defendant exercising the constitutional privilege. . . The defendants must demonstrate how the discovery burdens imposed upon them outweigh the public interest. The trial court shall thereafter exercise its discretion to mete out justice in both the civil and criminal litigations. . . Of course, we must be sensitive to the potential for the State's deliberately manipulating a civil procedure in order to obtain evidence against a criminal defendant. Should the government "use  the civil discovery process to compel answers to interrogatories  to build the government's case in a parallel criminal proceeding [it would reflect] such unfairness and want of consideration for justice as to require reversal.

A balance of the injustices in the within matter leads to the unquestionable conclusion that petitioner was denied a fair hearing and was, practically speaking, denied the effective exercise of his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. By denying petitioner's request for an adjournment and thereby placing him in the dangerous position of exercising his Fifth Amendment right not to testify there could only be one outcome of the Board's deliberations, namely termination. Such a burden far outweighs any prejudice to the Board or to the student that may have occurred if an adjournment had been granted. It is significant that petitioner had been suspended without pay prior to the hearing and such suspension could have easily been maintained pending the outcome of the criminal matter. Additionally, the request was for a mere six or eight week adjournment. Respondent cannot point to any prejudice that might have developed as a result of such a short delay.

Another factor is injected into the Fifth Amendment issue as same was affected by the denial of petitioner's request. The criminal complaint in this matter was precipitated by the school district and not the student or her parents. The interrelationship between the school district and police department in the investigation of this matter demonstrates prima facie the State's attempt to take advantage of the pending administrative case against petitioner in order to build its case in the criminal matter. Such use of the administrative posture of the case by the police department without a doubt warranted an adjournment of the matter in the

As a final point, it should be stated that there was some concern during the hearing about petitioner's alleged strategy. It was suggested that petitioner desired a stay of the hearing in hopes of discussing the situation with the student and her parents and convincing them to accept a dismissal of the charges. The concern was that petitioner would then return to the Bord and propose the argument that since the charges were dismissed in the criminal matter the Board should then consider disciplinary action far short of termination. The denial by the Board that followed was nothing more than an attempt to turn petitioner's Fifth Amendment right on its head and use that right against petitioner so that he would be forced not to testify at the hearing, in which case the Board could terminate petitioner in the absence of any contrary evidence prior to a potential dismissal of the charges in municipal court.

It is respectfully submitted that petitioner was denied a fair hearing on December 9, 1992. By denying an adjournment the Board impinged petitioner's Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination forcing upon petitioner the terrible consequence of losing his job. It is submitted that our forefathers could never have intended so harsh a result by exercising one's constitutional rights.

POINT II
TERMINATION OF PETITIONER'S EMPLOYMENT WAS NOT WARRANTED BY THE FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE

It is undisputed that the Pinelands Regional Custodial Association, of which petitioner was a member, does not set forth rules, regulations or disciplinary actions regarding such conduct as alleged by the Board. It is respectfully submitted that in the absence thereof dismissals and terminations should be governed by the provisions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-41 et seq. Notably, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-71 et seq. limits disqualifications for employment as a custodian to convictions of crimes of disorderly persons offenses:

A. Bearing upon or involving sexual offense or child molestation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 2C:14-1 et seq.; or

B. Endangering the welfare of children or incompetents as set forth in N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4 and 2C:24-7.

In the within matter the criminal charges were resolved as a petty disorderly offense in the municipal court under N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4 (Harassment). If such an offense would not disqualify a candidate from employment by a school district it is difficult to understand why such an offense should result in termination of an employee. In that regard, the Board's decision to terminate petitioner was unreasonable. The circumstances surrounding the alleged conduct of petitioner simply do not warrant loss of employment. Petitioner was standing behind a glass partition when the alleged words were spoken and were not intended to be heard by the student. In fact, the alleged remarks, if made, were made in the presence of co-workers and for their "benefit". Furthermore, petitioner had been an exemplary employee until the time of the alleged incident and would undoubtedly continue to be such an employee once this unfortunate situation is behind him. Petitioner's employment status should not be guided by one brief moment of stupidity. Rather, any discipline should be meted out based on the totality of the facts and circumstances and in light of petitioner's otherwise fine record as a Board employee.

MOTION

At the conclusion of petitioner's case in chief, the Board moved to dismiss the Petition of Appeal grounded upon its assertion that petitioner had failed to carry his burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Subsequent to a review of the evidence, this tribunal agreed with the Board and dismissed the Petition.

I

Petitioner's claim that he was denied a fair hearing before the Board on December 9, 1992, is without merit. First, the Board did not conduct a hearing on December 9, 1992. Rather, it gave petitioner notice that it intended to discuss and take action concerning his employment status, pursuant to Rice v. Union County Regional High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J. Super 65 (App. Div. 1977). Under the Rice holding, the Board is required to give petitioner notice of its intent to discuss petitioner's employment status. Petitioner is then provided the opportunity to advise the Board as to whether he wishes to have his employment status discussed in private or public session under the provisions of the Open Public Meeting Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21.

The Board discussed petitioner's employment status in private, providing petitioner the opportunity to speak on his own behalf. Rice, supra; N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 b. (3) and (8). Petitioner, under the advice of legal counsel, determined not to speak. The Board, thereafter, took action in open public meeting to dismiss him from his contracted position of school custodian based upon the facts before it.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner's Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination were not violated.

Second, petitioner had not acquired a tenure status with the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. See, Walter c. Peck v. Board of Education of the Mainland Regional High School District, Atlantic County, 1982 S.L.D. _____; quoted in Claud Wright, Jr. and East Orange Personnel Association v. Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County, 1982 S.L.D. 823, 836. Rather, petitioner was under contract with the Board and subject to termination exclusive of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to -26. The Board, therefore, under its grant of authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 c. ". . . for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees . . .," determined that petitioner was unfit to continue service as a custodian under its employ. As the court said in Redcay v. State Board of Education, N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E.&A. 1944), that:

> Unfitness for a task is best shown by numerous incidents. Unfitness for a position under the school system is best evidenced by a series of incidents. Unfitness to hold a post might be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it might also be shown by many incidents. Fitness may be shown either way. 130 N.J.L. at 371

School boards are entrusted by our Legislature with the duty of determining the general issue of fitness of teachers and other employees. Boards of education are sufficiently equipped to conduct a fair and impartial inquiry whenever such issue legitimately comes into question. Laba v. Newark Bd. of Ed. 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957).

Their obligation to determine the fitness of its employees is a reflection of their duties to protect the students under their charge from a significant danger or harm. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super 404 (App. Div. 1967).

In Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966) the courts have stated that:

> We are here concerned with a determination made by an administrative agency duly created and empowered by legislative fiat. When such a body acts within its authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.
> 89 N.J. Super at 332.

Petitioner admits and stipulates to the offensive language and comments he made to T.C. As a consequence of his offensive comments, petitioner has been convicted, in a court of competent jurisdiction of violating N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4 (harassment).

In the matter of Paterson School District v. Watson, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 362 at 376, the Commissioner recognized the position occupied by a school custodian as an important one where she cited the language In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph McDougall, 1974 S.L.D. 170 at 178:

> [a] school janitor occupies a position of trust and responsibility necessitating high standards of dependability and morality. His functions far exceed opening and closing the school house and keeping it clean and tidy. The safety and welfare of the children may depend upon the proper discharge of his duties. (emphasis supplied).

The herein record clearly demonstrates that petitioner violated his position of trust by his comments to T.C., a minor and student under his authority. He was devoid of high standards of morality and failed to protect the safety and welfare of T.C. in the discharge of his duties. The Board, therefore, determined that this one incident was sufficiently flagrant to warrant petitioner's dismissal. Redcay, supra.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to carry his burden in the instant matter, by a preponderance of the reliable and credible evidence.

I CONCLUDE that the Board's action to terminate petitioner's employment was neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable under the circumstances.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board's Motion to Dismiss should be granted.

ORDER

Accordingly, the Board's Motion to Dismiss the herein matter is hereby GRANTED and it is ORDERED that the Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties. Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law that the Board's action to terminate petitioner's nontenured employment as a custodian in the district was neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable. He so finds for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

In so finding, the Commissioner emphasizes that the events that took place on December 9, 1992 did not constitute a hearing, during which it might be argued that petitioner's Fifth Amendment rights were abridged. As correctly found by the ALJ, the Board merely provided petitioner access to its private discussion of his employment status, as required by Rice, supra. That petitioner chose, with the advice of legal counsel, not to speak at such meeting, when the Board invited him to do so, cannot be said to have violated his constitutional rights, in that the Board was not compelled by law to conduct a hearing regarding petitioner's nontenured employment status.

Accordingly, for the reason expressed in the initial decision the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed with prejudice.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement made on this 21st day of December, 1993 by and between the Glen Ridge Board of Education ("Board") and Neil Schulman ("Schulman");

WHEREAS, Schulman is employed as a tenured science teacher in the Glen Ridge School District; and

WHEREAS, the Board voted on June 28, 1993 to require Schulman to submit to a medical and psychiatric examination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2; and

WHEREAS, Schulman filed a petition with the Department of Education challenging the Board's directive to submit to said examination; and

WHEREAS, on July 30, 1993, tenure charges against Schulman were filed with the Board of Education, alleging unbecoming conduct and incapacity as a teacher; and

WHEREAS, these tenure charges were certified to the Commissioner of Education by action of the Board on August 30, 1993; and

WHEREAS, the Board further acted on August 30, 1993 to withhold Schulman's salary increment for the 1993-94 school year; and

WHEREAS, in light of the differing factual positions of the parties as to the matters in contest, it is in the best interest of the parties to resolve the pending actions before the Commissioner of Education;

NOW THEREFORE the parties hereto agree to the following terms:

1. Schulman will immediately submit for Board action his letter of retirement from employment with the District to be effective June 30, 1994. Schulman submits said retirement notice knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications.

2. For the 1993-94 school year, Schulman shall be placed on a paid leave of absence, during which time he shall not return to school or receive a teaching assignment, but shall receive his full salary, benefits and emoluments.

3. Schulman's salary increment for 1993-94 shall be retroactively restored and included in the salary paid to him during the paid leave of absence for the 1993-94 school year. All salary payments shall reflect normal payroll deductions.

4. The Board and Schulman shall execute a mutual release of claims.

5. The pending petitions, Agency Docket Nos. 294-8/93 and 316-9/93 (OAL Docket Nos. EDU 08317-93N and EDU 08676-93N respectively) shall be withdrawn, with prejudice, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the appropriate administrative agencies.

The record and initial decision rendered in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed. Based upon such review, the Commissioner must reject the terms of such accord because there is no indication that the teacher was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate. The State Board has ruled in In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, that such disclosure should be part of any agreement which results in loss of position.

At the conclusion of the six (6) month period set forth within this paragraph, the personnel file of Betty Hopkins and the Board records shall only reflect a three (3) day suspension. The net effect requires that Betty Hopkins lose three day's pay from the District for her actions in this matter.

2. The Board of Education agrees that the above penalty may only be used for future disciplinary actions during a six (6) month period commencing on March 1, 1993. During this six (6) month period, should Betty Hopkins be the subject of further disciplinary actions, the penalty imposed above may be taken into consideration by the Board in determining the appropriate penalty to be imposed should the subsequent disciplinary proceedings lead to a determination of guilt. Thereafter, however, the Board agrees that the above disciplinary action will not be considered in any other subsequent disciplinary proceeding.

3. Betty Hopkins agrees to accept the determination made by the Pemberton Board of Education in the matter and penalties imposed by this agreement. This means that she agrees to stay at her present post and to withdraw all challenges to the action of the Board. The Board of Education, by this Agreement, waives all rights which it has to bring tenure or disciplinary charges arising out of the facts which are an issue in this matter.

4. Nothing contained in this agreement shall prohibit Betty Hopkins from applying for future promotions, transfers, or the like. Should Betty Hopkins not be the subject of further disciplinary proceedings during the period described in Paragraph 2 of this Agreement, the above disciplinary proceeding shall not be considered in Betty Hopkins' applications for future promotions, transfers, or the like.

5. The parties note that Betty Hopkins was suspended initially for a sixty (60) day period. The Board has reimbursed Betty Hopkins for a portion of this time and agrees within thirty (30) days of the date of this agreement to reimburse her without interest for any days for which reimbursement has not already paid.

6. By the execution of this agreement, the parties authorize their respective attorneys to execute any and all documents on their behalf to effectuate the intent of this Stipulation.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on October 7, 1992 as the result of the filing of a petition of appeal by Barbara Ciulla alleging that the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it eliminated her position. According to petitioner, another teacher who was retained by the Board had less seniority than did she. Subsequently, that other teacher was permitted to intervene in the case.

A prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge on December 2, 1992 and hearings were scheduled to commence in June 1993. Thereafter, counsel advised that the parties had reached tentative agreement with respect to the terms and conditions of a stipulation of settlement and, as a result, the hearing dates were adjourned.

A stipulation of settlement, signed by the parties and/or their counsel, has now been submitted to me for review and recommended approval to the Commissioner of Education. I have reviewed the terms of the stipulation and FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures appearing on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and order that the parties comply with its terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties to this Stipulation of Settlement ("Stipulation"), Petitioner Barbara Ciulla ("CIULLA"); Respondent Board of Education of the Township of River Vale ("BOARD"); Respondent Carmine Cerasa ("CERASA"); and Intervenor Diana Lee ("LEE"), desiring to avoid the time and expense of continued litigation and further desiring to amicably resolve the above-captioned action, hereby set forth their agreement as follows:

1. In consideration for the promises made below, CIULLA hereby withdraws, with prejudice, the above-captioned action, subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

2. Within thirty (30) days following the issuance of a final administrative decision by the Commissioner of Education, approving the within Stipulation and its terms (the "Approval"), the BOARD will pay to CIULLA the total sum of Six Thousand ($6,000.00) Dollars, in complete settlement of all claims which CIULLA has or might have against the BOARD and CERASA, their officials, employees, agents and attorneys, including, but not limited to any claims for backpay, frontpay, severance pay, vacation pay, accumulated and unused sick leave, compensatory damages, punitive damages, liquidated damages, damages for pain, suffering and emotional distress, disability payments, attorneys' fees, expert witness fees, medical expenses, and expenses and costs which CIULLA and/or her attorneys may have incurred.

3. To the extent that the parties are permitted to do so by law, the amount set forth at Paragraph 2, above, shall be allocated as compensation for CIULLA's "pain and suffering" and other personal injuries; provided however, that the parties agree that in the event this allocation is not consistent with applicable law, it shall have no effect on the validity and binding effect of this Agreement which shall remain fully enforceable and binding upon the parties; and provided further that CIULLA hereby releases, saves and holds the BOARD and CERASA harmless for any claims by any governmental agencies for additional taxes and/or penalties relating to amounts paid to CIULLA by the BOARD pursuant to this Agreement.

4. In consideration for the above agreements, CIULLA will forever release the BOARD and CERASA and their officers, officials, agents, attorneys, representatives, heirs, successors and assigns from any and all claims arising under or relating in any manner whatsoever to the above-captioned action, including, but not limited to, claims arising under (1) the Constitution of the United States; (2) the Americans with Disabilities Act, 29 U.S.C. § 791 et seq.; (3) the Constitution of the State of New Jersey; (4) the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.; (4) Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000(e) et seq.; (5) the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 42 U.S.C. § 1981 et seq.; (6) the Education Laws of the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 et seq., including but not limited to the Tenured Employees Hearing Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.; and all regulations promulgated thereunder; (7) the Conscientious Employee Protection Act, N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 et seq.; (8) any express or implied contracts she may have; (9) any collective negotiations agreement(s); (8) federal or state common law; (10) any Board policy, administrative regulation or practice; and (11) any federal, state or local statutes, ordinances and regulations. Specifically excluded from this Release are my rights to obtain medical insurance coverage at my own expense as authorized by the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA").

5. This Stipulation is not and shall not in any way be construed as an admission by the BOARD or CERASA, or any of their officials, officers, agents, attorneys, employees or representatives of the commission of any acts of discrimination whatsoever against CIULLA, by themselves or any other person or entity, or that the BOARD or CERASA, or any of their officers, officials, agents, attorneys, representatives, heirs, successors and assigns violated any federal or state constitutional prohibitions or any federal, state or local law, ordinance or regulation, or that any employment decision or action affecting CIULLA was the result of any acts which were unwarranted, unjustified, discriminatory, otherwise unlawful or in violation of an express or implied contract of employment, or in breach of any statute, regulation or public policy of the State of New Jersey, but instead constitutes the good faith settlement of all matters, and the BOARD and CERASA specifically disclaim any liability to CIULLA or any other person or entity, on the part of themselves or their officers, officials, agents, attorneys, representatives, heirs, successors and assigns. The parties have entered into this Stipulation for the sole purpose of resolving claims, both asserted and unasserted, in order to avoid the burden, expense, delay and uncertainties of litigation and CIULLA shall not purport to be the prevailing party in any action.

6. LEE hereby agrees to withdraw her Notice of Motion for Summary Decision filed with the Office of Administrative Law on or about October 4, 1993, subject to the Approval of the Commissioner of Education.

7. CIULLA understands that she has up to twenty-one (21) calendar days from October 11, 1993, which is the date on which she was given this Stipulation, to decide whether or not to sign this Stipulation. Further, she understands that at any time during the seven (7) calendar days after the date on which she signs this Stipulation, she may revoke her agreement to this Stipulation. Finally, CIULLA understands that this Stipulation will not become effective or enforceable and she will not receive the payment identified in Paragraph 2 above, until the period during which she may revoke her agreement to this Agreement has expired and thereafter she has given BOARD a written statement, annexed hereto as Exhibit "A," that she has not revoked her agreement to this Stipulation.

8. The language of all parts of this Stipulation shall in all cases be construed as a whole, according to its fair meaning, and not strictly for or against any of the parties.

9. This Stipulation of Settlement represents the full and complete agreement of the parties hereto and may be modified only by a writing signed by all parties hereto. This Stipulation supersedes any and all prior or contemporaneous written and/or oral statements or representations.

10. CIULLA represents and certifies that she has carefully read and fully understands all of the provisions and effects of this Stipulation, and has thoroughly discussed all aspects of this Stipulation with her attorney, that she has voluntarily entered into this Stipulation, and that neither the BOARD nor CERASA nor their officers, officials, agents, attorneys, representatives, heirs, successors and assigns, have made any representations concerning the terms or effects of this Stipulation other than those contained herein.

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter.

In so deciding, it is observed that the Commissioner of Education has no jurisdiction over tort claims and has no authority to grant relief in the form of damages as specified in paragraphs 2 and 3 of the settlement. Accordingly, the Commissioner makes no comment concerning those portions of paragraphs 2 and 3 of the instant settlement bespeaking "damages" or "pain and suffering."

With this observation noted, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TEACHING :
CERTIFICATES OF RICHARD A. MILLER : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BY THE STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. : DECISION ON MOTIONS

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, June 16, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Thomas W. Williams, Esq.

The appeal in this case is from an action by the State Board of Examiners on June 16, 1994, to revoke respondent Richard A. Miller's New Jersey teaching certificates. This action followed proceedings initiated by an Order to Show Cause why respondent's teaching certificates should not be revoked that was issued by the Board of Examiners.

The Board of Examiners issued the Order To Show Cause when it became aware that respondent had agreed to surrender his New York teaching certificates as part of a settlement with the State of New York, in return for which the State of New York withdrew charges it had preferred against him for fondling a student in 1974. The Board of Examiners provided respondent with the opportunity to make written submissions, but an evidentiary hearing was not conducted in the matter.

Respondent appealed the Board of Examiners' action to the State Board of Education and, as required by our regulations, he thereafter filed a brief in support of his appeal. In the appendix to his brief, respondent included a Report of Certificate

Invalidation which had been provided to New Jersey by the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC) (Exhibit B) and a letter from NASDTEC's counsel to respondent's attorney explaining the procedures that NASDTEC followed (Exhibit C).

Counsel representing the State Board of Examiners then moved to suppress respondent's appeal brief and appendix for going outside the record.

In response, respondent argues that the NASDTEC report is of necessity part of the record because it was this report that had provided the notice to New Jersey which led the Board of Examiners to issue the Show Cause Order in the first place. To the extent that the documents in question were not part of the record, respondent cross-moved to include them.

After reviewing this matter, we agree with respondent and, therefore, we deny the motion filed by the State Board of Examiners to suppress respondent's appeal brief and appendix. To the extent that Exhibits B and C are not part of the record transmitted to us by the Board of Examiners, we grant respondent's cross-motion that these items be included in the record before the State Board.

Given our disposition of these motions, we direct that counsel for the Board of Examiners now respond to the substance of the underlying appeal by filing her answering brief within ten days of this decision.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 14, 1994

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Carter, Van Rensselaer & Caldwell (William J. Caldwell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Gebhardt & Kiefer (Richard P. Cushing, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Township of Union (hereinafter "Board") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that Rose Andrews (hereinafter "respondent"), a member of the Board, had a disqualifying inconsistent interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2. The Board maintained that respondent, an employee of a transportation company under contract with the Board, was required, pursuant to Oehlke v. Hoffman and Board of Education of the Township of Tewksbury, decided by the Commissioner, 1991 S.L.D. 1241, aff'd with modification by the State Board, October 6, 1993, to either cure the conflict or resign from the Board.

In a letter decision dated February 14, 1994, the Commissioner, based solely upon review of the petition of appeal and the parties' briefs, agreed with the Board. Citing Oehlke, supra, the Commissioner declared that "prior decisional law has expressly held that employment as a bus driver with a company under contract to the board of education renders such employee ineligible for board membership unless his or her employment ceases...." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 1. "[B]ased on the principles enunciated in Oehlke," the Commissioner found that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, the respondent was required to either cure the conflict by giving up her position with the transportation company or forfeit her seat on the Board.

On March 18, 1994, the Commissioner denied respondent's motion for a stay of his decision.

Respondent filed the instant appeal with the State Board of Education, and on June 1, 1994, we granted her motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner and remand for further proceedings.

Contrary to the Commissioner's assertion, Oehlke does not stand for the proposition that employment as a bus driver with a transportation company under contract with a district board automatically renders such employee ineligible for board membership pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2. Our decision in Oehlke was expressly predicated upon the particular facts therein following a hearing in the Office of Administrative Law.

As found by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") in that case, the respondent board member therein worked as a school bus driver for the company which was the successful bidder for the board's transportation contract. At the time, the respondent

"additionally held the significant position of power as President of the Board. He neither withdrew from his employment nor totally abstained from all participation in deliberations which affected his employer." Oehlke, supra, 1991 S.L.D. at 1250. The ALJ found that respondent had participated in discussions "which no doubt influenced colleague votes, especially as they related to school transportation issues." Id. The ALJ further found that various members of the board's transportation committee asked respondent questions and sought his advice and suggestions concerning route alignments. Id. at 1245. In addition, the ALJ found that respondent allowed the use of his farm property within the township for the storage of the company's buses.

Based upon our review of the record, we concluded that the respondent in Oehlke had an inconsistent interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 as a result of the bus company's contractual relationship with the board "and that the conflict under the facts in this particular case" was of such a "substantial, material and pervasive nature as to disqualify respondent from continued service on the Board." Oehlke, supra, State Board's Decision, slip op. at 5 (emphasis added). Thus, our determination disqualifying the respondent therein from board membership was expressly predicated on the particular facts established in that case, including respondent's position and leadership responsibilities on the board and the manner in which he had exercised such responsibilities. We did not "expressly hold," as the Commissioner asserts, that employment as a bus driver with a transportation company under contract with the district board in and of itself constitutes a conflict of such nature as to render the employee ineligible for board membership.

Consequently, the Commissioner erred in summarily disposing of this matter on the basis of Oehlke. We therefore reverse the decision of the Commissioner and remand to him for further proceedings consistent with our decision herein in order to determine whether respondent had an inconsistent interest under the particular facts of this case of such a "substantial, material and pervasive nature" as to disqualify her from membership on the Board.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

DELAWARE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:

STIPULATION SUBMITTED BY THE PARTIES PURSUANT TO THE REQUEST MADE BY THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION FOR AN EXPLANATION OF THE TERMS OF THE AMICABLE RESOLUTION REACHED BY THE PARTIES

1. On November 23, 1993, the Delaware Township Board of Education acted to reject all bids on electrical work on Project 2212. At the same meeting, the Board approved the award of six (6) separate construction contracts on Project 2212 totaling over $2.3 million dollars.

2. Thereafter, the Board of Education took steps to rebid the electrical work and the second set of bids resulted in the lowest bid being $20,660 lower than the bid submitted by DW Electric, the petitioner herein.

3. On or about December 7, 1993, the petitioner DW Electric filed a petition of appeal seeking to overturn the Board's decision to reject all electrical bids. As part of this litigation, petitioner challenged the Board's action as a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act.

4. After over a month of litigation, the parties were prepared to take depositions under oath with administrative officials and Board members being deposed. This discovery would have been in lieu of written interrogatories and production of documents and would have cost both sides a considerable amount of additional money and time.

5. The petitioner then offered to settle this matter by withdrawing its petition of appeal with prejudice in return for $2,500 to defray some of its costs for litigation up to that point in time.

6. In light of the extremely favorable second set of bids for electrical work and the need to respond to these bids in a timely manner, on January 13, 1994 the Board entered into an agreement for the dismissal of this litigation and all other claims with prejudice by the petitioner DW Electric for the sum of $2,500.

Respectfully submitted,

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, incapacity and other just cause against respondent, middle school teacher, for allegedly making inappropriate sexual comments to his female students.

In light of the evidence and testimony of witnesses, ALJ found respondent did initiate inappropriate classroom discussions, thus engaging in unbecoming conduct that warranted loss of his tenured position.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered respondent dismissed from his position. Matter was referred to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8919-92S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 441-9/92

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FRANK ROBERTS, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY

Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., for petitioner Board of Education (Sumners, Council, George & Dortch, attorneys)

Richard A. Friedman, Esq., for respondent Frank Roberts (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 8, 1993 Decided: December 13, 1993

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Trenton Board of Education ("Board") voted to certify tenure charges against the respondent, a school teacher in the district. The Board forwarded the certified charges to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1. The Commissioner than transferred the case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -21 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on January 15, 1993, and a prehearing order was entered on January 21, 1993. The hearings on the charges commenced on April 22 and 23, 1993, and were then adjourned to permit the petitioner to seek relief in regard to certain evidential rulings made in the course of its case. The hearing resumed on July 26 and 28, 1993, and after the close of the testimony on the 28th, the parties' joint request for transcripts was granted. Following the receipt of the transcripts counsel filed briefs and closing arguments and the record closed on November 8, 1993.

THE NATURE OF THE CHARGES

In the Statement of Charges filed by the Board with the Commissioner on September 21, 1992, the Board charged that while employed as a tenured teacher in the district the respondent had, during the period from November 1991 through January 1992, "participated and allowed classroom discussion with and among six (6) female students" of (1) the details of his sex life with his wife, (2) his students' sexual activity, (3) his opinion on oral sex, (4) the physical attributes of a female student who was absent, and (5) "being propositioned by drug addicts ("crackheads") to engage in sexual activity for monetary compensation." The Board charged that this conduct constituted "conduct unbecoming a teacher."

THE EVIDENCE

The Board's Proofs

The Board's initial witness at the hearing was Ke.G., an 8th grade student at the Martin Luther King, Jr. Middle School ("King School") in Trenton. Ms. G. is 17 years old. During the 1991-92 school year, she was a student in the respondent's wood shop class. Due to the condemnation of the wood shop at the King School, this class was held in the front of the school's auditorium. According to the witness, during the several months that she attended this course, which ran from November to February, the students were "not taught anything." According to the witness' recollections, the class would simply sit around and talk after Mr. Roberts took attendance. Mr. Roberts would initiate conversations, which were "sometimes" about sex. He would participate in these discussions, although she was unsure whether he always began them. Sometimes she would sleep during the class, or would listen to her portable stereo ("Walkman"). While she stated that he did not always talk about sex, she characterized that topic as being the topic for conversation "most of the time."

Ms. G. could not recall when the sex related conversations first began, and she never reported that they were occurring prior to February 3, 1992. It was only after she was sent for by the principal that she was asked and told about the conversations in Mr. Roberts classroom. At that time a number of other students in the same class were present. At first the students were all together and then they were alone. She also related her story to the school nurse, Ms. Hunt, and then to a Division of Youth and Family Services ("DYFS") worker. The conversation with Ms. Hunt was held before the DYFS worker arrived and Ms. Hunt took notes. Asked to write a statement by school principal Albert Williams, Ms. G. did not do so. While she could not recall the reason that she did not write one, she noted that during that period she was out of school a good deal due to her pregnancy. She gave birth in April, 1992.

Ms. G. could not recall the specific dates when the discussions concerning sex occurred, but she said that "when she was there they talked about sex." As for the specific topics of discussion, she referred to comments made by Mr. Roberts about how he had sex with his wife on rainy days, comments about boys ejaculating "the third time" and then the "fourth time" "like juice", and a comment about another student that her "butt" was "like Jell-O." He also asked Ms. G. if she was having sex, to which she replied "no." Mr. Roberts also discussed positions for sex. According to the witness, they would all be sitting around and he would ask them questions such as "how they do it."

Ms. G. denied that she had ever complained about anyone else in regard to alleged sexual misconduct. As for the respondent, he never asked her for sex nor did he ever touch, threaten or hurt her.

On cross-examination, counsel explored the circumstances of the interviews and statements given by Ms. G. at the time that the alleged conversations were reported to the school administration. She stated that the Hunt interview was conducted by the nurse herself, who took notes. No one else was present during this interview, which took place before Mr. Williams interviewed her. Ms.G. told her "all that she testified to today," but the witness acknowledged that she did not relate that the teacher had said anything about he and his wife having sex. Ms. G. did not tell Ms. Hunt that she found anything that Mr. Roberts had said to be offensive.

The interview with Mr. Williams took place in a group atmosphere with the other girls present, and the witness was never alone with Mr. Williams. Conversations with the DYFS worker took place later, with the nurse "in and out" of this interview.

Ms. G. related that on one occasion when she was in class she took off her Walkman and heard Mr. Roberts talking about sex. On some occasions she was sleeping in class and would wake up and listen to the conversations.

Ms. G. was questioned about the conditions in the auditorium at the time that the wood shop class was meeting in it. She did not recall other activities taking place in the room at the time of the class and related that if Mr. Roberts saw other students in the room who did not belong there he could ask them to leave.

The witness recalled that Mr. Roberts spoke about a final examination and that this was a big concern because "they did not do anything in the class." A test may have been scheduled for the first week in February. All of the students were mad when Mr. Roberts said that they had to take the test. They "didn't know what it was about." This occurred two days before the statements were made to Mrs. Hunt. She could not recall if she was in class on the day in between this discussion about the test and the day that the girls spoke to Mrs. Hunt.

Ms. G. claimed that Mr. Roberts participated in "all of the sex conversations." She does not remember any in particular, but "he always had something to say."

The witness stated that she was never disciplined by Mr. Roberts. She did not know if other students in the class were disciplined. He never told the girls not to talk about sex.

Ms. G. related that at the time that one of the girls, "M.," said that she was going to tell the principal about what had occurred in the class, Mr. Roberts responded that "they won't believe you."

The witness said that she did not review Mrs. Hunts' notes after the interview. She did not tell her that Mr. Roberts had said anything about he and his wife not having enough sex.

M.Ti., another student in the class, testified that she was 15 years old at the time that she was in the wood shop class with Mr. Roberts. She had been in his metal shop class the year before, a class which was actually held in the metal shop. As for the wood shop class in 1991-92, it was held in the auditorium and Mr. Roberts did not teach anything. All that the class consisted of was talk amongst the six female students and Mr. Roberts. There were no males in the class. The conversations were about such things as church, parties and "sex;" this latter a topic "every day." He talked about his sex life with his wife, what he and his wife did sexually on rainy days, that he had sex with his wife when he was working on his farm and that they had sex "all over the house." She also reported that he commented that boys who "eat a girl must have a small penis." The witness recalled that Mr. Roberts had asked Ke. about her boyfriend who was in jail and had told her that when he "would be out he going to want sex from her." He asked Ke. about the positions the boyfriend and she "be having sex in, and she told him." As she recalled, the talk about sex began around Christmas. At first she did not pay any attention to the comments. They first began in late December and continued on into January. She spoke to her mother about them because she felt that they were "not right in the classroom."

According to Ms. Ti.,this conversation took place "in the middle of the marking period before February." The girls reported the conversations in late January, first telling a Ms. Bussey and then Messrs. Carter and Williams, these reports being made in early February. Ms. Ti. explained that she was out of school in late January due to a death in the family and when she returned she was told by other students in the class, Sa. R. and Ke. G., that Mr. Roberts had talked about her while she was absent. She was told that he had made a comment the she had a "big backside" and something was said about "Jell-O." When she was told about this she told Mr. Roberts that she was going to report the conversations which were taking place in the class. He "laughed" and "didn't say anything," but she also recalled that he said that Mr. Williams was "not going to believe you" because he, Mr. Roberts, was a teacher and she a student. Several of the students told Ms. Bussey in late January "what happened what he was talking about." She advised them that they should tell "nobody, I'll explain--I mean I'll talk to Mr. Roberts to myself."

After the girls had been told by Mr. Roberts about a final examination that he was going to give them despite the fact that they had not been taught anything in his class, the girls decided to tell about what was going on in the class. In response to their protests to Mr. Roberts about the exam, he told them that he would supply them with the answers to the test. Ms. Ti. responded to this "offer" by saying to him that doing so would not be "right." The girls left the auditorium at the end of the class period and as they proceeded towards the office they met Mr. Carter, the school disciplinarian, in the hallway. After first giving Mr. Carter "a little detail" of the sex conversations, the students met with Mr. Williams. They provided him with the details of the events and then, when Ms. Ti.'s mother came to school in response to the school's request, she spoke to Mr. Williams and her mother "alone." A further report was made to Ms. Hunt, but the witness recalled that this happened on the day following the Williams meeting. The meeting with Mr. Williams was at first one involving all the girls, the session with Mrs. Hunt was a solo meeting at which Mrs. Hunt took notes. She also prepared a written statement for Mr. Williams. As for the written statement she was instructed to write down "what happened in the classroom." Sa. R., another of the students from the class, was present when she wrote out this statement. However, she did not ask for nor did she receive any assistance in preparing the written statement. The statement is an accurate and truthful rendition of what occurred in the wood shop class.

The witness was unsure whether all six of the girls in the class were present in the hallway when they spoke to Mr. Carter, as it is possible that K.G. was not there. After meeting Carter, they next spoke with Mr. Williams as a group, then with him alone. The next conversation was with Mrs. Hunt, alone.

Asked to describe the nature of the conversations that took place in the wood shop class besides those about sex, the witness mentioned discussions about church and about how the preacher preached and how people "got into the spirit of the church." The witness also recalled an incident when the teacher got upset because a boy visited her in class. This was before she had gone to Mrs. Bussey. A boy in the hallway "kept bothering her." Mr. Roberts said that she could not "have her boyfriend come in here." "That's your boyfriend." She said that she told Mr.

Roberts "no," denying that such a relationship existed. She claimed that she was not "mad," about this and that Mr. Roberts was not either. In fact, she described the teacher as "just joking."

The witness denied any recollection that Mr. Roberts had requested that a Ms. Winrow, a teacher at King School, "calm her down." However, as she recalled the matter, he had asked this teacher to help get a boy out of the auditorium.

Ms. Ti. stated that Mr. Roberts did not start all of the conversations about sex, but he was always involved in them, a fact about which she had "no doubt." He did start the talks about sex acts, and never attempted to stop the sex related discussions. There was talk about labor as well. If the conversations started out to be about boyfriends or about parties, he would steer the conversation toward sex. One of the things he mentioned was about a place in Trenton called Five Points, near the Battle Monument. Mr. Roberts said that he was there working on somebody's house and a "crack lady" offered to give "head" for $5.

The witness was questioned as to whether anyone had demanded or suggested anything about a bribe. She advised that one of the students, Ke.G., had laughed and said to Mr. Roberts as they were going to tell Mr. Williams about his discussions that if he gave each of them a dollar they would not tell. No mention was made of $50.

According to the witness, the discussion with Mrs. Bussey occurred on the same day as she learned about Mr. Roberts' comments about her backside. The students went to Mr. Williams on the same day that they learned about the test.

S.R., a 14 year old, testified that she was a student of Mr. Roberts in metal shop in 7th grade and again in wood shop in 8th grade. She reported that the wood shop class met in the auditorium and did "no work." They "just talked." Mr. Roberts would talk about himself and his wife and what they did out on the street. He talked about sex and about how "people are today." He spoke about other "things that she did not remember." She recalled that there was "sex talk," but she was not sure how often it occurred. However, she did recall that it started around the "beginning of the marking period."

Ms. R. was among the group of students who first reported the sex conversations to Mr. Carter. These conversations were about such things as what Mr. Roberts was doing with his wife, about boys and about "when they come and all that stuff." After telling Mr. Carter about this, they spoke to Mr. Williams and to the nurse and she told each of them the same things. At the request of Mr. Williams, she wrote a statement, with no one helping her to do so. At the time she and other girls and a teacher were present, but no one spoke about what to write. The statement, P-2, is accurate as to the matters described.

Ms. R. stated that Mr. Roberts talked about such matters as working on his farm and after a hard day "going with his wife," which she said was having sex with his wife, and also about sex on rainy days. In further description of the conversation about boys "coming," that is, ejaculating, he said that the first time it was "all come," but that by the fourth time it was "only juice shooting there." He also reported that he and his wife had sex "all over the house, on the table and stuff."

Ms. R. was present when Mr. Roberts commented on M.Ti.'s "big butt" (his words). She told M. Ti. what he had said, as Ms.Ti. was not there when the comment was made.

The witness stated that she was the youngest student in the class, 14 years old at the time, while the others were 15-16 years old. She claimed that the girls got along well with each other and that no one was the leader of the group. On cross-examination she said that she did not recall if Mr. Roberts spoke about church. She felt that the sex conversations began in November-December and that while they did not occur everyday, they did happen on "most days." Among the discussions that she recalled, she spoke of his commenting and questioning Ke. about the positions that she and her boyfriend used for sex because Ke. was pregnant. Ms. R. could not recall what Ke.'s reaction to this questioning was, whether she was upset or how she responded, if at all. As for her own reaction to the sex talk in the class, Ms. R. stated that she did not feel that such was a proper topic for discussion in class, but she never spoke to her parents or anyone about it until the girls went to see Mr. Carter.

The witness recalled that at times during the class in the auditorium there were people in the back of the room, and while Mr. Roberts would speak "like a regular person" when talking about sex, she did not know if anyone in the back of the auditorium heard any of what he said. She denied any recollection of either cheerleading or music activities taking place in the auditorium while the wood shop class was meeting in that room.

Ms. R. did not know if at times the students were the ones who initiated the sex conversations, nor did the witness know if Mr. Roberts ever told them that they should stop such talk.

The witness denied that she ever became upset while in Mr. Roberts class and threw books and/or supplies down. She also did not recall that a boy had come to the class to see M. Ti.

As Ms. R. recalled the circumstances leading to the students reporting the goings on in the class, Sh.B. wanted to tell Mr. Williams about the conversations about sex. When told of their intention to report this, Mr. Roberts replied that "[T]hey won't believe you." When the students met Mr. Carter in the hallway they probably did talk as a group and then they went to Mr. Williams as a group as well, although she was not sure if Ke. was there. They then spoke to the nurse together and then alone as she made notes. The conversation with the nurse may have taken place on the next day and she did not know whether they, or she, had returned to Mr. Williams after speaking to the nurse.

As for the test that the girls were advised that they would have to take, she could not remember whether Mr. Robert had offered them help in regard to the test, such as an offer of the answers.

Ms. R. denied that there was any talk about money being paid to the students so that they would not tell the principal about the conversations.

Asked to clarify her recollections of the particular sexual comments made by Mr. Roberts, the witness said that they were fresh in her mind at the time that she spoke to the nurse and that she probably told the nurse more than she was able to tell in the hearing. She recalled that he talked about both "boys" and "he" personally coming four times, but she was unsure as to whether she told the nurse about both of the references. In the written statement she only referred to his remarks as to "boys" in this context. The witness also recalled conversations about Five Points and crackheads and giving them $5 for oral sex. (There was no suggestion in her testimony that Mr. Roberts ever suggested that he had in fact done this, only that he had mentioned that such propositions were made by such persons). She acknowledged that she had not referred to this matter in her statement. Finally, the witness stated at the hearing that Mr. Roberts did not use curse words in class.

Sh.B., now 16 years old, testified that she was in the wood shop class. She also was a student of the respondent in the 7th grade metal shop. She recalled that the wood shop course was a marking period in length and was held in the auditorium. The parties stipulated to her description of the class as having sat in the first row of the auditorium with Mr, Roberts seated at a desk about 3-4 feet in front of them. As there was no equipment for the girls to use, the class consisted of talk "about a lot of things." Mostly the talk was about sex, and the witness did not recall what else they talked about. Sex was a topic of discussion everyday. Ms. B. recalled that this sex talk began about the middle of the marking period. As she recalled, Mr. Roberts talked about his wife and he having sex often when first married, and that the "come" at first had lots of sperm, but that after the fourth or fifth time it would be nothing but "juice." Another comment was in regard to a supposed relationship between men who performed oral sex and the size of their penises. He also made mention of how he had sex, and she remembered that the girls asked questions as how could he be on top of his wife due to his heavy weight. He claimed that his weight did not matter. She testified that the students "teased him a lot." As for the students, they did not talk about their sex lives, but he did ask her how she and her boyfriend had sex due to the fact that she was pregnant. Finally, he did mention Five Points, crackheads and propositions for oral sex for money. He mentioned that he owned a house in that area.

Ultimately, the students reported the conversations. Ms. B. was not present the day Mr. Roberts supposedly commented upon Mr. Ti's body. However, as the witness recalled, this comment made Ms. Ti. "mad" and this was the spark for the talk of reporting Mr. Roberts. As for the test, Ms. B. claimed that she did not recall anything about a test, but she denied that they had done any work in the class.

The witness testified that the group of girls told Mr. Roberts that they were going to report him and the nature of the conversations right before they went to do so and that he told them to "go ahead they ain't going to believe you."

As they first spoke to Mr. Carter in the hallway, Mr. Roberts was at the auditorium doorway. After talking to Mr. Carter as a group, they then went as a group to speak to Mr. Williams and then spoke to him alone, then spoke to Ms. Hunt the the same day, first in a group and then alone. The nurse did not seem to believe them. She was asked to write a statement by Ms. Hunt and Mr. Williams. She did not, but cannot remember why.

On cross-examination, the witness reflected further upon Mr. Roberts' reaction to the information that the girls were planning to report him. She "could see that he was concerned, but he tried to play the role that he wasn't." When the bell rang and the girls started to leave he did not try to stop them. There was no talk about money as far as she could recall.

As she remembered the comments made by him and what she told this judge at the hearing, Ms. B. stated that she had told the nurse everything she had testified to in the hearing. He talked about what he did when younger, about having sex "all over the house," and about not having had as much weight on him then. She recalled telling the nurse about the "sperm" and "juice" comments, about what he said he would do when he was first married. He also spoke of his not "eating pussy, that's something only little dick boys do." He told the girls that he "kept his wife satisfied." He talked about labor.

Ms. B. did remember that boys did sometimes come into the class and that Mr. Roberts would have to send them away. She also recalled that there were times when someone came into the class to "calm" girls, but she did not recall anyone named "Winrow" doing so.

The witness stated that she did not suggest that the class go to Mr. Williams, but she did not remember who specifically suggested that they do so. She claimed that the motivation to report Mr. Roberts arose from the comments he had made about M.Ti. and also from a statement he made that all the girls would receive "zeros." While she could not recall when he said it, she did state that he had mentioned that "we supposed to been havin' a test."

Ms. B. testified that Mr. Roberts did use "curse words" in the class. He did not talk about church in class. She denied that she was at anytime talking about sex herself and that Mr. Roberts had told her to stop. He did have occasion to discipline her when she cut a class and he saw her. He "got her suspended by the office," but she could not recall when this happened. She also got into trouble in other classes, and in the 8th grade she "got into a lot of trouble."

As for the atmosphere in the auditorium at the time that the class was in session, the witness stated that people who were cutting class would be in the back of the room, and sometimes the chorus or cheerleaders were there. As for these occasions, Mr. Roberts did not talk about sex when the chorus or cheerleaders were present. He spoke in a normal tone. Ms. B. did not recall that other students were sent to Mr. Roberts during class because other teachers were having trouble with them. However, she said that the girls would talk at lunch about the things that Mr. Roberts said and that as a result other students wanted to come and sit in the back and listen.

Albert Williams, the principal of Martin Luther King Jr. Middle School, testified that he has been employed by the Trenton Board of Education for 28 years. Mr. Roberts has been on the staff since Mr. Williams was first assigned to the school 16 years ago. Roberts did go to another school for a few years, but has been back at King School for about 3 years. Mr. Williams acknowledged that about 5 or 6 years ago he recommended that Mr. Roberts not have his contract renewed. Mr. Roberts was involved in an incident in which a child lost a finger in Mr. Roberts' class, a matter resulting from Mr. Roberts' negligence. He was glad when the teacher was transferred to another school. Mr. Williams "may have told personnel that (Mr. Roberts') transfer back was a mistake," but he is not sure if he did say this.

Mr. Williams explained that the wood shop course was a quarter-year course which was paired with Home Economics and Family Living. The teachers decide as to the makeup of the class, that is, they decide who to take in to the class for each quarter. The shop had been condemned by the State Department of Vocational Education. Despite efforts to see that the shop was available for use for the class, it was necessary for Mr. Roberts to hold his class in the auditorium. He was expected to teach the class the subject matter as best as possible in the absence of the usual tools and equipment.

The auditorium is a very large room with 528 seats in rows A-Z and then AA-FF. The school has 58 teachers and if 10-12 are absent and they get 3 substitutes it is sometimes necessary to send a class to the auditorium. If this occurred, the class would not be seated in the proximity of Mr. Roberts' class. Disciplinary students were not sent to Mr. Roberts. His vice principal was called up during Desert Storm and sent to Saudi Arabia and as a result Mr. Williams was very familiar with the discipline matters at the time of these events. However, he agreed that he did not know if Mr. Carter sent students to Mr. Roberts.

Mr. Williams first became aware of the sex related complaints against Mr. Roberts on February 3, 1992, when Mr. William Carter came to him about a problem that had to be addressed immediately. Mr. Carter told him the "essence" of what the female students had said about Mr. Roberts. He gave an "overview" of many of the comments reported by the students. Mr. Williams spoke to the students "immediately" in his classroom office. He asked the group what the general nature of their complaint was. They responded individually. Some interrupted others at times. He described their demeanor as being in line with their individual personalities, some taking the matter seriously and some not. The girls were not told anything about the possible consequences for Mr. Roberts at this meeting, although later on he did when he spoke to them after they had spoken to the school nurse. After he heard these comments from the girls, Mr. Williams asked Ms. Hunt, the school nurse, to listen to what they had to say. It was necessary for him to decide whether he needed to call DYFS about the matter. After the nurse spoke with the students, he contacted their parents. It is possible that he may have mentioned consequences after the students had spoken with the nurse, but he did not tell them that he might lose his right to teach. Additionally, he did not tell the girls that if they were not telling the truth that there might be consequences for them. He merely asked them to give an account of what had happened in the classroom, not using the word "truth" in this request. DYFS was called and came to the school the next day.

Mr. Williams was told that the discussions in class had started shortly after the start of the second rating, or marking, period. The girls told him that they had mentioned something about a "rear end" remark to Mrs. Bussey. When he asked her about this, she acknowledged that they had spoken to her, and when he asked

Mrs. Bussey why she had not reported the complaint, she responded that she had "merely forgot about it."

Mr. Williams reported that when he spoke to M.Ti. she was visibly upset and was deeply concerned about what her parents would say. She repeated events "over and over" and was "making sure that she gave accurate information."

Ke.G. was concerned but not overwhelmed. She was pregnant at the time. She reported that Mr. Roberts had questioned her concerning what sexual positions she used while expecting.

Sh.B. was very vocal and expressive. She provided a lot of detailed descriptions of what was said. She referred to Five Points, sex "on a table," sex "all over the house," and boys "eating out" and a mention of this as related to the small size of the boys penises, all as matters discussed by Mr. Roberts.

The principal related that at the time of the first talk with the girls he had not specifically told them that he wanted them to tell the truth. He told them that he wanted them to give "an account of what had happened in the classroom." He did not remember whether he had asked them why there had been no earlier report of what was occurring. He recalled that both the group and the individuals mentioned that no work had been done in the class, that a test was to be given, and that all they did was to talk about sex, boyfriends, parties and weekends. No one denied that the sexual comments were made. He asked the students to write a statement of what they had told him and they were to do so in a classroom. He recalls that at the first group meeting that he had with the girls he took no notes. At that time he told them that he did not want this matter to run rampant through the school. However, he did not recall whether he told them not to discuss the matter amongst themselves.

The girls did mention, and were concerned about, the examination and the fact that they had received no instruction in the class. This was "probably" mentioned at the first group meeting. Nothing was said about any offer of the test answers by Mr. Roberts, nor was there any mention of any offer of money. The parties stipulated that the test issue was not mentioned in the Statement of Evidence filed by the Board with the Commissioner.

Sandra Bussey, now a teacher/disciplinarian for the Trenton Board of Education and assigned as a staff member to M. L. King, Jr. School for 21 years, testified that she had a conversation with M.T. during the 1991-92 school year in which Ms. Ti. told her that she had gone to the bathroom at the end of the school day and was told by a student of a remark supposedly made by Mr. Roberts referring to her "behind." Mrs. Bussey was not sure whether her conversation with Ms. Ti. took place in the presence of anyone else. Mrs. Bussey told the student to tell her parents of the matter and to bring them in to talk to Mr. Roberts and Mr. Williams. After this, the matter "slipped her mind." She did not remember the date of this conversation and does not recall that any other concerns were expressed.

RESPONDENT'S CASE

Prior to the presentation of the testimony presented on behalf of the respondent, it is noted that the parties entered into a stipulation that prior to the present charges Mr. Roberts' evaluations were satisfactory and there were no disciplinary charges brought against him for his conduct as a teacher.

Frank E. Roberts testified in his own behalf. Mr. Roberts holds a B.A. degree from the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff and a Masters in Business Management from Central Michigan University. He has taken supervisory course work at Temple University. He holds a Principal Certification (1979), a Supervisory certificate (1979), a Vocational Carpentry certificate(1973) and a Teacher of Industrial Arts certificate (1972). He has been employed by the Trenton Board of Education since September 1970 and in 1991-92 was assigned to the M.L. King, Jr. Middle School, where he had taught from 1970-86 and then again since 1990, after being assigned to the Dunn School from 1986-90. He has never before faced a tenure charge and has never had an increment withheld.

The wood shop class consisted of six girls. The marking period started near the end of November. The class had no tools or machines, but had a book and a workbook. At times the band was in the auditorium, or decorating was taking place for the Christmas program, or a class which needed a substitute was in the room, or discipline cases were sent to the auditorium. The classes were not supervised until a substitute teacher appeared. As a result he had to supervise such classes, at least to some degree. While he was not responsible for disciplining students, at the same time, he "could not let them take over." Sometimes the band, choir or the decorating group had a teacher present.

When Mr. Roberts learned that he was to conduct his wood shop class in the auditorium he went to Mr. Williams to see if there was any possibility of his being able to hold the class in a classroom. He was told to remain in the auditorium, this despite the fact that the shop renovation was "completed." On perhaps two occasions there were assemblies held in the auditorium and then he was sent to a regular classroom. This happened once before Christmas and once in January.

As the witness recalled the makeup of the class, at the end of November M.Ti. and Ki.S. were in the class, Sh.B. was assigned to the class, but was at that time suspended. Ke.G. came to the class at the end of November or early December, T.C. came in December. It was "almost impossible" to teach shop in the circumstances that he was faced with. The students "wanted to do shop," and didn't want to read. He tried to teach, but they did not even want to hear it. He had to tell them to "shut up" and although they would then be quiet for a while they would start up again. He went to Mr. Williams and asked that the class be put in the shop, but was told to remain in the auditorium.

Mr. Roberts asserted that he tried to teach the students. He has them perform exercises in a workbook. However, M. Ti. was the only student who did any of the work. These exercises included listing the different types of tools. Some of the students did try the exercises, however, some of them could not read well. He tried to have them match tools with questions. The problem with getting any work done was a combination of the difficulty of the work and the refusal of the students to do the assignments.

The witness described several of the students' behaviors. In December their behavior was "very bad." Sh. B. was the best behaved. However, "something was wrong with her." She used "cuss words" "every word." She was in a fight in January which he had to break up and "she was not in class that often." She was always talking about sex and he had to send her to Mr. Carter twice, for talking about sex and for using profanity. She would leave the in-school suspension and come back to his class. The second time that she was suspended was because of sex talk. She talked about having had sex with a man that she ran away with, describing how the first time he "come and the next time he come again." She stated that she was "really screwing him." This was all said out loud, to the class.

Ms. G. was pregnant. She would come into class first and would run and jump off of the stage. He would get her to sit down and she would then fall asleep. Ms. S. would come in late, walk the hallways, go to the store and come back with cake and would not sit down. She made noises and tried to leave when he turned around. Ke. G. was hyperactive and stood on chairs.

In regard to M. Ti., the witness explained that she "talks real loud." The first day in class her boyfriend was in the hallway and she jumped up and went into the hallway. Mr. Roberts asked him to leave, but he did not, then did, and then he came back again. Ms. Ti. denied that the boy was her boyfriend and that the boy had come to see her and it was necessary to get Mrs. Winrow to come into the class to calm the girl down.

On another occasion, Mr. Roberts had to get something out of his truck and when he went to do so he saw Ms. Ti. in the hallway. She said "something smart" under her breath. In class she talked out loud frequently. When he would tell her to stop she would do so for a while and then would start again.

The respondent testified that the class was advised in a bulletin given out "once every week" of a test scheduled for February 4. Ms. Ti. said that she would not take the test. Sh.B. said that if they told the principal that Mr. Roberts had talked about sex in the class that they would not have to take the test. When she was asked for $100 in exchange for the girls not telling Mr. Williams about this alleged sex conversation, he replied that they should "go tell."

Mr. Roberts denied that he had talked about M.Ti.'s body. She told him that she was told that he had done so by Sa.R.

As for Ms. Ti., Mr. Roberts described her as a follower who had stated after the remark was made about him paying $100 that "Yea, I'll take the $100." Several boys often came to see her at class and he had to chase them away.

According to his recollection of the class, Sh.B. had first come to the class in December, after having been suspended. She always talked about sex when she did come to class. He "wrote her up" the first day that she was in class for using profanity and she was placed on in-school suspension. Around January 10, she began to talk about sex and this was the first sexual discussion to take place in the classroom. She described how she and her boyfriend had "sex all over the house" and how for two weeks her mother did not know where she was. She mentioned in graphic terms that she and her boyfriend had engaged in mutual oral sex. She described them as having had intercourse several times and related descriptions of the consistency of his ejaculate after these episodes, the last of which was described as "nothing but juice." He sent her out of the classroom and she was suspended. Sometime after the 10th of January, she asked him if he and his wife had sex and he replied that they had five children. Mr. Roberts denied that he used any sexual terms or described any sexual acts in the course of this brief exchange. According to Mr. Roberts, the sexual talk only occurred when Sh. B. was in class and it ended when she was not there.

The respondent asserted that the next talk about sex occurred on February 3. In front of the class, Sh.B. asked in graphic terms if he performed oral sex upon his wife. He responded "no way." He also denied ever having been propositioned for oral sex by crackheads when asked by Sh.B. if this had ever occurred while he was working on Brunswick Avenue, where she claimed to have seen him working. Ke.G. claimed that her boyfriend had climbed through the window of her home to have sex with her while her mother was in the house. At the time that this question was posed he was trying to get the class ready to take a final examination. Whenever he had tried to read to the class they had talked, they did not want to "hear it." In response to the sex talk Mr. Roberts told the students to stop. M.Ti. and Sh.B. each suggested that he give them $100. He could not tell if they were serious or not, and when he said to "go tell" about the alleged sex talk someone said "give me $50." At this point Sh.B. said "let's go tell." The next day Mr. Williams came to his class at 2 P.M. and told him to come to the nurses' office. He was then told that a DYFS representative was at the office and was also told by Mr. Williams "something about talking about sex."

Mr. Roberts coached basketball at the King School in 1991-92 and has been a member of the Army National Guard for 18 years, now serving as an administration specialist.

On cross-examination the respondent explained that during the school year in question he had four other classes assigned to him in the auditorium, but the class in question was the only one that had only female students. In 1990-91 he had taught all female classes at the school.

Mr. Roberts claimed that shop renovation was completed prior to the end of the first marking period, with all but the "big machines" in place. He did not know whether the State had to approve the room before it could be used. He never spoke to the district's industrial shop supervisor about using the shop.

The witness acknowledged that he owns rental property on Brunswick Avenue. It is possible that he mentioned this fact to his students, but he is not sure if he did so. There is a great deal of drug traffic in that area. While he had heard "rumors" of females in that vicinity having propositioned for sex, he did not discuss this subject with his class.

Queried as to his teaching efforts with this class, the witness said that he tried to teach and that at times the girls would listen for 10-15 minutes. The rest of the time he would "go over the stuff, they didn't listen." He hoped that somebody would learn something. The test, which would have been part multiple choice and part true/false, would have tested the student on shop tools and shop safety. Asked by the judge to more fully explain the course and the teaching which he undertook, the witness explained that a typical day involved a roll call and then instruction, or attempts at instruction, using the book. He would "go over things" such as safety, with the basic safety aspect of the course taking 2 weeks. He would "read and explain." He contended that he offered a $1,000 scholarship to anyone who graduated from the 12th grade.

When the band was in the auditorium he would not teach. He would move the class to the right rear corner of the room. The band practiced in the room for 6 or 7 days before the Christmas program. He asked Mr. Williams for another room, but he did not want to get into a confrontation. He claimed that the director of secondary education, Mr. Breza, sent a directive that he be moved out of the auditorium. He received a copy. According to the respondent, Mr. Williams put the copy of the letter in his mail box. He went to Williams about the letter and was told by the principal that the class would stay in the auditorium.

Mr. Roberts insisted that when he sought suspension of Sh.B. for her sex talk in class that he noted the reason as her having talked about sex. The particular incident took about five minutes.

The witness recalled an incident in which M. Ti. and he passed each other in the hallway and she commented "I can't stand that fat thing." In response, he stopped and looked at her.

Charles Stubblefield, a retired, 28-year employee of the Trenton School District, was a teacher of mechanical drawing. He worked with Mr. Roberts at King School for 15-20 years. He always had a very good, very positive attitude toward Mr. Roberts and enjoyed working with him. They socialized on a limited basis and they worked summers in security work together. He was aware that Mr. Roberts had a good relationship with his students and faculty and was always "involved in their (the students) progress." His reputation for honesty and integrity was very good and the students felt comfortable around him.

Jack Washington, a teacher at Trenton High School since 1980 and prior to that at the Junior School, now M. L. King School, first met Mr. Roberts at that institution. They have kept in touch from "time to time." and had a very good relationship. As of the 1991-93 period Mr. Roberts had a very good reputation and Mr. Washington had heard nothing negative about him. He was a big brother to students, especially incorrigible ones.

Marie Faust, employed by the school board for 26 years and a reading specialist at King School, has known the respondent for 18 years. In her duties at the school she works with students from different classrooms. As she has learned, Mr. Roberts has a very good reputation with the faculty for his professionalism and his compassion with faculty and students. He is well thought of and has very good interaction with students. Ms. Faust has been in Mr. Roberts' class on one occasion.

Joseph S. Zuccarello, who teaches music education in the M.L. King School, has known Mr. Roberts for about seven years. The shop was located across the hall from the music room. He has never heard anything bad about Roberts, who has a good reputation. In his own opinion, Roberts seemed like an "all right guy" and a strict disciplinarian. He would "line kids up to calm them down."

In the 1991-92 school year, Mr. Zuccarello taught band and occasionally had students practicing on instruments in the auditorium. The piano was also located there and had to be used on occasion for rehearsals. Prior to the Christmas program in 1991 the rehearsals were held in the auditorium for about one week, 3 or 4 times a day.

Nora Stackhouse, an art teacher, testified that she has known Mr. Roberts from the time he spent at the Dunn Middle School. She recalls that she collected money for him at the time that his daughter died. Ms. Stackhouse testified that Sh.B. was in her class in 1991-92 and made "inappropriate comments" in class. During the 3rd marking period the girl rarely came to school. One day she asked someone where she bought her "drawers" (underwear) and proceeded to state that her boyfriend bought hers at "such and such a store." Ms. Stackhouse told the girl that this was not a proper subject to discuss in public. When directed to stop the conversation, Ms. B. did so.

James E. Smith, a social studies teacher at M. L. King School since 1965, has known Roberts for many years professionally, although not in any outside-of-school context. In 1991-92 Ms. Sh. B. was in his class along with Ms. Ta.F. One day they were involved in a "wrangle" about a boyfriend, talking about "who had who and who did what." The students became quite loud and he had to tell them more than once to stop. He recalls a remark for Ms. B. to the effect, "you only got my leftovers." He believes that she was suspended.

REBUTTAL

Albert Williams was recalled by the district and testified that if he had received a directive from Mr. John Breza concerning the location of Mr. Roberts' shop class, he would have complied with it. He received no such directive. As for the other classes which the respondent said had met in the auditorium, he acknowledged that there were others sent there pending the availability of substitutes. Band and choir activities were scheduled around the class schedule in the auditorium as much as possible. In fact, Mr. Williams described himself as "very particular about this." However, the witness acknowledged that there was a likelihood that Mr. Roberts' class was interrupted, but he could not speak to the frequency of this.

Mr. Williams denied that Sh.B. was suspended for talking about sex in Mr. Roberts' classroom. He would usually know of such a matter. In the period from late December through the early part of February and beyond, the school was operating without a vice principal as the vice principal had been called to active duty in Desert Shield/Desert Storm. Mr. Williams was responsible for suspensions. Mr. Carter was not the vice principal, but he assisted teachers with discipline. He did not have the authority to suspend students himself, but could recommend action and impose in-school suspension on his own.

Mr. Williams denied any knowledge of any sex conversations occurring in Mr. Smith's class. He also denied that Mr. Roberts ever complained to him about getting out of the auditorium.

Discussion and Analysis

In this case the Board of Education charges that a long-time teacher in the district conducted himself in a highly inappropriate manner in regards to the types of discussions that he purportedly permitted, and to a large extent participated in, in his classroom. The Board's witnesses in support of the charges are the very female students with whom Mr. Roberts is alleged to have spoken about details of his sex life, his wife's sex life, and about the girls' own sexual activities. In response to these allegations of impropriety, the respondent claims to be innocent, a victim of the evil machinations and manipulations of students who chose to allege baseless charges because they bore him some ill will, apparently due to his insistence on testing them on materials and concepts which he asserts they had, to a large extent, refused to be instructed in. Granting only that he may have in a minimal and indirect way spoken of his sex life in response to the prodding of the girls, Mr. Roberts contends that he committed no improper acts which would expose him to a legitimate tenure charge.

Initially, it is apparent that the female students who were in Mr. Roberts wood shop class in the auditorium during the period in question were not completely "innocent" regarding sexual matters. At their then ages of about 13 to 15 and in today's world, their familiarity with sex in general and the particulars of sexual relations, as well as terms associated with these matters, is not entirely surprising. In addition, at least two of the girls had been pregnant. With this said, I am not at all surprised and fully expect that during the course of a semester in Mr. Roberts' class, sexually oriented discussions and comments would have passed between some or perhaps all of the girls, and some of these might even have been loud enough for the teacher to hear. However, while open discussions of sex amongst the students would not appear to be the sort of talk that a teacher in a classroom should tolerate, and certainly not to the extent that it might interfere with the learning process, the specific charges here focus not on acts of passive toleration, but instead on acts of active encouragement, even to the extent of actual initiation of the conversations.

The circumstances under which the respondent was asked to teach the wood shop class were certainly not conducive to an effective teaching and learning experience. An auditorium setting is very different than a shop setting. Nevertheless, unless instructed otherwise by his superiors, Mr. Roberts was obligated to do the very best job possible in teaching whatever information could be imparted to his students in the awkward and inadequate setting provided to him in the absence of an available shop. Because he did not have machines, tools and metal to work with did not excuse him from teaching duties, yet at the same time, it must be recognized that given the limitations of the setting, the ability of any teacher to fully and adequately teach students about something as "hands-on" as wood shop would necessarily be compromised. That the students might be less than enthused, might be more prone to distraction and that the class as a whole might "wander" from the subject matter appropriate to a greater extent than might otherwise be normal all appear to be reasonable assumptions based on the record of the circumstances involved.

The key to this case is, of course, the credibility of the witnesses, the students themselves and Mr. Roberts, and to an extent that of Mr. Williams. Consideration of the credibility of the girls must focus on such matters as the sense of the story they tell, the inconsistencies and gaps therein and the possible motives which may have led them, individually and as a group, to prevaricate. As for the respondent, his own testimony forms the primary bulwark of his defense, and, in addition to his obvious personal motivations for expressing the case as he does, the record must be searched to see if his defense is secure, or if, when viewed in the light of the petitioner's evidence, it is infected with fatal deficiencies.

The story told by these complaining witnesses is in many ways a similar one, though not each recalled all of the same details, or on occasion, in the same way. The testimony of each of the women can be picked apart to a greater or a lesser degree. That said, having considered the testimony of each both together and as individuals, I am satisfied that on the whole, their story of a teacher who spoke openly about sex, at times even crudely, at times of his and his wife's own experiences and at other times probed the sexual conduct of his students, was true. This is not to suggest that all the particulars of their versions of the facts are accepted. For instance, I do not for the moment accept the characterization of the frequency of the sex oriented comments and discussions in class, and especially those initiated by Mr. Roberts, as the sort of "all the time" thing that the students testified to. While the proofs from all of the involved individuals, both students and teacher, were at best vague as to the nature of the activities that took place in the class on a day-to-day basis for the several months of the course, and while I cannot judge from the proofs to any satisfactory degree the relative amounts of time spent on some form of teaching and learning, on general talks of a non-sexual nature, on sex-related conversation and upon other things, I have no doubt whatsoever that a characterization of the sex talk as compromising the bulk of what went on in the auditorium for the months of November, December and January up to February 3 is quite inaccurate, whether by carelessness of thought, lack of real and realistic recall, or by design. Nevertheless, on balance, I am convinced by a preponderance of the credible evidence that there were several occasions when Mr. Roberts did initiate conversations, or at times perhaps engaged in monologues, about sexual matters. While the respondent paints the testimony regarding these very specific recollections of comments by the teacher, often of a most private nature, as the mere creations of rebellious and angry students seeking to avoid a test, I do not accept that explanation as at all sufficient to explain either the basic fact of the charges or the specific matters testified about. Instead, I am convinced that the sometimes flawed remembrances of the women contained a substantial element of truth, that, in fact, Mr. Roberts' comments were sometimes about sex, about his sex life and about the sex life and physical features of his female students. While it is not impossible to conceive that all of the specific statements mentioned by the students were in fact creations of their own minds, I FIND that the references to Mr. Roberts' early marital sex life, his conduct with his wife and views on oral sex do not suggest such an origin, but appear far more likely to have arisen directly from the teacher's own mouth. Thus, while the students' testimony may be properly characterized as less than perfect, at times inconsistent and even exaggerated, in the main, I CONCLUDE that the essence of the charges are true.

It is a fact that the first report of the sexual nature of conversations taking place in the class came at the same time as the matter of the impending test came to a head. However, as the testimony revealed, the assertion on the part of the students in early February that all was not right in their classroom was not the first comment made that suggested that Mr. Roberts was engaging in highly inappropriate, even actionable, conduct. The report received by Ms. Ti. regarding Mr. Roberts' alleged remark as to her posterior was reported to Sandra Bussey several days before the students had any inkling that a test was to be given. While Ms. Bussey failed to give this complaint serious attention, and acknowledged that she did not pass any word of it to the school administrators, nevertheless, the fact that she confirmed that she was told of this remark, and the lack of any identifiable, viable motive for this complaint to have been made up, strongly supports the conclusion that Ms. Ti. was in fact told that Mr. Roberts had said what she reported to Ms. Bussey. While the information which Ms. Ti. imparted to Ms. Bussey was admittedly of a hearsay nature, when coupled with the later reports of the way in which Mr. Roberts was conducting himself in class, this first report of untoward conduct serves both as a reference to an impropriety itself and, coming as it did before the test announcement, important proof that even before the events which the respondent suggests formed the motivation for the charges, the teacher was already acting improperly and the students' claims to this effect thus take on an added degree of credibility.

The timing of the complaints does of course raise some concern that they were made solely, or mostly, in retaliation for the teacher's insistence that the unwilling students undergo testing on subject matter that they had not taken the trouble to learn. That the girls may have been angry with Mr. Roberts and that their anger may have in fact been the single motivating factor which provoked them to advise the administration of the events occurring in the class is by no means impossible. However, the girls motivation for "squealing" upon the teacher need not be a pure one, so long as the conduct complained of actually occurred. Nor is it of any moment whether the students in fact were not offended by the conversations in the classroom. Indeed, it is entirely possible that these young teenagers, sitting in a class with little real work to do, were not very disturbed at all when their teacher spoke about sex, even on a personal level. There is even the suggestion in the record that some of it struck students as funny. No allegation of improper touching, advances or blatant harassment has been made by these students. A little, or a lot of sex talk, may have been seen by them as "all right," even despite later claims of "uneasiness" at least until the teacher told them that they would have to be tested on material which to a great extent had not been taught to them. Once this occurred the students rebelled, but I FIND that their action, even if spurred to a large degree by "selfish" motives, was not grounded in fabrication and deceit.

Mr. Roberts testified that several of the students demanded money from him in exchange for not telling the principal about alleged sex conversations. Ms. Ti. agreed that there was a reference by a student to the payment of money, but in her story the amount referred to was $1, not the $50 or $100 mentioned by the respondent. Ms. R. did not recall any such mention of money, but the mere fact that not all of the stories coincide is not in itself any proof of their falsity, especially where the remark may not have been overheard, or taken at all seriously if heard by all the students.

The respondent presented testimony from witnesses which was apparently intended to demonstrate that one or more of the students had a propensity to talk openly and inappropriately about sexual matters in class. The purpose of this evidence may have been to bolster Mr. Roberts' testimony concerning the fact that the sex talk in his class originated, (and according to him was essentially confined) with the students. Of course, as already mentioned here, that students of this age and experience might speak of sex, even openly and inappropriately, does not totally surprise this judge, and further, at least in the case of the underwear conversation reported by Ms. Stackhouse, such a discussion hardly rises to the level of sexual banter reported as occurring in Mr. Roberts' classroom. The flare-up over boyfriends and the sexual overtones contained therein reported by Mr. Smith is perhaps more in line with the type of talk which is the subject of concern here, but such jealous quarrels and arguments by themselves cannot be all that unusual amongst teenagers, even if laced with sexual innuendo. That Ms. B. was a party to such an admittedly inappropriate discussion in Mr. Smith's classroom hardly suggests some propensities which would explain away the allegations against Mr. Roberts, even while conceding that the girls were, I am sure, not free from blame for at least some of the sexual discussions which did develop in Mr. Roberts' class.

The respondent argues that the "investigation" of the girls' allegations against Mr. Roberts was "substantially flawed." The recent Michaels decision has focused attention upon the need for great care in the methods used to gather evidence from child witnesses, especially in sex-related cases. State v. Michaels, 264 N. J. Super. 579 (App. Div. 1993). In Michaels, a criminal case involving very young children and allegations of sexual abuse at a day care center, the court outlined steps which it viewed as necessary in order to assure that the evidence gathering process was untainted. Such conditions as the use of highly trained interviewers, unbiased and free of preconceived notions of guilt, an absence of "rewards" which might induce children to lie, and steps to prevent the influence of one child's statements upon another's were noted. In the present case, it is fair to say that the conditions outlined in the Michaels decision were not always present. The initial complaint to Mr. Williams was made to a man who was not necessarily well inclined to Mr. Roberts, and the interview process did allow for the possibility of an exchange of students' thoughts, whether by design or chance. Thus, the investigative process was not as pristine as the Michaels court required. However, the conditions found in Michaels were not quite the same as in the present case. The nature of the allegations in Michaels was significantly different than in the present case. There, the tender age of the students was a very significant factor. The children in the day care class were about three years old. They were not much older at the time the investigation was conducted. Here, the students were teenagers. While it is by no means assured that each student was completely capable of independent and untainted thought and expression, the likelihood that all those involved were simply going along for the ride with more assertive "leaders" appears to be very limited. I FIND that there is not the slightest suggestion that any of the school personnel involved in gathering the stories of the students did anything at all to influence the students in any way, and an independent investigator was brought in from DYFS, although this record unfortunately does not reveal any details of the discussions which that investigator had with the students.[1] While the considerations outlined in Michaels in regard to the evidence-gathering process where very young children are involved are no less important where the age of the children is older, the type of investigation which occurred here, the lack of "suggestion" or prompting by those gathering the facts, and the totality of the circumstances all point to a different conclusion as to the acceptability of the investigative process and the lack of taint which that process may have imparted to the student witnesses, both at the time they told their stories and at trial, than the court reached in Michaels. On the whole, despite the fact that the investigation could no doubt have been conducted in a manner more in tune with the pronouncements of the Michaels court, I FIND that the process was not tainted, certainly not to any degree which would negate the reliability of the evidence gathered from these witnesses, who have been subjected to substantial and searching questioning at trial as well.

The testimony of the witnesses presented in support of the respondent is apparently meant to demonstrate that he is a caring teacher, a strong disciplinarian and hardly the type to engage in the kind of completely inappropriate conduct involved here. Despite this positive picture of him, I FIND that the allegations made by the students were for the most part truthful, and therefore I FIND that the positive evidence of Mr. Roberts' character does not negate the finding that he is guilty of the misconduct alleged.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the evidence presented, I FIND that the respondent did participate in and initiate classroom discussions of his own, his wife's and the students' sex lives, had discussions or engaged in monologues regarding oral sex, made a comment about the physical attributes of one of his female students, and related to his students alleged propositions for oral sex for money purportedly

1. The petitioner did not succeed in attempts to persuade either the Commissioner or the Superior Court to allow the confidential DYFS investigation, report and related testimony to be presented. The OAL and Commissioner currently lack the authority to order disclosure, the OAL because the statute limits the authority to do so to a "court," N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10a(6), Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478 (App. Div. 1989), cert. den 121 N.J. 615.

involving himself and "crackheads." As for all of these activities, they were totally unrelated to any classroom work, were absolutely uncalled for and inappropriate, and were not at all the sort of conversation that a teacher would be expected to have with his students, most certainly in a wood shop class. That Mr. Roberts' conduct was violative of the standards expected of a public school teacher cannot be doubted. I CONCLUDE that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a public school teacher and therefore is subject to action affecting his tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1.

PENALTY

The record discloses that the respondent has not previously been the subject of any disciplinary action. However, the charges here are most serious. That the students involved were not of very tender years, and in fact in some cases were themselves mothers, or about to be, does not detract from the seriousness of the misconduct to any degree. Sexual conversations between teachers and students in any place but a sex education class are fraught with potential for misunderstanding and when reduced to the personal level are totally indefensible. This is not a situation where the evidence is of some personal and private counseling, which might perhaps under very limited conditions be at least tolerable even if not necessarily to be encouraged. Here, the sexual talk was open, blatant, and apparently geared to nothing more than the titillation of the participants, most notably and improperly that of the frequent initiator of the conversations, the teacher, the very person who should have ended those conversations started by the pupils.

I CONCLUDE that Mr. Roberts' misconduct must result in the loss of his tenure. The nature and extent of his ongoing misconduct during much of a semester demands nothing less by way of punishment.

ORDER

It is HEREBY ORDERED that the respondent's tenure shall be forfeited.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FRANK ROBERTS, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions contend that the ALJ erred by crediting and accepting the testimony of the "complaining" students instead of his testimony. He incorporates his post-hearing brief and essentially highlights the arguments set forth in that document, which generally credits and emphasizes his testimony and that of his witnesses while impeaching, re-characterizing or downplaying the testimony of the students.

Respondent argues that the Board's case was solely based on student testimony with no testimony being presented by any adult who heard the comments respondent was alleged to have made. In such instances he maintains that the Commissioner has previously ruled that such testimony must be viewed with great caution and scrutiny (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Polito, 1974 S.L.D. 666; In the Matter of Wolf, 231 N.J. Super. 365 (App. Div. 1989), which he contends the ALJ did not do in the instant matter. Respondent makes extensive reference to his post-hearing brief which cites numerous transcript provisions, analyzes testimony of each of the witnesses and presents inferences which he contends should be drawn from such testimony.

Respondent's exceptions summarize by alleging that the ALJ's decision was fatally flawed and should be overturned for the following reasons:

> 1. The factors previously noted at pages 1 through 6 and 23 and 24 of Respondent's post hearing brief.
>
> 2. The fact that the students themselves spoke frequently about sexual matters, which some of them admitted in their testimony, but most of them denied, which raises significant doubts about their credibility.
>
> 3. The fact that Respondent testified that it was SB, not him, who spoke about sex, a likelihood corroborated by two adult witnesses.
>
> 4. The overall lack of credibility of the student witnesses; that their testimony was evasive, vague, inconsistent internally and with each others' testimony.
>
> 5. That the students had a motive to lie, particularly their unhappiness with the test requirement and that some of them had been disciplined previously by Respondent and had run ins with him.
>
> 6. The exaggerated nature of the students' claims, which were that Respondent spoke about sex almost each and every day, for almost the whole class period.
>
> 7. The fact that all of the students, at least for the first meeting in which the complaint was made, met together with Mr. Williams as a group, hearing each others' versions of their story. Indeed, when the students left to see Mr. Williams, they were laughing just before that in Respondent's class.
> 8. The fact that the students claimed that they complained about all of this to Ms. Bussey before, yet the only complaint to Ms. Bussey was the alleged comment about MT's backside, and that only by MT (who did not hear the comment), that no other complaint about any other statement or incident was made to Ms. Bussey.

9. The fact that the students prior to going to Mr. Williams, demanded money from Respondent.

10. The circumstances in which the statements were allegedly made, in the auditorium, with other classes going on, where certainly other persons would have heard them.

11. The fact that with the possible exception of the one remark to Ms. Bussey, no complaints were ever made to any other school personnel until the test incident.

(Respondent's Exceptions, at pp. 9-10)

In reply, the Board references the various submissions before the ALJ and urges affirmance of the initial decision. In response to respondent's attacks on the ALJ's general credibility determinations, it cites Campanile v. Middletown Board of Education, Monmouth County, decided by the Commissioner March 2, 1982; McKnight v. Mercer Vocational-Technical Schools Board of Education, 1986 S.L.D. 117; and Onulak v. Metuchen Borough Board of Education, 1986 S.L.D. 1372 for the proposition that the Commissioner must defer to the trier of fact who actually saw and heard the witnesses on questions of credibility where there is conflicting evidence and the factual findings are supported in the testimony provided at the hearing.

With respect to respondent's contention that the ALJ failed to apply sufficient caution and scrutiny to the testimony of the Board's student witnesses as required by Polito, supra, the Board argues:

To the contrary, the ALJ has applied sufficient caution and scrutiny to the testimony of the students. The ALJ's decision sets forth an exacting analysis of the consistencies and differences of their testimony in addition to other witnesses. The ALJ writes:

The story told by these complaining witnesses is in many ways a similar one, though not each recalled all of the same details, or on occasion, in the same way. The testimony of each of the women can be picked apart to a greater or lesser degree. That said, having considered the testimony of each both together and as individuals, I am satisfied that on the whole, their story of a teacher who spoke openly about sex, at times even crudely, at times of his and his wife's own experiences and at other times probed the sexual conduct of his students, was true. This is not to suggest that all the particulars of their versions of the facts are accepted. For instance, I do not for the moment accept the characterization of the frequency of the sex oriented comments and discussions in class, and especially those initiated by Mr. Roberts, as the sort of "all the time" thing that the students testified to. While the proofs from all of the involved individuals, both students and teacher, were at best vague as to the nature of the activities that took place in the class on a day-to-day basis for the several months of the course, and while I cannot judge from the proofs to any satisfactory degree the relative amount of time spent on some form of teaching and learning, on general talks of a non-sexual nature, on sex-related conversation and upon other things, I have no doubt whatsoever that a characterization of the sex talk as compromising the bulk of what went on in the auditorium for the months of November, December, and January up to February 3 is quite inaccurate, whether by carelessness of thought, lack of realistic recall, or by design. Nevertheless, on balance, I am convinced by a preponderance of the credible evidence there were several occasions when Mr. Roberts did initiate conversations, or at times perhaps engaged in monologues, about sexual matters. While the respondent paints the testimony regarding these very specific recollections of comments by the teacher, often of a most private nature, as the mere creations of rebellious and angry students seeking to avoid a test, I do not accept that explanation as at all sufficient to explain either the basic fact of the charges or the specific matters testified about. Thus, while the students' testimony may be properly characterized as less than perfect, at times inconsistent and even exaggerated, in the main, I conclude that the essence of the charges [is] true. (Initial Decision, at pp. 24-25)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which includes transcripts of the four days of hearings before the ALJ, the Commissioner determines to affirm the decision of the ALJ for the reasons fully and clearly articulated therein.

The Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions, which largely raise arguments addressed at length in the initial decision, unpersuasive. Specifically, the Commissioner is fully satisfied that the ALJ's recitation of testimony is both accurate and thorough, and that he carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies, and potential biases in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching his findings of fact.

Accordingly, for the reasons well expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law sustaining the Board's tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Mr. Roberts, and dismissing him from his tenured teaching position as of the date of this decision. This decision will be referred to the State Board of Examiners for any action it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: December 22, 1993 Decided: January 13, 1994

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

In May 1992, the City of Elizabeth Board of Education (petitioner) certified tenure charges against Sherry Salmansohn (respondent), alleging that respondent had engaged in corporal punishment and/or inappropriate physical intervention relative to students, including a specific allegation pertaining to September 27, 1991, as well as allegations that respondent had made inappropriate remarks to students. Respondent requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted by the State

New Jersey Is An Equal Opportunity Employer

Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on May 27, 1992 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Conferences were held throughout the proceedings. Hearings were ultimately scheduled to commence on December 1, 1993. On that date, the parties continued settlement negotiations which had previously commenced and reached a resolution of the matter. The terms of the settlement were placed on the record, and respondent testified that she understood the terms of the settlement, entered into it voluntarily, and understood that if the settlement is adopted by the Commissioner of the Department of Education, the Commissioner may refer the matter to the State Board of Examiners to review whether or not respondent's teaching certificate should be revoked.

An executed Stipulation of Settlement was subsequently filed on December 27, 1993. The stipulation provides, in part, that respondent makes certain admissions and resigns her position of employment as a teacher with petitioner effective April 1, 1994 and that she will receive her current rate of pay through the date of her resignation, less mitigation. Attached herewith are copies of the stipulation and of a resolution adopted by petitioner approving the stipulation.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement presented, and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8TH Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of: SHERRY SALMANSOHN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY	STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

The parties to the above matter have agreed to an amicable resolution of this litigation. The resolution is based upon an agreement as to the following facts:

1. The Respondent, Sherry Salmansohn, is a tenured teacher employed by the Petitioner, School District of the City of Elizabeth, Union County.

2. In April, 1992, Thomas J. Ficarra, Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of Schools, and Deborah E. Dixon, Principal of the Cleveland Middle School, filed tenure charges against the Respondent with the Petitioner, which charges were subsequently certified to the Commissioner of Education in May, 1992. The charges consisted of allegations that the Respondent had engaged in corporal punishment and/or inappropriate physical interventic relative to students under her care, including a specific allegation that on September 27, 1991, the Respondent had placed her hands around the neck of a student in a threatening manner placing the student at risk of physical harm, and allegations that the Respondent made inappropriate remarks to students.

3. The Respondent admits that on September 27, 1991, she did grab student J.C. in the presence of another teacher. The Respondent states that this action was taken because of her belief that she needed to grab the student to protect herself from immediate physical harm.

4. The Respondent admits that she did on certain occasions make inappropriate remarks to her students. The Respondent had previously admitted to these circumstances in either written memoranda or verbal statements to her supervisors.

5. With regard to the remaining allegations of inappropriate physical intervention ar corporal punishment, the Petitioner has no adult eyewitnesses to any of those situations other than the situation involving the student J.C., the incident to which the Respondent has stipulated in Paragraph No. 3 of this agreement. In light of the Respondent's admission in Paragraph 3, in light of Respondent's resignation from her tenured employment as set forth below and in light of the fact that in order to prove these charges it would be necessary to produce student witnesses, whose recollections may be unreliable and for whom the appearance would be traumatic, it would not be in the public interest to proceed with the remaining allegations against the Respondent.

6. Based on the hearing in this matter being scheduled for December 1, 2, 3 and 22, 1993, and allowing time for the filing of post-hearing briefs, as well as 45 days each for the decisions of the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner of Education, the Respondent would receive her full salary from the Petitioner through at least April 1, 1994 if this case proceeded to hearing.

7. The Respondent understands that the Commissioner of Education has the right to review this settlement, and may accept or reject it. If the Commissioner accepts the settlement, the Respondent understands the Commissioner has the right to refer the decision to the State Board of Examiners to review whether or not the Respondent's teaching certificate should be revoked.

Based upon the above factual agreement, the parties hereby agree to resolve this matter on the following basis:

1. Sherry Salmansohn hereby resigns her position of employment as teacher with the Elizabeth Board of Education effective April 1, 1994;

2. The Board of Education will withdraw the tenure charges in this matter;

3. The Respondent will receive her current rate of pay through the date of her resignation less mitigation by alternate earnings;

4. Other than the facts set forth in the stipulation of facts above, this agreement shall not constitute an admission or denial by either party of any of the remaining factual allegations of the tenure charges against the Respondent; nor shall this settlement have any precedential value with regard to any of the remaining allegations;

5. The terms of this agreement shall not be effective until such time as the Board of Education has officially voted on acceptance of this agreement. Counsel for the Board of Education shall immediately communicate to the Administrative Law Judge in writing when th Board of Education has either approved or denied approval of this agreement;

6. The terms of this agreement are expressly conditioned upon the review and approval of the Commissioner of Education. In the event the approval of the agency head is not given, the terms of this agreement shall be void and have no force and effect whatsoever.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF SHERRY SALMANSOHN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms as they comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846) In so deciding, the Commissioner notes that the ALJ's recitation of the procedural history of this matter includes the statement that respondent testified that she understood that the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners to review whether or not respondent's teaching certificate should be revoked. (Initial Decision, at p. 2) In light of the very serious nature of the allegations regarding corporal punishment raised herein, yet recognizing, as did the ALJ, the difficulties the Board faces in meeting its burden, the Commissioner directs this matter be referred to the State Board of Examiners for further action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 6:11-3.6. The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE LAKELAND REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 9, 1994

For the Appellant, Robert G. Rosenberg, Esq.

Following rejection of the proposed 1994-95 budget for the Board of Education of the Lakeland Regional High School District by the voters of the Borough of Wanaque, the governing bodies comprising the regional district were unable to reach agreement on the amount necessary to be certified to the board of the regional district in order to provide a thorough and efficient education to the district's students. Consequently, on June 9, 1994, the Commissioner of Education, acting pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-20,[1] determined to certify the amount of $6,830,623 for the district's

1 N.J.S.A. 18A:13-20 provides:

> Should said governing bodies fail to so certify or fail to agree and certify different amounts for said purposes, then the commissioner shall determine and certify the amount or amounts which in his judgment shall be necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in such regional district, to the board of education of the regional district.

general fund and directed that such amount be included in the tax levy of such municipalities for 1994-95.

By notice to the Commissioner dated September 1, 1994, the Borough of Wanaque (hereinafter "appellant") filed an appeal from that decision. By letter dated September 13, the director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes returned the notice of appeal to the appellant, advising that tax certifications pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-20 were final determinations of the Commissioner and were properly appealed to the State Board of Education.

By letter dated October 3, postmarked October 20 and received on October 21, appellant filed its notice of appeal with the State Board. Counsel for appellant requested to file the appeal late "in order to have a proper adjudication of what the [appellant] feels is valid and reasonable grounds for reducing the tax levy certified by the Commissioner on June 9, 1994." By letter dated October 25, counsel for appellant was advised that, under the circumstances, the filing date of the appeal would be the date on which it was filed with the Commissioner. In that the notice had been returned to appellant, we requested counsel for appellant to provide the documents filed with the Commissioner so that the State Board could determine the date on which they had been filed.

Counsel for appellant complied with such request and, by letter dated November 9, 1994, he was advised that the notice of appeal was deemed filed on September 1, 1994, the date of its filing with the Commissioner. However, counsel was also informed that since the Commissioner's decision was dated June 9, 1994, the notice of appeal to the State Board had been due on or before July 12, 1994. As a result, he was notified that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of the effect of appellant's failure to file timely notice of appeal.

In that a determination by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-20 constitutes a final decision by the Commissioner appealable to the State Board, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27; N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1, an appeal therefrom must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed" and is subject to the regulations governing such appeals. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28. The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which the appellant failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on June 9, 1994 and mailed to the parties on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on June 12. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the appellant was required to file its notice of appeal to the State Board on or before July 12, 1994. The appellant's notice, however, was not deemed filed until September 1, 1994, when it was filed with the Commissioner.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. Counsel for appellant has provided no indication of the circumstances surrounding the filing or justification of any kind for filing beyond the statutory time limit.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured Speech Correctionist whose position was reduced in 1990-91 to a 4/5 position, alleged Board violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 when it hired a Learning Disabilities Teacher Consultant (LDTC) for a 3/5 position for the 1992-93 school year.

ALJ concluded Board violated petitioner's tenure rights when it assigned a nontenured teacher to perform duties within the scope of the certificate held by petitioner. (Bednar) ALJ ordered Board to restore petitioner to full-time employment with mitigated compensation from September 1, 1992.

Commissioner concurred with findings and determination in initial decision and directed petitioner's restoration with mitigated compensation, noting that discretion was left to Board in assessing how petitioner's full-time service should be apportioned between her duties as an LDTC and a Speech Correctionist.

Record Closed: November 29, 1993 Decided: January 14, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Dolores Kojak, a tenured teacher employed by respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of Mount Arlington (Board), alleges that the Board violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. For the academic year 1990-91, Kojak's position as a speech correctionist was reduced from full time to a 4/5 position due to a reduction in force. Thereafter, in 1992 the Board hired a nontenured employee as the 3/5 learning disabilities teacher consultant (LDTC) in a 3/5 position. Petitioner has an LDTC endorsement, and thus, contends that she is entitled to full-time employment consisting of a combination of the speech correctionist and LDTC positions.

Respondent argues that educational reasons require a flexible schedule of the LDTC. Petitioner's assignment to the part-time LDTC and speech correctionist positions would restrict the flexibility of the LTDC position and cause a profound effect on the schedules and educational programs of the students and the overall operation of the school district.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 21, 1992, as a contested case. A prehearing conference was held on April 13, 1993, and a hearing was held on October 21, 1993. Both parties submitted post-hearing briefs and replies and the record closed on November 29, 1993.

The issue is whether the Board's failure to reinstate petitioner to a full-time position consisting of the combined speech correctionist and LDTC assignments violated her tenure rights.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The following stipulated facts are adopted as findings of fact:

1. Dolores Kojak's employment history with respondent began on September 1, 1972, and is summarized below:

School Year	Position	Full or Part-Time Service

1993-94	Speech Correctionist (district-wide)	4/5-time
1991-92	Speech Correctionist (district-wide)	4/5-time

2. Dolores Kojak holds the following educational certificates and endorsements issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

Certificate or Endorsement	Issue Date
Speech Correctionist	7/71 (J-1)
Speech Language Specialist	11/86 (J-2)
Elementary Teacher (K-8)	6/71 (J-3)
Teacher of the Handicapped	2/83 (J-4)
Teacher of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing	12/75 (J-5)
School Psychologist	8/82 (J-6)
Learning Disabilities-Teacher Consultant (LDTC)	12/86 (J-7)
Principal/Supervisor	6/87 (J-8)

3. Ms. Kojak was reduced from full-time to 4/5 employment as of the 1990-91 school year due to a reduction in force based on legitimate budgetary and/or enrollment considerations.

4. Respondent's school district is limited to grades K through 8. Grades 7 and 8 are departmentalized.

5. For 1992-93 and 1993-94, petitioner's 4/5 schedule requires her to work full days on Monday through Thursday with no assignment on Fridays. (J-13 and J-14).

6. Candace Shanks' employment history with respondent began effective September 1, 1992 based on a hiring resolution on September 8, 1992 and is summarized below:

School Year	Position	Full or Part-Time Service
1992-93	LDTC	3/5 time
1993-94	LDTC	3/5 time

7. Candace Shanks is not tenured. For 1992-93 her 3/5 schedule required her to work full days on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays. For 1993-94, Ms. Shanks' schedule normally requires her to work on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. On days other than those listed, Ms. Shanks had no assignment with respondent's district.

8. Candace Shanks holds the following educational certificates and endorsements issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners:

Certificate of Endorsement	Issue Date
Learning Disabilities-Teacher Consultant (LDTC)	3/82 (J-9)
Teacher of the Handicapped	7/86 (J-10)
Elementary Teacher (K-8)	12/70 (J-11)

9. The current job description for the position of Learning Disabilities-Teacher Consultant in use in respondent's district is attached as Exhibit J-12.

ARGUMENT

Petitioner contends that her tenure rights extend to the LDTC position. Specifically, petitioner's educational services certification includes the endorsements of both speech language specialist (formerly, speech correctionist) and LDTC. Thus, her right to be employed as an LDTC is within the scope of the tenure she earned by working as a speech correctionist. Petitioner relies on Dennery v. Board of Ed., 131 N.J. 626, 634 (1993), which recognized that an educator with tenure under any endorsement entitled him or her to tenure under other endorsements that are subsumed under the same certificate. Therefore, petitioner submits that her tenure rights extend to the LDTC position and that her reduction to a part-time employee authorizes the assertion of tenure rights against a nontenured LDTC.

Petitioner further contends that she is entitled to a full-time position under the educational services certification either as a 4/5 speech language specialist and 1/5 LDTC or as a 3/5 LDTC and a 2/5 speech language specialist. Petitioner does not assert authority over how the Board must distribute the work; the distribution of assignment is within the Board's discretion. Petitioner maintains that her assignment to either three full days of the LDTC position and the remaining two days to the speech language position, or an assignment of 4/5 speech language specialist and 1/5 LDTC would permit the Board to maintain flexibility over both positions. Therefore, the Board's desire for flexibility and its reliance on "educational policy" does not outweigh petitioner's statutory tenure right to a full-time position.

Respondent argues that it is unreasonable and contrary to sound educational policy to require the Board to fragment the part-time LDTC position. Notwithstanding petitioner's tenure entitlement under the special services certification, Kojak is not seeking a full-time LDTC position. Instead, she seeks to fragment the 3/5 LDTC position and attach it to her current schedule in order to create a full-time position. Thus, those cases which recognize tenure entitlement for an employee holding educational services certificate are not applicable here because those employees claimed a right to a full-time position. See, Dennery v. Bd. of Educ., supra, 131 N.J.; Ellicott v. Bd. of Educ., Frankford, 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991). Respondent further argues that those cases did not address educational policy or reasonableness when awarding an employee a full-time position based upon tenure entitlement.

Respondent submits that neither Kojak's current position as the speech language instructor nor the LDTC position can be fragmented. Kojak is the district's only speech language instructor and carefully schedules her instructional time to accommodate her student needs at the two schools of respondent. More flexibility is attached to the LDTC position because more than the teacher and the students are involved. The LDTC schedule must accommodate teachers, students, parents and out-of-district schools. Moreover, the LDTC job description envisions that one person be responsible for all LDTC duties.

In support of its position, respondent relies on the testimony of William Desmond, Superintendent of the Schools. Desmond testified that the LDTC must be flexible to accommodate the schedules of parents, teachers, evaluations and conferences. Thus, to assign Kojak to a portion of the LDTC position or the entire 3/5 position with the balance of her time assigned to speech would adversely impact the ability to schedule meetings and the educational programs of the students. Additional scheduling problems would occur because Kojak must travel between two schools. Thus, it is submitted that scheduling difficulties make it unreasonable to require the Board to fragment the current LDTC position or to require that it employ another speech teacher to satisfy Kojak's tenure rights. To do so would require the Board to stand on its head to accommodate the tenure rights of Kojak.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Tenure is a legislative status, not acquired in any specific assignment, but in the positions which require one to hold appropriate certificates issued by the Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The parties do not dispute that petitioner has acquired tenure to serve in the capacity of a speech language specialist and an LDTC. Further, it is well established that a tenured teaching staff member subject to a reduction in force, has entitlement to an assignment within the scope of her certificate against nontenured individuals. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 242 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512 (1988). However, respondent argues that based on educational reasons, petitioner is not entitled to claim the part-time LDTC position in order to regain full-time employment.

I have carefully considered respondent's position that Kojak's full-time employment obtained from the 3/5 LDTC position would fragment her current position and/or the LDTC position. I have also considered the credible testimony of Desmond. The LDTC's schedule must be flexible to accomplish and coordinate the overall duties of the CST, team meetings, parent conferences and student evaluations. Additionally, the LDTC oversees approximately fifty special education students with seven students in out-of-district placement, and the others assigned to the two schools in the district.. Desmond estimates that the LDTC spent approximately ten percent of her time monitoring the out-of-district students. Thus, he concluded that if Kojak were assigned to the 4/5 speech language specialist position, she would then be locked into the LDTC position on Fridays with no flexibility to schedule LDTC duties on other days. Thus, the need for flexibility is a sound educational reason against assigning Kojak to a portion or the entire 3/5 LDTC position.

On the other hand, Kojak presented equally credible testimony to rebut the inference raised by the Board's flexibility argument. As speech language specialist, Kojak is a participant in the CST meetings, students annual reviews and individual education plan (IEP) and parent conferences. Thus, as one member of a multidisciplinary team, Kojak has demonstrated that she can coordinate her schedule to attend these meetings. Further, her speech language instruction time is coordinated on a master schedule. The schedule identifies what day and period the students are assigned to speech, and those periods which Kojak uses for travel time, teacher preparation time, lunch hour, and CST meetings. The schedule is changed four to five times during the year in response to student needs and administrative duties.

Accordingly, I reject as unpersuasive the Board's argument that adhering to Kojak's claim to full-time employment under a combined LDTC and speech learning specialist positions would adversely effect student schedules or create an unreasonable situation. Additionally, the Board's refusal to assign Kojak to the LDTC position because it desires to maintain a level of flexibility is contrary to the legislative intent granting New Jersey employees the right to tenure. Indeed, the Supreme Court has stated that:

> the Legislature has determined that the utility of tenure to improving education outweighs any costs in decreased "flexibility." That is a policy determination that has been made by the Legislature. It is not proper for courts to override that determination on the basis of their independent policy conclusions.

Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 79 (1982).

Further, the Commissioner has forced boards of education to reschedule and combine classes held by nontenured teachers in order to effect the rights of a tenured teacher. In Taxman v. Piscataway Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 189 (Comm. of Ed.), the Commissioner ordered that three part-time teaching positions be consolidated to permit a tenured teacher to continue working. In Fox v. Morris School District Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 139 (Comm. of Ed.), the Commissioner allowed petitioner to combine 3/5 of one nontenured teacher's full-time position and 2/5 of another nontenured teacher's full-time position to create a full-time position under her tenure rights. Finally, "educationally based reasons" used by boards of education to deny claims of tenure against nontenured individuals are no longer viable. In Grosso v. Bd. of Ed., New Providence, 1990 S.L.D. 1750, 1753, the State Board of Education rejected respondent board's "'educationally based reasons' argument" in assessing the rights of tenured individuals in a RIF.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the Board violated Kojak's tenure rights when it assigned a nontenured teacher to perform duties within the scope of the certificate held by Kojak, the tenured employee.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Mount Arlington School District promptly restore Kojak to full-time employment together with back pay and other lost benefits from September 1, 1992, less mitigation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth in the initial decision that the Board violated petitioner's tenure rights when it assigned a nontenured teacher to perform duties within the scope of petitioner's educational services certificate. Consequently, the Commissioner directs petitioner's restoration to full-time employment together with back pay and other lost benefits from September 1, 1992, less mitigation. In so directing, discretion is left to the Board in assessing how petitioner's full-time service should be apportioned between her duties as a Learning Disabilities Teacher Consultant and a Speech Correctionist. SYNOPSIS

Petitioning elementary teacher alleged she had tenure in her position when the Board acted to refuse renewal of her employment for the 1992-93 school year, thus violating her tenure rights.

ALJ determined petitioner had tenure, having satisfied statutory requirements and the dictates of Spiewak at the time of the Board's action and therefore was wrongfully terminated. ALJ ordered petitioner reinstated to her position with mitigated compensation.

Commissioner concurred with findings and determination in initial decision and ordered petitioner restored with back pay and benefits less mitigation.

(King, King & Goldsack, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 13, 1993 Decided: January 24, 1994

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioner, Susan Martin, contests the respondent's termination of her employment as a teaching staff member by not renewing her contract for the 1992-93 school year. She claims that this action by the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield (Board) violated her tenure and seniority rights. The Board denies that the petitioner had attained tenure, and in any event, wishes to prove that her teaching performance has been unsatisfactory, thereby justifying her removal from employment.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed her verified petition with the Commissioner of Education on May 18, 1992. A timely answer was filed by the respondent on June 16, 1992. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 18, 1992, for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was held in the Office of Administrative Law on September 16, 1992. The resulting prehearing order defined and limited the issues to be decided, provided for discovery, scheduled a hearing, and regulated other procedural aspects of the matter. After the completion of discovery and one adjournment of the hearing date, the matter was scheduled for hearing on December 7, 1993.

On October 8, 1993 the petitioner filed a motion for summary decision. Papers in opposition were filed by the respondent on November 8, 1993, followed by a reply memorandum by the petitioner. Oral argument on the motion was heard on November 24, 1993. The record closed on December 13, 1993, after receipt of the last paper filed by counsel.

DISCUSSION

Summary decision may be granted to a party if the papers which have been filed show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged, and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Judson v. Peoples of Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74, (1954); R. 4:46-2.

The same concept is applicable to administrative proceedings in the Office of Administrative Law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

> A contested matter can be summarily disposed of before an ALJ without a plenary hearing in instances where the undisputed material facts, as developed on motion or otherwise, indicate that a particular disposition is required as a matter of law. Matter of Robros Recycling Corp. 226 N.J. Super. 343, 350, (App. Div. 1988), certif. den. 113 N.J. 638, (1988).

A summary judgment (decision) is designed to allow the judge quickly and inexpensively to dispose of any case which does not present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a hearing. Judson, supra, 17 N.J. at 74. The role of the judge in such a motion is to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if such an issue exists. Id. at 73.

The standards governing the grant or denial of summary decision emphasize that a party opposing a motion is not to be denied an evidential hearing unless the moving party sustains his or her burden of clearly showing the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Thus, it is "the movant 's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Id. at 74. All inferences of doubt are to be drawn against the movant and in favor of the party against whom the motion is directed. The papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers are indulgently treated. Id. at 75.

This matter is unquestionably ripe for summary decision, particularly since the respondent has acknowledged that the petitioner has correctly stated the material facts. The Board's argument relates instead to the legal standards to be applied to those facts. Its position is that Ms. Martin's employment for a period of time at the adult learning center, as an hourly employee teaching adults and paid with Federal or State funds, should not be counted towards the acquisition of tenure. Additionally, the respondent wishes an opportunity to prove that the petitioner is an unsatisfactory elementary school teacher who should not be entitled to tenure protection.

The FACTS are as follows:

The petitioner has held a certification, since 1972, as an elementary school teacher.

The petitioner taught in the district's adult learning center on a part-time basis for 10 months from December 1988 through September 1989. She taught basic skills/ESL (English as a second language) to adults working toward high school degrees. She was paid a hourly rate, based on the teacher's contractual salary guide. This teaching was continuous without a break for the summer of 1989.

The petitioner was hired and began full-time employment for the Board on September 25, 1989, teaching basic skills in an elementary school. This continued for the entire school year through June 30, 1990.

The petitioner's contract was renewed for the following school year, beginning September 1, 1990 through June 30, 1991. She taught second grade in an elementary school.

The petitioner was rehired for the 1991-192 school year. She taught fourth grade for the entire year, from September 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992.

The total period of time petitioner taught for respondent in accordance with the above, was 3 years and ten months. This consisted of ten months teaching basic skills/ESL in the adult learning center, part-time, followed immediately by three consecutive academic years.

The positions held by the petitioner, as set forth above, required her to hold appropriate certificates issued by the Board of Examiners. Her elementary school teacher's certificate satisfied that requirement.

In April 1992, the petitioner was advised that her contract would not be renewed for 1992-93 school year.

This appeal followed. The petitioner claims that her employment should not have been terminated as set forth above, and that the Board was required to rehire her because she had acquired tenure and the protections afforded to teaching staff members thereunder.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 governs the acquisition of tenure:

> The services of all teaching staff members . . . . . in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education, excepting those who are not the holders of proper certificates in full force and effect, shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this Title, after employment in such district or by such board for:
>
> > (a) Three consecutive calendars years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purposes;
> >
> > (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> > (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

This statute was definitively discussed in Spiewak v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63, 1982. There, the petitioner teachers were remedial and supplemental teachers, not under contract. They were paid hourly and received no sick leave, personal days, health insurance, holiday pay, vacations or pension benefits. All of the teachers held valid teaching certificates appropriate to their positions and each of them had been employed with the school district for more than three years.

The court stated that the tenure act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, granting teachers in New Jersey the right to tenure, makes that tenure a mandatory term and condition of employment and supersedes contractual terms. The court recognized that the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 governs tenure determinations.

> "an employee of a board of education is entitled to tenure if: (1) she works in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) she holds the appropriate certificate; (3) she has served the requisite period of time. Spiewak, supra 90 N.J. at 74.

Satisfaction of these requirements creates a "presumption of eligibility for tenure unless a statutory exception applies." Ibid.

In finding in favor of the petitioner teachers the Spiewak court held that the conditions under which they had worked fell within the express terms of the statute. Their teaching positions required certification; they possessed the proper certifications; and they had worked the requisite amount of time. The specific elements of teachers' contracts, such as hourly pay, no benefits or sick leave, were irrelevant because "public employees and employers may not agree to contractual terms that contravene a specific term or condition set by statute. . . We have specifically stated that the tenure provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 constitute a mandatory contractual term that may not be waived or bargained away." Spiewak at 76.

Moreover the court found no statutory exceptions which would preclude granting tenure to the teachers.

Since the facts in the instant matter show that Ms. Martin satisfies the foregoing statutory requirements for tenure, that status cannot be denied her on the basis of an hourly pay schedule or the fact that she may have been paid with Federal funds.

> "All professional staff members [of adult basic skills learning centers] shall possess standard New Jersey teaching certificates. Documentation shall be copies of teaching certificates. N.J.A.C. 6:30-2.6(a)6i.

The petitioner worked in a position for which a teaching certificate is required and she holds the required certification.

Finally the facts clearly indicate that the petitioner worked the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of four consecutive academic years, satisfying the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c).

In addition, neither the statute or the regulations thereunder provide for an exception to the granting of tenure based on Federal funding or hourly salary.

The respondent's argument that tenure should be denied because petitioner taught at an adult learning center and was evaluated by different criteria than used to evaluate elementary teachers, also cannot be recognized as an exception to her qualification for tenure. Teachers in adult basic education programs must hold a teaching certificate. That certificate need only be a basic instructional certificate, since no specific certificate is required by the regulation for a person to teach basic skills to adults. See Milwit v. BOE of the City of Jersey City, OAL DKT. No. EDU 465-87 (EDU 2899-86 on remand) (November 24, 1987) aff'd, Comm'r. of Educ. (Jan. 8, 1988), aff'd. (App. Div. June 8, 1989.) See also Rabolli v. Board Of Education of the Bergen County Vocational Technical Schools, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7717-82 (January 13, 1983), aff'd. Comm'r. of Educ. (March 18, 1983), aff'd. St. Bd. of Educ. (July 6, 1983).

Therefore the ten months spent by petitioner as a teacher of adult basic skills, with a valid teacher's certificate, are properly counted toward the acquisition of tenure.

There is also no exception in the tenure statute, as interpreted in Spiewak, that relates to evaluation criteria. Therefore, the fact that petitioner was evaluated by criteria different from those used to evaluate elementary or high school teachers is irrelevant.

There also is no statutory provision that exempts basic skills or ESL courses from tenure consideration. Such courses are included as part of recognized adult basic skills programs. N.J.A.C. 6:30-2.1. Those who teach these courses must also possess standard New Jersey teaching certificates. N.J.A.C. 6:30-2.6(a)6i. Therefore, respondent's attempt to remove the time spent by petitioner while teaching such courses from time counted toward the acquisition of tenure cannot prevail.

Finally, unsatisfactory performance by the petitioner, even if proved, is not a relevant factor related to the acquisition of tenure. There is no statutory exception that provides for an assessment of teaching quality. Teachers may be dismissed for inefficiency, incapacity or conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member or for other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Once tenure has been achieved, specifically delineated charges and hearing procedures must follow, if a teacher is to be removed. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Since the petitioner has clearly acquired tenure, the quality of her performance may only be tested, in relation to the retention of her position, in accordance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Such an inquiry and procedure is beyond the purview of this contested case.

CONCLUSIONS

It is therefore CONCLUDED that no genuine issues of material fact exist and the petitioner has shown, as a matter of law, that she acquired tenured in accordance with the applicable statute prior to her summary removal from her teaching position.

It is further CONCLUDED that the Board's action, in refusing to renew her teaching contract for the 1992-93 school year violated Ms. Martin's tenure rights, and that action should be REVERSED.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the petitioner, Susan Martin, should be reinstated to her position, with backpay and all applicable benefits, less any sums received by her by way of pay or salary from any substituted employment during the period that she was deprived of her position.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner had tenure as a teaching staff member under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and the dictates of the New Jersey Supreme Court in Spiewak, supra, at the time the Board refused to renew her teaching contract for the 1992-93 school year. As such, the Board's action was a violation of petitioner's tenure rights and must be reversed.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons stated therein. The Board is hereby ordered to restore petitioner to her teaching position and accord her back pay and all applicable benefits less mitigation of any monies earned during the period of her wrongful termination.

INITIAL DECISION
SETTLEMENT
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6831-93S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 234-6/93

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DAVID S. SOLLENBERGER, CAMDEN COUNTY VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY.

William C. Davis, Esq., for petitioner Board of Education of the Vocational School in the County of Camden (Davis, Reberkenny & Abramowitz, attorneys)
Kenneth A. Sandler, Esq., for respondent David S. Sollenberger (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 24, 1994 Decided: January 28, 1994

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This tenure proceeding came before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") following transmittal from the Commissioner of the Department of Education ("Commissioner"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -21. A prehearing conference was held on October 12, 1993, and a Prehearing Order was issued on October 21, 1993. Thereafter, the matter came on for hearing before this administrative law judge on January 19 and 20, 1994.

Mr. Sollenberger was charged with having engaged in conduct which demeaned a student's rights and having been insensitive to her as an African-American and to have acted in a discriminatory fashion because of the race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry of the student.

Following presentation of substantially all of the testimony, including the testimony of the complaining student and of the respondent, the parties entered into discussions and reached a resolution of the issues in dispute between them. Pursuant to that agreement, which was spread on the record at the hearing on January 20, 1994, and which has been incorporated in a written stipulation of settlement which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, the parties have agreed that the respondent, who was previously suspended from his employment without pay for part of May 1993 and the remainder of the school year in June 1993 and who was thereafter reinstated to the payroll pursuant to the 120-day statute while remaining suspended from his teaching duties, will continue on suspension through the remainder of the 1993-94 school year and will be removed from the payroll as of January 28, 1994, and shall remain suspended without pay through the remainder of the current school year. Based upon the facts of this case as established in the testimony, which is largely undisputed as to the incident involved, this administrative law judge has agreed to approve this settlement, subject to the Commissioner's review. The following constitutes a general description of the circumstances involved in the incident in question and the reasons why this administrative law judge believes that this settlement is an appropriate one.

Testimony reveals that David S. Sollenberger has been employed by the Camden County Vocational and Technical School District at its Gloucester Township campus for approximately 22 years, during which he has received generally favorable evaluations. The incident in question occurred on April 27, 1993, when a student, then known as K.C., but also known as Sister A-N. H.B., ("Sister B.") came to

Mr. Sollenberger's United States History class wearing a turban.[1] According to Sister B., she had worn the turban at the class several days previously, but Mr. Sollenberger had been absent. On the day in question, when Sister B. entered the classroom, Mr. Sollenberger, according to his testimony, asked Ms. C. why "she had that rag" on her head and whether she was going to "tell his fortune or read his palms." This occurred during the five minutes before the start of class and as soon as he made these comments Sister B. requested permission to go to the ladies' room. He assumed that she was going to remove the turban. Pursuant to school policy hats are generally not permitted to be worn in class, although apparently in the past exceptions have been made where individuals have worn hats or other headgear for "religious" reasons. While Sister B. was in the ladies' room Mr. Sollenberger began to instruct his class on the day's activities, which were to include a test. According to the teacher the students had approximately ten minutes or so to look at their notes and prepare for the test. During this time Sister B. was seated and still wearing her turban. Mr. Sollenberger walked to her desk and asked her what she had on her head. She replied that it was a turban and he said that he knew that and asked her why she was wearing it. According to both witnesses, she responded that it was the "Moorish National Headdress." He then asked her if she was a Muslim, to which she responded "No, Moslem." Mr. Sollenberger testified that he then told her that "Muslim" and "Moslem" mean pretty much the same thing. He was not sure what response she made to this, but she apparently did not agree with him and said that her uncle told her that the proper term was "Moslem." According to Sister B.'s testimony Mr. Sollenberger insisted that the Moors were Muslim, to which she responded that the proper word was Moslem. At this point she recalled that he began to pull out books and pull down a map and made a comment to her that she did not know "shit from shinola, baby, so I don't know why you wear it." At this point she got up and left class.

1 Sister B. has indicated that she is a Moor and does not consider herself as an African-American or Black. The charge refers to conduct which demeaned African-American students because of race, color, national origin, etc. It is of course Sister B.'s perfect right to define herself as she chooses. Because the charge is directed at conduct which is specifically identified as discriminatory toward African-Americans, I note that observation of Sister B. would suggest to the reasonable observer some degree of African heritage. The Moors were historically a North African people. Thus, even without the student's agreement as to the characterization of her as an African-American, which is generally, although too narrowly associated with those demoninated as Black, the evidence would support that the student discriminated against was reasonably identified as an African-American.

Mr. Sollenberger testified that in his world cultural history course he taught about Islam and that he tried to use the situation for an "educational advantage." He pulled down a map of the Mediterranean world and began to tell about how Islam had spread into Morocco, the area of North Africa where the Moors lived. According to him Sister B. interrupted him several times, apparently continuing to dispute his use of the word Muslim and at one point she said that Muslim was a type of cloth. He corrected her and said that that cloth was muslin. He then offered her a dictionary which she refused and she said that he did not know what he was talking about, to which he replied "Oh and you do." He then asked her to discuss what the five pillars (essential principles) of Islam were. She replied that she "didn't know." According to Mr. Sollenberger at this point he was getting "a little bit irritated" because he had been trying to use the circumstances for educational purposes and trying to involve her more and it was "not coming off." He was "surprised she didn't have any knowledge of the religious significance here." At this point he acknowledged that he said "it seems that you don't know shit from shinola about this."

As stated, the testimony of the parties concerning this incident did not vary to any significant degree. In his testimony Mr. Sollenberger acknowledged that he had been insensitive and had acted incorrectly and apologized to the student and her family who were seated in the courtroom. He explained that right from the beginning he felt terrible about what had happened and asked if he could meet with the family and apologize to them, but was told that "they don't want you teaching." It was never his intention to insult the student, her family or her heritage.

The incident in question was a most unfortunate one. The school had a policy against the wearing of hats or other headgear, although apparently exceptions had been made for religious reasons. According to testimony from the school principal, the proper way for a teacher to deal with the question of whether someone's headgear fell within the "exemption" was to refer the matter to the principal's office. In the circumstances in this case Mr. Sollenberger, confronted with the student wearing a turban, made an initial inquiry of her as to what was on her head. He started off the matter in a most unfortunate, inappropriate and insulting way, referring to the turban as a rag. The connotations involved here are evident.

The situation then deteriorated, for the teacher, rather than sending the student directly down to the principal's office or advising her that she would not be permitted to continue to wear the headgear after that day unless she had permission, began to confront the student. I believe that Mr. Sollenberger, who I CONCLUDE was a very sincere individual, never intended to insult Sister B., her family, her heritage, her race, or creed. However, the nature of the discussions that ensued, with a teacher debating a student over the proper term to be applied to an ethnic or religious group, with the teacher diverting from the U.S. History classwork to a public, one-on-one "discussion" of a matter which, while having overall cultural and religious significance, was not specifically relevant to his class' course work, was inappropriate. The situation continued to decline, with the teacher putting the student on the spot, "testing" her about her knowledge of certain fundamentals of the Islamic religion. While discussions of the five pillars of Islam might well be relevant to a general discussion of Islam and its influence in the world in a world cultural history course, to ask an individual student who happens to apparently be a member of that group to answer such a question puts the student on the spot and held her up to possible humiliation and even ridicule. After her failure to answer the question, the teacher concluded this incident with a completely uncalled for, inappropriate humiliating and unprofessional comment.

There is no question but that the actions of Mr. Sollenberger in the course of the incident described were out of line. Even if he saw the opportunity to make use of a circumstance to educational advantage, there were ways to do this without putting the child on the spot, without subjecting her to a one-on-one grilling, without holding her up to humiliation and without seeming to convey some possible contempt for her, her religion, her ethnicity, etc. The child, and her parents, were fully within their rights to feel that the teacher's actions were completely wrong and that some action had to be taken against him.

Balanced against the unfortunate, inappropriate and unprofessional actions engaged in by Mr. Sollenberger on April 27, 1993, are a lengthy career as a teacher in the Camden County Vocational system during which he has apparently been an effective and well-liked instructor. Testimony from students who spoke of his positive attributes suggested that he is a teacher who can provide his students with much learning in an atmosphere that many students find quite appealing. But for this incident there would be no doubt that Mr. Sollenberger's continued presence as a teacher in the school would be a valuable asset to the community.

The record reveals that Mr. Sollenberger was once previously reprimanded, in 1982, involving an incident in which certain apparently racist remarks were made by students in his classroom to a person who had come into the class. Mr. Sollenberger was present when these comments were made, although he at the time denied hearing most, if not all, of the comments. The reprimand was based upon his asserted failure to stop the comments. Testimony revealed that shortly after this incident Mr. Sollenberger's hearing was tested and it was found that he had auditory nerve damage. Since that time he has worn hearing aids. While the reprimand sits in his file, and while it does constitute a form of discipline, there is nothing about the specifics of that incident that would suggest in any way that Mr. Sollenberger was actually engaging in racist activity or that he actually condoned it. While I cannot be certain whether he did or did not hear the comments made, I do not find that that incident in any way suggests that the penalty involved in the present case should be enhanced due to the existence of a previous discipline.

The parties have agreed to resolve this case based upon a settlement which suspends Mr. Sollenberger from employment without pay for a considerable period of time. This settlement properly recognizes the need for swift and strong action against any conduct which holds up individuals to embarrassment, humiliation and ridicule because of their religious, ethnic or cultural beliefs or background. Such conduct cannot be condoned. At the same time, the settlement recognizes that Mr. Sollenberger is, has been and there is no reason to believe will not continue to be a strong asset for his school district. He is an individual with a long history of educational achievement whose abilities and success with his students should not be easily discarded. The specifics of the incident involved, while most unfortunate and inappropriate, do not suggest that Mr. Sollenberger entered into this matter with any vicious intent, that he intended in any way to demean Sister B., her Moorish heritage, her status as an African-American, her heritage, etc. However, the effect of the comments, the manner in which he went about them, the confrontational nature, and the extremely improper conclusion of his comments all had the very effect which I have no doubt he never intended to cause. Mr. Sollenberger's initial motivation here was positive however, his manner of going about what he wanted to do was wholly wrong. For that he must pay a serious penalty, as a punishment for his conduct, as a warning to him about his future and as a message to all as to the necessity for extreme care and sensitivity when dealing with matters that touch upon peoples' beliefs, heritage, etc.

Based upon the incident involved, the background of this teacher, his sincere apology to the student and parents, his continued worth to the district, and the value of the message being sent by the punishment imposed, I FIND that the terms of the settlement entered into by the parties are appropriate. I will therefore approve the settlement, subject to the Commissioner's review.

For the reasons expressed, it is ORDERED that the parties shall comply with the terms and conditions of the settlement agreement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Association alleged Board provided counseling services to students through non-certificated personnel. Association contended respondent's contract with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey for crisis intervention therapists (CIT) was invalid because it interfered with the rights of guidance counselors and child study team members and was undertaken by certified employees of the district.

ALJ found petitioner failed to show that its members had been supplanted and that CIT functions had to be accomplished with certified school employees. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by petitioner with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to the School Laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was conducted on March 23 and 24, 1992, and March 1 and 2, 1993. The last brief was received on November 8, 1993, after which the record closed.

[1] Mr. Ferenczi began the case for respondent but could not continue for reasons of ill health; Mr. Stahl was then substituted as counsel.

The question presented is whether respondent's contract with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ) for crisis intervention therapists (CITs) is invalid because it interferes with the rights of guidance counselors and child study team (CST) members, and must be undertaken by certified employees of the district.

Petitioner presented a series of witnesses. Frank Petrucelli has been a guidance counselor at respondent's J.P. Stevens High School for twenty-five years. He testified generally that guidance counselors are available to advise students in areas of educational, vocational, social and personal planning. This includes assisting students with career choices, as well as identifying students with special needs and social and emotional problems. Students with specific problems receive counseling. Mr. Petrucelli testified that respondent's contract with UMDNJ for CITs commenced in 1985; since that time he no longer sees the students with "big problems." He defined this to include drug and alcohol abuse, suicide attempts, seriously disruptive or violent students, truants, problems of anorexia and bulimia, and neglected and physically abused students.

Mr. Petrucelli's testimony was presented in March 1992 and, at that point in the school year, two students in his caseload had been referred to a CIT; one was suffering from severe depression and the other was disruptive. Mr. Petrucelli is responsible for approximately 160 student files at any one time and this quantity did not change with the advent of CITs. He testified that students now tend to present more difficult problems than he faced in his early years as a guidance counselor. He offered that guidance counselors cannot really handle the clinical aspects of many of these problems and "can use all the help [they] can get."

Shirley Moss has been a school psychologist for twenty years. Prior to 1985 she was called in to advise students in crisis, but this changed with the advent of CITs. She described one incident a few years ago involving a suicide which occurred in the early morning; the news spread throughout the school as the day began. It was two hours before the CITs came on the scene and, in the meantime, she and her colleagues handled the matter by counseling and consoling students. When the CITs arrived they took charge and shunted the school staff aside. There was a second incident at the high school sometime later involving a suicide attempt. The CIT was not available to take the student to the hospital in her car. Ms. Moss had to do so at approximately 5:30 p.m.; she waited with the student until a relative arrived. Ms. Moss testified that her training includes crisis intervention.

Ms. Moss also testified in March 1992; at that point in the school year none of her cases had been serious enough to be seen by a CIT. Ms. Moss acknowledged that the crisis intervention program has been a benefit to the school, but she felt that the CST was better suited to perform this work because its members know the children and are committed to them and to the school.

Julian Hill is a school social worker who has been employed by respondent for twenty-three years. He is a member of a CST. Mr. Hill testified that he has counseled non-classified students and has worked in emergency situations. He indicated that for the past three years he has been worked exclusively with out-of-district placements and has not interacted with the CITs. As far as he knows the crisis intervention program has been a benefit to the students it serves.

Karl Ziegler has been employed at respondent's J.P. Stevens High School as a guidance counselor for twenty-two years. He counsels students on an individual and group basis. Prior to 1985 he was involved with students in crisis; now these students go directly to the CITs. Mr. Ziegler acknowledged that he has no clinical training. Before the advent of CITs, approximately 15 percent of his time was devoted to crisis intervention; 10 percent of his time is so spent now. He testified that he carries a caseload of approximately 220 students and this did not change with the advent of CITs. Mr. Ziegler testified that his primary function is education and that most of his time is spent advising students on college preparation and the like. Mr. Ziegler testified that there had been nine guidance counselors at J.P. Stevens High School and now there are only seven.

Respondent also presented a series of witnesses. Dr. Joseph Kreskey is superintendent of schools and has been employed by the district for thirty-eight years. In 1985 the guidance and pupil services functions were under his supervision. Dr. Kreskey testified that at that time he and his staff were concerned about teenage suicide and other difficult problems facing students. There was general agreement that more focused clinical counseling was necessary. Dr. Kreskey's conversations with the CST members and guidance counselors led him to conclude that they were fully occupied and could not devote substantial time to ongoing crisis intervention. During this period staff were identifying these types of problems, but, in the main, such students were referred out to UMDNJ and other agencies. That system presented problems because of scheduling and the stigma associated with going to a mental health clinic. Dr. Kreskey opened discussions with UMDNJ and together they concluded that these clinical services would reach the largest number of students in need if they were brought into the school. Dr. Kreskey testified that UMDNJ's ability to provide a large backup network in case of difficulty was also a factor in their selection. The level of services offered under the UMDNJ contract has continued to expand and presently there are five full-time CITs in the district: one in each high school, two for the four middle schools, and one for the elementary schools.

Dr. Kreskey testified that the CIT service is not mandated by the Department of Education, but it is nevertheless vital. The general workload for guidance counselors and CSTs has not changed as a result of the presence of CITs. Dr. Kreskey testified that the school psychologist and school social worker focus on educational problems, while CITs deal mainly with the clinical issues of the crisis. Dr. Kreskey also explained the reduction in the number of guidance counselors at J.P. Stevens High School. There had been nine counselors, but one acted as supervisor and that position was eliminated after it had been vacant for a few years. When another counselor retired a second position was eliminated. Dr. Kreskey testified that overall enrollment at J.P. Stevens has dropped from 1,850 to under 1,600 and the present complement of seven counselors is more in line with the ratio of students to counselors at the other high school in the district. Dr. Kreskey noted, however, that in 1985 there were five full-time CSTs in the district and now there are seven.

Carol J. Billow is a supervisory clinician employed by the UMDNJ, at its community mental health center (CMHC) in Piscataway. She supervises the CITs working in respondent's district. Ms. Billow testified that she hires people with a clinical background in psychology or social work and they participate in ongoing crisis intervention training. She coined the phrase crisis intervention therapist to distinguish her personnel from guidance counselors, school psychologists and other district employees. She testified that CITs do individual and group therapy on a daily basis with students. This is not what the members of the CST or the guidance counselors do.

Mary M. Ace is employed as a CIT by UMDNJ/CMHC in Piscataway and she is assigned to J.P. Stevens High School on a full-time basis. Her formal title is clinician III. Ms. Ace testified that her daily responsibilities involve evaluating adolescents and making appropriate dispositions. These students have a variety of serious problems like depression, family divorce, suicidal ideation, and the like. When a matter requires referral to a guidance counselor or to the CST she does so. Sometimes, when necessary, she refers students to an outside agency.

Frank Cangelosi is the principal of Edison High School and he is familiar with the CIT program as it operates in his school. Mr. Cangelosi has regular meetings with the CIT and concerned staff to discuss student problems. These meetings are often used to decide which students require the services of the CST, a guidance counselor, or the CIT. Mr. Cangelosi testified that the CITs have been effective because of the expertise they bring to these issues.

Edward Tetelman is director of the Office of Legal and Regulatory Affairs in the State Department of Human Services. He was called to testify about the New Jersey School Based Youth Services Program, which became operational in 1988. The program is intended to provide adolescents in difficulty with an opportunity to complete their education, and it involves crisis intervention, individual and family counseling, drug and alcohol abuse counseling, training and the like. It operates in a number of high schools throughout the State and, like respondent's CIT program, offers more intensive clinical counseling in and around school sites. When the program was being planned, Mr. Tetelman inquired orally of Leo Klagholz, then director of the Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification in the Department of Education, whether those providing such services needed to be certified. Director Klagholz responded preliminarily in a letter that no certification was necessary (R-5). No more formal ruling was sought. This is the substance of the record.

The decision to contract for services is generally a matter of managerial prerogative and is only limited where such action conflicts with specific rights established under the school law. In re IFPTE Local 195 v. State, 88 N.J. 393 (1982); Hunterdon Central High School Education Association v. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Educ., 1988 S.L.D. 2468, 2474 (May 4, 1988), aff'd No. A-5036-87T2 (App. Div. June 28, 1989). Thus, to prevail, petitioner must show that its members have been supplanted and that CIT functions must be accomplished with certified school employees. This has not been done. Petitioner's witnesses testified that they were involved in crisis intervention prior to the CIT contract in 1985, and not since. Yet, each continues to carry a full caseload and the nature of their work is unchanged. Mr. Zeigler thought that he spent about 5 percent less time now on crisis intervention than in the past. At most, only a few students out of the witnesses' caseloads were seeing a CIT. Dr. Kreskey, who was a credible witness, clarified this apparent inconsistency; school staff had been more involved in crisis intervention before 1985, but this consisted mainly of identifying students in need of counseling and referring them to an outside agency. The staff generally did not undertake ongoing therapy with such students; they did not have the time. Mr. Petrucelli was forthcoming when he testified that guidance counselors were not equipped to handle many of these problems. All of petitioner's witnesses acknowledged that the CITs are doing an important job well. Thus, I find that, in the main, crisis intervention in the form of ongoing psychological counseling was not being done by school staff prior to 1985. Matters that required this type of attention were generally referred out.

Petitioner's authorities are inapposite without a finding that the rights of existing staff have been infringed by outside contractors who do substantially similar work. In Cochran v. Watchung Hills Regional High School Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1878, full-time CST positions were reduced to half-time slots in a reduction in force (RIF). The State Board of Education found, however, that the half-time positions were then to be supplemented with outside contracts for work previously done by these CSTs. It held that the district had simply reorganized and transferred functions to a less-expensive provider, which violated tenure rights and the requirement that core CST functions be carried out by school employees. The State Board faced similar issues in Impey v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Shrewsbury, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (Vol. 4) 197, 203 (Education), aff'd, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d. (Vol. 4) 427 (Education). There, a full-time speech correctionist position was abolished pursuant to a RIF and the district approved a contract with an educational services commission to provide this service on a part-time basis for a lesser sum. This decision was sustained on review because, unlike Watchung Hills, the action was taken in good faith and there were no other restrictions on the school board's freedom of contract. In Hunterdon Central, supra, 1988 S.L.D. 2468, custodians were replaced when their work was contracted out. This too was approved by the State Board because the decision was made in good faith and, while tenure rights were extinguished, no rule required that this work be done by district employees.

In each of these cases, work that had been done by tenured staff was contracted out to their detriment. The State Board's decision in each case measured the good faith of the district and whether the law required that the work be accomplished with school employees. Collectively, these administrative decisions stand on footings announced in Viemeister v. Board of Educ. of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949). There, the position of principal was eliminated, the petitioner's contract was terminated and a new position of "teaching principal" was created and filled with a staff member. The court found that the work of a principal continued and that the district had merely shifted titles around, which, if sustained, would seriously undermine tenure rights.

The facts at bar are far from these examples. The existing staff has not been diminished at all. As indicated above, petitioner's witnesses did not even assert that their workload had been reduced or substantially changed. The closest petitioner came to the allegation that its members had been supplanted was in testimony that the number of guidance counselors at J.P. Stevens High School had been reduced from nine to seven in the last few years. Dr. Kreskey explained, however, that school enrollment at J.P. Stevens had dropped and that when positions became vacant they were eliminated to bring the student/guidance counselor ratio into line with Edison High School. The reduction had nothing to do with the CITs; indeed, there has been an increase in the number of CSTs in the district.

Petitioner also cites N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2, which requires teachers to be certified employees, and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1, which provides generally for the hiring and firing of personnel, for the proposition that the services being performed by CITs must instead be performed by staff members. These statutory sections are not specific to our situation and in the absence of a clear restriction or showing of bad faith, respondent is free to contract as it wishes. See N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has failed to establish that respondent supplanted any of its members and it is ORDERED that this petition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed a timely copy of its post-hearing brief as exceptions to the initial decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law that respondent's contract with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ) for crisis intervention therapists (CITs) is valid, there having been made no demonstration that said contract interferes with the rights of guidance counselors and child study team (CST) members or in any other way supplants any of the Association's members. In so finding, it bears emphasizing that the record demonstrates that the level of services to pupils with educational disabilities has not been diminished. The record further establishes that the CITs are not providing special education services that require specific certification pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)1.i or N.J.A.C.

6:28-1.1(f). See also R-5 in evidence. Finally, the testimony below supports a finding that the contractual arrangement herein provides valuable related services without infringing on the rights of certificated personnel. Petitioner's exceptions add nothing new to the record of this matter to persuade the Commissioner otherwise.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ below, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 2, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid (Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl (James E. Stahl, Esq., of Counsel)

On August 14, 1990, the Edison Township Education Association (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that a contract entered into by the Board of Education of the Township of Edison (hereinafter "Board") with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey ("UMDNJ") for crisis intervention therapists ("CIT") was invalid because it interfered with the rights of guidance counselors and child study team members. Petitioner maintained that the education laws required that the services being provided by the CIT's had to be provided by certified teaching staff members directly employed by the district board of education, and, therefore, that subcontracting for these services was prohibited.

On December 22, 1993, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended that the petition be dismissed. The ALJ stressed that the decision to contract for services was generally a matter of managerial prerogative, limited only where such action conflicted with specific rights conferred by the school laws. The ALJ found that crisis intervention in the form of ongoing psychological counseling had generally been referred out even prior to 1985, when the Board had first contracted with UMDNJ for such services. He determined that the CIT's had not supplanted any of petitioner's members and that the size of the staff directly employed by the Board had not diminished in number in relationship to the student population and the ratios at similar schools in the district. He observed that petitioner's witnesses had not suggested that their workload had been reduced or substantially changed in any way and rejected petitioner's contention that the services at issue had to be provided by certified teaching staff members.

In determining that the services being provided by the CIT's did not have to be provided by certified teaching staff members, the ALJ referred to a memorandum written on August 3, 1989, by Dr. Leo Klagholz, then Director of the Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification. The memorandum had been prepared in response to an inquiry from Edward Tetelman, then an assistant commissioner with the Department of Human Services, who had asked whether it was necessary for staff involved in the School Based Youth Services Program developed by DHS to be certified.[1] Exhibit R-5, in evidence. Dr. Klagholz had responded that if the services being provided by the School Based Youth Services Program were "noneducation" services outside the budget of the school, then the staff delivering those services would not be required to possess certification. He also indicated that it would not be necessary for them to be certified if project staff were performing functions that were essentially different from those associated with jobs regulated by the State Board of Education.

[1] We note that the New Jersey School Based Youth Services Program, which was developed by the Department of Human Services in 1988, is not at issue in this case. Nor does the record indicate the relationship, if any, between the Board herein and that program. The record indicates, however, that, like the School Based Youth Services Program, the UMDNJ program provides crisis intervention.

On March 2, 1994, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's findings and conclusions and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner agreed that petitioner had failed to show that the contract with UMDNJ had interfered with the rights of guidance counselors and child study team members or had in any way supplanted any of petitioner's members. The Commissioner also found specifically that:

> ...the CIT's are not providing special education services that require specific certification pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)1.i or N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f). See also R-5 in evidence.

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 11-12.

Petitioner has filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education, contending that the Board violated the education laws by unlawfully supplanting its guidance counselors, school social workers and psychologists with UMDNJ employees performing the counseling function of crisis intervention.

Initially, we can not avoid confronting the fact that one of the items in the record before the ALJ was a memorandum prepared by the current Commissioner of Education prior to his appointment. Nor can we ignore that the Commissioner's decision relied on that document in deciding one of the pivotal issues in this case.

R. 1:12-1 of the rules governing the courts of New Jersey provides in pertinent part that "[t]he judge of any court shall disqualify himself on his own motion and shall not sit in any matter, if he...(d) has given his opinion upon a matter in question in the action; or...(f) when there is any other reason which might preclude a fair and unbiased hearing and judgment, or which might reasonably lead counsel or the parties to believe so." There is no valid reason for the conduct of those acting in a quasi-judicial capacity to be governed by a lesser standard. Bd. of Ed. of Town of West Orange v. Intern. Union Eng., 109 N.J. Super. 116, 119 (App. Div. 1970).

As detailed above, Dr. Klagholz prepared the memorandum when he was Director of the Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification in response to an inquiry by an assistant commissioner in the Department of Human Services as to whether it was necessary for Human Services staff providing crisis intervention and related counseling services in high schools to possess certification issued by the Department of Education. The memorandum was not prepared for purposes of this litigation.[2] Nonetheless, the Board herein introduced the memorandum as evidence that it was not necessary that the CIT's it had contracted through UMDNJ be certified, and the ALJ's decision on the issue was made with reference to that evidence. In concurring with the ALJ's position, the Commissioner expressly cited that evidence, thereby indicating his reliance on it.

Given that he had authored this evidentiary exhibit, the prudent course would have been for the Commissioner to have recused himself from deciding this matter and instead to have designated an assistant commissioner to act in his place pursuant to N.J.S.A.

2 See, supra, n.1.

18A:4-33. However, an additional problem revealed by our review eliminates the necessity for us to evaluate whether this alone would invalidate the Commissioner's decision.

The record "certified" to us on behalf of the Commissioner[3] includes a memorandum dated January 27, 1994, from the Acting Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes to three officials within the Department of Education: the Acting Assistant Commissioner of the Division of Professional Development and Licensing, the Director of the Office of Special Education, and the Manager of the Office of Student Support Services. The Acting Director requested that those officials "review the attached initial decision" in this case and provide to her their "written comments on the issues presented" therein. The file includes the written responses of the Acting Assistant Commissioner of the Division of Professional Development and Licensing and the Director of the Office of Special Education. Bringing their expertise in their respective areas to bear on the Initial Decision, and having nothing from the record before them other than that decision, each official advised that the ALJ's recommended decision was correct. The Commissioner, incorporating specific language from these memoranda, adopted the Initial Decision.

The problem here lies not in the fact that the Commissioner relied on the opinions of personnel within our agency in deciding this case, but rather in the fact that the written materials setting forth those opinions were not properly made part of the record.

3 See N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.8, which specifies what is included in the record in a case appealed to the State Board and which requires the Commissioner to certify and remit the record to the State Board on notice of appeal.

Review of the case law leaves no question that the Commissioner could not consider such materials without divulging their substance and providing the parties with the opportunity to address them. As articulated by the Supreme Court of New Jersey in the context of administrative proceedings:

> The determination of the Commissioner [of Banking and Insurance] cannot be made to rest upon information outside the record in the case before him which the parties have not had the opportunity to meet. This principle of exclusiveness of the record was discussed in Mazza v. Cavicchia, 15 N.J. 498 (1954) and was held there to be established law in this state. We said in that case, 15 N.J., at page 514:
>
> "In any proceeding that is judicial in nature, whether in a court or in an administrative agency, the process of decision must be governed by the basic principle of the exclusiveness of the record. 'Where a hearing is prescribed by statute, nothing must be taken into account by the administrative tribunal in arriving at its determination that has not been introduced in some manner into the record of the hearing.' Benjamin, Administrative Adjudication in New York, 207 (1942). Unless this principle is observed, the right to a hearing itself becomes meaningless. Of what real worth is the right to present evidence and to argue its significance at a formal hearing, if the one who decides the case may stray at will from the record in reaching his decision? Or consult another's findings of fact, or conclusions of law, or recommendations, or even hold conferences with him?"
>
> Beyond question the use of expert knowledge gained by the Department is a desirable attribute of the administrative process, but it need not be applied in a manner which is unfair. By taking appropriate official notice of such material and making such facts part of the record and giving the parties fair opportunity to meet, explain or refute it, the Commissioner can satisfy the requirements of fairness and adequately protect the interest of all concerned.

Elizabeth Federal S.&L. Assn. v. Howell, 24 N.J. 488, 506-507 (1957).

"[I]t is a fundamental principle of all adjudication, judicial and administrative alike, that the mind of the decider should not be swayed by materials which are not communicated to both parties and which they are not given an opportunity to controvert." Mazza, supra, at 516. Accord, Winston v. Bd. of Ed. of So. Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131 (App. Div. 1973), aff'd, 64 N.J. 582 (1974) (to secure essential fair play and minimize the risk of fundamental error, parties were entitled to be furnished with and provided opportunity to address hearing officer's report to the Commissioner and law committee's report to the State Board).

Moreover, the Administrative Procedure Act, while authorizing the agency to take notice of generally recognized technical facts within the specialized knowledge of the agency, requires that the parties "shall be notified either before or during the hearing or by reference in preliminary reports or otherwise, of the material noticed, including any staff memoranda or data, and they shall be afforded an opportunity to contest the material so noticed." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(b).

The parties in this matter were given neither notice of the written opinions relied on by the Commissioner nor afforded the opportunity to respond to them. The magnitude of the impact of this failure on the administrative due process rights of the parties is highlighted by the fact that the opinions relied on were based solely on each official's review of the Initial Decision without the benefit of reviewing the factual record. We therefore set aside the decision of the Commissioner.

The State Board of Education is the ultimate administrative factfinder and decision maker in school matters. Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif.

den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990); Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982). Accordingly, we have undertaken an independent de novo review limited to those items properly included in the record of this case, including the transcripts of the hearings held in the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"). We find that the record was well developed during the proceedings in OAL and, based upon our review of the record, we conclude that we need not protract the proceedings in this matter by remanding it. The decision of a public employer to subcontract is a matter of managerial prerogative, In re IFPTE Local 195 v. State, 88 N.J. 393 (1982), and we find that petitioner has failed to establish that the contract at issue herein violated any provisions of the education laws and implementing regulations.

Like the ALJ, we find no evidence in the record that any staff members employed by the Board have been supplanted as a result of the Board's contract with UMDNJ. It is apparent from the record that much of the intervention work in the more serious situations arising in the district was referred to outside agencies even prior to the time when the district entered into the UMDNJ contract. In fact, a guidance counselor testifying for the petitioner noted that, in dealing with severe crises, "[w]e can use all the help we can get." Tr. 3/22/92, at 39. Further, there is no indication that the workloads of staff members in the district have been reduced or even significantly altered as a result of the contract. One of petitioner's witnesses estimated that he currently spends 10% of his time doing crisis intervention work, as compared to 15% before the Board contracted with UMDNJ. Tr. 3/1/93, at 35-38. Nor is there evidence that any positions have been eliminated by the Board as a result of contracting for the services provided by the CIT's.

We also find that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the functions performed by the CIT's in this particular case were of such character as to have required that they be performed by certified teaching staff members directly employed by the district board. As the ALJ concluded, neither statutory provision cited by petitioner provides support for such a conclusion. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 merely authorizes district boards of education to employ such officers and employees as it determines to be necessary and to fix their compensation and terms of employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2 does not prescribe who must be directly employed as teaching staff members, but rather provides that:

> No teaching staff member shall be employed in the public schools by any board of education unless he is the holder of a valid certificate to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction, or educational guidance of, or to render or administer, direct or supervise the rendering of nursing services to, pupils in such public schools and of such other certificate, if any, as may be required by law.

Whether or not the duties performed by individuals providing services in a school district are of such character as to require certification issued by the State Board of Examiners is determined by the rules that have been adopted by the State Board of Education. See, e.g., Rumson-Fair Haven Education Association and New Jersey Education Association v. Board of Education of the Rumson-Fair Haven Regional School District, decided by the State Board, August 5, 1987, aff'd, Docket #A-291-87T8 (App. Div. 1988). In this instance, petitioner has not demonstrated that any of the duties performed by the CIT's require certification as a guidance counselor, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.11, school social worker, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.8, or school psychologist, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.12. Nor does the record support petitioner's contention that certification as a substance awareness coordinator was required during the period relevant to this litigation in order to authorize an individual to perform the duties assigned to the CIT's.[4]

Finally, as the ALJ found, petitioner has failed to point to any provision in the education laws which would preclude the Board from contracting for the services at issue irrespective of whether the individual providing the service might be required to possess certification.

Accordingly, based on the evidentiary record before us and for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, as well as those expressed herein, we reject the petitioner's contention that the Board's contract for crisis intervention therapists with UMDNJ violated the education laws. We therefore dismiss the petition. We, however, remind the Board of its responsibility for assuring that the CIT's are properly certified if they are performing duties of such nature as to require that they possess appropriate certification in order to fulfill such functions.

Margaret M. Bennett abstained.

[4] We note that the petition herein was filed in August 1990. N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.5, which provides for certification as substance awareness coordinators, did not become effective until October 15, 1990. Furthermore, although the record indicates that as part of their responsibilities in the district, the CIT's acted as "substance abuse counselors," at least in terms of assessment and evaluation of students, tr. 3/2/92, at 68-72, 88-94, 102-106, we need not determine for purposes of this appeal whether they would now be required to possess certification as substance awareness coordinators. N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.5. Even if the duties of the CIT's were of such nature as to require that they now possess that endorsement in order to be authorized to perform these functions, there is no requirement in the education laws that substance abuse counselors must be directly employed by a district board.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF STEVEN LUDWIG, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY

Paul J. Giblin, Esq., for petitioner North Bergen School District (Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Victor P. Mullica, Esq., for respondent Steven Ludwig (Mullica & Mullica, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 17, 1993 Decided: January 27, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

The Board of Education of North Bergen (Board) certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against respondent, Steven Ludwig, under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Ludwig is a tenured teacher employed by the Board. By resolution adopted on March 17, 1993, the Board found probable cause to certify tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just causes which, if true, were sufficient to warrant Ludwig's dismissal or reduction in salary.

Count 1 alleges that during the summer of 1992, while assigned to teach summer school at North Bergen High School, Ludwig requested his students to maintain journals. Ludwig made sexually suggestive entries into the journals of R.P., a summer school student. As a result of his conduct, R.P. withdrew from the North Bergen school system. The Board submits that Ludwig's conduct and behavior evidences a complete disregard for Board procedure and applicable law, establishes a poor precedent for other teaching staff members, and constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher.

Count 2 alleges that Ludwig's "flirtatious conduct coupled with his unbecoming conduct and irregular behavior has impaired the expected educational process" of the students in his charge. Also, Ludwig has disrupted the orderly process of the schools to which he has been assigned. Specifically, when Ludwig was assigned to teach the HOPE (Helping Overaged Pupils Emerge) program at the high school, a new teacher had to be assigned to cover his eighth grade classes at the Mann Elementary School. While Ludwig was teaching the HOPE program, R.P. saw him in the hall at the high school and she became visible upset over his inappropriate behavior towards her during summer school. Ludwig was reassigned to his eighth grade classes. Consequently, the HOPE program was disbanded due to the instability caused by Ludwig's removal. Additionally, his eighth grade classes were disrupted due to the change in teachers.

On March 24, 1993, the Board filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). Ludwig filed an answer on April 29, 1993. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 5, 1993 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to the approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7093-81 (Feb. 17, 1982) Comm'r of Ed., (April 7, 1982), State Board (April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the board of education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest. (State Board at 5, 6)

On December 13, 1993, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue whether the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. The parties have submitted a written stipulation, dated September 2, 1993, setting forth the terms of the agreement. In addition, the record contains twenty-nine joint exhibits which are attached and fully incorporated in this decision.

Based on my review of the record and the testimonial evidence I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Steven Ludwig, age 39, has been employed as a teacher by the Board for seventeen years.

2. Ludwig's activities as an eighth grade teacher in the North Bergen school system were as follows:

> Organized field trips for the eighth grade to Washington, D.C., Boston, Philadelphia;
> Yearbook Moderator for 1990, 1991 and 1992;
> Student Council Moderator 1990 and 1991--took Student Council on field trips to West Point and Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island;
> Organized and moderated class polls for 1990, 1991, and 1992;
> Organized faculty basketball games to help raise money for Student Council;
> Organized talent show (1988) to help raise money for Student Council;
> Organized two dances per year (1986-1992) to help raise money for Student Council;
> Union vice president 1991, 1992, and 1993;
> Union building representative, 1988-1992.

3. Ludwig's teacher evaluations from 1977 to the present have been consistently good. Also, in the written comments Ludwig's teaching abilities were rated highly.

4. Ludwig has received numerous letters attesting to his professionalism as a teacher, and commendations attesting to his conscientiousness and dedication as an educator.

5. Ludwig has been awarded a Certificate of Recognition by the State of New Jersey, as Outstanding Teacher of the Year in the Governor's teacher recognition program, and he is listed in Who's Who Among America's Teachers 2nd Edition 1992, Volume 1.

6. Ludwig was examined by Nicholas A. Marchese, M.D., Director of Psychiatry, Saint Francis Community Health Center, Jersey City, New Jersey. Dr. Marchese practices in forensic and adult psychiatry. Dr. Marchese examined Ludwig on July 19 and 22, 1993 and concluded that "[w]ithin reasonable medical probability, it is my opinion that I cannot find any overwhelming evidence or symptomatologies that would cause Mr. Ludwig to be a source of risk or danger to anyone in the classroom." (J-1).

7. Ludwig categorically denies that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher regarding this student, R.P.

8. The Board is unable to locate R.P., and it does not believe that it can successfully substantiate the charges brought against Ludwig.

9. Before entering into this agreement, Ludwig had full opportunity to consult with legal counsel, who had explained the meaning of the settlement to him. Ludwig is aware that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any action which he may deem appropriate.

10. This settlement fully disposes of all issues and controversies.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of the settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms as they comport with the Cardonick standard for review of settlements in tenure matters and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846) The matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

The Commissioner notes, however, that the terms of the settlement appear to have been effectuated prior to the Commissioner's approval. He, therefore, reminds the parties that they acted at their peril in so doing and cautions them and other litigants, whose controverted matters have been duly transmitted to OAL, against effectuation of any settlement prior to its submission to, and approval by, the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JEFFERSON, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents of senior high school student (J.B.) alleged that Board's denial of their son's entry into National Honor Society (NHS) was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioners had previously challenged denial of J.B.'s entry in his junior year, which denial was affirmed by the Commissioner and the State Board.

ALJ dismissed petition as moot by virtue of J.B.'s graduation from high school. ALJ found no constitutional issues were raised and matter was of limited public concern. Moreover, ALJ determined to dismiss for mootness as matter was an improper subject for review for reasons of judicial economy and lack of "immediacy" of the controversy.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision emphasizing it was "too speculative" to assume that adding NHS membership to J.B.'s resume would have so significant an impact on his future educational or professional prospects as to warrant a full-scale hearing with its attendant judicial and administrative costs.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on August 10, 1993, following the filing in June 1993 of a petition of appeal by J. B. and N. B., guardians ad litem for their son, J. B , and by J. B. individually. In the appeal the parents alleged that their son had been denied membership in the National Honor Society Chapter at Jefferson Township High School in his senior year (1992-93), and that this was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Attached to their petition of appeal was a copy of a letter dated June 1, 1993, to petitioners' attorney from the law firm which previously served as counsel to the respondent. This advised that part of the Board's rationale had to do with the fact that in a recent decision by Administrative Law Judge Marylouise Lucchi-McCloud, a previous challenge made by the petitioners and their son regarding their son's nonselection for National Honor Society membership for the 1991-92 school year, when he was a junior, has been rejected. Indeed, the initial decision by Judge Lucchi-McCloud, which had been issued on April 5, 1993, was adopted by the Commissioner of Education on May 17, 1993. See, J. B. and N. B., as Guardians Ad Litem of J. B., and J. B., Individually v. Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson, Morris County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 2385-92, decided April 5, 1993, affirmed by the Commissioner May 17, 1993. On October 6, 1993, after the instant case was transmitted to OAL, the Commissioner's decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education, SB Docket # 33-93.

In early August 1993, when the Jefferson Township Board of Education (Board) filed its answer to the petition of appeal, one of its separate defenses set forth that the petitioners were collaterally estopped from "re-litigating the within claim." Thus, the Board reserved the right to file an appropriate motion in respect to that defense. On September 30, 1993, the undersigned conducted a telephone prehearing conference and paragraph 1B(3) of the prehearing order identified one of the issues to be: "Is the petition moot since petitioner graduated from high school in June 1993?" Thus, paragraph 13 of the prehearing order specifically provided the Board with an opportunity prior to December 15, 1993, to file a motion to dismiss the petition based upon any of its separate defenses. Pursuant to that opportunity the Board moved for dismissal, a memorandum in opposition was filed on behalf of petitioners and a reply memorandum has been received from the Board. For the reasons set forth below I have determined to grant the Board's motion to dismiss upon the ground that the petition of appeal has been rendered moot by virtue of J. B.'s graduation from Jefferson Township High School in June 1993.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The limited number of facts essential to a determination with respect to the motion to dismiss for mootness are not in dispute. Specifically, during the 1991-92 school year, J. B. was a junior at Jefferson Township High School and applied for membership in the National Honor Society. A selection committee reviewed his application and determined by a vote of five against and none in favor to deny membership to him. That determination was appealed to the Commissioner of Education, who referred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case in April 1992. Hearings were conducted in September 1992, and following her receipt of posthearing memoranda, Judge Lucchi-McCloud reviewed the facts (both disputed and undisputed), and on April 5, 1993 issued her initial decision wherein she determined that the actions of the Board and its selection committee with respect to J. B.'s application for National Honor Society membership in 1991-92 were neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable. Accordingly, finding that the petition of appeal failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted, she ordered that it be dismissed. As noted, her decision subsequently was adopted by the Commissioner of Education and now has been affirmed by the State Board of Education.

During the 1992-93 school year J. B. was a senior at Jefferson Township High while his prior appeal was pending. He again submitted an application for membership in the National Honor Society and following review of his application by a selection committee (not the same one which acted during his junior year) it was rejected. J. B. graduated from Jefferson Township High School at the conclusion of the 1992-93 school year and is a first year undergraduate student at the University of Pennsylvania.

DISCUSSION

The first point raised by the Board in connection with its motion to dismiss is that the appeal is "moot." As noted, I agree. What I believe to be persuasive authority for my determination is the decision in Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, 68 N.J. 301 (1975). In that case the petitioners had challenged the constitutional validity of a regulation promulgated by Columbia High School in South Orange/Maplewood dealing with limitations on the distribution of student literature. A challenge to the regulation by several students was rejected by the Commissioner of Education and his decision thereafter was affirmed both by the State Board of Education and the Appellate Division. The New Jersey Supreme Court granted certification because a substantial constitutional issue was raised. However, in a short per curiam affirmance, the majority determined that since the original petitioners were no longer students at Columbia High School, therefore they were no longer subject to the regulation, and the case was "indeed moot." See, Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, supra, 68 N.J. at 303. In reaching that result the Supreme Court rejected a claim that nevertheless it should entertain jurisdiction because of the nature of the constitutional issue involved, noting that despite the First Amendment's implication in the case it did not view the dispute as presenting an issue of great public importance compelling "definitive resolution." Ibid. In a dissent, two justices maintained that since the parties themselves chose not to pursue the mootness issue before the Supreme Court, despite a "clear signal" to do so from the Appellate Division, and since there was broad public interest with respect to prior restraints, the court should have dealt with such a vital issue of basic constitutional concern. Id. at 305.

In my view, the facts of the instant case present a substantially less compelling argument for consideration than even was present in the Oxfeld case. First, there are no constitutional issues raised or implicated in any substantial way in this case. Moreover, whether or not the particular selection process used by the Jefferson Township Board of Education in J. B.'s case is in accordance with appropriate standards, or was applied in a reasonable manner, clearly is of limited "public" concern at best. To require the parties, the Office of Administrative Law and the educational authorities on review to devote their time and resources in such a circumstance is distinctly inappropriate. Indeed, the Oxfeld appeal was held to be moot even though the challenged regulation remained in existence at Columbia High School and other students who had not yet graduated remained subject to it.

Petitioners argue that the matter should not be dismissed as moot because J. B. can still obtain meaningful relief even though he now attends college, whereas the petitioners in the Oxfeld case could not. Thus, they point out that "potentially" it is important for J. B. to be able in the future to list on his resume or curriculum vitae any honors which he received, including membership in the National Honor Society

While I can appreciate petitioners' abiding and continuing interest in J. B.'s wanting to obtain admission to the National Honor Society, I still believe that the Oxfeld decision dictates a dismissal on the grounds of mootness. Again, the issue obviously is not one of great public importance and whether J. B. might prevail ultimately on the merits following a plenary hearing does not, in my view, require that such an opportunity be given to him even though he now is a first year student at college. It simply is too speculative to assume that adding National Honor Society membership to J. B.'s resume will have any meaningful future impact on his educational or professional career and on that slim basis proceed to a full-scale plenary hearing with the attendant financial and other resource burdens mentioned above.

Furthermore, as noted in the decision in Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J. Super. 432 (Ch. Div. 1976), questions that have become moot prior to judicial scrutiny generally have been held to be an improper subject for review on two grounds: (a) for reasons of judicial economy and restraint courts do not decide issues which are hypothetical or where a judgment cannot grant effective relief; or (b) where there is a "change in circumstances so that a doubt is created concerning the immediacy of the controversy." Anderson v. Sills, supra, at 437. Clearly, in the instant case J. B.'s graduation from Jefferson Township High School in June 1993 constitutes a major "change in circumstances" and in light of the purely speculative potential value of inclusion of National Honor Society Membership on his resume or curriculum vitae, there is no "immediacy" which must be addressed.

Having determined that the petition of appeal may be dismissed on the ground of mootness, it is not necessary for me to address the additional arguments raised by respondent in its motion for dismissal--res judicata and/or collateral estoppel. Suffice it to say, however, that the the reasons set for by petitioners in opposition to dismissal on those grounds are substantial ones, especially in light of the disputed fact allegations which surround those issues.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that in light of the undisputed facts the instant petition of appeal is moot and it is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JEFFERSON, MORRIS COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law (ALJ) have been reviewed. Petitioners filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board duly submitted a reply thereto.

Petitioners' exceptions first distinguish the facts in Oxfeld, supra, from the instant matter. They disagree with the ALJ's declaring the instant petition moot because they believe that contrary to the facts in Oxfeld, the Board's decision in denying J.B. National Honor Society (NHS) membership and the reasons for that denial do not represent a fleeting experience that dissolves because J.B. in now graduated from high school. Rather, they claim the Board's decision represents a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity that has been tainted by an unfair process. Petitioners aver that a procedural dismissal would permit the NHS or any school committee practicing discriminatory practices insulation from liability merely because a petitioner no longer has a physical nexus to the school.

Petitioners also except to the ALJ's conclusion finding no constitutional issue implicated in this case, claiming that parents have constitutional rights under the 14th Amendment, where due process rights are construed to concern the rearing and education of their children. They further disagree with the ALJ that this matter is of limited concern to the public interest, instead arguing that parents' rights and school accountability are issues of great public concern. Finally, petitioners except to the ALJ's finding that it is too speculative to assume that adding NHS membership to J.B.'s resume will have any meaningful future impact on his educational or professional career, contending that if J.B. prevails on the merits he will have earned the right to bear the NHS distinction.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the findings and conclusion of the Office of Administrative Law.

The Commissioner would concur with petitioners that Oxfeld, supra, is distinguishable from the instant matter, in that the petitioners therein were found to be no longer affected by rules to which they were no longer subject and petitioner J.B. herein claims direct and lasting personal consequences as a result of the Board actions in dispute. The fact remains, however, as found by the ALJ, that on the present record it is simply too speculative to assume that adding NHS membership to J.B.'s resume would have so significant an impact on his future educational or professional prospects as to warrant a full-scale hearing with all of its attendant judicial and administrative costs.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision and herein, the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 7, 1994

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Schachter, Trombadore, Offen, Stanton & Pavics (Richard J. Schachter, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff (Robert M. Tosti, Esq., of Counsel)

Petitioners, J.B., a student at Jefferson Township High School, and his parents, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the refusal by the Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson (hereinafter "Board") to provide reasons for denying J.B. membership in the National Honor Society ("NHS") during the 1992-93 school year.[1] J.B. was a senior during 1992-93 and graduated at the end of that school year.

1 We note that the prehearing order in this case included as an issue whether the reasons for rejecting petitioner's application were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

We note further that petitioners had previously challenged the Board's action in denying J.B. membership in the National Honor Society during the 1991-92 school year. Such petition was dismissed by the Commissioner in a decision subsequently affirmed by the State Board. Petitioners' appeal of the State Board's decision is currently pending before the Appellate Division. See J.B. and N.B., as Guardians Ad Litem of J.B., and J.B., Individually v. Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson, decided by the Commissioner, May 17, 1993, aff'd by the State Board, October 6, 1993, appeal pending (App. Div.).

Nov. 2 1994

On January 27, 1994, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissal of the petition as moot, citing Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, 68 N.J. 301 (1975). In view of J.B.'s graduation, the ALJ concluded that it "simply is too speculative to assume that adding National Honor Society membership to J.B.'s resume will have any meaningful future impact on his educational or professional career and on that slim basis proceed to a full-scale plenary hearing with the attendant financial and other resource burdens..." Initial Decision, slip op at 5.

On May 7, 1994, the Commissioner of Education adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner, while concurring with the petitioners that Oxfeld, supra, was distinguishable from this matter in that petitioners herein claimed direct and lasting personal consequences as a result of the Board's action, agreed with the ALJ that the impact on J.B. was too speculative to warrant a full-scale hearing with its attendant judicial and administrative costs.

Petitioners have filed the instant appeal to the State Board, arguing that the Commissioner erred in dismissing their petition as moot.

We agree. The wrong alleged herein is one capable of repetition yet evading review. See Cain v. New Jersey State Parole Board, 78 N.J. 253, 255 (1978); State v. Allen, 73 N.J. 132, 138-39 (1977). The decision by the Board to uphold the denial of NHS membership to J.B. for the 1992-93 school year occurred in April 1993, and the instant petition was filed in June 1993. Dismissing such petition as moot effectively denies administrative review to students rejected for NHS membership during their senior year.

Consequently, we conclude that the instant petition should not be treated as moot and dismissed. We therefore reverse the Commissioner's decision and remand this matter to him for further proceedings on the merits of petitioners' claims.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

Petitioner, unsuccessful bidder, challenged award of bid for new light fixtures and ceilings to respondent bidder. Board contended petitioner failed to submit additional qualification statements required under specifications.

ALJ found that a board may require information beyond the qualification affidavit mandated by the Division of Building Construction in the Department of Treasury. Moreover, ALJ determined that petitioner did not challenge the specifications before the sealed bids were opened; therefore, petitioner could not challenge the specifications after the opening of bids. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD,

Richard K. Sacks, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: December 16, 1993 Decided: January 31, 1994

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Michael T. Gavan, Inc., petitioner, challenged a contract awarded by the Lakewood Board of Education, respondent, to Tri-Plex Industries on or about June 28, 1993.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by filing of a petition of appeal, including a prayer for emergent relief and stay of Board action, on July 1, 1993. On July 2, 1993, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. Oral argument on the motion for emergent relief was heard on July 7, 1993, at the Office of Administrative Law facility in Mercerville (Trenton). On July 8, 1993, an order issued denying the motion for emergent relief and stay of Board action and giving the reasons therefor. That order also directed the matter to proceed to plenary hearing. However, the parties agreed there are no essential facts in dispute and the matter now proceeds on briefs. Gavan seeks a determination of the statutory scope of authority a Board of Education has under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27 and N.J.A.C. 6:20-7.2 to require, independently, additional qualification information from a bidder beyond the qualification affidavit mandated by the Division of Building Construction in the Department of Treasury (DBC).

ARGUMENTS

Petitioner's Arguments

Gavin asserts that local board of education bid requirements that a bidder submit qualification statements in addition to statutorily required DBC qualification affidavits are improper and conflict with the Public School Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 through -59. Public policy considerations require that a local board's consideration of a bidder's qualifications to perform project work should be limited to the statutorily mandated DBC qualification affidavit.

The authority to qualify perspective bidders for board of education construction projects has been delegated to DBC. The affidavit required by DBC assures local boards that contractors bidding on a project are qualified to do the work and are responsible contractors. These determinations are objectively made by the DBC. A board cannot accept a bid without a DBC qualification affidavit attached.

A district board requirement that additional information must be provided by a bidder, such as AIA form A305, violates the intent and plain meaning of the statutes and codes governing the public schools bidding process. The statutes and codes do not provide for a board's independent and additional subjective review and determination of a bidder's qualification.

A board's review of qualification information in addition to DBC affidavits also violates and threatens the public policy goals of the public bidding process and laws. The ability of a district board to review additional qualification information and to pass judgment independently on a contractor's qualifications, despite the DBC having concluded same, undermines the objective standard of bidder review that is established and protected by the Public Schools Contract Law. A local board's ability to review a bidder's qualifications raises the spectre and perception of potential favoritism, corruption and an unbalancing of the bidding process.

Respondent's Arguments

The Board argues that a board of education is not foreclosed from requiring information concerning qualification and financial condition in bids solicited under the Public Schools Contract Law. Further, the petitioner is barred from contesting the requirements of the specifications.

A board of education is under the legal obligation to award contracts that require public bidding to the lowest responsible bidder. Responsibility must be determined by the local board and, in considering and judging the responsibility, a board may examine experience, financial ability, required and available facilities, and moral integrity. To do this, a board must be able to request information that reasonably assists it in making a fair decision. The right to require additional information, even where prior State level qualification and classifications have been obtained, has been recognized by New Jersey courts. The requirements for classification enumerated at N.J.S.A. 18A:18-26 are intended to be minimum requirements. They are not to be construed as limiting a board's right to inquire further into responsibility.

It is settled in New Jersey that an unsuccessful bidder cannot challenge specifications once sealed bids have been opened publicly. The petitioner here did not object to the requirements for a financial statement before the sealed bids were opened. As a result, the petitioner cannot now challenge the specifications.

DETERMINATION

In early 1993, the Lakewood Board of Education solicited bids for new light fixtures and ceilings to be installed in several school buildings. The bidding documents included a requirement that each bidder submit AIA form A305, Contractor Qualification Statement. The document was required in addition to a prequalification-classification statement issued by DBC.

The petitioner did not include the AIA document in its sealed bid package. The Board decided that Gavan's bid was not responsive and incomplete. Gavan's bid was not considered. Gavin did not object to the requirements contained in the bid specifications until after the bids were opened.

Gavin moved for emergent relief and stay of board action. The procedural history and outcome of that action are recited above.

This tribunal is now asked to consider whether a local board exceeds the authority granted it by statute and code when it requires additional qualification information beyond the mandated DBC qualification document. For the reasons that follow, the tribunal determines that a board may require information beyond the mere fact of DBC qualification.

The ability to perform the work is the essence of any contract for public work. Bil Jim Const. Co., Inc. v. Manchester Bd. of Ed., 236 N.J. Super. 603 (Law Div. 1989); Donald F. Begraft, Inc. v. Franklin Bd. of Ed., 133 N.J. Super. 415 (App. Div. 1975).

As Judge Serpentelli observes in Bil Jim, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-26 imposes the requirement that all bidders be prequalified to perform the work involved in the contract. The prequalification protects a vital and ligitimate public interest as well as protects the bidders' interest.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27(d), the State Board of Education delegated the classification function to the Department of the Treasury in 1979. The purpose of the bidding laws is to protect the public by placing bidders on an equal footing and insuring that competition eliminates the possibility of fraud, extravagance or favoritism in the expenditure of public moneys. Skakel v. North Bergen Tp., 37 N.J. 369 (1962). Bidders are induced to participate in the bidding process by the promise of impartiality.

The statutory scheme requires that the Board accept bids only from bidders who have the appropriate qualification certificate. A challenge to the Board's prequalification requirements must show that they are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Bil Jim, 236 N.J. Super. at 607.

N.J.A.C. 6:20-7.2 provides > Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27, the authority to qualify bidders for district board of education contracting for Department of Education contracting is delegated to the Department of Treasury. Such action is to be governed by rules adopted by the Department of Treasury for this purpose.

Gavin insists that no other qualification statement or form is contemplated or required by statute or code. I cannot read the statute or the regulation as so limiting. Apparently, the Superior Court similarly concluded in Albert F. Ruehl Co. v. Bd. of Trustees, Industrial Ed., 85 N.J. Super. 4 (Law Div. 1964). The court held that a plumbing contractor, by failure to submit a financial statement called for in the bidding specifications on a school construction project, lost the right to be classed as a bidder. Its bid was properly rejected and the contract awarded to the lowest bidder who had complied with the instructions to bidders, even if the plumbing contractor had received a classification by the State Department of Education. At the time Ruehl was decided, the State Board of Education established the regulations for prequalification of bidders pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27. In 1979, the State Board of Education exercised the option given in the statute and delegated to the Department of Treasury the authority to qualify bidders subject to the Public School Contracts Law.

In either situation, however, the court has endorsed a local board's right to require information beyond that provided by the DBC certificate.

Gavan argues the information requested on the AIA form A305 duplicates much of the information that a contractor must submit to the DBC for qualification and classification. Therefore, it lends no material facts to a school board's evaluation of a contractor's qualifications. Again, I cannot agree. The AIA form A305 does require information beyond that which may be inferred from a DBC certificate and, importantly, it provides more recent financial data than may underlie the DBC.

Gavan also deems the AIA form A305 requirement as introducing an improper and subjective measure into the process of evaluating a bidder. The DBC qualification affidavit provides for objectivity while the AIA form A 305 undermines it.

This, simply, is a non sequitur. The data on the AIA form A305 are objective. They add objective information for the board's consideration. It is difficult to see how data -- concededly more extensive -- similar to that provided the DBC can be subjective at the same time the DBC's certification is objective.

Last, Gavan asserts it submitted a bid on another public project, the bid also requested submission of a DBC qualification affidavit and an AIA form A305, Gavan did not submit the AIA form A305 with its low bid and did submit its DBC qualification affidavit. Gavan was awarded the contract upon is post-bid submission of the AIA form A305. Gavan submitted the form, under protest. Gavan was not permitted to do so in the present case.

This seems a bit like arguing that two wrongs make a right. The other matter is beyond the scope of this tribunal's review. This decision must determine whether the bidding requirements in this case were improper.

Having considered and rejected each of the petitioner's arguments, the matter can be decided. However, the Board makes an important argument and an instructive one. In Saturn Constr. Co. v. Middlesex County Freeholders, 181 N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1981), the court made it quite clear that an unsuccessful bidder cannot challenge the specifications after the opening of bids. Citing Camden Plaza Parking v. Camden, 16 N.J. 150 (1954); Waszen v. Atlantic City, 1 N.J. 272 (1949) and James Petrozello Co., Inc. v. Chatam Tp., 75 N.J. Super. 173 (App. Div. 1962), the court stated Saturn did not have standing to challenge the specifications. Inasmuch as it is undisputed that Gavan did not challenge the specifications before the sealed bids were opened, it cannot now challenge the specifications.

For the foregoing reasons, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, including the exceptions advanced by petitioner, the Commissioner determines that such exceptions essentially recast and reargue issues which were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in his initial decision and need not be herein reiterated. The Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal and adopts it as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner contended that Board's action terminating her employment as Superintendent of Schools was invalid because two Board members were serving illegally.

ALJ determined Board acted within the scope of its powers, legally and contractually, when it voted upon the termination of petitioner's contract of employment. ALJ found that the two Board members in question were de facto Board members because they held office under color of a known election or appointment and their ineligibility was unknown to the public at the time they were seated. ALJ further concluded that there was no reason to make a determination as to whether petitioner's other claims were time-barred since she was entitled to no relief on the merits. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision concurring with the ALJ that petitioner cannot prevail on the merits of her claim as a matter of law.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7711-93
AGENCY DKT. NO. 255-7/93

MAXINE J. PIJEAUX,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

James P. Granello, Esq., for petitioner

Raymond L. Hamlin, Esq., for respondent (Ashley and Charles, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 6, 1994 Decided: January 21, 1994

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On July 6, 1993, petitioner, Maxine J. Pijeaux, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking back pay and other relief on the grounds that the respondent, Orange Board of Education (Board), did not validly terminate her contract of employment because two of the Board members were serving illegally at the time the action was taken.

Respondent filed its answer on August 3, 1993 and on August 13, 1993, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

At a telephone conference with the parties, held on October 21, 1993, it was determined by the undersigned that respondent's proposed motion for summary decision should be made at the earliest possible time and further proceedings in the matter were delayed pending decision on the motion.

The Board's motion was filed on November 3, 1993. Petitioner's response was due on November 18, 1993, with the record, for purposes of the motion, to close on November 24, 1993. On November 15, 1993, petitioner requested an extension of time to respond, pending discovery of the Board's procedures. Petitioner filed a cross motion for summary decision on December 1, 1993. When no response was received for either motion by January 6, 1994, the record was closed without further communication to or from the parties.

I FIND that, other than the facts set forth below, no further facts are necessary in order to render summary decision in this matter. Therefore, I FIND that there was no reason to further extend petitioner's time to respond so that she might make further discovery.

REVIEW OF UNDISPUTED FACTS

Pijeaux was employed by the Board as its superintendent of schools pursuant to a contract of employment. A provision of the contract allowed either party to terminate the agreement unilaterally upon ninety days notice.

The employment contract in question ran from January 1, 1990 to December 31, 1992 "unless earlier terminated." On June 9, 1992, the Board voted to terminate the agreement pursuant to its terms.

On November 20, 1992, Pijeaux filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to recover payment for her unused sick days and vacation days. She raised no question about the validity of the Board's action to terminate her contract. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case and was assigned to James A. Ospenson, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), for hearing under the OAL DKT. EDU 9852-92, agency docket 501-11/92.

On or about February 25, 1993, petitioner learned from a newspaper article that two of the Board members, Roland Sanon and Luz Cantor, who had voted to terminate her contract, were not registered voters in Essex County and Sanon was not a citizen of the United States. This made them ineligible to serve on the Board and both submitted their resignations at about this time. Six of the seven Board members present voted on the resolution to terminate petitioner's contract.

On March 17, 1993, Pijeaux moved to amend her petition to allege that the Board's action was invalid because two of the Board members who voted on the resolution were ineligible to serve at the time they voted. She sought back pay for the period beginning with the date her contract was terminated through December 31, 1992, the date it would have ended in accord with its terms.

Respondent moved to dismiss the petition on the grounds that the issues of unused sick time and vacation time were purely contractual and not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education. It also opposed petitioner's motion to amend her complaint.

In his Decision on Motion, dated May 3, 1993, Judge Ospenson dismissed the matter on the grounds that the petition only alleged breaches of contract, not education, law, and therefore, the Commissioner of Education lacked the jurisdiction to decide the issues raised. Petitioner's motion to amend her petition was dismissed without prejudice, since the Commissioner had not been given the opportunity to determine whether a contested case existed as to the new issues.

The Commissioner affirmed Judge Ospenson's decision on June 17, 1993. She agreed, at page 9, that "petitioner's claims regarding the validity of the Board's vote to terminate should more properly be brought to the Commissioner as a new cause of action" rather than as an amendment to the existing petition. She specifically declined to make a finding as to the timeliness of filing those claims, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and she cautioned "against construing her decision above as an automatic waiver of filing deadline should petitioner be found to have filed out of time."

Pijeaux's present complaint, alleging the invalid Board action, was filed on July 6, 1993.

THE MOTIONS OF THE PARTIES

The Board moved for summary decision on the grounds that the present petition was not filed in a timely manner, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and that the acts of the de facto Board members with respect to Pijeaux are not subject to challenge if performed validly within the scope of the authority of their positions.

Petitioner made a cross-motion for summary decision on the grounds that she brought her petition promptly upon learning of the illegal service of the two Board members and, in additon, that the Board's termination of her contract and its refusal to award her a six and one-half percent increase in salary were invalid acts because of the participation of the two illegal members. She also raised the issue of an alleged breach of her employment contract by the Board when it failed to give her the minimum five percent increase in salary in 1992 which was called for by her contract. Both of the issues involving the Board's failure to increase Pijeaux's salary were apparently raised for the first time in this motion. Neither appears in her prior petition nor in her petition filed on July 6, 1993.

THE VALIDITY OF THE BOARD'S ACTION

Petitioner argues that the presence on the Board of two members who were not legally able to serve invalidates all Board actions upon which these Board members voted. This is contrary to long-established law.

Petitioner's position rests upon a flawed definition of a de facto office holder. In Jersey City v. Dep't of Civil Service, 57 N.J. Super. 13, 27 (App. Div. 1959), the court sets out the following comprehensive definition of a de facto officer:

> An officer de facto is one whose acts, though not those of a lawful officer, the law, upon principles of policy and justice, will hold valid so far as they involve the interests of the public and third persons, where the duties of the office were exercised.
>
> First, without a known appointment or election, but under such circumstances of reputation or acquiescence as were calculated to induce people, without inquiry, to submit to or invoke his action, supposing him to be the officer he assumed to be.
>
> Second, under color of a known and valid appointment or election, but where the officer had failed to conform to some precedent requirement or condition, as to take an oath, give a bond, or the like.
>
> Third, under color of a known election or appointment, void because the officer was not eligible, or because there was a want of power in the electing or appointing body, or by reason of some defect or irregularity in its exercise, such ineligibility, want of power, or defect being unknown to the public.

> Fourth, under color of an election or appointment by or pursuant to a public unconstitutional law, before the same is adjudged to be such. (38 Conn., at 471-4720)

From this definition, it can be seen that it is irrelevant that neither Cantor nor Sanon were legally eligible to be elected or approved to the Board. I FIND that they are de facto board members because they held office under color of a known election or appointment and their ineligibility was unknown to the public at the time they were seated. I further FIND that it is not relevant to their status as de facto Board members whether they, or any other members of the Board, failed to take the oath of office.

The Board which ordered the termination of Pijeaux's contract was the de facto board of education.

> Its members had certainly a color of title, and their actual incumbency was complete. . . . Under these circumstances the acts of the board, in which third persons are interested, cannot be impugned on the ground that the title of the members is defective.

This is still the law. In his decision of May 3, 1993, OAL Dkt. EDU 9852-92, at page 4, Judge Ospenson quoted the following from Monsees v. Bd. of Ed. of Bloomingdale, 1982 S.L.D. 1409-10:

> A de facto school officer is one who has entered into possession of a school office and assumed to exercise the functions thereof by virtue of an apparent election or appointment that is illegal of irregular. 78 Corpus Juris Secundum, 133, p.876. . . . It is well-established that the acts of a de facto officer are valid and may not be challenged and set aside on the grounds that he did not hold title de jure. The acts of a de facto school officer, which a de jure officer would be authorized to do, are, if performed in the prescribed manner, as valid and binding on the public and third persons as the acts of de jure officers, and authority to act cannot be questioned collaterally. This is true even though the acts are performed pending a contest or quo warranto proceeding that subsequently terminates in the ouster of the de facto officer from office. 78 C.J.S. 133, p. 877. See also, Oliver v. Jersey City, N.J.L. 634, 636-43 (E. & A. 1899). There can be no question, therefore, that, in general the acts in which [the member] participated while he occupied a seat on the Board, were validly performed and are not subject to challenge by reason of the fact that he was de facto and not de jure. . .

Judge Ospenson added that, "Only as against a successor in office to a de facto board member is it said illegal tenure is invalid from inception. Cf.,Visotcky v. City Council of City of Garfield, 113 N.J. Super. 263, 267 (App. Div. 1971)."

The cases cited by petitioner, particularly Visotcky, supra, do not support her contention that acts of de facto boards members are void since these cases concern challenges to the service, rather than to the acts, of board members.

The Board was acting within the scope of its powers, legally and contractually, when it voted upon the termination of Pijeaux's contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1. The vote was taken at a meeting where six of the seven members of the Board were present. Five of the six voted to terminate the agreement. The petitioner has raised no question that her termination was arbitrary or capricious.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis to invalidate the resolution of the Board, dated June 9, 1992, which terminated Pijeaux's contract of employment. For the same reasons, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis to invalidate the Board resolution denying Pijeaux a six and one-half percent increase in salary.

THE TIMELINESS OF THE PETITION

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), referred to as the "90-day rule," provides as follows:

> (c) The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

Respondent states that Pijeaux first raised the issues concerning the allegedly invalid acts of the Board in March 1993, approximately nine months after the Board resolved to terminate her contract. She did not file the present petition until July 6, 1993, four months after her motion to amend her prior petition to add these issues was denied by Judge Ospenson on May 3, 1993, and after the initial decision was affirmed by the Commissioner on June 17, 1993. Respondent argues that operation of the 90-day rule was tolled neither by Pijeaux's lack of knowledge of the invalid service of two Board members until February 1993 nor by her unsuccessful attempt to amend her pleading in March 1993. Therefore, the Board asserts, her petition was not filed until about thirteen months after the date of the Board action and is barred by operation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner's two issues related to Board action or lack of action with respect to her salary are clearly barred by the ninety-day rule; they were never raised until December 1993, far more than ninety days after the Board's action. They were not even raised until ten months after she learned about the illegal service of two board members in February 1993 and five months after she filed the second petition in this matter in July 1993.

I CONCLUDE that there is no reason to make a determination as to whether petitioner's other claims are time-barred since, in any case, she is entitled to no relief on the merits; there is no basis for her challenge to the action of the Board terminating her contract.

CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to summary decision, dismissing Pijeaux's complaint because, on the basis of the undisputed facts, she is entitled to no relief as a matter of law. For the same reason, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to summary decision.

Consequently, it is ORDERED that petitioner's motion for summary decision is hereby DENIED. It is further ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED and the petition of Maxine J. Pijeaux is DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DOCKET NO. 300-8/93

STIPULATION OF WITHDRAWAL

This matter having come before the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to the filing of tenure charges against the Respondent on August 12, 1993; and,

Whereas the Toms River Regional School District has determined to withdraw the aforementioned charges based upon a resolution of the controversy as set forth herein and demonstrated same by the adoption of a resolution in connection therewith, the parties do hereto, through their counsel, execute the following Stipulation and request that the charges be withdrawn by the Office of Administrative Law as a result of the following findings:

1. The tenure charges preferred against Respondent, Michael Baldi, consist of a single count which includes a singular charge that he pled guilty to possession of under 50 grams of marijuana. The offense to which the Respondent pled was a disorderly persons offense which is a petty offense, not a crime within the meaning of the New Jersey Constitution and as such, a conviction for said offense does not give rise to any disability or legal disadvantage based upon the conviction of a crime. N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4. In accordance therewith, the State affirmatively agreed at the time of the guilty plea not to seek a forfeiture of respondent's teaching certificate.

2. The Respondent was employed as a licensed and certificated educator in the Toms River School System beginning in the Academic year 1976-1977, and his active employment continued through the scholastic year 1991-1992. During his 16 years in the school system, he was never the subject of prior tenure charges nor of an attempt at incremental denial. During the 16 year period, his observation/evaluations were consistently among the highest qualitative assessment available to him from his supervisors. Also within his tenure as a health and physical education teacher, he led a curriculum revision committee and was a strong advocate for the fitness development programs in the school district.

3. The Respondent began as an assistant wrestling coach at Toms River North High School in 1976 and began as the varsity head coach for wrestling, also at Toms River North, during 1981-1982. During the 10 years he served as a varsity coach, he helped develop an outstanding program culminating in his selection as the Region 6 Coach of the Year by the New Jersey Wrestling Coaches Association in 1989. During that same year, his varsity team won the NJSIAA Group 4 State Championship. He successfully assisted numerous young men in becoming district and regional wrestling champions and coached three State placed winners. During his tenure as a wrestling coach, he inaugurated the Mat Watchers Association which consisted of parents of student athletes in the wrestling program and acted as a supplement to the regular booster organization. Additionally, he volunteered one or two weeks a summer for nearly 15 years to accompany his student athletes to the Penn Wrestling Camp, and many went on to wrestle at and attend college.

4. The single incident in question took place at a time when school was not in session, did not occur on school grounds, and did not involve any contact with students.

The parties have agreed, therefore, that based upon the foregoing and other considerations, the matter should be resolved by way of a mutual agreement between the parties which resulted in the adoption of a resolution by the Toms River Regional Board of Education (copies of which having been forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law) to accept his resignation effective January 19, 1994 and to withdraw the tenure charges presently pending pursuant to the matter hereinabove referenced.

R.A., ON BEHALF OF HER MINOR CHILDREN S.H. AND D.A.,
Respondent.

Robert Merryman, Esq., for petitioner (Carroll and Weiss, attorneys)

R.A., mother of S.H. and D.A., respondent, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:10B-5.1

Record Closed: January 19, 1994 Decided: January 31, 1994

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

R.A.'s children, S.H. and D.A., had been attending Ewing Township schools for several years when Ewing Township public school officials alleged that they were not domiciled in Ewing Township and its superintendent removed them from its school. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

R.A. denied the school system's allegations, alleged that her children were domiciled in Ewing Township and requested an order allowing her children to re-enter and continue in their classes.

Consistent with the statute then in effect, the New Jersey Department of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"), where, after a hearing, an order was entered requiring the Ewing Township Board of Education to allow the children to continue in the Ewing schools until a plenary hearing could be held and a final administrative decision was entered in the case. However, prior to the plenary hearing, the relevant statute was amended to provide, first, for a hearing before the school district board of education on the issues of domicile and removal and, second, that after such hearing, a parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education (who may transmit the case to the OAL for a hearing). See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15.

Given the above, i.e., pursuant to the "time of decision" rule, this case must be considered moot and withdrawn.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter dated November 16, 1993, the school system notified R.A. of its allegations and intention to remove her children from its schools as of November 23, 1993. By letter dated December 3, 1993, the school system notified R.A. that her "appeal for continued enrollment [was] denied" and that "[her] children [would] be disenrolled as of Friday, December 10, 1993." On December 13, 1993, the school system removed S.H. and D.A. from their previously attended classes. On December 15, 1993, R.A. filed a "petition" (treated here as a motion for emergent relief) with the Commissioner of Education, denying the Board's allegations, etc., and demanding that her children continue in their Ewing classes. On December 15, 1993, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"), where it was filed as a contested case. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1.

On December 17, 1993, the motion for emergent relief was heard in the OAL in Trenton (Hamilton Township) and I entered an order requiring the Board to re-enroll and continue D.A. and S.H. in their fifth-grade and kindergarten classes, respectively, pending a final administrative adjudication of this case. (The Board made the allegations in issue, i.e., that the children have changed their domicile from Ewing to Trenton, and brought the claim for relief in issue, i.e., that the children should be removed from the Ewing schools. Therefore, the Board has been and is named as "petitioner" in my order's caption. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1 "Petitioner." The Board [superintendent] unilaterally removed the children from the Ewing school before they were afforded due process, i.e., a hearing before an independent fact-finder. This wrongful action, however, did not transform the children into "petitioners," although they were inadvertently named as such when the case was transmitted to the OAL.) On December 27, 1993, Win L. Tillery, Assistant Commissioner of Education, issued a "decision on motion" affirming the December 17, 1993 order.

The case was scheduled for a hearing on January 20, 1994, in the OAL, however, consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), the Board submitted that the hearing in the OAL should not be held.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute that, at the time this contested case was filed, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, as it then existed, and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, a dispute relative to the domicile of school children was to be determined by the Commissioner of the Department of Education.

There is also no dispute that effective January 10, 1994, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), states the following:

> If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by them gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district [1]or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by them gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection,[1] the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner [1]within 21 days of the date of the decision[1] and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. [1]The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days.[2] No child shall be removed from school during the [2]21-day period in which the parent may > contest the board's decision or during[2] the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. . . .

> [P.L. 1993, c. 380; Emphasis added.]

Pursuant to the "time of decision" rule, when, after the filing of a contested case, a statute has been amended, the statute should be applied to the case, as it exists at the time of the decision. See Ziffrin, Inc., v. United States, 318 U.S. 73, 78, 63 S.Ct. 465, 87 L. Ed. 621 (1943).

Given the above, I CONCLUDE that this case is moot and the hearing on this case should not be held.

In the event, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), the superintendent applies to the Board for removal of the children, they will be entitled to a hearing there and, if R.A. wishes, she may appeal the Board's decision to the Commissioner.

ORDERS

I ORDER this case withdrawn as moot and transmitted back to the Commissioner of the Department of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the need for a hearing on the present appeal has been obviated by enactment of P.L. 1993, c. 380, which prescribes a specific procedure for hearing before the Board of Education prior to a residency dispute being brought to the Commissioner of Education for adjudication pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 et seq.

Accordingly, the Commissioner deems this matter withdrawn without prejudice to petitioner's right to appeal any determination against her by the Board of Education following the hearing required pursuant to P.L. 1993, c. 380.*

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This AGREEMENT is by and between Gloucester County Vocational-Technical School District (District) and Edwin W. Harris (Harris) as follows:

1. The parties hereto have been engaged in litigation instituted by Harris whereby he has claimed that the District wrongfully violated his tenure of employment rights and which the District has denied.

2. The parties have engaged in settlement discussions and they have concluded that the dispute should be resolved in order to avoid the continuing costs of litigation and the uncertainty of outcome.

3. The District expressly denies that it violated any employment rights of Harris and his right to damages of any kind including his right to back pay and other emoluments.

4. The parties agree that to terminate the litigation and its associated costs and uncertainties, the District shall pay to Harris the sum of twelve thousand ($12,000.00) dollars in full and final settlement of all claims of whatsoever kind which Harris may have, it being understood by the parties that such payment shall not constitute back pay or lost wages and/or benefits.

5. Harris hereby expressly releases the District, its servants, agents and employees from all claims, whether statutory, regulatory, common law or otherwise, arising out of his employment by the District.

6. Harris has been represented by both counsel and his labor organization and he has, after consultation, approved this settlement freely and voluntarily.

7. The District agrees to give Harris a positive recommendation of employment consistent with his performance evaluations while employed by the District.

8. The parties agree that, except as may be required by law, or other administrative or agency requirements, to not disclose the terms of this settlement and either party may take appropriate legal steps to enforce the confidentiality hereof upon a breach thereof. In the event that a court determines that such breach occurs and enjoins further breaches, the moving party shall be entitled to recover attorney fees and associated legal costs related thereto.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals on this 29th day of September, 1993.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured Business Education teacher who taught computer classes, alleged Board improperly riffed him and reduced his position to part-time for the 1993-94 school year while retaining nontenured mathematics teacher to teach computer courses.

ALJ found mathematics computer courses were not similar to those taught by petitioner and petitioner did not have any tenure and seniority rights to such math position. ALJ granted summary decision to the Board. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

Record Closed: January 24, 1994 Decided: February 1, 1994

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner appeals from the decision of respondent Board of Education of the Town of Belvidere, Warren County (the Board) reducing him to part-time status, allegedly in violation of petitioner's tenure and seniority rights, by riffing petitioner while a non-tenured teacher taught computer courses.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 28, 1993, the Board reduced petitioner to a part-time Business Education teacher, effective for the 1993-94 school year.

On July 22, 1993, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal. On August 3, 1993, the Commissioner of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing.

On January 3, 1994, the Board filed a Motion for Summary Decision. Petitioner filed his opposing papers on January 24, 1994.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having reviewed the Certifications submitted by the parties, I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioner was hired in September 1969 as a full-time business education teacher at Belvidere High School. Petitioner obtained tenure and seniority in that position.

Petitioner possesses Certificates as a Secondary School Teacher of General Business Studies, a Secondary School Teacher of Bookkeeping and Accounting and a Secondary School Teacher of Typing. Petitioner does not possess any certificate or endorsement in mathematics.

Beginning in the 1984-85 school year, the Mathematics Department offered two computer courses, Computer Math and Programming in Pascal. Each computer course had Algebra I as a prerequisite and each was taught by a certified mathematics teacher. Richard Jorgensen (Mr. Jorgensen), a non-tenured, certified mathematics teacher, presently teaches these computer courses.

Since the 1985-86 school year, petitioner taught two computer courses offered by the Business Education Department, Computers in Business and Personal Computers The Computers in Business course had a prerequisite of one year of typing and one year of either accounting or shorthand and the Personal Computers course had a prerequisite of one-half year of typing.

The common elements among all of these computer courses are that they utilize BASIC programming, they teach print formatting, they were taught five times a week and the students received 2.5 credits. Other than these elements, there is a striking difference between the content of the computer courses taught to the mathematics students and the content of the computer courses taught to the business education students.

For example, the Curriculum Guide for the Computer Math course refers to mathematical terminology such as "roots", "calculations", "numbers in exponential form", "mathematical operations requiring special print formats", "counting", "computing the average of a set of numbers", "polynomials", "algorithm", "adding" and "multiplying". The Curriculum Guide for the Programming in Pascal course refers to "problem analysis", "coding mathematical expressions", "addition", "subtraction", "multiplication", "division", "writing mathematical expressions in Pascal format" and "interpreting Pascal-format mathematical expressions".

On April 28, 1993, the Board approved a Resolution that reduced petitioner's position from full-time to part-time for the 1993-94 school year.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

To acquire tenure in a teaching position, a teacher must have an appropriate certificate for that position. Ellicott v. Board of Education, 251 N.J. Super. 342, 348 (App. Div. 1991). The scope of the tenure is limited by the certificate held by the teacher. Ibid.

In addition, a tenured teacher with proper certification can claim, as against a non-tenured teacher, seniority rights to a position that is within the tenured teacher's certification. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362, 364 (1983). Seniority only accrues within the specific subject area in which the tenured teacher is certified and has actually served N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1; Lichtman, 93 N.J. at 366, 368-369; Capodilupo v. W Orange Tp Ed Bd., 218 N J Super 510, 515 (App. Div. 1987).

In the present case, it is undisputed that petitioner does not possess any certificate or endorsement in mathematics. He, therefore, has no tenure and seniority rights to Mr. Jorgensen's position.

It also is important to emphasize that the mathematic computer courses in question have been offered by the Mathematics Department as part of the mathematics curriculum and they always have been taught by a certified mathematics teacher since the 1984-85 school year, nearly 10 years. During that time, petitioner apparently never raised his alleged entitlement to teach those computer courses.

Furthermore, the mathematics computer courses are not similar to those taught by petitioner.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that the Board's motion for summary decision be and hereby is GRANTED. I further ORDER that petitioner's appeal be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive. DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 17, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Gail S. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Green & Dzwilewski (Allan P. Dzwilewski, Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing the petition is affirmed substantially for the reasons expressed by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") as adopted by the Commissioner. We add that there has been no showing that the controverted computer courses offered by the mathematics department were of such nature as to require certification other than in mathematics. We also note that the record indicates that petitioner had been employed on a full-time basis until the 1993-94 school year, when he was reduced to part-time status as the result of a reduction in force. Consequently, we attach no particular relevance to the ALJ's statement that petitioner had not previously claimed an entitlement to teach the courses at issue herein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning lunch aide alleged Board improperly discontinued her employment in violation of her First Amendment rights.

ALJ determined that but for a constitutionally impermissible reprimand, petitioner would have been reemployed as a lunch aide for the 1992-93 school year. ALJ found that the nonrenewal of a nontenured school employee's one-year contract may not be predicated upon the exercise of her constitutional right to freedom of expression. ALJ ordered the reprimand removed from petitioner's file and ordered petitioner reinstated to her position with mitigated back pay.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

LINDA M. PARENTE,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF METUCHEN, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Linda M. Parente, petitioner, pro se

James E. Stahl, Esq., for respondent (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 5, 1993 Decided: February 3, 1994*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was commenced on August 10, 1992, when Linda M. Parente (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that her employment as a lunch room aide had been impermissibly discontinued by the Metuchen Board of Education (hereinafter respondent) in violation of her First Amendment rights. An answer was filed on behalf of respondent on August 27, 1992 and on October 7, 1992 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F- 1 to -13.

* An extension of time to issue the initial decision was requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B - 10c.

The matter was originally assigned to Robert S. Miller, Administrative Law Judge, who conducted various telephone conferences and otherwise handled the matter until June 14, 1993 when he granted petitioner's motion to recuse himself. On or about July 27, 1993 the matter was reassigned to the undersigned administrative law judge. An in person prehearing conference was conducted on August 25, 1993, at which time the following were identified as issues for determination at hearing:

1. Did respondent's May 8, 1992, reprimand violated petitioner's First Amendment rights?

2. Did respondent fail to re-employ petitioner for the 1992-93 school year for a reason which violated petitioner's First Amendment rights?

3. If the answer to questions number 1 and 2, or either of them, is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

The hearing was scheduled for September 27, 1993 and took place as scheduled. Following the close of testimony the record remained opened for the receipt of written submissions. A letter memorandum on behalf of respondent supplementing the memorandum of law which had been submitted at the hearing was received on October 13, 1993. A letter memorandum on behalf of petitioner was received on October 18, 1993. A reply on behalf of respondent was received on October 28, 1993 and a reply on behalf of petitioner was received on November 5, 1993, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore find the following as uncontested facts.

Commencing in September 1989 petitioner was employed by respondent at the Mildred B. Moss School as a lunch room aide. At the conclusion of each school year thereafter, after indicating her interest in continued employment, she received a notice from the Board of Education similar to the one marked J-11 in evidence:

> At its Special Business Meeting held 7/30/91 the Metuchen Board of Education reappointed you for the 91-92 school year at an hourly rate of $5.45.

Petitioner's duties in this position included supervising elementary school children coming to and going from lunch as well as supervising in the cafeteria and on the playground. It was petitioner's job to maintain safety throughout the lunch hour and to help the children be peaceful. Throughout her employment with respondent she did an excellent job; she was well liked by children, parents and staff.

On May 6, 1992, Douglas Stokes, an individual aide assigned to assist "H," a special education student who had been classified by respondent as emotionally disturbed, reported to Fred Cohen, Principal of the Mildred B. Moss School, that petitioner had made certain comments to students in the classroom with H. at the end of the lunch period. Mr. Cohen then summoned petitioner to his office. What actually transpired, what petitioner said to the students and the substance of the conversation between petitioner and Mr. Cohen will be discussed hereinafter in the section related to disputed facts.

On May 7, 1992 Mr. Cohen handed petitioner an envelope containing the following memorandum, erroneously dated May 8, 1992:

> After our brief discussion on Wednesday, May 7, (sic) I feel it is important to write this letter to reinforce the concern I expressed to you.
>
> Information was brought to my attention that you have been instructing children if they have a problem during lunchtime with a particular student, they should go home and tell their parents. It was further mentioned that you also remarked that perhaps the parents should write letters of complaint. When I spoke to you about this incident, you said that you have always done this since the beginning of the school years. I want to underline the fact that in our meeting of May 7 (sic) I expressed to you that I find this type of behavior to be very disturbing. Parental involvement in school matters is the sole responsibility of the teachers or the principal. You should bring any school problem that arises to my attention or to the attention of the classroom teacher.
> In conclusion, I want to make it very clear to you that I am extremely concerned about the above incident and your response to it. It is not in our best interest to have anyone overriding the authority of the teachers or the administration. I would hope this is an isolated incident and there will be no other complaints in the future. (J-1 in evidence)

Petitioner continued to perform her lunch aide duties until the end of the school year. On the last day of school Mr. Cohen told all of the aides that anyone who wished to return to the job the following school year should write him a note. At the conclusion of the 1991-92 school year petitioner received the following letter, dated June 29, 1992, in the mail from Gennaro Lepre, superintendent for respondent:

> Before I recommend the 1992-93 school aide appointment list to the Board of Education, I believe that the matter of your reprimand should be fully settled; I have the feeling it is not.
>
> Although we should meet to discuss it, and we can do so at your convenience, I would first ask you to send me your written account of the incident and what you believe led up to it. Your statement may be as broad as you feel it should be, because I would also be interested in knowing your perception of what preceded it and what came afterward. If you have any questions, please feel free to call me.
>
> Your cooperation and candor will be appreciated, and I look forward to your response. (J-2 in evidence)

Before she could respond, petitioner received another letter, this one dated July 8, 1992 from Mr. Lepre providing:

> I do not wish to rush you, but as I stated in my first letter to you, I cannot submit my employment recommendation until this matter has been settled. If I do not hear from you by Wednesday, 7/15/92, which is when I will be preparing the agenda for what shall most likely be the last meeting of the summer, I will assume you do not wish to be considered further. A copy of my first letter to you is attached. (J-3 in evidence)

On July 13, 1992 petitioner wrote a letter setting forth the circumstances and information requested by Mr. Lepre. She addressed the letter to Mr. Cohen, however, with a copy to Mr. Lepre. In conclusion she stated:

> In addition, I want to let you know that I plan on aiding in the school year starting this September. However, I do not wish to aide at Moss School and would prefer to be at Campbell. (J-4 in evidence)

Mr. Lepre replied by return mail, dated July 14, 1992:

> Thank you for sending me a copy of your July 13, 1992 letter to Mr. Cohen, which you say is a response to his letter dated May 8, 1992. Technically, your letter does provide the information I asked for, although I do have many questions about it. Please call my office with some dates and times that would be convenient for you, and I will schedule a meeting for you, Mr. Cohen, and me to discuss the matter.

> In the meantime, however, I note that you do not wish to aide at Moss School, and I accept that, but would like to aide at Campbell School. I would suggest that you make your desire known to the Campbell School principal, who has the responsibility for the hiring of aides for his building. He may or may not have a position opening for which he would like to consider you, but, at this point, that is strictly between you and him.
> If you have any questions, please call me; if not, please call in your preferred meeting dates. (J-5 in evidence)

Petitioner declined to meet with Mr. Lepre, stating in a letter dated July 20, 1992 to him, " My summer schedule prohibits me from meeting with you." In the same letter she indicated that she had hoped that the matter would have been resolved by a simple apology from Mr. Cohen and that the letter dated May 8, 1992 would have been removed from her file. There were several other pieces of correspondence back and forth between petitioner and Mr. Lepre. One letter from Mr. Lepre to petitioner, dated July 31, 1992 provided in pertinent part:

> As I had explained, I felt that there might be misunderstandings complicating or exacerbating the problem which could be clarified if you, Mr. Cohen, and I met to discuss it face to face; it certainly could not have hurt. I truly do not wish to appear to doubt you, but it is very hard to believe that you have so full a summer schedule that you could not have spared an hour or two for such a meeting. Not meeting forces me to choose between what you have said and what Mr. Cohen has said, and I will have to side with him; I don't think it would serve any purpose to continue our correspondence.
> I will ask Mr. Cohen to reconsider removing the reprimand in the not too distant future, and I will also ask him now to not mention the reprimand if he is called as a reference for you; I am sorry this happened, and I wish you good luck. (J-9 in evidence)

Petitioner's reply dated August 7, 1992 advised Mr. Lepre that she intended to file the within action and provided in pertinent part:

> If I believed that an in person meeting with you and Mr. Cohen would bring a fair resolution to this situation, and if equitable conference conditions were observed, I would certainly attend. I would, however, want the "many questions" you referred to in your July 14, 1992 letter (copy attached) in written form prior to any meeting.
> I truly do not wish to appear to doubt you but it is very hard to believe that you would be unable to say in written form the thoughts you would express verbally. Not writing down your honest thoughts and questions forces me to turn elsewhere for > justice in this very serious matter. I believe you should have acted immediately upon seeing Mr. Cohen's unjust and unfair letter dated May 8, 1992, (copy attached). Even if you had never heard from me you should have questioned Mr. Cohen, for in that letter it is clear he wants to discourage children from telling their parents what happens to them at school. His statement, "Parental involvement in school matters is the sole responsibility of the teachers or the principal" should have been sufficient reason for you to become involved and speak to him. As I explain in detail in my July 13, 1992 letter (copy attached) I simply told the children, if they had any problems their parents could and would help them. I told them their parents loved them best. My letter explained the events of Wednesday, May 6, 1992 very clearly. I believe it would not be hard for you or Mr. Cohen to ask any questions or to express any view in written form. It certainly is the most definitive way to communicate.

> . . . (J-10 in evidence)

Within a few days thereafter, petitioner did file the within action. The only other correspondence from Mr. Lepre to petitioner was a one sentence letter, dated September 9, 1992 stating:

> At its regular business meeting of September 8, 1992, the Metuchen Board of Education accepted your resignation from the position of Moss School Lunch Aide. (J-12 in evidence)

This concludes the recitation of uncontested facts.

The facts which are in dispute relate to the circumstances which gave rise to the issuance of the reprimand, J-1 in evidence. Petitioner testified that on May 6, after lunch when the children were lining up to go out to the playground, H. shoved and pushed a number of children who were standing peacefully in line, not an unusual behavior for H. H. then told the children that it would not help if they told their parents because "parents can't help you with what happens at school." Petitioner testified that she said to the children, "Oh yes they can; they can phone; they can write; they can come in for a conference." She told them that they should tell their parents what goes on at school and trust that their parents who loved them best would take care of the situation. She also said that she told them that there was nothing a parent could not know about. After they had all gone out to the playground several of the children came up to her to complain again about H's behavior. She testified that the children told her that their teacher did not listen to them when they told her what H. did and that she had responded that perhaps the teacher had been very busy and that they could always try again later during a quiet time or talk to the principal. This whole conversation did not take very long, she testified. She further testified that as she was returning H's class to their classroom after lunch, she heard some children behind her saying that they were "going to get this guy because nothing could be done" and that once they were inside the classroom she had said to the students that if anyone did anything to hurt them or make them uncomfortable, they should tell their parents and their parents could write a letter about it and that they should then not worry about it. Douglas Stokes was in the classroom at the time; the regular classroom teacher was not there, not having returned from lunch yet.

After petitioner left the classroom she was checking on children in a couple of other classrooms who were waiting for their teachers to return from lunch, when Mr. Cohen had motioned to her to come to his office. According to petitioner, Mr. Cohen pushed ahead of her into his office then immediately turned around and blocked her from proceeding any further into the office. Mr. Cohen asked petitioner whether she had told the children to tell their parents about problems and that they could write about them and when she said yes, she had always done it, Mr. Cohen promptly became very angry and began yelling and screaming at her. She testified that every time she tried to get a word in to explain, Mr. Cohen yelled "I don't want to hear any buts" and that he also said "I will decided what, if anything the parents know about what happens to their children at school" in such a loud voice that petitioner's ears hurt. Petitioner testified that Mr. Cohen was so out of control that she simply said, "All right, whatever you want. You're the principal" and left. Petitioner testified that she was very upset that Mr. Cohen had yelled at her and that she was also upset about the content of what he had said to her since she believed that children should be encouraged to tell their parents about anything that was upsetting them or anything that went on at school. She testified that she had assumed that Mr. Cohen was under a great deal of pressure to have behaved in such a manner since he had never before raised his voice or behaved unprofessionally. She fully expected that he would apologize the next day, she testified. However, the apology did not come. Instead she received J-1 in evidence which she indicated she did not understand. She further testified that after she had received Mr. Lepre's June 29, 1992 letter, J-2 in evidence, she had indicated her desire to return to her lunchroom duties in her July 13, 1992 letter to Mr. Cohen with a copy to Mr. Lepre. The last paragraph of the letter was intended to indicate that she preferred to work at Campbell School but that she would have worked at Moss if that were the only option. She testified that when she had originally applied for the job of aide, she had filled out an application at the Board office and that on another occasion when she had asked the principal of Campbell School about the possibility of working there he had said to check at the Board office. Accordingly, when Mr. Lepre suggested in one of his letters that she contact the principal of Campbell to ascertain whether there was an open position, she had concluded that Mr. Lepre was simply giving her the run around. She acknowledged that the real reason she did not wish to meet with Mr. Lepre was not her busy summer schedule as she wrote but rather her concern that any meeting with Mr. Lepre and Mr. Cohen would not be "peaceful," a word she used frequently in her testimony. She indicated that she had heard Mr. Lepre yell at others during conversations. In fact, Mr. Lepre had yelled so loudly in a telephone conversation with petitioner's sister, petitioner was able to hear his voice in the next room of her sister's house, she testified. She did not wish to be subjected to any further yelling, but she would have gone to a meeting if Mr. Lepre had complied with her request for a list of the questions she would be asked. She also speculated that a reason for the treatment she had received from Mr. Lepre might be his annoyance at a lawsuit filed against the district by her sister.

Finally, in response to a question from the undersigned concerning whether there was any reason for Douglas Stokes to misrepresent what she had said to the students, she testified that she had on one occasion spoken to Mr. Stokes on the playground when he was supposed to be supervising H. and wasn't; she had pointed out that H. was involved in a dangerous activity where he might get a splinter in his eye and she had pointed out to Mr. Stokes that he needed to supervise H.

Mr. Cohen testified that Mr. Stokes had come to him with the concern that petitioner was with a number of students and had told them that if they were to tell their parents to write a letter about H., H. would probably be removed from the regular classroom and they would not have a problem. Mr. Cohen denied that he had kept petitioner standing in the doorway but rather he asserted that the conversation had taken place in his office but close to the doorway so that he could keep an eye on the students who were still in the hallway after lunch. He testified that he did not yell or raise his voice but merely told petitioner that he did not feel it was her responsibility to advise students to tell their parents anything. He further testified that he had offered petitioner an opportunity to discuss the matter and that she had not responded other than to say something to the effect "I thought I could." He denied that he had yelled and screamed at all and further denied that he had not allowed her to speak. He also denied seeing petitioner hold her hand to her ear or hearing her say, "Whatever you want, you're the principal." Finally, he testified that having had a discussion with petitioner he did not think it was necessary to talk with her again about it and that even after he read her July 13, 1992 letter, he still thought her behavior was cause for a reprimand since "I think that should come from the teacher", he said.

Mr. Lepre testified that Mr. Cohen had advised him about the incident within a day or so of May 6. He stated that he had been concerned because he had been advised that the comment was about "H", that it was not a general "talk-to-your-parents-if-something-is-bothering-you" comment. He testified that he had been aware of problems with H., that he was not surprised that there were problems because of H's E.D. classification and background. He testified that he had involved himself by sending the June 29, 1992 letter to petitioner because it was his understanding that after the incident petitioner and Mr. Cohen were not talking to each other and he did not feel he could recommend to the Board that they hire an aide who was not talking to her building principal. He testified that he knew petitioner had been a very fine aide and that he had simply wanted to clear up the situation by talking with both petitioner and Mr. Cohen before he made a recommendation to the Board. He acknowledged that he had some concerns about the reprimand, J-1 in evidence, and that he had not entirely agreed with Mr. Cohen. "We need to sit down and talk about who can say what, when. We're not constitutional scholars," he stated. Concerning the procedure for obtaining a position at Campbell School, he initially testified that he would not necessarily know about a vacancy at Campbell which is why he had told petitioner to contact the building principal, but later he stated that petitioner had not been recommended for reemployment by him for two reasons: one, she did not want to work at Moss as she had stated in her July 13, letter, and two, that there was no position at Campbell. He categorically denied that petitioner's nonrenewal had anything to do with her sister's lawsuit against the district.

Petitioner further testified on rebuttal that she had said nothing about H., that she was not against mainstreaming of classified students and that she had no desire to see H. removed from the school.

With respect to the disputed facts, I find them to be as reported by petitioner in her testimony. Petitioner was an extremely candid, sincere and credible witness. Her testimony was entirely consistent with the many written exhibits which were prepared closer in time to the event. I specifically find that she did not say that parents should write letters to the Board in any effort to get H. out of class or anything similar; petitioner was simply discussing with the children concerns which they had brought to her about parental inability to address problems at school. It is clear from her testimony that the conversations related to parental involvement had arisen initially because of H's behavior and his statements to the students that their parents could not do anything about it. The advice which petitioner gave the students, however, was couched in general terms that if anyone did anything to hurt them or make them feel uncomfortable they should tell their parents, in addition to telling their teachers and the principal if they wished. Mr. Cohen's testimony, on other other hand, simply was not credible. His answers to the questions posed both by the Board attorney and by petitioner were not forthcoming and explanatory but rather were limited and even somewhat evasive. Exactly what Douglas Stokes reported to him on May 6, 1992 is not clear since Mr. Stokes was not produced by respondent although he is still employed by them. It is possible that Mr. Stokes was annoyed with petitioner because she had reminded him that he should be doing his job and that he misrepresented what she said. If in fact he had reported that petitioner made statements about getting rid of H. or getting him out of class, however, common sense dictates that those statements would have appeared in the reprimand J-1 which they clearly do not. Furthermore, I am persuaded that, as petitioner testified, Mr. Cohen did not allow her to explain as they were standing in the door to his office on May 6, and that he verbally abused her by yelling so loudly that it hurt her ears.

Although Mr. Lepre was basically a credible witness, it was apparent from his testimonial demeanor that petitioner's concerns that a meeting with him would not be peaceful were justified; on several occasions be became loud and agitated. With respect to his testimony I FIND that he was aware of the employment situation at Campbell School at the time he referred petitioner to the building principal and that this was just an avoidance technique. I further FIND that the lawsuit filed by petitioner's sister was not a factor in any of his actions. There was no proof from petitioner on this issue, only speculation, and Mr. Lepre's denial was credible.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

Although respondent has repeatedly referred to petitioner as a non-contractual, at-will employee, the facts establish that she did have an annual, hourly contract, subject to renewal each year without tenure. Generally, a nontenured school employee does not have the right to have an employment contract renewed. See Winston v. Bd. of Ed. of So. Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131, 143 (App. Div. 1973), aff'd., 64 N.J. 582 (1974). However, while a board has broad discretion with respect to the appointment, transfer, dismissal or nonrenewal of these employees, its actions are limited by First and Fourteenth Amendment protections. Specifically, the nonrenewal of a nontenured school employees' one-year contract may not be predicated upon the exercise of her constitutional right to freedom of expression. See Id. at 144.

While Winston, supra, involved a nontenured teacher's employment rights, it follows that other nontenured employees should be afforded the same rights and protections. The Supreme Court, addressing whether a teacher's lack of tenure rights to reemployment defeated the claim that his nonrenewal violated the First Amendment, stated:

> even though a person has no 'right' to a valuable governmental benefit and even though the government may deny him the benefit for any number of reasons, there are some reasons upon which the government may not rely. It may not deny a benefit to a person on a basis that infringes his constitutionally protected interests - especially, his interest in freedom of speech. For if the government could deny a benefit to a person because of his constitutionally protected speech or associations, his exercise of those freedoms would in effect be penalized and inhibited. This would allow the government to produce a result which it could not command directly.

Of course, this does not mean that a school board may never limit the free expression of its employees. However, "the free speech rights of public employees may be limited only where absolutely required by the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees." Pickering v. Bd. of Ed., 391 U.S. 563, 568 (1968). A balancing test may be used for determining the appropriateness of a given limitation on an employee's speech. This test requires that the public importance of the employee's statement must be weighed against the public employer's interest in effective an efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 103 S.Ct. 1684, 75 L.Ed 2d 708 (1983).

The "speech" involved in the instant case involved statements made to school children suggesting that, in addition to talking to their teachers and lunchroom personnel, they inform their parents about problems in school. Generally, when we think of constitutionally protected speech we think of "political speech" or public discourse. In fact, in order to qualify as protected speech, the expression must touch upon a matter of public concern. Pickering, supra and Connick, supra. However, answers to questions posed by students qualifies as protected speech under the First Amendment. In 1973, the River Dell Board of Education was prevented from implementing a policy which would have prohibited teachers from discussing with students ongoing labor negotiations between the board and the teachers' union. River Dell Ed. Assoc. v. River Dell Bd. of Ed., 122 N.J. Super. 350, 358 (Law Div. 1973). Central to the decision was the fact that, as in the instant case, the "speech" was in response to concerns and questions initiated by the students. Id. at 357. The court found that the board had failed to show that "the conduct sought to be curtailed would materially and substantially interfere with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school." Id. at 357, quoting Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Comm. School Dist., 393 U.S. 503, 89 S.Ct. 733, 21 L.Ed. 2d 731. Furthermore, the court found that any disturbance or controversy raised by the discussions were no reason to bar freedom of speech. Id. at 357.

In the present matter, although respondent has alleged in its written memorandum that petitioner violated an official policy of the district when she advised the school children to talk to their parents, no evidence at all was offered concerning the existence of any such policy, and some such official policies regulating public employees' free speech rights have been held to be constitutionally impermissible, in any event. See Hall v. Pennsauken Tp. Mayor, etc., 176 N.J. Super. 229 (App. Div. 1980) and Ramirez v. County of Hudson, 167 N.J. Super. 435 (Ch. Div. 1979). Petitioner's comments were not critical comments aimed at any of her supervisors, such as to disrupt the functioning of the school system nor is there any indication that petitioner's comments, as opposed to respondent's reaction, interfered with the operation of the school. Cf. Czurlanis v. Albanese, 721 F.2d 98, 107 (3rd Cir. 1983) ("First Amendment protected county employee's allegations of inefficiency, waste and possible fraud in the Division of Motor Vehicles and any disruption of the Division was primarily the result, not of the plaintiff's exercise of speech, but of his supervisor's attempts to suppress it.") It is clear, from the foregoing that petitioner's comments cannot constitutionally form the basis of any disciplinary action against her, including a reprimand. "The constitutional violation is not in the harshness of the sanction applied, but in the imposition of any disciplinary action for the exercise of permissible free speech." Bennis v. Gable, 823 F.2d 723, 731 (3rd Cir. 1987). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the reprimand must be removed from petitioner's file.

With respect to whether the board failed to renew petitioner's employment for the 1992-93 school year because of her reprimand, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has established by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that the reprimand was the proximate cause for her nonrenewal. Mr. Lepre's letter of June 29, 1992, J-2 in evidence, states, "Before I recommend the 1992-93 school aide appointment list to the Board of Education, I believe that the matter of your reprimand should be fully settled." Although Mr. Lepre's efforts to resolve the situation between petitioner and Mr. Cohen were appropriate, his conclusion to support Mr. Cohen when petitioner declined to come to a meeting, was not. It is clear from the face of the reprimand that it was constitutionally impermissible and Mr. Lepre even admitted at the hearing that he did not entirely agree with Mr. Cohen. It is just as clear that the issuance of the reprimand was the reason for petitioner's nonrenewal. Respondent's position that petitioner resigned is disingenuous. Petitioner clearly advised respondent in her letter of July 13, 1992, J-4 in evidence, that she planned on aiding in the school year 1992-93. Her statement that she did not wish to aide at Moss School and would prefer to be at Campbell was simply that, an expression of a preference. She successfully completed the school year after the May 6, 1992 reprimand and could have worked with Mr. Cohen if she had to; she simply preferred not to because she was hurt and angry by the unjust reprimand. I CONCLUDE that but for the constitutionally impermissible reprimand, petitioner would have been reemployed as a school lunch aide for the 1992-93 school year, and accordingly, she is entitled to reinstatement with back pay. The issue of mitigation of damages was not specifically addressed at the hearing in this matter; there was some discussion about the fact that petitioner had attended school herself during the 1992-93 school year, but whether that was a decision which was made because she was not reemployed or whether it would have been made anyway, is not clear. If the parties cannot agree concerning the appropriate amount of compensation for back pay, this matter can be retransmitted by the Commissioner for a determination on that issue.

Finally, it appears that an apology from Mr. Cohen for the manner in which he reprimanded petitioner on May 6, 1992 would have gone a long way toward defusing this situation, even though the parties would have continued to disagree about the substance of the reprimand. Whether Mr. Cohen and petitioner can reestablish an appropriate working relationship following the conclusion of this case is a matter which will have to be determined by the parties. It appears that there are other schools to which petitioner could be assigned as a lunch aide and upon her reemployment, such reassignment would probably be appropriate.

For all the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent remove from petitioner's personnel file the reprimand, dated (erroneously) May 8, 1992. It is further ORDERED that respondent reinstate petitioner in her position with the district as school lunch aide with back pay retroactive to September 1992.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF METUCHEN, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions by the respondent Board of Education were untimely filed, being due on February 22, 1994 (13 days from the February 9, 1994 date of mailing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4) but not received until February 23, 1994, and are accordingly not considered below.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner concurs that the reprimand of petitioner for her May 6, 1992 exercise of permissible free speech was improperly issued and must be removed from her file. The Commissioner further concurs that but for that exercise, petitioner would have been rehired as a school lunch aide, so that her termination was based on constitutionally prohibited grounds and must be declared null and void.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law ordering removal of the May 8, 1992 letter of reprimand from petitioner's file and directing petitioner's re-employment with back pay, less mitigation as appropriate, is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning high school student appealed final ineligibility determination, based on the "eight-semester rule," of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) so as to permit his participation in the 1993 football season. Emergent relief was denied and petitioner submitted an amended petition clarifying that relief sought extended to baseball and basketball seasons as well as football.

Commissioner concurred with NJSIAA that petitioner had been accorded full due process and that he was not entitled to a waiver of the eight-semester rule. Article V, Section 4F of the bylaws clearly provides that all handicapped/classified students are to be accorded eight semesters of eligibility, not eight semesters of actual play or eight semesters from the time of their classification. Moreover, with respect to petitioner's claim that his secondary schooling was extended through his repetition of ninth grade for reasons beyond his control due to district's failure to classify him upon his father's request or sooner, the Commissioner found that NJSIAA's determination was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable under the circumstances, so that he will not substitute his judgment for that of the Association. Petition was dismissed.

V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Michael E. McGann, Esq. (Waldman, Moriarty and McGann)

For Respondent, Michael J. Herbert, Esq. (Picco, Mack, Herbert, Kennedy, Jaffe & Yoskin)

This matter initially came before the Commissioner of Education by way of a petition for emergent relief filed on November 15, 1993 and perfected on November 18, 1993, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 to hear and decide appeals from decisions of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA). Therein, petitioner sought to appeal the September 10, 1993 final ineligibility determination, based on the so-called "eight-semester rule," of NJSIAA so as to permit his participation in the 1993 football season ending on November 25, 1993. Following NJSIAA's response on November 18, 1993 and a reply thereto filed by petitioner on November 22, 1993, the Assistant Commissioner delegated to hear this matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 issued a decision dated November 22, 1993 denying emergent relief due to petitioner's failure to meet the criteria of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

On January 14, 1994, following correspondence with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, petitioner submitted an amended petition clarifying that the relief sought extended to the baseball and basketball seasons as well as to the by-then-mooted issue of participation in football. Accordingly, consistent with the briefing schedule established by the Bureau, an answer and transcript of underlying proceedings were filed by NJSIAA on January 25, 1994, and a reply to these submissions was filed by petitioner on February 2, 1994. On February 23, 1994, the remaining portions of the record of proceedings before NJSIAA were submitted, and the record of the appeal before the Commissioner was closed.

Certain operative facts of this matter are not in dispute and are as follows:

1. Petitioner was born on April 23, 1975 and commenced his high school education in September 1989 upon entering Keansburg High School.

2. In or about October 1989, during his ninth grade school year, petitioner began to suffer from a severe case of contact dermatitis.

3. In or about March of 1990, still during ninth grade, petitioner's father requested a child study team evaluation, but none was conducted. No further demands were made, nor action taken, in pursuit of this request.

4. Petitioner was required to repeat ninth grade due to receiving "no credit for the 1989-90 school year based on his attendance." (See letters of February 4, 1993 and July 1, 1993 from school principal, Petitioner's Exhibits C and H.)

5. In Fall 1992, petitioner participated in football, his first semester of participation in interscholastic athletics.

6. In January 1993, petitioner's physician stated, via letter, his opinion that petitioner was unable to fulfill his academic requirements for ninth grade due to the severity of his foot condition.

7. On February 4, 1993, the principal of Keansburg High School applied on petitioner's behalf for a waiver of NJSIAA's eight-semester rule based on petitioner's medical-related absences. With this letter, the principal included a letter from the vice-principal opining that participation in athletics had greatly improved petitioner's behavior and self-esteem.

8. On February 17, 1993, the NJSIAA Eligibility Committee declared petitioner ineligible to participate in interscholastic athletics beyond June of 1993, finding that his repetition of ninth grade was not due to insurmountable circumstances, as there was no demonstration that petitioner's inability to complete school requirements was necessarily or exclusively due to his foot condition.

9. Petitioner appealed this determination to the Eligibility Appeals Committee, which, on April 21, 1993, affirmed the Eligibility Committee's ruling.

10. On April 23, 1993, petitioner's father requested a child study team evaluation, which was promptly conducted and resulted on June 21, 1993 in classification of petitioner as Emotionally Disturbed.

11. On July 1, 1993, the principal of Keansburg High School again requested a waiver of the eight-semester rule, this time based on petitioner's June 21 classification.

12. On August 23, 1993, the NJSIAA Eligibility Committee declared petitioner ineligible to participate in interscholastic athletics, finding that his late classification could not serve as a basis for waiver of the eight-semester rule because, under the particular circumstances of this case, it could not be found that the continuation of petitioner's secondary schooling beyond four years was for reasons outside his control.

13. Petitioner appealed, and on September 10, 1993, the Eligibility Appeals Committee affirmed the prior decision. Appeal to the Commissioner of Education ensued in mid-November 1993, followed by an amended appeal in mid-January 1994 as set forth above.

14. Petitioner's father is a member of the Keansburg Board of Education, and has been since 1990.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Petitioner argues that he is entitled to a waiver of the eight-semester rule on two grounds: 1) that his repetition of ninth grade was due to the district's not responding to his father's initial request for classification, thereby causing his failure for the year and extending his school career for reasons beyond his control; or alternatively, 2) that petitioner's eight semesters of eligibility should be reckoned from his first participation in interscholastic athletics in Fall 1992, since he is now a classified student.

In the first instance, petitioner argues that, had the district classified him at the time of his first request, he would have been ungraded and therefore would not have suffered an academic failure. In the second, he argues that NJSIAA bylaws expressly provide that, for classified students, the eight-semester eligibility limit begins with the first semester of participation in interscholastic athletics; therefore, petitioner remains eligible notwithstanding that eight semesters have passed since he entered high school. Petitioner further notes that he is neither overage, unusually large or a "star" player, so that there is no attempt here at "red shirting" or other unfair athletic advantage. Finally, he contends that participation in interscholastic sports effectively serves as "therapy" for his handicapping condition.

NJSIAA'S RESPONSE

NJSIAA contends that petitioner was accorded full due process before it, in not one, but two separate hearings, and that after evaluating all the arguments and evidence, NJSIAA reasonably concluded that petitioner was not entitled to a waiver of the eight-semester rule. It summarizes its position as follows:

> Article V, Section 4E of the Bylaws, sets forth the academic credit rule, which requires that all student athletes must pass the equivalent of one-quarter of the minimum credits (27-1/2) for graduation as established by the Department in the previous year. (NJSIAA Handbook, p. 37) Article V, Section 4F of the Bylaws allows classified students to be exempted from this rule, but not from the eight semester, age, transfer or other eligibility rules of the Association. (NJSIAA Handbook, p. 64, 65) To maximize participation by classified students, the NJSIAA urges guidance departments to work with students to obtain an early classification, so these students are provided a full four years of opportunity to compete in interscholastic sports, even when they cannot meet the academic standards set forth in Article V, Section 4E. (See NJSIAA Handbook, p. 39.)
>
> Recognizing that attempts might be undertaken by parents and/or schools to misuse classifications so as to provide additional opportunities for student-athletes to participate in sports, the NJSIAA has cautioned its members as follows:
>
> > Where waivers of the age or eight semester rule are sought on grounds that a student is handicapped, the NJSIAA will carefully assess the circumstances under which the student was classified. TO PREVENT "RED SHIRTING," WAIVERS WILL NOT BE GRANTED WHERE CLASSIFICATION OCCURRED JUST PRIOR TO/OR DURING THE STUDENT'S SECONDARY SCHOOLING. (See NJSIAA Handbook, p. 59, emphasis in original.)
>
> In this case, there was absolutely no evidence that J.C. was prevented from participating for four years at Keansburg, other than his academic failures in his Freshman year. This student's parents first attempted to excuse those academic failures on the grounds of a foot condition three years after the event. When that did not succeed, his father, who is a member of the local Board of Education, was able to obtain a prompt classification of his son, leading to the second appeal.
> J.C., Jr. has been afforded extraordinary due process by the NJSIAA, and has failed to offer any compelling reasons for the Commissioner to overturn two separate > decisions of the [Association]. The eight-semester rule has been approved by the Commissioner, and has been adopted by Keansburg High School, as a member school. The fact that J.C. is now spending a fifth year in high school is not due to circumstances beyond his control. There is nothing in the record (other than his academic failures as a Freshman), which would have prevented J.C. from participating in sports for the full four years accorded to all high school students in this State. For example, he could have participated in sports as a Freshman in 1989-90 or as a Sophomore in 1991-92, but simply chose not to do so. Now that J.C., Jr. is in his fifth year of high school, he seeks to have the Commissioner provide him with yet another year of eligibility without any reasonable basis.As the NJSIAA Interpretive Guidelines state:

> > Member schools must be aware of the fact that waivers are only intended to equalize opportunities among otherwise eligible students who cannot strictly comply with the eligibility rules because of circumstances beyond their control, and is not intended to provide such students with an actual advantage over the great majority of students. (NJSIAA's Letter Brief, at pp. 7-9)

As a matter of law, NJSIAA argues that it applied its rules reasonably and after full due process, so that, consistent with well-established decisional precedent, its determination in this matter is not susceptible to upset by the Commissioner even where he would judge otherwise in a de novo review. Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259; J.F. v. NJSIAA, decided October 19, 1992.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner determines to affirm the decision of NJSIAA denying petitioner a waiver of the eight-semester rule.

With respect to petitioner's contention that NJSIAA rules provide for a classified student's eight semesters of eligibility to begin with his or her first participation in interscholastic athletics, both the NJSIAA bylaws and NJSIAA's reasonable interpretation of them preclude such a reading. Article V, Section 4F of the bylaws clearly provides that

> (1) Course Waiver - All handicapped/classified students, as defined by the New Jersey State Department of Education, shall comply with the athletic eligibility rules and regulations of the NJSIAA (with the exception of Section 4-E of this Article V re: Credits).
> CL[ARIFICATION] Classified students are ungraded; therefore, the first semester of their eight consecutive semesters of eligibility will start with the first semester of their participation in interscholastic athletics at the freshman, junior varsity or varsity level. Guidance Departments must provide the Athletic Director with ages of all Classified students so they can be assured of four (4) years of eligibility prior to becoming ineligible at age nineteen. (NJSIAA 1993-94 Handbook, p. 39, emphasis in original)

This latter directive, read in context with the preceding paragraph, is clearly intended to do no more than ensure that classified students, who may not be conventionally placed with respect to grade and age, are accorded eight semesters of eligibility through coordinating their entry into interscholastic athletics, at whatever level, with the four-year period prior to their becoming ineligible at age 19. The rule is clearly not intended to provide eight semesters from the first point of actual play regardless of when a student becomes otherwise eligible, as this would accord a special advantage contrary to both the clear language of Section 4F(1) above and the overall intent of NJSIAA bylaws, guidelines and operating principles. Therefore, petitioner's claim to continued eligibility under NJSIAA bylaws on grounds that he did not participate in sports prior to Fall of 1992 must fail.

With respect to petitioner's claim that his secondary schooling was extended, through his repetition of ninth grade, for reasons beyond his control due to the district's failure to classify him upon his father's request or sooner, the Commissioner likewise finds that NJSIAA's determination must stand. The role of the Commissioner in matters of student eligibility is not to substitute his own judgment for that of NJSIAA, but rather to determine whether NJSIAA's ruling was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Koh and Kim, supra. While the Commissioner is cognizant of the prior ruling in In the Matter of the Athletic Eligibility of C.G., School District of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, 1990 S.L.D. 66, and while the record of the present matter includes a series of documents from which it could be inferred that petitioner might have performed better in ninth grade had he then had the counseling later provided as a result of his classification, under the particular circumstances operating herein it cannot be said that NJSIAA acted unreasonably or arbitrarily in concluding that petitioner should not be granted a waiver. The record of this matter does not include, as did the record in C.G., compelling expert testimony as to the specific effect of the petitioning student's handicap on prior educational performance, nor did the timing and circumstances of C.G.'s classification raise the type of questions legitimately posed by the sequence of events underlying petitioner's request herein.

Accordingly, as the Commissioner finds and determines that NJSIAA's ruling denying petitioner's request for a waiver of the eight-semester rule so as to permit his continued eligibility for participation in interscholastic athletics must be upheld as reasonably based, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured science teacher, alleged Board improperly withheld his salary increment for the 1993-94 school year. Board contended its withholding was based on unsatisfactory performance due to poor classroom management skills.

ALJ found Board's discretionary exercise of its statutory authority to withhold salary increment should not be overturned unless action was patently arbitrary or without reasonable basis or induced by improper motives. (Kopera) Petitioner herein failed to meet his burden of proving that the Board acted unreasonably.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and dismissed petition.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a teacher from the decision of the Newark Board of Education ("Board") to withhold his salary increment for the 1993-94 academic year under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

Procedural History

On July 7, 1993, petitioner Fathy Ibrahim ("Ibrahim") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") alleging that the decision of the board to withhold his annual salary increment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. On July 16, 1993, the Board filed its answer denying the allegations. Subsequently, on July 21, 1993, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for determination as a contested case. The OAL held a hearing on December 14, 1993. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix.

Findings of Fact

Most of the relevant evidence is undisputed. I FIND:

Fathy Ibrahim is an experienced teacher who has been employed in the Newark public school system for nine years. He holds a bachelors's degree from Alexandria University in Egypt and has postgraduate training in chemistry from Rutgers University.

Starting in 1984-85, Ibrahim taught science at various high schools in the district, first at Barringer High School, next at Shabazz High School, then at University High School and, for the last three years, at Weequahic High School. During 1992-93, Ibrahim was assigned to teach five classes of general science. Supervisors who made observations of his performance consistently rated him as unsatisfactory in such areas as class management and development of rapport with his students. Significantly, Ibrahim does not deny the accuracy of their observations. Instead, he seeks to shift the blame for his own inadequate performance to the absence of written standards, the alleged lack of support from school administrators and the behavior of the students themselves.

Bruce Bennett, chair of the science department, was Ibrahim's immediate supervisor in 1992-93 and has since been promoted to vice principal at Weequahic High School. An educator with nearly thirty years experience, Bennett described specific instances when Ibrahim was unable to control the students in his class. As early as September 28, 1992, Bennett visited one of Ibrahim's classes for approximately fifteen minutes. He noted that the atmosphere was "disorderly" and that "many students [were] not paying attention." Although Bennett supervised ten other science teachers, Ibrahim was the only one whose students were misbehaved and inattentive. Class assignments are made at random.

A few days later, on October 2, 1992, Bennett visited Ibrahim's seventh period class for a formal observation which lasted nearly forty minutes. Again, the classroom environment was chaotic. It took a valuable ten minutes of learning time for the class to settle down and begin work. Most of the fifteen students in the class were talking while the teacher was trying to teach. In an effort to be heard above the noise, Ibrahim raised his voice. Or, as he himself put it, "my students didn't want to hear me so I [would] shout." Candidly, Ibrahim acknowledged that the students "didn't behave well." However, he attributed their misconduct to the fact that many of them were repeating a subject which they had previously failed. At one point in his testimony, he bitterly complained that his students "are not interested at all" and that they "don't want to listen."

Meanwhile, the classroom situation continued to deteriorate. On October 6, 1992, Bennett had to enter Ibrahim's class on two occasions in order to admonish students about their unruly behavior. Students were sitting in very close proximity to each other, making the possibility of cheating very easy. Some of the students were talking loudly and, for whatever reason, did not seem interested in the quiz they were taking. Other students seemed to be copying answers from their neighbors. Once more, Bennett had to suggest that Ibrahim change the seating arrangements.

In a post-observation conference on October 8, 1992, Bennett made several helpful suggestions on how Ibrahim could improve his classroom management skills. Some of these suggestions are so basic that it should not have been necessary to tell them to a seasoned teacher. For example, Bennett told Ibrahim that the desks in the classroom were placed too close together and should be "spread out so that students couldn't talk to each other." Likewise, Bennett reminded Ibrahim that "shouting is not an effective disciplinary technique and that students "enjoy getting the teacher to shout." Moreover, Bennett advised Ibrahim to avoid delivering lengthy lectures because students quickly become bored. Bennett recommended that Ibrahim plan lessons which engage the students through activities and question-and-answer discussions.

Another administrator reported similar classroom conditions on other occasions. Vice principal Jill Watkins paid a visit to Ibrahim's period eight class on December 3, 1992. She also observed that students "were not paying attention," that there was "much talking" and that students appeared "disinterest[ed]." Rather than varying his teaching techniques to appeal to all students, Ibrahim concentrated his teaching efforts on "a small group of four or five kids." Ibrahim's instructions were so unclear that Watkins herself could not understand them. The students appeared "very confused" and "didn't do the work."

During an informal observation of Ibrahim's on January 27, 1993, Bennett saw four girls, "seated together," who "talk[ed], nonstop" throughout the lesson. This particular class was comparatively small, with only ten students present. Nearly the entire period was devoted to copying notes from the blackboard, with no time for discussion, no feedback from the students and no intellectual stimulation . According to Bennett, "actual teaching didn't take place." Ibrahim's attempts to reprimand the four talkative students were futile; the girls remained defiant, disrespectful and noncooperative. While Bennett was watching, Ibrahim never separated the foursome from each other or isolated them from the rest of the class. Ibrahim claimed, however, that he managed to separate the four students after the Bennett's departure.

Two days afterwards, on January 29, 1993, school administrators intervened twice to restore order in Ibrahim's classes. Bennett, whose office is located immediately adjacent to Ibrahim's room, went to Ibrahim's first period class "because of the high volume of noise coming from the classroom." Several of Ibrahim's colleagues had complained that the noise was disturbing their classes. Bennett had to remove one of the students whom Ibrahim could not control. Plaintively, Ibrahim acknowledged that he had tried to conference the offending students, but they would not respond "because they were totally misbehaving." While on her rounds that same day, Watkins also "heard a general commotion coming from [Ibrahim's] room" and saw the door "opening and closing." When she entered the classroom, "[m]any students were out of their seats" and "running in and out of the room." She too had to quiet the class down, which she was quickly able to do by her authoritative demeanor.

Bennett made a second formal observation of Ibrahim's class on March 25, 1993. Although Ibrahim had clearly made an effort to implement some of Bennett's suggestions, such as asking questions rather than merely lecturing, the classroom atmosphere was still lax and not conducive to learning. When two students arrived late, Ibrahim failed to challenge them or demand a late pass. Despite the fact that the class consisted of only eight students, Ibrahim still had difficulty maintaining their interest. Once more, Bennett "had to reprimand one of [Ibrahim's] students about his behavior." For his part, Ibrahim admits that some of his children "were acting up" that day and that "they do it all the time."

In a constructive way, Bennett suggested to Ibrahim that his repeated misuse of a particular word might contribute to the students' lack of respect. Apparently, Ibrahim misinterpreted this well-intentioned advice as criticism of his foreign accent. Shortly after learning that Bennett had given him an unsatisfactory rating, Ibrahim filed a written grievance with the principal of Weequahic High School on April 19, 1993, contending that Bennett "offers me only negative criticism, but provides no solution." One of Ibrahim's complaints, raised in writing for the first time, was that Bennett had ignored his earlier request for a demonstration lesson. Nevertheless, the proofs show that Bennett had encouraged Ibrahim to observe the classroom techniques of other accomplished teachers and put off arranging a formal demonstration out of concern that it might further undermine Ibrahim's tenuous authority over his own class.

Even after the second formal evaluation, Ibrahim continued to experience disciplinary problems in his class. Thus on May 25, 1993, the same day that the Board voted to withhold his increment, Bennett had to return Ibrahim's class again. On that date, "a loud female voice [was] laughing and talking while the teacher was giving a test."

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board's discretionary exercise of its statutory authority to withhold salary increment should not be overturned.

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides that a board of education may withhold "a teacher's salary increment for inefficiency or other good cause." Courts recognize that salary increments are "a reward for meritorious service." Probst v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., 127 N.J. 518, 527 (1992). Section 14 is clearly meant to vest local school boards with the ability to withhold increments from teachers who have not performed well during the previous year. Probst, at 526. Appeals from such action may be taken to the Commissioner, who may either affirm or direct that the increment be paid.[1] A decision to withhold an increment is a matter of essential managerial prerogative, which has been delegated by the Legislature to the local school board. North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. North Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Bernard Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Bernard Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 336 (App. Div. 1975). When reviewing such determinations, the Commissioner is prohibited from substituting her own judgment for that of the local board. Her scope of review is limited to assuring that there exists a reasonable basis for the decision.

Exercise of the discretionary powers of the local board may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, or without reasonable basis, or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The burden of proving unreasonableness rests upon the party challenging the board's action. Kopera, at 297. Accordingly, the Commissioner's scope of review is limited to determining: (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed; and (2) whether it was reasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they were experts.

[1]As the result of legislation effective January 4, 1990, an increment withholding "for predominately disciplinary reasons" is subject to grievance procedures. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26. The withholding of a teaching staff member's increment based on actual teaching performance is still appealable to the Commissioner of Education. Assembly Labor Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 4706 (1989). See River Dell Bd. of Educ. v. Canal, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 784 (Comm'r of Ed.). Because the withholding in this case arose out of Ibrahim's teaching performance, the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the appeal.

At the outset, Ibrahim contends that he should have been provided with written standards by which the quality of his performance would be judged. However, he must have been aware that it is unacceptable for a teacher to lose control over the students in his classroom. Proofs strongly establish that Ibrahim's supervisors repeatedly brought his deficiencies in class management to his attention, both verbally and in the form of written evaluations. Ibrahim's protestation that he did not know the expectations to which he would be held is unsupported by the record. Instead, the evidence shows that Ibrahim's problems persisted after he received detailed explanations of his shortcomings and had ample opportunity to confer with his evaluator.

Nor were Ibrahim's troubles caused by inadequate support from his supervisors. To the contrary, Bennett did what he reasonably could to suggest better approaches and encourage improvement, without interfering in Ibrahim's relationship with his students. Similarly, Ibrahim cannot put the blame on his students. None of the other teachers encountered the same degree of resistance and disinterest from their students.

In reviewing increment withholding cases, it must be remembered that "the purpose of the statute is "to reward only those who have contributed to the educational process thereby encouraging high standards of performance." Bernards Twp., 79 N.J. at 321. Put another way, an annual increment is not a statutory right, but a reward for good performance. North Plainfield, 96 N.J. at 594. Under the factual circumstances present here, petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that the Board acted unreasonably when it voted to withhold his salary increment.

Order

It is ORDERED that the relief requested by petitioner is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the Board's excercise of its statutory authority to withhold petitioner's salary increment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated in the initial decision, and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizen appealed Board Secretary's determination not to seek removal from ballot of candidate for Board membership whose nominating petition included signatures of persons who were not registered to vote on the last day for submission of petitions but who registered prior to the last date for remediation of defective petitions.

Commissioner found that N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12, remediation of defective nominating petitions, does not permit corrections that would have the effect, by validating otherwise deficient signatures, of adding signatures contrary to the express language of that statute. (Sokolosky, Brodsky, Buono)

Commissioner directed removal of candidate's name from ballot.

For Respondent Board of Education and Board Secretary, Gary D. Wodlinger, Esq. (Lipman, Antonelli, Batt, Dunlap, Wodlinger & Gilson)

For Individual Respondent, Marlyn L. Newcomer, Pro Se

This matter came before the Commissioner of Education on March 4, 1994, by way of a petition filed by a resident of the Pennsville school district who sought to compel the Board Secretary not to place the name of a candidate for Board membership on the ballot at the 1994 annual school election on grounds that the candidate's nominating petitions were invalid. Specifically, it was alleged that three signers of the candidate's petition were not registered to vote, thereby bringing the number of valid signatures below the required statutory minimum for nomination to Board candidacy.

In accordance with an expedited schedule established to permit a prompt ruling on this matter, answers and statements of position were duly filed by respondents and, no facts being in dispute, the record was closed on March 16, 1994.

The facts of this matter as stated by petitioner, with respondents' concurrence, are as follows:

> 1. On Thursday, February 24, 1994, petitioner requested copies of the petitions filed by candidates for the Pennsville Board of Education from Robert A. Peddle, Board Secretary. Jones made this request for the purpose of verifying that petitions had the required number of signatures (10) as prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9. Copies of all petitions were duly provided to petitioner.
>
> 2. After inspecting all petitions for signatures of registered voters, Jones found the petition of candidate Marlyn L. Newcomer to contain, among its twelve signatories, the signatures of three people (Diane Sheriff, Benjamin Sheriff and Linda Shinn) who were not registered to vote.
>
> 3. On March 1, 1994, 49 days prior to the election, petitioner submitted a letter to the Board Secretary formally contesting Newcomer's petition. Included therewith was a letter from the Registrar of the Salem County Board of Elections certifying that the Sheriffs and Shinn were not registered to vote. On that same date, the Board Secretary notified Newcomer that his petition had been contested and why.
>
> 4. Newcomer then registered the Sheriffs at the Board of Elections, and later on March 1, notified the Board Secretary of such registration. (The Sheriffs' March 1 registration was further confirmed by letter from the Registrar dated March 3, 1994.) After consultation with the Board Attorney, the Board Secretary determined that Newcomer's petition was valid as its defects had been timely remedied pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12.
> 5. Petitioner was apprised of the ruling and advised of his right to appeal to the Commissioner. The within proceedings then ensued.

Petitioner argues that Newcomer's nominating petition cannot be accepted as valid because N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9 and 18A:14-10 plainly require the signatures of ten qualified voters, and in order for voters to be qualified, they must be registered. Petitioner further argues that, once the submission date for nominating petitions has passed, insufficient signatures cannot be remedied by subsequent registration of the signers, as N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 expressly excludes from the purview of remediable defects anything that would work to add signatures to a petition.

Respondents argue that there is no statutory requirement that the signer of a nominating petition be registered to vote prior to the deadline for submission of petitions; rather, the law requires them to sign a statement that they are qualified to vote in the district. When it was determined that the contested signatories in this matter were in fact not registered to vote, that defect was cured prior to the end of the 49th day before the election, consistent with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12. Respondents contend that the benchmark case in matters of this type, Kumpa v. Page, infra, can be distinguished from the situation herein in that the defect in that case (disenfranchisement) could not be remedied. Respondents further contend that registration of the Sheriffs did not work to add signatures to an otherwise deficient nominating petition, as the Sheriffs were among the twelve original signatories.

Upon review of this matter, the Commissioner finds that the question of law posed by petitioner, i.e., can defects in nominating signatures be remedied once the deadline for submission of such petitions has passed, has been specifically addressed in prior decisional law which is directly applicable to the facts herein.

In the matter of William D. Sokolosky v. Helen Cheloc, Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, et al., Union County, 1989 S.L.D. 1434, among other issues, the Commissioner expressly considered whether defects of the type raised herein (voter registration status of nominating petition signatories) could be remedied under the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12. Reversing the findings and conclusions of the ALJ on this issue, which were similar to the position taken by respondents herein, the Commissioner held that "none of the defects on [the disputed] nominating petitions could have been cured without adding names, which would thereby constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12." Id., at 1449-50. The same question was addressed by inference in Stephen Brodsky v. Board of Education of the Borough of Florham Park, et al., Morris County, 1991 S.L.D. 648, and directly in Frank L. Buono, Board of Education of the Township of Commercial, Cumberland County, v. Terence Coursey, Sr., 1991 S.L.D. 672. In both cases, the Commissioner found the prohibition of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 to be applicable regardless of whether the remedy sought was to add new signatures or to correct defects in signatures already obtained. Finally, respondents' attempt to rely on the distinction between this matter and Kumpa v. Page, 178 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div. 1981), i.e., on the distinction between a disenfranchised voter and a merely unregistered one, cannot succeed in that the remedy sought in Kumpa was to add signatures, not remedy deficient ones; therefore, the court's analysis never reached to the question of remediation under N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 and its silence cannot be construed as meaningful in the present context.

Accordingly, in that N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 does not permit corrections that would have the effect, by validating otherwise deficient signatures, of adding signatures contrary to the express language of that statute, petitioner has prevailed in his appeal and the Secretary of the Pennsville Board of Education is directed to remove the name of respondent Marlyn L. Newcomer from the ballot of duly nominated candidates for the 1994 annual school election.

TOMS RIVER BOARD OF EDUCATION,
Respondent.

PRMcK, pro se for petitioners

Thomas E. Monahan, Esq., for respondent (Gilmore and Monahan, attorneys)

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, DPMcK, is the daughter of PRMcK and CMMcK and an 11th grade student in respondent Toms River Board of Education's ("BOE's") Toms River High School East ("TRHSE").

After DPMcK wrote a fictitious "obituary" describing the killing of a fellow student and cruelly ridiculing the fellow student, the BOE determined that she should serve an "in-school" suspension of three days.

DPMcK contends that (1) the suspension began without written notification and, therefore, violates the TRHSE "Student-Parent Handbook"; (2) the suspension is "based upon [a] personality conflict between [DPMcK] and [the] applying administrator" and constitutes wrongfully disparate treatment, compared to "other students involved [in the fictitious obituary incident who] were not punished at all"; (3) the suspension applies punishment "based upon the handicapped condition of [PRMcK]" (he is in a wheelchair) and, therefore, violates the petitioners' civil rights; and (4) the school system has changed DPMcK's class schedule without cause and it has refused to respond to her parents' request to explain why the change was made.

The BOE denies any wrongdoing and alleges that the obituary constituted a good cause for suspension. The BOE also alleges (1) it did offer written notice of the suspension, but DPMcK refused it; (2) DPMcK received discipline appropriate for her wrongful conduct; (3) the discipline has nothing to do with PRMcK's "handicap"; and (4) any change in DPMcK's schedule was reasonable and necessary. Finally, the BOE submits that DPMcK has failed to meet her burden of persuasion necessary for restraint of the BOE's decision to impose the suspension.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The TRHSE 1993-94 "Student-Parent Handbook," relative to "Suspension and Expulsion/Pupil Due Process, Board of Education Policy" states:

> While the Board believes that positive approaches to acceptable behaviors are usually more effective, it is sometimes necessary to penalize pupils for violations of school regulations to ensure the good order of the school and to teach them the consequences of inappropriate behavior.
>
> Pupils who indulge in inappropriate behavior may be suspended or expelled. Inappropriate behavior includes, but is not limited to:
>
> A. Continued and willful disobedience;
>
> B. Open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person having authority over a pupil;
>
> C. Actions that constitute a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other pupils; . . .
>
> * * *
>
> In-School Suspension
>
> The Board directs the administration to arrange facilities for in-school suspension whenever possible. Pupils will be required to abide by all the rules and regulations set down by the faculty members who are responsible for in-school suspension.
>

Procedures

Administration has established, and the Board has approved, specific procedures for dealing with suspension cases. Regulations ensuring due process to all pupils before a suspension is imposed have been developed with the advise of the Board attorney and include:

1. Oral or written notice of the school rules, violation of which will result in punishment.

2. Oral or written notice of the nature of the specific violation and the intended punishment shall be given the student and parent.

3. The opportunity for the student to state his position to the appropriate administrator.

4. If the student denies the charge, an explanation of the evidence of the violation upon which the school authority is relying will be offered.

5. Written notification shall be given to the student and mailed to the parent when a suspension is invoked.

6. An avenue of appeal is provided through the principal to the Superintendent's Office and the Board of Education in the form of hearings. Written notice regarding the availability of the hearing process shall be given to the pupil and his/her parents.

7. A student may appeal a suspension or expulsion decision of the Board of Education to the Commissioner of Education. Appeal from a decision of the Commissioner is to the State Board of Education. Decision of the State Board are reviewable by the courts.

* * *

Each pupil shall be afforded an informal hearing before the suspension or, if circumstances prohibit, as soon as possible after the suspension except that, when extraordinary circumstances involving the health and safety of the pupil or others in the school require immediate exclusion, the hearing may be delayed to such time as circumstances permit. An informal hearing consists of a conference between an administrator and the pupil, with or without the parent. During the conference, the specific charges will be discussed, as well as any evidence which supports these charges. The pupil has the right to discuss these with the administrator and offer his/her version of the incident. Pupils suspended for a period of time longer than a short-term suspension (less than ten school days) shall be afforded a formal hearing (see Due Process Procedures) before the Board of Education which shall take place not later than 21 days after the suspension begins.

During the school week of December 6 through 10, 1994, DPMcK wrote a ficitious "obituary" of PB, a classmate. It stated the following:

> OBITUARIES
>
>
> [P.B.] dies at the age of 16. She was shot in the head and slaughter like a cow. (moo, moo!) Her schoolmates did this to her. (schoomate sayings:) "I hope she rots in hell." "She was known for her big nose." (oink!, oink!) "Thank god she is gone now we can have a pig free school." "My dog was cuter then her." The people she left behind was people that she payed to be her friend. "She cannot sing on key either." "She sings like Naomi Rosen, through her nose."
>
> Editor: D.P.J.M.
>
> Have a nice time in Hell!

A classmate delivered the "obituary" to PB and PB and her parents were sufficiently distressed by it to contact TRHSE administrators.

On December 9, 1994, in school, Thomas Azzolini, Assistant Principal of TRHSE spoke to DPMcK about the "obituary"; determined that it constituted "threatening/degrading remarks written about another student"; determined that DPMcK should be "suspended"; and determined that DPMcK could "not return [to school] until [there was a] parent conference after December 14th." Mr. Azzolini's record shows he telephone the McKs' home (about the suspension), however, there was "no answer." See P-4. DRMcK disputes that.

On December 10, 1994, DPMcK appeared at TRHSE and, consistent with his earlier determination, Mr. Azzolini "asked [her] to leave" and added a day to the earlier suspension. Also on December 10, 1994, DPMcK's parents learned of the suspension.

On December 13, 1993 DPMcK's parents met with Mr. Azzolini and John R. Garrabrant, the Senior Assistant Superintendent of the Toms River Regional School System; and copies of the "Student Discipline Referral" forms, describing the "infraction" and discipline, were served upon the McKs. See P-4, P-4 and P-7. (Mr. Azzolini contends that, because, on December 9, 1993, DPMcK "walked out of [his] office" he could not serve her with a Student Discipline Referral form prepared that day. See P-8).

During this period, the McKs also challenged the amendment of DPMcK's class schedule, which had occurred earlier in the 1993-94 school year. See P-9.

On December 13 or 15, 1994, the McKs appealed to the BOE to reverse the administrators' determination that DPMcK should serve a three day suspension for writing the "obituary." However, during the BOE's December 18, 1994 meeting, the matter was heard and the BOE affirmed the administrators.

The BOE, by its attorney, advised the McKs that, if there were an appeal to the Commissioner of Education, the BOE would refrain from imposing the suspension until the Commissioner's decision on the matter and, by petition dated February 28, 1994, the McKs appealed the matter. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, P-10 and P-10a. However, by letter dated March 10, 1994, the Department notified the McK's that their petition was deficient (i.e., that it failed to clearly state any claim). See P-12.

On March 18, 1994, the McKs' "Amended Petition" and "Motion for Emergent Relief" were filed with the Department. See P-13 and P-14.

In the meanwhile, TRHSE has forwarded to the McK's copies of DPMcK's French tests, on which she has written, among other things" I hate this class" and "Boring." See P-15.

To date, DPMcK has served only one day of the suspension and the TRHSE administrators have provided that the remaining days may be "in school" suspension, meaning the following: DPMcK will be transported to and from a BOE facility other than TRHSE, where certified teachers will have her regular teachers' course assignments and will work with her on them.

On March 18, 1994, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") where it was filed as a contested case. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b).

On March 21, 1994, the McKs' motion for emergent relief was argued in the OAL, with some testimony being taken.

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision on motion of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners excepted to the ALJ's determination by telefaxed letter March 22, 1994.

Upon review of the record and consideration of petitioners' arguments on exception, which reach to potential damage to D.P. McK.'s standing and reputation and to the Board's alleged failure to demonstrate that she posed a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other pupils, the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ for the reasons stated by him in the initial decision and order. Under the factual circumstances and controlling law and policies herein, and given that petitioners can be vindicated and D.P. McK.'s record expunged should they prevail on the merits, petitioners have clearly failed to meet the burden required of them under Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) so as to warrant stay of the Board's actions while plenary appeal of this matter is pending.

Accordingly, the order of the Office of Administrative Law denying emergent relief is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. The remainder of D.P. McK.'s suspension is to be served as indicated and this matter is to proceed to hearing consistent with the directives of the ALJ.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition of Mitch Geier, dated March 16, 1994, filed with the Office of the Commissioner of the State Department of Education. In this petition, the petitioner asked for emergency relief, specifically access to the minutes of certain executive/caucus meetings of the respondent. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 17, 1994, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:15B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -15.

The hearing was scheduled for March 23, 1994. On that date, the parties conferred and agreed to a settlement. This settlement is set forth in the attached signed consent order, which is fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1;1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore, I ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

As set forth in the consent order, the parties have waived their rights to file exceptions and since this matter involves a request for emergent relief, it is requested that the Commissioner of the Department of Education expedite his review of the matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Association, on behalf of permanent building-based substitutes (PBBS), alleged that all full-time substitutes employed by respondent Board should receive both sick leave and health benefits.

ALJ concluded that the statutory benefits sought in this case were not functionally related or subjectively linked to employment as PBBS. Thus, the 90-day rule did not bar this action. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that the PBBS are "steadily employed" as required under the sick leave statute and as defined by prior cases, and are "employees" under the State Health Benefits Program Act and entitled to participate in the Program. The ALJ granted relief propsectively, as well as retroactively to 90 days prior to the filing of the petition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision.

Record Closed: January 5, 1994 Decided: February 16, 1994

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On January 20, 1993, petitioner, East Orange Education Association on behalf of Permanent School Based Substitutes, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that all full-time substitutes employed by respondent receive both sick leave and health benefits. On March 24, 1993, respondent, East Orange Board of Education (Board), filed an answer setting forth certain affirmative defenses and alleging that the petition of appeal should be dismissed. On March 29, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 27, 1993, at which time the issues were isolated and a hearing scheduled for October 18, 1993, at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102. The hearing was adjourned to November 3, 1993, at which time the parties filed a joint stipulation of facts and determined that no hearing was necessary. The parties filed briefs in this matter, and the record closed on January 5, 1994, after the last submission in this matter.

ISSUES

The parties indicated that the following are the issues in this matter[1]:

1. Are building based substitute teachers entitled to sick leave and/or participation in the State Health Benefits Plan?

2. Is petitioner barred from relief by virtue of the 90-day rule and/or laches?

3. If petitioner prevails, to what relief are the permanent school based substitutes entitled?

STIPULATED FACTS

The relevant facts have been stipulated. The East Orange Public School System has employed permanent building-based substitute teachers for at least the last five 1 The issue, as stated in the prehearing order, as to whether this matter is to be determined through the collective bargaining process and not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education, was determined by the parties not to be an issue in this case.

school years. In June, 1992, PERC certified the East Orange Education Association as the majority representative for those permanent building-based substitutes (PBBS). Prior to this, the daily pay rates and other conditions of employment were unilaterally determined by the Board. (From the time the Board recognized the employee organization, the Board has changed no terms or conditions of employment for the PBBS). The PBBS began their assignments for the 1992-93 school year on or before September 21, 1992. Following their appointments, the PBBS were expected to report for work each school day for the remainder of the school year.

The East Orange Board of Education has never provided PBBS with health benefits or sick leave. The district participates in the State Health Benefits Program. PBBS are employed for one year at a time, as the district's requirements dictate, and are paid only for the days they actually work. They are per diem employees and make less money than regular teachers on a per diem basis. Once designated a PBBS, the individual may, but need not, report for work every school day. The PBBS either replace a regular teacher or receive such other assignment, including being assigned to another building, as directed by the district administration. They are required to possess a county substitute certificate.

Petitioner asserts that respondent's failure to afford the PBBS sick leave and participation in the State Health Benefits Program is in violation of the statutes providing therefor. Respondent contends that this action is barred by the 90-day rule.

DISCUSSION

I. 90-DAY RULE:

The regulation upon which respondent relies, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, provides, in pertinent part:

> (a) To initiate a contested case for the Commissioner's determination of a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws, a petitioner shall serve a copy of a petition upon each respondent. The petitioner then shall file proof of service and the original and two copies of the petition with the Commissioner

> (c) The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education . . . which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education and the courts have previously addressed the applicability of the 90-day rule and other limitation periods as they relate to statutory benefits. In Lavin v. Hackensack Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 145, 150 (1982), the Supreme Court held that the six-year statute of limitations for contract actions was inapplicable to the statutory entitlement of military service credit, because:

> where the benefit is not directly related to the employment service, but is being awarded for a totally unrelated reason, the recipient is truly the beneficiary of a statutory entitlement quite apart from the employment as such.

The issue arose again in North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n. v. Board of Educ. of North Plainfield, 96 N.J. 587 (1984), in which the petitioner sought credit on the salary scale for the time spent on sabbatical. The Court distinguishing Lavin, noted the difference between the military credit statute's mandatory nature and the sabbatical statute's subjectivity based upon an annual evaluation of teacher performance, and it found that the analogy urged by the appellant between the two statutes was invalid. The Court's reasoning is of particular note here:

> The Appellate Division's misperception of the annual increment is relevant to determining the timeliness of the filing of the teachers' petition. If the annual increment were a statutory entitlement, as the Appellate Division concluded, the ninety-day period of limitations contained in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 would not apply, and the petition for prospective relief would have been timely. Because the award of the annual increment is not a matter of statutory right, but is subject to "denial for inefficiency or other good cause," N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, it is subject to the time bar provided in the regulation issued by the Commissioner pursuant to that statute.
> [Id. at 594 (emphasis added).]

Another statutory benefit, because of its subjectivity, was rejected from exemption from the 90-day rule in Polaha v. Buena Regional Sch. Dist., 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div. 1986). There, the Appellate Division found that a teacher's claim to tenure was similar to the claim in North Plainfield and distinguishable from that in Lavin, because: "[t]he rehiring decision necessary to confer tenure is undoubtedly carried out based on evaluation of teacher performance, behavior and efficiency." Id. at 634. See also, Nissman v. Board of Educ. of Tp. of Long Beach Island, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d. (Vol. 4) 621 (Dept. of Education) in which the State Board rejected the exemption argument for tenure claim.

The most recent case involving statutory benefits and the 90-day rule is Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993), in which the Supreme Court discussed the applicability of the 90-day rule to RIF reinstatement rights in light of Lavin, North Plainfield and Polaha. The Court held:

> That there exists a statutory basis for rights on the reduction in the school's work force is not enough to establish a statutory entitlement. Rather, the critical inquiry focuses on whether a "functional relationship" exists between the statutory benefit, the RIF right, and Kaprow's employment as a tenured assistant superintendent in the school district.
> [Id. at 585 (citing Lavin).]

The Court went on to find, similar to the "subjectivity" analysis of the prior cases, that Kaprow's RIF rights were so related to the services he rendered in his employment that the 90-day rule applied:

> Because RIF rights are inextricably tied to employment in a school system and to tenure rights, a "functional relationship" exists between Kaprow's RIF right to preference in reemployment and his service in the school district. Rights resulting from RIFs in local school districts do not constitute a statutory entitlement. The limitations period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), therefore, applied to Kaprow's petition.
> [Id. at 586. See also, Sasse v. Board of Educ. of Pt. Pleasant, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 339, 344 (Dept. of Education), (reaching same conclusion).]

This "functional relationship" or "subjectivity" analysis is, then, the key to determining whether or not the 90-day rule should be applied in the instant case. Petitioner asserts that sick leave and health benefits are more closely analogous to Lavin than the other cases cited above, whereas respondent relies heavily upon North Plainfield.

I am persuaded by petitioner's position. Sick leave and health benefits are not tied to teacher status or performance at all. The only requirement for sick leave eligibility is "steady" employment. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. Participation in the State Health Benefits Program requires "employee" status as defined at N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.26. Clearly, these are not subjective criteria. According to these definitions, janitors and secretaries employed by respondent could well be eligible for these benefits. Thus, there is no "functional relationship" between employment as a PBBS and eligibility for statutory sick leave and health benefits that would cause the 90-day rule to bar this claim. Under the line of Supreme Court cases discussed above, respondent's untimeliness argument must fail.

II. ELIGIBILITY:

At issue is the eligibility of PBBS for sick leave and participation in the State Health Benefits Plan.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2, sick leave allowable statute, provides:

> All persons holding any office, position or employment in all local school districts, regional school districts or county vocational schools of the state who are steadily employed by the board of education or who are protected by tenure in their office, position, or employment under the provisions of this or any other law, except persons in the classified service of the civil service under Title 11, Civil Service, of the Revised Statutes, shall be allowed sick leave with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year. (emphasis added).

The key phrase, "steadily employed," has been considered. See, e.g., Sacharoff v. Board of Educ. of Glen Ridge, 1988 S.L.D. 780, aff'd Comm'r at 785 in which the teacher on one year leave without pay was not "steadily employed;" South Orange-Maplewood Educ. Ass'n v. South Orange-Maplewood BOE, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5941-84 (April 15, 1985) aff'd Comm'r (June 4, 1985) in which it was determined that lunchroom aides and supervisors were "steadily employed" despite working only 1.5 to 3 hours per day and only 167 of 183 days of the school year; Woodbridge Tp. Federation of Teachers v. Board of Educ of Woodbridge, ("Woodbridge I") 1974 S.L.D. 1201 wherein the intent and definition of phrase was discussed and Woodbridge Tp. Federation of Teachers v. Board of Educ. of Woodbridge, ("Woodbridge II") OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3810-80 (Dec. 16, 1980) aff'd Comm'r (Feb. 2, 1981) in which part-time flexible-hour supplemental teachers were not "steadily employed."

The discussions in South Orange and Woodbridge II are instructive here. It is to be observed that Woodbridge II followed prior Commissioner decisions very closely, including Woodbridge I, in holding that "steadily employed" could only mean employment for the entire school year:

> Petitioners are paid on an hourly basis and employed at least one week less than regular classroom teachers in both September and June. For this reason, they do not meet the criteria for being steadily employed as enunciated by the Commissioner in Woodbridge, supra, and in Kearny Education Association, et al. v. Board of Education of the Town of Kearny, Hudson County, 1980 S.L.D. (decided August 27, 1980).
> [Woodbridge II, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3810-10 at 5.]

The ALJ's initial decision in South Orange, however, called such reasoning into question, emphasizing that "duration is not synonymous with constancy." South Orange, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5941-84 at 7. The ALJ found that the Woodbridge I decision, followed in Kearny and Woodbridge II, "grafted an illogical and unjustifiable addition onto the clear and plain language of the statute" by requiring employment for the entire school year. Id. at 8. The Commissioner affirmed, holding,

> The record shows that the lunchroom aides and lunchroom supervisors are employed during the academic year when lunch is served in the elementary schools. Notwithstanding the fact that their work year varies somewhat, approximating two to four weeks less than the number of school days during the academic year, the Commissioner determines that these lunchroom aides and lunchroom supervisors are steadily employed by contract with the Board for a fixed work year pursuant to the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.
> [Id. at 14.]

The South Orange decision, is not only more recent than Woodbridge II and therefore controlling, but also more accurately reflects the statutory purpose. The purpose behind the statute, as the ALJ noted in South Orange, is unambiguous: to grant sick leave benefits to all regular, constant employees, not merely those who happen to work the longest "year." Id. at 8-9. The PBBS in the instant case must be found to be "steadily employed," and thus, entitled to sick leave benefits.

Similarly, the State Health Benefits Program Act , N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.25 to -17.45, defines "employees" as full-time employees subject to the following exemptions:

> the term "employee" shall not include persons employed on a short-term, seasonal, intermittent or emergency basis, persons compensated on a fee basis, persons having less than 2 months of continuous service or persons whose compensation from the State is limited to reimbursement of necessary expenses actually incurred in the discharge of their official duties.
> [N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.26(c).]

Because PBBS are employed more than 20 hours per week, they are considered "full time" employees, by regulation. N.J.A.C. 17:9-4.6(a)1. Since they are full-time employees, and not subject to any of the listed exceptions, they are "employees" under the Act. N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.26(c). The PBBS are, therefore, eligible to enroll in the State Health Benefits Program without charge. N.J.A.C. 17:9-2.1.

III. RELIEF:

The relief granted in cases analogous to the instant matter has been inconsistent. Clearly, full retroactive relief has been granted. See, e.g., Butler v. Board of Educ. of Jersey City, 1974 S.L.D. 890,895; Noorigian v. Board of Educ. of Jersey City, 1972 S.L.D. 266, 272; Fischer v. Board of Educ. of Woodbridge, 1965 S.L.D. 40, 43. However, in the seminal case of Lavin, supra, 90 N.J. at 153-55, laches was found to bar any and all retroactive relief against a local school board. Of interest, in South Orange, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5941-84 at 10, the ALJ ordered that petitioners be credited with accumulated sick days retroactive to 90 days prior to the filing of the petition.

In the instant case, petitioners, contend that the only retroactivity they seek is 90 days prior to the filing of the petition, consistent with South Orange.

In Lavin, the Court noted the pay-as-you go principle of municipal financing, the estimated $4,500,000 in similar claims, and the desirability of a bright line treatment of all cases. Lavin, supra, 90 N.J. at 154. The Court determined that allowing retroactive relief in such cases would cripple local boards of education that were already financially strapped. Ibid.

Here, however, petitioner's suggested relief does not carry with it the crushing weight of years of retroactive liability with which the Court in Lavin was so concerned. Furthermore, the relief suggested comports with that concern as embodied in the 90-day rule, which, although inapplicable here, may still be noticed as an indication of the regulatory body's intent in framing remedies. See also, South Orange, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5941-84 at 10. Finally, the suggested relief fully complies with the Commissioner's affirmance of the ALJ's recommended order in South Orange. Respondent has not argued against the suggested relief. For these reasons, the relief proffered by petitioner is found to be reasonable and acceptable.

It is to be noted that sick days cannot be retroactively compensated, but must be accumulated. Id. at 9. The calculation of accumulated sick days, in the case of persons who work less than the "full school year," is often prorated. Ibid. However, in the similar situation of lunchroom aides and supervisors who worked only slightly fewer days than the academic year, the Commissioner found the difference to be de minimis and ordered the full complement of sick leave days. Id. at 14.

Health benefits, however, must be granted retroactively in the form of compensation for legitimate costs incurred. See, e.g., Fischer, supra, 1965 S.L.D. at 43.

Both sick leave and health benefits are, of course, granted prospectively as well.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that the statutory benefits sought in the instant case are not functionally related or subjectively linked to employment as PBBS. The 90-day rule, therefore, does not bar this action. I further CONCLUDE that the PBBS are "steadily employed," as required under the sick leave statute, and as defined by prior cases. They are, thus, entitled to sick leave benefits. These teachers are also "employees" under the State Health Benefits Program Act, and as such, are entitled to participate in the Program.

I further CONCLUDE that the relief is prospective, as well as retroactive to 90-days prior to the filing of the petition.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is granted. The PBBS are entitled to sick leave benefits and participation in the State Health Benefits Program, prospectively and retroactive to 90 days prior to the filing of the petition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners sought a determination that the awarding of contracts for the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services should be subject to competitive bidding. Respondents contended such services were exempt from competitive bidding as professional services.

ALJ found asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians are regulated by law; however, ALJ found that these positions are not recognized professions in the traditional sense as there is no requirement of prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study. Therefore, ALJ concluded contracts for asbestos safety control monitoring were not exempt from competitive bidding as professional services.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and conclusion that asbestos safety control monitoring services were not exempt from competitive bidding requirements under the professional services exemption set forth in the Public Schools Contracts Law. The Commissioner, however, noted the paucity of the record with respect to procedural agreements preceding the motion and cross-motion for summary decision and the opposing representations by the parties with respect to the necessity for adjudication of the issues left unaddressed by this decision. Thus, the Commissioner remanded the matter for the purpose of either setting forth on the record the reasons why these issues were properly left unaddressed by the initial decision, which would then remain as the final resolution of this matter, or ascertaining whether the services at issue were exempt from bidding under the "extraordinary unspecifiable services" exception of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq. and the applicability of the affirmative defenses advanced by respondents.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a petition on July 29, 1992, alleging that respondent school districts employed respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. to survey school buildings for the purpose of locating and identifying asbestos containing materials and alleging that following this respondent school districts thereafter awarded to respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. the contracts to provide asbestos safety control monitoring for the removal of asbestos without competitive bidding, claiming them to be either a professional service or an extraordinary unspecifiable service. Petitioner seeks a determination that the awarding of contracts for the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services shall be subject to competitive bidding.

The respondents filed answers and on November 18, 1992, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes indicated that the Commissioner of Education had determined not to consider this matter for declaratory judgment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 but rather transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. Thereafter, the matter was transmitted to the OAL on November 19, 1992, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on December 18, 1992. Following this, an in-person prehearing conference was scheduled for February 17, 1993. This conference was converted to a status conference at the suggestion and request of the attorneys for the respective parties, and at the conference all parties agreed that a hearing could be dispensed with and the matter could properly be disposed of by motion for summary decision. Following this, the parties submitted the motions and supporting documentation set forth in the Appendix.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The essential issue to be resolved in this matter is whether contracts for asbestos safety control monitoring are required to be awarded by means of competitive bidding or whether they are exempt from such competitive bidding as a professional service.

The essential facts in this matter are not disputed. The certification of Terry Schulze, President of respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. (Exhibit R-EC-3) indicates that in 1986, the Federal Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA) was adopted, and implementing regulations were promulgated the following year. Under these regulations, all school districts are required to designate an individual responsible for compliance with the regulations and all school buildings are required to be inspected for asbestos containing material. In the event that asbestos containing material is found, an AHERA management plan is required to be prepared for submission to the State setting forth the details concerning the inspections, the locations of asbestos or suspected asbestos containing materials, details of response actions or preventive measurers which are recommended, and plans for reinspection. The AHERA regulations also require each school district to establish response actions which must be designed by an Accredited Project Abatement Designer and to begin to implement the management plan by July 1989. Every six months after the management plan is in effect, the school district is required to conduct visual inspections at buildings at which asbestos or suspected asbestos containing material was found for changes in its status and to update is management plan accordingly. At least once every three years, all buildings are to be reinspected and new reports are required to be prepared.

The certification of Dr. Schulze indicates the various services provided by Environmental Connection to school districts in performing these functions. It further indicates that various State and Federal rules and regulations apply when a decision has been reached by a client to initiate asbestos abatement. The regulations require that Environmental Protection Agency certified abatement program designer design the project and that specific air tests, based on the size of the project be utilized for clearance of the work area upon completion.

The Asbestos Hazard Abatement Subcode, N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.1 to -8.24 sets forth the standards and procedures for all work involving asbestos containing material. Dr. Schulze indicated that it requires that an authorized asbestos safety control monitor prepare detailed plans and specifications to insure that the work area is prepared correctly, the asbestos containing material is removed properly by qualified personnel, engineering controls are in place to insure that adjacent areas of the building are not contaminated by the removal process, and the project is completed safely and efficiently.

Respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. asserts in the affidavit of Dr. Schulze, and petitioner agrees, that the services which are the subject of this proceeding is described by Dr. Schulze beginning at paragraph 26 of his certification (Exhibit R-EC-3). It is asserted that the asbestos safety technician supervises the preparation of the job, including setting up barriers, containment, etc. Once a job is underway, the asbestos safety technician monitors air, continually supervises the asbestos removal contractors, and take daily air samples. These samples are read by accredited laboratory personnel in accordance with the subcode. At the conclusion of the project, the monitor supervises a breakdown of the abatement project once air samples are determined to be acceptable. At that point, the monitor must file a final report with the Department of Community Affairs in which it certifies to the Department completion of the project, that the project has been completed in accordance with the subcode, that a final inspection has been completed by the asbestos safety technician which revealed no visible signs of asbestos containing material, that air monitoring disclosed acceptable levels. The monitor also request a certificate of occupancy.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

In deciding whether or not the monitoring of asbestos removal is a professional service, it must be determined whether it fits within the definition of "professional service" as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2 of the Public School Contracts Law. This provides:

> "Professional services" means services rendered or performed by a person authorized by law to practice a recognized profession and whose practice is regulated by law and the performance of which services requires knowledge of an advanced type in a field of learning acquired by a prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study as distinguished from general academic instruction or apprenticeship and training. Professional services also means services rendered in the performance of work that is original and creative in character in a recognized field of artistic endeavor.

The Asbestos Hazard Abatement Subcode, N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.1 to -8.22 sets forth the procedures as well as licensing and other requirements for asbestos hazard abatement. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(b) authorizes the establishment of an asbestos safety control monitor. It requires that such a monitor apply for authorization by submitting an application with the required fee and other additional required information to the Department. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(b)4 requires, among other items, a statement of the policies and procedures of the applicant for the hiring, training, education and supervision of all technical personnel, the prior experience of the applicant in performing similar or related functions and the capability of the applicant to review the plans and specifications and to inspect asbestos abatement work to insure that the completed work is in compliance with the subcode.

N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(c)3 provides that each asbestos safety control monitor shall have the following responsibilities:

i. To maintain an adequate number of certified staff to enforce the Asbestos Hazard Abatement Subcode for the projects contracted;
ii. To review and approve the plans and specifications, release them in writing, and forward them to the enforcing agency for issuance of a permit.
iii. To be subject to the department's rulings, directives and orders;
iv. To provide adequate supervision to its employees to ensure conformance to the provisions of this subchapter;
v. To carry liability insurance equal to that required of private enforcing agencies pursuant to N.J.A.C. 5:23-4.14(a)5;
vi. To process and return all documents, plans, specifications, and applications within the time frame specified by this subchapter;
vii. To provide technical assistance to the building owner in the preparation of a construction permit application;
viii. To provide written notification of the start of a project to the department a minimum of 10 days prior to the start of the project and telephone notification to the department by the asbestos safety technician on the first day of the start of the project.
ix. To perform all required inspections and reinspections pursuant to this subchapter.
x. To perform all tests required by this subchapter;
xi. To give testimony o at a hearing or in court, as required by the construction official or the Department;
xii. To prepare all reports required by this subchapter or as may be required by the Department from time to time;
xiii. To meet its obligations under its contract with the building owner;
xiv. To issue and maintain documentation and certification, including, but not limited to, plan release, permit application and permit issued by the enforcing agency (if a firm is the duly authorized agent of the owner), variations submitted, written notices, daily logs, inspection records, observations, calculations, backup records, air monitoring results and a separate listing of any contractor deficiencies observed during the course of the work;

xv. To ensure the attendance of all technical and supervisory employees at required training and orientation programs; and

xvi. Upon completion of an asbestos hazard abatement project, the asbestos safety control monitor shall submit a final comprehensive report consisting of, but not limited to, plan release, permit application and permit issued by the enforcing agency (if a firm is the duly authorized agency of the owner), variations submitted, written notice to proceed, written notice to remove barriers, certificate or completion, violation notices, daily logs, inspection records, observations, calculations, backup records, air monitoring results and a separate listing of any contractor deficiencies observed during the course of the work. The final report shall be submitted to the building owner within 60 days of the issuance of the Certificate of Completion. A copy of the final report shall be made available to the Department within 10 days of written request.

As I understand it, the on-site reporting and record keeping functions of an asbestos safety control monitor are carried out by an asbestos safety technician. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.10(a) sets forth the requirements for obtaining a certification as an asbestos safety technician. Generally stated, these requirements for certification are:

1. At least 24 college credits in academic sciences including biology, chemistry and other specified sciences or related fields, or one year of work experience which included performing environmental assessment activities which may be substituted for this education requirement;

2) Successful completion of a course in air monitoring methods consisting of a minimum of 30 contact hours that shall include hands-on experience with using and calibrating various types of air monitoring equipment; or six months of work experience performing air monitoring including at least 30 hours of on-the-job training which may be substituted for education.

3) Successful completion of asbestos worker/supervisors training course approved by the New Jersey Department of Health and one year of experience in monitoring asbestos abatement activities, or six months of experience monitoring asbestos abatement if the individual is an industrial hygienist.

4) Successful completion of a course for asbestos safety technicians approved by the New Jersey Department of Health.

5) Successful passing of an examination for asbestos safety technicians approved by the New Jersey Department of Health. An asbestos safety technician certificate is to be renewed every two years.

N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.10(d) sets forth the duties of the asbestos safety technician. These duties may be summarized as follows, and include:

1. Performance of all air sampling as delineated in N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.21, and compliance with the requirement to be on site from the initial preparation of the work area through the approved final visual inspection, and the performance of all inspections pursuant to N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.7.

2. Directing the actions of the contractor verbally and in writing to insure compliance with the subcode.

3. To calculate, based on the actual available output of the air filtering units the required number of the air filtration units for each work area and informing the enforcing agency in the event of the failure to correct.

4. Monitoring of pressure differential by digital manometers or other approved low pressure monitoring devices for each work area at the beginning of each work shift and every four hours thereafter and at the end of the contractor's work day. The pressure differential is required to meet the minimum requirement set forth in N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.15(b)9 or 8.17(d)6i or 8.19(c)4ii, as appropriate.

5. Ensuring that the contractor's smoke tests all the glovebags after they are attached and before the commencement of work.

6. Immediately directing corrective action and verbally reporting results within 24 hours to the contractor upon receipt of testing results indicating that concentrations above acceptance criteria have occurred during the abatement project.

7. Monitoring the removal of all asbestos contaminated waste from the work area to ensure that it takes place in conformance with N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.22.

8. Keeping an up-to-date and comprehensive daily log of on site activities to be updated continuously.

9. Preparing a comprehensive final report to include daily logs, required inspection reports, observations and air monitoring results. The report is to be made a part of the official record filed by the asbestos safety control monitor.

After reviewing the foregoing responsibilities and requirements applicable to the licensing of and the services provided by asbestos safety control monitor and technician, it is now necessary to analyze these requirements and determine whether they are professional services as that term is defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2h.

Petitioners point out that the providing of electrical inspections pursuant to the Electrical Subcode of the Uniform Construction Code, N.J.A.C. 5:23-3.16, has been held not to be exempt from bidding and are not professional services under the Local Public Contracts Law, citing Burlington Tp. v. Middle Dep't Inspection Agency, 175 N.J. Super. 624 (Law Div. 1980). In Burlington Tp., the Court concluded that electrical subcode inspection services are not professional services. The Court applied the professional services definition contained in the Local Public Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-2(6). It indicated that a professional service involves specialized knowledge, labor or skill that is predominantly mental or intellectual, rather than physical or manual, and this simply does not apply to electrical subcode officials. The Court noted that its conclusion was reinforced by the fact that the licensing requirements for electrical inspectors do not require a prolonged formalized course of specialized instruction and study. N.J.A.C. 5:23-5.12.

Petitioners argue that an asbestos safety technician is not a recognized profession. They point out that the licensing requirements as set forth in Burlington Tp. for an electrical inspector are more extensive and restrictive than the requirements for licensing of asbestos safety technicians. Asbestos safety technicians need only one year of experience. Electrical subcode inspectors without a bachelor's degree in architecture or engineering needed ten years of experience at that time, Burlington Tp., at 632. The monitoring of asbestos removal is primarily physical and manual and not predominantly mental or intellectual. Therefore, it is not a professional service as that term is defined by the governing statute. In addition, the fact that the licensing requirements do not require a prolonged formalized course of specialized instruction and study confirms this conclusion.

Respondent Environmental Connection argues that petitioner's attempt to limit the meaning of the term "professional services" was rejected by the Supreme Court in Autotote Ltd. v. N.J. Sports & Expo. Auth, 85 N.J. 363 (1981). In that case, the plaintiff sought to invalidate a contract awarded without bidding to one of its competitors for installation and service of betting machines at the Meadowlands race track. The statute at issue, N.J.S.A. 5:10-21, exempted from public bidding "services of a professional nature". In rejecting the effort to limit professional services to the traditional categories, the Supreme Court concluded that the contract in question involves the inextricable integration of a sophisticated computer system and services of such a technical and scientific nature as to constitute "professional services" within the statutory exception to the requirement of public bidding, set forth in N.J.S.A. .5:10-21. The Court went on to say that the term "professional services" is no longer limited to the traditional professions such as law and medicine, and if the law is to keep pace with scientific developments in business and commerce, it must adapt statutory provisions, such as the one in question, to the realities of the day. Id. at 371.

Respondent also points out that in a somewhat different context, the definition of professional services was discussed in Atlantic Mut. Ins. v. Continental Nat. Am. Ins., 123 N.J. Super. 241 (Law Div. 1973). In order to determine the meaning of ascertain clauses of an insurance policy, the court stated:

> A standard test as to what does fall within the meaning of a professional act is set forth in 7A Appleman Insurance Law and Practice, section 4504.3 (1972 Supp. at 77).

Applying that definition to the case before it, the court in Atlantic Mut. concluded that the services at issue were professional because they involved "supervision" which was "predominantly mental or intellectual. It required observation and constant evaluation of the work being done." 123 N.J. Super. at 247.

Respondent also relies on Erlich v. First Nat'l Bank of Princeton, 208 N.J. Super 264 (Law Div. 1984), holding that investment advisors could not contractually exculpate themselves from liability because, having held themselves out as "having specialized knowledge and skill," they fell within the public policy of the State that "professionals be held to the standards of their profession. . . ." 208 N.J. Super. at 287-288.

Based upon the foregoing, respondent argues that the nature of the services performed by Environmental Connection and its staff, and the licensing and training required to perform those services are of such a technical and scientific nature as to constitute professional service in keeping with the Autotote, Atlantic Mutual Ins. and the other referred decisions.

However, I am of the opinion that the Autotote Ltd. decision does not apply to the present matter. In that matter, the Court was interpreting and applying the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority Law, N.J.S.A. 5:10-21, and stated that the legislative definition of professional services in the Local Public Contracts Law was found not to be helpful in ascertaining the scope of the exception in the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority Law (85 N.J. at 371).

I find it to be of great significance that the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority Law exempts "services of a professional nature" from public bidding, N.J.S.A. 5:10-21, and does not define what is meant by that term. In the present matter, the statutory definition is stated and is relatively clear and explicit. It is virtually identical with the definition set forth in the Local Public Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-2(b).

In his certification in opposition to petitioners' Cross-Motion (Exhibit R-EC-8), Dr. Schulze alleges in paragraph 8 that the asbestos safety control monitor has a much wider range of responsibilities than an asbestos safety technician. He asserts that an asbestos safety control monitor is responsible for assessment of the area to be abated, preparation of plans and specifications, acquisition of permits and variances, assistance in the selection of abatement contractors, and acting as arbitrator in disputes between the contractor and client. However, I have been unable to locate any provisions of the Asbestos Hazard Abatement Subcode which imposes these responsibilities and duties on the monitor.

After considering all of the foregoing, I FIND that asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians are regulated by law. However, I FIND that these positions are not recognized professions in the traditional sense. I FIND that performance of the duties and responsibilities of an asbestos safety control monitor and an asbestos control technician requires specialized knowledge of an advanced type. However, I FIND that such performance does not require knowledge of an advanced type in a field of learning acquired by a prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study as distinguished from general academic instruction or apprenticeship and training. There is no indication in the record that the performance of these position requires anything more than 24 college credits in specified academic sciences, successful completion of a course in air monitoring methods or six months of specified experience, successful completion of training courses for asbestos worker/supervisors or specified experience, and of training course for asbestos safety technicians, and passing the asbestos safety technician examination. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.10(a). There is no indication in the regulations that in order to receive an authorization as an asbestos safety control monitor there is a requirement for additional knowledge of an advanced type or a prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study over and above that required for an asbestos safety technician. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(b).

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that contracts for asbestos safety control monitoring are required to be awarded by means of competitive bidding and are not except for such bidding as professional services.

DECISION AND ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that contracts for asbestos safety control monitoring shall be awarded by means of competitive bidding and are not exempt from such bidding as professional services. It is further ORDERED that respondent's motion for Summary Decision is DENIED and petitioners' Cross-Motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PETITIONERS,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF RUMSON, MONMOUTH COUNTY, ET AL.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions of respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. (hereinafter "ECI") and those of respondent Board of Education of the City of Long Branch (hereinafter "the Board") were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Petitioners' counsel filed an affidavit stating that he did not receive respondent's exceptions until March 11, 1994, therefore, his reply exceptions filed on March 18, 1994 were deemed timely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

ECI's exceptions contend that the initial decision purports to resolve the entire litigation in this matter while, in fact, a large number of other issues raised in the pleadings of the parties remain unaddressed. It argues that the parties, with the consent of the ALJ, agreed that discovery in this matter should be held in abeyance and a summary decision motion submitted on a singular key issue, i.e., whether asbestos safety control monitoring services were "professional services" as that term is used in education law and, therefore, exempt from competitive bidding. Further, if the ALJ determined that such services were professional the case would be concluded; if not, discovery would proceed and the remaining issues would be adjudicated.

Specifically, ECI contends that issues yet unresolved include whether asbestos safety control monitoring services are exempt from bidding under the "extraordinary unspecifiable services" exception in education law, and certain affirmative defenses raised in respondents' pleadings, i.e., statute of limitations, standing, timeliness under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and the doctrine of equitable estoppel. ECI urges that even if the decision with respect to professional services is accepted, respondents must be given an opportunity to adduce evidence on these outstanding issues.

The Board's exceptions join in the arguments advanced by ECI above. Further, it calls attention to the fact that the initial decision fails to address the resultant status of all existing contracts which have been awarded under the professional services exception to the Public Schools Contracts Law and urges that if the Commissioner determines to accept the ALJ's decision, he provide that same is to operate prospectively from a date certain.

Petitioners' reply exceptions argue that it was recognized early in the litigation of this matter that use of the extraordinary unspecified services exemption was indefensible because the work is not extraordinary and is performed pursuant to written specifications so it is not unspecified.

Petitioners next contend that the procedural exceptions being raised by respondents after an unfavorable decision are frivolous. It avers that when the matter was submitted to the ALJ for resolution by summary decision, there was no reservation of rights for respondents that would allow a subsequent nullification of an unfavorable decision on procedural grounds such as standing.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner fully agrees with and adopts as his own the ALJ's findings and conclusion that asbestos safety control monitoring services are not exempt from competitive bidding requirements under the professional services exemption set forth in the Public Schools Contracts Law for the reasons well stated in the initial decision.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Commissioner also notes the paucity of the record with respect to the procedural agreements preceding the motion and cross-motion for summary decision in this matter and the opposing representations by the parties with respect to the necessity for adjudication of the issues left unaddressed by this decision. The Commissioner, therefore, finds and determines that it is necessary for this matter to be remanded for the purpose of either setting forth on the record the reasons why these issues were properly left unaddressed by the initial decision, which would then remain as the final resolution of this matter, or ascertaining whether the services at issue herein are exempt from bidding under the "extraordinary unspecifiable services" exception of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq. and the applicability of the affirmative defenses advanced by respondents.

Accordingly, the instant matter is hereby remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings consistent with the decision herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners sought a determination that the awarding of contracts for the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services should be subject to competitive bidding.

ALJ found asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians are regulated by law; however, ALJ found that these positions are not recognized professions in the traditional sense as there is no requirement of prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study. Therefore, ALJ concluded contracts for asbestos safety control monitoring were not exempt from competitive bidding as professional services.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and conclusion that asbestos safety control monitoring services were not exempt from competitive bidding requirements under the professional services exemption set forth in the Public School Contracts Law. Commissioner, however, noting the paucity of the record with respect to the necessity for adjudication of the issues left unaddressed by the initial decision, remanded the matter for the purpose of either setting forth on the record the reasons why these issues were properly left unaddressed or ascertaining whether the services at issue were exempt from bidding under the "extraordinary unspecifiable services" exemption of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq.

On remand, the ALJ determined that petitioners had standing as interested parties in this matter; that respondents' request to dismiss the petition was appropriately denied; that the services were not exempt from public bidding requirements as extraordinary unspecifiable services; and that, as a matter of public interest, this action should not be barred by application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision on remand as his own.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners filed a petition alleging that the respondent school districts employed respondent Environmental Connection, Inc., to survey school buildings for the purpose of locating and identifying asbestos containing materials therein and alleging that following this, the respondent school districts awarded to respondent Environmental Connection, Inc., the contracts to provide asbestos safety control monitoring for the removal of asbestos without competitive bidding, claiming them to be either a professional service or an extraordinary unspecifiable service. Petitioner sought a determination that the awarding of contracts for the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services is subject to competitive bidding.

The respondents filed answers and the Commissioner of the Department of Education originally transmitted that matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. That matter was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9072-92.

By an Initial Decision dated February 17, 1994, summary decision was granted in favor of petitioners by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). In that decision the ALJ concluded that asbestos safety control monitoring services are not exempt from competitive bidding requirements under the professional services exemption set forth in the Public Schools Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2.

The Commissioner of the Department of Education, by decision dated March 31, 1994, fully agreed with and adopted the holding set forth in the Initial Decision of February 17, 1994, that these services are not exempt from competitive bidding as professional services. However, the Commissioner also noted the paucity of the record with respect to the necessity for adjudication of the issues left unaddressed by the Initial Decision. Therefore, the Commissioner remanded the matter for the purpose of setting forth on the record the reasons why these issues were left unaddressed, or for the purpose of addressing these additional issues. The matter was remanded to the OAL on April 12, 1994 for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned ALJ on April 15, 1994. It was then scheduled for hearing on August 18 and 19, 1994, but these hearing dates were adjourned due to the unavailability of attorney for respondent. The matter was rescheduled for hearing on October 25 and November 1, 1994. In the meantime the attorneys for petitioners and for respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. filed cross-motions for summary decision. As a result, the parties requested that the hearing scheduled for October 25 and November 1, 1994 be adjourned pending a decision on the summary decision motions. When the respondents other than the Board of Education of the City of Long Branch and Environmental Connection, Inc. failed to respond to the motions, the ALJ closed the record as to the motions on December 30, 1994.

UNADDRESSED ISSUES

The issues which are listed herein were previously unaddressed in the Initial Decision of February 17, 1994, simply because the parties failed to address them in their moving papers or in their papers submitted in opposition to the prior motion for summary decision. It was the impression of the ALJ that the parties had waived the other issues and had agreed that the sole issue before the ALJ in this matter was whether asbestos safety control monitoring services are exempt from bidding as a professional service? Since the arguments of respondents before the Commissioner reveal that this was not the case, the additional unaddressed issues will be dealt with herein.

A review of the submissions of the parties including the petitioners' original petition and the respondents' answers to the petition, and of the Commissioner's decision reveals that the following issues remain outstanding:

1. Whether petitioners Environmental Concepts and Testing Inc. And Ralston are "interested persons" within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 so as to have standing in this matter?
2. Whether the petition should be dismissed as having been filed untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)?
3. Whether the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services for the removal of asbestos is exempt from bidding under the extraordinary unspecifiable services exemption set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a)(2)?
4. Whether the doctrine of equitable estoppel should be used to preclude petitioner Environmental Concepts and Testing, Inc., from challenging the contract award process?

It should be noted that by letter addressed to the attorneys for the parties to this matter dated April 20, 1994 (Exhibit C-1), the foregoing issues were set forth and the parties were requested to immediately advise the ALJ if they felt that there are any other outstanding factual and legal issues to be resolved. No additional issues were raised by the parties to this matter.

DISCUSSION

A motion for summary decision is a device for expeditiously reviewing the merits of a case to determine if the moving party is entitled to a favorable decision without the necessity of a hearing. Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). Summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, which have been submitted clearly show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b); Templeton v. Boro. of Glen Rock, 11 N.J.Super. 1, 4 (App. Div. 1950). Thus, if there is no real dispute as to the facts, and the legal principles which are applicable to the matter are clear, it would appear to be an appropriate matter for disposition by an order for summary decision. In order to determine if a motion for summary decision should be granted or denied, the applicable law must be applied to the undisputed facts. As a result of the discussion which follows, I FIND that the essential facts are undisputed and this matter may be dealt with by means of a summary decision motion.

The issues of the timeliness of the filing of the petition of appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and the standing of the petitioners as "interested persons" as defined by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1, are clearly threshold issues which should be addressed prior to dealing with the substantive issues. If a petition is not filed on a timely basis or if the petitioners have no standing to seek the relief they are requesting, it may be unnecessary to deal with the substantive issues in this matter.

1. Standing.

The issue whether petitioners are "interested persons" within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 will be dealt with first.

Neither the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, nor the Uniform Administrative Procedural Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, establish criteria governing standing. Therefore, the regulations of the Department of Education are controlling with respect to this issue. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 defines the term "interested person(s)" as meaning a person or persons who will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome of a controversy before the Commissioner.

In their submission, petitioners argue that a favorable ruling will avail Environmental Concepts Inc., and others of the opportunity to bid for asbestos safety control monitoring services (Exhibit P-3, p.7). Bidding will also result in a benefit to petitioner Ralston and other taxpayers. In this regard, petitioners assert that if there is any dispute as to their standing, they seek leave to add as additional petitioners resident taxpayers of the various municipalities represented by respondents (Exhibit P-2).

In opposition to petitioners' motion and in support of its cross-motion, respondent Environmental Connection Inc., argues that petitioner Environmental Concepts' basis for claiming to be an interested person is speculative because it assumes that if school boards are forced to bid the contracts, Environmental Concepts will be awarded contracts (Exhibit R-3, pp. 2-3). It argues that there is no basis for that speculation, particularly since Environmental Concepts is not licensed by the State of New Jersey to do this type of work (Exhibit R-2). Similarly, it argues that there is no basis for the assumption that taxpayers are interested persons because there is no basis to believe that future contracts will be for lesser sums, and even if there is some savings in tax dollars there is nothing to support the conclusion that the taxpayers involved will benefit substantially, specifically and directly as required by the regulation (Exhibit R-3, p.3).

The N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 definition of "interested persons" has been referred to as a broad standing criterion which has been liberally applied in the past. See N.J.E.A., et al. v. Essex Cty. Ed. Services Comm., 5 N.J.A.R. 29 (EDU 1981). In that case, Judge Kestin indicated that it is also significant that petitioners, motivated as they may be by their special interest, also seek to vindicate the public interest. He observed that the petitioners raise serious issues of public administration and statutory interpretation which should always come as swiftly as possible to the attention of those administrative officials charged with regulating or overseeing an area of governmental concern. He indicated that the rules of law or procedure which develop to govern that area should make it easier rather than more difficult for a matter of public interest to come before a responsible public official, and that restrictive principles of standing developed for good reason to apply in law suits between private parties should be applied with greater flexibility in the field of administrative law where those who render final administrative adjudications are also policy makers in their roles of overseers and regulators. Id., at p.37, citing Hudson Bergen, etc., Assn. v. Hoboken, 135 N.J.L. 503, 510 (E. & A. 1947).

The issue whether a particular type of service is exempt from public bidding has been and continues to be a matter of serious concern to all governmental entities. Certainly the public interest is served if this issue is examined and resolved one way or the other. Up to the present time, petitioner Environmental Concepts, had no opportunity to engage in competitive bidding in any way, whether it is qualified or not. Also, petitioner Ralston, as a taxpayer, certainly has a sufficient interest in the bidding process to have the right to challenge exemptions from public bidding. Schnell v. Tp. of Millburn, 127 N.J.Super. 155 (App. Div. 1974), affirmed, 66 N.J. 137 (1974); Disposmatic Corp. v. Mayor & Council of Kearney, 162 N.J.Super. 489 (Ch. Div. 1978). Under the circumstances, I FIND that the petitioners herein are "interested persons" and that they will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome of this matter.

2. Timeliness.

The next issue is whether the petition should be dismissed as having been filed untimely, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). This provision requires that the petitioner file a petition no later than the 90th day from the day of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

In their submission, petitioners argue that they are not time barred because the failure to follow the requirement for public bidding is a continuing violation (Exhibit P-3, pp. 5-7). Petitioners assert that respondent will not dispute that asbestos monitoring services have been performed by respondent Environmental Connection for a number of respondent school districts both prior and subsequent to the institution of this petition in November 1992. Petitioners further assert that such services were performed without an award after public bidding. Attached to petitioners' brief in support of their motion for summary decision (Exhibit P-3) as Exhibit A are records of the Department of Community Affairs which petitioners assert demonstrate that asbestos safety control monitoring services were performed by respondent Environmental Connection, Inc., for respondents Manasquan, Long Branch and Red Bank School Districts subsequent to the institution of the petition in this matter in November 1992. In addition, petitioners assert that there is a continuing violation of the Public School Contracts Law both before and after the filing of the petition.

The letter in lieu of brief of respondent Environmental Connection, Inc., does not address this issue (Exhibit R-3). The attorney representing respondent Board of Education of Long Branch, likewise does not address this issue (Exhibit R-LB-1). The remaining respondent's did not submit briefs or other papers supporting or opposing the motion.

In D'Alessandro v. Bd. of Educ., Twp. of Middletown, Monmouth County, 1986 S.L.D. 2496 (Comm'r of Ed., Oct. 20, 1986), the Commissioner held that where there was potentially a continuing violation of the spirit of certain affirmative action regulations which were adopted more than 90 days before the filing of an appeal, such circumstances warranted relaxation of the 90-day rule N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 provides that the rules shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before and the actions of the petitioner and they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

There is no question that this matter involves a challenge to the validity and legality of a continuing course of conduct on the part of those respondents which are school districts, and that the public interest requires a determination, one way or the other, as to whether this continuing course of conduct complies with the law. Under these circumstances, I FIND that the strict application of the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) would be inappropriate.

3. Extraordinary Unspecifiable Services Exemption.

After having dealt with these two threshold issues, the next issue to be resolved is whether asbestos safety control monitoring services are exempt from competitive bidding requirements under the "extraordinary unspecifiable services" exception of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a(2)?

On this issue, respondent Environmental Connections, Inc., argues that extraordinary unspecifiable services are defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2g as services which are specialized and qualitative in nature requiring expertise, extensive training and proven reputation in the field of endeavor (Exhibit R-3, pp. 1-2). Respondent points out that the Initial Decision dated February 17, 1994, states that asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians are regulated by law, and that performance of the duties and responsibilities of an asbestos safety control monitor and an asbestos control technician requires specialized knowledge of an advanced type. Therefore, it argues that this should result in the conclusion that the services are extraordinary unspecifiable services. It also relies upon a letter from the Department of Community Affairs, the agency which regulates the asbestos abatement industry, that states the Department's position that asbestos safety control monitoring services qualify for the extraordinary unspecified services bidding exemption of the local public contracts law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-5(1)(a)(ii), and this term, which is defined at N.J.S.A. 40A:11-2(7), is identical to the Education Law definition.

In response to respondent's argument, petitioners likewise indicate that the aforesaid Initial Decision spells out the services provided by an asbestos safety technician and an asbestos safety control monitor, and acknowledge the argument made by respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. However, they point out that N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a(2), requires that in order to be exempt, extraordinary unspecifiable services must additionally be such that they cannot reasonably be described by written specification (Exhibit P-3, pp. 3-5; Exhibit P-4). It asserts that all of the services provided by asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians can clearly be described by written specifications. Finally, it points out that the statute expressly states that this exemption shall be construed narrowly in favor or open competitive bidding where possible.

As was indicated in the Initial Decision of February 17, 1994, asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians are regulated by law. However, these positions are not recognized professions in the traditional sense The performance of the duties and responsibilities of an asbestos safety control monitor and asbestos control technician require specialized knowledge or skill of an advanced type. However, such performance does not require knowledge of an advance type in a field of learning acquired by a prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study as distinguished from general academic instruction or apprenticeship and training. Based upon the findings set forth in the aforesaid Initial Decision, it may be accepted for purposes of discussion that the services provided by asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos control technicians fall within the definition of extraordinary unspecifiable services, meaning services which are specialized and qualitative in nature, requiring expertise, extensive training and proven reputation in the field of endeavor, as that term is defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2g. However, as properly indicated by petitioners herein, the fact that services may be extraordinary unspecifiable services does not mean that they are exempt from bidding unless they cannot reasonably be described by written specifications.

As indicated in the Initial Decision of February 17, 1994, the Asbestos Hazard Abatement Subcode, N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.1 to -8.22, sets forth the procedures as well as licensing and other requirements for asbestos hazard abatement. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(b) authorizes the establishment of an asbestos safety control monitor. It requires that such monitor apply for authorization by submitting an application with the required fee and other additional required information to the Department. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(b)4, requires the submission of a statement of the policies and procedures of the applicant for the hiring, training, education and supervision of all technical personnel, the prior experience of the applicant in performing similar or related functions and the capability of the applicant to review the plans and specifications and to inspect asbestos abatement work to insure that the completed work is in compliance with the subcode. N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.11(c)3 fully and completely specifies the responsibilities of each asbestos safety control monitor. Likewise, N.J.A.C. 5:23-8.10(d) sets forth the duties and responsibilities of the asbestos safety technician.

I FIND it to be significant that the authors of the New Jersey Administrative Code had little difficulty specifying in full and complete detail the obligations, duties and responsibilities of asbestos safety control monitors and asbestos safety technicians. Under the circumstances, it clearly appears that such services can reasonably be described by written specifications. If that is not the case, it would seem that someone should have challenged the above referred to regulations.

In view of the fact that N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a(2) expressly states that this specific exemption shall be construed narrowly in favor of open competitive bidding where possible, and in view of the fact that the duties and responsibilities of these positions have been set forth in regulations I CONCLUDE that the services of an asbestos safety control monitor is not an extraordinary unspecifiable service so as to be exempt from public bidding.

4. Equitable Estoppel.

The final issue to be resolved is the assertion of respondent Environmental Connection, Inc. that petitioner Environmental Concepts should be equitably estopped from challenging the contract award process in this matter because it actively sought contracts utilizing the same procedures it now attacks (Exhibit R-3, pp. 3-4). Petitioner Environmental Concepts, Inc., acknowledges that it performed asbestos safety control monitoring work awarded without bidding for the Harrison Board of Education, the Sparta Board of Education, the Sussex Board of Education, and the North Bergen School District (Exhibit P-3, pp. 8-10). Respondent Environmental Connections, Inc., relies on Autotote Ltd. V. N.J. Sports and Expo. Auth., 85 N.J. 363 (1981). In that case, the plaintiff entered into a contract without "bidding" for the very same work it was challenging. The Supreme Court explained that the equitable doctrine of estoppel should be used to preclude a party from challenging the contract award process when "it actively sought the same procedures it now attacks." 85 N.J. at 369. In that case, only after the plaintiff lost the contract, did it claim that public bidding was necessary in an effort to invalidate the contract awarded to plaintiff's competitor. It is significant that in that case the Supreme Court dealt with the merits because it concluded that the issue is one of substantial public importance and resolution of the issue would serve the public interest.

In the present matter I FIND that the public interest requires a determination of the issue whether the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services should be subject to competitive bidding. I FIND that this is so notwithstanding that the petitioner may have engaged in conduct which, in ordinary circumstances, would preclude it from pursuing a challenge to the award of contracts without competitive bidding. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the application of principles of equitable estoppel to prevent the consideration of this matter on its merits would not be in the public interest and would be inappropriate. Since I have reached this conclusion as to this issue, it is not necessary to decide whether the application of the court-fashioned doctrine of equitable estoppel to an administrative proceeding is appropriate. See, City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J 1, 29 (1980).

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby CONCLUDED and ORDERED that petitioners are interested persons within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 so as to have standing in this matter. It is further ORDERED that respondents' request to dismiss the petition as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is hereby DENIED. It is further CONCLUDED and ORDERED that the providing of asbestos safety control monitoring services for the removal of asbestos is not exempt from bidding under the extraordinary unspecifiable services exemption set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a)2. It is further ORDERED that the application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel to preclude petitioner from challenging the awarding of asbestos safety control monitoring without bidding is DENIED as inappropriate and is not in the public interest. Therefore, it is ORDERED that Summary Decision is hereby GRANTED in favor of petitioners and against respondents in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:	DECISION ON REMAND

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with, and adopts as his own, the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) with respect to the following issues summarily determined on remand, namely: 1) that petitioners have standing in this matter as "interested persons" under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1; 2) that respondents' request to dismiss the petition herein as untimely is appropriately denied; 3) that, while the services "are specialized and qualitative in nature, requiring expertise, extensive training and proven reputation in the field of endeavor" (Initial Decision, at

p. 9), these services are not exempt from public bidding requirements since they are not services "which cannot reasonably be described by written specifications" (N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a(2)); and 4) that, as a matter of public interest, this action should not be barred by application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the OAL for the reasons expressed therein, and declares that asbestos safety control monitoring services, such as those in the instant matter, are not exempt from competitive bidding requirements under either the professional services exemption (see Commissioner of Education decision dated March 31, 1994) or the extraordinary unspecifiable services exemption set forth in the Public School Contracts Law. In that petitioners sought declaratory relief, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1, as granted herein, the Commissioner provides no other relief with respect to contracts already awarded.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about April 12, 1993, petitioner Edward Mercer filed a Petition of Appeal with an Affidavit before the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) alleging certain improprieties committed by the Superintendent of Schools and the President of the Board of Education of the Township of Brick (Board) concerning the Board's proposed 1993-94 school budget. Petitioner did not, however, name the Board as a respondent in his Petition.

The Commissioner's representative, on April 30, 1993, found petitioner's Petition of Appeal to be "...both defective as initially filed and received too late to render a decision on the merits prior to the 1993 annual school election on April 20." (Maureen R. Keller, Director of Controversies and Disputes, letter to Edward Mercer, April 30, 1993.) The Commissioner's representatives noted that petitioner had failed to name the Board, the responsible corporate entity, in addition to the agents whose action petitioner protests.

On June 11, 1993, petitioner filed an Amended Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner, together with his Affidavit.

On July 21, 1993, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On August 23, 1993, petitioner addressed a letter to the Deputy Clerk of the OAL requesting a delay in scheduling a hearing in the matter.

On August 27, 1993, counsel for respondent Board propounded a Motion to Dismiss the Complaint for Failure to Answer Interrogatories. On September 16, 1993, the undersigned conducted a telephone prehearing conference with petitioner, and Mr. Montenegro, counsel for respondent Board. The Prehearing Order provided, among other things, that "Petitioner shall respond to the Board's Notice of Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Answer Interrogatories." (See, paragraph 13. Motions, Prehearing Order dated September 17, 1993). On September 20, 1993, petitioner propounded a Motion to Extend the Deadline to Answer Respondents' Interrogatories.

On November 19, 1993, counsel for respondents propounded a Motion for Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, with a Brief in Support of Motion and Exhibits. On November 24, 1993, the undersigned acknowledged receipt of respondents' Motion and granted petitioner twenty (20) days in which to file and serve his responsive papers.

On December 13, 1993, the undersigned was in receipt of petitioner's Brief and Exhibits in Opposition to Respondents' Motion for Summary Decision. On December 22, 1993, the Board submitted its reply to petitioner's opposition.

By way of letter, dated December 27, 1993, the undersigned advised all parties that the Board's Motion did not meet the criteria as expressed by our Supreme Court in Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954) and, therefore, summary decision was inappropriate. Accordingly, the hearing set down for January 11, 1994, would convene as scheduled.

On January 4, 1994, counsel for the Board and other respondents, sought from the undersigned the basis for the denial of its Motion for Summary Decision. By letter, dated January 6, 1994, this tribunal advised the parties that the number one issue to be resolved pursuant to the Prehearing Order was not addressed in either brief. Therefore, the issue remained in controversy and needed to be resolved.

The issue, as stated in the Prehearing Order and as agreed upon by the parties, is this:

> Whether the Board was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:42-4 with regard to the 1993-94 annual school budget.

The hearing convened on January 11, 1994, at the Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey, Municipal Court. Mr. Sendzik advised the Court of his appearance on behalf of respondent Aragona. The hearing record closed on January 11, 1994.

This concludes the recital of the procedural history of this matter.

FACTS

Based upon the pleadings, affidavits and briefs of law submitted by the parties, the following are undisputed facts in this matter.

In and during the months of March and April 1993, the Board, its members, employees and administrative staff made certain presentations to the citizens of the Township of Brick to promote and inform them concerning its 1993-94 annual school budget. The Board and/or members of its administrative staff made presentations at certain schools at the invitation of Parent-Teachers organizations, on the dates set forth as follows:

Midstreams School	-	March 16, 1993
Veterans School	-	March 26, 1993
Drum Point School	-	March 29, 1993

Lanes Mill School	-	March 30, 1993
Emma Havens School	-	April 2, 1993
Lake Riviera School	-	April 5, 1993
Osbornville School	-	April 6, 1993

In addition, the Board caused to have produced newsletters and pamphlets and allowed the use of its equipment and facilities for the presentation of such educational, program and financial information concerning the 1993-94 annual school budget.

Petitioner, an unsuccessful candidate for the Board brought the herein action against the Board alleging, among other things, that:

1. That the preparation of booklets and the use of school facilities to conduct presentations, were performed by public employees without proper approval by the Board;

2. The Administration, under the direction of the Superintendent, acted beyond the scope of their office with proper authority in the expenditure of taxpayer funds contrary to the law;

3. The Board, Superintendent and President of the Board violated the law by promoting a singular point of view, without allowing a forum for an opposing opinion, and utilized taxpayers funds, to promote the budget without a formal vote by the Board.

4. That certain Board members promoted the 1993-94 budget at various presentations and in doing so, endorsed incumbent candidates seeking reelection to the Board.

The Board, on June 30, 1993, adopted a Resolution which authorized the activities complained of by petitioner and which, the Board asserts, it is permitted to do.

Petitioner seeks the following, by way of injunctive relief:

1. Expending public funds without authorization;

2. Immediately cease and desist from further communications and presentations of budget related electorate votes matter without Board of Education approval.

3. Withdraw the name of John Paredes as a candidate due to the endorsement and promotion of him and running mate Frank Pannucci.

4. Withdraw the name of Frank Pannucci as a candidate due to the endorsement and promotion of him and running mate John Paredes.

5. Censure the superintendent for jeopardizing the intent of voter selection in school election for board members.

6. Censure the superintendent for interference in promoting a singular point of view.

7. Censure the superintendent Louis Aragona for allowing candidate endorsement and support, at school PTA gatherings called for the purpose of budget discussions. (Petitioner's Affidavit, April 12, 1993).

ISSUE

The sole issue to be determined by this tribunal and to which the parties agreed, is whether the Board was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18:42-4 with regard to the 1993-94 annual school budget?

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

At the hearing, petitioner conceded that the relief he sought was now moot. It is well established that the Commissioner does not decide moot issues. See, Pinkham v. Bd. of Ed. of Boro of South River, et al, 1974 S.L.D. 1103; Tedesco v. Bd. of Ed. of Lodi, 1955-56 S.L.D. 69; Oxfeld v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of South Orange-Maplewood, 1975 S.L.D. 574. As the Court said in Moss Estate, Inc. v. Metal and Thermit Corp., 73 N.J. Super. 56, 67 (Chan. Div. 1962):

> ....It is the policy of the courts to refrain from advisory opinions, from deciding moot cases, or generally functioning in the abstract, and "to decide only concrete contested issues conclusively affecting adversary parties in interest." Borchard Declaratory Judgments (2d. ed. 1941), pp. 34-35.

In addition, the respondents address the single issue to be determined by this tribunal and asserts that the law permits it to provide information to its citizens concerning its annual school budget. The Board denies any impropriety with respect to its written material provided to the electorate. In Citizens, & c., Public Funds v. Bd. of Ed. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 13 N.J. 172 (1953), Justice Brennan, Jr., writing for the Court said:

> ...that the actions under attack, if improper, would not suffice to invalidate the election already held. Id. at 178.

Justice Brennan determined, under the circumstances of the cases, that the matter was moot.

Justice Brennan also found that the Board of Education had implied power to make reasonable expenditures for the purpose of giving voters relevant facts to aid them in reaching an informed judgment when voting on a school election proposal. Id. 179-180.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the instant matter is now moot and there is no justifiable issue before this tribunal

ORDER

Accordingly, for all of the reasons expressed herein before, it is ORDERED that the herein Petition of Appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on February 19, 1993, as a result of the filing by petitioner of a verified petition of appeal alleging that the respondent Board of Education of Waldwick, his employer, reappointed as head varsity football coach for the 1992-1993 school year one Terrence Byrne who, contrary to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, was neither employed as a teaching staff member in the district nor properly certificated. Thus, petitioner maintained Byrne's appointment should be set aside and that he be determined to be the only qualified candidate for the position. Since the 1992 season had ended, Taylor sought damages for his nonappointment.

A telephone prehearing conference was conducted on April 22, 1993, at which time the following issues were identified:

(1) Was the Board's determination not to offer petitioner either the head varsity football or assistant varsity football coaching position for 1992 a violation of any of his statutory rights, or otherwise in violation of any rule or regulation?;[1]

(2) Was the Board's determination not to offer the petitioner either of the aforesaid coaching positions for 1992 arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable?; and

(3) If petitioner prevails, to what relief is he entitled?

Hearings were held by the undersigned on June 20, 1993, July 1, 1993 and September 27, 1993, and the record closed on January 10, 1994 when the last brief was filed.

TESTIMONY FOR PETITIONER

Since petitioner has the burden of proof he presented his case first. Taylor described his employment history in the district noting that he began teaching in Waldwick in 1965. In 1965, and between 1970 and 1988, he said he was the "head" freshmen football coach.[2] In 1989 and 1990 he served as an assistant varsity football coach. In both 1991 and 1992 Taylor applied for the head varsity football coach's position but on each occasion the Board reappointed Terrence Byrne. Byrne, who is not employed as a teacher by the Board, also served as head varsity football coach in 1989, 1990 and 1991. His reappointment for the 1992 season is the one challenged in this action. The 1991 reappointment was also challenged, but that case was settled.

---

[1]So much of Taylor's claim as related to the assistant's position has since been withdrawn.

[2]The designation "head" freshmen football coach used by Taylor is disputed by respondent, as will be discussed infra.

The position of head varsity football coach for the 1992 season was posted in May 1992 and petitioner applied for it (Exhibit R-1). The deadline for submission of applications was June 10, 1992. However, according to Taylor, on June 5, 1992, before he was even interviewed, a meeting was held for students interested in football at which the athletic director allegedly introduced Byrne as head football coach for the upcoming season.

After Byrne was formally appointed by the Board in late June 1992, petitioner protested and he was then offered an assistant coach's position. However, petitioner said he declined the offer when he was informed that he would be given that position only if he agreed to withdraw his pending suit against the Board. Sometime during the first half of September 1992, petitioner was advised that the Board was dropping that condition. However, Taylor claimed he never saw any written confirmation of that change in position.

According to Taylor he never received a written statement from the Board as to why he was not selected as head varsity football coach for the 1992 season. Taylor believed Byrne was not certified at the time of his appointment and he has never held a teaching position in Waldwick. Simply put, it is Taylor's contention that the Board's determination in June 1992 to reappoint Byrne clearly violates N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 and he, therefore, should be paid the head varsity coach stipend which he would have received had he properly been appointed to the position.

Taylor did not attend the meeting held at Waldwick High School on June 5, 1992, for students interested in playing football. However, he explained that a few days later he was told by some students who were present that Byrne was introduced to the group as the head coach for 1992 even though the deadline for filing applications had not expired. The students who gave that information to Taylor knew he was interested in the job and petitioner had no reason to disbelieve their version of what happened at the meeting. Taylor eventually was interviewed later in June for the position by the high school principal and the athletic director, both of whom knew of his qualifications from his application and from his prior lengthy coaching experience in the district.

TESTIMONY FOR RESPONDENT

The Board's first witness, Dolores C. Torralbas, is principal of Waldwick High School. She has been employed in the school district for 30 years and as part of her duties she interviews applicants for coaching positions. Torralbas and the athletic director (Anthony Caiazzo) then make a recommendation to the superintendent of schools who thereafter makes his own recommendation to the Board. Torralbas recalled that during the June 1992 interview with Taylor she questioned him as to what clinics and courses he had attended to maintain his skills, and about his knowledge regarding safety generally. She was not aware that he considered himself to have been the "head" freshmen coach, and she did not believe he ever held such a title. Ultimately, she concluded that despite his experience Taylor was not qualified to be head varsity football coach since he did not maintain current information concerning new developments, did not appear to display leadership qualities, and because she was told by other coaches that they would resign if Taylor was appointed. Moreover, as far as she was concerned he had no head coaching experience, or three years of equivalent experience as required by the newly revised job description. Indeed, even if Taylor had been a "head" coach or its equivalent, Torralbas insisted she still would not have recommended him over Byrne in view of his other qualitative deficiencies.

On cross-examination Torralbas continued to maintain there is no recognized position of "head" freshmen coach since that person works under the head varsity coach at all times. She also said that the interview with Byrne revealed to her that unlike Taylor he always maintained a good relationship with his players, commanded the respect of his staff and knew the safety regulations. While she conceded Taylor competently could serve as a freshmen or assistant varsity coach, she reiterated she did not think he has the necessary leadership ability to command the respect of staff and students as the head varsity coach. In fact, the witness said she also was told that sophomores who moved up to the varsity team after playing under Taylor while he was the freshmen football coach were not as prepared as they should have been and one of the assistant varsity football coaches, James Drechsel, expressly commented that he would resign if Taylor was appointed head coach even though Drechsel played for Taylor on the freshmen squad in the 1970's.

Finally, Torralbas insisted that the May 1992 change made by the Board in the job description for head varsity football coach, which expressly added a prior three-year experience criterion (Attach. A to Exhibit J-1), was the result of an effort to overhaul many job descriptions, not only that of coaches. She vehemently denied that inclusion of the head coach or three-year equivalent requirement was in retaliation against Taylor for his having filed a prior suit in 1991.

The Board's next witness, Anthony Caiazzo, is Waldwick's athletic director and has been employed in the district since 1970. He had been head varsity football coach between 1974 and 1987 and for one year also served as an assistant football coach at Montclair State College. Between 1974 and 1987, when Caiazzo was head varsity football coach, Taylor was a freshmen football coach. According to Caiazzo, he often became "frustrated" with Taylor because petitioner did not follow directions very well. As the district's "football philosophy" changed over time, it was Taylor's job primarily to prepare the freshmen players for transition into the varsity program. Nevertheless, even though Caiazzo asked Taylor to use the varsity's offensive and defensive formations, petitioner often was unable or unwilling to do so. The witness also found Taylor to be "lacking" in the ability to teach basic football skills, such as stance, formation and rotation of defense. As the witness put it, some of Taylor's players "did not have a clue" with respect to how to do those things. Simply put, in Caiazzo's view Taylor did not provide the freshmen with an adequate foundation upon which to build as they moved up to the varsity level.

Caiazzo, like Torralbas, also insisted that the freshmen coach is directly responsible to the head varsity coach and he, too, maintained that there has never been any position as "head" freshmen coach in Waldwick. When Caiazzo interviewed Taylor in June 1992 for the head football coaching position, he found Taylor lacked up to date knowledge of safety practices. Indeed, Caiazzo recalled that Taylor was never able to fit helmets properly even when he was the freshmen coach. Caiazzo also said he told Taylor during the interview that assistant coaches did not want to coach under petitioner and that not one of them gave Caiazzo a positive reaction to the possibility that Taylor would become head coach.

Caiazzo also spoke to students concerning the possibility that Taylor would become the head coach and said he received responses ranging from "laughter" to statements such as, "you've got to be kidding me."

The athletic director also had concerns about Taylor's ability to deal with possible substance abuse by players. In response to a question posed to Taylor at the interview as to what he would do if a player came to him with such a problem, petitioner said he would refer the student to a substance abuse counselor. Caiazzo was disappointed by that simplistic response because he knew from personal experience that in such a situation an immediate plan often had to be implemented to deal with the problem.

Thus, Caiazzo concluded from the interview, as well as from his prior knowledge of Taylor's performance as freshmen coach, that petitioner was not qualified to be a head varsity football coach. As the athletic director put it, he was looking for "a ray of hope" but never found it. Essentially, in Caiazzo's opinion, Taylor was not capable of organizing and running a team on the varsity level since he does not have the necessary leadership abilities to carry out all those responsibilities and lacks the ability to command the respect of the staff and the players. As the witness put it, although he has, "a lot of respect for Bob [as a person], . . . coaching is not his forte."

Caiazzo also recalled that in June 1991 Taylor actually had been appointed as freshmen football coach after he had expressed an interest in that position. However, after the Board appointed Taylor in late June there was difficulty in reaching him over the summer. Then, in early September, when petitioner returned to school, he told the athletic director that he was not going to take the job after all because his lawyer said it would adversely affect the case he then was pursuing in connection with Byrne's reappointment to the head varsity football coach position in 1991 (Exhibits R-2, R-3). That case, as noted, later settled.

With respect to the events which occurred at the meeting held on June 5, 1992, Caiazzo noted that even though there was no head coach in place for 1992, it was necessary for someone to organize potential players with respect to arranging for their physicals and determining who would be coming out for the team. Thus, Caiazzo asked one of the assistants, Drechsel, to be there. Caiazzo also attended the session and gave out forms. Although Caiazzo did not see Byrne at the meeting itself, he did observe Taylor and Byrne shaking hands outside the meeting room later that day.

On cross-examination Caiazzo maintained that unlike petitioner, Byrne's coaching skills were satisfactory in all appropriate areas. Specifically, he criticized Taylor's use of the "I" formation with the freshmen team, whereas the high school varsity used a "pro-set." Also, the varsity used a "split back" and the freshmen did not seem to be familiar with that formation when they came up to the varsity. Basically, in the opinion of the witness, Taylor simply did not understand the consequences of using various types of plays and did not do an adequate job teaching basic skills. In short, Taylor's many years as freshmen football coach did not, in Caiazzo's view, equal even one year as an assistant varsity coach.

Insofar as the need exists for a head coach to handle potential drug abuse problems, Caiazzo repeated he lacked confidence that Taylor could handle such situations in a prompt or effective fashion. Finally, the witness noted that when Taylor was assigned to "scout" future opponents often he "missed" the other team's basic style, or the "game plan" it used--the very reason for the scouting assignment in the first place.

The Board's next witness was its Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Patrick Piegari, who has held that position since 1989. Piegari had recommended the reappointment of Byrne as head varsity football coach for 1992 following his discussions with Caiazzo and Torralbas (Exhibit R-4). According to Piegari, the May 1992 revision of the job description for varsity head football coach was undertaken as part of an overall update of job descriptions for several positions, and the introduction of the requirement of three years of prior assistant coaching experience was intended to assure that a head varsity football coach had adequate experience dealing with varsity players--something substantially more than mere "tangential"contact.

According to Piegari, both Caiazzo and Torralbas told him that in their judgment Taylor seemed to lack necessary leadership qualities and knowledge of football skills fundamentals. They also expressed concern that other coaches would quit if Taylor was appointed to the head coach position and the team might even disintegrate because players would not want to play for Taylor. Piegari gave great weight to his senior administrators' recommendations, especially that of Caiazzo who had been the head varsity football coach for many years and who knew Taylor well. Piegari also spoke to other persons who worked with Taylor in order to obtain additional "feedback" as to petitioner's suitability to be the head coach. Essentially, all of their comments were negative.

The superintendent also spoke to former students and they, too, related negative feedback about Taylor. One person described his experience as a member of a freshmen team coached by Taylor as "horrible" and opined that the appointment of Taylor as head varsity coach would be "devastating" to the varsity program.

Piegari, too, insisted that at no time was there any formally recognized position as "head" freshmen coach, and that except for an inadvertent, mistaken reference to such a position in Taylor's 1987 contract, none of the contracts between Taylor and the Board in 1965 or between 1970 and 1989 contained that designation (Exhibits R-8 and R-9).[3]

On cross-examination Piegari stressed that the position of "freshmen football coach" had no separate job description. Essentially, that coach is an assistant who works only with the freshmen. Piegari, also insisted that the scope of a freshmen coach's responsibilities were quite different from that of an assistant varsity coach and, like Caiazzo, he too observed that in his view the eighteen years that Taylor coached freshmen football is not the equivalent of even one year of assistant varsity coaching.

[3]Exhibit R-9 consists of all the coaching contracts signed by Taylor. All those related to his freshmen coaching position and refer to the position without the "head" designation, except for the 1987 contract. Also, the 1986-88 collective negotiations agreement with the Waldwick Education Association (Exhibit R-10) omits any "head" designation for the freshmen football coach.

Finally, with respect to Taylor's qualifications to be head football coach generally, it was Piegari's view that such an appointment potentially would have destroyed Waldwick's entire football program because assistant coaches indicated they would not work under Taylor, and players said they would quit the team. The superintendent conceded that he did not talk to any players directly, but had received information about their views from the assistant coaches and others.

The Board's next witness was James Drechsel who presently teaches industrial arts at Waldwick High School. He was an assistant freshmen coach in 1986 and 1987 and an assistant varsity coach from 1989 through 1992. Drechsel also played under Taylor while he was a student at Waldwick High School in the 1970s.

According to the witness, the freshmen football activities constituted a "separate program in itself"--more or less "doing our own thing." Taylor, he said, would design offensive plays which did not appear to Drechsel to be "characteristic" of the plays the varsity was using. Thus, according to the witness, Taylor's methods made it difficult for freshmen to make a smooth transition to the varsity level since it was hard for them to adjust to different formations, etc. In essence it became necessary practically to "reteach" the freshmen when they moved up to the varsity level since Taylor appeared to have "his own agenda."

Drechsel also recalled that during 1983, while he was an assistant football coach at Ramsey High School, the Ramsey freshmen played Waldwick's freshmen and Taylor was using the same plays with which Drechsel was familiar from his own playing days under Taylor. The witness also characterized many of Taylor's designed plays as "Walt Disney plays," i.e., tricky maneuvers such as "button hooks" and "double reverse passes." These were not the sort of plays which Drechsel considered to be the "foundation plays" one would need to know at the varsity level.

Although according to the witness Taylor has a fine sense of humor, this trait tended to create laxness and distraction at practice. Drechsel also stated that the petitioner did not appear to understand that the freshmen were not in the sort of physical shape they should have been in, and Taylor did not require enough "run sprints" to build up their mental and their physical conditioning.

Finally, when Drechsel learned that Taylor again had applied for the head varsity coaching position for 1992, he told the administration that he would not be interested in serving as an assistant under Taylor since he does not believe he could learn anything from Taylor and from past experience in working with petitioner Drechsel simply did not want to "put up with it."

TESTIMONY FOR PETITIONER IN REBUTTAL

Taylor and one other witness testified in rebuttal to the Board's case. That other witness, Robert Straut, was head varsity football coach in Waldwick for the 1971-72 and 72-73 school years. Taylor, he said, was the "head" freshmen coach who worked under him in addition to one other assistant coach. Straut explained that he outlined his football philosophy and directed the assistants to carry it out. He recalled that Taylor essentially maintained a separate freshmen football program and was responsible for opening up the locker room, getting the players onto the field, selecting players for games, conducting drills and practices and doing all those sorts of things that coaches do. Straut established the "general scheme" and Taylor then chose whatever plays he wished within that framework.

According to Straut, the petitioner did teach his players proper offense and defense stances and formations, and the freshmen made orderly progress with respect to their skills development. In the witness's opinion Taylor was a competent, capable and dependable coach, Straut was satisfied with his performance at all times and he never observed any problems that petitioner had with the safety of his players.

Taylor also testified in rebuttal. He reiterated that he meets all of the newly established qualifications for the head varsity football coach position, particularly prior experience for three years as an assistant since he was, in fact, the "head" freshmen football coach for so many years. As far as Taylor could recall, at no time did he ever have a problem either with other assistant coaches, the head coach or with any student athletes.

With respect to complaints regarding his alleged lack of concern for safety and lack of knowledge of new equipment, Taylor insisted he is knowledgeable on those subjects. Indeed, during his many years as a coach there was a minimum of injuries to his players. Taylor conceded he could not name any particular safety equipment clearing house, but pointed out it was not up to him to order equipment in any case. He is familiar with state law regarding pupil safety and doctors and nurses are available at games, if needed.

Taylor also denied that he is unfamiliar with the defensive stances needed to compete at the varsity level. He starts out his freshmen players with the "Oklahoma defense" because it permits quicker action by the player. He also noted that he has been complimented on the way his players maintain their stance on defense and commented that, "we never beat ourselves with offsides."

With respect to offensive formations Taylor said he uses the "I" because it is a common one and easier to teach to freshmen. He noted that in the 1988 season the "I" formation carried the team to the state championship level and it predominates in the high school and college leagues.

Insofar as complaints about his attention to physical conditioning is concerned, petitioner explained that he had his players perform the Marine Corps "daily dozen" and the lack of serious injuries to his players over the years attest to his abilities in that area. Often he had only thirteen or fourteen players available and he would never ask any one of them to do what he, a much older person, could not do himself.

With respect to the confusion surrounding whether or not he agreed to take an assistant varsity football coach position for 1992, Taylor explained he did not agree to take it since the Board wanted him to drop his lawsuit as a condition. He also insisted that he did not learn that the Board had dropped this condition until mid-September during a telephone conference with the Board's attorney. However, since he had not received any written confirmation from the Board, by then it was too late.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

At the outset of the hearing, counsel entered into a joint stipulation of facts which form a substantial part of the record. (Exhibit J-1) Those undisputed facts are as follows:

1. Petitioner, Robert Taylor, has been employed as a social studies teacher ("Taylor") by Respondent, Waldwick Board of Education ("Board"), from the 1965-1966 school year to the present.

2. Taylor has previously held the position of freshmen football coach and assistant football coach in the Waldwick School District ("District"). He held the position of freshmen football coach from the 1970-1971 school year through the 1988-1989 school year. For the 1989-1990 school year, Taylor was appointed assistant football coach. Taylor has never held the position of head football coach.

3. Taylor applied for the position of head football coach for the first time for the 1991-1992 school year. Based on the recommendation of Dr. Patrick Piegari, superintendent of schools ("superintendent"), the Board appointed Terrence Byrne ("Byrne") head football coach. Byrne had been the head football coach for the 1989-1990 and 1990-1991 school years.

4. The job description for head football coach and assistant coach was revised by the Board on May 26, 1992 (Exhibit A).

5. Notice of the vacancy in the head football coach position was advertised. Taylor submitted an application for the position of head football coach, together with attachments, to the superintendent (Exhibit B).

6. Ms. Delores Torralbas, high school principal ("principal"), and Mr. Anthony Caiazzo, athletic director ("athletic director"), interviewed Taylor for the position of head football coach.

7. The superintendent concluded that Taylor "did not satisfy the qualifications for head coach, as set forth in the Board of Education's job description" (Exhibit C).

8. On June 29, 1992, the Board appointed Byrne the head football coach for the 1992-1993 school year (Exhibit D).

9. Byrne is not employed as a teaching staff member by the Board. He possesses a county substitute certificate. Approval to employ Byrne as head football coach was obtained from the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools (Exhibit E).

10. In July 1992, Taylor sent the superintendent a letter applying for the position of assistant varsity football coach for the 1992-1993 school year (Exhibit F).

11. The superintendent requested that Taylor forward a signed contract to the Board prior to the board acting on his appointment to the position of assistant varsity football coach (Exhibit G).

12. Taylor subsequently withdrew his application for the position of assistant varsity football coach by letter (Exhibit H).

ADDITIONAL FINDINGS OF FACT

In addition to these undisputed facts, and as a result of my review of the testimony offered at the hearing, I herewith make the following additional findings of fact:

13. The job descriptions for head coach and assistant coach were adopted by the Board on May 26, 1992, as part of an overall reorganization of the school district. The previously existing job descriptions contained in the Waldwick High School Interscholastic Athletics Rules and Regulations and Coaches Handbook had never formally been adopted by the Board.

14. The qualifications for head varsity football coach contained in the Board's May 26, 1992 revised job description documents were as follows:

    (a) A valid New Jersey teaching certificate or county substitute certificate;

    (b) Prior head coaching experience or at least three years' experience as an assistant varsity or junior varsity coach;

(c) Demonstration of leadership and organizational ability and the ability to effectively communicate with students/athletes, other coaches, teaching staff members, the media and the public;

(d) Possession of a basic knowledge of the particular sport, including its rules and regulations, through actual playing or alternative experience;

(e) Possession of a basic knowledge of the appropriate athletic equipment, athletic training and conditioning and first aid.

15. During June 1992, and as a result of their personal interview of Taylor, Ms. Torralbas, the high school principal, and Mr. Caiazzo, the athletic director, assessed petitioner's qualifications for the position of head varsity football coach. Based upon the written standards set forth in the job description, a review of his prior coaching experience, his answers to their questions and negative feedback from other coaches in the district, they determined Taylor was not qualified for the position.

16. Torralbas had been familiar with Taylor's performance as a freshmen football coach and as an assistant varsity football coach based upon her years in the district. Caiazzo's familiarity with Taylor's performance as a coach was based on his own many years of experience in the district, together with his specialized experience as the head football coach and as a junior varsity football coach. For many years Taylor had been freshmen football coach while Caiazzo was the head football coach, and in that context, Caiazzo directly supervised Taylor.

17. Torralbas and Caiazzo determined not to recommend Taylor for the position of head varsity football coach for 1992 for the following cited reasons:

(a) Taylor does not possess the leadership capabilities that are required of the head football coach. Other coaches indicated that they would not coach football with Taylor if he was appointed head football coach since his appointment would have a deleterious effect on the football program. Students indicated that they would quit the football team if Taylor was appointed head football coach. Taylor did not command the respect of other coaches and students and his leadership skills were questioned by other coaches and students.

(b) Taylor has not demonstrated an ability to effectively organize and maintain a football program. As freshmen football coach he did not prepare his players adequately for the varsity program. Moreover, a lack of organization existed during practice sessions with players talking too much. Also, Taylor did not effectively communicate with his players and satisfactory answers were not provided when he was asked what he would do with the existing football program.

(c) Taylor did not possess the sort of updated knowledge of the game that is required of a head football coach. When he was freshmen coach Taylor often called plays which was predictable to opponents. Furthermore, at the interview, Taylor indicated that he did not attend classes or courses to improve his coaching skills.

(d) Taylor did not possess the requisite knowledge of the appropriate athletic equipment and first aid and he demonstrated a lack of familiarity with safety equipment and substance abuse procedures.

18. Based upon their consideration of the respective qualifications of Taylor and Byrne, Torralbas and Caiazzo unanimously recommended to Dr. Piegari that Byrne, not Taylor, be appointed to the head football coach position for 1992.

19. Thereafter, and based upon discussions he had with Torralbas, Caiazzo and other coaches, Piegari determined to concur in the recommendation from Torralbas and Caiazzo that Taylor did not satisfy the qualifications for the head varsity football coaching position. Thus, he recommended that the Board reappoint Byrne to the position.

20. Although Byrne is not employed as a teaching staff member in Waldwick, he does possess a county substitute certificate and approval to employ him as head varsity football coach was obtained from the Office of the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools.

21. During the summer of 1992, after Taylor applied for the position of assistant varsity football coach, Dr. Piegari indicated to him that he would be recommended for the position. However, he requested that Taylor forward a signed contract to the Board prior to the Board's acting on the appointment.

22. Thereafter, by mid-September 1992, Taylor withdrew his application for the position of assistant varsity football coach since he had not received written assurance that the Board had dropped its demand that he dismiss his lawsuit.

DISCUSSION

The State Board regulation pertaining to selection of coaches may be found at N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a) through (c). The genesis of that regulation was reviewed by the undersigned administrative law judge in the case of Krupp v. Union County Regional High School District Board of Education, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9182-91, decided by the Commissioner July 30, 1993, aff'd by the State Board of Education, January 7, 1994. In my initial decision in that case I observed that the clear thrust of the regulation was to require boards in the first instance to appoint to their coaching staffs qualified persons employed in the school district. See, Norcross v. Hunterdon Regional High School District, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 176 (Dept of Educ.), affirmed State Board 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 181; Capraro v. Woodbridge Board of Education, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 17 (Dept. of Educ.); Chambers v. Neptune Board of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. 1363. See also, Daniel and Moxley v. Board of Education of Irvington, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol 4A) 613 (Dept. of Educ.). The clear message emanating from all the pertinent decisions seems to me to place a very substantial burden upon a board of education to justify its action whenever applicants employed in the school district are rejected for a coaching position in favor of an "outsider" and as I pointed out in Krupp, supra, it is particularly important that local boards promulgate written qualifications under which candidates can be judged so that there can be no question as to why a decision not to employ an in-district person was made.

Nevertheless, despite the preference for in-district appointments, I agree with the Board that although the State Board regulation clearly poses a hurdle to out-of-district candidate selection, the barrier is not insurmountable and boards are free to promulgate reasonable written rules with respect to the qualifications they believe are important for such positions. Thus, whether or not the Board's action in Taylor's case meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, and the case law interpreting it, must be determined by matching the qualifications contained in its revised job description against the reasons upon which the Board relied in appointing Byrne rather than petitioner as its head varsity football coach for the 1992 season.

The first area of inquiry is whether Taylor met qualification "B"; i.e., that he had prior "head" coach experience or at least three (3) years experience as an assistant varsity or junior varsity coach. In respect to this qualification petitioner strenuously argued, of course, that his eighteen years' experience as a freshmen coach certainly has to be considered the equivalent of one year as an assistant varsity or junior varsity coach. If there is any doubt about that, he claims that his designation as the "head" freshmen football coach in the 1987 contract eliminates that doubt. Beyond that, of course, petitioner maintains that the three years prior experience criterion was deliberately inserted into the revised job description in order specifically to retaliate against Taylor for his previous suit against the Board and to give the Board an ostensibly legitimate basis to turn him down.

While, at first blush, Taylor's argument is an appealing one, I must reject it. Clearly, the designation in the 1987 contract of Taylor as "head" freshmen football coach was inadvertent, as demonstrated not only by the sixteen or seventeen other contracts which did not contain that designation, but in addition, the failure to include the "head" designation in the 1986-88 collective negotiations agreement. Moreover, the testimony at the hearing convincingly established that the freshmen football coach was always acting under the jurisdiction, control and supervision of the only "head" coach in the district--the head varsity football coach. Also, while one can argue that seventeen or eighteen years' experience as freshmen football coach ("head" coach or not) ought to be considered the equivalent of at least one year's experience as an assistant or junior varsity coach, that is a determination for the local officials to make. Thus, while I personally might disagree with the Board that petitioner failed to meet the qualification set forth in subparagraph B, that was a decision which the Board in the exercise of its discretion was entitled to make.

Moreover, even if I determined that Taylor meets the prior experience requirement, he still would not prevail since the Board's evidence convincingly demonstrated that he failed to meet some of the remaining requirements as well. The weight of the testimony from Torralbas, Caiazzo and Piegari more than overcame the testimony of Taylor and Straut with respect to petitioner's lack of leadership ability and communications effectiveness. When the testimony of Drechsel is added to that testimony the conclusion to be reached with respect to Taylor's failure to meet requirement "C" is reinforced. I also have no reason to doubt the veracity of the Board's witnesses to the effect that other, albeit unidentified, coaches and students expressed dismay with respect to the notion that Taylor might become the head varsity football coach and I am sure some of the derisive comments described by Caiazzo occurred. While the decision to appoint an individual to a coaching position is made by the Board, not by assistant coaches or students, the Board and its senior administrative staff must have the discretion to consider input received from the persons who, after all, would be in closest contact with the coach. The serious problems that these others had with Taylor came out during the course of the interview with Torralbas and Caiazzo; namely, his lack of familiarity with fundamental football matters and his deficiencies in the area of leadership and effective communication. I was particularly impressed by the testimony of Caiazzo who had the most experience with respect to knowledge of the varsity football program and the type of person the Board would need as head coach. Caiazzo, as head varsity football coach, directly supervised Taylor for many years when petitioner was the freshmen football coach and his conclusions with respect to whether Taylor deserves the head coaching position are entitled to particularly substantial weight. As Board counsel pointed out in his post-hearing brief, both Torralbas and Caiazzo, as well as Piegari, had every right to be concerned over Taylor's deficiencies with respect to the following areas: (a) absence of leadership and the possibility that others would not work under Taylor; (b) absence of an ability properly to prepare freshmen players for the varsity program; (c) an absence of effective communication with players; (d) lack of knowledge of the game, and in particular, not preparing freshmen players for the formations and plays used at the varsity level; (e) absence of knowledge with respect to new developments in the field of athletic equipment and safety; (f) a simplistic response to what could be a major problem--a player who confesses to a substance abuse; and (g) the general derision and ridicule expressed by persons when told Taylor might become the head football coach position.

I also agree with Board counsel, as I noted earlier, that neither the administrative law judge nor, for that matter the Commissioner of Education, ought to interfere with the discretionary decision-making of the local school authorities where there has been an absence of any demonstration that the local decision was marked by arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable characteristics. In my view there is no competent evidence to indicate that malevolent motives tainted the decision-making process here. In short, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 the Board's determination to reappoint Terrence Byrne as head varsity football coach for the 1992 football season, and its determination to reject the petitioner as not qualified for the position, properly was based upon a duly promulgated written job description, was neither arbitrary, capricious nor unreasonable and therefore should be sustained.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that the determination by respondent to appoint Terrence Byrne as head varsity football coach for the 1992 football season was proper and I therefore ORDER that Taylor's verified petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WALDWICK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions submitted by petitioner were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, having been filed on March 17, 1994 in response to an initial decision mailed on March 1, 1994. Consequently, those and the Board's reply thereto are not considered herein.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, the Board's determination to reappoint Terrence Byrne as head varsity football coach for the 1992 season, and its determination to reject petitioner as not qualified for the position, properly was based upon a duly promulgated written job description, was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and, therefore, should be sustained.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law for the reasons well articulated in such decision and hereby dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WALDWICK, BERGEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 6, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Springstead and Maurice (Alfred F. Maurice, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara
(Rodney T. Hara, Esq., of Counsel)

Robert Taylor (hereinafter "petitioner"), a teaching staff member in the employ of the Board of Education of the Borough of Waldwick (hereinafter "Board") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board had improperly denied him appointment as head varsity football coach in the district for the 1992-93 school year. Petitioner alleged that the assignment had been given improperly to Terrence Byrne (hereinafter "Byrne"), who held only a county substitute certificate, in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3.

On February 18, 1994, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, finding that the Board's actions had not been arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The ALJ concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, the Board's determination to appoint an individual with only a county substitute certificate and to reject petitioner as not qualified for the controverted coaching assignment was properly based upon a written job description therefor. The ALJ concluded that the Board's evidence convincingly demonstrated that petitioner did not meet the requirements for the coaching assignment as set forth in the job description.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner did not have the coaching experience required by the job description and that he lacked leadership ability and communications effectiveness. In so doing, the ALJ found "no reason to doubt the veracity of the Board's witnesses to the effect that other, albeit unidentified, coaches and students expressed dismay with respect to the notion that Taylor might become the head varsity football coach..." Initial Decision, slip op. at 18. The ALJ found that school officials "had every right to be concerned over Taylor's deficiencies with respect to the following areas: (a) absence of leadership and the possibility that others would not work under Taylor; (b) absence of an ability properly to prepare freshmen players for the varsity program; (c) an absence of effective communication with players; (d) lack of knowledge of the game, and in particular, not preparing freshmen players for the formations and plays used at the varsity level; (e) absence of knowledge with respect to new developments in the field of athletic equipment and safety; (f) a simplistic response to what could be a major problem--a player who confesses to a substance abuse; and (g) the general derision and ridicule expressed by persons when told Taylor might become the head football coach position [sic]." Id. at 18-19.

On April 6, 1994, the Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and dismissed the petition.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board from the decision of the Commissioner.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to dismiss the petition. However, we modify and clarify the ALJ's analysis, which was adopted by the Commissioner.

N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 provides, in pertinent part:

> (a) Any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board of education shall not be permitted to organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of instruction, or coaching or for conducting games, events or contests in physical education or athletics.
>
> (b) School districts shall be permitted to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate to work in the interscholastic athletic program provided that the position has been advertised.
>
> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:
>
> i. The vacant coaching position had been advertised; and > ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education;...

The holder of a substandard county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach only in the event there is no "qualified and certified applicant." N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c). Union City Education Association v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, decided by the State Board, June 1, 1994, appeal pending, Docket #A-6152-93T3 (App. Div.). It is undisputed that Byrne held only a county substitute certificate. Petitioner, on the other hand, held a standard instructional certificate. In that petitioner was the only "certified" applicant for the coaching assignment, the narrow issue presented by this case is whether he was also "qualified" for such assignment based on the written standards of the district. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c)(1)(ii). If so, the Board abused its discretion in appointing the holder of a substandard county substitute certificate.[1] See Norcross v. Board of Education of the North Hunterdon Regional High School District, decided by the Commissioner, August 8, 1991, aff'd by the State Board, February 5, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-3533-91T1 (App. Div. 1993).

It was petitioner's burden in this matter to demonstrate that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Based on the record before us,[2] we agree with the Commissioner that he has failed to do so. However, we also find that the ALJ's analysis, which was adopted by the Commissioner, went beyond the express written standards required of head coaches in the district.

The job description adopted by the Board included the following qualifications for a head coach:

> A. Valid New Jersey teaching certificate or county substitute certificate.
>
> B. Prior head coach experience or at least three (3) years experience as an assistant varsity or junior varsity coach.
> C. Must demonstrate leadership and organizational ability and be able to effectively

1 We note that while there is no right to employment as a coach, Koslick v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, decided by the State Board of Education, April 1, 1987, aff'd, Docket #4358-86T1 (App. Div. 1987), a district board must adhere to the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 in selecting coaches. communicate with students/athletes, other coaches, teaching staff members, the media and public.

D. Possess a basic knowledge of the sport, including its rules and regulations, through actual playing or alternative experience.

E. Possess a basic knowledge of the appropriate athletic equipment, athletic training and conditioning, and first aid.

Stipulation of Facts, at Exhibit A.

We emphasize that the specific issue to be addressed in this case is not whether petitioner would have made a better coach than Byrne or even whether there was a preference in the district for Byrne. Rather, the limited issued presented herein under N.J.A.C. 6:29-3-3 is whether petitioner, a certified teacher in the employ of the Board, satisfied the express written standards promulgated by the Board for head coaches. In light of those standards, we find it improper and inequitable to conclude that any "general ridicule and derision" expressed by unidentified sources when told that petitioner might become the head football coach rendered him "unqualified" for such assignment, initial decision, slip op. at 19, in the absence of the specific underlying basis for such reaction. We therefore reject the Board's argument in its exceptions to the report of our Legal Committee that such evidence in and of itself substantiated its contention that petitioner lacked leadership skills.

Nor do we attach any particular relevance to the ALJ's finding that school officials, in determining not to employ petitioner as head coach, were rightly concerned about his "deficiency" in giving a "simplistic response" to the problem of a player who confesses to substance abuse. While the Board's concern with substance abuse is understandable, its job description does not call for head coaches to possess special skills in dealing with such matters. And, indeed, we do not find petitioner's response -- to refer the player to a substance abuse counselor -- to be inappropriate.

Nonetheless, based on the record before us,[3] we are unable to conclude that petitioner has satisfied his burden of establishing that the Board's action were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The only evidence before us supporting petitioner's satisfaction of the written standards is the testimony recounted in the Initial Decision of petitioner and one witness, the head varisity football coach in the district in 1971-72 and 1972-73, whose testimony was based upon his recollection of petitioner's work as the freshman coach at that time. In particular, we cannot conclude on the basis of this record that petitioner has established that he had the prior coaching experience required by the job description. Nor can we find on the basis of the record before us that the Board acted in bad faith in adopting this job description, as petitioner contends.

Consequently, as modified herein, we agree that the petitioner has not demonstrated that the Board's action in failing to appoint him as head football coach was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and we affirm the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to dismiss his petition.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

BARBARA ANNE BARRETT,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAINESPORT,
Respondent.

Barbara Anne Barrett, petitioner, pro se

Steven J. Mushinski, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Barbara Anne Barrett, petitioner, seeks interim relief and a stay of Board action pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. The petitioner is a candidate for a seat on the Hainesport Board of Education in the election to be held on April 19, 1994. She states she mistakenly filed to run for a three-year seat on the Board, commonly known as a full term, but intended to file and run for a two-year, unexpired term.

Barrett filed a certified petition of appeal, including a request for emergent relief, before the Commissioner of Education on or about March 15, 1994. The Department of Education on March 16, 1994 transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, including the request for emergent relief, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

The Office of Administrative Law noticed the parties that oral argument on the emergent relief portion of the petition would be heard at 9 a.m. on March 21, 1994 at the Office of Administrative Law facility in Mercerville (Trenton). The parties appeared and were heard at that time.

THE PARTIES' ARGUMENTS

The parties stipulate that the 1994 election will be held, barring unforeseen events, on April 19. The parties further stipulate that the 48th day before April 19 is March 2; the 49th day before April 19 is March 1, and the 54th day before April 19 is February 24.

Petitioner's Arguments

The petitioner generally argues a mistake of fact. She filed her petition on February 22, 1994. Part A of the petition is, by her own statement, in her handwriting. She secured the signatures on the petition, went to Board offices and filled in some remaining information while there.

The next day, the petitioner gave birth to a son. While in hospital, the petitioner received a telephone call from the person who had signed and verified her petition. He advised the petitioner she had filed for a three-year term. The petitioner states she intended to file for a two-year, unexpired term.

As soon as she was able, on or about Monday, February 28, she called Board offices and the State Department of Education. She could not reach a Ms. Hoffman at the Department, but left a message. On the same day the petitioner went to Board offices. She believed the last day for amendment would be March 1. She also believed "a form could be sent from Trenton" that she could use to rectify her error.

On the next day, March 1, she spoke to Board secretary Myers. The Secretary stated she would speak to persons at the State Department of Education. The secretary called the petitioner later in the day and advised petitioner that a form was coming in the mail. Also on March 1, Barrett filed a handwritten petition of appeal asking amendment of her nominating petition. She delivered a copy to Board offices. The secretary advised the petitioner that a decision would be made whether amendment would be allowed or not. The secretary was awaiting advice of counsel. The petitioner asked to receive the decision in writing.

On March 9, having heard nothing, the petitioner called the Board secretary and asked what had happened. The secretary advised that a letter was in the mail to Barrett and "the ball" was in her court.

Barrett stated she did not realize the procedure she spoke about with the State Department representative, that is, the petition of appeal process, was the same that Myers meant.

Barrett again worked on her petition of appeal immediately. She spoke with nominating petition signers and secured written statements from them. She went to Board offices to serve a copy of the petition of appeal. Later, she received a letter from the Board secretary stating that she could not amend her nominating petition.

Board's Arguments

The Board states that the facts do not appear to be in dispute. The petitioner met the deadline for filing a nominating petition. She did not, however, file an apparently defective petition.

The petitioner had to make any change she wished to make on or before March 1. In The Matter of the School Board Candidacy of Janice I. Leenhouts, OAL DKT. EDU 1491-88 (Mar. 14, 1988), adopted Comm'r of Ed. (Apr. 5, 1988), the Commissioner listed examples of petition defects under N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 as follows:

1. One of the names on the petition was printed, not signed, therefore in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9 and N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5;

2. The nominating petition in question was signed by five persons who are not legally qualified voters . . . in violation of N.J.S.A. 19:13-5;

> 3. One such petitioner, Carolyn Fay, who is registered to vote under the name of Carolyn Gunn and who has voted under the name Gunn in 1984 and 1985, was in violation of N.J.S.A. 19:31-13 . . . .

Leenhouts, above, at 691.

This is not a defective petition case. The petition is valid on its face. The fact that the petitioner wants to run for a two-year term does not constitute a defect in the petition. In Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974), the court stated

> A request to amend a petition for office, as allegedly defective, after the deadline for filing of the petition must be denied when the proposed amendment changes the office being sought. Changing the office designation to which one seeks election on an otherwise nondefective petition is not remedying a defect. If such an amendment were allowed, the opportunity for fraud would prevail. While N.J.S.A. 19:13-13 allows amendments to the nominating petition, it does so only to let a defective petition be corrected. The petition submitted by plaintiff was not defective and thus, N.J.S.A. 19:13-13 is inapplicable. [Emphasis added.]

As submitted, Barrett's petition showed no defect. Only defective petitions can be corrected and, even then, if the defect does not concern signatures. Inasmuch as February 24 had passed, the Board secretary did the proper thing. She had a petition valid on its face.

Lepre stands for the proposition that a movant must offer clear and convincing proof that the petition did not identify the office sought. In the present case, the petitioner filled in the top, Part A, of the petition after signers had affixed their signatures. There is insufficient evidence presented by the petitioner to cause a delay in printing ballots, the temporary relief sought, or to require that the petitioner's name be moved from the three-year full term position to the two-year expired term position.

The Board secretary could not accommodate Barrett's request. The secretary received a valid petition and the secretary had no authority to change that petition.

DETERMINATION

As the Board correctly points out, Lepre controls, notwithstanding that it deals with a councilmanic election. The principles are identical.

Even more telling is what would be required to effect the change the petitioner desires. There are only two possibilities. First, Part A of the existing petition could be changed so that it reads " . . . for the unexpired term of two years, . . .". However, the signers have already signed, one of the signers has verified the petition under oath, and the petition has been notarized. Further, the petitioner signed her acceptance as a "candidate for membership on the Board of Education, named in the foregoing petition," and certified that she is not disqualified as a voter and is qualified to be elected a member of the Board. This, obviously, is not a satisfactory solution.

Second, Barrett could circulate a new petition, being sure to correctly identify an unexpired, two-year term. However, at least ten signatures would have to be collected. Under the clear requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12, she cannot do so because the 49th day preceding the date of the election (March 1) has passed. Thus, this option is an impossibility.

There being no way the petitioner can correct her nominating petition, and the nominating petition that did she submit being valid on its face, I DETERMINE that there is no relief that may be afforded the petitioner in these circumstances. Assuming, arguendo, that the petitioner will be immediately and irreparably harmed, it remains that she has little chance of prevailing on the merits and that the Board, on balance, would suffer relatively more hardship. It would be put to efforts not required of the petitioner. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

Accordingly, I ORDER the motion for emergent relief DENIED. The matter will proceed to plenary hearing on the merits.

This order on application for emergent relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days folowing the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10. .

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAINESPORT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision on motion of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge denying emergent relief for the reasons stated by him in the initial decision on motion. Further, in view of the determinations made by the ALJ in reaching his conclusion, i.e., that there is no way petitioner can correct her nominating petition and that the petition which was submitted is now presumed to be valid, the Commissioner finds and determines that there is no further relief which can be accorded petitioner in this matter and, consequently, there is no necessity for further proceedings in this regard.

Accordingly, the order of the Office of Administrative Law denying emergent relief is affirmed and the within matter is hereby dismissed as moot. OAL is, therefore, requested to return the file to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3.

E. P. REID, INC.,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Edward P. Reid, president, petitioner corporation, appearing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.4(a)5

Charlotte Kitler, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: March 22, 1994 Decided: March 29, 1994

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

E. P. Reid, Inc., prequalified by the Department of Treasury to bid on public school electrical contracting, provided bids to the State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, for contracts involving fire alarm improvements. At opening of bids on December 2, 1993, bids on contracts E-1 and E-2 were rejected by the district, which advised petitioner on February 22, 1994 it was ineligible to submit future bids because the district said "it cannot be considered responsible and reliable to complete any project in the district in a timely manner." Alleging it was lowest responsible bidder on December 2, 1993, petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on March 15, 1994 asserting the district had no authority to disqualify it from contracting, any such disqualification having been assigned to the Department of Treasury under N.J.A.C. 6:20-7.2, 7.3. Petitioner sought judgment that it be awarded contracts E-1 and E-2 forthwith and that district advertisement for new bids for contracts E-1 and E-2 be immediately canceled or stayed until final decision.

Before answer, deeming the petition one seeking emergent relief, the Commissioner transmitted it to the Office of Administrative Law on March 17, 1994 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On short notice, the motion for emergent relief came on before the administrative law judge on March 22, 1994 when it was heard and concluded, on documentation submitted and argument.

DISCUSSION

At hearing background facts were undisputed but amplified. Petitioner was lowest bidder on contract E-1, one of three contracts for fire alarm replacement and improvements, as bids were opened on December 2, 1993. Petitioner's low bid on E-1 was rejected after a hearing before the district because of its failure to complete another fire alarm project in the district at P.S. 6 in a timely manner and lack of assurance it could complete the new project within specified time. Petitioner was not low bidder on the second contract, E-2. Another company submitted the lowest bid on E-2 but it had been accepted minutes after time of bid opening and was deemed procedurally improper. The district determined to reject all bids on E-2 and readvertise for bidding. Bids on contract E-1 were also readvertised, after rejection of petitioner's low bid for irresponsibility.

It is bidding on the two readvertised contracts that petitioner here seeks to enjoin.

In correspondence between the parties, petitioner was notified on January 6, 1994 (R-1) the district could not regard it as lowest responsible bidder on contract E-1. At its request, a responsibility hearing was conducted in the district on February 1, 1994 (R-2). A hearing officer filed his findings, conclusion and recommendation on February 4, 1994 (R-3). The state-operated district superintendent adopted the findings as a final decision on February 22, 1994, saying:

> . . . I cannot find any satisfactory explanation for the lengthy delays on P.S. 6 project after August 1993. The hearing officer found that the company repeatedly gave new completion dates . . . Having reviewed the report and comments, I agree with the hearing officer that the major delays on P.S. 6 project were due to the company's lack of attention to the project and its assignment of an inadequate number of workers. I further agree that E. P. Reid, Inc. cannot be considered responsible and reliable to complete any project in this district in a timely manner.
> Therefore, I hereby adopt the hearing officer's report as a final decision. The bid of E. P. Reid, Inc. on contract E-1, fire alarm replacement and improvements, is hereby rejected. In addition, as recommended by the hearing officer, E. P. Reid, Inc. is ineligible to submit a bid on contract E-2, which is being readvertised for bids in the near future [scheduled for March 31, 1994].
> This is the final decision of the district. Any appeal may be taken to the Commissioner of Education in the manner prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 [R-4].

It is not disputed by the parties that the district reserved the right to reject all bids, nor that bids on contracts E-1 and E-2 were formally rejected, nor that new bids were advertised for receipt and opening on March 31, 1994.

Nor is it disputed that E. P. Reid, Inc. has been preclassified as an electrical contractor proposing to bid on public school electrical work as to character and particular amount of such public work on which it is qualified to submit bids. Boards of education, as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-26, shall accept such bids only from persons qualified in accordance with classification. See, P-1. The State Board of Education may establish reasonable regulations controlling qualifications of prospective bidders for public school work and may fix qualifications required according to financial ability and experience of the bidders, as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27. In turn, the State Board has delegated authority to qualify bidders to the Department of Treasury. Specifically, debarment, suspension and disqualification of would-be bidders is so delegated. N.J.A.C. 6:20-7.1, 7.2 and 7.3.

But the process by which petitioner here was found not to be a responsible bidder on contracts E-1 and E-2 yet to be let was not a statutory debarment, suspension or disqualification from state-wide district contracting in general. To that extent, it seems to me, petitioner has misconceived its legal position. Although the Public School Contracts Law in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37 provides that all contracts that require public advertisement for bids shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, and although petitioner's bid on E-1 may have been lowest, its bid was rejected along with all others and neither contract E-1 or E-2 was awarded on December 2, 1993. Rejection for irresponsibilty cannot be done without a hearing. In Venneri Company v. Paterson Housing Authority, 29 N.J. 392, 402 (1959), the Supreme Court said:

> It is settled doctrine that following advertisement [for bids] the low bidder for a municipal contract be afforded a hearing on the issue on responsibility prior to an award of a contract to a higher bidder. . . To reject the lowest bid there must be evidence of such character concerning the irresponsibility of the bidder as would cause fair-minded and reasonable men to believe it was not in the best interest of the municipality to award the contract to the lowest bidder. . . The requirement of a hearing derives from basic policy of the bidding laws, i.e., the encouragement of competition, which in turn works to protect the public coffers and prevent chicanery and fraud in public office. . . Arbitrary rejection of favorable bids results in the stifling of competition and undermines the policy of the act--hence the requirement of a hearing before a bid can be rejected on grounds of irresponsibility. . . Although responsibility may involve experience, financial ability, and facilities necessary to perform the contract, . . . it may also involve the moral integrity of the bidder. . . The principle is firm in public school bidding law. Cf., Rose v. Board of Ed., East Orange, 39 N.J. Super. 565, 568-9 (Law 1956); Case Box Lunch, Inc. v. Board of Ed., City of Trenton, 1972 S.L.D. 479, 483. It follows that a bidder like petitioner, who is "prequalified" and classified by a state agency as to the character and amount of work on which it may bid, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27, is not automatically a "responsible" bidder under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37. In Trap Rock Industries, Inc. v. Kohl, 59 N.J. 471, 481 (1971), the Supreme Court said:
> . . . We find no purpose to vest in a preclassified bidder any "right" that derogates the primary right of the state through its department of transportation to do business . . . with "the lowest responsible bidder.
> Thus, the bidder's "rights" remain subordinate to the primary interest of the state as a consumer. We must give ultimate regard to the state's welfare. [Bidders] cannot be accorded any "right" that would subvert the primary objective of the statute, that the state do business with a "responsible" bidder. . .

Applying those principles here, it can be sensed petitioner mistakes prequalification and licensure as precluding the district from considering it an irresponsible bidder. If petitioner has a right to a responsibility hearing before its bids are rejected, petitioner quite obviously has had such pre-bid responsibility hearing in advance of opening of new bids on March 31, 1994. Thus, though the conclusion of the district as to irresponsibility may be questioned, what may scarcely be questioned is the process here by which the conclusion developed. That last goes to the essence of petitioner's motion for emergent relief.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, governing applications for emergent relief, and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(b), require application of equitable principles of the Supreme Court of New Jersey in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-134 (1982). Immediate emergent preliminary injunctive relief may not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm and when a petitioner has shown reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits of its case. It should not issue where the legal right underlying a claim is unsettled or where material facts are in dispute. The court must assess relative harm to the parties and the public interest. My view is that petitioner has shown no right to remedy derived from bidding prequalification as such, nor has it shown a preponderant likelihood of success on a challenge to results of a responsibility hearing. In any plenary proceeding hereafter, certainly, petitioner faces a presumption the state-operated district superintendent's conclusion of irresponsibility was correct and valid. Odds against petitioner's showing the conclusion was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable are not favorable.

CONCLUSION

The motion for emergent relief in the form of stay of proceedings scheduled by the district for opening bids and awarding contracts on E-1 and E-2, scheduled presently for March 31, 1994, is DENIED. The matter is ORDERED to proceed to plenary hearing in usual course unless earlier withdrawn.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law on motion for emergent relief have been reviewed. Exceptions were filed by petitioner on March 30, 1994, urging the Commissioner to reject the initial decision on grounds that a school district may not lawfully set its own terms for bidder responsibility, and even assuming it could, petitioner can prevail on the facts at plenary hearing.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner herein has not met the standards for grant of extraordinary restraints pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), in that the legal grounds for its claim are unsettled and no demonstration of likelihood of success on the merits was made at preliminary hearing sufficient to overcome the evidence provided by respondent.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law denying emergent relief and recommending that this matter proceed to plenary hearing unless earlier withdrawn by petitioner is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured music teacher, appealed Board's withholding of her employment and adjustment increments for the 1991-92 school year due to alleged unsatisfactory classroom management. Petitioner contended Board's action was illegal, arbitrary, capricious, unfounded, in bad faith and in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

ALJ concluded petitioner failed to meet her burden of demonstrating that the Board's action was improper. ALJ found Board had reasonable factual basis for its determination and accorded petitioner fundamental due process in that she received advance notice of her unsatisfactory performance and the opportunity to "rectify her deficiencies." (Kopera; Fitzpatrick) ALJ affirmed Board's withholding of petitioner's increments. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Elizabeth Harrity, appeals from an action by the Board of Education of the Borough of Keansburg (Board) to withhold her employment and adjustment increments for the 1991-92 school year alleging such action was illegal, arbitrary, capricious, unfounded, in bad faith, and in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. On September 11, 1991, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

BACKGROUND FACTS

On November 12, 1991, a prehearing conference was held where, among other things, the date for the hearing was established for April 29, 30, 1992 and May 1, 1992. It was also ordered that all discovery was to be completed 30 days prior to the hearing date.

On April 23, 1992, the parties requested an adjournment of the scheduled hearing for the purposes of settlement. The requested adjournment was granted.

On June 4, 1992, counsel for the Board, Joseph H. Orlando, Esquire, advised petitioner's attorney, Stephen B. Hunter, Esquire, that the Board rejected petitioner's settlement proposal. Mr. Orlando advised Mr. Hunter that it would be necessary to proceed with an administrative hearing. The undersigned was so advised and set down November 6, 1992 as the hearing date. The parties were also reminded by letter dated June 29, 1992, that all discovery was to be completed no later than thirty (30) days prior to the hearing date.

The November 6, 1992 hearing was adjourned due to attorney conflict. The instant matter was rescheduled for May 10, 1993.

On May 4, 1993, the Board propounded and served upon petitioner a Notice of Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Provide Discovery. The return date, May 10, 1993, was established for oral argument on the motion. This administrative tribunal, having heard arguments of the parties, granted the Board's Motion to Dismiss on the hearing record. Subsequently, before the undersigned had executed its initial decision granting the Board's motion to dismiss the herein matter, it was advised of the Appellate Court's determination in Zimmerman v. United Services Auto., 260 N.J. Super 368 (App Div. 1992). In Zimmerman, the Honorable Sylvia B. Pressler, P.J.A.D., held, among other things, that the dismissal of the compliant with prejudice for failure to timely serve fully responsive answers to interrogatories was inappropriate. Based upon the Zimmerman decision, this tribunal, sua sponte, reopened the record and so advised the parties.

A telephone prehearing conference was scheduled on June 11, 1993. Due to attorney conflict, the prehearing conference was adjourned until September 15, 1993. The hearing was held on January 10, 1994, at the Shrewsbury Township, New Jersey Municipal Court. The hearing record closed on January 10, 1994.

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

Petitioner, Elizabeth Ann Harrity, testified, among other things, that she had been employed by the Board since 1984 as a Vocal Music Teacher for grades kindergarten through eight. From the school year 1985-86 through 1989-90, petitioner was assigned to teach music to grades kindergarten through the fourth from September until February of each school year. From February until June of each of the school years petitioner was assigned to teach vocal music to grades five through eight. During the 1990-91 school year petitioner began a maternity leave on or about October 5, 1990, which continued until February, 1991. Prior to her maternity leave, petitioner was assigned to grades kindergarten through four. Upon her return to the school district in February, 1991, petitioner was assigned to teach vocal music to grades five through eight. consistent with her prior assignments. Petitioner's son was born on October 5, 1990.

During petitioner's teaching experience with the Board, she was supervised and evaluated by three principals; i.e., Jane Pukstas, Walter Coleman, both elementary principals, and middle school principal Annie P. Miele. Petitioner testified that a classroom observation of her music class conducted on December 17, 1985, by Principal Coleman, mentioned nothing about her classroom management (P-1, Exhibit A). Petitioner admitted that the Annual Summary Evaluation of her performance, dated June 8, 1987, stated that an area in need of improvement consisted of petitioner maintaining a classroom atmosphere conducive to learning. Part of petitioner's Professional Improvement Plan (PIP) stated that petitioner was to participate in workshops on assertive discipline to be offered by the school district in the fall of 1987. (P-1, Exhibit D). Petitioner asserted that a classroom observation conducted on February 11, 1988, did not mention her classroom management. (P-1, Exhibit E). Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation dated June 7, 1988, stated in part, that petitioner had met her PIP by attending the assertive discipline workshops and implemented the procedures into her program. Principal Coleman stated in petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation that the PIP objective has been completed. (P-1, Exhibit F). Petitioner testified that a classroom observation of her music class on May 11, 1989, mentioned her classroom management. The observer stated:

> I recommend that for the two classes that have been difficult for you to manage, a more structured, traditional methodology be employed.... (P-1, Exhibit H)

The observer continued to state:

> As discussed in our previous conferences, the seating arrangement is not conducive to good classroom management. Please arrange seating for the 12:00 class and your 2:00 class. They seemed to be the classes with the most problems. I recommend a semi-circle consisting of three rows. All students should be in your line of sight when you are instructing or directing. (P-1, Exhibit H).

Petitioner further testified that in her Annual Summary Evaluation, dated June 12, 1989, there was no mention concerning her classroom management, nor did the Annual Summary Evaluation comment about a follow up of the seating arrangement in her music classes. An observation of petitioner's vocal music class on February 15, 1990, the observer complimented petitioner on her lesson which demonstrated that petitioner had done a lot of planning and preparation. Petitioner had provided a variety of activities for the pupils and petitioner let the pupils know how she planned to spend the period. However, the observer went on to state:

> Discipline is an outstanding problem in this class, and needs to be remediated immediately. You are not being assertive when you threaten to put names on the board. You are not being consistent when you tell students not to call out, but accept their answers anyway.
> Please avail yourself of Lee Canter's Assertive Discipline from the school library and read it as soon as possible. Also, watch the video tapes of Assertive Discipline, Phase II. (P-1, Exhibit J).

In a subsequent observation of petitioner's classroom conducted on February 22, 1990, the observer complimented petitioner on the classroom organization and the participation of the students throughout the lesson. The observer continued to state:

> Mrs. Harrity referred to points being awarded to the class for good behavior. This appeared to be part of an overall plan to improve behavior. During informal observations, especially in the upper grades, some behavior problems have been observed.
>
> Students returning equipment following the class were talking and making noise with instruments outside of the next class. I > recommend positioning yourself to observe the hallway, as well as the the classroom to insure appropriate behavior. (P-1, Exhibit K).

Petitioner testified that on April 20, 1990, she was in receipt of a letter from Superintendent Joseph C. Caruso, which stated:

> A review of this year's teaching performance indicates you are having difficulty with classroom management in the upper grades. Please refer to your classroom observations and evaluations for specifics.
> Continuation of this poor management performance at any time in the future, will necessitate the recommendation to withhold your increment. (P-1, Exhibit L).

Petitioner testified that prior to receipt of the April 20, 1990, letter, Superintendent Caruso observed petitioner prior to the award of her tenure. This observation occurred at the end of the 1987-88 school year. However, there was no discussion with the Superintendent in 1990. Petitioner asserted that Superintendent Caruso neither visited nor observed her classroom during the 1989-90 school year. Petitioner further testified that there were no discussions with her school Principal with regard to classroom management in or about April 1990. Petitioner could not understand why Superintendent Caruso criticized her classroom management at that time. Subsequently, on June 11, 1990, petitioner was in receipt of her Annual Summary Evaluation which stated, among other things, that an area of weakness was her classroom management in the upper grades. (P-1, Exhibit M). Petitioner asserted, however, that the evaluator did not specify what the classroom management weakness included.

Petitioner was on maternity leave from October 5, 1990 until early February 1991. Shortly after her return to the district, on February 7, 1991, an unannounced observation of her classroom performance was conducted by Barbara Trzeszkowski, the Curriculum Coordinator. Petitioner asserted that she was not advised that she would be observed. The Curriculum Coordinator's comments stated, among other things, that:

> As we have discussed, this lesson was not successful and that students were not able to achieve the objective as stated in the lesson. . . . (P-1, Exhibit N).

Petitioner contended that the equipment, a tape recorder, was broken and that petitioner was not able to continue with the lesson. In addition, this class was composed of special education pupils and that petitioner needed the tape in order to successfully complete the lesson. On February 11, 1991, petitioner issued her handwritten comments objecting to the observation and comments made by the Curriculum Coordinator. (P-1, Exhibit N). Petitioner testified that six days later, on February 13, 1991, she was again observed by Thomas Lindia, Vice Principal. In his observation report, Mr. Lindia discussed his observation of petitioner's performance at great length and concluded by making four recommendations for petitioner to follow. (P-1, Exhibit O). On February 15, 1991, petitioner again set forth her written comments concerning the Vice Principal's observation and addressed those concerns stated by him. (P-1, Exhibit O). On February 26, 1991, fourteen days after the February 7, 1991, observation and eight days subsequent to the February 13, 1991, observation, petitioner was observed by Principal Robert Seidel. In his comments concerning the observation, Principal Seidel observed that petitioner had used a check off system presented in the Lee Cantor's Assertive Discipline Program. However, he was critical of petitioner because time was taken from the lesson to tell the pupils that their names were being placed on the chalk board. Mr. Seidel suggested in his observation report that petitioner review the application of this technique in the Assertive Discipline tapes, and petitioner would then see that the use of this technique is designed to reduce the breaks in her lesson. He asserted that the name goes up on the board, but petitioner is to keep on working. Principal Seidel had other critical remarks concerning his observation of petitioner's performance. Petitioner did not respond, in writing, to the Principal's observation. This was the third unannounced observation of petitioner's classroom performance since February 13, 1991.

On March 14, 1991, petitioner was again observed, unannounced, by a Supervisor. The Supervisor's comments were complimentary to petitioner where it was stated that her lesson appeared to be organized and consisted of planned multi-activities. The Supervisor observed that petitioner used the chalk board to emphasize the topics, however, the lesson was presented at a very fast pace. The Supervisor then made five suggestions for petitioner to follow, one of which involved petitioner's use of assertive discipline. The Supervisor suggested:

> When following the assertive discipline program, list names on the chalk board, without disruption to your instructional time. If you wish to admonish those students, do so after class. Several times classroom instruction was disrupted due to student misbehavior. (P-1, Exhibit Q).

Petitioner testified that never before in her professional experience had she been observed in her classroom on four occasions in less than a six week period.

Petitioner testified that on or about June 10, 1991, she received a letter from Superintendent Caruso who advised petitioner that the Superintendent would recommend to the Board the withholding of petitioner's employment increment and adjustment increment on a permanent basis for "inefficiency and/or other just cause." Superintendent Caruso stated that he would make such a recommendation to the Board on June 13, 1991, at its workshop meeting. Petitioner was further advised by Mr. Caruso that petitioner had the right to an informal appearance before the Board if she chose to do so. On June 11, 1991, one day after receipt of the Superintendent's letter, petitioner received her Annual Summary Evaluation. In Section D, Overall Evaluation, the report states:

> Your overall evaluation is unsatisfactory. For the second consecutive year you have been cited for deficiencies in classroom management skills. The District has provided you with ITIP training (Instructional Theory Into Practice) and will provide you with Class Management Training this summer at the Academy for the Advancement of Teaching and Management. You have also been furnished with Assertive Discipline video tapes, resource books and materials in addition to post observation conferences and written comments. Your professional goals for the 1991-92 school years are to improve your class management and to implement effective instructional techniques. (P-1, Exhibit S).

Petitioner testified that she discussed the classroom management criticism with her Principal. The Annual Summary Evaluation asserted that petitioner's performance was unsatisfactory wherein her lessons needed better planning and preparation to insure success for all pupils. The report further mentioned that the Assertive Discipline tapes were being used by petitioner, however, not fully. Petitioner contended that this statement was not explained to her.

Petitioner testified that she had a difference of opinion with Principal Seidel concerning the vocal music program. Petitioner opined that the music program should be elective, however, Principal Seidel believed that it should continue to be a mandatory part of the program. Further, Principal Seidel wanted singing in the classroom while petitioner wanted a survey course; i.e. identification of notes on the scales, harmony, among other things. Petitioner contended that Mr. Seidel would not listen to her, moreover, she understood that Mr. Seidel was the Administrator of the building.

With regard to the disciplinary structure in the school, petitioner asserted that each teacher had his or her own set of rules. Petitioner did not believe that she had received any support from the school administration because when she sent a pupil out of the classroom the pupil would be returned to the classroom immediately. Petitioner asserted that she had no disciplinary problems with the pupils in the lower grades.

Petitioner testified that Susan Mebane replaced petitioner while petitioner was on maternity leave. Upon petitioner's return to the school district in February 1991, Ms. Mebane was retained as petitioner's assistant. Ms. Mebane would teach the general music pupils, who were the better pupils in the school chorus. However, when Ms. Mebane did not appear for duty, because she was pursuing a career in opera, her pupils would be assigned to petitioner's classroom. Petitioner asserted that Ms. Mebane's pupils knew that petitioner was not evaluating them and, therefore, they would become disruptive while in petitioner's classroom. Petitioner was instructed by the Principal to take over Mebane's pupils when Ms. Mebane was absent.

On cross examination, petitioner asserted that she did not feel that she had a problem teaching the upper grade pupils and that she had no problems teaching in the lower grades. She recognized, however, that her evaluations reflected problems she experienced with the pupils in grades seven and eight.

The record demonstrates that petitioner's observations and evaluations were satisfactory prior to her achieving a tenure status in the school district. The record demonstrates that by 1987, petitioner recognized that she had problems maintaining classroom discipline. In fact, as early as 1986, petitioner's Supervisor recommended petitioner's attendance at the Assertive Discipline program (R-2). This recommendation occurred while petitioner was still not tenured. Petitioner's attendance at the Assertive Discipline program became a part of petitioner's PIP prior to her achieving tenure.

Petitioner asserted that she had no personality conflict with Principal Anne Miele. Petitioner considered Ms. Miele an objective observer. Ms. Miele had complimented petitioner on a music program for the eighth grade graduation and sent petitioner a memorandum to that effect dated June 24, 1986 (P-1, Exhibit C).

Petitioner believed that Principal Seidel was the observer of P-1, Exhibit H, because it detailed how petitioner was to correct discipline. In Exhibit J it is noted that petitioner was having disciplinary problems. Petitioner recognized that a classroom teacher could be dismissed because of disciplinary problems.

The February 7, 1991, observation (P-1, Exhibit N) was the first time petitioner disputed there was a problem with her classroom management. She admitted, however, that the Supervisor was critical of her performance because there was no back up plan, no contingency plan. Petitioner conceded that classroom planning is class management.

Petitioner further admitted that Exhibits H, I, J, and K dealt with classroom management problems petitioner exhibited a year prior to the increment withholding. She further admitted that the classroom observers and evaluators offered suggestions on how to improve her classroom performance and class management.

While petitioner also believed that Barbara Trzeszkowski was an objective observer, she opined that Principal Seidel was not objective. Petitioner disagreed with Seidel on policy grounds that the music program was mandatory rather than elective, as petitioner would have preferred. Petitioner admitted that Principal Miele had identified disciplinary problems as early as September 1986 and recommended that petitioner attend the Assertive Discipline workshops. Petitioner further admitted that she has a duty to supervise pupils while the pupils are in her classroom.

Petitioner asserted that Ms. Mebane's pupils were unruly and that the rules for dealing with the pupils differed between the two teachers. Petitioner continued to assert that most of the gifted and talented pupils were assigned to Mebane's music classroom.

Petitioner testified that subsequent to receipt of the Superintendent's letter dated June 10, 1991, advising petitioner of the Superintendent's recommendation to the Board to withhold her increment, petitioner testified that she elected not to appear before the Board on the advice of a representative of the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA).

FINDING OF FACT

Based upon a total review of the evidence before me, and having given fair weight thereto; I FIND the following FACTS:

1. As early as September 12, 1986, Principal Annie P. Miele recommended that petitioner participate in the program of Assertive Discipline. Workshops in the program were being conducted at Frances Place School under the Board's direction.

2. Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation for the 1986-87 school year reported on June 8, 1987, that petitioner needed improvement in maintaining classroom atmosphere conducive to learning. As a part of petitioner's annual PIP petitioner was to participate in workshops given by the Board on Assertive Discipline beginning in the Fall of 1987.

3. Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation for the year 1987-88 indicated that petitioner had attended the Assertive Discipline workshops and implemented the procedures into her program. The evaluation indicates that petitioner's objective under her PIP had been completed.

4. Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation for the academic year 1988-89 mentioned nothing about petitioner's classroom management.

5. An unannounced classroom observation of petitioner conducted on February 15, 1990, noted that discipline was an outstanding problem in that particular class and needed to be remediated immediately. Petitioner was reminded to avail herself of the Assertive Discipline from the school library and to read it as soon as possible. Petitioner was also advised to view the video tapes of Assertive Discipline, Phase II.

6. In an unannounced observation of petitioner's classroom performance conducted on February 22, 1990, the observer complimented petitioner on the class organization and that the pupils were actively participating throughout the lesson. The observer also indicated that petitioner appeared to improve classroom behavior by awarding points to pupils for good behavior.

7. On April 20, 1990, Superintendent Joseph C. Caruso advised petitioner that a review of the 1989-90 school year's teaching performance indicated that petitioner was having difficulty with classroom management in the upper grades. The Superintendent suggested that petitioner refer to her classroom evaluations and observations. He also stated that a continuation of this poor management performance, at any time in the future, would result in a recommendation to withhold her increment. Petitioner did not discuss the Superintendent's letter with Superintendent Caruso.

8. Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation for the 1989-90 school year indicated in a report, dated June 11, 1990, that petitioner demonstrated an area of weakness in class management in the upper grades. Petitioner did not discuss the alleged weakness of classroom management with her Principal or Superintendent in April 1990 or thereafter.

9. Between the period of October 5, 1990 and early February 1991, petitioner was on maternity leave. Subsequent to her return to duty, petitioner was observed on four different occasions from February 7, 1991 through and including March 14, 1991.

10. On February 7, 1991, petitioner was observed by Barbara Trzeszkowski, the Board's Curriculum Coordinator. Ms. Trzeszkowski observed that petitioner's lesson was not successful and that the pupils were not able to achieve the objective as stated in the lesson. Petitioner was criticized for not having a contingency or back up plan when her original plan went awry. Petitioner considered Barbara Trzeszkowski to be an objective observer and evaluator. Nonetheless, petitioner, for the first time, submitted a written response to a classroom observation.

11. Petitioner was observed on February 13, 1991, by Vice Principal Thomas Lindia who observed, among other things, that petitioner had incorporated a "point system" which provided a "behavior-modification" model to serve as an incentive to the pupils. (P-1, Exhibit O). Mr. Lindia observed that petitioner's plan book was reviewed and appeared to be confusing. Vice Principal Lindia made four recommendations for petitioner to follow in order to improve her classroom performance.

12. On February 26, 1991, petitioner was observed by Principal Robert Seidel who observed several pupils not participating in the classroom activity. He further observed that the flow of the lesson was broken on several occasions where petitioner admonished pupils to raise their hands before calling out. Petitioner was again reminded to review the application of assertive discipline by listening to the Assertive Discipline tapes.

13. Petitioner was observed on March 14, 1991, where the observer noted that petitioner's lesson appeared to be organized and consisted of planned multi-activities. The observer noted, however, that the lesson was presented to the pupils at a very fast pace.

The observer again reminded petitioner about the Assertive Discipline program and that petitioner should admonish pupils after class. The observer also noted that several times the classroom instruction was disrupted due to pupil misbehavior.

14. On June 10, 1991, Superintendent Caruso advised petitioner that he would recommend to the Board, at its June 13, 1991 workshop session, the withholding of petitioner's employment increment and adjustment increment on a permanent basis for "inefficiency and/or other just cause." (P-1, Exhibit R). Petitioner was advised of her right to appear at an informal hearing before the board.

15. Petitioner's Annual Summary Evaluation for the 1990-91 school year, dated June 11, 1991, indicated that petitioner's job performance had not been satisfactory. The evaluation report indicated that petitioner's lessons needed better planning and preparation to insure success for all pupils. The report continued to state that petitioner's PIP goal, to implement assertive discipline to improve class management, was not successfully achieved. Petitioner's overall evaluation was declared to be unsatisfactory and for the second consecutive year she had been cited for deficiencies in classroom management skills.

16. Petitioner concedes that she had a difference of opinion with Principal Seidel concerning the music curriculum. Petitioner would have preferred that the vocal music program be an elective, however, Principal Seidel insisted that it be an integral mandatory program.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The law is clear that a Board of Education may withhold a teacher's increment where it has a reasonable factual basis for its conclusion. Neither this administrative tribunal, nor the Commissioner, may substitute their judgment for that of the Board. However, it must be ascertained whether the Board had such a reasonable factual basis for its determination. See Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super 288 (App. Div. 1960). Where, as here, the petitioner alleges that the Board's action is unreasonable, the burden of proving such unreasonableness rests with petitioner. Kopera at 297. And, as a matter of fundamental due process, petitioner is entitled to receive advance notice of her unsatisfactory performance in order that she has a meaningful opportunity to "rectify her deficiencies or to convince the superior that her judgment is erroneous." Fitzpatrick v. Montville Board of Ed., 1969 SLD 4, 7. The facts in this matter indicate that as early as 1986, Principal Annie P. Miele identified a weakness in petitioner's classroom management. As a consequence, petitioner was required to engage and participate in a program offered by the Board in Assertive Discipline. Subsequently, petitioner was required to further engage in the Assertive Discipline program as a condition of her annual PIP for the 1987-88 school year. Notwithstanding that petitioner had successfully completed this PIP, classroom management continued to be a concern among the Board's administrators, particularly in the upper grades which petitioner taught.

Petitioner was given notice at the end of the 1989-90 school year that the Superintendent was concerned with her classroom management and if no improvement was evidenced, he would recommend the withholding of her increment. During the 1990-91 school year, while some observations of her classroom behavior demonstrated some improvement, there remained a concern of petitioner's overall performance. Petitioner admits that she did not discuss her alleged weakness in classroom management with her Principal or the Superintendent subsequent to the Superintendent's letters dated April 20, 1990 and June 10, 1991. Nevertheless, petitioner asserts that the increment withholding came as a surprise to her.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden to demonstrate that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious, unfounded, illegal, in bad faith or in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Fitzpatrick, supra.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the determination of the Board to withhold petitioner's 1991-92 employment and adjustment increments should be AFFIRMED.

ORDER

Accordingly, for the foregoing reasons, it is ORDERED that the determination of the Board of Education of the Borough of Keansburg to withhold petitioner's 1991-92 employment and adjustment increments is hereby AFFIRMED.

It is further ORDERED that the herein petition of appeal of Elizabeth Harrity is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons stated in the initial decision, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Board's action withholding her 1991-92 employment and adjustment increments was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, in bad faith or in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 and, therefore, such action must be affirmed.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning nontenured chemistry teacher appealed the Board's termination of his teaching contract, contending that such termination was a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1, discriminatory and a violation of his constitutional rights. Board contended petition was untimely filed.

ALJ granted summary decision to the Board and dismissed petition as untimely filed. ALJ concluded that petitioner's argument claiming a lack of finality of decision, causing a tolling of the 90-day limitation, had to fail. ALJ found combination of the expiration of petitioner's contract, its nonrenewal, the Board's notice to petitioner and his unsatisfactory evaluations constituted actual notice to him that the Board had taken a final action as to his nonreemployment. Therefore, petitioner had filed well beyond the 90-day limit and the ALJ did not relax the rule, as such relaxation is reserved for limited situations wherein a compelling reason can be demonstrated for expanding the time limitation.

Commissioner concurred with findings and determination of the ALJ and dismissed petition as untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

INITIAL DECISION
ORDER ON MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5855-93

JOHN PORTEE,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Eldridge Hawkins, Esq., for petitioner

Samuel M. Manigault, Associate Counsel, for respondent
(Marvin L. Comick, General Counsel, Newark Board of Education)

Record Closed: February 7, 1994 Decided: February 24, 1994

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioner, John Portee, a contract teacher (nontenured) in the respondent's school district, contests and appeals from the respondent's termination of his teaching contract in December 1989.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed a five count complaint against the respondent in the Superior Court of New Jersey on August 20, 1990. On September 30, 1992 the court ordered that count I of the complaint be remanded for determination by the Commissioner of Education and Office of Administrative Law, to decide issues within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education.

In Count I of his complaint, the petitioner alleged that his termination from employment was contrary to the New Jersey Education Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 to-:59., more particularly N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1, relating to the evaluation of nontenured teaching staff. This count also generally claims that the petitioner's termination of employment was based on a conspiracy arising from racial discrimination, in addition to violations of constitutional rights and public policy.

All issues contained in the other four counts of the complaint were retained by the Superior Court but stayed, pending determination of the first count by the Office of Administrative Law and Commissioner of Education.

On June 17, 1993, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The answer filed by the respondent (Board) in the Superior Court action was accepted by the Commissioner of Education as a sufficient pleading for transmittal to the OAL, along with a copy of the complaint in that action, which contains the single count for administrative determination.

A prehearing conference was held on September 21, 1993, and a prehearing order was filed, defining the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery, and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing.

On December 2, 1993, the Board filed a Motion for Summary Decision, alleging that the petitioner's claim is barred by the ninety-day filing limitation in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

A brief and other papers in opposition to the application was filed by petitioner.

ISSUES

The sole issue to be decided is whether the petition should be dismissed because of untimely filing pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, which requires filing of a petition before the Commissioner within ninety days after receipt of notice by the petitioner of the action concerning which the hearing is requested.

This decision does not consider the substantive issue contained in the petition, or any remedies available to the petitioner, if applicable. However, two other questions collateral to the untimely filing issue were set forth in the prehearing order, as follows:

If the ninety-day filing limitation does operate to bar the petition, can the parties proceed with the matter if they both agree to waive the limitation, or is it a jurisdictional defect that cannot be waived? This question is now moot, since the Board did not agree to waive the limitation, but proceeded to seek dismissal of the petition instead.

Should the Commissioner of Education and Office of Administrative Law relax the ninety-day time limitation under appropriate circumstances? If so, what standards are involved in any such relaxation?

This last question will be dealt with as part of the decision relating to the applicability of the filing limitation.

FACTS

The respondent submitted a statement of facts, none of which were contested or disagreed with by the petitioner, who also filed a counter statement of facts.

The facts, extracted from the parties' submissions, are as follows:

1. John Portee was employed by the Board of Education of the City of Newark, as a teacher of chemistry at Arts High School.

2. On June 22, 1988, Mr. Portee received an overall satisfactory job performance rating with concerns expressed about his ability to be assertive with disruptive students.

3. On April 25, 1989, Mr. Portee received an overall unsatisfactory job performance rating.

4. On June 15, 1989, Mr. Portee received an overall satisfactory job performance rating with concerns expressed about his ability to "maintain effective classroom discipline and management procedure."

5. On September 14, 1989, Mr. Portee received an overall unsatisfactory job performance rating.

6. On October 18, 1989, Mr. Portee received an overall unsatisfactory job performance rating.

7. On November 30, 1989, the Assistant Executive Superintendent, Secondary School Programs James Moore, Jr., recommended that based on Mr. Portee's unsatisfactory evaluations his employment with the Newark Board of Education should be terminated.

8. On December 12, 1989, Dr. Gene A. Foti, Deputy Executive Superintendent, concurred with Mr. Moore's recommendation of the termination of Mr. Portee.

9. On December 14, 1989, the Newark Board of Education, via its Division of Human Resources Services, issued Mr. Portee a thirty-day notice of termination of his services as a nontenured teacher of chemistry. The notice stated the following:

> Based upon your unsatisfactory evaluations and the recommendation of your Assistant Executive Superintendent, your services will be terminated at the > end of the work day on January 15, 1990. This date complies with the employment contract you signed on December 9, 1987, which grants thirty (30) days written notice prior to termination.

> If you desire additional information regarding this matter, please make your request, in writing, fifteen (15) days of the date of this letter.

On December 22, 1989, Mr. Portee responded to the notice of termination and addressed a letter to the Assistant Personnel Director, Division of Human Resources Services of the Newark Board of Education, stating as follows:

> Please send me additional information regarding the attached letter of December 14, 1989.

10 The Board of Education never responded to Mr. Portee's request.

11. The papers on file indicate that the petitioner's complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey, containing the count involved in this matter, within the jurisdiction of Commissioner of Education, was filed on August 20, 1990, approximately 248 days after the December 14, 1989 notice of termination.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

It is clear that there are no genuine issues of material fact challenged, and this matter is therefore ripe for summary decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954).

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

No argument has been presented by the parties relating to the earliest date on which the petition might be considered as having been filed. A Superior Court complaint is not ordinarily the petition that is contemplated by the above regulation, and it was not until September 30, 1992, more than two years later, that the Superior Court ordered the transfer to the Commissioner of Education. Almost five more months elapsed before the Superior Court order of transfer (considered by the Commissioner of Education to be the petition of appeal) was filed with the Commissioner, on February 19, 1993. However, since there has been no argument by the parties about the actual date of filing, the petitioner should be given the benefit of the doubt, and the earliest filing date, August 20, 1990, the Superior Court filing date,.is used for purposes of this opinion.

The main thrust of the petitioner's argument is that the ninety-day filing limitation never began to run, because a "final order" was never sent to him. The reason for this statement by Mr. Portee is that he never received and still awaits a response from the Board to his letter of December 22, 1989 asking for additional information.

Therefore, it must first be determined if the December 14, 1989 notice of termination constituted the "final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, from which the ninety-day period of limitation began to run."

In Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Twp. 131 N.J. 572, (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court held that an unofficial and informal notice from a secretary, employed by the local board of education, to the plaintiff, stating that two positions have been created and filled by other persons, suffices to trigger the ninety-day period to begin to run against his assertion of tenure rights. That conduct by the local board, combined with the actual, although unofficial notice, was in fact considered to be the type of "other action" that provides adequate notice to the aggrieved party that legal action should be taken within the prescribed period.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 requires the Board to comply with a request by a terminated teacher for a statement of reasons for nonrenewal of the employment. According to the petitioner, the Board did not comply, and he therefore did not have sufficient notice of the reasons for his termination. He asserts that such reasons, when given, would have enabled him to prepare for a hearing before the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6 3-1.20, if requested.

N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.20 details the procedure to be followed for an appearance before a Board of Education, when a nontenured teaching staff member receives a notice of nonrenewal of employment.

> Whenever a nontenured teaching staff member has requested in writing and has received a written statement of reasons for nonreemployment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.3, he or she may request in writing an informal appearance before the district board of education. Such written request must be submitted to the board within 10 calendar days of receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
>
> (b) Such an informal appearance shall be scheduled within 30 calendar days from receipt of the board's statement of reasons.
> (c) Under the circumstances described herein, a non-tenured teaching staff member's appearance before the board shall not be an adversary proceeding. The purpose of such an appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.20. [Current version in N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.2 revised in 1993]

The petitioner argues that some ambiguity existed as to his status, in the absence of his requested statement of reasons. However, when his contract expired and was not renewed, the petitioner had adequate notice of the circumstances that triggered the running of the ninety-day period of limitations. Furthermore, the December 14, 1989 notice of termination stated that the petitioner's contract would not be renewed based upon his unsatisfactory evaluations. The petitioner does not argue that he did not receive these evaluations, although the certification in his brief argues that he only received two unsatisfactory evaluations, rather than three.

Therefore, on January 15, 1990 when the petitioner's contract expired and was not renewed, in accordance with the unequivocal notice of termination, he had adequate notice of the circumstances that triggered the running of the ninety-day limitation period in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The combination of the expiration of his contract, its nonrenewal, the respondent's notice to the petitioner and the unsatisfactory evaluations, constituted actual notice to him that the Board had taken a final action which adversely impacted on his employment

Therefore, the ninety-day period of limitation began to run immediately after December 14, 1989. The petitioner's claim in the Superior Court was filed on August 20, 1990, approximately 248 days after the notice of termination, far beyond expiration of the ninety-days. The petition was filed out of time.

Should the ninety-day time limitation be relaxed?

The ninety-day requirement has been strictly construed by the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education and the Courts. In Riely v. Bd. of Ed. of Hunterdon Central Regional High School District 173 N.J. Super. 109, 113 (App. Div. 1980), the courts cited *Bernards Tp. Bd. of Ed. v. Bernards Tp. Ed. Assn.,*79 N.J. 311, 326-327, (1979) and observed that a teacher who proceeds to arbitration over a grievance caused by board action is not relieved of the requirement to file a petition with the Commissioner within ninety-days of receipt of notice of the board's action. The Appellate Division ruled that the board's motion to dismiss should properly have been granted because the matter was filed out of time, notwithstanding the fact that Riely attempted to resolve her grievance in another manner by seeking binding arbitration on the issue of the procedural propriety of the Board's refusal to renew her employment contract.

See also Baley v. Bd. of Ed. of Tp. of Mansfield OAL DKT. EDU 4997-79 (Feb. 6, 1980), rejected by Comm'r of Ed. (June 20, 1980), aff'd State Bd. (Feb. 4, 1981), where the ninety-day limitation was asserted and its use affirmed when petitioner filed her complaint approximately six months after being informed of the board's decision not to reemploy her as a nurse.

In Kallimanis v. Bd. of Ed. of Carlstaldt OAL DKT. EDU 868-80, (August 8, 1980), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (September 26, 1980) aff'd State Bd. (March 4, 1981) a petitioner argued that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 was inapplicable because a continuing violation of his rights was alleged. The argument was rejected in favor of a strict application of the regulation.

The Commissioner of Education is broadly authorized to relax the rules:

> The rules herein contained shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of, the Commissioner in > connection with the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. They may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

This rule gives the Commissioner broad discretion. Even so, since the holding in Riely, the Commissioner, the State Board of Education, and the courts have read N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 very strictly and have applied it almost without exception. The Commissioner has indicated that the relaxation authorized in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 is reserved for limited situations wherein a compelling reason can be demonstrated for expanding the limitation period. Such possible reasons have been described as follows:

> Where a substantial constitutional issue was presented, where judicial review was sought of an informal administrative determination, and where a matter of significant public interest is involved. [citations omitted] Miller v. Morris School District 1980 S.L.D. (February 25, 1980). [this is not in the 1979, 1980 or 1981 S.L.D it is mentioned in the Bogart case and it is cited in Pacio v. Bd. of Ed. of Lakeland Regional High School District 1989 S.L.D 2063]

The above criteria were further explained in Bogart v. East Orange Bd. Ed. OAL DKT. EDU 6245-82 (January 26, 1983), aff'd Comm'r. of Ed. (March 14, 1983). In that case a letter indicating an intent to appeal a board action was received within the ninety-days after petitioner's receipt of notice of denial of a salary increment. However, the petition was not filed until a little more than a year after petitioner received notice of the Board's final action. Rejecting a request for relaxation of the ninety-day rule, the A.L.J. held:

> It will be relaxed only where there is some compelling reason for the same, such as the presence of substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves. [citation omitted] Bogart, at 4."

It was also noted that relaxation was "appropriate which strict adherence would possibly result in injustice." Neither a compelling reason nor an injustice was apparent in Bogart, even thought the petitioner informally signified her intent to file a petition.

In Dreher v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 2777-87, (Dec. 18, 1987), aff'd. (Feb. 2, 1988), aff'd St. Bd. (Jul. 8, 1988), filing of the petition was delayed while petitioner investigated an appropriate grievance procedure. The ninety-day rule was not relaxed, even though the petition was filed only two days after the time expired. See also, Cwierko v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 4795-87 (Jan. 6, 1988), aff'd. Comm'r. of Ed. (Feb. 10, 1988); Weir v. Bd. of Ed. of Northern Valley Regional High School District, OAL DKT. EDU 8609-83 (June 7, 1984), aff'd. Comm'r. of Ed. (July 20, 1984), aff'd. State Bd. of Ed. (March 6, 1985), aff'd. A-3520-84T6 (App. Div., Apr. 9, 1986).

The petitioner's opposition to the request for summary decision in this matter is based on the argument stated above: his asserted belief that the Board's action, as contained in its letter of December 14, 1989 was not final or would not become final until his request for more information was received. As stated above, the petitioner had adequate notice when he received the notice of termination, coupled with the reference to unsatisfactory evaluations. This, plus the subsequent expiration and nonrenewal of his contact clearly indicated that the termination of employment was final.

Aside from the foregoing, the petitioner has not claimed or attempted to show any circumstances that might warrant a relaxation of the ninety-day rule, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. No compelling reason was asserted, such as the presence of a substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties; nor did he demonstrate that strict adherence to the time limitation would possibly result in an injustice, except for the loss of his claim.

As set forth above, relaxation has been reserved for limited situations wherein a compelling reason can be demonstrated for expanding the time limitation. The petitioner's argument contains no reference to the involvement of a genuine constitutional issue in this segment (count 1) of his claim; and no matter of significant public interest is involved other than the issue of the Board's decision not to renew the nontenured teacher's contract. See Maria Pacio v. Bd. of Ed. of Lakeland Reg. High School Dist., 1989, S.L.D. 2060.

CONCLUSIONS

It is therefore CONCLUDED that the petitioner's argument claiming a lack of finality, causing a tolling of the ninety-day limitation, must fail. The period of limitations had expired long before the petitioner's claim was filed. It is further CONCLUDED that no reason has been shown why the Commissioner should exercise his discretion to relax application of the time bar in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent's application for summary decision be GRANTED, and this matter is DISMISSED because of untimely filing, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." JOHN PORTEE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions recast and reargue his assertion presented to the ALJ in this matter, i.e., that his petition was not filed out of time because the Board never responded to his December 22, 1989 request for clarification of the reasons for his dismissal and, therefore, the Board did not issue a final decision in this matter.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner's argument claiming a lack of finality, thereby causing a tolling of the 90-day limitation for filing, must fail. As noted by the ALJ

> [O]n January 15, 1990 when the petitioner's contract expired and was not renewed, in accordance with the unequivocal notice of termination, he had adequate notice of the circumstances that triggered the running of the > ninety-day limitation period in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The combination of the expiration of his contract, its nonrenewal, the respondent's notice to the petitioner and the unsatisfactory evaluations, constituted actual notice to him that the Board had taken a final action which adversely impacted on his employment.

> (Initial Decision, at p. 7)

The Commissioner further agrees with the ALJ that petitioner has not presented a cognizable reason for relaxation of the application of the time bar under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted for the reasons stated therein. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the within matter is dismissed as untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

SYNOPSIS

Board certified charges of excessive absenteeism and tardiness against respondent tenured custodian. Parties had signed a settlement agreement as a consequence of a grievance procedure prior to initiation of the tenure charges which called for automatic termination if respondent had any further unauthorized absences and/or lateness.

ALJ concluded that the automatic termination clause of the prior agreement was invalid because only the Commissioner can make a determination on the termination of a tenured employee after a hearing. However, the ALJ concluded that the Board had proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent was guilty of the tenure charges and that the penalty of dismissal was justified.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, noting that the authority of the Commissioner cannot be replaced by a grievance procedure. Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed and directed Board to pay him compensation due him for the period beginning on the 121st day of the Certification of Determination to the date of this decision.

Randi Doner, Esq., attorney for Derrick Exum (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, School District of the City of Elizabeth (the District), filed tenure charges against Derrick Exum (Mr. Exum), a tenured custodian with the District, for his termination for excessive absenteeism and/or lateness.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On April 9, 1992, the District notified Mr. Exum that it was withholding his salary increment as of July 1992 due to Mr. Exum's excessive absenteeism and/or lateness. Pursuant to a Collective Bargaining Agreement between the District and the Elizabeth Education Association (the EEA), the EEA filed a grievance on Mr. Exum's behalf. Prior to arbitration of the grievance, the District, the EEA and Mr. Exum executed a Settlement Agreement (the Agreement) (P-7). The Agreement was effective as of February 1, 1993 and it provided for Mr. Exum's automatic termination if he had any further unauthorized absences and/or lateness.

After February 1, 1993, Mr. Exum had unauthorized absences and he was late. As a result, on May 11, 1993, the District filed a Statement of Charge seeking Mr. Exum's termination. The District also suspended Mr. Exum without pay.

On July 6, 1993, the District determined that there was probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge against Mr. Exum and that the charge was sufficient to warrant his dismissal or a reduction in his salary. On July 7, 1993, the District issued a Certification of Determination to certify the charge to the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner).

On August 3, 1993, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (the OAL) as a contested proceeding. A pre-hearing conference was held on October 18, 1993 and the matter was scheduled for a plenary hearing on January 12, 1994.

Prior to the OAL hearing, the parties filed a motion concerning the validity of the Agreement. A determination of that motion was reserved. The plenary hearing occurred and the record closed on January 12, 1994.

DISCUSSION OF TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE

Mr. Exum was a Custodian with the District from 1978 until his suspension without pay on May 11, 1993. Pursuant to a Collective Bargaining Agreement, Mr. Exum was entitled to 20 vacation days, 20 to 23 holidays (depending on the school year), 15 sick days and 2 personal days, for a total of 57 to 60 authorized absences per school year.

Mr. Exum's excessive absences and/or lateness began in 1985. Mr. Exum's supervisor, Robert J. Delaney (Mr. Delaney), gave Mr. Exum written and verbal warnings and he advised Mr. Exum that his attendance must improve. (See: P-11: Mr. Delaney's letter to Mr. Exum, dated February 1, 1991; P-13: Mr. Delaney's letter to Mr. Exum, dated December 13, 1985; and P-14: Mr. Delaney's letter to Mr. Exum, dated March 19, 1985). Despite those warnings, Mr. Exum's attendance did not improve.

In particular, Mr. Exum's attendance record was as follows:

SCHOOL YEAR	UNAUTHORIZED ABSENCES	LATENESS
1990-91	15.5	16
1991-92	16	11
1992-93	17	3
TOTAL	48.5	30

(See: P-4: 1990-91 Employee Attendance Record; P-5: 1991-92 Employee Attendance Record; P-6: 1992-93 Employee Attendance Record).

On April 9, 1992, the District notified Mr. Exum that it would withhold his salary increment as of July 1992 because of his excessive absences and/or lateness. Despite this notice, Mr. Exum's attendance did not improve after April 9, 1992. In fact, he was late 5 times and he had 17 unauthorized absences after that date.

The EEA filed a grievance on Mr. Exum's behalf regarding the withholding of his salary increment. Prior to arbitration of the grievance, the District, the EEA and Mr. Exum executed the Agreement (P-7). Under the Agreement, Mr. Exum was permitted to keep his job. He also received his salary increment subject to having no further unauthorized absences and/or lateness. The Agreement, however, also provided, in pertinent part, that :

> Should employee engage in any further unauthorized absenteeism or tardiness between February 1, 1993 and June 30, 1993, employee's employment shall be terminated effective immediately . . .

At the time Mr. Exum signed the Agreement, he knew that he had used all of his vacation, sick and personal days and that he had to have perfect attendance to June 30, 1993.

After February 1, 1993, the effective date of the Agreement, and before June 30, 1993, Mr. Exum had 7 more unauthorized absences and he was late once. As a result, the District filed a Statement of Charge seeking Mr. Exum's termination pursuant to the terms of the Agreement. Mr. Exum did not deny that he was absent and/or late after he had signed the Agreement. He explained that his absences were caused by a chronic back problem for which he was receiving medical treatment.

Mr. Exum's unauthorized absences and/or lateness had a negative impact on the cleanliness, maintenance and condition of the District's buildings. His conduct also seriously interfered with the work that had to be done, it placed additional burdens on other custodians and it hurt their morale and it jeopardized custodial services provided to students and staff.

MOTION REGARDING THE VALIDITY OF THE AGREEMENT

The Agreement provides for Mr. Exum's automatic termination in the event that he had any unauthorized absences or was late during the period February 1, 1993 to June 30, 1993. Mr. Exum argues that the automatic termination provision of the Agreement is invalid because it violates N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 which provides that only the Commissioner can terminate a tenured employee after a hearing.

The District argues that the automatic termination provision is valid because it resulted from a grievance procedure that was resolved pursuant to a Collective Bargaining Agreement, that the grievance procedure was not before the Commissioner, that the District entered into the Agreement in good faith and that Mr. Exum knew what he was signing and he had obtained the advice of the EEA President prior to signing the Agreement.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, the Commissioner has the exclusive power to hear and decide all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. Theodore v. Dover Board of Education, 183 N.J. Super. 407 (App. Div. 1982). The termination of a tenured employee, such as Mr. Exum, is a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws which must be heard by the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 which provides, in pertinent part:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state . . .
>
> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint . . .

The power of the Commissioner to hear and determine a dispute involving the termination of a tenured employee cannot be replaced by a grievance procedure. Dunellen Board of Education v. Dunellen Education Association, 64 N.J. 17 (1973).

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the automatic termination provision of the Agreement is invalid because only the Commissioner can make a determination on the termination of a tenured employee after a hearing. I further CONCLUDE that the remaining provisions of the Agreement are valid.

FINDINGS OF FACT RELATING TO MR. EXUM'S EXCESSIVE ABSENCES AND/OR LATENESS

Having heard the testimony and observed the witnesses, and having reviewed the Exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS, by a preponderance of the credible evidence:

1. In 1978, Mr. Exum began employment with the District as a custodian.

2. Mr. Exum was suspended from his position without pay on May 11, 1993.

3. Mr. Exum's excessive absences and/or lateness began in 1985.

4. Beginning in 1985, Mr. Exum received verbal and written warnings about his excessive absences and/or lateness and he was advised that his attendance must improve.

5. In 1992, the District withheld Mr. Exum's salary increment because of his excessive absences and/or latenesses.

6. Despite the above disciplinary actions, Mr. Exum's attendance did not improve.

7. On May 11, 1993, the District filed a Statement of Charge seeking Mr. Exum's termination.

8. From July 1, 1990 to May 11, 1993, Mr. Exum had 48.5 unauthorized absences and he was late 30 times.

9. Mr. Exum's absences and/or lateness were excessive.

10. Mr. Exum's excessive absences and/or lateness had a negative impact on the cleanliness, maintenance and condition of the District's buildings. His conduct also seriously interfered with the work that had to be done, it placed additional burdens on other custodians and hurt their morale and it jeopardized custodial services provided to students and staff.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Excessive absenteeism by a custodian is not sufficient grounds for dismissal on its own. There must also be evidence of the extent of harm and negative impact the custodian's excessive absences have on the District's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education in having adequately equipped, sanitary and secure facilities. Passaic Board of Education v. Viani, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 76.

In this case, Mr. Exum's excessive absences and/or lateness harmed and had a negative impact on the District's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education in having adequately equipped, sanitary and secure facilities. Except for the unauthorized absences and/or lateness Mr. Exum had after he signed the Agreement, Mr. Exum provided no explanation whatsoever for his conduct.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the District has proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Exum is guilty of the charge against him and that the penalty of dismissal is justified.

I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, Mr. Exum shall be paid his salary, minus the biweekly salary increment of $29.67, beginning on the one hundred twenty-first day of the Certification of Determination.

ORDER

I therefore ORDER that Mr. Exum be dismissed from his employment with the District. I further ORDER that the District shall pay Mr. Exum his salary as aforesaid.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DERRICK EXUM, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ that the automatic termination clause of the settlement agreement effectuated between respondent and the Board as a consequence of a grievance procedure prior to the initiation of the within charges is invalid. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, the Commissioner is empowered to make a determination on the termination of a tenured employee after a hearing. Such authority of the Commissioner cannot be replaced by a grievance procedure. The Commissioner likewise agrees with the ALJ that the Board has proven its charges of excessive absenteeism and tardiness against respondent and that the penalty of dismissal is justified.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated therein. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his tenured custodian position with the School District of the City of Elizabeth. The Board is directed to pay respondent compensation due him for the period beginning on the 121st day of the Certification of Determination to the date of this decision.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, department head for physical education assigned to teaching duties for 1992-93, alleged Board's employment of a nontenured supervisor in the newly created position of head of social studies, English, foreign language and physical education was a violation of his tenure rights. The Board contended that petitioner voluntarily waived his right to the position of department head or, alternatively, that he was barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from asserting a claim. Petitioner had requested early retirement at the end of the 1992-93 school year, allegedly in exchange for agreeing not to claim a department head position in that year.

ALJ concluded that absent abolition of petitioner's position, a transfer to the separately tenurable position of teacher, or proceedings under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, petitioner remained entitled to the salary due him as department head. ALJ ordered Board to pay petitioner the sum of $1,400, representing the stipend for the 1992-93 school year as department head of physical education, with pre-judgment and post-judgment interest. Moreover, the ALJ found that petitioner was not barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from assertion of his tenure rights as he could not be found to have decisively acted to waive a specifically known right. Petitioner was found to have no entitlement to the larger stipend paid of the newly created multiple department head position.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's findings and determination.

Record Closed: January 14, 1994 Decided: February 28, 1994

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter involves a petition by Daniel Wickenheisser (petitioner) in which he seeks a determination that the Board of Education of the Borough of North Arlington (respondent) violated his tenure rights in the position of department chairperson for physical education, health, family life and driver education by appointing a non-tenured employee, Howard Whidden, as supervisor for social studies, English, foreign languages and physical education, while assigning petitioner to a classroom teaching position. As additional relief, petitioner requests reinstatement as a supervisor, back pay and benefits, and prejudgment and postjudgment interest. Respondent contends that petitioner waived his right to the position of department chairperson or, alternatively, that he is barred by the doctrine of equitable estopel from assertion of his right to that position.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on September 18, 1992, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies concerning the school laws under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondent filed an answer on November 4, 1992, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 16, 1992 for determination as a contested case.

The hearing in this matter was conducted on December 6 and 7, 1993 at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. The record closed on January 14, 1994, upon receipt of simultaneous post-hearing submissions.

ISSUES

The main issue in this proceeding is whether respondent violated petitioner's tenure rights by assigning him to classroom teaching in place of his duties as department chairperson, while appointing a non-tenured employee as supervisor for social studies, English, foreign languages and physical education. Respondent maintains that petitioner in effect consented to the change. The issues are whether petitioner waived his tenure right to the position of department chairperson for physical education, health, family life and driver education, and whether petitioner is barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from asserting his right to that position.

The key factual issues in this proceeding concern a conversation in March 1992 between petitioner and William Mancuso, Superintendent of Schools, and a meeting on September 17, 1992, attended by Superintendent Mancuso, petitioner and several other individuals. Respondent maintains that during the conversation in March 1992 petitioner agreed to accept a teaching assignment in exchange for a favorable recommendation from the Superintendent in regard to a retirement incentive program and that petitioner acknowledged said agreement during the meeting in September 1992. Petitioner denies that he ever entered into this agreement with the Superintendent, and he also denies that he acknowledged any such agreement during the meeting in September 1992.

FACTS

a Background and Undisputed Facts

Petitioner began his employment with respondent in 1964 as a teacher of physical education and health. In 1976, petitioner became the department chairperson for physical education, health, family life and driver education, and he continued in that position through the 1991-1992 school year. Petitioner received written notice each year that he would be the department head. The stipend as department head was $1,400 during the 1991-1992 school year. As the department head, petitioner supervised the teachers, reported to the principal and taught one class per day. Petitioner was tenured in the position of department chairperson for physical education and health.

On October 28, 1991, Superintendent Mancuso called a meeting of all department chairpersons at the request of three department heads who had heard rumors about consolidation of departments. During the meeting, Superintendent Mancuso stated that he was considering consolidation of departments and specifically that he was considering elimination of the chairmanship for physical education. Superintendent Mancuso also mentioned an early retirement plan, and petitioner said that he would consider early retirement.

Under the early retirement plan, any qualifying employee could take early retirement during the first year. An employee who chose to take early retirement during the second year of the plan needed respondent's approval. The plan would be in effect for school years 1991-1992 and 1992-1993.

Initially, respondent wanted an indication of the number of individuals who would opt for early retirement. In a letter dated November 1, 1991, prepared by the president of the teachers' association, petitioner stated: "I plan to retire on July 1, 1992 contingent upon the North Arlington Board of Education's adoption by affirmative resolution of the early retirement incentive legislation." Petitioner viewed this letter as an expression of interest as opposed to a commitment, while Superintendent Mancuso took the letter to mean that petitioner planned to retire.

Thereafter, Superintendent Mancuso asked petitioner for a definitive statement that he intended to retire. In a letter dated December 2, 1991 to Superintendent Mancuso, petitioner referred to his prior letter concerning retirement and stated that the "commitment takes into consideration several factors, the most important of which is my wife's ability to obtain a teaching position in south Jersey." Since his wife had not found a teaching position, petitioner was in effect saying that he wanted to keep his options open. Superintendent Mancuso took this letter to mean that petitioner was withdrawing his intent to retire.

Petitioner sent a letter dated March 26, 1992 to Superintendent Mancuso. In the letter, petitioner requested "that the Board of Education consider my resignation at the end of the next school year, June 30, 1993, allowing me to participate in the Early Retirement Incentive Program. If approved by the Board of Education, you may consider this as my letter of resignation." Shortly thereafter, petitioner and Superintendent Mancuso had a conversation. The substance of that conversation is in dispute. Thereafter, Superintendent Mancuso gave a favorable recommendation concerning petitioner's request, and the Board of Education approved petitioner's request for an early retirement at the end of the 1992-1993 school year.

By letter dated May 8, 1992, Superintendent Mancuso advised petitioner that the Board of Education was allowing him to participate in the early retirement incentive program with a resignation date of June 30, 1993. Thereafter, in a memo to petitioner dated June 23, 1992, Principal David Roden stated: "As per conversation with Mr. William A. Mancuso, Superintendent of Schools, next year you will not be Chairperson of the Physical Education Department and will have a full teaching schedule."

In September 1992, petitioner received a full teaching schedule which included five or six teaching periods per day. Petitioner was never informed that the position of chairperson of the department of physical education was abolished, and in fact, respondent did not abolish that position. Petitioner did not receive a stipend as chairperson in the 1992-1993 school year. Howard Whidden, a non-tenured employee, was named supervisor for social studies, English, foreign languages and physical education. Whidden achieved tenure effective March 1, 1992. Based upon those circumstances, petitioner decided to file a petition with the Commissioner of Education, and he signed a certification on September 14, 1992.

Superintendent Mancuso became aware of the petition and called petitioner to his office for a meeting to discuss the situation. In addition to Superintendent Mancuso and petitioner, the meeting was attended by Principal David Roden, the Assistant Principal Robert B. Kinloch and School Business Administrator Charles Weigard. The substance of the discussion in that meeting is in dispute.

b. Summary of Evidence

The disputed facts in this matter concern the conversation between petitioner and Superintendent Mancuso in March 1992 and the discussions during the meeting on September 17, 1992.

Superintendent Mancuso testified that he had a discussion with petitioner in March 1992 concerning the early retirement plan. Superintendent Mancuso said that he would make a recommendation to the Board of Education to approve petitioner's early retirement at the end of the 1992-1993 school year, if petitioner would agree to return as a teacher. Petitioner responded that he had no problem with elimination of the chair of the physical education department, and he agreed to Superintendent Mancuso's terms. The agreement was not in writing, and Superintendent Mancuso assumed that petitioner realized that he would not get a stipend. Superintendent Mancuso would not have made the recommendation to allow petitioner to retire during the second year of the retirement incentive program, unless petitioner agreed that he would accept a teaching position. Superintendent Mancuso would not recommend approval of a request for early retirement without some benefit to respondent.

Superintendent Mancuso further testified that he was shocked when he learned that petitioner had filed a legal challenge to the loss of the department chairmanship and that as a result he called petitioner to his office for the meeting on September 17, 1992. Superintendent Mancuso offered petitioner the opportunity to have a union representative present, but petitioner declined the offer. Superintendent Mancuso questioned petitioner in the presence of David Roden, Robert B. Kinloch and Charles Weigard as to whether he and petitioner had discussed the situation and reached an agreement. At first, petitioner denied that they had an agreement, but then he acknowledged before the others present at the meeting that he had agreed not to challenge the loss of the department chairmanship.

Robert B. Kinloch, who is now the principal, testified that he was the assistant principal at the time he attended the meeting on September 17, 1992. During the meeting, Superintendent Mancuso stated to petitioner that they had an agreement about his non-appointment as department chairperson. Initially, petitioner would not admit that he even had a meeting with Superintendent Mancuso. Then, petitioner admitted that they had a meeting and that they reached an agreement.

Charles Weigard testified that he is the school business administrator and that he attended a meeting on September 17, 1992 in Superintendent Mancuso's office. Superintendent Mancuso asked petitioner if they had struck an agreement, and petitioner initially denied that they had an agreement. Then petitioner thought better of it and acknowledged that they had agreed that petitioner would waive his right to the position of department chairperson in exchange for approval of his early retirement.

Petitioner testified that during the conversation in March 1992, Superintendent Mancuso did not tell him that his continued employment would be without the position of department head. With respect to the meeting on September 17, 1992, petitioner denied that he acknowledged that his reemployment was conditioned on giving up the position of department head.

c. Findings

While all witnesses had difficulty remembering the exact words in their discussions, I am convinced that the testimony of respondent's three witnesses was substantially accurate. Therefore, I FIND that in March 1992, Superintendent Mancuso offered to make a recommendation to the Board of Education to approve petitioner's request for an early retirement, if petitioner would agree not to challenge the loss of the position of department head. Petitioner said that loss of the position of department head would not be a problem. Superintendent Mancuso interpreted petitioner's response to be an acceptance of his offer. The agreement was not memorialized in writing. During the meeting on September 17, 1992, petitioner acknowledged that he had an agreement with Superintendent Mancuso.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

An employee may receive tenure in a teaching position, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and may not be dismissed therefrom or reduced in compensation except for just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. An employee may also receive tenure in a supervisory position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. An employee who achieved tenure "could not be removed from that position and transferred to the separately tenurable position of teacher without his consent, the abolishment of the position (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9) or [proceedings under] the Tenure Employees Hearing Law (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.)." Guerra v. Bd. of Ed., Hudson County Area Vocational and Technical Schools, 1990 S.L.D. 340, 352. Here, it is clearly established that petitioner was tenured in the position of department head for physical education, that the position was not abolished, that petitioner was not the subject of proceedings under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and that petitioner was not transferred by respondent to the position of teacher.

Respondent first argues that petitioner waived any entitlement which he had to the position of department head for physical education. In support of this position, respondent maintains that petitioner intentionally gave up his claim to tenure in the position of department head for physical education in exchange for a favorable recommendation in regard to early retirement.

"Waiver" is the intentional relinquishment of a known right. West Jersey Title, &c., Co. v. Industrial Trust Co., 27 N.J. 144, 152 (1958). The relinquishment requires a clear, unequivocal and decisive act. Id. at 152. Having heard all the testimony and having reviewed the evidence in this matter, I do not believe that petitioner intentionally relinquished a known right. On the contrary, the essence of the agreement as described by Superintendent Mancuso was that petitioner would not assert his tenure right to the position of department head for physical education. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not waive his tenure rights to the position of department head for physical education.

This conclusion is supported by the nature of tenure. Tenure is a status created by statute as opposed to agreement of the parties. Zimmerman v. Board of Education of Newark, 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962). The purpose of tenure is to provide a measure of security to teachers and other employees who faithfully serve for the requisite period of time. Barnes v. Bd. of Ed. of Jersey City, 85 N.J.Super. 42, 45 (App. Div. 1964), certif. denied, 43 N.J. 450 (1964). The achievement or loss of tenure in a particular position is controlled by statute. In the context of this case, petitioner could have agreed to a transfer from a supervisory position to a teaching assignment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. However, respondent never approved a transfer for petitioner. It follows that petitioner did not waive his rights to the position of department head for physical education.

Respondent next argues that petitioner is barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from asserting his tenure right to the position of department head for physical education. In support of this argument, respondent maintains that petitioner agreed to forego his entitlement to the position of department head and that Superintendent Mancuso relied on this agreement and recommended that the Board grant petitioner's request for a second-year early retirement. Respondent maintains that it relied to its detriment on petitioner's representation by giving petitioner the benefit of an early retirement.

In Carlsen v. Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan Trust, 80 N.J. 334 (1979), the New Jersey Supreme Court set forth the following definition of equitable estoppel:

> [T]he effect of the voluntary conduct of a party whereby he is absolutely precluded, both at law and in equity, from asserting rights which might perhaps have otherwise existed . . . against another person, who has in good faith relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse . . . . [Id., at 339 (citations omitted).]

The Supreme Court further states as follows:

> Conduct amounting to a misrepresentation or concealment of material facts, known to the party allegedly estopped and unknown to the party claiming estoppel, done with the intention or expectation that it will be acted upon by the other party and on which the other party does in fact rely in such a manner as to change his posiiton for the worse gives rise to an equitable estoppel. It is a doctrine designed to prevent a party's disavowal of previous conduct if such repudiation "would not be responsive to the demands of justice and good conscience." [Ibid. (citations omitted).]

More recently, the Supreme Court stated that:

> The essential elements of equitable estoppel are a knowing and intentional misrepresentation by the party sought to be estopped under circumstances in which the misrepresentation would probably induce reliance, and reliance by the party seeking estoppel to his or her detriment. [O'Malley v. Department of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 317 (1987).]

There are several difficulties with respondent's argument. First, while Superintendent Mancuso claims that in making his recommendation he relied on petitioner's agreement to forego his tenure rights, there is not proof that the Board members relied on petitioner's statement in making the determination to approve his request for early retirement. Since the Board as opposed to the Superintendent was the party in the matter, respondent has failed to prove reliance on petitioner's statement.

Second, respondent's proofs are not persuasive that approval of petitioner's request for early retirement was actually detrimental to respondent. Evidently, the purpose of the early retirement incentive program was to achieve savings by eliminating the salaries of employees who chose to retire. While respondent points to relatively minor costs such as the increase in the amount of petitioner's pension, the primary consideration is that respondent saved the expense of petitioner's salary commencing June 30, 1993. Thus, respondent achieved the purpose of the early retirement incentive program. It follows that any minor detriment is outweighed by the savings which resulted from petitioner's retirement.

A final consideration concerns whether the disavowal of petitioner's prior statement would frustrate the demands of justice and good conscience. It is evident in this case that Superintendent Mancuso wanted petitioner out of a tenured position. While respondent could have abolished petitioner's position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, petitioner would in all likelihood have had rights to the new supervisory position. Thus, Superintendent Mancuso's efforts would tend to frustrate the purpose of the tenure laws. Therefore, petitioner's disavowal of his prior statement would not be offensive to the demands of justice and good conscience. Under the circumstances, petitioner is not barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from assertion of his tenure rights to the position of department head for physical education.

The key facts in this case are that petitioner was tenured in the position department head for physical education, that petitioner was informed that he would have a teaching assignment for the 1992-1993 school year as opposed to the position of department head, and that petitioner did not receive the stipend of $1,400 for the 1992-1993 school year. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that respondent violated petitioner's tenure rights to the position of department head for physical education.

With respect to the relief in this matter, petitioner claims that he should receive the larger stipend that Howard Whidden received as supervisor of social studies, English, foreign languages and physical education. This type of relief might be appropriate in the context of an abolishment of petitioner's position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, where petitioner could conceivably have rights to Whidden's position. In this case, however, there was no abolishment of petitioner's position. Under the circumstances, petitioner is not entitled to the stipend for the supervisory position held by Whidden. Rather, petitioner should be restored to the position which he held, and he should receive the stipend of $1,400. Since petitioner has retired, the relief granted to petitioner should be limited to the stipend of $1,400 for the 1992-1993 school year.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent pay to petitioner the sum of $1,400, representing the stipend for the 1992-1993 school year as department head of physical education, with prejudgment and postjudgment interest.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DANIEL WICKENHEISSER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH ARLINGTON, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by both petitioner and respondent ("the Board") pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto.

In its exceptions, the Board argues that, given the findings of fact made by the ALJ as to the existence of an agreement between petitioner and the superintendent, the ALJ erred in failing to require petitioner to abide by that agreement, and in concluding that petitioner did not take the "clear, unequivocal and decisive act" necessary to effectuate a waiver of his tenure rights. The Board further argues that the ALJ erred in his application of equitable estoppel, first because the superintendent clearly testified that the Board had in fact relied upon petitioner's agreement not to claim tenure entitlement to a department head position in its decision to grant his request for early retirement, and, second, because the ALJ appears to have concluded, without any basis in the record, that the Board acted deliberately to frustrate the tenure laws in failing to abolish petitioner's former position, when in reality this was nothing more than an inadvertent omission. In reply, petitioner relies on his prior brief, noting that the arguments underlying the Board's exceptions were made before, and were adequately addressed by, the ALJ.

In his exceptions, petitioner renews his argument that removal of his supervisory duties and their assignment to a nontenured employee is a violation of his tenure status, thereby entitling him to the higher stipend assigned to the newly created department head position, and that the Board should not be allowed to profit from its incompetence in failing to take the appropriate actions in effectuating its reorganization of supervisory staff. In reply, the Board endorses the conclusion of the ALJ that, absent abolition of his former position, no entitlement to a new position exists, so that petitioner cannot seek to claim more than the stipend due him under his previous position.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, absent abolition of petitioner's position, a transfer to the separately tenurable position of teacher, or proceedings under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, petitioner remains entitled to the salary due him in his position of department head for physical education. The Commissioner further concurs that, under the particular facts of his matter, including the circumstances of the underlying agreement and the chronology of relevant events, petitioner cannot be deemed to have waived his entitlement to a specifically known right.* Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's analysis of equitable estoppel and its application to this matter, even granting arguendo that the Board's failure to abolish the department head of physical education position or take other employment actions may have been inadvertent and there may not have been a deliberate attempt to circumvent petitioner's tenure rights. (The Commissioner notes that transcripts were not provided so as to permit verification of the Board's claim regarding the superintendent's testimony. In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987)

With regard to the stipend owed petitioner, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that where no abolishment of petitioner's position occurred, petitioner can make no claim to the larger stipend of the position to which he would have been entitled had his position been abolished. With the ALJ's recommended relief, petitioner is restored to the position held at the time of his claim and is not reduced in salary contrary to his rights as a tenured supervisor.

*The Commissioner here notes that the agreement at issue was made during March 1992 and petitioner's notifications of salary and assignment occurred in late April through June 1992; however, the district did not adopt its actual reorganization of supervisory staff until August 1992 and the job descriptions for the reconfigured positions until September 1992.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law directing payment to petitioner, with pre- and post-judgment interest, of the stipend he would have earned in 1992-93 as department head for physical education, is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATE OF MAILING - APRIL 18, 1994

*Although no mention of it is made in the initial decision, the record shows a motion to have been made by the Board just prior to hearing seeking summary decision based on petitioner's alleged failure to timely file pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). While the record does not expressly indicate the disposition of this motion, the Commissioner presumes it to have been denied given the subsequent conduct of a hearing and the framing of issues in the initial decision, and here notes his review of the related papers and his concurrence with the presumed denial.

DANIEL WICKENHEISSER, :

PETITIONER-APPELLANT, :

V. : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH ARLINGTON, BERGEN COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT-CROSS/APPELLANT. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 18, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Bucceri & Pincus (Gregory T. Syrek, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Cross/Appellant, Glenn Leonard, Esq.

Daniel Wickenheisser (hereinafter "petitioner") began his employment with the Board of Education of the Borough of North Arlington (hereinafter "Board") in 1964 as a teacher. In 1976, he was appointed the department chairperson for physical education, health, family life and driver education, a position he retained through the 1991-92 school year. In 1991-92, he received a stipend in the amount of $1,400 for such employment. On March 26, 1992, petitioner submitted a letter to the Board indicating his interest in participating in the district's early retirement program and requesting approval for his retirement effective June 30, 1993. The Board subsequently approved petitioner's request.

Thereafter, in a memorandum dated June 23, 1992, the school principal advised petitioner that: "As per conversation with Mr. William A. Mancuso, Superintendent of Schools, next year you will not be Chairperson of the Physical Education Department and will have a full teaching schedule." Exhibit P-44, in evidence. The Board reassigned petitioner to a full-time teaching position in 1992-93. The Board also appointed a staff member who was not tenured as a supervisor to the newly-consolidated position of Supervisor of History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education, which included a yearly stipend in the amount of $4,400. Petitioner did not receive a stipend in 1992-93.

On September 18, 1992, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board had violated his tenure rights in reassigning him to a teaching position while employing a non-tenured individual in a supervisory position. The Board countered that petitioner had waived his right to the department chairperson position or, in the alternative, was barred by equitable estoppel from claiming that position. According to the Board, petitioner had agreed to relinquish his supervisory position and return to a teaching position in exchange for a favorable recommendation from the district superintendent on his request for early retirement. Petitioner denied that he had agreed to such an arrangement.

On February 28, 1994, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") determined that the Board had violated petitioner's tenure rights. The ALJ found that petitioner had indicated to the district superintendent that the loss of his department chairmanship in 1992-93 "would not be a problem," initial decision, slip op. at 6, which the superintendent had interpreted as an acceptance of his offer to recommend that the Board approve petitioner's request for early retirement if petitioner agreed not to challenge the loss of his department chairmanship in 1992-93. The ALJ concluded that petitioner, in so doing, had not waived his rights to that position since he had not intentionally relinquished a known right. The ALJ observed that "the essence of the agreement as described by Superintendent Mancuso was that petitioner would not assert his tenure right to the position of department head for physical education. Under the circumstances, I conclude that petitioner did not waive his tenure rights to the position of department head for physical education." Id. at 7.

The ALJ also determined that petitioner was not barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from asserting his tenure rights to such position, concluding that the Board had failed to demonstrate its detrimental reliance on petitioner's actions or that approval of petitioner's request for early retirement had been detrimental to the Board.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner "was tenured in the position of department head for physical education, that the position was not abolished, that petitioner was not the subject of proceedings under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 [the Tenure Employees Hearing Law] and that petitioner was not transferred by respondent to the position of teacher." Id. at 7. He found that "[p]etitioner was never informed that the position of chairperson of the department of physical education was abolished, and in fact, respondent did not abolish that position." Id. at 4. The ALJ therefore recommended that the Board pay petitioner a stipend in the amount of $1,400 for the 1992-93 school year, along with pre- and post-judgment interest. Since he found that the Board had not abolished petitioner's position as department head for physical education, the ALJ concluded that petitioner was not entitled to the larger stipend for the position of Supervisor of History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education.

On April 18, 1994, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommended decision and directed the Board to pay petitioner the stipend he would have received in 1992-93 as department chair of physical education, along with pre- and post-judgment interest. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that absent the abolishment of petitioner's position, a transfer to the separately tenurable position of teacher, or proceedings under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, petitioner was entitled to his stipend as department head for physical education. The Commissioner also agreed that petitioner had not waived his entitlement to a specifically known right, and that petitioner had no entitlement to the larger stipend since his position had not been abolished by the Board.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board, arguing that he was entitled, by virtue of the tenure status he achieved during his employment as the department head for physical education, to the $4,400 stipend attendant to the position of Supervisor of History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education. Petitioner alleges that, notwithstanding the Board's failure to take formal action to abolish his department chairmanship, that position ceased to exist for all intents and purposes after the Board reorganized its supervisory staff in 1992-93. As a result, petitioner maintains that he was entitled to any other supervisory assignments within the scope of his tenure as against non-tenured individuals.

The Board filed a cross-appeal, contending that it had not violated petitioner's tenure rights. The Board renews its argument that petitioner waived his right to his department chairmanship in physical education and that his claim was barred by equitable estoppel.

After a thorough review of the record,[1] we affirm in part, as clarified herein, and reverse in part the decision of the Commissioner.

We agree with the Commissioner's determination that petitioner did not make a knowing and voluntary waiver of his rights to a supervisory position. Indeed, the newly-consolidated supervisory assignment in History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education, with its increased stipend, did not even exist at the time petitioner allegedly waived his rights thereto. Nor is there is any indication that petitioner was informed or aware at the time of such alleged waiver that he was relinquishing his tenure rights to any supervisory assignment within the scope of his certification.

We also agree that petitioner was not barred by the doctrine of equitable estoppel from asserting his tenure rights to a supervisory position. Based upon the record before us, including the testimony of the district superintendent,[2] we concur with the Commissioner that the Board has failed to demonstrate that it relied on petitioner's actions to its detriment.

Consequently, we turn to the issue of the remedy to which petitioner is entitled by virtue of the Board's action. There is no indication in the record that the Board took any formal action to abolish petitioner's position. See Guerra v. Board of Education of Hudson County Area Vocational and Technical Schools, decided by the Commissioner,

[1] We note that the hearing transcripts requested by the parties, which provide the testimony of the district superintendent on December 6 and 7, 1993, were not transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law until after the Commissioner had rendered his decision in this matter. Consequently, we have carefully reviewed these transcripts in determining this matter.

[2] See n.1, supra.

1990 S.L.D. 340, 352, aff'd by the State Board, 1990 S.L.D. 354, aff'd, Docket #A-6638-89T1 (App. Div. 1991). Nor did the Board take formal action to transfer petitioner to a teaching position with his consent. And, indeed, the record reveals that the job description for the newly-consolidated supervisory assignment in History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education was not even adopted by the Board until September 21, 1992, subsequent to the commencement of the 1992-93 school year and petitioner's return to a full-time teaching position. Exhibits P-3 and R-2, in evidence. Under these circumstances, we agree with the Commissioner that petitioner was entitled to the stipend he would have received in 1992-93 as the department head for physical education, but not to the larger stipend for the newly-consolidated supervisory assignment in History, English, Foreign Language and Physical Education.

However, we reverse the Commissioner's adoption of the ALJ's recommendation to grant pre- and post-judgment interest to petitioner. The criteria to be applied when awarding pre- and post-judgment interest are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c), which provides that:

> 1. Pre-judgment interest shall be awarded by the Commissioner when he or she has concluded that the denial of the monetary claim was an action taken in bad faith and/or has been determined to have been taken in deliberate violation of statute or rule.
> 2. Post-judgment interest shall be awarded when a respondent has been determined through adjudication to be responsible for such payment, the precise amount of such claim has been established or could have been established and the party responsible for the payment of the judgment has neither applied for nor obtained a stay of the decision but has failed to satisfy the claim within 60 days of its award.

Petitioner herein has failed to establish his entitlement to either pre-judgment or post-judgment interest. There has been no showing that the Board acted in bad faith when it denied petitioner's claim so as to entitle him to pre-judgment interest. Nor was it appropriate for the Commissioner to award post-judgment interest before 60 days had passed from the date of his award, and petitioner has not alleged that the Board failed to satisfy that claim within 60 days of the Commissioner's decision.

Consequently, we affirm, as clarified herein, that portion of the Commissioner's decision finding that petitioner was entitled to the stipend he would have received in 1992-93 as the department head for physical education, but reverse that part of the Commissioner's decision awarding pre- and post-judgment interest to petitioner.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizen challenged the validity of the nominating petition of respondent, candidate for Board membership, alleging insufficient number of valid signatures. Board Secretary rejected challenge at local level as untimely filed.

Citing Brodsky, ALJ concluded that the nominating petition was presumptively valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 as the challenge to the petition was not made prior to the 48th day before the election and relaxation of the statutory mandate was not warranted. ALJ ordered the petition dismissed.

Record Closed: March 30, 1994 Decided: March 31, 1994

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, David B. Rollins (petitioner) challenged the validity of the nominating petition of respondent Thomas D. Del Franco to be a candidate for election to the Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Township School District. He appeals from the rejection of his challenge by the Board of Education.

On March 22, 1994, petitioner filed his petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education. The following day, March 23, 1994, the matter was filed in the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case under the New Jersey Administrative Procedure Act.

A hearing was held on March 30, 1994, on which date the record closed.

The essential facts in this case are not in dispute, having been stipulated by the parties at the outset of the hearing. They are as follows.

FACTS

1. An election for membership on the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Board of Education is scheduled to be held on Tuesday, April 19, 1994, on which date three members from Bridgewater Township will be elected.

2. On February 24, 1994, a nominating petition for annual school election was filed by Thomas D. Del Franco.

3. This petition, bearing 12 signatures of persons purportedly qualified as voters of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District in Somerset County, was filed in the Office of the Secretary of the Board of Education.

4. On March 18, 1994, petitioner became aware for the first time that the challenge to Del Franco's nominating petition, previously made on March 3, 1994 by Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell, had been rejected by the Board Secretary on March 7, 1994 as having been filed on an untimely basis.

5. On the afternoon of March 18, 1994, petitioner placed several phone calls to Ms. D. Antonaitis of the New Jersey Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, in Trenton, in order to determine how he could effectively pursue the challenge to the Del Franco nominating petition.

6. On March 22, 1994 at 10:20 a.m., petitioner filed the petition which initiated the instant matter and which alleges that the Del Franco nominating petition is "fatally defective" because of an insufficient number of valid signatures.

7. During the period from February 24, 1994 (the date of filing of the Del Franco nominating petition) to March 7, 1994 (the date of rejection of the challenge of Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell), the office of the Board Secretary was closed on account of weather on March 3, 1994 and did not open until 10:00 a.m. on February 24, 1994.

8. The 49th day preceding the date of the school election was March 1, 1994.

ISSUE AND ANALYSIS

This case is controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 (hereafter "section 12"), which reads as follows:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 reads:
> If, on or before the 49th day preceding the date of the election, the secretary of the board finds a nominating petition to be defective excepting as to the number of signatures, the secretary of the board shall forthwith notify the candidate of the defect and of the candidate's right to remedy the defect not later than the 49th day preceding the date of the election, and the candidate endorsing the petition may amend the same in form or substance, but not to add signatures, so as to remedy the defect at any time prior to said date. A nominating petition not so found to be defective shall be, as of the 48th day preceding the election, conclusively valid for the purposes of this chapter. (emphasis supplied)

The critical threshold issue in this matter is whether, under the factual circumstances noted above, the Board of Education (or the Commissioner) can waive or relax the statutory mandate that a nominating petition "shall be . . . conclusively valid" if it is not found to be defective 49 (or more) days prior to the election.

For the reasons to be expressed hereafter, I am of the opinion that this question must be answered in the negative.

First, it is clear that the Legislature's use of the word "shall" in section 12 was purposeful. When used in a statute, that word is ordinarily mandatory, as compared to the word "may," which is permissive or directory. Harvey v. Board of Chosen Freeholders, 30 N.J. 381, 391 (1959).

Second, when the language and meaning of a statute are clear and unambiguous, as I believe section 12 to be, it must be enforced as written and is not subject to a different construction. In re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 547 (1980). An administrative agency is a creature of the Legislature and can act only within the bounds of the authority delegated to it. Elizabeth Federal Saving and Loan Association v. Howell, 24 N.J. 488, 499 (1957). It has long been held that an administrative regulation or policy which attempts to add to the statute something which is not there can furnish no sustenance to that statute. Kingsley v. Hawthorne Fabrics, Inc., 41 N.J. 529 (1964). An administrative agency cannot modify or circumvent the legislative direction under the guise of statutory interpretation; it cannot deviate from the principle and policy of the statute. Abelson's Inc. v. State Board of Optometrists, 5 N.J. 412, 424 (1950).

Third, the recent case of Brodsky v. Board of Education of Florham Park, 1991 S.L.D. 648 (Comm.), which is factually similar to the instant matter, is precedent contrary to petitioner's position. In Brodsky, the Commissioner of Education rejected an appeal by a petitioning citizen challenging a nominating petition on the basis of an insufficient number of signatures because the challenge to the petition was not made prior to the 48th day before the election. The Commissioner declared (1991 S.L.D. at 651-2):

> The Commissioner, in reviewing this matter, finds that when 18A:14-12 is read in context with its companion statutes in 18A:14 rather than as an isolated enactment, it is clear that its primary purpose is to establish a date certain beyond which election officials, candidates and the public may presume the technical validity of the nominations which will be before them in the upcoming election. Such a terminus post quem is essential if conduct of the election is to proceed in an orderly, efficient manner, for to hold otherwise would allow challenges of the type raised by petitioner - - which as noted reach not to the qualification of candidates, but to the correctness of their nominating petitions - - to be made at virtually any time prior to the election, wreaking potential havoc on the district's preparation process and thwarting the entitlement of the public to knowledge of candidates for office reasonably in advance of the election at which they must choose among such candidates.

Petitioner notes that central New Jersey experienced unusually severe winter weather during February and March and that he was unaware until too late that another and prior challenge to the Del Franco petition - - the challenge of Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell - - had been rejected by the Board of Education, and he contends that these factors warrant a relaxation of the 48-day rule. In my opinion this argument is without merit, primarily because he had no legal right to rely upon the challenge of any other person. Moreover, the factors cited by the petitioner do not constitute the kind of unusual circumstances which might warrant a relaxation of the statutory mandate so as to serve the overall purpose of the election law. Cf., In re Application of Cucci, 92 N.J. Super. 223 (L. Div. 1966) (nominating petition accepted even though filed 20 minutes late).

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the reasons expressed above, I CONCLUDE that the nominating petition of Thomas D. Del Franco is presumptively valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 and that the petition of appeal in this matter should be DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the Respondent Board and Board Secretary.

In his exceptions, petitioner argues that the central issue of this matter is the veracity and legality of respondent Del Franco's nominating petition, and that a time bar intended to apply to previously unnoticed technical defects should not prevent a substantive challenge such as he is raising, which implicates the candidate's good faith, as well as the legal sufficiency of his nominating papers. He further argues that the need for certainty and stability in the election process cannot be invoked in this case as it was in Brodsky, supra, in that the final ballot for the Bridgewater-Raritan district is in flux even as of the time of the exceptions due to delays in budget figures.

In reply, the Board contends that petitioner's exceptions fail to address the threshold issue of relaxing a statutory time bar, reaching instead to substantive allegations based on purported facts that were neither addressed at hearing nor stipulated by the parties. The Board further asserts the correctness of the ALJ's determination and urges its adoption by the Commissioner.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, notwithstanding the persistence of petitioner's belief that Respondent Del Franco's candidacy is tainted by defective nominating papers, petitioner's challenge was raised too late to effectuate Del Franco's removal from the ballot, assuming such removal were ultimately warranted. Regardless of petitioner's view of their fairness and wisdom, the fact remains that technical bars to certain types of election challenges have been enacted by the Legislature in the interest of procedural order and stability, and one such bar has already been held to apply to challenges of the type brought by petitioner herein.

Accordingly, for the reasons well expressed by the ALJ, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, dismissing the Petition of Appeal and finding the nominating petition of Respondent Thomas D. Del Franco presumptively valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 18, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, David B. Rollins and Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Soriano & Soriano (Daniel Soriano, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Thomas D. Del Franco, pro se

On March 22, 1994, petitioner David B. Rollins filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the validity of the nominating petition of respondent Thomas D. Del Franco to be a candidate for election to the Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District (hereinafter "Board") in the annual school election scheduled for April 19, 1994.

On March 31, 1994, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") dismissed the petition, finding that the challenge was not filed "on or before the 49th day preceding the date of the election," as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12. The ALJ concluded that such time limitation was mandatory and that the factors cited by petitioner did not constitute circumstances which might warrant relaxation of the statutory mandate. Accordingly, he concluded that Del Franco's nominating petition was "presumptively valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12."[1]

August 3, 1994

On April 18, 1994,[2] the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision and dismissed the petition, agreeing that the nominating petition was "presumptively valid."

On May 20, 1994, petitioner Rollins filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education from the decision of the Commissioner. Also joining in that appeal was Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell ("Calandrillo-Campbell"), who had not been a party to the proceedings below. Along with such notice, they also filed a motion to supplement the record.

On May 25, the parties were advised that petitioner Rollins was the appellant in this case "[i]n that nothing in the case file reflects participation by Sandra Calandrillo-Campbell in either the filing of the petition or the proceedings..."

On May 27, Calandrillo-Campbell faxed the State Board copies of a letter she had sent on March 3, 1994 to the Board Secretary challenging the validity of Del Franco's nominating

1 We note that the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 provides that a nominating petition not found to be defective thereunder is "conclusively valid."

2 The Commissioner's decision incorrectly indicates the date of decision and mailing as March 18.

petition and of a reply letter dated March 7 from the Board Secretary ruling that her challenge was untimely.

On May 31, the Board filed a motion to dismiss the appeal filed by petitioner Rollins on the grounds of mootness.

On June 6, the Counsel to the State Board advised petitioner Rollins that the briefing schedule was being placed in abeyance pending decisions on the above motions. Also on that date, the Counsel to the Board advised Calandrillo-Campbell that "it has been determined that you are in fact a party to the above-titled matter. To the extent that you participate in this appeal, you must sign all documents that you submit."

Thereafter, on July 1, the Board filed a motion to dismiss Calandrillo-Campbell as a party.

Initially, we deny the Board's motion to dismiss the instant appeal as moot. The mere fact that the school election has already taken place does not render this challenge to the validity of respondent Del Franco's nominating petition an improper subject for our scrutiny, particularly in view of the fact that Del Franco was elected to membership on the Board.

We, however, grant the Board's motion to dismiss Calandrillo-Campbell as a party to this appeal. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 provides that "[a]ny party aggrieved by any determination of the commissioner may appeal from his determination to the state board." (Emphasis added.) Such language is reiterated in our regulations. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.2. Notwithstanding Calandrillo-Campbell's letter dated March 3 to the Board Secretary challenging Del Franco's nominating petition, she did not file a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education and was not a party to the proceedings before the Commissioner initiated by petitioner Rollins. Consequently, Calandrillo-Campbell was not a "party aggrieved" by the April 18 decision of the Commissioner and had no entitlement to file an appeal from such decision.

We note that the June 6 letter from the Counsel to the State Board to Calandrillo-Campbell did not address or determine whether she had the right pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 to file an appeal from the Commissioner's decision of April 18. Nor did it constitute a decision on her status in these proceedings by the State Board. Rather, it reflected only that she was being considered a "party" for purposes of establishing and administering this appeal.

Finally, we deny petitioner Rollins' motion to supplement the record on appeal inasmuch as we find the proposed exhibits to be neither necessary nor material to a determination of the issues on appeal. See N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.9.

The briefing schedule is hereby reestablished and we direct that petitioner Rollins' brief in support of his appeal be filed within twenty days after the date of this decision.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL :
ELECTION HELD IN THE NORTHERN : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BURLINGTON COUNTY REGIONAL : DECISION SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON : COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Regional Board filed Petition for Declaratory Judgment as to application of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 to the results of a special election held pursuant to that statute to determine the district's method of apportioning costs among its constituent municipalities. Regional Board and constituent Townships of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield took the position that the referendum question at issue had passed in that it received a majority of the votes cast in the regional district overall. Respondent Township of North Hanover opposed, holding that the question was defeated because it did not receive a majority of votes cast in each constituent municipality.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner found and determined that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 requires approval by the majority of voters in each constituent municipality in order to change the manner in which costs are apportioned in a regional school district, so that the referendum question at issue herein was not approved by the voters as required by controlling law. Commissioner determined this conclusion was mandated by both the clear language and structure of the law and its legislative history. Commissioner directed the Regional Board to certify and declare the results of the election accordingly.

APRIL 18, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL ELECTION HELD IN THE NORTHERN BURLINGTON COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For the Regional Board, Stephen J. Mushinski, Esq.

For the Townships of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield, William John Kearns, Jr., Esq. (Kearns, Vassallo & Kearns)

For the Township of North Hanover, John T. Barbour, Esq.

This matter came before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition for Declaratory Judgment filed by the regional Board of Education on January 26, 1994. Therein, the Board sought a declaration as to application of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 to the results of a special election held pursuant to that statute to determine the district's method of apportioning costs among its constituent municipalities. For purposes of its petition, as noted below, the Board took the position that the referendum question at issue had passed in that it received a majority of the votes cast in the regional district overall. This position is shared by respondent Townships of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield, and opposed by respondent Township of North Hanover, which holds instead that the question was defeated because it did not receive a majority of votes cast in each constituent municipality.

Consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 et seq. and established briefing schedules, answers to the petition and papers setting forth the arguments of the parties were duly filed. Concurrent with the last submission of the parties on February 28, 1994, a Motion to Intervene was filed by two residents of Mansfield Township, to which replies were filed by all parties. By letter decision dated March 31, 1994, the Commissioner denied this motion on grounds that the proposed intervenors did not meet the standards for intervention or participation set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.3 and 1:16-6, respectively. Accordingly, on that date, the record was deemed closed and the within matter duly proceeded to summary decision.

The underlying facts of this matter are not in dispute and are as follows:

1. The Northern Burlington County Regional School District is a limited purpose (grades 7 through 12) regional district comprised of constituent members Chesterfield, Mansfield, North Hanover and Springfield Townships.

2. In March of 1993, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 was amended by P.L. 1993, c. 67 to permit appropriations for regional school districts, both new and existing, to be apportioned among constituent municipalities, as may be approved by the voters of each municipality, on the basis of equalized valuation, proportional pupil enrollment or a combination of both.

3. On or about May 17, 1993, representatives of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield Townships presented petitions to the regional Board, requesting the conduct of a special election in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:14-3 to determine the manner in which costs of the regional district would henceforth be apportioned among constituent municipalities, specifically whether they would be allocated on a per pupil basis rather than on the existing basis of equalized valuation.

4. On July 19, 1993, the regional Board adopted a resolution calling for such election to be held on October 12, 1993. On October 12, 1993,* a resolution was adopted rescinding the July 19, 1993 resolution due to the fact that proper notice of the special election had not been provided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-19.

5. On the date of the rescission, the Board also adopted a resolution calling for the previously planned election to be held on December 14, 1993. The question to be put to the voters was as follows:

> Shall the annual or special appropriations for the Northern Burlington County Regional School District be apportioned among the municipalities included within the regional school district upon the basis of the proportional number of pupils enrolled from each municipality on the 15th day of October of the pre-budget year in the same manner as would apply if each municipality comprised separate constituent school districts.

6. On December 14, 1993, the special election was duly conducted and the tabulation of votes was as follows:

	AT POLLS		ABSENTEE
TOWNSHIP	YES	NO	YES	NO
Mansfield Township	1,137	32	50	0
Chesterfield Township	644	7	3	0
Springfield Township	669	4	4	0
North Hanover Township	7	921	0	4
	2,457	964	57	4

7. Thus, the votes cast in each of the three municipalities requesting the change were overwhelmingly in favor of the ballot question, while the votes cast in the municipality that did not request the change were overwhelmingly opposed. In the entire regional district, more votes were cast in favor of the ballot question than against it.

8. The Townships of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield have publicly taken the position that the ballot question passed, in that the majority of votes in the regional district overall were cast in its favor.

*The record gives, in varying places, both October 12, 1993 and October 7, 1993 as the date of this resolution. The precise date is immaterial to the central issue herein.

9. The Township of North Hanover has publicly taken the position that the ballot question failed, in that the question was not approved by a majority of voters in each constituent municipality.

10. The regional Board has not yet certified or made a formal declaration of the outcome of the election, but has solely for purposes of the within petition adopted a resolution taking the position that the referendum question passed under the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23.

ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF APPROVAL BY OVERALL MAJORITY

The regional Board and the Townships of Chesterfield, Mansfield and Springfield ("proponents") argue that principles of statutory construction, legislative history and the legislative policy intent all work in favor of the position that a majority of votes in the regional district overall is sufficient for passage of a referendum question on cost apportionment.

Proponents contend that if the Legislature had intended for such referenda to be treated in a manner different from the general "overall majority" rule of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5, it would have added a specific exception to the list provided in that statute or placed clearer amendatory language in the statute controlling apportionment elections (18A:13-23). Moreover, bill statements to the law (P.L. 1993, c. 67) which made the pertinent amendments to 18A:13-23 give no indication as to how the Legislature intended for election results to be determined, thus arguing in favor of applying the general majority rule rather than inferring an exception which the Legislature could have made explicit had it so wished. Further, proponents aver that cost apportionment is a purely financial issue, and should be decided in the manner of all other financial matters arising in a regional district, i.e., by overall majority vote. In this regard, proponents observe that a budget can be defeated in three out of four constituent districts, but will be deemed approved if it obtains a majority of the number of votes cast in the regional overall, even if all of the votes in favor were cast in a single constituent district.

In terms of policy, proponents argue that to require approval of a cost apportionment referendum in each constituent municipality would effectively thwart the Legislature's entire purpose in enacting c. 67. That legislation, they aver, was expressly designed to provide an alternative allocation method to regional districts where apportionment based solely on equalized valuation has proven unworkable due to disproportionate distribution among constituents of either property values or number of pupils; to require each constituent to agree to a change in allocation would mean that no regional district could ever reasonably expect to effectuate such a change, as any municipality benefiting from the status quo could, and likely would, block the proposed change at referendum.

ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF APPROVAL BY EACH CONSTITUENT MUNICIPALITY

North Hanover Township, on the other hand, argues that statutory construction, legislative history and policy intent work to favor not proponents' position, but its own view that passage of a voter question to change regional cost apportionment requires majority approval in each constituent municipality.

In support of its position, North Hanover points to the express language of c. 67 that regional districts may adopt such method of cost apportionment "as may be approved by the voters of each municipality" (emphasis supplied) and notes that "each municipality" is both plain language and a phrase used in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-34, 18A:13-35, 18A:13-37 and 18A:13-38 to denote separate action by individual constituent municipalities, so that these statutes should be read consistently, as well as in accord with their plain meaning. In Re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 547 (1980) Moreover, by its own terms N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 does not control herein, as that statute provides for determination by overall majority vote "unless otherwise provided in this title" (emphasis supplied), an exception clause that is given meaning by the existence of at least one situation (N.J.S.A. 18A:13-28, bond authorization) where constituent approval is required but not set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5's list of specific exemptions.

North Hanover also recounts the history of funding mechanisms for regional school districts, stressing that per pupil cost apportionment has already been found constitutionally suspect through the Supreme Court's decision in Robinson v. Cahill, 62 N.J. 473 (1973) and its related cases, with the result that such apportionment was expressly phased out by legislative action (P.L. 1976, c. 21, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23.1) taken concurrently with effectuation of P.L. 1975, c. 212 (the "Thorough and Efficient" law), which moved all education funding statewide to an equalized valuation basis; nor did later reform (the Quality Education Act of 1990) alter this result. Viewed in this light, and given the restricted circumstances in which it can be applied (codified in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23.3), by its own terms P.L. 1993, c. 67 cannot have been intended by the Legislature to permit return to the previously rejected method of per pupil cost apportionment absent agreement of all the district's constituent municipalities.

Finally, North Hanover observes that in any instance where questions reaching to the fundamental nature of a regional district are at issue, approval by the voters of each constituent municipality is required prior to any change in the status quo.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

In this matter, the Commissioner is asked to construe the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23, specifically its requirement for voter approval of any change in the method of cost apportionment for an existing regional district. The statute in question reads as follows:

> 18A:13-23. Apportionment of appropriations, including debt service. The annual or special appropriations for regional districts, including the amounts to be raised for interest upon, and the redemption of, bonds payable by the district, shall be apportioned among the municipalities included within the regional district, as may be approved by the voters of each municipality at the annual school election or a special school election, upon the basis of [equalized valuation, pupil enrollment or a combination of both].

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner finds and determines that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 requires approval by the majority of voters in each constituent municipality in order to change the manner in which costs are apportioned in a regional school district, so that the referendum question at issue herein was not approved by the voters as required by controlling law.

This conclusion is mandated by both the clear language and structure of the law and its legislative history. In terms of statutory construction, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5, which sets forth the general rule for conduct of elections in regional school districts, provides that:

> 18A:13-5. Conduct of elections; majority; exceptions. Elections in regional districts shall be conducted as in other local districts except that there shall be at least one polling place in each of the constituent districts and in any such elections, unless otherwise provided by this Title, the total vote of the entire regional district, without regard to the territorial boundaries of the constituent districts, shall be counted in determining the result of the election.
>
> In any case in which a proposal for the creation of a regional district or for the enlargement of a regional district is submitted, such proposal shall be adopted only if a majority of the votes cast thereon
>
> a. In each of the local districts, other than a consolidated district, proposing to form the regional district, > b. In the consolidated district proposing to form the regional district without regard to the territorial boundaries of the constituent districts, or > c. In the regional district to be enlarged, and in each district proposed to enlarge it, > shall be cast in favor of the adoption of such proposal. (emphasis supplied)
>

Initially, the Commissioner notes that this statute plainly contains an "exception" clause, and that this clause is clearly not confined to the above-enumerated situations, i.e., to creation or enlargement of a regional district. To the contrary, specific requirements for voter approval mechanisms other than majority of the whole district are found in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-28

(bonding), 18A:13-33 (change from limited purpose to all purpose) and 18A:13-57 through 13-59 (withdrawal/dissolution), as well as in the separate statutes dealing with creation and enlargement (18A:13-34 and 18A:13-43/44), the two exceptions specifically incorporated into N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 above. Thus, arguments that elections to make a change in a regional district's method of cost apportionment must have been listed as a specific exception within N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 in order to conclude that the Legislature intended them to be such cannot be sustained in light of the overall statutory scheme governing regional districts.

Moreover, the language of the specific statute controlling herein, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23, is both plain on its face

> 18A:13-23. Apportionment of appropriations, including debt service. The annual or special appropriations for regional districts, including the amounts to be raised for interest upon, and the redemption of, bonds payable by the district, shall be apportioned among the municipalities included within the regional district, as may be approved by the voters of each municipality at the annual school election or a special school election, upon the basis of [equalized valuation, pupil enrollment or a combination of both]. (emphasis supplied) and substantially similar, in its use of the term "each municipality," to the language of other statutes referring to distinct actions or approvals by constituent regional members, including but not limited to the statutes cited in conjunction with discussion of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 above.

Finally, notwithstanding that bill statements are silent on the question of how elections authorized by P.L. 1993, c. 67 are to be conducted, the history of its enactment evinces a clear intent on the part of the Legislature to require each municipality to approve any changes in cost apportionment. Review of the bills (Assembly Bill Nos. 1822 and 1063, 1992 Session, and the statements thereto) that were ultimately enacted as this chapter plainly shows that the impetus behind them was, as claimed by proponents, to provide incentives to regionalize and to remove what the Legislature had identified as a major disincentive in districts with high property values but small student populations, namely the mandatory use of equalized valuation as the sole means of cost apportionment. Accordingly, the Legislature initially sought to provide that, upon formation, districts could choose among three methods of cost apportionment: equalized valuation, pupil enrollment or a combination of both. During the course of legislative deliberations, this option was extended to existing regional districts (Assembly Substitute for Assembly Bill Nos. 1822 and 1063, 1992 Session) provided that they met criteria added to the bill to ensure that districts would not continually be changing their ground rules for apportionment of costs among members.

Instructive as to the Legislature's intent on the question of how elections for this purpose were to be conducted is the fact that choice of cost apportionment was first tied to formation of a regional district and specifically to the election held pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-34, which requires approval by each municipality to be successful. Upon adding the option for existing districts, this reference remained ("as may be approved by the voters of each municipality at the annual school election or a special school election pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-34"), being removed only when technical corrections were made to reflect the inapplicability of 18A:13-34 (dealing with formation only) to existing districts; however, the language "as may be approved by the voters of each municipality at the annual school election or a special school election" expressly remained in the version ultimately enacted as c. 67 (Assembly Substitute for Assembly Bill Nos. 1822 and 1063 AS).

Moreover, in a late provision added to the bill at the time of its technical amendment, the Department of Education was required to provide, at least 45 days prior to the election, to any board of education proposing to create or join a regional district or to any regional district proposing to modify its cost apportionment an impact assessment of the apportionment method to be proposed to voters. This serves as yet another indication of the Legislature's view that a change in cost apportionment reaches to the regional district's fundamental nature, a question akin to formation or enlargement rather than budget approval or other "purely financial" matters as argued by proponents herein. So, too, does the Legislature's strict limitation of the circumstances under which the question of a change in apportionment can even reach the point of being proposed to voters, a restriction adopted in the interest of stability and assurance to members who vote join or form a regional district in reliance on a particular method of cost apportionment.

Thus, in light of both the overall statutory scheme governing regional districts and the legislative history of the specific controlling statute, it is simply not sustainable to conclude, as have proponents herein, that the results of elections held to change a regional district's method of apportioning costs among its members should be reckoned according to the "overall majority" standard established by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-5 for the general operation of a regional district.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner finds and declares that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23 requires, in order for an existing regional district to change its established method of cost apportionment, approval of the proposed new method by a majority of the voters in each constituent municipality. Therefore, the referendum at issue herein has failed and the Regional Board of Education is directed to certify and declare the results of the election accordingly. The Commissioner notes and rejects respondent North Hanover's request that such failure bars any future referendum proposing per pupil cost apportionment in the district, as nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-23.3 precludes such referendum provided the criteria set forth in that statute are met.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

*The Commissioner also notes that North Hanover alludes to the constitutional validity of per pupil cost apportionment in regional districts as part of its discussion of the history of State education funding reform, and seeks as an alternative relief in this matter a declaration that such apportionment is violative of the "Thorough and Efficient" clause of the New Jersey Constitution. Given that North Hanover has prevailed in its primary position, the Commissioner declines to entertain this request. However, it is noted that the Superior Court has previously found, in applying the thorough and efficient standard to funding of regional districts, that the central question of that inquiry is not unequal tax burden on constituent municipalities, but rather the per pupil expenditure level of the district as a whole, a question that is not at issue herein. IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL	:

ELECTION HELD IN THE NORTHERN	:
BURLINGTON COUNTY REGIONAL	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 18, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Stephen J. Mushinski, Esq.

For the Respondents-Appellants, Kearns, Vassallo & Kearns (William John Kearns, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent North Hanover, John T. Barbour, Esq.

By letter dated June 10, 1994, counsel for three of the boards of education included in the Northern Burlington County Regional School District attempted to appeal from a Commissioner's decision that had been rendered on April 18, 1994, and to challenge the certification of the results of a referendum made pursuant to that decision. Although received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in June 1994, the correspondence was not transmitted to the State Board of Education until August 18, 1995.

Upon receiving the correspondence, the State Board Appeals Office notified counsel for the district boards that his Notice of Appeal to the State Board of Education had been deemed filed as of June 10, 1994, but that proof of service had not been provided as required by N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.7(b). Counsel was given until August 30, 1995, to correct this deficiency. Counsel did not provide proof of service by that date. Nor has counsel otherwise communicated with the State Board concerning the appeal.

OCT. 5, 1995

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990).

In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on April 18, 1994, and was mailed to the parties on April 20, 1994. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision was deemed filed on April 23. As mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), counsel was required to file his Notice of Appeal to the State Board on or before May 23, 1994. As set forth above, Counsel's Notice of Appeal was dated June 10, 1994, and the State Board deemed it filed as of that date. Even so, it was not filed within the statutory period.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 could be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. Counsel's attempt to characterize the appeal as an appeal from the act of certifying the results of a referendum, as distinguished from the Commissioner's decision which directed that act, does not change the fact that the decision being appealed from was rendered on April 18, 1994. Counsel did not take advantage of the opportunity that we provided him to correct the deficiencies in the notice by providing us with proof of service or provide any explanation for his late filing.

Therefore, for the reasons stated, the State Board of Education dismisses the appeal in this matter.

DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, : DECISION

ESSEX COUNTY. :

_____:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause, including allegations of corporal punishment, against physical education teacher.

Having considered the evidence and testimony of witnesses, the ALJ concluded that the Board sustained its tenure charges against respondent. Moreover, citing In re Fulcomer, Redcay and In re Harrell, the ALJ concluded that the nature of the offense, the aggravating circumstances and the effect on the school system warranted dismissal of respondent from his tenured position. ALJ found respondent failed to properly supervise his students, failed to notify school administrators of incidents involving student misconduct and failed to exercise self-control.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and directed respondent be terminated from his position and matter transmitted to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CHARGES TALLEY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY

Robin T. McMahon, Associate Counsel, for petitioner School District of the City of Newark (Marvin L. Comick, General Counsel)

John L. Schettino, Esq., for respondent Charles Talley (Giblin & Giblin, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 14, 1994 Decided: March 1, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Board of Education of the School District of the City of Newark, Essex County (Board) filed tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and other just cause against respondent, Charles Talley, a tenured physical education teacher pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1. The tenure charges are based on allegations of corporal punishment, inadequate supervision of pupils, making improper comments to students, and failure to follow school procedures. The Board seeks respondent's removal from employment. Respondent denies the allegations.

On February 18, 1993, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 11, 1993. Hearings were held on November 17, 18, 19, 22, and 24, 1993. On December 6, the parties filed a joint stipulation of facts. Also, petitioner submitted respondent's professional improvement plan for the 1992-93 school year(P-24). The parties filed post hearing briefs and the record closed on January 14, 1994.

ISSUES

The issues are whether respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teacher and other just cause based on the following charges:

Charge One: During a physical education class on March 21, 1991, respondent hit four students with a whiffle ball bat covered in duct tape. As a result of the alleged conduct, one of the students, N.V. sustained a bruise approximately eight inches long across his back in the kidney area.

Charge Two: During a physical education class on April 7, 1992, respondent pushed a student to the gymnasium floor causing injuries to the boy's palms, forearms, and knees.

Charge Three: Respondent interacted inappropriately with several female students and made improper and offensive remarks to them.

Charge Four: Respondent failed to adequately supervise students, thereby placing them at risk.

Charge Five: Respondent disregarded proper procedure by failing to notify school administrators of incidents involving student misconduct.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

1 Some of respondent's physical education and health classes included pupils with educational disabilities within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 to - 11.13.

2 At Barringer Preparatory School, there were never more than eight pupils with disabilities in any one of the respondent's classes. Classified pupils at that school take physical education and other non-core subjects (music, art, home economics and industrial arts, etc.) along with pupils who are not educationally disabled.

3 The four boys mentioned in respondent's statement of March 25, 1991 had educational disabilities (P-2). N.V. and T. were perceptually impaired. E. and E. were classified as emotionally disturbed and neurologically impaired, respectively.

4 Respondent did not ask the Child Study Team at Barringer Preparatory or his department chairperson to remediate any perceived behavioral problems of the classified students.

5. None of the other pupils from Barringer Preparatory mentioned in the exhibits in evidence or during testimony at the tenure hearing--R.S., S.H., S.G., or T.G.--were educationally disabled.

6 At Eighteenth Avenue Elementary School, classified pupils are educated in classes consisting solely of pupils with disabilities.

7 None of the Eighteenth Avenue pupils mentioned in the exhibits or during testimony were educationally disabled except C.D. He is neurologically impaired.

8 C.D.s' physical education class had no more than eight students.

9 At the same time respondent received his annual evaluation report dated June 9, 1992 (exhibit R-10 on evidence; a clearer copy of which is attached hereto), Principal Young gave him a professional improvement plan (PIP) consisting of four pages. (The page dated June 9, 1993 should have been dated June 9, 1992.) The PIP is in evidence as Exhibit P-24.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

Talley was hired by the Board on February 1, 1988, as a physical education teacher and acquired tenure after three years of employment. He is certified to teach physical education from kindergarten through twelfth grade. Throughout his career, he received relatively satisfactory evaluations and he has not been charged with any prior disciplinary action.

Charge One

> The Board alleges that during a physical education class on March 21, 1991, Talley hit four students, E., E., N.V., and T., with a whiffle ball bat covered in duct tape. N.V. sustained a bruise approximately eight inches long across his back in the kidney area.

Alba Cordasco, Department Chairperson of Physical Education at Barringer Preparatory School (Barringer), testified for the Board. Barringer's students range from ages 13 to 17 years old. Cordasco, Talley's immediate supervisor, has observed him in the classroom and conducted several evaluations of his performance.

On March 22, 1991, N.V.'s parents complained that Talley hit their son during gym class with a whiffle ball bat (P-1). In the presence of school principal John Petrozzino, and several other school personnel, Cordasco examined N.V.'s back where he was allegedly struck by the bat. Cordasco observed several abrasions and red marks on N.V.'s back and reported the incident to the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS). The school nurse, Ms. Hannibal, also examined N.V.'s back and completed an accident report (P-4). Hannibal reported that ,"[N.'s] rt. lower back was observed. No laceration but a large pinkish purplish discoloration noted." Ibid. Cordasco retrieved Exhibit P-1, a duct taped covered bat, from the gym. According to Talley, this was the bat which he used to hit the student. Cordasco instructed Talley that it was never appropriate to use a bat on students.

John Petrozzino, employed by the Board for thirty-three years and Barringer's principal for seven years, testified about the procedure used by public school personnel to report allegations of child abuse (P-18). Incidents must be reported to the principal, assistant executive superintendent and to DYFS. Ibid.

Talley testified that when the boys failed to follow his directions to take their spots for class, he picked up a whiffle ball bat, caught each student and "tapped [the four students] on the right side of the butt" to get them under control. After the incident, N.V. was transferred from his class because the other kids threatened to beat N.V. for telling on the teacher. Talley's report of the incident states in part:

> . . .I told my class to get off the stage & get on their assigned spot. After waiting for all students to get dress, I told them again they are wasting to much time getting dressed & getting on their spots.
>
> The girls follow procedure and all the boys continue to talk & sit on mats against the back wall of the gym.
>
> . . . About 5 minutes later I got up & picked up one of the plastic bats & all the boys began to run to their spots. As I approach them I hit [E., E., N., & T.] once on their behind. As they sat down & everybody began to laugh as we always do in gym. . . .
> [P-2.]

Talley disputed that Cordasco observed his classes and that she had spoken to him about his alleged conduct. Also, Talley did not want to be assigned to Barringer because of its poor facilities. He made several requests for reassignment and believed that he would be transferred to West Kenney School. Instead, he was transferred to Eighteenth Avenue Elementary School.

Charge Two

> The Board alleges that during a physical education class at Eighteenth Avenue School on April 7, 1992, Talley pushed C.D. to the gymnasium floor causing injuries to the boy's palms, forearms, and knees.

C.D., a fourteen-year-old bilingual special education student classified as neurologically impaired, was thirteen years old on April 7, 1992. He testified that while wrestling and playing with another student, Talley told him to stop. C.D., has limited knowledge of English, and did not understand the teacher's directions. Thus, he continued to play with his classmate. Talley then pushed C.D. on the shoulder causing him to fall to the floor and scratch his hands and knees. The next day, C.D. reported the incident to his classroom teacher, Ms. Herrera but he does not remember speaking to the principal, Mr. Young about the matter.

Willie J. Young, principal of Eighteenth Avenue School reported the incident to DYFS after talking with C.D. and Ms. Herrera on April 7(P-14). Young also requested the school nurse Eloise Smith, R.N., to examine C.D. in his presence. Nurse Smith reported that:

Although the student admitted that he was not following instructions, Young concluded that Talley made "inappropriate contact" with C.D. Young noted that teachers attend orientation on the first day of school and are instructed not to use corporal punishment against a student or employees. Also, teachers are given handbooks containing procedures on class management and student discipline.

Talley testified that he blew the whistle twice for the students to come to order, but C.D. and another student continued to wrestle and play around in gym. He then grabbed C.'s right arm from behind but did not push him. C., however, fell and bruised his hand. Talley sent him to the nurse with another student and then explained what happened to the classroom teacher. C.D. had a discipline problem in gym class. Talley believes that C.D.'s behavior problems were based on his poor English.

Charge Three

> The Board alleges that Talley acted inappropriately with several female students and made improper and offensive remarks to them.

Sandra Manshel, a social worker employed with the Board since 1970, is assigned to Barringer. Manshel counseled a student, R.S., who had confided in two teachers about Talley's conduct towards her. Manshel notes show what R.S. told her:

> Mr. Talley acting real close to me - calling me baby - asked for # and address - what doing over summer? What doing Saturday night . . . tossed keys between legs. [P-10.]

R.S. also stated that Talley tried to make dates with her and asked for her telephone number in Mississippi. The other students teased and called her "Mr. Talley's girl." Manshel described R.S. as quiet, immature, attractive and scared. She had recently moved to Newark from Mississippi to care for an elderly relative. A naive country girl, she felt uncomfortable about the sexual statements made to her. Manshel believed that the incident with the teacher could have detrimental impact on a young teenage girl such as R.S. Manshel reported this information to the principal, Mr. Petrozzino. Petrozzino interviewed R.S. and then notified DYFS about Talley's comments (P-20).

Manshel also testified about several other complaints by students alleging that Talley would watch them from the gym when they were changing their clothes in the locker room. For example, Mrs. H. reported that Talley made sexual innuendoes and remarked to her daughter, S.H., "You don't have anything" (P-6). Manshel recalled that two other female students, S.G., and T.G., also complained about Talley.

After receiving several complaints from female students about the sexual comments Talley made, Petrozzino warned Talley about his inappropriate behavior towards female students. Further, he advised Talley to exercise better judgment in matters that could be perceived as sexual abuse. Petrozzino also directed Cordasco to monitor Talley's classroom conduct .After the three reported misconduct incidents and subsequent DYFS referrals, Petrozzino spoke with Talley about seeking professional help (P-20). When Talley appeared resentful of Petrozzino's advice, Petrozzino asked two of Talley's superiors, Mr. Meadows and Mr. Moore to speak to him.

Cordasco also spoke to R.S. about Talley's alleged comments about her breasts. Cordasco removed R.S. from Talley's class and reported the incident to the principal and DYFS.

Frank Lucas, a physical education teacher at Barringer, testified for respondent. Lucas and Talley share the gymnasium during two periods. Each teaches a class containing about thirty students. Lucas described the gymnasium as small, and therefore, he had the opportunity to see Talley during class. Lucas has never observed Talley make inappropriate comments to a student nor hit a student with a whiffle ball bat. In response to Talley's request, Lucas did speak to R.S. about being unprepared for gym and about her lack of class participation. However, no student ever complained to him about Talley.

Talley recalled that R.S. enrolled in school during the second semester. Because she had no money, he gave her extra time to purchase a gym outfit. However, when she refused to participate in class, Talley asked Lucas to speak to her. Thereafter, she purchased the proper attire and participated in a few classes. Talley denied asking R.S. for her address and making inappropriate comments to her.

With regard to the allegations of inappropriate conduct by student S.G., Talley stated that she could not read or write and was in danger of failing. Therefore, he taught her how to read.

Charges Four and Five

> The Board alleges that Talley failed to adequately supervise students, thereby placing them at risk. Also, it is alleged that Talley disregarded proper procedure by failing to notify school administrators of incidents involving student misconduct.

K.B., a twelve-year-old student attending Howard Wilson Middle School, testified about an incident at Eighteenth Avenue School on December 9, 1991, two years ago. K.B. was ten years old and enrolled in Talley's physical education class. At the end of gym class, she and three other girls, A.F., E., and T., were in the locker room changing their clothing when two boys, E.C. and M.T., entered the dressing area. A.F., unclothed, covered her chest with her shirt, as one of the boys, M.T., tried to remove her hand and pull down her shorts and panties. K.B. jumped on the boys to get them off A.F. and yelled for Talley. Talley did not respond. After the incident, A.F. went into the gymnasium and told Talley what had happened. Talley then called the two boys by name. The girls, believing that Talley did not reprimand the boys, reported the incident to their principal, Mr. Young (P-11). K.B. also stated that the dressing room had an open ventilator on the wall which allowed the boys on the other side of the wall to look into the locker room. Talley usually stood near the boys' locker room or his office at the other end of the gym.

E.M., an eleven-year-old student now attending school in Summit, also testified about the incident concerning A.F. E.M. was in Talley's gym class,and she, too, recalled that A.F. covered her chest when the boys entered the locker room. She and two other students yelled for Talley and then reported the incident to the principal, Mr. Young.

Young recalled that the girls were upset about the incident regarding A.F. They were also upset because their teacher failed to do anything about it. Young questioned Talley, but he denied not taking action. However, Talley said that nothing further needed to be done. Young then reported the incident to DYFS.

Talley recalled that after he finished teaching class, four girls remained in the locker room to change clothes while the rest of the students returned to their regular classroom. After he returned to his office, two girls came from the locker room and reported the incident between A.F. and the two boys. Talley found the boys in their classroom and then sent them to see the principal. Talley maintained that Young asked for an incident report but did not discuss the matter with him.

Cordasco testified that she spoke to Talley about taking appropriate action regarding male students entering the girls' locker room. Cordasco also received complaints from female students that Talley watched them undress in the locker room. Cordasco instructed Talley not to enter the girls' locker room but to stay close by in the event of an emergency which required his assistance. She also suggested that he appoint two female monitors to keep him informed of any incidents that might require the assistance of the teacher.

In another incident, T.B., six years old, talked about what happened in Talley's class on October 13, 1992. In October 1992, T.B. was five years old and in the first grade. As he was preparing for gym class, in the locker room, another boy, Q.M., also five years old, tried to pull his pants down and get on top of him. T.B. then told Talley what happened. Under cross-examination, T.B. was unclear on whether Talley did anything about the incident. However, Young documented the incident on October 13, stating that, "Both boys state that the other children spoke to Mr. Talley about what happened. However, no action or reporting was done to the administration" (P-12).

Talley recalled that T.B. was changing in the locker room with the other twelve to thirteen students and then lined up for class. Neither T.B. nor any other student reported an assault on T.B. Thus, he was unaware that an incident occurred until Mrs. B. came to school the next day and spoke directly to Talley. He sent Mrs. B. to the principal.

Talley usually stood outside the boys locker room while they changed for gym. The first and second graders had difficulty changing their clothes, e.g., tying shoe laces, and thus took longer than the older students. Also, many of his students were from low income families, lived with grandparents and, generally, lived in a rough environment. He reported these problems to Mr. Moore. Often, he had problems controlling both the boys and the girls locker rooms. Because he could only go into the boys locker room, he asked for an assistant or teacher's aid to monitor the girls' locker room. If the students misbehaved, they would lose their gym privileges, return to their regular class, and then were lectured on health. Usually, Lucas would cover the girls locker room and he would stand near the boys locker room while the students changed for gym class. When he was not teaching class, he could be found in his office at the end of the gym.

Talley also complained about the deplorable physical condition of the Eighteenth Avenue school gymnasium. The locker rooms had inadequate lighting, poor electrical fixtures, no toilet facilities and bare floors. Repeatedly, he padded the open grid in the girls locker room with plywood to prevent the boys from looking through. Felicia Howard, head custodian at Eighteenth Avenue School, testified about the poor condition of the gym. She too covered the open grid in the girls locker room to prevent the boys from looking inside.

T.S., nine years old, testified about an incident one year ago on October 22, 1992. While on the playground, an eight year old boy, A.H., patted her behind. The touching was unwelcome and made her feel uncomfortable. She reported the incident to Talley but he did nothing about it. She then reported the incident to her homeroom teacher and to Mr. Young. Young reported the incident to DYFS (P-13).

Talley recalled that the class played touch football in the school yard. However, T.S. never complained about A.H. touching her nor did he observe anything between them.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that no tenured teacher shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause." Additional procedural safeguards, including the right to a list of charges, a sworn statement of evidence and an impartial hearing are required under the law to protect tenured teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Also, tenure is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by providing teachers with a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). The burden of proof for establishing claims against a tenured teacher is a fair preponderance of the evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982).

I

Charges one and two involve acts of corporal punishment and unjustified physical contact with pupils. Regarding the charge that Talley hit E., E., N.V. and T. with a whiffle ball bat, the Board asserts that Talley's testimony that he only "tapped" the boys is inconsistent with his admission on P-2 that he "hit" the four students. Two additional inconsistencies between Talley's testimony and reported incident were whether the boys continued to sit on the mats or were they hitting the mats against the wall when Talley told them to get on their spots and whether the boys tried to run out of the gym or to their spots when Talley picked up the plastic bat and approached the boys.

Regarding the charge that Talley pushed C.D. to the floor causing injuries to the boy's body, the Board maintains that C.D. did not fall to the floor, but was pushed in anger by Talley. The Board relies on the testimonies of C.D., Cordasco and the report submitted by the school nurse. Thus, the Board submits that charges one and two should be sustained.

Respondent maintains that after he tapped the four boys on their behind with a bat to get their attention, they laughed and then participated in class. Further, it is maintained that C.D. fell to the floor when Talley reached out to him. Respondent argues that the in each incident, the students were misbehaving and posed a danger to themselves and to each other. Thus, when students failed to follow Talley's verbal instructions, he "was required to exert the amount of force necessary to control the situation". (Respondents brief at 3). It is submitted that under the circumstances, the force used by Talley to control the situation was appropriate and does not constitute unbecoming conduct.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1 provides:

> No person employed or engaged in a school or educational institution, whether public or private, shall inflict or cause to be inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil attending such school or institution; but any such person may, within the scope of his employment, use and apply such amounts of force as is reasonable and necessary:
>
> (1) to quell a disturbance, threatening physical injury to others;

> (2) to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects upon the person or within the control of a pupil;
> (3) for the purpose of self-defense; and > (4) for the protection of persons or property;
>
> and such acts, or any of them, shall not be construed to constitute corporal punishment. . . .

The legislative purpose of the above statute prohibiting corporal punishment was clearly explained in the Tenure Hearing of Lomakin, 1971 S.L.D. 331, 334:

> While the Commissioner understands the exasperations and frustrations that often accompany the teacher's functions, he cannot condone resort to force and fear as appropriate procedures in dealing with pupils, even those whose recalcitrance appears to be open defiance. The Commissioner finds in the century-old statute prohibiting corporal punishment (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1) an underlying philosophy that an individual has a right not only to freedom from bodily harm but also freedom from offensive bodily touching even though there be no actual physical harm. Tenure Hearing of Ostergren, 1966 S.L.D. 185, 186. [Emphasis added.]

and

> [T]hat such a philosophy with its prohibition of the use of corporal punishment or physical enforcement does not leave a teacher helpless to control his pupils. Competent teachers never find it necessary to resort to physical force or violence to maintain discipline or compel obedience. If all other means fail there is always a resort to removal from the classroom or school through suspension or expulsion. The Commissioner cannot find any justification for, nor can he condone the use of physical force by a teacher to maintain discipline or to punish infractions. Ibid.

and, also

> Thus, when teachers resort "to unnecessary and inappropriate physical contact with those in their charge [they] must expect to face dismissal or other severe penalty." Ibid.

It is undisputed that Talley struck four students with a plastic bat in order to get their attention. However, it is disputed whether Talley hit or tapped four students with a plastic bat while they were either sitting on or hitting the mats. It is the function of the trier of fact to determine credibility based on internal consistency or the improbability of the witnesses' testimony, using experience in everyday affairs to give additional guidance. Additional measures for assessing credibility include demeanor, prior statements shown to have been misstatements by additional testimony or other evidence.

Cordasco provided a clear and credibile description of the red marks she saw on N.V.'s back the day after the incident. Also, the school nurse reported findings of discoloration after examining N.V.'s back.

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances. [citation omitted]
>
> [In re Perrone Estate, 5 N.J. 514, 521 (1950).]

I am persuaded by the evidence that in each of these incidents, the conduct of the students involved was not provocative nor were Talley's actions taken to protect the students.

Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND that on March 21, 1991, Talley hit four students, E., E., N.V. and T. with a whiffle ball bat. I also FIND that N.V. sustained a bruise approximately eight inches long across his back.

I have also considered carefully, the testimony of C.D. He understood the oath and gave forthright responses to questions asked by both counsel. Although he did not remember speaking to Young about the incident, he did remember that his teacher pushed him on the right shoulder causing him to fall to the floor scratching his hands and knees. An examination by the school nurse several hours later revealed abrasions and scrapes to C.D.'s arms and knees.

Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND that Talley pushed C.D. to the gymnasium floor causing injuries to the boy's palms, forearms, and knees.

III

Charge three involves alleged inappropriate behavior toward female students of a sexual nature. The Board contends that Manshel's testimony about R.S. is admissible as an excited utterance under N.J.R.E. 803(c)(2). Moreover, complaints of inappropriate behavior against Talley by other female students resulted in a warning by Cordasco to be more prudent. It is submitted that the unrelated separate complaints strongly suggest that Talley did make comments of a sexual nature to them. Thus, the charge should be sustained.

Respondent argues that none of the students who were allegedly approached were produced at the trial to testify against Talley. Thus, the evidence is hearsay. Further, the Board failed to investigate the truth of the students' statements. Moreover, while employed with the Board, Talley has never been charged with inappropriate conduct towards female students. Therefore, the charge should be dismissed.

Excited utterances are admissible evidence if the statement was made while the declarant was under the stress of excitement caused by the event or condition and without opportunity to deliberate or fabricate. The declarant need not testify. See N.J.R.E. 803(c)(2). The out-of-court statement "must possess indicia of reliability by virtue of its inherent trustworthiness, not by reference to other evidence at trial." Idaho v. Wright, __497__ U.S. 805, 823, 110 S. Ct. 3139, 3150, 111 L. Ed. 2d 638, 657 (1990). The factors to be considered include: (1) the amount of time between the initial observation of the event and the subsequent declaration of the statement; (2) the circumstances of the event; (3) the mental or physical condition of the declarant; (4) the shock produced; (5) the nature of the statement; and (6) whether the statement was made voluntarily or in response to a question. The statement need not be made contemporaneously with or even immediately after the event. See State v. Ramos, 203 N.J. Super. 197 (Law Div. 1985) (statements made two or more weeks after the sexual misconduct that they described allegedly took place were admissible). Also, reasonable proximity between the event and the statement may be spontaneous if the declarant's excited state was continuing. See, State v. Williams, 214 N.J. Super. 12 (App Div 1986). Additionally, an essential element for admissibility under the rule is that it was made under the stress of excitement. Testimony that the declarant was still in a "daze of shock" satisfied this requirement. Id. at 19. Also, a statement made in response to a question does not automatically deprive it of its spontaneity. State v. Simmons, 52 N.J. 538, 541-542 (1968), cert. den. 395 U.S. 924, 89 S.Ct. 1779, 23 *L. Ed.*2d 241 (1969). Further, the circumstances must warrant an inference that the statement was made before the declarant had time to plan a self-serving deliberated assertion.

Statements made by victims of child abuse incidents to third parties may also be admissible under *N.J.R. E.*803(c)(2) as a "fresh complaint" under the same standards of an excited utterance. See State v. Simmons, supra. Because there are rarely other witnesses to acts of child sexual abuse and often there is no visible physical evidence that such acts of abuse occurred, the spontaneous out-of-court account of what happened by the victim may be found highly credible under N.J.R.E. 803(c)(2).

The record reflects that in May 1991, the school social worker Manshel counseled R.S. about comments of a sexual nature made to her by Talley. The alleged conduct began in March. (P-10). Manshel described R.S. as a naive country girl from Mississippi. R.S. was quiet and scared as she reported the incidents. During another counseling session, R.S. was soft spoken and nervous. The information was reported to Principal Petrozzino and to DYFS (P-18, P-20). Moreover, Cordasco questioned R.S. about Talley's behavior after R.S. "went to [Mr. Carpino, Head Guidance Counselor] because she was very upset by comments made to her by Mr. Talley, during class" (P-5).

Teachers, guidance counselors and school social workers are persons recognized under usual circumstances as natural confidantes. Moreover, pursuant to Board policy, school personnel made inquiries after receiving the reported incidents of child abuse and they also referred the matter of DYFS. See Exhibit P-18. Thus, there is a residuum of competent evidence to support a finding that Talley made inappropriate remarks of a sexual nature to R.S. See M.J. Rudolph Corp. v. DEP (NJ App. Div., A-1576-89T2, Nov. 15, 1990). I am persuaded by the totality of the circumstances that the statements reported to Manshel by R.S. concerning Talley's conduct were not contrived. Thus, I FIND that Talley interacted inappropriately with R.S. and made improper and offensive remarks to her.

With respect to Talley's alleged inappropriate conduct towards S.H., Mrs. H. complained to Cordasco that Talley said, "You don't have anything" (P-6). Cordasco understood the comment to refer to sexual parts. However, no evidence was provided describing the circumstances of the incident. Similarly, complaints by other female students about Talley's alleged inappropriate conduct lack the elements necessary to show that the declarants had no opportunity for misrepresentation before making the statements. Thus, no inference can be drawn that Talley acted inappropriately with other female students based on unrelated complaints made on separate occasions. Moreover, the alleged statements made by Talley are so vague and ambiguous that it is impossible to determine precisely to what they were referring. Consequently, their evidentiary value has no weight.

III

Charges four and five involve allegations that Talley failed to adequately supervise his pupils and to notify school administrators of student misconduct. The Board contends that the the incidents which occurred at the Eighteenth Avenue School in the girls' and boys' locker rooms and on the playground could have been avoided if instead of reading the newspaper in his office Talley would have been supervising the students. Further, he should have reprimanded the boys for looking into the girls' locker room and implemented proper classroom management techniques. Thus, his failure properly perform his duties presented a danger to students.

Respondent argues that prior to his assignment to Eighteenth Avenue School, students from the first through third grade did not have physical education, and thus were not required to change their clothes for gym class. Additionally, the physical condition of the gym was deplorable. Further, the girls' and boys' locker rooms were at opposite ends of the gym making it physically impossible to supervise both the girls and the boys while they changed their clothes.

Regarding the incident involving A.F. on December 9, 1991, it is argued that class had been dismissed, and thus, Talley believed that all the students had returned to their regular classrooms. However, when one of the girls informed Talley about the incident, respondent sent the boys to the principal to be disciplined.

Regarding the incident involving T.B. on October 13, 1992, it is argued that upon being told what was happening in the locker room, Talley entered the locker room and immediately brought the situation under control. Thereafter, when Mrs. B. inquired about the incident, Talley informed her that he was unaware that T.B. felt that he was sexually assaulted and directed her to the principal's office.

Regarding the incident involving T.S. on October 22, 1992, it is argued that no teacher could have prevented this type of situation from occurring. Moreover, at the time, Talley was supervising a football game with the other students.

I am mindful that the testimony of young students must be examined with great caution. Although one student was five years old, others were pre-teens and teenagers when the respective incidents occurred, and one was a student with disabilities, each knew his or her obligation to speak the truth. Notwithstanding inconsistencies in the testimony of some students, the testimony was believable. Indeed, the existence of some inconsistencies in a witness' testimony does not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible. United Stations of N.J., et al. v. Getty Oil Co., et al., 102 N.J. Super. 459 (Ch. Div. 1968). Moreover, the variations in the testimony was the individuals' recollection of or failure to recall minute details of the respective incidents occurring two years ago, but not in the underlying actual occurrences of the incidents themselves. In all of these incidents, the students, K.B., E.M., T.B., and T.S. testified about what they saw or experienced regarding these charges. Other than Talley's denial, the students' testimony reflects that when they were assaulted in the locker room or on the playground, their teacher was not there to help them. Moreover, when the incidents were reported to him, he did not immediately respond to their call for help.

Based upon a review of the evidence, including a credibility assessment, I FIND that Talley failed to adequately supervise the students, particularly the girls' and boys' locker rooms, thereby placing them at risk. Also, I FIND that Talley did not notify school administrators of incidents involving student misconduct.

IV

With regard to the appropriate penalty, I have carefully considered the important role served by members of the teaching profession. Teachers hold a sacred position in our society. The teacher provides his students not only book knowledge, but also social and moral values that are expected from parents, law enforcement officials and the general public. Thus, teachers must be held to a high standard of conduct because they have direct contact with molding habits and nurturing young minds. Suffice it to say, children mimic what they see and they learn by example. Clearly, teachers play a direct role in influencing the opinions of their pupils, and indeed, teachers are role models. Also, teachers impart the goals students set for themselves and the direction they take in achieving those goals. Consequently, teachers are expected to exercise exemplary restraint and mature self-control.

Unfitness to remain a teacher may be shown by a single incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it is best evidenced by a series of incidents. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967); Redcay v. State Bd. of Ed., 130 N.J.L. 396, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd.

131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). Thus, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Eddie Lee Harrell, 1979 S.L.D. 497, the Commissioner concluded that while Harrell's single act of slapping a student could not be condoned, it did not warrant dismissal. However, In the Tenure Hearing of Harrell, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol 4A) 397 (Dept of Education), the administrative law judge found a pattern of conduct by Harrell where "he deals with incidents of misconduct, either real or perceived, in a physically aggressive manner, at times causing injury to students...Indeed, his actions may unfortunately give a clear signal to his students that physical aggression is an appropriate and acceptable response." Id. at 405

Here, Talley acknowledged that most of his students come from a dysfunctional and broken homes where daily physical violence is the norm rather than the exception. Proofs established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that in each of the incidents involving physical contact with the students, Talley's actions demonstrated a lack of self-restraint and self-control necessary to become an effective and successful teacher. With regard to R.S., Talley abused his public trust and took advantage of his position as a teacher by making personal remarks to her of a sexual nature. Such conduct cannot be tolerated in a school setting where adolescents are entitled to greater protection. Talley has been entrusted with the care and custody of school children "with the hope that his trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child." In The Matter of The Tenure Hearing of Jacques L. Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. His failure to properly supervise his students and his failure to notify school administrators of incidents involving student misconduct violated that trust.

These determinations are serious and warrant careful consideration in assessing the penalty. Thus, I have considered the nature and gravity of the offense, any extenuating or aggravating circumstances, and the affect on the maintenance of discipline and proper administration of the school system. Fulcomer, supra. Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the aggravating circumstances outweigh Talley's past good service.

Based upon the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board has sustained its tenure charge against Charles Talley. I further CONCLUDE that the appropriate penalty is DISMISSAL.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CHARLES TALLEY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially argue that the ALJ's conclusion that the Board had met its burden of proof on each of the charges is in error because in reaching her determinations on these charges, the ALJ's recollection of testimony was inaccurate, she disregarded evidence, and she failed to accord proper weight to his credible testimony and that of other individuals testifying in his behalf. Respondent presents a recitation of what he contends is relevant factual testimony with respect to each of the charges and the conclusions which he avers should be adduced from such testimony.

The Board's reply exceptions urge acceptance of the ALJ's findings regarding the incidents underlying the tenure charges. It highlights evidence and testimony presented in support of each of the charges which it avers fully support the ALJ's findings. It further contends that the ALJ, as factfinder and firsthand observer of witnesses, was entitled to discount testimony which she found to be inconsistent and conflicting. Additionally, the Board asserts that if respondent seeks to challenge the ALJ's findings of fact, it was incumbent upon him to provide the Commissioner with transcripts. (In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (1987))

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons expressed by her in the initial decision. With respect to the exceptions of respondent, the Commissioner notes that without a review of the transcripts of this matter, which were not a part of the record before him, it is not possible to reconcile the conflicting claims made by respondent and the Board regarding findings of fact. Further, the existing record does not provide any cause to challenge the credibility assessments made by the ALJ.

The Commissioner finds and determines that the record substantiates the ALJ's findings that the incidents alleged by the Board did, in fact, occur and that they amply prove respondent's unfitness for teaching. Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is terminated from his tenured teaching position in the school district of the City of Newark as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 for action against respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: March 4, 1994 Decided: March 7, 1994

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

These three consolidated matters were transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases on October 1, 1992. A prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge on June 21, 1993 and hearings were scheduled to take place during January and February 1994. In the interim, orders permitting the intervention of Goode, Specht and Taranto, three individual respondents who potentially were affected by the school district administrative reorganization, were entered.

In advance of the scheduled hearing dates, counsel and the intervenors engaged in extended settlement discussions. As a result, a stipulation of settlement signed by the three individual petitioners and by a representative of the Board of Education was submitted to me. That stipulation provides for the salary increases of the three petitioners and addresses other matters of concern to each. In addition, and in light of the settlement, the three intervenors have submitted withdrawals, with prejudice, since the contents of the stipulation of settlement does not affect their interests. Copies of their withdrawals, as well as a copy of the stipulation of settlement, is attached hereto.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement as set forth in the settlement agreement, and I FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the terms of the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of counsel which appear on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the public interest and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that the settlement agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be and are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." 5. Ms. Wargo will be paid a lump sum of $6,000.00 (less appropriate state and federal taxes to be deducted from this amount by the Board) within the same time frame set forth in Paragraph 4 hereinabove.

6. If, after ongoing contract negotiations pertaining to salaries for administrators for the 1993-94 school year are concluded between the Board and the collective bargaining unit for the administrators in the Linden school system, Ms. Wargo's salary exceeds $74,467.00 for the 1993-94 school year and if all administrators are to receive retroactive pay, Ms. Wargo will receive the difference between $74,467.00 and the higher salary at the same time and in the same manner all other administrators receive their respective retroactive pay for the 1993-94 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERNARDSVILLE, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review of the record, including the audio recording of proceedings before the ALJ, the Commissioner concurs that the district's suspension of S. McC., pending full hearing before the Board of Education, was undertaken in a manner that sufficiently met the standard for preliminary due process as appropriate at that point in the suspension proceedings. The Commissioner further concurs that petitioner has failed to meet the standards for appropriate grant of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), in that, under the circumstances of this matter, S. McC.'s temporary confinement to home instruction does not constitute irreparable harm, and the balance of interests clearly lies with the Board's effort to ensure the safety of students and other children at the school facility.

Accordingly, the initial order of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal, which, it is noted, reaches solely to the suspension imposed pending a plenary hearing undisputedly to occur within the time frame required by law, is affirmed for the reasons expressed by the ALJ in the tape recording of proceedings before him.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: March 1, 1994 Decided: March 9, 1994

BEFORE CAROL F. LASKIN, ALJ, T/A:

On March 19, 1993, F.B., mother of K.B., D.B., mother of D.B. and C.B., and C.C.B., brother of F.B. and D.B. and uncle of their minor children, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of the Department of Education in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1 et seq. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case on July 21, 1993.

Petitioners' request for adjournment of the initial prehearing conference scheduled for October 1, 1993, was granted. At the initial in-person prehearing conference conducted on November 24, 1993, M.G.B. appeared and represented that she was the guardian ad litem for the minor children D.B., C.B. and K.B. and requested to intervene in this matter. Her request was granted.

An Initial Prehearing Order was issued on December 1, 1993, and all parties were given the opportunity to present their respective positions. After consideration of all the positions and papers submitted, the Final Prehearing Order was entered on December 28, 1993.

Respondent City of Trenton Board of Education (Board), pursuant to the motion calendar in the Prehearing Order, submitted a motion for summary decision requesting that the petition of appeal be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and/or lack of merit. This motion was denied by Order dated February 25, 1994. Respondent Board also asserted, by motion, that C.C.B. had no legal standing in this matter and that he be dismissed. After consideration of all the papers presented and supporting documentation, brief and submissions, it was ordered on February 25, 1994 that C.C.B. be dismissed as a party for lack of standing.

The parties and C.C.B. appeared at the hearing on March 1, 1993. The parties engaged in extensive settlement discussions wherein C.C.B. was permitted to participate. These discussions were successful and the parties and C.C.B. agreed to settle this matter, executed the settlement agreement, incorporated herein, whose terms were set forth on the record:

After being placed under oath, the parties and C.C.B. stated that they fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of this settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets with requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the Commissioner of the Department of Education for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the, Commissioner of the Department of Education who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed Assistant Superintendent, alleged improper abolition of her position. Her first petition in this regard, was filed in 1990, and was appealed to the State Board. Alleging that a memorandum discovered in October 1991 supported her allegations that newly created positions were, in fact, assistant superintendencies, petitioner had filed a motion to supplement the record with the State Board in December 1991 to add this discovery to the record of her first petition. After such motion was denied in March 1993, she then filed a second petition with the Commissioner. Board contended this second petition was untimely since petitioner had "gambled" on a favorable State Board decision and, having lost, was now asking the Commissioner to relax the 90-day filing requirement.

ALJ concurred with Board that second petition was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), noting petitioner relied solely upon State Board for new relief without simultaneously filing with the Commissioner. She waited more than two and a half years after the 1991 memorandum to appeal to the Commissioner. Thus, petition was dismissed as untimely.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination of the ALJ that the petition was untimely and that no sufficient reason was presented to require relaxation of the 90-day rule.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Margaret C. Murphy, Esq., for petitioner

Sydney A. Sayovitz, Esq., for respondent
(Young, Tarshis, Dimiero & Sayovitz, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 1, 1994 Decided: March 15, 1994

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

The position of Rita M. Eberhard, a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, Bergen County, as assistant superintendent, administration/personnel, was abolished by action of the Board on May 8, 1990 in an administrative reorganization. On June 5, 1990, the Board reassigned her to the position of middle school principal.

In a petition of appeal filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on July 20, 1990, she alleged Board action in abolishing her former position was contrary to and in abridgment of her rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. She sought judgment reinstating her for 1990-91 to her former position. The Board admitted the position abolishment but contended it acted in good faith and furtherance of an administrative reorganization. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. Under OAL DKT. No. EDU 6866-90, an administrative law judge upheld Board action as part of an open, deliberate and reasonable administrative reorganization involving a division and re-division of labor among duties of the abolished positions and duties of new positions of assistant to the superintendent and assistant to the school business administrator. The petition was dismissed. The Commissioner affirmed on July 16, 1991. The State Board of Education affirmed the Commissioner on March 3, 1993, noting in footnote its determination to deny plaintiff's motion to supplement the record with a letter from the county superintendent approving use of unrecognized position titles for 1991-92 (P-2) was "without prejudice to petitioner's right to pursue by petition to the Commissioner any separate cause of action arising in the 1991-1992 school year. " (Slip op. at 5.) Petitioner's appeal to Superior Court, Appellate Division, is pending.

On April 29, 1993 petitioner filed a new petition before the Commissioner alleging legal titles of the newly-created, unrecognized positions were in fact assistant superintendencies, as she had contended, and not supervisory positions. Noting the State Board's footnoted decision was without prejudice to her right to do so, she sought relief in the new petition from actions of the Board "as they relate to the 1991-1992 school year and forward." She sought judgment immediately reinstating her to her former position as assistant superintendent for administration/personnel, as well as reimbursement for salary lost and emoluments due to her change in positions for the 1991-1992 school year. The Board denied the allegations. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on June 1, 1993 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq, under OAL DKT. No. 5121-93.

The matter was submitted to pre-hearing conference of the parties on August 1, 1993 and an order entered. Argument on the Board's motion to dismiss the petition on its affirmative defense of the 90-day time bar of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) was set for March 1, 1994. The parties agreed there were no genuine material facts in dispute, the motion therefore being ripe for determination in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Memoranda of law having been filed, the record closed.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner argued her claim to be restored to the tenured position of assistant superintendent for 1991-92 "and forward" was properly filed and was compliant with the 90-day limiting rule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3(c), which provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from date of receipt of notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The petition, she said, was filed within 90 days of the State Board's action on March 3, 1993 denying her motion to supplement the record of her first petition with a memorandum from the county superintendent of schools to the Bergenfield superintendent on October 29, 1991 (P-2) approving position titles and authorizing certificate endorsements of school administrator and not supervisor. She argued the State Board had "instructed" her to do so, in effect, by its March 3, 1993 footnote. Pm at 19. She said the cause of action was first pleaded in her petition of July 20, 1990, again on December 18, 1991 in her motion to the State Board to supplement the record, then finally, she said, in the instant petition. Finally, it was argued, circumstances require relaxation of 90-day limiting period under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, since strict adherence to it is either inappropriate, unneccesary or unjust. Although job descriptions for the new positions were apparently evolving through 1990-91, it was not until the following year in late 1991 petitioner found access to information the Board was changing job duties so as to frustrate her tenure protection.

The Board urged that the present petition was untimely, that petitioner had gambled by resorting to a motion before the State Board to reopen an old petition and lost and that her failure to file a timely new petition was thus an inappropriate candidate for relaxation of the rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

What was the action, order or ruling by the Board petitioner is challenging? For answer, one finds it useful and necessary to analyze the cause of action. It seeks to establish the Board designated two new positions as assistants to the superintendent when, for 1991-92, the school year after that complained of in the previous petition, the positions were really assistant superintendencies and not supervisory positions as the Board had claimed. That being the case, said petitioner in the prayer for relief in the present petition, she is entitled to have the Board reinstate her to the former position as assistant superintendent for 1991-92. Although it seems clear from pleadings petitioner's theoretical cause of action supposes Board action was well in progress before and during the 1991-92 school year, and thus actionable, petitioner nonetheless became aware of its wrong only when the county superintendent's October 29, 1991 memorandum was made known to her. By paragraph 7 of her petition, she makes clear the memorandum was both her first notice as well as the smoking gun. It is keystone of her claim.

My view is that petitioner's failure to file her petition before the Commissioner within ninety days of her "receipt of . . . notice . . ., ruling or other action by the district board of education. . ." on October 29, 1991 violated N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3(c). To have done so simultaneously with her motion before the State Board to supplement the old record would require small effort. Instead, she elected to rely for new relief solely upon the State Board. There appears, from this record, no rational reason to withhold the new appeal to the Commissioner for two and a half years. Nor does it appear, in my view, that petitioner's resort to the State Board without immediately filing a new petition warrants relaxation of the time bar. As argued by the Board, petitioner gambled on a favorable State Board decision and, having lost, asks this forum to reward the gamble. I reject the notion the State Board "directed" petitioner to file the present petition, which it said is a "separate cause of action." Cf. Riley v. Hunterdon Central BOE, 173 N.J. Super 109, 114 (App. Div. 1980); North Plainfield Education Association v. North Plainfield BOE, 96 N.J. 587 (1984). No competent reason has been presented for relaxation of rule. Cf. Cwierko v. Bd. of Ed. Jersey City, 1988 S.L.D. 318, 324-6.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE (1) the petition of appeal is untimely for not having been filed within ninety days of notice of Board action complained of, under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3(c); and (2) no reason is presented sufficient to require relaxation of rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. Summary decision in favor of the Board on its motion to that effect on its second affirmative defense is GRANTED. The petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions aver, inter alia, that in the interest of justice she should not be denied a hearing because her counsel, in good faith, may have chosen the wrong forum within the Department of Education in which to pursue her remedies. Petitioner argues

> The memorandum pointed to the strong possibility that the duties of the positions had been changed at some time during the 1990-91 school year, but almost certainly by October 29, 1991. Thus, this was seen not as a separate claim, but a continuation of the claim that had already been filed. (See Delk v. Bd. of Ed. of the Boro. of Pemberton, 1986 S.L.D. 2111, 2136; 90-day rule should be relaxed where it promotes judicial economy and eliminates the need for costly litigation.)
> Counsel, not the client, made the decision to file a Motion to supplement the record. If that decision was in error, it was not an attempt to get around the 90-day rule as the State Board (which had juisdiction at that time) and the local Board received notice of the discovery of the new evidence almost immediately. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Pellagatti, S.B. #28-92 (October 8, 1992) at 2.See also Krupp v. Bd. of Ed. of Union County Regional High School District, 1991 S.L.D. 2568.

Mrs. Eberhard has not delayed in asserting her claim; she has merely chosen the wrong forum (within the Department of Education) in good faith. Once the State Board decision was rendered, she promptly filed the instant petition. In addition, as the Board was immediately notified of her claim by way of the Motion to supplement the record, there can be no claim of prejudice to the Board.

(Petitioner's Exceptions, at pp. 4-5)

Petitioner further assets that she should not be deprived of her right to a hearing on her claim as a result of the State Board's excessive delay in rendering a decision on her motion. She contends that if the State Board had acted in a reasonably timely manner, for example within 45 days, she would have been able to file a second petition before the Commissioner within the 90-day timeframe.

The Board's reply exceptions urge that petitioner's argument that the 90-day limitation period should be relaxed, in the interest of justice, because her counsel chose the wrong forum with which to file is meritless. It avers

Soon after October 29, 1991, Petitioner's counsel became aware of a memorandum from the County Superintendent of Schools. Petitioner filed a Notice of Motion to Supplement the Record on December 17, 1991. The Board of Education filed a Brief in opposition to the Motion on January 9, 1992. In its Brief, the Board argued that the Motion to Supplement the Record should be denied because the new evidence (i.e. the 10/29/91 memorandum) concerned a different school year from that in Eberhard I. This argument became the basis of the State Board of Education's decision on March 3, 1993 denying the Motion to Supplement the Record. Accordingly, although Petitioner learned on or about March 3, > 1993 that the October 29, 1991 memorandum could not supplement the record in Eberhard I, counsel was on notice in January, 1992 that there were strong arguments mitigating against the Motion to Supplement the Record. Rather than file a second petition in January 1992, within the ninety day limitations period following the October 29, 1991 memorandum, Petitioner's counsel simply chose to wait. In fact, the wait continued until April 30, 1993, nearly sixteen months after Petitioner was put on notice that its Motion to Supplement the Record had potential deficiencies.

> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 4-5)

The Board further urges that petitioner's assertion that it was not prejudiced by her filing a second petition more than 18 months after the October 29, 1991 memorandum is wholly erroneous.

> The Board of Education herewith is being asked to defend actions and events of the 1991-92 school year. Both the Superintendent of Schools and the School Business Administrator employed by the Board of Education during the 1991-92 school year have left the Bergenfield public school system. Memories of the events are now two and one half years old or longer. With the appeal of Bergenfield I still pending in the Appellate Division and a second petition filed herein, the Board of Education has been litigating this matter for years at a considerable expense to the public. The Board of Education is entitled to finality where appropriate. The ninety day limitations period grants such finality, and no sufficient justification has been presented by Petitioner to require that the Board of Education participate in additional hearings on a matter that has been litigated over and over.
> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 5-6)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, including the exceptions advanced by the parties, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive and agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the instant Petition of Appeal is untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that no sufficient reason has been presented to require the relaxation of the rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

Petitioner's apparent belief that the Motion to Supplement the Record she filed before the State Board on December 18, 1991 preserved, or should have preserved, her right to file a second petition before the Commissioner some 16 months after her cause of action in October 1991 cannot be justified under the circumstances existing in this matter. The Commissioner further notes that given that the State Board is not bound by any statutory or regulatory timelines for the issuing of its decisions, parties cannot reasonably rely on, or claim prejudice as a result of, the issuance date of any State Board decision.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted for the reasons stated therein. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the within Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teacher, challenged Board's refusal to rescind its acceptance of his resignation rendered on December 1, 1991 and accepted by the Board on December 16, 1991 effective July 1, 1992. Petitioner attempted to take advantage of new retirement incentive effective July 1994 between retiring employees and the Association.

ALJ found petitioner's resignation was duly accepted by the Board. In the absence of a declaration of invalidity of the collective bargaining agreement which governed petitioner's retirement by a court of competent jurisdiction or, in the alternative, by an administrative agency having subject matter jurisdiction, no authority resides in the Commissioner of Education to determine the invalidity of such agreement between respondent and the Association. ALJ denied petitioner's request to rescind his resignation and other relief and ordered the petition dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

Respondent.

Michael J. Gross, Esq., for respondent (Kenney, Gross & McDonough, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 1, 1994 Decided: March 18, 1994

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the refusal by respondent to rescind its acceptance of his resignation as a tenured teacher effective July 1, 1992, and he seeks a determination that he is entitled to the benefit of language in a certain collective bargaining agreement, as amended, regarding retirement, and restoration of lost salary and benefits resulting from respondent's refusal to rescind the acceptance of his resignation. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 7, 1992 for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned administrative law judge on December 7, 1992 and a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for January 13, 1993. At the telephone prehearing conference, the attorneys requested that the matter be converted to a status conference, and they agreed to confer and prepare a stipulation of undisputed facts and further agreed to attempt to settle the matter. A telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for March 11, 1993.

On March 11, 1993, the telephone prehearing conference was again converted to a status conference and the parties agreed to submit a stipulation of undisputed facts within 30 days. The parties further agreed to submit affidavits as to additional relevant facts within 30 days thereafter with the opportunity to submit responding affidavits within a further additional period. A briefing schedule was agreed upon whereupon the record was closed. The record closed on February 1,1994.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The parties to this proceeding stipulated to the facts set forth in a Stipulation of Facts numbering 23 paragraphs (Exhibit J-1) and to the Exhibits annexed thereto. These stipulated facts may be summarized as follows:

Respondent, Hazlet Township Board of Education is a public employer within the meaning of the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 to -29. The Hazlet Township Teachers Association (Association) is the recognized majority representative for all non-supervisory certificated teaching staff members employed by respondent. Respondent and the Association are parties to a collective negotiations agreement which expires on June 30, 1994 (Exhibit A).

Petitioner was employed by the Board as a teaching staff member from September, 1969 through July 1, 1992. During the course of his employment by the Board, petitioner accumulated 160 days of sick leave.

On October 3, 1991, respondent and the Association signed a Memorandum of Agreement ("Memorandum") reflecting the current collective negotiations agreement. The Memorandum contained a retirement incentive which was included in the current collective negotiations agreement. Specifically, Article X, Retirement Sick Leave, provided in pertinent part:

> 2. Any teacher seeking an effective retirement date between October 3, 1991 and June 30, 1992, who notifies the Board of such retirement between October 3, 1991 and December 31, 1991, shall be entitled to be paid $150 per day for accumulated sick leave up to a maximum of fifty (50) percent of the employee's last annual salary. Teachers whose unused sick days exceed fifty percent of their annual salary will be compensated at a rate of $25 per day for each remaining day of accumulated sick leave. Payments under these terms shall be made by the Board of Education in two equal installments in July, 1992 and July, 1993.

On November 19, 1991, respondent's Secretary/School Business Administrator, Paul Sparta, circulated a memorandum to all members of the Hazlet Township Teacher's Association (Exhibit B). On December 1, 1991, petitioner submitted his resignation to the Board (Exhibit C). On December 16, 1992, the Board accepted petitioner's resignation by resolution (Exhibit D).

Thereafter, the Board received a memorandum dated December 12,1991 from Margaret McMahon, Director of the Division of Pensions concerning local early retirement incentive programs. On February 5, 1992, Malachi J. Kenney, Esq., wrote to Ms. McMahon seeking clarification of the December 12, 1991 memorandum. Mr. Kenney advised the Division of Pensions that the Board needed a determination as to the program's validity by March 13, 1992 because the Board and its employees had to know whether the negotiated sick leave reimbursement program could be implemented in the 1991-92 school year. (Exhibit F).

On March 17, 1992, Mr. Kenney again wrote to Ms. McMahon advising her that as the Board had not received a response from the Division of Pensions by March 13, 1992 (Exhibit G), the Board and the Association would implement the negotiated contractual provisions pertaining to retirement sick leave.

In a letter dated March 15, 1992, Thomas P. Bryan, Executive Assistant at the Division of Pensions responded to the Board's inquiry and rendered an opinion of the Division (Exhibit H).

In response to the Division of Pensions letter, the Board and the Association met to negotiate a change to the previously agreed upon language. The following amendment to the Collective Bargaining Agreement was agreed upon:

> WHEREAS, as part of the Agreement, the parties had included a provision which reduced the payment for retirement/sick leave commencing July 1, 1992 (See Section E(2) & (3)); and
>
> WHEREAS, March 25, 1992, the parties were informed by the Executive Assistant to the Director of the Division of Pensions that paying higher benefits under a retirement sick leave program only to employees who retire within a specific time frame may not be valid; and
>
> WHEREAS, the parties which to validate these provisions concerning retirement/sick leave payments to employees, pursuant to the letter issued by the Division of Pensions,
>
> NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY AGREED, subject to ratification by each side, as follows:
>
> The Hazlet Township Board of Education and the Hazlet Teachers association hereby agree to amend Article 10(E) to read as follows:

> 1. Any teacher seeking an effective retirement shall be entitled to be paid $150 per day for any accumulated sick leave up to a maximum of fifty (50) percent of the employee's last annual salary. Teachers whose unused sick days exceed fifty (50) percent of their annual salary will be compensated at a rate of 25.00 per day for each remaining day of accumulated sick leave. Payments under these terms shall be made by the Board of Education in two equal installments in July, 1992, July, 1993 or July, 1994. Notification for retirement must be submitted to the Board of Education on or before December 1 of the school year prior to the date of retirement, so the funds can be budgeted and paid during the school year of retirement, or payment shall be deferred until July of the following school year. . .
>
> IT IS FURTHER AGREED between the parties that individuals who have submitted letters of retirement to the Board of Education and which the Board has accepted for the 1991-92 school year shall not be permitted to rescind their retirements. Those employees shall be paid pursuant to the terms of the original agreement which is not altered by this amendment. (See, Exhibit I).

The foregoing amendment permitted the Board to maintain its original budgetary goals for 1992-93 and allowed additional employees to seek the sick leave pay out in future years.

During the April 13, 1992 meeting of the Board of Education, petitioner, through his attorney, Alicia Cutro, requested that he be allowed to rescind his retirement prior to the adopting of the amendment to the Collective Bargaining Agreement. (Exhibit J). In a letter dated April 17, 1992, Harry Camwell, Association President, informed Mr. Sparta that the Association, by a vote of the General Membership of the Executive Board, had ratified both the Amendment and the Side Bar Agreement (Exhibit K). The Board ratified the same amendment to the Memorandum of Agreement which was ratified by the Association at the Board's April 27, 1992 meeting (Exhibit L).

Upon retirement, petitioner received a check in excess of $8,000 after deductions representing compensation for his half of his accumulated sick days. On July 28, 1992, petitioner deposited the check issued to him by the Board for his accumulated sick days in Corestates National Bank.

In a letter dated May 12, 1992, Alicia Cutro contacted Michael Cleffi, Superintendent of Schools, advising him that she represented petitioner and requesting that Mr. Cleffi contact her to discuss Mr. Cutro's retirement (Exhibit M). In a letter dated May 26, 1992 to petitioner's attorney, the Board's attorney stated that the district had no legal obligation to accept Mr. Cutro's request to rescind his retirement (Exhibit N). On August 19, 1992, petitioner filed a Verified Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner. The Board submitted its Answer to the Verified Petition on September 14, 1992.

In addition to the stipulated facts, petitioner submitted an affidavit (Exhibit P-2) in which he set forth the difference in his pension payments which resulted from the failure of respondent to allow him to withdraw his resignation and commence his retirement at the conclusion of the 1994 school year.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, clearly show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C.. 1:1-12.5(b); Templeton v. Glen Rock, 11 N.J. Super. 1, 4 (App. Div. 1950).

As a general rule, acceptance of a resignation of an officer by the individual or body authorized to accept it terminates the officer's term of office, and a withdrawal of the resignation is ineffectual after its acceptance. Andrews v. Lamb, 136 N.J.L. 548 (Sup. Ct. 1948). Where the resignation of an officer has become complete by acceptance, it cannot then be withdrawn even with the consent of the person or body authorized to accept it. Id. at 550-551.

On the other hand, it is well established that a resignation maybe withdrawn before it is accepted. Kozak v. Board of Education of the Township of Waterford, 1976 S.L.D. 633.

In this matter, petitioner relies upon Evaul v. Board of Ed. City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244 (1961). In that matter, a teacher submitted her resignation at a time when she was shocked and emotionally distressed. Her written resignation was accepted at a special meeting of the Board of Education scheduled later that same day. The teacher was unaware of the scheduling of this special meeting. The court indicated that it was clear that the submission of this resignation was an impetuous act prompted by the teacher's distraught condition. Linked to this chain of events, was the fortuitous circumstance that a special meeting of the school board, unknown to the teacher, had been previously scheduled for the same day. But for this chain of events, the teacher's attempted rescission of her resignation two days later would have been effective. The court found that in the unusual circumstances of the matter, it is unduly harsh for appellant to lose her tenure and seniority rights and ordered the teacher to be reinstated.

In Hall v. Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson, 125 N.J. 299 (1991), the Board of Education refused to allow a tenured teacher who had submitted her resignation pursuant to a contractual retirement benefits program to rescind her resignation or to extend her date of retirement. In that case, the court applied principals of contract law in order to determine whether the teacher should be permitted to rescind her resignation. It found that the collective bargaining agreement between the teachers representative and the board provided for a teacher to submit a "notice of intent to retire". However, the court indicated that the agreement did not suggest the legal effect of such notice or whether it could be modified. It indicated that where contract terms are unspecified or vague, extrinsic evidence may be used to shed light on the mutual understanding of the parties. Since the past practice of the Board of Education had been to permit employees to rescind their notices of intent to retire, it would not permit the Board of Education to impose new conditions without any justification and in conflict with past practice.

I find that the facts in Evaul and in Hall are not analogous to those in this matter. However, that is clear from the above statements of the law by the Supreme Court in these two cases is that, in the absence of statutory provisions dealing with the effect of resignations and their rescission, principals of contract law are applicable.

Rescission is an equitable remedy and is only available in limited circumstances; contracts may only be rescinded when there is original invalidity, fraud, failure of consideration or a material breach or default. Hilton Hotels, Corp. v. Piper Co., 214 N.J. Super. 328, 336 (Ch. Div. 1986). In this matter, petitioner's resignation was submitted on December 1, 1991 and respondent formally accepted it on December 16, 1991. It was only when the amendment to the collective bargaining agreement was discussed in April 1982, and executed in May 1992, that petitioner sought to rescind his resignation. Essentially petitioner is seeking to rescind his resignation because an amendment to the collective bargaining agreement was subsequently negotiated for other members of his former bargaining unit, which specifically excluded him and any other employees who had previously resigned. The affidavit of petitioner (P-2) shows that if petitioner had been permitted to rescind his resignation and commence retirement at the conclusion of the 1994 school year, he would have been entitled to a substantial annual increase in his pension.

There has been no claim on the part of petitioner that the original collective bargaining agreement was somehow tainted by fraud, that there was a failure of consideration or that there has been any material breach or default. Petitioner's petition does allege in paragraph 4 that the respondent determined that the provision in question "was clearly identified as a retirement incentive [and] could well violate sailent law of the State of New Jersey". This assertion was denied by respondent in its Answer. In paragraph 6 of his petition, petitioner contends that "the original clause having been determined to be inappropriate or potentially voidable by the respondent entitled him to rescind his resignation and utilize the extended date contained in the amended language." In its Answer, respondent indicated that it can neither admit nor deny this allegation since these are legal conclusions and not statements of fact, but denied that the original provision agreed upon by respondent and the Association was determined to be inappropriate or potential voidable.

In the present case, there is no question that the Board and the Association are authorized to negotiate and enter into a collective bargaining agreement which provides for a formula to pay a retiring employee for unused sick leave. However, the Supreme Court has indicated that local school boards are without power to authorize the payment of non-service related retirement benefits as an incentive for retirement. Fairlawn Ed. Assn. v. Fairlawn Bd. of Education, 79 N.J. 574 (1979).

Assuming for the purpose of argument that the provisions of the original collective bargaining agreement between respondent and the Association violates the dictates of the Fairlawn case, what impact does that have on this matter? As a general rule, administrative agencies may not, by reason of their administrative powers, exercise judicial powers or control or interfere with the courts in the exercise of their judicial functions. 73 C.J.S., Public Administrative Law and Procedure §48, pp. 490-492. Only the courts have the authority and power to determine that a contract is invalid. It has been established since early times that administrative agencies cannot exercise judicial power. Weeks v. Forman, 16 N.J. L. 237 (Sup. Ct. 1837). This is in conformity with the New Jersey Constitution. N.J. Const. Art. 3, ¶1; Art. 6, §1 ¶1. See Caldwell Terrace v. Borough of Caldwell, 224 N.J. Super. 588 (App. Div. 1988). In the absence of a declaration of invalidity by a court of competent jurisdiction, or, in the alternative, by an administrative agency having subject matter jurisdiction, no authority resides in the Commissioner of Education to determine the invalidity of the collective bargaining agreement between respondent and the Association. In the absence of such a determination, I FIND that petitioner is not entitled to the relief which he seeks, which is an order requiring respondent to rescind its acceptance of his resignation. Therefore I CONCLUDE that petitioner's petition should be DISMISSED.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request to be permitted to rescind his resignation and for the other relief sought in his petition, is hereby DENIED and petitioner's petition is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor, West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions without merit and concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge in his initial decision for the reasons clearly articulated by him therein.

RALPH CUTRO, :

PETITIONER-APPELLANT, :

V. : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET, MONMOUTH COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 2, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Ralph Cutro, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Kenney, Gross & McDonough
(Michael J. Gross, Esq., of Counsel)

As stipulated by the parties, Ralph Cutro (hereinafter "petitioner") was employed by the Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet (hereinafter "Board") as a teaching staff member from September 1969 through June 1992. During the course of his employment, petitioner accumulated 160 days of sick leave. On October 3, 1991, the Board and the Hazlet Township Teachers Association ("Association") signed a Memorandum of Agreement reflecting the terms of their collective bargaining agreement. That Memorandum contained a retirement incentive, included in the collective bargaining agreement, which allowed a teacher seeking to retire between October 3, 1991 and June 30, 1992 to be paid $150 per day for accumulated sick leave up to a maximum of fifty percent of the employee's last annual salary. In order to participate in this sick leave payout program, teachers were required to give notice of their retirement to the Board by December 31, 1991.

On December 1, 1991, petitioner submitted notice to the Board that he planned to retire at the end of the 1991-92 school year. The Board accepted petitioner's retirement on December 16, 1991.

Thereafter, the Board received a memorandum dated December 12, 1991 from the Director of the State Division of Pensions cautioning local employers that they were not authorized to offer early retirement incentive programs to their employees unless the programs were specifically authorized by state law. The counsel for the Board wrote to the Division of Pensions seeking clarification of that memorandum. In a letter dated March 25, 1992, the Executive Assistant at the Division of Pensions responded that, in the opinion of the Division, sick leave payout programs upon retirement were generally valid, but that programs paying significantly higher benefits to employees retiring within a specific time frame were invalid.

In response to that letter, the Board and the Association agreed in April 1992 to amend their collective bargaining agreement so as to extend the sick leave payout program to any teacher retiring during the term of that agreement.[1] They further agreed that teachers who had submitted letters of retirement to the Board for the 1991-92 school year would not be permitted to rescind their retirements and would be paid according to the terms of the original agreement, which had not been altered by the amendment.

[1] The collective bargaining agreement at issue was in effect from July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1994.

On April 13, 1992, petitioner requested that he be permitted to rescind his retirement. In a letter dated May 26, 1992, the counsel for the Board responded that the Board had no legal obligation to accept petitioner's request. Upon retirement, petitioner received a check from the Board in excess of $8,000 after deductions representing compensation for his accumulated sick days.

Petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, challenging the Board's refusal to allow him to rescind his retirement. Petitioner submitted an affidavit in which he averred that if he had been permitted to rescind his retirement and to retire instead at the conclusion of the 1993-94 school year, his pension payments would have increased by $2,725 per year as a result of an increase in his base salary between 1991-92 and 1993-94.

On March 18, 1994, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, stressing that rescission was an equitable remedy which was only available in limited circumstances. Citing Fair Lawn Ed. Assn. v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Education, 79 N.J. 574 (1979), the ALJ observed that local school boards were without power to authorize the payment of non-service related retirement benefits as an incentive for retirement. He concluded that, "[i]n the absence of a declaration of invalidity by a court of competent jurisdiction, or, in the alternative, by an administrative agency having subject matter jurisdiction, no authority resides in the Commissioner of Education to determine the invalidity of the collective bargaining agreement...." Initial Decision, slip op. at 9. In the absence of such a determination, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had no entitlement to the relief sought. In so doing, the ALJ rejected petitioner's reliance on Hall v. Board of Educ., 125 N.J. 299 (1991) and Evaul v. Board of Education of City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244 (1961), in which the Court had permitted teaching staff members to rescind their retirements, finding that the facts in those cases were not analogous to this matter.

On May 2, 1994, the Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and dismissed the petition.

Petitioner, acting pro se, has filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm the ultimate determination of the Commissioner to dismiss the petition. However, we modify the Commissioner's analysis.

We reject the Commissioner's adoption of the ALJ's conclusion that, in the absence of a determination by a court or an administrative agency having subject matter jurisdiction that the sick leave payout program in effect at the time of his retirement had been "invalid," petitioner could have no entitlement to the relief sought. The issue herein is not whether the sick leave payout program in effect at the time petitioner exercised his rights thereunder would have been honored by the Division of Pensions, but, rather, whether the school laws provide petitioner with the entitlement to rescind his retirement under the particular circumstances in the record before us. While it is well settled that a tendered resignation is legally binding upon acceptance by a district board of education, and cannot thereafter be unilaterally rescinded or modified by the staff member, equitable circumstances may warrant rescission. Hall, supra; Evaul, supra.

In Hall, the Supreme Court, emphasizing the narrow scope of its decision, held that the district board therein was not entitled under the particular circumstances in that case to deny the staff member's request to change her intended retirement date. The majority's decision was predicated on an "ambiguous contractual provision" in the collective bargaining agreement and "a consistent, longstanding practice [by the district board] of permitting modification of an intended retirement date." Hall, supra, at 306.

In Evaul, a tenured teacher with 25 years of service in the district tendered her resignation at the end of an emotional day in which she had a tumultuous confrontation with her principal, superintendent and board president. Unbeknownst to the petitioner therein, the board had scheduled a special meeting for that evening, at which time her resignation was accepted. After learning of the meeting, she sent telegrams to the board, superintendent and board president attempting to rescind her resignation. The Court, in reinstating petitioner on equitable principles, viewed her resignation as "an impetuous act prompted by her understandably distraught condition." Evaul, supra, at 249.

We find nothing in the circumstances of the case before us that would obligate the Board to accept petitioner's proposed rescission of his retirement. The record reveals a negotiated agreement between the Board and the Teachers Association, subsequent to the Board's acceptance of petitioner's retirement, to amend their collective bargaining agreement so as to extend the sick leave payout program to any teachers retiring during the term of that agreement. Such amendment, as previously noted, was predicated on a general "opinion" offered by the Division of Pensions that sick leave payout programs paying significantly higher benefits to employees retiring within a specific time frame were "invalid." There has been no determination that the particular sick leave payout program in effect at the time petitioner exercised his rights thereunder would not have been honored by the Division of Pensions. Nor did the amendment to the collective bargaining agreement modify the substance of that program or alter the benefits to which petitioner was entitled under the agreement upon retirement. The amendment simply extended the program for the duration of the agreement.

In this respect, we stress that the Hazlet Township Teachers Association, which was the recognized majority representative for all non-supervisory certificated teaching staff members employed by the Board, Stipulation of Facts, at 1, agreed to amend the collective bargaining agreement so as to include a provision that staff members who had submitted letters of retirement for the 1991-92 school year would not be permitted to rescind their retirements.

Under these circumstances, we find no basis under the education laws for directing the Board to release petitioner from his bargain.

Accordingly, under the particular facts in the record before us, we affirm, as modified herein, the decision of the Commissioner to dismiss the petition.

Exceptions are noted.

INITIAL DECISION - SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6834-93

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,, Petitioner,
v.
PHILIP STEIN,
Respondent.

Howard Schwartz, Esq., for petitioner
(Schwartz & Barkin, attorneys)

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for respondent
(Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 8, 1994 Decided: March 25, 1994

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On May 28, 1993 the petitioner, school district of the city of Linden, filed a certificate of determination and written charges against the respondent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 et seq., seeking his dismissal from his tenured position, because of alleged unbecoming conduct, incapacity or other just cause. The petitioner filed an answer with the Commissioner of Education on July 19, 1993.

On July 21, 1993 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was held at the OAL on October 27, 1993, and a prehearing order was entered, defining and limiting the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing, which was scheduled for April 18, 19, and 20, 1994.

On December 27, 1993 the respondent filed a motion for an order requiring the petitioner to reinstate payment of respondent's salary and benefits, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Papers in opposition to the motion were filed by the petitioner, and the Board moved for leave to take oral depositions of the respondent. Oral argument was heard on the parties' applications on January 21, 1994 at the OAL in Newark, New Jersey. After considering the papers filed and the argument of counsel, orders were rendered, orally, denying the petitioner's application to take oral depositions of the respondent, and ordering the resumption of salary payments and benefits by the petitioner to respondent in accordance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. A written order, confirming the above, was to have been prepared and submitted by counsel for signature.

Prior to the scheduled hearing dates counsel advised that the parties had agreed to a settlement. On March 8 , 1994 a written agreement, signed by the parties and counsel for the respondent was filed in the OAL. A copy of the document is attached hereto and made apart hereof.

Based on the foregoing, It is CONCLUDED that the dispute has been resolved. Since the settlement includes, as one its terms, a resignation by the respondent for purposes of retirement, the petitioner no longer needs or wishes to continue this action, directed against the respondent's employment on tenure charges. In addition, a further term of the agreement indicates that the settlement is expressly subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education.

Therefore, I ORDER that this matter be returned to the agency for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF PHILIP STEIN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon review, although the Commissioner does not object to any of the terms currently comprising the settlement, he cannot be satisfied by the record so far established that the proposed settlement in this matter meets the Cardonick standard for settlement of tenure matters (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846). The present record contains no finding that respondent entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights or that the agreement is consistent with the public interest, nor does it provide any indication that respondent was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is remanded for either revision of the settlement document or supplementation of the record consistent with the intent of this decision.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought suspension of the teaching certificate of respondent Learning Disabilities Teacher Consultant (LDTC) for a period of one year for unprofessional conduct. Respondent ceased to perform her duties before the expiration of the term of her employment and she did so without the consent of the Board and the requisite notice.

ALJ concluded that respondent was guilty of unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. ALJ found the facts existing in this matter did not justify an exception to the usual one-year suspension penalty imposed for such violation. ALJ ordered respondent's certificate suspended for one year.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered respondent's certificate suspended for a period of one year beginning July 1, 1994.

John E. Bergh, Esquire, for petitioner

Charles I. Nathanson, Esquire, for respondent (Levenson, Vogdes, Nathanson, Cohen and Obringer, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 7, 1994 Decided: March 18, 1994

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The petitioner moves the Commissioner of Education to suspend the teaching certificate of the respondent, Regina Leinen, for a period of one year because it alleges that she is guilty of unprofessional conduct. The conduct complained of is a failure to give the proper notice when she resigned from her position as a Learning Disabilities Teacher Consultant (LDTC) employed by the respondent Board. A statute controls the outcome of this dispute. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 reads as follows:

> Any teaching staff member employed by a Board of Education, who shall, without the consent of the board, cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the Commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.

The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties stipulated that the respondent ceased to perform her duties before the expiration of the term of her employment and she did so without the consent of the Board. However, since the imposition of a suspension is within the discretion of the Commissioner, a hearing on that issue was conducted.

The respondent has a Master's Degree from the University of Delaware in the field of learning disabilities. She did a clinical internship in the summer of 1989. She was employed by the Southern Regional School District as an LDTC for two years and, effective July 1, 1992, she was employed by the petitioner as an LDTC. Her contract requires 60 days notice in writing.

On September 16, 1992, respondent notified the Board that she was resigning. On September 21, 1992 the Board accepted her resignation effective November 20, 1992 which was 60 days after the Board actually received respondent's notice. On October 15, 1992 the respondent left her employment with the petitioner. On October 19, 1992 the respondent began employment with the Glassboro School District as an LDTC.

The Board alleges that it accrued damages as a result of respondent's early departure because it employed a substitute and when it found a replacement LDTC it had to offer a contract for considerably more money than it paid to respondent. Respondent pointed out that her successor had considerably more experience. However, this is not a civil suit for damages but an administrative proceeding affecting teacher licensure. The issue presented in this matter is whether the respondent's teaching certificate should be suspended and if so, for how long. Respondent urged several reasons for withholding the imposition of any suspension.

First the respondent alleges that she assumed she would be paid commensurate with her 13 years of combined teaching experience rather than her two years of LDTC experience. She said that she only signed her contract for less money than she anticipated when she lost other opportunities due to the late date her contract was tendered.

Secondly, the respondent alleges that she was told by the Acting Superintendent who hired her that her case load would consist of approximately 80 to 90 students. She said she actually had as many as 158 students assigned to her.

Third, the respondent claimed that the physical working conditions were abhorrent to her and caused her medical problems. She said the office in which she worked was infested with fleas. She observed both cockroaches and a dead mouse in the building. She also had upper respiratory problems due to the spraying performed by the exterminators.

Finally, the respondent alleged that she was harassed by a Board member who criticized her clothing and said in the presence of others "we got you cheap!" She also said that Superintendent Bender confronted her at a football game. She said she was an emotional wreck by October of 1992.

Robert Hayes, Board Secretary, and Business Official testified that he was made aware of a problem with fleas on August 24, 1992 (he was bitten himself). That afternoon the carpets were sprayed. When it became apparent that spraying did not resolve the problem, on the 28th of August, four days later, the carpets were removed. This solved the flea problem. This was corroborated by Barbara DeMore, Assistant Superintendent.

DeMore also explained the incident concerning the Board member who allegedly harassed Leinen. She identified him as an elderly person who has suffered two mini strokes and whose comments concerning anything would not surprise her. Both DeMore and Bender indicated that all other employees of the child study team, and many students, were subjected to the same environment as the respondent. As Bender pointed out; it is an old building.

Superintendent Bender testified; the Acting Superintendent who hired respondent was not available. He did not know what was told to respondent to induce her to sign her contract but she did sign it and she was paid as provided in the contract. He confirmed that respondent's case load was as she represented. He said he recognized that she had a difficult case load. He said the area was "lower socio-economic and contained a number of needy children, that was why she was there."

He recalls that he did speak to respondent at a football game in October. He described the meeting as cordial. He said he did not know she was an "emotional wreck."

Superintendent Bender said that he knew about the fleas but the problem was corrected. He did not see a dead mouse but recalls seeing a squirrel. He said the building was very old.

The respondent's testimony was most convincing when she said she felt demeaned; that these conditions affected her motivation and that she did not feel very valuable, that the situation was "unbearable" and physically draining. She said she had "low morale" and was an "emotional wreck". She said it took a couple of months before she "felt like her old self."

However, the circumstances which she described, while unpleasant, were no different than the circumstance or conditions one may find in many work places and in older, deteriorating school houses everywhere. Bender described the work load as heavy; but identified the district as one in which there were many needy children. That is precisely the reason they needed an LDTC. The respondent however, ceased to perform her duties, apparently for reasons not articulated on the record, which made her incapable of performance. Her description of her emotional state was out of proportion to the conditions and circumstances she described. As a result, I cannot but CONCLUDE that she was guilty of unprofessional conduct.

N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 says any teacher is deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct if she ceases to perform her duties without affording a sixty (60) day notice or obtaining consent from the school board. This statute has not changed for nearly a century. L.1900, § 109. The statute is explicit regarding what behavior constitutes unprofessional conduct. Its language is clear and concise. Regina Leinen is guilty of unprofessional conduct because she violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 when she breached her contract without the consent of the Board.

The obvious purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students. Board of Education of Black Horse Pike v. Mooney, 84 S.L.D. 810, 817. The Legislature provided a sixty (60) day notice to assure an orderly succession and to avoid the disruption caused by changing teachers. East Amwell Township Board of Education v. Acken, 86 S.L.D. 2803, 2813. Leinen's resignation left Penns Grove-Carneys Point without a permanent teacher to fill her position from October 15, 1992, to November 30, 1992. Leinen's detrimental conduct forced Penns Grove-Carneys Point to hire a replacement on short notice at higher cost. Leinen's conduct is precisely the type which the statute was designed to punish. The Legislature's concern with the serious problem of terminating a contract without adequate notice is evidenced by the harsh penalty for a violation. Dumont Board of Education v. Zweig, 88 S.L.D. 904, 912.

Most cases have resulted in the suspension of any and all teaching certificates for the maximum, one year permitted if the Commissioner finds the teacher guilty of violating N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. (See: In Re Russo, 33 C.D. 92; Collingswood Borough Board of Education v. Cashel, 88 S.L.D. 1898; In Re Matthews, 267 C.D. 88; Dunellen Borough Board of Education v. Drake, 87 S.L.D. 2016; In Re Evans 249, C.D. 87; In Re Horter, 170 C.D. 87; Acken, 86 S.L.D. 2803; In Re Langford, 142 C.D. 84; In Re Minnich, 218 C.D. 83; In Re Cohen, 27 C.D. 83; In Re Reehill, 66 S.L.D. 201; In Re Finkelstein, 60 S.L.D. 75.) However, the court has held that "the Legislature did not intend the suspension of a teacher's certificate to be automatic even if the board's consent is not obtained." Mooney, at 814. The word "may" in N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 implies that the Legislature intended that the Commissioner of Education consider all the circumstances presented in an individual's case. Mooney at 814; see also, Board of Education of The Township of Clinton v. Burgess, 83 S.L.D. 183, 190, regarding similar provision for tenured staff under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8.

However, circumstances which justify giving relief to a teacher when she has not given the required statutory notice are rare. In Mooney, the Commissioner held that Mooney should not be suspended because she had a compelling need to resign, she had given immediate notice to the Board in writing, and she had assisted the school by developing a program for the completion of the school year. She met with her replacement to review the program and provided final grades. The school was fortunate to be able to replace Mooney with the teacher who would have been chosen to fill her position regardless of whether or not Mooney had left a week later. Moreover, the Commissioner stressed that Mooney left her teaching position in New Jersey not to seek employment elsewhere in the state, but to be with her husband. He had been transferred unexpectedly to California. The Commissioner concluded that Mooney's resignation was not wrongful and her conduct did not warrant punishment.

Similarly, in Burgess, the Commissioner found circumstances which justified exercising discretion. Although Burgess did not give the required sixty (60) day notice, the Board told Burgess that "they would do all in their power to try to replace him" by the date he had requested. During the transition, Burgess prepared lesson plans, offered to meet on Saturdays with his replacement, and left many of his personal items with his successor for use in the classroom. He discussed his plans with the principal and with other sixth grade teachers. The Commissioner emphasized that Burgess was not attempting to take employment at another school, but had acted in exemplary fashion under circumstances which required his immediate resignation. Although Burgess made every effort to effect a smooth transition, neither the Board nor its school administrator acted upon the promise made to Burgess to do all in their power to replace him. The Commissioner concluded that the Board was obligated to take action to honor the promise made to Burgess. A fully qualified teacher, who was later chosen to replace Burgess, was available a week prior to Burgess' intended resignation. Nevertheless, action to approve her employment was delayed. Since no attempt was made, the Commissioner found no grounds for imposing a penalty on Burgess.

The Commissioner exercised discretion in another case because mitigating factors were very strong. In Re Rogers, Jr., 89 S.L.D. 1962, the Commissioner did not suspend the teacher's certificate for the entire year. Three factors influenced his decision. First, the Board was fortunate to be able to replace the teacher within one week. Second, the teacher honestly believed he was not "under contract" because his prior employment with the State did not require notice of resignation until work had begun. Finally and most significantly, the teacher was not motivated by a desire "to feather his own nest." Id., at 1966. The teacher chose a position with less pay under very difficult conditions because he felt more fulfilled when working with the profoundly and multiply handicapped. Id., at 1966. Although the Commissioner felt suspension for a full year was inappropriate under these circumstances, the teacher was still suspended for a three-month period. Clearly none of the mitigating factors apply to the case at hand.

Leinen alleges that poor working conditions are a defense for giving less than 60 days notice before accepting employment at another district. She claimed a heavy work load and a flea infestation forced her to abandon her students. A tenured teacher alleged a similar defense saying he was "provoked" to resign without giving sixty (60) days written notice required under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, but the Commissioner rejected the defense. In Re Cronmiller, 70 S.L.D. 149. The Commissioner ordered the teacher's certificate revoked for one (1) year saying:

> The provocation under which he acted, whether fancied or real, is not relevant. Whatever feelings the teacher may have had cannot constitute a valid excuse for flouting the law and unilaterally abrogating the terms of his employment. Moreover, the teacher had avenues of appeal by which he could have sought a resolution of his grievances which he failed to employ. Nor did he attempt to arrange terms under which he could be relieved of his duties, obtain an early release, or in any other way reach an agreement. Cronmiller, at 148.

Like Cronmiller, Leinen did not contact the teacher's union regarding any grievance prior to giving her resignation and charges being filed against her. Only after the Board sought an order to revoke did she allege poor working conditions. Furthermore, Leinen did not regard the conditions as so severe that she couldn't remain for thirty (30) days after resigning. It would appear that her defense merely covers her desire to accept a position she wanted. Other staff members have continued to teach under the same circumstances Leinen claims are a defense for violating both her contract and New Jersey law. Students are also compelled by law to remain in the building.

Unlike cases which justified exceptions to this usual one (1) year suspension, the facts in Leinen's case are not unique in any way and do not warrant exercising discretion. Leinen did not cooperate with the Board or administration to ensure a smooth transition. She did not maintain communications with either the Board or Superintendent. She negotiated a contract with another New Jersey school district shortly after contracting with Penns Grove-Carneys Point School District. The mere act of seeking release from a contract to take employment in another school in New Jersey has been held sufficient to suspend a teaching license. Mooney, at 817 (citing Burgess, at 191). She then chose to assume the position she preferred, deciding arbitrarily how much notice was adequate.

The State of New Jersey has conferred a teaching certificate upon Regina Leinen. Holding that certificate is a privilege which can be exercised only under the restrictions which are imposed by the Legislature. 78 C.J.S. § 159. Leinen ignored the reasonable requirements imposed by statute and agreed upon in her contract. Because she terminated her contract without good cause, she has violated professional standards and her certificate should be SUSPENDED for the maximum one (1) year permitted under the law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions urge, inter alia, that if the Commissioner determines to accept the ALJ's recommended suspension of her teaching certificate, he make such suspension effective July 1, 1994 to allow her present employer time to find a suitable replacement without adversely impacting students of the district and to additionally permit her to complete her year-end evaluations of students and scheduled annual reviews, thereby minimizing the hardship upon the district, its students and their parents.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons clearly articulated in the initial decision. Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent's New Jersey Teaching Certificate is hereby suspended for a period of one year beginning July 1, 1994.

Record Closed: March 15, 1994 Decided: March 23, 1994

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

J. C. and A. C., parents of J. C., a fifth grade student enrolled in public schools of the Town of Secaucus, Hudson County, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on July 26, 1992, alleging the student, then in fifth grade, was arbitrarily and improperly assigned the grade Unsatisfactory in three categories of social attitudes, thereby disqualifying him for the honor roll, a grade teacher, administration and Board of Education refused to alter on petitioners' appeal. Their complaint sought judgment of the Commissioner requiring deletion of the Unsatisfactory grade, assignment of a Satisfactory grade, directing the school to acknowledge the student's academic achievement for the third marking period as qualifying him for honor roll status, directing the school to establish grade criteria in accordance with established educational principles, and seeking such other relief as under the circumstances is just. In an answer filed by the Board on August 2, 1993, allegations of the petition were denied. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on August 10, 1993, for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The matter came on for hearing on March 15, 1994, at which time the parties entered into settlement discussions and advised the administrative law judge that the matters at issue had been amicably resolved. Thereafter, a settlement agreement was submitted.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures contained in the agreement filed herewith.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and accordingly I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizen group alleged Board's decision to continue sending students to out-of-state district (Port Jervis, New York) was an abuse of discretionary authority. Relationship had gone on since approximately 1930.

ALJ concluded actions of the Board in seeking and receiving consent of Commissioner to send its students outside the state pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10 were reasonable. ALJ further found that the reasons for the Commissioner's original consent to the application of this statute to Montague have not been shown by the petitioners to have ceased to exist.

Commissioner dismissed petition, concurring with findings and determination of the ALJ.

Record Closed: December 17, 1993 Decided: March 28, 1994

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

Petitioner, Andree Campbell, originally filed a petition on behalf of a citizens' group named Montague 2000 regarding the practice of sending students in the Montague school district out of state to the Port Jervis schools. The petition was initially filed on December 22, 1992 with the Department of Education (Department). The Montague Board of Education (Board) requested an extension of time in which to file an answer and this was granted by the Department until January 21, 1993. Subsequently , the petitioner Andree Campbell requested interim relief in the matter by way of letter, dated January 23, 1993. However the Department determined that the matter was not of an emergent nature. The issue was therefore transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on January 29, 1993.

Subsequent to this an amended petition was filed on behalf of petitioners by an attorney representing the group. This was filed on March 24, 1993 and an answer to the amended petition was received from respondent dated May 14, 1993.

On June 8, 1993, a prehearing conference took place in the matter at which a hearing schedule was set up.

Hearings were held on October 6, 7, 8 and 14, 1993. At the conclusion of testimony the hearing record was left open for posthearing submissions by the parties until December 7, 1993 in order to permit them time to obtain the transcripts of the proceeding if necessary. On that date the record closed. The initial decision would have been due on January 21, 1994 however an extension of time to file was requested and granted giving a new date of March 7, 1994. A subsequent extension of 20 days was granted for good cause changing the date upon which the initial decision was due to March 27, 1994. Because March 27, 1994 falls on a Sunday the actual due date of this initial decision becomes March 28, 1994.

FACTS

While the ultimate outcome regarding the sending receiving relationship is hotly contested in this case, the underlying facts which are of relevance to this decision are not in dispute.

The Montague Board of Education and the Port Jervis, New York Board of Education have engaged in a sending-receiving relationship which has resulted in the sending of seventh grade through twelfth grade Montague students to the Port Jervis, New York middle school and high school. Montague is a community located in the northwest corner of Sussex County, New Jersey. It is bordered on the north by New York State.

The Montague Board of Education is a K-12 district with facilities and programs for only K-6. As of the date of the hearing the Montague Board of Education did not have any facilities available for either seventh and eighth graders or high school students. The Montague Board of Education has had a sending receiving relationship with Port Jervis, New York, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10 since approximately 1930. This New York town is in close proximity to the Township of Montague.

In 1989 there was a referendum in Montague to expand the existing K -6 program. This referendum was defeated. There has never been unanimity amongst the Board or the citizenson the issue of expansion of facilities in Montague.

The Port Jervis, New York school system provides education to the Montague students. That school system has never been monitored by the New Jersey State Department of Education. Witnesses acknowledged, however, that it is probable that the Port Jervis school system is monitored by the state of New York. The Port Jervis school system gives three types of high school diplomas found in New York schools. These are Regents, General and IEP (Individual Educational Plan) diplomas. In the state of New Jersey every diploma is identical. Of those three possible diplomas given in New York a student may receive any one of those. For example, a special education student is not limited to the receipt only of an IEP diploma. A student could receive any type of New York diploma including but not limited to a Regent's diploma. Nothing was brought forth during the hearing to indicate that special education students from Montague were not receiving a free and appropriate education in Port Jervis, New York. The testimony referred to the times students need to be reclassified and receive a change in the program. The need to reclassify based on the individual student's needs is a circumstance which would be found even when the student is attending school within the district they reside in.

Three different schools were identified within the state of New Jersey as potential alternatives for Montague students who are attending school in New York State. For the students attending seventh and eighth grades the schools in Frankfurt Township, Lafayette Township and Kittatiny Regional were identified. However, these three schools were not amenable to taking students from Montague. With respect to high school students, grades nine to twelve, two schools were identified. They are High Point and Kittatinny Regional. Of the two schools only High Point has indicated a potential interest in taking Montague students; however, no commitment has yet been reached. Concerns existed with respect to tuition costs, transportation routes and safety, as well as the length of any contract that might be entered into with High Point. High Point has never actually stated that it is willing to accept Montague students according to petitioners' witness Eleanor Haeny.

Ms. Haeny had checked into the makeup and number of courses offered by the schools. She was not qualified to testify as an expert witness but was able to indicate facts that she had determined. Port Jervis high school offered a total of 133 courses while High Point high school offered 183 courses. The only courses that she was able to identify as being offered at High Point and not offered in the Port Jervis school were:

1. Street Law
2. Changing Sex Roles
3. Contemporary Issues
4. Television Production 1 and 2

Port Jervis offers driver education in the classroom which is not offered at the High Point school. Both of these schools offer college courses. The Port Jervis high school offers courses through Syracuse University.

The Port Jervis middle school offers accelerated courses for which students may receive high school credit. No middle school facilities are potentially available at High Point for Montague students.

The class size at the Port Jervis middle school and the high school is between 20 and 32 students.

Port Jervis has entered into the sending-receiving relationship and receives a payment per student from Montague. Additionally, Port Jervis receives aid from New York State for all students who attend including those students from Montague. If all the Montague students were to be simultaneously withdrawn from the Port Jervis schools; they would lose approximately $500,000 in state aid. The impact to the Port Jervis school system would be greater than that amount if one considers the per student fee paid by Montague for the students it sends to Port Jervis. A request was made to High Point in August 1993, to provide a breakdown of tuition costs for a five-year period for sending students to the High Point high school. A review was planned subsequent to the hearing with the High Point board of education. Up until the last day of testimony the High Point school system has not informed the Montague Board of Education of the cost in sending their students to High Point if they were to engage in a sending-receiving relationship. The feasibility of this arrangement has never been completely explored. There is no member on the board of education in Port Jervis, New York from Montague, New Jersey. Likewise, if High Point were to accept Montague students, there would be no voting member from Montague on the board of education of High Point.

Of particular interest are the routes that would have to be travelled by students from to Montague to either High Point or Port Jervis. A map was introduced with markings for the various routes to the different schools (P-3). Since High Point is the only school in New Jersey that had expressed a possible willingness to take Montague students, only High Point will be discussed in contrast with Port Jervis. The distance from Montague to Port Jervis high school is approximately 12 miles and it is 10 miles to the Port Jervis middle school. With respect to travel to the High Point schools there are two routes one is referred to as the "fair weather" route which is approximately 15 miles one way and the "bad weather" route which is 18 to 20 miles from Montague. The reason for the two different routes to High Point is because of High Point Mountain which is the highest elevation in New Jersey. The gradient is also the steepest in New Jersey. A retired state trooper, who had been assigned as road trooper to the Montague area, testified that there are many accidents on Route 23 which forms part of the route. He attributed many of the accidents to the grade as well as to blind spots on the road . In bad weather such as snow it is necessary to take the longer route to avoid the more dangerous areas.

As these facts are not in dispute I FIND them to be the operational relevant facts in this case.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The petitioners raises two issues with respect to the sending-receiving relationship between Montague and Port Jervis, New York. The first is that the underlying statute in this case, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10 is unconstitutional. That claim, however, does not fall within the framework of administrative review. Administrative agencies form part of the executive branch of government rather than the judicial. Although an agency may take into account constitutional considerations, facial constitutional challenges of a statute should be judicially resolved. Abbott v. Burke, 100 N.J. 269 (1985). As a result that issue may not be determined in this forum.

The only issue in this case is whether the action of the Montague Board of Education in developing a sending-receiving relationship with Port Jervis, New York and continuing that relationship was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. It is well established that actions of local boards lie within their discretionary powers and may not be upset unless they are arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The standard for review at a hearing such as this requires a determination of whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed and also whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts bearing in mind that they were the experts. The burden of proving unreasonableness is on the petitioners. This is not a situation in which the Commissioner of Education will substitute his judgment for that of the board of education. Massaro v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, 1965 S.L.D. 84. It is the management prerogative of boards of education that will not be usurped or assumed by the Commissioner of Education absent a definitive showing of bad faith or arbitrary actions taken in bad faith without a rational basis. Paddock v. Board of Education of the Borough of Demarest, 1974 S.L.D. 435.

In this case the sending receiving relationship between New Jersey and New York is undertaken pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10. That states as follows:

> Any board of education of a district may arrange for the attendance of any or all of the pupils of the district in the public school or schools of an adjacent school district outside of the state, if it shall determine that it is advisable to do so in order to secure better school facilities for the pupils or for reasons of economy or other good cause and that it is inadvisable for said pupils to attend public schools in another school district within the state because of the distance to be travelled, the topography of the intervening country, the condition of the roads or the likelihood of unusual hazardous travelling conditions during certain seasons of the year, and if the commissioner shall concur in the determination of the board and give his consent thereto, but the commissioner may withdraw such consent upon reasonable notice whenever the reason or reasons for giving his consent shall cease to exist. .

In this case the sending of Montague students to Port Jervis predates the statute. The relationship has gone on since approximately the 1930's.

The Montague Board of Education has, over the years, determined to send its students to Port Jervis, New York. The Commissioner of Education has consented to this arrangement. The factors involved in this case are the lack of appropriate schools within the district itself and the close proximity to Port Jervis, New York. Additionally, up until recently there has not been a possibility of another school district in the state of New Jersey accepting Montague students. It should be pointed out that even now the question of sending students to High Point remains only a possibility for the future and not an immediate answer to the question. Additionally, the topography and terrain to be travelled to High Point would have to be considered. There was clear testimony that there are two routes one which was designated the fair weather and the other the bad weather route. Because of the steep gradient and high elevation that a second or bad weather route had to be devised in order to arrive at High Point safely when conditions were bad. This is one consideration with respect to High Point and it is merely speculation on what would have to be done should a future arrangement be entered into by Montague and High Point. No final cost per pupil has been given by High Point to Montague and while transportation costs might not necessarily be an issue, the cost per student would be a relevant factor. With respect to Port Jervis the amount has been established for this school year as it has in prior years. There was also testimony that Port Jervis receives New York state aid for all students attending its schools including those who originate from New Jersey. It was never elucidated as to exactly how that occurs but it would appear that the New Jersey students are receiving an added benefit as far as financial resources toward their education coming from not only outside the district but from another state.

One factor which was brought out during the hearing is the difference in diplomas received by students who attend school in New York State. While New Jersey makes no designation with respect to its high school diploma New York gives student diplomas that fall into several different categories including a Regents diploma, a General diploma and an IEP diploma. What must be looked at is whether or not students are receiving a free and appropriate education. There is no indication in this case that students are not receiving a free and appropriate education through the Port Jervis, New York schools.

The Individual with Disabilities Act (IDEA) 20 U.S.C.A. §1400 provides federal funds to states and local educational agencies who agree to comply with certain conditions set out in the IDEA and the regulations that implement the Act. The effect of federal law is to insure that disabled children receive a free and appropriate education and are not discriminated against by any agency furnishing special education services. A state is required to establish procedures to assure that, to the maximum extent possible, children with disabilities, including children in public or private institutions or other care facilities, are educated with children who are not disabled. Additionally, special classes, separate schooling, or other removal of children with disabilities from the regular educational environment occurs only when the nature or severity of the disability is such that education and regular classes with the use of supplementing aids and services cannot be achieved satisfactorily. 20 U.S.C.A. §1412(5)(b).

The question of the difference in diplomas has been addressed in other jurisdictions. In Seattle (WA) School District, 1985 E.H.L.R. 507:45 (Complaint Letter) a school district issued certain special education students who had met all of the district's graduation requirements "modified" diplomas. It was concluded that the district had discriminated against the students based solely on disabled status, pursuant to 34 C.F.R. §104.4(a)(b)(i)(iv) and (b)(4). This was because there was no legitimate nondiscriminatory reason established for treating disabled students differently than other students. No clearly articulable and consistently applied standard, based on educational requirements existed for determining when special education students were entitled to regular diplomas based on 34 C.F.R. §104.4(b)(2)(iv).

A disabled student who has completed a course of study prescribed in his or her IEP, but who has not completed the necessary Carnegie units has been found to be entitled to a "special education diploma." Lenfant, et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Education, et al., Civil Action No. 80-1333 DDC, 3 E.H.L.R., 552:272 (1980). This was an action by parents of a disabled child to compel the District of Columbia Board of Education to award a diploma where the child had been placed by the district in a private school during which time she completed the educational program prescribed for her. The parents attempted to obtain a certificate of completed diploma for the child rather than a "special education diploma." It was held that where a child successfully completed a prescribed course of study and would otherwise be entitled to the awards that come from such completion, different treatment of the child regarding the award of a diploma is a step that the school system must take only on the soundest basis. Although the child in that case was not entitled to an ordinary diploma because she had not completed the necessary units, she was entitled to a "special education diploma" to certify that she had completed satisfactorily pursuant to her IEP that which had been designed and approved for her by the District of Columbia.

While the Montague students would receive only one type of diploma in New Jersey, in New York they have the possibility of receiving several. Students who are involved in special education are not restricted to receiving an IEP diploma but may obtain any other diploma for which they qualify. As a result they are not batched solely by their status as disabled students into receiving only an IEP diploma. The mere fact that another state engages in a practice slightly different from that of New Jersey does not alone make that practice invalid. Here there is a legitimate nondiscriminatory basis for the awarding of different diplomas. It is based upon achievement and no student is locked into a particular diploma based solely upon status rather than performance and completion.

As originally indicated, the only question is whether or not the action of the Montague Board of Education was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. While it might be preferable to engage in an arrangement which keeps New Jersey students within the state it is not a case of substituted judgment. These is the added issue that no concrete alternative is available at this time. There is not another district which has agreed to engage in an sending-receiving relationship with Montague. The fact that the matter has been hotly contested shows that there is no unanimity among the residents of Montague as to providing facilities within Montague for their students. Questions of costs and feasibility remain.

While it may be that High Point offers a state of the art facility, unless and until final figures have been offered for consideration to the board of education, it would be premature to determine that reasons of economy would dictate High Point as the appropriate location. In its determination the board of education in Montague took into consideration that there was an adjacent school district outside the state, as well as the financial considerations coupled with the question of the topography and intervening country on the way to High Point. The travelling conditions during the winter would make the second route or bad weather route necessary which is a longer distance from Montague. While all these things have been considered by the board of education it must remembered that no other school district has even expressed an interest or a potential ability to handle students from Montague. It is impossible for Montague to weigh the impact on the school district without a full explanation of what the economic impact would be upon them.

While the petitioners have expressed their concerns most articulately about sending students to Port Jervis, New York and the reasons for their dissatisfaction with the action of the board of education, they have not shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the action of the board of education at the time the decision was made to send students to Port Jervis was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. This is not merely a continuation of a situation that began in the 1930s but rather a reevaluation on an ongoing basis of the circumstances as evidenced by the board taking into account the possibility of High Point and obtaining facts and figures in order to determine feasibility of such a change.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing I CONCLUDE that the actions of the Montague Board of Education in seeking and receiving the consent of the Commissioner to send their students to a district outside the state pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-10 was reasonable. I further CONCLUDE that the reasons for the Commissioner originally giving consent to the application of this statute to Montague have not been shown to have ceased to exist as of the time of the hearing.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ANDREE CAMPBELL, ON BEHALF OF MONTAGUE 2000,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTAGUE, SUSSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Primary exceptions submitted by petitioners on April 14, 1994 and by the Board on April 20, 1994, in response to an initial decision mailed on March 31, 1994, were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Although the parties' submissions aver that the initial decision did not reach their respective offices until April 8, 1994 and April 6, 1994, it is here noted that N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 is clear that exceptions must be filed within 13 days of the mailing not receipt of the initial decision. It is further noted that at no time prior to the expiration of the regulatory timeframe for the filing of exceptions in this matter did either of the parties request an extension of time within which to file. Consequently, the exceptions of both parties will not be considered herein.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioners have not established that the Board's action with respect to the development of a sending/receiving relationship with Port Jervis, New York, and its continuation of that relationship was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons articulated in the initial decision, and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

The recount of General Fund votes was conducted on April 29, 1994, and the recount of Board member votes on May 4, 1994, at the Voting Machine Warehouse, South Jersey Port Corporation, Camden. The announced results of the balloting, for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each and for one unexpired term of one year, at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994 in the school district of Cape May City, Cape May County, were as follows:

THREE-YEAR TERMS

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Margaret Bethel	264	3	267

Elissa Campanella	200	3	203
John Daly	199	4	203

UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM

Susan Laudeman	262	5	267

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(c), which requires recount and certification of results by the Commissioner in the event of a tie vote for members of the Board of Education, an authorized representative of the Commissioner from the Office of the Cape May County Superintendent of Schools was directed to recount ballots cast for members of the Board. The recount was conducted on May 5, 1994, at the Cape May County Airport, Building No. 5. Present were representatives of the school district, the Board of Elections and Candidate John Daly.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood unchanged and was as follows:

THREE-YEAR TERMS

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Margaret Bethel	264	3	267
Terrance O'Brien	225	4	229
Elissa Campanella	200	3	203
John Daly	199	4	203

UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM

Susan Laudeman	262	5	267

One absentee vote involving John Daly was voided by the County Board of Elections because the intent of the voter could not be clearly determined; on the ballot, marked C-1 for review by the Commissioner and counted in all other respects (two three-year votes, one one-year vote and a vote on the budget), the block next to Daly's name includes both a check and an obliterating mark.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts its findings and conclusions as his own.

With respect to the disputed ballot, the Commissioner concurs that it is not possible to ascribe an intent on the part of the voter to cast a vote for Daly, as the voter appears to have checked off Daly's name but then obliterated the check by blacking over it. Therefore, the Commissioner finds, as did the County Board of Elections, that this ballot cannot not be counted as a vote for Daly. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of The Township of Vorhees, Camden County, 1972 S.L.D. 141.

Accordingly, a tie remains for the third of the three-year seats to be filled on the Cape May City Board of Education, so that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(c) the Board is directed to conduct a special election for the vacant seat, restricted to candidates Elissa Campanella and John Daly, as soon as practicable consistent with the scheduling limitations imposed by N.J.S.A. 18A:14-3.

Comparison of the number of ballot coupons with the number of persons signing the poll list revealed one missing coupon, but the number of ballots cast (180) matched the number of persons signing the poll list. Two ballots were voided on recount (marked C-1 and C-2 for Commissioner review) owing to failure to have the required mark within the designated box alongside the name of the candidates chosen; however, such voiding had no impact on breaking the tie vote, in that the two ballots would, if counted, have added one vote each to the tallies of Heil and Taylor, leaving Taylor still ahead by one vote.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts its findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, no tie exists for the third seat on the Frenchtown Board of Education and Joyce Taylor is deemed duly elected to a full term of three years on that Board.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 17, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, James P. Granello, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Arthur Stein & Associates (Gary Brower, Esq., of Counsel)

The motion filed by petitioner to dismiss the district board's appeal to the State Board of Education as interlocutory is denied. Contrary to petitioner's contention, the decision of the Commissioner of Education rejecting the Administrative Law Judge's determination that petitioner's petition was filed out of time was clearly a "final decision" for purposes of appeal of that issue. See N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1(a)(1).[1] The fact that the Commissioner

1 N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 provides, in pertinent part:

(a) Final decisions of the Commissioner of the Department of Education ... are appealable to the State Board of Education. Final decisions include the following:

1. Any determination of the Commissioner, including, as to those separable issues upon which the Commissioner has rendered a final decision, a decision remanding all or part of a controverted case.

AUGUST 3, 1994

remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings consistent with his decision did not render such determination interlocutory. See id.

Accordingly, we direct that the briefing schedule be reestablished and that the brief in support of the Board's appeal be filed within twenty days after the date of our decision herein. We further direct the parties to address in their briefs the question of whether petitioner, a custodian challenging the Board's action in failing to provide him with a salary increment for the 1993-94 academic year, has stated a cause of action entitling him to relief under the school laws.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 17, 1994

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, August 3, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, James P. Granello, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Arthur Stein & Associates (Gary Brower, Esq., and Arthur Stein, Esq., of Counsel)

Petitioner in this case is a tenured custodian employed by the Board of Education of the Township of Lacey (hereinafter "Board"). On May 17, 1993, the Board acted to reemploy all of the custodians at a 6% increase over their previous year's salary, except petitioner. On that same date, it acted to reemploy petitioner at the same salary he had received the previous year.

Aug. 2, 1995

The Board agreed to give petitioner the opportunity to address the Board in private session concerning his "increment." On June 21, 1993, the Board met in private session, at which time petitioner and his attorney addressed the Board. Then, on July 19, 1993, in closed session, the Board took a roll call vote to "withhold" petitioner's "increment." By letter dated July 26, 1993, from the Superintendent, petitioner was advised that no further request for Board action with respect to petitioner's salary would be put on the agenda.

Petitioner appealed to the Commissioner of Education, asserting that the Board had acted improperly by withholding his salary increment without taking formal action. He sought an award of the 6% salary increase for 1993-94, along with pre- and post-judgment interest.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), relying on the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Kaprow v. Board of Education of the Township of Berkeley, 131 N.J. 572 (1993), held that the Board's action of May 17, 1993, to reemploy petitioner provided him with notice of that action so as to trigger the 90 day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Since petitioner did not file his Notice of Appeal to the Commissioner until October 8, 1993, the ALJ recommended dismissing the petition.

The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommendation, finding that > even assuming, arguendo, that petitioner's cause of action actually ensued with the Board's May 17, 1993 action to reemploy him for the 1993-94 school year at his current salary, ...the sequence of events surrounding petitioner's withholding created sufficient ambiguity so as to warrant a relaxation of the 90-day rule, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, to permit a determination on procedural and substantive claims with respect to the increment withholding.

Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 26.

On this basis, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law.

We reverse the Commissioner's decision. As the ALJ found, the only action that the Board took was on May 17, 1993, when it acted to reemploy petitioner at his previous year's salary. By that action, the Board denied petitioner a salary increase for 1993-94. It is this action which petitioner is seeking to challenge. As the ALJ found, petitioner's attempt to convince the Board to reverse the action it took on May 17 neither negates the fact that petitioner had notice of it nor extends the time limit within which petitioner was required to challenge the action. Kaprow, supra.

Even had petitioner made his claim in a timely fashion, we would dismiss his petition on the grounds that he has not stated a cause of action that would entitle him to relief in this forum. No provision of the education laws confers on custodial staff any entitlement to receive salary increments. Furthermore, in contrast to teaching staff members, the education laws do not include any provisions specifying procedures which a district board must follow in the event it determines not to increase the salary of a custodian when it reappoints him. See N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, providing that a board of education may withhold the increment of a teaching staff member and specifying the procedures applicable thereto. See also N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26 and -27 (all disputes regarding the withholding of increments of employees of boards of education for disciplinary reasons, excluding actions taken to withhold the increment of a teaching staff member for teaching performance, are to be resolved through the grievance procedure). Any claim petitioner may have is not one arising under the education laws, and, hence, its resolution would lie outside the jurisdiction of the Commissioner.

Therefore, for the reasons stated, we dismiss the petition in this case.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, a tenured custodian in the employ of the Board of Education of the Township of Lacey (Board), asserts that the Board withheld his salary increment for 1993-94 without formal action contrary to law and its own stated policies and procedures. Petitioner alleges that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and seeks the restoration of his six per cent increment for the 1993-94 school year, together with pre - and post - judgment interest effective July 1, 1993. The Board denies petitioner's allegations and sets forth four separate defenses seeking a dismissal of the Petition of Appeal.

On October 8, 1993, petitioner filed his Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). On November 3, 1993, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.A.C. 52:14F-1 to -13.

MOTIONS

On January 14, 1994, petitioner propounded a Motion for Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5, together with his statement of facts, brief of law and exhibits. By way of letter brief, dated January 21, 1994, the Board opposed petitioner's motion for summary decision. On January 26, petitioner submitted his reply. No other submissions were considered thereafter.

Having carefully reviewed the submissions by the parties, I FIND and CONCLUDE that there are no genuine material facts in dispute and that the criteria are met for summary decision as set forth by our Supreme Court in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Accordingly, the matter is now ripe for summary decision.

PETITIONER'S STATEMENT OF FACTS

The following facts are uncontested between the parties:

1. Petitioner John LeRose has been employed by the respondent Board as a twelve (12) month head custodian (High School) since January 1986. See paragraph one of petition of appeal and respondent's answer.

2. On March 2, 1987, petitioner was appointed head custodian at the high school for an indefinite term effective July 1, 1987. See answer number one to request for admissions, Exhibits A2 and B2.

3. On March 6, 1992, petitioner, along with other head custodians, was approved for a salary increased by the Board which included a 6.5% increase retroactive from July 1, 1991 for the 1991-92 school year and a 6.0% increase for both the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years. See answer number two to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2.

4. On May 17, 1993, petitioner's name and 1992-93 (previous year's) salary appeared on the list of head custodians who were subject for reemployment, and on said date the Board acted to reemploy petitioner at his previous year's salary of $32,393. See answer number four to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2.

5. On May 17, 1993, the Board agreed to delay the discussion regarding the withholding of petitioner's 1993-94 salary increment until petitioner had an opportunity to meet with the Board on June 21, 1993 in private session. See answer number three to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2; see Exhibit "A" attached to petition of appeal; see regular and private session minutes dated May 17, 1993 and private session of June 21, 1993, Exhibits D and E.

6. On May 17, 1993, all other head custodians except petitioner were reemployed by the respondent with a 6% increase added onto their previous year's salary. See answer number five to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2.

7. At no time during the 1992-93 or 1993-94 school years did the Board act in public session by motion and/or resolution to withhold petitioner's increment for the 1993-94 school year. See answer number six to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2.

8. Respondent Board states it acted in private session during its July 19, 1993 Board meeting to withhold petitioner's increment. However, it admits that by letter dated July 26, 1993 from its Superintendent of Schools, petitioner was advised that "no further request for Board action will be placed on the agenda for consideration" with reference to petitioner's present salary. See letter dated July 26, 1993, or Exhibit "C" attached to petition of appeal; see answer number six to request for admissions, Exhibits A3 and B2.

9. Prior to the July 19, 1993 meeting, petitioner was notified by the Board attorney that the Board intended to discuss his withholding in private session at that meeting. This statement is borne out by the closed session minutes of July 19, 1993 provided to the petitioner by the Board and there is no indication in the July 29, 1993 minutes that the Board took action in closed session on that date. See letter dated July 1, 1993, from Arthur Stein to James P. Granello, Exhibit "B" attached to petition of appeal; see private session minutes dated July 19, 1993, Exhibit "F."

CERTIFICATION OF JAMES G. SAVAGE, JR.

1. I am Secretary of the Lacey Township Board of Education and am familiar with the matters set forth herein. I make this Certification in opposition to petitioner's motion for summary decision.

2. Prior to the Board's May 17, 1993, meeting, correspondence was forwarded to it recommending that the increment of petitioner be withheld. This recommendation included as attachments unsatisfactory performance evaluations on petitioner with petitioner's written responses to each evaluation.

3. On May 3, 1993, correspondence was forwarded to petitioner notifying him that the Board would discuss withholding his increment in private session at the Board's May 17, 1993, general meeting. This letter additionally advised that petitioner has the right to request that the Board's discussion be conducted in public session. (See correspondence of James G. Savage, Jr. to petitioner dated May 3, 1993, attached hereto as Exhibit "A.")

4. Subsequent to mailing of the May 3, 1993, correspondence, the Board consented to allow petitioner and his attorney to address the Board in private session. This would occur at the June Board meeting.

5. On May 17, 1993, the Board, by roll call vote in public session, approved the contracts and salaries of various individuals after discussion in private session. The contract of petitioner at his 1992-93 pay scale was included in the contracts acted on by resolution of the Board (See excerpts of Minutes of Board Meeting of May 17, 1993, attached hereto as Exhibit "B.")

6. The petitioner was provided with an opportunity to address the Board in private session. Petitioner and his attorney did appear in private session and did address the Board.

7. Subsequent to petitioner's presentation at the July 19, 1993, private session, the Board considered the withholding of petitioner's increment and voted by roll call in private session to withhold petitioner's increment.

8. Petitioner was notified by letter dated July 26 1993, that the Board had taken action and would not consider further requests for consideration of petitioner's salary. (See correspondence of July 26, 1993, attached hereto as Exhibit "C.")

9. On August 16, 1993, the Board acted on the minutes of the July 19, 1993, private session meeting which included the Board's action on petitioner's increment. This action was taken by roll call of the Board in public session and was passed by unanimous vote of the quorum present. (See excerpts of August 16, 1993, Board General Meeting, attached hereto as Exhibit "D.")

10. The Board provided adequate notice of all meetings referenced herein in compliance with the Open Public Meetings Act.

I certify that the foregoing statements made by me are true. I am aware that if any of the foregoing statements made by me are willfully false, I am subject to punishment.

PETITIONER'S LEGAL ARGUMENT

POINT I

ASSUMING THE BOARD OF EDUCATION ACTED IN CLOSED SESSION ON JULY 19, 1993, THE RESPONDENT BOARD OF EDUCATION ACTED IN AN ULTRA VIRES MANNER IN WITHHOLDING PETITIONER'S INCREMENT

The withholding of an increment by a board of education must be done at a public meeting open to the public. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-6; Cullum v. BOE of North Bergen, Hudson County, 15 N.J. 285 (1954); Fergen, et al., v. BOE Twp. of Livingston, 1976 S.L.D. 886, 890. Private and final action taken by a local board of education in closed session has been consistently declared ultra vires by the Commissioner of Education and the courts. Cullum, supra. Am Heating and Ventilating Co. v. BOE of Town of West New York, 81 N.J.L. 423 (1911); Houman v. Mayor and Council of Borough of Pompton Lakes, 155 N.J. Super. 129, 151-158 (Law Div. 1977). This same principle is applied to the provisions under the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq., 10:4-12(b) ; Houman, supra.

The Board maintains that it acted in closed session on July 19, 1993, to withhold petitioner's increment. The Board minutes do not bear out this claim. Nevertheless, even if the Board discussed and acted upon the petitioner's salary increment in closed session, such action would be ultra vires and should be declared void. Houman, supra; N.J.S.A. 10:4-15; Cullum, supra.

On the other hand, it appears that the Board took no official action either at its May 17 or July 19 meeting in public to withhold petitioner's increment. The Board has an affirmative duty to establish the employment and regulate the conduct of its employees by official action. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1(c); Townsend v. Trustees of School District No. 12 in Essex County, 41 N.J.L. 312 (1979); see, also, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 ("it shall determine, and fix and alter their compensation▪▪▪"); 18A:17-41 ("The Board of Education of every district shall make such rules and regulations ▪▪▪ as may be necessary ▪▪▪").

The Board failed to take any affirmative action in public to withhold the salary increment which was awarded to the petitioner in March 1992 in the amount of 6% for the 1993-94 school year. Nor did it take any official action to rescind its previous decision which awarded such increment to the petitioner. Having failed to act, it violated its own stated policy by failing to provide petitioner with his 6% increment for the 1993-94 school year.

The Board reemployed petitioner to his previous year's salary on May 17, 1993 contrary to law and its own stated intent. Based on the private session minutes, its intent was to delay discussion and action on the petitioner's salary increment until the following meeting (June 21, 1993). See private session minutes of May 17, 1993. (Exhibit "D.") The respondent Board had no authority to set petitioner's salary in the same amount as last year's without publicly acting to withhold his increment. Its action of May 17, 1993, was ultra vires and should be declared void.

Furthermore, the Board showed arbitrariness and bad faith by agreeing to delay the discussion and action on the petitioner's salary increment until a later time and then proceeding to set his salary at its previous rate without notice to the petitioner thereby depriving him of any opportunity to be heard. See, e.g., Kopera v. West Orange BOE, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) ("discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives"). The Board did not discuss petitioner's salary at its May 17, 1993 meeting, yet it acted at that meeting to maintain his salary at its previous level. Such action was patently arbitrary and without any rational basis. Id. at 294.

It is for all of the foregoing reasons that the respondent Board should be ordered to restore the 1993-94 salary increment withheld from the petitioner retroactively to the date of initial entitlement plus award interest on the monies withheld in order to make the petitioner whole. See, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16.

THE BOARD'S LEGAL ARGUMENT

POINT I

PETITIONER'S CHALLENGE TO THE ACTIONS OF THE BOARD IS UNTIMELY AND MUST BE DISMISSED

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, any action taken by a public body at a meeting which does not conform with the provisions of the Act are voidable. Any petition seeking to have such action voided must be brought within 45 days after the action sought to be voided has been made public. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 (a).

In the current petition, the petitioner challenges actions taken by the Board at its May 17, 1993 and July 19, 1993 meetings. Petitioner further acknowledges that he received the Board's letter of July 26, 1993 advising that the Board would accept no further request for consideration of petitioner's salary. Indeed, receipt of this letter was acknowledged in writing by petitioner's counsel dated July 29, 1993, attached hereto as Exhibit "A."

Even if the Board action at the July 19, 1993 meeting is the point of focus, the petitioner's petition, filed with the Commissioner October 5, 1993, is clearly untimely. Indeed, even if the July 29,1993, acknowledgement letter is used, petitioner's challenge is precluded by the clear terms of the Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 (a); Township of Bernards vs. State, Dept. Community Affairs, 233 N.J. Super. 1, 25 (App. Div. 1989), certif. den. 118 N.J. 194 (1989); Jersey City v. State Dept. of Environmental Protection, 227 N.J. Super. 5, 22 (App. Div. 1988), certif. den. 111 N.J. 640 (1988).

Petitioner's claims for relief are clearly untimely and must be dismissed.

POINT II

THE RESPONDENT, LACEY TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION, ACTED APPROPRIATELY IN WITHHOLDING PETITIONER'S INCREMENT

In its current filing, petitioner states that the withholding of an increment by a board of education must be done at a public meeting open to the public. It further asserts that both case law and the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6, et seq., (Act) counsel that the Court must declare the Board's action action in this matter ultra vires and void as a matter of law. Further, the court is advised that it should order retroactive restoration of petitioner's increment based upon the facts of this case and further award interest to the petitioner. For the reasons that follow, it is submitted that not only has the petitioner not carried its burden to obtain relief via summary decision, the facts clearly show that the Board's actions were appropriate.

In support of its position, petitioner offers various statutory and case law cites. It cites to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-6, the provision which states that the school board shall hold public meetings. It cites to Cullum v. Bd. of Ed. of North Bergen, a case involving the hiring of a new employee as Superintendent of Schools. It cites to Feigen, et al v. Bd. of Ed. of Township of Livingston, a case involving the merger of two schools. Similarly, it cites to other cases which involve illegal delegation of contracting authority to Board employees and hiring of an attorney to pursue tax appeals (curiously a case which, as will be discussed in Point II of this letter memorandum, recognizes that even acts found to be not in procedural compliance are appropriately ratified/rectified by subsequent action). Finally, petitioner cites to provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act including N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 (b).

It is submitted that, even ignoring the specific facts of this case, none of the cited authorities is directly relevant in the context of an increment withholding case. In contrast, each is clearly distinguishable from an increment withholding matter in which a lesser public interest in access to Board deliberations must be balanced against the privacy rights of employee. It is because of these concerns that actions in such matters are specifically directed to be taken in the private session, absent an employee request for discussion in public session. See, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 (b) (8).

However, even if petitioner's basic premise were to be accepted on faith (a standard inappropriate for summary decision), it is submitted that the Lacey Township Board of Education's actions in this matter are in compliance with the letter and intent of the Open Public Meetings Act and applicable requirements.

As summarized in the Certification of James G. Savage, Jr., attached hereto and incorporated herein, petitioner was put on notice of problems with his performance which could impact his increment long before the Board took action. Petitioner was advised of the problems, given a chance to respond and did respond.

As it became apparent that the extent of the problem required consideration of action to withhold petitioner's increment, evaluations and petitioner's responses were forwarded to the Board.

The petitioner was then notified that the Board would discuss the withholding of petitioner's increment in its May 17, 1993 private session meeting and advised that he had the right to request the discussion be held in public session. Petitioner requested that the discussion be held in private session and further requested an opportunity to address it in a subsequent meeting as petitioner was not prepared for the May meeting.

At the May 17, 1993, meeting the Board passed a resolution approving the contracts of various support staff including petitioner. This vote was by roll call at the public portion of the Board's meeting. The salary approved by the Board for petitioner was that received by the petitioner for the 1992-93 school year (i.e., with the 1993-94 increment withheld.)

Subsequent to the Board's public session vote and approval of petitioner's contract without the increment, the Board did provide petitioner an opportunity to address it in private session.

Subsequent to petitioner's appearance at the July 19, 1993, private session meeting, the Board again voted on withholding of petitioner's increment prior to the conclusion of the private session. The Board again determined that the increment should be withheld based upon all information and consistent with the prior public session action on petitioner's contract.

Clearly, the Open Public Meetings Act allows for matter involving evaluation of the performance of, promotion, and terms and conditions of employment to be dealt with in private session. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 (b) (8). Indeed, the Act, recognizing the privacy interests of the employee affected, provides that these topics are to be dealt with in public session only if all the individual employees whose rights could be affected request in writing that the matter be discussed at a public meeting.

Here the Board provided notice of the impending action through both unsatisfactory evaluation and written notice of the impending action. The Board provided petitioner the opportunity to request public session discussion. The Board further provided the petitioner with the opportunity to address it in private session. Finally, the Board voted to withhold the increment both in public session in approving the contract and pay rate of petitioner and in private session after allowing petitioner access to the process.

The process followed by the Board protected petitioner's privacy rights in accordance with the Act and in no way inhibit any public interest or right to access to discussion/decision making. Indeed, the Board acted to provide petitioner with even more access than required by the statute.

It is submitted that the Board's actions in the current context comply with the letter and intent of the law and should be upheld. See, Cole v. Woodcliff Lake Board of Education, 155 N.J. Super. 398 (Law Div. 1978).

Finally, petitioner contends that the Board acted in an arbitrary manner and without any reasonable basis as further justification for a Court ruling in its favor. Particularly, the petitioner contends that the Board did not provide him with notice of the increment withholding, did not provide for discussion of the increment withholding and deprived him of an opportunity to be heard.

It is submitted that the facts as summarized herein and by the Certification of James G. Savage, Jr. attached hereto and incorporated herein, clearly demonstrate that the petitioner was given more than adequate notice through both numerous unsatisfactory evaluations (See, Hillman v. Caldwell-West Caldwell Bd. of Ed., 1977 S.L.D. 210 (Commissioner, July 15). The petitioner here was notified that the Board intended to discuss the increment withholding decision in private session and provide him an opportunity to request this decision be held in public session. Petitioner requested that discussion be conducted in private session.

There is similarly no statutory requirement that the employee be allowed to speak or participate in the private session. However, as a point of fact, the petitioner had numerous opportunities to be heard and was heard.

As cited by the petitioner himself, it is well established that an action of a school board which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) Denial of increments based on unsatisfactory ratings is clearly discretionary action. Id. The unsatisfactory performance of petitioner was the basis of the Board's action here. It is submitted that there is nothing on record to indicate that there is any factual basis to support petitioner's position, let alone carry its burden here.

Further, the petitioner does not explain how it would have the court make factual findings as to the "rational basis" for the Board's actions without any hearing in this matter. It is submitted that a factual finding on the basis of the Board's action can only be made subsequent to a hearing which precludes this as an appropriate basis for a summary decision motion.

POINT III

EVEN IF RESPONDENT, LACEY TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION DID NOT COMPLY WITH PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS IN ITS ROLL CALL VOTES OF MAY 17, 1993 AND JULY 19, 1993, IT SUBSEQUENTLY RATIFIED THESE ACTIONS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1, the respondent Board is specifically authorized to act in setting and controlling all aspects of employment including the salaries paid to its employees and any increases thereto. It is undisputed that the respondent was authorized to take action to withhold any increase in petitioner's salary. Indeed, in the context of teaching staff members, it has been held that a Board cannot bargain away the right to withhold an increment. Bellet v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Teaneck, 1982 S.L.D. 970.

If a public body has the authority to act, but has failed to follow exactly proper procedures to exercise that power, the irregular, although not ultra vires, action may be subsequently ratified. Ferreira v. City of Asbury Park, 237 N.J. Super. 142 (App.

Div. 1989), certif. den. 121 N.J. 627 (1990). The subsequent action, being equivalent to the original grant of power, is operative and related back other date of the original action which is subsequently ratified. Houman v. Mayor and Council of Borough of Pompton Lakes, 155 N.J. Super. 129, 159-161 (Law Div. 1977).

The Open Public Meetings Act does not preclude ratification of nonconforming acts. Rather, the Act recognizes ratification and specifically provides a procedure by which the public body may rectify an otherwise voidable action. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 (a).

In this case, as outlined in the Certification of James G. Savage, Jr., the Board voted initially to approve petitioner's contract at the amount contained in his contract for the 1992-93 school year on May 17, 1993. This vote was conducted in public session by resolution.

In accordance with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, it determined to discuss the withholding of petitioner's increment in private session and did so. Indeed, it even provided petitioner with an opportunity to participate in private sessions.

After such opportunity to participate was granted, the Board again voted in private session on July 19, 1993, affirming its prior contract action and finding withholding of the increment to be appropriate.

Subsequent to the July 19, 1993, private session discussion and Board vote, the Board conducted a regular meeting on August 16, 1993. The Board meeting was properly noticed and was otherwise in compliance with all provisions of the Open Public Meetings Law.

During the public session of the August 16, 1993 regular meeting, the Board by unanimous roll call vote approved and ratified the private session minutes of the July 19, 1993, private session which included the discussion and vote on withholding of petitioner's increment.

Even if it is found that the Board's action up to and including actions taken at the July 19, 1993, private session did not conform with all procedural requirements, it is submitted that the Board's unanimous action approving the meeting minutes by roll call at the Board's public session constituted ratification of the Board's prior action curing any procedural nonconformance.

POINT IV

IF THE BOARD DID NOT SATISFY ALL PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS IN ITS INITIAL ACTIONS AND DID NOT ADEQUATELY RATIFY ITS PRIOR ACTION BY SUBSEQUENT VOTE, THE APPROPRIATE REMEDY IS REMAND TO THE BOARD FOR APPROPRIATE ACTION

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, any action taken by a public body which does not comply with the provisions of the Act is voidable. However, as discussed above, the Act further provides at N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 that nonconformance may be cured by corrective or remedial action taken in a proceeding conducted in conformance with the Act's requirements. Provided the public body is authorized to take the underlying action, the subsequent ratification is operative and relates back to the date of the original action. See, Houman, supra.

The court is directed by the Act to issue orders and provide remedies necessary to insure compliance with the Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-16.

Petitioner, in its current papers, contends that the procedure followed by the Board does not satisfy the Act. Based on this, it is submitted that this court should void the Board's action, order the Board to restore the petitioner's withheld salary increment retroactively and award interest.

While, as detailed above, it is submitted that the Board's action is in compliance with the Act, even if the Board were found to not be in compliance, it is further submitted that the petitioner's requested relief for this alleged procedural noncompliance is inappropriate.

In determining remedies and relief under the Act the court is to consider the nature, quality and effect of the noncompliance of the public body in fashioning corrective measures necessary to conform with the statute. Polillo v. Deane, 74 N.J. 562, 579 (1977).

In this case, the Board received a recommendation that an increment be withheld based upon repeated performance problems and inadequate performance evaluations. Petitioner received each of the evaluations, had an opportunity to comment on them and did comment on them. These performance evaluations and petitioner's comments were before the Board for their consideration. The Board voted to approve a contract for petitioner at his prior year salary at the public session of the May 17, 1993 Board meeting.

The Board notified petitioner of its intent to discuss withholding of his increment at a private session. The Board, though not required, provided petitioner with the opportunity to participate in private session discussions. Petitioner did participate in these discussions. After these discussions the Board gain voted to withhold petitioner's increment. Finally, at the August 16, 1993 Regular Board meeting, the Board by roll call vote approved the minutes of the July private session and ratified, in public session, the prior action on petitioner's increment.

It is submitted that the spirit of the Open Public Meetings Law and all applicable standards of conduct were observed by the Board at all points, The Board acted on a personnel matter to protect the privacy rights of the petitioner and took action it felt appropriate including providing petitioner direct input into the process.

Petitioner was not prejudiced by any potential procedural violation so as to justify the relief sought. No would the public interest be protected or served in any way by a remedy that requires the petitioner be paid at an increased salary level despite unsatisfactory evaluations because of a procedural matter.

Rather, if it is found that all procedural requirements were not met, it is submitted that the appropriate remedy to insure compliance with the Act would be to remand this matter to the Board for remedial action to correct the nonconformance.

For all the above reasons the Lacey Township Board Education respectfully submits that petitioner's request for summary decision should be denied and its petition dismissed. In the alternative, if it is found that the Board did not satisfy all procedural requirements in withholding petitioner's increment, it is further respectfully submitted that the appropriate remedy is remand to the Board for further action in conformance with the Act's requirements.

PETITIONER'S REPLY

Petitioner grounded his petition upon the Board's failure to act in public to withhold his salary increment. As stated in his brief in support of the motion for summary decision, the Board of Education was obligated to act in public pursuant to statutory and case law pertaining to educational matters. See N.J.S.A 18A:10-6; Cullum v. BOE of North Bergen, 15 N.J. 285 (1954). Also, its action(s) was a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq.; 10:4-12 (a).

The limitation on bringing actions before the State Commission of Education is ninety (90) days. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). This time begins to run from the time the petitioner received "adequate notice" of the final order, ruling, or other action being appealed. Kaprow v. BOE of Berkeley Twp. 131 N.J. 572, 586-587 (1993). In the instant matter, the issue of withholding the petitioner's increment by the respondent Board of Education was under "discussion"by the Board until such time as when the petitioner was advised on or about July 26, 1993, that the Board would no longer consider the matter. See Exhibit "C" respondent's brief, Superintendent's letter to petitioner's attorney.

Even though one could argue that this notice was not enough to adequately inform the petitioner of the Board's true intent, and notwithstanding the vagueness of the Superintendent's letter, the petitioner filed his petition of appeal within ninety (90) days of this apparent Board action. The petition of appeal was filed on October 4, 1993 (71 days later); see letter from petitioner's attorney to Superintendent dated July 29, 1993 attached.

The petitioner is not relying solely upon the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act to support his contention that the Board was required to act in public. The respondent Board's May 17 and July 19, 1993 "actions" violated N.J.S.A. 18A:10-6 (conduct of public meetings); 18A:11-1 (c) (make rules for the employment, regulation of conduct of its employees); 18A:16-1 (each board shall determine, fix and alter compensation of janitors, etc.); 18A:17-41 (the Board shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the employment, discharge, management and control of the public school janitor, janitor engineers, custodians or janitorial employees of the district). None of these statutes permit a board to act in private when setting such policies, rules or conditions of employment such as the withholding of a custodial staff member's increment. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 which pertain to the withholding of increment for a teaching staff member specifically requires a "recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the Board" conducted in public. No less of a requirement should be mandated for a withholding of a custodial staff member. See e.g., Speer v. BOE OF Twp. of E. Brunswick, 1984 S.L.D. 1100, 1107-1108 (N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 and N.J.S.A. 19A:16-1 provide authority to withhold increment of a janitor); see, also, Regent v. BOE Twp. of Woodbridge, 1981 S.L.D. (secretaries and clericals); Smith v. BOE Twp. East Brunswick, OAL Dkt. EDU 5654-8? (June 11, 1983), Commissioner of Education decision August 15, 1983, aff'd. State Board April 6, 1984.

Furthermore, even if petitioner's challenge was based solely upon a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act the time limit for bringing such action before the Commissioner of Education is ninety (90) days, not forty-five (45) days as it would be to the Superior Court. See Voll, Commissioner of Education decided April 14, 1986; Smith, supra., State Board decision April 6, 1984; Speer, supra., pp. 1107-1108; Sukin v. Northfield BOE, 171 N.J. Super. 194 (App. Div. 1979). Even if the Board took a "straw vote" in private session to identify a consensus vote, it should have reentered public session and publicly voted on the matter. Matter of Cole, 194 N.J. Super. 237, 247 (App. Div. 1984).[1]

The Board of Education admits it gave the petitioner "an opportunity to be heard" after it approved the petitioner's salary without an increment on May 17, 1993. As pointed out in his brief in support of summary decision, such action by the respondent Board was contrary to the representations given to the petitioner that no action would be taken on May 17, 1993 and contrary to the Board's stated intent. See petitioner's Exhibit "D" private session minutes of May 17, 1993. In short, the respondent Board acted arbitrarily and capriciously in setting his salary as it was last year contrary to its previous decision in March 1992 to award the petitioner and all other custodians a six percent salary increase. To state that the Board gave the petitioner "an opportunity to be heard" after setting his salary on May 17, 1993, without his increment and then "determined" in private session on July 19, 1993, that an increment should be withheld constitutes a clear violation of the petitioner's rights. Kopera v. West Orange BOE, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

[1] The approval of the private session minutes of July 19th by the Board on August 16, 1993 in no way validates the alleged illegal action taken in private session on July 19th which "action" is not even reflected in the private session minutes.

The remedy for such a violation must be to declare what the Board has done as void and not allow the Board to retroactively attempt to withhold the increment granted to the petitioner in March 1992. Rather, the Commissioner of Education should direct the Board of Education that any withholding must be done prospectively and at public meeting conducted in public. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 (b); 10-4-16. As the court stated in Cullum v. BOE of North Bergen, Hudson County, 15 N.J. supra. at 294: "The Legislatures has unmistakably and wisely provided that meetings of boards of education shall be in public (*R.S.*18:5-47 now 18A:10-6); if a public meeting is to have any meaning or value, final decision must be until fair opportunity to be heard thereat has been afforded. This in no wise precludes advance meeting during which there is free and full discussion, wholly tentative in nature; it does, however, justly preclude private final action such as that taken by the majority in the instant matter." In Callum the court invalidated a resolution regarding the appointment of a Superintendent of Schools. No less a remedy must be afforded to the petitioner herein. The setting of the petitioner's salary on May 17, 1993, should be voided and the petitioner's salary should be adjusted retroactively to July 1, 1993, to include the six percent increase which was approved in March 1992 plus prejudgment interest. See N.J.S.A. 10:4-16 (court may issue orders or other remedies to insure compliance with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act).

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Petitioner, in his responding brief properly cites the case of Kaprow v. BOE Berkeley Twp, 131 N.J. 572, (1993) for the proposition of timely notice and the 90 day rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). However, petitioner misapprehends the holding in the Kaprow matter as it applies to the instant matter.

Maurice Kaprow was a tenured assistant superintendent in the employ of the Berkeley Township Board of Education. Kaprow's employment was terminated effective June 31, 1981, as a consequence of a reduction in force (RIF) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The Berkeley Board failed to maintain Kaprow's name on a preferred eligibility list for reemployment as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Subsequent to Kaprow's termination, the Berkeley Board filled the position of assistant superintendent with someone other than Kaprow and without notice to him.

On February 23, 1988, Kaprow inquired of the Berkeley Board's secretary as to whether positions for which he retained tenure rights had been established by the Board subsequent to his termination. On February 23, 1988, the Board Secretary wrote Kaprow to advise him that on September 9, 1986, the Board appointed Robert Ciliento to the position of Assistant Superintendent of Administrative Services. The Board Secretary also advised Kaprow that on July 1, 1987, the Board had appointed Sheila McGuckin as District Supervisor of Elementary Schools.

In or about February 28, 1988, Kaprow addressed a letter to the Berkeley Board making claim to both the Assistant Superintendent and District Supervisor positions. Kaprow requested the Board to reinstate him retroactively with full back pay and benefits, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The Berkeley Board did not reply to Kaprow's letter of February 28, 1988.

On April 25, 1988, Kaprow sent a second letter to the Berkeley Board asserting he wished to amicably resolve the matter and requested a reply by May 16, 1988. On June 14, 1988, the Berkeley Board's attorney responded to Kaprow's April 25, 1988, letter and acknowledged that two positions had been created and filled. The Board's attorney asserted, among other things, that the duties of the two positions were substantially different from those performed by Kaprow and, therefore, his RIF rights did not attach and there was no basis for his reinstatement.

On August 1, 1988, Kaprow filed a verified Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education asserting his claim to the positions of Assistant Superintendent of Administrative Services and/or District Supervisor. Kaprow's case proceeded through the OAL, the Commissioner , the State Board of Education, the Appellate Division of Superior Court, to the New Jersey Supreme Court, which granted his petition for certification at 130 N.J. 16 (1992).

The Court in Kaprow found that the letter he received from the Berkeley Board's secretary on February 23, 1988, constituted adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Justice Garibaldi, writing for the Court, made the following observation:

> Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. See Burns v. West Am. Corp., 137 N.J. Super. 422, 446, 349, A. 2d. 142 (Dist. Ct. 1975).

> Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. See Apex Roofing Supply Co. v. Howell, 59 N.J. Super. 462, 158, A. 2*d.* 49 (App. Div. 1960). A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co., 90 N.J. 108, 112, 447, A. 2*d.* 163 (1982). The second purpose is "to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose" by giving security and stability to human affairs. Ibid. (quoting Farrell v. Votator Div. 62 N.J. 111, 115, 299, A. 2*d.* 394 (1973).
>
> > When a plaintiff knows or has reason to know that he has a cause of action against an identifiable defendant and voluntary sleeps on his rights so long as to permit the customary period of limitations to expire,the pertinent considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar his action. [Farrell, supra. 62 N.J. at 115, 299, A. 2*d. 394]*
>
> Adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 should accommodate both purposes. That is, the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the tenured teachers have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with a post-RIF cause of action. See Burd v. New Jersey Tel. Co., 76 N.J. 284, 291, 386, A. 2*d.* 1310 (1978). At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 21 N.J. 28, 48, 120 A. 2*d. 721 (1956) Id.* at 587.

The Court held that the notice to Kaprow on February 23, 1988, albeit unofficial and informal, was sufficient to trigger the ninety-day limitations period. Kaprow's subsequent attempt to negotiate with the Board to resolve his claim was held to be irrelevant. The negotiations did not negate the fact that he received adequate notice on February 28, 1988, nor did it toll the running of the ninety-day limitations period.

The facts in Kaprow and the instant matter are similar. In the instant matter, petitioner was advised on May 3, 1993, of the Board's intent to withhold his 1993-94 salary increment (Board's Exhibit A). Subsequently, on May 17, 1993, the Board, by a recorded roll call vote in public session reemployed petitioner at the annual salary of $32,393. (Board's Exhibit B). Petitioner and petitioner's attorney were both aware of the Board's action on May 17, 1993. Under Kaprow, May 17, 1993, triggered the notice to petitioner of the Board's action. May 17, 1993, therefore, commenced the running of the 90 day rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Ninety days from May 17, 1993, fell on August 15, 1993.

Notwithstanding petitioner's understanding of the Board's intention to discuss his salary at some subsequent date, the fact remains that it took action on May 17, 1993 and reemployed petitioner at his former salary. In Kaprow, the Court said:

> Kaprow's attempt to resolve his claim through negotiations with the Local Board is irrelevant. It does not negate the fact he received adequate notice on February 23, nor does it toll the running of the limitation period. (citation omitted) (Id. at 588).

The Kaprow Court observed that teachers increments are not statutory entitlements where it held in North Plainfield Ed. Ass'n v. Board of Ed. , 96 N.J. 587 (1984), that:

> Because the award of the annual increment is not a matter of statutory right, but is subject to "denial for inefficiency or other good cause," N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, it is subject to the time bar provided in the regulation [N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2] issued by the Commissioner pursuant to that statute. (Id. at 594). 131 N.J. at 585

Thus, custodial increments cannot be statutory entitlements and, as teacher increments, subject to the 90 day rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner, John LeRose, was afforded adequate notice when the Board action on May 17, 1993, by a recorded roll call vote in public session, to award him a salary of $32,392 for the 1993-94 school year.

I CONCLUDE that the 90 day rule, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) commenced to run on May 17, 1993.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner, pursuant to Kaprow, supra., had until August 15, 1993, to file his Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner with regard to the Board's action concerning its failure to award his salary increment for the 1993-94 school year.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner filed his petition out of time on October 8, 1993.

Having concluded that petitioner's petition was filed out of time pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) and the holding in Kaprow, supra., it is not necessary for this tribunal to deal with the remaining issues.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision is hereby DISMISSED and that Summary Decision is ENTERED on BEHALF of the Lacey Township Board of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JOHN LE ROSE,	:
PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner excepts to the ALJ's finding that petitioner was advised on May 3, 1993 of the Board's intent to withhold his increment. He maintains that the letter sent to him by the Board on that date simply stated that > the Board "intends to discuss withholding of your 1993-94 salary increment. Formal action involving withholding of your 1993-94 salary increment may be taken." (emphasis in text)

Petitioner argues that there was nothing contained in the May 3 letter stating that the Board intended to withhold his increment at its May 17, 1993 meeting.

Petitioner also excepts to the ALJ's statement that he and his attorney were both aware of the Board's action on May 17, 1993.

He argues

> Again, the Administrative Law Judge infers that the petitioner and his attorney were aware that they knew the Board had acted to withhold petitioner's increment on May 17, 1993 when the only thing concerning the petitioner that was done by the Board on May 17, 1993 was his reemployment for the 1993-94 school year along with all other support staff members and a notation in the closed session minutes that the discussion of the petitioner's withholding was being delayed until the following month's Board meeting. To infer that the petitioner and his attorney knew that the Board had not only intended to act but acted on May 17, 1993 to withhold the petitioner's increment is clearly erroneous and not supported by the Board of Education minutes or the correspondence between the parties that preceded that meeting.

Petitioner further contends that fundamental fairness dictates that this matter be decided on the merits. He argues

> This Board agreed to delay the discussion of withholding the petitioner's increment until the petitioner and his attorney had an opportunity to meet with the Board to review the circumstances surrounding taking such action. This discussion did take place between the parties on June 21, 1993. The petitioner was given assurance that the matter of his withholding was still under review and had not been decided. Rather than act on this matter, the Board advised the petitioner that it was going to continue its discussion into the following Board meeting. These facts left the petitioner with the reasonable expectation that the issue of his withholding was not going to be resolved until after July 19, 1993. To charge the time between May 17 and July 19 against the petitioner's 90 day limitation is fundamentally unfair, particularly when the petitioner filed within 90-days of what he believed to be the final action taken by the Board on July 19, 1993 which according to the Board's own admission was the date when it decided and "acted" in private session to withhold his increment. (Id., at p. 4)

In reply, the Board asserts that petitioner's arguments that the ALJ misconstrued the facts of this case regarding the action taken by the Board on May 17, 1993 and petitioner's claim that he should not be held to have had notice that the Board intended to take action to withhold his increment and keep his salary at the salary he received in the previous year are incredible and totally unsupported by the facts in this matter. The Board argues

> [P]etitioner was given more than adequate notice through both numerous unsatisfactory evaluations (see, Hillman v. Caldwell-West Caldwell Bd. of Ed., 1977 SLD (Commissioner, July 15); aff'd 1981 SLD (State Board, February 4)) and the May 3, 1993 letter. The Board voted to keep the petitioner's salary level at the level received in the previous year by roll call vote at the public portion of the Board's May, 1993 meeting. A Board vote setting an employee's salary at the level paid in the prior year makes the Board's intent to withhold all increments obvious. Rosania v. Bd. of Ed. of Bor. of Middlesex, 1988 SLD 78, 79, aff'd and modified 1988 SLD 81 (Commissioner). Indeed, as acknowledged by the petitioner in his petition in this matter, he even received an employment contract in May of 1993 for the 1993-94 school year which did not include the increment.
>
> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 3)

The Board further contends

> The petitioner's reference to the further action taken by the Board at its July, 1993 meeting is not on point. [N]either the Board's decision to allow petitioner the opportunity to address it to seek modification of the salary level set at the May meeting or the additional action it took at its July 19, 1993 meeting reaffirming its prior public session vote, do anything to change the fact that public action was taken by the Board in May of 1993. The Board satisfied all requirements of notice of its public meeting. The petitioner was notified of his inadequate performance through his performance appraisals. Petitioner was notified that action was pending at the May meeting regarding his salary level by letter. The Board voted in public session to keep petitioner's salary at the level received in the prior year. The petitioner was provided with a contract clearly indicating he was to be compensated at the prior year's salary. Petitioner even commenced work under this contract. All of this occurred more than 90 days prior to filing of the petition in this matter.
>
> (Id., at pp. 5-6)

The Board urges affirmance of the ALJ's determination that the within petition is out-of-time under the 90-day rule.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, including the exceptions advanced by the parties, the Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ's conclusion that the within petition must be dismissed as untimely. Even assuming, arguendo, that petitioner's cause of action actually ensued with the Board's May 17, 1993 action to reemploy him for the 1993-94 school year at his current salary, the Commissioner finds and determines that the sequence of events surrounding petitioner's withholding created sufficient ambiguity so as to warrant a relaxation of the 90-day rule, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, to permit a determination on petitioner's procedural and substantive claims with respect to the increment withholding.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is reversed and the within matter is hereby remanded for further proceedings consistent with this decision.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 27, 1993, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) was in receipt of a Petition of Appeal by Ruth A. Cahn, pro se, who alleged that the Board of Education of the Borough of Deal (Board) failed to maintain her name on its preferred eligible list subsequent to her reduction in force (RIF) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The Board denies petitioner's allegations asserting, among other things, that petitioner made a claim against the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) and her decision to retire and collect under the TPAF forced her removal from the Board's preferred eligible list.

Prehearing conferences were held on September 9, 1993 and October 5, 1993, during which petitioner represented herself. Subsequently, petitioner retained legal counsel and the third prehearing conference followed.

The Board raised the issue of petitioner's timeliness of her Petition of Appeal, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) and has been granted leave to argue the issue. The Board now moves for summary decision with respect to that, and other issues.

BACKGROUND FACTS

Petitioner, Ruth Cahn, was employed by the Board as a teacher commencing September 1965. She subsequently acquired a tenure status with the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. In the course of her employment with the Board, she taught grade five from the 1965-66 school year through the 1975-76 school year. In 1976, petitioner was assigned to teach mathematics and music for the 1976-77 school year. In or about February 11, 1977, petitioner was advised that the Board would abolish her teaching position and that she would be subject to a RIF at the conclusion of the 1976-77 school year. Petitioner was fifty-five (55) years of age in 1977.

The Board did not recall petitioner under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-8, petitioner was continued in membership with the TPAF for a period of five years subsequent to the RIF in the event she had not acquired a teaching position with the Board or any other local board of education in New Jersey. Petitioner was unable to locate other employment. As a consequence, petitioner applied for her retirement benefits with the TPAF.[1] Her application was approved by the Board of Trustees, effective November 1, 1981.

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:66-8 was amended under L. 1991, c. 138, §1, allowing a period of ten years continuance of TPAF membership subsequent to separation by RIF.

On July 16, 1986, the Board's Superintendent sent a letter to petitioner and offered her a 75 percent (3/4) teaching position with the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Petitioner rejected the offer for part-time employment on July 22, 1985, and requested consideration for the first available full time position.

On February 23, 1993, while in the Office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools, petitioner inspected the Board's Certificated Staff List. Subsequently, on May 27, 1993, the Commissioner was in receipt of petitioner's pro se Petition of Appeal alleging, among other things, that the Board failed to maintain her name on the preferred eligibility list pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and sought compensation for the period when she alleges she should have been recalled.

The Board now requests summary decision and dismissal of the matter on procedural grounds. The petitioner opposes the Board's application.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

THE BOARD'S POSITION

POINT I

THE PETITION FILED BY RUTH A. CAHN MUST BE DISMISSED AS BEING UNTIMELY

On May 24, 1993, Ruth A. Cahn filed a petition with the Commissioner seeking, inter alia, damages for the alleged failure of respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Deal to "honor her preferred eligibility rights to reemployment in the Deal School District." Petitioner argues therein that she discovered that various individuals were hired to teach in the Deal School District when she "looked at records in the office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools." This allegedly took place on February 23, 1993.

Unfortunately for petitioner, two dates cannot be changed. On August 13, 1981, the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund approved petitioner's application for a service retirement. This is indicated by a letter dated August 18, 1981, which is attached hereto for the Court's reference as Exhibit "A." On July 16, 1986, Anthony F. Moro, Jr, Ed. D. as Superintendent of respondent, forwarded a letter to petitioner advising her of a vacancy for a three-quarter teaching position at the Deal School for the 1986-87 school year. A copy of this letter is attached hereto for the Court's reference as Exhibit "B."

Petitioner apparently spoke to Dr. Moro on or about July 17, 1986 and a letter confirming the conversation was forwarded by Dr. Moro on behalf of respondent on or about July 18, 1986, a copy of which is annexed hereto for the Court's reference as Exhibit "C." On July 22, 1986, petitioner forwarded a letter to Dr. Moro wherein she declined the opportunity to teach. A copy of this letter is annexed hereto for the Court's reference as Exhibit "D."

As will be discussed in Point II, the filing for pension benefits by petitioner forced her removal from the preferred eligible list. For purposes of this discussion, her filing for pension benefits in 1981 should have served as a time when she would review the hiring lists of respondent.

Moreover, petitioner should have reviewed the hiring lists of respondent when she was notified in 1986 of a three quarter teaching position. Again, she did nothing and waited until (she alleges) February of 1993, over sixteen years after the reduction in force.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 is entitled "Filing and service of Petition." Subsection (c) of that section states in its entirety:

> (c) The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the ninetieth day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the District Board of Education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

This subsection was recently discussed by the Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, 131 N.J. (1993). There the court had to decide whether a petitioner's demand for reinstatement was time-barred.

Petitioner Kaprow was employed as a tenured Assistant Superintendent. His position was terminated as a result of a reduction in force in or about June of 1981. In February of 1988 petitioner Kaprow made inquiry of the Secretary for the Board of Education of Berkeley Township as to whether any positions were filled for which he had eligibility. The Board Secretary wrote to petitioner Kaprow on February 23, 1988, informing him that two years prior an individual had been appointed Assistant Superintendent of Administrative Services and that one year prior an individual had been appointed District Supervisor of Elementary Schools.

On or about February 28, 1988 petitioner Kaprow sent a letter to the Board of Education of Berkeley Township asserting his right to the two positions. The Board's attorney did not respond to petitioner Kaprow's letter until approximately June 14, 1988. The Verified Petition was filed with the Commissioner on August 1, 1988. The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's decision that the petition had been filed in an untimely manner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. The Appellate Division affirmed as did the Supreme Court.

Under Section IV of the Court's decision, the general purpose for limitation periods is set forth:

> A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. The second purpose is to 'penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose' by giving security and stability to human affairs ...
>
> Adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 should accommodate both purposes. That is, the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the tenured teachers have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with the post-RIF cause of action. At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order 'to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government.'
>
> The final order, ruling or other action by the local board occurred when it appointed nontenured persons to positions which Kaprow claims tenure rights ... Kaprow obviously believed that his tenured status entitled him to one or both of those positions under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and the notice he had received was adequate to enable him to pursue his claim. (citations omitted) Id. at 587-588.

The Supreme Court found that petitioner Kaprow had sufficient notice when he forwarded his initial letter to the Secretary of the Board of Education of Berkeley Township. This then triggered the ninety day period under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

The Supreme Court in Kaprow , as noted above, held that the cause of action really accrued when the Board of Education of Berkeley Township appointed nontenured person to persons to positions to which petitioner claimed rights. However, the Supreme Court did not begin to toll the ninety day limitation period until Kaprow had notice. In short, then, the Supreme Court essentially applied the "discovery rule" (otherwise known as the "discovery doctrine").

In Abboud v. Viscomi, 111 N.J. 56 (1988), our Supreme Court explained the rule or doctrine as follows:

> [T]he doctrine 'postpones the accrual of a cause of action' so long as a party reasonably is unaware either that he has been injured, or that the injury is due to the fault or neglect of an identifiable individual or entity. Once a person knows or has reason to know of this information, his or her claim has accrued since, at the point, he or she is actually or constructively aware 'of the state of facts which may equate in law with a cause of action.' ▪▪▪
>
> 'The discovery rule is essentially a rule of equity,' and therefore, 'each case calls for an identification, evaluation, and weighing of the equitable claims of the parties.' To be sure, 'it is not every belated discovery that will justify an application of the rule lifting the bar of the limitation statute. The interplay of the conflicting interests of the competing parties must be considered.' (citations omitted) Id. at 62-64.

It has also been held that "ignorance of the existence of a cause of action will not prevent the running of a period of limitations except when there has been concealment." Reilly v. Brice, 109 N.J. 555, 559 (1988). Throughout this case petitioner Ruth A. Cahn has espoused the fact that she remained close with the Deal community after she left the Deal School. She put in for retirement in 1981. She received a courtesy letter from the Deal Board of Education in 1986. Surely she was aware that the Deal School had hired other teachers.

The point is that petitioner Ruth A. Cahn sat on her rights and asks us to accept February 23, 1993 (sixteen years and twelve days after her RIF date) as her "discovery" date. The allowance of such would defy all principles of equity as well as standard notions of logic. Petitioner Ruth A. Cahn's petition should be dismissed as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c)

POINT II

RUTH A. CAHN'S PETITION MUST BE DISMISSED AS SHE RETIRED IN AUGUST OF 1981 THEREBY RENDERING HER INELIGIBLE TO BE CONSIDERED FOR A TEACHING POSITION. NO TEACHERS WERE HIRED BETWEEN HER RIF DATE AND HER RETIREMENT DATE FOR WHICH SHE COULD HAVE RECEIVED APPOINTMENT

According to Ruth A. Cahn's Petition, she "was RIFFED by letter on February 11, 1977 at age fifty-five, due to decline in enrollment." Sometime prior to August 18, 1981, petitioner Ruth A. Cahn made application to the Department of Treasury, Division of Pensions, Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. (Please refer to the letter from that office annexed hereto as Exhibit "A" which is dated August 18, 1981.) Again, as set forth in Point I, petitioner Ruth A. Cahn should have then made inquiry to the Deal School as to whether any teaching positions had been inappropriately filled. She did not do so and decided to retired instead.

As illustrated by the attached Certification of Anthony F. Moro, Jr., Ed. D., Superintendent and Board Secretary of the Deal Board of Education, no teachers were hired inappropriately between petitioner Ruth A. Cahn's RIF date and the date of her retirement. Indeed, programs were cut as enrollment dropped. Furthermore, all of those individuals set forth in paragraph 3 of Ruth A. Cahn's petition were hired after her retirement in 1981.

In Noble Young v. Board of Education of the City of West Orange, Essex County, decided initially by Administrative Law Judge Elinor R. Reiner on February 20, 1987, it was held that the retirement of a principal effectively removed him from continuing to be placed on the preferred eligibility list. Judge Reiner concluded that the retirement did, indeed, preclude the principal from being maintained on the preferred eligibility list and this decision was confirmed by both the Commission of Education and the State Board of Education. Please refer to that which is attached hereto for the Court's reference as Exhibit "E."

The very well reasoned opinion by Judge Reiner in the Noble Young case also dismisses arguments that he did not "voluntarily" retire which is also espoused by petitioner here. The judge stated:

> [I]t appears clear that petitioner had the option of whether or not to retire. His determination to retire was his alone. There is no indication that he was > compelled to retire or that he suffered duress sufficient to necessitate the determination that his choice was not a free one. It is quite possible that petitioner did not like his options. Yet, it was essentially his decision either to be eligible for a new position as principal or to seek retirement. He chose retirement and must bear the consequences of his choice. Since petitioner's decision to apply for his pension was intentional and voluntary, his name was properly removed from the preferred eligibility list and his tenure and seniority rights were rightfully terminated. Id. at 5-6.

The respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment was thus granted which, again, was affirmed by both the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education.

The judge also cited N.J.S.A. 18A:66-43; subsection (b) of that statute provides:

> (b) Any member in service who attains seventy years of age shall be retired by the Board of Trustees on a service retirement allowance forthwith on the first day of the next calendar month, or at such time within one year thereafter as it deems advisable.

Simple arithmetic tells us that petitioner Ruth A. Cahn is now over the mandatory retirement age of seventy years. Thus, even though her teaching certificate may have lifetime validity, she would not be able to teach currently in any event.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

POINT I

TIMELINESS OF THE PETITION

Point I of the respondent's brief offers to the Office of Administrative Law the argument that as a result of a written communication with Dr. Moro in July of 1986, the petition which was filed in 1993, is outside the limitations of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). As a "fall-back" position, the respondent offers the hypothesis that the petitioner was under a "duty" to review the hiring lists prior to 1981, and subtly suggests that perhaps the 90 day period should commence to run during an even earlier period than 1986. The petitioner concedes that her petition was filed on May 21, 1993, and relies upon the language contained therein as a description of the relief sought. She argues contemporaneously herewith, that she was without knowledge of the allegedly improper hirings and violation of her rights until, at the earliest, she reviewed records in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools in Monmouth county on February 23, 1993. Since it cannot be meaningfully argued that the petitioner filed her petition outside the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) if the February date is the relevant commencement point, it is left for the Office of Administrative Law to review and determine the validity of the respondent's arguments as they relate to prior times.

Apparently, the respondent does not challenge the timeliness of the petition predicated upon the 90 day period commencing with the discovery date of February 23, 1993. The respondent's position appears to be that the petition should have been filed years earlier, and it is that argument which petitioner will address herein.

Before presenting the argument of the petitioner to rebut the initial point in the respondent's brief, it is respectfully submitted that certain fundamental concepts relevant to the ultimate issue need be examined. Initially, an examination of the pertinent case law indicates that seniority rights continue indefinitely, and there is no time limitation on recall rights. Bodine v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Burlington, 1989, S.L.D. 1053, 1056, aff'd. State Board of Education, 1989, S.L.D. 1064. There is nothing in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 which references a term of years after which the priority status for recall is limited. Therefore, the statute in question grants to parties who have been severed from their employment due to a reduction in force, a right to be reemployed based upon seniority, which right is intended to continue indefinitely.

Further support for the proposition that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 intended to create a fundamental right for reemployment can be gleaned from reading Boguszewski v. Bd. of Ed. of Demarast, 1979 S.L.D. 232. In that case, the Commissioner held that an employee did not waive his rights to reemployment under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 by refusing to accept reemployment in a part-time capacity. In that decision, the Commissioner indicated that the decision not to accept a 3/5th teaching position would not interfere with the employees position on the preferred eligibility list for a full-time position.

It is further respectfully submitted that as a general principal the right to reemployment after a reduction in force forms a part of an employee's tenure rights.

As such, the tenure status which an employee holds prior to a reduction in force remains valid and pertinent at the time of the availability of a position for reemployment requiring consideration ahead of any nontenured teacher and ahead of any other tenured employee with inferior seniority in a qualified area. Even more compelling, is the acknowledgement that the right created by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 entitles an employee to a position whether or not they apply for it if their tenure and/or seniority background are paramount. Camilli v. Northern Highland Regional High School Dist. OAL Dkt. No. EDU 57-52-84 (Nov. 14, 1984), adopted Comm'r of Ed. (Jan. 3 1985), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. (decided 5-22-89), Mirandi v. Bd. of Ed. of West Orange, St. Bd. of Ed. 1989, Herbert v. Bd. of Ed. of the Township of Middletown, (App. Div. 1991) (unpublished opinion - attached hereto).

Within the context of the foregoing decisions, which underscore the significance of the tenure right encompassed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, the Office of Administrative Law is requested to consider the instant situation. Acknowledging that recall rights continue without limitation, that the decline or part-time employment is insufficient to waive the right to full-time reemployment, and the absence of a necessity to even apply for a potential position, this agency is asked to consider the respondent's argument.

Initially, despite the apparent requirement and responsibility of the Board to undertake to notify the employee in a situation where the employee qualifies for consideration in connection with a full-time position, the Board concedes through its certification that this responsibility was never discharged. Dr. Moro's letter in 1986 referenced only a 3/4th teaching position not a full-time position. Certainly, the respondent would not ask the Office of Administrative Law to accept the argument that this letter, which the case law acknowledges is insufficient to create a waiver of the petitioner's rights to a full-time position, should be utilized as the "trigger-point" for notice under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Perhaps even less persuasive is that portion of the argument which indicates that, despite the case law which assesses the responsibility for notification to the Board, the "failure" of the petitioner to undertake her own investigation and determine that a violation had occurred after 1977 or at some time thereafter, should similarly be used as "trigger-point" to compute the 90 day period. Both of these suggestions by the respondent are at direct variance with the case law and clash with the spirit and intent of the statutory right under consideration in this circumstance.

Parenthetically, the petitioner raises the issue of the timing of the letter from Dr. Moro regarding the availability of a part-time position in 1986. Apparently, no previous communication had been undertaken regarding other part-time positions which it would appear the petitioner was qualified to hold. Even if it is determined that the petitioner's rejection of part-time positions, what about the positions that were filled prior to 1986?

In its brief, the Board cites the recent decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Twp. 131 N.J. 572 (1993). Candidly, other than acknowledging that the Court upheld the propriety of the regulation in question, the case is of substantial value to the arguments offered by the petitioner. It is salient to note that in Kaprow the Court was given a document wherein the local board secretary provided the employee with clear and unambiguous notice of the Board of Education's final action regarding the awarding of two full-time positions which he later challenged. In and of itself, that compelling fact distinguishes that portion of the holding from the instant case, since there is no proof that the Deal Board of Education ever provided the petitioner with "clear and unambiguous notice" of final action regarding full-time reemployment which she could then challenge.

Secondly, of pertinent note in Kaprow, is the Court's examination of the concept of "adequate notice." Since the regulation had been challenged,the Court infused the concept into N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) in order to justify its ultimate decision upholding the regulation. The decision makes it eminently clear that the period for triggering the limitations section of the Administrative Code would not commence until the tenured teachers had been alerted to the existence of facts that would equate with a post-RIF cause of action, supra., at p. 587. The Court went on to disregard the earlier dates reference therein, and underscored its decision to uphold the elimination segment under consideration, based upon the "clear and unambiguous" notification contained in a February letter. Only upon receipt of this definitive directive, was the Court willing to initiate the calculation of the limitation period. The decision is also distinguishable because the petitioner waited some five months after discovery to file a petition.

In the instant matter, the evidence discloses that at no time did the Board discharge its duty to provide "clear and unambiguous" notice to petitioner regarding full-time positions that she later sought to challenge, despite the apparent statutory responsibility to do so. In light of that omission and the requirement of "adequate" notice that our highest Court acknowledged to be contained within the regulation, it is difficult to perceive how Kaprow is of any compelling assistance to the respondent.

It is also interesting to note that the Supreme Court rejected the arguments in Kaprow regarding equitable estoppel for reasons that are not manifest in the current matter. In the instant case, there was no period of time subsequent to the recognition of substantive issues to cure the situation, if the petition is dismissed. Secondly, they did not find a compelling basis for reliance by the employee in Kaprow, simply because the Board did not respond to his letters. It is respectfully submitted that an equitable estoppel argument in the instant case is of substantially more appeal due to the facts as they relate to the conduct of the Deal Board.

In addition to the foregoing, the petitioner would respectfully point out that there is no mention in the respondent's brief of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 which is discussed at length in the Kaprow decision. That provision allows the Commissioner to relax the procedural rules in his discretion. Obviously, this regulation underscores the principal that the time limitation set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) is neither jurisdictional nor intractable and can be extended to encompass situations within the discretion of the Commissioner. The relaxation provision, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, provides therein that the 90 day period may be relaxed where a strict adherence may be deemed inappropriate, unnecessary, or may result in injustice. Therefore, even if the respondent is initially successful in convincing the Office of Administrative Law that the 90 day limitation may somehow be applicable to an earlier period, (although the same is strenuously contested by the petitioner), the Administrative Law Judge has the ability to recommend a relaxation or dispensation of that period despite the finding.

In the instant fact pattern, the absence of affirmative proof that the respondent discharged its obligation under the statute in question to advise the petitioner regarding full-time reemployment, may be in and of itself sufficient to require a dispensation of the requirement. Clearly, the petitioner acted within the 90 day period from her discovery of the situation which she now challenges. In addition to support her earlier position that she has complied with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c), at the very least she has demonstrated the type of conduct which would justify relaxation of the period. The attempt by the respondent to transpose the requirement of notice and conduct in relation thereto from the Board to the petitioner, is even less appealing as it relates to the relaxation argument then it was in the original argument that the terms of the period should commence earlier than the discovery date.

Finally, the petitioner would like to comment herein on the reference in respondent's brief concerning the "discovery rule." (p.5) Petitioner concurs with the characterization contained therein that the Supreme Court essentially applied the "discovery rule" in considering the viability of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Earlier in this point heading there was a discussion of the Kaprow decision concerning the infusion of "adequate notice" into the time limitations, and it is respectfully submitted that this term emanates from recognition of the "discovery rule" in the aforementioned regulation. Again, however, it is uncertain how this issue is of any meaningful assistance to the respondent in connection with its motion for summary judgment. Initially, in a procedural vein, the respondent cites Abboud v. Viscomi, 111 N.J. 56 (1988), which was a dental malpractice case which references an earlier Supreme Court case involving the discovery rule examined in Lopez v. Swyer, 62 N.J. 67 (1973). A careful reading of Lopez indicates that the type of judgment the respondent is asking the Administrative Law Judge to make herein is only done after the trial judge conducts a hearing and investigates the factual pattern through testimony. Supra. at p. 275. At the very least, the petitioner herein would be entitled to a hearing prior to trial to investigate the factual pattern related to the utilization of the discovery rule in the circumstances before the Office of Administrative Law.

However, it is significant and imperative to note that the "discovery rule" reference in professional malpractice cases has been developed within the context of the statute of limitations. Obviously, a statute presents a different consideration than the discretionary regulation under consideration in the matter before the Office of Administrative Law. The standard for extending a statutory mandate directive which is jurisdictional and finite in nature, is or should be substantially different than the extension of a discretionary administrative time regulation. In fact, it is interesting to note that the very case the respondent cites in connection with this argument, Reilly v. Brice, 109 N.J. 555 (1988), resulted in a directive to the trial court to enlarge the 45 day limitation period for review of municipal action. In fact, the Supreme Court directed the extension of the time period as a purely discretionary measure based upon the language in R. 4:69-6 (c), which is essentially the same type of discretion afforded to the Commissioner of Education in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5

The Effect of Petitioner's Retirement

In Point II of its brief, the Board contends that the relief sought is barred by the petitioner's retirement in 1981. Further, the Board argues that there was no teachers hired between the RIF date (1977) and her retirement date (1981), and, therefore, there were no positions she was qualified to hold available during that period.

Dealing with the initial question regarding the effect of her retirement, the Office of Administrative Law is asked by the respondent to consider Noble Young v. Board of Education of the City of West Orange, 1987 S.L.D. 776, aff'd by State Bd. of Ed. (1987). Conversely, the petitioner would respectfully submit that the instant case is factually distinguishable from the fact pattern in Young.

Initially, it is pointed out to the Office of Administrative Law that the petitioner in Young was notified of a reduction in force on April 23, 1985, to be effective on June 30th of that same year. Before he was officially terminated, he applied for retirement on May 30, 1985. He challenged the failure to offer him an elementary school principalship a year later, and the Commissioner denied his claim.

In the instant matter, it is critical to note that the petitioner did not effectuate her retirement while still in service, as did Mr. Young. Secondly, she actively sought employment for a four year period thereafter, and only retired when faced with the previous dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-8, which required pension fund action within a five year period. Finally, it is also significant to note that the petitioner in Young had retired before a position became available. The petitioner herein contends that there were several positions for which she was qualified that were filled prior to her retirement.

Petitioner would respectfully submit that the Board has already conceded that there was a failure to notify her of available positions up until 1986. The Board's defense, as currently expressed, is that she was not qualified for the positions which were filled. This position seems different than its apparent original position, that no new teachers were hired. If the petitioner is successful in proving that the list attached to her certification includes positions which she was entitled to be notified about and which she was qualified to hold, and these positions preceded her retirement, how can this matter be dismissed?

Initially, the Board would clearly have to answer the contentions as they relate to the positions at least until 1981. In addition, the Administrative Judge might well conclude, and recommend to the Commissioner, that the failure of the Board to act in accordance with the statutory mandate, if the petitioner proves her case, acts as the type of conduct which bars it from asserting a defense relevant to her retirement in 1981. If she successfully demonstrates her entitlement to the positions on the list attached to her certification, the Board may have no viable defense other than using 1992, the year when she reached the mandatory retirement age. Simply stated, how can the Board profit from a failure to notify her of potential positions prior to her retirement, and then utilize the defense it created, as a method to deny an otherwise meritorious claim?

In light of the foregoing, it is respectfully requested that this matter should survive the procedural challenges and move to a plenary hearing.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board cites the matter Kaprow in support of its position that petitioner's demand for reinstatement in its employ is time-barred. In Kaprow, supra., our Supreme Court upheld the application of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) known as the 90 day rule, limiting the period for asserting a claim or commencing an action against the Board. A strict application of the Kaprow holding in the instant matter would preclude petitioner from going forward with her claim. The uncontroverted facts show that petitioner learned, on February 23, 1993, of the Board's alleged failure to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:238-12 for her reemployment pursuant to its preferred eligible list. Thus, petitioner's discovery on February 23, 1993, constituted adequate notice sufficient to satisfy the notice requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Kaprow at 588. The record clearly demonstrates that petitioner's pro se Petition of Appeal was received by the Commissioner on May 27, 1993, three days after the expiration of the 90 day limitation period.

Maurice Kaprow and petitioner share a similar experience. Both were subject to a RIF by their respective board of education. Both alleged that their local board failed to comport with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Both filed petitions with the Commissioner after the expiration of the 90 day limitation period. Petitioner asserts that the Kaprow Court addressed the regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, which authorizes the Commissioner to relax procedural rules in his discretion "where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice." Kaprow at 590-91. The Court observed that the Commissioner did not consider relaxation of the 90 day limitation period. Id. at 591. Moreover, the Court concurred with the State Board of Education where it specifically found no circumstances surrounding Kaprow's claims to warrant relaxation of the 90 day filing requirement under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. It was the Court's review of the record which demonstrated to it that the State Board did not act arbitrarily or unreasonably in declining to enlarge or relax the 90 day limitation period. The Court observed and found that Kaprow was aware of his claim, "yet he failed to file his petition within ninety days." Kaprow at 591.

Having considered the arguments of the parties and having reviewed the entire record, I FIND nothing therein that warrants a relaxation of the 90 day filing requirement under to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. Petitioner had sufficient time from her discovery on February 23, 1993, to advance her claim against the Board before the Commissioner in a timely manner. Petitioner failed to do so.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner, Ruth A. Cahn, failed to file her petition within ninety days as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that pursuant to the holding in Kaprow, supra., petitioner's Petition of Appeal is time-barred and must be dismissed.

ORDER

It is accordingly ORDERED that Summary Decision is hereby ENTERED on BEHALF of the BOARD OF EDUCATION of the BOROUGH of DEAL.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Petition of Appeal of Ruth A. Cahn be and is hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. RUTH A. CAHN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF DEAL, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions argue that the ALJ's decision purports to resolve the within matter on a basis which was neither asserted by the Board in its motion for summary decision nor supported by the record. Specifically, she avers that the ALJ's conclusion to dismiss her petition was predicated on his determination that her Petition of Appeal was untimely, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), since it was received by the Commissioner on May 27, 1993, three days after expiration of the 90-day filing timeline. Petitioner asserts that the record does not disclose such filing date relied upon by the ALJ and, in fact, exhibits and testimony establish that the petition was filed with the Commissioner on May 21, 1993. As support for this contention, petitioner refers to an acknowledgement of the receipt of her petition issued by the Department of Education dated May 24, 1993, (Exhibit C), which clearly indicates that her petition was filed on May 21, 1993.

Petitioner maintains that since the ALJ never provided an explanation for his utilization of the May 27, 1993 date and since there appears to be no justification for the use of that date in the record, it must be assumed that the ALJ either incorrectly noted the filing date or determined that the acknowledgement notice was somehow incorrect by utilizing some reference apparently outside of the record. She argues that, in either case, the Commissioner is compelled to intervene to correct this problem.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's determination that the petitioner's cause of action in this matter ensued on February 23, 1993, but he does not concur with the ALJ's conclusion that the within Petition of Appeal is untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). It is noted that the acknowledgment form issued by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on May 24, 1993 confirms that the within Petition of Appeal was filed on May 21, 1993, three days prior to the expiration of the 90-day limitation period. (Also see petitioner's certification dated February 17, 1994 stating that such petition was transmitted to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on May 21 via fax.) It is further noted that the record substantiates that the Petition of Appeal was also faxed to the Board on May 21, 1993. The Commissioner finds the ALJ's reliance on a filing date of May 27, 1993 understandable given that the Commissioner's review indicates that the May 21 facsimile copy of the petition in this matter is inexplicably absent from the record before him. The copy of the petition which is contained in the record is the hard copy back-up of the faxed petition which was subsequently mailed by the petitioner and received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on May 27, 1993.

Accordingly, having found that petitioner's appeal in the instant matter is timely, the Commissioner hereby reverses the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and remands the matter for a plenary hearing on the merits of petitioner's allegations against the Board.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE LOWER CAMDEN COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The announced results of the balloting for one member of the Board of Education from the constituent district of Waterford Township for a full term of three years, and for the General Fund proposition of the regional district, at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994 in the Lower Camden County Regional School District, Camden County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Ralph J. Condo	444	5	449
Gary H. Lake	446	0	446
GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION
YES votes	2042	12	2054
NO votes	2052	20	2072

Pursuant to separate letter requests from defeated candidate Gary H. Lake filed April 25, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, and from the Board of Education filed April 25, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.3, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education was directed to conduct a recount of ballots cast for the Waterford Township seat on the Board and for the General Fund proposition of the regional district. The recount of General Fund votes was conducted on April 29, 1994, and the recount of Board member votes on May 4, 1994, at the Voting Machine Warehouse, South Jersey Port Corporation, Camden. On the same dates, at the parties' request, absentee ballots were recounted at the Camden County Board of Elections pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner for the 1994 annual school election under P.L. 1994, c. 6.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Ralph J. Condo	444	5	449
Gary H. Lake	446	0	446
GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION
YES votes	2042	12	2054
NO votes	2045	20	2065

As indicated, there was no change in the tally for member of the Board of Education and the minor change in the tally for the General Fund proposition was not sufficient to alter the outcome of the election. Thus, both outcomes remain the same as announced at the conclusion of the election.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's authorized representative.

* * * * *

Upon review, the Commissioner accepts the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own.

Accordingly, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Ralph J. Condo is deemed elected to a full term of three years as the Waterford Township member of the regional Board of Education, and the General Fund proposition of the district is deemed defeated by the voters.

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each and for one member for a one-year unexpired term at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994, in the School District of the Borough of Gibbsboro, Camden County, were as follows:

FOR THE THREE THREE-YEAR TERMS

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	WRITE-IN	TOTAL
Dorothy Warner	116	1	0	117
Peter Carbone	0	0	20	20
Howard Leonard	0	0	15	15

FOR THE ONE-YEAR UNEXPIRED TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLL	ABSENTEE	WRITE-IN	TOTAL
James Smith	0	0	2	2
Thomas Egan, Jr.	0	0	2	2
Carol Cressman	0	0	2	2
Barry Campbell	0	0	2	2

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(c), which requires recount and certification of results by the Commissioner in the event of a tie vote for members of the Board of Education, an authorized representative of the Commissioner from the office of the Camden County Superintendent of Schools was directed to recount ballots cast. The recount was conducted at the Voting Machine Warehouse, South Jersey Port Corporation, Camden, on April 29, 1994. Absentee and write-in ballots were counted on the same day at the office of the Camden County Board of Elections.

At the conclusion of the recount, the totals were as follows:

FOR THE THREE THREE-YEAR TERMS

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	WRITE-IN	TOTAL
Dorothy Warner	116	1	0	117
Peter Carbone	0	0	47	47
Howard Leonard	0	0	36	36

FOR THE ONE-YEAR UNEXPIRED TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	WRITE-IN	TOTAL
Thomas Egan, Jr.	0	0	24	24
Carol Cressman	0	0	22	22
Mark Pratt	0	0	16	16

There were also 29 individuals who received less than five write-in votes each.

There were some significant changes on recount, due primarily to inclusion by the Commissioner's representative of write-in ballots lacking a mark or check alongside the written name but otherwise correctly cast. On recount, the original results for the winning candidates for the three three-year terms remain the same as derived from the balloting of April 19, 1994. However, the results of the recount for the one-year unexpired term indicates that Thomas Egan, Jr. received the most write-in votes. Therefore, it is recommended by the Commissioner's representative that Thomas Egan, Jr. be seated on the Board of Education for the one-year unexpired term.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Dorothy Warner, Peter Carbone and Howard Leonard have been, as announced at the conclusion of the election, elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education. The Commissioner further finds and determines that, following recount, a tie for the one-year seat no longer remains and that Thomas Egan, Jr., has been elected to the unexpired term on the Board.

This is a transcript of the substance of the administrative law judge's oral initial decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This decision is based solely on the argument of counsel that has just concluded and a review of the papers that were filed by the Board of Education of the Morris Hills Regional School District. No papers in oppostion were filed by the Board of Elections. Instead, the Board relied on the oral argument of counsel. The papers I have before me consist of the transmittal by Ms. Butler, a brief on behalf of the petitioner, and a copy of the verified petition, the substance of which has been restated in part in the brief. There are exhibits attached to the papers submitted, marked A through I.

The exhibits are: First, an affidavit of the Business Administrator of the Morris County Superintendent of Schools. Exhibit B is information to the County Superintendents and County School Business Administrator's from the Assistant Commissioner of Education pertaining to clarification and additional information regarding the election calendar and absentee ballots. Exhibit C is letter advice from the Attorney General regarding the April 19, 1994 school board elections. Exhibit D is the election results. Exhibit E are copies of the civilian absentee ballots. Exhibit F are the results of the absentee ballots certified by the Morris County Board of Elections. Exhibit G is an affidavit of Jane A. McNasby, Superintendent of the Morris Hills Regional Board of Education. Exhibit H is an affidavit by Kim McGinley, whose ballot is in question here. Exhibit I is an affidavit of James Davidson, Postmaster of the U.S. Postal Service in Morristown, with proof of service.

I FIND the following facts by a preponderance of the credible evidence:

On April 19, 1994, there was a Board of Education election in the Morris Hills Regional District.

By special legislation, the rules relating to receipt of absentee ballots were relaxed.

Such ballots needed to be mailed and postmarked no later than 8:00 p.m. on election day, April 19th.

In order to be counted, an absentee ballot had to be received by the County Board of Elections before 4:00 p.m.on April 22.

Kim McGinley placed her ballot in the mail slot at her school in Trenton on April 18, 1994, prior to the April 19th required date for mailing. She affixed a postage stamp to it.

The ballot was received by the County Board of Elections on the day after the election, April 20, 1994, and two days prior to the date on which the ballot had to have been received in order to be counted. The only flaw in the situation was the absence of the postmark.

The Office of Morris County Board of Elections marked the envelope as having been received on April 20, 1994 at 1:10 p.m. An employee of the Morris County Board of Elections noted that it was not stamped or postmarked. There is no question that it was received through the usual device by which the Board of Elections receives its daily mail.

The Morris County Board of Elections would not open the absentee ballot, and would not count it, under the circumstances, because of the lack of the postmarking. The Morris County Board of Elections was following the letter of the law when it rejected the ballot.

This issue in the case has the ability to directly affect the outcome of the election, because without this one vote it was a tie.

The moving papers and the brief, together with Mr. Solomon's argument, refer to just about all of the applicable law that I know of in this situation. Both parties have referred to the same statutes and to many of the same cases, plus several others that were cited in oral argument. I have no disagreement at all with any of the case law or with the statutes cited. However, I have found no authority that indicates anything directly on point. One thing I agree with wholeheartedly is the reason for the detailed and stringent regulations involved in this situation. That is to protect the public from any possibility of fraud or unfairness. Certainly, Mr. Solomon is correct when he indicates that, when the absentee ballots are to be counted three days after the election, there is a greater potential for fraud, because of the delay, and the added possibility that somehow a vote might be cast with knowledge by the voter of the completed tally. I do not find that to be the case here.

According to the uncontested facts, there was no actual or attempted fraud or unfair dealing. Ms. McGinley did indeed post her ballot in the mail on the day before the polls were closed on April 19. At the time she did so, which was one day earlier, she had no way of knowing what the election result would be. I think that the purpose of the cautions involved in the statutes and regulations and in the actions of position taken by the Board of Elections has been served. Some kind of positive and strong assurance must be shown that there has been no foul play, no unfairness, and not even a suggestion of foul play. That showing has been made. Furthermore, the matter has been taken totally out of the political process and put into the hands of an independent forum that can make a decision such as this.

Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that Ms. McGinley's ballot was properly cast. I also CONCLUDE that she should not be deprived of the right to cast her ballot and have it cancelled because of the obvious omission of a postmark, and for that reason only. The general concepts involved in this situation can be found in the March 22, 1994 clarification letter from the Department of Education to the County Superintendent and to the Hudson County school district business administrator. I refer to the next to the last paragraph of that letter, which states the reason for the extension of the deadline for the receipt of absentee ballots by the County Board Of Elections. The last sentence is revealing. It states that the reason for utilizing the postmark date of April 19 for the mailing of those ballots is to preclude the preparation and mailing of absentee ballots after the closing of the polls and the announcements of preliminary results of the election. That supports my previous statement of the assurances that the public is entitled to.

I CONCLUDE that there was no preparation or mailing of this absentee ballot after the closing of the polls. The aims and goals referred to above have been accomplished in this case.

Having concluded that Ms. McGinley's ballot should be counted, I therefore ORDER that the emergent relief sought by the Board of Education of the Morris Hills Regional School District is GRANTED.

This oral decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION which, by law, is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Department of Education does not so act in forty-five (45) days andunless such time limit is otherwise extended, this oral decisionshall become a final decisionin accordancewith N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

END OF TRANSCRIPT

JUNE 2, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF BOUND BROOK : DECISION BOROUGH, SOMERSET COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994, for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Carol Ann Koupiaris	468	3	471
Howard Wagner (write-in)	158	4	162*
Ted Settle (write-in)	154	1	155
Alison Ward (write-in)	142	2	144
Ed Southgate (write-in)	34	1	35

There were an additional number of write-in votes cast for other candidates which were not significant in number. There were also a number of votes cast for the above-listed people which were counted as separate names due to minor variants in spelling and like errors.

In response to a letter request from Alison Ward, filed April 26, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the office of

*In the election results reported to the County Superintendent by the district at the conclusion of the election, Mr. Wagner's tallies were given as 154 at one polling place, 4 at another, and 4 absentee ballots; however, his total vote was given as 158. The correct total, which affects neither the announced results nor the results on recount, is reflected herein.

the Somerset County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount of machines was conducted on May 9, 1994 at the Somerset County election machine warehouse in the VA Depot, Route 206, Hillsborough Township. The recount of write-in votes was conducted at the county administration building in Somerville in the Board of Elections office. A comparison of voting authorities to the poll lists took place on this same day at the office of the Somerset County Superintendent of Schools.

A comparison of poll lists, ballots cast and voting authorities results in differences at the following polling places. The following differences are noted for the record.

POLLING PLACE	NUMBER ON POLL LIST	NUMBER OF BALLOTS CAST	NUMBER OF VOTING AUTHORITIES
Lafayette School	419	419	417
Smalley School	512	512	508

The machines were recounted and checked. It was noted that slots 4 through 8 were locked out to prevent write-in votes in this area. It was also noted that on the face of the machine the name Alison Ward was written in ballpoint pen. This name was covered with masking tape and was not visible without removing the tape.

A recount of the paper rolls used in the machines to cast write-in votes resulted in a number of ballots being voided. Voided ballots were:

V1, 7, 8, 9, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 because more than one name was written in the voting slot.

V2 and V24 because the candidate listed on the face of the machine was also recorded as a write-in.

V3 4, 5, 6, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 because the write-in votes were cast in the wrong slots.

V10, 11, 13, 14 because there were two (2) write-in votes for the same person on the same row.

V16, 17 because the write-ins were for Jane Doe and John Doe.

There were no votes challenged at the recount.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Carol Ann Koupiaris	468	3	471
Alison Ward	171	2	173
Howard Wagner	167	4	171
Ted Settle	165	1	166
Ed Southgate	41	1	42

As indicated, the changes in tally resulted in a change in the outcome of the election, with Alison Ward obtaining the seat formerly announced as won by Ted Settle.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own. In particular, the Commissioner notes that his representative's determinations with respect to voided ballots are consistent with prior decisional law, such as In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District, Monmouth County, 1987 S.L.D. 1140, aff'd State Board 1146, and the precedent cited therein (more than one vote per slot); In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Haddonfield Borough, Camden County, decided June 17, 1981 (write-in vote for candidate on printed ballot); and In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of East Amwell

Township, Hunterdon County, decided May 14, 1993, and the precedent cited therein, primarily In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Shamong Township, Burlington County, 1986 S.L.D. 1347, 2438 (votes cast in wrong slots).

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Carol Ann Koupiaris and Howard Wagner have been elected to full terms of three years each on the Bound Brook Board of Education; however, on recount, Alison Ward, rather than Ted Settle, has been elected to the remaining term.

The Commissioner further directs that a copy of this decision be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where an inquiry is pending into the conduct of the above-captioned election. It is noted that the results of this election, as set forth herein, remain valid unless and until a contrary determination is made by the Commissioner in his decision on inquiry.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

The machine recount was conducted on May 5, 1994 at the Morris County Voting Machine Warehouse, Highview Avenue, Cedar Knolls. Absentee ballots were recounted at the Morris County Board of Elections also on May 5, 1994, pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner for the 1994 election by P.L. 1994, c.6.

Record Closed: April 20, 1994 Decided: April 26, 1994

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter was opened to the Office of Administrative Law following transmittal from the Department of Education. Petitioner alleged that his tenure and seniority rights had been violated in connection with an action of the Board purportedly making him a 3/5ths supervisor. Following transmittal the parties entered into discussions that have led to the execution of a stipulation of settlement and the placement of the settlement on the record in open hearing. Pursuant to the terms of the settlement, the petitioner, who has become ill since the time of the Board's action, and the Board, have agreed to a resolution of the issues in dispute between them including the placement of the respondent on an extended sick leave pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-7 during the period of his disability, but not to exceed the period ending on and including December 31, 1995. The Stipulation provides for the petitioner's compensation during the extended sick leave and provides other terms and conditions regarding his employment during the extended sick leave. In addition, Mr. Magarello has agreed to resign his supervisory position effective the close of business March 23, 1994, with the understanding that he is giving up any existing tenure rights in the district. Mr. Magarello testified under oath at the hearing concerning his understanding and acceptance of the settlement, which he has entered into voluntarily. He described the particular medical difficulties affecting him and indicated that they had not in any way affected his ability to understand and enter into the settlement. His wife testified under oath in support of these positions.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and :

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Based upon the representations of counsel and the testimony of the petitioner and his spouse, I FIND that the terms and conditions of the settlement are acceptable and within the law and that they should be accepted. It is therefore, ORDERED that the parties shall comply with the terms and conditions of the stipulation of settlement, subject to its review and approval by the Commissioner of Education. The contested case shall be DISMISSED upon acceptance by the Commissioner.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

In the event that Petitioner believes that his disability ends prior to the conclusion of this extended leave, petitioner may request a return to active employment status but nothing contained herein shall be read to require or oblige Respondent to return Petitioner to such status, and Respondent's sole obligation shall be to pay compensation for such extended leave through December 31, 1995 as set forth herein, whereupon Petitioner's employment will be terminated. Petitioner shall receive compensation during such extended sick leave at an annual salary rate of $19,602.00 per annum. Petitioner shall be entitled to all Insurance and Health coverage during this period as provided by Article XI of the current Agreement between Respondent and the Hopewell Valley Administrators and Supervisors Association or any successor to such Agreement, which is scheduled to expire on June 30, 1995. A copy of the current Article XI is attached hereto as Exhibit A. Respondent agrees to deem that Petitioner satisfies the 20 hour per week standard for eligibility set forth therein and in Respondent's policies for purposes of these benefits. Petitioner waives any claim to any other leave, vacation, tuition reimbursement, salary adjustment or any other benefit under said Agreement or any other collective bargaining agreement in Respondent's district.

6. Respondent will permanently and irrevocably resign from any and all tenured employment with Respondent on and as of March 23, 1994 and shall submit a letter of resignation to that effect prior to the entry of this stipulation in the form set forth as Exhibit B. Respondent will also simultaneously execute a notarized Release of Claims in the form set forth in Exhibit C.

7. The parties stipulate and agree that this settlement is voluntary, consistent with law and fully dispositive of all issues now in contention between them, and that, upon the approval of this settlement, a order of dismissal with prejudice shall be entered in the within matter.

JUNE 3, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF PEMBERTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each, and for one member for an unexpired term of one year, at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994 in the School District of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
THREE-YEAR TERM
Stephen Moon	623	8	631
John C. Ulrich	610	4	614
Ingrid E. Campbell	594	7	601
Peter M. Montovani	423	2	425
Leon Rosenberg	350	3	353
UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM
Diane P. Stinney	381	3	384
UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM (WRITE-IN)
Tom Bridge	102	1	103
Bridge	61	0	61
Thomas Bridge	31	4	35
T. Bridge	2	0	2
Mr. Bridge	1	0	1
Thomas Bridges	1	0	1
Bridge Tom	1	0	1
Tom Bribbe	1	0	1
Tom Bridges	1	0	1
Glenn Malpeta	1	0	1

There was a great deal of confusion on election night as to which write-in votes should be counted. Write-in votes were counted for Tom Bridge, Thomas Bridge, Bridge, Mr. Bridge, and T. Bridge regardless of the line number on which they were written.

Following a request from Thomas Bridge, filed April 26, 1994, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, the Commissioner of Education directed an authorized representative from the office of the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 16, 1994 at the Burlington County Superintendent of Elections Office, Eayrestown Road, Mount Holly. The absentee ballots and write-in votes were recounted at the same location, the former pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner for the 1994 election by P.L. 1994, c. 6.

Prior to conducting the recount of write-in votes, the Commissioner's representative announced that he would count any write-in vote for Thomas Bridge that was written in as either Thomas Bridge or Tom Bridge and opposite line number six. At the conclusion of the recount, the totals were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
THREE-YEAR TERM
Stephen Moon	632	8	640
John C. Ulrich	610	4	614
Ingrid E. Campbell	603	7	610
Peter M. Montovani	432	2	434
Leon Rosenberg	350	3	353
UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM
Diane P. Stinney	420	3	423
UNEXPIRED ONE-YEAR TERM (WRITE-IN)
Tom/Thomas Bridge	122	5	127
Glen Malpeta	1	0	1

There were a significant number of write-in votes written below line number six for various candidates that were not counted.

There were some significant changes on recount, but the original results for the winning candidates for the three three-year terms and for the one-year unexpired term remain the same as derived from the balloting of April 19, 1994. Therefore, it is recommended by the Commissioner's Representative that Ingrid E. Campbell, John C. Ulrich, and Stephen Moon were elected to full terms of three years and Diane P. Stinney to the unexpired term of one year on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own, with the exception of the apparent determination not to count in the tally for Thomas Bridge write-in votes properly cast opposite line six but giving only Mr. Bridge's last name, first initial and last name, or full name with minor misspelling, there being no evidence of any other person with the same or similar name having campaigned as a write-in candidate. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of the Township of Washington, Gloucester County, Commissioner's Decision of May 21, 1987, relying on In re Fifteen Registered Voters, Cty. of Sussex, 129 N.J. Super. 296 (App. Div. 1974). It is not possible to ascertain from the present record how many, if any, of the votes listed above under "Bridge," "Mr. Bridge," "T. Bridge," "Thomas Bridges," "Tom Bridges" and "Bridge Tom" were cast opposite line six, as would be required for them to be counted in Mr. Bridge's final tally. However, even inclusion of all such votes would not be sufficient to alter the outcome of the election, so that no further determination with regard to these votes is necessary herein.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Ingrid E. Campbell, John C. Ulrich and Stephen Moon were elected to full terms of three years each, and Diane P. Stinney to an unexpired term of one year, on the Pemberton Township Board of Education.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE :
BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN REGIONAL : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT, CONSTITUENT : DECISION
DISTRICT OF BRIDGEWATER TOWNSHIP, : SOMERSET COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994, for three members of the regional Board of Education from the constituent district of Bridgewater Township for full terms of three years each, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Joanne Kane	2,489	33	2,522
Thomas D. Del Franco	2,451	38	2,489
Nancy Sobelson	2,429	35	2,464
Michael F. Ryan	2,134	25	2,159
Clara L. Navarrete	2,024	27	2,051
Dr. Martha A.T. Marciscano	1,999	32	2,031

In response to a letter request from Michael F. Ryan filed April 25, 1994, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 14-63.2, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the office of the Somerset County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 28, 1994 at the Somerset County election machine warehouse in the VA Depot, Route 206, Hillsborough Township. The comparison of voting authorities to poll lists took place on April 28 at the election warehouse and was continued on May 3, 1994 in the office of the Somerset County Superintendent of Schools.

A comparison of poll lists, ballots cast and voting authorities resulted in differences at the following polling places: Hamilton School, Van Houton School, Adamsville School and Crim School. The following differences are noted for the record.

POLLING PLACES	# ON POLL LIST	# BALLOTS CAST	# VOTING AUTHORITIES
Crim	1,310	1,319	1,295
Van Houton	1,100	1,099	1,097
Hamilton	907	907	901
Adamsville	726	726	722

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Joanne Kane	2,569	33	2,602
Thomas D. Del Franco	2,451	38	2,489
Nancy Sobelson	2,439	35	2,474
Michael F. Ryan	2,154	25	2,179
Clara L. Navarrete	2,024	27	2,051
Dr. Martha A.T. Marciscano	1,999	32	2,031

The difference in tally for Michael F. Ryan is attributed to the Hamilton School count. This count was 20 less than the two-machine total of 170 plus 183, a total of 353, not the 333 figure recorded.

The difference in tally for Nancy Sobelson is attributed to the count at the Clubhouse - The Bridle Club polling place. This count was 10 less than the two-machine total 76 plus 25, a total of 101 not the 91 figure recorded.

There was one write-in vote for Donald Duck, which is not included in the candidate list. The original intent of the recount request by Mr. Ryan was to determine if the names in the machines were in the proper order. All machines had the names of candidates in the order as assigned in the drawing for the ballot.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Joanne Kane, Thomas D. Del Franco and Nancy Sobelson were duly elected to full terms of three years each to represent Bridgewater Township on the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional Board of Education at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994.

In response to a letter request from Timothy Schmitt filed April 27, 1994, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:41-63.2, the Commissioner of Education directed an authorized representative from the office of the Morris County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 4, 1994 at the Morris County Voting Machine Warehouse, Highview Avenue, Cedar Knolls. Absentee ballots were recounted at the Morris County Board of Elections also on May 5, 1994 pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner by P.L. 1994, c.6.

At the conclusion of the recount, the totals were as follows:

MORRIS TOWNSHIP SEATS	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

There were no changes on recount, so the names of the winning candidates remain the same as derived from the balloting of April 19, 1994. Therefore, it is recommended by the Commissioner's representative that the results as announced at the conclusion of the election remain unaltered.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Joan A. Johnson and John Schafer were elected to full terms of three years each to represent Morris Township, and Jamil AlRazi to a full term of three years to represent Morristown, on the Morris School District Board of Education.

The Commissioner further directs that a copy of this decision be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where an inquiry is pending into the conduct of the above-captioned election. In this regard, it is noted that the results of this election, as set forth herein, remain valid unless and until a contrary determination is made by the Commissioner in his decision on inquiry.

The announced results of the balloting at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994, for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each, in the School District of Oldmans Township, Salem County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
William Keating	138	0	138

Charles K. Perry, Sr. (write-in)	96	0	96
Alice Percheski	83	0	83
Michael Sutton (write-in)	4	0	4
Cheryl McGowan (write-in)	1	0	1
Kathy Pedrick (write-in)	1	0	1

In response to a letter request filed on April 28, 1994 by Alice Percheski pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the office of the Salem County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of ballots cast. The recount of paper ballots cast for Percheski and the write-in candidate who defeated her was conducted on May 16, 1994 at the office of the Salem County Superi request that the recount include all ballots, including absentee ballots pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner for the 1994 school election by P.L. 1994, c. 6, was rendered unnecessary by the absence of any such ballots in this election.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally of uncontested ballots for the affected candidates was as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Alice Percheski	82	0	82
Charles K. Perry, Sr. (write-in)	78	0	78

There were twenty-two (22) contested ballots, which were designated as C-1 through C-22 for determination by the Commissioner on the following basis:

> Ballots C-1, 2, 4, 8, 9, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 21 were marked "Charles Perry" with no middle initial or designation as "Sr." Ballots C-2, 8 and 16 also failed to have a check or mark in the box to the left of the candidate's name.
>
> Ballots C-5, 11, 12, 13, 14, 19 and 22 were marked "Charles Perry, Sr." with no middle initial. Ballot C-5 also failed to have a check or mark in the box to the left of the candidate's name.
>
> Ballots C-6, 7, 10 and 20 were marked "Mr. Perry" or "Perry." Ballot C-10 also failed to have a check or mark in the box to the left of the candidate's name.
>
> Ballot C-3 was marked "Charles Berry."

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings with respect to uncontested ballots. With respect to contested ballots as described above, the Commissioner finds and determines that all of these ballots should be counted for Charles K. Perry, Sr. as it is well established that last names only, lack of middle initials or appellations such as "Sr." and "Jr." and minor misspellings will not render ballots void where they may reasonably be attributed to a particular candidate and there is no evidence that any person with the same or similar name actively campaigned for the office at issue. In re Fifteen Registered Voters of Sussex County, 129 N.J. Super. 296 (App. Div. 1974) and subsequent Commissioner decisions such as In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Washington Township, Gloucester County, decided May 21, 1987. Likewise, it is by now well established that a mark or check in the square alongside a write-in candidate's name is not necessary in order for a vote to be counted for that candidate. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of the Township of Eastampton, Burlington County, 1979 S.L.D. 390 and subsequent cases, overruling prior decisions holding mark or check necessary for valid vote.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that the final tally for candidates Perry and Percheski is as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Charles K. Perry, Sr. (write-in)	100	0	100
Alice Percheski	82	0	82

The Commissioner further finds and determines that, as announced at the conclusion of the election, William Keating, David Sanderlin and Charles K. Perry, Sr. were elected to full terms of three years each on the Oldmans Township Board of Education.

HEARING OF JACQUELINE HOLMES-	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SYNOPSIS

Tenure charges of unbecoming conduct were filed with the Commissioner against respondent teacher by the Department of Corrections on grounds that respondent had engaged in an improper relationship with an inmate, thus compromising the security of the institution and violating established procedures and guidelines. Concurrently, CWA filed Unfair Labor Charges with PERC, alleging that tenure charges were filed in retaliation for union activities and because of anti-union animus.

Following transmittal of both matters to OAL by their respective agencies, a joint order was entered consolidating the matters for hearing and establishing a three-step review process wherein the initial decision would be first reviewed by PERC for determination on the Unfair Labor Charges, then forwarded to the Commissioner for determination on the tenure charges, including a determination as to whether they were brought for legitimate business reasons, and then returned to PERC for consideration of specialized relief under labor law as appropriate.

The initial decision found no basis for CWA's Unfair Labor Charges, and in its April 29, 1994 final agency decision, PERC dismissed CWA's complaint. The initial decision further found that tenure charges were brought by the Department for legitimate business reasons and that they were fully sustained by the weight of evidence. ALJ recommended dismissal of respondent from tenured employment.

Commissioner affirmed findings and determination of ALJ on tenure charges and ordered respondent's dismissal as of the date of Commissioner's decision. Matter was further forwarded to State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a). In view of PERC's dismissal of CWA complaint, matter was not returned to PERC for specialized relief.

Record Closed: June 28, 1993 Decided: December 29, 1993

BEFORE MARY ANN BURGESS, ALJ/TA:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Jacqueline Holmes-Williams, a tenured teacher employed by the New Jersey Department of Corrections at Riverfront State Prison, was charged with conduct unbecoming a public employee and teacher. It was alleged that, contrary to Departmental policy, Ms. Holmes-Williams participated in an improper relationship with an inmate which compromised the security of the institution.

Ms. Holmes-Williams was specifically charged with engaging ". . . in improper and unauthorized correspondence with this inmate" and doing so ". . . surreptitiously to avoid detection." It was further charged that this > . . . relationship, as revealed through intercepted correspondence, is one that clearly exceeds the normal and expected bounds of the professional relationship between teacher and student or that relationship which should exist between correctional staff and inmate.

>
> [Petition for Dismissal]

Ms. Holmes-Williams denied the charges. She is presently suspended with pay pending the outcome of these tenure charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

An Unfair Practice Charge was thereafter filed with the Public Employment Relations Commission. It was alleged therein that the tenure charges, certified against Ms. Holmes-Williams, were filed in retaliation for her union activities and that the Department of Corrections had demonstrated anti-union animus. It was specifically alleged that Ms. Holmes-Williams

> . . . a certified shop steward for the Professional Unit and a Union activist filed a contractual grievance on February 6, 1992, against the Riverfront Administration concerning the development of a Performance Assessment Review (PAR). Prior to the filing of the grievance, Williams had filed other grievances and had represented coworkers who had filed grievances and complaints against the administration. Williams also supported other unfair labor practices filed against Riverfront State Prison.
>
> [Unfair Labor Charge]

Both the Tenure Charges and the Unfair Labor Charge were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and consolidated for hearing in a single proceeding. The specific issues which must be resolved by this tribunal are:

1. Whether Jacqueline Holmes-Williams was engaged in activity protected under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act and whether that activity, if protected, was a substantial or motivating factor in bringing tenure charges against her;

2. Whether the tenure charges were filed against Ms. Holmes-Williams for legitimate educational or business reasons; and

3. Whether the actions of the Department of Corrections requires specialized remedial relief under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, on August 14, 1992, the New Jersey Department of Corrections formally filed tenure charges against Jacqueline Holmes-Williams with the Commissioner of Education. These charges were transmitted by the Commissioner to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing on September 4, 1992.

A prehearing conference was conducted on September 25, 1992, which resulted in an Order dated September 29, 1992 which specified:

> An Unfair Labor Charge has been filed on behalf of Jacqueline Holmes-Williams with P.E.R.C. When that matter is set for hearing, a motion will be made for consolidation and for a "Predominant Interest" determination.

The Unfair Labor Charge had been filed on July 16, 1992, with the Public Employment Relations Commission by Local 1040, Communication Workers of America, AFL/CIO against the State of New Jersey. A Complaint and Notice of Hearing was issued on September 11, 1992. An Answer on behalf of the State was filed with P.E.R.C. on October 14, 1992.

In accordance with the terms of the Prehearing Order, counsel for Jacqueline Holmes-Williams moved for consolidation and a predominant interest determination while a cross-motion was filed on behalf of the State. Counsel for both parties agreed that the two administrative proceedings should be consolidated for hearing in a single administrative proceeding. However, counsel for Ms. Holmes-Williams contended that there should be no determination of predominant interest. Rather ". . . both agencies should review a recommended decision and apply their respective statutes" (Rb3-20 to 21). The State argued that the Commissioner of Education has the predominant interest and could ". . . dispose of all issues, including those occasioned by the Unfair Labor Practice charge . . . with sufficient expertise and competence" (Pb3-5 to 7).

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.2(c), oral argument was heard on January 26, 1993. Thereafter, a proposed Order of Consolidation and Predominant Interest, dated January 29, 1993, was submitted to the respective agency heads. It was recommended that the Education and P.E.R.C. matters be consolidated and that the > . . . New Jersey Commissioner of Education has the predominant interest in these matters and, following the issuance of an Initial Decision by the Administrative Law Judge, . . . [should] render the Final Decision herein; and

>
> . . . following the issuance of the Final Decision by the Commissioner of Education, the entire record . . . be forwarded to the Public Employment Relations Commission for consideration of the grant of any specific relief which may be solely within its statutory powers.

In a Joint Order entered by the Chairman of the Public Employment Relations Commission on February 25, 1993, and by the Commissioner of Education on March 5, 1993, the Order proposed by the Administrative Law Judge herein was substantially modified. While the Joint Order consolidated the two proceedings for hearing, it established a three-step review of the Initial Decision to be issued herein.

> (a) At the first step, the Public Relations Employment Commission will decide whether Jacqueline Holmes-Williams was engaged in activity protected under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act and whether that activity, if protected, was a substantial or motivating factor in the bringing of tenure charges;
>
> (b) At the second step, the Commissioner of Education will determine whether the bringing of tenure charges was for legitimate business reasons and will issue a Final Decision on the tenure charges; and
> (c) At the third and final step, the matter will be returned to the Public Employment Relations Commission for consideration of specialized remedial relief under its Act.

During the pendency of the consolidation motion, the parties engaged in extensive discovery. As part of this process, counsel for Ms. Holmes-Williams, moved for discovery of certain portions of the State's investigatory file. Counsel for the Department of Corrections opposed the release of the requested documents arguing that the material would disclose the identity of the inmate informant and expose him to potential harm. Counsel for the State also argued that certain requested documents would invade the privacy of staff members. Following an in camera inspection of the controverted documents, this court determined that the deletion of all identifiers from the material would satisfy the Department's security concerns while enabling Ms. Holmes-Williams to prepare and present her defense. An Order was, therefore, entered on March 17, 1993, directing the release of the documents as redacted, to Ms. Holmes-Williams.* Subsequent discovery problems were resolved informally by means of a telephone conference conducted on March 30, 1993.

The plenary hearing on these consolidated matters was conducted on April 1, 2, 12, and 23 and on May 17, and 18, 1993. The April 13, 1993, hearing was conducted at Northern State Prison in Newark, New Jersey to permit Inmate Hillard Phillips to testify as part of respondent's case. Following the close of the hearing, written summations were filed on behalf of the Department of Corrections on June 25, 1993, and on behalf of Ms. Holmes-Williams on June 28, 1993. The time for the filing of this initial decision has been extended to December 23, 1993, by Orders of Extension granted herein. On December 6, 1993, counsel for the State Department of Corrections filed a submission updating the status of a case cited in his written summation. Counsel for Ms. Holmes-Williams filed a response on December 15, 1993.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

The State Department of Corrections commenced the hearing by presenting its evidence in support of the tenure charges filed against Ms. Holmes-Williams. In order to avoid duplication of testimony and unnecessary delay, counsel for the Department was permitted to also elicit testimony from his witnesses concerning the unfair labor charge filed by Ms. Holmes-Williams. Thereafter, counsel for Ms. Holmes-Williams, presented evidence in support of the unfair labor charge and, where appropriate, questioned her witnesses concerning the tenure charges.

The Department of Corrections called as its first witness, Barney Dyrnes, a Senior Investigator assigned to investigate the alleged relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Hillard Phillips. Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he has been employed by the Department for seventeen years and has served as an investigator for the Internal Affairs Unit since September 1992. This witness graduated from the Correction Officers' Training Academy and has taken accredited courses offered by the Division of Criminal Justice.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he has investigated numerous cases involving suspected relationships between staff members and inmates. These relationships, if they exist, are extremely dangerous within a correctional institution since they compromise staff members and often result in institutional disturbances. Senior Investigator Dyrnes further explained that these relationships are disruptive whether they are of an intimate nature or entirely platonic. Indeed, an inmate, as a first step, may simply try to be "friends" with a staff member. The inmate may then ask for a favor such as bringing contraband into the prison or carrying correspondence out of the institution. Once that has been accomplished, the inmate has achieved control over the staff member since he can threaten to inform the authorities.

According to Senior Investigator Dyrnes, the present matter began in August or September 1991, when Greg Bartkowski, Supervisor of Education at Riverfront, received an anonymous letter alleging inmate-staff relationships in the school area. This witness testified that he did not act on the anonymous letter. In order to proceed with an investigation, more credible information would be necessary. For example, if one staff member reported that another was paying too much attention to an inmate, Senior Investigator Dyrnes would take action.

This witness testified that after the receipt of the anonymous letter, he received further information from a reliable source -- an inmate who had previously provided information. This informant reported that Inmate Hillard Phillips and Ms. Holmes-Williams were seen caressing and kissing. This informant produced a statement on September 15, 1991, which Senior Investigator Dyrnes took to the administration of Riverside State Prison (P-1). This same inmate produced a second statement on September 21, 1991, concerning the improper use of A.M.I.R.A. funds and again implicating Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips (P-2).

These two statements resulted in the transfer of Inmate Phillips to Bayside State Prison. This transfer was approved by Thomas Hundley, Superintendent of Riverside State Prison. However, Investigator Dyrnes testified that no immediate action was taken with regard to Ms. Holmes-Williams. It was thought that as a result of Inmate Phillips's transfer, the relationship would simply die. He did, however, instruct Greg Bartkowski to observe Ms. Holmes-Williams to see if she were involved in any improprieties. A request was also made to monitor all correspondence to, and from, Inmate Phillips at Bayside State Prison (P-4). This request was made to Senior Investigator Keith Arch, Senior Investigator Dyrnes's counterpart at Bayside State Prison. Bayside was also provided with Ms. Holmes-Williams's picture and her identifying characteristics (P-5). By monitoring Inmate Phillips's mail, Senior Investigator Arch would review and, where pertinent, copy all incoming and outgoing mail. Once this process was completed, the mail would be sent on.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes explained that the decision to monitor Inmate Phillips's mail was his own, based on prior experience. No one asked or directed him to do so. If, after Inmate Phillips's transfer, there was no contact with Ms. Holmes-Williams, the matter would probably be closed with no further action taken against this staff member. However, Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that monitoring of Inmate Phillips's mail did disclose further contact with Ms. Holmes-Williams.

This witness first identified an outgoing letter from Inmate Phillips to Carson Edwards, a paroled ex-offender. In this letter, dated October 5, 1991, Inmate Phillips concluded that he would tell Edwards, at a later date "why I was sent here" (P-6). Thereafter, Senior Investigator Dyrnes identified an envelope addressed by Inmate Phillips to his sister, Mildred Knighton. Within that envelope was a second addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams together with a note requesting that his sister mail the second envelope to Ms. Holmes-Williams. The letter to Ms. Holmes-Williams contained directions to Bayside State Prison, as well as that institution's visiting hours. It concluded with "I love and miss you so much." (P-7). This witness testified that a check of Riverfront's records confirmed that Inmate Phillips had utilized Ms. Holmes-Williams' correct address. Senior Investigator Dyrnes further explained that any notations made on these documents were made by Senior Investigator Arch at Bayside State Prison where the monitoring of Inmate Phillips's mail took place.

The next correspondence identified by Senior Investigator Dyrnes was a large manila envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips's sister, Mildred Knighton. Within that large envelope was a second envelope addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams. Within that second envelope was a picture of a man and woman, engaged in a sex act, drawn on a piece of cloth (P-9). This witness then identified a piece of correspondence sent to Inmate Phillips from "Wamethia" Phillips (P-10). "Warenthia" Phillips is listed as Inmate Phillips's niece on his Visit Request form (P-8). This correspondence consisted of a card with a romantic verse and signed with an Ankh symbol.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes next identified correspondence written to Inmate Phillips from Carson Edwards. In this letter, Mr. Edwards suggests that there is something Inmate Phillips wants him to do and that he "will do it quick as I can for" Inmate Phillips (P-11). Among Inmate Phillips's monitored mail, this witness further identified a packet received from Senior Investigator Arch, which included an envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips from Warenthia Atkins, the same individual as Warenthia Phillips. Contained in this envelope was a birthday card "For My Husband", signed with an Ankh symbol. A second envelope to Inmate Phillips from Warenthia Atkins contained a birthday card, also signed with an Ankh, and a necklace of red and black beads. A photocopy of the necklace was included in the packet of material sent to Senior Investigator Dyrnes. Also included therein were two additional cards from Warenthia Atkins to Inmate Phillips and both signed with an Ankh (P-12).

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he received from Senior Investigator Arch on December 18, 1991, a copy of a letter sent by Inmate Phillips to Mr. Carson Edwards. In this letter Inmate Phillips informed Mr. Edwards that "Jacquline (Ms. Williams) is moving Saturday and she may need your services (business)." Inmate Phillips then provided Mr. Edwards with Ms. Holmes-Williams' address and concluded "I've already told her about your business. This note is in case I can't reach you by phone." (P-13) This witness emphasized that it is against the institution's security rules for inmates to have any personal information concerning staff members including their home addresses.

The next packet received from Bayside State Prison included a note from Inmate Phillips to his sister asking her to place an address label to Ms. Williams over the address already on an enclosed envelope (P-14). Senior Investigator Dyrnes further identified material which included a larger manila envelope from Inmate Phillips to his sister Mildred Knighton containing a second envelope addressed to "Ms. Jacquline Williams." Within the second envelope was a Valentine's Day card signed with the Ankh symbol as well as by "Phill" (P-15). Also received from Bayside State Prison, as monitored mail, was a letter from Inmate Phillips to Mr. Carson Edwards requesting Mr. Edwards to complete the ordering of a bud vase to be shipped to "Ms. Jacquline Williams" (P-16).

Senior Investigator Dyrnes next identified a copy of a letter sent by Inmate Pickett from Riverside State Prison to Inmate Phillips. This letter contained pictures of the Kwanzaa celebration at Riverside. this witness believed that Ms. Holmes-Williams appeared in one of the pictures but was uncertain because of its poor quality (P-17). Also received from Bayside was a second letter from Inmate Phillips to Carson Edwards concerning the bud vase for Ms. Holmes-Williams (P-18).

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he next received from Bayside State Prison a packet including a photograph of a package sent to Inmate Phillips from Warenthia Phillips. This witness pointed out that although Ms. Phillips's return address was listed as Paterson, the package was post marked "Camden" where Ms. Holmes-Williams resides (P-19 and P-21). The package contained a gift of food for Inmate Phillips together with a card signed with the Ankh symbol. On February 18, 1992, Senior Investigator Arch sent to Senior Investigator Dyrnes photocopies which showed two envelopes: the exterior from Inmate Phillips to his sister, Mildred Knighton and the interior one from Inmate Phillips to "Ms. Jacqueline Williams". Within the envelope addressed to Ms. Williams was a three page letter describing with explicit detail a sexual "fantasy". The communication was signed "phill" and contained the Ankh symbol (P-20).

After receipt of this last packet, Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he discussed the matter with his supervisor,Bruce Assante. He obtained authorization to confront Inmate Phillips and to search his property. This witness explained that he was not certain that they had seen all incoming correspondence. Senior Investigator Dyrnes wanted to determine if there was anything sent directly from Ms. Holmes-Williams to Inmate Phillips. On February 20, 1992, Senior Investigator Dyrnes interviewed Inmate Phillips at Bayside State Prison. Inmate Phillips was confronted with the results of the mail monitoring. He admitted that he had a relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams but he refused to give a written statement. Inmate Phillips argued that if they had seen the correspondence, they knew there was a relationship and they did not need his statement to establish it. He also denied that this relationship was sexual or that Ms. Holmes-Williams had brought any contraband into the institution. Senior Investigator Dyrnes described Inmate Phillips as a very sophisticated, intelligent individual. This witness testified that Inmate Phillips appeared genuinely concerned about possible disciplinary action which might be taken against Ms. Holmes-Williams.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that Inmate Phillips stated that he had destroyed the correspondence he had received from Ms. Holmes-Williams. However, while Inmate Phillips remained in the Board Room at Bayside State Prison, Senior Investigator Dyrnes searched his locker. This witness testified that among its contents were some items which he had seen as apart of the mail monitoring process and others which he had not. The items seized from Inmate Phillips's locker were described as:

(a) three-page love letter signed with the Ankh symbol (P-22);

(b) envelope from Warenthia Atkins to Inmate Phillips containing a birthday card "For My Husband" with an Ankh symbol for a signature (P-12);

(c) blank envelope containing romantic card with an Ankh symbol for a signature (P-23);

(d) blank envelope containing "Missing You" card with an Ankh symbol (P-24);

(e) blank envelope containing card with Ankh symbol (P-25);

(f) blank envelope containing card with handwritten notes and an Ankh signature (P-26);

(g) blank envelope containing card with Ankh symbol signature (P-27);

(h) envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips from Warenthia Phillips containing card with Ankh symbol signature (P-28);

(i) envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips from Warenthia Phillips containing card with handwritten notes and an Ankh symbol signature (P-29);

(j) blank envelope containing card with handwritten message and Ankh symbol signature (P-30);

(k) blank envelope containing card with handwritten message and an Ankh symbol signature (P-31);

(l) blank envelope containing printed insert (P-32);

(n) assorted cards previously obtained during the mail monitoring process (P-12).

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he put this correspondence in a bag and gave a receipt for the material taken from the Inmate's locker (P-34). This witness then returned to the Board room and confronted Inmate Phillips with the fact that the items of correspondence were found in his locker. Inmate Phillips put his head down and explained that he did not think his locker would be searched. He further stated that he wanted no part of anything that would hurt Ms. Williams. Senior Investigator Dyrnes further explained that the cards in the blank envelopes would not have been mailed and, therefore, would not have been intercepted by the mail monitoring process. Rather, these cards would probably have been passed by hand to Inmate Phillips.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that upon returning to Riverside State Prison, it was decided to confront Ms. Holmes-Williams. This interview took place on February 20, 1992, in the Board room at Riverfront. It was this witness's recollection that this meeting was attended by Ms. Holmes-Williams, as well as her union representative, Faith Matthews, and by Senior Investigators Susan Nelson and Ronald Randall and by Principal Investigator Bruce Assante.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he confronted Ms. Holmes-Williams with the material confiscated from Inmate Phillips's locker, including her picture. Ms. Holmes-Williams denied any involvement with Inmate Phillips. She stated she did not give him her picture and had no idea how he had obtained it. Ms. Holmes-Williams was informed that the documents would be submitted to a document examiner for analysis. Based on the accumulated evidence, Ms. Holmes-Williams was offered the opportunity to resign in good standing. Senior Investigator Dyrnes reported that Ms. Holmes-Williams declined the offer and the interview was terminated.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that other staff members facing charges of improper relationships with inmates, had been offered the option of resignation in good standing. That option has been discussed by this witness with his supervisor, Bruce Assante and had also been authorized by the Superintendent of the institution, Thomas Hundley. Since Ms. Holmes-Williams rejected the option of resigning in good standing, the interview was terminated. She was thereupon suspended with pay and advised not to enter the security perimeter of the institution.

Following her suspension, Senior Investigator Dyrnes arranged to meet with Ms. Holmes-Williams and her union representative, on February 24, 1992. During this meeting, Ms. Holmes-Williams acknowledged a random sampling of her Tour Reports containing large blocks of her handwriting (P-36 (1-A to 1-k)). This witness then had Ms. Holmes-Williams give exemplars of her hand writing: twenty-eight with her right hand and twenty-eight with her left hand. The exemplars required of Ms. Holmes-Williams were addresses (P-37). Senior Investigator Dyrnes reported that he and the union representative remained during the two and one-half hours required to complete the requested exemplars (P-37). He then marked the Tour Reports as well as the exemplars given by Ms. Holmes-Williams.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that on February 25, 1992, he sent these documents, together with those seized from Inmate Phillips at Bayside State Prison, to the Internal Affairs Unit at the State Department of Corrections. This witness requested that Internal Affairs compare the documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker with the exemplars of Ms. Holmes-Williams and determine the "author of the documents . . . seized from Inmate Phillips" (P-38). A report was received on April 22, 1992, from James J. Lennon, a Senior Investigator-Document Examiner with the Department's Internal Affairs Unit. In his report, Senior Investigator Lennon concluded that Ms. Holmes-Williams was "positively identified" as the writer of certain of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker (P-39).

In the opinion of Senior Investigator Dyrnes, the report from the Document Examiner supported the conclusion that Ms. Holmes-Williams had a relationship with Inmate Phillips and that the two went to extraordinary lengths to disguise that relationship.

This witness asserted that no one pressured him to go forward with this investigation. When he first received the allegations of a relationship, he recommended that the staff member and inmate be separated. Thereafter, as a result of the monitoring of the inmate's mail, more formal action was taken. Senior Investigator Dyrnes contended that he was not directed by anyone in authority to take these steps. Further, this witness testified that he did not go forward with the investigation because of Ms. Holmes-Williams union activities. Indeed, Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he was a member of PBA-105 and has been a member of the Executive Board and has held the position of treasurer.

On cross examination, Senior Investigator Dyrnes conceded that he had never observed undue familiarity between Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips. Mr. Bartkowski, Director of Education, who was told to look out for improper conduct, also reported nothing improper. This witness further explained that he had conducted between twenty and fifty investigations involving relationships between inmates and staff members. Although allegations by inmates against staff members are common, allegations involving relationships between staff and inmates are infrequent. This witness testified that his investigations have shown that a substantial number of the latter allegations have proved true.

Senior Investigator Dyrnes confirmed that Ms. Holmes-Williams never attempted to visit Inmate Phillips after he was transferred to Bayside State Prison. With regard to Inmate Phillips's mail, this witness explained that none was confiscated. Outgoing mail must be unsealed; it was read, copied and then sent out. Incoming mail was opened, copied and then given to Inmate Phillips. Further, not all incoming mail was intercepted as was shown by the search of Inmate Phillips's locker. The efficiency of the mail monitoring process depended very much on the attention of the mail room personnel. With regard to the cards in blank envelopes seized from Inmate Phillips's locker, this witness theorized that Ms. Holmes-Williams had passed them to the inmate before his transfer. Senior Investigator Dyrnes explained that when an inmate is transferred, possessions, such as correspondence, are inventoried but not confiscated.

As to the confiscated pictures, this witness conceded that Ms. Holmes-Williams was not the only staff member shown therein. Indeed, he had some uncertainty as to which individual shown in P-17 was Ms. Holmes-Williams. Concerning his interview with Inmate Phillips, Senior Investigator Dyrnes asserted that Inmate Phillips was not threatened in any way but that the inmate did express concern about Ms. Holmes-Williams. This witness testified that he did not know if Inmate Phillips was disciplined in any way.

This witness further asserted that the same informant volunteered information in P-1 and in P-2. This informant reduced his allegations, the first concerning an improper relationship and the second concerning stealing, to writing. Senior Investigator Dyrnes emphasized that he did not seek out his informant. Rather, the informant voluntarily brought this information to him.

Upon cross-examination, Senior Investigator Dyrnes confirmed that he did attempt to verify Ms. Holmes-Williams's move to a new residence. This witness stated that Ms. Holmes-Williams did move on the date indicated in Inmate Phillips's letter (P-13) but that the move was not accomplished by the paroled ex-offender, Carson Edwards.

On re-direct, Senior Investigator Dyrnes testified that he had no contact with Senior Investigator Lennon during the review of the documents implicated in the present matter. He further reiterated that no one in authority told him how to proceed with his investigation.

The next witness called by the Department of Corrections was Bruce Assante, the Principal Investigator at Riverfront State Prison. This witness testified that he has been an employee of the Department for approximately eighteen years and that he is Senior Investigator Dyrnes's immediate supervisor. Earlier in his career, he had conducted investigations while he presently supervises all investigations in the Internal Affairs Unit. Principal Investigator Assante opined that charges involving relationships between inmates and staff were very serious since they could compromise the security of the institution often leading to escape attempts. This witness also confirmed that the relationship between staff and inmate need not be sexual in nature to lead to a breach in institutional security.

In 1991, there were rumors of a relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Hillard Phillips. Senior Investigator Dyrnes was assigned to investigate the allegations subject to Principal Investigator Assante's supervision. Since there appeared to be some substance to the rumors, it was determined to transfer Inmate Phillips to another institution and to have his mail monitored. Inmate Phillips was not confronted nor told the reason for his transfer. Given the evidence then available, this approach was deemed appropriate rather than taking action which might tarnish Ms. Holmes-Williams's reputation.

Principal Investigator Assante explained that the Internal Affairs Unit is an autonomous unit within the institution. The unit accepts and investigates referrals from the Superintendent, the Commissioner and the Governor's Office. With regard to the present matter, Thomas Hundley, Superintendent of Riverfront, was not advised of the investigation when it was first undertaken. However, Superintendent Hundley did approve the transfer of Inmate Phillips.

This witness further testified that he was present when Senior Investigator Dyrnes interviewed Inmate Phillips on February 20, 1992. Although the inmate first denied the relationship, he later explained that the relationship was not a sexual one. Inmate Phillips also felt that Ms. Holmes-Williams would resign if confronted with the evidence seized from his locker. Principal Investigator Assante asserted that Inmate Phillips was not threatened, in any way, during the interview.

After leaving Bayside State Prison, Principal Investigator Assante and Senior Investigator Dyrnes arranged to interview Ms. Holmes-Williams at Riverfront. Prior to the interview, the possibility of offering the option of a resignation in good standing was discussed with Superintendent Hundley. This option, which was commonly offered when a staff member faced such charges, was authorized by the Superintendent.

Principal Investigator Assante testified that he attended the interview of Ms. Holmes-Williams and basically confirmed the earlier testimony of Senior Investigator Dyrnes.

Following this interview, all that was necessary to complete the case was an analysis of Ms. Holmes-Williams's handwriting. This witness described the investigation as a rather long one; perhaps because of the inmate's transfer and the long period of mail monitoring. Principal Investigator Assante explained that although he does not direct the investigations in progress, his subordinates make him personally aware of the important details of every case. Senior Investigator Dyrnes did so during the course of the Phillips/Holmes-Williams investigation.

Once the analysis was received from the Documents-Examiner, Senior Investigator Dyrnes completed his report. Superintendent Hundley first received the report so that he would be aware of what was happening within his institution. The report was then sent to Trenton where it was received by the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner (P-3).

Principal Investigator Assante concluded his direct testimony by indicating that he is a union member and had served as vice-president of the Association of Internal Affairs Investigators.

This witness explained on cross-examination that he had five years experience as an investigator. During that time he investigated approximately twenty cases involving suspected relationships between staff and inmates. Of those cases, a large number were substantiated. However, Principal Investigator Assante conceded that many rumors of alleged relationships proved false. Many times the allegations were used by the inmates as a manipulative tool. It was possible for the inmates to have their own agenda; perhaps Ms. Holmes-Williams ran her classroom "too tight" and they wanted to get rid of her.

Principal Investigator Assante acknowledged that he had conferred with Superintendent Hundley approximately midway in the investigation. However, at no time, was he asked by the Administration to take any particular action with regard to it. This witness did recall that Superintendent Hundley authorized Inmate Phillips's transfer to Bayside State Prison and also authorized giving Ms. Holmes-Williams the option of resigning in good standing.

This witness also confirmed that Inmate Phillips, as a member of the A.M.I.R.A. organization, was often in the education building since the group met there in the evenings. Furthermore, Ms. Holmes-Williams, as coordinator for A.M.I.R.A., was also required to be present at these after-hour meetings.

On re-direct, Principal Investigator Assante explained that during the course of an investigation, all information is kept confidential. This witness further stated that any relationship between a staff member and an inmate can be dangerous. Inmates often try to develop friendships with staff in the hope of having a "little hook", passing a card out of the institution, or a "big hook" bringing contraband into the prison, over staff members.

Gregory Bartkowski, the Supervisor of Education for Riverfront, was the next witness to testify on behalf of the Department. Mr. Bartkowski testified that he has certificates as a teacher and as principal/supervisor and has been employed by the Department of Corrections for fifteen years. This witness came to Riverfront when it first opened in 1985 and has always been Supervisor of Education in that facility. He received training in security issues through the Correction Officers' Training Academy. The goal of the training was to sensitize educators to the unique problems of providing educational services within correctional institutions.

When Riverfront opened, the teachers received an intensive two-month training during June and July 1985, before the inmates arrived. The teachers were being trained to teach adults and not children. They were alerted to the problems of dealing with prisoners who can be very manipulative, trying to use the teachers to get things.

Mr. Bartkowski testified that he knew Ms. Holmes-Williams; in fact, he had hired her for Riverfront in 1985 when that institution opened. She, therefore, received the intensive two-month training given the other teachers before Riverfront officially opened. All the teachers, including Ms. Holmes-Williams, were given departmental material including the Handbook of Information and Rules for all employees of the Department of Corrections. Ms. Holmes-Williams, signed for the Handbook and was required to read it (P-41). Section I of the General Rules provides:

> Employees shall not indulge in undue familiarity with inmates or parolees or permit inmates or parolees to be unduly familiar toward them.

During the training sessions, the points of prime importance were fully explored with the incoming teachers. Mr. Bartkowski further testified that the book Games Criminals Play was circulated among the teachers and that particularly relevant chapters were copied and discussed. These discussions often centered upon the efforts of inmates to compromise staff members.

Following the initial training, Mr. Bartkowski testified that Riverfront circulated further directives received from the Central Office of Educational Services in the Department of Corrections. One such communication set forth particularized Rules Governing Your Relationships with Inmates (P-43). These rules were fully discussed at staff meetings. It was emphasized that a teacher should never be alone with an inmate in a classroom and should never take anything from an inmate.

This witness testified that in August, 1991, he received an anonymous letter from an inmate stating that Ms. Holmes-Williams was involved in a relationship with an inmate. The letter did not name the inmate. Mr. Bartkowski stated that he placed the letter in its original envelope and turned it over to the Internal Affairs Unit. This witness indicated that the investigators have a broader picture of what is happening in the institution. He further stated that he did not direct Senior Investigator Dyrnes nor Principal Investigator Assante to investigate the allegations involving Ms. Holmes-Williams. During the course of the investigation, Mr. Bartkowski had no formal contact with those involved beyond a casual inquiry as to whether the matter had yet been concluded.

This witness testified that on February 20, 1992, he met with Superintendent Hundley, Assistant Superintendent Finney, Principal Investigator Assante and Senior Investigator Dyrnes. The seriousness of the allegations were discussed and a decision was made to take action because of the risk to security. Since the matter involved a teacher, it would require the filing of tenure charges against Ms. Holmes-Williams. It was decided that all the ramifications of the filing of tenure charges should be explained to Ms. Holmes-Williams and that she should be given the option of resigning in good standing.

Mr. Bartkowski testified that he went into the Board room and discussed the possibility of filing tenure charges with Ms. Holmes-Williams in the presence of her union representative. He then left the room. Ms. Holmes-Williams, after conferencing privately with her union representative, declined the offer to resign in good standing. At this point, Ms. Holmes-Williams was suspended with pay and was then escorted from the institution. Mr. Bartkowski explained that the decision to suspend was the Superintendent's decision.

This witness confirmed that A.M.I.R.A. is an inmate organization at Riverfront. Staff members act as liaison between all inmate organizations and the administration. The staff liaison attends all meetings and functions of a particular organization and then reports back to the Deputy Commissioner concerning the group's activities and future plans. Generally, organizations such as A.M.I.R.A. meet twice a week after 4:00 p.m.

With regard to the tour reports, Mr. Bartkowski explained that they are prepared daily by each teacher and represent a form of communication between teachers and their supervisors. The teacher will generally note on the report whether there have been any problems in class and the supervisors will often return the reports to the teachers with comments and recommendations. This witness identified the handwriting on Ms. Holmes-Williams's reports as "absolutely" hers. He also testified that some of the notations were his and others possibly that of Ms. McGovern, the other supervisor (P-36).

On cross-examination, Mr. Bartkowski conceded that the training he had received at the Correction Officers' Training Academy was limited to supervisors and was not extended to the teachers at Riverside. This witness also admitted that although teachers are instructed not to be alone with an inmate, it is sometimes impossible to avoid such occurrence. Mr. Bartkowski emphasized that although "teachers," the instructional staff also have "custodial" duties to prevent escapes. Teachers are required to report any improper conduct either in their tour reports or by special report. This witness further testified that he was not involved in reviewing Ms. Holmes-Williams's tour reports in order to select samples for handwriting analysis.

Mr. Bartkowski testified that the receipt of the anonymous letter alleging undue familiarity was not that unusual within a prison setting. He reiterated that he delivered this letter to Internal Affairs and, thereafter, only casually asked the investigators about the status of the matter.

Concerning the February 20, 1992 interview, this witness explained that he received a telephone call asking him to bring Ms. Holmes-Williams to the Board room at Riverfront for a 4:00 p.m. meeting. Mr. Bartkowski had no prior notice that action was to be taken concerning the allegations involving this staff member. Responding to this telephone call, Mr. Bartkowski escorted Ms. Holmes-Williams to the Board room; it was his recollection that members of the Internal Affairs Unit were already present. He left the Board room when called in to a meeting with Superintendent Hundley and Deputy Superintendent Finney.

This witness denied that he had ever discussed the investigation of Ms. Holmes-Williams with inmates or with Ms. Holmes-Williams herself. He also did not recall Mr. Holmes-Williams saying that she was told, by an inmate, that she was the target of an ongoing investigation. Mr. Bartkowski also did not remember being asked by Senior Investigator Dyrnes to monitor Ms. Holmes-Williams's conduct for any improprieties.

On re-direct, this witness explained that although teachers did not attend the Correction Officers Training Academy, he had relayed the training he had received to them. This teacher training was enhanced through regularly scheduled staff meetings. Mr. Bartkowski testified further that while his office is outside the security perimeter of the institution, the series of classrooms are within the secure area. As to the number of teachers, Mr. Bartkowski stated that there were ten teachers when Riverfront opened in 1985 and that there are presently five.

The fourth witness to testify on behalf of the Department of Corrections was William Finney, the Assistant Superintendent of Riverfront State Prison. This witness testified that he has been an employee of the Department for twenty-five years, serving in various capacities including Corrections Officer and Superintendent of the Newark House, a group home. Assistant Superintendent Finney came to Riverfront State Prison in 1985, the year it opened, as one of its original administrators.

From his Departmental experience and from his years at Riverfront, this witness testified that he is familiar with the programs for training employees and with the various informational materials provided them. Assistant Superintendent Finney stressed that the interaction between staff and inmate is thoroughly discussed both during staff orientation and as part of ongoing training. Indeed, the Handbook provided to employees when hired clearly sets out the parameters of appropriate staff conduct (P-40). All employees are provided these materials and must sign for them when they are hired. Through orientation and ongoing training, employees are constantly reminded of where they are working and how they should conduct themselves.

This witness had personal knowledge of a staff member at Riverfront engaging in an improper relationship with an inmate. That person, when confronted with the facts, chose to resign. Assistant Superintendent Finney testified that the option to resign is given so that the staff member can go on with his/her life without the reputation damage which may result from the public airing of charges. If that option is rejected, the institution simply goes forward with the filing of formal charges against the individual involved.

Assistant Superintendent Finney explained that if a civilian staff member is "unduly familiar" with an inmate or interacts with an inmate in other than a professional manner, his credibility and integrity is seriously jeopardized. All staff, including civilians, are privy to confidential information. A staff member who is friendly with an inmate cannot be trusted to maintain strict confidentiality. Indeed, the inmate might be able to coerce confidential information from the staff member thereby breaching institutional security with the possible result of an escape. It is most important, in the correctional setting, to be certain that all staff, including civilians, abide by all applicable rules and regulations thereby assuring that the security of the institution is maintained.

Assistant Superintendent Finney testified that he became directly involved in the present case on February 20, 1992 when he suspended Ms. Holmes-Williams. Based on instructions from Superintendent Hundley, this witness gave Ms. Holmes-Williams the opportunity to resign in good standing, an option which she rejected. When she declined to resign, Assistant Superintendent Finney immediately suspended Ms. Holmes-Williams. This suspension was with pay.

When questioned about the inmate organization, A.M.I.R.A., this witness explained that it was a group in which members studied minority cultures. The liaison assigned to the group was to monitor the organization to assure that it was acting in accordance with the mandates of the institution. The liaison was required to attend one general and one executive meeting per month. Assistant Superintendent Finney testified that Inmate Hillard Phillips was a member of A.M.I.R.A. and chairperson of one of its committees. Occasionally, a chairperson would interact with the group's staff liaison or would meet with other committee members.

This witness explained that no staff members were directed to act as liaison with inmate organizations. Rather, the administration called for volunteers to act in this capacity. A staff member was granted hour-for-hour comp time for after-hours time spent on group activities. Assistant Superintendent Finney also confirmed that April Gordon, together with Ms. Holmes-Williams, acted as liaison to A.M.I.R.A. Only one of the liaison had to attend the group's activities.

On cross-examination, Assistant Superintendent Finney explained that Ms. Gordon assisted Ms. Holmes-Williams as liaison to A.M.I.R.A. In her absence, Ms. Gordon would attend the group's activities. In order to receive comp time, the staff member acting as liaison, would submit a request to administration which, in turn, would authorize the provision of comp time.

The last witness called by the Department in support of the tenure charges filed against Ms. Holmes-Williams was James J. Lennon. This witness testified that he has been an employee of the Department of Corrections for ten years and is currently working within the Department's Internal Affairs Unit as a Senior Investigator-Documents Examiner. Senior Investigator Lennon stated that he served an internship as a documents examiner in 1990 and received specialized training in that field in 1991 with the United States Secret Service. During this training, the students reviewed documents from Secret Service files involving forged documents comparing line quality and various letter characteristics. Senior Investigator Lennon received a certificate when he completed this training.

This witness testified that most individuals begin with "copybook" style of handwriting and gradually develop their own unique writing style as they mature. According to this witness, no two people write exactly alike and each person does not write the same way, each time he writes.

Senior Investigator Lennon testified that he has examined approximately five hundred documents in his capacity as Document Examiner for the Department of Corrections. He has worked under the supervision of Assistant Chief Brian Storer who continues to act as forensic consultant to the Department. Assistant Chief Storer reviewed this witness's work on an ongoing basis and was responsible for his continuing training. This supervised training by a senior documents examiner was consistent with the policies of both the Department of Corrections and the United States Secret Service.

Senior Invêstigator Lennon testified that he was previously qualified as an expert in document analysis before the Office of Administrative Law in a Division on Civil Rights matter. This witness also worked on a case involving Mercer County and acted as "sub-contractor" for Johnson and Johnson helping uncover a mail fraud scheme within that company.

Following direct examination, counsel for Ms. Holmes-Williams conducted an extensive cross-examination of this witness's credentials. Senior Investigator Lennon testified that he began employment with the Department of Corrections in 1983 as a Corrections Officer. He was promoted to the positions of Investigator and Senior Investigator. His initial promotion was based on seniority and the passing of an examination. Thereafter, he was promoted on the basis of "education and experience." Senior Investigator Lennon explained that there is no civil service position of "documents examiner"; it is one of his assignments as a Senior Investigator. This witness further testified that he works within the Central Office of the Department of Corrections and not within a particular institution.

As to this Secret Service training, Senior Investigator Lennon conceded that it was a course of two-weeks duration conducted by the United States Secret Service within its Georgia facility. He took this course with twenty-seven other individuals and, after passing an oral examination, received a certificate at its completion. This witness was unaware of the availability of other, longer, training programs.

Senior Investigator Lennon further acknowledged that he is not a member of any professional group of document examiners, has received no formal training following his certification by the United States Secret Service and has not published any articles in the field of document analysis.

With regard to his experience, this witness explained that he has examined approximately five hundred separate documents during the past three years although he did not recall the exact number. After the commencement of the present case, Mercer County requested the Department's assistance in a case requiring document examination. This witness was assigned to provide these services to Mercer County. However, Senior Investigator Lennon was not required to testify as a result of his involvement in that case.

Following examination of his credentials, this tribunal was satisfied that Senior Investigator Lennon possessed the necessary training, experience and skill to give an opinion as to whether Ms. Holmes-Williams was the author of certain documents in evidence. This witness was, therefore, admitted as an expert in the area of handwriting analysis. This tribunal did not find, however, that Senior Investigator Lennon possessed expertise in the area of ink or paper analyses and he was not admitted as an expert in those areas.

Senior Investigator Lennon testified that Riverfront State Prison, through Senior Investigator Dyrnes, had requested that the Internal Affairs Unit conduct an examination of certain documents. This witness was assigned the matter by his supervisor, Brian Storer. As Senior Investigator Lennon worked on this case, he continued under Mr. Storer's supervision, discussing his findings with him. This witness confirmed that he did not know Ms. Holmes-Williams and had never met with her.

This witness testified that since document examination cannot be done on copies, he analyzed the originals of the documents entered in evidence before this tribunal. These originals included Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Reports (P-36), her exemplars (P-37), and the documents seized from Inmate Phillips (P-22 through P-33). He performed his analysis by comparing letter combinations from the "known" documents (P-36 and P-37) with the same combinations found in the questioned documents (P-22 through P-33). Senior Investigator Lennon explained that most individuals start with grade school writing and, during the teenage years, begin to develop their own unique characteristics. These embellishments are the distinguishing characteristics of an individual's handwriting. When analyzing the documents, this witness did not read them for content. He simply studied the formation of the letters considering, inter alia, their size and slant and the spacing between them.

Senior Investigator Lennon testified that he compared the upper case cursive "I" in P-22 (the romantic letter seized from Inmate Phillips) with the same letter appearing on Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Reports, P-36 (12-9-91). This witness gave his opinion that there was exceptional agreement between the two. He also compared the lower case cursive "v" which appeared in both documents. The writer of each document formed that letter so it appeared to be a "u" rather than a "v." This witness also compared the cursive, lower case word "that" which appeared in both the known and the questioned documents. In his opinion, there was excellent agreement between the two. Senior Investigator Lennon also testified that the author of each document formed the cursive lower case "a" in a very unusual manner when it appeared at the beginning of a word. This witness described this feature as a unique embellishment. There was also excellent agreement between the cursive, lower case "with" which appeared in both documents. The writer of each combined the "w" and "i" so that they appeared to be two, cursive lower case u's. Senior Investigator Lennon further observed that there is agreement between the cursive, lower case "the" when it appeared at the beginning of a word in both the known and questioned documents. There was also excellent agreement between the combination of cursive, lower case letters "for" appearing either alone or in "forever." Finally, this witness opined that the documents displayed the normal variations found within each person's writing.

Senior Investigator Lennon testified further that on the second page of the romantic letter (P-22), the embellished upper case, cursive "I," which is contained in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Report (P-36), again appeared. Also on this page of the letter, the cursive, lower case word "be" appeared as "lie." This same distinguishing characteristic appeared in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Report for December 19, 1991 at page two. It was this witness's opinion that agreement between the word "be" in both documents was excellent. Senior Investigator Lennon testified that Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Reports contained an upper case "A" which combined both cursive and printing characteristics and has a hook in the middle. He described this upper case "A" as unique. In this witness's opinion there is excellent agreement between Ms. Holmes-Williams's unique "A" and the same letter which appeared on a card seized from Inmate Phillips (P-26). This card also contained the cursive, lower case word "be" which appeared as "lie" and which agreed with that word as written by Ms. Holmes-Williams's in her December 19, 1991 Tour Report (P-36).

This witness explained that he was not making a word-for-word, letter-for-letter comparison. Rather, his intent was to point out the main characteristics of agreement for the benefit of lay people. Senior Investigator Lennon was of the opinion that the upper case "A," half printing and half cursive with a hook in the middle, was unique to Ms. Holmes-Williams. Further, there was excellent agreement between Ms. Holmes-Williams's "A" and the same letter found in the questioned documents seized from Inmate Phillips. Senior Investigator Lennon also testified that there was excellent agreement between the lower case, cursive "v" consistently appearing in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Reports as "u" and the letter "v," also appearing as the letter "u" on the documents seized at Bayside State Prison.

This witness also compared the exemplar given by Ms. Holmes-Williams (P-37 (31G)) to the envelope seized from Inmate Phillips's locker (P-12). Senior Investigator Lennon opined that there was excellent agreement between the two in all details. Both contained two styles of the lower case, printed "e" and the number "5" which almost appeared to be the number "6." Although the printed directions on the exemplar requested Ms. Holmes-Williams to complete an address to Inmate Phillips at Leesburg, she mistakenly printed "Leeburg." Senior Investigator Lennon pointed out that the envelope seized from Inmate Phillips contained that same erroneous spelling of "Leeburg."

This witness testified that when he completed his analysis, he set it aside because he wanted to discuss his conclusions with his Supervisor, Deputy Chief Storer. This discussion was delayed because Mr. Storer was recuperating from a heart attack. Once Senior Investigator Lennon was able to review his conclusions with his supervisor, he reduced his report to writing (P-39). In this report, he gave his "professional opinion" that Ms. Holmes-Williams was "positively identified . . . as the writer of questioned documents"

BMD6, 1A/B/C	Three page romantic letter signed with ANKH symbol (P-22)
BMD7, 1A	Envelope from Warenthia Atkins to Hillard Phillips (P-12)

Additionally, Senior Investigator Lennon concluded that it was "highly probable" that Ms. Holmes-Williams was the writer of questioned documents:

BMD 7, 1B	Card with brief note (P-12)
BMD 10A	Card with brief note and ANKH symbol (P-25)
BMD 13A	Card with brief note and ANKH symbol (P-28)
BMD 14A	Card with written note and ANKH symbol (P-29)
BMD 19A	Card with brief note (P-12)
BMD 20A	Card with brief note and ANKH symbol (P-12)

Finally, this witness concluded that BMD 17A and BMD 18A (notes on cards) (P-12) were "not comparable with the known handwritings of Jacqueline Williams" (P-39).

During the course of cross-examination, Senior Investigator Lennon explained that, in handwriting analysis, it is standard procedure to compare known documents to questioned documents. He followed this procedure in the present case comparing every document with the exemplars both forced (P-37) and spontaneous (P-36). This witness admitted to recording his findings on worksheets as he proceeded with this analysis. Once he prepared his written report, he admitted that he destroyed his notes. Senior Investigator Lennon asserted that his rough notes were only for his personal use. This witness further explained that the questioned documents were only compared to the known handwriting of Ms. Holmes-Williams since there were no other suspects in the case.

Senior Investigator Lennon estimated that he spent one week analyzing the documents in this case. He noted that he spent a significant amount of time on each document. This witness acknowledged, however, that he performed no ink, fingerprint or paper analysis. He also did not compare a questioned document to another questioned document since that was not consistent with the standard practice of comparing known to questioned document.

This witness defined a positive identification as one in which there is excellent agreement in all details of writing necessary for comparison and in which any differences are outweighed by overall consistency. In the case of Ms. Holmes-Williams, he studied the line quality of her writing; its speed, skill and pen pressure. Senior Investigator Lennon found that the documents contain the normal variations common to all handwriting. No individual writes exactly the same each time he/she writes. Upon examination of the documents in this case, this witness concluded that any unexplained differences were outweighed by the similarities between Ms. Holmes-Williams's known writings and the questioned documents seized from Inmate Phillips. Senior Investigator Lennon acknowledged that although one might argue about small characteristics in the writings, his overall examination of the documents enabled him to "positively" identify Ms. Holmes-Williams as the author of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips. This witness conceded that he did not quantify the "unexplained differences" in his report.

Senior Investigator Lennon further explained that he did not analyze the ANKH symbol since there was no known document from Ms. Holmes-Williams with which to compare it. This witness also recalled speaking briefly with Principal Investigator Assante and Senior Investigator Dyrnes. These individuals simply contacted him to determine the status of his investigation. He did not discuss his findings with them.

With the testimony of Senior Investigator Lennon, the Department of Corrections completed its case in support of the tenure charges filed against Ms. Holmes-Williams. It reserved the right, however, to call witnesses to rebut the evidence in support of the unfair labor charge.

Ms. Jacqueline Holmes-Williams thereafter testified, first in defense to the tenure charges and then in support of the unfair labor charge lodged against the Department of Corrections.

TENURE CHARGES

This witness stated that she had been at Riverfront State Prison for seven years; first as a Teacher II and more recently as a Teacher I. During that entire time, Gregory Bartkowski was her overall supervisor and Ms. Cinthia Masckiewicz McGovern, her immediate supervisor. Ms. Holmes-Williams also testified that she generally received a standard rating on her Performance Assessment Review Standards (P.A.R.S.) and had never been formally disciplined at Riverfront State Prison. She did admit, however, that she had received a letter of counselling, which did not constitute formal discipline. Her teaching duties included teaching basic education in the Pre-GED program. This witness recalled there were eight other teachers when Riverfront opened; however, that number has been reduced to three other academic teachers. Because of the staff reductions, this witness was responsible for between ten and twenty to twenty-five students on an on-going basis.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that Inmate Phillips was never one of her students. She did meet him, however, while liaison with A.M.I.R.A., an organization in which Inmate Phillips was actively involved. This witness explained that, as liaison, she acted as "go-between" the group and the administration reporting to Assistant Superintendent William Finney.

According to Ms. Holmes-Williams, the only time she was alone with Inmate Phillips was when he dropped off mail. This witness denied that Inmate Phillips ever said anything inappropriate to her or acted toward her in a familiar or improper manner. The only incident involving Inmate Phillips occurred in October, 1991, after his transfer to Bayside State Prison. At that time, another inmate, Thomas Parr, came to her and said he knew all about "her and Phillips." Inmate Parr stated that Phillips said he "owned" Ms. Holmes-Williams and wanted her to be his woman. This witness included Inmate Parr's statements in her Tour Report and wrote a Special Report concerning it. Ms. Holmes-Williams provided a copy of the Special to all supervisors in the chain of command at Riverfront. As a result of his statement, Inmate Parr was removed from this witness's classroom.

Ms. Holmes-Williams also identified an obscene letter which she received through Inter-Office mail in September, 1991 (R-2). The mailboxes are located in the education area outside the supervisor's office. Both staff and inmates would have access to this area. As far as this witness knew, the author of the typewritten letter was never identified. This was the only such letter she received while at Riverfront and Superintendent Hundley spoke to her about it.

With regard to A.M.I.R.A., Ms. Holmes-Williams confirmed that she and Ms. April Gordon, a secretary in Administration, served for two to three years as co-liaison to this group. This witness testified that she had earlier assisted the librarian, Ms. Kirkland, with A.M.I.R.A. activities. When Ms. Kirkland decided to leave Riverfront, she recommended that Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon become co-liaison to the group. The two agreed to serve in that capacity and their appointment was approved by the Administration. Ms. Holmes-Williams explained that liaison to inmate groups did not receive additional monetary compensation; they did, however, receive "comp" time for hours spent after 4:00 p.m. This witness confirmed that A.M.I.R.A. met two to three times per week and the meetings were held after normal working hours. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she attended most meetings of A.M.I.R.A., a group which had approximately thirty inmate members directed by a Board of five to seven members.

According to this witness, the meetings took place in the education area in her classroom. A corrections officer was present in the area during the meetings and could view the interior of the classroom through a window in the door. Ms. Holmes-Williams's desk was by the door to the classroom. She testified that she attempted to keep the desk drawers always locked to protect her supplies and to keep her personal belongings secure. Despite these precautions, materials were taken from her classroom causing her to report the thefts in both tour and special reports. Ms. Holmes-Williams identified a special report she submitted on November 13, 1991, complaining of the theft of a locked tool box from under her desk (R-4) and a second report submitted on January 3, 1992, concerning a box of bulletin board supplies missing from the cabinet in her classroom (R-5). Ms. Holmes-Williams observed that in addition to A.M.I.R.A., a Hispanic group met in her classroom after hours.

This witness recognized her picture entered into evidence as P-33. This picture, taken during a CWA trip to Maryland, was locked with others in her desk. On the day of her interview, Bruce Assante showed this picture to her. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified it was then she realized that the picture was no longer in her desk with her other personal belongings. This witness also described pictures, previously entered into evidence as P-17, as taken during A.M.I.R.A.'s Quanzaa celebration. She denied, however, that she appeared in the top picture appended to this exhibit.

Ms. Holmes-Williams further denied that she received any cards or letters from Inmate Phillips. She did admit, however, that she received a vase and flower together with a card signed "Phil." This witness indicated that she told Debbie Riggs, a CWA staff member, about this gift. However, Ms. Holmes-Williams denied ever writing to Inmate Phillips or having any relationship with him.

This witness acknowledged that she moved to her present address on December 21, 1991. Ms. Holmes-Williams denied, however, that an ex-inmate helped her move or that she used his truck. Indeed, she testified that she rented a U-Haul vehicle to move her belongings to her new address (R-6).

Ms. Holmes-Williams also described in detail February 20, 1992, her last day at Riverfront State Prison. After classes were over that day, Mr. Bartkowski came to her door and told her she was wanted upstairs. He escorted her to the Board room where she was met at the door by Bruce Assante. Also present were Barney Dyrnes, Susan Nelson and an investigator from another institution.

This witness testified that she was immediately confronted with the statement that an inmate had confirmed that she had an affair with him. Ms. Holmes-Williams estimated that the questioning continued for approximately thirty to forty-five minutes. During that period, according to this witness, no union representative was present. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she felt intimidated; felt that they were trying to force her to resign. When her union representative, Faith Matthews, arrived the questioning continued "but not as rough as before" her arrival. Ms. Matthews then took Ms. Holmes-Williams from the room so they could contact the main C.W.A. office. At that point, she was told not to sign anything. When Ms. Holmes-Williams returned to the Board room, she refused to sign a letter of resignation. She later returned to the institution to give handwriting exemplars as required by the administration.

On cross-examination, Ms. Holmes-Williams conceded that she did not have a copy of the special report she prepared following the incident with Inmate Parr although she did have copies of the reports submitted with regard to the missing toolbox and supplies. This witness admitted that she always kept copies of the documents submitted to her supervisors.

This witness did concede that she and Inmate Phillips were occasionally alone before class in her classroom. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she would generally arrive early: between 8:00 and 8:15. Occasionally, Inmate Phillips was there, dropping off a memo when she arrived. Sometimes the witness would request that Inmate Phillips come over at lunch time to transact A.M.I.R.A. business. Ms. Holmes-Williams explained that her classroom was approximately twenty to thirty feet from the officer's station. Generally, the officer on duty would stay at his station but he might walk around checking on the classrooms. The inmates walked around freely in the education area both during class and after hours.

Ms. Holmes-Williams denied that she volunteered to be A.M.I.R.A. liaison. However, she acknowledged that she did not object when Ms. Kirkland recommended her for that position. She also admitted that she received the vase from Inmate Phillips at her new address. Ms. Holmes-Williams insisted that this was the only thing she had received from Inmate Phillips. Although she informed the C.W.A. representative of this incident, she never reported it to the institution. This witness also denied that the handwriting in the questioned cards and envelopes was her handwriting. She also acknowledged that during her orientation, she was given a copy of the book Games Criminals Play and that she read it (P-42).

UNFAIR LABOR CHARGE

Addressing the P.E.R.C. matter, Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she has been a Shop Steward with C.W.A. at Riverfront for six years. She explained that she represented anyone in the professional unit, under the bargaining agreement, in the grievance process with management. Ms. Holmes-Williams also filed grievances on her own behalf. For her efforts, she received a commendation as the Department of Corrections Shop Steward of the Year. Because of the heavy caseload, this witness requested that Elizabeth Monaghan also become a shop steward.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that on January 29, 1991, she filed three grievances concerning her own P.A.R.S.'s evaluation. Each essentially sought to have her P.A.R.S. rewritten "to contain comments which accurately reflect" her job performance (R-7, R-8 and R-9). On June 20, 1991, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed three grievances which essentially challenged non-teaching duties which she was assigned. This witness explained that she had been working as a CAB Coordinator and, in that capacity, would test and interview students. She had asked Mr. Bartkowski to relieve her of these duties but he refused. It was this decision which she grieved (R-10, R-11 and R-12). These grievances were denied but the witness recalled that R-11, which involved class size, proceeded to Step II at Riverfront. That grievance was denied on appeal.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that on September 6, 1991, she filed three grievances challenging her classroom observation reports (R-13, R-14 and R-15). This witness testified that these grievances were also denied. She thereafter filed two grievances on September 23, 1991. The first grieved an incomplete telephone message which was taken for her while she was away from the institution campaigning for the office of State Senator (R-16). That matter proceeded to a second step hearing at which point it was denied. The second challenged "harassment" which occurred the next day when her supervisor returned her Tour Report to her (R-17). That grievance also proceeded to a second step, at which point, it was denied.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that on October 2, 1991, she received a "Letter of Counseling" concerning an incident which occurred in the office of her immediate supervisor, Cindi McGovern (R-21). On October 9, 1991, this witness filed three grievances seeking to have this Letter expunged from her record (R-18, R-19 and R-20). Thereafter, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed a grievance on December 9, 1991 challenging the refusal of release time on December 5, 1991, to further investigate information needed for a grievance hearing "on that day" (R-22). The denial of this grievance was appealed; it was also denied on appeal. The final grievance filed by Ms. Holmes-Williams was on January 10, 1992, wherein she challenged the language contained in her "final PARS" rating as false and misleading (R-23). In a decision dated February 7, 1992, it was found that management erred when it gave her a final evaluation. Management was, therefore, directed to rewrite the evaluation.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that every year she filed approximately fifteen grievances on her own behalf. The vast majority involved her immediate supervisor, Cindi McGovern, or her overall supervisor, Greg Bartkowski. This witness stated that until 1990, Ms. McGovern was a full member of CWA. In that year, she withdrew because the supervisors did not get a raise. Mr. Bartkowski is an 85% member.

Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she was informed, by memo dated December 9, 1991, that she was to meet with a representative of the Employee Advisory Service to discuss "apparent difficulties demonstrated in communications and interpersonal relations" (R-24). Mr. Bartkowski confirmed that he was aware of the referral and thought it might help alleviate the "unhappiness with your working environment" (R-25). Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she met with the E.A.S. counsellor who had a manila envelope with her name on it and a stack of grievances within. This witness felt that E.A.S. was not involved in the grievance process and that the representative should not have had copies of her grievances. She said nothing to the E.A.S. representative; she simply left the meeting. An Unfair Labor Charge was thereafter filed with P.E.R.C. on behalf of Ms. Holmes-Williams and two other teachers at Riverfront who were involved in this incident (R-26). At the time of Ms. Holmes-Williams's testimony, that matter was still in process.

As to her other union activities, this witness explained that she attended conventions on a regular basis. She also ran for State Senate as part of a slate of union activists who ran as independents. Ms. Holmes-Williams indicated that the Administration at Riverfront was aware of her candidacy.

This witness further testified that in January, 1991, while she was in the CAP file room, Mr. O'Sullivan, a member of the Professional Unit came in and asked to discuss something with her. While they were speaking, Ms. McGovern came in and objected to their conducting union business during class preparation time. Ms. Holmes-Williams received a memorandum to that effect from Ms. McGovern on the same day (R-27).

This witness also described a meeting with her supervisors which took place the following year in January, 1992. This meeting was arranged by Mr. Bartkowski and Mr. McGovern in an effort to mediate the problems in the Education Department. Ms. Holmes-Williams thought the meeting was not informal but for the purpose of reprimanding her so she refused to participate. It was her view, forcefully expressed, that unless the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent were present at the meeting, nothing would be accomplished. The witness received a letter from Mr. Bartkowski on the same day as the aborted meeting criticizing her conduct (R-28).

On cross-examination, Ms. Holmes-Williams described in greater detail her meeting with the E.A.S. counsellor. She indicated that the conference lasted approximately thirty to forty-five minutes during which time she did not speak but simply listened. Indeed, this witness admitted that she turned him off; his area was inter-personal relationships not the grievance process. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that she made no comment when the representative handed her a stack of her grievances -- twenty-four in number.

With regard to the meeting with Mr. Bartkowski and Mr. McGovern in January 22, 1992, this witness testified that she left after ten minutes. It was her view that this meeting was becoming disciplinary in tone and that she needed a union representative present. This witness acknowledged that although her overall supervisor had called the meeting, she declared it "over" after ten minutes and left.

As to the number of grievances she filed on her own behalf, Ms. Holmes-Williams confirmed that for the last five years, she filed a minimum of fifteen grievances per year on her own behalf. However, in the early years, 1987 and 1988, the teachers were treated as the step-children of the correctional institution, and she probably filed as many as forty-five grievances per year to correct those conditions. Ms. Holmes-Williams estimated that she represented others in grievances approximately five to six times per week. However, this witness testified that, at times, she may have been involved with as many as forty grievances per week.

Of the seventeen grievances entered into evidence before this tribunal, Ms. Holmes-Williams confirmed that R-23, challenging the final P.A.R.S. rating, was resolved in her favor. She also conceded that many of the others challenged management policies which in no way demonstrated anti-union animus, i.e., R-10, R-11, R-12. Ms. Holmes-Williams further acknowledged that she is currently working as a union representative for CWA 1040 handling grievances for other teachers.

Ms. Holmes-Williams, on redirect, addressed once again the issue of the volume of grievances filed. This witness explained that over the years she has filed grievances for herself alone; grievances for the group of teachers including herself and grievances for teachers and others -- not including herself. Ms. Holmes-Williams testified that in 1986, she filed less than five grievances on behalf of herself. She filed a similar number of grievances on behalf of herself in 1987 and 1988. However, in 1989, 1990 and 1991, she filed what she described as "bulk" grievances both for herself alone and for the group to which she belonged. Ms. Holmes-Williams further estimated that she attended several informal meetings per month with management and attended each grievance hearing which fluctuated from a low of three to five a month to a high of more than fifteen a month.

For reasons of security, and to accommodate the parties, the testimony of Inmate Hillard Phillips was taken out of turn and at the Northern State Prison. Also for reasons of security, three correction officers were present while Inmate Phillips gave his testimony. This witness testified that he was found guilty of first degree robbery and sentenced to fifteen to thirty years in prison with a mandatory minimum. His parole eligibility date is September, 1994.

Inmate Phillips testified that he served one year of his sentence at Riverfront State Prison. During that time, he was active in A.M.I.R.A. and met Ms. Holmes-Williams who was staff liaison for that organization. Inmate Phillips was not a student at any class at Riverfront. This witness described A.M.I.R.A. as an organization which sought to improve the inmates' knowledge of their cultural heritage and to involve them in activities which would help them achieve that goal. Any inmate could belong to A.M.I.R.A. which was not religious in nature. This inmate testified that he was a member of the Board of A.M.I.R.A. and head of its speakers' bureau. As a general rule, A.M.I.R.A. meetings took place two or three times per week; A.M.I.R.A. functions occurred two or three times per year.

For the entire time Inmate Phillips was involved with A.M.I.R.A., Ms. Holmes-Williams was one of two staff liaison for that organization. It was this witness's recollection that whenever he met Ms. Holmes-Williams, it was in the presence of others. If they were alone, it was only for a short time, while making copies or doing an errand. Inmate Phillips further denied any sexual interest in Ms. Holmes-Williams and denied that he ever expressed any personal feelings to her.

This witness did admit writing to Ms. Holmes-Williams although he testified that she did not ask him to write or give him permission to do so. Inmate Phillips admitted that he had a personal friendship with Ms. Holmes-Williams and wrote to her at her home. This witness denied that Ms. Holmes-Williams gave him her address; rather he took it from an envelope which was partially visible among her belongings. Inmate Phillips stated that he continued to write to Ms. Holmes-Williams while corresponding with other females.

This witness explained that "Warenthia Phillips" listed as a "niece" on his Visitor Identification Card, was really not a blood relative (P-8). The two grew up together and many thought they were family. Warenthia sometimes used the name "Atkins" as well as the name "Phillips." This witness further admitted knowing "Pickett" an inmate at Riverfront and Carson Edwards, a paroled offender.

When shown the letter to Carson Edwards, Inmate Phillips admitted writing it (P-6). Although he did not explain in that letter why he was transferred to Bayside State Prison, he believed it was because of a confrontation at Riverfront with an individual known to be a "snitch." He also thought he might have been transferred because of his involvement in A.M.I.R.A. which some thought was a racist organization.

Inmate Phillips testified that Ms. Holmes-Williams never told him that she was moving, the date of her move nor her new address. He further asserted that no staff member at Riverfront gave him this information.

This witness denied drawing the picture on white cloth which was copied as P-9. He also could not recall sending the picture to anyone although it was contained in a smaller envelope from him to Ms. Holmes-Williams which was included in a larger envelope from him to his sister, Mildred Knighton.

As to P-7, Inmate Phillips admitted that it contained his handwriting. He further testified that he wrote to his sister, Mildred Knighton, and asked her to send an enclosed letter to Ms. Holmes-Williams. That letter contained directions to Bayside State Prison. Inmate Phillips asserted that he was afraid to send the letter directly to Ms. Holmes-Williams so he decided to send it to her through his sister. He signed the letter with the ANKH, a symbol for life which has its origins in African history. This witness acknowledged that Ms. Holmes-Williams never visited him at Bayside.

Inmate Phillips, however, admitted that he had a photograph of Ms. Holmes-Williams in his possession but denied that she had given it to him. This witness explained that he took the photo from Ms. Holmes-Williams's desk in her classroom at Riverfront. He then took the photograph with him when he was transferred to Bayside State Prison.

With regard to the cards found among his belongings at Bayside, Inmate Phillips denied that they were received from Ms. Holmes-Williams. He insisted these cards, expressing affection, were sent by his "niece" whom he variously referred to as Warenthia or Warnita. He did admit, however, that he purchased a vase for Ms. Holmes-Williams in order to show his affection for her. Inmate Phillips also testified that he wrote the sexual fantasy contained in P-20 and sent it to Ms. Holmes-Williams. He denied that he ever received an answer to that communication. When shown P-17, Inmate Phillips acknowledged that Inmate Pickett had sent him pictures from the Kwanzaa celebration at Riverside. He explained that he was sent the pictures to inform him of what was going on in A.M.I.R.A.

Inmate Phillips testified that he was questioned by Barney Dyrnes in February, 1992. At that time he denied that he had a sexual or intimate relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams. He also denied that they wrote to each other or that he had any cards in his cell. After the documents were removed from his locker, he admitted he had received the cards but denied they were from Ms. Holmes-Williams. This witness further testified that he was threatened with lock-up if he did not give the investigators a statement. When he refused to give the requested statement, he was sent to lock-up for one day. This witness acknowledged that he knew he was violating prison rules when he wrote to Ms. Holmes-Williams and sent her a gift.

On cross-examination, Inmate Phillips testified that, at one time, he and Warenthia Phillips had been lovers. He could offer no explanation, however, why this individual spelled her name "Warmethia" on P-10 and "Warnethia" on all other documents. He did insist that all documents were written by the same person, his "niece," and not by Ms. Holmes-Williams.

This witness conceded that when interviewed by Barney Dyrnes, he initially denied that he had written to Ms. Holmes-Williams. He recanted this denial when confronted with copies of his outgoing letters to her. Inmate Phillips explained that he refused to give the investigators a statement which would harm Ms. Holmes-Williams.

This witness acknowledged that he came to know Ms. Holmes-Williams through his involvement with A.M.I.R.A. As liaison, she was responsible for keeping the administration informed of the organization's activities. Sometimes he would drop off memos to her or she would call him if a memo was late. Inmate Phillips insisted that he was never alone with Ms. Holmes-Williams and if he were, it was only for a few seconds. He did acknowledge that they sometimes made copies together in the copy room. This witness explained that the corrections officer on duty, although not in the room with them, could probably see them from his booth. Inmate Phillips, however, conceded that he was able to avoid detection while taking a photo from Ms. Holmes-Williams's desk and copying an address from an envelope in her purse.

The next witness called on behalf of the respondent was Elizabeth Monaghan who testified that she has been employed at Riverfront State Prison since August, 1985. Ms. Monaghan was hired as a reading specialist and is currently a Teacher I at Riverfront. Addressing the tenure charges, Ms. Monaghan testified that she met Ms.

Holmes-Williams in the summer of 1985, when they both began their employment with Riverfront State Prison. She noted that the teaching staff at the institution is quite small so the teachers saw one enough very often.

Ms. Monaghan explained that she also acted as staff liaison for an inmates' group, the Toastmasters, from 1988 through 1992. This group had two general membership meetings and two executive board meetings per month; all held in the evenings in a classroom in the education area of the institution. This witness identified a Special Report, dated June 7, 1989, in which she complained that she found the cabinet containing teaching supplies and union materials unlocked (R-34). It does not appear from this report that any items were missing from the cabinet. In another Special Report, dated November 15, 1990, Ms. Monaghan complained that her locked desk drawer was opened and her papers "shifted about" (R-35). Again, it does not appear that any items were taken. This witness testified that unlocked drawers and missing items continue as a problem at Riverfront (R-36 to R-43).

With regard to the tenure charges, Ms. Monaghan denied that she had ever seen Ms. Holmes-Williams act in an unduly familiar, or improper manner, with an inmate. This witness also indicated that Ms. Holmes-Williams had never said that she was involved in a relationship with an inmate. Ms. Monaghan also explained that teachers do have contact with inmates who act as teachers' aides helping to set up and clean classrooms.

On cross-examination, this witness conceded that she considers Ms. Holmes-Williams to be a friend and colleague. However, she testified that had never heard anything about a relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams and an inmate. Ms. Monaghan also admitted that eight of the ten special reports she submitted concerning missing items and opened drawers were filed after Ms. Holmes-Williams's suspension. This witness explained that she had failed to keep copies of earlier reports although she recalled submitting them.

This witness also explained that if an inmate was called to the classroom on "organization" business, he would briefly be alone with the teacher either in the classroom or when they went to the back to duplicate materials. Correction Officers were never in the classroom; they would either be at their station or walking around. Only one officer was on duty and responsible for the entire education area.

Addressing the P.E.R.C. aspect of this controversy, Ms. Monaghan testified that since 1987 she had been Vice President of the Professional Unit at Riverfront State Prison. She explained that they would mobilize during contract years urging employees to join the Professional Unit. This witness also became a shop steward for the union, representing employees in grievance proceedings. She confirmed that CWA 1040 made Ms. Holmes-Williams "Shop Steward" of the year. Ms. Monaghan explained that a shop steward is the enforcer of the union contract, policies and procedures; the shop steward is concerned that the contact not be breached.

This witness testified that she had represented Ms. Holmes-Williams in her grievance proceedings. Ms. Monaghan testified that she was always present at the first step and was frequently at the second step either as an observer or witness. She confirmed that from January, 1991 through January, 1992, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed twenty-four grievances. Ms. Monaghan further confirmed that in 1989, approximately forty-five grievances were filed on behalf of the Professional Unit at Riverfront State Prison. She testified that she represented Ms. Holmes-Williams in the series of grievances challenging her P.A.R.S. (R-7, R-8 and R-9). These grievances were denied at the first step and never moved to the second.

Ms. Monaghan identified a Grievance Hearing Memorandum concerning the Employee Advisory Service counselling offered to her as well as to Ms. Holmes-Williams. This witness explained that she did not represent the respondent in this matter since she was personally involved in a similar grievance.

This witness also testified concerning the inicident when she, Ms. Holmes-Williams, and two other teachers were in a room with a closed door. Ms. Monaghan explained that they closed the door because there were inmates in the area and they did not want their conversation overheard by them. Unfortunately, Greg Bartkowski forced the door open and came into the room. When he saw four teachers present, he assumed they were discussing union business. Mr. Bartkowski stayed in Ms. Monaghan's room until the other three teachers left. He stated to her that the teachers were having many secret meetings which he assumed were to discuss union business. This witness explained that union activities, except for scheduled grievances, were not to take place during the school hours between 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. However, union business could be scheduled for a member's break time.

Ms. Monaghan further testified that she was present during the search of Ms. Holmes-Williams's room. Originally, management had arranged for a shop steward from another unit to be present. Ms. Monaghan learned of the arrangement and insisted that she be present since she was the only remaining shop steward for the Professional Unit. Investigators Barney Dyrnes and Sue Nelson were also present as well as Greg Bartkowski who was needed to unlock the cabinets. This witness observed items, including pictures, being removed from Ms. Holmes-Williams's desk.

Ms. Monaghan identified a memorandum which she wrote to Superintendent Hundley requesting the return of ". . . personal/union materials of Ms. J. Williams" (R-45). Of primary concern to this witness was the return of Ms. Holmes-Williams's log of union activities which was kept separate from her teaching materials. As a general rule, Ms. Holmes-Williams took the log home with her. However, on the day of her suspension, Ms. Holmes-Williams was not permitted to return to her room to collect her personal belongings. Ms. Monaghan received the union log several days later in Superintendent Hundley's office.

During cross-examination, this witness acknowledged that she reviewed her records in preparation for this hearing. She denied, however, that she specifically discussed the case with either Ms. Holmes-Williams or her counsel.

As to her own union activities, Ms. Monaghan testified that she was elected the representative for the building in 1987 and began acting as shop steward in 1989 before receiving formal training. This witness explained that Ms. Holmes-Williams continued to handle the majority of cases for the Professional Unit. In this capacity, Ms. Holmes-Williams represented Ms. Monaghan in her grievances. Conversely, Ms. Monaghan essentially handled only those cases involving Ms. Holmes-Williams.

This witness also testified that she is currently Shop Steward of the Year, an honor received by Ms. Holmes-Williams the year before when she ran for the State Senate. Ms. Monaghan was uncertain of the criteria utilized in bestowing this honor but assumed it was made for vigorous enforcement of the contract.

This witness conceded that she had never heard anyone say that the tenure charges were filed in retaliation for Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities. Indeed, she heard no rumor to that effect. With regard to the search of Ms. Holmes-Williams's room, Ms. Monaghan thought that it would be irregular if no bargaining unit shop steward was present. This witness conceded that this irregularity was cured when she was permitted to witness the entire search. She also acknowledged that, in correctional facilities, the right always exists to search an employee's personal belongings in order to keep the institution secure.

Ms. Monaghan also admitted that Superintendent Hundley, the ultimate "boss" of Riverfront, had been amenable to the union in the past on various issues. For example, when the staff lounge was removed, Superintendent Hundley tried to restore it. Ms. Monaghan explained that the Superintendent wanted cooperation at every level; he basically wanted a happy staff. This witness conceded that Superintendent Hundley did not have an "anti-union bias."

The last witness called by Ms. Holmes-Williams was Starr Kirkland who testified that she was Librarian at Riverfront from July, 1985 through August, 1990 when she left the institution. Ms. Kirkland also served as first liaison for the inmate organization A.M.I.R.A. She explained that she was approached by an inmate to help develop the group. Ms. Kirkland testified that she adjusted the proposal for A.M.I.R.A. and brought it to the Superintendent. In order to receive approval, staff liaison was needed. Ms. Kirkland agreed to serve as liaison and the group was approved. This witness explained that A.M.I.R.A. was not a black organization. She also recalled that Greg Bartkowski, Supervisor of Education, at one time acted as staff liaison to the group.

Ms. Kirkland testified that when she decided to leave Riverfront, she recommended in writing to the administration that Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. April Gordon become co-liaison for A.M.I.R.A. She explained that Ms. Holmes-Williams had worked with her on A.M.I.R.A. activities from the very beginning and that Ms. Gordon, a secretary, did all the paper work.

This witness testified further that she knows Inmate Phillips and had seen Ms. Holmes-Williams in his presence during A.M.I.R.A. functions. She never observed any signs of affection between them.

On cross-examination, Ms. Kirkland explained that although she "knew of" Ms. Holmes-Williams when she came to Riverfront, the two only became friends while working at the latter institution. She further testified that she "pulled" in Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon to work on A.M.I.R.A. activities. However, she never requested that she be relieved from her role as liaison to that group; rather, she continued to work with the two as partners. Ms. Kirkland confirmed that she discussed the role of A.M.I.R.A. liaison with Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon before she recommended their appointment to the Administration.

This witness described the A.M.I.R.A. board meetings, composed of seven members as "business, strictly business." These meetings took place in the Library never in the classroom. Ms. Kirkland conceded that although she knows Inmate Phillips, he had only just become an A.M.I.R.A. board member at the time she left. This witness explained that she appointed the original board members; thereafter they were elected by A.M.I.R.A. members to two year terms. Ms. Kirkland also acknowledged that it was rare for her to call and ask for an inmate; occasionally an inmate's name would be placed on an approved business list which would permit him to come to the library.

Upon completion of Ms. Kirkland's testimony, Ms. Holmes-Williams rested her case both in defense of the tenure charges filed against her and in support of the unfair labor charge filed against the Department of Corrections.

At this point, the Department exercised its right to call rebuttal witnesses. The first witness to testify in this phase of the hearing was Gregory Bartkowski, who had testified earlier in the Department's tenure case. Mr. Bartkowski explained that as Supervisor of Education at Riverfront, he knew that Ms. Holmes-Williams was staff liaison with A.M.I.R.A. However, in the role as liaison, Ms. Holmes-Williams reported directly to Assistant Superintendent William Finney who is responsible for coordinating liaisons between staff and inmate groups. Mr. Bartkowski confirmed that he did not object to Ms. Holmes-Williams acting as liaison to A.M.I.R.A. but it was his understanding that she had volunteered for that position (R-44).

This witness provided further testimony concerning the events of February 20, 1992, the day on which Ms. Holmes-Williams was suspended. Mr. Bartkowski confirmed that he escorted Ms. Holmes-Williams to the Board room, at about 3:35 p.m. Ms. Holmes-Williams entered the room; Mr. Bartkowski remained in the hallway. This witness was then called into the Superintendent's office shortly before 4:00 p.m. and briefly told what had transpired. Mr. Bartkowski was asked to explain the options available to Ms. Holmes-Williams so that she would be able to make a wise decision.

As to aspects of the unfair labor charge, Mr. Bartkowski testified that he recalled the incident when he pushed open a door in the education area and found three teachers in the room. This witness explained that the meeting occurred during the teachers' prep time when the teachers should have been preparing for class or completing their paper work. Mr. Bartkowski testified he said: "What's up ladies? Is this prep work?" This witness did not remember their response or know what they were discussing. He did recall that the teachers did not have any books or files and emphasized that it was improper to conduct either personal business or union activities during the teacher's prep time.

Mr. Bartkowski next testified concerning the January 22, 1992 meeting with Ms. Holmes-Williams. This witness stated that Superintendent Hundley had asked that he and Jim McGovern meet with the teachers to discuss their problems. Mr. Bartkowski said the two planned to meet with each teacher individually in order to "hash out" the issues between supervisors and staff. This witness testified that he started with a brief statement of purpose for the meeting. After less than ten minutes, Ms. Holmes-Williams stated that the meeting would accomplish nothing since the Superintendent was not there. Mr. Bartkowski testified that Ms. Holmes-Williams got louder and became more agitated. When he tried to calm her down, Ms. Holmes-Williams became angry and exclaimed she was "no house nigger" and left the meeting, effectively ending it. Mr. Bartkowski denied that the purpose of the meeting was to discipline Ms. Holmes-Williams. He asserted that he could not conduct a disciplinary hearing.

With regard to the referral to the Employee Advisory Service, Mr. Bartkowski recalled that Ms. McGovern had voluntarily sought the advice of an E.A.S. counsellor during one of his weekly visits to the institution. Ms. McGovern was seeking ways to handle various situations with her staff. During the conference, the counsellor recommended that the teachers come in to talk to him. Mr. Bartkowski supported the decision to refer the teachers to the Employee Advisory Service which is part of the Department of Personnel. It was his view that there were personality conflicts between Ms. McGovern and the teachers which might be alleviated through counselling.

Mr. Bartkowski also identified a letter of commendation which he sent to Ms. Holmes-Williams on June 7, 1990 (P-45). This witness testified that the respondent had cooperated with him and had demonstrated a team spirit when she maintained the library during Ms. Kirkland's absence.

Although not presently a union member, Mr. Bartkowski testified that he has been a union member in the past and does not dislike unions. Mr. Bartkowski asserted that there was no mention of Ms. Holmes-Williams's union membership or activities during the entire time leading to the filing of tenure charges against this teacher.

In the course of cross-examination, Mr. Bartkowski acknowledged that he discussed his testimony with the Department's counsel. He also admitted that he discussed the hearing with Ms. McGovern to give her some idea of what would occur.

As to A.M.I.R.A., this witness confirmed that Ms. Kirkland was the first liaison to that organization and that she was the concept person for that group. Mr. Bartkowski testified that he did not participate in conversations with Assistant Superintendent Finney concerning A.M.I.R.A. This witness further explained that when inmates were involved in sanctioned group activities then were given "authorized absences." These indicated the proper whereabouts of the inmates. Mr. Bartkowski further testified that at its inception everyone in the prison could belong to A.M.I.R.A. and exchange information about their cultural heritage. However, over time, the group has essentially become one which advances black culture.

Mr. Bartkowski conceded that although he could join the union, he has chosen not to. Rather, 85% of the normal union dues are deducted from his salary. This witness further acknowledged that he did not know that the teachers were discussing union business during their prep time in the July 1990 incident. However, when Ms. McGovern observed Ms. Holmes-Williams's meeting with personnel from another unit, on January 31, 1991, there could be no other purpose than to conduct union business (R-27). Mr. Bartkowski emphasized that prep time should be used to prepare for class. Although Ms. Holmes-Williams was a good teacher, this witness did not believe that she spent a great deal of time in preparation. Mr. Bartkowski confirmed that it was Ms. McGovern's opinion that Ms. Holmes-Williams was spending too much time on non-educational matters.

This witness further explained that although there were seven teachers at Riverfront, only the three who were having problems with Ms. McGovern were referred to the E.A.S. counsellor. Ms. Holmes-Williams was one of the three so referred. According to Ms. McGovern these teachers were not cooperative; they filed untimely reports and were often argumentative and confrontational. Mr. Bartkowski asserted that he did not have these problems with the three teachers involved.

Concerning his January 22, 1992 meeting with Ms. Holmes-Williams, Mr. Bartkowski explained that Superintendent Hundley had directed him to meet with all the teachers individually. It was recognized that there were problems; there would be verbal confrontations between staff and supervisors at staff meetings. This witness believed that the teachers did not like Ms. McGovern's style of supervision.

Mr. Bartkowski testified that on the day of Ms. Holmes-Williams's suspension, he was directed to explain to her the ramifications of the filing of tenure charges. This witness emphasized that the decision to file tenure charges was an institutional one. Mr. Bartkowski was responsible for the "paper work" needed to support the tenure charges. He performed this responsibility under the direction of Superintendent Hundley.

As to the volume of grievances, Mr. Bartkowski explained that all grievances involving teachers came to his attention. It was his view that some teachers filed more grievances than others. He testified that a large number of grievances were generated by Ms. Monaghan, Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Darkatsh.

The final witness to testify in this controversy was Cinthia Maszkiewicz McGovern. This witness testified that she was Assistant Supervisor of Education at the New Jersey Training School for Boys in Jamesburg in 1981. She came to Riverfront in 1985 and remained until October, 1992. Ms. McGovern was Assistant Supervisor for Education during her time at Riverfront and, in that capacity, was Ms. Holmes-Williams's immediate Supervisor.

Although Ms. McGovern was aware of the tenure charges filed against Ms. Holmes-Williams, she testified that she did not participate, in any way, in the decision to bring the charges. Indeed, she first became aware of the charges on February 20, 1992, the day Ms. Holmes-Williams was suspended. Ms. McGovern testified that her only involvement in the actual filing of tenure charges was to provide Mr. Bartkowski with the proper citations from the education statutes and regulations. This witness also testified that she never heard anyone talk of Ms.

Holmes-Williams's union affiliation in conjunction with the filing of tenure charges against her.

Ms. McGovern confirmed that she was the author of the January 31, 1991 memorandum to Ms. Holmes-Williams (R-27). This witness explained that she came upon Ms. Holmes-Williams's meeting with the staff psychologist in the CAP file room during prep time. She emphasized that prep time was not to be used for personal or union business. Indeed, the teachers at Riverfront, including Ms. Holmes-Williams, had complained that they had insufficient prep time. Therefore, Ms. McGovern thought it essential that what time was provided be used solely for educational purposes.

This witness further testified concerning the "Letter of Counseling" which she sent to Ms. Holmes-Williams on October 2, 1991 (R-21). Ms. McGovern explained that she had asked the respondent to provide her with an inmate folder and attendance card so that she could close it out. Ms. Holmes-Williams came to her office and, almost yelling, told her she had already sent the folder to her. At the time a corrections officer and repairman were in Ms. McGovern's office. Despite their presence, Ms. Holmes-Williams continued to yell "at the top of her voice." Indeed, others in the area could hear her. This witness denied that she yelled during the incident. Ms. McGovern described the respondent's conduct as unprofessional and believed that it could not be condoned.

This witness further testified that she arranged to meet with an E.A.S. counsellor after discussing the matter with Mr. Bartkowski. She felt it would be helpful to discuss her difficulties with an unbiased, third party. She relayed to the counsellor her perceptions of her staff; how they reacted with negativism to her request that they perform their job functions. The counsellor, Mr. Marucci, discussed with her ways of working through her problems with the teachers. Mr. Marucci also suggested that the teachers themselves come to him so that he could help resolve their differences. At Mr. Marucci's suggestion, and with Mr. Bartkowski's approval, Ms. McGovern referred the three teachers: Ms. Monaghan, Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Darkatsh to the E.A.S. for counselling.

Ms. McGovern confirmed that the Employee Advisory Service is a support service offered through the Department of Personnel. This witness acknowledged that the employees involved had the option of taking advantage of the service or not. Ms. McGovern asserted that Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities were simply not considered when referring her and the other two teachers to the E.A.S. counsellor. This witness only wanted to take advantage of this impartial forum to improve relations with her staff.

On cross-examination, Ms. McGovern admitted that she discussed her testimony with counsel to the Department. She maintained, however, that she had never discussed any matter with the Internal Affairs Unit. Ms. McGovern also admitted that although she may join the union, she is currently not a member. She further described the frustrations which prompted her to seek assistance from the Employee Advisory Service. Often when she requested staff members to perform certain tasks, she was met with hostility and a barrage of questions. She had tried to resolve these conflicts on her own; however, as a last resort, she turned to the Employee Advisory Service. Ms. McGovern confirmed that the three teachers referred to E.A.S. were the three with whom she was having difficulties. This witness testified further that the counsellor, Mr. Marucci, asked to see the grievances filed by these teachers in order to understand the kinds of actions they were grieving.

Ms. McGovern confirmed that she had attended grievance hearings for management. Although she did not recall the precise number of grievances filed, this witness estimated that more were filed in 1991 than in earlier years. Ms. McGovern also acknowledged her view that union activities should not interfere with duties. This witness also conceded that she sometimes felt that Ms. Holmes-Williams interfered with her authority.

On redirect, Ms. McGovern explained that she had been a member of CWA 1040 from 1981 through 1991. However, she withdrew from the union during the last contract period since she felt that the interests of her Supervisors and Assistant Supervisors of Education were not adequately represented. Efforts to establish a bargaining unit for those employees were unsuccessful.

This witness also explained the importance of complete record keeping. Daily prescriptive sheets are necessary to generate funding for the educational programs. Furthermore, monthly student summaries are utilized in pre-parole reports. It was Ms. McGovern's opinion that good record keeping was critical to the successful operation of the educational programs. It was also her view that Ms. Holmes-Williams's records often had "holes" in them.

With the testimony of this witness, the Department rested its case and the hearing on both the tenure charges and the unfair labor charge was concluded.

TENURE CHARGES

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the State Department of Corrections as well as the testimony of Ms. Holmes-Williams and the witnesses presented in support of her position, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of these witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the numerous exhibits entered into evidence, I FIND the following:

1. Riverfront State Prison, located in Camden, New Jersey, was opened in 1985 as part of the New Jersey State Department of Corrections. The new institution included an educational program which, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-8, was subject to the general supervisory authority of the Director of Educational Services within the Department of Corrections, Office of Education.

2. In order to provide the educational program planned for Riverfront, ten teachers were hired in June, 1985. These newly hired teachers were provided an intensive two-month training program before the inmates arrived at Riverfront. The program prepared them to teach adults rather than children and sensitized the teachers to the unique problems of providing educational services within a correction institution.

3. As part of Riverfront's training, the new teachers were given Departmental material including the Handbook of Information and Rules, which governs the conduct of all employees within the Department. Section I prohibits employees from indulging "in undue familiarity with inmates or parolees." Conversely, employees may not permit inmates or parolees to be "unduly familiar" with them. Departmental employees may not give to, or receive from, inmates or parolees, gifts, services or things of value. Except as required by their official responsibilities, employees may not correspond with inmates or parolees. Handbook, §§ K, L, M and N (P-40).

4. Riverfront's newly hired teachers also read and discussed the book Games Criminals Play (P-42). The discussions centered upon inmates' efforts to manipulate and compromise staff members.

5. Following the initial period of training, Riverfront circulated to its teachers, and discussed at staff meetings, various directives received from the Department of Corrections, Office of Education. These directives included Rules Governing Your Relationship with Inmates which provided in part:

> Employees shall not indulge in undue familiarity with inmates or permit inmates to be unduly familiar toward them. An employee cannot perform his job properly if he attempts to be "one of the boys." The word fraternizing implies an association with the inmates on equal terms. The correctional employee has no such association with the inmates. The correctional employee constantly represents authority to the inmates. It is therefore impossible for you to fraternize with the inmates and maintain the role model which is essential to successfully perform your job.

6. Through its program of orientation and ongoing training, the supervisory staff at Riverfront alerted its teachers to the serious problems generated by "undue familiarity" with inmates. Should a staff member interact with an inmate, in other than a professional manner, the credibility and integrity of that staff member can be seriously jeopardized. All correctional employees, including civilians such as teachers, are privy to confidential information. A staff member who is friendly with an inmate represents a serious risk to the security of the correctional institution. The inmate may persuade the staff member to divulge confidential information or introduce contraband into the institution. These acts may endanger the safety of other personnel and breach the security of the institution itself.

7. Ms. Jacqueline Holmes-Williams was hired by Riverfront State Prison in 1985 as one of its original teachers. She, therefore, received the intensive two-month program of orientation as well as Riverfront's ongoing training for its teachers. Ms. Holmes-Williams received and was familiar with the various Departmental materials provided by Riverfront. She also read a copy of the book Games Criminals Play.

8. Ms. Holmes-Williams's teaching duties included basic education in the Pre-GED program. During her entire time with Riverfront, Assistant Supervisor of Education Cindi McGovern was Ms. Holmes-Williams's immediate supervisor and Supervisor of Education Gregory Bartkowski was her overall supervisor. Ms. Holmes-Williams was never formally disciplined during her years at Riverfront although she received a Letter of Counselling dated October 2, 1991 concerning a confrontation with her immediate supervisor, Ms. McGovern (R-21). Ms. Holmes-Williams also received an informal letter of commendation from Supervisor Bartkowski, dated June 7, 1990, for her assistance in maintaining the library in the absence of the librarian, Starr Kirkland (P-45).

9. In addition to its formal program of education, inmates at Riverfront were permitted to engage in group activities which would help them develop skills, knowledge and attitudes necessary to their rehabilitation. Assistant Superintendent William Finney was responsible for oversight and coordination of these inmate organizations. In order to become operational, inmates had to have their proposed organization approved by the administration and a staff member had to be designated as liaison between the group and the administration. The staff who acted as liaison did not receive monetary remuneration for performing this function although they were given "comp" time for hours spent in group activities after the normal work day.

10. The inmates at Riverfront approached Starr Kirkland for assistance in organizing a group to study minority cultures. This group, designated A.M.I.R.A. (African Americans and Other Minorities Incorporated for Reconstruction Associations), was approved by the Riverfront administration and Ms. Kirkland agreed to be the first liaison to the group. In that capacity, she appointed the original seven members of the Board of A.M.I.R.A. Thereafter, board members were elected to two year terms by the membership.

11. As a result of Ms. Kirkland's encouragement, Ms. Holmes-Williams became involved in A.M.I.R.A. activities from the very beginning of the organization. Ms. Kirkland also was able to enlist the services of April Gordon, a secretary in Administration, to take care of the group's paper work.

12. When Ms. Kirkland decided to leave Riverfront in August, 1990, she discussed with Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon the role of liaison for A.M.I.R.A. With their agreement, Ms. Kirkland recommended that they become co-liaison to that group. At approximately the same time, Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon prepared a memorandum in which they informed the Administration:

> Since we have volunteered our time and received comptime approval from Mr. W. Finney, we wish to continue as Co-liaisons of the AMIRA Organization.
>
> [P-44]

The administration, therefore, approved the appointment of Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Gordon as co-liaison to A.M.I.R.A.

13. A.M.I.R.A. met two to three times each week after 4:00 p.m. in Ms. Holmes-Williams's classroom in the education area of Riverfront. Ms. Holmes attended most meetings of A.M.I.R.A. which had a membership of approximately thirty inmates.

14. Inmate Hillard Phillips was found guilty of first degree robbery and sentenced to fifteen to thirty years in prison with a mandatory minimum. His parole eligibility date is September, 1994. Inmate Phillips served one year of his sentence at Riverfront State Prison. He was transferred to Bayside State Prison in October, 1991.

15. Inmate Phillips was not a student of Ms. Holmes-Williams. However, he was a member of A.M.I.R.A.; he also was a member of the Board of A.M.I.R.A. and head of its Speakers Bureau. Ms. Holmes-Williams was co-liaison to A.M.I.R.A. during the time Inmate Phillips's was involved with that group. In addition to attending the general membership and board meetings, Inmate Phillips would come to Ms. Holmes-Williams's classroom in the education area, before the beginning of class, to drop off or duplicate A.M.I.R.A. material. Ms. Holmes-Williams would also request that Inmate Phillips be permitted to come to her classroom.

16. In August, 1991, Gregory Bartkowski received an anonymous letter from an inmate stating that Ms. Holmes-Williams was involved in a relationship with an inmate; the inmate was not named. Mr. Bartkowski turned the letter over to the Internal Affairs Unit assigned to Riverfront State Prison.

17. The Internal Affairs Unit is an autonomous unit within each correctional institution. Its charge includes the investigation of referrals from the Office of the Governor, the Commissioner and the Superintendent of the institution.

18. Senior Investigator Barney Dyrnes, of the Internal Affairs Unit at Riverfront, was assigned to investigate the allegations concerning Ms. Holmes-Williams. The anonymous letter was not considered reliable. However, information was thereafter received from an known informant who reported that Inmate Phillips and Ms. Holmes-Williams were seen caressing and kissing. This information was reduced to a Statement dated September 15, 1991.

19. Based on the Statement of the Informant, Internal Affairs recommended that Inmate Phillips be transferred to Bayside State Prison. Thomas Hundley, Superintendent of Riverfront, approved Inmate Phillips's transfer. Upon transfer, Inmate Phillips's personal papers and other belongings were generally inventoried, boxed and forwarded to Bayside.

20. At the time of his transfer, the Internal Affairs Unit at Bayside was requested to monitor all correspondence to, and from, Inmate Phillips. The incoming and outgoing mail was not confiscated; it was copied and then sent on. Senior Investigator Keith Arch at Bayside agreed to monitor Inmate Phillips's mail to ascertain if there was any correspondence between this inmate and Ms. Holmes-Williams. Bayside was also provided with a picture of Ms. Holmes-Williams together with her identifying characteristics.

21. Ms. Holmes-Williams was not observed visiting or attempting to visit Inmate Phillips at Bayside State Prison.

22. The monitoring of Inmate Phillips's mail, however, did disclose a possible romantic relationship between the two. Through this procedure, five outgoing communications were intercepted. Each consisted of an envelope addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams enclosed within a large envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips's sister, Mildred Knighton. In the first, dated October 15, 1991, Inmate Phillips asked his sister to drop the second envelope "in the mail to Jacquie for me." The interior envelope, addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams, contained directions to Bayside State Prison and information concerning visiting hours at the institution "just in case baby." It concluded "I Love and Miss You so much" and was signed with an Ankh (P-7). The second large manila envelope was sent on October 25, 1991 by Inmate Phillips to his sister. Enclosed within was a second manila envelope addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams, containing a drawing depicting two individuals engaged in a sexual act (P-9). The next two, sent on January 4, 1992 and in February, 1992, similarly consisted of larger envelopes sent to Mrs. Knighton containing smaller envelopes addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams (P-14, P-15). The final communication in this series was a three page sexual fantasy contained in an envelope addressed to Ms. Holmes-Williams and included in a large envelope addressed to Inmate Phillips's sister, Mrs. Knighton (P-20).

23. The monitoring process also disclosed a letter from Inmate Phillips to Carson Edwards, a paroled ex-offender. This letter, intercepted on December 18, 1991, stated that Ms. Williams was moving on Saturday, December 21, and might need his services. Inmate Phillips then provided Mr. Edwards with Ms. Holmes-Williams's address. As a result of this communication, Senior Investigator Dyrnes surveilled the address provided in Inmate Phillips's letter and confirmed that Ms. Holmes-Williams did, indeed, move to that address on Saturday, December 21, although she did not utilize the services of Mr. Edwards (P-13, R-6).

24. Also intercepted was a package of food from Warenthia Phillips to Inmate Phillips. Although the package showed Ms. Phillips's return address as "Paterson," it was post marked from "Camden," the residence of Ms. Holmes-Williams. Included within this package was a card signed with an Ankh symbol.

25. After discussing the material intercepted by the monitoring process at Bayside State Prison with his supervisor, Senior Investigator Dyrnes was authorized to confront Inmate Phillips and to search his belongings. This interview took place on February 20, 1992. After being shown copies of his outgoing correspondence, Inmate Phillips admitted he had a relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams but refused to give a statement to that effect. This inmate stated he wanted no part of anything that would hurt Ms. Holmes-Williams. Inmate Phillips asserted that he had not kept the correspondence received from Ms. Holmes-Williams. However, a search of Inmate Phillips's locker disclosed a three page love letter and various cards signed with the Ankh symbol; a series of romantic correspondence from "Warenthia Phillips" and an original picture of Jacqueline Holmes-Williams. Senior Investigator Dyrnes seized this material from Inmate Phillips's locker.

26. At hearing, Inmate Phillips admitted writing to Ms. Holmes-Williams, at her home, but denied that she had given him her home address. He also identified, as his own, various copies of letters sent through his sister to Ms. Holmes-Williams. Inmate Phillips characterized his relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams as one of friendship. He denied that Ms. Holmes-Williams had written to him at Bayside maintaining that the material received from "Warenthia Phillips" was indeed received from that individual. Inmate Phillips admitted he knew of the date on which Ms. Holmes-Williams moved and her new address but offered no explanation as to how he acquired that personal information. He also acknowledged that he had Ms. Holmes-Williams's picture but explained that he had taken it from her desk while he was at Riverfront. Inmate Phillips conceded that he had written the sexual fantasy contained in P-20 and had sent it to Ms. Holmes-Williams. He also admitted that h e had purchased a vase for Ms. Holmes-Williams to "show his affection for her."

27. Inmate Phillips conceded that he and Ms. Holmes-Williams were occasionally alone in her classroom. He also acknowledged that he was able to avoid detection when, by his account, he took Ms. Holmes-Williams old address and picture from her desk.

28. Inmate Phillips was sent to lock up for one day after his interview with Senior Investigator Dyrnes. He acknowledged that he knew he was violating prison rules when he wrote to Ms. Holmes-Williams and sent her a gift.

29. After completing Inmate Phillips's interview, Senior Investigator Dyrnes and Principal Investigator Assante returned to Riverfront State Prison and discussed the results of their investigation with Superintendent Hundley and Assistant Superintendent Finney. Because of the seriousness of the allegations, the investigators were authorized to confront her with the results of their investigation and to offer her the opportunity to resign in good standing rather than to go forward with the filing of tenure charges. The option of "resigning in good standing" is generally offered to a staff member facing charges of improper relationships with inmates since it limits damage to the employee's reputation. This is particularly important for teachers since removal on charges may impact on future employability in the field of education.

30. When confronted by Senior Investigator Dyrnes, Ms. Holmes-Williams denied any involvement with Inmate Phillips. In the presence of her union representative, and after discussing the matter with the main C.W.A. office, Ms. Holmes-Williams rejected the offer of a resignation in good standing. Assistant Superintendent Finney immediately suspended Ms. Holmes-Williams with pay.

31. Following her suspension, Ms. Holmes-Williams returned to Riverfront State Prison on February 24, 1992. At that time she acknowledged a random sampling of her Tour Reports (P-36). She then gave exemplars of her handwriting: twenty-eight with her right hand and twenty-eight with her left (P-37).

32. The forced and voluntary exemplars, together with the documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker at Bayside, were sent to the Internal Affairs Unit at the Department of Corrections, for analysis to determine the author of the seized documents.

33. In a report received April 22, 1992, James J. Lennon, a Senior Investigator - Document Examiner with the Department's Internal Affairs Unit, concluded that Ms. Holmes-Williams was "positively identified" as the writer of the majority of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker. Following receipt of this report, Riverfront State Prison went forward with the filing of tenure charges against Ms. Holmes-Williams.

34. At hearing, Senior Investigator Lennon was admitted as an expert in the area of handwriting analysis. This expert designation was based on his specialized training with the United States Secret Service and his experience in examining approximately five hundred separate documents during the past three years under the general supervision of a senior documents analyst. Senior Investigator Lennon was the only expert in this proceeding.

35. In making his analysis, Senior Investigator Lennon compared the questioned documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker with the known exemplars, both forced and voluntary, of Ms. Holmes-Williams's handwriting. He closely analyzed the embellishments in the writings which represent the distinguishing characteristics of an individual's handwriting. There was excellent agreement between the upper case, cursive "I" which appeared in the romantic letter seized from Inmate Phillips (P-22) and the same letter which appeared in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Reports (P-36, 12-9-91). The writer of both the romantic letter and the Tour Report formed the lower case, cursive "v" so that it appeared to be a "u." The author of each document formed the lower case, cursive "a" in a very unusual manner when it appeared at the beginning of a word. There was excellent agreement between the lower case, cursive "with" appearing in both the known and questioned documents. The author of both combined the "w" and the "i" so that they appear to be two lower case, cursive "u's." There was also excellent agreement between the cursive, lower case "be" which appeared both in the romantic letter seized from Inmate Phillips and in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Report. In both documents, the word "be" appeared as "lie." The author of both documents also demonstrated an unique embellishment when writing an upper case "A." This letter is half written and half printed and has a hook in the middle. This unique "A" appears both in the letter seized from Inmate Phillips and in Ms. Holmes-Williams's Tour Report. It was this agreement of unique embellishments and characteristics that led Senior Investigator Lennon to positively identify Ms. Holmes-Williams as the writer of the majority of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips.

36. At hearing, Ms. Holmes-Williams again flatly denied that she was the author of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips. She also denied that this inmate had ever acted in an inappropriate or familiar manner toward her. The two were briefly alone together when Inmate Phillips would drop off A.M.I.R.A. material or when making copies of A.M.I.R.A. documents. Ms. Holmes-Williams explained that Inmate Phillips could have taken her picture and old address from her desk which was not always secure. However, she offered no explanation as to how Inmate Phillips, after his transfer to Bayside State Prison, knew the exact date and location of her move in Camden. Ms. Holmes-Williams admitted receiving, at her new address, a vase and flower together with a card signed "Phil." She did not report the gift to the administration at Riverfront State Prison.

37. No witness for the Department of Corrections or for Ms. Holmes-Williams had observed Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips acting toward one another in an improper or unduly familiar manner.

38. Based upon the above determinations, I FIND further that the investigation in this matter, conducted by members of the Internal Affairs Unit, proceeded in an entirely proper and even-handed manner. When first alerted to a possible relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips, Senior Investigator Dyrnes took no action since he considered an anonymous "tip" to be unreliable. Only when that rumor was substantiated by a known informant, who reduced his allegations to writing, was action taken to transfer Inmate Phillips to another correctional facility and to have his mail monitored. This action in no way harmed Ms. Holmes-Williams but rather served to protect her reputation should the informant have been in error or maliciously motivated. Indeed, the investigation was conducted in a confidential manner; a fellow teacher, Ms. Monaghan, confirmed at hearing that she did not know that Ms. Holmes-Williams was the subject of an ongoing investigation until she was suspended. However, the disclosure of outgoing correspondence to Ms. Holmes-Williams, through the mail monitoring process, moved the investigation forward to a direct confrontation with Inmate Phillips. This individual confirmed the relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams when faced with the material seized from his locker. Recognizing the seriousness of the charges, and the information developed which would support those charges, the investigators were authorized to confront Ms. Holmes-Williams. Although somewhat blunt in approach, I do not believe that the investigators endeavored to intimidate Ms. Holmes-Williams. Indeed, I have had the opportunity to observe Ms. Holmes-Williams during this extensive hearing and find her to be an exceptionally strong and determined individual who fully exercised her rights to confer with her union on the day of her interview and who emphatically rejected the option of "resignation in good standing." This option was simply offered to Ms. Holmes-Williams as an alternative which would not adversely impact on future employment in the field of education.

39. I FIND further that the investigation into the relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams was conducted independently by the Internal Affairs Unit at Riverfront and was driven by the information as developed. There is no evidence in the record herein that the administrators at Riverfront or the supervisors within its Education Department directed or influenced this investigation. Further, the handwriting analysis was performed by an investigator within the Department's Central Office who was totally removed from any institutional concerns.

40. I FIND that Inmate Hillard Phillips was an intelligent and articulate witness. He was extremely cautious in his testimony. His admissions were circumscribed by the hard evidence confronting him. He admitted writing to Ms. Holmes-Williams from Bayside State Prison when presented with copies of his letters secured as a result of the mail monitoring process. He admitted sending Ms. Holmes-Williams a gift when confronted with copies of relevant correspondence. Inmate Phillips sent this gift as a sign of his affection for Ms. Holmes-Williams. He further admitted he considered her to be his friend but denied that their relationship was sexual in nature or that she had introduced contraband into the facility. I FIND these admissions entirely credible. I also am persuaded that Inmate Phillips, a seasoned and sophisticated inmate, knew the consequences to Ms. Holmes-Williams of a relationship with him. He, therefore, undertook a elaborate scheme to avoid detection including the use by Ms. Holmes-Williams of the name of "Warenthia Phillips," Inmate Phillips's niece. I FIND entirely credible his explanation that he did not wish to harm Ms. Holmes-Williams and tried to shield her from the consequences of a relationship with him. I do not accept as true, Inmate Phillips's explanation that the letters were written by his niece. The substance of the love letter (P-22) clearly describes the emotions of a person new to a relationship such as Ms. Holmes-Williams and not the feelings of someone "almost a member of the family" who may have been Inmate Phillips's lover many years ago when she was little more than a teenager. I also FIND unpersuasive Inmate Phillips's explanation of how he obtained both Ms. Holmes-Williams's picture and home address without her cooperation and without detection. Finally, I FIND particularly significant the lack of any explanation of how Inmate Phillips, after his transfer from Riverfront, became privy to personal information concerning the date of Ms. Holmes-Williams's move and her new address. Based upon the above, I FIND that Ms. Holmes-Williams was involved in a relationship with Inmate Phillips in which she shared personal information with him.

41. I FIND that the analysis of the handwriting expert, Senior Investigator Lennon, was helpful to this tribunal in determining whether or not Ms. Holmes-Williams was the author of the documents seized from Inmate Phillips's locker. From the detailed analysis provided by Senior Investigator Lennon, as well as from my own comparison of the known exemplars to the questioned documents, I FIND that there is excellent agreement between the two on the various embellishments and characteristics found on both sets of documents. While there may be someone in the general population who shares these unique writing characteristics with Ms. Holmes-Williams, I FIND it incredible that that person would be Inmate Phillips's "niece" who was writing love letters to him. This is particularly unlikely since Ms. Holmes-Williams has never met "Warenthia Phillips" and Ms. Phillips has not had the opportunity to develop a similar writing style similar to Ms. Holmes-Williams, as sometimes happens between members of the same family or between teacher and student. I FIND, therefore, that Ms. Holmes-Williams was the author of the love letter and various cards seized from Inmate Phillips's locker at Bayside State Prison. These pieces of correspondence clearly demonstrate that Ms. Holmes-Williams was involved in an improper, romantic relationship with Inmate Phillips.

42. I FIND Ms. Jacqueline Holmes-Williams was a strong and articulate witness who gave her testimony in a direct manner. From the record before me, I FIND that Ms. Holmes-Williams was essentially a competent and effective teacher although she did receive a "Letter of Counselling" because of a confrontation with her immediate supervisor, Ms. McGovern. Ms. Holmes-Williams was fully aware of the requirement that all contacts with inmates be in a professional manner and of the serious threat to security which would result from undue familiarity. Ms. Holmes-Williams was cognizant of the disciplinary consequences which would flow from improper relationships with inmates. I FIND that Ms. Holmes-Williams willingly acted as co-liaison for the prisoner organization A.M.I.R.A. and by doing so performed a necessary service for the institution. This position also provided her with the opportunity to meet Inmate Hillard Phillips who was not only a member of A.M.I.R.A. but also on its Board and head of its Speakers' Bureau. Through their involvement with A.M.I.R.A., the two met several times a week at general membership and board meetings and A.M.I.R.A. functions. They also were alone together before class when Inmate Phillips's delivered A.M.I.R.A. papers or when duplicating A.M.I.R.A. material or when Ms. Holmes-Williams would send for him. These contacts provided the opportunity for the development of a relationship between the two and for the exchange of personal information between them. When Inmate Phillips was transferred, Ms. Holmes-Williams could have terminated the relationship without disciplinary consequence to herself. She chose not to do so but rather engaged in a clandestine correspondence with Inmate Phillips calculated to avoid detection.

43. I FIND that Ms. Holmes-Williams's general denial of a romantic relationship with Inmate Phillips is clearly outweighed by the evidence before this tribunal including the believable admission by Inmate Phillips that a relationship with Ms. Holmes-Williams existed; the copies of correspondence sent by Inmate Phillips to Ms. Holmes-Williams; the gift sent by Inmate Phillips to Ms. Holmes-Williams as a sign of his affection for her; Inmate Phillips's possession of personal information about Ms. Holmes-Williams which could only have been disclosed by her and the romantic letter and cards written by Ms. Holmes-Williams to Inmate Phillips.

Based upon the above, I FIND that the State Department of Corrections has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Ms. Holmes-Williams engaged in an improper relationship with Inmate Hillard Phillips; that the relationship, which was romantic in nature, exceeded the professional relationship between correctional staff and inmate; that the relationship was furthered by means of an unauthorized correspondence with Inmate Phillips undertaken in a surreptitious manner to avoid detection and that the relationship between Ms. Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips had the potential of compromising the security of Riverfront State Prison. The State Department of Corrections has, therefore, established by a preponderance of credible evidence that Ms. Holmes-Williams was guilty of conduct unbecoming a public employee. N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(A)6.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

State statutes grant teachers in New Jersey the right to tenure. The law protects teachers from being dismissed for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. 65, 70-72 (1962) certif. denied 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d (1963). Under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-11 teachers employed in State facilities, including correctional facilities, have the same rights as were enjoined by teachers in the earlier Garden State School District. Teachers in correctional facilities, such as the Riverfront State Prison, are therefore protected by tenure as encompassed in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

It is well recognized, however, that teachers employed in correctional facilities are subject to security regulations unique to those institutions. Indeed, the Commissioner of Education has underscored that teachers in correctional institutions share with custodial employees a duty to maintain the security of their institution. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Russell Somano, Southern State Correctional Facility, 295-92.

Essential to maintaining the safety and security of correctional facilities is the regulation precluding unduly familiar relationships between correctional staff members, including teachers, and inmates. In Bowden v. Bayside State Prison, A-4766-91T1 (App. Div. 1993) the Appellate Division, recently reviewed the discipline imposed upon a correctional officer who was found guilty of playing cards with inmates and with paying off his gambling debts by bringing cigarettes into the institution. The Merit System Board had imposed a six-month suspension rather than the removal sought by Bayside State Prison. The Appellate Division reversed the Merit System Board finding that Bowden's conduct subverted the discipline at Bayside State Prison and warranted his dismissal. The court followed the holding of the Supreme Court of New Jersey in Henry v. Rahway State Prison, 81 N.J. 571, 580 (1980) which > . . . recognized the danger which inheres when order and discipline are disrupted or destroyed in a prison. The need for proper control over the conduct of inmates in a correctional facility and the part played by proper relationships between those who are required to maintain order and enforce discipline and the inmates cannot be doubted. We can take judicial notice that such facilities, if not properly operated, have a capacity to become 'tinderboxes.'

> [Bowden, Slip Op. at 5]

In the present matter, Ms. Holmes-Williams became involved in an unduly familiar relationship with Inmate Phillips. She continued that relationship after Inmate Phillips's transfer to another institution when she could have terminated it without disciplinary consequence to herself. Recognizing the seriousness of her breach, Ms. Holmes-Williams continued the relationship in a surreptitious manner in order to avoid detection. Through their channels of communication, Ms. Holmes-Williams was able to pass personal information to Inmate Phillips. Ms. Holmes-Williams could easily have passed confidential institutional information to Inmate Phillips which could have endangered the safety and security of the institution. Even Ms. Holmes-Williams, in her most recent legal submission, acknowledged that "undue familiarity with inmates is sanctionable conduct" (Rsb-1).

Based upon these considerations, it is determined that Ms. Holmes-Williams's conduct seriously subverted the discipline at Riverside State Prison and warranted her termination as a teacher in the employ of that institution.

UNFAIR LABOR CHARGE

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of Ms. Holmes-Williams and the witnesses presented in support of her position as well as the testimony of witnesses presented by the State Department of Corrections, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of these witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the numerous exhibits entered into evidence, I FIND the following:

1. Jacqueline Holmes-Williams has been a shop steward with C.W.A. at Riverfront State Prison for six years. In this capacity, Ms. Holmes-Williams represented anyone in the professional unit in the grievance process with management. She also filed grievances on her own behalf.

2. Ms. Holmes-Williams was named Department of Corrections Shop Steward of the Year in recognition of her efforts at Riverfront to assure enforcement of the union contract, policies and procedures.

3. Ms. Holmes-Williams also attended union conventions on a regular basis and unsuccessfully ran for State Senate as part of a slate of union activists who ran as independents. Following her suspension from Riverfront, Ms. Holmes-Williams has been working as a union representative for C.W.A. 1040, handling grievances for other teachers.

4. Because of her heavy caseload, Ms. Holmes-Williams requested that Elizabeth Monaghan, a reading specialist at Riverfront, also be named as Shop Steward. This appointment was made in 1989 and Ms. Monaghan generally represented Ms. Holmes-Williams in her grievance proceedings. Ms. Monaghan is currently Shop Steward of the Year in recognition of her efforts to vigorously enforce the union contract.

5. From January 29, 1991 through January 10, 1992, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed a minimum of sixteen grievances on her own behalf. Ms. Monaghan represented her in the majority of these proceedings while either Ms. McGovern, Ms. Holmes-Williams'immediate supervisor, or Mr. Bartkowski, her general supervisor, appeared on behalf of management.

6. Ms. Holmes-Williams filed three grievances on January 29, 1991, which sought to have her P.A.R.S. evaluation rewritten (R-7, R-8, R-9). On June 20, 1991, she filed three grievances challenging the refusal to relieve her of non-teaching duties (R-10, R-11 and R-12). Three grievances were filed by Ms. Holmes-Williams on September 6, 1991 challenging her classroom observation reports (R-13, R-14 and R-15). She filed two grievances on September 23, 1991: the first complained of an incomplete telephone message taken for her while she was away from Riverfront campaigning for the State Senate (R-16); the second challenged her supervisor's "harassing" action in returning a Tour Report to her (R-17). On October 9, 1991, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed three grievances seeking to have a "Letter of Counselling" (R-21) expunged from her record (R-18, R-19 and R-20). A single grievance was filed on December 9, 1991 challenging the refusal of release time so that Ms. Holmes-Williams might prepare for a grievance hearing on December 5, 1991 (R-22). Ms. Holmes-Williams filed a final grievance on January 10, 1991, in which she challenged the language in her "final P.A.R.S." as false and misleading (R-23). Ms. Holmes-Williams was successful in this last grievance and management was directed to rewrite her evaluation. The other fifteen grievances filed by Ms. Holmes-Williams on her own behalf during 1991 were denied either at the first or second step of the process.

7. Prior to 1991, Ms. Holmes-Williams filed, on her own behalf, a minimum of fifteen grievances per year for the last five years. However, in the early years she filed as many as forty-five grievances to correct a situation where the teachers were treated as the stepchildren of the institution. Some of these "bulk" grievances involved herself alone while others involved the group of teachers including herself. Ms. Holmes-Williams also filed grievances solely on behalf of others.

8. Because the number of grievances fluctuated, Ms. Holmes-Williams sometimes attended between three to five hearings a month; while at other times, she was involved in more than fifteen hearings a month. She also attended several informal meetings per month in an effort to resolve problems before that were formalized as grievances.

9. In January, 1991, Ms. McGovern objected to Ms. Holmes-Williams meeting with a member of the Professional Unit during her class preparation time. Teacher preparation time was not to be used for either union or personal business and Ms. McGovern sent Ms. Holmes-Williams a memorandum to that effect (R-27).

10. During 1991, four teachers were having a discussion and closed the door to the classroom where they were gathered. Mr. Bartkowski, their general supervisor, pushed the door open and remained in the room until the teachers departed. He asked if they were doing their class prep and expressed concern they were conducting personal or union business during the time set aside to prepare for class.

11. With Mr. Bartkowski's approval, Ms. McGovern met with a counsellor from the Employees Advisory Service, a support service offered through the Department of Personnel. She hoped to receive assistance from an unbiased third party, in dealing with the negative attitudes of three of her staff members. The counsellor suggested that these teachers come to him so that he could help resolve their differences. The counsellor also asked to see the grievances filed by the teachers to understand the type of issues they were grieving. With Mr. Bartkowski's approval, the three teachers, Ms. Monaghan, Ms. Holmes-Williams and Ms. Darkatsh, were referred to the E.A.S. for counselling (R-24 and R-25). These three were referred since they were the ones with whom Ms. McGovern was experiencing difficulties. Ms. Holmes-Williams went to the scheduled session on December 9, 1991, but refused to participate when she saw that the counsellor had a stack of her grievances. An Unfair Labor Charge, which is still pending, was filed with P.E.R.C. on behalf of the three teachers (R-26) concerning their referral to E.A.S.

12. On October 2, 1991, Ms. McGovern sent a "Letter of Counselling" (R-21) to Ms. Holmes-Williams following an incident wherein Ms. Holmes-Williams yelled at her superior, in front of other staff members, when asked to provide an inmate's file. Ms. Holmes-Williams filed three grievances seeking to have this letter expunged (R-18, R-19 and R-20).

13. At the request of Superintendent Hundley, Mr. Bartkowski scheduled meetings with each teacher individually in an effort to resolve the differences between staff and supervisors. Ms. Holmes-Williams appeared for her session on January 22, 1992 but loudly expressed her view that nothing would be accomplished since the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent were not present. After approximately ten minutes, Ms. Holmes-Williams exclaiming that she was no "house nigger," declared the meeting over and left. Mr. Bartkowski sent a memorandum to Ms. Holmes-Williams on the same day criticizing her conduct (R-28).

14. Ms. Holmes-Williams, as well as two other teachers, Ms. Monaghan and Ms. Darkatsh, had difficulties with Ms. McGovern's supervising style. Ms. McGovern appeared to be somewhat rigid particularly in her demands that staff submit required paperwork in a timely and complete fashion. This material was necessary to support educational funding provided the institution. As a general rule, Mr. Bartkowski did not experience difficulties with the three teachers.

15. Mr. Bartkowski and Ms. McGovern were aware of the grievances filed by Ms. Holmes-Williams since one of them would generally represent management at the grievance proceedings. These supervisors were also aware of her activities as a Shop Steward and as a candidate for State Senate.

16. Mr. Bartkowski, although eligible to do so, has chosen not to join the union. Ms. McGovern, a member of C.W.A. from 1981 through 1991, withdrew because she felt that the interests of supervisors and assistant supervisors were not adequately represented.

17. Ms. Holmes-Williams's general and immediate supervisors, Mr. Bartkowski and Ms. McGovern, played no role in the on-going investigation into her suspected relationship with Inmate Hillard Phillips. These supervisors were also not involved in the decisions to confront Ms. Holmes-Williams; to offer her the option to resign in good standing and, when that option was rejected, to suspend her. Those decisions, made by the Superintendent of Riverfront, were based on concerns for institutional security and were made following the investigation by members of the autonomous Internal Affairs Unit. The disciplinary action taken was not based on Ms. Holmes-Williams's deficiencies as a teacher. Since her suspension resulted from an improper relationship with an inmate which subverted the security of the correctional institution, her educational supervisors were not brought into the decisional process by the Riverfront administration.

18. Senior Investigator Dyrnes and Principle Investigator Assante, who were responsible for the investigation into the suspected relationship between Ms.

Holmes-Williams and Inmate Phillips, are both union members and have both held positions of leadership in their union. There was no evidence that the two investigators knew of Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities. The two investigators were not directed or influenced in the conduct of the investigation by anyone in administration at Riverfront. (Cf. Tenure Charges, Finding of Fact No. 39.)

19. Thomas Hundley, Superintendent of Riverfront, ultimately decided that Ms. Holmes-Williams should be confronted with the evidence of her relationship with Inmate Phillips and should be offered the opportunity to resign in good standing. This option was offered to limit damage to Ms. Holmes-Williams's reputation which could impact future employment as a teacher. For reasons of institutional security, Superintendent Hundley authorized Ms. Holmes-Williams immediate suspension when she declined to resign her position.

20. Superintendent Hundley has been amenable to the union on various issues. When a staff lounge was removed, Superintendent Hundley intervened in an effort to restore it. The Superintendent endeavored to alleviate difficulties between supervisors and staff so that there could be coooperation among employees at every level.

21. Based upon the above, I FIND that the sole reason for suspending and removing Ms. Holmes-Williams was her improper relationship with an inmate which relationship subverted the security and discipline of a correctional institution. I FIND that Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities played no part in the decision to discipline her. Indeed, the extensive record developed herein shows no factual nexus between (a) the independent investigation conducted by members of the autonomous Internal Affairs Unit at Riverfront and (b) Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities involving her supervisors in the education department of that institution.

22. I FIND further that the supervisors in the education department at Riverfront State Prison made every effort, within the confines of an extremely small staff, to accommodate Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities. Indeed, although Ms. Holmes-Williams has been a union activist at Riverfront for six years, the extensive record herein disclosed only two instances where the education supervisors questioned whether she was engaged in union activities during her class preparation time. Further, although the teachers, including Ms. Holmes-

Williams, had difficulties with Ms. McGovern, those difficulties were not the result of any hostility to the union but rather more of a personalty conflict. Indeed, Ms. McGovern tried to alleviate those difficulties through the Employee Advisory Service. The Superintendent also directed Mr. Bartkowski to meet with each teacher, in yet another effort to resolve the difficulties between supervisor and staff. Ms. Holmes-Williams refused to participate in either the session scheduled with the Employees Advisory Service or in the conference scheduled in accordance with Superintendent Hundley's instructions. I FIND these two sessions were not indicia of hostility to Ms. Holmes-Williams but rather attempts to develop a cooperative, positive relationship between the teachers and supervisory staff.

23. I FIND that Jacqueline Holmes-Williams has established by a preponderance of the evidence herein that she was engaged in activities protected under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act and that her employers knew of those activities. However, Ms. Holmes-Williams has failed to establish that those union activities were a substantial or motivating factor in bringing tenure charges against her.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act prohibits public employers from > (a)(1) Interfering with, restraining or coercing employees in the exercise of rights guaranteed them by this Act;

>
> * * *
>
> (3) Discriminating in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage employees in the exercise of rights guaranteed to them.
>
> [N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4]

A public employer, including administrators in the State correctional facilities, are clearly prohibited from disciplining public employees in retaliation for the exercise by those employees of rights guaranteed to them by the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act.

The Supreme Court of New Jersey, in In re Bridgewater Tp., 95 N.J. 235 (1984), considered the more difficult situation where dual motives are asserted for disciplinary action. In that case, the Township contended that the employee, Anthony Longo, was transferred for legitimate organizational reasons while the union asserted that the transfer was made in reprisal for Mr. Longo's union activities. The Supreme Court concluded that when dual motives are asserted, the employee must first establish that the protected activity was a substantial, motivating factor in the employer's disputed action. In the absence of direct evidence of anti-union motivation,

> . . . a prima facie case must be established by showing that a employee engaged in protected activity, that the employer knew of this activity, and that the employer was hostile toward the exercise of the protected right.
> [In re Bridgewater, 95 N.J. at 246]

Once the employee makes that showing, the burden shifts to the employer to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that the action was taken for legitimate business reasons and not in retaliation for union activities. The Supreme Court underscored that public employers clearly retain the right to discharge employees for legitimate business reasons unrelated to the employee's union activities. Those reasons, however, most be genuine and not a mere pretext for discipline based on anti-union motivation.

The Public Employment Relations Commission, addressing the burden of proof in dual motivation cases, has emphasized that > Proving that one engaged in protected activity and that the employer was aware of it does not, of course, establish a violation. The critical element is the requirement that the employer was hostile towards the protected activity. While that may be established by inference, it is not sufficient merely to establish the presence of anti-union animus. That, in the words of our Supreme Court, is not enough. Indeed, it is not sufficient to find that animus played a part in the decision. Compare, Haddonfield Borough Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 77-36, 3 NJPER 71 (1977). Rather, the test requires that such animus was a 'motivating force or a substantial reason for the employer's action.' Bridgewater at 242.

>
> [Middletown Township Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 86-142, 12 NJPER 17194 (1986) (Emphasis added)]

In the present case, Ms. Holmes-Williams has established that she was engaged in protected union activities at Riverfront State Prison and that her employer was aware of those activities. However, Ms. Holmes-Williams has failed to establish that her employer was "hostile" to those union activities and that that "hostility" was "a motivating force or a substantial reason" for the disciplinary action taken against her. Ms. Holmes-Williams was suspended as a result of an investigation conducted by members of the autonomous Internal Affairs Unit within the institution. Ms. Holmes-Williams was disciplined because that investigation yielded evidence of an improper relationship with an inmate and such action on her part subverted the order, security and discipline essential to correctional facility. Ms. Holmes-Williams presented no evidence which would establish that the employer's "hostility" to her protected activities was a factor, much less a substantial factor or motivating reason, for her removal from Riverfront State Prison. During her six years as a Shop Steward, Ms. Holmes-Williams was able to demonstrate but two instances when she was reminded that "class prep" time should not be used for union or personal business. Ms. Holmes-Williams also established that her employee, on two occasions, attempted to resolve differences between supervisors and staff, the first attempt was through the Employees Advisory Service and the second through individual conferences. It does not appear that these incidents constitute "anti-union animus" under the Middletown Township Board of Education rationale. However, even if these acts could be so construed, the administrative record herein is devoid of any nexus between that asserted hostility and the actual decision to discipline Ms. Holmes-Williams. That decision was solely motivated by concerns for institutional security. Ms. Holmes-Williams's union activities was simply not a factor considered in determining to discipline this employee.

Ms. Holmes-Williams has, therefore, failed to meet the burden of proof allocated to employees under the Bridgewater Tp. rationale. She has failed to establish a prima facie case that anti-union animus was a motivating factor in her removal from Riverfront State Prison. The Unfair Labor Charge should, therefore, be denied. Since Riverfront State Prison has not violated the provisions of the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, there is no basis to order specialized remedial relief under that Act.

In accordance with the Joint Order entered herein on February 25, 1993, I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION for a determination whether Jacqueline Holmes-Williams was engaged in activity protected under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act and whether that activity, if protected, was a substantial or motivating factor in bringing tenure charges against her.

This recommended decision, as it addresses these issues, may be adopted, modified or rejected by the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION. If the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION does not adopt, modify or reject that portion of this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limits is otherwise extended, this recommended decision on the above issues will become final in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION shall then forward the record, including this recommended decision and its final decision on the Unfair Labor Charges to the Commissioner of Education who will determine whether the bringing of Tenure Charges was for legitimate business reasons and who will issue a final decision on the Tenure Charges.

Upon transmitting the record, the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c) request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION within forty-five (45) days of the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION decision. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the tenure charges shall become the final decision.

The COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION shall return the record herein, including this recommended decision and both the final decisions, to the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION for its determination of whether any specialized remedial relief may be ordered under its Act. Upon transmitting the record, the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION shall, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.8(c) request an extension to permit the rendering of a final decision on the issue of the remedial relief by the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION within forty-five (45) days of the Tenure determination. If the PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION does not render a final decision within the extended time, this recommended decision on the issue of remedial relief shall become the final decision.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the CHAIRMAN OF THE PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS COMMISSION, 495 West State Street, CN 429, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Those exceptions will address that portion of the Initial Decision concerning the (1) Unfair Practice Charge and (2) any specialized relief appropriate under the New Jersey Employer-

Employee Relations Act. Within that same timeframe, any party may file written exceptions to that portion of the Initial Decision addressing the Tenure Charges with the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions."

DECISION AND ORDER

On July 16, 1992, the Communications Workers of America, Local 1040, a majority representative, filed an unfair practice charge against the State of New Jersey (Department of Corrections), a public employer. The charge alleges that the employer violated the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq., specifically subsections 5.4(a)(1), (2), (3), (4), and (7),[1/] when it filed tenure charges against Jacqueline Holmes-Williams, a teacher at Riverfront State Prison, with the Commissioner.of Education. The tenure charges sought the termination of Holmes-Williams because she allegedly violated a department policy by becoming too friendly with an inmate, thus compromising prison security. The unfair practice charge specifically asserts that the tenure charges were baseless and were filed to retaliate against Holmes-Williams for pressing grievances, supporting unfair practice charges, and serving as a CWA shop steward.

On September 11, 1992, the Director of Unfair Practices issued a Complaint and Notice of Hearing. The employer filed an Answer denying that the tenure charges were unfounded or retaliatory.

The Commissioner of Education and the Chairman of the Commission issued a joint order consolidating the tenure charges and the unfair practice charge for hearing before an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"). P.E.R.C. No. 93-78, 19 NJPER 170 (¶24087 1993). On April 1, 2, 12, and 13 and May 17 and 18, 1993, ALJ Mary Ann Burgess of any employee organization. (3) Discriminating in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed to them by this act. (4) Discharging or otherwise discriminating against any employee because he has signed or filed an affidavit, petition or complaint or given any information or testimony under this act. (7) Violating any of the rules and regulations established by the commission."

conducted a hearing. The parties examined witnesses,[2/] introduced exhibits, and filed post-hearing briefs.

On December 29, 1993, the ALJ issued her Initial Decision. Concluding that the employer had proven that Holmes-Williams had subverted discipline at Riverside State Prison by being unduly familiar with an inmate, she recommended that the Commissioner of Education sustain the tenure charges. Concluding that CWA had not proven that the protected activity of Holmes-Williams was a substantial or motivating factor in the decision to file the tenure charges, she recommended that the Commission dismiss the unfair practice charge.

The joint order consolidating the tenure charges and unfair practice charge for hearing also specified a three-step process for reviewing the ALJ's initial decision. First, the Commission would decide whether Holmes-Williams was engaged in activity protected by the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act and whether hostility towards protected activity was a substantial or motivating factor in the bringing of tenure charges. Second, the Commissioner of Education would determine whether the tenure charges were brought for legitimate business reasons and should be sustained. Third, if an unfair practice was found, the matter would be returned to the Commission to consider what relief was appropriate under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act.

2/ A tape recording was made of the testimony, but neither party asked that transcripts be prepared.

On February 15, 1994, CWA filed exceptions on primarily legal grounds. It asserts that it submitted sufficient circumstantial evidence to establish that the employer was hostile towards the protected activity of Holmes-Williams and that this hostility motivated the decision to bring tenure charges. It also asserts that the employer's reason for dismissing Holmes-Williams --undue familiarity with an inmate-- was a pretext and that the ALJ erred in admitting the testimony of a handwriting analyst who was not qualified to give an expert opinion.

On March 22, 1994, the employer responded to CWA's exceptions. It asserts that the ALJ correctly concluded that anti-union animus did not motivate the tenure charges; Holmes-Williams did violate department policy against undue familiarity with inmates; and the handwriting analyst was a properly qualified expert.

We accept the ALJ's findings of fact concerning the unfair practice charge (Initial Decision at 62-67). We add to findings no. 2 and 3 that Holmes-Williams was named Shop Steward of the Year for 1991 and that she ran for the State Senate in 1991. We add to finding no. 5 that Cinthia McGovern, the immediate supervisor of Holmes-Williams, estimated that more grievances were filed in 1991 than in earlier years, even though she did not recall the precise number of grievances filed. We add to finding no. 13 that Holmes-Williams asked for CWA representation during the January 22, 1992 meeting because she believed the meeting had turned disciplinary. Her request was denied because Greg Bartkowski, the general supervisor of Holmes-Williams, did not believe that the purpose of the meeting was disciplinary. The meeting ended.

In re Bridgewater Tp., 95 N.J. 235 (1984), sets forth the standards for evaluating allegations that a discharge was discriminatorily motivated in violation of subsections 5.4(a)(1) and (a)(3). No violation will be found unless the charging party has proved, by a preponderance of the evidence on the entire record, that protected conduct was a substantial or motivating factor in the adverse action. This may be done by direct evidence or by circumstantial evidence showing that the employee engaged in protected activity, the employer knew of this activity, and the employer was hostile toward the exercise of the protected rights. Id. at 246.

If the employer did not present any evidence of a motive not illegal under our Act or if its explanation has been rejected as pretextual, there is sufficient basis for finding a violation without further analysis. Sometimes, however, the record demonstrates that both motives unlawful under our Act and other motives contributed to a personnel action. In these dual motive cases, the employer will not have violated the Act if it can prove, by a preponderance of the evidence on the entire record, that the adverse action would have taken place absent the protected conduct. Id. at 242. This affirmative defense, however, need not be considered unless the charging party has proved, on the record as a whole, that anti-union animus was a motivating or substantial reason for the personnel action.

Holmes-Williams was engaged in a great deal of protected activity. Between January 29, 1991 and January 10, 1992, she filed at least 16 grievances on her own behalf and she had filed many grievances in prior years as well. She also served as a CWA shop steward, earning an award as the 1991 steward of the year in the Department of Corrections. In addition, she attended union conventions and unsuccessfully ran for the State Senate on a slate of union activists. Her supervisors, McGovern and Bartkowski, knew of her protected activity.

There is no direct evidence of managerial hostility towards Holmes-Williams because of her protected activity. CWA asserts that the circumstantial evidence proves that McGovern and Bartkowski were hostile towards this activity and relies upon three events: (1) McGovern's referral of Holmes-Williams and two other teachers to the Employees Advisory Service in December 1991; (2) a meeting attended by McGovern, Bartkowski, and Holmes-Williams on January 22, 1992, and (3) a grievance filed by Holmes-Williams and sustained on February 7, 1992. The ALJ's findings of fact (Initial Decision at 64-65) about the referral and the meeting establish that they were part of a good faith attempt to improve staff relationships, not an attempt to curb protected activity.[3/] The grievance involved whether Holmes-Williams should have been given an interim or a final evaluation. There is no evidence that its filing or resolution disturbed her supervisors.

Even if CWA had proved that McGovern and Bartkowski were hostile towards protected activity, the ALJ properly found that such hostility did not motivate the tenure charges. McGovern and Bartkowski were not part of that decision or the investigation preceding it. Instead the investigation was conducted by the Internal Affairs Unit after it received a tip from a reliable informant that Holmes-Williams and an inmate had been seen kissing. The investigation began in September 1992, before any of the three events relied upon by CWA to suggest anti-union animus, and produced the evidence that led to the decision to ask Holmes-Williams to resign. The decision was made by the Superintendent of Riverfront without any input from McGovern or Bartkowski. There is no evidence in the record suggesting that the Superintendent harbored any hostility towards protected activity.

We therefore conclude that CWA has not demonstrated that hostility towards protected activity was a substantial or motivating factor in bringing the tenure charges.

3/ CWA asserts that the referral to EAS constituted an independent violation of subsection 5.4(a)(1). That allegation was not pleaded in this unfair practice charge and will not be considered now. An unfair practice charge (CO-92-188) concerning the referral is still pending.

CWA asserts that the ALJ erred in finding that a handwriting analyst was an expert and in accepting his testimony. We decline to consider that question since it concerns the admissibility and sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the tenure charges. We will forward the record to the Commissioner of Education to consider the tenure charges.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6849-92 and PRC 2301-93 (CONSOLIDATED)

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JACQUELINE HOLMES-	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
WILLIAMS, RIVERFRONT STATE	:	DECISION
PRISON, NEW JERSEY STATE	:
DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Consistent with the ALJ's procedural directives as set forth at pp. 70-71 above, the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) issued its final decision on the Unfair Labor Charges on April 29, 1994 and obtained an extension of time so that the Commissioner of Education might issue his final decision on the tenure charges below within forty-five (45) days of PERC's decision. Exceptions to all aspects of the initial decision were filed by Holmes-Williams ("Williams"), as were replies thereto by the Department of Corrections ("Department"), likewise in accordance with the ALJ's directives and duly granted extensions.

In her exceptions addressing the tenure charges, Williams renews her contention that the reasons for her dismissal were pretextual, arising from animus between herself and her superiors. She asserts that the ALJ erred in finding a wall of silence between her supervisors and the staff who participated in the investigation and filing of charges, noting that 1) the investigation was sparked in the first place by supervisor Bartkowski's passing to investigators of an anonymous "tip" about her alleged relationship with inmate Phillips; 2) Bartkowski maintained a continuing interest in the outcome of the "tip" he supplied; and 3) it was highly unlikely, given general testimony about how widely and quickly talk of staff-inmate relationships was known to spread, that supervisor McGovern would somehow have been unaware of the allegations regarding Williams and Phillips. (Exceptions, at pp. 13-14)

Williams further reiterates that there is no valid evidence of any improper relationship between herself and Phillips. There is, she contends, no proof of her having visited or attempted to visit Phillips after his transfer, and the only "evidence" of undue familiarity between them, certain correspondence to and from Phillips, fails because letters purportedly authored by Williams were not indisputably linked to her. (Exceptions, at pp. 14-15)

In this regard, Williams specifically questions the ALJ's determination to credit the testimony of Senior Investigator Lennon. Lennon was not, according to Williams, the independent, qualified expert the Department should have produced to sustain its case. Rather, his only full-time employment has been with the Department, and document examination is only one of his duties as Senior Investigator, not a separate job title with corresponding

Civil Service specifications. His only pertinent training was a two-week course with the U.S. Secret Service Agency in 1991, and he was unable to state whether his supervisor in that program was a "board certified expert." Lennon has never taken a proctored examination, published any professional articles, subscribed to any professional journals, nor taken any refresher courses. Although he is aware of commonly used technical dictionaries, he routinely uses the Layman's Guide to Document Examination. Lennon is uncertified and unlicensed, belongs to no nationally recognized board, and had only been examining documents for two years at the time of the investigation at issue herein. Thus, his qualifications are more akin to those of an apprentice than to those of an expert, and his opinion should not have been taken as that of a qualified professional. (Exceptions, at pp. 15-18)

Moreover, Williams continues, even assuming that Lennon had some degree of skill so as to be able to express a net opinion on handwriting comparison, he failed to identify the basis for that opinion through data and supporting rationale, having destroyed the worksheets underlying his final report and having demonstrated in testimony an unreliable memory as to the details of his analysis. Thus unsubtantiated, Lennon's opinion as to the authorship of key documents should not have been accepted as the basis for tenure charges, particularly where his opinion was both contradicted by the testimony of inmate Phillips and belied by the presence, within the documents at issue, of errors and modes of diction more characteristic of a high school dropout than a teacher. (Exceptions, at pp. 18-23)

In reply, the Department contends that, contrary to Williams' assertions, the record fully supports the ALJ's finding that the determination to file tenure charges was made for legitimate business reasons and was in no way based on animus toward Williams, for union activity or otherwise. On the contrary, the record overwhelmingly shows that the investigation leading to the tenure charges was conducted independent of the central actors in, and initiated well in advance of the central events of, the activities cited by Williams as the source of the Department's alleged animus. Moreover, it was at all times governed by the recognition, embodied in numerous Department rules, regulations and guidelines well known to Williams, that activity of the type in which Williams was allegedly engaged presents an imminent threat to the security and integrity of a penal institution. Any such potential breach, must be, and consistently has been, investigated and acted on by the Department, so that Williams was not singled out for harsh or unusual treatment in any manner.

With respect to the Department's substantive case on the tenure charges themselves, the Department urges acceptance of the ALJ's findings and contests Williams' challenge to the credibility of Senior Investigator Lennon. Lennon was, the Department notes, specifically found qualified as an expert by the ALJ based on his Secret Service training and experience in examining over five hundred documents over the past three years under the general supervision of a senior documents analyst; moreover, in addition to admitting that there are no uniformly recognized standards for the identification of "experts" in the field of document examination, Williams never established precisely what credentials would be required to qualify for "expert" designation, nor did she call any expert witness of her own to challenge Williams' professional credibility or rebut his findings. In response to Williams' contention that Lennon did not substantiate his opinions, the Department references Lennon's testimony as described in detail in the Initial Decision at pp. 23-26, and notes that work-related documents written by Williams, examples of which are part of the record herein, evince the very lack of language skill cited by Williams as evidence that she could not be the author of the documents at issue in the tenure matter.

Upon careful review and consideration of the record herein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the ALJ with respect to the bringing and sustaining of tenure charges. Specifically, the Commissioner finds that the initial decision fully and fairly sets forth the testimony, evidence and arguments of the parties, and reaches from them factual conclusions that are overwhelmingly supported by the record, and legal conclusions that are consistent with both established decisional precedent and sound institutional policy. Nor has Williams raised anything in her exceptions sufficient, in the Commissioner's view, to warrant rejection of the ALJ's credibility determinations or counter the great weight of evidence against her own claims and defenses.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, finding that tenure charges were brought for legitimate business reasons and directing removal of Jacqueline Holmes-Williams from tenured employment with the New Jersey State Department of Corrections as of the date of the Commissioner's decision, is affirmed for the reasons well expressed therein. Further, this matter is forwarded to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a) for action with respect to Williams' certificate as it deems appropriate.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

*The ALJ's directive, at p. 70 above, that this matter be returned to PERC following the Commissioner's decision for determination as to any specialized remedial relief to be ordered under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, is rendered moot by PERC's April 29, 1994 determination affirming the initial decision on the Unfair Labor Charges and dismissing CWA's complaint. The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each, and for the General Fund proposition, at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994 in the School District of the City of Hoboken, Hudson County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

Pursuant to letter requests from Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., filed April 27, 1994 on behalf of ten qualified voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.3, and from Jonathan Gordon, filed April 25, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the office of the Hudson County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 6, 1994 at the County Voting Machine Warehouse, 150 Pacific Avenue, Jersey City.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood unchanged as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
David Anthony	4384	129	4513
Peter B. Belfiore	4202	123	4325
Sandra Ramos	4004	118	4122

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION
YES Votes	1921	88	2009
NO Votes	1915	127	2042

The following anomalies were discovered during the recount and examination of related election documents:

> In ward 4 district 2, there was a difference between the public counter information on the statement of results and the machine. The statement was 200 and the machine during recount was 198. Examination of the voting records in the Hudson County Superintendent of Schools Office revealed 200 signatures, which would agree with the arithmetic difference on the protective counter pre- and post-election.
>
> In ward 5 district 3, it appears that the Board of Elections had a different starting number pre-election for the protective counter. The difference between the two, based on the Board of Elections numbers, was 239. This agrees with the public counter. There are 240 signatures in the book for this site.
>
> In ward 6 district 1, there appears to have been a malfunction of the protective counter. The arithmetic difference pre- and post-election was 6. The public counter on site was 190 and the sign-in book had 190 signatures.
>
> In summary: in ward 4 district 2, two people signed in but may not have operated the machine properly to record the vote. In ward 5 district 3, it is unclear what occurred. The number of signatures would tend to agree with the pre- and post-election figures as reported on the statement of results, i.e., 240. It is possible that here also one person did not operate the machine correctly, i.e., signed in but not counted on the public counter. Ward 6 district 1 appears to have had a malfunction of the protective counter only.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that David Anthony, Peter B. Belfiore, and Sandra Ramos were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Hoboken. The Commissioner further finds and determines that the General Fund proposition for the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Hoboken was defeated.

The Commissioner also directs that a copy of this decision be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where inquiries are pending into the conduct of the above-captioned election. In this regard, it is noted that the results of this election, as set forth herein, remain valid unless and until a contrary determination is made by the Commissioner in his decision on inquiry.

DECISION ON MOTION

For the Petitioners, Tomar, Simonoff, Adourian & O'Brien (Lawrence W. Lindsay, Esq.)

For the Respondent New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, Pico, Mack, Herbert (Steven P. Goodell, Esq.)

For the Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Deptford, Zane & Lozuke (Raymond J. Zane, Esq.)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal, Motion for Emergent Relief and Motion for Consolidation on May 4, 1994, by counsel for John Dean, IV, and John Dean, III, on behalf of his minor son, T.D. Petitioners seek an order staying the decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC) on April 14, 1994, declaring petitioners ineligible to participate in interscholastic competition for the spring term of 1994 at Camden High School. The NJSIAA decision was based on the finding that petitioners violated Article V, Section 4K(6) of the NJSIAA Bylaws in transferring from Deptford High School for "athletic advantage" as defined as "a means to nullify punitive action by the previous school." (NJSIAA 1993-94 Handbook, at pp. 44-45) Petitioners assert that the NJSIAA erred by arbitrarily and capriciously interpreting its rules overbroadly and in a manner contrary to the clear intent of the rule and imposed a penalty which was not rationally related to the act sought to be prevented. Petitioners, also, seek to consolidate this matter with a simultaneously filed action entitled John Dean, IV, and John Dean, III, on behalf of his minor son, T.D. v. Board of Education of the Township of Deptford, Gloucester County, Agency Dkt. No. 144-5/94. The later action contests the short-term suspensions of both petitioners by the Board of Education of the Township of Deptford for disciplinary reasons which were imposed on February 3, 1994, an action taken 89 days before the Petitions of Appeal were filed. This decision addresses both the Motion for Emergent Relief and the Motion for Consolidation. For the reasons expressed herein, both the Motion for Emergent Relief and the Motion for Consolidation are hereby denied.

I have carefully considered the briefs of counsel for the petitioners and the respondent Board and Association, the record and transcript of the NJSIAA proceeding, the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 and the standards for granting an application for emergent relief or a stay established by Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). I find that petitioners have failed to advance sufficient evidence to meet the standards articulated in Crowe.

Petitioners assert that John Dean, IV, a high school senior, will suffer irreparable harm by not being able to compete in track meets thereby rendering his chances of receiving a track scholarship to college virtually nonexistent. No evidence has been proffered, however, indicating that petitioner has been accepted to any college or that he is being considered for a track scholarship. As to the irreparable harm to be suffered by T.D., petitioners make no assertions. I find petitioners have failed to establish irreparable harm in that there is no entitlement to play interscholastic sports. Burnside v. NJSIAA, unpublished decision of the Appellate Division, November 15, 1984, Docket No. A-625-84T7, cert. den. 101 N.J. 236 (1985). See, also, Van Velsen v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 264.

The parties do not agree to the substance of the legal right in question. Here, the counsel for the NJSIAA agrees that the legal right underlying the claim, i.e the petitioners' right to appeal decisions of the NJSIAA to the Commissioner of Education, has been settled. Counsel for the respondent Board asserts, however, that the legal right of petitioners to participate in interscholastic sports at Camden High School following a transfer precipitated, at least in part, by a disagreement over a disciplinary action is unsettled. Petitioners aver in their brief that:

> A common sense interpretation of Article V, Section 4(K)(6) of the NJSIAA bylaws, is that an athlete should be ineligible to compete at a school if he or she transferred there in order to participate in a better athletic program or to avoid a disciplinary action which would prevent them from competing at their previous school. The intent of the rule is not to render a student ineligible from competing when he or she is transferring for reasons unrelated to athletics. (Petitioners' Brief, at p. 5)

Petitioners cite Smith v. NJSIAA, 3 JAR 193 (1981) for the proposition that to interpret the rule to encompass transfers as a result of non-athletic disciplinary action and other factors "would allow the rule such a broad application as to render it meaningless and void." The argument, however, ignores the plain language of the rule.

In considering the reasonable likelihood of success on the merits the petitioners assert that the father, John Dean, III, removed all three of his children from the Deptford public schools for a variety of reasons including an ideological clash with the principal over policy, the safety of his children and the health of his wife. Petitioners aver that if the rule governing transfers for athletic advantage is limited to a rational interpretation based upon the policy reasons for the rule, petitioners have a reasonable probability of success on the merits. This is based in part on petitioners' argument that despite the fact that petitioners withdrew from Deptford High School during the term of their suspensions following their father's refusal to allow them to sign a "Return to School Contract" agreeing to abide by the rules and regulations of the Board and state law, they did not start school at Camden High School until they had "effectively served out their suspension[s]."

Both respondents aver that petitioners have no likelihood of success on the merits. Counsel for the NJSIAA argues that petitioners were provided complete due process with a full and fair hearing before the EAC. The language of the transfer for athletic advantage rule clearly defines transfer for athletic advantage to include "seeking a means to nullify punitive action by the previous school." (NJSIAA 1993-94 Handbook, at pp. 44-45) Lastly, counsel for the NJSIAA asserts that the NJSIAA did not act arbitrarily or capriciously in making its determination, and that there was an adequate basis for the determination that the students transferred for athletic advantage as defined by the NJSIAA Bylaws.

Respondent Board avers that the entire case is based on the father's belief that his sons could not return to school in Deptford without signing the "Return to School Contract." I find that petitioners have not demonstrated a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits in that there has been no showing that the actions of either respondent were arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of discretion.

Petitioners aver that no harm will come to the respondents, but John Dean, IV, will be devastated by losing all chance of attending college on a track scholarship. No argument was asserted on behalf of T.D. Petitioners, however, will have every opportunity to pursue their academic careers.

Turning to the Motion for Consolidation, I find the nature of the questions of fact and law to be dissimilar and involving the application of different statutes and different facts. The action against NJSIAA involves the right of an association to enforce its rules, while the action against the Board requires an inquiry and determination of the legality of a suspension. The Motion for Consolidation is, therefore, denied.

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PENNS GROVE-CARNEYS POINT REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SALEM COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Jennifer Maurizio, Pro Se

For Respondent, John Bergh, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a petition of appeal with request for emergent relief filed on June 16, 1994, wherein petitioner sought a determination that her son be allowed to participate in graduation exercises on Friday, June 17, 1994, pending resolution of a dispute concerning the Board's action suspending J.D. on June 13, 1994, for assaulting a teaching staff member.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, Assistant Commissioner Win L. Tillery was designated to decide this matter and a hearing was conducted via telephonic conference on June 17, 1994.

Upon consideration of the information obtained from the parties during the telephonic hearing, the Assistant Commissioner determines that petitioner has failed to demonstrate those standards for extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In so deciding, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner was afforded the opportunity to be heard by the Board. No allegation was made that J.D.'s due process rights were violated. Moreover, petitioner does not deny that J.D. pushed the teaching staff member. Consequently, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner was unlikely to prevail on the underlying merits of her claim that the Board's action in suspending J.D. and prohibiting him from attending graduation ceremonies pursuant to Board Policy 5114 upon a finding that he assaulted a teaching staff member was an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. In the instant matter the Board has exercised its discretionary authority to impose what it considers an appropriate penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

The Commissioner will not set aside a discretionary action taken by a local board of education, acting within its statutory authority, unless he finds that the Board's exercise of its discretion constituted an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. Thomas v. Board of Education of the Township of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 328 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966) The Commissioner finds no evidence of an abuse of discretion in the matter herein.

Similarly, absent a showing of abuse of Board discretion concerning this underlying claim, petitioner was unable to show irreparable harm in the denial of the privilege of attendance at the graduation ceremonies. Petitioner is not being denied a diploma in this matter. See, James Kenngott v. Lower Camden County Regional Board of Education, Camden County, 1975 S.L.D. 489

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is DENIED, and the matter is to move forward for an expedited hearing at the Office of Administrative Law on the underlying merits of petitioner's claims.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FAIR LAWN, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Board candidate, sought to enforce prior agreement to disallow a certain Board worker the privilege of employment as a poll worker in any future election due to alleged incompetence.

ALJ dismissed petition, finding that Board's action in reappointing was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Board had considered matter and concluded that with retraining, poll worker could be rehired. No "promise" was made by the Board not to rehire the poll worker; any promise was made unilaterally by the Assistant Superintendent for Business. Board's determination to reappoint worker was a proper exercise of the Board's discretionary authority.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision as his own.

LAURA COVIELLO, Appellant,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FAIR LAWN, BERGEN COUNTY
Respondent.

Laura Coviello, pro se

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: March 16, 1994 Decided: April 29, 1994

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On March 23, 1993, petitioner, Laura Coviello, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent Board of Education must honor its prior agreement to disallow a certain board worker the privilege of employment as a poll worker in any future election. On March 31, 1993, respondent filed its answer denying certain allegations and asserting that the petition fails to state a claim for which relief could be granted, that petitioner lacks standing to bring the action, and that the petition is untimely.

On April 22, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A.

52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on May 20, 1993. A telephone prehearing conference was held on July 7, 1993, at which time the issues were isolated and a hearing was scheduled for January 6, 1994 at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102. The hearing was held on January 6, 1994. Witnesses who testified and exhibits admitted into evidence are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed on March 16, 1994, after the submission of briefs in this matter.

ISSUES

The issues in the instant case, as set out in the prehearing order, are:

1. Did respondent properly retain an election worker, Frances Davis, to work in the 1993 annual school election?

    a. Did respondent advise petitioner that it would not retain Frances Davis for the 1993 annual school election?
    b. Did Frances Davis engage in incidents which would make her retention by respondent arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable?

2. If petitioner prevails, to what relief is she entitled?

3. Is this action moot?

STIPULATED FACTS

The parties have stipulated to a number of essential facts. The stipulated facts are as follows:

1. Laura Coviello (hereinafter "petitioner"), a resident of the Borough of Fair Lawn, Bergen County, New Jersey, was a candidate for election to the Fair Lawn Board of Education (hereinafter "Board" or "respondent") at the April 7, 1992 annual school election. Petitioner was not elected to the Board in 1992, and did not run for a seat on the Board in the 1993 annual school election.

2. In 1992, Donald A. Fusco was the respondent's Assistant Superintendent - Business and Board Secretary. In his capacity as respondent's chief school business official, Donald Fusco was responsible for overseeing the 1992 annual school election. Mr. Fusco's secretary was Ruth Dietch. Both Mr. Fusco and Mrs. Dietch retired from employment with respondent effective June 30, 1992.

3. The Borough of Fair Lawn is divided into 23 municipal election districts, which in turn are assigned to 10 polling districts for the annual school election. Respondent utilizes voting machines for school elections. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15, each candidate nominated by petition may act as a challenger, and is permitted to appoint "a legal voter of the school district to act as a challenger for each municipal election district included within each polling district in which he is to be voted for."

4. In the 1992 annual school election, eligible voters residing in municipal election districts 16 and 17 voted at Fair Lawn High School. Petitioner designated Floyd Paladino as her challenger for election districts 16 and 17 (J-1, J-2).

5. Ruth Dietch prepared a list of challengers which was distributed to the election judge in each polling district.

6. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6, respondent appointed a judge of elections, an inspector of elections and clerks of elections for each polling district in the 1992 annual school election. The election workers assigned to the Fair Lawn High School polling district on April 7, 1992 were Elizabeth McGinnis (Judge), George McGinnis (Inspector), Harry Kravetz (Clerk), Leon Abramowitz (Judge), Esse Rosener (Inspector), Frances Davis (Clerk) and Ethel Kledt (Clerk).

7. Shortly before the closing of the polls at the April 7, 1992 school election, Floyd Paladino went to the Fair Lawn High School auditorium, where the voting machines were located, to observe the counting of the votes for that polling district. Election clerk Frances Davis asked Mr. Paladino why he was there; Mr. Paladino stated that he was a challenger, and Mrs. Davis checked the challenger list for his name. Mrs. Davis advised Mr. Paladino that his name was not on the list and that he could not remain in the polling place. Mr. Paladino then left the polling place and telephoned petitioner to advise her what had happened.

8. Several minutes after Mr. Paladino's departure, and shortly after the closing of the polls, petitioner entered the High School polling place. An exchange of words occurred between petitioner and Fran Davis, whereupon Mrs. Davis directed petitioner to leave the polling place. Petitioner ultimately left and spoke by telephone with Donald Fusco that evening concerning the incident. Petitioner did not return to the High School auditorium.

9. On or about April 9, 1992, respondent's attorney, Paul H. Green, telephoned petitioner at the request of Mr. Fusco to briefly explain the statutory provisions pertaining to election challenges and recounts. In that conversation, Mr. Green also advised that it was his understanding that the respondent's business office would be removing Mrs. Davis's name from the list of election workers in the future. Petitioner also spoke with Mr. Fusco by telephone on or about April 9, 1992.

10. Respondent maintains the names and addresses of its election workers on file cards. At some time following the April 7, 1992 school election, Ruth Dietch wrote the words "Do Not Use Again" on Frances Davis's card (J-3).

11. Following Mr. Fusco's retirement, respondent abolished the position of Assistant Superintendent-Business and appointed Bruce Watson to the newly created position of School Business Administrator/Board Secretary. Ruth Dietch was succeeded upon her retirement by Sandy Ferro.

12. At some time in or about January or February, 1993, Frances Davis telephoned respondent's business office and requested to be placed on the election worker list for the 1993 annual school election. Sandy Ferro later located Frances Davis's card among the other election worker file cards and observed the notation "Do Not Use Again" which Ruth Dietch had written thereon. At some time in February, 1993, Sandy Ferro spoke with Ruth Dietch concerning that notation. After that conversation, Sandy Ferro placed Frances Davis's name on the list of election workers to be approved by respondent.

13. The list of election workers for the 1993 annual school election was submitted to the respondent for approval at its February 25, 1993 regular monthly meeting. Petitioner was present at that meeting and objected to the list as presented to the respondent. Respondent withheld action on the election workers list and directed its Business Administrator to investigate the issue of Frances Davis's appointment and report back to the Board.

14. By letter dated March 1, 1993 to then Board President Nancy Wallace, petitioner stated in writing the specific nature of her grievance concerning Frances Davis's appointment (J-4).

15. Some time in late February or early March, 1993, Bruce Watson spoke with Donald Fusco concerning the issue of Frances Davis's appointment. Mr. Watson also spoke with Frances Davis, but was unsuccessful in his attempts to contact Ruth Dietch. Following Mr. Watson's investigation and report to the Board, Nancy Wallace spoke with petitioner by telephone on or about March 5, 1993 and advised her that the Board would appoint Frances Davis as an election worker for the 1993 annual school election.

16. By letter to Bruce Watson dated March 8, 1993, petitioner requested a re-evaluation of the decision to appoint Frances Davis (J-5).

17. By letter to petitioner dated March 15, 1993, Nancy Wallace confirmed the Board's decision to appoint Frances Davis as an election worker for the 1993 election and explained the Board's rationale for doing so (J-6).

18. Petitioner filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education on or about March 23, 1993, challenging the respondent's appointment of Frances Davis and seeking an expedited review of the controversy. By letter dated April 15, 1993, the Commissioner determined that an expedited hearing was not justified, and transmitted the within controversy to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing under customary petition timelines.

19. The respondent approved the appointment of election workers, including Frances Davis, at its March 4, 1993 meeting. Frances Davis served as an inspector of elections for election district 16 at the Fair Lawn High School polling place during the annual school election held on April 20, 1993.

TESTIMONY

George McGinnis testified for petitioner. He served as an election clerk in district 17 on April 7, 1992. He testified that shortly after the polls closed at 9:00 p.m. and as the votes were tallied, Coviello appeared and asked for the results of the election. Since he did not know the correct procedure, he asked his wife, also an election worker, to ask Mrs. Davis, the judge in district 16 the proper procedure. But before this could be accomplished, Mrs. Davis came flying across the room, screamed at him, and asked, "What do you think you are doing?" McGinnis indicated that he was dumbfounded; he advised her that he had not done anything. Davis then turned her attention to Coviello. McGinnis was present during the conversation between Coviello and Davis. He did not recall Coviello screaming that Davis had not let the challenger work.
