McGinnis had no other episodes with Davis. But he was upset by this incident, and he called the Board of Education to find out the proper procedure and spoke to Ruth Dietch. He also indicated that he would not work with Davis in any subsequent election. No commitment was made to him but McGinnis did not work with Davis in 1993. Dietch did not advise him that she would remove Davis's name as an election worker.

In further testimony, he stated that he knew that Davis and Coviello were going at each other. He did not recall the specifics of the exchange between Davis and Coviello. He recalled that Davis said that Coviello was not supposed to be there and Coviello indicated that she was. Coviello was trying to get the results of the election. McGinnis indicated that he was trained as an election worker. He did not recall Floyd Paladino and assumed that because Coviello was a candidate she was a challenger.

Ruth Dietch testified for petitioner. She had been a secretary for thirty years and had worked for Donald Fusco. She retired July 1, 1992. For fifteen years it was her responsibility to perform the clerical work for the election; she hired the workers, kept track of the dates, and conducted training sessions. An instruction packet (P-1), prepared by the county, was distributed to every district and to each election officer who went to training. Election workers were given telephone numbers to call if they had a problem. Dietch stated that the counting and tallying of votes is open to the public. Dietch did not recall if she had trained Davis or if Davis had been at the training session. Although she tried to make certain that all workers came to the session, they were desperate for workers and did not prevent workers from working because they had not gone for training. She never put four inexperienced workers together.

Dietch testified that in January or February of 1993, Mrs. Ferro questioned her about the notation on Mrs. Davis's card, "Don't use again." Dietch explained that there had been an incident in the 1992 election and a promise was made not to use her. Dietch indicated she placed a notation on the card because Mr. Fusco had told her that he had promised that Davis would not be used again. She did not believe Fusco told her to put the notation on the card; she did this on her own in order to leave Fusco's message. She asserted that she was not contacted by business administrator, Bruce Watson, after her conversation with Ms. Ferro. There was no message left on her machine and she was not away. She did not recall what Fusco told her about the incident.

On cross-examination, she indicated that the judge is responsible for conducting the election and maintaining order. She indicated that the board appointed election workers on recommendation by Mr. Fusco. The board usually rubber stamped his recommendation, and she never knew them not to approve. She indicated that in certain years the district had difficulty hiring workers. To her knowledge, the district did not investigate the incident between Davis and Coviello.

Donald Fusco had been an assistant superintendent for thirty six years. He stated that pursuant to law, he was responsible for the elections. In reference to Coviello's concern, he spoke to her regarding legal recourse. He also asked Paul Green to telephone Coviello and to further direct her regarding her course of action Fusco had explained the situation to Green; the fact that Davis had objected to people looking at the tallies on the counter. He stated that she caused a lot of problems because the information is open to the public. He indicated that he would not recommend her to be an election worker the following year. His decision was based on the events in the 1992 election. Fusco testified that he told Dietch how he felt about the situation and that he wanted to leave information in the record for those who would be running the election that she not be employed the next year. His intention was to let them know that he did not recommend her re-employment. Prior to the appointment of the election workers, between October 1992 and February 1993, he spoke to Bruce Watson and Sandy Ferro regarding Davis's card and advised them to make their own decision. He did not discuss other incidents regarding Davis with Watson, as he was not aware of any others.

On cross-examination, Fusco stated that he made recommendations to the Board regarding election workers; the Board never asked him to remove a name and they did not add to his recommendation. He stated that there was no written report regarding Davis and the election. He had not reported the incident to the Board. Coviello gave him information, and he casually spoke to the other poll workers. (He did not recall when.) They all agreed that Davis had not wanted to open the viewing of the counters to the public. He explained that the training session was for the district and later for county certification. Someone from the county board of election explained the machine, and Dietch explained the procedures. Those who attended received certification cards. He opined that Fair Lawn did more than the rest of the municipalities in the county in the way of training and that Davis was a certified poll worker. On many occasions the workers were told that the public had a right to approach the machine to see if the numbers were those appearing on the machine. A judge or anyone in the district could quiet people down.

Next to testify was Sandra Janet Ferro, secretary to the school business administrator. She dealt with the details of the 1993 election, and as such, she was responsible for getting the election workers. She went over the list of workers (those that had been used the year before) and sent a letter to them asking if they wanted to work again. She stated that she saw approximately twenty cards with notations on them. Cards that indicated "remove" or "do not use" she placed aside. Fran Davis called and asked to be on the list. She spoke to Ruth Dietch a week or two before the list was placed on the Board's agenda, and asked why Fran Davis's card said, "do not use." Dietch said that Davis did not get along with election workers and had been moved from one district to another. Ferro advised Dietch that Davis was president of the League of Women Voters. According to Ferro, her phone was ringing and she advised Dietch that she would call her back. She tried on five or six occasions to reach Dietch and asked Dietch's friend if Dietch received messages. Dietch's friend said the answering machine was broken; there was a problem with her phone. Ferro contended that in the past Dietch did not return phone calls.

Ferro testified that she told Watson about her conversation with Dietch. He asked if there was anything in writing. She informed him that she did not know the problem and he told her to reach Dietch. (She was not told to contact Fusco.) When she could not reach Dietch she submitted the old list to the Board. (She believed the list was completed in early February.) She noted that she had no documentation and did not think too much about it; other cards had notations. She did not have the letters from the workers (a letter is sent based on the cards to the prior election workers, asking if they want to work), at the time the list was submitted to the Board. Although at first, Ferro indicated that once they definitely knew the names of the election workers this was sent to the Board for approval, and then another complete list of names was submitted for payment (maybe three lists), Ferro, thereafter, admitted that there was never a final list before the election. Ferro explained that a list is submitted to the Board with names from the prior year, and before the individuals have responded to the letters (P-2). The Board then authorizes the board secretary to replace any of the appointed officials who cannot serve with qualified substitutes. The amended list is approved subsequent to the election. Francis Davis was on that list.

Ferro stated that she is not sure of the differences in responsibility between the election clerk, inspector and judge. She tried to keep the responsibilities the same as the year before, and she did not recall why Davis became an inspector. She believed it was a matter of moving names around. She first heard of the election night incident after the board meeting; there was no report of the investigation in 1992.

Bruce H. Watson has been employed by respondent since July 1, 1992. He has worked for fourteen years for different boards, and he has been responsible for ten school board elections. As the school business administrator, he is responsible for overseeing the election. He arranged a seminar for election workers, held two to three weeks prior to the election. He noted that the workers appreciated it and said this was the first time a seminar was held in Fair Lawn. Three weeks prior to the Board meeting, Ferro spoke to him about the notation on Davis's card and informed him that Dietch had had a problem with other election workers. He asked his secretary to look for documentation and there was none other than the note on the card. Therefore, Davis' name was included on the February 25, 1993 agenda. This was his responsibility and he did not contact anybody regarding the matter.

Watson stated that at the February 25, 1993 board meeting, Coviello asked permission to speak. She indicated that there was a problem with the appointment of an election worker on the list. This was the first he knew of the problem. The name was brought up in closed session (he was not sure if Green was there) and the Board asked him to investigate the situation and placed all appointments on hold. He called Fusco and asked him if he recalled the problem with a certain election worker, if he promised Coviello that Davis would not serve again, and whether he so informed the Board. Fusco recalled an incident but not the details of it. Fusco stated that he did not say he had promised that Davis would not serve but had explained to Coviello that there were steps he could take to keep someone from working. Fusco told him that he told Laura Coviello if there was a problem legal steps could be taken not to hire a person back. Fusco had not informed the Board. Watson asked his secretary to call Dietch and that was unsuccessful. He called Fran Davis as the Board had advised him to do. Davis responded that this was the first she had heard of any problem and she would get back to him. She called back and indicated she wanted to stay on the list and would write to the board president regarding what had occurred.

Watson responded to the board at the next meeting during the closed session, with only board members present. The board president had received the information from Davis. Watson informed the Board about Fusco's response and that he had been unable to reach Dietch. The Board asked if there was any written communication and he said, "No." Watson also asked the Board if they had received a written report from the prior business administrator regarding the incident. The Board decided to reappoint Davis.

Watson could not recall if the issue of the League of Women Voters president was discussed at the public meeting. Watson recalled that Green commented on the investigation. Green recalled the problem with Coviello and Davis and talking to Fusco about it. Green did not tell him that he told Coviello that Davis would not work again.

On further questioning, Watson indicated that the election judge, inspector and clerk are paid at different rates. The judge opens the polls and runs the polling place. He believed the judge and inspector authenticate any individual who claims to be a registered checker. (The challengers names are on a list supplied to them.) A judge has more responsibility than an inspector, and an inspector has more responsibility than a clerk. He was not aware that Davis had been upgraded to the position of inspector. Although it is his responsibility, it was the function of the secretary helping him. He believed it customary to use the prior list of election workers, unless there are written complaints. Normally, the worker is reappointed to the same position but a worker may be moved around. In 1992 there was a typed list of challengers' names that went to the judges. Watson testified that he found a list with Paladino's name in his office (which apparently was the one that should have been circulated in the 1992 election) but he had no idea if this list had gone to the judges. Allegedly, the list at the polling place did not have Paladino's name on it; Davis's written communication indicated that the name was not on the list and someone else agreed. He stated that the standard procedure when the polls are closed is that only challengers and candidates can observe the count but cannot interfere with the process. Watson, referring to the election manual (P-4) with which he was familiar, indicated that he was sure the candidates and challengers can observe and that the public can be present.

On cross-examination, Watson indicated that he informed the Board that he would run a seminar on the election process. The Board directed him to inform Davis that she would be reappointed and they hoped there would be no other incidents. Davis attended the training session. As part of the seminar, he discussed with Davis her function. He hoped all further problems would be eliminated, and no problems were reported. He noted that there is generally a problem getting workers; as the election approaches they are always scrambling.

Next to testify was Frances Davis, an election worker for fifteen years. She served as a clerk each year except 1993 when she served as an inspector. She is on the board of the League of Women Voters in Fair Lawn, Voter Services. She knew Coviello prior to the 1992 election. Regarding the April 7, 1992 election, Davis stated that at approximately 8:55 p.m., she noticed a man seated in the auditorium. She asked what he was doing and he said, "They sent me." He said, "Coviello." Knowing and noting that challengers are required to wear badges and have letters of authorization, she noted that he did not wear a badge or have identification. At her request he gave his name (Paladino). She advised him that he was not on the list of challengers. She told him he could not remain as a challenger but could make a phone call in the hallway. He left to make a phone call. She opined that he seemed confused as to his mission.

Davis proceeded to describe the setup and procedure for voting. She explained that in district 16 and district 17 voting is in the auditorium. District 16 is to the left of the stage and district 17 to the right of the stage. At 9:00 p.m. the doors were closed and the booth was opened. Noting that the voters use the the main entrance of the auditorium and proceed toward the stage in the front, she observed Coviello barge in from the side entrance of the auditorium, angry and shouting. She asked Coviello to stop shouting. Davis stated that at this time everyone is tense as the judge calls out the figures and they are written down. She recalled that when Coviello would not listen, she asked her to leave. She recalled rage, anger and yelling on Coviello's part. Coviello believed she had a right to be there. The witness opined that if Coviello had come in quietly she had a right to be there. She was asked to leave because she was shouting and was disruptive. Davis could not recall if Coviello spoke about Mr. Paladino. Davis stated that this was the first time there was such an incident. Coviello left one or two minutes later.

Davis saw Coviello again later that night. The returns were brought into Thomas Jefferson Junior High School between 10:00 and 10:30 and those interested in hearing the returns recorded from each district went there. Davis went to the junior high school. After the results were recorded, Davis was ready to leave. Since it was dark, a teacher from the high school accompanied her to her car. Coviello said something insulting and sassy to her; she could not recall what. The man who was with Davis was startled. Davis said, "Let it go," and did not respond. Davis said that Coviello was angry with her.

Davis stated that Mr. Fusco did not call her about a problem election night 1992. The first time she knew about the situation was when Mr. Watson called her. Stunned that she had been discussed at a board meeting, she gave Watson her version of the story. She recalled that when she received the letter in 1993, she responded and was assigned as an inspector to district 16. She recalled that Watson held a workshop in the auditorium and that Paul Green attended it. There were approximately fifty people there, they were given materials and the entire procedure was discussed. There were no incidents at the April 20, 1993 election regarding the other workers.

In further questioning, Davis stated that she never had a problem with coworkers. She believed she got along well with them and specifically mentioned two such workers. She recalled that one of the voters commended her for opening up the voting process in the other district when a judge was late. She recalled that as voter services chairperson, she had arranged for candidates' night and approved of the format. Mr. Coviello wanted to videotape the program, and she said it was not possible. He responded that it was being held in a public building. She indicated that it was a privately sponsored program and that she would have to ask the candidates and the Board for approval but could not do this five to ten minutes before the program. She had no authorization. Mr. Coviello was angry and said he would sue. He followed her and she advised him to leave her alone.

On cross-examination she indicated that the candidates' night to which she referred was in 1990 or 1991. Coviello or someone from her organization may have run at that time. Referring to the challenger, Mr. Paladino, Davis indicated that Paladino mumbled that they had told him to come. Davis was aware that the general public was allowed to enter, but opined that most of the people who came for the tallying were challengers or candidates. She opined that Paladino probably would have had the right to remain as a member of the public, but he had indicated he was a challenger and did not have the proper identification.

On further questioning, she did not recall speaking to the other poll workers when Coviello came into the auditorium. She could not recall a confrontation with other workers nor did she tell any coworker that the coworker had acted improperly. She agreed that Coviello objected to Paladino being asked to leave the room. She indicated that she discussed the issue with Coviello more in front of district 17, but did not believe she was abandoning her post in district 16. She did not recall being asked to contact the business administrator.

On redirect examination, Davis stated that she believed the McGinnises worked in district 17 in 1992. She agreed that she may have spoken to Mr. McGinnis before speaking to Coviello. She could not recall criticizing Mr. McGinnis but agreed she might have. Davis did not recall shouting at McGinnis and opined that she would not have screamed at him; he is a nice gentleman. She stated that Coviello yelled at her.

FINDINGS OF FACT

It is clear from the testimony adduced at the hearing, as well as the stipulation of facts, that during the 1992 election Fran Davis and Laura Coviello had an exchange of words at the high school polling place. Coviello suggests that it occurred because Fran Davis had improperly advised Mr. Paladino, Coviello's challenger, to leave the polling place and thereafter, also improperly advised Coviello to leave. Fran Davis suggests that it occurred after she properly told Paladino, who did not have proper identification, to leave the polling place and also properly told Coviello, who would not listen and was shouting in the polling place, to leave. Whatever version one accepts is of no great moment for purposes of this court's determination.

Clearly, the situation as described indicates a personal and minor confrontation between two individuals. At worst, Davis improperly advised Paladino to leave the polling place.

Further, the testimony clarifies that thereafter no promise was made by the Board not to rehire Fran Davis. Any such "promise" that may have been made was made unilaterally by Mr. Fusco. Clearly, such a promise was only Fusco's determination that he would not recommend Davis's reemployment in the future. As such, although not an issue here, it was not binding on a subsequent school business administrator or Board.

DISCUSSION

Issues of standing and mootness are related concepts to be used in analyzing the basic issue of whether there is an adversarial contest before a court or administrative agency such that the ultimate decision will not be merely an advisory opinion. The concept of "standing" focuses on the parties and requires that each party possess an interest in the outcome of the controversy, while mootness applies more to the issues involved and as a general rule requires that legal opinions, via adjudication, not be given concerning issues which are no longer in existence because of changes in facts and circumstances surrounding a case.

A particular cause of action may be mooted by intervening events which include actual changes in the law, administrative actions, and settlement between the parties. It is well settled law in New Jersey, that issues that have become moot prior to adjudication are no longer actionable. Oxfeld v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 68 N.J. 301, 303-304 (1975); In re Geraghty, 68 N.J. 209, 212-213 (1975); Sente v. Clifton Mayor and Municipal Council, 66 N.J. 204, 206 (1974).

In the instant matter, petitioner presents an issue of respondent's continued re-employment of Ms. Davis as an election worker. Arguably, based on the sequence and timing of events, the controversy is capable of repetition yet evading review. As such, the circumstances of the instant matter warrant a finding that the doctrine of mootness is not applicable, and petitioner's case is ripe for adjudication. See, Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. for Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982); In re Geraghty, 68 N.J. 209 (1975).

Standing to sue means that the party initiating litigation has a sufficient stake in the controversy to obtain judicial or administrative resolution of the controversy. See Trombetta v. Atlantic City, 181 N.J. Super. 203, 221 (Law Div. 1981) (citing Sierra Club v. Morton, 405 U.S. 727, 731, 92 S. Ct. 1361, 1364, 31 L.Ed. 2d 636 (1972). In the instant matter, petitioner's stake in the matter is obvious in that she seeks to enforce an agreement between herself and respondent. Cf. Crescent Park Tenants Ass'n v. Realty Equities Corp., 58 N.J. 98, 107 (1971) See also N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1. The doctrine of standing, however, has a jurisdictional component as well. Specifically, the OAL is a forum for adjudication of disputes that arise from a web of statutes and regulations that comprise the basis of executive administration and enforcement of the laws of this State. Since statutes and regulations are the framework of the administrative process, a petitioner need assert an interest which is either in the zone of interests protected or regulated by the statutory-regulatory scheme known as administrative law. N.J. Const. art VI § 5 ¶ 4. Petitioner, however, does not point to any statute or regulation that forms the basis of her claim[1].

Specifically, petitioner, does point out that N.J.S.A. 18A:14-65 and N.J.S.A. 19:34-48, respectively, make interfering with the orderly conduct of a school election and willful neglect of duties in performing election duties a misdemeanor. But petitioner does not seek to proceed under the two above statutes as per her letter brief, section C.1. Petitioner only seeks to have her supposed agreement (contract) with respondent, not to allow Ms. Davis to be a poll worker, enforced. Such a claim is not cognizable in an administrative form. The underlying basis of petitioner's claim is purely contractual and outside of the statutory and regulatory scheme of the education and election laws of this state. Therefore, petitioner lacks standing[1] to assert a claim in the OAL and consequently fails to state a claim for which relief can be granted in the administrative law process. East Brunswick Bd. of Education v. Tp. Council of East Brunswick 48 N.J. 94 (1966); Board of Education of Fairlawn v. Mayor and Council 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976); Salley v. Bd. of Education of the City of Newark, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6085-84 (September 20, 1984), adopted by Commissioner of Education (Nov. 8, 1984).

Notwithstanding the above conclusions, I will address petitioner's contention that respondent's action in re-employing Ms. Davis was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable. The authority of local school boards (respondent) is grounded in the constitutional requirement that the State provide a thorough and efficient education for all children. To implement this mandate, the Legislature created a scheme under which public education would be provided through powers delegated to local boards of education. Local school boards are empowered to provide, maintain and supervise local schools. Belvidere Bd. of Education v. Bosco, 138 N.J.Super. 368, 374 (Law Div. 1975). Included in this grant of authority is the board's appointment of challengers, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15, and judges of election, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6, in conducting school board elections. The Legislature specifically enacted a statute which sets the ambit of authority exercised by local boards.

[1] If it so happened that Ms. Davis was found to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:14-65 and N.J.S.A. 19:34-48, then arguably petitioner would have standing in that the claim and relief sought both involve Title 18A. In the instant matter, Petitioner seeks to enforce an agreement between her and Respondent and uses the two above statutory provisions as an explanation for her motivations, but by her own admission does not seek enforcement of the two above statutes. See Petitioner's brief, section C.1.

N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 defines the general mandatory powers and duties of local boards of education, and states that:

> 18A:11-1. General mandatory powers and duties
>
> The board shall-- > a. Adopt an official seal;
> b. Enforce the rules of the state board;
> c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the state board, for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools and public school property of the district and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees, subject, where applicable, to the provisions of Title 11, Civil Service, of the Revised Statutes;[1] and > d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district.

Under this section, the local boards are clearly granted fairly liberal powers concerning local issues and the daily operation of local schools, which includes conducting school board elections. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 to -104. See also Silverman v. Millburn Bd. of Educ. 134 N.J. Super. 253 (Law Div. 1975); State v. Lally, 80 N.J. Super. 502 (Law Div. 1963); In re Annual School Election, Borough of Wanaque, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4)6 (Dept. of Education); In re Annual School Election, Lacey Tp., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol 4) 3 (Dept. of Education).

The issue in the instant matter centers around respondent's exercise of discretion in re-employing Ms. Davis as an election worker. As with any other employment relationship, there is a mix of practical considerations, social dynamics, fiscal considerations, and market forces that coalesce into an ultimate decision by both employer and employee to form and/or continue the employment relationship. The ultimate decision is a balancing process, exercised by both the employer and employee, whereby pros and cons are considered in juxtaposition with each other and whether their respective goals can be met when all considerations are finally weighed. As such, even if petitioner's contentions about Ms. Davis's conduct are true, the Board could, nevertheless, conclude that her re-employment is in the best interest of the election process. Moreover, such an administrative decision is presumptively valid if it fell within the ambit of respondent's legislatively delegated authority. Gormly v. Lan, 88 N.J. 26, 38 (1981). In short, the Board's determination should not be reversed unless it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See, Parsippany - Troy Hills Ed. Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ., 188 N.J. Super. 161, 166-167 (App. Div. 1983); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. Of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294-295 (App. Div. 1960).

In the instant matter, arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable would describe a decision which is not reasonably related to the goals and policies that the Legislature has charged respondent with furthering as per N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1. See Worthington v. Fauver, 88 N.J. 183, 197 (1982). Ms. Davis served as an election worker for 15 years. As such, even if the facts are as petitioner alleges, it would not be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for respondent to want to retain an experienced and proven reliable election worker. There is no doubt that years of experience and an employee's track record of reliability can outweigh a minor indiscretion and further respondent's interest in meeting the goals and policies of N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1. This is not to say that a single incident of sufficient gravity might not be grounds for dismissing an employee who has an unblemished, long established employment record. However, given the circumstances of the instant matter where the alleged offenses are more due to a personal affront then truly disruptive and/or neglectful conduct on the part of Ms. Davis, the employment longevity and proven reliability clearly indicate that respondent had a reasonable basis for re-employing her.

More to the point, it is clear from the testimony adduced at the hearing that the Board investigated the situation, prior to appointing Davis to serve as an election worker in the 1993 annual school election. Bruce Watson spoke with Donald Fusco, Fran Davis, and Paul Green regarding the situation and reported what they told him about the problem in 1992 to the Board. With information in front of them, the Board determined to appoint Davis to serve as an election worker in the 1993 annual school election. The Board advised Davis that she would be reappointed and hoped that there would be no incidents. She attended a training session at which she received materials and the entire procedure was discussed. In addition, Bruce Watson discussed her function with her. She served as an election worker in the April 20, 1993 election and there were no incidents reported.

Clearly, the Board considered the matter and concluded that with retraining Davis should be given the opportunity to continue working as an election worker. Whether a different determination could have been reached by the Board under the described circumstances is not the bench mark or for this court to determine. The Board's action in reappointing Davis was clearly within its discretion and not in any manner arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the above facts and discussion, I CONCLUDE that respondent's action in reappointing Francis Davis to work in the 1993 annual school election was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. The Board's action in determining to rehire Francis Davis was proper.

ORDER

Based upon the above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED and respondent's action AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FAIR LAWN, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs that the Board's determination to reappoint Frances Davis as a poll worker at the 1993 annual school election was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable, notwithstanding the informal representation to petitioner by then-Assistant Superintendent Fusco that Davis' services would not be used again following difficulties in the 1992 election. On the contrary, the record shows this determination to have been a proper exercise of the Board's discretionary authority.

Accordingly, the findings of fact and recommended conclusion of the Office of Administrative Law are affirmed and the instant Petition of Appeal dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 26, 1993, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF STATE OF NEW JERSEY

OAL DOCKET NO. 08102-93S
AGENCY REF. NO. 278-7/93

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

NOW COME Petitioner and Respondent, by and through their undersigned counsel, and mutually agree to the following in resolution of the above-captioned controversy:

1. By virtue of his service as a "teaching staff member," N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, in the employ of Respondent since in or about September 1987 until June 30, 1993, Petitioner acquired tenure within the scope of the instructional certificate which he held. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

2. The only endorsement which Petitioner held under his instructional certificate while in the employ of Respondent was as a teacher of physical education. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)17.

3. Respondent presently has no positions requiring only a physical education endorsement.

4. Respondent does, however, employ teaching staff members in positions requiring endorsements in both physical education, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)17, and in health, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)10, or a single combination health and physical education endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)11.

5. In accordance with 2. above, Petitioner does not presently hold the appropriate endorsement or endorsements for the physical education/health position existing at Respondent's schools.

6. Effective June 30, 1993, Respondent eliminated the internal suspension monitor position held by Petitioner, as allowed under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9.

7. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11, Respondent shall determine Petitioner's seniority status and notify him of same.

8. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, Respondent shall place Petitioner upon a preferred eligible list in accordance with his seniority and shall offer him re-employment "whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which [he] shall be qualified" and for which he is the most senior person available holding such qualifications.

9. Upon forwarding to the undersigned counsel for Petitioner the resolution of Respondent's Board of Education ratifying this agreement, Petitioner shall withdraw the instant Petition with prejudice. In the event that this agreement is not ratified by Respondent's Board of Education, it shall be considere null and void, and the instant Petition shall remain in full force and effect.

WHEREFORE, the undersigned counsel set their hands and seals on the date(s) indicated.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the petitioner, Jane Marghella, (hereafter Marghella), and Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, a Body Corporate and Politic, (hereafter Board), that the parties, desirous of settling the pending litigation before the Commissioner of Education, which fully disposes of all issues between Marghella and the Board, have amicably settled upon the terms set forth below:

1. Marghella withdraws her Verified Petition filed on or about December 6, 1993 with the Commissioner of Education.

2. Marghella is to resume her teaching position with the Board commencing with the school year 1994-1995.

3. Marghella is not to be compensated for the school year 1993-1994.

4. Marghella retains all of her tenure, contractual, medical, pension, seniority and other rights, benefits entitlements and emoluments of employment with the Board.

5. Marghella is to notify the Superintendent of Schools in writing by June 15, 1994, or fifteen (15) days after the within Settlement Agreement is signed and a signed Agreement is in possession of the attorney representing Marghella, whichever date is later, that she will return, which she will, to teach in the North Bergen Public Schools System for the year 1994-1995.

6. This Agreement will become effective when it is approved by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissione of Education. Any disapproval shall not interfere with the rights of Marghella to pursue the matter further.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF PALISADES PARK,
Respondent.

Joseph R. Mariniello, Esq., for petitioner

Peter J. Scandariato, Esq., for respondent
(Smith, Don, Alampi & D'Argenio, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 4, 1994 Decided: May 16, 1994

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter involves a petition by Frank Giannantonio (petitioner) in which he challenges his termination by the Board of Education of the Borough of Palisades Park (respondent) from the position of Director of Maintenance and Custodial Services. Respondent denies that the termination was in any way improper and now moves to dismiss the petition as not timely filed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on October 26, 1992, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies concerning the school laws under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondent filed an answer on November 6, 1992, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 16, 1992 for determination as a contested case.

On April 14, 1994, respondent filed its motion to dismiss based upon the assertion that the filing of the petition was untimely. Petitioner did not respond to the motion to dismiss.

MOTION TO DISMISS

The motion to dismiss is based upon N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), which provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

As set forth in the petition, respondent voted to terminate petitioner's employment and abolish his position. On June 12, 1992, respondent advised petitioner that his employment would be terminated effective August 11, 1992.

Respondent argues that the ninety-day time limit began to run when petitioner received notice of his termination on June 12, 1992. The filing of the petition on October 26, 1992, occurred 137 days subsequent to the notice to petitioner that he was terminated. Respondent concludes that the petition was not filed in a timely manner and should be dismissed.

The ninety-day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) was recently upheld as a proper exercise of the rulemaking authority of the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education. Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572, 580-582 (1993). Under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), the ninety-day period begins to run from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action.

Here, the ninety-day period began to run on June 12, 1992, when petitioner received notice of his termination. The filing of the petition on October 26, 1992, was well beyond ninety days after receipt of notice of the termination. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to file the petition within ninety days of receipt of notice of his termination as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and that therefore the petition must be dismissed.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petition in this matter be dismissed.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JUNE 23, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
MORRIS HILLS REGIONAL SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY.	:

The announced results of the balloting for the General Fund proposition at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994, in the Morris Hills Regional School District, Morris County, were as follows:

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
YES Votes	1,805	13	1,818
NO Votes	1,816	2	1,818

In response to a letter request from the Morris Hills Regional Board of Education, filed April 27, 1994, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.3, the Commissioner of Education directed an authorized representative from the Office of the Morris County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 5, 1994 at the Morris County Voting Machine Warehouse, Highview Avenue, Cedar Knolls. Absentee ballots were recounted at the Morris County Board of Elections also on May 5, 1994, pursuant to the broad authority granted the Commissioner of the 1994 election under P.L. 1994, c.6.

At the conclusion of the recount, the totals were as follows:

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
NO Votes	1,816	2	1,818

There were no changes on the recount. The recount of the absentee ballots did, however, yield one ballot which was received by the Board of Elections on April 20, 1994 but rejected because it was not postmarked. The district has petitioned the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 et seq. for a determination that this ballot be counted in the election results.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

The Commissioner notes that, subsequent to preparation of the representative's report, the petition mentioned therein was heard and determined by the Commissioner, resulting in a directive that the disputed absentee ballot be opened, counted and added to the tally on recount. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Morris Hills Regional School District, Morris County, decided May 31, 1994.

The Commissioner further notes that on June 10, 1994, the County Superintendent of Schools advised that, as directed by the Commissioner in his May 31, 1994 decision, the Board of Elections had opened the disputed ballot on June 2, 1994, and added the vote to the tally on recount.

As a result of such addition, the tally on recount stands at:

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
NO Votes	1,816	2	1,818

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that the General Fund proposition of the Morris Hills Regional School District, in that it has obtained a majority of the votes cast, was approved by the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-58.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: May 20, 1994 Decided: May 23, 1994

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Jeffrey Gruenwald filed a petition to contest a determination by the Board of Education of the Borough of Florham Park to withhold his employment and adjustment increments. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 18, 1993 for determination as a contested case.

On the hearing day, the parties agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and subsequently submitted a Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal. Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re: Jeffrey Gruenwald v. Florham Park
Board of Education
OAL Docket No. EDU 4651-93
Agency Ref. Docket No. 69-4/93

Dear Judge McGill:

We are enclosing an original and one copy of the fully executed Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal, together with a resolution by the Florham Park Board of Education authorizing and approving same.

We apologize for the delay in transmitting these documents to you. They were approved and executed by the Board on March 28, 1994 and were forwarded to Mr. Hunter immediately thereafter. Mr. Hunter returned the documents to us today.

Assuming the terms of the settlement are acceptable to Your Honor, kindly file same with your initial decision with the Commissioner of Education.

Respectfully submitted,

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF MAHWAH	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP, BERGEN COUNTY.	:

JUNE 23, 1994

May 10, 1994, at the Bergen County Voting Machine Warehouse, Carlstadt; the recount of Board member votes was conducted on May 20, 1994, at the office of the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools. On the same dates, absentee ballots were recounted at the parties' request at the Bergen County Board of Elections under the broad authority granted the Commissioner for the 1994 annual school election by P.L. 1994, c. 6.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tallies stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Diane Snyder (write-in)	361	2	363
Frank Buquicchio (write-in)	174	13	187

A number of additional persons continued on recount to receive write-in votes, but no tally approached those of the above two candidates. The recount of absentee ballots reflected no change from the corrected tally reported by the Board of Elections subsequent to the election.

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION

NO votes	672	22	694

CAPITAL PROJECT PROPOSITION

NO votes	500	15	515

As indicated, there were changes in the tallies for the member of the Board of Education, but the outcome of the election was not affected by them, and the tallies for the General Fund and Capital Project propositions were unchanged. Thus, both outcomes remain the same as announced at the conclusion of the election.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's authorized representative.

The announced results of the balloting for one member of the Board of Education for an unexpired term of one year, and for the General Fund and Capital Project propositions of the Board at the annual school election held on April 19, 1994 in the Mahwah School District, Bergen County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Diane Snyder (write-in)	320	0*	320
Frank Buquicchio (write-in)	131	1*	132

A number of additional persons received write-in votes, but no tally approached those of the above two candidates.

*This tally was later corrected by the County Board of Elections to be 2 votes for Snyder and 13 for Buquicchio.

GENERAL FUND PROPOSITION

NO votes	672	22	694

CAPITAL PROJECT PROPOSITION

NO votes	500	15	515

Pursuant to separate letter requests from defeated candidate Frank Buquicchio filed April 29, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.2, and from ten qualified voters filed April 28, 1994 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.3, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education was directed to conduct a recount of ballots cast for the unexpired one-year term and for the General Fund and Capital Project propositions of the district. The recount of General Fund votes was conducted on

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his representative and adopts the findings and conclusions as his own.

Accordingly, as announced at the conclusion of the election, Diane Snyder is deemed elected to the one-year unexpired term on the Mahwah Board of Education, the General Fund proposition of the district is deemed defeated by the voters, and the Capital Project proposition of the district is deemed approved.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF HOWARD EFFEREN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY.	:
AND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:	DECISION
V.	:
HOWARD EFFEREN, RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, tenured custodian, for alleged criminal sexual contact. Board also filed petition for declaratory judgment seeking ruling that respondent forfeited his employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(2) by virtue of judgment of conviction. Matters were consolidated.

ALJ concluded the offense in question involved and touched respondent's employment and that respondent therefore forfeited his position as custodian. Thus, it was unnecessary to reach a determination on the tenure charges.

Commissioner reversed recommended decision of the ALJ and remanded matter for a full hearing wherein respondent shall be permitted to present proof relating to all of the relevant circumstances surrounding the crime for which he was convicted, as required by Gore and Olek, to reach a determination as to whether an individual forfeited his public employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(2). Commissioner further ordered that if it is concluded on remand that respondent did not forfeit his employment, this matter should proceed to hearing on the merits of the outstanding tenure charges filed against him.

Record Closed: April 10, 1994 Decided: April 25, 1994

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 19, 1993, the Superintendent of Schools of the Borough of Bergenfield filed tenure charges and a sworn Statement of Evidence against Howard Efferen (Efferen or respondent), a tenured custodian employed by the school district, with the Acting Secretary of the district's Board of Education (Board or petitioner). Respondent did not submit a written Statement of Evidence in opposition. The Board met on July 13, 1993 and passed a resolution certifying tenure charges to the Commissioner of the State Department of Education (DOE) seeking dismissal of respondent. Efferen was suspended without pay. The DOE transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was docketed as EDU 8099-93.

On August 23, 1993, the Board filed a petition for declaratory judgment with the DOE. That matter was transmitted by the DOE to the OAL on September 14, 1993 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was docketed as EDU 8672-93 and consolidated with the matter previously transmitted.

Telephone conferences were conducted throughout the proceedings. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision on February 10, 1994. Respondent filed a reply thereto on March 14, 1994; and the Board, a response on April 10, 1994, on which date the record was closed. Hearings previously scheduled were adjourned with the consent of the parties pending resolution of the motion.

NATURE OF THE CASE

The tenure charges consist of two counts of unbecoming conduct. Count 1 alleges that on July 29, 1992, respondent had criminal sexual contact with his 25-year-old stepdaughter, D.A., who is alleged to be mentally handicapped, and that on January 25, 1993, Efferen pled guilty to a charge of criminal sexual conduct, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-3b. Count 2 alleges that Efferen misrepresented the status of the criminal action pending against him to the Superintendent of the district, Richard Cirelli (Cirelli). More specifically, it is alleged that Efferen stated that the criminal charges had been dropped when they were still pending. The Board's petition for declaratory judgment seeks rulings that respondent is disqualified for employment or service under Title 18A of the New Jersey Revised Statutes, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, by virtue of a judgment of conviction dated March 10, 1993, and that respondent has forfeited his employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2, by virtue of the judgment of conviction.

The Board argues that it is entitled to summary decision regarding its disqualification and forfeiture arguments, as well as regarding the charges of unbecoming conduct. It relies upon an affidavit by Cirelli, and documents referenced therein, filed in support of the motion, as well as the Statement of Evidence pertaining to the tenure charges and documents filed in support of its petition for declaratory judgment. Respondent opposes the motion, disputes certain of the facts relied upon by petitioner, and argues that certain of the documents relied upon by the Board should not be considered in disposing of the motion. The question presented is whether or not the Board's motion for summary decision should be granted.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and any discovery demonstrate that no genuine issue exists regarding any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. A motion for summary decision may be served with supporting affidavits. The decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery, in addition to any affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. In order to prevail, an adverse party must, by responding affidavit, set forth specific facts demonstrating that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not do so, summary decision, if appropriate, shall be granted. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

I am persuaded that it is appropriate to consider Cirelli's affidavit and documents in support thereof, the documents constituting the Statement of Evidence in support of the tenure charges, and the documents filed in support of the petition for declaratory judgment. Also considered is an answer filed on behalf of respondent to the petition for declaratory relief. Respondent did not file an affidavit nor documents in response to the motion and does not materially dispute the facts alleged by petitioner, except for the allegation that D. A. is mentally handicapped.

Based upon a review of the documents indicated and the papers filed on behalf of the parties in relation to the motion, I FIND the following to be FACTS.

Efferen commenced employment with the Board in 1980 in the position of custodian at Bergenfield High School (High School). The duties of high school custodians in the district are as set forth in Exhibit A to Cirelli's affidavit.

During each school year of his employment, respondent was generally assigned as an evening shift custodian at the High School. His hours of employment were from 3:00 p.m. until 11:00 p.m. Efferen was periodically assigned to other shifts and worksites. During the summer months, July 1 through August 30, of each year, respondent worked the day shift at the High School, from 7:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. There are usually five custodians at the High School during the evening shift. At that time, custodians generally perform their duties unaccompanied by other custodians and are not under constant supervision.

During the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years, there were in excess of 900 students attending the High School. A summary of events and activities which occurred at the High School after hours and during the shift on which respondent worked during the 1991-92 school year is as stated in Exhibit B to Cirelli's affidavit. A summary of events and activities which occurred at the High School during the 1992/93 school year, after school hours and during the hours of the evening shift on which respondent previously worked, is as stated in Exhibit C to Cirelli's affidavit. A summary of events which occurred during the summer of 1993, during day time hours during which respondent previously worked during summers, is as stated in Exhibit D to Cirelli's affidavit.

During the various events and activities referenced in Exhibits B, C, and D to Cirelli's affidavit, high school students, faculty members, students and staff from other schools, and numerous other visitors were present at the High School. During the events and activities of the nature referenced in Exhibits B, C, and D to Cirelli's affidavit, high school students, staff and visitors could and did proceed unaccompanied or unescorted through parts of the building and grounds of the High School. During the performance of his duties as a custodian at the High School, respondent had continuing opportunity for contact with students, staff members, and visitors to the High School and its grounds.[1]

[1] Efferen disputes that he had regular contact with students but does not deny Cirelli's affidavit regarding the presence of individuals and the occurrence of activities at the High School during respondent's school year and summer shifts.

On July 29, 1992, respondent's wife reported to the Bergenfield police department that respondent had sexually assaulted her daughter, D. A., who is 25 years of age, on July 29, 1992, at their home. In a statement given to a senior investigator with the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office, Sex Crimes/Child Abuse Squad, on July 29, 1992, Mrs. Efferen described D. A. as being "slightly mental," noting that she had attended "handicapped schools most of her life." (Ex. A, p. 4, Statement of Evidence in support of tenure charges). A warrant was obtained for the arrest of arespondent, charging aggravated sexual conduct. Respondent was arrested on July 30, 1992.

During the summer of 1992, Mrs. Efferen advised the Board that respondent had been arrested and was incarcerated. The Board suspended respondent on approximately September 18, 1992. On approximately January 8, 1993, Cirelli received a letter dated January 5, 1993 from respondent requesting reinstatement. The content of this letter is as stated in Exhibit I to the Statement of Evidence Supporting tenure charges.

Respondent was indicted on September 25, 1992. Count 1 averred that on July 29, 1992, Efferen committed sexual assault upon D. A. by performing an act of sexual penetration, i.e. inserting his finger into her vagina through the use of physical force or coercion, the victim not sustaining severe personal injury, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-2c(1). Count 2 alleged that on July 29, 1992, respondent committed sexual assault upon D. A. by performing an act of sexual penetration, i.e., anal intercourse with her through the use of physical force or coercion, the victim not sustaining severe personal injury, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-2c(1). Finally, Count 3 stated that on July 29, 1992, Efferen committed criminal sexual contact with D. A. by intentionally touching her breasts for the purpose of degrading or humiliating her or to sexually arose or sexually gratify himself, through the use of force or coercion, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-3b.

On January 25, 1993, respondent pled guilty to Count 3 of the indictment, fourth degree criminal sexual contact, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:14-3b. A Judgment of Conviction was entered on March 8, 1993. He was sentenced to probation for a period of three years. As a condition of probation, Efferen was required to attend and complete Alcoholic Anonymous or any program deemed appropriate by the probation department and was required to continue psychological counseling.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner) has general jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Interested persons may petition the Commissioner for a declaratory ruling regarding the applicability to any person, property or state of facts of any statute or regulation enforced or administered by the Commissioner. N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1.

A tenured school janitor shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except because of a reduction in the number of janitors in the local district or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offenses. More specifically, a tenured custodian shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A-6-10 & N.J.S.A. 18A-17-3.

Applicable statutory provisions provide for employment disqualifications. No school or board of education shall employ or contract for the services of any custodian unless the employer has first determined that no criminal history record information exists on file in the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Identification Division, or the State Bureau of Identification which would disqualify that individual from being employed or utilized in such capacity. Such individual shall be disqualified from employment or service if his/her criminal history record shows conviction of any of certain specified crimes and offenses. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 (Supp. 1993). These include any crime or disorderly person offense bearing upon or involving a sexual offense or molestation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 2C:14-1 et seq. Id. at §(a). Notwithstanding, an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service on the basis of a conviction if he/she has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner clear and convincing evidence of his/her rehabilitation. Certain specified factors are to be considered in determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation. Id. at §(e).

A local school board may employ a candidate provisionally for a period not exceeding six months, pending completion of a criminal history records check, provided the candidate submits to the Commissioner a sworn statement attesting that he/she has not been convicted of any crime or disorderly persons offense as specified in the disqualification provision. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1a. An applicant for employment or service in any of the referenced positions is required to submit to the Commissioner his/her name, address, and fingerprints. The Commissioner is authorized to exchange fingerprint data with and receive criminal record information from the FBI and the Division of State Police. Id. at §7.2. Upon review of the criminal history record information for an applicant, the Commissioner shall notify the applicant of the applicant's qualification or disqualification for employment or service. Id. at §7.3. The Commissioner may maintain the records on a candidate for no longer than one year from the date of determination as to the candidate's qualification or disqualification for employment with an employer. Id. at §7.4.

It is clear pursuant to the statutory provisions pertaining to disqualification, specifically the references to applicant and candidate, as well as the allowance of provisional employment pending a criminal check, that the disqualification statutes apply to applicants for positions, not currently employed individuals. Petitioner's reliance upon Miller v. New Jersey Dept. of Education, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 15 (1991), for the proposition that the disqualification provisions apply to current employees is misplaced. Miller commenced employment in 1984 and was notified on July 11, 1990 that a fingerprint search conducted by the New Jersey State Police and the FBI revealed that he had been convicted on July 1, 1986 for aggravated arson. Although Miller was ultimately disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, it is noteworthy that that provision was not effective until October 8, 1986, a date subsequent to the commencement of his employment and the conviction. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 (notes). Although not entirely clear, it is reasonable to conclude that the Commissioner applied the disqualification provision to Miller as if he were a new employee.

Statutory provisions pertaining to the forfeiture of persons holding official positions are applicable to employees of local school boards. A person holding any public office, position or employment under State government or any agency or political subdivision thereof who is convicted of certain specified offenses shall forfeit his/her office or position. These are convictions of any offense involving dishonesty or crime of the third degree, conviction of an offense "involving or touching such office, position or employment," or if the constitution or statute so provides. N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a). Forfeiture shall take effect upon a finding of guilt by the trier of facts or a plea of guilty, if the court so orders, or upon sentencing, unless the court for good cause shown orders a stay of such forfeiture. Id. at §b.

The determination of whether a crime touches or involves employment requires ". . . an analysis of the nexus between the crime and the employment to determine if there is a sufficient relationship between the two to warrant the harsh penalty of forfeiture." Moore v. Youth Correctional Institute, (Moore), 119 N.J. 256, 266 (1990). The employer and administrative agencies should generally initially make such determination, subject to the individual's right to appeal to the Appellate Division. Moore, supra.

An offense may involve or touch employment even if it was not committed on the job premises or during work hours. It is the substance of the crime which determines whether or not it involves or touches employment. Moore, supra at 269-270. A crucial factor is the relationship between the offense and an individual's capability to perform satisfactorily in the future:

> What does appear relevant is that the offense rendered suspect the employee's future service to the State, both in the capacity of the employee's job at the time of the conviction and in every other potential capacity. Hence, we find that the nexus between the offense and employment is not limited by time and location. When the infraction casts such a shadow over the employee as to make his or her continued service compatible with the traits of trustworthiness, honesty, and obedience to law and order, then forfeiture is appropriate.
> The forfeiture statute, as applied in the foregoing cases, is not merely a collateral attempt to punish the criminal offender. It also reflects a belief that the circumstances surrounding a criminal conviction bear directly on an employee's competency and capacity to continue to do his or her job or to perform any other job for the state . . . Moore, at 270-271.

An individual is guilty of criminal sexual conduct, a crime of the fourth degree, if he commits an act of sexual contact with the victim under certain specified circumstances. N.J.S.A. 2C:14-3(b). These are:

1. The actor uses physical force or coercion but the victim does not sustain severe personal injuries;

2. The victim is one who the actor knew or should have known was physically helpless and mentally incapacitated;

3. The victim is on probation or parole or is detained in a hospital, prison or other institution or is mentally defective and the actor has supervisory or disciplinary power over the victim by virtue of the actor's legal or professional or occupational status;

4. The victim is at least 16 but less than 18 years old and the actor is a member of the victim's household with supervisory or disciplinary power over the victim; or

5. The victim is at least 13 but less than 16 years old and the actor is at least four years older than the victim. Id. at §2(c).

CONCLUSIONS

As discussed hereinabove, the disqualification provisions only apply to applicants for positions in educational settings or employment prior to the effective date of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. They therefore do not apply in the instant matter. It is not necessary to consider the arguments advanced by the parties regarding whether respondent has demonstrated that he has been rehabilitated.

I am persuaded, however, that the offense in question touches and involves respondent's employment and that he is therefore subject to forfeiture, regardless of whether D.A. is mentally handicapped. Forced sexual contact is on its face a serious offense. The context and identity of the victim, factors articulated in Moore, supra, involved sexual contact in a family setting, an element which heightens the seriousness of the offense. Based upon the age of D. A., the apparent circumstances, as addressed in N.J.S.A. 2C:14-2(c), related to either the use of physical force or coercion where the victim did not sustain severe personal injury or the victim was an individual who the actor knew or should have known was incapacitated in some aspect.

The circumstances and the nature of the offense clearly demonstrate that respondent's qualifications to continue in his position are compromised. As found, respondent had ample opportunity for interaction with high school students, individuals presumably several years younger than D. A. As petitioner argues, the opportunity for interaction with students and other individuals when respondent is unsupervised argues for forfeiture. Although the disqualification provisions do not apply in this proceeding, the fact that the Legislature has deemed that applicants who have committed sexual offenses are disqualified evidences a judgment that individuals convicted of such offenses should not be employed in a school setting. The Legislature is deemed to be conversant with its own enactments. Yacenda Food v. N. J. Highway Authority, 203 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1985).

I am persuaded that respondent forfeited his position as a custodian with the petitioner. It is therefore unnecessary to reach a determination as to whether or not he should be disciplined pursuant to tenure provisions.

I CONCLUDE that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 does not apply in the instant case but that the offense in question involves and touches respondent's employment and that he therefore forfeited his position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's motion for summary decision be and is hereby GRANTED as it pertains to forfeiture and be and is hereby DENIED as it pertains to disqualification. It is also ORDERED that respondent be terminated from his position as custodian with petitioner.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF HOWARD EFFEREN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY.	:
AND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:
HOWARD EFFEREN,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Laws have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent excepts to the ALJ summarily deciding that his conviction involved and touched on his employment, thereby requiring forfeiture of his public position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(2), without first affording him a right to a full hearing. He contends that such decision is in contravention of the Supreme Court's holding in Moore v. Youth Correctional Institute, 230 N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1989), aff'd 119 N.J. 256 (1990)

> Since an analysis of whether the offense touched and involved employment precedes the imposition of forfeiture in this case, the Department and Agencies will be able to consider all mitigating circumstances... The inquiry into whether an offense touches on employment to the extent of meriting forfeiture requires careful examination of the facts and the evaluation of various factors in the "involve and touch" analysis. Id. at 268 (emphasis added)

Respondent asserts that Moore clearly mandates that the Commissioner must conduct a careful evaluation during which all mitigating circumstances surrounding his conviction are considered, before automatic forfeiture can be applied.

Respondent further argues that the ALJ's "involved and touched" determination also ignores the dictates set forth in School District of the City of Garfield v. Olek, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 323 (1992) wherein the State Board found that Moore requires a careful examination of respondent's employment and the offenses to which he pled guilty which cannot be done on a limited record. Specifically,

> Such analysis must also include consideration of all mitigating circumstances (citations omitted). In that the Commissioner found that the nature of respondent's offenses precluded the applicability of mitigating factors, it is unclear whether he fully considered such facts or provided respondent with ample opportunity to demonstrate their existence and pertinence. Id. at 5. (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 3)

Respondent argues that in light of the established procedures as set forth in Moore, supra, and Olek, supra, the ALJ should not have granted summary decision to the Board without according him a full hearing which would provide the trier of fact with a complete record of the offense to which he pled guilty, all mitigating circumstances surrounding this offense and relevant expert opinion.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with respondent's exception arguments with respect to the requirements of Moore and Olek in reaching a determination as to whether an individual has forfeited his public employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(2). Consequently, the Commissioner reverses the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law and remands this matter for a hearing wherein respondent shall be permitted to present proof relating to all of the relevant circumstances surrounding the crime for which he was convicted. Only after carefully considering and evaluating all of these circumstances can this forum justly determine whether respondent's conduct touched and concerned his employment.

Accordingly, the Commissioner remands this matter for further proceedings in accordance with this decision in order to determine whether respondent forfeited his public employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2(a)(2). The Commissioner further directs that in the event that it is concluded on remand that respondent did not forfeit his employment, this matter should then proceed to hearing on the merits of the outstanding tenure charges filed against him by the Board.

Petitioner, defeated candidate for membership on the Board, sought inquiry into alleged violations/irregularities in school election proceedings. Petitioner specifically alleged the voting machine in her district of residence had completely malfunctioned.

ALJ found that even though the machine had malfunctioned, to set aside the election, petitioner would have had to prove that the malfunction was so serious an irregularity as to interfere with the free expression of the electorate's will. The Board's expert witness testified that the chance of petitioner not being elected was 73.8 percent. Thus, the likelihood of petitioner's success being about one out of four, petitioner failed to sustain her burden of proof and the petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This is a school election case which the Department of Education transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 30, 1993, as a result of a request made by petitioner, Lorraine DiArchangel, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1 to -6.5. The appeal concerns the annual school election held in Ridgefield Park on April 20, 1993, in which petitioner was a defeated candidate. Specifically, DiArchangel alleged that a voting machine in district 8, her own district of residence, had malfunctioned completely since a tally of the votes from that machine revealed with respect to her candidacy that no votes were registered for her. DiArchangel maintained that this malfunction was so egregious as to require a new election.

A telephone prehearing conference was conducted on July 12, 1993, during which it was agreed that the following issue had to be resolved: "Were there any violations of statutorily proscribed procedures at the April 20, 1993 school board election held in Ridgefield Park and, if so, to what relief, if any, is petitioner entitled?" In the interim, on May 24, 1993, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) had determined following a recount at DiArchangel's request that of six candidates for three Board of Education (Board) positions, DiArchangel received 309 votes and came in fifth. The top three candidates obtained 527, 461 and 441 votes respectively, and the person who came in fourth received 391 votes. Finally, the Commissioner noted that DiArchangel's allegation regarding the consequences of the malfunctioning machine in district 8 was pending before the Office of Administrative Law.

Following a series of adjournments, I heard the matter on March 9, 1994. Testimony was received on that date from the petitioner and two witnesses for the Board. Also present at the hearing was the candidate who came in third, Robert Thiemann; previously he had been admitted as a "participant" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6.

TESTIMONY FOR PETITIONER

Petitioner is a resident of school election district 8 in Ridgefield Park and she was a candidate for the board of education in April 1993. Shortly after 9 p.m. on April 20, 1993, the date of the annual school election, she learned that the machine in district 8 (indeed, the one which she actually used) failed to reflect the casting of even a single vote for her candidacy. DiArchangel knew this constituted a serious malfunction since she had voted that day in favor of her own candidacy and assumed that her husband did so as well. Thus, a serious problem obviously had occurred which she claimed impinged upon the exercise of her own and of the electorate's will, thereby violating her rights as a candidate and requiring a new election either in her district or the entire school district.

TESTIMONY FOR RESPONDENT

Two persons testified on behalf of the Board. The first, Ronald Weber, is the Secretary/School Business Administrator and responsible for overseeing the conduct of annual school elections. According to Weber, the voting machines used in the district are rented from the Bergen County Board of Elections and following the election the poll workers tally the votes cast on each machine for each candidate and then deliver the results to him for public posting in the Board offices.

Weber then identified a variety of documents pertaining to the April 20, 1993 school election. They included the following: (a) a packet containing the statement of results of the election which displayed the count for each candidate at each polling district and on each machine, together with a total tally (Exhibit R-1); (b) a letter from the Superintendent of the County Board of Elections to Board counsel explaining that a malfunction had occurred in the machine used in district 8 on April 20, 1993 (Exhibit R-2); and (c) a packet of documents containing the tally of annual school elections for the seven-year period between 1986 and 1992 which had been provided to a statistician hired by the Board in connection with its preparation for this case (Exhibit R-3).

The Board's second witness, Dr. Javier Cabrera, is a professor of statistics at Rutgers University and holds both Masters and Ph.D degrees from Princeton. Based upon his curriculum vitae (Exhibit R-4) and his own foundation testimony concerning his education and experience, Cabrera was qualified over petitioner's objection as an expert witness in statistics.

Cabrera was employed by the Board in December 1993 to examine the statistical consequences surrounding the machine malfunction in district 8 as it impacted specifically upon DiArchangel's candidacy. He identified a detailed report which he prepared wherein he described the method he followed in order to determine the probability that the malfunction resulted in a failure of petitioner to be elected (Exhibit R-5). Cabrera explained that his formal statistical analysis was designed to "estimate the probability, under certain assumptions, that [DiArchangel] would have obtained a sufficient number of votes in the 1993 annual school election to have won a position on the [Board]." In his analysis Cabrera noted that to achieve the objective of estimating the probability that petitioner would have finished third out of all six candidates (and thereby been elected) he had to construct a model involving an estimate of the number of "unaccounted votes" in each district or polling place. Both in his testimony and in his report he explained that "unaccounted" has reference to the number of potential votes that were not cast for any candidate or, in other words, "unexercised" votes.

Following his statistical model, and based upon certain assumptions, Cabrera determined that in order to have been elected petitioner would have needed 132 or more votes in district 8. To determine the probability of DiArchangel not being elected the witness also calculated that the number of unaccounted votes in her district would have been greater than 62. In performing that computation he used a "binomial probability distribution" approach which involves application of a formula to the numbers of votes and the total votes cast for other candidates in the other seven districts. Also, in light of the fact that different numbers of persons cast votes at the various polling places, a "weighted average" was used in order to provide even more reliability. Ultimately, based upon his computations, Cabrera concluded for the reasons set forth in his report that the chance that petitioner was not elected was 73.8 percent. In other words, the "odds" against her being elected were approximately three out of four. To check the validity of this result based upon the 1993 voting numbers the witness used two other models involving data from the 1986 to 1992 elections for the combined districts 6 and 8 (Exhibit R-3), and for the three of those years in which DiArchangel was a candidate (1986, 1989 and 1990). Although Cabrera acknowledged that neither of those other two models were as "realistic" as the initial model; nevertheless, the results of both confirmed his essential conclusion that the most realistic estimate of the chances that Ms. DiArchangel was not elected was at least 73.8 percent.

On cross-examination the witness indicated that the particular method he used was a standard procedure often used, for example, in polls of candidate popularity and he denied that he had been engaged by the Board as its "hired gun." He insisted that when he was employed and asked to make a statistical analysis he was given no preconceived direction with respect to the outcome.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In light of the testimony and the documentary evidence I herewith make the following findings of fact:

1. The 1993 annual school election in the Borough of Ridgefield Park was conducted on April 20, 1993.

2. Six candidates vied for three positions and the total number of votes cast (both at the polls and absentee) for the six candidates was as follows: (1) Joseph Piccone--527 votes; (2) Raymond J. Dwyer, Jr.--461 votes; (3) Robert Thiemann [the participant]--441 votes; (4) Maryanne Foldi--391 votes; (5) Lorraine DiArchangel [the petitioner]--309 votes; and (6) Thomas A. Blumenthal--238 votes. Thus, Piccone, Dwyer and Thiemann were the successful candidates.

3. A tally of the votes cast in district 8, DiArchangel's "home district," revealed that with respect to the voting machine used in that district (machine no. 93726), no votes were registered for DiArchangel.

4. Following the election the machine in question was examined by a mechanic for the Bergen County Board of Elections. In a letter dated August 25, 1993, to Board counsel from Eileen C. Feldner, Superintendent of Elections, it was noted that the inspection revealed that part of the shifter plate appeared to have been misaligned. Thus, persons attempting to vote for DiArchangel could not engage the "X" wheel and, as a result and unknown to them, no votes for DiArchangel registered on the machine.

5. A statistical report authored by Rutgers University Professor Dr. Javier Cabrera, an expert witness qualified in statistics, revealed that the chance of petitioner not being elected was 73.8 percent, or three out of four. Cabrera's analysis involved the application of a particular model based upon the number of voters at each machine at each polling place, and the fact that each voter in the school board election could cast up to three votes.

6. Dr. Cabrera checked the validity of his result by employing two other models in which he used the results of school board elections for the years 1986 through 1992. Those models confirmed his finding that the chance of petitioner not being elected in the 1993 election was 73.8 percent.

DISCUSSION

The importance of properly registering votes cast at school board elections cannot be overstated. As the New Jersey State Board of Education noted in a 1979 decision involving, in part, a malfunction in voting machines, "[m]embers of boards of education play a dominant role in the governance of local school districts and in determining the quality of the education of our young people. They expend more public funds per capita than any other state or local body. It is of vital importance that board members be properly elected and that they enjoy the support of the majority of the electorate." See, In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the District of the Borough of Tinton Falls, Monmouth County, 1979 S.L.D. 872, 875.

By the same token, however, setting aside any election, not only a school election, requires a high level of proof that the irregularities constituted so major a factor as to nullify the free expression of the voters. See, e.g., In Re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363, 383 (Law Div. 1953); Sharrock v. Keansburg, 15 N.J. Super. 11, 19-20 (App. Div. 1951). To put it another way, every effort should be made to give effect wherever possible to the results of elections and even proven irregularities and deviations do not provide sufficient ground to void an election if, despite those problems, the free will of the people has been fairly exposed and determined and has not been thwarted. See, In Re Livingston, 83 N.J. Super. 98, 107 (App. Div. 1964). Moreover, in analyzing challenges to school board elections it must be stressed that the burden of proof to demonstrate that the free will of the people has been thwarted rests upon the petitioner. It is not enough merely to speculate that had the irregular condition not occurred the result would have been different. See, e.g., In the Matter of the Annual School Election held in the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District, 1987 S.L.D. 1140, aff'd. N.J. State Bd. of Ed., 1987 S.L.D. 1146; In the Matter of the Annual School Board Election held in the Newark School District, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4B) 645 (Dept. of Education).

A review of the testimony, documentary evidence and decisional authorities leads to the inescapable conclusion that despite the unfortunate malfunction which occurred at the April 20, 1993 school board election, which ironically involved the very machine upon which candidate DiArchangel voted, she nevertheless has failed to demonstrate that the machine malfunction was so serious an irregularity as to interfere with the free expression of the electorate's will. I reach this conclusion based not upon "mere speculation," but upon the report and the testimony of the Board's expert witness in statistics, Dr. Cabrera. His analysis, which was not seriously challenged on cross-examination, clearly demonstrated how the unaccounted votes likely were cast and not one of the three formulas which he used produced a result that DiArchangel's likelihood of success was any better than about one out of four. Thus, in light of the petitioner's failure to sustain her burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence, her challenge to the results of the 1993 school election held in Ridgefield Park must be rejected and her petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF RIDGEFIELD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner did not meet her burden of proof in this matter, as she was unable to show that a voting machine malfunction, which served as the basis of her complaint, sufficiently affected the outcome of the election so as to thwart the will of the voters.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

DECISION

Petitioning physical education teacher contended Board violated his seniority and tenure rights by reducing his employment from full to part-time for a portion of the 1991-92 academic year and by abolishing his position for the 1992-93 academic year. Matters were consolidated. Petitioner contended that an athletic director improperly "bumped" him from a full-time teaching position and that nontenured staff were employed in positions for which he was certified.

ALJ concluded Board violated petitioner's rights by failing to recognize his greater seniority in the elementary category. Board, however, properly reduced hours of petitioner, who had least seniority of all physical education teachers at the secondary level. Board was ordered to pay petitioner mitigated compensation arising from its failure to offer him the fourth, fifth and sixth-grade physical education classes assigned to intervenors for the 1991-92 and the 1992-93 academic years.

Commissioner concurred with findings and conclusions of the ALJ and directed payment of the mitigated compensation.

Statement of the Case

These are consolidated appeals by a physical education teacher who contends that the board of education violated his seniority rights by reducing his employment from full to part-time for a portion of the 1991-92 academic year and by abolishing his position for the 1992-93 academic year. Three issues are raised: First, whether an athletic director who voluntarily resigned from his directorship has preference over petitioner for a full-time teaching position. Second, whether petitioner has greater seniority entitlement than other tenured teachers to an assignment at the fourth, fifth and sixth grade levels. In turn, resolution of this question depends on whether seniority should be determined in the elementary or secondary category. And, third, whether petitioner has any additional tenure rights by virtue of an after-acquired teaching certificate.

For the reasons which follow, petitioner's rights are subordinate to those of the athletic director but superior to other teachers with fewer years of service in the elementary category. Petitioner does not gain any additional rights resulting from a teaching certificate obtained after the date of the school board's decision to abolish his position.

Procedural History

On January 16, 1992, petitioner Darren Ressler ("Ressler") filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") from the 1991-92 action of the Saddle Brook Board of Education ("Board"). Subsequently, on January 27, 1991, the Commissioner transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. Mario Alia and Helen Hymanson, two teachers whose interests might be adversely affected by the outcome, were allowed to intervene as parties in this case. The OAL scheduled a hearing for December 15, 1992. At the hearing, the parties entered into a stipulation of all facts.

Meanwhile, on June 10, 1992, Ressler filed a second appeal with the Commissioner from the 1992-93 action of the Board. On July 1, 1992, the Commissioner sent this matter to the OAL for possible consolidation with the earlier appeal. Howard Schuman, another teacher whose interests might be affected, was joined as an intervenor. A second hearing was scheduled for March 1, 1993. Again, the parties agreed to stipulate all facts without offering any testimony. By mutual agreement, both cases were consolidated for disposition together.

Later, on September 27, 1993, the OAL granted Ressler's motion to supplement the record by adding the transcript of pertinent testimony in a case entitled Hayden v. Saddlebrook Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3390-92. The record closed on October 4, 1993.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts are undisputed. I FIND:

(1) General Background Facts Regarding Petitioner's Service

Darren Ressler started working in the district in March 1976 and has attained tenure as a teacher.[1] At all relevant times, Ressler has held an instructional certificate with endorsements as teacher of health and physical education.[2] Throughout most of his career, he was assigned as a full-time high school teacher of grades nine to twelve. Beginning in 1989-90, however, he taught physical education at the sixth grade level as well as the upper grades. Ressler contends, therefore, that his seniority in the elementary category started accruing in September 1989. In the following year, 1990-91, he resumed his prior assignment as a full-time teacher of grades nine to twelve.

At the outset of 1991-92, Ressler initially had a full-time teaching assignment of students in grades four to ten. On December 5, 1991, Ressler received written notice that Mario Alia would be taking over his seventh-period class for ninth graders and his eighth-period class for tenth graders. Thereafter, on December 11, 1991, the Board adopted a formal resolution reducing Ressler's employment to a .6 position, effective February 12, 1992, and proportionately reducing his annual salary from $48,420 to $29,052. During the sixty-day interim, Ressler was temporarily assigned to nonteaching duties for the seventh and eighth periods. Finally, on April 4, 1992, the Board adopted a second resolution abolishing Ressler's remaining part-time position at the end of 1991-92 "due to declining student enrollment and [for] reasons of economy." Consequently, Ressler was placed on a preferred eligibility list "for recall in the event a vacancy develops."

[1]Although petitioner and the Board disagree on whether Ressler's service from March to June 1976 counted toward obtaining tenure, that dispute has no bearing on the legal issues involved here.

[2]This endorsement authorizes its holder "to teach health and physical education in all public schools." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(17). (Emphasis added.)

After the board had abolished his position but prior to his last day of employment, Ressler obtained an additional endorsement as an elementary school teacher, issued by the State Board of Examiners in June 1992.

(2) Resignation of the Athletic Director

Mario Alia has been a physical education teacher in the district continuously since 1958-59, and unquestionably has greater seniority in the secondary category.[3] He too holds an endorsement as teacher of physical education and health. Since 1970-71, Alia has served as athletic director, described by the parties as "a stipended position [and] not a teaching position."[4] Thus, for 1991-92, Alia had a reduced teaching load and devoted the seventh and eighth periods to his responsibilities as athletic director.

One month into the 1991-92 academic year, on October 2, 1991, Alia voluntarily submitted his resignation as athletic director, explaining that, "Due to the constant pressures of the position and my increased work load, I find that I can no longer . . . function efficiently under these conditions." A week later, on October 9, 1991, the Board accepted his resignation, "with regret," effective December 1, 1991. On October 9, 1991, the Board also abolished the title of athletic director and created a new title known as "supervisor of athletics."[5] As noted, Alia replaced Ressler as teacher of the seventh and eighth period physical education classes at the high school.

[3]Alia has been teaching at the high school level since 1960-61. In addition to more years of service in the district than Ressler, Alia also is entitled to two years of seniority credit for military service. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

[4]Evidently the job-function was not regarded as administrative or supervisory, since Alia does not possess any administrative certificate. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.1. The Board analogizes it to any duty period regularly assigned to a teacher, such as lunch duty.

[5]The record does not reveal whether this was essentially the same job with a new title or a different job with increased supervisory responsibilities.

(3) Seniority Among Tenured Physical Education Teachers

Both of the other two teachers over whom Ressler claims seniority hold health and physical education endorsements and have been employed by the district longer than Ressler. Helen Hymanson began teaching in February 1975 and, except for an unpaid leave of absence in 1977-78, had been a full-time high school teacher until 1990-91. In that last year, her schedule consisted of grades nine through twelve in the morning and grades four through eight in the afternoon. Indisputably, she has greater seniority than Ressler in the secondary category. But Ressler asserts that he has greater seniority in the elementary category, because he started teaching sixth-grade physical education in 1989-90, whereas Hymanson did not teach elementary physical education until two years later in 1991-92.

Howard Shuman has been a physical education teacher in the district since January 1971. For each year until 1992-93, he taught physical education at the ninth to twelfth grade level. In 1992-93, his schedule was split among grades four to eight in the morning and grades nine to eleven in the afternoon. Again, Ressler acknowledges that Schuman has greater seniority in the secondary category, but maintains that Schuman had no seniority in the elementary category at the time that Ressler's position was abolished.

Disposition of the seniority issue depends on whether or not the lower and middle grades in the district are "departmentalized." Originally, the parties had stipulated in conclusive language that "Grades 7 and 8 in respondent's district are departmentalized." At the second hearing, however, the parties revised their stipulation to say that "certain grades" in respondent's school district are "modified departmentalized." Further, they clarified that,

> By modified departmentalized, the respondent means that 5th, 6th, 7th & 8th grades in respondent's district are structured so that each class moves from classroom to classroom for different academic subjects.At times more than one subject may be taught by the same teacher and some classes may move as few as two (2) times per day, depending upon the staffing of a particular school.

In a subsequent litigated matter, however, Dr. Edward Price, superintendent of schools of the Saddle Brook school district, retracted the earlier characterization of the fifth to eighth grades as a "modified departmentalized" program, admitting that he had previously been "under a misconception of what you meant by that." (T31-8 to T31-16).[6] Instead, the Board took the contrary position that its elementary grades should be considered "nondepartmentalized." Regardless of the descriptive label, the underlying facts developed in that other case are consistent with what the parties have stipulated here. Dr. Price testified that,

> On the elementary level, meaning grades K through eight, the children are in elementary classrooms. Now, in grades five, six, seven and eight, the teachers teach two of the core subjects. The core subjects would be English, social studies, science, mathematics. So, every teacher teaches two of the core subjects. And which ones of those they teach will vary year by year, depending upon the number of sections we have in each building. (T12-20 to T13-2).

In the course of his testimony, Dr. Price elaborated that every teacher at the elementary level is required to hold an elementary teaching certificate (T14-18); that instruction at the elementary school is "in essence, a self-contained program" (16T-6); that the elementary teachers have the "flexibility" to extend a class beyond the end of a scheduled period if the children happen to be engaged in a particularly interesting project (T25-1 to 12); and, that elementary students are "block scheduled by class" so that the entire class stays together as a unit (26T-20). He contrasted this type of arrangement to the high school, where each student is scheduled "individually," and the scheduling structure is "far more rigid," so that Suzie and Freddie may have English together during one period and, "next period, Suzie could have gym and Freddie could have mathematics." (T26-6 to 20). Likewise, he distinguished the situation from "team teaching," where two teachers work together to teach an interdisciplinary subject as, for example, an English teacher and a social studies teacher collaborate on a course in American literature. (32T16 to 33T2).

Insofar as the record discloses, the Board would not have encountered any significant scheduling conflict in 1991-92 if Ressler had been given Hymanson's elementary schedule. Ressler's three morning classes were held at the Smith or Long elementary schools between the hours of 9:10 a.m. to 11:15 p.m. and Hymanson's three afternoon classes were held at the Franklin or Washington elementary schools between the hours of 12:50 p.m. and 2:53 p.m. Similarly, there would be no scheduling conflict in 1992-93 if Ressler had been assigned Schuman's three morning classes at the Long or Smith elementary schools.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board violated Ressler's rights by failing to recognize his greater seniority in the elementary category.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 empowers a local school board to reduce the size of its teaching staff "whenever it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause." Such "reduction in force," however, "shall be made on the basis of seniority according to standards to be established by the commissioner with the approval of the state board." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. Seniority is a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions in force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J. 362, 368, n. 4 (1983); Ellicott v. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342, 349 (App. Div. 1991).

State regulations prescribe that "[s]eniority shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment . . . in specific categories." N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1. Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Ressler acknowledges, as he must, that Mario Alia has more years of service and, hence, greater seniority at the secondary level. Nonetheless, Ressler argues that the mere "transfer of duties" occasioned by Alia's resignation as athletic director is not a "reduction in force" necessary to trigger Alia's seniority rights under the statute. Under this view, Ressler's work was simply "given" to Alia, without any actual reduction in the number of physical education classes. Since Alia voluntarily made a "choice" to relinquish his full-time job, Ressler contends that seniority rights do not come into play.

What Ressler's analysis overlooks is that there has indeed been a reduction in the total number of person-hours now that Alia has been relieved of his extra duties. Alia's responsibilities as athletic director were performed under his instructional certificate. Dennery v. Passaic Cty. Reg. High Sch. Dist. #1 Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 626, 633 (1993). Prior to his resignation, Alia had to spend two periods per day on nonteaching responsibilities. When that time became available for teaching, the district no longer needed as many full-time teaching positions and someone on staff had to bear the loss of hours. Reduction in hours of employment is considered a reduction in force. Klinger v. Cranbury Twp. Bd. of Educ., 190 N.J. Super. 354, 357 (App. Div. 1982). Accord, Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 240 (App. Div. 1987). Confronted with this business necessity, the Board properly reduced the hours of Ressler, who had the least seniority of all physical education teachers at the secondary level.

Cases cited by Ressler in support of his position are distinguishable. For example, Benson v. Rockaway Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU Vol. 4) 15 (Comm'r Nov. 20, 1991), aff'd 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU Vol. 4) (St. Bd. May 8, 1992) dealt with the preferred eligibility list for rehiring previously-terminated teachers rather than with the seniority list for reducing the employment of current teachers. Unlike Alia who had worked full-time as a teacher, the senior teacher in Benson ordinarily worked in a part-time assignment and, thus, had no reasonable expectation of a full-time position. Likewise, in Baruffi v. Morris Hills Reg. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 1990 S.L.D. 702 (Comm'r), two teachers whose positions had been abolished were recognized as having preference for a new vacancy over a more senior teacher whose continuing employment was not directly threatened. Here too, the situation involved application of the standards governing preferred eligibility rather than seniority.

In Savarese v. Bernardsville Bd. of Educ., 1990 S.L.D. 1541 (Comm'r Nov. 15, 1990), the Commissioner never reached the issue of seniority, except to determine that family life is not a separate seniority category. Instead, the Commissioner remanded the matter for "the sole and limited purpose of determining if the Board took formal action . . . to reduce the actual number of family life positions or if there was merely a transfer of petitioner's family life duties to another staff member which does not constitute a reduction in force." 1990 S.L.D. at 1561. In contrast, the present case involves a reduction of hours, which clearly constitutes a reduction in force. Lachman v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1756 (Comm'r Dec. 11, 1985) involved a teacher who forfeited her seniority credit by voluntarily resigning from all employment in the district. On the other hand, Alia never resigned his teaching position, but merely relinquished his extra-duty assignment to devote more time to his teaching responsibilities.

Apart from the logic of the cases, there are also strong policy considerations in favor of the result reached here. Teachers who assume additional assignments beyond their regular classroom duties should not suffer for their spirit of cooperation. If taking on extra responsibilities means that a teacher will lose seniority protection, then boards of education may have difficulty finding people willing to assume such risks. Cf. Lammers v. Point Pleasant Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J. 264, 274 (1993) (tenured teacher should be able to take a one-year maternity leave without facing the risk of forfeiting her position to her replacement.)

More troublesome is the question of whether the comparison of seniority among Ressler, Hymanson and Schuman should be made in the elementary or the secondary category. At all relevant times, N.J.A.C 6:3-1.10(l)(19) defined the category of "secondary" as including "grades nine through 12 in all high schools, grades seven and eight in junior high schools and grades seven and eight in elementary schools having departmental instruction." (Emphasis Added.) N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)(20) defined the category of "elementary" as including "Kindergarten, grades one through six and grades seven and eight without departmental instruction." (Emphasis added.)[7] Teachers acquire seniority only in the subject area and only at the particular level (elementary or secondary) at which they have actually taught. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)(19)(i) and (20)(ii). See also, REVISION OF SENIORITY REGULATIONS: A POSITION STATEMENT OF THE NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, at 3 (June 1983). Persons serving on a district-wide basis acquire seniority on a district-wide basis. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(f).

[7]Recently, the regulations establishing seniority standards were recodified and now appear at N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1. 25 N.J.R. 1095(a) (March 15, 1993). 25 N.J.R. 2249(a) (June 7, 1993). No substantive changes were made in the definitions of secondary and elementary.

On its face, the regulation is clear and unambiguous. Read literally, any service at sixth grade or below must be counted in the elementary category. It is only at the seventh and eighth-grade levels that inquiry is made as to whether or not the class structure is departmentalized. But intervenor Schuman points to two decisions by the Commissioner which expand the definition of secondary to cover a departmentalized sixth grade. In Unterberger v. Metuchen Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 59 (Comm'r Jan. 1992), involving a seniority dispute over which teacher was entitled to teach an "interdisciplinary" course for sixth and seventh graders, the parties stipulated that the class in question was departmentalized. Recognizing that the regulation did not strictly apply, the Commissioner adopted an equitable approach:

> Hence, an anomaly exists: a departmentalized 6th grade is not provided for in the seniority regulations. Because the elementary category precludes departmentalization and, given that the secondary category includes two elementary grades that are departmentalized, i.e., grades 7 and 8, and based upon the fact that the Board admits that the 6th grade classes at Edgar school are departmentalized, the Commissioner finds and determines that the instruction provided therein falls under the secondary category for seniority purposes. Unterberger, at 65-66.

In reaching this result, the Commissioner did not consider himself bound by the elementary or secondary label which the district itself attached to the class, but instead looked at the underlying realities of the situation. Significantly, the particular class was a combined sixth and seventh-grade course. Therefore, the rationale would not necessarily apply to an exclusively sixth-grade setting. Moreover, it is uncertain whether the Commissioner would have extended the same reasoning to a departmentalized fifth, fourth or lower-grade class.

Unterberger was followed by McGlynn v. Sea Girt Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 438, 445 (Comm'r July 2, 1992), where the Commissioner held that a social studies teacher "in a departmentalized organization, with assignments in grades six, seven and eight" accrued seniority in the secondary rather than the elementary category. In support of this outcome, the Commissioner emphasized that "petitioner never served in a self-contained classroom." McGlynn, at 445. Similarly, the Commissioner held that a science teacher, who had "served exclusively in a departmentalized setting for grades six, seven and eight" also acquired tenure in the secondary category. Although the three grades are lumped together, the case suggests that a departmentalized sixth grade falls into the secondary category. Again, however, the case provides no direct guidance on how to treat a departmentalized organization in the lower grades.

Our own facts are notably different from Unterberger and McGlynn, and more closely resemble the classic elementary-school pattern. Most importantly, the children in grades five through eight remain together as a group and, thus, the cohort is essentially "self-contained." This structure is less fragmented than at the high school level, where each child selects his or her own schedule of specialized course offerings. Classroom teachers in these lower grades are required by the district to hold elementary endorsements. They teach multiple related-subjects, such as English and social studies or science and math. Typically, teachers at the secondary level teach a more limited subject area to more frequently changing classes of students. Another obvious difference is that Ressler's claim extends to fourth and fifth grades, which traditionally have been regarded as part of elementary school as distinguished from middle or junior high school. Basically, the Saddle Brook district has assigned more than one teacher to serve in an elementary setting. Thus, the experience of teaching at grades four, five or six in this district must be credited in the elementary category.[8]

[8]It might equally be argued that seventh and eighth grades in the district are nondepartmentalized, but Ressler does not press such claim. Acceptance of such an argument would also be grossly unfair to Helen Hymanson, who justifiably relied on the original stipulation that "Grades 7 and 8 in respondent's district are departmentalized." (Paragraph 15.)

Since Ressler started teaching at the elementary level earlier than either Hymanson or Schuman, he has greater seniority in this category, even though the other two have been teaching longer in the district. See Small v. Schadt, 1987 S.L.D. 2706 (St. Bd. Aug. 5, 1987) (physical education teacher has greater seniority in the secondary category than another physical education teacher with more years of service in the elementary category). It is immaterial whether the Board could have properly assigned Alia, who admittedly has greater seniority than Ressler in the elementary category, to the fourth, fifth and sixth-grade classes that went to Hymanson in 1991-92 or to Schuman in 1992-93. What matters is that the teachers with less seniority than Ressler were given assignments that should have gone to him. Furthermore, Board has not presented any valid educationally-based reasons for its staffing pattern or shown that its educational program would have been seriously disrupted by recognition of Ressler's seniority rights. See Fox v. Morris Sch. Dist., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 139, 141 (Comm'r Jan. 11, 1993). Insofar as the evidence discloses, there was no scheduling impediment to assigning the fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes to Ressler. Compare Polo v. Bergen Cty. Vo-Tech. Schs., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 230, 233 (Comm'r Jan. 30, 1992), modified 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 459 (St. Bd. Aug. 5, 1992), appeal docketed, No. A256-92-T2 (N.J. App. Div. Sept. 18, 1992) where the board of education had the goal of scheduling afternoon classes for shared students at two separate locations.

Lastly, Ressler urges that he has priority over nontenured teachers by virtue of an elementary endorsement issued to him after the Board had already abolished his position.[9] It is settled law, however, that teachers have tenure entitlement only to those positions for which they were properly certified on the date of the reduction in force. The crucial time is the date on which the Board adopted its resolution and not a teacher's last date of employment. Francey v. Salem Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 449 (Comm'r July 22, 1992). Accord, Johnstone v. Cinnaminson Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 506 (Comm'r Aug. 12, 1992). Ressler himself tacitly acknowledges this point when he argues in his initial brief that seniority rights are fixed "at the time the Board voted to reduce his position." School boards must be able to rely on the information available when they act. Otherwise, it would cause havoc in planning for the upcoming academic year. Although the staffing needs of the district may be known by April or even earlier, boards would be forced to defer hiring decisions until the start of summer vacation. Such an unreasonable administrative burden would "lead to the amassing of endorsements" by teachers subject to layoff, would "reduce to chaos any attempt by a district to ascertain its legal responsibilities upon the arising of a vacancy" and would prevent boards from "choosing the most qualified staff for open positions." Francey, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d at 453.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of Saddle Brook promptly pay to Ressler the lost salary and other lost benefits arising from its failure to offer him the fourth, fifth and sixth-grade physical education classes assigned to Hymanson for the 1991-92 academic year and to Schuman for the 1992-93 academic year; provided, however, that the amount of lost salary shall be mitigated by any earned income which Ressler would not have otherwise received.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Commissioner determines that such exceptions raise no arguments or issues not considered by the Administrative Law Judge in the initial decision and need not be herein reiterated.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record before him, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons articulated by him in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Board of Education of the Township of Saddle Brook is directed to pay petitioner lost salary and benefits arising from its failure to offer him the fourth, fifth and sixth-grade physical education classes assigned to Intervenor Hymanson for the 1991-92 school year and those assigned to Intervenor Schuman for the 1992-93 school year. Such lost salary shall be mitigated by any earned income which petitioner would not have otherwise received.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 27, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Bucceri & Pincus (Louis Bucceri, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Anthony N. Gallina, Esq.

For Intervenor Mario Alia, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Randi Doner, Esq., of Counsel)

For Intervenor Helen Hymanson, Springstead & Maurice (Harold N. Springstead, Esq., of Counsel)

For Intervenor Howard Schuman, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Robert A. Fagella, Esq., of Counsel)

Darren Ressler (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board of Education of the Township of Saddle Brook (hereinafter "Board") had violated his tenure and seniority rights when it reduced his employment to part-time during the 1991-92 school year. He subsequently filed a second petition challenging the Board's action abolishing his part-time position at the end of that school year. Those petitions were later consolidated in the Office of Administrative Law.

Petitioner, who held an instructional certification in health and physical education, commenced his employment in the district in 1976 as a full-time physical education teacher in grades nine through twelve. In 1989-90, his assignment was expanded to encompass grades six through twelve. In 1990-91, petitioner resumed his prior assignment in grades nine through twelve, and in 1991-92, he was assigned to teach physical education in grades four through ten.

Intervenor Mario Alia, who also held a teaching certification in health and physical education, had been employed in the district as a teacher since 1958 and also had served as athletic director since 1970. In 1991-92, Alia had performed his responsibilities as athletic director during the seventh and eighth periods of each school day. On October 2, 1991, Alia submitted his resignation as athletic director, effective December 1, 1991, which the Board accepted on October 9, 1991.

On December 5, 1991, petitioner was notified that Alia was being assigned his seventh-period physical education class for ninth graders and his eighth-period class for tenth graders. Thereafter, on December 11, the Board took formal action to reduce petitioner's employment to a .6 position effective February 12, 1992. Then, on April 7, 1992, the Board abolished petitioner's part-time position effective June 30, 1992. In June, prior to the effective date of that reduction in force ("RIF"), petitioner obtained an instructional certification in elementary education.

The issues in this case, as identified by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"), were: 1) whether Intervenor Alia, who had voluntarily resigned from his position as athletic director, had preference over petitioner to a full-time teaching position, 2) whether petitioner had greater seniority than two other tenured teachers, Intervenors Helen Hymanson and Howard Schuman, to an assignment teaching elementary physical education, and 3) whether petitioner had any additional tenure rights by virtue of the elementary education certification he acquired after the Board had acted to reduce its staff.

The ALJ rejected petitioner's contention that the Board had violated his tenure rights when it assigned Intervenor Alia to teach two of his classes during the 1991-92

This is not a case in which the Board acted under its authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to reduce its staff by abolishing the athletic director's position.[3] Rather, the reduction in Alia's employment resulted from his voluntary relinquishment of that position, and we reject the Board's contention that such action by Alia effectuated a reduction in force which entitled the Board to apply the appropriate seniority standards. The RIF in this instance was not the reduction in Alia's hours of employment caused by his resignation as athletic director, but the resultant action taken by the Board to reduce petitioner's position. Since Alia was not subject to a reduction in force under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, his tenure rights were not triggered so as to provide him with an entitlement to a portion of petitioner's assignment by virtue of his superior seniority teaching physical education at the secondary level.

We note that it is not contended that the Board reduced petitioner's employment for reasons of economy or because of a decline in the number of students. Indeed, there was no reduction in the number of physical education classes being taught in the district. Nor is there any indication that the Board altered its physical education program or was acting pursuant to a change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district. The Board simply provided Alia with a full-time teaching position following his resignation as athletic director at the expense of petitioner. Under these circumstances, we conclude that the Board's action did not constitute a proper exercise of its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, and that such action violated petitioner's tenure rights.

[3] We note that, although the Board did abolish the title of "athletic director" and replace it with the title "supervisor of athletics," it took such action only after Alia had submitted his resignation from that position, and, as pointed out by the ALJ, there is no indication in the record that the nature or responsibilities of the position changed.

We also reverse the Commissioner's determination to limit petitioner's seniority entitlement as a teacher of elementary physical education to grades six and below. There is no dispute on appeal that petitioner had greater seniority than both Hymanson and Schuman in the applicable category. Hence, the only issues before us are whether petitioner made a sufficient claim to the seventh- and eighth-grade physical education assignments held by Hymanson and Schuman in 1991-92 and 1992-93, respectively, and, if so, whether seventh and eighth grade were departmentalized in this district so as to bring them within the scope of petitioner's seniority. See N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(l)(18) ("The word 'elementary' shall include kindergarten, grades one through six and grades seven and eight without departmental instruction").

In his petition of appeal to the Commissioner, the petitioner expressly claimed entitlement to elementary physical education assignments held by teachers with less seniority than he. His claim was not limited to K-6. Although petitioner subsequently stipulated that grades seven and eight were departmentalized, Stipulation of Facts dated December 5, 1992, exhibit J-8, in evidence, or "modified departmentalized," Stipulation of Facts dated March 1, 1993, exhibit 2J-11, in evidence, he later moved to reopen the record so as to include a transcript of the June 2, 1993 testimony of Dr. Edward Price, the Board's superintendent of schools, in Hayden v. Board of Education of the Township of Saddle Brook, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3390-92. Petitioner explained in his motion that he had entered into the stipulation in reliance upon Dr. Price's representation that grades seven and eight were "modified departmentalized," but that Price had subsequently recanted such representation in Hayden and testified that the district's elementary schools, K-8, were not departmentalized.

However, following the abolishment of petitioner's position at the end of the 1991-92 school year, he was entitled to the elementary physical education assignment, including grades seven and eight, given to Intervenor Schuman in 1992-93. Again, we stress that it is not disputed on appeal that petitioner had superior seniority as a teacher of elementary physical education than Schuman, whose previous experience had been limited to grades nine through twelve.

Finally, we affirm the Commissioner's determination that petitioner had no entitlement to reinstatement as an elementary school teacher as a result of the endorsement he acquired in June 1992. The scope of petitioner's tenured position was determined in April 1992, when the Board acted under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to reduce its staff, thereby triggering petitioner's tenure rights, and his subsequent acquisition of an elementary education endorsement did not operate to enlarge the tenure rights he had achieved pursuant to the Tenure Act during and as a result of his employment in the district. Francey, supra. Nor is it of any moment that petitioner obtained his elementary endorsement prior to the effective date of that RIF. Johnstone, supra.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated herein, we affirm in part and reverse in part the decision of the Commissioner on the points of appeal currently before us. In summary, we find that the Board violated petitioner's tenure rights when it reassigned two of his physical education classes to Intervenor Alia during the 1991-92 school year and reduced petitioner to part-time status, and that petitioner's seniority rights to the elementary physical education assignment held by Intervenor Schuman in 1992-93 included grades seven and eight.[4] We therefore direct the Board to compensate petitioner for his back pay and other emoluments, less mitigation, in accordance with the terms of our decision.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizens challenged the Board's approval process for a Family Life Curriculum for grades K-3 alleging that it violated the consultation and participation requirements of N.J.S.A. 6:29-4.2 and they sought to stop implementation of the program during current school year.

Having considered the record and the testimony of witnesses, ALJ found that Board did not violate N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2 and that it further did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in the process by which it undertook to review and incorporate a portion of the Learning About Family Life materials into its Family Life Curriculum. ALJ found no basis to overturn the Board's action. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision as his own.

HISAKO LEE and MICHAEL BRONZINO,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,

Respondent.

Hisako Lee and Michael Bronzino, petitioners, pro se

Russell Weiss, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Carroll & Weiss attorneys)

Record Closed: April 20, 1994 Decided: May 17, 1994

BEFORE JAYNEE LaVECCHIA, CHIEF ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners are challenging the respondent's approval process for a family life curriculum for grades K-3. As a result of a motion for summary decision and a motion to dismiss at the close of petitioners' case, the only issue to be addressed is whether the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2 when it voted on June 22, 1993 to authorize participation in a pilot project using materials from the Learning About Family Life curriculum.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

At the prehearing conference, four issues were established as the basis of the challenge. First, what were the functions or duties of the Parent Advisory Committee and is it exempt from the Open Public Meetings Act as an advisory body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-7? Second, is an advisory committee mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2? Third, was the Board action to approve the use of materials in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2? If so, what remedy is appropriate? Finally, did the Board violate its own textbook adoption policy? Respondent indicated at the prehearing conference that a motion for summary judgment might be forthcoming. The undersigned advised the parties that any motions should be submitted along a timeframe that would not interfere with the scheduled hearing dates of April 18, 19, and 20, 1994.

On March 22, 1994 the undersigned received respondent's motion for summary decision. Respondent argued that all the issues identified in the prehearing order were ripe for summary decision because the controversy embraced only legal matters, not factual issues. On April 5, 1994 the undersigned received petitioners' response to the respondent's motion for summary decision. Petitioners argued that the case involved some factual issues that could only be resolved at an evidentiary hearing. Respondent's reply brief was received on April 8, 1994.

An order granting partial summary decision was delivered to the parties on April 12, 1994. The order granted summary decision on the issues of the Board's obligation to follow the recommendations of the advisory committee and on the inapplicability of the Open Public Meetings Act to the meetings of the advisory committee. See Order Granting Partial Summary Decision of April 11, 1994, at 7. As a result of the aforementioned order, three issues required an evidentiary hearing. First, did the respondent adopt a curriculum at its June 22, 1993 meeting before the consultation and participation of community members had occurred, in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. Second, did the degree of clergy involvement in the review process violate N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2(b). Finally, was the respondent obligated to follow its own textbook adoption policy in regard to the review and approval of the family life curriculum changes.

The evidentiary hearing commenced on April 18, 1994 at the Trenton site of the Office of Administrative Law. At the close of petitioners' evidence on April 18th, respondent moved to dismiss for petitioners' failure to meet their burden of proof on all three issues. The proceedings scheduled for the following day were adjourned in order to allow time to review the motion and issue a decision. In an order granting in part the motion to dismiss, the undersigned found that in fact the petitioners' had not met their burden of proof on the issues of the degree of clergy involvement and whether the respondent was obligated to follow its textbook adoption policy. See Order Granting in Part Motion to Dismiss of April 19, 1994, at 11. The parties were directed to return to the hearing on Wednesday April 20,1994 and respondent was ordered to proceed with its case on the sole remaining issue in this matter--whether the Board adopted a curriculum at its June 22, 1993 meeting before the required consultation and participation of community members had commenced, in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2(b). Thus, that is the only issue to be addressed in this decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

When the proceeding reconvened respondent presented four witnesses. All four witnesses presented testimony as to their understanding of the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2 and explained their role in fostering the district's compliance with that regulation. Petitioners did not present rebuttal witnesses.

Janice Bartolini, Coordinator of Health Services for the district was respondent's first witness. Ms. Bartolini testified that she became aware of the New Jersey Network for Family Life (Network) curriculum in the 1992-1993 school year. The Network is a coalition of nonprofit and profit organizations whose purpose is to provide resources and assistance to New Jersey schools to fulfill their family life mandate. She has been associated with the Network since the early 1980's and discovered that the Network would provide funding to ten New Jersey school districts to implement the curriculum on three campuses. Ms. Bartolini was interested in the curriculum because she felt it would "plug holes" in the district's current curriculum. Specifically, she felt it would be useful because it was the first family life education material for grades K-3 to use anatomically correct terminology for body parts.

Ms. Bartolini also testified as to the steps she took to present the curriculum to school administrators and the Board. She first spoke with the Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Katims, who suggested that because of the sensitive subject matter that she present the material to the elementary school principals to receive their initial reaction and to exercise a "right of first refusal" before approaching the Board. She stated that she was well aware of the consultation and participation requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2 when she first discussed the matter with Dr. Katims. She testified that the Board was approached in June 1993 in order to get their approval to begin to review the materials. As she understood the process, even if the Board gave its approval to review the materials, if after the review process the district felt that the materials were inappropriate, the district did not have an obligation to the Network to use the materials. She further testified that although the language of the Board minutes(Exhibit J-2) states that the Board voted to "authorize participation in a pilot project using the curriculum materials Learning About Family Life," the term "pilot project" was the language used by the Network and was not meant to encompass normal district use of the term "pilot project." Ms. Bartolini also testified that the August 16, 1993 letter (Exhibit J-7) she received from the Network Program Manager, Susan Saravalli, thanking her for her efforts in presenting the curriculum to her district and for participating in the program was simply an overstatement by the Network and did not require a response.

Because the June 1993 Board meeting was only a few days before the end of the school year and most district employees are ten month employees, the only review procedure implemented before the start of the 1993-94 school year was to hold a three day meeting in August of elementary school nurses and other staff who would be using the material if it were approved. The staff in attendance discussed revisions to the curriculum and also drafted a letter to be sent to parents inviting them to participate in the review process. The first meeting of the parent advisory committee was held on September 14, 1993.

Respondent's second witness, Dr. Michael Katims, is the district's Assistant Superintendent and supervisor of the various district coordinators. His testimony completely supported Ms. Bartolini's testimony. He first became aware of the curriculum in May 1993 when Ms. Bartolini raised it with him. At the time he was not familiar with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. In the course of Ms. Bartolini's presentation to him she informed him of the requirements of the regulation. His motivation in pursuing approval of the curriculum was simply to provide a better instructional program for grades K-3 health education. He was concerned, however, with the nature of the district's obligation to the Network if the materials were ultimately approved for use in the district. In order to clarify that relationship he spoke to a contact person from the Network. As a result of the conversation he was assured that all decision making would reside with the district, the district's reporting obligation to the Network would only involve oral, informal reports, and the district would have free access to any of the curriculum teaching materials it would like to use. Despite the language of the Network's project description (Exhibit J-1), Dr. Katims stated that the district did not have an obligation to meet the deadlines or the objectives established by the Network based on his understanding gleaned from his conversation with a Network representative.

His understanding of the Board's resolution at the June 22, 1993 meeting was that the health educators were given approval to begin the review process. Given the limited resources available for summer curriculum projects, Dr. Katims did not want the health educators to begin reviewing materials if the Board was completely opposed to considering them for use. He understood that prior to introduction in the classroom of any of the curriculum materials under consideration, the consultation and participation requirements of the regulation would have to be met and the Board would have to vote its final approval of the curriculum.

Dr. Katims testimony was also supported by a question and answer paper (Exhibit R-3) he prepared after the last parent advisory committee meeting on October 11, 1993, which was distributed before the October 19, 1993 Board meeting. The paper explains the nature of the materials, the review process and revisions made to the materials as a result of the review process.

Dr. Raymond J. Bandlow was the respondent's third witness. Dr. Bandlow, the district superintendent, first became aware of the materials through Dr. Katims. Dr. Katims also explained to him the formal review requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. Dr. Bandlow and Dr. Katims discussed plans to present the materials to elementary school principals and then present them to the Board. Dr. Bandlow wanted clear communication and understanding with the Board before proceeding with formal review procedures. Dr. Bandlow understood that after the review process involving community members, parents and teachers the Board would have to vote again to grant final approval for introduction of the curriculum into the classroom. He felt that the district could reject the material at any stage and any feedback given to the Network by the district in regards to the materials would be appreciated, regardless of whether the district ultimately decided to use the materials in the classroom.

The respondent's final witness was Mrs. Lynn Thornton, President of the Board. She too was aware of the regulations requiring community consultation and participation. She stated that she understood the June 22, 1993 meeting to be a starting point for the review process, it was not the final Board approval and the district could withdraw at anytime. Mrs. Thornton's testimony was supported by the introduction of the minutes of the Board's September 21, 1993 meeting. Exhibit R-2. In the minutes of the meeting it is noted that Mrs. Thornton initiated a public discussion of the review process currently underway. She stated that she broached the subject at that time to reassure the community that nothing had been implemented and the review process was ongoing.

Mr. Bronzino was petitioners' only witness on the issue of whether the Board adopted the curriculum materials at its June 22, 1993 meeting in violation of the regulations. Mr. Bronzino stated that he was not present at the June 22, 1993 Board meeting. However, he stated that it was his impression from a review of the Board's minutes(Exhibit J-2) that the Board had decided to use the materials before the consultation and participation requirements of the regulation had been observed. Mr. Bronzino also stated that when he received exhibits J-1(Network program description) and J-7 (Saravalli letter), through the discovery process after filing the petition in this matter, these documents in conjunction with the June 22 Board minutes strengthened his opinion that the Board had decided to use the curriculum materials prior to implementing the review process required by the regulation.

Mr. Bronzino further testified that he was a member of the parent advisory committee that reviewed the curriculum materials. The committee met on three occasions, September 14 and 23, and October 11, 1993. During the first two meetings the committee reviewed the curriculum materials "line by line" and suggested deletions and modifications. At the third meeting on October 11, 1993, instead of continuing the "line by line" review, representatives from the Network gave the advisory committee a presentation on the materials. At the end of the meeting the members of the committee were asked to forward further suggestions in regard to the curriculum to Ms. Bartolini.

Having had an opportunity to observe the witnesses whose testimony is described above, I find no reason to question the credibility of their testimony or its reliability. Indeed, most of the evidence presented by each side was not controverted, only the conclusions to be drawn from what did occur. It is painfully obvious that what we have here is a question of interpretation of the unfortunate language used in the Board's June 22, 1993 minutes. Petitioners, who clearly are at odds with the Board on the substance of the family life curriculum materials that lie at the heart of this matter, seek a literal interpretation of the poorly worded resolution from June 22 that would support a finding that the process used was flawed.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Notwithstanding the underlying concern about the substance of these curriculum materials, this case is about process, the process used by the Board to incorporate the K-3 family life materials into its curriculum. Therefore, the focus of any analysis of the Board's actions or those of its agents, must be squarely on whether the actions taken support the intent of the Board in its June 22 resolution, as that intent has been described in the testimony of the Board's witnesses.

The regulation central to this matter, N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2(b), provides that:

> The family life education curriculum shall be developed through appropriate consultation and participation of teachers, school administrators, parents and guardians, pupils in grades 9 through 12, physicians, members of the clergy and representative members of the community. The district board of education shall demonstrate prior to the initiation of any district board of education program that such consultation and participation have taken place. The process of consultation shall be continued as the program is revised in future years.

In order to prevail in this matter, petitioners must prove that at the June 22, 1993 meeting, the Board approved the use of the Learning About Family Life materials in the classroom before the district had undertaken the appropriate degree of consultation and participation with the various community groups required by N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2(b). The petitioners can not sustain their burden of proof unless they can show that the Board acted in an arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious manner in failing to comply with this required process for approval of these curriculum materials. Bd. of Ed. E. Brunswick v. E. Brunswick Twp., 91 N.J. Super. 20, 26 (Ch. Div. 1966).

Petitioners argue that the documentary evidence, taken as a whole, suggests that the Board fully intended to proceed with the implementation of the materials in the classroom in the Fall of 1993 without the requisite community participation and consultation and it was only after the Board became aware of community concern regarding the materials in question that the Board initiated the consultation and participation requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2(b). Specifically, petitioners point to exhibits J-1, J-2 and J-7 to support their argument.

Exhibit J-1 is a June 1, 1993 memorandum from Dr. Katims to Dr. Bandlow and all Board members informing them of Ms. Bartolini's upcoming presentation to the Board and the district's desire to participate in the project.. The memorandum includes a description, produced by the Network, of the Learning About Family Life curriculum. Petitioners argue that "[t]here is no indication in J-1 to suggest that the Board was being asked to do anything than to approve the entire project as described in total."

Petitioners' argument however, fails to take into account the credible evidence offered by the testimony of respondent's four witnesses. Each witness was at this Board meeting and testified to an understood awareness of the requirements of the regulation before the June 22, 1993 Board meeting and vote. Each witness indicated that the June 22, 1993 vote was merely Board authorization to initiate the review procedures. Significantly, petitioners offered no testimony from themselves or any other of their witnesses who was present at the June 22 Board meeting to contest the respondent's testimony.

Furthermore, as Dr. Bandlow testified, due to the sensitive subject matter, it was important to school administrators to have the approval of the Board to even begin the process of reviewing the family life materials. Dr. Katims testified that there are limited funds to undertake any summer action on curriculum matters and if the Board was at all resistant to the idea of reviewing the family life materials, school administrators would not pursue their approval.

Exhibit J-2 is a copy of the Board's minutes from the June 22, 1993 meeting. The minutes indicate that the board approved the following action: "to authorize participation in a pilot project using the curriculum materials Learning About Family Life to support the district instructional program in meeting the state requirement for family life education in Grades K-3." Although respondent concedes that the resolution could have been worded better in hindsight, it is clear from the testimony of the witnesses that the intent of the Board was not to approve the classroom use of the materials before the appropriate review and consultation procedures had been observed. The specific regulatory requirements were not discussed at the meeting, because as Dr. Bandlow testified, it was simply understood by all involved that the regulatory requirements would have to be followed.

I find insufficient evidence in the record to suggest that the Board bought in "wholesale" to the curriculum materials "Learning About Family Life" provided to it by the Network when it passed its resolution on June 22. Indeed, the uncontradicted testimony is that the Board's action permitted some ten month employees, health educators, to begin a review and revision of the materials during the summer months before the school year began in September. Without the Board's authorization in June 1993, these employees could not have been employed for this purpose during August.

As testified to by Ms. Bartolini, the only review procedure that took place before the beginning of the 1993-1994 school year was a meeting in August of faculty and staff who would be presenting the material in the classroom if it were ultimately approved by the Board. At that meeting the participants suggested revisions to the curriculum, they rejected, wholesale, certain portions of the curriculum from any consideration, and they drafted a letter to parents inviting their participation on an advisory committee to review the materials. The committee was to meet once school began in September. The curriculum was not introduced into the classroom before the Board's October 26, 1993 vote to approve the curriculum.

The testimony of both petitioner, Michael Bronzino, and Board witnesses clearly indicated that, for the most part, the curriculum materials were reviewed "line by line" and were changed, deleted or approved as the case called for. This review was comprehensive and provides strong support for inferring from this record that no adoption of the curriculum materials occurred before the presentation of the thoroughly discussed and revised materials to the Board at its October 1993 meeting and the Board's vote of approval at that time. Nor were they implemented before the Board's October action. Indeed, it was still possible before the October 26th Board vote for the materials, even in their revised and restricted version, to be rejected entirely. That did not occur, but the possibility of complete rejection up to that point is a factor in the resolution of this dispute. It is noteworthy that at the October meeting the Board had several courses of action presented to it, and only one was successfully approved by the Board vote.

Petitioners' next point to the August 16, 1993 letter from Susan Saravalli(Exhibit J-7), of the Network congratulating the District for participating in the Network's pilot project on the "Learning About Family Life" curriculum materials, as evidence that the Board had approved the use of the materials at its June 22, 1993 meeting. Petitioners' emphasize the language employed in this letter and contend that it supports their literal reading of the Board's June 22 resolution.

The petitioners' assertion on this point is not persuasive. The Network Executive Director is not an employee or agent of the Board. She has no capacity to bind the Board by her choice of words. She is not their agent legally, nor does she have any apparent authority to bind the Board notwithstanding that no Board representative ever responded to her letter. Ms. Bartolini, who was in closest touch with the Network, testified that she ascribed no significance to this letter and saw no need to respond to it. Buttressing this analysis of the letter's significance is the testimony of Dr. Katims, who stated that he personally spoke with a representative of the Network before the June 22 Board meeting to satisfy himself as to the district's responsibilities and relationship with the Network, making sure that there was no capacity for misinterpretation by the Network that decision making on the use, or not, of all or a portion of the curriculum materials rested exclusively with the Board. M. Dean Kaufman, Inc. v. American Machinery & Foundry Co., 102 N.J. Super 1, 11-

12 (App. Div. 1968). (holding absence of an agency relationship where principal specifically refused to enter into such a relationship with alleged agent). This testimony was particularly persuasive to the undersigned, and supports the inferences I have chosen to ascribe to the testimony and documentary evidence in the record as described in this opinion.

Finally, in their reply to respondent's closing argument, petitioners argue that the parol evidence rule prevents the Board from supplementing or contradicting the minutes of its meetings. Campbell v. Hackensack, 115 N.J.L. 209, 211-212 (E. & A. 1935). Campbell involved a claim to establish, by parol evidence, the terms of an employment contract between a city council and an employee. The employee claimed that the city council had passed a resolution establishing the manner in which he was to be compensated for his services. The minutes of the city council meetings were, however, silent as to any employment matters between the employee and the city council. The court stated that "the established general rule is that these records[municipal minutes], or duly authenticated copies thereof, are the only competent evidence of the official actions of the council and they cannot, as a rule, be enlarged or restricted by parol testimony." Id. at 215 (citations omitted).

Campbell, however, is clearly distinguishable from the matter at hand. The matter in issue in this case merely involves interpreting the ambiguous language of a resolution concerning Board and district activity in light of subsequent actions of the Board and district personnel. This matter does not involve interpreting, or even establishing the existence of a contract. Furthermore, the rule in Campbell has not been applied to restrict a court from looking "to evidence establishing fraud, bad faith or the abuse of discretion by municipal governing bodies resulting in the injury or oppression of the citizen." Anschelewitz v. Belmar, 137 N.J.L. 617, 622 (1948) (citation omitted). The evidence beyond the literal language of the resolution in this proceeding was introduced specifically to consider allegations of bad faith and abuse of discretion by the local board. The holding in Campbell does not stand as a bar to this inquiry beyond the literal language of the minutes.

Based on the foregoing, I hereby FIND that respondent did not violate the consultation and participation requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. Moreover, I find that the respondent did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in the process by which it undertook to review and ultimately incorporate a portion of the Learning About Family Life materials into its Family Life Curriculum for Grades K-3. I find no basis in the regulation to conclude that the Board was required to confer a "veto like" authority on the consultants or to permit the consultants to be the initiators of locating the curriculum materials to be considered and reviewed for inclusion. See Smith v. Ricci, 89 N.J. 514, 524 (1982). In interpreting the regulation's requirement for "consultation" in this manner, I am mindful of the restrictive approach I am applying. However, the setting of policy and curriculum in our public schools is squarely placed on the local elected boards of education. See Jenkins v. Twp. of Morris School District & Bd. of Ed., 58 N.J. 483, 492 (1971). Although the family life program spells out, more than other programs, how a board of education is to attempt to be in tune with the sentiment of the community, the regulation does not alter the basic governance structure of our schools. Communities which are dissatisfied with the policy choices of the elected board members have a ready avenue of relief in the annual school elections. As the Commissioner of Education has stated:

> [I]t is axiomatic that the members of the local boards of education are responsible for the wisdom of their actions to the people who elect them and not to the Commissioner of Education. As the Commissioner recited the law as a frame of reference in Cecelia Barnes et al. v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 1961-62 S.L.D. 122, 125, aff'd State Board of Education, 1963 S.L.D. 240:
> [a]s long as . . . a board of education . . . acts within the authority conferred on . . . it by law courts are without power to, or will not, interfere with, control, or review . . . its action and decision in matters involving the exercise of discretion, in the absence of clear abuse thereof or error; nor is the wisdom or expediency of an act, or the motive with which it was done, open to judicial inquiry or consideration, where power to do it existed. 78 C.J.S. 920.
> In absence of clear abuse of the discretionary power of the Board, the Commissioner will not interfere. It was held in Boult v. Board of Education of Passaic, 136 N.J.L. 521 (E. & A. 1948), concerning the authority of the Commissioner and State Board of Education under R.S. 18:3-14 and 15:

In this matter, I FIND that the Board did consult with required representatives suggested in the regulation before proceeding with implementation of its new K-3 Family Life Curriculum. I FIND the consultation which did occur met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. After thoroughly considering all of petitioners' proofs and the presentation by the Board's witnesses, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis to overturn the Board's action. Petitioners' action is dismissed.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exception with the COMMISSIONER, Department of Education, 225 East State St., CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners filed exceptions on June 6, 1994, in response to an initial decision mailed on May 25, 1994. By letter dated June 15, 1994, and faxed to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on that date, counsel for the Board advised that he had not been served with a copy of such exceptions and only learned of their existence on June 14, 1994 from a newspaper article. The Commissioner finds and determines that since petitioners' exceptions were not filed in accordance with the dictates of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), which specifically requires that a copy of exceptions be served on all other parties and the judge, such exceptions will not be herein considered. Further, the petitioners cannot rely on their pro se status to claim ignorance of the requirement that other parties are to be served when the initial decision contains an explicit directive to that effect on page 15.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons clearly articulated by her in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

For Petitioner, Arla Usher, Pro Se

For Respondent, David B. Rand, Esq. (Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a petition of appeal with request for emergent relief filed on Friday, June 24, 1994, wherein petitioner sought a determination that her son be allowed to participate in graduation exercises on Friday, June 24, 1994, pending resolution of a dispute concerning the Board's action denying Edward S. Usher, III the privilege of participating in graduation ceremonies on June 21, 1994, based on the finding that he violated the Board's substance abuse policies and the Senior Prom Contract by consuming alcohol before the senior prom.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, Assistant Commissioner Win L. Tillery was designated to decide this matter and a hearing was conducted via telephonic conference on June 24, 1994.

Upon consideration of the information obtained from the parties during the telephonic hearing, the Assistant Commissioner determines that petitioner has failed to demonstrate those standards for extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In so deciding, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner was afforded the opportunity to be heard by the Board. He expressly finds that petitioner does not deny that her son consumed alcohol. Consequently, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner has not, at this juncture, shown the likelihood that she will prevail on the underlying merits of her claim that the Board's action in suspending Edward S. Usher, III, and prohibiting him from attending graduation ceremonies pursuant to Board Policy 5530R and the Senior Prom Contract upon a finding that he consumed alcohol in a limosine before the prom was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. In the instant matter the Board has exercised its discretionary authority to impose what it considers an appropriate penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1.

The Commissioner will not set aside a discretionary action taken by a local board of education, acting within its statutory authority, unless he finds that the Board's exercise of its discretion constituted an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. Thomas v. Board of Education of the Township of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 328 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966) The Commissioner finds no evidence of an abuse of discretion in the matter herein. Nothing was brought to the record with respect to the blood alcohol tests taken at a hospital. Therefore, the Assistant Commissioner makes no determination in that regard.

Similarly, absent a showing of abuse of Board discretion concerning this underlying claim, petitioner was unable to show irreparable harm in the denial of the privilege of attendance at the graduation ceremonies. Petitioner is not being denied a diploma in this matter. See, James Kenngott v. Lower Camden County Regional Board of Education, Camden County, 1975 S.L.D. 489

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is DENIED, and the matter is to move forward for an expedited hearing at the Office of Administrative Law on the underlying merits of petitioner's claims.

In so deciding, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner was afforded the opportunity to be heard by the Board. He expressly finds petitioner does not deny that his son consumed alcohol, only that none was found in his system as a result of a blood test done at some subsequent time. Consequently, the Assistant Commissioner finds that petitioner has not, at this juncture, shown the likelihood that he will prevail on the underlying merits of his claim that the Board's action in suspending Michael Byank and prohibiting him from attending graduation ceremonies pursuant to Board Policy 5530R and the Senior Prom Contract upon a finding that he consumed alcohol in a limosine before the prom was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

For Petitioners, Iris G. Ippolito, Pro Se

For Respondent, Popovitch & Popovitch (Daniel S. Popovitch, Esq.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a petition of appeal with request for emergent relief filed on Friday, June 24, 1994, wherein petitioners sought a determination that their son be allowed to participate in graduation exercises on Tuesday, June 28, 1994, pending resolution of a dispute concerning the action of the Superintendent and High School Principal determining that Anthony W. Ippolito, Jr. had failed to provide appropriate medical excuses to support his having been excused by the librarian and the gym teacher from participation in physical education classes from December 1993 to May 1994.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, Assistant Commissioner Win L. Tillery was designated to decide this matter and a hearing was conducted via telephonic conference on June 27, 1994.

Upon consideration of the information obtained from the parties during the telephonic hearing, the Assistant Commissioner determines that petitioners have demonstrated the standards for extraordinary relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Testimony on behalf of the Board established that petitioners' son was consistently authorized to be excused from gym class by district staff members upon the statement by petitioners' son that a medical note would be provided. Petitioners have submitted two physician statements which have been deemed not to be sufficient to excuse absences for the final marking period. One note has, however, been determined sufficient to excuse petitioner's son from gym during summer school. The Assistant Commissioner finds based upon the specific facts herein that petitioners have preliminarily established a likelihood of success on the underlying merits of their claim that the District's action prohibiting their son from attending graduation ceremonies upon a finding that the doctors' notes submitted were not sufficient may constitute an arbitrary or unreasonable action on behalf of the District in that the policy submitted on behalf of the Board refers to both "unauthorized or unexcused absence from class."

Ordinarily, the Commissioner will not set aside a discretionary action taken by a local board of education, acting within its statutory authority, unless he finds that the Board's exercise of its discretion constituted an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action. Thomas v. Board of Education of the Township of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 328 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966)

In applying the Crowe standards in the instant matter, petitioners have shown the balance of the equities in their behalf in permitting their son the privilege of attendance at the graduation ceremonies. Petitioners' son is not being denied a diploma in this matter, based on a determination that he has submitted a doctor's note establishing that he is not capable of participating in physical education classes for the next four weeks or the majority of the summer school term.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is GRANTED, and the matter is to move forward for an expedited hearing at the Office of Administrative Law on the underlying merits of petitioners' claims.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured principal, challenged the Board's action in withholding his salary increments for the 1992-93 school year due to alleged lack of effective leadership and contended such action was without factual basis, arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

Having considered both testimony and documentary evidence, ALJ concluded that the evaluations on which petitioner's withholding was based were unbiased and procedurally sound, and evinced no significant deviations from Board policy. Thus, the Board's determination to withhold was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, nor was it without good cause. (Kopera) Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

v.
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY
Respondent.

Record Closed: March 31, 1994 Decided: May 16, 1994

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about September 23, 1992, petitioner, Harold Simon, appealed to the Commissioner of Education alleging that respondent's action in withholding his salary increment was without factual basis, arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. He requested that the Commissioner reinstate his increment for the 1992-93 school term. Respondent filed an answer on November 6, 1992, denying certain of the allegations and contending that the State district superintendent acted with good cause to withhold petitioner's increment. On November 19, 1992, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, and assigned to the undersigned judge on December 21, 1992

New Jersey is an Equal Opportunity Employer

A telephone prehearing conference was held on January 19, 1993. At that time, the issues were isolated and a hearing was scheduled for May 18, 24, 25, and 28, 1993, at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. As a result of certain scheduling conflicts, the hearing proceeded on May 26, August 3, 5, and 9, and September 22, and 24, 1993. The record closed on March 31, 1994, the extended date for filing briefs in this matter. Witnesses who testified and exhibits admitted into evidence are listed in the attached appendix.

ISSUES

The issues in this matter are as follows:

1. Was respondent's action in withholding petitioner's salary and adjustment increments for the 1992-93 school year arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable?

   (a) Did respondent evaluate petitioner in accordance with the criteria set forth in the New Jersey Administrative Code (N.J.A.C. 6:7-2.2) and the performance factors as adopted by respondent?

2. If so, to what relief is petitioner entitled?

FACTS

The following facts are stipulated:

1. On August 7, 1991, the State Board of Education abolished the Paterson City Board of Education and thereby created the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (the District), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34 et seq.

2. The State Board of Education appointed Dr. Leval S. Wilson as the State district superintendent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35.

3. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45, Dr. Wilson prepared an evaluation process for all building principals. Several assessment unit evaluators, including Greta Shepherd and Dr. Benjamin Veal, were hired to conduct the evaluations of principals.

4. Petitioner Harold Simon has been employed by respondent as a school principal since September 1, 1970. During the 1991-92 school year, petitioner was principal of Public School No. 24. Presently, petitioner is the principal at the Norman S. Weier School.

5. On November 13, 1991, all district principals, including petitioner, attended a meeting. During the meeting, Dr. Wilson and Dr. Arthur Russomano, project manager, reviewed the principal evaluation process.

6. Petitioner Simon received the following memos from his assistant superintendent, Ms. Emilie Renna, relevant to the evaluation process:

   (a) A memo dated November 6, 1991, scheduling a meeting for all principals on Wednesday, November 13, 1991, and indicating that the agenda would include a review of the principal assessment process (J-1, Exhibit A).

   (b) A memo dated January 6, 1992, to all principals regarding the principal evaluation process (J-1, Exhibit B).

   (c) A memo dated January 8, 1992, regarding the principal evaluation process (J-1, Exhibit C).

7. The State assessment unit coordinator, Jack McGee, issued two memos to assistant superintendents relevant to the principal evaluation process: February 5, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit D) and February 28, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit E).

   (a) On January 24, 1992, petitioner objected to the evaluation by Dr. Benjamin Veal, based upon an alleged conflict between himself and Dr. Veal (J-1, Exhibit F).

8. In response to petitioner's January 24, 1992 letter, the District, on February 13, 1992, assigned evaluator Greta Shepherd to perform the remaining three evaluations of petitioner (J-1, Exhibit G).

9. On February 13, 1992, Jack McGee provided school principals with a copy of the criteria and indicators (J-1, Exhibit H).

10. On March 18, 1992, petitioner had a conference with Dr. Wilson and Jack McGee to discuss his February 5, 1992 summative evaluation (Phase I) (J-1, Exhibit I), by Dr. Veal.

11. Ms. Shepherd performed three summative evaluations on petitioner: April 28, 1992 (Phase II) (J-1, Exhibit J); May 22, 1992 (Phase III) (J-1, Exhibit K); June 30, 1992 (Phase IV) (J-1, Exhibit L).

12. By letter on June 30, 1992, Dr. Benjamin Williams, State district assistant superintendent, and Dr. Wilson acted to withhold petitioner's salary increment (J-1, Exhibit M). The letter indicated that it was for the following reasons:

    (1) You have not demonstrated a consistent and effective leadership role as a principal.

    (2) You have not demonstrated consistent and effective leadership in the areas of curriculum/program, supervision of instruction and staff development.

    (3) You have not improved in areas identified in your developmental action plans.

13. In regard to the first evaluation by Benjamin Veal of petitioner dated March 6, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit I), petitioner received an overall unsatisfactory rating. His rating for Phase I was as follows:

EVALUATION CRITERIA	RATING SCALE
Curriculum/Program	Unsatisfactory	15
Supervision of Instruction	Fair	20
Staff Development	Unsatisfactory	15
Assessment of Pupil Progress	Unsatisfactory	19
Community Relations	Fair	20
School Climate	Fair	20

14. For Phase II of the evaluation process, petitioner was evaluated by Greta Shepherd. The summative evaluation dated April 29, 1992, (J-1, Exhibit J) revealed an overall fair rating. Petitioner received the following:

EVALUATION CRITERIA	RATING SCALE
Curriculum/Program	Fair	30
Supervision of Instruction	Fair	32
Staff Development	Fair	30
Assessment of Pupil Progress	Fair	33
Community Relations	Competent	36
School Climate	Competent	37

15. For Phase III of the evaluation process, petitioner received a summative evaluation by evaluator Greta Shepherd dated May 22, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit K). Petitioner received an overall fair rating. He received the following:

EVALUATION CRITERIA	RATING SCALE
Curriculum/Program	Fair	32
Supervision of Instruction	Fair	32
Staff Development	Fair	32
Assessment of Pupil Progress	Competent	35
Community Relations	Competent	36
School Climate	Competent	37

16. For Phase IV of the evaluation process, petitioner received a summative evaluation by evaluator Greta Shepherd dated July 9, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit L). Petitioner received an overall fair rating. Petitioner's ratings were as follows:

EVALUATION CRITERIA	RATING SCALE
Curriculum/Program	Fair	32
Supervision of Instruction	Fair	32
Staff Development	Fair	33
Assessment of Pupil Progress	Competent	35
Community Relations	Competent	36
School Climate	Competent	39

TESTIMONY

First to testify on behalf of respondent was Jack Allan McGee, employed as State assessment unit coordinator for respondent since November 1, 1991. He was hired to coordinate the evaluation process for the central office. The evaluation process and principal evaluation process was required by the State takeover. During mid-October 1991, the administrative team met to determine how the two evaluation processes would be accomplished. On November 13, 1991, a meeting was held which all principals were directed to attend, at which the evaluation process was explained. Petitioner was present at the meeting. The District hired six outside evaluators. Greta Shepherd and Dr. Benjamin Veal were two of those selected. There were two initial training sessions for the principal evaluation team. McGee explained that Dr. Wilson made remarks regarding the mandatory evaluation and gave the principals an overview of the six areas of the evaluation. Dr. Russomano, a consultant, indicated the evaluation team members and the criteria. He referred to the principal evaluation cycle, as represented in R-1, and explained the process. The evaluators were assigned at random to six principals and were to remain with those principals for each of the four phases.

McGee explained that Dr. John Krewer, an assistant superintendent in Pennsylvania and a consultant to the District, put together the evaluation process, designed the forms and fleshed out the criteria. McGee's memo dated February 5, 1992, to Emmajean Stepherson, Emilie Renna and Burt Vasquez was prompted by the fact that the principals had requested the indicators. The indicators, independently accomplished by the local school district, were distributed between Phase I and Phase II of the evaluation process.

McGee explained that the purpose of the process was to be in compliance with the state code. The process was to allow principals to present themselves in the best light and to ensure that they were evaluated fairly. McGee explained that his job was to assist the evaluators to ensure they had everything they needed to do the job. The evaluator prepared a handwritten copy of the evaluation which was placed into the computer. After the document was agreed to, the final copy was signed.

McGee revealed that there was a problem with the Phase I evaluation of Simon. Dr. Veal improperly gave petitioner a copy of the handwritten form. This was premature and missed a step in the process. The assistant superintendent had not seen it; it had to incorporate the assistant superintendent's input.

McGee recalled that Simon called him, angry and upset at the handwritten copy. Simon wanted to submit documentation. McGee went to Public School No. 24 to talk to Simon. Apparently, Simon had known Dr. Veal prior to the evaluation, when Dr. Veal was a principal in Wayne and petitioner was on the Board of Education. McGee was uncomfortable that one of the evaluators knew the principal he was assigned to, and it was agreed that the evaluator should have no previous relationship with the principal. McGee sent a letter to the evaluation team members, asking if they had previously worked with any of the principals. The only connection was between Dr. Veal and Mr. Simon. All agreed that the evaluator should be changed (J-1, Exhibit G). Greta Shepherd volunteered to switch a principal with Dr. Veal and was assigned to Simon. McGee received a letter from Simon expressing his displeasure with Dr. Veal's evaluation (J-1, Exhibit F). McGee noted that Dr. Veal was assigned to petitioner in mid-December 1991 and met with Mr. Simon in early January 1992. McGee had received no notification from Simon that he had a problem with Dr. Veal evaluating him. He found out about the problem after the evaluation.

McGee recalled that Dr. Wilson asked to meet with any principal (there were six or seven) rated "fair" or "unsatisfactory" during Phase I. Wilson wanted all principals to score "competent" or above. Fair or unsatisfactory was not acceptable. There was a clear message from the beginning that unsatisfactory performance would not be tolerated. McGee took personal notes of the conference with Dr. Wilson and Simon (R-2). In March 1992, he and Simon had a cordial relationship. He did not recall Simon remarking that the administration was "out to get him." McGee indicated that Simon was given a number of opportunities to talk about the evaluation and his performance. Simon was pleased with the change from Veal to Shepherd. He was satisfied that Shepherd was clear as to what she expected from him. McGee recalled that Simon said he had not received indicators during Phase I and that a couple of other principals had received them. McGee corrected Simon; he knew that the indicators did not go out until after Phase I, but prior to any part of Phase II being conducted. He noted that the evaluators were to use the indicators as guidelines to determine if the criteria were met. Dr. Wilson determined that he would decide whether to use the Phase I evaluation for Simon. He maintained the rights over the use of it. McGee did not hear anything about Dr. Veal being unfair with Simon.

On cross-examination, McGee indicated that his role was to assist Russomano and coordinate the paperwork for the evaluation process. He did not believe that Dr. Krewer had completed the process by November 13, 1991, nor was he sure if the principal evaluation cycle (R-1) was completed by that date. The list of the six criteria was passed out. He could not recall if all of the evaluators had principalship experience and was not sure if this was a criteria. McGee was not involved in choosing the six people on the team, nor did he know how the evaluators were picked. The evaluation process was presented to the evaluators and explanations and training were given. He was present at the training but did not conduct it. He could not recall if R-1 was presented to them. There was training review in late December, early January, after the performance indicators were completed. The indicators (J-1, Exhibit H) were distributed and discussed, and the evaluators were advised to use them.

McGee indicated that P-1 was developed by Krewer and distributed at the training session. He could not recall a discussion not to give weight to one indicator over another. The principals were advised of the six criteria and the manner in which these performance criteria would be assessed. The evaluators were to tell the principals what was expected. There was no thought given to sending out the indicators. He agreed that the criteria are general and that indicators define them. It was his recommendation not to list the indicators until Phase I was over. His recommendation was accepted and the indicators were not distributed until Phase II.

McGee did not know if Dr. Veal interviewed petitioner or what he asked of him. He noted that the post-observation conference with the principal is an opportunity for both parties to review what the evaluator has found. The evaluator may ask for additional documentation, and the evaluatee may provide it. The evaluator could make an additional on-site monitoring visit. McGee stated that he was told that this took place between Veal and Simon. Simon told him he showed the documentation to Veal and tried to provide it to him, but Veal was not interested in the additional documentation. Dr. Veal said he did not need all the documentation and asked for certain pieces. McGee could not recall Dr. Veal's response to what Simon had told him. McGee noted that it is not necessarily a violation of the process for Dr. Veal to refrain from accepting documentation. The issue is whether the materials are germane.

McGee explained that the evaluation process required the evaluator to go over the evaluation with the assistant superintendent. The evaluator is bound by the criteria and the indicators; the indicators bring objectivity to the process. The assistant superintendent is not necessarily bound by the criteria and the indicators. Judgment is a factor which adds depth to the indicators. McGee indicated that based on Exhibit I (see J-1) he could not determine how the evaluator reached the conclusion that Simon was unsatisfactory. He opined, however, that it is not necessarily true that the evaluator should have outlined the principal's particular weaknesses in the evaluation. The evaluation may have been explained to Simon. McGee indicated that in the summative evaluation, Shepherd rated Simon a 32 in supervision of instruction. He did not know how Shepherd came up with that number. The numerical score is based on the judgment of the evaluator. On redirect examination, McGee explained that some indicators carry greater weight. The evaluator could look at some indicators during one phase and others during another. There is no correlation between the indicators and the score. Shepherd relied on and was knowledgeable of the indicators.

McGee agreed that the evaluation for Public School No. 34 was satisfactory and that one of the indicators was instructional leadership. He did not believe, however, that there was a correlation between the school evaluation and the principal's evaluation. McGee indicated that Dr. Krewer put together the school effectiveness document. He was not part of the team. The school effectiveness questionnaire in May of 1992 was to spark discussion among the superintendent's cabinet members; it was not connected to the principal's evaluation and the cabinet members did not have access to Simon's evaluation. The outside evaluators and the cluster assistant superintendent filled out the school effectiveness questionnaire. The cabinet and the principal evaluation team (the same team of outside evaluators who did the principals' evaluations) discussed the ratings and one rating for the school was arrived at. McGee could not recall if a principal was satisfactory and the school unsatisfactory, or vice versa. On recross examination, the witness noted that there were meetings each month with the evaluators.

Benjamin Veal holds a master's degree from Seton Hall University and a doctorate in education from Rutgers University. He retired from the Wayne public schools on July 1, 1991, where he was employed for twenty-nine years. He served as a teacher, an affirmative action officer, and a principal of two elementary schools for twenty-five years. He is certified in social studies, physical education and health, elementary education K-8, and science, and has a principal's certificate and a school administrator's certificate.

Dr. Veal was contacted to become an evaluator in December 1991. In January 1992, there was an all-day training session regarding the evaluation of the building principals. The superintendent of schools spoke about the goals. The evaluators were told to inform the building principals of the process. Veal had a long list of what he was looking for. The model was performance criteria and Veal had indicators during the training session.

Veal testified that he has known Simon for fifty-five years. Simon graduated high school with Veal's wife. His first of four meetings with Simon occurred in January 1992, for half a day. He spoke about the process and what Simon should produce in the future. He asked for seventeen items of documentation (R-3). Simon alleged that he was not required to do what was asked of him and he complained. No portfolio of documents was given to Veal. Simon gave him a school improvement plan for 1990 which was one piece of paper and one year old and Veal gave it back to him. At the second meeting, on January 19, 1992, Veal asked Simon for a plan book, and Simon did not have one. Veal also asked for the school improvement plan. Veal indicated that he spent half a day asking for dates of in-service meetings, dates of staff meetings, agendas, etc. He went through a standard list of about forty to fifty questions. Simon responded and gave him the documents he had. At the end of this meeting Veal had five documents. The third meeting in January 1992 was a co-observation meeting. Veal observed the teacher conference and spent the remainder of the afternoon going over the same questions for documentation. At the fourth meeting, Veal reviewed what had been submitted and asked for material again. Simon indicated that some of what was asked for had not been asked for before and he had difficulty producing it. Veal filled out the summative evaluation; the rating was unsatisfactory.

The last meeting was the post-observation conference. He discussed Simon's strengths and weaknesses. Simon told him that he did not blame him but that he would tell the central office what he thought of the entire process.

Veal received a call from McGee in late January or early February informing him that Simon had said there was a problem because Veal was principal when Simon was on the Board of Education. Veal stated that Simon was not on the Board of Education when he was made principal. Exhibit I (see J-1) was prepared after the meeting with Simon. Veal admitted, however, that he gave Simon a handwritten copy when he met with him. McGee told Veal that Simon said that he had offered Veal documentation that Veal refused to take. Veal disagreed that Simon had tried to give him documents that he refused to look at. Veal alleged that he had great difficulty getting documents from Simon.

On cross-examination, Veal could not recall if Simon showed him P-4, which he admitted could serve as documentation regarding a mission statement. The parties stipulated that Veal had not seen P-5a, b and c, which would serve as documentation of communication between principal and staff. Veal admitted that he saw copies of newsletters to parents (P-6) and noted this in the evaluation. However, this was insufficient for purposes of communication with the parents; he was looking for notes or letters to parents regarding activities of the children at school. There was no such documentation. Referring to P-7, Veal did not recall seeing documents regarding corrective action and assessments. He also did not recall seeing P-7, P-8, P-9 or P-10. Of import, Simon presented goals for 1990-91, which was not the appropriate year. He did not present documentation for the appropriate year, which Simon indicated would be completed later in the year.

Veal admitted that there was a requirement to obtain input from the assistant superintendent before he gave Simon the evaluation. He was supposed to talk to the assistant superintendent and then type up the evaluation. The post-observation conference was to be held after discussion with the cluster superintendent. The cluster superintendent would sign the evaluation, McGee would receive the evaluation, and then the evaluator would confer with the building principal (J-1, Exhibit C, par. 3). He admitted that he had a post-observation conference with Simon before conferring with the cluster superintendent. This was not in accord with the procedures.

Veal concluded there was an unsatisfactory rating after the observations that were required. Veal admitted that Simon observed teachers frequently, but indicated that he had no documentation to determine the quality of those observations. He could not find evidence of institutional goals and objectives. In regard to supervision of instruction, he only observed that Simon completed paragraph A (J-1, Exhibit H).

Veal indicated that from the beginning of Phase I to the beginning of Phase II he observed Simon four times; pre-observation conference, all-day shadowing, evaluation in school, post-observation conference. The post-observation conference occurred when the evaluation was signed on January 21, 1992. He admitted that there was no indication of weakness in school climate. He did not indicate in the evaluation that Simon did not attend meetings and conferences held outside the school district (one of the requirements of school climate). Veal stated that he knew Simon did not attend because Simon told him so. He rated Simon fair in community relationships because he did only minimal things in that category and provided no documentation as to what he did.

Veal admitted that there was a conflict between himself and the Wayne Board of Education when he was a principal, which developed after Simon was on the Board (1978). He admitted that he had not told the administration that he had known Simon for fifty-five years or that he was a principal in Wayne when Simon was on the Board of Education. He admitted that there was no documentation regarding his first meeting with Simon; he did not keep the calendar. However, each day he observed Simon there would be a voucher for payment. He admitted that he had the criteria in January (J-1, Exhibit H), but had not shared it with Simon.

On redirect examination, Veal pointed out that he used the indicators. He explained that he listed the development of the monthly newsletter as a strength, and parent communication as a weakness because the newsletter did not cover all areas of parent communication. He could not recall if he was shown P-8, nor did he have knowledge that P-4 was given to him. He outlined the evaluation and did not believe he had to write down everything. On January 21, 1992, he had reached a conclusion. Simon was rated unsatisfactory because of a lack of documentation.

Veal indicated that Simon had the opportunity to submit such documentation and that he never rejected one piece of paper that Simon offered.

Greta D. Shepherd, a retired educator who serves as a private consultant, was assigned to evaluate Simon on or about February 1992. There is no dispute that she was qualified to serve as an evaluator. Shepherd evaluated Simon and, on April 28, 1992, rated him fair. She discussed the process and assessed him against other principals she had worked with. Testifying with particularity, Shepherd opined that she could not tell from the mission statement what the school would do to have an effective program for students. Referring to R-6, she indicated that the conference Simon held on March 3, 1992, was too brief and that he did not use good administration skills and did not help instruction. She opined that P-7 was not a strongly written PIP, since it did not relate specifically to what the school was working on. Referring to Phase III (J-1, Exhibit K), supervision of instruction, she indicated that Simon did not give specific feedback and was not consistent in recording behavior. He did not record at the beginning of the lesson and did not have clinical observation skill. In Phase IV, the quality of the post-observation conferences did not improve enough. She could not say that Simon had the skills of the other principals.

Shepherd indicated that after each evaluation she had a discussion with Emilie Renna. Referring to R-8, she indicated she had not seen the attached observation forms used by Simon. The agendas should have been prepared and not handwritten. She and Renna had a conversation regarding a handwritten agenda that was undated. She opined that there was a lack of organization in presenting and organizing material. Shepherd noted that No. 1 on the improvement plan was the use of binders. Moreover, Shepherd wanted a staff development program developed. She called Charlotte Welling, staff development officer, Paterson School District, to help Simon design a staff development program. Shepherd wanted it running for the next school year. Shepherd could not indicate whether she saw P-5a. She asserted that the numbers assessed reflected her professional judgment based on the principals she had seen and worked with over the years. Shepherd prides herself on trying to lessen confusion and thought there was a clarity of understanding.

On cross-examination, she indicated that she used performance criteria for all the evaluations. She pointed out the most significant areas of weakness and noted that there was no requirement to indicate strengths, unless in the upper range, or comment on each area. There was no scale; she gave Simon a 30 based on her best professional judgment.

In further testimony, Shepherd expounded on her allegation that there was no identifiable staff development program. Use of the Master Teacher magazine itself is not staff development; a commercial program must be discretely related to it. She admitted that she did not speak to the chairperson of the staff development committee. Shepherd opined that P-11 (which she had reviewed) was not satisfactory and did not represent a year's work. It was a reconstruction by the teachers and not specific enough to meet the needs of the child. Shepherd indicated that she had no problem with the format of the individual professional improvement plan worksheet by staff member Mikardos (R-7), but she did have problems with the content. She reviewed it with Simon. Shepherd could not recall if she had reviewed the classroom visitation/observation reports (P-12).

Shepherd indicated that the most important role for the principal is supervision of instruction and opined that there are schools that work well despite the principal. Renna evaluated Public School No. 24. Shepherd had no information of Renna's evaluation, and had not seen the school effectiveness questionnaire (P-13) before. She was not aware of the results and not involved in the process of evaluating the school.

Shepherd indicated on cross-examination that she had been advised of the evaluation process and shown how to use the rating scale. There were occasions when she did not record what occurred during her meetings with Simon and may or may not have written down the dates of the meetings. She did not know if she had post-observation conferences with Simon and had nothing to demonstrate whether she had them for cycles 2, 3 and 4. Of import, Shepherd did not recall P-14 in evidence. She admitted, however, that she completed the school effectiveness questionnaire for Public School No. 24. She had not seen it since she handed it in. Each evaluator completed a school effectiveness questionnaire for each school with which he or she was involved. She was not sure how she rated Public School No. 24 and believed that she gave her evaluation to Mr. McGee. She stated that there was a general discussion of the school effectiveness questionnaire at that time with the superintendent, cabinet and all evaluators. Shepherd opined that Simon's overall performance did not improve significantly over a period of evaluations. She admitted that Simon was in the upper range of fair, and could make changes to come within the competent range. She advised Renna of this.

On redirect examination, Shepherd indicated that Simon did not have a discrete review of test data. She rated him competent for assessment of pupil progress and asserted that the fact that he had not looked at the data required that he be moved down to fair. Shepherd met with Renna regarding Simon's evaluation for the third cycle. Renna asked her to change the fair to competent. Shepherd indicated that she had to call it as she saw it and saw no reason to change the rating. There was no disagreement as to how she arrived at the rating. She showed Renna examples and felt there was an agreement. On recross examination, Shepherd stated that she had not indicated to Simon that certain information should be in folders not binders. She believed that P-11 asked in May what had been done all year, did not collect the requisite data and was not discretely developed for above-average learners.

Herbert Benjamin Williams, State assistant superintendent since August 16, 1991, is familiar with Harold Simon. Delegated by Dr. Wilson to play a role, he helped conceptualize the task of the evaluator, select Krewer and select the evaluators. He recalled the meeting of November 13, 1991, with all principals present and the conference with Simon to review his performance (R-2). The superintendent said he would only support principals that had, at minimum, satisfactory evaluations and wanted to meet with those rated less than satisfactory early in the process. The focus of his comments was the fact that Simon was not satisfactory. Williams indicated that he did not get the impression from the meeting that Simon did not understand what was expected of him. Simon opined that Veal had not been clear with him and felt it would be different with Greta Shepherd.

Williams worked with McGee to put a reporting system in place so he could receive information on the evaluations and monitor the principal's performance. Noting that the evaluation process was comprehensive, Williams stated that he reviewed documents and records which formed the basis for the summative evaluation. He reviewed Shepherd's evaluations. He established a relationship with the evaluators and concluded they were competent. Williams indicated that he had four evaluations when he determined to withhold the increment. The standard of acceptance was satisfactory. Fair or unsatisfactory was below the standard. Since Simon's performance in certain areas was less than satisfactory, Simon did not demonstrate consistent and effective leadership. Williams indicated that Renna tried to increase Simon's probability of success by the improvement plan for Simon (R-8). Williams was familiar with the school effectiveness questionnaire (P-13). He met with Krewer and requested an instrument to collect data that could be used for conclusions on the efficacy of the school. Williams opined that the school questionnaire was not related to the principal evaluation process. Noting that this was not the intent of the instrument (it was not designed to measure a principal's effectiveness), he took steps to maintain it as a private document (unavailable to the public) so that no judgment would be made from it on the individual principals.

On cross-examination, Williams explained that he and the superintendent determined to move a principal based on an assessment of the data collected. The increment denial was based on his and the superintendent's judgement. It did not arise from the cluster assistant superintendent.

Williams met with Simon on one occasion; it was not after Veal's evaluation. He believed that Leval Wilson met with Simon, but did not know the number of meetings. Williams reviewed the evaluations and Shepherd's notes (R-6).

Williams was aware of Veal's summative evaluation and Simon's concerns. He spoke to McGee regarding a change of evaluators. McGee told him that Simon knew Veal from a previous relationship and felt Veal was not fair or objective. Williams recalled that McGee alerted him to the fact that Veal worked in the school district when Simon was a member of the Board of Education. It had been alleged by Simon that Veal would not accept documents. McGee indicated that Simon showed him the documents he made available to Veal. Williams accepted as valid petitioner's concerns, and switched evaluators to respond to Simon's concerns. He did not recommend that Shepherd be the evaluator. Evaluators had not been asked if they knew the person they were evaluating.

Of import, Williams testified that Renna confirmed that she had not had input into the evaluation. There was a departure from the procedure. The input of the cluster superintendent was lacking. Williams considered this to be a minor procedural flaw when considering the entire process. Williams explained that the reason for the outside evaluators was to have a balanced perspective, minimize arbitrariness, maintain objectivity and fairness and relieve the burden from those that had established a close relationship with the principal. Williams admitted that he took into account Veal's evaluation, but contended that "it might not have weighed heavily."

Williams said that based on his knowledge of the process, he believed that Shepherd had post-observation conferences with Simon. He saw four evaluations and Shepherd's notes when he made a determination on June 30. Referring to the school effectiveness questionnaire, Williams admitted that instructional leadership refers to the principal of the school and, according to Renna's evaluation, the leadership of Public School No. 24 was average. Williams indicated, however, that he did not take this into account because this was not the evaluation of the principal. The document was designed to look at the variables of organizational directives. The building principal evaluation was different and contained six particular criteria. Although he admitted that some of the indicators in the school effectiveness questionnaire are similar or identical to those in the principal evaluation process criteria (J-1, Exhibit H), he opined that one can report on the institution without an in-depth performance review. Referring to P-13 (No. 9 of Instructional leadership), he did not believe that there was a disagreement between Renna's and Shepherd's evaluations. He recalled that there was an extensive discussion with Dr. Krewer, and they concurred that the school effectiveness questionnaire was not designed to evaluate individual performance. He admitted that the same people were involved in the process of school evaluation as in the principals' evaluations. Williams was not sure he was present at the meeting at which Simon's increment was denied, nor was he sure he was present at a meeting at which Dr. Wilson said he wanted Simon to leave the District. He did not discuss this with Dr. Wilson.

Williams agreed that the Norman L. Weier School is rated below average. Although he participated in the decision to transfer Simon, he did not tell Simon he was transferred to help turn that school around. He transferred seventeen principals in an effort to create better matches. He looked at Simon's time in Public School No. 24 and the Norman L. Weier School and transferred Simon because he thought it was a better match. He looked at the amount of time a principal was at a single location and the benefit of reassigning the principal. He believed it was the right decision to transfer Simon. He did not transfer Simon to Weier because of his leadership abilities or improvements of Public School No. 24. Williams had no knowledge of performance history and Simon's performance had nothing to do with his transfer.

On redirect examination, Williams indicated that eighteen people participated in the rating of the schools, the cabinet shared its perception and a consensus was arrived at. He said that Simon's transfer occurred after June 30, 1992, and prior to the opening of school.

Kathy Ann Poshkus, employed by Paterson for approximately ten years, testified for petitioner. Presently on child-care leave, she taught at Public School No. 24 for nine years. She taught there for eight years while Simon was principal. In 1991-92, Simon conducted four formal observations of her. She recalled that in May, Shepherd and Simon observed her for fifty minutes. At the end of the lesson, Simon spoke to the children regarding the lesson. He told the children that it was a good lesson. The children loved it and answered him. He did not interrupt the lesson. He followed the same procedure on other evaluations. The post-observation conference took place later the same day. Shepherd was there for the twenty-five-minute conference. Simon discussed the lesson. He began in a positive vein and then made suggestions for improvement. He discussed working with different-level children. He spoke to the witness regarding working with gifted and talented students. He believed the lesson was a little too easy for bright children. Shepherd said nothing during the conference. At the end of the observation, Shepherd thanked Poshkus. She gave her a note thanking her for letting her observe the lesson and noting that it was a wonderful lesson. Poshkus opined that all Simon's post-observation conferences were the same and that he always helped the teacher.

On cross-examination, Pushkus could not recall the exact day of the lesson she had testified about. She indicated that Shepherd's notes (R-6) were incorrect, and that Shepherd and Simon came at 9:00, the door was shut, and they left at 10:10.

Poshkus had no notes of the evaluation and contended that she had not discussed her recollections with Simon. Although she admitted that she knew Simon needed her testimony, she was subpoenaed. She understood Shepherd was there to observe Simon and was told the morning of the evaluation that they were coming to her classroom.

On redirect examination, she indicated that she did not know Simon was followed. She had the impression that she was being observed as part of a process to determine why the State took over Paterson. She believed they were checking out all of the teachers.

On questioning by this judge, Poshkus referred to Ms. Shepherd's notes. Referring to the entries on page 9, she indicated that the entries at 9:24, 9:27, 9:30 and 9:35 did not occur.

Next to testify was Robin Lynn Chmiel, employed by respondent as a third-grade teacher. Presently in her third year of teaching, she began teaching in September 1991 in Public School No. 24, where Simon was principal. In 1991-92, she was observed by Simon the proper number of times. She also met with him informally every day to communicate and to make sure she was developing her lessons properly. Simon had an open-door policy and everyone went to him in the morning and before they left. There was often a line to speak with him.

In March of 1992, she was observed by Shepherd and Simon for a full forty-minute period. She did not recall that Simon made comments during the observation or interrupted her lesson. She had a post-observation conference after school on the same day, at which Shepherd was present. Because she had another engagement, she could only stay ten minutes, and the post-observation conference was continued the next morning for an additional fifteen to twenty minutes. Shepherd made no comments during the evaluation. Shepherd thanked her and wished her luck in teaching. Simon made comments regarding the lesson.

On cross-examination, Chmiel indicated that she volunteered to be observed. She opined that Shepherd's notes (R-6, pages 3, 4, and 6) accurately described what occurred. She did not believe that Ms. Shepherd was present for the conversation during which it was discussed whether she could stay after school. Chmiel noted that there was a faculty meeting once a month.

On redirect examination, Chmiel recalled that in regard to Shepherd's notation at 9:31, she did not recall Simon picking up paper or taking notes; neither did she recall the actions noted at 9:20, 9:27, or 9:45. She not recall the specifics of what Simon did during the period.

Janice Notte, employed by respondent for nineteen years, has been at Public School No. 24 for eighteen years. She was there for fourteen years when Simon was principal. The staff development committee was formed in December 1991. Notte, a basic skills instructor (BSI), was the chairman of the committee, which had ten teachers on it. (Simon sent a questionnaire to the staff to determine their interest in committees. Apparently, there were at least two other committees, school climate and testing.) Notte indicated that there were five meetings of the staff development committee at which Simon was present. In January, the committee met to determine what to do. At Simon's suggestion, Charlotte Welling, State staff development specialist, met with them for an hour to an hour and a half in February to determine different techniques. She advised them about the national staff development committee and different workshops. She was to return, but did not. The April meeting was canceled, but in May there was a meeting to discuss an all-day workshop that Simon had planned for June, at which the different committees would meet. Shepherd was present at the May meeting. They came up with several goals for the school; intra-school contact, peer group for teachers, out-of-school visits, and workshops for the following year. Although they began implementing these, since Simon was not principal in 1992-93, they were not carried out. There was no staff development committee in 1992-93 (the principal showed no interest).

Notte believed that the manner of addressing different ability levels was discussed in a committee. She believed that the 1991-92 curriculum was geared to all three levels and that a teacher would also address this in the classroom. In 1991-92, there was departmentalization according to ability. When Simon was principal, the sixth and eighth grades were departmentalized. The seventh-grade teachers did not want to departmentalize, but there was individual instruction in the classroom. In 1993-94, there was a directive from the State to departmentalize all grades.

On cross-examination, Notte indicated that Simon is a friend and a colleague. They do not socialize outside school and Notte has no stake in this case. Referred to P-24 and P-31, Notte indicated that the meeting with Ms. Welling apparently occurred April 14, 1992. Notte opined that the staff development committee was a good idea.

On redirect examination, Notte further indicated that there were staff development activities in prior years and, in addition to the committee in 1991-92, for as long as she could remember Simon had given each teacher a Master Teacher pamphlet, which was discussed at faculty meetings. She and the other teachers discussed the benefit of the pamphlets and the Master Teacher ideas. She did not continue to receive the pamphlet in 1992-93.

Patricia Chapman, employed by respondent for fifteen years, taught in Public School No. 24 during most of those years. A math teacher for ten years, she taught sixth grade in 1991-92. In 1991-92, not only was there individual instruction but math was grouped according to high, middle and low ability. This was accomplished by Chapman and Simon in accordance with standardized tests and tests that Chapman developed about ten years ago. She indicated that reading and language were also grouped according to ability in 1991-92, based on performance criteria. In 1992-93 and 1993-94, the subjects were departmentalized, but not grouped as to ability levels. The last time it was grouped according to ability level was when Simon was there. She noted that the higher performance group also worked cooperatively on special projects. There was also a gifted and talented program and a computer program. For the lower performers, there was cooperative learning. The BSI would work as a team teacher. The students would break up into cooperative groups, with one brighter student and three less motivated. Middle-performing groups would work at a regular pace. This program was for all core curriculums in 1991-92.

On cross-examination, Chapman recalled that she piloted the eighth-grade program when it was expanded to the eighth grade. This program was not implemented in the lower grades. On questioning by this judge, Chapman indicated that individualization is going on in the seventh grade, but it is not departmentalized. In seventh grade, one teacher teaches math, language arts, and English in a self-contained classroom. Within that classroom, students are divided into groups. On redirect examination, Chapman opined that grouping occurred K-5; there is no other way to teach.

Emilie Renna, employed by respondent for thirty-eight years, has served as a principal, vice-principal and teacher. In March of 1991, she was assistant superintendent in charge of school operations. She was in charge of twelve schools, including the high school and Public School No. 24, and was to assist principals as a troubleshooter, accountable for all that occurs on the school level. She helped the principals evaluate teachers and in areas of operation.

Renna indicated that she had a secondary role in the evaluation process. She observed the principal pre- and post-observation conferences. She met with the outside assessors and went over the principal's assessment. She spoke to the principal in regard to improvement based on the original evaluation.

Renna testified that Veal's initial evaluation in January 1992 was supposed to be a joint evaluation and shared with her before it was given to Simon. It was not. She conferred with Shepherd regarding her first evaluation of Simon, and she took notes. Renna said that she also found poor organization skills, and that staff development and curriculum development were weak. School climate was satisfactory. Renna could not recall the details. During the fourth evaluation, they discussed competency. Some areas had not improved.

Renna had been at the school and observed this. Noting that staff development involved the focus of a principal actively assisting staff to learn by positive action, she concluded that Simon was not doing that. There was no staff development committee at the outset of the year. It was established in response to criticism and was not part of the district-wide effort. Although Welling was on board early in the year and asked Simon if he wanted to take advantage of the district-wide effort, Simon did not until April. By April, other schools had done full workshops and were on the second round. In addition, Simon could not document staff development in the prior years. Renna noted that the Master Teacher publication was placed in the teachers' mailboxes, but not selected regarding staff development. There was no documentation of Master Teacher at staff meetings until the negative evaluation.

Renna sent a letter of support for Simon for a Dodge Foundation grant (P-32) in November 1991. She opined that although her statements were true, this was not an evaluation. She chose him and no one else because she believed that Simon was vocal and interested in site-based management. She picked an interested principal, not the best principal.

Renna filled out the school effectiveness questionnaire and concluded that the school was average (P-13). She believed her rating was accurate. Although she alleged the summary sheet (page 4 of P-13) was accurate, she admitted that in regard to expectations for students' success, she provided an overall summative rating of average, but rated it below average on the summary sheet. In regard to community relations, she provided an overall summative rating of average, but rated it below average on the summary sheet. She admitted that the summary was based on the rating sheet. She agreed that instructional leadership was marked average. In her group, all but two schools were rated average; two were rated above average. Only Simon received an increment denial. She did not know how many schools were rated above average in which a principal received an increment denial.

In regard to Shepherd's rating of supervision of instruction as fair, Renna did not recall discussing the score and was not sure if she asked Shepherd to raise that score. She did ask her to raise the scores in some areas. She admitted that supervision of instruction is the same as instructional leadership, in which Simon was rated average. Although she agreed that Shepherd's rating could be wrong, she indicated that Shepherd had clear documentation which Renna could not refute. She worked with Simon for many years and tried to help him. She issued various improvement plans for Simon, but they were not all carried out. Referring to her initial recommendations for improvement (R-8), she indicated that Nos. 5, 6, 9, 13 and 15 were not carried out. Staff development was not carried out or properly documented. Renna discussed the second improvement plan, dated April 27, 1992, with Simon. She explained that Simon had finally put item No. 1 in writing, but did not set up binders until later. In regard to No. 2, since Simon could not provide evidence of pre- and post-observation conferences, Renna gave him evaluation forms to overcome this. Renna observed that some of what was in the plan was done. Item Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 were accomplished; Renna could not recall seeing No. 8 and was not sure if No. 11 was done. Simon did not set up binders and some of the items were not accomplished in the manner in which it was expected they would be. She referred to a memo to Simon dated June 3, 1992, and the improvement plan dated July 9, 1992, for those items not rated satisfactory.

On cross-examination, Renna opined that the principal evaluation process was fair. It made sense to use outside evaluators since it was hard to evaluate a principal if one worked with that principal. She believed Shepherd's evaluation of Simon was objective and professional. There was no undue bias or influence or any indication that Shepherd misrepresented the data she collected. Renna received Veal's typed evaluation of Simon, eventually discussed it with Veal, and signed off on it. Noting that she challenged all evaluations, she indicated that she was satisfied with Veal's and Shepherd's evaluations. She signed off on them because she agreed with them.

More particularly, she believed the curriculum and program were not individualized to meet the needs of high-, middle-, and lower-level students. There was no evidence in the plan book to indicate different levels in the class. She opined that Simon's mission statement (P-4) was not elaborate enough to meet the specific objective for the school. Further, it did not meet her recommendation for improvement (No. 6 of R-8).

Referring to her recommendations for improvement to Simon, Renna alleged that it should not have been necessary to state some of those items to a competent principal. (Number 1 was routine, No. 5 appropriate for all principals in Paterson, and No. 9 required of a competent principal and the key to a successful school.)

On redirect examination, Renna noted that although there was no directive from the central office requiring this, the mission statement should be formulated prior to the onset of the school year. Renna believed that she asked each school for a mission statement around December. Simon's, which came out in January, was an inadequate response. She agreed that Shepherd could have found the mission statement satisfactory in March.

Harold Simon was employed by respondent for thirty-seven years. He served as a teacher, a vice-principal and a principal of grades K-8 since 1967. He served in Public School No. 24 for thirteen years. He has a bachelor's degree, and a master's degree in educational administration, and he has completed his coursework for his doctorate. He had never received a less than satisfactory evaluation until the instant increment withholding. Simon clarified that in 1990-91, Renna was not assistant superintendent in charge of Public School No. 24 and had not evaluated him. The school district became State-operated in September of 1991 and he was informed of the principal evaluation plan in late November or December. A meeting was held on November 13, 1991, at which the six criteria for evaluation were reviewed (he received the evaluation procedure), and the process implemented. The principals were not informed of the performance factors. The evaluation process was to begin in January.

Simon first met Veal in or about the spring of 1945 when he was a freshman in high school. Veal was a senior and a star baseball player when Simon, a freshman, made the varsity team. They attended the same college, but did not maintain contact after college. Simon served on the Wayne Township Board of Education for three years beginning around February 1968, when Veal was employed by Wayne as a principal. When Simon was advised that Veal would be his evaluator, he advised Renna that he knew Veal. He told Renna that if Veal did not have a problem with conducting the evaluation, he did not have a problem. He did not discuss a conflict between Veal and himself with Renna, because he had forgotten the possible "conflict." He discussed a conflict on January 21, 1992, with McGee. Although Simon would not testify as to particular objectionable behavior on the part of Veal, he alleged that when he was a Board member, the Board members found certain behavior on Veal's part to be unacceptable. He communicated this to McGee but was not sure if McGee communicated this to Veal.

Simon recalled that when he met with Veal on January 8, 1992, Veal asked him if he was still working and said, "You haven't retired yet?" Simon opined that this was painful; Veal was five years older. They discussed the "old days," and towards the end of the morning discussed the six criteria and the relevant documents (Veal was with Simon from 9:00 to 11:10 and they discussed the six criteria for five to ten minutes.) Simon said he was putting the documents together. He wanted Veal to see "the program" but Veal had to leave.

On January 14, 1992, a full day of shadowing, Veal observed Simon's performance as a principal from 9:00 to 2:40. At approximately 2:20, Simon pulled out a thick folder of documents and Veal pulled out his list. Simon thought that he would open a file, go over the documents with Veal and fit them into the criteria. Simon pulled out the wrong document. Veal advised him to have the documents ready when he returned for his next visit, and Simon said he would. Veal called on January 20, asked if the documents had been prepared and requested that they be ready on January 21. On January 21, Veal arrived at 9:00 a.m. Simon had the documents available and separated. He gave Veal the mission statement (P-4) which had been prepared prior to January 21 (the January 27, 1992 date referred to distribution to the staff). In addition, Simon stated that P-4 through P-10, P-16 through P-23, and documents prepared prior to January 1992 were available to Veal on January 21 (P-5a and P-6 were apparently included later). Simon expected to be advised of the strengths and weaknesses noted during the full-day observation, and he expected that Veal would take the documents. Neither occurred. Veal opened up his folder and handed Simon his evaluation. Simon stated that he was dumbfounded when he saw the evaluation (P-2) and asked Veal if he knew what he was doing to him. He asked him whether he had to "go to the bottom of the evaluation" and not even rate him "fair." Veal said, "Si, I am not trying to hurt you." Simon believed that he would improve and then pass. He signed the document because he knew that he "had to sign." Simon noted that signing it did not mean approval; he did not want to deviate from the rule. Veal told Simon that he did not need the documents that were on the table. Veal did not explain the evaluation. The meeting on January 21 was at most twenty minutes. Simon called the payroll department to check Veal's billing. Veal billed for three visits: January 8, 14, and 21 (thirty minutes), the day after his testimony.

On January 21, Simon spoke to McGee and advised him that Veal was not interested in the documents and had handed him the evaluation. When McGee met with Simon one hour later, Simon pointed to the documents and McGee looked through the folder. McGee shook his head, made notations and left. Simon felt abused. He indicated to McGee that there was a past relationship and a possible conflict. Simon could only think of the one incident twenty years ago which might have affected Veal's objectivity and opined that he "is still not sure." Simon stated that he did not have a conversation with McGee that related to something Veal had said about Jewish board members. Simon wrote a letter to Renna dated January 24 objecting to the evaluation (J-1, Exhibit F).

In February 1992, Simon met with Dr. Williams, Dr. Wilson, and McGee. The superintendent indicated that McGee had said that there could be a conflict between Simon and Veal. He agreed to change Simon's evaluator to Shepherd, but reserved the right to use Veal's evaluation. He asked Simon to sign the evaluation.

On February 28, 1992, Simon met with Shepherd from 9:00 to 11:15 or 11:30 a.m. The performance indicators were available. She advised him that the indicators were critical and that the documents should reflect the indicator. He felt that she was clear.

On March 3, 1992, Shepherd shadowed him from 9:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Simon indicated that he observed Ms. Chmiel for forty-five minutes on that date. He did not meet with Shepherd on March 6. He met with her on May 7 and for one-half day on May 8, June 9 and June 10. The notes (R-6) reflect those dates.

Simon claimed that he had no post-observation conference with Shepherd. He had a conversation with Shepherd after he received the Phase II evaluation. Shepherd noted an improvement over the first evaluation. She indicated, however, that he must change his mindset, and train differently to be rated competent. Simon accepted this. Simon stated that there was no post-observation conference on May 22. The conference was after the evaluation. Simon asked why he did not move up a few points. Shepherd advised him to maintain confidence and provide more documentation, and he would be competent in the future. Simon pointed out that there was no post-observation conference for Phase IV (J-1, Exhibit L) and he did not discuss the evaluation with Shepherd.

Referring to the evaluation of May 22, 1992 (J-1, Exhibit K), Simon opined that the weaknesses noted under staff development were actually strengths. He contended that in 1991-92 there was a staff development program in place. Master Teacher, an outstanding publication, was distributed each week to the classroom teacher. There was at least one faculty meeting per month (which Shepherd did not attend) at which one of the topics in the weekly publication was discussed. He developed a staff development committee in December and took a survey of staff needs. He noted that he had a few morning meetings with the staff development committee and that they planned for a half-day staff development meeting on June 10, 1992.

On June 10, Shepherd saw five committees in place. The staff had been divided into five committees and Charlotte Welling, district staff development specialist, was present. Simon stated that he had called Welling on his own and not at Shepherd's suggestion. Simon did not talk to Shepherd regarding the staff development committee in May or suggest to her that she speak to various members of the staff development committee. She became aware of it on June 10.

Simon used classroom results for staff development needs. Noting that it was not possible to separate staff development from pupil assessment, he indicated that he received an analysis of test results, by grade level. He received this document in May, sent a copy of it to the parents, and at the first staff meeting in September focused on the area of instruction that the test indicated was a weakness. Simon contended that he had programs in place for lower, average and above-average students. In support of his contention that enrichment activities were provided for above-average learners, he pointed to a memo to teachers regarding individualizing instruction (P-11), prepared in response to the evaluation.

In regard to supervision of instruction, Simon indicated that he created a sample classroom visitation/observation report, which Shepherd found "very nice." He completed the observations of tenured and non-tenured staff as required and on time. Referring to Shepherd's allegation that his post-observation conferences were too brief, Simon indicated that it is the quality of the conference that is important. He pointed out what was commendable and what required growth. The following day he spoke to the teacher for thirty minutes. The post-observation conference is only the beginning.

Simon was familiar with the improvement plan outlined by Emilie Renna (R-8) and he contended that he complied with it. Renna told him that she was not certain what Shepherd wanted, but if he followed the plan it would satisfy Shepherd. Renna told him to duplicate the work if necessary, and to use certain forms and binders. Simon alleged that Shepherd told him that she was sick of binders and that he should put the documents into files. Simon was not sure if Renna and Shepherd spoke to each other.

Simon recalled that he was advised on July 8, 1992, that his increment would be withheld. He testified that this was a horrendous experience as a professional. The superintendent threw the final evaluation on the table and told him that he did not want principals like this in the District. Williams gave him the June 30 letter denying his increment. Simon asked if the assistant superintendent agreed and Renna came in. Simon excused himself, believing it was unfair to Renna. The following day he received a registered letter from Williams. There was another meeting, on July 10, 1992, in which he was asked if he wished to resign from the District. He stated that he was not interested. He was told that he was being removed from Public School No. 24 and transferred to the Norman J. Weier school because that school had problems. He was not advised as to why he was being transferred. Simon was at the Norman Weier school for the 1992-93 school year. A different evaluator was assigned to him.

Referring to the evaluation dated April 29, 1992, Simon indicated that the statements under assessment of pupil progress were not correct. He always had meetings with teachers to discuss the progress of individual students, reviewed everything that impacted on a child's progress, reviewed evidence of performance, and noted that each child had an upgraded portfolio.

Simon recalled that on June 24, 1992, the last day of the school year, with one hour left in the day, Dr. Wilson and another administrator were touring the building. Simon indicated that he had been president of the Paterson principals association for six years as of 1991-92. He sat at the table during negotiations in 1991-92. In June of 1992, he indicated that he did not want to be president.

On cross-examination, Simon said that he first saw the results of the school effectiveness questionnaire in the newspaper and did not recall seeing P-14. Mr. McGee informed him in June that the school was rated average. Four schools were below average, six schools above average, and the rest were average. Simon stated he did not agree with any of the weaknesses identified on any of the evaluations. Referring to Exhibit J of J-1 under curriculum program, Simon contended that there was no documentation he could provide as evidence that annual schoolwide goals had been translated to classroom objectives by teachers. Shepherd would be required to talk to teachers and look at plan books to see this. However, she refused to review plan books to see if this was being implemented. He admitted, however, that she reviewed six plan books. Referring to the individualization of curriculum and program (Exhibit J of J-1), Simon indicated that Shepherd did not need documentation; she felt this was not in place. He gave her P-11 to demonstrate that it was. Referring to supervision of instruction, Simon indicated that the conference he held with Chmiel did not last four minutes, and he recalled that she could not stay late on the day of the observation. Simon opined that he could not provide documentation for what he did not understand. He admitted that he had not called Renna regarding the performance criteria for supervision of instruction. Referring to staff development (improvement of performance), Simon alleged that he met with a group of teachers in December 1992 to develop committees. The best thing he could do was the Master Teacher program. Although he admitted that he had not developed goals and objectives for staff development by September 1991, he alleged that he was not required to. He did not agree that this was an area of weakness. Staff development was on every agenda at faculty meetings. He developed committees for an in-depth program of staff development. He and the committee put together a staff development management plan which was completed in March 1992. The committee met with and without him three or four times. He invited Welling after a number of meetings. In March 1992, he distributed a staff development plan. Although there were no written goals until March, from September to December there was a goal, i.e., to improve performance. Nobody advised him that he needed a written goal by September 1991.

Simon alleged that prior to the Phase II evaluation he had no idea that Shepherd was unfair or biased to him. She did not meet with him March 5 and 6, or May 5 and 19. Although Simon agreed that Renna signed the evaluations, he believed that she disagreed with the ratings. Every time he met with her she disagreed with the evaluation. Although she wanted him to please Shepherd, she did not consider Simon weak in instruction or disorganized.

On redirect examination, Simon indicated that Shepherd did not make comments regarding the plan books she reviewed or ask for evidence of low-, middle- or high-level students until the evaluation. He took a survey of faculty interest in staff development topics (P-24). Developed by himself and the committee and dated February, it resulted in staff-selected priority needs (P-25) and meetings to discuss the topics (P-25). On April 7, they selected a group for the committee and invited members who had that priority listed (P-26). Meetings in regard to different topics were also held with those who listed that topic and members of the committee (P-27, P-28 and P-29). Welling sat in on the meeting on April 14 (P-30). Simon believed he showed Greta Shepherd this documentation, as he was proud of this direction. Simon indicated he developed the professional improvement plan (R-7) in October and began observations for the year in January.

On recross-examination, Simon noted that Greta Shepherd did not ask for documentation on students who were not basic skills. There is no documentation for middle-level learners. On questioning by this judge, Simon said he had the impression that he could not please Greta Shepherd. He was not aware that his increment would be withheld, and believed that the evaluation cycle was for twelve months and would end in October.

Greta Shepherd, testifying on rebuttal, indicated that she filled out the chronology for the principal's evaluation process, Phases II, III and IV (R-5a, b, and c) as it occurred and turned it in to Jack McGee. Her evaluation was typed, it was given to Assistant Superintendent Renna, and she then met with the assistant superintendent. She noted that there are a couple of dates in the chronologies for which she does not have notes. She prepared the scheduling of Phases III and IV in May (R-11) and the calendar for March (R-12) and May 5 (R-13). She received R-14 as part of the materials developed as training for assessors. She said that the times listed were suggested, not mandatory. For Phases II, III, and IV, there were no pre-observation conferences. She made certain judgments in Phase I and returned during the next phase to confirm what she had seen and to receive additional information. Each cycle began with a discussion of her findings during the preceding cycle. She discussed the numerical ratings she had given and asked for the requisite materials. Simon provided additional information, and in binders, as suggested by Renna. The format did not matter; the organization of materials was important. She indicated that the additional evaluations could include all or some of the components described in the first evaluation (J-1, Exhibit C).

Referring to Simon's evaluation of Ms. Chmiel, Shepherd contended that Simon's conference with Chmiel was from 2:40 to 2:44 p.m. The time was selected by the principal and the teacher. Chmiel did not state that she had to be someplace else or that the conference had to be continued. She believed the conference concluded at that point and opined that if it had been continued, she would have attended it.

On cross-examination, Shepherd referred to her notes. She agreed that March 3, 1991, was not a correct date, that her notes did not indicate a post-observation conference on March 6 (she has no notes of that day), and that she had no notes for May 19. Shepherd opined, however, that she observed Simon on May 19, and that shadowing and the post-observation conference (which need not be a separate visit) was on March 6. Noting that the post-observation conference was an opportunity to collect data, she testified that if she collected material during the post-observation conference, it would not be reflected. Explaining that her notes reflect her judgment as to what she feels is important to remember, she noted that she did not memorialize the post-observation conference. The conference was an opportunity for the assessor to get materials in order to come to a conclusion. It was not to advise the principal about the cycle; the assessor spoke to the principal after the cycle. Referring to J-1, Exhibit C (page 3), Shepherd maintained that the post-observation conference was not an opportunity to share with the principal. It was an opportunity for her to ask questions or get additional information. It did not require that she reveal the rating. Referring to R-11, Shepherd admitted that it indicated next to Number 19, "Simon one half a.m. post conference." Her notes, which were not handed in, indicated a conference. However, the Phase III chronology (R-5b), which she handed in, omitted any notation of a post-observation conference. She asserted that her notes are accurate.

Finally, Shepherd contended that she never told Simon that she did not like the binders and that he should put the information in something else.

DISCUSSION

First to be addressed is whether petitioner's increment was withheld for good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 authorizes a local board of education (here the State school superintendent) to withhold the salary increment of a teaching staff member for "inefficiency or other good cause." The case law, as summarized by the Supreme Court, stresses the overwhelming importance of this discretionary power as an educationally based, non-negotiable management prerogative. Probst v. Haddonfield Borough Bd. of Ed., 127 N.J. 518 (1992).

Although increment withholdings are appealable to the Commissioner, clearly, the standard of review is a limited one. The local board's decision is a discretionary one that may not be upset unless found to be arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). As stated in Kopera:

> . . . the Commissioner could not properly redetermine for himself whether petitioner had in fact been unsatisfactory as a teacher; that issue would be irrelevant as a matter of law. The only question open for review by the Commissioner would be whether the Board had a reasonable basis for its factual conclusion.

The law is clear that the burden of proof is on petitioner.

On August 7, 1991, the New Jersey State Board of Education abolished the Paterson Board of Education and created the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson. The State Board determined that the Paterson Board had failed to assure a thorough and efficient system of education and appointed Dr. Leval S. Wilson as the new State district superintendent. There is no dispute that for purposes of the increment withholding statute, the State district superintendent effectively replaces the local board of education. There is no dispute that the law mandated the reorganization of administrative staff by Dr. Wilson within six months of the takeover, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44, and, of import here, comprehensive evaluations of all sitting principals during the six-month period following the central administrative reorganization, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45.

Petitioner asserts that his increment was improperly withheld. More particularly, petitioner contends that neither Dr. Veal nor Ms. Shepherd followed the process devised by Dr. Krewer. Dr. Veal did not share his evaluation with the cluster assistant superintendent as was required. Moreover, he never informed anyone associated with respondent that he had known petitioner for about fifty-five years and that a conflict had once existed between the two of them. Ms. Shepherd did not hold post-observation conferences with petitioner as was required by the principal evaluation cycle. Moreover, neither one of them applied the performance indicators in their evaluations as required. Both relied on their "best judgment" in reaching their conclusions and their ratings. Both Dr. Veal and Ms. Shepherd stayed within a limited range of the rating scale, even though the document entitled "Rating Scale" cautioned against this tendency (P-1). Both allowed their rating in one area to affect their rating in another area, as is evident by the similarity in the ratings given for each of the criteria. Petitioner further asserts that neither Dr. Veal nor Ms. Shepherd could explain or provide documentation to substantiate how they arrived at their respective ratings of petitioner in all six criteria.

Respondent does not agree. Respondent contends that the District had good cause to withhold Simon's increment. The uniform assessment of every evaluator was that petitioner was weak in many areas that the Commissioner and State Board identified as critical to successful performance as a building principal. N.J.A.C. 6:7-2.2.

I have considered the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, as well as the arguments of counsel, and must agree with the position espoused by respondent. As pointed out by respondent, there were a number of key areas in which the evaluators determined that petitioner was weak. As noted by respondent, one of the keys to a successful school is that the administrator have goals and objectives for the school year. There is a need to involve the faculty in the development and implementation of those goals, and to translate schoolwide goals into classroom objectives that directly impact on instruction. As pointed out by respondent, the only evidence petitioner could present to the evaluators of such an effort was a two-sentence mission statement (R-4). The evaluators opined that this document was too general to have any real impact on classroom instruction. Further, the document was apparently distributed to the staff halfway through the school year. That being so, respondent correctly asserts that the record supports Shepherd's conclusion that "there is no evidence that annual school wide goals had been translated to classroom objectives by teachers" (J-1, Exhibit J, p. 3).

There was much testimony adduced in regard to whether petitioner had an adequate staff development program. As pointed out by respondent, the evidence adduced demonstrates that petitioner was weak in this area. The evidence demonstrates that by April 1992, petitioner had only managed to complete a staff survey of topics for staff development. The in-depth, in-service activities had not yet begun. Clearly, staff development was undertaken late in the year with no real benefit to the staff during the school year. As noted by Renna, who concurred with Shepherd's conclusion in this regard, it was very late in the year before petitioner even attempted to utilize the services of Charlotte Welling, the District's expert in staff development. Renna pointed out that Welling was already on her second round of staff development in many of the other schools.

Although petitioner claimed that his distribution of a weekly pamphlet called Master Teacher and his scheduling of monthly faculty meetings to discuss same amounted to a staff development program, this was not Shepherd's view of a proper staff development program. As Shepherd indicated, use of Master Teacher was not in and of itself a staff development program. She found that there was no systemwide, written-down, identifiable staff development program for Public School No. 24. Moreover, apparently the monthly faculty meetings are mandated by the District's collective bargaining contract.

There was considerable testimony adduced in regard to respondent's contention that petitioner's performance with respect to the observation and evaluation of teachers was weak. In fact, there was much testimony as to how long the various observations and post-observation conferences lasted. The evaluators testified as to their recollections. Simon testified as to his recollections and certain teachers testified as to their recollections. Whether the times listed in Shepherd's notes are completely accurate or not, it is clear that Shepherd observed petitioner during his observation of Robin Chmiel, as well as other teachers, and concluded that petitioner had not taken notes of his observations of the teachers, had interrupted the teacher's work with students, and had held post-observation conferences that were too brief. Shepherd, as the evaluator, opined based on her observation of petitioner that his classroom observations were not related to "individual teacher performance" and provided only "general, rather than specific feedback to improve instruction" (J-1, Exhibit J, p. 4, Exhibit K, p. 3).

As pointed out by respondent, Veal also rated petitioner as poor in the area of supervision of instruction. Veal found that petitioner demonstrated little as far as the quality of his observations and submitted no documentation that he had satisfied any of the indicators of quality listed in the District's document explaining the criteria for evaluation of principals (J-1, Exhibit H, p. 3).

In addition, and as pointed out by respondent, documentation was critical to the evaluation process. The burden was on petitioner to submit documentation that he was carrying out his responsibilities in the six criteria areas of curriculum, supervision, staff development, assessment, community relations and school climate. And, as pointed out by respondent, although petitioner claimed that Veal was biased against him and/or was unclear in what he wanted of Simon, he believed that Greta Shepherd was clear and that he understood from her what he should provide. However, apparently, even after the fourth evaluation, petitioner still could not provide the evaluator with proper documentation that he was carrying out his responsibilities in the three areas still rated as fair: curriculum and program, supervision of instruction, and staff development.

Testimony was further adduced as to weakness by petitioner in the area of lesson plans and meeting the needs of all levels of students. Petitioner seems to believe that there really was no possibility to present the requisite information to substantiate that the needs of all levels of students were being met. Petitioner opined that P-11 in evidence, in addition to teacher plan books, was all that was required to demonstrate that the needs of all levels of students were being met. Although petitioner apparently asserted that Shepherd would not review the plan books, he admitted that Shepherd took certain plan books, reviewed them, and then returned them. Clearly, Shepherd reviewed lesson plan books kept by teachers, and in her opinion, found no evidence that instruction was individualized for high-, middle- and low-level students.

Further, Shepherd did not believe that P-11 supported petitioner's position that instruction was so individualized. In fact, P-11 consisted of teacher responses to a memo sent out by petitioner on May 27, 1992, asking them to provide information as to how they had individualized instruction that year. According to Shepherd, it did not constitute proper educational planning, but rather was an attempt to reconstruct something after the fact. Shepherd also criticized the adequacy of this late documentation. The documents dealt only with the needs of above-average students and only listed general activities performed by the teacher. There was no indication in the documents as to how this differed from the regular curriculum; it was not specific enough.

Clearly, Shepherd considered what had been provided to her by Simon and concluded that he had not provided the requisite information to demonstrate that the needs of all levels of students were being met. Whether the needs of all students were in fact being met is not the issue. Rather, what is germane is that in Shepherd's opinion and as supported by the evidence, there was no adequate demonstration that instruction was individualized for high-, middle- and low-level students.

Petitioner would have this tribunal find that not only was Veal unfair and biased against him, but that in fact Greta Shepherd also formulated an unjust opinion of him and unfairly evaluated him. Petitioner believes that Emilie Renna, whom he called to testify, did not agree with the evaluations that were submitted to her. He suggests in some loose manner that Renna signed these evaluations despite the fact that she did not agree with their conclusions. This is contrary to Renna's testimony. Clearly, Renna, who had known and worked with petitioner, did not want petitioner to receive a poor evaluation and tried to help him. It is further true, as pointed out by respondent, that her role in the evaluation process was to observe the principal, conduct pre- and post-observation conferences with the principal, and meet with the outside assessor to review his/her evaluations of the principal to be sure that they were accurate. She testified that she challenged the conclusions of all of the evaluators, but if they produced documentation that she could not refute, she would agree with and sign off on the evaluation. According to Renna, with respect to petitioner Shepherd had clear documentation of everything that she did and Renna could not refute it. It was apparently Renna's belief, and she so testified, that these evaluations had been professionally carried out by the outside evaluators, that they were well documented and that the evaluators had been objective in their assessments. In fact, she agreed with the conclusions contained in the evaluations and felt that they were borne out by her own observations.

Of particular import to the instant controversy, and which must be stressed here, is the fact that it is not for me to determine whether petitioner was actually unsatisfactory as a principal during the 1992-93 school year and his increment therefore withheld. It is not for me to substitute my judgment for that of the State school superintendent. Instead, my determination must simply be whether the State school superintendent had a reasonable basis for his factual conclusion. The local board's decision (here, the State school superintendent's) may not be upset unless found to be arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives. The evidence, which I have considered, does not support petitioner's view that the conclusion reached by the District that his performance as a principal during the 1991-92 school year had significant weaknesses in key areas was without rational basis or induced by improper motives. The "fair" rating, supported as it is by the evaluations and the record, indicates less than minimum acceptable performance. As noted by respondent, that necessarily constitutes "good cause" under the statute. In sum, petitioner has not met his burden of establishing that the District's action was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

I am compelled at this juncture to address petitioner's argument that the process was procedurally defective and thus must be overturned. More particularly, petitioner contends that the process was defective because Veal shared his evaluation with petitioner before reviewing it with Renna. There is no doubt that this occurred and was improper. However, I must agree with respondent that this was a minor deviation from the procedures outlined by the District. In fact, in the general scheme of the evaluation process, it was insignificant because Renna later reviewed Veal's Phase I evaluation of petitioner and concurred with it fully.

In addition, petitioner asserts that Veal improperly evaluated him in light of the fact that Veal had known him for fifty-five years, and he asserts that based on their interaction when Veal was a principal in the Wayne School District and petitioner was a board member, Veal was biased against him. I have considered this argument and cannot agree with petitioner's assertion. It is clear that Dr. Veal was originally assigned to evaluate petitioner based on a random assignment. Apparently, at some point prior to the evaluation, petitioner told Renna that he knew Veal. He indicated that if Veal had no problem evaluating him, he had no problem with it. In fact, petitioner voiced no objection to Dr. Veal evaluating him to Veal or to any of the administrators. It was only after receiving his first evaluation from Dr. Veal on January 21, 1992, that petitioner called McGee and demanded that a different evaluator be assigned and that Dr. Veal's evaluation be removed from his file. Apparently, there was a meeting and the District agreed that a different evaluator would be assigned. In fact, Greta Shepherd was assigned to conduct the remaining evaluations. With respect to Veal's evaluation, McGee indicated, as did Dr. Williams, that the District reserved the right to utilize that evaluation in the manner it deemed appropriate. Clearly, the District moved quickly in an effort to make sure that the process was fair and equitable. Thus, petitioner was evaluated by Greta Shepherd for Phases II, III, and IV. Perhaps petitioner's argument would be more compelling if Shepherd had evaluated him competent in all areas and the District withheld his increment based on Veal's evaluation of him. In fact, this was not the case. In actuality, Shepherd's evaluation did not find petitioner competent in all areas and clearly served as the basis for the superintendent's action in withholding petitioner's increment. That being so, the fact of Veal's evaluation is of no great moment in this matter.

Petitioner next points out that the alleged failure of Shepherd to hold a post-observation conference with petitioner after each phase was in violation of district procedures and fatal to the entire evaluation process. As pointed out by respondent, the key document is Exhibit C, a memorandum to all principals dated January 8, 1992, attached to J-1. That memorandum sets forth a process for assessing the criteria and describes three components to that process in Phase I: a pre-observation conference, a shadow and a post-observation conference. The next paragraph then states that three more shadowings are to occur for each principal in Phases II, III and IV. The final paragraph states that a total of four summary evaluations must be made. As pointed out by respondent, that paragraph states that "the additional evaluations may include all or some of the components described above for the first evaluation." Respondent asserts that even if Shepherd did not hold a post-observation conference each time, there was no violation of district procedure. I must agree with respondent's position. Not only does respondent's analysis of the requisites of the process seem accurate, but more to the point, petitioner had ample input and feedback throughout the entire period from Veal, Shepherd and Renna. He met with Renna to go over his improvement plan at the end of each phase (R-8).

Petitioner also asserts that the ratings were flawed because the evaluators did not utilize the performance indicators in their evaluations, relied on their "best judgment" in reaching their conclusions and ratings, and improperly stayed within a limited range of the rating scale. I cannot agree with petitioner's argument. While it is true that Shepherd relied on her "best judgment" in reaching her conclusions, it is also true that her best judgment was arrived at by utilizing objective observation and review of documentation. Moreover, while it is true that the evaluation training materials cautioned against letting general impressions dictate identical ratings on all attributes, the materials do not preclude an evaluator from finding a principal to be ranked exactly the same in all six areas. Further, and as pointed out by respondent, petitioner's ratings over a six-month period ranged from unsatisfactory to competent. The testimony adduced at the hearing indicates that the evaluators looked to objective documentation and observations to support their findings. I therefore CONCLUDE that the evaluations of petitioner were procedurally sound. There were no significant deviations from policy such that the process was unfair or arbitrary. Petitioner was objectively and fairly evaluated.

Based upon the above discussion, I CONCLUDE that respondent's determination to withhold petitioner's 1992-93 salary and adjustment increments was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, either procedurally or substantively. Petitioner did not satisfy his burden of demonstrating that respondent's action in withholding his increment for unsatisfactory performance was without good cause.

ORDER

Based upon the above conclusions, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition should be DISMISSED and his appeal DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9074-92

HAROLD SIMON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
		COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:
		DECISION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and 1:1-18.8, and a reply was duly filed by the State-Operated District ("District").

In his exceptions, petitioner essentially renews his arguments before the ALJ, again contending that evaluators Veal and Shepherd either did not understand, or chose not to follow, the District's established evaluation process, thereby tainting the basis on which the State Superintendent elected to withhold petitioner's increment.

This contention, petitioner reiterates, is evidenced by the evaluators' inability to justify their ratings, their ignoring of specific evaluation indicators in favor of generalized judgments, their disregard for cautionary directives about having all ratings in a similar range and letting judgments about one performance area impact on judgments about others, their laxity in following the procedural rules of the evaluation cycle, and their failure to apprise petitioner of the criteria by which they were evaluating him; moreover, a 55-year relationship and one-time personal conflict inappropriately colored Veal's judgment. Petitioner also renews his objection to the District's failure to take into account a School Effectiveness Questionnaire which found the instructional supervision in his school to have been adequate, and to place proper weight on the differing opinions of evaluator Shepherd and "cluster" assistant superintendent Renna.

In reply, the District urges the Commissioner to accept the ALJ's findings and conclusions regarding petitioner's allegations and her discussion of the burden of proof and standard of review to be applied in this matter.

Upon careful review of the record and the parties' filings on exception, the Commissioner holds the ALJ, at pp. 32 - 40 above, to have fully and fairly addressed the issues raised by petitioner.* The Commissioner further holds the ALJ's findings and conclusions regarding those issues to be fully supported by the weight of both testimony (transcripts of which are included in the record) and documentary evidence. The Commissioner

*While the discussion cited here does not specifically mention petitioner's contention regarding the Effective Schools Questionnaires, the Commissioner's review of this issue is consonant with the general findings of the ALJ. As accurately summarized in the initial decision, the testimony of Assistant Superintendent Williams clearly indicates that these questionnaires were neither designed nor used to evaluate individual staff performance, notwithstanding references to building principals within them. Moreover, while the documents themselves (Exhibits P-13 and P-15) do in fact show differences of opinion between Shepherd and Renna as to the overall quality of instructional leadership at petitioner's school, Shepherd's questionnaire (P-15) is consistent with her individual evaluation of petitioner as ultimately accepted by Renna.

determines, therefore, for the reasons stated by the ALJ, that the District's withholding of petitioner's increment cannot be found to have been arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, either procedurally or substantively, nor was it induced by improper motives or tainted by animus on the part of any evaluator. This being so, the action of the District must be sustained. Kopera, supra.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DATE OF MAILING - JUNE 29, 1994

Exhibit J-2 is a copy of the Board's minutes from the June 22, 1993 meeting. The minutes indicate that the board approved the following action: "to authorize participation in a pilot project using the curriculum materials Learning About Family Life to support the district instructional program in meeting the state requirement for family life education in Grades K-3." Although respondent concedes that the resolution could have been worded better in hindsight, it is clear from the testimony of the witnesses that the intent of the Board was not to approve the classroom use of the materials before the appropriate review and consultation procedures had been observed. The specific regulatory requirements were not discussed at the meeting, because as Dr. Bandlow testified, it was simply understood by all involved that the regulatory requirements would have to be followed.

I find insufficient evidence in the record to suggest that the Board bought in "wholesale" to the curriculum materials "Learning About Family Life" provided to it by the Network when it passed its resolution on June 22. Indeed, the uncontradicted testimony is that the Board's action permitted some ten month employees, health educators, to begin a review and revision of the materials during the summer months before the school year began in September. Without the Board's authorization in June 1993, these employees could not have been employed for this purpose during August.

As testified to by Ms. Bartolini, the only review procedure that took place before the beginning of the 1993-1994 school year was a meeting in August of faculty and staff who would be presenting the material in the classroom if it were ultimately approved by the Board. At that meeting the participants suggested revisions to the curriculum, they rejected, wholesale, certain portions of the curriculum from any consideration, and they drafted a letter to parents inviting their participation on an advisory committee to review the materials. The committee was to meet once school began in September. The curriculum was not introduced into the classroom before the Board's October 26, 1993 vote to approve the curriculum.

The testimony of both petitioner, Michael Bronzino, and Board witnesses clearly indicated that, for the most part, the curriculum materials were reviewed "line by line" and were changed, deleted or approved as the case called for. This review was comprehensive and provides strong support for inferring from this record that no adoption of the curriculum materials occurred before the presentation of the thoroughly discussed and revised materials to the Board at its October 1993 meeting and the Board's vote of approval at that time. Nor were they implemented before the Board's October action. Indeed, it was still possible before the October 26th Board vote for the materials, even in their revised and restricted version, to be rejected entirely. That did not occur, but the possibility of complete rejection up to that point is a factor in the resolution of this dispute. It is noteworthy that at the October meeting the Board had several courses of action presented to it, and only one was successfully approved by the Board vote.

Petitioners' next point to the August 16, 1993 letter from Susan Saravalli(Exhibit J-7), of the Network congratulating the District for participating in the Network's pilot project on the "Learning About Family Life" curriculum materials, as evidence that the Board had approved the use of the materials at its June 22, 1993 meeting. Petitioners' emphasize the language employed in this letter and contend that it supports their literal reading of the Board's June 22 resolution.

The petitioners' assertion on this point is not persuasive. The Network Executive Director is not an employee or agent of the Board. She has no capacity to bind the Board by her choice of words. She is not their agent legally, nor does she have any apparent authority to bind the Board notwithstanding that no Board representative ever responded to her letter. Ms. Bartolini, who was in closest touch with the Network, testified that she ascribed no significance to this letter and saw no need to respond to it. Buttressing this analysis of the letter's significance is the testimony of Dr. Katims, who stated that he personally spoke with a representative of the Network before the June 22 Board meeting to satisfy himself as to the district's responsibilities and relationship with the Network, making sure that there was no capacity for misinterpretation by the Network that decision making on the use, or not, of all or a portion of the curriculum materials rested exclusively with the Board. M. Dean Kaufman, Inc. v. American Machinery & Foundry Co., 102 N.J. Super 1, 11-

12 (App. Div. 1968). (holding absence of an agency relationship where principal specifically refused to enter into such a relationship with alleged agent). This testimony was particularly persuasive to the undersigned, and supports the inferences I have chosen to ascribe to the testimony and documentary evidence in the record as described in this opinion.

Finally, in their reply to respondent's closing argument, petitioners argue that the parol evidence rule prevents the Board from supplementing or contradicting the minutes of its meetings. Campbell v. Hackensack, 115 N.J.L. 209, 211-212 (E. & A. 1935). Campbell involved a claim to establish, by parol evidence, the terms of an employment contract between a city council and an employee. The employee claimed that the city council had passed a resolution establishing the manner in which he was to be compensated for his services. The minutes of the city council meetings were, however, silent as to any employment matters between the employee and the city council. The court stated that "the established general rule is that these records[municipal minutes], or duly authenticated copies thereof, are the only competent evidence of the official actions of the council and they cannot, as a rule, be enlarged or restricted by parol testimony." Id. at 215 (citations omitted).

Campbell, however, is clearly distinguishable from the matter at hand. The matter in issue in this case merely involves interpreting the ambiguous language of a resolution concerning Board and district activity in light of subsequent actions of the Board and district personnel. This matter does not involve interpreting, or even establishing the existence of a contract. Furthermore, the rule in Campbell has not been applied to restrict a court from looking "to evidence establishing fraud, bad faith or the abuse of discretion by municipal governing bodies resulting in the injury or oppression of the citizen." Anschelewitz v. Belmar, 137 N.J.L. 617, 622 (1948) (citation omitted). The evidence beyond the literal language of the resolution in this proceeding was introduced specifically to consider allegations of bad faith and abuse of discretion by the local board. The holding in Campbell does not stand as a bar to this inquiry beyond the literal language of the minutes.

Based on the foregoing, I hereby FIND that respondent did not violate the consultation and participation requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. Moreover, I find that the respondent did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in the process by which it undertook to review and ultimately incorporate a portion of the Learning About Family Life materials into its Family Life Curriculum for Grades K-3. I find no basis in the regulation to conclude that the Board was required to confer a "veto like" authority on the consultants or to permit the consultants to be the initiators of locating the curriculum materials to be considered and reviewed for inclusion. See Smith v. Ricci, 89 N.J. 514, 524 (1982). In interpreting the regulation's requirement for "consultation" in this manner, I am mindful of the restrictive approach I am applying. However, the setting of policy and curriculum in our public schools is squarely placed on the local elected boards of education. See Jenkins v. Twp. of Morris School District & Bd. of Ed., 58 N.J. 483, 492 (1971). Although the family life program spells out, more than other programs, how a board of education is to attempt to be in tune with the sentiment of the community, the regulation does not alter the basic governance structure of our schools. Communities which are dissatisfied with the policy choices of the elected board members have a ready avenue of relief in the annual school elections. As the Commissioner of Education has stated:

> [I]t is axiomatic that the members of the local boards of education are responsible for the wisdom of their actions to the people who elect them and not to the Commissioner of Education. As the Commissioner recited the law as a frame of reference in Cecelia Barnes et al. v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 1961-62 S.L.D. 122, 125, aff'd State Board of Education, 1963 S.L.D. 240:
> [a]s long as . . . a board of education . . . acts within the authority conferred on . . . it by law courts are without power to, or will not, interfere with, control, or review . . . its action and decision in matters involving the exercise of discretion, in the absence of clear abuse thereof or error; nor is the wisdom or expediency of an act, or the motive with which it was done, open to judicial inquiry or consideration, where power to do it existed. 78 C.J.S. 920.
> In absence of clear abuse of the discretionary power of the Board, the Commissioner will not interfere. It was held in Boult v. Board of Education of Passaic, 136 N.J.L. 521 (E. & A. 1948), concerning the authority of the Commissioner and State Board of Education under R.S. 18:3-14 and 15:

> Neither of the quoted statutory provisions was intended to vest in the appellate officer or body the authority to exercise originally the discretionary power vested in the local board.
> The wisdom and effectiveness of a board of education's administrative decisions is a matter for the constituent citizenry to determine.
> [McMillan v. Board of Education of South Orange-Maplewood School District, 1977 S.L.D. 137, 139-40].

In this matter, I FIND that the Board did consult with required representatives suggested in the regulation before proceeding with implementation of its new K-3 Family Life Curriculum. I FIND the consultation which did occur met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:29-4.2. After thoroughly considering all of petitioners' proofs and the presentation by the Board's witnesses, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis to overturn the Board's action. Petitioners' action is dismissed.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exception with the COMMISSIONER, Department of Education, 225 East State St., CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners filed exceptions on June 6, 1994, in response to an initial decision mailed on May 25, 1994. By letter dated June 15, 1994, and faxed to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on that date, counsel for the Board advised that he had not been served with a copy of such exceptions and only learned of their existence on June 14, 1994 from a newspaper article. The Commissioner finds and determines that since petitioners' exceptions were not filed in accordance with the dictates of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), which specifically requires that a copy of exceptions be served on all other parties and the judge, such exceptions will not be herein considered. Further, the petitioners cannot rely on their pro se status to claim ignorance of the requirement that other parties are to be served when the initial decision contains an explicit directive to that effect on page 15.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons clearly articulated by her in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's grading policy of utilizing letters instead of numerical averages. Petitioner also sought alteration of his daughter's final exam grade in keyboarding.

ALJ dismissed petition finding that the grading practice at issue did not violate any law, rule or regulation, nor was it arbitrary or unreasonable. Therefore, there was no basis for the Commissioner to alter the Board's decision.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

After several unsuccessful meetings with school administration, the petitioner on behalf of his daughter, requested that this matter be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was conducted at the Atlantic City OAL, 1201 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, New Jersey on May 16, 1994, after which the record was closed. A decision was rendered on May 25, 1994.

ISSUE

WHETHER RESPONDENT'S GRADING PRACTICE OF USING LETTER GRADES DEPRIVES STUDENTS OF KNOWING THEIR TRUE GRADE POINT AVERAGE.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioner brings this action on behalf of his daughter and all other students of Williamstown High School (hereinafter referred to as the School).

Petitioner claims that the School's grading practice of using letters deprives students of knowing their true grade point average. As such, petitioner argues that students are deprived of relevant knowledge upon which a determination can be made as to which subjects need additional emphasis or study.

Petitioner also claims that the School's policy of not requiring seniors to take final exams when the student has achieved a straight A average for the four prior grading periods, should be extended to the freshman through junior years.

The School counters that its grading practice is fair and has been based upon a system which has been utilized for at least the last 30 years. Under this current system, the School contends that a student at any time has access to his or her grade point average, and that the relief requested by the petitioner should be dismissed.

Petitioner's attack on respondent's grading practice began at the close of the 1993 school year when his daughter received a final grade of B in keyboarding. The School has five marking periods. Petitioner's daughter had received four A's during the School has five marking periods. Petitioner's daughter had received four A's during the year and a C on the final exam which reduced her overall grade point average to B. The identical set of facts occurred for a second course, English, except here, she received an A for her final course grade.

Petitioner argues that this set of facts illustrates the unfairness in the School's grading policy. He states that he cannot understand how his daughter could receive two different letter grades in the fifth semester when the four previous marking periods had the same letter grades. He also argues that when a student receives a letter grade on a report card, the student does not know the true grade point average. Without this knowledge, petitioner feels that during exam time, the student is deprived of valuable information upon which a decision can be made whether to study harder for one subject or another.

Mr. James Greezek is the current Principal at the School. He has been involved in teaching, counseling and administration at the School for the last 30 years. During this time, he testified that the School grading practice has been the same.

Mr. Greezek explained that the School has five marking periods. A student receives a report card containing letter grades. These letters, A, B, C., etc., correspond to a numerical grade. This information is set forth on the report card as follow:

93 - 100 = A - Superior
85 - 92 = B - Above Average
77 - 84 = C - Average
70 - 76 = D - Below Average
Below 69 = F - Failure

Depending on the course selected, and the curriculum taught by the teacher, a marking period grade may depend upon various factors such as homework, class participation, special projects completed and test scores. Mr. Greezek testified that the teachers are required to keep the students grade point average in a book which is turned into the principal's office at the conclusion of the school year.

At the conclusion of each marking period, the teacher equates the grade point average to a letter grade which appears on the report card. At the conclusion of the school year, the grade points for each of the five marking periods are added together and divided by five in order to ascertain the overall grade point average. This in turn is converted into a letter grade when is then placed on the report card.

Mr. Greezek testified that if a student receives an A on his or her report card and wants to know exactly what his or her grade point is at that time, the student may request this information from the teacher. Mr. Greezek found that when he taught college preparatory courses, many students regularly kept track of their grade point average rather than relying upon the letter grade which appeared in the report card. He opined that the discrepancy which petitioner feels occurred in the keyboarding and English course could be explained as follows: If petitioner's daughter received four A's in keyboarding which were at the lower end of the A scale and then received a C on the final exam which also equated to the lower end of the C scale, the average of the five grades could produce a B. Conversely, in the English course if the A's were high grades, a C in the final exam would not necessarily convert the four previous grades to a B.

Petitioner wanted to challenge the results of the C received in the final exam of the keyboarding course, however, the teacher had already disposed of the exam papers. In response to this problem, Mr. Greezek has since sent a memo to his staff recommending that exam papers should be retained for a 30 day period.

Finally, petitioner argues that the policy not requiring seniors to participate in final exams when the four previous marking periods have produced grades of A, should be extended to the freshman, sophomore and junior classes. Petitioner claims that to a student who has received all A's during the previous four grading periods, a final exam grade can only serve to damage rather than help the student.

Mr. Greezek testified that there is no written policy advising the teachers how to compute grades, however, the grading practice in effect at the school has been utilized for the last 30 years. The staff, 90 percent of which is now tenured, has been using the practice of assigning 20 percent of the grade for five marking periods and thereafter averaging the five grades and assigning a corresponding letter grade. Mr. Greezek testified that the students are advised by each individual teacher of the grading practice including that individual teacher's apportionment of the grade between class participation, homework assignments, special projects and exam scores. In the 30 years that he has been associated with the school, Mr. Greezek has not encountered a challenge to the grading practice as argued by the petitioner.

Based upon the FACTS set forth herein, I herein DISMISS the within petition.

Petitioner argues that the grading practice is arbitrary and capricious. I FIND that the grading practice is understandable and extremely workable in its simplicity. A final grade is obtained by taking the average of five marking periods. Thereafter, that grade point average is equated to a letter designation.

A student receiving an A can assume that the grade fell somewhere between 93 and 100. It is true that the report card does not, with specificity, advise the student of his or her exact grade point average, however, the student may discover this information simply by making a request of the teacher.

It can be argued that for the sake of clarity, the report card should have the actual grade point average in addition to a letter grade, however, there is no administrative regulation or statute requiring that this information be disclosed. Nor is it the prerogative of this tribunal to dictate policy to the school board where the grading practice does not constitute a violation of any law, rule or regulation.

The decision on the part of the school board to eliminate final exams for seniors is a policy decision which can only be extended to the other grades with the consent of the board. This is an area which unless applied in a discriminatory or unlawful fashion, is a prerogative left to the discretion of the school board.

At this point, it is impossible to review the results of petitioner's daughter's final exam grade of a C in keyboarding because the exam no longer exists. There is no rule or regulation requiring teachers to maintain exam papers for any period of time. Since this incident, however, the school is now recommending that teachers maintain final exams for a period of 30 days.

Without the existence of the exam, it is impossible for this tribunal to determine whether a change of grade is in order.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, petitioner's petition is herein DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the grading practice at issue in this matter is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, so that there is no basis on which the Commissioner would have grounds to grant petitioner the relief sought.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

The initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law on motions for stay and for summary judgment have been reviewed. Exceptions and replys thereto have been filed. The exceptions reargue the matters addressed in the initial decision.

The Commissioner concurs that petitioner has failed to meet the standards for stay set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and has failed to meet the standards for summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company, 25 N.J. 17 (1957).

The initial decision specifically determined that the Board declared an emergency which was supported by the local fire department pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-7, and requested and obtained authorization from the Essex County Superintendent of Schools to solicit invited bids from a minimum of four vendors. Moreover, the initial decision found that there was an emergency affecting health and safety as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-7.

The initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law denying the motions for stay and for summary judgment is affirmed, and the matter should proceed for hearing on the merits.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

Lott Constructors, Inc., the petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education on June 27, 1994 requesting that a requirement contained in the bid specification (bid spec) issued by the respondent, Monroe Township Board of Education be declared to be null and void. The bid spec in issue requires the bidders for the contract to agree to a project agreement, an agreement which require the use of union workers in the construction of the new high school. The petitioner, who is a merit shop contractor, employees non-union workers and alleges that it is being precluded from submitting a bid. The petitioner argued that the project agreement requirement is inappropriate and is a violation of the public school contract law and should be declared null and void. In addition, the petitioner request a temporary injunction to prevent the bids for said contract from being received and opened pending a final decision in this matter.

The respondent filed an answer on June 30, 1994 in which it denied any violation of the public school contract law and also alleged that the petitioner is not entitled to any emergent relief.

The matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law on June 30, 1994 and the parties were notified that I would be hearing oral arguments as to the motion for emergent relief on July 1, 1994.

On June 30, 1994, I received a request from Albert G. Kroll, Esq., on behalf of United Building and Construction Trades Council of Camden City and Vicinity, AFL-CIO, that the Council be permitted to participate in this matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6. The parties did not oppose this request and I ordered that the Council be allowed to participate in the matter and the Council has the right to present oral arguments, file statements or briefs and file exceptions to the initial decision with the Commissioner of Education.

Prior to filing this matter with the Commissioner of Education, the petitioner initiated a case in the Superior Court, Dkt. No. L-1288-94. On June 29, 1994, Judge Samuel G. DiSimone issued an order denying the request for temporary relief and ordering the petitioner to pursue its administrative remedies before the Commissioner of Education. The parties represented to me that Judge DiSimone's decision was limited to a determination that there was no exhaustion of administrative remedies and that he did not rule on the merits of whether the petitioner is entitled to emergency relief.

As a matter of law, it has been established that emergent relief is an extraordinary equitable remedy and that the burden of proof is on the petitioner to show (1) that there is a threat of immediate and irreparable harm, (2) that there is a probability that the petitioner can eventually succeed on the merits, and (3) that the inconvenience or lost to the Board will be minimum. See, Crowe v. Degiolia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J. Bar Assocation v. North New Jersey Mortgage Assocation, 22 N.J. 184 (1956).

I also recognize that case law in this State has clearly established that local boards of education are vested with the responsibility for the management of public schools and that the actions of the boards are entitled to a presumption of correctness. See, Stratton v. Berkeley Heights Board of Education, 1966 S.L.D. 73, Thomas v. Board of Education of Morris County, 89 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1965). Further, it has been established that the Commissioner may not substitute his discretion for that of the local board and that the local board's decision should not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See, Boult v. Board of Education of Passaic, 136 N.J.L. 521 (E&A 1974), also the Thomas case.

In this matter, I find that the pertinent facts are not in dispute and the facts pertinent to the motion are as follows:

1. On January 12, 1993, the voters of the Monroe Township School District approved a referendum for $31 million to construct a new high school.

2. Monroe Township is concerned that said project be completed in a timely manner to meet the educational needs of the school district and to avoid any delay which might result in an increase in the cost of the project.

3. The respondent published a notice of intent to receive bids for the contract to build the high school on May 17, 1994.

4. The bid spec required the successful bidder, and all subcontrators, to agree to a project agreement with the applicable county AFL-CIO Building Trades Council.

5. The petitioner has successfully completed public school projects in New Jersey which did not require such a project agreement.

6. The bids are scheduled to be opened on July 6, 1994.

In support of its motion for emergency relief, the petitioner argued that there is a good probability that it will eventually succeed on the merits. The petitioner argued that the requirement for a project agreement is in violation of the public school contract law which mandates that the bid spec be drafted in a manner to encourage free, open and competitive bidding, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, since this requirement will discourage a number of contractors from submitting a bid.

Also, the petitioner argued that this requirement will violate the public school contract law because it imposes a restriction which is not directly related to the purpose, function or activity for which the contract is to be issued, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15(a) since union affiliation is not directly related to the activity of building a public school. According to the petitioner, non-union contractors have in the past successfully built many public schools to the complete satisfaction of the school district and without any labor unrest. The petitioner argued that there is no reasonable relationship between the bid spec and the work to be done and cited the case of Waszen v. Atlantic City, 1 N.J. 272 (1949).

Also, the petitioner argued that this bid spec violates the public school contract law because it precludes the award of the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-18 since potential contractors will be discouraged from bidding. The petitioner noted that case law has established that a non-union contractor can be held to be the lowest responsible bidder since labor relations is not an appropriate factor to be considered on the issue of responsibility and cited the case of Wittie Electrical Co. v. State, 139 N.J. Super. 529 (App. Div. 1976).

In addition, the petitioner argued that the requirement of a project labor agreement is in effect a pre-qualification which in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-27.

In its brief, the petitioner recognized that in a recent decision of the Appellate Division of the New Jersey Superior Court, the court upheld a bid spec of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority which requires a project agreement, George Harms Construction Company v. NJ Turnpike Authority, Dkt. No. A-385-93T2 (September 29, 1993). The petitioner argued that the decision in this matter is distinguishable on the facts since in the Harms case there was no involvement of a contract to be governed by the public school contract law. The petitioner also noted that the Harms case is currently on appeal in the New Jersey Supreme Court.

As to the decision in Building and Construction Trades Council of the Metropolitan District et al. v. Associated Builders and Contractors of Massachusetts/Rhode Island et al, 507 N.J. ____, 122 L. Ed 2d 565 (1993)(Boston Harber), the petitioner argued that this decision is not applicable since it only held that the National Labor Relations Act doe not preclude a public entity from requiring a project agreement. The parties did recognize during the oral argument that there is dicta in this case suggesting that state law cannot prohibit the use of project agreements. As to the decision in Lott Construction Company v. Camden County Board of Chosen Freeholders, F. 93-5636 (N.J.D.C. 1984) (Lott Federal case), the petitioner argued that the decision was wrong and is under appeal. In that case, the court did hold that the County's decision to require a project agreement was not unreasonable and was within the latitude given to local bodies. Petitioner also alleges that the reasons for the project agreement given in the Superintendent's affidavit are factually wrong and that there is no reason to believe that a contract awarded without a project agreement requirement would not result in the timely construction of the high school. Further, the petitioner alleged that its loss of an opportunity to bid on the contract would cause irreparable harm and further the petitioner alleged that the Board's allegation of harm due to the delay in the awarding of the contract is outweighed by the possible harm to the public, which will result in the award of the contract without the benefit of the open-competitive bidding process.

In response, the respondent argued that the project agreement does not violate the public school contract law. Respondent noted that approxmiately 70 potential bidders have expressed an interest in the project and that only petitioner has formally objected to the requirement. Also, the respondent argued that the requirements does not prevent the petitioner from filing a bid.

The respondent stated that the school district is concerned with the timely construction of the high school, with the quality of the work, with the relationship between subcontractors, with delays due to labor problems and that any delay would possibly result in a financial impact and prevent the construction within the time and the amount authorized by the electorate. The respondent argued that the concerns of the school district are similar to those of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority cited in the Harms case and that case clearly established that a project agreement can be part of the bid specifications for a public project. Although the statutes are not similar or the same, the respondent argued that the law governing contracts by the New Jersey Turnpike Authority required an award to the lowest responsible bidder and that the facts are analogous to the facts in this matter.

Additionally, the respondent stated that in the Federal Lott case, the court reviewed the contract under the public bidding statute and held that it was within the discretion of the local entity to require a project agreement.

The respondent further argued that the burden is on the petitioner and that the petitioner has not met its burden, has not shown a reasonable probability of success nor any irreparable harm since it can still submits a bid.

Mr. Kroll, on behalf of the Council, argued that the arguments in this matter are not new and have in fact been considered and rejected by the Court in the Harms case and the Federal Lott case, and Mr. Kroll stated that there is no proof that the projects using union labor are more costly, and that the courts have recognized that public bodies have the discretion to require project agreements. Further, Mr. Kroll argued that there is no statutory provision in New Jersey which prevents the use of this type of provision and indicated that Governor Whitman has issued an order identified as Executive Order No. 11, allowing the state departments to use project agreements.

Mr. Kroll argued that the petitioner has not presented a reasonable likelihood of success and has not shown irreparable harm.

Lastly, Mr. Kroll argued that in the Harms case , the court denied a similar request for temporary relief. Further, Mr. Kroll stated that the decision of delaying the opening of the bid in the case of Utility and Transportation Contractors Ass'n of New Jersey et al v. Camden County, Superior Court Dkt. No. L 0346-94 is not persuasive since the county agreed to postpone the case. Also, the respondent noted in Utility and Transportation Contractors Ass'n of New Jersey v. Bergen County, Superior Court Dkt. No. BER-L-0001-94, the court denied a similar request for interlocutory relief and that the decision denying interlocutory relief was affirmed on appeal by both the Appellate Division and the State Supreme Court.

As I stated there are three factors which must be considered in deciding whether the petitioner is entitled to emergent relief.

Having reviewed the record and the arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has shown irreparable harm, since the petitioner will not be submitting a bid for the project because of the project agreement requirement. I agree with the petitioner's argument that the fact that the petitioner could submit a bid is not a realistic alternative since the petitioner would have to completely change how it operates. However, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown a probability that it will eventually succeed on the merits. Although there is a difference in the statutory language, all public entities in New Jersey strive for free, open and competitive bidding and will award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder. I also accept the argument of the respondent and the Council that there is nothing in the public school law to prohibit the use of project agreements. For purposes of this motion, I CONCLUDE that the reasoning in both the Harms and the Federal Lott cases, appear to be equally applicable in this matter. I recognize that there has been no prior decision regarding the use of project agreement by school district and that there will be a hearing in this matter, at which time this legal argument will be fully explored.

As to the last factor to be considered, I recognize that general case law has established that it is appropriate for the Commissioner of Education to consider questions of the legality of bid specifications prior to the opening of bids. DiAnnunzo Bros. Inc. v. N.J. Transit Corp., 245 N.J. Super. 527 (App. Div. 1991). However, in this matter the school district has made a convincing presentation of the educational need for the high school and the problems that can be caused by a delay. Therefore, the respondent has present more than a minimum inconvenience or loss if the motion were granted. The petitioner has not meet its burden as to this factor.

Since the petitioner has not sustained its burden of proof as to the three factors set forth above, I ORDER that the petitioner's request for interim emergency relief be DENIED.

This decision is subject to review by the Commissioner and I will send a copy of the tape with the arguments as well as my oral decision to the Commissioner as soon as possible.

This recommended order on application for emergent relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days from entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION does not so act in forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONROE, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION

The decision on motion for emergent relief of the Office of Administrative Law has been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner and timely replies thereto were filed by the respondent and participant.

In addressing the standard to be met for granting interim relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the petitioner has shown irreparable harm, but that the petitioner has not demonstrated a probability of success on the merits. The ALJ's decision was based upon two findings, that there is nothing in the public school law that prohibits the use of project agreements which require union workers in school construction projects and that the case of George Harms Construction Company v. New Jersey Turnpike Authority, Dkt. NO. A-385-93T2 (September 29, 1993), then on appeal to the New Jersey Supreme Court, was controlling.

The initial decision on motion was transmitted to the Commissioner for his consideration on Tuesday, July 5, 1994. On Thursday, July 7, 1994, the New Jersey Supreme Court issued a ruling in Harms reversing the Appellate Division decision (A-113/114-93). Petitioner submitted the Harms decision to the Commissioner by way of reply exceptions on July 8, 1994. On July 11, 1994, respondent and participant were directed to submit replies thereto, if any, by the close of business July 11, 1994. Counsel for respondent submitted a reply on July 11, 1994. Counsel for intervenor notified the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes telephonically that no reply would be forthcoming.

The Commissioner temporarily grants the requested injunctive relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 and remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for an emergent reconsideration of the motion in light of the Supreme Court decision in Harms.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, seven former central administrative or supervisory staff, alleged that the State-operated School District's failure to appoint them to supervisory positions violated state antidiscrimination statutes, primarily the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-4 to -12.

ALJ determined there was no reasonable basis to conclude that the District's actions with respect to employment determinations regarding petitioners were taken for impermissible discriminatory reasons.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision dismissing the Petitions of Appeal.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

These seven consolidated appeals involve challenges by school administrators to the abolition of their respective positions in connection with the reorganization of the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson ("Paterson" or "District") under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34 to 52. Previously, under the caption Cirasa v. State-Operated -School District, OAL DKT. EDU 5277-92 (May 14, 1993), adopted, (Comm'r June 28, 1993), aff'd (St. Bd. Dec. 3, 1993), appeal docketed, No. A2408-93-T2 (N.J. App. Div. Jan. 14, 1994), the Commissioner of Education ruled that petitioners held positions as "central administrative and supervisory staff" and, therefore, that they were subject to the mandatory reorganization which must be implemented within six months after the State takeover of a local school district. N.J.S.A. 18:7A-44(b). Additionally, the Commissioner determined that she lacked subject matter jurisdiction over petitioner's federal civil rights claims. There remains, however, petitioners' contention that Paterson's failure to appoint them to supervisory positions violates state antidiscrimination statutes, primarily the Law Against Discrimination ("LAD"), N.J.S.A 10:5-4 to -12.

Specifically, petitioners allege that the selection process utilized by the State district superintendent was based upon standards which invidiously discriminate on the basis of race, gender, or age. Petitioners pursue a broad shot-gun approach. Six petitioners, who are white, charge "reverse discrimination" based on their race. One of the petitioners, who is black, also charges discrimination because of race. Four males charge "reverse discrimination" due to gender. Three females charge gender discrimination as well. Five petitioners, who are 50 years or older, charge discrimination based on age.

The main thrust of petitioners' attack focuses on the State district superintendent's public statements about affirmative action and minority hiring, which are claimed to be contrary to the District's own written policies and unsupported by competent proof of past discriminatory practices. Further, petitioners attempt to prove discriminatory intent indirectly by showing that Paterson retained other supervisors with poorer evaluations and hired replacement supervisors with fewer qualifications; that the decision not to retain petitioners was already made before they had any meaningful opportunity to respond to their evaluations; and that petitioners overheard comments suggestive of bias. Lastly, petitioners rely on statistics purportedly showing that the District discriminated against older white males.

Paterson denies that improper considerations played any part in its deliberations and asserts that its determination was solely "based upon the evaluation of the individual and the staffing needs of the reorganized district" in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c). Moreover, Paterson contends that petitioners have blurred the fundamental distinction between the effect of the reorganization on existing personnel and the district's affirmative action plan applicable to hiring of new staff. Finally, Paterson presents its own statistics to show that the ratio of white to black employees in the central office remained unchanged after the reorganization.

For the reasons which follow, petitioners' discrimination complaints are groundless and must be dismissed.

Procedural History

On April 28, 1992, petitioners filed separate but similarly-worded petitions with the Commissioner. Thereafter, on June 18, 1992, petitioners filed an amendment to their petitions. On or about July 1, 1992, Paterson filed its answer. Subsequently, on July 14, 1992, the Commissioner transmitted all seven cases to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearings. By consent order entered on September 21, 1992, the OAL consolidated all of them for hearing together.

Prior to commencement of the hearing, the OAL granted partial summary decision dismissing all of petitioners' claims except for discrimination claims under state law. See Cirasa, supra. The OAL held fifteen days of hearings commencing on May 14, 1993. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. At the close of petitioner's direct case on May 28, 1993, the OAL dismissed the gender-discrimination claims of Lucille Walsh, Mary Baldwin and Gail Huntington for lack of proof. The hearings concluded on July 28, 1993. Both parties filed post-hearing briefs by August 31, 1993 and reply briefs by September 14, 1993. Time for preparation of an initial decision has been extended to April 28, 1994.

(1) Overview of the Evaluation Process

Much of the background information has already been fully detailed in the Cirasa decision and need not be repeated here. Citing a long history of educational failure and endemic mismanagement, the State Board of Education ordered the state takeover of the local Paterson school district on August 7, 1991 and appointed Dr. Laval Wilson to a five-year term as the state district superintendent. In turn, Dr. Wilson appointed Dr. Clarence Hoover, with whom he had previously worked in the Boston school system, as an assistant superintendent and put him in charge of revitalizing the Division of Curriculum and Instruction. Since the reorganization of the entire central office had to be completed within six months, the new administration operated under strict time pressures. A total of 59 individuals had to be evaluated, at least 22 of whom, including all seven petitioners, were located in the Division of Curriculum and Instruction under Dr. Hoover's supervision.

One important component of the decision-making process was a formal written evaluation prepared by an outside consultant. Greta Shepherd, a retired county superintendent who served as one of the independent evaluators, describes the procedure as "a snapshot view" of a person's performance. Every evaluator followed a uniform three-step format. First, the evaluator conducted a pre-observation interview, in which the individual was asked to submit a limited portfolio of his or her best materials for review. According to Shepherd, the samples which the individual selects reveal much about that person's abilities and priorities. Second, the evaluator "shadowed" or observed the individual at an activity of his or her own choosing. Again, this exercise offers an opportunity for the individual to present him or herself in the best possible light. Third, the evaluator conducted a post-observation conference to gather additional information. Shepherd liked to ask open-ended questions and to encourage the individual to express his or her own ideas. Then the evaluator filled out a standard evaluation form, rating the individual's performance in various categories on a five-point scale, from "distinguished" to "unsatisfactory." In the end, the evaluator assigned a composite or "summative" rating, which represents an overall impression of performance.

A majority of the petitioners, five out of seven, received a summative rating of "competent," which is the middle or average score reserved for employees whose "behavior is fully satisfactory and sufficient." None of these persons did terrible work, but none were especially outstanding either. Lucille Walsh received a "commendable" rating, the next-to-the-highest score for performance which demonstrates "unusual proficiency" and "exceeds expectations." Ralph Rudnick, however, received only a "fair" rating, the next-to-lowest score for performance "somewhat less than adequate." Although Dr. Wilson and Dr. Hoover signed the evaluation forms, their signatures did not signify uncritical acceptance. Both of them emphasized that a supervisor with a favorable rating might still not possess the type of skills needed in the reorganized district.

Besides the formal evaluations, Dr. Wilson relied heavily on the recommendations of Dr. Hoover, a seasoned school administrator who assumed direct responsibility for restructuring the Division of Curriculum and Instruction. When Dr. Hoover took over in late August 1991, he encountered an organization which was "lacking definition and clarity." Over the course of six months, Dr. Hoover interacted personally with his staff in their respective areas of programming and received additional input from bi-monthly reports which he required of every supervisor. He regularly met with petitioners at monthly staff meetings and saw most of them individually as the need arose. Ultimately, Dr. Wilson accepted Dr. Hoover's exercise of professional judgment on who would be best suited to become part of his new management team.

In one respect, petitioners make a valid criticism of the evaluation process. Petitioners, accompanied by a labor representative, were notified of Dr. Hoover's recommendation at separate meetings on February 3, 1992 in office of the District's personnel director. At those meetings, they were each handed two letters: one informing them that Dr. Hoover had "made a recommendation to the State District Superintendent of Schools to not appoint you to a position within the reorganized administrative and supervisory staff" and advising them of their bumping rights; and another enclosing their written evaluation and telling them that any written response to the evaluation must be submitted "by 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday, February 5, 1992." Technically, Dr. Wilson did not adopt Dr. Hoover's recommendation until February 6, 1992, when he sent petitioners a notice of his final decision. As a practical matter, however, Dr. Wilson had already reached his decision on January 30, 1992, when he met with Dr. Hoover to discuss his recommendations. Certainly it would have been fairer if petitioners had been allowed to respond to their evaluations before the crucial meeting between Dr. Wilson and Dr. Hoover.[1] But this structural defect in the evaluation system does not detract from the underlying soundness of Dr. Hoover's recommendations.

None of the petitioners were terminated from employment as a result of the reorganization. Instead, the District continued to pay them at their old salaries for sixty days and offered them the opportunity to revert to any prior position in which they had achieved tenure or seniority. All of petitioners chose to revert to their former teaching or other positions, except for Lucille Walsh who submitted her resignation. Thus, petitioners incurred a reduction in salary but not a loss of their jobs.

(2) Nondiscriminatory Reasons for Not Retaining Petitioners

(A) Mary Baldwin

Mary Baldwin, a black female, age fifty-five, was a supervisor of home economics.[2] She had held that position in the district for nearly twenty-four years. Her nonretention as a supervisor had little to do with her job performance, but rather was the result of the restructuring of the division. As early as mid-December, Dr. Hoover made plans to combine the two positions of supervisor of home economics and supervisor of industrial arts to create a single new position known as supervisor of practical arts. Similarly, he also decided to combine the supervisor of music with the supervisor of art. A soft-spoken and thoughtful witness, Dr. Hoover explained that such merging of related functions was a common practice in other districts in which he had worked, notably Boston and Montclair. Past experience taught him "that this combination worked well."

[1]Only one of the petitioners, Gail Huntington, actually did submit a response. Thus, none of the others can rightfully claim any genuine harm.

[2]Petitioners' ages are given as of February 7, 1992, the date on which the reorganization was implemented.

In choosing the head of the new consolidated practical arts department, Dr. Hoover wanted an administrator "who could gain the respect of both staffs," someone "who understood both areas" and "could talk to shop teachers with confidence." While Baldwin had extensive experience in home economics, she has no background in industrial arts. Baldwin never even applied for the new job, although she was not precluded from doing so. Dr. Hoover assigned the task of interviewing prospective candidates to a committee chaired by Dr. Beulah Adams, the newly-appointed director of instructional services. Based on Dr. Adams' recommendation, on September 1, 1992 the District Superintendent chose Gabrielle Duffy, a white female, age forty-four, for the new post. Both Baldwin and Duffy have comparable master's degrees and both hold home economics and supervisor's certificates. In addition, however, Duffy, holds dual certification as a coordinator of cooperative industrial education.[3] Moreover, Duffy has practical experience performing construction work in her own home. Another advantage is that Duffy worked for nineteen years in the district as a teacher and coordinator of home economics, so she is thoroughly familiar with the staff.

Unlike the other petitioners who claim that they were discriminated against because they are white, Baldwin claims that she was discriminated against because she is black. The only support on the record for her accusation are alleged statements she attributes to persons connected with the incoming administration. Thus, Baldwin told of a private conversation in December 1991, in which evaluator Greta Shepherd had supposedly commented that an unspecified "they," presumably the new Administration, would not let a black become supervisor of practical arts. In rebuttal, Shepherd emphatically denied making such a remark, saying it was "inconsistent with [her] belief and experience." Furthermore, Shepherd's role was limited to preparing the written evaluation, and she did not participate in deciding whether to appoint Baldwin to a supervisory position.

[3]This endorsement qualifies Duffy to serve as a "teacher and coordinator of part-time cooperative vocational education in skilled trade, industrial and/or service occupations" and "to teach related vocational subjects." N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.3.

Baldwin also stated that Dr. Dorothy Dallah, the executive assistant to Dr. Wilson, had assured her, during a telephone conversation in January 1992 to confirm arrangements for a meeting with black sororities, that, "You people don't have to worry, you might not like the positions you get but you're not going back into the classroom." Although Dallah recalled one instance in which Baldwin had "whispered" to her that they both belonged to the same black sorority, she did not recall the particular telephone conversation. Dallah is certain, however, that she never talked to Baldwin about her supervisory position and that she never used the words which Baldwin attributed to her.

I FIND that Baldwin was not appointed because her former position had been eliminated and replaced by a new position which combined home economics and industrial arts. Race and age were not a factor in this decision. Neither Greta Shepherd nor Dorothy Dallah made any comments to Baldwin which might be taken otherwise. Gabrielle Duffy was chosen as the supervisor of practical arts because of her dual certification and her familiarity with industrial art.

(G) Gail Huntington

Gail Huntington, a white female, age fifty, was the coordinator of the gifted and talented program. She had been in the district more than nineteen years, having previously worked as a teacher of English as a Second Language. As a supervisor, her primary duties included developing and coordinating a program for gifted and talented students, visiting classrooms for supervisory purposes, and instituting an in-service training program for staff. Paterson has an extensive enrichment program consisting of self-contained "challenge classes" for children identified as high achieving and a "pull-out program" or special classroom activities for schools where challenge classes are unavailable.

Soon after the takeover, the new Administration began holding information-gathering sessions with parents and other community groups. Dr. Hoover attended one such public forum on October 23, 1991, where numerous parents voiced concerns about Huntington's lack of leadership and the perceived inadequacies of the existing gifted and talented program. Members of a parents' organization known as the Paterson Association for Gifted Education ("PAGE") had prepared a list of proposals for improvement, such as uniform standards for testing and evaluation of eligible students, upgraded curriculum, greater exposure to scientific, artistic and cultural environments, limited class size, and increased parental involvement in the formulation of district policies and procedures. While some of these ideas might require additional expenditure of money (e.g., smaller class size), others could be implemented at little or no extra cost (e.g., uniform testing standards, more efficient use of existing staff, and creation of a parent's advisory committee).

James Gist, the father of three children presently enrolled in the public school system and the president of PAGE, is a particularly outspoken critic of the present program for gifted children. Testifying at the administrative hearing, Mr. Gist emphasized that his group was not necessarily demanding more money, but instead "looking for a change in thinking." Although he liked Ms. Huntington personally, he felt that she was "wishy-washy when it came to fighting for our kids." From his perspective, the real problem was Huntington's uninspired leadership and her inability to communicate what she was doing. Significantly, the session on October 23, 1991 was the first night meeting of parents that Huntington had ever attended, even though she had an open invitation to come to the regular monthly PAGE meetings. Many of the interested parents work to earn a living and have difficulty visiting the school during the day.

Aside from important input from parents, Hoover also formed his own impressions of Huntington's capabilities based on his dealings with her. Despite her evident knowledge of the inner workings of the gifted and talented program in her own district, Huntington did not have sufficient "depth and breadth of knowledge" about innovative programs in comparable school districts. Since Dr. Hoover had experience with similar programs in Montclair and elsewhere, he realized the narrowness of her approach.

Outside evaluator Greata Shepherd rated Huntington's overall performance as competent, although Shepherd expressed reservations about Huntington's ability to engage in "consistent" as opposed to "accidental" planning and the absence of any mechanism for obtaining feedback from her staff. Relying on samples of work which Huntington had chosen as representative, Shepherd could find no evidence of any systematic planning efforts or any institutionalized channels for reaching out to staff. Good management techniques, Shepherd reasoned, involve establishment of a monitoring system "which flows in both directions." Even though Shepherd observed only two rather than the customary three "shadowing" activities, she believed that she had enough data to draw meaningful conclusions. Indeed, Huntington does not genuinely dispute the accuracy of Shepherd's observations, although she complained that she was not given an adequate opportunity to respond to her evaluation. (See footnote 1, supra.)

In September 1992, the District hired Sandra Mickens, a thirty-four year old African-American female, to replace Huntington as supervisor of the gifted and talented program. Like the other newly hired administrators, Mickens had been screened and recommended by the selection committee headed by Dr. Beulah Adams. Not only did Mickens possess a master's degree and a background as a teacher in the district's own gifted and talented program, but also she was currently working on her doctorate. Her teaching experience provided valuable insight into the District's need for including more students in the gifted and talented program and for furnishing better training to the teachers assigned to accelerated classes. At the hearing, Mickens came across as a forceful and dynamic leader with a clear vision of what she hopes to accomplish. She was particularly articulate in outlining her future plans for revising the entry requirements into the program and for meeting the needs of a culturally-diverse student population. As Mickens described herself, she can be "aggressive and overbearing when it comes to the education of our children."

By comparison, Ms. Huntington, who also testified at the hearing, displayed a defeatist attitude. She had a tendency to blame all the shortcomings in the current program on the lack of funds or the inaction of others, which only succeeded in making her appear weak and ineffectual. In her early contacts with Dr. Hoover, she presented him with a long list of problem areas, financial constraints and deficiencies. It is easy to appreciate why the new Administration might prefer the forward-looking leadership of Mickens to the helpless hand-wringing of Huntington, without any regard to racial or age differences.

I FIND that Gail Huntington was not retained as a supervisor because of her strained relationship with parent groups, her noncollaborative management style and her unenthusiastic outlook. The decision to hire the well-qualified Sandra Mickens was based solely on her merit as someone better suited to the challenging task of revitalizing the stagnant gifted and talented program.

(C) Joseph Kayal

Joseph Kayal, a white fifty-seven year old male, held the title of supervisor of physical education. He had served the district for thirty-five years and had worked his way up the ranks from elementary school teacher. Notwithstanding the title, his area of responsibility extended to health and driver's education as well as physical education. In his supervisory capacity, he evaluated physical education and health teachers, developed curricula and assisted in preparing the budget for his department.

Kayal got off to an inauspicious start in early September 1991 by complaining that he had too many duties and asking Dr. Hoover to relieve him of responsibility for health education.[4] Shortly thereafter, Kayal committed another blunder by approving the distribution of an incorrect Spanish translation of a letter about the family life curriculum. As a result, the District had to recall some 20,000 copies of the letter to redo the translation. In and of itself, the error does not seem particularly serious. Kayal had merely borrowed an earlier form used by his predecessor without bothering to check its accuracy. Coming at the beginning of the probationary period, however, this mistake was viewed as an indication that Kayal was careless and inattentive to detail. Dr. Hoover faulted Kayal for not asking one of the bilingual supervisors to review the text of the letter before it went out.

[4]Until the year before, Kayal had not had oversight authority over the health program at the elementary level. Apparently, Kayal thought that it was too difficult for one person to handle the whole department. Dr. Hoover gave due consideration to Kayal's request to lessen his workload, but decided against granting it.

Basically, Kayal received good but not great marks for his management skills. Greta Shepherd, who has a long and distinguished career in public education, criticized Kayal's departmental goals as lacking "specific targets, timeliness and monitorable objectives." Consequently, there was no method for measuring whether or not the objectives were being accomplished. Dr. Hoover agreed that Kayal's curriculum documents failed to include "tangible outcomes for students" and were "just a simple listing" of activities. Moreover, Shepherd opined that the physical education curriculum lacked creativity and originality. Only the "Can Do" program, designed to raise students' self-esteem, could be regarded as innovative. The rest of the physical education curriculum was very "traditional." In particular, Shepherd saw no evidence of any effort to adapt physical education instruction to the special needs of handicapped students, to accommodate the different traditions of a multicultural community, or to promote physical education for life-long use. While Kayal insisted that these types of initiatives were occurring anyway, none were reflected in the curriculum documents which he supplied for review. Shepherd commented that teachers are required to adhere to the written curriculum and are not allowed to follow informal guidelines.[5]

As of May 3, 1993, Paterson had not appointed anyone else to the position of supervisor of physical education.

I FIND that Kayal was not offered a supervisory position because of his reluctance to assume responsibility for health education, his lackluster performance in setting goals and objectives, and his unimaginative approach to the physical education program. Kayal's race, gender or age were not considered.

[5]Since the District raised it at the hearing, this decision will address the charge that Kayal was responsible for a deficit in the athletic department budget for 1991-92. Some of the testimony suggests that athletic directors at the high school level may have overspent their authorized appropriations that year by $90,000. Dr. Hoover acknowledged that he was unaware of Kayal's alleged involvement until after the decision not to rehire him had already been reached. Proofs failed to substantiate that the deficit, if any ever existed, was incurred while Kayal still had a measure of control over the athletic budget.

(D) William Kopcho

William Kopcho, a white male, age forty-eight, was the supervisor of special education. He had been employed in the district for thirty-four years, having worked as a school psychologist before becoming a supervisor. It is difficult to determine the exact nature and scope of Kopcho's job duties from the record. Kopcho testified that his main job was to observe the delivery of special education services to ensure that each eligible child was receiving an appropriate special education and that teachers were complying with mandated procedures. However, he did not evaluate teacher performance for tenure or increment withholding purposes. By his own description, Kopcho assumed responsibility for "overseeing" development of the curriculum for use in special education. His personal resume summarized his duties in terms of "curriculum development and instructional methodology guide development at all levels of Special Services." During his testimony, however, Kopcho backed away from such an expansive definition of his former duties, saying that he did not actually "devise, develop or implement" curriculum, but simply coordinated and reviewed the work done by others. Lines of responsibility between Kopcho and the other supervisory staff were vague and blurred. Under the organizational chart prior to the takeover, the supervisor of special education, the position occupied by Kopcho, nominally reported to an assistant director. In reality, however, state monitors reported that the job description of the assistant director was "weak and ambiguous" and that Kopcho actually had greater responsibility. So-called "coordinators" also exercised "more substantial" responsibility than the assistant director, but their role appeared confusingly similar and overlapping with Kopcho's function.

Against a backdrop of gross mismanagement, Dr. Hoover moved quickly to revamp the administrative structure and to increase the accountability of his staff.[6] Early in 1991-92 academic year, Dr. Hoover conferred with Kopcho about certain curriculum documents which Kopcho had been preparing. The two participants gave differing accounts of what transpired at this meeting. Dr. Hoover understood that the curriculum documents were immediately "ready to distribute to staff." Kopcho, on the other hand, testified that documents were drafts in their beginning stages. If Kopcho's version were true, one wonders why he would have submitted the documents to his new boss before they had been carefully edited and thoroughly checked for accuracy.

Both witnesses agree that Kopcho delivered a box filled with over a thousand pages of material. After reviewing six or seven samples, Dr. Hoover returned the voluminous set to Kopcho with instructions to rewrite all of them. Those documents which Dr. Hoover had the opportunity to read were poorly written and professionally unacceptable. For example, the proposed curriculum guide for health was riddled with grammatical errors, outdated references, inconsistencies and illogical sequencing. Although Kopcho concedes that the draft of the health curriculum was inadequate, he insists that the mistakes were largely typographical rather than substantive. Instead of accepting full responsibility, he sought to shift the blame to the teachers who helped prepare the documents and to his own secretary. But only Kopcho's name is printed on the title page of the health curriculum document. Notwithstanding Dr. Hoover's clear directions, Kopcho never resubmitted any revised curriculum for further review.

[6]State investigators issued a Level III review report in March 1990, citing numerous serious deficiencies in the operation of the special education department, including: lack of agreement between central office and building administrators regarding who is responsible for the special education program; delays in placement of children identified as eligible for services; lack of a consistent format for preparing individual educational programs; and insufficient parental involvement in planning for their children's special education.

Meanwhile, Kopcho was being independently evaluated by Dr. Angelo Tomaso, who followed the same standard format as Greta Shepherd. Unfortunately, Dr. Tomaso died prior to the hearing. Dr. Tomaso's written evaluation of Kopcho is highly laudatory, describing him a competent manager who "churns out much product, especially in the areas of curriculum[.]" In one important area, however, Dr. Tomaso's views coincide fully with Dr. Hoover's. Commenting on Kopcho's communication style, Dr. Tomaso remarked that, "[H]e needs to either get a word speller/corrector for his secretary or needs to proofread more, i.e., 'rational' instead of 'rationale,': 'Haldon' instead of 'Haldol,' 'ambuds instead of 'ombudsman.' This occurred too often."

When deciding whom to recommend for a supervisory position in the sensitive area of special education, Dr. Hoover was greatly influenced by his familiarity with Kopcho's weakness in curriculum development. Of the three district employees invited to remain as supervisors of special services, two were white (Valerie LeBlanc and Joan Tahan) and all three were over forty years of age (Mary Cornish, age 47; Valerie LeBlanc, age 49; and Joan Tahan, age 52) No one in particular was hired to fill the position vacated by Kopcho. Without providing supporting details, Kopcho asserts that his replacement was Mary Cornish, the only one of the three who happens to be black.

I FIND that Kopcho was not kept as a supervisor because of his deficiencies in the area of curriculum development and the need to establish clearer lines of responsibility. Irrelevant factors such as race, age or gender did not play any part in this determination.

(E) Raymond Leopizzi

Raymond Leopizzi, a white male, age forty-one, was a coordinator of basic skills. As a teacher and later as a supervisor, he had worked in the district for eighteen years. Once more, it is tricky to pin down Leopizzi's exact duties. Erline Holmes, a retired urban school administrator who evaluated Leopizzi's performance, commented on the unreliability of the job descriptions used by the old district. Instead, she had to rely "on what people told us they were doing."

For the most part, Leopizzi was responsible for monitoring the delivery of funded programs in nonpublic schools.[7] Acting as liaison for the district, he spent a great deal of time visiting the sites of private and parochial schools throughout the city and neighboring communities. Since the educational services were furnished by private contracting agencies, Leopizzi had no supervisory authority over any of the teachers or service providers. Although other basic skills coordinators in the district were involved with in-service training for staff, Leopizzi did not perform this function since the private contractors provided their own training. Moreover, Leopizzi's role was limited to monitoring the programmatic as distinguished from the fiscal aspects.[8] Other district employees, notably the director of funded programs, had responsibility for financial control. While Leopizzi monitored compliance with legal requirements, he "had no say as to how much [money] was allocated to private schools."

Maggie Carillo, a member of the state transition team who was hired by the District to head the special projects department, questioned whether Leopizzi had enough work to justify a full-time position. Carillo had experience implementing funded programs in another district. After conferring with others, Carillo determined that the private contractors were adequately supervising their own staff as part of their contractual agreement. Therefore, she recommended to Dr. Hoover that Leopizzi's position was unnecessary and could be eliminated.[9]

[7]Funding for these programs is derived from a variety of federal and state sources. Chapter 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, as amended in 1988, provides federal funds for basic skills improvement programs. 20 U.S.C.A. §§2701 to 3386. Chapter 2 provides block grants for training and professional development, acquisition of educational materials, and innovative projects. 20 U.S.C.A. §§2911 to 1976. Chapter 192 of the Laws of 1977, codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1, provides auxiliary educational services for children in private and parochial schools. The Dwight D. Eisenhower Mathematics and Science Education Act, 20 U.S.C.A. §§2981 to 2993, provides grants to encourage teachers in the technical and scientific fields.

Independently, Erline Holmes, the outside evaluator, arrived at the same conclusion. She too questioned why Leopizzi's full-time job was need when the district was already paying a private contractor to perform many of the same services. In her final written evaluation, she noted as a weakness Leopizzi's "duplication of tasks delegated to the contacted agencies." Recognizing Leopizzi's talents in dealing with people, Holmes nonetheless rated him low in leadership ability because the other coordinators employed a better information-gathering system. Holmes also rated Leopizzi as comparatively weak in creativity. She explained that Leopizzi made little use of the information which he collected. A creative supervisor, in her view, would have analyzed the data and offered suggestions for improvements.

As evidence of improper motive, Leopizzi relied on an off-hand comment by Jack McGee, state assessment unit coordinator, uttered in the context of an obvious effort to express human sympathy. During a chance encounter shortly after announcement of the decision not to reappoint him, McGee inquired how he was feeling and Leopizzi replied, "Lousy." To which McGee responded to the effect, "Don't internalize, it's not you." Leopizzi chose to interpret these innocent words as implying that mysterious other factors were involved. But the words are fully consistent with the District's position that Leopizzi's job function was nonessential and that his talents could be put to better use in a nonsupervisory capacity.

[9]Carillo consulted extensively with Joseph Heitzman, former director of funded services in the district, and James Polumbo of Educational In-Roads, one of the private contractors. At the hearing, petitioner's counsel objected that Carillo's conclusions improperly rested on hearsay. But the controlling issue is not whether it is literally true that Leopizzi's duties were duplicative of the work done by others. What matters is that decision-makers in the reorganized District sincerely believed it to be true and, therefore, were motivated by a genuine desire to improve efficiency.

Eventually, Carillo, the newly appointed head of special projects, assumed Leopizzi's supervisory duties as a small part of her general responsibilities. It takes her only about six hours per week to do what Leopizzi devoted his full time doing. Four of the five other basic skills coordinators in the district were retained as supervisors in different departments. Two of the four are white (Ruthann Hilferty and Nancy Forsberg). All four were over forty years old (Ruthann Hilferty, age 44; Mary Dawson, age 53; Nancy Forsberg, age 48; and Griselle Hernandez, age 41). Recently, the District hired four new employees as supervisors in the department of special programs. Three of the four are white (Mary Kildow, Gloria Hagopian, and Anthony Campisi), including one male (Campisi). Two were older than forty (Sandra Reynolds, age 51; Gloria Hagopian, age 45).

I FIND that Leopizzi was not appointed as a supervisor because his job duties overlapped activities performed by private contractors and did not necessitate a full-time position. In addition, he was weak in the areas of leadership and creativity. The decision had nothing to do with his race, gender or age.

(F) Ralph Rudnick

Ralph Rudnick, a white male, age sixty-one, was the supervisor of social studies. He started working in the district thirty-seven years ago as a teacher. Chief among his supervisory duties was responsibility to "develop, implement, and coordinate curriculum in social studies to provide rich and varied experiences." Shortly after taking over, Dr. Hoover, who has his doctorate in the development of social studies curriculum, reviewed the social study guides and found them to be seriously wanting. In his testimony, he described the curriculum documents as "outdated," as nothing more than a "content outline," and as devoid of "student outcomes." Similarly, he characterized a desegregation project which Rudnick had prepared as a "skeletal" document which gave little guidance to teachers. Compared to related work by two other supervisors, Rudnick's contribution was "the weakest of the three."

Greta Shepherd, who performed the outside evaluation, shared Dr. Hoover's poor opinion of the quality of Rudnick's work. Like Dr. Hoover, she was especially disapproving of curriculum materials which had no "benchmark" for measuring progress and no "targets or timeliness." Although Rudnick accused Shepherd of not asking for the right documents, that excuse does not square with the known facts. Not only did Shepherd look at the material which Rudnick himself selected, but Dr. Hoover made nearly identical observations. Besides giving him bad grades in curriculum, Shepherd also panned Rudnick's ability to set department priorities and allocate resources. In addition, she noted his "reluctance to deviate from past practices" by exploring new ideas. Her final assessment of Rudnick's performance, based on all these factors, was "fair," the lowest rating of the seven petitioners.

Implying that racial motives were involved, Rudnick related a conversation in which Dr. Hoover told him, "You don't fit into the mix." Dr. Hoover remembers the conversation, but denies the connotation which Rudnick seeks to put on his words. Instead, Dr. Hoover explained it was his way of softening the message that Rudnick did not possess the necessary leadership skills. Evidently, Rudnick realized that he could not handle the job. On an earlier occasion, when he first learned that he would not be reappointed, Rudnick admitted that he could not produce what was needed in the new district. At the time of the hearing, no one had been hired to replace Rudnick. This state of affairs is more consistent with the District searching for the best person to do the job than it is with the District removing a white man to clear the way for a black man.

I FIND that Rudnick was not retained as a supervisor because of weaknesses in curriculum development, goal-setting and receptivity to new ideas. Improper considerations of race, gender or age did not enter into the decision.

(G) Lucille Walsh

Lucille Walsh, a sixty-year old white female, was the substance abuse coordinator. She came to the district nearly thirty-nine years ago as a nurse. Notwithstanding her narrow title, she had supervisory authority over delivery of drug and alcohol awareness services in the district. Walsh's credentials on paper are excellent. She not only has the required certifications, but is a registered nurse as well. But the critical problem was that children suspected of drug or alcohol abuse were not being tested. Eileen Shafer, Walsh's successor, attributed the bottleneck to the absence of clear-cut procedures. While Walsh was in charge, there was confusion regarding which hospitals would do testing, transportation arrangements were uncertain, and staff members did not know how to get a child tested. Vice principal Aurea Rios, a member of the intervention team at Eastside High School, testified that she never received instructions on how to handle students under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Between August 1991 and February 1992, virtually no student in the district was screened for drug or alcohol use. After Walsh was relieved of her command, the District tested 111 students in a comparable time period.

During the evaluation period, Dr. Hoover formed a negative impression of Ms. Walsh. On one occasions, he had to reprimand her for bypassing normal channels in submitting grant papers directly to Dr. Wilson. On another, a principal complained that Walsh had not consulted him before scheduling a training session. Therefore, Dr. Hoover was surprised when Dr. Tomaso initially rated her as "distinguished." In accordance with the evaluation process, Dr. Hoover discussed his reservations with Dr. Tomaso and persuaded him to lower the rating to "commendable." Nevertheless, Dr. Hoover was guided by his own insights when it came time to make his recommendations to Dr. Wilson.

Eileen Shafer, age thirty-four, who succeeded Walsh, had valuable experience administering a drug prevention program in a large urban district. Since the person who replaced her is a white female, it is difficult for Walsh to claim that her removal was due to racial or gender bias. Walsh's tenuous charge of age discrimination rests on a supposed statement by Dr. Dallah that she "tried to get them to understand that older people have a great deal of expertise to offer." Dr. Dallah, executive assistant to Dr. Wilson, has no recollection of making such a statement. At best, the statement is ambiguous and could easily be interpreted as an endorsement for hiring older people.

I FIND that Walsh was not retained because of her failure to implement an effective drug and alcohol screening program and her poor interaction with other administrators in the district. Her age was not the reason for her removal.

(3) Affirmative Action and Demographic Data

Petitioners concentrate their attack on the District's minority hiring goals, which are alleged to have tainted the reorganization process. When Dr. Laval Wilson took over as state district superintendent, he inherited an affirmative action policy statement written by the prior administration.[10] Under that statement, which has remained changed, the Paterson district reaffirmed,

> . . . its policy to insure equal employment opportunity for all persons and to prohibit discrimination in employment because of sex, race, color, creed, religion, national origin, age, domicile, marital status, or non-job related handicap or disability and to have equal access to all categories of employment in the public education system of the school district. An intensive affirmative action program shall be an integral part of every aspect of employment not limited to but including upgrading, demotion or transfer, recruitment advertising, layoff or termination, rates of pay, or other forms of compensation including fringe benefits, employment selection for training and apprenticeships, promotion or tenure.

The District's affirmative action plan further provides for tabulation of data with respect to race and sex of professional and nonprofessional staff, collection of information on opportunities for career advancement, and active recruitment of minorities and women. At the same time, the plan emphasizes the importance of hiring only qualified individuals. Referring to guidelines developed under federal civil rights legislation, the plan acknowledges that, "In short, the act does not command that any person be hired simply because he/she is a member of a minority group." Rather, the purpose is "the removal of artificial, arbitrary and unnecessary barriers to employment" which individiously discriminate on the basis of racial or other impermissible classifications. Without challenging the validity of the plan itself, petitioners contend that the District violated its own standards by using race as the selection factor for employment decisions.

During his first six months in office, Dr. Wilson held a series of meetings to gauge public sentiment since, as he put it, "the community didn't volunteer to become state-operated." He met with a wide variety of different interest groups, ranging from the Chamber of Commerce to the NAACP. In the course of these sessions, one of the dominant themes which emerged was the feeling by minority representatives that their constituents had been deprived of employment opportunities in the past. African-American leaders complained that there were not enough black principals and administrators. Hispanic leaders, in particular, protested that they had no voice in the top management of the school system. Student enrollment in the district is predominantly minority. Hispanic students constitute the largest contingent, roughly 49 percent, with African-American students a close second, approximately 43 percent. Only about eight percent of the students are white or other. Yet only 42 percent of all employees in the district are Hispanic or black.

[10]State regulations require that every local school district in New Jersey develop an affirmative action program or plan covering employment and contract practices. Such plan "shall include timetables for corrective action to overcome the effects of any previous patterns of discrimination which may exist and a systematic internal monitoring procedure to ensure continuing compliance." N.J.A.C. 6:4-1.3(a)(2). See Also, N.J.A.C. 6:4-1.6.

Dr. Wilson made no secret of his desire to achieve a better racial balance by increasing the number of minority employees.[11] His strong commitment to affirmative action is reflected in his Mission Statement, which states:

> Monitoring the racial and gender composition of our staff at school sites, as well as in the central office, will remain a high priority of the Superintendent's office. As we strive to find the best people to provide services for the school system, we must continue to appoint staff who are representative of the various groups of students who are in our schools.

Petitioners, however, distort Dr. Wilson's true views by claiming that he wants the staff in the district "to replicate the demographic character of the student population." In the first place, affirmative action considerations were never used in evaluating the performance of existing staff, but apply only to attracting people to fill vacancies or newly-created positions. Every District witness involved in the evaluation process, from Dr. Wilson on down, confirmed that race, gender and age were not taken into account in determining which supervisors to retain. Thus, petitioners would have lost their supervisory positions anyway, regardless of whether the District happened to have an affirmative action program. Secondly, there was no quota in the sense of achieving a fixed percentage of racial or ethnic representation among the employees. The goal was a much more generalized one of searching for qualified black and Hispanic applicants. Thirdly, Dr. Wilson expressly disavowed any intent of creating an all black and Hispanic staff. What he hoped to accomplish was a fairer system where no member of the multicultural community felt left out.

As part of his reform, Dr. Wilson sought ways to include the Hispanic community. In public statements and an official newsletter, Dr. Wilson announced the creation of an ombudsman position and his intention "to increase interaction with the Spanish-speaking community by filling the position with a Puerto Rican candidate." Taking this statement out of context, petitioners use it as evidence of a general inclination by Dr. Wilson to prefer minority candidates. While Dr. Wilson's reference to a particular ethnic origin is reprehensible, it is undoubtedly true that anyone qualified for this particular position would have to be conversant in Spanish and Hispanic culture. In any event, the incident is irrelevant to petitioners' specific complaints. Nowhere is there any indication that any petitioner was interested in the position or had been turned down for the job.

Demographic data also fail to substantiate petitioners' claims that whites were disfavored in the selection process. Before the reorganization, the central-office whites outnumbered non-whites 41 to 18 or a ratio of slightly more than two-to-one. After the reorganization, the two-to-one ratio remained unchanged, 18 to 9. In the Division of Curriculum and Instruction, 16 persons were reappointed: 9 whites, 3 blacks and 4 Hispanics. (Exhibit P-73). With respect to newly-hired central office staff, there are 13 whites and 13 non-whites, maintaining the two-to-one relationship. Of the 11 newly-hired persons in the Division of Curriculum and Instruction, 5 are white and 6 are black, again pretty evenly split. (Exhibit P-74).

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that respondents did not unlawfully discriminate against petitioners on the basis of race, gender or age.

At the outset, it should be emphasized that the abolition of petitioners' positions came about as a result of the general reorganization of central administrative and supervisory staff in the state-operated school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c). This occurred by operation of law rather than by any affirmative actions of Dr. Wilson or his assistants. Although the state district superintendent "may hire an individual whose position is abolished, based upon the evaluation of the individual and the staffing needs of the reorganized district," petitioners have no legal entitlement to retain their supervisory positions. Their rights are limited by statute to receipt of sixty-days' pay and to exercise of any tenure or seniority claims they may have to lesser positions. Cirasa, supra.

Courts have approached large-scale reorganizations differently from situations where one person is removed from employment. In Wachstein v. Slocum, 265 N.J. Super. 6, 14 (App. Div. 1993), a "reverse discrimination" claim by a white male demoted from a supervisory position, the record left "no doubt that plaintiff's removal from his position resulted from [a] management reorganization process." Viewed in this broader context, the Appellate Division could discern no basis in the record for finding that plaintiff's removal from his management position was racially motivated. Similarly, in Dennery v. Passaic Cty. Reg. High Sch. Dist., 131 N.J. 626, 642 (1993), a tenure dispute, the New Jersey Supreme Court was unable to ascribe improper motives to a school district which abolished petitioner's position "as part of an overall reorganization based on legitimate educational policy rather than as part of a direct attempt to remove her from the District." These comments are particularly pertinent in the context of a state takeover of a failing school district, where the State district superintendent has a broad mandate to make sweeping changes. In order to succeed, the State district superintendent must be able to appoint fresh talent who owe allegiance to the new administration. See Wachstein, at 14, where the newly-appointed Public Advocate instituted management changes to introduce a "breath of new life."

Of course, the occurrence of a state takeover does not mean that a school district may engage in illegal employment discrimination. Petitioners allege that the State district superintendent violated N.J.S.A. 10:5-12(a), which makes it unlawful for an employer to refuse to hire or to discharge an employee because of race, age or sex, N.J.S.A. 10:5-12(a), as well as N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6, which prohibits discriminationbased on sex "pertaining to the employment of teachers in any school."[12] State courts have "borrowed procedures developed in litigation under federalantidiscrimination statutes" Fuchilla v. Layman, 109 N.J. 319, 345 (Handler, concurring). See Peper v. Princeton Univ. Bd. of Trustees, 77 N.J. 55, 84 (1978), adapting the test set forth in McDonnell-Douglas Corp. v. Green, 411 U.S. 792, 93 S.Ct. 1817, 36 L.Ed. 2d 668 (1973). Usually, the allocation of burdens follows a three-tier approach. Typically, in a wrongful discharge case, the complainant must first carry the burden of establishing that he belongs to a protected class, that he was performing his job at a level which met his employer's legitimate expectations, that he was nevertheless fired, and that the employer sought someone to perform the same work after he left. In a reverse discrimination case, however, the rationale supporting the rebuttable presumption accorded to historical victims of discrimination does not apply. Thus, when a complainant is not a member of the minority, courts have generally modified the first prong of the McDonnell Douglas standard to require the plaintiff to show that he has been victimized by an "unusual employer who discriminates against the majority." Erickson v. Marsh & McLennan Co., 117 N.J. 539, 551 (1990). If that level is met, then the burden shifts to the employer "to come forward with a legitimate nondiscriminatory reason for the employee's rejection." Finally, the complainant is "is permitted to come forward with evidence indicating that the nondiscriminatory reason was no more than a pretext to hide discriminatory activity or was discriminatorily applied." No single formula automatically applies to all situations, however, and the test must be molded to fit the circumstances. Peper, at 83.

For purposes of this analysis, it will be assumed that petitioners have made out the minimum requisites of a prima facie case. Cirasa, supra.[13] Consequently, the inquiry will proceed directly to the question of whether, on the record as a whole, the evidence shows that respondents were motivated by improper considerations of race, sex or age. As detailed in the factual findings, the District has produced persuasive proof that each decision was fully supported by legitimate job-related reasons. Insofar as the outcome depends on weighing of credibility, the District witnesses were reputable school administrators who offered cogent and well-considered explanations for their choices. It is not the role of judges to supplant educators in running the school system. Courts will not interfere with the judgments of professionals in the field of public education, "unless those judgments are palpably arbitrary or depart from governing law." Dennery, at 643.. Accord, Flucker v. Fox Chapel Area Sch. Dist, 461 F. Supp. 1203 (W.D. Pa., 1978) (mere bad judgment in selection of a school employee does not amount to sex discrimination).

Petitioners failed to demonstrate that the stated reasons for the personnel actions were pretext to conceal some ulterior motive. They miss the point when they argue that all should be retained because of their greater experience in the district. It is precisely their long association with the prior administration which made them less attractive to the new leadership seeking a clean break with the past. Nor is it surprising that many of petitioners were middle age or older, when the purpose of the reorganization was to remove the firmly entrenched bureaucracy which had mismanaged the district for years. It would have been exceedingly difficult to accomplish this task without displacing some older administrators. Of the 59 staff members included in the central office evaluation process, only six were younger than forty years old. (Exhibit P-73) By the same token, the evaluators should not have to offer gratuitous advice on what the experienced administrators were doing wrong. The six-month probationary period was not an orientation period for new employees, but a procedure for evaluating how well the incumbents were performing their current responsibilities.

Likewise, petitioners failed in their endeavor to show that the independent evaluations were a sham. Contrary to petitioners' assertions, the District did not retain a large number of supervisors with poorer ratings. Petitioners point to only one such example, an assistant supervisor of bilingual education who was retained despite an overall rating of "fair" (Exhibit P-95). Uncontradicted testimony, however, indicates that his particular individual was ill during the evaluation process and that Dr. Hoover did not believe the evaluation measured her actual abilities. Other individuals with "fair" ratings were terminated or retired, including a black assistant director of funded programs (Exhibit P-107) and a white supervisor of music (Exhibit P-109). Petitioners' ratings (except for Mrs. Walsh) were not the highest of the group. Several other supervisors with "commendable" ratings were retained. (Exhibits P-110; P-111; P-112; and P-113).[14] Perhaps the underlying fallacy in petitioners' reasoning is the assumption that everyone with a "competent" rating must be retained as supervisors. Even if Drs. Wilson and Hoover concur with the evaluator's rating of competent, it does not necessarily mean that an individual is best suited for the job. Dr. Wilson and his advisors are still entitled to exercise their independent judgment as to whether a particular person will work well with the new management team.

[14]Petitioners regard it as suspicious that one of the evaluations is missing the evaluator's signature and appears to have been changed from "competent" to "commendable." (Exhibit P-97). Yet Dr. Hoover was never confronted with the exhibit and afforded an opportunity to explain. Dr. Wilson suggested that this particular exhibit might be a preliminary draft rather than the final version.

Affirmative action is a false issue injected into this case to divert attention from the real dynamics. Dr. Wilson's reaching out to segments of the community who feel excluded and his goal of expanding equal employment opportunities can hardly be regarded as indicative of discriminatory intent. "If an employer's statements that he planned to combat discrimination and to pursue affirmative action goals were held to be an adequate basis for a finding of discrimination against a white employee, anti-discrimination laws would be turned on their head and transformed into a device for preservation of the racial status quo in the workforce." Wachstein, at 18.

In a case properly raising the issue, the particular means adopted by Dr. Wilson to achieve his laudable ends might be subject to legal challenge. New Jersey has clearly rejected race-conscious remedies designed to redress general societal wrongs when the effect is to deny jobs to more qualified applicants. Lige v. Town of Montclair, 72 N.J. 5 (1976). Recently, the federal district court in New Jersey invalidated a school district's reliance on its affirmative action plan as a means of breaking a tie in a layoff dispute. United States v. Piscataway Bd. of Educ., 832 F. Supp. 836 (D.N.J. 1993). Seeking to litigate the validity of Paterson's affirmative action program, petitioners allude to a number of possible deficiencies in its formulation, including the failure to make a statistical comparison to the relevant labor market and the purported absence of convincing evidence of past discriminatory practices. See, e.g., City of Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co., 488 U.S. 469, 109 S.Ct. 706, 102 L.Ed. 2d 854 (1989); Hazelwood Sch. Dist. v. United States, 433 U.S. 299, 97 S. Ct. 1736, 53 L.Ed. 2d 768 (1977); Wygant v. Jackson Bd. of Educ., 476 U.S. 267, 106 S. Ct. 1842, 90 L.Ed. 2d 260 (1986). But it would be premature to address these sensitive issues in the present factual setting, where no connection has been established between petitioners' nonretention as supervisors and the District's affirmative action program. On the record in this case, the overwhelming weight of the evidence shows that affirmative action had nothing whatsoever to do with outcome of the reorganization. Compare the Piscataway case, where it was undisputed that the employment decision was made solely for affirmative action considerations. 832 F. Supp. at 840.

In short, the State district superintendent picked those individuals whom he sincerely believed were best qualified to fulfill the staffing needs of the district. Regardless of whether or not one personally agrees with his particular choices, his exercise of professional judgment must be respected.

Order

It is ORDERED that the relief requested by petitioners is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and respondents' reply thereto were timely filed, on May 23, 1994 and June 2, 1994 respectively, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. By letter dated June 15, 1994, petitioners sought to advise of their intent to order transcripts of the hearings in this matter. Respondents by letter dated June 20, 1994 objected to such late date intent. Petitioners were notified by the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on June 27, 1994 that, because the exception period in this matter had long passed and hearing transcripts were not even ordered until their absence was objected to by their adversary in reply exceptions, no further material would be admitted to the record.

Petitioners' lengthy exceptions, which contain extensive reference to trial testimony, essentially recast and reargue issues which the Commissioner finds were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in his initial decision and will not be herein reiterated.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which, as previously noted, did not include transcripts of hearings (see In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 157-158 (App.

Div. 1987), the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that there is no reasonable basis to conclude that the District's actions with respect to petitioners were taken for impermissible discriminatory reasons.

Accordingly, for the reasons well expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the within Petitions of Appeal.

For the Respondents-Appellants, Carroll & Weiss (John E. Collins, Esq., of Counsel)

The State Board affirms the Commissioner's decision, substantially for the reasons expressed therein. In so doing, we stress that all transcripts of any proceedings in this matter were included in the record on appeal before the State Board. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.8(a). Consequently, it was not necessary that we decide appellants' motion to supplement the record with such transcripts in order to consider them. Review of those transcripts has reinforced our conclusion.

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BUTLER, PASSAIC COUNTY, AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEQUANNOCK, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, petitioning Board sought judgment of Commissioner terminating the sending/receiving relationship existing between petitioner Bloomingdale and respondent Butler since 1963 alleging dissatisfaction with present relationship. Bloomingdale asserted that its proposed new relationship with another district would be superior and that there would be an absence of any substantial negative impact. Butler countered that there would be substantial negative educational and financial impact on all affected parties.

Having considered testimony, documentary evidence and arguments of the parties, ALJ concluded termination of the sending-receiving relationship by and between the Boards would visit substantial negative educational and financial impact on the quality of education received by pupils in both communities under criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. Petition was dismissed.

Citing Court decisions in Englewood, Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, noting that notwithstanding a number of positive impacts that would accrue to Bloomingdale if severance of this relationship were to be granted in this matter, severance cannot be granted where a substantial negative impact has been found. The Court has explicitly held that positive impacts cannot be balanced against or serve to outweigh substantial negative impact.

Record Closed: December 16, 1993 Decided: February 28, 1994

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

Since 1963, high school age students of the Borough of Bloomingdale, Passaic County, have been educated in a sending/receiving relationship by the Board of Education of the Borough of Butler, Passaic County, the agreement having continued since then on settlement by the parties of annual tuition amounts. In a petition of appeal filed in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education on March 17, 1992, the Bloomingdale Board sought judgment of the Commissioner of the Department of Education terminating the sending/receiving relationship and approving in its place a new sending/receiving relationship between Bloomingdale and the Board of Education of the Township of Pequannock, Passaic County. The petition alleged dissatisfaction with the present relationship, asserted the proposed new relationship with Pequannock would be superior, and alleged absence of any substantial negative economic or racial balance impact. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, the Bloomingdale Board sought judgment of the Commissioner so determining and approving. The Butler Board in answer acknowledged the longstanding sending/receiving relationship but denied there would be no substantial negative financial impact for Butler should termination be approved; it sought judgment of the Commissioner ordering the existing sending/receiving relationship between Butler and Bloomingdale continued and a determination the requested change would result in a substantial negative impact on all affected parties, thus requiring disapproval of the present petition. The Pequannock Board of Education in its answer sought dismissal of the petition as to it, claiming the petition failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted against it. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 15, 1992 for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The matter came on for prehearing conference in the Office of Administrative Law and an order was entered on November 6, 1992. At issue, it was established, is whether in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 petitioner shall have established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that termination of the existing Bloomingdale/Butler sending/receiving relationship and establishment of new sending/receiving relationship between Butler and Pequannock would have no substantial negative impact on the parties and whether, if so, the relief sought should be granted.

Seven hearing days were conducted, April 19, 20, 21, 22, 26, 27 and 28, 1993. Following post-hearing submissions, the record closed December 16, 1993.

EVIDENCE AT HEARING WITH PRELIMINARY FINDINGS OF FACT IN BACKGROUND

I

Some preliminary facts were not in dispute. I shall ADOPT those proposed by Bloomingdale in a post-hearing brief (at 2-8).

Butler and Bloomingdale are K-12 school districts. For over 90 years Bloomingdale has sent its high school age students (grades 9 through 12) to Butler High School (BHS) under a sending/receiving relationship. 4/26T13.[1] Actual fall enrollment at BHS for the 1992-93 school year was 537 students, of whom 297 were from Butler and 240 were from Bloomingdale. P-3, p. 14 and RB-1, p. 59.[2]

Butler and Bloomingdale are contiguous communities straddling the Morris-Passaic County line. The Borough of Butler is approximately two square miles and is a fully developed, primarily blue and white collar community. While the Borough of Bloomingdale is larger in area, the northern half of Bloomingdale is a state forest preserve. The population is heavily concentrated in the southern portion directly adjacent to Butler. See RB-11, map and 4/26T18.

The two communities are alike in terms of most socio-economic measurements. Average gross income per household is $43,709 in Bloomingdale and $43,296 in Butler. Per capita income is $14,110 in Bloomingdale, $14,132 in Butler. Similarly, the tax bases as measured by property value per pupil in each of the two communities are alike ($462,115 in Bloomingdale versus $458,830 in Butler). RB-1 at 9. The following represents the district factor groupings for each district as prepared by the Department of Education:

	1970 Census	1980 Census
Bloomingdale	E	F
Butler	E	G

District factor groupings are based upon a composite set of seven socio-economic indicators taken from census data. All districts in the State are then ranked from lowest to highest and divided into 10 groups for classification purposes. In the ranking, A is low and J is highest. RB-1 at 8.

Butler operates two other schools to serve its K-8 population. Aaron Decker School serves Butler's students in grades K through 4 and also houses the district's preschool handicapped program. Richard Butler School houses Butler's 5th through 8th grade students. 4/26T-73.

Bloomingdale operates three schools on its own--two K-5 schools and a 6-8 middle school, each with enrollments just over 200 students. P-3 at 5.

Pequannock Township, the would-be new receiving district for Bloomingdale, is not adjacent to either of the other two districts but rather is separated from them by the Borough of Riverdale. Pequannock is wealthier in every category (household income, per capita income, property values per pupil and district factor grouping). RB-1 at 8-9.

B. Historical Overview and Current Relationship

While the sending/receiving relationship between Butler and Bloomingdale has existed since the turn of the century, the last written agreement between them covered a period in the 1960's. 4/26T13, 24. In the fall of 1989, Bloomingdale commissioned Guidelines, Inc., an educational consulting firm headed by Dr. Robert Savitt, to conduct a feasibility study of Bloomingdale withdrawing from Butler and sending its high school students to Pequannock High School. Guidelines' first feasibility report (P-1) concluded that Butler would be substantially impacted both financially and educationally in the event of withdrawal and recommended that Bloomingdale negotiate a contract with Butler to continue the relationship. P-1, at 40, 46 and 48.

Negotiations were conducted in the fall of 1989 and January of 1990 to develop a new written contract with Savitt serving as its negotiator. Savitt testified that a tentative agreement was reached and that he prepared a summary of the terms of agreement, and distributed it to both boards for formal ratification. 4/20T55-56; 4/26T24-25, 28-32; RB-10 in evidence. Included therein was a 5% reduction in tuition to be paid by Bloomingdale. Within a month, however, and before final ratification, Bloomingdale received a substantial tuition reduction offer from Pequannock. The Bloomingdale board declined to ratify the negotiated agreement with Butler and proceeded with steps that have resulted in this litigation to terminate the relationship with Butler.

The first step taken by Bloomingdale was to negotiate and enter into an agreement with Pequannock. It was completed in April 1990. 4/20T56; P-2, Appendix A. Terms of the agreement are similar to what had been negotiated with Butler except that the Pequannock agreement provided for substantial tuition discounts for a seven year period (assuming the relationship began in school year 1994-95). Thereafter, the agreement called for renegotiation and, if no agreement were reached, tuition should be based on the State formula contained in N.J.A.C. 6:20-3.1. 4/21T96-102.

Bloomingdale then commissioned Guidelines to prepare a second report which would "revisit the question of feasibility of [Bloomingdale] withdrawing its students from Butler," in "preparation" for a petition to the Commissioner. 4/19T45; 4/20T56-57. Savitt completed his second report in November 1991. P-2 in evidence. The petition was filed in March 1992.

The sending/receiving relationship has continued in the interim. With respect to the issue of how well the current relationship operates, the only witness with direct knowledge and involvement in the relationship was Dr. Frank Stranzl, who has served as the Butler superintendent since 1981. Stranzl testified that he has had constant communication with the Bloomingdale superintendent over the years. All Butler meeting agendas and notices are sent in advance to the Bloomingdale Superintendent for distribution to his board members. Bloomingdale Board members are invited to Butler Board meetings and have attended regularly for various periods over the past 12 years. They sit with the Butler Board at such meetings, rather than in the general audience. During a recent search for a new high school principal, two members of the Bloomingdale Board sat in on the interviews and voiced their input in the selection and hiring decision. There have also been liaison meetings, as often as monthly, between the two boards over the years. 4/26T19-21.

On the more direct level of school-student and school-parent relationships, Stranzl testified and Savitt agreed that there is no discrimination or differential treatment of Butler and Bloomingdale students. 4/26T22; 4/20T22-23; 4/29T133-134. Class lists, for example, do not identify which students are from which town. A single orientation program is offered for the parents of eights grade pupils from both districts. A visitation is made to both middle schools to orient and prepare the incoming eighth grade students. 4/26T22-23.

Dr. Frank Smith, an outside expert retained by Butler, also found many indicia of a fully integrated and successful high school education program, as well as educationally significant overall community ties between the two towns. RB-1, pp. 22-38.

C. Enrollment Projections Under the Proposed Withdrawal

While there were significant differences in the enrollment projections of each party's experts as contained in reports prepared in advance of the hearing, Dr. Savitt, on the very day he testified, delivered "revised" enrollment projections in an amended P-3 report and conceded that he was now in agreement with Dr. Smith's enrollment projections. 4/20T89-90; 4/19T66-67; compare P-3 at 14 and 16 with RB-1 at 59 and 59b; 4/27T14-35 (Smith). The following table sets forth the respective final enrollment projections of each expert for Butler, Bloomingdale, and combined Butler and Bloomingdale.

N.A. = Savitt made no projections for these years

The last two columns represent the projected enrollments if Bloomingdale students remain. If Bloomingdale students are withdrawn, Butler High School's enrollment will fall to only 287 students by the time the last Bloomingdale student leaves (1996-97), and will remain in the range of 270 to 290 students for many years, as shown by the first two columns above. See also RB-1 at 59.

Smith also performed projections for Pequannock High School, both with and without Bloomingdale students. See chart at RB-18 at 2. Bloomingdale and Pequannock acknowledged the projections were accurate.

The above projections were in turn used by experts on both sides to determine educational and financial impacts of withdrawal.

D. Impact on Racial Composition

While case law precludes the parties from stipulating to this issue, there is sufficient evidence in the record to support a finding that there will be no substantial negative impact on racial balance in any of the districts if Bloomingdale's withdrawal request is granted. See P-3 at 44.

II

Testimony of Bloomingdale's expert opinion witness on school district organization, Dr. Robert F. Savitt, began bravely with explanation of a seemingly contradictory conclusion about impact in his Study of the Feasibility of Withdrawing Bloomingdale Pupils from Butler High School, produced in the fall of 1989 (P-1). He concluded then:

> Conclusions and Recommendations
>
> A. Conclusions
>
> 1. Both Pequannock and Butler provide high school programs which are compatible with the varied educational needs of Bloomingdale elementary graduates.
> 2. There will be substantial educational and financial impact on Butler High School if Bloomingdale pupils are phased out of that school. [Emphasis added.]
> 3. There will be no substantial racial balance impact if Bloomingdale pupils are phased out of that school. [P-1 at 48].

In November 1991, two years later, according to Savitt, he again studied and produced a report, A Study of the Feasibility of Withdrawing Bloomingdale Pupils from Butler High School (P-2). His conclusions then and testimony were these:

> 1. Both Pequannock and Butler provide high school programs which are compatible with the varied educational needs of Bloomingdale elementary graduates. However, in comparison with Butler, Pequannock would provide Bloomingdale pupils with enhanced educational opportunities because of superior educational facilities, lower pupil/staff and pupil/teacher ratios, and the greater range of courses provided.

2. There will be no substantial negative educational and financial impact on Butler High School if Bloomingdale pupils are phased-out of that school. [Emphasis added.]

3. Any negative impacts on Butler would be greatly outweighed by the many and substantial educational and financial benefits Bloomingdale would receive as the result of reassigning 9-12 pupils to Pequannock, and the educational advantages Butler could receive if reorganized as the result of Bloomingdale leaving.

4. There will be no substantial negative racial impact if Bloomingdale pupils are phased-out of Butler High School. [P-2 at 45].

Savitt explained that what he meant in his 1989 report concerning "a substantial educational and financial impact upon Butler were Bloomingdale students to leave" was that there were attractive or ameliorative financial alternatives. He suggested his ability to quantify and qualify his "negative impact" opinion in 1989 was attributable to lack of cooperation from Butler administrative personnel from whom, he said, he was unable to get such data as exact numbers of Bloomingdale and Butler students in each class, like sophomore English. Lessening of impact, which he said meant alternative uses of school properties and plants, would necessarily involve reorganization in Butler so that K-6 students would be housed in a middle school and 7-12 students would be housed in the high school building, which presently houses only 9-12 students. For Butler, he said, there would be no substantial negative impact if Bloomingdale students were phased out, his assumption being that Butler's Decker School and Butler high school annex would be closed in 1993/94 and sold as commercial establishments, proceeds therefrom being gradually appropriated into future Butler budgets, beginning with 1993/94 school year, to reduce taxes to be raised. Thus, he said, there would be no significant increase in the tax ratable base in Butler over the course of withdrawal. P-2 at 43-44. While Butler would lose a significant amount of tuition revenue as the result of Bloomingdale withdrawing its pupils, there were significant offsetting cost savings to be realized and, thus, no substantial negative financial impact through potential educational benefits Butler would enjoy as a result of its being able fortuitously to reorganize the district. P-2 at 43f.

The witness expanded his studies in a February 1993 update (P-3), and again in February 1993 (P-4), urging that arguments that Butler High School could not survive educationally or financially if Bloomingdale students left were not defensible and that rather than viewing reduction in enrollment as a problem, Butler should welcome it as an opportunity to assess needs of its own students and restructure its curriculum and school organization in a cost-effective manner along lines of a small high school such as Pt. Pleasant Beach High School [P-4 at 19]. In a final February 1993 update (P-6), he argued Butler's future could be safely approached by exploring feasibility of attracting another district on a send/receive basis or exploring the possibility of sending Butler students to some hospitable receiving district [P-6 at 17].

Savitt said there are four scenarios:

(1) Status quo, Bloomingdale remaining at Butler;
(2) Bloomingdale leaving for Pequannock, Butler going to West Milford;
(3) Bloomingdale leaving for Pequannock, Butler going to Boonton; and
(4) Bloomingdale leaving for Pequannock, Butler keeping a small high school and reorganizing as a small high school.

In descending order of wisdom, he said, scenario four was best, then scenarios two, three and, finally, one--status quo.

Losses to Bloomingdale tax payers should termination be denied and the Pequannock opportunity lost would register some $5,545,648 on a per pupil basis. P-9. This, over a projected five-year period. A one-year projected savings to Butler and Bloomingdale in 1993-94 if Bloomingdale withdraws and Butler operates alone would be expected to amount to $1,225,223 and more should Butler send its students elsewhere. P-10. A projected four-year savings to Butler and Bloomingdale for 1993-97 should Bloomingdale withdraw was projected at $4 million if Butler stayed though reduced in size but more if Butler realigned its students elsewhere. P-11; see also P-12, utilizing other projected figures.

A witness for Bloomingdale experienced in school business administration and finance, Vincent Yaniro, prophesied doom should Bloomingdale not prevail in this suit. P-9 is a chart concluding that given Butler tuition increases from 1993-94 through 1996-97, a time when Pequannock tuition because of existing (provisional) contract would remain constant at $6,000 per annum per pupil, total expected loss in dollars to Bloomingdale would be some $5,500,000. P-9. The witness conceded the exhibit was a simplistic graphic representation that Bloomingdale got a pretty good deal with Pequannock. 4/21T13. He projected in P-10 a graphic illustration that if Bloomingdale withdrew from the receiving arrangement with Butler, there would be in 1993-94, for example, six figure "savings" to Bloomingdale and Butler (if Bloomingdale went to Pequannock and Butler went to Boonton); to both if Bloomingdale went to Pequannock and Butler went to West Milford; and to both if Bloomingdale went to Pequannock but Butler students remained. As to the latter, the conclusion was based on taxes to be raised by Butler if Bloomingdale remained less taxes to be raised by Butler if Bloomingdale leaves, less estimated taxes on an assumed new ownership at Decker School and Butler high school annex. A four-year savings to Butler and Bloomingdale for 1993-97 if Bloomingdale withdraws from the arrangement was represented in P-11 at some $4 million if Butler students stayed, and at more than $10 million if Butler students went to either Boonton or West Milford. The projection without considering sale of Aaron Decker School and Butler high school annex still produced a six figure total savings, in his opinion, as in P-12. His opinion depended on several assumptions, however: that state aid would not increase; that Butler would have additional revenues from surplus of between $325,000 and $250,000 annually over the years; that Butler High School be reorganized into a 7-12 grade reorganization; that Aaron Decker School would be sold commercially for $2 million; that Butler high school annex would be sold for $500,000; that the first year of implementation would be 1993-94 and completion of implementation would first be in 1996-97. 4/21T74-6. Compatible zoning for school buildings to be sold, as well, was assumed. Id. at 80. The witness conceded there would be some loss in tangible neighborhood middle school values that were intrinsic but not quantitatively valuable. Id. at 78. Ultimately, said the witness, his figures were dependent upon immediate sale of buildings, capital assets. He conceded there would be a substantial negative impact from withdrawal by Bloomingdale on the Butler tax payer should the sale of buildings not eventuate as he assumed they would. The following colloquy ensued:

> THE COURT: Mr. Yaniro, as things have been developing, you know, it occurs to me that in the financial analysis that you have been undertaking, the practicality or the ability of Butler to sell off the high school promptly and at a figure reasonably or closely approximating property appraisal becomes a critical matter and a linchpin in the entire analysis that you've attempted; is that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes. If I could just -- it's not the high school we're talking about here. We're talking about Decker.

THE COURT: Excuse me.

THE WITNESS: That's elementary.

THE COURT: It's the elementary, right?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: I beg your pardon.

MR. CARROLL: And the high school annex.

THE WITNESS: And the high school annex.

THE COURT: But for all of the number crunch which one may assume for the moment is rational as you've described it, nevertheless, a critical factor that must come to fruition is the successful commercial or otherwise -- or other disposition of those --

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: -- physical buildings?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: And that absent such an eventuality obviously might cause you to revise your opinions?

THE WITNESS: Yes, well the assumption is made that the buildings are sold.

THE COURT: Yes. And if the assumption fails, then your opinions likewise --

THE WITNESS: Obviously my figures are much --

THE COURT: -- would be modified --

THE WITNESS: My figures are going to change.

THE COURT: Or might, heaven forbid, even fail.

THE WITNESS: Well, the figures would change. I'm not quite --

THE COURT: Yes.
All right. It's after --

MR. CARROLL: I'm just about done. I mentioned I have one -- one or two more questions.

THE COURT: Oh, I'm sorry. Go ahead.

MR. CARROLL: I'm just following up on Your Honor's question.

BY MR. CARROLL:

Q Even if they sell the buildings, at some point they're selling off their capital assets in order to fund their current expense budget; correct?

A Well, it's being used to offset taxes.

Q Right. And if they sell those buildings and they use those for four or five years, at the end of those four or five years they're still going to need the $550,000 a year that was in that budget, aren't they?

A Well, what I had done is assumed two and a half million dollars in sales proceeds.

Q Okay. Two million from Decker and $500,000 from the annex?

A Correct. And I factored in just a million. And that produced equal average tax rates over that four year --

Q Okay.

A So there's another million and a half to be factored in.

Q Okay. And if they continue to appropriate $500,000 a year roughly thereabout from those proceeds, then they'll be gone three years after this; is that right?

A Correct.

Q And then they're going to have to get that revenue from someplace else and the only place is going to be the local tax levy; correct?

A Yeah. Of course we're talking seven years down the road. A lot of things could happen. Yes.

Q Well, if you were living in Butler, would you be concerned about what was going to happen when those capital assets proceeds were used up?

A Well, I guess it would be -- you would wonder, yes.

Q Okay. And this is also what we've calculated here, even for -- under all of your assumptions, $131. That's the impact in school year 1996/97, right?

A Yes.

Q Now, that is only the first full year of implementation; right?

A Yes.

Q And if we took the calculations out one more year for the status quo your table one -- chart one and with Bloomingdale leaving, chart two -- we get another similar differential the following year; correct?

A Well, it depends on what you factor in from the proceeds there, what you can -- there are a number of factors. I'm not sure exactly what would happen that next year.

Q But you've shown us four years.

A Yes.

Q And in three of those four years Butler is still getting tuition monies from Bloomingdale, right?

A Right.

Q And it's only in that '96/97 that they first get zero from Bloomingdale. From there on out, that row is going to be zero from Bloomingdale, right?

A Correct. [4/21T122-126]

A "limited scope appraisal" of Butler High School Annex and Aaron Decker elementary school (P-14 in evidence) advanced the opinion that as of March 1, 1993 the "preliminary estimate" of market value of Butler high school was $5,100,000, of Butler high school annex was $530,000 and of Aaron Decker elementary school was $2 million. Concededly, testimony and report were limited in scope to give preliminary indication of value based on available market data, according to Michelle Spies, M.A.I., a state-certified real estate appraiser.

II

The first Butler witness was Frank Stranzl, its school superintendent for the past 12 years. He noted Butler is a town some two square miles in area with a large number of churches, composed of a population both blue collar and white collar in nature. Its housing stock is, perhaps, some 20 to 100 years old. The sending/receiving relationship between Bloomingdale and Butler in its 9-12 configuration is some 90 years old. RB-1; see infra at 2-5.

The witness's analysis of effects of termination on staffing, class size and curricular exigencies were detailed in RB-13, 14 and 15. His conclusions were that there would be significant negative impact on Butler should Bloomingdale withdraw. "Singletons" would likely increase, these being only single class sections available to students. From forced reduction in number of teachers, students would likely suffer because they would intangibly lose wider experience in instruction. A Savitt proposal to make Butler a K-6 district with middle school at the high school for classes 7-12 was not a good idea. In particular, he said, to have classes 7 and 8 in the same school building as classes 9-12 was not academically appropriate, in his view. The superintendent thought any proposed rearrangement that would include sending Butler students to West Milford or Boonton would be not good for educational reasons. The drive connecting the municipalities is impossible in bad weather. Boonton, for one example, is a half-hour drive away. Any termination, he felt, either all at once or over a four-year phase-out would have a devastating community and negative educational effect.

Butler retained services of a school consultant whose expertise was in school and community organizations, Dr. Frank L. Smith, a professor of educational administration at Teachers College of Columbia University since 1967. A former administrator at Ridgewood, Bergen County, high school and chairman of its English department, he served two terms on the Ridgewood Board of Education. Smith's testimony complemented his Study of the Educational Impact of the Proposed Withdrawal of Bloomingdale Students from Butler High School, February 10, 1993, which is RB-1. The report defined educational impact in greater depth than undertaken in other similar reports. It adopted a broader definition of educational impact. It was based both upon quantitative data such as enrollment projections and student counts, and qualitative data such as interviews of parents, students and officials. Id. at 7. His summary conclusion was this:

> Withdrawal of Bloomingdale students from Butler High School would have a substantial negative impact on the educational community. This negative impact results from destruction of > social capital that has been generated over time through interaction of citizens in the two towns. Furthermore, withdrawal would so severely impact the formal curriculum of the school as to make continuation of a comprehensive high school highly unlikely if not impossible . . . [Id. at 3.]

Creation of a functional community by parents, teachers, civil officials, organizational leaders, clergy and lay church leaders, recreational leaders and others, Smith wrote, represents efforts of a group of adults to generate social capital and to provide meaningful education for their youth. Schools, in this perspective, are part of a social community and are more than formal organizations with sets of classes. Loss of such social capital focused the analysis. Id. at 14-15. He defined "substantial negative impact on education" as impact primarily on social networks and social capital generated through interaction of families and schools in Butler and Bloomingdale and secondarily on withdrawal of human capital from the formal program of the schools, that is, its academic program. His research indicated "school learning" was dependent upon social and relational aspects of community life. Id. at 17.

Smith's theory was posited on the notion that successful schools were successful functional communities. For Butler and Bloomingdale, as an example, there is an 80-year-old tradition of building community linkages for their youth. Involving youth in another geographic area in order to attend another school does not assure that adults will work to establish strong social networks or that existing networks among families and institutions in another school zone would be expanded to involve a new set of youth. Id. at 20-21.

Smith analyzed "educational impact" as involving questions like these: What sense of community exists between Butler and Bloomingdale? What social networks do the communities generate? How will such networks react to change? Do these networks create social capital and for whom? How would withdrawal disrupt the networks and reduce available social capital for use? Id. at 22. The study induced but one overall conclusion: Withdrawal will have a substantial negative impact on the educational community, in terms of social capital, program development, program quality, enrollment stability and the richness of community life. It was based on the following findings [Id. at 76-7]:

1. The most negative impact due to withdrawal will be the loss of social capital that has provided the foundation for education in the Butler school community for several generations. This loss results when families disengage from activities involving youth. The caring, supportive community that has been established over time will be reduced by the withdrawal of Bloomingdale families.

2. As a result of withdrawal, Butler will have to redefine its high school. It will not be possible to continue the development of a comprehensive school model. The loss of students will require the discontinuation of several instructional areas currently included in the comprehensive program of studies. A large number of courses will need to be eliminated.

3. The loss of social capital from the Butler school community will be reflected in reduced activity in a variety of educational activities ranging from athletics, to music, to the celebration of educational achievement at graduation.

4. Given withdrawal, the core program of studies must be considerably reduced and teacher academic specialization and instructional competency will be reduced, due to the dispersed allocation of faculty to courses in a small school.

5. Given the fact that leadership and participation in the academic and extracurricular life of the school is shared with equity and a pattern of specialized interests, the withdrawal of human capital, represented by the students and adults of Bloomingdale, will lead to a less rich community life in and through the Butler High School.

6. Following withdrawal, should it take place, the processes of program planning and budgeting in Butler will be more difficult. The enrollment stability provided by the interplay of shifts in the number of students in from the two towns will be missing and this loss will lead to a more unstable pattern of enrollment decline, which in turn will make planning and budgeting more difficult.

7. It is neither feasible nor educationally wise to consider reconfiguring the Butler school system's grade level organization if Bloomingdale withdraws; thus, there is little way to compensate for the loss created by withdrawal.

Generally, Smith concluded, course reorganization would detract from the notion of the comprehensive high school; course reduction necessitated by Bloomingdale withdrawal would devitalize Butler programmatic curriculum. Middle school relocation at the high school would revert to the old junior high concept of a school not quite a school, a class not quite a class.

Butler witness Vincent Calabrese investigated, reported and testified as expert in the realm of school finance. His report, Analysis of Fiscal Impact of a Bloomingdale Withdrawal of High School Students, February 1993, revised April 16, 1993, was RB-21. It visualized three scenarios: scenario I in which Bloomingdale students are withdrawn over a four-year period and Butler budgets its educational programs at the current level of service; scenario II in which Bloomingdale students are withdrawn and Butler budgets at projected cap limits; and scenario III in which Bloomingdale students remain and Butler Board budgets at current levels of service. In all three scenarios, he made certain assumptions: (1) there are certain restrictions on permitted yearly budget growth (CAPS); (2) state aid will remain static over term of the analysis; (3) in projected years high school expenditures will continue at the average percentage during the years 1989-92 in the total K-12 Butler budget; and (4) enrollments are accepted as from a study by Bloomingdale witness Savitt. 4/27T126-7.

Calebrese's conclusion in scenario I where Bloomingdale students remain and Butler budgets at current levels of service was that such budgetary increases would result as would constitute a substantial negative financial impact and would be catastrophic for Butler. Sale of buildings and proceeds used ostensibly to lessen tax impact, being one-time revenue windfalls, are contra-indicated and would be unavailing since even after use of funds from sales of assets expenditures would continue compounded by inflation without availability of cushion. In scenario II, if Bloomingdale students were withdrawn and Butler budgets at projected cap limits, it could not continue to function under capped budget fiscal constraints by reducing expenditures and eliminating programs. In scenario III, based on a premise that Bloomingdale does not withdraw and tuition payments continue to be part of the Butler budget, his conclusion was the scenario guarantees fiscal viability of the Butler school system and effects no significant fiscal impact on Bloomingdale in terms of reasonable tuition increases over the period studied.

Calabrese's conclusion was this:

> Statement of impact
>
> In my opinion the withdrawal of Bloomingdale from its present tuition arrangement with Butler would result in a substantial negative financial, if not a devastating, impact on the fiscal and educational viability of the remaining Butler enrollment.
> Fiscal viability and educational viability are inextricably connected. If funding is inadequate there is a direct impact on adequacy of the entire educational process. [RB-21 at 1-7.]

At direction of Butler, its district supervisor of buildings and grounds, who reports to the school business administrator, conducted simulated bus runs from various points on the Bloomingdale border, Morris Lakes area, Kamffe Lake area, and Macopin Road area, to Pequannock High School and return; recorded results of the runs were RB-23. Distances for the three points to Pequannock High School were between eight miles and ten miles, each taking about 30 minutes. The times did not include pick-up or drop-off of students within Bloomingdale. For an average of 250 students, five bus runs would be needed to be established, each taking about 50 students. It was estimated at least an additional 30 to 45 minutes to run the routes within Bloomingdale would be required.

III

Bloomingdale rebuttal evidence included testimony of its acting superintendent, a former business administrator/teacher, who retraced routes as shown in RB-23. Mileages and times from the three areas in question as recorded were challenged with lesser times and fewer miles through use of a trip odometer. Mileage recordings by the witness were between 5.5 and 6.5 miles from the three points; times involved ran between 10 and 12 minutes. The quantity of traffic along a common roadway, Hampton Turnpike or Route 23, was noted. See map, RB-17.

A final rebuttal witness for Bloomingdale was Dr. Roberta Kanarick, author of High School Characteristics Related to Performance on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the High School Proficiency Test and Other Educational Outcomes, 1992, who is presently employed as superintendent of Somerset County Educational Services Commission. She was offered as an expert in educational administration in New Jersey. In general, she said, her graduate dissertation (P-15) concluded small school size emerged as the most significant predictor among student performance indicators such as SAT, HSPT, attendance and drop-out rate. There was inverse relationship between smaller schools and better performance, higher test scores, better attendance and lower drop-out rates. Results of her research "underscore[d] small school size and strong academic emphasis as important facilitators of academic achievement." P-15 at iv.

IV

Bloomingdale and Butler rested. Pequannock called no witnesses in its behalf, adopting post-hearing arguments as presented by Bloomingdale.

DISCUSSION

That some impact on Butler as a receiving district will follow from termination is a proposition Bloomingdale implicitly recognized. It urged nevertheless that operative language of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 requires that the Commissioner in making an equitable determination on a petition to terminate a sending/receiving relationship shall other things remaining equal grant the requested change "if no substantial negative impact" be found to result. Bloomingdale's case as a consequence proceeded on the assumption the impact was tolerable. It was devoted to theories of damage control. Butler could, it argued, save money and improve its education if Bloomingdale left. It could choose either of two "excellent" other high schools as receiving districts (West Milford or Boonton) or it "could educate its youngsters in an intelligent, productive manner. If it favors larger high schools, it could do so. If it favors a smaller high school, it could do so." Pm at 58. Its witness, Savitt, suggested Butler close one school, convert the current middle school to a pre-K-6 facility, sell the high school annex and convert the main high school facility that remained to a combined 7-12 school. To Butler these were visionary and unworkable prospects fraught with marketing, zoning, planning and deed restriction problems.

I think the effect of termination must be balanced and judged under a scenario that Butler continue to operate its schools, middle school and high school, under a present albeit attenuated mode, since the record is bare of any sensible basis for relying on opportunities to send its students outside Butler and become itself a sending district. Evidence suggests the scenario would occasion not only negative impact. There would be implosion of an educational district--an end by slow death to a productive 80-year-old relationship, one not otherwise challenged here as a competently worked and working comprehensive high school. The damage could not be "controlled."

I FIND educational impact on Butler from a Bloomingdale exodus would be negative and substantial because of drastic impact on scope and quality of curricular offerings necessitated by reduction of student population virtually in half. The comprehensive range of Butler's current curricular offerings would become distorted and shrunk. Extracurricular programming would suffer. Social capital, in words of Dr. Smith, would wither and be lost. Even assuming commercial sale of Butler district school buildings prefatory to restructuring to K-6 and 7-12 schools, speculation about liquidation of school building properties, which is problematical, is only compounded by resultant curricular and physical plant restructuring. To be sure, transmogrification of Butler High School from a comprehensive high school to a small district high school is a negative educational step. For Butler students to be sent elsewhere in new receiving relationship would entail undesirable transportation problems not now faced. In either instance intangibles of "social capital" spoken of by Smith--social networks and institutions generated through interaction of families and schools in Bloomingdale and Butler--would be lost. The credibility race between experts Savitt and Smith needs clarification. Both are wise and experienced educators. Both deserve respect. The issue is less their credibility than the extent to which their diverging opinions inspire credence in the trier of fact. There is greater comfort to be taken in those of Smith largely because of methodology, plausibility, cogency. For all Smith's concentration on intangibles of social capital, the inconstancy of Savitt's damage assessments between 1991 and 1993 is far more troubling.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, having considered testimony, documentary evidence and arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE termination of the sending/receiving relationship by and between the boards of education of the Borough of Bloomingdale and the Borough of Butler will visit substantial negative educational and financial impact on the quality of education received by pupils in both communities, under criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, and should not therefore be allowed. Judgment in favor of Butler is GRANTED; the petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMINGDALE, PASSAIC COUNTY, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BUTLER, PASSAIC COUNTY, AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEQUANNOCK, MORRIS COUNTY, RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. By extension, exceptions of petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Bloomingdale (Bloomingdale) and replies thereto of respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Butler (Butler) were timely filed in accordance with the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Commissioner determines that the exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments presented in post-hearing submissions which were fully and fairly considered by the Administrative Law Judge in the initial decision and, therefore, need not be herein repeated.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including all submissions of the parties and transcripts of the seven days of hearings at the Office of Administrative Law, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that substantial negative educational and financial impact on the quality of education received by students would ensue from severance of the Bloomingdale/Butler sending-receiving relationship essentially for those reasons set forth in the initial decision. In so deciding, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ's findings and conclusions are well-grounded in the record and such record, additionally, does not provide any cause to challenge the weight ascribed to evidence or credibility assessments made by him.

Although it is undeniable that a number of positive impacts would accrue to Bloomingdale were severance to be granted in this matter, it is clear that, notwithstanding such impacts, the controlling statute precludes the granting of severance where a substantial negative impact has also been found. (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13) Indeed, in such situations, the Court has explicitly held that positive impacts cannot be balanced against or serve to outweigh substantial negative impact. As articulated by the Court in Englewood Cliffs v. Englewood, 257 N.J. Super. 413 (App. Div. 1992), aff'd Supreme Court June 9, 1993:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 is not a traditional balancing statute. In assessing an application for severance, the finding of a substantial negative impact on educational quality in one district warrants disapproval of severance, notwithstanding any number of "positive" impacts which severance would bring to the other district. (Englewood, at 422)

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and adopts it as the final decision in this matter. Bloomingdale's request for severance of its sending-receiving relationship with Butler is hereby denied.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, July 18, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Riker, Danzig, Scherer, Hyland & Perretti (James S. Rothschild, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Butler, Carroll & Weiss (David W. Carroll, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Pequannock, Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq.

The State Board of Education affirms the Commissioner's determination to deny severance of the sending-receiving relationship between the Board of Education of the Borough of Bloomingdale (Bloomingdale) and the Board of Education of the Borough of Butler (Butler), and we do so substantially for the reasons expressed in the decisions below.

Moreover, our own review of the record has eliminated any question that the fiscal impact and educational consequences to Butler that would inevitably occur were it to lose half of its student body are such as to preclude us from granting severance of this relationship. As expressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the > ...educational impact on Butler from a Bloomingdale exodus would be negative and substantial because of drastic impact on scope and quality of curricular offerings necessitated by reduction of student population virtually in half. The comprehensive range of Butler's current curricular offerings would become distorted and shrunk. Extracurricular programming would suffer. Social capital, in words of Dr. Smith, would wither and be lost. Even assuming commercial sale of Butler district school buildings prefatory to restructuring to K-6 and 7-12 schools, speculation about liquidation of school building properties, which is problematical, is only compounded by resultant curricular and physical plant restructuring. To be sure, transmogrification of Butler High School from a comprehensive high school to a small high school is a negative educational step. For Butler students to be sent elsewhere in new receiving relationship would entail undesirable transportation problems not now faced...

Initial Decision, at 21.

We recognize that it may be possible for Butler to drastically alter the structure and content of its educational program so as to continue to educate its students in some way. However, it should not be forced to do so under these circumstances.

Furthermore, even if Butler were to abandon educating its students in the District, the feasibility of educating them in another, as yet unidentified, district is entirely speculative, and there is nothing in the record to show that Butler could in fact sell Butler High School even if it wanted to.

New Jersey law does not permit us to force Butler to take such an extreme and uncertain course in order that Bloomingdale may be able to take advantage of the lower tuition rate being offered by Pequannock. Further, even this "benefit" is guaranteed only for seven years. At that time, Bloomingdale might well again be in the same position it is today.

Finally, we reject any suggestion that Bloomingdale's current relationship does not provide it with the opportunity to be involved in the educational decisions affecting its students. Moreover, we take note that, as of January 12, 1995, sending districts are entitled to voting representation on a proportionate basis on the boards of their receiving districts. P.L.1995, c. 8. In this instance, such representation should be significant.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent, a Tenafly school employee, sought admittance of his son (R.S.) to Tenafly High School (THS) pursuant to district policy providing for the education of district employees' children. Tenafly contended it was compelled to abide by the terms of an injunction issued by the Commissioner and upheld on appeal in connection with prior litigation that prohibits the admittance of Englewood residents to THS.

ALJ found that since R.S. was a resident of Englewood and did not satisfy the limited exception for students attending eighth grade or high school in Tenafly on April 18, 1988, the injunction precluded him from entering THS. Englewood's motion to dismiss the petition was granted.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a Tenafly school employee seeking admission of his son to Tenafly High School pursuant to local school policy. The issue is whether the injunction by the State Board of Education that prohibits the admittance of Englewood residents to Tenafly High School applies to the facts of this case.

Petitioner contends that his son has been denied process of law. Alternatively, he seeks to carve out an exception to the injunction. For the following reasons, petitioner has not shown any right to relief.

Procedural History

On July 24, 1993, the Tenafly Board of Education ("Tenafly") notified D.S. that his son R.S. would not be allowed to attend Tenafly High School for the 1993-94 school year. Nearly four months later, on November 18, 1993, D.S. filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner").[1] Tenafly filed an answer on January 31, 1994, essentially contending that it was compelled to abide by terms of an injunction issued in connection with prior litigation. Subsequently, on February 14, 1994, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

At the direction of the OAL, Tenafly served notice of the pendency of this matter on the Board of Education of Englewood and the Board of Education of Englewood Cliffs. On May 23, 1994, the Board of Education of Englewood ("Englewood") filed moving papers, including a supporting certification and brief, seeking intervention status and summary disposition dismissing the appeal. The OAL held a hearing on [1] N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) requires that an appeal be filed "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education. . which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." Under this rule, it would appear that the appeal is untimely. However, none of the parties raised this defense and the issue will not be addressed.

May 27, 1994. Initially, the OAL granted the application for intervention, but reserved judgment on the summary decision motion. After petitioner presented his proofs, however, the OAL granted the motion for dismissal.

Findings of Fact

In deciding a motion for involuntary dismissal at the end of petitioner's proofs, the judge must accept as true all the evidence which supports the petitioner's position, including all inferences which can reasonably and legitimately be drawn in petitioner's favor.[2] Here, it appears that all of the relevant facts are undisputed. I FIND:

D.S. has been a music teacher in the Tenafly public school district for approximately twenty years. He, his wife and son live in the City of Englewood. From kindergarten to eighth grade, R.S. attended school in Tenafly under a policy which apparently allowed the children of the school employees to attend school in that district free of charge.[3] Currently, R.S., who is fifteen years old, goes to ninth grade at Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood. Next year (1994-95), he will enter tenth grade.

One of petitioner's major complaints is that the family did not learn that R.S. would be unable to attend Tenafly High School until July 1993. Although the matter received widespread publicity and was extensively covered by the media, petitioner and his wife did not realize that the injunction applied to children of Tenafly district employees. Through no fault of the Englewood district for whose benefit the injunction was imposed, neither Tenafly officials nor the negotiating unit informed petitioner that the injunction applies to all residents of Englewood. Moreover, the family was lulled into a false sense of security by the fact that an older son, who was an eighth grade student in April 1988, fell into a recognized exception and was allowed to continue at Tenafly High School.

[3] On the existing record, it is unclear whether this policy was ever incorporated in a collective negotiating agreement or set forth in a policy statement approved by the school board. D.S. acknowledged that he "was not sure if the policy was written down."

Last September when R.S. started going to Dwight Morrow, he had already learned much of the material taught in his algebra class. His teachers quickly recognized the problem and arranged to provide him with enrichment. By January, the class had progressed to a higher level of math. Indeed R.S. testified that, "it is [his] hardest class now." In any event, the issue will soon be moot. In tenth grade, R.S. will be taking geometry, a subject which he has never had before.

R.S. is an accomplished violinist. While in Tenafly, he participated in the orchestra program for six years. He had hoped to continue with this activity in high school. According to his father, R.S. plays for fun but does not aspire to pursue music as a career. When he came to Dwight Morrow, R.S. signed up for the string ensemble offered at the middle school. But it soon became apparent that R.S. was much more advanced than the other students, most of whom were in lower grades. Thus, R.S. dropped his only music course and substituted a business elective. In the past he took private music lessons. Englewood is receptive to developing an independent study program that would allow R.S. to continue developing his musical talents.

Testimony suggest that R.S. has made a smooth adjustment and is "happy with his teachers at Dwight Morrow." Nevertheless, R.S. feels that he does not "share many common interests" with his classmates. The record further reflects, however, that R.S. grew up in the Englewood community and that he played on a Little League team with other children who are students at Dwight Morrow.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that summary judgment should be granted in favor of Englewood.

As the result of protracted litigation, on July 11, 1988 the Commissioner ordered that Tenafly "cease and desist from admitting to its high school on a tuition or other basis any students who are residents of either Englewood or Englewood Cliffs." Englewood Cliffs Bd. of Educ. v. Englewood Bd. of Educ., 12 N.J.A.R. 566, 663 (Comm'r July 11, 1988). Narrow exceptions exist for "resident students from those districts who were enrolled in and attending either [Tenafly High School] or eighth grade in the Tenafly School District on the date of the initial decision in this matter, April 18, 1988." Although the reach of the injunction does not extend to grades below the secondary level, "no Englewood or Englewood Cliffs resident student so attending Tenafly in a grade lower than those of its high school shall be allowed to attend [Tenafly High School] when he/she reaches that level of schooling." Id. Afterwards, this injunction was upheld by the State Board of Education, 12 N.J.A.R. 663, 697 (St. Bd. April 4, 1990), by the Appellate Division, 257 N.J. Super. 413 (App. Div. 1992) and by the New Jersey Supreme Court, 132 N.J. 327 (1993).

It is undeniable that the injunction applies to the present factual situation. The State Board plainly stated that, > . . . we have concluded that it is essential that our directives apply uniformly to all high school students from Engelwood and Englewood Cliffs so that our objective in directing the measures herein may be achieved. Accordingly, we have rejected the Intervenor's arguments that, as the ALJ recommended, all students from Englewood and Englewood Cliffs enrolled in the school district of Tenafly at the time of the initial decision, regardless of grade level, should be permitted to attend Tenafly High School. Although we recognize that our decision may require some students in the lower grade levels who are enrolled in the Tenafly district to alter their plans with respect to their high school education, such impact is not significant enough to warrant undermining our decision by exempting all such students from its terms. 12 N.J.A.R. at 697.

On at least two occasions, the Department of Education has issued clarifying rulings that enforce the injunction under circumstances similar to our own. In the F.N. case, an Englewood resident employed by the Tenafly school district argued that his child must be allowed to continue his education at Tenafly High School. Rejecting this approach, the Commissioner declared that the intent of the injunction was not only "for the immediate purpose of halting the flow of Englewood and Englewood Cliffs students to Tenafly High School, but also for the long-term purpose of cleansing this tainted atmosphere." Moreover, the Commissioner agreed with the Englewood Board's position that establishing "a bright line" will curb the potential for applications which might otherwise be filed before the Commissioner on behalf of individual students seeking to be admitted to Tenafly High School. Englewood Cliffs Bd. of Educ. v. Englewood Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1086-86 (Comm'r Sept. 6, 1989), slip op. at 8.

Similarly, on April 4, 1990, the State Board rejected the request by the parents of A.S., a seventh grader from Englewood Cliffs, that the injunction be modified to permit her to remain at Tenafly High School. Instead, the Board noted that, "as a seventh grader at the time of the ALJ's initial decision, she had more than a year after the Commissioner's decision to make plans for her high school education." 12 N.J.A.R. at 698.

Due process does not require that every individual in the three communities whose rights may potentially be affected by the results now or in the future be joined as parties. Both the Tenafly and the Englewood Cliffs Boards of Education vigorously asserted the same interest which petitioner is now seeking to vindicate. Each of the arguments made by petitioner has already been thoroughly considered in the context of the underlying litigation. In 1985, when the original suit was filed, R.S. was only six years old. It would be totally impractical to expect that Englewood give notice not only to the parents of every student then attending Tenafly High School, but to the parents of every succeeding generation as well. Precisely for this reason, the three communities were adequately represented by their elected officials.

From the case law cited, it is clear that an administrative law judge is not at liberty to create additional exceptions to the injunction prescribed by the State Board. Even if such authority did exist, this would not be an appropriate setting for the exercise of such power. Every fact finder who reviewed the voluminous record in the earlier litigation has held that Dwight Morrow is "a very good school." (257 N.J. Super. at 461). Inevitably, school districts must make choices on what course selections to offer. In some areas, the program at Dwight Morrow may be superior. In others, Tenafly High School may have the better program. But R.S. is assured of receiving a good education, regardless of which district he attends. Thus, petitioner is unable to demonstrate that he will suffer substantial harm if relief is not granted.

In conclusion, the State Board drew a clear line for the purpose of avoiding continuing litigation. There is much value in finally putting to rest this hotly contested matter between neighboring communities. Since R.S. is a resident of Englewood and does not satisfy the limited exception for students attending eighth grade or high school in Tenafly on April 18, 1988, the injunction precludes him from entering high school in Tenafly now.

Order

It is ORDERED that Englewood's motion to dismiss the petition is granted.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

(Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, Attorneys)

Record Closed: June 8, 1994 Decided: June 10, 1994

BEFORE: ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ

On September 25, 1992 the petitioner, Denise Scarano, filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that, after she had been subject to a reduction in force (RIF), the respondent school district violated her tenure and seniority rights by assigning nontenured and less senior persons to teach courses to which she was entitled.

The respondent filed an answer on October 14, 1992, and on October 22, 1992 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

A prehearing conference was held on Mary 23, 1993, and a prehearing order was entered, defining and limiting the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery, and dealing with other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing. It was contemplated that other teaching staff members, whose positions and teaching assignments could be affected by the result in this matter, would want to intervene or participate in order to protect their rights and positions. Therefore, counsel were asked to give letter notice to such persons who were mentioned in the petition plus any others who might be affected by the result of this case.

Motions were subsequently filed by five other teaching staff members who felt that their positions might be affected, and wished to be heard. Oral argument was held on these motions on June 9, 1993. This resulted in the entry of a procedural order dated August 18, 1993, which permitted two persons, Henry P. Petite Jr. (by Louis Bucceri, Esq., Bucceri & Pincus.) and Janis Maziarski, (by Paul L. Kleinbaum, Esq., Zazzali, Zazzali Fagella & Nowak) to intervene, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:11-16.1 and 16.3(a). Rights to participate, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6, were granted to 3 other persons, Diana Kroop, (by Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., Weinberg & Kaplow), Mary Hannon, (by Nancy Oxfeld, Esq., Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen) and Joan A. Leicht (by Lauren McGovern, Esq., Springstead & Maurice). The order also provided for discovery to be exchanged by and between the parties, including intervenors and participants.

Additional conferences were held in the succeeding months, and a final hearing date was scheduled for May 13, 1994. During the interim, 4 of the 5 intervenors and participants withdrew from the action, because petitioner, after reviewing the discovery, advised that she did not intend to assert any claim against their positions. Only Henry P. Petite, Jr. remained as an intervenor. During this period of time, the parties continued to discuss the possibilities for settlement.

Approximately one month before the hearing, counsel for respondent advised that an offer of settlement that had been proposed by the Bloomfield Board of Education had been accepted. A written settlement agreement was then drawn and signed by the petitioner and by the Superintendent of Schools, for respondent. Since the petitioner released the Board from the claims set forth in the petition, and Ms. Scarano resigned from her position on the preferred eligibility list, in exchange for payment of a sum of money, any claim she may have had against the remaining intervenor became moot.

A copy of the settlement agreement, filed in the OAL on June 8, 1994, is attached hereto and made apart hereof.

Based on the foregoing, it is CONCLUDED that the dispute has been resolved, and that the parties have voluntarily and knowingly agreed to the settlement, as evidence by the attached documents. It is further CONCLUDED that the settlement is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that the settlement be approved, and this matter DISMISSED, with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

THIS AGREEMENT, made this 29th day of February, 1994, by and between the parties, Denise Scarano, residing at 825 Riverside Road, Unit 106, Lyndhurst, New Jersey, 07071 (hereafter referred to as "Scarano") and the Bloomfield Board of Education with principal offices located at 155 Broad Street, Bloomfield, New Jersey, 07003 (hereafter referred to as "Board"),

W I T N E S S E T H :

WHEREAS, Scarano, a tenured teaching staff member, was advised of non-reemployment due to a reduction in force by the Board effective for the 1992-93 school year; and

WHEREAS, notice of non-reemployment was provided by the Board to Scarano, and

WHEREAS, a Petition of Appeal was filed by Scarano against the Board alleging that the Reduction in Force and her non-reemployment violated her tenure and seniority rights; and

WHEREAS, both the Board and Scarano desire to enter into this Agreement as full and final settlement of all claims arising between them;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties contained herein, it is mutually agreed as follows:

1. The Board agrees to pay to Scarano the amount of $4,000.00,* [illegible]

2. Scarano agrees to execute all necessary documents for the judicial matter with Docket No. EDU-8235-92, pending before the Commissioner of Education to be dismissed with prejudice and without costs.

* This lump sum payment represents a compromise of the Petitioner's claims against the Respondent, and not back wages.

3. Scarano, being of full age, does hereby release and forever discharge the Board, its agents, servants and employees from any and all claims, demands, rights, and causes of action of any nature whatsoever, which she now has or may later have arising from or in any way connected with her employment with the Board and the facts and circumstances surrounding her non-reemployment. Scarano does hereby resign from her position on the preferred eligibility list of the Board, such that she has no further employment rights or entitlement with the Board. This release expressly includes any claims for compensatory damages, punitive damages, back or front pay claims, fringe benefits, reinstatement, and includes all attorneys fees, and any other costs and expenses incurred by Scarano.

4. It is specifically acknowledged and understood by all parties hereto that none of the parties is to be regarded as the prevailing party for any purposes. It is understood and agreed that this Settlement is the compromise of a disputed claim and is not and should not be construed as an admission by either party of any liability or the violation of law, statute, ordinance, regulation or legal or moral duty whatsoever, nor be cited as precedent, nor used in any manner by any party in the future in any judicial or administrative proceeding.

5. Scarano expressly acknowledges that she has had opportunity to consult with competent legal counsel concerning the terms and conditions of this settlement, that she knows and understands the contents of this settlement agreement and release, and that she enters into it of her own free will and without any inducement not contained herein.

6. This Settlement Agreement and Release contains the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and constitutes full and final settlement to all claims. This Release and Settlement Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey. This Agreement incorporates the complete financial obligation of the Board with regard to its employment relationship with Scarano. The Board will be obligated to make no other payments or have any further employment relationship with Scarano, except as specifically set forth in this Agreement

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have set their hands and seals as of the date first above written.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The Camden Board of Education and Diane Lawrence agree to settle OAL Docket No. EDU-9847-93S on the following terms:

1. The Board hereby agrees to withdraw the tenure charges filed against Ms. Lawrence upon full execution of this Agreement.

2. Ms. Lawrence agrees to render her written resignation from the Camden Board of Education, effective June 30, 1994. The resignation shall be forwarded to the Board Secretary.

3. Ms. Lawrence shall be placed on a paid leave of absence through June 30, 1994.

4. In return for her resignation and the settlement of this case, the Board shall reimburse Ms. Lawrence for 120 days wages not paid in the fall of 1993. The Board's records shall be modified to reflect a paid Leave of Absence instead of suspension for the 120 days period.

5. Upon acceptance of the Board's withdrawal request by the OAL, all records of the tenure charges shall be expunged from the Board's files on Ms. Lawrence.

6. In response to any request for information or recommendation from a prospective employer, the Board agrees to provide only dates of employment with the Board and her position.

7. Ms. Lawrence agrees not to apply for any employment with the Camden Board of Education subsequent to her resignation.

8. The Parties mutually agree that they will not file, charge, claim, sue or cause or permit to be filed, charged or claimed any action for legal or equitable relief (including damages, injunctive, declaratory, monetary or other relief) against the other party.

9. The parties recognize that each has been represented by counsel and that each enters this Agreement voluntarily and without coercion. Additionally, Ms. Lawrence understands that the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(A)(1) and In re Cardonick, may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners.

10. This Settlement Agreement and Release is subject to the approval and acceptance of the Commissioner of Education. If the Commissioner of Education rejects said settlement, it becomes null and void and the parties shall be placed in their respective positions status quo ante.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DIANA LAWRENCE, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

After a careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured as he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standard for settlement of tenure matters. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846)

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed Superior Court January 30, 1986) The present record contains no such explanation.

The Commissioner notes that his determination in this regard was highly influenced by the serious nature of the charges, i.e., allegations of the infliction of corporal punishment on students. While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the school children of this State, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside of tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Further, it is noted that settlement term #6 states:

> In response to any request for information or recommendation from a prospective employer, the Board agrees to provide only dates of employment with the Board and her position.

While the Board is not specifically required to provide publicly the reasons for separation, it must make such information available upon request, pursuant to Executive Order No. 11 (1974), which states, in pertinent part, that the following information be public:

> a. An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service in the instrumentality of government and in the government, date of separation from government service and the reason therefor; and the amount and type of pension he is receiving;
> b. Data contained in information which disclose conformity with specific experiential, educational or medical qualifications required for government employment or for receipt of a public pension, but in no event shall detailed medical or psychological information be released. (emphasis added)

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot sanction terms in a settlement that would infringe in any way on the right of the Board to be fully forthcoming in responding to any inquiries that might arise concerning respondent's employment with the Board. See, e.g., John Salsberg v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner May 11, 1989.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further settlement negotiations consistent with the concerns herein expressed. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a plenary hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE
CAMDEN BOARD OF EDUCATION AND DIANA LAWRENCE
OAL DOCKET NO. EDU-9847-93S

The Camden Board of Education and Diana Lawrence agree to settle OAL Docket No. EDU-9847-93S on the following terms:

1. The Board agrees to withdraw the tenure charges filed against Ms. Lawrence in return for her written resignation from the Camden Board of Education, effective June 30, 1994.

2. The Board agrees to accept Ms. Lawrence's resignation and to withdraw the charges on the basis that it is in the best interest of the students of the District, who will not have to testify in a potentially lengthy and complex hearing involving also administrators and teachers.

3. The Board shall reimburse Ms. Lawrence for 120 days wages not paid in the fall of 1993. Ms. Lawrence has been on payroll for the balance of the 93-94 year, through June 30, 1994.

4. Upon acceptance of this settlement, the Board shall remove any record of the tenure charges from Ms. Lawrence's personnel file.

5. In response to any request for information or recommendation from a prospective employer, the Board will provide the same basic data it provides in response to inquiries from any prospective employer, namely, dates of employment, position/title and reason for separation of employment, i.e., resignation. The Board does not provide letters of recommendation for former employees.

6. The parties' respective actions of resignation and withdrawal of the tenure charges shall not constitute any admission by either party of any alleged fact/issue raised by this case.

7. Ms. Lawrence agrees not to apply for any employment with the Camden Board of Education subsequent to her resignation.

8. The parties mutually agree that they will not file, charge, claim, sue or cause or permit to be filed, charged or claimed any action for legal or equitable relief (including damages, injunctive, declaratory, monetary or other relief) against the other party.

9. The parties recognize that each has been represented by counsel and that each enters this Agreement voluntarily and without coercion. Additionally, Ms. Lawrence understands that the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(A)(1) and In re Cardonick, may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners.

10. This Settlement Agreement and Release is subject to the approval and acceptance of the Commissioner of Education. If the Commissioner of Education rejects said settlement, it becomes null and void and the parties shall be placed in their respective positions status quo ante.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed N.J.S.I.A.A.'s determination denying handicapped student's (S.C.) eligibility for track and field due to wheelchair use. S.C., a wheelchair athlete, sought to participate in N.J.S.I.A.A. sanctioned track events against able-bodied athletes.

Initial decision determined that S.C. was ineligible to compete in running events against able-bodied runners for his high school track team. ALJ found such denial of eligibility to compete did not violate the Rehabilitation Act because the essential nature of wheelchair racing is different from that of running and there is no conceivable reasonable accommodation. Moreover, equal protection had not been violated in that the action challenged was rationally related to the legitimate governmental interests of administering interscholastic athletics and student safety. Further, ALJ found N.J.S.I.A.A.'s action was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 29, 1994 Decided: June 21, 1994

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about April 19, 1993, petitioner, Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional Board of Education, filed a verified petition and order to show cause with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that the determination by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) not to grant the application of S.C. declaring him eligible for interscholastic competition in outdoor track in the 800, 1600 and 3200 meters, was arbitrary, capricious, without any foundation in fact and speculative. Petitioner further asserted that the exclusion of S.C. from participation in NJSIAA sanctioned track and field competitions on the basis of his handicap was contrary to and in fact violated the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C.A. §794 and federal regulations promulgated in accordance therewith. Essentially, petitioner sought a declaration that S.C. is eligible for interscholastic competition in outdoor track in the 800, 1600 and 3200 meter races. Respondent filed an answer on April 21, 1993, alleging that the petition fails to set forth a cause of action for which relief can be granted, that the relief sought in the petition seeks to materially alter the very nature of the track competition sanctioned by the NJSIAA and that the NJSIAA has done everything possible to make a "reasonable accommodation" for the handicap of S.C. and similarly situated student athletes.

On May 12, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on May 20, 1993, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for June 22, 1993. A prehearing conference was held on June 22, 1993 at which time the issue was isolated, and a hearing scheduled for December 20, 27, and 28, 1993 at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. The parties filed a stipulation of facts on December 20, 1993, and a hearing was held on December 20, 1993, and January 19, 1994, at the Office of Administrative Law. Witnesses who testified and exhibits marked into evidence at the time of the hearing are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed on March 29, 1994, after the submission of briefs. The time in which to file the initial decision was extended until June 27, 1994, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

ISSUE

The issue in this matter as stated by the parties is: Can a wheelchair athlete participate in NJSIAA sanctioned track events against able-bodied athletes?

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties filed a Stipulation of Facts (J-1) which is attached and incorporated herein. The stipulated facts are as follows:

1. Petitioner is a public body politic, organized under law and for the purpose of providing a free and appropriate education for eligible high school aged students residing within the boroughs of Carlstadt and East Rutherford, Bergen County, New Jersey.

2. Respondent NJSIAA is a voluntary, nonprofit association of approximately 430 public and parochial secondary schools in New Jersey. NJSIAA is a "voluntary association" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, and operates under a constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations which are approved by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-5. The NJSIAA administers, develops and implements interscholastic athletic competition between its member school districts.

3. Boards of Education which choose to join the NJSIAA are required to adopt the rules and regulations of the NJSIAA pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, and the rules and regulations are deemed to be the policy of each member Board of Education. The rules and regulations are enforced first through the internal procedures of the NJSIAA.

4. Petitioner Board of Education is a member of the NJSIAA, and sanctions interscholastic athletic competition through the association.

5. Petitioner has adopted the rules and procedures of the NJSIAA, as a member school district, and has agreed to abide by the associations rules and procedures as a statement of its own Board policy.

6. S.C. is a student at petitioner's high school facility, known as Henry P. Becton Regional High School, East Rutherford, New Jersey. S.C. attended ninth grade during the 1992-93 school year, and will attend tenth grade at the High School during the 1993-94 school year.

7. S.C. has been diagnosed as having spina bifida, a disease which restricts his ability to walk. S.C. is, for the most part, compelled to ambulate with the aid of a wheelchair.

8. S.C. is a "handicapped person" within the meaning of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

9. S.C. would like to compete on the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School track team. More specifically, he would like to compete, in his wheelchair, against runners in the 800, 1600 and 3200 meter races, as well as certain field events.

10. On or about March 15, 1993, Petitioner Board of Education filed an application for an eligibility determination with the NJSIAA. The application sought a determination that S.C. was eligible to compete in outdoor track and field, limited to the 800,1600 and 3200 meter events. The application requested that the NJSIAA adopt interim rules allowing wheelchair athletes to compete against runners in the 800, 1600 and 3200 meter races (Exhibit A). The application incorporated a certification of Elaine Gomez (Exhibit B). The parties stipulated that the certification constitutes what Ms. Gomez would testify to if called to the stand. There is no stipulation that the substance of the affidavit is factual or truthful.

11. On March 17, 1993, the Eligibility Appeals Committee of the NJSIAA met to consider petitioner's application. The committee considered the application, with attachments, and the certification of Elaine Gomez.

12. On April 1, 1993, the Eligibility Appeals Committee issued a seven page written decision denying petitioner's application, ruling that it would not amend its rules to permit wheelchair athletes to compete in the same race as runners (Exhibit C).

13. On April 1, 1993, petitioner board of education appealed the decision of the NJSIAA Eligibility Appeals Committee to the Commissioner of Education (Exhibit D).

14. On April 1, 1993, the NJSIAA filed an Answer to the Board's Petition with the Commissioner of Education (Exhibit E). After reviewing the pleadings, the Commissioner transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for development of a factual record.

15. On May 29, 1993, the NJSIAA held its first wheelchair track championships. The competition included 100 meter and 400 meter races for boy and girl wheelchair racers. The championships were held at the State Group Track Championships before approximately 5,000 spectators.

TESTIMONY

S.C. is a wheelchair athlete and he testified regarding his desire to participate on his high school track team. He described the out of school track and road races he participates in as a wheelchair athlete. He has competed with able-bodied runners in road races, where the wheelchair athletes start two to five minutes ahead of the able-bodied runners. He has not competed in this manner on a track. He noted that in short distance races, participants stay in single lanes. He produced his racing chair (P-1 for identification) and indicated that he would like to compete against runners in the 800, 1600 and 3200 meter races. Noting the slower start-up times for wheelchair athletes, he testified that wheelchair athletes are not competitive with able-bodied runners at short distances; wheelchair athletes do not reach comparable times with runners until approximately 800 meters. At greater distances, the racing advantage shifts to the wheelchair athlete. Thus, in the 1600 and 3200 meter races he would be competitive and therefore wants to compete for his school. Referring to Elaine Gomez's proposal, S.C. opined that the concept of segregated lanes would be feasible depending on the race.

S.C. stated that there is no high school program in New Jersey for wheelchair athletes. He does not participate in field events because there is no competition among wheelchair athletes and he has no chance of winning against able-bodied athletes. He has participated in the javelin, shot-put and discus outside of school. If there was a wheelchair program, he would participate in it. He opined that there can be no decent wheelchair program because there are simply not enough eligible people; he is the only wheelchair athlete in the high school and in the neighboring towns.

Other than a state meet in May, sponsored by the NJSIAA, he was not told of any other meets. He became aware of the NJSIAA program to which they invited wheelchair athletes two to three weeks before the state meet. The wheelchair participants had only two events, the 100 and 400 meter races, the winner of which could receive points for the team. The events were only open to wheelchair participants and five or six wheelchair athletes competed. The able-bodied athletes had all of the other track and field events. He did not apply because he had a prior engagement, but intends to sign up for the 1994 track event. Noting that the high school has nine track meets and that the county and state events are in addition, he asserted his desire to participate, if not compete with, able-bodied athletes.

On cross-examination, he stated that there is no national record for 1600 meter and 3200 meter races for wheelchair athletes. Wheelchair athletes participate in a 1500 meter race and then in a 5000 meter race, which are not standard high school events. He indicated that the average speed for a wheelchair athlete in a two-mile race is 14 mph.

S.C. stated that the track at Becton is cinder and that he has not raced on a cinder track. Since the wheels of the wheelchair would sink into the cinder, he would not be competitive on this track. The cinder would not harm the chair, but he could not train on it effectively. S.C. explained that in his wheelchair, he sits bent over, with his face two to two and one-half feet from the ground. He agreed that the cinders would be kicked up into his face and indicated that he would get a special screen to protect his face.

On redirect examination, S.C. indicated that most of the schools have a synthetic track and that he could practice elsewhere. He contended that if the cinder track were rolled flatter this would help to some degree. On recross-examination, he admitted that he does not know how many tracks are synthetic in his area and that even if the cinder track were rolled out it would be eaten up by the spikes. On questioning by this judge, S.C. indicated that the track team runs on their home track at least three or four times during the season. If he could avoid competing on a cinder track he would, but if he had to, he could compete on a cinder track. He noted that the difference between a synthetic track (in which it is common to run a wheelchair) and a cinder track is the difference between pushing on a road and pushing in sand.

S.C. has competed throughout the country; he participated in seven or eight meets last year. However, there is no sanctioned integrated competition between wheelchair athletes and foot racers. S.C. explained the concept of "drafting" i.e., the lift the wheelchair racer gets from the wheelchair racing in front of him. He noted that this is an essential tactic in wheelchair racing and makes position important. In road races, wheelchair racers line up with the runners, but start first. He agreed that usually the events are judged separately. He noted that there could be an advantage for wheelchair racers depending on the equipment utilized. He admitted that during a race, the wheelchair could use many lanes of the track, not just the first lane, and agreed that there are special rules for wheelchair races regarding passing.

On the issue of safety, S.C. stated that he has never been in an accident in a wheelchair. He has seen accidents between wheelchairs, (wheelchair racers lose their balance and the chair falls over), not between wheelchairs and runners. An accident could occur if one loses control of the chair, or due to drafting. He recalled an accident at the men's 2000 meter race at the Paralympic games, which involved eight or nine of the twelve competitors. He believed this was because someone tried to draft. If one loses control of the "compensator," the wheelchair could move into another lane or towards the inside of the track. He agreed that the wheelchair could get a flat tire and that spokes sometimes become loose. Usually before every track meet or every other track meet, the wheelchair is fully checked out by the coach or an official. He agreed that there are coaches and officials who have been specially trained by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association to know what to look for. S.C. wears a helmet because of the danger factor.

Referring to the 3200 meter race, S.C. opined that even if he had to start a lap and one-half ahead of the runners, he would believe that he was competing. He agreed that in some cases the distance would not be equalized until the last straightway. If a runner made up the stagger, that runner would be a lap and a half ahead. Although that would not be perfect competition, it would still amount to competition. S.C., one of the best wheelchair athletes in the area, contended that he is willing to deal with that competition.

S.C. explained that the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA) has certain classifications for wheelchair participants. One would have to consider how each individual wheelchair athlete could compete. It would not be fair for him to race against an amputee. He opined that the different factors could be adopted from the NWAA standard.

He admitted that he filled out a questionnaire (R-1) that he was interested in participating in the state competition, but was not aware that he was expected in the state competition. He thought the questionnaire referred to participating in high school track in general and when he filled it out he did not know of the state meet. He agreed that he has chances to compete outside of school and that it would be unrealistic for his school to have a wheelchair team since he is the only person in the school in a wheelchair.

Boyd A. Sands, Executive Director of the NJSIAA, testified for respondent. He has been employed in the public schools of New Jersey as an educator for 34 years and during that period of time also served in various capacities with the NJSIAA. He has also been associated with the NJSIAA as an interscholastic athletic official for over 30 years. He served on the executive committee of the National High School Federation.

Sands explained that the NJSIAA is a voluntary organization made up of more than 430 public, parochial and private schools in the State of New Jersey. The association provides its offices to the member schools for the governing of all of the interscholastic sports in the State, including rules and eligibility in state tournament competition. The NJSIAA sponsors over 20 sports. It provides the rulemaking process, the officials and regulations for all the contests. The member schools are not obligated to participate in all of the sports. The superintendent of schools recommends to the board of education, the activities and sports program for the respective school. The board than acts on this recommendation. Approximately 400 schools participate in track and field. New sports are developed through individual leagues and conferences and member schools. If a specific school district wants a certain sport, that district approves the sport, which comes under the auspices of the NJSIAA. The constitution and by laws of the association are adopted each year by individual boards of education as part of their policy.

Individual schools may propose a revision to the rules. This is submitted to an advisory committee which reviews the recommendation and determines whether to recommend it to the executive committee. The executive committee acts on the recommendation, with any revisions it deems appropriate. In addition, a school district could propose a rule, and if it is not accepted by the advisory committee or the executive committee, it can have the membership vote upon it by obtaining the signatures of 20 member schools. That automatically places it on the ballot at the annual meeting. At the annual meeting, all the principals or athletic directors vote on the legislation. Sands indicated that no one from either Becton Regional or the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Board of Education made any proposed rule changes which would allow a wheelchair athlete to participate in track and field events. They have not made any proposed changes to allow wheelchair athletes to participate in separate events. No rule changes have been proposed for any other sports for the disabled.

The NJSIAA is involved with leagues and conferences, to the extent that individual schools desire to enter a specific league, change a league or a nonconference school decides to enter a league. Otherwise, the NJSIAA does not have authority over leagues and conferences and has no authority to dictate to leagues or conferences what sports to recognize or the specific events the leagues and conferences will recognize. The NJSIAA has direct supervisory responsibility for state championships.

The application for eligibility for S.C. was filed by Becton Regional before the eligibility appeals committee. Eligibility questions usually go first to the eligibility committee. An appeal from the committee's determination goes to the eligibility appeals committee. In the instant matter, in order to allow for a speedy decision, the appeal went directly to the eligibility appeals committee. The eligibility appeals committee ruled that S.C. would be ineligible to race against other foot racers. That was a final decision of the NJSIAA.

Sands stated that representatives of the athletic association met with representatives of the wheelchair athletic association to bring wheelchair events into track and field competitions. Steps were taken to develop programs for youngsters involved with wheelchair athletics (R-2) and to develop the championship events that took place at the end of the last school year at the state group championships. (R-1 and R-3). The principal of Becton Regional was advised that the NJSIAA would hold an event at the state championship and that they were under the impression that S.C. was interested in participating in that event.

Sands testified that the NJSIAA is still meeting with the wheelchair association in regard to what the association can do for handicapped youngsters and to determine whether to expand the events in this year's track meet. They conducted a survey in late spring of last year, which indicated that there were only seven or eight students who would be interested in participating in wheelchair athletics. They are going to do another survey to get a better sample. Further, they are surveying other states to determine what they do in regard to creating opportunities for wheelchair athletes.

Sands surveyed the programs for wheelchair athletes in Minnesota and Louisiana (R-4 and R-5).

Sands noted that the medical advisory committee of the NJSIAA does not recommend the commingling of wheelchair athletes with foot runners in races. They have safety concerns. Sands also discussed this issue with Frank Kovaleski, assistant director of the National Federation of State High School Association, liaison to the National Federation, Track and Field Rules Committee. Kovaleski is the rules interpreter for the National Federation on track matters. He is the liaison between the federation rules committee and the State. Kovaleski wrote a letter in regard to his position (R-6). Sands noted that the national track and field rules committee must give approval to any rule changes.

Sands further indicated that there are waivers for disabled or handicapped students relative to eligibility. Waivers are issued when it does not materially alter the competition. Thus, for example, an individual may participate with a prosthesis.

Sands further indicated that if the number of handicapped athletes increased, they would then be in a position to have an enlarged program for member schools. He explained that if the member school does not individually decide to sponsor the activity than the NJSIAA cannot do it. It is an organization that works through its members. He further pointed to problems in regard to transporting handicapped youngsters to the interscholastic athletic events and the fact that track and field officials are not knowledgeable in the rules and regulations for wheelchair athletes. He noted issues in regard to finding coaches, equipment, costs of equipment and insurance. He indicated, however, that the NJSIAA is committed to having another state championship meet for wheelchair athletes and hoped that it would expand by communications to the member schools and through meetings with school people through the state involved with handicapped youngsters.

On cross-examination, Sands admitted that the rules and regulations of the NJSIAA (J-2) are subject to state and federal rules and regulations. To the best of his knowledge, the instant case was the first that was brought by a member school to the NJSIAA. (No other member school has brought the issue of wheelchair athletes to the attention of the NJSIAA.) He indicated that the NJSIAA sanctions about 90 percent of the athletic events in the schools. He admitted that Minnesota and Louisiana both have a program for wheelchair athletes. He agreed that the NJSIAA program had consisted of one event with four races and the event scheduled for 1994 is also a one-day activity which they hoped to expand. The races are not run with the able-bodied athletes.

Referring to the American Disabilities Act, Sands agreed that it is his job to determine which activity should be sought after and to get additional sanctioning for wheelchair athletes. Furthemore, the NJSIAA was concerned with this issue prior to the instant action. He admitted that the NJSIAA never petitioned the national federation to change the rules and regulations to allow wheelchair athletes to participate in any of the 26 events that they sanction and agreed that legislation could be presented on behalf of the executive committee on its own initiative.

He indicated that there was potential danger with the wheelchair athlete and the runner competing on the track at the same time. The runner could fall, and there could be a collision between an able-bodied runner and the wheelchair. This could occur even if they were in separate lanes because runners could leave their lanes. He stated that he has seen able-bodied runners fall down and cause a pile-up, but admitted that collisions happen both with able-bodied athletes and wheelchair athletes. He opined that there is more opportunity for collisions and accidents to take place on the secondary school level than on the Olympic level.

Noting that coaches are hard to find for regular sports, he was not sure that the average high school coach would be able to inspect a wheelchair or know the aspect of drafting. (He did not believe that able-bodied track participants "draft.") Although he participated in track (he was a "field man"), he never coached it and does not know about drafting. He believed the individual school district would be concerned about the cost of equipment and insurance. While the NJSIAA maintains insurance for state tournaments and competitions, the individual school district maintains insurance for its respective interscholastic programs. Although, he opined that an add-on is usually an increased cost, he did not specifically know the parameters of Becton's policy.

On redirect-examination, Sands confirmed that there has not been any movement by the membership to include wheelchair sports among the NJSIAA sanctioned sports. However, it has been the policy to include handicapped or disabled students wherever their inclusion would not materially alter the event (e.g. swimming and wrestling). Sands also indicated that he met with the NWAA at the end of January 1993.

Laura Schwanger competed in high school track and field events, softball, tennis, and basketball. She was on the crew team in college and on the volleyball team while in the army. Diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1981, she has been in a wheelchair since 1982. She became involved in wheelchair athletics in 1985 and testified to her substantial experience in that area. She was qualified as an expert in wheelchair sports.

She indicated that presently the only time wheelchair athletes and able-bodied runners are on the same surface is in a road race. According to wheelchair sports' rules, the wheelchair must yield to the able-bodied runner. Since it takes a wheelchair longer to get to top end speed, wheelchair athletes start (anywhere from one minute to 10 minutes), before the able-bodied runners. She testified to an accident she had during a road race. A runner (probably doing a six or six and half minute mile) caught up to her and on her way down the hill (she was probably going 22 mph), in order to avoid making contact with the runner, she rolled her wheelchair over; she was hospitalized. Schwanger witnessed collisions during wheelchair races. More particularly, she recalled collisions on the track at the Paralympics in 1992. Eleven chairs were involved in the crash and did not finish the race. She opined that there is probably one collision a year at the national events. There were numerous collisions at the nationals in 1990 at Hofstra, collisions in road races, and in 1986 at the Boston marathon.

Schwanger explained that there is equipment failure at all levels of competition. Spokes could become loose, the spring mechanism could collapse, and tires could blow out causing the chair to veer to the right or left. Further, there could be a chain reaction affecting the entire group. In wheelchair races, men average from 17 to 19 miles an hour and reach 24 to 25 miles an hour at sprints. She noted the concept of drafting and explained the use of the compensator. If a compensator is not set properly, one could run into the inside rail, the infield, or veer out of lane. During a race, it is difficult to change the setting of the compensator.

Schwanger agreed that accidents happen between wheelchair racers as well as between foot racers and that there is drafting among foot racers. Noting that in races over 800 meters, one can merge after the first 100 meter staggered start, she agreed that accidents happen when racers merge in and out of lanes. (In the 100 and 400 meter races one must stay in one's lane the entire race.) Schwanger opined that there is probably an equal number of accidents in elite and nonelite races and did not know whether the reasons for accidents in those races were the same. Elite racers might push or race in a pack which could increase the number of accidents. Schwanger opined, however, that chair malfunction accounts for 40 to 50 percent of the collisions. Most crashes are attributable to malfunctions of some sort, either the racer or the chair.

Schwanger indicated that if the three outside lanes were utilized for the wheelchair racers and the three inside lanes for the foot racers, that would alleviate the safety issues between the wheelchair athletes and the able-bodied runners. However, there would have to be a solid barrier between the two sets of lanes. Moreover, this would not alleviate the safety issues between the chairs. She opined that if one mixes two groups that already have collisions or safety issues, one is exacerbating the situation.

Schwanger described the cinder track as soft, thus causing the wheelchair tires to cut into the track. " It's going to throw cinders behind them and in a drafting situation, you have people directly behind you that you're throwing cinders on." She stated that the wheelchair participant is also throwing cinders into his or her own face and if involved in a crash, would either be eating the cinders or end up with abrasions, cuts and bruises. Wheelchair racers traditionally compete on hard, solid surface tracks, rubberized track surfaces and macadam. They never compete on cinder tracks. They would be slower and less competitive on a cinder track and would not show their true abilities. The steering would not be as responsive and the chair could slide, causing a safety hazard. After the race, the track would have to be groomed for the able-bodied to run on it or for the next wheelchair race because there would be established grooves in the track. If an able-bodied runner were to run on the track with the grooves, the runner could suffer knee damage or twist an ankle. She recommended that the wheelchair participants wear glasses and noted when helmets are required. (Helmets are required for all juniors, adults participating in races 800 meters and up and in all road races.)

In addition, she noted that the purpose of the racing wheelchair is to make a disabled person a more competitive athlete; it is not designed to be a safety chair. Based on the body positioning in a racing wheelchair (the head is three feet off the ground and downward), the able-bodied runner might not see the wheelchair racer and the wheelchair racer might not see the able-bodied runner. This could cause a major collision. Although an able-bodied runner could jump out of the way, it is very hard for a wheelchair to quickly alter its path.

Schwanger noted that wheelchair racers use similar tactics to those used in bicycle races, where they run in a pack. In wheelchair racing, the racers compete against other persons with similar levels of disabilities. A wheelchair racer has a medical classification or category (made by a medical classifier) based on a medical examination and a functional section of the classification. Thus, a paraplegic would not compete against a quadriplegic.

Schwanger compared the times of wheelchair athletes with those of runners at the same distances. At the 800 meter level, the elite wheelchair racers are still a few seconds slower than the elite runners, while at the 1500 meter distance, the wheelchair racers are a few seconds faster than the able-bodied runners. She did not believe that just because the times cross somewhere between the 800 and 1500 meter races means that those races could be competitively raced between foot runners and wheelchair racers. Schwanger stated the difference as follows:

> A person running is running with just their body. A wheelchair racer, the operative word there is the adjective, "the wheelchair." I am propelling a machine.

Referring to the Gomez affidavit, Schwanger stated that she checked the official records and that the wheelchair times in the affidavit are incorrect; they have all dropped since the initial statistics were published. Noting that Gomez took the fastest time at each distance, without referring to classification, Schwanger stated that she also did this and the fastest time actually came from paraplegic men. She noted that the 100 meter was :15.19, the 200 meter :27.09, the 400 meter :52.26, the 800 meter 1:47, the 1500 meter 3:18.71, the 5000 meter 11:30.70. The 10,000 meter road race was at 20:24..

Of import, Schwanger indicated that there is no sanctioned competition between wheelchair athletes and able-bodied runners. In fact, there are no track events in which wheelchair athletes and able-bodied runners compete at the same time on the track. Although they could both be in a road race with a waive start, there would still be no competition between wheelchair racers and able-bodied runners. If wheelchair athletes raced against able-bodied runners and there was a staggered start, the race would not be tactically competitive. The necessary jockeying for position would not occur, and the runners could use the wheelchair to help pace them. She noted that a wheelchair has an advantage at distances greater than 1500 meters.

Schwanger, who is a coach, attended the NJSIAA meet in the spring of 1993 which included wheelchair events. She had coached J.H., but she came as an observer of J.H., in the 100 and the 400 meter races in the state championship. The stands were full of spectators; there was only standing room. She indicated that it was an amazing event and opined that she saw history in the making. When asked her opinion as to whether wheelchair racers should race against foot racers in the same race, she opined that wheelchair athletes should not run against able-bodied runners.

On cross-examination, Schwanger stated that J.H., a high school senior in the Abzagamy school district was coached for the event by her high school track coach. Schwanger went to the state meet as an interested participant. She noted that J.H. trains at the high school track with her track team and competed in dual meets during the season with her school in events for wheelchair racers. She wore the track team's uniform at the competition. J.H. received the same medals at the championships that foot racers received. She noted that there were two races (the 100 and 400 meter) in the state meet. She did not know why there were no other wheelchair races besides the 100 and 400 meters and agreed there were races for the foot racers in all divisions. She indicated that J.H. does not compete in longer races than the 400. She explained that the six wheelchair racers (three men and three women) raced together but the women competed against each other and the men competed against each other. This is frequently done in wheelchair sports to save time and because the numbers are so small. She agreed that it looked better to have them race together. She has seen the three men compete in other than the 100 or 400 meter races. She agreed that the competition offered to the wheelchair racers was not the same as the competition offered to the foot racers.

Significantly, Schwanger believed that high school wheelchair racers should be entitled to wear their school's uniform and to practice with their school's track team. The practice could be at the same time, if the wheelchair is allotted a certain lane. This would benefit the wheelchair athlete who would then be coached by the high school track coach. Schwanger did not see why a wheelchair athlete should not receive a varsity letter but believed the athlete should understand that it might not carry over into later life. Schwanger could not think of any rules or equipment changes that would allow foot racers and wheelchair racers to compete in the same competition. The fact that foot racers and wheelchair racers are on the track at the same time makes it "unacceptable"; it's not the same race.

Schwanger indicated that even if foot racers and wheelchair racers were on the same track, with a divider, competing only against each other, there would still be a major safety factor. The barrier would have to be about three feet high to keep the chair on the outside and there would not be enough lanes. (Wheelchairs use at least three to four lanes.)

Questioned as to Gomez's proposed rules, she indicated in regard to rule No. 4 that wheelchair racers should be able to break but not in only three lanes. They need four or five lanes. She opposed rule No. 1 because it allows foot racers to race with chair racers and opposed rule No. 2 because it gives an advantage to the able-bodied foot runner to be paced by the wheelchair racer and allows them to be on the track at the same time.

On redirect examination, Schwanger opined that the chances of mishaps are greater if there are a group of wheelchair racers and a group of able-bodied runners in a particular area. Questioned as to the Gomez affidavit, Schwanger indicated that it does not say anything about requiring the wheelchair athletes to remain in their lanes the entire race. The races outlined in the affidavit are longer than 800 meters and traditionally not run in lane. On recross examination, she agreed that the rules in Gomez's affidavit were only suggested rules to the NJSIAA. She did not know whether the NJSIAA had adopted rules concerning wheelchair athletics.

Donald E. Danser has been employed by Rancocas Valley Regional High School as a Latin and journalism teacher for 25 years. He is the meet director for the sectional South Jersey cross-country NJSIAA track program and the co-director for both the winter and outdoor spring programs. Involved with the NJSIAA since 1976, he coached track at Rancocas Valley from 1972 until 1982. As the director of the state outdoor track competition, he explained his duties and responsibilities as meet director of the NJSIAA championships.

The state is divided into four geographical regions. In each section there are approximately 80 schools and a site for boys and for girls teams. Each site runs a track meet. The top six finishers in each event go to the two-day statewide meet held at South Plainfield. The top six winners of all the groups come together for the championship meet the following week. Danser is responsible for one section, the group meet, and the meet of champions. Danser has participated in or organized over 500 meets. He was qualified as an expert in the operation of track and field meets.

Danser was responsible for the state meet in which wheelchair athletes competed. He indicated that approximately 360 schools in the State of New Jersey are involved in track and field. (Approximately 430 schools are members of the NJSIAA.) The sprints are 100, 200 and 400 meter races, while the distance events are 800, 1600 and 3200 meters. There are no 1500 meter or 3000 meter races. He noted that S.C. is not prohibited from participating in any of the throwing events. There are double dual meets (three schools run meets against each other), team meets, county meets and sectionals of the state meet. The state championships are more controlled and have more officials. There are more contestants and thus more races per meet.

The basic order of the meets has been in place for approximately 30 years. Gomez's recommendation to place all of the distance events (800, 1600 and 3200 meter races) at the beginning of the meet would destroy dual meets as they are today and make coaches extremely unhappy. At present all of the distance events are spread over the meet to allow runners to run in one or more events. If all of the distance races were condensed to the beginning of the meet, the runner would only be able to run in one event. There would not be enough participants from the smaller schools to field the events and coaching would be very difficult. Danser noted that in a dual meet, there are usually three events going on simultaneously and in the big meet seven or eight events at once.

Danser indicated that most schools still have cinder tracks. Approximately 40 percent of the tracks in the state are hard lane surfaces, macadam or rubberized. The majority of the all weather surfaces are rubberized textured tracks. About six tracks in the state have eight lanes. Approximately 90 percent have six lanes. At a dual meet the recommendation is to have five carded officials. Usually there are two people to run the throwing events, two to run the jumping events, and minimally four on the track, one starter and three timers. For the bigger events, there is a need for approximately 40 officials.

Danser explained that a stagger is an advantage given to a runner who must stay in his lane the whole distance, to keep the distance the same as the runner starting in lane 1. At present track and field is set up for a two-turn stagger. The witness explained the manner in which staggering would occur for the 100 meter, 200 meter, 400 meter, and 800 meter races (R-8). In a dual meet there would be approximately 10 runners and in a double dual, approximately 15 runners. In a championship meet, there could be 36 racers on the track at one time. If S.C. were to compete using lanes 4, 5, and 6, this would affect competition among track runners, who would then be confined to the inside three lanes. This would make the start for the larger races next to impossible, if more than six or eight students competed. In double dual meets, there would be a problem for the finisher to pass a "lapped runner"; there would not be room to pass. He could not race 36 runners at once. All of the lanes are needed at the beginning of the race in order to give everybody a fair chance at the poll. During the race itself, lanes are needed to pass. Although runners have an advantage on a cold day if the wind is blocked by a front runner, he opined that one would not get an actual lift from a runner in front of him.

Danser indicated that under the national federation rules, anything that gives a runner an advantage is considered illegal. He noted that fouling occurs and, in addition, common injuries are spike marks and tripping. He has seen runners exhaust themselves and fall.

In regard to the state group championship the prior year, Danser indicated that about 160 schools with approximately 3000 athletes participated in the meet. The crowd was over 8000. Gold, silver and bronze medals were given to the winners. There were two wheelchair events, the 100 and 400 meter events, in which there were five participants, three girls and two boys. There was a list of the prospective entrants. They expected S.C. to be the sixth participant. They relied on the expertise of the wheelchair association to take care of the officials, the rules, inspecting the chairs and the athletes.

On cross-examination, Danser stated that the NJSIAA decided to include wheelchair races as part of the state championship (May 29, 1993) during the first week of May 1993. Danser learned that there was going to be a wheelchair competition the first week of May when he spoke to Roy Schleicher at the association. He did not ask why there were only two races for wheelchair athletes at the state championship meet. (There are no regularly scheduled track meets for wheelchair racers.)

Danser indicated that the National Federation does not have rules concerning wheelchair athletes (the National Federation rules are incorporated by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association), and the NJSIAA has not formally incorporated the wheelchair event as part of its program. Danser indicated that the NJSIAA could not add an event that was not recognized by the National Federation. He stated that the National Federation of Track and Field is a separate federation under the auspices of the National Federation of Athletic Associations. If the NJSIAA decided not to follow the rules of the National Federation, they would no longer be members and the students would not be recognized for their records.

Danser alleged that the wheelchair event would be part of the program for the foreseeable future. He has not been informed about more regularly scheduled events for wheelchair racers in track and field. Questioned as to whether the NJSIAA had added an event not established by the federation, Danser explained that the wheelchair race was an exhibition (a non-scoring event) that can be added at any time without violating the National Federation rules. Wheelchair athletes can compete and receive medals, but their performance does not count towards the team score. The planned for exhibition in the following year similarly would not count towards their schools' scores.

On redirect examination, Danser indicated that the reason for not counting a wheelchair race towards the team score is because the vast majority of the school districts do not have wheelchair athletes. On recross-examination, Danser admitted that respondent could create a team category for wheelchair athletics if the members desired to do so.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner appeals respondent's determination that a wheelchair athlete, S.C., cannot compete against able-bodied athletes in the running events of high school track meets. Petitioner argues that said denial: violates the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C.A. § 794) and the federal regulations promulgated thereunder; violates both the federal and the state constitutional equal protection provisions; and is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

I. Rehabilitation Act:

Petitioner relies, in part, upon section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C.A. § 794, in its argument that respondent's action is improper. That statute, 29 U.S.C.A. § 794(a) provides, in pertinent part:

> No otherwise qualified individual with a disability in the United States, as defined in section 706(8) of this title, shall, solely by reason of her or his disability, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

Subsection (b)(2)(B) applies this provision directly to local education agencies and school systems. The primary regulation upon which petitioner relies provides, in pertinent part:

> A recipient to which this subpart applies shall provide nonacademic and extracurricular services and activities in such manner as is necessary to afford handicapped students an equal opportunity for participation in such services and activities.
> In providing physical education courses and athletics and similar programs and activities to any of its students, a > recipient to which this sub-part applies may not discriminate on the basis of handicap. A recipient that offers physical education courses or that operates or sponsors interscholastic, club, or intramural athletics shall provide to qualified handicapped students an equal opportunity for participation in these activities.

The parties do not dispute that a wheelchair athlete is an individual with a disability within the meaning of 29 U.S.C.A. § 794(a). What is disputed in the instant case is whether or not a wheelchair athlete is "otherwise qualified" to race on a high school track team, whether or not reasonable accommodations can be made to allow such competition, whether or not these athletes have been excluded solely because of their handicap, and whether the Rehabilitation Act can apply in the instant case, since respondent receives no federal financial assistance.

Although federal case law abounds with opinions construing the term "otherwise qualified;" the seminal case is Southeastern Comm. College v. Davis, 442 U.S. 397, 99 S. Ct. 2361, 60 L.Ed. 2d 980 (1979). There, the Supreme Court stated that "[a]n otherwise qualified person is one who is able to meet all of a program's requirements in spite of his handicap." Id. 442 U.S. at 406, 99 S. Ct. at __, 60 L. Ed. 2d at 988 (emphasis added). What this means is that the Rehabilitation Act protects only people who are qualified in spite of their handicap, not that it protects people who are qualified in all respects except for the handicap. Ibid. See also Strathie v. Dep't of Transp., 716 F. 2d 227, 231 (3rd Cir. 1983); Prewitt v. United States Postal Svc., 662 F. 2d 292, 307 (5th Cir. 1981); Sharon v. Larson, 650 F. Supp. 1396, 1401 (E.D. Pa. 1986). In other words, the person must be able to meet the requirements of the program even with the disability.

The courts also consider someone "otherwise qualified" if the individual with the disability would be able to participate with reasonable accommodation. Davis, supra, 442 U.S. at 405-06, 99 S. Ct. at __, 60 L. Ed. 2d at 988. See Strathie, supra, 716 F. 2d at 230 (noting that this was termed "surmountable barrier discrimination" in Prewitt). Where the refusal to modify an existing program is unreasonable, the refusal is discriminatory and illegal under the Rehabilitation Act. Davis, supra, 442 U.S. at 412-13, 99 S. Ct. at ___, 60 L. Ed. 2d at 992; Strathie, supra, 716 F. 2d at 230. However,

> A handicapped individual who cannot meet all of a program's requirements is not otherwise qualified if there is a factual basis in the record reasonably demonstrating that accommodating that individual would require either a modification of the essential nature of the program, or impose an undue burden on the recipient of federal funds.

See also Davis, supra, 442 U.S. at 405, 99 S. Ct. at ___, 60 L. Ed. 2d at 988; Nathanson v. Medical College of Penn., 926 F. 2d 1368, 1384 (3d Cir. 1991). This would, under Prewitt, be termed an "insurmountable barrier handicap," of which Section 504, Rehabilitation Act (29 U.S.C.A. § 794) and Davis do not require redress. Prewitt, supra, 662 F. 2d at 307. See also Davis, supra, 442 U.S. at 405, 99 S. Ct. at ___, 60 L.Ed. 2d at 988.

The subject of the instant case, the wheelchair athlete, has an "insurmountable barrier handicap" preventing him from participating in running events on a high school track team. The "essential nature" of racing a wheelchair is different from the "essential nature" of running. They are distinctly different athletic activities. Besides a common sense understanding of the physical activity involved in each endeavor, the difference between the events is evidenced by the disparity in racing times for the events at the same distances. S.C. himself testified, on direct examination, that wheelchair athletes are not competitive with able-bodied runners at short distances. He testified that wheelchair athletes do not reach comparable times with runners until approximately 800 meters He further testified that at greater distances, such as 10 kilometers, the racing advantage shifts to the wheelchair athlete.

Laura G. Schwanger, qualified as an expert in wheelchair sports, testified as to the time and distance it takes wheelchair racers to reach top racing speeds, as opposed to able-bodied runners in the same race. She also compared times of wheelchair athletes with those of runners at the same distances, stating that the fastest runners' times are better than the fastest wheelchair racers' times at and below 800 meter distances, but that the top wheelchair athletes will be faster than the top runners at distances of 1500 meters and greater.

These time differences are only evidence, though, of a difference that should be obvious. Schwanger stated the difference concisely:

> A person running is running with just their body. A wheelchair racer, the operative word there is the adjective, "The wheelchair." I am propelling a machine.

In fact, this tribunal does not need the assistance of an expert witness to reach the conclusion that running and propelling a wheelchair are essentially different athletic activities. Furthermore, it is difficult to imagine any reasonable accommodation, that will remedy the situation. Nothing suggested in the instant case -- staggered starts or segregated lanes -- changes the "essential nature" of what each athlete is doing. Strathie, supra, 716 F. 2d at 231 (regarding the "essential nature" of a program). In fact, there is no accommodation of which I can conceive, that will place the athletes on par with each other. The suggested accommodations are less than reasonable and would clearly amount to "a modification of the essential nature of the program," in contravention of Strathie. Ibid.

In addition, there have been legitimate safety concerns expressed by respondent. Clearly, safety concerns alone have withstood attack under section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act (29 U.S.C.A. § 794) where schools have excluded students with disabilities from participation in activities. Kampmeier v. Nyquist, 553 F. 2d 296, 299-300 (2d Cir. 1977); Wolff v. South Colonie Central Sch. Dist., 534 F. Supp. 758, 761-62 (N.D.N.Y. 1982).

Finally, respondent's contention that it is not subject to the provisions of the Rehabilitation Act because it receives no federal funds, must fail. The NJSIAA is a voluntary association of public and parochial secondary schools in New Jersey, created to administer interscholastic athletic competition between member schools. The vast majority, if not all, of those member schools receive federal funds. It would circumvent the purpose behind the Rehabilitation Act to allow federal fund recipients to jointly create an entity to administer programs which ordinarily would be subject to section 504, but allow that entity to be immune from the requirements of that provision simply because the entity itself does not receive federal funds.

> Recipient means any state or its political subdivision, any instrumentality of a state or its political subdivision, any public or private agency, institution, organization, or other entity, or any person to which Federal financial assistance is extended directly or through another recipient, including any successor, assignee, or transferee of a recipient, but excluding the ultimate beneficiary of the assistance.
> [34 C.F.R. § 104.3(f)]

In other words, the NJSIAA is not allowed to do that which its members could not.

Additionally, NJSIAA would be covered under this regulation as the "instrumentality of a state," since the Department of Education approves the constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations of the NJSIAA. Also, the activities of the NJSIAA in administering, regulating and supervising interscholastic athletics have been held to constitute state action. Christian Bros. Inst. v. New Jersey Interschol. League, 86 N.J. 409, 416-17 (1981).

II. Equal Protection:

The Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution contains the Equal Protection Clause. Article I, paragraph 1 of the New Jersey State Constitution does not, as petitioner contends, embody a "right to participate," but does prohibit exclusion from participation for an improper purpose, or more generally, "seeks to protect against injustice and against the unequal treatment of those who should be treated alike." Greenberg v. Kimmelman, 99 N.J. 552, 568 (1985). See also, Board of Educ. of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 182, 188 (Dept. of Ed.) ("participation in interscholastic sports is not a constitutional right").

An equal protection claim must be made in opposition to a state action. United States Constitution, Amendment XIV, §1; Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v. Board of Review of N.J. Unemployment Comp. Comm'n, 1 N.J. 545, 552-53 (1949). The activities of the NJSIAA in administering, regulating and supervising interscholastic athletics constitute state action, thereby fulfilling that requirement. Christian Bros., supra, 86 N.J. at 416-17.

Petitioner contends that under the federal clause, an "intermediate scrutiny," such as that found in Craig v. Boren, 429 U.S. 190, 97 S. Ct. 451, 50 L. Ed. 2d 397 (1976) reh den. 429 U.S. 1124, 97 S. Ct. 1161, 51 L. Ed. 2d 574 (1977), must be applied to the actions of the NJSIAA. This is inaccurate. Federal courts have consistently rejected arguments to consider disabled persons as a suspect class and have refused to apply heightened levels of scrutiny in cases including handicaps; equal protection cases involving persons with disabilities are evaluated under the default standard, the rational relationship test. See Welsh v. City of Tulsa, 977 F. 2d 1415, 1420 (10th Cir. 1992); California Ass'n of Physically Handicapped, Inc. v. F.C.C., 721 F. 2d 667, 670 (9th Cir. 1983), cert. den., 469 U.S. 832, 105 S. Ct. 121, 83 L. Ed. 2d 63 (1984); Pendleton v. Jefferson Local Sch. Dist., 754 F. Supp. 570, 578 (S.D. Ohio 1990), aff'd in pt., rev'd on other grounds, 958 F. 2d 372 (1992); Baker v. Department of Envir. Conservation of State of N.Y., 634 F. Supp. 1460, 1467 (N.D.N.Y. 1986); National Ass'n of Property Owners v. U.S., 499 F. Supp. 1223, 1243 (D. Minn. 1980), aff'd 660 F. 2d 1240 (1981), cert. den., 455 U.S. 1007, 102 S. Ct. 1645, 71 L. Ed. 2d 876 (1982); Gurmankin v. Costanzo, 411 F. Supp. 982, 992 fn. 8 (E.D. Pa. 1976), aff'd 556 F.2d 184 (1977). Under the rational relationship test, the state action does not violate the Equal Protection Clause if it is "rationally related to the achievement of a legitimate state interest." Barone v. Dep't of Human Svcs., 107 N.J. 355, 365 (1987) (citation omitted).

Equal protection is also provided under Article 1, paragraph 1 of the New Jersey Constitution. Id. at 367. While the "tiered" method of scrutiny utilized under the U.S. Constitution has been rejected in New Jersey for the state constitution, in favor of a balancing of interests, "[t]o a large extent, the considerations guiding our equal protection analysis under the New Jersey Constitution are implicit in the three-tier approach applied by the Supreme Court under the Federal Constitution" (citation omitted). Id. at 368. While noting that the state and federal analyses are not identical, the court conceded that they "often" lead to the same result. Ibid. The Barone court, in an equal protection challenge to the denial of Medicaid benefits, applied the rational basis test as determinative of both state and federal claims. Id. at 369-77. See also, Drew Assoc. of N.J., L.P. v. Travisano, 122 N.J. 249, 259 (1991) (state constitutional doctrine substantially the same as federal).

The rational basis test has been worded many ways: "rationally related to a legitimate governmental objective," Harris v. McRae, 448 U.S. 297, 324, 100 S. Ct., 2671, 65 L. Ed. 2d 784, 809 (1980), and "based on reasonable differences in the subject matter," Egan v. Erie R. Co., 29 N.J. 243, 253 (1959). This test, grounded in reasonability or rationality, is not very far-reaching.

A court must uphold a statute if it "can conceive of any reason to justify the classification" (citation omitted). New Jersey State League of Municipalities v. State, 257 N.J. Super. 509, 518 (App. Div. 1992). See also, Paul Kimball Hosp., Inc. v. Brick Tp. Hosp., Inc., 86 N.J. 429, 441 (1981) (classification will not be set aside if there is a conceivable legitimate purpose for it). Furthermore, a court may not declare a statute void where the reasonableness of a classification is "fairly debatable." League of Municipalities, supra, at 519 (citation omitted).

The New Jersey Supreme Court has stated the test this way:

> The transgression arises only when the classification rests upon grounds wholly irrelevant to achievement of the State's objective; the separate treatment must admit of but one conclusion beyond a rational doubt, i.e., that the basis therefor is arbitrary and unreasonable, and without relevance to the legislative goal.

Any way the test is phrased, this action of the NJSIAA passes muster. Clearly, limiting running events to those who can run is rationally related to presenting and administering these interscholastic sporting events, which is a legitimate governmental interest. This is also "an appropriate governmental interest suitably furthered by the differential treatment" of wheelchair athletes. Barone, supra, 107 N.J. at 368 (under "State" standard).

Furthermore, the safety issues that have been raised involve legitimate, appropriate governmental interests which are suitably furthered by this rationally related action. For these reasons, the equal protection challenge must fail.

Petitioner has also challenged the action of the NJSIAA as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Worthington v. Fauver, 88 N.J. 183, 204 (1982). Actions of the NJSIAA are, indeed, subject to that standard. D.S. v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 211, 216 (Comm'r Decision). This standard, however, is subsumed within the forgoing rational relationship/balancing of interests analysis. Certainly if an action is rationally related to a legitimate governmental interest, it is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See, e.g., Am. Inst. of Planners, supra, 48 N.J. at 601-02 (defining N.J. equal protection analysis in terms of arbitrariness and unreasonableness).

III. Motion to reopen the record:

The regulation under which respondent has moved to reopen the record provides, in pertinent part: "Motions to reopen the record before an initial decision is filed . . . may be granted only for extraordinary circumstances." N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5(c). Additionally, although in Superior Court reopening a record is left to the sound discretion of the trial judge, the rationale used in those cases is instructive here.

Reopening a record is permitted in Superior Court to avoid a "manifest denial of justice," O'Neil v. Bilotta, 18 N.J. Super. 82, 90 (App. Div. 1952), aff'd 10 N.J. 308 (1952) (per curiam), and to legally establish a fact that had been insufficiently proved, Rinaldi v. Rinaldi, 94 N.J. Eq. 14, 22 (Ch. 1922); Benfrey Dress Co., Inc. v. Irving Gale, Inc. 13 N.J. Mis. 212 (S.Ct. 1935). Denial of a motion to reopen the record has been held improper where the omitted evidence tended to prove that the judge's legal conclusion was erroneous. Handleman v. Cox, 74 N.J. Super. 316, 332 (App. Div. 1962), aff'd 39 N.J. 95 (1963).

Other administrative cases have found the inverse to be true also: when the evidence sought to be admitted would have no impact upon the outcome of the case, it is inappropriate to reopen the record to admit such evidence. See, I/M/O Special Election Held in Tp. of Millburn, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 273, 279 (Dep't of Ed.) ("No prima facie showing has been made, even today, that the desired testimony would have impact"); Cherry v. Monmouth Cty. Personnel Dept., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 2) 438, 439 (Merit System Board), (proffered additional documentation was found unnecessary to render a proper decision in the matter, therefore motion to reopen was denied). This approach comports with the regulation; clearly there are no "extraordinary circumstances" requiring the admission of evidence where that evidence will not affect the outcome of the case.

The profferred evidence does not pertain to the action at issue here. Respondent argues that the proposed expansion of alternative programs for wheelchair athletes should be considered in the instant case. The March 17, 1994 notice of "expansion" could not have affected the legitimacy of the prior eligibility determination of April 1, 1993, that is at issue here. Because the proffered evidence would not have any impact upon the disposition of the case, nor would denial work a manifest injustice, and admission would not establish any facts that have been insufficiently proven, the motion to reopen is denied.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the above discussion, I make the following legal conclusions:

The denial of S.C.'s eligibility to compete in running events for his high school's track team did not violate the Rehabilitation Act, because the essential nature of wheelchair racing, is different from that of running. There is no conceivable reasonable accommodation.

Equal protection has not been violated in the instant case. The action challenged here is rationally related to the legitimate governmental interests of administering interscholastic athletics and student safety.

NJSIAA's conduct is subject to review for arbitrariness, unreasonableness and capriciousness. This review is subsumed within the equal protection review and, thus, the action passes muster.

There is no basis for reopening the record.

ORDER

Based upon the above discussion and conclusions of law, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's, declaration that S.C., a wheelchair bound student, is ineligible to compete in running events against able-bodied runners for his high school track team is affirmed and petitioner's appeal dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents challenged son's reading grade for the 1993-94 second marking period alleging violation of established Board policies and procedures.

In light of testimony of witnesses and review of the record, ALJ found no abuse of discretion and no failure to comply with duly adopted Board policy. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. EDU 5612-94

AGENCY DKT. NO. 158-5/94

R. A. M. AND C. A. M. ON BEHALF OF THEIR MINOR CHILD, B. M.,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TABERNACLE,

Respondent.

R.A.M. and C.A.M., petitioners, pro se

John G. Dyer, III, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: June 15, 1994 Decided: June 17, 1994

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The petitioners seek an order of the Commissioner of Education directing the respondent Board to require reassessment of B.M.'s second marking period (1993-94) reading grade, to require issuance of a new report card reflecting the reassessment and to require that an Honor Role certificate be issued and recorded for the second marking period.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for expedited hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The matter was heard on June 15, 1994 in the Tabernacle Municipal Court.

The petitioners allege that one of B.M.'s teachers violated established Board of Education policies and procedure in calculating his Reading grade for the second marking period in the 1993-94 school year. Certain facts are not in dispute and reveal the context of the matter. B.M. received a grade of B in Reading in the first marking period. On or about February 14, 1994, R.A.M. and C.A.M. received the second marking period grade report. B.M.'s numerical grade in Reading was 79. This corresponds to a letter grade of C+. The parents called the school in an attempt to reach the teacher who had assigned the grade. The teacher had left for the day. On February 15, parents wrote to the teacher asking that he call them. One or both parents discussed the grade with the teacher on February 16. The teacher stated that he based the grade on test scores. On February 22, one of the parents spoke with the teacher in the school. He indicated he would not change B.M.'s grade. The parent went to the superintendent's office and conferred with her informally. On February 24, one of the parents called the superintendent. The principal took the call. On March 1, the parents received a call from the teacher. On March 2, they again conferred with the teacher. On March 4, the parents again spoke to the teacher by telephone concerning a new Reading placement for B.M.

On March 19, one of the parents called the Board president. On March 22 one or both parents met with the principal and informally discussed the matter of a bonus question or challenge question. It is agreed that challenge questions are one or more questions calling for short written answers and, when used, are placed at the end of unit tests. On March 24, the parents telephoned to set up a meeting with the teacher, principal and superintendent. A second call was placed on the same day for the same reason. On March 25, the parents called again. The principal took the call. For various reasons, the meeting was put off until, in a telephone call of April 6, it was scheduled for April 13. On April 13, a meeting was held attended by the parents, the principal and the superintendent. The superintendent indicated the parents would have a response in two days. On April 15, the parents called the superintendent who stated a decision had been made, but she believed it should properly come from the building principal. On April 18, a parent called the principal. He was not in the building. On April 21, the parents received a letter from the principal stating there would be no change in the grade. The parents communicated their disagreement with this decision and received a letter dated April 28 from the superintendent confirming that the decision would remain unchanged. Other letters were exchanged during the period outlined above. They amplify, but do not change, the essential facts.

The essence of the parents' argument is that academic teachers must use all of the report card components mentioned in the School District Handbook (J-3). The referenced section states

REPORT CARD COMPONENTS

> The following components are utilized to compile a report card grade in academic subjects. They represent a general agreement on the part of the staff as to how the letter/percentage grades are determined.
>
> | | |
> |---|---|
> | Tests (exams and quizzes) | Daily assignments |
> | Classwork | workpages, notes, projects, lab wk |
> | Homework | Class Participation |

The parents also rely on a part of the teacher handbook (J-2) captioned Developing Your Grading System. In its entirety, the section reads

> 1. Develop your grading system as soon as possible. It would be helpful if this were done before the school term begins.
> 2. Decide on the types of performance indicators you will use, such as the following: homework, assignments from texts, rating scales, quizzes, tests, projects and self-assessment instruments.
> 3. Be sure that the method of evaluation and the performance being evaluated are carefully matched.

4. Plan to have as many indicators as possible. If you are basing your grade on one or two indicators, you are greatly increasing the likelihood of error.
5. Be sure to weigh the different kinds of indicators so that their impact on the grade is in proportion to their importance.
6. In the event that certain indicators have greater importance than may occur to the student, please see that this is communicated to them.
7. Take time to explain your grading system to the students and their parents so they will understand what to do to be successful in your class.
8. If an indicator of great importance is not turned in, make provisions for it to be turned in late. There should be a penalty for late work, but it should not be so extreme that the indicator no longer has value.
9. At such time as a student is in danger of failing, you should communicate this to the parents.
10. In the event that a student is developing a pattern of not turning in his/her homework, efforts should be made to alter this behavior before it drastically impacts his/her grade.

Finally, parents rely on Board Policy 5121, which deals with examinations, grading, rating and testing. The relevant paragraphs state

> The superintendent, in consultation with the teaching staff, shall develop a marking system to be used uniformly in the same grade level throughout the schools. The system should be clear, easily understood by parents/guardians and pupils, and able to be applied with consistency of interpretation. Evaluation and grading symbols shall be intended to appraise the pupil's progress toward established goals, and be based on what each pupil produces in light of what he/she is capable of producing.
> The board of education encourages the certified staff, under the direction of the superintendent, to employ a comprehensive approach to the use of appraisal and evaluative techniques in monitoring pupil progress, including, but not limited to, recognized standardized achievement testing programs, written and oral teacher-made tests, performance observation, parent/guardian interviews, formal and informal evaluation techniques, use of cumulative pupil records, and medical examinations.
> The superintendent shall have the right to review disputed grades and with board approval to adjust them.

Because the teacher based the second marking period grade on six tests, there is noncompliance with Board Policy 5121, with the procedures in the Teacher Handbood and with the statement in the School District Handbook. Further, this noncompliance has led to arbitrary and discriminatory evaluation of B.M., the district administration has failed to implement and enforce policy and procedures and due process has been denied. The parents also took exception to the Board's answer to their petition of appeal. The pleadings are not dispositive; the proofs at hearing are dispositive. This decision, accordingly, addresses the proofs and arguments, not the pleadings.

After the parents' testimony the Board called two witnesses. The teacher testified about the advanced Reading-Spelling class of which B.M. was a part. This 8th grade class uses a literature-based approach to learning. The literature is chosen from 9th grade level material. Spelling work is chosen from introductory college level material.

In the second marking period short stories and poems were used and the goal was to prepare pupils for lecture and discussion classes they will encounter in high school and college. The usual sequence of activities was reading a story or poem, then discussing and analyzing it, doing various homework assignments, reviewing each assignment in class and, as the culminating activity for each unit, taking a test or quiz.

All pupils participated in the analysis and discussion. Most participated voluntarily; some had to be drawn out by teacher questions. All pupils participated and did it well. The teacher did not include participation in his grading scheme because all pupils were superior in this area.

The teacher is familiar with the handbooks (J-2, J-3). He is familiar with the discussions of components. He and other teachers of this course do not use all components. The grading scheme was reached in consultation with other teachers. The three other, more experienced teachers and he agreed not to use participation as a component of the grade. Concerning homework, it is the discussion in class after the assignment is done that counts. The teachers simply expect homework to be done.

The teacher is comfortable with the method of evaluation. At the beginning of the year he explained to pupils what he wants, what is his philosophy of the course is and what the objectives are. All pupils this year seem comfortable with the class.

The tests on which he based grades are publisher-made and reflect what he taught. He used five tests and a quiz as the basis for each pupil's grade. All pupils received the same tests. All questions on all tests were covered in the text and in class before tests were administered.

The teacher acknowledged he mistakenly categorized a quiz as a test. B.M.'s grades were 100, 50, 84, 58, 91 and 87. He talked about the grade of 50 with B.M. Parents sign tests carrying grades less than 70. Ms. M. signed P-1 and P-3. B.M. admitted he did not study for the test on which he received a grade of 50 and he did not "study much" before the test on which he received a grade of 58. The teacher stated both grades are below B.M.'s ability level.

The teacher stated that the first marking period grade was calculated in precisely the same way as the second marking period grade. His colleagues evaluate their classes the same way he does. At Back-to-School-Night the witness described his philosophy, his expectations and his plans for the course. He cannot recall precisely what he said.

The witness met with Mr. and Mrs. M. formally and informally. He understands their position is that all grading components were not used and that this somehow constitutes noncompliance with Board policy. The written materials are guidelines for teachers. He is comfortable basing grades on the publisher-made tests. The challenge questions range in value from 3 to 5 points. The teacher sometimes does not use challenge questions in a unit test. He guages, based on class performance, whether challenge questions will be efficacious or not. Pupils know before the test if there will be challenge questions and, if there will be challenge questions, what they will be worth.

The principal testified that he drafted the guidelines to teachers in Exhibit J-2. They are intended as guidelines, advice and assistance. He discusses these guidelines with staff at or near the beginning of each school year. Concerning his investigation of B.M.'s second marking period grade, he took three steps. First, he computed the averages for all sixth grade pupils for the marking period. The average was 78.3 and the corresponding letter grade was C+. Second, he asked the teacher if there were any irregularity in the challenge questions. Particularly, were any based on a 3-point scale when they should have been based on a 5-scale. He was satisfied that there were no irregularities in this regard. Third, he collected other pupils' tests. He could find no irregularity. He advised Mr. and Mrs. M. by telephone and letter.

The principal and superintendent subsequently met with the parents. The parents were not satisfied with the outcome and went to the Board.

DETERMINATION

There are some inconsistencies in the written and oral statements of the teacher and the principal in this matter. This is perfectly consistent with human experience. The parents, teachers themselves, appear to be emotionally invested in this controversy. This, too, is consistent with human experience. However, the determination rests on one issue: Is a teacher compelled to use certain tools and techniques in evaluating pupils. Handbooks given to teachers and to parents discuss evaluative tools and techniques. But it is the teacher who decides what is appropriate in each class situation.

The teacher testified clearly what he wants to achieve with this advanced class. He and other teachers teaching the same class use the same grading criteria. Thus, all pupils are treated the same. B.M. and each other pupil had six opportunities in the second marking period to show what they had learned. B.M. did poorly on two tests. He candidly admitted he did not study or did not study sufficiently before those two tests.

Upon learning that the parents were not satisfied with the teacher's explanation of the second marking period grade, the principal collected information and responded to the parents. That the parents did not like the answer does not mean that the process was faulty.

Whether this matter is weighed by the ordinary standard of a preponderance of the credible evidence or by the standards for emergent relief, the petition must fail.

In establishing a case for emergent relief, it is the petitioners' responsibility to meet the standards expressed in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Specifically, the petitioners must show immediacy of harm, irreparability of harm, likelihood of prevailing on the merits, and, when the equities are balanced, that the burden would fall more heavily on them than on the respondent if the decision were adverse.

Although there was no testimony on immediacy of harm, I can infer from the fact that the end of the school year is nigh that an adverse decision will have an immediate effect. There is, however, no showing of irreparable harm, and, more importantly, no likelihood of prevailing on the merits. If the fourth test had to be addressed, the decision would come down on the side of the Board.

The case, although presented on an expedited bases, is best judged by the traditional criterion, a simple preponderance of the credible evidence in the record. Having heard and observed the witnesses as they testified and having reviewed the whole record, I FIND no abuse of discretion and no failure to comply with duly adopted Board policy. The petitioners here seek an overly literal reading of Board policy and handbooks. Unfortunately, this results in an extension into absurdity. The Commissioner of Education has not hesitated to interfere with the exercise of a local board's discretion in the management of public school provided there is a clear showing that the board has acted arbitrarily, has violated the law or has acted in bad faith. See, e.g., Bauer v. Pinelands Reg'l School Dist. Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 1716-85 (Aug. 14, 1985), adopted Comm'r of Ed. (Sep. 20, 1985). The Board's policies and acts are entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be overridden unless there is a clear showing of arbitrariness. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960); Thomas v. Morris Bd. of Ed., 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966). That has not been done.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petition of appeal must be DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

This is an appeal instituted by the petitioner before the Commissioner of Education on August 10, 1993 requesting, among other matters, that respondent recognize or classify the positions of "in-school suspension teacher" as fully certified teaching staff positions and require that all persons holding said positions hold standard certification issued by the State Board of Examiners. Thereafter, the respondent on or about September 3, 1993 filed its answer before the Commissioner of Education denying any wrongdoing. On or about September 14, 1993, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On June 14, 1994, both counsel filed with the Office of Administrative Law a signed Stipulation of Settlement and Dismissal. The document does not contain particularized terms of the settlement; rather, it asks that the matter be dismissed with prejudice.

Accordingly, and based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the parties have agreed to voluntarily withdraw the instant appeal with prejudice and that such dismissal disposes of all issues in controversy. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the matter be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioning janitors alleged Board wrongfully terminated them from their positions. Petitioners claimed tenure pursuant to Board resolution of June 30, 1955.

Citing the State Board decision in Strincoski, ALJ determined that petitioners did acquire tenure as the 1955 resolution granting tenure to efficient janitors after three years of service was never repealed, amended, modified or rescinded. Moreover, the ALJ found the Board did not provide evidence of inefficiency. Petitioners' Motion for Summary Decision was granted and the Board was ordered to reinstate them with full back pay and all other emoluments of employment owed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and directed reinstatement of petitioners to their respective positions with back pay and emoluments, less mitigation.

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

These appeals, which have been consolidated by consent of counsel following their transmission to the Office of Administrative Law, both challenge the decision of the respondent, East Brunswick Board of Education ("East Brunswick" or "Board") terminating the employment of the individuals Richard E. Zielinski and LeRoy Brown from their positions as janitors. The petitioners contend that as a result of a resolution passed by the Board on or about June 30, 1955, they acquired tenure in their positions and as a consequence the efforts to terminate them which, in respect to Mr. Zielinski occurred at a Board meeting conducted on December 17, 1992, and with respect to Mr. Brown occurred at a Board meeting conducted on May 11, 1993, were unlawful.

As a consequence, petitions of appeal were filed with the Commissioner of Education on behalf of Zielinski and Brown on March 1, 1993 and June 24, 1993, respectively seeking a declaration that the petitioners acquired tenure; that East Brunswick contravened the law when it sought their termination on the dates previously referred to; and directing that they be reinstated to their positions with full back pay and any and other emoluments which may have been lost as a consequence of their purported unlawful termination.

East Brunswick acknowledges terminating the petitioners at the Board meetings cited above and admits the existence of the June 30, 1955 resolution. It argues however, that it is irrelevant to the matters sub judice. It further denies that the resolution as set forth was never repealed, amended, modified or rescinded as contended by the petitioners at paragraph 4 of their petition. It further denies that the petitioners acquired tenure rights in their positions.

Following the filing of the matter before the Commissioner of Education the appeals were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The Zielinski matter was transmitted on April 16, 1993 and the Brown matter on July 19, 1993. The Brown matter was originally pending before Administrative Law Judge Bruce R. Campbell and because of the similarities of that matter with Zielinski, which had been pending before me, the cases were eventually consolidated and scheduled on my calendar. Previously Judge Campbell granted a motion by the petitioner, Brown, to place that matter on the inactive list for three months in anticipation of a decision to be rendered by the State Board of Education. The motion was unopposed by counsel for the Board. Following the decision by the State Board of Education on that matter, which I shall discuss hereinafter, Ms. Oxfeld on or about November 15, 1993, requested once again that the Brown matter be removed from the inactive list and that the appeal proceed. A similar letter was addressed to my office on November 30, 1993, in respect to Zielinski. Ms. Sanders on behalf of the Board sought to maintain the cases on the inactive list pending a disposition on what appeared to be the related matter by the appellate division. Ms. Oxfeld opposed further inactivity. On January 4, 1994, I issued a letter ruling and order denying the inactivity and ordering that the proceedings continue expeditiously.

On or about February 24, 1994, the Board instituted the current motion for dismissal. The petitioners responded on or about March 10, 1994. After reviewing the motion and responsive papers it appeared that the most expedient and appropriate way to dispose of this case would be for the petitioners to cross-move. Accordingly, on March 25, 1994, I convened a telephone conference with counsel and my suggestion was agreed to and a schedule devised. Thereafter, the petitioner on or about April 8, 1994, moved for summary decision. In the interim, the Board replied to the petitioners' response to their motion for dismissal, that reply being submitted to my office on March 21, 1994. On March 13, 1994, the Board responded to the petitioners' cross-motion for summary decision. Following a review of the documents I placed a telephone call to counsel for the petitioners on May 23, 1994, inquiring as to whether they would be replying to the Board's response to its summary judgment motion. Ms. Oxfeld advised that unless I were to here from her by the end of the business day nothing further would be forthcoming. No further response was elicited by the petitioners in respect to the Board's motion for dismissal and accordingly the record on these motions closed on May 23, 1994.

FACTS AMD LEGAL ANALYSIS

For purposes of the current motions the facts have been derived from the pleadings and exhibits attached to the moving papers. No certifications or affidavits were provided. Clearly if there are any actual disputes they must be resolved against the moving party.

There are several fundamental facts that are not disputable. Mr. Zielinski commenced his employment with East Brunswick as a custodial employee on October 1, 1988 and continued in that position through December 17, 1992, on which date the East Brunswick Board voted to terminate his employment effective December 14, 1992.

Mr. Brown commenced his employment with East Brunswick as a custodial employee on January 2, 1990, and was terminated effective June 30, 1993, as a consequence of a vote taken by the Board on May 11, 1993.

On June 30, 1955, the East Brunswick Board of Education passed a resolution which provides as follows:

> Resolved, that it is the state policy of the Board of Education of East Brunswick to grant tenure to efficient Janitors who are members of the State Pension Annuity Fund, after three years of service.[1]

The gravamen of respondent's motion to dismiss is that assuming arguendo that the 1955 resolution is still binding and legal the petitioners fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted because they failed to state facts which indicate that they were tenured under the resolution. More specifically, counsel argues that "nowhere in these petitions do petitioners state facts indicating that they were efficient, which is a tenure requirement under the plain language of the resolution which is asserted hereunto have granted tenure." Respondent's brief in support of its motion to dismiss at 5.

In Carrie Strincoski v. Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7974-91,rejected, Commissioner of Education, March 22, 1993, rev'd State Board of Education, November 3, 1993, the State Board of Education reversed the Commissioner of Education and reinstated the decision arrived at by the Administrative Law Judge holding inter alia that "[n]otwithstanding the fact that the Board, since the decisions in Smith and Speer, has provided custodial employees with fixed term employment contracts only, we agree with the ALJ that the Board's policy on custodial tenure remained in full force and effect and provided petitioner with tenure protection after three years of service in the district." The Strincoski decision also concluded that the 1955 resolution was binding because it had never been amended, rescinded or appealed. Strinkcoski also affirms a line of precedent which had previously found the Board policy to be still in effect and still conferred tenure on custodians. See, Harold Smith v. East Brunswick Board of Education, C.D. August 15, 1983, aff'd, St. Bd., April 4, 1984; Donald Spear v. East Brunswick Board of Education, C.D. June 19, 1984, aff'd, St. Bd., January 2, 1985. In Smith the State Board of Education held that East Brunswick was bound by its resolution and that the employee who had begun his employment in 1967 under annual contracts and was terminated in

[1] The position of respondent is that in respect to Mr. Brown's employment the Board's vote of May 11, 1993, was one not to renew his employment rather than to terminate him.

1982 was tenured and the termination was unlawful. Then in Speer, the Board argued that the resolution at issue was not adopted in the 1960's and 1970's and thus, was not effective to a confer tenure on that employee. Again, it was found that the custodian was tenured based upon the non-amended non-rescinded 1955 resolution. It is thus clear and I CONCLUDE that the resolution enacted by the respondent on June 30, 1955, granting tenure to efficient janitors after three years of service has never been repealed, amended, modified or rescinded.

Counsel for respondent argues that even if the resolution is still valid and I have just concluded it is, since it only applies to "efficient" custodial employees and since the petitioners have not alleged "efficiency" such omission is fatal to their case and requires dismissal. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 provides in pertinent part that:

> . . .every public school janitor. . .shall, unless he is appointed for a fixed term, hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed. . .accept for neglect, behavior, or other offense.

Both Zielinski and Brown are "fixed term" employees based upon the contract they entered into with the Board. If respondent is correct that the cause of action instituted by the petitioners is inherently flawed because there was no allegation that the custodians were "efficient" then the analogue to that is also true: The janitor never knows whether he or she is or is not efficient unless and until the Board chooses to terminate employment and by so doing concludes that the janitor is inefficient. In my opinion, the Board cannot circumvent the clear meaning of the resolution which it enacted which has been confirmed on a number of occasions the last of which was in the State Board of Education decision in Strinkcoski by arguing that it and it alone possesses the discretionary authority to tell an employee that he is inefficient as a consequence of his termination. That is clearly contrary to the spirit of the resolution as interpreted by the State Board of Education and contrary as well to the applicable education statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.

In her motion to support summary judgment, counsel for the petitioners embellishes on the Smith decision to support her claim. In my judgment, that discussion to some extent bears reiteration. In that matter, the administrative law judge was upheld by the Commissioner of Education in respect to the tenure issue and the State Board of Education also upheld that decision. In Smith, the administrative law judge noted at page 4 of his initial decision:

> The Board's Assistant Superintendent of Personnel, who has served in that position for approximately nine years, operated under the belief, by information from her predecessor, that custodian and maintenance employees acquired a tenure status with the Board subsequent to three years of employment. . ." Smith, p. 4.

The administrative law judge also found the following:

> The record herein clearly reveals that the Board adopted a policy to grant tenure to its janitors after three years of employment who demonstrate that they are: (1) efficient and (2) are members of the State Pension and Annuity Fund (Public Employees Retirement System-PERS) (P-1). There is nothing in the record to show that the Board has taken any action, since its adoption of the policy on June 30, 1955, to modify, amend or rescind its policy to grant janitorial tenure. Smith, p. 9. [emphasis added] Id. at 9.

Furthermore, as counsel notes in her brief the Board at that time argued in Smith that the policy was not binding. The administrative law judge found:

> The Board cannot now assert that it was unaware of its own policy, nor can it argue that a prior Board's action cannot bind the present or future Board action. A board of education policy, just as a statute at law, is a considered judgment of the legislative body; duly promulgated and adopted, to effectuate a thorough and efficient operation of its schools. The adopted board policy is for its business and the management > of the public schools under its direction and control. N.J.S.A. 18A;11-1. Those to whom the Board has delegated the responsibility for the administration and management of its enterprise must comply with and enforce the board's policies, rules and regulations, to do otherwise would be a violation of the board's state policy and would place the board of education in the position of imposing sanctions or a penalty upon the violator. Id at 10-11.

The Board argues that its assessment of petitioner's efficiency is evidenced by the fixed-term contracts. It notes that:

> [t]he resolution serves to establish the criteria which must be met in order to acquire tenure: the janitor must be efficient. The satisfaction of the criteria, or lack thereof, has been implemented by the board through its actions of either issuing open-ended salary agreements or fixed-term contracts....Simply put, the board has exercised its discretion under the policy by either granting tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 by issuing open-ended salary agreements, or refusing to do so by issuing a fixed-term contract.
> [Brief in Support of Respondent's Motion to Dismiss for Failure to State a Claim Upon Which Relief may be Granted at 6.]

The Board's argument is unpersuasive. The Board has not established that the issuance of fixed-term contracts indicates an assessment of inefficiency. In fact, in the Smith, Speer and Strincoski cases, the petitioners had been initially employed for at least three years each under fixed-term contracts. Smith was employed for a 90-day probationary period and then issued annual contracts; Speeer was initially employed for a six-month probationary period pursuant to a "custodial contract" that provided that upon approval he would continue in employment until the end of the school year. He was then employed for two more years pursuant to annual contracts that provided for termination by either party on two-week's notice. The Board did not argue in these cases that the issuance of these contracts evidenced a finding of inefficiency. Since the Board has not provided further evidence of inefficiency, or a basis for its assertion that fixed-term contracts indicate inefficiency, it seemingly has failed to carry its burden. The petitioners thus achieved tenure.

There is no other basis by which petitioner could have gained tenure.

Thus, it is abundantly clear that the petitioners in this matter have acquired tenure. If East Brunswick wanted them to be treated as non-tenured employees, it should have repealed the 1955 resolution. It did not. It must live with the consequences.

Accordingly, since in my judgment there is no genuine issue of fact of law presented and that the petitioners are entitled to prevail, the motion by the petitioners for summary decision be and is hereby GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the petitioners be reinstated to their positions forthwith with full back pay and all other emoluments of employment to which they have otherwise been deprived.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions essentially renew its arguments raised before the Administrative Law Judge which the Commissioner determines were fully and fairly addressed by him in the initial decision and, therefore, need not be herein reiterated.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioners in this matter acquired tenure by virtue of the Board's resolution on custodial tenure adopted June 30, 1995 and, consequently, their employment was improperly terminated.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law granting summary decision to petitioners. The Board is hereby directed to reinstate petitioners to their respective positions with back pay and emoluments, less mitigation.

Record Closed: June 27, 1994 Decided: June 27, 1994

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter involves a settlement of the contested case before the Office of Administrative Law that was remanded by the Commissioner of Education in a decision dated May 4, 1994. The relevant details were set forth in the Initial Decision/Settlement, OAL DKT. No. 6834-93, decided March 25, 1994, and in the decision and remand of the Commissioner of Education dated May 4, 1994. Both of the above decisions are incorporated herein by reference. This decision amends the prior disposition of the matter.

In the Order of Remand, the Commissioner stated that he did not object to any of the terms currently comprising the settlement, but he was unable to be satisfied by the record that the settlement met the Cardonick standard for settlement of tenure matters (In Re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd. State Bd. of Ed. April 6, 1983, 1990 SLD 842, 846).

The Commissioner noted that the record contained no finding that respondent entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights or that the agreement is consistent with the public interest, nor did it provide any indication that respondent was advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of certificate.

The matter was accordingly remanded to the Office of Administrative Law either for revision of the settlement document or supplementation of the record consistent with the intent of the commissioner's decision.

After consultation with counsel, it was decided that a revision of the settlement agreement to reflect the foregoing factors would be most appropriate. A revised settlement agreement, signed by the parties, was then filed in the Office of Administrative Law on June 13, 1994. A copy of the revised settlement agreement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached revised agreement indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law. The revised agreement conforms with the Cardonick standards and with the concerns of the Commissioner, as set forth in the May 4, 1994 decision.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision hall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF PHILIP STEIN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION Docket No. EDU-06834-93 N SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, tenure charges were certified by the Petitioner against Respondent on or about May 28, 1993; and

WHEREAS, Respondent had not been receiving salary from Petitioner since on or about Janaury 1, 1993 through April 15, 1994; and

WHEREAS, A.L.J. Arnold Samuels has ruled in response to a motion by Respondent that he is entitled to salary for and after 120 days after the date of suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14; and

WHEREAS, it is the determination of Petitioner that based upon A.L.J. Arnold Samuels' Decision as aforementioned it is consistent with the public interest to save the monetary and time expenditures of a hearing on the issues when only the approximate amount of three (3) months salary is in issue; and tried before the Office of Administrative Law to conclusion and reviewed by the Commissioner of Education at which time the charges could be dismissed or sustained and the Respondent could, as a result thereof, be either reinstated with full back pay or dismissed from employment; and

WHEREAS, Respondent is aware of the duty of the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer all tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of teaching certification; and

WHEREAS, the parties are now desirous of resolving their differences.

NOW THEREFORE, it is agreed as follows:

1. Petitioner agrees to compensate Respondent for 13 months, those months being April 1, 1993 through June 30, 1993 and September 1, 1993 through June 30, 1994.

2. Respondent shall be compensated, retroactively, 3 months salary for April 1, 1993 through June 30, 1993 at the annual rate of $61,408.00, and from September 1, 1993 through June 30, 1994 his salary shall be at the rate of $63,825.00.

3. Petitioner shall pay health insurance premiums for Respondent through June 30, 1994.

4. Respondent is not entitled to and is not accruing any other benefits form Petitioner.

5. Respondent shall execute a resignation for the purpose of retirement effective June 30, 1994 and deposit same with his attorneys who are to deliver to Petitioner's attorney, so long as all payments provided for herein are paid. The form of resignation for the purpose of retirement is annexed hereto as Exhibit A.

6. All of the terms of this agreement are expressly made subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents sought an order from the Commissioner for the release of reports related to Board's investigation of a staff member and release of test papers and results with respect to their son, K.C. Respondents argued jurisdictional and timeliness defenses.

ALJ dismissed petition for lack of jurisdiction as petitioners did not cite any violation of the Education Laws under Title 18A. ALJ found since no tenure charges were levied against respondent, petitioners could not rely on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Further, ALJ concluded this was not an educational matter, but strictly an Open Public Meetings Act issue within the purview of the Superior Court.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in the initial decision as his own. Citing Rovello, the Commissioner concurred with ALJ's dismissal of petition for lack of jurisdiction.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners seek an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) for the release of findings and recommendations of the Board of Education of Freehold Township (Board) Superintendent of Schools' investigation of Board [illegible] Kay Dowling Petitioners also seek an order for the release of test papers and test results used by respondent Dowling with respect to their son, K.C.

Petitioners filed their Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner on October [illegible] 1993. On December 1, 1993 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B- to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. On March 4, 1994, a prehearing conference was held at which among other things, the issues to be determined by this tribunal were established as follows:

> 1. Whether the Commissioner may order the release of the Superintendent's findings and recommendations of his investigation of respondent Kay Dowling.
> 2. Whether the Commissioner may order the release of K.C.'s test papers and test results used by respondent Dowling during the 1992-93 school year (petitioner will amend the petitioner and specify the tests and results sought). The Board stipulates that the parents are entitled to all papers which exist and will provide petitioners with those that do exist.
> 3. Whether the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the subject matter of the herein matter against respondent Kay Dowling.
>
> 4. Whether the petition of appeal was timely filed, pursuant N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).
> 5. Whether the allegations against respondent Kay Dowling have been asserted in bad faith and with malice.

Hearing dates of May 16, 17 and 18, 1994, were also established. In addition, respondent Dowling was granted leave to move to dismiss the instant matter on jurisdictional grounds (Issue No. 3). Respondent has done so within the time prescribed.

RESPONDENT DOWLING'S MOTION AND ARGUMENT

INTRODUCTION

Following the receipt by the Freehold Township Board of Education and its Superintendent of Schools on April 29, 1993, of a complaint by the petitioners regarding alleged professional misconduct and racial discrimination toward the petitioners' son by respondent Dowling, the Superintendent of Schools conducted an investigation and prepared a report to be presented to the Board of Education. On June 18, 1993, the Superintendent of Schools notified respondent Dowling of the plan of the Freehold Township Board of Education to meet in closed executive session on June 22, 1993, to discuss the results of the investigation and the Superintendent's report. At that time, respondent Dowling was advised of her right to waive her statutory right of privacy via written request to have the closed session discussion held in open public meeting. Respondent Dowling refused to waive her right to such privacy. Thereafter, petitioners requested a copy of the Superintendent's investigative report from respondent Board of Education and were refused access based on respondent's Dowling's invocation of her right to privacy in personnel matters.

On October 1, 1993, petitioners appealed to this tribunal seeking to compel the respondents to release the report of the Superintendent and the minutes of any and all meetings at which the report was considered and action taken. Respondent Kay Dowling filed an answer to the Petition of Appeal on November 18, 1993, asserting as defenses, a lack of jurisdiction and timeliness, requesting dismissal of the petition with prejudice. Respondent Board of Education filed an answer with counterclaim for interpleader and cross-claim against co-respondent on November 12, 1993.

Respondent Kay Dowling now moves to dismiss the claims of the petitioners against her based on her right to privacy and confidentiality under N.J.S.A. 10:4-6, et seq. and based on lack of jurisdiction of this tribunal over the subject matter of petitioners' claim.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

POINT I

PETITIONERS ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

This controversy arises under Title 10 of the New Jersey Statutes [1] (hereinafter referred to as the "Open Public Meetings Act"). There the Legislature has provided a scheme for the doing of public business by public bodies. Although, generally all meetings and business of public bodies shall be open to the public, the Legislature has specifically provided exclusions from that general rule for the protection of public employees. The relevant provision carving out the exception in personnel matters is found at N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 (b) (8) which provides as follows:

> A public body may exclude the public only from that portion of the meeting at which the public body discusses: any matter involving ... evaluation of the performance of ... any ... current public officer or employee employed or appointed by the public body, unless all the individual employees or appointees whose rights could be adversely affected request in writing that such matter or matters be discussed at a public meeting.

There is no question but that this provision is meant to protect a public employee's right to privacy. Jamison v. Morris School District, Bd. of Ed., 198 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1985). Mrs. Dowling, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 (b) (8), specifically invoked her right to privacy following notice by the Board of Education of its meeting to discuss her employment. Jamison, supra. See Exhibit A attached.

POINT II

THIS TRIBUNAL IS WITHOUT JURISDICTION HERE

The Open Public Meetings Act assigns to the Superior Court the task of determining issues arising under N.J.S.A. 10:4-6; et seq., N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 and 16. Thomas v. Bergen Cty. Welfare Bd., 122 N.J. Super. 371, 376 (App. Div. 1973). There, the Appellate Division held that it is the Superior Court's duty to decide cases arising under the Open Public Meetings Act rather than the relevant administrative entity because questions of law do not require administrative expertise. Only where such expertise is required for reasons other than the questions of law concerning the Open Public Meetings Act, a condition completely absent here, might one have recourse to the Commissioner. Sukin v. Northridge Bd. of Ed., 171 N.J. Super. 184, 187 (App. Div. 1979). Inasmuch as the only issue concerning Mrs. Dowling is her right of privacy under N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8), there is no "incidental" jurisdictional for the Commissioner to exercise. Id.

---

[1] There are no Title 18A issues presented, vis-a-vis respondent Kay Dowling.

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully requested that petition of appeal be dismissed in this matter.

PETITIONERS' ARGUMENT

INTRODUCTION

For the purpose of this motion, petitioners adopt the introduction set forth in respondent's letter brief with the following facts: after the closed executive session on June 22, 1993, respondent's agent disclosed portions of the report to the public, thus waiving any right of confidentiality.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 sets forth the Commissioner's jurisdiction over controversies and disputes under school law. The statute provides:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, excepting those governing higher education, or under the rules of the state board or of the commissioner.

Generally, disputes involving teachers are cognizable as controversies under the school laws. Winston v. Board of Ed. of So. Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131, 140 (App. Div. 1973). This controversy arises under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 (conduct unbecoming a teacher).

In Sukin v. Northfield Board of Education 171 N.J. Super. 184 (App. Div. 1979) the court in recognizing that the Commissioner of Education has complete power to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, held that the Commissioner "has additional incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Open Public Meetings Act as they relate to the controversies under the school laws." Id. at 187.

Because the Appellate Division has specifically held that the Commissioner has jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Open Public Meetings Act as they relate to controversies under the school laws and this controversy arises under the school laws, there exists jurisdiction for the Commissioner to hear and determine this matter.

Based upon the foregoing, it is respectfully requested that respondent's Motion to Dismiss the instant petition of appeal be denied.

DISCUSSION

Respondent Dowling contends there are no Title 18A Education issues concerning her in this matter. Rather, she argues, this case involves the issue of her right to privacy as protected under the Open Public Meetings Act (Act) N.J.S.A. 10;4-6 to 4-21. Therefore, she argues, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to hear and determine petitioners' Petition of Appeal.

Under the holding by the Appellate Division of Superior Court in Sukin, supra., the Court said, in part, that :

> The Commissioner of Education has complete power to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. We are equally satisfied that the Commissioner has additional incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Open Public Meetings Act as they relate to controversies under the school laws. (citation omitted) 171 N.J. Super. 187

Thus, where a matter concerns Title 18A and/or the Administrative Code under Title 6, and implicates the Open Public Meetings Act, the Commissioner has incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Act.

In Rice v. Union County Reg. High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977), this matter concerned the Union County Regional High School Board's application of the personnel exception to the Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 b (8), with respect to a reduction in force under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-9 to -14. There, the Court reaffirmed the board of education's statutory right to retire into closed executive session to discuss personnel matters, pursuant to section 4-12 b (8) of the Act. The Rice Court emphasized that the very purpose of this section of the Act is for:

> ...[P] ermitting personnel matters to be discussed in > closed sessions. The public policy behind the personnel exception to the Open Public Meetings Act is clearly stated in N.J.S.A. 10:4-7 and indicates a concern for "personal privacy or guaranteed rights of individuals [which] would be clearly in danger of unwarranted invasion" if these matters were to be discussed in public. 155 N.J. Super. 71, 72

While maintaining "personal privacy or guaranteed rights of individuals," the Rice Court held that any decisions reached by the board of education at its executive sessions were to be revealed to the public. Id. at p. 71. The Union County Regional High School Board did so by adopting a resolution in open public session as a consequence of its discussion in closed executive session. The Rice Court, therefore, held that the board of education was in compliance with the Act.

In the Rice opinion, the Appellate bench held that any decisions reached by the board of education during it closed executive session must be revealed in open public session. 155 N.J. Super. at 71. There has been no showing here that the Board made any decision in closed executive session with respect to respondent Dowling. Therefore, there was nothing for the Board to report to the public with regard to any decision or action concerning respondent Dowling. I so FIND and CONCLUDE.

In their Petition of Appeal, petitioners do not cite any violation of the Education Laws under Title 18A, which were alleged to have been committed by either respondent Board or respondent Dowling. Nor is any violation of the Administrative Code, under N.J.A.C. 6 cited. Rather, in their Brief in Opposition to respondent Dowling's Motion to Dismiss, petitioners' allege that this matter involves N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. Chapter 28 of Title 18A, however, deals with the tenure of teaching staff members, i.e., how the legislative status is obtained and retained, among other things. The Legislature has established an elaborate and precise system of dealing with such matters under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to 18.1. No written charges have been levied against respondent Dowling pursuant to section 6-11, requesting her dismissal and reduction of compensation under section 6-10.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioners' reliance upon N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 in support their position that the instant matter falls under Title 18A is mistaken and must fail.

Given all of the above, I CONCLUDE that this matter concerning the report of the Superintendent of Schools to the Board in closed executive session was done so pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-12 b (8).

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that in the absence of any alleged violation of Education Laws under Title 18A and/or Administrative Code, Title 6, the Commissioner of Education lacks jurisdiction to hear and determine this matter.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the instant matter be and is hereby DISMISSED for lack of jurisdiction for the Commissioner of Education to hear and determine the controversy.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MOSES K. CHEUNG AND CHRISTINE LAM,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FREEHOLD, MONMOUTH COUNTY, AND KAY DOWLING,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and replies thereto of respondent Board and respondent Dowling were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners except to the ALJ's determination that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction in this matter because there is no educational issue involved. They argue that the underlying claim here was the filing of a formal complaint with the Superintendent of Schools charging a teaching staff member with engaging in professional misconduct toward their son and, as such, this action is clearly within the Commissioner's jurisdiction. Further, they contend that the ALJ erred in concluding that the Board had no obligation to report in public session what had taken place in executive session because it took no action. Petitioners aver that an investigation regarding their complaint was conducted and a written report and recommendation were prepared by the Superintendent and presented to the Board.

> Once such a report and recommendation was received by the Board, it was incumbent upon the Board to act with respect to the recommendations of the Superintendent. Such action could have been to take disciplinary proceedings against Respondent Dowling or alternatively to determine that there was no basis to take further action. In any event, the Board was legally obligated to reach a decision and to take action upon that decision in public.

Lastly, petitioners object to the ALJ's dismissal of this petition in its entirety without addressing its Second Count which sought an order compelling the Board to provide them with copies of their son's test results and other records with respect to his school performance. Petitioners maintain that the dismissal deprived them of their right to be heard on this issue and, effectively deprived them of the relief sought without due process.

In reply, respondent Dowling argues that nowhere in petitioners' exceptions do they specify any education law allegedly violated or provide any reference whatsoever to legal authority in support of their assertion that the matter at bar arises under school law. The mere fact that petitioners assert a claim against a tenured teaching staff member does not bring the controversy under school law such as to grant the Commissioner jurisdiction over the matter. Respondent contends that the First Count of the within petition seeks solely to obtain the investigation report prepared by the Superintendent of Schools to which Ms. Dowling has not waived her privacy under the requirements of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA). Thus, as determined by the ALJ, this is not an educational matter, but strictly an OPMA issue. Disputes under the OPMA, she argues, are within the purview of the Superior Court and, therefore, the ALJ was correct to dismiss the petition for lack of Commissioner jurisdiction.

With respect to petitioners' assertion that the Board was obligated to publically report what had taken place in its executive session, the Board contends that the ALJ's decision in this regard was correct and predicated on Rice v. Union County Reg. High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977) where the court held

> It was announced to the public at the time the resolution was adopted that any decision reached during the executive session would be made known to the public when action was formally taken on it. The decisions reached at the executive session were revealed the same evening with the adoption of the resolution terminating the personnel named on a list incorporated into the resolution. (emphasis supplied) Id. at 71.

Respondent maintains in light of Rice, supra, it is clear that it is not the discussion of the Board which is significant, but only the action, if any, actually taken by the Board. It argues that the ALJ rightly concluded that since there was no formal action required or taken by the Board, there was no violation of respondent Dowling's rights or the rights of the public.

Both respondents contend that the Second Count of the within petition was rendered moot by the Board's specific agreement to provide petitioners the relief sought during a pre-hearing conference and they point out that the specifics of such agreement were outlined by the ALJ on Page 2, #2. of the initial decision.

Upon a careful review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioners' exception arguments meritless. He concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his initial decision that the within petition must be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Given that petitioners do not cite any cognizable violation of the Education Laws which was alleged to have been committed by either respondent Board or respondent Dowling, it is clear that this forum does not have jurisdiction to adjudicate the sole alleged Open Public Meetings Act issue.

As stated in Michael Rovello v. Hopewell Valley Regional School District Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 313

> While the Commissioner does have jurisdiction to address OPMA violations, under Sukin, Jenkins, Springvalley, and Entwistle, supra, it is clear that such jurisdiction is ancillary, pendent to an equally or more significant "school law" issue. Since the only issue presented in the within petition concerns a purported Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) violation, absent a significant nexus to an underlying substantive school law issue, the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to adjudicate the sole question presented under the OPMA. (Rovello at 317)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured Assistant Principal, averred that the Board's 60 days' notice terminating his position was untimely pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and that respondents violated provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21.

In light of the testimony of witnesses and the record, the ALJ concluded that petitioner received reasonable notice that his employment could be adversely affected at the Board meeting of July 22, 1993; thus, there was no violation of the OPMA. Moreover, as an administrator, respondent was knowledgeable as to the Board's personnel procedures concerning its meetings and employees' rights. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: May 12, 1994 Decided: June 24, 1994

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter concerns a petition by J. Garfield Jackson, Jr. ("petitioner") in regard to the termination of his employment as an assistant principal with the Englewood Board of Education ("Board"). Petitioner alleges that the Board, Assistant Superintendent William Trepicchio and Superintendent Henry Oliver (collectively "respondents") failed to provide in a timely manner either a written contract for the next succeeding school year or written notice that such employment would not be offered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and that respondents violated provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21, with respect to deliberations concerning petitioner's employment. Respondents deny petitioner's allegations and request that the petition be dismissed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on August 16, 1993, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies concerning the school laws under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondents filed an answer on August 20, 1993, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 12, 1993 for determination as a contested case.

On March 10, 1994, respondents filed a motion for summary decision, and after petitioner submitted responsive papers, an Order was issued on April 19, 1994, in which the motion was granted in part and denied in part. The alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 was dismissed based upon a determination that the Board had in fact complied with the requirements of said statute by offering petitioner a written contract for the next succeeding school year in a timely manner. The motion was denied with respect to the alleged violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, because material facts were in dispute.

A hearing was conducted on April 26 and 28, 1994 at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. The record closed upon receipt of briefs.

ISSUES

The main issue in this proceeding is whether respondents complied with the Open Public Meetings Act with respect to petitioner's termination. A key factual issue is whether the Board conducted a secret meeting prior to July 7, 1993, without notice to petitioner. A related issue is whether a letter dated July 7, 1993 from William Trepicchio notifying petitioner of a meeting on July 22, 1993 cured any violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. Another issue is whether the letter of July 7, 1993 constituted adequate notice under the Open Public Meetings Act. The final issue concerns any relief that may be granted.

FACTS

a. Undisputed Facts

The material facts in this matter are largely undisputed, and I FIND as follows. Petitioner began his employment with the Board in August 1992, as an assistant principal assigned to an elementary school known as the Lincoln and Quarles schools. Petitioner's immediate supervisor was Arlene Clinkscale, who evaluated petitioner in November 1992 and identified several areas of concern. Petitioner discussed the evaluation with Ms. Clinkscale and Dr. Henry Oliver, who is the Superintendent of the Englewood public schools. The evaluation and discussion led to the development of an action plan to improve petitioner's performance. Petitioner described his relationship with his supervisor as "rocky" due to different styles. A second evaluation by Ms. Clinkscale showed improvement in some respects, but there were still areas of concern.

By letter dated April 22, 1993, Assistant Superintendent William Trepicchio advised petitioner that the renewal or nonrenewal of his contract would be discussed by the Board at a meeting scheduled for April 29, 1993. The letter also advised petitioner of the time and place of the meeting. Further, the letter advises petitioner that he had the right to request, in writing, that any discussion concerning him be held at a public hearing and not at a meeting from which the public was excluded. By letter dated April 28, 1993, petitioner requested that any discussion related to his employment be held at a public meeting. Petitioner attended the meeting on April 29, 1993, and at that time, the Board voted to renew his contract for the 1993-94 school year.

On May 7, 1993, Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio informed petitioner that there was a vacancy in the position of assistant principal at the Janis E. Dismus Middle School and that he would be transferred to fill that position effective May 10, 1993. Petitioner's duties at the Middle School included supervision of students, budget preparation, scheduling, curriculum development, discipline and management of testing programs. Petitioner's immediate supervisor was Dr. Henry Pruitt, principal of the Middle School.

By letter dated June 17, 1993, Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio advised petitioner that the Board would discuss his reassignment in a closed session on June 24, 1993, based upon a recommendation from the Superintendent. A reorganization proposed by the Superintendent was discussed during the meeting on June 24, 1993, but several new members of the Board were not prepared to approve the plan. The Superintendent had a place for petitioner in the reorganization, but petitioner was not actually discussed at that meeting.

By letter dated June 29, 1993, Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio advised petitioner that the Board would discuss his reassignment in a closed session on June 30, 1993. Petitioner's understanding at this point was that as part of the reorganization plan, he would remain as assistant principal at the Middle School. Petitioner attended the meeting, but as it had at the meeting on June 24, 1993, the Board decided to table the reorganization plan.

Shortly thereafter, Dr. Oliver received an evaluation by Dr. Pruitt of petitioner's performance at the Middle School. This evaluation, which was dated June 30, 1993, noted several areas of concern similar to the evaluations at the Lincoln and Quarles schools.

In a letter dated July 7, 1993 to petitioner, Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio stated as follows: "Please be advised that on July 22, 1993 the Board of Education will act to issue you a 60 day notice to terminate your employment with the Englewood Public Schools."

Shortly after receipt of the letter dated July 7, 1993, petitioner met briefly with Assistant Superintendent Treppicchio and reviewed his personnel file. Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio did not advise petitioner of his right to request a public discussion by the Board at the meeting on July 22, 1993. Petitioner did not request a public discussion or the opportunity to appear before the Board, and he did not attend the meeting on July 22, 1993.

At the meeting on July 22, 1993, Superintendent Oliver presented to the Board in a closed session his recommendation that petitioner should be terminated. After hearing Dr. Oliver's presentation, the Board voted by a margin of seven to zero to terminate petitioner's employment upon sixty days notice to begin on July 23, 1993 and end on September 20, 1993. Thereafter, petitioner was notified of the Board's action by letter dated July 23, 1993.

By letter dated August 12, 1993, petitioner's attorney requested a statement of reasons for the termination. The Board responded with a letter dated August 26, 1993, setting forth the reasons for the termination.

b. Disputed Facts

Petitioner relies on the letter dated July 7, 1993 from Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio. Petitioner infers from the wording of the letter and the absence of any other explanation that the Board had made a determination with respect to his employment prior to the issuance of the letter and that to do so, the Board must have conducted a secret meeting. Petitioner testified that upon receipt of this letter, he did not think that he had a right to request public discussion at the meeting on July 22, 1993. Petitioner thought that he would be terminated, and he felt that he had "lost the battle."

Respondents presented the testimony of Dr. Henry Oliver, William Trepicchio and Norman W. Davis, who is a member of the Englewood Board of Education. Dr. Oliver testified that he received an evaluation dated June 30, 1993, by Dr. Pruitt, who considered petitioner's performance from May 10, 1993 to June 30, 1993. Dr. Oliver viewed the evaluation as reason for serious concern. Dr. Pruitt's assessment was similar to the earlier evaluations by the principal at the Lincoln and Quarles schools identifying areas of concern. Dr. Oliver previously thought that the earlier evaluations could be the product of a personality conflict. Dr. Pruitt's evaluation raised similar concerns to the earlier evaluations and represented a second consecutive negative evaluation. In a cover note, Dr. Pruitt emphatically recommended against petitioner's continued employment. Dr. Oliver considered the evaluation dated June 30, 1993 in conjunction with other factors and decided that petitioner should be terminated. While acknowledging that Dr. Pruitt was denied an increment and has since retired, Dr. Oliver viewed Dr. Pruitt's evaluation as the critical factor in the decision to recommend termination.

Dr. Oliver spoke with Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio and authorized him to notify petitioner that his termination would be considered by the Board at its regular meeting on July 22, 1993. The Board members were not involved with the letter. Dr. Oliver began his vacation during the weekend of July 4, 1993, and did not see Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio's letter of July 7, 1993, until he returned in mid-July. Dr. Oliver stated that it would have been preferable to elaborate somewhat in the letter of July 7, 1993, and he acknowledged that the letter could give the impression that the determination to terminate had already been made. However, Dr. Oliver stated that that was not the case.

Dr. Oliver did not speak with any Board member from July 7 to July 22. The Board never initiated a termination, and he never heard of any faction of the Board meeting concerning petitioner.

Dr. Oliver met with petitioner on July 20, 1993. During the meeting, petitioner expressed dismay and disagreement with the action to terminate his employment. Dr. Oliver referred to the Dr. Pruitt's evaluation and recommendation and stated that he had no alternative but to recommend petitioner's termination. Dr. Oliver knew that petitioner was aware of his right to request a public discussion since he had done so in April 1993, but petitioner did not request a public hearing at the meeting scheduled for July 22, 1993. During the meeting on July 22, 1993, Dr. Oliver presented his recommendation concerning petitioner, and the Board voted to terminate petitioner's employment.

Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio testified that he and Dr. Oliver discussed Dr. Pruitt's evaluation of petitioner and that Dr. Oliver decided to recommend that the Board terminate petitioner's employment at its meeting on July 22, 1993. As a result, Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio prepared the letter dated July 7, 1993 to petitioner. The letter should have been similar to others which were more informative, but because he was very busy, he wrote the letter as he did. Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio stated that he would write the letter differently if he had it to do again, but that he viewed it as sufficient notice.

As part of his duties, an assistant principal should be aware of personnel procedures, including rights under the Open Public Meetings Act. Administrators are aware of the right to request a hearing, which is always provided by the Board.

Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio is involved in all meetings concerning personnel. The normal procedure is that the Superintendent makes a recommendation concerning termination to the Board. Action by the Board is required to effectuate the termination. The only meetings at which petitioner was discussed occurred on April 29, 1993 and July 22, 1993. During the period from June 24, 1993 to July 22, 1993, the Board did not have any meeting other than those on June 24, June 30 and July 22. Following petitioner's termination on July 22, 1993, petitioner's position was filled by a person from outside the school system.

Norman W. Davis testified that he is a member of the Englewood Board of Education. Mr. Davis testified that the Board considered the Superintendent's recommendation to terminate petitioner at its regular meeting on July 22, 1993 and approved the recommendation. Aside from the possibility that petitioner was discussed at meetings on June 24 and June 30, the Board had no other discussions or meetings concerning petitioner during the June to July time frame.

Respondents' witnesses were fully credible, and their testimony is accepted as true. The wording of the letter dated July 7, 1993 is a product of inartful drafting rather than an indication that the Board had met and determined prior thereto to terminate petitioner's employment. Petitioner's claim that he did not realize that he had a right to request that any discussion of his employment be held at a public meeting was not credible. Accordingly, the above summary of the testimony of respondents' witnesses is FOUND AS FACT. Additionally, I specifically FIND that the Board did not conduct a secret meeting in regard to petitioner.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

The Open Public Meetings Act (the Act), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21, insures that citizens have adequate advance notice of and the right to attend all meetings of public bodies at which any business of the public is discussed or acted upon in any way, subject to exception only in those circumstances where the public interest would be endangered or the personal privacy rights of individuals or guaranteed rights of individuals would be in danger of unwarranted invasion. N.J.S.A. 10:4-7. A public body must provide adequate notice of its meetings. N.J.S.A. 10:4-9(a). "Adequate notice" means written advance notice of at least forty-eight hours in accordance with N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d). The meeting must be open to the public in accordance with N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(a), unless the public is excluded pursuant to exceptions listed in N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b). One exception set forth in N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)8 relates to employment, termination of employment, evaluation of performance of employees, and terms and conditions of employment; however, an employee whose rights could be adversely affected may request that the matter be discussed at a public meeting. An action by a public body not inconformity with the Act may be voided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a), subject to the limitation that the public body may take corrective or remedial action by acting de novo at a public meeting held in conformity with the Act. Strict compliance to the letter of the law is required. Polillo v. Deane, 74 N.J. 562, 578 (1977).

Employees whose rights may be adversely affected by a decision of a public body should be given reasonable notice thereof to enable them to decide whether they desire public discussion and, if so, to present an appropriate request. Rice v. Union Cty. Reg. High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J.Super. 64, 73-74 (App. Div. 1977), certif. denied, 76 N.J. 238 (1978). Notice to conform to the Act need not be actual; it may be constructive. Jamison v. Morris Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 198 N.J.Super. 411, 416 (App. Div. 1985).

Petitioner contends that the Board conducted a secret meeting in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act prior to the issuance of the letter dated July 7, 1993, and decided to terminate his employment. Petitioner's contention raises a factual issue which was resolved in favor of respondents. The specific finding was made above that the Board did not conduct a secret meeting as alleged by petitioner. Under the circumstances, the conclusion is warranted that petitioner's contention is without merit.

Respondents argued in this proceeding that the letter of July 7, 1993 and subsequent meeting on July 22, 1993 cured any violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. However, as determined above, there was no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act in the form of a secret meeting which would require a cure. Additionally, there is no allegation that the petitioner did not receive reasonable notice of the Board meetings on June 24 and 30, 1993, concerning the proposed reorganization and his possible reassignment, and there is no indication that the Board discussed termination of petitioner's employment. It follows that there was no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act that needed to be cured at the time that Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio issued his letter dated July 7, 1993.

The final issue is whether the letter dated July 7, 1993, constituted reasonable notice concerning the termination of petitioner's employment at the Board meeting on July 22, 1993. Petitioner maintains that the letter of July 7, 1993 gave him the impression that the determination had already been made that he would be terminated. Further, petitioner contends that he would have requested the opportunity to be heard at a public meeting but the letter of July 7, 1993 did not mention his right to do so, as did the letter advising him that his contract renewal would be discussed at a meeting on April 29, 1993, leading petitioner to believe that he did not have the right to do so.

Respondents argue that the Board is only required to provide reasonable notice of a meeting at which an employee will be discussed. There is no requirement that the Board advise the employee of all his rights under the Open Public Meetings Act. Respondents maintain that the letter of July 7, 1993 provided sufficient notice of the proposed termination of petitioner's employment. Respondents emphasize that petitioner was knowledegable as to the Board's practices and procedures concerning its meetings and that petitioner had previously exercised his rights under the Open Public Meetings Act in April 1993.

Respondents' arguments are more persuasive. There can be no doubt that petitioner had actual notice and that he was fully aware that the termination of his employment would come before the Board at its meeting on July 22, 1993. While the inartful wording of the letter of July 7, 1993 could give the impession that a determination had already been made to terminate petitioner's employment, the totality of the circumstances indicate that petitioner was sufficiently knowledgeable to realize that he had rights under the Open Public Meetings Act and that the time to exercise those rights, if he intended to do so, was at hand. Petitioner had meetings with Assistant Superintendent Trepicchio and Superintendent Oliver. Evidently, based upon these conversations and other circumstances, petitioner chose not to exercise his rights under the Open Public Meetings Act. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that petitioner received reasonable notice that his employment could be adversely affected at the Board meeting on July 22, 1993, and that therefore there was no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. It follows that the petition should be dismissed.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petition in this matter be dismissed.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondents' reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions relate solely to an assertion that the ALJ erred in his credibility assessments which found respondents to be fully credible and petitioner not credible. In this connection, petitioner recasts and reasserts arguments presented to the ALJ with respect to the July 7 correspondence he received from the Board and makes extensive reference to testimony proffered at the hearing as support for his contention that "the totality of the circumstances and evidence show that a web of deceit and manipulation of the system took place to violate petitioner's rights under the Open Public Meetings Act." (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 4)

In response, respondents urge that the Commissioner not consider petitioner's exceptions in reaching a determination in this matter because

> (1) No exception was taken to any findings of law made by Judge McGill,
>
> (2) The Petitioner repeatedly refers incorrectly to testimony as well as a discussion off the record.
>
> (3) The Petitioner repeatedly misstates and/or mischaracterizes testimony, and
>
> (4) The Petitioner implies facts not in evidence such as deceit, secret meeting, etc.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in the matter, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the ALJ for the reasons expressed by him in the initial decision. With respect to the exceptions of petitioner, the Commissioner notes that without a review of the transcripts of this matter, which were not a part of the record before him, it is not possible to reconcile the conflicting claims made by petitioner and respondents regarding findings of fact. Further, the existing record does not provide any cause to challenge the credibility assessments made by the ALJ.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

Record Closed: July 1,1994 Decided: July 7, 1994

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 11, 1994, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on June 17, 1994, and a hearing was scheduled for July 8, 1994.

On June 30, 1994, pro se petitioner Stephanie Ann Kiziukiewicz faxed a letter requesting that this matter be dismissed (Exhibit C-1). A follow-up letter also requested a dismissal of this matter (Exhibit C-2). On July 1, 1994, the OAL was orally notified by Ms. Kiziukiewicz that this request was submitted on behalf of both petitioners.

By letter dated July 1, 1994, attorney for respondent objected to a dismissal without prejudice and requested reimbursement for fees and costs (Exhibit C-3).

N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2(a) provides that a party may withdraw a request for a hearing by notifying the judge and all parties. It further provides that upon receipt of such notification the judge shall discontinue all proceedings and return the case file to the Clerk, who is then required to return the matter to the transmitting agency. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2(c) indicates that after the Clerk has returned the matter, a party shall address to the transmitting agency head any motion to reopen a withdrawn case.

In view of the fact that petitioners who requested the hearing have indicated their intention to withdraw, I FIND that the OAL no longer has any jurisdiction to hear this matter as a contested case.

The request of attorney for respondent for reimbursement of fees and costs resulting from this proceeding is a matter which should be addressed to the agency head or should be pursued in the appropriate legal forum in the event that this and other matters have been filed by petitioners on specious grounds for the purpose of harassing respondent or abusing the legal system.

In any event, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 I FIND that petitioners have withdrawn their request for a hearing. Therefore, I ORDER the Clerk to return this matter to the agency for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11447-93
AGENCY DKT. NO. 369-11/93

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CALVIN INGRAM, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

Mary J. Hammer, Esq., for respondent
(Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 16, 1994 Decided: June 30, 1994

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter concerns tenure charges brought against the respondent, Calvin Ingram, which were certified by Laval S. Wilson, the State District Superintendent. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 1, 1993 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was originally set down for a prehearing conference on March 24, 1993. It was adjourned and rescheduled for April 12, 1994 at which time the conference took place The matter was then set down for hearing on May 16, 17 and 18, 1994.

On May 16, 1994 a hearing was held in the matter at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. At that time the respondent, Calvin Ingram, did not appear. Counsel for respondent was present and testimony was taken. Counsel for respondent indicated that she had not had any contact from her client and was not able to get in touch with him and also indicated that she did know whether he was coming or not. At no time did the respondent in this case contact the undersigned's office or the OAL scheduling unit to request any adjournment. At the conclusion of testimony on May 16, 1994 the hearing record closed.

ISSUE

The question in this case is whether or not the charges brought against Calvin Ingram, a custodian employed by the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, can be sustained. Should those charges be sustained the question then would turn to whether or not there is some mitigating or excusing factor with respect to any of those charges. The charges as outlined in the statement of charges signed by Louis W. Milone include an allegation of repeatedly failing to complete all assigned duties by cleaning the facilities at Public School No. 6 during the period between January 1988 and August 1993. It is alleged that this constitutes neglect of duty and/or insubordination. The second charge is that during the periods between June 1990 and August 1993 the respondent was absent a total of 72 5 school days of which at least 30 were taken without authorization. It is alleged this constitutes excessive absenteeism as well as jeopardizing the health and safety of students and staff persons assigned to Public School No. 6. Charge number three alleges that on numerous occasions during the period between July 1991 and May 1993 the respondent falsified staff sign-in/sign-out records indicating that he worked the full shift when in fact he did not. The fouth and final charge is that the respondent repeatedly arrived late to work for his shift without authorization in violation of district policy. It is alleged that this conduct constitutes insubordination.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

The facts in this case are not contested by respondent.

Joseph Fulmore who is the principal of Public School No. 6 testified. He was appointed in 1989 as principal and has the responsibility for managing the building as well as facilitating program and staffing. He also supervises the custodial staff and the cafeteria staff

Mr. Fulmore is acquainted with Calvin Ingram a custodian at Public School No. 6. He first met Mr. Ingram in 1983 when Mr. Fulmore was vice-principal of that school. He had had supervisory capacity over Mr. Ingram from 1986 until the present.

Mr. Ingram was assigned the 7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. shift and was assigned to maintain the cleanliness of the building. He was responsible for cleaning the auditorium, staircases, classrooms, corridors and bathrooms. There are six other custodians who work with Mr. Ingram. Three custodians are assigned to the night shift.

Mr. Fulmore reports to work at 6:00 a.m. and Mr. Ingram is due in at 7:00 a.m. Mr. Fulmore stated that he would be there at the sign-in and touch base with Mr. Ingram there as well as during work.

On December 21, 1990 Mr. Fulmore sent a letter to Mr. Ingram (P-5) indicating that on December 5, 1990 Mr. Ingram was told to make certain that the auditorium of the school was cleaned immediately after lunch in his assigned area. On that evening there was to be a meeting at the school. When Mr. Fulmore walked into the auditorium at 5:00 p.m. he found debris strewn around from the children's lunch that had not been cleaned. It required Mr. Fulmore to find volunteers to clean the auditorium. The letter also informed him that this was not the first time Mr. Fulmore has had to speak with him about his unacceptable work performance. It finished with "I will not tolerate this kind of attitude from this day forward."

On July 25, 1991 a memo was sent from Mr. Fulmore to Mr. Ingram indicating that he has been seen in areas where he should not be, outside of the building during work hours and also that he has been leaving the building before the scheduled time. Mr. Fulmore asked Mr. Ingram "Please refrain from this practice." It also gave Mr. Ingram the opportunity to meet with Mr. Fulmore to discuss the contents of the letter.

On June 15, 1992 the State District Superintendent Laval S. Wilson sent a letter to Mr. Ingram indicating that his increment adjustment would be withheld for the 1992-93 school year for the reasons of poor job performance and tardiness to work.

A memo was also sent to Mr. Ingram from Louis Milone on May 1, 1992 regarding job performance. This stated that Mr. Milone, who is the supervisor of custodial services, had received a complaint from Mr. Fulmore about an incomplete work assignment on Thursday, April 30, 1992. The memo (P-8) continues "This is not the first time that you have failed to complete your assigned work." Mr. Ingram signed this document.

On November 12, 1992 a memo was sent to Calvin Ingram from Louis W. Milone advising him that he was absent on November 3, 1992 and failed to call in. It went on to say that this failure to call in when absent "is not acceptable." Mr. Ingram signed this document on November 23, 1992. (P-10)

On December 18, 1992 another memo by Louis W. Milone, from the office of custodial service,s was sent to Calvin Ingram. This letter advised Mr. Ingram that he had been receiving complaints from Mr. Fulmore again regarding Mr. Ingram's job performance. It also indicated poor work performance and an indication that stairs and bathrooms were left dirty, the gym was being neglected and that the respondent took an additional half-hour for lunch. He was advised "This type of behavior is irresponsible and must cease immediately." The memo went to state that there had been other complaints and that he was being placed on 90 days notice. During this period he would be given every opportunity to improve his work habits and to become a responsible member of the staff. This document was signed by Mr. Ingram on December 22, 1992. (P-11)

Another memo was sent on February 8, 1993 from John A. Nolan, director of personnel. This letter stated that there had been a recommendation of a suspension without pay based upon overall poor job performance in his assignment as custodian. Accordingly Mr. Ingram was suspended for five days without pay effective Tuesday, February 9, 1993. The specific charges were:

a. Failing to observe working hours by tardiness or by unexcused or excessive absenteeism.

d. Failing to adhere to rules or regulations as defined by the supervisor either by orally or in writing.

e. Continuing unsatisfactory evaluations concerning job efficiency after proper instruction. This document was also signed by Mr. Ingram. (P-13)

Mr. Fulmore also sent a memo to Mr. Ingram on April 8, 1993 regarding an absence for which Mr. Ingram did not call in. That memo finishes "Mr. Ingram, I had to use some students to clean your area, because you are not reliable." (P-15)

Mr. Fulmore then went through a number of the evaluations that were documented in evidence exhibiting unsatisfactory evaluations by the chief custodian (P-30 through P-37)

Mr. Fulmore also indicated that from June 1990 on Mr. Ingram had a total of approximately 72.5 absences. On July 13, 1993 Mr. Fulmore sent another letter to Mr. Ingram (P-19) which indicated two days of absence July 1 and 9, 1993 and a lateness on July 6, 1993.

Alfred Bridges who was the chief custodian at Public School No. 6 since September 1992 also testified.

He first met Mr. Ingram on September 2, 1992. Mr. Bridges stated that he has a staff of five including Mr. Ingram and that Mr. Bridges also has a workload. He witnessed and signed the evaluations (P-27 through 30) and each one showed unsatisfactory performance on the part of Mr. Ingram.

The witness stated that he had spoken with Mr. Ingram who at one time said he had "paid his dues." There were no further conversations at that time.

Mr. Bridges spoke with Mr. Ingram at least two times a week. He said on occasion he spoke with him regarding his tardiness as well as his absenteeism. There were also custodial meetings held in the auditorium once a month.

On March 10, 1993 he spoke with Mr. Ingram however things did not improve after that. Neither his attendance improved nor was he arriving on a more timely basis. The witness also indicated that Mr Ingram left early but never asked permission to do so.

As these facts are not contested, along with the documentary exhibits submitted by the parties I FIND them to be the operational facts in this case.

DISCUSSION

In this case there is no factual dispute regarding the absences themselves, the latenesses nor the performance.

High absenteeism has previously been deemed sufficient grounds for disciplinary action even with the existence of legitimate medical excuse. Montville Township Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Montville, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8247-83, Commissioner's Decision at 10 (April 16, 1984); Angelucci v. West Orange Board of Education, 180 S.L.D. 1066. This being the case the burden shifts to the tenured employee to show that performance was unaffected by continued absences, notwithstanding the legitimacy of excuse. Vonita Smith v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5255-88, Commissioner's Decision (April 18, 1984).

In this case no information is presented regarding the absences, the latnesses or poor job performance. In each case the necessary focus is not merely the number of days of absence but a consideration of the nature of the absences themselves. It is necessary to also assess the impact that the absences have on the continuity of services within the school during the period of time in which the absences occurred. There also, logically, must be some form of warning given to the employee that his or her superiors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences and conduct which have come forward.

In Kelsy v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5773-88, Commissioner's Decision (May 11, 1989), the following clearly outlined the procedure which must be followed:

> What a board of education is required to show, however, is that there was consideration of (1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences, cite omitted; (2) the impact that the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time that the absences occurred, not merely after the fact;

> and (3) that there be some warning given to the employee that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences (cite omitted). . . .

Applying these tests to the facts in this case it is clear that the number of absences as found in the documentary evidence as well as testified to by Mr. Fulmore are excessive. A number of absences were without any type of prior authorization. Additionally it is clear that custodial services suffered as the result both of Mr. Ingram's poor job performance as well as his absences and latenesses. The very fact that Mr. Fulmore had to find volunteers to help clean the gym of lunchtime debris which included milk cartons and other food type debris, from the floor before he could hold a meeting with visitors to the school in the evening shows an adverse impact. Additionally a failure to clean bathrooms, hallways and stairways and other areas assigned to Mr. Ingram show a potential for health and safety hazards. A failure to clean bathrooms presents a health hazard to all students and other individuals who use that particular bathroom. Additionally objects of debris on stairways, floors and in classrooms cause a potential hazard for students moving from place to place in the building. This hazard is not limited to students but would also endanger teachers, parents and visitors to the school. Debris on floors and in hallways might also impede the progress of those individuals who are physically challenged.

The last factor which must be discussed is whether or not there was some warning given to the employee by his or her superiors that there has been some dissatisfaction with the pattern of work and attendance engaged in. This case is replete with documentary evidence warning Mr. Ingram that his conduct was not acceptable and would not be tolerated. His behavior did not improve. He continued to be late and he continued to be absent without authorization and most importantly his custodial duties were poorly performed jeopardizing the health and safety of students. Not only did he receive numerous letters and memoranda as well as copies of evaluations which he signed but his salary increment was withheld. After that he was suspended for five days based upon the same pattern of behavior. This respondent has clearly had every opportunity to improve his behavior as well as meet with Mr. Fulmore or other staff members to assist him in arriving at an appropriate level of work performance He has not done so. Also a notice of the hearing was sent to the respondent and he did not appear. The respondent in this case has shown no sign of wishing to maintain his employment with the district.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to complete his assigned duties by cleaning the facilities at Public School No. 6 and that this constitutes a neglect of duty and/or insubordination as described in charge number one. I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has been absent a total of 72.5 school days, a large number of which were taken without authorization which is disruptive to school operations and jeopardizes the health and safety of students and staff persons assigned to Public School No. 6 as found in charge two. I further CONCLUDE that on numerous occasions between July 1991 and May 1993 the respondent left work early without authorization and was late to work without authorization in violation of district policy as charged in charges number three and four.

ORDER

It is hererby ORDERED that Calvin Ingram, a tenured custodian with the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County be and hereby is dismissed from his position as a custodian.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, 8th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: June 28, 1994 Decided: June 28, 1994

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on September 20, 1991 following the filing of a request by the petitioner that it be relieved of certain requirements pertaining to permanent handicap access to its facilities. Thereafter, ongoing efforts were made in an effort to attempt to settle the case without the necessity for a plenary hearing. When it appeared that such efforts were proving not to be successful, a plenary hearing was scheduled and commenced on May 12, 1993 with the taking of testimony. However, the parties continued thereafter to explore the possibility of settlement and as a result of their continuing efforts and following the exchange of several draft agreements, the finalized settlement agreement containing the terms and conditions of the settlement was submitted to me. That document, which is attached hereto, contains the signatures of counsel for the petitioner, Essex County Education Services Commission, and by the deputy attorney general on behalf of the Department of Education. It provides, as well, that it will become effective following approval by the Commissioner of Education.

Having reviewed the terms of the proposed settlement, I FIND as follows:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the terms of the settlement as evidenced by the signatures which appear on the settlement agreement.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the public interest and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that the settlement agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be and are hereby CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

ESSEX COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION PETITIONER, vs. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, BUREAU OF FACILITIES PLANNING RESPONDENT	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 8946-91 CIVIL ACTION SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

A hearing on this appeal was scheduled for March 17, 1994, before Administrative Law Judge Stephen Weiss. Before the hearing the parties hereto agreed to settle this matter in accordance with the following terms:

A. Both parties agree to the following terms and conditions:

1. The Department of Education will assume handi-cap-accessibility costs at the 7 sites identified in the petition, subject to an overall cap of $21,000.

2. Essex County Educational Services Commission (Commission) will render the 11 trailers, installed since the filing of the petition in this matter handicap-accessible, subject to approval by the Bureau of Facilities Planning.

3. Trailers that have remained in the same location since installation prior to 1990 will be grandfathered with the understanding that if a handicapped student or teacher needs access to trailer, or if school becomes handicap-assessable, such trailer will be made handicap-assessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

4. With respect to those sites where trailers installed prior to 1990 have been moved since their installation, those trailers and/or sites must be made handicap-assessable by the Commission within the next seven years. During phase-in, the trailers will be subject to the same requirements as the grandfathered trailers. In other words, if a student requires access to the trailer or the school to which the trailer is attached becomes handicap-accessible, the trailer or trailers will be rendered handicap-accessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

5. In the event the Commission encounters extraordinary hardships in complying with the seven year phase-in period for making the trailers, identified in paragraph 4, handicap-accessible, the Commission may make application to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facilities Planning for relief.

6. The Commission must provide the Bureau with an identification of trailers moved since 1990 within a reasonable time.

B. Nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party and this agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter.

C. This agreement will only become effective when it is approved by the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

D. Appellant waives all claims against the State of New Jersey with regard to this matter.

The above terms represent a full and final disposition of all issues in this matter. Appellant fully understands the terms as a full and final settlement of all issues involved in this petition.

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner is unable to ascertain how the settlement agreement, specifically that provision (No. 1) requiring the Department of Education to assume handicap accessibility costs at seven specified sites up to an overall cap of $21,000, appropriately resolves the underlying controversy, serves the public interest or would actually be effectuated.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for a fuller explication of the rationale for the proposed settlement.

This matter (OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8379-94) is on remand from the decision of the Commissioner of Education, dated August 9, 1992, in OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8946-91. In that remand the Commissioner returned the case to the Office of Administrative Law in 0order to provide an opportunity for a fuller explication of the rationale behind the settlement of the original case and, in particular, an articulation of the terms requiring payment by the Department of Education of handicap accessibility costs at seven specified sites.

Following the remand the parties continued to discuss the mechanics of settlement and now have proposed an amended settlement agreement which they believe resolves the matter in accordance with the Commissioner's concerns. That amended settlement agreement, signed and dated by the attorneys on August 29, 1995 and on October 3, 1995, respectively, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the amended settlement agreement and I FIND:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of counsel which appear on the amended settlement agreement;

2. The settlement as set forth in the amended settlement agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

A settlement agreement in the above matter, conditioned upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education, was remanded by the Commissioner on August 9, 1992 for a fuller explication of the rationale of the settlement, specifically the terms calling for the payment by the Department of Education of handicap accessibility costs at seven specified sites. As a result of the Commissioner's decision, the parties have proposed an amended settlement agreement, which does not call for any payments by the Department of Education and resolves this matter in accordance with the following terms:

1. Both parties agree to the following terms and conditions:

1. Essex County Educational Services Commission (Commission) will render all trailers, installed or moved since the filing of the petition and as noted in the attached list provided by the Commission, handicap-accessible, subject to approval by the Bureau of Facilities Planning within five years from the date of the approval of this agreement.

2. Trailers that have remained in the same location since installation prior to 1990 will be grandfathered with the understanding that if any individual with disabilities requires access to trailer, or if the school to which the trailer is attached becomes handicap-accessible, such trailer will be made handicap-accessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

3. During phase-in, all trailers identified in paragraph 1 will be subject to the same requirements as the grandfathered trailers identified in paragraph 2. In other words, if a student requires access to the trailer or the school to which the trailer is attached becomes handicap-accessible, the trailer or trailers will be rendered handicap-accessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

4. In the event the Commission encounters extraordinary hardships in complying with the five year phase-in period for making the trailers, identified in the attached list, handicap-accessible, the Commission may make application to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facilities Planning for relief.

2. Nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party and this agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter.

3. This agreement will only become effective when it is approved by the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

4. Appellant waives all claims against the State of New Jersey with regard to this matter.

The above terms represent a full and final disposition of all issues in this matter. Appellant fully understands the terms as a full and final settlement of all issues involved in this petition.

ESSEX COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS BOARD OF EDUCATION, Petitioner,
v.
ARNOLD R. TALBOT,
Respondent.

Nathanya G. Simon, Esq., for petitioner
(Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler, attorneys)

Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., for respondent
(Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 28, 1994 Decided: June 30, 1992

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

This matter constitutes a tenure proceeding pertaining to charges brought by the Essex County Vocational Schools Board of Education (petitioner) against Arnold R. Talbot (respondent) of incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher, and conduct constituting other just cause In part, the charges address allegations of inappropriate conduct between respondent and a student on January 15, 1993

Tenure charges were filed against respondent by the petitioner on February 24, 1993, at which time a sworn statement of evidence was also filed. Respondent was sent a copy of the tenure charges and sworn statement of evidence on February 24, 1993. On March 22, 1993, petitioner determined to certify the charges to the Commissioner of the Department of Education (Department) for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. On the same day, petitioner determined to suspend respondent without pay.

The matter was transmitted by the Department to the Office of Administrative Law on May 5, 1993, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Telephone conferences were conducted throughout the proceedings. Hearings initially scheduled to commence in February 1994 were adjourned because of the unavailability of a witness. The parties commenced settlement discussions and ultimately reached an agreement resolving the matter. In the interim, a hearing was held on June 15, 1994, because of witness scheduling considerations. An executed Settlement Agreement was filed on June 28, 1994, on which date the record was closed. Attached herewith is a copy of the Settlement Agreement.

Respondent has been employed by petitioner since 1976. The Settlement Agreement provides, in part, that respondent will resign from his tenured position and employment with petitioner permanently, as of September 30 1994, by signing an irrevocable letter of resignation in the form referenced in the agreement. Respondent also consents to the revocation of his teaching or other educational certificates, by voluntary agreement, upon action of the State Board of Examiners and consents to not oppose removal of his name from the rolls of those certified and licensed for educational employment in the State. The Settlement Agreement notes that respondent's intent is to permanently retire from teaching and does not constitute an admission of wrongdoing and that he understands that the revocation will be communicated to other states. Respondent also agrees to voluntarily withdraw and dismiss all other pending actions.

As the parties recognize in the Settlement Agreement, continuation of litigation, regardless of the outcome, has the potential for dissension and disruption between and among the members of the school community, including staff, parents, and students; that respondent's future effectiveness as a teacher could be severely impacted by the notoriety arising from the continuation of the proceedings; and that certain pending procedural defenses could require a refiling of some tenure charges, resulting in additional delay, to the detriment of both parties.

The voluntary resolution of litigation through settlement is favored. Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 25 N.J. 17 (1957). I am persuaded that the settlement agreement should be adopted. The settlement agreement is in the interest of both parties, ending the prospect of lengthy and divisive litigation and allowing respondent to retire after a lengthy career with petitioner.

I FIND the following to be FACTS.

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that the tenure charges filed against respondent by the Board on February 24, 1993, should be DISMISSED and that the Settlement Agreement should be adopted.

It is hereby ORDERED that the attached Settlement Agreement be and is hereby APPROVED and that the parties comply with the Agreement. It is also hereby ORDERED that the tenure charges filed by petitioner against respondent on February 24, 1993 be and are hereby dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ARNOLD R. TALBOT,	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
ESSEX COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	O.A.L. DOCKET NO. EDU 04124-93N AGENCY REF. NO. 52-3/93
ESSEX COUNTY.	:	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

ARNOLD R. TALBOT (hereinafter "Mr. Talbot"), residing at 162 North 19th Street, East Orange, New Jersey, and the ESSEX COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter the "Board"), with offices at 68 Harrison Street, East Orange, New Jersey, hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

WHEREAS Mr. Talbot has been employed by the Board since 1976; and

WHEREAS Mr. Talbot has been the subject of tenure charges; and

WHEREAS further pursuit of tenure proceedings and a decision by the Commissioner of Education, regardless of the outcome, would cause dissension and disruption between and among the members of the Essex County Vocational School community, including staff, parents and students; and

WHEREAS Mr. Talbot's future effectiveness as a teacher could be severely impaired by the notoriety arising from his involvement in these proceedings, regardless of their outcome; and

WHEREAS certain procedural defenses are pending which could require a re-filing of some tenure charges resulting in additional delays to the detriment of both parties; and

WHEREAS the settlement resolves any possibility of Mr. Talbot's future employment in the Essex County Vocational Schools and/or in any other school district; and

WHEREAS it is in the best interests of the parties and of the community represented by the Board to resolve this matter permanently without further disruption of the district;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties,

IT IS on this 20th day of June, 1994, agreed:

1. In return for compliance with this settlement, Mr. Talbot will:

(a) Retire from his tenured position and employment with the Board permanently, as of September 30, 1994 by signing an irrevocable letter of resignation in the form attached hereto.

(b) Consent to the revocation of his teaching or other educational certificates, by voluntary agreement, upon action of the State Board of Examiners, and consent to not oppose the removal of his name from the rolls of those certified and licensed for educational employment in the State by said revocation.

This consent to revocation results from Mr. Talbot's decision to permanently retire from teaching and does not constitute an admission of wrong-doing by Mr. Talbot. Mr. Talbot understands that this revocation will be communicated to other states pursuant to interstate compact.

(c) Permanently waive and relinquish any and all rights to tenure, seniority, recall or employment in the Essex County Vocational Schools, effective September 30, 1994, and

(d) Agree to voluntarily withdraw and dismiss all pending actions, arbitration requests, and grievances regarding the withholding of his 1993-94 salary increment as well as waive any and all rights to contest the withholding of his 1994-95 increment pursuant to this Agreement.

2. In return for Mr. Talbot's compliance with this Agreement, the Board agrees to:

(a) Pay Mr. Talbot the sum of $17.000.00 as a payment to compensate him for the relinquishment of his tenure and seniority rights and in full and final settlement of all pending litigation. Said amount shall be paid in a lump sum on or about September 1, 1994 and in accordance with Paragraph 12. Said sum does not constitute back salary or wages and shall not be subject to payroll deductions. The Board may issue an IRS Form 1099 as provided by law.

(b) Pay Mr. Talbot the gross sum of $9,091.32 which, after the deduction of payroll taxes, will result in an actual net payment of $6,162.00. This sum constitutes Mr. Talbot's entitlement pursuant to the teachers' collective bargaining agreement as final compensation for 137 accumulated leave days.

(c) Place Mr. Talbot on a leave of absence with full salary and health insurance from September 1, 1994 through September 30, 1994. Salary shall be paid at the same rate as was in effect for the 1993-94 school year.

3. Mr. Talbot shall not be entitled to any other benefits or emoluments of employment except as set forth in this Agreement.

4. Mr. Talbot, in consideration of this Agreement, releases and forever discharges the Board and the Board's members, directors, trustees, officers, employees, agents, attorneys, successors, heirs, executors and assigns (the Board and the foregoing persons and entities are hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Releasees") from:

(a) Any and all claims asserted or which could have been asserted;

(b) Any and all claims, charges or complaints asserted, or which could have been asserted concerning any aspect of Arnold Talbot's employment with the Board, any agreement concerning such employment or the termination of such employment, including, but not limited to, any and all claims of wrongful discharge or breach of contract, any and all claims for equitable estoppel, any and all claims for employee benefits, and any and all claims of discrimination on any basis including, but not limited to the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, Federal laws against discrimination and the Americans with Disabilities Act;

(c) Any and all claims for back pay, vacation pay, liquidated, compensatory and punitive damages, reinstatement, and attorneys' fees, disbursements and costs;

Nothing in this release shall be deemed to bar the right of Mr. Talbot to pursue a claim to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

5. The Board, in consideration of this Agreement, releases and forever discharges Mr. Talbot from any and all claims asserted or which may be asserted against him related to any aspect of his employment with the Board, including, but not limited to, any claims for wrongful conduct, contribution, indemnity or any matter related to the payment of his salary or benefits. Nothing in this release shall be deemed to bar the right of the Board to pursue a claim to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

6. This Agreement shall be interpreted, construed and enforced pursuant to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

7. This Agreement sets forth the entire agreement between the parties hereto.

8. This Agreement shall not in any way be construed as an admission by the Board or Arnold Talbot of any liability, or of any unlawful acts whatsoever; and the Board and Arnold Talbot specifically disclaim any liability for any wrongful or unlawful acts whatsoever.

9. Both Mr. Talbot and the Board expressly acknowledge, represent and warrant that the terms and provisions of this Agreement are the only consideration for signing this Agreement; that no other promise or agreement of any kind has been made to or with any person or entity whatsoever to cause the signing of this Agreement; and that in executing this Agreement, Mr. Talbot does not rely and has not relied upon any representation or statement made by any of the Board's agents, representatives or attorneys with regard to the subject matter, basis or effect of this Agreement or otherwise.

10. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

11. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

12. The parties understand that this Agreement is subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. It shall not take effect until all such approvals are received. In the event that this Agreement is not approved, or if a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall at any time declare this Agreement, or any part of it, to be illegal, null, void or of no force or effect, then the entire Agreement shall be rendered null and void and the paries shall be returned to the status quo existing prior to the Agreement as to all of their respective rights, claims and defenses. In particular, if the settlement is not approved or is subsequently nullified in whole or in part, all releases shall be void and Mr. Talbot's agreement to retire and his relinquishment of his tenure and seniority, as well as his consent to the revocation of his teaching and educational certificates, shall be similarly rendered null, void and of no force or effect. No payment shall be made hereunder unless and until the approval of the Commissioner of Education is received.

13. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed as conferring any benefit upon any person, group or association not a direct signatory hereto. Further, this Agreement shall not be deemed to establish any "past practice" or "precedent" requiring or restricting the Board in providing any benefit to any person, group or association other than Mr. Talbot.

14. Arnold Talbot expressly acknowledges, represents and warrants that he has carefully read this Agreement and has fully reviewed and discussed its terms with his attorneys; that Mr. Talbot fully understand this Agreement's terms, conditions and significance; and that Mr. Talbot has executed this Agreement voluntarily, knowingly and with the advice of his representatives.

15. This Agreement is the entire Agreement between the parties and incorporates the complete financial obligation of the board to Arnold R. Talbot.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties do set forth their hands and seal as of the date first above written.

ESSEX COUNTY VOCATIONAL	:	DECISION
SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms, as they comport, for the reasons set forth in the initial decision and in the agreement itself, with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846).

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the instant settlement as the final decision in this matter, which is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement. Consistent therewith, this matter is forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as it deems appropriate.

Record Closed: October 4, 1995 Decided: October 6, 1995

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter (OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8379-94) is on remand from the decision of the Commissioner of Education, dated August 9, 1992, in OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8946-91. In that remand the Commissioner returned the case to the Office of Administrative Law in 0order to provide an opportunity for a fuller explication of the rationale behind the settlement of the original case and, in particular, an articulation of the terms requiring payment by the Department of Education of handicap accessibility costs at seven specified sites.

Following the remand the parties continued to discuss the mechanics of settlement and now have proposed an amended settlement agreement which they believe resolves the matter in accordance with the Commissioner's concerns. That amended settlement agreement, signed and dated by the attorneys on August 29, 1995 and on October 3, 1995, respectively, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the amended settlement agreement and I FIND:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of counsel which appear on the amended settlement agreement;

2. The settlement as set forth in the amended settlement agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

A settlement agreement in the above matter, conditioned upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education, was remanded by the Commissioner on August 9, 1992 for a fuller explication of the rationale of the settlement, specifically the terms calling for the payment by the Department of Education of handicap accessibility costs at seven specified sites. As a result of the Commissioner's decision, the parties have proposed an amended settlement agreement, which does not call for any payments by the Department of Education and resolves this matter in accordance with the following terms:

1. Both parties agree to the following terms and conditions:

1. Essex County Educational Services Commission (Commission) will render all trailers, installed or moved since the filing of the petition and as noted in the attached list provided by the Commission, handicap-accessible, subject to approval by the Bureau of Facilities Planning within five years from the date of the approval of this agreement.

2. Trailers that have remained in the same location since installation prior to 1990 will be grandfathered with the understanding that if any individual with disabilities requires access to trailer, or if the school to which the trailer is attached becomes handicap-accessible, such trailer will be made handicap-accessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

3. During phase-in, all trailers identified in paragraph 1 will be subject to the same requirements as the grandfathered trailers identified in paragraph 2. In other words, if a student requires access to the trailer or the school to which the trailer is attached becomes handicap-accessible, the trailer or trailers will be rendered handicap-accessible by the Commission on a timely basis so as to afford prompt access to the trailer.

4. In the event the Commission encounters extraordinary hardships in complying with the five year phase-in period for making the trailers, identified in the attached list, handicap-accessible, the Commission may make application to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facilities Planning for relief.

2. Nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party and this agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter.

3. This agreement will only become effective when it is approved by the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

4. Appellant waives all claims against the State of New Jersey with regard to this matter.

The above terms represent a full and final disposition of all issues in this matter. Appellant fully understands the terms as a full and final settlement of all issues involved in this petition.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISCIPLINARY HEARING OF WILLIAM MC CARGO, GROUNDS WORKER, MARIE H. KATZENBACH SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

AUGUST 12, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISCIPLINARY	:
HEARING OF WILLIAM MC CARGO,	:
GROUNDS WORKER, MARIE H.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
KATZENBACH SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF,	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF	:
EDUCATION.	:

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education as an appeal of a preliminary notice of discipline (D93-010) which calls for Mr. McCargo's (appellant's) dismissal from service as a Grounds Worker at the Marie H. Katzenbach School for the Deaf.

The disciplinary hearing was conducted on June 29, 1994, at the Katzenbach School under the provisions of the contract between the State of New Jersey and the Operations, Maintenance and Services and Crafts Unit of the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, Local 195 (IFPTE). Hope R. Blackburn, Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, State Department of Education, served as the Commissioner's designee to hear the matter. Mr. Pasquale Severino, Local 195, Katzenbach School Chapter President, was appellant's representative and Mr. Greg Hodge, Business Manager of the Katzenbach School, served as management's representative. An interpreter was provided to Mr. McCargo. The record closed in this matter on July 15, 1994, following management's submission of legible copies of documentary evidence introduced at the hearing and five working days for any objection by appellant's representative.

Disciplinary Notice D93-010 seeks termination of appellant's employment for insubordination, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(2), neglect of duty, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(7), and misuse of public property, N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.3(a)(8) charging that on October 6 and 7, 1993, appellant was insubordinate in refusing to complete his assigned job duties; that on October 7, 1993 he destroyed state tools assigned to him for his use; and that on November 11, 1993, he unlawfully entered Building #20 at the Katzenbach School and slept overnight. It is charged that these actions represented continued patterns of insubordination, neglect of duty and misuse of state property for which he had been previously disciplined and that the actions were in direct violation of the agreement he signed with management on October 3, 1991. The agreement held in abeyance an earlier disciplinary action seeking his removal from service for allegedly threatening his supervisor and the Food Service Director, transferred appellant to the position as an assistant grounds worker and referred him to the Employee Advisory Service on the condition that appellant not act in an insubordinate or threatening manner towards his supervisors and co-workers.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The accounts of the incidents establishing the basis of the disciplinary action seeking Mr. McCargo's removal were provided by Mr. Hodge, witnesses testifying on behalf of the Katzenbach School and Mr. McCargo's prior disciplinary history including an earlier decision by the Commissioner of Education, In the Matter of the Disciplinary Hearing of William McCargo, Senior Food Service Worker,

Marie H. Katzenbach School for the Deaf, New Jersey State Department of Education, #184-91, decided October 24, 1991, in which Mr. McCargo was ordered to be suspended without pay for five days. Mr. McCargo did not dispute the evidence offered on behalf of the Katzenbach School. Instead, he admitted to the actions alleged, repeatedly stated that he refused to work by himself unless he was given help and acknowledged ignoring the orders of his superiors, refusing to complete his assigned duties, destroying state property and unlawfully entering a building and sleeping there overnight. Accordingly, the evidence presented on behalf of the Katzenbach School is accepted as fact, as follows:

1. On October 6, 1993, Mr. McCargo refused to follow the direct order of his supervisor to cut weeds growing along a fence on the Katzenbach grounds adjacent to Upper Ferry Road. He, also, refused to leave the maintenance area or to go to his assigned work area.

2. On October 7, 1993, Mr. McCargo refused to follow the direct order of his supervisor to complete the work assigned to him on October 6, 1994. Instead of completing the job. Mr. McCargo destroyed two weed cutters assigned to him to complete the task.

3. On November 11, 1993, Mr. McCargo entered Building #20 on the Katzenbach grounds without authorization and spent the night there.

4. On October 3, 1991, Mr. McCargo entered into a written agreement with the management of the Katzenbach school which provided, in part, that a disciplinary action then pending against him would be held in abeyance and he would be transferred to the position of Assistant Grounds Keeper provided that he stop behaving aggressively towards his co-workers, follow his supervisor's directions, and not threaten anyone including threats by gesture.

5. That Mr. McCargo continuously refused to comply with direct instructions of his supervisors.

6. That Mr. McCargo continuously destroyed state property by destroying lawn mowers when he became angry with his supervisors or did not want to perform the work assigned.

7. That Mr. McCargo exhibited a pattern of threatening gestures towards his supervisors and other Katzenbach staff members.

8. That Mr. McCargo has stated that he refuses and will continue to refuse to perform the tasks assigned to him by his supervisors because the work is too hard.

All of the facts found, above, were admitted by Mr. McCargo, who reiterated the admissions even after repeatedly being advised that the potential consequence of his statements was to be terminated from his employment.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATION

As a result of Mr. McCargo's admission of all of the allegations presented against him, the only issue to be determined herein is whether dismissal from his position is appropriate under the circumstances. The hearing officer concludes that it is. The disciplinary record in this matter is extremely lengthy and Mr. McCargo has been the subject of an earlier decision of the Commissioner of Education in which it was determined that his "record shows a pattern...of defiance and unwillingness to meet even the most minimal obligations of employment." (October 24, 1991 decision, at p. 6) The testimony presented at the hearing established that the pattern of unwillingness to comply with the requirements of his employment has not changed three years later.

The hearing officer finds, therefore, that management has proved the elements of the charges against Mr. McCargo and recommends he be terminated from employment by the Commissioner.

* * * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his representative and agrees with the findings and conclusions set forth therein.

Accordingly, William McCargo is to be removed from employment as of the date of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, riffed child study team (CST) members, alleged Board violated their tenure and seniority rights when it employed non-district employees to provide services formerly provided by them.

ALJ found petition was untimely filed as petitioners did not file until almost nine months after receipt of notification that they were to be terminated and more than five months after their actual termination date, both dates well beyond the 90-day limitation period provided for in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), but determined that it was in the best interest of all involved to proceed on the merits of the petition. ALJ found that the petition should be dismissed because the Board did not supplant the CST staff but supplemented the work of an existing full-time CST. Also, reduction in force decisions were made entirely within the authority of the local Board and since none of the petitioners served the district under any certificate other than their educational services certificates, none of them had tenure rights in any other positions.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Aron M. Schwartz, Esq., for respondent (Vogel, Chait, Schwartz and Collins, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 24, 1994 Decided: July 8, 1994

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners who are former members of a Child Study Team (CST) and who were formerly employed as a Learning Disabilities Teacher/Consultant (LDTC), a School Psychologist and a School Social Worker, challenge the abolishment of their respective positions by respondent and respondent's entering into a contractual relationship with individuals who are non-board employees to provide CST services for respondent, which they allege includes the duties formerly performed by the petitioners.

Petitioners filed a Petition of Appeal on December 2, 1991, and filed an Amended Petition of Appeal on December 23, 1991. Respondent filed an Answer on January 29, 1992. Thereafter the matter was transmitted by the Commissioner of Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 7, 1992, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on March 6, 1992. A prehearing conference was scheduled and an initial prehearing conference was held and concluded on April 15, 1992. Because of the complexity of the issues involved, a final prehearing conference was scheduled for May 20, 1992. Following this, a prehearing order was entered on May 21, 1992, settling the procedures to be followed in the hearing of this matter.

The matter was scheduled for hearing on September 16 and 17, 1992. Because the matter was not concluded on those two days, additional hearing dates were scheduled. This matter was continued and heard on January 27, 1993. It was then scheduled for February 26, 1993, but this hearing date was adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner due to a court conflict. The matter was rescheduled for hearing on April 20, 1993, but was adjourned at the request of all parties due to their unavailability. The matter was scheduled for additional hearing dates on July 8 and 12, 1993, and hearings were held on those dates. On July 12, 1993, the hearing was concluded. However, the record remained open in order to permit the attorneys for the respective party to provide submissions to the ALJ. The time within which submissions were to be made was extended through November 17, 1993. Through inadvertence, the record was not closed by the ALJ until May 24,1994, after the ALJ had been afforded an opportunity to review the submissions of the parties.

ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED

At the prehearing conferences held in this matter, the parties agreed that he following issues were to be resolved.

1. Whether the board of education has improperly abolished a CST and supplanted the duties of the members thereof?

2. Whether the positions formerly held by petitioners are mandated by statute and regulation?

3. Whether respondent replaced petitioners with non-district and/or non-tenured individuals, and, if so, whether respondent violated petitioners' seniority and/or tenure rights in doing so?

4. Whether respondent's actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, and violated N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10?

    (a) Whether respondent had good cause to abolish petitioners' positions?

    (B) Whether respondent had a good faith belief that the petitioners' positions were no longer necessary when it abolished them?

    (C) Whether respondent's abolishing of petitioners' tenured positions and employing non-district employees is a subterfuge designed for the purpose of destroying or diminishing the tenure and seniority of the petitioners?

5. Whether respondent's actions in using and retaining non-district employed individuals to perform the duties of petitioners' respective positions was in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b) and is therefore void and ultra vires.

6. If petitioners are successful in proving their allegations and are correct as a matter of law, to what remedy are they entitled? Does the remedy include, (a) reinstatement, (b) salary reimbursement, and/or (c) damages?

7. Whether petitioners' claim are barred by the limitations of N.J.A.C. 6:24-12.(b) by reason of the failure of petitioners to initiate this action within 90 days from the date of accrual of their alleged claims? What is the date their claims accrued?

8. Whether petitioners' demand for reinstatement should be dismissed because of their failure to accept re-employment offered by respondent?

9. Whether respondent by its actions in this matter, violated its written plan for special education which is required by N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.2?

10. Whether by reason of petitioners' demand for reinstatement any other employees of respondent who might be affected by such reinstatement need be joined to this action as indispensable parties?

STIPULATED FACTS

At the commencement of the hearing in this matter, the attorneys for the respective parties indicated that 26 factual assertions had been agreed to by and between the parties. These stipulated facts are summarized as follows:

Effective September 1, 1994, petitioner Linda Mullin was hired by respondent as a part-time Learning Disability Teacher/Consultant (LDTC). Until June 30, 1991, petitioner Mullin was employed by the Board as a tenured LDTC. A true copy of Mullin's employment record card is attached to the Stipulation (Exhibit J-1A). As of June 30,1991, Mullin had 4.2 years of seniority in the Town of Boonton School districts, all of which was acquired as an LTDC.

Effective in or about late May or early June, 1985, petitioner Stefanie Golam was hired by the Board as a School Psychologist. Until June 30,1991, petitioner Golam was employed by the Board as a tenured School Psychologist. A true coy of Golam's employment record card is attached to the Stipulation (Exhibit J-1B). As of June 30, 1991, Golam had 4.28 years of seniority in the district, all of which was acquired as a School Psychologist.

Effective February 29, 1988, petitioner Susan Frantz was hired by the Board as a School Social Worker. Until June 30, 1991, petitioner Frantz was employed by the Board as a tenured School Social Worker. A true copy of France's employment record card is attached to the Stipulation (Exhibit J-1C). As of June 30, 1991, Frantz had 4.4 years of seniority in the district, all of which was acquired as a school social worker.

A CST consists of an LDTC, School Psychologist and a School Social Worker.

As a result of the reduction in force (RIF) and budget cuts, by letters dated April 16, 1991 (Exhibits J-1D, E and F), all of the petitioners were notified that respondent was terminating their employment effective June 30, 1991, and was placing them on a preferred recall eligibility list in the event a vacancy occurred in the certificated area in which they were serving.

Petitioners Mullin and Golam met with the District Superintendent of Schools, then Dr. Walter Sheely, on or about April 23, 1991, and on two other occasions, to discuss whether they were entitled to other positions by virtue of the tenure and seniority rights. In approximately the middle of June, 1991, petitioner Frantz met with Superintendent Sheely to discuss whether she was entitled to other positions by virtue of her tenure and seniority rights.

In May, 1991, petitioner Mullin was offered a position as a learning consultant by the Matheny School and Hospital. Petitioner Mullin accepted this position and commenced employment on June 5, 1991. Petitioner Mullin is still employed in this position.

In June, 1991, petitioner Frantz commenced full-time employment as a Medical Social Worker and Mental Health Professional at Morristown Memorial Hospital. Petitioner Frantz is still employed in this position. Morristown Hospital offered petitioner Frantz this position by letter dated April 26, 1991 (Exhibit J-1G).

Petitioner Golam has been employed as a school psychologist by the Hackensack school district since September, 1991. Petitioner Golam acknowledged that she is earning more money in her current employment then she did while employed by the Board, and does not claim any loss of income, profits or earnings in this action.

Effective June 30, 1991, the positions of Mullin, Golam and Frantz were abolished by the Board as part of a reduction in force; and their employment with the district was terminated. At the time petitioners Mullin's, Golam's and Frantz's employment was terminated, they were placed on preferred recall eligibility lists for district wide LDTC, district wide School Psychologist and district wide School Social Worker, respectively.

On December 16, 1991, the Board approved the hiring of a .2 or one day per week CST to consists of a .2 LDTC, a .2 School Social Worker, and a .2 School Psychologist. Prior to this, the Board had contracted out for CST services, first on an as needed basis and then for four days per month, to handle overflow or excess CST work that the CST remaining after the reduction in force could not handle.

By letter dated December 17, 1991 (Exhibit J-1H), petitioner Mullin was notified that he Board had approved the hiring of a .2 LDTC beginning January 10,1992 and that she was entitled to that position if she so desired. Petitioner Mullin declined this offer by letter dated December 31, 1991 (Exhibit J-1).

By letter dated December 17, 1991 (Exhibit J-1J), petitioner Golam was notified that the Board had approved the hiring of a .2 school psychologist beginning January 10, 1992, and that she was entitled to that position if she so desired. Petitioner Golam declined this offer by letter dated January 3, 1992 (Exhibit J-1K).

By letter dated June 15,1 992, (Exhibit J-1N), petitioner Mullin was notified that the Board had increased the part-time (.2) position of LDTC teacher to two days of employment per week (a .4 position), and was offered re-employment for two days per week commencing September 1, 1992, in that position. Petitioner Mullin declined this offer by letter dated June 19,1992 (Exhibit J-10).

By letter dated June 15, 1992 (Exhibit J-1P), petitioner Golam was notified that the Board had increased the part-time (.2) position of school psychologist to two days of employment per week commencing September 1,1992 in that position. Petitioner Golam declined this offer.

By letter dated June 15, 1992 (Exhibit J-1Q), petitioner Frantz was notified that the Board had increased the part-time (.2) position of school social worker to two days of employment per week (a .4 position), and was offered re-employment for two days per week commencing September 1,1992 in that position. Petitioner Frantz declined this offer by letter dated July 7, 1992 (Exhibit J-1R).

Petitioner Mullin holds certificates as LDTC, Nursery School Teacher, Teacher of Psychology, Teacher of the Handicapped and Principal/Supervisor. Petitioner's Mullin's only service in the district was under LDTC certificate. Petitioner Frantz hold certificates as School Social Worker, Teacher of Mathematics, Secondary School Teacher of Social Studies and, effective June, 1991, as Elementary School Teacher. Her only service in the district was under her School Social Worker certificate. Petitioner Golam holds certificates as School Psychologist and Principal/Supervisor. Her only service in the district was under her School Psychologist certificate.

The Petition in this matter was filed on December 5, 1991.

At the hearing in this matter, certain additional testimony and documentary evidence was elicited. This testimony may be summarized as follows.

Linda Mullin testified that she is a Learning Disabilities Teacher/Consultant. In addition to her Educational Services Certificate, she is also validly certified as a Nursery School Teacher and a Teacher of the Handicapped under her instructional certificates. She had these certificates prior to the time she was employed with Boonton.

Ms. Mullin testified that, at the time of her RIF, she spoke with the then Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Sheely, and he advised her that she had no bumping rights into any other position and if she wanted to obtain a Teacher of the Handicap position, or an Elementary school position, she must give up all her seniority rights to the LDTC position. No position was ever offered to her, even if she accepted this proposal.

In August, or early September, 1991, Ms. Mullin testified that she was contacted by the school district to do some contract work as an LDTC and she agreed to do those cases for students that she knew.

Ms. Mullin testified that P-4 is a statistical analysis of each CST in Morris County with the ratios between CSTs and classified students. She indicated that the ratio between full-time CSTs to students was approximately one per 100 classified students.

Ms. Mullin identified the three-year special education plan for the district (P-9) which she testified is required of the district by the State Department to develop a plan of goals and objectives in a variety of areas relating to special education. It was stipulated by counsel that the plan was required to be prepared pursuant to the Administrative Code. She indicated that after the board abolished her position, the plan was never modified, amended, or altered, to reflect the reduction in the CST.

The three-year plan required the Board to increase CST services, and this was not complied with by respondent.

Ms. Mullin testified that there were a number of non-tenured teachers of the handicapped, or elementary school teachers, employed by the district at the time of her RIF and that she was never offered any of these positions.

Susan Frantz testified that she holds an Educational Services Certificate, a School Social Worker certificate and holds Instructional Certificates with endorsements in Mathematics, Social Studies and Elementary. Ms. Frantz testified that she worked in Kennilworth as a Math Teacher, and in Hackensack as a Social Studies Teacher, prior to obtaining her Social Worker endorsement, but she never worked in a classroom in Boonton. She further testified that after the RIF she was contacted by Al Tagliabue, respondent's then Director of Special Services, to see if she wanted to do contract work as a Social Worker to draft IEP's for the district. Ms. Frantz testified that after the Board created Counselor/Consultant positions, as reflected in the Board's minutes (P-12) that pursuant to the Administrative Code, she was authorized to provide counseling services for handicapped children and that while employed in Boonton, she provided such services. She indicated that prior to the RIF she performed all kinds of counseling services for the district, including counseling all of the children in the ED class and for parents. She further testified that no one from the Board ever contacted her after they created the position of Special Education Counselor/Consultant.

Ms. Frantz testified that a normal school day was 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. which included a lunch hour, and that two part-time Counselor/Consultant positions that were created by the Board were the functional equivalent of a full-time job.

Ms. Frantz testified that in June 1991, she had a discussion with Dr. Sheely relative to her obtaining an Elementary School position from a non-tenured teacher, or a Social Studies position in the Middle School. She indicated that Dr. Sheely advised her that he would only give her the position if she waived her rights to tenure as a Social Worker.

On cross-examination, Ms. Frantz testified that she provided counseling services for approximately three hours every Monday afternoon and Friday afternoon, in addition to two hours of counseling for the Perceptually Impaired class and another one hour of counseling for the Neurologically Impaired class. In addition, she provided Crisis Intervention Counseling. In total, she provided counseling services to district students totaling approximately ten hours per week.

Stefanie Golam testified that she is a certified School Psychologist and that, subsequent to her RIF, she had a conversation with Superintendent Sheely who advised her that the district was going to be employing a part-time counseling team for services to be provided in one of the respondent's schools, and that if she wanted to take the position, she would need a Guidance Counselor certificate and would have to give up all of her tenure as a School Psychologist in the district and her recall rights. She further testified that counseling of students was a major portion of her job. Ms. Golam testified that she spent approximately two and one-half days per week performing these counseling services to individuals and small groups, as well as Crisis Intervention. She further testified that she counseled an ED class and crisis intervention with students who were not classified, students who were depressed and suicidal, students who were involved with Satanism, or who had been sexually or physically abused. In further identifying P-13, Ms. Golam testified that the Board publicly articulated that it was going to contract out the services that she had previously performed.

Ms. Golam testified that she prepared a report showing the ratio of student populations to CSTs and found that the average in Morris County was approximately one full-time Team per 1200 students compared to Boonton's average of one per 1400. She indicated that she spoke with Betty Brinamen from the Morris County Superintendent's office, who advised her that the ratio for one full-time Team to classified students should be one Team per 100.

Ms. Golam testified that in the fall of 1991, she was advised that the Board of Education had created contract-consultant positions to do counseling. She further stated that she had never received a phone call relative to the position, and that the counselors worked 8 to 10 hours per week respectively for a total of 29 hours. The new counseling positions were to be for special education children. This, she indicated, was exactly what a School Psychologist is authorized to do, and what she had done. She further testified that the Board used the services of a psychological extern for 450 hours over the course of a school year. This was the functional equivalent of a .4 position.

In cross-examination, Ms. Golam agreed that the Administrative Code does not require a specific ratio of CST per either enrolled or classified students but that it does require that a Board of Education employ sufficient numbers to provide services as outlined. Ms. Golam also testified that subsequent to her termination, she was employed by the Boonton Board of Education to provide per diem services.

The District Business Administrator, Joy Northrop, and Board member Marilyn Nolan testified concerning the 1991-92 fiscal year budget and the circumstances and events leading to the reduction in force that resulted in the termination of petitioners' employment. As a result of legislative changes in 1990 that affected the amount of state aid and imposed a cap on the amount of revenue that could be raised through local property taxes, the Board learned in January 1991 that it was going to have to cut approximately $1,000,000 from a budget of about $13,000,000. The Board instructed all the administrators, including the Director of Special Services, Alfred Tagliabue, to re-examine their budget proposals and to find every possible way to reduce their budgets with the least possible effect on the children. (R-6). Numerous Board meetings were held at which there was extensive discussion and input by the public as well as comment and reaction by Board members. (See R-6 to R-12). Although the Board tried to cut the $1,000,000 without personnel cuts, it could not be done.

In the meantime, the Board had not renewed Superintendent Sheely's contract, and it had difficulty in obtaining information from him and in having him follow through on Board requests.

When the administrators reported back to the Board, the common theme, including that of Mr. Tagliabue, was that any further cuts could not be made without substantial negative impact. Eventually, the Board developed a plan that called for the elimination of 23.5 positions. Virtually every area of the District was affected by the RIF except for the bus drivers. Among the positions to be eliminated were all department heads, two school guidance counselor positions, the assistant superintendent, seven teachers, one librarian, 4.5 aides, several secretaries, one custodian, and the part-time CST.

Although petitioners, with Mr. Tagliabue's support, attempted to show that eliminating the part-time CST would leave the District with an extremely high CST to classified students ratio, a telephone survey of Morris County school districts conducted by Mr. Tagliabue demonstrated that, even with the cuts, Boonton would fall well within the range of CST to classified student ratios around the county.

With the elimination of the part-time CST, petitioners and Mr. Tagliabue argued to the Board that Boonton would have a ratio of approximately one LDTC, one social worker, and one school psychologist per 230 classified students. Petitioners further argued that the State recommend a ratio of one CST per 100 classified students although there is no written regulations to that effect. The results of Mr. Tagliabue's telephone survey (P-15), which was apparently distributed to the Board during the budgeting process, demonstrated that virtually all districts in the county substantially exceed the 1 to 100 ratio and that many of them were close to or exceeded Boonton's ratio of 1 to 230.

There was substantial concern that the budget cutbacks would cause an increase in class size. Despite the reduction, the Board was able to meet objective of maintaining the class size policy. (R-6, p.2).

Despite the Board's adopting of a budget that came in under the budget cap, and despite the Board's cutting of approximately $1,000,000, the voters defeated the budget. Eventually, the Board and the Board of Alderman, after some further non-personnel cuts, agreed on a budget. When it was considering the RIF plan, the Board did not know which members of the two CST's had seniority over the others; nor did the Board know whether any CST personnel would have bumping rights as to other professional staff. To determine bumping rights as to all certified staff, the Board hired an outside, independent consultant.

The 1991-92 budget did not allocate any funds for contracted CST services. The District's application for Federal flow through funds under P.L. 94-142 requested $16,750 for supplemental CST services, including secretarial services, on an as needed basis as determined by the Director of Special Services to supplement the basic functioning of the district's basic CST.

Joy Northrop, the Board Secretary, testified that Mr. Tagliabue had advised the Board that it might not be in compliance with the State regulations if the cuts were made as planned. She also indicated that in the summer of 1991, the Board retained outside services for the CST and spent approximately $5,200 for their services. The respondent brought the remaining CST members in for a few weeks during the summer of 1991 in order to complete the work that had to be done by the beginning of the new school year. (R-32). Two of the remaining CST members worked 15 days and the other worked 17 days during the summer of 1991. CST members had worked in previous summers, and the collectively negotiated contract anticipates that some summer work by the CST is anticipated: it permits the Board to require CST personnel to work at least five days during the summer. The Board did not have to supplement the CST work with any contracted CST services during the summer of 1991. The number of summer days required by the CST to complete the work was less than what Mr. Tagliabue had originally anticipated.

Mr. Northrop testified that in the summer of 1992, the Board retained outside individuals and expended approximately $10,000 for their services. On cross-examination, Ms. Northrop testified that she was never in the executive session of the Board where Mr. Tagliabue made a recommendation that rather than abolish the CST, that his position, as the Director, be eliminated to save money so that the team would remain.

After reviewing R-16, Ms. Northrop testified that the Board of Education approved and executed it on May 6, 1991. She agreed that the Board of Education had an opportunity, between May 6 and May 15, to review the contents of same but did not do so. She agreed that a psychology extern was hired for school year 1991-92, that he provided psychological services and that he worked 450 hours during that year. Ms. Northrop was shown exhibits P-7 and P-8 and she agreed that the Board of Education made application for and received money from the State of New Jersey for family counseling for two distinct age groups so that the board could hire additional professional staff in the amount of $26,000. She further agreed, after being shown P-12, that the Board of Education, on November 25,1991, hired Catherine Angelastro and Sharon McLean to provide counselor/consultant services for special education.

On recross-examination, Ms. Northrop agreed that 38.4 percent of the total salaries and benefits of the CSTs were provided by Federal funds.

The respondent's current Superintendent of Schools, Harry Powers, also testified on behalf of the board. Dr. Powers was hired effective July 1, 1991, and he met with all of the administrators, including Mr. Tagliabue, to learn about the district and it personnel. Dr. Powers testified that it was his understanding that, after the RIF and the elimination of petitioners' positions, the Board intended to use contracted services to supplement the one full-time team that remained. Dr. Powers also testified that he received a letter from the State Department of Education, dated July 22, 1991

(R-21) which advised the Board that it was going to received $45,000 for counseling services from the State. The approval letter did not specify how the money was to be used. Dr. Powers, after receipt of such notification, made a decision to recommend to the Board that they employ a Guidance Counselor in the middle school.

After reviewing P-12, Dr. Powers testified that Catherine Angelastro was hired by the Board ten hours a week for school year 91-92 and that she primarily counseled students in an ED class. Ms. Angelastro continues to be employed by the board. Dr. Powers indicated that Ms. Angelastro's present duties primarily involved counseling families, students in dysfunctional family situations and counseling non-classified students in crisis. This counseling accounts for five hours per week of her time and the other ten are devoted to classified students. Dr. Powers testified that Mrs. Angelastro did not have a regular certificate in student personnel services, but rather, possessed an emergency certificate.

On cross-examination, Dr. Powers could not testify as to what counseling services petitioner, Stafanie Golam, provided in school years 1988-89, 89-90 and 90-91. Dr. Powers agreed that the administrative code authorizes a School Psychologist to counsel students. Dr. Powers further agreed that the School Social Worker is similarly authorized to counsel students. He admitted that there was a professional relationship between Mrs. Angelastro's husband and his wife. He further indicated that the school Guidance Counselor hired for the John Hill school was a woman named Anne Mazziotta, and that she also only had an emergency counseling certificate. Dr. Powers agreed that he never asked Ms. Golam whether or not she wanted to come back as a Guidance Counselor because she was not so certified, despite the fact that neither Ms. Mazziotta nor Ms. Angelastro was regularly certified. He also agreed that he never gave Ms. Frantz the opportunity to return as a guidance counselor.

Dr. Powers was shown the Special Education Plan for school years 1991-92 and 1992-93 (R-19) and asked whether or not the plan was amended after the reduction in CST, to which he responded no. After reviewing P-33 and P-34, Dr. Powers agreed that he had discussed with Mr. Tagliabue that the State Department of Education recommends one full-time CST for every 100 major classified students.

Despite being shown P-35, a memo dated July 2, 1992, Dr. Powers could not remember whether there were 59 workups that had to be done in the summer of 1992. Dr. Powers was also shown P-40, a report from the interim CST Director, David Vivino, in which Mr. Vivino, after working less than two months in the district, made a recommendation that the CST be increased to at least 1.8 2 full-time CSTs. Dr. Powers could not testify whether the student population of classified students was the same between 1987 and 1991.

The Board's next witness was Marilyn Nolan, a Board member. On cross-examination, Ms. Nolan testified that she was neither certified school Psychologist nor certified Social Worker. She indicated that she could not testify as to how much State aid the school district received in 1990-91 school year. She indicated, after being shown P-2, that there was an increase of approximately $300,000 in State aid for special education between school years 1990-91 and 1991-92. Ms. Nolan further testified that it was her general impression that the classified population of the school district has continued to increase.

On rebuttal, petitioners' produced Al Tagliabue, formerly Director of Special Services of Boonton. Mr. Tagliabue testified that the State aid for special education increased from 1990-91 to 1991-92 in an amount in excess of $300,000. Mr. Tagliabue was shown the three-year plan for special education (R-19). He testified that it is a rather lengthy process to prepare, that a committee must be formed of citizens, teachers, administrators, members of the CST and board members, that the entire community is surveyed and that the survey forms the basis for the Special Education plan. He further indicated that after the plan was adopted, it was never altered, amended or modified while he was employed with the school district. There were no meetings with citizens, parents and teachers to discuss altering, amending or modifying the plan despite the fact that there is a legal requirement to do so. Mr. Tagliabue testified that in school year 1988-89, the student population of classified students was approximately 220 and that in school year 1991-92, the year of the RIF, it was 233. He further stated that the number of classified students has been slowly rising over the years, and by the time he left, there were almost 270 classified students. Dr. Tagliabue was shown an amended application for fiscal year 1991-92 for flow-through funds (P-7). The purpose of the application was to provide counseling services to special education students who were required to have counseling as part of their individualized education plans (IEP). He indicated that the School Psychologist, School Social Worker or Guidance Counselor could perform these counseling services for ED students and that the Board of Education hired Ms. Angelastro, a non-tenured individual, to perform these duties. He stated that Ms. Angelastro worked with classified students, ED students, P.I. students and N.I. students and that he supplied her with all of the IEP's and set up her schedule to work with students on a regular basis. Mr. Tagliabue was aware that, prior to the RIF, Ms. Frantz and Mrs. Golam performed the counseling services that Ms. Angelastro was to perform. He also indicated that Anna Mazziotta was hired at the John Hill school, and that she also performed counseling services for classified students for approximately 15 hours per week while Ms. Angelastro provided the same services for classified students for approximately 10 hours each week.

Mr. Tagliabue testified that the Board of Education never discussed with him the impact on student services if the reduction in the CST was effectuated. He indicated that he had heard Mrs. Northrop state at Board meetings that the Board was going to contract the services out to replace those who had performed the work. He stated that he was aware that the Administrative Code requires classroom observations and that this was not done during any summer that the contracted CSTs performed work.

After reviewing P-35, Mr. Tagliabue stated that in June 1992, he advised Dr. Powers that there were 21 evaluation that had to be done, and with reevaluations a total of 38 students needed testing to be done that had not been done in school year 1991-92. Mr. Tagliabue testified that the Board had no educational justification to eliminate the CST.

On redirect examination, Mr. Tagliabue was shown a memo that he prepared, sometime in February or March, during the budget crisis (P-41). In that memo, he prioritized cuts in the special education budget that would be least disruptive to the Special Education program. Mr. Tagliabue indicated that the board had overbudgeted Special Education by $48,000 and this could be reduced from the budget. The second reduction that he suggested was elimination of resource room supplies and texts, saving $736,000. The third item was a reduction in the amount of home instruction. The board had budgeted $10,000 while the Department rarely expended more than $5,000, resulting in a savings of $5,000. The fourth item was a lease, rather than a purchase, of a photocopier, which would have saved the Board $4,000. The fifth item was elimination of a P.I. aide's salary of $10,000. The sixth item was elimination of two E.D. aides, for a saving of $20,000. Elimination of the aides' position would have resulted in a savings of $30,000 in salaries in addition to a savings of $22,500 in benefits for these three aides for a total of $52,500 reduction. These recommendations were rejected by the Board. His next suggestion was eliminating his own position as Director of Special Services, which would have saved the board approximately $60,000 plus benefits. Mr. Tagliabue testified that the district could function without a Director of Special Services since the Director was merely the Superintendent's designee.

In further discussion of his recommendation that his own position be abolished, Mr. Tagliabue expressed the opinion that educationally, it would be more advantageous for the children, because the children needed to be tested, needed to be placed in programs, teachers needed to consult with the Psychologist, and the children would have received better services. He indicated that the local Board of Education's portion of the salary for the part-time team would have been $60,000, which was exactly his annual salary.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

In its post-hearing brief, the first legal issue raised by respondent is that petitioner's claims are time barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). This regulation provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of a notice of final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

Respondent points out that the petitioners' employment with the school district was terminated on June 30, 1991, that all had prior notice of this contemplated action and all received specific written notification on April 16, 1991. Each petitioner testified that she met with the superintendent concerning the termination. Accordingly, respondent alleges that, at the latest, the 90 day limitation period commenced on June 30,1991, so that petitioners were required to file their claim within 90 days thereafter, or by September 28, 1991.

By their letter brief dated November 17, 1993, petitioners argue that after respondent terminated petitioners, it continued to violate all of petitioners' tenure and seniority rights. Petitioners argue that this is a continuing violation. In addition, petitioners assert that respondent never prosecuted its limitation of action defense and that this constitutes a waiver. However, respondent raised the issue whether petitioner's claims are barred by the limitations of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b) in its answer and this issue was preserved at the time of the prehearing conference and included in the prehearing order as issue number 7. There is no provision in the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6 which indicates that a defense is waived if not pursued by motion prior to a hearing. Compare R. 4:6-7.

534 (1986), the State Board of Education specifically held that the limitations in N.J.S.A. 6:24-1.2 applied to claims alleging violation of tenure or seniority rights. 1985 S.L.D. at 1931. The State Board also held that the 90-day limitations rule is to be strictly applied and is to be measured from the time when the cause of action accrued. Id. In Sasse v. Board of Education of Point Pleasant, S.L.D. , OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10365-90, (decided April 30,1992), the Commissioner of Education affirmed the ALJ's finding that a petition which alleged a violation of tenure and seniority rights in the context of a reduction in force should be dismissed because it was untimely under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3(c). The ALJ specifically held that petitioner's cause of action accrued upon her receipt of a letter notifying her that her position was abolished pursuant to a reduction in force. See Initial Decision at p. 13-14.

In Kaprow v. Berkeley Tp. Bd. Of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, at 581-86 (1993), the Supreme Court strictly applied the 90-day limitations period to bar the claims of a tenured assistant superintendent who was "riffed" and who sought to exercise his tenure and seniority rights to obtain another position with the respondent Board.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that the 90-day limitation period provided for in N.J.A.C. 6:240-1.2(c) is specifically applicable to employment termination claims arising out of a reduction in force, and that the cause of action for such claims accrues at the time an employee receives notice of the action which is claimed to violate the asserted right. In this case, the notice was received in April, 1991, the time all three petitioners received written notification that their positions were to be abolished and their employment terminated. Their employment terminated on June 30, 1991, as stated in the April notification. Because petitioners did not file the petition in this matter until December 5, 1991, almost nine months after receipt of notification that they were to be terminated, and more than five months after their actual termination date, I CONCLUDE that their claims should be dismissed as untimely.

Despite the foregoing finding and conclusion, it is the appropriate and in the best interest of all involved that I proceed to discuss the other issues raised by the parties in this matter. This is particularly appropriate where an extensive hearing has been held and legal arguments have been submitted.

The essential substantive issue to be decided in this matter is whether respondent has violated statutes and regulations by supplanting its Learning Disability Teacher/Consultant, school social worker and psychologist by retaining non-district individuals to prepare IEP's; by hiring a psychology extern to do testing; and by hiring non-tenured guidance counselors to counsel classified students.

A board is not permitted to provide professional service to its pupils by means of nonemployees. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 provides:

> Each board of education, subject to the provisions of this title and of any other law, shall employ and may dismiss a secretary or a school business administrator to act as secretary and may employ and dismiss a superintendent of schools, a treasurer of school moneys, when and as provide by section 18A:13-14 or 18A:17-31, and such principals, teachers, janitors and other officers and employees, as it shall determine, and fix and alter their compensation and the length of their terms of employment.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(c)1.i. provides that a board may, in order to fulfill its duties to non-public school pupils residing in the district, contract for all CST services including the evaluation, classification, and preparation of an IEP. In terms of providing services to public school pupils, however, a board's authority to contract is limited to CST evaluations and diagnostic services to supplement existing local district services. N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(c)1.

The above-referenced provisions make it clear that a board cannot subcontract the services of its CST to outside individuals. A board may supplement those services, but this presupposes an existing CST with members who are employed by the local board. Outside contractors for CST services are only permitted in limited circumstances and only for purposes of supplementing services provided by existing team members.

The leading administrative decision, relating to board efforts to "RIF" and replace tenured educational services personnel through subcontracting arrangements with third parties, is the State Board of Education's decision in Cochran et al. V. Watchung Hills Regional High School Bd. Of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1878, affirmed App. Div. Docket No. A-2327-85T7 (decided December 22, 1986). In that case, petitioners were all tenured teaching staff members employed by the board in full-time CST positions of Learning Disabilities Teacher/Consultant, Social Worker and School Psychologist respectively. On April 12, 1982, the Board of Education voted to abolish these full-time positions, for economy reasons, replacing them on May 10, 1992 with half-time positions.

In September, 1982, the petitioners learned that the Board had contracted with an outside entity for the providing of CST services, including some of the services previously provided by petitioners. Petitioners challenged the Board's action as being in violation of their tenure and seniority rights. In sustaining the decisions of an ALJ and the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education, in its decision, concluded:

> The statute under which the Board acted here to abolish Petitioners' full-time positions, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, authorizes local board of education:
> > to reduce the number of teaching staff members employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organizations of the district or for other good cause.
> Reduction in force decisions made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 are entirely within the authority of the local Board. In re Maywood Bd. of Ed., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div.), cert. denied, 81 N.J. 292 (1979); Boult and Harris v. Passaic Bd. of Ed., 1939 S.L.D. 7, 13 aff'd State Board, 1939 S.L.D. 15, aff'd 135 N.J.L. 329 (Sup. Ct. 1947), aff'd 136 N.J.L. 521 (E. & A. 1948). Such decisions have, however, been reviewed to determine whether the position ostensibly abolished has not, in fact, been > abolished but merely transferred to another in violation of the incumbent's tenure and seniority rights, Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1947); Catano v. Woodbridge Bd. of Ed., 1971 S.L.D. 448, 458, or whether the reduction in force decision has been made arbitrarily when legitimate economic and educational objectives could have been served with less erosion of the rights of tenured employees. Lingelbach v. Hopatcong Bd. of Ed., decided by State Board May 17, 1984, aff'd Superior Court, Appellate Division, Docket No. A-4783-87T7, decided May 5, 1985. In either case, one must examine the entire course of events.

> The CST was intended by regulation to represent a multi-disciplinary approach to identifying, evaluating and planning suitable educational programs for children with learning difficulties. N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(d) [1982]. The basic CST consisted of a school psychologist, a learning disabilities teacher-consultant and a social worker, all of whom were expected to be employees of the local board of education, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(a). Outside contractors were authorized in limited circumstances by N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(f) only with prior approval of the County Superintendent, and only for the purpose of supplementing existing team members. General CST work was still intended to be performed by employees of the local board. Nevertheless, in the instant case, the board set out to abolish full-time CST positions and replace them with half-time positions fully recognizing that more general CST contracting would be necessary because of anticipated case load. * * * .
> Hence, the Board's intention was not an actual abolishment of positions, but a mere reorganization and transfer of duties to a less expensive provider. Under these circumstances the Board's action taken here falls squarely with the prohibition of Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., supra. The Commissioner and the ALJ correctly concluded that the integrity of the reduction in force decision was vitiated by the virtually contemporaneous decision to contract for additional CST services that the team, as originally constituted, would have otherwise performed. That being the case, the reduction in force decisions were properly voided, the full-time positions reinstated and Petitioners ordered restored to those positions.

The Appellate Division affirmed the State Board of Education's decision in its entirety. The Appellate Division specifically held that:

> Watchung argues that its decision to reduce the positions to half-time was made for reasons of economy and that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows reductions in force for this reason. It is apparent that the State Board of Education's decision rests upon the Commissioner's "Sense and experience" that Watchung was not, in fact, abolishing Petitioner's positions but merely dividing up their duties and distributing part of those duties to an outside contractor in violation of Petitioner's tenure rights. The State Board of Education correctly noted that a local Board's decisions concerning reduction in force are properly reviewable "to determine whether the position ostensibly abolished has not, in fact, been abolished but merely transferred to another in violation of the incumbent's tenure and seniority rights. . ."; citing Viemeister v. Board of Education of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949). The State Board found the local Board's action to fall squarely within the prohibition of Viemeister concluding "the Board's intention was not an actual abolishment of positions, but a mere reorganization and transfer of duties to a less expensive provider". (Slip. Opinion at pages 3 and 4).

In response, the respondent argues that its use of a modest amount of supplemental outside help for CST services in the fall of 1991 differs from the Watchung Hills scenario. It points out that in the Watchung Hills case, the one full-time CST was reduced to a half-time team and that the underlying assumption of the ALJ, Commissioner and State Board was that the amount of CST work contracted out was equivalent to half-time CST positions which would yield a full-time CST.

Respondent points out that in the present case the circumstances are vastly different and that, consistent with the practice of prior summers, and as contemplated by the collective negotiations agreement, existing CST personnel worked during the summer to complete the work necessary to meet various deadlines. Respondent also points out that in the fall of 1991, the Board used a very modest level of outside services to supplement the work of the remaining full-time CST and paid only $5,200 for supplemental CST assistance from September to January 1992. Respondent argues that these figures show that the respondent did not in any way supplant petitioners' positions with outside contracted services, but supplemented existing CST services, as expressly permitted by N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(c)1.i. Respondent also points out that after the Board established .2 CST positions in December 1991, which petitioners were offered by declined, respondent had no need to use any outside contracted services for the remainder of the 1991-92 school year, except for two evaluations in January 1992.

The determination as to whether the utilization of outside contracted services amounts to a supplanting of existing CST members or a supplementing of such members, involves a review of all surrounding facts and circumstances. In support of their contentions, petitioners assert that their duties were supplanted by an extern in school psychology, who was associated with respondent during the 1991-92 school year. However, petitioner's presented no evidence that the extern associated with respondent performed any of the former duties and responsibilities of any of the petitioners. Respondent also points out that N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.12(b)3 regulates the 450 hours externship in school psychology and that funding for the extern was a part of federal funds.

Petitioners also allege that the termination of the CST resulted in a violation of the district's special education plan, relying on Primka v. Jamesburg Boro. Bd. Of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 91. However, I have serious reservations as to whether the members of a CST are given substantive rights by a school district's special education plan. The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act provides at 20 U.S.C.A., Sec. 1400(c) that its main purposes are to assure that all children with disabilities have available to them a free appropriate public education, and to assure that the rights of such children and their parents and guardians are protected. The State regulations implementing the Act set forth virtually the same purposes at N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(b). Nowhere is there any indication that the Act or the implementing regulations were adopted to protect the positions of CST members. In any event, in the present matter, petitioners have failed to show a provision of respondent's special education plan which respondent has violated. There is no specific provision in the plan requiring CST staffing levels. In addition, there was no indication by the county superintendent that respondent's special education plan was required to be amended in order to implement a reduction in respondent's CST staffing levels.

In view of all of the above circumstances, I FIND that the actions of respondent in this matter did not amount to a supplanting of the CST staff by petitioners in this matter, but amounted to supplementing of the work of an existing full-time CST.

Petitioners argue that respondent acted arbitrarily and capriciously in terminating the position of petitioners. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 permits a Board of Education to reduce the number of teaching staff members employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the Board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or for other good cause. Reduction in force decisions made pursuant to this provision are entirely within the authority of the local board. In re Maywood Board of Education, 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div.), certif. den. 81 N.J. 292. Such decisions have been reviewed to determine whether the position ostensibly abolished has not, in fact, been abolished but merely transferred to another in violation of the incumbent's tenure and seniority rights. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Board of Education, 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1947). If the decision to reduce the number of teaching staff members is done for reasons of economy, such a determination is entirely within the authority of the Board. Klinger v. Cranbury Tp. Bd. of Ed., 190 N.J. Super. 354, 357 (App. Div. 1982); certif. den. 93 N.J. 277 (1983). The testimony and evidence presented by petitioners in this matter was to the effect that additional funds were available to retain petitioners' positions, and additional savings could have been effectuated in order to retain the services of petitioners. However, as is indicated in Civil Services layoff cases, proofs that a decision to RIF employees was unwise, or that the Board could have chosen a different method of achieving needed savings is an insufficient basis for setting aside the RIF of petitioners. See Kyles v. Paterson, 5 N.J.A.R., 445, 461 (Dept. of Personnel, 1982); Acchitelli v. Dept. of Environ. Prot. & Energy, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d. (CSV) 716.

The final major argument of petitioners involves their claim that respondent violated the tenure rights of petitioners Mullin and Frantz by failing to permit them to bump non-tenured teaching staff members. Petitioners assert that Mullin and Frantz were both validly in possession of instructional certificates with subject area endorsements as well as educational services certificates at the time of their termination. Neither petitioner was offered any position for which they were certified and in which respondent employed non-tenured teachers. Respondent admits that petitioner Frantz holds an instructional certificate with an elementary education endorsement but asserts that she did not obtain that endorsement until June 1991, after she had received notice that her employment with the school district was being terminated. It further asserts that there was no proof that the district had notice that Frantz had obtained the certificate. Accordingly, it argues that the Board cannot be deemed to have knowledge that she possessed it. It argues that certificates obtained after the date of an employee's RIF do not confer retroactive entitlement for reemployment in the event that a position subsequently becomes available for which the employee is qualified under the newly obtained certificate, citing, Francey v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Salem, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10219-91, Comm. of Educ. (July 22, 1992). Respondent points out that petitioners assert that even though they never served in Boonton in any certificate other than their educational services certificate with the respective endorsements entitling them to tenure as members of the CST, they were entitled to bump persons serving under other certificates that they held.

Petitioners rely upon Dennery v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 626 (1993) in support of their position. Based on the language of Dennery, petitioners argue that the Supreme Court has recognized that, under appropriate facts, tenure achieved under one certificate can entitle an educator to tenure in a position under another certificate. Petitioners point out that N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.13 requires that to be eligible to become an LDTC, the applicant have a standard New Jersey Teacher's Certificate and three years of successful teaching experience and that petitioner Mullin met these requirements. N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.8 requires that to be eligible for a school social worker endorsement, the applicant have three years of successful teaching experience and that petitioner Frantz met this requirement.

The right to tenure is statutory and the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to 18, specifically defines the conditions under which school district employees are entitled to tenure. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, in order to achieve tenure, teaching staff members must serve in given positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the Board of Examiners for the requisite period of time. Tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, attaches to a "position" which is defined as "any office, position or employment." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1.

The law is settled that a teaching staff member who obtains tenure under a certificate entitles that person to tenure under all endorsement held by that person under the particular certificate. Dennery, supra at 634. Petitioners seek to extend the tenure that they achieved under the educational services certificate for which they held positions in the CST, to an instructional certificate which they hold but under which they never served in Boonton. This very argument was considered and rejected by the Supreme Court in Dennery. In that case, the teacher was a tenured guidance counselor under an educational services certificate. As a result of a departmental reorganization, her guidance counselor position was eliminated and its functions incorporated into a newly created class supervisor position. The class supervisor's position require both an educational services certificate and an administrative certificate, which petitioner did not have. Petitioner thereafter became qualified to hold an administrative certificate. The Board refused to appoint her as a class supervisor because she had not previously served in any position included under the administrative certificate. Petitioner claimed that her tenure rights were violated when the Board failed to appoint her. The Supreme Court, referring to the Spiewak decision, concluded that, by the express terms of the statute, an employee of a Board of Education is entitled to tenure only if the employee has complied with the definite requirement of actually performing the duties under the relevant certificate in order to obtain tenure.

Since none of the petitioners served the district under any certificate other than their educational services certificates, none of them have tenure rights in any other positions. Therefore, they have no bumping rights based on their seniority or otherwise.

Accordingly, I FIND that petitioners' claim that respondent has violated their tenure and seniority rights has not been shown.

Based upon the foregoing discussion, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioners' petition of appeal should be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The parties' exceptions consisted solely of their respective post-hearing submissions made to the Administrative Law Judge upon which both of them wish to reply.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his initial decision for the reasons clearly articulated by him therein.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, PETITIONER,	:

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION ON MOTION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board alleged that the Township Committee failed to meet and consult with it prior to reducing the budget for the 1994-95 school year and failed to provide supporting reasons for budget reductions. Thus, the Board sought declaration from Commissioner that the budget reductions would deprive Board of the funds necessary for a T&E school system and that the Township Committee acted erroneously, arbitrarily and unlawfully. Since Township Committee did not submit a reply, Board sought summary decision.

Commissioner denied summary decision finding the use of a procedural defect to defeat review on the merits compromises the Commissioner's role in budget decisions to encourage mutual cooperation between the local school board and the municipality to make budget decisions based on the appropriate educational considerations.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

For the Petitioner, Peter P. Kalac, Esq. (Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell)

For the Respondent, William F. Dowd, Esq. (Dowd & Reilly)

This matter comes before the Commissioner on Motion for Summary Decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 by the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, Monmouth County, filed on June 29, 1994, based upon assertions that the Township Committee failed to meet and consult with the Board and failed to provide supporting reasons for budget reductions. Petitioner seeks a judgment declaring:

(a) that the budget reduction resulting from the  certification and Resolution of the respondent municipality will deprive the petitioner of the funds required to provide a thorough and efficient school system in the district for the year July 1, 1994 to June 30, 1995.

(b) that the actions of the respondent municipality were erroneous, arbitrary and unlawful.

> And determining:
>
> that the amount required to be raised by local taxation for current expense purposes, to provide a thorough and efficient school system in the district for the year July 1, 1994 to June 30, 1995, exclusive of Debt Service, is $62,327,463.00.
>
> And certifying:
> to the Monmouth County board of Taxation, or ordering the respondent municipality to so certify, exclusive of Debt service, the foregoing amount of $62,327,463.00 to be raised by local tax levy for the school district during the year 1994-95 for current expenses. (Petition, at pp. 3-4)

By letter dated July 5, 1994, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledged receipt of the Motion for Summary Decision and advised the Township Committee that it had ten (10) days from its receipt of the motion to submit its reply. No reply to the Motion for Summary Decision has been received from the Township Committee.

The Motion for Summary Decision is hereby denied for the reasons set forth herein.

A motion for summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." (N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b)) In Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), the Supreme Court articulated the standards to be followed when deciding motions for summary judgment. A review of a motion for summary judgment requires > a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion.

Moreover, the moving party has the burden of proving that it is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law. As has been recently rearticulated by the State Board of Education in Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided July 6, 1994, the Commissioner has independent responsibilities in reviewing local school budgets which have been defeated by the voters.

The State Board opined that

> In East Brunswick, the New Jersey Supreme Court carefully delineated that standard, stressing that when the Commissioner is reviewing such reductions,
>
> > ...his function is not to sit as an original budget-making body, as he would had the governing body failed to make any certification...his function is admittedly to sit as a reviewing body which, however, is charged with the overriding responsibility of seeing to it that the mandate for a thorough and efficient system of free public schools is being carried out. [citations omitted.]
> > ...if he finds that the budget fixed by the governing body is insufficient to enable compliance with mandatory legislative and administrative educational requirements of is insufficient to meet minimum educational standards for the mandated "thorough and efficient" East Brunswick school system, he will direct appropriate corrective action by the > governing body or fix the budget on his own within the limits originally proposed by the board of education. On the other hand, if he finds that the governing body's budget is not so inadequate, even though significantly below what the Board of Education had fixed or what he would fix if he were acting as the original budget-making body under R.S. 18:7-83, then he will sustain it, absent any independent showing of procedural or substantive arbitrariness.

> (Edgewater State Board Decision, Slip Opinion, at pp. 6-7)

After review of the Motion for Summary Decision and required search to the "merits of the pleadings" and the record established pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq., notwithstanding alleged procedural deficiencies which may be addressed in further proceedings, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has not established its entitlement to summary judgment at this time. The Supreme Court in Deptford, supra, held that "[t]he remedy  is too drastic a reaction to the failure to timely file a statement of reasons. More importantly, the remedy obviates a consideration of the educational merits of the budget itself." (at 317) The Court found that > the use of such a procedural defect to defeat review on the merits compromises the Commissioner's role, which should in every way possible encourage mutual cooperation between the local school board and the municipality to make budget decisions based on the appropriate educational considerations. Moreover, it short-circuits the Commissioner's own important responsibility in overseeing local action to assure optimum public education." (Id.)

Accordingly, the Motion for Summary Decision is denied.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, PETITIONER-APPELLANT,
V.	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	DECISION

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, August 23, 1994

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, October 5, 1994

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell (Peter P. Kalac, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Dowd & Reilly (William F. Dowd, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter was initiated on May 31, 1994 by an appeal to the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Board") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 following voter defeat of the education budget for 1994-95 and reductions of $3,546,946 made to that budget by the Township Committee (hereinafter "Township") on May 16.

The Township Committee filed an answer to the Board's appeal on June 7, 1994, but did not include the documentation required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7.[1] On June 14, the Township

[1] N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7 provides that along with its answer, the governing body must provide the Commissioner with:

> 1. A copy of the current expense line item budget detailing specific reductions that were effectuated by the governing body or bodies along with the statement of supporting reasons for each of the line item reductions;

April 5, 1995

Committee was notified of this deficiency when receipt of its answer was acknowledged by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. The Township Committee addressed the deficiency by sending a copy of its resolution to the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on June 21, 1994.

On June 28, 1994, the Board filed its Position Statement and supporting affidavits by the Board Secretary and the Superintendent.

On July 15, the Township Committee filed its Position Statement along with supporting affidavits by John Laezza, who had been retained by the Township to review the budget after its defeat, and Joseph Leo, Administrator for the Township.

On July 25, the Board filed its response to the Township's Position Statement and a supplemental affidavit by the Superintendent.

On July 5, 1994, before the Township filed its Position Statement, the Board filed a motion with the Commissioner seeking a summary decision in its favor pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.[2] In support of its motion, the Board alleged that the Township had never

2. A copy of the capital outlay budget detailing specific reductions that were effectuated along with a statement of supporting reasons for each of the line item reductions; and

3. ...a certification stating the date on which the documents were originally given to the district board of education.

2 N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 provides in pertinent part that:

(a) At any time after a case is determined to be contested, a party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues therein.

(b)...The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material consulted with it as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and had never provided supporting reasons for its reductions despite a directive from the Commissioner that it do so. The Board contended that under the New Jersey Supreme Court's decisions in Bd. of Ed., E. Brunswick Tp. v. Tp. Council, E. Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 1966, and Bd. of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989), these failures entitled it to restoration of the amounts that had been reduced by the Township Committee.

The Township Committee did not file any response to the Board's motion.

By decision of August 23, 1994, the Commissioner denied the Board's motion for summary decision. The Commissioner did not address whether any of the material facts were in dispute, but did cite the judicial standards governing summary judgment, finding that the Board had not established that it was entitled by law to restoration of the amounts at issue. In support of his conclusion, the Commissioner observed that the Court's decision in Deptford had held that restoration of funds by issuing a summary judgment in reaction to a municipal governing body's failure to provide the reasons for its reductions was too dramatic a remedy. He also noted fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

See also N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.14 (summary judgment before the Commissioner prior to transmittal to OAL).

that the Court had pointed out that such remedy obviated consideration by the Commissioner of Education of the educational merits of the budget.

The Board then sought leave from the State Board of Education to appeal the Commissioner's denial of its motion. On October 5, 1994, the State Board granted leave and stayed further proceedings before the Commissioner pending disposition of this appeal.

The Board contended that the Commissioner erred in denying its motion for summary decision. Citing the same judicial standards governing summary judgment that the Commissioner relied upon, the Board argued that because the facts it asserted were not opposed, these facts must be taken as true by the Commissioner. This being the case, the Board concluded the determination required is purely one of law. On this point, the Board stressed that in contrast to Deptford, which involved the failure of the governing body to timely file a statement of reasons, the requirement to consult with the district board is part of the express language of the statute. The Board maintained that because the governing body in this case both failed to provide reasons for its reductions when it responded to the Board's appeal and also violated a statutory requirement when it failed to consult with the Board, the reductions made by the Committee must be set aside under East Brunswick.

In response to the Board, the Township Committee filed a brief with the State Board dated July 14, 1994, representing to us that it had intended to file this brief in opposition to the Board's motion for summary decision before the Commissioner but had not done so because of an oversight.

The Township Committee contended that N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 does not mandate a meeting between the full governing body and the full board. It asserted that in this instance, meetings did in fact occur between the mayor and Township Committee members and representatives of the Board and that these meetings were sufficient to meet the statutory requirement for consultation. The Township also argued that its resolution detailing the line item cuts it made provides the reasons for its reductions and that submitting this resolution fulfilled the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7. The Township maintained that, therefore, it did not breach either its statutory or regulatory obligations.

The Township Committee further urged that because an appeal involving the Board's 1993-94 budget is currently before the Appellate Division, the issues relating to that budget must be addressed in this appeal. It also argued that this matter requires a hearing before an assistant commissioner so that the "testimony" submitted can be fully reviewed.[3]

The Legal Committee reviewed the record that had been thus far developed in the matter. Based on that review, the Legal Committee issued its Report on February 1, 1995, finding that summary disposition of this case would be inappropriate.

The Middletown Board filed exceptions to the Legal Committee's Report on February 9, 1995. In its exceptions, the Board conceded that, as had been attested by Joseph Leo,

3 We note that there have been no evidentiary hearings thus far in this case. Nor does the record include any depositions. We must assume that the Township's reference to "testimony" is to the affidavits that have been filed.

Administrator of the Township, a meeting between members of the Township Committee and the Board had taken place on May 13, 1994. The Board contended that compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-22 requires a meeting between the full Board and the governing body and that it was entitled to summary decision restoring the amounts the Township Committee had reduced from its budget since such meeting had not occurred.

Review of the Board's exceptions has reinforced our view that, as expressed in the Legal Committee's Report, summary disposition of this case would be inappropriate at this point.

New Jersey was among the first states to make summary judgment procedures available and, consequently, the standards which the New Jersey courts apply when deciding whether to grant a summary judgment are well established. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). As described by the Court, summary judgment > ... is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial...

> The standards of decision governing the grant or denial of a summary judgment emphasize that a party opposing a motion is not to be denied a trial unless the moving party sustains the burden of showing clearly the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.
>
> ...it is the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact....

Id. at 74-75 (citations omitted).

In applying court-based precepts such as these, we are cognizant that we must temper their potential for achieving sound results by a full appreciation of our agency's statutory foundations, executive nature, and its special jurisdictional and regulatory concerns. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980).

In this case, the Board sought leave to appeal in order to obtain a ruling that the Township Committee's conduct constituted such a breach of its obligations under the law that this agency should summarily dispose of the entire matter by restoring the amounts at issue to the education budget without further hearing. This view is flawed.

First, as discussed above, summary judgment can not issue when there are genuine disputed issues of fact. This alone would bar issuance of a summary judgment in this case.

While there is no dispute that the Township Committee did not provide a statement of reasons when it filed its answer to the Board's appeal, even the Board does not contend that this in itself would entitle it to summary judgment. Deptford, supra. Rather, the Board argues that when this failure is considered in conjunction with the Township Committee's conduct in relation to its statutory obligation to consult with the Board, the law calls for summary judgment restoring the reductions.

In order for it to prevail on its motion, the Board had the burden of excluding any reasonable doubt as to the material facts. E.g., Costa v. Josey 83 N.J. 49, 53 (1980). Our review of the record shows that the affidavit by the Township Administrator, which was filed in support of the Township's Position Paper, attests that the mayor and Township Committee members did meet with Board representatives before the Township Committee made its reductions to the budget. This affidavit was included in the record before the Commissioner when he decided the motion. It is evident from this affidavit as well as from review of the position papers filed with the Commissioner by both parties that the Township's conduct in relation to its obligation to consult with the Board was in dispute.

The fact that the Board now concedes that some members of the Township Committee did meet with representatives of the Board does not entirely resolve this dispute. While confirming that a meeting of some kind took place, there is nothing in the record as to what transpired at that meeting. Although the Board continues to assert that it is entitled to summary judgment solely because the meeting was not between the full bodies, we find that information relating to the circumstances would be material to such determination. Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg v. Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg, 1981 S.L.D. 1230, 1232-33 (subsequent history omitted).

In short, it is not as clear to us as it is to the Board that the fact that the full Board and Township Committee did not meet is alone sufficient to entitle it to summary judgment as a matter of law. Rather, we find that the record before us is not a sufficient one upon which to conclude that the Township Committee failed to exhibit sufficient compliance with the statute so as to entitle it to proceed to a determination on the proofs. Id.

Secondly, we can not ignore that a ruling that the alleged violations which occurred here would entitle the Board to summary judgment involves significant policy considerations and would impact other cases. Sandvik, Inc. v. Satewide Sec. Systems, 192 N.J. 138, 142 (1969). As recognized by the Commissioner, summary decision at this juncture would obviate any review of the merits of the reductions made by the Township. Given the Commissioner's constitutional and statutory responsibilities and his role in insuring that budget decisions are based on appropriate educational considerations, Deptford, supra. at 317-18, it would be imprudent to decide this matter in a summary fashion. In this respect, we recognize that regardless of why cooperation broke down, the Commissioner had the means available to make certain that the budget cuts were made subject to the proper educational considerations, such as requiring mutual consultation under his supervision, thereby avoiding any need to restore the amounts on procedural grounds. Deptford, supra, at 320. See In re Uniform Admin. Procedure Rules, 90 N.J 85, 93-94 (1982) (agencies have great flexibility to use the adjudicative process to handle specialized problems that arise; this power is directly and integrally related to its regulatory function).

We therefore affirm as modified herein the Commissioner's determination to deny summary decision and direct that the matter proceed on the merits. However, this does not mean that the Township Committee's failure to fulfill its responsibility to provide the reasons for its reductions when it acted would be without effect in those proceedings. To the contrary, as stressed by the New Jersey Supreme Court:

> ...if the municipality fails to submit reasons contemporaneously with its certification of budget cuts, the Commissioner of Education in the course of an ensuing appeal is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts. Hence, the greater the delay in the submission of detailed reasons in support of such cuts, the stronger will be the presumption against their validity and the heavier will be the municipality's burden on appeal to establish the validity of the reduced budget. In that posture, the Commissioner will be entitled initially to presume that such cuts > have been made purely for extra-educational reasons or for political expediency without specific cognizance taken of their educational effects...

Deptford, supra, at 320-21.

Any failure of the Township Committee that the Board establishes in relation to the Township's statutory obligation to consult would increase that presumption.

We stress that in reviewing budget appeals under N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, the Commissioner is not sitting as the original budget-making body. Hence, in the proceedings in this case, the Commissioner > is charged with the overriding responsibility of seeing to it that the mandate for a thorough and efficient system of free public schools is being carried out. [citations omitted.]

> ...if he finds that the budget fixed by the governing body is insufficient to enable compliance with mandatory legislative and administrative educational requirements or is insufficient to meet minimum educational standards for the mandated "thorough and efficient" East Brunswick school system, he will direct appropriate corrective action by the governing body or fix the budget on his own within the limits originally proposed by the board of education. On the other hand, if he finds that the governing body's budget is not so inadequate, even though significantly below what the Board of Education had fixed or what he would fix if he were acting as the original budget-making body under R.S. 18:7-83, then he will sustain it, absent any independent showing of procedural or substantive arbitrariness.

East Brunswick, supra, at 106-107.

Therefore, as we reiterated in our decision in Edgewater,

> ...the Commissioner cannot ignore completely the municipality's political concerns and indeed may not override them without some necessity strictly related to the constitutional mandate to provide for a thorough and efficient school system.

Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994, slip op. at 7, citing Deptford, supra, at 314 (emphasis added).

We recognize that in resolving the merits of this case, the Commissioner is not necessarily required to provide the parties with an evidentiary hearing and may be able to dispose of the merits of this matter by summary decision if he is satisfied that the papers filed establish the facts requisite to his determination. See, e.g., Cunningham v. Department of Civil Service, 69 N.J. 13 (1975). However, we remind the Commissioner that if facts material to his determination are in dispute, he is both empowered and obligated to provide such hearing as necessary to resolve those issues and to assure that the record is complete. Edgewater, supra, at 11. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.9 (should the Commissioner find that there are material issues of fact to be determined in a budget appeal, he may conduct an evidentiary hearing or transmit the case to OAL for a hearing).

We take notice that our decision of March 2, 1994, relating to the Board's 1993-94 budget is currently on appeal to the Appellate Division. In that case, we held that the Township Committee had proffered no valid reason for setting aside the Commissioner's decision directing restoration of all amounts that the Township Committee had reduced from the proposed 1993-94 budget. Critical to our decision was our determination that the Township Committee could not supplement the record on appeal so as to introduce factual information as to the district's financial circumstances occurring after the Township acted to reduce the budget for 1993-94 school year. Consistent with that determination, we find that any facts relating to 1993-94 expenditures and revenues which are material to establishing the amount that was necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education for 1994-95 must be considered in deciding this matter.

In sum, as modified herein, we affirm the Commissioner's determination to deny the Board's motion for summary decision and remand this matter to the Commissioner in order that he may conduct any further proceedings that are necessary to resolve the substance of the Board's appeal in conformity with this opinion.[4]

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[4] On March 2, 1995, the Board submitted a letter representing that it intended to withdraw its appeal of the 1994-95 budget. However, no further communication from the parties was received thereafter and, in any event, all proceedings before the Commissioner in this matter had been stayed by our decision of October 5, 1994.

By our decision today, the stay of proceedings before the Commissioner is dissolved. Given the effect of our decision, the parties must now seek the approval of the Commissioner of Education of any settlement they may reach that would dispose of the matter.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, three school clerks, alleged Board's termination of their employment violated their tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b). Board contended their rights were governed by civil service law rather than by education statutes.

ALJ concluded that the Commissioner of Education lacked subject matter jurisdiction over this dispute, as the Newark school district employs its nonprofessional staff under the civil service system and there is no relief the Commissioner could afford petitioners. ALJ ordered the appeals dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and ordered them transferred to the Merit System Board for action as it deems appropriate.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, dismissing the petitions and transferring them to the Merit System Board.

DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions were filed on July 29, 1994, well beyond thirteen days from the date of mailing of the initial decision (July 11, 1994) as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and are not considered herein. The Board, in reply to these exceptions, filed a letter endorsing the conclusion of the ALJ and referencing its prior papers.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, employment of school clerks in the Newark school district being controlled by civil service law, there is no relief he can afford petitioners even in the wake of their claim that the Board routinely ignored civil service procedures with regard to their hiring and subsequent employment. As indicated by the ALJ, any administrative controversy arising from such circumstances is properly before the Merit System Board rather than the Commissioner of Education, who will not retain jurisdiction where he cannot provide a remedy. Newark Attendance Counselors, supra

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, dismissing the Petitions of Appeal and transferring them to the Merit System Board for action as it deems appropriate, is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DAVID CLARK, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP,	:	DECISION
MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming against tenured high school English teacher with over twenty years of service for alleged "racist, inflammatory and confrontational" remarks made by respondent on a radio talk show.

ALJ dismissed all tenure charges against respondent, concluding that respondent had successfully demonstrated that he spoke as a citizen on a matter of public concern; that respondent's rights of freedom of speech were guaranteed under the First Amendment; that there was no showing by the Board that respondent's conduct interfered with its effective and efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public; that the protected speech was the motivating factor for the certifying of tenure charges against respondent; and that, but for the speech, no tenure charges would have been certified.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered the Board to reinstate respondent to his position with salary and all emoluments, less mitigation, from the date of his suspension.

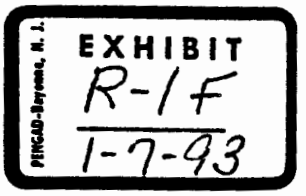
T R A N S C R I P T of the

January 30, 1992 taped conversation on WABC Radio between David Clark and Bob Grant (radio talk show show host) as transcribed by STEVEN J. GRIFFING, a Certified Shorthand Reporter and Notary Public of New Jersey, on Thursday, February 6, 1992.



MR. CLARK: Hello, Bob. . .

. . . seventh and eighth grade French in an affluent suburban school disctict in New Jersey. She and another woman built up a fine program there. They've always had full classes, and 90 percent of their students went on to a high school and continued their French education, and many of those students qualified for advanced placement in senior year.

Last week my wife was called into the Superintendent's office and it was announced that they were eliminating the French program in the seventh and eighth grade school and it was going to be replaced by Spanish. And the way that this came about was that a survey was sent out by the Board of Education to the tax payers, and they received a 25 percent response to the survey but it was worded very ambiguously in such a way that it sounded as though Spanish was going to be added to the French curriculum. And many of the people thought that this was a good idea, because in this town they favor any increase in education. But the truth of the matter was that it was a vote to eliminate the French program and, as I say, replace it with the Spanish.

Well, this took place, as I said, a week ago; and people have heard about it now and a lot of people are up in arms. And I wanted you to know that we're not going to let this thing sit. We are going to fight it and we're not going to give up.

In my own school -- I teach in a high school -- I was approached by an administrator and I was asked what special activities I have planned for the month of February. Our high school curriculum calls for American Literature. So, I explained that we would be doing a unit involving some of Abraham Lincoln's speeches, some excerpts from Frederick Douglass and also Booker T. Washington's speech at Tuskegee University, which is a fine speech. Well, I was told that this wasn't enough for the month and I was given a list of ten authors, whose names I coudn't pronounce -- I teach English -- and ten short stories and poems that were tranlations from Swahili and Bantu.

MR. GRANT: Oh, brother.

MR. CLARK: And -- Well, I handed the list right back, Bob, and I told the administrator that until these things became part of the regular curriculum, I refused to teach them.

MR. GRANT: Good for you. Good for you. What -- may I -- do I dare, in the United States of America, in the year 1992, do I ask what the heck this Black History Month is anyway? What is it supposed to be? If it's supposed to be something that has to do with the experience of Blacks in the United States of America, that's one thing; but Blacks in the United States of America did not speak Swahili, or Bantu or any of those other languages that they speak on the continent of Africa, did -- did they?

MR. CLARK: Well, Bob --

MR. GRANT: Of course not.

MR. CLARK: The emphasis of our school seems to be on, as you put it, the continent of Africa. They put up a banner in one of the classrooms: 200 years of United States History, 2,000 years of African History.

But the difference, Bob, is that in 200 years we went to the moon. After 2000 years they're still over there urinating in their drinking and bathing water.

MR. GRANT: What school do you teach at?

MR. CLARK: Do I name it?

MR. GRANT: If you wish.

MR. CLARK: Neptune High School, Neptune, New Jersey.

MR. GRANT: Ah-huh. Well, Neptune years ago wasn't a bad place but I --

MR. CLARK: I started in Neptune in 1972. It was one of the best schools in the area, Bob.

MR. GRANT: Ah-huh. Let's dedicate this to what has become -- let's dedicate this to the school administration out there in -- in Neptune.

MR. CLARK: My wife is in a different district. She's not in Neptune.

MR. GRANT: Okay. You know, people listen to you, and they hear my response, and they get irate and that's the end of it.

MR. CLARK: I don't care what people think, Bob.

MR. GRANT: But -- but it's an invasion. It's an absolute invasion. It's a takeover. Well, you know we -- we brag about -- about the fact the Soviet Union collapsed without a shot being fired. Guess what? The United States of America is in the process of collapsing without a shot being fired. Well, I take it back. Quite a few shots being fired. But you know what I mean.

MR. CLARK: I'm shooting, Bob.

MR. GRANT: All right. Thank you, Dave.

MR. CLARK: Thank you, Bob.

MR. GRANT: Oh my gosh, incredible.

(Whereupon the transmission ceases.)

James T. Hundley, Esq., for the complainant, Board of Education (Hundley, Parry & Hopkins, attorneys)

Stephen R. Cohen, Esq., for the respondent, (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys; Michael C. Damm, Esq., on the Brief)

David Earle Powers, Deputy Attorney General, for participant, Commissioner of Education (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 17, 1993 Decision: May 23, 1994

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the Township of Neptune (Board) on March 17, 1992, certified to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) charges of unbecoming conduct against David C. Clark (respondent), a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -25. Respondent denies the charges and sets forth seven affirmative defenses, seeking the dismissal of all of the charges.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 13, 1992, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on July 16, 1992 followed by a Prehearing Order dated July 20, 1992. Pursuant to the Prehearing Order, a conference call was arranged for September 10, 1992. The Prehearing Order also provided for ten (10) days of hearing commencing January 4, 1993, and continuing through January 25, 1993.

The scheduled conference call on September 10, 1992, was adjourned due to attorney conflict. A second prehearing conference was held on October 1, 1992, where, among other things, the issues to be resolved by this tribunal were expanded to include respondent's seven (7) affirmative defenses, among others. The Second Prehearing Order also provided, pursuant to respondent's First Affirmative Defense, that the Commissioner be Ordered to Show Cause as to: (1) why the instant matter should not be dismissed; (2) why the matter should not be removed from the authority of the Commissioner and/or; (3) why the matter should not be returned to the Department of Education for an impartial and unbiased review?

The Order to Show Cause was executed on November 9, 1992. On November 16, 1992, the undersigned acknowledged that Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Stoloff would represent the Commissioner. On November 19, 1992, Deputy Attorney General David Earle Powers applied to participate on behalf of the Office of the Commissioner. On November 25, 1992, the undersigned granted the Attorney General's application to participate with all the rights and privileges set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6 (c) 4. On December 10, 1992, Deputy Attorney General Powers submitted discovery requested by respondent.

On December 18, 1992, oral argument on the Order to Show Cause was heard at the Trenton OAL, Mercerville, New Jersey. The record remained open to provide the parties the opportunity to engage in further discovery by way of depositions. The scheduled hearing dates in January 1993 were adjourned. The record closed on December 15, 1993, with the last submission of briefs and supporting documents.

Respondent submits his application for the dismissal of the Certified Tenure Charges filed against him by the Board. The Board opposes the application and is joined by the Commissioner.

Extensions were granted to execute this decision on motion.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The respondent David C. Clark is employed by the Neptune Township Board of Education as a high school teacher at the Neptune High School, Neptune Township, Monmouth County, New Jersey. The respondent is a tenured employee with over twenty (20) years of service to the Board.

On January 30, 1992, at approximately 5:10 p.m., the respondent, David C. Clark, hereinafter referred to as "Respondent," telephoned "The Bob Grant Show," a talk show broadcasted over radio station WABC in New York City. The Bob Grant Show is broadcasted five afternoons a week and is heard throughout the New York Metropolitan area; including Monmouth County, New Jersey. The show features telephone conversations between the host, Bob Grant, and various listeners who call the radio station. The respondent identified himself as "Dave," and at the request of the host, indicated he was an English teacher with Neptune High School. The respondent, among other things, entered into a discussion with the talk show host about teaching African literature in his American Literature class during Black History Month and whether this curriculum was appropriate. The telephone call was made on respondent's own time and not on school time.

In his discussion with Bob Grant, respondent asserted that he was approached by an administrator in the High School and asked what special activities respondent had planned for Black History Month. Respondent asserted he told the administrator that he intended to use some of Abraham Lincoln's speeches, some excerpts from Frederick Douglas and also Booker T. Washington's speech at Tuskegee University, which respondent stated was a fine speech. Respondent then told Bob Grant that the administrator told respondent that his plan was not enough for the month and that respondent was given a list of ten authors, whose names respondent could not pronounce, and ten short stories and poems that were translations from Swahili and Bantu. Respondent told Bob Grant that he handed the list back to the administrator and told the administrator that until these items became a part of the regular curriculum, respondent refused to teach them.

Respondent told Bob Grant that a banner was placed in one of the school's classrooms which read, "200 years of the United States History, 2000 years of African History." A transcript of the Bob Grant Show of January 30, 1992, demonstrate that respondent said:

> "... But the difference, Bob is that in 200 years we went to the Moon. After 2000 years they're still over there urinating in their drinking and bathing water." (Board's Exhibit A)

The discussion between respondent and Bob Grant continued for a short period of time.

School Superintendent Michael Lake testified in his deposition that on the morning of January 31, 1992, while he was out of the district, he received a telephone call from his secretary advising that calls were being received regarding statements made about the district on a call-in radio program. Mr. Lake was given two or three messages when he returned to the office. One of the messages (Respondent's Exhibit "C") was from a group called "Media Monitors." Mr. Lake stated he telephoned the group and was informed by a representative that Media Monitors had a tape recording of the telephone call made to the radio station. Mr. Lake listened to the tape but could not identify the caller. Mr. Lake then searched his school directory for the person who identified himself on the tape as "Dave," an English teacher from Neptune High School. Mr. Lake found respondent's name, called the principal of respondent's school and summoned respondent to a meeting with him that day based upon the assumption that the respondent had made the call to the radio station.

At the meeting, respondent was accompanied by two members of his teachers' association. Superintendent Lake advised respondent of the telephone calls he had received and that he had listened to the tape recording of the broadcast. Superintendent Lake asked respondent if he had made the statements on the Bob Grant Show and respondent replied that he had. Superintendent Lake suspended respondent with pay pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6.

At his deposition, Mr. Lake stated that the basis for his suspension of respondent was based upon respondent's admission that he had called the Bob Grant show and that respondent had no reasonable explanation as to why he had placed the call. The Superintendent asserted had had listened to the tape recording of the show and was shocked by respondent's remarks. Mr. Lake stated that as the Superintendent of Schools he perceived respondent's remarks as racist, confrontational and thought that the remarks could lead to some very difficult times at the school with the students and teachers and throughout the school-community.

This was confirmed by way of a written memorandum "Superintendent's Case File Report" prepared by Lake and dated January 31, 1992. In that memorandum, Lake, without questioning respondent regarding the substance of his remarks on the radio, interpreted the same to be "racist, inflammatory and confrontational" and suspended him as of February 3, 1992 (Respondent's Exhibit "D").

Superintendent Lake admitted that the district had received no reports of disruption involving students or teachers. Superintendent Lake further stated that prior to the statement made on radio, there was no contemplated investigation of respondent. Furthermore, but for respondent's statements on the radio, he would not have been suspended.

Between January 31, 1992 and February 12, 1992, respondent's remarks on the Bob Grant Show received attention in the media. Respondent's remarks and subsequent suspension were carried on the Bob Grant Show broadcast over this twelve day period. Respondent was the subject of radio news reports and comments on both New York and New Jersey radio stations. These included New York radio station WFAN's Don Imus Program; WDAB South Belmar, WJLK Asbury Park, Seaview 107 in Long Branch, New Jersey.

Newspaper stories about respondent's broadcast appeared in the New York Post, the Star Ledger, The Asbury Park Press (Board's Exhibits C and D) and the Trenton Times. The local cable station, Monmouth Cablevision TV 34 carrier television news stories about respondent's remarks.

On February 3, 1992, Superintendent Lake wrote to respondent formally notifying him of his suspension as a result of his statements made over the radio. (Respondent's Exhibit "E"). Superintendent Lake testified that after he acted to suspend respondent, he obtained respondent's personnel file and began to review it. An investigation was then conducted whereby teachers and students were asked to respond to a series of questions concerning respondent. This took place over a series of dates in February and March, 1992. Superintendent Lake admitted to making statements to a reporter from the Asbury Park Press concerning the respondent on approximately five (5) occasions. At least one Board meeting was televised. Newspaper articles were published and letters written with respect to the curriculum and the conduct of the Superintendent in sanctioning respondent.

On or about February 10, 1992, a letter was written by a concerned citizen, Mrs. C. Scott Bartlett, to the Governor of the State of New Jersey protesting the treatment of the respondent, supporting the exercise of his freedom of speech, criticizing the actions taken against the respondent and demanding an investigation, (Respondent's Exhibit "F"). The Governor responded, indicating that he had referred the matter to his staff who would be providing an explanation, (Respondent's Exhibit "G").

At the regular meeting of the Board held on February 12, 1992, the Board issued a "Public Statement," which reads as follows:

> The Board of Education tonight was charged with deciding between a staff member's Right of Freedom of Expression which is guaranteed under the United States Constitution, and the safe and efficient operation of our school system.
>
> While an individual's rights are extremely important, those rights cannot supersede the responsibility of this Board and its Administration to maintain a positive educational and work environment for our nearly 4,000 students and our 500 employees.
>
> The actions taken by a staff member on January 30, 1992, indeed pose a threat to this environment. As a result, the Neptune Township Board of Education this evening has accepted the Superintendent's recommendation to continue this employee's suspension and that Tenure Charges be brought against this individual for conduct unbecoming a Teacher.
> Since this action places the Board in litigation against this individual, there will be no further comment on this matter by the Board.

Respondent's suspension was continued under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6. The public statement was read to all in attendance at the Board meeting held on February 12, 1992, which was estimated to be approximately 400 in number. Copies of the public statement were posted and additional copies were made available to the print media. The Board meeting was attended by members of the staff, students, the public and the press. Prior to the public meeting, the Board met in Executive Session, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-12.b (8), to consider if respondent should be continued on paid suspension. Superintendent Lake advised the Board that he intended to file tenure charges against respondent on paid suspension pending the filing of such charges, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

On February 20, 1992, tenure charges against the respondent were submitted to the Neptune Township Board of Education (Exhibit "I") pursuant to the Tenure Employees Hearing Act, for consideration. The respondent was charged with "unbecoming conduct." The allegations were not only that the issues of public concern voiced by respondent over the radio were improper, but he was also charged with misconduct for vague and unsubstantiated statements or events allegedly occurring many years earlier and which had previously been resolved or in the case of Charges 1-B and E, expunged. (Respondent's Exhibit J).

On March 6, 1992, the Department of Education, through the Commissioner, wrote to Mrs. C. Scott Bartlett, (respondent's Exhibit "K"), in response to her letter to the Governor. In that letter, the Commissioner stated inter alia that his office had conducted its own review of the statements made by the respondent. The Commissioner's letter states as follows:

> Dear Mrs. Bartlett:
>
> Governor Jim Florio has asked me to respond to your letter of February 10, 1992. Please be assured that we are equally concerned with everyone's right to freedom of speech, however, the issue at hand is not the First Amendment. Instead, it is the inappropriate behavior of a tenured teacher to belittle the history of people.
>
> In reviewing the full transcripts of the Bob Grant Show from January 30, Mr. Clark clearly identified himself and the school where he teaches. He was not an anonymous caller. As a teacher, he is entrusted by the board of education and the taxpayers of the state to broaden the scope of learning of the pupils in his charge.
>
> Mr. Clark has been suspended, with pay, pending receipt of his response to the charges submitted to him by the Neptune Township Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Michael T. Lake. Needless to say, we are very concerned with this matter and are doing everything to get it resolved as quickly and fairly as possible.
>
> We appreciate your writing to the Governor and trust that our actions will be judicious to all concerned.
>
> (Respondent's Exhibit K)

The Commissioner's letter to Mrs. Bartlett was written prior to the Board having made a determination as to the sufficiency of the charges against respondent or whether to present such charges to the Commissioner. The information upon which the Commissioner based his letter to Mrs. Bartlett was obtained from the office of then Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools, Milton Hughes. On or about February 28, 1992, a packet of materials were sent by FAX to the Monmouth County Superintendent's office which included a copy of the Bartlett letter (Respondent's Exhibit F), a letter from the New Jersey State House, Office of Constituent Relations (Respondent's Exhibit L), together with a memorandum dated February 20, 1992, from the Department of Education Assistant Commissioner, Charles P. Mitchell, which requested County Superintendent Hughes to prepare a draft reply for the Commissioner's signature and return (Respondent's Exhibit M). County Superintendent Hughes spoke with Superintendent Lake and a copy of the Barlett letter was subsequently sent to Lake with instructions to draft a response for Commissioner Ellis (Respondent's Exhibit N). Superintendent Lake replied by letter dated February 24, 1992, to Superintendent Hughes and enclosed a copy of a transcript of the January 30, 1992, Bob Grant radio show (Respondent's Exhibit O). Patricia Eaton, secretary to County Superintendent Hughes, reviewed the above documents and an article published by the Asbury Park Press, dated February 23, 1992 (Respondent's Exhibit P), and prepared a draft response for the Commissioner (Respondent's Exhibit Q), which was approved by County Superintendent Hughes. The prepared draft (Exhibit Q) was sent to the Office of Assistant Commissioner Mitchell as instructed (Exhibit M).

On March 11, 1992, the Board met in closed session to consider the tenure charges against respondent. Board voted to certify tenure charges against respondent to the Commissioner and, further, suspend respondent without pay pursuant to the tenure laws. Charges were certified to the Commissioner on March 17, 1992. (Board's Exhibit I). A copy of the notice of the Board's determination and suspension without pay were forwarded to respondent on March 17, 1992. (Board's Exhibit J).

On or about April 3, 1992, the respondent filed his Answer to the charges alleging, among other things, that the actions of the Department of Education, Commissioner of Education and Board of Education, in improperly prejudging the matter, demonstrated bias toward the respondent, constituting a denial of respondent's right to due process. In addition, respondent alleged his right to free speech had been violated. Respondent demanded the dismissal of all charges.

On April 10, 192, Commissioner Ellis wrote to the parties to advised that as a result of the issue raised in respondent's First Affirmative Defense, he was removing himself from the case and designating Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury to decide the case pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33. (Board's Exhibit L; Respondent's Exhibit T). The Commissioner's letter, addressed to the parties attorneys, states as follows:

> Dear Gentlemen:
> I note the concerns respondent raises by way of affirmative defenses in the case captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Clark, School District of Neptune Township, Monmouth County, Agency Dkt. No. 69-3/92. I am constrained to point out at the time my letter to Ms. Elizabeth Bartlett, dated March 6, 1992, was written, no tenure charges had been filed against Mr. Clark. However, in order to prevent even the remotest suggestion of a predisposition in this matter, I have determined to designate Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury to decide this case pursuant to my authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33. (Board's Exhibit L, Respondent's Exhibit T).

Maureen R. Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, New Jersey State Department of Education, testified at her deposition that upon receipt of respondent's Answer to the tenure charges, Kathryn Hughes Kim, an examiner in the Bureau brought to Keller's attention the Commissioner's letter of March 6, 1992, to Mrs. Bartlett and the fact that respondent had raised the Affirmative Defense as to whether the Office of the Commissioner had prejudiced the matter. Director Keller admitted that the Office of the Commissioner should not have sent the communication dated March 6, 1992, to Mrs. Bartlett. Director Keller directed Examiner Kim to prepare a response. The letter dated April 10, 1992 (Exhibit L; Exhibit T) was prepared by Kim, reviewed by Keller and forwarded to Deputy Commissioner Isaac Bryant for his review and finally on to the Commissioner. Director Keller recommended that Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury decide the matter once the Commissioner had recused himself. This recommendation was accepted by the Commissioner.

On April 13, 1992, respondent's attorney wrote to the Commissioner stating, among other things, that as a result of the actions of the Commissioner, the proceedings had become incurably tainted and that the charges against respondent should be dismissed.

On April 21, 1992, Director Maureen P. Keller wrote to respondent's counsel in response to the criticisms raised, restating the fact that the Commissioner had decided to recuse himself and that his deputy would be deciding the matter. (Exhibit Z) Ms. Keller testified that this response letter was drafted for her signature by Examiner Kim.

Ms. Keller explained at her deposition the functions of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in assisting the Commissioner in the issuing of school law decisions. She also explained the procedure by which her three person office handles tenure cases. She stated that once charges are filed with her office, a preliminary determination is made as to whether the charges are sufficient or should be rejected before forwarding them to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case. She also testified as to the role her office plays in reviewing decisions which come from the Office of Administrative Law and making recommendations to the Commissioner as to whether or not these decisions should be accepted or rejected. Ms. Keller testified that the recommendations of her office are accepted by the Commissioner approximately 80 percent of the time and rejected approximately 20 percent of the time.

The respondent, upon being suspended without pay on February 3, 1992, filed a claim for unemployment compensation. A hearing was held on May 13, 1992, before the New Jersey Department of Labor. On June 25, 1992, a decision was entered by Appeals Tribunal Examiner, Ronald Gitter, finding the respondent had not been discharged for misconduct connected with work, and that he was qualified for unemployment benefits pursuant to statute. (Respondent's Exhibit "AA").

At the May 13, 1992 hearing, respondent testified, under oath, about the events leading up to his January 20, 1992 radio broadcast. (Board's Exhibit 0). Respondent testified that on January 20, 1992 at approximately 11:30 a.m., he received a list of African authors in his school mailbox. (Exhibit "O"; T21-8 to -15.) Respondent did not know who put the list in his school mailbox. Respondent testified that the list was addressed to both faculty and students. Respondent did not know if any other teachers in the high school received the same list.

Respondent testified that at approximately 1:00 p.m. on January 30, 1992, he went to the office of his Department Chairperson, Michael Mixson to discuss the list. Mr. Mixson told respondent that he was busy and asked respondent to see him later. Respondent testified that he looked for Mr. Mixson at the end of the school day, 1:50 p.m., but could not locate him. Respondent did not attempt to discuss his concerns about the list with any other supervisor, assistant building principal or, building principal prior to telephoning the Bob Grant Show at 5:10 p.m.

Respondent also testified about the statements he made during the January 30, 1992 radio broadcast. Respondent admitted that his statement about being approached by an administrator and being questioned about his activities for Black History Month was incorrect. Respondent stated that he was actually referring to a conversation he had a week earlier with a fellow teacher, Ruth Wise. Mrs. Wise is a history teacher at the high school and a member of respondent's teachers' association. Mrs. Wise had no supervisory or administrative authority over respondent.

Respondent further testified about his broadcast statement,"they put up a banner within one of the classrooms; 200 years of United States history, 2000 years of African history." Respondent testified that the banner was in respondent's classroom on January 30, but he did not know who put up the banner. Respondent testified that he took the banner down and put it in the garbage can.

On February 1, 1993, respondent's Department Chairperson, Mr. Michael Mixson gave a sworn statement concerning the events testified to by respondent at the May 13, 1992, Department of Labor hearing. (Board's Exhibit P). Mr. Mixson stated that he was not aware of any list of Black Authors that was placed in teachers' mailboxes at Neptune High School. Mr. Mixson also stated that respondent did not produce the list of authors at the January 31, 1992, meeting with respondent and Superintendent Lake that was held at the high school principal's office.

Mr. Mixson also stated that in June 1992, respondent telephoned him to arrange to remove respondent's personal belongings from the high school. At the end of the conversation, Mr. Mixson questioned respondent about the presence of the banner in respondent's classroom and, advised respondent that he had never seen such a banner. Respondent replied: "I'm afraid of I misspoke myself." (Board's Exhibit P; T13-1 to 2). Respondent went on to advise Mr. Mixson that he either heard about such a banner or, that he saw it in a classroom in another school.

THE PARTIES LEGAL ARGUMENTS

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

POINT I

THE EX PARTE INVESTIGATION AND PREJUDGMENT OF THE RESPONDENT'S ACTIONS BY THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, AT A TIME WHEN THE NEPTUNE BOARD OF EDUCATION HAD NOT EVEN MADE A DECISION AS TO THE SUFFICIENCY OF THE CHARGES, VIOLATED THE RESPONDENT'S RIGHT TO PROCEDURAL AND SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS, AND SO TAINTED THE PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE TENURE EMPLOYEES HEARING LAW AS TO MANDATE THE DISMISSAL OF ALL CHARGES

The Tenure Employees Hearing Law, specifically N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 provides the procedure by which tenure charges may be brought. Charges must first be filed with the secretary of the local board of education and a copy served upon the employee, together with a statement of evidence. The employee is then given the opportunity to submit a written statement of position. After considering the charges, statement of position and statement of evidence, the board is required to determine by majority vote of its full membership, at a closed meeting, whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether the charges are sufficient to warrant dismissal or a reduction in salary. If so, the employee is then required to be notified and the charges are forwarded to the Commissioner of Education. See also N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (4). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, upon receipt of the charges, the Commissioner or the Commissioner's designee is required to consider whether they sufficiently set forth a cause of action, and if so, conduct a hearing, on notice, to all parties in interest.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-20 provides, inter alia, that at any hearing held, a party has the right to counsel, the right to testify, to compel witnesses to appear and to cross examine witnesses.

The procedural determinations required by these statutes are not perfunctory, but an integral part of the process due the affected employee. Manalapan-Englishtown Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc., 187 N.J. Super. 426, 430 (App. Div. 1981).

In addition to the statutory procedural requirements, constitutional due process under the Fourteenth Amendment also requires that state governments provide notice and a hearing before taking action which deprives an individual of "liberty" or "property." Board of Regents v. Roth, 408 U.S. 564 (1972). The deprivation of government employment such as the loss of a tenured teacher position has been defined as both a "liberty" and "property" interest requiring the observation of the basic components of due process. Board of Regents v. Roth, supra. The Supreme Court of New Jersey in Nicoletta vs. North Jersey District Water Supply Commission, 77 N.J. 145 (1978) recognized this as a constitutional mandate for New Jersey. See also, Matter of Wolf, 231 N.J. Super. 365-377 (App. Div. 1989) certif. den. 117 N.J. 138 (1989).

The elements required to meet due process hearing standards were fully set forth in Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970) and are as follows:

a. Notice - There must be timely, adequate notice of the proposed action;

b. Time and Manner - The hearing must be conducted at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner;

c. Confrontation of witnesses - The person affected must be afforded an opportunity to confront adverse witnesses and present his/her own arguments in evidence orally;

d. Right to counsel - The person affected must be afforded the opportunity to obtain counsel;

e. Basis for Decision - the decision maker must state the reason for his determination and indicate the evidence relied upon;

f. The decision maker must be impartial.

There is no question that the procedures undertaken to deprive Respondent Clark of his tenured employment as a teacher invoke the application of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., and constitutional due process principles.

An examination of the actions of the Department of Education show clear violations of both the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and respondent's due process rights as guaranteed under the Constitution, thereby requiring a dismissal of the charges.

The Office of the Commissioner in the letter of March 6, 1992, found respondent to have acted improperly, stating that his behavior was "inappropriate," that he "belittled the history of a people" and breached the public trust. The findings were made before charges were presented to the Board for a probable cause determination and prior to respondent even being served with the charges.[1] Respondent was given no notice that the Office of the Commissioner was investigating his conduct. No hearing took place which due process requires and which is required by statute. Respondent was given no opportunity to participate by presenting witnesses or being able to cross examine witnesses. He was not afforded the right to have counsel present. (Emphasis supplied).

These constitutional improprieties were not just limited to the actions of the Office of the Commissioner. At least four (4) levels of government were involved in the investigatory and fact finding process. The Office of Assistant Commissioner Charles P. Mitchell forwarded the Bartlett letter to County Superintendent Milton Hughes to draft a reply. Neptune Township Superintendent Michael Lake was then asked by the Office of County Superintendent Hughes to draft such a response for the Commissioner, (Respondent's Exhibit "N"). Superintendent Lake spoke with Hughes and also responded by letter of February 24, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit "O") condemning respondent. In addition, he sent to the Office of the County Superintendent Hughes a copy of an alleged transcript (Respondent's Exhibit "A") of what was stated on the radio. The Offices of County Superintendent Hughes, based on the information received from Lake and a newspaper article (Exhibit "P"), then drafted a reply, finding the actions of respondent to be improper, (Respondent's Exhibit "Q"). This was forwarded to the Offices of the Assistant Commissioner Mitchell and accepted. The response ultimately found its way to the Commissioner who, after making minor revisions, signed the correspondence of March 6, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit "K") echoing the previous findings made by Mitchell, Hughes and Lake. No doubt other personnel from the Department of Education were also involved in making the determination that the Respondent acted improperly.[2] As a consequence of the above, the due process violations clearly resulted from the actions and findings made by the Department of Education itself, and could not just be limited to the Commissioner.

Not only was there a violation of statute and respondent's due process rights by the Department of Education as set forth above, but the factual findings as contained in the letter of March 6, 1992, demonstrated impermissible bias and prejudgment on the part of the Department, against respondent. As stated in Goldberg v. Kelly, supra. at 257, an impartial decision maker is a basic constituent of minimum due process. See also, Wasson v. Trowbridge, 382 F. 2d. 807, 813 (2d. Cir. 1967). Any other collateral procedural guarantees are largely without meaning if the deciding tribunal has in some way adversely prejudiced the merits of the case. Simard v. Board of Education, 473 F. 2d. 988 (2d. Cir. 1972). A fair trial and a fair tribunal is a basic requirement of due process. In re Murchison, 349 U.S. 133, 146, (1955). This applies to administrative agencies which adjudicate as well as to the Courts. Gibson v. Berryhill, 411 U.S. 564, 579 (1973). Not only is a biased decision maker constitutionally unacceptable but "our system of law has always endeavored to prevent even the probability of unfairness" In re Murchison, supra., at 136. While it has been held that there is no constitutional deficiency where an administrative agency makes known in advance that it takes a general position on a question of law, it is different when the agency acting as a finder of fact with respect to conduct or practices of parties to a proceeding makes known, in advance, its position on the facts. F.T.C. v. Cement Institute, 333 U.S. 638 (1948).

In United States ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260 (1954), the petitioner attacked the denial of his application for suspension of a deportation order against him on the ground that his application had been prejudged through the issuance by the Attorney General, prior to the decision of the Board of

[2] The Bureau of Controversies and Disputes also became involved in investigating the matter in an attempt to defend the acts of the Office of the Commissioner and the Department of itself, as discussed infra.

Immigration Appeals, of a list of "unsavory characters" whom he wished to deport. The list was allegedly circulated to employees in the immigration service thus making it impossible for the Board to give fair consideration of the petitioner's case. The district judge denied a petition for habeas corpus, without allowing a hearing on the truth of the allegations. The Courts of Appeals affirmed. The Supreme Court, reversed, directing that the petitioner be permitted an opportunity prove his allegation that the list had operated to deprive the Board of its independent judgment. The matter was then remanded and a hearing before the District Judge took place on the issue. See also, Mass. Bay Telecasters, Inc. v. F.C.C., 261 F. 2d. 55 (1958) holding that where there are ex parte communications to agency members who are adjudicating a case the decision of the agency may be set aside on the ground of improper influence.

In the instant case, the statements made by the Department of Education were based upon ex parte investigation and fact-finding at various agency levels. These activities not only ignored the entire process mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., but created an appearance of impropriety, bias and that the matter had been prejudged in violation of the Respondent's constitutional rights. A prejudicial atmosphere was created which now pervades the entire department due to the involvement of numerous personnel as previously discussed. In addition, since the statements as contained in the letter of March 6, 1992 were made prior to the March 11, 1992 Neptune Board meeting to determine whether the charges were sufficient pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 to warrant sanctions, the Board's findings were tainted as well. The impressions created cannot be eliminated by the substitution of a Deputy Commissioner. The bias shown is pervasive, unquestionably violative of respondent's due process rights, and cannot be cured. As a result, the charges must be dismissed. Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970).

Bias was further demonstrated by the fact that Superintendent Lake, who initially determined that tenure charges were appropriate, and who in fact drafted the charges, was asked to prepare a reply to the Bartlett letter for the Office of the Commissioner. Based on information supplied by Superintendent Lake, plus the transcript and a newspaper article, the Office of the Commissioner of Education in the letter of March 6, 1992 determined that respondent's behavior was 'inappropriate." Thus instead of making an independent determination, the Commissioner on behalf of the State Department of Education deferred to the charging party and adopted its position. This manner of proceeding not only violated the N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 but has specifically been found impermissible on a constitutional basis as well. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 420 (App. Div. 1967); see also, Manalapan-Englishtown Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc., supra, at 430.

Further constitutional violations occurred as a result of the Department of Education taking on the role of investigator, prosecutor and judge, predetermining respondent's guilt. The United States Supreme Court in the case of In re Murchison, supra, found a denial of due process where a judge, empowered under state law to sit as a "one man grand jury" and to compel witnesses to testify before him in secret about possible criminal charges, first found two witnesses guilty of criminal contempt (one for perjury and the other for refusing to answer certain questions) in the "investigatory" phase, and then tried and convicted them. The Court ruled that due process had been denied because the judge in effect became part of the prosecution and assumed an adversarial position. In addition, the Court found that as a judge, passing on guilt or innocence, he was very likely to rely on his "own personal knowledge and impression of what had occurred in the grand jury room," an impression that could not be erased by cross-examination. Id. at 138. Likewise, in the case of Wong Yan Sung vs. McGrath, 339 U.S. 33 (1950), the United States Supreme Court found that it was a violation of due process for an immigration inspector to hear a deportation case while he was also engaged in the prosecution and investigation of similar cases.

For the Department of Education to now sit in judgment of respondent, after having concluded that he is guilty, is constitutionally impermissible and accordingly, the charges should be dismissed.

The case of McCarroll v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3871-88, (July 21, 1988), is not on point. There, the Commissioner of Education recused himself and substituted a deputy commissioner in his stead where he had made public statements on the issue in dispute. This differs significantly from the instant case in that here the charging party was asked to draft the Commissioner's position which was considered ex parte, approved and adopted through at least four (4) agency levels. It should also be pointed out that the McCarroll case was never subjected to appellate review and, therefore, it has little precedential value. Finally, the Office of the Commissioner, by attempting to rely on this case, is attempting to defend its actions by putting a band-aid (its own case law) on a problem of its own creation.

The actions of the Department of Education through the Office of the Commissioner were so prejudicial to the consideration of the case that the matter must be dismissed.

POINT II

AS A RESULT OF JUST CRITICISMS DIRECTED TOWARD THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER, STAFF MEMBERS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION HAVE BEEN PLACED IN THE UNTENABLE POSITION OF HAVING TO JUSTIFY ITS IMPROPER ACTIONS. THIS CONSTITUTES BIAS TOWARD THE RESPONDENT WHICH CANNOT NOW BE CURED BY THE MERE STEPPING ASIDE OF THE CURRENT COMMISSIONER, WHILE ALL OTHER STATE DEPARTMENT PERSONNEL REMAIN TO ULTIMATELY CONSIDER THE MATTER.

An adjudicator may be disqualified on grounds of bias where the adjudicator has a pecuniary interest in the outcome of the case where the adjudicator has been the target of personal abuse or criticism from the party before him. Matter of Carberry, 114 N.J. 574, 586 (1989). In the instant case, the Department of Education and the Office of the Commissioner have been subject to criticism from respondent and others resulting from the prejudging of this matter in deprivation of respondent's constitutional rights. See Respondent's Answer to the charges, affirmative defenses and letter of April 13, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit Y) wherein bias is charged. The response to this just criticism is contained in the Commissioner's letter of April 10, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit T), whereby he recused himself, and in the subsequent letter of April 21, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit Z), from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes attempting to explain why the Department of Education acted as it did. This demonstrates actual bias.

One of the functions of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, Division of Executive Services in the Department of Education is to review decisions of the Office of Administrative Law and then present its own recommendation to the Commissioner as to whether to accept or reject the decision. Maureen R. Keller, Director of the Bureau, admitted in her deposition that the letter of March 6, 1992 from Commissioner Ellis should not have been sent. She testified that it was she who directed the preparation of the letter of April 10, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit T), by Katherine Hughes Kim, Controversies Examiner in her office. The letter was then forwarded to Deputy Commissioner Isaac Bryant for review and finally to the Commissioner. This letter, in particular paragraph two, was written in response to the criticisms raised by respondent and in an attempt to justify the Commissioner's actions. As a result of having to reply to the criticism directed toward the Commissioner, staff members of the Department of Education are and were placed in the untenable position of having to justify the position taken by the Department and defend criticisms directed at the Office of the Commissioner for having predetermined the matter.[3] This clearly is indicative of bias which cannot be eliminated by the mere recusal of the current Commissioner in favor of a deputy. Should this matter be required to go forward in its present form, those employees of the Department of Education in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes who were compelled to justify the actions of the Department will continue to sit in judgment of respondent. This is wrong. It violates respondent's constitutional rights and cannot be permitted. Respondent has been prejudiced to such an extent that the charges against him should be dismissed.

POINT III

THE PREJUDICIAL PUBLIC STATEMENTS MADE AGAINST RESPONDENT BY SUPERINTENDENT LAKE, THE BOARD AND COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT HUGHES, AT A TIME WHEN THE BOARD HAD NOT EVEN DETERMINED THE SUFFICIENCY OF THE CHARGES, WAS INDICATIVE OF BIAS AND VIOLATED THE RESPONDENT'S RIGHT TO DUE PROCESS. AS A CONSEQUENCE THE CHARGES MUST BE DISMISSED.

On February 12, 1992, the Neptune Board issued a "Public Statement" (Exhibit H) condemning respondent for his opinions expressed on the radio program of January 30, 1992. The "Public Statement" was read to all of those in attendance at a public meeting held by the Board on February 12, 1992. It was posted and made available to those in attendance at the meeting, including the press.[4] The "Public Statement" made it apparent that the Board was predisposed to certify tenure charges against respondent and, in fact, it did so on March 11, 1992. The Board,

[3] Although Director Keller denied that the statement as contained in paragraph two of the April 10, 1992 letter, (Exhibit T), prepared by her office, was in defense of the Commissioner, she did admit it was prepared as an explanation for his actions (1/12/93, 45-11 through 46).

[4] Superintendent Lake admitted to making statements to a reporter from the Asbury Park Press, concerning Respondent on approximately five (5) occasions.

by making the public announcement that the opinions expressed by respondent on the radio program "pose a threat to [a positive educational and work] environment,"prior to serving respondent with charges or the receipt and any consideration of respondent's submission of a "written statement of position and written statement of evidence," deprived respondent of procedural due process as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (3). (Emphasis supplied). The February 12, 1992 "Public Statement" was also violative of N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (7) which requires that "[a]ll deliberations and actions of the district board of education with respect to such charges shall take place at a closed meeting." Most significantly, respondent was deprived of an essential element of due process, namely the right to an unbiased tribunal, Goldberg v. Kelly, supra and Nicoletta v. North Jersey District Water Supply Commission, supra. In this regard, N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (4) mandates:

> Upon receipt of the respondent's written statement of evidence under oath ... the district board of education shall determine by a majority vote of its full membership within 45 days whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether such charges, if credited, are sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction in salary (See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11).

No examination was made prior to making the public statement as to probable cause or the sufficiency of the charges as required by statute. In fact, respondent was not even served with the charges or a Statement of the Evidence until February 20, 1992. By that time the Board had already prejudged the allegations made against him by Superintendent Lake, crediting these allegations without even receiving a position statement from respondent. The Board thereby deprived respondent of his right to an impartial decision-maker respecting, the "probable cause" determinations required under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (4). Manalapan-Englishtown Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc., supra. at 430.

The conduct of the Board with respect to respondent, including the issuance of the "Public Statement," showed bias and that it had pre-decided respondent's case. Prejudicial statements against respondent were also repeated in the letter of February 24, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit O) from Superintendent Lake to County Superintendent Hughes and once again by County Superintendent Hughes in his draft letter to the Commissioner (Respondent's Exhibit Q).

As a result of these due process violations, the charges against respondent should be dismissed.

POINT IV

THE EX PARTE INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY THE NEPTUNE BOARD, WITHOUT NOTICE TO THE RESPONDENT, BY INTERVIEWING WITNESSES, OBTAINING STATEMENTS, AND TAKING DEPOSITIONS, VIOLATED THE RESPONDENT'S RIGHT TO DUE PROCESS AND FOR THIS REASON, THE CHARGES SHOULD BE DISMISSED.

Superintendent Lake admitted during his deposition that as a result of the statements made on the radio program by respondent, he initiated an investigation. This investigation was undertaken without respondent's knowledge. The investigation was detailed and statements were obtained from respondent's students, former students and co-employees. These statements were obtained prior to the consideration of the charges by the Board on March 11, 1992. A statement was taken from a Thomas Marshall on February 7, 1992. On March 5, 6, and 9, 1992, statements were obtained from a total of approximately twenty-five (25) individuals. These statements were not made available to respondent until after the charges had been considered by the Board and the matter referred to the Office of Administrative Law (Emphasis supplied). The investigatory process took place over a number of months, primarily February and March of 1992. Despite this intensive process, respondent was not permitted the opportunity to participate in the investigation. Nor was respondent furnished with this evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, so as to be able to respond to the allegations via a position statement. (Emphasis supplied). The ex parte consideration by the Board of this evidence upon which the charges were based, and the failure to furnish it to respondent prior to making the required probable cause determination and whether the charges were sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction in salary, violated respondent's right to the due process, and requires in and of itself, a dismissal of the charges. Goldberg v. Kelly, supra; Nicoletta v. North Jersey District Water Supply Commission, supra.

POINT V

THE CHARGES MADE AGAINST THE RESPONDENT, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF CHARGE 1.F, ARE VAGUE, STALE AND SHOULD BE DISMISSED ON THE BASIS OF ESTOPPEL, WAIVER AND LACHES

All of the charges referred to by petitioner with the exception of Charge 1.f, are either so vague and ambiguous that they cannot be substantiated, or in the alternative, occurred so long ago that they are stale and estoppel, waiver and laches should be applied to prevent the charging party from raising such allegations.

Charges 1.B and 1.E were expunged from respondent's file on May 11, 1981, (Respondent's Exhibit J), and should not have been considered by the Board at all. Both relate to an incident which allegedly occurred in January of 1981. The Board is now estopped form raising those charges for the purpose of imposing discipline. Obviously the reason for "expunging" a file is so that an incident cannot be used in the future against an individual. Estoppel arises to as to prevent one from repudiating an act done or position assumed where that course would cause an injustice to another who, having the right to do so, has relied thereon. In re Atlas Foundry, Co., 155 F. Supp. 615 (D.C.N.J., 1957). Estoppel precludes a party from taking a position inconsistent with that previously assumed and intended to influence another's conduct who has relied thereon to his detriment. Flammia v. Maller, 66 N.J. Super. 440, 449 (App. Div. 1961). Respondent did in fact rely on the representations of the charging party that everything in his file with respect to the alleged incident in January of 1981 was, in fact, expunged. As set forth in the May 11, 1981 letter of expungement, (Respondent's Exhibit J), an independent review was conducted of respondent's file at that time, and it was found that it was appropriate that the incident and all documents connected therewith be removed from the file. As a result, respondent took no further action with respect to the matter, relying on this. For respondent to now be compelled to reconstruct what happened twelve (12) years ago and also determine the reasons why the former Superintendent found expungement appropriate, would be unconscionable and unfairly prejudice the respondent. In addition, the doctrine of laches applies where as here, the delay in making such a charge is unexplained, unexcused and unreasonable under the circumstances causing respondent substantial prejudice. Allstate v. Howard Savings, Inst., 127 N.J. Super. 479, 489-491 (CH. Div. 1974). Furthermore, the expungement of the incident operated as a waiver by the Board of any further consideration of the incident. Waiver is defined as the" intentional relinquishment of a known right" and operates to prevent a party from pursuing a course of action once a waiver has occurred. Beneficial Finance Co. of Jersey City v. Norton, 76 N.J. Super. 577 (App. Div. 1962). The letter of May 11, 1981, also operated as a waiver, since the use of the word "expunge" means the incident is no longer to be considered as part of the record. Accordingly, the charging party waived any right to now consider the incident as grounds for discipline and should be barred from unilaterally attempting to revoke the previous determination made in 1981.

Similar arguments also apply to Charge 1.C. This alleged incident occurred in October of 1986, some seven (7) years ago. The matter is totally unrelated to the various expressions of opinion which make up the other charges. It involved the alleged use of Respondent's private automobile by two students. Superintendent Michael Lake, as set froth in his letter of February 3, 1987 (Exhibit B attached to the Statement of Evidence) found, inter alia, after investigating the matter:

> ... It is the opinion of the Administrative Staff that the only allegation that can be substantiated is the fact that Mr. Clark allowed two High School pupils, [B] and [R], to use his van for a one week period.

There was no finding that B. was permitted to operate respondent's vehicle as Charge 1.C implies. (See Exhibit C attached to Statement of Evidence and Respondent's Answer to Tenure Charges). In fact, what is not mentioned in the charge is the fact that the evidence showed that respondent had allowed only R. to operate the vehicle, the holder of a valid driver's license, and permission was only granted for R. to use the vehicle in connection with a class project at the Wall Vocational School Auto Shop. Furthermore, at least one other teacher had given similar permission to other students, prompting a recommendation that a letter be sent to all High School Staff regarding procedure for vocational school shop utilization. This information was known to Superintendent Lake at the time of the filing of the charge, but not disclosed. (See Exhibit B attached to Statement of Evidence and Respondent's Answer to Tenure Charges.) On this basis alone, the charging party, by virtue of its own conduct, should be found to have "unclean hands" and the charge dismissed. Schmidt v. Schmidt, 220 N.J. Super. 46 (Ch. Div. 1987). Moreover, this incident, like the 1981 incident, was previously disposed of long ago via the letter of February 7, 1987. It does not establish a course of conduct on the part of the respondent as it is totally unrelated to the other charges. For respondent to be placed in a position of having to defend himself for something that allegedly happened many years ago unfairly prejudices him. The doctrines of estoppel, waiver and laches apply to prohibit the use of such allegations in the present proceedings.

Charges 1.A, D, and H involve alleged expressions of opinion made over an unspecified period of time. These allegations are vague, unsubstantiated and speculative. (Emphasis supplied). As with charge 1.F, discussed infra, such statements, even if made, were protected expressions of free speech guaranteed under the First Amendment. In addition, the evidence upon which they were based was obtained in violation of respondent's due process rights in that respondent was never furnished with such evidence prior to the Board considering the charges as required by statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Manalapan-Englishtown Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc., supra. Superintendent Lake testified at his deposition that a statement was obtained on February 7, 1992, from a Mr. Thomas Marshall to support Charge 1.A. Statements were also obtained from approximately twenty-four (24) other witnesses from March 6, 1992 through March 9, 1992. The Board considered the sufficiency of the charges on March 11, 1992. Copies of the statements obtained from these witnesses were not furnished to respondent until after the matter had reached the Office of Administrative Law and discovery begun. Respondent was never given an opportunity to participate in the Board's investigatory process or respond to this evidence by presenting a Statement of Position. This resulted in the Board considering and judging the sufficiency of the evidence on an ex parte basis, denying Respondent due process. The charges should be stricken for these reasons. Importantly, Charge 1.D refers to a letter dated June 19, 1990, (Exhibit G attached to Statement of Evidence) to respondent from the Superintendent of Schools James L. Terrell regarding respondent's alleged expressions of opinion. This letter was not a disciplinary letter and, in fact, respondent was not disciplined for the statements alleged to have been made by him. (Emphasis supplied) To the contrary, at page three, the finding was that racially biased statements could not be substantiated. Furthermore, the letter merely "suggested" that respondent be more careful of statements made and the context in which the statements are expressed. (Emphasis supplied). For the charging party to now claim that the alleged statements are the basis for disciplinary action is clearly misplaced and the charges should be stricken.

The above charges filed against respondent are baseless and subject to the application of the doctrines of estoppel, waiver and laches. They clearly were initiated as a result of respondent's statements made over the radio. Superintendent Michael Lake admitted at his deposition that no investigation of respondent was in progress prior to his making the statements. Furthermore, it was admitted that "but for" the statements made on the radio, respondent would not have been disciplined. (Emphasis supplied) As discussed infra, at Point VI, a finding therefore, that respondent's comments made on the radio (Charge 1.F) were protected free speech, necessitates as a result, the dismissal of all other charges.

POINT VI

THE TENURE CHARGES INSTITUTED AGAINST THE RESPONDENT, AS A RESULT OF HIS STATEMENTS MADE IN A PUBLIC FORUM, WHICH ARE CRITICAL OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT, VIOLATED THE RESPONDENT'S RIGHT TO FREE SPEECH GUARANTEED TO HIM UNDER THE FIRST AMENDMENT OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION.

It is clearly established that a state may not discharge an employee for a reason which infringes upon the employee's constitutionally protected interest in freedom of speech. (Emphasis supplied) Perry v. Sinderman, 408 U.S. 593, 598 (1972).

The determination as to whether statements made by a public employee are entitled to the protection of the First Amendment requires the application of a three part test, (1) did the speech address matters of public concern, Pickering v. Board of Education, 391 U.S. 563, 568 (1960); Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 140, 75 L. Ed. 2d. 708 (1983); (2) does the interest of the employee in commenting upon matters of public concern outweigh the interest of the state as an employer to promote the efficiency of the public service it performs through its employees, Pickering v. Board of Education, supra, at 568; and, (3) whether the employee's speech was a substantial factor in causing the employee to be discharged, Mount Healthy City School District Board of Educa. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 287 (1977).

The threat of dismissal from public employment is a potent means of inhibiting speech. Pickering, supra., at 574. Vigilance is necessary to insure that public employers do not abuse authority over employees to silence discourse, not because it hampers public functions, but simply because the superiors disagree with the content of the employee's speech. Rankin v. McPherson, 429 U.S. 274 (1987). The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that speech on public issues occupies the "highest rung of the hierarchy of the First Amendment values" and is entitled to special protection. N.A.A.C.P. v. Claiborne Hardware Co., 458 U.S. 886, 913 (1982); Carey v. Brown, 447 U.S. 455, 467 (1980).

In determining whether respondent's statements on the radio meet the first part of the three part analysis and touch upon a matter of public concern, the "content, form and context" of the speech, as revealed by the whole record must be considered. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. at 147, 148; Caron v. Silvia, 7 IER Cases 523, Mass. Appeals Court, No. 90-P-1051 (1992); Holder v. Allentown, Pa., Higginbotham, J. CA 3, No. 921358, 3/4/93, U.S. Law Week (3/23/93). A public employee's criticism of the internal operations of his/her place of public employment is a matter of public concern. Zamboni v. Stamler, 847 F. 2d. 73, 77 (3d. Cir., 1988). The contents of the statements made by respondent concerned the curriculum at Neptune High School, in particular whether it was appropriate for respondent to teach African Literature in an American Literature class during Black History Month. Curriculum certainly is an internal operation and thus a matter of public concern. Furthermore, the statements were made in the context of a public radio program where individuals are encouraged to call in and express their opinions. Obviously they were made in such a forum so as to encourage public debate over issues raised. This further characterizes them as touching upon matter of public concern. Holder v. Allentown, supra.

In the case of Pickering v. Board of Education, supra, the Supreme Court held it impermissible under the First Amendment of the Constitution to dismiss a high school teacher for openly criticizing the Board of Education by writing a letter to the editor of a local newspaper which was critical of the way funds were being allocated in the school budget. Pickering's subject was found to be "matter of legitimate public concern upon which free and open debate is vital to an informed decision-making by the electorate." Id. at 571-572. Likewise in Mount Healthy City School District board of Education v. Doyle, supra, the statements of a public school teacher criticizing her superiors with respect to teacher dress and appearance was considered a matter of public concern entitling her to the protection of the First Amendment. Also in the case of Givhan v. Western Line Consolidated School District, 439 U.S. 410, 58 L. Ed. 2d. 619 (1979) the First Amendment was held to apply to statements by a teacher critical of a school district's allegedly racially discriminatory policies. Finally, in Levin v. Harleston, 770 F. Supp. 895, (S.D.N.Y. 1991), affirmed in part, vacated in part 966 F. 2d. 85 (CA. 2, 1992) a professor's expression of racially denigrating theories outside the classroom were found to be subject to First Amendment protection and thus safeguarded. (Emphasis supplied). There is no question the statements by respondent over the radio were legitimate matters of public concern to which the First Amendment applies. A teacher needs to be able to communicate with respect to these issues so that there can be informed decision making as to what is to be taught in schools.

Part two of the analysis requires the application of a balancing test as to whether respondent's speech caused such interference with the "effective functioning of the public employer's enterprise" as to justify suspension and dismissal. (Emphasis supplied). Rankin v. McPherson, supra. at 278.

In discussing the application of the balancing test, the Supreme Court in Pickering, supra., determined that the statements of the teacher, critical of Board of Education and Superintendent were protected free speech, where the statements could be easily countered and there was no showing that they actually interfered with the operation of the school or the teacher's ability to teach. Id. at 571-572. The Court went on to find that the right to free speech outweighed the interests of the Board in managing the school district. (Emphasis supplied). Furthermore, it was essential that a teacher be able to speak out freely on such questions of public concern without fear of retaliatory dismissal. Id. In the instant case, the statements made by respondent pertain to curriculum, which is equally if not more important. (Emphasis supplied). In order for the interests of the public employer to outweigh the special protection afforded by the First Amendment, the public employer must show a material and substantial disruption of the functioning of the public enterprise actually resulted. Zamboni v. Stamler, supra. at 79. In the instant case, Superintendent Lake testified that he had received no reports of disruption involving students or teachers. (Emphasis supplied). He testified that the reason for taking action against respondent was because he thought that if he did not, it "could lead to some very difficult times at the school setting ..." (Transcript 1/7/93, 18-11 to 19-3). The possibility of "difficulties" clearly was not a sufficient reason to justify the action taken against respondent in suspending him and seeking to discharge him as a result of exercising his right to free speech. Respondent's statements in no way impeded his ability to properly perform his daily duties in the classroom or interfered in any way with the regular operation of the school. Respondent's right to free speech clearly outweighed any interest the school administration may have had in limiting such free speech.

Any allegation that the statements made by respondent on the radio were not accurate, is also specious. The Supreme Court in Pickering, supra., found that even though the public statements involved there were false, this did not limit protection afforded to the teacher under the First Amendment. (Emphasis supplied). There had been no showing that the statements were willfully false or had been made in reckless disregard of the truth, a necessary prerequisite. Id. at 572. Furthermore, the statements were not of such a nature as to be taken seriously by the reader. (Emphasis supplied). In the instant case, whether or not the statements made were true or not is irrelevant. There is no evidence whatsoever that they were willfully false or made in reckless disregard of the truth.

In applying the analysis required under the third part of the test, there is no question that the statements made by respondent on the radio caused the charges to be filed against him. The previous incidents alluded to in the charges were not even considered until after these statements were made. (Emphasis supplied). Respondent's statements over the radio were not just a substantial factor in motivating the Board to seek his discharge but the only factor. In fact, Superintendent Lake admitted at depositions that prior to respondent making the statements over the radio, there were no charges pending against him and in fact, no contemplated investigation. (Emphasis supplied) Furthermore, he admitted that but for respondent's statements on the radio, disciplinary action would not have been taken against him. (Emphasis supplied).

Respondent's speech is entitled to protection under the First Amendment in that the statements were made over the radio concerning curriculum were matters of public concern; the importance of his First Amendment rights making the statements outweighed any governmental interest in regulating or prohibiting such activity; and, if it had not been for these statements, clearly no charges would have been brought against him. The finding that respondent's conduct constituted protected free speech by necessity requires the dismissal of all other charges against respondent as well. Superintendent Lake admitted that the other charges were not even being considered until the incident occurred over the radio. There has been no showing by petitioner, nor can it establish that it would have reached the same decision to terminate respondent absent the protected conduct. Accordingly, the finding that respondent's speech was protected results in the failure of the other charges. Mount Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, supra. at 287.

POINT VII

THE DECISION OF THE APPEALS TRIBUNAL FINDING THAT THE RESPONDENT WAS NOT DISCHARGED FOR MISCONDUCT CONNECTED WITH WORK IS BINDING IN THE ADMINISTRATIVE LAW PROCEEDINGS AND THE BOARD IS COLLATERALLY ESTOPPED FROM RE-LITIGATING THIS SAME ISSUE.

Respondent, upon being suspended without pay, filed a claim for unemployment compensation. The application was opposed. On June 25, 1992, a decision was entered by the Appeals Tribunal examiner, Ronald Gitter, (Respondent's Exhibit "AA") finding respondent had not been discharged for misconduct connected with work, and that he was qualified for unemployment benefits. The Appeals Tribunal stated, inter alia:

> The employer contends that the purpose of the radio call was to make disparaging racial remarks, under oath the claimant denies this allegation.
>
> The claimant called the radio station to voice his concerns that the curriculum was not being properly followed. He only called the station after he was refused a meeting with a supervisor.
>
> The evidence presented at this hearing does not show the claimant's phone call to the radio station was a willful act in disregard of the employers (sic) best interest, therefore no disqualification for benefits applies under R.S. 43:21-5 (b).
> No disqualification arises under R.S. 43:21-5 (b) as the claimant was not discharged for misconduct connected with work.

Prior to making that determination, a plenary hearing was conducted by the Appeals Tribunal at which time respondent, his counsel and counsel for the Board were present and participated. A determination was then made in respondent's favor based upon the evidence. No appeal was filed from the decision of the Appeals Tribunal.

As the Court stated in City of Hackensack v. Winner, 162 N.J. Super. 1, 27 (App. Div. 1978); mod. 82 N.J. 1. (1980):

> Res Judicata as a principle of law bars a party from re-litigating a second time what was previously fairly litigated and determined finally. The general > requirements for the invocation of this principle are a final judgment by a court or tribunal of competent jurisdiction, identity of issues, parties, cause of action and thing sued for. (citations omitted).

> Collateral estoppel is that branch of the broader law of res judicata which bars re-litigation of any issue or fact actually determined in a prior action, generally between the same parties, involving a different claim or cause of action. Id. at 27-28.

Principles such as res judicata and collateral estoppel apply not only to courts of law but also to administrative tribunals and agency hearings, particularly as to findings of fact. Id. at 24. Under principles of comity, one agency should ordinarily defer to the other agency's determination in order to avoid wasteful, duplicative litigation. Id. at 27.

In the instant case, the Appeals Tribunal found that respondent had not engaged in misconduct connected with work. (emphasis supplied). This determination was made after a full hearing on the facts. The determination to be made by the administrative law judge, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 in a tenure hearing, is whether respondent engaged in "unbecoming conduct." There is no distinction between misconduct and unbecoming conduct. Consequently, the determination made at the unemployment hearing that respondent had not engaged in misconduct, is the same issue to be determined by the administrative law judge. The facts and circumstances remain the same. In City of Hackensack v. Winner, supra. the Court found that where the Civil Service Commission and the Public Employees Relations Commission (PERC) had concurrent jurisdiction, a decision on the facts by the Civil Service Commission was binding as to any examination of the issue by PERC. See also, Charlie Brown of Chatham v. Board of Adjustment, 202 N.J. Super. 312 (App. Div. 1985) wherein the Court held that a determination made by the local planning board constituted a determination by a quasi-judicial body, which precluded the plaintiff from again submitting the same issue to the zoning board, also a quasi-judicial body, for a second determination.

Likewise, in the case at bar, the hearing before the Appeals Tribunal was quasi-judicial in nature. A determination was made after a full hearing in which both parties had an opportunity to present evidence and testimony. Both forums are administrative in nature. Just as the burden of proof before the Appeals Tribunal was with the Board, so does it remain with the Board while before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). This is not a case where different issues are being determined or the burden of proof is different. The OAL therefore should take judicial notice of the decision of the Appeals Tribunal and the charges should be dismissed.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

POINT ONE

THE CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING THE ISSUANCE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION'S MARCH 6, 1992 LETTER DO NOT WARRANT DISMISSAL OF THE TENURE CHARGES

In Point One and Two of his brief, respondent argues that the actions of the Department of Education violated both the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and respondent's Constitutional Due Process rights, requiring a dismissal of the tenure charges: Respondent's brief states that a "prejudicial atmosphere was created which now pervades the entire Department due to the involvement of various personnel." Respondent further argues "impressions created cannot be eliminated by the substitution of a Deputy Commissioner." (Respondent's brief at 19).

Respondent's conclusions are not supported by the evidence presented in support of his motion to dismiss. First, the January 12, 1993, transcript of the testimony of Dr. Maureen R. Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the State Department of Education, shows that the Bureau was not aware of the Commissioner's March 6, 1992 letter (Board's Exhibit "K") until April, 1992 when the Bureau received respondent's Answer and Separate Defenses.

Dr. Keller testified that she first became aware of the David Clark tenure matter when the Answer and Affirmative Defenses were received. (Board's Exhibit "Q"). The matter was brought to Dr. Keller's attention by Kathryn Hughes Kim, the Examiner working on the case. Upon reviewing the nature of the case and the Affirmative Defense, Dr. Keller immediately recommended to Commissioner Ellis that he recuse himself from the case " so that there wouldn't even be the remotest suggestion of a predisposition in this matter." (Board's Exhibit "Q"; T36-20 to 25).

Rather than showing a "prejudicial atmosphere" pervading the entire Department of Education as argued by respondent, Dr. Keller's testimony shows that the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes immediately recognized that Commissioner Ellis was in error when he issued the March 6, 1992 letter to Mrs. Bartlett.

> Q. I believe that you indicated that a letter was sent out erroneously.
>
> A. Well, a letter meaning that Commissioner Ellis should not have signed the Barlett letter. He should have (not done?) that. The Barlett letter should not have gotten to him.
> So I had to follow up on that to find out where the foul up occurred and how is it, you know, that this letter had got to the Commissioner to start with. (Board's Exhibit Q; T39-12 to 22).

Respondent's argument that Commissioner Ellis' actions created a "prejudicial atmosphere" that still pervades the Department of Education is further negated by the fact that Commissioner Ellis resigned from his office in December 1992.

Second, respondent has not shown that Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury was in anyway biased against respondent in this case. Dr. Keller testified that it was her decision to recommend that Deputy Commissioner Woodbury decide the case after Commissioner Ellis indicated that he was recusing himself. (Board's Exhibit "Q") Respondent did not depose Deputy Commissioner Woodbury or, in anyway attempt to establish if he is actually biased against respondent. Our Supreme Court has held that a showing of "actual bias" is required to disqualify an agency head from hearing a matter:

> ...The probability of actual bias is grounds for disqualification when the decision maker has a pecuniary interest in the outcome of the matter or has been the target of personal criticism from one seeking relief. In the Matter of Carberry 114 N.J. 574, 586 (1989)

Finally, the matter is distinguished from the cases relied upon in respondent's brief by the fact that the case is being heard as a contested matter before the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to the provisions of the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. In the case of In Re Uniform Administrative Procedures Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 90 (1982) our Supreme Court recognized that the Legislative's primary purpose in creating the Office of Administrative Law was to promote fairness and impartiality of Administrative adjudication of contested cases by replacing agency examiners with independent law judges. The primary reason for establishing the Office of Administrative Law was:

> ...to bring impartiality and objectivity to agency hearings and ultimately to achieve a higher level of fairness in administrative adjudications. 90 N.J. at 90.

This is not to say that an OAL referral is dispositive of the issue of actual bias. Our Supreme Court has recognized that the issue of actual bias by an administrative head is not cured by referral of a contested case to the OAL for a hearing. The agency head would still retain the power of "adopt, reject or modify the recommended report and decision;" N.J.S.A 52:14B-10 (c), or "findings of fact and conclusions of law" of the Administrative Law Judge, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-7. The Court held if actual bias is present, the proper procedure would be for the agency head to remove himself from the case.

> Independent of the procedures outlined in the Administrative Procedure Act, if the agency head is tainted by actual bias, then he or she should not hear the matter. Matter of Carberry, supra. at 585.

Any actual bias against the respondent by Commissioner Ellis was cured when Commissioner Ellis recused himself from the case. Respondent has failed to show any actual bias on the part of the Deputy Commissioner designated to hear this matter in place of the Commissioner. Dismissal of the tenure charges against respondent is not warranted in this case.

POINT TWO

THE BOARD FEBRUARY 12, 1992, PUBLIC STATEMENT DID NOT VIOLATE RESPONDENT'S STATUTORY OR CONSTITUTIONAL DUE PROCESS RIGHTS

Respondent was identified as the teacher who telephoned the Bob Grant Show on January 30 1992, in a newspaper story that appeared in the Asbury Park Press on February 8, 1992. (See Board's Exhibit "C"). This was four days before the Board's February 12, 1992 public meeting.

The Board believes that Media Monitors, the group that supplied a tape recording of respondent's remarks to Superintendent Lake, also sent a copy of the tape to Howard L. West, Sr., President of the Asbury Park-Neptune branch of the NAACP (See February 13, 1992 letter from George J. Wilson to Michael T. Lake, attached hereto as Board's Exhibit "R"). Mr. West had sent a letter to School Superintendent Lake on February 6, 1992 requesting, on behalf of NAACP, that "Dave" be removed from the school system and that the District secure a tape of the Bob Grant Show to eliminate claims of hearsay. (See, February 6, 1992 letter from Howard L. West, Sr. to Michael T. Lake attached hereto as Board's Exhibit "S"). The Board believes that either Media Monitors or the NAACP provided a copy of the tape to the Asbury Park Press reporter, Jeanne Jackson for use in her February 8, 1992, news story, (Board's Exhibit "C"). Armed with the tape, Ms. Jackson could use either the high school directory or the high school year book, both of which were available to the public, to identify respondent as the caller "Dave" in the same manner as Superintendent Lake had identified respondent on January 31, 1992.

As a result of respondent's January 30, 1992 broadcast and, his subsequent identification in the press, the matter received a great deal of attention on the radio, television and in the newspapers. The Board correctly anticipated that the February 12, 1992 public meeting be attended by a large number of the public who were either angry or upset by respondent's radio comments. The Board believed that a public statement was necessary to respond to the public concern and maintain order at the meeting.

Prior to the February 12, 1993 public meeting, the Board met in closed session to consider if respondent should be continued on paid suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6 or, returned to the classroom. At this closed session, Superintendent Lake advised the Board the he intended to file tenure charges against respondent for conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and recommended to the Board that respondent remain on paid suspension. The Board continued respondent on paid suspension pending the filing of the tenure charges by Superintendent Lake. There was no deliberation of tenure charges at the February 12, 1992, Board meeting.

At the beginning of the public portion of the February 12, 1992 Board meeting, the Board President read a "Public Statement." (Board's Exhibit "E") The statement was an explanation of the Board's action "tonight" in continuing respondent on suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6. Respondent was not named in the "Public Statement." A reading of the "Public Statement" shows that it was intended to cutoff public debate at the meeting on a very controversial and volatile issue. When read in the context of the atmosphere of the February 12, 1992 public meeting, it is clear that the Board's "Public Statement" was intended to protect respondent's rights.

The February 12, 1992 "Public Statement" did not violate either the statutory or regulatory provisions governing filing and certifying tenure charges. When viewed in the context of the publicity generated by the respondent's broadcast, the Board did not violate any of respondent's constitutional "due process" rights.

POINT THREE

THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST RESPONDENT ESTABLISH A CONTINUOUS COURSE OF UNBECOMING CONDUCT

In Point Five of his brief, respondent argues that the February 20, 1992 tenure charges filed against respondent, with the exception of Charge 1F, are vague, stale and should be dismissed on the basis of estoppel, waiver and laches. A review of the February 20, 1992 tenure charges an accompanying statement of Evidence, (Board's Exhibit "T"), show a clear and continuous course of unbecoming conduct by respondent during the course of his employment by the Board. It is the cumulative effect of this continuous course of unbecoming conduct that is the basis of the tenure charges against the respondent.

It should be first noted that neither Title 18A of the Statutes or Title 6 of the Administrative Code contain any time limitations for instituting tenure charges against tenured employees. This lack of a time limitation for the institution of tenure charges is significant when compared with the 90 day time limitation established by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) for instituting actions pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A 6-9.

In a tenure hearing, the ultimate issue is the employee's continued employment in a school district. The employee's entire history is therefore relevant to the proceedings. The Doctrine of Estoppel, Waiver and Laches do not apply under these circumstances.

In the case of In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Brody, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park, 1984 S.L.D. 1216, aff'd State Board of Education, 1984 S.L.D. 1247, aff'd Appellate Division, Docket No. A1326-84T7, March 27, 1986, a tenured teacher was charged with corporal punishment and unbecoming conduct. The teacher had previously been charged with unbecoming conduct on two previous occasions, but the Commissioner had dismissed both charges. The Commissioner dismissed the teacher in the present case based upon the cumulative effect of the teachers' unbecoming conduct.

The tenure charges (Board's Exhibit "T") establish a continuous course of conduct by respondent. This course of conduct is relevant to the issue of respondent's continued employment as a teaching staff member in the District.

Finally, respondent argues that charges 1B and 1E were expunged from respondent's file. (Emphasis supplied). There's no merit to this position. There are no statutory or regulatory provisions for the expungement of disciplinary proceedings from a teaching staff member's personnel file.

POINT FOUR

THE TENURE CHARGES FILED AGAINST RESPONDENT DO NOT VIOLATE RESPONDENT'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT TO FREE SPEECH

In Pickering v. Board of Education, 391 U.S. 536, 88 Sup. Ct. 1831 (1968), the Supreme Court first articulated the balancing test used in school speech cases. The Court ruled that a teacher's comment to a local newspaper regarding the School Board's fiscal policy were protected speech. Comments by teachers on matters of public concern that are substantially correct may not furnish grounds for dismissal even though they are critical. (Emphasis supplied). Pickering, 391 U.S. at 570. In reaching its decision, the Court balanced the interests of a teacher as a citizen in commenting on matters of public concern against the interest of the State as an employer in promoting efficiency in public services. Id. at 568. The Court rejected the Board's argument that the speech would be harmful to the operation of the schools, articulating four factors to analyze the relationship between the speech and the teachers' professional responsibilities: (1) whether the speech would interfere with the employee's performance, (2) whether it would create disharmony among coworkers, (3) whether it would undercut an immediate supervisory discipline over the employee or, (4) whether it would destroy the relationship of loyalty and trust required of confidential employees.

The Court refined this balancing test in Mt. Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 97 Sup. Ct. 568 (1977), by adding a "but for" standard. The teacher was dismissed for several reasons, including distributing to a local radio station a memorandum critical of the school's dress code. The Supreme Court required resolution through a three step analysis: (1) Is the speech protected under the First Amendment? (2) If so, was it a motivating factor in the disciplinary decision? (3) If so, would the School Board have nonetheless made the same disciplinary decision? Mt. Healthy 429 U.S. at 285.

Since Mt. Healthy, the Supreme Court has distinguished speech related to private matters from speech related to public matters. In Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 13 Sup. Ct. 1684, (1983), the Court stated the following:

> We hold ... that when a public employee speaks not as a citizen upon matters of public concern, but instead as an employee upon matters only of personal interest, absent the most unusual circumstances, a federal court is not the appropriate forum in which to review the wisdom of a personal decision taken by a public agency allegedly in reaction to the employee's behavior. Connick, 461 U.S. 147.

The Court said speech is public if it relates to "any matter of political, social or other concern to the community." Id. at 146. In deciding whether or not speech relates to a public concern, the Court should consider content form and context, and generally, public employers should have "wide latitude in managing their offices." Id. at 146.

Since Connick, most teacher speech cases have focused on the distinction between matters of public and private concern. Comments on internal school practices are generally unprotected. Where the speech relates to policy affecting the community in general, or to the protection of students, it typically will be protected. However, even speech on matters of public concern, can serve as a basis for termination if, the speech has become disruptive. This is true both of actual and symbolic speech. See Stewart v. Baldwin County Board of Education, 908 F. 2d. 1499 (11th Cir. 1990).

The 5th Circuit in Nielto v. San Perlita Ind. Sch. Dist., 894 F. 2d. 174, 5th Cir. (1990) recognized that the balancing test "is not all - or - nothing but rather a sliding scale under which 'public cc ern' is weighed against disruption. A strong showing of disruption may be necessary if the employee's speech more substantially involves matters of public concern." (citations omitted) Id. at 179. The Court determined that a school maintenance supervisor's unfounded and persisting complaints to the school administration and the School Board about alleged misconduct by a basketball coach, although possibly addressing a matter of public concern, failed the balancing test where they had become disruptive to the school. Id. at 180.

Similarly, the 10th Circuit ruled that a school nurse's conduct, helpful in initiating a School Board investigation into the District's medication policy, eventually became disruptive. In Johnsen v. The Independent School District No. 3, F. 2d. 1485 (10th Cir. 1989), the Court stated:

> In general, "an employee's First Amendment rights are protected unless the employer shows that some restriction is necessary to prevent the disruption of official functions or to insure effective performance by the employee. (citation omitted) Id. at 1493.

In Stroman v. Collection County School District, No. 92-1340, (4th Cir. December 4, 1992), the court ruled that a teacher's letter to colleagues complaining about a change in the School Board's pay schedule and encouraging a "sick-out" by teachers during exam week had the basic thrust of expressing a private grievance and under Connick was thus unprotected by the First Amendment.

In the present case, respondent's January 30, 1992 broadcast comments were expressions of a private grievance resulting from the alleged receipt by respondent of a list of African authors in his school mailbox. (Board's Exhibit "O") Respondent's expression of a private grievance was not protected by the First Amendment.

Respondent's brief argues that his comments concerned curriculum at Neptune High School. However, respondent testifies that the list was addressed to both faculty and students. (Board's Exhibit "O") The list could not be reasonably viewed as an administrative directive to change the high school curriculum. The fact that respondent's public comments may have touched upon curriculum did not change these comments from expressions of respondent's private grievance.

Even if we assume, for the sake of argument, that the respondent's January 30, 1992, statement did touch upon matters of public concern, respondent's comments did not meet the test set forth in Pickering which requires that such statements be "substantially correct." Respondent's May 13, 1992, testimony before the Department of Labor (Board's Exhibit "O"), and his June 29, 1992, statements to Mr. Mixson, (Board's Exhibit "P11"), show that respondent fabricated the statements that were broadcasted on January 30, 1992.

Respondent's January 30, 1992, statements broadcast over a New York City radio station were expressions of respondent's private grievances. Respondent's statements concerning statements made to him by administrators and, his comment about the presence of a banner in his school were fabricated by respondent. Respondent's statements caused a disruption of the educational program in the District. (See, Asbury Park Press, February 22, 1992 news story, Board's Exhibit "U"). Respondent's statements were not protected by the First Amendment.

POINT FIVE

THE BOARD'S INVESTIGATION OF RESPONDENT'S CONDUCT DID NOT VIOLATE RESPONDENT'S CONSTITUTIONAL DUE PROCESS RIGHTS

In Point Four of his brief, respondent argues that his due process rights were violated because detailed statements were taken from individuals on February 7, 1992, and March 5, 6 and 9, 1992 and were not provided to respondent until after the Board considered the tenure charges against him on March 11, 1992.

It should be noted that the bulk of the statements referred to by respondent were taken after February 20, 1992, the date Superintendent Lake filed the tenure charges with Board Secretary Ruggieri. (Board's Exhibit "T") Transcripts of the statements were not prepared until after the March 11, 1992, Board meeting at which the tenure charges were considered.

At the March 11, 1992 meeting, the Board considered only the Statement of Evidence that had been provided to respondent on February 20, 1992. (Board's Exhibit "F") The witness statements were duly provided to respondent through discovery after the charges were certified to the Commissioner of Education. Under the statutes and regulations governing the filing of tenure charges, the Board and its attorney are the proper parties to prosecute tenure charges. See; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Milton Belford. 1978 S.L.D. 660; In Re: The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Dominick Parsi, 1974 S.L.D. 631. Neither the statutes or regulations require that the individual against whom tenure charges are filed, participate in the Board's investigation of those charges.

POINT SIX

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION IS NOT ESTOPPED FROM PROSECUTING TENURE CHARGES AS THE RESULT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR'S DECISION GRANTING RESPONDENT UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION BENEFITS

In Point Seven of his brief, respondent argues that the Department of Labor's decision, granting him his unemployment compensation benefits as the result of his 120 day suspension without pay, under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, is binding upon the parties in the present tenure proceedings.

A reading of the Decision of the Department of Labor, respondent's Exhibit "AA," page 2, clearly shows that the decision was based upon the definition of misconduct as it appears in the Unemployment Compensation Act.

The Court in the City of Hackensack v. Winner, 162 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1978); modified 82 N.J. (1980), the case relied upon by the respondent in his brief, clearly holds that there must be an identity of issues in both proceedings to raise res judicata. There is no identity of issues in the present case.

The Department of Labor matter dealt solely with the issue of respondent's eligibility for workers compensation benefits and relied upon the provisions of the Unemployment Compensation Act to arrive at its conclusion. The present matter was brought before the Commissioner of Education under Title 18A to determine if respondent had engaged in unbecoming conduct within the meaning of the Education Laws. There is no identity of issues within the meaning of the City of Hackensack v. Winner.

For the reasons set forth above, it is respectfully requested by the Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, Monmouth County that respondent's application to dismiss the tenure charges be denied.

INTERVENOR'S POSITION

The Commissioner of Education sought, and was granted, intervention in this limited matter for the purpose of addressing the Affirmative Defense raised on behalf of respondent that prior actions by the Commissioner and the Department of Education had so tainted these proceedings that the tenure charges should be dismissed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Board of Education of the School District of Neptune Township (Neptune) certified tenure charges against respondent David C. Clark to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on or about March 17, 1992. The answer filed on behalf of respondent, on or about April 3, 1992, alleged that past conduct by the Commissioner and members of the Department would operate to deny respondent due process and sought dismissal of the tenure charges.

The Commissioner responded to respondent's counsel noting that the actions by the Commissioner and the Department cited by said counsel predated the filing of tenure charges. In order, however, to preclude any suggestion that he had prejudged the matter, the Commissioner designated Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury to hear the case. See Exhibit "T" to respondent's brief.

The matter was transferred to the OAL for hearing as a contested case on April 13, 1992.

By letter to the Commissioner of the same date, respondent's counsel again asserted that the proceedings had been so tainted that dismissal was required. See Exhibit "Y" to respondent's brief.

The Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes, Maureen R. Keller, responded to this second letter that the Commissioner had designated Deputy Director Woodbury to hear the matter and that respondent was free to raise his defense in the Office of Administrative Law. See Exhibit "Z" to respondent's brief.

Subsequent to transmission to the OAL the undersigned sought to intervene on behalf of the Commissioner for the limited purpose of contesting respondent's allegation that the bias and/or prejudgment of the Commissioner and the Department would act to deny him due process. The request for limited intervention was granted.

Following a prehearing and oral argument, a schedule for discovery, including extensive depositions, and briefing on respondent's motion to dismiss was set.

COUNTER-STATEMENT OF FACTS

Respondent's allegations arise from a letter which was issued under the signature of then Commissioner John C. Ellis,* dated March 6, 1992, to a Mrs. C. Scott Bartlett (Exhibit K to respondent's brief) and to the events surrounding its drafting.)

Mrs. Barlett had written to Governor Florio on February 10, 1992. The Governor's Office of Constituent Relations directed the letter, with a request to respond to the same, to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner's office referred the letter and request for response to the office of the then Assistant Commissioner for County and Regional Services Charles Mitchell. He, in turn, transmitted it to the then County Superintendent for Monmouth County, Milton Hughes. County Superintendent Hughes' office transmitted it to Neptune Superintendent Michael C. Lake with a request for information. Superintendent Lake responded by letter dated February 24, 1992 to which was attached a copy of a transcript of remarks made by respondent in a call to the Bob Grant (radio) show. Superintendent Hughes' secretary, Pat Eaton, prepared a draft response which was reviewed and approved by Hughes. This draft response was faxed to Assistant Commissioner Mitchell's office. The draft was retyped, a single word as changed, and the letter was signed by Commissioner Ellis. Superintendent Hughes was out of his office from the date the fax arrived from Assistant Commissioner Mitchell's office until the date the proposed response was faxed from his office.

* It is one of the more unusual aspects of this case that respondent relies on the alleged bias and prejudgment of those in the Department of Education who had contact with this matter prior to the certification of tenure charges and those individuals are no longer there. Commissioner Ellis, Deputy Commissioner Woodbury, Assistant Commissioner Mitchell and County Superintendent Hughes have all resigned or retired.

The radio broadcast which created the furor took place on January 20, 1992. As noted in respondent's brief, Neptune initiated steps culminating in the filing of tenure charges almost immediately thereafter.

The only evidence of any contact between the Department of Education and Neptune with respect to respondent prior to the certification of tenure charges was the request for information from the Monmouth County Superintendent's office on February 20, 1992 and Superintendent Lake's response thereto of February 24, 1992.

ARGUMENT

NEITHER THE FACTS ALLEGED BY RESPONDENT NOR RELEVANT LEGAL PRECEDENT WOULD HERE REQUIRE THE COMMISSIONER TO RECUSE HIMSELF FROM DECIDING THIS MATTER AND THUS CANNOT SUPPORT A CONCLUSION DISMISSING THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST CLARK .....

This overriding point must be stressed at the outset. Recusal is a most drastic measure, not to be exercised except in the most drastic of circumstances.* As the Appellate Division has said, "A judge is not required to withdraw from the hearing of a case upon a mere suggestion that he is disqualified to sit." Indeed, "it is improper for him to do so unless the alleged cause of recusation is known by him to exist or is shown by proof to be true in fact." Clawans v. Schakat, 49 N.J. Super. 415, 420 (App. Div. 1958), quoting State v. DeMaio, 70 N.J.L. 220, 222 (E. & A. 1904). Recusal is, moreover, " a matter entrusted in the first instance to the discretion of the trial judge himself." Hundred East Credit Corporation v. Eric Shuster Corporation, 222 N.J. Super. 350, 358 (App. Div. 1986). See Bonnet v. Stewart, 155 N.J. Super. 326, 330 (App. Div. 1978), certif. den. 77 N.J. 468 (1978).

The essence of the argument here made by respondent is that this matter should be dismissed because the inquiry made at the Commissioner's behest in order to respond to a letter directed to the Governor and the response signed by the Commissioner so taint these proceedings that this matter must be dismissed. Both the courts in New Jersey and the federal courts have long recognized that regulatory officials not only cannot avoid, but, indeed, should not avoid knowing the characteristics of the particular field or issue they are responsible for supervising and possessing and expressing their views.

* Intervenor/Respondent is cognizant of the fact that respondent's motion is not for recusal but dismissal. In so far as he seeks to ground that dismissal on bias, it is obvious that evidence which would not support recusal itself a drastic remedy, would be insufficient to support the more drastic relief of dismissal. Accordingly, the argument here presented examines the legal precedent for recusal which is equally applicable to the remedy sought by respondent.

More than four decades ago the Supreme Court of the United States was confronted with the argument that members of the Federal Trade Commission had become biased to the point of disqualification by virtue of their reporting to Congress and the President regarding the possible antitrust implications of a pricing system when that issue was pending before the agency. The Court rejected the assertion that because an opinion had been formed by the Commission as as result of its previous official investigation that the Commission must be disqualified.

> The fact that the Commission had entertained such views as the result of its prior ex parte investigations did not necessarily mean that the minds of its members were irrevocably closed on the subject of the respondents' basing point practices. Here, in contrast to the Commission's investigations, members of the cement industry were legally authorized participants in the hearings. They produced evidence - volumes of it. They were free to point out to the Commission by testimony, by cross-examination of witnesses, and by arguments, conditions, of the trade practices within the range of legally permissible business activities. [Federal Trade Comm'n. v. Cement Institute, 333 U.S. 683, 701, 68 S. Ct. 93, L. Ed. 1009 (1947)]

The Cement Institute holding represents only a reaffirmation of the Court's decision in the fourth of the Morgan line of cases, United States v. Morgan, 313 U.S. 409, 61 S. Ct. 999, 85 L. Ed. 1429 (1940), a case directly on point with the instant matter. There the Court refused to disqualify the Secretary of Agriculture merely because he had written a letter to a newspaper criticizing a previous decision by the Court.

> Cabinet officers charged by Congress with adjudicatory functions are not assumed to be flabby creatures any more than judges are. Both may have an underlying philosophy in approaching a specific case. But both are assumed to be men of conscience and intellectual discipline, capable of judging a particular controversy fairly on the basis of its own circumstances. [313 U.S. at 421].

The Court restated the principle in another matter by noting the existence of "a presumption of honesty and integrity in those serving as adjudicators ... " Winthrow v. Larkin, 421 U.S. 35, 47, 95 S. Ct. 1456, 43 L. Ed. 2*d.* 712 (1975).

The Supreme Court of New Jersey has addressed the rigorous standard which must be satisfied before an adjudicator may be disqualified. In Kramer v. Bd. of Adjustment of Sea Girt, 45 N.J. 268 (1965), applicants for a variance alleged that members of the municipal Board of Adjustment and the governing body had prejudged their application. In particular, they pointed to public statements by the Mayor and a councilman and a newspaper advertisement taken by the Mayor's reelection committee. The court nevertheless refused to order disqualification.

> True, from his so-called "realistic attitude toward the Stockton Hotel," a reasonable mind might be left with little doubt as to where the Mayor's sentiments lay; but it is equally true that the campaign literature, the statements to the press, and all other official statements represent no more than the views of public officials pertaining to a matter of deep moment to the community. [Id. at 282].

Kramer is consistent with the holding of the court a decade earlier that an adjudicator is not disqualified merely because he signed the complaint initiating litigation. Meckler v. Bd. of Ed. of City of Camden, 16 N.J. 362, 367-69 (1954). See also Clawans b. Schakat, supra., 49 S.J. Super. at 419-421.

Our Supreme Court has held that the touchstone for disqualification is proof of actual basis. Matter of Carberry, 114 N.J. 574 (1989). There the Court stated:

> Independent of the procedures outlined in the Administrative Procedures Act, if an agency head is tainted by actual bias, then he or she should not hear the matter. An agency head, however, does not automatically become partial or unfair merely because that person has become familiar with the facts of the case through the performance of statutory or administrative duties. Nor is disqualification automatically required merely because a decision maker has announced an opinion on a disputed issue. If an interested party has a right to cross examine witnesses and present proof, the mere fact that an administrative agency has conducted an investigation and formulated a policy position does not necessarily mean that the mind of the agency head is closed. [Id., 114 N.J. at 585-586] [citations omitted].

As to actual bias the Court stated:

> In this context, actual bias becomes the touchstone of disqualification. The probability of actual bias is grounds for disqualification when the decision-maker has a pecuniary interest in the outcome of the matter or has been the target of personal criticism from one seeking relief. [Id.]

The Court declined to disqualify the Superintendent of the State Police in Carberry finding no evidence of either a pecuniary interest or of a personal vendetta. Id.

In responding to citizen correspondence, and in initiating a limited inquiry to obtain the information requisite to responding, the Commissioner was clearly fulfilling the role assigned to him by our State Constitution and Legislature. Contrary to the hyperbole of respondent's brief there was no investigation, ex parte, or otherwise. Notably, however, the Morgan line of cases would not support recusal or disqualification had there been an investigation. Neither the past nor present Commissioner of Education has a pecuniary interest in the outcome of this litigation nor is there the slightest evidence of a personal vendetta. The mere fact that respondent has sought dismissal on the basis of alleged bias does not create the requisite personal vendetta. Otherwise any litigant could force recusal in every case merely by alleging bias.

Not only is respondent assured of due process in the hearing at OAL, where respondent will have every opportunity to influence the record on which the Commissioner must ultimately rule, but the determination of the Commissioner of Education is not the last word. As the Appellate Division has frequently noted the ultimate administrative decision maker in matters arising under the school laws in the State Board of Education. See Dore v. Bedminister Township Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982).

For the reasons set forth herein it is respectfully submitted that respondent's Motion to Dismiss should and must be denied.

RESPONDENT'S REPLY BRIEF

POINT I

THOSE FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS MADE BY THE NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION IN ITS BRIEF, WHICH ARE NOT SUPPORTED BY AFFIDAVIT OR BY REFERENCE TO DEPOSITION TESTIMONY OR ANY OTHER CREDIBLE SOURCE, SHOULD NOT BE CONSIDERED AS COMPETENT EVIDENCE TO CREATE A TRIABLE ISSUE OF FACT

An administrative tribunal must make a determination based upon a residuum of legal and competent evidence. Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36, (1972). While hearsay testimony may be received, it cannot form the basis of a determination. Andricsak v. National Fireproofing Corp., 3 N.J. 466, 471 (1950); Borgia v. Board of Review, 21 N.J. Super. 42, 466 (App. Div. 1952).

Respondent's application is for summary judgment dismissing the charges. A party opposing an application for summary judgment cannot successfully resist the application by relying upon conclusory allegation or mere denials in his pleadings. Competent evidentiary material must be presented to resist such an application. Robbins v. Jersey City, 23 N.J. 229, 241 (1957); New Jersey Mortgage and Investment Corp. v. Calvetti, 68 N.J. Super. 18, 32 (App. Div. 1961). Mere sworn conclusions of ultimate facts, without material basis or supporting affidavits by persons having actual knowledge of the facts, are not sufficient . James Talcott, Inc. v. Shulman, 82 N.J. Super. 438, 443 (App. Div. 1964); Patrolman's Benev. Ass'n v. Montclair, 70 N.J. 130 (134) (1976).

The brief submitted by the Neptune Township Board of Education (Board) in opposition to the respondent's application to dismiss the charges, repeatedly refers to alleged facts and circumstances which are not supported by affidavit, deposition testimony or any other verifiable credible source.

For example, the Board, on page 7 of its Statement of Facts, refers to media attention allegedly generated by the respondent's remarks over the radio. It claims the respondent's remarks "dominated the Bob Grant Radio Show" over the period of January 31, 1992 to February 12, 1992, and that respondent was the "subject of radio news reports and comments on both New York and New Jersey radio stations" such as the "Don Imus" program, etc. No evidence is presented whatsoever to document these assertions. Reference is further made to newspaper articles and television news stories. Copies of various articles are annexed to the Board's brief. Their contents are certainly not reliable, competent evidence upon which a factual assertion can be based. (Emphasis supplied).

On page 8 of the Board's Statement of Facts, it makes reference to the number of people who attended the Board meeting of February 12, 1992 and that it was televised. The Board goes on to purport what Superintendent Lake allegedly advised the Board prior to the February 12, 1992 meeting. Again these statements are uncertified and not based on any fact established as part of the record.

Additional unsupported factual assertion are contained on pages 21 and 22 of the Board's legal argument. There, the Board indicates that it "believes" a copy of the tape recording of respondent's remarks over the radio was given by "Media Monitors" to the president of the NAACP, and a copy also distributed to the press. Again, these statements are uncertified and not supported by any credible evidence.

The statements contained on page 22, paragraph one of the Board's legal argument, as to (1) the number of persons the Board anticipated would attend the February 12, 1992 meeting, and that (2) "The Board believed that a public statement was necessary to respond to the public concern and maintain order at the meeting," again are totally unsubstantiated.

The Board on page 23, line one of its legal argument makes reference to what it was advised during "closed session." This is yet another example of a totally unsupported assertion. Again on page 23, paragraph one, reference is made to what allegedly happened during the meeting of February 12, 1992. No evidence is presented to verify this whatsoever.

Finally, the most striking instance of lack of verification is contained on page 23, beginning on line six of the Board's brief. There it is asserted that the "respondent's statements caused a disruption of the education program in the district." In support of this, the Board cites an article in the Asbury Park Press, (Respondent's Exhibit "U"). As previously stated events described in a newspaper article are most certainly not competent evidence. Moreover, this allegation directly conflicts with the sworn deposition testimony of Superintendent Michael Lake himself, who admitted that the district received no reports of disruption involving students or teachers.[1] (Emphasis supplied). Nevertheless, even if the newspaper article is considered, nowhere does it indicate there was any disruption to corroborate the assertion made.

These unsubstantiated hearsay statements made by the Board in its brief are not legal and competent evidence and therefore should not be considered as creating a triable issue of fact.

POINT II

THE MERE FACT THAT CERTAIN DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION PERSONNEL ARE NO LONGER WITH THE DEPARTMENT DOES NOT ELIMINATE THE BIAS THAT CONTINUES THERE, DUE TO THE FACT THAT PERSONNEL AT NUMEROUS AGENCY LEVELS PARTICIPATED IN IMPROPERLY PREJUDGING THE RESPONDENT, AND THEN AGAIN PARTICIPATED IN ATTEMPTING TO JUSTIFY SUCH IMPROPER CONDUCT

The Board argues at Point One of its legal argument that any actual bias against the respondent was cured when Commissioner Ellis recused himself from the case. The fact is, however, that personnel at numerous levels of the Department of Education were involved in either preparing and approving the response to the Bartlett letter or were placed in the position of having to justify the contents of that response. The precedential impact of the communication of March 6, 1992 (respondent's Exhibit "K") and the attempt to justify it has created a biased atmosphere permeating the Department which has so tainted the proceedings as to require the dismissal of the charges.

Despite the citation by the Board in its brief to Matter of Carberry, 114 N.J. 574 (1989), it nowhere addresses the holding in Carberry that an adjudicator may be disqualified when that adjudicator has been the target of personal abuse or criticism from the party before him. Id. at 586. The Board fails to respond or refute the fact that the Department of Education and the Commissioner have been the subject of just criticism by the respondent and others as a result of improperly prejudging respondent's case.[2] Nor does it address the fact that the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, the Office of the Deputy Commissioner and the Office of the Commissioner have all become involved in attempting to justify those actions. This constitutes impermissible bias under Carberry, supra., and inasmuch as that bias now pervades the Department, the charges against the respondent should be dismissed.

1. See January 7, 1993 deposition testimony of Michael Lake, pages 19, line 13 through 20, line 9.

POINT III

THE ARGUMENT ADVANCED BY THE NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION THAT IT BELIEVED THE "PUBLIC STATEMENT" WAS NECESSARY TO RESPOND TO "PUBLIC CONCERN" AND TO "MAINTAIN ORDER" IS UNSUPPORTED BY THE RECORD, AND NO EXCUSE FOR VIOLATING THE RIGHT OF THE RESPONDENT TO AN UNBIASED, FAIR AND IMPARTIAL HEARING.

The Board, at Point Two, page 22 of its brief, argues that it "believed" that it was necessary at the Board meeting of February 12, 1992, to issue the "Public Statement"[3] condemning the respondent, so as to respond to "public concern and to "maintain order." (Emphasis supplied.) Once again the Board provides no evidence whatsoever to corroborate these assertions. In fact, the testimony of Superintendent Michael Lake, at his deposition, directly contradicts this in that he admits that the district received no reports of disruption involving teachers or students. Moreover, it is obvious that the typewritten statement was prepared prior to the actual meeting so that it could be read and posted for all to consider. No explanation is offered by the Board how it knew, prior to the meeting, that it would be necessary to issue the statement.

[2] See Point II of respondent's initial brief.

[3] Exhibit "H" attached to respondent's brief.

What is important about the "Public Statement" and what the Board fails to address in its argument is that this statement is direct evidence of bias and predisposition on the part of the Board against the respondent at a time when he had not even been served with the charges, or given an opportunity to reply to them as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (c). (Emphasis supplied.) In Staton v. Mayes, 552 F. 2*d.* 908 (10th Cir.) cert. denied, 434 U.S. 907 (1977), findings announced by Board members in advance have been held to constitute impermissible bias. (Emphasis supplied). In Staton, supra, a Superintendent was discharged by a local board for neglect of duty and incompetence. In reviewing the matter, the Court found impermissible prejudgment where three out of five Board members had made prior statements about the Superintendent's competence. In fact, one Board member campaigned on the issue.

In addition, the Board fails to address its violation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 (b) (7) by deliberating the charges at a public meeting rather than a closed meeting.

These actions on the part of the Board deprived the respondent of procedural and substantive due process. Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970); Manalapan-Englishtown Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc., 187 N.J. Super. 426, 430 (App. Div. 1981). As a result, the charges against the respondent should be dismissed.

POINT IV

THE NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION MAY NOT USE VAGUE, STALE AND PREVIOUSLY EXPUNGED INCIDENTS TO ESTABLISH WHAT IT CLAIMS TO BE A CONTINUOUS COURSE OF CONDUCT ON THE PART OF THE RESPONDENT, UNBECOMING OF A TEACHER

The Board, at Point Three, page 26 of its brief cites In Re Tenure Hearing of David Brody, Elmwood Park, supra., and argues that the additional charges, which are unrelated to the statements made on the radio, may be considered in attempting to establish a continuing course of conduct unbecoming a teacher. The Brody case is not on point. David Brody, a teacher was formally charged in May and June of 1982 and found guilty of conduct unbecoming a teacher. Brody had previously been disciplined by the Commissioner in two prior disciplinary matters after plenary hearings were conducted. Upon being found guilty a third time, the Commissioner of Education in determining the appropriate penalty to be imposed, considered the fact that Brody had been adjudicated guilty and disciplined twice before, Based on this, it was determined that Brody should be dismissed from his employment.

The Commissioner's decision to consider Brody's past record was only in connection with determining what penalty should be imposed upon him. (Emphasis supplied). This is not the situation in the case at bar. Unlike Brody, the Board has charged the respondent with a number of unrelated incidents which, for the most part, were resolved years ago or which are vague and stale.[4] Superintendent Lake has admitted that the Board had not even considered filing charges with respect to these incidents prior to respondent making the statements over the radio. This is not the penalty phase of the litigation where there has been an adjudication of guilt. Respondent has never been involved in a tenure hearing before and, in fact, had never been charged. Brody, supra., certainly does not sanction proceeding in such a manner. Nor does it refute respondent's arguments for dismissal.

Moreover, respondent is unduly prejudiced in being placed in the position of defending such charges which are old and stale, making respondent's ability to obtain discovery through witnesses and documents extremely limited.

Charges 1B and 1E were expunged from the respondent's file on May 22, 1981. (See Exhibit "J" attached to respondent's brief.) The Board argues at page 26 of Point Three of its brief, "There are no statutory or regulatory provisions for the expungement of disciplinary proceedings from a teaching staff member's personnel file." What the Board fails to mention, however, is that there is no statutory or regulatory provision which prohibits this, and in fact, it has been sanctioned by case law. In Lacey Twp. Bd. v. Lacey Twp. Educ., 259 N.J. Super. 397, 399 (App. Div. 1991), the Appellate Division found that an arbitrator's award directing that a teacher's records be expunged, was a proper remedy which did not substantially interfere with a school administration's management prerogatives. (Emphasis supplied). Thus, the remedy of expungement did not violate any statutory policy. Accordingly, the fact that in the instant case, the Board agreed to expunge the respondent's file with respect to incidents 1B and 1E, is just as enforceable as an arbitrator's decision. (Emphasis added). For this reason alone, the charges should be dismissed. Additionally, as with the other charges, the fact that they are almost thirteen (13) years old unfairly prejudices the respondent's ability to defend them.

Importantly, should it be found that the statements made by the respondent on the radio call in program (Charge 1F) were protected free speech, then all of the remaining unrelated charges must be dismissed. The Board has admitted that it would not have reached the same decision to certify tenure charges against the respondent absent such statements made over the radio. (Emphasis supplied). Superintendent Lake admitted at his deposition that "but for" the statements made on the radio, the Board would not have taken any action against respondent. Where it cannot be established the Board would have reached the same decision to terminate the respondent absent what is found to be constitutionally protected conduct, the remaining charges must also fail. (Emphasis supplied). Mount Healthy City School Dist. Bd. of Ed. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 287 (1977); Boundbrook Board of Education v. Trautwein, Commissioner's Decision, January 13, 1984; 1984 S.L.D. 35.

POINT V

THE BOARD HAS FAILED TO ARTICULATE ONE VALID REASON WHY THE STATEMENTS MADE BY THE RESPONDENT, ON A PUBLIC FORUM, CALL IN RADIO PROGRAM WERE NOT AN EXERCISE OF FREE SPEECH PROTECTED UNDER THE FIRST AMENDMENT OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION

There is no question that should the respondent's statements be characterized as an exercise of protected free speech, then those statements cannot be used as a basis to discipline him. Perry v. Sinderman, 408 U.S. 593, 598 (1972). Furthermore, if the remaining charges would not have been instituted "but for" the exercise of protected free speech then those charges also must be dismissed. Mount Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 287 (1977). Boundbrook

Board of Education v. Trautwein, Commissioner's Decision, January 13, 1984; 1984 S.L.D. 35.

The Board argues at Point Four, page 32, of its brief, citing Connick v. Meyers, 461 U.S. 138 (1983) that the statements made by the respondent did not constitute matters of "public concern" under the first prong of the analysis outlined in Pickering v Board of Education, 391 U.S. 536, (1968) and, therefore, they were unprotected. Connick v. Meyers, supra., is clearly distinguishable. In Connick, the Supreme Court outlined the difference between statements concerning matters of public concern which are protected, and statements expressing purely personal interests, which are not. In Connick, a deputy attorney general was discharged after she distributed what her employer felt was an improper questionnaire to her fellow employee. The Court in Connick, after examining the "content" form and "context" in which the document was prepared, found that the portion of the questionnaire which pertained to office transfer policy, office morale, the need for a grievance committee and the level of confidence employees had in supervisors, did not relate to a political, social or other concern of the community. It was instead the product of a purely personal interest the assistant district attorney had in gathering support to oppose a directive of her employer that she be transferred to another department. Accordingly, the Court found this expression of a purely personal interest was not protected. The only other case cited by the Board in support of its position, Stroman v. Collection County School District, No. 92-1340, (4th Cir., December 1992) had to do with statements made by a teacher in connection with a salary dispute which encouraged a sick-out. Obviously, this also was a personal grievance.

The statements made by the respondent certainly do not fall within the category of the expression of a purely personal interest. Respondent questioned whether it was appropriate for him to teach African Literature in an American Literature class during Black History Month. (Emphasis supplied) This was a curriculum issue. Issues of curriculum, i.e., what should be taught in schools and how it should be taught, are matters of concern to the public who have an interest in the manner in which their children are education and how taxpayers' money is spent in the education process.

The argument raised by the Board ignores the Supreme Court's finding in Pickering, supra. There, Marvin L. Pickering, a teacher in a letter to a newspaper, criticized school board policy in promoting funding for athletic programs over educational programs. This was a curriculum issue, which was held to constitute a matter of legitimate public concern and was thus protected. Id. at 539. The respondent Clark's statements are no different and are entitled to the same protections.

Noticeably, the Board fails to address the numerous cases cited by respondent in his original brief on pages 34 through 36. In particular, no reference whatsoever is made to the most recent case of Levin v. Harleston, 770 F. Supp. 895, (S.D.N.Y. 1991), affirmed in part, vacated in part, 966 F. 2d. 85 (2nd Cir., 1992) where it was specifically held that a professor's expressions of racially denigrating theories outside the classroom were matters of public concern and thus constituted free speech subject to First Amendment protections and safeguards. Accordingly, even if respondent's statements were to be characterized as such, this does not limit the protection afforded to them.

The Board also argues that under the balancing test established in Pickering, supra., should respondent's statements be found to be a matter of public concern, then the interest of the Board in suppressing such statements outweighed the respondent's right under the First Amendment to freedom of expression. The Board recognizes on page 30 of its brief, that in order to prevail on this point, it must make a strong showing that disruption resulted from the speech. The criterion which has actually been established by the Third Circuit is that in order for the interest of the public employer to outweigh the protections afforded by the First Amendment, the employer must show that a material and substantial disruption of the public enterprise actually resulted. (Emphasis supplied) Zamboni v. Stamler, 847 F. 2d. 73, 70 (3d. Cir., 1988). Even then, however, depending on the content of the speech, this may still not be sufficient. (Emphasis supplied). Id. at 79.

In the instant case, Superintendent Lake testified that he had received no reports of disruption involving student or teachers (Emphasis supplied). He testified that the reason for taking action against the respondent was because he thought that if he did not, it "could lead to some very difficult times at the school setting." In its brief, the Board fails to cite any competent evidence whatsoever that the statements made by the respondent caused a material disruption of the education process in the district. Noticeably, the Board fails to mention the sworn statement of the Superintendent that no such disruption occurred. Instead the Board relies upon a newspaper article (Exhibit "U") which is clearly not competent evidence. Moreover, even if the article were to be considered, there is no indication in it that the functions of the educational process in the district were impeded in anyway. The mere possibility of a "difficulty" is not evidence of a material or substantial disruption under Zamboni, supra, at 799. The Board has failed in sustaining its burden of proof and therefore the argument that its interest outweighed respondent's right to freedom of expression is without merit.

The Board also cites alleged inaccuracies in the statements made by the respondent and implies that these inaccuracies present a basis for denying him the protections afforded by the First Amendment. The Board cites, in its brief on page 32, Pickering, supra., and claims that, in order to be entitled to First Amendment protection, respondent's statements were required to be "substantially correct." This is not what the Supreme Court held in Pickering. In fact, the Supreme Court found that four (4) of the statements made by Pickering to the newspaper were false. The Court, nevertheless, found that the statements were the result of "carelessness" or "insufficient information," and the Board had presented no evidence to satisfy its burden to demonstrate that they were made in deliberate or reckless disregard of the truth. (Emphasis supplied) Id. at 572. Furthermore, the statements were not of such a nature as to be taken seriously and in fact could easily have been corrected by the Board, had it chosen to do so. Id. at 571.

Accordingly, therefore, even if the statements made by the respondent in the instant case were not accurate, the Neptune Board has presented no evidence whatsoever to meet its burden of proof to establish that they were made in deliberate disregard of the truth, i.e., with malice or in reckless disregard of the truth. (Emphasis supplied) Moreover, whether the respondent may have been questioned by a teacher rather than an administrator about what he was to teach, or whether he saw the banner in his classroom, or heard about it, or saw it in another classroom is insignificant and of no consequence.

The statements made by the respondent over the radio were protected free speech under the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. The Board has presented no evidence whatsoever to justify the abridgement of those rights and accordingly the charges filed against the respondent, all admittedly initiated as a result of his statements made on the radio, must be dismissed. Mount Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 287 (1977).

POINT VI

THE FACT THAT THE BOARD PROVIDED THE RESPONDENT WITH DISCOVERY AFTER THE CHARGES HAD BEEN CERTIFIED TO THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, DOES NOT CURE THE CONSTITUTIONAL INFIRMITIES RESULTING FROM THE EX PARTE INVESTIGATORY PROCESS, AND THE FACT THAT THE INFORMATION OBTAINED IN THAT PROCESS WAS NOT MADE AVAILABLE TO THE RESPONDENT, PRIOR TO THE BOARD CONSIDERING THE CHARGES AGAINST HIM

The Board argues in Point Five of its brief that, although it did obtain detailed statements from various individuals, transcripts of the statements were not prepared until after the March 11, 1992 Board meeting. Consequently, since the Board did not have the transcripts, it could not be said that this information was used in making its determination at the meeting to certify the charges to the Commissioner of Education. Assuming that the Board did not have the transcripts, the fact of the matter is, that Superintendent Lake participated in the investigatory process and had first hand knowledge of the information which had been obtained from the numerous witnesses which were contacted. The Board in making its determination relied upon the information provided by Superintendent Lake and his recommendation. There is no question that this information was considered by him in making his recommendation as to the sufficiency of the charges. There is no reason why the Board hearing could not have been scheduled after the information had been obtained in written form and provided to respondent as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 so that he could have had an opportunity to reply. In the alternative, respondent could have been given an opportunity to participate in the investigatory process. However, he was denied this opportunity. The fact that the witness statements were given to the respondent, after the charges were certified, in no way cures the resulting denial of the respondent's right to procedural and substantive due process before the Board. Accordingly, on this basis the charges should be dismissed.[5]

[5] The Board has continued to conduct an ex parte investigation to the exclusion of the respondent. Evidence of this is the sworn statement of Michael Mixson, (Exhibit "P" attached to the Board's brief) allegedly taken February 1, 1993. Respondent was not given the opportunity to be present or participate in this proceeding.

POINT VII

THE MERE FACT THAT THE DETERMINATION MADE BY THE APPEALS TRIBUNAL WAS PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF N.J.S.A. 43:21-1 ET SEQ. AND JURISDICTION UNDER THE PRESENT CASE IS PREMISED UNDER N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1 ET SEQ. , DOES NOT MEAN THAT RES JUDICATA AND COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL SHOULD NOT APPLY TO PREVENT THE BOARD FROM RE-LITIGATING THE SAME FACTS AND ISSUES WITH RESPECT TO THE PROPRIETY OF THE RESPONDENT'S CONDUCT

The Board incorrectly argues at Point Six of its brief, that because the Appeals Tribunal made its determination under a different statutory provisions than that under which the instant cases is premised, issue preclusion should not be applied to prevent the Board from re-litigating the propriety of the respondent's conduct. In City of Hackensack v. Winner, 162 N.J. Super. 1, (App. Div, 1978), affirmed as modified 82 N.J. 1 (1980), the Court found that the mere fact the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) functioned under one statute and civil service functioned under another did not prevent the application of issue preclusion, where each agency had jurisdiction, the facts presented and determined were the same, each party was given a full opportunity to participate and did participate, each party was represented by counsel, and the proofs were not restricted. City Of Hackensack v. Winner, supra. 82 N.J. 38, N.J. Super. 30.

In the instant case, the Appeals Tribunal clearly had jurisdiction to determine whether respondent was entitled to unemployment compensation. In finding eligibility, a full hearing was conducted at which time both parties were represented by counsel and participated. The proofs were not restricted in any way. The Appeals Tribunal rendered a decision holding that respondent had not engaged in "misconduct connected with work." "Misconduct connected with work" was specifically defined on page three of the decision (Exhibit "AA") as:

> ...a deliberate act or omission by the worker which constitutes a material breach of his duties and obligations arising out of the contract of employment, or an act or course of conduct in violation of the worker's duties, which is tantamount to an intentional disregard of the employer's interests.

The tribunal found, on page 3, paragraph 7 of the decision that "The evidence presented at this hearing does not show that the claimant's phone call to the radio station was a willful act in disregard of the employers best interest ..."

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, "conduct unbecoming a teacher" is not specifically defined, however, it has been held to be determined by the common understanding of the term, the touchstone of which is "fitness to discharge the duties and function's of one's office or position." Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957); In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29, (App. Div. 1974). Obviously, if the respondent's conduct was not in disregard of his employer's interest, it could not be said to be unbecoming conduct adversely impacting his fitness to discharge his prescribed duties. The administrative law judge is not being called upon to make any different a determination as that which was made by the Appeals Tribunal, although each decision clearly has different consequences. The facts upon which the determination of the Appeals Tribunal was based are the same as the case at bar. The Board is bound by those findings, having chosen not to appeal them. It cannot now re-litigate the same issues.

RESPONDENT'S REPLY TO INTERVENOR

POINT I

THE FACTUAL DETERMINATION MADE BY THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, PRIOR TO CERTIFICATION OR EVEN CONSIDERATION OF THE CHARGES BY THE BOARD, AND BASED UPON THE EX PARTE OPINIONS EXPRESSED BY THE CHARGING PARTY, SO PREJUDICED THE RESPONDENT'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS THAT THE CHARGES SHOULD BE DISMISSED

The provisions of the Tenure Employees hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6 et seq. were enacted for a purpose, namely to provide a procedure by which tenure matters are to be heard and to preserve the individual constitutional rights of those charged under the law. In re Fulcomer, 93 Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967); Manalapan-Englishtown Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., etc. 187 N.J. Super. 426, 420 (App. Div. 1981).

The position espoused by the Intervenor in its brief not only ignores these statutory provisions but disregards the basic constitutional rights of the respondent with respect to the hearing process.[1] Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970).

In support of the Intervenor's position, counsel cites the case of the Federal Trade Comm'n v. Cement Institute, 333 U.S. 683 (1947). This case is clearly distinguishable as are the other cases cited by the Intervenor.

In Federal Trade Comm'n v. Cement Institute, supra, the Court found that where individual commission members had previously investigated and expressed an opinion as to the legality of a pricing system, they were not disqualified from examining the propriety of the Cement Institute's particular pricing practices. Id. at 700-701. The difference between Cement Institute and the instant case is clear. First, in the Cement Institute case, the opinions expressed dealt with the law and policy, whereas the statements made by the Department of Education in the instant case, were findings of fact as to the propriety of the respondent's conduct, indicating that the Department had a "closed mind" with respect to the actions of the respondent. (Emphasis supplied) Second, the Department's findings were not based upon the investigation of the agency itself, but were based upon opinions received from the charging party, i.e., the Neptune Board of Education. Thus, the Department of Education made clear that regardless of respondent's position, the charging party's position was to be adopted. Third, the respondent was given no opportunity to participate or present his position prior to the Department of Education making such a determination. Fourth, and finally, the findings made do not indicate a mere expression of opinion but that the Department of Education had investigated the matter and made a decision as to respondent's conduct.

Where a fact finder has rendered a fixed opinion regarding a party to the procedures, there is bias. This is especially true where the bias is expressed publicly. In Staton v. Mayes, 552 F. 2d. 908 (10th Cir.) cert. denied, 434 U.S. 907 (1977) a Superintendent was discharged by a local Board for neglect of duty and incompetence. In reviewing the matter the Court, emphasizing that factual issues were involved, found impermissible prejudgment where three out of five Board members had made statements on the subject of the Superintendent's competence, including one Board member who campaigned on the issue. (Emphasis supplied). In American Cynamid Co. v. FTC, 363 F. 2d. 757 (6th Cir. 1966) an order of the Federal Trade Commission was reversed where a Commissioner of the Federal Trade Commission participated in antitrust proceedings against American Cynamid Co. despite the fact that he had previously served as counsel to an investigatory committee on the drug industry, played an active role as counsel investigation many of the same facts and issues which he subsequently considered as a member of the Commission prior to entering the order, and who, while serving as counsel for the investigatory committee, made statements condemning American Cynamid for unfair trade practices and helped draft a committee report critical of the company. (Emphasis supplied).

In the instant case, a determination regarding the propriety of respondent's conduct was made at various levels of the Department of Education, as the Bartlett letter and the Department's prepared response was approved and made its way to the Commissioner's office from the Offices of the Assistant Commissioner who in turn received it from the County Superintendent Hughes. (Emphasis supplied). The respondent had no opportunity to confront the charges or present his side of things. The Department made a determination at a time when it was not its role or duty to do so. The finding was then announced publicly by the Commissioner in his letter of March 6, 1992. (Exhibit "K"to respondent's brief). The involvement of the Department did not end here however. Thereafter, upon receipt of the respondent's answer to the charges, additional levels of the Department were placed in the untenable position of attempting to justify the opinions expressed. As the deposition testimony shows, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes prepared the correspondence of April 10, 1992, (respondent's Exhibit"T"), which was forwarded to Deputy Commissioner Bryant for review and approval and finally to the Office of Commissioner. A further communication dated April 21, 1992, (respondent's Exhibit "Z") from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes was prepared in an attempt to explain the Department's actions. As a result a biased atmosphere now exists, pervading the Department, which has so tainted the proceedings as to require the dismissal of the charges.

The intervenor also cites U.S. v. Morgan, 313 U.S. 409 (1940). There, the Supreme Court after considering the matter on four different occasions, found that due process required that an administrative agency decision-maker must be familiar with the record prior to making a ruling, and that the parties affected by such a determination must be informed as to the nature of the proceedings and be given an opportunity to participate. Of course, respondent was afforded none of this prior to the Department of Education making its determination as contained in the letter of March 6, 1992. (Respondent's Exhibit "K") Intervenor now argues that respondent will have this opportunity before the Office of Administrative Law. However, this argument ignores the impact of the letter on the decision making process. The fact of the matter is that the case will once again come before the Department of Education for review. The initial finding not only has precedential impact as coming from the Commissioner and his office, but as previously stated, there was participation at numerous other agency levels. Moreover, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, which will now sit in judgment of the respondent should the matter be permitted to follow its normal course, became involved in having to justify the actions of the Department. The mere fact that certain agency personnel are no longer with the Department of Education, as alleged by intervenor, does not eliminate the bias due to the previous participation not just at the level of the Commissioner but at the various other agency levels. The bias existing as a result of the findings made cannot be cured and, therefore, the charges must be dismissed.

The intervenor points to U.S. v. Morgan, supra., and the Court's refusal to disqualify the Secretary of Agriculture because of a letter written by him criticizing a prior decision by the Court in a previous Morgan case. Again, as with the Federal Trade Commission v. Cement Institute, supra., the fact that an administrative head may take a position on a particular aspect of the law is not objectionable. However, where, as here, a determination of the facts has been made without a hearing and where the decision maker has accepted the ex parte findings of the charging party, there is a violation of due process which cannot be cured. Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254 (1970); In re Murchison, 349 U.S. 133 (1955).

The intervenor also cites the Morgan line of cases for the proposition that an ex parte investigation by an administrative agency does not prohibit it from subsequently determining the matter. However, in the instant case, as previously stated, the Department went beyond the mere investigation of the matter by making a finding of fact that the respondent had acted inappropriately. This was based solely on information received from the charging party. This kind of conduct was certainly not approved by the Court in Morgan.

The respondent cites Winthrow v. Larken, 421 U.S. 35 (1975) in support of its position. In Winthrow, supra., the Supreme Court found that an agency charged with an investigatory function can make a mere probable cause determination especially where the party accused of the alleged improper conduct has an opportunity to participate and present defenses. As set forth in respondent's initial brief, when tenure charges are certified to the Department of Education, such a probable cause finding is made pursuant to statute. However, in the instant case, the Department of Education made an actual finding of fact before even receiving the charges. Moreover, the statements made went far beyond a mere finding of "probable cause" but found guilt. This action coupled with the blind acceptance of the position adopted by the charging party irrevocably violated the respondent's due process rights.

As the consequence of the actions of the Department of Education the respondent's rights have been irrevocably prejudiced and therefore the proceedings must be dismissed.

POINT II

THE RESPONDENT HAS ESTABLISHED BIAS AND PREJUDICE AGAINST HIM BY THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION WHICH CANNOT BE CURED, ACCORDINGLY, THE CHARGES MUST BE DISMISSED

The intervenor cites Matter of Carberry, 114 N.J. 574 (1989) in support of its position that there has been no showing of actual bias and, therefore, the charges should not be dismissed. Importantly, however, the intervenor fails to adequately address that portion of Carberry which provides for disqualification particularly where the adjudicator "has been the target of personal abuse or criticism from the party before him." Id. at 586. As set forth in respondent's initial brief at Point II, page 22, such has been the case here. Criticism has been levied at the Department of Education by the respondent and others, (See Exhibit "U" and Exhibit "Y" attached to Respondent's initial brief). The response to this just criticism is contained in the Commissioner's letter of April 10, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit "T") whereby he recused himself and in the subsequent letter of April 21, 1992, (Respondent's Exhibit "Z") from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes which attempts to justify the actions of the Department with respect to the Bartlett letter. Thus, the Department has been the subject of criticism for its actions which the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes and other levels of the agency have been compelled to attempt to justify. This indicates impermissible bias which cannot now be cured.[2.]

DISCUSSION

The first issue to be addressed is whether the Department of Education and/or the Commissioner may decide the instant matter subsequent to an initial decision by the OAL or, whether the herein matter should be dismissed on the grounds of bias, prejudice and a violation of respondent's rights to due process. Respondent's arguments, set forth in great detail, will not be repeated here.

Respondent complains, among other things, that the Department of Education personnel, the Commissioner in particular, prejudged the charge against him to the extent that his due process rights were violated. It is observed, however, that the principal Department of Education personnel whom respondent claims prejudiced his due process rights are no longer in office. Commissioner Ellis', Deputy Commissioner Woodbury, Assistant Commissioner Mitchell and County Superintendent Hughes have all resigned or retired. The present Department of Education personnel, with the exception of Bureau Director Keller, have had no involvement with the instant matter. The present Commissioner, Leo Klagholz, is, in fact, twice removed from the certification of charges against respondent, i.e., Commissioner Fitzgerald replaced Commissioner Ellis and Commissioner Klagholz having replaced Commissioner Fitzgerald. Thus, Commissioner Klagholz nor his immediate subordinates have engaged in an y activity with respect to the Board's tenure charges against respondent, nor respondent's defenses.

2. The intervenor's brief represents yet another attempt to justify the actions of the Department in response to the criticisms raised. This is further evidence of bias.

Respondent's fear that Bureau Director Keller will have an undue influence on the Commissioner's decision in the instant matter is unfounded. Pursuant to his obligation under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10 (c) the Commissioner is required to review the herein record and "shall adopt, reject or modify the recommended report and decision ..." The Commissioner's final decision must be based upon the herein record presented, under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10 (d). Thus, in his role as decision maker, the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -21, requires the Commissioner to conduct an independent review of the matter sub judice. In the event, respondent is uncomfortable with this, he may rest assured that the ultimate administrative decision maker for controversies arising under school law is the State Board of Education. Dore v. Board of Education of Bedminister Township, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 449 (App. Div. 1982).

I CONCLUDE, therefore that Commissioner Klagholz is the proper person to review and determine the instant matter under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Accordingly, respondent's Motion to Dismiss the herein matter on these grounds is hereby DENIED.

It is first noted that the instant matter concerns a question of the First Amendment of the United States Constitution and the protected rights of free speech. It has been established that the Commissioner's jurisdiction extends to matters involving constitutional issues so long as the issues advanced to him are not novel in nature and have already been adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Sciarrillo, School District of the City of Garfield, Bergen County, 197, 202 S.L.D. 1977; Frank Schultz, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, Bergen County, 86 N.J. Super. 29. (App. Div. 1964). The instant matter is similar, in many respects to the matter in Jeffries v. Harleston, 828 F. Supp. 1066 (S.D. N.Y. 1993).

In Jeffries, Professor Leonard Jeffries was Chairman of the Black Studies Department, City College, City University of New York. The position of Chairman is an elected one and on June 6, 1991, Professor Jeffries was reelected for a three year term by the faculty of the Black Studies Department. On July 1, 1991, Bernard Harleston, President of City College, sent a letter of congratulations to Professor Jeffries upon his reelection as Department Chairman. On July 20, 1991, Professor Jeffries made a speech before the Empire State Black Arts and Cultural Festival in which he "...made strident attacks against particular individuals, and made derogatory comments about specific ethnic groups." 828 F. Supp. at 1073. President Harleston characterized the speech as containing "clear statements of bigotry and anti-semitism." Id. at 1073.

Professor Jeffries' speech caused an outcry of protest and was condemned both within and without the University. On August 8, 1991, Present Harleston addressed a letter to his City College colleagues attacking the speech and assuring a thorough review of the situation. Letters and memoranda of the administration of the College and University suggested possible actions that might be taken against Professor Jeffries, including his removal as chairman of the Black Studies Department. On September 12, 1991, President Harleston requested that Provost Robert Pfeffer:

> ...undertake a review of Dr. Leonard Jeffries' leadership of Black Studies Department to determine whether Dr. Jeffries can continue to act effectively as department administrator ... Id. at 1074

Provost Pfeffer and President Harleston requested Jeffrey Rosen, Dean of the Division of Social Sciences, to observe and evaluate Professor Jeffries performance. On September 19, 1991, Dean Rosen addressed a memorandum to Provost Pfeffer in which Dean Rosen found that Professor Jeffries was adequately fulfilling his duties as Chairman of the Black Studies Department. A subsequent report from Dean Rosen, dated October 2, 1991, described his interaction with Professor Jeffries as productive and collegial. On October 4, 1991, Provost Pfeffer submitted his review of Professor Jeffries' performance and found, among other things, that Professor Jeffries performance had not suffered as a result of the speech or publicity surrounding it.

District Judge Conboy, in Jeffries, admonished President Harleston for his imprecise attempt to define Provost Pfeffer's task to determine whether Professor Jeffries leadership as a college chairman had been compromised as a consequence of Jeffries' speech and whether the College had been injured by the impact of the speech. District Judge Conboy contended that Provost Pfeffer should have broadened his focus and performed a more systematic analysis of Professor Jeffries performance by addressing three critical issues which he chose to ignore; e.g., (1) whether Professor Jeffries could effectively interact as Chairman with faculty members and specifically Jewish faculty members; (2) whether the racist and bigoted nature of Professor Jeffries remarks would stigmatize and isolate the Black Studies'

Department and make it a parochial backwater of the College, and; (3) whether the college's alumni would withdraw their financial support in light of the professional embarrassment Professor Jeffries represented as a formal leader of the College administration.

Despite the positive review of Professor Jeffries by Provost Pfeffer, President Harleston recommended to the Chancellor and the Board of Trustees of the University that Professor Jeffries' term as Chair be limited to one year rather than the customary three year term. On October 28, 1991, the Board of Trustees adopted President Harleston's recommendation. On October 29, 1991, President Harleston sent a letter to Professor Jeffries advising him of the action.

During the months of October and November 1991, Professor Jeffries was involved in two incidents which raised concern within the University administration. The first incident occurred on October 18, 1991, with a student newspaper reporter from the Harvard Crimson who interviewed Jeffries. The student tape recorded the interview during which Professor Jeffries made disparaging remarks about other scholars in the field of African-American Studies as well as homosexuals. Professor Jeffries called Henry Louis Gates, Chair of the African-American Studies Department at Harvard University, " a faggot and a punk." Id. at 1076, n.8. Also, Jeffries threatened to "kill" the student reporter if the content of the interview ever became public. Professor Jeffries confiscated the tapes made by the student reporter at the conclusion of the interview. The tapes were never returned to the Harvard student reporter.

The second incident occurred at the end of October 1991, when Professor Jeffries learned from a student that Professor Morris Silver was alleged to have said that the Black Studies Department was to be investigated. Professor Jeffries, in response, wrote to Dean Rosen to declare "war" on the faculty. Also, on October 31, 1991, Professor Jeffries went to an Economics student-faculty luncheon and exchanged "intense words" with Professor Silver. Id. at 1076.

The third incident occurred on November 12, 1991, at a meeting with Professor Jeffries, Provost Pfeffer and Dean Rosen where the Provost and Dean urged Jeffries to voluntarily relinquish the position of Chair of the Black Studies Department. Professor Jeffries became angry ad threatened to turn City College into "Crown Heights." Id. at 1076.

The fourth incident occurred on November 15, 1991, when Professor Jeffries confronted President Harleston in the lobby of the administration building as Harleston was leaving for an appointment. Professor Jeffries was angry and became hostile over negative comments Present Harleston had made on a television program about Jeffries.

The University administration continued to review Professor Jeffries' performance as a Chair of the Black Studies Department from the Pfeffer report, on October 4, 1991 until the Spring of 1992. The reviews became increasingly negative and in December 1991, Present Harleston, Provost Pfeffer and Dean Rosen agreed that Professor Jeffries should be replaced as Chairman. There were no written records or documents to support the decision.

On March 20, 1992, President Harleston and Provost Pfeffer met with the Black Studies Department faculty to advise that Harleston would recommend to the Board of Trustees that Professor Edmond Gordon be named as the new Chairperson. The reaction of the faculty was extremely negative. On the same day, March 20, 1992, the Executive Committee of the Black Studies Department together with the Department's full-time faculty sent a memorandum to President Harleston protesting the actions of the Board of Trustees to limit Professor Jeffries' term as Chairman without consulting the Department.

On March 23, 1992, the Board of Trustees voted to appoint Professor Gordon to the position of Chairman upon expiration of Jeffries' one year term, effective July 1, 1992. No reasons were given for the Board's actions.

On June 5, 1992, Professor Jeffries commenced his action alleging that defendants' denial of his full three year term as Chairman of the Black Studies Department had violated his rights under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. The trial was conducted from April 22, 1993 to May 18, 1993, where the Court found the defendants had violated Professor Jeffries First Amendment rights. The Court set aside the jury verdict based upon the Fourteenth Amendment claim.

In the opening of his opinion, District Judge Conboy said:

> A federal jury has found that City University, without justification, punished a tenured professor on its faculty for an off-campus speech he had given, by removing him as Chairman of his academic > deportment. It is unequivocally clear, under our Constitution, and the law enunciated on the subject by the United States Supreme Court, and in the light of the factual trial record developed in this case, that the action taken by the University was constitutionally impermissible. This is and must be the case, in spite of the hateful, poisonous and reprehensible statements made by the professor in the speech in question. Id. at 1071

In his opinion in Jeffries, District Judge Conboy cited White Plains Towing Corp. v. Patterson, 991 F. 2*d.* 1049 (2*d.* Cir. 1993), where it was held that a public employee who seeks judicial relief on the grounds that he has been removed from employment because of the exercise of his First Amendment speech rights, the employees must first establish that his speech may be fairly characterized as constituting speech on matters of public concern. Id. at 1058. In White Plains Towing Corp., the court said:

> Once the employee establishes that he has spoken as a citizen on a matter of public concern, he must also establish that that speech was at least a "substantial" or "motivating" factor in the discharge. Mt. Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. at 287, S. Ct. at 576.

In Frank v. Relin, 1 F. 3*d.* 1317 (2*d.* Cir. 1993), the Court continues the analysis by stating:

> If the plaintiff establishes both elements, the employer may nonetheless escape liability in either of two ways. It may prevail if it can show that it would have made the same decision in the absence of the protected conduct, see Mt. Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. at 286, 97 S. Ct. at 575, or if it can show that the employee's conduct interfered with its "effective and efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public," Connick v. Meyers, 461 U.S. at 150, 103 S. Ct. at 1692.

As in the Jeffries case and the instant matter, a "substantial" and "motivating" factor in the action to terminate both individuals was their speech of "public concern." In Professor Jeffries case, his public concern was his perception of the treatment of African-Americans by whites, in general, Jews in particular. In respondent's case, his public concern was the matter of the Neptune Board's use of it curriculum for Black History month and whether African Literature was to be taught in an American Literature class. Mt. Healthy, supra.

Both respondent and Professor Jeffries held tenured teaching positions where no disciplinary action was contemplated by the respective school administrators prior to their public speech. "But for" respondent's telephone call to the Bob Grant Radio Show, Superintendent Lake would not have conducted an investigation of respondent's prior conduct. Nor would Superintendent Lake have proceeded with tenure charges against respondent, absent the telephone call and respondent's remarks on the radio talk show. Mt. Healthy, supra.

Thus, it is clear that the Neptune Board, acting upon Superintendent Lake's recommendation brought tenure charges against respondent based upon respondent's exercise of protected free speech under the First Amendment. As District Judge Conboy observed that despite "hateful, poisonous and reprehensible statements" such statements are protected free speech where, as here the speech was the substantial or motivating factor in the discharge of the public employee. Patterson, supra. Mt. Healthy, supra.

Finally, by Superintendent Lake's own admission, respondent's conduct did not interfere with the Board's effective and efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public. Connick, supra., Superintendent Lake admits there were no disruptions of the everyday operation of the public schools under his direction, either by pupils, teachers or other staff members, as a consequence of respondent's actions and conduct.

I CONCLUDE that respondent has successfully demonstrated that he spoke as a citizen on a matter of public concern.

I CONCLUDE that respondent clearly established that his speech was the substantial and motivating factor is Superintendent Lake's and the Board's certifying tenure charges against him.

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the Board failed to demonstrate that, but for respondent's speech, it would have certified tenure charges against respondent.

I also CONCLUDE that there was no showing by the Board that respondent's conduct interfered with its effective and efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public.

I FINALLY CONCLUDE that the Board, through Superintendent Lake, caused a deprivation of respondent's rights of freedom of speech is guaranteed under Article I of the Amendments to the Constitution of the United States.

I FIND and CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent's Motion for Summary Decision for the dismissal of all of the tenure charges against him is meritorious and must be granted.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that having made this determination, it is unnecessary to address the other issues raised in this matter.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that Summary Decision is hereby ENTERED on BEHALF of the RESPONDENT and that all tenure charges certified against him are hereby DISMISSED.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that respondent David Clark be reinstated to his former position with all rights, privileges, and salary withheld from him, less mitigation from the date of his suspension.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2694-92

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DAVID CLARK, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties' exceptions and reply exceptions filed by respondent were timely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions consisted of a brief in support of the ALJ's decision dismissing the Board's charges against him on the basis of the Board's violation of his constitutionally protected right to freedom of speech.

The Board's exceptions, along with respondent's reply thereto, are summarized, in pertinent part, below.*

EXCEPTION ONE:

> THE ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE FAILED TO MAKE ANY FINDING CONCERNING THE "REASONABLE PREDICTIONS OF DISRUPTION OR HARM" THAT WOULD ARISE FROM RESPONDENT'S JANUARY 30, 1992 RADIO BROADCAST.

The Board argues that a recently decided Supreme Court case, Waters v. Churchill, 62 U.S.L.W. 4397 (1994) held that a governmental entity, in its capacity as an employer, can discipline its employees' speech based on reasonable predictions of disruption or harm arising from such speech.

* Because it is central to the disposition of this case and not quoted in full in the initial decision, the transcript of the radio conversation at issue (Exhibit R-1F) is appended to this decision.

> Likewise, we have consistently given greater deference to government predictions of harm used to justify restriction of employee speech than to predictions of harm used to justify restrictions on the speech of the public at large.... But we have given substantial weight to government employers' reasonable predictions of disruption, even when the speech involved is on a matter of public concern, and even though when the government is acting as sovereign our review of legislative predictions of harm is considerably less deferential. Waters, supra, at 4400

The Board contends that because the school district's student population is largely black, because respondent's remarks received a great deal of publicity, and because the Board's first meeting after the publication of respondent's remarks was attended by 400 people, there was clearly a great potential for disruption of the district's educational program caused by respondent's speech. The Board asserts, therefore, that the ALJ should have made findings with respect to the potential for disruption and harm the Board could reasonably anticipate would result from respondent's speech.

In reply, respondent urges that the facts in the instant matter are clearly distinguishable from those existing in Waters, supra.

> In Waters, a nurse was fired from a public hospital because of alleged statements made to a co-worker, on the job, concerning the internal operation of the hospital. There was a dispute as to what was actually said by the nurse, and the issue arose as to whether the test as set forth in Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 150 (1983) for determining whether speech is protected, should be applied to what the employer thought was said by the employee, or what the trier of fact ultimately determines to have been said by the employee.

> The Court, inter alia, found that the Connick test should be applied to what the employer reasonably believed was said, based upon investigation. The Court then, in applying the test, found that statements allegedly made by the nurse in "discouraging people from coming to work" would impede the ability of the hospital to function and thus were not protected. Id. at para. 14. This impairment of the ability to internally function constituted a disruption. The matter was then remanded back to the district court for a determination of the particular speech which caused the nurse to be terminated, and then in light of the above, whether the First Amendment protections applied.

Respondent contends that in the case at bar -- 1) there is no dispute with respect to respondent's remarks; 2) the statements made by respondent were on his own time not while he was working; 3) they were made on a public radio program -- an obvious forum for the expression of free ideas; 4) the comments pertained to the curriculum to be taught to public school students which is obviously a topic where free expression of ideas is important to the functioning of the public educational process; and, most importantly, 5) the Superintendent of Schools admitted in testimony that respondent's statements did not interfere with the Board's effective and efficient fulfillment of its responsibilities to the public. (See Exhibit A.)

Respondent further argues that the Board presented no evidence whatsoever to substantiate disruption or even the possibility thereof. He asserts that unproven arguments with respect to his statements generating a great deal of publicity or a large number of people attending a meeting after respondent spoke, even if true, are not evidence of disruption, or even the propensity for disruption of the Board's operations, but, rather, just that the statements caused some debate. (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 4)

Consequently, he argues, that unlike Waters, supra, where the statements made by the nurse were found to have caused disruption to the hospital's vital ability to function, there is no such circumstance here and the ALJ was correct in not engaging in speculation contrary to the evidence.

Finally, respondent argues that, as determined by the ALJ, "the holding of Pickering, supra, and also Jeffries v. Harleston, 828 F. Supp. 1068 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) where the Court found as constitutionally protected, statements made by an educator which were debatable and controversial, but not disruptive, are applicable here." (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 5)

EXCEPTION TWO:

RESPONDENT'S JANUARY 30, 1992 REMARKS WERE ON ISSUES OF PRIVATE NOT PUBLIC CONCERN.

The Board cites portions of respondent's statements dealing with a banner being in his classroom and remarks it contends were directly critical of his supervisor (Exhibit "A", T3-7 to 21; T3-23 to 25; T4-1), asserting that these are clearly unrelated to matters of public concern but are, rather, purely matters of private interest and are, consequently, not protected.

Respondent urges that viewing portions of his statement out of context is contrary to the requirements of Connick, supra:

> [A]n examination must be based upon the "content" "form" and "context" of the speech as revealed by the whole record. Id. at 148. When one exam[ines] the speech as a whole in this manner, as the ALJ did, there is no question that it clearly involved what curriculum should be taught in the Neptune Township School District. What should be taught to children in public schools is unquestionably of important concern to the public. (emphasis in text)
> (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 6)

EXCEPTION THREE:

RESPONDENT'S JANUARY 30, 1992 REMARKS WERE NOT "SUBSTANTIALLY CORRECT" AND ARE THUS NOT PROTECTED SPEECH.

The Board avers that in Pickering v. Board of Education, 391 U.S. 563, 88 Sup. Ct. 1731 (1968), the Court held that comments by teachers on matters of public concern that are "substantially correct" may not furnish grounds for dismissal even though they are critical. (Board's Exceptions, at p. 6) Here, it argues, even though the ALJ recognized there was substantial evidence to indicate that respondent's remarks concerning his supervisor, a banner in his classroom, and the existence of a list of authors for Black History Month were either inaccurate, incorrect or outright fabrications (see Initial Decision, at p. 11), he made no finding on the accuracy of these remarks. The Board contends that such remarks were unprotected speech in that not only were they a matter of private, rather than public, concern but they also were not substantially correct.

In reply, respondent disputes the Board's assertion that Pickering, supra, requires that in order for respondent's statements to have First Amendment protection, they must have been substantially correct.

> In Pickering, the Supreme Court found four (4) of the statements made by Pickering to a newspaper were false. The Court, despite the inaccuracies in the statements, found that they were protected, stating that there had been no showing that they resulted from anything but carelessness or insufficient information and in fact were of such a nature that they would not be taken seriously and could have easily been corrected by the Board. Id. at 571. Furthermore no showing had been made that they were willful or deliberate. Id. at 571. (emphasis in text)

Respondent argues that the Board has not proven such statements of respondent were inaccurate but, he contends, even assuming they were, no evidence was presented to indicate that these statements were any different than those made in Pickering, supra, and the ALJ was correct in not considering this a valid basis for denying First Amendment protection.

EXCEPTION FOUR:

> THE ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S RELIANCE ON THE CASE OF [JEFFRIES] V. HARLESTON, 828 F. Supp. 1066 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) IS MISPLACED.

The Board argues that Waters, supra, a Supreme Court case decided on May 31, 1994, one week after the decision in the instant case, wherein the Court distinguished between governmental restrictions on speech when the government is acting as employer as opposed to when it is acting as sovereign, is controlling in this matter.

> Recognizing that the Courts give greater deference to government restrictions on employee speech, the Court applied the Connick test and held that a nurse's remarks to a fellow employee that substantially dampened that employee's interest in working in the hospital's obstetrics department was not protected.
> [Likewise, here] Respondent's remarks, critical of his supervisor, clearly fall within the factual framework of Waters rather than Jeffries. (Board's Exceptions, at p. 7)

In reply, respondent urges that the ALJ, in fact, based his opinion on more than just Jeffries, supra, contending that he also relied on such cases as Pickering, supra, and Connick, supra, in reaching his determination with respect to Jeffries. He asserts

> The Jeffries case  dealt with disparaging remarks made by a professor toward various ethnic groups and segments of society. The Court found these statements were absolutely protected, given their content, form and the context in which they were made. The instant case clearly falls > within the factual framework of Jeffries and those line[s] of cases cited by the ALJ, many of which dealt with statements made by an educator or in an education environment. Waters, supra did not, but dealt with the ability of a hospital to carry on [its] vital functions. Accordingly, the ALJ correctly relied on the case law cited, which continues to remain controlling.

EXCEPTION FIVE:

THE ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE FAILED TO RENDER A DECISION ON THE OTHER ISSUES RAISED IN RESPONDENT'S MOTION.

The Board objects to the ALJ's decision only addressing two of the issues raised by the parties, i.e., the First Amendment issue and the propriety of the Commissioner of Education's participation in this case. It urges remand of this matter for a decision on the remaining issues so these may be considered and addressed on any subsequent appeal.

Respondent, in response, proffers that once it was determined that his right to freedom of speech was violated by the Board and, in view of the fact that the Board admitted that had it not been for respondent's statements, no action would have been taken against him (see Exhibit "B", p. 27, line 15), this required the dismissal of all of the charges (Mt. Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 287 (1977)). (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 9)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, including the exceptions submissions and replies thereto advanced by the parties, the Commissioner finds the Board's arguments unpersuasive and agrees with the findings and conclusions of the the ALJ in his initial decision for the reasons articulated therein. Further, the Commissioner finds no basis, under the particular facts of this matter, to alter those conclusions in light of Waters, supra.

It is also clear here that respondent's exercise of constitutionally protected free speech under the First Amendment cannot form the basis of any disciplinary action against him and, consequently, the within tenure charges must be dismissed in their entirety.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law as the final decision in this matter. Summary decision is hereby granted to respondent and the within tenure charges are dismissed. The Board is ordered to reinstate respondent to his position with salary and all emoluments, less mitigation, from the date of his suspension.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF DAVID C. CLARK, : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, August 23, 1994

For Petitioner-Appellant, Hundley, Parry & Hopkins (James T. Hundley, Esq., of Counsel)

For Respondent-Respondent, Selikoff & Cohen (Steven R. Cohen, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Participant, David Earle Powers, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education directing the reinstatement of respondent to his tenured position is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We fully concur with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge as adopted by the Commissioner that, under the circumstances in this particular case, the comments made by respondent on a radio talk show cannot form the basis for disciplinary action against him. See Connick v. Meyers, 461 U.S. 138 (1983) (the First Amendment protects a government employee's speech if it is on a matter of public concern and the employee's interest in expressing himself on such matter is not outweighed by any injury the speech could cause to the government's interest in protecting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees). Nor do we find the result herein altered by Waters

JAN. 4, 1995

v. Churchill, 511 U.S. ____ (1994) (Connick test is applied to what government employer reasonably thought was said by employee, not to what the trier of fact ultimately determines to have been said). The Board's action in this matter was based on a certified transcript made from an audio recording of the radio show and there is no dispute as to the content of the controverted speech. We emphasize that the fundamental protection provided by the First Amendment "does not hinge on the palatability of the presentation; it extends to all speech on public matters, no matter how vulgar or misguided." Jeffries v. Harleston, 21 F.3d 1238, 1245 (2d Cir.), vacated on other grounds and remanded, 63 U.S.L.W. 3385 (U.S. Nov. 14, 1994).

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

For the Petitioner, Robert Cohen, pro se

For the Respondent, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tishman, Epstein & Gross (Lester Aron, Esq.)

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by Robert Cohen, pro se, on Notice of Motion for Emergent Relief, dated July 6, 1994, seeking to have his four-your-old daughter retested to determine if she is sufficiently gifted for the Superintendent of Schools to recommend to the respondent Board of Education that the Board policy requiring all children to attain the age of five years old by the cutoff date of October 1 be waived in order to permit her to enter kindergarten in September 1994. This motion did not comply with the N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(b) requirement that a motion for emergent relief "shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the standard to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982)." Petitioner was given notice of the deficiency by letter dated July 7, 1994, from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. In response to the deficiency notice, petitioner filed a Notice of Motion to Relax the Rules reiterating the contents of the petition and reasserting that "[t]here will be no justice unless E.C. is fairly tested by an experienced professional." (emphasis in text, at p. 3) For the reasons set forth herein both motions are denied.

The Board, in response to the petition and motions, filed an answer and brief in opposition asserting that petitioner has not demonstrated that he is entitled to a relaxation of the rules pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 based upon his claims of "unfamiliarity with the administrative rules of practice before the Commissioner, as well as his inability to finance an attorney" (Board's Reply, at p. 5); that petitioner has not demonstrated irreparable harm or a likelihood of success on the merits of the claim in that "E.G. is not five years old, and she will not be five years old until after October 1" (at p. 11); that the "Oradell Board of Education has the authority to establish a kindergarten class and the discretion to determine a cut-off date for admission into kindergarten" (at p. 6); and that petitioner's reliance on the special education regulations is inappropriate because E.C. was not tested to determine whether she should be classified as a child with a disability. Finally, respondent asserts that the "present petition before the Commissioner is barred by the doctrine of res judicata" (at p. 12) as a result of a prior ruling by the Honorable William C. Meehan, J.S.C. denying petitioner's request for emergent relief and finding that respondent had not acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably in administering tests to E.C. or denying E.C. admission to kindergarten. Respondent advised the Commissioner that the written order of Judge Meehan had not yet been entered.

In light of the Superior Court action, the parties were advised that no action would be taken by the Commissioner until the written order of Judge Meehan was entered and provided to him. The order was transmitted to the Department of Education by the parties and the Superior Court pleadings and order were transferred by the Bergen County Clerk. The order, dated August 9, 1994, provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> 1. Finding that plaintiff, having failed to demonstrate that he has a substantial likelihood of success on the merits of his claims and having failed to demonstrate that immediate, irreparable harm will be caused if he does not receive the relief requested, is not entitled to emergent relief;
>
> 4. Finding that this Court does not have jurisdiction over this matter since it is a dispute arising under the school laws which properly belongs before the Commissioner of Education; and
> 5. Transferring the matter to the Commissioner of Education for disposition.

The Commissioner having reviewed the entire record and considered the arguments of the parties regarding the Motions for Emergent Relief and to Relax the Rules hereby denies the motion to relax the rules for failure to meet the standard articulated in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 and denies the Motion for Emergent Relief based upon the August 9, 1994, Order of Judge Meehan for the reasons articulated therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IT IS further ORDERED that this matter be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings.

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of two petitions filed with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to the School Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matters were separately transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, and are consolidated. The parties now seek to have the matters dismissed with prejudice (see attached stipulation of dismissal). Based on this representation, I CONCLUDE that the matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law, and it is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, incorporating a "Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice" based on the parties' having "amicably adjusted" their differences, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds no basis on which he can ascertain the terms of the "adjustment" reached by the parties in this matter. Because the case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B, the specific terms of any settlement must be spread on the record pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 so that the Commissioner may review them prior to making a final decision on the recommendation of the ALJ.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is remanded for supplementation of the record consistent with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured special education teacher, alleged that the District was paying her the wrong sum in violation of the teacher's salary schedule and that there was an improper charging of sick leave during leave directed by District.

ALJ found this matter contested the increment withholding of school year 1990-91 not the calculation of petitioner's salary. Citing Probst and Cordasco, the ALJ found that when a salary increment is withheld, the teacher will lag behind in salary for the following years. Thus, this case was really contesting the 1990-91 withholding and was untimely filed as it was well outside the 90-day regulatory period for filing appeals. Petition was dismissed. ALJ found sick leave claims subject to collectively negotiated grievance procedure.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: April 26, 1994 Decided: June 10, 1994

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a verified petition filed by Michelle LaMonica alleging violations of her tenure and seniority rights. The petition in this case was filed on September 9, 1993. A response was filed by the State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City on September 29, 1993. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 5, 1993, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 4, 1994, the respondent school district filed a motion for summary decision with supporting briefs and affidavit as well as exhibits. Hearing dates had previously been scheduled for March 2 and 3, 1994. Those dates were adjourned at the request of the parties and the petitioner's attorney was given an extension of time to file a response within 20 days of February 23, 1994. After the March 15, 1994 deadline for filing, the undersigned's secretary contacted the attorney for petitioner who requested an extension of 10 days from the April 4, 1994 date. As consent was received from the adversary, petitioner was granted an extension of time to respond until April 14, 1994. As part of the agreement with his adversary the respondent school district was then given until April 26, 1994 for any response to petitioner's opposition to the motion. On that date the hearing record closed for the purposes of this motion.

ISSUES

The matter as presented in this case is whether or not this case deals with an increment withholding by respondent board of the petitioner's salary. If so the question becomes whether or not this action has been timely filed.

DISCUSSION

The relevant facts for the purposes of this motion are not in dispute.

The petitioner in this case alleges that the Jersey City School District is paying her substantially less than what is called for on the teachers' salary schedule. The petitioner concedes that the facts are set forth in the respondent's brief up to the point at which the respondent relates what the petitioner should have received beginning with the 1990-91 school year and beyond are not in dispute. As a result the following facts constitute the operational facts in this case:

Petitioner is a special education teacher currently assigned to the Children's Partial Hospital Unit (CPHU) program at the Jersey City Medical Center. Petitioner was awarded her first contract as teacher of the handicapped for the period January 20, 1987 to August 31, 1987, at an annual salary of $18,500. Petitioner obtained tenure on or about January 20, 1990. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Petitioner's current annual salary is $32,015.

Petitioner has had only one increment withheld and that was for the school year 1990-91. The increment was withheld due to "unsatisfactory ratings." Petitioner's increment was not withheld due to absenteeism as alleged in her petition.

On December 12, 1989, G. Jackson evaluated petitioner and rated her good in two areas, fair in five areas. On March 12, 1990, DiTursi evaluated petitioner and rated her fair in six areas and good in only one area. On March 22, 1990, Carol R. Grannasio evaluated petitioner and rated her unsatisfactory in two areas, fair in four areas, and good in one area.

There was also a letter of complaint received from a parent requesting that a student be taken out of petitioner's class because she was "not giving my daughter meaningful or appropriate academic work. Also I feel she does not have the ability to manage or control my daughter." DiTursi took the child out of class after the parent's "strong request." DiTursi also indicated in that letter that he was "having her daily action monitored."

By letter dated June 26, 1990, petitioner was advised of and invited to attend courses being offered on August 27, 1990, which would address the areas in which she had received an unsatisfactory rating; assessing needs and evaluating progress of pupils, and effective organization and planning. However, petitioner did not take advantage of this opportunity and failed to attend the training.

Based on the unsatisfactory reviews received during the 1989-90 school year, respondent withheld petitioner's 1990-91 increment for inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Petitioner was notified by letter dated August 20, 1990, that her 1990-91 increment was going to be withheld due to her "unsatisfactory reviews" and that she would remain at her 1989-90 salary of $23,510. Thus, petitioner remained on step A for the 1990-91 school year.

There is no question that in the following school years she moved up one step from that point in each consecutive year.

The petitioner states in its response to the motion for summary decision that it does not raise the issue of whether or not her increment from the 1990-91 school year should have been denied. The petitioner alleges that the respondent is paying her the wrong sum and misapplied the principles of school law.

As these facts are not in dispute for the purposes of the motion I FIND them to be operational facts.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The respondent seeks to dismiss petitioner's appeal in this case based on the fact that the petition was filed over three years beyond the 90-day time frame for action specified in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. In this case there is no question that the teacher's increment was withheld and that no appeal was taken within 90 days of the withholding of the increment for the 1990-1991 school year pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. An annual increment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 is subject to annual evaluation of teacher performance. It is not a matter of statutory right but is subject to "denial for inefficiency or other good cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. It is subject to the time bar provided in the regulation issued by the Commissioner pursuant to that statute. The relevant regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, provides that a petition to determine the controversy under the school laws "must be filed within 90 days after receipt of the notice by the petitioner of the order, ruling or other action concerning which the hearing is requested." North Plainfield Ed. Assn. v. Bd.of Education of Borough of North Plainfield, 96 N.J. 587, 594 (1984). In that case the court points out that the fact that teachers will always lag one step behind is not attributable to a new violation each year, but to the effect of an earlier employment decision, one that is protected by the regulatory period of limitations. Id. at 5.

The petitioner was notified of her 1990-91 increment withholding and had a 90-day time frame in which to respond by requesting a hearing. She did not do so and as a result her increment was withheld. Even if the limitation period were to be relaxed the facts in this case show a lag of three years. The facts would not militate toward relaxation.

There is no evidence of circumstances that would warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule. Kaprow v. Board of Ed., of Berkley Tp., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993).

The petitioner couches her argument in terms of a presently existing violation of the teacher's salary schedule. As indicated above, that does not however constitute a continuing violation. Additionally it is well established that a teacher whose salary increments were withheld by a board of education for unsatisfactory performance is not entitled to restoration of a salary concomitant with the salary schedule for teachers within the district. Probst v. Board of Ed., 127 N.J. 518 (1992); Cordasco v. Board of Ed. of the City of East Orange, 205 N.J.Super. 407, 410 (App. Div. 1985). In essence petitioner's argument is that she should be returned to the position she would be in absent the increment withholding and be restored to a salary which would bring her in the range of the salary schedule for other teachers within the district with the same experience. That is not what is to occur when a salary increment is withheld. It is clear that when a salary increment is withheld the teacher will lag behind in salary in the following years.

The petitioner also alleges that there was an improper charging of sick leave during a leave of absence. There is no statutory and/or regulatory violation on the part of respondent that is articulated which stems from a supposed improper charging of that sick time. This particular question is in the nature of a grievance and does not involve Title 18A but is a claim which arises from the collective bargaining agreement between the petitioner and the respondent. As a result petitioner would have to follow the procedures for dispute arising under collective bargaining.

The verified petition dated September 9, 1993, in this case is well outside the 90-day regulatory period for filing of appeals for increment withholdings. Notwithstanding the language in which the petitioner wishes to couch it this case contests the increment withholding rather than the calculation of salary that petitioner is presently receiving. As such, the petitioner is barred from pursuing this claim. N.J.A.C. 6:24-4.1.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons given above, I hereby CONCLUDE that the petitioner is outside of the 90-day period for filing a claim under N.J.A.C. 6:24-4.1. As a result I CONCLUDE that the motion for summary decision should be granted.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by Michelle LaMonica in this matter, be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSISON OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, under the facts of this matter and in light of Probst, supra, and Cordasco, supra, petitioner's salary claims are, in effect, an attempt to appeal a long-past increment withholding and so must be found to have been filed out of time. The Commissioner further concurs that petitioner's sick leave claims are clearly contractual in nature and are, therefore, subject to the collectively negotiated grievance procedure rather than adjudication by the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

For Petitioner, Jeffrey D. Kotler, Esq.

For Respondent, Stephen J. Christiano, Esq. (Christiano & Christiano)

This matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief filed on August 29, 1994, wherein Petitioner seeks to have her minor niece, E.L.A., who has resided with her since entering the United States in March 1994, admitted to the Respondent school district in September 1994. Admittance to the district was denied by the Board in April 1994 based on E.L.A.'s purported failure to meet the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and E.L.A. has not attended school since that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, Petitioner's request for emergent relief was delegated for determination to Assistant Commissioner Peter B. Contini, who heard the parties' arguments on emergent relief by telephone conference on August 30, 1994.

Petitioner claims irreparable harm to E.L.A. if she is not admitted to the Respondent school district pending resolution of the dispute, as Petitioner's residency is apparently not at issue and E.L.A. would, therefore, receive no education elsewhere in the interim. The Board argues that Petitioner's appeal is out of time, being filed well beyond both the 21-day period of controlling statute and the 90-day rule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Petitioner set forth an explanation for the delay in filing a petition, relating to her good faith efforts to appeal to the Commissioner in May 1994 and to follow up again in early August 1994; the Board replied that the explanation proffered, even if true, did not excuse Petitioner from her procedural obligations or warrant acceptance of her application at such late date.

Upon consideration of the parties' positions, applicable law and the standards for granting of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Assistant Commissioner determines to grant Petitioner's request for the reasons set forth below.

Initially, the Assistant Commissioner stresses that he makes no determination on the ultimate merits of this case, including the question of whether the appeal was timely filed, or if not, whether relaxation is warranted under the circumstances. However, he finds that the overriding consideration at this point in proceedings is the educational status of E.L.A., who would, under the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, expressly be entitled to admittance to school during the pendency of any timely appeal to the Commissioner and who will, absent emergent relief, not be able to attend public school within the respondent district or elsewhere due to 21 days having passed since the Board's decision and Petitioner's residency not being at issue. Under these circumstances, the irreparable harm to E.L.A. if emergent relief is not granted is clear, and the equities lie in her favor due to the Commissioner's ability under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to assess tuition if Petitioner's claim to a free public education in the district is ultimately dismissed by him.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, it is ORDERED this 30th day of August, 1994, that Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is GRANTED, so that E.L.A. is to be admitted to the West Orange school district pending resolution of the instant dispute. The Board is further directed to file an answer to the Petition of Appeal consistent with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4, upon receipt of which this matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for expedited hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Petitioners, four former principals, alleged the Board transferred and reassigned them to duties other than those they had been performing, in violation of their tenure and seniority rights.

ALJ concluded that petitioners as tenured principals could not be transferred to the positions of vice principals or department chairpersons without their consent. In order to remove a tenured individual from his or her position, without consent, the school district must demonstrate inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming, or other just cause. (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5) The Board clearly violated petitioners' rights when it transferred and reassigned them even though they officially retained the title of principal with attendant salary and benefits. ALJ granted summary decision to petitioners and ordered that each of the petitioners be restored to the position of principal.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: June 18, 1994 Decided: July 25 1994

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioners, Rosalind Bush, Caesar Casale, Moses E. Cobb & Willie J. Young appeal from actions taken by the respondent, Board of Education of the City of Newark (Board), transferring and reassigning them to duties other than those they had been performing, allegedly in violation of their tenure and seniority rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Two of the petitions (Caesar Casale & Moses E. Cobb) were filed on October 14, 1993. The other two (Rosalind Bush & Willie J. Young) were filed on October 19, 1993. An answer was filed to each petition by the respondent.

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the four matters to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 15 & 16, 1993, for hearing and determination as contested cases, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on April 5, 1994. The resulting prehearing order defined and limited the issues to be decided, provided for discovery, scheduled the hearing and dealt with other procedural aspects of the matter. The prehearing order also recognized that all parties had requested and agreed that the four separately filed petitions should be consolidated for all purposes. With consent of counsel and because of the existence of similar questions of law and fact, consolidation was granted, as reflected in paragraph 13 of the prehearing order.

The petitioners filed a motion for summary decision on May 5, 1994. No papers in opposition were filed by the respondent, and the motion proceeded to oral argument on the hearing date, June 8, 1994. The respondent had previously signified its opposition to the motion, and the Board was permitted to file its brief within five days after oral argument. A letter memorandum was filed by the respondent on June 13, 1994. The record was closed on June 18, 1994, upon receipt of petitioners' advice that no post argument papers would be filed.

DISCUSSION

A summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged, and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). This rule is substantially similar to the summary judgment rule in the New Jersey Court Rules, *R.*4:46-2.

A summary judgment proceeding is designed to allow the judge quickly and inexpensively to dispose of any case which does not present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a hearing. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74, (1954). The role of the judge in such a motion is to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if such an issue exists. Judson at 73.

The standards governing the grant or denial of a summary decision emphasize that a party opposing a motion is not to be denied an evidential hearing unless the moving party sustains his or her burden of clearly showing the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Thus, it is the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any material fact. All inferences of doubt are to drawn against the movant and in favor of the party against whom the motion is directed. The papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers are indulgently treated. Judson at 75.

In the instant matter, there is no question or dispute about the material facts, all of which are uncontroverted. This resulted from the submission of such facts, with exhibits, by the petitioners and the lack of objection from respondent's counsel, who also accepted and stipulated to the facts, as uncontroverted, at oral argument.

Therefore, there is no question that this matter is appropriate for determination by way of summary decision, as a matter of law.

Facts:

The material facts contained in the stipulation are as follows:

1. CAESAR CASALE, (hereinafter, "CASALE") is an employee of the Board of Education of the City of Newark, (hereinafter, "the Respondent") and has been employed by the Respondent as follows:

Year	Position
8/24/93	Transferred - vice-principal at Montgomery Street School

9/74 - 9/76	Vice-principal at First Avenue Elem. School (Newark B/E)
2/73 - 6/74	Teacher to assist principal at First Avenue Elem. School (Newark B/E)
9/64 - 2/73	Regularly assigned teacher at First Avenue Elem. School (Newark B/E)
9/56 - 6/64	Regular assigned teacher at Avon Avenue Elem. School (Newark B/E)
9/51 - 6/56	Long term substitute teacher (Newark B/E)
9/50 - 6/51	Per diem substitute teacher (Newark B/E)

2. Casale holds the following Certificates:
New Jersey Principal (K-12) 5/73
New Jersey Elementary Teacher (1-8) 7/57
New Jersey Secondary Teacher of Social Studies (7-12) 7/57
New Jersey Secondary Teacher of English (7-12) 7/57

3. As a result of Casale's employment service and certification, Casale gained tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

4. On or about August 23, 1993, Casale received a telephone call from Dr. R. Gonzalez, Assistant Executive Superintendent, Cluster 4, directing CASALE to report to Montgomery Street School to function in the position of vice-principal.

5. On or about August 23, 1993, Casale received a letter from Louis M. Conte, Assistant Personnel Director, Department of Human Services, dated August 20, 1993 advising Casale that he was transferred, without consent, to Montgomery School effective August 24, 1993. (Exhibits 1 and 2).

6. Casale was further advised that while he would remain in the title of principal, his assignment would be as vice-principal. (Exhibit 1).

7. The transfer was approved by the respondent at its action meeting of August 24, 1993. (Exhibit 3).

8. For the 1993-1994 school year, the respondent will employ individuals with less seniority in the position of principal.

9. MOSES E. COBB, (hereinafter, "COBB") is an employee of the respondent and has been employed by the respondent as follows:

Year	Position
08/24/93	Transferred - vice-principal
09/25/87	Acting principal
09/06/85	Acting vice-principal

25. As a result of Young's employment service and certification, Young gained tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

26. On August 21, 1993, Young received a letter dated August 20, 1993 from Louis M. Conte, Assistant Personnel Director, Department of Human Services, advising YOUNG that he was transferred, without consent, to West Kinney Alternative High School as a Department Chairperson-Guidance (Head Guidance Counselor), effective August 24, 1993. (Exhibits 11 and 12).

27. Young was further advised that while he would remain in the title of principal, his assignment would be Department Chairperson-Guidance (Head Guidance Counselor). (Exhibits 11 and 13A and 13B)

28. The transfer was approved by Young [the Board?] at its action meeting of August 24, 1993. (Exhibit 14).

29. For the 1993-1994 school year, the respondent will employ individuals with less seniority in the position of principal.

The fourteen exhibits in evidence, which are referred to in the above stipulated facts, were attached to the motion for summary decision and are incorporated herein by reference.

Legal Discussion:

Boards of education have the power and authority to transfer teaching staff members, without their consent. N.J.S.A. 18A:25-1. However, while such transfers may take place within the scope of a teacher's certification, it is a violation of tenure rights, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, to effect such a transfer from a tenured position to a different position. See, Forte v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Belleville, 1988 S.L.D. 977, aff'd Comm'r. of Ed. 1988 S.L.D. 986, aff'd State Bd. of Ed. 1988 S.L.D. 992.

The fact that the position of principal and the position of vice-principal require the same certification, N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b), is of no import. When dealing with the rights of a tenured teaching staff member facing involuntary transfer to another position, tenure attaches to a particular position. Forte at 983.

See, Colella v. Elmwood Park Bd. of Ed. 1983 S.L.D. 149, rev'd Comm'r. of Ed. 1983 S.L.D. 160, aff'd. St. Bd. of Ed. 1983 S.L.D. 172, aff'd. No. A-6090-82T3 (N.J. App. Div., July 19, 1984) (The nonconsentual transfer of a tenured school administrator from the position of high school principal to high school vice-principal, without reduction in salary, is improper and illegal.)

See also, Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 1328, 1340, aff'd, St. Bd. of Ed. 1983 S.L.D. 1554 (a tenured employee may be transferred to another assignment within his position, but may not be transferred involuntarily from one position to

It also is of no importance that the Board, in the instant matter, has maintained the petitioners in their titles and at the same salaries they had earned as principals. This follows from the concept that, in tenure matters, it is the nature of the duties performed, rather than the title of the job which controls. Form does not prevail over substance. See Christie v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of East Orange, 1985 S.L.D. 307 (Comm'r. of Ed.); Viemeister v. Bd. of Ed. of Prospect Park 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949).

In Forte, the State Board of Education addressed the question of the differences between the title of a position to which a tenured employee is transferred and the nature of the duties of that position. After the Commissioner of Education affirmed the administrative law judge's Initial Decision in Forte, holding that the transfer from elementary school principal to high school vice-principal without consent was a violation of the petitioner's tenure rights, the Board and the petitioner entered into an agreement whereby the petitioner would "retain the title of elementary principal, remain on the elementary principal's salary guide and continued to accrue all seniority and other benefits to which he was entitled as elementary principal. However, it was further agreed that he would remain in the position of an elementary principal, but assigned as a vice-principal of the Belleville Senior High School until such time as any other position would be agreed to by Forte and the board. It was also agreed that petitioner would not pursue implementation of the Commissioner of Education's decision ordering his reinstatement as elementary principal, and the board was to withdraw its appeal of such decision to the State Board of Education.

In rejecting that proposal and agreement, the State Board of Education stated:

> While the State Board encourages amicable resolution of disputes before us, we cannot permit the Board to employ petitioner in the separately tenurable position of vice principal while designating that position as that of principal. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. See, e.g., Capodilupo v. Bd of Ed. of the Town of West Orange, deciding by the St. Bd. Sept. 3. 1986, aff'd. 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div.) certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 1987. The parties may not by agreement alter the operation of the statutes so that the service of a teaching staff member in one separately tenurable position would not > be credited toward the achieving (of) tenure in that position. Nor we can we permit the Board to assign to the position of high school vice principal and other recognized position title, along with its status, salary and other benefits that is not properly descriptive of either the position or the assignment but, rather, is attached to a entirely different assignment within the scope of a different tenurable position. Such an arrangement contravenes the education laws, regardless of the duration of the assignment. [Footnote omitted] As it was emphasized in Viemeister v. Bd of Ed. of Prospect Park 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 1949; "We look to the substance [of the assignment] rather than the form." [Forte v. Belleville 1988 S.L.D. 993.]

The respondent argues that the broad educational concepts embodied in Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449 (1976), mandating the provision for a thorough and efficient education, transcends all of the foregoing. The Board states that it's overriding responsibility is to provide such an education to the children in the district, and therefore has a duty to deploy personnel in the manner which it considers most likely to promote the overall goal of providing students with such an opportunity, citing Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) and Richfield Park Educ. Assoc. v. Richfield Park Bd. of Ed. 78 N.J. 144 (1978).

The Newark Board of Education, in the instant matter, also indicated that it considered the ramifications of its actions in effecting the transfers, and was cognizant of the statutory limitations granting tenure rights to certain positions. Having done so, the Board believed that having based the transfers on the critical needs of the educational programs, and having retained the salaries and seniority rights of the petitioners, the actions taken conformed overridingly with the mandate of the New Jersey Supreme Court to provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools.

In oral argument, the Board indicated that it had been experiencing "problems" with the petitioners, and that some action, such as transfer to less sensitive positions, was needed. At the same time, the Board stated that it wished to avoid depriving these long term employees of their positions, and there was no desire to reduce their salaries. Assuming that the Board would have been able to prove that the petitioners were having problems fulfilling the increased responsibilities of their principal's positions, and that steps needed to be taken to correct that situation, there is no reason why the Board should not have been expected to comply with the applicable laws and established procedures in such cases.

CONCLUSIONS

It is CONCLUDED that the respondent cannot single-handedly ignore and transcend the specific statutory protection afforded to teaching staff members by invoking the broad policies stated above. The applicable law is clear. Tenure protects the right of a teaching staff member, once having attained such tenure, to hold a particular position. Each of the petitioners are tenured principals, and they cannot be transferred to the positions of vice-principals or department chairpersons without their consent. In order to remove a tenured individual from his or her position, without consent, the school district must demonstrate inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming, or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The fact that the petitioners would officially retain the title of principal, and presumably all of the salary and other benefits attendant to the position of principal, does not alter this conclusion. The respondent was clearly in violation of the tenure and seniority rights of the petitioners when it transferred and reassigned them to other positions.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the applications of the petitioners for summary decision are GRANTED, and it is further ORDERED that each of the petitioners be restored to the position of principal.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: July 1, 1994 Decided: July 27, 1994

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On July 2, 1993, petitioner, Sue Janssen, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent, Board of Education of the West Essex Regional School District, reduced petitioner in employment from a full-time teacher of French to a two-fifths position as a French teacher in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Respondent filed an answer on July 22, 1993, denying the allegation and stating certain affirmative defenses. On July 26, 1993, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on August 4, 1993, and a prehearing conference held on October 14, 1993. At that time, the issues were isolated and a hearing scheduled for May 5 and 6, 1994, at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102. The petition of appeal was amended by order signed on February 14, 1994.

As a result of settlement conference held between the parties on May 5, 1994, a settlement was agreed to subject to ratification by respondent and the hearing was adjourned. The parties have prepared a Stipulation of Settlement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein. In addition, the agreement received formal ratification by respondent Board of Education on May 9, 1994.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6958-93
AGENCY DKT. NO. 252-7/93

SUE JANSSEN,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST ESSEX REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

This agreement is between Sue Janssen, petitioner, and the Board of Education of West Essex Regional School District, respondent (hereafter Board), and for the mutual promises and covenants contained herein, it is agreed as follows:

1. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen shall be assigned to work (4) four consecutive hours (8:00 a.m to noon), within which time she will be assigned to teach such number of French classes as the student enrollment warrants and as determined by the Administration. The remainder of the time not spent teaching classes will be assigned by the administration, in its discretion and as needed.

2. Sue Janssen shall be reimbursed in the total amount of $600.00 for courses taken during the 1993-94 school year.

3. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen will be enrolled in the Board's health insurance program as a full-time active member, with full payment of premiums paid by the Board. If possible, enrollment shall commence June 1, 1994. If not possible for enrollment to commence June 1, 1994, the Board shall reimburse Sue Janssen the COBRA payments associated with such coverage to the date enrollment commences.

4. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen shall be paid in accordance with the current formula for part-time teaching employees (i.e., # of classes divided by 5 times the salary associated with full-time status), regardless of the fact that she will be assigned to work on-site for four(4) hours per school day. However, if Sue Janssen is assigned the number of instructional classes which is considered full time under the Master Agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association, then she shall be paid in accordance therewith.

5. Except as contained herein, Sue Janssen shall receive only such other emoluments of employment to which she would otherwise be entitled as a part-time employee.

6. Nothing contained herein shall affect the managerial rights of the Board and Administration with respect to Sue Janssen's employment beyond the 1994-95 school year.

7. If Sue Janssen's employment during the 1995-96 school year results in a status for which health insurance is not provided by the Board, and, if Sue Janssen continues said benefits on COBRA, the Board agrees to reimburse the premiums associated with the first three (3) months of such coverage.

8. Each party agrees that there will be no unsubstantiated negative comments or criticisms concerning any aspect of Sue Janssen's employment or the Board's actions relating thereto.

9. This agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties on all issues and claims, including but not limited to those set forth in the instant matter (Dkt. No. EDU 6958-93), and the corollary matter pending before the Public Employment Relations Commission on behalf of Sue Janssen, and Sue Janssen does hereby expressly release and waive all such claims and agrees to dismiss all such actions.

10. This agreement shall be subject to formal ratification by the Board.

11. Each party represents that she/it has been duly represented by competent counsel, and that this agreement is entered into voluntarily. This agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

In witness whereof, the parties do sign on the date indicated.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WEST ESSEX REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND

SYNOPSIS

Following a RIF in 1993, petitioner sought reinstatement as a full-time teacher. Matter was settled. Closed case, however, was remanded in 1996, pursuant to order of Superior Court, for limited purpose of clarifying settlement terms.

On remand, ALJ concluded that based upon the language of the stipulation of settlement, as well as the plain language of the collective bargaining agreements between the Board and the Education Association for the years covering 1991 to 1994 and 1994 to 1997, the Board complied fully with the terms of the settlement agreement between petitioner and the Board. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

Procedural History

On July 2, 1993, petitioner, Sue Janssen, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent, Board of Education of the West Essex Regional School District, reduced petitioner in employment from a full-time French teacher to a two-fifths position as a French teacher in violation of N.J.S.A.

18A:28-9. Respondent filed an answer on July 22, 1993, denying the allegation and asserting affirmative defenses. On July 26, 1993, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

In May 1994, the parties entered into a stipulation of settlement with regard to the underlying merits. On July 27, 1994, the undersigned judge approved the settlement and ordered that the parties comply with the settlement terms. On September 2, 1994, the Commissioner of Education approved the settlement terms and adopted the settlement as the final decision in the matter.

After correspondence was exchanged regarding implementation of the settlement agreement, on or about November 3, 1995, petitioner filed a verified complaint along with a notice of motion to proceed summarily in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division. The Board filed an answer on or about December 12, 1995, and a cross-motion for summary judgment on or about December 29, 1995. After oral argument, the Honorable Jack Kirsten, J.S.C., on January 30, 1996, ordered that the matter be remanded to the Commissioner of Education for proceedings as he deems appropriate. The matter was thereafter filed with the Commissioner of Education, who transmitted the case back to the Office of Administrative Law on March 29, 1996. The case was assigned to the undersigned judge on April 11, 1996, and a telephone settlement conference was scheduled for June 6, 1996. The telephone conference was adjourned at the request of the parties and settlement negotiations were held. A conference was held on July 17, 1996, at which time a hearing was scheduled for August 26, 1996. On that date, settlement conferences were held, and the hearing was adjourned. After additional settlement conferences, it became apparent that a settlement could not be reached and the matter was scheduled for hearing on November 18, 1996. The case was adjourned at the request of counsel for respondent to November 21, 1996, and proceeded to hearing on that date. Witnesses who testified and exhibits considered in deciding this case are listed in the attached appendix.

Issue

At issue is whether the assignment to in-school suspension (ISS) is a class under the terms of the parties' settlement agreement of May 1994.

Undisputed Facts

It became clear at the hearing that several facts were essentially undisputed. They may be summarized as follows:

1. In pertinent part, the settlement agreement between the parties provides as follows:

> 1. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen shall be assigned to work (4) four consecutive hours (8:00 a.m. to noon), within which time she will be assigned to teach such number of French classes as the student enrollment warrants and as determined by the Administration. The remainder of the time not spent teaching classes will be assigned by the administration, in its discretion and as needed.
>
>
> 3. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen will be enrolled in the Board's health insurance program as a full-time active member, with full payment of premiums paid by the Board. If possible enrollment shall commence June 1, 1994. If not possible for enrollment to commence June 1, 1994, the Board shall reimburse Sue Janssen the COBRA payments associated with such coverage to the date enrollment commences.
> 4. For the 1994-95 school year only, Sue Janssen shall be paid in accordance with the current formula for part-time teaching employees (i.e., # of classes divided by 5 times the salary associated with full-time status), regardless of the fact that she will be assigned to work on-site for four (4) hours per school day. However, if Sue Janssen is assigned the > number of instructional classes which is considered full time under the Master Agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association, then she shall be paid in accordance therewith.

2. The provision regarding health insurance was included in the settlement agreement because Ms. Janssen needed to be enrolled as a full participant in the health insurance plan during the 1994-95 school year in order to qualify for lifetime health insurance benefits upon retirement (J-1, Ex. 8).

3. In order to be eligible for the full health insurance benefits provided by the Board, an employee must work full time, which is defined as no less than twenty hours a week. Therefore, in order for the petitioner to obtain the health insurance benefits she desired, the settlement had to require that she work on-site for four hours a day (J-1, Ex. 8).

4. The collective bargaining agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association does not govern the terms and conditions of employment of part-time teachers. Therefore, but for the settlement agreement between the Board and the petitioner, Ms. Janssen would not have received either health benefits or tuition reimbursement pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement.

5. In March 1995, the West Essex Education Association filed a Petition for Clarification of Unit with the Public Employment Relations Commission seeking to include part-time teachers in the bargaining unit (J-1, Ex. 8(E)). After review and consideration of the petition by the Public Employment Relations Commission and the arguments in opposition presented by the Board, the petition was withdrawn (J-1, Ex. 8(F)).

6. The agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association expired on June 30, 1994 (J-1, Ex. 8(G)). Prior to its expiration, the parties commenced collective bargaining for a successor agreement. The West Essex Education Association's contract proposals, dated March 7, 1994, proposed a change in Article 1 of the agreement in order to delete from the "Recognition" clause the term "full-time." This deletion would have ensured that the Association would have represented all certificated personnel, whether full-time or part-time (J-1, Ex. 8(H)). The Board opposed this language change throughout negotiations. When the final settlement was struck, the Association dropped this proposal. Accordingly, the collective bargaining agreement continued to contain the recognition of the Association as the representative for all "full-time" certificated teaching staff members.

7. During the 1994-95 school year, the petitioner was assigned two French classes. In addition, Ms. Janssen was also assigned to cover one period of ISS. The Board paid the petitioner two-fifths of her full-time salary, based upon her assignment of two instructional French classes. Ms. Janssen is only certified to teach French.

8. The ISS program was created as an alternative to out-of-school suspension. The in-school suspension is designed to be both educational and punitive. Students are assigned to ISS for one or more full days, depending on the offense that generates the assignment.

9. Every regular class teacher of each student in ISS is required to send an assignment for the day. The assignment must be completed during the period in which the student would have attended that class.

10. An ISS teacher need not have any specific teaching certification issued by the New Jersey Board of Examiners. The teacher assigned to cover ISS is responsible to see that each child is doing the work that has been assigned by the regular classroom teachers, and that the work is finished. Occasionally, the ISS teacher is asked to explain work to students. If a student has difficulty with a certain project and the teacher who gave the assignment is not available, the ISS teacher works with the student. There are no lesson plans for ISS.

11. The books used in ISS are the textbooks of the regular classes. The teacher covering ISS is responsible to approve that the work was completed at the end of the day. However, the ultimate grading of the students remains the responsibility of the regular classroom teachers. Attendance reporting is the same for ISS and study hall.

12. On many of the 180 school days, ISS has no students. Most students assigned to ISS serve only 1 to 3 days. There are approximately 650 students in each of two schools. Only about 40 to 50 students are assigned to ISS each school year.

13. During the 1994-95 school year, ISS operated on 95 out of a possible 182 school days (J-2). On 34 of those days, only 1 student attended; on 26 days, only 2 students attended; on 24 days, only 3 students attended; and on the remaining 11 days, either 4 or 5 students attended (J-2). Therefore, ISS only operated for 52 percent of the school year, and on 88 percent of the days on which ISS operated, there were 3 or fewer students in attendance (J-2).

14. Pursuant to Article 8 of the agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association, effective 1991-94 (J-1, Ex. 8(G)), full-time status required assignment to five instructional periods per day. However, in order to retain full-time status, teachers with four instructional classes would be assigned ISS.

15. Under the subsequent contract, effective 1994-97 (J-1, Ex. 8(D)), teachers would be considered full-time only when assigned to five instructional periods per day. In addition, the 1994-97 agreement contained the following grandfather provision:

> Effective with the 1996-97 school year, in-school suspension shall be considered a duty assignment, only. However, for the 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years, status quo shall prevail.
> [J-1, Ex. 8(D).]

Therefore, although the new agreement required teachers to teach five instructional periods per day to maintain full-time status, the grandfather provision permitted, for a two-year period, teachers to maintain full-time status by teaching four classes plus the assignment to ISS, as they had done under the former agreement.

Testimony

A teacher for twenty-six years in respondent's school district, Charles Small retired in June 1996. He is certified in English and general science, and holds an administrator's certificate. Small recalled that initially a different teacher taught each ISS period, and later two teachers each served for one-half day. In 1992 or 1993, the Board assigned him to serve as the full-time ISS teacher. He explained that a student in ISS received assignments from each regular class, and the student was required to complete each assignment. Noting that the Board wanted ISS to be educational as well as punitive, Small opined that he was chosen for the position because of his ability to discipline and to instruct in math, biology, chemistry, French, Latin and history. Many times a student needed help with an assignment, and he explained the work to the student. He said he held this job for two years, and recalled that the issue arose as to whether this would affect his pension. The State Division of Pensions indicated that this service would count towards his pension. Thus, he is on full retirement based on five periods of ISS, plus a duty period, for two years. After serving in that capacity for two years, he transferred to the junior high school as officer of attendance and discipline, a teaching position. He was also assigned to teach one class. In 1992-93, his assignment was ISS; in 1993-94, it was English. He noted that ISS is operational only for students on suspension. On days there were no students in ISS, he would help out in some other way.

On cross-examination, Small agreed that he did not prepare a lesson plan for ISS. He contended that ISS had a curriculum by policy. There are instructions on how to run ISS, which are not the same as for a study hall. Students read case studies of suspensions to determine how to better handle a situation. The ISS teacher keeps the students busy during the study period of ISS, and grades objective tests if requested to do so by the classroom teachers. The classroom teachers have the overall responsibility for the students in their respective subjects, and are responsible for grading the students.

Small further explained that all teacher evaluations are done by the administration. As officer of attendance and discipline, he was not authorized to formally evaluate ISS teachers. However, he submitted evaluations of programs. The evaluations of the ISS teachers were done by the administration. He was responsible for the students in the ISS program, and would convey to a teacher if a student was not working.

Small explained that there was constant change in the ISS class. Noting that the average suspension ran from 1 to 3 days, he stated that repetitions were common and a student could serve 9 to 15 days. The number of ISS students could be 40 to 50 of the 650 students in the school, a small percentage of the student body. There could be up to 60 days when there were no students in ISS. In 1994-95 he taught five instructional classes of English and had no oversight responsibility for ISS. Joan Oakley, assistant principal at the junior high school, was responsible for supervising ISS. In 1995-96 he was on leave.

On redirect examination, Small contended that ISS duties are different from other duties. The ISS teacher works with students that are more difficult to work with. He alleged that ISS was an instructional period. He had to explain, show, and teach, when necessary, and keep the students working and busy. The students were confined to one room for the entire day. A different teacher supervised them for the lunch period.

On recross-examination, Small recalled that he had in the past been assigned to study hall. Although he contended that students in study hall can work on what they choose, he admitted that students in study halls also ask for help.

During the 1994-95 school year, Sue Janssen taught two French classes and had ISS and study hall for one period each. Janssen contended that because of the settlement agreement in effect, she questioned Ms. Oakley about her schedule. Because she believed ISS was a class and she thought she was supposed to have a duty, Janssen asked Oakley to choose another assignment for her. Oakley said that she checked and that it did not matter in terms of the agreement. Janssen claimed that during study hall duty she could read the paper and correct papers. She was not responsible for overseeing whether the students finished their work. In ISS, she would not know what was "on the plate" for that day. Duties were posted in the room for each period. She had to be available to help the students and to see whether their work for each period had been completed. She admitted that there were days with no students in ISS. On those days she checked the office to see if they needed additional coverage or she worked in the MAC lab. During school years 1992-93 and 1993-94, she was a full-time teacher. ISS was her fifth class, and she had a duty period. Charles Small was responsible for ISS in 1992-93 and 1993-94.

On cross-examination, Janssen indicated that in 1994-95 there could have been 30 days or more without students in ISS. On most days there were 3 or 4 students; the average stay was 1 to 3 days. An attendance sheet was in the ISS room. She revealed that 90 percent of the work for the students came from the classroom teacher. If a teacher was absent or unavailable, Janssen would find appropriate work for the student. She would write a specific assignment and the student could utilize the books in ISS. In general, she would approve or disapprove the work by determining whether the classroom assignment had been completed and the directions followed, i.e., if the student stayed on task. She would not grade the work unless it was an objective test and she was asked to. The classroom teachers evaluated the students' work. She would help a student who could not work on his own. She alleged that in study hall she had a roll book and had to make sure the students were there. She answered questions, although this was not part of the description of study hall. There was no attendance taken for hall or cafeteria duty.

Janssen agreed that she received health insurance benefits because of the settlement agreement. Under the agreement, her assignments other than the two French classes would be duty assignments, at the discretion of the administration. She indicated that there could be 3, 4 or 24 students in study hall. Although there were usually students present, there could be up to 10 days without students. Janssen stated that if there were no ISS students, she was assigned elsewhere by the principal.

On recross-examination, Janssen admitted that she had been covered by the collective bargaining agreement in 1992-93 and 1993-94. In 1994-95 she was part time, and she was not sure whether she was covered by the collective bargaining agreement that year. (She paid dues to the association, but was not sure if she paid 100 percent.) On further questioning, Janssen indicated that in 1992-93 and 1993-94, if there were no ISS students she had a free period. Since there was an agreement for 1994-95, she made sure she reported if no students were present.

Dr. Gary Vitta, superintendent of schools since 1992-93, has a bachelor of science degree in chemistry and a master of science degree in biology education, a professional diploma in school administration, and a doctorate in education. He is certified in New Jersey in school administration and science, certified in New York in science, and holds a New York City license in biology, chemistry and general science. Vitta served as assistant superintendent in 1991-92 and assistant to the superintendent and science supervisor from 1989 to 1991, when J. Hand was the superintendent. Hand subsequently retired.

Vitta asserted that ISS is a structured duty assignment. He opined that it is not an instructional period; no certification is required. He pointed out that there were only six ISS sessions at the junior high school in 1996-97. There is no justification for paying one-fifth salary when no lesson plans are required, and there is no course of study or grading. He explained that before he became superintendent, if a teacher taught four-fifths the Board would allow the teacher to utilize the ISS period to add one-fifth to equal a full-time teacher. This was a courtesy by the Board. There are teachers with five instructional periods that had ISS as a duty period.

Vitta alleged that Small was given a full load of ISS to retain teachers. It was a courtesy by the superintendent to the union. He opined that this was wrong. ISS is supervised study. Since 1992, it has been supervised on a period-by-period basis. He further indicated that a study hall teacher supervises students and does not read the newspaper; it is not a free period. A teacher prepares for lessons during a preparation period. He indicated that the high school has more students in ISS than the junior high school. The ISS teacher monitors students as in a study hall and performs a supervisory function. ISS is a more structured environment than study hall. Since the individual teacher is probably not certified in each area of study, he queried how the teacher could assist a student. The teacher can only make sure that the work gets done.

Vitta recommended the settlement agreement to the Board. He understood that Janssen was to teach two French classes. She would be in the building 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. and could be assigned any other assignment that he wished to give her. Therefore, Janssen could retain her health benefits. In 1994-95, under the collective bargaining agreement, part-time teachers were not eligible for benefits. Thus, without the settlement agreement Janssen would not have received health benefits or tuition reimbursement. He alleged that the Board agreed to the settlement out of kindness. He indicated that ISS and study hall are not instructional classes. An instructional class requires that a teacher be certified to teach a particular subject.

On cross-examination, Vitta admitted that in 1994-95, due to his kindness and without an agreement, other part-time employees received tuition reimbursement. He explained that Small was not in jeopardy of losing his job. However, due to declining enrollment and reductions, a position such as Small's was probably created to save another English teacher's job (with less seniority) or increase class size. He did not know how Small's position was reported to the State. He further explained that the Board, out of courtesy to the union, had been willing to allow a teacher to teach four instructional periods and have an ISS assignment to receive full-time status. This has since been negotiated out of the contract. Although in 1994-95 and 1995-96 the status quo remained in order to reach an agreement, for 1996-97 ISS is only a duty assignment. He did not know the ISS attendance figures for 1994-95. An ISS teacher is free if there are no students in ISS.

Vitta recalled no discussions regarding the distinction between a class and an instructional class in the agreement. He opined that in 1994-95, Janssen was assigned to a duty. He understood that Janssen could be assigned to anything else, and that only French would count as an instructional period. Although he did not recall if Vice Principal Oakley called him, he recalled that he told August Belotti, the junior high school principal, that he could assign Janssen to anything. He did not recall Belotti saying that Janssen was concerned that ISS was an instructional period, and was totally shocked by her lawsuit. On redirect examination, he indicated there are teachers who teach three or less periods and are paid the same as petitioner. They do not receive health benefits.

Findings of Fact

I have considered the testimony adduced at the hearing and am persuaded by the testimony of Dr. Gary Vitta, who I found to be credible and worthy of belief. Dr. Vitta was in a position to observe ISS and had overall supervisory authority. As such, I found his view of ISS to be valuable and reasonable. I therefore make the following findings of fact:

Dr. Gary Vitta, the superintendent of schools for the West Essex Regional School District, presented the proposed settlement of the underlying litigation to the Board in the spring of 1994. Dr. Vitta told the Board that, pursuant to the terms of the settlement, Janssen would be teaching two French classes; she would be present in the district for four hours each day (8:00 a.m. to noon); the administration was free to assign Janssen to other duties in the best interest of the students; Janssen's health benefits would be paid by the district; and Janssen would receive tuition reimbursement for courses taken during the 1993-94 school year. Janssen was assigned to monitor ISS. ISS was considered to be a structured duty assignment. Supervision of ISS was similar to supervision of the cafeteria or of study hall, in that the teacher supervised and assisted students and gave guidance upon request. ISS was not considered, for purposes of Janssen's assignment, to be an instructional "class."

Discussion

Petitioner argues that paragraph four of the stipulation of settlement provided that she would be paid for the number of classes divided by five and multiplied by the salary that she would have received had she been full-time. That language contains no modifier; it does not say the number of French classes, the number of teaching classes or even the number of instructional classes, merely the number of classes. Based upon this, petitioner argues that in 1994-95, ISS was "still being treated and considered as a class," not a duty. Thus, Janssen should have been paid three-fifths of her full-time salary. Respondent argues that ISS is not a class, and therefore petitioner cannot claim entitlement to an extra one-fifth salary. Respondent further argues that the collective bargaining agreement relied upon by petitioner to support the conclusion that ISS should be considered a class does not apply to part-time teachers and, even assuming arguendo that it does apply to petitioner, the Board has still complied with the terms of the settlement agreement.

I have considered the arguments of counsel and must agree with the position espoused by respondent. First, it is clear that based upon the undisputed facts and findings of fact, ISS is not a "class." Rather, the facts substantiate that ISS is a structured duty for which no additional compensation is warranted. The ISS teacher does not prepare lesson plans, curricula or courses of study for ISS. Rather, the ISS teacher is responsible to insure that each student is doing the work assigned by the regular classroom teachers and that the work is completed. Although the ISS teacher may be asked questions by the students, this does not make the ISS assignment a class. The ISS teacher is not certified to teach all of the subjects that the students in ISS are taking. The simple fact that the teacher may assist a student does not make this assignment a class. Clearly, this duty is not even an everyday duty. If no students are assigned to ISS, there is no ISS.

Second, I am in agreement with respondent that the collective bargaining agreement relied upon by petitioner does not apply to part-time teachers. It is clear from the joint exhibits that part-time employees were not part of the unit represented by the association. As set forth by respondent, only full-time staff were covered by the agreement, and therefore the petitioner's reliance upon any clause in the agreement is without merit.

Third, and most important, I CONCLUDE that respondent has complied with the terms of the settlement agreement. This is true, as respondent points out, even if the collective bargaining agreement is applicable to petitioner. Clearly, the stipulation of settlement was specific to the parties. It set forth the specific terms of the resolution of the lawsuit brought by petitioner to challenge a reduction in force. As stated by respondent, one of the main interests on the part of petitioner, with respect to the resolution of the underlying litigation, was eligibility for health benefits in order to be eligible upon retirement for free lifetime health insurance benefits. However, in order to be eligible for health benefits, an employee of the West Essex Regional School District was required to work full time, defined as twenty hours a week or more. Clearly, it was believed that the maximum number of instructional classes anticipated for Janssen for the 1994-95 school year was two. Thus, paragraph one specified that Sue Janssen would be assigned to work four consecutive hours, which resulted in a work load of twenty hours per week and eligibility for health insurance.

Janssen's assignment would consist of such number of French classes as student enrollment warranted and as determined by the administration, with the remainder of the time not spent teaching French classes to be assigned by the administration in its discretion and as needed to benefit the students of the district. The payment to the petitioner for the classes assigned would be "in accordance with the current formula for part-time teaching employees (i.e., # of classes divided by 5 times the salary associated with full-time status), regardless of the fact that she [would] be assigned to work on site for 4 hours per school day." This sentence specifies with clarity the financial obligation of the district to Ms. Janssen with respect to instructional classes assigned and the additional duties which could be incorporated in the four-hour work day.

The language in the stipulation of settlement was clear and specific with respect to the rights and obligations of the parties on the issue of monies owed and assignment of time. However, and as pointed out by respondent, petitioner's counsel wanted wording in the settlement agreement that would protect the petitioner in the remote event that a full-time position (or additional French classes) became available. A change in the financial obligation would only occur if petitioner was assigned "the number of instructional classes which is considered full time under the Master Agreement between the Board and the West Essex Education Association." As pointed out by respondent, this contingency was not met.

Clearly, respondent complied with the terms of the settlement agreement by assigning Janssen to other duties in the best interests of the students and paying Janssen for the number of classes divided by five times the salary associated with full-time status. Furthermore, and as pointed out by respondent, even if the collective bargaining agreement applied to Janssen, full-time status required assignment pursuant to that agreement to at least four instructional periods per day. During the term of that agreement, teachers would be assigned to cover ISS in addition to their four instructional classes. Under the subsequent contract, effective 1994 to 1997, however, teachers would be considered full-time only when assigned to five instructional periods per day. In addition, the latter agreement contained a grandfather provision allowing the status quo in regard to ISS to prevail for the 1994-95 and 1995-96 school years. Thus, although the new agreement required teachers to teach five instructional periods per day to maintain full-time status, the grandfather provision permitted teachers, for a two-year period, to maintain full-time status by teaching four classes as long as they were assigned to ISS, as under the former agreement. However, and as pointed out by respondent, under no circumstances did the agreement contemplate that ISS would be considered an instructional "class." Janssen, certified to teach French and having been assigned to two instructional French periods per day, could not be the beneficiary of any language contained within Article 8 of the contract. Quite simply, she did not teach four or five instructional periods.

I therefore CONCLUDE that based upon the language of the stipulation of settlement, as well as the plain language of the collective bargaining agreements between the Board and the West Essex Education Association for the years covering 1991 to 1994 and 1994 to 1997, the Board complied fully with the stipulation of settlement between petitioner and the Board.

Order

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition of appeal is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge, for the reasons expressed therein, that the Board complied with the terms of the settlement agreement between petitioner and the Board by assigning petitioner to other staff duties and paying petitioner for the number of classes divided by five times the salary associated with full-time status.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

Record Closed: July 14, 1994 Decided: July 14, 1994

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a petition filed by Steve Dorsey and others alleging irregularities and/or violations of law in the conduct of the annual school election held in Haddon Heights Borough. On May 11, 1994, the matter was transmaitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was scheduled before the undersigned for July 20, 1994. The parties have submitted the attached, signed Stipulation of Dismissal which was received on July 14, 1994.

I CONCLUDE that the matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law. It is ORDERED that this matter be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, incorporating a "Stipulation of Dismissal" based on the parties' having "amicably adjusted" their differences, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds no basis on which he can ascertain the terms of the "adjustment" reached by the parties in this matter. Because the case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested matter pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B, the specific terms of any settlement must be spread on the record pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 so that the Commissioner may review them prior to making a final decision on the recommendation of the ALJ.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is remanded for supplementation of the record consistent with N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Record Closed: October 3, 1994 Decided: October 5, 1994

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

The Commissioner of Education has remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law requesting that the terms of the agreement between the parties be placed upon the record. In July 1994 the parties had submitted a signed Stipulation of Dismissal, reciting only that the matter had been amicably adjusted between the parties, and based upon that document the undersigned had recommended that the matter be dismissed. The parties have now submitted a document entitled Release Agreement executed on July 11, 1994 which contains the terms of their agreement. A copy of that document and the Stipulation of Dismissal originally submitted, are attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RELEASE AGREEMENT

This RELEASE AGREEMENT dated 7/11/94, 1994, is given

BY the Releasor(s) STEVE DORSEY of 133 Third Avenue, Haddon Heights, New Jersey 08035, hereinafter referred to as "Dorsey",

and

EDWARD J. SNYDER, Superintendant, Haddon Heights School District, Administration Building, 300 Second Avenue, Haddon Heights, New Jersey 08035-1408, hereinafter referred to as "Snyder".

If more than one person signs this Release, "I" shall mean such person who signs this Release.

1. RELEASE. Dorsey and Snyder release and give up any and all claims and rights which either of them may have against the other. This Release applies to claims against either of the parties resulting from anything which happened up to now involving the 1994 annual school election of Haddon Heights Boro. Dorsey specifically releases the following claims:

Any and all claims arising from a dispute originating from the April 25, 1994, letter to Dr. Leo Klagholz, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, from Dorsey, alleging violations of school law process. This letter was subsequently accepted as a claim and complaint by the Office of Administrative Law under OAL Docket No. EDU 04529-94 S with Agency Reference No. 100-4/94 with a filing date of May 11, 1994.

IT IS FURTHER UNDERSTOOD that Snyder, as Superintendant, shall not offer any type of incentives to individuals or groups of individuals, directly or indirectly, who are within the Haddon Heights Boro School District, for the purpose or intent of induceing voters to vote on any school issue in the future. Specifically, no pizza parties or other forms of inducement utilizing Haddon Heights students will take place in the Haddon Heights school system in order to encourage voters to vote on any school issue. Dorsey agrees to not publish, print or use the facts of this alleged incident, the Order dismissal or this Release Agreement in any public manner, nor publish or communicate the facts of this incident through any organization of which he is a member, nor will he distribute these forms and information to any organization in any manner.

IT IS EXPRESSLY UNDERSTOOD by Dorsey and Snyder and agreed by both that the acceptance of and the signing of this Release Agreement is in full accord and satisfaction and in compromise of all disputed claims that either may have against the other and that the signing of this Release Agreement is not admission of liability or wrongdoing on either parties' part, but is made expressly for the purpose of terminating all disputes between the parties.

IT IS FURTHER UNDERSTOOD that this Release Agreement releases the parties named above and any organization such as the Haddon Heights Board of Education in regard to Snyder and any voter's group represented by/or associated with Dorsey.

2. WHO IS BOUND. Both Dorsey and Snyder are bound by this Release Agreement. Additionally, anyone who succeeds to their interest, rights and responsibilities are also bound. This Release Agreement is made for their benefit and all who succeed to their rights and responsibilities.

For the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, pro se

For the Respondents, Russell E. Paul, Esq.

This matter having been opened to the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition and Motion for Emergent Relief filed on or about April 15, 1994, to require the Board and its superintendent to take certain actions relating to the development of various Educational Improvement Plans pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.1 et seq. and to require the superintendent and the Board to submit names of teachers who could not be rehired for lack of funding for certain positions prior to a vote on April 18, 1994, the working day following the filing of the petition. The petition requested that the budget for 1994-95 be declared null and void as deceptive. The 1994-95 school budget election was scheduled for April 19, 1994. The emergent relief request as it relates to nonrenewal of staff and the 1994-95 budget election became moot on April 19, 1994.

In light of the nature of the allegations contained in the petition, the Board of Education was directed to, and did file, an Answer April 25, 1994.

In order to establish entitlement to interim relief, petitioner must meet the standards set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

In the present matter, petitioner alleges that irreparable harm will be experienced because the Board was presenting a knowingly deceptive budget for approval by the public. Petitioner alleges:

> The budget purports to cut seven teaching positions yet the administration has insisted, in public meetings, that no teachers would be cut. Trying to have it both ways the Board and Superintendent have initiated a scheme by which the EIP Funds, earmarked for local school allocation and designed NOT to be controlled by central administration, would be diverted to sustaining the seven "cut" teachers. The present course of conduct by the Board and Superintendent has already tainted the EIP process by predisposing the EIP Planning Teams towards one of the fifteen demonstrably effective improvement strategies and programs set out by the New Jersey Department of Education and having done so without input from the parents, staff, community members or students, in a "top down" management technique which presented the team with incomplete information and attempted to deal with system wide policy concerns instead of school oriented ones.

The Board, in response, asserts that petitioner has failed to meet all prongs of the Crowe standard. First, there will be no irreparable harm in that no teacher or other staff member has been harmed and that no student will be deprived of a thorough and efficient education. The Board, further, asserts that the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is unsettled and that all material facts are in dispute.

The Commissioner, having carefully considered the pleadings and briefs of the parties, hereby denies the Motion for Emergent Relief for the reasons set forth herein and failure to establish entitlement thereto under the standards articulated in Crowe, supra, and directs that this matter be transmitted forthwith to the Office of Administrative Law for plenary hearing.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9859-94
AGENCY DKT. N0. 79-4/94

THIS MATTER being brought before the Honorable Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ, by the parties, Robert C. Litwack, Esquire appearing on behalf of the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, and Russell E. Paul, Esquire, appearing on behalf of the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville

AND IT APPEARING, that a Petition was filed in the above-captioned matter by Steven W. Litwack, Petitioner, and served on or about April 14, 1994 upon the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, and this matter is currently before this Court for a hearing,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, alleged that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, had violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.1 et seq in that Petitioner alleged that the Respondent had improperly adopted an Educational Improvement Plan (EIP) for the School Year 1994-1995,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack alleged that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville had placed a total of 7 teaching positions in jeopardy of being terminated as a result of the aforesaid alleged improper course of conduct as to the adoption of an EIP plan for the 1994-1995 School Year,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, alleged that various meetings of the EIP Planning Teams were either not held and/or were improperly held or that the public was excluded from said meetings, or that results of said meetings were ignored by the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, alleged that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, in various manners as set forth in the Petition, did act arbitrarily and capriciously in an attempt to allegedly misuse and/or improperly allocate EIP funds,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, has denied all of the aforesaid allegations by the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, and a hearing has been scheduled in this matter,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, and the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, have held discussions concerning an amicable resolution of this case without the need for said hearing and without the need for further contentious litigation,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that on April 18, 1994 the School Budget was adopted by a majority of the voters at the regular School Election,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that during the 1994-1995 School Year same was completed without any reduction in teaching staff or dismissal of any teachers in any way related to EIP funding,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that this year's (1995-1996) Educational Improvement Plan (EIP Plan) has been submitted to the EIP Planning Teams with appropriate public input, public hearings, etc. in a manner that is acceptable to the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack and that certain alleged changes in the procedures for adopting and implementing the 1995-1996 EIP Plan were used by the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, as set forth in this action and as recommended by the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack,

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING, that the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, believes that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, has reacted to his recommendations as set forth in this action in a positive fashion, and has adopted same as to the 1995-1996 EIP Plan, and that continuation of this litigation would be adverse to the goals espoused by the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack, that the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, has shown good faith, and for good cause shown

IT IS ORDERED this 19th day of October, 1995, by way of a Preliminary Recommendation to the Commissioner of Education by Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ , both the Petitioner, Steven W. Litwack and the Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, consenting thereto as follows:

1. The above-captioned matter shall be and is hereby dismissed with prejudice.

2. The Respondent, Board of Education of the City of Millville, agrees that it shall strictly adhere to all requirements for the adoption of an Educational Improvement Plan as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.1 et seq, together with any other applicable laws, rules, or regulations appropriate for the adoption and implementation of Educational Improvement Plans.

EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ

Dated: October 19, 1995.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizens requested election inquiry, alleging improprieties in building referendum sufficient to affect outcome of the voting. Petitioners alleged violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 and 18A:42-4.

ALJ concluded that the record did not substantiate that the irregularities established affected the outcome of the election within the meaning of that standard as interpreted by the courts. Moreover, ALJ concluded that although the irregularities in the election were not sufficient to require a new election, the Board was ordered to review and receive instruction on school election statutes well in advance of the next school election.

Commissioner, in considering the nature of the irregularities which occurred, deemed it appropriate to direct the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a review of the practices and procedures utilized by the Board in this election and to report to the Board such corrective action in policy and procedure for its implementation as will assure the proper conduct and integrity of all future elections. Commissioner dismissed petition.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3069-94

AGENCY DKT. NO. 57-3/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF COLTS NECK TOWNSHIP

Vincent W. Domidion, II, for petitioners, pro se

Francis J. Campbell, Esq.. for respondent (Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 30, 1994 Decided: July 18, 1994

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

In November 1993 and March 1994 the Colts Neck Board of Education put bond issue referendums before the public. The November referendum lost. The March referendum, held on the 22nd, was approved by a margin of four votes.

On March 25, a group of Colts Neck residents called the Colts Neck Citizens Alliance filed a request for an inquiry per N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 with the Commissioner of Education. The group alleged violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-7, Printed matter in elections to show source of payment and printer, and of N.J.S.A. 18A:42-4, Distribution of literature as to candidacy, bond issues, or other public question to be submitted at election; prohibited.

The Department of Education transmitted to the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

The matter was set down for hearing on May 31, 1994, at the Freehold Township Municipal Court. Upon convening the hearing, I asked the petitioners if the Colts Neck Citizens Alliance was a corporation. The group's representative said that it is. Pursuant to R. 1:21-1 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.4, I informed the petitioners that they could not appear as a corporation without counsel and gave them seven days in which to decide on a course of action. The petitioners timely submitted a certification to the effect that they are bringing the action as private citizens and not as the incorporated Alliance.

While the petitioners considered their options, I received a copy of a Commissioner of Education decision dated May 17, 1994 and announcing a recount of the votes cast on March 22, showed no change. The totals were 1,152 yes votes and 1,148 no votes.

The matter was heard on June 30, 1994, at the Freehold Borough Municipal Court. Six persons testified and thirty-nine documents were entered in evidence.

From the evidence adduced, I FIND:

1. At least four pieces of literature favoring passage of the referendum were mailed by the Coalition for Colts Neck Schools, an unincorporated group of residents. The pieces do not bear adequate identification per N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97.

2. At least twenty pieces of literature, including a poster, were distributed in the period February 1992 - April 1994 by the Board and/or the Parent-Teacher Organization.

3. Some of the twenty distributed pieces were given to and carried home by pupils.

4. Some of the twenty pieces are content neutral, and some are arguably pro-referendum.

5. Exhibits P-1, P-2, P-3, P-4, P-10, P-11, P-12, P-21, P-24, P-29 and P-39, in whole or in part, urge support of budgets and referendums.

6. Exhibit P-39, a poster, apparently was produced using school equipment and supplies.

7. The superintendent approved circulation of Exhibit P-10.

8. After reflection, the superintendent believed the flyer (P-10) could be construed as an attempt to influence votes.

9. He contacted the P-TO president and informed her the piece had to be changed, that any meeting on school grounds had to be for information purposes only and that materials carried home by pupils had to be content neutral per Board policy.

10. The superintendent credibly testified that it was his responsibility to ensure that P-TO documents do not violate Board policy and that he was not sufficiently vigilant as to Exhibit P-10. He apologized for this lapse at a public meeting.

11. No evidence was adduced tending to show that any of the above circumstances led to the casting of unlawful votes or barring lawful ballots to be cast.

DETERMINATION

This decision addresses two issues. First, is whether unlawful votes were cast or lawful votes were prevented in the March 1994 referendum by the forces in play. Second, whether Board policy, State administrative code or statues, or any of these, were violated in connection with the referendum.

For the reasons that follow, I CONCLUDE that no lawful votes were prevented and no unlawful votes were allowed. The law in this area is well settled. In an action for declaratory judgment that a school bond election was invalid on the grounds that expenditures of money for distribution of booklets advocating a favorable vote at election and that the exposure of school children to a pre-election radio broadcast by the district board of education were illegal, even if the acts were illegal they were insufficient to invalidate an election already held. Therefore, any issues relating to the election were moot. Citizens to Protect Public Funds v. Board of Education Parsippany-Troy Hills, 13 N.J. 172, 98 A.2d 673 (1953).

In the same year, the New Jersey Supreme Court approved a decision of the Law Division in Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185, A.2d 573 (1953). In the Law Division decision, Joseph L. Smith, JSC, stated:

> The rule in our State is firmly established that if any irregularity or any other deviation from the election law by the election officials is to adjudged to have the affect of invalidating a vote or an election, were the statute does not so expressly provide, there must be a connection between such irregularity and the result of the election; that is, the irregularity must be the producing cause of illegal votes which would not have been cast or of defeating legal votes which would have been counted, had the irregularity had not taken place, and to an extent to challenge or change the > result of the election; or it must be shown that the irregularity in some other way influenced the election so as to have repressed a full and free expression of the popular will. Nothing of this kind is even charged or suggested in the instant case. 26 N.J. Super. at 383; 97 A.2d 748.

> [Emphasis supplied]

The petitioners in this case are sure that the irregularities found influenced the election so as to have repressed a full and free expression of the popular will. What they have shown, however, is at best a possibility. In a matter of this type, the standard is probability, not possibility. Nothing in this record shows that any of the irregularities produced illegal votes or defeated legal votes.

The subject referendum apparently aroused high feeling in segments of the community. High feeling and a sense of unfair treatment may not substitute for carrying the burden of persuasion. In short, there is no nexus between the irregularities noted and thwarting the will of the electorate. Accordingly, that part of the petition that speaks to the irregularities as being the definitive cause of votes that helped to carry the referendum is DISMISSED.

There remain, however, several disquieting conclusions that must be addressed. It is clear that the Board and its agents were less the diligent concerning adherence to Board policy and N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97 and more particularly N.J.S.A. 18A: 42-4. The Coalition for Colts Neck Schools is not before me. It must be noted that that group failed to show sufficiently the source of payment and the printer on printed matter that it distributed.

The Board's lapses cannot be overlooked. As the Commissioner of Education has often stated, a great responsibility rests with schools officials for the proper conduct of all elections. See, In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of the City of Camden, 1977 S.L.D. 927. I CONCLUDE that, although the irregularities in the election were not sufficient to require that a new election be held, they be addressed as follows. It is ORDERED that the Colts Neck Township Board of Education and superintendent confer with the Monmouth County superintendent of schools well in advance of the next school election to review and receive instruction on the school election statutes. The Colts Neck Board of Education and all boards of education are reminded that assiduous adherence to the election statutes is the minimum, not that maximum, required.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF COLTS NECK	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners except to the ALJ's conclusion that "there is no nexus between the irregularities noted and thwarting the will of the electorate." (See Initial Decision at page 5.) They contend that Exhibits 10, 11, 12 and 39 clearly had an impact on the understanding of issues in the community sufficient to influence the decision of the voters. (Petitioners' Exceptions, at p. 1) Petitioners argue that in an election decided by merely four votes, they are certain of the probability that the referendum would have been defeated if the irregularities demonstrated in this matter had not occurred and the public had been accurately informed. Petitioners, therefore, urge the Commissioner to overturn the ALJ's decision.

In reply, the Board asserts that in order to reject the initial decision, the Commissioner would have to ignore long-established standards as to the type and quality of proofs required to set aside results of an election in New Jersey. (See In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363 (Law Div. 1953), aff'd sub nom Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185 (1953).) It contends that competent proofs, that charged violations altered the election outcome which otherwise would have resulted, are necessary to impugn election results, not merely petitioners' unsubstantiated "assumptions" as to how anyone voted. The Board avers there was no proof whatsoever presented by petitioners that any individual was prevented from voting or that any individual's vote was changed by any of the irregularities alleged in this matter.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the within record does not substantiate that the irregularities found to have occurred in this matter affected the outcome of the election within the meaning of that standard as long interpreted by the courts. Notwithstanding petitioners' assertions that such irregularities necessarily tainted the results of the election, it must be emphasized that in order for the extraordinary remedy of a new election to be granted, petitioner must prove that the violations at issue either produced illegal votes which would otherwise not have been cast, or defeated legal votes which would have been counted but for the violation, and which would, if counted, have changed the outcome of the election. See In re Wene, supra. Mere speculation that results might have been different if conditions had been different, will not suffice to meet this standard. See Matter of Mallon, 232 N.J. Super. 249 (App. Div. 1989); In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of the Township of Pennsauken, Camden County, 92

N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 396; and In the Matter of the Annual School Election in the School District of Riverside Township, Burlington County, 1968 S.L.D. 73.

In arriving at the above determination, however, the Commissioner cannot ignore those findings in the initial decision which clearly reveal that the Board was less than diligent in its adherence to Board policy and certain statutory requirements governing school elections. It is axiomatic that a great responsibility rests with boards of education and their agents with respect to assuring the proper conduct and integrity of school elections. As such, boards and their agents must be fully familiar with all facets of their duties and the specific statutes which control election violations. Therefore, in considering the nature of the irregularities which occurred in the instant matter, the Commissioner deems it appropriate to direct the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a review of the practices and procedures utilized by the Board in this election and to report to the Board such corrective action in policy and procedure for its implementation as will assure the proper conduct and integrity of all future elections. It is so directed.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF ELLEN RUBIN, STATE- : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE : DECISION
CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning District certified Four Charges (incompetence, use of profane language, unjustified physical contact with pupils and dereliction of duties/insubordination) against tenured elementary teacher.

In light of testimony of witnesses and written evaluations, ALJ found that the petitioning district met its burden of proof in most respects. ALJ affirmed Charge One (incompetence) except that pertaining to allegations of poor relations of parents and staff members, affirmed Charge Two (conduct unbecoming a teacher), dismissed Charge Three (unjustified physical contact), dismissed the allegation of dereliction of duty pertaining to January 10, 1992 in Charge Four and dismissed the allegation of insubordination referenced in Charge Four but affirmed the charge of dereliction of duty pertaining to January 21, 1993. ALJ ordered respondent dismissed from her employment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed from her teaching position as of the date of this decision and referred matter to State Board of Examiners for appropriate action.

Record Closed: June 7, 1994 Decided: July 22, 1994

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 1, 1993, a statement of charges pertaining to Ellen Rubin (Rubin or respondent) was issued to the State Operated School District of the City of Paterson (District or petitioner). On September 30, 1993, the District certified charges to the Commissioner of the State Department of Education (Department) and suspended Rubin without pay. Respondent requested a hearing. The matter was transmitted by the Department to the Office of Administrative Law on November 8, 1993 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Telephone conferences were conducted throughout the proceedings. Hearings were held on February 10, February 16, March 8, March 10, March 11, March 15, April 22, April 28, and May 12, 1994. The parties thereafter filed post-hearing briefs. The record was closed on June 7, 1994, the date of receipt of the last document.

NATURE OF THE CASE

Rubin is charged with being incompetent, use of profane language, unjustified physical contact with pupils, and dereliction of duties/insubordination. Prior to the commencement of hearings, respondent moved for dismissal of certain of the charges, alleging that they, in effect, constituted charges of inefficiency and that petitioner did not comply with procedural requirements pertaining to such charges. I denied this motion. That ruling is incorporated herein.

Charge One alleges incompetence during the period from September 1991 to June 1993. More specifically, the District alleges that respondent failed to enforce school policies and procedures; failed to maintain effective classroom control, risking the safety and health of students; failed to manage behavior of students through effective classroom discipline, requiring significant administrative intervention; failed to improve the delivery of instruction despite significant assistance from administrative staff; failed to effectively plan classroom instruction; failed to maintain a climate conducive to effective classroom instruction; and demonstrated poor relations with parents and staff members and made inappropriate and inflammatory remarks.

Charge Two alleges use of profane language, more specifically, that on October 26, 1992, respondent called a student, D.J., an "ass" during class and that on March 24, 1993, she referred to another student, S.R., as an "f---ing, brat" during class.

Charge Three alleges unjustified physical contact on January 10, 1992. More specifically, petitioner alleges that respondent physically grabbed and scratched a student, R.C., in efforts to discipline him, that respondent used physical force on students on other dates, and that respondent's actions were unwarranted under the circumstances and in violation of school policies.

Charge Four alleges dereliction of duties/insubordination, more specifically, that on several occasions, Rubin risked the safety of students and exhibited disrespect to follow teaching staff members. Petitioner alleges that on January 10, 1992, Marion Rabel (Rabel), principal of the District's School No. 8 (School 8), relieved respondent of classroom teaching duties for failure to supervise her (Rubin's) class. It is charged that respondent permitted students in her fifth-grade class to play, dance on tables, move furniture, and engage in dangerous behavior, causing excessive noise, disturbing other classes. Finally, it is alleged that on January 23, 1993, respondent allowed a student, J.I., to light and play with matches in class and failed to take action.

At the commencement of hearings, petitioner moved to amend Charge One to reflect allegations of incompetency commencing January 1989. This motion was opposed by respondent, and I denied it. That ruling is incorporated herein.

STIPULATIONS

The parties entered into the following stipulations of facts:

1. The District hired respondent as an unassigned teacher on December 1, 1987. Respondent was assigned to District School No. 18. Peter J. Wild was the building principal, and Anthony Martucci was the vice-principal.

2. On April 28, 1989, the District Superintendent advised Rubin that she would not be reappointed for the 1989-1990 school year.

3. On September 1, 1989, the District Superintendent transferred respondent to School 8 as an elementary teacher-unassigned. George Roberto was the principal, and Lourdes Rodriguez was the vice-principal.

4. On September 14, 1989, the District Superintendent recommended, and the Board of Education approved, respondent's reappointment as an unassigned teacher.

5. On October 23, 1989, Rubin was assigned to the position of elementary teacher.

6. On September 1, 1990, respondent was transferred to School No. 5. Ronald Sherman was the principal, and Anabel Saal (Saal) was the vice-principal.

7. Respondent received tenure as a teacher on December 2, 1990.

8. On January 31, 1991, respondent was transferred back to School 8 to a Basic Skills Instructor (BSI) position. On February 1, 1991, Rabel was promoted from mathemathics resource room teacher to vice-principal at School 8.

9. During the 1991-1992 school year, Rabel was appointed principal at School 8. Michael Osofsky (Osofsky) became the new vice-principal. Rubin was assigned to teach a fifth-grade class at School 8. Respondent was observed on the following dates:

   a. December 5, 1991 (Ex. J-1),
   b. December 11, 1991 (Ex. J-2),
   c. December 13, 1991 (Ex. J-3), and
   d. January 8, 1992 (Ex. J-4).

10. On January 10, 1992, Rabel relieved respondent of the latter's teaching duties (Ex. J-5).

11. On January 14, 1992, Rabel completed a year-end evaluation of respondent. (Ex. J-6).

12. On May 27, 1992, Rabel recommended to the District's Superintendent Albert Vasquez (Vasquez) that respondent's increment be withheld (Ex. J-7). On June 1, 1992, State District Superintendent Dr. Laval S. Wilson

(Wilson) acted to withhold respondent's salary increment for the 1992-1993 school year (Ex. J-8). Due to procedural deficiencies, the increment was later restored (Ex. J-9).

13. On September 1, 1992, respondent was transferred to School No. 4 (School 4) to an at-risk adjunct teacher position, Paradigm Pioneer (Paradigm) Program. During the 1992-1993 school year, Richard Garibell (Garibell) was the principal, and Sarah Finney (Finney) was the vice-principal.

14. During the 1992-1993 school year, Rubin was observed on the following dates:

    a. September 11, 1992 (Ex. J-10),
    b. September 22, 1992 (Ex. J-11),
    c. November 16, 1992 (Ex. J-12), and
    d. January 5, 1993 (Ex. J-13).

15. On March 24, 1993, Garibell and Finney completed a year-end evaluation of respondent (Ex. J-14).

16. On March 3, 1993, Garibell wrote a memo to respondent (Ex. J-15).

17. A professional improvement plan (PIP) was prepared for Rubin by Garibell. On March 4, 1993, respondent attended a conference with Garibell to discuss her evaluation, suggestions, and PIP (Ex. J-16).

18. Finney provided respondent with classroom behavior instructions (Ex. J-17).

19. Finney assigned security guard Elbert Pittman (Pittman) to Rubin with classroom control of teacher Betty Harrell's (Harrell) fifth-grade class.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a review of the entire record, including credibility assessments of the witnesses, I FIND the following to be FACTS.

Rubin is certified as an elementary grade school teacher and as a reading specialist. She has a Master's Degree in reading and has taken graduate level courses. Rubin has been employed in the past as a supplemental teacher in other school systems and as an adjunct instructor at William Paterson College in New Jersey and has also engaged in volunteer teaching work.

Osofsky has been employed in the District for 17 years. He holds a supervisor's certificate. Rabel has been employed in the District for 25 years. As vice-principal at School 8, her duties involve observing classroom teachers, evaluating classroom and non-classroom teachers, assisting the principal, ordering and distributing supplies, safety of students, conducting conferences, directing grade level and cross-grade level meetings, etc. Rabel is certified in elementary education, as a supervisor, and in administration. She has a Master's Degree in urban education and community affairs. Prior to her assignment as principal of School 8, Rabel knew Rubin as part of the former's duties as vice-principal and also when Rabel was a mathematics resource teacher.

Sharon Hancock (Hancock) is employed by the District in the capacity of a BSI teacher. Hancock has a B.S. degree from Seton Hall University in New Jersey and some 30 graduate credits. She has a New Jersey certification as an elementary teacher.

Hancock has been assigned to School 8 for the past eight or nine years. During the 1991-92 school year, Hancock was assigned to provide BSI services to certain designated students in all three fifth-grade classes at School 8. Hancock taught language, reading and mathematics as part of the BSI program.

With commencement of the Paradigm Program, Hancock was given a portion of Rubin's class, but did not have her own register. Hancock took approximately 10 to 12 students from Rubin's class to provide instruction in reading and mathematics. As of January, Rubin had a total of 14 students in her class. Hancock provided services to approximately half of them. If Hancock were late coming to retrieve her students, Rubin was in charge of the entire class. Fifteen students were below the average for School 8. All the students were on Rubin's "register," assigned to her. (Tr., 5/12/94, p. 69). They were removed from class for supplemental instruction. Supplemental and regular classroom teachers were required to work closely together. If Hancock were absent on any given day, her students remained with Rubin, and respondent had responsibility for the subject matter that Hancock would have addressed. As of January 10, 1992, Hancock was a non-classroom teacher.

Vincent Bruno (Bruno) has been employed by the District for 20 years. During the 1991-92 school year, he was assigned as an art teacher at School 8. He was also a union and grievance delegate for School 8. His duties in the latter respect included involvement in grievances and contract violations, as well as participating in meetings with teachers and the administration at the request of the teachers.

Judith Kalmanson (Kalmanson) is employed by the District as a Learning Disability Teacher Consultant (LDTC). She has been employed by petitioner for 14 years. During the 1991-92 school year, she was an eighth grade teacher at School 8. Her classroom was located below that of respondent.

The Paradigm Program is an intense instructional approach, eliminating certain courses, including music and art, and focussing on language arts, reading, and mathematics. Implementation of the Paradigm Program started in November 1991; there was a transition period, and the Paradigm Program was implemented fully commencing December 1991.

As of the fall of 1991, respondent was assigned to teach a group of students deemed to be lower scoring students based upon standardized tests. The afternoon session of the school day concentrated on mathematics skills.

During the 1991/92 school year, respondent taught the full fifth-grade curriculum and was assigned to Room 201 at School 8. School 8 has kindergarten through 8th grade classes. The fifth-grade classrooms were on the third floor, adjacent to each other.

During the school year, parents, teachers, and members of the school Child Study Team complained to Rabel regarding respondent and the situation in Rubin's classroom. During the week of approximately September 23, 1991, a parent orientation meeting was conducted at School 8. Parents complained to Rabel regarding respondent, specifically, regarding the lack of educational progress and discipline. Many parents requested that their children be removed from Rubin's class.

Shortly thereafter, one mother, Mrs. M., complained to Rabel regarding a lack of homework and safety in respondent's class. Rabel discussed the matter with Rubin.

Rabel again met with Rubin in October 1991 to discuss discipline problems. In this time frame, Mrs. Davis (Davis), the computer teacher, complained of noise when respondent's class traveled from Rubin's classroom to Davis' room.

Rabel again met with Rubin in October 1991 regarding discipline problems and specifically told Rubin to stop blaming other people, including Davis, for her lack of discipline control. In total, three to four conferences were held with Rubin regarding lack of classroom control in October 1991.

Also, in October 1991, Rabel, on one occasion, was in the room connecting to Rubin's classroom getting supplies. The door was ajar, and Rabel heard respondent and her students screaming and yelling.

On one day in October 1991, a fire drill was conducted at School 8. Students were required to exit the building from the back on the Main Street side. Respondent's class was among the groups so exiting. Her students were very noisy and disorderly. Respondent was leading one student, R.V., by the arm, "quite forcibly." (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 63). Respondent had her left hand on R.V.'s right wrist area clutched tightly. Respondent was not merely walking R.V., but was "leading him quite strongly." (Id. at p. 64). Rabel, who observed the situation from approximately six feet away, quietly asked Rubin to let go of R.V., with no response from Rubin. Rabel then asked Rubin to do so twice more, moving closer towards respondent as she (Rabel) did so. The last time she spoke to respondent, Rabel was less than two feet from Rubin. Rabel advised respondent that that was not the proper manner in which to deal with a student.

The next day, R.V.'s grandmother and uncle came to the building to complain about what happened. Rabel, anticipating this, had told respondent that they would probably be in school. R.V.'s uncle and grandmother asked Rabel if they could speak with Rubin. Rabel communicated via the intercom system with Rubin to this effect and advised that R.'s relatives would be coming to respondent's classroom. Rabel subsequently received calls from throughout the building to the effect that Rubin was yelling, R.V.'s grandmother was screaming back, and R.V.'s uncle was becoming very angry because of the situation. Rabel went to respondent's room. As she approached the classroom, R.'s grandmother and uncle were in the hallway. The grandmother was extremely upset, indicating that she was tired of R.V. being "harassed" by respondent, that Rubin had no right to touch R.V., and that if it ever happened again, she (the grandmother) would "take matters into her own hand." (Id. at p. 69). The uncle tried to calm the grandmother and eventually spoke with Rabel and left. R.V.'s relatives also told Rabel that they had wanted to take R. home, but that Rubin refused to let him out of the classroom.

Throughout the school year, R.V. was removed from Rubin's classroom frequently. Rubin often sent out him to the office, and Rabel would assign him temporarily somewhere else. R.V. was a student of respondent until December 5, 1991, when the Paradigm program commenced, students were assigned a classroom teacher, who may not have been their original teacher, based on their academic performance. R.V. was a good mathematics student and a poor reading student. As such, he was moved into Mrs. Kelter's mathematics classroom. Both Hancock and Rubin were assigned low performance reading students. R.V. was assigned to Hancock in the Paradigm Program. Rubin's relationship with R.V. was initially "rough." (Tr., 3/15/94, p. 76). R.V. had difficulty adjusting to the fact that he had been retained in fifth grade. Rubin initially met with family members several times regarding behavior modification efforts.

Meetings were held with respondent in November 1991, some of which were attended by Bruno, at which Rubin was advised of complaints by parents, teachers, and students. At this time, Rubin was occasionally sending students to other classrooms. Rabel informed her that this was against policy. However, this continued to occur on several occasions, and Rabel instructed other teachers not to take students from Rubin's classroom.

The form represented by Exhibit P-11 was designed by Rabel and Osofsky to function as an observation form to memorialize matters of concern to the administration. The observations reflected in such documents do not constitute formal evaluations, but "an informal observance." (Tr., 3/10/94, p. 85). The practice was to provide a copy to the teacher to bring concerns to his/her attention. It was Osofsky's practice at the time in question to prepare observation forms at any given time. Such might be completed during the course of a day and given to the teacher on the same or the next day.

Osofsky prepared an administrator's observation report pertaining to Rubin dated November 22, 1991. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-11. The report indicates that respondent needed improvement in the areas of classroom control, classroom environment, pupil discipline procedure, and supervisory responsibility. He wrote a notation to the effect that there was a lack of classroom discipline which contributed to less effective instruction. It is reasonable to infer that Osofsky did not observe Rubin on November 21 or 22, 1991, but that he did do so some time in November 1991, and that Exhibit P-11 constitutes his observation report of that occurrence.

One of Osofsky's duties as vice-principal is to give supplies to teachers. At the time in question, one entry to the supply room was through Rubin's classroom. The November 22, 1991 report was prepared by Osofsky as a result of observations he made while walking through her classroom. Students were "up and about," not attentive, and having "personal conversations." Rubin was not at her desk but among the students and was not "oblivious" to what was occurring. (Id. at p. 88).

Rubin received a copy of Osofsky's observation report some time after November 22, 1991. She did not subsequently speak to Osofky regarding it.

Osofsky commenced a formal, unannounced observation of Rubin on December 5, 1991, the first day of the Paradigm Program, at approximately 2:00 p.m. Osofsky was present for approximately 15 minutes. Osofsky did not know at the time that Rubin was a tenured teacher. A large amount of paper, as well as books, were on the floor. There was no apparent desk order or groupings, several desks being very close together. Approximately two to three students were moving about the classroom at any given time, on occasion walking in front of Rubin. One student, without any warning, got up to sharpen a pencil and meandered about the room. One child in particular was very disruptive. Rubin went over to the student, a male, who was turning to talk to the child behind him. She bent over him very close, with her finger pointed very close to his face. The child took on a defensive stance, "verbally retaliating back," (Tr., 3/10/94, p. 121), telling Rubin, in effect, to get away from him. Rubin "backed off," and the child turned in his seat. (Id. at p. 122).

When Osofsky entered the classroom, the lesson was already in progress. Osofsky reviewed a lesson plan prepared by Rubin, who was generally very prompt in submitting her plans. It was part of his responsibility as vice-principal to review lesson plan books. The lesson did not proceed as Rubin apparently intended, largely because of discipline problems. Respondent stopped several times to discipline students, directing them, for example, to sit down or turn around. Some students did not have texts open on their desks, and some had no papers at all on their desk. When students proceeded to walk around the room, Rubin stopped her lesson and directed them to sit down.

Rubin presented a mathematics assignment and, after asking if there were any questions, walked about the room to see how the students were progressing. Rubin did not assign homework because it was the first day she was working with this group of students. She had previously requested new mathematics workbooks because she felt that concepts would have to be entirely retaught. She never received them.

At the time of the observation, Rubin was responsible for her class and that of Hancock, who was absent. There were a total of approximately 25 students. Approximately 16 were assigned to Rubin. There were approximately 22 desks. Some of the students utilized another table located in the room, although there were not sufficient chairs for all of them.

Osofsky prepared a classroom observation report pertaining to respondent for December 5, 1991. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-1. Osofsky noted that Rubin's performance needed improvement in the following areas:

physical status of the classroom, acceptance of responsibility by students, clearly defined discipline procedures, enthusiasm for teaching, understanding child and adolescent behavior, alertness to physical needs of students, classroom control, demonstration by students of self-control, learning atmosphere, stimulation of original thinking, clearly defined aims and procedures, sufficient teaching aides, full class participation, quality of voice, and summary of lessons. Osofsky noted that Rubin's lesson was continuously interrupted because of discipline efforts and a lack of discipline. However, he also noted that December 5 was the first day of the Paradigm Program and that the students were her 'new' group. (Ex. J-1, p. 2).

Rubin received a copy of Osofsky's evaluation report shortly after December 5, 1991. Rubin wrote notations on the evaluation report, essentially in rebuttal. She referenced the fact that the group consisted of two classes, that there were insufficient desks and chairs, that homework was not assigned because it was a new group, and that she requested new mathematics books. It did not change Osofsky's evaluation. Rubin did not request that Osofsky speak with her regarding the evaluation, and the two never did.

Osofsky subsequently observed Rubin on December 9, 1991, to determine if his first impressions were correct. To his perception, there was some improvement in classroom control. However, Hancock was in a corner of Rubin's room with a group of her (Hancock's) students. Rubin was responsible for approximately eight to ten students. She did not have a full class of students that day. Osofsky still did not believe that the lesson was sufficiently presented. Osofsky was present from approximately 9:15 a.m. until 9:55 a.m. Rubin presented a reading lesson. After reading a story, respondent asked students questions to determine if they understood the content.

Osofsky prepared an evaluation report pertaining to his observation of December 9, 1991. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-4. He noted that Rubin needed improvement in the following areas: availability of materials, clearly defined discipline procedures, understanding of child and adolescent behavior, classroom control, demonstration of growth and self-control of pupils, use of motivational factors, appropriate variety of activities, and full class participation. His notations reference the fact that a story was orally read and discussed and that context clues were utilized by respondent. Osofsky also noted that on several occasions, Rubin had to stop to discipline students and suggested that she discipline on a one-to-one basis rather than having the entire class hear a reprimand. Rubin subsequently wrote comments on the evaluation form, in which she, in part, agreed that it would be better to discipline students individually. She and Osofsky did not subsequently discuss the evaluation.

During the 1991-92 school year, there was a hall-pass procedure at School 8. Some time during the school year, new color-coded passes were utilized, depending upon where a student was going. The latter policy was implemented by Osofsky. Rubin learned of it at a faculty meeting.

It was Rubin's practice to generally keep passes in the classroom. Students were expected to use them and return a pass when they left the room. Periodically, passes were lost. At approximately the time frame of December 11, 1991, Rubin, on one occasion, mentioned to Osofsky that some students had not returned with passes and that some passes were missing. At some point, Osofsky told Rubin that with the new pass procedure, students would get different color-coded wooden passes which would allow the passes to be more noticeable if lost.

Osofsky prepared an administrator's observation report pertaining to Rubin on December 11, 1991. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-2. He noted that respondent was deemed to be unsatisfactory in the areas of classroom control, classroom environment, and pupil discipline procedure. Handwritten notations referenced Osofsky's conclusions that students frequently left Rubin's classroom without required passes, noting that School 8 policy was that passes be used to control students leaving rooms. Rubin received a copy of the observation report. She did not discuss it with him.

Students were required to ask permission of the classroom teacher before they were allowed to leave. If approved, students were required to sign a daily sign-in/sign-out sheet, indicating the t[illegible]es they left and returned. The purpose of the form was to allow administrators to monitor the whereabouts of students and to maintain responsibility with the classroom teacher. The form used also contained a space for the destination to be written. Copies of the forms were kept on a counter in the main office, where they could be obtained by teachers. Completed forms could be retained by teachers in their files for their own records. The general practice was for teachers to keep the forms in proximity to their desks. The content and form of the hall pass sign in/sign out document used at School 8 during the period in question is as stated in Exhibit P-13.

Rubin's practice was to have forms completed by students and to keep copies of the forms by the doors to the classroom. She used the forms throughout the 1991-92 school year, unless she did not have blank copies. It was her experience that on occasion, blank forms were not available in the office.

On December 12 or 13, 1991, Rabel observed Rubin's class in the hallway. Consistent with general rules, the students were required to be walking through the building in a quiet, orderly manner, staying to one side of the hall. Rubin's students were jumping and making noise, in "complete disarray." (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 44). Rabel told the students to line up and be quiet. She did not speak to respondent at the time, not wanting to communicate in front of the students.

Rabel prepared an administrator's observation report, dated December 13, 1991, regarding her observations. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-3. Rabel noted that respondent needed improvement in the area of escorting classes through the hallway and wrote notations to the effect that she (Rabel) observed students dancing and jumping, that there was no apparent method for moving through the hallway, and that students must be organized when in the hall. Respondent was provided a copy of the observation report, and Rubin subsequently discussed it with Rabel.

On December 16, 1991, Osofsky was advised that several students were stopped in the building without passes and that they had come from Rubin's class. Osofsky escorted them back to respondent's classroom. The students did not have passes. One of the students had the wrong pass. As he approached respondent's classroom, Osofsky heard noise coming from it from the hallway. When he returned students to her class, he observed that the class was not quiet and instruction was not occurring. Osofsky asked to see Rubin's sign-in/out sheet. She did not have one for the day in question.

Osofsky completed an administrator's observation report pertaining to his December 16, 1991 observations. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-12. He noted that respondent needed improvement in classroom control, classroom environment, and pupil discipline procedures, with a reference to the hall pass procedure. His comments referenced School 8's pass procedure not being implemented, noting that several students were given the wrong pass for the bathroom, that some students were frequent users, and that respondent should use the sign-in/out sheets so students would be more accountable.

During the 1991/92 school year, Osofsky frequently returned students to Rubin's class because they did not have passes and learned that the pass procedures had not been followed. Respondent did not have available completed sign-in/out sheets. On occasion, students left respondent's class and came to Osofsky's office, because of various problems, without passes. From December 16, 1991 to January 10, 1992, Osofsky returned students to Rubin's class because of non-compliance with the hall procedures several times a day, in total, somewhat less than 50 or 60 occasions. It was Osofsky's opinion that if Rubin had established a classroom procedure to which children were required to adhere, incidents in the hallway would not occur. On occasion, Osofsky asked the students how they had gotten into the hallway. Responses included statements to the effect that they left on their own or took a pass from another student returning to the room. Observation reports were not written regarding all incidents, because of manpower and time constraints.

Between December 6, 1991 and January 10, 1992, Osofsky devoted a substantial portion of his time every day to concerns pertinent to respondent, including students leaving her class and complaints from other teachers regarding noise and other disturbances emanating from Rubin's classroom. Osofsky would go to the classroom to investigate several times a day. In addition, complaints were made to the office of objects being thrown out of the windows in Rubin's classroom. Complaints of this nature came from a kindergarten teacher, as well as parents of kindergarten children who came to pick up their children. There were split session kindergarten classes, and the first session was released at approximately 10:00 a.m. Parents came to the back door of the class, an area directly under Rubin's classroom.

Parents complained to the administration that objects were being thrown out at them and that on one occasion, students in Rubin's class spit out the window. On one occasion in this time frame, Osofsky went outside to investigate and saw something, possibly a piece of chalk or a pencil, being thrown out of a window in Rubin's class. Osofsky also received reports of objects being thrown inside Rubin's classroom.

During the same time period, parents on occasion requested transfers of their children out of Rubin's class and transferred their children from the school. One particular incident, which emphasized the situation to Osofsky, was communications from the head custodian at East Side High School, to which Osofsky had previously been assigned, who told Osofsky that he (the custodian) was removing his child from School 8 and would return her the next year because he did not believe the child would learn anything during the school year.

During the same time period, students were removed from Rubin's class for various reasons, including discipline and behavioral problems. Some of the moves were temporary. For example, students were periodically required to bring their work and remain in Osofsky's office. Students were also put into other classrooms temporarily, on a day-to-day basis, to "diffuse" problems occurring in Rubin's class (Tr., 3/10/94, p. 110). As of September 1991, Rubin had a total of 18 assigned students. This number decreased to 14 by January 1992.

Between the months of November 1991 and January 1992, Osofsky routinely met with Rabel, partly to obtain information regarding the school. He had no preconceptions regarding Rubin, nor her classroom. During the 1991-92 school year, Rubin never initiated discussions with Osofsky regarding classroom observations. As time went on, he discussed the situation more specifically with Rabel.

During the beginning of the school year, Hancock spent 40 to 120 minutes a day in each fifth grade classroom, working with a designated group of students. Subsequent to implementation of the Paradigm Program, Hancock was usually in Rubin's class, still providing BSI to a designated group of students, which changed over time according to the needs of the children.

Initially, Hancock worked with children at a table in Rubin's classroom. Rubin conducted her regular lessons with the other children. Both teachers taught the same subject area at the same time, Hancock reinforcing what was being taught in the regular classroom instruction.

During the 1991-92 school year, Hancock was present in Rubin's class every day. Prior to implementation of the Paradigm Program, Hancock was present in Rubin's class every day in the morning from approximately 40 to 80 minutes and at least 40 minutes every afternoon. Subsequent to commencement of the program, Hancock was in Rubin's classroom for almost the entire day on a daily basis. When present in respondent's classroom, Hancock was not responsible for maintaining general classroom control

Prior to the Paradigm Program, Hancock heard noise and other disruptions emanating from Rubin's classroom when she was in other fifth grade classrooms. During the months in question, Hancock also observed children assigned to Rubin's classroom walking in the hallways.

Upon numerous occasions, Hancock observed that students were not seated when Hancock initially went into Rubin's classroom. Instead, the students were walking around the room, yelling, congregating near windows, etc. Hancock often had to spend a lot of time settling the children down before she could begin instruction.

Rubin appeared to Hancock to have difficulty controlling her (respondent's) voice. She often screamed at the children, with counter-productive results. The children usually screamed back. Rubin often prefaced her remarks to the children by telling them that they were stupid and using other such "derogatory terms," which had a tendency to undermine their self-image. The children retaliated, resulting in a "screaming match" between them and respondent. (Tr., 3/10/94, p. 11). To Hancock, it seemed to be an "unhealthy" and "very antagonistic" atmosphere. The "turmoil" in the room was more evident as the school year progressed. (Id. at p. 12). As Hancock approached Rubin's classroom, she often heard Rubin telling the children to settle down because Hancock was coming.

Hancock did not initially report her concerns to the administration because she hoped that the matter would improve. In approximately December 1991 or January 1992, she spoke to Rabel regarding her concerns. At this time, there were a lot of "physical problems" occurring in Rubin's classroom, i.e., items being thrown, including books and chairs, people being pushed, etc. (Id. at p. 14). The students also fought among themselves. Hancock felt that it was an unsafe environment.

In this general time frame, Hancock removed a student, Ro. V., from Rubin's classroom because she (Hancock) feared that Ro.V. would "react violently" to Rubin's "attitude and actions with him." Ibid. Ro.V. did not present behavioral problems when he was with Hancock's group of students. Hancock observed respondent using inappropriate "body language" with Ro.V., that is, standing very close to him and telling him that he was stupid and "no good," that he would never amount to anything. (Id. at 29). Rubin did this in front of the other students, and Hancock feared that if respondent continued doing so, Ro.V. might react by pushing or hitting Rubin. She therefore removed Ro.V., on her own, from respondent's class and reported the incident to Rabel. Hancock told Rabel that it was Hancock's opinion that respondent was trying "to incite him to hit her." (Id. at p. 49). Ro.V.'s class assignment was subsequently changed by Rabel. He was thereafter with Hancock for part of the day and with Kelter for the rest of the day.

In mid-December 1991, the room adjacent to Rubin's classroom, a resource room, became vacant. There was a connecting door between respondent's classroom and the resource room. At Rabel's suggestion, Hancock commenced using that room for her BSI group. Hancock had previously experienced difficulty teaching her group of students because she had to keep interrupting her lessons in order to restore order in the classroom generally. Hancock had as many as 15 children with her in the resource room. Over the months, Rabel kept assigning more children to Hancock in efforts to help Rubin with classroom control. Some time in approximately January 1992, Hancock stopped using the resource room.

Subsequent to commencing utilizing the resource room, Hancock heard noises emanating from respondent's classroom on a regular basis. This included children screaming, use of "inappropriate language," "crashing noises," "general outbursts of noise," as well as the constant drone of loud talking and/or laughing. The situation was extremely distracting to Hancock's students. (Id. at p. 17). Hancock often feared that someone in Rubin's classroom was hurt. The situation interfered with Hancock's teaching. Hancock often stood in the connecting doorway and looked into Rubin's class. When she did, the children in respondent's classroom went back to their seats and become quiet. For a period of time, Hancock kept the door wedged open. Hancock overheard respondent telling the children that they were too stupid to learn. There was some type of disturbance in Rubin's classroom on a daily basis. Respondent appeared to have special problems in dealing with R.C. and L.T., often engaging in "screaming" matches with L.C., which were disruptive to the classroom as a whole. (Id. at p. 30). Respondent usually stood very close to the children when she interacted with them in this way, standing "right in their face with finger pointing." (Id. at p. 31).

Both classrooms were on the second floor of the building, in an extreme left corner, in the vicinity of a playground behind the school. To Hancock's knowledge, items, including apples, milk cartons and books, were thrown out of the windows in Rubin's room onto the playground area on a regular basis. The windows in Rubin's classroom were usually open. Hancock also heard, although she did not observe, that children were hanging out the windows in Rubin's classroom. Hancock was present when a parent came to school and identified a student in respondent's room who allegedly spit out the window.

In general conversation with Hancock and other teachers outside of the classroom, Rubin regularly referred to respondent's students as stupid, too stupid to learn anything. Hancock periodically spoke to Rubin regarding respondent's derogatory comments about the students. She also told Rubin that she (Hancock) felt the confrontations with the children were non-productive. Rubin generally denied that anything inappropriate had ever happened in her classroom. Hancock initially tried to give Rubin helpful suggestions, but Rubin was not receptive, indicating there were no problems. Rubin was not specifically told that Hancock had complained about Rubin's class, although respondent "might have made that assumption." (Tr., 4/28/94, p. 72). Respondent, however, did know that Davis had complained to Rabel.

A policy at School 8 was that classroom windows not be open more than 13 inches from the bottom. Hancock occasionally observed the windows in Rubin's room opened wider. The windows in Rubin's classroom were approximately six feet tall and 3-1/2 feet wide. They had mechanisms which prevented them from being opened more than approximately 15 inches. Respondent was not aware of any policies regarding windows. She never had any discussions with Rabel nor Osofsky.

Bruno attended meetings between Rubin and administrators on several occasions during the 1991-92 school year. He also spoke to Rubin alone on several occasions. Between September 1991 and January 1992, Bruno participated in two meetings with administrators. One occurred on approximately October 21, 1991, and the other on January 10, 1992. It is also reasonable to infer that Bruno attended another meeting with Rabel and Rubin sometime in November 1991, at which time Rabel generally discussed the need for Rubin to have more classroom control to reduce noise.

In approximately November 1991, Bruno spoke with respondent regarding Rubin's refusal to sign an evaluation form, advising her that a signature only indicated receipt. He also recommended that Rubin ask the administration for help, perhaps requesting assistance from experienced teachers from different departments to provide demonstration lessons. Bruno also suggested that respondent speak with Pete Tirri, president of the local union. To Bruno's knowledge, Rubin did not ask the administration for help.

Bruno's classroom was located on the same floor as that of Rubin, down the hall and around the corner. Subsequent to approximately November 10, 1991, he at times heard noise emanating from Rubin's classroom when he was in the hallway near her room, noises such as loud talking, "shuffling around," "screaming," not the "ordinary noise" associated with a classroom, but noise of a "higher level." (Tr., 5/12/94, p. 41).

During the fall of 1991, Kalmanson frequently heard a great deal of noise emanating from respondent's classroom. On occasion, Kalmanson's lesson was interrupted because of loud noise. Kalmanson, at the time, had approximately 20 to 24 students. Prior to January 19, 1994, Kalmanson, occasionally, "informally" mentioned the noise in communications with the administration. (Tr., 5/12/94, p. 8). Kalmanson never wrote written complaints regarding the matter. The only contact that Kalmanson had with Rubin during the school year was in the teacher's room and at meetings.

Ada Messano (Messano) is a Designated At Risk teacher who has been employed by petitioner for 21 years. She is a mathematics resource teacher overseeing the BSI program and is assigned to School 8. Her duties include testing all incoming students, including transfer students, and supplying materials needed in classrooms. Messano also does demonstration lessons upon request of teachers. It is also Messano's duty to contact a school from which a new student transfers. The purpose of student testing is to assign students into groups in terms of reading and mathematics levels and to determine if pupils are at risk. If they are, they are assigned support staff.

During the 1991-92 school year, Messano was a mathematic and reading resource teacher at School 8. Messano first met respondent at school in September 1991 and did not previously know Rubin. At the time, Messano was available, at Rabel's direction, to go into classrooms, including Rubin's classroom, to determine what was needed and provide assistance in terms of grouping of children. Messano was also available to teachers for any extra materials they needed. In addition, because Rubin had to go through Messano's resource room in order to go into her own classroom, the two women usually communicated briefly every morning, generally regarding any problems experienced by Rubin or materials she required.

In approximately October 1991, Messano, for the first time on her own, went into Rubin's classroom because of loud noise emanating from the room. She could hear Rubin screaming at a higher level than that of the children. Messano's classroom was two doors away. Rubin's classroom was "like chaos." (Tr., 3/11/94). Children were throwing paper airplanes, some of which went past Messano. Some of the students were hanging out windows, looking out and screaming at children in the playground. Students were sitting with their heads out the window. One leg of a child was over the window sill. Others were in another corner of the room screaming at each other. Rubin was "just screaming back at everything," generally telling the students to return to their places. (Id. at p. 8). Rubin was screaming in a "high-pitched voice." (Id. at p. 22). There were approximately 15 to 17 children in the room at this time. Upon entering the room, Messano asked what was happening, and the children quieted down somewhat. Messano subsequently spoke to Rubin regarding the situation that day, as well as on other occasions. Rubin generally responded favorably, "but nothing would change." (Id. at p. 10). Messano reported the incident to Rabel. Rabel, in turn, suggested that Messano go into Rubin's classroom more often, which she did.

Subsequently, in approximately October 1991, Rabel assigned Messano to specifically help Rubin because of the situation in respondent's classroom. Messano was asked by Rabel to assist Rubin with materials, lessons or groupings in any way possible. In general, it is not Messano's responsibility to assist other teachers with classroom discipline, however, she felt concern for the safety of Rubin's students so she assisted in this respect, although not specifically asked to do so. Messano frequently discussed the situation with Rubin, who often indicated "that's just the way they are." (Id. at p. 14). Messano reported her observations to Rabel. Messano never did a teaching demonstration in Rubin's class because respondent never requested one. On a daily basis, however, the two spoke regarding the needs of particular children, and Rubin had the opportunity to take whatever she needed from the resource room. Messano, in general, spoke to Rubin regarding groupings and materials, not discipline. Although Messano provided books for certain students, to Messano's knowledge they were never used, or Rubin would say the children were "too stupid, they can't do this anyway." (Id. at p. 24).

Subsequent to October, Messano went into Rubin's classroom on just about a daily basis in efforts to restore calm. She often passed through Rubin's room on the way to her own, solely to have a calming effect on the children, which it did. However, once Messano went to her own classroom, noise again commenced in Rubin's classroom. On one occasion, when she was passing through Rubin's classroom near lunchtime, respondent asked Messano to stay until the lunch bell rang "so that she could put herself together." (Id. at p. 14). A group of students were in the hallway, and the rest were sitting in corners in the classroom, doing whatever they wanted. Rubin was screaming at the children, with no reaction from them. Messano stayed for approximately five to ten minutes to help calm the class.

In January or February 1992, Messano responded to a telephone call from an individual at another District school, who requested to speak to respondent, referring to Rubin as the mathematics and resource teacher and advising that Rubin had called regarding a particular student. Messano informed respondent that it was Messano's duty to obtain test scores for students, and Rubin indicated that she was not aware of this. Rubin subsequently called the person in question on one other occasion.

Rubin often referred to her students as "stupid" in conversations with Messano. (Id. at p. 15). In addition, on at least two occasions, Rubin referred to the students as "stupid" in their presence. The children, in turn, "responded with anger" and by calling Rubin names. (Ibid.) During the course of the school year, in addition, several parents came in from the playground below Rubin's classroom and complained to Messano that milk cartons and papers were thrown out of respondent's classroom. On at least two occasions, two of Rubin's students ran out of respondent's classroom, through Messano's room. Messano stopped them, inquiring what had happened. On one occasion, a female student, R., responded that Rubin had called her stupid. Messano heard Rubin call R. stupid while Messano was in the resource room. R. was a special education student receiving instruction assistance from BSI personnel.

Virginia Orbe (Orbe) is employed by the District as an LDTC. During the 1991-92 school year, she was assigned two days a week to School 8. Early in the school year, Rubin told Orbe that respondent believed one of her female students, J.W., who was a special education student, should be in a self-contained classroom. At the time, J.W. was removed for academic subjects to the resource room but occasionally was in Rubin's classroom. Orbe observed J.W. in Rubin's class, noting that the student did not behave in an improper manner, and so informed Rubin. When Rubin subsequently asked Orbe how Orbe felt the class had proceeded, Orbe told respondent that she (Orbe) felt that respondent did not present the material, which was a mathematics lesson, in a manner comprehensible to the students and that Rubin's style was too much of a lecture approach. It was also Orbe's impression that the students were not understanding the lesson.

Between September 1991 and January 10, 1992, on at least several occasions during meetings, Rabel told Rubin that respondent's performance had to improve in the area of minimizing noise because of complaints of other teachers. Rabel also informed Rubin that respondent had to have greater classroom control.

Between the fall of 1991 and early January 1992, Rabel constantly received calls from other classroom teachers with complaints pertaining to Rubin's classroom because of the "chaos" there. (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 46). Osofsky also received frequent complaints of this nature. In response, either Rabel or Osofsky would go to Rubin's classroom.

Rabel did so on January 8, 1992. Rubin's class was in "total chaos." (Id. at p. 46). The room was "in complete disarray," and Rubin was "not reacting to it." (Id. at p. 108). Every classroom has a telephone for use by teachers to call the office if there is a problem or emergency. Rubin did not do so on the date in question. As Rabel approached Rubin's classroom, Rabel could hear respondent screaming, telling the children to "shut up." (Id. at p. 109). When Rabel entered the classroom, Rubin was standing behind her desk. Rubin's general response to Rabel when such incidents occurred, and her response on January 8, 1992, was to indicate that there were no problems in the classroom. Although Rabel was seated in the back of the classroom, students did not pay attention to respondent's lesson. Rabel recommended to respondent that Rubin provide for spacing between student's desks and a more definitive grouping. Rabel was present at the beginning of the class, and there was no evidence of any homework assignment, contrary to the administration's policy.

By this time, Rabel was becoming concerned regarding safety in respondent's class because of the lack of classroom control, not only pertaining to students, but to Rubin. More specifically, she was concerned partly because of objects being thrown about the classroom. Rabel's general practice was to stand outside of Rubin's classroom, to observe the situation. She periodically observed students walking about the classroom, children yelling and screaming, books on the floor and being thrown about, etc.

Rabel prepared an administrator's observation report pertaining to Rubin on January 8, 1992. Rabel noted that Rubin needed to improve in the areas of classroom control and classroom environment, noting that classroom control was nonexistent, creating a "poor educational environment," that respondent had not improved, and that Rabel feared for the "safety of all involved!!" (Ex. J-4). Rubin received a copy of Rabel's January 8 observation report. Respondent did not ask to speak to Rabel regarding it, and they never did.

By December 1991, Rabel assigned Osofsky the task of reporting to Rubin's classroom, so that she had more time regarding other matters. From December 1991 until early January 1992, Osofsky had to go to Rubin's class on a daily basis. Rabel went several times a week, commencing in September 1991. On a daily basis, beginning in September, the office received calls from other teachers requesting that the situation in Rabel's class be mitigated. Rabel frequently spoke to Rubin regarding the situation between September and December 1991, often informally when meeting respondent in the hallway. They also spoke in Rabel's office.

Rabel observed Rubin's classroom on January 9, 1991 from approximately 12:50 p.m. until 1:40 p.m. She subsequently completed a classroom observation. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-15. Rabel noted that respondent needed improvement in the following areas: state of the room, acceptance of responsibility by students, clearly defined discipline procedures, understanding of child and adolescent behavior, alertness to the physical needs of the children, classroom control, demonstration of self-control by the students, learning atmosphere, stimulation of original thinking, provision for individual needs, introduction to the lesson, use of motivational factors, systematic and orderly progression, full class participation and method of homework and class assignment. Rabel also wrote a lengthy notation, indicating that Rubin had to gain control of the class. Rabel specifically noted that prior to entering the room, students were walking around and were very noisy; that although respondent indicated she was reviewing a lesson, it was an introduction; the students did not follow Rubin's presentation; other than respondent asking for answers, there was no activity for 40 minutes; Rubin had to consult her text several times to be certain of the assignment; there was no evidence of homework; there was no pattern to the groupings; and there was a lot of litter on the floor. At this time, respondent was a mathematics teacher. There were between 12 to 15 students in her class.

Rabel conducted a conference with Rubin subsequent to the classroom observation. Consistent with her practice, Rubin changed the subject from classroom environment and Rabel's observations. Rabel also told Rubin that she had to maintain discipline and get control of the class, that the room was always in "disarray," with "garbage all around." that homework was required but not evident, and that Rabel thought Rubin was not prepared for the lesson (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 127). Rubin indicated disagreement and felt that she was prepared. Respondent did not indicate any response verbally to Rabel's other suggestions, including that the classroom be reorganized. In general, Rubin disagreed with Rabel's evaluation. Rubin did not sign Rabel's observation report. The policy in the District was that teachers were required to sign such reports as a means of indicating receipt of the document and had an opportunity to write a rebuttal or make comments at any given time.

The following day, respondent established rows in the classroom that were more separated from each other. Respondent's general practice was to make efforts to have students clean the classroom at the end of the period.

During the 1991-92 school year, Rabel informed Rubin on various occasions that parents had complained regarding the manner in which respondent conducted her classes, expressing concerns for the safety of their children on at least four or five occasions. As found, several parents requested that their children be removed from Rubin's class because of a perceived lack of discipline, yelling in the classroom, and a lack of homework. On several occasions, one or more parents spent time in Rubin's room observing the class. In the October-November 1991 time period, Rubin conducted four to five conferences with parents, including formal and informal discussions. She was aware that at least one child, G.D., was removed from her classroom.

On some days, respondent sent four to five students to the office. Rabel eventually told respondent that Rubin had to begin taking reponsibility for her students, amplifying that based upon her own experience, there would always be several students who were "not in tune" with the rest and that respondent's responsibilities included classroom management and organization. (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 136). During this conversation, Rabel also suggested that respondent break her students into small groups for mathematics and give each materials commensurate, in effect, with their abilities.

During the morning of January 10, 1992, R.C., a student in Rubin's class, left the classroom without permission and went to the office. He told administrative personnel that Rubin had grabbed and scratched him. At the same time, R.C.'s mother had coincidentally also come into the main office. Rabel examined R.C. and observed a scratch-type mark on his arm. It was not a "serious wound." (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 61). Mrs. C. became upset. Rabel immediately conducted a conference with Rubin, Bruno, Osofsky and Mrs. C. Respondent denied grabbing and scratching R.C., but indicated that on several occasions she had physically guided a child into a chair, demonstrating with R.C. how she had done so. R.C. was "small framed," "wiry." (Id. at p. 61). Mrs. C. calmly told respondent that if Rubin ever again touched R.C., she (Mrs. C.) would report the matter to the central office. Rubin stated that she had taken her hand and guided R.C., who was standing in class, back into a chair. She demonstrated how she had done so, putting her hand lightly on R.C.'s shoulder. Rubin also indicated that in the past, she had lightly touched students on their shoulder to provide positive reinforcement. Subsequent to the conference, Bruno advised respondent to never physically touch a student and indicated that she should not have mentioned that she had done so in the past. Subsequently, by memorandum dated January 13, 1992 to respondent, Rabel reiterated that the District's policy prohibits any physical contact with students, whether part of positive reinforcement or discipline. Respondent did not grab nor scratch R.C. on January 10, 1992.

After the conference with Mrs. C. on January 10, 1992, Kalmanson, while in her classroom, heard very loud, persistent noises emanating from respondent's classroom. The noise was not one occurrence, but continued for some time. Students in Kalmanson's class, whose lesson was interrupted, suggested that Kalmanson call the office. Kalmanson became concerned that a fight was occurring and called the office, suggesting that someone from administration inquire if respondent needed assistance.

On January 10, 1992, Hancock was in the resource room, with her class, adjacent to Rubin's classroom. She heard a loud noise and the sound of an item hitting the adjoining wall. It hit with such force that it knocked books off a shelf in Hancock's room, causing them to fall on the head of a student. Hancock opened the door connecting the two rooms and observed chairs out of place on the floor in respondent's classroom. The chairs were not in an upright position. There was a substantial amount of screaming occurring in respondent's classroom. Other teachers arrived. It is reasonable to infer that one of the students in respondent's class threw a chair against the door connecting the two rooms. Hancock took the child who was hit by books, L.A., who was screaming, to the nurse's office.

After receiving Kalmanson's call, Rabel called Osofsky's office. Both individuals immediately went to Rubin's classroom. Upon entering Rubin's classroom on January 10, 1992, Osofsky observed a female student, R.V., straddling an open window, that is, one leg was inside the room, and one outside. The student was "teasing" regarding an intention to jump. (Tr., 3/10/94, p. 101). Chairs were about in the room, and there was no order. The situation was "very chaotic." (Id. at p. 102).

The bottom portion of the window was sufficiently high that an individual could put his/her head out of the window. The student's upper torso was "fitting through the window." (Id. at p. 104). The window was sufficiently open so that R. V. was able to sit straight, from her torso to head, within the window. Some of the students were focussed upon the student at the window. Others were standing up in the classroom. Some were laughing and encouraging R.V., in a "kidding" manner, to jump. (Id. at p. 105). Rubin was standing near her desk, with a book "clutched" in her arms. It appeared to Osofsky as if she were "staring at nothing, as if nothing was going on in the classroom." (Id. at p. 105). He had never observed such a situation in his 17 years in a school district.

As Rabel approached Rubin's classroom, she (Rabel) observed one of respondent's students dancing in the hallway and another one preparing to do so. As Rabel entered the classroom, she observed Osofsky removing R.V., who was straddling a window. Desks were in disarray, books were on the floor, and students were all about the classroom, hurrying to get back to their seats. Rabel also observed students crawling and dancing on the floor. Some desks were turned over. Rubin was standing near her own desk, "clutching" a book, not responding to the situation. (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 78). Osofsky removed R.V. from the classroom and both he and Rabel spoke with her in an office. R.V. admitted that she had been "fooling around" in class and had no intention to jump but that she was trying to "stimulate" the class and "antagonize" Rubin. (Id. at p. 107). R.V., in general, wanted to be a "class clown," to create a "problem" in the classroom. (Id. at p. 135).

It was Rabel's professional judgment that she had to take immediate action because of concerns pertaining to the safety of students and other individuals. Rabel assigned the students to various other classrooms, asking respondent to wait in the teacher's lounge. Rabel subsequently spoke with Rubin in the former's office, in Osofsky's presence. Rubin expressed surprise at Rabel's actions, not acknowledging that anything improper had occurred. Rabel indicated that she did not understand what had occurred in the classroom and was concerned for respondent, as well as the childrens' safety. Rabel asked respondent why Rubin did not call the office. Respondent communicated that she did not believe there was a problem necessitating a call to the administration.

Rabel contacted Vasquez on or about June 10, 1992 regarding what had occurred. Rabel thereafter sent a memorandum, dated January 15, 1992, to Vasquez regarding the incident, advising him that she had removed Rubin of her classroom duties and providing a summary of what had occurred. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-5. The following week, another meeting was held among Rubin, Osofsky, Rabel, and Bruno. The purpose was for the administration to provide a copy of the letter being sent to Vasquez by Rabel and to advise Rubin as to what would happen. In early January 1992, Rubin met with Vasquez, telling him that she hoped for a transfer within the District. Respondent also met with Debby Bohannon, the administrative assistant to the personnel director. Respondent also inquired of the administration in the District if there were any other classroom assignments available for her within School 8 and learned that there were none. Prior to January 15, 1992, Rabel had spoken to Vasquez several times, both in person and via telephone regarding her concerns pertinent to Rubin. Vasquez advised Rabel to commence documenting the problem and also to do whatever was necessary to help Rubin.

Effective June 10, 1992 until June 30, 1992, Rubin was relieved of her teaching duties. Rabel was advised by Vasquez to assign respondent to the library or to Rabel's office. School 8 did not have a library, and Rubin therefore spent each day in the central office at School 8. Although Rabel was advised by District personnel that respondent would be transferred to another school, such did not occur during the 1991-92 school year. Rubin had no specific duties, occasionally giving late slips to students or putting mail in employees' boxes. Respondent generally spent her time at a small desk situated between Osofsky's and Rabel's offices. Occasionally, Messano requested that respondent assist Messano in the book room because it was "a very uncomfortable situation." (Id. at p. 81). Commencing in February 1992, respondent was asked to help supervise in the school cafeteria one period a day during lunchtime, which she did for a while. Rubin subsequently was assigned one period a day to station herself opposite the front door, answering a bell if anyone wanted to enter the building.

Rabel completed an administrative observation report pertaining to Rubin, dated January 11, 1992, a Saturday. It is reasonable to infer that this report was prepared regarding observations occurring prior to January 10, 1992. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit R-19. Rabel noted that respondent needed to improve in the areas of classroom control, classroom environment, and escorting classes through the hallway, and also made a notation that respondent had to get control of her students.

The content of the year-end performance report pertaining to Rubin prepared by Rabel dated January 14, 1992, is as stated in Exhibit J-6. Rabel rated Rubin as needing improvement in the following areas: knowledge of subject matter, skill in giving definite workable assignments; skill in use of a variety of methods (project or supervised study, recitation, appreciation, etc.), systematic preparation; organization of materials; effective use of text and resources; care of materials and equipment; record keeping, accuracy, neatness, and meeting deadlines; cooperation with staff members and administrators; effectiveness in communicating with parents; effectiveness in relating to students; initiative, industry, resourcefulness, and adaptability; and acceptance of criticism. Rubin was rated unacceptable in the areas of skill in adapting materials to class needs, skill in providing for individual needs, skill in motivating interest and holding attention, social controls, and provision for and maintenance of safe procedures. Rabel commented that Rubin failed to adapt respondent's program to the needs of students; that effective instruction was not occurring because of a poor educational environment; that discipline did not exist, resulting in ineffective teaching; that there was a lack in the area of communications with all involved; and that Rubin did not continue to grow professionally. Additional comments were to the effect that the situation in respondent's class had deteriorated, that there was absolute chaos at all times, that visible teaching was not occurring, and that conferences with parents and meetings with the administration had continuously addressed the situation. This document was prepared in conjunction with Osofsky.

A meeting regarding the year-end evaluation was conducted among Osofsky, Rubin, and Rabel on January 15, 1992. Respondent did not sign the document at that time. Rabel told Rubin to take her (respondent's) time in reviewing the document and to make any comments she wished to communicate. Respondent subsequently gave Rabel a letter, generally disagreeing with the evaluation and stating respondent's belief that many positive things had occurred in the classroom. Rubin subsequently gave Rabel a document to be signed, with Rubin's written comments.

In January 1994, Kelter told Rabel that she (Kelter) was so angry concerning remarks respondent had made in the faculty lounge that she felt that if she (Kelter) were not "professional," she would have hit Rubin. Kelter indicated that respondent had commented that Kelter was having a "bad day" with a fifth grade class, which Kelter viewed to be a sarcastic remark. (Tr., 3/11/94, p. 73). Rabel's perception was that Rubin, unfortunately, had knowledge pertaining to events occurring in the school because she was assigned to the main office.

Garibell has been employed by the District for 23 years. He has a B.A. Degree and a Master's Degree in Administration and Supervision from Seton Hall University in New Jersey. Garibell has certificates in social studies K-12 and English K-12, as well as a supervisor's certificate. Garibell was appointed principal at School 4 on August 28, 1992. Previously, commencing January 2, 1989, he was vice-principal at public school No. 15, and prior to that time, was a teacher. Garibell has previously taught sixth, seventh and eighth grades, and has also, in the past, been assigned as a mathematics resource teacher, a BSI teacher, and a computer teacher. As a youngster, he attended schools in the District.

Finney received a B.S. Degree from Chaflin College in South Carolina and a Master's Degree from William Paterson College in New Jersey in reading instruction. She has certificates as a reading specialist K-12 and administrator. Finney has been employed in Paterson since 1962. Finney has also taken post-graduate courses in urban education, administration, and supervision. Finney had not met Rubin prior to commencement of the 1992-93 school year and knew nothing about her.

Garibell first met respondent on September 7, 1992, when personnel initially reported to School 4 for orientation. Garibell also initially met in his office with Rubin, as well as another individual newly assigned to School 4. He generally discussed the nature of respondent's position. Garibell had never previously discussed Rubin with any other administrators in the District. When he met her, she was "a clean slate." (Tr., 1/10/94. at p. 73).

Respondent was a Paradigm specialist, with five assigned classes per day, out of a nine-day period. Rubin was required to travel to various classes to teach writing skills. Respondent was assigned to the following classes taught by other teachers: Arletta Salmond (Salmond) (grade 7), Barbara Spina (Spina) (grade 7), Vanessa Bunch (Bunch) (grade 8), and Annie Hardiman (Hardiman) (grade 6). During the course of the day, one of the periods was lunchtime. Classroom teachers at School 4 were guaranteed, by contract, seven preparation periods per week. Classroom teachers averaged between seven to eight periods a day of teaching.

School 4 contains grades 5 through 8, with a total of approximately 500 students. There are approximately 80 staff people, including approximately 55 classroom teachers.

The students at School 4 generally all have serious problems. They dwell in "the most difficulty housing project in Paterson" and a number are on probation. A significant number of the students come from families in which parents or other family members have died from AIDS. (Tr., 2/10/94, p. 32.). As adolescents, the students were also subject to "mood changes" and resented being criticized in the presence of their peers. (Tr., 3/8/94, p. 54.) Ninety percent of the students are of African-American background, the balance being of Hispanic background. Most of the students come from homes receiving public assistance. Drug problems and unemployment are widespread in the nearby neighborhood.

It was Garibell's opinion that if teachers did not have knowledge regarding the background of students and their needs, they would not be able to address academic requirements. Rubin had difficulty establishing a rapport with the students. During all the time she was in School 4, Garibell never saw her smile at nor say good morning to students. She never exhibited "warmth" but was always "matter of fact." He felt that the students realized this immediately. (Id. at p. 32.)

Rubin was assigned to teach writing skills. This function was shared with the regular classroom teachers, who also taught writing. Rubin also had four periods per week which she could utilize to meet with students and/or parents. In addition, one period a week, designated the cluster meeting, was scheduled to allow Paradigm specialists to meet together to discuss concerns, etc. The Paradigm specialist position was as new one as of September 1992. Rubin also was assigned a small group meeting time weekly, during which Paradigm specialists could meet with students who were having difficulty academically or who had been absent and needed help. During the 1992-93 school year, six Paradigm specialist positions were assigned to School 4. All had schedules comparable to that of Rubin.

During the first week of school, the practice at School 4 was to give each student a handbook addressing rules and regulations, which were to be taken home for parents to sign. The handbook addressed tardiness, discipline, responsibility of students , the grading system, etc.

There was also a misconduct procedure at School 4, which was also addressed in the student handbook. This procedure addressed the methodology for sending students to the administrative office and to the guidance office, as well as for contacting parents. Misconduct reports could be filed by teachers in "routine cases" and were put in students' files, as well as in an "emergency case" if a student had to be seen by an administrator. (Id. at p. 81).

The Paradigm Program started in School 4 with commencement of the 1991-92 school year. Paradigm teachers had assigned students approximately one week prior to the commencement of classes, during which time they could prepare schedules and assignments. Actual teaching duties started on approximately September 14, 1992.

The practice at School 4 was for two classroom teachers to be observed by Finney and Garibell daily. The practice was also to observe an entire classroom period.

On September 22, 1992, Finney and Garibell both conducted unannounced classroom observations of respondent. These were scheduled coincidentally, without the knowledge of either administrator.

Garibell observed respondent during the entire classroom period. Rubin was teaching students assigned to Salmond. The room was very "chaotic" when Garibell initially entered and remained that way for the duration of the lesson. (Tr., 2/10/94, p. 18). Students were getting up out of their seats, shouting out, for example, that they needed a pencil. The students did not accept responsibilities directed by Rubin and, to Garibell, respondent did not seem to be interested in progressing with the lesson. There also appeared to be substantial hostility. Most of the students did not pay attention to Rubin. In Garibell's experience, there were a few discipline problems at the beginning of the new school year, but some developed subsequently as students gained more information about teachers as the year progresses. Requirements regarding lesson plans were addressed at orientation, as well as during morning announcements. Teachers were also directed to have available any text being used in a lesson. On two mornings prior to September 22, staff members had all been asked to insure that their lesson plans were on their desks. Rubin had a lesson plan for that day, but it was not on her desk. She did not give it to Garibell.

Garibell did not fully comprehend the point of the lesson. Administration at School 4 had previously directed that all lesson plans be placed on the teacher's desk so they could be available during observations. Lesson plans were not available to Garibell on September 22. The only point he could ascertain to Rubin's lesson was that respondent was attempting to address sequencing. As the lesson progressed, students became less enthusiastic and more ambivalent towards respondent.

Garibell found that Rubin displayed sufficient knowledge of the subject matter but that her "pedological strategies" were inadequate. (Id. at. p. 21). More specifically, she presented the lesson essentially in lecture form.

Garibel could not ascertain the goals and objectives of respondent's lesson. Rubin did not, for example, ask the class if there were any questions before commencing the lesson. As the situation deteriorated, she kept telling them "I told you once, I am not telling you again what you have to do." (Id. at p. 83). Rubin did not indicate to Garibell efforts to investigate the reasons why the children were acting the way they were nor any understanding that certain types of behavior occur with preadolescent and adolescent children, nor how to successfully address certain behaviors. Respondent refused to answer students' questions and folded her arms in a "threatening manner," exhibiting a weak "body language," which the children, in Garibell's assessment, were quick to "pick up on." (Id. at p. 85). In addition, Rubin stood in one spot in the front of the room and did not walk up and down among the rows to direct the students. Consequently, not all children could pay attention to her. The lesson did not evidence any methods for facilitating original thinking on the part of the students, but just called for responses "in kind." (Id. at p. 87).

Respondent did not walk around the room to see if any children needed individual assistance. Special education students were mainstreamed into all classes at School 4. Such students generally needed more assistance than non-classified students. All classroom teachers were provided the identity of mainstreamed classified children and were to implement such student's individual needs. Rubin's lesson plan was not on her desk, and she did not give it to Garibell during his observation. Garibell did not ask to see it during the period, nor afterward.

In Garibell's general experience, it is sometimes necessary to commence a lesson with "motivational factors," that is, with materials based upon a student's prior knowledge in order to get them involved in the lesson. (Id. at p. 91). Garibell did not observe the use of any such techniques by respondent. She did not use motivational techniques, such as writing on the blackboard. Garibell also expected that teachers not simply lecture students, but utilize questions and answers and other techniques to elicit responses. Rubin's lesson was strictly a lecture one. If the students "didn't get it, they didn't get." (Id. at p. 93). The students were required to read a paragraph and to sequence the events referenced therein. However, the goal was not apparent to Garibell until approximately three-quarters of the way through the lesson. Because Rubin refused to answer questions and her posture, students became "angry and agitated" and disinterested in the lesson. (Id. at p. 97). Students verbalized comments, such as refusals to complete the assignment or inquiring why respondent would not answer questions.

Once a motivational strategy is used, methods should be used to get the students involved. The lesson should be presented in an organized manner so that students can follow along and understand what the lesson will be about, "the methodology and goals" of the lessons. Teachers should also inquire if there are any questions and if the assignment is understood. One technique is to provide a sample of what is expected, for example, sequencing of a paragraph, making efforts to get the children involved. Rubin, instead, went from giving directions to the assignment. It was the practice at School 4 to present new teaching strategies and workshops to teachers. These included whole language approaches and methodologies for eliciting better responses from students, and writing. Garibell did not observe any such techniques being used by Rubin.

Garibell also expected that teachers give some homework on a daily basis. Homework could be short, some ten minutes. In totality, he expected that a student in seventh and eighth grades would have an hour's worth of homework each night, given by all teachers. Rubin's assignment to the students that day was to complete the classroom work. Garibell felt that this was inappropriate, that homework should not be the completion of a class assignment, but something based upon classwork.

Rubin spent more time on attempting to enforce discipline than on the lesson. For example, she told the students that they should not call out responses. Some students raised their hand and made comments before being called on. Garibell felt that she did not address this in a way to elicit more positive behavior, but instead dampened the enthusiasm of the children by just repeating procedures to be followed. In fact, respondent did not tell the students specifically to raise their hands in Garibell's presence. She just refused to answer questions.

Finney observed respondent presenting a lesson, adjectives, on September 22, 1992. There were approximately 22 students in the class. Rubin wrote the definition of "adjectives" on the board, read it to the students, and distributed a ditto sheet pertaining to the lesson. She did not use other techniques, such as utilization of prior knowledge gained by the students. For example, she did not use nor ask them to use adjectives to describe her desk. Students completed the ditto in approximately ten minutes. Subsequent to completing the dittos, respondent had students read sentences out loud from their work. There was time remaining in the lesson. After Rubin presented the assignment, one of the male students, T.W., asked her to explain it again. Rubin replied: "You've gotten the only explanation you're going to get." Finney was "astounded" at this response and felt that the class was too. (Tr. 3/8/94, p. 29). The students looked at Finney, who was seated in the back of the classroom, as if to see her reaction. Finney said nothing, consistent with her practice of not interrupting a teacher during an evaluation, unless necessary.

Finney also found that the class was not attentive to Rubin. Some of the students were reading papers, for example. Students were noisy upon Finney's entry. One student was reading a newspaper, and others had books not relating to the lesson on their desk. Some of the students had unopened books on their desks.

Finney also felt that Rubin was not sensitive to the mood characteristics of children in middle school, who are entering puberty and dislike being discipline in the presence of peers. She reached this conclusion based upon the fact that the students were disruptive, and would not be so if Rubin displayed an understanding of child behavior. Some students raised their hand, evidently needing to use bathroom facilities, and were not acknowledged by respondent. Rubin did not call the roll in Finney's presence. The administration had previously suggested that all teachers, including Paradigm teachers, post their discipline procedures in classrooms in which they taught. There were none evident prepared by Rubin on September 22.

Garibell and Finney each prepared classroom observation forms pertaining to the September 22, 1992 observations of respondent. The content of the documents prepared by Finney and Garibell are as stated in Exhibits J-10 and J-11, respectively.

Finney noted that respondent needed improvement in the following areas: availability of materials, acceptance by students of responsibilities, clearly defined discipline procedures, learning atmosphere, stimulation of original thinking, provision for individual needs, use of motivational factors, appropriate variety of activities, systematic and orderly progression, and full class participation. Her comments referenced noise and inattentiveness in the classroom, a lack of participation by the students, and good planning but poor delivery of the lesson, and contained suggestions that respondent call the roll daily until she came to know the students and to make the learning experience more interesting.

Garibell rated Rubin as needing improvement in the following areas: acceptance of responsibility by students, clearly defined discipline procedures, understanding of child and adolescent behavior, alertness to physical needs of the children, classroom control, learning atmosphere, stimulation of original thinking, provision for individual needs, appropriate variety of activities, sufficient teaching methods, systematic and orderly progression, and method of homework or class assignment. His comments referenced his perceptions of hostility among the students, noting that they would not respond to only negative feelings, his lack of understanding of the goal of the lesson; lack of participation by students as the lesson progressed; a need for updating the pedological strategies; the lack of availability of lesson plans; poor inter-personal relations; and his conclusion that students became disinterested because of respondent 'dictating' to them. (Ex. J-11, p. 2).

Respondent received copies of Garibell's and Finney's observation reports. Garibell shortly thereafter met with Rubin regarding his observation. He generally advised that she get to know the students better so that they would accept her and that she use small group instruction and conference periods to meet with one or two students at a time. Rubin did not do that on a consistent basis. Garibell's observation report was discussed, with emphasis upon the narrative comments. Respondent expressed the viewpoint that the observations were based upon problems she had experienced at School 8. Garibell advised Rubin that he did not know what had happened at School 8. In fact, he had just then received Rubin's folder forwarded from her prior assignment and had not yet had time to review it, but indicated that he would do so. He felt that she was being "accusatory" without foundation. (Tr., 2/10/94, p. 105). Garibell did not ask the details of any prior problems, and Rubin did not volunteer such information. Rubin commented that the lesson plan was not available. Respondent told Garibell that she did not believe the students had exhibited hostility.

Respondent subsequently sent a note to Garibell, which stated the following:

> I will be working hard to improve my evaluation.
> Perhaps I can speak with you personally at your convenience next week. (Ex. P-2).

Garibell interpreted respondent's remark to indicate that Rubin would take some suggestions that he had made regarding student behavior and classroom order. Garibell did not respond to Rubin's request to meet with him, and Rubin never mentioned it to him.

Finney also conferred with respondent, on approximately September 23 or 24, 1992, regarding Finney's observation. They generally discussed what had transpired and how the lesson should be taught. Finney thought that Rubin was "quite receptive" to suggestions made. (Tr., 3/8/94, p. 32). The general concept of behavior modification was discussed. Finney also spoke to Rubin about respondent's refusal to respond to students' questions. Subsequent to September 22, Finney took Rubin to the resource room to show respondent what materials were available on teaching writing. It was Finney's opinion that a ditto was not a good method for teaching a class. The conference with Finney focussed upon available materials and the manner by which respondent had to control her classes. At that time, Finney felt that Rubin's lesson planning was good but that not all students were involved in the lesson.

However, although the communications were amiable, Finney felt that Rubin was "perturbed" with Finney because of something that had transpired prior to the conference. (Id., p. 33). Rubin had previously taught a lesson on writing letters in Bunch's class. She subsequently gave the letters written by the students to Finney, expressing pride. The next day, when Rubin asked Finney what Finney had thought of them, Finney responded that she had not yet had time to read them, but would that evening. Rubin asked about them the next morning, and Finney told her that she was disappointed by the letters. Rubin did not understand why, and Finney elaborated that she felt the letters did not conform to a format required for letter writing. Finney more specifically elaborated the formats for writing business and friendly letters, emphasizing that letter writing was a part of the early warning test which would be administered to the students. Required components of a friendly letter were missing from the samples, and Finney impressed upon respondent that Finney wanted the students taught the requirements.

On October 16, 1992, somewhat more than a month after Rubin had been assigned to School 4, several teachers asked Finney to remove respondent from their classrooms because of an "unbearable noise level." (Tr., 3/8/94, p. 19). More specifically, Spina, Bunch & Harrell asked Finney to remove Rubin from their classes. Salmond and Hardiman were making efforts to assist Rubin to calm classes, as were, to some extent, the other classroom teachers. In that time frame, Hardiman was staying in her classroom when respondent taught there. The other teachers were not present when Rubin was in their classes because it was their preparation periods. However, they too commenced telling Finney that they wanted to stay in their classes because it was too difficult to calm the students after Rubin's departure.

During this time frame, Finney also observed the situation when respondent was in classes. Finney, on almost a daily basis, went to classes in which respondent was teaching and observed students talking loudly, walking around the classroom, throwing items, and engaging in other such behaviors. On occasion, Finney asked a custodian to go into Rubin's class to assist. Finney felt that she could not stay in every class where Rubin was on a daily basis. In October 1992, she assigned Roosevelt English (English), who held a position equivalent to that of head custodian, to assist with Spina's class. Finney subsequently asked a Mrs. Mandano (Mandano), the computer teacher at School 4, to assist with Harrell's class. Rubin taught approximately 12 students in Harrell's class, and Mandano took seven, leaving five. To Finney's perception, respondent "could not handle those five." (Id., at p. 23). On one occasion in the fall of 1992, prior to October 16, 1992, Finney was in the stock room, several doors away from Harrell's class. Whoopie Gaston (Gaston), a matron employed at the school, was approaching. The students in Harrell's class were misbehaving to such an extent that Finney asked Gaston to go in and assist Rubin. English and Gaston would, as well as others subsequently so assigned later in the school year, merely sit in a classroom in which Rubin taught. Because of their mere presence, the students calmed.

It was Finney's impression that most of the children at School 4 respected adults. It was also her perception, however, that Rubin, immediately upon commencement of her assignment at School 4, gave the impression of being "intimidated" by students and that they took advantage of the situation. Respondent seemed to enter a classroom "acting somewhat afraid." (Id. at p. 25). During the fall of 1992, Finney had discussions with Rubin regarding the situation and made several recommendations. She suggested that Rubin solicit the support of parents. Rubin did communicate with parents via telephone from the school and informed Finney that respondent also called parents at night from home. Soon, parents started calling Finney, complaining that respondent was calling them two to three times a week, which they viewed as "harassment." (Ibid). Finney then suggested to Rubin that respondent not call parents every week, but perhaps once or twice a month, and that she open communications with them on a positive note, pointing out some good things that the students were accomplishing. Rubin's communications continued to irritate the parents, and by January 1993, several began coming to the school, upset with Rubin and requesting to see her. Finney did not allow them to because she was "afraid" to do so. (Ibid).

Bunch has been employed as a teacher in the District since 1992. During the 1992-93 school year, respondent taught writing to Bunch's class during the fourth period, 10:45 a.m. until 11:25 a.m. At the time in question, Bunch taught all subjects. As a classroom teacher, she had a roster of assigned students, including a homeroom class. On two days Rubin was there from 10:45 a.m. until 11:25 a.m., and on others, from 11:25 until 12:05 p.m. School started at approximately 8:45 a.m., and Bunch had the students for three periods, most of the morning, by the time Rubin arrived.

Commencing in September 1992, when Bunch returned to her classroom, students would be out of their seats, sitting in the wrong places, some with their heads down, and some asleep. The students "would be kind of wild," different than prior to Bunch's departure from the class. (Id. at p. 168). Paper would be all over the room, and children had moved their desks. Students behaved in a manner they did not in Bunch's presence. On one occasion, the class was agitated because of alleged treatment by Rubin of one of the male students, T.W. T.W. informed Bunch that he had asked Rubin about an assignment and she refused to explain it to him. When he insisted, she said something to the effect that "that's what I would expect from somebody such as you or your kind of person." (Id. at p. 180). The students were very upset, and one of the female students indicated that she was going to write a letter about the situation. When Bunch confronted Rubin regarding the matter, respondent focussed on disrespect by T.W. and did not respond regarding what she meant by the comment allegedly made to T.W. For the rest of the school year, Bunch's students felt that Rubin was prejudiced towards the children.

On one occasion, Bunch observed a female student call out to tell Rubin that respondent had spelled a word wrong in class. Rubin reacted extremely negatively, telling the student "never mind." (Id. at p. 186). The students advised Bunch that that sort of thing happened all the time, that they could never correct or point anything out to respondent because Rubin would get angry.

Bunch and Rubin generally met once a week at agreed upon times to confer regarding the students. Commencing in September 1992, Bunch communicated her concerns regarding the state of the students when she returned to class. The two also discussed ways in which Rubin could become more effective with the class and reduce disciplinary problems. Rubin's responses were usually "defensive," with a focus on the "bad behavior" of students, rather than what Rubin could do to correct it. Respondent conveyed the impression that Rubin felt that it was sufficient that she was prepared with the lesson. In Bunch's view, instruction had to coincide with being able to discipline. (Id., at p. 170).

Throughout the school year, Bunch communicated her concerns to Finney and, later, to Garibell. Bunch initially also communicated to Finney her concerns that the class was disrespectful to respondent, but that she felt Rubin also had to "be stronger." (Id. at p. 171). Both Garibell and Finney advised Bunch to make efforts to work with Rubin and to speak to the students, which Bunch did, and that, if necessary, at some point, Bunch would have to document her observations.

By memorandum dated October 22, 1992, Bunch communicated her concerns to Garibell in writing. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-5. Bunch, at this time, did not perceive any improvement in the behavior of her students, nor their reaction to Rubin. Although she believed that Rubin's lessons were good, Bunch also felt that they were not being communicated to the students because of a focus upon discipline problems.

Prior to writing this memorandum, Bunch informally spoke with Finney and Garibell regarding the possibility of Bunch remaining in the classroom when Rubin was present. Garibell told Bunch that this could not be done because it would interfere with Rubin's responsibilities with the class. However, Bunch was willing to give up her preparation time. Bunch found that she was spending a whole period after Rubin left returning the class to order, thereby diminishing the time spent on instruction. Bunch spoke to Garibell regarding the matter. Garibell told her that the administration was trying to work on ways to help Rubin adjust to the school, and the students to her. He also advised Bunch that she could not take over Rubin's period and start teaching writing herself because Rubin was assigned to the class. He more specifically advised Bunch that Rubin could not be removed from her class. At some point, Bunch mentioned to Garibell that perhaps Rubin should not be assigned to an eighth-grade class because eighth graders are "rough." (Id. at p. 184). He responded in the negative, that Rubin was assigned to that class and would remain so. He also indicated that he could not tell Bunch what to do during her preparation period. Bunch did not subsequently discuss the matter much with Garibell because she felt she understood his intentions. Her communications with respondent continued on a frequent basis throughout the school year.

During this time frame, other teachers complained to Bunch regarding Rubin. To Bunch's perception, they were not willing to remain in class when Rubin was present, although Bunch was. Bunch felt that Rubin had many ideas she wanted to utilize and that she (Bunch) wanted to help her. Some teachers mentioned the fact that Rubin had erased materials off the blackboards in their classrooms. Bunch responded that she didn't mind, as long as an effective lesson was presented to the children. Others expressed annoyance that Rubin hung charts in their classrooms, "all in a disarray." (Id., at p. 175). Bunch responded that she did not mind if it would help keep the class under control. However, all the teachers complained regarding Rubin in some respect.

By the first week of October 1992, Bunch had given up her preparation periods and remained in the classroom when Rubin was present. This continued generally until the end of the school year. Although they never really discussed the issue, Bunch was sure that Rubin understood why Bunch was remaining in the class. It was Bunch's feeling that Rubin had good lessons to present and she would remain in the class if it would facilitate the students understanding it. The class was much more subdued when Bunch remained. If any of the students misbehaved, Bunch took actions to discipline them without interrupting the classroom. For example, she might tell a student to sit up in his/her seat, take his/her coat off his/her head, etc. Bunch had no other interaction with the class in Rubin's presence, because she did not want to take over the class.

Spina has been employed by respondent for ten years. She has a Bachelor's Degree from Wagner College, Staten Island, New York, and is certified in elementary and early childhood education. During the 1992-93 school year, Spina was assigned to School 4, teaching all subjects, except mathematics to a seventh grade class. Respondent taught Spina's class from approximately 10:05 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. on a daily basis. Spina had approximately 17 students.

Spina experienced problems with respondent from the beginning of the school year. It was Spina's belief that the class did not respond to Rubin well and that there was a negative attitude throughout the class. At some point, Spina requested to Garibell that Spina be allowed to remain in the room while Rubin was there. There was a disruptive atmosphere after she returned to class. Spina sent Garibell quite a few notes, complaining about different matters that occurred in the room when she was gone and after she returned. One letter of complaint was sent in approximately October 1992. Spina expressed dissatisfaction about the condition of the room upon her return, the fact that students had complained regarding Rubin's class and informed Spina that respondent had gone into Spina's desk, etc. Upon return, Spina would find, for example, that her stereo in the classroom was playing loudly and papers were all over the floor. Spina would find rolled balls of paper on the floor as if they had been thrown, board erasers with chalk dust strewn about, etc. Spina often played her stereo softly; it seemed to help the children work. Students never touched it in Spina's presence but did when Rubin was present. The radio was so loud that other teachers closed their doors. Spina spoke to Rubin regarding that situation several times. On one occasion, when Spina walked into the room, papers were flying. It got to the point where Spina kept a daily log of occurrences.

Garibell told Spina to stop sending him notes, that he was doing the best he could. He also told Spina he had no other position to which to assign Rubin if he took respondent out of Spina's class.

Spina met several times with Garibell and Finney regarding her complaints. Early in the school year, she met with Rubin as well as with the principal and vice-principal, which meeting was scheduled by Garibell. At some point, Spina stayed in her classroom during preparation time. Initially, she was told by the administration that she could not do that because she might interfere with Rubin's teaching. Subsequently, Spina told Garibell that she was remaining because she was concerned for the children's safety. Spina was aware that Harrell, Bunch and Salmond also complained pertaining to Rubin.

Spina remained in the class approximately 12 times throughout the school year. She observed that the students reacted extremely negatively to Rubin. Many answered back and refused to do work. Some students threw papers on the floor and others told respondent "get out of my face." (Id. at p. 133).

It was Spina's opinion that much of this developed because of Rubin's initial negative attitude. Rubin responded by arguing with the children and yelling at them. On several occasions, Spina tried to tell respondent that, based upon Spina's experience, it was counter-productive to scream at children when they yelled. More specifically, it was her experience that many of the children were not up to the level of seventh graders generally regarding emotional/social development.

On one occasion, for example, Spina observed S.B., a female student, hand a paper to respondent. Respondent indicated that it was not done correctly and should be redone. The child answered back. Rubin, who was standing approximately six inches from the student's face, yelled and screamed at the student, resulting in the child doing the same. On another occasion, security was called to Spina's room via the public address system. Spina rushed to the room and from the hallway, could hear screaming and yelling emanating from the class. She observed a radio playing at full volume and children running in circles around the room, throwing papers at each other and at respondent. Rubin was standing in the middle of the students, yelling at them to sit down. None listened. On this occasion, as on many prior occasions, the students indicated to Spina that respondent had shoved them, torn up their papers, etc. Spina felt that respondent was not bolstering the student's self esteem and communicated this to Garibell in one of her memorandum. When Spina asked respondent about tearing up papers, Rubin did not deny that such had occurred, but indicated that the papers were not acceptable.

On several occasions, students refused to do assignments for Rubin. Spina would later ask them to complete the papers, indicating that she would give them to respondent. The students responded that they would complete them only if Spina, not respondent, reviewed them. Spina never had a major problem with students refusing to do work she assigned. Only two or three students in the class were a problem in terms of negative behaviors. Spina made clear that the students would get an F for failure to complete work. Even her "worst student," a female student, whom Spina often sent to the office, would eventually complete work, apologizing to Spina. (Id. at p. 139). To Spina's perception, many of the children spoke a lot in class because it was the only time they had to express their feelings. She allowed this to occur, at a minimal level.

It was her opinion, that from the beginning, there were negative feelings. Spina recommended to Rubin that respondent not walk around the school "acting like you are afraid of the children because they pick up on that." To her perception, Rubin walked down the hallway "clutching her purse, looking like she was afraid of every person in the building, and the children knew this." The children often made derogatory comments about respondent, both to respondent and to Spina. (Id. at p. 140). Two of the male students, E.J. and E.M. could not get along with Rubin. They were in Salmond's class and eventually were assigned to Spina when Rubin was in Salmond's class. They completed work assignments for Spina. Rubin's next class assignment was in Spina's class. On a daily basis, there was a confrontation between Rubin and E.M. and E.J.

On one occasion, one of the students put a bottle of "white out" two inches from Rubin's face, threatening to put it on her nose. Spina merely told E.M. to give her the bottle, which he did. To Rubin's perception, a teacher had to stand up to a child like that. There was also situations in the school generally where students had weapons. Spina tried to explain to Rubin that she could not back down in a threatening situation, acknowledging that there were times that even she felt threatened in the school. Spina also advised that respondent learn as much as she could about each child, reviewing cards maintained for teachers pertaining to the students. On one occasion, for example, respondent complained to Spina, in front of Spina's class, regarding inattentiveness of a student, R.C., commenting, "what's his problem, can't he hear?" R.C. is required to wear hearing aids because he is almost deaf. The apparent insensitivity of the remark disturbed both Spina and the students. In advising respondent to learn as much as possible about the students, Spina noted that nine out of the 17 students refused to wear required eye glasses and were probably telling the truth if they said they couldn't see the board. On one occasion, for example, Rubin used a projector in such a manner that many students complained they could not see it. When Spina returned to the class, Rubin commented that students would not do the required work and pretended not to be able to see.

The students often told Spina that Rubin was rude to them, that she spoke to them as if they were "spoiled children." (Id. at p. 185.) The students referred to her as being afraid and teased her, which they never did with Spina. Spina spoke to the students, telling them it was cruel and they should behave better. Students also complained that Rubin told them they were in effect stupid.

At one point, on one occasion, when Spina was present, one of the students got her finger stuck in a piece of machinery in the classroom. Spina looked to Rubin to assist the child, not wanting to interfere in the class. Respondent did not do so, and another student assisted. The first student's finger was slightly swollen, and Spina suggested that Rubin send the child to the nurse. Respondent did not do so, and Spina did. The child came back with an ice pack. Respondent would often, at the end of the day, berate the children for not having worked during the class. The children would respond by indicating they would not work for her and calling her names. Spina lectured the class regarding their behavior and kept them after school several times. Rubin often gave detention to 14 out of 17 students.

It was Spina's perception that her students did not learn a sufficient amount about writing from Rubin. There was no improvement in sentence structure, paragraphs, indenting a paragraph, etc. In addition, the students did not know how to proofread. There was no improvement with spelling and vocabulary. The students rarely completed assignments given by Rubin. It would take Spina 20 to 30 minutes to calm the class after Rubin left. The children were also upset before Rubin came, anticipating her arrival. On one occasion, when the students had a mathematics exam later in the day, Spina made an excuse so that Rubin did not come, in order to keep the children calm.

Finney wrote Garibell a memoorandum dated October 16, 1992, because Spina, Bunch and Harrell had requested that Rubin not come to their classrooms because of unbearable noise. Hardiman was staying in the class when Rubin was present. The noise was heard throughout the building. As found, teachers also offered to stay in their classrooms during preparation periods. Finney discussed the situation with Garibell. Finney also discussed the situtation with Rubin, advising respondent that many teachers did not want Rubin in their class and wanted to stay Finney also relayed complaints from other teachers that Rubin had been erasing materials from their boards. Rubin denied that there were any problems. Finney advised using positive motivational strategies with students, letting them know that respondent was really concerned about them and what they learned. Finney also told the other teachers to talk to their students, to impress that they had to work with Rubin and that respondent was trying to help them. Finney also spoke to the students directly.

On November 16, 1992, Spina was absent. A substitute, a Mr. Ware (Ware) conducted the class. During her initial rounds in the building, Finney observed that students worked diligently when Ware conducted the class. The situation deteriorated when Rubin entered at approximately 10:05 a.m.

Finney completed an observation report, dated November 16, 1992. Rubin had initially called the office for help. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-12. Finney rated Rubin as needing improvement in the following areas: availability of materials, acceptance of responsibilities by students, clearly defined discipline procedures, enthusiasm for teaching, understanding child and adolescent behavior, alertness to physical needs of students, classroom control, demonstration of self-growth by pupils, learning atmosphere, stimulation of original thinking, clearly defined aims and procedures, use of motivational factors, sufficient teaching aids, systematic and orderly progression, and full class participation. Comments noted that the class was quiet until Rubin entered, that the office was paged for a security guard, that Rubin yelled most of the time and the students failed to respond to her questioning, and that one student put a coat over his head. Pertaining to teaching effectiveness, Finney noted that instruction was poor and ineffective because of lack of discipline. She also noted that a ditto was used and that the students appeared to dislike respondent.

Rubin was screaming and yelling at the students when Finney entered the room. Students were raising their hands, but respondent did not respond. Students were screaming, playing, etc. Although respondent made efforts with each student, they all refused to positively respond. Finney also suggested that Rubin make efforts to follow the lesson plan, and noted that there was no improvement in respondent's teaching, and that respondent should meet with Finney. Rubin did not exhibit improved relations with the students. Both Rubin and the other adjunct teachers shared a classroom which they could use when not teaching. During this time period, Finney had suggested that respondent meet with students in small groups or individually during her free time to get to know them better.

Garibell performed a classroom observation of Rubin on December 7, 1992, while respondent taught Spina's class. He concluded that there was no improvement from his prior observation. Respondent's lesson plan called for the students to write two paragraphs after completing a chart of characteristics. Rubin attempted to lead a discussion regarding characteristics of people, hobbies and interests but the students never got to the point of writing descriptive paragraphs. Much time was spent by respondent in refusing to answer questions and telling the students "I'll wait until you're ready." (Tr., February 10, 1994, p. 29.) Her lesson plan did not reflect any type of goal, objective nor procedure that would be utilized for using or evaluating techniques, merely that the students would be creating the chart and writing an assignment.

It was Garibell's opinion that respondent did not have good interpersonal relations with her students, which he felt was important for a teacher in order to help develop the students' positive self-image and develop lessons. While attemtping to lead a discussion and elicit responses, which she wrote on the blackboard, Rubin stopped after almost every sentence to wait because one student or another was talking or not listening. It was Garabel's opinion that such a technique would not work after the first or second time and that Rubin eventually "lost the students"; they paid no attention to her and she was not able to elicit responses. (Id. at p. 31.) A hostile environment still existed in the classroom.

The classroom was "chaotic." (Tr., 2/10/94, p. 118.) Rubin presented one lesson for the entire class, with no consideration of individual needs of students. Respondent used no motivational factors to commence the lesson, then immediately asked the students to compose a chart. As in prior evaluations, her approach was essentially a lecture. There was no orderly progression in the lesson, and many students did not participate. Garibell did not observe Rubin giving homework assignments, although he did not stay until the very end of the lesson. He was present when the class started and stayed for approximately 35 minutes.

Garibell prepared a classroom observation report pertaining to December 7, 1992. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-3. He rated respondent as needing improvement in the following areas: acceptace of responsibility by students, clearly defined discipline procedure, understanding of child and adolescent behavior, demonstration of growth in self-control by pupils, learning atmosphere, provision for individual needs, lesson preparation, clearly defined aims and procedures, use of motivational factors, appropriate variety of activities, and systematic and orderly progression. The narrative comments indicated that much time had been wasted in class, considering that the observation occurred in December; that the assignment was not completed in class; that pupils were not focused upon the lesson; that her teaching approach lacked effectiveness; that respondent's plans did not reflect goals, objectives, procedures, and evaluations; that respondent had poor interpersonal relations with the students; and that Rubin had limited knowledge of urban education. He requested that Rubin meet with him several days later. Respondent did not receive a copy of Garibell's observation report when it was completed, and the two never met regarding his observations.

In approximately early 1993, Garibell had to go into Rubin's class and take over a class because respondent was cornered by two male students, E.J. and E.M., in a seventh grade class. Garibell feared for her safety. The two students were subsequently removed from the class. In addition, on a frequent basis, responded contacted the office via the public address system. She was often barely audible because of the noise in her classroom. This occurred almost on a daily basis.

Finney observed respondent teaching Spina's class on January 5, 1993. Rubin presented a lesson on exploring ideas. At that time, there were approximately 30 classroom teachers, four adjunct teachers and two BSI teachers at the school. Tenured teachers were usually not evaluated formally more than twice a year unless there were significant problems.

When Finney entered the classroom at approximately 10:05 a.m., Rubin was yelling at the students, trying to secure order. The students were not paying attention. As was usual, the students quieted down when Finney entered the room. Rubin essentially presented a lecture, and the students ignored it. Some had their heads down or were not looking at her. Few students participated. Rubin gave an assignment for the class to complete. It was Finney's perception that most of them did not understand it. However, Rubin only stated the assignment once. Finney asked respondent to rephrase the assignment. Upon reviewing respondent's plans, Finney was satisfied that Rubin made efforts in this respect. However, the lesson plans were not related to motivational techniques. Finney's prior advice of relating a lesson to things the students knew of or were intrested in was not followed.

Rubin was attempting to use a text referred to as the MacDugel English book. Several students asked to leave the room for emergency purposes, and respondent refused. Some students put coats over their heads, others turned around in their seats. Many students were not reading the material assigned.

Finney's classroom observation report regarding Januray 5, 1993 is as stated in Exhibit J-13. Finney rated respondent as needing improvement in the following areas: acceptance of responsibility by students, clearly defined discipline procedure, enthusiasm for teaching, understanding child and adolescent behavior, alertness to physical needs of students, classroom control, demonstration of growth in self-control by students, provision for individual needs, and systematic and orderly progression. Finney's comments summarized her observations. Finney also noted that Rubin accepted student answers that were articulated in phrases or single words and directed her attention to the few students who attempted to respond. Her recommendations were that respondent continue to work on order in the classroom and the use of regular procedures. Finney requested that respondent meet with her that afternoon.

Finney conducted a post-observation conference with Rubin on January 5, 1993. The two discussed what had happened in the classroom, and Finney asked respondent why Rubin felt the students were so hostile towards her. To Finney's perception, Rubin became "sarcastic." (Tr., 3/8/94, p. 57.) Finney told her that that was not necessary. Although two students were present when Rubin came into the office, Finney dismissed them and closed the door. No one else was present during the conference. Rubin made no remarks regarding how she would improve her performance. Rather, respondent "seemed to have resented" Finney's suggestions. (Id. at p. 57.) Finney also told respondent that the MacDugal text may have been too difficult for the students. Respondent had obtained the materials herself; the school did not provide them. They also discussed motivational techniques, and Rubin told Finney that she was going to contact an employee at the McDonald's hamburger chain, who was familar to Finney, to establish a sticker/motivational program. Rubin criticized Finney for holding the conference in the principal's office. Rubin subsequently sent Garibell a memo to the effect that two students were present during the conference.

Because of respondent's apparent resentment, and in order to provide written documentation and to "cover" herself, Finney, on January 17, 1992, wrote a memorandum to respondent. (Tr., March 8, 1994, p. 57) The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-17. Finney addressed the need for improvement of classroom behavior. She set forth specific recommendations to respondent as follows:

1. Give the students a reason for learning information prior to commencing a lesson,

2. Present concrete materials first, so students can clearly understand and discuss the topic before asking for generalizations,

3. Help students improve their English by encouraging them to speak in complete sentences,

5. Plan questions that will be used and avoid those which can be answered "yes" or "no,"

6. Use behavior modification techniques, such as monthly charts with a reward system,

7. Conduct a small group discussion after school and solicit students' suggestions for improving class performance, refrain from calling parents for every small infraction, and when contacting a parent, try to say something positive,

10. Utilize instructional aids, such as overhead projectors and materials in the resource room by Prentice-Hall Publishing Company.,

11. Utilize film strips, tapes and other materials in the resource room to combat student boredom and provide variety,

12. Establish a class code of behavior cooperatively with the students, and post a chart with the rules. Solicit the assistance of classroom teachers to enforce the rules, and review them periodocially with students,

13. Give attention only to positive behavior,

14. Try to make positive remarks to the students on a daily basis and avoid negative remarks, and, be professional, do not hold a grudge, nor insist upon an apology. (Ex. J-17, p. 1.)

Respondent did not make any efforts to speak with Finney regarding the latter's suggestions. However, Finney subsequently communicated suggestions regarding the memorandum to Rubin. Finney had previously advised Rubin to talk with her students regarding their interests pertaining to a lesson or to ascertain what they already knew concerning the lesson. To Finney's observations, respondent never did so. Finney was aware that respondent had small group discussions with some of her students. However, they were not with the most troublesome students, as had been suggested by Finney.

Garibell also sent respondent a memorandum, dated March 3, 1993, with suggestions for improvement. The content of this document is as stated in Ex. J-15. He noted, in part, that effective teaching encompasses scholarship, lesson planning and teaching skills, management skills, skills in using various modalities, skills in encouraging relevant student activities, and the "Affective" aspect of teaching (Ex. J-15, p. 1). Each of these items was discussed in some detail. Pertaining to scholarship, Garibell referenced the availability of college courses, in-service courses, publications, seminars, workshops, etc. He also stressed the necessity of being flexible regarding lesson plans and to indicate what is being taught and the specific strategies to be utilized. The need for motivational tools was emphasized, as was the technique of good questioning of students. In this respect, Garibell amplified on the types of "PIVOTAL" questions that could be used. (Id. at p. 3.) Summary presentations and homework assignments were also referenced. Garibell also set forth specific routines necessary for classroom management. Garibell noted that his recommendations were presented as an aid to help Rubin complete her PIP, which had a target date of April 27, 1993. He closed by noting a scheduled March 4, 1993 annual conference and Rubin's right to have union representation present.

Rubin received a copy of Garibell's memorandum soon after it was prepared. She did not discuss it with him but made efforts to follow his recommendations. More specifically, she attempted to use more graphic materials, such as pictures, to illustrate points at the commencement of a lesson. She also attempted to make her questions more understandable, to use terminology which could be understood by the students, and gave more thought to approrpriate questions. Respondent also administered more frequent quizzes and assigned tasks while she was writing material on the blackboards, to use time more efficiently.

On approximately March 4, 1993, Garibell prepared a PIP for respondent for the 1992-93 school year. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-16. Stated goals were improvement in interaction with students utilizing a variety of techniques, improvement in use of various pedological strategies, improved planning, and improved interaction with staff and adminstration. Rubin's responsibilities were to avail herself of any service opportunities for improvement in urban education, teaching strategies, strategies for improving student behavior, etc.; to follow all suggestions referenced therein; to improve planning for instruction; and to improve group and personal dynamics with staff. Administrators' responsibilities were to provide information regarding courses offered by the District, to provide ongoing observations, to provide opportunities to observe master teachers (to be selected by the administration), to provide assistance as designated at-risk teachers, and to provide suggested strategies. Indicators of improvement were to be based upon direct observation, reduction of need for administrative intervention, improved planning, improvement in student performance data, and attendance at district in-service courses prepared for all staff members annually. The PIP estabished a target date of April 27, 1993.

The PIP for respondent was provided to her prior to her annual conference, in addition to other documents. The administration suggested that Rubin observe other staff members and try to be friendlier with students.

Garibell discussed the PIP with Rubin. He asked her to read the document first, which he had given her prior to the conference, and asked for any questions. Rather than discuss the document, respondent responded with her own comments concerning the administration's suggestions. Rubin essentially disagreed that she had problems in any of the areas noted. Finney also explained to Rubin that after reviewing respondent's personnel file, it appeared that administrations at prior schools to which respondent had been assigned were also not satisfied with her work. The participants at the conference in question discussed comments Rubin had received in the past which, to Finney's perceptions, were similar to the ones at School 4, as well as those in her current assignment.

Mrs. England (England) was the designated at-risk teacher at the time in question. She was responsible for testing, distribution information regarding funded programs, assisting teachers in selecting materials, and was in charge of the resource room. Teachers were generally advised to confer with England regarding materials. Rubin and England subsequently conferred, and England provided respondent with materials and suggestions. School-based half-day in-service courses were held in this general time period at the school. Rubin, as well as other classroom teachers, were required to attend, and respondent did so. The focus of the sessions was shared decision making, consensus building, and team cooperation. Portfolios of student work were not subsequently provided by respondent to the administration. Respondent's lessons plans did not change after the PIP. The plans still merely stated what respondent was going to teach, not the methods or measures for determining student change. Garibell informally spoke with Rubin subsequent to the PIP, generally regarding the requirements of the PIP. Respondent continued to dispute that any problems existed. Garibell often went to respondent's classroom to intervene between March 24, 1993 and the end of the school year. Finney performed at least one evaluation.

Rubin submitted a written response. Respondent indicated that she attempted innovative methods, that her lesson plans were good, that her management techniques were adequate, that there were no problems with social control, and that she did not believe she needed to improve her teaching style.

Respondent subsequently attempted to obtain information on relevant in-service courses but none were offered by the District at the time in question. Rubin commenced using a behavior modification chart, with a reward system. She also utilized the overhead projector and prepared a code of behavior. Rubin did not request a demonstration by a master teacher, and none was provided by the administration. Respondent was also asked to observe other staff members. She did not do so.

Finney and Garibell prepared a year-end performance report pertaining to respondent, which was dated March 24, 1993. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit J-14. Rubin was rated as needing improvement in the areas of knowledge of subject matter, systematic preparation, effective use of text and resources, care of materials and equipment, cooperation with staff members and administrators, effectiveness in communicating with parents, effectiveness in relating to students, initiative, industry, resourcefulness and adaptability, and acceptance of criticism. She was rated as unsatisfactory in the areas of skill in adapting materials to class needs, skill in providing for individual needs, skill in giving definitive workable assignments, skill in motivating interest and holding attention, skill in the use of variety of methods, organization of materials, social control, care of materials and equipment, and provision for and maintenance of safe procedures. Comments indicated that Rubin needed improvement in relating to and understanding urban education, that she had been unsuccessful in her pedological strategy and failed to utilize suggestions made by the administration, and that she was unable to provide for the safety and well-being of students, with a reference to time spent by the administration in assisting her with discipline and organization. Garibell recommended termination, with reference to the fact that this was the second such recommendation. The major concern for the administration was classroom control, including a concern for the safety of students and Rubin. It was Garibell's opinion that Rubin was incapable of causing a positive change in the students assigned to her because too much time was spent on ineffective classroom control techniques. Rubin also was resistent to efforts to establish better relations with colleagues.

By letter dated March 31, 1993 to Garibell, respondent filed a detailed rebuttal to the administration's performance evaluation report. She addressed the areas of scholarship, teaching techniques, classroom organization and management, professional relationships, as well as other various matters. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit R-1. Pertaining to scholarship, she disputed the suggestion that she had insufficient knowledge of subject matter and believed that she received no specific suggestions regarding urban education. Rubin also offered a detailed defense of her teaching techniques, noting a variety of materials utilized. She also noted that her lesson plans were not unduly criticized and asserted that she was cooperative with colleagues, and made efforts to meet with small groups of students. Rubin concluded that she felt, since her assignment at School 4, she was not treated impartially.

By memorandum dated April 1, 1993, the security guards complained about being assigned to assist Rubin. Garibell responded that they had to perform assignments given by the administration.

D.J. was a student in Salmond's seventh-grade class during the 1992-93 school year. Rubin required that students raise their hands prior to submitting completed work. One day early in the school year, D.J. attempting to give respondent a paper he had completed by calling her name several times. He did not raise his hand. Rubin, who was standing in proximity to D.J., called him an "ass." The other students laughed and told D.J. to tell Salmond, which he did when Salmond returned to the class.

S.R. was in Spina's class during the 1992-93 school year. On March 24, 1993, respondent assigned S.R. to after-school detention. Respondent subsequently observed S.R. in the school lobby, apparently not going to detention. She queried the student, and S.R. responded that she (S.R.) could not go right away because she (S.R.) had to pick up her brother at school. Rubin called S.R. an "f---ing brat." S.R. thereafter wrote a note to Finney about this occurrence, stating that she (S.R.) did not want to remain in Rubin's class. The content of this document is as stated in Exhibit P-8. Finney held a conference with S.R. and respondent the following day. Rubin denied calling S.R. names. In the past, when assigned detention, S. R. would first meet her brother and then bring her brother, who was five years old, to detention with her. Many other students followed a similar practice.

During the 1992-93 school year, Rubin told another student, T.J., to shut the "f---- up."

One day during the 1992-93 school year, J. I., a student of Spina, lit matches in the classroom during the period respondent was assigned, while Rubin was present in the class. Spina was not present at the time in question. Rubin made no efforts to take the matches from J.I. When Spina returned to the classroom, several of the students told her that J.I. had lit matches. Spina detected a smell of sulphur in the room. In response to a directive from Spina, J.I. gave the matches to her. Spina asked Rubin if J.I. had been "playing around with the matches," and Rubin responded in the affirmative. (Tr., 2/15/94, p. 152). Spina then asked why respondent had not taken the matches from J.I. Rubin replied to the effect that J.I. would not give the matches to respondent anyway in, what appeared to Spina, to be a "snotty tone of voice." (Id. at pp. 156-157). Respondent then left the room. Spina thereupon wrote a note regarding what had happened and sent J.I. with the note and mathbook to Garibell's office. The content of Spina's note is as stated in Exhibit P-10. Finney conducted a conference with respondent, J.I.'s mother, and J.I. the following day. J.I. admitted that she had lit matches in class.

By April 1993, Rubin was advising the administration that she felt fearful. The administration asked Vasquez for special security for Rubin near the end of the year. They also requested that Rubin be assigned to a different site for the last couple of weeks of school because respondent was telling Garibell and Finney that she (respondent) feared for her safety and that of her automobile. Vasquez advised that additional security would be provided for the school's parking lot, but that never occurred.

Rubin had disagreements and arguments with other staff members throughout the 1992-93 school year. When Finney and Garibell attempted to intercede, Rubin resisted.

Spina and Salmond were initially supportive of Rubin, but the situation quickly deteriorated. They both complained to the administration regarding the manner in which Rubin disciplined students. Spina also complained, as found, to the administration that Rubin, on occasion, went through Spina's desk and that respondent did not coordinate lessons with Spina. Spina also complained regarding the class situation when she returned when Rubin was present. Spina also advised Garibell on occasion that students disciplined by Rubin when Spina was present did not really misbehave in class. Nevertheless, the administration generally supported Rubin in any efforts to suspend students. Harrell communicated complaints, including written ones, of a similar nature to those of Spina. From October 1992 until she assumed a new position in January or February of 1993, Hardiman remained in her classroom when Rubin was present on a regular basis.

For the past ten years in February of each school year, when Black History Month occurs, Spina assigned black history reports to her students. She did so in February of 1993. Rubin gave the students some more assignments, and Spina mentioned the situation to her. Respondent offered to revise her assignment, and Spina concurred that this should be done. Spina intended to use her lesson to teach the techniques of writing a report by using an outline, researching material in the library, etc. Spina conferred with Garibell, who indicated that Rubin could give her assignment. Spina later heard that Rubin complained about Spina's communications with Garibell. This incident was an example of a lack of coordination between the two teachers. The two never discussed or planned a joint lesson. By October 1992, Rubin's relationship with Spina was poor. In that month, Spina and Rubin met with Garibell and Finney regrding the situation.

In April or May of 1993, respondent and Salmond had an argument about Rubin erasing material on blackboards in Salmond's class. Respondent had inadvertently done so. Salmond became upset and shouted at Rubin because a radio was blasting. Salmond characterized the situation as one of stupidity, and indicated she was tired of dealing with Rubin, in front of the students. Salmond also made a derogatory comment pertaining to Rubin in the presence of students when Rubin acidentally erased a part of a blackboard.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner of the Department of Education generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the local school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Discipline of tenured school employees is addressed in the pertinent statues.

A tenured local school employee shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, "or other just cause". Id. at §6-10 If a charge is one of inefficiency, prior to making a determination regarding certification of charges to the Commissioner, the local school board shall provide the employee with written notice of the alleged inefficiency, specifying the nature thereof, and allow at least 90 days in which to correct and overcome the inefficiency. Id. at §11. Procedural requirements pertinent to a charge of inefficiency are addressed in N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(c). The rationale of this regulation is that a teacher whose teaching effectiveness is called into question after years of meritorious service should be afforded an opportunity to demonstrate that he/she is still capable of effective teaching. In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of April Renee Bradley, 1991 S.L.D. at 2524 (Bradley).

In Bradley, supra, the Commissioner noted that a charge of incompetency, in contrast to a charge of inefficiency, assumes that the proofs in support of the charge will demonstrate that a teacher is so lacking in competency to perform the responsibilities of a classroom teacher that requirements of the 90-day improvement would be a useless exercise. A charge of incompetency requires proof that the individual in question, regardless of the assistance offered by certified supervisors, does not have the ability or capacity to be an effective teacher. 1990 S.L.D. at 821-822. The State Board of Education (State Board), although reversing the Commissioner's ultimate conclusion, agreed with the standard utilized by the Commissioner in differentiating between incompetency and inefficiency. 1991 S.L.D. at 2522-2523. The State Board noted that the nature of a teacher's entire years of service is relevant as to whether or not he/she lacks the ability to be an effective teacher. Id. at 2524.

The Commissioner in Newark Bd of Ed v. Burnside, 13 N.J.R. 867 (Oct. 25, 1988) (Burnside), upheld a determination that the local school board had proven charges of incompetency and unprofessional conduct pertinent to charges that the respondent was unable to control and educate students despite supervisor conferences, had made insulting and degrading remarks about students, had gotten into arguments with students, and that students engaged in fighting and left the classroom. An evaluation of such charges is a matter of "total impression" based upon observations made over a period of time. Burnside at 886. The need to remove a teacher may be demonstrated by one incident, "if sufficiently flagrant." In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (Fulcomer), (1967).

In determining the appropriateness of a teacher's fitness, it has been noted that teachers must exercise '. . . a degree of self-restraint and control behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment.' In re Tyler, 13 N.J.A.R. 297, 309 (citation omitted). 'While teachers are sensitive to the same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self control'. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Appleby, School District of Vineland, Cumberland County, 1969, S.L.D. 159, 173, aff'd, State Board, 1970 S.L.D. 448 (citation omitted) (Appleby).

Inappropriate physical contact between a teacher and student constitutes unbecoming conduct. See, Fulcomer, supra. Students have a right to be free not only from bodily harm but from "offensive bodily touching, even though there be no actual physical harm." Appleby at 173. Teachers who resort to unnecessary and inappropriate physical contact face dismissal 'or other severe penalty.' Ibid (citation omitted). Factors relevant to a determination of penalty include the nature and length of a teacher's prior service and whether there is any indication that the acts in question were "premeditated, cruel or vicious, or done with intent to punish or to inflict corporal punishment." Tyler at 318. A teacher with an "uncontrollable temper" who verbally and physically abuses students engages in unbecoming conduct, Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super, 737, 741 (App. Div. 1988), as does one who uses "violent profanity" (Id. at 749.)

A failure by a teacher to follow a lawful directive of superiors constitutes insubordination. See, Cheesemen v. Gloucester City, 1 N.J. Misc. 318 (1923).

CONCLUSIONS

As both parties recognize, the burden of proof is upon petitioner by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). I am persuaded that petitioner has made its burden of proof in most respects.

Respondent, on a consistent basis, at both Schools 4 and 8 failed to maintain effective classroom control, shouted at students, spoke to children about students in a derogatory manner, refused to answer students' questions, and did nothing to individualize her presentations of lessons, consistent with individual needs of students. The situation resulted in not only risks to petitioner's safety, but to those of her students. It also resulted in a failure by respondent to provide adequate instruction to her students, nor to maintain a climate conducive to classroom instruction. The fact that students were not attentive, even in the presence of administrators, highlights respondent's inability to teach and maintain discipline.

Although respondent Rubin's lesson plans were minimally sufficient, and there is no evidence that they were ever rejected by administrators, they were not available as required and they did not address methodology and evaluation techniques. In addition, respondent's teaching approach was one of lecture, with little strategy used to motivate and encourage participation by students.

The situation existing in Rubin's classroom on January 10, 1992, although addressed as a separate charge, falls within the time period referenced in Charge One and, in my judgment, constitutes evidence of incapacity. Similarly, respondent's failure to enforce the pass procedures highlights her general inability to impose effective discipline and lend support to petitioner's case.

Respondent's entire career in the District was fraught with problems. Her behavior was consistent at both Schools 4 and 8, although the ages of the students differed and although she functioned as a regular classroom teacher in one school and as a more mobile teacher in the other. The requirement that a teacher maintain his/her self control is recognized in the Commissioner's decisions. It is also, however, self-evident that a teacher should not scream at students, make derogatory remarks to and about students, curse at students, etc. Remarks by respondent regarding hearing impaired students and calling and referring to students as "stupid" constituted insensitivity at the least and incapacity at the worse In any event, administrators at both schools in question, as well as other teachers, spent an inordinate amount of time discussing problems with Rubin and offering suggestions on how to deal with the situation. Respondent's stance throughout the years in question, as was her position during the hearings, was consistently that there were no problems and everyone but she was at fault.Respondent's performance did not improve, although towards the end of the 1992-1993 school year she belatedly made some efforts to change, supporting the conclusion that petitioner has proven incapacity.

Administrators provided Rubin with formal evaluations, conducted formal evaluation conferences, and met with her on many occasions informally and more informally. In adddition, administrators made efforts such as removing students from respondent's classes, both on a temporary and more permanent basis. Respondent's classes were of a small size, generally smaller than those of other teachers. Indeed, administrators supported Rubin even in the face of consistent complaints of other teachers. Respondent rarely asked questions at meetings and made no efforts to arrange for a demonstration lecture nor to observe other teachers. Until late, during the second year, respondent made minimal efforts to meet individually with more troublesome students, although she had sufficient time built into her schedule to do so.

Although concluding that petitioner has proven the charges referenced in Charge One generally, I am not persuaded that the District has demonstrated poor relations with parent and staff members to an extent constituting incapacity. Petitioner made efforts to meet with parents and confer with staff members, although at times she showed poor judgment, and the record does not demonstrate a level of such poor relations, which petitioner caused, justifying a conclusion of incompetency in this respect. To some extent, poor relations with some teachers, for example, were the fault of all. Some of the disagreements pertaining to erasure of blackboards, for example, appear to be the result of misunderstandings, rather than incompetency by respondent.

It is reasonable to conclude that poor relations with colleagues largely resulted from the negative impact upon them because of respondent's failure to effectively control her classroom. Respondent came to both schools in question with a clean slate. There is nothing in the record to indicate bias or preconceived notions on the part of any of the administrators. Colleagues were initially amiable to making efforts to assist respondent but, somewhat understandably, lost patience in this respect as time progressed and they were negatively impacted by problems associated with the situation in her classrooms.

Alluding to the problems which many of the students brought to school with them, as referenced in the above findings of fact, respondent argues, in part, that responsibility is being placed upon her for problems of society. I am not persuaded by this argument. It is a teacher's obligation to tailor his/her teaching methodology to the individual needs of the students. In addition, it is reasonable to conclude that respondent's own actions caused and exacerbated what may have been a difficult situation to begin with. It is also noteworthy that other teachers were able to deal effectively, even with the most disruptive students, and that none experienced problems to the extent that Rubin did. For whatever reason, it is clear that Rubin was unable to deal with the situation. Her inability to do so not only negatively impacted upon the students whom she taught, but as reflected in the above findings of fact, interfered with the teaching of colleagues and consumed an inordinate amount of her superiors' time.

It is clear that respondent's use of profanity pertaining to D.J. and S.R. constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher and serious infractions, warranting discipline. However, I am persuaded that petitioner has not proven that respondent physically grabbed and scratched R.C. on January 10, 1992. The record indicates that any contact was totally inadvertent. I am also not persuaded that respondent's failure to contact the school office on January 10, 1992 constitutes insubordination. Although administrators may have had difficulty in striking a reasonable balance, it is clear that conflicting communications were given to respondent. On the one hand, she was chastised for calling the office too much and consuming an inordinate amount of supervisory time; on the other, she was directed to contact the office if problems arose.

The sustained nature of respondent's inability to improve her performance and the serious nature of the infractions pertaining to D.J. and S.R., lead me to conclude that, as argued by the District, termination is appropriate. As noted, respondent's inability to maintain discipline resulted in a situation where there was no effective teaching of students and where their safety was put at risk, as highlighted by incidents of students leaning out of open windows and respondent's failure to even attempt to deal with a student lighting matches in class. Considering the totality of the circumstances, I am persuaded that termination is warranted.

I CONCLUDE that the District has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Charge One, incompetency, except for that aspect alleging that respondent demonstrated poor relations with parents and staff members; that petitioner has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence Charge Two, conduct unbecoming a teacher; that the District has not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charge Three; that the allegations in Charge Four pertaining to dereliction of duties pertaining to January 10, 1992 are subsumed in Charge One; that respondent has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Rubin permitted J.I. to light and play with matches in class during the 1992-93 school year and failed to take action and that such constitutes other just cause for discipline; and that the District has not proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence the charge of insubordination in Charge Four. I also CONCLUDE that respondent should be terminated.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that all aspects of Charge One except that pertaining to allegations of poor relations of parents and staff members be and is hereby AFFIRMED; that Charge Two be and is hereby AFFIRMED; that Charge Three is be and is hereby DISMISSED; that the allegation of dereliction of duty pertaining to January 10, 1992 in Charge Four be and is hereby DISMISSED; that the allegation of insubordination referenced in Charge Four be and is hereby DISMISSED; and that the charge of dereliction of duty pertaining to January 21, 1993 be and is AFFIRMED. I also ORDER that respondent's employment as a teacher in the District be and is hereby TERMINATED

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10753-93

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ELLEN RUBIN, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate her arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge, again contending, inter alia, that Charges One and Four constituted allegations of inefficiency rather than incompetence and, therefore, must be dismissed as she was not afforded the opportunity of a 90-day period within which to take remedial action as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Respondent further objects to the ALJ improperly accepting the biased testimony presented by the District as fact rather than her credible testimony. The Commissioner finds that these and respondent's remaining exception arguments were fully and fairly considered and addressed at length by the ALJ in her initial decision and need not be herein reviewed.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which includes transcripts of the nine days of hearings at the Office of Administrative Law, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ with respect to each of the charges for the reasons clearly articulated by her in the initial decision. Further, the Commissioner is fully satisfied that the ALJ carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies, and potential biases in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching her findings of fact and he finds no cause to question such credibility assessments.

The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ that, considering the totality of the circumstances existing in this matter, dismissal of respondent from her tenured teaching position in the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson is warranted.

Accordingly, for the reasons well expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law. Respondent is hereby dismissed from her teaching position as of the date of this decision. Additionally, this matter will be referred to the State Board of Examiners for any action it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a).

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ELLEN RUBIN, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, September 12, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Gregory G. Johnson, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Bucceri & Pincus (Gregory T. Syrek, Esq., of Counsel)

On September 30, 1993, the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson (hereinafter "State-operated District") certified tenure charges against Ellen Rubin (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member who had been employed in the district since December 1987. Those charges alleged respondent's unbecoming conduct in using profane language to students, in particular, that she had called one student an "ass" and referred to another as a "f---ing brat"; unjustified physical contact with a student; dereliction of duties/insubordination; and incompetency during the period from September 1991 to June 1993.[1] The dereliction of duties/insubordination charge cited an incident which occurred on January 10, 1992 in which the school's principal had relieved respondent of her classroom duties after respondent had allowed students to play, dance on tables, move furniture and engage in dangerous behavior, and also alleged that respondent had permitted a student to light and play with matches in class on another occasion without taking any action. The incompetency charge alleged that respondent had failed to enforce school policies and procedures relating to her teaching duties, failed to maintain effective classroom control, thereby risking the health and safety of her students, failed to manage behavior of students, failed to improve the delivery of instruction, failed to effectively plan instruction, failed to maintain a climate conducive to effective instruction and demonstrated poor relations with parents and staff members.

On July 22, 1994, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded that the State-operated District had proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence the allegations of unbecoming conduct, dereliction of duties and incompetency, except for respondent's alleged poor relations with parents and staff members. The ALJ found that the incident in which the school's principal relieved respondent of her classroom duties for failing to supervise her class constituted evidence of incapacity. She concluded that respondent had:

> failed to maintain effective classroom control, shouted at students, spoke to students about students in a derogatory manner, refused to answer students' questions and did > nothing to individualize her presentations, consistent with individual needs of students. The situation resulted in not only risks to petitioner's [sic] safety, but to those of her students. It also resulted in a failure by respondent to provide adequate instruction to her students, nor to maintain a climate conducive to classroom instruction.

[1] We note that the Administrative Law Judge denied the State-operated District's motion to amend the incompetency charge so as to reflect allegations of incompetency commencing in January 1989. The District has not challenged that ruling on appeal.

Initial Decision, slip op. at 61.

The ALJ found that respondent had frequently referred to students as "stupid" in conversations with other staff members, and noted that it was "self-evident that a teacher should not scream at students, make derogatory remarks to and about students, curse at students, etc. Remarks by respondent regarding hearing impaired students and calling and referring to students as 'stupid' constituted insensitivity at the least and incapacity at the worse [sic]." Id. at 62. She found, however, that the State-operated District had not proven the charges of insubordination and unjustified physical contact with a student.

In view of the "sustained nature of respondent's inability to improve her performance and the serious nature of the infractions" pertaining to her profane remarks to students, id. at 64, the ALJ recommended that respondent be dismissed from her tenured employment. She stressed that "respondent's inability to maintain discipline resulted in a situation where there was no effective teaching of students and where their safety was put at risk, as highlighted by incidents of students leaning out of open windows and respondent's failure to even attempt to deal with a student lighting matches in class." Id. at 62.

On September 12, 1994, the Commissioner of Education adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and directed that respondent be dismissed from her tenured employment.

Respondent has filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a thorough review of the record, including the transcripts of the hearings held in the Office of Administrative Law, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner dismissing respondent from her tenured position. However, we modify the Commissioner's decision only to the extent that he found that the State-operated District had proven "incompetency."

> The charge of incompetence, as distinguished from the charge of inefficiency, requires that the proofs in support of the charge will demonstrate that respondent is so lacking in competency to perform the responsibilities of classroom teacher that the requirements of the 90-day improvement period, required for a charge of inefficiency, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, would be a useless exercise. Incompetency requires proof that the affected person regardless of assistance offered by certified supervisors, does not have the ability or capacity to be an effective teacher.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Renee Sokolow, decided by the Commissioner, 1982 S.L.D. 1358, 1362, aff'd by the State Board, 1983 S.L.D. 1645.

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Edna Booth, decided by the Commissioner, 1985 S.L.D. 722, aff'd by the State Board, 1987 S.L.D. 2541, aff'd, Docket #A-3985-86T8 (App. Div. 1987), incompetency charges were dismissed against a tenured teacher where the deficiencies relating to the charges of incompetency in respondent's job performance were restricted to the 1982-83 and 1983-84 school years. Prior thereto, the respondent had received favorable evaluations related to her job performance. Consequently, it was concluded that the record did not demonstrate that respondent was so lacking in competency that the 90-day improvement period would have been a useless exercise. See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank J. Napoli, decided by the Commissioner, February 16, 1988, aff'd by the State Board, December 1, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-2301-88T3 (App. Div. 1990); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Millicent Smith, decided by the State Board, April 15, 1994, appeal dismissed, Docket #A-5301-93T3 (App. Div. 1995); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of April Renee Bradley, decided by the State Board, February 6, 1991.

In view of respondent's previous service, we cannot conclude that the State-operated District has demonstrated that she lacked the ability to be an effective teacher. Although respondent had been employed in the district since December 1987, the incompetency charge certified by the State-operated District and the evidence presented thereon by the District at hearing were limited to the period between September 1991 and June 1993, subsequent to respondent's achievement of tenure.[2] The record does not demonstrate a long-term recurring problem with incompetency. See Booth, supra. Nor is there any evidence indicating the existence of some underlying condition which undermined respondent's abilities and rendered her incapable of effectively performing her duties.

Consequently, we conclude that the State-operated District has failed to satisfy its burden of proof in demonstrating those allegations involving respondent's incompetency. In this regard, we stress that while the record herein may well support a same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self-control." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Appleby, 1969 S.L.D. 159, 173, aff'd by the State Board, 1970 S.L.D. 448, aff'd by the Appellate Division, 1972 S.L.D. 662 (App. Div. 1972). The record herein establishes that respondent not only failed to exercise the high degree of self-control expected of teaching professionals, but also permitted serious, disruptive and dangerous student behavior to persist in her classroom.

Consequently, as modified herein, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner dismissing respondent from her tenured employment.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4658-94

AGENCY DKT. NO. 112-4/94

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NEW PROVIDENCE BOROUGH, UNION COUNTY

Louise R. Verrico, pro se

Martin R. Pachman, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 20, 1994 Decided: July 25, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Louise R. Verrico, a defeated candidate for reelection to the Board of Education of New Providence (Board), seeks a delay in the swearing in of successful candidate Board members scheduled on April 28, 1994. Petitioner alleges irregularities and/or violations of law in the conduct of the annual school Board election. On May 12, 1994, the Commissioner of the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52 :14B-1 to-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On June 10, 1994, I held a telephone conference with the parties. Mrs. Verrico informed the Board attorney, Mr. Martin R. Pachman, that the allegations of illegal conduct of the school election were directed against individual candidates--Linda B. Handler, Timothy Barnes, and Mike Gavini--and not the New Providence Board of Education. Thereafter, in a letter to Mrs. Verrico dated June 10, 1994, Mr. Pachman explained the substance of the telephone conference.

On June 20, 1994, the Board filed a motion seeking summary decision dismissing the appeal on the ground that petitioner failed to state any claim against the Board upon which relief may be granted.

When no responsive filing was received from Mrs. Verrico by July 20, 1994, the record on the motion was closed without notice to either party. The case is presently scheduled for plenary hearing on July 26, 1994.

The undisputed facts relevant to the Board's motion are adopted as FACT.

1. The alleged violations are against individual candidates for the school Board.

2. The alleged illegal conduct, inserting literature into the Star-Ledger newspaper, occurred prior to the election and the swearing in of the successful candidates.

3. Petitioner does not allege that the Board acted improperly or in violation of the law.

Petitioner alleges that individual candidates improperly had campaign literature inserted into the Newark Star-Ledger newspaper. N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77 provides that any person who places an advertisement or circular in a newspaper without the consent of the owner or publisher of the newspaper is a disorderly person. However, petitioner does not implicate that the Board has engaged in any misconduct or illegal campaigning activities at or about the polling place, "or in any other matter which either involves the Board as the agent responsible for conduct of the election or about which the Board has any knowledge" (Board correspondence to ALJ, June 7, 1994). Further, the alleged illegal conduct by individual candidates occurred prior to the date of the election and prior to the date of the swearing in of the successful candidates (respondent's letter memorandum, June 20, 1994).

Thus, the Board submits that it is not accused of permitting, countenancing, or having any specific knowledge of any alleged violation committed by any candidate for the office of school Board member. Further, the Board asserts that there is no allegation of a violation of any school election law which the Board can be held accountable.

Therefore, it is submitted that the petition against the Board should be dismissed.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the individual candidates, rather than the Board, are the indispensable parties to this proceeding. An indispensable party is one who has an interest in the matter and a disposition cannot justly be made between the litigants "without either adjudging or necessarily affecting the absentee's interest." Jennings v. M & M Transportation Co., 104 N.J. Super. 265, 272 (Ch. Div. 1969).

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has not charged the Board with illegal or improper conduct. Therefore, the petition against the Board of Education must be DISMISSED.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH	:	DECISION
OF NEW PROVIDENCE, UNION COUNTY.	:

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot agree that a request for inquiry duly filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12, where a specific violation of election law is alleged and a claim is made that such violation influenced the outcome of the election, can be dismissed solely because the violation is ascribed to individual candidates rather than to the Board of Education and pertains to conduct occurring prior to the actual election.

In election inquiries, the Board is not a respondent per se, but rather a party of interest generally taking the position, whether on behalf of itself as a corporate entity or on behalf of newly elected members against whom allegations of election impropriety have been made, that violations did not occur, or if they did, that they did not affect the outcome of the election. To hold that inquiries cannot go forward when the allegations are against an individual candidate rather than the Board, effectively insulates from the Commissioner's purview, and from his ability to order a new election, voter outcomes which may have been influenced by improper actions on the part of candidates, notwithstanding that such candidates may also be subject to individual civil or criminal penalties by the terms of particular statutes violated.

Accordingly, the initial decision dismissing the Petition of Appeal is reversed and the instant matter is remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing on the merits of petitioner's claims. In so ruling, the Commissioner stresses that his decision above in no way constitutes a judgment on the merits of petitioner's claims, but merely affirms petitioner's right to an evidentiary hearing and determination by the Commissioner.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning defeated candidate sought inquiry into alleged irregularities and/or violations of law in conduct of annual school election. ALJ concluded that petitioner had not charged the Board with illegal or improper conduct and granted the Board's motion to dismiss the petition. Commissioner reversed initial decision and remanded matter to OAL for hearing on the merits, finding request for inquiry could not be dismissed solely because the election violations were ascribed to individual candidates rather than to the Board and they pertained to conduct occurring prior to the actual election.

On remand, ALJ found that there was no evidence that the will of the electorate had been thwarted. ALJ concluded alleged conduct by the candidates (inserting improper campaign literature into newspapers), even if deemed a violation of the election law, did not affect the outcome of the election and, thus, the election should not be overturned. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF NEW PROVIDENCE BOROUGH, UNION COUNTY

Louise R. Verrico, pro se

Martin R. Pachman, Esq., for respondent

Record closed: January 24, 1995 Decided: March 9, 1995

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Louise Verrico, a defeated candidate for reelection to the Board of Education of New Providence (Board), alleges that individual candidates for election to the Board inserted campaign literature into Sunday editions (April 10 and 17, 1994) of The Star-Ledger newspaper without authorization from the publisher. Consequently, petitioner contends that the candidates conduct improperly affected the outcome of the election. At the time of the alleged acts, the individual candidates were citizens seeking election to the Board.

Petitioner's allegations do not involve the Board as a public body, its employees, its facilities or the conduct of the election. The Board appears as a party of interest on behalf of the newly elected members. The Board takes no position as to the veracity of petitioner's allegation but submits that even if true, the alleged violations did not affect the outcome of the election.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 12, 1994, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52 :14B-1 to-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On June 20, 1994, the Board moved for a summary decision on the ground that petitioner failed to state any claim against the Board upon which relief may be granted. Petitioner did not respond to the Board's motion.

On July 25, 1994, I concluded that petitioner had not charged the Board with illegal or improper conduct and granted the Board's motion to dismiss the petition.

The September 13, 1994 decision of the Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for a hearing on the merits of petitioner's claim that voter outcome has been influenced by the improper actions of the candidates. Thus, on September 19, 1994, the matter was remanded to the OAL for hearing.

A hearing was held on November 2, 1994. Petitioner presented two witnesses, Mary DeFillippis and Robert Enlow. The Board neither presented witnesses nor did it cross-examine petitioner's witnesses. The parties submitted a post-hearing positions and the record closed on January 24, 1995.

ISSUE

The issue is whether the candidates violated the school election law and if so, did their conduct affect the outcome of the election?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence I FIND the following as FACT:

1. Linda B. Handler, Timothy L. Barnes, Mike B. Gavini, Stephen Vidal, Allen Morgan and Louise Verrico were candidates for the New Providence Board of Education. Total votes received were: Barnes- 961; Handler- 948; Vidal-761; Morgan- 723; Gavini- 594; and Verrico-567. (J-1)
2. During the campaign, successful candidate Handler and unsuccessful candidate Gavini inserted campaign literature in The Star-Ledger newspaper promoting their candidacies.
3. Robert Enlow purchased The Star-Ledger newspapers, on April 10 and 17 from neighborhood newsstands and found hand inserted campaign literature for Handler and Gavini. Enlow believes that the owners of the newsstands whom he referred to as the "Calcutta Persuasion" inserted the literature into the papers as a favor for Gavini. Enlow then notified The Star-Ledger circulation department about the inserts.
4. The Star-Ledger replied to the managers of the newsstands as follows:

> We have received a complaint that circulars promoting the candidacy of an individual in a local election were found in copies of the Sunday Star-Ledger sold in your store on April 17, 1994.
> The Star-Ledger did not authorize the insertion of such a circular. The unauthorized insertion of materials in a newspaper is a violation of New Jersey law and is punishable by imprisonment of up to six months. Copies of this law and the applicable penalty provisions are attached.

> Accordingly, please take all necessary steps to insure that copies of the Star-ledger sold in your store do not have any unauthorized materials placed upon, affixed to, or inserted in them. If we receive further complaints of this nature in the future, we will take appropriate action.

Positions of the Parties

Petitioner alleges that two candidates for election placed flyers or campaign literature into editions of The Star-Ledger at certain newsstands in New Providence. The evidence does not reveal whether the candidates paid the newsstand operators for allowing them to insert the campaign material. However, neither the candidates nor newsstand operators obtained permission from or paid The Star-Ledger for the inserts. Petitioner, an unsuccessful candidate for reelection, now challenges the validity of the election results.

Petitioner asserts that candidates for the Board of Education must demonstrate virtues of honesty, good judgment and integrity. Board members have a duty to ensure that the students receive a good education. They are also role models for the children and therefore should exemplify moral and ethical principles. Board members should abide by rules and regulations in their campaign conduct. Petitioner believes that Handler should be penalized for violating N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77 and N.J.S.A. 2C:43-8. Further, the Board should issue a policy that such conduct in the future will not be condoned.

The Board takes no position on whether the alleged conduct occurred. It does note, however, that the candidates should have obtained permission to insert the flyers from The Star-Ledger and paid the appropriate fee for the advertisement. Thus, any negative impact of the alleged conduct falls on the "coffers" of The Star-Ledger. (Respondent's Letter Brief of November 2, 1994.) Nevertheless, the Board submits that there is insufficient evidence to conclude that the outcome of the election would have been different based on distribution of the flyers with or without payment to the newspaper publisher. Therefore, if the alleged conduct occurred, it did not affect the outcome of the election.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

If it is established that the candidates acted without the consent of the newspaper publisher, the actions may constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77 which provides:

> Any person who places upon, affixes to or places in, or causes to be placed upon, affixed to or placed in a newspaper, magazine, periodical or book, any notice, circular, pamphlet, card, handbill, printed book or notice of any kind without the consent of the owner or publisher of such newspaper, magazine, periodical or book, is a disorderly person.

The testimony of Enlow seeks to infer that the newspaper vendors inserted the campaign flyers into the newspapers as a favor to Gavini based on their common ethnicity. The record, however, reveals that The Star-Ledger did not authorize the inserts. Apparently, the candidates obtained permission from the vendors to insert the campaign material.

Neither the candidates nor the newspaper vendors were charged with violating N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77. Assuming that the candidates engaged in the conduct alleged, their action may have constituted a disorderly persons offense.[1] However, a conviction under N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77 must be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, not the OAL.

[1] A person who has been convicted of a disorderly persons offense or a petty disorderly persons offense may be sentenced to imprisonment for a definite term which shall be fixed by the court and shall not exceed 6 months in the case of a disorderly persons offense or 30 days in the case of a petty disorderly persons offense. N.J.S.A. 2C:43-8

Petitioner also avers that the candidates conduct was unethical. The concept of a board candidate's "fitness of character" is not addressed by the statutes concerning the qualification and election of board members. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1 to- 20; N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 to- 104. However, in Cullum v. Bd. of Education of Tp. of North Bergen, 15 N.J. 285, 292 (1954) the Supreme Court stated that board members "hold positions of public trust and must faithfully discharge their functions with the public interest as their polestar." [Citation omitted.] These notions of public trust and fidelity imply that board members should possess suitable character traits. See also N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 to -34, the "School Ethics Act".

Fitness of character standards are also implicit in N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2, which requires forfeiture of public office upon conviction of certain criminal offenses. N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2a provides in part that a person holding public office shall forfeit that position upon his/her conviction of: (1) an offense involving dishonesty or a crime of the third degree or above, or (2) an offense "involving or touching such office, position or employment." Since neither candidate was convicted of any crime in relation to this matter, the statute does not apply.

On the other hand, even if a conviction under N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77 is deemed to "involve and touch" the office of a school board member, the conduct may not warrant forfeiture. N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2d.

N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2d provides:

> Any forfeiture or disqualification under subsection a., b. or c. which is based upon a conviction of a disorderly persons or petty disorderly persons offense may be waived by the court upon application of the county prosecutor or the Attorney General and for good cause shown.

Forfeiture of public office under N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2 is based upon a conviction under N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77. The successful candidate, Linda Handler, has not been convicted by a court of competent jurisdiction. Therefore, the forfeiture statute is not applicable.

Assuming that the candidates' action violated school election law, are there sufficient grounds to void the election results? Generally, a school board election will not be set aside unless it is clearly demonstrated that "the will of the electorate . . . has been thwarted." In re Annual Sch. Elec. of the Borough of Fort Lee, 1986 S.L.D. 1557, 1561 quoting In re Annual Sch. Elec., Greater Egg Harbor Reg. Sch. Dist. 1978 S.L.D. 11, 20. Cases addressing whether an election should be overturned typically involve procedural defects which directly violate the school election statute, i.e., procedures regarding absentee ballots, polling places and equipment, information on voting machines, registration requirements, residency, etc.

In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363 (Law Div. 1953) sets forth the standard for overturning an election as follows:

> The rule in our State is firmly established that if any irregularity or any other deviation from the election law by the election officials is to be adjudged to have the effect of invalidating a vote or an election, where the statute does not so expressly provide, there must be a connection between such irregularity and the result of the election; that is, the irregularity must be the producing cause of illegal votes which would not have been cast or of defeating legal votes which would have been counted, had the irregularity not taken place, and to an extent to challenge or change the result of the election; or it must be shown that the irregularity in some other way influenced the election so as to have repressed a full and free expression of the popular will.
> [26 N.J. Super. at 383.]

Elections are to be given effect whenever possible. Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185 (1953). Even gross irregularities, not amounting to fraud, will not vitiate an election. Stone v. Wyckoff, 102 N.J. Super. 26 (App. Div. 1968). There must be concrete evidence that the will of the people has been suppressed, rather than speculation that improved conditions would have afforded a different result. In the matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Borough of Ringwood, Passaic County, 1974 S.L.D. 591. Absent a prima facie case that the will of the electorate has been thwarted and the outcome of the election changed, the election will not be overturned. See, In Re Clee, 119 N.J.L. 310 (1938). Broad and vague allegations of fraud and illegal conduct, including unauthorized assistance in ballot preparation and electioneering at polling places, is not sufficient to vitiate the election results, absent any allegation that invalidating the illegal votes would change the result of the election. It is the duty of the court to uphold an election unless it clearly appears that it was illegal. Public policy so ordains. Clee at 330. However, when an election result is very close, and irregularities or the absence of regularity infect the contest, the court has held that the full and free expression of the popular will had been subject to interference. In re Klayman, 97 N.J. Super. 295 (Law Div. 1967).

Here, petitioner does not allege that improper votes were cast nor that the electorate was somehow misinformed of material facts. There is no evidence that the will of electorate has been thwarted. Instead, the alleged irregularity involves the candidates' failure to procure permission from the publisher to insert otherwise appropriate campaign literature into newspapers.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that the alleged conduct by the candidates, Linda Handler and Mike Gavini, even if deemed a violation of the election law, did not affect the outcome of the election. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the election should not be overturned.

It is ORDERED that the petition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. PROVIDENCE BOROUGH, UNION	:	DECISION ON REMAND
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that even assuming, arguendo, that the alleged conduct by the candidates were to be deemed a violation of the election law, petitioner has not established that the outcome of the election was affected. Therefore, the election should not be overturned.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
OCEAN COUNTY.	:

This interim matter comes before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Motion to Participate as Amicus Curiae filed on August 2, 1994 by the Lakewood Education Association, wherein the Association seeks leave to submit briefs and participate in oral argument on the above-captioned cap waiver appeal.

In its supporting memorandum, the Association argues that, as the majority representative of all teaching staff members employed in both professional and support staff capacities in the Lakewood Public Schools, which has as its purpose the promotion of the educational interests of Township residents as well as of its own members, it is greatly concerned that, absent approval by the Commissioner of the cap waiver monies requested by the Board, the district will be unable to provide the thorough and efficient system of education ("T & E") guaranteed by the State Constitution to the children of New Jersey. Moreover, the papers contend, Association participation will both assist the Commissioner and serve the public interest in that the Association is in the unique position of being able to analyze the cap waiver questions at issue from the perspective of staff members who work on a day-to-day basis with the children of Lakewood and whose positions will be directly affected by the inevitable reductions in force that will result from alteration of a budget plan that was already zero-based when proposed by the Board to the voters.

Although both the Board and the Township were served with the motion to participate and advised of their opportunity to respond, no replies to the motion were received. Accordingly, upon expiration of the designated reply period, the Commissioner proceeded to decision herein.

Upon review and consideration of the Association's motion in light of the standards for participation set forth at N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6 and the long-standing body of case law associated with appeals of school budget questions, the Commissioner determines to deny the Association's motion.

While the Association by its very nature has a real and obvious interest in the outcome of the instant appeal, it fails to meet the criterion of being "likely to add constructively to the case without causing undue delay or confusion." (N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6(b)) In terms of constructive addition to the record of a budget appeal, the perspectives of students and staff are properly presented through the Board of Education, which bears the express obligation to demonstrate the necessity of disputed monies for T & E in any proceeding before the Commissioner. In terms of procedural delay, participation by the Association would encumber the record with additional filings on matters properly and ordinarily addressed by the Board, and would, through the necessity to permit responsive briefing consistent with the schedule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8, further defer closing of the record and determination by the Commissioner in a matter of the type where expedition of proceedings is both inherent in currently applied regulation (N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq.) and mandated by the Court in various recent pronouncements on the school district budget process. Nor has any special circumstance been advanced by the Association that would cause the Commissioner to alter his stance based on specific grounds unique to this case.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, it is ORDERED this 14TH day of September 1994 that the Association's Motion to Participate as Amicus Curiae is hereby DENIED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, : DECISION
OCEAN COUNTY. :

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, September 14, 1994

For Appellant, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., of Counsel)

This appeal arises from proceedings now pending before the Commissioner of Education with respect to the Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood's (hereinafter "Board") budget for the 1994-95 school year. Those proceedings were initiated by the Board following voter defeat of the education budget, to which the municipal governing body then made reductions, and voter defeat of the Board's proposal to exceed the District's maximum permissible budget ("cap waiver" proposal).

On August 2, 1994, the Lakewood Education Association (hereinafter "Association") filed a motion with the Commissioner seeking to participate in the proceedings.

The Commissioner denied the Association's motion under the criteria for participation set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6. The Association has appealed that decision to the State Board.

We affirm the Commissioner's decision.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6 provides in pertinent part that:

JAN. 4, 1995

> (a) Any person or entity with a significant interest in the outcome of a case may move for permission to participate.
> (b)...In deciding whether to permit participation, the judge shall consider whether the participant's interest is likely to add constructively to the case without causing undue delay or confusion...

We find that the Commissioner properly concluded that the Association's participation at this juncture would not be likely to add constructively to the case without causing undue delay or confusion. We also agree with him that because the District has the responsibility for demonstrating that any additional monies are needed in order for it to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students, the interests of students and staff are represented by the Board in this context. The Association has not convinced us that the Board will fail to properly represent those interests in the proceedings before the Commissioner or that it will fail in any way to adequately pursue the budget appeal that it initiated.

DENYING EMERGENT RELIEF

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8168-94

S.G., ON BEHALF
OF HER MINOR CHILD, R.G.,
Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SOUTH BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

S.G., petitioner, pro se

David W. Carroll, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner challenges the action of respondent refusing to place her daughter, R.G., in the school of prior assignment for the 1994-95 school year.

During the 1993-94 school year, R.G. was in fifth grade and her brother,K.G. was in third grade at the Greenbrook Elementary School. Their placement at this school was pursuant to a policy of open enrollment since their appropriate zoned or neighborhood school was the Brunswick Acres School. S.G. explained that the children's placement at Brunswick Acres in the prior school year was found to be unacceptable because the school has open classrooms and this resulted in distractions and lack of educational progress. As a result, S.G. applied for and was given approval for the enrollment both children at Greenbrook. Greenbrook has traditional closed classrooms.

The Greenbrook School principal, Patricia D. Holliday, testified that open enrollment children are not assigned to a class at the close of the prior school year because of the school district's policy of annual review of open enrollment of placements and issues such as overcrowding and availability of classroom space. This is made known to the parents in advance and the school district policy is to make open enrollment decisions by mid-August prior to the commencement of the school year.

On August 5, 1994, Greenbrook School notified petitioner that R.G. would not be placed at Greenbrook School. Ms. Holliday testified that the reasons for this included R.G.'s lack of academic progress, social difficulties and R.G.'s behavioral problems involving interaction with other children in the classroom. She also indicated that R.G. was referred to the Child Study Team for evaluation but that the parents refused to consent to the referral. In any event, she concluded that it was not in the best interest of R.G. to remain at Greenbrook because her attempts to break into the peer group would interfere with her academic progress and there was no fair opportunity for her to be accepted.

As a result of the denial of placement of R.G. at the Greenbrook School, the school district, in an effort to accommodate petitioner, agreed to permit R.G.'s placement at Indian Fields School, a school with closed classrooms. Petitioner requested that if R.G. were to be placed at Indian Fields that her son, K.G., who will be in fourth grade, also be permitted to be placed there since it would be impractical and impossible for her to transport her two children to two different schools. It is noted that the parents of open enrollment children are responsible for transportation. The school district has taken the position that petitioner may either accept the placement of R.G. at Indian Fields and K.G. at Greenbrook or may place one or both of her children at the Brunswick Acres School, which is the neighborhood zone school for petitioner's neighborhood.

S.G. testified that the Brunswick Acres School is not acceptable because of its open classrooms and distraction to her children. She indicated that she was making this application because the fact that her daughter had been "kicked out" of Greenbrook had been leaked to other children, and there were endless phone calls and confrontations with parents, teachers and other children questioning this. She also takes the position that if R.G. is not permitted to remain at Greenbrook, she will be ridiculed. Finally, she indicates that transporting R.G. to Indian Fields would be impossible if K.G. remains at Greenbrook. She also feels that separating the two children into two different schools will be psychologically chaotic and troublesome to the children.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Emergency relief is authorized by N.J.A.C. 6:241.5 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. The standards applicable to a request for emergency relief in administrative proceedings are analogous to those applied in courts of law and equity. The most recent statement of these standards is found in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982), and may be summarized as follows:

1. The relief should not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy.

2. The relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled.

3. The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits.

4. The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered.

(Id. at 132-3.)

In this matter, I completely understand the serious concern of the parent with respect to a change in placement for R.G., particularly when it is clear from the testimony that she is not doing well in school. I also understand the concern of the parent with respect to the impracticability of transporting the two children to two different schools, which are located over five miles apart when the parent is required to report for work at 9 a.m. However, I FIND that the petitioner in this matter has not presented any testimony or evidence to establish that irreparable harm or injury will occur unless the emergency relief she is requesting is granted. The fact that petitioner feels that her child will suffer ridicule and be harmed is nothing more than speculation. In addition, the school principal indicated that a before school program exists where petitioner will be able to drop her son off at the Greenbrook School earlier in the day, where he will be able to remain until classes start. In any event, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has shown no irreparable harm.

In addition, I agree with the statements of attorney for respondent that a school district has the right to strictly enforce its attendance zones and that there is a presumption of validity as to the school district's actions with respect to placement. I certainly do not have sufficient information before me from which I am able to determine that petitioners have a reasonable probability of ultimately succeeding on the merits with respect to the placement issue.

At the present moment, the school district has placed both children at specified schools pursuant to its open enrollment policy. The fact that these schools are two separate schools is not relevant. The fact is that both children are being provided with the opportunity for an education. If transportation is a severe practical problem to petitioner, she has the opportunity to place either or both children at their neighborhood school, where transportation will be provided by the school district.

Under all of the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that there has been no showing that petitioner is entitled to emergency relief in this matter.

ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for emergency relief is hereby DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issues of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter and the initial decision on motion of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has not shown an entitlement to emergent relief in this matter in that she has failed to meet the standards of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, three school administrators (consolidated matters), alleged Board's action to require co-payment towards the cost of their medical insurance and increase their work days was in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 28-5.

ALJ concluded parties never reached agreement on contract and the Board never formally acted to adopt contracts that were intended to be binding and effective or otherwise even to stand as a last offer to the employees. Thus, subsequent actions of the Board effectuating provisions of the contracts, such as deduction of co-payment monies from petitioners' pay, are not lawful actions. Therefore, petitioners must be reimbursed for any monies they would have received under the past practice that was never formally abrograted.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered Board to reimburse petitioners all monies to which they would have been entitled under past practice altered as a consequence of the Board's improper implementation of the "contract."

Record Closed: June 23, 1994 Decided: July 27, 1994

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

In this consolidated action the petitioners claim that the respondent Board of Education improperly reduced their compensation in violation of the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and 28-5. The specific matters in question relate to a requirement for a co-payment toward the cost of medical insurance coverage and a requirement that the petitioners work an additional 14 days a year beyond the work schedule that they were expected to follow before the changes were put into effect.

The cases were transmitted separately to the OAL and later were consolidated for hearing. A prehearing order was issued on January 12, 1993, following a prehearing conference held on January 6. Thereafter the parties actively sought to resolve the dispute and the case was carried on the inactive list for this purpose. However, the case was ultimately brought to hearing at the Eastampton Municipal Court on April 27, 1994. The parties filed briefs and reply briefs after the hearing and the record closed upon receipt of the last reply, on June 23, 1994.

At the prehearing the parties identified two issues for determination. They were > (1) Do the facts indicate that the Board of Education actually reduced health benefits and /or leave days and/or increased the work day for any of these employees?

> (2) If any working conditions and benefits were changed as alleged, did such changes constitute violations of the tenure rights held by these individuals? Did the Board's policy therefore violate the applicable statutory protections?

At trial of the case, another issue emerged. This related to the question of whether the purported action of the Board approving the terms and conditions of a contract for these employees was actually a legally valid Board action, or whether the vote of the Board was simply in regard to a set of proposed contract terms which were to be presented to the employees and which were never adopted as the final and supposedly binding contract through lawful Board action. Although the respondent objects that this issue was not properly identified in the prehearing order (or in the original petitions for hearing filed by the petitioners), the record, (and the briefs of all counsel), does contain discussion and evidence relevant to this issue and it appears to be a vital concern, for if the Board never took the necessary legal steps to put the supposed contracts into effect for these petitioners, then the subsequent actions of the Board effectuating provisions of the contracts, such as the deduction of co-payment moneys from the employees' pay, are not lawful actions.

THE PETITIONERS

Dr. John R. Holcroft is the Chief School Administrator for the Board of Education of Eastampton Township. He holds a Ph.D. in Educational Administration from Temple University. He has been employed by the Board since July 1, 1971, serving as both the Superintendent for the district and as the principal of the Middle School. He held both positions until last year. The district now has a Superintendent, Assistant Superintendent/Curriculum/Principal of the Middle School, an Elementary Principal, and a Board Secretary/Business Administrator. When the prior Board Secretary left, Dr. Holcroft filled in at this position when the part time replacement was not at work, and he occasionally took Board minutes. He also filled in the curriculum coordinator's role for a time in the 1992-93 school year when that incumbent left the district.

When Dr. Holcroft was hired by the Board as Superintendent he was told that he would receive the same benefits as the teachers, who were the largest group of employees in the district. He was also told that at those times when school was closed he was not required to be present. Over the years, as the health benefits package changed for the teachers, he also received the added benefits. The coverage for Major Medical and Prescriptions was 100% paid for by the Board. As for his work schedule, if he desired to come in to the office during the Easter and Christmas recesses, he could, but he was not required to be in attendance. The matter was left to his discretion. He received 20 vacation days and could accrue them from year to year without limit. No written contract ever existed between Dr. Holcroft and the Board of Education after he received tenure, before that he did have a written contract.

In 1992 the situation purportedly changed. Dr. Holcroft received a purported contract of employment (H-1) for himself. He believes that he probably first saw the document around the 17th of July. Under the terms of this document, he was required to co-pay for the medical coverage if he elected the dependent's coverage and in addition, he was only allowed to accumulate one years vacation time during the next year, up to a maximum accumulation of 40 vacation days. The Holiday provision of the contract did not continue the prior practice of allowing him the discretion to decide whether to work during Christmas and Easter vacation periods, and also required that he work on other former holidays, such as Columbus Day and the days of the New Jersey Education Association ("NJEA") convention in November, as well as one of the two days of President's Weekend. The contract increased the Dr.'s salary from $68,132.00, which he received in the 1991-92 school year, to $69,632.00 for the 1992-93 school year, but he received no salary increase in the 1993-94 school year. The effective financial impact of the co-pay provision of the contract was approximately $1200.00 for the first year, when his salary increase amounted to $1500.00.

According to the witness, he was presented with an undated and unsigned contract by the Board Secretary after July 13, 1992. This was after the regular Board meeting held on July 13. He denied that he had ever discussed anything about this contract or the terms contained therein with any member of the Board. The insurance terms became effective in August, 1992, the other terms were effective as of the time that he received the document.

The witness was queried about the Board meeting held on June 17, 1992. He described this as a special meeting at which Vice President Sheppard took the minutes, which were made available at the July 13 meeting. Dr. Holcroft was not at the entire June 17 meeting, because after he arrived he was asked to attend another meeting at the Township Council to present information regarding the expansion of the middle school. This meeting was held at the same time as the Board's special meeting.

The minutes of the June 17 meeting (H-5) indicate that the Board was talking about contracts for administrators and that the Board was to meet with Dr. Holcroft about these. There was no specific agenda for this meeting. The agenda simply referred to general personnel matters. Dr. Holcroft was not told that his contract would be discussed. He met with the Board regarding evaluations on June 29, but that meeting was declared by the Burlington County Prosecutor's Office to have been held in violation of the Sunshine Law. After the June 29 meeting Dr. Holcroft went on vacation and did not return until July 13. He was never told that the Board wanted to formalize a contract with him.

Although the contract purported to require that Dr. Holcroft work on Columbus Day and President's Day, he learned that these were State legal holidays and he did not work. He was not penalized for not working on these two days. Neither Ms. Janet Szakaly or Mr. Peter Granaldi worked these two days and they similarly were not penalized.

Dr. Holcroft acknowledged that he could have reduced the health benefits available to him and thus could have avoided having to pay any money as a result of the institution of the co-pay requirement. He has not received any notification from the Board about the fate of his accumulated 96 1/2 vacation days and is unsure as to whether the Board will allow these vacation days.

Questioned on cross-examination about his presence at a Board sponsored call-in program in early June, 1992, the witness agreed that he was present, but he was unable to recall if the then Board President, Walter A. Stark, was also present. He has no recollection of speaking with Mr. Stark about a contract.

The witness is not an NJEA member and last attended the NJEA convention in 1993-94, before that he last attended when he was teaching before 1976.

Petitioner Janet Szakaly retired from the employ of the school district on December 31, 1992. She did not appear at the hearing, however, her counsel called Dr. Holcroft to testify that her contract contained the same co-pay requirement and that prior to the contract she had enjoyed the same benefits as he had, also without any written contract. The parties stipulated that Ms. Szakaly had enjoyed the same holidays as Dr. Holcroft did and had the same work year as he did.

The parties also stipulated that the contracts which the Board presented for Ms. Szakaly and for Peter Granaldi were prepared without the recommendation of Superintendent Holcroft. He testified that he was not consulted regarding these contracts prior to June 30, 1992. He denied that he was ever given contracts for Mr. Granaldi and Ms. Szakaly to review with them before the June 30 meeting. In fact, he claimed that he first learned that they had been sent to Granaldi and Szakaly after the July 13 meeting.

There was a 3% increase factored into the budget for administrative salaries and he had recommended that it be provided. In fact, the increases granted for the 1992-93 school year amounted to 4% for Ms. Szakaly, 3% for Mr. Granaldi and 2% for Dr. Holcroft.

Peter F. Granaldi testified that he is employed by the Board of Education as Principal of the elementary school. He was first employed in the district October 1, 1974 as the assistant to Dr. Holcroft, with the title of Assistant Principal. He became the elementary school principal two years later. By the 1991-92 school year his salary was $59,715.00 and it increased for the 1992-93 year to $61,518.00. He received no additional compensation for the 1993-94 school term. He also was required to co-pay for medical insurance under the terms of the contract presented to him by the Board and to work the holidays that were described by Dr. Holcroft, days which he too had not been required to work in the past.

The witness is not a member of NJEA, but he frequently attended the NJEA convention with his wife and daughter who are teachers. He acknowledged that the amount of his co-payment in 1993-94 will not exceed the $1,700.00 amount of the salary increase that he received when his salary was raised for the 1992-93 school year.

THE BOARD'S PROOFS

Walter A. Stark, formerly the President of the Board of Education, but no longer a member of the Board, testified on its behalf. Mr. Stark is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and holds a B.S. degree in Systems Engineering. He is employed as a senior engineer at Princeton University, working on new products in fusion research.

Mr. Stark recalled that in early June, 1992 the Board held a series of call-in shows in anticipation of a referendum. He was present for one of these sessions, either on June 2 or 9. The session was scheduled to run from 7 to 9 P.M. He and Dr. Holcroft were the only persons present at the time and during the scheduled time no telephone calls were received. During the evening, the two discussed contracts since the Board had to hire a new business administrator. He said that the Board had discussed the concept of cost sharing in regard to medical insurance costs. The Board was also concerned that there were no contracts in existence for the district's administrators. They wanted to create one and use it as "template" for all. Dr. Holcroft agreed that cost sharing was inevitable. The discussion turned to the negotiations with the teachers concerning their contract. The talk continued

> We discussed issues of management by objectives, which was one of the important aspects. We felt that administrators really needed to have their own contract-review period, if you will, because as he pointed out in that meeting, George Thick, who was, I guess a member of the Board back in the late 80's, he had mentioned that in that late meeting that George made a comment to him about a crack, that that in fact negotiated for the administration, and he thought that that was unfortunate.

In response to a question as to whether this discussion included the fact that there had been no written contracts before for administrators, Mr. Stark responded

> I voiced concern that we do not have contracts for the employees of the district, and it was the Board's intention to insure we had contracts prior to July 1st.

Asked if specifics were discussed, Stark said

> Yes, we discussed issues of 25 percent of the remaining coverage as a reasonable cost to buyer, by an employee.

According to Mr. Stark, this discussion did not touch on the question of the work year.

Mr. Stark denied that the discussions at the call-in session were only a few minutes in length. Indeed, he recalled that he and the Superintendent spoke continuously for 2 hours in his office "across my desk." He asserted that during this discussion Dr. Holcroft had a copy of the contract for the Business Administrator and was told that it was a "template" for "the health benefit aspect, the cost-sharing aspect became a template." It also listed holidays and vacations.

> . . . What we spoke about at that meeting was the fact that we should have had contracts for all personnel in the district, and that that Board's intent was to use that as a template.
> And I asked Dr. Holcroft to please talk to the administrator for two important parts of that contract. One, what to do with health, cost-sharing; the other had to do with the management team for the district, and I asked for feedback for our next meeting from administrators via Dr. Holcroft.

The teachers' contract negotiations were under way at the time that the early June meeting purportedly occurred. The Board's proposal to the teachers included a cost sharing element.

Mr. Stark contended that the June 17 meeting was originally called to consider secretarial evaluations. Minutes of the Board's meetings of June 17 and June 30 were introduced. According to the witness, the Board personnel committee, of which he was a member, had developed the administrators' contract and Tom Sheppard had prepared it. Mr. Stark received it the weekend before June 17 and had it at the meeting. It was available to Dr. Holcroft at the June 17th meeting, when, according to the witness, the Board received feedback from Dr. Holcroft regarding his discussions with the administrators and then ratified the administrator's contracts. As he recalled the evening, Dr. Holcroft was present at the meeting, left and then returned from the other meeting that he had to attend (apparently the Township Council meeting). Dr. Holcroft provided feedback from Granaldi and Szakaly to the effect that they wanted to see what happened with the teachers' negotiations.

The minutes of the Board's June 17 meeting show that a motion was made to table approval of contracts for the administrators. This motion was not approved and a motion was then made to approve the administrator's contracts. This too was defeated and a motion to move into closed session followed. Minutes of the closed session reveal that a discussion occurred regarding the administrator's contracts. The minutes read

> Mr. Ritti suggested that we add a statement on vacation leave in case someone leaves before the contract expires. All were in agreement. It was suggested that we add the six month review to the principal and curriculum coordinator's contracts.

The continued minutes of the public session show that after the closed session ended the Board considered a motion to "ratify the contract as amended to be submitted to the administrators." This motion was approved. The minutes then read

> A discussion of how to present the contract to the administrators was initiated. The evaluation committee along with Mr. Blew will meet with Dr. Holcroft.

Minutes of the June 30, 1992 meeting in executive session show that this session took place beginning. at 9:30 P.M., in the middle of the public meeting. The minutes read

> Dr. Holcroft indicated the response from Mr. Granaldi and Mrs. Szakaly regarding the proposed contracts. Their concerns include 1) wording with regard to contract term, i.e., "as principal;" 2) no contract settlement prior to settlement with teacher association; 3) compensation and cost sharing of health insurance; 4) school holidays/vacation days; and 5) vacation accrual allowance. A discussion followed regarding whether utilization of vacation and school holidays allowances were written policy or common practice.

Further discussion followed regarding a request for recognition by the administrators. Different approaches were suggested to the administrators' request. Mr. Stark said that it would be > counterproductive not to negotiate with the administrators. A review of prior Board discussions followed in an attempt to gain consensus of Board members regarding the issue of instituting a management by objective philosophy as well as cost sharing of health insurance costs. A discussion of what items Board members would be willing to negotiate ensued.

The parties agree that there are no further entries in this or any subsequent meeting minutes which refer to the contracts for either Dr. Holcroft or Mr. Granaldi or Mrs. Szakaly.

Mr. Stark was not able to recall if the agenda for the June 30 meeting included any reference to the consideration of the contracts for the administrators, and he could not recall if Rice notices were sent to them prior to the meeting.

DISCUSSION

WERE THE CONTRACTS LEGALLY EFFECTIVE?

The initial question to be addressed is whether the Board of Education ever acted in the appropriate manner so as to legally adopt the contracts for Dr. Holcroft, Mrs. Szakaly and Mr. Granaldi. The petitioners argue that the Board's June, 1992 actions constituted nothing more than the adoption and presentation of a contract proposal and that since the minutes of the Board do not reflect any Board action as to these contracts after the June 30 meeting, the contracts never actually were legally adopted by the Board. Any co-payment deductions from the petitioner's salaries were therefore improper and must be refunded. In addition, any other terms of the contract are without legal effect, as the petitioners never agreed to accept the contracts as they were proposed. In essence, the petitioners argue that there never was any effective offer and acceptance of a contract, no "meeting of the minds" and therefore no agreement ever reached.

A review of the testimony and the minutes of the Board's June 17 and 30 meetings does not offer a clear cut picture of exactly what occurred or what was intended. According to Mr. Stark, he spoke to Dr. Holcroft about the Business Administrator's contract and about its use as a template for other contracts during the two hours that the two men sat around waiting for telephone calls on the 2nd or 9th of June. Mr. Stark recalled reference having been made to the "inevitable" nature of cost-sharing. However, he did not suggest any conversation about the work year. Dr. Holcroft denies that any such conversation occurred.

The minutes of June 17 are of key importance. Apparently the Board's meeting records do not show anything in regard to the consideration of the possible written contracts for administrators prior to this meeting, or if they do, nothing about these prior references has been offered at trial. Thus, the first references are in the June 17 minutes. These show that the Board was asked to "table approval of the contracts for administrators," the minutes reflecting that these "administrators" did not include the Business Administrator. This motion failed. The reason why Mr. Ritti wanted these contracts tabled is not revealed. Thereafter, a straightforward motion to approve the contracts failed. Again, no evidence as to the reasons why those voting against this motion did so is revealed. After this action, the Board apparently saw fit to deal with the contract issue in closed session. The discussions reported at the closed session are limited in scope, dealing only with the addition of a statement regarding vacation leave when someone leaves before the expiration of the contract and a review period for two of the contracts. The remaining item listed, back on the public meeting minutes, reflects that the Board ratified the amended contract, which was then "to be submitted to the administrators," and the Board then discussed how to present the contracts. It appears, but is not absolutely clear, that the second sentence in the last paragraph of the minutes, which says that the evaluation committee and Mr. Blew, would "meet with Dr. Holcroft," is related to the first sentence's reference to "how to present" the administrators' contracts, but the exact relationship of the two sentences is not certain.

While the Board argues that the above minutes reflect the adoption of the actual contracts, not of a preliminary contract proposal for submission to and negotiation with the administrators, the minutes of the June 30 executive session reflect "feedback" which Dr. Holcroft is said to have "received from Mr. Granaldi and Mrs. Szakaly regarding contract proposals . . . ." The discussion shades off into concerns regarding the demand for recognition and possible responses. Interestingly, the Board engages in a "review of prior Board discussions" and attempts to "gain consensus" regarding issues, including the issue of cost sharing. This discussion closes with discussions of what the Board was willing to negotiate.

In order for there to be a contract between the respondent and any of the petitioning employees, there needed to be a "proposition of one party . . . met by an acceptance of the other, which corresponds with it entirely and adequately . . . ." First Presbyterian Church, Newark v. Howard Co. Jewelers, 12 N.J. 410, 413-414 (1953) (citations omitted).

The minutes of the June 30 meeting do not suggest that the contract issue was as finalized as the Board contends. They reflect that after the purported formal adoption of the contracts for the three administrators on June 17, we have the Board on June 30 discussing "feedback" received regarding "proposals," and talking about negotiations and strategies, attempting to reach consensus on issues, including cost sharing, an issue that was apparently of real concern to all parties and is one of the very subjects of controversy in this case. The "feedback" suggests that the Board knew that its "proposals" had not been accepted by the administrators, and in the absence of full and complete acceptance of the proposed contract by the administrators "subsequent words or acts of the parties cannot create a contract" 17 C.J.S. §42. These discussions give the previous motions and discussions of the 17th the flavor of preliminary action, rather than of final resolution, suggesting that the Board on the 17th did nothing more than ratify the proposal that was then to be conveyed to Dr. Holcroft and possibly by him to Granaldi and Szakaly. As for Holcroft himself, the concern about how to present the contract to the administrators, without distinguishing between he and his fellows, would suggest that the ratification of proposals was as to all three, not simply as to Granaldi and Szakaly. Further, the very concern as to how to present the contract to Holcroft confirms his testimony that he was not present when the vote took place. This also suggests very strongly that he was not present during any other discussions regarding the issue of administrators' contracts that evening.

The action by the Board on June 17 to "ratify the contract to be presented" was a formal action of the Board.. However, given both the factual and the legal context, it is was not the type of final action on the subject which the Board now asserts, that is, the formal adoption of the actual contracts under which the administrators would be required to work in the coming contract year. Instead it appears to have been a preliminary action, a formal vote by the Board on the nature of the proposal to be presented for comment and response by the administrators, subject to further refinement later as deemed necessary after review of the proposals by the administrators and consideration of their responses to the proposed terms. Given what occurred on the 30th, I FIND that the action on the 17th was not so final as the Board now asserts. The fact that the Board ultimately went ahead without any further vote and began to deduct the co-payment and implement other terms of the proposal does not raise the adoption of the proposal "to be presented" to the level of a lawfully adopted, legally binding contract. Had the Board determined not to negotiate, but to reject the concerns expressed on the 30th and insist on the terms originally "presented" for comment and "feedback," then a subsequent vote to adopt the final language of the contract would have been necessary. Apparently no such action occurred. Even then, without agreement no contract would have existed, although of course if the Board insisted on its terms and the petitioners refused to accept, then, in the absence of legally required bargaining requirements, the Board and administrators might have parted ways.

I CONCLUDE that the parties never reached agreement on a contract and the Board never formally acted to adopt contracts that were intended to be binding and effective or otherwise even to stand as a last offer to the employees. Given this, the deductions were improper. Since the contract never became legally effective, the administrators must be reimbursed for any moneys that they would have received under the past practice that was never formally abrogated. As for the alleged violation of tenure, given that the action undertaken by the Board was not effective, any concern as to effective Board action of the sort herein challenged is at least premature.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETER GRANALDI AND JANICE SZAKALY, PETITIONERS, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EASTAMPTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT. AND JOHN P. HOLCROFT, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EASTAMPTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions of Petitioners Granaldi and Szakaly and those of Petitioner Holcroft were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions, while agreeing with the ultimate determination reached by the Administrative Law Judge in this matter, urge that it is incumbent upon the Commissioner to clarify the relief accorded them. Specifically, they request the Commissioner to enumerate, with specificity, the remuneration each of them is entitled to receive under the ALJ's initial decision directive, i.e., "the administrators must be reimbursed for any moneys that they would have received under the past practice that was never formally abrogated." (Initial Decision, at p. 13)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial decision. With respect to the exception argument advanced by petitioners, the Commissioner is satisfied that the initial decision is sufficiently clear that because the contract at issue in this matter never became legally effective, petitioners are entitled to recover all monies lost as a result of the Board's implementation of provisions of such "contract" which altered then existing past practice. The Commissioner finds that it is neither necessary nor appropriate, based on the record before him, to make specific categorical or dollar determinations and such calculations are, therefore, left to the parties. If there are unreasolvable disputes as to the specific remuneration due each of the petitioners, these can be addressed through the filing of a new petition of appeal.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is hereby ordered to reimburse petitioners all monies to which they would have been entitled under past practice altered as a consequence of the Board's improper implementation of the "contract."

V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOMS RIVER REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY, AND JOHN R. GARRABRANDT, SENIOR ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT, RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning photography studio challenged Board's policy limiting inclusion in the senior section of the high school yearbook to photographs by one contractor.

Citing Nicastro, ALJ concluded that the Board's action in permitting each school in the district to contract with one studio for its yearbook photographs was not in any manner illegal, discriminatory, arbitrary or capricious. No pupil was required to purchase portraits from the designated contractor; use of a single photographer was dictated by the necessity of maintaining a reasonable timetable and uniform standards. Summary decision was granted on behalf of the Board and the petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: May 5, 1994 Decided: August 1, 1994

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges an alleged policy of the Toms River Regional School District Board of Education (Board) which provides that only those photographs taken by the contracted photographer may be used and appear in its high school yearbooks. The Board denies it has established a policy as alleged by petitioner. The Board also advances seven affirmative defenses in which it asserts the Commissioner of Education lacks jurisdiction to hear and determine the instant matter, among other things.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held, at which the following issues were identified:

1. Whether the matter presented involves School Law under Title 18A and, therefore, is within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner)?

2. Whether the Board may limit access to the senior section of the high school yearbook to photographs by one contractor?

In his Petition of Appeal, petitioner alleges that the Board's purported "policy" to require senior pupils to use the services of Lorstan Studios in order for the pupils photograph to appear in the high school's yearbook, . . . "creates a Monopoly on graduation photographs (yearbook style) for Lorstan Studios." Petitioner subsequently amended his Petition to read, "This creates an unfair trade advantage for the sale of graduation photographs for Lorstan Studios."

Petitioner also propounded a request for Emergency Relief, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, seeking to temporarily restrain the Board from signing contracts with Lorstan Studios or any other photography company until this matter is finally determined.

The Board now moves to dismiss the Petition of Appeal, by way of Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Petition opposes the Board's Motion:

THE BOARD'S LEGAL ARGUMENT

POINT I

THE PETITION FAILS TO STATE A CLAIM UPON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED.

A. Respondent, John R. Garrabrant, Senior Assistant Superintendent, Should Be Dismissed From The Petition As An Unnecessary Party.

The Board of Education of the Toms River Regional School District ("The Board") is a board of education formed and governed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-1 to -65, and also governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 to -7. The Board may be sued in its own corporate name. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-2; 18A:13-6.

Respondent, John R. Garrabrant, the Senior Assistant Superintendent, is not alleged in the Petition to have engaged in any wrongdoing. He need not be named in a Petition against the Board itself. Therefore, John R. Garrabrant should be dismissed from the Petition.

B. The Petition Fails to State Any Statute That The Board Violated Or Any Conduct That Would Violate A Statute.

Neither the Petition nor the amendment to the Petition set forth that the Board violated any specific statute. (See Exhibit A and Exhibit C hereto.) The Petition and amendment include words and phrases like "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable", "monopoly" and "unfair trade advantage", thus, the apparent violation is of the New Jersey Anti-Trust Act. N.J.S.A. 56:9-1 to -19. However, the petition does not allege any conduct by the Board that would amount to a violation of the Anti-Trust Act.

The gravamen of the petition is that the Board has created a "policy" that one photography studio is to take senior portraits for all of the high school yearbooks. First, the petition is factually inaccurate for three reasons: (1) The Board has not created such a "policy"; (2) there are four separate contracts, one for each school; and (3) one school, Toms River West, uses a photography studio different from that used by North, South and East. Thus, the factual allegations of the petition are unfounded.

Second, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59, Public Schools Contract Law, the Board is authorized to enter into contracts. It is unreasonable for the petitioner to argue that because the Board enters into one contract, a monopoly or an unfair trade advantage is created in favor of the contractor. That is how contracts work, otherwise, contracts would have no meaning and there would be no need for the Public Schools Contract Law.

Therefore, because the petition fails to state a claim for which relief may be granted, it should be dismissed.

POINT II

THE BOARD IS AUTHORIZED TO ENTER INTO THE PHOTOGRAPHY CONTRACTS PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3.

N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3 provides:

> a. Any purchase, contract or agreement for the performance of any work or the furnishing or hiring of materials or supplies, the cost or price of which, together with any other sums expended or foreseeably to be expended for the performance of any work or services in connection with the same project or the furnishing of similar materials or supplies during the same fiscal year paid with or out of school funds, does not exceed the total sum of $7,500.00 or the amount determined pursuant to subsection b. of this section, in the fiscal year or, in the case of purchases that are not annually recurring, in a period of one year may be > made, negotiated and awarded by a contracting agent when so authorized by resolution of the board of education without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor.

> b. Commencing January 1, 1983 and every two years thereafter, the Governor, in consultation with the Department of the Treasury, shall adjust the threshold amount set forth in subsection a. of this section in direct proportion to the rise or fall of the consumer price index for all urban consumers in the New York City and the Philadelphia areas as reported by the United States Department of Labor. The Governor shall notify all local school districts of the adjustment. The adjustment shall become effective on July 1 of the year in which it is reported. (emphasis added).

The present threshold amount payable with or out of school funds pursuant to subsection b. is $11,300.00. As made evident by the contract, no school funds are paid by the Board to the contracted photography studio, thus, these contracts fall under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3 and may be awarded by the Board without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor.

Because N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3 gives the Board the same discretion and authority as does N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5, the Board's award of the photography contracts may only be set aside "upon a showing of abuse of discretion or fraud." F.S.D. Industries, Inc. v. Bd. of Ed. of Paterson, 166 N.J. Super. 330, 334-335. (See discussion at POINT III of this brief, infra.) The Board does not abuse its discretion, as it takes into account consistency, organization and efficiency (See Exhibit B, p. 3, ¶s B and C.), and spends no school funds, the awarding of the photography contracts should not be set aside.

Therefore, the Petition should be dismissed.

POINT III

ALTERNATIVELY, THE BOARD IS AUTHORIZED TO ENTER INTO THE PHOTOGRAPHY CONTRACTS PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a.(5).

If the photography contracts do not fall under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3, then they fall under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4, which states:

> Every contract or agreement for the performance of any work or the furnishing or hiring of any materials or supplies, the cost or the contract price whereof is to be paid with or out of school funds, not included within the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3, shall be made and awarded only by the board of education after public advertising for bids and bidding therefor, except as is provided otherwise in this chapter or specifically by any other law.
> No work, materials or supplies shall be undertaken, acquired or furnished for a sum exceeding in the aggregate the amount set forth in, or calculated by the Governor pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3, except by contract or agreement.

However, even if that were so, the photography contracts would be exempt from the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4 by virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a.(5) which provides:

> Exceptions to requirement for advertising. Any purchase, contract or agreement of the character described in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4 may be made, negotiated or awarded by the board of education by resolution at a public meeting without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor if > a. The subject matter thereof consists of:
>
>
> (5) Textbooks, copyrighted materials, kindergarten supplies, and student produced publications and services incidental thereto; (emphasis added).

In F.S.D. Industries, Inc. v. Bd. of Ed. of Paterson, 166 N.J. Super. 330 (App. Div. 1979), the New Jersey Appellate Division rejected an action like the Petition at bar, relying on the exclusionary provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5. The Board of Education of the City of Paterson ("Paterson Board") requested solicitation of bid proposals for a pre-plated lunch program to be conducted for students of the school district. Id. at 332. The Paterson Board determined that it would "award a contract which, in its judgment, might be deemed in the best interest of the Board and the students to be served." Id. at 333. The plaintiff submitted the bid with the lowest per meal price, however, the Paterson Board awarded the contract to the second lowest bidder without stating any reason for rejecting plaintiff's bid. Id.

The plaintiff brought a proceeding in lieu of prerogative writs and the trial court found that the contract should have been awarded to plaintiff as the lowest bidder. Id. The Appellate Division found the trial court to be in error and reversed. It recognized that, by virtue of the specific statutory language in N.J.S.A. 40A:11-2(1)(c), N.J.S.A. 40A:11-1 to -49, the Local Public Contracts Law, does not apply to boards of education which have administrative jurisdiction over school districts. Id. Thus, the legislative intent is that boards of education are except from the advertising requirements generally established by N.J.S.A. 40A:11-4. Id. at 333-334.

Consistent with such legislative intent is N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(b), now N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a.(6), which allows boards of education to award food supply contracts without public advertising for bids. Id. at 334. The Appellate Division in Paterson, cited A.C. Schultes & Sons v. Haddon Twp., 8 N.J. 103, 107 (1951), where the New Jersey Supreme Court "observed that in instances where no statutory requirement exists for competitive bidding, a municipality has the 'right to award the contract in question to the bidder it felt would best serve the interests of its taxpayers.'" Id. The State Supreme Court concluded in A.C. Schultes that:

> Even though the municipality actually advertised as it did here, nevertheless, if the statutes are inapplicable, there is no obligation upon the city to award the contract to the low bidder. Unless the statute controls, the advertisement, specifications, opening the bids > and other formal procedures are not legally required. (At 108; emphasis supplied) Id.

Most importantly, in ruling in favor of the Paterson Board, the Appellate Division set forth the following standard regarding contracts awarded under N.J.S.A. 18:18A-5:

> In such instances an award of the contract to a higher bidder should not be set aside except upon a showing of an abuse of discretion or fraud. Id. at 334-335; citing, 10 McQuillin, Municipal Corporations, (3 ed. 1966, rev. vo.1.), §29.73a at 431, 432.

As shown above, in the case at bar, the Board is authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5a.(5) to award contracts regarding "student produced publications and services incidental thereto" without public advertising for bids or bidding therefor. The Board's award of a contract to one photography studio to take all senior portraits for the student yearbook falls into that category. Such award need not be given pursuant to the formal bidding requirements and may not be set aside "except upon a showing of an abuse of discretion or fraud." The discretion of the Board, as stated in its Answer, is properly directed toward consistency, efficiency and organization. (See Exhibit B, p. 3, ¶'s B and C). The petitioner has no right to interfere with the Board's discretion simply because he disagrees with it (as would any potential contractor who is not awarded a contract).

According to the petitioner's reasoning, any disc jockey who shows up at the senior prom with acceptable music should be allowed to play that music, or any food service company that offers milk in the typical school cartons should be allowed to go to the school cafeteria and sell it. Obviously, the concerns of consistency, organization, and efficiency require contracts and do not allow for such situations. More importantly, the Board properly within its discretion, has decided to use contracts.

Therefore, the Petition should be dismissed with prejudice.

POINT II

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AND JOHN R GARRABRANT, SENIOR ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT ARE IN DIRECT VIOLATION OF THE EQUAL RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES LAW IN THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

In its adoption, publication and enforcement of the Closed Yearbook Policy the Board and Mr. Garrabrant are in violation of N.J.S.A. 10:1-2, equal rights and privileges of all persons in public places.

The equal rights and privileges of all persons in public places reads:

> "All persons within the jurisdiction of this State shall be entitled to full and equal accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of any place of public accommodation, resort or amusement, subject only to the conditions and limitation established by law and applicable alike to all persons."

Students exercising their own civil rights in selecting the photographer of their choice, are being denied the advantages and privileges of being included in their High School Annual.

By restricting inclusion in the yearbook to only those students who are photographed by the contracted photographer, the students who choose a photographer of their own liking are being denied an advantage and privilege of being included in their High School Yearbook. The law reads: "All persons. . . shall be entitled. . .", NOT ALL persons being photographed by Lorstan Studio (the contracted photographer).

In N.J.S.A. 10:1-4, written announcement of discrimination; presumption, we read: "The production of any such written or printed communication, notice or advertisement, purporting to relate to any such place and to be made by any owner, lessee, proprietor, superintendent or manager thereof, shall be presumptive evidence in any civil or criminal action that the same was authorized by such person."

The letters printed on school letterhead, distributed to the students, detailing the Closed Yearbook Policy (Exhibit P-6, P-7, P-8, and P-9) clearly indicate a violation of N.J.S.A. 10:1-2.

POINT III

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AND JOHN R. GARRABRANT, SENIOR ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT ARE IN DIRECT VIOLATION OF N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-7; 18A:7A-8; 18A:7A-9; 18A:7A-10.

As outlined in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-7; 18A:7A-8; 18A:7A-9; and 18A:7A-10, the basic function of the Board of Education is policy-making.

In establishing policies the Board must follow a set formula: assess the need for a policy, establish the policy, review said policy and evaluate policy performance.

Mr. Garrabrant and the principals of the High Schools have discussed this only within the confines of administrators of the Board. The Closed Yearbook Policy, was penned by Lorstan Studios, but clearly embraced, published and enforced by the administration. Furthermore, no discussion of this policy was ever heard by the Board in a public forum.

POINT III

THE RESPONDENTS HAVE NOT VIOLATED N.J.S.A. 10:1-2.

The petitioner alleges that an alleged "Closed Yearbook Policy" violates N.J.S.A. 10:1-2, a statute regarding access to public places. However, as shown, there is no such policy. Further, the petitioner's argument is misplaced. All seniors have access to the contracted photographer. In fact, P-8 and P-9 to the petitioner's response brief, appointment forms sent to all seniors, are evidence of the access. Further, the contracted photographer comes to the high schools to provide convenient access. Race, religion or other classification is not an issue.

POINT IV

THE RESPONDENTS HAVE NOT VIOLATED N.J.S.A. 18:7A-7 THROUGH -10.

In reply to Point III of the petitioner's response brief, again no policy exists. Further, regarding N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-7 through -10, the decision of the Board to allow each high school to select its photography studio "is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." Parsippany-Troy Hills Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., 188 N.J. Super. 161, 167 (App. Div. 1983) (citations omitted). An "action of the local board which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless potentially arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper notices." Id., citing Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 188, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

As shown, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3 or 18A:18A-5a.(5), the photography contacts are within the Board's powers. Those contracts are not arbitrary, are with rational basis, and are not induced by improper motives. (Aff. ¶9) Thus, there is no violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-7 through -10.

For the reasons set forth in the respondents' moving papers and reply papers, the respondents respectfully request that the petition be dismissed with prejudice.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

I

The Board seeks to dismiss the instant matter by way of summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Petitioners oppose the Board's motion contending, among other things, that the instant matter is not ripe for summary decision.

The Administrative Rule, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, concerning summary decision is substantially similar to New Jersey Court Rules, R. 4:46-1 ---, R. 4:46-2, which has been subject to judicial interpretation and provides that upon motion duly filed, summary judgment "shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

In Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), the Supreme Court set forth the purpose of the Summary Judgment Rule and established the standards a court should follow in applying the rule. The Court emphasized that the movant has a very heavy burden to clearly establish that no genuine issue of material fact exist. Justice William J. Brennan, writing for the Court observed, among other things, that the role of the judge on a motion for summary disposition is first to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if he/she finds it to exist. Judson at 73.

Justice Brennan continues in Judson to observe that summary judgment procedure is designed to provide for the prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which clearly shows no genuine issues of material fact requiring disposition at a trial, after a discrimination search of the merits of the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with affidavits submitted. Id. at

74. The Court also held, among other things, that where the party opposing a motion for summary disposition offers only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, the court may grant summary judgment," . . . taking as true the statement of uncontradicted facts in papers relied upon by the moving party, such papers themselves not otherwise showing the existence of any issue of material fact." Id. at 75.

More recently, the Supreme Court noted that "excessive caution would undercut the purposes of a motion for summary judgment, which provides a means for piercing the allegations in the pleadings to determine whether there are issues requiring disposition at trial." Pierce v. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., 84 N.J. 58, 65 (1980).

Having carefully examined the whole record before me, I CONCLUDE there are no genuine issues of material fact extant in the instant matter.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the herein matter, pursuant to the Board's motion, meets the Judson criteria for summary disposition.

II

It is well settled that the Commissioner and the State Board of Education have jurisdiction to interpret the statutes which constitute Education Law, under Title 18A. The statute, at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, provides that: "The Commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine. . . all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. . ." See Fisher v. Bd. of Educ. Union Tp. et al., 99 N.J. Super. 18 (App. Div. 1968).

The Commissioner has dealt with the issue of high school yearbook photographs in the past. In the matter of Peter Nicastro, t/a Garfield, Bergen County, 1977 S.L.D. 213, the Commission determined that the Garfield Board's bidding and contract procedures, which awarded the yearbook photograph contract to a competitor of Nicastro, were neither a violation of statute nor arbitrary, capricious or monopolistic. Id. at 217. From 1965 to 1972, Nicastro was awarded contracts for the high school yearbook photography on the basis of bids issued by the high school itself. The Garfield Board required that all photographs of senior pupils appearing in the annual yearbook be taken by the successful bidder. The contract required the successful bidder to do additional photographic work without cost to the Board, yearbook staff or pupils of the high school. No pupil was required to purchase any portraits or pay a sitting fee. The successful bidder's sole income was from orders placed by pupils for photographic portraits.

Nicastro lost the bid for the 1972-73 school year and then asserted that the Garfield Board had no right to appoint one photographer to take all senior portraits and other yearbook pictures. He argued, among other things, that the selection of one contracted photographer created a monopoly and abrogated the right of a pupil to select freely among photographs of differing quality, characteristics and prices. These arguments are similar to those made by petitioner Santomenna herein.

The Garfield Board argued, among other things, that its right to appoint a single photographer was dictated by the necessity of maintaining both a reasonable timetable and uniform quality standards of photographic recordation for yearbook copy. the Board also asserted that no pupil was required to purchase portraits from the successful bidder.

The Commissioner said, in Nicastro, that:

> Pupils are not required to purchase portraits and are free to procure them elsewhere if they so choose. Accordingly, absent compulsory participation, petitioner's charge that the procedure is monopolistic is similarly without merit. The record is replete with evidence that pupils, class officers, yearbook staff, advisors and administrators review and reach a determination as to who shall be the successful bidder. Such procedure exemplifies the life situations with > which pupils will be confronted in our democratic society and, as such, is deemed beneficial. Id. at 217.

Thus, in Nicastro, the Commissioner found no impediment, legal or otherwise, with the Board engaging a single photographer for the purpose of taking photographs of its senior pupils for publication in the high school's annual yearbook. The Commissioner specifically found that this practice was not a monopoly, therefore, defeating petitioner Santomenna's claim of unlawful activity of restraint of trade by the Toms River Board of Education. In addition, the Commissioner found a salutary effect when he said:

> The production of a high school yearbook, although not typically a curricular offering, offers valuable opportunity for pupils to apply academic skills in such areas as marketing, journalism, layout, creative writing, advertising, group dynamics, budgeting, and creative design. While it is necessary to provide faculty advisors and sponsors for such a complex activity, the process offers an ideal opportunity for upperclassmen to enter into vital decision making processes. Such activities are to be encouraged since they furnish opportunity for pupils to use many of the skills taught in curricular offerings. One such area is creative layout which is typically an evolving expression of a selected theme. Id. at 216.

Petitioner's misapprehended the language and application of N.J.S.A. 10:1-2, N.J.S.A. 10:1-4 and N.J.S.A. 10:1-5. The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD) provides, among other things, that individuals may not be denied access to places of public accommodation based upon race, sex, marital status, religious beliefs, age, national origin, creed, color or ancestry. It does not mean that any vendor may enter the schoolhouse to solicit or sell its wares, without the explicit permission of the local board of education. There is no discriminatory exclusion where the Board has elected to contract with a single photographer to take photographs of pupils for use in the school's yearbook, unless it can be shown that the selection was based upon proscribed reasons; i.e., race, sex, creed, color, etc. There has been no such showing here. See State v. Rosecliff Realty, 1 N.J. Super. 94 (App. Div. 1948).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the action by the Board to contract with Lorstan Studios was in any manner illegal, discriminatory, arbitrary or capricious. Nicastro, supra.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board's Motion to Dismiss the herein matter must be granted.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Board's Motion to Dismiss the herein matter is hereby GRANTED and SUMMARY DECISION is ENTERED on behalf of the Toms River Regional School District Board of Education.

It is therefore ORDERED that the herein Petition of Appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOMS RIVER REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY, AND JOHN R. GARRABRANDT, SENIOR ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT, RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs that the Board's manner of contracting for high school yearbook photographs was not demonstrated to be in any way improper, discriminatory or an abuse of discretion.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning resident appealed Board's determination that child living with her did not meet requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) so as to qualify for free attendance in schools of the district as an "affidavit student."

ALJ found that child's parent was not supporting him and was incapable of providing the requisite affidavits of family or economic hardship, and that petitioner's credible testimony as to her support of and responsibility for the child stood in lieu of such affidavits. Accordingly, child was entitled to free public education in district.

Commissioner affirmed ALJ's recommendation, modifying the initial decision's analysis to apply and interpret N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 as amended by P.L. 1993, c. 380.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed the within appeal when the respondent refused to admit J. F. to the Brigantine school system on the grounds that he had not complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Upon filing of this petition on February 15, 1994, J. F. was admitted to the Brigantine school system and the within appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 2, 1994. A hearing was conducted at the Atlantic City OAL, 1201 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, New Jersey on June 28, 1994. The record was closed on the same date with a decision being rendered on July 25, 1994.

ISSUE

WHETHER J.F. SHOULD BE PREVENTED FROM BECOMING A STUDENT OF THE BRIGANTINE SCHOOL SYSTEM PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

J.F. is 14 years old and resides with Mrs. Sydney Gunderson in a parens patriae relationship. In November 1993, attempts were made to enroll J.F. in the Brigantine school system (hereinafter referred to as the School). The School refused to admit J.F. on the grounds that he was unable to provide an affidavit from his natural father which would indicate that custody had been relinquished and turned over to Mrs. Gunderson.

But for this affidavit required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the School concedes that J.F. has met all the requirements necessary for school enrollment.

Petitioner claims that she cannot obtain this affidavit on behalf of J.F. because J.F.'s natural father has been declared mentally incompetent and is unwilling, or incapable of giving such an affidavit.

The statutory scheme set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 requires several items of proof to be presented to the school board in addition to the affidavit from J.F.'s natural father. The provision of this information to the board enables any individual to receive a free and appropriate education.

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not supporting the child, accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. . .
> N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

The board concedes that it has all the information set forth in the above cited statute with the exception of the affidavit from J.F.'s father. Without this affidavit, the School refused admittance to J.F. in November 1993 and as a result, until the filing of this petition, J.F. was deprived of an education.

Petitioner has known J.F. since he was six months old when her sister-in-law, Ethel Bunkis baby-sat for J.F. At the age of eight years, J.F.'s mother passed away. Thereafter, Mrs. Bunkis was parens patriae to J.F. because his natural father became mentally ill and was diagnosed as paranoid schizophrenic.

In 1993, petitioner and her family, together with Ms. Bunkis, her family and J.F. rented a two family home in Brigantine, New Jersey. Mrs. Bunkis attempted to register J.F. in the Brigantine school system in November 1993. One week later, Mrs. Bunkis passed away.

Since J.F.'s mother passed away, J.F. never lived with his father and after the death of Mrs. Bunkis, he asked petitioner if he could remain with her. Petitioner testified that J.F. did not want to enter a foster home nor did he want to live with his natural father.

J.F.'s natural father, Steven Fishman, has a long history of mental illness dating back to 1988. Petitioner testified that her son, who is a New York City police officer takes J.F. to visit his father approximately once a month for several hours. J.F. testified that his father lives in a very run down neighborhood, in a room with crumbling walls and a bed that is taped together.

Petitioner noted that J.F.'s father has a great deal of affection for him and calls him every day at approximately 6:00 p.m. According to petitioner, Steven Fishman believes that his son is eight years old and that when he sends cards to J.F., he signs both his name and his deceased wife's name.

Petitioner has attempted to speak with Steven Fishman on several occasions in order to obtain the affidavit required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). Petitioner stated that despite the fact that Steven Fishman has always requested that she take care of J.F., he refuses to relinquish legal custody and claims that "no one will ever take his son away from him". Petitioner testified that whenever she attempts to broach the subject, Steven Fishman screams that she can contact his barrister, at which time he hangs up the phone.

Petitioner was able to obtain a statement from Steven Fishman which she filed with the School. The statement reads:

> Steven Fishman being duly sworn does depose and say:
> I am the father of Joseph Fishman, born October 15, 1979. I hereby give permission to Ms. Sydney Gunderson to take my son to and from school effective as of this date.

Petitioner stated that she is the sole financial support of J.F. She noted that despite Steven Fishman's apparent love for his son, he is incapable either mentally or financially to provide support to J.F. She stated that he never provides financial support, and except for the daily phone calls, gifts are rarely given by him to J.F.

Petitioner is now the representative payee for J.F.'s social security survivor's benefits. She has advised J.F. that he can remain with her all during high school, and for any time thereafter.

J.F. testified that he considers himself to be part of the family and intends to remain with Mrs. Gunderson in Brigantine, New Jersey. He does not want to return to his father, nor is his father making any attempts, either through the court system or otherwise to have his son returned to him in Brooklyn, New York. On the contrary, Steven Fishman specifically asked petitioner at the funeral of Ethel Bunkis if J.F. could remain with the petitioner.

J.F. graduated eighth grade in 1994 and intends to attend Atlantic City High School. From the date he was admitted into the Brigantine school system, he has not been absent even once. He testified that he enjoys school and wants to go to school.

The solution to this matter is simple. Steven Fishman needs to provide an affidavit to the school which indicates that he is no longer supporting J.F. Considering the mental condition of Steven Fishman, I question the validity of such a sworn statement. Petitioner testified that she believed that Steven Fishman had been declared mentally incompetent and was receiving social security disability income.

As set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), the burden of proof remains with the petitioner to demonstrate each and every element of the statute. Since the School has contended that all other requirements have been met, the only issue remaining is whether Steven Fishman is no longer supporting his son J.F.

I FIND that petitioner has demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that J.F. is entitled to a free and appropriate education within the Brigantine school system.

For whatever reason, known only in the mind of Steven Fishman, he does not want to sign an affidavit. In every other way, he has relinquished control of his child to the petitioner and has relegated the everyday care and maintenance of J.F. to the petitioner. His only contact with J.F. are the daily calls at 6:00 p.m. and the occasional visit when J.F. travels to Brooklyn to visit his father.

Given Steven Fishman's apparent mental incapacity, I FIND that the sworn testimony of the petitioner, which I FIND to be credible, shall stand in lieu of the affidavit requirement set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

Having found that J.F.'s natural father is no longer providing financial support to his son and additionally having found that J.F. is domiciled in the City of Brigantine, I herein GRANT petitioner's request for relief that J.F. is entitled to a free and appropriate education within the Brigantine school system.

Additionally, I note as a matter of future clarification, that this ORDER shall apply to J.F.'s high school education which will commence in September 1994 since the Atlantic City High School is the receiving district with the Brigantine school system, the sending district.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYDNEY J. GUNDERSON,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF BRIGANTINE, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply was filed by petitioner.

In its exceptions, the Board first argues that the ALJ erred in applying N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 as it existed prior to being amended in January 1994, when, in addition to the requirement of gratis support, a requirement was added for the parent or guardian of a so-called "affidavit student" to provide a "sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district." (P.L. 1993, c. 380, effective January 11, 1994)

The Board next contends that petitioner failed to carry her burden of proof under this statute, in that she was not only unable to provide the required affidavit, but offered no competent evidence that J.F.'s father was mentally or financially unable to support his son, or that he was mentally incompetent and receiving social security disability income on that basis. The Board further argues that the missing affidavit is not the sole deficiency in petitioner's claim, as petitioner cannot meet the requirement of gratis support of J.F. due to her undisputed receipt of the boy's social security survivor benefits.

Finally, the Board objects to the ALJ's having extended his recommendation to J.F.'s entire high school education, on grounds that such extension is premature and without basis in law or fact.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's ultimate conclusion that J.F. is entitled to a free public education in the Brigantine school district, but modifies the initial decision to the following extent.

Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that this matter, filed on February 15, 1994, must be decided under the statute as amended in January 1994. Therefore, as the Board correctly states, at issue herein are both the parent's inability to care for the child due to family or economic hardship and gratis support of that child by another person. The Commissioner does not agree, however, that under the particular circumstances of this case, the statute, as amended, acts as a bar to J.F.'s entitlement to attend school in the district.

In interpreting a statute, the Commissioner must look to the fundamental purpose for which the legislation was enacted, and where a literal reading will not accord with that purpose, the spirit of the law will control over its letter. N.J. Builders, Owners & Managers Association v. Blair, 60 N.J. 330, 333 (1972). Moreover, the meaning of a statute is to be gathered from the mischief sought to be eliminated as well as the proposed remedy. Brewer v. Porch, 53 N.J. 167, 174 (1969); San-Lan Builders, Inc. v. Baxendale, 28 N.J. 148, 155 (1958).

The amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 effectuated by P.L. 1993, c. 380 were intended to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students, specifically those living with a parent or guardian who claims to be, but is not, domiciled within the district, and those living with a person other than the parent or guardian in order to obtain the benefit of a free public education in a district other than that of their entitlement by parental domicile. (See Sponsor's Statement, Senate Education Committee Statement and Governor's Conditional Veto Message to Senate Bill No. 1447 of 1993, enacted as c. 380)

The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living arrangements may not be as contemplated by the statutory scheme when it is clear that the child has no home, or possibility of school attendance, other than with the non-parent district resident and that such resident is for all intents and purposes the sole caretaker and supporter of the child. Neither is its parental affidavit provision meant to act as a bar to a child who, due to particular circumstances, cannot produce such an affidavit but provides evidence that the underlying requirements of the law are being met. To hold otherwise harms a party the Legislature never meant to penalize, unreasonably places form over substance and overlooks the substantial State interest in ensuring the education of all its children. Sabella v. Lacey Tp., 204 N.J. Super. 55, 60 (App. Div. 1985); Restaurant Enterprises, Inc. v. Sussex Mutual Ins. Co., 52 N.J. 73, 77 (1968)

Under circumstances such as are presented herein, where petitioner receives no aid or support from J.F.'s father or other responsible adult, petitioner's being the representative payee of social security survivor benefits does not, in itself, disqualify J.F. from school attendance within the intendment of the law's gratis support requirement. Social Security payments do not represent compensation to petitioner for caring for J.F.; rather, they are a direct government benefit to J.F. arising from the death of his mother, with petitioner merely acting as payee for a minor child.

Moreover, while petitioner may not have presented written documentation as to the mental or financial status of J.F.'s father, it is clear that her testimony and that of J.F, both accepted as credible by the trier of fact, are based on long-standing and direct personal knowledge. Therefore, the Commissioner accepts such testimony as competent evidence of the status of J.F.'s father, and also as a sufficient demonstration that the underlying requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 are being met. That petitioner was unable to comply with the Board's requirement for a parental affidavit is of no import in this proceeding, as such affidavit is simply a means permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to aid local boards of education in accomplishing the statute's end, and the Commissioner may, on appeal, look to other indicia to see that the statutory purpose is being effectuated and accept such indicia in lieu of the affidavit required by the Board.

Finally, the Commissioner finds the ALJ's recommendation regarding J.F.'s continuing entitlement to a free public education in Brigantine to be nothing more than an attempt to ensure the orderly progression of that education. However, in response to the Board's concerns, the Commissioner clarifies that J.F.'s continuing entitlement is premised on there being no change in his own or petitioner's circumstances that would alter such entitlement.

Accordingly, as modified herein, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, determining that J.F. is entitled to a free public education in the School District of the City of Brigantine, is affirmed for the reasons set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF WILDWOOD, CAPE MAY COUNTY,

Respondent.

J. Paul Mohair, Esq., for petitioner, (Cape Atlantic Legal Services)

Bruce Gorman, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 14, 1994 Decided: July 26, 1994

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 26, 1993, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms on the record.

1. D.K. has already served a one day suspension. That suspension will remain of record.
2. The Board has reduced the initial penalty from three days to two days suspension.
3. The remaining one day suspension shall be reduced to four detention (1/2 hour per day) to be served at the beginning of the 1994-95 school year.
4. No social probation shall attach to the four day detention.

After being placed under oath, the parties stated that they fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of this settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded. I further note that the parties have agreed to waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF WINSLOW TOWNSHIP, CAMDEN COUNTY

Elaine A. Iacuzio, petitioner, pro se

Ronald Sahly, Esq., on behalf of respondent, School District of Winslow

Record Closed: July 25, 1994 Decided: July 29, 1994

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of the conduct of an annual school election. On July 6, 1994, notices were sent to the parties notifying them that a telephone conference was to take place at 3:00 p.m. on July 13, 1994. Ms. Iacuzio did not provide a telephone number, and therefore the matter was adjourned and a letter was sent to petitioner requesting a telephone number within ten days if she wished to pursue this matter (letter attached). Having received no correspondence, I CONCLUDE that the matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law. It is ORDERED that this matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

James J. Ross, Esq., for Dean Furniture and Equipment Co., Inc. (Wolff & Samson, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 13, 1994 Decided: January 5, 1995

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

This matter involves a challenge by Longo Associates, Inc. (petitioner) to the award of a contract by the Board of Education of the Morris School District (School District) to another bidder, Dean Furniture and Equipment Co., Inc. (Dean). Petitioner was the low bidder, but its bid was rejected because it did not propose certain brand name products contained in specifications developed by Faridy, Thorne & Fraytak, Architects, Planners (Faridy).

The original transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law was received on July 7, 1994, and the matter was scheduled for an oral argument on an application for emergent relief. While the application for emergent relief was pending, the parties submitted a Stipulation of Dismissal, which was approved in an Initial Decision-Settlement dated August 2, 1994.

By Decision dated September 16, 1994, the Commissioner of Education remanded the case to the Office of Administrative Law to supplement the record consistent with N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, which requires the parties to disclose the full settlement terms on the record. The remand was received by the Office of Administrative Law on September 20, 1994, and a telephone conference was scheduled for December 7, 1994. As a result of the conference, counsel agreed to file written submissions.

The submissions of the parties indicate that petitioner and Faridy reached an agreement related to specifications for future similar projects. As set forth in a letter dated July 14,1994 from counsel for petitioner to counsel for Faridy, petitioner and Faridy agreed as follows:

> This will confirm that the above matter has been resolved by agreement between our mutual clients that future similar projects designed by Faridy Thorne Fraytak will offer owners the option of two casework specifications either "Sheldon systems or approved equal" or "Campbell Rhea or approved equal."

There were no other terms in the agreement between petitioner and Faridy. The School District and Dean were not parties to the above-quoted agreement between petitioner and Faridy. However, all parties agreed to the stipulation of dismissal with prejudice.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. Petitioner and Faridy have voluntarily reached the above-quoted agreement concerning specifications prepared by Faridy for future similar projects.

2. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the stipulation of dismissal as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their represenatives.

3. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL Docket No. EDUOT 09256-94N

Dear Judge McGill:

We represent Respondent Faridy, Thorne & Fraytak, P.C. in the captioned matter.

After our recent telephone conference, I reviewed the file and discovered the enclosed July 14, 1994 letter from Petitioner setting forth an accord reached by our clients in connection with the Stipulation of Dismissal. I telephoned Petitioner's attorney, Ms. Calogero, and we felt it appropriate to forward the letter to you and request your guidance. Perhaps because the arrangement was reached directly by our clients, neither Ms. Calogero nor I recalled it during the telephone conference. We apologize for any inconvenience. I will contact your office to discuss.

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 27, 1993, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adoapted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The parties having amicably resolved their differences, the petition of appeal herein is dismissed, with prejudice, on the following terms:

1. On or before January 31, 1995, petitioner's supervisor, employing good faith professional judgment, will advise the Superintendent of Schools whether petitioner's performance merits reinstatement to the step on the salary guide where petitioner would have been absent the withholding of her 1993-94 increment.

2. If petitioner's supervisor submits such an affirmative recommendation, petitioner shall be restored to that step of the salary guide retroactive to commencement of the 1994-95 school year.

3. Petitioner abandons her claim to her 1993-94 increment.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, fully certificated teaching staff members employed by respondent Board of Education, claimed, in petitions originally filed in the 1991-92 school year, that Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by appointing the holder of a county substitute certificate to a coaching position for which they were qualified.

ALJ found that petitioners met the district's written qualifications for the coaching appointment at issue, so that the Board could not properly appoint an alternate candidate, other than a qualified and certified district employee, regardless of any belief on the Board's part that such candidate was more qualified than petitioners. (Norcross, Capraro, Daniel) Board was directed to review petitioners' applications and select one of them to be paid the applicable stipend plus interest. ALJ limited relief to the stipend for the 1991-92 season because petitioners did not amend their pleadings to include subsequent years.

Commissioner affirmed determination that N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 had been violated and directed implementation of the relief recommended by the ALJ. However, the Commissioner also remanded this matter for limited fact-finding and argument on petitioners' entitlement to additional relief for subsequent seasons.

Record Closed: June 16, 1994 Decided: August 2, 1994

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Richard Harris and Kenton Garay, petitioners, teaching staff members employed by the respondent Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education, respondent, seek an order vacating the head wrestling coach position, awarding the position to "a fully qualified permanent staff member who applied for the position" and full back pay and emoluments to that person.

This matter was opened on two separate petitions before the Commissioner of Education. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The matters were consolidated for hearing and were heard on March 16 and 28, 1994, at the Clinton Municipal Building.

Certain facts are uncontroverted and revealed the context of the case. In October 1991, the Board issued a job posting for a head wrestling coach. The Board had adopted a written job description containing the required qualifications, including possession of proper certification, background, experience and skills to organize, supervise and direct the entire program involved. Exhibit D.

The Principal and Director of Student Administration interviewed four candidates, including the petitioners. The petitioners were tenured teaching staff members and the two other candidates were from outside the district. Each candidate was interviewed and was asked the same questions pertinent to a wrestling program, such as relations with parents, philosophy of weight loss and why the candidate should be offered the position. Both interviewers believed these questions brought out the qualities a head coach needed to possess in order to continue the school's reputation for an excellent wrestling program.

Neither petitioner had served as a head wrestling coach during his employment with the district. Each had extensive assistant coach experience. Mr. Keith Holcombe served as a head wrestling coach a private school, but was not employed as a teacher and did not want a teaching position in the district.

Mr. Stephen Gibble, based upon the interviews, was selected by the principal and director for recommendation to the superintendent.

On or about November 21, 1991, the superintendent contacted the Hunterdon County Office of the New Jersey Department of Education and obtained the necessary application form for approval to hire an athletic coach holding a substitute teacher certificate. Exhibit A. The superintendent included a letter attesting to Gibble's knowledge and experience and referring to the fact that Gibble had already had been approved as an assistant wrestling coach for the 1991-92 school year. The Acting County Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Bruce Quinn, approved the application.

Neither petitioner attempted to seek an assistant wrestling coach position for the 1991-92 school year. Exhibit E.

Harris holds a masters degree in education and the following teaching certificates and endorsements: teacher of health and physical education; driver education; teacher of the handicapped; supervisor, and principal. Garay holds a teaching certificate with teacher of the handicapped and teacher of industrial arts endorsements. Gibble holds a county substitute teacher certificate.

At hearing, the petitioners testified concerning their experience with school and community wrestling programs. There are three programs at Hunterdon Central High School in addition to the varsity program. There are freshman, freshman-sophomore and junior varsity (JV) programs. Harris has been an assistant wrestling coach and a part-time physical education teacher. During his interview, the petitioner and the administrators discussed program mechanics, especially weight loss, budget and community involvement. Although the witness has headed the JV and freshman programs, he has not headed the entire program.

Garay testified similarly. In addition to his teaching credentials, Garay holds certification as a wrestling official.

Garay heard Harris testify and stated that he would say basically the same things Harris said. He, as did Harris, assisted the head coach at tournament time.

The superintendent since July 1990 testified that he became involved in the head wrestling coach appointment in the fall of 1991. He charged David D. Myers, the high school principal, to make a recommendation to the superintendent. The principal told him that there were four or five people under consideration. The superintendent told the principal to hurry.

The principal recommended Stephen Gibble. The superintendent recommended Gibble to the Board and requested the County Office to approve some one not employed in the district. When that approval was received, the Board appointed Gibble head wresting coach. Gibble was the only applicant who had head coaching experience, albeit at the junior high school level. However, leadership and ability to keep a good program moving were his most important criteria for a new coach.

The school, which has enjoyed great wrestling competition success, was involved in a scandal during a trip to George Mason University. The former head coach and one assistant were suspended. The witness believed that it was important to make an appropriate appointment as quickly as possible. He conceded that he did not know whether Pennsylvania, where Gibble had his experience, recognizes the position of head junior high school wrestling coach.

The principal testified that he has been at Hunterdon Central Regional High School since the summer of 1980. He and the director of student activities interviewed the persons who responded to the posted vacancy for head wrestling coach. Of the four candidates, Garay, Harris, Gibble and Holcombe, Garay and Harris were district employees, Gibble held a county substitute certificate and Holcombe was employed at a private school.

Gibble had been a member of the school's coaching staffs for football, wrestling and lacrosse beginning in the 1989-90 school year. The witness and the director discussed the recent incident at George Mason University and how candidates would handle the questions of controversy and atmosphere. They agreed that this was an atypical situation.

The witness stated that he knew Harris had been head football and assistant wrestling coach, Garay was an assistant wrestling coach and Gibble had headed a junior high school wrestling program in Pennsylvania. The witness believes that he and the principal were looking for the best qualified person, giving particular attention to how they answered questions during the interview and how they would deal with colleges. Their consensus was that Gibble had experience, had kept current by attending summer college clinics, gave sincere responses and had quickly outlined what he would do if he were given the position. The interviewers did not rank the candidates on paper, but discussed each candidate after his interview. After the last interview, they agreed that Gibble was the best candidate. Holcombe, although he had many desirable qualities, was not in the same group as the others. Gibble had thought out what he would do and gave his answers without hesitation when asked.

The interviewers reported their recommendation to the superintendent. After the County Office approval and board appointment, the principal notified the unsuccessful candidates.

There was additional testimony concerning selections of coaches in other sports and use of persons holding county substitute teacher certificates.

The Director of Student Administration testified substantially as did the principal. He stated that, under qualifications listed in the job posting candidates were advised that they must possess proper certification, background, experience and skills to organize, supervise and direct the entire program. When the district advertises a position, it may or may not require head coaching experience in the sport. In this case, the district did require head coaching experience. Harris and Garay do not have head coaching experience.

Holcombe, although well qualified, did not interview as well as Gibble. He did have head coaching experience and was qualified as to certification. Harris and Garay were considered unqualified because they lacked head coaching experience and they did not go through the interview as well as Gibble.

The former Acting County Superintendent of Schools testified that he received an application to approve Gibble in November 1991. Attached to the application for approval were a copy of the advertisement posting the position, Gibble's county substitute certificate and a letter from the superintendent. He stated that he had earlier approved Gibble as an assistant wrestling coach. In addition, he was provided a job description.

The witness discussed the matter with the superintendent before he received the application. The witness was aware of problems the former head coach had been involved with. The witness approved Gibble's appointment and believes he rightly did so.

The witness cannot recall all discussions surrounding the appointment. He does recall the district represented that there were no other qualified candidates. It is not his responsibility as County Superintendent to second guess the local superintendent. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) provides procedures to use when there is no qualified in-district candidate.

In addition to the facts found above, I also FIND:

1. The superintendent asked the director for verification of Gibble's background in Pennsylvania. The director contacted someone at Central Columbia High School in Pennsylvania. However, he did not know if the district has a junior high school as such. The interviewers did not attempt to verify any of the applicants' representations. Garay and Harris did all of their work in the district. It was there to be seen, board minutes exist and there were persons available who had observed the program, including Harris and Garay, for several years.

2. The Hunterdon Central Regional High School District assured the County Office that there was no other qualified candidate than Gibble. It provided the County Office a statement of assurances. Gibble had not completed his college degree as of 1991.

3. Counsel were directed to contact the Columbia School District in Pennsylvania within a stated time to ascertain Gibble's experience there in the 1985-89 school years. Nothing has been presented to me indicating any contact with that district. Accordingly, the Board's Exhibit H is accepted into evidence.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

The petitioners in the main rely on the language of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3. That rule provides:

> (a) Any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board of education shall not be permitted to organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of instruction, or coaching or for conducting games, events or contests in physical education or athletics.
> (b) School districts shall be permitted to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate to work in the interscholastic athletic program provided that the position has been advertised.

> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:
>
> i. The vacant coaching position had been advertised; and
>
> ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education;
>
> 2. The district chief school administrator will provide a letter to the county superintendent attesting to the prospective employee's knowledge and experience in the sport in which he or she will coach; and
> 3. Approval of the county superintendent shall be obtained prior to such employment by the district board of education. The 20-day limitation noted in N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.4(l) shall not apply to such coaching situations.

The Commissioner has consistently held that the priority of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 requires that where a full-time, district employee applies for and is qualified for a coaching position, he or she must be given that position before an out-of-district employee can be hired.

In this case, the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by appointing Gibble, holder of a county substitute certificate, when there were qualified and certified applicants. As N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 (c) provides, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach only in the event that there is no qualified or certified applicant from within the district.

The hearing produced significant testimony that the principal and director were the two people who interviewed applicants. The testimony showed that the principal and director made a recommendation to the superintendent who testified that he adopted that recommendation. The principal plainly stated that while he considered all of the applicants qualified for the position, he considered Gibble most qualified. That testimony alone should demonstrate that the Board violated the Administrative Code when it hired Gibble. The inquiry is not who is most qualified. If any of the certified, in-district teachers were qualified, the Board would not be entitled to seek or hire the holder of a county substitute certificate. Moreover, the application for approval to hire an athletic coach contains a statement of assurance that indicates no applicants holding New Jersey state teacher certification qualified for the position based upon written standards.

Petitioners urge that this statement of assurance, necessary to properly execute the application for approval to hire an athletic coach holding a substitute certificate, is in direct contradiction of the plain testimony that there were applicants holding New Jersey teacher certifications who were qualified for the position. As such, the application was improper executed.

One of the interviewers stated that Gibble was the only qualified applicant, in his opinion. However, he was unable to say on cross-examination in what ways the petitioners were not qualified. Nor could he point to any written standards that the petitioners had not met which would have rendered them unqualified. The written standards listing the qualifications for the head coach position do not call for pervious head wrestling coach experience. Exhibit D.

No witness was able to point to any written standards whatsoever that required previous head wrestling coach experience in order to be qualified for the subject position. The evidence indicates that the Board clearly violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by failing to appoint one of the petitioners to the position of head wrestling coach.

The petitioners ask that they be made whole for the moneys they would have earned if selected as head wrestling coach at Hunterdon Central Regional High School.

The Board asserts that the phrases "qualified and certified applicant" and "qualified applicant based on written standards" came under review in Norcross v. Board of Education, North Hunterdon Reg'l High School Dist., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 613. In that case, petitioner applied for the open positions of head and assistant girls' basket ball coach. However, the board hired the holder of a county superintendent certificate, without obtaining the county superintendent's approval. Further, the Board did not have written qualifications for the position, but only an explanation of the duties to be formed. Norcross previously served as head girls' basketball coach in the district. The Commissioner upheld the ALJ finding that the Board violated N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 by appointing a person holding a county substitute certificate without permission. The Commissioner stated that, in the selection of coaches, there are two threshold criteria: one, whether the person is certified as a teacher and two, whether the person is employed by the Board. If the applicant meets these standards, then a third criterion may be applied; that is, the Board's written policy of qualifications it wants in its coaches.

The Commissioner elaborated on Norcross in Vincent J. Capraro v. Woodbridge Township Board of Education, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 17. In Capraro, the Board appointed an out-of-district certified teacher as head baseball coach over an in-district certified teacher who had experience as an assistant baseball coach. Several board members, but not the rejected applicant, challenged the action. The ALJ found the in-district applicant was improperly denied the position, but was not entitled to relief because he was not a named petitioner. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ, but added:

> A properly certified in-district candidate could, conceivably, be passed over in favor of an out-of-district candidate, who was likewise properly certified, if the in-district candidate did not meet previously established written qualifications for the coaching position pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3.

The Commissioner also found, as in Norcross, that the Board did not have written performance standards and qualifications. In the absence of these, the Board could not bypass certified, in-district persons.

Reading Norcross and Capraro, makes clear that an in-district certified candidate does not have automatic priority over an out-of-district candidate where the board has adopted written standards and qualifications which the in-district candidate does not meet.

In the present matter, the Board did have a written set of qualifications for the position of head coaching existence prior to the interview process. Exhibit D. These qualifications call for possession of the proper certificate, background, experience and skills to organize, supervise and direct the entire program of the sport. Second, the board applied for and received approval to hire a person holding a county substitute certificate as an athletic coach. This approval was not received in Norcross. When the State Department of Education approved the Board's application, it acknowledged that the district had met the Administrative Code requirements for the approval including demonstrating it had a written copy of standards for the position.

In 1993, the Commissioner reviewed the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3. Daniel and Moxley v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 613. The ALJ found the district failed to advertise for the vacant assistant football coaching positions as required by law. The ALJ also found the district failed to received County Superintendent approval prior to employing four assistant football coaches. The Commissioner adopted the judge's determination that the district violated applicable law and directed one of the petitioners, Daniel, be compensated in the amount of the appropriate stipend for the 1991-92 school year.

The Commissioner also stressed that the intent and proper operation of the regulation is well established, that athletics is part of the total educational program and, in hiring coaches, a board must first look at in-district staff, then to fully certificated staff from outside the district, and only then to holders of county substitute certificates as approved by the County Superintendent.

In the present case, the Board advertised within and outside the district and did seek and receive County Superintendent approval prior to employing Gibble. Gibble then served as head wrestling coach during the year in question under the approval of the State Department of Education. The petitioners' delay bringing this matter forward should preclude the award of moneys for any alleged violation of the administrative rules. Both petitioners did not seek to coach as assistant wrestling coaches for the year in question. Thus failing to mitigating their damages. Nor should this tribunal consider any other year but the year in question in assessing whether a violation of the code took place. The pleadings were not amended and no additional discovery was conducted into the circumstances which existed in any future wrestling season. The only facts the petitioner present were limited to the 1991-92 wrestling season.

The Hunterdon Central Regional High School District complied with State regulations pertaining to the approval of hiring the holder of a county substitute certificate as head wrestling coach for the 1991-92 wrestling season. Therefore, the petitioners have no legal basis for challenging that decision and their petitions must be DISMISSED.

From the evidence adduced, I FIND:

1. The district suspended three wrestling coaches in 1991 after a rules infraction was discovered.
2. The district posted and advertised the positions head wrestling coach and assistant wrestling coach on October 1, 1991.
3. There were several applications received and reviewed by the high school principal and the director of student administration.
4. Four persons were interviewed: Gibble, Garay, Harris and Holcombe.

5. The interviewers reached a consensus. They recommended Gibble to the superintendent.
6. The superintendent accomplished the necessary application via the county superintendent of schools because Gibble, although he had worked for the district, held only a county substitute certificate.
7. There is no procedural defect in the approval process

In Daniel, above, the Commissioner emphasized that the intent and proper operation of the subject regulation is well established, that athletics is part of the total school program and, in hiring coaches, a board must first look to in-district staff, then to fully certificated staff from outside the district and only then to holders of county substitute certificates as approved by the County Superintendent. 93, N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 618.

In the present case, the petitioners were not deemed unqualified candidates, merely less qualified. The Board has failed to articulate any reason why the petitioners are unacceptable. The Board has shown only that Gibble was the preferred choice of the screening committee. The is no argument, however, about Gibble's lesser qualifications. The superintendent's letter to the County Superintendent dated November 21, 1991 states, "In the opinion of the administration, he is the best qualified candidate to meet the needs of the athletes and school district. Mr. Gibble holds a valid Substitute Teacher certificate endorsed in Hunterdon County. He was approved on October 15, 1991 by you as an assistant wrestling coach for the 1991-92 season." Exhibit C. The letter goes on to provide additional background on Gibble.

Although this decision stops short of finding that the Board acted in bad faith, the selection process was seriously flawed. Harris and Garay remained applicants throughout the final selection process, but Gibble was selected. In deciding that the petitioners were not qualified, the Board relied on recommendations of the superintendent who, in turn, relied on recommendations of the selection committee. At some point, a decision was made to pass over Harris and Garay who, while qualified, were less attractive candidates than Gibble. There was a problem, however, in that the law does not permit a Board to pass over certified, in-district persons unless that decision is based on clearly articulated and properly advertised criteria. According to Daniel, above, the question to be addressed is whether the Board's finding the petitioners unqualified was a sustainable judgment. This, in turn, depends on whether the Board's requirement of head coaching experience is valid. Although it is beyond argument that a Board's actions are presumed valid, the actions are not unimpeachable when, as here, specifications are drawn so as to circumvent State Board of Education rules. Harris', Garay's and Gibble's qualifications were known before the job posting (Exhibit E) was created. It is likely that Holcombe's qualifications were not known at that time. Whether his qualifications were known, or not, is not necessary to this analysis.

The only ways a Board can hire a head coach with head coach experience are to hire one of its own teaching staff members with such experience or to locate such a person and satisfy N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3. But before that step can be taken, there must be no qualified and certified applicant. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c).

Whatever the Board's reasons for not selecting Harris or Garay, they have not been sufficiently articulated to show that the petitioners are unqualified. Going to the holder of the county substitute certificate is a big step. It must not be taken until qualified and certified in-district applicants had been legitimately ruled out. On this record, I CONCLUDE that Harris and Garay were not legitimately ruled out. In short, the district has not articulated sufficient reason to employ a county substitute certificate holder.

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the relief the petitioners seek be granted subject to the following conditions. First, the Board must review the applications of both petitioners and, if necessary, interview both petitioners. The Board must then select one of the two petitioners based on its assessments of their backgrounds and abilities. That person then will be paid the stipend lost, plus interest since the last day of the 1991-92 wrestling season. No other monies will be paid because the petitioners have limited their petition to the 1991-92 season. The Commissioner of Education shall specify the date by which these actions shall be accomplished in the final agency decision. If no final agency decision is rendered and this initial decision becomes final by operation of law, the actions ordered shall be completed by November 1, 1994.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RICHARD HARRIS AND KENTON P. GARAY,	:
PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioners, as was a reply thereto by the Board of Education. No exceptions were filed by the Board.

In their exceptions, petitioners urge acceptance of the initial decision's findings in the main, but contend that the ALJ erred in limiting petitioners' relief to the 1991-92 wrestling season. While conceding that their pleadings were not amended to include years subsequent to 1991-92, petitioners argue that they notified both the Court and counsel at hearing that they intended to present, and ultimately did present, testimony with respect to the two subsequent wrestling seasons, and that the parties' determinations with regard to a concurrent grievance procedure caused a significant delay in the hearing of this matter, during which petitioners continued to apply and be improperly rejected for the coaching positions at issue. Given the basis for the ALJ's determination that Stephen Gibble's 1991-92 appointment was invalid, and given that petitioners continued to apply for Gibble's position during the two subsequent seasons, petitioners contend, their relief should extend up to the time, if any, when Mr. Gibble remedied the defect in his certification.

In reply, the Board argues that it would unfairly be prejudiced by any attempt to expand petitioners' claims beyond the 1991-92 school year. The Board stresses petitioners' failure to amend their pleadings, and observes that, notwithstanding the recitation of facts embodied in petitioners' exceptions, the ALJ made no findings of fact regarding years subsequent to 1991-92 on which any entitlement to relief might have been based. The Board also contends, citing Riely v. Hunterdon Central Regional High School Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980), that local grievance/arbitration procedures do not toll the time for appeal to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and that petitioners clearly had sufficient notice of their non-appointment for 1992-93 and 1993-94 to timely amend their pleadings.

Upon review of the record and consideration of the parties' filings in response to the initial decision, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the Board violated applicable regulation in hiring Stephen Gibble for the 1991-92 wrestling season. However, on the question of the relief to which petitioners are entitled, the Commissioner determines to remand this matter for further proceedings as set forth below.

Under the particular circumstances of this matter, the Commissioner is not satisfied that relief should necessarily be limited to the 1991-92 school year. However, on the basis of the present record, the Commissioner can make no factual determination that would permit him to conclude that petitioners, assuming they can overcome the hurdle of not having amended their pleadings, are entitled to relief for subsequent school years as a result of continuing violation.

Accordingly, the Commissioner remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for fact-finding necessary to determine whether the Board's 1992-93 and 1993-94 head wrestling coach appointment continued to violate petitioners' rights and for consideration of argument, and evidence as necessary, on the question of whether petitioners' failure to amend pleadings is a bar to their ability to claim further relief under the circumstances. Nothing herein, however, alters the Commissioner's affirmation of the ALJ's recommended decision in other respects, so that the Board is directed, in accordance with the Initial Decision at pp. 14-15 above, to select one of the petitioners for payment of the 1991-92 stipend plus interest by November 1, 1994.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF THOMAS SELLEROLI, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For the Board, Gregory G. Johnson, Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 7, 1994 through certification of tenure charges of other just cause (excessive absenteeism, insubordination and abandonment of position) against respondent, a tenured custodian in the District's employ; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent by printed notice on June 13, 1994, and July 11, 1994, and, again, by letter dated August 10, 1994, all sent via both regular and certified mail, to file a formal Answer to the District's charges, which certified notifications were returned by the Post Office; and

As of this date, neither respondent nor any attorney on his behalf having so filed an Answer to the charges levied against him; and

Given that respondent has failed to properly respond to the tenure charges by way of an Answer, as directed, each count of the charges against him is deemed to be admitted; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED on this 19TH day of September 1994 that summary decision shall be granted to the District and respondent shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the District's employ as of the date of this decision.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former supervisor, alleged Board's failure to appoint him to position of administrative assistant to the superintendent for the 1992-93 school year following a RIF was a violation of his tenure and seniority rights.

ALJ found, and petitioner did not dispute, another individual, Graef, had greater seniority and, thus, a superior claim to the position at issue. ALJ further found that there was no support for petitioner's contention that the Board's action recognizing Graef's entitlement to this particular position rather than other supervisory positions to which she also had claim was done in bad faith to thwart his claim to this particular position. Thus, petitioner had no claim to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent for the 1992-93 school year. Board's motion for summary decision was granted and the petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on October 22, 1992 following the filing of a petition of appeal by Frank James White against the Bloomfield Board of Education wherein he alleged that the Board's failure to appoint him to the position of "administrative assistant to the superintendent" for the 1992-93 school year following a reduction in force which eliminated the supervisory position he held in 1991-92 was a violation of his tenure and seniority rights. The Board's answer maintained that White's assignment for the 1992-93 school year to a physical education classroom teacher position was proper.

In March 1993, White's petition was consolidated with a contested case which previously had been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law entitled Graef v. Board of Education of Bloomfield, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6562-92. That case involved tenure and seniority claims by another person holding administrative certification arising out of the same reduction in force which led to petitioner's reassignment to a classroom position for the 1992-93 school year. Graef, too, claimed entitlement to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent, as well as others. When the Graef case was settled it was agreed among counsel for Graef, White and the Board that the settlement did not preclude White from continuing to pursue his claim. Indeed, counsel for White made clear during the course of the Graef settlement hearing on September 30, 1993 that whatever agreement the Board reached with Graef with respect to her entitlement, it did not bind his client.*

Thereafter, in October 1993, White expanded his pending claim by filing a new petition of appeal with the Commissioner alleging that by virtue of his tenure and seniority he now was entitled to the position of "supervisor of elementary education." That new petition, which was transmitted by the Department to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on January 20, 1994, was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 540-94 and is scheduled for a plenary hearing on November 22 and November 23, 1994. Recently, White moved to amend that new petition to add a generalized claim, based upon his supervisor's certification, to any administrative

* The Graef-Board settlement recognized a superior claim by Graef to the administrative assistant position. However, since that position no longer existed as of 1993-94, Graef was appointed to another supervisory position, director of personnel.

 That case was preheard in April 1994 at which time I reserved decision on White's motion to consolidate it with the instant matter pending my disposition of the present motion for summary decision.

position held by a nontenured teaching staff member which requires an endorsement "subsumed within the administrative certificate." The Board does not oppose the amendment, except it insists that the claim be articulated more precisely as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.3 and that the prehearing order be amended.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties have agreed to stipulate to the underlying facts and they are set forth verbatim below:

1. The petitioner, Frank James White, is a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the respondent, the Board of Education of the Township of Bloomfield.

2. From November 1, 1989 to June 30, 1992, the petitioner served as a supervisor of physical education and health.

3. Prior to his service as a supervisor of physical education and health, the petitioner served as a regular classroom teacher of physical education.

4. The position of supervisor of physical education and health (K-12) was abolished by the Board of Education at the end of the 1991-92 school year. This position was consolidated into the position of supervisor of athletics, health (9-12) and physical education (K-12). Such action was taken by the Board pursuant to a legitimate reduction in force effective at the conclusion of the 1991-92 school year. By resolution of the Board on April 13, 1992, Petitioner White was listed under the category "positions abolished--tenured staff to be reassigned." (See attached.)

5. For the 1992-93 school year, the petitioner was transferred to the position of high school teacher, physical education (9-12), which was his last tenured position.

6. On or about September 17, 1992, the petitioner commenced the within action before the Commissioner of Education [OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8236-92], wherein he alleged claims of tenure and seniority entitlement to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent.

7. The position of administrative assistant to the superintendent was created by Board action on May 4, 1992, effective July 1, 1992. The position was abolished at the end of the 1992-93 school year.

8. Lois Capabianco, hired effective December 16, 1991 as the supervisor of elementary education (K-8) was rehired July 1, 1992 to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent.

9. Judy L. Graef is a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the Respondent. From September 1, 1989 to June 30, 1992, she held the position of Director of Personnel.

10. Prior to her service as Director of Personnel, Ms. Graef held the position of acting administrative assistant to the superintendent from September 1, 1988 to June 30, 1989, and supervisor of home economics from September 1, 1986 to June 30, 1989.

11. The position of director of personnel was abolished, pursuant to a legitimate reduction in force, at the conclusion of the 1991-92 school year.

12. For the 1992-93 school year, Ms. Graef was transferred to the position of department supervisor, home economics and business (9-12) - High School, her last tenured position. She bumped Janis Maziarski, who was in the position of department supervisor during the 1991-92 school year, and since September 1, 1986. Effective for the 1992-93 school year, Ms.

Maziarski was transferred to a business education teaching position at the high school.

13. On or about July 30, 1992, Judy Graef commenced an action before the Commissioner of Education [OAL Dkt. No. 6562-92] asserting tenure and seniority entitlement claims to various positions in the respondent's school district, including that of the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent.

14. On or about September 30, 1993, the respondent executed a settlement agreement with Judy L. Graef, which was accepted by the Honorable Stephen G. Weiss, Administrative Law Judge, and approved by Mary Lee Fitzgerald, then Commissioner of Education. Under the terms of the settlement agreement, the respondent [Board], among other things, recognized Ms. Graef's tenure and seniority entitlement to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent.

15. Although Ms. Maziarski never challenged her reduction in force from a supervisory position to a teaching position, her tenure and seniority as a supervisor is greater than that of the petitioner.

16. The tenure and seniority entitlement to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent for the 1992-93 school year, was granted to Judy Graef. Ms. Graef's tenure and seniority entitlement to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent is greater than that of the petitioner.

17. For the current 1993-94 school year, the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent no longer exists. Judy L. Graef was reinstated to the reestablished position of director of personnel, and Janis Maziarski was reinstated to the position of department supervisor, home economics and business education (9-12) - High School.

18. The petitioner remains on a preferred eligibility list for recall to the position of supervisor of physical education and health. The position of supervisor of athletics, health (9-12) and physical education (K-12) is held by George Middleton, who has greater tenure and seniority entitlement than the petitioner. See, Joint Stipulation of Facts, June 30, 1994.

DISCUSSION

In this matter petitioner not only claims he was entitled by virtue of his tenure and seniority to a supervisory position which no longer exists, he concedes that another Board employee (Graef) actually had a superior claim to the position by virtue of her own tenure and seniority. The case, however, is not moot since White maintains that despite Graef's superior claim to the administrative assistant position he should have been appointed to it for 1992-93 since Graef also had entitlement to other supervisory positions in the district in 1992-93 and the interests of both White and Graef could have been accommodated by his appointment to the disputed position and Graef's appointment to some other position. If that had occurred the person who actually was appointed and whom White claims had less entitlement than he (Capabianco) would not have been appointed. Since the position was abolished White's claim is for back pay.

In their briefs counsel refer generally to several major seniority cases, including Dennery v. Passaic County Regional High School District No. 1, 131 N.J. 626 (1992), Ellicot v. Board of Education, 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1989), Bednar v. Westwood Board of Education, 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), and Capodilupo v. Board of Education of West Orange, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987). In my view those decisions support the Board's position in this case since the law is well established that seniority accrues in specific categories of employment and is earned only through actual employment in that category. Thus, mere possession of a certificate endorsement is not always sufficient. In this case the only supervisory title under which petitioner actually served was "supervisor of health and physical education" from November 1989 to June 1992. Graef on the other hand held supervisory positions within the district for three school years more than White, including "acting administrative assistant to the superintendent" from September 1, 1989 to June 30, 1990 and it is clear that as of the beginning of the 1992-93 school year Graef by virtue of her seniority had a greater entitlement to the supervisory position of administrative assistant to the superintendent.

Since, as noted above, White does not dispute Graef's greater seniority, his case rests upon the proposition advanced in his brief that the Board's settlement of Graef's claim in September 1993 deliberately was designed, at least in part, to interdict petitioner's claim. According to petitioner's theory since Graef also had a superior claim to other supervisory positions in the district besides that of administrative assistant to the superintendent, the Board's motive for specifically recognizing her entitlement to that particular position for 1992-93 was to "thwart" White's claim to that same job. Thus, petitioner argues that the language of the Board's settlement with Graef was tantamount to a bad faith exercise of the Board's discretion and intended to interfere with his tenure and seniority rights. According to White, the Board was obliged to assign Graef to some other position or title in 1992-93 to which she also had a superior right and thereby preserve petitioner's ability to "reap the maximum benefits" to which he was entitled by virtue of his own tenure. In other words, Graef should have been assigned during 1992-93 to a supervisory position other than administrative assistant to the superintendent, which appointment would have accommodated White's alleged entitlement during that same school year to that job.

While I compliment White's counsel for the ingenuity of his argument, I must reject it since there is no case law or other authority which supports his position. To the contrary, boards of education are vested with a great deal of discretion and a presumption of correctness attaches to their actions. Absent a clear showing of bad faith in the exercise of that discretion their acts must be upheld. There is nothing in the Joint Stipulation of Facts agreed to in this case which even indicates, no less supports, a "bad faith" contention. Simply put, the Board was free during 1992-93 to assign its tenured supervisors to whatever positions might be available and in accordance with their seniority. Since the Board did not appoint either Graef or White to the administrative assistant's position in 1992-93, and since the clock cannot now be turned back, the parties must live with the facts as they exist today. Those facts clearly demonstrate Graef's superior entitlement over White by virtue of her seniority to the administrative assistant's position and her possible entitlement to other supervisory positions are irrelevant, as is White's claim vis-à-vis Capabianco.

I also should note that a secondary argument was offered by the Board in its brief; i.e., that since substantial differences in job duties existed between the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent (the position which White claims) and the position of supervisor of physical education and health (the position which he held in 1991-92) he is precluded for that reason from making any claim to the former position. My difficulty with this argument is that it is particularly fact-sensitive and the Joint Stipulation of Facts does not contain nearly enough facts to constitute an adequate record and this issue cannot be determined in a vacuum based solely on counsel's argument and the inclusion of a job description as an appendix to her brief.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, in light of the Joint Stipulation of Facts and discussion, I CONCLUDE that White has no claim to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools for the 1992-93 school year and the Board's motion for summary decision on that issue therefore should be granted for the reasons set forth above. I therefore ORDER that the petition of appeal should be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including the exceptions advanced by petitioner, the Commissioner determines that such exceptions essentially recast and reargue issues which were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in his initial decision and need not be herein reiterated. The Commissioner is in full agreement with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is hereby granted and the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent appealed Board's determination of nonresidency. Board contended petitioner and her children, D.A. and S.H., were not domicile in the district but in Trenton and, thus, were not entitled to a free public education in Ewing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

In light of evidence presented and testimony of the witnesses, the ALJ concluded petitioner proved that she and her children were domiciled in Ewing, although they did spend time at a Trenton apartment. Citing Matter of Unanue, Mercadante, and Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, ALJ found petitioner's intent was determinative.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning school psychologist challenged the Board's withholding of his employment and adjustment increments for the 1993-94 school year for alleged unsatisfactory performance.

ALJ found petitioner failed to meet his burden of establishing by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious or based on improper motive. ALJ found that petitioner was aware that the Board considered his performance in completing evaluations as unsatisfactory. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 7263-93
AGENCY DKT. NO. 259-7/93

DR. CHARLES KASKA,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY,
Respondent.

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for the petitioner (Bergman and Barrett, attorneys)

Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq., for the respondent (Sumners, Council, George and Dortch, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 8, 1994 Decided: August 17, 1994

BEFORE CAROL F. LASKIN, ALJ, t/a:

Dr. Charles Kaska, petitioner, alleges and the Board of Education of the City of Trenton (Board), respondent, denies that the Board improperly withheld the petitioner's employment and adjustment increments for the 1993-94 school year.

This matter opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on October 7, 1993. After adjournment requested by petitioner, this matter was heard on March 22 and 23, 1994 in the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey.

Three witnesses appeared on behalf of the petitioner, two on behalf of the respondent. Petitioner offered three exhibits; respondent offered three exhibits and the parties jointly offered three exhibits. Upon request by the parties, the briefing schedule did not commence until receipt of the transcripts of the recorded proceedings of the hearing.[1] Thereafter, the time for post-hearing submissions was enlarged, for good cause shown, to permit the undersigned to review both the initial and the reply brief of the petitioner.

ISSUE PRESENTED AND STIPULATED FACTS

The issue for determination is whether the Board's action in withholding Dr. Kaska's 1993-94 increment was volatile of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. This statute, in pertinent in part, provides:

> "Any Board of Education may hold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by recording role call majority vote on the full membership of the Board of Education."

Our courts have noted that the decision to withhold salary increments is a matter of managerial prerogative which has been vested in local Boards of Education by the legislature. As such, it is axiomatic that the determination of the Board to withhold such increments may not be set aside unless the action is found to be arbitrary, without rationale basis or induced by improper motives. See, i.e. Bernards Tp., Bd. of Ed. v. Bernards Tp. Educ. Ass'n., 79 N.J. 311 (1979); Bd. of Educ. v. Educ. Ass'n., 270 N.J. Super. 444 (App. Div. 1994); Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294-96 (App. Div. 1960). And it is the petitioner who maintains the burden of production and persuasion to establish that the Boards' conduct herein was arbitrary, without factual basis or induced by an improper motive.

[1] T1 and T2 refer to the transcripts of the hearing conducted on March 22 and 23, 1994, respectively.

A review of the petition of appeal, answer, and stipulations of the parties presented during the hearing establishes as uncontested the following:

1. Dr. Kaska, a school psychologist, is a long-term employee of the Trenton Board of Education assigned to the districts' child study program and was a member, in the school year 1992-93, of one of the districts fourteen (14) child study teams. In addition to case management responsibilities, a principle aspect of Dr. Kaskas' duties was to evaluate students referred to the team, and based on said evaluation, to produce a written report and recommendation of placement of the student in a particular program.

2. The Board is governed by the Special Education Procedural Safeguards of N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.1(c) which states, in pertinent part, "After parental consent for initial evaluation has been received, the District Board of Education shall ensure that within 90 calendar days, evaluation and determination of eligibility for special education and/or related services, and, if eligible, development and implementation of the individualized education program for the pupil shall be completed."

3. Beginning at the commencement of the 1992-93 school year until April 26, 1993, the date petitioner was informed that his salary increment would be withheld, petitioner evaluated and completed reports of twenty (20) students; thirteen (13) listed on J-2 and five (5) additional students evaluated during the period March 31, to April 26, 1993. (2T52 to 55)

4. In or around January, 1993, Dr. Kaska was directed by his supervisor, Alex Trento, to increase, by volume, the number of evaluations, reports and recommendations he produced (Petition of Appeal, para. 4).

5. On or about March 3, 1993, Dr. Kaska received a confirming memoranda from Supervisor Trento of a conversation regarding the back log of outstanding referrals at the Robbins School. In said memorandum, Mr.

Trento expressed, "in order to expedite the increasing backlog, I am requesting that you prioritize psychological testing as your primary function, until such time as the backlog is significantly reduced. This does not mean to infer that your other duties are to be curtailed." (See J-1)

6. On or about early April, 1993, in response to request by Supervisor Trento, Dr. Kaska reported that he had tested and submitted completed typed reports of thirteen (13) students from the period September 14, 1992 through March 31, 1993. (See J-2 - p. 2)

7. In or around mid April, 1993, Supervisor Trento acknowledged receipt of J-2-p. 2 identified above, and stated ". . . from September 1992 - March 31, 1993, there was approximately 26 school weeks excluding time off. At your own suggested rate of one case per week, your testing productivity would have increased 100% if you had at least followed your own guidelines . . . I find your performance in testing of students and bringing cases to closure totally unacceptable." (J-2 p. 1)

8. On or about April 26, 1993 at a conference held by and in Supervisor Trento's office, the petitioner was informed of the recommendation that his salary increment be withheld for the school year 1993-94 because of his unsatisfactory performance as it related to testing of students. Supervisor Trento in said evaluation stated, "Dr. Kaska, by his own admission, only tested thirteen (13) students. The case load at Robbins School is in non-compliance due to his failure to test students, as required by law, and bring cases to closure. His failure to perform his duties has denied students their rights to an appropriate educational program." (J-3).

9. The Board of Education upon recommendation by Supervisor Trento withheld the petitioner's increment for the 1992-93 school year.

Other aspects of Dr. Kaska's and Board representatives conduct during the 1992-93 school year was disputed by the parties and the subject of the extensive testimony and documentary evidence presented.

TESTAMENTARY AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Petitioner, in addition to testifying in his own behalf, presented Joseph A. Minotti, Principal of the Robeson School and Geri Oliva, Learning Consultant member of his child study team during the school year 1992-93, to support his burden of production and persuasion. To support its position that it withheld petitioner's increments in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, the Board presented Frederick Prunetti, principal of the Board's Robbins Elementary School and Alexander Trento, Supervisor of the Board's Child Study Program during the period January through July 1993. Each of the above witnesses testified credibly as to the facts within their knowledge.

Based upon review of the testimony and documentary evidence entered and upon the reflection of the demeanor of the witnesses, on the basis of the preponderance of the credible evidence within the record, I FIND the following facts relevant to the determination of this dispute.

1. During the school year 1992-93, petitioner, a psychologist, was a member of one of the Board's fourteen (14) Child Study Teams. His team was assigned to two (2) elementary schools, Robbins and Robeson.

2. During the fall, 1992, Frederick J. Prunetti, principal of the Robbins Elementary School, advised Doctor Kaska's child study team, and Dr. Kaska particularly, that he was dissatisfied with the teams handling of student referrals and their inability to complete the evaluations in a timely manner.

3. Based on these communications, Dr. Kaska was aware of Mr. Prunetti's dissatisfaction with his work performance. Petitioner acknowledged that Prunetti expressed, "I am going to have to talk to your supervisor about it." (1T33).

4. During the period September 1992 until January 4, 1992, Bruce Gunther, another psychologist member of a Child Study Team, became acting supervisor for the child study program. In or around January, 1993, Alexander A. Trento was hired by the Board to supervise the districts child study teams as supervisor of the child study program.

5. Joseph A. Minotti, was the principal of the Paul Robeson School for the school year 1992-93. He was and remains pleased with the performance of Dr. Kaska particularly in regard to his case management duties.

6. In or around January, 1993, Supervisor Trento met with each of his child study teams. During their meeting, Dr. Kaska and his team members were advised that outstanding evaluations well beyond the 90 day period of N.J.S.A. 6:28-2.1 was unacceptable to Supervisor Trento. Supervisor Trento expressed that two completed psychological evaluations per week would be acceptable performance. Dr. Kaska indicated he could do no more than one evaluation per week due to his other case management duties.

7. On or about March 3, 1993, Supervisor Trento memorialized his communication with Dr. Kaska, J-1. While Supervisor Trento requested Dr. Kaska to prioritize his psychological testing, he did not give Dr. Kaska specific recommendations or assistance to accomplish this.

8. Geri Oliva, the learning consultant member of Dr. Kaska's child study team was a new employee during the school year 1992-93. Principal Prunetti, in the fall of 1992, informed Ms. Oliva that her work performance

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the action of the Trenton Board of Education in withholding his employment adjustments for the 1992-93 school year was arbitrary, capricious, or based on improper motive. See i.e. Philip v. Bd. of Educ. of North Hunterdon Regional High School District, 1987 S.L.D. 139; Kline v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Rossell Park, 1985 S.L.D. 193. Thus, the petition of appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions submitted by petitioner were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, having been filed on September 19, 1994 in response to an initial decision mailed on August 30, 1994. Therefore, these and the Board's reply thereto are not herein considered.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner has not met his burden of establishing by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the action of the Board in withholding his employment and adjustment increments for the 1993-94 school year was arbitrary, capricious or based on improper motive.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and hereby dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful candidate for provisional certification as a principal, challenged State Board of Examiners decision denying his application.

ALJ found that petitioner's attendance at and successful completion of courses, together with his work experience, was insufficient to meet the specific requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1 that a candidate for provisional certificate as a principal hold a master's degree or an equivalent degree from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management. ALJ concluded State Board of Examiners decision denying the certificate was not arbitrary or capricious and was a reasoned exercise of the Board's discretionary authority. ALJ affirmed the denial and dismissed the petition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the decision of the State Board of Examiners denying his application for a provisional certificate as a principal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5 (Exhibit J-1). Petitioner appealed the denial by filing a petition on July 11, 1994, and respondent filed an answer on August 11, 1994. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 5, 1994, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on August 16, 1994, and a telephone conference was held on August 24, 1994. An expedited hearing was scheduled for August 29, 1994, and on that date a hearing was held and concluded and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The essential facts in this matter are not disputed.

Petitioner testified that the Piscataway Board of Education advertised for applicants for the position of principal of Piscataway High School, Piscataway Township Schools. Petitioner, who was residing in Tennessee and had just completed the requirements for a doctoral degree, applied for the position and went through the interview process. He indicated he understood that to be eligible for the position he would be required to obtain a provisional certification as a principal.

Margaret L. Smith, Planning Associate with the Department of Education testified that among her duties are the providing of staff support for the Board of Examiners. Ms. Smith indicated that her role is to assist applicants for certification by advising them of the requirements for certification, reviewing submissions, suggesting clarification or supplementation of submissions where the initial submissions are clearly deficient, and submitting complete packages of documents to the members of the State Board of Examiners. Ms. Smith made it clear that she makes no judgment as to the sufficiency of an application nor as to whether an application should be approved or denied.

Ms. Smith testified that the State Board of Examiners refused to issue a provisional principal certificate to petitioner because petitioner does not hold a master's degree or its equivalent in the specified fields of leadership or management as required by the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5. She also indicated that in three prior similar matters, the Board likewise denied a provisional principal certificate to applicants lacking a master's degree or its equivalent.

Ms. Smith explained that the State Board of Examiners has accepted courses of study such as that leading to a New York State certificate as the equivalent of the master's degree required by N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5.

On cross-examination, Ms. Smith indicated that the State Board of Examiners requires an applicant to attend an integrated, coherent program as a requirement for complying with the regulation's requirement for a master's degree or its equivalent. She acknowledged that the petitioner in this matter had successfully taken various courses throughout his academic career and that he presented the courses that he took and correlated them to courses offered at Rutgers University leading to the required master's degree. She also acknowledged that petitioner provided letters and other documents which addressed petitioner's administrative experience. She acknowledged that petitioner fulfilled all other requirements but indicated that he failed to fulfill the requirement for attendance at an integrated, coherent program leading to a master's degree or its equivalent in the specified fields.

Petitioner testified and identified the package of documents (Exhibit J-2A through Q) which he submitted to the State Board of Examiners in support of his application for a provisional principal certification. He also identified the written instructions for credentials review given to him by respondent (Exhibit P-1).

Petitioner testified as to his work experience which is set forth in his resumé (Exhibit J-2K) as well as the various courses he has taken leading to the degrees which he does hold (Exhibit J-2P). He testified that he went to Rutgers University School of Educational Leadership and obtained a listing of course requirements leading to the required master's degreee (Exhibit J-2L). He then reviewed his courses and compared them to the courses offered by Rutgers. He took each course in the Rutgers Catalogue (Exhibit J-2M) and compared them to the courses that he successfully completed at the University of Tennessee (Exhibit J-2N) and at Austin Peay University (Exhibit J-2O). He submitted this documentation to the Board together with his written comparison (Exhibit J-2Q) showing that the courses taken by him were equivalent to courses which would have been taken leading to the required master's degree at Rutgers University.

Petitioner testified that when he appeared before the Board of Examiners they did not question him concerning course equivalency, his resumé, his publications or his doctoral dissertation.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Any teaching-staff member, tenured or otherwise, employed in the public schools must be the holder of a valid certificate to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction or educational guidance of pupils in the public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. Certificates are issued by the State Board of Examiners pursuant to rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. A comprehensive set of regulations found at N.J.A.C. 6:11-1.1 to -11.20 describes the various certificates which may be issued, sets forth the requirements for obtaining a particular certificate, designates which certificates are required for which positions, prescribes requirements for teacher education programs and otherwise fully regulates the issuance of certificates.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(b) provides that a principal endorsement may be issued on a New Jersey administrative and supervisory certificate. A principal endorsement is required for the positions of principal or vice principal, among others.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1 provides:

> (a) Each candidate for the provisional certificate as a principal shall:
>
> 1. Hold a master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management, such as educational administration, public administration, business administration, leadership or management science. Study shall be completed, either within the master's program or in addition to it, in each of the following topics which represent those areas of management that are directly related to education and the principalship. Degree programs may provide study in other areas at the discretion of the sponsoring institution and its faculties;
>
> i. Leadership and human resource management;
>
> ii. Communications;

iii. Quantitative decision-making; and
iv. Finance and law.

The crucial issue to be decided in this matter is the meaning of the first sentence found at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1. Petitioner argues that he is entitled to a provisional certificate as a principal because his work experience together with the formal courses he has taken in his academic career leading to a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science and History, a Master's Degree in Curriculum and Instruction, Social Science Education and his Doctor of Education Degree in Foundations, Curriculum and Instruction are the equivalent of a master's degree. On the other hand, the position of respondent is that successful completion of an integrated, coherent program in the areas specified by the regulation is required in order for an applicant to meet the requirement of the equivalent of a master's degree entitling the applicant to a provisional certificate as a principal.

Statutes and regulations promulgated pursuant to such statutes must be read so as to implement the Legislative intent to the extent permitted by the statute. Foreign Auto Prep. Service v. New Jersey Economic Development Authority, 201 N.J. Super. 428, 433 (App. Div. 1985). Administrative regulations which are duly promulgated under properly delegated authority have the force and effect of law. Cox v. Bon Transportation, Inc., 53 N.J. 186 (1969); State v. Van Riper v. Atlantic City Elec. Co., 23 N.J. 259, 270 (1957).

Administrative regulations are subject to the same rules of construction as a statute. State, Dept. of Health v. Tegnazian, 205 N.J. Super. 160, 175 (App. Div. 1985). In construing a statute or regulation, one generally looks first to its plain language, and if it is clear and unambiguous, one need not look beyond its terms to determine the Legislature's intent. State v. Sutton, 132 N.J. 471, 479 (1993). In this case, a candidate for the provisional certificate as a principal is required to hold a master's degree from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management, such as educational administration, public administration, business administration, leadership or management science. An alternative provided by the regulation is that the candidate for the provisional certificate as a principal may hold the equivalent of a master's degree from an accredited institution in these same recognized fields of leadership or management. The language of this sentence clearly requires that an applicant hold a master's degree or some equivalent degree from an accredited institution. In this regard, the decision of the State Board of Examiners indicates "the regulations are specific with respect to the requirement of a degree program in a particular field." The State Board of Examiner's decision goes on to state:

> The Board finds that the lack of a master's or higher degree in one of the recognized fields of leadership or management requires that the certificate sought not be issued.

Both of the parties to this proceeding took the position that in order for the decision of the State Board of Examiners to be overturned it must be shown to be arbitrary or capricious, and not a reasoned exercise of its discretionary authority, citing Babicz v. State Board of Examiners, 1978 S.L.D. 937, 940 aff'd State Board, 1979 S.L.D. 816; Marshello v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 378, 381.

In this matter, I FIND that based upon the clear language of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.5(a)1, it is required that a candidate for the provisional certificate as a principal is required to hold a master's degree or an equivalent degree from an accredited institution in one of the recognized fields of leadership or of management such as educational administration, public administration, business administration, leadership or management science. I FIND that work experience coupled with attendance and successful completion of courses at an accredited institutions which do not lead to a master's degree or its equivalent from an accredited institution in one of the specified fields is not sufficient to comply with this requirement. I FIND that petitioner's attendance at and successful completion of courses together with his work experience, is insufficient to meet this specific requirement of the regulation. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the decision of the State Board of Examiners dated April 8, 1994, denying the issuance of a provisional principal certificate to petitioner is not arbitrary or capricious and is a reasoned exercise of the Board's discretionary authority. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the actions of respondent denying petitioner the provisional principal certificate should be AFFIRMED and that petitioner's appeal should be DISMISSED.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's denial of petitioner's request for a provisional principal certificate is hereby AFFIRMED and petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent appealed expulsion of her child, D.B., from school for allegedly brandishing a weapon and attempting to assault another high school student.

In light of testimony and documentary evidence, the ALJ found the Board was justified in expelling D.B. under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2 and peitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's action was improper. (Kopera)

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4975-94
AGENCY DKT. NO. 84-4/94

L. B., PARENT OF D. B.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,
Respondent.

Ashton E. Thomas, Esq., for petitioner

Vito A. Gagliardi, Jr., Esq., for respondent
(Riker, Danzig, Scherer, Hyland & Perretti, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 12, 1994 Decided: September 8, 1994

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

L. B., parent of D. B., a student at Elizabeth High School, appealed to the Commissioner of the Department of Education after the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, resolved on April 13, 1994, to expel D. B. for brandishing a weapon and attempting to assault another high school student on March 18, 1994, contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. Her petition on his behalf was filed in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education on April 21, 1994. The Board filed its answer there on May 16, 1994 contending that D. B.'s assaultive conduct was subject of a duly convened expulsion hearing on sworn testimony and that action taken was under the circumstances reasonable and proper. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on May 19, 1994 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The petition sought judgment requiring reinstatement.

On notice, the matter came on for hearing June 29 and 30, 1994, and was concluded. It was stipulated procedural facts of the explusion process were not in dispute. Thus, there is no Tibbs issue: i.e., petitioner did not allege any constitutional due process insufficiency or irregularity under the doctrine of Tibbs v. Board of Ed., Franklin Township, 59 N.J. 506 (1971), affirming 114 N.J. Super. 287 (App. Div. 1970); and see, most recently, decision of the Commissioner in R. W. v. Board of Ed., Hunterdon Central Regional High School, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 113, 114-5 (December 17, 1992) (suspension procedure reviewed and approved).

Remaining at issue, therefore, is whether petitioner shall have established by preponderance of credible evidence that action of the Board in expelling D. B. was improper, that is, patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motive. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Action of a local school board that lies within its discretionary powers may not be upset otherwise. Id. at 294. Power to suspend or expel is delineated in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, which provides:

> Any pupil who is guilty of continued and willful disobedience, or of open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person having authority over him, . . . or who shall cut, deface or otherwise injury any school property, shall be liable to punishment and to suspension or expulsion from school.
>
> Conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil guilty of such conduct shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:
>
> (a) Continued and willful disobedience;

(b) Open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person, having authority over him;

(c) Conduct of such character as to constitute a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other pupils;

(d) Physical assault upon another pupil;

(e) Taking, or attempting to take, personal property or money from another pupil, or from his presence, by means of force or fear;

(f) Willfully causing, or attempting to cause, substantial damage to school property;

(g) Participation in an unauthorized occupancy by any group of pupils or others of any part of any school or other building owned by any school district, and failure to leave such school or other facility promptly after having been directed to do so by the principal or other person then in charge of such building or facility;

(h) Incitement which is intended to and does result in authorized occupation by any group of pupils or others of any part of a school or other facility owned by any school district; . . .

According to L. B.'s petition for relief:

5. On or about March 18, 1994 [D. B.] completed his sixth period chemistry class. En route to seventh period class, he met two other students. The three walked together through the hallway of the high school. At approximately 1:30 p.m. a group of 15 students congregated around petitioner's son. There were no teachers or security guards present in the hallway at the time.

6. One of the students in the group drew a knife. [D. B.] retreated to his friends, one of whom passed him a knife.

7. A confrontation followed between [D. B.] and the group of students. No one was stabbed or cut with the knives. . . .

EVIDENCE AT HEARING

I

Called by petitioner, John Lopez, a graduating senior at Elizabeth High School and friend of D. B., testified that in early March, 1994 he and some friends were confronted by an angry group of other students who demanded to know who had stabbed another friend. Later, he said, rumors flew that friends in their group were seeking retaliation for the incident against him and D. B., all of which he said was mentioned to a security guard at the high school. Later, Lopez said, he borrowed a 12-inch-long knife from another friend and brought it, concealed, to the high school. On March 18, 1994 he was carrying it concealed when he was accosted by members of the same angry group he met with D. B. some days before. He thought they might start trouble, keeping knife concealed for fear they would hurt him. After a gym class, he met D. B. in a student lounge and recited what happened. In the hallway a commotion among the other students began. With D. B. in front, he took out the concealed knife and gave it to D. B. With between 15 to 20 other students, sparring broke out near classroom 112A. Someone threw a garbage can, he said. The window to the classroom door was broken, he said, but he did not know how. He did not see any more, nor, especially, what D. B. did. He identified a photograph of a machete knife (R-4) as the one he obtained from a friend and later gave to D. B. He admitted it measured more than 12 inches in length. He heard no glass breaking, he said. He and D. B. hid the knife and left the building at Lopez' suggestion.

In testimony, D. B. said he was a junior at the high school at time of the incident. Born July 2, 1976, he became 18 years old July 2, 1994. He is 5'9" tall and weighs 188 pounds; he played junior varsity and varsity football as middle linebacker and tailback. He said he was told by Lopez of an earlier stabbing incident in which an acquaintance had stabbed a Haitian student outside school. On March 15, 1994, he spoke to a football coach in the school cafeteria who told them he heard there were "problems with Haitians." He said the coach said to watch himself and take care. On March 18, 1994, D. B. and Lopez were walking down a school corridor toward another building for their next classes when they were surrounded by a "group of Haitians." One of the group had a knife and threatened assault. Lopez gave him the 12-inch machete (P-4) just before someone threw a garbage can at him. He thought it was the garbage can that broke the window in the classroom door. As he and Lopez left the school, D. B. said he threw the machete in a snow bank. Later they were arrested by police and still later released to Lopez' mother. He identified the knife he wielded as that in the photograph (R-4). He admitted, on cross-examination, he may have broken the classroom door window accidentally with the butt of the knife.

Called by petitioner, Jeffrey Townsend, an 18-year-old 11th grade high school student testified that on March 18, 1994 between 1 p.m. or 1:30 p.m. in the hallway between buildings Dwyer and Dunn in company of Lopez, "a group of Haitians" started arguing with D. B. Townsend said he could not understand what was said. About 10 to 13 Haitian students seemed to surround him; one pulled out a knife. As D. B. stepped back, he said, Lopez passed him the machete knife (P-4) and with it D. B. approached the Haitian group, some of whom began fighting with Lopez. Townsend said he did not get involved.

He admitted he and D. B. could have left the scene without confrontation by going back down the hall from which they came.

One of the Haitian group, he said, threw a garbage can and struck D. B. D. B. said "If you're going to kill me, kill me" and "I'm gonna kill you, kill you." Moments later teachers and security personnel arrived. There were sounds of "code 9, code 9." Townsend said he grabbed D. B. and told him to leave and make sure no one got hurt. D. B. had the knife in hand. They walked to the exit door and left. On cross-examination, he conceded D. B. had used the knife with blade up to break glass in the classroom door but denied D. B. was hacking at it. He identified the knife used as that in photo R-4.

II

Called by the Board, Domenico Servidio, employed by the district as a uniformed security guard, testified that about 1:35 p.m. on March 18, 1994 when he was in the administration office he heard a code 9 emergency call. Responding toward classroom 112A, he saw D. B. among a group of students, knife in hand, running after them with knife held blade up, shouting "I'm gonna kill you." By this time, he said, the hallway had become filled with security guards, teachers and numerous students. Servidio said he saw D. B. leave the building with his friend via exit 8 still holding the knife, blade up. Servidio said he was fearful D. B. was going to kill him or someone. He saw no other student with a knife. He saw Lopez, whom he knew, throw a garbage can against the classroom door, this before D. B. broke the glass in the door.

Called by the Board, Georgina Urbay, a bilingual teacher of history employed by the Board for 15 years, testified that on March 18, 1994 during a seventh period class she was in room 112, first floor, the classroom of teacher Mariceli Sanchez. Suddenly several students ran into the room excitedly. One locked the classroom door; she was screaming. Then someone slashed through the glass of the door but Urbay did not know who it was. One student had a small cut. Urbay said though she tried to calm the panic-stricken students, she herself was frightened by what she saw and heard. Though she did not know exactly what it was, she said the instrument used to break glass in the door was something long and metal. None of the students that ran into the classroom before then was carrying anything that looked like a knife or other instrument.

For the Board, Michael Beecher, employed as an ESL teacher at the high school, testified he was proceeding between buildings on change of sixth and seventh period classes toward his classroom, 113D, which adjoins classroom 112A.

Configuration of classrooms are shown on his sketches (R-6 and R-7). Two classroom doors, which open outward into the hallway, give access to classrooms 112A and 113. From those two classrooms, access by two interior doors open into classrooms 112 and 113A. Urbay's classroom is 112. Entering classroom 113D, Beecher put down his bags when some of his students ran to the open door. Running there himself, Beecher saw D. B. with a large knife in his hand just about two feet outside the door with a knife in hand (R-4) held up over his head. He yelled, "You're going to die, I'm going to kill you" into the classroom. By this time, he said, the door was closed. Beecher tried to keep his students from danger, pulling them back into the class. He held the classroom door shut: from inside it was not lockable, from outside it was locked. Through doorway glass Beecher could see D. B. hacking on the door and window frame of classroom 112A, breaking the wood with a chopping motion. D. B. struck the door about ten times. Several of Beecher's students were crying. Minutes later, he said, D. B. vanished; by this time there were almost 50 people outside, mostly students, teacher assistants and guards. Beecher saw Servidio and Effram Borgas, another teacher, across the hallway. He said D. B. used a lot of force, as much as he could muster. The scene raged for almost 15 seconds. Beecher said his mind was beset that his students would be injured.

For the Board, Mariceli Sanchez, a tenured history-bilingual teaching staff member, testified that on March 18, 1994 at 1:30 she was present with her class in room 112A just as class was about to begin. The door was still open. Urbay was present with her. She said she heard shouting and two of her students with their bookbags excitedly entered. One closed the door. Suddenly, someone from outside smashed the door window. She did not see who it was. She panicked, started screaming and ran to back of the classroom. The classroom door locked preventing access from outside. She and her students were badly frightened, she said.

For the Board, Herbert Hayward, employed by the Board as security guard for the past seven years and stationed at the high school, testified that a day or two before March 18, 1994 he talked casually with D. B. and Lopez when he questioned them in the hallway about where they belonged then. D. B. said he thought some students were following him, pointed to a group of "Haitian students" and said he would defend himself if need be. Hayward told the other students to pass by and go the other way or he would have them suspended. He regarded the incident as not serious and of no consequence because, he said, he knew the students involved.

For the Board, Charles Saunders, a 20-year Board employee as assistant disciplinarian at Dunn Sports Center of the high school, testified that on March 18, 1994 at about 1:30 p.m. he had cafeteria duty in Dwyer. He heard "code 9" on the loudspeaker; he carried a walkie-talkie. He saw a commotion in the hallway as two teacher assistants tried to control a crowd gathered outside a classroom. He saw D. B. standing with a big machete 25 to 30 feet away staring at the door to classroom 112A. The door was locked; the door window was broken. He identified the machete as R-4. Saunders felt compelled to pick up a waste basket to protect himself from D. B., to whom he said, "Put the knife down, come with me." At the time three teaching assistants were present. The crowd of students numbered 100; they appeared afraid, as was Saunders, who said he feared for his life. He next saw D. B. and Lopez whispering together. As they left, D. B. threw the machete into a snow bank outside.

Inside the class, Saunders found Urbay so shaken she could not speak. Her students appeared terrified, their eyes wide in fear.

For the Board, Jerry Moore, a teaching assistant and head football coach employed by the Board, testified he was assigned to Dunn Center as security personnel. He has known D. B. and knew him as a football player for two years on sophomore and junior varsity teams who was permitted to dress as a linebacker for the varsity. He did not play the sport in 1993.

On March 18, 1994 at 1:30 p.m. Moore was en route to his post in Dunn Center when he heard a "code 9," assistance needed. He turned to see a crowd of students running and screaming towards him as D. B. wielded a knife, described by Moore as 15-inches long, blade up, swung horizontally back and forth. Moore hollered for help and tried to keep students back. Other teaching assistants arrived at the scene. Moore saw D. B. use the blade of his knife to chop at the window frame and break the window of the classroom door.

For the Board, David Costello, a 24-year employee of the Board as teaching assistant and assistant athletic director at the high school, testified that on March 18, 1994 at 1:30 p.m. he was in the front of the gym at his post when he heard a code 9 signal. He ran to Dwyer in time to see a crowd of some 20 to 30 students coming toward him. They were frightened. They came from around the corner of classroom 112A. There was chaos, students yelling "Knife, machete." D. B. stood near the classroom door with machete in hand, blade up, hacking at the classroom door. Door window glass was on the floor. D. B. yelled "I'll kill you, I'll kill all of you." He was in a rage. Costello said in all his career that was the scariest moment he ever had because he thought people would be hurt before his eyes.

He saw no one threatening D. B., who did not appear to listen and was unapproachable.

For the Board, Fred Cheski, employed as house director of Dwyer for 17 years, overseer of total operations of the House, who is tenured as administrator, testified that on March 18, 1994 at 1:30 p.m. he was in exit C of Dwyer when he heard a large noise and commotion, students screaming, rushing about, knocking people out of the way. He met other administrators and went to another room with Costello, where he was told of D. B.'s conduct. He later examined the classroom door and noted shattered glass, chop marks on the door frame, a desk and chairs turned over. He counted four chop marks on the door frame. One student was cut over the eye. Two others were crying and shaking. Teacher Urbay was so visibly shaken she had to be calmed by the school nurse.

Later investigation disclosed, he said, D. B. at time of the incident was supposed to be on the second floor of Halsey building, two floors and two buildings away. Thus, he said, D. B. was out of his way and could not normally have made a timely class change.

III

For the Board, Enid Golden, director of special education services for the past six years, holder of teaching certificates for teacher of the handicapped, supervisor and principal, school administrator and LDT/C, supervised reference of D. B.'s case to the child study team before Board hearing. According to the CST report (R-2), it was reported that on March 18, 1994 at approximately 1:30 p.m. D. B. tried to attack another student, J. S., by using a two-foot machete knife to break glass on teacher Sanchez' classroom door where [another student] was in class at the time. According to the CST (composed of an LDT/C, a social worker and a psychologist), the recommendation was:

> . . . [D. B.] does not meet eligibility criteria for special education and/or related services. Any academic weaknesses can be addressed in regular education.

In Golden's professional opinion, the CST assessment complied with N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4 as an "initial evaluation" and N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(g).

Finally, for the Board, its administrative assistant to the superintendent/director of personnel, Thomas Ficarra, who has been with the district 19 years and two years in his present position, testified that a report of the March 18, 1994 incident was given to him by the school principal. He ordered an investigation and later scheduled a meeting preliminary to an administrative hearing, which on April 6, 1994 faculty members, D. B., his mother and his attorney, and Jeffrey Townsend and his mother, together with Board attorney, attended. Afterward, Ficarra said, he recommended to the superintendent a report to the Board to conduct formal expulsion proceedings. At that hearing on April 13, 1994, he said, ten witnesses were sworn, examined and cross-examined. D. B.

presented his case. Afterward, the superintendent with Ficarra's concurrence recommended to the Board D. B.'s formal expulsion. Basis for recommendation, he said, was evidence of an incident caused by D. B. with total chaos, D. B.'s violent actions with a machete, nearly 100 people endangered. His opinion was that that level of violence simply could not be tolerated in the schools.

When the Board acted, he noted, it had available both the CST report (R-2) and D. B.'s school disciplinary record (R-8).

DISCUSSION

D. B. argued principally that his actions were lawful and necessary in defense of himself and that the Board's expulsion was therefore arbitrary and unlawful. Key to D. B.'s theory of the case is in the petition: confrontation between him and "a group of students" followed when one of the students in the group drew a knife and D. B. retreated to his friends, one of whom passed him a knife. In the confrontation that followed, he said, "no one was stabbed or cut . . ." Petition at paragraphs 6, 7. But the theory is flawed.

Testimony at hearing readily showed a much different scenario on March 18, 1994. D. B.'s assaultive conduct upon students, teachers and administrators in the hallway outside classroom 112 was no last ditch effort to protect himself from harm. Not only had D. B. armed himself with a knife long before he and a friend arrived at the classroom but by all measure he could have avoided confrontation entirely by the simple expedient of retreat, that is, by leaving the scene and going elsewhere. Confrontation was of his own making. The expulsion statute in school law, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, 2.1, is expressly wedded in pari materia with New Jersey's Code of Criminal Justice, which prohibits both simple and aggravated forms of assault as attempts purposely, knowingly or recklessly to cause bodily harm to another, particularly with a deadly weapon. Cf., N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 and N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1. To be guilty of either, depending upon the facts, one need inflict no actual bodily injury. More importantly, however, principles of justification in the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice carefully limit use of force for self-protection. Though justifiable when the actor reasonably believes it is immediately necessary for self-protection against use of unlawful force by another, deadly force is never justifiable if the actor knows he can avoid necessity of using it with complete safety by retreating or by complying with demand he abstain from any action that he has no duty to take. N.J.S.A. 2C:3-4b(2)(b). Violent force in defense of self has never been allowed under New Jersey law when the situation creating necessity for use of the force is itself created by the actor. See, e.g., State v. Agnesi, 92 N.J.L. 53, 56-7 (1918); affirmed, 92 N.J.L. 638 (E. and A. 1919). Evidence in the cause quite simply failed to substantiate D. B.'s claim he acted only to defend himself. Not only was that not so, but evidence was also clear his intention long before confrontation was upon a violence for which he carefully armed himself first. To that extent he was provocateur not victim.

D. B.'s claim is flawed even more fundamentally for another reason. Devoid of candor or contrition, his testimony like that of witnesses called to support him was not worthy of credence. It was to his obvious advantage to establish that others threatened him with a knife first. No knife was found nor was testimony of its existence convincing. His credibility was directly impeached by testimony of Board eyewitnesses.

Action of a local school board that lies within discretionary powers, like that under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). The burden is cast on D. B. as petitioner, therefore, to demonstrate the Elizabeth Board's decision to expel him was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. K. L. v. Board of Ed. of Matawan/Aberdeen High School District, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, 76 (October 24, 1991); M. G. v. Board of Ed. West Deptford, Glouster County, 1983 S.L.D. 359, 354.

I FIND from all the evidence the Board was fully justified in expelling D. B. for violent assaultive unprovoked behavior in the high school on March 18, 1994, under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. The burden of proof has not been sustained. D. B. possessed and brandished a deadly machete knife in the hall of the high school with which he had armed himself beforehand in order indiscriminately to threaten other students, teachers and administrators, who were put in fear for their lives. The confrontation was of his own creation. It was not a response to any palpable threat by others. On the evidence any threat was not real but imagined for the self-serving purpose of avoiding the consequence of his acts, the last of which was to discard the incriminating weapon in a snow bank. His unprovoked behavior was not only assaultive but violent and disobedient, in open defiance of authority and destructive of school property. The tragedy is his dangerous rampage was avoidable.

The Board properly afforded D. B. due process of law at expulsion hearing and acted only then after having considered recommendation of the child study team that found no evidence he was educationally handicapped or, presumably, otherwise unable intelligently to conduct himself.

D. B. is no victim; he is a provocateur whose violent behavior cannot be tolerated in public schools. Action of the Elizabeth Board of Education in expelling him for egregious assaultive behavior in the high school was reasonable and proper. Cf., Kobb v. Bd. of Ed. Township of Ocean, 1980 S.L.D. 262-3 (welfare and safety of other pupils paramount).

CONCLUSION

For foregoing reasons, based on testimony and documentary evidence adduced, as well as memoranda of law by the parties, I CONCLUDE action of the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, in expelling D. B. for assaultive conduct violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2 should be and is hereby AFFIRMED. The petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions submitted by petitioner were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 inasmuch as the initial decision was mailed to the parties on September 8, 1994, and petitioner's exceptions were filed with the Commissioner on September 22, 1994. Therefore, neither the exceptions nor the reply thereto was considered.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board's decision to expel D.B. for his assaultive conduct was neither arbitrary and capricious nor unreasonable. The Commissioner finds and concludes that the record fully justifies the Board's use of its discretionary powers under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2 and petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's action was improper. Kopera, supra Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the within Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

WHEREAS, the Respondent's Petition of Appeal further contested Respondent's disallowance of the charges for Fire Security Technologies, Inc., Kirsch's Office Equipment and ABC School Supply; and

WHEREAS, the matter was scheduled for a hearing before the Office Administrative Law on June 9, 1994; and

WHEREAS, the parties exchanged documents and other discovery prior to the June 9, 1994 hearing date; and

WHEREAS, the Petitioner and Respondent have settled all issues between the parties arising from the April 26, 1993 Report of Examination of the Discretionary Aid Grant prior to the June 9, 1994 hearing date;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED between the Petitioner, the Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, Monmouth County and Respondent, Division of Financial Services, New Jersey State Department of Education, as follows:

1. Respondent disallowed the following payroll charges:

A. Remedial/Library Aides Program

Gannon, A.	$8,306.00
Moore, L.	8,860.00
Ruffin, J.	11,790.00
Tierney, E.	10,258.00
	$39,214.00

B. Pre-School Program (Teacher Aide)

Cullinane, R.	14,344.80
TOTAL COSTS	$53,558.80

Had these five positions been filled by educational aides rehired by Petitioner on August 28, 1991, the payroll charges would have been as follows:

Gargan, L.	$7,682.00
Snider, S.	7,939.00
Roskowski, L.	8,737.00
Weaver, J.	10,907.00
Collins, N.	8,196.00
TOTAL COSTS	$43,461.00

The difference in payroll charges is thus:

	$53,558.80
	43,461,00
	$10,097.80 Difference

The Respondent will allow educational aide payroll charges against the Discretionary Aid Grant in the amount of $43,461.00. The Respondent will disallow educational aide payroll charges in the amount of $10,097.80 which will be refunded to Respondent by Petitioner.

2. The Respondent disallowed the following fringe benefits charges:

A. Remedial/Library Aides

Gannon, A.	$5,518.00
Moore, L.	5,518.00
Ruffin, J.	5,518.00
Tierney, E.	5,518.00
	$22,072.00

B. Teacher Aide, Pre-School

Cullinane, B.	5,518.00
TOTAL	$27,590.00

Had these five positions been filled by educational aides rehired by the Petitioner on August 28, 1991, the fringe benefit charges would have been the same

The Respondent will allow educational aide fringe benefit charges against the Discretionary Aid Grant in the amount of $27,590.00.

3. The allowance by Respondent of Educational Aide payroll charges of $43,461.00 and fringe benefit charges of $27,590.00 is conditioned upon Petitioner submitting and, the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools approving, an amended application for the Quality Education Acct Discretionary State Aid Grant setting forth Petitioner's proposal to rehire eleven (11) educational aides, and further proposing that five (5) of the educational aide positions funded by the Grant will be staffed by current employees who are neither newly hired or rehired but transferred from other educational aide positions in the District.

4. The Respondent will disallow the following charges against the Grant for furniture and equipment:

Kirsch's Office Equipment	$3,413.00
ABC School Supply	3,264.53
Total	$6,677.53

5. The Respondent will disallow the following charge against the Grant associated with the Ridge Avenue ceiling project:

Fire Security Technologies, Inc. $3,279.30

6. The Respondent disallowed the following charges against the Grant for milk purchases:

Purchase Order	Amount
926297	$211.20
926313	364.80

926322	288.00
926344	384.00
926452	364.80
926453	103.85
926454	359.10
926585	442.40
TOTAL	$2,518.15

The Petitioner did not contest the disallowance of this charge in Petitioner's Petition of Appeal. Petitioner will refund $2,518.15 in milk purchase charges to the Respondent.

7. A fully executed copy of this Stipulation of Settlement will be filed w the Office of Administrative Law for inclusion in an Initial Decision which will be submitted to the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner claimed tenure rights as a clerical worker and alleged Board violated those rights when it did not reemploy him for the 1993-94 school year.

Having considered testimony of witnesses and weight of evidence, the ALJ found that petitioner, whose duties included responsibility for all aspects of out-of-district transportation contracts and jointure agreements for special needs students, was not a clerical employee within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b) for the requisite period of time to obtain tenure. Moreover, ALJ found that the reduction in force was conducted properly and was a valid reduction for reasons of economy. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Record Closed: June 8, 1994 Decided: July 20, 1994

BEFORE CAROL F. LASKIN, ALJ, T/A:

Robert L. Effenberger, a fifteen year employee of Toms River Regional Board of Education (herein Board or respondent), filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education in May, 1993, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, appealing the Board's decision not to reemploy him for the 1993-94 school year. After the Board filed a timely answer denying the substantive allegations of the petition, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:15F-1 to -13.

On October 1, 1993, a prehearing telephone conference was conducted wherein the issues for determination was delineated as follows:

> A. Was petitioner's duties throughout his term of service those of a clerical position within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2?
>
> B. Was petitioner on the date of termination a tenured clerical employee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2?
>
> C. Was petitioner's termination pursuant to a valid reduction in force?
>
> D. Did respondent terminate petitioner in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10?
> E. What remedy, if any, is appropriate?

A plenary hearing was conducted in this matter on January 19 and 21, 1994, in Pine Beach, New Jersey and on February 2 and 3, 1994, at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey. Eight witnesses were presented; four for the petitioner-four for respondent. Petitioner introduced sixteen exhibits, respondent introduced two and two exhibits were jointly introduced. After an extensive briefing schedule which was extended due to the unfortunate illness of petitioner's counsel, the record was closed on June 8, 1994.

FINDINGS OF FACT

A review of the pleadings, the petition of appeal and answer, reveals the following undisputed facts:

1. Robert L. Effenberger was employed by the Toms River Regional Board of Education in or about spring 1978, in the position of Purchasing Technical Assistant.

2. In this position, Mr. Effenberger had responsibilities for procurement of goods and services for the entire school district. His specific areas of responsibility included, among other things, transportation contracts for special education and jointure transportation contracts.

All other aspects of Mr. Effenberger's duties, the particulars of his job descriptions and assignments, and the Board's conduct during the 1992-93 reduction in force was disputed by the parties and the subject of the extensive testimony and documentary evidence presented.

Petitioner, Robert Effenberger testified both on his direct case and on rebuttal. To support his position that during the course of his employment he obtained tenure as a clerical employee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and that the Board violated his tenure rights by negligently failing to perceive those rights during the 1992-93 elimination of positions and by failing and refusing to place him in the position of Administrative Assistant to the Payroll Supervisor or Data Processing Programmer, petitioner presented numerous school officials. Robert Ciliento, Assistant Superintendent and Board Secretary; Board Superintendent Michael Ritacco; and John Garrabrant, Assistant Superintendent for Personnel were called. In its defense, the Board presented the testimony of Director of Transportation Gus Kakavas; Patricia Smith, Administrative Assistant to the Personnel Supervisor; Constance Collina, Special Education Secretary to the Transportation Department and Heike Graef, Buyer.

Upon review of the testimony and documentary evidence entered and upon reflection of the demeanor of the witnesses, on the basis of the preponderance of the credible evidence within the record, I FIND the following facts relevant to the determination of this dispute.

1. Petitioner, Robert Effenberger, was initially employed by respondent on May 15, 1978, in the position of Technical Assistant assigned to the Purchasing Department.

2. At the time of his employment, Mr. Effenberger had earned an Associate Degree from Ocean County College, a Bachelor of Science in Commerce with a major in Accounting from Rider College and in February 1977, a Masters of Business Administration from Rider College (P-4).

3. At the time of petitioner's employment, Mr. William Ashman was the Director of Purchasing. The centralized Purchasing Department serviced the entire district--all fifteen public schools, and administration; said district in 1992-93 having a student population in the neighborhood of 17,000 pupils. From the period of 1978 until the retirement of Mr. Ashman in 1986, petitioner was responsible for conducting bidding procedures in accordance with the statutory requirements of Title 18A. While Mr. Ashman performed purchasing for central administration and capital improvements, Mr. Effenberger was responsible for purchasing aspects of all support departments including custodial, transportation, maintenance, security, and cafeteria (with the exception of food).

4. As Director of Purchasing, Mr. Ashman would receive all requests for requisitions and would forward same to Mr. Effenberger if they involved support services. If the requisition request was for a product costing below the statutory figure necessitating formal bidding, Mr. Effenberger had the discretion to choose and communicate with three vendors to seek the lowest of three bids for requisition of the product.

5. During the period of 1978 to 1986, Mr. Effenberger, as the Technical Assistant in the Purchasing Department, had discretion to communicate with the end user of the requested product to rewrite specifications which, in Mr. Effenberger's judgment, would result in obtaining the requested product in conformance with bidding procedures. During the same period of time, Mr. Effenberger had discretion to substitute a requested product for one that was less expensive, unless instructed otherwise on the requested requisition form.

6. During the period of 1978 to 1986, with respect to duties involving transportation, Mr. Effenberger was responsible for all out-of-district placement vendor contracts for special needs students. As such, the petitioner interfaced with the Child Study Team, developed routes, put together the bid packages, and in many instances negotiated a jointure agreement with other school districts to collectively transport handicapped students at a lower cost. The jointure documents necessitated approval by the respective Boards of Education.

7. During the period 1978 until 1986, Heike Graef, was employed by the Board as an Administrative Assistant in the Purchasing Department. Ms. Graef, acted as the Secretary to the Director and was also responsible for performing secretarial functions for Mr. Effenberger. These functions included, inter alia, typing all of his bid packages, filing, typing other correspondence and keeping track of petitioner's paperwork.

8. During the period 1978 to 1986, Mr. Ashman as Director of Purchasing signed off on all the requisition forms produced by Mr. Effenberger before submission to his supervisor. During the period 1978 to 1986, other clerical employees were added to the Department of Purchasing, Mrs. Nichols, Bernadette Lewis, and Diane Gabriel.

9. In 1986 at the retirement of Mr. Ashman, petitioner applied for but was not appointed Director. Rather, Mr. Charles Breslow was appointed Director of Purchasing, Mr. Rich Herber was transferred from the Transportation Department to the Purchasing Department in the job title of Buyer and Mrs. Heike Graef was promoted into the position of Buyer.

10. Due to a personality conflict between the petitioner and his new Director Charles Breslow, in around August 1987, the petitioner was transferred to the Transportation Department under the direction of it's Director, Gus Kakavas. The Board did not act on this transfer or change the petitioner's title. In the Department of Transportation, Mr. Effenberger's duties consisted of responsibilities for telephone, computer data input, and assisting the Transportation Supervisor of Special Education, Mr. Joseph Placenti, in conducting bus safety drills.

11. In January 1988, the petitioner was once again transferred. This time to the Maintenance Department under a Supervisor, Steven Pappalardo. Again, the Board failed to act on this transfer. Again, petitioner's duties were limited. The petitioner was informed by Board personnel that the transfers were not considered demotions but were rather lateral placements, without a loss in salary, in order to maintain his employment.

12. In around September, 1988, the petitioner was once again assigned to work under the direction of Gus Kakavas and within the Department of Transportation. Again, the Board did not act on this transfer. Prior to reassignment in the Department of Transportation, Director Kavakas spoke with petitioner to develop a position which would utilize petitioner's expertise and assist the Department of Transportation. From September 1988 until the reduction in force in June of 1993, petitioner's duties and responsibilities expanded within the Department of Transportation.

13. Initially, petitioner was assigned the responsibility for all aspects of out-of-district transportation contracts and jointure agreements for special needs students-the same duties he held within the Department of Purchasing. Thereafter, his duties expanded to include assisting Joseph Placenti-Transportation Supervisor of Special Education, who was increasingly absent from duties due to his utilization of compensation time, sick time and his impending retirement.

14. Director Kakavas annually prepared job descriptions for individuals within his department and under his supervision. These job descriptions were for internal use only and were not approved by nor in any way adopted by the Board. Thus, they were never placed within the Board's job description book (P-15).

15. For the 1992-93 school year, Mr. Effenberger's internal job description, P-1, evidences and his testimony affirmed that his duties included assignment for in-district as well as out-of-district special needs transportation. The Board utilized 30 to 40 minibuses daily for in-district special needs students whose routes changed frequently.

16. Commencing sometime during the 1988-1989 school year until this position was eliminated in June 30, 1993, petitioner was responsible for overseeing all aspects of the fuel island, including assuring that fuel was available for all the Board's vehicles-numbering in excess of 300.

17. During the period 1990 until June 30, 1993, petitioner was assigned back-up afternoon dispatcher responsible for the transport of approximately 10,000 students. While the job description indicates that Effenberger had second level responsibility "for hearing and resolving union and personnel problems" involving the bus transportation employees," the evidence does not support such a finding. Rather, I FIND that as part of his duties involving special transportation assignments, petitioner did interface with the bus drivers and did, in fact, direct them in emergent situations. Moreover, while petitioner had the authority to recommend to Director Kakavas that a bus driver be disciplined, he did not do so. He merely sent out memorandum to the bus drivers who conformed with his expectation and did not require discipline, see P-1 and J-2.

18. During the period September 1988 until his position was eliminated in June 1993, petitioner considered himself performing the function of Assistant Transportation Supervisor for Special Education Transportation, R-1.

19. At all times while working within the Department of Transportation during the period 1988 to June 1993, Mr. Effenberger was under the direction of Joseph Placenti, and ultimately under the direction of Gus Kakavas. During this same time period, Mr. Effenberger had the assistance of an employee assigned to perform his clerical work. During the period October 1991 until June 1993, Constance Collina, Special Education Secretary to the Transportation Department, in her terms "answered" to both Mr. Placenti and Mr. Effenberger. Ms. Collina clearly believed that Mr.

Effenberger was "her boss" that he had the authority to and did, in fact, direct her to type and perform other clerical functions. Ms. Collina's performance evaluations were prepared and conducted by Director Kakavas.

20. During the school year 1992-93, petitioner was employed within the Department of Transportation but was not so placed in the school board's annual reappointment report, P-6. In said report, petitioner was listed as an employee within the building Maintenance Department. See, P-6 pages 53, 66.

21. The Toms River Regional School Board of Education's Job Description Book does not contain a job description reflecting the duties and responsibilities assigned to the petitioner. Rather, a title of Transportation Department Technical Assistant appears without delineating any duties and responsibilities. See, P-15.

22. At all times material herein, petitioner was employed in a position governed by the collectively negotiated agreement between the Toms River Education Support System Supervisors an affiliate association (TRESSSAA, Unit B). Respondent's officials believed that employees in said bargaining unit were identified as middle-managers, non-clerical employees, and thus had no possibility of acquiring tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b), see J-1.

23. During the school year 1992-93, the Board determined, due to budget caps, that it must conduct a reduction in force. Prior to informing petitioner that he would be affected by the reduction in force, respondent concluded that he was not a tenured clerical employee within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and as such did no review of his opportunity for placement in any positions then occupied by non-tenured clerical employees, see P-13.

24. On about February 16, 1993, the Board resolved to eliminate the position of Maintenance Technical Assistant which it considered the position occupied by petitioner. See P-3. The reasons for the reduction in force are outlined on said Resolution, P-3.

25. On or about March 2, 1993, the Board, by letter informed Mr. Effenberger of its decision to eliminate his position of Maintenance Technical Assistant effective June 30, 1993, due to economic reasons, P-2.

26. Following the reduction in force, the Board created two new positions; Administrative Assistant in the Payroll Department and Data Processing Programmer. See, P-8. Patricia Smith was hired by the Board to fill the position of Administrative Assistant to the Payroll Supervisor. While she is a New Jersey State Licensed Certified Public Accountant, that requirement is not one of the position. Rather, the position advertised required a minimum of three years experience in school board payroll and accounting procedures. Ms. Smith as an experienced school board auditor had said requirements and was appointed to said position. Petitioner did not apply to said position nor was he considered for appointment to said position. Likewise, petitioner did not apply for nor was he considered for the Data Processing position.

27. In his quest for subsequent employment, petitioner submitted a letter application to the Board of Education of Lakewood in or around late July 1993, outlining his work history with respondent, R-1.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, the tenure statute for secretarial and clerical employees provides as follows:

> a. Any secretary, assistant secretary, school business administrator or business manager of a board of education of any school district who has or shall have devoted his full time to the duties of his office and has or shall have served therein for three consecutive calendar years, and
>
> b. Any person holding any secretarial or clerical position or employment under a Board of Education of any school district or under any officer thereof, after
>
> 1. The expiration of a period of employment of three consecutive calendar years in the district or such shorter period as may be fixed by the Board or officer employing him, or
>
> 2. Employment for three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year, an academic year being the period between the time when school opens in the district after the general summer vacation and the beginning of the next succeeding summer vacation, and
> c. Any person, who has acquired, or shall hereafter acquire, tenure in any secretarial or clerical office, position or employment under the board of Education of a school district and has been appointed district clerk or secretary, shall hereafter be appointed secretary of said district, as such secretary, shall hold his office position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.

It is the interpretation of this statute and its application to petitioner, Robert L. Effenberger, which is at issue herein. Both respondent and petitioner rely upon the same school law decisions to support their respective positions. It is only in the application of those decisions to their respective interpretations of the testimony and documentary evidence which differ.

It is now axiomatic that tenure is perceived a 'statutory right" which our Supreme Court cautions "should be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends." Spiwack v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982); Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. at 71 (1962) cert. den. 371 US 956(1962). Likewise, in the earlier decision of Barnes v. Board of Education of Jersey City, 85 N.J. Super. 42 (App. Div. 1964), the Appellate Division cautioned that in construing N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 "the widest range should be given to the applicability of the law since...tenure statutes are intended to secure efficient public service by protecting public employees in their employment." See, Barnes at 45.

However, in order to obtain this valuable right of tenure, an employee must meet the specific conditions articulated in the statute. See, Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. at 71 (1962) cert. den. 371 US 956(1962) cited in; Hansen v. Board of Education of the Maywood School District, 195 SLD 2106 (adopted by Comm'r of Ed., July 19, 1989). When the specific conditions are met, tenure is then acquired by operation of law irregardless of a school board's intent or the classification conferred by a collectively negotiated agreement. See, Hansen v. Board of Education of the Maywood School District, 195 SLD at 2111.

Both petitioner and respondent acknowledge that seniority rights do not accrue to tenured clerical employees. Rather, tenured clerical employees must only "be offered a position before non-tenured secretary/clerks." See, Sheridan v. Board of Education of Ridgefield Park, 1976 SLD 995 cited in Hansen at 2111. Likewise, both petitioner and respondent must recognize that the fact that petitioner was incorrectly identified as holding the position of Maintenance Technical Assistant and the fact that the Board never approved a job description outlining the actual duties performed by petitioner is irrelevant to the issues herein. It is an evaluation of petitioner's actual duties performed which are controlling in the decision as to whether or not he acquired rights as a tenured clerical employee during his employment with Board. Thus, it is "the duties performed, rather than the title of the position, [that] is "controlling, based on substance rather than form." Hansen at 2111 citing Beaute v. Board of Education of North Arlington, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 295-80 (July 28, 1981, adopted Comm'r of Ed., September 14, 1981), aff'd State Board of Education (February 3, 1982).

Petitioner relies upon the decision in Barnes v. Board of Education of Jersey City,supra. and upon Ramage v. Board of Education of the Borough of Franklin, Sussex County, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6732-82 (February 22, 1983) overruled Comm'r of Ed (April 13, 1983), for its position that N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 requires the inclusion of "all "Board office employees, from the lowest ranking secretary to the Board Secretary" (Post Hearing Brief at page 15). Respondent, relies on the decision in Barnes, supra. and upon Jacobson v. Board of Education of Union City, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10340-82 (August 1, 1983) aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (September 16, 1983) for its position that the statute should be construed narrowly finding only those employees recognized in the TRESSSAA Unit C collectively negotiated agreement holding the job titles of secretaries or clerks as those with potential rights to obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 17-2(b).

The undersigned is not persuaded by either argument. Rather, the undersigned concludes that the statutory protections and subsequent court interpretations require a fact specific evaluation of the duties of a tenure claimant irrespective of the job assignment, job titles, or negotiated placement in a collectively negotiated agreement.

Based upon this review I FIND:

1. During the period of May 1978 until 1986 when Director of Purchasing Bill Ashman retired, petitioner was not a clerical employee within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b). With the exception of some buying duties of Heike Graef, (who during this period acted as petitioner's secretary) Mr. Effenberger was one of only two individuals responsible for the procurement of all goods for the Toms River Regional School District, a very large district. As such he had purchasing responsibility for all support areas. In performing this function, he complied with statutory and regulatory bidding procedures. While Mr. Ashman as Department Director initially received the requisition forms, he pro forma assigned Mr. Effenberger those procurement needs within the support services area. Likewise, Director Ashman initialed all completed requisition forms prior to submitting same to his superiors. During this time period petitioner had the sole responsibility of negotiating and coordinating out-of-district transportation and jointure agreements servicing handicapped students. The fact that an employee has a supervisor and is assigned work does not make him a clerical employee within the meaning of the statute. Likewise, I FIND that most jobs, including that of the undersigned, contain some functions which could be classified as clerical. Performing nominal clerical duties does not make one a clerical employee within the meaning of the statute.

2. Between the period of 1986 through 1987, when petitioner was employed in the Purchasing Department under the direction of Charles J. Breslow performing the duties outlined above with the additional "Buyer" of Heike Graef and Richard W. Herbert, I FIND for the reasons articulated in paragraph one above, that petitioner was not a clerical employee within the meaning of the statute.

3. During the period of August 1987 until September 1988, wherein Mr. Effenberger was transferred first to the Department of Transportation and then to the Maintenance Department, I FIND that Mr. Effenberger was assigned very limited duties. I FIND that these duties which including answering the telephone, making copies, inputting data into a computer, and assisting in conducting student bus safety drills were primarily in the nature of clerical duties. As such, during the period August 1987 until September 1988, petitioner held a clerical position within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b).

4. For the period of September 1988 until the reduction in force of June 30, 1993, wherein petitioner was assigned to the Department of Transportation under Director Gus Kakavas, I FIND that petitioner was not a clerical employee within the meaning of the statute. During this time period, petitioner once again obtained responsibility for all out-of-district transportation contract and jointure agreements for special needs students. Moreover, while I FIND that petitioner was not a Supervisor defined by the Public Employees' Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.3, I do FIND that in his position within the Department of Transportation, petitioner had the authority and discretion, which he utilized on a daily basis, to direct and control the work of bus drivers operating pursuant to the negotiated bargaining agreement, J-2. Moreover, I FIND that petitioner's responsibilities, in the absence of Joseph Placenti, for all aspects in the in-district special needs transportation evidenced duties encompassing great discretion and independence. Furthermore, during this time period, petitioner was provided assistance from individuals assigned to perform clerical duties for him, such as Constance Collina.

5. I FIND that the position of Administrative Assistant to the Payroll Supervisor performed as testified to by Patricia Smith and as outlined in the affidavit of publication, P-8, is not a clerical position within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b). Rather, Ms. Smith in her capacity, is responsible for supervising payroll clerks and is ultimately responsible to the entire district for all payroll checks and reports to the requisite governmental agencies.

6. I FIND that the reduction in force conducted by the Board during the 1992-93 school year was conducted as a result of the reasons articulated in its resolution P-3 and was a valid reduction for reasons of economy.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE and FIND that petitioner, for only the period of August 1987 until September 1988, was employed in a clerical position within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b). As such, petitioner was not a clerical employee with the Board for the requisite period of time to obtain tenure. Zimmerman v. Board of Education of Newark, Supra. Consequently, while I am intrigued by petitioner's position that the respondent is liable for negligent failure to fully review the tenure rights of petitioner, finding that petitioner was not a tenured employee makes such a discussion futile. Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition is DISMISSED and that the Board's conduct in not reemploying petitioner for the school year 1993-94 is AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ROBERT L. EFFENBERGER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOMS RIVER REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. In addition to the exceptions properly submitted by his attorney, petitioner on September 23, 1994 attempted to submit a motion on his own behalf, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5, seeking to have additional factual information brought to the record. Such submission was apparently without the knowledge or consent of his attorney, nor was there any indication that it had been served on opposing counsel. By letter dated October 6, 1994, petitioner's submission was returned to him and he was advised by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.1, a party to administrative proceedings may choose one of several options with respect to his representation and that, because petitioner elected throughout the course of the instant proceedings to be represented by counsel, absent notification to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that he is no longer represented by an attorney, petitioner is unable to make submissions of any kind on his own behalf to the record of this matter.

Petitioner's exceptions argue, inter alia, that in reaching the determination that petitioner was not a "clerical employee" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) utilized an excessively narrow definition of this term. Petitioner asserts that the ALJ obviously interpreted "clerical employee" to denote an individual with minimal job duties and extremely limited responsibilities. He argues that such interpretation is contrary to applicable case law which requires that a tenure statute "should be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends." See Spiewak, supra, and Zimmerman, supra. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 6) See Barnes, supra, which "rejected the use of a narrow definition of clerical and noted that the 'widest range should be given to the applicability of the law.' Barnes at 45." (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 8) Petitioner further excepts to the ALJ's factual determinations with respect to the responsibilities and discretionary authority connected with his job duties and, in this regard, contends that the ALJ erroneously gave significant weight to unapproved job descriptions rather than petitioner's credible testimony as to the work he actually performed.

In response, the Board proffers that petitioner's suggestion that the ALJ found the term "clerical" restricted to limited duties is based upon a strained interpretation of case law and petitioner's desire for a more favorable conclusion. It asserts that the ALJ applied the proper standard of review required by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and subsequent case law in that she > conducted a fact sensitive evaluation of the actual job duties performed by the Petitioner.

> Upon conclusion of this evaluation the A.L.J. applied these factual conclusions to the statutory protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2(b), and the subsequent Court interpretations of same, and concluded Petitioner was not a "clerical employee." (Board's Exceptions, at p. 4)

The Board further asserts that in making her determinations with respect to credibility of witnesses and the weight of evidence, the ALJ had the opportunity to observe the witnesses and urges that the Commissioner should not overrule such determinations absent clear evidence to the contrary.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which includes transcripts of the four days of hearings before the ALJ, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner was not a clerical employee for the requisite period of time to obtain tenure and, therefore, the Board's conduct in not reemploying him for the 1993-94 school year was not improper. Further, notwithstanding petitioner's exception arguments to the contrary, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ's factual findings and conclusions in this matter are amply supported by the record. The Commissioner is also satisfied that the ALJ carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies and potential biases in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching her findings of fact and he finds no cause to question such credibility assessments.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly articulated therein.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Associations on behalf of teachers and custodians alleged health insurance provided by respondent Boards to its employees through self-insurance program violated the provisions of Title 18A, in particular but not limited to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 et seq. (group life, hospitalization, health and accident insurance)

Citing Irvington Appellate Division decision, ALJ found that the Boards lacked the authority to provide health coverage on a self-insured basis as such coverage violated N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. The ALJ also found that the Boards' contract of excess insurance coverage was authorized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, but could not serve to legitimize the underlying self-insurance.

Commissioner affirmed initial decision with modification, finding Irvington controlling on the question of self-insurance but clarifying that excess insurance policies may not be construed as health insurance within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Separate petitions were filed by petitioners Keyport Teachers Association, the Atlantic City Education Association and Atlantic City Head Custodians Association challenging the legality of action taken by the school boards of Atlantic City and Keyport in adopting the self-insured health benefits program. The Teachers Association petition was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 21, 1993 and the Custodians Association petition was transmitted on August 26, 1993. By consent of the parties, the within matters were consolidated on May 9, 1994 for the purpose of filing summary judgment motions. Summary judgment motions and responses were filed by June 7, 1994, at which time the record was closed. A decision was rendered on June 30, 1994.

ISSUE

WHETHER A SCHOOL BOARD MAY PROVIDE A SELF-INSURED HEALTH BENEFITS PROGRAM TO ITS EMPLOYEES PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

For the purpose of disposing of the within summary judgment motions, the FACTS in this matter are substantially not in dispute.

The petitioners are challenging the legality of a self-insured health benefits plan provided by the Keyport and Atlantic City School Boards (hereinafter referred to as the Boards). Petitioner's contend that the Boards lack the legal authority to institute a self-insured health benefits program under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, and applicable case decisions.

The Boards contend that the new self-insured program provides adequate health benefits coverage and that such a program is within the inherent power of the Boards to adopt as compensation for their members.

The Boards have adopted an identically administered self-insured health benefits system. For the purposes of this motion, it is conceded that the benefits provided under the self-insurance program, are identical to those which were in effect prior to the implementation of the challenged program.

Group health benefits are provided to the Boards' employees through a dual program involving an excess insurance contract with Lamar Insurance Company (hereinafter referred to as Lamar) and by entering into an insurance consulting contract with Frank J. Siracusa & Son (hereinafter referred to as Siracusa). Lamar is an A+ (Superior) A. M. Best Company-rated insurer qualified to do business in New Jersey. Siracusa is not a licensed insurance company, but is a licensed insurance broker within the State of New Jersey.

The Boards argue that the self-insured Siracusa/Lamar programs have resulted in substantial cost savings over that previously paid to private insurance companies to provide the same, or identical benefits. Petitioner's disagree with the Boards cost saving analysis. For the purposes of this motion, the expense of the program and whether or not cost savings have been realized is not a factor to be considered.

Siracusa administers the program by providing claims processing, claims investigation and adjustment, statistical reports and a variety of other management and administrative services.

Claims are paid to Board employees directly by the administrator from a fund maintained by the Boards. Each Board has purchased an excess policy from Lamar. The Lamar policy for the Atlantic City Board includes excess insurance coverage guaranteeing a maximum cost per insured of $30,000 per year and a maximum cost for all claims to the Board of about $5,243,000.

Lamar is also the excess carrier for the Keyport Board of Education providing that Board with a cap on its liability.

The pivotal statute upon which both parties rely is N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 which provides in part:

> Any local board of education may enter into contracts of group life, accidental death and dismemberment, hospitalization, medical, surgical, major medical expense, or health and accident insurance with any insurance company or companies authorized to do business in this state. . . .

I FIND that the contract of excess insurance between Lamar and the Boards is a contract which is authorized pursuant to the dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. Accordingly, the remaining question is whether the above cited statute provides the authority to the Boards to enter into the self-insured/self-administered portion of the program.

Petitioners' now move for summary judgment seeking an order declaring the health benefits program provided by the Boards to be illegal. Petitioners contend that governmental entities, specifically boards of education, have no authority other than that which has been delegated to them by the legislature. Additionally, petitioners argue that boards of education are administrative agencies so that where there exists reasonable doubt as to a board's authority to act in a certain manner or area, power to act is denied. See In re: Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 549 (1980). As a result, petitioners claim that the only authority of the Boards to provide insurance coverage for its employees is rooted in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. The plain language of the statute requires coverage be provided in this instance through "contracts with a licensed insurance company" which on its face does not allow school boards to contract with intermediaries or to establish a self-insured program.

The Boards counter that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 is identical to the language contained in N.J.S.A. 40:10-17 which authorizes other divisions of local government, including municipalities and counties to enter into self-insurance programs. As such, the Boards argue that to find that the Boards do not have the authority to enter into a self-insured program, there would be a de facto determination that other governmental entities such as state, county and municipal self-insured programs are also without legal authority.

The pivotal case upon which petitioners rely is Irvington Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, 1982 S.L.D. 1009 aff'd State Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. 1571, aff'd App. Div. 1984.

The Boards disagree with the finding of the Irvington court. Specifically, they rely upon the holding in Teamsters Local 331 v. Atlantic City, 191 N.J. Super. 404 (Ch. Div. 1981) aff'd o.b. 191 N.J. Super. 394 (App. Div. 1983) for the proposition that non-statutorily authorized alternatives are available to local public entities to provide health benefits for employees. The Boards also reject the holding in Irvington, supra on the grounds that the affirmance of the Commissioner's decision is an unreported Appellate Division case and as such, cannot stand as precedent in this matter.

I hereby REJECT the Boards contention that the Irvington decision is to be given considerably less weight because it is an unreported decision of the Appellate Division and that the Teamsters decision should control. It must be noted that the Irvington decision has been relied upon by all parties to this matter. As such, it has been properly briefed and reported to this tribunal. See Falcon v. American Cyanamid, 221 N.J. Super 252 (App. Div. 1987).

The Irvington Appellate Court decision is an affirmance of a ruling of an administrative agency, which constitutes precedence before this tribunal. See Eherenstorfer v. Division of Public Welfare, Dept. of Human Services of State of N.J., 196 N.J. Super 405 (App. Div. 1984). There, the Division of Welfare was bound by an unpublished opinion of the Superior Court, Appellate Division which voided regulations pertaining to the Division of Welfare's administration of the Aide for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

I FIND that based upon the dictates set forth in Irvington, as well as the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, the Boards are without authority to adopt the Siracusa/Lamar health benefits program.

The scope of a school board's authority to provide health insurance was decided by the Commissioner of Education in Irvington, supra. The plan at issue here is remarkably similar to the program analyzed by the Irvington court. In Irvington, the plan provided for self-funding of claims payments. The Board paid all claims directly through an insurance administrator. It also provided an excess insurance policy, which acted as a cap on the Board's liability. The Commissioner held, and the State Board and Appellate Division affirmed that the provision of health benefits through that method was unlawful. In reaching its decision, the Appellate Division concluded that the lack of express authority, the availability of viable substitutes, the absence of a uniform scheme of statutory protection for such self-insurance funds, and the legislative history in analogous situations all required affirmance of the Commissioner's and State Board's decisions; that school boards lack authority to provide health insurance coverage on a self-insured basis.

In addition, the Irvington court noted that the legislature authorized local school boards to participate in self-insurance pools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-1, but that self-insurance is only permissible in areas where boards have common law or statutorily imposed liability, such as motor vehicle liability, worker's compensation liability, and property loss, not in areas where there is a voluntary assumption of benefits, such as the area of health insurance benefits.

Finally, the Irvington court addressed the issue of excess insurance coverage. It concluded that the inclusion of such insurance had no bearing on the legality of the plan, and that the provision of direct benefits on a self-insured basis was unlawful, regardless of whether excess insurance was procured. Id. at p. 1943.

I herein REJECT the Boards' interpretation in the Teamsters case supra substantially for the grounds set forth in Irvington. The pivotal consideration in Irvington was that boards of education have no greater power than that granted to them via statute. The authorization to provide health benefits in the instance of a municipality, or county has been specifically provided for in Title 40. Additionally, the Teamsters decision did not deal exclusively with the self-insurance issue. There the court was confronted with a provision in a collective bargaining agreement pursuant to which the municipality had agreed to contribute payment to a union health and welfare fund as a method of providing health benefits for its employees.

The Boards correctly argue that in Teamsters, there was no specific statutory authorization for the municipality to fund the union's health benefits package. The court agreed with the City that despite the lack of statutory authorization, the program was within a municipality's power to enter into within the context of a collective bargaining agreement.

In reviewing Teamsters, the Irvington court commented upon the same argument which is made by the Boards herein that the general powers and compensation powers sections of the education act, imply the ability to enter into self-insurance programs.

I FIND that but for the fact that the Irvington court specifically dealt with this issue, such an argument could be compelling and even persuasive.

The Boards argue that the statute here at issue, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 is identical to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 40A:10-17 which deals with other units of local government including municipalities and counties. The Boards argue that to declare the within Siracusa/Lamar program illegal, is to also draw into question self-insurance programs which are in existence by virtue of the authority set forth in Title 40.

I FIND that the distinction to be drawn in this case is the argument set forth in Irvington wherein the court found that boards of education, have no greater power than that provided to them by the legislature. There the court essentially rejected the Board's argument that boards of education had the legal authority to provide health benefits through a self-insured program.

> While we are fully in accord with the Teamsters Local 331 opinions, that case is inapposite to the issue under discussion here. In the Teamsters case, in order to provide health benefits to its employees, the City of Atlantic City gave the employees a raise in an amount sufficient to pay the Union's charges for health insurance. The municipality was not a self-insurer. While the Teamsters Local 331 case does stand for the proposition that the statutory alternatives for providing health benefits are not exclusive, the case did not reach the point of whether the municipality there (or the board of education here) could be a self-insurer. Were the issue before us merely whether the school board, if it wished to provide health care benefits to its employees, would be limited to either a private insurance program under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 or to participate in the State program under N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.34, the Teamsters Local 331 decision would have set that question to rest. It is clear that a board of education may both provide health benefits and seek a method of doing so other than by the methods expressly > authorized by the two cited statutes. The issue, however, is whether it may undertake self-insurance for these benefits without statutory authorization and appropriate regulation.

The Irvington court's discussion of permissible self-insurance for school boards in the area of worker's compensation and general liability solidifies the petitioner's argument that the school boards are creatures of statute with their powers specifically delineated thereunder. No such power has been delegated in the area of self-insurance and indeed the Irvington court makes it clear that until a legislative change occurs, such programs are impermissible. The fact that the Lamar program is a contract wherein the Boards are legally empowered to enter into pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 is not in and of itself sufficient to boot strap or save the self-insurance portion of the program.

The Boards' contention that self-insurance programs for municipalities and counties have been initiated in order to save taxpayer dollars is herein noted and applauded. Most notably the statutory authorization enabling the counties and municipalities to institute self-insurance programs is remarkably similar to the power vested in boards of education. As noted above, however, the distinction to be drawn between municipalities and boards of education is that the Boards have not been given specific authorization by the legislature, despite the Irvington courts invitation to the legislature to reconsider this issue. Accordingly, considering the dictates of Irvington supra, until an amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 is herein effectuated, the Irvington decision stands as a bar to any effort on the part of boards of education to save tax dollars while in turn providing adequate health benefits to their membership.

Accordingly, I herein HOLD that the Siracusa/Lamar self-insurance health benefits program adopted by the Keyport and Atlantic City Boards of Education violate N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

KEYPORT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF KEYPORT, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
AND
ATLANTIC CITY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND ATLANTIC CITY HEAD CUSTODIANS ASSOCIATION, PETITIONERS, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Separate exceptions were filed by each respondent Board of Education pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4; a joint reply was filed by petitioners. Petitioners also filed primary exceptions on one point as noted below; no reply was filed by respondents.

In its exceptions, the Keyport Board of Education ("Keyport") argues that the ALJ erred in accepting the court's decision in Irvington, supra, as binding in this matter, as that decision was unreported and is, therefore, of no precedential value for litigants who were not parties to the case. Moreover, the parties in the instant matter have advanced arguments not addressed in Irvington, so that the conclusions of that decision should be reconsidered in light of these, as well as in light of the subsequent (reported) court decision in Board of Education of Bloomfield v. Education Association of Bloomfield, 251 N.J. Super. 379 (App. Div. 1990), and the increasing, and increasingly recognized, need for boards of education to control spiraling costs through efficiencies in operation and management. Finally, the Board opines, the Irvington court misunderstood the holding of Teamsters, supra, and the Commissioner should re-examine Irvington's conclusions by (correctly) applying the Teamsters analysis to the facts herein.

Keyport next avers that the ALJ relied exclusively on N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 and ignored the Board's arguments to the effect that the insurance program at issue is independently authorized by two other statutes. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a)(10), the Board contends, parallels a provision in the Local Public Contracts Law (N.J.S.A. 40A:11-1 et seq.) which has already been held by the Court, in Local 1081 v. Essex County, 255 N.J. Super. 671 (App. Div. 1992), to envision county and municipal self-funded insurance programs and consultant services to administer them; N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1, which confers on boards of education the power to "determine, and fix, and alter" the compensation of employees, must be read in light of Teamsters, supra, to include health benefits as part of such compensation and to permit modes of providing compensation and benefits not specifically authorized in statute.

Finally, Keyport contends that N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-1 et seq. (joint self-insurance) does not act, as concluded by the ALJ, to prohibit single-district self-insurance, but rather serves to limit joint arrangements, as other statutes do for counties and municipalities in light of the potential for one entity's actions and liabilities to adversely impact another's.

In its own separate exceptions, the Atlantic City Board of Education ("Atlantic City") raises several of these same arguments. In addition, it argues that 1) the plan at issue is not self-insurance, but rather direct insurance with a large retention administered by a licensed and qualified insurance consultant, fully authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 in that it is provided by direct contractual arrangement rather than a trust; 2) school districts are permitted to join the State Health Benefits Plan (SHBP), which is itself self-insurance, so that the effect of the initial decision is to acknowledge the validity of self-insurance as a means of providing health benefits, but then improperly compel districts to belong to a specific self-insurance plan; and 3) both Irvington, supra, and the initial decision, if adopted, constitute illegal rulemaking in violation of the Administrative Procedures Act (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(e)) and Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, 97 N.J. 313, 331-332 (1984).

Petitioners, in reply, reference their briefs before the ALJ and take issue with several of respondents' factual assertions. They also argue that respondents' position on the validity of Irvington, supra, would lead to absurd results in that any Commissioner's decision reversed by the Appellate Division in an unpublished ruling could be relitigated on grounds that the court decision was not binding. Moreover, even denying, arguendo, the precedential value of the Appellate decision in Irvington, the State Board has also ruled in that matter and the Commissioner is bound by its ruling for purposes of the present proceeding.

Petitioners further argue that statute and case law addressing bidding issues cannot be read to independently authorize the self-insurance aspect of respondents' programs, and that respondents' excess policies cannot be construed, as they erroneously were by the ALJ, as health insurance within the meaning and contemplation of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-3 as they pay benefits to neither covered employees nor health care providers, instead serving only to hold harmless respondents' losses over and above a certain level. (This latter argument is also the subject of petitioners' primary exceptions, which in all other respects urge affirmance of the initial decision.) Neither can boards' general ability to enter into excess insurance contracts be read as concomitant authorization of the underlying insurance plan where that plan is not otherwise authorized in statute.

Petitioners also contend that respondents' argument to the effect that self-insurance is authorized by the general power of boards of education to fix employee compensation is thwarted by the fact that 1) this interpretation would render N.J.S.A. 18A:16-12 et seq. meaningless, as no statute addressing health insurance would otherwise be necessary; 2) boards of education, unlike counties and municipalities, are administrative agencies, the powers of which must accordingly be construed narrowly rather than expansively; and 3) this proposition was already considered and rejected in Irvington, supra, and remains unaltered by subsequent decisions in Bloomfield, supra, and Local 1081, supra.

As to the State Health Benefits Plan, petitioners point out that it exists as a result of specific enabling statute, thus buttressing petitioners' position that self-insurance for health benefits must arise from express legislative enactment. Moreover, no analogy can be made between the SHBP and local board self-insurance in terms of the former serving as tacit authorization for the latter, in that the SHBP is protected by a huge risk-sharing pool and the full backing of State resources while local board plans must gamble on the loss experience and fiscal stability of a single, relatively small entity.

Finally, in response to the extensive rhetoric in respondents' filings regarding the need for school district cost savings and State support for local efficiencies, petitioners contend that the cost-reduction benefits of self-insurance are arguable and that a negative insurance experience could have a serious impact on a district's fiscal stability, thus undermining the very principles on which respondents purport to rely. Moreover, petitioners note, the issue before the Commissioner in this proceeding is a legal, not a political one, and respondents' efforts to obtain authority to self-insure for health benefits must, as was recognized in Irvington, supra, be directed to the Legislature rather than the Commissioner.

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Irvington decision is controlling in this matter, and that the health benefits programs established by respondents herein are beyond the scope of statutory authority accorded to boards of education under current law.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects respondents' contention that Irvington is not binding because the decision was not reported. As noted by the ALJ, the Court's decision in Irvington is well known, widely referenced (including discussion by the Court in Bloomfield, supra, and publication in 1984 S.L.D. 1939) and has been fully briefed by the parties herein; moreover, the Commissioner is not at liberty to disregard holdings by the State Board of Education and the Court on issues and fact patterns of precisely the type raised by an earlier matter merely because the parties involved in a subsequent matter are different. Neither are the results of Irvington altered by more recent Court decisions in Bloomfield, supra, and Local 1081, supra. The former merely addresses the arbitrability of a health coverage dispute and, in reversing a lower court finding that the dispute at issue was not arbitrable, expressly gives no opinion on the Irvington ruling and leaves open, i.e., to the arbitrator, the question of Irvington's impact on petitioner's claim and remedy if successful; the latter is a bidding dispute where the validity of the underlying insurance program is not at issue and the Court's tacit acceptance of self-insurance by a county is of no import in the present matter in light of Irvington's analysis and conclusion that school districts require express authority to self-insure.

The Commissioner likewise determines that respondents' arguments based on statutes governing employee compensation and joint self-insurance were substantively addressed by Irvington, where these issues were expressly raised before and analyzed by the Court. Similarly, respondents' arguments based on the Public School Contracts Law fail in that they rely on an analogy between the school law and the Local Public Contracts Law as interpreted by Local 1081, supra, which analogy is inapposite in light of Irvington as discussed above.

Finally, the Commissioner finds no merit in respondents' contention that their plans do not constitute self-insurance, as it is undisputed that benefits are paid directly to employees from a fund maintained by the Board, with Siracusa providing administrative and claim processing services only and the Lamar policy serving merely to indemnify the Board against claims in excess of a certain level. Neither does the Commissioner find merit in respondents' arguments based on school district inclusion in SHBP, as that program, while fairly characterized as self-insurance, has separate legislative authorization, is highly regulated and is a State entity in which school districts are merely permitted to participate if they so desire. Nor does he view statutory interpretation consistent with prior Court holdings in the context of a dispute before him pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to be illegal rulemaking within the contemplation and prohibitions of Metromedia, supra.

In one respect, however, the Commissioner would modify the initial decision. Notwithstanding that he later (correctly) deems it insufficient to "bootstrap" the underlying prohibited insurance program, the ALJ finds at page 4 of the initial decision that the contract of excess insurance between Lamar and respondents is "authorized pursuant to the dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13." While there is no question about boards' general authority to obtain excess insurance, the Commissioner clarifies that excess insurance programs of the type at issue herein may not be considered health insurance within the meaning and contemplation of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, as such programs serve to indemnify boards rather than pay benefits to employees or health service providers.

Accordingly, as modified herein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law finding respondents' insurance programs to be in violation of existing statute and noting that school districts' inability to self-insure for health benefits under current law is a question properly addressed by the Legislature.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

The State Board of Education denies the Atlantic City Board's motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision of

APR. 5, 1995

October 17, 1994, substantially for the same reasons as expressed by the Commissioner on January 25, 1995, when he declined to stay that decision. In so doing, we concur with both the Commissioner's determination to permit the plan at issue to continue in effect through the end of the 1994-95 school year and his additional requirement that the Board

> ...explore, acquire and properly budget for a legally permissible plan to take effect at the beginning of the fiscal year (July 1, 1995) for which school budgets are now being prepared pursuant to law.

Commissioner's decision on motion, January 25, 1995, slip op. at 5. We stress that immediate compliance with this directive is essential to insure that the Board is prepared to provide alternate coverage if it proves necessary.

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education,
October 17, 1994

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education,
January 25, 1995

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education,
April 5, 1995

May 3, 1995

For the Petitioners-Respondents, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant Board of Education of the Borough of Keyport, Perillo & Rosenberger (Salvatore Perillo, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City, George G. Frino, Esq.

For the reasons expressed by the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education affirms the Commissioner's decision that the self-insurance plan involved here violates N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. In doing so, we note that there is no suggestion that the legitimacy of the specific plan here was affected by the enactment of P.L.1995, c. 74, providing express authorization for certain kinds of group insurance arrangements, which was signed into law on January 19, 1995.

Record Closed: September 7, 1994 Decided: September 7, 1994

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral order denying petitioner's application for emergent relief, rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

Mr. Herron filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education challenging creation and effectuation of a pre-kindergarten school tuition plan/sliding income scale that would allow for children of parents whose incomes are under $50,000 to attend preschool programs without charge but children of those parents with incomes over $50,000 and up to $100,000 would be charged tuition based upon their adjusted gross incomes according to New Jersey income taxes for the previous year. The plan was challenged by Mr. Herron in a variety of ways as being contrary to statute, unconstitutional, discriminatory and likely to enhance and worsen the situation in the Montclair community involving minorities. The Board filed an answer in general denial of the allegations of illegality or unconstitutionality made by petitioner and raised certain affirmative defenses. One part of the petition of appeal in the ad damnam clause sought judgment of the Commissioner in immediately issuing an injunction against the Board to prevent implementation of the tuition-based pre-kindergarten program.

The matter proceeded to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. It was set down for hearing in the Office of Administrative Law today, September 7, 1994, but hearing today was confined not to plenary consideration of the issues in the case but only to the request for interposition of emergent relief by way of temporary restraint against effectuation of the plan until plenary hearing. I have listened to argument by Mr. Herron and by counsel for the Board and I'm satisfied that the application (interim relief) as made by Mr. Herron should be DENIED, and it is hereby. The reasons for denial in my view stem from consideration of the standards set forth by New Jersey in the case of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, a case in the Supreme Court in 1982. Largely as argued by the Board here, there has been no showing and indeed I do not think there could have been any showing of irreparability of harm should relief be denied. Obviously, if after plenary hearing petitioner were to prevail, that would necessarily imply invalidation of the tuition-based sliding income scale and presumably that would require return of tuition, and that means that the question merely is one of money. There is no irreparability. If damage has been done or will be done hereafter, that damage will be reparable, not irreparable, because it can be repaired or can be cured or ameliorated by return of tuition money. That, however, will remain to be seen. In addition, Crowe v. DeGioia standards require the legal claim be clear or reasonably clear at this moment and my conclusion is in listening to the parties that Mr. Herron's claims as petitioner are not that clear. They may turn out to be. Today they are not. It's obvious also the facts and the conclusions to be drawn from material facts in this case will be disputed--no question about it. The opinions that will be advanced here I presume will be competing and they leave this case therefore in that respect in a state of flux. Under all the circumstances, it would be error for me to employ the extraordinary power of restraint or injunction at this moment. The motion is DENIED, Mr. Herron. I reserve the right to reduce my thoughts to writing. Should you object or take exception to the ruling, you will have your appropriate relief either upon review by the Commissioner or at the end of the case.

This order on application for emergent relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forth-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(i, j).

END OF TRANSCRIPT

I, Angela M. Robinson, certify that the foregoing is a true and accurate transcript, to the best of my ability, of Judge Ospenson's oral order rendered in the above matter on September 7, 1994.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF MONTCLAIR, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

The oral order denying petitioner's application for emergent relief from the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent consideration of the transcript of the oral order denying the application for emergent relief and the tape of the proceedings, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial order.

Accordingly, the motion for emergent relief is hereby denied and the matter is directed to be transmitted to OAL for plenary hearing.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reimbursement of tuition paid to Board, contending that its policy with respect to future residents was unconstitutional. Said policy permits parents who reside outside the district, but who will move into the district within 90 days, to enroll their children in the district free of charge; however, if they do not move into the district in the allotted time, tuition is charged.

Board's motion to dismiss was granted. ALJ found the petition was filed more than 90 days after the alleged harm accrued. Moreover, the ALJ found no constitutional infirmity in the policy. ALJ ordered copy of the decision to be forwarded to the County Prosecutor since petitioner made a claim upon a political subdivision of the State for monies to which he is not entitled. (The contractor had indemnified petitioner against any tuition charge under the Board's policy if construction of the home was not timely completed.)

Commissioner concurred with findings and conclusions of ALJ that there was no constitutional infirmity in the Board's policy and that the petition was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Commissioner remanded matter to the Office of Administrative Law solely for findings and recommendations on the issue of sanctions.

YOGESH SAXENA,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERNARDS,

Respondent.

Yogesh Saxena, petitioner, pro se

Lisa A. Sanders, Esq., for respondent (Martin R. Pachman, attorney)

Record Closed: July 21, 1994 Decided: September 6, 1994

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Yogesh Saxena filed a petition of appeal challenging the constitutionality of Bernards Township Board of Education Policy No. 3240 and seeking reimbursement of tuition, plus interest, paid pursuant to the policy.

The Board filed an answer denying the allegations and setting forth affirmative defenses of (1) failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted, (2) failure to file timely under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and (3) fraud.

The Board also moved to dismiss the action for lack of timeliness, failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted, and because the petitioner's allegation that he suffered money damages is false.

The petitioner responded to the motion and the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for proceedings with respect to the petition and motion. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

Oral argument was heard on the motion on Thursday, July 21, 1994 at the Office of Administrative Law facility in Mercerville (Trenton). For the reasons that follow, the Board's motion is GRANTED.

From the pleadings and the argument on motion, I FIND:

1. The petitioner and his family moved in February 1992 to New Jersey, but did not reside in the Bernards Township school district.

2. The petitioner had a building contract and a house under construction in Bernards Township at the time.

3. The petitioner's children attended the district schools February-June 1992 under Board policy No. 3240.

4. The petitioner paid tuition per policy provisions.

5. The petitioner's children attended district schools, also under Board policy No. 3240 from September 1992 through February 1993 when home construction was sufficiently complete to allow occupancy.

6. On March 15, 1994, the petitioner filed the present appeal.

A copy of the policy is appended to this decision.

The petitioner generally argues that the policy creates two classes of future residents. One who can move into their homes in Bernards Township in 90 days and the other who are unable to occupy in 90 days. The first group attends the schools free, while the second group pays tuition.

Petitioner also asserts the policy is deceptive because one can be led to believe by a home builder that a new home can be completed in 90 days. Should the builder not deliver the home in time, the future resident pays tuition from the first day any family member attends district schools. The policy, therefore, treats the two groups unequally. Petitioner asserts it would be perfectly lawful to charge tuition from day one to every future resident or waive the same as long as one eventually moves into Bernards Township. The Bernards Township Board of Education policy is unlawful, discriminatory and enforceable under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3.

The Board argues that the petitioner, on February 7, 1992, based on a contract for the purchase of a home within the district, applied to enroll his children in the public schools for the 1993-94 school year. On August 10, 1992, the Board requested a tuition deposit from the petitioner pursuant to the policy and N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3, in the amount of $5,899.26.

The policy permits parents who reside outside the district, but who will move into the district within 90 days to enroll their children in the district free of charge. Upon enrollment, the parents are charged a tuition deposit equaling an amount of tuition for the 90-day period. If the parents move into the district within 90 days, the deposit is the 90-day period. If the parents move into the district within 90 days, the deposit is refunded. If the parents do not, the Board exercises its option to charge tuition to nonresident parents if they, in fact, do not move into the district within 19 days of initial enrollment.

After the ninety-day period in the petitioner's case expired, the petitioner did not move into the district. As a result, the Board credited the amount of the 90-day deposit to the petitioner's tuition account. The Board continued to charge tuition until the petitioner became a resident of the district in February 1993. The petitioner claims that he suffered monetary damages in the amount of $6,000 which represents the tuition paid for two children for the ninety-day period. The Board asserts that the actual amount charged to the petitioner was $5,899.25. Moreover, the petitioner suffered no monetary damages because his contract to purchase his home within the district contained a clause requiring the developer to pay all tuition costs if the closing did not occur within 90 days of enrollment of the petitioner's children in the district's schools.

DETERMINATION

The petitioner has alleged that the subject policy is unconstitutional in that it violates the equal protection clause of the federal Constitution. By signing his petition of appeal, he assured the Commissioner of Education that he was bringing a timely school law controversy. The petitioner also demands reimbursement of the tuition amounts paid. For the following reasons, each of these assertions is incorrect.

First, Board policy No. 3243 is not unconstitutional on its face or as applied. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3 provides:

> Any person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residence, may be admitted to the schools of the district with the consent of the board of education upon such terms, and with or without payment of tuition, as the board may prescribe.

The making of a rule must be authorized by a statute. Here, the Legislature has clearly bestowed to local boards of education the right to admit pupils, not resident in the district, with or without payment of tuition, as the board may prescribe. When a tribunal interprets a rule, questions of validity must be resolved first. The making of the rule must be authorized by a statute. The content of the rule must not conflict with any statutory provision, nor may the rule go beyond what has fairly been authorized by the Legislature. In this case, the Board made provision for nonresident attendance accompanied by a tuition charge. The policy, in pertinent part states:

> 2. Future Residents
>
> Families who reside outside the District but who intend to move into the District within 90 days shall be allowed to enroll their children without a charge for tuition. The family must submit proof of intent to move within the District to the Superintendent. This proof shall be a copy of a signed purchase or lease contract for residential housing. If the contract or lease is terminated for any reason, the Superintendent must be notified and the student must make formal application to remain as a tuition paying non-resident student. If the family move into the District is delayed beyond the 90 calendar day limit, the student may remain in school on a tuition paying basis until residency is achieved.
> Parents of non-resident pupils who anticipate becoming residents within 90 days of enrollment shall be charged with a deposit equal to a tuition payment for 90 days at the time of enrollment. This deposit shall be guaranteed by promissory note. The deposit shall be refunded if residency occurs during the 90 day period. Otherwise, this deposit shall be credited against any tuition charges.

The policy is clearly and rationally related to the Legislative grant of authority. There is nothing in the policy that exceeds the grant of authority. There is nothing in the policy that exceeds the grant of authority.

The petitioner contends that the policy makes two classes of citizens. That statement overreaches the facts. As political subdivisions of the State, boards of education have the power to draw certain lines. For example, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides for attendance at school free of charge to certain persons over five and under twenty years of age. Yet, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-5 provides:

> No child under the age of five years shall be admitted to any public school, except such as may be provided pursuant to law for children of his age.
> No board of education shall be required to accept by transfer from public or private school any pupil who was not eligible by reason of age for admission on October 1 of that school year, but the board may in its discretion admit any such pupil if he or she meets such entrance requirements as may established by rules or regulations of the board.

In Village of Belle Terre v. Borrass, 416 U.S. 1, 8 (1974), the United States Supreme Court said, "But every line drawn by a legislature leaves out what might well have been included. That exercise of discretion, however, is a legislative, not a judicial, function."

In addition, the petition was filed more than 90 days after the alleged harm accrued. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) requires filing within 90 days of the act complained of. This rule of repose has been strictly construed. Riely v. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). And finally, the petitioner has suffered no loss. He has offered nothing to show that his builder did not reimburse him for tuition paid because the petitioner could not sooner occupy his home.

Having reviewed the papers and the parties' arguments, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Bernards Township Board of Education exercised a Legislatively invested grant of authority when it adopted policy no. 3240. I further FIND and CONCLUDE that there is no constitutional infirmity in the policy, the petition is untimely and the petition is specious.

Accordingly, the Board's motion to dismiss must be GRANTED. It is so ORDERED.

One matter remains to be addressed. The petitioner sought money from the Board in his petition. The Commissioner can order monies paid only when restitution is appropriate. Restitution cannot be appropriate, however, when a petitioner has suffered no loss of money. It is asserted and not denied that the petitioner's builder, as part of the construction contract, indemnified the petitioner against any tuition charge under policy No. 3240 if construction were not timely completed. The petitioner cannot have it both ways. The Commissioner cannot be party to an unjust enrichment.

The petitioner chose to represent himself. He has that right. Upon representing himself, the petitioner assumes all the responsibilities as well as the rights of a legal representative. Inasmuch as Yogesh Saxena has made a claim upon a political subdivision of the State for monies to which he is not entitled, a copy of this decision and the final decision shall be forwarded to the Prosecutor of Somerset County.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

YOGESH SAXENA,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERNARDS, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In his exceptions, petitioner asserts that his claim should not be considered untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Petitioner supports this position by reference to earlier correspondence to the Commissioner arguing that, "[s]ince the [Board's] policy is still in place and I am challenging the lawfulness and constitutionality of the said policy, the 90 days limit to contest does not apply." (Petitioner's Exceptions, Attachment 1)

Further, petitioner reasserts his position, as argued before the ALJ, that the Board's policy concerning future residents is discriminatory and unlawful. Petitioner maintains the policy is "punitive and not equitable" (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 1) as it refunds the requisite tuition deposit only to those parents who gain residency status within the 90-day time frame established by the Board. If the parents do not become residents within the 90-day period, the Board exercises its option to charge tuition, and credits the deposit against any such tuition charges.

In response, the Board submits that assessing tuition against nonresidents is a matter of public policy inasmuch as the taxpayers of Bernards Township should not be required to fund the education of nonresident students. The Board contends that petitioner was "not being punished" and "remained free at all times to enroll his children in his district of residence free of charge for the 6-month period that it took to complete his home, but voluntarily elected to enroll his children in the Bernards Township schools instead." (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 2)

Lastly, petitioner excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner sought monies to which he was not entitled. Petitioner contends that, although his construction contract provided that the builder indemnify him for tuition charges should his home not be completed on time, that provision cost petitioner the ability to negotiate a free bathroom and other upgrades. Thus, petitioner argues, he paid $10,000 out-of-pocket for those options which "could have been for tuition." (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 2)

That the tuition indemnification was in any way connected to the negotiation of other contract particulars is, the Board argues, "speculation." Additionally, the Board contends that

> Petitioner has intentionally attempted to hide relevant facts from this tribunal since the inception of this matter. The petition filed in this matter fails to divulge the existence of the contracted provision which required the builder's payment of tuition costs and seeks monetary > damages for damages that Petitioner sustained in paying the tuition costs. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 2)

The Board further argues that petitioner admitted he did not pay those tuition costs only when he was forced to so admit. In this regard, the Board seeks the imposition of sanctions upon petitioner as a pro se litigant in violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct.* (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive and concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that there is no constitutional infirmity in the Board's policy. Furthermore, the Commissioner agrees that the petition was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and finds no compelling reason to relax this rule under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

The remaining issue is the necessity for sanctions against petitioner, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14, which was not addressed in the initial decision, notwithstanding that the Board raised it before the ALJ. Therefore, the Commissioner is remanding this matter to OAL solely for findings and recommendations on the issue of sanctions.

Accordingly, the instant matter is hereby remanded to OAL. Further, as the Commissioner recognizes he is not the agency head for purposes of review of sanctions under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14 (Laufgas v. Barnegat Twp. Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 1905),

---

*The Board cites N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.5(g), which mandates that pro se litigants be held to the standards contained in the Rules of Professional Conduct. Specifically, RPC 3.3 is invoked. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 2) such findings and recommendations by the ALJ will be forwarded to the Director of OAL, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.2(c)4, following a final decision on remand by the Commissioner.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board alleged that respondents' two children were not entitled to enrollment in the Cranford school district from September 1988 through November 1993 because they were not domiciled in the district. Board sought tuition reimbursment of $47,300.

Having considered testimony of witnesses and the record, the ALJ found that prior to December 1993 the petitioning mother proved that she was domiciled in Cranford. However, after her marriage in December 1993, she was thereafter domiciled in Newark. The grandmother's claim to custody of the children was not enough to establish eligibility to obtain a free public education under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), documentation of support or nonsupport of the children was not presented. ALJ concluded respondents were responsible for tuition from December 1993 through the end of the 1993-94 school year and ordered them to pay the tuition owed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and directed Board to calculate the amount of tuition owed from December 1993 through the period that the children remained in the school district and ordered respondents to pay such amount owed.

AGENCY DKT NO. 395-11/93

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD, UNION COUNTY,

Petitioner,

v.

A. McG. AND L. M.,

Respondents.

Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq., for petitioner

A. McG. and L. M., pro se

Record Closed: July 27, 1994 Decided: September 9, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Cranford ("Board"), alleges that respondents' two children are not entitled to enrollment in the Cranford School District from September 1988, through November 1993, because they are not domiciled in the district. The Board seeks tuition reimbursement for each nonresident student of $5,500.00 per year or a total of $47,300.00.

Respondents contend that L. M. (mother) and her children A. M. and D. M. legally reside in Cranford. Further, respondents allege that the Board violated their civil rights by attempting to improperly place D. M. in an "educationally slow learner" class for the purpose of securing funds for the school. Respondents allege that the Board's discriminatory conduct was based on race.

The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on December 21, 1993, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. A hearing was held on June 21, 1994. Petitioner presented three witnesses and respondents presented two witnesses. After the hearing, the parties filed post hearing briefs and the record closed on July 27, 1994.

ISSUE

The issue is whether respondents' children were domiciled in Cranford from September 1988 through November 1993. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) provides that if the Board of Education denies a free education to a student based on domicile, the parent or guardian is entitled to a hearing and "shall have the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence before the commissioner that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection." Accordingly, respondents have the burden of proof that their children were domiciled in Cranford from September 1988 to November 1993.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The Board alleges that since 1988 respondents' children, A. M., eleven years old, and D. M., eight years old, have been domiciled at 40 Longfellow Avenue, Newark, and not at 3 McClellan Drive, Cranford. Therefore, the Board seeks payment of tuition for the previous years.

In June 1993, Patricia Planer, D. M.'s first grade teacher, reported that D.M. stated that he had moved back to Newark with his mom, dad, and sister "about three months ago." (P-1) Planer also testified that in May, D. M. stated that he was late for school because his mother had car trouble.

On June 8, 1993, William E. Cashman, acting superintendent, mailed L. M. a letter informing her that N.J.S.A. 18:38-1 requires children to attend school in the town in which they are domiciled with their parents and that tuition can be charged to out-of-town students. However, he also stated that "[the Cranford Board of Education] will allow your children, [D. M. and A. M.] to complete the remainder of the school year in Cranford." (P-2)

Evelyn McGill Abdulai, L. M.'s mother, testified that her grandchildren, A. M. and D. M., have lived in her home with their mother at 3 McClellan Drive in Cranford since the children's birth. On June 21, 1993, L. M. and Abdulai signed a Statement of Responsibility/Residency affidavit that the children resided in Abdulai's Cranford home. Also, after speaking with Board personnel about students' residence requirements, Abdulai filed papers to obtain legal custody of A.M. and D.M. On November 5, 1993, Judge John F. Malone, Superior Court - Family Part, awarded temporary custody of D.M. and A.M. to Mrs. Abdulai. (R-2) Abdulai stated that L. M. did move to Newark after she married A. McG. in December 1993, but the children remained with her. Moreover, she maintained that neither A. McG. nor L. M. give her money for the children's support.

On September 13, 1993, Michele Schultz, confidential secretary to the Cranford Superintendent of Schools, received an anonymous phone call informing her that L. M. and her children had moved to East Orange. The caller also stated that L. M. dropped the children off at her mother's house in Cranford before school at 6:00 a.m. and then picked them up after work and took them back to East Orange. Schultz recorded the message on tape, (P-5a), then typed the content of the discussion that she had with the caller (P-5) Based on the anonymous tip, the school began a residency investigation.

The Board's residency investigators, Mr. William Mello and Mr. McFall, observed two residences, 3 McClellan Street in Cranford and 40 Longfellow Avenue in Newark, for 14 days between September 13 and December 20, 1993. (P-6) During that period, they watched A.M. and D.M. enter either the Cranford home or the Hillside School a total of two or three times. The investigators also saw L. M. pick up the children at the Cranford home two times and they then followed her car. However, the investigators lost her in traffic, and they were never able to determine where L. M. took the children. The investigation report discloses that on at least six occasions the investigators did not see any car deliver the children before school or pick them up after school. In addition, the report did not show that the respondents' children were transported to Cranford everyday. The anonymous caller clearly stated that everyday L. M. dropped off the children at their grandmother's house at approximately 6:00 a.m. then the grandmother drove them to school. (P-6) However, the record reflects that the investigators' surveillance usually began at approximately 7:00 a.m. and never before 6:20 a.m. Consequently, I FIND that the investigators' report is inconclusive.

L. M. testified that she has lived in Cranford with her mother and received all business and personal correspondence at the Cranford address until December 1993. She married respondent, A. McG. on December 4, 1993. Their children continue to live in Cranford with their grandmother but visit their parents' home on weekends and one day during the week. Prior to the marriage, L. M. also stayed at A. McG.'s. residence at Longfellow Avenue in Newark. However, L. M. candidly pointed out that the home on Longfellow Avenue was the marital home of A. McG. and his former wife. Thus, L. M. continued to maintain her permanent home in Cranford until after A. McG. was divorced. L. M. then married A. McG. and changed her mailing address to Longfellow Avenue in Newark. She and A. McG. decided that until they are able to establish a secure home, the children should remain with the grandmother and visit their parents. Also, after speaking with the Board's representative about the children's residence, L. M. allowed her mother to obtain custody of the children.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board claims that Cranford was not A.M.'s domicile between 1988-1993 and also that Cranford was not D.M.'s domicile from 1991 to 1993. Therefore, they were not eligible to attend the district's schools. The Board's assertion is based on the anonymous telephone call from a neighbor who stated that the children did not live in Cranford but in East Orange, the comments of D.M. to his teachers that he lived in Newark, the results of the residency investigators' report, and respondents' failure to provide independent indicia of the children's domicile in Cranford. The tuition rate for nonresident students is $5,500.00 per school year. The Board seeks $47,300.00 in back tuition from the respondents or the grandmother Evelyn Abdulai.

Respondents contend that the children are legal residents of Cranford because they lived with their mother in Cranford. Alternatively, they claim residency status based on the temporary custody order obtained by the grandmother. Further, respondents allege in their answer to the complaint that petitioner has engaged in a systematic violation of D.M.'s civil rights by trying to place him in an "[e]ducationally slow learner class for the purpose of securing certain funds for the school."

Domicile is the place of a person's abode where he or she has the present intention of remaining and to which, if absent, he intends to return. Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N. J. Super. 35, 39 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). A person may have multiple residences, but may have only one true domicile at a time. Therefore, the residence may coincide with domicile, but does not alone determine domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). If there are several residences, domicile is that place which the person regards as his or her true and permanent home. In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977). A domicile, once established, continues until it is superseded by a new one. In re Estate of_Gillmore, 101 N.J. Super. 77, 87 (App. Div. 1968), certif. denied, 52 N.J. 175 (1968). The question of domicile is one of fact and must be determined on a case by case basis. Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1, 7 (1955). Some of the more important factors in determining the domicile of a person who has more than one residence are:

> the physical characteristics of each [residence], the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude toward each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return.

Mercadante, supra, 111 N.J. Super. at 39-40.

In the Matter of Unanue, 255 N. J. Super. 362 (Law Div. 1991), the court stated that it is "clear. . . that a choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." Id. at 376. Persuasive evidence of actual domicile may include:

> recitals as to domicile in a will, trust, tax return or other formal document, as well as statements to others as to domicile, are evidential of the actual domicile. But they are not all conclusive. They are of value evidentially to the extent that they are not intended to deceive and other proofs support such domicile. I*d.* at 377.

Intent is the decisive factor in establishing domicile. It is the manifestation of a person's intent that converts a residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955). In the event a person divides her time between two places where she lives, it is her intention that makes one or the other her domicile. Ibid. A person's true intent is determined by the acts, statements, and conduct of the individual as viewed in light of all the circumstances. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514 (Law Div. 1959).

In their brief, respondents allege an intent to return to the Cranford home after the warrant of removal is served on the home at 40 Longfellow Avenue in Newark. Respondents' statement is unsupported in the record and therefore rejected.

Regarding respondents' contention that L. M. resided in Cranford and continues to do so, case law still holds that a married woman may obtain a separate domicile from her husband if he consents. See Zieper v. Zieper, 14 N.J. 551, 554 (1954); Floyd v. Floyd, 95 N. J. Eq. 661 (E. & A.1924). Domicile of wife is merged into that of the husband and continues unless the wife acquires a separate domicile by her husband's consent. Thus, if L. M. can prove that she has acquired, or maintained, a separate domicile in Cranford, or that the grandmother has legal custody for legitimate reasons in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) the children may continue to attend the Cranford schools. If not, they must be registered for school in their new domicile.

I have considered petitioner's evidence of the teacher's report about D.M.'s statement, the anonymous phone tip of a neighbor, and the investigators' inconclusive report. Assuming, arguendo, that the children were domiciled in Newark at the time of the June 8, 1993 letter from the acting superintendent, the letter bars recovery of any tuition money through the 1992-1993 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3 states that:

> [a]ny person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residency, may be admitted to the schools of the district with the consent of the Board of Education upon such terms, and with or without payment of tuition, as the Board may prescribe.

Thus, I CONCLUDE that when the Board allowed the children to finish the school year without requiring tuition, it waived any claim to tuition.

On the other hand, the record also reflects and I FIND that prior to December 1993, L. M. was domiciled in Cranford. She has presented numerous items showing that she was living at 3 McClellan Avenue including her driver's license, an insurance application from work, her car insurance card, and her marriage certificate dated November 1993. (R-4, R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8, R-9, R-10). I FIND that L. M. changed her address after her marriage to A. McG. in December 1993. Accordingly, she was thereafter domiciled in Newark.

I reject respondents' claim that the custody order issued to the grandmother gives the children the right to obtain a free public education in Cranford. Custody alone is not enough to establish eligibility under the statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) states that a child living with a person domiciled within the school district is entitled to a free education upon the filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a "sworn statement that he is not supporting the child," due to family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement must be substantiated by documentation pertaining only to the support or nonsupport of the child. Respondents failed to provide documentation or convincing testimony regarding their inability to support the children. Moreover, the evidence shows that the grandmother misconstrued her discussion with Board personnel; she obtained custody of the children because she believed it would satisfy school residency requirements.

I also reject respondents' claim that D.M.'s civil rights were violated. The record reflects that the Board's Office of Special Services evaluated D.M. for eligibility for special education because he showed "low acquisition of letter and number knowledge." (R-12). The child study team concluded that he was eligible to receive special education services with the classification of perceptually impaired. Ibid. However, respondents failed to demonstrate that the recommendations made by the school were based on discriminatory motives. See, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 to -42.

Based on the evidence, I CONCLUDE that respondents have met their burden of proof that the children were domiciled in Cranford prior to December 1993. However, I further CONCLUDE that respondents have not met the burden of proof that the children were domiciled in Cranford after their parents' December 1993 marriage; they were domiciled in Newark. Therefore, respondents are responsible for tuition from December 1993, through the end of the 1993-94 school year.

I, therefore, direct the Board to calculate the amount of tuition owed from December 1993, through the period that the children remained in the school district. The grandmother has not been named in the Board's complaint for tuition nor has the Board moved to amend its complaint to include the grandmother as a party to this proceeding. Indeed, under the Board's claim the grandmother is an indispensable party who has an interest in the matter. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that a disposition cannot justly be made in her absence. Accordingly, the order in this proceeding shall be directed at the respondents, A. McG. and L. M. .

ORDER

It is, therefore, ORDERED that respondents pay the amount of tuition owed for the children's attendance in the Cranford school district as directed

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CRANFORD, UNION COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
A. MC G. AND L.M., RESPONDENTS.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions submitted by respondents were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, having been filed on October 17, 1994, in response to an initial decision mailed on September 26, 1994, and are, therefore, not herein considered.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the respondents have met their burden of proof that the children herein were domiciled in Cranford prior to December 1993. He further concurs with the ALJ that respondents have not met such burden of proof with respect to the children being domiciled in Cranford after their parents' marriage in December 1993 and, as such, they are responsible for tuition for the childrens' school attendance in this district from that time.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in the matter for the reasons articulated therein. The Board is directed to calculate the amount of tuition owed from December 1993 through the period that the children remained in the school district and respondents are hereby ordered to pay such amount owed for the children's attendance in the Cranford school district.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 26, 1994

Remanded by the Appellate Division, September 19, 1995

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq., of Counsel

For the Respondents-Appellants, Andre L. and Lisa C. McGuire, pro se

On October 26, 1994, the Commissioner issued his decision in this matter, holding that appellants' children were not domiciled in the School District of the Township of Cranford as of December 1993 and directing appellants to pay tuition to the Board.

By notice filed on February 21, 1995, appellants appealed the Commissioner's decision to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court of New Jersey.

DEC. 6, 1995

A Deputy Attorney General acting on behalf of the Commissioner of Education then filed a motion with the Appellate Division seeking dismissal of the appeal on the grounds that appellants had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies.

On September 18, 1995, the Appellate Division granted the motion. However, the Court determined that the appeal should not be dismissed, but transferred to the State Board for consideration as if the appeal had originally been filed with the State Board.

Accordingly, we have reviewed the record in this matter. As follows, we dismiss this appeal for failure to file within the statutory time limit established by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 for appeals to the State Board of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-12; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990); Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989).

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on October 26, 1994, and mailed to the parties on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appeal from was deemed filed on October 29. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the appellants were required to file their notice of appeal to the State Board on or before November 28, 1994. However, the appellants' notice of appeal to the Appellate Division, which was dated February 16, 1995, was not filed until February 21. Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 could be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, and considering this appeal as if it had been filed with the State Board rather than with the Appellate Division, we find nothing in the record in this case to excuse appellants from not filing an appeal until four months after the Commissioner's decision.[1]

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit for appeals to the State Board of Education as computed under the applicable regulations.

December 6, 1995

Date of mailing DEC 08 1995

[1] We note that the time for filing an appeal with the Appellate Division is 45 days from the date of service of the decision. R. 2:4-1(b).

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 26, 1994

Remanded by the Appellate Division, September 19, 1995

Decision on remand by the State Board of Education, December 6, 1995

Remanded by the Appellate Division, February 10, 1998

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq.

For the Respondents-Appellants, Andre L. and Lisa C. McGuire, pro se

This matter is before us pursuant to a remand by the Appellate Division. The appeal at issue was an appeal to the State Board from a decision of the Commissioner of Education dated October 26, 1994 regarding the entitlement of appellants' two children to a free public education in the Cranford school district. Adopting the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner held that appellants had not met their burden under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) of proving that the two children involved in this matter were domiciled in Cranford after December 1993, at which time their mother had married and moved to Newark to live with her new husband. Consequently, the Commissioner concluded that appellants were responsible for tuition from December 1993. Pursuant to the Commissioner's determination, appellants were directed to pay tuition for the relevant period as calculated by the Board.

By notice dated February 21, 1995, appellants filed an appeal from the Commissioner's decision. However, they made their appeal to the Appellate Division rather than to the State Board.

On September 18, 1995, the Appellate Division, acting on a motion to dismiss filed on behalf of the Commissioner, transferred the appeal to the State Board.

By decision of December 6, 1995, the State Board dismissed the appeal, stressing that even if it had been filed with the State Board rather than the Appellate Division, the appeal had not been filed within the 30-day statutory time limit imposed by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28. The State Board also found that even if it had the authority to enlarge the statutory time limit, there was nothing in the record to excuse appellants' late notice of appeal, which had not been filed until four months after the Commissioner's decision was rendered.

On appeal from our determination, the Appellate Division agreed with the State Board that the 30-day statutory time limit set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 was jurisdictional. Hence, the Court concurred that, if that time limit was applicable, the State Board could not expand it. The Court, however, questioned whether the 30-day time limit was applicable in this case inasmuch as the appeal appeared to be interlocutory since appellants could not pay tuition to the Board until the Board calculated the amount due.

Stressing that interpretation of a statute is a judicial rather than an administrative function, the Court concluded that the "State Board erred as a matter of law in...dismissing the appeal without determining whether the decision appealed from was final." Appellate Division's Decision, slip op. at 11. However, the Court further concluded that the State Board must have the opportunity to interpret its own regulations and, therefore, remanded the matter to the State Board for reconsideration.

In addition, the Court offered comments on the record "in the event that they may be helpful in any further proceedings at the agency level." Id. First, the Court was concerned about whether the Commissioner had included any notice to the parties with respect to the appeal procedure when he rendered his decision. Secondly, the Court questioned the Commissioner's adoption of the Administrative Law Judge's finding that appellants had not proven that the children were domiciled in Cranford after their parent's marriage in December 1993. Thirdly, the Court questioned the application of the burden imposed by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) under the circumstances presented by this case.

Our first task pursuant to the Court's decision is to determine whether the Commissioner's decision in this case was a final decision within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1(a). That regulation provides that final decisions for purposes of appeal to the State Board include:

> Any determination of the Commissioner, including, as to those separable issues upon which the Commissioner has rendered a final decision, a decision remanding all or part of a controverted case....

There has never been any question that, in general, a decision of the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 as to whether a child is entitled to a free public education in a given school district is a final decision for purposes of appeal to the State Board. In such cases, where a parent has contested a district board's determination as to domicile and the Commissioner has made a judgment under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) that the evidence does not support the parent's claim, the statute mandates that:

> The Commissioner shall assess the parent...tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance....Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced.

In cases of this kind, the annual per pupil cost to the school district is established during the initial proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge. See, e.g., M.T., on behalf of minor children, L.T. and H.T. v Board of Education of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 374; Zadran v. Board of Education of the Township of Belleville, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 334 (subsequent history omitted). Once that amount is established, the statute controls the calculation. Hence, once the period of ineligible attendance is determined, the computation is ministerial and the time for appeal to the State Board is not automatically tolled.

We reaffirm that decisions of this kind are final decisions within the meaning of our regulation. Accordingly, they are appealable to the State Board at that point and subject to the thirty-day statutory time limit.

Nonetheless, the Court found the circumstances presented by the record in this particular case to be such that the appeal at issue may not have been time-barred. Close examination of the ALJ's initial decision indicates that there may be merit to the Court's view. Compare with Ahmed v. Board of Education of the City of Paramus, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 243 (finding of fact by the ALJ as to amount of tuition). However, we find that a definitive conclusion as to the character of the Commissioner's decision cannot be made without reconsidering the question in the context of a complete examination of the record upon which the decision was based. We therefore remand this matter to the Commissioner for determination of whether the amount of annual per pupil cost to the district that was applicable for the years in question had been adequately established in the record before the Commissioner rendered his decision and for such proceedings as may be required in light of the concerns expressed by the Court.

We retain jurisdiction.

Malachi J. Kenney, Esq., for Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District (Kenney, Gross & McDonough, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 25, 1994 Decided: August 23, 1994

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges filed against Jerry Barshatky, a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, and also two separate petitions filed by Jerry Barshatky seeking determinations that the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District had wrongfully withheld his salary increments for the 1992-93 school year and 1993-94 school year, respectively. Hereinafter the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District shall be referred to as "petitioner" and Jerry Barshatky shall be referred to as "respondent" although, as a technical matter, Mr. Barshatky is actually the petitioner in the increment withholding cases.

The first increment withholding case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case on August 4, 1992 and was assigned docket number EDU 6008-92. EDU 7807-92 was commenced on August 18, 1992, when petitioner in accordance with the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to 25, certified to the Commissioner three charges of inefficiency and incompetency. Specifically, the charges alleged that respondent was inefficient and incompetent by reason of his persistent use of improper and ineffective teaching techniques, including failure to prepare proper lesson plans, failure to motivate students, failure to understand the nature of learning, failure to utilize class periods efficiently, failure to gear lesson plans to the learning abilities of all students and failure to develop interpersonal skills. The charges also alleged that respondent was an incompetent and inefficient teacher by reason of his repeated failure to implement suggestions and criticisms offered by his supervisors and finally, that he was an incompetent and inefficient teacher by reason of his continuing inability to maintain proper order and decorum in his classrooms. An Answer was filed on behalf of respondent on September 25, 1992 and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case on October 7, 1992. A prehearing conference was conducted on November 4, 1992 and the matters were consolidated for hearing on a series of dates in February and March 1993. Some of the dates were adjourned because of the illness of petitioner's counsel; others were adjourned because of respondent's illness or because of attorneys' conflicts. The hearing commenced on March 10, 1993 and continued on various dates in March, April, June, September, October, November and concluded on December 17, 1993. The second increment withholding case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 16, 1993 and was assigned docket number EDU 12017-93. With the consent of the parties, it was consolidated with the other two pending cases for determination by order entered December 17, 1993.

Following the close of the hearing the record remained open for the receipt of written submissions. Respondent's initial post-hearing written submission was received February 10, 1994. Petitioner's initial post-hearing written submission was received March 1, 1994. A reply was filed on behalf of petitioner on March 31, 1994 and respondent's reply was filed April 6, 1994, whereupon the record closed. The record was reopened on May 18, 1994, when respondent's counsel advised that respondent had submitted his resignation from his teaching position, effective June 30, 1994, and had filed retirement papers with the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund which retirement was to be effective July 1, 1994. Respondent requested that the tenure charges be dismissed on the grounds of mootness, that his 1992-93 increment withholding petition (EDU 6008-92) be marked "withdrawn" and that an initial decision be issued with respect to the 1993-94 increment withholding case only (EDU 12017-93). The undersigned then offered both parties the opportunity to submit legal memoranda concerning the mootness issue. Respondent's letter memorandum in support of his motion to dismiss the tenure charges was received on June 3, 1994. Petitioner's brief in opposition to dismissing the charges was received on June 6, 1994. Each side filed a reply on June 13, 1994. Respondent's papers included his affidavit. Finally, by letter received July 25, 1994, respondent's attorney forwarded a copy of the notice sent to respondent by the Division of Pensions and Benefits advising him that the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund had approved his application for veteran's retirement, effective July 1, 1994, whereupon the record closed.

EDU 6008-92

By written notice dated May 18, 1994, respondent notified the undersigned and his adversary that he wished to withdraw his Petition of Appeal concerning the increment withholding for the 1992-93 school year. Petitioner has voiced no objection to respondent's request and accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 I CONCLUDE that this case is WITHDRAWN and the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law shall return the matter to the Commissioner of Education for appropriate disposition.

EDU 7807-94

Respondent, Jerry Barshatky, has resigned from his teaching position with the Freehold Regional High School District, effective June 30, 1994 and has retired from teaching, his application for retirement having been approved by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, effective July 1, 1994. Respondent's affidavit of June 10, 1994, establishes that respondent reached his 62nd birthday on December 9, 1993 and assures the undersigned and the Commissioner that he has no intention whatsoever of resuming any type of teaching career at the elementary or secondary level. It is respondent's contention that the tenure charges seeking to remove him from his tenured teaching position are therefore moot and should be dismissed.

An issue is "moot" when a determination is sought on a matter which, when rendered, cannot have any practical effect on the existing controversy. In other words, the conflict between the parties has become merely hypothetical. See Black's Law Dictionary 409 (5th ed. 1979), and In re Conroy, 190 N.J. Super. 453, 458 (App. Div. 1983). Our courts, and the Commissioner as well, ordinarily will refuse to review questions which become academic prior to the issuance of a decision out of reluctance to render a legal decision in the abstract and a desire to conserve judicial or administrative resources. In re Conroy, supra., Carolyn Henry v. Board of Education of the City Wildwood, 1975 S.L.D. 1. Unquestionably, the relief sought by petitioner in the tenure inefficiency charges filed with the Commissioner, i.e., the removal of respondent from his tenured teaching position, can no longer be granted. Petitioner argues that although the case is moot, the issues presented are of such great public importance that a resolution is warranted nevertheless. While recognizing that the Commissioner has on many occasions approved settlements in tenure cases involving only inefficiency charges as consistent with the public policies articulated in Cardonick v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brooklawn, EDU 7093-81, 7094-81 and 100-82, petitioner argues that the within matter warrants a different conclusion because a lengthy hearing on the merits has already been conducted and because petitioner does not consent to the dismissal.

Although it is true that substantial resources of both parties and the administrative law judge have already been committed to this matter, a dismissal of the moot case at this point will still conserve judicial and administrative resources by obviating the necessity for the preparation of a written opinion by the administrative law judge and by the Commissioner and perhaps by appellate forums thereafter. Furthermore, none of the individual charges presents any novel issue such that a decision on the merits would further clarify the body of law concerning inefficiency charges and what constitutes inefficiency. The tenure charges contain no allegations of wrongdoing or misconduct which might nevertheless require determination by the Commissioner of Education for the imposition of a sanction or reprimand.

Petitioner also expresses concern that "dismissal of the tenure charges at this juncture would encourage tenure teachers to contest tenure charges, even where the facts are clear . . ., continue to draw salary without working for an extended period of time, accrue additional pension credit and then simply 'bail out' into the safe haven of retirement at the last possible moment, with no resolution of the pending charges." It is not the dismissal of moot cases, however, which encourages the scenario recited by petitioner, but rather the existence of other statutory and regulatory provisions which ensure the payment of salary and the accrual of additional pension credit, regardless of the outcome on the merits. It is, of course, true that pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 respondent (and all other respondents in tenure proceedings) received his full salary following the passage of 120 calendar days after certification of the charges. Any determination on the merits in this matter, however, would be totally irrelevant to the payment of those monies, since no provision exists for repayment upon a determination adverse to the teacher. Likewise, N.J.A.C. 17:3-4.1(f), a regulation adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, provides:

> A member under 62 years of age will receive service credit for that base salary received during the period of his suspension in which he is awaiting a determination by the Commissioner of Education as provided under N.J.S.A. 18A-6.14. (sic) Service credit will not be granted for such salary after the first of the month following his attainment of age 62 when that salary will no longer be covered by Social Security.

Accordingly, regardless of any determination on the merits, respondent is entitled to receive service credit in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund for the monies paid pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 up until his 62nd birthday (which was December 9, 1993) and not thereafter. A decision on the merits would have no impact on either salary payments or pension credit, therefore, and consequently, neither of those factors provides any reason for determining a moot case.

Furthermore, inefficiency charges, standing alone without accusations of wrongdoing or conduct unbecoming are not generally something which concerns the State Board of Examiners. This is apparent from the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5, a regulation governing teacher certification, which reads:

> In cases in which teaching staff members accused of misdemeanors, crimes or conduct unbecoming which might warrant revocation or suspension, resign or retire from their positions, either before tenure proceedings have been brought or prior to the conclusion of such proceedings, it shall be the responsibility of the chief school administrator of that district to notify the State Board of Examiners of the alleged conduct pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)2. Should the Board of Examiners issue an Order to Show Cause, it shall be the responsibility of the district which reported the conduct to cooperate with the Board of Examiners in ascertaining and presenting the facts underlying such allegations.

Accordingly, in cases such as the present where the only charges are inefficiency, petitioner has no obligation to notify the Board of Examiners of respondent's resignation and retirement. The likelihood of respondent, who will be 63 years old this year, obtaining employment in some other district and thereby potentially subjecting other students to inefficient teaching, is so remote as to be almost nonexistent, and in any event, respondent, in a sworn statement, has expressed his intention not to teach in any school under the Commissioner's jurisdiction subsequent to his retirement, effective July 1, 1994. Our courts have routinely dismissed moot cases even after extensive litigation at the trial and appellate levels and even when it is contrary to the wishes of one or both parties when there is no compelling reason to issue a decision. See, e.g., Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners of Education, 68 N.J. 301 (1975), Degnan v. Curcio, 87 N.J. 372 (1981).

None of the exceptions to the mootness doctrine which would warrant the issuance of a decision on the merits despite mootness exists in this matter, and accordingly, respondent's motion to dismiss the charges as moot is hereby GRANTED.

The only way for a board of education to withhold an increment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14* is by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership at a meeting conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-1 to 21. It is undisputed that there was no such vote with respect to respondent's 1993-94 increment. Petitioner argues that respondent was not entitled to an increment by the terms of the Negotiated Agreement which require the completion of 94 working days in the prior school year to establish eligibility for an increment. Since respondent was suspended for the entire 1992-93 school year as a result of the pending tenure charges, the petitioner argued that he failed to satisfy the threshold requirement for receiving an increment. While the circumstances recited by petitioner obviously constitute "other good cause" within the statute for withholding respondent's 1993-94 increment, petitioner, for whatever reason, - probably through inadvertence - failed to take the necessary actions required by law to accomplish the increment withholding. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent's 1993-94 increment must be paid.

For all of the foregoing reasons, it is ORDERED that EDU 6008-92 is hereby WITHDRAWN, EDU 7807-92 is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE, and EDU

* That statute provides in pertinent part:

> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education. It shall be the duty of the board of education, within 10 days, to give written notice of such action, together with the reasons therefor, to the member concerned. The member may appeal from such action to the commissioner under rules prescribed by him. The commissioner shall consider such appeal and shall either affirm the action of the board of education or direct that the increment or increments be paid. . . .

12017-93 is resolved in accordance with the foregoing opinion and petitioner is hereby ORDERED to pay respondent's 1993-94 increment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. By extension, exceptions of the Board and replies thereto of Respondent Barshatky were timely filed in accordance with the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments presented in post-hearing submissions which the Commissioner determines were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in her initial decision. Additionally, the Board advances that a determination of mootness in this matter is precluded by the grievance filed against the Board seeking payment for unused sick leave for respondent. It urges that resolution of such grievance requires a decision on the merits of the tenure charges herein.

In reply, respondent asserts that that there is no relationship between the pending grievance proceeding, which will culminate in binding arbitration, and the issue of whether the within tenure charges should be declared moot. He states that the grievance is purely contractual in nature and the claims would be the same whether or not respondent retired and regardless of the outcome of the tenure charges at issue. (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 10)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines the Board's exceptions to be without merit and concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that, under the circumstances existing in this matter, the within tenure charges of inefficiency, seeking the removal of respondent from his position, are rendered moot by respondent's retirement effective July 1, 1994. The Commissioner finds the discussion of the ALJ in this regard comprehensive and cogent. (See Initial Decision, at pp. 4-7.)

Further, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's determination that because the Board did not comply with the mandates of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 in the withholding of respondent's 1993-94 increment, such increment must be paid him.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The within tenure charges (EDU 7807-92) are dismissed, with prejudice, as moot and the Board is hereby ordered to pay respondent's 1993-94 increment.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 26, 1994

For the Petitioner/Respondent-Appellant, Kenney, Gross & McDonough (Malachi J. Kenney, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent/Petitioner-Respondent, Klausner, Hunter & Cige (Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., of Counsel)

On August 17, 1992, the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District (hereinafter "Board") certified tenure charges alleging inefficiency and incompetency against Jerry Barshatky (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member. That case was subsequently consolidated with petitions filed by respondent challenging the Board's action in withholding his salary increments for the 1992-93 and 1993-94 school years.[1] Hearings were conducted in the Office of Administrative Law between March and December 1993. On May 18, 1994, however, after submission of post-hearing briefs and a month-and-a-half after the record had closed, respondent notified the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") that he had submitted his resignation from his tenured position, effective June 30, 1994, and had filed retirement papers with the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund.[2] As a result, respondent filed a motion to dismiss the tenure charges against him as moot.

On August 23, 1994, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended granting respondent's motion. The ALJ found that "a decision on the merits would have no impact on either salary payments or pension credit, therefore, and consequently, neither of those factors provides any reason for determining a moot case." Initial Decision, slip op. at 6. The ALJ asserted that "inefficiency charges, standing alone without accusations of wrongdoing or conduct unbecoming are not generally something which concerns the State Board of Examiners." Id. She found that "[t]he likelihood of respondent, who will be 63 years old this year, obtaining employment in some other district and thereby potentially subjecting other students to inefficient teaching, is so remote as to be almost nonexistent, and in any event, respondent, in a sworn statement, has expressed his intention not to teach in any school under the

[2] We note that respondent's application was subsequently approved by the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, effective July 1, 1994.

Commissioner's jurisdiction subsequent to his retirement, effective July 1, 1994." Id. at 7.

The ALJ also recommended directing the Board to pay respondent his salary increments for the 1993-94 school year, finding that the Board had failed to take action to withhold respondent's increments by a recorded roll call majority vote of the Board in open meeting as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.[3]

On October 26, 1994, the Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, dismissing the tenure charges as moot and directing the Board to pay respondent's 1993-94 increments.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board, contending, inter alia, that the public interest requires a determination on the merits of the tenure charges, that a grievance filed on behalf of respondent seeking accumulated sick leave pay is dependent upon a determination of those charges, and that the State Board of Examiners will require findings of fact and conclusions of law in determining whether to take action against respondent's teaching certificates.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner both as to the tenure charges and salary increments, and remand for a determination on the merits of those tenure charges.

[3] N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides, in pertinent part:

> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education.

Initially, we reject the Commissioner's determination that the withholding of respondent's salary increments for the 1993-94 school year could not be sustained since the Board had failed to follow mandated procedures. We stress that respondent had no entitlement to receive a salary amount that included an award of increments during his suspension following the Board's certification of tenure charges in August 1992. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Anthony Castaldo, decided by the State Board, 1986 S.L.D. 3026. In requiring resumption of an employee's full salary 120 days after certification of tenure charges, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 does not provide for automatic raises from year to year while the litigation is in progress. "In that increments are intended to reward only those who have contributed to the educational process, Bd. of Education of Bernards Tp. v. Bernards Tp. Ed. Assn., 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979), the mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 can not be construed as conferring an entitlement to automatic raises during suspension." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of John Eberly, decided by the State Board, 1988 S.L.D. 2441, 2445. Consequently, we reverse the Commissioner's determination directing the Board to pay respondent his salary increments for the 1993-94 school year.

We also reject the Commissioner's determination to dismiss the instant tenure charges as moot. Proposed settlements or withdrawals of tenure charges are required to be submitted to the Commissioner for his prior scrutiny and approval. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, decided by the State Board, April 6, 1983. Approval may not be granted by the Commissioner unless such action is found to be consistent with the public interest. Id. While the instant matter does not involve the settlement or withdrawal of tenure charges, respondent's motion to dismiss the instant charges was predicated on his unilateral action in retiring from his tenured position following the completion of hearings and the submission of post-hearing briefs in the Office of Administrative Law. The Board, which certified and litigated the tenure charges, opposes dismissal of the charges, and we find no justification for subjecting respondent's motion to any less scrutiny than a proposed settlement or withdrawal of tenure charges.

After reviewing the particular circumstances presented herein, we conclude that determination of the instant charges is required in the public interest. Notwithstanding respondent's age and his sworn statement indicating his intention not to teach in any school under the Commissioner's jurisdiction, he retains his teaching certificates, which qualify him for employment in the state as a teacher. Nor can we countenance the ALJ's presumption that inefficiency charges standing alone do not concern the State Board of Examiners, which determines whether there is cause to revoke or suspend a certificate holder's certificates pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38, as implemented by N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.4, on the basis of the particular facts in the record of each individual case. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. Cf. In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificates of Frances Dullea, decided by the State Board of Examiners, March 20, 1986, aff'd by the State Board of Education, September 3, 1986.

While the State Board of Examiners could conduct its own hearings in determining whether any action against respondent's certificates is appropriate, judicial economy dictates that the instant charges proceed to final disposition. The ALJ conducted extensive hearings in this matter over the course of ten months, and the record had closed following submission of post-hearing briefs. Under these circumstances, requiring additional hearings on issues which have already been fully litigated would be a misuse of resources.

Moreover, there is still an outstanding claim which may be dependent upon the determination of those charges. The parties indicate that the Freehold Regional High School Education Association filed a grievance with the Board on behalf of respondent seeking pay for his accumulated unused sick leave under the terms of the district's collective negotiations agreement. The Board contends that resolution of the grievance is fully dependent upon a determination of the tenure charges since the collective negotiations agreement provides such benefits only to employees with 25 years of teaching experience and at least 75 days of accumulated unused sick leave. The Board maintains that since respondent had fewer than 75 days accumulated sick leave prior to his suspension, his entitlement to that contractual benefit turns on resolution of the tenure charges and his resultant statutory entitlement to accrue sick leave during the period of his suspension. Respondent counters that the grievance proceeding has no bearing on the mootness issue.

We disagree. While respondent's statutory entitlement to accrue sick leave during the period of his suspension following certification of the tenure charges is not before us in these proceedings, it is evident that his right to contractual sick leave benefits in this instance is dependent upon whether N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, in requiring resumption of an employee's "full salary" 120 days after certification of tenure charges, includes the accrual of sick leave during that period in the event the tenure charges are ultimately sustained.

Consequently, for the reasons expressed herein, we reverse the Commissioner's decision directing the Board to pay respondent his salary increments for the 1993-94 school year and dismissing the instant tenure charges as moot, and remand this matter to the Commissioner for a determination on the merits of those charges. We stress in so doing that in the event respondent ultimately prevails on the merits of the tenure charges, he would be afforded such relief as is necessary to make him whole, including retroactive restoration of his salary increments and accumulated sick leave. See Eberly, supra, at 2446.

We deny the Board's request for oral argument as not necessary for a fair determination of this matter. N.J.A.C. 6:2-3.2.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

James E. Collins, Esq., for petitioner (Cerrato, Dawes, Collins, Saker & Brown, attorneys)

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for respondent (Klausner & Hunter, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 25, 1997 Decided: December 1, 1997

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

On May 1, 1996, the State Board of Education issued a decision remanding this matter to the Commissioner of Education for a determination on the merits of tenure inefficiency charges.

The State Board of Education opinion expressed two reasons for rejecting the Commissioner's determination that respondent's retirement made the tenure charges moot: 1) The New Jersey State Board of Examiners might wish to institute proceedings against respondent's teaching certificate, and 2) petitioner objected to dismissal of the action as moot because, according to petitioner, resolution of a grievance filed by respondent seeking compensation for his accumulated unused sick leave under the terms of the district's collective bargaining agreement was dependent upon a determination of the tenure charges. On May 16, 1996, the Commissioner of Education retransmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings consistent with the State Board of Education decision. By order entered August 21, 1996, the matter was placed upon the inactive list for a period not to exceed six months, pending resolution of respondent's appeal in the Appellate Division of the Superior Court. In September 1996, respondent withdrew his appeal in the Appellate Division, and counsel for both parties advised the undersigned that they were actively involved in settlement negotiations which, if successful, would resolve both concerns expressed by the State Board of Education.

By letter dated May 2, 1997, counsel for petitioner advised that the parties had reached agreement in principle on settlement of both the tenure charges and the issue concerning compensation for unused sick leave. On August 6, 1997, counsel for respondent forwarded to the undersigned a copy of correspondence sent to James E. Collins, Esquire, newly retained counsel for petitioner. That correspondence included draft settlement agreements executed by respondent concerning both issues as well as an affidavit signed by respondent on July 3, 1997. That affidavit is annexed hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length. By letter dated November 21, 1997 and received on November 25, 1997, counsel for petitioner transmitted to the undersigned the fully executed agreement concerning respondent's voluntary surrender of his instructional certificate. The November 21, 1997 letter bearing counsel's signature and the fully executed agreement are also attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth herein at length. A copy of the settlement agreement resolving the unused accumulated sick leave issue, which I received with counsel's August 6, 1997 letter and therefore is signed only by respondent, is also attached hereto for informational purposes only. That agreement resolves a dispute which had been the subject of an arbitration award issued on July 15, 1996. (Apparently the arbitrator did not feel that a resolution of the tenure inefficiency charges on the merits was necessary to a determination of the issue). Since petitioner has forwarded the signed agreement resolving EDU 7807-92 and since it was petitioner's contention to the State Board of Education that resolution of the grievance was fully dependent upon a determination of the tenure charges, I CONCLUDE that the subject matter of the grievance has been amicably resolved between the parties as well and, accordingly, the within settlement agreement between the parties satisfactorily resolves both concerns expressed by the State Board of Education.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that there is currently no existing public policy reason for issuing a decision on the merits of the inefficiency charges. The within settlement agreement satisfactorily addresses any issues which might otherwise have been of concern pursuant to In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, decided by the State Board April 6, 1983. I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Merit System Board does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF KEARNY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board member contended that Board's action of renegotiating a five-year term for superintendent after he served only one year of his initial three-year contract violated N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15. Petitioner contended that Board lacked the authority to alter the superintendent's term of appointment until the end of his initial term.

Initial decision found that the initial agreement did not comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15. The Board had appointed the superintendent for a three-year term but did not reduce the agreement to writing. Thus, no enforceable contract existed that could be rescinded and, consequently, the ALJ concluded that the Board could by majority vote appoint the superintendent by written contract for a term of five years under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that N.J.S.A. 25:1-5(e) is applicable to contracts between boards of education and superintendents of schools entered into pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15.

In light of the insufficient present record, the Commissioner remanded matter to OAL for further findings related to superintendent's contracts in question.

Respondent.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

Frederick R. Dunne, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Dunne & Thompson, attorneys)

Melissa Vance Kirsch, Esq., participant for the New Jersey Association of School Administrators, appearing pursuant to *N.J.A.C.*1:1-16.6

Record Closed: June 6, 1994 Decided: July 25, 1994

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Ronald R. Graham, a board member of the Board of Education of the Township of Kearny (Board), alleges that the Board acted illegally when it negotiated a five-year term contract in August 1993 for the superintendent of schools who had completed only one year of his initial three-year contract. Petitioner asserts that under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15, the Board lacks authority to alter the superintendent's term of appointment until the end of his initial term.

The Board asserts that the Superintendent's three-year contract, effective July 1992, was mutually rescinded in August 1993. Then, in September 1993, after the verbal contract between the superintendent and the Board was canceled by mutual consent, the Board awarded a new five year term contract to the superintendent. Thus, the Board submits that its action did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 3, 1993, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52 :14B-1 to-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On January 18, 1994, Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., filed a notice of appearance on behalf of petitioner. On March 7, 1994, I granted participant status to the New Jersey Association of School Administrators (NJASA). Hearings were held on February 24, March 16, 17, and April 18, 1994. The parties and the participant submitted posthearing briefs and the record closed on June 6, 1994.

ISSUES

1. Whether an oral contract appointing a superintendent of schools to a three-year term pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 is enforceable; and if so;

2. Did the Board lack authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 to rescind the three-year verbal contract and thereafter execute a five-year written contract.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The following relevant undisputed facts are adopted as FACT:

1. On May 19, 1992, the past Board appointed John J. McGeehan as the new Superintendent of Schools, effective July 1, 1992.

2. The Board appointed McGeehan to a three-year term from July 1, 1992 to June 30, 1995, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15. McGeehan's starting salary was $96,000.

3. As of August 1993, McGeehan had completed fourteen months of the three-year appointment.

4. During the period July 1, 1992 to August 17, 1993, no written contract was executed between the Board and McGeehan; Frederick R. Dunne, Jr. was the Board attorney.

5. On April 20, 1993, Ronald R. Graham, David Stevenson and William Campbell were elected to the Board for three-year terms.

6. The Board reorganized in April 1993 and presently consists of the following persons: Howard Zimmerman, president; Mary S. Torres, vice president; Judith A. Hyde; Richard Weber; Sebastian J. Viscuso; and Stephen A. Stewart.[1]

7. In June/July 1993, Board attorney Dunne requested the Board members to provide suggestions, if any, for inclusion in the superintendent's employment contract.

8. By memorandum dated July 6, 1993, Board member Graham submitted job performance goals for the Superintendent's contract.

9. The published agenda for the August 17, 1993 Board meeting did not specifically state formal action was contemplated on a proposal to grant Superintendent McGeehan a five-year contract.

10. Dunne and McGeehan had numerous meetings from July to August 1993 to discuss the terms and conditions for inclusion in the superintendent's contract.

[1]The names of the Board members are listed in Exhibit J-1, Stipulation of Facts, dated February 24, 1994.

11. At the August 17, 1993 Board meeting, Dunne stated that the superintendent's contract was nearly complete except for the starting date and term.

12. At the August 17, 1993 Board meeting, McGeehan stated that he and Dunne had been negotiating the terms of the contract for approximately two months.

13. During the August 17, 1993 Board meeting, Board member Campbell requested that Dunne first provide a written contract including all pertinent terms before the Board voted to rescind McGeehan's existing three-year appointment. In response to a motion to rescind the balance of McGeehan's three-year term, Campbell stated, "It just doesn't make sense to me to be voting on a term of service when we haven't really seen the make-up of what the contract says. You know, I don't know" (J-1).

14. No written legal opinion was rendered by Board attorney Dunne concerning the legal basis under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 for the Board to rescind the Superintendent's uncompleted three-year term and granting a five-year appointment.

15. On August 17, 1993, the majority of the Board voted to rescind McGeehan's three-year appointment. There was a vote concerning a five-year term.

16. On September 20, 1993, the Board by majority vote approved the Superintendent's contract, containing a five-year term from July 1, 1993 to June 30, 1998, and set a salary of $103,733 for the 1993-94 school year.

ARGUMENT

Petitioner contends that the Board and superintendent had an enforceable three-year contract. The Board appointed McGeehan to a three-year term by resolution. The agreement included an annual salary at $96,00.00, sick leave, vacation, health coverage, and other benefits. Thereafter, on September 20, 1993, the Board voted to approve a written contract containing all the terms and conditions of employment within one document. Thus, it is submitted that the essential elements of McGeehan's contract were committed to writing.

The Board concedes that on May 19, 1992, it appointed McGeehan as the Superintendent of Schools, effective July 1, 1992, but "[f]or a variety of reasons, none of which seem significant, the appointment of Mr. McGeehan was never reduced to a written agreement" (Respondents brief at 1). Thereafter, in May or June 1993, the Board attorney was directed to meet with McGeehan "and work out or negotiate the terms of the contract" for Board approval. Ibid. Also, the Board attorney was asked whether the superintendent's contract could be lengthened.

The Board argues that it and the superintendent of schools have a right to modify or enter into a new employment contract. The Board relies on basic contract principles; the parties to a contract may, upon sufficient new consideration, by agreement, rescind, modify or supplement the existing agreement. Here, there was new consideration given by the Board and the Superintendent. Thus, the Board submits that the second or modified contract is valid.

Participant NJASA maintains in its brief that the typical situation involves a superintendent who has a written multiple-year contract but is then given a new contract for a term of three to five years before the initial contract term has expired. Although the statute expressly requires a written contract between the board and the superintendent, the NJASA asserts that a Board cannot avoid the dictates of the statute by failing to enter into a written contract. For example, a board may not attempt to terminate a superintendent who has never been given a written contract. Consequently, a determination that oral contracts are not enforceable would allow boards to circumvent the requirements of the tenure law by failing to set forth the terms and conditions in a written contract. Thus, it is submitted that a superintendent's contract, whether oral or written, may be mutually rescinded, modified or amended.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

A superintendent of schools shall be appointed by contract for a term of not less than three years nor more than five years. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 states in part:

> The board of education of a Type I district and any Type II district, now having or hereafter authorized to have a superintendent of schools, may by contract appoint, for a term of not less then three nor more than five years and expiring July 1, a superintendent of schools by the recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board.

Thus, the Legislature has empowered local boards of education to appoint superintendents, granted specific contractual power to the local boards to effectuate the appointment of superintendents, and prescribed the minimum period of three years for the superintendent's term of employment.

N.J.S.A. 25:1-5(e) provides that no action shall be brought on an agreement that is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof, unless such agreement shall be in writing. Moreover, a letter or memorandum does not suffice under the statute unless the writing itself contains the essential terms of the agreement, including the salary. Olympic Junior, Inc. v Davis Crystal, Inc., 463 F. 2d. 1141, 43-44 (3d Cir. 1972), (the court held that a five-year employment contract which was not reduced to writing did not satisfy the requirement of the statute of frauds); Kooba v. Jacobitti, 59 N.J. Super. 496 (App. Div. 1960) (two-year oral employment agreement unenforceable under the statute of frauds).

When enacting law, the Legislature is presumed to be aware of its prior enactments and judicial construction placed on them. Mahwah Tp. v. Bergen County Bd. of Taxation, 98 N.J. 268 (1985); County of Essex v. Comm'r, N.J. Dep't of Human Services, 252 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1991); Guzman v. City of Perth Amboy, 214 N.J. Super. 167 (App. Div. 1986). Thus, the application of this principle to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 warrants a finding that the Legislature is aware of the operation of N.J.S.A. 25:1-5(e).

In enacting N.J.S.A. 25:1-5(e), the Legislature intended that certain contracts be memorialized. The formality of a writing assists the parties to the contract and the tribunal in adjudicating issues surrounding the parties agreement. Also, inherent in all persons is the tendency of memory to fail and go stale with the passage of time. Thus, Section (e), the one-year provision, separates contracts of long duration from contracts of short duration; the former requires a writing, the latter does not.

In enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15, the Legislature inserted in the text the term "contract" and set the minimum amount of time that a superintendent's contract is to run at "three years." The Legislature's usage of the term "contract" and the minimum term of "three years" are not excess verbiage. Legislative language must not, if reasonably avoidable, be found to be inoperative, superfluous or meaningless. Thus, when the Legislature choose to assign a minimum allowable term and included the term contract, it meant to shroud the agreement between the board and the superintendent with all the benefits and burdens concomitant with a lawful and enforceable contractual relationship.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that N.J.S.A. 25:1-5(e) is applicable to contracts between boards of education and superintendents of schools entered into pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15.

Here, the Board appointed the superintendent for a three-year term but did not reduce the agreement to writing. Although the Board does not specifically address whether the three-year agreement is enforceable, it argues that it was empowered to rescind the existing contract and enter into a new contract. Petitioner, however, avers that an enforceable three-year contract existed between the Board and the superintendent. Indeed, on May 19, 1992, the Board, by resolution, appointed McGeehan "to a three-year contract" but did not vote to approve a written contract containing all the terms and conditions of employment within one document until September 20, 1993. Thus, it is submitted that the essential elements of the contract were committed to writing.

I reject the parties' argument because the written contract between the Board and McGeehan contained at least two essential changes from the prior oral agreement--an expanded term of employment from three to five years and an increased salary from $96,000 to $103,733 annually. Thus, the Board and superintendent would first have to rescind the initial agreement and then enter into a new agreement. Implicit in the concept of mutual recession is the existence of a lawful contract. Here, the initial agreement did not comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 and, therefore, it was not an enforceable contract. The Legislature intended that agreements executed pursuant N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 be lawful and enforceable. I also reject petitioner's assertion that the Board had no authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 to rescind the three-year contract. No enforceable contract existed that could be rescinded.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that on September 20, 1993, the Board could by majority vote appoint, by written contract for a term of five years, McGeehan as superintendent of schools under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15.

Based on the foregoing conclusions, the remaining issue of whether the Board could rescind an enforceable three-year contract and thereafter execute a five-year contract under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 need not be addressed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RONALD R. GRAHAM,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF KEARNY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions of petitioner, respondent and participant New Jersey Association of School Administrators (NJASA) were timely filed pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner excepts to the ALJ's conclusions that 1) the "Board had no authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 to rescind the three-year contract [since] [n]o enforceable contract existed that could be rescinded;" and 2) the Board by majority vote on September 20, 1993, could appoint the superintendent to a five-year term by written contract. (Petitioner's Exceptions, citing the Initial Decision at p. 8) Additionally, petitioner finds exception with the initial decision in that the ALJ did not address petitioner's allegations of bad faith conduct on the part of the respondent Board.

Petitioner first argues that, since the former board voted by resolution to appoint the superintendent to a three-year contract, the parties' conduct and the operation of the statute

(N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15) created an enforceable contract. In the alternative, petitioner submits that the Board's failure to enter into a written contract should not render the three-year appointment void. Citing Houman v. Mayor & Coun. Bor. Pompton Lakes, 155 N.J. Super. 129, 169 (Law Div. 1977), petitioner contends that the doctrine of substantial compliance should be applied herein; that is, substantial compliance with the objectives and essential elements of a statute should be sufficient to find that the first agreement satisfied N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 and was, therefore, enforceable. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 4)

Both petitioner and NJASA warn that the initial decision can be construed to permit circumvention of the five-year limit on terms of appointment established by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 by adopting an employment agreement which is not reduced to writing. Petitioner argues

> Moreover, the taxpayers are left unprotected by a ruling that the three year appointment was unenforceable. Unquestionably, the intent of the law is to replace permanent tenure, relieving taxpayers of costly buyouts, by providing fixed term appointments. The ALJ's ruling creates uncertainty and instability.

NJASA asserts that, in spite of the above implications of the initial decision, "a board may not avoid the statutory protection afforded superintendents  by refusing to provide a written contact." (Participant's Exceptions, at p. 2) Superintendents employed since the enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15, -20, -20.1 and -20.2 are granted the protection of tenure for a period of from three to five years and, once appointed, can only be removed "for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming a superintendent or other just cause." (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2) Such tenure, NJASA submits, "does not depend on the existence of a contract, written or otherwise." (Participant's Exceptions, at p. 2)

While the Board agrees with the ALJ's finding, it notes that the conclusion would not have been different even if the ALJ had not determined that the Statute of Frauds rendered the initial agreement unenforceable. That is, the Kearny Board of Education and the superintendent mutually agreed to rescind the initial three-year contract and, by majority vote, to award the superintendent with the new five-year contract. The Board posits that, even if the first contract was determined valid, by mutually rescinding that contract, the Board was in a position to validly offer the superintendent a new contract with a five-year term.

Finally, petitioner maintains that the Board's actions with respect to the adoption of a new contract for the superintendent were arbitrary and contrary to public policy, in accordance with Thomas v. Bd. of Ed. of Morris Tp., 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965). Petitioner urges that the resolution to adopt a new contract was a split vote without the presence of the full Board of Education. Petitioner reinforces that the parties stipulated there was no advance notice that action was contemplated at the August 17, 1993 Board meeting regarding the superintendent's contract. Consequently, petitioner was absent from the meeting where the Board voted to rescind the three-year appointment and approve a five-year term. Additionally, petitioner argues > Based upon the responses by Board members Stevenson and Campbell at the August 17, 1993 meeting, no meaningful discussion took place because the majority members refused to disclose critical information.

> (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 6)

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner finds that the issues raised by the parties herein, both before the ALJ and on exception, cannot be adequately addressed by a Statute of Frauds analysis. Left unresolved by such an analysis are the central questions underlying petitioner's claim: 1) May a board of education, under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 et seq., appoint a superintendent for a three-year term and then, one year into the appointment, act to appoint the superintendent to a five-year term? 2) What effect, if any, does the absence of a written initial contract have under the circumstances of this matter in light of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 et seq. and other applicable school law, such as N.J.S.A. 18A:27-5? and 3) If mutual rescissions followed by new contracts are permissible in general, was the Board's action in this instance taken in bad faith and is it voidable on those grounds? Moreover, on the present record, the Commissioner has an insufficient factual and legal basis to make these determinations on his own.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further argument and fact-finding as necessary, consistent with the Commissioner's discussion above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, superintendent dismissed on tenure charges, alleged Board improperly denied payment for accrued vacation time.

ALJ concluded that petitioner had failed to comply with the timeliness requirement of N.J.A.C 6:24-1.2(c) and that the petition must be dismissed. Petitioner had relied on date of State Board's decision, claiming this decision constituted final agency action, while ALJ determined petitioner's cause of action to have been the Commissioner's decision on tenure dismissal.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ that the appeal was untimely filed, but modified the ALJ's analysis to clarify that petitioner's cause of action was the date of his awareness that he would not receive the expected payment, not the date of his actual termination. Petitioner's reliance on the date of the State Board's decision on tenure appeal was misplaced. As termination benefits were not at issue in the Commissioner's decision or on appeal, petitioner had no reasonable basis on which to expect the State Board's decision to effectuate any alteration in his status regarding pay for unused vacation days. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: August 1, 1994 Decided: September 15, 1994

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

By petition filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 3, 1993, Dr. Peter J. Romanoli alleges that he was improperly denied payment for accrued vacation time at the time of his dismissal on tenure charges, and that he is entitled to this payment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The respondent's answer was filed with the Commissioner on March 23, 1993. The respondent admits that the petitioner was not paid for unused vacation days, but denies that the petitioner is entitled to relief.[1] Among other arguments, the respondent asserts that the petitioner's Petition of Appeal was untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), and should be dismissed.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 29, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone prehearing conference was conducted on November 8, 1993, and the matter was set down for hearing. On January 6, 1994, the petitioner filed an amended petition. The hearing was then held as scheduled in Mercerville, New Jersey on May 2, 1994. On that day, the respondent filed its Motion to Dismiss, which argues in part that the petitioner's Petition of Appeal was not timely filed. The record remained open following the hearing to permit the parties to submit post-hearing briefs. The last of these was received on August 1, 1994, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the material facts in this matter are undisputed, and the parties have stipulated to the following, which I FIND AS FACT.

1. Petitioner, Dr. Peter J. Romanoli, was employed as superintendent by the respondent board from April 1, 1971, to July 29, 1992.

2. The only contract of employment received by Dr. Romanoli is dated March 15, 1971(Exhibit J-1).[2]

[1] In his petition, Dr. Romanoli also alleged that he was improperly denied payment for accrued sick days. He withdrew this claim for payment on the day of hearing.

[2] The contract is silent on the subject of vacation days.

3. If the Court determines that Dr. Romanoli could accrue unused vacation leave from year to year, the unused vacation days would total 253.5 as of July 30, 1989 (See Exhibits P-2 and P-3).

4. Board payroll records show that Dr. Romanoli used no vacation:

during the year ending July 22, 1990;
during the year ending July 12, 1991;[3] and during the year ending July 30, 1992

5. Dr. Romanoli earned and had not used 1.9 days vacation for the period from July 1 to 29. 1992.

6. Board records show that Dr. Romanoli had accrued and had not used 115.5 "in district" and 38.5 "out of district" sick days as of June 30, 1992.

7. Dr. Romanoli's final salary was $99,600.00 per annum.

It was also stipulated at the hearing that the respondent's Business Administrator, Wayne Thomas, would have testified if called as a witness that board policy no. 4152, concerning vacations for members of the administrative staff, did apply to the Superintendent. Policy no. 4152 was admitted into evidence as part of Exhibit P-1, constituting an amendment to the respondent's answers to interrogatories. These answers had indicated the respondent's assertion that the petitioner had admitted in his answers to interrogatories that "Board policy was silent with respect to the Superintendent's vacation and with respect to payment for sick leave upon separation." In addition, the respondent had asserted in its answers that "the absence of a policy mandating such payment and the absence of a negotiated agreement mandating such payment supports the Board's refusal."

Policy no. 4152, revised July 27, 1981, provides:

[3] For the purposes of this stipulation, petitioner agrees that he did not earn vacation time from February 20 to June 20, 1991.

All members of the professional staff not part of a negotiating unit, who hold twelve-month contracts are entitled to a month's vacation.

In addition, they shall observe all legal holidays as set forth in the school calendar and any other day designated by law or approved by the Superintendent of Schools.

Absence incurred during the summer to attend school or any other professional activity must be charged to vacation allowance. This does not include time spent at conferences attended with the permission or at the request of the Superintendent of Schools.

Vacations are earned during the year preceding the time when the vacation period is operative. This means that vacation earned during the school year cannot be taken until after June 30th, except by permission of the Superintendent of Schools. Also, vacation days are not cumulative but must be taken during the year following that in which they are earned.

A twelve-month employee who separates from the system before June 30th without completing a full current year of service will be entitled to two days of vacation for each month or major part of a month that he/she was employed. No severance pay will be granted for unused vacation time. However, the days earned may be taken prior to the date of separation, provided the person has been employed by the Board of Education at least six months in that contract year.

A twelve-month employee who terminates his/her employment as of June 30th shall receive his/her vacation prior to June 30th of the contract year.

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

Dr. Romanoli testified on his own behalf. He stated that policy no. 4152 did not apply to him. He said that he did not even have the impression he was administrative staff, since he was the chief executive officer of the school district. As such, he existed in a category all by himself. Dr. Romanoli noted that the policy required administrative staff members to obtain his approval for vacations taken before June 30th of the year they are earned.

It was the testimony of Dr. Romanoli that he did not take a lot of vacation because it was not possible to, for various reasons. One reason was that the board wanted administrative staff to take vacations during the Summer months. Someone had to be present to run the school district offices, so he would cover for employees on vacation. Dr. Romanoli acknowledged that there was nothing in his job description which required him to fill in for employees who were on Summer vacation. However, he said that he felt personal pressure to do that. According to Dr. Romanoli, board members often came into school offices during the Summer to see who was working there. The one time he did take a vacation during the Summer, he was roundly criticized by board members.

The other reason Dr. Romanoli gave for not taking vacation was that he had taken a two weeks vacation to Italy in May 1984, and had been criticized for taking a vacation during the school year. He was criticized for taking a vacation in October 1987, and a vacation he began in January 1990 became part of the tenure charges against him which led to his dismissal.[4] According to Dr. Romanoli, the procedure he followed was to notify the board president when he planned to be out of town, and if there was no objection, he would leave. He said that he never requested vacation permission from the board and thus, the board never denied permission. However, he felt constant pressure from the board to not take a vacation.

Also testifying on behalf of the petitioner was Gerard Whittle, who was a member of the respondent board of education from April 1987 until March 1990. Mr. Whittle stated that the Board wanted Dr. Romanoli to be present no matter what was going on, so that he could answer their questions. The few times he did go away, he was roundly criticized. Mr. Whittle felt the board members generated the crisis themselves by [4] The board's tenure charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education on February 22, 1991, and the Administrative Law Judge's Initial Decision upholding the tenure charges was issued on June 15, 1992. By a Decision issued and effective on July 29, 1992, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the dismissal of Dr. Romanoli from his tenured employment as Superintendent of the Willingboro School District.

In affirming the Commissioner of Education's determination that Dr. Romanoli engaged in unbecoming conduct warranting dismissal from his tenured position, the State Board of Education stated:

> we stress, as did the Commissioner, the seriousness of Respondent's conduct in absenting himself from the district for vacation during the period in which the Board was preparing its 1990-91 budget. This breech [sic] of professionalism is of such consequence that, in our view, it alone justifies Respondent's dismissal.

The Final Decision of the State Board of Education, issued December 4, 1992, was affirmed by the Appellate Division of the Superior Court on April 13, 1994.

demanding answers to their questions, and the worst example of this was the incident which was used in the tenure charges against Dr. Romanoli.

Mr. Whittle also testified that the board had no set policy concerning the superintendent's vacations. He felt the superintendent's status is a unique situation and he opined that the board would have to approve payment of accrued vacation time unless payment were ordered. It was his testimony that he could not remember anyone losing his or her vacation time while he was on the school board; everyone was able to take vacation except the superintendent. According to Mr. Whittle, Dr. Romanoli made sure everyone else had vacation, but the board did not want him to take his.

The foregoing is the substance of the evidential record. The respondent rested without calling witnesses, relying instead upon those matters stipulated above, and upon its legal arguments.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The parties presented several competing arguments as to the import of the above evidence. However, I address only the argument that the petitioner's petition was not timely filed and should be dismissed, as this threshold issue is dispositive of this matter. The respondent contends that the Administrative Code is clear that a petition must be filed with the Commissioner of Education within 90 days of receipt of notice by the petitioner of the order, ruling or action for which the hearing is requested, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The respondent further argues that there should be no relaxation of the 90 day rule where good cause to do so is not shown.

The respondent contends that on the issue of timeliness, the question which must be answered first is when did the petitioner become aware that he could be due payment for unused vacation leave. According to the respondent, the latest this could have occurred was upon issuance of the Commissioner's Decision upholding Dr. Romanoli's dismissal from his tenured position, on July 29, 1992. The petitioner's

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the respondent Board of Education.

In his exceptions, petitioner objects to the initial decision's dismissal of his appeal on grounds of untimeliness. Petitioner argues that his termination by the Commissioner on tenure charges is a separate action from the Board's refusal to pay him for earned vacation time, so that there is no rational basis for establishing the date of the Commissioner's tenure decision as the date from which petitioner's ninety days are to run pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Petitioner further argues that the Board failed to meet its burden of proof in claiming untimeliness, as, in addition to its motion to dismiss being itself untimely made, the Board admitted that it took no specific action with respect to payment to petitioner and such action is a necessary prerequisite to running of the ninety-day limitation period. Finally, in the alternative, petitioner reiterates his contention that the State Board's decision affirming the Commissioner's tenure dismissal constitutes petitioner's cause of action herein, as it represents the final agency action on petitioner's employment.

In reply, the Board argues that the Commissioner's tenure decision is the proper date from which to reckon petitioner's cause of action, as a determination to dismiss a tenured employee constitutes termination of entitlement to any form of compensation on the part of the employee. Moreover, absent a stay, which was not obtained in this case, the Commissioner's determination is the mechanism by which the relationship between the parties is terminated, not the State Board's decision on appeal. The Board further characterizes petitioner's argument as absurd in that, petitioner having never asked the Board for payment of unused vacation time, there being no operative policy in effect and there being nothing the Board could have taken "final action" upon, the argument's logical conclusion is that the ninety-day rule would never expire, a result clearly not intended by regulation or even espoused by petitioner. Finally, the Board urges that petitioner's objection to the timing of its motion to dismiss be found meritless for the reasons stated by the ALJ.

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the within appeal was untimely filed. However, the Commissioner would modify the ALJ's analysis to the following extent.

Initially, the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that termination of employment and a board's nonpayment of anticipated benefits upon termination may in fact constitute separate actions, and that the date of a Commissioner's decision terminating employment cannot automatically be reckoned as the date of a petitioner's cause of action in a matter arising from a dispute over termination benefits. Rather, notwithstanding that a Commissioner's decision may be the impetus for termination, the cause of action in such a dispute is more likely to be a petitioner's receipt of final notice of the board's determination not to pay benefits, or, in the event that a specific determination is lacking or that no specific request has been made to the board, petitioner's recognition that he or she is not receiving benefits as expected. Thus, in the Commissioner's view, the inquiry to be made in the present matter is whether petitioner's cause of action arose upon the date of his termination, and if not, precisely when it did arise. Although the initial decision did not frame the inquiry in this manner, the Commissioner is satisfied that the record already developed permits him to make a full and fair determination without resort to further proceedings.

In the present instance, the Commissioner's tenure decision is silent on the question of benefits, if any, due petitioner upon termination of his employment; therefore, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, petitioner cannot reasonably be found to have immediately recognized that he would not be paid for unused vacation time as anticipated and his cause of action cannot fairly be reckoned as the date of the Commissioner's decision. Neither can the Commissioner look to any "final action" on the part of the Board, as the record is devoid of any indication that petitioner ever made any request to the Board upon which it could have taken such action. Thus, the question becomes one of pinpointing the date of petitioner's recognition that he would not be receiving the expected benefit, a question not definitively answered in the initial decision's fact-finding or apparent in the record.

However, petitioner's employment was terminated by a Commissioner's decision dated July 29, 1992, and it would be unreasonable to conclude that by December 3, 1992, the outside date on which the cause of action could occur for a petition timely filed on March 3, 1993, petitioner did not know, or should not have known, that the Board did not intend to pay him for his unused vacation time. Certainly, petitioner's reliance on the date of the State Board's decision on tenure appeal is misplaced, as termination benefits were not at issue in the Commissioner's decision or on appeal, so that petitioner had no reasonable basis on which to expect the State Board's decision to effectuate any alteration in his status regarding pay for unused vacation days.

Finally, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's contention that his appeal cannot be dismissed as untimely due to the Board's failure to raise the ninety-day rule as an issue in its answer or at prehearing conference, as the record is clear that petitioner had ample opportunity to address this question during the course of proceedings before the ALJ and was in no demonstrable way prejudiced by the Board's actions.

Accordingly, the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law that the Petition of Appeal be dismissed is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein as modified above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. EDU 08941-93

AGENCY DKT NO. 312-8/93

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DONALD UJHELY, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY

Howard Schwartz, Esq., for petitioner, Linden Board of Education
(Schwartz & Barkin, attorneys)

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent, Donald Ujhey
(Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen attorneys)

Record Closed: August 15, 1994 Decided: September 15, 1994

BEFORE: MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Linden Board of Education ("Board") certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and fraud against respondent Donald Ujhely under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1. The specific charges are as follows:

under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1. The specific charges are as follows:

1. Ujhely on numerous occasions made false reports requesting payment for home instruction services.

2. Ujhely knowingly received compensation from the Linden Board of Education based on statements that he rendered services when he did not do so.

3. Ujhely applied for compensation for home instruction on days which he was out of work due to illness or disability. However, the Board relied upon his application and Ujhely received payment.

4. Ujhely falsely stated that he rendered services when he was physically unable to render such services.

5. Ujhely received compensation from his public employer when he did not render the services for which he claimed payment and for which he actually received payment.

The Board submits that the above acts constitute conduct unbecoming a teacher, misconduct and fraud.

Ujhely is a tenured teacher employed by the Board. By resolution adopted on August 16, 1993, the Board found probable cause to certify tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just causes which, if true, were sufficient to warrant Ujhely's dismissal.

On August 26, 1993, the Board filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Also, on September 10, 1993, Ujhely filed an answer to the charges. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative law ("OAL") on September 21, 1993, for a determination as contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to - 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on February 1, 1994, and the matter was scheduled for hearing on May 31, 1994.

The parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to the approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brookline Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 842, the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> [T]he nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the board of education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's findings that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and that the agreement is consistent with the public interest. (Id. at 850-51).

On May 31, 1994, the OAL held a public hearing on whether the proposed settlement should be accepted. Council for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. On August 15, 1994, the parties submitted a written stipulation setting forth the terms of the agreement.

Based on my review of the record and the testimonial evidence, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Ujhely has been employed by the Board for twenty years.

2. Ujhely has admitted to poor record keeping but his competence as a teacher has never been challenged by his colleagues, his students or their parents.

3. As a result of the alleged indiscretions, Ujhely must pay a substantial penalty and has agreed to submit to a medical and psychiatric examination that he is able to resume his teaching duties.

Before entering into the agreement, Ujhely had full opportunity to consult with legal counsel to explain the meaning of the settlement to him. Ujhely is aware that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner may refer this matter to the Board of Examiners for any action which they may deem appropriate. Further, both on and off the record, I informed Ujhely and counsel that notwithstanding the parties' agreement to settle this matter, the Commissioner must approve the agreement. Thus, any execution of a settlement prior to the approval by the Commissioner is done at the peril of the parties.

I CONCLUDE that the proposed settlement fully disposes of all issues and controversies. I further CONCLUDE that the terms of the settlement are in the public interest.

ORDER

It is, ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby CONCLUDED.

for twenty-four (24) school days for 1994, pro-rated four (4) days per month for the period January through June 1994.

2. The Board agrees to add twelve (12) days of sick leave to Mr. Ujhely's unused sick-day bank.

3. Mr. Ujhely will be re-employed as of September 1, 1994 as a tenured teaching staff member with his salary to what it would have been for the academic year 1993-94. (He will not receive any increment or raise for the 1994-95 academic year).

4. Mr. Ujhely will not receive credit for seniority for the time not worked, except for four (4) months in the academic year 1993-94, when he was on worker's compensation and receiving such benefits.

5. Mr. Ujhely will be permitted to return to work for the academic year commencing September, 1994 upon acceptance by the Board of acceptable medical and psychiatric report that he is able to perform his usual teaching duties.

6. Mr. Ujhely agrees to pay back to the Board the sum of $1332.00 without interest, at the rate of $100.00 per month until the said sum is fully paid starting September 1, 1994 and he agrees that the Board may deduct such sum from his payroll checks if he is employed at that time.

7. The Board believes that this settlement is in the public interest in that Mr. Ujhely has been employed by the Board of Education for approximately twenty (20) years, he is suffering a substantial penalty for the alleged indiscretions in the within matter, the certainty of result in this matter, the avoidance of credibility issues, his admission of poor record keeping and the fact that the Board is being made whole as a result of this settlement.

8. The employee, Mr. Ujhely, was advised of his right to have a hearing on the charges and he expressly waived same, such waiver having been on the record together with other rights having been given to him and he having acknowledged same.

This Settlement Agreement is entered into by the Board of Education of the City of Linden, and the Respondent teacher, and submitted to the Administrative Law Judge for inclusion in an initial decision to be submitted to the Commissioner in the within matter.

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: October 28, 1994 Decided: November 7, 1994

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioners claimed that C.R., a student in the respondent's school system, was wrongfully denied admission to the National Honor Society affiliated with the respondent's school. The respondent denied any wrongful conduct. As shown in the attached "Stipulation of Settlement," the case has been settled.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 23, 1994, the petition of appeal was filed with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education and, on March 7, 1994, the respondent's answer and defenses were so filed. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law where, on March 22, 1994, it was received and filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). The case was assigned to me and, on August 15, 1994, it was the subject of a conference and was adjourned to allow the parties time for settlement. On October 28, 1994, the stipulation was filed.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and I FIND and CONCLUDE:

1. The parties have intelligently and voluntarily agreed to the settlement.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

ORDER

I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with it and that this case is concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Mary Ann Smith, a math and comprehensive science teacher, was employed by respondent, Board of Education of Morris County Vocational School District, Morris County (Board) for school years 1988-89 through 1992-93. Petitioner alleges that the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it abolished her position effective June 30, 1993. Further, petitioner alleges that teachers who are nontenured, have less seniority, and /or are not properly certified have been assigned to teach courses which she is entitled to teach. Thus, petitioner requests reinstatement and assignment to a teaching position in accord with her tenure, seniority and certification rights.

Respondent's Morris County Vocational-Technical School (Vo-Tech) offers vocational education programs[1] to high school students and post graduates persons. (J-3) Students spend one-half of the day, morning or afternoon at the vocational school. The other one-half of the day is spent at their local high school where they complete academic programs and participate in social and athletic programs. Ibid.. However, Vo-Tech also offers academic credit in mathematics or science through an academic infusion program. Ibid.

The academic infusion program is a pilot project which incorporates academic proficiencies[2] within the scope of the vocational program. Under the infusion program, high school students may earn five mathematics or science credits in additional to 15 vocational credits per year toward their high school diplomas.

[1] Vocational education is organized educational programs directly related to preparing individuals for employment in areas such as agriculture, technical, trade, and industrial occupations or for additional preparation for a career in fields and occupations requiring less than a baccalaureate or advanced degree. "Vocational education programs include competency-based applied learning which contributes to a pupil's academic knowledge, higher order reasoning and problem-solving skills, work attitudes, general employability skills, and the occupationally-specific skills necessary for economic independence as a productive and contributing member of society". N.J.A.C. 6:43-1.2.

[2] "'Proficiency' means an explicitly stated and demonstrable knowledge and/or skill used to define a desired learning outcome." N.J.A.C. 6:30-4.2.

Respondent argues that petitioner was terminated pursuant to a valid, legitimate reduction in force (RIF) as part of a planned, approved change in its infusion program. Respondent further argues that petitioner's claims are barred by laches and or equitable estoppel.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 13, 1993, as a contested case pursuant to NJSA 52 :14B-1 to-15 and NJSA 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing was held on November 17, 1993, and a hearing was held on April 19, 1994. After the conclusion of the hearing, the parties submitted post hearing briefs and the record closed on June 29, 1994.

The issues are whether petitioner is entitled to reinstatement and assignment to teaching positions in accord with her tenure, seniority and certifications, and back pay.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Background

Based on the documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACT:

In 1987, the State Board of Education (State Board) adopted regulations increasing high school graduation requirements. The revised standards raised concern over the vocational students' ability to meet the new requirements in mathematics and science. (J-6) Thus, in a memo dated February 28, 1990, to the superintendents of secondary school districts, Richard A. DiPatri, Assistant Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) stated that the regulations[3] also provided an alternate program completion option. Ibid. Through the two other methods, pupils could fulfill the State Board high school graduation course and credit requirements. The first alternative method is that students demonstrate a mastery of determined proficiencies, i.e., passing a test.

[3] N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(c)1.ii

The second method is a course substitution. DiPatri also advised the superintendents that under the alternative program completion option, pupils "particularly vocational pupils in shared-time schools, may satisfy . . .[high school graduation requirements] *N.J.A.C.*6:8-7.1(c) 1.i through these methods in lieu of taking the required course[s]." Id. at 2.

In a memorandum dated May 22, 1990, to chief administrators of districts with secondary schools, Assistant Commissioner DiPatri answered questions about course credits and sending-receiving relationships under the Alternate Program Completion Options.

> 2. Q: For a course that meets 160+ minutes a day (the equivalent of twenty credits), may the vocational school district assign fifteen (15) vocational credits and five (5) mathematics or science credits?
>
> A: The vocational school district may assign five (5) mathematics or science credits in addition to the fifteen (15) vocational credits when the instructor certifying the mathematics/science proficiencies associated with these five (5) credits is appropriately certified. In addition, the vocational school district in conjunction with the sending school districts must satisfy criterion #2 in Dr. Richard A. DePatri's memorandum of February 28, 1990 concerning the "course substitution" alternative program completion option:
>
> 3. Q: May a sending district redesignate five (5) of twenty (20) vocational credits as mathematics or science credits even though the vocational district could not do so because its teacher did not possess the appropriate mathematics or science certification?
>
> A: No. N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(d)1.ii(4) states that "group programs based on specified instructional objectives shall be approved in the same manner as either approved course." Therefore, when a "Plan B" course substitution is authorized for a group of students (i.e., shared time vocational) the elective course teacher must possess appropriate certification to teach both the vocational course and the mathematics or science component.
> [J-7 (emphasis addded)]

Thereafter, Assistant Commissioner DiPatri notified Department officials of respondent's request that the Department "consider a variation on the options authorized in the May 22, 1990 question and answer document about alternate program completion options." (J-8). The memorandum dated July 16, 1990, to Joel Bloom, Leo Klagholz, and Lloyd Newbaker states in part that:

> At present, Morris County Vocational employs a teacher certified in both math and science to provide nonvocational courses which satisfy state high school graduation requirements. This math/science teacher has worked with the vocational teachers to identify the math/science proficiencies which are taught in vocational courses. Mr. DeWorken has five school districts that are interested in participating in a pilot program. Their proposal is for students to take a ...vocational course taught by a traditionally certified vocational teacher to receive fifteen vocational credits and five math or science credits. The May 22 question and answer document (Q-3) states that the Plan B Course Substitution Option for groups of students requires that the elective course teacher must possess an appropriate certificate to teach both a vocational course and the math or science component. . . .
> Mr. DeWorken has requested a meeting with senior department personnel to explore the feasibility of receiving a formal wavier to conduct a pilot project which enables youngsters to receive math or science credits in a course taught by a teacher with vocational certification only. He proposes to use his math/science certified person to insure that the proficiencies are included in the curriculum. . . .
>
> It may be the right time for the department to provide greater regulatory flexibility by authorizing this pilot. However, at this juncture I have only agreed to host a meeting to explore in more detail Mr. DeWorken's request.
> [Ibid.]

A meeting between respondent and Department officials was held in July 1990. Superintendent James DeWorken testified that during the meeting there was no discussion that the infusion program's approval was conditioned on employing a certified math/science teacher. However, at the end of the meeting, DeWorken peripherally and casually mentioned that a math and science teacher would be on board as a resource person.

On August 30, 1990, DeWorken submitted a plan to the Department showing how it would award credit for math and science. (J-9). On September 10, 1990, the Department approved respondent's proposed implementation plan for two years. (J-10).

Mary Ann Regan is the acting principal of Vo-Tech, and she has held the following positions with respondent: supervisor of curriculum and instruction, supervisor of special services, and learning disabilities teacher consultant. Regan testified about the objectives of the infusion program. She stated that after the State Board increased high school graduation requirements, Vo-Tech's enrollment has declined. Regan attributed the student attrition to students failing academic courses and thereby becoming credit deficient. Also, students lack the time to attend both the academic and vocational schools. Moreover, students must successfully complete all courses and pass the HSPT before they apply to the shared time vocational program.

Regan agreed with many studies performed in the past five years that "students frequently do not possess basic skills in communications and computation necessary to be successful in a given career field." (J-5). She also believed that "increased linkages are needed between basic skills and trade skills." Ibid. Regan opined that it was feasible for Vo-Tech to offer its students academic training. She noted, however, that the memo from DiParti regarding alternative program completion options raised the issue of teacher certification. Respondent's specific concern was the requirement that "to award academic credit for participation in vocational programs, the instructor must be duly certified in both vocational educational and in the academic area that credit is to be awarded". Id. at 4. Thus, prior to implementing the infusion program, respondent requested a meeting with the State Board to discuss the instructors' certification requirements. (Ibid.).

At that meeting, respondent and Department officials discussed whether teachers who were certified to teach vocational courses, but not certified in math or science, could award credit to students who participated in courses in which math or science proficiencies were presented by the vocational instructors. Regan also informed Department officials that the current separate pull out program [4]would cease, but that the math/science teacher would continue on staff and would be used primarily as a resource to the vocational instructors to implement the math and science academic infusion program.

Respondent implemented its math and science infusion program in 1991-92. school year. (J-13). Regan developed the math/science teacher's job description. (J-11). Although she stated that the math/science teacher was responsible "for providing services to administration, staff and students related to the infusion of mathematics and science in each vocational program" J-11, Regan testified that petitioner was hired as a resource instructor to vocational instructors during the infusion program. She maintained that the infusion program was designed to allow the math/science teacher to assist the vocational teachers for two years; it was not designed to instruct the students. Moreover, the vocational teachers taught the academic concepts "in their own way." Consequently, after the 1993-94 school year, it was unnecessary for the math/science teacher to remain on staff. However, she conceded that that students who fail courses and do poorly no longer receive remedial assistance from petitioner. Instead, the guidance counselors refer the students to their district schools for help. Further, the vocational instructors do not receive formal or outside training in teaching academic math or science content in the vocational class. Since petitioner's termination, Regan has been the resource person to vocational instructors. She answers their questions about teaching math and science in the shop course. Regan also testified that if a certified math and science teacher is required by law then she would recommend dropping the infusion program.

Other conflicting testimonial and documentary evidence describing the role of the math/science teacher in the infusion program is disclosed in memorandums. For example, in a memorandum dated April 10, 1991, Regan also stated that each year 50% to 70% of the students were "high risk" or "special needs learners" in academic areas. Thus, the academic teacher must work with each instructor on modification of the curriculum to meet their special needs. Further, she estimated that 50 to 100 students would require direct services in remedial instruction to be successful. Regan stated that, "It will serve no purpose to offer the possibility of credit if students are unable, due to learning disabilities, to take advantage of it." J-13. Therefore, she recommended that the math/science infusion program for the 1991-92 school year include a full time resource person, continuation of inservice program, staff and material developments, remediation activities, evaluation and assessment, liaison to resident districts and other area vocational-technical schools, and related academic infusion activities. (Ibid).

Additionally, Regan stated that:

> A key to delivery would be "demonstration" teaching or "reciprocal" teaching.
>
> The resource teacher and vocational teacher would work in tandem sharing academic and vocational expertise to present students with a cohesive infusion approach. The resource teacher would present actual lessons in academics in vocational classes to demonstrate academic instructional methodologies.
> [J-13)]

Regan also developed the math/science teacher's job duties. This states in part that math/science teacher shall:

- act as a consultant to each classroom instructor;

- provide two periods daily of reciprocal teaching in vocational classrooms in tandem with the vocational instructor;
- assist in the administration of the pre and post-testing in math and science;
- conduct in-service activities for vocational staff as per annual in-service activity schedule in math and science;
- assist in the identification of remedial learners and provide direct remediation to identified students;
- assist the vocational instructor in the ongoing modification of curriculum delivery for the high risk and special needs learner; serve as a liaison to resident districts in the ongoing articulation for the academic program.

Also, the math/ science teacher reported to the supervisor of special services. (J-11).

Dennis Nick, the former principal of Vo-Tech, sent the math/science teacher's job descriptions to DeWorken in a memorandum dated August 31, 1991. (J-11). In stark contrast to DeWorken's and Regan's testimonies that the major role of the math/science teacher was that of a resource person to the vocational instructors, Nick viewed reciprocal teaching in the vocational classrooms (the math/science teacher and the vocational instructor) as the key to petitioner's involvement with the staff. Thus, the math/science infusion program was a team approach to teaching and petitioner was "the key player in this project." J-11. Also, "to assure the success and effectiveness of the academic infusion program," Nick directed that "[n]o, [vocational] teacher will be permitted to leave the shop or the classroom while Mrs. Smith is teaching or observing " Ibid. Further, in a memorandum dated August 30, 1991, Nick told his staff that "[t]o ensure that this project is implemented in a competent and accountable manner, Mrs. Mary Ann Smith has been hired as our math and science instructor " J-13. She will participate in reciprocal teaching and assist the instructional staff "attain the mastery to infuse math and science into, as it relates to, their vocational program." Ibid. Additionally, he stated that:

> Mrs. Smith will work with the instructional staff for a minimum of two periods per day throughout the school year. She will not be a substitute, nor there to provide coverage of our vocational > staff. When Mrs. Smith is working within a vocational teaching period, both the vocational instructor and Mrs. Smith will be required to be in the room, either teaching or observing.

> [Ibid.].

Regan's mid year report on the infusion program, dated February 3, 1992, stated that petitioner had met the requirements outlined in her job description. Students were excited about the science experiments they performed and also began using the computer laboratory. (J-15). Petitioner's other activities and accomplishments during the 1991-92 school year included

> *A resource library of material, texts, video tapes, filmstrips and slides has been established for each program. . . .
>
> *The establishment of a criterion-referenced test bank. . . .
>
> *The computer laboratory was not utilized by the day school at all during the course of 1990-91 school year. During 1991-92 Mrs. Smith has provided training both for instructors and students. . . .
>
> *Of particular note are the inclusion of Cosmetology and the Auto Service Tech 2 program within the computer lab. . . .
>
> *She has participated to a large extent, on her own time, on the executive council of both the mathematics alliance and science alliance for the county. She organized a dinner that was held at the Voc-Tech in the fall and presented the infusion program as part of the general inservice activities for math teachers in the county. She is continuing her activities in both these areas for the 1992-93 school year. This provides direct liaison activities with each resident district and provides further validation of the infusion program at Morris County Vocational School.
> [J-16].

Regan proposed that petitioner continue the reciprocal teaching for the 1992-93 school year. (Ibid). Petitioner's time would be divided as follows: 40% reciprocal teaching, 40% providing direct remediation to students, and 20% additional training activities. (J-16)

Mary Ann Smith began teaching academic math and science under the "pull-out" program in 1988. Petitioner helped develop the infusion program and was assigned as the program's math/science instructor in 1991. (J-13). In addition to the job duties listed in J-11 and J-12, she continued teaching math and science. However, instead of teaching the subjects in a separate classroom, petitioner taught math or science concepts to the students during the vocational class; in tandem the vocational teacher applied to concept to the trade. For example, in the plumbing and pipefitting class petitioner taught the students the freezing point for water. She also administered quizzes on the subject matter taught and then gave the students' grades to the vocational teacher.

Petitioner prepared a portion of the Middle States Evaluation Committee document for respondent. (J-19). The report stated that "[w]hen program approval was received, at issue was teachers' certification. . . . When it was explained that a math/science certified instructor would be on staff to work with the vocational instructors, [the Department] granted program approval prior to the discontinuance of the math/science position". Id. at 3. The report further indicated that a major weakness cited in the math/science infusion program was the elimination of the math/science position for the 1993-94 school year. Consequently, reciprocal teaching will also be eliminated. Further, "[i]nstructors who have exhibited weaknesses in these areas [formal academic skills] because of a lack of basic skills on their own will no longer receive necessary assistance in house on a daily basis." (J-19).

Argument

Petitioner contends the termination of her employment and the assignment of the math and science instruction for academic credit to teachers with vocational certification violates certification standards and her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner asserts tenure in the positions of math and science. Thus, when her position was abolished, she was entitled to be retained over nontenured or less senior teachers. Further, petitioner asserts that her tenure and seniority rights included all math and science content courses. Therefore, the assignment of courses to teachers not certified to teach math and science content courses and who have no tenure or seniority rights in those subject matters is a violation of her tenure and seniority rights.

Petitioner avers that no law exists which extends the scope of vocational certification or which authorizes teachers who are certified to teach vocational courses to teach academic subjects. Indeed, the designation of appropriate certification and the scope of an endorsement must be established through regulations promulgated by the State Board of Education. Further, any change in the scope of an endorsement must be made through administrative regulation.

Petitioner also contends that respondent sought a waiver of the certification requirement from the State Board because (1) teachers with endorsements in production, personnel, and service occupations cannot teach math or science; (2) teachers with endorsements in technical occupations cannot teach math or science; and (3) teachers with endorsements in vocational technical related subjects can teach technical related math and science subjects, including related areas. But, these endorsements do not confer authority to teach academic math or science for graduation credit. Therefore, respondent's assignment of math and science instruction for academic credit to vocational teachers is unlawful and a violation of petitioner's tenure and seniority rights.

Additionally, respondent's practice is contrary to common sense and good policy. Granting students academic credit for instruction given by teachers who are not certified in math and science and have no formal training in these subjects is an unacceptable lowering of academic standards. Indeed, respondent's practice does not benefit those students it purports to help because vocational students are in most need of remediation and extra help in academic skills. Moreover, there is no guarantee that vocational students will ultimately be employed in vocational settings. Thus, respondent's practice deprives these students of necessary academic instruction.

Moreover, since her termination Voc-Tech has no teacher who is knowledgeable in math or science to assist the students, "despite their dire need for remediation and extra help." Petitioner's brief at 15. Nor is there a certified math and science teacher to help certified vocational teachers who need assistance in these areas. Petitioner submits that this constitutes bad law and bad policy.

Respondent's wavier and estoppel defenses lack merit legally and factually. As a matter of law a teacher cannot waive her tenure or seniority rights. Moreover, petitioner's knowledge that her position might be abolished at some time does not constitute a wavier.

Further, petitioner argues she is not estopped from asserting her rights. She did not misrepresent or conceal facts known to her. Nor did respondent rely upon any actions of petitioner to its detriment.

Thus, petitioner submits that the termination of her employment and allowing teachers who are not certified in math or science to teach math and science for academic credit violated her tenure and seniority rights.

Respondent argues petitioner's major responsibility was to teach the vocational instructors how to better present material that had always been taught by them within their shops. Further, petitioner did not teach "any type of curriculum that could be considered actual math or science instruction requiring math/science certification" such as algebra, geometry, biology or "any other recognized math/science course offering.". Respondent's brief at 3.

Additionally, respondent argues that before the infusion program began the math/science proficiencies were already in the vocational, technical courses. "These proficiencies were always taught by the vocational technical instructors pursuant to their certification " .Id. at 6. Thus, respondent submits that teaching math and science in a trade course does not require the teacher to be certified in math or science.

Respondent also asserts that if a certified math and science teacher is required, then the infusion program would likely be abandoned or reduced from a full time program to part-time. Further, it will destroy state wide initiatives and programs.

Further, respondent argues that the Department's approval of the infusion program renders petitioner's claim frivolous. Moreover, the approval was not conditioned on having a math/science certified teacher on staff. "This was purely information and played no role in the presentation or approval of the program." Id. at 9.

Additionally, respondent asserts that petitioner is estopped from pursuing this action because at least one year prior to her termination she was informed that her position would be abolished. Further, when petitioner raised the issue of certification, "Regan gave her copies of relevant correspondence and material indicating that such certification was not required." Ibid. Thus, petitioner was obligated to make her claim known to respondent before she accepted the position and before she was terminated.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

I

The approval of the infusion program

Respondent's infusion program is currently operating without a teacher holding math and science endorsements. Petitioner alleges that this practice violates the regulations governing professional standards for school teachers and her tenure and seniority rights. However, before addressing petitioner's tenure and seniority rights, I will first discuss the issue of whether teachers who are not certified in math and science can provide instruction in these proficiencies to vocational students within the vocational class setting.

Second, if the Commissioner approved respondent's academic infusion program, thereby waiving regulatory requirements without engaging in rulemaking, what then was the scope of the Commissioner's waiver and approval? To determine the issue of whether teachers who are not certified in math and science can provide instruction in these proficiencies to vocational students within the vocational class setting, requires the analysis of several sub-issues.

First, do the statutes and regulations governing public schools permit students to receive academic credit when taught by an instructor without an endorsement for that subject? Second, if the statutes and regulations do not permit such an arrangement, can the Commissioner waive the applicable requirements? Third, if the Commissioner waived the requirements, what were the elements or conditions of that waiver?

N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1(a) provides that "[e]ach teaching endorsement is required for the corresponding teaching assignment." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)14 establishes that a mathematics endorsement "authorizes the holder to teach mathematics in all public schools." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)20 establishes separate endorsements for biological science, earth science, and physical science and specifies the subdisciplines that teachers holding such endorsements are qualified to teach. Thus, to teach mathematics or science in New Jersey's public schools, one must have an instructional certificate and a mathematics or science endorsement.

A teacher holding the production, personal or service occupations endorsement, the skilled trade endorsement or the technical occupations endorsement is qualified to teach "in the area of his or her State-approved occupational experience." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2 (a) 26, 27 and 28. A holder of the vocational-technical related subjects endorsement is qualified to teach "those subjects utilized in skill[ed] and technical trades such as math, science [and] related theory." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)29.

Respondent asserts that all instructors at Vo-Tech "are appropriately certified as teachers of productions, personal or service occupations, teacher of skilled trades or teacher of technical occupations." Respondent's brief at 6. However, it has not been shown that any of respondent's vocational teachers hold the vocational-technical related subjects endorsement.

The existence of the vocational-technical related subjects endorsement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)29 supports a conclusion that holders of the other vocational endorsements are not qualified to teach the math and science utilized in the vocational curriculum. See also, e.g., Miller v. N.J. State Board of Examiners, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 599, 600 (Dept. of Ed.). Morano v. Bd. of Ed. of Verona, 1990 S.L.D. 1192, 1196 "Statutes and regulations prohibit a teacher being employed except to teach a subject for which he holds an appropriate endorsement and authorization and this is in keeping with the students' right to a thorough and efficient education.", aff'd, Comm'r of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 1201; Old Bridge Educ. Assn. v. Old Bridge Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1986 S.L.D. 1917, 1924 An endorsement to teach French authorizes the holder to teach French. Such endorsement does not authorize the holder to teach anything but French; Savarese v. Board of Ed. of Bernardsville, 1989 S.L.D. 2130, rev'd by Comm'r of Ed.,1989 S.L.D. 2144, aff'd. State Bd. 1990 S.L.D. 1808 Teachers holding any of ten endorsements are authorized to teach family life. The State Board denied a requested exemption that would have allowed a teacher holding a secondary school social science endorsement to teach family life, despite the fact that the individual involved was primarily responsible for development of the district's family life course and had taught it for twelve years.

In this matter, the State Board's policy regarding regarding respondent's proposed infusion program is consistent with the regulation:

> N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(d)1.ii(4) states that "[g]roup programs based on specified instructional objectives shall be approved in the same manner as either approved course." Therefore, when a "Plan B" course substitution is authorized for a group of students (i.e., shared time vocational) the elective course teacher must possess appropriate certification to teach both the vocational course and the mathematics or science component.

Old Bridge Ed. Assoc., supra, 1986 S.L.D. involved facts similar to those presented here and provides some guidance.. Certified teachers with endorsements in social studies, science and English taught, in addition to traditional classes within their respective subject areas, "social studies reading, science reading and literary reading." Each of these specialized reading classes had its own curriculum which concentrated on the relevant subject matter, but also included reading skills such as phonics, pronunciation, prefixes and suffixes. Through a team teaching approach, the board sought to offer the students an interdisciplinary approach to the subject matter while strengthening reading study skills. The administrative law judge (ALJ) and the Commissioner concluded that these teachers of reading required an endorsement to teach reading. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the regulation requires a teacher of math and science to hold those endorsements. Further, I CONCLUDE that a holder of a teacher of production, personal or services occupations endorsement, a teacher of skilled trades endorsement, and a teacher of technical occupations endorsement does not have the necessary credentials to teach math or science.

I am further persuaded by the evidence that the vocational curriculum under the infusion program is substantively different from the previous vocational curriculum under the pull out program. Thus, I also reject respondent's argument that the math and science proficiencies have always been a part of the vocational curriculum. In contrast, the record reflects that respondent requested approval to participate in a pilot project "which enables youngsters to receive math or science credits in a course taught by a teacher with vocational certification only . . . [and] proposes to use his [her] math/science certified person to insure that the proficiencies are included in the curriculum." J-8. Thus, respondent's request is inconsistent with its later assertion that "[t]eaching these math/science proficiencies has always been intrinsically intertwined with the trade, skill, etc,. and does not render the course, in whole or part, a math or science course requiring such [endorsement]." Respondent's brief at 6.

Also, I reject respondent's assertions that petitioner did not give grades nor have any role in the grading process. Petitioner testified that at times she would give the students a quiz that was based on the material that she presented and then she would grade the test. Although she did not use the scores to create grades, she did give those grades to the teacher who would use them.

Petitioner's testimony was credible and straightforward. Further, the testimony is supported by the documentary evidence. In a memorandum dated February 3, 1991, Regan stated that petitioner "assisted in both the administration and the scoring of the pretest in math and science." (J-15) Further, the attachment to the document provides that:

> ...if you have questions about record keeping, I find the instructors doing it several ways:
>
> 1. Segregating your math and/or science questions and placing them at the end of tests/quizzes or
>
> 2. Coding the math/science related questions in the context of the test. . .Another suggestion is if you're giving a test that's strictly math--say on equivalent measures in culinary or engine capacity in auto service, just enter the grades in your book as usual and put a red "M" over the column to cue you when you do your grades...
> [Ibid,]

See also Old Bridge Ed. Assoc., supra, 1986 S.L.D. 1917 where the ALJ and the Commissioner found determinative the fact that the teachers taught and graded the reading class separately from the instructional time devoted to the subject matter. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the students in Vo-Tech's academic infusion program did receive a separate grade for the math or science credits earned.

Further, I CONCLUDE that teachers who are not certified in math and science but provide instruction in these proficiencies to vocational students within the vocational class setting violate regulations governing professional standards for school. Thus, the next question is whether the Commissioner is authorized to waive these regulatory requirements?

The breadth of an agency's power to waive regulatory requirements has been addressed in several cases. SMB. Assocs. V. NJDEPE, 264 N.J. Super.

38, 50 (App. Div. 1993) The government agencies in question have no "authority to grant such a waiver [from regulatory standards] in the absence of a regulation, adopted pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 authorizing waivers and establishing standards for the exercise of waiver authority.", aff'd, __ N.J. __ (1994), (slip op. at 4). "We need not resolve in this case the breadth of an agency's power to waive regulatory requirements or whether a rule authorizing waiver is always necessary. We are satisfied that the Legislature did not contemplate that [the agency] would be authorized to waive substantive requirements of [the law]." The Court noted that the SMB. Assocs. case was exceptional because the primary regulator, DEPE, was at odds with the final review body, the Coastal Area Review Board, comprised of the Commissioners of DEPE, Commerce and Community Affairs. Cf. Dougherty v. Human Services Dept., 91 N.J. 1 (1982) We "conclude that the Commissioner must make the determination as to whether, in the circumstances of this case, waiver of the regulation serves the purposes of the [statute]." Id. at 12

Generally, administrative agencies are bound by the rules they promulgate. SMB Assocs. v. DEPE, supra, 264 N. J. Super. at 50-51; Iuppo v. Burke, 162 N.J. Super. 538 (App. Div. 1978); Crema v. DEP, 94 N.J. 286 (1983); In re Waterfront Dev. Permit, 244 N.J. Super. 426, 434 (App. Div. 1990), certif. denied, 126 N.J. 320 (1991). Iuppo v. Burke, supra, involved a regulation which required the Commissioner of Education to annually classify schools as approved, conditionally approved, or unapproved. The Commissioner decided not to classify the schools in the first year that the regulation was in effect because the unavoidable delay in translating the statutes and regulations into working procedures for local school districts resulted in incomplete data being available to the Commissioner. The Court rejected the Commissioner's argument that the regulations did not establish a start-up date, and that the department was therefore merely interpreting and applying the rules in light of the prevailing circumstances. The Court concluded that the decision to exclude the first year was an amendment to the rule, and therefore, invalid for failure to comply with notice and comment rulemaking. The Court stated that, "It is not necessary that we judge the wisdom of the course chosen by the Commissioner and the State Board. They are bound by duly promulgated rules and regulations." Iuppo v. Burke, supra, 162 N.J. Super. at 549.

In Crema v. DEP, supra, the Court stated that, "[T]he permit granted by DEP in this case ... was not authorized by either the express provisions of [the statute] or any standards found in current departmental regulations implementing [the statute] ... therefore the approval cannot be sustained." Id. at 298. In re Waterfront Dev. Permit, supra, 244 N.J. Super. at 435, the court reasoned that: "To allow the Commissioner to depart from this carefully thought out program whenever he wishes would simply diminish the integrity of his agency's standards without any corresponding benefit."

Although administrative agencies have wide discretion in selecting the means to fulfill the duties the Legislature has delegated to them, e.g., Emmer v. Merin, 233 N.J. Super. 567 (App. Div. 1989) certif.. denied, 118 N.J. 181 (1989); Dougherty v. Human Services Dept., 91 N.J. 1, 6 (1982); Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313, 333 (1984); Texter v. Human Services Dept., 88 N.J. 376, 383 (1984), "this flexibility does not allow an agency to ignore the dictates of the APA." Board of Ed. of City of Plainfield v. Cooperman, 209 N. J. Super. 174, 207 (App. Div. 1986). The need for prompt action "does not absolve the Commissioner from adhering to the mandates of the APA. Ibid.

The issue in Cooperman, supra, was the Department's promulgation "policy guidelines" governing admission to local public schools of children diagnosed with AIDS or AIDS Related Complex. The State argued that the guidelines were not promulgated to establish new policy but were issued "to insist that local school districts comply with the existing regulations and statutes regarding admission of children to school and the communicability of disease." Id. at 205. The Court stated that, "The label given to administrative action should not be determinative if the substance of such action falls within the ambit of rule-making requiring compliance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(e).", Id. at 206. The Court concluded that rulemaking was required due to the widespread, continuing and prospective effect of the policy. Id. at 205. See also Shapiro v. Albanese, 194 N. J. Super. 418 (App. Div. 1984) Court rejected the contention that the agency "circular letter" was not subject to APA because it was an intra-agency or inter-agency statement; the agency called it an interpretation of the rules, and the Court called it "ad-hoc legislation" and a "re-writing" of the regulation. Id. at 429.

The regulations and case law make clear that math and science endorsements are a prerequisite to teaching those subjects in the public schools. Further, the regulations governing the certificates and endorsements necessary to be employed as a teacher in New Jersey schools contain no provision allowing the Commissioner to waive the requirements. Although agencies may have the inherent power to waive de minimus violations of objective standards, SMB Assocs. v. DEP, supra, 264 N. J. Super. at 59, the waiver here involved regulations which enforce fundamental policy determinations that school teachers have certain minimal credentials to teach in the public schools.

Indeed, the New Jersey Supreme Court "has recognized the need and efficacy of rulemaking for establishing administrative law." Crema v. DEP, supra, 94 N.J. at 299. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(e) defines a rule as:

> [E]ach agency statement of general applicability and continuing effect that implements or interprets law or policy, or describes the organization, procedure, or practice requirements of any agency. The term includes the amendment or repeal of any rule, but does not include:

The waiver granted by the Commissioner to respondent is not of general applicability and continuing effect, but a rule governing waiver requests for infusion programs is necessary to avoid arbitrary action by the Commissioner. The criteria set forth in Metromedia, supra, provided a "test of when rulemaking procedures are necessary in order to validate agency actions or determinations." Woodland Private Study Group v. DEP, 109 N.J. 62, 68. (1987).

> [A]n agency determination must be considered an administrative rule when all or most of the relevant features of administrative rules are present and preponderate in favor of the rule-making process. Such a conclusion would be warranted if it appears that the agency determination, in many or most of the following circumstances, (1) is intended to have wide coverage encompassing a large segment of the regulated or general public, rather than an individual or a narrow or select group; (2) is intended to be applied generally and uniformly to all similarly situated persons; (3) is designed to operate only in future cases, that is, prospectively; (4) prescribes a legal standard or directive that is not otherwise expressly provided by or clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization; (5) reflects an administrative policy that (i) was not previously expressed in any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule, or (ii) constitutes a material and significant change from a clear, past agency position on the identical subject matter; and (6) reflects a decision on administrative regulatory policy in the nature of the interpretation of law or general policy.
> [Metromedia, supra, 97 N.J. at 331-332]

The approval of respondent's infusion program does not encompass a large segment of the regulated or general public, but is limited to respondent. However, the parties agree and the evidence shows that this matter contains questions of statewide import , i.e., (1) whether instructors in an academic math and science infusion programs at vocational-technical schools are required to hold endorsements in those proficiencies; and (2) what is the role of the math/science teacher, if one is required.

Indeed, six vocational school districts are offering academic credit for mathematics through an infusion program. The ratio of teachers with a math endorsement to the students earning math credit ranges from 1:12.5 to 1:506. (R-1). Thus, it can be presumed that if one school district is permitted to offer credit for math and science without having a math or science endorsed teacher on staff, other districts will seek to similarly economize.

In this instance the Commissioner waived the regulatory requirements that a teacher of math and science be certified in math and science. (J-7, J-8, J-10). However, it is speculative to determine what aspects of the approval of respondent's program would be generally and uniformly applied to the other districts. Notwithstanding whether the approval was predicated upon a properly endorsed teacher remaining on staff, the Commissioner's approval of the infusion program establishes a standard not obviously inferable from the statutes or regulations. Metromedia, supra. Similarly, the approval constitutes a material and significant change from the prior agency position. Ibid. The Commissioner's approval of respondent's program, together with the apparent approval of other districts' programs, indicates that a general policy has been established to allow such programs. Therefore, I CONCLUDE rulemaking is the appropriate method for establishing the standards to govern infusion programs if it is to operate prospectively. Metromedia, supra.

The remaining issue involves the Department's scope of the approval granted to respondent's pilot project. Petitioner maintains that the project approved by the Department presumes that a teacher with the necessary math and science endorsements will remain on staff as an integral part of the program. Respondent argues that the Department's approval does not require the continued employment of a math and science teacher.

Petitioner relies upon J-8, the July 16, 1990 memorandum from Assistant Commissioner DiPatri to Department officials. The document contains Morris County's request for a waiver of the regulatory requirements and its proposal to "conduct a pilot project which enables youngsters to receive math or science credits in a course taught by a teacher with vocational certification only", and "to use [the] math/science certified person to insure that the proficiencies are included in the curriculum."

Respondent relies upon J-9 and J-10. J-9 is DeWorken's August 30, 1990 correspondence sent to DiPatri after their meeting about the infusion program. It contains Morris County's plan to reach its "eventual goal of Morris County Vocational School awarding the credit for math and science." J-10 is the September 10, 1990 response from DiPatri. The purpose of that letter was "to grant approval of [Morris County's] proposed implementation plan over the next two years." However, neither J-9 nor J-10 mention how the infusion program will address the regulatory requirement that teachers have the proper endorsements to teach math and science.

Both respondent and the Commissioner, however, acknowledged that the teachers' credentials were an issue. (J-5). Although neither the written proposal nor the written approval addresses that issue, respondent testified that at the meeting held to discuss the infusion program "the issue of the district having an academically certified math and/or science person on staff. . .was discussed as an aside." Transcript at 118. Moreover, "at the time we also told them [Department officials] that the math/science teacher that we had would continue on staff and would be utilized in a different forum in terms of acting primarily as a resource to the vocational instructors in implementing the math and science academic infusion program." Transcript at 121.

Additionally, DiPatri specifically sought input from Department officials on "what authorizations and assurances the department might require if we approve this pilot program." J-8. Yet, nothing in the written proposal or approval mentions any required "authorizations and assurances." Consequently, it is not known what elements of respondent's program were considered desirable or necessary.

Finally, neither J-8 nor J-10 include a standard to evaluate the project or criteria for its continuation or termination. "Administrative officers should articulate the standards and principles that govern their discretionary decisions in as much detail as possible." Crema v. DEP, supra, 94 N.J. at 301. "These standards should be determined by agency rulemaking in order that the criteria that underlie their formulation and application can be properly developed and expounded with the maximum involvement of the general public." Id. at 303.

Based on the documentary evidence and the reasons discussed, I CONCLUDE that the Commissioner's approval of respondent's infusion program was predicated upon the understanding that a teacher with endorsements in math and science was an integral part of the program. This conclusion also renders the Commissioner's approval consistent with state regulations.

I further CONCLUDE that the waiver sought by respondent was based on Morris County Vo-Tech's maintaining a teacher with math and science endorsements on its staff. This would insure that the vocational curriculum warrants the academic credit and that assistance would be available to vocational instructors. But, the actual student instruction would be handled by reciprocal teaching from the math/science teacher and the vocational instructor. Thus, I further CONCLUDE that the Commissioner never authorized respondent to dispense with the services of its certified math and science teacher. This conclusion is consistent with the regulatory requirements and the breadth of Commissioner's authority to relax regulatory requirements without a formal rule amendment. Further, it is supported by parties' joint exhibits.

II

b. Tenure

Petitioner argues that she has "tenure and seniority rights in the academic components of Math and Science [and that her] seniority rights include all Math and Science content." Petitioner's Brief at 11.

Tenure is a legislative status, not acquired in any specific assignment, but in the positions which require one to hold appropriate certificates issued by the Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Further, teachers who have Acquired tenure "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause." Ibid. However, a board of education can reduce the number of teachers it employs "whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of a change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Dismissals resulting from any such reduction in force must be made on the basis of seniority within categories of service. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 and 13.

Moreover, in a reduction in force (RIF) situation, a tenured teacher is entitled to any existing position within her category of employment that is held by a nontenured employee or a tenured employee with less seniority. See, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(i). If no such position exists, the tenured teacher is entitled to placement on a preferred eligibility list for re-employment in order of seniority whenever a vacancy occurs for which she is qualified. Gainer v. Wayne Twp. Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4B) 222, 223 (State Board); Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 515 (App. Div. 1987) certif denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987).

Petitioner has been employed by respondent as a math and science teacher from 1988 to 1993, and she has acquired tenure in that position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 However, the evidence show that petitioner's job duties are significantly different than the duties of the various vocational-technical teachers. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the positions of the math/science infusion teacher and the vocational instructor are not equivalent for tenure and seniority purposes. "A mere overlap in duties, ... does not mean that two positions are equivalent for tenure purposes." Dennery v. Passaic Cty. Reg. Bd. Of Ed., 131 N.J. 626, 640 (1993). Indeed, petitioner lacks the necessary endorsements to teach the vocational curriculum. A teacher's "tenure rights do not compel the district to fragment an established multi-disciplinary position for which petitioner is only partially certified." Eftychiou v. Board of Ed. of Bergenfield, 1990 S.L.D. 1068, 1070) The Commissioner held that a tenured teacher with English endorsement is not entitled to one-third of a basic skills course over a nontenured teacher with elementary endorsement which qualifies her to teach the entire basic skills curriculum: reading, math and language arts.

Therefore, if respondent is authorized to offer math and science credits to its vocational students through the infusion program without having a teacher holding math and science endorsements on staff, then petitioner's tenure and seniority rights will be limited to placement on a preferred eligibility list for re-employment whenever a vacancy occurs for which she is qualified. However, I have concluded that the Commissioner s approval of the project was predicated upon the understanding that a teacher with endorsements in math and science was an integral part of the program. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent violated petitioner's tenure rights when it terminated her employment and then assigned math and science instruction for academic credit to teachers with vocational certification only. Thus, for as long as respondent continues to operate the infusion program, a certified instructor with math and science endorsements must be on staff.. Further, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is entitled to reinstatement to the position. Moreover, if respondent decides to terminate its math and science infusion program and revert to providing math and science instruction to its students through a pull-out program, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is likewise entitled to reinstatement to the position of the math and science teacher for the "pull-out" program.

III

Affirmative Defenses

I reject respondent's affirmative defenses that petitioner waived her tenure and seniority rights and that she is estopped from asserting her claim. As a matter of law, a teacher cannot waive tenure or seniority rights. State v State Supervisory Employees' Assn. 78 NJ 54 (1978); In re West Morris Reg. Sch. Dist. 1981 S.L.D. 723, Comm'r. 1981 S.L.D. 732. I also reject respondent's estoppel claim because the doctrine of estoppel is founded on justice and good conscience. It requires that one may not repudiate an act done or position assumed where that course would work injustice to another who, having right to do so, had relied thereon. Mattia v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. 35 N.J. Super. 503,510 (App. Div. 1955). "The essential elements of equitable estoppel are a knowing and intentional misrepresentation by the party sought to be estopped under circumstances in which the misrepresentation would probably induce reliance, and reliance by the party seeking estoppel to his or her detriment." O'Malley v. Dept of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 317 (1987). Estoppel also requires lack of awareness of the true facts by the party seeking estoppel. Horsemen's Benev. & Prot. V. Atlantic City Racing Ass'n, 98 N.J. 445, 456 (1985); Accord, Carlsen, v. Masters Mates & Pilots Pension Fund, 80 N.J. 334, 339 (1979). Respondent has not shown that petitioner misrepresented or concealed facts known to her but not known to respondent. Further, there is no evidence that respondent has relied on any alleged misrepresentation or concealment to its prejudice. See R. 4:5-4. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent has not demonstrated the elements of equitable estoppel.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the Morris County Vocational School District promptly reinstate Mary Ann Smith to her position as the math/science teacher together with back pay and other lost benefits from September 1, 1993, less mitigation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MARY ANN SMITH,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MORRIS COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent sought and received an extension of time, until September 9, 1994, within which to file exceptions to the decision. Such exceptions were not filed until September 13, 1994 and, consequently, are untimely. As such, these and petitioner's reply thereto will not be herein considered.

Given that at the time the circumstances underlying this case arose the Commissioner was Director of the Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification and, in that capacity, present at meetings wherein the Board sought approval of its pilot infusion program project, the Commissioner has recused himself from deciding this matter to obviate any possible appearance of impropriety and designated Assistant Commissioner Peter B. Contini to act in his stead in the deciding of this case.

Upon careful, independent review of the record in this matter, which includes transcripts of the hearing at the Office of Administrative Law, the Assistant Commissioner agrees that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) correctly determined that the Department of Education's approval of the Morris County Vocational School District's infusion program was predicated upon the understanding that a teacher with endorsements in math and science was an integral part of such program and that such an individual would be maintained on the school district's staff.

The Assistant Commissioner determines that the Department's approval of the infusion plan submitted by the district herein envisioned the granting of credit for the infused math/science instruction as a curricular activity pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(d)i(4B). Additionally, the plan as presented was cast in terms of student selection and crediting for the infusion program being effectuated on an "individual" rather than a "group" basis (see Exhibit J-9). It must be herein noted that the Department has historically interpreted individualized programs pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:8-7.1(d)i(4B) and 7.1(d)ii(4) to permit credit for learning experiences without imposing certification requirements on the student's mentor or instructor (see Exhibit J-8). Consequently, the infusion program in this matter, structured on an individualized basis, which contemplated delivery of math/science instruction for academic credit by vocationally certified teachers was consistent with these applicable regulatory provisions. It is clear, however, that since the vocational/technical school, rather than the sending district, was to be the credit granting entity under the district's proposal, program approval was, of necessity, predicated on the presence of a properly certificated staff person to provide the required oversight of program content and delivery, and of student proficiency assessment. As such, so long as the district continues to operate the infusion program proposed to and approved by the Department, it is not free to abolish petitioner's position. Therefore, the Assistant Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that respondent violated petitioner's tenure rights when it terminated her employment.

In that the ALJ found, and the Assistant Commissioner concurs, that there was no waiver of regulations involved in this case, he passes no judgment on the ALJ's rulemaking discussion in the initial decision as such is not necessary for a determination in the instant matter.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted, as modified herein, as the final decision in this matter. The Morris County Vocational School District is hereby ordered to restore petitioner to her position as the math/science teacher with salary and all emoluments, less mitigation, from the date of her wrongful termination.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :

APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, : DECISION

OCEAN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $1,235,504 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $1,235,504 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $42,819,495 for 1994-95 school year.

DECEMBER 23, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAKEWOOD, : DECISION
OCEAN COUNTY. :

For Petitioner, Richard Sacks, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 20, 1994, by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood (Board) seeking inclusion within the 1994-95 General Fund Tax Levy a cap waiver defeated on April 19, 1994, by the voters of the district in the amount of $1,235,504. In addition to the defeat of the cap waiver, the voters also defeated the base budget.

The aforesaid requested cap waiver amount was submitted to the voters pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) which provides as follows:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in addition to the amounts > required to be approved for each school district in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L 1971 (C.18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review or appeal.

The Commissioner notes that the Acting County Superintendent of Ocean County approved the N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) cap waiver request as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education after reviewing the entire school budget to determine whether reallocations within the base budget could be accomplished. As a result of the aforesaid review, the Acting County Superintendent, after discussion and consultation with a Department of Education panel of coordinating county superintendents and representatives of the Division of Finance, directed reallocation of $436,171 within the base budget thus reducing the cap waiver amount to the $1,235,504 presented to the voters of the district. After the Board revised its cap waiver request to reflect the reallocations for the base budget directed by the Acting County Superintendent, the Acting County Superintendent conditionally approved the base budget for submission to the voters with the provision that should the cap waiver be rejected the district would be required to file an appeal with the Commissioner. See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991).

The accounts and the amounts which were approved for submission to the voters as a cap waiver are set forth below:

1. LE1 Alternate School ($174,481) - This program currently serves forty (40) disaffected youth, offering curricular counseling and community service components for these potential dropouts. The program has been identified by the Ocean County Prosecutor for expansion through a grant from the state which will be administered by the prosecutor's office. The school district must be able to maintain its level of funding for this program, or the grant and the expanded program may be jeopardized.

2. Security Services ($242,900) - Provided at four sites including the middle and high schools. Utilized as a preventive measure to hold down incidents of violence and vandalism.

3. Nurses ($195,000) - Six out of the district's seven nursing positions fall into this appeal. Their services are utilized to provide essential instructional, health and developmental support to the transient multiethnic population of Lakewood's schools. This necessitates school nurses providing a liaison between the home and the school. Many families are in desperate need of health care, and knowledge of where and how to receive it. The nurses work closely with Kimball Medical Center to ensure student/parent compliance with state health mandates.

4. Guidance Counselors ($288,619) - Two-thirds of the district's counselors are included in this appeal request. The psychological, social and academic support provided by these personnel to the population of Lakewood's schools is essential. These counselors service all the elementary schools, the middle school and the high school. Elementary counseling would no longer be provided should this waiver not be granted, while levels of service at the secondary level will be reduced. It should be noted that the Lakewood schools do not employ social workers for regular instructional students. Elementary school level counselors are necessary to provide the services normally provided by social workers.

5. Assistant Principals ($130,000) - These elementary assistants directly oversee programs designed to meet the needs of the at-risk population within Lakewood's elementary schools. Responsibility includes curricular development and articulation, and an instructional delivery system used to implement it. Lakewood's elementary schools consist of four buildings, two having a population of over 850, and two somewhat smaller. The diverse population dictates a need for the assistant principal to deal with the daily discipline, parent contact, social agency contact, and maintain a safe and violence-free environment. An administrative reorganization in 1992 consolidated 38 administrative positions into 32 positions. This year, three administrative positions have been eliminated.

6. Special Education, Bilingual and Elementary Equipment ($22,154) - This request is representative of the equipment to service both the Special Education and Bilingual students within the district, and is inclusive of computerized technologies. At the elementary level, it represents replacement of out-dated computers (10-12 years old). The district is finding it difficult to maintain information services that it makes available to elementary students.

7. Capital Projects ($137,000) - Maintenance of health, safety and sanitary conditions of the district facilities is where these funds will be spent. Some examples are:

   (a) minor roof repairs at four facilities
   (b) repair of the high school track - severe cracking of the surface is causing accidents, and must be repaired
   (c) replacement of exterior doors in four buildings, and installation of bathroom partitions in a number of facilities. Exterior doors are old, and warp when the weather is damp, causing water damage within the buildings. In addition, these doors cannot be secured for safety purposes, allowing outsiders to enter without appropriate identification.

8. Summer School and Evening High School ($45,350) - These programs are implemented to provide Lakewood's at-risk population with multiple opportunities to be successful. The summer programs in the past focused heavily on acquisition of the skills necessary to be successful, with appropriate emphasis on successful test-taking techniques for the students involved.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 the Board and the Township Committee of the Township of Lakewood (Township) met May 12, 1994, after the defeat of the base budget and the cap waiver. As a result of the said meeting, the Board and the Township agreed to a reduction of the base budget in the amount of $887,712.

Upon defeat of the budget and cap waiver and the subsequent reduction of the General Fund Tax Levy agreed upon between the Board and the Township, the Acting County Superintendent of Ocean County reviewed the reductions and determined that they could be sustained without impacting upon the ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the Lakewood Public Schools provided that the items in the cap waiver were also funded.

The reductions which the Acting County Superintendent agreed to were based upon the following changed circumstances as contained with her Affidavit dated August 3, 1994:

> 1. Account #11-120-100-101, 11-130-100-101, 11-140-100-101, 11-230-100-106, 11-000-221-102, 11-000-290-290 - Salaries, in the amount of $277,712.
>
> This reduction could be sustained due to not replacing two elementary teachers, two secondary teachers and two supervisors. This figure also includes benefits.
>
> 2. Account #11-190-100-610, 11-000-240-600, 11-000-290-500 - Supplies, in the amount of $45,000.
>
> This reduction could be sustained because of a lower bid that was made for copier supplies, general and administrative supplies.
>
> 3. Account #11-000-221-104 - In-Service, in the amount of $25,000.
>
> This account could be reduced and replaced by three grants that were received during the last few weeks.
>
> 4. Account #11-000-260-610 - Plant and Custodial Supplies in the amount of $25,000.
>
> This reduction is possible by eliminating the retrofitting of the heating and lighting systems in the districts and also by curtailing the purchasing of the cleaning supplies.
>
> 5. Account #11-000-270-512 - Field Trips in the amount of $65,000.
>
> These trips have been eliminated and only instructional trips will be possible through grants and private donations.
> 6. Account #11-000-290-250 - Unemployment trust fund in the amount of $50,000.

This reduction could be sustained since privatization costs have now been covered and there will be sufficient funds to cover incidental unemployment costs. ($50,000 is currently in the budget.)

7. Account #12-000-400-390 to 12-000-400-610 - Capital Oulay projects in the amount of $200,000.

This cut could be sustained through postponing several projects to another time and only addressing those items directly related to the instructional program and student's safety.

8. Account #12-000-400-390, 12-000-400-450 - Budgeted fund balance in the amount of $200,000.

Although this additional appropriation is being made, the Fund Balance will still be approximately 2% of the total budget.

Board's Position

The Board argues that a comparison of its 1993-94 Budget and its 1994-95 budget reveals that almost every line item has been reduced or held to no increase and therefore supports its contention that a thorough and efficient system of education cannot be accomplished without a cap waiver as requested. The Board asserts that it already has taken the following steps to reduce its operating costs:

1. Reduced its free balance to 2%.

2. Reduced its administrative staff by 25%.

3. Privatized transportation serving 30% over its current transportation system.

4. Privatized plant operation.

5. Brought special education students back to the district so that twice as many children are being served for the same dollar amount.

6. Stabilized insurance costs through rebidding.

7. Held collective bargaining increases to the 4-5% range.

8. Reduced capital projects to emergency items and to support instructional programs.

(See Board's Position Statement dated July 1, 1994)

The Board contends that its current fiscal problems in fact derive from its earlier prudent steps in which it was below cap in each year since 1991-92 (See, chart in Board's Position Paper p. 5).

The Board points out that the cap waiver items involve thorough and efficient essential items in the following areas:

1. Provision of services for its alternative school.

2. Provision of security services in an urban environment.

3. Providing nursing services in its seven schools.

4. Provision of guidance counselors at both the elementary and secondary level.

5. Assistant principals for elementary schools in order to meet the needs of at-risk students.

(See, August 31, 1994 letter to Commissioner for detailed description of services.)

Commissioner's Decision

The Commissioner has reviewed the papers submitted by the Board as well as the Affidavit of the Acting Ocean County Superintendent submitted as part of the record in this matter. In addition, the Commissioner has reviewed the entire budget beyond the reduction made by the Township. Based upon said review and the detailed documentation and budget comparisons provided by the Board, the Commissioner concludes that the base budget of $41,583,991 and the cap waiver amount of $1,235,504 are the minimal amount necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education in the Township of Lakewood. (See, Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Rutherford, decided by the State Board of Education July 7, 1993, and Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994).

Accordingly, the Ocean County Board of Taxation is directed to adjust the General Fund Tax Levy of the Lakewood Township Board of Education for the 1994-95 school year to reflect an increase of $1,235,504 for a total of $42,819,495 consistent with the Commissioner's findings above.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECEMBER 23, 1994

DATE OF MAILING - DECEMBER 23, 1994

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :

APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF THE BOROUGH OF WESTVILLE, : DECISION

GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $74,756 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $74,756 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $879,861 for 1994-95 school year.

DECEMBER 23, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE BOROUGH OF WESTVILLE, : DECISION
GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

Russell E. Paul, Esq., for the Petitioner.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 10, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Borough of Westville (Board) wherein the Board sought to have included in the General Fund tax levy for the 1994-95 school year a cap waiver amount defeated by the voters at the annual school election based upon the following facts which are uncontested:

1. The Board adopted a resolution asking the voters of the Borough of Westville to approve a thorough and efficient (T&E) cap waiver in the amount of $74,756. The cap waiver request was for the following programs:

Pre-School Program 4 year old students (Pre-K)

Salaries	$16,425
Art Music, G&T/Computer Education	3,035
Total	$19,460
Restoration of Full-Time Program of Art, Music G&T Computer Education for Grades 1-5 Salaries	30,330
Restoration of Full-Time Program for Art, Music G&T Computer Education for Grade 6	9,099

Restoration of Classroom Aide for Pre-K Program	3,250
Purchase of Math Textbooks, workbooks, and Support Materials for Students in Grades 3-6	7,000
Restoration of Outdoor Educational Program for 6th Grade Students	617
Restoration of Transportation Expenses for Class Trips at Each Grade Level and Transportation Expenses for the Sixth Grade Outdoor Educational Program	5,000
Total Cap Waiver Request	$74,756

2. The Board submitted to the voters of the District on April 19, 1994, its proposed General Fund Budget for the 1994-95 School Year. Less than a majority of those voting voted to approve the Cap Waiver Request.

3. The Board submitted to the voters of the District on April 19, 1994 a proposed Cap Waiver Request in the amount of $74,756 for the 1994-95 school year. Less than a majority of those voting voted to approve the Cap Waiver Request.

4. The Board delivered the completed proposed General Fund Budget and the Cap Waiver Request for the 1994-95 school year to the Mayor and Council of the Board of Westville (Borough) on April 21, 1994.

5. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2 the Board and the Borough met for the purpose of consulting as to the amount of funds required to be raised by the general purpose tax levy, in order to provide a thorough and efficient education in the Borough of Westville. Consultation was in the time permitted by law.

6. At an open public meeting of the Borough Council of the Borough on May 10, 1994, the Borough adopted a resolution supporting the Board's request for a $805,105 in tax levy to be certified by the Borough to the Gloucester County Board of Taxation. The Borough made no reduction in the General Fund budget for the 1994-95 school year.

7. The Borough Council of the Borough adopted a resolution at an open public meeting held on May 10, 1994, supporting the Board's appeal of the cap waiver denial to the Commissioner and supported the inclusion of $74,756 in the 1994-95 school budget.

8. The Board at a special meeting held at the Parkview Elementary School on May 11, 1994, pursuant to the Open Public Meetings Act, adopted a resolution concurring with the Borough in the certification to the Gloucester County Board of Taxation the 1994-95 school budget of $2,399,884. The Resolution, in addition to requesting that the amount to be raised by local tax levies remain at $805,105, also requested that the Commissioner certify to the County Board of Taxation the additional sum of $74,756 to be raised through local taxes for the cap waiver defeated by the voters at the school election.

Standard of Review

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

Moreover, the Commissioner has the constitutional obligation to ensure that a school district budget is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). In order to meet this duty, the Commissioner is charged with the responsibility to review defeated budgets which had been approved by the county superintendent subject to voter approval to exceed the statutory budget limitation (cap waiver). See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991) Upon review, the Commissioner may order an increase in those limited instances where it is necessary to meet the constitutional mandate. Districts must demonstrate both that particular amounts above the cap are necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education and that reallocation within the permissible budget amount cannot be accomplished. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994; see AAA 91-0036, supra.

Mindful then of the balance to be applied in this standard of review with respect to the various line items contained in the cap waiver request, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the cap waiver appeal before him.

Budget Line Item Analysis

School Program (Pre K) Acct. 11-110-100-101 $ 19,460

The Board asserts that the program serves approximately 60 at-risk children and focuses upon children both in need of readiness/social skills prior to kindergarten as well as shy young children and those in need of extra language and speech services. It is also offered as an option instead of evaluation and classification as pre-school handicapped. The funds are for the teacher and aide positions. A reduction in a program previously offered would reduce the effectiveness of the school program. The Commissioner adopts as his own those reasons advanced by the Board. Consequently, the Baord request for $19,560 is approved.

Full Time Program of Art, Music G&T/Computer Education

The Board's position is that the art program is essential for preparing children for all aspects of life and contributes to improve test scores and achievement. As to the music program, the Board asserts that a full-time music program has been provided by the district for 25 years. It prepares students to continue to participate in similar programs at the junior and senior high school levels. Finally, as to the Gifted and Talented/Technology Program and its coordinator the Board asserts that the program identifies students identified as needing a differentiated program to challenge and enhance their talents and has been in existence in the district since 1979. The Commissioner determines that the Board request for $42,679 is approved.

The accounts and amounts which were requested by the Board:

Grades 1-5	Acct. 11-120-100-101	$30,330
Grade 6	Acct. 11-130-100-101	9,099
Pre-K Program	Acct. 11-190-100-106	3,250
		$42,679

Purchase Math Textbooks, Workbooks, and Support Materials

Grades 3-6 Acct. 11-190-100-640 7,000

The Board asserts that the math curriculum was revised during the 1992-93 school year to emphasizing higher-order thinking and problem solving skills. The current textbooks are over 10 years old and are inappropriate for the skills recommended by the Standards of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the standards for the N.J. Early Warning and High School Proficiency Tests. Board request for $7,000 is approved.

Outdoor Educational Program Acct. 11-401-100-100 $ 617

The Board asserts that these funds are to permit students to participate in a four-day science and environmental program under the direction of Montclair State College. Board request for $617 is approved.

Transportation Expenses - Class Trips and Sixth Grade Outdoor Educational Program Acct. 11-000-270-512 $ 5,000

Board request for $5,000 is approved.

TOTAL APPROVED CAP WAIVER LINE ITEMS $ 74,756

The foregoing approvals are based on the impact the reduction or elimination of the services, programs and materials would have on the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. In reviewing the Board's reasoning, in total, the Commissioner is convinced that the original approval of the foregoing programs in the cap waiver request was consistent with the constitutional mandate to provide a thorough and efficient education.

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $74,756 in cap waiver monies, sought by the Board are essential to provide a thorough and efficient educational system and that a reallocation of funds within the districts maximum permissible budget is not possible.

Accordingly, the Gloucester County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $879,861 to be raised in tax levy for the General Fund of the Westville Board of Education for the 1994-95 school year.[1]

Tax Levy Summary	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$ 805,105
Cap Waiver ordered by Commissioner	74,756
Total	$ 879,861

Budget Summary
Original General Fund Budget Total	$2,054,845
Approved Cap Waiver	74,756
Total General Fund Budget	$2,129,601
Special Revenue Funds	70,876
Debt Service	274,163
Total Budget	$2,474,640

IT IS SO ORDERED.

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

V.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO, GLOUCESTER COUNTY,

RESPONDEDNT.

AND

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOROUGH OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $330,193 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $268,250.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $178,641 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $174,372 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $7,400,243 for 1994-95 school year.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.	:

For Petitioner, Ramiro M. Carbonell, Esq. (Montgomery, McCracken, Walker & Rhoads)

For Respondent, Timothy D. Scaffidi, Esq.

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 15, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal pursuant to the authority vested in the Commissioner by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear and determine controversies under the school laws of this State and in accordance with Attorney General Opinion No. 91-0036 (1991) by reason of the following facts:

1. Petitioner is the Board of Education of the Borough of Glassboro in the County of Gloucester, New Jersey (Board) and is required both by the Constitution and Statutes of New Jersey to provide a thorough and efficient (T&E) education to its students.

2. On March 24, 1994, the Board submitted its proposed budget for the 1994-95 school year to the Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools along with a cap waiver request. The proposed General Fund budget totaled $16,926,906. Contained in the budget was a proposed General Fund tax levy of $7,287,814.

3. The Board requested a cap waiver of $389,398 for enrollment increases and $195,938 for special education cost increases. The Board also requested a voter T&E cap waiver in the amount of $275,260 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

4. On March 28, 1994, the Commissioner approved the full amount of the cap waiver request of $585,336 for increased enrollment and special education cost increases raising the maximum permitted total net budget for 1994-95 to $16,525,626.

5. On March 31, 1994, the County Superintendent notified the Board that following review and a reallocation analysis made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27 the 1994-95 school year budget could be advertised to include a cap waiver proposal in the amount of $275,260 of which $178,641 was necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. The remaining $96,619 was authorized to be submitted to the voters as part of the cap waiver request, but was not deemed essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

6. On April 19, 1994, at the annual election, the Board submitted a General Fund Budget in the amount of $7,287,814 to the voters of the School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-23 and a cap waiver in the amount of $275,260.

The voters rejected the General Fund tax levy as well as the cap waiver.

7. On April 25, 1994, the Board delivered its proposed school budget to the Borough Council of Glassboro Borough.

8. On, May 17, 1994, the Borough, after consultation with the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)(2), passed a resolution that a $6,957,621 General Fund tax levy was, in the judgment of the Borough necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district. The net effect of the resolution and subsequent certification of taxes was $330,193 less than the amount originally proposed by the Board. This decreased the total proposed budget from $18,768,878 to $18,438,685.

9. On May 18, 1994, the Board adopted a resolution authorizing an appeal of the $330,193 tax reduction to the Commissioner of Education on the grounds that the amount certified by the Borough would not be sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

10. On May 25, 1994, the Board notified the Borough and the Commissioner of its intent to appeal both the General Fund tax reduction by the Borough and the voter rejection of the cap waiver in the amount of $178,641.

Consequently, the General Fund tax levy funds in contention between the parties in this consolidated matter are as follows:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$7,287,814	General Fund	$6,957,621
Cap Waiver	$ 178,641	Cap Waiver	N/A

Amount of Reduction by Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund	$330,193	General Fund	$330,193
Cap Waiver	N/A	Cap Waiver	$178,641

The Borough in its answer to the Petition of Appeal of its General Fund reductions states that it relies upon the "resolution adopted and determinations made in support of its position that the funding reductions are appropriate and will not affect the provision of the adequate services for a thorough and efficient education." It further took no position on the cap waiver appeal. Consequently, the Borough submitted no additional documentation in these consolidated matters.

In addition, on December 16, 1994, the parties were notified that the Commissioner of Education intended to take official notice of the 1993-94 year-end district audit as it relates to the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus.

The Borough reduced the accounts in the amounts specified for the rationales stated, below:

Account	Title	Amount
	Surplus	$200,000

Rationale: As to the Board's estimated $470,962 surplus, Council proposes to use $200,000. (The Borough does this with the understanding that in the event of a general major mechanical failure, a cooperative funding program will be developed to finance the repair.)

Account	Title	Amount
11-110-100-101	Preschool/Kindergarten - Salaries of Teachers	$2,500

Rationale: Through prudent planning and closer monitoring of needs for substitutes the proposed amount was reduced.

Account	Title	Amount
11-120-100-101	Grades 1-5 - Salaries of Teachers	$7,000

Rationale: Through prudent planning and closer monitoring of needs for substitutes the proposed amount was reduced.

Account	Title	Amount
11-130-100-101	Grades 6-8 - Salaries of Teachers	$2,000

Rationale: Through prudent planning and closer monitoring of needs for substitutes the proposed amount was reduced.

Account	Title	Amount
11-140-100-101	Grades 9-12 - Salaries of Teachers	$4,500

Rationale: Through prudent planning and closer monitoring of needs for substitutes the proposed amount was reduced.

Account	Title	Amount
11-190-100-610	General Supplies	$2,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-205-100-610	General Supplies	$5,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-213-100-610	General Supplies	$1,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-217-100-320	Purchased Professional - Education Serv.	$4,000

Rationale: Line items reduced from estimated figures to reflect a general tightening of expenses.

Account	Title	Amount
11-218-100-100	Salaries of Teachers	$5,000

Rationale: Line items reduced from estimated figures to reflect a general tightening of expenses.

Account	Title	Amount
11-219-100-101	Salaries of Teachers	$4,000

Rationale: Line items reduced from estimated figures to reflect a general tightening of expenses.

Account	Title	Amount
11-219-100-320	Purchased Professional Educational Serv.	$3,000

Rationale: Line items reduced from estimated figures to reflect a general tightening of expenses.

Account	Title	Amount
11-220-100-320	Purchased Professional Educational Serv.	$5,000

Rationale: Line items reduced from estimated figures to reflect a general tightening of expenses.

Account	Title	Amount
11-230-100-610	General Supplies	$1,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-230-100-800	Other Objects	$1,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-402-100-600	Supplies and Materials	$2,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-218-600	Supplies and Materials	$1,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-219-600	Supplies and Materials	$1,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-221-105	Salaries of Secretarial and Clerical Assistants	$5,000

Rationale: With the shifting of funds from Title programs to cover some secretaries and clerical salaries, some economical saving actions can be implemented.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-222-600	Supplies and Materials	$2,500

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-230-600	Miscellaneous Expenditures	$2,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-260-100	Salaries	$45,000

Rationale: Position of supervisor of building and grounds has been vacant for almost two (2) years and through the realignment of responsibilities and duties of present personnel, the Board could adequately handle the supervisory role and responsibilities.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-260-610	General Supplies	$2,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-270-511	Contract Service (between Home and School) - Vendors	$5,750

Rationale: Original calculation was based on $675 per pupil. Actual cost $625 per pupil.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-290-220	Social Security Contributions	$3,443

Rationale: Reflects savings in costs for not hiring Supervisor of building and grounds.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	$6,500

Rationale: Reflects savings in costs for not hiring Supervisor of building and grounds.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-290-600	Supplies and Materials	$2,000

Rationale: Reduce line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

Account	Title	Amount
11-000-310-930	Transfers to Cover Deficit	$5,000

Rationale: Costs could be saved through general review of expenditures of cafeteria operation and tighter fiscal controls.

	TOTAL	$330,193

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Moreover, the Commissioner has the constitutional obligation to ensure that a school district budget is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). In order to meet this duty, the Commissioner is charged with the responsibility to review defeated budgets which had been "conditionally certified" by the county superintendent subject to voter approval to exceed the statutory budget limitation (cap waiver). See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991). Upon review, the Commissioner may order an increase in those limited instances where it is necessary to meet the constitutional mandate. Districts must demonstrate both that particular amounts above the cap are necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education and that reallocation within the permissible budget amount cannot be accomplished. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994; see AAA 91-0036, supra.

Before reviewing the instant matter line item by line item, the Commissioner must point out that the New Jersey Supreme Court in East Brunswick, supra, has addressed the proper standard of review by a governing body after defeat of a budget by the voters. It reads in pertinent part:

> But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step it must act conscientiously, reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community. (at 105-106)

At the same time the Court has also reiterated that the Commissioner must be sensitive to the taxpayers in making his determinations. In Deptford, supra, the Court provided:

> ...the Commissioner cannot ignore completely the municipality's political concerns and indeed may not override them without some necessity strictly related to the constitutional mandate to provide for a thorough and efficient school system. (at 314)

Mindful then of the balance to be applied in this standard of review with respect to the various line items the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the consolidated petition of appeal before him.

DEFEATED BUDGET

The budget accounts and amounts under appeal and as determined by the Commissioner in this matter are as follows:

Account		Amount
11-110-100-101	Salaries of Teachers (Substitutes)	$2,500
11-120-100-101		$7,000
11-130-100-101		$2,000
11-140-100-101		$4,500

The Board asserts that these items comprise only regular instruction teacher costs and regular instruction substitute teacher costs. The Board asserts that its prior actions eliminating out-of-district in-service and scheduling in-district in-service after school hours has reduced the funding for this line to the minimum amount necessary to assure that students will not be denied adequate instructional services in the event of the absence of regular teaching staff. Moreover, the Board has stated that substitute teachers are only utilized when teachers are absent due to illness, death or other circumstances beyond their control.

Borough opinion that prudent planning and closer monitoring of substitute needs was not accompanied by any evidence or information to indicate that prudent planning or close monitoring is not occurring. Blanket reductions with broad reasons based on perceptions is not adequate when determining whether funding is needed to assure a thorough and efficient system of education. While the Commissioner agrees that prudent planning and close monitoring of substitute needs is essential the Board has demonstrated the need for these amounts for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. Consequently, the total $16,000 reduction is restored.

Account	Amount
11-190-100-610 - General Supplies Regular Programs	$2,000

The Board position is that the amount budgeted for supplies has only increased 3% over a two year period while student enrollment has increased by 4.79% and 5.76% respectively. The Board has presented a detailed listing of supplies to be purchased and the amounts allocated (See Board Position Statement Appendix).

The Borough's argument indicating that the reduction will promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility or to reflect a general tightening of expenses is extremely broad and does not address the constitutional requirement to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. In consideration of the assertions of the parties the Commissioner finds that adequate supplies are essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Consequently, the Commissioner orders restoration of the $2,000.

Account	Amount
11-205-100-610 - Special Education Inst. Perceptually Impaired General Supplies	$5,000

The Borough's position is that this line item was reduced to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility.

The Board asserts that reducing the Board's budgeted amount will result in students working with out-of-date materials in math, reading and science. It has submitted information that this account provides materials for the 126 perceptually impaired students in the district. An additional eighteen students were anticipated for 1994-95. The cost of workbooks, supplies and classroom materials average $135 per student. Based upon the Commissioner's analysis the Board has demonstrated the necessity for these funds to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students. Therefore, the $5,000 reduction is restored.

Account	Amount
11-213-100-610 - Resource Room - General Supplies	$1,000

The Borough again reduced this line item to promote prudent spending and purchasing to reflect the present economy and overall fiscal responsibility. The Board contends that the supply request was already reduced below 1993-94 levels in order to accommodate the need for fiscal restraint. It had budgeted a total of $5,100 or $69 per resource room pupil for the 1994-95 school year. The Commissioner finds that the Board has demonstrated the need for the amounts provided and, therefore, orders restoration of the $1,000.

Account	Amount
11-217-100-320 - Supplementary Instruction	$4,000
11-218-100-101 - Salaries - Speech Instruction	$5,000
11-219-100-101 - Home Instruction	$4,000
11-219-100-320 - Purchased Prof. Educ. Services	$3,000
11-220-100-320 - Extraordinary Services	$5,000

The Borough provided only that this reduction was made to reflect a general tightening of expenses. No evidence has been presented to establish that educational considerations were taken into account when making those reductions.

The Board asserts that the budgeted amount is the minimum amount necessary in order to provide for supplemental instruction, speech instruction, home instruction and physical and occupational therapy based upon Individualized Educational Plans of special education students. (See 20 U.S.C.A. 1412; N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq.) The Board further asserts that the rates of payment are contractually established and may not be unilaterally reduced.

The Commissioner finds that the Board has established that these amounts are essential for the provision of a thorough and efficient education to its special education students. Consequently, the Commissioner orders the reductions of $4,000, $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $5,000, respectively, to be restored.

Account	Amount
11-230-100-610 - Basic Skills/Remedial Instruction - General Supplies	$1,000

The Board asserts that funding for basic skills supplies was reduced from 1992-93 to 1993-94 and then further reduced by transfers during the 1993-94 school year. It asserts that the amount budgeted for workbooks and software for the elementary level reading and math center is the minimum amount necessary to implement the program. The Board did not provide information or documentation to support the need for the amounts requested. Therefore, the reduction is sustained.

Account	Amount
11-230-100-800 - Other	$1,000

Again the Borough reasoning was to promote prudent spending. The Board asserts that these are fixed costs for current copier leases prorated for usage in the Basic Skills program. The Commissioner directs that the $1,000 be restored.

Account	Amount
11-402-100-600 - School Sponsored Athletics - Supplies and Materials	$2,000

The Borough asserts that this cut was to promote prudent spending and to reflect present economy and overall fiscal responsibility. The Commissioner finds the argument of the Borough to be without any supporting basis; however, the Board offers no evidence which satisfies the criteria for restoration. Moreover, the Board in its position statement provided only information regarding the budgeted expenditure of $2,253, an amount in excess of the Borough reduction. Therefore, the reduction is sustained.

Account		Amount
11-000-218-600	Undis. Exp. Oth. Sup. Serv. Stu.- Regular - Supplies and Materials	$1,000
11-000-219-600	Undis. Exp. Oth. Sup. Serv. Stu.- Special - Supplies and Materials	$1,000

The Borough provided the same generic reasons for reducing these accounts as provided, above.

The Board has provided evidence establishing that these amounts are necessary for student testing and the materials to produce Individualized Educational Plans in accordance with law. Consequently, the Commissioner orders restoration of these amounts.

Account		Amount
11-000-221-105	Undis. Exp. Improvement Inst. Serv. - Sal. Sec. and Cler. Assist.	$5,000

The Borough's reasoning that funds be shifted from Title I does not appear feasible since there has been a shortfall in revenue with further reductions anticipated. To shift additional funds from educational lines to clerical would be counterproductive and may not be consistent with grant requirements. The Board has established the need for this position to service the assistant superintendent, transportation coordinator, Chapter I coordinator and Genesis Grant coordinator. Consequently, the reduction is restored.

Account		Amount
11-000-222-600	Undis. Exp. Educational Media - Supplies and Materials	$2,500

The Board asserts that these amounts are necessary in order to provide materials for the new Dorothy L. Bullock School. In light of the increased enrollment the Commissioner orders these amounts restored.

Account	Amount
11-000-230-890 - Undis. Exp.-Supp. Serv. Gen. Adm. - Miscellaneous Expenses	$2,000

The reduction is sustained. The Board has failed to establish the need for the amounts asserted. While certain costs for Board member dues are legally required certain cost such as sports and honors recognition activities, and generally stated travel expenses for board members to attend conferences, are not necessarily required. The Board has not submitted documentation to support the need for these amounts.

Account	Amount
11-000-260-100 - Salaries	$45,000
11-000-260-610 - General Supplies	$ 2,000

The Borough asserts that the position of supervisor of buildings and grounds has been vacant for almost two years. It further asserts that through realignment of responsibilities and duties of present personnel, the Board could adequately handle the supervisory role and responsibilities.

The Board asserts that the position is necessary in order to appropriately operate its facilities and asserts that the amount is reasonable and comparable to that paid by other districts. It points out that the actual amount budgeted for this account was $40,000 not the $45,000 asserted by the Borough.

The Board further asserts that the $2,000 reduction in general maintenance supplies is necessary and included the cost of seeding, fertilizers, shrubbery, machinery rental, fence repairs, gravel, top soil, weed killers and other costs of maintenance.

Upon independent review the Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to establish that these accounts and amounts are necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education and sustains the reductions of $40,000 and $2,000, respectively. The reduction of $5,000 is ordered restored to reflect the actual amount budgeted of $40,000.

Account	Amount
11-000-270-511 - Undis. Exp.-Student Transportation Cont. Serv. Between Home and School	$5,750

The request of the Board is approved, based on the correct calculations for the provision of transportation reimbursement for parents having children in private schools. The reduction of $5,750 is restored.

Account	Amount
11-000-290-220 - Undis. Exp.-Business & Other Supp. Soc. Sec. Contr.	$3,443
11-000-290-290 - Cont. Serv. Between Home and School Other Empl. Benefits	$6,500

The reduction of the Borough is sustained, since funding for the restoration of position was disapproved, above.

Account	Amount
11-000-290-600 - Supplies and Materials	$2,000

The Board asserts that it has experienced increased costs for payroll and bookkeeping related items, computer supplies, checks, and newsletters to residents. It additionally asserts that a direct deposit program further increased costs. The Board, however, has not provided any specific information related to the need for these amounts to provide a thorough and efficient education. Consequently, the reduction is sustained.

Account	Amount
11-000-310-930 - Undis. Exp.-Food Serv. Trans. to Cover Deficit (Enterprise Fund)	$5,000

The request of the Board is denied. The Board provided no information documenting the amounts by which the asserted costs of the food service program exceed income or the specific need for the amount of the reduction.

Revenue Revision $200,000

The Board has asserted that it has of necessity deferred maintenance on its physical plant for two years. Moreover, it asserts the additional need for the amount in light of the fact that the reduction would reduce the surplus to 1.6%. While the Commissioner encourages the Borough's proposal for joint funding of major mechanical failures, there is no assurance that such joint funding would indeed occur. Moreover, no mechanism was proffered to address other emergency educational problems which may arise. Consequently, in light of the overall size of the budget and assertions of potential physical plant concerns, the Commissioner orders restoration of $200,000 .

DEFEATED CAP WAIVER

The cap waiver amounts under appeal and as determined by the Commissioner in this matter are as follows:

Account	Amount
11-120-100-101 - Regular Programs - Instruction Grades 1-5 Salaries	$52,549

The Board request is approved. This amount provides for a music teacher and for one half-time computer teacher and is consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-190-100-320 - Purchase Prof. Ed. Services	$2,570

The Board request is approved. This amount is required to support the cost for the Satellite Education Resource Consortium (SERC) satellite educational program.

Account	Amount
11-190-100-500 - Other Purchases	$3,650

The Board request is approved. This amount supports the program providing students with civic and community responsibility.

Account	Amount
11-190-100-610 - General Supplies Regular Programs	$11,220

The Board request is approved. The program provides calculators for the math program and desks and chairs necessary because of the increased enrollment and is consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

Account	Amount
11-190-100-640 - Textbooks	$12,335

The Board request is approved. The program request is consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient education by providing textbook replacement at the high school and intermediate school levels.

Account	Amount
11-230-100-610 - Basic Skills General Supplies	$2,103

The Board request is approved. The amount requested maintains the program necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-401-100-100 - Co-Curricular Activities	$29,839

The Board request is approved. The amount requested maintains the program by providing for salaries for structured, school-sponsored programs consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-401-100-500 - Co-Curricular Purchase Services	$2,246

The Board request is denied. The Board has failed to document that the amount is essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-401-100-600 - Co-Curricular Supplies/Materials	$372

The Board request is denied. The Board has failed to document that the amount is essential for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-401-100-800 - Co-Curricular - Other Objects	$10,914

The Board request is approved. The amount supports a "close up" program which permits students to meet with their congressional representatives and to learn how government works in Washington, DC.

Account	Amount
11-402-100-100 - Sponsored Athletics - Instruction	$2,500

The Board request is approved. The program request permits the maintenance of a program which is consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education

Account	Amount
11-402-100-500 - Other Support - Students Regular	$2,500

The Board request is approved. The funds maintain current programs consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account	Amount
11-000-218-104 - Salaries/Professional	$12,500

This amount is approved as essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education for emotionally disturbed students.

Account	Amount
11-000-218-600 - Supplies/Materials	$1,943

The Board request is approved. These funds are necessary for the provision of district-wide testing.

Account	Amount
11-000-219-600 - Other Support - Students Spec. Supplies	$ 33
11-000-219-800 - Other Objects	$289

The Board request for a waiver is denied. The Board has not documented the necessity for these amounts.

Account	Amount
11-000-221-104 - Undistributed Salaries - Other Professional Staff	$8,184

The Board request is approved. These funds address the program addressing student achievement, core curriculum proficiencies and monitoring preparation.

Account	- Other Support Services	Amount
11-000-221-320	- Purchased Prof. Ed.	$102
11-000-221-600	- Supplies/Materials	$180
11-000-221-800	- Other Objects	$ 41

The Board request is denied. The Board has not documented the needs for these specific items.

Account		Amount
11-000-222-600	- Educational Media General/Miscellaneous	$4,444

The Board request is approved. These amounts support materials to provide current library materials to the students.

Account		Amount
11-000-230-890	- Support Services General/Miscellaneous	$3,157

The Board request is approved. This item provides for fixed mandated costs supporting the Board of Education and, also, provides for education of Board members pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33.

Account		Amount
11-000-290-100	- Business - Other Support Salaries	$493

The Board request for a waiver is denied. The Board did not document that this amount was essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account		Amount
11-000-290-290	- Business - Other Support Other Employee Services	$13,000

The Board request for a waiver is approved based on the approval of the positions.

Account		Amount
11-000-290-500	- Business - Other Support Other Purchased Services	$964

The Board request for a waiver is approved. This amount provides for a fixed cost for insurance for school buses.

Account		Amount
11-000-290-890	Miscellaneous	$513

The Board request for a waiver is denied. The Board did not present documentation to establish that this amount was essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that $268,250 of the revisions recommended by Council is essential to provide a thorough and efficient educational system and $174,372 of the original cap waiver request are also essential and that a further reallocation of funds within the districts maximum permissible budget is not possible (Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education, July 7, 1993.)

Accordingly, the Gloucester County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $7,400,243 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes for the 1994-95 school year as per the following calculations.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$6,957,621
Ordered by Commissioner:
Restoration of Council Reductions	268,250
Cap Waiver Approval	174,372
Total Taxes to Be Raised for 1994-95 School Year	$7,400,243

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO,

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,

V.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO, GLOUCESTER COUNTY, RESPONDENT-APPELLANT,

AND

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF GLASSBORO,GLOUCESTER COUNTY.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 23, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Montgomery, McCracken, Walker & Rhoads (Ramiro M. Carbonell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Timothy D. Scaffidi, Esq.

This is an appeal by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Glassboro (hereinafter "Council") from a decision of the Commissioner of Education which: 1) directed the restoration of certain line item reductions made by the municipal governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 after the voters had defeated the education budget that had been proposed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Glassboro (hereinafter "Board") for 1994-95, and 2) directed an additional increase in the District's general fund budget for a portion of the amount included in a cap waiver proposal which had been placed before the voters and defeated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

As follows, we find that the Commissioner's decision in this case does not conform to the standards we enunciated in our decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1994. Consequently, we remand this case to the Commissioner for consideration under the appropriate standards.

I.

Before submitting its proposed budget to the voters in the annual school election in April 1994, the Board submitted it to the Gloucester County Superintendent for approval as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The Board's proposal included a request for a cap waiver from the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) on the basis of increasing enrollment and special education costs. In addition, it requested approval to seek voter approval to exceed its maximum permissible budget by another $275,260 on the basis that these additional funds were necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education.

The Commissioner approved the Board's request for a cap waiver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), and the County Superintendent instructed the Board to advertise a maximum permissible budget totaling $16,525,626.

In addition, the County Superintendent instructed the Board to submit its proposal to exceed its maximum permissible budget to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). The Board was instructed to present this proposal with two components:

One for $178,641 representing amounts for items the County Superintendent had designated as necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education and another for the remaining $96,619.

On April 19, 1994, the voters rejected the Board's general fund budget proposal, which, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), had included the amount of the cap waiver granted by the Commissioner. They also rejected both components of the cap waiver proposal which had been submitted to them pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

Then, as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, the Borough's governing body reviewed the general fund budget and determined the amount it judged necessary in order for the school district to provide a thorough and efficient education, thereby reducing the base budget proposed by the Board. Because the items that were to be funded by the voter requested cap waiver were not before it, the Council made no evaluation as to the need for those items or amounts.

By separate petitions to the Commissioner of Education, the Board appealed both the reductions made by the Council to the general fund budget and the voter rejection of $178,641 of the cap waiver proposal submitted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). This amount represented the component of the proposal which had included the items the County Superintendent had designated as necessary to a thorough and efficient education.

The matters were consolidated.

On December 16, 1994, the Commissioner notified the parties that he was taking notice of the 1993-94 year end district audit.

Based upon the documentation submitted to him, the Commissioner found that $268,250 of the reductions that had been made by the Council pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 were necessary to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. He also found that $174,372 for items that initially were intended to be funded by the voter cap waiver proposal was also necessary for a thorough and efficient education.

The Council appealed both of the Commissioner's determinations to the State Board of Education.

It is the Council's position that the Commissioner failed to apply the correct standard of review when he evaluated the reductions that the municipality made to the base budget. The Council argues that under the proper standard, the Board was obligated to demonstrate to the Commissioner that it needed the amounts reduced in order to provide a minimally adequate education in constitutional terms before the Commissioner could direct restoration of those amounts. It asserts that because the Board in this case did not do so, the Commissioner was required to sustain the reductions.

The Council is also challenging the Commissioner's determination to award the Board $174,372 of the amount which had been proposed to and defeated by the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). The Council contends that the clear language of this statute precluded the Commissioner from even considering these funds and that, in any event, there is no evidence in the Commissioner's decision that the District could not provide a thorough and efficient education without these amounts.

In response, the Board argues that the Commissioner applied the correct standard by reviewing each line item reduced and balancing the needs of the students with the political concerns of the taxpayers. It maintains that the Commissioner's decision must be affirmed because the Board "...neither found, nor argued during the appeal to the Commissioner, that the Board's proposed budget exceeds the minimum necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of public schools..." Board's answer brief, at 5.

The Board argues in general terms that the budget certified by the Council is insufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education. It also asserts that the Commissioner had the power to review the defeated amounts presented to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) and to include those funds in setting a budget sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education.

In reply, the Council contends that the Commissioner never stated which educational mandates would be violated if its reductions were upheld and that none of the items involved here are required to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in Glassboro.

II.

In the introductory remarks to his decision, the Commissioner acknowledged that before he can direct restoration of amounts reduced by a governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, "the Commissioner must determine whether a district board has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education." Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 9. He also recognized that he could properly order an increase in a budget beyond a district's maximum permissible budget only in those instances where it was necessary to meet the constitutional mandate, and that, as articulated in the State Board's decision in Edgewater, the school district had to demonstrate both that the particular amounts above the cap were necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education and that reallocation within the permissible budget amount could not be accomplished before such increase could be directed. Id., citing Edgewater, supra.

However, while the Commissioner set forth the correct standards in his introductory remarks for assessing the reductions to the base budget proposed by the Board and for judging the necessity for directing an increase beyond that amount, he did not apply those standards in deciding the case before him. Rather, in deciding this case, the Commissioner placed the burden on the Council to demonstrate that the reductions made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 should be sustained instead of requiring the Board to show that it needed the items and the amounts with which it proposed to fund those items in order to be able to provide a thorough and efficient education. Similarly, when the Commissioner directed that the District's budget be increased to include most of the items originally proposed as part of the cap waiver presented to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), he did not ascertain whether either of these amounts were necessary in order to meet the constitutional mandate or whether reallocation within the base budget was possible beyond those items reduced by the Council.

The Commissioner's treatment of the Council's reductions of amounts budgeted for salaries for substitute teachers (lines 11-110-100-101, 11-120-100-101, 11-130-100-101, and 11-140-100-101) provides one example of his failure to require the Board to show it needed the amounts reduced from the Board's base budget pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 in order to meet the constitutional mandate before he directed restoration of these amounts. The amounts which the Board had budgeted for substitute teachers were reduced by the Council by a total of $16,000, because, as stated in its resolution effecting the reductions, the Council believed that the cost for substitutes could be cut by closer monitoring and planning of substitute needs. The Commissioner restored these reductions in total, stating that:

> Borough opinion that prudent planning and closer monitoring of substitute needs was not accompanied by any evidence or information to indicate that prudent planning or close monitoring is not occurring. Blanket reductions with broad reasons based on perceptions is not adequate when determining whether funding is needed to assure a thorough and efficient system of education. While the Commissioner agrees that prudent planning and close monitoring of substitute needs is essential the Board has demonstrated the need for these amounts for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. Consequently, the total $16,000 reduction is restored.

Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 11.

The Board's submissions to the Commissioner do not, however, establish a record that is sufficient to support this conclusion. The Board's argument for restoration of these amounts is set forth in its position paper filed in support of its appeal to the Commissioner. In that document, the Board states that its actual expenditures for substitutes in 1992-93 totaled $144,982, but that the costs for substitutes was projected to drop to $99,500 during 1993-94. Pointing to the fact that the total amount budgeted for substitutes for 1994-95 was $96,075, the Board asserts that:

> [the Council's] proposed sum will not provide sufficient funds to pay for substitute teachers and will cause classrooms of students to be without teachers when regular teachers are absent. Clearly, teachers are necessary to a thorough and efficient system of education.

Board's Position Statement, at 4-5.

Even assuming that the Board's figures are accurate, there is nothing to indicate that the amount sought by the Board is the minimal amount required to fund necessary expenditures for substitutes or that without that amount the dire consequences claimed by the Board would automatically follow. Most significantly, the Board did not submit any evidence relating to planning and monitoring of costs in this category or demonstrate that the amount which the Council had determined to be sufficient was inadequate.

Similarly, in seeking $2,000 by which the Council had reduced the amount it had budgeted for general supplies (line 11-110-100-610), the Board argued that it needed the full amount it had budgeted because this amount ($163,815) represented only a 3% increase over a two year period and enrollment had increased 4.7% and 5.76%. Again, assuming the accuracy of the Board's figures, this alone is not a sufficient basis to conclude that the "proposed sum is simply insufficient." Board's Position Statement, at 5. Nor does examination of that portion of the Board's Appendix to which it points to support its position reveal evidence sufficient to support the Commissioner's determination that the Board needed the $2,000 reduced by the Council in this category in order to provide a thorough and efficient education. See Appendix, at 3 (listing budget allocation for supplies for 1993-94 by program).

We stress that the fact that the items the Board is seeking to fund by this appeal may be educationally appropriate is not determinative of the Board's entitlement to the sums at issue. Nor does the fact that the amounts which the Board budgeted to support those items may be reasonable entitle it to those amounts once the voters defeated the budget and the Council acted to reduce it pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. Rather, in proceedings to challenge the Council's reductions, the Board had the burden to establish that it needed both the items it proposed and the amounts it budgeted in order to provide a constitutionally adequate education. Edgewater, supra.

Quite simply, the record developed before the Commissioner was far too sparse to support the restorations he directed. Moreover, given the specificity of the Council's reductions and the size of those reductions in relation to the school district's total budget, it is impossible for us to determine with any certainty on this record that the Board needed these amounts to provide an adequate education to its students. We therefore remand this matter to the Commissioner for such proceedings as necessary to reevaluate these items under the proper standard.

III.

In addition to seeking restoration to its base budget of the amounts reduced by the Council pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, the Board in this case also sought from the Commissioner a directive to increase its budget above its maximum permissible budget so as to include some of the amounts that were proposed to and defeated by the voters under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). While we reject the Council's contentions that the Commissioner could not consider these amounts, we stress that they are not before us pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

This is not the first time we have reviewed a Commissioner's determination which directed an increase in an education budget under these circumstances. In our decision in Edgewater, supra, we recognized that the limitations of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) in no way altered the constitutional obligation of either the Commissioner or the State Board of Education to insure that the budget of a local school district is sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education.

However, as we emphasized,

> ...the power to direct such increase may properly be exercised only where an increase is necessary to enable the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. [In re Upper Freehold Reg'l School Dist., 86 N.J. 265 (1981).] Further, any increase must be limited to those amounts the district needs in order to provide a thorough and efficient education. Id. ...

Edgewater, supra, slip op. at 15, quoting Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, decided by the State Board, July 7, 1993, slip op. at 5-6.

In Edgewater, we made it abundantly clear that the circumstances that would warrant directing an increase in a district's education budget beyond its statutory limitation where the voters have defeated a proposal to do so are extremely limited. In doing so, we pointed to Upper Freehold, supra, which presented an analogous situation. It is evident from an examination of Upper Freehold that the kind of circumstances that must be present to justify exercising the Commissioner's power by compelling a district's taxpayers to raise additional monies are rarely presented.

The Commissioner's decision in this case directs an increase in the District's budget to include most of the items originally proposed as part of the cap waiver proposal defeated by the voters and does so in the amounts which the Board had proposed to the voters. In some instances the Commissioner "approved" the Board's "request" with only a conclusary statement that the amount was necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. See, for example, Commissioner's decision, at 20 (line 11-120-100-101 - Regular Programs-Grades 1-5 Salaries). In many cases, the Commissioner "approved" the "request" on the grounds that the proposed item was "consistent with the provision of a thorough and efficient education." See, e.g., id. (line 11-190-100-610 - General Supplies). In some cases, the Commissioner "approved" the amount with no reference to educational or constitutional standards. E.g., Id. (lines 11-190-100-320 - Purchase Prof. Ed. Services and 11-190-100-500 - Other Purchases).

Nor did the Commissioner examine whether further reallocation within the District's base budget was possible before directing these increases. While the record reflects that the County Superintendent's review prior to advertisement included attention to the possibility of reallocation, the conclusions drawn by the County Superintendent in that context did not insulate those amounts from the Commissioner's review and were not dispositive in the proceedings. However, despite this, the Commissioner did not extend his review of the Board's proposed budget beyond those items reduced by the Council so as to ascertain whether additional reallocation within the Board's base budget was possible.

In short, in directing that the Distirct's budget be increased to include amounts proposed to and defeated by the voters under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), the Commissioner made no determination either of whether it was possible to make reallocations within the Board's base budget or whether the voter requested cap waiver amounts were needed in their entirety in order for the District to provide a thorough and efficient education. To permit this result given the defeat of the proposal made to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) would contravene the express terms of that statutory provision without the assurance that the Commissioner needed to do so in order to fulfill his constitutional obligations.

The record is not sufficiently developed to permit us to determine whether or to what extent, the specific items which the Board sought to fund with the voter requested cap waiver amounts are in fact essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligations. Nor is it sufficient to allow us to determine whether reallocation within the District's permissible budget is possible so as to provide support for those programs which the District originally proposed to fund by the voter requested cap waiver monies. Consequently, we have no recourse but to remand this matter for such determinations.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $40,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to sustain the reduction for a total General Fund tax levy of $936,670 for 1994-95 school purposes.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

For Petitioner, Wesley L. Lance, Esq.

For Respondent, Richard P. Cushing, Esq. (Gebhardt & Kiefer, P.C.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on June 10, 1994, and amended on June 14, 1994, by the Board of Education of the Borough of Hampton (Board) appealing the reduction in the 1994-95 General Fund Tax Levy imposed by the governing body of the Borough of Hampton (Borough) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The aforesaid reduction consisted of $40,000 in the area of teacher's salaries. As a result of the reduction the amount in dispute before the Commissioner is summarized below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $976,670	General Fund $936,670
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
General Fund $40,000	General Fund $40,000

On June 23, 1994, the Borough filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 and 7.7. On June 16, 1994, the Board filed its written submission in support of the Petition of Appeal and then filed what it entitled supplements to some on June 30 and July 27 respectively. The Borough filed its written submission on July 19, 1994. A response to the Board's "Second Supplement" to its Position Statement was filed on August 12, 1994, by the Borough. A further affidavit was filed by the Hunterdon County Superintendent detailing the circumstances and review under the circumstances and review undertaken in the granting of cap waivers to the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) which is not part of the matter controverted herein.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See, also, Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Moreover, the Commissioner has the constitutional obligation to ensure that a school district budget is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994.

In the instant matter, the Borough upon defeat of the 1994-95 budget by the voters of the district, did confer with the Board as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and established a tax levy to be used for school purposes. The aforesaid tax levy was established by imposing a single line item reduction in the following account:

Account		Reduction
11-120-100-101	Salaries of Teachers	$40,000

The rationale provided at such time of the reduction (See Resolution 21-94 dated May 16, 1994, as attached to Board Petition) was due to anticipated staff reduction due to retirement.

Commissioner's Determination

The dispute in this matter involves the retirement of two senior staff members from the district producing an initial savings in teacher salaries of $113,777. The Board points out that its replacement costs in terms of salary and benefits amount to $44,000 reducing the savings to the district to $69,777. However, the Board further notes that its contractual obligations to reimburse retirees for unused sick leave at the time of retirement obligates it to pay an additional $32,977 leaving the remaining $7,023 to be made up from appropriations out of free balance if the $40,000 reduction imposed by the Board is not restored. (See, Second Supplement to Board's Position Statement)

It is the Board's position that its anticipated June 30, 1994, free balance of $37,131 being less than 3% of its general fund budget is inadequate to ensure the district's ability to meet contingencies and, thus be prepared to provide a thorough and efficient system of education (See, Exhibit 4C as part of Petition of Appeal) The Board further points to the provisions of an amendment to 18A:7D-27.1 signed by the Governor on June 29, 1994, which permits a district with small general fund opportunities to maintain free balances of up to $75,000 or 7.5% whichever is larger before it is required to appropriate said free balance into its current year's budget. (See Board's Position Paper)

The Borough's essential position is that the Board's basic argument is that the reduction imposed reduces the Board's General Fund Free Balance to an unacceptable level. The Borough contends that the Board has failed to demonstrate specific proof that the absence of the approximately $7,000 in surplus required to be appropriated if Board's contentions are correct will produce a direct impact on the program.

The Borough contends that it is clear that using the Board's own figures that the retirements almost equal the reduction imposed by the Borough. Thus, the Borough contends that its reduction is an appropriate amount consistent with its constitutional obligations pursuant to Board of Education of East Brunswick v. Township Council of East Brunswick 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).

The Borough further contends that if the Commissioner is to override its decision he must make a finding that the Board cannot provide a thorough and efficient system of education if the cuts are carried out. In the present matter, the Borough contends the Board has not made such a case.

In its response to the Board's position, the Borough initially takes issue with the Board's filing of a second supplement to its position contending it to be both untimely and impermissible. Further, the Borough contends that the Board misapplies the recent amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27.1 since it is not meant to apply retroactively.

The Commissioner has carefully considered all the arguments of the parties including the argument raised by the Board relative to the amendment N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27.1. In so doing, he finds the Board's argument in that regard to be irrelevant since the bill does not require a general fund free balance of 7.5% or $75,000 whichever is larger but merely requires amounts in excess thereof to be appropriated for the purpose of preparing its budget under conditions articulated therein.

Finally, the Commissioner agrees that the Board, despite its efforts to point out the general reasons for which the maintenance of an adequate free balance is necessary, has failed to point to any obligations which it presently faces which would endanger its ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

For the reasons elaborated above the Commissioner sustains the $40,000 reduction in the General Fund tax levy imposed by the Borough of Hampton. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed.[1]

DATE OF MAILING - DECEMBER 23, 1994

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $462,317 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $462,317 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $8,441,979 for 1994-95 school year.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION	:
OF THE EASTERN CAMDEN COUNTY	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
REGIONAL DISTRICT, CAMDEN	:	DECISION
COUNTY	:

For Petitioner, Ronald W. Sahli, Esq. (Sahli & Padovani)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 24, 1994, by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Eastern Camden County Regional District Board of Education (Board) seeking inclusion within the 1994-95 General Fund Tax Levy a cap waiver in the amount of $462,317 which was defeated on April 19, 1994, by the voters of the district. The voters of the regional district at the aforesaid school election approved the basic General Fund Tax Levy of $7,979,662.

The aforesaid requested cap waiver amount was submitted to the voters of the district pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:70-28(f) which provides as follows:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 > and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in addition to the amounts required to be approved for each school district in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L 1971 (C.18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review or appeal.

The Commissioner notes that the Camden County Superintendent of Schools approved the N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) cap waiver request as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education after reviewing the entire school budget to determine whether the amounts in the cap waiver could be accommodated by way of reallocation within the base budget. Having determined that such reallocation could not be so accomplished, he conditionally approved the budget for submission to the voters with the provisions that should the cap waiver amounts which were deemed necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education be defeated, the district must file an appeal with the Commissioner of Education, See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 9-0036 (July 8, 1991)

The accounts and the amounts which were approved for submission to the voters are set forth below:

Account Title	Account Number	Dollar Amount
Regular Programs	11-110-100-101	$136,040.00
General Supplies	11-190-100-610	9,000.00

Textbooks	11-190-100-640	10,000.00
Salaries of Professional Staff	11-000-218-104	85,611.00
Salary of Sec. & Clerks	11-000-240-105	24,625.00
Other Employee Benefits	11-000-290-290	27,108.00
Energy (Heat & Electric)	11-000-260-620	169,933.00
	TOTAL	$462,317.00

By way of letters from each of the governing bodies of the constituent districts of the Eastern Camden County Regional School District (Gibbsboro, Voorhees and Berlin) informed the Commissioner that they supported the Board's appeal for inclusion of the $462,317 cap waiver in the 1994-95 General Fund Tax Levy. (See, Exhibits F & G of Petition of Appeal and Letter from Gibbsboro Mayor.)

Board's Position

The Board asserts that the increasing enrollment in both 1993-94 and 1994-95 necessitate the request for the cap waiver amount in the instructional accounts in order to maintain existing staff and to provide funds to compensate staff for an additional instructional period negotiated with its collective bargaining unit. Additionally, the Board's waiver requests includes funds for compensation of two substance abuse persons as well as for part time support personnel in each of the districts two schools. Benefits for these individuals are likewise included.

The Board further seeks approval for an increase of $169,933 in its Energy (Heat and Electric) account to compensate for miscalculation of the actual cost of heating its new intermediate school which opened in the 1993-94 school year.

Finally, the Board argues that its current fiscal problems stem from having appropriated $854,284 and $688,480 from its Free Balance in 1992-93 and 1993-94 to fund operations, thus depleting its balance below 3% to $62,058.95 according to the 1993 Audit Report, as well as causing the inability to use the balance appropriated in previous years to impact on its net budget calculations.

Commissioner's Decision

The Commissioner has reviewed the arguments presented by the Board as well as the affidavit submitted by the Camden County Superintendent attesting to his pre-election and post-election review of the General Fund Budget for purposes of possible reallocation. In addition the Commissioner has independently reviewed the budget for possible reallocations. Based upon his review and the review of the County Superintendent as well as the arguments presented by the Board, the Commissioner concludes that the cap waiver in the amount of $462,317 is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. (See Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, decided by the State Board of Education July 7, 1993, and Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1994.

Accordingly, the Camden County Board of Taxation is directed to adjust the General Fund Tax Levy of the Eastern Camden County Regional School District for the 1994-95 school year to reflect an increase of $462,317 for a total of $8,441,979 consistent with the findings above.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECEMBER 23. 1994

DATE OF MAILING - DECEMBER 23, 1994

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $310,319 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $310,319 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $2,235,816 for 1994-95 school year.

DECEMBER 23, 1994

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HARRISON, : DECISION
GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

For Petitioner, Russell E. Paul, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 13, 1994, by way of the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Township of Harrison (Board) seeking inclusion within the 1994-95 General Fund Tax Levy a cap waiver defeated on April 19, 1994, by the voters of the district in the amount of $310,319. In addition to the defeat of the cap waiver, the voters also defeated the base budget.

The aforesaid requested cap waiver amount was submitted to the voters of the district pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) which provides as follows:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in addition to the amounts required to be approved for each school district > in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L 1971 (C.18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C.18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review or appeal.

In addition to the afore cited defeated cap waiver submitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) the Commissioner approved a cap waiver in the amount of $218,833 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) which was included within the base budget as prescribed by the above cited statute.[1] The amount so approved by the Commissioner was based upon $167,701 due to enrollment increases and $51,132 for increased special education costs.

The Commissioner notes that the Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools approved the N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) cap

[1] A board of education of a school district which: (1) for the two years prior to the prebudget year, has had an annual average increase in the district's resident enrollment which is greater than two percent; or (2) between the prebudget year and the year prior to the prebudget year, has had an increase in the district's local cost for special education pupils which is greater than five percent; or (3) during the 1990-91 school year but prior to April 1, 1991, has entered into a lease purchase agreement, may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. A board of education of a school district that sends pupils and pays tuition to a special needs district may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. Any waiver granted by the commissioner pursuant to this subsection shall not be included in the question on excess expenditures which is to be submitted to the voters of the district pursuant to subsection f. of this section.

waiver request on March 31, 1994 as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient (T&E) education after reviewing the entire school budget to determine whether reallocation within the base budget could be accomplished. Having determined that such reallocation was not possible he conditionally approved the budget for submission to the voters with the provision that should the cap waiver be rejected the district must file an appeal with the Commissioner of Education. See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991).

The accounts and the amounts which were approved for submission to the voters are set forth below:

Account Title	Account Number	Dollar Amount
School Library Salaries	11-000-222-160	$ 63,050
K. Art, Music, Phys. Ed., Computer	11-110-100-101	14,700
1-5 Art, Music, Phys. Ed., Computer	11-120-100-101	155,943
Gr. 6 Art, Music, Phys. Ed., Computer	11-130-100-101	41,456
Health Benefits	11-000-290-290	35,170
Total Amount:		$310,319

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:22-37 the Board and the Township Committee of the Township of Harrison (Township) met on May 16, 1994, after the defeat of the budget and the cap waiver. As a result of the meeting the Board agreed to a reduction of its base budget in the amount of $73,100 reducing the General Fund Tax Levy from the requested $1,998,597 to $1,925,497. By way of a resolution adopted on June 6, 1994, the Township supported the cap waiver request of the Board and indicated its determination not to participate in this appeal (See, Exhibit 6 of the Board's Petition of Appeal).

Upon defeat of the budget and waiver, and the subsequent reduction of the General Fund Tax Levy agreed upon between the Board and Township, the Acting County Superintendent of Gloucester County reviewed the reductions and determined that they could be sustained without impacting upon the ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in Harrison Township provided that cap waiver items were also funded as follows:

($1,000) Library Stipend

This amount was budgeted to pay the librarian to move books into the new library. Volunteers and custodians will accomplish this task.

($500) Sunshine Fund

This amount was included in a miscellaneous line item and its purpose will be satisfied through faculty donations outside the budget.

($5,000) Electricity

The original energy costs were based on the architect's estimates. The board agreed to raise temperatures in the warmer weather to reduce air conditioning costs.

($4,000) Bus Repair

Minor repairs will be accomplished by school maintenance staff rather than contracting out.

($5,000) Gasoline

Out-of-district placements will be reduced in the 1994-95 budget thereby reducing gasoline costs.

($3,600) Equipment

The board deferred the purchase of a lawnmower/ snow plow for the new building. Existing hand mowers will be used to accomplish the job.

($54,000) School Buses

The board was required to replace two buses because of the age of the vehicles. The board will lease purchase the vehicles over five years and amortize the costs.

Board's Position

In support of its appeal, the Board points out that Harrison Township has experienced explosive growth in recent years requiring the construction of a K-2 addition to its current facilities which would open for the 1994-95 school year. It argues that the increased cost to open the new building and to staff it with additional professionals required the district to exceed its permissible cap by the $310,319 which is at issue in this appeal. Unless the cap waiver is granted, the Board argues it will be required to eliminate its library program, its computer program, its physical education program, its art program and its music program at specified grade levels. (See Board's Petition of Appeal) Due to the increased enrollment the entire cap waiver request is to provide salaries and benefits for the maintenance of one full time teacher in each of the programs indicated above and the hiring of a part time person in each of these programs to accommodate the increased enrollment.

Commissioner's Decision

The Commissioner has viewed the papers submitted by the Board as well as the Affidavit of the Gloucester County Superintendent of Schools submitted as part of the record in this matter. In addition, the Commissioner has reviewed the entire budget beyond the reductions made by the Township. Based upon this review and consideration of the changed circumstances set forth in the county superintendent's affidavit, the Commissioner concludes that the base budget of $1,925,497 and the $310,319 cap waiver are the minimal amount necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. (See Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, decided by the State Board July 7, 1993, and Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1994)

Accordingly, the Gloucester County Board of Taxation is directed to adjust the General Fund Tax Levy of the Harrison Township Board of Education for the 1994-95 school year to reflect an increase of $310,319 consistent with the Commissioner's findings above for a total of $2,235,816.[1]

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DATE OF MAILING - DECEMBER 23, 1994

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, PETITIONER, V. TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, WARREN COUNTY, RESPONDENT. AND IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, WARREN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $157,637 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $102,405.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $84,801 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $84,801 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $4,658,670 for 1994-95 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, PETITIONER, V. TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, WARREN COUNTY, RESPONDENT. AND IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WASHINGTON, WARREN COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For the Petitioner, Boyd Harbourt, Esq.

For the Respondent, Michael J. Friedman, Esq.
(Weiner Lesniak)

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 8, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated school budget and a defeated cap waiver by the Board of Education of the Township of Washington (Board). An Answer to the Petition of Appeal was filed on June 23, 1994, by the Township Committee of the Township of Washington (Township).

The parties filed respective position statements relative to the reductions imposed by the Township in the base budget and the Township filed a response to the Board's position statement. The Township filed no response to the Board's request for restoration of the cap waiver amount having indicated in its Answer that the $84,801 contained in said cap waiver request was no longer at issue between itself and the Board.

Further, as a result of State Board of Education decisions in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, decided July 7, 1993, and Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided July 6, 1994, (wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether reallocations within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education), the County Superintendent was required to file a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of the review conducted prior to submission of the cap waiver request to the voters. The aforesaid affidavit included the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1994-95 school year was not possible and (2) the reasons why the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a through and efficient system of education to its students. The Warren County Superintendent's affidavit was filed on August 1, 1994, and the Township filed a response to the County Superintendent's affidavit on September 1, 1994, which, it is noted, does not specifically address the cap waiver amounts other than to note the defeat by the voters but calls the Commissioner's attention to the standard set forth in Edgewater.

On April 19, 1994, the voters of the Township of Washington defeated the Board's General Fund tax levy and a proposed cap waiver which had been approved by the Warren County Superintendent of Schools as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The specific line item accounts for the T&E cap waiver were as follows:

Account		Amount
11-000-270-511	Contracted Services Reg.	$41,756
11-000-270-514	Contracted Services Spec. Ed.	43,045
	Total T&E Cap Waiver	$84,801

In addition to the T&E cap waiver approved by the County Superintendent for submission to the voters, the Commissioner also approved cap waivers for a total amount of $400,511 pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) which affords the Commissioner the authority to grant such waivers whenever district resident enrollment average increase for two years prior to the prebudget year is greater than 2% and whenever between the prebudget year and/or the year prior to the prebudget year, there has been an increase in the district's local cost for special education pupils which was greater than 5%. Waivers were granted in the amount above for both of these exigencies.

Subsequent to the defeat of the budget by the voters, the Board and the Township pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 consulted on the defeated budget whereupon the Township reduced the basic budget by $157,637. The amount of the proposed General Fund tax levy, the reduction proposed by the Township and the amount in dispute are set forth below:

Proposed General Fund tax levy	$4,629,101
Amount Certified by Township	$4,471,464
Amount of Reduction in Dispute	$ 157,637

DEFEATED BUDGET

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also, Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The specific line item reductions and the reasons for such reductions as provided in the Township's Resolution R94-54 dated May 17, 1994, are set forth below:

Regular Programs Undistributed Instruction	Account Number	Amount
1. Other Salaries for Instruction	11-190-100-106	$ 11,232

RATIONALE:

1. Elimination of the Board's request for two (2) additional part-time classroom aides. This is not considered a priority.
2. Reduction in supplies based on 1993-94 history. Additional allocation not required.
3. Reduction in textbooks based on 1993-94 history. Entire appropriation not considered a priority.
4. Reduction to maintain level of speech instruction resources at the current level. This is not considered a priority.
5. Reduction to maintain the current level of guidance instruction provided.
6. Additional social workers' time is not considered a priority.
7. Reduction reflects the decision to not increase the secretaries' time by 25% and to maintain the superintendent's and principal's time allocations as currently in effect.
8. Reduction based on current year activity.
9. Reduction made to keep coverage as is.
10. Reduction made based on analysis of current year activity.
11. Reduction based on level of increase, current activity and lack of detail to support the increase.
12. Reduction based on lack of need to increase coverage without detail support.
13. Decrease based upon review of current year activity.
14. Reduction based upon current year activity and the expected increase.
15. Reduction made based on personnel requests which have been eliminated.

16. Reduction based on estimated timing of the transaction.

17. Reduction based on current year activity.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed all the evidence and arguments submitted by the parties in support of their respective positions. The Commissioner's review of the arguments relative to line item reductions and his conclusions are set forth below:

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-106	Other Salaries for Instruction	$11,232

The Council argues that the addition of two part-time aides is not a necessity required to provide a thorough and efficient education.

The Board contends that the aides in question are necessary to provide support for larger kindergarten and second grade classes. The added support, the Board asserts, is required by continuation of its Whole Language, Real Math and Computer Literacy programs.

The Commissioner has considered the arguments presented above. Based upon the heightened standard enumerated by the State Board in Edgewater, supra, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Board has failed to demonstrate that the elimination of the two part-time aides would materially affect its ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The reduction of $11,232 is sustained.

11-190-100-610	General Supplies	$5,000

The Township argues that an increase in this appropriation is not justified based upon 1993-94 expenditures. The Township contends that the Board did not provide detailed support to justify its appropriation.

The Board contends that the Township based its decision on the March 31, 1994, Financial Statement. The Board asserts that orders for Whole Language and Math materials were held by the superintendent and subsequently spent after March 31 due to fear that transfers to special education accounts and teacher salaries would result in a shortfall in the 1993-94 budget.

The Commissioner finds that the Board offers a reasonable explanation for its seeming need for the supplies requested but provides no documentation to support its assertion that subsequent purchases were made in this account. In light of the Board's failure to so demonstrate, the Commissioner sustains the $5,000 reduction imposed by the Township.

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-640	Textbooks	$5,000

The Township argues that the 1993-94 level of expenditure indicates a large available balance in this account.

The Board again contends that the Township's position is based upon the March 31 Financial Statement which reflected a decision to hold expenditures in this account due to fear of a possible deficit.

The Commissioner once again is constrained to observe that although the Board provides reasonable explanation for the balance held as of March 31, 1994, it likewise in this account fails to document its contention that expenditures for textbooks were undertaken after that date. Consequently, the $5,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-218-100-101	Teacher's Salaries Speech	$16,790

The Township merely argues that it seeks to maintain the level of speech instruction at 1993-94 levels.

The Board argues that the impact of the reduction in the speech salary account would reduce projected speech time to .59 time from full time for one therapist. It is the Board's contention that speech requirements have grown 80% since December 1993. It contends that during the 1994-95 school year it will be required to provide speech therapy to three additional students plus providing speech once per week to students in a class for Perceptually Impaired and twice per week for a new class of Multiply Handicapped students. The Board sets forth the following table of growth in requirements for speech therapy:

1991	42 cases
1992	47 cases
1993	47 cases
1994	86 cases
1994-95	89 cases

In light of the documentation of its increased needs in the area of speech therapy, the Commissioner directs the restoration of $16,790 for a part-time speech therapist.

11-000-218-104	Salaries Professional Staff	$26,039

The Township argues that guidance services should remain at 1993-94 levels.

The Board contends that increased enrollment requires that its guidance services should be increased from its current level of .47 time to full time. In support of its position, the Board sets forth the increases by grade level in Attachment 1A to its Position Statement.

Upon review of the arguments of the parties and in light of the significant increase in student population, the Commissioner directs the restoration of $26,039 in the guidance teacher account.

Account		Reduction
11-000-219-104	Other Salaries Professional Staff	$10,240

The Township argues that increase in the social workers' time was not a priority.

The Board contends that it has only one part-time individual providing social work services. The Board contends that the increase in time for the social worker is necessitated by a 25% increase in the special education population as of April 1994. Between September 1992 and June 1994, special education population has increased from 85 students to a projected 126 students by September 1994.

The Commissioner, based upon the undisputed contention by the Board as to the growth in its special education population, finds and determines that the Board has borne its burden and directs a restoration of $10,240 in this account.

11-000-230-100	Salaries General Administration	$21,980

The Township argues that the amount of time spent by the superintendent and the principal in administrative activities should not change. Therefore, the Township asserts that the increase is not a priority.

The Board argues that the secretarial assistance provided to the superintendent and the principal of the Brass Castle School in this account is necessitated by the fact that both individuals serve only part time in their respective positions with the superintendent also serving as a part-time principal and the principal of the Brass Castle School serving as Director of Special Services and Learning Disabilities Consultant.

Given the myriad functions required of both a superintendent and a principal as outlined by the Board in its Position Statement, the Commissioner finds more than adequate justification for providing additional administrative assistance through the hiring of an additional secretary to be shared by the two. This is particularly true given the multiple functions of the part-time building principal. The Commissioner therefore directs the restoration of $21,980 in this account.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-331	Legal Services	$1,000

The Township argues that 60% of the funds allocated for legal services in 1993-94 were unused as of March 31, 1994.

The Board argues that the fact the 60% of legal services funds were unused as of March 31, 1994, should not serve as the basis for the reduction imposed for 1994-95. It points out that legal services costs fluctuate from year to year with its 1992-93 expenditures being $4,900 over budget. The Board points out that it is involved in a lease purchase building project which will require over expenditure in the amount of $11,500. Additionally, the Board contends it will be negotiating a new contract with the education association in 1994-95 which will add to its legal costs.

The Commissioner finds that the Board has demonstrated its need for the amount by which this account has been cut. Therefore, the Commissioner directs that the $1,000 in this account be restored.

11-000-230-590	Other Purchased Services	$2,000

The Township argues that the reduction is based upon insufficient justification for the increase in coverage sought.

The Board contends that it has received a strong recommendation to increase its liability coverage from $2 million to $5 million.

The Board argues that its increased student population produces increased potential for liability and that the increase in costs for the increased coverage is minimal.

The Commissioner has considered the arguments of the Board carefully but finds them unpersuasive in that there is no evidence presented to demonstrate that the relatively small increase in student population raises the level of anticipated liability. The $2,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-000-240-600	School Administration Supplies and Materials	$5,000

The Township argues that the district overbudgeted in this account in 1993-94 and failed to provide sufficient documentation for the appropriation represented.

The Board points out that the original amount budgeted in 1993-94 in this account was $22,000 but $10,458.20 was transferred to cover unanticipated expenditures in other accounts, thus, leaving a backlog of needs for professional books, student awards, copy supplies, etc.

The Commissioner, upon review, determines that the Board has failed to supply specific amounts which would be required to provide those supplies which it contends it needs and therefore he directs that the $5,000 reduction imposed be sustained.

11-000-260-420	Plant Repair and Maintenance	$10,000

The Township contends that the Board increased its appropriation from $40,000 in 1993-94 to $80,150 in 1994-95 without sufficient detailed documentation to support the amount budgeted. The Township points out that it has permitted increased appropriations over 1993-94 but does not deem the entire amount justified.

The Board contends that its projected budget for 1993-94 was actually $58,000 but its actual expenditures were $104,184.69. In rebuttal to the Township's assertion of lack of documentation, the Board provides a list of projects in Attachment 2A of its Position Statement amounting to $57,000, as well as an additional amount of $23,150 in maintenance contracts.

Upon consideration of the documentation presented by the Board, the Commissioner notes that no attempt is made to indicate which projects are absolute priorities which impact upon the health and safety of its pupils other than to describe the total amount as a priority. In light of the Board's failure to provide such documentation, the Commissioner sustains the $10,000 reduction in this account.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-520	Insurance	$3,000

The Township contends that the Board has provided insufficient justification for the increase in coverage sought.

The Board contends that it paid $20,048 for insurance in this account in 1993-94 and that the $23,000 budgeted in 1993-94 is based upon adjustment in values and a standard increase.

In considering the arguments of the parties, the Commissioner notes that the Board provides no documentation to substantiate the increase in insurance costs in this account. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $3,000 imposed by the Township.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-610	Plant General Supplies	$4,000

The Township argues that the Board provides no detailed support to justify the increase requested in this account. It further contends that approximately 50% or $7,000 was available in this account as of the March 31, 1994, Financial Statement.

The Board asserts that purchases in this account were restricted and were transferred to salaries and plant repairs and maintenance for needed roof replacement at the Brass Castle School.

Since the restoration in spending in this account resulted in reduction in inventory of cleaning supplies, there will be a shortage in this account if it is reduced.

The Commissioner, upon review of the arguments and the record, finds that the Board has failed to document the transfers alleged in its Position Statement, nor sufficiently documented the shortages which would result from the reduction imposed by the Township. The reduction of $4,000 in this account is sustained.

11-000-260-620	Plant Energy	$10,000

The Township argues that a 15% increase in appropriations for 1994-95 was not justified. It contends that despite the severe winter of 1993-94, the Board's original appropriation of $80,000 was excessive.

The Board asserts that $73,383.69 was spent during 1993-94 and a $10,000 reduction in this account as imposed by the Township could produce a shortfall. It contends that the additional funds appropriated for 1994-95 are to pay for the addition of hot water to the lavatory facilities in its two schools and an increase in the rate for natural gas.

Once again, the Commissioner notes the failure of the Board to document its contention of a rate increase for natural gas and the approximate cost increase to result from the addition of the hot water to the lavatory facilities. The Commissioner, therefore, directs that the reduction of $10,000 be sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	$16,556

The Township justifies the reduction in this area due to its elimination of the additional positions requested by the Board.

The Board argues that the reduction in this account would result in a shortfall if the positions cut by the Township were restored.

The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $16,556 in this account in light of his restoration of all the positions requested by the Board except for those of the two part-time aides.

11-000-290-832	Interest for Lease Purchase	$5,000

The Township argues that the reduction is justified since the lease will not be effective July 1, 1994, and, thus, a full year's interest is unnecessary.

The Board contends that although a full year's interest may not be required, the interest rate has been increased from 5% to 6%. Further, it argues that the project costs were originally estimated at between $330,000 and $340,000 but the lowest bid was actually $396,000.

The Commissioner, based upon the Board's contention of increased interest rate and higher overall costs, concludes that the reduction in this account cannot be sustained and therefore directs the restoration of $5,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-310-930	Transfer to Cover Deficit	$4,800

The Township argues that its reduction is based upon 1993-94 activity. It further argues that the reduction is an encouragement to eliminate the deficit.

The Board argues that a reduction in this account would make it impossible to cover a deficit which might occur in 1994-95. The Board argues that it is prudent to provide a reserve fund for such a purpose.

The Commissioner notes, based upon his own expertise, that deficits in Food Service areas are common and therefore concludes that budgeting for such an exigency is prudent. The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $4,800 in this account.

11-000-310-930	Transfer to Cover Deficit		4,800
	TOTALS	$55,232	$102,405

In summary, the Commissioner finds and determines that of the $157,637 General Fund tax levy reduction imposed by the Township, a sum of $55,232 has been sustained and determines the remaining amount of $102,405 is essential to enable the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

It is therefore ordered that the Warren County Board of Taxation increase the local school tax levy for the 1993-94 school year in Washington Township by $102,405.

CAP WAIVER

In reviewing the cap waiver request in this matter, the Commissioner notes that the sole accounts for which the Board seeks to increase its expenditures are for additional transportation costs necessitated by increased overall student enrollment and increased special education enrollment. In rendering a determination in this matter, the Commissioner has carefully considered the affidavit of the Warren County Superintendent and the documents indicating the efforts of the County Superintendent and the Department of Education's Cap Waiver Review Committee to consider reallocation. The Commissioner has further weighed the impact of his own review of the reductions imposed by the Township Committee. Based upon the foregoing, the Commissioner concludes that further reallocation within the base budget cannot be carried out without impacting on the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. (See, Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater, decided by the State Board July 6, 1994.)

The Commissioner further notes that the Township in this matter does not seek to challenge the Board's contentions relative to its need for additional funds to meet its transportation requirements. (See, Answer of Township to Petition of Appeal, at p. 3.)

Therefore, in light of the documented and unchallenged need for additional funds to provide transportation for both regular and special education pupils, the Commissioner directs the Warren County Board of Taxation to further increase the 1994-95 General Fund tax levy of the Washington Township Board of Education by an additional $84,801 so that the total tax levy for school purposes shall be:[1]

Tax Levy Certified by Township	$4,471,464
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	102,405
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	84,801
Total Tax Levy	$4,658,670

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECEMBER 23, 1994

DATE OF MAILING - DECEMBER 23, 1994

[1]After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent appealed Board's determination of nonresidency. Board contended petitioner and her children, D.A. and S.H., were not domicile in the district but in Trenton and, thus, were not entitled to a free public education in Ewing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

In light of evidence presented and testimony of the witnesses, the ALJ concluded petitioner proved that she and her children were domiciled in Ewing, although they did spend time at a Trenton apartment. Citing Matter of Unanue, Mercadante, and Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, ALJ found petitioner's intent was determinative.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

Robert J. Merryman, Esq., for the respondent (Carroll and Weiss, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 12, 1994 Decided: August 25, 1994

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

R.A., on behalf of her minor children, S.H. and D.A., filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) seeking to reverse the determination by the Board of Education of Ewing Township, Mercer County (Board), that her children, S.H. and D.A., be removed from the Ewing Township School System. In response, the Board contends that R.A. and her children, D.A. and S.H., are not domiciled within the Ewing Township School District.

The Commissioner on May 2, 1994, transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing took place in the Office of Administrative Law in Trenton, New Jersey, on July 8 and 12, 1994, and the record in the matter closed on July 12, 1994.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

The issue of the domicile of R.A. and her two children first arose in June 1993 when R.A. registered her youngest child, S.H., for kindergarten in the 1993-94 school year. At that time, R.A. listed her address as 22 Marquis Road in Ewing Township (Ewing house). The school nurse found that S.H.'s medical records were not complete and she called the listed physician to get S.H.'s immunization records. The physician's office indicated that S.H. lived at 90 Prospect Village in Trenton (Trenton apartment) (R-5). In September 1993, S.H. told her teacher that she did not live with her grandparents (Ewing house), but with her father (Trenton apartment), and that her father dropped her off daily at the Ewing house so that she could get the bus for school (R-4, R-5).

During the hearing, R.A. testified that she and her two children live in her parents' house (Ewing house), and that she has always lived in Ewing Township. In support of her position, R.A. presented the birth certificates of S.H. and D.A., which indicate that the children's mother resides at the Ewing house (P-1, P-2), and her driver's license (P-5) and vehicle registration (P-6), both of which indicate that R.A. resides at the Ewing house. R.A. stated that although her parents own the house, she helps with the expenses by paying both the water and telephone bills. R.A. presented a water bill which was addressed to her at the Ewing house (P-4), as well as a Bell Atlantic telephone bill addressed to her at the Ewing house (P-3). According to R.A., she does not pay any of the expenses at the Trenton apartment.

R.A. testified that she has never been married and that she has custody of both of her children. The oldest child, D.A., is eleven years old and is in the fifth grade at the Antheil School in Ewing Township. R.A. has not kept in touch with D.A.'s father, although she thinks he resides in Trenton. D.A. spends most of his time at her parents' house or with his friends in Ewing Township. R.A. stated that the father of her youngest child, S.H., resides in Trenton, and that sometimes she and S.H. visit with him at the Trenton apartment. According to R.A., her daughter's doctor has the Trenton apartment address since her daughter is covered by her father's medical insurance.

R.A. is employed by the Capital Nursing Center and she used to work primarily the 3:00-p.m.-to-11:00-p.m. shift. When she worked this shift she would take S.H. to the Trenton apartment where the child would stay with her father and an older sister. According to R.A, her mother is disabled and cannot take care of R.A.'s young daughter. After working this shift, R.A. did not want to wake her daughter up, so R.A. and S.H. would stay at the Trenton apartment. In the morning, R.A. would drive her daughter back to the Ewing house. R.A. would fix breakfast for her daughter at the Ewing address and then the child would catch the bus for school. Sometimes R.A. would take both children to the Trenton apartment, and there were times that she and one or both children spent a weekend at the Trenton apartment.

R.A. stated that she now works primarily the 11:00-p.m.-to-7:00-a.m. shift; however, she also works other shifts and, at times, double shifts.

Mark Schon, the administrator of the Capital Nursing Center, was subpoenaed to testify on behalf of the Board and to bring with him R.A.'s work records from September 1993 through June 1994. Mr. Schon testified that R.A. is an employee of the Capital Nursing Center and that her time records (R-1, R-2, R-3) show when she worked and when she was off. According to these records, R.A. worked the 3:00-p.m.-to-11:00-p.m. shift for much of September through December 1993 (R-1).

R.A. stated that S.H.'s father never drove S.H. back to the Ewing house so that she could go to school, since he leaves for work at 5:30 a.m. Also, R.A. said that she sometimes lends her car to S.H.'s father.

Because of the information given by R.A.'s daughter and the doctor, David J. Mikalauskus, the residency and attendance officer for the Ewing School District, was assigned to investigate where R.A. and her two children lived. Mr. Mikalauskus and a part-time residency officer, Victor Ptycia, conducted an investigation to determine the residence of R.A. and her children, and both officers submitted reports of their surveillances at both the Ewing house and the Trenton apartment (R-5, R-7).

The two officers conducted a total of seventy surveillances between October 6, 1993, and March 13, 1994. Twice, three surveillances were conducted on the same day, and eleven times, two surveilances were conducted on the same day. Only on one occasion did an officer see R.A. drive to the Ewing house early in the morning with both children in her car and only on three occasions did an officer see R.A. drive to the Ewing house early in the morning with one young child (presumably S.H.) in her car. On three occasions, the officer did not see R.A.'s car early in the morning at the Ewing address, and then later saw the car there. On twenty-eight occasions, at various times during the day or evening, the officers saw R.A.'s car parked near the Trenton apartment. The officers did not stay long enough to determine who was in the Trenton apartment. On all the other occasions they either saw R.A.'s car parked in front of the Ewing house or did not see R.A.'s car. In comparing the dates and times of these surveillances with R.A.'s employment records, it is clear that R.A.'s car was seen sometimes near the Trenton apartment on days she was not working the 3-p.m.-to-11 -p.m. shift and on days R.A. was not working at all (R-6).

Mr. Mikalauskus spoke to R.A.'s father, who said that R.A. lived at the Ewing house and that her clothes were there (R-5).

Based on the testimony of the witnesses, I FIND R.A. to be a credible witness and I FIND that she and her two children reside at the Ewing house. Except for the one occasion that an officer saw R.A.'s son, D.A., arriving early in the morning at the Ewing house, there is no evidence at all to suggest that D.A. lives anywhere but at the Ewing house. As to R.A. and her daughter, S.H., I FIND that both R.A. and her daughter spend some time at the Trenton apartment and that there are times when R.A. leaves her daughter with the daughter's father when R.A. is at work. Further, I FIND that the statement made by S.H. to her teacher is not proof of where she lives most of the time.

S.H. was in kindergarten when she made the statement and very young children's statements are often not reliable. For example, the facts show that contrary to her statement, S.H.'s father does not drive her back to the Ewing house.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, free public education shall be provided to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district. In general, domicile is the place of a person's abode where he or she has the present intent of remaining and to which, if absent, he or she intends to return, Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). The courts have recognized that a person may have multiple residences, but only one domicile, State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 251 (1955); In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977); Lea v. Lea, 18 N.J. 1, (1955). In the Mercadante cae, the court stated that the following factors are important in determining the domicile of a person:

> . . . the physical characteristics of each [place], the time spent and the things done in each place, the other persons found there, the person's mental attitude towards each place, and whether there is or is not an intention, when absent, to return.
> [111 N.J. Super. at 39-40]

The court in In the Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 376 (Law Div. 1991), stated that "a choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." In general, the courts have recognized that intent is a decisive factor in establishing domicile, Benny, supra, 20 N.J. 238; Unanue, supra, 225 N.J. Super. 362; Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514 (Law Div. 1959). In a recent case, the Commissioner has recognized that the determining factor in deciding a family domicile is a matter of intent, Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 96, 103 (Education).

The record in this matter shows that both children live with R.A. and that R.A. considers the Ewing house her residence. Although the Board has shown that R.A. and one or both of her children spent some time at the Trenton apartment, I CONCLUDE that this is insufficient to establish domicile there.

CONCLUSION

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has shown that she and her children are domiciled within the Ewing Township School District, and I ORDER that the decision of the Board be reversed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

R.A., on behalf of her minor children, S.H. AND D.A.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EWING, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Ewing (Board) initially excepts to the ALJ's finding of Petitioner R.A. as a credible witness. The Board points to the contradictions in R.A.'s testimony regarding the relationship between the shifts she worked and time spent at the Trenton address.* The Board posits this conflicting testimony is evidence of R.A.'s attempt "to mislead both the Board and the Court" with regard to the amount of time she stays in Trenton. (Board's Exceptions, at p. 2)

* The Board asserts that, although R.A. alleges she stays in Trenton only when she works the 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. shift, upon cross-examination, she admits that she and the children stay in Trenton on weekends when she is not working, and also when she works the 11:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m. shift. Additionally, respondent's surveillance records indicate that R.A.'s car was parked at the Trenton address on days when she worked from 7:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., contrary to her testimony that she does not go to Trenton on those days. (Tr. 7/8/94, at pp. 10, 12, 13, 15, 16; (R-8), at pp. 18-19)

The Board further contends that R.A. failed to meet her burden, as established by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), to prove by a preponderance of evidence that her children are eligible for a free public education in the Township of Ewing. The Board asserts that the documents which R.A. purports to evidence a Ewing domicile are insufficient. The children's birth certificates, the Board argues, merely show that R.A. lived in Ewing when her children were born in 1982 and 1988. The driver's license and registration do not necessarily reflect current domicile since a driver must take affirmative steps to update or change such records. The Board dismisses the weight of the phone and water bills in R.A.'s name.

Finally, the Board challenges the ALJ's emphasis on intent when determining domicile. This emphasis, the Board maintains, will present an unworkable standard for local boards of education to effectively respond to the problems of nonresidents attending their schools. The Board argues that the amended language in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 was an attempt by the Legislature to establish less rigorous procedures for local boards to follow when attempting to remove or deny admission to students who are not entitled to a free public education in the district.

Upon careful and independent review of this matter, which included a review of the transcripts of the hearings conducted on July 8 and 12, 1994, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner has shown that she and her children are domiciled in the Township of Ewing. In making this determination, the Commissioner finds that the inconsistencies with respect to petitioner's testimony on record are inconsequential; the Commissioner recognizes:

> Establishing a domicile involves an act of volition. "A person has the right to choose his own domicil, and his motive in doing so is immaterial." Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264, 288 A.2d 12 (1972). In accordance with this principle it has been held that one does not relinquish his domicile by having another residence based on reasons of health, society, business or employment. (Matter of Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 375 (1991))

The sole question considered by the Commissioner was whether petitioner's children are persons domiciled in the Township of Ewing and therefore entitled to a free public education in that district, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. At the outset, the Commissioner notes that the terms "residence" and "domicile" are not synonymous; a person may have several residences or places of abode, but only one domicile at a time. See Collins v. Yancy, supra, at 520, 521; see also State v. Benny, supra, at 251.

> In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. (Matter of Unanue, supra, at 374, citing Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215, 38 A.2d 862 (Sup. Ct. 1944))

See also Mercadante v. The City of Paterson, supra, at 39, aff'd 58 N.J. 112 (1971).) Thus, the domicile is what one regards as a true and permanent home. In re Jaffe, supra, at 90, 91

The ALJ's decision turns on the element of intent in accordance with Fort Lee Board of Education v. Kintos, supra, aff'd State Board April 13, 1994. Yet, the concepts of home and domicile embody both a subjective and objective relationship to a physical residence. Matter of Unanue, supra, at 375. In the instant matter, the objective indicia of R.A.'s Ewing domicile include the children's birth certificates, the water and telephone bills in her name, and her driver's license and registration. The objective indicia are also evidence of petitioner's intent. That R.A. has continued to accept and pay the telephone and water bills, and has not taken steps to change the address on her driver's documents, suggest that she regards Ewing as her permanent home.

> A change of domicileis effected if a person actually moves to a new abode intending to remain there for an indefinite time and establishing it as a fixed present domicile, notwithstanding that he entertains merely a possibility, or floating intention, of returning to his former domicile at some later time. (emphasis supplied)
> (Matter of Unanue, supra, at 378)

R.A.'s testimony before the Board shows an unequivocal intent to remain in Ewing Township as long as her parents are living, irrespective of the time which she elects to spend in Trenton. (R-8, at pp. 22-23)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and herein, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law finding the children of R.A. entitled to a free public education in the Ewing Township School District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 is affirmed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner asserted that as a tenured secretary she had entitlement to a full-time 12-month position which became available at the time her half-time 12-month position was eliminated. Petitioner contended her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 were violated.

ALJ concluded that tenure does not accrue in a specific secretarial position but rather as a secretary in the school system. Thus, upon abolition of her 12-month half-time secretarial position, petitioner was entitled to be assigned to one of the vacant full-time 12-month secretarial positions. The Board was ordered to compensate petitioner for amount owed from July 1, 1993 (date new full-time 12-month secretarial position commenced) to December 31, 1993 (date of petitioner's resignation).

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered payment of compensation.

Record Closed: June 29, 1994 Decided: November 10, 1994*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was commenced on September 28, 1993 with the filing of a petition of appeal wherein Joyce A. Sherrill (hereinafter petitioner) asserted that the Board of Education of the

---

* Extensions of time for issuing the Initial Decision were requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Township of Cinnaminson (hereinafter respondent) had violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 by assigning her to a half-time ten-month position rather than to a full-time twelve-month position when it abolished her half-time twelve-month secretarial position. Petitioner asserted that the reassignment constituted a reduction in compensation without proceedings under the Tenure Act. An answer on behalf of respondent was filed on October 18, 1993 wherein respondent denied that it had violated petitioner's tenure rights. On October 22, 1993 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on January 19, 1994 wherein it was determined that cross-motions for summary decision would be filed. Respondent's motion and supporting papers were received on March 3, 1994. Petitioner's motion and supporting papers were received on March 25, 1994. Oral argument on the cross-motions took place on May 24, 1994, following which both parties submitted supplemental memoranda. Respondent's letter brief and attachments were received on June 9, 1994. Petitioner's supplemental letter memorandum was received June 29, 1994, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties submitted the following joint stipulation of facts:

1. Petitioner Joyce A. Sherrill resides at 539 Zeisner Avenue, Cinnaminson, New Jersey 08077.

2. Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, Burlington County, is a public school district with administrative offices located at Eleanor Rush School, P. O. Box 224, Cinnaminson, New Jersey.

3. Petitioner Joyce A. Sherrill commenced employment with respondent on or about September 1, 1985 as a teachers' aide.

4. Petitioner was assigned to the position of half-time secretary to the Curriculum Supervisors on or about September 22, 1988.

5. Petitioner held the position of half-time secretary until June 30, 1993.

6. Petitioner acquired tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 in her respective employment position with the respondent.

7. Petitioner's position as a half-time secretary to the Curriculum Supervisors was a twelve-month position.

8. For the 1992-1993 school year, petitioner was paid an annual salary of $8,595.00.

9. On or about June 30, 1993 petitioner's position as a twelve-month half-time secretary was abolished.

10. Petitioner, by virtue of her tenure, was entitled to bump into a vacant position or one held by a non-tenured employee. Petitioner was assigned to the position of half-time secretary to the Child Study Team commencing September 1, 1993.

11. Petitioner's position as a half-time secretary to the Child Study Team was a ten-month position, for which petitioner was paid an annual salary of $7,518.00.

12. At or about the time that respondent abolished petitioner's twelve-month half-time secretarial position, it created a new twelve-month full-time secretarial position to the administrative assistant commencing July 1, 1993. Respondent assigned a non-tenured individual to that position.

13. At or about the time that respondent abolished petitioner's twelve-month half-time secretarial position, another twelve-month full-time position as secretary to the high school vice principal became vacant. Respondent assigned a non-tenured individual to that position.

14. Paragraph D(1)(c) of Article 26 of the Agreement between the Cinnaminson Education Association and the Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, entitled "Reduction in Force and School Closing", provides that "Seniority is defined as the number of months worked in > applicable positions in the District as a full-time employee. If an employee works one day in a calendar month, he shall be given credit for a full month."

> 15. Petitioner resigned from her position as a ten-month half-time secretary to the Child Study Team effective December 31, 1993.

In addition to the foregoing stipulations, the following additional uncontested facts appear from the motion papers, oral argument of counsel, and the copies of the negotiated agreement between the Cinnaminson Township Board of Education and the Cinnaminson Education Association, Inc. supplied by respondent.

Additional provisions of Article 26 of the Negotiated Agreement which were not quoted in the stipulations submitted by the attorneys provide for the preparation of seniority lists in three "groups" in the event of a reduction in force among tenured secretarial employees. "Group 1" and "Group 3" are not relevant to this matter; "Group 2" provides for four "sub-lists":

(1) 12 Month Secretary
(2) 10 Month Secretary
(3) 12 Month Clerk
(4) 10 Month Clerk

Additional subparagraphs of Article 26, Section D(1) provide:

> (f) A tenured secretarial employee whose position is eliminated or filled by another employee whose position has been eliminated has the right to claim the position filled by the lowest seniority employee on the same sub-list if he possesses greater seniority than that employee.
>
> (g) In the event that the affected employee is not senior to the lowest seniority employee on the same sub-list, he has the right to claim the position filled by the lowest seniority employee on the next lower sub-list within the Group if he possesses greater seniority than that employee.

> (j) An employee who claims a position within his sub-list shall maintain his current salary. An employee who claims a position on another sub-list shall move laterally to the same step on the new salary column.

The salary columns referred to in Article 26, Section D(1)(j), which relate to this matter are entitled "twelve-month secretary" and "ten-month secretary." For the year 1992-93 petitioner was paid on step six of the twelve-month secretary column ($17,190 x .5= $8,595). For 1993-94 school year petitioner was paid on step seven of the ten-month secretary column ($15,035 x .5 = $7,518). Petitioner made timely application for each of the vacant twelve-month full-time secretarial positions; however, respondent reviewed all of the secretarial positions in the district and riffed the holder of the only other half-time secretarial position, which happened to be a ten-month position, and assigned petitioner to that ten-month half-time position. The within matter followed.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, the rule governing motions for summary decision, provides:

> (b) The motion for summary decision shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits. The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

The now classic statement of the standards for granting or denying summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), explains that the procedure is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion, clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial. In the present matter the parties agree that there are no material facts in dispute, and accordingly, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, the statute pursuant to which petitioner holds her tenure as secretary with respondent provides in pertinent part:

> b. Any person holding any secretarial or clerical position or employment under a board of education of any school district or under any officer thereof, after
>
> 1. The expiration of a period of employment of three consecutive calendar years in the district or such shorter period as may be fixed by the board or officer employing him, or
>
> 2. Employment for three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year, an academic year being the period between the time when school opens in the district after the general summer vacation and the beginning of the next succeeding summer vacation
>
> . . .
> shall hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by sub-article B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to 6-26)

Although some of petitioner's arguments are couched in language complaining about unlawful reduction in compensation, during oral argument petitioner's attorney acknowledged that if there had been no other secretarial positions available, i.e., no vacant positions or positions filled by non-tenured or less senior tenured secretaries, petitioner would have no basis for complaint; her twelve-month half-time position was legally abolished and although the ten-month half-time position to which she was assigned in fact pays her less money on an annual basis, she was paid at a rate which was not a reduction in compensation. Petitioner acknowledged that she was not seriously arguing she should be paid a twelve-month salary for working ten months. The problem in the present matter, of course, is that other twelve-month positions were available; petitioner indicated her interest in those positions in a timely manner, and for whatever reason, respondent determined to assign her to a half-time ten-month position instead. For the following reasons, I CONCLUDE that respondent's actions in this regard violated not only petitioner's statutory tenure rights but also her seniority rights pursuant to the Negotiated Agreement.

Although the Commissioner has on a number of occasions indicated that rules and regulations concerning reassignment after a reduction in force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the tenure law for teaching staff members, do not apply following a reduction in force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, the tenure law for secretaries, etc., none of those cases support respondent's actions in the within matter.

Ann Kigerl v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, Middlesex County, 1981 S.L.D. 889, aff'd State Board 896, states ". . . when a person, whose position is lawfully abolished, is reassigned or is transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, a reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2." The key word in this quotation is "position". It is quite clear from the statutory language that tenure, either under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 for professional staff or N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, for secretaries and business staff, attaches to a "position". Barbara Ellicott v. Board of Education of the Township of Frankford, Sussex County, 1990 S.L.D. 1714, 1717-1718, State Board opinion, aff'd 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991). Kigerl dealt with a variety of position titles, all of which were different from the title of Ms. Kigerl's abolished position. Tenure in a position, even if it is a secretarial position, requires the conclusion that when other assignments exist within the same position title, a riffed tenured employee who held that position title is entitled to claim that vacancy as opposed to a non-tenured applicant. The result in Kigerl was based upon two factors, neither of which is present in the within matter, i.e., Ms. Kigerl selected a different position title with a lower salary guide, and the Board and the Association in Kigerl had not negotiated specific seniority rights for secretaries and/or clerks. In this case, petitioner, a tenured twelve-month secretary, did not select the lower paying ten-month position; in fact, she applied for both vacant twelve-month secretarial positions. Without regard to specific negotiated seniority and bumping rights, respondent's actions in assigning petitioner to a different position on a different salary scale when that result could easily have been avoided by assigning her to one of the vacancies within her own twelve-month position title violated her tenure rights. Furthermore, in this matter petitioner's seniority rights were specifically designated in the Negotiated Agreement quoted hereinabove and in the joint Stipulation of Facts which provides for all seniority to be calculated on a full-time basis* and which provides for four "sub-lists", each with a separate salary guide, i.e., twelve-month secretary, ten-month secretary, twelve-month clerk, and ten-month clerk. Pursuant to Article 26, D(1)(f), a tenured secretarial employee whose position is eliminated or filled by another employee whose position has been eliminated has the right to claim the position filled by the lowest seniority employee on the same sub-list if he possesses greater seniority than that employee. Petitioner's sub-list was twelve-month secretary and respondent employed two non-tenured people in two vacant positions on that sub-list, clearly a violation of petitioner's rights.

The fact that petitioner worked in her tenured position only part-time does not require a different result. Teaching staff members who work part-time achieve tenure as a teacher, not as a part-time teacher. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., supra. There is no logical reason for concluding that a secretary who works part-time achieves tenure as a part-time secretary. Respondent's seniority rules in the Negotiated Agreement acknowledge that the position title is a twelve-month secretary and provide for calculation of seniority on a full-time basis. No mention is made in the agreement of part-time positions, and it appears that petitioner as a secretary who worked part-time was simply paid a pro rata share, i.e., 50%, of the salary column for her position title.

Mackey v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Ridgefield, 1983 S.L.D. 96, cited by respondent, also provides no support for respondent's actions herein. Although the judge in Mackey used language that indicated the board could transfer secretaries from one position to another position without violating tenure rights, it is clear that what she really meant was that the board had discretion to transfer tenured employees from assignment to assignment within the same position title. This is evident from the statement at p. 103, "I CONCLUDE that tenure does not accrue in a specific position as secretary in a specific school, but rather as a secretary in a school system." In fact, tenure does accrue in a position; it does not accrue in a specific assignment within the position, which is what Mackey actually holds. See Williams v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Plainfield, 176 N.J. Super. 154 (App. Div. 1980) and Howley and Bookholdt v. Ewing Twp. Bd. of Ed., 6 N.J.A.R. 509 (1982).

Accordingly, for all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that upon the abolition of her twelve-month secretarial position (half-time) , petitioner was entitled to be assigned to one of the vacant twelve-month secretarial positions full time. Since she resigned from her employment with the district, effective December 31, 1993, she is entitled to damages in an amount equal to the difference between what she would have earned in the twelve month position from July 1, 1993 through December 31, 1993 and what she actually earned during that time period in the position to which she had been assigned by respondent. Respondent is hereby ORDERED to compensate petitioner in that amount, together with any benefits and emoluments to which she would otherwise have been entitled.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Repondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply exceptions were filed.

Respondent Board of Education excepts to the ALJ's reliance upon the collective bargaining agreement between the Board and the Cinnaminson Education Association to conclude that petitioner was entitled to a full-time 12-month secretarial position after her half-time 12-month position was abolished. Respondent asserts that Article 26, paragraph D(1)(c), of the agreement does not apply to petitioner as a part-time employee; she was not intended to be given seniority.

Respondent further contends that the ALJ erred in failing to recognize the Commissioner of Education's decision in Casey v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, decided by the Commissioner December 17, 1993, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 187, and in improperly relying upon case law arising under the teachers' tenure statute.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that when petitioner's half-time, 12-month secretarial position was abolished, she was entitled to be assigned to one of the vacant full-time, 12-month secretarial positions which were, instead, filled by nontenured individuals.

There is no dispute that petitioner acquired tenure in her 12-month secretarial position with respondent. (Initial Decision, at p. 3) The ALJ properly utilizes the bargaining agreement as the vehicle which categorizes the clerical positions available in the district and thus confers upon petitioner the right, under the circumstances herein, to claim a position filled by a nontenured employee. Therefore, respondent's argument that the collective bargaining agreement "did not apply to the Petitioner since Petitioner was a part time employee" and "[p]art time staff was not to be given seniority" is misplaced. (Respondent's Exceptions, at p. 2) The issue herein concerns the benefits and emoluments of tenure, namely, entitlement to positions held by nontenured employees, which benefits cannot be circumvented by contractual seniority provisions, even assuming arguendo that they do not apply to petitioner.

Additionally, the Commissioner finds that Casey, supra, is not determinative in this matter. The result in Casey is based upon the fact that there were no available positions within petitioner's library clerk title; the only two library clerk positions in the district were held by tenured persons with more seniority than petitioner Casey.

Finally, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ's reliance upon cases other than those which interpret N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 was not improper; the principles extracted from these cases are general pronouncements on the nature of tenure, application of which need not be limited to the particular statute under which they arose.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and orders compensation for the period set forth therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $1,209,850 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to sustain $493,679 of the reductions and restore $716,171 for a total General Fund tax levy of $18,850,163.

James T. Hundley, Esq., (Hundley, Parry & Hopkins, P.C.) for Petitioner

Donald L. Beekman, Esq., (Beekman & Missett) for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on May 23, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Neptune Township Board of Education (Board) appealing the reduction in the current expense tax levy imposed by the Township Committee of the Township of Neptune (Township) following voter rejection on April 19, 1994, of the Board's proposed General Fund tax levy for 1994-95 school year, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board sought restoration on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Township, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Township reduced the General Fund tax levy by $1,209,850. Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified By Governing Body
General Fund $19,343,842	General Fund $18,133,992

Amount of Reduction
By Governing Body

General Fund $1,209,850

Amount of Reduction In Dispute
Before the Commissioner

General Fund $1,209,850

It must be noted that the Petition of Appeal filed by the Board cited the amount of reduction in dispute to be $1,209,850. The Board's Position Statement, however, noted acceptance of a total of $195,711 reductions from three line items.

On May 31, 1994, the Township submitted its Answer to the Petition and on June 3, 1994, filed a Supplement to the Answer. A letter was sent to the Township attorney on June 1, 1994, by the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes requesting the required submission of a copy of the full line item budget as proposed by the Board and a certification as to the date the Township reduction was given to the Board. These documents were submitted by the Township on June 8, 1994. A Position Statement was filed by the Board on July 5, 1994, with a corrected copy filed on July 8, 1994. On December 16, 1994, the Commissioner notified the parties that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2, he intended to take official notice of the 1993-94 year-end district audit as it relates to the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account #	Title	Rationale	Reduction
10-303	Fund Balance	Reduce surplus to 3%	$ 300,000
11-000-290-20-290-7	Employee Insurance	Reflect a reduction of 27 employees and stable insurance rate	372,000

11-120-100-3-101-80	Summerfield 1-5 Substitutes	Reflect 5% increase over previous year	28,500
11-130-100-2-101-81	Middle School 6-8 Substitutes	Reflect 5% increase over previous year	41,000

Account #	Title	Rationale	Reduction
11-000-221-14-102-2	At-Risk Supervisor	Reduce to prior year budgeted amount and assign duties to existing supervisors	63,000
11-000-290-30-220	Social Security - Board Share	Reflect reduction of 27 employees	25,000
12-140-100-566-1	Special Ed. Summer	Allowing $70,000 increase for increased population over previous budget	110,450
12-140-100-100-1-730-15	High School Equipment	(No rationale given)	15,000
		TOTAL	$1,209,850

It should be noted that both parties incorrectly listed the Fund Balance account number as 11-303, whereas, it is 10-303. Also, the account numbers for other line items include district identification numbers as well as the standard budget account numbers.

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989)). The Commissioner moreover, has the constitutional obligation to ensure that a school district budget is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990).

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is specifically related to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education and that the level of funding is the minimal level required to support each of those items. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994.

Mindful, then, of the standard of review to be applied, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Township.

10-303	Fund Balance	$300,000

The Township, in its resolution, stated that it intended to include a fund balance of 3%; however, it determined that the Board would have $550,000 in additional surplus available. The Commissioner accepts the Township's determination to reduce the fund balance to 3%. The proposed 1994-95 budget and the 1993-94 year-end audit for the district establishes that the projected total fund balance as of June 1994 was $2,841,759. The audit reveals that the actual undesignated surplus was $1,130,399 or 3.02% of the General Fund Balance of $37,490,516. Consequently, in order to effectuate the stated intent of the Township to permit the Board to retain a surplus of 3%, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $300,000.

11-000-290-20-290-7 Employee Insurance $372,000

The Township states that this reduction is valid based on twenty-seven (27) fewer positions in the district for 1994-95 and a stable insurance rate. The Board submits a letter from its insurance carrier listing a 1994-95 plan year premium of $4,154,171 and recommending an additional budgeted amount of $346,181 for an ongoing liability for a one-month "premium lag" equal to one-twelfth. This "premium lag" results in an Alternate Funding Charge and permits premium payments to have a due date thirty days after the first of the month to which the premium applies. According to the agreement, the total premium due during the year July 1, 1993, through June 30, 1994, was to have equalled eleven-twelfths (11/12) of the total premium applicable to that year. According to the terms of the Premium Lag, supplement to the prospective rating agreement the Alternate Funding Charge is included. Based on the total of these figures presented by the carrier and the reduction of twenty-seven (27) staff positions, the Board asks for restoration of $311,739 and accepts the reduction of $60,261. A review of the budget presented in this matter, however, verifies that there is $4,151,493 in 1993-94 funds for employee insurance and that there should not be a one-month "premium lag" of $346,181. With sufficiently budgeted funds, moreover, there should not be any "premium lag" in 1994-95. It is determined, therefore, that a budgeted figure of $4,154,171 is required for the 1994-95 plan year premium, resulting in the Commissioner sustaining a reduction of $150,829 and ordering the restoration of $221,171.

11-000-230-20-331-1 Legal Fees $12,000

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year budgeted amount. The Board states that it spent $63,000 in legal fees in 1993-94 and the budget submitted does have an adjusted amount for 1993-94 legal fees of $63,000. The Board also states that they are currently involved as defendants in a civil rights action. Since boards are required to be represented by counsel in litigation, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $12,000.

11-000-230-20-339-1 Accountant Fees $11,500

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year's budgeted amount. The Board states that the accounting firm's fee for the 1993-94 school year audit is $17,500 and that it plans to use the auditor's services, billed at an hourly rate, for traditional assistance in preparing for litigation, preparing grant and loan applications and preparing required reports. Sufficient funds must be provided for the annual audit required by statute. The professional staff of the district, however, should have the skill to prepare grant and loan applications and required reports. There is also no evidence to support the need for technical assistance for litigation. The Commissioner, therefore, sustains the reduction of $11,000 and orders the restoration of $500.

11-000-230-339-3 Engineering Services $10,000

The Township again based this reduction on the prior year's budgeted amount. The Board states that the services of electrical and mechanical engineers are required to correct lighting deficiencies identified during state monitoring. It also anticipates the need for environmental engineering services for asbestos abatement projects, air monitoring and water testing, and civil engineering services as part of land acquisition to increase and improve athletic, recreation and parking facilities at the Ridge Avenue School. The provision of a thorough and efficient education requires maintenance of buildings and property, compliance with laws on classroom lighting, asbestos abatement, air and water purity, and appropriate indoor and outdoor facilities for school programs; however, no information was provided to establish which costs are new as opposed to which costs carried over from the prior year. Nor was information provided on the items for which money was spent in the prior year. Consequently, the reduction of $10,000 is sustained.

11-000-230-20-339-5 Architect Fees $14,500

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year's budgeted amount. The Board states that the services of an architect will be required for roof replacement and repairs approved in a referendum and to be completed in the 1994-95 school year which was not a part of the prior year's budgeted amount. Based upon the above, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $14,500.

11-000-230-20-890-2 Board Members Expenses $2,500

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year's budgeted amount. The Board states that additional meetings with associated expenses will be required in 1994-95 because of ongoing negotiations. The Board does not specify the nature of the associated expenses. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,500.

11-000-230-20-590-9 Election Expenses $1,500

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year's budgeted amount. The Board states that more than the budgeted amount was spent in 1993-94 because the regular election and a special bond referendum election were held. With only one election scheduled for 1994-95, the amount certified by the Township should be sufficient. The Board also states that it anticipates raising the hourly rate for election workers in 1994-95. The Board cannot independently raise the pay for election workers since the hourly rate is determined by the State. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,500.

11-000-230-20-890-3 BOE Dues, Travel, Conferences $6,400

The Township based its reduction of this line item on the position that Board member travel would be limited to in-state conventions. The Board submits an invoice for dues to the New Jersey School Boards Association in the amount of $23,396 for 1994-95. The funds for those dues, however, are budgeted on a different line, 11-000-230-20-890-5, in the budget document submitted in this matter, and sufficient funds for the dues obligation are budgeted for 1994-95. The Commissioner determines that insufficient information was presented for the necessity of the out-of-state conventions for the provision of a thorough and efficient education and sustains the reduction of $6,400.

11-000-270-30-511-37 Payment In Lieu of Transportation $30,000

The Township reduced this line item based on its belief that the Board had budgeted for an excessive number of students. The Board submits a copy of the list of students applying for payments in lieu of transportation for 1994-95. The Board has seventy-six (76) applications and anticipates, based on past experience, that there will be a total of ninety (90) applications. The Board had proposed the same budgeted amount for 1994-95 as in 1993-94. The Township offers no explanation for its belief that the Board budgeted for an excessive number of students. Based on the data presented and the fact that transportation or aid in lieu of payments is required for students attending private schools, the Commissioner restores $30,000.

11-000-290-20-100-2 Asst. School Bd. Secretary $56,000

The Township based this reduction on its belief that this position had been eliminated by the Board. The Board states that, owing to personnel changes and illnesses, the position has not been filled since December 31, 1993, but is currently being advertised to be filled in the 1994-95 school year. It would appear that the district has managed its business operations without this position for half of the 1993-94 school year and part of the 1994-95 school year. It is not possible, therefore, to support the necessity for this position under the requirements of a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $56,000.

11-000-0315-218-104-8 Elementary Counselor's Salary $60,000

The Township's rationale for this reduction is "One counselor for each elementary school." This is confusing since the Board does have one counselor for each elementary school. The Board states that it provided this staffing in 1992-93 in response to a recommendation of the External Review Team assigned by the Department of Education to evaluate the district. The Board submits the 1994-95 projected salaries for these five positions to be the proposed amount of $188,403. The provision of guidance services and counseling is an important element in a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $60,000.

11-120-100-3-101-76	Ridge 1-5 Substitutes	$33,500
11-120-100-3-101-78	Green Grove 1-5 Substitutes	$17,500
11-120-100-3-101-80	Summerfield 1-5 Substitutes	$28,500
11-130-100-2-101-81	Middle School 6-8 Substitutes	$41,000

The Township states that the amounts it certified for substitutes at these four schools reflects a five percent (5%) increase over the previous year. The Board states that it expects to provide an increase in the daily rate from $50 to $75 to keep the district competitive, and that it had fifteen percent (15%) of the classes uncovered during 1993-94 owing to a shortage of substitute teachers. The Board also states that extended vacancies are filled by fully certified teachers at a proration of the appropriate level of the salary guide. The Board further anticipates the use of substitute coverage for staff development activities to be scheduled during the day in 1994-95.

A review of the budget document submitted in this matter shows that the Board had significantly overbudgeted these lines in 1993-94 and adjusted the numbers by a reduction of over forty-seven percent (47%). Documentation submitted by the Board also indicates that expenditures for 1993-94 for these substitute services will be significantly less than the adjusted reduced figures. The five percent (5%) increase over the adjusted budgeted figures for 1993-94 as certified by the Township is apparently reasonable. The rate of uncovered classes is a concern but the Board has not verified that this is due to the daily pay rate and not to the general shortage of available substitutes. The Commissioner sustains the reductions of $33,500, $17,000, $28,500 and $41,000 -- total $120,000.

11-000-221-14-102-2 At-Risk Supervisor Salary $63,000

The Township reduced this line item to the prior year's budgeted amount, with duties assigned to the existing supervisor. The Board states that this is an existing position that was assigned an incorrect budget line account in 1993-94. The position is responsible for the district's remedial education, preschool, and ESL programs. Since this is an existing position responsible for the management of programs essential to a thorough and efficient education, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $63,000.

11-000-290-30-220 Social Security-Board Share $25,000

The Board accepts this reduction of $25,000. The Commissioner sustains the reduction.

11-000-100-10-566-1 Special Education Summer $110,450

The Board accepts this reduction of $110,450. The Commissioner sustains the reduction.

12-140-100-11-730-15 High School Equipment $15,000

The Township provided no rationale or details on this reduction, which was added and handwritten on the Township resolution on the reduction. The Board states that the funds are for the purchase of computers for the high school. The computers currently in the high school will be transferred to the elementary schools. The Board states that this plan is in response to a recommendation by the External Review Team. It is unquestionably essential in this electronic age that schools provide training in the use of computers for a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $15,000.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $716,171 and sustain $493,679 of the reduction in the General Fund tax levy appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

Account #	Title	Reduction	Sustained	Restored

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SALEM CITY, :

PETITIONER, :

V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SALEM, SALEM COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $392,427 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions were necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to sustain $253,187 of the reductions and restore $139,240 for a total General Fund tax levy of $1,822,349.

JANUARY 3, 1995

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SALEM CITY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SALEM, SALEM COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

For Petitioner, John T. Barbour, Esq.

For Respondent, David J. Puma, Esq., (Waters, Sherman & Puma P.A.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 16, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of Salem City (Board) appealing the reduction in the current expense tax levy imposed by the Common Council of the Salem (Council) following voter rejection on April 19, 1994, of the Board's proposed General Fund tax levy for the 1994-95 school year, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board sought partial restoration on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Council, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)(2), consulted on the defeated budget and the Council reduced the proposed General Fund tax levy of $2,197,405 by $514,296. The Council set the amount of the tax levy at $1,683,109. Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as set forth below.

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$2,197,405	General Fund	$1,683,109

Amount of Reduction by Governing Body
General Fund	$514,296

Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
General Fund	$392,427

On June 27, 1994, the Council submitted its Answer to the Petition. Position Statements were filed by the Council on July 18, 1994, and by the Board on July 19, 1994. The Council filed a response to the Board's Position Statement on August 1, 1994. The Board's summation was filed on August 11, 1994, and the Council's Summation was received on August 22, 1994. On September 1, 1994, the Board submitted an objection to the Council's Summation and stated that the Summation should not be considered because it was not filed in a timely manner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8. The Council replied to the objection with a letter received on September 9, 1994, which stated that the Board's Summation was not only filed late but also inappropriately raised issues for the first time. The letter stated that if the Board's Summation was to be considered, the Council's Summation should be considered. The Commissioner notes the accuracy of the citation in that letter, School Board of Deptford v. Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305, which held that any decision by the Commissioner of Education on a school budget proposal should not be based on procedural grounds alone, and thus all submitted documents are considered in this matter. The record of this matter was closed on September 9, 1994.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994.

Mindful then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Council.

Account		Reduction
11-110-100-101	Preschool Kindergarten Salaries of Teachers	$ 2,112
11-120-100-101	Grades 1-5 Salaries of Teachers	18,524

11-140-100-101	Grades 9-12 Salaries of Teachers	23,419
11-201-100-101	Mentally Retarded - Salaries of Teachers	785
11-205-100-101	Perceptually Impaired - Salaries of Teachers	5,450
11-205-100-106	Other Salaries for Instruction - Special Education	937
11-213-100-101	Resource Room - Salaries of Teachers	5,410
11-218-100-101	Speech Instruction - Salaries of Teachers	720
11-230-100-101	Basic Skills - Salaries of Teachers	5,938
11-000-213-100	Health Services Salaries	1,357
11-000-218-104	Other Support Services - Salaries Special	4,452
11-000-219-104	Other Support Services - Salaries Special	2,219
11-000-221-104	Salaries - Other Prof. Staff - Improvement of Instructional Staff	3,873
	TOTAL	$86,245

The reduction in each of these accounts was certified by the Council on the basis of a reduction of salary increase to 3% from, in some accounts 4 1/2%, and in other accounts 5%. The Board agrees that the recently ratified contract for 1994-95 with the Salem Teachers Association provides for a 3% salary increase. The Board states that the 1.5% to 2% differential is required to offset a shortage in the insurance account caused by the negotiated agreement to provide more expensive health benefits than that included in the Board's proposed budget. The Council argues that the underfunding in the insurance account is because the Board changed health insurance carriers and accepted a plan that was less expensive but provided substantially less than the previous health insurance plan, and that this action was taken without consultation with or agreement by the Salem Teachers' Association. The Council also states that the current underappropriation in the insurance premium account should not be covered by the excess funds in the salary accounts.

Although Boards of Education may, and, in fact, often have to transfer funds between line accounts during the school year, the Commissioner cannot restore funds to lines for which those funds are not required just so the monies will be available for other lines which appear to be underbudgeted. The Commissioner, therefore, sustains the reductions noted above totalling $86,245.

Account		Reduction
11-120-100-101	Grades 1-5 Summer Salaries	$3,000

The Council cited a reduction of $3,000 from $4,750 to $1,750, for this item but did not present a reason for the reduction in its resolution. The Board stated that these funds are necessary to update curriculum alignment as well as summer work and specified the need for the entire $4,750 as follows - Reading $1,250, Math/Science $2,500, and Curriculum Alignment $1,000. The Council's Response then noted that they believe that the curriculum alignment work should be done within the salary budgeted for the district curriculum coordinator. Curriculum development is a critical element in the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Council has not provided any satisfactory reason or support for the reduction in this account, and the Board has identified specific needs for the funds. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $3,000 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-610	General Supplies - Regular Education	$7,500

The Council based its reduction on the fact that $13,000 of the 1993-94 appropriation were unused as of April 30, 1994. The Board states that 98% of the funds were spent as of June 27, 1994, and that a balance as of April 30, 1994, is not a valid reason for a reduction of funds. The Board adds that, "Sound fiscal management warrants expenditures over the course of the budget year." The Council disagreed with that position but changed the reduction from $7,500 to $2,500 because it found that the April 30, 1994, balance was $3,900, not $13,000. The Board does not provide any specific reasons for the necessity for these funds, but notes only the general need for "sufficient funds." Based on this absence of specific reasons and also on the fact that the smaller reduction granted by Council provides an increase in this account of more than 5% over the 1993-94 budgeted amount, the Commissioner restores the $5,000 as amended by Council and sustains the reduction of $2,500.

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-640	Textbooks - Regular Education	$ 2,000

The Council again bases its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriation of $2,200 as of April 30, 1994. The Board again states that the fact that 98% of the funds were expended as of June 27, 1994, is not a valid reason for reduction in funds. A sufficient number of appropriate textbooks is unquestionably essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Also critical to this item is the fact that the Board budgeted $817 less in 1994-95 than in 1993-94 for this item. Based on these facts, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,000 reduction.

11-190-100-800	Other Objects - Regular Education	$12,000

The Council again cites unused 1993-94 appropriations of $13,000 as of April 30, 1994, as the basis for its reduction. The Board again states that 98% of the funds were expended as of June 27, 1994, and that a balance as of April 30, 1994, is not a valid reason for reduction in funds. It must be noted that the Board also budgeted less in 1994-95 than in 1993-94 for this item, but the lack of any specificity by the Board for the need for these funds is particularly relevant in an account as general as "Other Objects." The Board has not justified the need for these funds, and the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $12,000.

11-213-100-101	Resource Room Salaries of Teachers	$ 1,000

The Council determined that this reduction is possible because of the retirement of a teacher named Graner. The Board accepted a reduction of $20,677, which it states was originally proposed by Council. They do not, however, specify any needs for the balance of $1,000. In the absence of this detail, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,000.

Account		Reduction
11-219-100-320	Home Instruction - Purchased Prof. Ser.	$ 2,000

The Council bases its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $7,000 as of April 30, 1994. The Board states that the proposed budget is a conservative estimate of the monies needed to provide mandated services. The Board adds that the amount needed is less in some years, but can double or triple in others. The Board cites two specific examples of cases in 1993-94 that caused a significant increase in the expenditures for this line item. There is no question that this is an area where there must be estimates of costs more than a year in advance of some actual expenditures. The services provided in this area are also essential for a thorough and efficient education. The Board's proposed budget for 1994-95 is the same amount as budgeted in 1993-94. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,000 reduction.

11-230-100-610	General Supplies - Basic Skills	$ 4,372

The Council bases its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $4,800 as of April 30, 1994. The Board again states that the reason is not valid. Council, in its response, states that the unused appropriations were $3,200, not $4,800, and therefore changes the reduction to $2,922. Although general supplies are obviously essential to a thorough and efficient education, the Board has not justified the need for these funds. Also the amount certified by the Council for this line item provides a significant increase over the amount budgeted in 1993-94. The Commissioner restores the $1,450 as offered by Council and sustains the reduction of $2,922.

Account		Reduction
11-230-100-640	Textbooks - Basic Skills	$2,000

The Council again bases its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $4,400 as of April 30, 1994. The Board again offers only the general statement that the reason is not valid and that the amounts proposed by the Board are legitimate needs to run a sound Basic Skills program. The Board also did not dispute the amount of unused 1993-94 appropriations as they did regarding textbooks for Regular Educational Programs. Based on these facts, the Commissioner determines that there is no documented need for these funds and sustains the reduction of $2,000.

11-230-100-800	Other Objects - Basic Skills	$1,000

The Council bases its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $1,600 as of April 30, 1994. The Board again states that the reason is not valid and that the funds are legitimately needed for the Basic Skills program. As noted above, there is no specific documentation from the Board to verify the need for these funds. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,000.

11-402-100-100	Athletic Instruction Salaries	$3,608

The Council states that the stipend for athletic director appears to be in addition to his salary as Director. The Board states that only 50% of the salary is for the duties of athletic director and the other 50% for duties as Supervisor of High School Instruction. The Board adds that the stipend covers after school, evenings, and weekend events in fulfillment of athletic director duties. Although these services may be extremely beneficial to a school's athletic program the record does not establish that they are a contractual obligation or essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $3,608.

Account		Reduction
11-402-100-500	Purchased Services - Athletics	$7,000

The Council based its reduction of $12,000 on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $12,000 as of April 30, 1994, and states that the increase of $10,000 in the 1994-95 appropriations would appear to be excessive. The Board accepted a $5,000 reduction but stated the additional funds are needed for the services of an athletic trainer whose hours have been increased for the 1994-95 school year. Again, it must be noted that the skills of an athletic trainer can be beneficial to a district's athletic program but are not essential to a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $7,000.

11-402-100-600	Supplies & Materials - Athletics	$4,000

The Council again based its reduction on the unused 1993-94 appropriations of $1,700 as of April 30, 1994, and states that the increase of $10,000 in the 1994-95 appropriations would appear to be excessive. The Board states that the additional funds are needed as indicated by the 1993-94 expenditures and that athletics is "one of the main motivators of keeping students in school and out of trouble." Certainly programs that positively serve students are worthwhile, even if not specifically identified as a necessity to a thorough and efficient education. In this case, however, the funds certified by the Council still provide an increase of greater than 35% over the 1993-94 appropriations. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $4,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-213-100	Health Services - Salaries	$ 5,912

The Council bases its reduction on the savings $25,912 due to the retirement of a staff member (Dague). The Board accepts $20,000 of this reduction, but never disputes the balance of the savings or presents any information on the necessity of these funds. Based on the information presented, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $5,912.

11-000-219-390	Other Purchased Prof. Services - Spe. Ed.	$ 3,000

The Council states that the explanation provided by the Board does not support an $11,000 increase in this account and therefore reduces it by $5,000. The Board accepts $2,000 of the reduction but states the additional funds may be necessary for specialized services dependent on the student clientele in any particular year. The Board never responds to the issue of an $11,000 increase in this account. While it is true that these services must be provided when necessary, the Board does not indicate any potential increase in enrollment or provide any specific reason for the significant increase. Based on these facts, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $3,000.

11-000-219-600	Supplies & Materials - Special Education	$ 2,000

The Council states that this reduction is based on the lack of explanation by the Board as to what "Special Office Management" is. The Board states that these funds are needed for postage, envelopes, paper supplies, etc., to complete the high volume of paperwork and parent notification mandated by the State. Although supplies and materials are obviously essential in the operation of any office, in this case the office for special education, the Board does not provide any justification for the need for increased funds in this account. The amount certified by Council does provide an increase over the 1993-94 appropriations of an amount greater than 35%. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-221-104	Salaries - Imp. of Inst. Services	$57,000

The Council determined that this reduction is possible with the elimination of the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction (Carlson position). The Board states that this position is critical to the continued essential improvement of the district's educational program. The Board explains that this position was instituted in the district in April 1993, after the district was placed by State monitors in Level II because of curriculum deficiencies. The Board states that there are not certified subject area supervisors in the district other than one half-time high school position which deals mainly with math and science. The Council states in its Response that the problems noted by the Board have been addressed by the Director of Curriculum and can now be delegated to grade chairperson. The professional development and implementation of curriculum, including continuing review and modification, is an absolute essential of a thorough and efficient education. Since this is an area that has been identified as deficient in this district, the Council's action does seem arbitrary. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $57,000 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-221-100	Supplies & Materials	$ 1,500

The Council based a reduction of $3,000 in this account on its determination that $5,000 for software appears excessive. The Board accepts a reduction of $1,500 but states the additional funds are necessary to fully activate basic skills and Chapter I technology purchases. Since the amount certified by the Council still provides a significant increase of approximately 50% over the amount budgeted in 1993-94, it would appear that the Board should have sufficient funds for any necessary purchases. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,500.

11-000-222-800	Other Objects - Ed. Media Services	$ 2,500

The Council bases the reduction on the position that the Board explanation does not support an increase in this account of $5,364. The Board states that the funds are needed for media services and the funding in the line item is a realignment from other line items according to GAAP (Generally Accepted Accounting Principles). The Board's very generalized statement does not provide any specific justification for these funds. It must also be noted that the GAAP system of accounting was initiated in school districts in 1993-94 and thus realignments should have been completed during that school year. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,500.

11-000-230-100	Salaries - General Admin.	$ 4,727

There seemed to be confusion about this item in the initial documents submitted by both parties. The Council based its reduction, as it had for other salary items already reviewed, on the basis of lowering the salary increase to 3%, instead of, as in this account, 5%. The Board, in its Position Statement, included this item with the other salary items covered by negotiations with the Salem Teachers Association. The Board, however, in that same Position Statement, notes in a separate entry that the amount budgeted is for contracted 1994-95 salary increase. The Council, in its Response to the Board's Position Statement, notes that this account relates to the salary of the school superintendent and not to teacher salaries as they had originally thought. Since contractual obligations must be met, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $4,727 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-331	Legal Services	$ 5,000

The Council bases its reduction on the belief that the legal costs in 1993-94 will approximate only $33,000 and that the $41,800 budgeted in 1994-95 is excessive. The Board states that past experience indicates that legal expenses can very easily be accumulated and that there is a need to have sufficient funding in this line item. The Board, however, does not refer to any specific legal issues pending or anticipated for 1994-95. Also, the amount certified by Council provides an increase of greater than 50% over the 1993-94 appropriations. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $5,000.

11-000-230-339	Other Purchases Prof. Services	$ 6,500

The Council bases its reduction on the belief that the Board's explanation does not support an increase of $7,300 over 1993-94 for this account. The Board states that the district's physical needs necessitate funds for a variety of jobs, and lists some possible projects. The Council in its response states that the projects should be included in the capital budget and not in the line item in question. This position is really irrelevant since the major issue in question is the General Fund tax levy which includes capital projects. The Board adds in its summation that the funds budgeted in this line item are for "contracted salaries," not "contractors." The Board does not, however, justify the additional funds. The legal obligations cited by the Board are not new for 1994-95, and the funds certified by Council provide an increase of more than 45% over the amount budgeted in 1993-94. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $6,500.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-590	Other Purchased Services	$ 5,200

The Council reduces the amount budgeted for Board members training by $3,000 and for Board members travel by $2,200. The board states that increased State requirements for Board members and their personal desire to improve their knowledge necessitate full funding of this line item. Appropriate training of Board members and the necessary travel to complete that training are essential for the skillful performance of Board members. The Board, however, has not identified any unique programs necessary for 1994-95, and the amount certified by the Council for this account provides an increase of more than 10% over the 1993-94 appropriations. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $5,200.

11-000-230-890	Miscellaneous	$ 6,800

The Council states that the reduction is based on the fact that expenses incurred in 1993-94 are not repetitive. The Board states that this account includes election positions, dues and fees, and general administrative and staff membership in professional organizations and adds that many of these obligations are either mandated by law or contractual by nature. The Board, in its Summation, states that this item includes election expenses as well as "a variety of staff support items and other miscellaneous items." Although legal obligations certainly must be met by a Board, the generalized response in a "Miscellaneous" category does not support the necessity of all the funds for a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner, therefore, sustains the reduction of $6,800.

Account	Reduction
11-000-240-103 Salaries - Principal and Assistant	$18,452

The Council bases its reduction in this account on a reduction of salary increase from 5% to 0%. The Board states that it is currently in negotiations with the administrator group and needs to have the flexibility to negotiate in good faith. The Council in its Response states that the salary increase could be reduced from 5% to 3% as per the teacher's contract, but does not change the amount of the reduction. Since a 0% increase is unquestionably unrealistic, and since the Board must be able to negotiate in good faith, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $18,452 reduction.

11-000-240-600	Supplies and Materials - School Adm.	$10,500

The Council reduces this account because it states an increase of $37,000 over the 1993-94 appropriation is excessive. The Board states that this increase is due to a realignment of expenses in compliance with GAAP. The Board provides no specific detail on any necessary expenditures, and, again, it must be noted that compliance with GAAP should have been implemented in 1993-94. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $10,500.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-800	Other Objects - Plant Operation/Maint.	$ 9,000

The Council bases the reduction on what they describe as an appropriation for a miscellaneous-miscellaneous of $17,596, which a states indicates a reduction appears warranted. The Board states that the defeated bond referendum for building work necessitates increased budgeting for plant operation and maintenance. The Board adds that the employment of more qualified personnel allows more "in-house" maintenance which necessitates an increase in purchase of materials. The Board in its Position Statement claims that this increase in "in-house" maintenance lowers the amount needed for contracted services. In its Summation, however, the Board acknowledges that the overall contracted services line items did not decrease owing to added costs for major item maintenance. The appropriate maintenance of facilities is indisputably essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. The Council states that the reduction they propose still allows an increase in the line item of over $7,000. This is not supported by the budget document submitted, which shows $37,835 budgeted for this item for 1993-94, $46,156 proposed by the Board, and reduced to $37,196 with the Council cut. This would obviously provide less funds in 1994-95 than in 1993-94. Based on these facts, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $9,000 reduction.

11-000-290-100	Salaries - Business Services	$ 2,922

As with the reduction for salaries for the principal and assistant, the Council reduced the salary increase in this area from 5% to 0%. The Board, also as in the prior issue, states that there must be sufficient funds for the current negotiations to be conducted in good faith. As noted above, a 0% increase is unrealistic and sufficient funds must be provided for negotiations. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,922 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-290-100	Salaries - Business Services	$14,773

The Council also reduces this line item by eliminating a secretarial position (Bell position). The Council in its resolution and Position Statement offered no reason for the elimination of this position. The Board states that this is a crucial support position in the school business administrator's office and has been instrumental in effecting a smooth flow and accuracy in the business office operations. In the absence of any stated reason for the elimination of this position, the action must be deemed to be arbitrary. Support staff are essential to the efficient operation of a school district. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $14,773 reduction.

11-000-290-220	Social Security	$33,016

The Council reduced this account by $82,000 because of its belief that there was excess budgeting and by $1,016 as the amount attributable to the secretarial position reviewed above. The Board accepts a reduction of $50,000 and states the balance is needed for additional employee benefit premiums. As stated earlier in this document, the Commissioner cannot restore funds to lines for which those funds are not required. The Commissioner, therefore, sustains the reduction of $32,000. Based on the decision above to retain the secretarial position, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,016 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	$ 7,900

The Council bases this reduction on cost savings because of retired and RIFFED employees. The Board states that no employees have been RIFFED and that cost savings of retired employee benefits have already been calculated. Based on the information presented and the fact that this account is less in 1994-95 than in 1993-94 by over $500,000, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $7,900 reduction.

11-000-290-831	Interest on Current Loans	$10,000

The Council bases its reduction in this account on its belief that the purchase of computers was through lease-purchase and charged elsewhere. The Board states that this account includes the interest on the lease-purchase and that the principal is budgeted elsewhere. It must be noted that interest on lease-purchase should be recorded in account 11-000-290-832 and not 11-000-290-831. It must also be noted that the interest on lease purchases of equipment items should be budgeted as a rental cost in the applicable program area. Only the interest on the lease purchase of land and buildings should be recorded in 11-000-290-832. The Board in its Summation states that the appropriation on this line is for the NCR Tower computer purchased 4 1/2 years ago, not for the 160 computers purchased for the Basic Skills Program. The Board adds that this line item also includes the interest on a previously contracted district lighting project. The Council in its Summation acknowledges receiving information from the Board on the necessity for this appropriation. Based on the information presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $10,000 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-310-930	Transfer to Cover Deficit - Food Services	$50,000

The Council states that the $63,347 budgeted on this line is to pay for cafeteria employees' medical expense but that this should be paid by Food Services which has sufficient funds. The Council reduced the appropriation by $50,000. The Board states that the food services program is not self-sustaining and requires subsidizing. The Council in its Position Statement notes that the school audit indicated a surplus for food services as of June 30, 1993, of $166,755 and that there appeared to be no substantial change through June 30, 1994. The Board in its Summation does not dispute the Council's claims regarding the surplus, but states that GAAP provides for a contribution by the Board for the food services operation and that a deficit in food services is not required for this contribution. This is a very difficult issue to address because sufficient funds must be provided and the information presented is somewhat contradictory. Two facts, however, are critical for the decision. The Board did not dispute the Council's claim of a surplus. Also, the Board's interpretation of the GAAP criteria tends to ignore a logical interpretation that there should be a need, a deficit, for the Board to make a contribution. The title/description of the line item is "Transfers to Cover Deficit." Based on the facts as presented, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $50,000.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $139,240 and sustain $253,187 of the reduction in the General Fund tax levy appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus. In this review for the purpose of determining potential revenue to be appropriated in lieu of increasing the tax levy, the Commissioner concluded that the undesignated surplus did not materially exceed the budgeted amount.

Accordingly, the Salem County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $1,822,349 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the City of Salem for the 1994-95 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$1,683,109
Restored by Commissioner	139,240
Total	$1,822,349

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $1,100,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $410,845; however, this amount was ordered to be appropriated from surplus.

PETITIONER,

V.

THE TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

John E. Collins, Esq., (Carroll & Weiss) for Petitioner

Brian E. Rumpf, Esq., (Hiering, Hoffman & Gannon, Esqs.) for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 9, 1994 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Jackson Township Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reduction by the Jackson Township Committee (Township) following voter rejection on April 19, 1994, of the Board's proposed General Fund tax levy for the 1994-95 school year. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Township, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Township reduced the General Fund tax levy, Current Expense portion, by $1,100,000. Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$25,[illegible]00,000	$23,952,152

Amount of Reduction in Dispute
by the Commissioner

$1,100,000

On June 30, 1994, the Township submitted its Answer to the Petition, with additional materials relevant to the Answer received on July 26, 1994, though dated July 20, 1994. Position Statements were filed by the Board on July 21, 1994, and by the Township on August 11, 1994. An objection to the Township Position Statement was filed by the Board on August 17, 1994. The Board states that the Township Position Statement was filed so late that it is "in reality a response to the Board of Education's Statement of Position." On this basis, the Board states it has no Township Position Statement to which it can respond and requests that the Township's Position Statement not be considered in this matter. A letter was sent on August 19, 1994, to the Board by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledging receipt of the Board letter. By copy of the Director's letter, the Township was asked to respond to the Board's arguments within ten (10) days. The Township's response to this letter was received on August 31, 1994. The Township states that since the filing of the Answer was not completed until July 20, 1994, the Position Statement, due twenty (20) days later, was not due until August 10, 1994 and that it was advised that mailing on that date would be acceptable. The Township also states that its Position Statement is not a response to the Board's Position Statement but is Township's detailed position by individual line item. The Towns contends that it would be an injustice to the taxpayers for th itions of both parties not to be fully evaluated in this matter reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circum r known to or considered by the governing body at the time it a duce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Com n December 13, 1994, notified the parties that he intend official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end aud Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of iden whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amou anticipated undesignated surplus.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-213-300	Purchased Prof. & Tech. Services	$ 50,000

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount plus inflation adjustment; however, expenses in 1993-94 were less than budgeted and a portion was transfered to other areas.

11-000-240-XXX	School Administration	$ 25,000

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount plus inflation adjustment; however, expenses in 1993-94 were less than budgeted and a portion was transfered to other areas as of March 31, 1994.

11-000-260-420	Cleaning, Repairs & Maintenance	$ 50,000

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount plus inflation adjustment; however, expenses in 1993-94 were less than budgeted and a portion was transfered to other areas as of March 31, 1994.

11-000-270-420 Cleaning, Repairs & Maint. - Trans. $ 25,000

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount plus inflation adjustment; however, it was not expected that the full balance would be utilized through June 30, 1994.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-290-241	Other Retirement Contribution	$250,000

Note - The account was listed as 11-000-290-240, but should be 241.

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount, but reduced as the result of reevaluation of the PERS program as advised by N.J. Division of Pensions. Although the amount proposed was in accord with the reevaluation, a portion of the 1993-94 funds were transfered to other areas.

11-000-290-290 Other Employee Benefits $250,000

Reason: The Major component of this account, Health Benefits, is based on 1993-94 budgeted amount; however, a rebate from the insurance company should be considered.

11-213-100-101 Salaries of Teachers - Resource Room $100,000

Reason: 1994-95 budget amount was based on 1993-94 budget amount plus inflation adjustment; however, expenses in 1993-94 were less than budgeted and transfers were made to other areas.

10-303 Fund Balance $350,000

Reason: Additional surplus appropriation would provide 2% available surplus.

Total $1,100,000

It must be noted that the objection filed by the Board regarding the Township's Position Statement and the reply by the Township have been duly considered in this matter. Though there are specific timeline requirements in N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4 to 7.8 for the filing of documents in a budget dispute, the Commissioner must base his review and determination on the constitutional standard for a thorough and efficient education.

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Township.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-213-300	Purchased Prof. & Tech. Services	$50,000

The Township bases this reduction on the position that the 1994-95 budget was based on the 1993-94 budget with an additional amount for inflation, but that the expenditures in 1993-94 as of March 31, 1994, were only $42,832 with $30,225 having been transferred to other budget areas. The Board states that at the beginning of 1993-94 some changes were erroneously made to this account and a transfer was made to the proper account at mid-year. The Board continues that not all paid invoices were transferred, resulting in an anticipated balance in the "new" account and a zero ($0.00) balance in this account at the end of 1993-94. The Board's position does confirm that all of the funds in this account were not necessary in 1993-94 since the zero ($0.00) balance at the end of the year was due at least partially to the transfer of funds to another account and the retention in this account of some incorrectly charged expenditures. The Board states that the funds cut by the Township are needed in 1994-95 to provide mandated services. Though mandated services must unquestionably be provided, the Board has not documented the need for funds beyond those certified by the Township in this account. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $50,000.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-240-XXX	School Administration	$25,000

The Township again bases this reduction on the position that the 1994-95 budget was based on the 1993-94 budget with an additional amount for inflation. It also asserts that there were excess funds transferred out of this account in 1993-94. The Board states that the originally budgeted figure for 1993-94 is almost $30,000 less than the amount budgeted in 1994-95. Using the revised reduced appropriation for this account as per the submitted budget document and the balance cited by the Board as of June 28, 1994, the amount certified by the Township provides an increase over the 1993-94 expenditures. The Board has not documented the need for additional funds to provide a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $25,000.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-260-420	Cleaning, Repairs & Maintenance	$50,000

The Township again bases this reduction on the position that the 1994-95 budget was based on the 1993-94 budget with an additional amount for inflation with a finding that there were excess funds transferred out of this account in 1993-94. The Board states that $318,316 was budgeted for this account in 1993-94 and that there is a balance of $5,204.41 as of June 28, 1994. This budget figure of $318,316 does not agree with the budget document which has over $411,000 budgeted for this account in 1993-94. Also, the additional expenses itemized by the Board for 1994-95 would not be applied to this account since they relate to salaries, benefits, rental of trailers, utilities and energy. The amount certified by the Township is significantly more than the amount listed above as spent by the Board in 1993-94 and more than the amount for 1993-94 in the budget document. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $50,000.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-270-420	Cleaning, Repair, Maint. - Trans.	$25,000

The Township states that this reduction is based on its belief that the 1994-95 budget was based on the 1993-94 budget with an additional amount for inflation. There were unexpended funds as of March 31, 1994, which it did not anticipate would be spent by June 30, 1994. The Board states that more than $165,000 was spent in 1993-94 and that the additional funds are necessary for the increased maintenance and repairs of the school buses which will be one year older. The amount certified by the Township would provide less funds in 1994-95 than the amount spent in 1993-94. Although properly maintained school buses are a vital element in the provision of a thorough and efficient education, the Board has submitted no documentation to support the additional expenditure. Therefore, the Commissioner sustains the $25,000 reduction.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-290-241	Other Retirement Contributions	$250,000

The Township bases this reduction on the position that the amount budgeted in 1994-95 was based on the 1993-94 budget and reduced as a result of the PERS reevaluation pursuant to the advisory of the N.J. Division of Pensions. The Township adds that funds were transferred out of this account during 1993-94. The Board states that it must pay $294,919 for this obligation in 1994-95 and verifies this amount with a letter from the Division of Pensions. The Board adds that they will also have an obligation to pay an estimated $30,000 for health benefits for early retirees. These expenditures, however, would not be budgeted in this account, but would be in either 11-000-290-232 or 11-000-290-242, depending on the classification of the employee. The pension obligation must be met by this account, however, and the amount of $184,074 is insufficient to pay the amount due of $294,919. The Township claims in its Position Statement that there are additional funds budgeted for the pension contributions in 11-000-290-290, but there is no verification to this claim in either the Township resolution with rationale for reductions or in the documentation submitted in opposition to the appeal. The Commissioner, therefore, orders the restoration of $110,845 to provide funds for the pension obligation in accordance with documentation submitted by the Board and sustains the reduction of $139,155.

Account #	Title	Reduction
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	$250,000

The Township states that the major component of this account, Health Benefits, was estimated at the 1993-94 budgeted amount; however, the insurance company rebate of $651,514 should be considered. The Board states that the expenditures in this account totalled $6,638,914.03 in 1993-94, which is more than the Township certified for 1994-95. The Board also states that the insurance company rebate of $651,514 was applied as a Budgeted Fund Balance in the 1994-95 budget. No evidence was presented as to any potential rebate for the 1994-95 year. It must also be noted that it would be fiscally irresponsible for boards to anticipate and budget for potential insurance company rebates in advance of notification by the company. Based on the information presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $250,000.

11-213-100-101	Salaries of Teachers - Resource Room	$100,000

The Township states that the reduction is based on its belief that the 1994-95 budget was based on the 1993-94 budgeted amount with an increase for inflation. Again, there were excess funds transferred out of this account in 1993-94. The Board states that $487,691.12 was spent from this amount in 1993-94. The Board also states that three additional resource room teachers are required for 1994-95, with a cost for each teacher of $37,133 for salary and benefits. It must be noted that benefits would not be charged to this account. The services of resource room teachers are essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. The Board, however, does not justify the need for the restoration of the entire $100,000 on the basis of the 1993-94 expenditures and three new teachers, not including benefits. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $50,000 and sustains the reduction of $50,000.

Account #	Title	Reduction
10-303	Fund Balance	$350,000

The Township states that the additional appropriation of fund balance will still provide a two percent (2%) balance and that additional surplus can be anticipated in 1994-95. The Board states that the additional reduction would reduce the surplus to approximately one percent (1%). It is not clear how the Board calculated its figures, since the surplus figure used by the Township agrees with the Recapitulation of Balances in the budget document. Although the Township's appropriation of the $350,000 in light of the circumstances known to it at the time it acted would have provided the district with a two percent (2%) fund balance, the Commissioner, in his review of the 1993-94 year-end district audit has determined that the actual amount of surplus after designation of $1,130,514 to the 1994-95 budget was $1,683,286. The Board in its response to the Commissioner's letter advising it that he would take official notice of the year-end audit asserted, in pertinent part, as follows:

> ...please be advised that the Board['s]... surplus, according to the 1993-94 year end audit, was $1,683,285.57. However, it is already planned that $1,000,000.00 will be appropriated from this surplus into the 1995-96 budget, leaving a small surplus of $683,285.57. Therefore, while the Commissioner may take official notice of the surplus, the surplus is not available to fund the reductions made by the Township Committee in the 1994-95 budget.

The Commissioner rejects this argument. A school district is required in its annual budget to determine the amounts of money necessary for the use of the public schools in the "ensuing year." (N.J.S.A. 18A:22-33) Consequently, the Commissioner sustains the Township's $350,000 appropriation from surplus.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $410,845 and sustain $689,155 of the reduction in the General Fund tax levy for Current Expense appealed herein as summarized by the chart below:

Account #	Title	Restored	Sustained
11-000-213-300	Purchased Prof. & Tech Servs.		$ 50,000
11-000-240-XXX	School Administration		25,000
11-000-260-420	Cleaning, Repairs & Maint.		50,000
11-000-270-420	Cleaning, Repairs & Maint. Trans.		25,000
11-000-290-241	Other Retirement Contribution	110,845	139,155
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	250,000
11-213-100-101	Salaries of Teachers - Resource Room	50,000	50,000
10-303	Fund Balance		350,000
	Totals	$410,845	$689,155

In addition, the Commissioner's review of the 1993-94 year-end audit as discussed, above, establishes that the amount of the restoration determined herein may be made by appropriating additional amounts from surplus. In instances such as this where there is money available to be allocated in order to fund the restoration while still leaving a surplus of $922,441 or more than twice the amount ($409,213) budgeted by the Board in its 1994-95 Budget Statement, it would be a manifest injustice to the taxpayers not to so order. Consequently, the Commissioner directs the Board to appropriate from surplus amounts necessary to fund this restoration. The tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Township of Jackson for the 1994-95 school year shall stand.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOMERDALE,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF SOMERDALE, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $149,191 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $88,222 for a total General Fund tax levy of $1,757,034 for 1994-95 school purposes.

JANUARY 3, 1995

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOMERDALE,

PETITIONER,

V.

BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF SOMERDALE, CAMDEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

For Petitioner, Betty M. Belofsky, Esq. (Mitnick, Josselson, DePersia & DePersia)

For Respondent, Gerald A. Sinclair, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 16, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Somerdale Borough Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education of reductions by the Somerdale Borough Council (Borough) following voter rejection on April 19, 1994, of the Board's proposed General Fund tax levy for current expenses purposes for the 1994-95 school year. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Borough, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)(2), consulted on the defeated budget and the Borough reduced the General Fund tax levy by $149,191. Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as set forth below:

Amount of Tax Levy Proposed by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$1,818,003	General Fund	$1,668,812
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund	$149,191	General Fund	$149,191

It must be noted that the Petition filed by the Board included with the Board resolution for appeal a response for each of the reductions certified by the Borough. On July 1, 1994, the Borough submitted what they termed a "Response to Petition of Appeal." This document did not answer the specific allegations in the Petition of Appeal, but rather included a list of "reasons and facts" in the matter as determined by the Borough and response to each of the arguments presented by the Board in its Petition. A Position Statement was submitted by the Board on July 20, 1994. In addition, on December 16, 1994, the Commissioner notified the parties that he intended to take official notice, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2, of the district's 1993-94 year-end audit as it relates to undesignated surplus.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-190-100-340	Purchased Technical Services	$2,000

Rationale: Only $65 spent in 1993-94 so $2,000 should be adequate and new computer equipment should not require costly or frequent repairs or maintenance.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-190-100-500	Other Purchased Services	$500

Rationale: Nothing spent in 1993-94 so $500 should be adequate.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-190-100-610	General Supplies	$6,000

Rationale: Reduction to 1993-94 budget amount which was not all spent.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-190-100-640	Textbooks	$13,500

Rationale: Reduction to 1993-94 budget amount which was not all expended.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-218-104	Salaries Guidance	$13,087

Rationale: Reduction to amount for three days per week which is adequate based upon anticipated need.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-213-500	Other Purchased Services	$1,000

Rationale: Reduction still represents an increase over the amount expended out of the 1993-94 budget.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-230-340	Purchased Technical Services	$6,000

Rationale: Reduction still leaves tenfold increase over 1993-94 budget amount. The amount may not be necessary if a three-year contract is negotiated.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-260-300	Purchased Professional/Technical Services	$3,500

Rationale: Reduction provides more than anticipated need.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-260-420	Repairs and Maintenance	$3,000

Rationale: Provides increase over 1993-94 budget and adequate for anticipated need.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-260-620	Heat and Electricity	$4,000

Rationale: Provides increase over 1993-94 budget and adequate for any increases in charges.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-260-490	Lease Purchase/Rentals	$1,500

Rationale: Reduced to 1993-94 amount.

Account Number	Title	Amount
111-000-290-220	Social Security	$5,265

Rationale: Reduced to reflect loss of personnel and 3% rather than 6% salary increase.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-290-290	Employee Benefits	$15,000

Rationale: Reduced to reflect loss of personnel and 3% rather than 6% salary increase.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-260-100	Salaries Custodians/Aides	$11,584

Rationale: Reduction to reflect loss of personnel and 3% rather than 6% salary increase.

Account Number	Title	Amount
*11-000-290-105	School Clerk Salary	$20,670

Rationale: Reduction to reflect loss of personnel and 3% rather than 6% salary increase.

Account Number	Title	Amount
11-000-240-105	Salaries Secretarial/Clerical	$19,879

Rationale: Reduction to reflect loss of personnel and 3% rather than 6% salary increase.

*Note: Both parties listed an incorrect account number, 11-000-260-105 for this item. Account number 11-000-290-105 is the correct one.

Account Numbers	Titles	Amounts
11-000-222-100	Library Salaries	$1,238
11-000-240-103	Salary Assistant Principal	1,219
11-000-290-104	Business Administrator Salary	1,200
11-000-213-100	Salary Health Services	1,352
11-000-230-100	Salary Administration	2,197
11-000-290-241	Retirement Contribution	1,000
11-208-100-106	Other Salaries C.H.	368
11-205-100-106	Other Salaries P.I.	436
11-000-219-105	Salaries CST Secretary	240
11-000-260-610	General Supplies Custodial	1,000

Rationale: These ten items - all reduced to reflect a 3% salary increase rather than 6%.

Account Number	Title	Amount
10-303	Surplus	$13,675

Rationale: Present surplus is unusually and unnecessarily large.

	TOTAL	$150,410

It must be noted that both parties recorded an incorrect total, $149,191, for the reduced items, and the reduction in the tax levy certified by the Borough is $149,191. The difference of $1,219, therefore, will be subtracted from the total of sustained reductions to provide agreement with the reduced tax levy.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Borough.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-340 - Purchased Technical Services	$2,000

The Borough bases this reduction on the position that only $65 was expended from this line item in 1993-94 and that the $2,000 remaining after the reduction should be adequate in 1994-95. The Board provides a list of equipment and costs for technical and repair services; however, it prefaces this listing with the statement that the costs "are based on costs incurred in previous years." Since the budget document provided to the Borough does list $65 as the amount expended in 1993-94, the Board's statement does not support an increase beyond that provided by the Borough's reduced amount. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,000.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-500 - Other Purchased Services	$500

The Borough states that nothing was expended from this line item in 1993-94 and that the $500 remaining after the reduction should be adequate in 1994-95. The Board initially states that the money is required for honor students' transportation to Sterling High School, but then, in its Position Statement, states that this was in error and changes the argument to one for the growth and expansion of the media center alleging that certain specified amounts should properly have been expended from this account in 1993-94. No evidence was presented, however, as to why this expansion is essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $500.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-610 - General Supplies	$6,000

The Borough again bases its reduction on 1993-94 expenditures which were $21,938.79 for this line item. Its position is that the $29,000 remaining after the reduction is the same as budgeted but not all expended in 1993-94. The Board states that the balance in this account occurred because the account was frozen to generate surplus. The Board provides a detailed listing of general supply needs for 1994-95, but it must be recognized that freezing an account to generate surplus does not support a need for additional funds. Also, the Borough reduction still provides funds with a greater than 30% increase over the amount spent in 1993-94. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $6,000.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-640 - Textbooks	$13,500

The Borough again bases its reduction on 1993-94 expenditures which were $21,426.17 and on the position that the $21,500 remaining after the reduction is the same as the 1993-94 budgeted amount. The Board provides a detailed list of books they state should be purchased in 1994-95 to update some texts, to provide additional books for the implementation of all day kindergarten classes, to provide new "hands on" science texts for seventh grade in order to coordinate with those purchased for eighth grade in 1993-94, and to address the interdistrict articulation efforts in the Sterling Region. The provision of appropriate and updated textbooks is certainly an essential component in a thorough and efficient educational program. Based on the data presented, the Commissioner restores $13,500.

Account	Reduction
11-000-218-104 - Salaries Guidance	$13,087

The Borough states that the reduced amount in the budget is adequate to cover three days per week for this position. The Board states that this position was increased from a three-day position to full-time in 1994-95 to address student needs and incidents. Although guidance services for elementary students may be beneficial, the Board has not detailed the increased need for such services for a thorough and efficient education and, therefore, in this matter cannot be increased beyond that certified by the Borough. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $13,087.

Account	Reduction
11-000-213-500 - Other Purchased Services	$1,000

The Borough bases this reduction on the 1993-94 expenditures of $12,736 and the provision for 1994-95 of $14,000 after the reduction. The Board states that there is an increased need for psychological and neurological screening for students, a need for services for a preschool autistic child, and the need to estimate costs for other services which may be required. The Board does not, however, provide any financial data to support its budgeted figure. These services may indeed be essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education, but the amount certified by the Borough does provide an increase over the amount expended in 1993-94. the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,000.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-340 - Purchased Technical Services	$6,000

The Borough again bases this reduction on 1993-94 expenditures of $1,500 in this line item and the provision of $10,500 for 1994-95 after the reduction. The Board states that these funds are necessary for contract negotiations and that $16,500 was spent for the last negotiations. Although contract negotiations can be a difficult and often stressful procedure in a school district, there is no requirement that the procedure include costs for professional services. The Commissioner, therefore, must sustain the reduction of $6,000.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-300 - Purchased Prof./Tech. Services	$3,500

The Borough states that the amount provided in this account after the reduction is more than adequate based on anticipated need. The Board states that the entire budgeted amount is necessary to address the five-year maintenance plan which was submitted effective 1993-94 as required by the Department of Education, plus other maintenance and repair items. The Borough provides only a general position and does not challenge any specific project. The Board provides an itemized list of projects with estimated costs. It is also of interest that the amount budgeted for 1994-95 by the Board is already significantly less than the amount expended in 1993-94. The proper maintenance of facilities and compliance with all relevant codes and statutes are absolutely integral to a thorough and efficient education. Based on the information presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $3,500.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-420 - Repairs and Maintenance	$3,000

The Borough bases this reduction on the position that there is, after the reduction, an increase of $16,425 over the 1993-94 budget. The Board states that the increase is because the cleaning service started in mid-year during 1993-94 and is being budgeted for a full year in 1994-95. It contends that the contracted cleaning service provides better service at a cheaper cost than janitors hired as school employees. The Board provides a list of items and costs. It must be noted that, although the proper maintenance of facilities is essential as stated above, an increase of more than sixty-five percent (65%) over the previous year is not justified by the Board's presentation. If all the other expenditures listed by the Board were exactly the same in 1993-94, the cleaning service fee for half a year would have been $16,033. The amount listed by the Board is more than double that amount. Based on the information presented, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $3,000.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-620 - Heat and Electricity	$4,000

The Borough states that the reduction still provides an increase of $1,000 over the 1993-94 budget and that it should be adequate for any increase in charges. The Board states that the 1993-94 costs exceeded the budgeted amount and that the amount budgeted is necessary to meet present utilities costs plus any increases. The Board states that expenses for this item in 1992-93 were $43,692 and in 1993-94 were $45,912, an increase of approximately $2,200. The Board also states that the actual costs, anticipated increases in utility costs and increased usage due to new equipment justify the budgeted amount as reasonable and necessary. Based on the information presented the Commissioner restores $4,000.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-490 - Lease Purchase/Rental	$1,500

The Borough states there is no justification for an increase over the 1993-94 budgeted amount of $13,000 because only $12,830 was expended. The Board states that this account covers lease purchase and rentals. It asserts that there are always unanticipated increases in both utilities (CCMUA and water) and lease agreements such as for copies and for software. Moreover, it argues that funds were also budgeted for unanticipated future lease purchase agreements to rent equipment while old equipment is being repaired and various other rentals throughout the year. Although estimates are the only possible way to determine a proposed budget figure, "unanticipated future lease purchase agreements" and "various rentals throughout the year" are not sufficient to validate the need for funds to provide a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,500.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-220 - Social Security	$5,265

The Borough reduces this line item to reflect a loss of personnel and a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Board states that it is necessary to maintain the present staffing level and that the non-bargaining staff salary increases have not yet been determined for 1994-95. A critical factor relevant to this item is that expenditures in 1993-94 were $16,627.59. The amount certified by the Borough, after the reduction of $5,265, is $21,235. This represents an increase of greater than twenty-five percent (25%) in 1994-95 over the 1993-94 expenditures. Based on these facts, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $5,265.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-290 - Employee Benefits	$15,000

The Borough's reduction of this line item is based on the same position as noted above, to reflect a loss of personnel and a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Board's position is also the same as above, that present staff must be maintained and that non-bargaining staff salary increases have not been determined for 1994-95. It must be noted that the amount proposed by the Board for this line item is almost $20,000 less than the budgeted amount for 1993-94 and almost $15,000 less than the projected expenditures for 1994-95. An additional decrease of $15,000 could result in insufficient funds for benefits which are required by statute or contractual agreements. The Commissioner orders the restoration $15,000.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-100 - Salaries Custodians/Aides	$11,584

The Borough reduces this line item to reflect a loss of personnel and a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Borough does not identify the specific "loss of personnel." The Borough also states that the reduction reflects the head custodian being fired and a new person hired in the middle of 1993-94. The Board states that the reduction was for the elimination of a part-time custodian position, and that this position is essential for the four hours of lunch serving, set up and breakdown time each day. It is very difficult to determine the level of support staff required to assist in the proper operation of a building and all the activities. However, a critical fact in the review of this item is that the Borough is eliminating an existing position but does not in the documents presented specify which position or the reasons for the reduction. The Board does outline the duties of the part-time custodian, which it believes is the one position to be eliminated. Finally, this line item has an increase of only $57 over 1993-94 which would indicate that the change in head custodian salary is addressed. Based on the facts presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $11,584.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-105 - School Clerk Salary	$20,670

The Borough again bases this reduction on a loss of personnel and a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Borough states that the services of the present Board secretary would be duplicated by another school clerk. The Board states that the auditors recommended the hiring of a clerk/assistant to Board secretary because one person cannot complete all the duties of the Board secretary plus the additional duties necessitated by GAAP, the new accounting system. Although the qualifications for this position as articulated in the job description submitted by the Board require knowledge of double entry accounting, GAAP, and appropriate bookkeeping and typing skills, the duties include answering the telephone, typing and filing, processing purchase orders and receipt of merchandise, running errands and entering data into the computer. The duties of this position do appear to be for clerical assistance in the Board office as opposed to the appointment of an assistant secretary as per N.J.S.A. 18A:17-13. These duties are not duplications of the responsibilities of a Board secretary, whose duties are clearly specified in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-5 et seq. and include detailed accounting and reporting on the district's financial transactions and status, handling school election requirements, maintaining Board documents, records and contracts, notifications on all Board meetings and completion of minutes of all meetings, plus other varied tasks. The Board asserts that the 1992-93 Audit contained 21 recommendations for improvement and assert that the auditors indicated that one person cannot fulfill all the duties. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of $20,670.

11-000-240-105 - Salaries Secretarial/Clerical	$19,879

The Borough again based its reduction on a loss of personnel and a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Borough also states that the present staff should be sufficient and that the additional position is not necessary. The Board states that this is not a new position and that it has been in existence for five (5) years. The Board lists the specific duties for this position and the two other secretarial positions in this account. Many of the duties for the position in question are duplicates of those for the clerk in the Board Secretary's office and/or relate to the duties of that office. Other duties are duplicates of those in the job description for the school secretary. The Board has not documented the need for this position and the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $19,879.

Accounts		Reductions
11-000-222-100	Library Salaries	$1,238
11-000-240-103	Salary Assistant Principal	1,219
11-000-290-104	Business Administrator Salary	1,200
11-000-213-100	Salary Health Services	1,352
11-000-230-100	Salaries Administration	2,197
11-000-290-241	Retirement Contribution	1,000
11-208-100-106	Other Salaries CH	368
11-205-100-106	Other Salaries PI	436
11-000-219-105	Salaries CST Secretary	240

The Borough combines these items in its resolution and bases the reduction for each on a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. The Board states that the salary increases for non-bargaining personnel have not yet been determined for 1994-95. The Board adds that the teaching staff will receive a six percent (6%) increase for 1994-95 and that it has been past practice to give non-teaching staff the same percentage of salary increase as the teaching staff. Boards must certainly realistically and reasonably estimate to budget for salaries when the percentage of increase has not yet been determined. The Commissioner makes the following determination on these items:

Library Salaries

Salary Assistant Principal

The reductions certified by the Borough still provide a greater than six percent (6%) increase over the 1993-94 budget and expenditures. The Commissioner sustains the reductions of $1,238 and $1,219 for these items.

Business Administrator Salary

The budget for this line item proposed by the Board is more than thirty percent (30%) less than the 1993-94 budget and expenditures. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $1,200.

Salary Health Services

The amount for this item proposed by the Board represents an increase of approximately six percent (6%) over the 1993-94 budget and expenditures. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $1,352.

Salaries Administration

The amount for this item proposed by the Board represents an increase of approximately five hundred dollars ($500) greater than a six percent (6%) increase over 1993-94 budget and expenditures. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $500 and orders the restoration of $1,697.

Retirement Contribution

Based on information provided by the Division of Pensions, the amount budgeted by the Board for this item is accurate. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $1,000.

Other Salaries CH and Other Salaries PI

The amount budgeted by the Board for each of these items is less than a six percent (6%) increase. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $368 and $436.

Salaries CST Secretary

The amount budget by the Board for this item is less than the 1993-94 budget and expenditures. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $240.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-610 - General Supplies Custodial	$1,000

The Borough included this item with the items above as decreased to reflect a three percent (3%) rather than a six percent (6%) salary increase. This item is obviously not a salary line but that issue was not addressed by either party. The Board states that the reduction maintains that same amount as expended in 1993-94 and does not provide for the continuing increase in costs. According to the budget document submitted, however, the amount certified by the Board provides an increase of greater than five percent (5%) over the 1993-94 expenditures. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $1,000.

Account	Reduction
10-303 - Surplus	$13,675

The Borough states that the present surplus fund is "unusually and unnecessarily" large and that the amount after the reduction is more than adequate. The Board states that the surplus as of June 30, 1994, after the Board's appropriation of $50,000 for 1994-95 will be $11,270.61. The budget document submitted has an estimated surplus after the appropriation for 1994-95 of $34,399.00. Apart from the difference in these numbers, the determination of an appropriate surplus or fund balance is always difficult. One critical factor is that there must be an equitable standard applied in reviewing this matter. The Commissioner orders the restoration of $13,675.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $88,222 and sustain $60,969 of the reduction in the General Fund tax levy appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FREEHOLD, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF FREEHOLD, COUNTY OF MONMOUTH, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $730,067 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 19, 1994.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $546,427 for a total General Fund tax levy of $4,621,521 for 1994-95 school purposes.

JANUARY 3, 1995

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FREEHOLD,

PETITIONER,

V.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF FREEHOLD, COUNTY OF MONMOUTH,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Vincent C. DeMaio (DeMaio & DeMaio), for Petitioner

Kerry E. Higgins, Esq. (Cerrato, Dawes, Collins, Saker & Brown) for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on May 27, 1994, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a controversy which has arisen pursuant to the authority vested in the Commissioner by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear and determine controversies under the school laws of this State, by reason of the following facts:

1. Petitioner is the Board of Education of the Borough of Freehold (hereinafter referred to as "the Board") and is required both by the Constitution and Statutes of New Jersey to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students.

2. Pursuant to its legal obligation, the Board adopted a budget for the 1994-95 school year and submitted a tax levy amount of $4,805,161 to the public at the April 19, 1994, school election. The tax levy question was defeated by the voters.

3. Freehold Borough is a political subdivision of the State of New Jersey and is located in the County of Monmouth (hereinafter referred to as "the Borough")

4. Pursuant to law, because of the defeat of the tax levy referendum, it became the obligation of the governing body of the Borough to consult with the Board and to certify to the Monmouth County Board of Taxation the amount to be raised by tax levy for the 1994-95 general fund.

5. On May 12, 1994, the Borough adopted a resolution certifying that the amount to be raised by local taxation for the 1994-95 would be in the amount of $4,075,094. Said amount was $730,067 less than the $4,805,161 originally proposed by the Board for all accounts. The net effect of the reduced tax levy was to decrease the General Fund Budget from $7,914,389 to $7,184,322.

6. On May 16 the Board adopted a resolution authorizing an appeal of the $730,067 tax reduction to the Commissioner of Education on the grounds that the amount certified by the Borough would not be sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient system of education (T&E).

On December 16, 1994, the Commissioner advised the parties that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.2, he intended to take official notice of the 1993-94 year-end district audit as it relates to the amount of undesignated surplus available to the district.

Accounts and amounts in dispute in this matter are as follows:

Standard of Review

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See, also, Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction is imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Moreover, the Commissioner has the constitutional obligation to ensure that a school district budget is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990); Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater and In the Matter of the Cap Waiver Appeal of the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 6, 1994.

Mindful then of the balance to be applied in this standard of review with respect to the various line items the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the petition of appeal before him:

Instruction Salaries	11-1XX-100	$233,760

After reviewing the initial positions and the subsequent rebuttals the Commissioner reduces the request of the Board by one position ($26,000) in accordance with the response of the Board to the Governing Body. These funds are being restored because of the compelling argument advanced by the Board as to the impact on the educational process and its State approved voluntary desegregation. In particular the Board asserts that all day kindergarten is both an essential element of the district's desegregation plan and drastically reduces the number of students in need of remediation. Arguments by Borough counsel, in effect, programs not mandated by law should be eliminated ignores the T&E process which requires educational programs to meet district goals and objectives, as long as they are not inconsistent with State requirements. The Commissioner sustains a reduction of $26,000 and determines that $207,760 is restored.

Support Services Administration 11-000-240 $ 86,236

The request of the Board to restore the position of Principal and supporting secretary is approved. Strong leadership in the form of a principal is essential to the orderly progression of the educational process (N.J.A.C. 6:8-3.2(b)). The Board asserts that when the principalship of one of the two elementary schools was eliminated there was a negative impact upon the racial composition of both schools. Counsel's argument that the position did not exist in 1988 ignores differences in programs and needs that have occurred since that date. Accordingly, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $86,236 reduction.

Other Support Services

Special	11-000-219	$132,281
Regular	11-000-218	42,312

The request of the board to restore funds for the above services is reduced by $67,000. The Borough provided little rationale or justification for combining the Director of Curriculum and Special Services into a single position. Combining positions raises questions of organizational and services changes that must be planned and provision made for the coordination of services. Absent such a plan the action could result in a disruption of services. In its response, however, the Board indicated that an administration position could be eliminated.

The Board presented compelling arguments supporting the need for guidance counseling as a vital service and is essential to the T&E process. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustains $67,000 of the reduction to 11-000-219 and restores $65,281. As to 11-000-218 the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $42,312 reduction.

Food Services 11-000-310 $ 16,000

The Board's request to restore funds to continue its food service operation as two separate lunch rooms at Park Avenue Elementary School and the Intermediate School is approved. Provision for adequate food areas is essential to the educational process. The Board asserts that, although housed in the same building, the program operates separately. Space, control and program necessities including the ability to prepare, serve, collect money and clean-up in a reasonable time are the reasons proffered for its current operational needs. The Commissioner, therefore, orders the restoration of the $16,000 reduction.

Business & Other Support Services 11-000-290 $119,478

The Board's request to restore funds in this area is approved less a reduction of $15,640 for health benefits savings due to the two positions eliminated in this decision. Based upon the analysis of the assertions of the parties the Commissioner determines that $15,640 of the reduction is sustained and $103,838 of the reduction is restored.

Operation and Maintenance of Plant 11-000-290 $ 25,000

The Board request for the restoration of $40,000 is reduced to $25,000, based on Board concurrence that the rental facility will not be needed. The Board asserted that the district has no in-house maintenance staff and must contract for repairs. Borough arguments concerning maintenance were not based on any analysis of maintenance needs, but rather on historical budgeting practices.

Capital Outlay Equipment	12-130-100-730	12-000-260-730	12-120-100-730	$10,000

The Board's request for restoration of this item is denied. The Board's indication that the reductions were arbitrary and capricious did not provide an educational justification for the restoration of the funds involved.

Revenue Revision $50,000

After reviewing the within appeal based upon the record and circumstances known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of this appeal, the Commissioner, on December 16, 1994, notified the parties that he intended to take official notice of the Board's 1993-94 year-end audit. The Commissioner reviewed the audit for the purpose of identifying whether the Board underestimated in its 1994-95 budget the amount of anticipated undesignated surplus.

In light of this review, the Board's request for restoration of the balance appropriation is denied. Even with the appropriation made by the Borough, the amount of surplus available to the Board is consistent with accepted fiscal policies concerning the retention of surplus for emergencies in light of the amount of the total budget and the potential contingencies asserted. The direction to appropriate the $50,000 to the General Fund Balance is consequently sustained.

The accounts and amounts under appeal and as determined by the Commissioner in this matter are as follows:

Account Title	Account No.	Amount Under Appeal	Amount Not Approved	Approved by Commissioner
General Current Expenses
Regular Program Instruction
Salaries	11-1XX-100	$233,760	$ 26,000	$207,760

Revenue Revision
Budgeted Fund Balance
Board Appropriation		$ 50,000	$ 50,000	-0-
Total Restoration				$546,427

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $546,427 is essential to provide a thorough and efficient educational system and that a further reallocation of funds within the districts maximum permissible budget is not possible (Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education, July 7, 1993.)

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $4,621,521 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes for the 1994-95 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$4,075,094
Ordered by Commissioner	546,427
TOTAL	$4,621,521
