Monday, July 25, 2011	Newspaper Editorials Agree ... The Legislature Should Agree with Governor Christie's Transitional Aid Oversight	Ethics and Accountability	"When it comes to spending taxpayer money, having some strings attached is a good thing. Despite the mutterings of Democrats, Gov. Chris Christie's plan to restore full funding in so-called transitional aid for about a dozen distressed municipalities if it includes an oversight provision is necessary...The Legislature should agree with Christie' proposal...As Christie himself said, "We need these oversight mechanisms, to make sure that the money is spent in a way that is in conformance with the program and is respectful of the money the taxpayers want to spend." That is spot on. Taxpayers do not mind spending money on vital programs. Strong oversight is a sign of respect on the part of the state toward taxpayers."
