Restricted access reuse involves the use of treated wastewater where the possibility of exposure to the general population is minimal and/or worker exposure is controlled. Such applications include sanitary sewer jetting, street sweeping, sewage treatment plant washdown, fire protection, irrigation of landscaping within a secured perimeter (fenced area) and certain industrial processes (e.g. non-contact cooling water and boiler make-up water). New RWBR applications located within the Pinelands shall obtain approval through the Pinelands Commission prior to filing a request for authorization with the Department. The NJDEP has determined that these types of RWBR require the same effluent limitations or operating conditions, require the same or similar monitoring conditions, and are more appropriately controlled under a general permit authorization than under individual permits. However, all facilities applying to distribute treated wastewater for restricted access RWBR must also have a valid NJPDES discharge permit to receive authorization under this general permit.

This was omitted in the June 2003 renewal permit. There are corrections of minor typographical or minor language changes to clarify permit requirements. In addition, there was a reference to an incorrect publishing company (where interested persons can purchase the NJPDES regulations) as a new publishing company is now managing the updates.
