

WHAT THE INCREASE IN FEDERAL AID WILL MEAN IN SAVINGS FOR NEW JERSEY TOWNS

Earlier this week, at the request of Governor Christie, President Obama authorized a federal cost-share increase for recovery projects funded by the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) Public Assistance grant program from 75 percent to 90 percent.

As a result of this increase in federal funding, FEMA will reimburse state and local governments and certain private nonprofit organizations 90 percent of eligible costs of emergency expenses, debris removal and infrastructure repair. This will result in significant savings for towns throughout New Jersey as they rebuild from Super Storm Sandy.
