

Who would have thought that my 92nd year of life I would be dealing with such a terrible disease that afflicts so many of my contemporaries? It saddens me that elderly and disabled people in nursing homes have been so afflicted by Covid-19, and that they feel very isolated not being able to be with their families at all, except maybe a phone call. I am very thankful that I live with my family and husband at home and that we try our best to limit who comes into the house. In 2021 I will celebrate my 93rd birthday, and look forward to a better year. I worry very much about my son who is a doctor and helps Covid patients with their breathing by placing them on respirators. He has to be very careful and it is hard for him to visit us because of his important job exposing him to Covid patients. Our daughter needs to be careful as well just to get essentials and has turned to curbside pickups and the mail for most of our needs. Thank goodness for the internet and being able to do this. My wish for 2021 is that everyone masks up and that the vaccine works to help all of us here in the USA as well as worldwide.
