FOR THE YEAR OF OUR LORD

1832,

BEING BISSEXTILE, OR LEAP YEAR, AND UNTIL THE FOURTH OF JULY, THE

Fifty-Sixth of American Independence.

*Containing the Rising, Setting and Eclipses of the Sun and Moon; Aspects of the Planets; Judgment of the Weather:
the time of High Water at New-York, &c. &c. together with a variety of useful and entertaining matter.*

BY DAVID YOUNG, PHILEM.

Are we not wise—we tell you when
The sun will rise and set again;
Whether the day be fair or foul,
When winds blow light, or when they howl.

ECLIPSES.

There will be two Eclipses of the Sun this year, but there will be no eclipse of the Moon.

I. There will be an Eclipse of the Sun on the 1st of February, at 5h. 20m. in the evening, invisible to us. This Eclipse will be central and annular on the meridian, in longitude  $80^{\circ} 14'$  west from New-York, and latitude  $15^{\circ} 14\frac{3}{4}'$  south.

I. The Sun will be Eclipsed, visibly, on Friday July 27th, in the morning.

	H.	M.
Beginning at	6	54	A. M.
Greatest Obscuration,	7	42	"
End,	8	41	"
Duration,	1	47

Quantity,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  digits on the Sun's southern limb.

This Eclipse will be central and total on the meridian, in longitude  $45^{\circ} 49'$  east of New-York, and latitude  $24^{\circ} 32'$  north. At this place the duration of total darkness will be full two minutes, but it will be only about a minute and a half where the Eclipse is central near the horizon. The magnitude of this Eclipse at London will be one fifth part of a digit, and its duration 25 minutes.

TRANSIT.

II. There will be a Transit of the planet Mercury across the disc of the Sun on Saturday, May 5th, in the morning, chiefly visible, as follows :

	H.	M.
Beginning of ingress,	4	$7\frac{1}{2}$
Ingress of Mercury's centre,	4	9
Total ingress,	4	11
Sun rises,	5	1
Time of nearest approach of centres,	7	$34\frac{1}{2}$
Beginning of egress,	10	57
Egress of Mercury's centre,	10	$58\frac{1}{2}$
Total egress, or end of the transit,	11	0

The duration of visibility, or from sun rise, will therefore be 5h. 59m. Mercury will have entered  $3'$ , or a little more than one digit, upon the Sun's eastern limb at the time of rising.— The transit will be across the northern part of the sun's disc. The least distance of the centres of the Sun and Mercury will be  $7' 56''$ , which will also be the greatest distance of Mercury's centre within the periphery of the Sun.

Hath 31 days.

Begins on Sunday.

Fast or fa. signifies that the Clock should be set so much faster than the Dial, and slow or sl. denotes that it must be set so much slower.

Shake upon Shake.—An apothecary, at Newcastle, having a patient lying at death's door, sent him a bottle of medicine, and wrote on the label, when taken, to be well shaken. Next day, he repaired to his patient's house, and inquired of the servant who opened the door, how his master was. The servant shook his head. 'What! is he worse?' said the apothecary. 'Did he take the draught?' 'Yes, sir,' was the reply. 'Well, what then, John?' 'Why, then, sir, we shook him once.'—'Shook him? what! shake a patient! why, a shake a won't do, friend.' 'No, sir, so we thought, and therefore shook him twice.' 'Why, man! that would make him worse.' 'So it did, sir, (said John,) and we tried a third.' 'A third! zounds! and what then?' 'Why, then, sir, master died.' soon all their difficulties subsided, and the great wound in the peace of the town was healed.

The Yankee Barber.—Being at New-Haven last summer, I stepped into a barber's shop on Sunday morning to get shaved, and found Strap (a genuine Yankee) engaged in cutting a man's hair, with a number of gentlemen around him, waiting to be shaved. Some impatience being manifested at the detention, Strap, by way of apology, exclaimed—'One minute, gentlemen—I don't make it a pint, (point) generally speaking, to cut hair on a Sabba' day, but I don't like to lose the nine-peace.'

THE PUZZLED.

A horseman rode up one day to an inn,
Where the landlord—a Yankee—would think it a sin,
A "sin of omission," to let him pass by,
And learn not a bit of his history.

'It's like you are married, if one might say so,' Quoth mine host to his guest; but the stranger said 'No.'

'Oh, ah, sir, a widower?—'No, I am not.'

'Not a widower?—right, sir,—I really forgot.

'You're a bachelor, then, it is perfectly plain?'

'No—no—I am not!' and thus once again

Was our landlord sore stumbled, and lifted both eyes,
And gaped with the most unaffected surprise.

'By George, it is strange, sir, you should'nt be either—

Not a widower, married man, bachelor neither!

I don't like to be rude, but what can you be, pray?'

Roared his guest, 'A divorced man!' and galloped away.

A NAUTICAL ARRANGEMENT OF THE FIGURES OF FASHIONABLE QUADRILLES.

Le Pantaloon.—Haul upon the starboard tack, let the other craft pass, then bear up, and get your head on the other tack, regain your berth on the larboard tack, back and fill with your partner, box-haul her, wear round twice against the sun in company with the opposite craft and your own, afterwards box-haul her again and bring up.

L'Ete.—Shoot ahead about two fathoms till you nearly come stern on to the other craft under weigh, then make a stern board to your berth, side out for abend, first to starboard and then to port, make sail and pass the other craft, get your head round on the other tack, another side to starboard, and port, make sail to regain your berth, wear round, back and fill and box-haul your partner.

La Poule.—Heave a-head and pass your adversary, yard-arm and yard-arm, regain your berth on the other tack in the same order, take your station in the line, with your partner, back and fill, fall on your heel, and bring up with your partner; she then manœuvres ahead, heaves all aback; shoots ahead again, and pays off alongside; you then make sail in company with her, till nearly stern with the other line, make a stern board, and cast her off to shift for herself, regain your berth by the best means in your power and let go your anchor.

Le Trenise.—Wear round as before against the sun twice, box-haul the lady, range up alongside her and make sail in company, when half way across to the other shore, drop astern with the tide, shoot and cast off the tow; now back and fill as before, and boxhaul her and yourself into your berth and bring up.

La Pastorale.—Shoot ahead alongside your partner, make a stern board, make all sail over to the other coast, let go the hawser and pay off into your berth and take a turn; the three crafts opposite range up abreast towards you twice and back astern again; now manœuvre any rig you like, only under easy sail, as it is always a light wind (zephyrs as they call it) in this passage; as soon as you see their helms down, haul round in company with them on the larboard tack, and make all sail with your partner into your own berth and bring up.

La Finale.—Wear round to starboard, passing under your partner's right, the catheads of your craft on your starboard bow, then make sail into your berth, your partner passing athwart your bows; now proceed according to the second order of sailing; to complete the evolutions shoot ahead and back astern twice in company with the whole squadron in circular order of sailing.

Yankee Negatives.—A Yankee set out some years ago, with a horse and cart, loaded with barn-door fowls, geese, and turkeys, and several other nick-nacks and notions for the Boston market. Being arrived, he addressed every person who appeared to him likely to become a purchaser, with 'You don't want to buy a turkey to-day?' One answered, 'You guess right the first time, I do not'—another, 'You lie, you blockhead, I do'—a third, 'It will depend on the price,' &c. At length he sold his whole load to a tavern-keeper, and left his hat in the bar-room, while he was unloading. Having accomplished this object, and received his pay, his hat was missing; when, instead of asking directly if any person had found it, he addressed the people in the bar-room in the following manner: 'I don't suppose nobody han't seen nothing of no old felt hat nowhere.'

If the preceding collection of negations should not hit the taste of our readers, perhaps the following account of a Yankee woman may suit them better.

One of those good house-wives who supply the Boston market with eggs, cream, butter, &c. from the neighbouring towns, being on her return homeward, having proceeded as far as Roxbury, perceived in her cart the cover of one of her boxes, and very naturally, as well as wisely, supposed she had left the box to which it belonged with one of her customers. Unwilling to suffer the loss of so valuable an article, she put about, proceeded to a house where she had disposed of some of her notions, and accosted the family, whom she found at dinner, with 'Pray, gentlemen, han't none of you never seen nothing of no box without no kiver on't that nobody han't left here no time to-day, han't you.'

'I Say.'—A gentleman, who was in the habit of larding his discourse with the expression 'I say,' having been informed by a friend that a certain individual had made some ill-natured remarks upon this peculiarity, took the opportunity of addressing him in the following amusing style of rebuke:—'I say, sir, I hear say you say I say I say' at every word I say. Now, sir, although I know I say 'I say' at every word I say, still I say sir, it is not for you to say I say 'I say' at every word I say.'

THANKSGIVING.

THE Reverend Mr. Burnall had just finished the Governor's proclamation for Thanksgiving Day, when the congregation of the church in Bugborough were alarmed by the simultaneous outcry of a hundred thousand domestic fowls; videlicet, turkies, geese, ducks, and chickens. Chanticleer was heard to vociferate any thing but Amen, when he heard the ominous sound of 'God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts,' which he knew to be the conclusion of a death-warrant for his beloved partlets.

The day appointed for Thanksgiving was the subsequent Thursday; and as the boys and girls hastened home from church, they involuntarily smacked their lips, at the glorious prospect of mince-pie and plum-puddings, while the old ladies forgot the sermon in a dream of mortars and pestles, spices and fresh butter.

'I hope,' said Mrs. Oilynose to her beloved spouse, 'that we shall have a good day on Thursday—for Squire Runnet, you know, and his wife and sister, and neighbour Ball and his two brothers, are going for to dine with us, and it would be a nation pity to rain!'

'So it would, my ducky,' responded the little round fat oily man of ware; 'but what are you to have for dinner!'

'Why as to that, dear, I intended to have pumpkin-pies and a great apple-slump, and a leg of bacon and plum-puddin' for the first course—and then a roast turkey and a plenty of inyons and apple-sauce—and I guess as how we had better have some boiled chickens too, and squash-pies, and things.'

'Very good!' ejaculated Mr. Oilynose.

'Pa!' wheezed out his little son, as he turned up a baboon phiz to his affectionate sire, 'will you buy me a bladder to play foot-ball?'

'Silence,' said the father, 'it's a Sabba' day, Joel.' And Joel wiped his proboscis on his sleeve, and ran after a frog that was practising gymnastics on the town common.

Like an Alexandrine, the following Monday and Tuesday dragged their slow lengths along—Wednesday came—and huge squashes shared the fate of Louis Capet. The chopping-knife sounded, and the pestles never ceased. A capacious brass wash-kettle hung over the kitchen fire, looking like a deep charger, containing John the Baptist's head; for there was a pumpkin smoking, which would have weighed down two fifty-sixes. Little Joel was running through the kitchen, occasionally thrusting his fingers into the mince tray, and sometimes his mamma allowed him to notch the pastry with a knife; and then he never failed to rub his elbows in flour, and besmear himself with butter. And once he excited the admiration of the whole kitchen by tumbling into the ash-hole, where the cat had retired to nose out a bone.

Thanksgiving Day at length arrived, ushered in by a cloudy sky, and a slight 'flurry of snow,' just deep enough to make the Boston frog-pond more amusing to the boys, as they glided over the 'kiddle-dee-benders,' and chased some poor bow-legged nigger from their skating ground. The Capulets were not earlier at work on Juliet's wedding day, than the Oilynoses on Thanksgiving morning. The oven was heated betimes, the jack was wound up, and the spit covered with fowls; and just then the second bell rung for church.

Mrs. Oilynose did not go to church that morning, for she was obliged to superintend the culinary department of the mansion-house; but the old gentleman went, with the young ones, in whose hands he deposited a four-pence-half-penny, to put in the contribution-box—reserving a twenty-cent-piece himself, which he wrapped carefully in a piece of white paper, either for modesty's sake, or to make its contents appear what they were not.

Perhaps it would be as well to pass by the religious services, as very few persons had presence of mind enough to listen. So we will suppose every thing done in decency and in order, and the anthem squawked out, as usual in a country meeting-house.

There was a hurrying to and fro, at the mansion-house of the Oilynoses, when the good lady turning suddenly to her better part (half I would have said, but for her peculiar bulk.)—'My love, who shall we get to tend table?'

‘Simon Snooks, dear: he’ll do it just as easy—but I’ll attend to them things, I guess—only you git things ready.’

Know all men by these presents, to whom they shall come, greeting, that Simon was neither more nor less than an ostler—his duty being to curry one horse, or one ass (for it was never ascertained exactly which of the two the animal was,) and to milk four cows.—Consequently, Simon was not the most accomplished waiter in the world, and would have stood a poor chance beside a French garçon.

There was a damask cloth spread over the board—a luxury which Mrs. Oilynose never indulged in but once a year—the salt-cellar was furnished with spoons, and every plate supplied with a fresh roll and a doily. The room was furnished with more than common regard to neatness. Curtains were put to the windows, and the portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Oilynose hung up—he was represented as a literary man, and she as a shepherdess. The pumpkin pies and apple slump, bacon and plum-pudding, were smoking on the table, when the old gentleman, gathering round him his smiling guests, said grace in the following manner: ‘May God bless us, and what is provided for us.’ The old lady responded ‘Amen,’ while her eyes rested on the pudding, with devouring glances.

‘Shall I help you to any thing this ere end of the table?’ said Mrs. Oilynose to her cousin Lucinda Twig.

‘Why I don’t care if I do take a piece of that pie—a very small piece.’

Accordingly she was helped to a square foot of slump.

Mr. Oilynose, having taken a glass of bitters before dinner, was so intent on satisfying his own appetite that Squire Ball was left unprovided for, and, like the fellow in the cook’s shop, was glad to feed on the flavor of the savory viands about him.

‘Dinah!’ bawled out the hungry gentleman, ‘bring me some porter.’

Dinah shortly appeared, with four or five bottles. But, just as she got within hitting distance of the old girl, one of the corks, feeling a little restless, jumped out, when about a pint of porter whizzed, like water from an engine pipe, against the rosy face of Mistress Dorothy Snorks, which so astounded the lady, that she lost her centre of gravity, and, tumbling against her darling boy, pitched him head over heels into the lap of Miss Tantaug. At this moment, when confusion seemed worse confounded, little Joel, having swallowed a piece of hot pudding, began to scream violently, and whether from over-exerting himself or not, had what is not called the ‘the dry heaves,’ as the table-cloth testified, and the washerwoman asserted sometime after. There was a pretty scene for Hogarth. In fact, the humors of a real Yankee Thanksgiving dinner were never more whimsically set forth. But where is Simon, the waiter? Just emerging from the kitchen with a large dish of gravy, he entered the dining-room, looking like a measly pig, and vociferated as loud as thunder, through a key-hole,

'Is n't there nobody what do n't want no more grease?'

It would be an endless task to attempt a discussion of the dinner table, and the conversation which the hilarity of the occasion produced. Mr. Oilynose fell fast asleep over his fourth bottle, the females retired to take a snooze, and the children had their bellies greased, and were in this condition laid before the fire to stretch.— That night Mr. O— dreamt that a rhinoceros was standing on his stomach, and with frightful screams awoke, to the music of his partner's slumbers.

THE REMOVAL.

A nervous old gentleman, tired of trade,
By which, though, it seems, he a fortune had made,
Took a house 'twixt two sheds, at the skirts of a town,
Which he meant at his leisure to buy and pull down.

This thought struck his mind when he viewed the estate,
But, alas! when he enter'd he found it too late;
For in each dwelt a smith, a more hard working two
Never doctor'd a patient, or put on a shoe.

At six in the morning, their anvils at work
Awoke our new squire, who raged like a Turk;
'These fellows,' he cried, 'such a clattering keep,
That I never can get above eight hours sleep.'

From morning till night they kept thumping away,
No sound but the anvil the whole of the day;
His afternoon nap and his daughter's new song
Were banish'd and spoil'd by their hammers' ding dong.

He offer'd each Vulcan to purchase his shop,
But no, they were stubborn, determin'd to stop;
At length, (both his spirits and health to improve,)
He cried, 'I'll give each fifty guineas to move.'

'Agreed,' said the pair, 'that will make us amends,'
'Then come home;' said the squire, 'and let us part friends;
You shall dine, and we'll drink on this joyful occasion,
That each may live long in his new habitation.'

He gave the two blacksmiths a sumptuous regale,
He spared not provisions, his wine, or his ale,
So much was he pleas'd with the thought that each guest
Would take from him the noise and restore him to rest.

26

'And now,' said he, 'tell me where you mean to move, I hope to some spot where your trade will improve?'
'Why, sir,' replied one, with a grin on his phiz,
'Tom Forge moves to my shop and I move to his!'

THE SCHOOLMASTER 'BOARDING ROUND.'

Extract from the Journal of a Vermont Schoolmaster.

Monday.—Went to board at Mr. B——'s, had a baked goose for dinner; supposed from its size, the thickness of its skin, and other venerable appearances, to have been one of the first settlers of Vermont—made a slight impression on the patriarch's breast. Supper—cold goose and potatoes; family consisting of the man, good wife, daughter Peggy, four boys, Pompey the dog, and a brace of cats, fire built in the square room about 9 o'clock, and a pile of wood laid by the fire place; saw Peggy scratch her fingers, and couldn't take the hint—felt squeamish about the stomach, and talked about going to bed; Peggy looked sullen, and put out the fire in the square room; went to bed, and dreamed of having eaten a quantity of stene wall.

Tuesday.—Cold gander for breakfast, swamp tea and some nut-cakes; the latter some consolation. Dinner—The legs, &c. of the gander done up warm, one nearly dispatched. Supper—The other leg, &c. cold; went to bed as Peggy was carrying the fire to the square room, dreamed I was a mad turtle, and got on my back and could not get over again.

Wednesday.—Cold gander for breakfast; complained of sickness, and could eat nothing. Dinner—Wings, &c. of the gander warmed up; did my best to destroy them for fear they should be left for supper, did not succeed; dreaded supper all the afternoon. Supper—Hot Indian Johnny cakes, and no goose; felt greatly relieved, thought I had got clear of the gander, and went to bed for a good night's rest; disappointed; very cold night, and couldn't keep warm in bed; got up, and stopped the broken windows with my coat and vest; no use; froze the tip of my nose a little before morning.

Thursday.—Breakfast; cold gander again! felt very much discouraged to see the gander not half gone; went a visiting for dinner and supper; slept abroad and had pleasant dreams.

Friday.—Breakfast abroad. Dinner at Mr. B——'s; cold gander and hot potatoes; last very good; eat three, and went to school quite contented. Supper—Cold gander, and no potatoes; bread heavy and dry; had the head ache and couldn't eat; Peggy much concerned; had a fire built in the square room and thought she and I had better sit there out of the noise; went to bed early; Peggy thought too much sleep bad for the head-ache.

Saturday—Breakfast, cold gander, and hot Indian Johnny-cake did very well; glad to come off so. Dinner—Cold gander again; didn't keep school this afternoon; weighed, and found I had lost six pounds the past week; grew alarmed; had a talk with Mr. B. who concluded I had boarded out his share; made no objection—bid the family and gander 'good bye,' and went to Mr. C's.

George Schaffer and the Salamander Hat.—Whilst Schaffer was at a tavern in Epping, N. H. he noticed a raw looking would-be-dandy sort of a fellow, strutting about, with all the consequence allowable to persons who wear new hats and fine clothes; and thinking this to be a fine opportunity for enjoying a little sport at the bumpkin's expense, he accordingly addressed himself in a very respectful manner to the fellow in the following words:—'A beautiful hat that of yours, sir: pray, young gentleman, if I may be so bold, what did you give for that hat?'—'Eight dollars,' said the fellow, with an air of consequence. 'But eight dollars? Indeed, sir! Why I pretend to know something about hats, being a hatter myself,—and I consider that hat to be as much worth twenty dollars, as the one I wear myself, which I gave twenty-five for, by the gross. Why, sir, they are very scarce—very few of the salamander hats imported now-a-days.' 'What are they?—salamander hats?' said the fellow. 'To be sure,' said Schaffer, 'did you never hear of the salamander hats, which are made of a substance called Asbestos, which resists the action of heat?—so that if you should leave one in the fire an hour, it wouldn't burn.' 'What,' said the fellow, 'won't my hat burn, if I should go to stick it into that are grate?' 'Burn!' bellowed Schaffer, staring in his peculiar manner, 'to be sure the salamander hats never burn!' 'What will you bet, now, that my hat won't burn?' said the fellow, taking off his hat and examining it. 'Bet?' said Schaffer, 'I never bet! yet, as I am positive in this case, I shall bet a glass of pop, that that hat, (as it is a salamander hat,) won't burn, if you should leave it in the fire two minutes.' 'You'll bet that my hat won't burn, if I should go to poke it in that are grate?—' 'Yes,' replied Schaffer. 'Done,' said the other, and immediately thrusting his hat into the grate, (which was well filled with Lehigh) he had the satisfaction of seeing it consumed in less time than was stipulated in the bet; while he was prevented from rescuing it by the company, who affirmed that they would see no cheating in the matter, and that the hat should remain the appointed time. After the hat was consumed, Schaffer turning round, said in a melancholy manner, 'Here, landlord, give the young gentleman a glass of pop—I've lost my bet!'

Resignation.—'Ned has run away with your wife,' said one friended to another. 'Poor fellow,' replied the forsorn husband.

I was just Thinking of it.—Some fifty years ago—a member of the Legislature of N. H. possessing the same kind of knowledge that multitudes have in these days, to know every thing as soon as intended or suggested by others, was in the habit of following every proposed resolve, with—I was just thinking of it. An arch brother member, to try his wisdom, very gravely proposed a resolve, (being in the time of war, when salt was scarce,) that every farmer should sow a bushel of salt the following year, to raise his own; to which he eagerly seconded the motion, saying—‘I was just thinking of it.’

Kentucky Hams vs. Yankee Nutmegs.—The Kentucky nation have commenced a rivalry with Yankee land, in the manufacture of wooden eatables. A merchant in Port Gibson, (Miss.) desirous of procuring a lot of choice Bacon Hams, requested his agent at the Gulf to make the purchase for him from the boats passing down the Mississippi. After many fruitless inquiries of the passing craft, he met with a Kentucky Jonathan, whose loading was composed of the nicest and choicest Hams, all canvassed; and the one which was shown as a sample, looked so well, and tasted so delightfully, that the confiding agent made the purchase on the spot.—The new Jonathan had such an innocent, unsuspected and unsuspecting countenance too—giving forth no scintillations of vivacity, nor evidencing the owner to possess ‘brains above an oyster-shell,’ on any other subject than that of curing bacon—the art of which appeared to be impressed on the brain, as drippings wear the rock, or the knowledge of law and physic is made available by some members of those honorable professions. Who would suspect him of perpetrating a miscellaneous or original act? Straws shew which way the wind blows: but the human countenance presents a mysterious enigma to the reader. The Hams, when opened, proved to be wood, neatly turned in the shape of a hog’s hind leg; and the Kentuckian shewed that he was ‘up to a trick or two.’ All will agree that he was ‘pretty tolerable cute.’

---

The Crier in the Circuit Court at Georgetown, (D. C.) while napping in Court, was recently aroused by a clap of thunder, and, starting on his feet, he bawled out ‘silence,’ to the infinite diversion of all present.

[This is not so bad as what happened to a fellow the other day, who fell asleep in church. He fancied himself playing nine-pins, and in the middle of the sermon broke out with the exclamation ‘all down, by the hokey!']

If one have serv’d thee, tell the deed to many Hast thou serv’d many—tell it not to any.

A Jew Jew'd.—It was observed that a certain covetous rich man never invited any one to dine with him. 'I will lay a wager, (says a wag) I get an invitation from him.' The wager being accepted, he goes the next day to this rich man's house, about the time he was known to sit down to dinner, and tells the servant that he must speak with his master immediately, for that he could save his master a thousand pounds. 'Sir, (says the servant to his master) here is a man in a great hurry to speak with you, who says he can save you a thousand pounds.' Out comes the master; 'What is that you say, sir, that you can save me a thousand pounds?' 'Yes sir, I can, but I see you are at dinner: I will go myself and dine, and call again.' 'O, pray, sir, come in and take dinner with me.' 'Sir, I will be troublesome.' 'Not at all.' The invitation was accepted. As soon as dinner was over, and the family retired, 'well, sir, (says the man of the house) now to our business. Pray let me know how I am to save this thousand pounds?' 'Why, sir, (said the other) I hear you have a daughter to dispose of in marriage.' 'I have.' 'And that you intend to portion her with ten thousand pounds.' 'I do so.' 'Why, then, sir, let me have her, and I will take her with nine thousand.' The master of the house instantly rose in a passion, and turned him out of doors.

EPITAPH ON A KITTEN.

Here lies, by death smitten,
A hapless young kitten,
To moulder away in the dust;
O! had it lived longer,
It might have been stronger,
And died somewhat older, we trust.
Had it grown up to cat-hood,
Then many a rat would
Have mourned in the deepest of woe.
Let the curtain be drawn to,
We hope it has gone to
That land to which other cats go.

DOCTOR FRANKLIN AND THE BARBER.

On Doctor Franklin's arrival at Paris, as plenipotentiary from the United States, during the Revolution, the king expressed a wish to see him immediately. As there was no going to the court of France in those days, without permission of the wigmaker, a wigmaker of course was sent for. In an instant a richly dressed Monsieur, his arms folded in a prodigious muff of furs, and a long sword by his side, made his appearance. It was the king's Wigmaker, with his servant in a livery, a long sword by his side too, and a load of sweet-scented band-boxes, full of 'ae wig,' as he said, 'de superb wig for de great Docteer Franklin. One of the wigs was tried on—a world too small! Band box after band-box was tried; but all with the same ill success. The wigmaker fell into the most violent rage, to the extreme mortification of Doctor Franklin, that a gentleman so bedecked with silks and perfumes, should, notwithstanding, be such a child. Presently, however, as in all the transports of a grand discovery, the wigmaker cried out that he knew where the fault lay—'not in his wig as too small: O no, by gar! his wig no too small; but de docteer's head too big; great deal too big.' Franklin, smiling, replied, that the fault could hardly lie there; for that his head was made of God Almighty himself, who was not subject to err. Upon this the wigmaker took in a little; but still contended that there must be something the matter with Doctor Franklin's head. It was at any rate, he said, out of de fashion. He begged Doctor Franklin would only please for remember, dat his head had not de honneur to be made in PARREE. No, by gar! for if it been made in PARREE, it no bin more dan half such a head. 'None of the French Noblesse,' he swore, 'had a head any ting like his. Not de great Duke D'Orleans, nor de grand monarch himself had half such a head as Docteer Franklin. And he did not see, he said, what business any body had wid a head more big dan de head of de grand monarque.'

Pleased to see the poor wigmaker recover his good humour, Dr. Franklin could not find it in his heart to put a check to his childish rant, but related one of his fine anecdotes, which struck the wigmaker with such an idea of his wit, that as he retired, which he did, bowing most profoundly, he shrugged his shoulders, and with a look most significantly arch, he said:

'Ah, Docteer Frankline! Docteer Frankline! I no wonder your head too big for my wig. By gar, I' fraid your head be too big for all de French nations.'

Anecdote.—An old woman who lived on the frontier during the late disturbance with Great Britain, and possessed a marvellous propensity to learn the news, used frequently to make inquiries of the soldiers. On one occasion, she called to one of those defenders of our rights whom she had frequently saluted before, 'What's the news, now?' 'Why, good woman (says he) the Indians have fixed a lever under Lake Erie, and are going to turn it over and drown the world!' 'O, massy!—massy!—what shall I do?' and away she ran to tell her neighbours of the danger, and inquire of her minister how such calamity might be averted. 'Why (says he) you need not be alarmed—we have our Maker's promise that he will not again destroy the world by water.' 'I know that, (returned the old lady, hastily :) but he's nothing to do with it: it's them are plaguey old Indians!'

The Bar.—The bar is emphatically the school of eloquence, says a distinguished novelist. Let us present two or three examples.—'Behold him! see him! look at him, gentlemen of the jury!' exclaimed one of the legal fraternity in a moment of inspiration—'there he stands, walking about with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, trying to withdraw three oak trees out of my client's pocket.'

'Sir,' said another, 'a man who could do that, sir, must have a heart, sir—gem'men o' the jury—as black, sir,—as black, sir,—' (a by-stander saw his distress, and thrust out his hat towards him)—'as black, sir—as your hat, gem'men o' the jury.'

'She was youthful,' said a third, 'as love, beautiful as an angel, sir,—(it was on a petition for a divorce)—and virtuous, sir—as virtuous—as—as could be expected.'

Two gentlemen were breakfasting at a tavern, where there happened to be three boiled eggs on the table. To divide these equally, would have been much like making two bites of a cherry; and to divide them unequally, would have been unfair. Such being the state of the case, one of the gentlemen laid a plan for the monopoly.

'Are not those good eggs?' said D, as he saw T turning up his nose at one which he had just broken. 'They're no better than they ought to be,' replied T, with a shrug.

'If that's the case' said D, 'the d—I may eat them, for me!'

'Thank you, sir, I'll eat them for you,' returned T, as he coolly broke the remaining two upon his plate.

'What the deuce do you mean, sir?' exclaimed D, 'Did'nt you just tell me that they were bad eggs?'

'I said, they were no better than they ought to be,' replied T—'but I did'nt say they were not as good as they ought to be; and since you refused to touch them, I'll endeavour to make the best I can of them.'

Strict Interpretation.—John, said a gentleman the other day, I am going to church, and if, as it now has the appearance, it should rain, I wish you to come with the umbrella for me; however, you need not come unless it should 'rain down straight.' The gentleman went,—it did rain, but according to John's construction of his orders, it was not necessary, from the appearance of the rain, to go with the umbrella. While standing at the door, watching the weather, he was not a little astonished to see his master approaching the house with drenched garments, and a look of implacable anger. John! John! said the good man, why didn't you bring the umbrella? Because, replied John, it rained slanting.

March of Intellect.—At a meeting of a Ladies' Reading Society, not fifty miles from Boston, Catharine I. and Catharine II. was read thus:—Catharine one eye and Catharine two eyes!
