The Trenton

ACKNOWLEDGES NO COMPETITOR IN THE RACE FOR popular favor. To develop its perfect mechanism and superb results it has laid all known sources of scientific knowledge under contribution. It is beyond the criticism of its astute adversaries.

The Trenton

IS AN IMPERIAL LUMINARY, WHOSE ADVENT marks an era in the history of Lamps; a construction in scientific accord with the ascertained laws of combustion; a mechanism that unfolds itself to the toying fingers of a child, and with results that proclaim it a perfect species of its kind.

IT IS good to hear that at last * * * a serious concern for the beauty and appropriateness of public monuments is awakened in the public mind. * * * Foreign visitors judge the civilization and progress of a country more by its external decorations than by its intrinsic prosperity, and it must be confessed that, with some few notable exceptions, the alien accusation that in public building we aspire principally to size is not devoid of justice. The members of the association engaged in providing a monument to commemorate the victory of Washington and his Revolutionary troops over the British forces at the junction of Warren and Greene streets and Brunswick, Princeton and Pennington avenues, Trenton, New Jersey, appreciate the responsibility vested in them. Not only have they devoted a critical judgment to the designs submitted to them, but they have carefully studied and considered the various trophies of a similar character that have been erected elsewhere, and the resulting almost unanimous decision in favor of the proposal of John H. Duncan, the well-known architect of New York, promises a memorial worthy alike of the occasion it celebrates and the nation that gives substantial expression to it. The artist contemplates a column 135 feet in height, of the style known as Roman-Doric. It is to be constructed of pale polished granite, fluted for two-thirds of its length, and crowned by a colossal bronze statue of Washington in the uniform of a Continental officer, gazing through a glass, as he may have gazed upon the battle that actually was fought and won upon the very spot. The pedestal, partly of the same material as the shaft, partly of a darker-colored stone to give more apparent solidity to the base, will be appropriately guarded by the figures of two

Continental soldiers in their habits as they died for the independence of their country, and will be adapted within for the display of various relics of that stirring time, while without a bronze bas-relief on each face will exhibit various important details of the particular incident here immortalized. The western side will present the passing of the Delaware; the southern, the beginning of the action; the eastern, the triumphant ending; and the northern will relate in concise language the story pictorially related by its comrades. From the summit, accessible to the enterprising by a flight of iron stairs winding up the interior and lighted by electric lamps, a magnificent prospect will be obtained, extending, in clear weather, even as far as Philadelphia; and that "the good deeds" here signalized may shine unceasingly thirteen electric lights will shed their radiance into the surrounding darkness night after night, as by day the thirteen stars carved upon the capital will denote the original States of the Union. * * *

HISTORY OF THE ASSOCIATION.

ON THE fourth day of July, 1843, the Honorable Garret D. Wall wrote a very patriotic letter from Burlington to the New Jersey Society of the Cincinnati, which was in session that day at the Court House, in Trenton, urging them to appoint a committee to take immediate measures to erect "a monument to commemorate the victory gained by the Revolutionary army under the command of General Washington, at Trenton, on December 26, 1776." The Society appointed a committee for this object. General Wall was made chairman, and he called the committee together at Snowden's hotel, Trenton, on the 16th day of January, 1844. In the meantime a committee of the citizens of Trenton, consisting of Henry W. Green, Stacy G. Potts and Samuel R. Gummere, called a public meeting of the people of New Jersey, to be held at the State House, at Trenton, on September 6th, 1843, to take this subject into consideration. As the results of these meetings a charter was obtained for "The Trenton Monument Association," March 8, 1844. The gentlemen mentioned in the act of incorporation were among the most prominent in the state. Associated with General Wall were Ex-Governors Dickerson, Williamson, Vroom and Pennington, Chief Justice Hornblower and his successor, Hon. Henry W. Green, Commodore Stockton and Judge Stacy G. Potts. Very little appears to have been accomplished in this matter until, by the personal efforts and unwearied pen of Charles Chauncey Haven, Esq., of Trenton, in the winter of 1858-59, he succeeded in interesting a large number of prominent citizens of the state in this patriotic object. On March 8, 1859, the legislature of New Jersey passed a supplement to the original charter of the Association, which supplement changed the name to the "New Jersey Monument Association," and added as new incorporators to the act two gentlemen from each of the several counties of the state, with the exception of Mercer county, and from that county thirteen additional men were added to the Association. Acting under this statute, Commodore Stockton was elected president, Mr. Haven vice-president and general agent, Thomas S. Allinson, secretary, and Thomas J. Stryker, treasurer. Among the members of the Association may be mentioned William L. Dayton, Philemon Dickinson, Peter D. Vroom and Thomas J. Stryker, whose sons to-day have taken up the work of their fathers and are pushing it on to success. During the spring and summer of 1859 subscriptions amounting to more than $11,000 were obtained from the citizens of New Jersey, and about $750 of this amount was collected. On July 4, 1859, a meeting, followed by a dinner, took place at the hotel of Dr. Joline, in Trenton, for the purpose of taking measures to interest the people of the state. An address was printed and widely circulated August 12, 1859. In January, 1860, a design for the monument was adopted and two hundred and fifty lithographic prints thereof were issued. On May 25, 1860, another address was published, making an appeal for subscriptions, and on January 18, 1861, a memorial was addressed to the legislature asking for an appropriation. During all the years of the civil war the Association continued to hold annual meetings, and this continued until the death of Mr. Haven, who for so many years had worked enthusiastically for this object. The expense of these meetings, of printing and of the solicitors in travelling, appear to have entirely absorbed all the funds collected.

On May 7, 1884, a charter was obtained for "The Trenton Battle Monument Association," and the first meeting of the directors was held May 12th. At this meeting by-laws were adopted, officers elected and committees appointed. On December 28, 1886, the property at the junction of Pennington, Princeton and Brunswick avenues and Greene and Warren streets was ordered to be purchased. On April 14, 1887, the legislature of New Jersey passed an act making an appropriation of $15,000. On March 3, 1891, the congress of the United States passed a bill appropriating $30,000. On July 3, 1891, it was reported that the citizens of New Jersey had paid to the treasurer of the Association more than $15,000, which amount made both the state and government appropriations due and payable. At a meeting held in the State House, April 6, 1891, a design executed by Mr. John H. Duncan, of New York city, was adopted. On the afternoon of September 20th, 1891, the ground on which the monument is to be erected was broken by the directors of the Association, and the foundation was commenced October 22, 1891.

The movement which was started more than forty-eight years ago to erect a monument to commemorate the valor of the Continental army on the streets of Trenton on that cold December morning, is now about to become a success.

(Taken from Sunday Advertiser, Dec. 13th, 1891.)

“Since the Globe Warehouse enlisted in the ranks of Trenton merchants, some two-and-a-half years ago, their business has increased so largely that their clerical force is now more than twice its original size, and the stock, which they are obliged to keep on hand to supply their increasing trade, is so large as to seriously test the space in their four-story building. This is not only the case with their Trenton branch, but the same can be said of the other four branches, located at Scranton, Allentown, Pittston and Carbondale, Pa. The united clerical force of the five stores is nearly, or quite three hundred, while the services of four traveling salesmen are required to look after the wholesale end of the business. As the company are jobbers, as well as retailers, they are enabled to get their goods at a rate much lower than retail firms, who deal with a middleman, and the advantage of this reduction in price is given to the customer.”
