INTRODUCTION

This annual report on the Supervised Visitation Program (Program), is submitted by the New Jersey Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) to the Governor, the Legislature and the Chief Justice pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:12-11. The report covers the period of October 1, 2017 through September 30, 2018 and reflects data gathered from the county visitation programs that are overseen by the AOC.

In 1984, the Legislature enacted the Supervised Visitation Program (codified as N.J.S.A. 2A:12-7 et seq.), recognizing that “the inability of a parent to spend time with a child poses serious psychological problems to both the parent and child and prevents the growth of a normal, healthy relationship.” In creating this program, the Legislature sought to preserve the benefits of bonding between the child and the absent parent while ensuring the safety and welfare of the child.

Annually since 1997, the New Jersey Judiciary has received Federal Access and Visitation grant funds to maintain the Program. The grant funding is used for the establishment and/or continuation of local programs that support and facilitate non-custodial parents’ access to and visitation with their children. The funds are distributed to the counties to fund those local programs based on need and the number of litigants served. Twenty of the twenty-one counties participate in the funded program; while Bergen County does not, it does provide county-funded visitation services.

The Program offers both supervised visitation and neutral exchange services by identifying and arranging for safe facilities in local communities for visitations to take place and by enlisting volunteers to monitor these often-difficult visits. Neutral exchange services encompasses the supervision of the transfer of a child from one parent to another.

The Supervised Visitation Program is an important part of the New Jersey Judiciary’s effort to deliver effective services to children and parents.

SUPERVISED VISITATION STATISTICAL DATA

Client Information

The Supervised Visitation program provides services that support and facilitate noncustodial parent access to and time with their children. Many of the allowable services outlined in the statute involve the participation of both parents. As depicted in Chart A below, of the 1966 parties that received services during this period, noncustodial fathers and custodial mothers represent the largest groups served at 39 percent and 35 percent, respectively.

Chart A

Marital Status of Participants

Unmarried parents must often navigate multiple, and frequently overlapping, legal proceedings to resolve issues of child support and parenting time. The Supervised Visitation program can bridge this gap by providing a reasonable and affordable pathway for noncustodial parents seeking access to and parenting time with their children. As depicted in Chart B below, in the Supervised Visitation programs overseen by the Judiciary, 72 percent of parents were never married to the other parent.

Chart B

Self-Reported Race/Ethnicity

The majority of participating parents self-identify as belonging to one of three racial or ethnic groups: White, Black/African American, and Hispanic or Latino. Of the 966 parties that received services, the self-identifying data showed that 36% were white, 27% were Hispanic or Latino, and 26% were Black/African American. The remaining 11 percent of participants self-identified among the following racial groupings: American Indian, Alaska Native, Asian American, Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander, two or more races, or other/data not reported.

Chart C

Having both parents involved in the lives of their child(ren), positively affects their development. Programs designed to increase non-custodial contact, such as Supervised Visitation, provides valuable opportunities to increase the child's social, emotional and academic growth.

In support of this important program, the Judiciary will continue to maintain effective communication and interaction with internal and external stakeholders. Doing so is key to ensuring the existence and application of effective standardized practices throughout the state with a focus on fairness and quality service, as well as the ongoing availability of the visitation services.

I. Administration of the Program

The following is a description of the New Jersey Judiciary's Supervised Visitation Program.

A. Administrator

N.J.S.A. 2A:12-7 et seq. designates the Administrative Director of the Courts as the Administrator of the Program. The legislation sets forth the specific duties and responsibilities of the Administrator, which includes arranging for technical assistance to Program Coordinators in the counties.

B. State Coordinator

The State Coordinator of the Program, as part of the staff of the Administrative Office of the Courts, serves as the Program's statewide manager, ensuring its compliance with the legislation, Court Rules and the Procedures Manual. The State Coordinator also provides technical assistance to the counties.

C. County Coordinators

In each county, a Supervised Visitation Program County Coordinator (hereafter referred to as County Coordinator) manages the Program at the local (Superior Court) level, reviews all cases referred for program participation, schedules sites and volunteers to meet visitation schedules, and submits statistical data to the State Coordinator. The County Coordinator ensures that the screening, training, supervising, and managing of all staff and volunteers in the Program comply with approved standards. County Coordinators report matters specific to the Program to the Vicinage Family Division Manager. (Note: Bergen County is the only county that does not participate in the funded program. However, they also must report matters specific to the program to the Vicinage Family Division Manager.)

II. Community Involvement

The Program depends on the involvement of the community in providing this critically needed service, both in terms of volunteers and community sites.

A. Volunteers

Volunteers are a key component of the Program. Volunteers provide supervision not only during the day, but also during evenings and weekends so that visitation may occur at times convenient to the families. The volunteers serve as neutral observers, ensuring the safety of the child; they intervene only when necessary.

All volunteers must complete a training course before beginning supervision. The County Coordinators conduct the training under the oversight of and with technical assistance from the Administrative Office of the Courts.

B. Community Sites

Community sites make the Program possible by donating the use of their facilities for the visitations. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:12-7 et seq., the Administrative Director of the Courts must approve all external sites. Sites must be accessible, functional, comfortable, and safe.

III. How the Program Works

A. Referral by the Court to the County Coordinator

The court refers matters to the Program. Referral is appropriate in dissolution, non-dissolution or domestic violence cases where the court is concerned about the physical or emotional welfare of the child and after third-party supervision provisions have been exhausted. Additionally, domestic violence cases awaiting risk assessments may be referred to the Program.

B. Court Order

The court order should clearly state the duration of supervised visitation, the length of visits, the names of the individuals permitted to attend the visitation, and a date to return to court for determining whether supervision should continue.

C. Pre-Screening Interview

The County Coordinator conducts a comprehensive interview of both parties. The purpose of the interview is to gather information, and, if appropriate, to arrange a tentative schedule for the visitations. During the interview, the parties are provided a copy of the rules of visitation that will govern each session. In some instances, the interview may reveal issues of concern that call into question the suitability of the case for the Program. In those situations, the judge may reevaluate the matter.

D. Role of the observer in the visitation

Each visitation must include an observer. The observer can be a County Coordinator, court staff, or a volunteer. Their role is to serve as a neutral observer and to monitor closely the visitation, intervening on behalf of the child when necessary. The observer may terminate the visitation session if in the observer's judgement, the rules of the visitation are violated or if continuation of the visit is stressful to the child or threatening to the welfare of the child.

IV. Access and Visitation Grant

Since 1997, the New Jersey Judiciary has been the recipient of Federal Access and Visitation grant funds to sustain the Program. The grant requires the funds be used by the states to establish and/or continue programs to support and facilitate non-custodial parents' access to and visitation with their children. In FFY 2018, the New Jersey Judiciary received $207,836.00 in funds through the Federal Access and Visitation grant. These funds are allocated to the counties based on need and number of children and parents served.
