Governor Jon S. Corzine and
DCA Commissioner Susan Bass Levin

Dear Friends,

We are excited to bring you the 2005 New Jersey Historic Trust Annual Report. This year’s report describes the outstanding historic preservation projects that received funding through the Garden State Historic Preservation Trust Fund this past year, as well as profiles of completed projects that are now serving our communities in new ways – as museums, community centers and public buildings.

The New Jersey Historic Trust, a DCA affiliate, provides financial support through Capital Preservation and Historic Site Management Grants. Capital Preservation Grants fund “bricks and mortar” projects, while Historic Site Management Grants provide support to help organizations make better decisions about their historic structures. Since 1990, 454 preservation projects in 109 municipalities have received more than $96 million in grants.

The demand for historic preservation across New Jersey is stronger than ever. In 2005, the Trust awarded $1.3 million in matching grants to 40 historic preservation planning projects. The Trust also focused on special initiatives to develop heritage tourism and support the preservation of urban historic sites, and as a result was able to fund several model projects in both categories.

New Jersey’s historic treasures represent our past, present and future. Historic preservation can create jobs, generate income, stimulate tax revenue, nurture tourism and enhance older cities. Thank you for supporting historic preservation across New Jersey. Together, we can preserve the places that symbolize our past as we work toward a better tomorrow.

With regards,

Message from the New Jersey Historic Trust

Dear Friends,

The New Jersey Historic Trust is stronger than ever, thanks to its active board of trustees and a dedicated staff, which is administering two grant programs that awarded more than $1.4 million in grants during the 2005 year.

In the following pages you will view impressive lists of projects that have been completed in recent months, ranging from the preparation of preservation plans to the complex capital preservation and restoration of landmarks. Each one of those projects achieved a successful conclusion because of a partnership between the site’s administrator and the Historic Trust. In most cases, there were other investors and stakeholders who helped a project to reach its preservation goal.

In the past year, the Historic Trust also made great strides in establishing or building partnerships with other state agencies and nonprofit organizations outside the state system. Here are a few examples:

► Historic Trust coordinated its Capital Grants Cultural Trust Grant schedule with the New Jersey Cultural Trust, Historical Commission and Council on the Arts. The organizations presented three regional workshops, and had the same deadlines and review periods, which led to the approval of recommended grants by the Cultural Trust at its July board meeting.

► The Historic Trust helped fund, coordinate and host a day-long planning meeting involving 40 other organizations and individuals committed to historic preservation. The group helped to establish a Preservation Action Plan, based on the goals of the 2002 NJ Historic Preservation Plan.

► For the first time, the Historic Trust is a co-sponsor and member of the planning committee for the Historic Preservation Office’s annual conference, scheduled for May 12, 2006. The theme — heritage tourism — is a common interest of the two agencies.

► Staff members of the Historic Trust helped present Preservation New Jersey’s first ever one-day workshop for endangered historic sites. The event attracted a standing room only audience of advocates who learned about funding opportunities, raising awareness and support for historic properties, and utilizing state preservation protections and resources.

Message from the New Jersey Historic Trust

These achievements represent only a fraction of the cooperative activities in which the Trust staff and board is involved. The board members, in particular, are distinguished by their personal support for and interest in promoting good preservation practices in their own communities and across the state.

In the coming year, in addition to presenting two grant rounds, the Historic Trust will continue to work collaboratively with state agencies, nurture cooperative programming, and coordinate grant schedules and activities to best serve New Jersey’s residents and the historic preservation community. We thank you for your continued support of these efforts.

The Historic Trust Helps Put the Historic Preservation Plan into Action

In September, the New Jersey Historic Trust, the Historic Preservation Office and Preservation New Jersey reconvened representatives of the public-private partner organizations that developed the 2002-2007 New Jersey Historic Preservation Plan for a follow-up workshop. The purpose of the workshop was to assess progress made in implementing the plan and develop a focused agenda of five high-priority action items to pursue over the next two years.

These five initiatives have the potential to produce millions of dollars in private investment and state revenue, while preserving the heritage that makes New Jersey and its communities special places to live.

Action Items:

► New Jersey Community Reinvestment Act: Adopt a state tax incentive to stimulate private investment in historic buildings and communities, and use private investment as a catalyst for revitalizing New Jersey’s cities and towns.
► State Heritage Tourism Development Strategy: Create a state road-map to capitalize on the growing heritage tourism market.
► State Redevelopment Law Revision: Amend the state’s redevelopment law to require local governments to incorporate historic preservation into the redevelopment planning process and make New Jersey’s “smart growth” even smarter.
► User-Friendly Historic Asset Inventory: Develop a user-friendly inventory of New Jersey’s most valuable historic assets to inform and expedite public and private development decision-making.
► Garden State Historic Preservation Trust Fund Renewal: Extend this landmark fund for another decade to ensure the preservation of New Jersey’s rural landscapes and sensitive environmental resources and the preservation and enhancement of its historic assets and communities.

The Historic Trust believes that this agenda is critical to make historic preservation one of the state’s primary economic development strategies that can create jobs, generate income, stimulate tax revenue, nurture tourism and enhance older cities. The economic force that historic preservation adds to New Jersey’s economy is documented in Partners in Prosperity: the Economic Impact of Historic Preservation in New Jersey, a pioneering study commissioned by the Trust.
Building a Better Web Site –
the Historic Trust Reveals a New, User-Friendly Site

In December, the New Jersey Historic Trust launched its new web site, the first redesign of the site in five years. The goals of the new site are to:

- Offer users a variety of ways to access history – through tourism links and preservation opportunities for private property owners
- Showcase the many successful preservation projects that the Historic Trust has supported since 1990
- Provide potential applicants with easy access to grant information and downloadable applications

Heritage Tourism and Other Initiatives
Attract New Grant Applicants

In 2005, the Historic Trust outlined initiatives in its Historic Site Management Grant Application encouraging proposals for:

- Collaborative planning projects for multiple properties
- Urban preservation projects
- Initiatives to develop heritage tourism

Pleased by the response to the initiative, the Historic Trust awarded funds for several projects that may serve as shining examples for future preservation activities. Examples include:

- The South Jersey Tourism Corporation is coordinating a themed tour of three historic sites in the city of Camden.
- Catholic Charities is conducting a feasibility study of transforming a former convent located in New Brunswick into senior housing.

In Camden, tourists visit Walt Whitman’s final resting place as part of a guided tour of his life in the city.
Public Outreach Efforts Target New Audiences

The Historic Trust staff participated in new events in 2005 in an effort to reach new audiences for its grants programs and preservation opportunities.

- The Trust partnered with Preservation New Jersey for a special workshop in July for historic sites that were previously listed as ‘endangered’ properties in the state.
- Trust staff presented the New Jersey Legacies program and other incentives for private property owners at Restore Hunterdon event in September.
- The Historic Trust’s exhibit in the State House and Department of Community Affairs called attention to the celebration of Preservation Month in May.

In addition to these new initiatives, the Trust continued its tradition of presenting and exhibiting at Archives Day, the History Issues Convention, the Historic Preservation Office’s annual conference, Preservation New Jersey’s annual meeting, the New Jersey Historical Commission’s annual conference, New Jersey Cultural Trust’s applicant workshops, the New Jersey League of Municipalities annual conference, and the Department of Environmental Protection/Green Acres’ educational workshops.

The New Jersey Historic Trust Looks to the Future

In 2005, the Board of Trustees formed a strategic planning committee to begin to address the Trust’s future goals, plans and strategies. The committee continues its work into 2006. In addition, trustees will participate in a board retreat, and outside focus groups will help advise development of the Trust’s future funding programs.
In the 1990s, the New Jersey Historic Trust helped fund the restoration of the Essex County Courthouse in Newark with two grants totaling more than $2 million. In 2005, the National Trust for Historic Preservation presented the county with a prestigious National Preservation Honor Award, recognizing its meticulous 14-year restoration of the courthouse, one of the state’s most historically significant public buildings.

Designed by famous architect Cass Gilbert, the courthouse was completed in 1905. The five-story, marble-clad structure is graced by artwork from some of the best-known artists of the American Renaissance.

The restoration was undertaken in three phases, including space allocation, exterior renovation, and finally the interior restoration. The remarkable restoration of the building’s interior brought back breathtaking decorative elements. The Rotunda – one of the building’s most spectacular spaces – features massive stone piers ringed by staircases and open corridors, crowned by three Louis Comfort Tiffany-designed stained glass skylights in domes. Additionally, spaces graced with murals by such artists as Edwin H. Blashfield, Howard Pyle, Kenyon Cox, and Will Low were completely and painstakingly restored. Lastly, restoration of the building’s historic furniture – including original pieces designed by Cass Gilbert – enables visitors to fully experience the building as it was nearly 100 years ago, but with all of its modern improvements.
Completed Projects 2005

From October 1, 2004 to September 30, 2005, the Trust approved 69 reimbursement requests totaling nearly $4 million in support of preservation projects in the state.

The following 24 projects were closed last year and represent a public/private investment of more than $10.1 million.

Capital Preservation Grants
These grants help support the ‘bricks and mortar’ repair, preservation, restoration and adaptive use construction work necessary to maintain the historic property.

Defining the Type of Capital Preservation Project

Preservation – sustaining the existing form, integrity and materials of an historic property. Work, including preliminary measures to protect and stabilize the property, generally focuses on the maintenance and repair of historic materials and features rather than extensive replacement and new construction.
  • Example – Princeton University Chapel preserved its exterior masonry through repointing.

Restoration – accurately depicting the form, features, and character of a property as it appeared at a particular period of time by removing features from other periods in its history and reconstructing missing features from the original period.
  • Example – Jacobus Vanderveer House was restored to its 19th century appearance and will be interpreted as a house museum.

Rehabilitation – repairing a property for contemporary use while preserving portions and features of the building that are historically significant.
  • Example – Oakeside-Bloomfield’s carriage house was adapted to create flexible space for the cultural center’s programming, but the historic exterior appearance and many historic features were retained.

Christ Episcopal Church, New Brunswick in Middlesex County, received a $416,391 matching grant that helped support the exterior restoration of the church and parish house.

Cumberland County Courthouse, Bridgeton in Cumberland County, received a $260,127 matching grant in support of the restoration of its trademark cupola/clock tower.

Established in 1967, the New Jersey Historic Trust is the only nonprofit historic preservation organization in New Jersey created by state law. The Trust provides financial support, protection and technical assistance through six active programs:

The Garden State Historic Preservation Trust Fund guarantees funding through 2008, allowing the Trust to meeting New Jersey’s capital preservation needs. Since 2000, nearly $44 million has been awarded to help preserve 273 landmark properties. This program continues the significant funding of the Historic Preservation Bond Program (1987-1997), which provided more than $52 million in matching grants to 182 capital preservation projects.

The Cultural Trust Capital Preservation Grant Program awards funds to nonprofit history or humanity organizations for the stabilization, preservation and accessibility improvement projects at historic properties. This program is administered in cooperation with the New Jersey Cultural Trust.

The Historic Preservation Revolving Loan Fund provides long-term, low-interest loans for the acquisition, rehabilitation or restoration of historic properties.

The Emergency Grant and Loan Fund provides limited seed funds for critically needed work on endangered historic properties.

The Preservation Easement Program ensures the protection of privately owned historic properties in perpetuity, through the use of deed restrictions. Property owners may be eligible for charitable deduction tax benefits through this program.

The New Jersey Legacies Program encourages the donation of historic real estate to the Trust, and donors may realize significant income and estate tax benefits. Donated real estate is protected by historic preservation easements before resale.

“Applying for the Historic Site Management Grant offered by the New Jersey Historic Trust helped our organization organize the various aspects of the project, set priorities and focus on achievable goals.”
