STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
OFFICE OF THE QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL, }
TRENTON, October 31st, 1885.

To His Excellency Leon Abbett, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

An act for the "Organization of the National Guard of New Jersey," makes it the "duty of the Quartermaster-General to make an annual report to the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the number and condition of the arms and equipments belonging to the State. the number loaned out, in whose hands, and whether they remain under proper responsibilities, including in said return all camp and garrison equipage in his charge."

Agreeably thereto I have the honor to submit a report of the same, together with the most important transactions of this department for the year ending October 31st, 1885, with such remarks and recommendations as the demands of the service seem to require. Detailed statements of the daily operations will be found in the appendices under their appropriate heads. the issues of all ordnance stores, clothing, camp and garrison equipage, to the several organizations of the National Guard, and the receipts of the same from all sources of the State Arsenal during the past year, together with the stores on hand at the close of the present year.

The Quartermaster-General of the State is also Commissary-General, Paymaster-General and Chief of Ordnance. As Quartermaster-General he is required to provide clothing, camp and garrison equipage, quarters and transportation and Quartermaster's stores; as Commissary-General, subsistence in kind or cooked; as Paymaster-General, payment of troops and disbursements of money; and, as Chief of Ordnance, to provide and issue ordnance and ordnance stores, arms and ammunition. Supplies are obtained either by contract or in open market, whichever is to the best advantage of the State, or manufactured at the State Arsenal. Clothing is purchased by contract, awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, under rules and regulations for their proper inspection, and, if not in conformity to the contract and equal to samples, is rejected. Other supplies are purchased, when possible, by contract, but there are many articles which, from their nature and the exigencies of the service, cannot be contracted for. Besides we are not able to anticipate the requirements of the various organizations during the year. Such supplies are purchased in the open market for the lowest cash price.

ARMS.

The arms now in use in the National Guard, are the Springfield breech-loading rifles, caliber .45, received from the United States Government in the years 1874 and 1876. Some few improvements have been made in the manufacture and mechanism of these arms by the ordnance officers of the United States Army from time to time, the result of experience and experiment, but the arm is substantially the same, is made by the best skill and of the best material, and its accuracy, strength and durability have been thoroughly tested.

Upon the subject of arms, their use and care and their places of deposit, I shall repeat herewith some observations and recommendations contained in my last annual report, with a view to emphasizing what I then said, and impressing its importance upon the minds of the officers, and others having the charge of the arms.

Frequently officers are very dilatory in making the returns and in their giving the true condition and efficiency of the arms, and it is often found that a number of the arms at the close of the year are defective—parts broken or lost. It is very desirable, to secure efficiency in the arms, that all arms, when needing repairs, should be promptly returned to the Arsenal without notice, but with an invoice and bill of lading, showing from where and by whom returned, and the cause of their return.

This arm in some of its mechanism pertaining to all breech-loaders, is extremely delicate, and is seriously injured in accuracy and efficiency by improper handling and exposure to rust, after being exposed to weather, rains or dampness. Before being restored to the armory it should be taken apart and the several parts wiped dry and cleaned of rust and carefully oiled. The greatest injury is from non-use, and in not observing the foregoing suggestions as to care and cleaning and restoring after use. The arrangements made at the different armories are poor. Better armories should be provided by local authorities of the State, or the State should, by legislative enactment, appropriate sufficient money expressly designed for this object. Among the conditions required by the State, upon the application of uniformed companies to entitle them to draw arms and equipments, is the very important one that the "Quartermaster-General must first be satisfied that the corps is provided with a proper depository" for the State property. In this he must depend largely upon the assurance of the commandants that they have secured such depository, and that it is the best they can procure in their locality with the limited means they have for the payment of rentals and the construction of cases for arms and clothing. Their armories are usually their drill-rooms, often open to the public—the arms in open cases and exposed to the handling of curious visitors, dust and changes of atmosphere. This must necessarily result in a deterioration of the arms and the necessity of frequent cleaning and oiling.

The appropriation of five hundred dollars ($500) annually to each company is insufficient to meet the necessary and proper expenses incident to a company organization, payment of rentals and cases for clothing and equipments. The act of the Legislature, approved March 25th, 1884, authorized certain cities and towns to provide better accommodations for regiments. The provisions of this should be extended to towns and villages where companies are or may be located. It is believed that there is enough liberality and military spirit and enterprise to secure the erection, in many localities, of suitable armories and drill-rooms for the use of the National Guard. The First and Fifth Regiments, at Newark, are well provided for in this respect by the city authorities, and Companies B, C and D, of the Sixth Regiment, at Camden, have been recently provided with good quarters by an appropriation under the act of the Legislature approved April 15th, 1884. The policy in other States in the matter of providing armories for their National Guard has been extremely liberal, and they have made large appropriations for the erection of commodious and excellent quarters, and no expenditure can be more wisely made to encourage and foster a military spirit among our people than the erection of suitable and pleasant quarters for our military organizations. It furnishes a pleasant resort where the evenings of young men can be profitably spent in drills, and in the discussion of and instruction in military affairs.

AMMUNITION.

Ammunition used by the National Guard is manufactured at the State Arsenal, the machinery for which purpose was bought and set up in 1880. The primers and shells are purchased.

The bullets are made at the arsenal and can be produced, if necessary, at the rate of twenty-five thousand (25,000) per day. In the manufacture of ammunition great care has to be exercised in two directions; one, in order to secure uniformity of weight of powder and bullet, in order to obtain accurate and certain results, the other to prevent the possibility of any accident dangerous to life or limb, from accidental explosion from improper or careless handling. In the former particular the employes engaged in the work have, after nearly six years' experience, attained great skill and proficiency in the art, and it is believed, by those competent to judge, that our ammunition is equal, if not superior, to any manufactured by the government, or by any of the private parties engaged in this business. Certain it is that our marksmen, with our own ammunition, when brought in competition with the marksmen from other States, have held their own, and in one instance excelled their opponents. In the latter particular of manufacture we have been very fortunate in having, so far, escaped any serious accident; in fact, but one slight accident has occurred in the six years—the burning of a man's hand by the explosion of one cartridge-charge of powder. The man was able, in a few weeks, to resume his work with complete use of his hand. With our present force of men and facilities we can turn out daily about six thousand (6,000) rounds of ammunition.

The supply held on hand is never very large, from the fact that it deteriorates with age and the best results are obtained from freshly-made ammunition. The chemical action of the powder and grease used in the charge, producing verdigris, is found to be detrimental to the shells, but if cleaned off soon after forming, the effect is very slight. Shells can be re-loaded a number of times, sometimes as often as twenty times, without destroying them.

The importance of turning in shells immediately after firing has been from time to time brought to the attention of officers, and is again respectfully urged.

RECEIPTS FROM THE UNITED STATES.

There were received from the United States during the year, on account of the quota due this State for arming and equipping the militia, the following:

- 30 pistols (revolvers), B. L., cal. .45, model 1882.
- 30 pistol holsters for do.
- 3,000 metallic cartridges, cal. .45, for do.

The foregoing were drawn for the equipment of the howitzer batteries attached to the First and Fifth Regiments in Newark.

The balance standing to the credit of this State on account of the above-named quota is $10,196.78.

Some discussion of and recommendations to your Excellency upon the subject of the account of quota with the United States, seems particularly timely and appropriate at this time. You will recall, from a statement furnished you, that the Act of Congress of April 23d, 1808, made an annual appropriation of $200,000, "for the purpose of providing arms and equipments for the whole body of the militia." And it is under this act that from time to time this Department is enabled to draw certain supplies from the United States upon the requisition of your Excellency. In my last annual report I called your attention to a bill before Congress increasing this annual appropriation from two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) to six hundred thousand dollars ($600,000), and broadening the range of articles to be supplied.

This law passed the United States Senate last winter, and after a report in its favor to the House of Representatives failed to be acted upon before the close of the session. Brigadier-General Sewell, Senator in Congress from this State, will introduce this measure at the approaching session, and it is earnestly hoped that it will become a law. I trust that you will impress its importance as strongly as you are able upon both our Senators and Representatives in Congress, that by concerted action the bill, with certain amendments as to the rights of the States in the absolute ownership of the property when issued, may be brought to a final and successful issue. The sentiments of a majority of the members are in favor of it, and the arguments in its favor are many and strong. In the language of the committee's report "that an appropriation fixed in 1808 to provide for seventeen (17) States with a population of eight (8) millions is inadequate to provide for thirty-eight (38) States with a population of over fifty (50) millions, needs no argument," we find a most convincing argument. Another matter in this same connection seems likely to come up in Congress at an early day, of importance to militia. General Drum, Adjutant-General of the United States Army, in his annual report to the Secretary of War invites attention to the subject of the obsolete arms and ammunition in the hands of the State militia, or stored in the several State armories. "It would," he says, "seem a most wise measure if, at the approaching session of Congress, a general act was passed providing for immediate exchange when requested, of all obsolete arms now in the hands of the militia of the several States for improved Springfield rifles, cal. .45, and appropriate ammunition therefor." This provision, if it shall become a law, will in the near future meet an urgent need of the service, that of supplying new and improved arms to take the place of those now in use. We have in the State Arsenal at the present time about ten thousand (10,000) stands of obsolete arms of the models of 1855 and 1861, and more than two hundred thousand (200,000) rounds of ammunition for the same, purchased by the State in 1862 and 1863 from the Government contractors. In such an exchange as General Drum urges, the State would not, in a period of sixty years, with the present force, require to buy an arm, unless in the case of the emergency of war. The money value of the annual quota of this State payable in arms by the United States under the act of 1808, is four thousand one hundred and seventy-six dollars and thirty-four cents ($4,176.34), and the money value of the arms now in the possession of the National Guard is over sixty thousand dollars ($60,000). It will be observed that to pay for these arms it consumed the accumulation of some fifteen years, the result of an economical policy, and it is worthy of note here to observe that this State was the first in the Union that drew and was able to pay for, by a credit of quota, the new improved Springfield rifle. After nearly thirteen years of service these arms are in fair condition for service, yet they by no means possess the beauty and finish of new ones. Valuable improvements have been made in the arm. These we have applied to our arms as far as practicable and our limited means would permit; yet the time is not far distant when the service will require, in order to keep pace with the improvements of the age, the newest and latest magazine or other system of improved arm. The life of a rifle with reasonable care is about twenty years, without regard to the improvements by new inventions. This will require a large expenditure, and it is feared too large to be incurred at the expense of the State, in addition to the necessary and proper expenditures for the support and maintenance of the Guard at its present numerical strength. The recommendations of the Adjutant-General of the Army, if they result in placing such a law upon the statute books, will enable us to re-arm by the exchange suggested. Otherwise, if not in this way or at the direct expense of the State, it will require at the present rate of quota the accumulation of at least fifteen (15) years to accomplish the re-arming, and by that time our present rifles would be quite out of date and unserviceable, which economy or accumulation of quota will not permit of our using any portion of it for other very necessary purposes and demands of the service as they arise. I bring these matters to your Excellency's attention in order that you and our Representatives in Congress may be acquainted officially with the needs of our service, and the efforts which the friends of the militia system generally, are making to foster and encourage the same by governmental assistance, and to impress, if I may be able, its importance.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

The National Guard now consists of fifty-three (53) companies; fifty-one (51) companies of Infantry and two (2) Gatling Gun Companies, an increase of one company since my last annual report. The new Company F of the Third Regiment, stationed at Rahway, was mustered in during the year and uniformed, armed and equipped according to law. This company was organized to take the place of a disbanded organization stationed at that place. The entire National Guard is armed with the United States standard arm, the Springfield rifle, breech-loading, caliber .45, and accoutred with the United States regulation accoutrements, waist-belt, cartridge-box and bayonet-scarabard—the most approved arms and accoutrements complete, convenient and serviceable known to military science. These accoutrements are manufactured by the United States at the Watervliet Arsenal, West Troy, New York, and issued on account of quota, this State furnishing the metal parts, waist-belt and cartridge-box plates and bayonet-scarabard attachments, with the letters "N. J." in brass instead of "U. S.," to distinguish them as State regulation. In the matter of uniforms provided for under the act approved March 10th, 1880, it is very gratifying to know that, with the exception of Gatling Gun Company A, which still appears in the Zouave uniform, the Guard is uniformed throughout with the New Jersey regulation uniform, according to the regulations adopted by the State Military Board.

The National Guard is in splendid condition, so far as clothing and equipment is concerned, and ready for any duty, however emergent, that might be required of it at the shortest notice.

The past year has been one of unprecedented activity, the calls to duty more frequent than in any previous year, and the demands upon this department have been greater, entailing increased labor upon every officer and employe, and several times so great as to necessitate the calling in of additional assistance of officers and men. It is due to these, both of the regular corps as well as those called in to assist them, to say that every effort was made cheerfully and promptly, night and day, to carry out my wishes and orders. Some idea will be obtained of what these demands were when I enumerate the extraordinary occasions of duty, not including the parades, drills and inspections authorized by law, which latter have been greater in number than in any previous year.

The unveiling of the Monmouth Battle Monument at Freehold, in November; the obsequies of Major-General Gershom Mott, in December; the obsequies of General U. S. Grant in New York, in August, upon which occasion the entire National Guard, for the first time in its history, was called out together; and the encampment of the First Brigade at Sea Girt, New Jersey, in August, were occasions of more than ordinary effort, and in two instances there was very limited time to arrange and carry out a certain programme. These events will be treated of more in detail under their appropriate heads.

The National Guard is composed in the main of excellent material and is improving every year, both in personnel, as the State holds out inducements, by a liberal policy and treatment, to young men to connect themselves with it, and in discipline and efficiency by the frequent military exercises to which the field and staff, line, and rank and file are called. I look for still further improvement in these particulars, and the one week of the annual encampment is the greatest possible advantage in this direction.

SAPPERS AND MINERS CORPS.

At the suggestion of Major-General Plume, when Commandant of the First Brigade, that some more effective provision be made for the suppression of street riots and the breaking of street barricades, and after presenting his views to the State Military Board, a resolution was adopted requiring the Quartermaster-General to furnish four (4) 3-inch breech-loading boat howitzers, with certain appliances for removing barricades, which after some difficulty and delay he has been able to obtain from the War Department, the cost of the guns amounting six thousand nine hundred and forty-nine dollars and twenty-nine cents ($6,949.29), chargeable to the account of the quota due this State from the United States. The resolution also provides that each brigade shall be furnished with two howitzers and the apparatus for operating against barricades. Two of these howitzers have been issued to the 1st and 5th Regiments of the 1st Brigade, and gun squads, and Sappers and Miners Corps have been organized in these two organizations. After receiving the suggestions and opinions of competent authorities on the subject of the implements and appliances effective in the suppression of street riots and the breaking of street barricades, there are now being prepared at the State Arsenal an outfit, the result of these investigations, which it is confidently expected will meet the requirements of such emergencies whenever they arise.

There are six sets of appliances, designed for six organizations, each consisting of the following :

One (1) two-wheeled hand-cart, made to contain the following appliances :

- Six (6) firemen's axes, or picks and axes combined.
- Six (6) shovels.
- Two (2) crowbars.
- Two (2) drag-ropes, fifty feet each, with hooks.
- One (1) battering-ram.
- Two (2) scaling ladders.
- Two (2) pairs cutting pliers.
- Six (6) bull's-eye lanterns.
- Six (6) large lanterns with brass guards.

These will be completed and issued, within the next thirty days, to certain organizations to be designated hereafter.

All arms reported as being in an unserviceable condition, have been ordered returned to the State arsenal for the necessary repairs. All have been repaired and returned to the organizations from which they came. The importance of promptly turning in all arms whenever they need repairs cannot be urged too strongly.

UNIFORMS.

As has been stated elsewhere in my report, the entire National Guard has been supplied under the act approved March 10th, 1880, with the State regulation uniform, and in most instances the companies have now drawn all the uniforms to which under the law they are entitled. These issues have been made from time to time as the service required, and covering as it does a period of nearly six years, have been paid for without any heavy annual drafts upon the State Treasury. To make clear what I shall submit herewith to your Excellency for your consideration, the times at which these issues of uniforms by regiments were made, are as follow:

August and September,	1880,	Third Regiment,	Second Brigade.
May	"	1880, Sixth	" " "
September,		1880, Seventh	" " "
June,		1881, First	" First "
July,		1881, Fifth	" " "
October,		1881, First Battalion,	" " "
January,		1882, Second	" " "
October,		1883, Fourth Regiment,	" " "
May,		1884, Ninth	" " "
"		1884, Gatling Gun Co. B,	Second "

Under the present law no provision is made for any supply of uniforms to take the place of these when they are worn out and unserviceable. The Regiments having, as stated above, drawn nearly all the uniforms to which they are entitled, there will come a time, and that soon in some instances, when it will be impossible to turn out full companies in good shape, owing to the worn-out condition of uniforms. The life of a uniform or the time during which, with ordinary and reasonable care, it will be not only serviceable but presentable, I would estimate at about six years, based upon the annual service now demanded of them. It will be observed that the Third, Sixth and Seventh Regiments were uniformed in the summer of 1880. It will therefore become necessary to make some provision to replace these uniforms when they are no longer fit for use.

The law of 1880 has been found by experience to meet all the requirements of the case, by the provisions of which it will be recalled that the State pays one-half the cost of uniforms, the other one-half being deducted, one-quarter each year, for two successive years, from the annual appropriation of each organization so supplied with uniforms.

I would respectfully recommend that some new legislation be secured or the old law re-enacted to enable this department to supply uniforms at some future date to take the place of the present service uniforms as the same become worn out and unserviceable; and I would suggest that some time be fixed as the minimum of the time within which each organization can be re-uniformed, after which date placing it within the power and decision of the State Military Board to determine whether or not an organization so applying need to be furnished with new uniforms. Let this time be fixed at not more than once in every five or six years, and leaving the matter then as discretionary with the State Military Board, by and with the consent and approval of your Excellency. I feel sure that no abuse would be possible and that no extravagance could be charged. This question of uniforms is an important one, and manifestly there will come a time when a new supply will be necessary. It is to provide against this exigency that legislation is needed, which, with the limitation of time suggested, will insure the re-uniforming of the Guard at the same or longer intervals of time than the original issue. I feel the importance of bringing this matter to your Excellency's attention, in order that provision may be made in time to meet the issue when it comes and to promptly fill the requirements of the service as they shall arise. The amount of the annual appropriation to each military organization is inadequate to meet their necessary and proper expenditures and whole cost of the uniforms.

The following statement shows the number of new State regulation uniforms issued to the National Guard during the year, under the act approved March 10th, 1880.

LOCATION OF THE ENCAMPMENT.

In locating the Camp for the First Brigade it was desirable, on account of expense, to retain the property at Manasquan occupied as such by the Second Brigade in the summer of 1884, where the mess halls, cook-sheds, &c. were left standing, with that object in view, and were in good condition for use. We had sought and obtained the refusal of a portion of this property from its owner, Captain Bailey, as well as the Jackson Farm, upon which the rifle range was located, but that part of the property adjoining the railroad, containing about eight (8) acres, owned by Captain Curtis, we could not rent at any price. From its location and frontage, it was absolutely necessary to furnish room for the First Brigade, and for the purposes of a store-house and convenience of transportation, as the siding built by the Central Railroad Company, for our accommodation, was located upon it. The owner understood its importance and necessity to us and expected to extort a large amount for its use. A very liberal offer was made to him, being four times the amount paid to him for its use in 1884, but the same was declined. Generals Plume and Steele were consulted, as to whether the Bailey farm was sufficient in extent to properly accommodate the First Brigade. They visited the property and although admitting that it was admirably located, and possessed advantages and requisites that could not easily be obtained elsewhere, they decided that it was insufficient in extent, having only a frontage of about fifteen hundred (1,500) feet, the Brigade requiring at least two thousand (2,000) feet. We then visited the farm at Sea Girt belonging to the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company, containing about one hundred (100) acres, and having a frontage of over three thousand (3,000) feet. The owners expressed a willingness to rent the property for a term of five or ten years at an annual rental of three thousand dollars ($3,000), with the right of the State to purchase the same within one year from July 1st, 1885. The farm then being occupied by a tenant, his lease running until April 1st, 1886, his assent thereto was required. He agreed to give us possession on the 15th of July, and permit us to use the same for an Encampment and rifle range during his term for the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), he reserving the right to the joint occupancy of the property and the growing crops, and any other use which would not interfere or conflict with our requirements. After mature consideration and consultation with your Excellency, and all the general officers of the State, and several of the field and line officers, as well as other military men, who all concurred in my views, that the location was admirable, the soil of an excellent quality, and the water tested and approved by competent medical men, healthful and free from all impurities, and expressing a great desire that this property should be secured, if not in fee, at least for a term of years: I was therefore constrained to accept these propositions, subject, however, to your Excellency's approval, which upon presentation to you were duly approved, for the present year only, reserving the question of permanency, or a lease for a term of years, for future consideration.

ENCAMPMENT—CAMP LEON ABBETT.

Acting under orders of your Excellency, work was commenced July 15th, 1885, in the construction of a camp, upon the ground selected at Sea Girt, as above indicated. After the growing crops had been harvested by the tenant, much labor was required to clear up the land, cut away hedges, take down certain lines of fencing, grade the ground preparatory to the erection of the buildings and the pitching of tents. The buildings remaining at Manasquan, two mess-halls, kitchens and stabling, were carefully taken down and the lumber of which they were constructed was removed to Sea Girt, and utilized as far as possible in the new construction of the necessary mess-halls, store-houses, officers' mess-halls, kitchens, stabling, &c., &c. It was necessary to build, and there was built, one mess-hall for each regimental organization, four in number, and one mess-hall for the two battalion organizations, a total of five, each with a seating capacity of three hundred and fifty. Tables were constructed for each as follows: Three rough pine boards, sixteen (16) feet long and twelve (12) inches wide were battened together and trusses were made upon which they were rested and to which they were screwed. Rough benches were put together and set up along the line of the tables. Attached to each mess-hall there was constructed a shed kitchen and store-house. The necessary stoves, cooking utensils and general mess furniture were placed in each kitchen, and table ware, cups, plates, knives, forks, spoons, &c., &c., were provided and issued. Each organization also was furnished with a mess-hall and kitchen for each officer's mess. A large amount of lumber was necessarily consumed in this work, and much of the work is of so good a character that it may be used for several years for such purposes. In the construction of the camp there were used about twelve hundred of the different tents, hospital, wall, Sibley and common tents, and besides a large number of wall tents flys were utilized for roofing of mess-halls, both regimental and officers. The camp was laid out according to regulations and was especially designed to accommodate the First Brigade, consisting of the First, Fourth, Fifth and Ninth Regiments and the First and Second Battalions and Gatling Gun Company A, with a capacity of about eighteen hundred men, rank and file. Headquarters were erected for your Excellency and staff and the Brigadier-General and staff.

In the matter of the subsistence of the troops the plan adopted was that suggested by Major-General Plume, to relieve the rank and file from this drudgery of the cooking of camp life, and was found to work admirably. Rations were issued from the Post Commissary in kind and was the standard of the United States Army as to variety and quantities, with the addition of the vegetables and fruits of the season. Cooks and waiters were hired by each regiment, and paid for in part by the allowances fixed by your Excellency, the balance coming out of the regimental fund, and it devolved upon the regimental quartermasters to see that the men were provided with food, properly cooked and served. The duties of the corps of regimental quartermasters were laborious and well performed by them. Provisions of all kinds were issued upon requisitions by the Post Commissary, based upon the number of men present in camp as a limit, and with due regard to any surplus unused of the previous issues.

In this particular the utmost economy consistent with a proper amount to meet the necessary consumption was exercised by the Post Commissary, a man of special qualifications for the position. There was no complaint made during the entire encampment as to the quantity or quality of the food.

Supplies were obtained by contract. Advertisements for proposals were published in all the daily papers of Trenton and the weekly papers of Freehold, Asbury Park and Manasquan, and contracts were awarded to the lowest responsible bidders as follows:

William Dolton & Co., Trenton, provisions.
D. P. Forst & Co., Trenton, provisions.
John Taylor & Co., Trenton, fresh beef.
Star Delaware Coal and Ice Co., Trenton, ice.
Matlack & Brother, Chambersburg, fresh bread.
John L. Pierce, Manasquan, fresh vegetables.
John L. Pierce, Manasquan, potatoes.
T. T. Morris, Point Pleasant, milk.

In the matter of the contract for the groceries and provisions in the bids of two firms, D. P. Forst & Co. and William Dolton & Co., of Trenton, the prices were so close as to make it undeterminable really as to the lowest. Consequently, after consultation with and the approval of your Excellency, it was decided to divide the contract, which was accordingly done. The contractors all filled their contracts to the satisfaction of this department.

The sanitary arrangements of the camp were attended to with great care, and in this matter I am greatly indebted to Lieutenant-Colonel John D. McGill, Brigade Surgeon, for many valuable suggestions. A brigade hospital, consisting of three hospital tents, lapelled together, were erected and furnished with all the necessary cots, blankets, &c. Very little sickness of any kind occurred—the camp proving unexceptionally healthy—due no doubt to the exceedingly good weather, which was mild and fair during the whole week. Bath-houses were erected on the beach and bathing suits purchased, and the management of it was controlled by this department. The services of Captain Curtis, an experienced bather, were secured, and it is believed the arrangements gave entire satisfaction, giving to the men an opportunity to bathe in the ocean, and controlling it with surf boats and other appliances, to prevent any accidents.

The water supply for drinking and cooking purposes was obtained from about forty (40) driven wells located at convenient points, was pure and wholesome, having been tested by Colonel Welling, Division Surgeon, and pronounced excellent and abundant.

The Camp was lighted by seventy-five (75) oil torches or lamps. This illumination was given out by contract during the Encampment of 1884, and was so badly managed and expensive that it was determined to have it done by our own men, under the direction of officers of this department, which was done with very satisfactory results, and at a reduced cost.

Sinks were located in the rear of the Camp, fresh earth, carbolate of lime and other disinfectants were applied daily. All refuse from kitchens, &c., was carried away every night and morning. A water wagon was employed to wet the roads and keep down the dust. In every respect the effort was made to keep the Camp in the best possible condition, an undertaking of no small labor.

In the construction of the Camp the greatest care was taken to have the work done well and in the most economical manner. This Department was always represented on the ground by myself, or the Assistant Quartermaster-General.

I am greatly indebted in this particular to the intelligent and thoughtful care and untiring energy of Captain John Mackechney, superintendent of construction.

The old Rifle Range being so remote and inconvenient of access, it was decided by your Excellency, and you directed me to build a new one upon the property, which was accordingly done. The reason for this was the desire to avoid the long and hard march which would have been required of the men in going to and returning from the old range. In the construction of this range it was necessary to clear off and level a strip of land about fifteen hundred (1,500) feet long and two hundred (200) feet wide. The land was covered with cedar trees from ten to twenty feet high, and a thick, almost impenetrable under-brush. A gang of men from the railroad, under a division foreman, was secured for this work, on account of their knowledge and experience of the character of the work. A new set of butts and Bonnett patent targets were erected and proved to be all that could be desired.

The buildings erected and the range built were of a more permanent character than was necessary for an occupancy of one year, with a view to future use. The camp was completed, the supplies on the ground, and everything in readiness on the 15th day of August, upon which day the First Brigade came into camp. The camp was a complete success, the largest, the best ordered, the best supplied, and the best results obtained in drill, discipline and knowledge of camp life and rifle practice of any previous one held in this State. The grounds, the formation of the camp for convenience and comfort—in fact everything which goes to make up a success in every respect, was admired by all and very highly commended by the many prominent military men from this and other States who visited it. The location was found by the experience of the same to be unexceptionally fine and to meet more completely all the requirements of a camp than any location heretofore tried. The men, the officers, the public who saw it, all united to praise it. The troops were occupied constantly from early in the morning in drills and other military exercises of one kind and another, until late in the evening. The military display at Brigade dress parade and the general reviews was unprecedentedly fine in the National Guard of this State, and would be very creditable to any State or nation. After the troops left camp the material on the ground was collected and removed by cars to the State Arsenal, to be repaired and cleaned and otherwise made ready for further use. It is a matter of great satisfaction to me to be able to report to your Excellency that the losses and damages to the State property, camp and garrison equipage, were less than in any previous encampment.

The Rifle Range was dismantled, on or about September 20th, after the completion of its use by the Second Brigade for rifle practice; and the materials, targets, frames, &c., stored in the Quartermaster's store-house on the ground.

One of the fields, occupied only in part by the camp, upon which this year had been grown a crop of grain, was covered with a heavy grain stubble and was very rough. This field has been plowed and rolled and sown with grass seed, not having had any grass on it for some years, and the seed is reported to be growing finely. It is hoped that this field next year will have upon it as fine a sod as the others.

The Brigade and Regimental Quartermasters were: Major Clarence S. Steele, First Brigade; Lieutenant George W. Church, First Regiment; Lieutenant Alvin H. Graff, Fourth Regiment; Captain Washington R. Russell, Fifth Regiment; Lieutenant Edward W. Danforth, Ninth Regiment; Lieutenant John H. Hindle, First Battalion; Lieutenant Michael S. Vreeland, Second Battalion. All these officers performed their laborious duties with unexceptional zeal and ability. They are especially entitled to the thanks of this Department for their care and vigilance in the use and their promptness in the return of the State property issued to them, without any material loss; in fact, with a smaller quota of loss than in any former encampment. Diligence and promptness in these particulars are especially enjoined on officers.

This Department consisted of the Assistant Quartermaster-General as Post Quartermaster and Commissary; Major James S. Yard, Deputy Quartermaster, Acting Post Quartermaster; Lieutenant George G. Felton, Quartermaster Sixth Regiment National Guard, Acting Post Commissary, with Captain De Lancey G. Walker, Sixth Regiment, and Private Walter D. Green, Seventh Regiment, as Assistants to the two last-named officers.

It is with great pleasure that I commend these gentlemen for faithfully and intelligently carrying out my views and wishes, and for their thorough and economical services on this occasion.

A brief report from Major Yard will be found in the appendix.

DRILLS AND PARADES.

The more important assemblages of the National Guard since my last annual report may be briefly mentioned as follows: The First, Third, Fourth and Seventh Regiments, and Gatling Gun Company B, paraded at Freehold as a Provisional Brigade under command of Brevet Major-General Sewell on the occasion of the unveiling of the Monmouth Battle Monument at that place, November 13th, 1884. On December 3d, 1884, less than three weeks after the above-mentioned parade, a Provisional Battalion, consisting of nine companies, one from each organization of the National Guard, was hastily summoned to Trenton by order of your Excellency and placed under command of Colonel (now Brigadier-General) Dudley S. Steele, as a funeral escort to pay the last sad honors to the memory of Major-General Gershom Mott, whose death in the street in New York City, November 29th, 1884, almost tragic in its suddenness, was lamented by all.

The annual inspection of the First Brigade, consisting of the First, Fourth, Fifth and Ninth Regiments, and First and Second Battalions, took place at Paterson, May 30th, 1885.

The inspection of the Second Brigade was made by regiments, as follows: The Third Regiment, at Long Branch, May 30th. The Sixth Regiment at Vineland, May 19th. The Seventh Regiment at Freehold, May 22d, and Gatling Gun Company B, at Camden, June 4th.

By order of your Excellency, the entire National Guard, consisting of the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Regiments, and First and Second Battalions, infantry, and Gatling Gun Companies A and B, under command of Major-General Joseph W. Plume, paraded in New York city, August 8th, as part of the military escort on the occasion of the obsequies of General U. S. Grant, and with the Governor and Staff, ex-Governors and State officers, and the Department of New Jersey Grand Army of the Republic, which was furnished with transportation by express order of your Excellency, to enable the veterans from all parts of the State to pay their last tribute of respect to their dead comrade, was a splendid testimonial on the part of New Jersey to the worth of a great soldier.

The First Brigade, under command of Brigadier-General Dudley S. Steele, experienced the more active and arduous duties of a soldier's life at Camp Leon Abbett, Sea Girt, New Jersey, from August 15th to 22d inclusively, a more detailed account of which appears under the appropriate headings, and to which your attention is respectfully called.

From September 3d to 12th, inclusive, the new Range at Sea Girt was occupied daily by the Second Brigade, by wings or detachments, for instruction in rifle practice.

Altogether, the year has been one of great activity, and has involved much labor and responsibility upon this Department in consequence.

UNVEILING OF THE MONMOUTH BATTLE MONUMENT.

On the 13th of November, 1884, a Provisional Brigade was assembled under the orders of your Excellency, at Freehold, New Jersey, to take part in the unveiling of the Monument in commemoration of the Battle of Monmouth. This Department was called upon on that occasion to supply the necessary facilities of transportation, overcoats and one cooked ration. There being no hall or public buildings or number of public buildings available for the subsisting of such a number of men in the town, it was decided, with your Excellency's approval, to take down and remove to Freehold, and erect there mess-halls from the old camp ground at Manasquan, which was accordingly done. An experiment was made in that the subsisting of the men was given out by contract to a responsible party, not the lowest bidder in this case. The contract, based upon a fixed list of articles and quantities to be supplied, was awarded to Mr. W. E. Gilbert, of Trenton, and every assistance was given him by this Department in the fulfillment of his contract. His reputation in this city as a man and a caterer was thoroughly good, and it was confidently expected that he would carry out his duty successfully and acceptably. The experiment was a lamentable failure, due in my mind to several reasons, partly to improper management on his part, but mainly to a lack of discipline and riotous conduct on the part of some of the enlisted men. The quantity of food was more than ample and its quality excellent, as I personally ascertained about an hour before the time fixed for the meal by a visit to the mess-halls and kitchens. The necessity of a commandant there, as well as on parade or in action, was proven, and the success of the ration served under the strict military discipline of an officer of this Department on the occasion of the obsequies of General Mott, demonstrated that that was the only way to serve a ration with any certainty of success. With my consent the contract system in this particular will never again be tried under my administration of this Department, having tried it three times in 1862. Each time it was an entire failure, the last time being nearest to success. My judgment in the matter upon this occasion was overruled by the advice of others, with the result indicated. From a military standpoint the display was very creditable; the men presented a very soldierly appearance in heavy marching order with the new regulation overcoats. The usual salutes were fired by a detail from the State Arsenal, and the day as a whole was a decided success and memorable in the history of the State and National Guard.

OBSEQUIES OF MAJOR-GENERAL GERSHOM MOTT.

The death of a man so eminent for his military qualities, so honorable and high-minded as a man and gentleman, whose record in the wars with Mexico and for the preservation of the Union was so widely known and appreciated, whose services to his State, both as a public officer and a member of and commandant of the National Guard, were so long, able and faithful, seemed to your Excellency to demand some public recognition. Orders were accordingly given to assemble a Provisional Battalion in Trenton, on December 3d, 1884, to do fitting and appropriate honor to the illustrious dead.

This Department issued overcoats to the men, owing to the inclement season of the year; made special arrangements for transportation with the railroad companies, and furnished, under the immediate and personal direction of the Assistant Quartermaster-General, one cooked ration at twelve o'clock noon on that day. A hall was hired, cooks and waiters obtained, temporary tables put up, with a seating capacity of about seven hundred. Camp stools were brought from the Arsenal sufficient to seat each man. In spite of the short time for preparation, thirty-six hours, every detail so far as this Department was concerned was carried out successfully and promptly.

Before closing this portion of my report, I desire to bear my humble testimony to the character and worth of General Mott, having known him and been connected with him officially and socially very closely for more than forty years. His sterling honesty, his brave manhood, his eminent intelligence, and his excellent judgment were qualities in him which commanded the respect of all who knew him, and to him I owe many obligations for valuable suggestions and assistance in the discharge of my official duties. His loss I deeply feel as a friend and brother, and as an officer I shall ever miss his kindly aid and encouragement. In him the National Guard has lost a stanch friend and an eminent example and commander.

OBSEQUIES OF GENERAL U. S. GRANT.

In New York City, on the eighth day of August last, all that was mortal of this great commander was committed to the tomb, and in that magnificent pageant which escorted the remains New Jersey was represented by the entire National Guard and Department of New Jersey Grand Army of the Republic. In complying with the orders of your Excellency, to assemble this large body of men, contracts at largely-reduced rates were made with nearly all the railroads in the State. Orders of transportation were issued, which in the case of the Grand Army of the Republic were made exchangeable for first class excursion tickets, so that each man would have his own ticket and would be able to go and return at whatever time and in whatever train he desired. It was decided, after some consultation with the railroad authorities, that owing to the early hour and the demands of the public and other organizations upon the railroad facilities, it would be necessary to move the Sixth and Seventh Regiments of the Second Brigade on the evening before. Accordingly arrangements were so made, and the Adams Express Dock, Jersey City, was selected for the temporary quarters for the night. Blankets were furnished to each man and an early breakfast was served about 5:30 on the morning of the 8th, just prior to the movement to New York. The night was passed with reasonable comfort by these men. In the morning, all the organizations reported promptly, and took their places in the line. The march was begun and was concluded without any serious accident of any kind. The most complete arrangements for an ambulance and medical service for relief in case of sun-stroke or prostration were made, but owing to the very favorable weather were not called into service but in a few instances. Upon the completion of the very long march, the troops embarked by detachments of two regiments at a time on the steamer "Chancellor," which had been chartered for the purpose, to avoid the long and fatiguing march back to the ferries, near the end of the march and transferred by water directly to the railroad station, Jersey City, and embarked for their homes, reaching them in good season. I deem it worthy of note, that these men were transported from all parts of the State in large bodies and small, to New York and returned without any unnecessary delay and without any serious accident, which achievement I regard as a triumph of and for the art of railroad science; and that too at an exceptionally trying time. New Jersey may, with great reason, feel justly proud of her representation at these impressive and imposing ceremonies; justly proud, too, of having had the opportunity of paying so fitting a tribute of honor and respect to so eminent a man and leader of men.

OFFICERS OF THE QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

During the past year two changes have taken place in the personnel of this Department by the resignation of Major Frederick B. Wright, Deputy Quartermaster, and Mr. Joseph Sterling, Military Store-keeper, State Arsenal. Major Wright held his position for a short time only, and owing to business arrangements in another State was obliged to tender his resignation December 13th, 1884, which I very much regretted. His place has not been filled as yet by your Excellency. Mr. Sterling, also, owing to increasing business cares, felt compelled to tender his resignation on the thirty-first day of December, 1884, after a continued term of service of nearly a quarter of a century. Such faithful services as his seem to me to deserve official notice. Mr. Sterling having enlisted in a company of volunteers for the War of the Rebellion, was ordered to the State Arsenal with the company to which he belonged for arming and equipment and for temporary duty on the sixteenth of April, 1861, and placed in charge of certain books of account of issues of stores, and showing special aptitude for the work was detained when the company went to the front. In January, 1862, Colonel W. R. Murphy, the Military Store-keeper, resigned to take command of the Tenth Regiment New Jersey Volunteers, and Mr. Sterling was appointed to fill the vacancy, resigning December 31st, 1884. Throughout all the trying period of civil war and its military exigencies and emergencies, in the issues and accountability of clothing and equipment, notably correct, so facilitating the settlement of the claims of the State for moneys expended on account of the United States government, so complete and perfect were his accounts, that not a dollar was lost on that account, as well as since that time during the military exercises of a time of peace, Mr. Sterling has done his whole duty nobly and well, and has fully earned the approving "well done thou good and faithful servant."

He brought to his work honesty, intelligence and carefulness of a high order, coupled with an exactness and accuracy so important in such a position as his. It was with sincere regret that I was obliged to accept the resignation of so capable an assistant and so faithful a friend.

I have not yet made any selection to fill the vacancy, the duties are now being very acceptably performed by Mr. Charles F. Snowden, Chief Armorer, but shall do so at no very distant date.

With the exceptions noted, this Department remains as it was a year ago.

SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITIONS.

Upon your Excellency's approval there were loaned to Prof. W. B. Scott, for use of Princeton Scientific Expedition of 1885, the following-named stores, which have been returned in good order:

- 3 Springfield carbines, cal. .45.
- 4 McClellan saddles and bridles complete.
- 8 gray blankets.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

The interest taken by the National Guard in this invaluable branch of instruction for the soldier is undiminished, as was shown by the full attendance at the range at Sea Girt during the past season, and the anxiety of individual members of the Guard to qualify as marksmen.

I earnestly hope that the practice in the armories during the winter months with the reduced cartridge will be resumed, as I am still firmly convinced that such practice is an important auxiliary to the veteran guardsman for his continued skill with the rifle, and for the recruit its importance cannot be overestimated.

There were thirty-three thousand seven hundred and seventy (33,770) rounds of metallic cartridges expended in practice at the range during the season of 1885, not nearly so large an expenditure as in any previous year, but showing a proportionally larger increase of qualified marksmen.

MARKSMEN OF 1884.

The following statement shows the number of Badges and Bars issued to members of the National Guard, who qualified as marksmen at Manassquan during the season of 1884:

ORGANIZATIONS.	Badges.	Bars.
First Brigade Staff.....		5

RESERVE AMMUNITION.

The amount of ammunition in the hands of the National Guard to be held in reserve for use in case of emergency only, is reported by Regimental and Battalion Quartermasters, as follows:

First Regiment, Lieutenant George W. Church, Quartermaster, seven thousand (7000) rounds.

Third Regiment, Lieutenant Ira J. Hall, Quartermaster, none on hand. Returned to State Arsenal for exchange.

Fourth Regiment, Lieutenant Alvin H. Groff, Quartermaster, twelve thousand one hundred and five (12,105) rounds.

Fifth Regiment, Captain Washington R. Russell, Quartermaster, eight thousand (8,000) rounds.

Sixth Regiment, Lieutenant George G. Felton, Quartermaster, sixteen thousand (16,000) rounds.

Seventh Regiment, Captain George T. Cranmer, Quartermaster, six thousand nine hundred and sixty seven (6,967) rounds.

Ninth Regiment, Lieutenant Edward W. Danforth, Quartermaster, seven thousand (7,000) rounds.

First Battalion, Lieutenant John H. Hindle, Quartermaster, five thousand (5,000) rounds.

Second Battalion, Lieutenant Michael S. Vreeland, Quartermaster, six thousand (6,000) rounds.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

Herewith I beg to annex report of Colonel Edward L. Welling, Division Surgeon, showing the professional equipment of the medical staff of the National Guard and its condition, with such recommendations and suggestions as to its improvement and efficiency as occur to him.

I heartily commend all that Colonel Welling says to the attention of your Excellency.

“ To General Lewis Perrine, Quartermaster-General of New Jersey:

“GENERAL—By virtue of Special Order No. 17, Headquarters of the National Guard of New Jersey, I was ordered by Major-General Plume ‘to make an inspection of the Medical Department of the National Guard, including all surgical instruments and other medical supplies, and report the condition of the same to these headquarters.’ Having completed, so far as was possible, said inspection, Major-General Plume has kindly granted me permission to send to you, as Quartermaster-General, such parts of my report as may relate to condition of surgical instruments and medical supplies, ‘for which the medical officers having them are officially responsible to you.’

“The amputating cases in the possession of Lieutenant-Colonel J. D. McGill, Brigade Surgeon of First Brigade, and Lieutenant-Colonel F. Gauntt, Brigade Surgeon, Second Brigade, are in good condition and well cared for, as also are the medicine chests at each brigade headquarters. The latter will need refilling and a careful and minute inspection in that direction at an early day.

“Surgeon A. K. Baldwin, of First Regiment, has pocket case and medicine chest, both in good condition.

"In the Third Regiment Surgeon Hodgson has only a pocket case, in good order.

"Surgeon Mortimore Lampson, of Fourth Regiment, has nothing whatever on hand, either of a surgical or medical character.

"Surgeon Herald, of Fifth Regiment, has a pocket case and medicine chest, the former in good condition, the latter empty.

"The Sixth Regiment, in charge of Surgeon Godfrey, has no surgical instruments or medicine chest.

"Surgeon Coleman, of Seventh Regiment, has pocket case, medicine chest and amputating case, but medicine chest requires replenishing with everything needed. Instruments are in good condition.

"In the Ninth Regiment, Surgeon Chabert has pocket case and medicine chest, the former in good condition, the latter empty.

"Surgeon Myers, of First Battalion, has a good, well-kept pocket case, and Surgeon Ayres, of Second Battalion, has also a pocket case in good shape and an entirely empty medicine chest.

"I beg here to make a few suggestions, as the result of a careful inspection as to the medical and surgical wants of our National Guard :

"1. Every regiment should be provided with an amputating case and with a set of catheters, arranged for any emergency, and each Assistant Surgeon with a pocket case.

"2. I would respectfully recommend, as the expressed desire of every Surgeon and Assistant Surgeon of regiments in the Guard, that each regiment be furnished at an early day with a carefully-prepared and a well stocked medicine chest, to be carried in the hand. Those that came under my notice were not furnished with those articles so essential to a military medicine chest, while they did contain medicines and materials seldom called for on the march, or in the field.

"In conclusion, I would add that the Quartermaster-General's Department, of which you are the honored head, has done every thing in its power to provide what was necessary for the department I represent, and, indeed, has so provided.

"It now only needs a well-organized and systematic arrangement of the Medical and Surgical Department of the National Guard, under existing regulations, carefully and properly enforced, to make this arm of the service perfect in all its parts. Fully aware that the Quartermaster-General's Department is already burdened with its legitimate work, I beg to say that I am ready at all times to co-operate with you in this task—to relieve your Department as far as I can of what may pertain to the position of Division Surgeon, and as such to assist in any and every way to make the Guard in the future what it has been in the past—the pride and glory of the State.

“Respectfully submitted,

“EDWARD L. WELLING,

“Colonel and Division Surgeon,

STATE ARSENAL.

The current expenses of the State Arsenal for the year amount to $538.89, including the bill of J. F. Lovett for repainting the tin roofs of the several buildings.

In my last annual report I stated that the balance in the Treasury to the credit of the Arsenal, under the Act of the Legislature approved April 14th, 1884, for repairs and alterations, was $1,394.33. Of this balance but $39.10 were expended during the year, leaving a balance standing to the credit of the Arsenal at this date of $1,355.23.

STATE CLAIMS.

The claim against the United States for assessments improperly imposed for taxes on bank and railroad securities held by this State and referred to in my last annual report as having been adjusted and allowed, amounting to $5,317.08, has been paid, and that draft of the United States for that sum turned into the State Treasury.

STATE WAR CLAIMS.

During the year just past I have received from the authorities at Washington a statement to date, of the differences arising in the settlement of these claims, embracing the suspended and disallowed accounts of all the installments, which show the following :

Suspended and Disallowed Claims..... $42,769.55.

I am still pursuing the attempt to collect these claims, but with the exception of the claim noted above have been unable to secure the allowance of any others. These accounts have been explained and re-explained many times, and as they now require special legislation to secure the payment of them, even after their allowance by the officers of the Treasury, it is a long and tedious labor.

It is my opinion that only a few more, if any, will ever be allowed.

ACTING PAYMASTER-GENERAL'S ACCOUNT.

This fund has been reduced to ninety-four dollars ($94), one man, Samuel Hawthorne, Company D, Seventh Regiment National Guard, having been paid twenty dollars ($20), due him for service during the labor strikes of 1877. Seventeen men remain unpaid, the amount due them aggregating one hundred and sixty-nine dollars ($169).

These men have never made claim for the amount due them and they cannot be reached by this Department, as their residences are unknown.

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

In addition to the issues to this organization as provided by the act of February 27th, 1879, the following temporary issues are deserving of special mention.

A National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic was held at Portland, Maine, under the auspices of the State authorities, and to whom the following named articles of camp and garrison equipage were issued upon requisition of Governor Robie, approved by your Excellency, to wit: three hundred (300) common tents, one hundred (100) wall tents, with flies, poles and pins complete.

The property was sent in charge of Captain John Mackechney and Mr. Barzillia Matthews, of the State Arsenal, as representatives of the Quartermaster-General's Department, as stipulated by you as the condition of the loan. With some trifling exceptions the property was returned to the State Arsenal in good order, and our claim for losses and damages, freight charges and expenses of Captain Mackechney and assistant, promptly settled upon presentation of the bill therefor, by his Excellency, Governor Robie.

There was no general encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in this State.

Bayard Post, No. 8, held an encampment at Hetzel's Grove, Trenton, in the month of July; and the "Consolidated Detail Grand Army of the Republic Posts of Hudson County" held a three days' encampment near Jersey City, August 28th to 31st.

Camp and garrison equipage and ordnance stores were loaned for each of these encampments upon the usual conditions. The property was returned in good order and all claims for deficiencies, etc., promptly settled.

The services which this Department is called upon to render to this association of veterans, and which are cheerfully done, are greatly on the increase, sometimes in addition to our ordinary labor severely taxing our force. In this particular we do the best we can, with what we have to do, although not as promptly nor as well as we would like.

LOAN OF BATTLE-FLAGS BY AUTHORITY OF A RESOLUTION OF THE LEGISLATURE, CONCURRED IN MARCH 12TH, 1880.

December 3d, 1884. Colors of the Second Brigade, New Jersey Volunteers, on the occasion of the obsequies of General Mott, at Trenton.

May 4th, 1885. Colors of the Eleventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at Dover, N. J.

May 30th, 1885. Colors of the Seventh and Thirty-third Regiments, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at Hoboken.

May 30th, 1885. Colors of the Third New Jersey Battery, at reunion of survivors, at Hoboken.

September 3d, 1885. Colors of Battery B, First Artillery, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at Newark.

September 4th, 1885. Colors of Twelfth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at Bridgeton.

September 18th, 1885. Colors of the Seventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at Newark.

October 20th, 1885. Colors of the Fourteenth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, at reunion of survivors, at New Brunswick.

The loan of the battle-flags for reunions of the veteran soldiers of the several organizations, entitled thereto by the resolution above referred to, is worthy of thoughtful consideration. The flags, from long service in the field and their battered and torn condition, cannot be expected to last during the lifetimes of the gallant survivors who followed them in battle, if their continued use at reunions is demanded. Many of the old soldiers deprecate their use and exposure, and believe that they should be kept as mementoes of the past. The flags should be put in glass cases, in a prominent place in the State Capitol, and suitably marked with the name and number of the organizations and the list of the battles in which they were borne, so that they may be accessible to the veterans at all times. In order to accomplish this desirable result, namely, the preservation of these invaluable relics, the resolution authorizing their loan should be repealed, and suitable quarters should be provided for this purpose in the building now being constructed. The order transferring these colors to the State of New Jersey by the United States Government, as well as the law of New Jersey, designated the Quartermaster-General as the custodian. Since the burning of the Capitol he has had no place suitable for their care and preservation. They are at present on deposit in the office of the Adjutant-General. Previous to their removal to the State Capitol they were kept in glass cases at the State Arsenal. By an act of the Legislature they are now required to be kept at the State Capitol. They were very fortunately rescued from destruction by the late fire at the State Capitol. Great care is exercised in their preservation from damage and loss whenever loaned for reunions, and are always sent in charge of an employe of this Department, who is directed never to suffer them to go out of his possession, and are returned immediately, rarely out of my custody over twenty-four hours.

DEPUTY QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S REPORT.

CAMP LEON ABBETT, }
SEA GIRT, August 22d, 1885. }

General Lewis Perrine, Quartermaster-General New Jersey :

GENERAL—I have the honor to report that in obedience to your orders I reported at your headquarters, at Camp Leon Abbett, and assumed my duties as Post Quartermaster, on Saturday, the 15th instant, and assisted in issuing the stores to the troops of the First Brigade, which arrived in camp on the same afternoon. I remained on duty until after their departure to-day. Owing to arrangements already made by your Department the issue of the supplies provided was made easy to all concerned and no complaints have been made to me from any quarter, either as to the quartermaster or commissary stores, both of which came under my supervision. The latter department was administered by Lieutenant George G. Felton, Quartermaster of the Sixth Regiment, detailed as Post Commissary, and whose appointment to that position relieved the Department of much of the labor heretofore devolving upon it. The energy and skill with which he discharged his duties on this occasion, and the faithful attention which he bestowed upon them, are worthy of much praise.

In the return of the property issued the Regimental Quartermasters exhibited a commendable knowledge of the details of their duties, thus relieving the Department in that regard heretofore entailed upon it. The camp and garrison equipage has been largely returned to-day, and much of it has been already shipped to the Arsenal.

The remainder of the property is in store or is coming in, and is being packed for shipment by the men belonging to your Department.

I am, sir, very respectfully yours,

JAMES S. YARD,

Major and Deputy Quartermaster-General.
