Introduction.

These statistics have been compiled with a view of showing the incorporation and development of the municipalities, territorially as well as numerically. Much confusion and uncertainty have arisen in the past from a lack of definite information as to the territorial growth and incorporation of the different subdivisions of the State. Owing to the lack of proper surveys and definite monuments by which to indicate those surveys, many questions arose in the early days with reference to the boundaries of counties and their subdivisions. In later years boundary lines of both counties and their subdivisions were frequently changed, in many instances a change being authorized by one session of the Legislature only to be repealed and the former lines re-established by a succeeding one. In fact, in some instances at least, a popular doubt regarding boundaries still exists, due, perhaps, to the absence of suitable monuments.

Besides this, in some instances, governments of municipalities which had been established in compliance with the statute have been abandoned, and the territory has been allowed to revert to the government from which it was taken, without authority of law, and in at least one instance there exists at the present time a certain territory legally established which entirely lacks a municipal status.

In preparing this work the compiler has experienced much difficulty owing to the incomplete method of keeping municipal records; even the records of incorporation of many municipalities of comparatively recent date are now unavailable, and although after much searching we are now able to give the actual date of every incorporation, with a few exceptions, we find that much misunderstanding exists in some instances among municipal officials as to the precise date of the incorporation. For instance, in incorporating under a general statute, some boroughs take the date of their incorporation as the day of election instead of the day of filing the articles of incorporation with the county clerk, as the statute directed.

Another source of embarrassment in the preparation of the work has been the numerous errors of record that have been encountered due to clerical errors, and with a view of preparing future editions suggestions are invited for the purpose of correcting any inaccuracies that may appear in this publication; and the hope is expressed that these tables will be found serviceable to the citizens of the State.

The tables have been prepared under the supervision of the secretary of state by J. B. R. Smith, assistant secretary of state, and Charles S. Aitkin, statistician of the department.

Early Population.

There seems to be good ground for belief that there were settlements made by the Dutch in Bergen county as early as 1613 or 1614. It is probable, however, that 1618 should be put down as the date when the first settlement which could be in any sense regarded as permanent, was effected.

They occupied the northeastern portion of the province, and to the present time their descendants constitute a large portion of the population of Bergen, Passaic and Hudson counties. From here and from other Dutch settlements in and around New Amsterdam, immigrants soon found their way to Central Jersey and populated Somerset and Middlesex counties, while a few soon afterwards settled in Monmouth county. Besides this, the Dutch, working their way down from Esopus, New York, through the Minisink and Delaware valleys, made a settlement in what is now Pahaquarry township, Warren county, probably as early as 1643, at which point they developed copper mines to a considerable extent and constructed the famous mine road extending from the mines along the Delaware to what is now Port Jervis, New York, and from that point across the mountains to the Hudson at Esopus. A large part of this road through Sussex county is still in use. These mines were abandoned soon after the surrender of New Amsterdam, but many of the Dutch settlers remained and their names, as well as their characteristics, are still found throughout all this section.

Besides the Dutch whom we have referred to, the English, extending throughout what is now Union county, and the northern part of Middlesex county, comprised the principal early English settlement. There were also settlements of Danes and Norwegians among the Dutch in Bergen; Scotch and Irish among the English in Essex and Middlesex, and the Swedes at Tinicum.

The earliest attempts to settle West New Jersey were by the Dutch, but the loss of their settlements at Fort Nassau, in 1623, and again in 1630, so disheartened them that they abandoned the territory.

In 1637 the Swedes settled at Tinicum, and shortly after the Dutch reoccupied Fort Nassau. The English, coming from New Haven, Connecticut, settled along the Delaware in 1640, and although resisted by both Swedes and Dutch, they eventually occupied all of West Jersey about Salem, to the exclusion of the latter.

Fairfield, Cumberland county, took its name from a town of the same name in Connecticut, as did Greenwich, which was also settled by New Englanders, with some Irish settlers added. English whalers from Long Island located at Cape May probably as early as 1640.

In 1677 a colony of English Quakers, who found some scattering Swedish habitations about Raccoon creek, settled in West Jersey. The land below Trenton, about Burlington, was selected by Yorkshire Quakers, while those from London chose the country about Gloucester. They all centered at the town of Burlington, however. We are told that about 1680 West Jersey became quite populous by the rapid accessions which were taking place. They were mostly Friends, and in West Jersey, from this time, English blood predominated.

New Jersey was included in the grant made by King Charles II. to the Duke of York, March 12th, 1663. The latter transferred the province to Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret, who held it until July 29th, 1674, when a second grant was made by the Duke of York to Carteret of what is known as East Jersey. The division into East and West Jersey was made by the Quintipartite Deed of July 1st, 1676.

The earliest reference to counties occurs on November 13th, 1675, when county courts ¹ were established, though burgesses ² from Bergen, Elizabeth-Town, Newark, Woodbridge, Middletown and Shrewsbury are named May 26th, 1668.

West Jersey ³ was ordered surveyed along the Delaware river and divided into tenths February, 1681, and from these tenths were formed the counties adjacent to the river.

By an act ⁴ of March, 1682, East Jersey was divided into the four counties of Bergen, Essex, Middlesex and Monmouth, and about the same time West Jersey was divided into three counties, although these boundaries were not clearly set out. By the act of January 21st, 1710, the boundaries of the counties were definitely defined.

By an act ⁵ of 1693 the counties were divided into townships, and on February 21st, 1798, under a general act, ⁶ all the then existing townships were incorporated, and on May 22d, 1820, the townships erected since 1798 were incorporated. Since that time there has been a steady increase in population, and in order to serve the inhabitants more acceptably new counties have been created and many subdivisions have taken place in the form of incorporated boroughs, cities, towns, townships and villages.

The various terms to denote municipalities were loosely used, city, town or township often indicating a sparsely settled community, rather than a clearly defined division, as now expressed.

The Indian population was never large, and at the time the English made their first settlement in Elizabeth-Town, in 1664, it is estimated that there were probably not more than two thousand Indians in what is now the whole State of New Jersey, and it is quite probable that at the time the white man first began to make his home on this soil there were not more than three thousand red men in the territory.

The population of East Jersey, in 1673, is indicated somewhat by the following enumeration of men suitable for defensive purposes: Elizabeth-Town, 80 men; Newark, 86 men; Woodbridge, 54 men; Piscataway, 43 men; Middletown, 60 men; Shrewsbury, 68 men—a total of 391 men subject to military duty; also, 18 Quakers, who were non-combatants.

It is estimated that in 1682 the population of the State was 6,000, and at the beginning of the eighteenth century it was 20,000, of which 12,000 belonged to East Jersey and 8,000 to West Jersey. The militia amounted to 1,400 men. Holmes' Annals gives an estimate of 15,000 for the year 1701.

Upon the surrender of East and West Jersey by the proprietors, Her Majesty Queen Anne appointed Lord Cornbury governor of this province, November 16th, 1702, and in her letter ¹ of instructions of that date directed him to "send an account unto us, and to our commissioners for trade and plantations, of the present number of planters and inhabitants," &c.

This seems to be the first enumeration of the province ordered; whether it was made is doubtful, as no records of it have yet been found, either here or in the record office in London. This makes the census ² of 1726, which was returned by Governor William Burnet to the Lords of Trade, May 9th, 1727, the first of record. In 1790 the national government began taking a census every decade, and the returns given at those periods are from the United States census returns. Since 1855 the State has made an enumeration every ten years, and the returns given for these decimal periods are from the State census records.

Previous to 1810 the returns were made by counties, with few exceptions, and frequently since then the returns for a township include the municipalities within its limits, and no separate figures can be given for the subdivisions. Diligent search has been made in the newspapers of the time, and by application to the Census Bureau at Washington, for the population by subdivisions of counties, but the returns are scattering, as the tables show.

The term "colony" was ordered abandoned and "State" substituted September 20th, 1778, in official documents.

It must be borne in mind that there have been, in some instances, territorial expansion and consolidation of municipalities, and in others the municipalities had an existence prior to their incorporation, having received grants, patents or concessions from the crown, and sometimes were organized by the courts.

ATLANTIC COUNTY.

Atlantic county was formed from the townships of Galloway, Hamilton, Weymouth and Egg Harbor, Gloucester county, 1837, p. 96.

A portion of Hammonton was annexed to Burlington county 1902, p. 403.
