Dear Friends and Supporters:

We are pleased to bring you the 2011 New Jersey Historic Trust Annual Report. As the state's leading voice for historic preservation, the Trust has accomplished so much this past year and continues to pursue the preservation of our state's most valuable historic resources.

This report highlights the many outstanding historic preservation planning projects that received funding through the Garden State Historic Preservation Trust Fund. I can affirm that the Trust remains a strong and responsive entity, providing both funding and support for current and new grant projects. Since 1990, the NJ Historic Trust has awarded $134,801,342 to 693 applicants, preserving 477 of New Jersey's historic resources. Conservatively speaking, and because this is a matching grant program, these projects have leveraged another $134M in private investment.

Of particular note was the Governor's bill signing at the historic Alice Paul Institute in Paulsboro this past summer. Through the approval of $10 million in state appropriations from prior year's voter referendums, 58 worthy projects received funding.

As you browse through the pages of this beautiful testimony to the important preservation work going on throughout the state, you will discover that the reach of our mission touches everything from churches and schools, to farmsteads and parks. I encourage you to visit these wonderful historic and cultural sites and experience for yourselves the excellent work done by preservationists.

Finally, I want to thank and recognize the outstanding work of the New Jersey Historic Trust staff and board. Because of their continued stewardship, New Jersey's history has been preserved for future generations.

Thank you for your continued support. We look forward to working with you on future preservation projects.

Richard E. Constable, III
Acting Commissioner

NEW JERSEY HISTORIC TRUST

Dear Friends:

The Historic Trust remains strong as it continues to administer current and new grant projects. The Trust is also focused on the future and developing projects for collecting information about the condition of New Jersey’s historic architecture, providing linkages and resources through the annual preservation conference, and continuing partnership-building with municipal, county and private funding sources.

One highlight this year was Governor Christie’s public signing of the Appropriation Bill that authorized 58 grants for both capital and preservation project totaling more than $10 million. This funding was thanks to voter-approved initiatives in 2007 and 2009. The event took place at the historic Alice Paul House in Mount Laurel.

The annual Historic Preservation Conference held at Monmouth University was again supported by a variety of sponsor organizations and offered learning credits to professional architects and planners. The conference continues to attract a variety of speakers who address the specific technical needs of professionals, site stewards, and municipal officials. The 2012 conference will offer even more opportunities to learn from educational sessions, field workshops and hands-on experiences.

New this year was the Trust’s partnership with the 1772 Foundation in an effort to provide construction grants to needy historic sites for vital roof, window, and exterior preservation projects. The Trust helped the Foundation review letters of intent and applications, and recommended $195,000 in funding to 15 historic sites as part of a pilot program that allows the Foundation’s resources to be directed to worthy resources.

Thank you for your continued support of the Historic Trust’s efforts to provide preservation funding and education opportunities to all who steward our State’s historic buildings, parks, districts, landscapes, and archaeological sites.

The Louis I. Kahn Bath House and Day Camp, was honored by the NJ Historic Trust Grant Project, National Trust for Historic Preservation at its annual conference with the Crowninshield Award for the restoration of the modern architecture landmark located in Ewing Township, Mercer County.

Designed by celebrated architect Louis I. Kahn for the Trenton Jewish Community Center in the mid-1950s, the Bath House and Day Camp are considered a turning point in Kahn’s illustrious career as well as advancement in Modernist architecture. In 1984, the Bath House and Day Camp were listed on both the National Register of Historic Places and the New Jersey Register—prior to reaching the standard benchmark of 50 years of age—a testament to the building’s extreme significance.

By 1997, however, both the Bath House and Day Camp had suffered from continual exposure to the elements, and the owners of the buildings applied for a demolition permit for two of the Day Camp buildings. The threat of demolition attracted public attention—including exposure in the 2003 film “My Architect,” by Louis Kahn’s son Nathaniel Kahn—as well as the formation of the Friends of the Trenton Bath House. In 2008, the Bath House and Day Camp were sold to Mercer County, which utilized State and County funding to undertake a thorough restoration of the entire property. Today, visitors to the site can see the breathtaking results of their efforts. The Day Camp and Bath House have been returned to their original condition, and new landscape features, intended by Kahn... but never completed, have now been woven into the surrounding area. The restoration was supported by a $750,000 capital grant from the New Jersey Historic Trust in 2008.

In 2011, the Department of Environmental Protection/Historic Preservation Office honored two projects completed with funding from the New Jersey Historic Trust. The first is the Louis I. Kahn Bath House and Day Camp.

The second is the Kennedy Martin Stelle Farmstead in Bernards Township. This picturesque farmstead that was part of a local government land purchase more than a decade ago is rich in history. First home to Nathaniel Rolfe, one of the area’s first settlers, the site later served as the home of Colonel Ephraim Martin, a patriot who served in the Continental Army and was later elected to the New Jersey State Legislature. Using a well-planned phased approach, the early English barn and farmhouse have been restored with support from a $440,393 grant from the New Jersey Historic Trust. The farmhouse is operating as an arts center. The barn will be a venue for performing arts and crafts.

Year In Review - 2011

2011 NEW JERSEY HISTORIC PRESERVATION CONFERENCE

National Historic Landmark Woodrow Wilson Hall on the Monmouth University Campus in West Long Branch was the backdrop for the June 2011 Historic Preservation Conference, Preservation Looks Forward. The annual event attracted 300 guests, speakers, sponsors and vendors who attended a full day’s agenda of educational sessions, field workshops and tours, and an opening plenary session and closing reception.

Keynote speaker Jeffery Otteau, president of real estate consulting firm Otteau Valuation, enlightened the audience about social and economic trends that will influence the preservation of urban and suburban environments in the next generation. Shifting populations, changes in the makeup of households and employment realities will present challenges to preservation advocates who need to stay ahead of the trends, educate new home buyers and renters, and provide residential and commercial rehabilitation projects with amenities that attract new consumers.

Educational offerings targeted municipal historic preservation commission members, planners and architects, historians, archaeologists, historic site stewards, and historic preservation professionals. For the first time, continuing education credits were offered to both American Institute of Architects and American Planning Association members. Field workshops included a hands-on session on materials conservation and a tour of redevelopment and preservation projects in Ocean Grove, Asbury Park and Shrewsbury. A “behind the scenes” tour of Wilson Hall was also popular.
More than 30 vendors and sponsors had exhibit tables and provided information about educational programs, historic sites, architecture and archaeology, and construction, stained glass and financial consulting.

The 2012 NJ Historic Preservation Conference will be held on June 7 at Rider University. The day-long event will feature a keynote address by sustainability author Steve Mouzon, educational sessions, tour opportunities and a closing reception. For more information about this event, visit www.njhistoricpreservationconference.org.

Architect Lisa Easton discussed the preservation of Wilson Hall’s elaborate roofs.

The CSI of Historic Preservation Workshop included hands-on experience examining building materials.

OUTREACH AND EDUCATION

In addition to the annual preservation conference, the Trust was involved with a number of educational activities throughout the year, staffing its annual information session at the League of Municipalities Conference in Atlantic City and co-hosting the Best Practices Workshop series for non-profit history organizations with the NJ Historical Commission and State Museum. The Trust also exhibited its display and distributed materials at the NJ Historical Commission’s annual conference in November, the History Issues convention in March, Archives and History Day in Monmouth County in October and the State History Day in May.

The restored Oyster Sheds at Bivalve were celebrated with a ribbon cutting ceremony.

The staff presented a Grantee Workshop to new grantees in July 2011.

In the fall of 2011, the Trust began working on a graphic redesign of its web site, incorporating expanded coverage of Heritage Tourism resources and projects and additional funding sources.

The restored pool house at Historic Morven reopened in September, a project funded by the NJ Cultural Trust.

The New York-New Jersey Trails Conference held a groundbreaking for the rehabilitation of Darlington School House.

Historic flooding in August impacted Trenton and many historic properties throughout the state.
NEW INITIATIVES

Throughout the Year, the Trust staff worked on three new initiatives that will be more fully developed in the 2012 calendar year.

1772 Foundation

The first initiative is a partnership with the 1772 Foundation, a private grant giving organization. The Foundation requested the Trust’s participation in a pilot program to award modest grants to needy historic sites in New Jersey. The grantees had to be nonprofit organizations and the capital projects needed to be for exterior repair and restoration.

The Trust screened more than 50 letters of intent and made recommendations to award $195,000 to 15 sites. Executive Director Dorothy Guzzo presented the Trust’s recommendations to the Foundation at its July meeting. Later in the year, the Trust worked with the Foundation to prepare application and guidelines for another grant round in 2012.

“Discover NJ History” License Plate Heritage Tourism Grant Program

One of the recommendations of the NJ Heritage Tourism Task Force was to offer funding that would support the development of heritage sites for improved tourism participation. The NJ Heritage Tourism Plan recommended that the income from sales of the “Discover NJ History” License Plate be targeted for this grant program.

In 2011, the Trust established guidelines and an application process for this new funding source, the “Discover NJ History” License Plate Grant Program. Grants of up to $3,000 will be available to provide technical assistance, promote interpretation, marketing and links among multiple heritage sites, assess visitor ready potential and needs, and establish performance evaluation systems and to offer training initiatives that foster the Tourism Plan’s goals and objectives.

The Trust will launch the new funding program in early 2012.

Capital Needs Survey

The last Capital Needs Survey of historic property in New Jersey was completed 20 years ago. The Historic Trust recognizes the need to revisit the results of that survey and collect new data on historic sites throughout the state. The survey includes sites owned by public entities as well as nonprofit organizations that would benefit from historic future funding for planning, capital and site development projects.

The 2012 Capital Needs Survey will take advantage of the latest technology and encourage site managers and owners to submit their information through an on-line survey. This will enable survey participants to easily access and add to the information they provide for the survey, and enable the Trust to evaluate the information in a more efficient manner. The Trust plans to compile the survey information and publish a summary in 2012.
A total of 8 capital preservation projects and 22 historic site management projects were completed from October 1, 2010 to September 30, 2011. These projects represent a total investment of more than $10.5 million into historic preservation jobs, construction, and tourism in New Jersey.

Projects are listed in alphabetical order by county.

ATLANTIC COUNTY

Linwood Borough School No. 1, Linwood
Linwood City received a grant of $18,000 that helped fund the preparation of a preservation plan that will guide future exterior restoration work. This 1873 school has been in continuous public use as a school, town hall, library and home to the Linwood Historical Society, which now operates it as a museum.

BERGEN COUNTY

Darlington Schoolhouse, Mahwah
The New York-New Jersey Trail Conference used a $50,000 grant to help fund construction documents and National Register nomination for the 1891 Richardson Romanesque building that will be its headquarters.

BURLINGTON COUNTY

Bishop-Irick Farmstead, Southampton
The Pinelands Preservation Alliance used a $9,092 grant to help fund a feasibility study of its 1932 dairy barn. The Alliance is considering options to repair and reuse the barn for educational and rental activities.

Chesterford School, Maple Shade Township
Maple Shade Township received a $47,749 grant to prepare a National Register nomination, preservation plan and construction documents. The project also investigated accessibility alternatives for this c. 1811 schoolhouse.

John. A Roebling & Sons Company: Kinkora Works, Florence
The Roebling Museum used a $50,000 grant to help fund an interpretive development plan for its seven-acre mill yard and a schematic design for restoration of the time office building. This factory complex was constructed beginning in 1905 and remains as a good example of a company town.

St. Stephen’s Episcopal Church, Beverly
The church received a $289,945 grant that helped fund the structural stabilization and reroofing of its prominent steeple. The Gothic Revival style church has been a regional landmark since its construction in the 1850s.
CAPE MAY COUNTY

Hangar No. 1, Lower Township
The Naval Air Station Wildwood Foundation’s $103,784 grant helped fund ongoing exterior restoration, including windows and doors. This World War II era landmark is now a museum of aircraft and military history.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY

1857 Millville Bank, Millville
A $29,767 grant to the city helped fund a preservation plan for this 1857 Italianate structure. Remodeled in 1908 in the Colonial Revival style, the brick building has also served as public library, city offices, and the Millville Historical Society's headquarters.

ESSEX COUNTY

Bloomfield Presbyterian Church, Bloomfield
A $50,000 grant to the church helped fund a structural assessment of its 1797 church truss system.

Orange City Hall, Orange City
A $43,758 grant to the City helped fund the preparation of a preservation plan that will guide future repairs to the building. The city hall was originally constructed as a local public school and was later converted to serve as the municipal hall.

Glen Ridge Municipal Building Complex, Glen Ridge
Glen Ridge used a $664,200 grant to help fund extensive exterior repairs to the Municipal Building Complex. The complex, built in 1931, houses municipal offices, the police station and the public library.

South Park Calvary Presbyterian Church, Newark
A $300,000 grant to the Lincoln Park/Cultural Coast District helped fund the first phase of restoration of the building’s façade, all that remains of the landmark church after a 1992 fire. The structure will be a gateway to a planned cultural district.
Hudson County

Star of Israel Synagogue, Hoboken
In 2006, the United Synagogue of Hoboken was awarded $280,707 to help fund extensive exterior and interior restoration. Built in 1915, the building exemplifies traditional European 19th century synagogue architecture with eastern architectural details, copper onion domes, and stained glass windows with colorful scrollwork.

Hunterdon County

Lambertville City Hall, Lambertville
The City of Lambertville's offices are housed in the original A.H. Holcombe residence, built in 1871 in the Second Empire style. A $486,180 grant helped support its exterior restoration and accessibility improvements.

Mercer County

Delaware Inn, Trenton
The Port of Trenton Museum Foundation used a $50,000 grant to help fund a structural analysis, preservation plan and schematic designs for this 1790s inn.

First Presbyterian Church of Pennington, Pennington
The First Presbyterian Church of Pennington received a $40,221 grant to help fund a preservation plan, construction documents, and nomination to the National Register for this 1875 Victorian Gothic Revival Church.

Upper Bellemont Farm, Hopewell
The Mercer County Planning Division received a grant of $48,715 that funded a feasibility study for this 18th century barn. The County is exploring new uses for the building as a heritage tourism center.
MORRIS COUNTY

Historic Speedwell Vail House and Moses Etsey House, Morristown
The Morris County Parks Commission received a $50,000 grant that helped fund detailed planning documents for these two houses. Stephen Vail’s house is at the site of his ironworks and the Etsey House dates to the late 18th century.

Morris Canal Lock 2 East, Wharton
The Borough of Wharton received a $50,000 grant that helped fund the preparation of restoration documents for the Morris Canal Lock 2 East, an archaeological site that is buried but believed to be intact.

Henry Doremus House, Montville
The $230,591 grant to the township helped fund interior and exterior restoration of this pre-Revolution era building that had not experienced any modern improvements.

PASSAIC COUNTY

Eastside Park Horse Stable, Paterson
A $50,000 grant to the Eastside Neighborhood Association in Paterson helped fund construction documents to rehabilitate and reuse the deteriorated stable building in this actively used park.

SOMERSET COUNTY

70 Miles of Legend and Lore, Bridgewater
With a $21,505 grant, the Heritage Trail Association prepared an audio CD that provides two driving tours of more than 25 historic sites throughout Somerset County.

First Reformed Church of Rocky Hill, Rocky Hill
A $19,372 grant to the First Reformed Church of Rocky Hill helped fund the preparation of a restoration plan for this picturesque Carpenter Gothic style church that was constructed in 1856.

Franklin Inn, Franklin Township
The township received a grant of $39,863 to help fund a Historic Structure Report for the Franklin Inn. Originally a Dutch-framed 1734 farmhouse built for the Van Liew family, the building was remodeled into an inn and later a place of business.

Van-der-Veer Harris House, Hillsborough
The township received a $50,000 grant that helped fund planning and construction documents for the rehabilitation of this Colonial Revival style house.

UNION COUNTY

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, Plainfield
A $ 47,186 grant helped fund the study of the church’s unusual cast-stone exterior to determine an appropriate method of repair. Originally constructed in 1871, the church was destroyed by fire and rebuilt from 1932-34 in a new design.
Fanwood Park Historic District, Fanwood
Fanwood Borough received a grant of $40,000 that helped fund a feasibility study for its Transfer of Development Rights Demonstration Program sending area. The community contains many architecturally historic buildings that are threatened by unsympathetic remodeling.

WARREN COUNTY

St. Luke’s Episcopal Church, Hope Township
A grant in the amount of $7,526 helped fund construction plans for the restoration of the steeple. St. Luke’s Church is an example of early 19th century Gothic Revival ecclesiastical architecture.

Port Colden Schoolhouse, Washington
The Washington Township Board of Education’s $273,800 grant helped fund restoration of the first floor and rehabilitation of the second floor of this 1868 school house. The building now houses school district offices, and the first floor is interpreted to the public and used as a teaching tool for local and regional students.

Vass Farmstead, Hardwick
The Hardwick Township Historical Society used a $266,437 grant to help fund the first phase of restoration for this German farmstead that dates to 1812. Work included exterior and interior restoration of the house, new roofing materials, and structural repairs to the barn.

BILL SIGNING

In August 2011, Governor Christie signed the appropriations bill that authorized more than $10 million in matching grants to 58 projects for Preservation and Planning. The signing took place at Paulsdale, National Historic Landmark and birthplace of Alice Stokes Paul in Mount Laurel, and was attended by dignitaries and members of the press who reported on the Governor’s remarks. The full list of funded projects is on the following pages.

FULL TRANSCRIPT OF GOVERNOR CHRIS CHRISTIE’S OPENING STATEMENT • August 15, 2011

From the time of the Revolutionary War and the Underground Railroad to Thomas Edison and Alice Paul, the people and the places of our state have been the nucleus of many of our country’s most significant historical events. Here in Mount Laurel at Paulsdale, Alice Paul secured her name in history as all of you know. She was first introduced to the women’s suffrage movement in New Jersey by her mother who often brought Alice to meetings. And it’s here where she developed her sense of activism and drive to secure equal rights for women, which eventually led to the successful campaign that resulted in the passage of the 19th amendment, giving women the right to vote. It’s thanks to her courage, her dedication, that equal rights for women were finally secured in the ballot box.

We want to make sure her story continues to be told and to be preserved for future generations, which is why today we’re ensuring that New Jersey’s storied past remains vibrant and accessible for years to come. The legislation I’m signing and just did sign, will provide ten million dollars to help the New Jersey Historic Trust preserve 58 historic sites around New Jersey.

Of the projects to be funded, $945,000 will be used to provide historic site management grants for 29 projects in 13 counties. These grants support non-construction activities, such as long-term operations planning and programs, including building assessments and archeological investigations and educational campaigns as well. This includes places that are such a part of our history. Places like Destination Paulsdale and Sunnyside Farm here in Mount Laurel, Joseph Cooper House in Camden, the Grover Cleveland birthplace in Caldwell, Fort Hancock Barracks in Middletown.

The rest of the funding, 9.3 million dollars will go to capital preservation grants for the restoration and rehabilitation of historic resources for new or continued active use and two different levels of projects. There’s a level one capital project, those are 12 projects in eight counties. And examples of those are the James and Anne Whitehall House in National Park borough and Cumberland National Bank in Bridgeton.

Then there’s level two grant recipients and those are 17 projects in eight counties. And some examples of those are the Ocean City Life Saving Station in Ocean City and the Foster Fields Living Historical Farm in Morris Township which right down the street from where I live and pass almost every day coming to and from work. So I understand living in a place like Morris County that while there’s history all across New Jersey, I am partial to where I live, like most of us are and there’s a lot of history in Morris County and Foster Fields is one of those places. So it’s important to recognize that rehabilitating our historic treasures serves an economic purpose in addition to attracting tourism, spurring neighborhood revitalization and encouraging economic growth in our state, along with a very laudable part of having it available to teach our children and their children about the history of this state.

I want to commend the Historic Trust for their work including the projects we’ve announced today. The Trust has awarded more than 135 million dollars in 697 matching grants since 1990. Preserving these cultural and historical sites is critical to ensuring that future generations have the opportunity to learn more about New Jersey’s place in history.

Again, this is another example of the things I’ve been talking about for the last month where there’s bipartisan support across the legislature. Senator Addiego, Assemblyman Rudder are here, Assembly Milam is here. Republicans and Democrats who understand that preserving New Jersey’s history, both for our cultural future and our economic future is not a partisan issue, and not something that should be bickered over by people just because we’re in opposite parties.

Also I want to thank all of you who have worked so hard on these historical issues, cultural issues over time. It is a difficult budget time in our state, has been for years. And with the leadership of folks like Commissioner Grifa at the DCA who is trying to make the best use of the resources that she has available to her to make to make sure that they have the greatest effect on the people and institutions of our state. We’re doing the best we can. We know that at times it means that we can’t say yes to everything that you’d like us to do and we take no joy in that. But we have a real sense of responsibility that our job first and foremost is to be an effective and trusted steward of that tax money that the people of this state give to us especially during these really difficult economic times that they believe that the people at the head of this government take seriously that the expenditure of any tax dollars are to be taken with great care. And we’re not always perfect about that. And there will be mistakes that are made but it doesn’t mean that that gives us an excuse for ever stopping trying to do the best we possibly can.

And so I sign this bill today with real sense of satisfaction that we’ve met those criteria. That this is something the people of New Jersey really want us to do. Something they believe in and something they’re willing to take their hard earned dollars out of their pocket and put on the table for the collective good. That’s why you see Republicans and Democrats together on this issue because it is for the un-arguable public good. And so I want to thank all of you for your efforts, help to bring this to the floor for us. Help to make sure that we don’t forget when we get our green eye shades on at times which we have to do that there are also big issues to be concerned about too. And what is our future going to look like, not only fiscally, but once we survive this difficult period, what’s our culture going to look like when we get on the other side. What will our children’s and our grandchildren’s sense of history be? If you live in this state, you have to have a great sense of the history of this country, we were integral to its creation and we must always be a place where people can come to reflect and appreciate on all that is truly extraordinary about America and about being Americans. And I can tell you that I believe that this is one of those things that we have to find the resources to do to be able to continue on with this type of effort.

About the New Jersey Historic Trust

The Mission of the Trust is to advance historic preservation in New Jersey for the benefit of future generations through education, stewardship and financial investment programs that save our heritage and strengthen our communities.

The Historic Trust seeks to achieve its mission by serving as:

- A leading voice for preservation at the state level.
- A catalyst for preservation and community revitalization activities.
- A full partner in state policy development.

The Trust also provides financial support, protection and technical assistance through six programs:

The Garden State Historic Preservation Trust Fund was created by legislation in November 1998, signed into law on June 30, 1999 for the purpose of preserving open space, farmland, and historic sites with funding from state revenues, guaranteed for the next decade. This source of grant funds allowed the Trust to address the preservation needs of properties throughout the state through fiscal year 2009. In 2007 and in 2009, voters approved referendums to provide additional funding for historic preservation projects. The GSHPTF continues the work of the Historic Preservation Bond Program, which from 1990-1997 awarded $52 million in capital grants to assist preservation projects statewide.

The Cultural Trust Capital Preservation Grants Program provides funding to protect and improve historic properties that are used by organizations that have history or humanities programming. Grants of may be used for stabilization, repair, restoration, adaptive use, and increased accessibility. This funding is offered in cooperation with the New Jersey Cultural Trust.

The Discover NJ Historic License Plate Fund for Heritage Tourism provides small grants to develop and promote visitor ready sites.

In partnership with the 1772 Foundation, the Historic Trust offers Capital Preservation Grants up to $15,000 to nonprofit organizations for repair and restoration projects.

The Trust offers long-term, low interest loans through the Historic Preservation Revolving Loan Fund, which provides for the acquisition, preservation, rehabilitation, or restoration of historic properties. The maximum available from the fund is $370,000 and some matching funds will be required.

An Emergency Grant and Loan Fund provides limited seed funds for critically needed work on endangered historic resources. The grant portion of this program is temporarily halted.

The Preservation Easement Program ensures the preservation of privately owned properties in perpetuity through the use of deed restrictions. The Trust initiated the first statewide program of this kind, which enables easement donors to take advantage of charitable deduction tax benefits.

The Trust accepts donations of real estate through its New Jersey Legacies program. Property donors may realize significant income and estate tax benefits by their donations, and donated properties are resold by the Trust with protective easements to ensure their preservation.
