What They Are Saying About President Obama's Visit To The Shore: "A Model Of How To Get Things Done In This Country"

Asbury Park Press: "A Model Of How To Get Things Done In This Country" – "That restoration is a bipartisan effort. Not only is the Obama-Christie chorus a boost for New Jersey tourism, but a model of how to get things done in this country. Let the sounds and sights of Tuesday remind New Jerseyans of how far they have come, what is left to do and how we can get it done together."

Philly Inquirer: "This Is What It Looks Like When Politicians Do Their Jobs" – "Those who would criticize the "bromance" between the Democratic president and the Republican governor should consider that this is what it looks like when politicians do their jobs. Their cooperation after Hurricane Sandy has shown how working together can bring about results ... offered a symbol of cooperation not seen often enough in American politics. It was a pleasant break from political rancor against the backdrop of a vacation destination that's back on its feet and ready for the crowds."

Newsday: "A Message About How Elected Officials Ought To Operate" – "When Barack Obama and Chris Christie strolled down the boardwalk on the Jersey shore Tuesday, they replayed a message about how elected officials ought to operate ... That won't end the ideological wars. The philosophical and policy differences dividing Democrats and Republicans -- and even dividing the GOP itself -- are deep and enduring. But those differences should be fought with the goal of reaching workable compromises, not seized upon as excuses to endlessly repeat cycles of paralysis and crisis."

South Jersey Times: "Obama And Christie Bring N.J. A Lift" – "Credit Obama for wanting to take a second look, and credit Christie for playing gracious host ... Give the Democratic president and the Republican governor kudos for seeing, along with the big crowds, a big opportunity to get partisan — and for not taking it, to the benefit of the people of New Jersey."

New York Post: "Chris Christie's right" – "He's the president of the United States, and he wants to come here and see the people of New Jersey. I'm the governor. I'll be here to welcome him.' Chris Christie's right."
