Governor Christie: We know that what's going to happen here beginning on June 1st is that folks who come in, in varying states of despair are going to be given hope. Folks that come in worrying about their future are going to be given a more healthy and safe future for themselves and their families. Folks who believed that miracles weren't possible will see miracles happen. So, congratulations to all the people who were involved in this. I'm not going to start naming names. There are lots of people who have been involved in this right from the beginning who've shown great fortitude, great energy and great wisdom. And I thank all of them, all of them, for the fact that they didn't give up. And so as we move forward now to cut this ribbon and you all start to take patients on June 1st, Mary's right, we're going to hold you to your pledge. And that pledge is going to be so important for the people of this region and so important for the future of the children and grandchildren of this region as well. So, to Bob and all the people at Hackensack University Medical Center, all of your partners, everyone else who is here today has been extraordinarily supportive. And for all the great people who are going to work in this building starting on June 1st, keep that pledge. Keep that pledge to every person who walks through those doors because when they walk through those doors they're walking there not because they want to be there, but because they need to be there. And they need your help, and they need your professionalism, and they need your compassion. And after watching what's gone on here for the last four years as Governor, I'm absolutely convinced that's exactly what they'll get. So thank you all very much, let's cut this ribbon and get it open.
