BY A. VAN DOREN HONEYMAN, PLAINFIELD, N. J.

In these times, when everything and everybody bearing a German name appear to have a lost reputation, it is pleasant to recall to mind the fact that the County of Somerset and the State of New Jersey as a whole were the gainers two centuries ago by a class of Germans who left the old land of their birth because of its wars and tyrannies, and who settled down on our soil as free men capable of becoming sincere American patriots. It is true they came mostly from the Palatinate and not from northern, which was Prussian, Germany; and they were brought up, not so much in the then strict Lutheran faith as in the Reformed faith; were in every sense reformed in religion, being more truly religious Progressives than the strict Lutherans. They had suffered much in endeavoring to cut clear from all the abnormalities arising from the perverted Papacy of that day, and because they belonged to the more advanced Protestants of the Rhine regions and took their faith largely from the leaders of religious thought in Switzerland, instead of those in North Germany, those who came from the Palatinate, say from 1700 to 1750, were more like the Scotch and the Hollanders in their faith than otherwise.

This subject of the religious creed of the early German settlers would have no place here but for the fact that Hendrick Fisher, as, doubtless, his father before him, was all his life an intensely religious man. It must have been born in him. And, seemingly, he took no great interest in the early establishment of German churches in Somerset, but always attended churches of more pronounced Calvanistic, or Reformed, views.

It was both the civil wars and the religious tumults in Germany that caused so many Palatinists to leave their country early in the Eighteenth century and to migrate to a land where thought and speech were free, and where oppression and bloodshed were uncommon. Here they could live as men and not as slaves, either of religion or militarism. We honor these early Germans for their far-sightedness, their innate honesty, their true valor of spirit, and especially for the fact that they made first-class citizens and were progenitors of some of the ablest and best of those whose blood mingled with that of the Dutch, the Scotch and the English in the War of the Revolution and in the two great wars since, including that which has just ended.

It was Hendrick Fisher, Sr., who is said to have come from the Rhine region to Holland as an exile, and then, about the year 1703, to New Jersey. He doubtless spelled his name Visscher in his homeland, or at least that was the true German name. This Hendrick died October 17, 1749, when certainly over seventy years of age, yet, singularly enough, no record, so far as I am aware, has been found giving his signature, and not one important fact relating to him at all, between 1703 and 1749, is known, although during all that period he is said to have resided along the Raritan River a short distance south of Bound Brook. Dr. Messler and others who must have investigated the matter, state that he purchased, in 1703, three hundred acres of land of William Dockwra, a part of a tract of nine hundred acres that Dockwra had obtained of the Proprietors in 1682. Dockwra, a Scotchman by birth but a London merchant, was an absentee landlord, possessed by patents from the foreign Proprietors of thousands of acres along the Raritan and Millstone Rivers, which he sold chiefly to Hollanders but also to some Germans. Who Hendrick, Sr.’s wife was; what other children, if any, he had, except Hendrick, Jr.; and, indeed, all other facts about him that we should like to know, are shrouded in mystery. It is only from his son’s character and ability that we can judge of the metal which must have existed in his father’s or mother’s line of ancestry.

Hendrick, Jr., to whom almost exclusively I am now to refer, having been born, as we know from his age at death, about the year 1697, and in the Palatinate as we believed, was, therefore, a boy of only six when he came from Germany to Somerset County. According to Dr. Messler and others he, with his father, presumably with other living members of the family, began living on the 300 acres mentioned, and in a house “built in 1688 by William Dockwra.” The origin of this statement, or belief, is unknown, but it cannot be all true, for Dockwra never came to New Jersey. (See QUARTERLY, Vol. VI, p. 12, footnote, for references). Probably the house was erected by the elder Fisher, himself; or it may be that the present structure, so long supposed to date from 1688, was con-

constructed by the younger Hendrick. Proofs are wanting, though without doubt the house is one of the oldest if not the oldest existing residence in the County.²

As to the younger Hendrick it is certain he had no advanced education, but must have been entirely self-made. In those days schools were few and New Jersey had no colleges. He is said to have become a mechanic as well as farmer.

Hendrick Fisher, when somewhere near his majority, married, but we only know the Christian name of his wife, Elizabeth. On August 11, 1721, he became a member of the Reformed (Dutch) church at New Brunswick. His residence was about equally distant between the Frelinghuysen church near present Somerville and the Frelinghuysen church in New Brunswick, and he chose to go to New Brunswick. The latter church was at a growing place; the former was just being built (1721) in the open country. The Presbyterian congregation (perhaps already formed) at Bound Brook had no church edifice, and its ministrations were wholly in the English language. As his wife did not join at New Brunswick in 1721, it is to be assumed he had not yet married, and this seems evident a priori from the fact that his oldest known child was not born until 1726. It is to be supposed, therefore, that he married about 1725, when twenty-eight years of age.

One year after he joined the New Brunswick church (1722) Hendrick was made a deacon of that church, and also of its co-church at Six-Mile Run; and again in 1725; and in 1727 he was chosen elder, and, with repeated elections, he remained an elder at New Brunswick, if not also at Six-Mile Run, for certainly nearly fifty years, perhaps to the end of his life. While his last recorded election at New Brunswick was in 1765, we know he was an elder serving both New Brunswick and Six-Mile Run in 1772. ("Ecc. Rec. of N. Y.," p. 4246). He was then as such elder attending a meeting in New York City to heal the divisions in the two Reformed ecclesiastical bodies, and with perfect results.

As to Hendrick's religious life, there is not too much to be said of its fervor, activity and strong influence. He became as his years increased a pronounced Pietist in the best sense of that word; not a rapturous, mystic Pietist, such as those of that name who developed almost into a sect in the Lutheran Church in Germany at a rather later period, but an evangelist, a lay preacher of the most burning and impassioned words of Christ as narrated in the Gospels. He partook of the temperament of his religious teacher, Theodorus Jacobs Frelinghuysen, and to such an extent that the latter called him and set him apart as his "helper" in Christian work and in lay preaching in 1736. Thereafter he is said to have frequently preached in churches (in the absence of the pastor) and catechised children, and references have been made to sermons published by him, but, if that be true, the titles and dates I have nowhere discovered.

When Hendrick was elected as a deacon in 1722 there were those at Six-Mile Run who opposed his appointment "on the ground of unfavorable reports against his character." But Domine Frelinghuysen espoused his cause and ordained him. (See Messler's "Mem. Sermon and History Notes," p. 180). It is to be judged that at this time the "reports," probably untruthful, were largely the outcome of his progressive but strict religious views, which were what got Frelinghuysen himself into his troubles, although history has proven the latter was right and his views such as served mightily to build up the church at large in all this section of the State. Into the controversy which now began and lasted bitterly for nearly thirty long years, with a much longer separation of two separate bodies in the Reformed Dutch Church, Hendrick Fisher threw himself with ardor, as may be seen by reading the records sent over to Holland and published within the last seventeen years. (See "Ecclesiastical Records of the State of New York"—really both of New York and New Jersey—secured in Holland by Rev. Edward T. Corwin, and published by the State of New York in 1904 5, where consult Index). He is said not only to have spoken, but to have published his sentiments in pamphlet form. (Ibid, p. 2305).

The Rev. Frelinghuysen, in order to exhibit properly to persons outside of his fold his evangelical views as preached by him, published various sermons in Dutch as early as 1730. Five of them were "translated" by Hendrick Fisher into English, and published in that language.

The Coetus party in the Reformed (Dutch) church held many meetings between 1737 and 1754, usually in New York City, and Fisher was invariably one of the delegates as an Elder, and often served on the most important committees: frequently as the only Elder on such committees.

In the "Charter of the Five Churches," of New Brunswick, Raritan, Six-Mile Run, Millstone and North Branch, granted by Governor Belcher in 1753, he is named as one of the corporators, and of the Board of Trustees of this incorporation he was made President. In fact by this time he had become the most prominent, most active and, seemingly, the most responsible of all the elders in the Somerset County Dutch churches, taking therein much of the leading character which he later sustained in the civil and political history of the State. His name continues in the records as transmitted to Holland in this same character (as leading elder) onward until 1772 and, without doubt, he maintained such position and preeminence till his death.

While all this religious work, including the controversies that fill hundreds of pages in the ecclesiastical records, were going on and Fisher's heart and mind must have been full of it, he was giving attention to the civil government of the State. As this, however, was but preliminary to the greater project of establishing a free Republic, which unfolded itself during the War of the Revolution, and in which he performed so active and lofty a part, I shall first allude to his interest in the establishment of Queen's (afterward Rutgers') College, and his official standing in connection with it, as that preceded the Revolution.

The proposition was made by various ministers in the Dutch church at least as early as 1755 to found a college of learning somewhere in the general vicinity of New York. It assumed growing proportions until 1766, when Governor Franklin of New Jersey granted a charter. Its contents is not precisely known, as it is not on record. The actual charter used, a new one, was granted by the same Governor in 1770, on Hendrick Fisher's petition, for under the first charter a board of trustees was formed, and of it Hendrick Fisher was made president; his petition, therefore, was as President of this Board. It is apparent that he was active in securing the first charter (he was already one of the most prominent men in the New Jersey Assembly), and also that as a business man, qualified to preside over a body of much more learned men, he stood out as a leader. He was also made President of the Board of Trustees under the 1770 charter. He assisted to raise money in and about New Brunswick to aid in the establishment of Queen's and its site was fixed in that City, in fact in Somerset County, because (among other reasons) he, with Rev. Dr. Jacob R. Hardenbergh (pastor of the Somerset County Freeholding churches, and who later became the first President of the College), had secured a large amount of subscriptions in its vicinity. Arguments for a location at Hackensack and elsewhere were numerous and importunate, but it is certain that our rugged old "Samuel Adams of Somerset," as Fisher has been called, used more persuasive arguments for the site of New Brunswick. Unhappily the proceedings running over many years after the founding of this College are largely unknown, even the minutes of the early Board or Boards of Trustees having, somehow, perished.

That before Queen's College was proposed Hendrick Fisher was desirous that the best possible facilities be given for the education of the youth is apparent from the fact that in 1764 he was one of those to sell tickets for the lottery to raise £3,000 for the College of New Jersey at Princeton, the Assembly bill for which he himself had presented. ("N. J. Archives," Vol. XXIV, p. 294).
Just how long Hendrick Fisher remained a member of the Board of Trustees seems not to be known, but probably for several years.

I now come to the civil and patriotic career of this German-American patriot, for such he was to the very narrow.

The part he took in the civil affairs of the State up to the Revolution, soon after which, from old age, he was obliged to retire to a quieter life, will never be fully known, for the newspapers of those days reported only cold facts, and not the personal activities or even speeches in the State Legislature and Conventions of the people. Resolutions adopted and statutory acts passed were put in print, but the most interesting underlying facts were forever relegated to silence. We can, however, glean much that is significant from the plain records.

For example, we know that in 1740, when he was forty-two years of age, and during the church troubles and activities that so engrossed his mind, he was called on by his fellow-citizens to go to the Assembly. He was elected, with John Van Middleswart as associate. But, as he had only become regularly naturalized in 1739, he was declared ineligible to hold the office. He stated to the Assembly his reasons for believing he was eligible, that he "thought the Act in Queen Anne's reign which naturalized others included himself." However, Thomas Leonard took his place, and Mr. Fisher had to await the lawful time, and then, five years later (1745), he was again elected and took his seat along with Mr. Van Middleswart, and so worthily held it that for thirty years afterward he was still a member of the New Jersey Assembly. That body met sometimes at Perth Amboy, sometimes at Burlington, and in later years at Trenton. This is a longer consecutive period than anyone in New Jersey, so far as my knowledge goes, has ever occupied a seat in either one or both branches of our Legislature.

For a year or two, or until 1747, we find no record of special honors being conferred upon the new member. Then they began to multiply and he became chairman of this and that important Committee. Some of these have been noted in the tribute to Mr. Fisher paid by Rev. T. E. Davis, formerly of Bound Brook, in his address upon Fisher's life and character before the New Jersey Historical Society in 1899. ("Proceedings of N. J. Historical Society," Third Series, Vol. IV, p. 129).§

I note many of the matters mentioned by Mr. Davis, but am glad to be able to add new ones, which probably escaped his attention. In point of fact, to develop all that Mr. Fisher did in the Assembly, even up to 1765, when the Stamp Act was promulgated, would be to produce a volume, for the Minutes of the Assembly and of the Governor's Council are full of attestations of his activity and zeal for the best interests, not alone of his County but of the State. As Mr. Davis has well said of his Assembly labors: "No man was so frequently honored, no man so often entrusted with important duties, nor so often the chairman of important Committees. If a message was to be sent to the Governor or the Council, in nearly every case Hendrick Fisher was the chairman of such Committee. Changes or revision of existing statutes, or the adoption of new laws, were submitted to a Committee of which Hendrick Fisher was a member. If a petition was to be sent to His Majesty, the King, or to His Excellency, the Governor, the one man selected to prepare and send or carry such message was the tried and the true Hendrick Fisher."

§This fine tribute by Mr. Davis is the only extended sketch of Mr. Fisher's life ever published, and the present writer is indebted to it for some facts that otherwise might have been overlooked.

In 1746-'7, when the Expedition to Canada was on foot, in the War against France, New Jersey sent troops thither, and Hendrick Fisher was one of the Commissioners appointed by the Legislature to disburse the State's necessary funds.

In 1748 he was chairman of the Committee to burn cancelled bills of credit—another most responsible position.

In 1749 there were troubles still unsettled between the Assembly and the lately deceased Governor, Lewis Morris. Mr. Fisher was placed on a Committee to settle matters.

In 1750 there was again a Northern Expedition and Fisher was one of two in charge of fitting out the forces. In this his young son, Minne, assisted, as bills for the expenditures show.

In 1754 an Act was passed to issue £50,000 in bills to assist in dispossessing the French from lands on the Ohio, and for other measures of defense, and Mr. Fisher was the second of four inspectors named to be "inspectors of the press," i.e., to see that the printer properly performed his duty.

In 1755 Colonel Schuyler was sent on an expedition to the North and Mr. Fisher was the chief of two Commissioners to supply the forces with guns, tents, ammunition, etc.

In 1759 the Governor appointed him Judge of Somerset County and also of the Oyer and Terminer.

In 1761, when the State was raising money by lottery to repay itself for loans to purchase the claims of Indians to New Jersey for lands still held by them, Mr. Fisher was one of the managers.

During all these years Mr. Fisher was introducing bills and serving on very important Committees, but it is unnecessary to occupy space to name them, as they were such as belong to every Legislature.

He really "came into his own," however, to use a modern phrase, when the English Parliament passed the Stamp Act in 1765. As a result of the intense indignation throughout the Colonies, during which Patrick Henry in Virginia obtained his first great fame in the immortal "Cæsar, had-his-Brutus" speech, what is known as the First Colonial Congress met in October of that year in New York City, to which nine States sent delegates. New Jersey's delegation was Robert Ogden, Hendrick Fisher and Joseph Borden. The thirteen resolutions passed by Congress were, first, dutiful toward the mother country, but, second, positive as to the rights of the Colonies. Fisher was the main spokesman there for New Jersey, and on his return to the Assembly he reported for the Committee. (For full report see "N. J. Archives," Vol. XXIV, p 682). He and Mr. Borden were then specially thanked for their "faithful and judicious discharge of the trust reposed in them." Mr. Ogden had not endorsed the action of the Congress and had not subscribed to it.

In April, 1768, the New Jersey Assembly had resolved to send a direct petition to the King of England "Praying relief from the Acts of Parliament imposing a duty [on the Colonies] for the purpose of raising a revenue." Of the strong committee of six appointed for this purpose Mr. Fisher was chairman. There is now no means of ascertaining what hand he had in drawing this petition, but it was most respectful, even eulogistic of the King (who, we know, was born of German (Hanoverian) parents, and, as later appeared so strongly, was a thorough Prussian in his manners and obstinacy), and "supplied" the clemency of His Majesty, requesting that he "be graciously pleased to take into consideration our unhappy circumstances, and to afford us such relief as your Majesty's wisdom shall judge to be most proper." (See full text in "N. J. Archives," Vol. X, p. 18).

This same year Mr. Fisher, when it came to a re-election, felt that it was probably the last time he would go to the Assembly. Age was creeping along. He allowed himself to be again elected (on June 21), his associate now being Justice John Berrien, of Rocky Hill. This election at Millstone was described in the "New York Gazette" of July 4th as "carried on with the greatest coolness and good order, no reflecting nor abusive words heard during the whole election" (referring, no doubt, to the fact that since 1765 at every polls there were disputations as to the result of the Stamp Acts). Mr. Fisher made an address to the voters at the close of the count at the polls, which so clearly shows the quality, the character, of the man that I present it in full:

"Dear Friends and Gentlemen Voters:

"Press with a due sense of gratitude for the repeated and dis-tistinguishing marks of your sincere respect for my person, the honors you have conferred on me are very obliging; trusting your delicate and most tender concerns again into my hands is really affecting. By this you not only approve of my former, but pledge your honor to my future conduct. I am at a loss for words on this renewed occasion to express the grateful sentiments of my enlarged mind; I must, therefore content myself, returning you my humble, my most hearty thanks, and refer the proof of my sincerity and this assertion to my future actions. Permit me, nevertheless, at this time to congratulate you on the promising appearance of your numerous and tender offspring, treading in the patriot steps of you, their aged parents; a prospect the more agreeable as patriotism in many places, at this time, is become a martyr. Very sensible I am of my inferior abilities to many in this county, but as to real satisfaction and sincere delight in promoting your best interest and preserving your civil and religious rights I except none.

"Having spent a considerable part of the appointed number of my days in the public service, I am now arrived to that period which would have made it very agreeable to have spent the remainder of my moments in a more inactive and a retired life. But, on considering the distressed circumstances of the Province, and the repeated solicitations of my friends, I have consented once more to stand your candidate, which, however, in all probability will be my last. God grant that it may be for your interest and His glory."

The New York newspaper which makes the report of this address adds that the people "very thankfully accepted it," and "in testimony whereof gave three huzzas. After which Mr. Berrien gave a handsome treat to those that were willing to accept of it." It also states that the number of voters then (1768) going to the Somerset polls were "increased to more than double the number since the first electing of Mr. Fisher in the year 1739."

In 1769 he was chairman of the Committee of the Assembly to confer with the Committee of Council on the subject of the boundary line between New Jersey and New York, a matter not settled until 1772, after nearly a century of strife.

Soon following this we find, on October 12, 1769, that Mr. Fisher made a most advanced proposal to the Assembly, it being that thereafter the discussion of public business should be with open instead of closed doors. All important business theretofore had been conducted in private. He believed in the right of the public to know what its public servants were doing, and his words are thus reported:

"Mr. Speaker: Although it has been a custom of long standing for the House of Assembly of this Colony to transact public business with

According to the best information obtainable, Somerset had a population in 1739 of about 5,000, and in 1768 it could hardly have been much over 8,500. This, however, does not contravene the statement in the text as to the increased number of voters going to the polls.
the doors of the House shut, yet, as at this time particularly a contrary practice will be more agreeable both to the custom of Parliament and the sentiments of the people of this Province, I move that the doors of this House, agreeably to the practice of the House of Commons, be opened, that all persons may, if they think proper, be present at any public debate, under the same rules and regulations observed in the House of Commons."

This motion was unanimously carried, and this order, so obtained, has remained the custom of the House of Assembly to this day.

Events thus developed slowly but surely between the Colonial Congress in New York of 1765 and the more eventful years of 1774 and 1775, and we know of Mr. Fisher that he stood firm with New Jersey and the other Colonies in every action they took against the acts of England designed to enslave America, and also against such acts of Governor Franklin as laid his loyalty to the State open to the charge that it was wholly subordinated to loyalty to England.

One of the matters that came up in 1766 was the subject of continuing the barracks at Perth Amboy, Burlington, Trenton, New Brunswick, and Elizabethtown, those having existed in New Jersey from 1758, and having been kept up for quartering the King's troops. The Assembly that year voted a refusal longer to continue these barracks, although, subsequently, rescinding it. In 1770 Mr. Fisher was upon the Commission to keep the barracks in necessary repair with unlimited powers as to expense; and we know they were well repaired and furniture placed therein, so that they served their purpose later for American soldiers when they were not in the possession of the British forces.

In those trying times men's characters were attacked publicly in the press with far more venom than to-day, and defended just as vigorously. If anyone now doubts this he has but to read the personal communications of this nature in the newspapers of those days. Mr. Fisher was no exception to the rule, but was occasionally attacked for his outspokenness and the fact that he was given so many positions of responsibility. One particular attack was made in some newspaper in 1772. I have been unable to find this, but the reply, written, doubtless, by some friend, appeared in the "New York Gazette" of May 25 of that year, and from it one may assume it was based upon a previous article in the same journal, as it referred to the fact that seventeen years before Mr. Fisher was one of the two Commissioners to supply the forces of Col. Schuyler with guns, etc. The defense uses some language which will bear quotation:

"Your scandalous libel was wrote (sic) with an intent only to blacken the character of a man who is an honor to the county he represents, and deserves the highest commendation for his upright and exemplary behavior during a long series of years, which have been entirely devoted to the service of his county and the Province in general. . . . Contrary to your intention as well as inclination you have shown him to be (what he really is) a man of consequence in the House of Assembly, who can in a short time bring over a number of honest members (as you call them) to his opinion, which must have been done entirely by force of argument, as they could not be bribed: from which it appears he is really qualified for the place and trust reposed in him. If you had only perused the Minutes [of the House of Assembly] and gone back to the year 1755, when Mr. Fisher was first appointed a Commissioner, you might have seen that he, in conjunction with Mr. Spicer, took that burden upon themselves to reduce the commission from 5 to 2 per cent., by which means they have saved the Province several hundred pounds. . . . You have opened the eyes of the people concerning him, and he is now more than ever in their favor and esteem. And, notwithstanding his old age, and anything he said to prevent it, they have again elected him their representative, . . . to the utter shame and confusion of his enemies and the entire satisfaction of a very large majority of the freeholders of the county of Somerset, as appears by their poll of election.” (See letter in full in “N. J. Archives,” Vol. XXVIII, p. 147).⁸

Probably the reference to Mr. Fisher’s reélection is to his actual last election subsequent to that of 1768, viz., 1772, of which no particulars appeared in the newspapers of the day.

In 1773 the Virginia Assembly set the example of Colonial Committees of Correspondence, and urged other Colonies to follow its example. New Jersey answered it by appointing a standing “Committee to obtain early knowledge of legislation by Parliament affecting the liberties of America and to maintain correspondence with other Colonies.” Of this Committee Fisher was an active member, and in February, 1774, if not earlier, he was its chairman, thus taking precedence over even such a learned and strong man on the Committee as Elias Boudinot, who was President of the United States Congress ten years later. In January, 1775, ten members of the Assembly were appointed a Committee on Grievances, and of this also Mr. Fisher was chairman. This Committee brought in a petition in which the various grievances of America against England, as so often detailed in substance by all the Colonies, were clearly set forth.

Previously, on September 5, 1774, a Continental Congress had assembled in Philadelphia, and a general Declaration of Rights was passed. In January, 1775, these proceedings were regularly laid before the New Jersey Assembly, and then followed the appointment of the Fisher Committee on Grievances just alluded to.

⁸In Prof. Edgar J. Fisher’s “New Jersey as a Royal Province,” (p. 87) he describes Hendrick Fisher as having “the ability to think independently and act without considering the popularity of his conduct,” which is the highest kind of praise.
With the news of the Battle of Lexington in late April it came New Jersey's turn to have a State Provincial Congress, and it was swiftly called by Mr. Fisher as chairman of the Committee of Correspondence for May 23, 1775. That Hendrick Fisher was considered a leader and capable executive officer again appeared at this Congress, for he was made President of the Congress; and it also appears that the honors of being Secretary and Assistant Secretaries also fell to Somerset. Jonathan D. Sergeant, of Princeton, became Secretary, and William Paterson, of Karitan, and Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Millstone, Assistants.

No greater fame could befall Mr. Fisher than this, for he was now on toward eighty years of age: a rugged specimen. I doubt not, of thoroughly seasoned manhood, still virile, still magnificent in his untimorizing patriotism.

Before this Congress met it was necessary for each county to elect delegates to it, and Somerset County elected its delegates on May 11th. But this was not the first of the Somerset meetings of citizens, called together each time by Hendrick Fisher, to consider the general state of affairs. As has been heretofore fully published in the QUARTERLY (Vol. V, p. 241 et seq.), there were meetings July 4, 1774, and December 15, 1774, as well as on this occasion of May 11, 1775, at all of which Mr. Fisher presided, and he was also appointed at the head of the Somerset Committee of Correspondence. Our readers should consult the proceedings at these Somerset meetings to secure a proper idea of how Mr. Fisher, with such strong coadjutants as President Witherspoon, of Princeton College, William Paterson, Frederick Frelinghuysen and others, carried the day for strong resolutions. At the May 11th meeting the deputies appointed to attend the State Provincial Congress were: Hendrick Fisher, John Roy, Frederick Frelinghuysen, Enos Kelsey, Peter Schenck, Jonathan D. Sergeant, Nathaniel Ayers, William Paterson and Abraham Van Nest.

To have been President of this First Provincial Congress in its first session of eleven days was the highest honor Fisher could obtain, because, as I take it, his age prevented his having the other, possibly higher but in many respects a lower, honor, of being appointed by this Congress a deputy to the Continental Congress sitting in Philadelphia. There he would have been a member only; here he was presiding officer.

Upon taking the chair as presiding officer of this Congress the minutes for the day (May 29, 1775) say:

'IT is of some interest to know how long these patriotic members from Somerset to the First Provincial Congress of New Jersey survived its meetings in 1775. Hendrick Fisher died in 1778, John Roy in 1780, Frederick Frelinghuysen in 1804, Enos Kelsey in 1811, Peter Schenck (not known), Jonathan D. Sergeant in 1793, William Paterson in 1800, Abraham Van Nest in 1780, Nathaniel Ayers in 1806.'
The President opened to the Congress the important occasion of their meeting; recommended the utmost deliberation in determining on the measures to be pursued in defending those inestimable rights and privileges to which, by our happy Constitution, the inhabitants of this Province are justly entitled; and that due care might be taken to support the established civil authority (so far as might consist with the preservation of their fundamental liberties) for the maintenance of good order and the undisturbed administration of justice."

Only a mere résumé, we doubt not, of what Mr. Fisher said, but truly exhibiting the right type of common sense. Then and at all times, so far as I can gather, he was a man of genuine common sense as well as of integrity.

At the following meetings, begun in October, he surrendered his office to a younger man, Samuel Tucker, of Hunterdon County, and took the subordinate and less responsible position of Vice-President. Even then, however, he was constrained to serve as chairman of various extremely responsible Committees and Commissions. For example, he was at once (October 28, 1773,) named first of four Commissioners for East New Jersey to receive of the Colony Treasurer all such moneys as such Commissioners found it necessary to expend under resolutions to furnish the inhabitants with ammunition and other military stores and to put the Colony "into some proper posture of defense." This Commission was to act, in conjunction with a similar West Jersey Commission, in the purchase of 3,000 stand of arms, 10 tons of gunpowder, 20 tons of lead, a train of artillery, etc., and in supplying troops with subsistence. There were to be issued £30,000 in bills, which the Commissioners were to sign and of which one-eighth was to be distributed to Commissioner Fisher. On the same day a Committee of Safety was appointed, and, as Vice-President, Mr. Fisher became a member of that Committee to act during the recess of the Congress. (He had previously, August 17, been made chairman of a similar Committee to act during the previous recess.) His service on this matter was short, however. When the final Committee of Safety that was so important in the Revolution came to be appointed in 1777, he had retired to private life, and was undoubtedly too aged to be thought of for the wearing and active duties and the extensive traveling which that Committee had to perform.

When in February, 1776, £50,000 in paper money was to be issued, Mr. Fisher was one of four whose signatures were to be on the bills, and again was Commissioner to purchase arms, powder, lead, camp equipage, etc. It is interesting to note that, when this money came to be issued, some of the bills, which had been signed by two Commissioners, John Hart, of Hopewell, and Samuel How. of Burlington County, and had been passed over to Mr. Fisher and Azariah Dunham, the two other Commissioners, to be signed. "were plundered by the enemy from one of the persons appointed to sign them before he had put his name to the same." We do not know from whom the theft was, but the fact appears from an advertisement in newspapers of February, 1777, wherein the public was cautioned against taking any bills dated February 20, 1776, "unless they have three signers' names thereto."

The same month Mr. Fisher reported in the Provincial Congress from a special Committee of which he was chairman, a draft of a program to raise a third Battalion of troops, to consist of eight companies, and the same was agreed to. This Congress adjourned the second of March. On July 16, 1776, the day before the Provincial Congress finally dissolved, which was twelve days after the Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, Mr. Fisher's name appears for the last time on the official records. Therein he is spoken of in his position as one of the Commissioners for purchasing arms, etc., who were now asked to receive and pay for lead for the use of the army, the same to include "leaden weights from chimneys and clocks, and all leaden weights of shops, stores and mills of one pound weight and upward," etc.

It was during this year, in November, that Lord Howe offered amnesty to all American "Rebels" who would return to their allegiance in sixty days. He excepted, among others, Hendrick Fisher, and also his neighbors, Tobias Van Norden and Abraham Staats, of Bound Brook, as being "arch traitors." In December some British troops raided Fisher's house and farm, and again in April, 1777, taking 30 head of cattle, £45 in money and other articles amounting in all to £145.10, but, fortunately, they did not capture the "Rebel!"

With the United Colonies declared to be "free and independent States" Hendrick Fisher was satisfied to leave office and to retire to his Somerset farm, for the two remaining years of his life. His full duty as a citizen, as a College trustee, as a religious officer and evangelist, as a State official, had now been performed. There is every reason to believe that in the sunset of his life he thanked God sincerely for what "Says Mr. Davis, following a well-known and doubtless nearly authentic tradition in Bound Brook: "When the Declaration of American Independence became a reality, no man was more rejoiced than Hendrick Fisher. Securing a copy he rode swiftly home, and gathering his friends and neighbors around him, in Bound Brook, in front of the old historic Frelinghuysen hotel, he read aloud to his loyal constituents that immortal declaration of freedom and equality. So great was their joy and enthusiasm that, when he had finished, they took the old patriot and carried him on their shoulders through the town, while the old bell from Holland in the Presbyterian Church tower, and cannon on the hill, enlivened the occasion." The reference to the "Frelinghuysen Hotel" is to the Middlebrook hotel, on front of which in later years was a great sign containing a portrait of Major-General Frederick Frelinghuysen.

he, a plain farmer and mechanic, had been able to do for his county, State and country, and was content, like Simeon of old, to depart in peace. At the age approximating four-score-and-one he slept with his fathers, and was buried on his own farm, near the banks of the Raritan. On the sandstone slab above his grave we still may read:

"In memory of HENDRICK FISHER, who departed this life August 16, 1779(?) in the 82d year of his age."

To which is added the verse so often used on tombstones of that day, beginning, "My flesh shall slumber in the ground," etc.

In reference to this year-date (1779), which is certainly upon Hendrick's tombstone (see reproduction in frontispiece facing page 1 of this number) and which has always been cited as the year of the death, I remark that it must be an error for 1778, as his will was probated May 15, 1779, three months before "August 16, 1779." It seems probable therefore, that he died in 1778 (supposing the "August 16th" is correct). The discrepancy may be accounted for by the supposition that the stone was erected some years after 1779 and an erroneous year was given to the stonecutter, or that the stonecutter made an error: something not so uncommon as may be supposed.

Hendrick Fisher's will, as it appears of record at Trenton (Book 21, p. 106), was dated February 1, 1778. On comparing the record with the original, the singular fact appears that the copyist altered the spelling of words to make it conform to the English language. In the original the spelling is very far from correct. For example: "aperle" for apparel, "Ingeland" for England, etc. In this respect it is much like, though possibly a slight improvement on the draft of an earlier will (of 1774) now in possession of the New Brunswick Historical Society, as published in "No. 1" of its pamphlets, which was issued by that Society in 1887. I am not clear, however, that Hendrick himself drafted these wills, and would need to see actual verified specimens of his writings before coming to a conclusion about it.

Hendrick's final will, as stated, was dated February 1, 1778, and was probated May 15, 1779. The beginning paragraphs as recorded (being corrected in the spelling and with present-day capitalizations) reads:

"All Mighty and Eternal God. As I am by Thy grace enabled to rest satisfied in the hopes of Eternal Life thro' Thy dear Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, for whom I bless Thee, to whom with Thyself and Holy Conforter be rendered honor and glory forever more; O Lord, as my appointed time draws near, and though of a weak constitution yet through Thy love and goodness arrived to the period of the strong, and being at present in health and sound mind, I would now, agreeably to Thy command, set nine house in order. Please, O Lord, to direct and assist me therein and grant Thy blessing with [upon] my legatees hereinafter mentioned, and that they may receive them in love and enjoy them in peace, to Thy honor and glory, Amen. In hopes whereof I do, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, make this my last will and testament, in form and manner following."

He then makes provision for his wife, Elizabeth, of wearing apparel, bed, etc.; gives her his negro boy Minck, £100 in cash, room in his house, and board and expenses which his youngest son Jeremiah is to provide. To son, Hendrick, negro, Nance, £250, and also a mortgage the father holds on said Hendrick’s “house and lands at Bound Brook, it being for £253,” with certain conditions. To son, John, “the plantation he now lives on with everything appertaining,” but he to pay his (John’s) son Minne £50 when coming of age. To son, Abraham, “the plantation whereon he now lives,” with everything thereon, but he to pay to his brother, Minne, £100. To children of his daughter, Elizabeth, a negro boy, Ben, and £85. To children of his daughter, Nellie, £125. To daughter, Margaret, £125, to be paid by Jeremiah. To daughter, Mary (Maria), £60. To granddaughter, Mary Fulkerson, a negro girl, Rachel, and £75. To children of son, Vulkert, £100. Wearing apparel and books to his sons. Linen (such as were not given to wife) to daughters, Mary and Margaret, and granddaughter, Mary Fulkerson. Residue of real and personal estate to Jeremiah. A final paragraph reads:

"And whereas the present struggles with England may in their consequences make some alterations in my estate, my will in that case is that the hereby granted legacies shall be altered in proportion, so as to answer the true intent and meaning of this my last will and testament."

The inventory of the personal estate on file at Trenton show its value as £4,759.12.6. The witnesses to the will were Abraham Staats, Edward Duff and Andrew Gibb. The executors named were, his son Jeremiah, and his friends John Schureman and Abraham Staats, but only Jeremiah qualified.

I have only mentioned as a fact that Mr. Fisher was a Judge of the Somerset Common Pleas and Oyer and Terminer after March 19, 1750. He was reappointed in 1767, 1768, 1769 and 1770. The records of this Court being burned in 1779 we cannot now ascertain how frequently he sat on the Somerset Bench, but undoubtedly from 1759 he was known as "Judge Fisher." Previous thereto, 1754-5, he served for one year as Collector of Bridgewater township. In this last named record he seems to have been known as "Hendrick, Jr.," the only instance which has come to light to indicate the use of a "Jr."

His signature has been alluded to. So far as appears, he signed his surname in earlier days "Visscher," or "Visser," but latterly "Fisher," by which name he appears in the Assembly and Provincial Congress records.

On July 11, 1748, when he advertised in the "New York Gazette" a 200-acre farm for sale (across the Raritan River from where he lived), his name appears in the advertisement as "Visser." ("N. J. Archives," Vol. XIII, p. 466). If he personally signed the letter in 1759 sent to the Classis of Amsterdam (as appearing in "Eccles. Records of N. Y.," p. 3745), he then wrote his name "Hendrik Visscher." But the following is his signature to his 1778 will:

In Davis's "First Houses in Bound Brook" (p. 22), it is said that "Hendrick Fisher" owned a house in that place from "before 1720" to 1765. There is, however, no evidence that either father or son ever lived in Bound Brook proper, and Hendrick, Jr., certainly never parted with his farm.

So far as I am aware there has been no complete statement published of Hendrick Fisher's children, where all resided, whom they married, etc. He appears to have had, in all, eleven children. Procurable facts respecting them may be given in the next Quarterly.

One matter more. The memory of so valuable and great a patriot of Somerset ought not to be allowed to be kept in remembrance by only the small slab of stone which covers his grave upon his Franklin township farm. That will not survive the centuries and the overturning plow, or, if it should, it is wholly inadequate. One of the present patriotic Somerset Societies should rear a granite monument in its place, either along the roadside adjoining the farm, or at Bound Brook, or Somerville, to indicate and emphasize the heroic virtues of

HENDRICK FISHER—THE TRUE GERMAN-AMERICAN.11

"The only visible memento of this man besides his tombstone in a field is a tablet placed on the old Queen's College building at New Brunswick in October, 1916, by the Society of Colonial Wars, the reading of which may be found in a previous Quarterly (Vol. VI, p. 77).
THE MAJOR THOMAS TALMAGE FAMILY NARRATIVE

"Tidings of Lexington reached us in April, 1775, and then the news that the British had shot down a number of our people at Charlestown, Mass. This caused great excitement, and Committees of Safety and Companies of Militia were organized in each county. Lord Stirling, who had charge of the Somerset troops, was first at the front.

"In the year of 1777 we had left Basking Ridge and removed to Sussex County (Wantage Township) and I and my wife and babe were living under my father's roof.

"No great alarm was felt until in the spring of 1778. We then heard that the Tories and Indians were menacing the people at Minisink. Only the Blue Mountain lay between us and this danger some ten miles away, and we knew not at what moment we might be attacked, nor what their malicious disposition might prompt them to do. Several of this Tory band had lived in the neighborhood, and we feared they would lead the Indians to our settlement and that a massacre would result.

"My wife being at that time with child it was thought prudent to remove her to her parents' home at Baskingridge, some sixty miles distant. We determined to set out that night and go as far as possible. We drove

"Lord William Campbell, Governor of South Carolina, had formerly been in the British Navy. Having now, 1775, three men-of-war in the harbor, Captain Tolemache, of the Scorpion, and his Lordship proposed an attack upon Fort Johnson, but Captain Thornbrough, of the Tamar, declined to join in it. This was a great disappointment to Tolemache, for he avowed he could have laid the town (Charleston) in ashes. He expected a re-inforcement of two frigates and a bomb vessel and he declared the town could surely be destroyed. Unable to carry out this project, he decided to distress the people who were in active rebellion. On Dec. 6th, Tolemache seized two ships, one of which was a sum of money in specie consigned to Messrs. Samuel and Benjamin Lagarde of Charles Town. The money was turned over to Lord Campbell. The brothers Legarde determined on reprisal and, with a party of the light infantry company, of which they were members, seized and carried away Lord William's horses and chariot. The Council repudiated their conduct and ordered the chariot and horses returned to Lady Campbell, but she indignantly refused to receive them." (History of South Carolina McCrady, p. 98).

"Last week arrived here the fleet from England under convoy of His Majesty's ship, the Experiment, 30 guns, Sir James Wallace, Commander; the Bristol, 30 guns, J. Reamer, Esq., Commander, and the Zebra, Hon. J. Talmash, Esq., brother of the Right Honorable, the Earl of Dysart, with Lord Howe and Asten, Ordnance Transports. There were about three thousand soldiers in the fleet. The evening after their arrival a duel was fought with swords at Hull's between the Hon. John Talmash and Capt. Ralph Pennington of the Guards, in which the former was wounded and expired immediately. Captain Talmash's corpse was decently buried in Trinity churchyard. [New York City] last Saturday. It is said the duel was occasioned by a sonnet written by Pennington, which Talmash took to be a reflection upon the wit of his lady." (New York Gazette, Sept., 1777).

So far as known, the above are the only persons of our name to have taken an active part in the measures of the British Government against the revolted Colonies.
some thirteen miles and then, feeling secure, put up till the morning. The evening of the following day we reached her home. Her father, Captain Goyn\(^3\) McCoy, had just returned from Monmouth battle. They seemed glad to see us, but I felt I must return at once to my father’s farm. Harvest and hay time were coming on, which made my being there necessary. My heart was heavy at leaving my dear wife, and strange forebodings that I should never again see her sweet face filled my mind, due probably to her uncommonly bulky appearance.

“I found upon my return that the militia had been ordered out, as the trouble at Minisink grew worse. We left for the frontier that night. I had enlisted in Captain Abram Ten Eyck’s Company and was Orderly Sergeant. We were away about a fortnight. During that time some of the early harvesting on the flats was begun and I labored with the others until we were dismissed to return home. I began, however, to feel very unwell the last day. Toward evening my Captain (Ten Eyck) sent me orders that I was to set out immediately and summon his men to appear at a place of rendezvous as the enemy had again become active at Minisink.\(^4\) My illness was becoming more acute, but it was my duty to obey and I delivered most of the messages that night.”

In this connection the following poem by M. H. Burrell may deserve a place in the Quarterly:

Thomas Talmage’s Ride, 1777

On The Frontier

“Post haste!” came the orders. “Ride, summon our men
To rally to rendezvous, losing no time,
The Tories and Injuns are massing again—
Delaying a moment will count as a crime.”

And, deliv’ring the note from Captain Ten Eyck,
The dust-covered runner scarce paused, as he said:

“Ev’ry man with his gun must be on the pike Tomorrow at sunrise, there’s fighting ahead.”

\(^3\)No doubt a perverted spelling of the Scotch Gowen, or Goven.

\(^4\)“A number of raids were made during that and the following year (1777-1778). The British had allied themselves with the Indians under the Mohawk chief, Brant, and they urged them on to massacre the settlers—to spare neither age nor sex.

“The members of three families were slaughtered north of the Neversink. A short time after this the savages returned and carried away a Mr. Patterson and his two small sons, and killed Mr. Anthony Swartwout and three of his sons.

“The following week the schoolhouse was attacked and Mr. Vanauken, the school-master, was slaughtered, and the children would have shared the same fate had it not been for the appearance of a muscular Indian, who suddenly came into their midst, and with a brush dashed some black paint across the aprons of the little girls, and bade them hold up the mark when they saw an Indian coming and it would save them. With the yell of a savage he then plunged into the woods and disappeared. This was Brant and the little settlers were thus saved; likewise their brothers, to whose coats they managed to transfer some of the paint. These and many other atrocities were committed before the battle of Lackawaxen or Minisink.”

(From address by B. B. Edsall at Sussex Centenary, 1853).
Tired, sick'ning acutely, young Talmage obeyed,
And at night-fall set out on his dark, hard ride
To warn ev'ry comrade of th' impending raid
And spread the alarm o'er the wide country-side.

The hours had lagged sorely, for Fever's hot hooks
Were sunk in his vitals, and, faint in the sun,
He had cradled and bound and set into shooks
Grain down on the "Flats" till the long day was done.

But Duty still called him, so up and away!
He's off to next neighbor's, the next, next, and then Into stretching deep woods, where ambushed might lay,
All ready to spring, lurking beast or bad men.

Papakating stream then, where stood the grist-mill.
"Ho, Westbrook! Tom Talmage! Alarming! Come out!"
"What news?" cries the miller, with questions a-thrill,
But few words and grave greet his answering shout.

— sick messengers at each house door,
But, declining all rest and refreshment, said
Only a moment, duty-proof to the core.

Spent, at length, in the dawn he feebly
To the bed whereon day and night were the same.
Long weeks while he wrestled with Death on the rack:
But Talmage soon out, as do most of the name.

But to resume the Journal:
"Next morning I mounted my horse very early and had notified all others by noon and then started for my home. I lost my way and rode for hours thro' the wood finding no road. I think I was delirious, for I stopped at a house and asked my way, but of this I had no recollection.
The gentleman afterward told my father he was sure that something was amiss and that I had a strange look in my eyes. When finally I reached home I was so far gone I could not get off my horse. This illness confined me to the bed for two months. It was known as the long fever and my family and friends despaired of my life. My poor wife being told (she not being able to be with me on account of her own condition) took leave of me in her mind and sent up my clothes to lay me out in.

"It was difficult in those days to obtain a physician, but one was brought from a distance and attended me faithfully, applying many blistering plasters and making free use of the barks, but all seemed likely to prove in vain. Every appearance of dissolution was at hand. One night my mother, who was alone with me, heard me cry aloud in a strong and very audible voice as though well. I told her I had good tidings—that Homeward turning, at length, he sought brief repose,
But at dawn-light was out, up, off on his steed,
To warn the still unwarmed of threatening foes
And the summons to rally with all hot speed.

Spent, lagging, next noon-day he feebly rode back
To the bed whereon day and night were the same
Long weeks while he wrestled with Death on the rack;
But Talmage won out, as do most of the name.

my wife had been taken to bed and delivered of a fine son. Whereupon my mother asked me how I knew this. I told her my wife’s brother-in-law, David Lyon, had been there by my bedside. This seemed very extraordinary, so my mother noted the hour. It was just 11 o’clock and the night of Wednesday. On the following Sunday my wife’s father, Capt. McCoy, and David Lyon rode over from Baskingridge with the news that a son had been born to us, and the hour and night were the same as revealed to me and recorded by my mother.

"From that time on my disorder was broken and I recruited rapidly and was soon able to leave my bed. Thus, with Job, as the Psalmist says, did I escape by the skin of my teeth."

"I believe now, as I did then, and always shall, that I was in my right mind when the communication came to me about my son. David Lyon’s visage was so impressed on my mind that, although he has been dead 17 years past his face and form are as familiar as though I had seen him yesterday. How this manifestation came I know not—all things are easy with God. Blessed be His great and glorious name!

"In the fall of that same year (1778) there was another display of Divine Providence. A lecture was to be given one evening by a neighbor’s clergyman and my wife and I started out to walk the mile and a-half. She was a few feet ahead of me, but the night being dark I could only see her outline. Suddenly she gave a distressing outcry. When I came close I found her to my horror in the embrace of a large bear. I called out with great resolution and sprang forward intending to engage him.

"The beast was panic-stricken and, letting go his hold, retired about a rod and sat down on his butt, growling.

My wife was near fainting, but I concluded it would not do to start on lest he should renew his attacks and perhaps destroy us. Stooping down I caught hold of a stone, such as I could manage well, and this I threw at him with as great violence as I could and struck him in the side. Whereupon he got up and moved out of our sight into the wood. Next day a bear was killed in the neighborhood.

"Thus with David did the Lord deliver us—not from the lion’s jaws but out of a bear’s claws.

"Yet another occurrence came into my life which showed in what strange and unthought of ways God works out His will. This happened in the winter of 1780 and we were then living at Piscataway.

"My little son, Goyn, was at that time in the eleventh year of his age

"Goyn Talmage (record of whose birth was given in a former QUARTERLY) was the father of Thomas G. Talmage and three daughters, one of whom married Edward Paterson, a lawyer of Philadelphia, whose son was Judge Paterson of New York City. Thomas G. Talmage was a supporter of Martin Van Buren in 1836 and we were living about two miles below New Brunswick, having removed from Sussex, and I was again pursuing my profession of contractor and builder.

"It was bitterly cold, and in order to get my firewood in with dispatch I had hired it to be cut and stacked. An occasion for hauling soon presenting itself by the fall of a big snow storm, I determined to improve it and so arose early one morning, tackled my horses to the sled and started for the wood. After I had gone some way I looked around and saw my little son perched on the sled behind me. It was exceedingly cold weather, so I halted and ordered him to return immediately to the house. He was about to obey me, when I noticed the tears starting from his eyes. This affected me, and then I observed to him that if he would be so great a blockhead as to join me on so cold a morning for the sake of a ride he might go. And this was the means of saving my life.

"The horses I drove were very wild and unruly, and after placing a load of logs on the sled I climbed up and with the boy beside me started for our place. In passing a stony ridge the load became displaced, and by the jostling of the sled threw me between the forbar and the roller and fastened me down, one of my legs being caught between two of the logs. I was pressed to such a degree that I screamed with all my strength and expected to expire in a few minutes. It was excruciating pain. We were still some distance from the house, and I bade my son to run to his mother and tell her of my situation. Without immediate relief I feared I should soon be in eternity. My wife appeared with one of the servants—a rugged country girl—but they had quite to unload the sled before I could be extricated. I was carried to the house and surgical aid was brought. The muscles of my legs were broken loose and thrown on the top of my and carried on a successful campaign for his election. In 1838 he was appointed a member of the New York Common Council and, later, was President of the Board of Aldermen. In 1840 he removed to Brooklyn, and in the year 1843 was elected Mayor of that city. Later he was appointed Judge of the County Court and Loan Commissioner of the United States Deposit Fund of Kings County.

In the year 1859 Ex-Mayor Talmage was one of a committee chosen to select ground for a public park and parade ground for the city. Prospect Park was the outcome of their endeavor and the Talmage estate and that of his father-in-law, Cornelius Van Brunt, were taken over, much of the land being given to the city.

"Major Talmage refers to his membership in the First Presbyterian Congregation at New Brunswick (1704) as follows: "It fell to my lot to be a representative of our people at the Synod to be held in Newark that year, and I had for my companion a clergyman from a distance who had asked the privilege of a seat in my chair, which I readily granted. We tarried that night at Elizabeth Town, reaching Newark next day."
skin, and the leg itself was as flat as my hand. I lay for many days but was finally perfectly restored. Here again I saw the providential care of God toward me. Had I gone my way alone that morning I would certainly have perished. All these are the Lord’s doings and they are marvelous in my eyes.

"Now that I am become weakly and infirm in my constitution and knowing that ‘it is appointed of all men to die,’ and realizing that I am fast approaching the time when I must go the way of all the earth, and having a number of things in my mind which must go down with me to the grave unless committed to writing, I have thought it my duty to recount these experiences.

"Thus have I shown you something of the bright, but little of the dark side of the picture. I know that God knows all my thoughts and actions, and the motives from which they arise, and the end toward which they tend and at times it frightens me.

"When I look toward His august and holy Throne I conceive something of His awful and transcendent purity, His hatred of sin, His inflexible justice and His determination to punish all workers of iniquity. It is then I am filled with awful fear and am ready to cry out, ‘Who shall stand before such an holy God?’ Then by precious faith I look again and see Jesus twixt me and the holy Throne and know him to be ‘the end of the law of righteousness to every one that believeth,’ and realize that His blood ‘cleanseth us from all sin.’ Then, although I feel weak in myself, yet am I strong.

"And now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling and present us faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy; to the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power both now and forever. Amen."

SOME HAPPENINGS IN EARLY NEW BRUNSWICK

BY MARY J. ATKINSON, NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

As comparatively few readers of the Quarterly have in possession, or have closely read, the many valuable volumes of the “New Jersey Archives,” I have taken the trouble to search out from those volumes a few further matters giving interesting glimpses of early New Brunswick, as published in the newspapers of the time in New England, New York, Philadelphia and Trenton, and have also taken facts from a few other sources. What follows chiefly concerns the period immediately before and during the Revolution, although a much earlier item may well serve to introduce other subjects. 1

The numerous visits of George Whitefield to the English Colonies in America were seasons of remarkable religious development throughout our land. Crowds followed the gifted preacher from place to place, fired by an enthusiasm only equalled by the sainted man's zeal for work.
In his "Journal" of Saturday, April 26, 1740, Whitefield records:

"Set out for Brunswick about eight. Reached thither by four in the afternoon and preached to about 2,000 hearers in the evening.
"Sunday, April 27. Preached morning and evening to near 7 or 8,000 people. And God's power was so much amongst us in the afternoon sermon that, had I proceeded, the cries and groans of the congregation, I believe, would have drowned my voice. One woman was struck down, and a general cry went through the Assembly. We collected both times upwards of £20 sterling for my orphans.

"Monday, April 28. Set out about eight in the morning, and reached Woodbridge by ten, where I preached to about 2,000 people."

From the newspapers of the day we learn further particulars of this missionary tour, for example:

"Philadelphia, April 24. On Monday last the Reverend Mr. Whitefield preached at Greenwich and at Gloster. Yesterday he set out for New York, and was to preach at Neshaminy, this day at Shippack and Frederick Township, tomorrow evening at Amwell; Saturday evening at New Brunswick; and on Sunday at the same place, morning and evening, when collections are to be made for the Orphan House in Georgia.
On Monday he is to preach at Elizabeth Town."

While in the neighborhood of New Brunswick Whitefield was the guest of Dominick Theodorus J. Frelinghuysen, at Three-Mile Run. That opinion as to Whitefield's doctrine was divided may be seen from the treatment he received at the outset of this tour at Newbury, Massachusetts. He preached there for the first time in front of the meeting-house on High street, a few rods south of Federal street. A stone was thrown at him, which nearly struck the Bible from his hand. Raising the book, he responded to this unprovoked assault: "I have a warrant from God to preach. His seal is in my hand and I stand in the King's highway." This scene is recorded by the Rev. S. P. Williams in an historical discourse.

In the "New York Mercury" for February 1, 1768, we find an interesting notice of a school at New Brunswick:

"To the Publick: Notice is hereby given that a school is erected at New Brunswick, in New Jersey, under the inspection of the subscribers, in which the learned languages and mathematicks are carefully and accurately taught, by Caleb Cooper, recommended from Nassau Hall, an able and well accomplished tutor in these and other branches. The conditions are 20s. entrance and £4. per annum, for tuition, proclamation money. Boarding may be had in this town, as good and cheap as can be expected, and to satisfaction, sufficient to accommodate a large school, which, including tuition, will not exceed £20 a year.

"This town, besides its pleasant rural situation, has the superior advantage of a pure and wholesome air, and its concomitant health, to recommend it, properties evinced from long experience by its inhabitants, and the suffrage of gentlemen strangers acquainted with it, of the best judgment and observation. It is also surrounded by an extensive and fertile country, from which it draws constant supplies of every necessary of life in great variety and plenty; and the sea, in the season, has plenty of fish, oysters, etc. To which may be added the ready and easy conveyance of goods, by water or by land, to New York, Philadelphia, and all other parts, as another peculiar advantage it enjoys. And, in a religious view, exceeds any other place in the province, having divine worship in the English Episcopal, the Dutch Reformed, and Presbyterian churches; and as to the inhabitants, with regard to their manners and other social virtues, compared with other places, without prejudice, may be said to be irreproachable. The inspection above proposed is to consist in visiting the school at least once a quarter; to enquire into the deportment of all concerned, and to assist the master and scholars in all necessary regulations with respect to decency and good order, as well as the advancement of learning.

An addition to the advertisement reads:

"This school, from the skill and diligence of the tutor, as well as the uncommon progress which the pupils have made in learning, in less than six months, gives a pleasing prospect of its increase."

During the agitations brought about by the passage of the Stamp Act the lawyers of New Jersey discontinued their practice, a proceeding which complicated a confusion already too trying. The "Pennsylvania Journal" of February 20, 1766, gives notice of a meeting of lawyers in New Brunswick to discuss the resumption of practice, discontinued since the previous November first. The assemblage was waited upon by a deputation of the Sons of Liberty, who expressed their uneasiness at the suspension of law proceedings. It was determined by a majority of the lawyers convened:

"That they would resume their practice the first day of April next, whatever accounts may be received from England, or sooner if earlier intelligence arrives of the determination of Parliament respecting the Stamp Act."

Notices of meetings of the trustees of Queen’s College appear with some regularity in the newspapers from the year 1768, and all read much like the following from the "New York Journal, or General Advertiser" of March 31, 1768:

"Publick notice is hereby given that the Trustees of Queen’s College are to meet the Second Tuesday in May next at New Brunswick. DAVID MARINUS, Clerk."

In 1770 there is notice of a meeting to fix the reopening of Queen’s College at New Brunswick. This meeting was presided over by his Excellency, Governor Franklin. John Laight, Jacob R. Hardenbergh, and Johannes M. Van Harlingen, together with the Tutor, Frederick Frelinghuyzen, were to take direction and government of said Institution.

On May 5, 1778, the public was informed that the business of Queen’s College, formerly carried on in the city of New Brunswick, was begun at North Branch on the Raritan; John Taylor, A. M., Tutor. On Sept. 15, 1778, however, the College commencement is advertised to be held at New Brunswick.

The "New York Gazette and Weekly Post Boy" of May 29th, 1769, contains an article which makes the reader realize the efficiency of modern post-office methods to which we have become so accustomed in contrast with pre-Revolutionary ways:

"On Thursday night last, the Post Boy, that rides between New Brunswick and this city, had his horse stole out of the stable at Brunswick Ferry; and another not being readily to be got, he came off with the mail on his back, and travelled ten miles on foot. by which means we have no Philadelphia newspapers this week, he not being able to bring them along also on his back from New Brunswick. However, they came to hand last night, but we don’t find anything very material in them."

In a New York newspaper of April 10, 1769, is found the regular advertisement of the meeting of the State Medical Society:

"The Members of the New Jersey Medical Society are desired to remember that their next stated General Meeting, will be on the first Tues. in May next, at the House of Mr. Duff in New Brunswick," etc.

"ISAAC SMITH, Secretary."

The house of Mr. Duff was the old White Hall tavern on Albany street.

It seems likely that the zeal of the members of the State Medical fraternity waned when the novelty of the society wore off, for later, Oct. 29, 1770, the customary notice reads:
Some Happenings in Early New Brunswick

"The New Jersey Medical Society meets at the house of Brook Farmer in New Brunswick 13 November next, at eleven o'clock A.M. (if a sufficient number of members are arrived).

"Nathaniel Scudder, Secretary."

The general half-yearly meetings are definitely ordered from this time to be held on the second Tuesdays in November and in May. A notice of the succeeding May meeting is given to be held at the house of the Widow Voorhees. This is signed by Samuel Kennedy as Secretary. Dr. Kennedy was undoubtedly one of the foremost physicians in the State, a man of great skill and learning, and to this day regarded as an ornament to his profession.

From another New York newspaper of Aug. 9, 1770, we read:

"Last week Mr. Applegate and Mr. Abrahams, of this City, went to the City of New Brunswick in New Jersey, having with them for sale a quantity of pine apples, limes, etc. The people of Brunswick finding them subscribers for Importation, treated them so roughly, that they judged it not safe to appear publicly, and, being unable to sell their fruit, a great part of it spoil'd upon their hands. They were glad to get off privately to avoid the effects of the people's resentment, which Mr. Abrahams was not so lucky to escape at Woodbridge, on his return, where he was much insulted, and ducked in a Creek, and was likely to have been much worse used, if he had not made his escape. We hear that two merchants of this city, subscribers for Importation, who a few days ago set out on a journey to Philadelphia, at Woodbridge were both heartily duck'd, but the particulars we have not heard."

In the same newspaper of the date August 16th, 1770:

"Mr. Applegate denies that he was insulted or obliged to conceal himself in Brunswick, and by that means hindered from doing his business, as mentioned in our last."

Many of the old stage coach advertisements are curious reading in a day of automobiles and steam power. Andrew Ramsay, tavern keeper in New York City, provided a "Stage Waggan" to go from Brunswick to Trenton, and a "Stage Boat" from Philadelphia to Trenton in 1753. In 1756 the "Pennsylvania Journal" says:

"Philadelphia and Perth Amboy Stages. John Butler, Philadelphia, Sign of the Death of the Fox, Strawbury Alley, begins his Stage the 9th inst. from this house to the house of Nathaniel Parker at Trenton Ferry. Goods and Passengers carried over Ferry to house of George Moschel, where Francis Holman will meet above John Butler and exchange their Passengers, etc., and then proceed on Wednesday through Prince Town and New Brunswick to the house of Obadiah Aires in Perth Amboy, where will be kept a good Boat with all conveniences necessary; kept by John Thompson and William Waller for the reception of passengers, etc., who will proceed on Thursday morning without delay for New York, and there land at Whitehall, where said Waller and Thompson will give attendance at the house of Abraham Bockeys, until Monday morning following, and then will return to Perth Amboy, where Francis Holman on Tuesday morning following will attend and return with his Waggon to Trenton Ferry, to meet John Butler of Philadelphia, and there exchange their passengers, etc., for New York and Philadelphia.

"It is hoped that as these Stages are attended with considerable expence, for the better accommodating passengers, that they will merit the favours of the public, and whoever will be pleased to favour them with their custom shall be kindly used, and have due attendance given them by their humble servants, John Butler, Francis Holman, John Thompson, and William Waller."

In the "New York Gazette" of May 28, 1770, we find another "Waggon" to be used to reach Philadelphia by way of New Brunswick:

"The subscriber, having provided himself with a good neat-covered Waggon, and horses suitable, purposes to begin a Stage from Powles-Hook for Philadelphia, on Tuesday, the 5th of June next. He proposes to get off from Powles-Hook every Tuesday morning, and to go through Newark, Elizabeth Town, Woodbridge, Brunswick, Princetown, Trenton, and Bristol, and will go quite through to Philadelphia in two days, at the price of twenty shillings each passenger, or three pence a mile to any distance between. He keeps two sets of horses, but drives all the way himself, and sets out from Philadelphia every Friday morning, comes to Powles-Hook on Saturday evening. And in order to go through with dispatch, he would never chuse to carry above eight passengers at a time, though there might be room for one or two more on occasion. Goods will be carried proportionally to their weight and bulk. Those who incline to take passage with him should be over at Powles-Hook the evening before, as he purposes always to set out early. The Public may depend on civil usage from their very humble Servant,

"ABRAHAM SKILMAN."

Although Mr. "Skilman" uses the conventional phrases at the end of his advertisement, no one can fail to notice the independence of his attitude as compared with that of John Butler and Company. The years between '56 and '70 may have developed freedom between the masses and classes, but "Skilman" was American-born, whereas Butler was an immigrant and assumed the attitude considered becoming in the land of his birth. Very likely the residents of Somerset County depended upon both these purveyors of transportation, who skirted if they did not cross a portion of the county.

Dirk Van Veghten's advertisement of a house in New Brunswick in 1779 shows how one of the first-class houses in this city was constructed, generally of brick:

'To be Sold.—A very good house in Albany Street in New Brunswick, two stories high, a brick front, two rooms on the lower floor, with Early On 29 e., is Brunswick, still a letter soldi er New the The Dirk that the "On the 1778, dated per an ing they is the wick, day British were the North America, were taken from the English army in that town." Again: "On Sunday last six Hessians were taken on this side Brunswick."

In April, 1778, John Van Kirk, Sheriff of Middlesex County, offers a reward for the capture of Charles Ford, a soldier of the 13th Battalion, Pennsylvania troops, who had escaped from the Brunswick jail.

On the same day:

"The Judge Advocate produces General Washington's orders for the Court to sit. The President, Members, and Judge Advocate, being sworn, the Judge Advocate prosecuting in the name of the United States of North America, the Court proceeds to trial of Major General Lee, who appears before the Court, and the following charges are exhibited against him," etc.

On July 3, 1778, a letter appears from the accused general Charles Lee, who had just acted so badly on the field of Monmouth. It is dated from "Brunswick," and protests bitterly against the attack upon his character that had appeared in the "New Jersey Gazette."

After several adjournments the Court, on August 12th, sentenced Lee to be suspended for twelve months.

Throughout the year 1778 the various periodicals contain notices for the Loyalists to present themselves for trial at New Brunswick. It is said on good authority that far from being mainly Rebel in sentiment, the inhabitants of the town might be roughly divided into three approximately equal parts: Loyalists, Moderates, i.e., that class, ever considerable, that awaits to see which side will prove most profitable to join, and, finally, those heartily convinced of the righteousness of rebellion.
On July 4, of the same year, there were anniversary celebrations of American Independence in various parts of the State. That at New Brunswick was participated in by "the front line of the army" and "A Gentleman at Camp" thus describes it:

"The Anniversary of Independence has occasioned another grand day, far surpassing the feu de joie at the old camp, which I formerly described to you. The orders were not issued till evening yesterday, and then not so full as to raise great expectations. I have already described to you the situation of my quarters, which commands a view of the bridge and the opposite shore, so that I could see every man as he passed to the ground. The front line of the army extended from the redoubt on the height a little above Brunswick upwards of two miles up the river on the west side; the second line at some distance in the rear, not quite so extensive. The park was placed on the right of the front line at the redoubt, and upwards of thirty pieces of cannon interspersed at proper distances through the lines. After his Excellency with his suite had rid (sic) round the lines and returned to his quarters, on a signal given from thence 13 pieces of cannon were fired at the park, which were followed by a running fire of musketry and artillery, beginning on the right of the front, throughout the whole of both lines. After this three huzzas to the perpetual and undisturbed Independence of the United States of America. The same round was performed a second and third time, and exceedingly well executed every time. My situation being high and at a convenient distance in front, afforded me a complete view of the whole, and presented by far the grandest sight I ever beheld. The running fire of musketry is grand of itself, but the cannon throwing out their columns of smoke, and adding their sounds at proper distances, made it magnificent beyond description."

In August, 1779, the inhabitants of North Ward of the city of New Brunswick met to consider the depreciated state of Continental money. A committee to study into the matter was chosen consisting of Colonel John Neilson, William Vandnise, William Harrison, Henry Guest, Peter Farmer, Jasper Farmer, and John Piatt, Esq.

In a dispatch from Trenton, Nov. 3, 1779, the "New Jersey Gazette" says, at the end of an account of a British raid for the purpose of burning boats at Van Veghten's bridge east of Somerville:

"Their commanding officer, who was made prisoner, is Lieutenant-Colonel Simcoe, of a new Corps called the Queen's American Rangers. It is to be observed that Simcoe is one of the enemy's principal partizans, and that his exploits have generally been marked with acts of the most inhuman barbarity. In this expedition Captain Peter Voorhees, of the first Jersey regiment, unfortunately fell into their hands near Brunswick, and was massacred in the most shocking manner. Dr. Ryker and Mr. John Polhemus were made prisoners by the covering party, with several others."

Dated "Raritan, Oct. 26, 1779," is a notice of Queen's College:
"Notice is hereby given that the Grammar School at Raritan was opened last Monday, and that the vacation of Queen’s College will end on Thursday, the 4th of November, when the business of the College will be carried on at New Brunswick. Boarding may be had at each of the above places at as low a price as in any part of the state. Parents and guardians may be assured of the greatest care being taken of the youth, and that proper attention will be given to every branch of English education. By order of the Faculty,

"JOHN TAYLOR, Clerk, pro tem."

In November “Sam. H. Sullivan, late C. B. M. for New Jersey,” (a resident of Readington township, Hunterdon county) advertises that:

“The Deputy Barrackmasters of this State, under the late department of the Barrackmaster-General, are desired to meet the subscriber at the city of New Brunswick, on the 6th day of December next, to settle their accounts, and receive their money.”

From Hillsborough (Millstone), Somerset county, in May, 1780, we again read of Queen’s College:

“The vacation of Queen’s College at Hillsborough, in the county of Somerset, and of the Grammar School in the city of New Brunswick, is expired: and the business of each is again commenced. Good lodgings may be procured in both places at as low a rate as any part of the state. By order of the Faculty,

In March, 1781——

“At a Court Martial held by the appointment of Brigadier General Heard, on the 19th of January last, at the house of James Drake in the city of New Brunswick, Ensign Morford, of the Third Battalion of Middlesex militia, was tried for parading in arms with the men belonging to Capt. Perine’s company, and marching from their post in mutiny, and found guilty, and adjudged to be cashiered and rendered incapable of serving in the militia as an officer during the war.”

Says the “New Jersey Gazette” of Aug. 15, 1781:

“On the 5th instant, Captain Adam Hyler went from New Brunswick in an armed boat to Long Island, marched three miles and a half into the country, and made Captain Jeromus Lot, a Lieutenant-Colonel of Militia, and one John Hankins, a captain of a vessel, prisoners, and brought them safe to New Brunswick.”

The surrender of Lord Cornwallis was celebrated in New Brunswick on Oct. 26, 1781, a news letter on this date stating:

“This day arrived here official accounts of the surrender of the Earl of Cornwallis, and, as might naturally be expected in a place which so sensibly feels the effects of the present war, occasioned universal joy and satisfaction. In the evening were discharged thirteen cannon, after which a number of gentlemen of the city and neighborhood, and several strangers, of whom were Sir James Jay, and Richard Stevens, Esq., convened at Marriner's tavern, in order to spend an hour together in festivity and gladness. After supper the company, for the sake of conveniency, withdrew into another room, and, having appointed Mr. Kirkpatrick President, the following toasts were pronounced and drank: 1. The Congress and the United States of America. 2. His most Christian Majesty, Louis XVI. 3. The glorious Washington and the allied army. 4. His Excellency, the Count de Grasse, and the French navy. 5. His Excellency, the Count de Rochambeau. 6. General Greene and the Southern army. 7. The friends of American liberty. 8. The memorable 19th of October. 9. The memory of the brave who have fallen in their country's cause. 10. May the present revolution prove a terror to tyranny throughout the earth. 11. May the lilies of France and the stripes of America wave in triumph from shore to shore. 12. Liberty. 13. A speedy and honorable peace.

"The greatest order and decency was observed throughout the whole. As in the feast of Ahasuerus the king, the drinking was according to the law, none did compel, for it was appointed that they should do according to every man's pleasure. The evening being thus spent, each of the gentlemen drank a good-night to the company in a bumper, and retired."

From New Brunswick, Jan. 16, 1782, a final attack of the British on the city is recorded, and with it the extracts in this article may well conclude:

"About four o'clock last Wednesday morning, near three hundred of the enemy from New York, consisting of British and refugee troops, landed at the lower end of the town; our guards discovered their approaches on the river, by which means the inhabitants were alarmed about fifteen minutes before they landed. They were attacked by a small party whilst landing, in which they lost two men. Reinforcements were thrown in to support this party, but, being overpowered by numbers, and the enemy having gained the heights, they were obliged to retire. They then took possession of the town with little difficulty, for the darkness of the morning, and the enemy landing in different places, prevented us from assembling in force. They had possession of the town more than an hour, during which time very little opposition was made.

"When the blessed light of morning began to appear they retired to their boats, and a smart skirmishing commenced, which would have been much more severe had not many of our muskets been rendered useless by the falling of snow and rain; during which action no marks of fear were seen on either side. We had none killed and only five wounded. Peter Nefies, (Nevius) a brave soldier, we are fearful is in danger from his wound; the other four, who are equally brave, are in a fair way of recovery. Six of the inhabitants were made prisoners.

"The citizens in general with cheerfulness left their families and their property, and marched forth to oppose the enemy. They assembled with alertness, and behaved with spirit; in short no men in their peculiar situation could have done better. We cannot ascertain the loss of the enemy. They left two dead in the town; two more were killed at their first landing, and they were seen to carry off several. We have reason to believe they suffered on their return from the well directed fire of different parties assembled on the shores from Piscataway and South River. The taking of the whale-boats seemed to be their principal object, which they accomplished. Credit is due them for the execution of a well concerted plan, and much credit is due them for their humane treatment of the defenceless part of the community. No burnings or insults were permitted, and only two families were pillaged."

The foregoing report was signed by "John Taylor, Lieut. Colonel, Commandant 2d Batt. Middlesex Militia."

Supplementary to Snell's "Civil List"

There appears in Snell's "History of Hunterdon and Somerset" the only attempt ever made to gather up a "Civil List" for Somerset County. It is, as a rule, quite complete and accurate, but fails in Justices of the Peace and Judges of the Common Pleas; previous to 1766 in the case of Justices, and previous to 1778 in the case of Judges. The list of Sheriffs is also incomplete. We are now enabled to supplement this list, including occasionally Coroners, etc., from the beginnings of office-holding in the County; but it has been thought wise, also, to continue it until the end of the century (1799), and for convenience of reference, we have made it alphabetical in the names.

This list will be of value to many who trace their ancestry to the persons named, and for other historical purposes. It is made up in part from the record of commissions at Trenton, which was not consulted by Mr. Snell, but also from various other authorities and sources. The exact month and day of each commission appears on the Trenton records when such is our authority, but it has been deemed unnecessary to print more than the year or years of commission.

Until about 1715 it was usual to appoint Justices of the Peace and Judges for Somerset in connection with Middlesex and, frequently, with Essex, Hunterdon, etc., and in such cases the office-holders were frequently residents of one of these adjoining counties. This fact will be noticed in the list in the earlier years.

How long the commissions for Somerset ran in each case cannot be told from anything in the records, but, until after the Revolution the terms of Judges and Justices were usually for the years named or, in the case of Judges, for a term of Court.
As to the legal and historical years indicated in the records, we do not make the distinction in them as they appear in such records. As, for example, 1714/15 was, according to our present reckoning, 1715, that year seems sufficient to indicate a true date, and this mode of stating the year has been adopted in the following list.

The names are spelled as in the commissions, except when they vary; then the method most frequently used is given.

DESCENDANTS OF CORNELIUS VAN LIEW, OF THREE-MILE RUN

BY THE LATE "AUNT BETSEY" VAN LIEW

[Note by Editor.—The following notes on the descendants of Cornelius Van Liew, were written by the same Elizabeth Van Liew, familiarly known as "Aunt Betsey," whose "Jottings from an Old Journal" was published in the January, 1918, QUARTERLY. She died in 1873. The arrangement of names, according to our usual style of publishing family genealogies has been made, and the dates, etc., in brackets, furnished by Mr. John J. DeMott, of Metuchen, to whom we are indebted for these notes. The exactness and quaintness of the matter in many of the details have been left as "Aunt Betsey" wrote them.]

Cornelius Van Liew (1) was b. August 27, 1752. He was m., November 2, 1775, to Mary (or Maria) Hegeman, by Minister Ferrian. At the time of his marriage he lived at Middlebush, while she was from Six-Mile Run. Cornelius d. January 26, 1798, on Friday evening, after suffering for eighteen months from a lingering consumption. He was buried the following Sunday. His wife d. August 22, 1827, on Wednesday evening. She was b. October 24, 1756, and was, therefore, 70 years and 10 months old. Dr. Cannon preached her funeral sermon on Friday, his text being Micah 2:10: "Arise ye and depart, for this is not your rest." She had a severe stroke of palsy on June 6, 1822. From that date she was not as active as before, but had fairly good health until the day of her death, when she passed away in less than one hour after another stroke of palsy, or apoplexy.¹

Children of Cornelius Van Liew (1) and Mary Hegeman:

2. Denice (son of Cornelius) was b. June 8, 1776; d. Sept. 13, 1833; m. Oct. 17, 1811, Mary Hartough, by Minister Livingston, in the evening. Denice died on Friday morning, of typhus fever. Dr. Sears ¹The will of Cornelius Van Liew, recorded at Trenton in Book 38, page 134, was dated July 11, 1797; probat. Oct. 4, 1798, describes him as of Three-Mile Run, Somerset County; mentions wife, all children except Helena, who died young; also brothers Denice and John.

This Cornelius Van Liew, of Three-Mile Run (bapt. at Six-Mile Run Oct. 1, 1752), was son of Denice Van Liew, b. Mar. 25, 1729; d. Oct. 17, 1777; m., Dec. 26, 1751, Eida Wyckoff, who was 10 years old at time of her marriage. She d. Feb. 27, 1775.

Denice Van Liew was son of Frederick Van Liew, b. Apr. 30, 1694; d. Nov. 27, 1763; m. Mar. 9, 1717, Helena Denice, who was b. Mar. 5, 1668, and d. Mar. 6, 1784. He resided at Middlebush.

Frederick Van Liew was son of Frederick Hendrickse Van Leeuwen, of Jamaica, L. I., and his wife Dinah. They emigrated from Utrecht, Holland, with nine children, before 1670, and he purchased property in Middlesex and Somerset Nov. 17, 1701.

Investigators into the history of the Van Lieus should consult "The Van Lieu Family," a brief but good genealogy (so far as it goes) prepared in 1910, by Thomas L. Van Liew, 633 Morrison Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Copies are in the New York Public Library, and the New Jersey Historical Society Library at Newark. The name comes from Leeuwen in Gelderland.—J. J. D. preached his funeral on Saturday, from Job 30:23. Mary Hartough d. Feb. 2, 1857, at New Brunswick, of consumption.

3. Altie (dau. of Cornelius) was b. Dec. 26, 1778; d. June 27, 1824; m. Nov. 16, 1802, William Van Nostrand, who was b. June 4, 1775, and died Dec. 22, 1839. They were married by Minister Cannon. Altie died of a lingering consumption, which she had for fifteen months. Mr. Pherris preached her funeral the day following her death, from Luke 13:23 and 24. William Van Nostrand went from Three-Mile Run to Illinois in the fall of 1839. He started Sept. 7 and arrived Oct. 7, intending to visit his children, see that part of the country and return sometime the same winter. But he was taken ill with inflammation of the lungs, which lasted only eight or nine days before causing his death. He d. at the home of his son-in-law, Thomas Lewis, at Springfield, Ill., at noon on Sunday. His remains were interred there. (For ch., see infra).

4. Simon (son of Cornelius), was b. Aug. 29, 1782; d. Dec. 24, 1848; m., Dec. 16, 1805, Sceighte Vanderveer, who was b. Nov. 21, 1785, and d. Jan. 26, 1847. They were married in the evening, by Dr. Cannon. She died after an illness of only one week from fever. Dr. Sears' text at her funeral was I Thess. 4:13. Simon died very suddenly on Sunday, while he was preparing to shave. Dr. Sears preached his funeral on Dec. 26, from Proverbs 27:1: "Boast not thyself of tomorrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." Lived at Six-Mile Run. (For ch., see infra).

5. Cornelius (son of Cornelius), was b. Aug. 25, 1785; d. Jan. 28, 1860; m., Nov. 23, 1814, Ann Suydam, daughter of Laurence and Abigail Suydam, who was b. Aug. 14, 1793, and died Nov. 23, 1865. They were married by Dr. Cannon, in the evening. All of their eleven children were baptized at Six-Mile Run. All except Adaline were born there; Adaline being born at Neshanic, after the family moved there in the Spring of 1838. Cornelius was buried at Middlebush, according to his own request, his funeral sermon being preached by Rev. Gabriel Ludlow. His wife d. at the home of her son-in-law, Stephen Cromwell, at Rocky Hill. Rev. Mr. Gesney preached her funeral from Rev. 14:13. (For ch., see infra).

6. Ida (dau. of Cornelius), was b. Nov. 23, 1787: [died Aug. 4, 1784]; m., Oct. 8, 1809, Henry Vroom DeMott, who was b. April 20, 1786, [and d. Feb. 27, 1875]. They were married on Sunday morning by Dr. J. S. Cannon. They lived and died at Middlebush, where he was a farmer. For some years he also conducted a butcher business in New Brunswick, N. J. (For ch., see infra).
7. Elizabeth (dau. of Cornelius), was b. Apr. 6, 1790; [died Nov. 24, 1873]; unmarried. [The author of these notes and faithful recorder of local happenings. For many years she made her home with Henry Vroom DeMott, at Middlebush. Though of an unusually religious nature, she did not become a church member until late in life, when she made this entry in her journal: “Elizabeth Van Liew made a profession of faith in Christ April 18, 1862, at Middlebush, Rev. John A. Van Doren, Pastor, at the age of 72 years and 12 days. Help me O Lord, to consecrate my few remaining days to Thy service, and to the good of my fellow creatures, in the enjoyment of faith and love and penitence”].

8. Helena (dau. of Cornelius), was b. Sep. 7, 1792; d. Mar. 26, 1793.

9. Frederick (son of Cornelius), was b. Feb. 21, 1795; d. Aug. 22, 1867; m. Feb. 15, 1819, Agnes Pumyea, who was b. at Three-Mile Run, June 25, 1799, and d. Aug. 25, 1857. They were married by Dr. Cannon. Their first four children were born in New Jersey. On Tuesday morning, June 5, 1832, they left New Jersey to make a new home in the “Lake Country” of Central New York. They settled at Lysander, Onondaga county, where their last two children were born and the remainder of their lives were spent. They kept in touch with their New Jersey relatives, and for many years visits were exchanged in both directions. (For ch., see infra).

His health then commenced to fail and continued until his death in 1844. By this time two of the three children had also died. A vendue was held on Oct. 3, 1844, after which Elizabeth returned to her father's home at Middlebush. FAMILY OF PETER CLAESON, ANCESTOR OF ALL THE WYCKOFFS

BY JACOB WYCKOFF, NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

[Note by Editor.—Beginning with the July, 1913, Quarterly, we published in twelve instalments a large number of the descendants of Peter Claesen, head of the Wyckoff, Wikoff, etc., family in this country. As that article did not go into full particulars of Peter and his immediate family, we now give room for such, also for a statement of Peter's possible ancestry, as found in an interesting address delivered before the Baird-Wyckoff Association, at the old Tennent church near Freehold on August 28th last, by Mr. Jacob Wyckoff, formerly of Middlebush but now of New Brunswick.

Particular notice should be taken of the fact that through this Peter Claesen various important Somerset families of other surnames are derived, viz., directly, those of the Van Arsdales, Romeyn and Kinney families and, collaterally, some lines of the Montfort, Schenck, etc., families.]

Before speaking of the immediate family of Peter Claesen, the common father of all the Wyckoffs, we will run briefly over his antecedents, especially for a couple of generations, and his brothers and sister of whom we know, as this knowledge has a bearing on his own immediate family.

"Peter Claesen" means "Peter, son of Claes," or "Peter, son of Nicholas," if fully given. So we know his father's name was Claes, or Nicholas, and Mr. William F. Wyckoff has found in his researches that the father's name was "Claes Cornelissen," which in turn means "Claes, son of Cornelis." So we find the grandfather of Peter Claesen was named "Cornelis."

In these former days there were no family names in Holland, at least among the common people, and everybody simply went as "John, son of So-and-So," or "Mary, daughter of So-and-So," and it was not until records of families began to be kept by the State that the old method was found to be too confusing. The records could give no clue as to what John, or what Peter, or what Nicholas was indicated, and it was then that the State ordered the choosing of family names, and, as many kept the names exactly as they were then known, their descendants have come down to us as the Johnsons, the Petersons, the Jamesons, the Ryniersons, etc.

I have heard my father tell that a town-meeting was called at which everybody was to take a family name, and the same was to be publicly announced and recorded by the town clerk in a book for that purpose. One quiet old man came to the meeting and sat all day listening to the choosing of names, and, whenever the town clerk asked him what name he chose, he would only shrug his shoulders and say in Dutch, "Oh, well, I'm not particular." At last the day had passed; everybody had selected their names, had them recorded and gone away, and the hour for closing had come. The town clerk turned to this man and asked him again somewhat impatiently what name he wanted, and still received the same answer, "Oh, I'm not particular." "Very well," said the clerk, "let it go so, then." And he wrote him down in the book in Dutch as "Mr. I'm-not-Particular." My father told me, then a boy, what the name was, as we now know it in English, but I have long since forgotten. I have asked Hollanders concerning it, but they told me they have no Dutch words expressing precisely that thought.

Mr. William F. Wyckoff has traced the ancestral line further back than I am giving it, back to A. D. 1300 surely, and has a probable guess reaching back still much further, but not a settled certainty. This is on the male side. It happens, however, that the first of record of whom we are sure was a man of sufficient parts to marry into the royal line, and through this marriage we go back through the kings of Denmark and of Rurik of Russia, to Rurik of Vasangian, of Baltic Sweden, of about A. D. 825, and through Harold II, Saxon King of England, slain at the battle of Hastings by William the Conqueror, we go back to Erik of Sweden, of about A. D. 800. Connecting also with William the Conqueror, who was a relative of Harold, whom he overthrew, our line of blood flows downward, with or through the incoming of the different houses of rulers to the Tudors, and the incoming of the house of Stuart; while in Russia the Royal line of Rurik continued until it ended with the death of Theodore in 1598, when a descendant of the house of German admixture, by name Michael Romanoff, came to the throne, and his family remained on the throne of the Russians until the recently deposed Czar.

Let us now return from this digression to the grandfather of Peter Claesen, viz:

Cornelis, who lived and died in Holland. I have no further record of this ancestor.

Claes Cornelissen, or "Claes, son of Cornelis," was born in Holland in 1597; married Margaret VanDerGoos, and started for America in October, 1636, on the ship "Rensselaer Wyck," but was obliged by storms and injury to the vessel to stop in England, and did not reach America until in March, 1637. His wife and one son, Peter Claesen, came with him. Peter was then a sturdy boy of twelve years, having been born in 1625. Whether there were other children then we have no record, but we learn of three born later in America, viz: a son, Gebrant, who later married Marretje Cos, and became the male ancestor of the Garrabrant family; and a daughter, Pieterje, who married Symen Jansen Van Arsdalen, and became the maternal ancestor of the Van Arsdales, the family name being brought into use at this time, as I have before related to you. Claes Cornelissen bought land on Long Island, first where the City Hall of Brooklyn now stands, and later exchanging it or selling it, and buying other land about four miles inland from Coney Island, to get better land.

Peter Claesen, although only a boy of twelve, seems to have been under contract to work on an estate or large holding at Fort Orange (now Albany), and proceeded to that point in the same vessel that brought him across seas, arriving there in April, 1637. He remained there probably until after his marriage (about 1638) to Gretia, daughter of Hendrick Van Ness, a member of the council of Rensselaer Wyck. We soon after find him on Long Island, owning a farm at Flatlands (now within the precincts of Brooklyn) becoming well to do, and a magistrate of the Town Court of Flatlands, whence probably the name of Wyckoff originated, from the union of two words, viz: "Wijk," a ward or parish, and "hof," a court, whence would come Peter Wijkhof, or, translated, "Peter of the Town Court." The "ij" soon became changed into "y", from its close resemblance to that letter, as old documents seem to indicate.

We will now picture in our minds Peter Claesen and his wife Gretia by their old-fashioned fireside, and into that home and around the gradually-lengthening table children came one by one as follows:

1st. Margaret (sup.) b. in 1647.
2nd. Nicholas, b. in 1648.
3rd. Annatje, bapt. in 1650.
4th. Cornelius, b. in 1651.
5th. Mayken, bapt. in 1653.
6th. Hendrik, b. in 1654.
7th. Geertje, b. in 1656.
8th. Willemptje, b. in 1658.
9th. Martin, b. in 1660.
10th. Garret, b. in 1662.
11th. John, b. in 1665.

These eleven children in all, seem to complete the record, five girls and six boys, and covering a birth period of eighteen years; and, as the father was a man of staunch church principles, and the main support of the Flatlands church, being one of the wealthiest men on the island, we cannot doubt that his children were carefully instructed in those things "that make for righteousness." As the years went by—

Margaret, the eldest child, married Matthias Adamse Brouwer.

Nicholas, the oldest son, married Sara, daughter of Peter Montfort, and owned a large farm at Flatlands. He had six children, four sons and two daughters, and his descendants mostly moved later to Somerset and Hunterdon counties in New Jersey, and from thence have spread southward and westward throughout our country.

Annatje, the second daughter, married, in 1675, Roeliff Martens in Schenck, and died about 1693, having lived on Long Island.

Cornelius, the second son, married his cousin, Gertrude Van Arsdale, daughter of his aunt Pieterje and Symon Van Arsdalen. He bought a large farm at Flatlands in Long Island, and, like his father, had eleven children, five girls and six boys. Later two of these sons came into possession of the homestead farm on Long Island, one of them being the ancestor of our present day historian of the family, William F. Wyckoff, Esq. This land now lies within the precincts of Brooklyn and is almost entirely built over. The other four sons of Cornelius settled on lands bought by their father in what is now Franklin township, in Somerset county, N. J., and stretching across the center of the township, as the first deeds read: "From a river called Millstone to the Indian Path." This path is now the county line and a part of the main highway from New York to Philadelphia. One of these four sons was the ancestor of Peter Wyckoff, of Wyckoff's Mills, who married Elizabeth Baird, both of whom we honor at these Baird-Wyckoff reunions, and was also the ancestor of myself. Cornelius died in 1746, at the great age of 95.

Mayken, the third daughter of Peter Claesen, married Willem Willemse, of Gravesend, L. I., and her descendants by her son John bear the name of Wyckoff, he having heired the estate of his uncle, Hendrick Wyckoff, by will from that uncle, who had no children, provided he would take the name of Wyckoff, which he did, and his descendants bear the name.

Hendrick, third son of Peter Claesen, married Helena ———— and had no children. He died in 1744, aged 90, leaving his farm on Long Island to his nephew John, son of Mayken Willemse, as stated above.

Geertje, named after her mother, was married, in 1678, to Christoffel Jans Romeyn, and became the mother of the entire Romeyn family. She died in 1711.

Wilemptje, the fifth and youngest daughter, married Adrain Kinne, and became the mother of the Kinne family.

Martin, the fourth son, married Hannah Williams, of Flatlands, and had no sons.

Garret, the fifth son, married Catharine Johannes (i. e., Catharine, daughter of John) Nevius, and farmed on Long Island. He had two sons and five daughters. One son farmed on Long Island, and one moved to Monmouth county, New Jersey, where his descendants, many of them, live, and are represented here to-day. Rev. John H. Wyckoff, late missionary to India, deceased, is one of his descendants.
John, the last born child of the family, married Neeltje Couwenhoven, and, after farming a while on Long Island, removed to Monmouth county, New Jersey, purchasing a large farm there. He was an officer of the Brick Church at Marlborough, and assisted in founding this ancient church at Tennent, in which we are gathered to-day, numerous of his descendants connecting themselves with it, and later becoming an important factor in the history of the county during the Revolutionary days. Many of them are buried in the beautiful burial-grounds surrounding this church.

We find from this review of the family, the first of the name Wyckoff, that only four of the sons left children—i.e., left sons—to perpetuate the name, viz: Nicholas, Cornelius, Garret, John; except that Hendrick perpetuated it through his sister's son, John, son of Mayken. So, with this exception, of which we must of necessity make note, the family naturally divides itself into four great groups, and, once knowing the group to which we belong, the work of following up or down our line of descent is greatly assisted.

THE WILSON-HENRY FAMILY
FROM NOTES BY THE EDITOR

In the April, 1918, Quarterly (p. 98, etc.) there appeared "The Henry Family of Lamington." One of the daughters of David Henry was there stated to have married a Rev. Peter V. Wilson, but few facts were given of his family. Since that appeared a descendant, Mr. Charles Carroll Wilson, of Belvidere, has forwarded to us some facts, which are herewith given in a condensed form. Among other things they show that the late Dr. Joseph Hunt Wilson, of Somerville, belonged to the same Wilson stock; also, by marriage, Hon. George M. Shipman, of Belvidere.

Peter Wilson, Sr., born prior to 1720, or his father, came over from Scotland and is said to have settled, first, in Cecil County, Maryland, and then in Hunterdon County, N. J., in Amwell Township, some five miles from Lambertville. His wife was Hannah Vanoy (or Van Noy) of the same township, whose parents had come over from Holland. A Peter Wilson was an elder in the First Amwell Church in 1737, and there have been descendants of the Wilson name in East and West Amwell down to the present day, especially in what was once known as "The Wilson Settlement."

Peter Wilson, Sr., had eleven children: Francis, born 1740; Andrew, 1742; Haskell, 1746; James, 1748; Rev. Peter V., 1750; Katherine, 1753; John, 1756; Hannah, 1757; Sarah, 1760; Joseph, 1762; Elizabeth, 1764.
The Hannah above named married David Davis, and died in 1859, aged 102. Joseph married Charity Hunt and was the great-grandfather of the late Dr. Joseph Hunt Wilson, of Somerville, who was born at Washington, N. J. (See Quarterly, Vol. IV, p. 97). Andrew, born 1742 was a lawyer, but his place of practice is unknown. Two of the daughters of Peter, Sr., married persons by the name of Wilson, one a Mr. Carman and one a Mr. Mershon.

Rev. Peter Vanoy Wilson, son of Peter, Sr., was born 1750 in Amwell Township and died July 24, 1799, at Cincinnati, Ohio. He was graduated from the College of New Jersey (Princeton) in 1778. Where or how he was educated for the ministry does not appear, but he was licensed by the Presbytery of New Brunswick about 1785. About 1786 he married Catherine Henry, of near Lamington, Somerset County, daughter of David Henry and Mary Rosbrough. His first pastorate was over the Presbyterian Churches of Hackettstown and Mansfield, to which he was called September 27, 1786, at a salary of £110 sterling, doubtless through the recommendation of Rev. John Hanna, who had married into the McCrea family at Lamington and who had preached earlier in the same year at Hackettstown. Occasionally he acted as missionary preacher to outlying charges, one as far away as Shawnee, Pa. He remained at this charge for ten years, when, as seems probable, since his wife’s sister, Mary, then deceased, who had married Col. John C. Symmes, had been living on the “Miami Purchase” near Cincinnati, he went West, and preached at the latter place, then called Fort Washington, as chaplain. Capt. William Henry Harrison, afterward the President of the United States, had married a daughter of Colonel Symmes, and another daughter had married Major Peyton Short, so that Rev. Mr. Wilson and his wife were in the midst of influential family connections.

At Fort Washington he had also previously purchased land (in 1795) from Col. Symmes, embracing 640 acres, the consideration ($426.66) stated in the deed to be “for debt due [to Wilson] from the United States.” Again, in 1798, he purchased 100 acres from Symmes for “200 Spanish milled dollars,” and at the same time his wife took a deed from Symmes for 200 acres for $200. As the city of Cincinnati came to be built later on these real estate holdings, the investments should have proved in time of immense value to Mr. Wilson’s heirs but comparatively little was realized from them when a final sale was effected, about the year 1813.

Just what year Mr. Wilson became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Cincinnati is not stated, but probably about 1798; if so he had charge there only one year, when he died, after a short illness. His wife, Catherine Henry, died first, six weeks prior to his own decease. Both were buried at the church and tablets to their memory were placed therein. In the obituary notice of him he is described as a man "mild, generous and upright;" "possessed in a high degree of the finer feelings and social virtues;" "generally beloved," and "an ornament to society."

After his death his small children were cared for at the home of William Henry Harrison, until Col. James Henry, of Lamington, Mr. Wilson's brother-in-law, went to Cincinnati and conveyed them to the Somerset relatives. They were five in number, from three to eleven years of age. Col. Henry carried the youngest, Catharine, on a pillow on horseback over a bridle path of 350 miles on the journey from Cincinnati to Lamington, and the others must have also ridden all the distance (about 700 miles) on horseback. One horse was lost and another injured in the long journey. There were no bridges and stopping-places were from 15 to 20 miles apart. After Mrs. Mary Henry, the grandmother, died in 1809, the children were cared for by their uncles, James Wilson, of near Trenton, Joseph Wilson, who married Charity Hunt, and Dr. Charles M. Graham in New York City, who married Ann Henry.

The children of Rev. Peter V. and Catherine Wilson were:

1. Robert Henry, born 1788; died 1839; married Harriet Excum, aunt of "Patty" Ransom, wife of Governor Ransom of South Carolina. He studied medicine with his uncle, Dr. Graham, and died in Florida, leaving one child, Robert A., who married a McCoy and resided in Baltimore, Md.

2. Charles Rosebrook, born 1790; unmarried; died 1872. He resided with his uncle, James Wilson, near Trenton, N. J.

3. Joseph Van Noy, born 1792; died 1856; married May 4, 1815, Eliza Sherrerd, of Pleasant Valley, Warren County, N. J., (daughter of Samuel Sherrerd). He resided, first, at Pleasant Valley, and then removed to Stroudsburg, Pa., where he and his brother Charles kept a store. In 1838 both removed to Shawnee, Pa., where they had a mill and store, etc., until their respective deaths. The family resided at Shawnee until 1911, when the property passed out of their hands. They had 10 children, one of whom, Richard Duryea Wilson, was the father of Anna Louisa, wife of Hon. George Marshall Shipman, of Belvidere, of Joseph Howell Wilson, also a practicing lawyer of Belvidere, and of Charles Carroll Wilson, named at the beginning of this article.

In this connection it is of some interest to note that Judge George M. Shipman's daughter, Mrs. Margaret Wilson (Shipman) Jamison, has been engaged for several years in philanthropic work in connection with Settlements in Boston, Mass., and as a member of the Boston Dramatic Union in Pageantry work: also assisted in the production of the Newark Pageant, 250th Anniversary of that City in 1915; and that Judge Shipman's son, Jehiel Gardner Shipman, of the law firm of Fort, Hunt & Shipman, at Newark, N. J., volunteered his services and is now 1st Lieut., 330 Field Artillery (serving in France), while George Marshall Shipman, Jr., is a senior law student at Harvard, though now engaged in service at Fore River Shipping Plant, Mass. Also that J Stewart Wilson, who married Lydia H. Bray and is a brother of Joseph Howell Wilson, has two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Stewart Powers and Mrs. Mary Howell (Wilson) Cronan, of Boston, Mass., pioneers in the art of story-telling to children in this country, now engaged at the Boston Public Library and Schools in this line of work; formerly they were Kindergarteners and introduced and established Free Kindergartens at Dallas, Texas.

4. Mary Ann Churchill, born 1794; died 1872; married Richard Duryee, who resided at New York City, became Captain of the sailing vessel "Constantine," in which he made long voyages to China, etc., and was lost overboard at sea one day out from Liverpool in a severe storm, his wife and a son being passengers on the ship at the time. Their nephews and foster-son, Richard Duryea, married Susan, dau. of Joseph V. Wilson (above named), whose son, John Kip Duryee, now resides in New York City.

5. Catherine Matilda, born 1796; died 1854; married William Strader of ———.

6 and 7. Hannah and James, who died in infancy.

HISTORICAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

BY THE EDITOR

The "Somerville Messenger" Ninety-two Years Ago

In the Quarterly for 1912 (Vol. I, p. 77), it was stated that in October, 1823, the first newspaper was published in Somerset County by James E. Gore, under the name of the "Political Intelligencer," which name was soon changed to the "Somerset Messenger and Political Intelligencer," and, about 1828, the latter designation was dropped. One authority for this was Snell's "Hist. of Hunt. and Som. Counties," (p. 606). It is true that the Rev. Dr. Messler has said in his "Centennial Hist. of Somerset" (p. 172), that Mr. Gore had published "The Intelligencer, or Political Intelligencer" "about 1814 or '15," but this had been unobserved by us in preparing the Quarterly note. He also stated that the "Messenger" was begun "as early as 1822." We have recently seen a notice of a copy of the "New Jersey Intelligencer," as printed and published by John C. Kelley at Somerville, the same bearing date June 8, 1815. So it would seem that a "New Jersey Intelligencer," not a "Political Intelligencer," must have been published in Somerville in 1815. But there must also have come in between 1815 and 1823, when the "Messenger" began, a newspaper called the "Somerset County Advertiser," a mention of which we have not seen made. We judge because there has now come into our hands a copy of a newspaper entitled "Somerville Messenger, and Somerset County Advertiser," of the date of Dec. 28, 1826. It is stated to be "Volume IV" and "No. 168." So it would seem to be an inference that there was a preceding "Somerset County Advertiser," which was subsequently merged into and with the "Somerville Messenger," and it is certain that the first name of the "Messenger" was "Somerville Messenger" and not "Somerset Messenger." We wish the facts were all clear, but, as they appear above, it looks as if this were the order of things: First, Mr. Kelley first started in Somerville a newspaper which he called the "New Jersey Intelligencer," this may have been in 1814 or '15. Second, he probably sold it to Mr. Gore. Third, Mr. Gore either changed its name to the "Somerset County Advertiser," or he started the latter independently. Fourth, in October, 1823, Mr. Gore began to print the "Somerville Messenger, and Somerset County Advertiser." Whether there was any break in the years between about 1814 and 1823 we do not now know. Fifth. About 1828 the subtitle "Somerset County Advertiser" probably disappeared. Just when "Somerville" was changed to "Somerset" does not appear. There being no known early files of the above-named newspapers in existence, it may be further or more exact facts can never be known.
The 1826 "Somerville Messenger" certainly indicates by its volume and number that it first appeared under that name in October, 1823, when it came out as "Volume I" and "No. 1."

This 1826 number is of four pages, each page 13x19 inches, five columns to the page. The first page is devoted wholly and the third page about one-half to advertisements; the rest is reading matter, including Congressional news, odds and ends of American and State news, miscellaneous, and a column of religious matter under the heading "The Moralist." The publisher announces that the publication is "near the Academy," and we know this was about where the Second National Bank now stands and quite opposite to the old Academy. The newspaper was to be "delivered to subscribers in the village, and by private post, at Two Dollars a year, payable half yearly." That county subscribers were slow in payments we learn from this notice:

"On Tuesday next the Court of Common Pleas will commence its January term in this village. We beg leave to jog the memories of those of our patrons who have left their accounts run for two or three years without settlement, and hope they will avail themselves of this opportunity to call and settle the same."

The Legislative proceedings were of no local interest, except that the announcement is made of the "appointment in Joint Meeting, Dec. 22" of Theodore Frelinghuyzen as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, of William Todd as a Judge in Somerset, and of these Somerset "Commissioners:" Samuel Ayres, Arthur V. Sutphin, Elias Brown, W. D. Stewart. We have not discovered in it any other Somerset county items whatever (except marriages and advertisements), but, instead, such illuminating matters as these, for example:

"Shocking Crime.—At the late Term of Oyer and Terminer in Warren county, Mr. Adam Cool was fined $1 and costs, say 20 to 30 dollars, for wickedly and in violation of the import of his own name, KISSING Miss Catharine Berry without her consent. O times!—O manners!"

"Old Bachelors.—Mr Reneau introduced a bill into the Legislature of Tennessee, by which it is made the duty of the Sheriff of each county to make an annual return of every man who shall have attained the age of thirty without marrying; and also of all his property, on which a tax of twenty-five per cent. is to be laid, and the fund thereby created by the provisions of the bill is to be divided among such unmarried ladies as have reached the age of twenty-five. The bill further provides that if any old bachelor suffers himself to be returned three times, he shall thenceforth be deemed incorrigible and the tax increased to fifty per cent. The bill passed with great unanimity the House of Representatives, but the House [Senate?] ordered it to lie on the table for thirty years!"

"The Legislature of Ohio at their last [session] passed a law taxing lawyers and physicians in a sum not less than five nor more than fifty dollars per head, as the Court of Common Pleas in each county in their own discretion might levy."
"Brutal Excess.—The Herkimer American states that on Monday week in that village a man upon a bauter undertook to eat within an hour two round clams. They were to be roasted for him and he was to take them out of the shells himself. He dispatched a batch of 30 in five minutes, and proceeded with the others until he had swallowed 77, when the 78th went and came like the old woman's soap.' However, he at length disposed of that and another, when he gave up the job, having actually devoured 79."

This character of news must have well pleased our Somerset forebears of that generation, especially when, in addition, there were articles upon "Singular Effects of Love," "Running in Debt," "African Slave Trade," "Lockjaw in Horses," etc.

The marriages announced are of Mr. John Van Derveer, merchant, to Miss Margaret Collyer, both of Bedminster; of Mr. Jacob Vosseller to Miss Sarah DeForest, both of Bridgewater; of Mr. Stephen Beach, of Pluckemin, to Miss Hannah Finley, daughter of widow Finley, of Larmington; of Mr. William Lister to Miss Sarah Moffet, both of Millstone; and, at Readington, of Mr. James Stryker to Miss Deborah, daughter of Mr. John Baker.

The only Somerville advertisers were. A Mr. Hull, "lecturer on English Grammar," announces a gratuitous lecture of "only 60 minutes" at "Mr. Torbert's long room." Debtors to the estate of "Dickinson [Dickson] Miller, Esq.," may pay their bills Thursdays and Fridays. A Mr. Barcalow (first name torn out in the newspaper) "intends manufacturing of chairs," and Samuel J. Brant has a "Spinning wheel and chair manufactory at the old stand." D. D. Ryckman has a "Tobacco and segar manufactory" in the "the shop lately occupied by James Barcalow, near Torbert's hotel." The newspaper publisher, Mr. Gore, has for sale legal blanks, school books, Psalms and hymns. Bibles, ink powder and blacking. Samuel Hall offers $5 reward for "a black man, tanner by trade, 30 years of age," who has run away.

There are other county advertisers, viz.: John P. Quick and Israel Higgins announce they have "commenced fulling, dying [dyeing] and finishing cloth" at the North-Branch Factory (Cornelius Van Derveer's Mills), 5 miles from Somerville." Selah Daniels has the "North-Branch Woolen Factory at the old stand at Runk's Mills at the North-Branch." William Hoagland, late Sheriff, and John I. Gaston, Sheriff, advertise lands for sale at these inns: Peter Blair, in Bedminster township, Lewis Winans in Warren township, Richard Stout at North Branch. Peres Bonney, John Ross and A. Howell, commissioners to divide the real estate of Peter Trinity, are to make allotments "at the house late of Jeremiah Fisher, deceased," at Middlebrook. The administrators of "the late Frederick Frelinghuysen, deceased," offer at public sale his farm of about 150 acres at Millstone. H. Van Derveer, administrator of John Sutphin, deceased, will sell at public sale a 300-acre homestead farm at North Branch and a 116-acre farm near by. E. Cownover and G. B. Stryker, executors of William Covenhoven, will sell a 222-acre-farm in Montgomery township. Gilbert Powelson, surviving executor of Cornelius Powelson, will sell the homestead of 172 acres near Peapack. The executors of Rev. Peter Studdiford will sell a valuable mill and 80 acres of land and 40 acres near by (no place stated), and also a 160-acre farm "near the junction of the North and South Branches of the Raritan." Jacob Van Doren offers "a valuable new grist and saw mills on the Raritan adjoining the increasing village of Somerville," and it includes "a good miller's dwelling." John Whitenack and James Taylor, of Somerville, will sell the 40-acre farm "in Veal-town, formerly owned by Thomas Whitenack, Esq., and now in the possession of Joseph Boylan." It includes a "ciderworks and distillery, wheelwright's shop, dwelling," etc., and will be sold "at the house of Samuel McMurtry in Veal-town."

Orphans' Court notices relate to the estates of Ebenezer Tingley, Jacob Vroom, Hannah Ray, William Wyckoff, Adam Broach, Richard Low, John G. Eberlee, Cornelius C. Nevis and Nelly Van Nuys, all recently deceased. Besides these are various New Brunswick advertisements, and this notice of a stage line:

"OLD SWIFTSURE LINE—The subscribers inform the Public that they have commenced running a Stage between Centreville and Elizabethtown Point, being the continuation of a line through from Philadelphia to New-York. Passengers by this line leave New-York by the steam-boat Bellona at 6 o'clock a. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and Centreville each following day at 4 o'clock a. m., and arrive at New-York at 2 p. m., passing through Somerville, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Westfield, &c. They have provided themselves with good horses and carriages: and for way-passengers going to New-York this is much the shortest and cheapest route. Fare through from Philadelphia to New-York, $3.50—from Somerville to the latter, 75 cents.

"Wm. Van Derveer, John Edgar."

In other words, it was much cheaper in 1826 to go from Somerville to New York and return than it is by the steam cars in 1918. But then the Federal Government did not control the stage coaches!

The Revolutionary Beacon at Pluckamin

When Washington's army was at Middlebrook in the Spring of 1779, a portion of it was also established near Pluckemin. It was on February 18th of that year when the French Alliance was celebrated in that town.
(See Quarterly, Vol. II, pp. 15, 154). On March 23rd. Washington, writing from his then “Headquarters,” which must have been at the Wallace House in Somerville, to Brigadier-General Knox, directed that a beacon be erected “upon the mountain in the rear of Pluckamin.” The following is the letter:

"HEADQUARTERS, 23rd March, 1779.

BRIG. GEN. KNOX,

DEAR SIR:—For the more speedy assembling of the militia upon an emergency, I have agreed with the field officers in this and the next County to erect beacons upon the most conspicuous hills, the firing of which shall be signals for them to repair to their different alarm posts. You will be pleased to have one erected upon the mountain in the rear of Pluckemin, upon the place that shall seem most visible from the adjacent County. The beacons are proposed to be built of logs in the form of a pyramid, 16 or 18 feet square at the base and about 20 feet in height, the inner part to be filled with brush. Should there be occasion to fire it you shall have proper notice. . . . I am, Dear Sir;

"Your most Obt. Servant,

"Geo. Washington."

Rev. Dr. Messler’s Record of His Parents

The late Rev. Abraham Messler, D. D., pastor for fifty years of the First Reformed Church at Somerville, left behind him some private notes of his parents, which have been sent to us, and from them we extract the following items: "Cornelius Messler, my father, b. Feb. 9, 1759, m. Maria Stryker, dau. of Dennis Stryker and Lena Hoagland, of South Branch, N. J. She was b. Jan. 1, 1762; bapt. Feb. 21 of that year. They were m. Nov. 15, 1781, at her father’s house, and had eleven children. They commenced life on the farm northwest of Somerville and resided there for the space of twelve years, when they removed to the old homestead on the Lamington river, where they continued to reside the reminder of their lives, both dying in the old mansion house. Their remains are interred at White House in the ground where the old church stood."

After paying a fine tribute to his parents, and telling of personal matters concerning the family, and his own preparation for college, he continues:

"After my sisters had married and left home the superintendence and work in such a family taxed the energies of my mother to the utmost. For the last twelve years of her life she was too fleshy to be comfortable, and she often complained of a difficulty in breathing which impeded her activity. As my brothers married they were fitted with horses, wagon, and family utensils in general, and began life in the small house on the west side of the farm, Cornelius, John and Peter occupying it in succession. To the daughters in the same way an outset was given. Indeed that old home as I remember it was a pleasant home. Without any serious sickness and without any deaths for years in our family, we seemed to be guarded from the common ills of life, and at the same time abundantly favored with its common blessings. It changed in one respect. The older children married and went out into the world, and the younger grew up, and at last the time for the great change came. The mother died, and then the father departed. We sold the old place. Then the old mansion was burned,—not a trace of it left.

"After the death of my mother, Oct. 25, 1832, my father continued in the old home with my youngest brother Isaac. At first they had only the old colored woman, Nancy, who had nursed my mother in her last illness, as housekeeper, but in the course of a year Isaac took to himself a wife and brought her home. Thus the household was reconstructed, and the time passed away until the death of my father, Nov. 28, 1843. This farm was rented for one year, and in 1845 Isaac Messler, his son, bought the homestead."

Dr. Messler closes his notes by adding the following:

"Our old house contained a part of the residence of Rev. James McCrea, minister once of the Presbyterian church of lamington, and the father of Jane McCrea who was murdered by the Indians near Sandy Hill, N. Y., during the Revolutionary War. The kitchen part was said by my father to have been Dr. McCrea's study, and that it had been moved from a place nearer the river for an addition to the main building, and the other part of it formed the family room, and a bedroom behind it, the mode in which the two had been joined together clearly seen in the garret. The kitchen stood about ten feet from the main house, and the intervening space was built in and used as a Summer dining-room and common entrance to house and kitchen."

Another Somerset Man who "Made Good"

The late Charles C. McBride, born at Pluckemin 71 years ago, was another instance of a Somerset lad who began life in humble circumstances, worked his way up, through the local school and through college, then taught school in Somerset county, studied law, became a lawyer, then editor of the able "Daily Journal" in Elizabeth, then one of the editors of the "Newark Evening News." He died at his summer home at Ocean Grove on Oct. 27th last, leaving a host of friends who admired him as a Christian man and as an editor who was every whit honest, reliable, high-minded, clean-minded, just. He conferred honor upon his county and aided to raise journalism in New Jersey to a higher mark than its ordinary level.
FORMER PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF BOUND BROOK

Erected in 1829 on site of building of 1760. In 1851, when struck by lightning, and repairs made necessary, a new front was added and a twelve feet extension added. This church was entirely destroyed in the fire of 1896.

BY ROBERT SWARTWOUT TALMAGE, NEW YORK CITY

As recorded in the October Quarterly, Thomas Talmage, the father of Major Talmage, was taken when a youth to live in the home of his Aunt Eunice, wife of Thomas Riggs, of Basking Ridge. A settlement had been made there as early as 1700, but it was not until 1717 that John Harrison, acting for the Proprietors of East Jersey, purchased the rights from the Indians of about three thousand acres of land. The country is undulating and fertile, and it was but natural that the Scotch people, who began emigrating to America at that time and coming into East Jersey, should choose a place of this character upon which to make their homes, the less rugged contours of which reminded them so strongly of the lowlands of their beloved Scotland.

The earliest names to be found on the records are Pitney, Rolfe, Ayers, Alexander and Kirkpatrick, all of Scotch origin. In 1733 the designation Basking Ridge first appears in the ecclesiastical records of the parish, though the settlement is the oldest in Bernards Township. During the following decade many others of the same country and faith arrived and joined the original settlers, and the records are largely made up of Scottish names, such as Morton, Southard, McCoy, Kemper, Craig, Kennedy, Whitaker, Ogden, Todd, Lyon, Miller, McEwan, Boylan, Morris, Riggs and Caldwell.

The Talmage family had up to this time been staunch supporters of the Church of England for generations, but the early associations of Thomas Talmage and his marriage to the daughter of a Scotchman seem to have influenced his religious beliefs, and from that time until the present the family has been largely communicants of the Presbyterian Church.

We know little of the life of Thomas Talmage. After his marriage to his cousin, Elizabeth Wické, at East Hampton, Long Island, he brought her to Basking Ridge to live, and it was there that their son, Major Thomas Talmage, and his four sisters were born. In the year 1760 he, with Lord Stirling and Stephen Ogden, were witnesses to a will of Mr. Stephen Brown, in which money was bequeathed for use as part payment of the minister's salary.

It is altogether probable that he built or helped to build "The Mansions," the manor house of William Alexander, Lord Stirling, at Basking Ridge, which was completed in 1767, though of this there is no record. In the year 1777 both he and his family and Major Talmage and wife and babe removed to Sussex County and lived in Wantage Township until the close of the Revolution, when they purchased the plantation at Piscataway. No reason is given for the removal of both families to northern Sussex, sixty miles away from Basking Ridge, but it is probable that the change was necessitated by the construction of certain buildings in that part of the Province, and that his eldest son Daniel and others of the family had already settled there.

In this connection we may suggest that a Somerset relative, Noah Talmage, enlisting from Sussex, is said to have been born in Elizabeth-town in 1761. He was married to Elizabeth Chamberlain and was by profession a builder. He is said to have erected the Presbyterian Church at Sparta, dedicated in 1786. In this work he was probably assisted by his kinsmen, Thomas Talmage, Sr., and Jr., both of the same profession.

Several authorities have asserted that Noah was a brother of Major Thomas, but this statement must not be allowed to go unchallenged. In his "Narrative and Diary" Major Thomas Talmage writes: "My father had but three sons by the first marriage, David, John and Enos, (who died in infancy), and one by the second marriage, namely myself, Thomas." Again he writes: "My brothers were both dead (1790). John died of small-pox and Daniel was killed at Lackawany" (battle of Minisink, July 22, 1779). In all probability Noah Talmage was the son of Daniel, a son of Daniel Talmage, Sr., who settled at Elizabethtown in 1719, a brother of Thomas Talmage, Sr. No issue has ever been accorded this Daniel, though his name appears on a family chart in possession of the writer.

Major Talmage writes, in the year 1777: "I had business seventeen miles away (from Wantage) and at that place my aunt was living." He then describes his return home over the mountain on a stormy night as follows: "The night was so black I could see nothing ahead; I lost my way and had great difficulty in keeping on my horse's back. I held my riding-whip aloft to fend off the branches and keep them from striking me in the face, but what with the limbs of trees and the narrow path, it was most difficult to get on. Presently I found myself monstrously entangled,—yet I must make an attempt to go forward. Alas! I soon found myself in a terrible morass or bog. I dismounted but sunk in over my boots. My horse floundered, but, being pretty strengthy, he made out to follow me. I finally came onto higher ground and trusting myself to the guidance of the Lord proceeded at a venture and finally reached home about the breaking of day."

The outbreak of hostilities between Great Britain and the Provinces found Major Talmage ready to spring to the defense of his native soil. His brother, Daniel, was a Member of the Association of Whigs of Morris County, and both he and Thomas were in the battle of Minisink, where Daniel Talmage was killed.

From Wantage Township Major Talmage removed his family in 1786 to Piscataway, and there, with him, his father and mother lived until their deaths. Referring to his father's death in 1790 he writes: "It was two years later [after the death of his mother] that my father departed this life; being taken very suddenly with a violent plurisie, he was left speechless and died without making a will. My brothers were both dead, but had left children who would be entitled by the law to share in the estate, though my father had given of his substance all that he intended to give them. This very much disappointed my expectation, as it had 1Association Pledge of 1775: "We, the subscribed Freeholders and inhabitants of this Township of Pequanock in the County of Morris, Province of New Jersey having long viewed with concern the aroused design of the ministry of Great Britain to raise revenue in America, being duly affected with cruel hostilities already commenced in Massachusetts Bay for carrying arbitrary designs into execution conceive that the Preservation of the Rights and Privileges of America depend under God on the firm Union of its inhabitants, do with hearts abhorring slavery and ardently wishing for a reconciliation with the parent State on Constitutional Principals, solemnly associate and resolve under sacred ties of virtue, honor and love to our country, that we will personally and as far as our influence extend endeavor to support and carry into execution whatever measures may be recommended by the Continental and Provisional Congress for defending our Constitution and preserving the same inviolate."

2There was erected in 1822 at Goshen a monument to the martyrs who fell at Minisink. In 1862 it was replaced by a $25,000 shaft. In Charles D. Platt's "Ballads of New Jersey" is a poem description of the battle, one verse reading:

"Falling! falling! their flanks
Are exposed to the blazing muskets,
One by one they drop in their tracks!
Look yonder! a soldier
Tall and stalwart of frame,
Dan Talmage by name,
Leaps high in the air and falls Pierced thro' the heart by the flying balls."
always been understood that I was to inherit the old Mansion and the principal part of the landed estate."

Although the main occupation of Major Talmage was building, there can be no doubt about his having managed personally his plantation, consisting of several hundred acres. On the church records are found baptisms of several of his negro slaves,—Harry, France, Victory, Judy and Tom, for whom the Major stood sponsor. 4

For some years after the death of his father, Major Talmage lived on at Piscataway, but in 1798 he removed to Somerville where his name is often found in the church records and he seems to have been active in the affairs of the town. The same year he purchased a tract of some hundred or more acres in Bridgewater Township and commenced the building of Mont Verd. This tract, as is well known, was purchased, about 1860, from the estate and long resided on by the late Mr. George H. Potts. In planning some alterations he was told by his architect not to change the foundation or superstructure, as it was most solid, and in as fine condition as when the house was built, the beams showing in the cellar being two feet wide.

As the name, Mont Verd, indicates, the place is situated on a ridge at the foot of the mountain, about two miles north of Somerville. Originally the house was rather low, with a pillared porch crossing the front, which was toward the mountain. It had a wide hallway running the depth of the house and some fifteen or more large rooms. The driveway leading up to the mansion was bordered on either side by cherry trees, while a circle of huge elms surrounded the house.

When the writer first saw Mont Verd in 1860 he recalls a black and white marble tiling on the entrance hall. On the west was the drawing-room, divided by columns; while on the east side were library and dining-room. Originally there had been a flower garden at the south with box-bordered gravel walks, but this had been done away with and a terrace and driveway had been put in its place.

Standing on the porch and facing the mountain a call or laugh came back distinctly and it was often startling to the visitor to hear this echo of laughter repeated a few second later, seeming to come from the air.

At the foot of the lawn a spring of mountain water bubbled up, and 4 The writer owns a deed of sale of a negro purchased by Major Talmage living at Piscataway. It reads as follows:

"For and in consideration of One hundred pounds I herby acknowledge the sale of a negro man named Tom to Thomas Talmage of Piscataway and do so engage to warrant and defend him from all claims of any Person or Persons whatsoever. Witness my hand this seventeenth day of April, 1792.

Witness present:
John Kilpatrick.
Hannah Lane."
Mrs. Potts related the tradition that one who drank of it would never grow old! The high spirits usually to be found in those of the name may thus be accounted for. The Talmages are not a long-lived race, but they keep young to the end.

Later owners have changed Mont Verd considerably. A mansard roof and other "improvements" have been added, and the house has a modern, up-to-date air, though it first saw light in the Eighteenth Century.

The size of the original estate is not known. From the records it appears that in the year 1800 Major Talmage and his wife, Mary, conveyed unto Dickinson Miller eighty-eight acres, "part of the plantation whercon I live;" while in the year 1811 he and his son, Goyn, added to the property by purchasing seventy-five acres from Peter Stryker.

It was on the death of this, his eldest son, that Major Talmage wrote the following letter to his daughter, Sarah, who was visiting in New York City at the time, and other friends. The post mark on the outside was then, not Somerville, but "Somerset C. H.," and the date "April 28."

Monday morning, 8 o'clock,
"Mont Verd,
27 April, 1812.

"My dear and much esteemed Friends:

This letter is presented jointly to my dear daughter Sarah, to my beloved friends, Mr. A. E. Brouwer, and to Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter. I take this method of addressing you because I have not time to write to each in particular, and at the first onset I feel disposed to adopt the language of holy Job: 'Have pity upon me, have pity upon me, O ye my friends, for the hand of the Lord hath touched me.' This is, I trust, not a complaint made against the great God. No, my dear friends, the cup my Heavenly Father hath given me to drink, shall I not drink it?

'Yes, blessed be God, he enables me, and I think beyond what I could have expected, to drink the bitter potion, and in taking the draught I have found many precious sweets mingled therein.

'Our dear son is indeed no more. He has left this mortal life, this world of sin and sorrow. He has winged his way to the portals of eternal day; to the mansions of Eternal Glory.

'Blessed be God for the living testimony he hath left behind and for the consolation he hath given us. The cage (his dear remains) was left behind, but the bird hath taken its flight.

'The death of Goyn has caused general sorrow. A friend told me this morning that he has never known a death in this place so universally lamented as his. Could prayers and tears, medicine and the best attention have saved him, he would not have died, but, as he himself said in the time of his sickness, the decree was pass'd; his work was done. But what a loss to his aged parents and his own dear wife and children! The prop on which we had learned to lean has been struck from under us; the stream at which we so often refreshed is now dried up. We may say with good old Jacob, 'Joseph is not and Simeon is not' 'The Lord hath indeed made breach upon breach upon us.' About six months since our son Daniel, who, like Joseph, was separated from his brethren, died in a foreign land, and now Goyn, our dear son, whose dutiful behaviour to his parents hath gained so much the affection of their hearts, is no more. 'The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord.'

"The circumstances attending his sickness I have already mentioned to Sarah in my last Thursday night's letter. It was the following evening that he fell asleep in Jesus.

"The funeral was attended by a very large and representative concourse of people on Sabbath morning, and at 10 o'clock the burial took place, after which all resorted to the church, where the Rev. Mr. Vredenburgh gave an appropriate sermon, with the text from Ecclesiastes IX, Chap. IV, 10th verse: 'Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.' Contrary to his usual custom he referred many times to Goyn's character, and mentioned the great loss which would be sustained by society and the church with whom he stood connected.

"You'll all be tired of reading, and therefore I conclude with my most sincere love and affection, in which my dear wife joins.

"THOS. TALMAGE."

The Somerville Academy was founded in the year 1801 and Dr. Messler writes of it as follows: "It came about in this wise: A number of gentlemen had met to celebrate the Fourth of July and after a service in the church they repaired to the hotel, where a dinner was served. Among them were several who had sons to educate and it was decided at that time to found a classical school where Latin and Greek could be taught to the young men who proposed to enter college. On the 18th of July at another meeting a constitution was adopted, which provided for the erection of a building." The contract for erecting this building was awarded to Major Thomas Talmage, who was also one of the twenty Regents appointed by the Committee.

The following year the Somerset Court House was built. This was a very fine building for the times and cost £5,884. Thomas Talmage was awarded the contract for constructing this building and was paid £414 as fee for supervision.

It is unfortunate that Major Talmage in his Diary did not go more fully into the stirring events of the Revolutionary War, in many battles of which he took part in his native State, but at the time the record was written, 1800-1814, the War had been over many years and he had settled down to a peaceful old age at Mont Verd.

That he was a man deeply imbued with religious sentiment and believed implicitly in a "Guiding Hand' is shown throughout his writings. Tradition has it that he wished to enter the ministry, but, being an only son, found that the many duties which came to him early in life prevented his studying for that profession. There is little of historic interest or literary worth in his notes, but, when one considers the very limited opportunities of education afforded to the country boy of pre-Revolutionary days, the papers are not without interest.

An obituary published at the time of his death closed with the following:

"We believe we hazard nothing in saying that Major Talmage was pre-eminently true to his convictions of right and that there is none to challenge his perfect rectitude. He had a high sense of honor and loved everything that comprehended the true and the beautiful. He had likewise hatred of everything that was mean and dishonorable. To a blameless life he united graces of mind, tenderness of heart and unswerving fidelity to what he conceived to be the right."

His indeed was a life worth the living and worthy of its predecessors and well may we be proud of him and such as he who were

"Our ancestors, a gallant Christian Race, Patrons of every virtue, every grace."

BY JOHN J. DE MOTT, METUCHEN, N. J.

Dirck Low, of Neshanic, (for lineage see QUARTERLY, Vol. VI, page 205), in addition to his activities in connection with the building of Neshanic church (see Ibid, Vol. VII, pages 171, 203), was also an important man in the community. He was especially active in the settlement of estates. The following notes, sifted from his records, contain much of value in showing family relationships, occupations, current prices, etc., in Colonial and Revolutionary days. The struggles which Dirck Low had with fluctuating money values, combined with the confusion in changing from sterling to the dollar basis, are illustrated by a number of complicated entries, of the following, dated 1780, in connection this Schomp estate is typical:

THE VAN ARSDALE FAMILY—PLUCKEMIN LINE

By A. Van Doren Honeyman, Plainfield, N. J.

The Van Arsdale family in this country is an extremely large one, and in the Eighteenth Century was probably as large as that of any of the numerous Dutch families in Somerset. To-day it is still large in the county, though there are fewer of the surname than formerly, many being scattered throughout the West and elsewhere.

Our notes on this family are too scattering respecting the lines of certain early Van Arsdales who settled in Franklin, Hillsborough and
The Van Arsdale Family—Pluckemin Line

Montgomery townships to put them into shape for this article. As they are much fuller respecting what may be called the "Pluckemin line," by which is meant those descending from Philip Van Arsdale (b. 1702; d. 1792), one of the early settlers attending the Readington church, but who and whose descendants settled in Bridgewater and Bedminster townships near Pluckemin, this article will confine itself to Philip’s line, after stating the facts about his ancestry.¹

It has been stated that an "Isaac" Van Arsdale was the first immigrant, arriving in 1645, and that he heads the entire line of Van Arsdales in this country. Who discovered his name to have been "Isaac" and the date of his arrival is a puzzle to the writer. The account which is possessed by various members of the family in manuscript, reads as follows, not giving the name of the first American progenitor:

"The Van Arsdale who was the ancestor of that family in this country, arrived at New Netherlands from Holland at an early period in the ship 'Dynasty,' empowered by the Government, or some Company, in Holland to examine the country about New York to ascertain whether it was practicable to establish in this country a pottery for the manufacture of China ware. After fulfilling the object of his mission and with his baggage on board the vessel awaiting the day to set sail for his native land, he received a letter from his father stating that a pestilence was then raging there, and that his wife and two children had departed this life. This sad news changed his design of returning to Holland, and he settled at Flatland on Long Island. There he married a Miss Jansen. His son, his only child as far as ascertained, Simon Jansen Van Arsdalen, became a man of standing in his native town."

In Ege's "Pioneers of Old Hopewell," the above substantial facts appear, but there the name of this first ancestor is interpolated as "Isaac." The fact seems overlooked, however, that as his son was "Symon Jansen," it should prove that, if the story be otherwise correct, the man who first came over was Jan Van Arsdalen and not "Isaac." Mr. Ege (now deceased) says that "all the family records have been preserved for a period of two hundred and fifty years," but no clue is given as to by whom Bergen, in his "Early Settlers of King's County" (p. 309), and also in his later "Bergen Family" (p. 308), states that "Symon Janse Van Arsdalen" emigrated in 1656 and is "the common ancestor" of the family in this country. As to his being "the common ancestor," Mr. Bergen is certainly correct, for even if his father preceded him, nevertheless as he ¹There has also been a different line in Bedminster twsp., represented by the late Daniel Van Arsdale, who d. 1895, aged 83, and whose wife was Elizabeth R. Tingley. This line has not been considered, and it is not known to the writer who its ancestors were, but of course it runs back to Symon, the "common ancestor."

is stated to have had but one son, Symon, this would make of Symon a "common ancestor."

Now the certain fact is that Symon was not a native; was not born in this country, but arrived here in the year 1653, as proven by the official roll of those taking the oath of allegiance at Flatlands between Sept. 26 and 30, 1687. He is thereon enrolled as—

"Simon Janse Van Aerts Daalen 34 Yeare."

This means that he had been 34 years in this country. All others on the roll who were born in America are classed as "native." (See "Doc. Hist. of N. Y., Vol. I, p. 431).

It is uncertain how old Symon (using his own spelling of his Christian name) was when he arrived. He may have come with his father, but it cannot be that his father married in this country and then Simon was born here. From another entry in the same family manuscript quoted from above, it is clear Symon must have been at least twenty-one when he received a deed for land in 1660. This statement is:

"March 27, 1660, he [Symon] received by conveyance from Jacob, Peter and William Conover [Cowenhoven] a tract of land in Flatlands. On May 28, 1675, he received a tract in the same town from Governor Stuyvesant and Usian Bircan."

He was also a magistrate in 1661. So we assume Symon was born about 1638, if not earlier, and in Holland. We consider, therefore, that he heads the family in America, and believe his father's name was Jan.

Before taking up Symon's family, it may be well to state what that careful historian, James Riker, Jr., says in his "Annals of Newtown" (p. 307):

"The Van Arsdale family derive their origin from Jan Van Arsdale, a Knight of Holland, who, in 1211, erected the castle (now county house) Arsdale, and from it took his name. His armorial bearings now constitute the public arms of the bailiwick of Arsdale. From him descended Symon Jansen Van Arsdalen, who emigrated to New Amsterdam in 1653 and located at Flatlands, where he served as a civil magistrate and an elder of the Dutch church; and our records prove him to have been a person of means, education and influence. He died about 1710, leaving sons Cornelius and John, from whom the entire Van Arsdale family in this country have sprung."

This, agreeing with Bergen, confirms what we have already said of Symon. According to Bergen he signed his name to documents "Symon Jansen Van Arsdalen." The spelling of his surname on the allegiance roll indicates that it was pronounced Van Ars-doll-an," giving to the "a" its broad sound, so that in Dutch the modern name would be Ars-doll and not Ars-dale.

The reference to the coat-of-arms of the ancient family is that which Riker states appeared in a bookplate of 1703. In the usual Holland work containing coats-of-arms it does not appear. However, it is stated that, some years ago, the wife of ex-Governor Bedle brought from Holland a copy, and a reproduction of it has been made by a Plainfield artist for some members of the Van Arsdale family. The same has an irregular shield, with the usual four quarters. The first and fourth quarters consist of arrow heads upon a silver ground; the other quarters are plain red. The crest is a helmet, surmounted by what may be feathers, but has more the appearance of a tree. There is much other ornamentation in silver and gold, as was the custom in early Dutch and German armors.

As in most Dutch families a claim is said to have been made to land on Manhattan by some Van Arsdales in the early part of last century. It is thus stated by a descendant, who has written to us from Nebraska: "The Van Arsdales had a claim on [at] Hell Gate, Manhattan Island; collected manuscripts and Bibles enough to fill a wagon to prove it; but the lawyer died, or something happened, and it came to naught. This was an old tale when my grandfather was young." The story may well be relegated to oblivion now, as it was probably the attempt of some attorney to make money.

In relation to the change of name from Van Arsdalen (often written Van Aersdalen) to Van Arsdale, it came about gradually after the year 1800, so that in many cases it is uncertain how the older members of the various families living between 1800 and 1825 or later signed the surname. The original name in Holland was, as has been stated, Arsdale, and not Arsdalen.

The American line then runs as follows:

1. Simon Jansen Van Arsdale, who may have been b. in 1638, or earlier, in Holland. He was a magistrate of Flatlands, L. L., in 1661 and again in 1686. In 1677 he was a member of the Flatlands church. In 1687 he took the then-required oath of allegiance to the English crown. He was on the census list in 1698, and, it has been stated, died "about 1710," but we have seen no proof of his name on the records after 1701. Riker may have had some authority for fixing the "about 1710" date, unless it is a misprint.

Simon Jansen married Pieterje Wyckoff, daughter of Claes Cornelissen Wyckoff, and Margaret Van der Goss. She was born in this country, but her father emigrated hither in 1636. (See last Quarterly, p. 50).
Children of Symon J. Van Arsdalen (1) and Pieterje Wyckoff:

(Order unknown)

2. Geertje, b. about 1660; m. Oct. 13, 1678, her cousin, Cornelis Pieterse Wyckoff, son of Pieter Claes Wyckoff and Grietje Van Ness. They resided at New Lotts, and their numerous children are well known. Four of their sons settled in Somerset in Franklin twsp., on 1,200 acres of land which Cornelis purchased. (See Quarterly, Vol. IV, p. 130 et seq.).

3. Cornelis, of Flatlands, through whom the Somerset lines are derived, b. (perhaps about) 1662; d. 1745, as his will was probated in New York City April 19, 1745: m. (1) Tjelletje Rynierse Wizzelpenne ning; (2), Mar. 16, 1687, Aeltje Kouwenhoven; (3), May 2, 1691, Marretje Dickse (parentage unknown). It is certain that Cornelis took the oath of allegiance when his father died (1687), and on the roll was entered thus: "Cornelis Simonsen Van Aerts daalen, native." Except that he had a farm at Flatlands, and one at Gravesend purchased of his father in 1700, and d. leaving a will of April 25, 1738, probated Apr. 19, 1745, we have no further knowledge of him than above stated.

As to Cornelis' first wife, a Wizzelpennine, we have no knowledge. Aeltje Kouwenhoven was b. Dec. 14, 1665 and d. about 1689, and was the dau. of William Gerretsen Couwenhoven (so signed his name) and Altie, dau. of Joris Dircksen Brinckerhoff. Marritje Dickse may have been an Amerman, the dau. of Derck Jansen Amerman and Aeltje Paulus Vander Beeck, who emigrated in 1650 and settled in Flatlands, but this is uncertain.

While Cornelis, himself, never resided in Franklin twsp. (Somerset co.), it may be he purchased land there on which to settle a son, as in 1735 a Cornelius was taxed in Franklin on 200 acres of land. Or that may have been his nephew, son of his brother Jan.

In his will Cornelis made his wife "Maritje," sole executor, and gave to her all his estate, real and personal, for life; to his eldest son, Dirck, a silver tankard as his birthright; then, after his wife's death, the estate to his ten children, who are named, from which recitation of names we know their order of birth, except that the sons are all mentioned first and then the daughters. As to "Jannetie," whom he stated was by a "former wife," as she had had her mother's inheritance, she was not to share in anything further coming from her father's last wife.

4. Jannetje, b. about 1670; m. (1), John ————; (2), Apr. 10, 1680, Gysbert Bogaert (son of Teunis, common ancestor of the Bogart family), a magistrate of Brooklyn. Several ch.

5. Jan, of Flatlands; sup. to have had four wives, Jannetje Dor lant, Lammetje Probasko, Sarah Van Voorhees and Libertje Newberrie.
(See Bergen's "Early Settlers," p. 308). He d. in Jamaica, L. I., having been a leading member of the Flatlands Dutch church. Is said to have had six sons, John, Christopher, Abraham and Nicholas. The writer judges Christopher was the Christoffel, who m. Magdalen Reyniersen (see Quarterly, Vol. VI, p. 55) and who was one of the earliest members (1717) of the Dutch church at New Brunswick, his sons being John, Okie, Cornelius (these three had ch. bapt. at Six-Mile Run) and Christoffel, Jr., of near Millstone. In 1735 Christoffel, Sr., lived in Franklin twsp., Somerset co., but was not a land owner. In 1745 he owned 200 acres there. ("Our Home," pp. 343, 406). As before stated, a Cornelis also in 1735 owned 200 acres of land in Franklin twsp. Abraham and Nicholas, sons of Jan (5) settled in Southampton twsp., Bucks co., Pa.

6. Marretje; m. Jan Barendse, of Flatlands.

7. Simon (sup.). A John, whose eldest son was Simon, d. at Jamaica, L. I., in 1756, and we suppose his father to have been a Simon.

8. Matje; m. Evert Van Marklen, of Flatlands.

Child of Cornelis Van Arsdaalen (3) and Aeltje Kouwenhoven:

Children of Cornelis Van Arsdaalen (3) and Marretje Dirkse:

[Order only certain as to sons and daughters]

10. Altie; m., Sept. 19, 1719, Jeronimus Rapalje (son of Teunis Rapalje and Sarah Van Veghten). They resided at New Brunswick and had several ch.

11. Dirck. Probably settled near Three-Mile Run, Somerset co., N. J. A Dirck was there in 1723, and was deacon in 1734 and 1736 in the Dutch ch. in New Brunswick. Not further traced.

12. Jan; d. 1750; settled on the Harlingen, N. J., tract, in Somerset Co. On May 4, 1741, he and Hendrick Vanderveer jointly purchased Lot No. 21 of Cornelius Van Duyn, of Brooklyn. (Trenton Deeds, Book G 2, p. 494). Will shows he had two wives, the second Mary ———. It was probated May 26, 1750, and names as ch., Cornelius, Garret, Johannis, Isaac, Maritje (wife of John Van Nuise), Johanna and Sara; also an expected child. His executors were his brother Philip and Nicolas Wyckoff. Second wife living but not named. (Trenton Wills, Book E, p. 350). His ch. Johannis, Jannetje (deceased in 1750) and Johanna were baptized at Readington 1731 and later, and he was a deacon of that church in 1733, and elder in 1736. It is said that the Rev. Cornelius C. Van Arsdaile, D. D., prominent minister in Philadelphia (1841-9), who d. in 1856, was Jan's grandson.

13. Simon, bapt. Aug. 16, 1697; m., Oct. 30, 1716, Yannetje Romain. He settled in Bucks co., Pa. Had several ch., and was probably the grandfather of Rev. Simeon Van Artsdalen (he so wrote his name), pastor of the Readington, N. J., Ref. Dutch ch., 1783-86, who was b. in Bucks co.

14. Maria. No further trace; living in 1738.

15. Petronella: living in 1738; possibly m. Dirck Van Dyke.

16. Philip, b. at Flatbush, L. I., Feb. 25, 1702; d. June 28, 1796; m. (1) Apr. 30, 1726, Jane Van Dyke (dau. of Hendrick and Engeltie Van Dyke, of Red Mills, near Brooklyn, N. Y.), who was b. 1706 and d. Nov. 23, 1743; and (2) April 13, 1750, (license at Trenton dated Apr. 9) Hannah Macknish (or Magnish), of Middlesex co., who d. Sept. 12, 1776.

It is Philip's descending line which is hereinafter treated. What follows is by no means a complete line of Philip's descendants, but is such as has come to the writer's knowledge. Valuable assistance in this has been given by Mrs. Henrietta Huff and Mr. John A. Powelson, of Pluckemin, and others.

Philip must have settled in 1728, soon after his first marriage, within the bounds of the Readington congregation. On May 20, 1728, he received a deed from his father-in-law, Hendrick Van Dyke, for 230 acres of land, adjoining "the brook," Robert Burnett and ——— Dumont. While the exact location is uncertain it is to be judged it was in present Branchburg, possibly in present Hillsborough township, as a Philip Van Arsdaile was among the inhabitants of Hillsborough in 1751. This land came afterward into the ownership of John, Philip's son, as in 1793 a sheriff's deed sold it away from John to Philip, Jr., the deed being recorded at Somerville and reciting the earlier deed from Hendrick Van Dyke. (Somerset Deeds, Book A, p. 206). As on Jan. 16, 1783, Philip (presumed to be Philip, Sr.) sold 240 acres of land near Pluckemin to his son Hendrick, it may be Philip spent his later days on this Pluckemin farm. In fact a deed to Johannes Powelson, of near Pluckemin, May 1, 1767, stated it was along the line of Philip Van Arsdaile. The fact that Philip's wife, Jane, joined the Readington church in 1733, and be in 1741, makes it certain, we think, that he originally lived nearer Readington than to either Pluckemin or Somerville, but it is also probable that, before 1767, he had gone to near Pluckemin.

Philip's will of Oct. 23, 1787, was probated Aug. 10, 1796 (Trenton Wills, Book 35, p. 405), but only mentions his four living sons, Hendrick, Philip, John and Jacob. As noted below, some of Philip's children were bapt. at Readington (1729-'34) and one at Somerville (1738); but subsequent baptisms have not been discovered. (For ch., see infra).

17. ABRAHAM; d. 1753; m. Maria (perhaps Stryker). He settled near Harlingen. Whether he is the same Abraham who (in such case with an earlier wife) had a wife Catreytje, when a son, Wilhelms, was bapt. at Somerville in 1737 is not known, but the Abraham of Harlingen left a will of Apr. 4, 1753, probated May 7, 1753 (Trenton Wills, Book F, p. 119) which shows his ch. were ISAAC, WILLIAM, CATHERINE, CORNELIUS, ABRAHAM, and an expected child.

18. JACOBUS; m. Alida Hoagland (dau. of Harmanus Hoagland and Adriana Stoothoff, of Flatbush), who was b. Mar. 19, 1710, and had previously been married. They resided near Harlingen, N. J., and probably had ch., but not traced.

CHILDREN OF PHILIP VAN ARSDALEN (16) AND JANE VAN DYKE:

19. CORNELIUS, b. Apr. 22, 1727, (prob. baptized at Flatlands); d. July 1, 1749.

20. HENDRICK, b. May 10, 1729 (bapt. at Readington); d. Jan. 21, 1811; m. (1) Jane Ditmarsh, who was b. 1735 and d. 1782; (2) 1788, Mary Terhune Cortelyou (widow of James). Marriage contract with second wife was recorded Apr. 18, 1808, but date was Aug. 12, 1788 (Som. Deeds, Book B, p. 160). Hendrick lived in Bridgewater twsp., Somerset co., along the road from Somerville to Pluckemin, it being the farm directly north of and adjoining that of (at present) John A. Powellson. It contained 240 acres (see under Philip, 16). He also owned the "jail lot" in Somerville, selling it in 1800. The 240-acre farm (or 236 acres of it) he deeded to his son Philip, May 1, 1806. (Som. Deeds, Book E, p. 8). The present owner of this farm is Warren Smith. By 1806, or earlier, Hendrick had removed to Franklin twsp., where he died—probably near or at New Brunswick, where his younger son, Henry H.,

He may or may not be the Colonel Abraham, of the Revolution. The recurrence of the names Abraham, Cornelius, etc., on the early Harlingen, Millstone, Somerville, Readington, Neshanic and New Brunswick records are too puzzling for a disentanglement of relationships in those branches of the Van Arsdale line except after a longer study of records than the present writer has the time to give. In this connection it should be stated that from the vicinity of Harlingen, Neshanic, etc., many of the family left Somerset before the Revolution and settled at Conewago, Pa., the names of such being Abraham. Cornelius, Garret, Isaac, Luke, Simon, etc., the most of them probably being nephews, or grandnephews, of Philip (16). They went, later to the West. The Abraham of the text (son of Abraham, 17), is probably an Abraham who remained in Somerset and married Margaret Kennedy. Some notes on him will be published in our next issue, as such have been furnished by a Western descendant, brothers Simon and Jacobus, and friend John Stryker.

21. Maria, b. Dec. 4, 1731 (bapt. at Readington); d. about 1738.

22. Isaac, of near Pluckemin, b. Mar. 20, 1734 (bapt. at Readington): d. July 27, 1776; m. Margaret Stryker (dau. of Abraham Stryker). His will of July 23, 1770, was probat. Aug. 18, 1776. (Trenton Wills, Book 17, p. 381). He seems to have been called "Captain Isaac."* For ch., see infra.

23. Philip, b. May 31, 1738 (bapt. at Somerville); d. 1803; m. Alche Stryker. He came into the ownership of 230 acres in 1793 (as stated under his father, Philip, (16), the land being, probably, in present Hillsborough twsp.). His will of June 13, 1803, was probat. Aug. 19, 1803. (Trenton Wills, Book 40, p. 445). I judge this Philip was the "Captain Philip," who was Captain in the First Battalion, Somerset Militia in the Revolution, and whose loss of property by the British was £35 (as per Quarterly. Vol. I, p. 285). (For ch., see infra).

25. Rev. Jacob, b. Feb. 3 (or 8), 1745; d. Oct. 24, 1803; m. Mary Sutphen (dau. of Dirck Sutphen and Mary Cowenhoven, of Freehold), who was b. 1744 and d. July 1, 1826. He was graduated from Princeton College in 1765; ordained by the Presby. of New Brunswick June 19, 1771; ministered at the Presby. ch. of Kingston, Somerset co., N. J., 1771-1774, and was pastor at Springfield, Essex (now Union) co., 1774-1801. Is buried in the Springfield churchyard. This Springfield church was burned by the British during his pastorate, but he labored on and had a new one built and completed, though it took many years of effort. He wrote his surname "Van Artsdalen." (For ch., see infra).

[One of the sons of Philip Van Artsdalen and Jane Van Dyke was the father of Dr. Peter Wilson, of New York city, but which son the writer does not know].

Children of Hendrick Van Artsdalen (20) and Jane Ditmars:

27. Dowe, b. Apr. 18, 1758; d. 1776. Said to have been killed (or died from disease) in the Revolutionary War.

*The Battle of Princeton occurred Jan. 3, 1877. In Snell's "Hunt and Som.," p. 701, is an account (tradition) taken from the Magill Newark "Journal" articles of about 1876, which speaks of "Captain Isaac" as living during a raid on Pluckemin by the British "just before the Battle of Princeton." But Isaac had died the previous July; hence, if the story be true, it must have been some time before that Battle.
23, 1836; m. (1) Sarah Wortman (dau. of John and Sarah Wortman), who was b. Aug. 9, 1764, d. July 17, 1799; and (2) Mary W. Annin, who was b. Sept. 25, 1760. (As to land received from his father in 1806, see under Hendrick, 20). He was one of the Commissioners appointed to sell the old Lutheran church property at Pluckemin in 1819. Probably he is the Philip who was Collector of Bridgewater twsp. from 1787-1797 and in 1800. (For ch., see infra).

31. William, b. June 13, 1768; d. July 28, 1858; m. George Vroom, farmer, of near Pluckemin, who was b. Nov. 7, 1758, and d. Sept. 10, 1852. Ch.: Philip, who m. Deborah Tunison, and was father of the late Peter Vroom, of Somerville, long a hardware merchant there, whose son, William, is now President of the Somerville Merchant’s Association; Jane V., who m. Philip I. died intestate, and his lands (about 175 acres, now owned by Bernard Bruckner, florist), were divided by partition among his children in 1817. (For ch., see infra).

37. Abraham I., b. about 1765(?); d. 1849; m. Mary Eoff. He owned Kline's Mills near Pluckemin. He served in Capt. Jacob Ten Eyck's Co. as private, and as sergeant in Capt. Vroom's Co., Somerset Militia, and after the Revolution was probably a Captain of militia. (For ch. and other particulars of Isaac's ch., see the large work on "The Van Doorn Family," p. 433).

*In this connection attention is called to an error in the Quarterly. Vol. VII, p. 291 and Vol. VI, p. 104, where this Abraham I. Van Arsdale is stated to have m. Mary Magdalene, dau. of the first Jacob Eoff, and to have d. 1811, after which his widow, Mary, m. Capt. Samuel Boylan. We based this in part on Snell's "Hunt. and Som.," p. 702, and other publications. Since we suppose that Abraham was b. about 1765, perhaps full twenty years after Mary M. Eoff, this of itself would suggest an improbability. But, in addition, we find Abraham I. to have been living in 1814 and later; and his descendant, Mrs. Taylor, writes us that he did not die until Aug., 1849, at Summer Hill, Cayuga co., N. Y., to which place he had removed. This being the case, Mary Eoff, his wife, must have been a granddau. of Jacob Eoff; and it must have been still another Mary Eoff (if that name be correct) who m. Capt. Samuel Boylan.
19, 1846; m. Margaret Johnston (dau. of Robert, of Dutchess co., N. Y.). He grad. from Princeton College in 1791; studied law under Judge Elisha Boudinot, of Newark; was admitted to N. J. One who remembered Philip P. well seventy-five years ago says of him: "My memory runs back to my boyhood in the '40's, when this gentleman taught in successive Winters a public singing-school in my village. He was then accounted a 'sweet singer in Israel,' and very distinctly do I recall his appearance on the platform as, with elevated arm, he struck the first high notes of 'Joy, joy to the World!' [Note.—In compiling the foregoing the writer has not undertaken to state just which of the males who were of age to take part in the Revolutionary War did so. A large number of Van Arsdales were in the Revolutionary army, but the duplicates in names and the fact that certainly many were of what we choose to call the Harlingen, Neshanic and Franklin towns, make it now impossible to designate the actual soldiers, except in an instance or two. There were also some in the Whiskey Insurrection War, War of 1812, the War of the Rebellion and the late European War.]

It must not be overlooked that the dates named for the foregoing officials are only extended to the year 1799; beyond that see Snell's "Hist. of Hunt. and Somerset," (pp. 643-647).

In addition to the foregoing, which, as a rule, indicates the years when each official named was commissioned, we have found from other records some sheriffs of Somerset acting in these years:

The John Riddell named above took office without qualifying, and a most interesting investigation concerning his running away while in debt and during his term of office is to be found in "N. J. Archives," Vol. XII (pp. 212-225). It is there stated that Riddell succeeded Barefoot Brunson.

From the lists above given it is possible to approximately (not certainly or fully) determine who were sheriffs of Somerset County up to the close of the Revolution, to which period the list in Snell's work is fragmentary and incorrect. The names and dates, then, so far as we can gather, are somewhat as follows:

Early Sheriffs of Somerset

Edward Slater, 1692-1707(?)
John Nowec, 1707-1708.
Six-Mile Run Church Baptisms, 1743-1805

Adam Hude, 1708-1709.
Barefoot Brunson, 1709-1711.
Garvin Lockhart, 1711—(?).
Barefoot Brunson, ——(?)——(?). [Probably appointed again and holding office for a long term].
John Piatt, 1732-1740(?).
William Hollingshead, 1740—(?).
Barefoot Brunson. ——(?)-1745(?).
John Riddell, 1745(?)-1746(?).
Francis Hollingshead, 1746(?)-1752(?).
Abraham Van Dorn, 1752(?)-1758(?).
Job Stockton, 1758-1761.
William McDonald, 1761-1762.
George Reamer, 1762-1765.
Job Stockton, 1765-1768.
Richard Stockton, 1768-1771.
William McDonald, 1771-1774.
Richard Stockton, 1774-1778.
Peter Dumont, 1778-1781.
Peter D. Vroom, 1781-1783.

As there is no certainty just when the terms of any sheriff ended, except in a few instances (they held office at the pleasure of the Governor), we have had to surmise the dates of the expiration of many of the terms.

It has been repeated in many published works that Abraham Van Dorn was appointed “in 1750” and held office for at least twenty years. But so far as appears in our list (which may be imperfect) his first commission was dated 1753, (Feb. 27), and certainly Job Stockton was commissioned in 1758, and other persons thereafter as named above. The published Van Dorn item, therefore, must have been based upon an unreliable tradition. It is possible Abraham did become sheriff “in 1750,” and that such commission did not become entered on the minutes of appointments: in fact he was sheriff in Dec., 1752 if he conducted the burning of the negro who murdered A. Van Neste, as has often been printed: but, if so, there are allowed only at most eight years for his service. This Abraham was a brother to Christian, of Middlebush, who wrote his surname as it is now generally spelled, “Van Doren.”

SIX-MILE RUN CHURCH BAPTISMS, 1743-1805

FROM THE RECORDS

The Six-Mile Run Dutch Reformed church, in Franklin township, Somerset county, was organized Nov. 15, 1710, but no baptismal records of it are known to exist prior to 1743, except about a dozen baptisms by the organizer, Paulus Van Vleq. For that year and then for 1749-’53 a few loose leaves exist; otherwise the original baptismal book, deposited in 1894 in the Sage Library, at New Brunswick, continues the entries until 1804. From a careful copy of these entries the following baptisms have been transcribed by the Editor of the Quarterly. Spellings have been preserved as written. In a few cases we have transposed the names so as to make the dates consecutive. Some breaks in years will be noticed.

The pastors of the church during the period named were Theodorus J. Frelinghuysen, 1720-'47; Johannes Arondeus, acting at times, 1747-'54; Johannes Leydt, 1748-'83; John M. Van Harlingen, 1787-'95; James S. Cannon, 1797-1826. The present pastor is the Rev. Eugene H. Keator, to whom and to the Consistory of the Church we are indebted for the loan of the record of which we now commence publication.

Historical Notes and Comments

Tuition and Board 100 Years Ago

Almost one hundred years ago there was a famous boarding school for young ladies in Princeton kept by a Miss Hanna. The building in which the school was kept was a double house, with dormer windows and a semi-circular portico in front. Later it was owned by Col. Beatty, a distinguished Revolutionary officer, and it still remains intact, we believe although on another side of the street. That the school was first-class in its day has often been stated by those who remembered it. There now lies before us a bill for tuition in that school, and it may interest some of our readers who are sending daughters to some distant boarding-school to contrast the expenses per term of then and now. We are not privileged to print the name of the family concerned, but, otherwise, the full bill reads:

Dr. Mr. ——— to E. Hanna.
To tuition of his daughter one session — $9.00
Fuel for session — — — — — — — — .62½
Framing, lining, varnishing, etc., a map — 1.00

$10.62½

The young lady who went to this school boarded with a family in Princeton, and this is a copy of the bill for board, etc.:
To ———, Dr.

To 43 weeks board for daughter @ 1.25  $53.75
To green bonnet — — — — 2.45
To sundries — — — — 1.00

$57.20

The first bill is for one quarter and the second for the full school year. It will not take much calculation to show that the entire cost of board and tuition (not to add the trifle extras) for forty-three weeks (if four sessions) was about $89.75.

Constables in 1788

A slip of paper found recently loosely laid in the early “Court Minutes” of Somerset gives the following list of the constables in the county on Jan. 1, 1788: George Rowland, Isaac Underdonk, Peter Harpending, Abram Hall, Isaac Voorhees, Philip Harder, Isaac Striker, Daniel Sleight, Thomas Skillman, Garret Garritse, James Lowe, William Todd, Jonathan Pennington, Anthony Cozart.

An Early Western Settler

From time to time, as many must have noticed, the Quarterly names in its genealogical or other articles persons who left this county prior to the year 1800 and settled in another, and usually Western State. West New York State and Western Pennsylvania were considered “in the West,” but the great Ohio country and Kentucky were the “real” West. We are always glad to print particulars of these migrations, but few facts are really known. Our forebears of that early day did not keep extended journals, or even diaries, of happenings, for the incidents of a Western journey were considered a matter of course. They little knew how such matters would now interest their descendants.

One of our recent finds is a statement by the son of a migrant to Ohio. It was sent to the Editor of the Quarterly about ten years ago, in answer to an inquiry, but has never been published, and has just reappeared in our little manuscript “barrel,” for, like ministers, Editors must have a place of deposit for that which may some day prove of use.

Garret Voorhees was the son of Abraham Voorhees, of Neshanic, Somerset co. Abraham was b. Sept. 16, 1730. His wife was Mary Van Doren, dau. of Sheriff Abraham Van Dorn, of Middlebush, (the daughter not adhering to her father’s spelling). Garret was b. June 9, 1763. On Jan. 15, 1790, he m. Cornelia Parsell, presumably of Somerset co., and then at once determined on seeking a home in another State. So the same year he started, with his wife, going to what was known as “the Red Stone” part of Pennsylvania. We judge this was York county, where red sandstone was plentiful and to which place many Somerset families had gone. But that year found few of the Somerset residents remaining there; they had trekked off to New York State and Kentucky. The very next year, therefore, Garret started out again, and, says his son:

"In the Fall of 1791 Garret emigrated to Hamilton co., Ohio. He went down the river in a flat boat, and on the road they heard of Gen. Harmer’s defeat by the Indians, and would have turned back, but the boat would not float up stream. They landed at the fort at Columbia, just above Cincinnati, and had to stay there until General Wayne defeated the Indians in 1794, when he and all his father’s family moved on Section 33 (?) in a station house, and in the fall of the same year Garret Voorhees moved on the farm in said section where his youngest son, Harvey, now lives."

This Harvey was the writer of the foregoing, but has since deceased in his 80th year. He was one of the most respected and useful men in his part of the county.

This settlement in Ohio by Garret antedated by two years the actual Miami Tract purchase of Judge Symmes, and we doubt if many other Jerseymen had gone to that State so early as 1792. Evidently he was a real pioneer. But his father, also, got the Ohio fever, and in 1794 he, too, with nine children (Garret, the fifth child, making ten in all) followed the same long trail across the mountains of Pennsylvania, and settled down in Hamilton county, Ohio. There at least seven of the children married, and to-day their descendants are numbered by the hundreds.

Which foregoing statement is a reminder of what many of our Somerset readers do not realize, that thousands, yes tens of thousands of persons of various surnames throughout the West can trace back their ancestry to this "Garden" of New Jersey. If a few of these thousands only knew of the existence and value of the past seven volumes of the Quarterly we should not need for subscribers to continue it indefinitely.

Where Were These Two Early Places?

On June 17, 1716, there was baptized at Nine-Mile Run, which was a mile northeast of Ten-Mile Run in Franklin twsp., this county, children of Daniel Schoemaker, who (the children) were recorded as born "at Sumerfelt on the Raritans." Sumerfelt is but a German name for Summerfield, not so far a remove from Summerville, or Somerville, as may be supposed. But certainly it was not Somerville. We have not heretofore seen any reference to such a place in the county, and the query is, where was it?

In a will, recorded at Trenton in 1745, made by Benjamin Hall, of Piscataway, he mentions his "cousin, Daniel Blackford, Jr., of New Milford, Somerset county." This Daniel, Jr., resided, as we think, in Bound Brook. Was there an attempt at this time to change the name of Bound Brook to New Milford? If not, where was New Milford?

Military Order of 1865 and Commission of 1793

The present generation hardly know of the local military events of the War of the Rebellion, by which we mean the formation and practice of local companies which never went to the War and so did not obtain the publication of their members' names in the official rolls of the nation. In fact the history of these companies, formed in every county, perhaps chiefly for self-defense, has never been written, and probably never will be. It is even now too late to secure the facts. We are reminded of these home companies, however, by the following order which has come into our hands. Our readers will readily recognize who "Captain" Corle, and "Brigadier-General" Voorhees were—both now deceased:

HEADQUARTERS, SOMERSET BRIGADE, September 4th, 1865.

To Calvin Corle, Esq.

You are hereby authorized and directed to take into your charge for drill exercise and improvement Company Number Twelve of this Brigade, until superseded by lawful authority. Said Company is directed to obey you accordingly. This is your warrant.

Witness my hand,

J. V. Voorhees,
Acting Brigadier General.

Quite similar to the home defense guards of 1805 were the militiamen of the years succeeding the Revolution. They, too, did not expect to be called out to actual warfare but were to be prepared for it. Some of them were used to suppress the Whisky Insurrection in 1794, and others, much later, found the real War of 1812 on their hands, but, as a rule, the State militia did not get into any actual fighting and only came together on "training days." The following paper of 1793 shows how an officer was then commissioned:

THE STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,

"To David Nevius, Gentleman:

"Whereas the Commissioner of the County of Somerset hath, certified to the Commander in Chief of this State the completion of a Company called the Second Company in the Fifth Battalion in the Third Regiment of the Militia in the said County, and that you were duly chosen by the said Company to be Lieutenant of the said Company: You are therefore to take the said Company into your charge and care as Lieutenant thereof, and duly to exercise both Officers and Soldiers of the said Company in Arms; and as they are hereby directed to obey you as their Lieutenant, you are likewise to obey and follow such Orders and Directions, from time to time as you shall receive from superior Officer or Officers;"
and for your so doing this shall be your Commission. In Testimony whereof the great Seal of the said State is hereunto affixed.

"Witness Richard Howell Esquire, Governor, Captain-General and Commander in Chief in and over the State of New Jersey and Territories thereunto belonging, Chancellor and Ordinary in the same, at Trenton, the fifth day of June in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three.

"By the Governor, BOWES REED, Sec'y."

"Sermons in Stones"

A fine old gentleman, himself a writer of history, but now deceased, wrote out the following in 1900 concerning some gravestones in the Lamington churchyard, adding to it what he termed a "pasquinade."

"In the old Lamington churchyard may be found what is perhaps the most appropriate poetic stanza that was ever engraved on a sepulchral stone. A certain tall, coarse, gamut dark-featured and wealthy farmer of the neighborhood, having a voice of thunder, kept his meek and patient wife in terror of his explosions all her days. Even in his moments of so-called 'good humor' his general aspect of sternness and horse rumbling tones were sufficiently fear-inspiring to all the members of his household.
At last the gentle consort died, and the bereaved husband, feeling the extent of his personal loss, and wishing perhaps to mark his appreciation of her always submissive temper and placid Christian character, caused these metrical lines to be inscribed on the tombstone erected above her grave

"Let friends no more my sufferings mourn,
Nor view my relics with concern,
But cease to drop the pitying tear,
I've passed beyond the reach of fear."

"The exquisite appropriateness of this borrowed stanza at once commended itself to all the people of the neighborhood who were acquainted with the domestic life of the ill-mated pair.

"In the same old yard on an ancient stone, was once inscribed the following:

"'And his kind soul has took its flight
To realms of endless night""

"The h in 'night' was afterwards cut out and l substituted therefor, and in this amended form it remains to the present day.

"The following may be cited as a good example of a self-inflicted pasquinade. A farmer not so many miles from Lamington shamefully despoiled a burying-ground upon his place, by cutting off the enclosing stone fence, cutting down several shade trees, and exposing the naked graves to the trampling feet of horses and cattle that roved at will over the farm. Close by the desecrated spot he has affixed to a tree a board on which is scratched: 'All trespassing on these premises forbidden under penalty of the law.'"
DEPARTMENT OF NOTES AND QUERIES

[187]. HENDRICK FISHER'S CHILDREN.—In our last Quarterly it was stated that no complete statement had been published of the children of Hendrick Fisher. A partial statement only is given in Chamber's "Early Germans" (p. 362), where seven are named, with no facts beyond baptismal dates except in one instance. This Revolutionary patriot was such an honor to Somerset that it seems as if more facts should be known, at least about his immediate family. Efforts to learn full particulars have, thus far, proven failures, except as below stated. Further information will be welcomed.

Before referring specifically to his children we note the interesting fact that we think we can state the full name of Hendrick's wife. No one thus far, to our knowledge, has given even a clue to the family to which she belonged. But we find, on the records of the First Reformed Church of New Brunswick, on May 27, 1757, the following entry:

"Lebytje Bries, wife of Hendrick Fisher," As Hendrick was a deacon of the same church in 1722, and an elder in 1727, it would be natural to suppose that "Lebytje," joining the church so late, was the wife of Hendrick's son Hendrick; but, as the baptisms below show, the first Hendrick, Jr., died before 1744 and the second Hendrick, Jr., was not baptised until that year. Hence it must have been the elder Hendrick's wife. Besides this, curiously enough, we find her name as "Elisabit Bries" on the earlier (1717) membership list of the New Brunswick church, then called the "Church of the River and Lawrence Brook." Why she joined the same church twice is a problem we cannot solve. "Lebetje" was one of the Dutch forms of Elizabeth. It frequently appears in that form in the baptismal record of Hendrick and "Lebetje" Fisher's children, though also as "Lisabet" and even "Effje."

Then who was Elizabeth Bries? Evidently the daughter of Volkert Hendrickse Bries and Neeltje Jans, who, before her marriage to Bries, had been the wife of Gerret Dirckse Croegier. This perfectly coincides with the natural naming of Hendrick's children. After naming the first son Hendrick and the first daughter Elizabeth (after himself and wife), he names the next son Volkert and the next daughter Neeltje.

We only know of Voekert II. Bries that he was a farmer of Brooklyn; married Neeltje (Janse) Croegier, April 1, 1680; after her death he married an Elizabeth Poulis. A Hendrick Bries seemed to have settled about 1699, at Three-Mile Run near New Brunswick. In 1717-'21 he was a deacon at New Brunswick. So both Hendrick Bries (no doubt Volkert's son) and Hendrick Fisher were co-officials, at nearly the same time, in the same church; and we believe they became brothers-in-law. Hendrick Bries married Antje—(perhaps Powelson, as Cornelis and Antje Powelson are witnesses to a baptism of a child, Hendrick, Jr., on the Somerville records in 1716).

Instead of seven children, Hendrick Fisher had fourteen children, some being baptised at the First Reformed Church at New Brunswick and some at the First Reformed Church of Somerville. As Rev. Theodorus J. Frelinghuysen was pastor of both churches until 1747, this may be accounted for by supposing that Mr. and Mrs. Fisher went, when "baptismal day" came, to whichever church Mr. Frelinghuysen (Fisher's bosom friend as well as pastor) was serving on that Sunday. Mr. Fisher lived almost equidistant between the two congregations.

We must also now correct the supposition in the Quarterly article for January (p, 3), that Hendrick was probably married "about 1726." We had not then a knowledge of the dates in the New Brunswick baptismal record. He must have been married in 1721 or 1722.

The following, then, appear to have been Hendrick's children:

1. Hendrick, bapt. May 8, 1823, at New Brunswick; entered as "Hendrick;" d. before 1744 (when second of name bapt.)

2. Elisabeth, bapt. Nov. 15, 1824, at New Brunswick; d. before 1750 (when second of name bapt.); m. (license dated) May 4, 1744, John Field, of Middlesex co., who was living in 1774, when mentioned in first draft of Hendrick Fisher's will.

3. Volkert, bapt. Dec. 11, 1726, at Somerville (then Raritan); d. before 1774; m. (license dated) June 7, 1763, Elizabeth Smyth, of Monmouth co. In the early (1774) draft of his father's will Volkert's widow, Elizabeth, is named and these children: Hendrick; George; Elizabeth; Jane; Margaret. He probably lived near Bound Brook, on a place on which his brother John lived after his death. (See draft of Hendrick Fisher's will of Jan. 31, 1774, in "N. Bruns. Hist. Club Publications," No. 1, p. 35). No further trace of the children.

4. Maria, bapt. May 4, 1729, at Somerville; d. before 1755 (when second of name bapt.). We think she m. Jacob Fulkerson, who resided in Bedminster twsp. on one of the Johnston farms. (See Quarterly, Vol. II, p. 187, where, in 1753, Fulkerson is referred to in the "Journals of Andrew Johnston" as "Mr. Fisher's son-in-law," and as having "the character of an idle fellow"). In her father's will of 1778 her daughter, "Mary Fulkerson," is spoken of by name.

5. Neltef, bapt. Oct. 24, 1731, at Somerville; m. (license dated) June 1, 1751, Hendrick Suydam, of Somerset co. She probably d. before 1778, as only her "children" (unnamed) and her husband are mentioned in her father's last will. This Suydam we have not yet identified.

6. John, b. Feb. 17, 1734 (bapt. Mar. 24 at New Brunswick); d. May 18, 1814; m., Nov. 27, 1758, Margaret McCrea, who was b. Apr. 17, 1737, and d. June 14, 1819. Probably she was closely related to James McCrea, the hatter, who resided in Bound Brook in 1769. (See Quarterly, Vol. VII, p. 97, footnote). In 1778 he was living on a farm owned by his father, and doubtless always lived near Bound Brook. He also served in the Revolutionary War as a private, but we do not know his full record.

As to John's children, we at present only know of two. One, Min- ne, is mentioned in his grandfather's (Hendrick's) will. He may be the Minne Fisher who m. (license dated) Jan. 19, 1787, Mary Blaine, but what became of him seems to be unknown. The other known son was Hendrick, who m. Mary Brokaw; no date yet obtained. Nor do we know who Hendrick's children were, except one, Eliza Ellen, who was b. Feb. 8, 1810; d. Aug. 16, 1892; m. Jan. 5, 1831, Sylvanus Ayers, of Bound Brook, who was b. May 7, 1807, and d. Mar. 28, 1885. His ch. were (order unknown to the writer): Sylvanus Ayers, Jr., who m. Emma Lilly Coryell; William Henry Ayers, who m. Anna D. Staats; Eugene Ayers, who m. R. Annie Baldwin; Julia Ayers, who m. Peres Bonney, Jr.; Theresa S. Ayers, who m. Abraham V. Nelson; Robert Ayers; and Jane Agnes Ayers, who m. Ferdinand V. Rockafellow, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

8. Minne (second), bap. Mar. 20, 1738, at New Brunswick. Mentioned as assisting his father in procuring guns, ammunition, etc., in the Northern Expedition of the Colonial forces in 1750 (see last Quarterly, p. 7). There was a "Minny Fisher" in Ulster co., N. Y., as per census of 1790, who may have been he; had, apparently, a wife and five children.

9. Abraham, bap. Sept. 21, 1740, at Somerville. Mentioned in his father's will in 1778, as residing on a farm owned by his father, which an earlier will states was "at Lamington." No further trace, although some Fishers in Bedminster township about 1825 may have been his children.

10. Margaret, bap. June 5, 1743, at Somerville; m. Dr. Austin Craig, of "near Pluckemin" (one record says "of Lamington"). who was b. 1748 and d. Aug. 31, 1785. Margaret survived him, but no further trace; she is mentioned in her father's will of 1778.

11. Hendrick (second), bap. Dec. 9, 1744, at Somerville; d Jan., 1780; m. (license dated) June 7, 1764, Elizabeth Fordun. On Apr. 26, 1765, doubtless directly after his marriage, he purchased 4½ acres of land at Bound Brook of William Haddon, schoolmaster (Trenton Deeds, Book B 3, p. 245), and he still owned this land in 1778 (as per his father's will). He survived his father only about two years. A picture supposed to be of Hendrick's wife is now in the possession of Mrs. J. G. Drake, of near Flagtown, a descendant of Hendrick's brother, Jeremiah. His will of Dec. 3, 1779, probat. Jan. 24, 1780 (Trenton Wills, Book 21, p. 311), names his wife. "Affey," and a son Hendrick; a grandson, "Thomas Fordun;" also his "brother-in-law," Dr. Aaron Craig. The son Hendrick. Dr. Craig and Col. William McDonald were his executors. Possibly this son Hendrick m. (license dated) Oct. 12, 1783, Elizabeth Blair, and he may be the "Henry Fisher" who d. intestate in 1826 (as per Somerset Surrogate records). A "Henry Fisher" served in Capt. Jacob Ten Eyck's co. of militia in the Revolution, who was probably Hendrick (11). No further traces of this family.

12. Jeremiah, of Bound Brook, bapt. Sept. 1, 1746, at Somerville; d. Jan. 9, 1807; m. (license dated) Dec. 9, 1769, Catherine Brokaw, who was b. Oct. 28, 1749, and d. Jan. 6, 1832. Both are buried in the Hendrick Fisher farm burial-ground. Jeremiah was the acting executor of his father's estate and the heir to his farm, and he doubtless lived upon it. He sold the farm in 1796 to Capt. Creighton McCrea, and then (if we are correctly informed) built the house, still standing, a little nearer Bound Brook than his father's homestead, but on the opposite side of the road. Whether this be so or not, he certainly owned and operated the Middlebrook Hotel, as early references to it show; a house erected before the Revolution. His will of 1805 was probat. Feb. 27, 1807 (Som. Wills, Book A, p. 116). According to his will his children were (order unknown):

(a) Jeremiah, Jr., b. Oct. 7, 1770; d. Nov. 30, 1826; m. Maria Fulkerson, who was b. Apr. 1, 1775, and d. May 12, 1846. They are also buried in the Hendrick Fisher farm burial-ground. A descendant thinks this Jeremiah, and not his father, built the house alluded to under Jeremiah (12) above. He conducted during his lifetime the Middlebrook hotel, in which his children were born. Ch.: (1) Jeremiah, Jr., b. 1800; d. Mar. 16, 1819. (2) Philip E., b. 1802; m., Feb. 7, 1822, Nancy La Tonton, who d. May 30, 1861. Their ch. were Jeremiah, John L., Peter L. (all three d. young), Theodore, James, Julia, Voorhees, John L. (second), who m. Maria Merrill and was father of Frank Fisher, of South Bound Brook. (3) Sarah M., b. 1805; m., Mar. 1, 1827, Cornelius Rappleye, and had ch.: George, Sarah Louise, Henry (of Illinois). (4) Isaac J., b. 1809; d. 1876; m., Jan. 13, 1842, Elizabeth Linn. He also conducted the Middlebrook Hotel for a long series of years, and had ch.: Savilla M., who m. Israel Coddington, father of ex-Judge William A. Coddington, of Plainfield; John L. D., who m. Irene M. Van Syckle; Sarah Louise, who succeeded her father in keeping the Middlebrook Hotel and is still living; and Jeremiah. (5) James Van Duyn, of South Bound Brook, b. Sept. 6, 1811; d. Jan. 13, 1861; m., Jan. 21, 1846, Sarah Ann Eldert, who d. 1910; and had ch.: George N., who m. Josephine Merlette; Ann Maria, who m. William H. Schomp, of Hopewell; Sarah Louise, who m. J. S. Doyle; John Ditmars, unm.; Henry, who m. Minnie Brokaw; and Elizabeth, who m. Jacob G. Drake, of near Flaggtown, N. J., and who has gathered many traditions of her ancestral line, (among others that when Hendrick Fisher, the patriot, had his house entered by the British and his cattle taken away, he took refuge in the mountains where his friends took him food secretly).

(b) Elizabeth, b. about 1776; d. Feb. 21, 1796.
(c) Ann, who m. a Staats.
(d) Catherine, who m. an Abraham Fisher.
(e) Maria.
(f) Isaac, a clergyman, whom we have not further traced.
(g) Hendrick (perhaps the Hendrick Fisher, b. 1782, who d. Dec., 1809, as per tombstone in the family burial-ground before referred to).
(h) John.
(i) Sarah, b. about 1790; d. Mar. 27, 1807. (The dates of Sarah, as of her sister Elizabeth, are gathered from tombstones in the Fisher burial-ground).

13. Elizabeth (second), bapt. June 16, 1750, at New Brunswick. From her father’s wills we know she had married and had children, but probably died between 1774 and 1778. Whom she married is unknown.

In Hendrick’s draft of a will in 1774, as published by the New Brunswick Hist. Society, a daughter “Mille” is spoken of, probably a misreading for “Nelle,” for in the same draft he distinctly states he has “four daughters,” and these must have been Neltje, Margaret, Elizabeth (second), and Maria (second).

The late Rev. Jacob Frazee, of Knoxville, Tenn., was a descendant of Hendrick Fisher, but we have not learned in what line.

One curious matter concerning Hendrick Fisher we have discovered since the article in the January Quarterly, that not only is his name included in a list of the freeholders of Piscataway twsp., Middlesex county, of 1748, but that in the will of Rev. John Cross, of Basking Ridge, dated 1739, probated in 1748, one of his executors was “Hendrick Fisher, of Piscataway.” It would thus seem as if, while a freeholder in Piscataway (though non-resident) in 1748, he had actually resided there in 1739 and previously. This is not improbable, as his father was, doubtless, on the homestead across the Raritan.

A deed on record at Trenton, dated July 29, 1767, from Martin Ryerson, of Readington, to “Henry Fisher, Esq.,” and Peter Schenk, Esq., of Somerset co., conveying two tracts of land, consisting of 169 acres, in Roxbury twsp., Morris co., adjoining the “Falls of Alemintong” (Lambton), is the only deed we have found of record conveying land to or from Hendrick Fisher. It may be one of the sons of Hendrick located on this land, but this is conjectural only. No son died in Morris co., so far as the records show.

In the article upon Hendrick in the last QUARTERLY (footnote, p. 14), it was inadvertently stated that the “Frelinghuysen Hotel” was the same in its day as the “Middlebrook Hotel.” It should have been said that the former hotel was the “Harpending House,” in late years owned by Dr. B. B. Matthews, later called the “Frelinghuysen House,” but not until some years after the event noted in the footnote referred to.

The Editor of the QUARTERLY recently visited the old farm burial-ground of Hendrick Fisher, and found the tombstone of Hendrick in a crumbling condition. ‘Only a portion of his name appears, as the red sandstone is rapidly disintegrating. The following are the burials in this ground so far as they can be read: Several stones are wholly illegible, some of which may or may not originally have had inscriptions:

Fisher, Catherine (wife of Jeremiah) d. Jan. 6, 1832, aged 82 yrs., 2 mos., 8 dys.

[188]. Van Dorn—Schenck—“Aaron Van Dorn, of Peapack, Somerset co., n. Ghacy (Gesha) Schenck, dau. of Jan Schenck and Jaco-mintje Couwenhoven. Who were Jan. Schenck’s ancestors?”

(L. D. K., Collins, Iowa).

[Jan Schenck was b. Jan. 22, 1721, and d. Jan. 27, 1749, when only twenty-eight. He m. Jacomintje Nov. 26, 1741. He was the son of Roeliff Schenck and Geeje Hendrickson; grandson of Jan. Schenck and Sarah Couwenhoven; great-grandson of Roeloff Martense Schenck, the immigrant and Neeltje Van Couwenhoven. Dates of all these are easily procurable.—Editor].

[189]. Earl of Stirling’s Land.—Inquiries are made from time to time as to the amount of land owned in New Jersey by the Earl of Stirling. We are not yet prepared to answer the question. The quantity was very large. Somewhere we have seen it stated that in Hunterdon county he had title to 15,305 acres. One of his tracts near Potterstown contained 1,457 acres; another in these townships (Lebanon, Kingwood and Alexandria) contained 4,516 acres; the rest remain to be looked up in the records. As James Alexander, the Earl’s father, was owner of an immense quantity of real estate in New Jersey, including the land at Basking Ridge, this county, much of which his son inherited, it is doubtful if the Earl’s full ownership can be discovered. Most of it, as is well known, was sold by Commissioners during the Revolution.

[190]. Col. John Van Dyke.—“Information wanted of Col. John Van Dyke, of Somerset, Loyalist in the Revolution.”

(E. B., London, Eng.).

[Col. John Van Dyke was the only Somerset Tory of the Van Dyke name, so far as our information goes, and certainly the only one of his immediate family. His father was John Van Dyke and his mother Amatje ——— of Harlingen. Col. John, the eldest son, was b. April 17, 1747; d. at Harlingen. June 23, 1811; m., Nov. 17, 1761, Rebecca Van Dyke (dau. of Roeloff Van Dyke and Catherine Emans), his first cousin. Rebecca d. Feb. 21, 1807. They had these ch.: Margaret, who
m. Major Abner Houghton; Rulif; Catherine; Ann; Rebecca, who m.
Garret Beekman; Elizabeth, who m. Benjamin Gulick; Sarah, and John, Jr. Col. Van Dyke was a Colonel in the British army before the Revolution, which is said to account for his loyalty to Great Britain, or, as a descendant states it, his loyalty to his oath of allegiance. After the War he went to England; then resided in Nova Scotia, but finally returned to his Harlingen home and d. there =Editor].
OLD LUTHERAN CHURCHYARD AT PLUCKEMIX

Capt. Leslie's Stone in Foreground
RECOLLECTIONS OF SOMERVILLE, CIRCA 1835-'42

BY THE LATE REV. ELBERT S. PORTER, D. D., CLAVERACK, N. Y.

[Note by Editor.—The author of the following letter, now reprinted from an old issue of the "Christian Intelligencer" of New York City, was born near Millstone in 1820 and died Feb. 26, 1888. He graduated from Princeton College in 1839 and was licensed to preach in 1842. The following Reminiscences, therefore, have reference to the period between about 1835 and 1842.]

Somerville, New Jersey, is the capital of Somerset County. Like all other places in the Middle States, it has so taken on the face and fashion of the recent age, that one seeing it now, with its enlargements, embellishments and throbbing activities, would find scanty material for any picture of the village as it lies in my memory.

From its beginnings it was and is beautiful for situation. The Valley of the Raritan was among the first of the fairest and most fertile regions in New Jersey to be taken and held for agricultural uses. Its north and south branches run through landscapes of wonderful charm, and meet to make the river which waters and drains with its tributaries parts of the counties of Warren, Hunterdon, Somerset, Middlesex and Mercer. Though many years have gone since, with the warm enthusiasm of youth, I walked or loitered, or read or wrote, in "sequestered solitude," or with congenial companionship, beside the softly flowing waters of the Raritan, still it is the one river that will ever run with brightest lustre before my remembered visions of the past.

Mr. William J. Thompson was at the head of the Somerville Academy when I was placed under his care and instruction. He was a full and exact scholar. He had the art of inciting his pupils to study. Reared in the church of Readington and graduated at Rutgers College, he had enjoyed very ample opportunities for broadening the foundations of his knowledge. With a warm heart, capacious and active brain, and an innate nobility of spirit, he could never be settled into any cast iron groove of cold, pulseless surrender to a formal and perfunctory discharge of routine duties. Firm and authoritative, indeed sometimes to the verge of severity, still he was magnanimous, self-sacrificing, with not a bit of the pedant or pedagogue in his composition. Blond, blue-eyed, ruddy, of nervo-sanguineous temperament, he had a most attractive face—though not handsome—and a right princely bearing, which asserted the regnant force of the great soul within him. He was a born teacher. He knew how to translate crabbed mathematical problems into a species of epic eloquence, to make Latin and Greek texts disclose the honeyed sweetness of Hymettus, while Plato's bees seemed to repose as at home upon his lips, when, with his fervent and never-flagging enthusiasm, he commended to his pupils some striking beauties in the pages of classic writers. The boys who loved books and hard study found in Mr. Thompson a friend and benefactor, who aroused them to diligence in their studies, not by promising them that they were to be Presidents, Governors or Senators, but by awakening in them a hunger and thirst for the higher orders of knowledge.

I confess my own debt of gratitude to this rare and genuine teacher. For seven years I had been in a variety of schools, private and public, in town and country. At the age of a little less than fourteen years I was placed under the moulding and controlling influence of this, to me most suitable instructor. There was flogging in the British Navy and flogging in the United States Navy and flogging everywhere in the schools. Head and heart and palm and back were supposed to lie so closely and vitally conjoined, that a good whipping was the one short and easy method of mending morals and manners. At that day the whipping-post had but recently been abolished. Indeed, I remember to have seen "colored boys" receive that sort of persuasive, or dissuasive. The spectacle was horrid, cruel, inhumane, and degraded victims and oppressors alike.

Being an only son I never did anything wrong at home, of course, and but once remember to have seriously displeased my parents, and that was by breaking the Sabbath by making a social call after church service. In school it had been otherwise, and my experience had not been very pleasant and certainly not profitable. Neither the rattan, nor birch-whip, nor long ferule ever softened my temper, nor broke my will, nor taught me to love a teacher when a tyrant. These little personal incidents would not be worth mentioning, did they not throw some sidelight on the changes in public sentiment respecting the universal value of indiscriminate punishment.

Mr. Thompson boarded and lodged at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cocks, who had also three or four students in their keeping.
This juxtaposition enabled me to derive very special advantages therefrom. Scarcely an evening in term time passed but that I was in Mr. Thompson's room, and either talking over the lessons or else reading from histories, ancient or modern. Through his kindness I was introduced to the English classics, the Spectator, Rambler, Pope's and Milton's works, and many more of substantial value. He also encouraged me in the art of composition, reading and correcting my crude essays with patient care. Indeed, to so high a pitch did he raise my ambition to become a writer, that I invented the "Legend of Chimney Rock," and having rewritten it over and over again, carried it to Mr. Baldwin, editor and proprietor of the "Somerset Whig," who printed it on the first page of his paper. The "Legend" has, of course, long since drifted down into the abyss that swallows up all inane and useless trash. But Mr. Baldwin inoculated or vaccinated me with the virus of an ambition that has not yet quite run out. It took so well in my young, green boyhood that even now it remains to make the labor of composition a pleasure.

There cannot be many among my readers who have personal recollections of Frederick Cocks. His wife was a tall, good-faced, bright-eyed woman, with a tracery of care above her brows, and the bearing of a veteran who had done her part in the battle of life. Her husband belonged to the class of well-to-do, comfortable husbands who attend in subordinate capacity upon their wives, but take slight share in the management or government of affairs. Mr. Cocks, therefore, devoted himself to a consideration of national politics and the general welfare of society. He knew what his neighbors ought to do. Especially acute in all theological matters, he was swift to detect the flaws in an argument, whatever the side on which it appeared. His mind was judicial. He was happy among "flaws," proved to be such by the laws of his logical understanding. The boys liked and listened to him when, in his oracular moods, he condescended to expose the intellectual weaknesses of others than himself. In a day before newspapers had become plentiful and the world was for the most part in a cupboard with appropriate shelves, and its contents easily arranged thereon according to size and value, local politics afforded our talkative patriot and publicist the most attractive field for mental excitation. And so he passed his days in persistent pleasure, derived from the exhibition of his forecasting wisdom respecting the larger and lesser concerns which attracted his expert sagacity.

Such characters are rare. Happy is the village that has one of them. A gentleman having leisure for limitless gossip is worth more than the daily journal, or the post-office, or the telegraph, to all those who are eager to get news of things about to happen or that never will happen.

Dear, delightful old man! Full of life without purpose, of zeal without an object, of earnestness without an aim; troubled with many thoughts concentrated on the transient and the trivial—I leave here my passing tribute of praise for all you were to us youngsters, who were amused by your foibles and enriched by your kindness!

In those days Somerville had a plaza extending from the residence of Thomas A. Hartwell, Esq., on the west, to that of Judge William B.
Gaston on the east. North of this open space stood the plain old brick Academy, and near it the long narrow lecture room of the First Church, the new brick edifice in which Rev. Abraham Messler had but recently been installed as pastor of the large congregation to whom he ministered so long and so well. That law and gospel might not be far apart, the courthouse and jail came next in the series of public buildings. But there was ample room and verge enough left for the boys to engage in athletic sports, base ball, foot ball, quoits, contests in jumping, running and boxing. These games or sports were of great value to those who participated in them. What the Isthmean or Nemean games of old renown were on a grander scale, these were on a smaller.

But the whole fashion of the plaza has disappeared. The Academy has fallen, and been replaced on another site. No longer do the youth gather there, to witness with daily and unsatisfied wonder the arrival and departure of the stage coaches, laden with the mail-bags and impet-uous travellers. The skill of the drivers in wielding four horses, lashed to a spirited gallop under a ponderous whip, as though they were as one —that skill was to us a study, though it now is nearly a lost art.

Strangely does the present recall the past. It was among the English Lakes on the top of an English coach that I recalled as before my eyes the very horses and stages that had once disturbed the daily quietude of the rural streets of old Somerville.
ROLL OF SOMERSET (SOLOMON'S) LODGE, NO. 1, F. AND A. M., 1787-1829

BY REV. T. E. DAVIS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

[Note by Editor.—By permission of the author we reproduce below the roll of Somerset (Solomon's) Lodge, No. 1, F. and A. M., as made out by him about thirty years ago from the original records, and given in an address at Bound Brook before Solomon's Lodge, No. 46. The preliminary portion of the address dealt with the origin of Masonry in Somerset. Basking Ridge was granted a Lodge, No. 10, in 1767, and it was through its influence that the Grand Lodge of New Jersey was formed in 1785. Nine members of the Basking Ridge Lodge affiliated with the Somerset Lodge when formed, which was by permission of the Grand Lodge at New Brunswick Dec. 18, 1786, warrant for same issued July 3, 1787. The name given was Somerset Lodge, No. 1, altered July 1, 1789, to Solomon's Lodge, No. 1. The location of the Lodge, originally, was at Pluckemin, where meetings were held from 1787 to 1794, and doubtless later. From 1802-'5 it met in Somerville; also from 1809-'15, and then varied between Somerville, Bound Brook and Middlebrook. The last recorded meeting was Oct. 8, 1829, when, the membership being greatly reduced, arrangements were made to surrender the warrant].

COLONEL FRELINGHUYSEN’S MUSTER ROLL OF 1778

Sometime ago we learned that there was preserved in the Library of Congress a Somerset muster roll of 1778, of certain members of Colonel Frederick Frelinghuysen’s Regiment, but the information did not give further particulars. On application to United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen to ascertain if a copy of the same could be procured, the answer promptly came in a photographic reproduction of the manuscript, which was obtained at his solicitation and sent to us by his courtesy without expense.

We find the document most interesting in several respects. While it contains the names of only thirty-seven soldiers and from only three townships, Bridgewater, Bedminster and Bernards, it gives certain particulars of those soldiers which some of their descendants will prize.

Colonel Frelinghuysen, at the time named, (1778) was in command of the Fifth Battalion of the Somerset County Militia, and these thirty-seven volunteered from that Battalion to join the Continental troops for a nine months’ service. The Fifth Battalion was then, we assume, at Valley Forge, where Washington’s army had passed the hard Winter of 1777-’8, and which did not break up there until June. The men named in the muster roll as “new levies” for the Continental Line were receipted for there, as appears from the official receipt on the back of the roll, and which is quoted below (at the end of the list).
The endorsement on the outside of the roll is: "Muster Roll of Coll. Fred’k Frelinghuysen Recruits." Within, the roll is headed as follows:

"Muster Roll of the Recruits received from the 5th Battalion of Somerset County Melitia in State of N. Jersey Com’d by Col. Fred’k Frelinghuysen who are to serve in the Continent’l Army 9 months from the date hereof."

The roll that follows is in a tabular form of eleven columns, which we cannot well reproduce; so we have made up the record in the shape given below, which furnishes all the particulars of the table. The number after each name indicates the place the name occupies on the roll, and probably represents the order of enlistment, as in the roll the names are not alphabetical. We have arranged the names alphabetically for convenience of reference, and added in brackets a few comments:

The receipt for these men is thus endorsed on the outside of the roll:

"Camp Valley Forge, May 21st, 1778.

"Received of Lt. Joseph Casterline the within mentioned New Levies except the underwritten Persons who have not yet joined:

"Class I. Gerhardus Burgher.
20. Thom's Lee.
35 Rich'd Rolph."

It is evident from the above list of volunteers that height or age was not considered important; no modern requirements ruled out the brave lads and men who fought for independence. Heights ran from five feet one inch to six feet, and ages from sixteen to forty-nine. One was a colored man, for there was then no color line in the army: even slaves could enlist, with the consent of their masters.

Of the Continental Troop Captains named, Captain "Peatt" was Jacob Piatt; Captain Forman was Thomas M. Forman; Captain "Bellarde" was Jeremiah Ballard. There were, however, three Captain Andersons in the Continental Army, and we cannot distinguish which is meant as commanding the company to which the "negro" went. As to the Captains in the militia, from whose Companies the men came, Captain Corey was Benjamin Corey; Captain Porter was Nathaniel Porter; Captain Parker was John Parker, all three being Somerset men.

Five of the men in the roll of enlistments are not found in the Stryker "Official Register," viz., McDonald Campbell, Gerardus Duyckinck, Samuel Haines, John V. Netter and Alexander Perkins.

DIRCK LOW'S PUBLIC BUSINESS

Affairs of Cornelius Low, Brother of Dirck

Cornelius Low left his home in the neighborhood of Neshanic in October, 1773, giving his business affairs into the hands of his eldest brother, Dirck. There is no indication of Cornelius' destination, nor his reason for leaving. He was still absent in 1778. On the Census List of Northumberland co., Pa., in 1790, a Cornelius Low, Sr., and a Cornelius Low and wife are given, with children; it may be the Cornelius above named went thither.

The account is opened by a payment of £20. made by Cornelius to Dirck, on Oct. 13, 1773. Following that are various receipts, evidently the result of business dealings which Cornelius had pending, up to May, 1777. The disbursements begin with a payment on Oct. 13, 1773, to Annatje, wife of Cornelius, of £1.3.4. On November 1, 1773, £9. was paid to "Cornelius Low, his son." A few of the other payments are:

1773. Lambert Kidwalner (Cadwallader?)
Wentje Vanderveer.
1774. Jonathau Sargent, Junior, Esq.
1774. Joseph Mattenson.
1775. William Hanna.
Catalintje Voorhees.
The last payment rendered for the account of Cornelius is to Jacob Mattenson, on April 20, 1778.

By far the most interesting record in this connection is a draft of a letter which Dirck Low wrote to Cornelius. It is undated, but from the context it may be placed in October, 1776:

"Brother Cornelius.

Sir: Received yours the second day of this instant, October, by which I understand that you are all in good health, which is one of the greatest blessings, next to Grace, that we can enjoy in this world. It is a thing that I can't write to you of my family, for I had both lameness and sickness in my family since harvest and is still like to continue.

"The matter between ——— and ——— is not brought to issue yet at law, so that matters now lay neutral. No quarrels nor debates of late. As for the matter between us and ———, this is as usual, and how long it will be so I cannot say, for this unhappy dispute between the mother country and the colonies causes a great trouble upon me, and the trouble and cost in my own family is so large, that I can't do as I would but must do as I can.

"I don't choose to write to you of circumstances in our place, but this, that the people are much alarm'd. In New York they do expect to be besieged every day and great preparation is made for the engagement and much people move out the city. The Barracks in Brunswick are full already, and more other places, and, if so, we expect to be alarmed in our place to assist, especially those that are enlisted in the American service under Capt. Peter ten Eick, and many others."

Vendue of Mark Titsort

Dirck Low acted as custodian of the cash received as the result of a vendue held November 28, 1766, of the property of Mark Titsort (also written Tietsoort, Titsworth, etc.). The collection of this money extended until December, 1767. It was disbursed for various purposes over the same period. The total amount involved was £279.6. Mark Titsort appears to have been living at that time. Among the names mentioned are: Christopher Preston, Elihu Smith, Michael Hammer, Esforbee Cock, Dirck Middagh, Wilhelmus Ver Brick.

Estate of Cornelius Low, Father of Dirck

Cornelius Low, father of Dirck, died in 1763. In a few years it developed that there were irregularities in the title of lands which Cornelius had owned. These dated back to 1727 and 1728. Considerable maneuvering was necessary in order to adjust everything. Philip Kearney, of Amboy, was employed as counsel. Following shows what was done:

"A copy of the agreement between the devisees of James Alexander and the Executors of Joseph Murrey, deceased, of the one part, and the heirs of Cornelius Low, deceased, John Titsort and the heirs of Abraham Titsort, deceased, of the other part, concerning a tract of land situated and lying on the north side of the South Branch of Raritan River in Somerset County, is as viz:

James Alexander, Joseph Murrey, Daniel Holllenshead and Alexander MacDowell sold to Thomas Hall by deed dated November 14, 1728. 230 acres for £100.0.0 proc.

The same persons sold to John Biggs by deed dated June 20, 1727. 200 acres for £130.0.0 proc.

It now appears this land is within prior survey to John Alford, John Person and Thomas Lambert.

The above mentioned grantors gave warrantees each for himself and not one for the other, therefore the executors of Mr. Murrey and the devisees of Mr. Alexander have only one-half to make good, which they are willing to do in the following manner, to pay the representatives of John Alford according to valuation made by Jonathan Sergant and Azarijah Dunham for 134½ acres is... £465.0.0

22 acres deducted for what the tract over runs what it was sold for is... 74.1.4

To be paid by Alexander and Murrey... £105.9.4

To pay John Person and Thomas Lambert for 158¾ acres the proportion the quantity bears to the whole 230 acres sold to Thomas Hall, which is... £84.16.7

Interest thereof for 10 years at 8% is... 67.16.8

Interest for 28 years and 5 months at 7% is... 168.14.5

Cornelius Low, who now claims the land, says he purchased of John Person a year ago and pays interest for the money and therefore requires interest for the above sum of £321.7.8, which is thought reasonable and therefore allowed and added... £22.9.10

£343.17.6

In all, proc... £539.6.10
Executors of Joseph Murrey to pay................. £269.13.5
Devises of Alexander to pay........................ 269.13.5
Paid for land taken by John Person................ £248.17.6
Paid for the land taken by Lambert................ 650. 0.0

In all, proc. ........................................ £818.17.6

"An account of the money recovered of the land which was taken away by

BY THE EDITOR

The Leslie Tombstone at Pluckemin

Our frontispiece this month gives a view of the old Lutheran (now Presbyterian) church graveyard at Pluckemin, in order to show the Leslie tombstone. Capt. William Leslie was a brave British officer who fell on the battlefield of Princeton, but, being found by Dr. Benjamin Rush of the American army, who knew well the Captain's father, the Earl of Leven, the Doctor persuaded Washington to have him taken along to Pluckemin, to see if his life could be saved. But that was a vain hope, as he died at or before reaching Pluckemin, and was buried there with military honors. An account of the burial and of Dr. Rush may be found in various publications (see, for example, Mellick's "Story of an Old Farm," pp. 385-387). The tombstone erected by Dr. Rush was supplanted, about 1836, with the present one, set up by Professor Ogilby, of Rutgers College, as the original was crumbling to pieces. The inscription, however, was reproduced, being as follows:

"In memory of the Hon. Captain William Leslie of the 17th British Regiment, son of the Earl of Leven in Scotland. He fell January 3d, 1777, aged 26 years, at the battle of Princeton. His friend, Benjamin Rush, M. D., of Philadelphia, caused this stone to be erected as a mark of his esteem for his worth, and respect for his noble family."

The Union League of the Civil War

Reference was made in a previous Quarterly (Vol. VII, p. 41) to the Union League in Somerset County during the Civil War, organized in 1864. Through the kindness of Historian Hiram E. Deats of the Hunterdon Historical Society we have received a copy of the Constitution and By-Laws of the National Council of the League, adopted in 1866, but no doubt following closely the Constitution and By-Laws earlier in use. Of chief interest to us, and probably to our readers, are the questions propounded "under obligation of secrecy," to applicants for membership at the initiation ceremonies, viz.:

"1st. Do you fully subscribe to the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence?

"2nd. Do you acknowledge that your first and highest allegiance under God is due the Government of the United States of America?

"3rd. Will you pledge yourself to resist to the utmost of your ability, even to the sacrifice of your life, all attempts to subvert or overthrow the Government of the United States of America?

"4th. Will you strive to the extent of your ability for the maintenance of Liberty, the elevation of Labor, the education in the responsibilities and duties of American citizenship of all the people of this country; the practice of true brotherly charity toward each and all of the Order of which you are now to become a member, and for the election or appointment to all places of public trust of such men only as are reliable supporters of these principles and measures?

"5th. Do you hold and believe that Secession is Treason, and that the action of the Government of the United States in suppressing the late Rebellion was just and expedient?

"6th. Do you pledge your active support to such legislation, both State and National, as will be effective in removing all the concomitants of Slavery?

"7th. Are you willing, and will you endeavor to extend to all men, the exercise of Equal Political Rights, who have Equal Political Responsibilities?

"8th. Are you willing, and do you desire to bind yourself by a solemn oath to the maintenance of the principles and policy indicated in the interrogatories to which you have now affirmatively replied?

"9th. Will you obey all Rules and Orders of the Union League of America, which shall not conflict with your lawful Rights and Privileges as a Loyal Citizen?"

After a prayer the room was darkened, the "Fire of Liberty" lighted, when the old members joined hands around the candidates and the "Altar," and, with the left hand on the national flag and the right on the Bible, etc., this obligation was taken:

Obligation

"I [each repeating his own name] with an uplifted hand, in the presence of God and these witnesses, do solemnly swear [or affirm if conscientiously opposed] without mental reservation in me of any kind, that I will support, protect and defend the Constitution and Government of the United States of America, one and indivisible, and the flag thereof, against all enemies foreign and domestic; that I will vote only for and none but those, who advocate and support the great principles set forth by this League to fill any office of honor, profit or trust in either the State or General Government, and that if ever called to fill any office I will faithfully carry out the principles set forth by this League. And, further, that I will protect and defend all worthy members of the Union League of America; and that I will never in any manner or form divulge or make known to any person or persons not worthy members of this Organization any of the signs, pass-words, grips, proceedings, designs, debates or plans of this or any other Council of this Organization, unless when engaged in admitting new members, and with my right hand on the Holy Bible, Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States of America, I acknowledge myself firmly bound and pledged to the faithful performance of this my solemn obligation: so help me God."

In these days, when Americanism is beginning to be a vital question, it is well to look back and see what some of the solid men of a previous generation did after the Civil War; a war which, then, was the greatest America had ever known.

Permanent Gift of the "Racawachanna" Place

That enterprising Bound Brook lady, Miss Caroline B. LaMonte, has decided to make a gift of the famous LaMonte homestead at Bound Brook to the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey for an Old People's Home.
The LaMonte Family continued the name given the homestead by Col. Daniel Talmage, viz., "The Evergreens," but the original land owner, Thomas Codiington, a New York merchant, gave to it the Indian name of "Racawachanna," meaning "the loamy flat by the running brook." The Codiington land title dates back to May 4, 1681, when two Indian chiefs, Konchama and Quereromak, deeded to eight persons, including Codiington, a large amount of land bordering on Bound Brook, Middlebrook, etc. Of this land Codiington got, in 1783, 877 acres at Bound Brook and 1,000 acres near Chimney Rock. On the Bound Brook place he built a house, which is said to have been the first house built by a white owner in Somerset County. Codiington is said to have sold his property in 1700 to an Aaron Larzadier, (or Louzada) in whose family it remained for nearly 100 years. A subsequent owner was Alexander Campbell, descendant of Lord Neil Campbell, who built a large addition to the original house, and resided in it until 1817. Dr. Samuel Swan and Thomas A. Hartwell were owners afterward. Daniel Talmage, father of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, purchased the property and, in 1854, took down the entire building erected by Codiington, removed slightly the Campbell addition, and added to the south part a new house, so that none of the original Codiington building remains, but the site of the present house is still on the original Codiington site. In all it is said there have been twenty-one owners of the property since 1681. We regret not to find a view of the house as taken down in 1854. In connection with this subject the article given in the next department of this issue (Department of Notes and Queries, under No. 196) will have some interest, especially for our Bound Brook readers.

Contributions to Bedminster Church, 1801-6

Among the preserved Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., papers is a list of collections from 1801 to 1806 of salary payments to the Bedminster church, made by Peter Sutphen (b. 1762; d. 1839), grandfather to the late Arthur P. Sutphen, of Somerville, and a deacon of the church during that period. The amounts paid ran from 50 cents to $15, the higher sum being paid annually by James Van Derveer. The following are the names who paid:

There was also received, about 1804, by Mr. Sutphen, $103.25 "on the Fund," from the following:

John Best, John Wicoff, Peter Lane, Simon Hageman, Matthias Lane, Eleanor Blair, John D. Van Duyn, James Van Derveer (highest, $50), Jacob Van Dorn, Jr., John Hageman, Andrew Wortman, John
M. Powelson, Henry Stephens, Elijah Stevens, Jacob Voorhees, Charles Van Tine.

[191]. "Justices of the Quorum."—In the "Somerset Civil List," as printed in the January and April QUARTERLY, there frequently appeared the designation "Justice of the Quorum," after the name of a Justice of the Peace. We are indebted to the President of our Society, Mr.
Justice Bergen, for the following explanation of the term: "According to Blackstone all of the Justices of the Peace in England were appointed for the county in one commission, with power to keep the peace, etc., but a portion were especially named to act in cases of felonies and misdemeanors; or, rather, no action could be taken in such cases without the presence of one of the Justices so designated, and they were called 'Justices of the Quorum.' Persons so appointed were supposed to be of the better class and with some superior learning and versed in legal practices.
It is now obsolete and has not been observed in this country since the Revolutionary War."

[192]. First Treasurer of Somerset.—"Your 'Somerset Civil List' puts me in mind of the fact that John Inian was the first Treasurer of Somerset County, 1688, when the County was first set off; spelled often 'Injoines.'" W. H. B. (New Brunswick, N. J.).

[The "Civil List" as published did not note the foregoing, not being found (unless overlooked) in the book of early "Commissions" at Trenton. It is well, however, to have the fact stated.—EDITOR].

[193]. Boylan-Hodge—"Referring to Capt. John Boylan, of Pluckemin, who m. Eleanor Hodge (see QUARTERLY for April, 1917, pp. 101, 104, etc.), who were my great-great-grandparents, a correction is necessary, and I am sending you other data including the correction.
I had always heard that they had fourteen children; however, they may have had fifteen, and one of the daughters may have been named Eleanor, but the Eleanor that you list (top of p. 107) as having married John T.
West and moved to Raleigh, N. C., was not the daughter of John Boylan and Eleanor Hodge but their granddaughter. She was the daughter of John Boylan's daughter Margaret Boylan, who married James Shaw.
Margaret Boylan (daughter of John and Eleanor Boylan) m. James Shaw. They had six ch.: 1. Dr. James Boylan Shaw. 2. Eliza; m. a Webster. 3. Jane; m. Rev. Dr. Wyncoop. 4. William Shaw. 5. John Shaw, who was in the U. S. Navy and lost at sea. 6. Eleanor Shaw, who m. John T. West in 1832 and d. in 1881. They removed to Raleigh, N. C. John T. West and Eleanor Shaw had four children:

2. Nicholas William West, b. 1837; m., 1875. Elizabeth Blake. He is now living in Raleigh, N. C. at the age of 82. He served through the entire Civil War as a Confederate soldier with Manley’s Battery. He was a successful merchant, retiring from business about 25 years ago. Had 7 ch.: (a) John T. [104]. HENDRICK VAN DYKE, OF NESCHANIC.—Correspondence with Rev. J. W. Van Dyke, of Ocean Grove, elicits the fact that in Teunis G. Bergen’s “Early Settlers of Kings County” he names a Hendrick Dirckse Vander Vliet (Vliet), as a son of Dirck Janse Van der Vliet, whereas he was Hendrick Van Dyke, as shown by his will. The mistake prevented the proper Hendrick Van Dyke being noted in the “Beekman-Van Dyke” work issued a few years since, and also stood in the way of securing Rev. Mr. Van Dyke’s line of ancestry back to Jan Thomasse Van Dyke, the emigrant of 1652. Hendrick resided at Yellow Hook, L. I., and it was his son, Hendrick, who received from his father 200 acres of land at Neshanic; this Hendrick, Jr., was the ancestor of Rev. Mr. Van Dyke and of various Van Dykes who had traced back their line to Neshanic but could go no farther. A pretty full list of descendants has been gathered by Rev. Mr. Van Dyke.

[195]. Cossart—Kershaw—Coshun.—"The impression seems to have been given in previous references to the Kershaw, Cossart, Coshun, etc., families in the Quarterly that they are all one. My investigations show that the Coshun family descends from a Joshua Coshun, who settled near Harlingen in 1730 or earlier. On the other hand the Kershaw, or Kershow, family of Somerset County up to 1806 are the descendants of Jacob Cossart and wife, Ann Maria Springsteen, of Brooklyn, through their two sons, Joost and Jerome, who settled near Harlingen. The children of Jacob and Ann Maria Cossart were:

2. Jacob, Jr., who m. Jannete Bogart and remained at the old Brooklyn home. Their son, Jacob, m. Rachel Smith, and in 1806 they settled in Bridgewater twsp., Somerset Co., N. J., and are the ancestral parents of the Kershaw families now in Somerset.

3. Joost, who m. Maria ————, about 1735, and, about 1738 or '9 settled near Harlingen. They had four sons, Jacob, George, Cornelius, and Abraham, who were the fathers of practically all the Kershaw, or Kershaw, families in Somerset up to 1806.

4. Jerome, who m. Jane Nevius about 1744, and, with his brother Joost, settled near Harlingen. He d. young (about 1754), leaving only one son, Jacob, whom I cannot trace.

5. Abraham, who m. Jannette Nevius and resided at Bushwick, L. I.; their sons remained on Long Island."

O. L. C. (Marion, Ohio).

[196]. Bound Brook as "New Milford."—"Referring to the inquiry in the April Quarterly as to where in 1715 'New Milford' was, you mention a deed to Daniel Blackford, Jr., of 'New Milford,' and ask if an attempt was made about that time to change the name of Bound Brook to New Milford. I think you will so find. About 1719 David Cosart came over from New York and purchased considerable property along the Raritan at or near Bound Brook. Two deeds are recorded at Trenton from David Cosart to Aaron and Moses Louzada, dated Apr. 2, 1727, and July 29, 1734, and read that they are from "David Cosart, of Somerset County, yeoman, to Aaron and Moses Louzada, both of said county, merchants" and state that the lands are "in the town of New Milford on the north side of the Raritan River." Evidently, as these two retired Jew merchants, father and son, resided in Bound Brook from 1700 onward, until their deaths (Aaron residing on the Coldington, now LeMonte, property until 1744, when he died), it seems well proved that along from 1527 to 1745 or later Bound Brook must have had two names."

O. L. C. (Marion, Ohio).

[The foregoing greatly interests us, as for several years we have been on the lookout for some solution of where "New Milford" in Somerset County was. We ran across the name first, somewhere, a long time ago, but not so as to locate the place. No history of Bound Brook has alluded to this attempted change of name, so far as we know. In Davis' "First Houses of Bound Brook," or in the Snell or Messler histories, there is no reference to it, nor do we find the name in connection with any advertisements of land sales, etc., in the "New Jersey Archives." The deed of 1745, noted in our last QuaERnIly (p. 151), set us to making the inquiry which we believe now well answered. The reason for the attempted change and why the new name was allowed to become obsolete is still a matter on which we wish some light could be thrown.

[197]. Noted Voorhees Lawyers.—There is a Voorhees line of Somerset County which has produced more lawyers, perhaps, than that of any other family line of this county. It descends from Judge Peter Voorhees, of Blawenburgh. Judge Voorhees was b. May 17, 1787, and d. July 4, 1853. His wife was Jane Schenck (dau. of Capt. John Schenck), who was b. Dec. 28, 1787, and d. July 22, 1843. His parents were Martinus Voorhees and Elsie Van Dyke, of Bridgeport, Somerset Co., and his grandparents Petrus Voorhees and Leah Nevius, of Blawenburgh, so the family is an old one in the same general neighborhood. Judge Schenck was a Judge of the Somerset Common Pleas 1833-45, and also a member of the Legislature 1843-45. His children were:

1. Alice Anne, who m. Dr. John Van Dyke Joline, of Princeton, afterward of Camden. They had four sons; two, John Forsyth and Charles Van Dyke became lawyers, the latter still practicing in Camden, having been twice Judge of the District Court of that city and twice Common Pleas Judge of that county, and being now one of the Bar Examiners of this State.

2. John S., who m. Sarah Ann Van Doren, and two of whose sons were lawyers: Peter V. becoming Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals of this State (1901-'5), and John S., who was Prosecutor of the Pleas of Middlesex county (1896-1904).

3. Charity, who m. Samuel D. Bergen, of Princeton, and had three sons lawyers: Christopher A., Martin V. and Samuel D. Christopher A. is deceased, but he was also a Member of Congress for two terms (1889-'93).

5. Ada H., unm.

6. Peter L., who m. Anna F. Dayton (sister of Hon. William L. Dayton), and was one of the most distinguished lawyers of South Jersey. He had a dau., Jennie D., who m. George Reynolds, also a Camden lawyer.

7. Jane, who m. Jesse B. Davis, of Hightstown, one of whose daus., Ada H., m. Hon. Allen B. Endicott, of Atlantic City, who was a Judge of the Common Pleas and then Circuit Judge of Atlantic county. His son, of the same name, but "Jr.," is also a lawyer, and both are in practice now.

8. Frederick, who m. Lizzie M. Barrett, and was a prominent member of the Burlington Bar.

Thus at least thirteen (perhaps more, if this line were more fully traced) of the descendants, or intermarriages of the descendants, of this one family were attorneys, and many of them Judges, being a rather notable instance of a family habit to enter one profession.

[198]. Descendants of Abraham Van Arsdale.—By reference to the article upon "The Van Arsdale Family" in the last Quarterly, there will be found an Abraham, of Harlingen, whose will and children are noted, among these children there being an Abraham, who (as stated in the footnote, p. 103) was "perhaps" an Abraham who served in the Revolution. It now is certain that this identity is correct, and that the line runs:

I. Symon J., of Flatlands.
II. Cornelis, of Flatlands.
III. Abraham, of Harlingen (brother to Philip, of Pluckemin, whose descendants were traced in the article referred to), who m. Maria (Stryker?).
IV. Abraham, of Harlingen, to whom we now direct attention. The notes concerning this Abraham are supplied, in the main, by a descendant, Miss Julia Fuller, of Beatrice, Nebraska.

Abraham Van Arsdale (as his name was usually written) was a corporal in Capt. Coonrad Ten Eyck's Co., First Battalion, of Somerset County, and, when under the command of Col. Nathaniel Heard, marched in 1776 on the campaign to Staten Island. Perhaps he is the same who served, also, as a private in Capt. Jacob Ten Eyck's Co., same Battalion. He also served as Sergeant in 1794 in Major-Gen. Frederick Frelinghuysen's Legion in putting down the Pennsylvania Whiskey Insurrection, being in Capt. Jonathan F. Morris' Company. We have come across his name somewhere as "Colonel Abraham." Presumably he became such in the State militia after the Pennsylvania service, but this record, if existing, has not been looked up.

Abraham was b. Dec. 2, 1750, and bapt. at Harlingen Dec. 25, 1750, where his parents are stated to be "Abram and Maria Van Arsdalen," which fixes his parentage and ancestry as stated above. He m., about 1787, Margaret Kennedy (dau. of Henry Kennedy and Catrina Roos- hear, of Harlingen), who was b. 1750 and d. 1834. In 1813, and again in 1818 he was appointed a Judge of the Common Pleas of Somerset. Previously (1807 and 1811-12) he was a Chosen Freeholder and served on the Twsp. Committee. He died Apr. 10, 1821, and his will of April 3, 1821, was probated April 17, 1821, in Somerset. (Brook D of Wills, p. 380). By this will he gave to his son Abraham the farm on which the latter then lived in Hillsborough twsp. and names as his children, Mary, Elizabeth, Elsie and Catherine

A photograph, taken presumably from an old portrait somewhere preserved in the family, is now in possession of Miss Fuller, and represents the Colonel and Judge as having "a tall form, large nose, black eyebrows and one lock of very dark hair appearing from under a grey wig worn in a cue. Under his arm is a large, leather-bound tome."

The only son of the Colonel was Abraham A. Varsdalen, b. May 24, 1788; d. June 22, 1836, intestate; m., Sept. 17, 1809, Elizabeth Beekman (dau. of Capt. Samuel Beekman and Helen Ten Broeck), who was b. Mar. 9, 1788, and d. May 26, 1847. They resided in Hillsborough twsp., probably near Flagtown, and had six children, all b. in Somerset County:

1. Abraham, b. July 10, 1810; d. about Sept., 1868; m., Oct. 27, 1832, Catherine (?) Polhemus. Had a dau., Mary Elizabeth, b. Feb. 25, 1834, who is said to have m. a wealthy sugar refiner; also Alice Ann, b. Sept. 17, 1835, and Helen M., b. July 1, 1836.
2. Peter Beekman, b. Aug. 20, 1812; d. July 13, 1885; m., Apr. 9, 1833, Christian Van Derveer (dau. of Peter Van Derveer and Catherine Van Dyke, of Griggstown, Somerset Co.), who was b. 1814 and d. in 1905, aged over 90 years. They went West in May, 1838, by ox train and wagon from New Jersey, and on a flatboat down the Ohio river, settling after a two months' journey, on the treeless prairie of Illinois, one mile east of present Fairview. He took his grain to St. Louis or Chicago to sell or find a grist mill, a three-weeks' trip made, perhaps, once a year. On one of these trips he obtained his first cook stove from St. Louis. He helped with his own hands to build the Dutch Reformed church at Fairview, which was constructed of solid native black walnut, and little changed to-day, though modernized. The children of Peter B. and Christian were: (1) Alice, b. 1835 in Somerset Co., N. J.; d., 1872, at Fair-

3. William, b. Feb. 8, 1815; d. 187_; m., Sept. 14, 1836, at Harlingen, N. J., Joanna V. Bergen (dau. of Evert J. Bergen and Jane Stryker), who was b. June 7, 1813. They settled at Raritan, Ill., in 1850, and had ch.: (1) Abrahm B., b. Mar. 1, 1838; m. Mary Ann Huston. Four ch. (2) Evert B., d. in infancy. (3) Peter, b. May 9, 1842; d. at Raritan, Ill.; m. Amanda Jane Huston. Three ch. (3) James B., b. Oct. 30, 1844; d. at Raritan, Ill.; m. Sally ————.

5. Elsey (Alice), b. Sept. 23, 1818; d. May 26, 1852; m., Jan. 13, 1841, Abraham S. Quick, of Somerset Co., N. J.

6. Samuel Beekman, b. Mar. 29, 1820; d. Dec., 1893; m. (1) Jane Murris (who was a Widow Long, with four daughters), and (2) Margaret Ratt. Resided at Harlingen, N. J. One son, Martin Luther, b. Feb. 13, 1849; m., Dec. 1, 1875, Sarah Elizabeth Huselton (dau. of William Huselton and Sarah Henderson, of Hampton, N. J.). He went West in 1879, and has been an engineer on the Union Pacific R. R. for fifty years past, residing in Omaha and Beatrice, Neb. Three ch., one Roy, serving in the late War in France.

Miss Fuller has more complete notes of the Western descendants than are given above, but the foregoing will suffice to enable any person of this line of Van Arsdales, if they also consult the last (April) QUARTERLY, to go back fully to their earliest known American ancestor.
GENERAL ZEBULON M. PIKE, SOMERSET-BORN

BY WILLIAM J. BACKES, TRENTON, N. J.

General Zebulon Montgomery Pike was born January 5, 1779. He was a Jerseyman by birth, and now it is discovered that he was born in Somerset County. His parents as well as his ancestors in the Pike line for five generations were natives of Woodbridge. Captain Zebulon Pike, the father, was an officer in the Revolutionary War. The General entered military life as a cadet in a Company under his father's command when he was but fifteen years of age and afterwards served on the western frontiers.

In 1805 the General was employed with a party of twenty men to explore the Mississippi River to its source. Later on he was selected to explore the interior of the then called country of Louisiana. In 1806 he discovered the famous Pike's Peak in Colorado, and on his return he received the thanks of Congress. The same year (Sept. 29) he "caused the Spanish flag to be lowered and the flag of the United States to be raised" at Pawnee, Kansas, where a monument so stating was erected by the State of Kansas in 1901, at a cost of $3,000. Afterwards he was appointed Captain, then a Major, and in 1810 a Colonel of infantry. In 1813 he was appointed a Brigadier-General. On the 25th day of April, 1813, at the head of 1,500 choice troops, he sailed for Sacketts Harbor on an expedition against Little York, now Toronto, the then capital of Upper Canada.

In the taking of York a tremendous explosion took place from a British magazine which had been previously prepared for that purpose. An immense quantity of large stones was thrown with terrible force in every direction, one of which struck General Pike on the breast and mortally wounded him. It is stated that when the surgeons were carrying him from the field a tumultuous huzza was heard; Pike, turning his head with an anxious look of inquiry, was told by a sergeant: "The British Union Jack is coming down General; the Stars are going up!" He heaved a heavy sigh and smiled. He was then carried on board the Commodore's ship, where he lingered for a few hours. Just before he breathed his last the British standard was brought to him, when he made a sign to have it placed under his head, and expired. He was probably the greatest of all our Generals to fall in our second war with Great Britain.

Who was the mother of this famous General and where was he born? The name of his mother I have been unable to ascertain through any of the records in New Jersey, Washington, in the West, or elsewhere, and so this is yet to be determined.

Captain John Pike, the first of the Pikes to be found in New Jersey, settled in Woodbridge in 1666. He was a magistrate and member of Council under the Proprietary Government. He had a son John, who was also a magistrate and member of the Council.

Zebulon Pike, the first of that name, was a son of the latter John Pike. He made his will on June 6, 1761, and died in 1762. His wife's name was Janet Pike, and they had at least two children, John and James. John married Hannah Phillips (license dated) January 12, 1744, and of this marriage there were several children. Joseph, one of them, is mentioned in the will of his grandfather, Zebulon Pike. John died intestate February 1, 1761, aged forty-three years. Administration upon his estate was first granted to his brother James, then to his father Zebulon, and then to his mother, Janet. The other son, James, was the grandfather of the General. He married Mary Herriott, of Woodbridge, (license dated) March 7, 1747, and died May 15, 1761, aged 39 years. His will, bearing date Nov. 5, 1760, states that he was of Woodbridge in the County of Middlesex, Province of East New Jersey. In it he gives to his son, Zebulon Pike, all that lot of upland and salt meadow lying by William Pike's; and to his son, James, all that lot of land adjoining to Jonathan Harned's. He mentions another son, Robert, and two daughters. To Robert he gives two lots of land on Strawberry Hill; likewise a lot of land that was formerly John Reaves'. He appointed his friend, David Herriot and William Pike executors of his will.

Captain Zebulon Pike, the father of the General, was born in 1751, and died at Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 27, 1834. Besides the General he had at least three other children, one George W. Pike, who was admitted "In the records of the dedication of the monument at Pawnee (Kansas Hist. Soc. Proc., vol. 7), it states that "Gen. Pike seems to have had a presentment that he would not return from his expedition to the North," and that his last words were: "Keep the flag floating!"

in the Naval Academy in 1808 and died in military service in 1812. Another James B. Pike, and a daughter, Maria H. (Herriot) Pike.

The records of the pension department at Washington disclose that in 1823 Capt. Zebulon Pike referred to the following members of his family, but his wife's name is not stated:

James B. Pike, his wife Elizabeth, son, (aged 40 years) and children: William, 8 years. George, 6 years. Montgomery, 4 years. Catherine, 2 years. Joseph, 3 months.

Daughters, Maria H. Gage, aged 33 years, and her children: Zebulon, 12 years. Sarah, 9 years. Clarissa, 6 years. ———, 9 months.

In 1824 he referred to his grandchild, her name not stated, the daughter of the late General Zebulon Montgomery Pike. This refers to Clarissa Brown Pike, named after her mother, who was Clarissa Harlow Brown, the daughter of Captain John Brown, of the Revolutionary War, who emigrated from New Jersey to North Bend, Kentucky, sometime prior to 1800. She was the only child of the General who arrived at maturity. She married John Cleves Symmes Harrison, eldest son of President William Henry Harrison, and of this marriage there were six children. Harrison died early in life leaving his widow, together with the six little children, three boys and three girls. His widow, who was so affected by her husband's death that her mind was ever afterward clouded, died a few years subsequent, and the six children were left solely in the care of Mrs. Zebulon M. Pike. One of these sons, Pike Harrison, was adopted by the Government and educated at West Point, and was killed by the Indians in a skirmish in the West. Another son, Symmes Harrison, Jr., was killed by lightning. Another, William Henry, married and settled in Kentucky and reared a large family. The eldest of the girls was named Zebulon, in honor of her two grandfathers. Two of the daughters married physicians, and, it is said, died of cholera.

The General's widow died in 1847 at the age of sixty-five years and was buried in a private burial-ground at North Bend, Kentucky. Her will at Burlington bequeaths, among other things, to her grandson, Montgomery Pike Harrison, the portrait of her deceased husband, "General M. Pike."

I recently discovered that a granddaughter of Captain Pike (and niece of Gen. Zebulon M. Pike) died at Larned, Kansas, in April, 1909. She was Sarah Gage, the daughter of Maria Herriot Gage, mentioned by the Captain in 1823, as nine years old (Maria was General Pike's "favorite sister"). If Sarah's age was correctly given by her grandfather, she must have been ninety-five years of age at the time of her death. She was the representative of the Pike family in Kansas. Her first husband was Joseph Wardell; her second, Rev. Mr. Sturdevant, a Presbyterian Minister at Springfield, Ohio, who went to Kansas in 1875 and died there at Olathe, in 1886, after they had been married over fifty years. After his death Mrs. Sturdevant moved to Larned, Kansas, and lived with her daughter, Jennie, the wife of Col. Wesley Rowe Adams. Her only son is Charles Sturdevant, who also lived in Larned, Kansas, but later moved to Alva, Oklahoma. Jennie, the wife of Colonel Adams, died in 1914.

Whether she left descendants, I have not, as yet, been able to ascertain. I know of no other descendant of Captain Pike, excepting H. L. Harrison, of Ludlow Station, Kentucky, who is a grandson of General Pike, but who is unable to furnish me with the name of his great-grandmother.

There is some possibility that the wife of Captain Pike was Isabella, for the reason that General Davis, in his history of Bucks County, says that Captain Pike and wife in 1786 conveyed to Jonathan Kensey, of Solebury, a tract of land in Northumberland County. In the deed he is styled "Captain." The name of the wife, joining in the execution of this deed, is Isabella.

General Davis also states that from military records in existence Captain Pike, immediately after he was commissioned Captain in Moylan's Light Dragoons, took the oath of allegiance before Joseph Hart, Esq., of Warminster Township, in Bucks County, on June 28, 1777; and from the "Pennsylvania Archives" he is likewise shown, from military returns, to have been credited in the War of the Revolution to Pennsylvania. Stryker's "Official Register" (p. 86), credits him to "Moylan's Regiment," but gives his record, perhaps because he was known to be a Jerseyman, first enlisting at Woodbridge. I also find in the official tax returns for Bucks County, Pennsylvania, that one of his name was engaged in the farming and milling business in 1785 and 1787, but he is not shown among the inhabitants of Bucks County in the United States census of 1790.2

The pension application of Captain Pike shows that he entered the military service in June, 1776, in Captain John Haddon's Company at Woodbridge, New Jersey; and in the following year he was an officer in Moylan's Light Dragoons, and served therein until the close of the Revolutionary War. Afterwards we find him a Captain in the battalion of troops furnished by New Jersey for St. Clair's Expedition in 1791; and upon the completion of this service in the following year he entered the regular military establishment of the United States, obtaining the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and remained until the close of the War of 1815.

1 In Captain Pike's deed conveying the land in Northumberland County, Pa., he spelled his Christian name, "Zebalon." Query: Was this Captain Pike of Woodbridge, New Jersey? 2 This question can be positively answered by ascertaining the Christian name of General Zebulon M. Pike's mother.
General Zebulon M. Pike, Somerset-Born

Where General Pike Was Born

Writers of history and biography have stated that General Zebulon Montgomery Pike was born at Lamberton; nearly all declare it was Lamberton, now the southern part of the City of Trenton. Lamberton was that part of the City of Trenton which now constitutes the sixth ward. It was named after Thomas Lambert, who founded it at the same time that Mahlon Stacy founded Trenton.

The well-known name of Lamberton at Trenton has been responsible for the mistake as to the General's birthplace which has crept into history and which has gone uncorrected for nearly three-quarters of a century. If one will pick up almost any encyclopedia or biography he will find it stated that General Pike was born at "Lamberton, now a part of Trenton, New Jersey, January 5, 1779." But this name has been confused with his real birthplace, which was not at Lamberton in Mercer County, but at Lamberton (now Lamington) in Somerset County.

Elliott Coues, who published "The Expedition of Zebulon M. Pike" in 1895, in three volumes, says: "The best life of Pike we have had, is that which was prepared by Henry Whiting and published in 1845 in Jared Spark's 'Library of American Biography,' Vol. XV., or New Series, Vol. V., pp. 217-314." Mr. Coues, following Whiting, says: "The Pike family resided in New Jersey for several generations. One Captain Pike acquired his military title in Indian warfare. Zebulon Pike, the father of Zebulon Montgomery Pike, had been a Captain in the Revolutionary army, and had served in the levies of 1791; was brevetted Lieutenant-Colonel July 10, 1812, and honorably discharged June 15, 1815. He died July 27, 1834. His son, Zebulon Montgomery Pike, was born at Lamberton, afterwards a south part of Trenton, N. J., January 5th, 1779. During some of Zebulon Montgomery's childhood days his parents removed to a place in Bucks County, Pa., near the Delaware River, and thence to Easton, Pa. Whiting says that he was remembered by some of his schoolmates, who were living in 1845, as a boy of slender form, very fair complexion, gentle and retiring disposition, but of resolute spirit," etc.

In Barber and Howe's "Historical Collections of New Jersey," published in 1844, it is stated that "Zebulon M. Pike was born at Lamberton, Mercer County, January 5th, 1779. His parents were natives of Woodbridge, where their son spent his youth," etc.

General William H. H. Davis, who published his "History of Bucks County" in 1905, says: "The distinguished Zebulon M. Pike, who fell at York, Canada, in 1813, spent several years of his life at Solebury, if not born there. As will be remembered the Pikes were early landowners in Solebury, Joseph owning land there before 1702. The General is said to have been born at Lamberton, now the lower part of Trenton, New Jersey, January 5, 1779.” A foot-note to the latter statement reads: “There is no positive evidence that General Pike was born in Solebury, but likely in that vicinity, certainly in Bucks County, where his father resided several years, before his son’s birth.”

The late historian, Francis B. Lee, in his “New Jersey as a Colony and as a State,” makes the statement that General Pike was born “in Lamberton, an early suburb of Trenton.”

In the “Kansas Historical Society Proceedings” of 1901-2, Vol. 7, p. 286, in the account of the dedicatory exercises of a monument to General Pike, it is stated that he “was born near Trenton, N. J.,” and giving the correct date.

Several other of the modern contributors to Trenton’s history have also stated that the General was born in Trenton. One has gone so far as to say that “General Zebulon Montgomery Pike was the greatest Trentonian of his day and one of the greatest men Trenton has yet produced. He was one of the early students of the old Trenton Academy, it is said,” etc.

In the Trenton “Sunday Times-Advertiser,” of August 16, 1914, appeared an article with this leading: “Want Monument Erected Here to Memory of General Pike—Former Mayor Bechtel Starts Movement to Thus Commemorate the Exploits of Famous Soldier and Explorer Who was Born in This City.” Then follows an article in which mention is made of Mr. Bechtel’s recent return from a tour of the West. While in the West he saw a number of monuments erected near Pike’s Peak to the discoverer and soldier. He expressed regret that “in the city where the well known General was born, is but one little slab designating the place where his body is laid.” This is contained in the outside wall of St. Michael’s burial ground and reads:

“Sacred to the Memory of
GENL. Z. M. PIKE
Of the U. S. Army
Who Fell in Defense
Of His Country on the 27th April, A. D. 1813,
At York, Upper Canada.
This Small Tribute of Respect is Erected by his Friend, Z. R.”

In contrast the monument at Pike’s Peak reads:
"ZEBULON MONTGOMERY PIKE

Was Born at Lamberton
Now Trenton, New Jersey,
January 5, 1779
Died April 27, 1813,
In an Attack on York,
Later Toronto, Canada.
Aged 34 Years
Burial at Madison Barracks, N. Y."

It was the view of former Mayor Bechtel that, in consideration of the most remarkable career of General Pike and his accomplishments as a soldier-explorer, Trenton should have some more fitting monument than that which is in the wall of St. Michael's, and he suggested that a general fund be started.

The monument in the West referred to by Mr. Bechtel has a copper plate on each of its four sides, all descriptive of some notable achievement of General Pike, one of which reads:

"The People of Colorado Have Placed Here
This Granite Rock in Recognition of the Notable Career of Zebulon M. Pike, Soldier—Explorer and Commander, on the One Hundredth Anniversary of his Historic Expedition."

The tablet in St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Warren Street, Trenton, has led many to believe that General Pike's body was buried there, but this is not so. His remains, after the battle at York, were conveyed to Sackett's Harbor, Jefferson County, New York, and buried with military honors near Fort Tompkins. Afterwards, in 1818, they were removed from Sackett's Harbor to the burial-grounds at Madison Barracks in the immediate vicinity. Over his grave a plain wooden shaft was erected jointly to his memory and other gallant officers. On one side it bore the inscription: "In memory of Gen. Z. M. Pike. Killed at York, U. C., 27 April, 1813."

The initials, "Z. R.," on the tablet in St. Michael's Church, Trenton, are those of Zachariah Rossell, Major of the 15th Regiment of the U. S. Infantry, or "Pike's Regiment," in the War of 1812, and afterwards Adjutant-General of New Jersey. The records of St. Michael's Church do not disclose, nor have I been able to find any newspaper report of the dedication of this tablet.

After my attention had been called to the inscription on the monument at Colorado Springs, and being curious about old landmarks in and about Trenton, I endeavored to locate the house in Trenton in which General Pike was born. From the beginning I sought proof of the alleged fact that the General was born at Lamberton, now a part of Trenton. It seemed strange that if such were a fact the early historians, such as the Rev. Eli Cooley, S. S. Haven (the elder), the Rev. John D. Hall, John O. Raum and others had nowhere in their writings mentioned it. Another fact leading me to doubt that General Pike was a native of Trenton was that in 1808 he was required to produce evidence of his citizenship in order to be promoted in the army. In complying with this requirement he procured from Governor Bloomfield, of New Jersey, a letter addressed to Henry Dearborn, then the Secretary of War, reading as follows:

"New Jersey, Trenton, 23d March, 1808.

"It appears by the records of this State that Captain John Pike, in the year 1666, was one of the original purchasers of and settled in Woodbridge—a magistrate and member of Council under the Proprietary government. I have been well acquainted with Major Zebulon Pike from my childhood, and with Captain John Brown (Lieutenant of Cavalry in the Revolutionary War) also a native of Woodbridge—Whose daughter Captain Z. M. Pike married; so that Captain Pike has good reason to claim New Jersey not only as his native State, but as the residence of his family for near a century and a half."

(Signed) "Joseph Bloomfield."

Still further doubt was occasioned by finding that the "Trenton Federalist" of May 17, 1814, announced the killing of General Pike at Little York, and a week subsequently published the following: "It is surprising that we should be so long without an official list of the killed and wounded at the taking of Little York. A private letter mentions that the officers killed were General Pike, Captain Lyon, Hoppock (printer, formerly of this place), and Lieutenant Bloomfield. Three of these were natives of New Jersey."

The three officers mentioned as natives of New Jersey were Zebulon Montgomery Pike, Captain John Lambert Hoppock, and Second Lieutenant Moses Ogden Bloomfield; and the reporter having stated that Hoppock, printer, was formerly of Trenton, the natural inference would be that General Pike was not of Trenton, otherwise that fact would also have been mentioned. This was all the local newspaper notation relative to the death of General Pike that could be found.

Nearly all of General Pike's manuscripts have been destroyed by fire many years ago. The records of the offices of the Adjutant General and of the Secretary of State of New Jersey do not, nor do the records of the War Department at Washington disclose the place where General Pike was born.

In 1808 General Pike published a volume of his "Expeditions Through Louisiana," which he protected by a copyright. The petition for the copyright was entered in the Clerk's office of the U. S. District Court of Pennsylvania, June 7th, 1808. Hoping such petition might disclose General Pike's birthplace, the clerk of that Court was written to for the information desired. He answered stating that formerly applications for copyrights were entered in the clerk's office of the U. S. District Court, but, since the Act of 1870 relative thereto, all such applications have been made to the Library of Congress, and under the provisions of the Act all books and papers connected with the subject of copyright were transferred to Washington; therefore he was unable to give me the desired information. A similar letter was written to the Librarian of Congress, who referred it to the Registrar of Copyrights. The latter gentleman, after searching the records, wrote that the record book for the year 1808 showed the entry of the title of General Pike's book, but did not indicate the author's birthplace, and that he could find no trace of the original petition or application.

Thus far my researches, though they covered many fields, was disappointing in that they furnished nothing whereby to prove or disprove the subject of my quest—Whether General Pike was born in Trenton?

It frequently happens in attempting to establish a century-old fact, that when one has ceased his researches he stumbles over the proof of such fact when and where least expected. Recently I picked from a shelf of old books a small volume entitled "The American Biography." On opening it I found it to contain short sketches of the Heroes of the Revolution and of the War of 1812, published by Thomas Wilson, in two volumes, in 1817, within five years of General Pike's death. This volume contained nothing relative to General Pike. Volume two, however, could not be found, nor did our State or city libraries, or even the Princeton University Library, possess it. However, our Trenton City Librarian, Howard L. Hughes, volunteered to get it from the Library of Congress, if possible. Here the missing volume of a rare work was located and forwarded. What was my surprise on opening the book to find on the very first page a sketch of our hero in which the author states: "Zebulon Montgomery Pike was born at a place called Allamatunk, now by corruption Lamberton, in New Jersey."

Only once before had my attention been called to this name Allamatunk. In the "National Cyclopedia of American Biography," Vol. 2, page 517, it is stated "Pike, Zebulon Montgomery, soldier, was born at Lamberton, N. J., February 5, 1779; at the time of his birth the town was called Allamatunk."

The earliest mention of this name "Allamatunk" is to be found in the Act running the division line between East and West Jersey in 1719 during Robert Hunter's administration as Governor of New Jersey. One course was "until it intersects that part of the North Branch of Raritan River which descends from a Fall of Water commonly called and known by the Indian name of Allamitung." (Allison's Laws 43). It is also mentioned in the Act of 1736 creating Morris County from that part of Hunterdon "lying to the Northward and Eastward of the well known place in the county of Hunterdon, being a Fall of Water in part of the North Branch of the Raritan River called in the Indian Language, or known by the name of Allomotonck." (Ibid, 109). The Falls then was in the Allamatunk River. We find this river mentioned in print in 1738 as the Lamaconick (11 "N. J. Archives" 520); in 1751 as the Lamoertonk (19 Ibid, 95); in 1763 as the Lamenton (24 Ibid, 170); in 1765 as the Alematunk (24 Ibid, 550). To-day it is known as the Lamington River. The Falls referred to is at the junction of Hunterdon, Somerset and Morris Counties. North of the falls the river is known as the Black River, and consequently the falls are often referred to as the Black River Falls. Tracing the Lamington River we find on its east bank in Bedminster township, Somerset County, the town of Lamington.

I visited this place a short time ago for the purpose of discovering additional facts, if possible. It is a pretty country village, containing not more than a dozen houses, a country store conducted by Fred. Anthony, formerly of Trenton, a school house, a Presbyterian Church, and an ancient burial-ground in which the bodies of many of New Jersey's early prominent citizens were buried, among them being John Honeyman, Washington's famous spy, and his wife. The history of the place disclosed that the place had been settled prior to 1740, as in that year the church was built; that in 1740 a call for the Rev. James McCrea was presented to the Presbytery from the people of Lamintunck, Lebanon, Peapack, Redington and Bethlehem, and that he became the first pastor, serving from 1741 to 1766. It also disclosed that the name Lamington has been corrupted from the old Indian name of Allamatunk. This church at Lamington was the only one in Bedminster township in 1779. It is referred to by "Garret Lane, living in Somerset County in the Township of Bedminster about half a mile from Lamonton Meeting House" in an advertisement for a cow which had strayed away in 1778. (2 "N. J. Archives," 302, 2d Series).

There can be no doubt that Lamington was known as "Lamberton" at the time General Pike was born. It was so called by Pastor McCrea's own family. He died in 1769 and was buried in the Lamington graveyard. His widow, Catherine, and son James, as his executors, on August 28 and September 4, 1769, advertised some of his lands for sale in the Pennsylvania Chronicle, as follows: "To be sold by way of public vendue on Tuesday, the tenth day of October next, at the dwelling-house of the Revd. James McCrea, deceased; a plantation, containing between three and four hundred acres of land, in the Township of Bedminster and County of Somerset, and Province of East New Jersey, being about seventeen miles from New Brunswick, three miles from Lamberton Meeting-House, within one and a half of a good mill and about one and a half from Pluckemin.” (26 "N. J. Archives," 492).

From the foregoing one can readily see how the name has been con-founded with Lamberton, now Trenton.

The first person to write about General Pike (probably Thomas Wilson) said he was born at a place called Allamatunk, now by corruption Lamberton, in New Jersey. The second (like that of the “National Cyclopedia of American Biography”) wrote that he was born in Lamberton and at the time of his birth the town was called Allamatunk. The third simply wrote that he was born at Lamberton, N. J., deeming it unnecessary to mention Allamatunk, as that name had been forgotten. The fourth (like Barber and Howe) knew of only one Lamberton in New Jersey, that in the newly-created county of Mercer, and so wrote that he was born at Lamberton, Mercer county. The fifth, writing after Lamberton had been created the Sixth Ward of the City of Trenton, took for granted what the preceding writer had said and wrote that he was born at Lamberton, now a part of Trenton, N. J. But now history is rectified, and Somerset County may claim General Pike as her son.

DAVID T. TALMAGE, FATHER OF THE NOTED TALMAGE CLERGYMEN

BY ROBERT SWARTWOUT TALMAGE

Doubtless the far-reaching influence for good exerted by the four well-known clergymen, Rev. Drs. John Van Nest, Goyin, James Richards and Thomas DeWitt Talmage, sons of David T. Talmage and his wife, Catharine Van Nest, was the result of their upbringing; and the school training bestowed on his talented children was, possibly, more thorough on account of his own incomplete education.

As one of the elder sons of Major Thomas Talmage1 (he was born Apr. 21, 1783), many of the duties and responsibilities of managing his father’s farm fell to David and he unselfishly passed on to his younger brothers the advantages he would otherwise have enjoyed. These, Rev. Jehiel Talmage and Dr. Samuel Kennedy Talmage, were both graduated from Nassau Hall, Princeton, Jehiel becoming a successful pastor in several Northern New Jersey incumbencies, and Dr. Samuel Kennedy Talmage becoming President of Oglethorpe College, Georgia, of which State he became so thoroughly the adopted son that he served as the Chaplain of the first Confederate Congress, held at Atlanta.

The only record that we have concerning David Talmage's early education is that of his attendance at the "Old Red School House" at Raritan, erected in 1795. The journey to and from "Mont Verdi" must have been tiresome, but fatigue and privations of many kinds seem always to have been borne by him without complaint.

Dr. Messler, in "First Things in Old Somerset," has given us a graphic description of this quaint little building. "It was," he says, "twenty-four feet square, consisting of one room only, and with but one door. A spacious fireplace was the only means of heating it. The furnishings were of the most primitive, consisting of wooden benches without back for the smaller children, and a long table flanked by benches on either side was given to those who could write and cypher. The building was painted red and had white casings around the doors and windows. Master Warburton was the first teacher engaged. He was an Englishman who probably had come over to America attached to the British Army in the War of the Revolution. The master was kindly, but a firm believer in the efficiency of the birch when necessary, and always kept a nicely-trimmed rod close at hand. The English Primer, Dilworth's Spelling Book and Arithmetic, the New Testament and the Bible were the only books known to the school."

David Talmage was a robust youth, full of energy and given to feats of strength and daring. Numerous trustworthy traditions handed down to us testify to his fearlessness and courage. In stature he was tall and slender, rugged of feature, and with the prominent nose and blue eyes so generally to be found in the family.

In his twenty-first year he married Catharine, a daughter of Peter Van Nest of Somerville, and for several years the young couple made their home with her family on the "Prince George" Van Nest estate on the road to North Branch. The old house is still standing, its interior showing the low-studded and -beamed ceilings characteristic of its time of building, and is now occupied by Mr. Henry Garretson, also a descendant of Peter Van Nest.²

²The Van Nest family was originally from the Netherlands, and the name is variously spelled in colonial records as van Ess, van Ness, Van Nest, and van Nest. The pioneer in America, Pieter Van Nest, resided at the time of his emigration in Nes, one of three villages on the island of Ameland, off Friesland, between which province and the island lies De Walden Sound. Members of the van Nest family became illustrious in ancient days, one, in the sixteenth century, acting as Coun-celor of William the Silent, Prince of Orange. Vice-Admiral van Nest took part in the famous expedition against England in 1666, engaging in the battle off North In the year 1805 David and Catharine Van Nest Talmage made profession of faith in the First Church of Raritan, during the pastorate of Rev. John S. Vredenburgh, where, later on, David Talmage was chosen and served as deacon. Besides attaining prominence in religious matters, he became active in civil affairs and served on many town committees and in various minor offices.

From the Van Nest homestead the family removed in 1814 to a farm east of Somerville, owned by an uncle, John Van Nest, and lived there until 1840. Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage refers to the removal as follows:

"The old house, in which so many of the children were born, has long since disappeared. I have no memory of residence there except of the day of departure, and that was only emphasized by the fact that we left behind an old black cat, which had purred her way into my affections, and this separation was the first sorrow I can recall."

In the year 1836 David Talmage became, by popular election, a Member of Assembly and was returned two successive terms. During the months the Legislature was in session, he lived in Trenton, only occasionally visiting his home. The journeys to and fro, while serving the State, were always made on a favorite horse named "Star," and on one of these occasions he witnessed the "fall of the meteors," so graphically described in a memorable sermon by Dr. Talmage in Philadelphia in 1867, that I give the excerpt verbatim:

"My father was on the turnpike road between Trenton and Bound Brook, coming through the night from Trenton, where he was serving the State, to his home, where there was sickness. I have often heard him tell about it. It was the night of the 12th and the morning of the 13th of November, 1833. The sky was cloudless and the air clear. Suddenly the heavens became a scene never to be forgotten. From the constellation Leo meteors began to shoot out in all directions. For the two hours between four and six in the morning it was estimated that a thousand meteors a minute flashed and expired. It grew lighter than noon-day.

Forclard, Kent. His ships, and those of Admiral Tromp, were so badly crippled that they had to be abandoned, but the commanders survived and led brilliantly until obliged to retreat. The following year, 1667, Admiral van Nest blocked the mouth of the Thames, while Admiral De Ruyter threatened the English Coast, causing consternation and terror there.

The original patent to Peter Van Nest, (son of Pieter), the first of the family to settle in New Jersey, consisted of a large tract of land along the north branch of the Raritan River, in what was then East Jersey, situated between the villages of North Branch and Somerville. In time this estate was partitioned off among his heirs. The homestead was replaced some years ago by a building used at the present time as the Community Home for the Poor and Aged. [For some particulars of the early Van Nests in Somerset see QUARTERLY, Vol. VI, pp. 211-213.—Editor].
Through the upper air shot arrows of fire! Balls of fire! Trails of fire! Showers of fire! Some of the appearances were larger than the full moon. All around the heavens explosion followed explosion. Sounds as well as sights! The air filled with an uproar. All the luminaries of the sky seemed to have received marching orders. The ether was ribbed and interlaced and garlanded with meteoric display. From horizon to horizon everything was in combustion and conflagration. The spectacle ceased not until the rising sun of the November morning eclipsed it, and the whole American nation sat down exhausted with the agitations of a night to be memorable until the earth itself shall become a falling star. The Bible closes with such a scene of falling lights—not only fidgety meteors, but grave old stars. St. John saw it in prospect and wrote: 'The stars of heaven fell unto the earth even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs when she is shaken of a mighty wind.' What a time there will be when worlds drop! Rain of planets! Gravitation letting loose her grip on worlds! Constellations falling apart and galaxies dissolved!"

After his return from his duties in the Assembly, David Talmage resumed his old manner of living, but it was not for long that he was destined to enjoy the peacefulness of purely home duties. His strength of mind and body had been remarked by those powerful politically, and in 1841 he was elected Sheriff of Somerset County and compelled to forsake the life of a country 'squire and take up his residence in Somerville for a more active public career.3

Dr. Talmage, with filial affection, has preserved for us anecdotes of his father's life, one of which, illustrating his great courage and presence of mind, is thrilling as well as interesting:

"My father was the only person I ever knew without any element of fear. I do not believe he understood the sensation. While serving as 3While visiting England some years ago, in the little ancient church at Helmingham, near Ipswich, where many of the Talmash family (of the same race as the American Talmages) are entombed, I found the sarcophagi of four of the name who had held office as High Sheriffs of Suffolk during the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries. The quaint inscription on one of the tombs was so interesting that I copied it. It runs:

"Heir to my father's name Lionel—and seat, Lands, Goods and Kindness to Small and Great,
By Heaven's Blessing on my best Endeavour
In his Footsteps persevered I ever.
Amongst the Best, above the most admired
For all the Parts my Race and Place required.
High Sheriff of Suffolk once—of Norfolk twice.
For both approv'd right Gentle, Just and Wise.
Lord Wentworth's Daughter was my lovely Pheas [fair],
And Four Score (six less) lived I Pilgrim here."

He is represented as a knight, in complete black armor, kneeling beneath the tomb, above which an armorial bears the fret of the Talmage arms impaled with the gryphons of the house of Wentworth. The date of death is inscribed as January 20, 1571."
High Sheriff of Somerset, a prisoner got playing the maniac, dashing things to pieces, vociferating horribly and flourishing a knife with which he threatened to carve any one who came near the wicket of his prison. Constables were called in to quell this real or dramatized maniac, but they fled in terror. My father, arriving about this time, was told of the trouble and warned of the danger of going near the cell. Apparently deaf to all entreaties, he took down the great key and opened the iron door. Without any weapon of defense he came upon the man, and with a stern and resolute face thundered: 'Sit down and give me that knife!' The prisoner obeyed at once and a tragedy was averted."

Of another occasion, he also relates:

"I recall that as a boy I was driving with him one day behind a team of fractious horses that became unmanageable and ran away, threatening to demolish our surrey and us with it. My father, perfectly calm, turned around to me, a boy of seven years, and asked: 'What are you crying about, DeWitt? I guess we can ride as fast as they can run.'"

David Talmage acted at various times on committees for improving the educational conditions in Somerville, and to his own sons, as before noted, he was able to give advantages such as he himself had not been able to enjoy.

His eldest son, James Richards, was graduated from Nassau Hall, Princeton, and the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, holding subsequently pastorates at Chittenango and Kingston, N. Y., and Jersey City.

John Van Nest, his fourth son, took his degree at Rutgers, sailing shortly thereafter for China, where he lived for over sixty years. Besides his work in the foreign missionary field, he translated several books of the Bible, Bunyan's "Pilgrim Progress," many essays, also school books and hymns into the Chinese language.

Goyin, the fifth son, was graduated from Rutgers College and New Brunswick Theological Seminary and held pastorates at Rhinebeck and Port Jervis, N. Y., for many years, contributing during the same period to the "Christian at Work" regularly and publishing several books, among them "The Dutch Reformed Church, a Goodly Heritage," "Admonitions for the Times," "Christ in the Storm," and "Religious Tests." His last residence was in Somerville.

Thomas DeWitt Talmage, the youngest son, who became world-renowned, was graduated from the University of the City of New York and Rutgers Theological Seminary. His first charge was at Belleville, N. J. In 1862 he accepted a call to the Second Reformed Church of Philadelphia, but, after six years' pastorate there, he received a call to the Central Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, afterwards known as the "Brooklyn Tabernacle." Dr. Talmage also edited the "Christian at Work," "The Advance," and later, "The Christian Herald." His weekly sermons were published all over America and were translated into many languages. Several books were published by him, the better known being, "Crumbs Swept Up," "Abominations of Modern Society," "Around the Tea Table" and "Everyday Religion." As a lecturer he was in constant demand. His life is too well-known to need further remarks.\footnote{David T. Talmage had, in fact, seven sons, whose names, in order, appeared in the Quarterly of 1914 (Vol. III, pp. 103, 104).}

At the expiration of his term of office in 1844 Mr. Talmage returned to Middlebrook and occupied a house which has only recently been torn down. The fifty-ninth anniversary of his marriage was celebrated there in 1862, and Rev. Dr. John F. Mesick, one of the guests, gave the following clever picture of the occasion in "Christian Intelligencer" of November of that year:

"This gathering was so extraordinary in some respects that it merits a passing notice, at least. The return from China of the Rev. John V. N. Talmage to his paternal home after many years in foreign lands was an additional reason for this family reunion. From far and near they came, bringing their partners and children with them to the number of fifty, to honor the parents spared to a good old age and to greet the brother returned from distant lands. After a service of prayer and thanksgiving had been offered by the Rev. James R. Talmage, a short talk was given by the Rev. John Van Nest Talmage, who chose as his topic: 'Offer unto God thanksgiving.' The Rev. Goyn Talmage made a prayer, which closed the services. The guests then adjourned to 'The Evergreens,' the home of Col. Daniel Talmage, another son, living near by, where dinner was served. Some unusual color was added to this occasion by two natives in Chinese costume, servants of Rev. John V. N. Talmage, who assisted at table. Afterward the guests sought the spacious parlors. In the center of the room, between the folding doors, in large arm-chairs, sat the aged white-haired sire and his wife, each in apparent good health, while around them grouped their distinguished sons and their wives. At the farther end of the rooms a cluster of singers had gathered around the organ. It produced a beautiful picture, worthy the painter's brush. A felicitous address was made by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage of Philadelphia, having a due mixture of the grave and the gay, expressive of the joy of the present and of a sober sense of the prospective changes of the future. The theme was the characteristics of the Talmage family, which was handled with sprightliness, wit and truthfulness. In closing the thought was suggested that in all human probability they would never all meet again on earth alive and well. This sad thought was sooner realized than was anticipated, for Mrs. David Talmage died just one month from that day."

After the death of his wife, Mr. Talmage made his home with his son, "Colonel Dan," at "The Evergreens," and lived there until his death, which occurred the 27th of October, 1865, just three years to the day after that of his wife. During the next month his son, Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, then pastor of the Second Reformed Dutch Church of Philadelphia, preached a notable sermon commemorative of his father's life. This sermon was published only for family circulation and so is unknown to the public. It had for its title "The Beauty of Old Age," the text being from Eccle. 12:15: "The almond tree shall flourish."

REV. DR. T. DEWITT TALMAGE'S SERMON

After a graphic description of the blossoming of the almond tree in Palestine in January, when it "took on the apparel of those who dwell in 'raiment exceeding white,' so as 'no fuller on earth can white them,'" and applying it, as Solomon did, to give "the full-length portrait of an aged man" with his whitened locks, he continued:

"I have stood, for the last few days, as under the power of an enchantment. Last Friday-a-week, at eighty-three years of age, my father exchanged earth for heaven. The wheat was ripe, and it has been harvested. No painter's brush nor poet's rhythm could have described that magnificent sun-setting. It was no hurricane blast let loose, but a gale from heaven, that drove into the dust the blossoms of that almond tree.

"There are lessons for me to learn, and also for you, for many of you knew him. The child of his old age. I come to-night to pay an humble tribute to him, who, in the hour of my birth, took me into his watchful care, and whose parental faithfulness, combined with that of my mother, was the means of bringing my erring feet to the Cross, and kindling in my soul anticipation of immortal blessedness. If I failed to speak, methinks the old family Bible, that I brought home with me, would rebuke my silence, and the very walls of my youthful home would tell the story of my ingratitude. I must speak, though it be with broken utterance, and in terms which may seem too strong for those of you who never had an opportunity of gathering the fruit of this luxuriant almond tree.

"First. In my father's old age was to be seen the beauty of a cheerful spirit. I never remember to have heard him make a gloomy expression. This was not because he lacked perception of the evils of society. He abhorred anything like impurity, or fraud, or double-dealing. He never

*An interesting family Bible is also owned by Mr. T. H. S. Cone, of Bound Brook, which contains Van Nest and Talmage records. Mr. David Talmage, of whom his son so eloquently speaks, was accustomed to read a few verses from the Bible in the morning, and to make a prayer before the assembled household. Being called away, one day, from the breakfast table, the usual family worship was overlooked, until Cicero, a small negro servant, unable to understand the omission, tugging at his employer's sleeve, whispered: "Master, yeh done forgot to read out of the big book this morning." It is said it was the only time he had ever omitted to do so. failed to lift up his voice against sin when he saw it. He was terrible in his indignation against wrong; and had an iron grip for the throat of him who trampled on the helpless. Better meet a lion robbed of her whelps than him, if you had been stealing the bread from the mouth of the fatherless. It required all the placidity of my mother's voice to calm him when once the mountain storm of his righteous wrath was in full blast; while as for himself he would submit to more imposition, and say nothing, than any man I ever knew.

"But, while sensitive to the wrong-doings of society, he felt confident that all would be righted. When he prayed, you could hear in the very tones of his voice the expectation that Christ Jesus would utterly demolish all iniquity, and fill the earth with His glory. This Christian man was not a misanthrope; did not think that everything was going to ruin; considered the world a very good place to live in. He never sat moping or despondent, but took things as they were, knowing that God could and would make them better. When the heaviest surge of calamity came upon him, he met it with as cheerful a countenance as ever a bather at the beach met the incoming Atlantic, rising up on the other side of the wave stronger than when it smote him. Without ever being charged with frivolity, he sang, and whistled, and laughed. He knew about all the cheerful tunes that were ever printed in old 'New Brunswick Collection,' and the 'Shumway,' and the sweetest melodies that Thomas Hastings ever composed. I think that every pillar in the Somerville and Bound Brook churches knew his happy voice. He took the pitch of sacred song on Sabbath morning, and lost it not through all the week. I have heard him sing plowing amid the aggravations of 'new ground,' about his home duties and on the street. When the church choir would break down, everybody looked around to see if he were not ready with 'Woodstock,' 'Mount Pisgah,' or 'Uxbridge.' And when all his familiar tunes failed to express the joy of his soul, he would take up his own pen, draw five long lines across the sheet, put in the notes, and then to the tune that he called 'Boundbrook' begin to sing:

"'As when the weary trav'ler gains
The height of some o'erlooking hill,
His heart revives if, cross the plains,
He sees his home, tho' distant still.'

"Few families fall heir to so large a pile of well-studied musical books as he left.

"He was ready, at proper times, for all kinds of innocent amusement. He often felt a merriment that not only touched the lips, but played upon every fibre of the body, and rolled down into the very depths of his soul with long reverberations. No one that I ever knew understood more fully the science of a good laugh. He was not only quick to recognize hilarity when created by others, but was always ready to do his share toward making it. Before extreme old age he could outrun and outleap any of his children. He did not hide his satisfaction at having outwalked someone who boasted of his pedestrianism, or at having been able to swing the scythe after all the rest of the harvesters had dropped from exhaustion, or at having, in the legislative halls, outrun with nimble wits and tripped up some villainous scheme for robbing the public treasury. In long winter nights it was hard to decide who enjoyed sportiveness the better, the children who romped the floor, or the parents who, with lighted countenances, looked at them.

"His laughter was not the 'crackling of thorns under a pot,' but the 'merry heart that doeth good like medicine.' In the multitude of his witticisms there were no things at religion, no caricatures of good men, no trifling with the things of eternity. All the children of the community knew him; and to the last day of his walking out, when they saw him coming down the lane, shouted: 'Here comes Grandfather!' If there was a bright side to anything, he always saw it; and his name, in all the places where he dwelt, will long be a synonym for exhilaration of spirit.

"But whence all this cheerfulness? Some might ascribe it all to natural disposition. No doubt there is such a thing as sunshine of temperament. God gives more brightness to the almond tree than to the cypress. No doubt constitutional structure had much to do with this cheerfulness. And by a life of sobriety, he preserved his freshness and vigor. He abhorred anything that could intoxicate, being among the first in this country to join the crusade against alcoholic beverages. The products of distillery or brewery were never poured around the roots of this thrifty almond. To the last week of his life his ear could catch a child's whisper, and at four-score years his eyes refused spectacles. Death came, not to fell the gnarled trunk of a decaying and lightning-blasted tree, but to cut down a Cedar of Lebanon, whose fall made the ground tremble and the echoes ring.

"Physical health, however, could not account for this sunshine entirely. Sixty-four years ago a coal from the heavenly altar kindled a light that shone brighter and brighter unto the perfect day. Permit Almighty grace to triumph for nearly three-quarters of a century in a man's soul, and do you wonder that he is happy? For twice the length of your life and mine he sat in the bower of promises, plucking the round, ripe clusters of Eshcol. At the wells of salvation he put his lips to the bucket that came up dripping and drank of the fresh, cool, sparkling waters of eternal life. And the joy he felt was that which, planted by a Saviour's grace, mounts up higher and higher till it breaks forth in the acclaim of the hundred and forty and four thousand who have broken their last chain and wept their last sorrow. O mighty God! How deep, how wide, how high the joy Thou kindlest in the heart of the believer!

"Secondly. We behold in our father the beauty of a Christian faith. Let not this assurance of his continued cheerfulness give you the idea that he never had any trouble. Few men have so serious and overwhelming a life-struggle as he. Into the world he went out without means, and with scant educational opportunity. Early he chose to form an alliance with one who would not only be able to enjoy the success of life, but who would with her own willing hands help achieve it. So while father tilled his fields, and harvested his crops, mother stood for Solomon's portraiture of an ideal housewife: 'She riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household. She layeth her hands to the spindle, and holds the distaff. She is not afraid of the snow for her household, for all are clothed with scarlet. Her children arise up and call her blessed her husband also, and he praiseth her.'
"My father scorned not lowly duties, but did them well; he later fulfilled those assigned him in the civic world, as he loved God and kept His commandments. What is descent from a kingly line as compared with the honor of being a son of the Lord God Almighty? Faith in God upheld him through fifteen years of invalidism, fearfully struggling to support his large family. His recitals of help afforded and deliverances from trouble sounded more like romance than reality. He walked through many a desert, but every morning had its manna, and every night its pillar of fire, and every hard rock a rod that could shatter it into a crystal fountains at his feet. More than once he came to his last dollar, but right behind it found Him who owns the cattle on a thousand hills, and from whose hand all the fowls of heaven peck their food, and from whom each disciple has a warrantable deed for the whole universe, in the words: 'All are yours.'

"The path that led him through financial straits prepared him also for sore bereavements. The infant of days was smitten, and he laid it into the river of death with as much confidence as the infant Moses was laid into the Ark on the Nile, knowing that soon from the palace on high a shining one would come to fetch it.

"On an island of the sea, among strangers, almost unattended, death came to a beloved son, and though I remember the darkness that dropped on the household when the black-sealed letter was opened, I remember also the utterances of Christian submission.

"Another, bearing his own name, just on the threshold of manhood, his heart beating high with hope, falls into the dust; but above the cries of early widowhood and the desolation of that dark day, I hear the patriarch's prayer, commending children and children's children to the Divine sympathy.

"But a deeper shadow fell across the old homestead. The golden wedding had been celebrated nine years before. My mother looked up, pushed back her spectacles, and said: 'Just think of it, father! We have been together fifty-nine years!' The twain stood together like two trees of the forest with interlocked branches. Their affections had taken deep root together in many a kindred grave. Side by side in life's great battle, they fought the good fight, and won the day. But death is near to break this alliance. The reward of righteousness is ready, and its recipient is ready to be paid. But what a tearing apart! What rending up of ties! What will the aged man do without this helpmate to lean upon? Who so well understood how to sympathize and counsel? What voice so cheering as hers to conduct him over the steeps of old age? That voice which in the last moments said: 'Father, if only you and I could go together! How pleasant it would be!' But the call came for one alone an autumnal afternoon, and for the first time in all my life, on my arrival at home, I received no maternal greeting, no answering kiss, no pressure of the hand. God had taken our mother!

"In this overwhelming shock the patriarch stood confident, reciting the promises and attesting the assurances of divine goodness. He had faith! faith! faith! 'Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory!'" so long that idleness was not to be expected now. His faith was not the idle expectation that sits with its hands in pocket listlessly waiting, but that feeling which gathers up all its soul resources and hurls them on one grand design. He was among the first to toil in Sabbath School, and never failed to speak in praise of the institution. No storm nor darkness ever kept him away from prayer-meeting. In the neighborhood where he lived, for years he held a devotional meeting. Oftentimes the only praying man. with only a handful present, he would give out the hymn, read the lines and conduct the music and pray; then read the Scriptures, and pray again; then lead forth in the Doxology with an enthusiasm equal to one leading a thousand worshippers. He went forth visiting the sick, burying the dead, collecting alms for the poor, inviting ministers of religion to his household, in which there was, as in the house at Shunem, a little room over the wall, with bed and candlestick for any passing Elisha. He never shuddered at the sight of a subscription paper, and not a single great cause of benevolence arose within the last half century which he did not bless with his beneficence. O! this almond tree of ours which lately blossomed was not a barren one! Charity from him was not like the bursting of the famous Southern bud that fills the whole forest with its crackle; nor was it a clumsy thing like that tropical fruit which, crashing down, destroys the life of those who gather it. In his case the right hand knew not what the left hand did.

"The churches of God, in which he toiled, have arisen as one man to declare his faithfulness and to mourn their loss. In their holy war he stood at the front, and the courage that never trembled nor winced in the presence of temporal danger enabled him to dare all things for God. In church matters he was not afraid of criticism. Ordained, not by the laying on of human hands, but by the imposition of the Holy Spirit with the Saviour's love, he preached all his life—in official position, in legislative hall, in commercial circles—a practical Christianity. He showed that there was such a thing as honesty in politics. He stood for purity in politics; no stuffed ballot-boxes, no forged naturalization papers, no intoxicated voters, no lying, no surrendering of principle, no demagoguery. He called things by their right names, and what to others might be a prevarication, exaggeration, mis-statement or hyperbole, was to him a lie. Though far from being undecided in his views, he never professed neutrality, or consorted with those miserable men who boast how well they can walk on both sides of a dividing-line and be on neither. Even in the acrimonies of an election canvass, with his name hotly discussed in public journals, I do not remember that his integrity was ever assaulted. Starting every morning with a chapter of the Bible, and his whole family around him on their knees, he forgot not, in the excitements of the world, that he had a God to serve and a heaven to win. The morning prayer came up on one side of the day and the evening prayer on the other side, and joined each other in an arch above his head, under the shadow of which he walked all day. The Sabbath worship extended into Monday's conversation, and Tuesday's bargain, and Wednesday's mirthfulness, and Thursday's controversy, and Friday's sociality, and Saturday's calculation.

"Through how many thrilling scenes he had passed! He stood, at Morristown, in the choir that chanted when memorial services for George Washington were held. Watched the progress of the administration of John Adams. Denounced, at the time, Aaron Burr's infamy. Heard the guns that celebrated the New Orleans victory. Voted against General Jackson, but lived long enough to wish we had one just like him. Remembered when the first steamer struck the North River with its wheel-buckets. Flushed with excitement in the time of national banks and the Sub-Treasury. Was startled at the birth of telegraphy. Saw the United States grow from a speck on the world's map to a nation with a flag to which, on passing merchantmen, all others dip theirs, and a national air which has been heard on so many excites of the Himalayas.

"He was born while the Revolutionary cannon were coming home from Yorktown, and lived to hear the tramp of troops returning from the War of the great Rebellion. He lived to speak the names of eighty children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Longer than almost all his contemporaries! To me occurs the saying of aged Wilberforce that sailors drink to 'Friends astern,' until half-way across the sea, and then to 'Friends ahead.' With him it had been for a long time 'Friends ahead.' So also, it had been with my father. Long and varied pilgrimage! Nothing but sovereign grace could have kept him true, earnest, useful and Christian through so many exciting scenes.

"From the sunrise of youth to the sunset of old age he worked unweariedly, and then in the sweet nightfall of death, lighted by starry promises, went home, taking his sheaves with him. . . .

"Now, after such a life, what sort of a death would you have expected? That God would conduct a voyager through so many storms, and then permit shipwreck coming up the harbor? Not such an One is my God and Saviour. The telegraph thrilled with tidings, north, south, east and west, that brought in the rushing rail-train his kindred together. The hour, for which this aged servant of God had waited patiently, had come, and he rejoiced with a joy at which the tongue faltered. There was no turning from side to side on the pillow, as though looking for escape from grim pursuers, but a gazing up and around, as though looking for the chariot of King Jesus. The prayer the older sons had heard him make forty years before, asking that at last he might have 'nothing to do but die,' was literally answered.

"All his children, save that one which he sent forth with his blessing a few months before, in the good ship 'Surprise,' to proclaim the glories of the Messiah on the other side of the earth, were present; some to pray; some to hold his hand; some to lathe his brow. All to watch and wait and weep and rejoice. He asked about our children. Asked about those in our pastoral care. Talked about the past. Expressed his anticipations of the future. Slept as sweetly as a child ever slept in the arms of its mother. Then, waking, broke forth with the utterance, 'Goodness and mercy have followed me all the days of my life!' The Bible, studied for so many years, now cast its light far on into the valley, until the very gate of heaven flashed upon his vision. Some one quoted the passage: 'This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.' 'Of whom I am chief,' responded the dying Christian. We said: 'To live is Christ.' He answered: 'To die is gain,' and, lest we did not understand him, repeated: 'To die is gain!' And as if the vision grew more enrapturing, he continued to say: 'To die is gain!' Ministers of the Gospel came in, and after the usual greeting, he said: 'Pray! Pray!' We sang some of his favorite hymns, such as:

"Jesus can make a dying bed Feel soft as downy pillows are,
    While on his breast I lean my head,
    And breathe my life out sweetly there."

He would seem almost to stop breathing in order to listen, and then, at the close, would signify that he remembered the old tune right well. He said: 'I shall be gone soon, but not too soon.' Some one quoted: 'Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil.' And he replied: 'Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.' 'Can you testify of God's faithfulness?' said another. He answered, 'Yes. I have been young and now I am old, yet have I never seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread.' Again and again and again he repeated: 'All is well!' Then, lifting his hand, exclaimed: 'Peace! Peace!'

"On the morning of the 27th of October, just three years from the day when the soul of his companion sped into the heavens, it was evident that the last moment had come. Softly the news came to all the sleepers in the house, and the quick glance of lights from room to room signalled the coming of the death angel. We took out our watches, and said: 'Four o'clock and fifteen minutes!' The pulse fluttered, as a tree-branch lifts and falls at the motion of a bird's wing about to cleave its way into the heavens. No quick start of pain; no glassy stare; but eyelid lightly closed and calm lip and the almond tree had reached perfection. A righteous life was crowned with its white blossoms! The gates of the earthly prison-house silently opened, wide and wider, to clear the way for the conquering spirit. Free! Shout upward the tidings! Without a moan or a sign he had passed upward into the light. 'And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his sons he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people.'

"A clear and perfect autumnal Sabbath was Heaven's gift for his burial day. At the first flush of the dawn, we said: 'This is just the day for the burial of a Christian!' Fading leaf, indeed, under foot, told of earthly decay, but streaming sunshine assured of resurrection joy. On their staffs came tottering old comrades who, in 1812, had drilled with him in the militia, making ready for heroic strife. Came the poor, whose rent he had paid to keep their children from the blasts of winter. Came the erring men he had bailed out of prison. Came the children who had watched for his step, played with his cane, and wondered what new attraction grandfather would unfold from his deep pockets. Came the ministers of religion who had sat with him in church courts and planned for the advancement of Christianity.

"Passing along the roads where he had often gone, and by the birthplace of most of his children, we reached his resting-place just as the sun was setting in the country graveyard. Here we laid him down beside her with whom he had walked and prayed and sung and counselled for more than half a century. It seemed as though she must speak a greeting, but no voice was heard. Side by side Jacob and Rachel were buried. Let one willow overarch their graves. Instead of two marble slabs, let there be but a single shaft, for they were one. How shall we mark it? On this side 'David, the husband and father.' On that the name of 'Catharine, the wife and mother.' On one side the date of their coming and going, and on the side still unchiseled: 'The morning cometh.' Isaiah 21:12.

"Henceforth we shall be orphans. It is a sad thing, even at manhood, to become fatherless and motherless. No one but God can make up for the loss of a father's counsel and a mother's tenderness. 'Hope thou in God!' 'Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning;' quaint John Bunyan caught a glimpse of the glorious ending of all earthly trial, when he said: 'Just as the gates were opened to let in the men, I looked in after them, and behold the city shone like the sun; the streets were also paved with gold, and in them walked many men with crowns on their heads and golden harps to sing praises withal. And after that they shut up the gates, which when I had seen, I wished myself among them.'"

SOMERSET INNHOLDERS, 1778-1799
FROM THE COURT MINUTES

It has long been our desire to secure the names of the inns and innholders of Somerset from the time the County was formed until the year 1800. As, however, the Court Minutes prior to the January Term, 1778, were destroyed, with nearly all other County records, by the British when the courthouse at Millstone was burned in 1779, it is not possible to secure official data prior to 1778. Fortunately the Court minute book, beginning January, 1778, was, somehow, preserved.

We know of the existence of certain hotels before 1778 and occasionally of their proprietors, from other sources, but only in fragmentary way.

From January, 1778, onward, the names of the licencees of hotels are complete, or presumably so, up to the present time. Our researches, however, stop with the year 1799.

Licenses to keep inns and taverns were formerly granted on application, not by the Court of Common Pleas as now, but by the Court of Quarter Sessions (the Criminal Court). The term was for one year. The license fees were such as the Court fixed, and varied between 1778 and 1797 from $10 to $20; then the maximum was made higher. Prior to 1797 the statute under which inns were licensed was that of Mar.
15, 1738/39, as supplemented by provisions of May 10, 1768. These Acts provided for a one-year license by the Justices of the Peace who formed the Court of Quarter Sessions, the license fees being 6/— to the Court and 3/6 to the clerk. Assessors were also to assess taverns from 40/— to 43 each for the relief of the poor. The Court was also to fix the prices of liquors and entertainment. At least six freeholders were to certify to the character of the applicant and his accommodations.

On Feb. 24, 1797 (Paterson’s Laws, p. 236), a new Act was passed, much the same as the previous statute, but requiring that the recommendation be by “the chosen freeholders, the commissioners of appeal and the overseers of the poor, or at least two-thirds of them, of the township or precinct” wherein the proposed tavern was situate, and the fees to be fixed by the Court were to be from $10 minimum to $70 maximum.

That there were nearly as many inns and taverns in Somerset prior to 1800 as in 1919 (when there are 42 licensed) will be evident from a survey of the names of innholders given below. In one year (1779) 41 were licensed. They usually ran in number from 24, a minimum, to 36. The reasons for the small difference between then and now are obvious. In the first place, there being no railroads (stage lines being in vogue instead), there was a need for country inns which does not now exist. In the second place, there were no other meeting-places for the public; no public halls except as the inns furnished them. In the third place it was considered the proper thing to buy and drink rum, gin, brandy, etc., especially rum; even church buildings could not be erected or funerals held without the innkeeper being called upon to supply so many gallons of rum. The spirit of 1919 seems not to be related to the spirits of Revolutionary times!

Unfortunately, the Court minutes do not disclose the location of any licensed inn, except in two or three cases; do not even name the township. Nevertheless we think the list printed below, which contains all names of innholders for twenty-two years, will not be without its value for reference purposes. It frequently happens that someone interested desires to know how long a certain inn (and many inns were noted in various ways in these early days) was kept by a particular individual, whose name and residence he knows; who may, perhaps, be his ancestor. To such this publication will prove of assistance.

The years stated show those of license. They indicate breaks, which may be attributable to one of several causes. For example, a landlord may have quit his business for a year or two and resumed it, either at the same place or elsewhere. Or the Court may have refused a license for a year because of complaints; the minutes show frequent refusals to relicense. It is possible the minutes are occasionally defective. However, the list is given as we have found the facts, except that all names are placed in alphabetical order and the years of license grouped under each proper name. The results show there were 203 different landlords in Somerset for the period named.

Innholders from 1778 to 1799

(Dates indicate year or years of license. Where hyphens are used, it signifies that licenses were issued each year between the years stated).

BY THE EDITOR

The "Quarterly" Not to be Continued

The Publication Committee of the Quarterly has decided not to continue the publication of this magazine for the year 1920. The reasons are: The want of interest in the County itself, most of the subscribers being persons living outside; the inability to secure sufficient promises of future proper articles; the troublesome problem of financing the project further; and, lastly, the inroads on the time of the Editor, who has given freely thousands of hours to it during the past eight years, but cannot see the way clear to do the same in the immediate future.

It is true that the full designs of the Editor have not been quite carried to completion. For example, certain biographical sketches of little known but influential early citizens or natives; some family lines, as Ayres, Sutphen, Field, Van Deventer, etc., which the Editor and others have had in course of preparation; inscriptions from more of the early graveyards; continuation of the Hillsborough (Millstone) baptisms, etc. But, happily, the eight volumes published, covering 2,683 pages, have conserved a substantial and, we believe, permanently useful purpose.

In bringing the publication to a close, the Editor desires to thank all contributors to its pages; without their kind and free-will offices it must have proven a failure. The Committee on Publication also would acknowledge, what it has greatly appreciated, the patronage of those subscribers who have been faithful to the Quarterly throughout the whole period of its existence.

As intimated, the Quarterly has had its largest subscription list outside of Somerset County. Perhaps this is not to be wondered at, for the majority of the present generation of citizens are more concerned now about the Present than about the Past. Here and there, however, in nearly every State, are some former residents of Somerset, or such whose forebears migrated from Somerset, who have a desire to learn of the "old times" here which they or their fathers, or grandfathers, enjoyed; some of them being especially anxious to learn more about their own ancestral lines. Hence it came to pass that the Quarterly had its chief constituency in various cities and towns in other parts of New Jersey and in nearly every Western State. Such will probably miss greatly these familiar pages.

Perhaps we should note, for the benefit of those persons who may come across a single number or two in some out-of-way place, and who may desire to see or possess the complete files, that the full eight volumes can be found and consulted at many public and historical libraries; for example, as to the free public libraries, at New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Albany, Syracuse, Buffalo, Concord (N. H.), Detroit, St.
Louis, Joplin (Mo.), Sacramento, Los Angeles. Or, in this State at Somerville, Basking Ridge, Plainfield, Morristown, New Brunswick, Trenton (State House), Newark, Jersey City. Or at certain historical libraries, as at New York, Philadelphia, Doylestown, Wilkes-Barre, New Brunswick, Salem (Mass.), Brooklyn, Worcester, Boston, Columbus, St.
Paul, Montgomery (Ala.), Topeka, Madison (Wis.), Cleveland, Des Moines, Portland (Me.). A very few full sets, and certain of the sep-rate numbers may also be purchased by application to the Editor, at Plainfield, N. J.

Two Somerset Centenarians

It is well to record the fact that at least two persons in Somerset are now living at an age past the one hundred years. It has been our desire to ascertain, if possible, and publish the names and some data concerning others who, since our county came into existence, passed their one hundredth birthday within the county limits, but we have not had the time at command to search records and make the necessary inquiries. The two persons alluded to are Mr. John S. Smalley, Sr., of Bound Brook, who celebrated his 101st birthday on August 17th. He is the grandfather of the present Mayor of Bound Brook, Mr. Harvey S. Smalley, but was not native-born, his birthplace being in Ohio. However, he has resided in Somerset since he was four years of age, and is still in sufficient health to appear daily upon the streets of Bound Brook. The other person is Mrs. Abigail Ten Eyck, of South Branch, who, on Sept.
12th, was 101 years old. She was also born out of the county, being a native of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, but early in life resided at Neshanic, and afterward at South Branch. While blind she has remained, in possession of all her faculties.
The Talmage Sermon

It is not usual for an historical publication to publish a sermon, but the nearly complete one given by the late Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage (see page 257) is so characteristic of the man and sheds so much light upon his father that we are glad to be able to present it. Dr. Talmage was, of course, Somerset born, and was never ashamed of the county that gave him birth. We have had it in mind to relate some unpublished anecdotes—reminiscences might be a better term—of his visits to Somerville when the Editor of the Quarterly was engaged in journalistic labors there, on the newspaper in which, in its younger days, the Doctor had been greatly interested, but these must now await the convenient season. Both he and his brother, Rev. Goyn, never forgot this their native place, which will also long honor their memories. They were so different, and yet each was as firmly devoted to the other, as they and the other clerical brothers were to their father, a record of whose life is now for the first time given the prominence it deserves. The Somerset Talmage family has well shown Nature's frequent observance of the law of heredity as to talents and piety.

Bucks County Historical Society a Model

The Bucks County Historical Society, at Doylestown, Pa., organized in 1880 and incorporated in 1885, has long been, to our mind, a model Society in at least these respects. In the first place, it has been from first to present a working society, ceaseless in its endeavors to bring things out of the Past, and present them in excellent shape for preservation, whether written articles or relics. In the next place it has placed its proceedings, including all addresses and papers—a wealth of both, hundreds in all—in printed volumes that are a beauty to the eye and must prove of increasing interest as the years go on. The four large volumes printed cover about 2,700 pages of matter. Almost best of all is the fact that the Society has a handsome fire-proof concrete building of its own, presented by Dr. Henry C. Mercer and dedicated in 1916, and with it an endowment promised of $125,000. The cost of the building itself is not stated, but being of six stories and a tower, it apparently, would cost, to-day, at least $75,000. A view of it, in print, would indicate it is one of the handsomest buildings in Doylestown. When some one does a quarter as much as this for the Somerset County Historical Society we shall feel very proud.

The General Pike Article

With much pleasure we present to our readers a statement concerning the life and Somerset birthplace of General Zebulon Montgomery Pike, who discovered Pike's Peak and made so glorious a reputation in the War of 1812. The Quarterly alluded to the fact that it had been ascertained that he was born in Somerset, in the 1916 volume (p. 369). It is fitting that we should now publish an account of how Mr. Backes came to upset the modern historical statements as to the place of his birth, and it is given, at our request, by that author himself. Mr. Backes does not indicate, because he does not know, how General Pike came to be born at Lamington. Nor can we decide that question. In the lack of a better explanation we have this surmise to make: That Captain Pike, the father of the General (who was commissioned Captain Dec. 25, 1778, previously having been Paymaster, etc.), was undoubtedly with Washington's army at Middlebrook or in Bedminster township in the Winter of 1778-9. The Moylan Light Dragoons, in which he served, appears to have been at the Middlebrook encampment. What more natural than that Mrs. Pike should have come temporarily to that neighborhood; possibly staying with a friend at or near Lamington, where she was safe from British raids, and not such a long distance from either the Middlebrook or Pluckemin encampment. This would account for her giving birth to a son there, instead of the actual home residence of the General, wherever that was. If his residence at that period was at Woodbridge, it is unlikely that his wife would have remained there under the circumstances, as that part of New Jersey was not safe from British scouting marauders. This is not our conclusion but a conjecture; it may be the real facts will never be known.

A Former Lamington "Black Saint"

It is a well-known fact that the older type of colored persons in the North who were slaves were usually pious, and sometimes such to a remarkable degree. We have known a number of this kind, although our recollection only goes back to just preceding the Civil War, and then such "slaves" had been out of slavery for perhaps a quarter of a century or more.

We recently saw a written communication from an historical writer, now deceased, concerning one of the peculiarly religious slaves who attended the Lamington Presbyterian Church prior to seventy-five years ago, when he died, and we remember hearing his name mentioned by those who had known him as having a history deserving of printed mention. In fact he was mentioned in a published article by the late Dr. A. W. McDowell in 1873 ("Our Home," p. 532), as will be quoted later. His name was Cuffy Barnet, the surname being derived, as was customary in slave times, from his master. Quoting now from the written communication referred to (it has never been published):
"Cuffy Barnet was reared in the family of Capt. James Ten Eyck, of North Branch, and was purchased by Dr. Oliver Barnet, of New Germantown" [now Oldwick], "a physician who practiced at the latter place from 1765 until his death in 1809. Cuffy's wife, Amber, was reared by William Henry, who lived 'at the head of the Lane' north of Lamington, and was sold when a child to Dr. Abraham Bertron, then a tavern-keeper at North Branch. After having married Cuffy and become the mother of several children, Amber was purchased of Bertron by Mr. Evert Bergen of the Lamington congregation. At the end of fourteen years Mr. Bergen sold her to the widow of Dr. Barnet, Mrs. Betsey Barnet, in order that Cuffy should not leave Mrs. Barnet. After Mrs. Barnet's death in 1825 both blacks were set at liberty. Amber probably died first; Cuffy died in August, 1844, and was then living in the historic stone parsonage of the Lamington church, which was then disused as a parsonage.

"Cuffy's homely name long stood and almost yet stands for honest piety through all the Lamington region. The late Dr. Blauvelt, who was his last pastor, characterized him as 'the most exemplary black man he ever knew.' He was even a sort of lay preacher among the numerous people of his color. In his day the blacks constituted a large population in Bedminster township, and to them Cuffy not only supplemented the sermons of his pastor on Sundays with suggestions and very practical remarks, but he generally attended all funerals of his own race in the Lamington neighborhood and, when no ordained minister was present, he offered appropriate prayer at the grave. He drove on Sunday the two old horses and heavy yellow-bodied coach of Mrs. Barnet to church, and always sat at the farthest end of a gallery pew that overlooked the pulpit.

"A novel feature of Cuffy was his prodigiously large feet. He was not unusually tall, though his shoulders were broad, his arms and legs heavy and muscular, and his fists brawny and rigid, like a mass of flinty stones; yet none of these physical developments could account for his phenomenally big understandings. A former well-known lawyer of Flemington, Mr. Charles Bartles, who in his younger years remembered Cuffy well, once told the writer of his impression in meeting the slave when the latter was driving a yoke of oxen with a hickory goad fully ten feet long, and he said that it was not the deep, coarse voice, nor the heavy, rugged hands, nor the brawny back of this pious man which so attracted his attention, but a pair of monstrous feet that kept pace with the bovine pair. It reminded him of what may have been the appearance of the athletic Hercules when he returned from his completed task of cleansing the stables of the thrice one thousand oxen of Augeas.

"Dr. Barnet's wife was a godly woman, but it is known that Cuffy audibly groaned over his master's frequent lapses from a correct life, and to have fervently prayed, both in public and private, for his early conversion."

This last statement is quite probable if the anecdote told by Dr.
McDowell is a true one, viz.:

"He [Dr. Barnet] once said: 'Cuffy, I intend to be buried on my own land, and have reserved a place for you close beside me. When I rise, you may also rise with me. Wait upon me in the other world the same as in this.' 'I am much obliged,' said Cuffy, 'but rather guess not.
The Devil might come along some dark night and take the darkey for the Doctor.'"

The Frontispiece Map of 1745

Reference was constantly made in the Judge Ralph Voorhees articles, as published in the Quarterly during the years 1915, 1916 and 1917, to the eyear map of Azariah Dunham, extending from New Brunswick to beyond Princeton; the map showing the boundary road between Somerset and Middlesex counties, and dated 1766. Frequent other references to this map have appeared in other publications. The Judge, of course, in preparing those articles in his lifetime was not aware, and we do not know that any of our local historians, except the late Mr. Andrew D.
Mellick, Jr., were or are now aware that a John Dalley, surgeon of Kingston in Somerset, made a map of the same road in 1745, beginning at Perth Amboy and extending to Trenton; and probably the author of "The Story of an Old Farm" never saw the map. (See that work, p.
229). The original has been found in the New York Historical Society Library, and the New Jersey Historical Society has an exact reproduction of this map. The portion between New Brunswick and Princeton we give on a reduced scale as a frontispiece to this issue. In many ways it is interesting, especially as showing early landowners, roads, etc. We find a notice of the fact that Mr. Dalley had completed this survey in the XII, p. 273), and desires the public to engage to have it printed. Further than this we have no present knowledge of this Mr. Dalley.

DEPARTMENT OF NOTES AND QUERIES

[199]. McCrea-OHIO SETTLERS—"In a letter dated Hamilton, Ohio, Apr. 15, 1893, from Mr. Thomas Milliken, an attorney of that city, addressed to the late Rev. Andrew J. Hageman, of Somerville, occurs the following paragraph:

"'As a matter of history I will state to you that a sister of Jane McCrea, of New Jersey, lived in this county (Butler) and some of her descendants are here yet. I refer to the Jane McCrea in Revolutionary history, who was murdered by the Indians near Fort Edward. The sister of Jane McCrea was married to a man named McDonald, who moved from New Jersey probably ninety years ago, and who resided in the immediate neighborhood of the Hagemans.'"

"The last reference is to descendants of Michael Hageman, whom Mr. Millikin in another letter stated came from New Jersey about 1801, and died in Butler county about 1813. Continuing, he makes the following comment:

"'This country between the Great Miami and the Little Miami was all purchased by John Cleaves Symmes and his associates from the Congress of the United States, and the result was that a very large number of people from New Jersey came out here at an early date and located lands under Symmes. There is a large and highly respectable connection of the Hagemans living here, consisting of the Brants, Hughes, Woods, Schencks and Freemans. The old stock are dead, but there are many of their descendants living all through this county. In fact, my son married a Schenck and belongs to the stock.'"

J. J. D. (Metuchen, N. J.).

[The McDonald reference, of course, is to Catherine (McCrea) McDonald, who married William McDonald. See QUARTERLY, Vol. VII, p. 97.—Editor].

[200]. VAN DYKE-VAN VLIET.—An inaccuracy was made in our note last month (p. 235) concerning the Van Dyke-Van Vliet ancestors. The intimation there was that Hendrick Dirckse Van der Vliet did not exist. As a matter of fact he did, but is not to be confused with Hendrick Van Dyke, of Yellow Hook, who was the father of the Hendrick Van Dyke settling at Neshanic. We misinterpreted the information given us for the note in question.

As to the Neshanic family it is said to run from the first emigrant in this manner to the Rev. James W. Van Dyke, now of Ocean Grove.

1. Jan Thomassen, the emigrant of 1652, who m. (second wife) Tryntje Achias.
2. Thomas Jans, who m. Sytie Dircks.
3. Hendrick, of Yellow Hook, who m. Engeltie (or Jonica) ———, and d. 1751.
4. Hendrick, of Neshanic, b. about 1698; m. Margaret Van Derveer (dau. of Dominicus).
5. John, of near Somerville.
6. Cornelius, who m. Maria Brokaw.
8. Janes Whalen (the clergyman).
This line of Van Dykes Rev. James W. Van Dyke has approximately complete as to the Neshanic branch.

[201]. Blackford-Davis.—"I am a grandson of Samuel Blackford and, according to tradition, he was a brother to Isaac Newton Blackford, sometime Judge of the U. S. Court of Appeals. I should like to know something of Samuel, if possible, and especially of his marriage to Jane Davis."

J. G. B. (Seattle, Wash.).
[All we know of the immediate family of Judge Blackford appeared in Vol. V of the Quarterly, pp. 1-14. He had no brother Samuel, and we are not able to place him.—Editor].

[202]. Caldwell.—"Was there a family in Somerset by the name of Caldwell during the Revolution and what became of them?"
A. D. V. (Newark, N. J.).
[There was a Caldwell family near Basking Ridge in those days, but we have no particulars; one a Hugh Caldwell. It would seem, however, that there was one such family near Lamington, as one of the most famous men of North Carolina, a Dr. Joseph Caldwell, is stated in a history of that State to have been born at Lamington, N. J., Apr. 21, 1773, and to have died in North Carolina, Jan. 27, 1835. He was a physician, of Scotch-Irish descent, and became President of the University of North Carolina in 1816. We have had it in mind to prepare a brief sketch of his interesting life for our readers, but had not yet reached it.—Editor].

[203]. Cozad-Winans.—"I will appreciate information concerning Job Cozad and his wife, Hannah Winans, who lived at Bernards Town in Revolutionary days.” Mrs. F. L. B. (Hanford, Wash.).

[204]. The “Red Stone Country.”—"In the April Quarterly, p. 150, you suggest an error concerning 'The Red Stone Country' in Pennsylvania, when you say you 'judge this was York county, where red sandstone was plentiful and to which place many Somerset families went. It was, instead, the southwest corner of that State, or the part lying west of the Monongahela river and south of Fort Pitt (now Pittsburgh), known today as Washington and Green counties. Probably the largest colony that ever left New Jersey set out for this Red Stone Country in at least two companies. The first company came, I think, in 1780, and the next company in 1796. There may have been another company, but I only know of these two. My people came with the 1796 company. Among the names that I now recall who came out from New Jersey to the Red Stone Country were those of Thompson, Connett, Mcllrath, Day, Minton, Brownlee, Cooper, Dodd, Lindley, Ray, Owen, Axtell, Dille, Post, Clark, Dunn, Parsell, Rush, Stockton, Cozad, Conger, Parkinson, Condit (or Condict) and a host of others whose names I forget, as I have been away from there for 35 years now. This Red Stone Country later became known as the Scotch-Irish section of Pennsylvania and is known as such to the present day. Of course a few Dutch families, like the Van Kirk and Hoagland families, came along, but you will readily recognize many of the old bound Brook Scotch families in the list. It is the Gibraltar of Presbyterianism, the seat of Washington and Jefferson College, which was founded by these Jersey Pioneers, and, I may add, morally, religiously, educationally, financially, or from any other point of view, this old Jersey Colony of Scotch Presbyterians outranks any settlement of which I have any knowledge.”

O. L. C. (Marion, O.).

[205]. Peapack Again.—In the 1916 Quarterly (p. 312), we stated that the earliest reference we had discovered to the name Peapack was in the language used in a deed of 1708, which spoke of “another Indian towne called Peapock.” We now find the same place (no doubt) alluded to in an Indian deed of Oct. 29, 1701, to Johnson & Willocks, where it refers to a tract on the east side of the North Branch of the Raritan River, extending northwest “to the mountains above Pechpeck.” Possibly that represents the real name of the “old Indian towne” as well as any of the old spellings. (See “N. J. Archives” Vol. XXI, p. 141).

[206]. Chapman.—Inquiry has come to us concerning a Chapman family living at Peapack about 1770. A dau., Elizabeth, b. 1772; d. 1859; m. (1) ——— Able, and (2) George Moore. We have been unable to find traces of Elizabeth’s parents.

[207]. Thomas Codrington.—By an inadvertence the name of the first land settler in Somerset (at Bound Brook), Thomas Codrington, was misprinted Coddington in the July number of this Quarterly (pp. 233, 237). It was discovered when too late to correct. He was not the ancestor of the present Codrington or Coddington families of the County (see Quarterly, Vol. II, p. 125). The Codrington lands, of which the La Monte property referred to in the last Quarterly (p. 232) formed a part,
Seem to have had this genesis of title ownership: First, on May 4, 1681, the Indian deed, to eight persons, including Codrington, as named in the article referred to (on p. 233), for particulars of which see Messler's "Somerset Centennial Hist." (p. 11). This included probably 4,400 acres. Second, on April 15, 1682, survey of the same (East Jersey Deeds, Lib. 4, p. 8). Third, on Feb. 28, 1684, the Lords Proprietors deeded to Codrington 877 acres. (East Jersey Deeds, Lib. A, p. 97). Fourth, Aug. 13, 1685, John Royse (also, like Codrington, a merchant of New York City) deeded to Codrington 836 acres adjoining the previous tract, (Ibid, p. 257). This land Codrington sold to Michael Dircksen Van Veghten Aug. 2, 1694. (Ibid, Lib. F. p. 81).

[208]. The "Old York Road" Again.—"Here are some more or less interesting facts about the "Old York Road" on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware:

"The Old York Road, running from Philadelphia to New Brunswick, N. J., dates from 1711, and in its youth was very bad, especially in rainy weather. The mud was black and deep, and there were tremendous quicksands in many places. Farmers on their way to market would go in companies so as to help one another over the difficult places. It was not unusual to use four, and even six horses for an ordinary load. An instance is given where a team was stalled and in trying to draw out one of the horses with an iron chain to his head, it slipped, and the horse was so injured he had to be killed. Sometimes boys were stationed at dangerous places to warn teamsters, and fence rails were placed on end in the road as silent messengers of threatened disaster. In 1803 people could stand it no longer, and a turnpike was authorized. construction beginning at once on a section reaching to Red Lion Inn, at Willow Grove.

"A local historian gives a pleasing picture of the improvement of the road, referring to the removal of rocks, trees and stumps, the building of bridges and covering the surface with stones.

"At Willow Grove the Old York Road branches. The one branch bore slightly west of north, runs through old Neshaminy to Doylestown, where it turns east, runs to Buckingham and so to the Delaware River at New Hope, at that time Coryell's Ferry; the other branch bore a little east of north, through Hattor's, and joins the Doylestown branch at old Buckingham. Emmanuel Coryell's Ferry was established in 1732; Washington had frequent occasion to use it.

"The name Lambertville was given to the settlement on the New Jersey side of the river in 1812 at the request of Hon. John Lambert, made to the Post Office Department. Abraham Coryell, owner of the Ferry, a son of Emmanuel, was indignant. He persisted in referring to the place as 'Lambert's villainy.' John Coryell, brother of Abram, was proprietor of the ferry on the Pennsylvania side at this time, but it is not recorded that he made objection to the substitution of the name of New Hope for Coryell's Ferry.

[209] BOYLAN—ORTON.—There should be a correction in the article on “The Somerset Boylan Family” (QUARTERLY, Vol. VI, p. 110), under No 31, where it reads that James B., Jr., of Hoboken, had children: Benjamin D., etc. This part of the paragraph should read:

Ch. (by K. S. W.) 1. James B., Jr., of Newark, who m. Emma Van Velsor; no ch. 2. Elizabeth Katherine, who m. James Douglas Orton, Jr., of Newark, whose ch. arc: Benjamin Douglas, Dr. Henry Boylan and Raymond.

[210] DUMONT-GEN. WASHINGTON.—“I am very anxious for a copy of the letter written by the then General Washington to Capt. Peter H. Dumont, which is to be found in the historical records of your county.”

E. W. (Boyne City, Mich.).

[We know of no such letter.—Editor].

[211] HENRY.—In notes on the Henry Family in the April, 1918, QUARTERLY (Vol. VII, p. 118, footnotes), we stated that the great-grandfather of Mr. P. C. Henry, of Basking Ridge, was not certainly known. This is yet true, though we believe a careful search would make the same known. However this may be a descendant sends us a few facts about that line, which it may be useful to put in print.

The missing Henry is said to have owned 300 acres of land near Lammington; sold the land for Continental money; lost his wife when his son, Daniel, was born, became discouraged, joined the American army and was never heard from afterward. This son, Daniel, was b. Apr. 22, 1774, and d. Apr. 15, 1850; his wife was Mary Van Nest (dau. of Cornelius), who was b. Feb. 15, 1772. They left nine children, viz.:

Daniel, b. 1804.
Jane, b. 1806.
Catherine, b. 1808; had dau., Mary J.
Sarah, b. 1809; had son Abram.
William, b. 1814; had sons James and Cornelius.
Nancy, b. 1816; had sons Cornelius, James and John.
Rachel, b. 1819; had ch., John, Samuel J., Mary, Sarah, Norman, Cebrina.
John, b. 1821; d. 1902; m. Jane Hand, who was b. 1821 and d. 1900. He was the father of Parmenus C.; also of Catherine, Almira and Elizabeth.

James, b. 1824; had a son John.

Imperfect as the foregoing is, we hold that all facts about Somerset families are, or may prove to be, useful, and hence publish what has come to us.

[212]. The Bound Brook Boulder.—"Some one has said that the large stone set up in the road at the lower end of Bound Brook, containing a bronze tablet commemorating the site of the skirmish (called on the tablet a "Battle") of April 13, 1777, betw een Gen. Lincoln and some British troops, is a boulder, and distinctly of the glacial period. Is this true? If so, when was that period?"

B. V. D.

We believe this block of stone was dug from its bed about 1832, when the Delaware and Raritan Canal was constructed, and is a boulder; if so, it probably belongs to the latest of the glacial periods, which enveloped with ice so much of the whole country and distinctively left its marks in a moraine extending, in New Jersey, from Perth Amboy across the State in a diagonal line to Belvidere. It is supposed that the thickness of ice covering this part of North America may have been at least 3,000 feet. As in the case of all glaciers there is a forward movement of several inches, at the most a few feet, in a day, and the ice pushes along everything before it—rocks, trees, etc.; levelling hills to some extent and filling up valleys with gravel, etc. So it is that boulders may be found everywhere in its track in this and other States, and they are usually so rounded as to be easily distinguishable. Stones were not made round by the Almighty; whenever they are found smoothly rounded it is by the action of ice rolling them during the glacial era, or eras. How long ago was the last glacial period in America? No one knows. Some think only 10,000 years ago. Others figure that, whatever time ago that was, there was a previous interval, succeeding the earlier ice age, of between 84,000 and 140,000 years. (So Professor Nathaniel Schmidt, of Cornell University). Which is to say that it is still largely a matter of speculation as to the time or duration of any glacial epoch in this country.—Editor.
